J.R. Henard New Water Board Head

Reorganization of the board of Collingsworth County Water Control and Improvement District was completed in a meeting Tuesday, February 20, with John R. Henard Jr. elected president.

He succeeds his brother, the late Dan Henard, in the post.

George Roberts was elected vice-president and Temple Slay of Amarillo was named secretary-treasurer.

Louis Patterson of Dodson submitted his resignation from the board. Remaining members are Sandy Parsons and David Baumgardner.

The board discussed legal action pending against it since 1965. This case, filed by the late Mrs. Eunice Barjenbruch and the Pigg Estate, sought exclusion of their properties from the water district. The two suits were later consolidated. Records in the office of the county clerk show that the plaintiff sought a summary judgment and that the defendants filed cross action also asking a summary judgment. Both were denied in 1967 by 100th District Judge Charles Reynolds, and there had been no further action.

The water board also considered membership in Water, Inc. the organization seeking water for Panhandle agriculture. Mr. Slay is to investigate the requirements for membership, or the possibility of having a Collingsworth County Water board member sit in on Water, Inc. meetings, but without membership.

In the future, the Collingsworth County Water Board will not remain inactive, as it has for several years, the new board president assured.

City Plans To Improve Airpark Pool

Moving to return Marian Airpark Swimming Pool to its place as a major recreation point for the Wellington area, the City Council devoted considerable time to it in the meeting Monday, February 19.

The purchase of a slide for the swimming pool was approved, and the council asked City Manager Lyman Daniel to report at the next meeting what it will take to repair the swimming pool and get it in first class condition. He was asked to make suggestions on securing a life guard, and the possibility of putting in vending machines was studied.

In other action, Mayor Coleman told the council the highway department needs a place to put dirt during the widening of US 83.

Mr. Coleman said it was pointed out to him that this dirt can be stored on the diversion terrace just north of town and that it will help to channel floodwaters away from the city.

The council agreed to this, Mr. Daniel reported.

The city manager was also authorized to advertise for bids on leasing the county water farm, the purchase of new chairs for the council room of City Hall was approved, and a larger guard light was authorized for the new ambulance building.

The council gave Mr. Daniel the authority to transfer city funds as needed and to inform it of such action.

Easter Seal Appeal Starts in County

The 1973 Easter Seal Appeal will open in Collingsworth County on Thursday, March 1, 1973 according to Jack Neeley, who serves as Easter Seal Representative for the county.

Neeley said that Easter Seal Appeal letters would begin arriving at homes in the county about March 1.

As Easter Seal Representative, Neeley is the person to contact to request services from the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Texas. These services include physical and occupational therapy, speech and hearing programs and special information services to help solve the many problems faced by the families of handicapped children and adults.

Last year 16,572 handicapped people received help from the Texas Easter Seal Society. With the costs of providing expert professional care rising, more money than ever will be needed.

Funds help support 18 centers in Texas, where crippled children and adults are treated, regardless of their ability to pay. Providing walkers and wheelchairs is an example of the services provided to those who cannot provide for themselves and who do not qualify for help from any other source.

"The people of Texas have always responded generously to helping the handicapped, and I feel certain they will make it possible to increase Easter Seal services to crippled Texans throughout the coming year," Neeley said.

School District Will Not Give Tax Exemption

The Wellington School Board has voted that it will not allow the $3,000 homestead exemption for tax purposes to property owners 65 years of age and older.

This decision was made on the basis of the bonded indebtedness which the Wellington Independent School District has, said Supt. Thayne Amonett in announcing the decision Monday, Feb. 19.

The constitutional amendment which permits this exemption for ad valorem tax purposes, also provides that a taxing unit with a bonded indebtedness may make the decision to not give the exemption.

Wellington Independent School District has a bonded indebtedness of $1,030,245, which extends through 1992, according to records in the office of Mrs. Nita Brantley, school tax assessor-collector. Some of these bonds go back many years. The latest is the 1967 issue of $455,000, voted to cover the renovation of Wellington High School and Junior High, the new home ec - ag building and physical education building, stadium, bus barn and other improvements.

Repayment on this 1967 bond issue is made at the rate of $5,000 per year plus interest, or a total of $25,000 per year plus interest since the bonds were issued.

In 1972, the school district paid $23,000 on all its bond issues, plus $30,347.50 interest, or a total of $53,347.50.

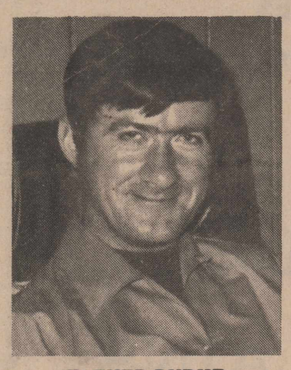

Both Quail and Samnorwood schools made the same decision as Wellington.

Father Burke Becomes Senior Pastor on 11th Anniversary

This week, Father Patrick Burke is observing the 11th anniversary of his arrival in Wellington to become the pastor of Our Mother of Mercy Church here and St. Patrick's Church in Shamrock. During those eleven interesting fruitful years, Father Burke has seen the congregation of Wellington grow from less than 20 in numbers to 56 families with a similar increase in Shamrock. He is now the pastor of over 700 souls in both churches.

His tenure here makes him the senior clergyman in point of service in Wellington.

Concerning his years in Wellington, Father Burke said:

FATHER BURKE

"This assignment, my fourth in the Diocese of Amarillo, has been by far the most fruitful, the most pleasant and the most rewarding. The good people of Wellington have been very friendly and warm to me, and I have many friendships among all age-groups. Having been everywhere, seen everything, done everything; it's nice to settle down in a peaceful country town and do the work I love best; helping other people find out how much God loves them."

Father Burke, who was ordained in 1957 in Westminister Cathedral by Cardinal Godfrey, came to the United States that same year. His first assignment was as assistant pastor of the Cathedral & St. Mary's in Amarillo. His next assignment was

Fund Drive Slated for Heart Sunday, Feb. 25

High point of the nationwide Heart Fund Campaign will be this Sunday, February 25, which has been designated Heart Sunday in the county by Mrs. Stephen Schmidly, campaign chairman.

During the Heart Sunday campaign, volunteers here will join an army of more than two million Americans to visit friends and neighbors, distribute heart-saving information and collect contributions for increased research, public education on heart disease, and community programs to reduce the nation's leading cause of death.

The theme for this year's campaign is "Beat the Big One – Heart Attack." Heart and blood vessel diseases are not only the number one cause of death, they kill more Americans than all other diseases combined.

Of the 32 deaths recorded in Collingsworth General Hospital last year, 26 resulted from heart disease or related heart ailments, Mrs. Schmidly said.

"Heart disease is in epidemic proportions," Mrs. Schmidly said as she issued an appeal to Collingsworth County residents for volunteers to help distribute information on heart disease. "Each volunteer will be asked to give just a few hours to bring life-saving messages to the public in an all-out effort to reduce deaths from heart attack and stroke." Volunteers may register by phoning Mrs. Schmidly at 447-2813.

J. M. Strong, 82, Florist, Dies of Brief Illness

J.M. Strong, 82, a part of the Wellington business community since he came here 61 years ago, died at 4:15 p.m. Tuesday, February 20, in Collingsworth General Hospital following a brief illness.

For many years, he and Mrs. Strong had owned and operated Strong's Flowers.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:00 p.m. Thursday in First Christian Church, with Charles Waugh, minister, officiating. Burial will be in a Wellington Cemetery under the direction of Kelso Funeral Home.

He was a young man of 21 when he came to Wellington from Quanah, where he was born January 13, 1891, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J.M. Strong, Sr.

Mr. Strong at one time was in the insurance business, then for a number of years he was with two Wellington banks, the old First National and the Wellington State Bank.

During World War II he was secretary of the Collingsworth County Draft Board, with the heartbreaking task of seeing so many of the county's fine young men, his own sons included, go to war.

Always a part of Strong's Flowers, he devoted full time to that work, maintaining the excellent green houses and much of the other work that has distinguished this firm.

Mr. Strong had been a member of the Christian Church since the age of 14. He was a past mas-

The convention included both general meetings and clinics, and Mr. Schmidly attended those related to bands.

A highlight of the meeting was the concert of the Texas Honor Bands, which included Hebbronville, Class AA, and Lake Highlands in Richardson, Class 4-A.

C-C Directors Plan Sidewalk Sale for Spring

Plans for the upcoming spring Sidewalk Sale, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, will be laid at a called meeting of the directors Thursday, February 22, president Don Welch has announced.

Mack Saied, Jr., and George Shadid head the committee working on this.

In the same meeting, reports will be heard from the advertising committee, composed of Bill Hatch and Doc Turner, then Mr. Welch and Dan Hiett will report on the West Texas Chamber of Commerce workshop they attended recently in Plainview.

This meeting was called due to the annual banquet's falling on the regular meeting night, Feb. 12.

Three new members of the Chamber also were announced by Mr. Welch: Steve Schmidly, Wellington school band director; Bobby Gronewald, of Soil Conservation Service staff; and John Brim, Wellington Farmer.

Rev. Emmert Pastor Of Nazarene Church

Rev. Ervin Emmert, son of the late Ike Emmert, will serve as pastor of the local Nazarene Church for the coming year.

The new pastor was born in Collingsworth County and attended school here until his high school day when the family moved to the northeast part of the county, after which he attended Shamrock High School.

Mr. Emmert received the T.H.B. and A.B. degrees from Bethany Nazarene College. In addition to his evangelistic as assistant pastor of St. Elizabeth's in Lubbock which is located near Texas Tech University. While in Lubbock, he was on the Bible Faculty of Tech and taught scripture classes. He is a chaplain in the Reserve Air Force and helped at the Airbase when he was in Lubbock.

His first pastorate was in Spur in 1960 and he served there for two years before coming to Wellington in February of 1962 to replace Father Hand.

When Father Burke began his pastorate in Wellington, as few as three of four members would participate in Holy Communion on Sunday and there was no Spanish membership in the Church. Today the church building is bursting at the seams when services are held. This growth and increased interest is due to a number of factors. One is the noticeable increase in number of people of Spanish decent; but others have to do with programs and developments in the congregation.

One of these is the Altar Boy program which starts boys of 8 who assist in the service when Mass is held. These boys continue in this work until they graduate from high school. Father Burke also established 2 Parish Councils that help make decisions and give advice on the affairs of the church. He also reorganized the ladies Altar Society. These ladies take care of the altar and its vestments.

Father Burke has also encouraged the growth of the Cursillo movement which consists of a series of retreats where the members go away to centers for intensive three day courses in religious training. The movement began in Spain and is used by Catholics to revitalize their faith. In his work with the people of Spanish descent, Father Burke has them sing hymns in Spanish and is also teaching them to improve their speech in that language as well as read and write it.

One of the gratifications that has come to the devoted priest during his eleven years in Wellington is the increasing number of young people who have become his friends over the years. He says that a remarkable number of teenagers come to ask his advice on personal as well as religious problems.

He also finds an appreciated change in the understanding that local people have of the Catholic Church. He believes that one of the factors that has brought this about is the series of ads he has been publishing in the Wellington Leader. These are in question and answer form and the questions are actual queries that have been made not only by Catholics but people of other denominations. These advertisements appear twice a month.

Father Burke has been interested in many community activities since he came to Wellington. He is a member of the Rotary Club and for years was assistant scoutmaster of Troop 31. In addition to Rotary, he has appeared on numerous school and chamber of commerce programs and on more than one occasion has been the speaker at the First United Methodist Church and the Trinity Methodist Church. His interest in the immediate community continue to be wide and varied.

Patrick Burke was born July 30, 1932 in Tottenham, England, a suburb of London. His parents were Hugh Burke and Anne O'Sullivan. His boyhood was spent alternating between London and Dublin -- his family owned houses in both England and Ireland. His education included intensive instruction as a student first in Dublin and later in England.

In young manhood he attended institutions of higher learning such as St. Edmunds and Cambridge. He holds the degrees of Bachelor of Arts in Education, Master of Arts in English Literature among his many scholarly accomplishments, and in December of 1972, he received his Doctorate in Theology from Cambridge.

His father, Hugh Burke, was engaged in police work and in his later years was connected with Scotland Yard. He wanted his son to work in law enforcement. Several of Father Burke's male relatives are detectives or other police officers in Canada or the United States.

When asked why he decided to become a priest instead of a detective, Father Burke said: "The desire may have started when I was an Altar Boy. I grew up respecting the priests and even in those early years there was the desire to help others and to teach. I believe that is the reason I decided to be a priest."

PEACHES AND PECANS

The fact that spring is only about six weeks away should make most people take note, especially if they're considering planting fruit and pecan trees.

Homeowners are adivsed to order or purchase needed trees as soon as possible to get the best pick of available supplies.

It's also important to select varieties that are adapted to our particular locality. The county Extension office can provide information on which varieties perform best in this area.

For peach and plum trees, select year-old plants that are three to five feet high. Apple and pear trees should be four to six feet tall. Pecan trees that are five to seven feet tall are best. Such trees will transplant easily and will become established more quickly. Excessively large, bare-rooted trees should not be purchased.

When buying fruit and pecan trees, always insist on disease free stock. Select peach and plum trees that have Nemaguard rootstock (rootstock that has resistance to rootknot nemtodes.)

Trees perform best on soils that are well-drained and have good penetration by roots, water and air, so give special attention to the planting site.

An important operation following planting is the cutting back of the main trunk and side branches. Pecan trees should be cut back by one-third to one-half of their top growth (that portion above the ground level). Cut back apple and pear trees to about 30 to 36 inches above the ground and peach and plum trees to about 24 to 28 inches.

If trees have side branches, remove all of these below the top 18 inches of the main trunk. Any side branches above 18 inches should be stubbed back to one to two inches.

The main reason for pruning the top growth of nursery trees is to compensate for root losses that these trees experienced when they were dug. In other words, the top growth needs to be balanced with the root system so that the roots can develop and become established.

All pruning cuts should be treated with a tree wound dressing as a protectant against insects and diseases.

Pruning is also important during the early years of fruit and pecan trees so that they will develop properly and take the desired shape.

Downgraded

Although it is among the best-known mountains in America, Pikes Peak ranks only 59th in altitude among U.S. peaks. It is 14,110 feet high and was 42nd in rank before Alaska became a state.

Childress: three accidents, no deaths or injuries.

Cottle: 9 accidents, no deaths, two injuries.

Donley: 9 accidents, no deaths, one injury.

Gray: 25 accidents, two deaths, 8 injuries.

Questions People Ask About the Catholic Church

Q. Where is the closest Catholic University to us here in Wellington?

A. I guess it would be the University of Dallas at Irving, Texas. Other Catholic Universities not too far from us would be University of Albuquerque, N.M., College Misericordia in Dallas, Dominican College in Houston, Incarnate Word College in San Antonio, and St. Edwards University in Austin.

Q. What is the present percentage of Catholics in the State of Texas?

A. As of Jan. I, 1971, and I'm sure it has grown since then, the percentage of Catholics in Texas relative to the total population was almost 20 per cent. Add to that the 76,062 adult and infant baptisms of the past year, and the figure changes somewhat.

Stagecoach Inn Part of Park

AUSTIN -- A Historic 19th Century stagecoach inn will soon be a part of the Mission Tejas State Park.

The Parks and Wildlife Commission recently voted to authorize acceptance of the Rice Stagecoach Inn which now stands on State Hwy. 21 in Houston County.

The Houston County Development Foundation has offered to remove the inn to Mission Tejas Park at no cost to the state.

Restoration of the old landmark will provide a lasting educational exhibit of an early Texas settlement.

The inn was established in 1838 on the Camino Real and has remained in private ownership until it was deeded to the Houston County Development Foundation.

Mission Tejas Historic State Park is 22 miles northeast of Crockett in the David Crockett National Forrest.

White Teaches In Wyoming

At a time when most teachers hope for a job in a large school, a Wellington man has chosen to go to a one-teacher school in the Southeast Wyoming ranching country.

Gary White, who received his teaching certificate, with a major in education from Texas Tech University in December, has four students in three grades in the school, located on a ranch, near Wheatland, Wyoming. He, along with his wife and 21-month-old son, Brandon, will be there through the remainder of the term, replacing a teacher who has taken leave of absence.

He had the choice of going there or to Laramie.

White teaches all subjects to one first grader, a fourth grade student, and two in the sixth grade.

While in Wellington visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chester White, his wife said she is learning to bake her own bread along with many other things necessary because of their distance from town. Recently, for the first time, this young couple churned their own butter.

White took his bachelor's degree in park administration and social studies at Texas Tech, but upon deciding to teach, he returned to complete the work for his teaching certificate.

Excelsior Club Hears Study of Four Artists of Revolutionary Period

Miss Marie Shadid entertained the Excelsior Club Thursday evening, February 1, in her home.

Also the program leader, Miss Shadid presented the study of four early American painters from a single family: Charles Willson Peale and his sons, Rembrant and Raphaelle, and his brother, James Peale.

Of Charles Peale, Miss Shadid explained "His protraits of the leading figures of the Revolutionary period are the most remembered of his remarkably diverse accomplishments."

After studying with Americans John Hesselius and John Singleton Copley, he went to London and absorbed Benjamin West's neoclassical style, and along with it the new ideals of social and political justice associated with the neoclassical movement. In an allegorical portrait of Pitt, he sounded a warning to tyrants and he refused to uncover his head when the coach of King George passed in the streets.

"On his return to America, Peale became at once the fashionable portrait painter of the middle colonies. In Philadelphia, he entered wholeheartedly into the Revolutionary movement and served with middle colonies. In Philadelphia, he entered wholeheartedly into the Revolutionary movement and served with the city militia in the Princeton-Trenton campaign," Miss Shadid continued.

"In 1781, he opened a portrait gallery of Revolutionary heroes and three years later he founded the institution which became famous as Peale's Museum, a pioneering venture in museum exposition and a new expression of liberal philosophy.

"In his long life, Peale painted about 1,100 portraits, including virtually all his great contemporaries. His seven life portraits of Washington in 1772, 1776, 1777, 1779, 1783,1787 and 1795, were repeated many times by him and other painters of his family.

"His brother, James Peale, became well known as a miniaturist and painter of protraits, landscapes and still life. He served as an officer of the Continental Army and painted a small group of Revolutionary battle scenes.

"Rembrant Peale, a son of Charles Willson Peale, studied first with his father, then at the Royal Academy in London in 1803 and between 1808 and 1810 in Paris, where he was offered the post of portrait painter to Napoleon's Court. Ambitious to rise above portrait work, he painted a number of formal subject pieces, culminating in his huge "Court of Death" in 1819 (Detroit Institute of Art) a picture whose exhibition brought the artist $19,000 in the first year.

"In 1823, he painted a head of George Washington, whom he painted from life in 1795. This strong but idealized likeness enjoyed popularity and was repeated by him many times. His protraits include many distinguished figures, that of Thomas Jefferson being his masterpiece.

"Raphaelle Peale, another son, was a master of Trompe l'Oneil, a three dimensional style, and founder of the art of still-life painting in the U.S.," Miss Shadid concluded.

A desert plate was served to Miss Bonnie Willis, Mrs. Lowell Wells, Mrs. E.F. Bartlett, Mrs. J.F. Michael, Miss Hattie D. Wells, Miss Shadid, and the hostess, Miss Marie Shadid.

With New Crop of Trend-Setting Fabrics—

Cotton Makes Big Impact On Spring Fashions '73

SLEEK—Classic good looks for town or travel are depicted in this softly-layered sweater dress of all-cotton string knit. A long-sleeved cardigan tops a short-sleeved dress with ribbed knit top. It's by Dividends, division of Larry Aldrich. The fabric's from Novelty Textiles.

DALLAS (Special)—Cotton Country is producing great fashion impact for spring-summer '73 with a tuned-in, turned-on cast of new fabric classics.

California, Texas, and New York designers are turning to corduroy, denim, chambray, prints, and knits for brilliant interpretation of the upcoming season's newest fashion looks.

Cotton corduroy—in the fashion spotlight by popular demand—is super-charged for local sports or peripatetic globe-trotters. It stars in new pastels, frothy ice cream tones, the brightest brights, and the whitest whites. In addition are unusual prints on transeasonal pin-wale, mid-wale, wide-wale, ribless, and sculptured corduroys.

Widespread "denim-mania" rivets fashion attention to fresh-as-paint pastels of pale yellow, green, blue, and pink. These are deftly brushed and often textured for a luxurious, feather-soft touch.

The new denims spring up in gentler, higher-styled clothes designed for on-the-go wear clock-round, year-round, and weather-round. Easy-going, carefree shirtweights are matched to pantweights in perfect partnership for flightweight comfort by land, sea, or air.

Chambray sings the "Bye Bye Blues" with a new color-struck palette in imaginative muted solids of red, yellow, green, and natural. It's also decked out in colorfully interplayed stripes, prints, decorative appliques, and stitchery.

In all its various forms, chambray adds flavorful fashion zest to shirts and shirtdresses, sportswear separates, palazzo pants, and "private lives" ensembles.

Cotton prints project new art forms as well as social and ecological influences. Printed knits and wovens come alive with dots. Pin dots, polka dots, carnival dots, and coin dots are deftly scattered on neutral grounds.

Flower prints pop up amid a field of geometrics, swirls, or galactic circles. Edibles abound in mini-prints. Batiks are brightened, and photographically - rendered prints are dashed with humor.

Naturally comfortable cotton knits spin into '73 with sharply-needled fashion points. Pointelle knits—open, lacy, and cool—make a fashion statement in shirts, sweaters, and pants.

Jacquard knits have multiple patterning. Mixed-media styling in the form of color-related dots, stripes, florals, or geometrics shape coordinated sweater sets, dresses and sportswear separates.

And innovative all-cotton interlock knits lend their own exciting tempo to step up the fashion beat.

Sundown fashions include supple, sinuous knits in muted solids as well as brilliant color-bursts of nature-bound and abstract prints.

All-cottons and high-cotton blends are the prime fashion force behind the new trend-blazing fabric constructions being introduced for spring-summer.

NEW DIRECTION—All arrows point to cotton corduroy as spring's most news-making fabric. It turns up in strawberry-and-cream checks for this trim battle-jacket and belled pants with embroidered pockets. By Jerell of Texas in Crompton-Richmond corduroy.

DENIM MANIA—All-cotton denim in soft pastel tones takes on new femininity for spring-summer. It's used here for a softly tailored shirt-jacket with rodeo bead trim, and a sweeping ankle-length skirt. Color-keyed to the sun-up or sun-down ensemble is an all-cotton shirt in a delicate flower print.

Hunt Industry, But Promote What You Have, Says Winter

Find the needs of an industry rather than giving a sales pitch when calling on a prospect, Keith Winter told Chamber of Commerce directors in a 6:30 a.m. breakfast Tuesday, February 13.

This followed the Monday night C-C banquet, at which Mr. Winter, executive director of the Amarillo Board of City Development, was the speaker.

At the breakfast, he was sharing with business leaders in his native Wellington his expertise in contacting industry and bringing it to Amarillo.

He urged several times that the group learn the needs of companies they seek and try to fill those needs. At the same time, accurate information should be provided for those contacting industry to work.

He underscored again that 85 percent of Amarillo's industrial growth comes from within and stressed the necessity for promoting those businesses already here.

Aware that Wellington people leave home when they can no longer find jobs here, Mr. Winter urged the group to get 8 to 10 man industries, for which labor would be readily available. This in turn will draw other workers back home.

He cited some of the reasons large industry is moving out of the East, and one of these is fear -- fear for their lives by people who work in them.

Draw on the expertise of those who can help, West Texas State University, Texas State Technical Institute, Amarillo College, State Senator Max Sherman and Representative Phil Cates among them. "But you will have to ask them," he said.

Mr. Winter urged the county to expand its cattle industry.

Much impressed with Hay Camp Recreational Complex, he stressed that everyone should boost this addition to the county's economy wherever he goes. Mr. Winter pointed out that this can be one of the reasons for an industry locating in Wellington, or for a doctor coming here to practice.

He recommended greenhouses, not only for the production of vegetables but for flowers. The number one need is for carnations, but he added that Amarillo is the No. 1 airshipper for chrysanthemums, which show a net profit of $28,000 per acre!

He called on the directors to consider some rather surprising industry -- bicycle manufacturing, production of various component parts, and to consider medical supplies or equipment. For medicine, said Mr. Winter, is going to be a big thing in the Panhandle in the coming years.

In closing, Mr. Winter warned the group to watch for the sharpies and watch for the highbinders, and to not give too much to an industry that says it wants to locate in Wellington.

Attending the meeting were C-C President, Don Welch, who presided, Bill Spillman, Bill Hatch, Mack Saied, Jr., Bobo Castleberry, Garner Altom, A.J. Fires, Charles Darter, Robert Owens, C.T. Hubbard, Lynn Jenkins, Jimmie Kelso, John Coleman, Dan Hiett, Mrs. Margaret Vines, C-C manager, and Virginia Robey, The Wellington Leader.

Salt Fork Soil Conservation District News

by James H. Herring

Planned grazing systems on pastureland grasses such as Weeping Lovegrass are becoming more of interest to cattlemen in this area. Most have some kind of system in which they graze Weeping lovegrass, but some may not be obtaining maximum grazing without hurting their stands of grass.

A system is a grazing unit which is divided into two or more pastures. Then a Planned grazing system is one that is rested from grazing in a planned sequence. The question comes up, what is the purpose of a planned grazing system? These are a few (1) maintain or speed up improvement in grass cover while grazing it (2) improve efficiency of grazing by uniformly using all parts of each grazing unit (3) insure a supply of forage throughout the grazing season and (4) improve or maintain a habitat for wildlife.

Common systems used on grazing Weeping lovegrass are 2, 3, or 4 pastures. Four pastures are usually recommended, since grazing and rest periods more nearly fit Weeping lovegrass growth cycle of about 45 days. By grazing each pasture about 10 days and resting about 30 days allow grazing to stay within this cycle of growth.

Some of the things to make a planned grazing system work include (1) there must be at least two separate grazing units (2) have pastures of equal forage potential (3) grazing and recovery periods should not exceed grass growth cycle (4) supply of water must be available for each grazing area and (5) when forage is grazed, animals must be rotated. If the rotation cycle will not permit proper use of grass then animal numbers need to be adjusted.

Fertilizer is normally needed annually to maintain desirable forage production. For best management of Weeping lovegrass, it is recommended that grazing not begin until grass reaches 8 inch height and move cattle when grass has been grazed to 6 inch height. This is very important to the grass in order for it to keep producing abundant high quality forage a year after year.

Cattlemen that have Weeping lovegrass, bermuda, or other pasture grasses that would like to have some help in planning grazing systems can contact the local Field Office of Soil Conservation Service in Wellington.

Something to think about: Too many miles and not enough gas is like too many cows and not enough grass.

Plan Space in Landscaping Says County Agent

When planning a landscape, remember - - plants are the only living materials of any significance that can be used for structural elements.

County Agent Don Reeves, says that plants cover the ground with a protective surface preventing erosion, moderating temperatures, wind and noise, and screening objectionable sights. While performing all of these functions, plants add beauty and interest through their forms, textures, colors, fruits and flowers.

"A tree's size is important in giving scale to a landscape because trees are usually the only objects of great height and mass which are available for designers," points out Reeves.

No matter how the ground area is organized, it has little meaning until given definition by objects of great height and mass which are available for by objects such as trees which extend upward into space. "A yard is little more than an empty field until its area has been given volume and organization by plants or man-made structures," says the County agent.

Plants are improtant in organizing outdoor space for human living, but their missuse can destroy this organization. Plants, like buildings, occupy, enclose, define and limit space. "Plants are commonly crowded too close together and are monotonously spaced over the land," notes Reeves. "When a multitude of shrubs and trees is scattered about a property, the space is limited and divided into many small bits where the effect of spaciousness is greatly reduced."

A close relationship between plants and people is promoted by using plants as elements of structure. "It is more pleasing for people to pass under, between, through or around plants than to simply look at them from one side," contends Reeves

Group Skiis At Red River

An area group went hunting for deep, powder snow in New Mexico during the week end.

Skiing at Red River over the weekend were Miss Vikki Saunders, Mrs. Barbara Williamson, Mrs. Nita White, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Adams, Mike and Larry, Mrs. Charles Carter and Mrs. Jim Parker of Childress and Mrs. Dortha Coleman of Amarillo.

"The Skiing was great and the weather sunny and warm," they reported.

Black Cats

The superstition that black cats bring bad luck stems from the fact that Satan was believed to appear most often in the guise of a black feline. For this reason witches and black cats are often pictured together.

C-C Officers At WTCC Meet

Don Welch and Dan Hiett, president and vice president of the Collingsworth Chamber of Commerce, attended a work meeting of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in Plainview Tuesday, Feb. 13.

They attended three sessions, beginning with "Retail Trade Stimulation," conducted by E.O. Wedgeworth, C-C manager of Pampa.

"We learned our problems are the same as the others. Larger towns have more problems, and small towns fewer, but they are the same," said Mr. Welch. He added that they found that Wellington's solutions to some of its problems are the same as those recommended.

In "Programs - Priorities - Results," Gene Garrison of Odessa urged the officers to set up their programs in the order of importance, as well as from the standpoint of long-time and short scale priorities.

The final session, "Relations Between Business and Government," featured J. Fike Godfrey of the WTCC staff. Much of his discussion was given over to the lobby bill, which had passed the Texas House and was due to come before the senate.

Our Time to Give Blood Is Only Three Weeks Away

Only three weeks remain until the Red Cross Bloodmobile will be here on its regular collection visit -- Tuesday, March 13.

It is one thing to say this is one of the county's important days of 1973. It is. It is another thing to go down to the community center and give a pint of blood. The latter is what counts.

Collingsworth General Hospital is most pleased with the arrangement by which it receives blood from the Red River Regional Red Cross Blood Center in Wichita Falls. In every way it is better than the old set-up. We are one of 35 hospitals in the area who depend on this center for blood to sustain the lives of our patients.

Our quota is 110 units of blood, and that is based on county population. One part of the agreement Collingsworth General signed with the Red River Regional Center was that they will supply blood to the regional center, during these regularly scheduled visits.

Collingsworth people keep their word. That is what we will be doing March 13 when we give our pint of blood.

Winter Respite

Some people call late spring visitations of cold weather blackberry winter, but what do they call the warm sunny spells that sometimes follow hard upon the groundhog's prognosis of six weeks of misery?

Almost everyone regards these warm days as ominous of exactions to come — rain and renewed cold, perhaps even another spell of the bitter weather that already has knocked twice.

Ask a construction worker how he's making the winter and he'll talk of lost wages — checks down by two thirds in many instances because of the weather. But such people are not inclined to be superstitious about sunny days with temperatures in the 70s. They figure it's only fair.

The rest of us, working indoors and assured of our pay, incline to the out-of-doors whatever our apprehensions about the shortness of the February respite may be. In any case — groundhog or no — nature is rising from the depths of winter and greening on every hand.

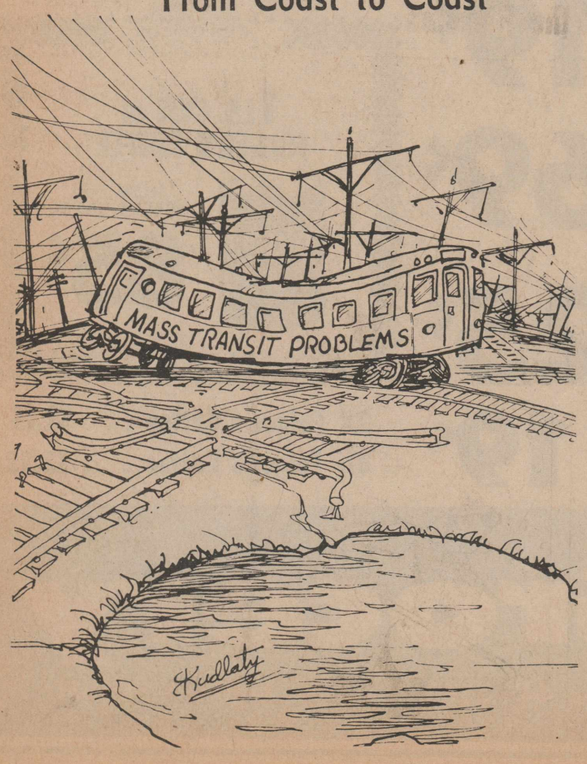

Most evidently, the native grass already has responded to the strengthening sun — and though the trees have not yet broken bud the winter buds are swelling under the urge of the lengthening days.

Humbler growth shows the surest revival signs of all. Onions are well up — and the battered rootstocks of roses have thrown off green wands as long as a man's arm.

The cold will return, but the succession of balmy days has given nature a head start toward its ultimate triumph over its tormenter. Humans, too, know that it is now a matter of waiting for spring instead of enduring the winter. Let the groundhog do his worst.

AUSTIN, Tex. -- First formal step toward rewriting the patchwork 1876 Texas Constitution was finally approved by the legislature and Gov. Dolph Briscoe late last week.

Briscoe lost no time in signing into law legislation authorizing appointment of a 37-member Constitutional Revision Commission when both houses finally agreed on terms.

The Commission, which will study the constitution and make recommendations to the legislature when it convenes as a constitutional convention next year, will go to work within 14 days after it is named. It has only until November 1 to complete its hearings, study and report to lawmakers.

Under the legislation, Briscoe will serve as chairman of the six-member selection committee to pick the study commission. Other selection committee members are Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Atty. Gen. John Hill, House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., Supreme Court Chief Justice Joe Greenhill and Court of Criminal Appeals Presiding Judge John Onion Jr.

Legislators served notice they want the Commission to be fairly and equitably representative of sexes, ethnic, social and economic groups and geographic regions.

Recommendations for membership already are pouring in from interest groups.

A majority vote of the House (76 members minimum) and Senate (at least 16) could reject the selection committee's choices of a commission slate.

A controversial provision of the legislation permits the selection panel to meet in secret (by majority vote) to consider its appointments - - after first holding an open session and later meeting publicly for final, formal action.

SHIELD, LOBBY BILLS ADVANCE -- The proposed "free flow of information law" to protect newsmen from forced disclosure of their confidential sources of information to investigate bodies has passed the House with only a handful of dissenting votes.

At the same time, the House passed (with just 25 dissenting votes) a tough lobby control bill. Both measures are part of the reform package of Speaker Daniel who also backed amendments to the open meetings law and a measure to ease access to governmental documents in the public interest.

Sponsors of the shield law fought off five amendments to weaken protection against source disclosure.

The lobby control act, to be administered by a 12-member ethics commission, would require reports of lobbyists' activities, including gifts or loans of more than $50 in any month of a legislative session to legislators.

Both measures now advance to the Senate, where a somewhat less-enthusiastic reception is anticipated.

TEEN-AGERS ON JURIES -- Under legislation approved by the House without debate, 18-year-olds can serve on all juries.

Representatives further passed a bill to extend until 1975-76 the deadline for school districts to go on the quarter basis.

Another bill advanced by the House to the Senate would make the school district fiscal year conform with the July 1-June 30 federal fiscal year timetable.

COURTS SPEAK -- A Fort Bend County man won reversal of a 35-year sentence for robbery by firearms when the Court of Criminal Appeals held a guilty plea is invalid unless the defendant is advised of consequences of the plea.

State Supreme Court denied a writ of habeas corpus to a Temple man who was jailed after he refused to produce 47 magazines in an obscenity case in which he had been convicted earlier.

Court of Criminal Appeals held circumstantial evidence was sufficient to convict a Harris County man for heroin possession.

A Jefferson County murder conviction was also thrown out by the Court of Criminal Appeals because the defendant was not advised of consequences of pleading "no contest."

ETHICS CONFERENCE CALLED -- Lt. Governor Hobby will invite about 150 representative Texans to discuss governmental ethics during a conference here late next month.

The Lieutenant Governor indicated he wants advice on what legislation to create a state code of ethics should contain. An ethics bill already has been the source of controversy in a House committee.

AG OPINIONS -- Atty. Gen. John Hill advised Governor Briscoe the State cannot intervene to prevent abortion during the first three months of pregnancy. Only during the last three months of pregnancy is state regulation possible under a January 23 U.S. Supreme Court decision, Hill wrote.

In another recent opinion, the Attorney General held that requirements for membership on the Texas Board of Examiners in the Fitting and Dispensing of Hearing Aids include a provision that one member be a licensed physician or surgeon specializing in otolaryngology and another be a trained audiologist -- both actively practicing.

AIR'S CLEANER NOW -- According to the Texas Air Control Board, air pollution has abated a bit.

Samplings over a two-year period indicated a slight improvement, a Board report maintained.

The Board further claimed its program of permitting polluters additional time to clean up the messes they make has been successful in obtaining voluntary compliance with standards.

APPOINTMENTS -- Governor Briscoe recalled Maj. Gen. Thomas S. Bishop as adjutant general.

Bishop, who served 1962-1969 when he was replaced by Maj. Gen. Ross Ayers, awaits Senate confirmation as head of the Texas National Guard.

Briscoe also named Joe D. Carter as chairman of the Texas Water Rights Commission. Carter has served on the Commission since 1961. He was executive secretary of the Texas Water Development Board 1958-1961. He succeeds former Sen. Dorsey Hardeman of San Angelo, who served briefly by choice of former Gov. Preston Smith as chairman, Hardeman remains on the commission. TWRC will open a Houston area office soon.

OIL OUTPUT DECLINE SEEN -- While Texas oil production was at an all time high last year, it didn't keep pace with energy demands, and a decline is forecast for 1973.

A University of Texas "Business Review" article cites early need for a deep-water port to handle energy imports for nuclear power plants. Dependence on foreign imports, writes UT's Dr. Francis B. May in the article, should be temporary. May also suggests tackling problems of shale oil production, increasing on-and-off-shore drilling and solving environmental disadvantages of coal.

SHORT SNORTS -- There were 355 new Texas industrial plant locations last year just 56 short of the 1969 record.

The U.S. Office of Education cleared nearly $2.5 million in grants to aid Texas school desegregation efforts.

Attorney General Hill gave his strong backing to a new deceptive practices-consumer remedy act introduced in the House and Senate.

CROSSROADS REPORT

Dear Editor:

It looks like our quarter-century-old sufferance with the rich uncle syndrome has reached the crisis stage.

Some highly-educated economists are now learning what us peonry has always known: there ain't no purse that doesn't have a bottom.

But the current "dollar crisis" may work in our favor. If the dollar gets cheap enough, the countries we have been wet-nursing may refuse to take any more of the measly things, and we can use them to pay off some of our dear-dollar borrowings.

Deck's DIDACTICS

—by Deskins Wells

DAVID LAWRENCE, one of the greater journalists of this century, died this month after a legendary career that spanned 60 years. Present day readers will remember him as editor and publisher of U.S. News & World Reports and as a newspaper columnist; but he was famous long before he established U.S. News & World Reports in 1948. He knew and wrote about 11 presidents of the United States and was the friend and confidant of many of them. Among working journalists he was respected and revered for his judgement, his insight, his fairness and his devotion to high principles.

WHEN George Horace Lorimer died, the Saturday Evening Post began to fade and after an abortive attempt to change it into something it had never been, the historic magazine failed. Life magazine introduced dynamic photographic journalism to the American scene without too much attention to fairness under the ownership and personal direction of Henry Luce. The magazine began to lose its zing when Luce passed away, and it ceased publication a few years later.

IT WILL be interesting to see what becomes of U.S. News and World Reports now that David Lawrence is gone. He has left the ownership and the management to his well trained associates and employees. The magazine is in excellent financial shape. The question is can the brilliance and technical ability of these people make up for the genius of the man who founded it. It would be a grievous loss to clear thinking in this nation if U.S. News & World Reports ceases publication.

FATHER PATRICK Burke is completing 11 years as pastor of Our Mother of Mercy Church in Wellington this month. A story about his work in Wellington will be found in another part of this issue. Outside of a mention of his schooling, the story does not tell much of his boyhood.

FATHER PAT has a gentle voice and a quiet demeanor; but in his youth he was a devotee of two of the roughest sports in Europe -- soccer and boxing. And he played goal tender in soccer. It is the toughest spot for the goalie plays without padding of any kind as in the case of ice hockey. He was selected to play in the international matches against teams of Ireland, France, Italy and Germany and his teams won all the games in which he participated. In these international events, a youth must play for the country in which he is born. Father Pat says he received his worst ribbings from his own relatives when he played against the Irish teams.

IF YOU think the price of a good steak dinner is high, try eating a super sea food dinner in one of the Gulf cities such as Houston. You can enjoy a good steak in Houston for less than you pay for the equivalent amount of protein in one of the seafood dinners. There are many reasons - one of which is that fishermen of Peru, Japan and Russia are taking bigger amounts of seafood within 12 miles of our shores.

ON OUR trip to Houston we had a variety of experiences with the weather. A business appointment in Austin prevented us from leaving until 11 o'clock in the morning and the mist had turned to heavy sleet before we left. Sleet and slush was two or more inches deep on the highway all the way from Austin past Columbus. We welcomed the opportunity to drive in the ruts made by the multiple wheels of the big trucks that left the pavement nearly bare of anything except moisture. It required four and a half hours to travel the normal three hour drive from Austin to Houston.

WE WOKE to find great flakes of snow falling with two inches on the grass and more than that on the tops of cars. On one of our trips to the hospital, the bus driver needed to go through a residential area near Rice University. It was strange to see the heavy snow on the palm trees and the dark green of the magnolia trees.

AFTER the favorable checkup in Houston, we drove back to Austin in bright sunshine with the roads clear and solid snow beneath the pine trees. The snow geese were out on the nearly bare rice fields and one to four snowmen stood upright in the glow of the winter sun of farm home after farm home.

WE SPENT the night in Austin and came back through the LBJ country in order that my sister Hattie D might see the ranch and the burial grounds of the first President from Texas. Ten great live oak trees stand on the cemetery grounds. The guard estimated that the largest trees might be 200 years old. Beneath the tremendous trees with their knarled branches and green leaves was a thin white blanket of snow. Millions will visit the site in years to come. Few will ever see it as it was that day.

SNOW continued to blanket the valleys and the hills as we drove to Fredericksburg where we stopped for coffee and a roll in the Sunday House. Perhaps I should explain what a "sunday house" was in those days when the region was a German settlement. The people lived on the land; but they had another house in town. They came to town on Saturday to buy supplies and stayed over in the sunday house to attend the Lutheran Church on the Sabbath.

IN THE sunday house in Fredericksburg, the original two story stone building had been used as the front. We signed our names on the register about 11:10 in the morning. The Henry Sullivans and the J.M. Orr's who had been to Corpus Christi, stopped to eat about noon and were astonished to find our names just above theirs. We had been traveling two widely separated regions and our trails crossed at only one place within a matter of minutes. It would take a computer to calculate the odds on that coincidence occurring again.
