

Hired Hand People Become Cliches

By Glenn Shelton

A borrowed word in the English lexicon is "cliche," a past participle of the French "cliquer" which means "to stereotype." We think of it in terms of words, more specifically of tired words, yet people also can be (and many are) cliches. You see cliche people all the time — attempting things that have been done by others year after year, following, in effect, like a migrating goose following a leader. Without an original thought of their own, they go through life keeping up with the Joneses, observing words and motions of others so that they will know what to do themselves.

Any competent writer will avoid cliches as he would (not a "plague" — an exhausted cliché) a traffic cop. He will never use "white as snow," "right as rain," "black as pitch" etc. because all these expressions were originated years ago and now are trite.

This is one of the first lessons to be learned by the aspiring writer. If he doesn't have the ingenuity to evolve his own imagery, then he's in the wrong business. He must learn to draw from the rich treasury of the English language new expressions that are refreshingly different. If he can't, he might as well fold his typewriter and silently steal.

Likewise, a man will never write much of a record in this life if he, himself, is a cliché, if he's a faded replica of millions of his fellow beings, if he doesn't have a wee spark of originality.

But I maintain that originality can be developed; that a guy isn't born with it. He needs only to form the habit of thinking for himself, expressing his own thoughts in his own words, acting and conducting himself after his own manner.

OFF ON A TANGENT — One of the impressive aspects of the recent tornado was the calm, almost indifferent attitude of those victims who had lost their homes. They weren't indifferent, of course. They were dead serious. But almost to a man they were magnificent in their courage and their poise. They went about salvaging what they could from their wrecked homes almost as if tornadoes were a daily occurrence.

MANY HAVE COMMENTED ON THE "TIMELINESS" OF MY RECENT TORNADO COLUMN. WELL, THE FACT THAT EVERYBODY WAS PRETTY WELL WARNED PROBABLY SAVED MANY LIVES.

Written in chalk on the sidewalk in front of an art gallery: "GOGH. MAN, GOGH!"

THE MAILBAG — "March 8 in your column you mentioned young Julie Milford of Olney. By coincidence, her great grandmother, Mrs. Arena Lee, 1608½ Cole, celebrated her 84th birthday that day. She is a lovely mother of 8, grandmother of 29, an active member of Lamar Baptist Church, seldom misses a Sunday. She's my Mom."

School Vote Recount Asked Rail Strike Threat Looms

Urgent Talks Held To Seek Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz told railroad and union negotiators Wednesday night "the public interest demands" that they settle their work rules dispute immediately and avert a threatened nationwide strike. At an emergency meeting ordered by President Johnson, Wirtz told representatives of five train operating unions and representatives of nearly 200 railroads:

"I am going to continue the present session until this result is reached."

The emergency meeting was called after a strike against the Illinois Central Railroad grew into a threat that more than 200,000 rail workers would walk off their jobs across the nation at 12:01 a.m. Friday.

The new rail crisis, part of the long and involved five-year-old railroad work rules dispute, is primarily over money issues.

Wirtz made the statement to the chiefs or the representatives of the five unions and chief railroad negotiator J. E. Wolfe and eight members of his advisory board.

There was no immediate report of any response from the industry or union representatives to Wirtz's appeal.

Wirtz told reporters the next step would be for him to talk separately with each side.

Earlier in the day, the surprise strike against the Illinois Central was described by Wolfe as "typical of the unions' continued irresponsibility in the featherbedding dispute."

Wolfe said the railroads would respond by imposing the disputed work rules changes across the country, effective at 12:01 a.m. Friday.

House Passes Wheat-Cotton Subsidy Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House early Thursday passed a sweeping cotton-wheat subsidy bill and sent it directly to President Johnson. The post-midnight vote came after earlier approval of a food stamp program for needy families.

It was a double victory for Johnson and his leadership in the House. The food stamp plan, which now goes to the Senate, is a key part of his declared "war on poverty," while the farm bill is designed to prevent any drastic fall in wheat farm income in this presidential election year.

The bills were passed in the face of strong Republican opposition and boisterous parliamentary maneuvering.

The wheat-cotton bill in particular drew Republican cries of "raw and bloody power politics" and a charge that the procedure was "debasing the character and integrity of the house of representatives."

The bill came up under a procedure that limited debate to one hour — which ran just beyond midnight — and prevented any amendments. What the House did was accept the Senate version without change in order to speed it to the President for his signature.

The cotton section of the farm bill provides a subsidy to American cotton textile mills so they can buy U.S. cotton at the world price available to their foreign competitors.

Rep. John V. Lindsay, R-N.Y., called it an "anticity, anticongress bill" that would raise the price of every wheat product.

Gemini Capsule Fired Into Orbit

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—An unmanned Project Gemini capsule was propelled into orbit by a Titan 2 rocket Wednesday and the United States got a flying start toward a goal of launching two astronauts into space in a similar craft late this year.

Analysis of data on Wednesday's flight and a second unmanned firing scheduled in the summer will determine whether the manned mission will be achieved in November or December as planned.

The powerful Titan 2, making its debut as a space booster, lifted off at 10 a.m. CST after a perfect countdown and hoisted the 7,000-pound spacecraft into an orbital path ranging from 99.6 to 204 miles high.

"We've got an orbit! It's a beauty," said the operations director, Walter C. Williams, just six minutes after blastoff.

Williams told a news conference later the high point was 21 miles higher than desired because of faster-than-planned booster speed. But he said that on a manned mission, the astronauts easily could correct this with their on-board fuel supply.

But Slowly Disaster Aid Fund Growing

Total of $1,451 was reported by the American Red Cross headquarters at Seventh and Scott Wednesday for the special relief fund to help disaster victims.

"And we're going to need hundreds of thousands," officials said.

In the second day of giving only about $140 was added to Tuesday's initial boost of $1,300 for the disaster-aid fund. About 585 families touched by the storm have applied for aid.

Other aid has been made available in loan form through the Small Business Administration, whose offices are on the second floor of the old Times Building occupied by the Red Cross.

Twenty-year loans at three per cent interest are being offered by the SBA in an effort to rehabilitate home owners and small businessmen.

Johnson Salutes MacArthur In Washington Ceremonies

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson, the last commander in chief of Gen. of the Army Douglas MacArthur, saluted his memory with an impressive tribute Wednesday as the celebrated soldier's body was carried to the Capitol to lie in state.

It was placed on a black-draped bier in the high-domed rotunda of the U.S. Capitol, where, last November President John F. Kennedy's body lay in state.

Johnson went to meet the train that carried MacArthur's family and his casket from New York to Washington. Then he rode in a cortege through about six miles of rain-swept streets from the railway station to a point near the White House and then up Capitol Hill to the rotunda.

Finally, the President placed a huge wreath of red, white and blue flowers at the foot of the bier, stepped back a pace, closed his eyes and bowed his head in silent prayer.

This was the last of the ceremonies in the rotunda that began at 3:20 p.m. and ended at 3:35.

Johnson's face was taut with emotion when he left.

He walked behind Mrs. MacArthur and her son, Arthur, 27, a tall, slim, dark-eyed man.

Mrs. MacArthur was dry-eyed through the ceremony. When she took her place on the north side of the catafalque, she stared fixedly at the flag-draped coffin.

Justice Hugo L. Black Tuesday also declined to interfere with the lower court order. The order was issued by a 3-judge U.S. district court in Houston on April 1.

Light Frost Seen Early Thursday

Wichita Falls should begin warming up again Thursday afternoon following a light frost forecast for exposed areas Thursday morning.

Forecasters at the U.S. Weather Bureau said the light frost probably would affect tender buds in exposed areas. The low is expected to be between 25 and 35 degrees.

However, a general warming trend is expected to develop after the cold morning hours and send the temperatures into the mid-70s before the day ends. Wednesday's high reading was 62 degrees.

Winds are expected to increase Friday, but no cold fronts are in sight for the city at present. Generally fair and warm weather should prevail.

Letter To Board Is Made Public

By JACK COATS

Mrs. Bill (Jan) Thacker, Wichita Falls housewife and candidate for trustee in last Saturday's school board election here who lost by 13 votes, Wednesday afternoon filed a formal request for a recount.

In a letter hand-delivered to the office of Floyd Randel, chairman of the board of trustees, Mrs. Thacker said:

"... It is my understanding that after the votes had been counted in all six election places that for some reason the votes for Mrs. Doing and myself were recounted in the Reagan Junior High School box only.

"I have been advised that the decision as to a recount of all the ballots is the responsibility of the present board of trustees at the time the election returns are canvassed, which I understand will be at the next meeting of the school board which has been scheduled at 2 p.m. Monday, April 13."

Mrs. Thacker said in her letter that she had received "a great number of calls suggesting a recount of the votes due to the margin of less than one-half of one per cent and the possibility of human error."

"I feel that it is my duty to report the above request for a complete recount of all ballots. I know the board will give this matter their careful consideration," Mrs. Thacker continued.

In a later statement issued after delivery of the letter, Mrs. Thacker said, "I want to make it plain that I am formally asking for a recount, and intend to

Judge Indicted On Five Counts Of Tax Evasion

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP)—Justice Earl Welch of the Oklahoma Supreme Court was indicted Wednesday by a federal grand jury on five counts of income tax evasion.

Also indicted was N. S. Corn, a former State Supreme Court justice who now is retired.

Welch, 72, senior member of the state's highest court with 32 years continuous service, is expected to appear before a U.S. commissioner Thursday.

The jurist faces a possible 25-year prison sentence and $50,000 fine if convicted on all five counts.

Attorney Notified
Corn was indicted on three counts of income tax evasion and two counts of willfully filing a tax return "knowing the same to be not true and correct."

The indictments were announced by U.S. Atty. B. Andrew Potter who said Corn's attorney was being notified.

Potter said bond would be set at $5,000 for each defendant.

Welch appeared before the grand jury for 5½ hours Wednesday and also testified before the panel Tuesday.

Elected in 1932
Welch, a native Oklahoman, was first elected to the State Supreme Court in 1932 from the 2nd Judicial District of Oklahoma.

Welch had served for a number of years as chief justice of the high court.

The indictments against Welch, a Democrat, charged he evaded payment of $2,373 in taxes in 1957, $4,158 in 1958, $991 in 1959, $2,478 in 1960 and $4,453 in 1961.

The government alleged his taxable income ranged from $9,424 to $19,753 during those five years. Supreme Court justices are paid $18,500 a year.

MacArthur Quoted As Accusing British Of Betrayal In Korea

NEW YORK (AP)—The late Gen. of the Army Douglas MacArthur, in a secret interview, was quoted Wednesday as saying the Chinese Communists entered the Korean War "after being assured by the British that MacArthur would be hamstrung and could not effectively oppose them."

Jim Lucas, in a copyright story for the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, said MacArthur told him in 1954: "On several occasions during the Korean War he had the Communists in the 'palm of my hand' and could have crushed them but was prevented by the perfidy of the British and by constant harassment and interference from Washington."

"He referred to this as the great betrayal, a story he said was unmatched in history but 'will never be told while I am alive,'" Lucas added.

"He said every message he sent to Washington and every message Washington sent to him was shown to the British by the State Department and that, within 48 hours, was relayed by the British, either through India or through the Russian Embassy in London, to the Chinese Communists."

"Thus he said, the Chinese Communists knew in advance every step he proposed to take."

"At Wake Island in October 1950, Gen. MacArthur said, he told President Truman that if the Chinese Communists intervened in Korea, he would let them cross the Yalu River and then bomb their bridges behind them, cutting their supply lines and causing them to starve."

"He insists this strategy was relayed by the British to the Chinese Communists with assurances that he—MacArthur—would not be permitted to do any such thing."

There was little immediate comment on the MacArthur interview.

In Washington, State Department press officer Richard I. Phillips said: "I would not think of making a comment on this purported statement at any time and particularly at this time."

A British Embassy spokesman in Washington said, "We think the story is unfounded."

Later the British spokesman added this statement: "British Commonwealth troops were serving in Korea at the time and it is unthinkable that the British government would endanger the lives of their own soldiers by passing information to the Communist Chinese as is alleged in the article."

MacArthur died Sunday at the age of 84. His body was brought to New York but returned Wednesday to Washington, preparatory to interment in Norfolk, Va.

Lucas, winner of a Pulitzer Prize for Korean War reporting, now is covering the war in South Viet Nam.

He said he spent about two hours with MacArthur on Jan. 20, 1954, as the five-star general approached his 74th birthday.

The Scripps-Howard Newspapers said in an editorial note: "Jim wrote for his editors a memo on that interview, which has rested in his office files all these years, since Jim felt honor-bound not to report any of it as long as Gen. MacArthur was alive."

Lucas wrote of MacArthur: "Incidentally, he was extremely bitter about published reports he had assured Truman the Chinese would not intervene (in Korea)—a statement he insists he did not make—and regards it as part of a 'leftist press' plot to discredit him."

Lucas said MacArthur became convinced he was the victim of a conspiracy after he issued an order for the Far East Air Forces to bomb the Yalu River bridges during the Korean War.

"The newspaper story continues: 'Four hours later—just as the planes were preparing to take off on this mission—he said his order was 'peremptorily' countermanded by Gen. George C. Marshall, then secretary of defense."

"Similarly, he said, plans to bomb the Yalu River power plants were vetoed by Marshall 'acting as the errand boy of the State Department.'"

At another point, Lucas wrote: "After the Chinese Reds were defeated, he—MacArthur—proposed to sow a five-mile-wide belt of radioactive cobalt—which he assured me 'we had in abundance'—along the Yalu, thus permanently sealing Korea off from China."

"These plans were vetoed by the United Nations and State Department because the British violently opposed them, Gen. MacArthur said. The British immediately 'tried to make capital' with the Chinese, he added, 'representing themselves as the Reds' 'friend' in court' who had intervened to avert disaster."

MacArthur was critical of many of the Americans he dealt with during the Korean War, among them President Truman. Lucas writes: "Gen. MacArthur frequently expressed bitterness when he spoke of Truman, but he paid him grudging respect as 'a man of raw courage and guts. The little . . . honestly believes he is a patriot.'"

"By accident, he said, Truman was in Independence, Mo., the day the North Koreans invaded the south and he reacted instinctively, like the gutter fighter he is—and you've got to admire him."

"Once Truman was back in Washington, Gen. MacArthur said, 'Dean Acheson (secretary of state) brought him back under control.'"

In Independence, a spokesman for Truman said the former president "will not engage in any comment or rebuttal." Truman relieved MacArthur of his command during the Korean War in an historic dispute.

Truman's spokesman added: "Mr. Truman sticks by the original statement he made on the general's death."

Truman said then that MacArthur "has given of himself with exceptional strength and valor and will be remembered as one of the great military men in our history."

Lucas writes of MacArthur's opinions of some of his Army colleagues:

Gen. Mark Clark, Far East commander in 1952 — "Gen. MacArthur said Gen. Mark Clark 'initiated his own retirement' because 'he couldn't take it any more. Washington pulled the rug out from under him.'"

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, a successor of Clark — "He said Taylor is a 'careful and extremely ambitious young man with the peak of his career still ahead of him' and will never do anything to jeopardize his career. 'He will never make a move without contacting higher echelons," Gen. MacArthur said."

Lt. Gen. Walton Walker, a field commander killed in a jeep accident in Korea in 1950 — "Of all his field commanders, Gen. MacArthur rated Lt. Gen. Walton Walker highest."

Gen. Matthew Ridgway, another field commander in Korea — "Gen. MacArthur rated Gen. Matthew Ridgway at the bottom, Gen. MacArthur referred to Ridgway as 'a chameleon.'"

Ridgway, he said, was in full agreement with his — MacArthur's — plans for winning the war, until he discovered these plans were regarded with disfavor in Washington, "and then Ridgway did a complete flipflop in 24 hours."

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower — "He charged the Eisenhower administration did not make decisions on the basis of, 'Is this right or wrong?' but purely on the basis of 're-electing Eisenhower and a Republican Congress.' Gen. MacArthur also protested several times that he was 'never consulted by my government about the Far East, an area which I know and understand better than any living American.'"

Chamber Delegation Inspects Burkburnett

Burkburnett, the oil field "boomtown" of 40 years ago, was the object of more attention Wednesday, as an area relations group from the chamber of commerce in Wichita Falls visited the progressive-minded city.

The group was met at the office of Texas Electric Service Company in Burkburnett by Jerry L. Thomas, president of the Burkburnett Chamber of Commerce, and other members of the organization.

First stop for the contingent of visitors and members of the host chamber of commerce was the Gun Shop, operated by F. Reid McCandless and his wife at 219 E. Main in Burkburnett. McCandless, an instructor at Sheppard Air Force Base, has been a collector and dealer for several years and has an extensive stock of new, used and antique guns, Indian relics and coins.

Thomas described the Gun Shop as a business rarity in a city the size of Burkburnett.

The delegation then visited the First National Bank of Burkburnett where Thomas, vice president and cashier of the institution, provided the group with a tour of the building, remodeled in 1962. At the beginning of this year, the bank had deposits of more than $6,625,000; it has shown a firm growth since it was organized in 1907. A. R. Hill is president of the bank and James E. Frye, mayor of Burkburnett, is vice president.

The First Savings & Loan Association, which moved into a new building in 1960, was visited next. Albert Dillard, executive vice president, conducted an inspection.

The group circled the block to visit the office and plant of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. Floyd Marten, Burkburnett manager, conducted a tour of the installation which was doubled in size during the past year.

Burkburnett telephone directories were distributed to members of the group. Cover of the directory depicts the city during its boomtown era in the early 1920's. Burkburnett's boom began with the discovery of oil, the Fowler Well, in 1919 and there were more than 1,500 oil wells within the original townsite during the peak period. The city was founded in 1907.

After a tour of the telephone plant, the group visited the office of the Burkburnett Chamber of Commerce, where Manager Buddy Byars explained the function of the chamber and explained the services available. The Burkburnett C-C has a slogan, "Burkburnett, Geared for Growth."

From the chamber office, the group returned to the Reddy Room of Texas Electric for doughnuts and coffee. Thomas described other projects the city is proud of—such as the $3 million high school system, a new clinic, and a rest home under construction. He expressed the belief that completion of the new expressway would aid both Burkburnett and Wichita Falls by providing a means of easy and safer transportation.

Wichita Falls citizens who made the trip included Howard Morgan, C-C area relations chairman; Bill Bass, project chairman; Bill Dennis, Ham Vance, Charles Rippey, John Kosanke, Glenn W. Dixon, N. A. Moore Jr., Keith Summers, Bob McCathren, and representatives of news media.

Burkburnett businessmen who entertained the visitors included Thomas, Frye, Marten, Joe Salter, chairman of the Burkburnett industrial foundation; Virgil Mills, Joe Wolf, Winston Freeman and Bill Donnell.

MacArthur Comes Back To Washington For Last Time

Wichita Falls Record News THURSDAY MORNING April 7, 1964 Page 5A

By ARTHUR EDSON
WASHINGTON (AP)—So the Old General, an unrelenting fighter to his final breath, came back to the nation's capital Wednesday for the last time.

It is especially fitting that Gen. Douglas MacArthur's body should lie in state in the Capitol rotunda. Few military men have had such long, close and often spectacular ties with this city.

Here MacArthur—so colorful, so handy with the high-blown phrase, so supercharged with personal magnetism he could beat envious politicians at their own game—scored some of his greatest triumphs.

Major Defeat
Here he suffered one of the worst defeats ever taken by a U.S. general, and from a politician who had none of his flair and style.

"With deep regret," President Harry Truman said on April 11, 1951, "I have concluded that General of the Army Douglas MacArthur is unable to give his wholehearted support to the policies of the United States government. I have decided I must make a change of command in the Far East."

Historians wonderingly reported that nothing like this had happened since President Lincoln fired Gen. George B. McClellan in 1862.

Tremendous Uproar
Ironically, the tremendous uproar over his dismissal led to what must have been one of MacArthur's most satisfying days.

Thirteen years ago, on April 19, 1951, a general relieved of all his commands came home to a welcome fit for a conqueror.

April in Washington often means fog, drizzle, murk. So it is not too surprising that on each return, in 1951 and 1964, there was a miserable dawn, with a promise of brighter hours ahead.

MacArthur had spent the night in the Statler Hotel, in the presidential suite, so carefully protected that reporters could learn practically nothing. Somehow one bit of news filtered through: He had sampled the hotel grapefruit, and pronounced it delicious.

Great Parade
Now came the great parade, over a route that was almost the exact reverse of the funeral cortege Wednesday, and a crowd of 550,000 was out to cheer.

At one point a woman in a green hat broke through to grab MacArthur's hand.

"Congratulations, general!" she cried. "You are the best man this country ever had."

"Bless you," said Douglas MacArthur.

Then, as now, the focal point was the Capitol.

The rotunda is only around 200 feet from the spot where MacArthur delivered what he hoped would be his vindication speech: "I address you with neither rancor nor bitterness in the fading twilight of life, but with one purpose in mind: To serve my country."

In today's political strife 13 years can seem an eternity.

Defended General
Among those defending MacArthur were Republican Sens. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska and Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin, who called the firing "perhaps the greatest victory the Communists have ever won."

Who could have guessed MacArthur would outlive them all? Steadily the general led his argument to that unforgettable windup:

"Old soldiers never die; they just fade away." Although the debate will go on interminably over MacArthur's strengths and weaknesses the congressional applause that day must have echoed satisfyingly in his ears until his dying days.

And it would appeal to MacArthur's love of sentiment and drama that he will be buried in Norfolk on Saturday, April 11. Appropriately, it's the 13th anniversary of the great dismissal.

Wallace Showing Said To Have Little Impact On Rights Bill

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators on opposing sides generally discounted Wednesday the impact on the administration's civil rights bill of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace's strong showing in the Wisconsin primary.

But Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said the Southern segregationist's feat in winning nearly 25 per cent of the vote in the Northern state Democratic presidential primary might make it easier to adopt "corrective amendments" to the legislation. Dirksen is pushing some amendments.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., captain of Southern opposition to the House-passed bill, voiced the opinion that Wallace's surprising showing would not have much influence on the Senate's action on the measure.

Already Committed
"Most people—senators—are already committed," Russell observed.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said Wallace's showing demonstrated that the controversy over civil rights is not confined to the South but has spread across the nation.

"Instead of the issue being pinpointed in one area of the country, it is being carried to all sections and people are, in effect, expressing their views on this issue which now confronts us and which we cannot avoid or evade any longer," he said.

Civil rights advocates salvaged some satisfaction from the slim margin by which Kansas City voters approved expansion of a municipal ordinance to prohibit racial discrimination in practically all public accommodations except businesses offering personal services.

One Per Cent Margin
The ordinance was approved by a margin of only about one per cent out of more than 89,000 votes but Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., said that answered some of the opposition to the pending bill's provisions outlawing discrimination in selected businesses.

"Many have raised questions as to the views of the majority of the American people on the subject of public accommodations," he said. "Yesterday, we heard the voice of the people who live in the heartland of our nation. This voice spoke out for full freedom for all Americans. I have long believed that the people of my state support the enactment of needed legislation to advance the cause of equal rights for all Americans. My belief has been fully confirmed."

Other Factors
Supporters of the administration's bill said that other factors than civil rights played a part in Wallace's ability to roll up 261,000 primary votes against Wisconsin Gov. John W. Reynolds. Reynolds was chosen by a 2-1 margin as a stand-in to deliver to President Johnson the state's 46 presidential nominating votes.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said "enormous amounts of money" were spent for television, radio and newspaper advertising in Wallace's behalf. He said Wallace had pitched his campaign toward conservatives with a plea for states rights, rather than concentrating on civil rights.

He added that Republicans had crossed over into the Democratic primary to take a swat at Reynolds.

Survey Findings
His polls showed, Proxmire said, that Wisconsin was about 2-1 in favor of enactment of the civil rights bill.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., called Wallace's showing "a flop and a fizzle." He said any candidate who couldn't get 25 per cent of the vote in such a contest "should climb into the tomb and seal it."

But Sen. B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., an opponent of the civil rights measure, said that if he were "on the other side of this fight that vote in Wisconsin would cause me to do a lot of hard thinking."

Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., said that if the bill's proponents were honest with themselves they would admit that none of them expected the Alabama governor to make any such showing.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and John O. Pastore, D-R.I., backers of the bill, noted that 89 per cent of the total vote in the primary went to civil rights supporters.

Reynolds got 508,000 votes and Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., elected to head an unstructured slate of Republican presidential nominating delegates got 294,000.

Retired Teachers Officers Elected
Mrs. Ethel Parker was nominated for a second term as president of the Wichita Falls Retired Teachers Association during a meeting at her home Wednesday.

Other nominees were Mrs. Sam Queen, vice president; Miss Ellen Parker, treasurer; Miss Edna Robinson, secretary; Mrs. Vera Smith, parliamentarian; and Miss Audra Doughty, reporter.

Annual Fund-Raising Affair AAUW Group Sets Book Sale

Books of all sizes and classifications are available to Wichita Falls and area residents at bargain prices through Saturday at the American Association of University Women's used book shop.

The store will be open from 9:30 a.m. until 6 p.m. through Saturday and will be manned by members of the association.

Wednesday, Mrs. Waller said the store is stocked with several hundred books, all of which have been donated to the group, and that residents are invited to come by and check the books to see if they want any.

Types of books available include biographies, fiction, children's books, young people's books, paperbacks, hardbacks, textbooks, books on art, encyclopedias and a varied assortment of all types literature.

Price of the book depends of course on the condition, size and the original sale price. However, Mrs. Waller said all books are bargains.

Arrangements for the annual sale were made by Mrs. E. B. Bloom and Mrs. R. E. Benson, sale chairmen. The association has some 122 members, all of whom will be working in the store to assist people in finding the type of book they wish to purchase.

Wichita Falls girls receiving an AAUW scholarship are selected through high school teachers and a special committee of the AAUW.

The wreck was one of eight which occurred in Wichita Falls Wednesday.

Marcus is a member of the Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

The purpose of the national meeting is to bring together state and national leaders who are interested in providing increased employment opportunities to the rehabilitated disabled workers of the state and nation.

Paint Creek School Contract Awarded

STAMFORD, Tex. (Special) — C. L. Moritz of Stamford was awarded a $82,450 contract here Wednesday for construction on the Paint Creek School.

School superintendent Pat Morrison said 10 bids were entered and Moritz's was the lowest.

Construction on the portion of the school, which was destroyed by fire in December of 1963, will begin immediately and the completion date is set for Aug. 1.

Included in the construction will be a cafeteria, a kitchen, two offices and two classrooms.

Cost of the project is being provided through insurance and partly by a $65,000 bond issue which was passed this year.

Field And Stream Plans Exotic Meal

Venison, quail, pheasant, duck, goose and baked red snapper will be the menu at 7 p.m. Wednesday when the Northwest Texas Field and Stream Association meets for its annual banquet at the M-B Corral on Sheppard Access Road.

Recording artist Wes Harrison will demonstrate his special "sound effects," while guests sample one of the most exotic dinners in North Texas.

Wives and daughters of directors will be models for a Western and sports style show featured by Kirkland's in the Kemp Hotel. The Maskat Temple Clown Patrol will be on hand, too.

and Warren Silver, who received 3,402 votes.

Canvass Stated

Defeated in Saturday's election were Mrs. Thacker, Frank Gibson and incumbent R. W. Harless. Gibson received 1,478 votes and Harless received 1,423 votes.

Randel was not in his office when the letter was delivered. Contacted at his home later, he was read a copy, and issued this statement:

"I have no comment at this time, not having seen the letter. This is a decision which must be left up to the entire board. Of course, we will take the matter into consideration, and I can assure you Mrs. Thacker's letter will be presented to the board when we meet Monday. We want everyone to be happy about this matter."

Randel said trustees would meet at 2 p.m. Monday in the school administration building to formally canvass the votes and take up other routine matters of business.

Law Officers Hold Arson Conference

Law enforcement officers from the North Texas and Southern Oklahoma area met at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday in the M-B Corral for the annual Texoma Arson Conference.

City Manager Jack Davis welcomed registrants to the conference, which was highlighted by a speech by Wichita Falls Fire Marshal Ben Van Pelt Jr.

"Recognizing an Arson Fire, Collecting and Preserving Evidence" was the topic for Kille Morehead, Oklahoma City Crime Bureau.

"Juvenile Fire Setters and Related Crimes" was explored by Dr. Douglas Lowe, psychiatrist at Sheppard Air Force Base.

"The Present Trend in Automobile Fires" was the title of C. C. Benson's speech, who is with the National Auto Theft Bureau in Dallas.

Sandpaper Does The Trick Keeping Towels On Rack

By POLLY CRAMER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
DEAR POLLY — My husband taped a strip of sandpaper on the back of our towel bar, next to the wall and with the rough side out. Now the towels stay on the bar instead of on the floor. — MRS. C.G.

DEAR POLLY — I have four children away from home and three still with us. I never seemed to have time to write as much as they all wanted to hear about home and local happenings until I hit on the idea of addressing and stamping four packs of envelopes on a Sunday. I keep a writing tablet and pen on the top of the stove and write while I am getting the evening meal. I have never failed to get a letter off to one of them every day since I started this. The letters are done in minutes that were wasted and I am writing this the same way. — MRS. V.K.

DEAR POLLY — I have some suggestions that might help Mrs. A. C. G. with her Cub Scout projects. My Cub gave me his picture (the den mother could take snapshots of the boys) in a frame he had made. He also gave me a plate on which he had glued plastic flowers and leaves and then sprayed all over with gold paint. It hangs on a plate hanger on the wall for an attractive decoration. Trays are also nice for the boys to make out of plywood that they shellac or varnish, and then glue rope around the edges. A design could be painted in the center or the entire tray could be painted a gay color. — MRS. A.M.

DEAR POLLY — My 5-year-old son likes jigsaw puzzles but tires of working the same ones over and over. I now tear full-page advertisements or pictures out of old magazines and he takes his own blunt children's scissors and makes his own puzzles. He enjoys cutting the different shapes and putting the picture back together. When he tires of this picture he makes himself another puzzle. — MRS. G.S.

DEAR POLLY — I pull a wire coat hanger out from the hook to make a long straight piece about one and a half inches wide. Then I cut a piece of an old bath towel a little more than twice the width of the stretched-out hanger. I sew the towelling up the sides and across the bottom and turn the sewed sides to the inside. Slide the hanger into this case. This is very useful for cleaning narrow hard-to-get-at places. — W.F.E.

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS
A woman's conversation is one of the most important factors of her charm.

For graceful expression of your thoughts, make sure that you have a good command of idioms. Idioms are established by custom and follow no logical rules—but when violated they grate harshly on your listeners' ears!

Many idioms are concerned with prepositions, as are those used in the following test sentences. To prove your knowledge of good idiomatic usage, see how many of the proper forms you can pick:

1. She is different (from, than) her family.
2. The class went in search (of, for) specimens.
3. We can wait (on, for) Jane a little longer.
4. She lost (around, about) seven pounds.
5. We left (about, at about) noon yesterday.
6. The group was accompanied (by, with) the teacher.
7. Be careful (of, with) your money.
8. The teacher went (in, into) her class room.
9. The old man was angry (at, with) the peddler.
10. A tea cup fell (off, off of) the narrow shelf.
11. The little boy was asked to speak (with, to) his sister.
12. This quiz is adapted (to, for) testing your memory.
13. The youngsters were accused (of, with) playing hooky.
14. Try (to, and) come to the meeting.
15. If you miss many of these, I hope you can be found (at home, home) reviewing correct idioms.

Did you hesitate? Well, check your answers!
1. from; 2. of; 3. for; 4. about; 5. about; 6. by; 7. of; 8. into; 9. with; 10. off; 11. with; 12. for; 13. of; 14. to; 15. at home.

Investment Talk Given For Club

Speaking on "investments," Calvin Hansen of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith appeared before the Alpha Chi Omega Alumnae club at the home of Mrs. James Hay, 1800 Victory, Monday evening.

Hansen explained what stock is, the kinds of stocks and bonds, mutual funds, the purpose of a broker, and identified terms such as debentures and rights. He gave a brief history of the brokerage business and told how Charles Merrill formed the original Merrill Lynch firm.

Two unique provisions were instituted at Merrill's insistence at the firm's beginning, an annual published financial statement and the ability of anyone to trade with the firm. A question period followed Hansen's talk.

Mrs. Lawrence Hibbs assisted the hostess in serving a dessert plate. Mrs. W. A. Scarlott, a guest, was presented with the membership gift. Mrs. M. F. Ladnier read a letter from Mrs. Harold Bristol reported on the Easter party at the North Texas Crippled Children's Center.

books, newspapers and magazines and checking their usage of words and expressions against your own; by reviewing lists in books on composition; and by referring frequently to the best unabridged dictionaries.
You'll soon find that the study of idioms can be far more fascinating than working crossword puzzles!

The two speakers will take with them an extensive display of handicrafts to represent other phases of therapy.
Mrs. Russell W. Peterson of Stephenville will be hostess for the meeting.

Invitations for the banquet were made at the last meeting at the school. Chris and Lisa Geyer were hostesses.

FIND YOUR TYPE THEN DRAMATIZE!

NEA FEATURE

To add both distinction and interest to your personality, accentuate and dramatize your type. The famous beauties analyze their lines and physical characteristics and then choose only the costumes and accessories that emphasize their particular types.

For instance, you may have a petite figure and small features. If your nature is extremely feminine, frivolous, gay and demure, you make a perfect coquette. To point-up this asset, all it takes is a very feminine curled coiffure. Bows and frills are definitely for you. But stay away from active sports clothes and don't confuse yourself with the "suit type" of girl.

With a trim figure, electric personality and striking rather than regular features, play the sophisticate to a fare-thee-well. Let your coiffure be as sleek as you can arrange. Your clothes can be as severe and tailored as the fashion allows in order to dramatize your witty, intelligent and amusing self to the highest degree. Black and white are two of your best colors. All of your clothes should be high fashion, sensational, dramatic and striking.

If you have chiseled features, dreamy eyes and a sensitive nature that loves beauty and art, you are the romantic type that needs the setting of beautifully textured and subtly colored clothes. Let everything you choose have a richness. But let everything also be restrained and exquisitely simple. Your hair should be softly styled and never studied in effect.

The gamine is characterized by a boyish figure, impudent features and rebellious hair. Active sports clothes, "crazy" pants for everything from breakfast through late-day are yours to choose. Anything gay and unusual, anything with spirit in line, color and fabric expresses your carefree nature. And for your glamorous clothes, be sure there's always a touch of the piquant.

But make no mistake in analyzing yourself and determining your type! This approach to personality presentation is not a matter of posing or acting. It is purely a distilling of your nature to point up its essence so that you can achieve the greatest impact!

Homemaker Can Be Pretty, Have Attractive Home, Too

By ALICIA HART
Beauty Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

What does housework have to do with your personal appearance? Your approach to it can mean the difference between a sprightly, neatly turned out gal and a down-at-the-mouth, frumpy woman.

Take the case of Betsy Beginner. Betsy was a bride and a new homemaker. To impress Joe B., she ran herself ragged scrubbing and polishing and cleaning their new home. (It's possible!) The result: the house was sparkling, but she was not.

Betsy B wore herself out because she was disorganized and spent more time than necessary going from the living room to the kitchen, garage or basement for her cleaning supplies. She approached other household duties in the same helter-skelter way.

And as will happen, she dressed sloppily, put off shampooing and setting her hair, fixing her nails. Generally, her grooming quotient was at an all-time low, and all because she truly was too tired to care.

If you feel you may be slipping into Betsy B's runover shoes, cut out wasted steps that take up your energy and time. You might start by rounding up a cleaning accessory kit.

Select two wicker baskets, one with flat bottom with a double handle and the other with compartments but with a strong, high arched single handle. Among these divide such essential items as liquid or paste furniture wax, scouring powder, mirror and window cleaner, cheese cloth to cover over the broom when dusting ceiling or window frame tops. Keep the housecleaning kit in a centrally located closet.

Some women cannot wear household gloves to protect their hands while polishing and dusting. If you are one, use the old trick of running your fingernails over a bar of soap. This prevents grime build-up under the nails. Smooth on a lotion or hand cream before you start work for a protective film to keep dirt from working into your fingers.

Prehistoric Cave

TOULOUSE, France (AP)—A prehistoric cave adorned with drawings of mammoths, antelopes, a bison and a deer wounded by an arrow was discovered in southwest France. Archaeologist Louis Mercat said the large underground grotto probably dates to a fiercely cold age.

THIS UNHARRIED homemaker uses two wicker baskets to hold her housecleaning items. Note that she looks as fresh and neat as the organized cleaning kit.

ANN LANDERS SAYS

What Kind Of New Life Could YOU Expect To Find?

Dear Ann Landers: From the beginning of our marriage my husband has been restless, shifting from one job to another. Karl has taken night school courses, correspondence courses and what have you — never finishing anything. I have lost count of the jobs he has had in the last 25 years.

Karl has a pleasing personality and a great many friends, but I resent having had to work from the day we were married. There were times when I carried the total burden because Karl was "between positions." This never seemed to bother him.

Our children are grown and on their own now. What I want to know is this: Do you feel I should insist that Karl make a success of something and take care of me as other husbands do — or should I leave him and make a new life for myself? We are now going through one of those periods when I am working and he is not. — OYSGASHPILT

Oys: No man ever made a success of something because his wife insisted on it.

Your letter gives me the creeps. No woman is a prize who would consider dumping her husband after 25 years because he hasn't been able to make a success in business.

I don't know what you envision as "a new life for yourself" but of this I am sure — Cary Grant isn't waiting for you, Doll.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a close friend who baffles me. I'm never sure of the kind of greeting I will get from her. It ranges from ice cold to hugs and kisses. This has been going on for years.

Sometimes I think she is mad at me for something I said or did and I can't figure out what it could be.

Her reactions are so unpredictable she makes me nervous. Now I dread running into her.

You seem to be the lady with all the answers. Do you have an answer to this one? — FROZEN EMMA

Dear: I know the type. One day they fall on your neck as if you were a long-lost relative. The next day you get a chill like you are coming down with malaria.

These swings are symptoms of a sick personality. Don't take it personally. You don't have a problem, your friend does.

Dear Ann Landers: My sister started college last fall and everyone in the family looks forward to her letters. Yesterday she wrote about a mixed pajama party — for both boys and girls. Yes, they actually wear pajamas. Instead of chairs, mattresses are provided — in keeping with the theme. My sister didn't attend such a party but her friend did.

The sororities sponsor these mixed pajama parties according to my sister. They are becoming very popular.

My folks are shocked, and frankly, so was I. It seems to us that no respectable girl would attend such a party. Am I square and out of date at 23? I can scarcely believe it. Please tell us what you know about this. Can it be that things are moving THAT fast? We'd like to know. — CHICKIE

Dear Chick: Sorry, but I don't believe sororities sponsor mixed pajama parties.

If I am uninformed I'd like to know. May I hear from my college readers? How is it where YOU go to school?

Ann Landers' frank and informative new book, "Teen-Agers and Sex" is now available at your book store.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of the Wichita Falls Record News enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

HEALTH ADVICE

Griseofulvin Attacks

Certain Types Of Fungi

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: You recently had an article concerning the drug griseofulvin and mentioned its use for fungus infection of the nails.

I have a friend who contracted this ailment or something similar. He said the army diagnosed it as a fungus infection. The treatments gave negative results. He will not see a doctor (he's had the condition for about 20 years and thinks nothing will help him). My friends and I are trying to convince him that griseofulvin may help. — H. G. Z.

Griseofulvin is an antibiotic which attacks fungi. (Most antibiotics attack bacteria but have no effect on a fungus infection.) This is the only one, to my knowledge, which attacks fungi at all.

But it does a fantastically good job in the right cases.

It is not just for fungus of the nails. Fungus infections can attack the feet, the ears, the scalp (ringworm being an example) or any other area.

When the nails are affected, you can't expect quick results. It will be several months before the old nails grow out and are fully replaced by new ones. But—the important thing — if you defeat the fungus infection, and keep it conquered until the fungus-laden nails have disappeared, then you've got the problem whipped.

There are people who have suffered for 20 years and upward, and who then got rid of the trouble in a matter of a few weeks or months.

It's a prescription drug, so you must have a doctor prescribe—and, incidentally, decide whether to use the drug at all. One must be sure the infection is due to a fungus.

Some types of fungus disappear quickly. Others withstand the drug. The trick is to know which is which.

There's no reason to expect the average physician to be able to distinguish one type from another, unless he happens to have studied this difficult subject.

But a dermatologist usually can, because that's his specialty. (There will be some cases in which he can't be sure, but in a great many he can give a reliable forecast of what to expect.)

This is not a brand new drug. It has been in use for perhaps half a dozen years or so, which is sufficient to show that it is safe, and that it is effective with some fungi and not with others.

The drug is taken by mouth. The amount must be carefully calculated.

People who gave up 10 or 15 or 20 years ago should try this, provided their doctors identify their cases as suitable. Whether Mr. H. G. Z.'s friend will benefit, I can't say. But I hope he has the kind of fungus that will yield.

Dear Dr. Molner: I recently had a colostomy. Will you recommend a book about it that might help? — F. J. W.

Colostomy—Ileostomy Rehabilitation Association, can refer you to the most useful information. The address of C.I.R.A. is P.O. Box 121, Philadelphia, Pa.

Count your calories the easy way! To receive a copy of my pamphlet, "The Calorie Chart," write Dr. Molner in care of the Wichita Falls Record News, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

GOING BROKE KEEPING YOURSELF IN NYLONS? Here's some sage advice from Lowell Wilkin, head of a leading hosiery firm. Watch out for hot ashes (left). They can send your stockings to the hosiery graveyard in a hurry. Turn your ring toward the palm of your hand if you can't remove it when examining nylons (top inset). Diamonds may be a girl's best friend, but they're not on speaking terms with your stockings. They'll catch and cause rips. For longer stocking life, make sure you fasten garters on the welt of the hose (lower inset), not below it. Another hint to the wise—today's compact cars require a special technique for getting in and out if you want to avoid runs. Sit down in the driver's seat with your legs outside the car (right). Then turn your body slowly into driving position. This will keep snags at a minimum.

Handle Nylons With Care; They Are Sheer Delight

By HELEN HENNESSY
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—To most women, the running hose problem has no connection with water conservation. It concerns nylon stockings, the most perishable item in a woman's wardrobe and the cause of many a lost temper.

As consumers, we demand but often we don't exercise the necessary care to make these filmy beauties last.

Here are a few pointers to help you get longer wear from your delicate nylons:

Sit when you fasten your front and side garters, but stand to fasten the back ones. This gives more knee action and less strain on the threads.

Be sure your stockings fit closely around your legs. If they are too loose, they will catch on any object and snag.

Wear shoes with snugly fitted heels or the rough lining will rub your stocking heel and break it.

Make certain that you choose the correct foot length. If it's too short, your toe will go through. If it's too long, the toe will fold over and cause damage above the toe reinforcement.

Lowell Wilkin, head of (Well-Knit) a leading hosiery company, warns against wearing a gem ring when you examine stockings. The sharp stone points can tear sheer hosiery. He also suggests that the garters be fastened on the welt of the hose.

Hot ashes are another hazard. They melt the nylon threads and cause runs. This may be a problem even if you have given up smoking — unless your friends have, too.

If you drive one of the new compact cars, learn how to get into it properly or you may have to add the price of new stockings to your gas budget. Sit down on the seat with your legs outside the car and then turn your body slowly into the driver's seat.

Since nylons are plentiful and not too expensive, we tend to be careless with them. Yet we will like banshees when they rip. So it's worth a try to see if a little care won't make them last a bit longer and not strain the budget.

Now Many Wear FALSE TEETH With More Comfort

FASTTEETH, a pleasant alkaline (non-acid) powder, holds false teeth more firmly to eat and talk in more comfort. Just sprinkle a little FASTTEETH on your plates. No gummy, goopy, pasty taste or feeling. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTTEETH at any drug counter.

Friend-Snatching Is Out Of Order

By AMY VANDERBILT

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: For many years we have met a certain couple at different parties in the house of good friends of ours. Recently this couple invited us to their home together with our friends. When we learned that they were bridge players, like ourselves, we invited them back for a game of bridge without our friends. I am being told that it is a serious faux pas to invite new acquaintances without the hosts who were responsible for the original introductions. Please tell me what is correct.—H.C., Flint, Mich.

It was quite incorrect. You should always invite the people through whom you met new friends — at least the first time.

You must make amends by inviting the two couples as soon as possible.

To be perfectly safe, you should admit to the new friends that you didn't know about this social rule and that if they haven't already done so you would appreciate their not mentioning the first invitation at all. If it is too late and they have already done so, and you have already heard from your slighted friends, admit your fault and say you did not know.

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: Can't you do something about the insolence of people in service capacities who say, "Okay, sweetheart," "Yes, honey," "What'll you have, dear?" I don't know what these people are trying to prove — that they are as good as everybody else? What has happened to dignity in this world? I am as democratic as the next person, but I resent these terms of endearment from people who don't even know my name. — A.L., Baltimore."

You have mentioned one of my pet peeves. One of my readers says she counters this kind of sally with: "I am not dear to you — I am just dear to my husband."

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: I have spent two or three hours searching in your book, McCall's and a half-dozen manuals for secretaries without being able to find anything to support or undermine my feelings on a couple of subjects. The first situation is in an office where one girl answers the phone for two or three persons. The phone rang and this followed:

"Girl: Pete Smith's desk.
"Caller: Is Mr. Smith in?
"Girl: Pete is out for the rest of the morning."

"On one occasion she said, 'Do you mean Pete?'
"My second question concerns letters. My instinct tells me that addressing an envelope to Mr. Pete Smith or heading a letter using 'Mr.' followed by a nickname is just not good usage. I feel that it should be 'Mr. Peter W. Smith' followed by his address, and then 'Dear Pete.'
"If Mr. Pete Smith is correct on an envelope, where do we stop? Or would we also address envelopes to 'General Ike Eisenhower' or 'Cardinal Dick Cushing' and be in good taste? — D. W., Terre Haute, Ind."

This is a letter from one of my increasing number of men readers. In answer to your first question, she should reply: "Mr. Smith's office" no matter what the caller calls him, not "Pete." It is wise for a secretary to be very discreet when she must say her employer is not at his desk. In fact, top secretaries say, "Mr. Smith is not at his desk at present. May I have him call you?"

If she knows he won't be in the rest of the morning, she might add, "I think he will be able to return your call this afternoon. Will you be there?" It is important that the firm image be well-maintained.

Junior Amity Club Will Make Donation

The Junior Amity Club met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Muhlinghouse, 3410 Arthur, and decided to make a donation, planned a get acquainted party and elected a new treasurer.

The group will make a donation to the disaster victims, and will hold a get acquainted party for prospective members May 5 in the Reddy Room of the Texas Electric Service Co. Mrs. Ramon Wood was elected treasurer.

Mrs. Wood also gave the program, "The Fine Art of Keeping One's Head."

A guest for the evening was Mrs. Ralph Paxson.

not contain a nickname. In the South and Southwest especially, however, there often is no alternative — a nickname can be a man's legal name. To call him "Pete" when he has been christened "Pete" won't please him and will actually be incorrect.

Opening lead—♠ 6

Every time I think of sensational leads, I go back to two that I made against the late Ely Culbertson. I will show the one that succeeded in today's article.

This was in the Culbertson-Lenz match of 1931. Contract was new and there were no such things as four no-trump conventions. We did have forcing bids and also a nuisance bid that I had invented especially for the match.

Today the bid is called the pre-emptive jump overcall. At that time they just called it a psychic.

Actually my bid was not a psychic because my partner and both opponents knew it showed a weak hand with some sort of heart suit. I shudder today when I see how very weak my heart suit was but I made this bid back in 1931 when I was considerably more reckless.

The call did not discourage my opponents at all. If anything, it caused them to overbid to a slam.

The slam would have been made easily without a spade lead, but, playing West, I opened the six of spades. My reason was that I hoped to discourage a finesse against the king in case North held the ace and queen, but instead my partner took his ace and returned the suit.

CARD SENSE

Q—The bidding has been:
East South West North
1♦ Pass 1NT Pass
Pass 2♣ Pass 2NT.
Pass ?

You, South, hold:
♠ A2 ♥ K3 ♦ 7654 ♣ A Q J 3 2

What do you do now?
A—Bid three no-trump.
Your close alternate choice is to pass, but your partner's two no-trump bid has certainly invited game and you have 13 points and a five card suit.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding two no-trump your partner raises your two clubs to three. What do you do now?

Scientists Enjoy Good Pay, Prestige In Soviet Union

Hollywood And Vine

By HEDDA HOPPER

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—Art and Jo Napoleon wrote "Ride the Wild Surf" and Art directed three weeks of the picture before Columbia Studios put in Don Taylor and started the whole thing over again.

Fabian was so eager to master the surf that he worked on our beaches here for two weeks before he went over to Hawaii, then worked two weeks there before the picture started.

Tab Hunter didn't endear himself to the other surfers when he did not like his dormitory quarters and got an apartment.

Mitchum-Son Acts Up

They tell me that Jim Mitchum is trying to act like his father. He had better get some mileage first. Bob walked across the state of Georgia before he hit Hollywood. Jim should try it.

Robert Horton is making plans beyond his current Broadway hit, "110 in the Shade." David Merrick wants him to stay on for the musical version of "Roman Holiday." Horton has a picture offer in England, and he has finished his first record album for Columbia.

Alfred Hitchcock thinks Bette Davis and Joan Crawford are making a mistake trying to repeat their "Baby Jane" success.

"It's like blowing up a balloon," he said. "If you keep on blowing it's bound to explode in your face. When I finish a picture, I go off in the opposite direction and change styles. That's why there's variety in my work — 'Rebecca,' 'Psycho,' 'North by Northwest,' 'The Trouble With Harry.'"

Hitchcock gave the late Peter Lorre his first English-speaking role in "The Man Who Knew Too Much" in 1935.

"He had a great sense of humor," Hitchcock said. "We were always playing practical jokes on each other. He once sent me 100 canaries."

Natalie Wood nailed down the lead with Tony Curtis and Jack Lemmon in "The Great Race" which starts in July. After six weeks of filming in Hollywood, the company will go to Paris, then return for locations in Palm Springs, Durango, and Big Sur.

Karl Malden On Campus

Karl Malden may have to quit acting. After I wrote about his plans to do drama workshops in colleges, he received 22 more offers and they are still coming in. Malden has accepted three dates at Kansas State Teachers College, Eastern New Mexico University, and Midland in Fremont, Neb.

Malden will represent our State Department at the Argentina Film Festival, yet none of his pictures is being shown there.

For the girl who has everything: Cheryl Holdridge, the next Mrs. Lance Revett, got a seven-year acting deal at Universal-International Studios, plus a royal welcome from Lance's mother, Barbara Hutton.

H. Allen Smith called Paul Henning to say he was a fan of his show and plans to write a magazine article defending the popularity of the "Beverly Hillsbillies." He thinks it is a great social commentary.

During their conversation Smith mentioned he was off to Palm Springs to hear his old friend, Gene Austin, sing at the Melody Ranch. Henning broke into radio in 1933 imitating Austin, so he sneaked off last Friday and went down to hear him too.

Jessie Royce Landis flew out from Naples, leaving her husband, Gen. J. F. R. Seitz, to do the packing, while she headed for New York City to do "Roar Like a Dove" with Betsy Palmer. They will open at the Booth Theatre in early May. The general will be along in about six weeks.

Gardner McKay is in Rome having more fun. But he had better get back in harness or people will forget him.

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)—The reason there is no serious drain of scientists out of the Soviet Union could be answered frivolously in two words—barbed wire. But that would be incorrect.

Soviet scientists, unless they are trusted and outstanding, don't travel much outside the country. But American and British visiting scientists, after talking to a lot of them, suppose also that they don't really want to go.

A few defect, of course, one or two have dropped out of travel groups in Britain, Canada and the United States, or have declined to return after accepting an exchange teaching fellowship.

By and large, scientists are the chosen people in the Soviet Union. Pay is not the whole story. Their jobs have prestige. Many of the scientists have an opportunity to exercise influence on government decisions. That is flattering and satisfying.

In some respects they found facilities better than in America, although more often not as good. The Soviet nuclear scientists are the royalty of science. The scientific city near Novo-

Glenn Seaborg, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, were impressed both by the working spirit and the conditions of work of scientists in the same nuclear field.

Among the elite is a group of about 12 young scientists who were the chosen flock of Lev Landau, one of the greatest physicists of his time until he sibirsk, in central Siberia, makes American scientists envious. Physicists, mathematicians and chemists have a place all to themselves with almost unrivaled facilities in laboratories.

Once they get into the upper brackets the going is pretty good. Generally they get the pick of new apartments. A good scientist has a car, likely a summer house, and a high priority on such small but satisfying things as tickets to the ballet, sports events, and vacation trips.

Haskell Baptist Gets Pastor

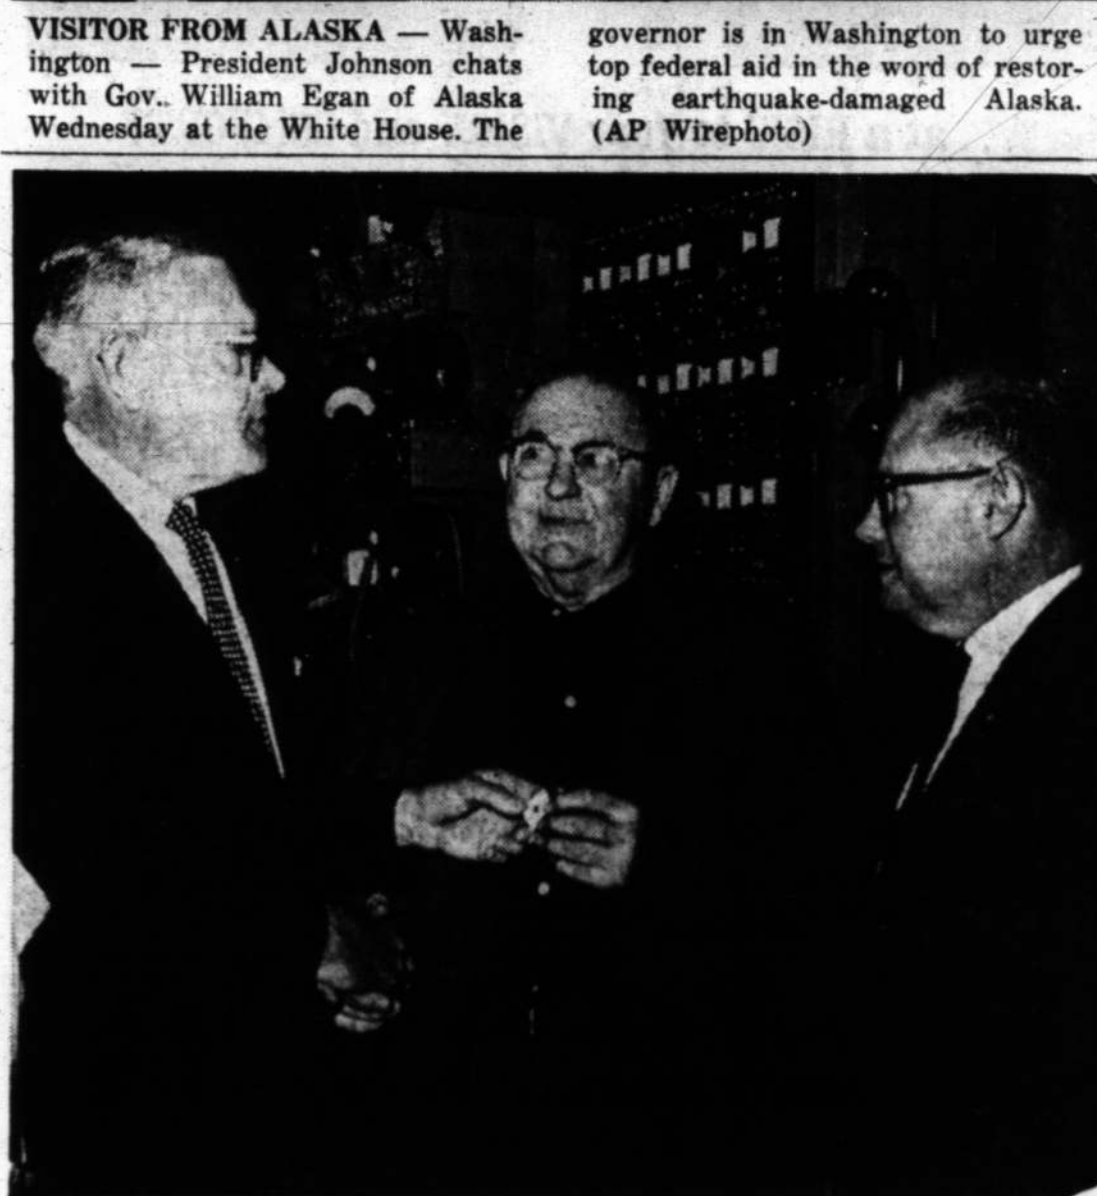

HASKELL, Tex. (Special) — Rev. W. L. Henry, a Baptist pastor for 18 years, has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Central Baptist Church of Haskell.

The new Baptist pastor in Haskell comes here from an eight year tenure at the New Hope Missionary Baptist Church in Ft. Worth. He succeeds Rev. L. A. Ballou, who left here in January to enroll in seminary at Jacksonville, Tex., after 13 months as pastor of the church here. The pulpit has been filled in the interim by visiting preachers.

Rev. Henry is a native of Dallas, and all his pastorates, since entering the ministry in 1946, have been in Texas, principally El Paso and the Dallas - Fort Worth area.

Rev. Henry will be the evangelist for a revival meeting which begins at the Central Baptist Church on Friday, April 17, continuing through Sunday, April 26. There will be two services daily, at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. during the entire meeting. Sunday services begin at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Sunday school starts at 9:45 a.m. and training services at 6:30 p.m.

Leonard Scifres will serve as music director during the revival services.

OH, MY ACHING BACK

Now you can get the fast relief you need from nagging backache, headache and muscular aches and pains that often cause restless nights and miserable tired-out feelings. When these discomforts come on with over-exertion or stress and strain — you want relief — want it fast! Another disturbance may be mild bladder irritation following wrong food and drink — often setting up a restless uncomfortable feeling. Upon completion of additional facilities now under construction, production will be increased by 50 per cent, company officials said.

Fast Payment Of Claims Seen

J. W. Martin, president of the Independent Insurance Agents Association of Wichita Falls, said Wednesday agents here are geared to speed payment to persons who are insured and who had damage from Friday's tornado.

"As quickly as notice of losses is received by Wichita Falls agents, they are assigned to insurance adjusters," Martin said. "Persons insured through out-of-town insurance agents can get aid and assistance from any of the members of the Wichita Falls Independent Insurance Agents Association," he said.

Frank Jones, catastrophe committee chairman of the association, said that claims of hardship cases, or persons having the most severe damage, would be handled first. He added that because of the severity of the storm, however, almost all claims would be handled on an emergency basis.

Important Role Of Teacher

By MORTIMER J. ADLER

Dear Dr. Adler:

One notices, more and more, that the great debate concerning education is swinging to include teachers. What makes a teacher a teacher? What type of training should teachers receive? Are great teachers born, rather than trained to greatness? What should be the true business of a teacher in the classroom? As a teacher, I would be interested in your views and those of authors whose opinions span thirty centuries of thought.

John G. Windsor
4354 West 9th Avenue
Vancouver 8, B.C.
Canada

Dear Mr. Windsor:

Geoffrey Chaucer, the father of English poetry, provided us with an unforgettable portrait of the role and character of the teacher in the Prologue to his Canterbury Tales. Among the wide variety of types and professions represented by his pilgrims to Canterbury is that of the scholar or teacher. He is called a "clerk," that is, a cleric, for in the era which Chaucer described, learning and education were largely the province of various religious orders.

The first thing we learn about this representative of the teaching profession six hundred years ago is that he is far more advanced in learning than in earning. His horse, we are told, is "as lean as a rake," and he himself is rather on the skinny side—a hungry-looking fellow wearing a threadbare overcoat. It is then explained that this is a man without a good job, without a secure office either in the church or the state. His ambitions and his heart's desire do not lie in that direction.

For he would rather have at his bed's head
Some twenty books, all bound in black and red.
Of Aristotle and his philosophy
Than rich robes, fiddle, or gay psaltery.

It is further explained that the reason why this impractical fellow has "but little gold within his coffer," is that as soon as he lays his hand on any money he spends it on "books and learning." He is a lover of books and of learning, not of worldly wealth. He is not careful about gaining and saving money, but "of study took he utmost care and heed." That is where his treasure is laid up. "And gladly would he learn and gladly teach," concludes this incisive description of the model scholar and teacher of his time.

How does the typical teacher today compare with Chaucer's clerk? Well, certainly today's teacher is better off economically than the penniless clerk. He usually holds a job, with a regular salary, which is paid by a public school system, and his job is fairly secure. Yet teaching is still not the way to get rich, and school teachers, even college professors, are often seen riding around in aged and ailing cars, which are the equivalent of the clerk's lean nag.

Since the teacher obviously does not get to amass any considerable amount of wealth and worldly power in our society, there must be other compensations for his work and devotion. These compensations are suggested by Chaucer's pregnant words: "And gladly would he learn and gladly teach." The key word here is "gladly," and the key idea is that of sharing—of helping others to share in what one oneself has learned to appreciate and value.

The main role of the teacher, thus envisaged, is to develop the minds of his students, and to aid them to participate in the cultural treasures which are the common heritage of us all. That the schools also have a socializing and ethical function—to rear the young into harmonious members of the community and to develop moral character—has been recognized all the way back to Plato and Aristotle. But these additional functions are performed in the context of "books and learning," which provide the basic element in which the teacher and the student meet one another.

The character of the teacher himself, as it is encountered in the educational process, has a moral effect on the student. The good teacher's passion for truth, his patience and industry, and his thoughtfulness and courtesy—all displayed in the everyday work of teaching and learning—provide the best and most lasting lessons in virtue. The sobriety, conscientiousness, and high moral sense of Chaucer's clerk are conveyed in his very manner of speaking.

Mark Van Doren, himself a great teacher and fine poet, has said of truth: "It is more powerful, it is more interesting, and it is less lonely" than falsehood. The realization that this is so first came to most of us through the living examples of those men and women who gladly learn and gladly teach.

You can win a 54-volume set of the Great Books of the Western World by writing a letter, not to exceed 150 words, incorporating a question of general interest for inclusion in this column. Each week we will select as first prize winners the writers of the three best letters. He will use ONE of these letters as a basis for a future column and will answer it in terms of the intellectual heritage of the Great Books—443 works by 74 authors, spanning 30 centuries of thought. Address the letters to Dr. Mortimer J. Adler, in care of this newspaper.

The Unforgiving Mayor

ADENAUER. By Charles Wighton. Coward-McCann, $5.75.

By JOHN BARKHAM

From small events can spring weighty consequences. In October 1945, when the German citizens of Cologne were struggling to put a roof over their rubble city, the British military commander, Colonel (now Sir) John Barraclough sent for the Mayor of the city and summarily dismissed him for inefficiency. The Mayor, an elderly man who had suffered at the hand of the Nazis, was given a week to get out of Cologne, although his wife was gravely ill. The Mayor begged for leave to remain with his wife (who subsequently died of the illness). The British granted his request, but allowed the Mayor to see his wife only twice a week, for an hour each time.

That Mayor was Konrad Adenauer, who subsequently became Chancellor of West Germany and his country's dominant political leader for 14 years. He never forgave the British for the insulting treatment he received at their hands. It isn't difficult to trace the consequences of this seemingly insignificant event on the postwar course of German policy.

The author of this highly critical biography of Adenauer is a Briton who spent several years in Germany preparing his indictment. Much of what he says about Adenauer is justified. "Der Alte" did dislike the British, he did demand implicit obedience from his subordinates, he did repeatedly go over the heads of his Cabinet and snub members of his party, thus damaging an infant democracy. As he grew older, he did become progressively more authoritarian. And it is undeniable that he did tolerate around him figures, such as the recently resigned Herr Globke, who had Nazi records.

Granted all this, Charles Wighton nevertheless carries his criticism of Adenauer to the point where it becomes self-defeating. Adenauer also rehabilitated his shattered country, not merely physically but to some extent morally as well. At the very least, he led West Germany back to respectability. Under Adenauer's leadership his country became the most prosperous and economically powerful on the Continent. Adenauer's Germany was not, in our sense of the term, filly democratic; but it would have been unreasonable to expect the German people to step straight from Hitler into Jeffersonian democracy.

A more serious charge by Wighton is his contention that Adenauer didn't particularly care about reuniting the two Germans. This may seem odd to Americans, but the author cites a quotation to that effect by Adenauer, and points out that the Chancellor, as a Catholic Rhinelander, bore no love for the Protestant Prussians. He goes on the charge that there was a period, after the death of Stalin, when the Kremlin leadership was reportedly amenable to the reunification of Germany on reasonable terms, but Adenauer let the opportunity pass.

Without doubt Adenauer is vulnerable to criticism, but it must be more balanced criticism than this. If his errors were major, so were his achievements. Perhaps his greatest error was one which often afflicts old men in seats of power: they cannot bring themselves to relinquish what they have wielded so long. Adenauer's own plans, the book tells us, called for retiring from office in 1966, on his 90th birthday.

Safety Is Expensive

The National Safety Council is making what many Americans may regard as an astounding proposal.

It is asking them to spend more money to save their lives in today's souped-up traffic.

Such a suggestion is notable if for nothing but its boldness.

For some reason, that is hard to explain, the safety movement has been strangely timid in asking for money — real money — to prevent accidents.

The result is that too many people have come to the conclusion that safety can be had for free, or at least at bargain basement rates.

This is just as impractical and unrealistic as expecting sanitation, education, health and other fundamental citizen services for free. It just can't be done.

The Safety Council says this country already has the basic tools and knowledge to pull down the zooming traffic toll if it would only use them more effectively.

It cites the need for more traffic police, more driver education, more traffic engineering, improved driver licensing procedures.

How much more would all this cost? Five hundred million dollars a year.

What does the Safety Council believe it would buy? A saving of 22,000 lives a year. And for those who may be interested in the dollar and cents angle, it could save $3.5 billion a year in accident costs.

The nation's traffic toll hit an all-time high of 43,400 deaths in 1963. In the first two months of this year it went up 22 per cent.

If the same thing were to happen in, say, polo or some other great threat to the national welfare, would we hesitate to move in on it with money and action?

It's time we really moved in on traffic accidents — on an emergency basis. The Safety Council is making sense.

Scared Of Women Politicos

By ANDREW TULLY

WASHINGTON — I'll tell you where you are not going to find me during this political campaign. You are not going to find me in the same room with a dame.

This is not because of any suddenly acquired dislike of the female sex, per se. It's just that I've decided I'm not strong enough to stand up to them in an election year.

It must have been building up for some time, because it seems to me that never before in the history of this nation have women been so pugnacious about politics. The way they carry on, you'd think they'd discovered a plot to make mink coats illegal or to ban Chanel No. 5.

Girlish voices that used to whisper sweet nothings in male ears now are being raised in blood-curdling screams, accompanied by the shaking of little fists. To the average dame, it is a personal affront that anyone should dare to run against her candidate.

It's been a long time, of course, since any man tried to tell a woman how to vote, but this year the situation is perilous. Females not only form their own opinions any more, but also are determined to force them on every male within shouting distance, and if the male courteously dissents he is lucky to escape with only minor abrasions.

The other night at a dinner party, I got to talking with a nice girl, a doll noted for her lady-like behavior at all times. Being a sparkling conversationalist, I passed an innocent remark about Lyndon Johnson. As I recall, my exact words were, "Well, he sure is President of the United States, ain't he?"

That girl fell on me like a wildcat overflowing with martinis. It seems she is for Barry Goldwater, and apparently has it on high authority that if the Democrats win they are going to trade Iowa to Iran for six dancing girls and a second-hand burlesque. Besides, she screamed, Democrats eat babies, Bobby Baker is a no-good millionaire, Yalta was a crime and how about the high price of coffee?

When she paused for breath, and to don her brass knuckles, I remarked timidly that I thought the race was going to be very interesting.

"Ha!" she sneered. "You're going to vote for Johnson, that's what you're going to do." It was not a statement, it was an accusation — like confronting me with the charge that I had just sold some H-bomb blueprints to Nikita Khrushchev.

Another dame I know is just as truculently pro-Johnson. But when she launched into a campaign speech, she gets all emotional and bursts into tears. This is embarrassing if you happen to be in a tea room with her because the bartender — uh, waitress — gives you black looks and other dolls drop by the table and say things like, "What did the beast do to you, dearie?"

The worst type, though, is the girl who's done research. You get into a discussion with her and she keeps flooring you with snappers like "Oh, yeah, how about the way the bum voted on antimacassars for Armenia?" You have to confess ignorance, and she walks off muttering it's no wonder the country's in such lousy shape, with men in it. I'm going to take to the hills, fellows, until this is all over.

zil to be the key to success or failure of the Alliance for Progress. They held that no area-wide program could succeed without Brazil's active co-operation.

One Alliance official puts it: "Brazil is too big. Its influence spreads too far. So we can't ignore it." Yet the Goulart government, in significant measure, was sabotaging the Alliance inside and outside of Brazil. Goulart's attitude toward Cuba's Castro made a strong Latin-U.S. course with Cuba impossible.

The result: America's entire Latin-American policy was in jeopardy.

The men who will now run Brazil are strong nationalists. Officials here expect no easy time in working with them. U.S. diplomats predict U.S. firms wanting to invest in Brazil will continue to have a rough time. They certainly expect no invitation to American investment in petroleum, mining and other resources.

U.S. State Department men predict Brazil's policies and ours will often diverge. They see in Brazil a possible rival for dominance in Latin America. As one man puts it: "We may have another France on our hands."

Officials here aren't even certain that the post-revolt Brazil will take determined action to stop Brazil's runaway inflation.

But they do believe that Brazil will now be a little sounder in its economic policies, that it will be anti-Castro and rougher on Communists, that it will do a little more in the way of co-operation with the United States.

"And that will be a whale of a lot of progress," says one Latin specialist.

SO THEY SAY

Today the totalitarian society of Mississippi imposes on all its people acceptance of an obedience to an official orthodoxy almost identical with pro-slavery days.—Dr. James Silver, University of Mississippi history professor.

Congress Urged To Pass Disclosure Bill

WASHINGTON — Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., has made an important point regarding a double morality standard for members of Congress as compared with other government servants. He has pushed a bill calling upon all senators and congressmen to disclose their property holdings, their law clients, and other pecuniary interests. Congress, he says, must not set up one standard for itself, another for Bobby Baker.

This column, as far back as the Truman administration, has urged a single standard for all public servants. Harry Truman, toward the end of his administration, ordered all members of the executive branch to fill in a questionnaire listing their stocks, bonds, contracts, and other outside interests. But Truman could not require Congress to follow the same procedure.

Since that time, the abuses of the double standard have increased, until I detect a growing lack of public confidence in the Congress. This is unfortunate, first because in my opinion the majority of congressmen are honest; second because there must be public confidence in Congress if we are to make democracy work.

Since there seems to be scant support for Sen. Case's plea for a wider probe of senators engaged in extracurricular activities, this column will undertake to report on some of them.

Sen. Scott's Conflicts

Let's begin with the most vigorous Republican member of the Senate Rules Committee, Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, a likeable, better than average senator who formerly served in the House, also as Tom Dewey's chairman of the Republican National Committee.

If I were voting in Pennsylvania, as I once did, I should probably vote for Scott as against his likely Democratic opponent, Judge Michael Musmanno.

Before doing so, however, I should want the senator to explain certain conflicts of interest which smack of influence — peddling not too different from that engaged in by Bobby Baker.

In Philadelphia, Sen. Scott is a member of the law firm of Obermayer, Rebmann, Maxwell and Hippel, and did not join that firm until after he was already elected to Congress. In other words, the firm embraced him after he had attained a position of prestige and influence in Washington.

The senator used that prestige in both Washington and Harrisburg, in which latter place in 1964 he secured a pardon for Nicholas Marcello, convicted of robbery of a liquor warehouse and subsequently deported to Italy.

Scott appeared before the Pennsylvania pardons board for only fifteen minutes during the Republican administration of Gov. John Fine, and told the Pennsylvania Pardons Board that Marcello would apply for admission to the United States, but that "such procedure would have to be handled by someone other than me."

Whereupon Scott turned round and introduced a private bill in the U.S. Congress to permit Marcello to return to the United States. The bill passed and Marcello returned.

Scott was paid a fee of $2,000. It is a criminal offense for any member of Congress to receive a fee for introducing private legislation or for that matter any legislation at all — even if paid through a law firm. Scott's alibi is that the $2,000 was for getting the pardon, not for introducing the private bill. However, a $2,000 fee for a fifteen minute appearance before the pardon board is not peanuts. Furthermore, it's difficult to draw the line as to where the pardon fee stopped and the private bill fee — if any — began.

Certainly the public has a right to know the full facts and have just as thorough an investigation of the case as Sen. Scott wants of the Bobby Baker case. This column favors both.

The fact that Sen. Scott was charging a high enough fee to embrace both the pardon and the private bill was demonstrated in another pardon case which he handled.

Incidentally, when questioned about the Marcello case he had said: "This was my only appearance before the Pardons Board in some years of law practice."

However, the records show that in 1949, Scott also appeared before the pardons board when another Republican, Jim Duff, was governor of Pennsylvania, and at that time made a plea for Leon Hellner, sentenced to eight-to-sixteen years for stealing $320,000 worth of alcohol. He was able to get Hellner's sentence reduced to eight-to-four years.

Scott charged Hellner $1,500. Four years later, Hellner was released on the plea of another attorney, Garfield W. Levy, who charged him only $50.

This is one small chapter in the backstage story showing how influence works both in Washington and state capitals if you are a congressman in high position.

Headlines And Footnotes

Earthquake experts warn that earth tremors following the Alaskan earthquake may continue for several months. None of them should be severe enough, however, to cause much damage. Meanwhile, the experts are experimenting with underground microphones to try to pick up the first sounds of an earthquake in time to remove the population from an earthquake area in advance. . . . The Senate Rules Committee shut off the Bobby Baker investigation without bothering to find out who signed the name of Accountant Milton Hautt to Baker's tax returns. The Republicans demanded behind closed doors that the alleged forgery be run down. Actually it was Baker's secretary, Carole Tyler, who signed Hautt's name. She merely recycled the returns he had prepared, then wrote his name at the bottom as that of the accountant who had prepared them. . . . The missile warning station at Clear, Alaska — with its giant antenna and sensitive electronic gear — was not damaged by the Alaskan earthquake. Some military communications lines were knocked out, but at no time did the Pentagon lose contact with the key military bases in Alaska.

What's Really At The Bottom?

Allen-Scott Report

Oswald Hair Loss Probed

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
And PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — The special Warren Commission's probe of the assassination of President Kennedy is becoming so intense that its staff is literally using a fine-toothed comb to go over the most minute details of persons involved in this tragic event.

Most intriguing line of the commission's new inquiry concerns why the suspected assassin, Lee Harvey Oswald, lost more than half his hair during the two and one-half years he lived in the Soviet Union.

This unusual and unexplained change in Oswald's features was pointed out by his brother Robert when testifying in private before the Warren Commission at the request of Chief Justice Earl Warren, Chairman.

Oswald's brother, who impressed commission members as an intelligent and logical person, reported that the tremendous loss of Lee's hair was the most noticeable change observed after the "defector" returned from Russia in 1962.

He told the commission that his brother's balding greatly puzzled him since members of the Oswald family were noted for keeping their hair during their life span.

To add to the unique mystery, Robert Oswald stressed that his brother, Lee, and Lee's wife, Marina, were reluctant to discuss the missing hair when questioned, so he didn't press the matter.

Struck by this personal observation, the commission's staff is now consulting with government and private experts to determine if the loss of hair could have been caused by the use of new drugs, or by Oswald's being given the Pavlovian treatment, which the Russians have mastered so well.

It is common knowledge within the U.S. intelligence community that the Soviets have conducted experiments in the use of both methods to control the minds of humans since the late '50s.

In light of this undisclosed information, the commission plans to dig deeper into Mrs. Oswald's background and employment as a pharmacist in Russia, since this training would qualify her to handle all types of drugs.

The Passport Mystery

J. Lee Rankin, the commission's chief counsel, has sent the State Department three full pages of questions concerning the handling of passports and visas to the suspected assassin and his widow.

In tossing this bombshell to Administrator Abbot P. Schwartz, of the Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs, Rankin demanded a full explanation of how Oswald was able to obtain passports almost at will despite the existence of a State Department file showing his Marxist background, defection to Russia, and connections with the pro-Castro Fair Play for Cuba Committee.

Schwartz, who gets a bad case of nerves whenever questioned about the Oswald case, already has bucked the commission's time-bomb by his arch-enemy in the department, Mrs. Frances Knight, director of the Passport Office.

Rankin, who knows of this maneuver, believes that a more thorough reading of the questionnaire by Schwartz should convince the State Department official that only he personally is in a position to answer a number of the inquiries.

After the questionnaire is returned, the answers will be compared with some very sensitive information about the Oswald passports and activities now in the possession of the Warren commission.

The results of this inquiry could be highly explosive, according to commission staff members examining Oswald's contacts with the State Department and with Russian intelligence officials in Moscow.

New Turncoat
Mrs. Melinda Maclean, American-born wife of British diplomat traitor Donald Maclean, has joined the Soviet espionage service.

Montgomery Hyde, former member of the British Parliament, has reported to British and U.S. intelligence that Mrs. Maclean is now one of the most highly regarded experts at Moscow's top training school of women spies.

According to Maclean's sources behind the Iron Curtain, she helps to groom agents hand-picked to operate in the U.S., Britain, Canada and Australia.

Hyde, a recognized authority on world espionage, says that the Russians have five schools for training spies and assassins within the Soviet Union.

Mrs. Maclean fled to Russia 10 years ago after her husband and his foreign office colleague, the late Guy Burgess, slipped out of Great Britain after being identified as Soviet agents.

Washington Attractions

The grave of the late President Kennedy is now the most popular tourist attraction in the capital. More than 1,600,000 have visited the grave site in Arlington National Cemetery since his burial there last November. This exceeds the number who visited the White House the past year.

At present, the Lincoln Memorial holds the record for a year with its 3,400,000 visitors in 1963. . . . After President Johnson picked Senator Clinton Anderson, D-N.M., as "administrator" of the federal government's Alaska recovery program, the latter called a Senate colleague to relay the news, adding: "Thank the Lord that Dick Russell has a good opinion of how I spend money."

Senator Richard Russell, D-Ga., is chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, which will pass on the administration's request for $50 million emergency aid for the earthquake-battered state. . . . One of Senator Anderson's first recommendations will be to have the government help rebuild the Alaskan fishing fleet, which was largely wiped out by the earthquake. He favors long-term, interest-free federal loans to private operators.

Our Religion

Old Inscription

To Robert Kuprian of Englewood, N.J., I am grateful for the answer to a question which has come several times. By careful research, including correspondence with the Archbishop of Canterbury, Mr. Kuprian has traced the source of an inscription found often on church bulletins and sometimes at entrances to churches. It is usually ascribed to "an Old English Church." Now we know the familiar words are to be found on the wall of the porch of the 12th Century Boldre (St. John the Baptist) Church at Lymington, England. It is on the south coast, just across the Solent Channel, north of the Isle of Wight.

The inscription reads:

"Friend — You enter this church not as a stranger, but as a Guest of God. He is your Heavenly Father. Come then with joy in your heart and thanks on your lips into His Presence offering Him your love and service. Be grateful to the strong and loyal men who in the name of Jesus Christ built this place of worship, and to all who have beautified it and hallowed it with their prayers and praises. "Beseeching His Blessing on those who love this Home of Faith as the inspiration of their labour, rejoicing in the power of the Holy Spirit, and may that blessing rest on you, both in your going out and your coming in."

Question: "Can you tell me why the Catholic Church accepts Protestant baptism records as official, but will not accept the fact that a person is married if it is not performed in a Catholic Church?" — Staten Island, N.Y.

Answer: You do not have the correct information about this, with reference to marriage. The Roman Catholic Church recognizes the validity of a marriage between Protestant Christians — provided neither has been previously married to a person now living — in the presence of Protestant, Eastern Orthodox or Anglican clergyman. The problem arises when there is a marriage between Roman Catholic and a member of another church or religious body.

Canon law now requires that a member of the Roman Catholic Church may not enter into a marriage except in the presence of a priest of his own church. Special permission must be obtained to marry a person outside the Roman Catholic Church. In the Second Vatican Council there are some Council Fathers who believe there ought to be some modification of this rule. Nothing has been done to change it, yet.

Question: "I have read that Jewish people are eager for the Vatican Council to adopt a document rejecting Jewish guilt for the death of Jesus Christ. If the Jewish people still reject the divinity of Jesus Christ, why are they concerned about not being guilty of his death?" — Marcellus, N.Y.

Answer: There is no connection whatever between these two positions. The Jewish religion is a positive one, based on the Torah and other Old Testament writings, plus such other religious works as the Talmud. The crucifixion of Jesus Christ was ordered by a Roman official and was executed by Roman soldiers. Jews and Christians together suffered persecution in those days.

A vast majority of Christians — Roman Catholic as well as other Christian bodies — hold that the crucifixion of Jesus Christ was an expression of the sin of all mankind. Its responsibility cannot be placed on any single people — not even the Roman soldiers. There are other religions which reject the divinity of Jesus — including Islam and Hinduism. We do not, therefore, hold these religions responsible for the crucifixion!

Question: "Who was St. Elmo?" — Tulsa, Okla.

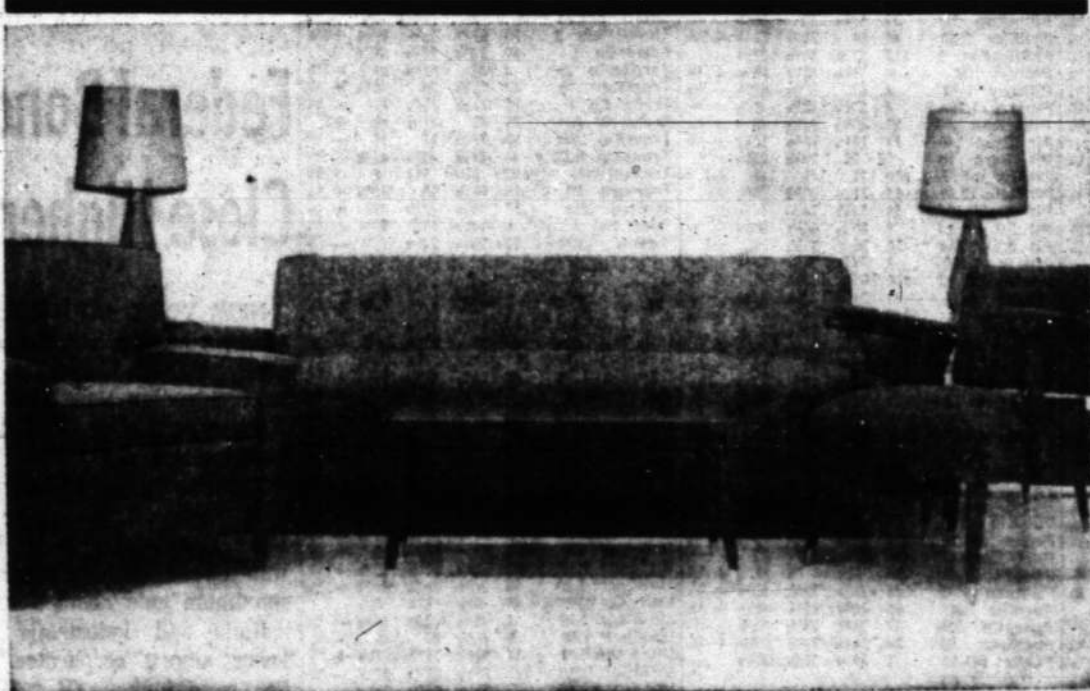

Answer: There has been some confusion in Christian history about this name. Usually it is thought of as a popular name for St. Peter Gonzalez, a Dominican priest who lived from 1190 to 1246. His feast day is April 14. Sometimes, however, the name St. Elmo has been ascribed to St. Erasmus of the third century. His feast day is June 2.

Editor's Note: Questions on religion and the Bible may be addressed to Dr. Adams in care of this newspaper. All questions must be signed, but the names of the writers will not be published. Dr. Adams does not read anonymous letters.

Rain, Nicklaus Set To Haunt Masters

Jack Nicklaus

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The 28th Masters Golf Tournament opens Thursday with the game's greatest players haunted by a pair of nightmares—a course drenched by days of torrential rains and a pink-cheeked young giant named Jack Nicklaus.

Nicklaus, 24-year-old ball-bashing bull from Columbus, Ohio, has been made a 4-1 favorite to become the first Masters titleholder ever to repeat, and his stature seemed to grow with every inch of water that fell on the beautiful Augusta National course.

"Let It Rain"

"Let it rain," the blond, boyish Nicklaus said Wednesday as he calmly watched rivulets course through Augusta National's little valleys. "Rain or shine I feel I'm ready."

"I don't remember when I have gone into a tournament in better physical shape or a better frame of mind. I may blow the chance but, if I do, I'll have no excuse. I feel wonderful."

The 210-pound Nicklaus, who in two short years has crushed all professional opposition in his massive arms, is one of 98 players—58 U.S. pro, 15 amateurs and 25 foreigners—who, starting at 8 a.m., CST, will begin the four-day, 72-hole test that has become perhaps the most prestigious tournament in the game.

On the eve of the opening, Nicklaus picked five men whom he considered as having the best chance of wresting away his crown, but he steadfastly refused to concede that any of them could do it.

Best Putting

"Every time I go into a tournament, I think I can win it," he said. "Right now I am putting better than I have all year. So naturally I am confident."

The Ohio belter listed his chief opposition: Arnold Palmer, seeking his fourth Masters title in six years; Gary Player, the astute little South African who won here in 1961; U.S. Open champion Julius Boros; putting wizard Billy Casper and Champagne Tony Lema; the 1963 runner-up.

"I'd pick them in that order," the outspoken young favorite said. "I feel sure Palmer is getting back on his game and may be ready to explode. Naturally, I expect him most of all. If there's a darkhorse, I think I'd take Bobby Nichols."

Palmer, winner of a record $128,000-plus last year, hasn't won a tournament during the present campaign and has been fighting a putting slump. "I think I've got it licked," Arnie said. "I'm really geared up for this one."

Player is suffering from inflamed tonsils but insists they won't hurt his chances. Casper has a bad hand but still knocks in putts from all across the green. Lema is a talented stylist waiting for greatness to strike.

Of the contenders, perhaps the most dangerous at the moment is Boros, the 44-year-old who won at Greensboro last week. A master finesser around the greens, he is at the peak of his game, confirmed when he played a practice round 66 Tuesday which he managed to cloak in secrecy.

The 6,980-yard, par 72 course, renowned as a big hitter's dream because of the many inclines planted in the fairway driving area, has been turned into an awesome monster by more than two inches of rain since Monday.

Water came down in torrents

Wednesday, canceling the last day's practice. The fairways were saturated. The greens, lightning fast under normal conditions, were turned into miniature lakes.

Beatle Fans Wouldn't Hold A Candle To Golf Followers

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—They say those kids who stand around hip-high in jelly beans to shriek at the Beatles are dedicated.

They are summer squealers compared to sports fans.

The people who pay their way to watch fun and games can take more punishment than Tommy Farr. And a lot more than Sonny Liston, who packed it in while he had a good solid roof over his head.

Sports fans will stick it out in weather that makes the mail men look like shut-ins.

The soggy souls that thronged that Augusta National swamp and golf course Wednesday in the rain were prime samples of the breed. They paid their $2 each for the privilege of not watching the golfers not practice for the Masters tournament which starts Thursday if the fairways are passable.

This crowd, which appeared in the hundreds, was composed of thick-blooded relations of the gang that annually stands around in a blizzard to buy seats in the end zone for the National Football League playoff.

Later in the week the Augusta crowd will come back and tramp seven miles apiece for an occasional glimpse of somebody named Miguel Sala missing an eight-foot putt.

But Wednesday they couldn't even do that. The course was closed on account of lakes in the fairway.

One fellow stood under a magnolia tree—it might have been a pine tree, it's hard to tell the difference in this kind of weather—and pointed out the sights to his waterlogged wife.

He showed her the 18th, where Arnold Palmer took a double bogey 6 in 1961 and lost the tournament on the last day. In his quaint local accent, he managed to make a six-syllable word out of "eighteenth," and even got two syllables out of "six."

A small knot of people stood around the first tee and watched the water ripple on the puddle there.

Inside, the pros played bridge.

At the parking lot, another fellow steered his rain-coated family across, holding firmly to hands of his youngsters to keep them from being swept downstream to an unplayable lie.

Thursday those kids will go back to school with notes from mama saying they were absent from school because of the rain. If they don't have pneumonia,

Leopards To Host 1-AAA Meet Friday

Booker T. Washington High School will host the District 1-AAA track meet and the district tennis meet Friday at Washington high school.

The tennis events will be held, starting at noon, at the tennis courts behind the new high school.

The field events will open the track meet at 1 p.m. and the track events will start at 2 p.m. Teams from Booker T. Washington, Fort Worth Como, Fort Worth Kirkpatrick and Burnett of Terrell will compete.

Whom Do Odds Favor In Masters?

Ted Leach

Jack Nicklaus has been installed a 4-1 favorite to win the 28th Master Golf Tournament which starts today. Those are the professional odds.

Personally, we prefer the odds revealing the fact that no golfer has ever won the event on successive years. We also like the odds revealing that it's time for Arnold Palmer to win again. Since 1958 Arnie has won on every even year. This being 1964, Palmer would be our choice.

The monsoon-like rains that have drenched the course have cut the field of contenders, according to most of the pros on tour. They feel the course favors Jack and Arnie under perfect conditions. Under present conditions it's almost sure-fire.

Nicklaus crushes his drives. He hits them high and far, farther than any of the players so far.

DODGERS IN SERIES

While making predictions, it might be a good time to look at the baseball races which get underway next week.

Forgetting prejudices, we'll have to take the Yankees in the American League, the Dodgers in the National and the Dodgers in the World Series. One of these days, not too far in the future, Sandy Koufax is going to have to hit his stride. The Bums' pitching staff, one of the finest in the majors in a long time, will make up for a lack of hitting.

In order, we'll take the Yankees.

CLAY'S A REAL NUT

Two championship matches this weekend promise to be dandies. The light heavy battle between Willie Pastrano and No. 2 contender Gregorio Peralta will be seen on television Friday night. Saturday No. 1 contender Kenny Lane gets a third crack at lightweight champion Carlos Ortiz. It's the rubber match.

mentioned as possible champions. He also keeps his shots straight down the fairway. He is consistent, a good putter with a good iron game. So why choose Palmer?

Arnie has been known to belt them from the tee. He doesn't get the carry. Nicklaus does. However, he's not so far behind that he misses any greens "Baby Beef" hits. Then it becomes a matter of putting, and Palmer has displayed a deft touch on the Augusta National course in past performances.

And, contrary to opinion, we don't feel that the field has been limited to just these two. Sam Snead, along with Palmer another three-time winner in the Masters, has been playing great recently. He could come on tough.

Palmer is still our choice, say by three-strokes.

Wichitan Wins 1st AAU Fight

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (Special)—Billy Sudderth, former Wichita Falls resident now in the Marine Corps, won a first round victory Wednesday night in the National AAU Boxing Championships. Sudderth, fighting in the 139 pound light-welter division, outpointed George Gutierrez of Washington, D.C.

The red-headed Sudderth will be remembered by Golden Glove fans when he fought for Wichita Falls in the Texas state meet. He is currently stationed in Iwakuni, Japan as a member of the 1st Marine Air Wing.

A victory in the AAU championships will give him a shot at making the Olympic team. After the Las Vegas meet Sudderth will go to North Carolina for the Olympic trials. He plans to return to Wichita Falls before going back to Japan.

Home Runs Big Factor In Grapefruit Games

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Julian Javier, the lightweight of the National League's heavy-weight infield, slugged a two-run homer in the eighth inning Wednesday, giving St. Louis a 5-4 exhibition baseball victory over the New York Yankees.

Second baseman Javier was the weakest hitting member of the Cards' infield that started in last year's All-Star game. He hit 263 compared with .304 for first baseman Bill White, .319 for shortstop Dick Groat and .285 for third baseman Ken Boyer.

Javier's hit overshadowed the fact that the Yankees' Mickey Mantle played his first complete spring game. Mantle, who has been bothered by knee trouble, went hitless in four trips to the plate.

Home runs also were factors in most of the other grapefruit games. Cleveland got three four-baggers in crushing San Francisco 14-4. It was the Indians' first victory against the Giants in 10 games. Max Alvis, Leon Wagner

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Wilt Chamberlain's scoring and Nate Thurmond's rebounding carried San Francisco to a 111-109 victory over the St. Louis Hawks Wednesday night and ended the final Western Division play-off series of the National Basketball Association.

With the best of seven play-off square at two games apiece, the teams move to San Francisco for the fifth game Friday night. The sixth contest will be in St. Louis Sunday.

On the way to the dressing room after the game, referees Norm Drucker and Richie Powers got into a fight with fans. One fan fell to the floor in the scuffle and the officials were escorted to their dressing room by auditorium guards.

Chamberlain lead all scorers with 36 points and grabbed 23 rebounds. Thurmond had 17 markers and gave the Warriors a valuable backboard assist with 15 rebounds.

San Francisco led 109-100 with 2:32 to play before St. Louis went on a scoring tear. Bob Pettit, high Hawks scorer with 29 points, sank a goal to put St.

Louis within two points, 110-108, with 51 seconds to go.

The Warriors, who didn't foul in the first nine minutes of the last period, fouled Len Wilkens with 26 seconds remaining. He sank the shot, narrowing the deficit to 110-109, but Guy Rodgers sent San Francisco two up with a free throw nine seconds before the finish.

Before time expired, St. Louis' Cliff Hagan and Richie Guerin missed close shots at the basket.

The incensed fans apparently thought a foul should have been called on both plays.

Willie Hit On Wrist

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—Willie Mays was hit on the right wrist in the first inning of a San Francisco Giants-Cleveland Indians exhibition game Wednesday and left the game for ice pack treatment.

Mays was hit by an attempted pickoff throw by Dick Donovan, Cleveland pitcher, after he had singled home the first Giant run.

NBA To Get Big Tv Pay

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The National Basketball Association is expected to sign a one or two year contract with a major network to televise weekend games next year, NBA President Walter Kennedy said Wednesday.

The league's board of governors also voted against expansion of the league for next season.

Kennedy declined to name the network or the amount of money being considered, but said the agreement should be reached within several weeks.

Kennedy made his report at a board meeting before the St. Louis Hawks-San Francisco Warriors Western Division play-off game. A representative from every team but Detroit attended.

The board voted unanimously against expansion despite offers by Kansas City, Chicago and Pittsburgh. Two cities in the Southwest also indicated interest in acquiring a franchise.

Robinson In Hospital, But Lesson Is Learned

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Frank Robinson learned a lesson last year. As so many others before him, the Cincinnati Reds' slugger found a man could sometimes profit through adversity. "I made mistakes last year," Robinson said quietly. "Everything went wrong for me and I just couldn't cope with it. I got down on myself but worse, I took out my frustrations on others."

"I became short-tempered, hard to get along with and sometimes inconsiderate of others."

Robinson was off to a fast start last year, something unusual for him. He envisioned an even better season than 1962 when he batted .342, a career high.

But a sore shoulder and an inflamed elbow reduced his power and his batting average skidded nearly 100 points.

The misfortunes mounted. In August, Robinson suffered a severe spike wound on his right arm that sidelined him several weeks. He wound up with a dismal .259 batting average, his lowest in eight years with the Reds. His home runs dropped from 39 to 21 and his runs batted in from 136 to 91.

"I never before went through such a frustrating season," Robinson said, "and I didn't know how to cope with it. That's no excuse, of course. I was wrong, I made mistakes. But I think I have learned from those mistakes."

"I hope, I never have to go through another season like the last one, but I promised myself it it should happen again, I'd never take it out on others."

Robinson will get a quick chance to try out his new-found philosophy of patience. Hampered by an ailing groin muscle, the slugger was sent from training camp here to a Cincinnati hospital Wednesday for observation.

Details on Robinson's latest physical setback were not disclosed.

Major League Baseball Team To Shift To Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP)—An unidentified major league baseball team has agreed to transfer to Atlanta next season under a long-term lease at the city's proposed new stadium, an official said Wednesday.

Arthur Montgomery, chairman of the Atlantic-Fulton (County) Recreation Authority, said the lease would cover at least 15 years.

Montgomery said the team cannot be identified until the 1964 season ends, but said the team's ownership actually

"would like a 30-year lease."

"It is not a sweetheart lease," Montgomery said. "They expect to pay their own way and we expect to get a fair return."

The authority has approved a crash program on a 12-month basis for the stadium to entice big league baseball and football to Atlanta for 1965.

"We're shooting for an April 15 starting date for construction," Montgomery said.

Fulton County commissioners voted to guarantee the county's one-third share of the annual cost of underwriting about $18 million worth of 30-year revenue certificates which the authority plans to issue.

The commission adopted a resolution urging city officials to underwrite the other two-thirds annual expense.

Montgomery said the authority has given the Thompson-Street Co., one of four bidders on the stadium job, a letter of intent to proceed with construction April 15 subject to approval by the city and county governments.

Colt Relief Pitcher Dies In Battle With Cancer

Umbricht Knew He Had Only Days To Live

HOUSTON (AP) — Jim Umbricht, big right-handed relief pitcher for the Houston Colts, died Wednesday after battling a rapidly spreading cancer for a month.

Umbricht, 33, had made a remarkable comeback with a 4-3 record with the Colts last season despite having undergone cancer surgery just a month before the season started.

He was one of the National League's leading relief pitchers the second half of the 1963 season, pitching 76 innings in 35 games and compiling a 2.61 earned run average.

JIM UMBRICHT

Umbricht was in uniform on opening day last season although doctors were not certain the groin and leg surgery had done a complete job of removing the cancerous growth.

The disease began to appear in the chest area last December, but Umbricht and Colt officials kept the development a closely guarded secret.

Umbricht meanwhile played golf regularly and joked with such stars as Willie Mays and Whitey Ford at a Jan. 21 baseball dinner. He was honored six days later at a similar Philadelphia dinner as the most courageous athlete of 1963.

"Some of us don't have time to slow down and take stock of ourselves," Umbricht said in accepting the Philadelphia award.

"But six weeks in a hospital bed gives you time to think—and come out of there a better human being. I'm sure everything will come out all right."

Umbricht did not go to Cocoa, Fla., when the Colts opened spring training there in late February.

The Colts signed Umbricht to a scout's contract, and the National League gave special permission for the contract to be signed without Umbricht going through waiver formalities. It was understood Umbricht would return to the Colt active roster when his physical condition permitted.

But the cancer continued to spread and Umbricht entered the University of Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute on March 16. By that time doctors said he had only days to live.

Umbricht, who was 6-foot-4 and weighed 215 pounds before becoming ill, played golf frequently with Paul Richards, the Colt general manager.

Richards often referred to Umbricht as one of the greatest competitors he has ever seen.

"You name your game and Jim will battle you at it," Richards said.

A native of Chicago, Umbricht was captain of baseball and basketball teams at the University of Georgia. He broke into pro ball in 1953 with the Waycross club of the Georgia-Florida League. By 1959 he had a 52-44 minor league record with clubs at Waycross, Baton Rouge, La.; Topeka, Kan.; Atlanta and Salt Lake City.

In 1960 the Milwaukee organization traded him to Pittsburgh for outfielder Emil Panko. Houston obtained him from Pittsburgh for $50,000 in the 1961 National League player pool.

His five-year record at Pittsburgh and Houston was 194 innings in 88 games for a 9-5 record, and a 3.06 earned run average.

Royals Put Pressure On Celtics To Win

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics are within a game of wrapping up their eighth straight Eastern Division playoff title, yet find the pressure on them to finish the job Thursday night.

Cincinnati broke off of its slump for a 102-93 victory Tuesday, displaying the same kind of pride that has long been the Boston trademark.

But the Royals are still down 1-3 in the best-of-7 National Basketball Association series.

So why the pressure on Boston?

"Because of the order of the victories," Celtics Co. Capt. Frank Ramsey explained. "If we had lost the third game and won last night's, we'd have the momentum and could finish off the Royals tomorrow. As it is they have the spark and we've got our work cut out for us."

League most valuable player Oscar Robertson scored 33 points, veteran Jack Twyman 31, and Jerry Lucas of the Royals out rebounded Boston's Bill Russell 25 to 24 Tuesday.

"We have regained our composure and our confidence," Twyman says. "If we can pull out Thursday's game, I'm positive we can win on our home court Saturday. That would square the series and make Monday's game a tossup. I think it will take an enormous effort by the Celtics to stop us tomorrow night."

"Desire is the big thing in this game and we've got it now," says Royal Coach Jack McMahon. "We refused to fold all season. If the Celtics want this championship, they're going to have to take it. We won't give it to them."

Tebbetts Out For Season

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—A heart specialist said Wednesday that Birdie Tebbetts will not return to his job as manager of the Cleveland Indians this season.

Dr. Arthur V. Dudley said the 54-year-old Tebbetts was enjoying a normal convalescence from the heart attack he suffered last week, but added:

"He will not be back this season."

"It will be hard to keep him out, but that will be the responsibility of the doctors in Florida."

Dudley said the first four or five days after a heart attack constitute the danger period. "Tebbetts is past this," he said, "there is no evidence of further damage."

Tebbetts will remain in St. Mary's Hospital for another four weeks and will then go to his home in Florida for further care. He has been moved from an intensive care unit at the hospital to a private room.

"The important thing now is bed-rest," the doctor said. "All he does is feed himself. The only visitor he is allowed is his wife."

Dudley expects Tebbetts will be able to have other visitors in about 10 days.

Yanks Trim Squad By Cutting Three

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—The New York Yankees cut three players—including the pitcher with the team's best spring record—from their squad Wednesday.

Tom Metcalf, a right-handed pitcher who compiled a 0.69 earned run average in exhibitions this spring, was sent to Richmond of the International League on a 24-hour recall basis. Metcalf has pitched 13 innings, yielding seven hits and one earned run.

Outfielder Elvio Jimenez, who has been used mostly as a pinch hitter, also went to Richmond on 24-hour recall. Catcher Bill Madden was sent to Columbus, Ga., of the Southern League.

Argentina's Peralta Out To Fool History

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—South America has produced some real good fighters in every class but none heavier than a 118-pound bantamweight ever has won a world professional championship.

Argentina's Gregorio Peralta feels it's time for a change and that he's the man to do it. The 28-year-old challenger gets his chance Friday when he meets light heavyweight king Willie Pastrano of Miami Beach at Municipal Auditorium.

"It would be a big honor for my country and a very big honor for me," said Peralta Wednesday. "Only Perez and Jofre have won titles for South America."

Pascual Perez of Argentina held the 112-pound flyweight crown from 1954 to 1960. Brazil's Eder Jofre is the present bantamweight ruler.

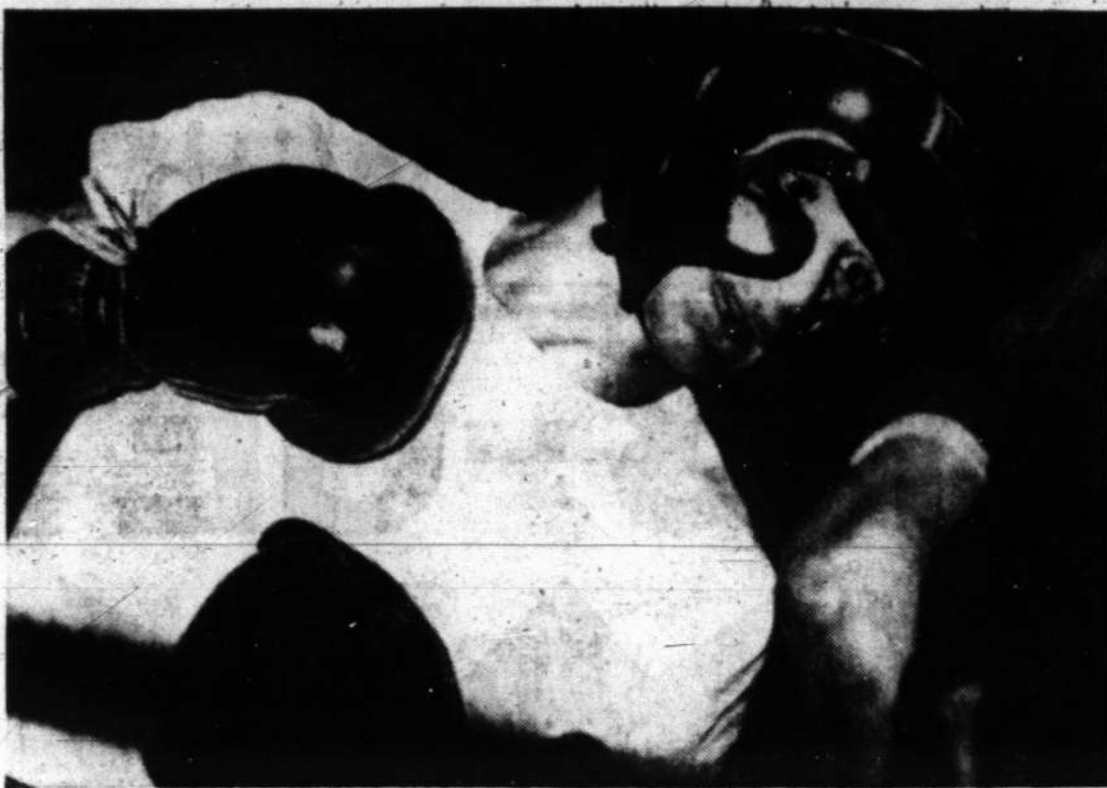

The title also would mean a lot of money for the invader who started fighting for cash six years ago after learning the trade in the Marines.

He is one of the family of nine boys and three girls of a small vineyard owner. Gregorio says he would like to own a large vineyard when his ring career is over.

The tall, dark and handsome fighter will be able to buy a lot of grape vines with his payday of about $18,000 for the Friday fight. A victory over the champion would put Peralta in a position to earn $50,000 or so for title fights.

"And that's a lot of grapes," he said with a big smile.

"I am confident of winning," he said. "I beat him before and I see no reason why I shouldn't do it again. I know he will be better but so will I."

Regional Handball Tournament Slated

Following successful play in last weekend's ninth annual invitational handball tournament at the Central YMCA, winners and top seeded players will travel to Oklahoma City this Friday and Saturday to compete in the Southwest Regional Handball Championship matches.

Among the top seeded to attend the contest are, Wichitans Lynn Reinhardt, Jackie Watkins, Yale Gorman and Bob Lindsay Jr.

At the Wichita Falls invitational, eight players registered for the open singles, 12 for the open doubles, 8 in veterans doubles and 11 in the "B" singles.

Shumate of Dallas emerged champion in the open singles, defeating Lindsay Jr. in the final matches, 21-17 and 21-13.

Open doubles were won by Grant and Blakely of Dallas who took their final match over Stacks and Sumpter of Wichita Falls, 21-9 and 21-13.

Giller and Franks of Oklahoma City defeated Harp of Dallas and Allred of Wichita Falls in final matches of the veterans doubles to take the veterans championship 21-8 and 21-15.

"B" singles went to Doremus of Dallas defeating Carlisle of Wichita Falls 21-10 and 21-11.

In consolation play, Carroll of Dallas defeated Beam of Wichita Falls in finals, 21-3 and 21-4.

Canadiens Count On Revived Player

STE. MARGUERITE STATION, Que. (AP)—The Montreal Canadiens are counting on the return of Jean Beliveau Thursday night to pull out their Stanley Cup semifinal playoff series in the seventh and final game against the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Beliveau, who injured his right knee in the fourth game and missed the next two, was reported recovered Wednesday.

Canadien Coach Toe Blake said he could have used Beliveau at Toronto Tuesday night when the Leafs dumped the Canadiens 3-0 and tied the series at 3-3. But he decided to save the center and team captain as a trump card in case the series went to the limit.

"The rest did Beliveau a lot of good. He'll be in A-1 health for us in this big game," Blake said.

PRINCESS LITTLE CLOUD

Title Fight, Girl Bout All On Mat Card

One of the finest wrestling programs ever held in Wichita Falls is on tap for the 4-H Arena, Thursday at 8 p.m.

Matchmaker Bob Clay and the American Legion Post 169, sponsors of the event, has billed a championship tag team match, a special girls' battle and first event to present the city one of the top matches of the season.

The main event sends Southwestern Tag Champions Stanislaw Pulaski and Karol Krauser against the Great Bolo and former junior champ, Irish Mike Clancy in a championship bout.

Last week, Bolo and Clancy defeated the two Iron Curtain stars in two straight falls to get a shot at the title.

Pulaski and Krauser claim a short lead pipe hidden in Bolo's hand is the punch that turned the tide of battle last week. Several fans will be asked to search Bolo before the bout starts.

In a special event, Princess Little Cloud of Arizona, a beautiful Apache Indian, will test Betty Boucher in a two of three falls battle with an hour time limit.

The opening match will pit Killer Pat Patterson against Frankie Cain. This will be a best of three falls, one hour time limit.

Advance tickets for this special attraction can be obtained at the cigar booth of the Kemp Hotel or may be obtained at the 4-H Arena from 6 p.m. until the main event.

Parade To Kick Off Races

A downtown parade Friday beginning at 3:30 p.m. kicks off the 1964 racing season at Wichita Speedway. The parade will be the official opening for the races which begin at 8 p.m. Friday at Wichita Speedway, located one-half mile south of the Archer City cutoff on the Jacksboro Highway.

The quarter-mile oval track has been re-worked since last season. The curves have been banked higher and the straightways have been widened.

A total of 40 cars will be on hand to kick off the season which will run every Friday night through October. Drivers will compete in three heat races, two semi-finals, a consolation, special race and a 25-lap feature race.

The cars are models from 1937 through 1956 with modified engines. All drivers are members of the North Texas Stock Car Association and race under the rules of the Association.

Syndicate Wants Canadian Team In Chicago For AFL

CHICAGO (AP)—A syndicate of eight men has submitted an official application for an American Football League franchise for Chicago.

Bob Nussbaum, investment broker who heads the group, said Wednesday. No deposit of money accompanied the application mailed to AFL headquarters in New York "because they told us they didn't want one."

The application was the second filed with the league for a Chicago franchise. Nash Dowdle, Midland, Tex., oilman, announced last month he had applied.

Nussbaum estimated the capitalization of his syndicate at about $3 million.

"We also included plans for remodeling of Soldier Field for the games," Nussbaum said. "This would mean moving the playing field to the closed end of the stadium with 17,000 temporary seats at the open end. It would have a capacity of 59,000."

Nussbaum said he has opened negotiations for a Canadian Football team to move to Chicago.

"We want to start in the AFL with the nucleus of a solid, going team rather than relying on an AFL pool," he added.

Nussbaum now operates the minor league Chicago Panthers in pro football.

Barwise Downs Reagan, 18-0

Barwise swept Reagan 18-0 Wednesday at Weeks Park tennis courts in Junior High School tennis play. The victory moved Barwise into the junior high school finals against city leader Zundy.

Barwise will meet Zundy at 2:30 p.m. Monday at Weeks Park courts. If Zundy wins the Eagles will be crowned the city champions. If Barwise happens to win the two teams will be forced into a second playoff for the city title.

Reagan could not stand up to the Barwise team effort. The Bobcat girls won six singles and three double matches and the boys also won six singles and three doubles.

Hirschi's Huskie track team blasted Lawton Eisenhower 84½ to 33½ in a dual track meet at Coyote track Wednesday. The victory was a revenge win for the Huskies, beaten earlier in the season by Lawton.

Lawton got only one first place in the 16 event meet. In the discus, A. Humble bested the field which included Hirschi's Milton Hieber. The rest of the glory remained for the Huskies. The first time the two schools met, Eisenhower beat Hirschi in the rain, 63-55.

Schoolman Speaks To Optimist Club

Gardner H. Kirby, assistant superintendent of Wichita Falls schools, was guest speaker at the Downtown Optimist Club meeting Wednesday. Introduced by Dick Davis, program chairman, Kirby gave an insight into Texas education.

Education, said Kirby, is a Texas heritage. The reluctance of Mexico to provide education for all children was one of the reasons for declaring Texas' independence. The Texas Constitution, in its early years, provided a $2 million fund for schools. This 1896 amount seemed large; now the revenue from oil on public lands has about $505 million in the school fund.

Nationally, Kirby noted, Texas is third in student population, third in teachers having degrees, but 33rd in the amount spent on each child for education and in about the same area on teacher salary.

Kirby's concern is the complacency of parents and all citizens about schools. The dropout question is unanswerable from a school officials point of view; the citizens must help. In Wichita Falls, a survey of seniors entering in September and gone at semester time was made.

Nine-tenths of one per cent quit because of attitude, 1.4 per cent quit to work; three-tenths of one per cent quit to enter the armed forces; seven-tenths of one per cent quit to get married or because they were married, and 3.7 per cent moved out of the city. Other than moving, 2.5 per cent of dropouts are a problem.

Kirby said times have changed and so have schools, but the basic fundamentals are the same. They are parents' interest, discipline and cooperation in areas of school concern. He closed pledging school officials' best endeavors and the question how far do you go in taking care of the 2.5 per cent dropout and what about the 97 per cent wishing to be educated?

During the meeting Optimists voted for board members and a president for next year. Glen M. Atkins of Sunrise Optimist Club who has served in many Optimist positions was a guest.

MU Young Demos Set Tree Planting 600 Will Attend May Convention

The young Democrats at Midwestern University have scheduled a tree-planting ceremony on the grounds of the new university library at 12:30 p.m. Thursday.

Chris Scheer, public relations chairman for the Young Democrats, said Wednesday club president Nancy Broday was slated to speak and that several prominent Democratic leaders in Wichita County had been invited to attend.

Two silver maples will be set in at the ceremony.

It was suggested that the conventions group go to Dallas June 9-11 to bid for the upcoming Firemen's Convention.

Guy Carter reported that three more persons are needed to attend the Texas Society of Association Executives meeting in Houston. He said that reservations have been made and that an airplane is also reserved.

Harold Shappell, chairman, presented a plaque to the group from the Wichita Falls Ladies' Bowling Association. He reported that "We (Wichita Falls) only missed the convention by three and one-half votes, and feel sure we can obtain the convention in 1968."

The possibility of giving identification badges to various segments of businesses such as service station operators and barbers with a welcome to delegates attending a convention in the city also was discussed.

Wednesday morning a planned customer contact program with the theme "Have a cup of coffee on me" was discussed by members of the wholesale trade development group.

This program would be in the form of a greeting card with a message reading, "Would like to have a cup of coffee with you, but since I can't make it, here's a new dime. Have a cup on me."

The cards would be sent to customers and potential customers in the Wichita Falls trade area.

A seminar on business insurance and tax problems to be held in Wichita Falls was reported on by Ray B. King. King told members of the group that specialists in these fields would conduct the program.

The possibility of a Wichita Falls wholesale trade show was discussed during the morning session and was tabled for further discussion at next month's group meeting.

Roger Arnold presided in the absence of Joe Meissner.

Boys' Club Week Celebrated Here

National Boys' Club Week, April 5 through 11, is a week of special activities for more than 600,000 boys in 635 Boys' Clubs throughout the nation and the four branch Boys' Clubs in Wichita Falls have keyed their observance and activities toward a different goal for members each day of the week.

In a statement concerning National Boys' Club Week, President Lyndon Johnson said, "every boy is a good boy but he is also all boy and the Boys' Clubs gives a vent to his enthusiasms and energies. The Boys' Clubs of America have been one of our great character-building institutions and the movement is certainly one to which all Americans can subscribe."

Graham Ball, executive director for Boys' Clubs in Wichita Falls, said the theme here for the observance of National Boys' Club Week is "Promoting Good Citizenship."

In observance of National Boys' Club Week, special programming began Monday in Wichita Falls with the emphasis on family and social activities. An invitation was extended to parents to join their boys in a treasure hunt during the afternoon with games and an ice cream feed later. A costume contest also was held.

A family movie was shown at Southwest Boys' Club Monday and a "lad and dad" swim was held in the pool at Central Boys' Club.

Tuesday, education was emphasized with a spelling bee, an essay contest and a speech contest.

Aquatics and physical fitness were keynotes Wednesday as an underwater swim contest, games of water polo, a penny scramble and other water sports were held at the pool at Central Boys' Club.

A high point of the annual observance of National Boys' Club Week in Wichita Falls is the popular "Little Sister Contest" to be held Friday night at Central Boys' Club.

Saturday, a full day of track and field contests are slated to cap the week of activities.

Ball said parents and friends are welcome at the four Wichita Falls Boys' Clubs at any of the activities this week.

Robert McGinty, associated with the K-9 Corps at Altus AFB, will aid in the instruction of the course.

Dogs will be taught four basic commands — to heel, come, sit and lay down, Barnes said.

Barnes also said that owners will instruct the dogs themselves, with he and McGinty serving in an advisory capacity. Training sessions with the dogs will be held at either the National Guard Armory or the fairgrounds.

Dogs six months old are eligible to participate in the course.
