Turnabout Voted On Gas Lids

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bowing to the wishes of the Carter administration, the House reversed itself Wednesday and voted to retain price and allocation controls on gasoline through mid-1981.

The 225-189 turnabout vote came amid expressions of dismay by congressional leaders over soaring oil-industry profits.

"It's a disgrace to the nation. It's just an absolute and utter disgrace," House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said of the large, recently-posted third-quarter profits of some major oil companies.

The House action overturned a 191-188 vote taken on Oct. 12 for immediate and full gasoline decontrol — action some critics said might have sent prices at the pump soaring toward $2 a gallon.

Expire In 1981

The vote means the controls, which opponents claim have done little to check spiraling prices at the pump, will stay on until Sept. 30, 1981, when they are set to expire automatically.

Knocking price and allocation controls off gasoline would create serious confusion in the energy marketplace, said Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., who led the reconsidration effort.

He called immediate decontrol "not very well thought out."

But Rep. James A. Courter, R-N.J., author of the decontrol amendment, defended his proposal, claiming it would make gas lines less likely in the future by shucking the government's complex allocation system.

Prices Still Rise

Administration officials, siding with Dingell, contended abrupt gasoline decontrol would hamper the orderly phaseout of energy price controls sought by the president.

Wednesday's House vote leaves intact the president's decision to phase out price lids gradually on U.S.-produced crude oil by 1981. It also has no effect on heating oil or diesel fuel, which are already free from price controls.

The gas-decontrol amendment had been attached to a bill authorizing Department of Energy programs for the fiscal year that began last Oct. 1. After removing the amendment from the bill, the House passed the overall legislation

ANTI-SHAH DEMONSTRATORS — While the deposed Shah of Iran underwent gall bladder and exploratory surgery for cancer Wednesday demonstrators outside the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center chanted "Death to the Shah!" and carried signs that read "A peaceful death is too good for the Shah!" (AP Laserphoto)

Surgery On Shah Called Successful

Gall Bladder Removed; Cancer Eyed

NEW YORK (AP) — Surgeons removed the shah of Iran's gall bladder Wednesday and checked to see if his long-standing cancer of the lymph glands had worsened. A spokesman for the deposed ruler said of the surgery, "recovery without complications is anticipated."

Outside his East Side hospital, as Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi went under the knife, about 150 demonstrators chanted "Death to the shah!" and waved banners that read, "A peaceful death is too good for the shah!"

The spokesman for Pahlavi, Robert Armao, said following the 2½-hour surgery that the shah would be hospitalized for two to three weeks.

Has Gland Cancer

Armao added that Pahlavi had suffered from lymphoma, or lymph gland cancer, for about six years, but that recently an intermittent jaundice had signaled that something was wrong with the gall bladder or the bile duct leading from the liver.

"He did not wish it to be known," Armao added of the lymphoma.

The demonstrators, mostly men, were kept behind police lines and their chanting and shouting was out of earshot of Pahlavi and members of his family and retinue.

By contrast, inside New York Hospital-Cornell Medical center, four Iranian women in American dress kept a prayer vigil for the shah. Said one of them, "The royal family is alone and I just wanted to lend my support."

Team Of Physicians

The operation was begun during the morning with Dr. Benjain Kean,personal physician of the former Iranian ruler, joining a team of U.S. physicians.

Lymph glands are found throughout the body, and lymphoma takes various forms. Armao said that "analysis of the lymphoma is in progress."

The surgeons found stones in the shah's gall bladder and it was removed. A stone also was removed from the common duct, the main tube carrying bile from the liver to the small intestine, as part of the body's digestive system.

The operation was completed shortly before noon and the shah was taken to a recovery room, according to a report relayed to Armao.

"He is far from breathing his last breath, but obviously he is an ill man," Armao said before the operation.

Pahlavi was toppled from his Peacock Throne last January by the revolutionary forces of the Ayatollah Khomeini. He since has been sentenced to death by a revolutionary court in Iran and a $135,000 price was put on his head.

The shah has provided his own guards, augmented by security forces from the hospital. He and his retinue occupy three $300-a-day rooms on the 17th floor.

Wife In Hospital

With the family in the midtown East Side residence were the shah's youngest son and daughters, Prince Ali Reza, 13, and Princesses Faranhza and Leila, 9.

The shah's eldest son, Prince Reza Pahlavi, 19, is a student at Williams College in Williamstown, Mass. A spokesman said he plans to visit his father during a school vacation that begins Friday — the shah's 60th birthday.

A source close to the elder Pahlavi said his conditon had worsened about two weeks ago, leading to the decision to fly him here for the operation.

The U.S. State Department cleared him for the trip here, but only as long as he remains hospitalized.

"We made it clear that he had to be here for strictly medical purposes. There could be no sign of political activity on his part, and he would be required to be hospitalized," the State Department said.

There were published reports that banker David Rockefeller had received word of the shah's deteriorating condition from an American doctor who examined him in Mexico and that Rockefeller interceded on his behalf with the State department.

A spokesman for the Rockefeller family said there would be no comment on the reports.

U.S. officials were depicted as fearful of reprisals against Americans living in Iran if the Khomeini regime believed the shah was being given legal residence here.

In Moscow, the Soviet News ageny, Tass, made no mention of the shah's illness. But it reported that the Foreign Ministry of Iran officially warned the United States that the shah's passport was legally invalid and that issuing him a visa "would be regarded as an unfriendly act toward Iran and would adversely affect its relations with the U.S.A."

Following his flight from Iran in January, Pahlavi was hard-pressed to find a haven. He stayed briefly in Egypt, Morocco and the Bahamas before gaining refuge in Mexico last June.

The Supermarket Shopper

NewColumn Gives Food Price Tips

DO YOU think you can trim your grocery bill by $1,200 a year despite rising food prices?

In a new column being started in your A-J today as a public service, Sloane will reveal his secret weapons for fighting food price inflation in the "Supermarket Shopper," a twice-weekly column that will appear every Thursday and Sunday.

Like most consumers, — who appeared on the "Today" show this morning — Sloane used to save only a few dollars a week with the coupons he stuffed haphazardly into a shoe box.

But he figured there had to be a better way. Once he started organizing the scraps of paper into categories, he found he could save more than 40 percent on a product by pairing a cents-off coupon with a cash-refund offer.

This "double play" was the first of many money-saving techniques Sloane has shared with the public as founder of the American Coupon Club.

A native of Long Island, N.Y., Sloane received his law degree in 1964 from New York University. He headed his own marketing and sales consulting firm from 1971 to 1976, leaving to become president of Dollar Rent-A-Car and, later, vice president of Kenneth D. Laub and Co. Sloane is past director of the New York Criminal and Civil Courts Bar Association.

By RAY WESTBROOK
A-J Business Editor

THE FEDERAL Reserve Board's current monetary policy, which is proving to be bitter medicine to the economy in terms of higher interest rates and a corresponding reduction in consumer spending, may foreshadow even sterner measures in the form of wage and price controls, warns the head of the Federal Reserve Bank in Dallas.

Ernest T. Baughman says the probability that the nation will experience wage and price controls "will be very much increased" if the Federal Reserve Board's present program of tighter money doesn't show some evidence of effectiveness.

Baughman was in Lubbock Wednesday to address a luncheon meeting of Federal Reserve member banks here. At a press conference following the meeting, Baughman said that if the present monetary and fiscal policies are successful, there will be no need to resort to such controls.

Public Demand Seen

"If we can't make the monetary and fiscal policies work, then it seems to me that the political response will likely be for the elected officials to respond to the demands of the population to lay on wage and price controls."

Baughman does not encourage that scenario. "Wage and price controls are rather unsatisfactory ways of handling this problem, primarily because they lack the capacity to handle the great variety of changes which must inevitably take place in the economy.

"If you have some kind of price control program, you have to have some kind of rationing program along with it. A rationing program which encompasses very many products or services is just a tremendously big, expensive, complicated and usually impossible-to-manage type of program."

Difficult To Administer

Baughman indicated that just as the rationing side of the coin is very difficult to administer, with wage controls there normally is a larger degree of job shifting, resulting in a net loss of efficiency.

He added, however, "Wage and price controls may well be on the horizon."

Baughman, while noting that the federal government is gradually moving in the direction of a lesser deficit in the federal budget, still attributes to the government a significant share of responsibility for inflation.

He said the federal budget deficit has become smaller in the past several

Cambodian Aid Hiked By Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter committed the United States government Wednesday to providing $69 million in aid to Cambodia in an effort to avert "a tragedy of genocidal proportion."

Carter's proposal came little more than an hour after Sen. Edward M. Kennedy criticized the administration for moving too slowly to aid millions of Cambodians who face starvation.

The president's announcement and Kennedy's criticism followed approval by the House Foreign Affairs Committee of a bill authorizing the expenditure of $30 million to aid the Cambodians. Carter included that $30 million in the program he announced.

Carter, equating the famine in Cambodia with the World War II Holocaust, announced his plans in the White House press room, telling reporters:

"We now face once again the prospect of avoidable death. We must act swiftly to save the men, women and children who are our brothers and sisters in God's family."

In addition to the $30 million approved by the House committee, the president's program for aid over the next year includes $3 million in existing refugee aid, $20 million in commodities under the Food for Peace program, $7 million that he promised last week and $9 million in refugee funds to be sent to Thailand where Cambodian refugees are gathered.

Of the total aid package, $32 million is new funding not previously announced: the Food for Peace contribution, the $3 million in refugee aid and the aid to Thailand, a White House official said.

Carter said he was certain of getting congressional approval for the program. "We will do our share," he told a group of religious leaders before his announcement. "I can be sure Congress will go along with our request."

Meanwhile, three U.S. senators visited Phnom Penh on Wednesday and said only final Cambodian approval is needed to begin a massive aid effort.

Algeria Increases Crude Oil Price

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Algeria announced on Wednesday an increase of $2.77 per barrel of crude oil, making it the sixth member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to boost prices in recent weeks.

The official Algerian news agency said the price would go from the OPEC ceiling of $23.50 a barrel to $26.27, effective immediately, "bringing Algerian crude oil into line with increases announced by other Mediterranean exporters."

It said if Sonatrach, the state oil monopoly, had not raised the prices above the level set by the 13-member OPEC in June, Algeria would have faced a serious loss of earnings.

Venezuela, Iran, Iraq, Libya and Kuwait boosted their prices earlier, and Algeria's increase matches the jump set by Libya.

Spending Practices At Tech Defended

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

TEXAS GOV. Bill Clements has told state agencies, including higher education institutions, to bite the bullet.

It means that over the next two years Texas Tech University probably will lose 10 percent of its non-administrative, non-faculty employees, such as clerical workers.

It also means Tech will be required to establish well-defined goals for the university and will have to vigorously justify small classes, number of faculty, expenditure of state-appropriated money, research and graduate studies.

Governor Charges "Waste"

In a news conference following the first meeting of a governor-appointed committee to study management effectiveness in higher education, Clements called state colleges and universities the "greatest waste" among all state agencies.

He cited three specific causes as "explosion of graduate degrees, excess faculties, too small classes."

Tech interim president Dr. Lawrence Graves said in response to Clements'action, "It is logical for taxpayers to be concerned. But I don't believe Texas Tech is wasteful to an excessive degree, although any human organization can find ways to cut back."

Tech Efficiency Stressed

Regent Don Workman of Lubbock echoed those sentiments saying, "Tech is not completely innocent in every respect, such as small classes, but from the figures I see, Tech is one of the most efficient universities in the state."

Workman cited two studies within the last five years on classroom space efficiency and a study of teaching classloads as evidence of Tech's watch over its effectiveness and noted, "We didn't just start when Gov. Clements made his criticism."

Although the governor expressed concern over an "explosion of graduate degrees," Tech's vice president for research and graduate studies, Dr. J. Knox Jones Jr., said it is research activity that provides national recognition of a university by the scholarly community and noted that much research is done by graduate professors and students.

Hard To Price

"There's no way to put a cost effectiveness factor on graduate studies. What's it worth to train the next Albert Einstein?" Knox asked.

Critics of graduate school growth say students are being over-educated for the job market and cite examples of Ph.D. holders finding no jobs in their fields and turning to unskilled labor positions for employment.

But Jones said more than 95 percent of the Ph.D.s who graduated from Tech in the last five years have found employment in their appropriate fields.

He attributed the high employment rate to three factors — a strong graduate program, job market counseling and a broad education.

"We try to be very candid with prospective students concerning employment possibilities," Knox said. "We train students for a broad spectrum of employment opportunities." He said more than half stay in Texas, with about 50 percent of those going into higher education positions and about 50 percent taking government and industry positions.

Doctor Bills Kept High By AMA, Ruling Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Medical Association has kept doctors' bills high by campaigning against competition among physicians, the Federal Trade Commission ruled Wednesday.

The FTC, in a decision likely to be appealed to the federal courts, said the AMA illegally restrained competition among its 200,000 members, a majority of American physicians.

It ordered the AMA to end "ethical" restrictions on member doctors ruling out advertising and other ways of attracting patients through low fees.

"Consumers lack access to fee and other information necessary to make an informed choice of a physician," the decision by Commissioner David A. Clanton said. "Information obtained by word-of-mouth does not fill this need."

Clanton said it is impossible to say how much extra Americans pay physicians because of the AMA actions, "but we are convinced that the record in this case supports a finding of substantial injury."

The AMA maintained in a statement that "The AMA Principles of Medical Ethics do not proscribe advertising but they do prohibit false and misleading advertising that may adversely affect quality care to patients."

It added: "We have not had time to study the entire ruling. But to the extent that the order continues to prevent medical societies from taking action against deceptive or other unethical practices that may harm or mislead patients the AMA will ask the Court of Appeals to reverse the order."

Newton N. Minow, an attorney representing the AMA, also said in the statement that it was "pleased that the commission has endorsed the position the association has taken throughout the case, that the protession and the public are well served with quality care if medical societies are involved in seeing that information that is advertised is truthful and non-deceptive."

The FTC ordered the AMA to stop restricting its members from soliciting patients by advertising or other means. However, the AMA will still be allowed

State Rests Case Vs. 18-Year-Old

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A statement made in August by accused aggravated robber Michael Madden in which Madden admits robbing a 77-year-old Lubbock man was read Wednesday to a 237th District Court jury.

After questioning the police officer, Det. J.R. Ashmore, who took the statement and introduced the document into evidence, Assistant Criminal District Attorney Clint Averitte rested the state's case against the 18-year-old Madden.

Madden is accused of threatening O.C. Bain with a knife and taking $175 cash from the elderly businessman on Aug. 16.

According to the statement Madden made Aug. 20 following his arrest, Bain was deemed an easy target for a robbery because he never made any reports to the police. The statement adds that about three days before the robbery, the defendant talked with a 16-year-old Lubbock youth about robbing Bain.

Madden's statement said that after taking Bain's cash at knifepoint, the duo ran from the E. 50th Street residence where the used furniture salesman was robbed, and divided the $175.

Bain was the first witness to testify Wednesday and told the jury he went to 507 E. 50th St. Aug. 16 because his secretary had received a call from a man who wanted to sell a stove and refrigerator.

He said he was met at the curb by a young white man wearing dark sunglasses and let inside the house. The man, Bain said, led him to an unlighted garage area, where the appliances were supposed to be, and then told Bain, "Give me your money."

Bain said he turned to look at the young man and then heard another voice behind him. When he looked over his shoulder, Bain testified, he saw a masked man holding a butcher knife less than a foot from Bain's head and neck.

He said the man wearing sunglasses then calmly took the cash from Bain's wallet, handed the wallet back to the victim and told him, "You better not (call the police). We know where you live . . ."

Under cross-examination by Madden's attorney Mark Hall, however, Bain said he could not positively identify either bandit. He added that he did not see the man wearing the sunglasses with any weapon, although in the statement Madden told officers he and the other teenager both had butcher knives.

But on re-direct examination, Bain said he had seen the defendant several times before the robbery.

Also testifying during the opening day of the trial were patrolman Danny Furlow, who made the initial investigation of the robbery, and two other detectives.

Detectives J.D. Ussery and Lloyd Brown accompanied Ashmore to Madden's 2616-B Ave. K residence Aug. 20 to execute a warrant for Madden's arrest.

Brown was stationed at the back door of the house while Ashmore and Ussery knocked on the front door. Ussery told the panel a woman looked out the front door window and hesitated a few moments before allowing the officers to enter. Both detectives said when they entered the house, they saw Brown coming in the back door with Madden.

Brown said that after Ussery knocked on the front door, the defendant ran through the back door, but the police officer grabbed the collar of the defendant's jacket and brought him back inside the house.

Treasury Lifts Curb On Possible Chrysler Loan

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) — The U.S. Treasury has dropped its $750 million ceiling on aid to Chrysler Corp., the head of the United Auto Workers union said Wednesday.

"The Treasury Department will not be going in with any specific amount when it introduces legislation to aid Chrysler," UAW President Douglas A. Fraser said.

"I think that is much better," he said.

Chrysler originally asked for $1.2 billion in federal loan guarantees. Under pressure from Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, the company reduced its request to $750 million.

Fraser spoke with reporters before resuming contract talks with the battered No. 3 automaker less than 24 hours before today's noon deadline for reaching a new contract.

He had just returned from a trip to Washington, where he met with Vice President Walter Mondale and Miller at the vice president's home.

Fraser was particularly concerned that the lower figure sought by Chrysler might mean the company would have to sell profitable operations such as its gear plant in Syracuse, N.Y., and electronics plant in Huntsville, Ala.

"We told them it would be shortsighted to insist, if they were going to insist, on selling" the plants that would provide "a solid foundation for the future," Fraser said.

"I can't say they agreed with that. I think Miller advanced some arguments that there might be some advantages (in selling the plants)."

The UAW president said he expected the Treasury's bill to be introduced possibly as early as next week. Another bill was introduced Wednesday by Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., which would leave the specific amount up to a board in the executive branch.

Fraser said it was possible that Congress might be asked to set the amount within broad limits or leave the amount up to the executive branch as Riegle's bill would do.

The union chief also met with several senators, some of whom expressed concern that $750 million would not be enough for Chrysler.

Coalition Reaches Agreement Against Male-Female Wage Gap

WASHINGTON (AP) — Should a woman librarian be paid as much as a male liquor store clerk? A female secretary as much as a male groundskeeper?

"Yes," is the thunderous answer from a coalition of labor, government and women's groups that met here Wednesday.

They are trying to promote an idea that would halt a growing wage gap between men and women, and overhaul the way employers set wages.

"We're talking about a major restructuring of the pay system in the United States," said Susan Ross, a law professor at Georgetown University.

"I do believe this is the issue of the 1980s. This is a true sleeping giant," declared Eleanor Holmes Norton, head of the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

The idea being brainstormed by 200 conference participants is known as "Equal Pay for Work of Comparable Value." What it means is that employers should pay the same wages for different jobs if both require equal experience, training, responsibility, skill and energy.

Under that principle, a company might find that its low-paid female secretary should receive the same pay as its high-paid male truck driver, or that a nurse would earn at least as much as a painter.

Advocates say that is the only way to end rampant sex discrimination by employers who intentionally channel women into a few occupations, such as clerks, secretaries, librarians, nurses and school teachers, and then pay them unfairly low wages.

"Women are trapped in female occupational ghettos," charged Frances Hunter, an economist from Princeton University.

Miss Norton gave three examples of "pay inequity" by three employers: a female computer operator making less than a male mechanic, a librarian paid less than a liquor store clerk and a female secretary paid less than a male groundskeeper.

"It's hard to believe these female jobs are inherently worth less than the male jobs," she said.

Employers have assailed "comparable value" as a radical idea that compares apples and oranges and ignores the free market laws of supply and demand. The idea is inflationary and would cause shock waves in every personnel office in the nation, they say.

Several groups of women, charging sex discrimination under the Civil Rights Act, have sued to win pay increases based on "comparable value."

The courts have rejected the arguments, echoing employer concerns that the women are inviting an economic upheaval.

"I believe the economy would be able to absorb the kind of changes that the courts might order," Miss Norton said.

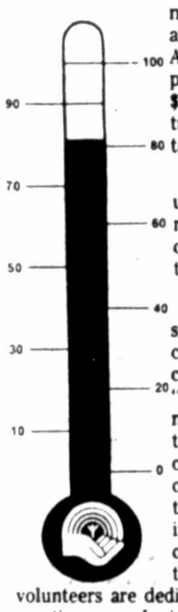

She said she hoped a case could reach the Supreme Court within a few years to test her agency's contention that the "work of comparable value" principle is covered by the Civil Rights Act.

So far, the courts have only ruled in favor of women who claimed they were paid less for doing the same work as men. Those rulings are based on the Equal Pay Act, which says a manufacturer cannot pay a male gidget moulder more than a female gidget moulder.

But the act says nothing about whether the manufacturer can pay a male janitor more than a female executive secretary.

United Way Drive Approaching Goal

Lubbock's United Way campaign has reached 81 percent of its $1,803,752 goal, it was announced at the community drive's third report meeting Wednesday at the Civic Center.

At the end of the report, totals showed $1,469,500 has been turned in by volunteer workers.

"We feel we're on schedule with the campaign," said chairman Joe Price. "Naturally, we'd be most happy to have the percentage mark closer to the 100 percent mark going into the last report meeting on Nov. 2, but the campaign cabinet, team captains and volunteers are dedicated to making that meeting a real victory meeting and I know we will do it."

A number of employee groups turned in final reports, which helped move up the goal percentage. Among those were Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. and Communications Workers of America, Local 12203, which gave a visual report with a mock-up touch-tone dial.

Also prominent in successful reports were a number of Lubbock public schools. Although no organized student campaigns are held, some students chose to give to the campaign and were singled out at today's meeting. Special recognition went to O.L. Slaton and Evans junior high students. The latter raised $785.07 selling paper links to form chains for room decorations. The links sold for one cent each.

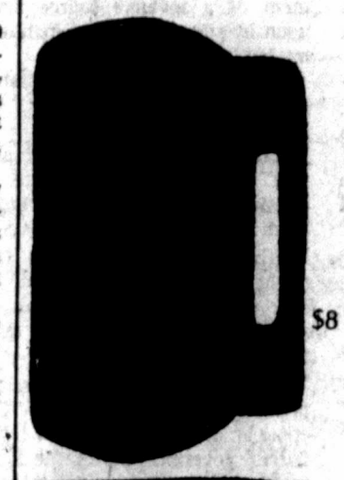

Division reports submitted at Wednesday's meeting to boost the drive include Pacesetter with $436,265 for 100 percent of its goal; Loaned Executive for $512,331 for 74 percent of its goal; Advance Gifts for $102,958 for 90 percent; Employee with $23,522 for 46 percent; and Professional with $109,650 for 76 percent.

Other group reports include the Federal divsion with $80,574 for 89 percent; the State division with $8,875 for 60 percent; City with $38,404 for 118 percent; Schools with $74,184 for 75 percent; Texas Tech with $37,332 for 75 percent; Metro with $15,748 for 38 percent; Business with $17,155 for 64 percent; and Residential with $12,502 for 83 percent.

PLANE CRASH PROBED

SONORA (AP) — Federal authorities are trying to determine why a plane crashed shortly after it took off from Sutton County Airport, killing three Angelo State University students. Beverly Borren, 19, of Imperial; Jennifer Cooke, 20, of Odessa, and Michael J. Stuckey, 20, of Peabody, Kan., died and the 20-year-old pilot, Todd David Carlisle, was injured.

AN EDITORIAL:

Let's Have No More Of VAT

ENACTMENT OF a value added tax, or VAT, as proposed this week by Al Ullman, D-Ore., House Ways and Means chairman, is a step in the wrong direction if Ullman is serious about trying to score big points with the folks back home.

Hearings on his proposal, which would increase almost all retail prices by 10 percent, will begin early next month. Ullman and his strong ally, Senate Finance Committee chairman Russell Long, D-La., plan to push for action on the controversial measure next year.

There is no universal definition of value added tax because of the differing views on how it should be structured and, more fundamentally, what it should be.

Over-simplified, VAT is a form of sales tax which is computed at each step of manufacture on the value that is added to the product. In the end, the consumer pays the tax in the form of higher prices.

THE VAT CONCEPT has been discussed for many years, and it has spawned numerous arguments. Opponents consistently point out these potential disadvantages, however:

* A widely varying impact on taxpayers as it substitutes for existing taxes;
* Its potential as an uncontrollable "money machine" as an additional and hidden tax;
* It is regressive in its approach to so-called reform of the traditional tax structure;
* Its lack of reinforcement of prevailing U.S. export policy;
* Its preemption by the federal government of a revenue source heavily relied upon by states and municipalities; and, last but not least;
* The significant administrative difficulties and costs it presents.

THE DISCUSSION of VAT as a "substitute" revenue source, therefore, raises more questions than it answers. Primarily among them:

Who really pays existing taxes which might be reduced or repealed? Who would bear the burden of VAT? How would VAT affect prices compared to the effects of current taxes?

One very troublesome possibility, more precisely, probability, is that VAT might become an additional source of revenue to the federal government over the long term, no matter what the original intention as expressed by Mr. Ullman.

Substituting VAT for a portion of an existing tax does not makes taxes any lighter, it only spreads them around a bit differently and, as deposed Treasury Sec. Michael Blumenthal pointed out earlier, "reduces their visibility."

As poet Gertrude Stein could have said, a tax is a tax is a tax. And payment in the end is always extracted from the same source—the public

AN EDITORIAL:

Feds Butt Into Sears Suit

FEDERAL BUREAUCRATS are not likely to win outright their job discrimination suit against the nation's largest retailing chain but they probably will accomplish their purpose anyway.

That purpose appears to be to so harass and intimidate the business community that sex and race, rather than ability, will determine who gets a job and who gets promoted.

If the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission can drag out its case against Sears, Roebuck and Co. long enough, it can scare hundreds of smaller employers into following racial and sexual quotas (or "guidelines") unquestioningly.

IT'S UNLIKELY that a business or industry is left in the land that doesn't already go out of its way to recruit and promote qualified women and racial minorities.

Affirmative action is the watchword of the day. To the point that it breaks down job barriers and prejudices to give women and minorities true equal opportunities, this approach is applauded and accepted.

Bureaucrats and activist organizers, though, are incapable of conceding that ability counts, too. All they look at are the numbers; if a company's work force, especially its supervisory staff, remains over-weighted with white males, prejudice is assumed.

In the case of Sears, the company says that 20 percent of its employes are minorities and that, among its "officials and managers," 10 percent are minorities and 36 percent are women.

The company claims, and offers supporting evidence, to be one of the nation's most progressive in recruiting minorities and preparing them for advancement.

BUREAUCRATS COUNTER, and offer their own supporting evidence, that the company has not done enough. Indeed, it would be unlikely in a company with 400,000 employes if there were not more than a few who think they've been paid less or passed over for promotion because of their race or sex.

For the government to interest itself, though, a company's personnel practices should be shot-through with bias and the EEOC indeed insists that such is the situation at Sears.

With the taxpayers footing the bill, the bureaucracy has been camped on the chain's doorstep for most of the last decade and the case could drag on in the courts for years.

Meanwhile, the company's management must defend itself against the bureaucracy while trying to run the store without too much diversion of attention.

Few companies have the resources to keep up such a battle, which is the message the bureaucracy hopes to send: "Do it our way, or else."

M. STANTON EVANS:

Patterns Of Deception Traced To Oval Office

WASHINGTON—Deception has always been a major factor in dealings among nations, but the Carter administration is lifting the practice to new heights.

This is an administration, it should be recalled, that came to power on the strength of promises concerning honesty and openness in government.

Yet its 30-odd months in office have equaled or surpassed existing records for misleading statements in the realm of foreign policy.

Panama, Red trade, and the recent calamity in Nicaragua are just a few examples that have been cited in this space.

The distinguishing feature in this pattern of deception is that the people being misled are not foreign adversaries, but the American public.

IN THE typical case—Panama or the SALT accords—the U.S. voter is given certain assurances concerning some proposed initiative of the Carter regime. But once the policy is in place, or subjected to closer scrutiny, it turns out the assurance is mistaken.

A recent example is President Carter's abrogation of our mutual defense treaty with Taiwan—the action being challenged in the courts, so far successfully, by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

The attempted termination of this treaty stirred widespread misgivings, not only because of its intrinsic importance, but because it was feared a precedent was in the making.

We have more than 50 other treaties and agreements with Taiwan, and if these were shredded in similar fashion the impact on Free China could be disastrous.

WHEN THIS possibility was mentioned in the Taiwan debate, administration spokesmen were emphatic in denying that any such thing could or would happen.

What was in prospect, they said, was only the abrogation of the defense treaty, and nothing more. No precedent was being established. The other agreements would remain intact. This was stated over and over again by administration spokesmen.

In February, Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, "we have moved to assure that, with the exception of the mutual defense treaty and related agreements, our many treaties and agreements with Taiwan—there are more than 55 in all—will remain in force."

CHRISTOPHER WENT so far as to emphasize certain agreements with Taiwan that would remain intact.

He referred to the fact that, under the administration's proposed new policy, Taiwan would be treated as "a valid treaty partner for the purpose of important treaties, such as aviation arrangements, nuclear supply arrangements, which now exist."

Given these elaborate assurances, imagine the surprise of various senators and congressmen the other day when they discovered that the Carter regime was setting out to do precisely what it said it wouldn't—severing other arrangements with Taiwan.

To date, the administration has made no effort to reconcile the obvious conflict between this action and its previous statements on the subject.

No explanation of the previous false assurances was provided. Sen. Goldwater and other lawmakers, however, are setting out to find one.

He Would Study Alternate Ideas On 'Closed Universe'

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

Regarding the "Furor At Tech" in Sunday's paper (Oct. 7, 1979), page one, I know nothing of the group or groups involved, but as one who holds a graduate degree from a state university, I can see the problem.

I have often wished that something could be done to open up the classroom to discussion of options as to the origin of the universe. The "closed universe" theory is the big thing just now and in my experience this assumption is presented as fact with little chance given an alternative view.

"Non-believers" in the current presuppositions cannot enter the classroom to present all the factors involved. It is not surprising that under these conditions, many of the students accept unchallenged the "closed universe" view of things.

I do not favor the entrance of religious groups into the classroom but I do favor the open debate of this thing among the professors themselves.

I believe that religious explanations should be challenged (as they are being challenged) and I also believe that the presuppositions of the "closed universe" view should be challenged as well (as they are not being challenged now).

It hardly seems fair for this "closed" situation to exist in this country which has prided itself on free speech and the free interchange of ideas.

I take no part in the current "furor" for I know nothing about it, but it does seem that both sides (and more sides if they exist) should be presented regularly and fairly to the students if we are to realize our dream of academic freedom.

Man Has Choice To Make Of Two Systems, He Says

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

The matter of religion and the public schools in America is an issue whose time for open discussion has come.

Everyone is religious and every system and item of instruction is based on one or a combination of "faith-structures." Therefore, either:

No. 1. Man and the universe are orderly and moral because of an infinite personal Creator who made man in His image in a perfect world; and afterwards man's moral rebellion brought about suffering, death and disorder as the Bible affirms; and therefore men worship the Creator, build our investigation of our orderly world and conduct our lives in a moral manner based on respect, fear and/or love for Him. Or:

No. 2. Man and the universe are amoral molecular complexities functioning with no external standard and everything is occurring as it always has and always will; and our "emotions," "personality" and meaning are merely chemical reactions, thus morality, education and playing religious games are farces; our only "gods" are time, chance and something we deem upward development.

Each of us must begin making some basic personal decisions about which system is true (for one of these opposing systems must be true) and which system we want to be the foundation for our educational system.

Race Seen As No Measure For Character, Ability

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

In the Sunday, Oct. 7, edition, A-J correspondent Marilyn Holmes wrote an article titled "Passing Through" Reverse Prejudice. This was on page 12-E.

She spoke of the Anglo "Punk" Cop, the driver glaring at her accusingly (although she stated in the third paragraph that it was a dark rainy night). I suppose she was referring to an Anglo driver.

Then she states later on in her article that she hated Anglos. She then gives all the praise to Mexican Americans and Blacks.

We have many Mexican Americans working with us. Some are good employes and some are poor—the same is true of the Anglos.

Residents Make Plea For Courtesy On Driveway Use

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

If at all possible we hope you can print our letter. We live on a corner across from Evans Junior High School. Due to traffic congestion we went to a great deal of expense to put in a circle drive to ease our problem of getting in and out during school hours.

However, there are numerous parents out there who must feel we put it in expressly for their convenience. Not only do they use it to simply drive through and turn around, but some of them use it as a dropping off point for their children.

This is private property these people are trespassing on and we have just about reached our tolerance level. We're hoping through this communication we will reach the majority of them and they will discontinue this practice.

Here's a little food for thought:

Why is our driveway used so much by Lubbock's population? We don't expect to use their cars as public transportation!

Kennedy Bill Blow At FBI, Fight On Crime, He Says

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

A word to let you know how much I appreciated your editorial concerning the Kennedy bill, SB 1612, and HR 5030.

This bill, if passed, would paralyze the FBI and give the crime syndicates in this land and this city the biggest breaks they have ever had in this country. Crime this year is well up past the 10 percent mark over last year.

All citizens interested in this should let Congress know how they feel about the Kennedy legislation. This should show the citizens just what kind of President he would be if elected.

Reader Says Freeways Are Passe, Would Use Bikes

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

Mayor Dirk West has announced to the press that Lubbock has a "horrendous" traffic problem. He also suggested that the only solution is to build freeways to overcome the horizontal traffic system.

I suggest that Mayor West, who has done a fine job of bringing order to the driving jungle known as Lubbock, has here confused the issue. To suggest that the city has a major traffic problem is to misuse that term. Anyone who has lived in Houston, Los Angeles or any other major metropolis knows that this city has traffic inconvenience but not traffic chaos.

There is hardly any point in the city which is not within reach from any other point within 20 minutes. It may be inconvenient for those living south of the Loop to drive into town, but this difficulty is a result of poor judgment in locating a home.

There are many fine lots in the Northeast section of town much closer to downtown. I hardly think the city should provide freeways to accommodate the suburban sprawl to the southwest.

The mayor said Lubbock is 20 years behind the times because we have no freeways. Those citizens who have lived in huge urban centers know that freeways are passe. They were built to provide easy center city access for white, middle class suburbanites.

This convenience was paid for by uprooting neighborhoods, creating eyesores, and generating more traffic being funneled into fewer areas. Instead of relieving traffic congestion, the freeway created additional problems by attracting more automobiles into an already crowded area.

In this day and age the last thing Lubbock needs is a freeway. We should be happy that our grid system discourages automobile traffic because such means of transportation has a limited future. Instead of making it easy for the automobile to destroy the integrity of the city we should be working to develop alternate modes of urban mobility.

A little muscle power applied to a 10-speed bike pays big dividends in better health, lower gas bills, less noise and pollution. We should try it sometime.

JAY HARRIS:

The Iran Story...

THE STORY that is Iran unfolded on more than one front this week...

In one instance, a note of concern was injected with the report that Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, 59, is in New York City for medical tests. One news report said the former Iranian ruler is suffering from cancer.

Abroad, there are increasing signs that the reign of terror by the Ayatollah Khomeini, who succeeded the Shah, is running into increasing criticism and opposition. The next step in the beleaguered nation which has undergone a bloodbath in the unholy name of Islam, may be open revolution.

Who or what would succeed the fanatical religious dictator, if a revolt were successful, no one knows. Perhaps a more moderate group of clergymen, a Marxist-backed labor czar or an eventual return to some sort of constitutional monarchy or secular democracy.

THE LATTER is the hope and dream of a new organization which has been formed in the United States in recent weeks.

Known as the Iran Freedom Foundation, with headquarters in Bethesda, Md., the new group has as its nucleus a number of Iranian exiles. Its stated purpose is to serve as a "center of resistance to the Khomeini government and to bring to power a secular Democracy in Iran."

Ali Tabatabai, a former official of the Iranian Embassy in Washington under the Shah, said that he is a member of an advisory council which announced the establishment of the Iran Freedom Foundation.

The Foundation's manifesto says, "The fundamental aim is the creation of a secular Democracy in Iran..." It added, "Religion should not be used as a system of government or to transform revolutionary ideals into a dogmatic cult...

"We condemn the autocratic corruption and repression of former Iranian governments, but we find equally abhorrent the theocratic practices of the current system of misrule in Iran," the manifesto continued.

U.S. STATE Department officials say the Iran Freedom Foundation is the first formally organized opposition group in the United States.

It is estimated that there may be 200,000 or more Iranian expatriates in the U.S., many of whom are now opposed to the Ayatollah's dictatorial regime.

Tabatabai, who was the Iranian Embassy's press counselor until it was taken over by followers of the Ayatollah Khomeini earlier this year, said the group "would seek support from as many Iranians in the U.S. and elsewhere as possible, as well as our friends."

"Religion serves as a beacon for brotherhood," a statement issued by the Foundation said, "as a pillar for the sanctity of life, and property and as a guarantee of personal freedom. It must not, as we have witnessed recently in Iran, be employed as an instrument of inquisition, vengeance and suppression of thought."

THE FOUNDATION not only will seek rank and file backing, it will draw on support from such persons as Shapour Bakhtiar, the interim prime minister who took over when the Shah first left Iran and who himself eventually had to go into hiding to escape.

Bakhtiar later surfaced in Paris and has publicly condemned Khomeini's quickie trials and midnight justice which has claimed more than 500 persons in what the new Foundation termed Khomeini's "rooftop slaughterhouse."

Although anti-Khomeini newspapers have appeared in the U.S., the new Iran Freedom Foundation is the first formal movement organized outside Iran's turbulent borders.

In that respect, it is obvious that Khomeini is having his problems in Teheran and elsewhere in the oil rich kingdom. Not only are the pipelines being blown up and oil production slowly strangled, but factions within the government are openly challenging Khomeini's insatiable thirst for more and more power.

THE LATEST incident involves the Moslem fanatic's demands that he be given full authority to name the armed forces chiefs, declare war and veto presidential candidates.

The Shah at the height of his reign at least gave Parliament a consenting and advisory voice.

When several of Khomeini's top officials bridled at the provision in the new constitution, the bearded despot berated "the renegades who are splitting up the revolutionary regime" and warned "our nation must wake up..."

The Financial Times of London reported this week that: "The indications...are that rivalries around the Ayatollah Khomeini may well be developing into a full-scale power struggle..."

IT SO HAPPENS that we have been close to the Iranian tragedy almost from its inception.

Not only have Lubbock residents been privy to having almost a ringside seat to one of history's more dramatic upheavals, they have had an opportunity to judge to an extent the people involved.

Many persons here who came in contact with Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi while he trained at Reese AFB were most impressed by him and others in the Iranian entourage, including the knowledgeable former Iranian Amb. Ardeshir Zahedi.

It was through the latter that we met Ali Tabatabai, the man who is helping organize the new Iranian Foundation, in Washington earlier this year. A most personable and well-read person, Tabatabai comes across as a man who seeks to restore some semblance of order and decency to his homeland. He told us he permitted his name to be used in connection with the Foundation "because I have no wife and family and I have nothing to lose." He noted that he also suffered at the hands of the Savak police when his personal possessions were confiscated back in 1971.

But today, his dreams and those of the council of advisors are of a new Iran, "and with help and perseverance we shall achieve it," he says.

Former Grain Dealer Pleads Guilty; 13 Charges Dropped

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Clutching a Bible and asking forgiveness, former grain dealer Robert Johnson pleaded guilty Wednesday to two counts of interstate transportation of stolen property.

The pleas came in a bargain with federal prosecutors, who said they would drop 13 other charges against the man who dropped out of sight Jan. 3, 1977. Friends said at that time that Johnson fell from a cabin cruiser in the Gulf of Mexico and presumably drowned.

Using an alias, Johnson was stopped for running a stop sign in Rexburg, Idaho, on July 15.

He was jailed in lieu of $1 million bond, later reduced to $500,000.

Federal grain inspectors had visited Johnson's grain elevators and turned up "considerable" shortages. Some 300 farmers in Texas, Oklahoma and Colorado reportedly lost $2 million because of the shortages.

Authorities said the grain turned up in Houston and Fort Worth, sold without permission or knowledge of the farmers.

Assistant U.S. Attorney R.H. Wallace said Wednesday the government would move to dismiss remaining charges against Johnson Nov. 20, when U.S. District Judge Eldon Mahon pronounces sentence.

Johnson faces maximums of 20 years in prison and fines totaling $20,000.

JIMMY DEAN RETURNS TO RECORDING

Pitch Made To Sausage Purchasers

DALLAS (AP) — Are you fed up with life's little irritants — the ones that give you that helpless feeling?

Then give a listen, friends, to that sausage-makin' sage from Dallas and a few other places, the Pride of Plainview, the one and only Jimmy Dean:

"A funny thing happened to the letter I mailed. Somewhere the Postal Service failed. I think about it and it makes me sore. Service gets worse and the stamps cost more. Ain't that a mess? I'll take Pony Express. Prob'ly get there a whole lot quicker."

Put that lyric to twangy, country-western accompaniment and you've got one of about 10 little ditties that are running on radio stations in 10 markets.

Dean is the singer-turned-businessman who gave the world "Big Bad John" a few years ago.

The messages are the first recordings he's done in about two years, and he admits they're fun.

"I don't know if they'll sell sausage," he said.

Dean said he recorded the first one about mail service on impulse in Dallas after a letter took eight days to be delivered.

"That's what started it," he said. "I just sat down and started writin'. I had fun."

More pet peeves popped into Dean's mind, and it was off to the studio again. Friends and associates chipped in ideas. More recordings.

Dean said he has enough for about a month.

"Let's see...welfare, I got a poke at that. Doctors...I got car service. I got Internal Revenue. I took a shot at everybody that went by."

Some of Dean's associates opined that the mini-songs might backfire, but Dean is plunging ahead and said he hasn't had any negative feedback yet. The commercials have been airing for about seven days.

"People are callin' up and sayin', 'That's the way I feel," Dean said.

"You can write 'em one right after the other," he said. "There ain't no scripts. They're written down on little scraps of paper, and I go down to the studio and record 'em."

"I don't know (if it will hurt the sausage business). Some people said, 'Well, I don't know.' I said I don't care"

Dean said the money comes from the sausage company, "But that's my pocket, you know."

He said friends already have suggested recording a single made up of the short songs. "I might," he said.

Dean is keeping an eye on public reaction, and said it's been positive — so far. "That one on welfare...would probably create some (negative response)."

Dean said he is willing to air the commercials nationally, "If I can prove people are lstenin' to'em and I know it won't hurt the sausage sales, I tell you the truth, I'm tickled to death with it."

If the commercials go on national radio, the country might hear:

"Uncle Sam controls everything we do. The things we watch to the things we chew. Some of it's good, aw you bet. But I know what I like on the TV set. That's somethin' I can handle, I can change the channel. Lord knows I ain't that dumb."

Or:

"Folks like us we break our backs. Every day they hit us with a little more tax. While we're out there breakin' our necks, some folks are cashin' them welfare checks. Ain't that dandy? Plenty money handy. That is if a feller don't wanna work."

Or:

"Flew home for Christmas just last year. Thing that happened was a little bit queer. I got so mad I thought I'd die. 'Cause my luggage got there for the Fourth of July. I was hurt and disgusted...my guitar's busted. Lost every bit of my Fruit of the Loom."

Dean said the ideas come from people he meets.

Asked if he were making a public appeal for material, he said, "Oh, Lord, no! Don't do that."

He thought a second and said, 'Aw, what the hell. Go ahead."

Defense Begins For Accused Bandido

WICHITA FALLS (UPI) — Jurors seated Wednesday in the murder and aggravated robbery trial of Bandido motorcycle club member James Hicks were shown pictures of two men the defense says resemble the defendant.

Hicks, 31, is charged with the Jan. 4, 1978, shooting death of James Cole and with three related counts of aggravated robbery with a deadly weapon.

On Tuesday, Mrs. Carmie Cole testified under questioning from defense attorney Charles Butts that she had first identified a picture of a man other than Hicks as one of two persons who committed a robbery at her home and shot her husband.

Quarles said when he arrested Norman Claborne Gooding in connection with Cole's murder, Gooding was accompanied by a man identified as Johnny Shilo. Both Gooding and Shilo, Quarles said, are members of the Rogues motorcycle club.

Shilo, said Quarles, was about 6-feet-3 and weighed 260 pounds. His hair was short and dark and thinning on top, the officer said. Butts asked Quarles if he ever had seen a picture of Shilo wearing a wig, and Quarles said he had not.

Counsel Says Baker Must Bear Burden

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House Counsel Lloyd Cutler said Wednesday Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker and his supporters will bear "a very heavy responsibility" if they kill the SALT II treaty with amendments unacceptable to Russia.

Baker, who is to announce his candidacy for the GOP presidential nomination on Nov. 1, told Cutler in turn that U.S. arms control negotiators were outbargained by the Soviet Union and agreed to "a bad treaty."

The face-to-face exchange came moments before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, in identical 9-6 votes, rejected two amendments offered by Baker that both he and SALT II supporters agree would have killed the present pact by forcing new negotiations.

One would have forced the Soviet Union to destroy all 308 of its heavy SS-18 missiles. The other would terminate the SALT II treaty on Dec. 31, 1981, if agreement had not been reached to reduce the 308 heavy missiles to zero by the end of 1985.

As it stands, the treaty does require the Soviets to arm the SS-18s with no more than 10 warheads each. Without SALT II there would be no limit.

U.S. military leaders have testified repeatedly that they do not want the United States to build heavy missiles because the lighter U.S. missiles have sufficient reliability and accuracy to accomplish their missions.

Cutler referred to Baker's presidential ambitions by implying that had Baker been the chief executive he could not have reached a better SALT II agreement than that worked out under the administrations of Presidents Nixon, Ford and Carter.

"It has not been possible in these negotiations, conducted by men as skillful as Henry Kissinger and Cyrus Vance, to bring about reductions in the heavy missiles," Cutler said.

He called such reductions "a perfectly legitimate objective" for new negotiations on SALT III.

"It may be , Senator Baker, that you will have the high privilege of being able to conduct these negotiations," Cutler said.

"But I respectfully suggest, sir, that it would be beyond even your skills to negotiate this in SALT II."

Adopting the Baker amendments would kill SALT II and leave "no possibility" of reducing the numbers of heavy missiles in SALT III, Cutler said.

"The consequence of not having a SALT II, Senator Baker, would be to increase whatever danger there may be from these missiles" which would not then be restrained in any degree, Cutler said.

"It sees to me, Sir, it would be a very heavy responsibility for anyone voting for your amendment to ignore the military judgment of our own military leaders and to substitute your own,." he said.

Man Driven To Jail By Hunger Gets Job

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — William C. Caldwell left jail Wednesday after serving 10 days for ordering a meal he couldn't afford. He headed for a job on a ranch.

Officers at the city stockade said a kind-hearted rancher met Caldwell as he was being released and took him to his spread where he'll work with horses and on some construction jobs.

"It's nice," Caldwell said before his release. "This will give me a place to live right away."

The 40-year-old drifter landed behind bars after he walked into a restaurant, ordered the cheapest breakfast special on the menu and then apologized to the waitress for not having any money. He asked her to call police.

Out of work and hungry, Caldwell said he did it intentionally so he could go to jail, where at least he would have a place to sleep and something to eat.

The crime had to be "a nice one, you know, the kind that doesn't hurt anyone or put them in a bind," Caldwell said. He ate scrambled eggs, pancakes, ham and a glass of milk.

Caldwell told Hillsborough County Judge Fred J. Woods that he had used the food-bill tactic before.

Caldwell said he was an unemployed carpenter, having a hard time finding even temporary work, and he couldn't go on looking for a job without having something to eat.

Brezhnev's Appearance Quiets Rumors

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev, appearing in public after a 16-day absence that sparked rumors of his death, said Wednesday the Mideast situation "remains dangerous."

The 72-year-old Kremlin leader was ruddy-cheeked at an airport welcoming ceremony for South Yemeni leader Abdul Fattah Ismail, who arrived in the Soviet capital in the afternoon.

Heavy television coverage of Brezhnev and Ismail appeared aimed at dispelling last week's torrent of rumors the Soviet head-of-state was dead or gravely ill.

The evening television news showed Brezhnev, bundled in a hat, dark coat and muffler, walking and talking with Ismail and greeting him with the usual exchange of kisses on both cheecks and a traditional bear hug.

Brezhnev appeared in the brief film clip to move without difficulty despite Moscow's below-freezing temperatures and light snow flurries.

The television coverage also showed the Kremlin chief shaking hands with the Yemeni delegation on the tarmac and then opening talks with the Arab visitors soon afterwards inside the Kremlin.

Later, in a brief Kremlin ceremony presenting the "Friendship of Peoples Order" to Ismail, Brezhnev offered brief remarks, his speech as usual slurred but his tone expressive and animated.

At a Kremlin dinner for Ismail Wednesday night, Brezhnev lashed out at Israeli — and indirectly U.S. — Middle East policy.

"The situation in that area of the world, unfortunately, remains dangerous," he told his Arab guests. "There is one cause of this — the stubborn refusal of the Tel Aviv rulers and their patrons from outside to heed the voice of reason."

Brezhnev said "it is high time" Israel understands it "can count on a secure existence" only if it withdraws from all Arab lands captured in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, and "stops obstructing" implementation of the rights of the Palestinians, including their right to establish an independent nation.

"Time is not waiting," Brezhnev warned, "and if anyone entertains hopes that time works for Israel, they are wrong."

Tass said that in talks with Ismail, Brezhnev "condemned increasing attempts of the imperialist forces to create seats of tensions in.... the Red Sea and Persian Gilf, to knock together new military blocs for interfering in the home affairs of the countries of the region and exploiting their national wealth."

Rumors of Brezhnev's death or severe illness were sparked last week during a visit to Moscow by Syrian President Hafez Assad.

Assad did not see Brezhnev during two meetings and a banquet, and Syrian diplomats said they had been told Brezhnev was too ill to meet with visitors.

Assad left the Soviet Union Oct. 18 after a four-day stay during which he is thought to have won a Soviet pledge of more arms for his struggle to undermine the Israeli-Egyptian peace accord.

On the same day, reports began surfacing in New York, Washington, Rome and Helsinki that Brezhnev had died.

Elida Snake Bite Victim Recovering

A-J Correspondent

ALBUQUERQUE — Four-year-old Amanda Coombs was in fair condition late Tuesday at Bernalillo County Medical Center following treatment for a rattlesnake bite.

The child, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcom Coombs of Elida, was bitten in the instep of her left foot Tuesday afternoon while playing near her home.

According to hospital officials, the girl was brought by New Mexico State Police to Portales for emergency treatment, then flown to Albuquerque, where doctors performed a fasciatomy. The operation involves incisions on both sides of the leg to relieve pressure.

Several New Mexico herpetologists have said snakes are more active than usual this fall because of warm weather.

City Man Arrested In Rape

A 28-year-old man, reportedly employed as a driver for a Lubbock company, was arrested early today about 15 miles north of Salem, Ore., for allegedly raping a woman south of Eugene.

Oregon State Police identified the suspect as James Emanual Coleman. They said he gave his home as Houston, but said he was driving for a Lubbock-based company.

The suspect was returned to Eugene for investigation of a rape indicent involving a 36-year-old woman police said he picked up at Roseburg.

State police said the rape occurred about 11 p.m. Tuesday between Eugene and Cottage Grove, 60 miles north of Roseburg and 5 miles south of Salem., Officers said they did not know why the woman got into the truck.

Coleman's truck, loaded with dog food, was being held for the arrival of a substitute driver from Texas.

Lack Of Authority Said Cult-Related

HOUSTON (AP)— A Houston psychiatrist believes many teen-agers who join cults come from homes where parents fail to set restrictions and are afraid to show authority.

Dr. Peter Olsson, an associate professor at the Baylor College of Medicine, said the teen-agers actually are seeking something absolute in their lives.

Olsson, in a paper that recently won a national award, says youths find in the cults the boundaries on their behavior that are lacking at home.

Some parents, he says, "are afraid to act as benevolent authority figures for their children because they fear they may alienate them."

Then the cult becomes a kind of family and the "cult leader an idealized, omnipotent parent."

He suggests that parents set definite limits for teen-agers and that other forces in society, such as the churches, might provide activities which might provide activities to compete with those offered by cults and the supernatural.

Lubbock Woman Reports Theft

A 70-year-old Lubbock beautician told police $1,213 worth of jewelry and projectors were stolen from her residence.

The woman told police a cassette tape recorder and player, two projectors, two gold wedding bands and a diamond and gold engagement ring were taken from her central Lubbock home some time between 10 and 11 a.m. Wednesday.

Police reports indicate entry to the woman's house was gained by raising a window on the east side of the house.

A Lubbock woman told police a former boyfriend kicked her door open about 5:45 a.m. Wednesday and beat her when she refused to go out with him.

The woman, who reportedly was not seriously hurt in the assault, said the man began kicking her on the leg and struck her several times in the face when she refused to go have a drink with him.

She added that the intruder fled when she told him she had called police.

The suspect was described as a short, 35-year-old man, who the woman said she dated several months ago.

Police also were investigating the reported theft of $1,100 cash and an undetermined amount of money orders from the Town and Country Food Store at 511 Fourth St. between 11:30 p.m. Tuesday and 1:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The suspect was described as 6-foot-1, and weighing about 165 pounds.

A Lubbock woman said her 5-year-old boy was assaulted and his bicycle thrown into an empty swimming pool by two older boys about 7 p.m. Tuesday at an apartment complex.

Reports indicate the youngster was struck several times in the stomach and thrown into a pool of water. However, police said the boy was not seriously hurt in the attack.

A witness to the assault told police the two juvenile suspects liked to hang around younger children and cause trouble. No arrests had been made early today.

Two Lubbock men, ages 36 and 34, were arrested about 12:40 a.m. Wednesday after they were caught taking a battery from a car parked in the 500-block of East 34th Street.

Police apprehended the suspects moments after the reported theft and took them to the county jail.

C.W. Dennis of 910-A 41st St. said he and his wife left home about 8:30 p.m. Tuesday and returned about 30 minutes later to discover they had fallen victim to house burglars.

Dennis reported the loss of a television, calculator, jewelry, bar set, $280 in cash, change and bank checks. He said his house had been entered earlier in the night and ransacked, but that he did not call police then because he discovered nothing missing.

Four persons said their cars were parked in the 4000-block of Avenue Q between 8 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. Tuesday when the vehicles were vandalized or burglarized.

W.J. Klattenhoff of Slaton said he suffered a $150 loss when the front window of his car was shattered. Mary Lee Galby of 3812 57th St. also reported her car window broken, resulting in $150 in damage.

Ships are not launched on a Friday if it can be avoided because some seamen refuse to work on them. For this reason, most vessels carry a metal plate telling when and where the launching took place.

Probe Requested In Hanging Of Burglar

NASHUA, N.H. (AP) — The family of state Rep. Lawrence McLaughlin, who was found hanged in jail following his conviction in a $39.50 burglary, has called for a special investigation of his death, a lawyer said Wednesday.

McLaughlin, 39, a former Nashua police officer, was sentenced to 2-to-4 years in prison on Monday after being convicted of breaking into the Triangle Pacific Cabinet Corp. and taking the money from a vending machine.

The next day, McLaughlin, who was guard supervisor for American Security Corp. at the time of his arrest, was found hanged with his own shirt in his cell, authorities said.

McLaughlin had collapsed in court after hearing the sentence, but declined treatment.

Nassau attorney Frank Holland on Wednesday said McLaughlin expressed fear for his life in the prison system and should have undergone a physical and mental examination before being sentenced.

Holland said he met with Mrs. McLaughlin on Tuesday morning, before either knew of McLaughlin's death. He said Mrs. McLaughlin told him her husband "indicated to her and others that he was afraid of dying in the prison system, being a former police officer."

Holland said a motion would be filed in Hillsboro County Superior Court to convene a special grand jury and appoint a special prosecutor to investigate McLaughlins death and the conditions at the county jail in Manchester.

McLaughlin's family believes his death was "unnecessary and that a full and open investigation by an impartial body is mandated," Holland said.

The county attorney's office has announced it is conducting an investigation.

Nashua District Court Clerk Daniel Donovan, a former adult probation worker, said he prepared a probation department report on McLaughlin, which was presented to the court before McLaughlin's sentencing.

Donovan said the report included "psychological information" about McLaughlin.

Funeral services were scheduled for McLaughlin on today at 9 a.m. at St. Christopher's church in Nashua.

Woman Becomes First Corps Leader

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP) — A 21-year-old senior at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy has become the first woman to command an entire cadet corps at any of the nation's four service academies.

Cadet First Class Linda Johansen, 21, of North Dartmouth, Mass., has been named regimental commander of the 817 Coast Guard Academy cadets.

"She is responsible for the discipline and state of morale of the cadets, and virtually all respsonsibilities of any commanding officer," Rear Admiral Malcolm Clark, academy superintendent, said Tuesday.

Academy officials said Miss Johansen was chosen because of her initiative, judgment, performance of duty, leadership ability academic standing and personal appearance. There are four regimental commanders named each year at the academy. Miss Johansen's term runs through December.

Saudi Oil Gives Price Advantages, Say Officials

NEW YORK (AP) — Saudi Arabian crude oil, which is cheaper than oil from other OPEC nations, gives America's four largest oil companies a profit advantage over competitors that rely on more costly crude, industry officials say.

One of the four companies, Mobil Corp., said Wednesday its third quarter profits had risen 131 percent over the same period last year. Another, Exxon Corp., the world's largest oil company, said Monday its profits had risen 118 percent in the third quarter.

The other two companies, Texaco Inc. and Standard Oil Co. of California (Chevron), have yet to release third-quarter figures, but analysts expect their profits to rise by similarly hefty amounts.

Even companies without the advantage of the low-priced Saudi crude oil are turning in large third-quarter earnings gains. Standard Oil Co. of Ohio, the nation's 14th-largest oil company, said Wednesday its profits in the July-September period had nearly tripled from last year's figures.

Tenth-ranked Sun Co. said its profits had risen 65 percent in the quarter. And Cities Service Co. and Marathon Oil Co., virtually tied for 17th position among U.S. oil companies, reported their profits had risen 64 percent and 58 percent, respectively.

In Washington, the House, apparently upset by the huge profits being posted by the oil industry, reversed itself and voted 225-189 to retain price and allocation controls on gasoline through mid-1981.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said the profits were "a disgrace to the nation ... an absolute and utter disgrace."

Mobil, the nation's second-largest oil company, said its profits in the third quarter were $595 million, or $2.80 a share, compared with $252 million, or $1.22 a share, in last year's third quarter. Sales rose from $9.2 billion to $12.1 billion.

For the first nine months of the year, Mobil had profits of $1.44 billion, or $6.77 a share, up 81 percent from $792 million, or$3.74 a sare, last year. Sales for the first three quarters rose to $33.2 billion from $26.7 billion.

Exxon, Mobl, Texacoand Chevron are partners in the Arabian-American Oil Co. (Aramco), which runs the Saudi oilfields and gets the bulk of Saudi Arabia's 9.5 million barrel-a-day oil production — the most production in the non-communist world.

The four companies buy the Saudi crude oil for $18 a barrel and then either sell it unrefined for a profit or refine it into gasoline, heating oil and other products.

Most other oil companies are paying more for their crude oil. The average price of crude from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is more than $20 a barrel, and Libya charges as much as $26.27 a barrel for its high-quality oil. Prices on the spot market, where oil not sold under long-term contracts changes hands, are even higher.

But while the Aramco partners are paying at least $2 a barrel less for their oil, their product prices in most places are the same as those of companies using higher-priced crude as a raw ingredient.

Senate Panel Completes Energy Package Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Energy Committee completed work Wednesday on a multibillion-dollar energy package designed to drastically reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil.

The legislation, approved 14-2, includes a $20 billion synthetic fuels program, a $5 billion residential and commercial conservation program and $475 million in low interest loans for solar heating and cooling equipment.

Two Republicans, Lowell Weicker of Connecticut and Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming, voted against the legislation, which has been under consideration for four months.

The legislation would set up a $100 million trial program under which utilities in selected states would send in so-called "energy doctors" to study what a residence needs to become energy efficient.

The needed insulation, storm doors or other improvements would be installed free. The government would pay the tab initially, but ultimately the cost would be made up in reduced consumption of oil and coal by the homeowner and the utilities.

Poor and lower middle-income homeowners and renters would also be eligible for grants and loans for weatherproofing their residences.

Households that earn up to $40,000 could obtain low interest loans of up to $2,500 to spend on their dwellings.

Approval of the synthetic fuels portion of the legislation marks a victory for President Carter, who had urged a much bigger program on July 15.

It would create an independent Energy Security Corp., which would make grants, loans and loan guarantees to firms willing to gamble on extracting oil and gas from oil shale, coal and tar oil.

In a few cases, the government would actually own synthetic fuels plants, then turn them over to private industry once they became successful.

Attempts are expected on the Senate floor to cut back the program to about $2 billion by senators who believe that not enough is known about synthetic fuels and their potential environmental effects to go ahead with a rush program.

Carter had initially urged an $88 billion program which he agreed to cut back when it met congressional opposition.

It has long been known that fuels can be extracted from various synthetic sources, but the expense is so great that most energy firms have been unwilling to take the risk on developing the necessary technology.

The legislation also includes $650 million for the development of gasohol, a fuel derived mainly from grain products and mixed with gasoline.

There is also another $100 million to encourage a commercial wind energy program.

The mixed bag of energy legislation is expected to go late next week to the Senate floor where an extensive fight is expected over the conservation portion of the bill.

Similar measures have been working their way through the House.

Silver Mine Getting Its Share Of Boom

DALLAS (AP) — The operator of the nation's largest silver mine kept pace with the silver boom, reporting third quarter earnings more than double the comparable figure for last year.

Sunshine Mining Co. said it earned $2.3 million on revenues of $20.3 million. The increase was 118 percent over 1978's $1.1 million earnings on $16.6 million revenues.

Earnings per share were 40 cents, up from 18 cents.

Sunshine has sold all its manufacturing assets and intends to concentrate entirely on silver production, refining and marketing.

To soften paint brushes and rollers after cleaning, put a small amount of fabric softener on them and they dry like new.

El Salvador Disorders Continuing

SAN SALVADOR (AP) — Leftists, many armed with machetes and handguns, seized the buildings of the labor and economy ministries Wednesday, taking four cabinet officials and about 130 others persons hostage, witnesses and police said.

More than 1,000 anti-government protesters, most of whom identified themselves as members of the Popular Revolutionary Bloc, took the two buildings and demanded the release of alleged political prisoners. They also called for higher wages and price controls on basic foods.

A police spokesman said Labor Minister Gabriel Gallegos Valdes, Labor Undersecretary Maria Teresa de Avile, Economy Minister Manuel Heints and Oscar Menjivar, his undersecretary, were among the hostages. The ministries are about 300 yards apart.

There were no reports of violence and police did not intervene.

About 100 persons armed with pistols and machetes took over the Labor Ministry shortly before noon and seized 30 captives while some 1,000 demonstrators milled outside the building, witnesses said.

An hour later, about 900 of the street demonstrators marched into the Economy Ministry and seized some 100 hostages, a police source reported.

Limiting Nuclear Wastes May Be Signal

WASTE DISPOSAL SITE — A crane unloads a sealed cannister of low level nuclear waste at this pit near Hanford, Wash., recently. This site was used to dispose of waste from the three Mile Island Nuclear Plant in April. This site was closed three weeks ago and another in Nevada was closed last week, leaving only one site in this nation, in South Carolina, still operating, and that is expected to close shortly. (AP Laserphoto)

WASHINGTON (AP) — By deciding to stop or cut nuclear wste shipents into their states, three goverors are signaling Washingon they are unwilling to take the political heat for a national problem.

Nevada this week closed the second of the nation's only three low-level waste dumps.

A burial site in Washington state has been shut down for three weeks. Shipments to the only other site — in South Carolina — are expected to be curtailed next week.

Spokesmen for the nuclear power industry say the problem is not immediate for them since power plants have on-site storage capacity. But some officials say hospitals and research facilities will run into storage problems within a few weeks.

Leonard Freeman, president of the Society for Nuclear Medicine, called it "an immediate crisis for nuclear medicine," which is used thousands of times a day to diagnose and treat diseases, including cancer and heart illness.

Some hospitals already have asked doctors to curtail the use of radioactive materials because of expected storage problems.

The sudden militancy by the governors of Washington, Nevada and South Carolina is an attempt to force the Carter administration to play a stronger role in the disposal of low-level wastes, an issue which could become crucial in an election year.

Almost daily, trucks have brought wastes from commercial reactors, hospitals and research laboratories around the country to the only commercial burial sites available.

"I'm just tired of having to assume the responsibility for having our people take the risks in a system that is not properly regulated," complained Nevada Gov. Robert List as he resisted attempts Tuesday to reopen the burial site near Reno.

What also gnaws at the governors is that no dumps are located in areas where most of the wastes are produced — including most of the Northeast.

On Oct. 4, Washington Gov. Dixy Lee Ray, former head of the Atomic Energy Commission, closed the burial site near Richland, Wash., charging lax enforcement of shipping regulations.

On Tuesday, after List's action, Gov. Dick Riley made it clear he will not allow more waste to be diverted into South Carolina, where 80 percent of the nation's low-level radioactive garbage is already being buried. He predicted forced cutbacks in shipments next week.

Today's FOCUS

The governors' specific complaints vary, but their anger is aimed at the federal government. They argue that while plans for a national program languish, the three states are becoming the dumping ground for the rest of the country.

About 60 percent of the low-level wastes are byproducts of commercial power reactors, including sludge, resins and contaminated clothing. Most of the rest comes from research laboratories and radiological treatment and diagnosis at hospitals.

For more than a year the Carter administration has had before it a unanimous inter-agency recommendation that the Energy Department set up regional low-level nuclear waste dumps to spread the burden.

The recommendation — part of an overall report on nuclear wastes — has awaited President Carter's decision for several months. One problem, an administration source concedes, is that the regional burial grounds are sure to spark opposition in the states for which they will be planned.

But, said Goetz Oertel, the Energy Department's director of waste products, "The same is true with the alternative — to have the wastes pile up as they are (at the three existing dumps). It's a choice each state is going to have to make."

Today 80 percent of the wastes, almost all generated in the East, ends up at the dump near Barnwell, S.C., with another 15 percent allocated to the site near Richland, Wash. The remaining 5 percent had been going to the Beatty site in Nevada.

Robert Browning, deputy director for waste management at the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, said the inability to dispose of wastes poses a serious problem, but he could not say how soon it might turn into a crisis.

In late 1977 the NRC urged the Energy Department to prepare a contingency plan which would allow the 14 federal waste storage sites to be opened for general use because of what the NRC said was a clear potential for interruption at the three commerical sites.

"They've been studying it ever since," said Browning.

Oertel said he expects the contingency plan to be ready by January, but concedes the movement of commercial wastes to any of the government burial grounds may cause local problems as well.

There will be no acceptance of commercial wastes at government sites "except in consultation with the governor of that state," Oertel emphasized.

Kennedy Campaign Start Due Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy will announce formation of an "exploratory" campaign committee Monday, an aide said Wednesday. That will make the Massachusetts Democrat an official candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Tom Southwick, Kennedy's press secretary, confirmed that announcement of the campaign committee will be made Monday after several sources in the movement to draft Kennedy for the party nomination said they had received indirect signals that the move was imminent.

Registration of a committee with the Federal Election Commission will make Kennedy a legal candidate, although he is not expected to formally announce his candidacy until later in the year.

Meanwhile, several leaders of the draft movement, formed last spring to lure Kennedy into a race against President Carter, said they expect to convert their operations immediately to campaign status.

"We are ready to convert ... from a draft to a campaign operation," said one source, who asked not to be identified.

FEC records showed 68 different Kennedy draft committees had registered as of Wednesday, but only 10 have filed financial reports showing how much money they have raised.

Those 10 committees reported raising $256,900 by the end of September and spending $164,025, mostly in Florida where Democratic party caucuses were held two weeks ago.

Most of the draft committees are expected to disband after the exploratory panel is formed, but many of those who worked in the draft movement are expected to join the official campaign.

A source said Kennedy already has decided to use the mail fund-raising firm that raised money and solicited letters of support for the draft movement.

Money Records Seen

Tom Mathews, a partner in the mail firm, would not confirm the report but said test mailings for the draft committees indicated Kennedy "could set records" for raising money.

The draft committees were exempt from normal rules governing the amount of money that can be raised for a declared candidate, so it would be difficult for them to convert directly to campaign committees.

One source in the draft movement said most of the draft committees are expected to disband. Although they may regroup under other names, the money they have raised could not go to Kennedy's official campaign.

Grass Roots Momentum

"But the draft committees will offer Kennedy a valuable volunteer resource and a grass roots organizing resource and provide the momentum necessary for a successful effort," said Lou Gordon, who directed a national information center for the various draft committees.

That could be a critical contribution to the Kennedy campaign, which otherwise would be getting a late start in organizing for the early primaries. The draft movement already has recruited and organized workers down to the precinct level in key primary states.

Carter's campaign committee has protested this unofficial campaign organizing with charges that the effort was centrally orchestrated from Washington and not a spontaneous draft movement.

Probe To Proceed

The election commission notified several of the draft committees on Tuesday that it had found "reason to believe" there may have been some violation of campaign law and that it would proceed with an investigation of the Carter charges.

Greg Denier, an attorney for the Machinists Non-partisan Political League, which has financially supported a number of the draft committees, said those committees were operating within the law.

"Neither the Machinists Union nor the Machinists Non-partisan Political League control or direct any of the draft Kennedy committees, and to the best of our knowledge none of these committees are affiliated with each other," Denier said.

Backers of both Carter and Kennedy were busy lining up support.

Carter, who has registered a campaign committee and is expected to announce his candidacy Dec. 4, addressed a dinner in Washington on Wednesday night. Carter campaigners said the dinner, planned as a show of strength, attracted about 500 prominent Democrats.

U.S. Cambodian Aid Set At $69 Million

ter Hun Sen and said they found him "appreciative, generally appreciative." They said they were told it would be up to Cambodia's Communist Party Central Committee to give final approval to the relief plan.

Administration officials have said millions of Cambodians face starvation. After Carter's announcement, the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame University and head of a private relief group, said Cambodia had a population of 8 million a decade ago, but that as been reduced now to 4.7 million. He said 3 million surviving Cambodians are "in dire danger of starvation."

In his speech to a Georgetown University audience, Kennedy urged a massive airlift of food and medicine to Cambodia and said the administration had been slow to support such a program.

Before Carter's announcement, the Massachusetts Democrat said the money the administration had proposed thus far "is only a first installment compared to the need that now exists."

Kennedy added: "We must take essential steps now if we are to stave off mass starvation in Cambodia and avoid graver dangers to the peace in Southeast Asia."

Henry Owen, a White House national security official, responded to Kennedy's remarks by saying the Carter proposal was assembled as quickly as possible and that it was not until last Friday that the administration received international assurances that the aid would go to those in need.

Kennedy, who is expected to challenge Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination next year, said he had called for an international conference on Southeast Asia last year and that the proposal was accepted by U.S. allies. "But the voice of the United States has been most notable by its silence," Kennedy said.

When an international conference on Indochia was held in Geneva last summer, he said, "the subject of Cambodia was dropped from the agenda ... without protest by the United States."

He said he raised the Cambodian issue in July with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and that Vance "agreed that famine threatened in Cambodia and that there was urgent need to act ... but three months have passed with no action by the government."

The Massachusetts Democrat called for a massive airlift of supplies to Cambodia, more cash assistance and using "every possible diplomatic means" to bring about a cease-fire in Cambodia.

He also said the United States should "press urgently" for an international conference on the Cambodian situation.

The United Nations International Childrens Emergency Fund and the International Committee of the Red Cross are heading the international effort, which already is underway in Cambodia.

The relief agencies estimate they will need $110 million for six months, with about 30 nations contributing supplies and money.

Iran Doctor To Observe Shah Care

By The Associated Press

The Iranian Foreign Ministry has announced it will send a doctor to New York "as an observer to supervise the treatment of the former Shah of Iran," the official Iraqi News Agency reported Wednesday in a dispatch from Tehran.

The deposed monarch, who took up residence in Mexico after being forced from the throne in January, flew to New York on Tuesday for medical care at the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center.

After the shah's operation for the removal of his gall bladder, hospital spokesman Robert Armao said "recovery without complications is anticipated." But he said the shah had been suffering for six years from a cancer affecting his lymph glands.

The revolutionary regime of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has said it wants the monarch to be returned to Iran to stand trial "for crimes against the people."

Ayatollah Sadegh Khalkhali, a senior official of Iran's revolutionary judicial system, previously said the shah has been sentenced in absentia to death.

In Tehran, thousands of students demonstrated on Wednesday, demanding free education, political freedoms and death to the minister of education, the Iraqi News Agency said.

It reported one group of students took over a luxury hotel in Tehran and turned it into a hostel, the second hotel seized by students this month.

Student unrest was triggered by the government's decision to charge tuition and by rents the protesters say have reached $200 a month for a single room in Tehran, according to the Iraqi agency.

Large Cocaine Ring 'Broken'

RENO, Nev. (AP) — A "top rank" international drug ring that had moved at least 400 pounds of pure cocaine into the United States has been broken by a series of key arrests, federal prosecutors said Wednesday.

Hollow books, special scuba diving tanks and even a diplomat were used to carry the drugs — which may have been worth $72.5 million or more on the street.

Among the 20 persons named in a Reno federal grand jury indictment unsealed Wednesday were the former Costa Rican agricultural envoy to Peru, Rodolfo Araya-Porros, 37, and the alleged ringleader of the group, Samuel Cutcomp, 53, of Tahoe City, Calif., who had been arrested in July.

Twenty to 30 more indictments are expected within the next three months as federal drug agents try to break up the national ring, said Stephen Swanson, federal drug enforcement agent in charge in Reno.

Twelve suspects had been rounded up by noon, and agents said they were closing in on most of the rest. The suspects were spread as far as Chicago; Lima, Peru; and San Diego. Prosecutors said the ring "hatched in Laguna Beach," Calif., then spread nationally but was not run by organized crime.

Swanson said he expects the cases to come to trial "right around the first of the year" in Reno.

Agency Ruling Hits Doctors

to regulate deceptive claims and certain types of in-person solicitation.

It also banned AMA action to interfere with doctors' ability to work for low-cost group health plans by branding the arrangement as unethical. The medical establishment historically has supported fee-for-service arrangements under which a physician bills a patient for every medical service he performs.

The FTC rejected the AMA's argument that it had voluntarily abandoned the restrictions that were the basis for the commission's 1975 complaint that started the case. "Abandonment took place, if at all, after commencement of this lawsuit," the commission said.

Citing "the limited, ambiguous steps undertaken by AMA subsequent to issuance of the complaint, ostensibly to bring its ethical code into conformity with the law," the commission said its order is needed to prevent a recurrence of the practices cited in the complaint.

The commission reversed part of an initial decision by Administrative Law Judge Ernest G. Barnes in allowing the AMA to formulate "reasonable ethical guidelines" governing acceptable advertising.

Barnes would have barred the medical association from any regulation of physician advertising for two years and would have allowed AMA guidelines afterward only with FTC approval. But the commissioners said the association has a valuable role to play in preventing ads that are deceptive.

The 4-year-old FTC case was brought amid a series of rulings giving lawyers, engineers, druggists and optometrists the right to advertise by barring ethical rules against such ads.

The pivotal ruling in this series was a June, 1977 decision by the Supreme Court striking down the American Bar Association's restriction on advertising.

After the high court's decision, the bar association revised its code of ethics, and one result has been a proliferation of low-cost legal clinics.

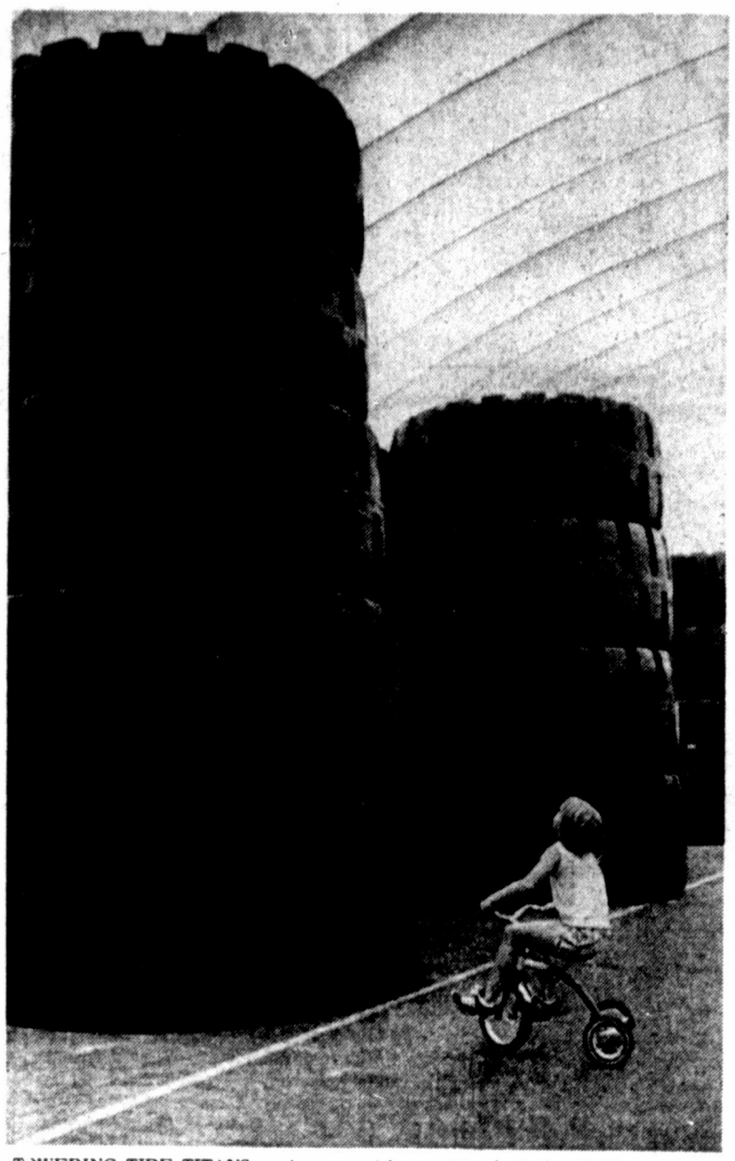

Mishap Brings Hog Roundup

SANGER (AP) — It was a Texas roundup all right, but the animals didn't go "moo." They went "oink."

"We spent about three hours running hogs up and down the highway" before most of a truckload of escaped pigs were captured, said Jerry Ashcraft, local Future Farmers of American sponsor.

State troopers called Ashcraft Wednesday after a wreck involving two trucks, one of which was carrying 298 live hogs to a packing plant in San Antonio. About 100 hogs were killed in the accident, and Ashcraft, who teaches vocational agriculture at Sanger High School, said the rest of them escaped.

"I called some of my boys and they brought their equipment," but he said the job was not easy."

years, "primarily because revenues have increased faster than the continued rapid rise in government expenditures."

Baughman adds that there has been no retrenchment in the rate of growth of federal government expenditures. "That is an area where we need to have some change, and it would be very desirable if we could have a substantial slowing in the rate of growth of federal government expenditures. That would make a useful contribution to the containment of inflation."

The Federal Reserve Bank president said, "The major thing we are trying to do is to limit the rate of growth of total credit in the economy, and to limit the rate of growth of the total amount of money in the economy. It is not to reduce them absolutely, but rather to slow them from excessively fast rates of growth.

"The general level of prices is essentially something that falls out of the total volume of spending for the total supply of goods and services."

He said the total volume of spending is a function of current income plus borrowing.

"We have had a very rapid rate of growth in consumer credit in the economy, and we have had a very strong rate of consumer spending for almost everything, and consumer debt has built up to relatively high levels—now, that is a trend which can't continue indefinitely."

He thinks that a slowing in the growth rate of consumer credit and expenditures is in the long-term interest of consumers themselves.

"Hopefully, we can get that without it flowing back through the production process and resulting in less people employed in producing the things that consumers buy.

"If prices don't respond, and stop rising so rapidly, when we slow down the rate of growth in consumer spending, then production of the items that consumers spend money for will be cut back and employment in those activities will be cut back, at least temporarily."

Administration In Support

Baughman said the current administration is in unequivocal support of the Federal Reserve position, and that the heads of the Banking Committees of both Houses of Congress have also expressed concurrence.

He added that a program which results in a meaningful attack on inflation may prove to be politically popular on the part of the people.

Baughman thinks a part of the problem is that the government has been attempting to deliver more to the people than it has the capacity to deliver, "and we have been trying to do it for a number of years."

He said, "We have been doing that by running these government deficits, trying to provide more government services to people than we are willing to lay on taxes to pay for them."

Student Death Arrests Due

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Murder arrest warrants were prepared Wednesday for five juveniles in connection with the death of their high school classmate, who died when a congenitally weak artery burst during a beating. An 18-year-old student was also sought.

Billy Barnett, 15, a sophomore member of the Holmes High School Rodeo Club, died Monday afternoon during the attack by six other students from a rival faction. Barnett and his assailants had just left a school bus that stopped near Barnett's house in far northwest San Antonio.

Police at first thought the youth had been beaten and kicked to death, but Bexar County Medical Examiner Dr. Ruben Santos ruled Tuesday that the ruptured artery, not the blows, killed Barnett. He received numerous angry phone calls after the ruling was made public, he said.

"The internal examination showed classic, natural bleeding produced by a ruptured aneurysm at the center base of the brain," said Santos. "The artery ballooned out and eventually burst. He was not klled by the bows."

"My conclusions are final — death by natural causes," he added.

Santos said the weakened artery could have ruptured while Barnett was playing baseball or watching an exciting football game.

on a 263-150 vote, sending it to the Senate.

Courter's amendment also would have scrapped most of the allocation controls that determine how much gasoline goes to each service station during a shortage. Courter claimed this system did more to aggravate gasoline shortages than it does to alleviate them.

In another blow at oil companies, the House also approved 264-143 an amendment by Rep. Peter Peyser, D-N.Y., requiring monthly publication by the Energy Department of now-private information it gathers from the industry on fuel supplies and refining capacity.

The first gas decontrol vote came on a Friday when many members had already left for the weekend. The vote caught leaders and the White House by surprise.

Turn Vote Around

But on Wednesday, the leadership brought out the troops and was able to turn the vote around.

The vote may have been, at least in part, a gesture of frustration at the recent profit statements of big oil companies.

O'Neill, speaking with reporters prior to Wednesday's House session, said the profit statements "should send a message to the Senate to get a windfall profits tax out and a strong one."

A similar appeal was being made by the administration. Charles Schultze, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, issued a statement urging "speedy enactment" of the proposed tax.

He said Americans will "pay out billions of hard-earned dollars in higher prices for domestic oil" as the price of crude oil is decontrolled by the president.

Profits Decried

And Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., chairman of a House energy subcommittee, said "soaring oil company profits are only the tip of the iceberg. When decontrol of prices hits full force, the profits will be much higher."

In the House decontrol vote, 202 Democrats and 23 Republicans voted to keep price lids on gasoline. Voting to stick with the previous decision to lift them were 61 Democrats and 128 Republicans.

Meanwhile, the Independent Petroleum Association of America said "some politicians" were exploiting the high third-quarter profit figures to try to drum up support for the windfall tax.

"Public hostility to the big oil companies results in legislation that really hurts only the small domestic producer," said Jack M. Allen, president of the organization. "This tax would not lay a glove on international oil profits. It is therefore intellectually dishonest to promote the tax on the strength of the totally unrelated issue of foreign oil profits."

"Monopoly" Attacked

Energy Action, a consumer group that opposes oil decontrol, said the proposed tax "will do nothing about the huge monopoly profits that are now being announced by the major oil companies."

Ed Rothschild, research director for the organization, said "the issue is decontrol and the way to clamp down on oil company profit windfalls is to clamp down on oil prices."

Sen. John Durkin, D-N.H., called for the appoitment of special Senate select committee to investigate the oil industry and what he called its "obscene profits."

And Rep. Tom Downey, D-N.Y., called upon Americans to "deluge their senators with calls and letters demanding the Senate pass a strong windfall profits tax as soon as possible."

Senate Plan Weaker

The tax has already been approved by the House. A much weaker version is before the Senate.

Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, chairman of the House Commerce Committee's oversight subcommittee, said Wednesday's House vote to slap price lids back on gasoline "is a significant victory for consumers and small oil independents over the billion-dollar profits of the major oil companies."

"Majors have caused increases in gasoline prices by what I contend constituted, if not a deep dark plot, at least a concerted action.

Tech Denies Wasteful Spending

the governor is concerned about proliferation of graduate degrees and noted that the formula funding system which allocates state money to universities rewards schools with large graduate enrollments with more money.

Lewis said formula funding "has over-rewarded universities for adding students and rates are higher for graduate students, particularly the doctoral level."

Not Growth Incentive

But Jones said it has not caused unnecessary enrollment at Tech and added that the formula funding "is not a growth incentive, it just covers costs."

Clements' criticism of excessive number of faculty members goes hand-in-hand with his scrutiny of small classes.

Max Sherman, president of West Texas State University and chairman of the Higher Education Management Effectiveness Council appointed by Clements, said the governor is "talking about certain subjects having a 60-1 (student-teacher) ratio instead of 20-to-1. That would be the equivalent of three courses."

Faculty-student ratio figures for this fall at Tech have not been tabulated, but last fall the university-wide average was 17.5 students per teacher.

Dr. Len Ainsworth, associate vice president of academic affairs, cautioned however, that the university-wide average does not reflect the high and low extremes.

Some political science courses have between 200 and 280 students in one class.

"But at the other extreme," he said, "there is individual study in music, which is one on one."

Small Classes Justified

Ainsworth named several justifications for small classes, including lab instruction involving expensive equipment where it is cheaper to offer small classes than to buy additional equipment to train more students at one class time.

He added that Tech's average ratio has varied little in the past decade, hovering around 18-to-1.

"The general feeling is that smaller classes offer more time for faculty interaction with students," he said. "Traditionally the highest quality institutions have a small ratio, such as 13-to-1." He said Tech's average of about 18-to-1 shows an effort to make Tech efficient as well as offering as much individualized instruction as possible.

Sherman said Clements believes that in the past, universities have been weak in establishing clear goals and operating under management by objectives.

In a letter to presidents of Texas' 33 tax-supported colleges and universities, Clements said, "I feel that many of the basic management techniques and approaches should be directly applicable even though they will have to be tailored to the specific environment of higher education."

Personnel Reduction Urged

One specific objective set by the Texas Legislature in its last session was the strong recommendation that all state agencies, including universities, reduce their classified personnel by 10 percent over the next two years.

Dan Williams, Tech's interim vice president for finance and administration, is in charge of that duty.

Williams said he will keep track of classified personnel vacancies in the coming months and ask supervisors to re-organize job duties so that if vacancies are not filled, remaining staff can handle the workload.

But he questioned the value of universities operating under management by objectives, saying, "It can work if you are given flexibility, but it's hard for a state agency when the budget is formula driven and many (budget) items are non-transferable."

Interim President Graves said the university is operating under objectives established by the Committee 50, a citizen group which issued a goals report in December 1976. Short-range objectives were established by former Tech president Dr. Cecil Mackey.

Graves said he is following the goals Mackey outlined, such as establishment of a media center and establishment of a fund-raising campaign, because he believes new objectives should be the responsibility of the next person named president of Texas Tech.

Regent Clint Formby of Hereford said he is not alarmed by Clements' closer examination of higher education and spending because he believes Tech is operating efficiently already.

"We've been giving people a lot back for their tax dollars and giving students a lot back for their tuition," Formby said.

Pssst Wanna G-String? Fittings Not Included

The proliferation of clubs that feature male disco dancers who gyrate for female audiences has opened new vistas for a shy woman who came to Dallas by way of Bombay, India.

Sunita Surtani was working in the sewing room of her dress shop about two months ago when a quiet young man walked in.

He made what was to be the first of several such requests.

"He told me...that he needed a G-string for an audition, that he was hoping to get a job. He seemed like a nice guy," Mrs. Surtani said.

Mrs. Surtani had never made a G-string for a woman, let alone for a man.

But within certain boundaries, the request created an opportunity for a burgeoning business in loud loincloths.

Mrs. Surtani asked the man to bring in a pair of bikini briefs she could use as a pattern.

That accomplished, Mrs. Surtani accomplished a gold lame G-string in about 15 minutes.

The dancer spread the word, and soon more young men were bringing their briefs to Mrs. Surtani.

"I don't mind making them, but I'm not going to take their measurements or have them try them on for me," she said.

"I did it because it was a challenge," Mrs. Surtani said. "I've never had any seamstress training, and I get a lot of satisfaction out of trying something new and having it turn out right.

"If someone walks into my store and asks me to make something for them, I'm going to try to do it."

Most of her experiences with males who want G-strings has been subdued and orderly, but not all.

"She gets embarrassed when the men come in asking for G-strings," a friend said. "The dancers are usually quiet and polite, but some of the men who aren't dancers will ask questions in a loud voice. They'll ask her to check the fit, things like that."

Those who ask for assistance though, will get it — from Mr. Surtani.

Phone Testimony Bolsters Davis Defense

FORT WORTH (AP) — A witness in the Cullen Davis murder-for-hire trial provided a telephonic link Wednesday crucial to the defense theory that Davis was framed.

Pat Doolen of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. said the telephone number 732-5941 belonged in August 1978 to Pat Burleson, whom the defense alleges was a coconspirator against Davis.

Referring to company records, Mrs. Doolen told jurors the phone was at one of Burleson's karate studios and was equipped with a call-forwarding device.

The 732-5941 number is the one Davis claims was furnished him last year by a caller masquerading as Fort Worth FBI Agent Jim Acree.

The millionaire defendant maintains the impostor advised him of a purported extortion scheme and instructed him to "play along" with David McCrory.

And that is why, he said, he met McCrory on the parking lot of a Fort Worth restaurant and discussed the contract murders of a divorce judge and others.

Investigators arrested Davis within minutes of the Aug. 20, 1978, rendezvous and charged him with soliciting the murder of Judge Joe Eidson.

Davis insists he himself was the target of a conspiratorial frame-up engineered by his ex-wife, Priscilla, and set in motion by McCrory and Burleson.

Mrs. Doolen, the 17th witness for the defense, explained that a call-forwarding device can be programed to transfer incoming calls to another phone number, even if the other number involves toll charges.

Hypothetically, the jury was told, a call placed to the karate school number, if unanswered, could be forwarded automatically to Burleson's residence west of Fort Worth.

Davis testified that he called the 732-5941 number twice and talked with the man identifying himself as Acree. He said he placed the calls after meeting with McCrory on Aug. 11 and 18.

The defendant told the jury also that he called that number from a pay phone seconds before his arrest, but received no answer. Prosecutors cast doubts on that testimony by showing Davis had only 15 cents in change when taken into custody.

They contend he either completed a call to persons unknown or lied about the purported call to "Agent Acree." Davis testified his change from the 20-cent call was refunded when there was no answer.

State attorneys also demonstrated Wednesday that any calls forwarded from the karate school number to Burleson's country residence would have been toll calls.

And they said the phone company records show no such charges on either Aug. 11 or 18.

Another witness told the jury late Wednesday of an incident the defense said illustrated McCrory's "propensity to concoct elaborate, far-out and crazy schemes ... on the spur of the moment."

Jerry Jones, a onetime business associate of McCrory, said he was present one evening in August 1978 when McCrory interrupted a social gathering to make a phone call.

"When he hung up, he said he had to go get Steve Sumner out of jail, that Steve had been caught breaking into Priscilla's mansion," Jones recalled.

He said he had to leave immediately. He was very serious. Jones said at the time he did not know that Sumner was a Dallas attorney representing Davis, but since had learned that.

Assertions About Ike Tapes Called 'Lie'

HOUSTON (AP) — President Dwight D. Eisenhower's personal secretary says a tape recording system installed in the Oval Office was only used a few times because it was an unworkable "monster."

Ann C. Whitman, former secretary to the late president, called "absolutely a lie" assertions by Rice University historian Francis Loewenheim that a secret taping system was used in the president's White House office periodically from 1953-1958.

Mrs. Whitman said Monday in a telephone interview with the Houston Chronicle from her New York City home that she remembered only one use of the recording system but believed there may have been a few more.

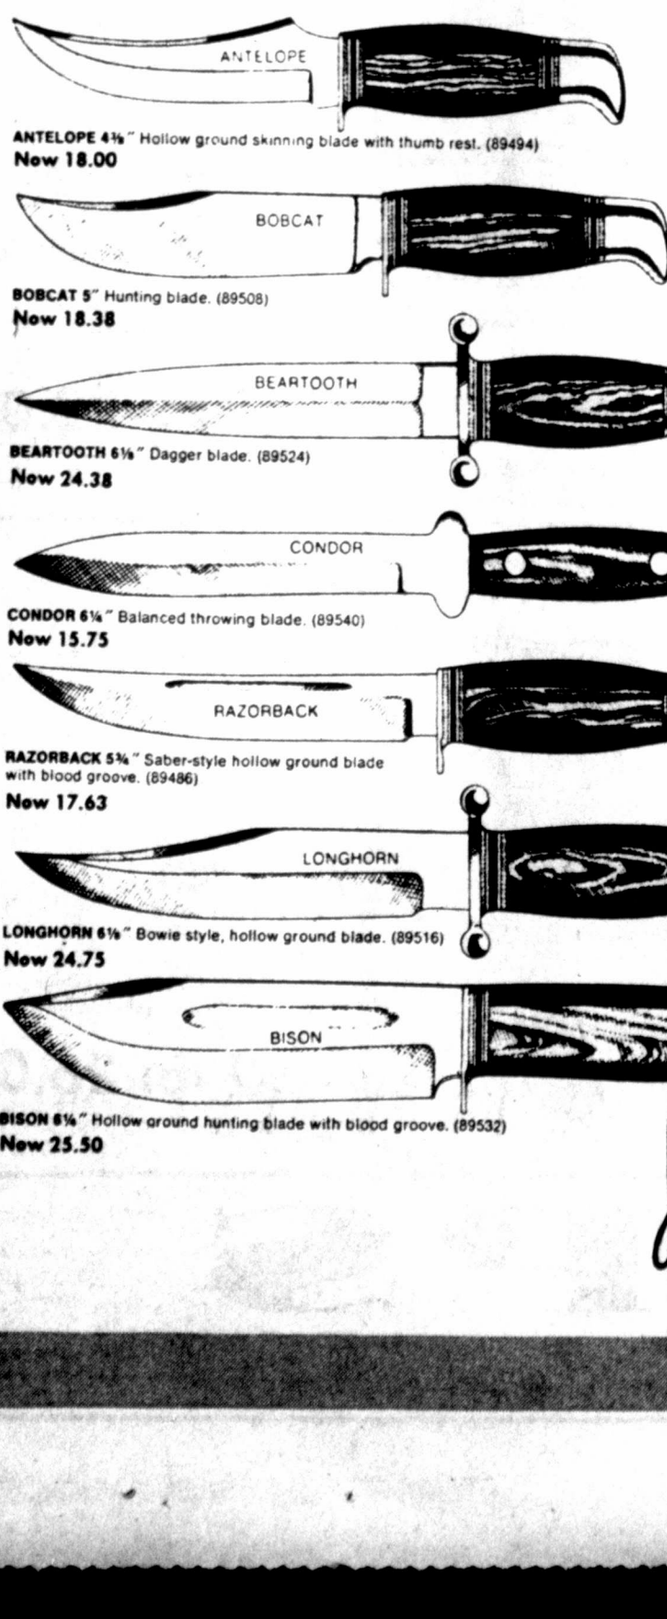

"An attempt was made to install a recording machine," she said. "I think it was before I got there.

Educators Disagree On Bilingual Growth

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Amid renewed speculation on the effectiveness of bilingual education, Lubbock educators have expressed support for the program, but are divided on how many grade levels it should include.

Alton O. Bowen, new state education commissioner, recently told a group of administrators and school board personnel that the value of bilingual education is unclear. "The jury is still out on bilingual education," he said.

But many local administrators and teachers see the program as a positive one. Their views are expressed in the title of an upcoming conference here called, "Bilingual Education Opens Doors."

Ed Irons, superintendent of Lubbock public schools, agrees with Bowen's contention that studies of the effectiveness of bilingual education have shown conflicting results, but says, "I really feel the need for bilingual education through third grade."

He called the first three grades a "formative" period for students to learn English through the bilingual program.

Mary Gryder, director of bilingual education for Lubbock public schools, says that limited English-speaking students who are now in the upper grades probably stayed in school because of the bilingual program. "If they got a good start in kindergarten (in bilingual classes) they'll stay in school."

Mrs. Gryder noted that Texas Education Agency evaluation teams have in the past issued glowing reports of Lubbock's program, and that a recent TEA monitor "was very impressed."

She said that test scores show that the students are English speakers by the time they reach the third grade, but added, "A lot of results can't be found on paper. When you walk into a classroom and see the kids as happy as can be and they are doing well scholastically, that's where the results are."

Lubbock educators, however, disagree on whether upper grade levels should be included in the bilingual program.

Currently, state funds finance the local bilingual program in grades kindergarten through fifth. Federal Title VII money also funds the fifth grade program, and local allocations finance the sixth grade program.

Mrs. Gryder said the program is concentrated in the first four grades, with bilingual education in the fourth through sixth grades utilized on an individual basis where help is needed.

The local program, said Mrs. Gryder, is transitional, aimed at "trying to get our children fluent enough to operate in the mainstream English program." But some teachers would prefer a maintenance program that would incorporate bilingual education throughout the school years.

Bowen, in fact, addressed that aspect of the program, saying that it should be transitional and aimed at moving children into the mainstream rather than trying to preserve their home language or culture.

Members of the Lubbock Association for Bilingual Education (LABE) have for years advocated bilingual education as a maintenance program that should be on the level of other school programs. They do not believe bilingual education should be compensatory.

Sally Velasquez, bilingual kindergarten teacher and president of LABE, says the educational program should teach English and preserve the native culture as well. "You have to feel good about yourself and in order to do that, you have to know about your culture."

She acknowledges that the main aim of the bilingual program is to teach English, but says it also should be a maintenance program through the upper grades or else the aspects of the English and native languages "won't be reinforced."

Mrs. Gryder and Irons, however, maintain that the law concerning bilingual education mandates that it should be provided until students are proficient enough in English to be function at a comparable level with English-speaking students. They say schools are not required to provide the program on an ongoing basis.

Mrs. Gryder believes educators have misunderstood the purpose of the law because when Title VII was first initiated, the wording of the law appeared to promote a maintenance, rather than transitional, program. "But it doesn't anymore," she says.

Irons says the culture of the native language is taught in bilingual classes "because you can't separate language from culture." But the school superintendent does not view the purpose of the program as preserving that culture.

Mrs. Gryder, however, disputes the belief that culture can be taught in the classroom. "The school system can't preserve a culture. It's preserved at home. You can give a history of culture, but the actual culture comes from home."

Both Mrs. Gryder and Mrs. Velasquez are active in preparations for the West Texas bilingual conference scheduled for Friday and Saturday at the Texas Tech University Center.

Topics discussed will include music and culture, role-playing and dramatization, Spanish language arts and Spanish reading.

Guest speaker at 1:20 p.m. Friday is dancer and lecturer Rosa Guerrero.

HURRY UP, BUS — Waiting for a bus can become a downright painful experience, especially if there are no benches at your bus stop. Anything is better than just standing there, as Lola McKnight of 2711 36th St. discovered, as she finally perched on a handy but uncomfortable fire hydrant to pass the time at 50th Street and Boston Avenue (Staff Photo by Bill Janscha).

Damage Tops $1,000 In Tech Dorm Blaze

A candle left burning in a room at a Texas Tech dormitory caused more than $1,000 damage to the structure and contents of the room about 5:50 p.m. Wednesday.

The candle apparently ignited nearby curtains in the ninth-floor room of Weymouth Hall. Other ninth floor residents reported the fire, according to Lubbock Fire Department reports.

MOTHER'S NEGLECT CHARGED

LAWTON, OKLA. (AP) — A mother was jailed on suspicion of child neglect Wednesday, after a fire tore through her apartment and killed one of her three children left alone in the dwelling, authorities said. Police identified the jailed woman as Vanessa Patterson, 20. Her 3-year-old daughter, Dedarrian Sewell, was killed in the Tuesday night fire.

General Calls For Strong Military

By JOE GULICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A military commander with Vandenburg Air Force Base said here Wednesday the SALT II treaty allows the U.S. to maintain a strong national defense.

After his speech to the Rotary Club luncheon, Maj. Gen. James H. Marshall told the Avalanche-Journal the key to the SALT II Treaty is that while it puts limits on long-range strategical weapons, the basic military systems the U.S. needs are all allowed under the umbrella of the treaty.

Marshall said the permitted systems involve improving land-based Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles (ICBMs), manned bombers and submarines armed with ballistic missiles.

The new Trident submarine missiles are one example of a weapons system allowed under SALT II, he said. The Trident missiles are more accurate and have a range two and a half times greater than earlier submarine missiles, the commander explained..

The first deployment of Trident missiles occured just this week, Marshall said, when the S.S.N. Francis Scott Key, armed with Trident missiles, began patrol in the Atlantic.

Improvements also could be made in manned bombers to improve the weapons and equipment and to extend the life of the B-52 aircraft, Marshall said. The biggest improvment in the land-based ICBM's is the development of the new MX missile, with increased warheads and range, he said.

Marshall said he feels the greatest danger of SALT II is that people won't understand it and think it allows the country to be safer without continuing to develop military capabilities.

In his speech to the Rotary Club, Marshall warned that the threat to our nation is greater today than ever before, and the U.S must continue the strong effective deterrent of its military.

Marshall said the U.S. must constantly improve its military system in order to keep it a deterrent.

The Soviets have outspent the United States by $100 billion during the last six years, Marshall said. They have effective new weapons and they have increased the accuracy of their present missile system, he said.

"The contributions of United States space and missile systems are also improving," Marshall continued. He said the president recently approved work for an impressive new U.S. missile system.

Long range weapons have made the Reader's Exchange

By JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

Again, hello! Another week, so let's swap recipes.

Perhaps some of you may be tiring of pie crust recipes, but we really must do the best we can for "Desperate Bachelor." Here is a favorite recipe from Ruby Farris of Slaton.

PIE CRUST
(Makes three pie crusts)
3 cups flour
1 cup good grade shortening
1 tsp. salt
½ cup ice water
1 egg slighly beaten
1 tsp. vinegar

Cut shortening into flour and salt, until pea size. Gradually add last three ingredients. (Note: Mrs. Farris says this is a "never fail" recipe.)

PIE CRUST
5 cups flour
1¾ tsps. salt
2 tbsps. sugar
2 cups shortening (cut in flour)
Mix in cup:
1 egg
2 tbsps. vinegar
Fill with water to make 1 cup

Add egg, vinegar and water to flour mixture. Divide into four balls and roll each on floured board. Makes four pie crusts and can be frozen.

Bonnie adds an interesting hint. She wrote, "I would like to pass on to your readers this trick I have discovered for preparing chicken fried steak. In order to keep the batter from coming off the steak when you fry it, dip steak in milk, then in flour, back in milk and in flour, then fry."

Thanks, I can use that tip myself!

But, now for a big surprise — Mrs. Sully Schrampfer of Lubbock has been clever enough to "borrow" a recipe for baked eggplant similar to that served by Wyatt's Cafeterias. So, for all those who've always wanted such a recipe:

BAKED EGGPLANT
1 lb. eggplant
½ lb. dry bread crumbs
(croutons can be used)
(Note: Mrs. Schrampfer says she uses less bread crumbs, preferring a casserole not so stiff.)
1 small can evaporated milk
¼ cup whole milk
¼ cup finely chopped onion
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
¼ cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup butter
2 slightly beaten eggs
1 tsp. sage or poultry seasoning, monosodium glutamate, salt and pepper to taste
1 tbsp. chopped pimento
2 ozs. grated cheese

Peel and slice eggplant, soaking overnight or for several hours in salted water in the refrigerator. Soak bread crumbs in evaporated and whole milk. Saute onion, green pepper and celery in butter until tender. Boil eggplant until almost tender and drain well. Mix eggplant, bread crumbs, sauteed ingredients with the slightly beaten eggs, adding seasonings and pimento. Place in greased casserole dish and top with grated cheese. Bake at 350 degrees until golden.

All right, readers, what do you think of when the weather suddenly gets colder? — why, chili, of course!

With this in mind, Readers' Swap has requested favorite chili recipes of Mrs. Jimmy Carter and Mrs. Bill Clements. Whether these illustrious women send their recipes or not, won't you send yours?

Please send tips, recipes and requests to: Readers' Swap, Family News Department, Lubbock, Tx. 79408. Recipes printed are not tested by the Family News Department.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Help! Recently, I built a beautiful brick patio in the back yard over a sand base.

My problem is weeds and grass. These little nuisances just love the sand and push up between all the cracks. I have to weed my patio constantly.

There must be something I can use to get rid of them. I hesitate to use strong chemicals as I'm afraid they would damage my lawn. — Mrs. Christine Ballek

Try plain ol' table salt, luv. Slowly pour a small amount between all the bricks, being careful to avoid spilling any on your lawn.

When finished, leave as is. In time, moisture from the air, rain or normal lawn watering will cause the salt to melt or you can help Ma Nature along and dampen the salt with water.

Just sit back and in a few days you'll be pleasantly surprised to see that the "nuisances" have started to turn yellow. Eventually, they'll turn up their toes and die.

If you prefer, you can add a cup of salt to a quart of boiling water (be careful) and pour this solution on the weeds. Control the flow of the salt water by pouring it slowly and keeping it away from the lawn areas.

If you haven't investigated commercial weed killers recently you might want to do so. They are very effective, and if applied as directed won't damage surrounding areas. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I, too, save ribbons for many purposes. After I iron them, I roll them around an empty bathroom tissue roll and fasten the end with a piece of "hair" tape (used when setting hair.)

LETTER OF WARNING

DEAR HELOISE:

I feel I must write to warn readers to be very careful when washing and handling the "farmer" type overalls that are so popular now.

The first time I washed a pair I shook them out before putting them in the dryer and one of the fasteners hit me in the face. It was a painful but, fortunately, not a serious injury.

I was telling a friend about it and she said she saw a young man shake a pair in the laundromat and they hit his nose. It was lacerated so badly he had to have stitches.

Now, I am extremely careful when laundering these overalls. I also bought a laundry bag to wash them in as I believe they could cause wear on the drums of both my washer and dryer. — Vera Lyons

DEAR HELOISE:

Just sitting here having a cup of tea, eating peanut butter and crackers and reading the label on the jar...

Noticed two dollars would be refunded if the label and two more were sent in, so started trying to get it off. Ha!

Spied my still wet, warm tea bag and thought "Why not?" Held it on the label for a couple of minutes and it came off like a charm.

Usually, I'm on a diet (obviously not today) and here's a tip about that: I keep diet bars in the freezer. They taste like candy bars when frozen and take a little longer to eat.

Thanks for all your info and "Letters of Laughter". — Maxine

My little guy was driving me crazy shaking his bed just to make it walk across the floor.

Great fun... but he was damaging the walls in the process.

So I put a piece of sponge rubber under each leg of the bed. He's since found better ways to amuse himself as the bed won't budge. — Karen

DEAR HELOISE:

To remove splinters, rub an ice cube over the area to numb it.

The splinter is much easier to remove and no longer painful. — Eleanor

DEAR HELOISE:

When I bring home a bunch of bananas, I separate each one before putting them into the fruit bowl.

This way, the only banana handled is the one being eaten. Before, every time someone wanted a banana, the whole bunch would be picked up and the remaining bananas (with eight children doing the eating) are usually bruised when put back into the bowl. — Rita Zellner

Good idea, but be careful in separating the bananas so as not to split the skins.

Of course, when we accidentally do that, gives us a good excuse to go ahead and eat one... — Heloise

To Your Good Health

By PAUL DONOHUE

Dear Dr. Donohue: My doctor wants me to have a myelogram of my backbone. He says there is no danger in having it. But I have heard that some people have dye in their heads as a result of myelograms. The doctor says he doesn't perform myelograms, that it will be done by a laboratory technician. Are they really qualified to run myelogram tests? — A.W.

Let me know where lab technicians are doing myelograms. I want to take a wide detour around that area. You misunderstood your doctor.

A myelogram is an x-ray taken after injecting dye into the spinal canal. Ordinarily fluid moves freely in this spinal canal, from the brain (where it is made) down to the lowest part of the canal, in the back. The test is done to see if there is anything obstructing the flow, such as disturbed tissue or a rupture of the discs that separate the bony sections of the spinal column. The dye allows better contrast for viewing of x-ray film.

You mention dye getting into "the head." Dye can flow upward in the spinal canal to the head. It causes no problem. In the hands of a physician skilled in the procedure, benefits of myelograms outweigh any risks. If I needed one I would willingly have it.

Laboratory technicians are among the physician's best friends, but be assured your myelogram would be done by a doctor trained in the procedure with the assistance of an x-ray technician.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 26 and the mother of two. I was in fairly good health until about two weeks ago. I had a gall bladder attack and found I have gallstones. My doctor wants to remove them, but many friends have said I can forego the surgery and live normally with proper diet and medicine. Is this true or do I definitely need the surgery? — Scared of the Knife.

Advice from friends is cheap. Sometimes it is not a good "buy."

You can live with gallstones and not have major problems. Yet, once you've had an attack the chances of having another one remain great, no matter how careful you are about diet.

This much is known: About 50 percent of people who have painless gallstones, and who try to control the problem with diet, fail. Pain develops later on. Serious complications occur about 20 percent of the time.

With this in mind, I would opt to have my gallstones removed rather than risk a second, painful and more serious attack. If you're "scared of the knife," welcome to a very large club. If you want some extra reading on this subject, see the booklet, "You and Your Gall Bladder" which discusses the surgery. For a copy, send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please explain whether a pharmacist is a doctor. I never know whether to call a pharmacist "doctor" or "Mr." There must be others with the same uncertainty. I feel embarrassed sometimes, not knowing which is correct. — J.S.

The registered pharmacist in a drugstore has to have a bachelor's degree in pharmacy. He should be addressed as "Mr." Some pharmacists take advanced degrees, i.e., doctorates in pharmacy. These pharmacists are correctly called "doctor." They are usually found in universities or pharmacies of large hospitals. Most pharmacists I know are not fussy about what they are called, but most don't particularly like to be called at 3 a.m. Who does?

Dear Dr. Donohue: I had a physical and a lower G.I. The x-rays showed normal. Yet, I have been having blood in my stool every day for the last two months. It bothers me mentally, but I have no pain whatsoever. Can you tell me what could be causing this? Where should I go now? — Mrs. J.P.

Blood in the stool is never normal. It might mean something as simple as a hemorrhoid or a fissure (split in membrane locally). But do you really want to take a chance on that? Even though your lower gastrointestinal tract exam was normal, you should not be satisfied until you find out where this blood is coming from. There has to be an answer. A proctologist would be a good doctor to see.

For a better understanding of colitis and other intestinal ailments, their causes and treatment, write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Colitis and Kindred Complaints." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

PRESENTS TOOL — Bonnie Gaston, a teacher in Olton, displays some of the cards used in her skills package which will be on display at Friday's Texas State Teachers' Association meeting. This set of cards is used to help teach grammar.

Olton Teacher Develops New Skills Tool

A Hale Center woman who teaches in Olton has developed a skills tool for teachers and students which should serve as a valuable learning aid in the schools.

The package has been developed by Bonnie Gaston for use with her own students, and endorsed by other teachers with whom she has shared her ideas.

It will be on display at the Texas State Teachers' Association meetings in Lubbock Friday.

Developed by Mrs. Gaston out of her own experience with teaching grammar skills to children, the set includes 20 skills sets, consisting of six student cards and a teacher's card; 20 wall cards, one to match each skill card; and a teacher's handbook with directions, suggestions and games using the skills sets.

They are designed to upgrade the grammar skills of children on all levels, but primarily in the elementary schools. Mrs. Gaston is working on an additional 30 skills sets, and hopes one day to develop a similar resource module for mathematics skills.

Packaged in a plastic carrving case and distributed by EC-CO Educational Products of Lubbock, the "Gaston Enrichment Skills" package utilizes cards with a student exercise on one side and skills rules on the back. They may be used in classroom situations, in company with the wall cards, or in individual study by students.

Mrs. Gaston has used similar cards for several years in her own classrooms, where so many teacher friends have admired the sets that she decided to develop and distribute them for teachers. Working with the printer, she has designed the cards and the line-drawings which illustrate them.

Born and raised in Littlefield, Mrs. Gaston says she "loves teaching," and credits her father for her devotion to the profession. A local farmer who served on the school board and took a personal interest in school matters, the late Mr. J.W. James, wished for all of his daughters to become teachers.

Mrs. Gaston, whose husband is a junior high school mathematics teacher, attended Wayland Baptist College and Texas Tech University, receiving her degree in elementary education with a minor in art. By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

There has been practically no change in the single raise since the first days of contract. There has been considerable thought given to the rebid to three of a new suit. That bid is always a one-round force.

It may be a prelude to slam investigation, a mere game try or simply an extra bid made to confuse the man on lead.

Now look at the West hand. He has a tough lead. Any lead may be a loser. If he is playing in a duplicate game he can ask North if there was any special significance to the three-club bid.

North may reply: "It showed a short suit." "It showed strength." "It asked for help." Or what is very likely: "It is a totally nondescript forcing bid."

At this stage of the proceedings, West is likely to come to the conclusion that South bid three clubs in order to stop a club lead. So West opens a club and now South wraps up his four-spade contract. With any other lead South would have to take the club finesse and go one down.

This all sounds rather unlikely yet this three-club bid was made by the late Sherman Stearns in the 1938 Life Master pairs. West did decide that Sherman was trying to stop a club lead. He did open a club and the resultant top helped Stearns and his partner Morry Elis win the event.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are in the U.S. Army, stationed in Munich, Germany. We have been reading your column in "Stars and Stripes" for a long time. When you spoke to the conclave of teenagers in the Bavarian Alps five years ago, we were there, and so were our children.

In exchange for the sound advice you have given us through the years I would like to share something with you. It is a list of suggestions by army chaplain John Bakle. He calls it "Creative Fighting." Here are the ground rules he has suggested to help strengthen marriages. I hope you will consider them good enough to print. — Long Time Ann Fan

Dear Fan: I do, and I will. Here they are, with my thanks to you and Chaplain Bakle:

(1) Express opinions, desires and concerns as calmly as possible. Listen as well as talk.

(2) Try to appreciate your mate's point of view, even if it doesn't make much sense at the moment.

(3) Differences should not be discussed during meals or at bedtime.

(4) Don't zero in on your spouse's vulnerabilities to gain the upper hand.

(5) Don't rake up old arguments.

(6) Don't call each other names.

(7) Don't use the silent treatment. It ends effective communication and the possibility of compromise.

(8) Avoid wild accusations, verbal abuse, threats and shouting the other down.

(9) Don't play psychiatrist by analyzing the other party.

(10) Don't drag in children and relatives as allies or go-betweens.

(11) Physical violence can never be condoned.

(12) Never go to bed mad.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 13-year-old girl who has a rotten eight-year-old brother. Bobby is a spoiled brat, but I can't touch a hair on his precious head because I am older.

When I won't give Bobby his way, he yells real loud. Mom comes running in and asks, "What happened?" Bobby says, "She hit me" — which is a lie. Then I get punished because Mom says, "He wouldn't be screaming like that for no reason. You are gounded for three days."

I am counting the minutes until I am old enough to leave home legally. It will be five years, if I last that long. Do you have any suggestions that will help me keep my sanity? I am — Hanging By A Thread And Suffering In Alexandria

Dear Hanging and Suffering: Most young brothers and sisters get pesty because they are bored. I'll bet if you could think of some ways to keep Bobby busy, he'd bother you less. Paints, clay, coloring books, games and other kids to play with could solve your problem. Tell Mom I offered these suggestions and see what she says. I'm sure she would appreciate less bickering and hollering, too.

Representative Suggests Varied Recipes For Sausage

By CONNIE CHAPMAN
Family News Staff

Jeanne Owens can tell you more ways to put sausage in your menus than you ever dreamed possible. She ought to know because her family business is sausage — and nothing else, she emphasizes.

Mrs. Owens was in Lubbock recently to spread the news that sausage is one good way to add variety to your menu and cut the cost at the same time. For those of us who grew up thinking that sausage was what you ate with pancakes and that was the extent of their place in meal-planning, her words open up new possibilities.

Besides adding variety to your meals, the cost factor is very important to homemakers like herself, Mrs. Owens said. She points out that a pound of pure pork sausage is now priced at only about half the price of the best ground beef.

She has lots of suggestions for dishes like sausage lasagna, sausage pizza, sausage tacos and — well, you begin to get the idea. Below we share some of these ideas with our readers.

While the controversy which arose several years ago over the contents of hot dogs raised the question of contents of related products like sausage, Mrs. Owens assured us that her particular brand of sausage, at least, contains the hams and the loins of pork since sausage is the only product that company makes.

She also reported that a critter about to become sausage spends no more than one night in the company's holding pens and indeed the whole slaughtering and preparing process may take as little as an hour and a half. Once packaged in the airtight wrap, she said sausage can be safely frozen for a long time and will stay fresh even if just refrigerated for several days.

The advertising for the brand of sausage Mrs. Owens eats plays up the family aspect of the production and when questioned about the authenticity of the claims, she said the outfit is indeed a family operation. Her father-in-law began the whole thing about 50 years ago when a neighbor in Richardson asked him if he would like to offer some sausage and pork cuts with her egg route. The size of the operation grew from then on.

As you might expect, the Owens family does eat sausage — but not for breakfast, she adds. Each morning as her husband Jerry arrives at the office, he tastes some of that day's batch and is able to make a qualitative judgment on just a few bites. Lunch and dinner menus and snacks for parties feature the family mainstay quite frequently, she said.

SAUSAGE LASAGNA

3 lbs. Owens hot sausage
2 medium onions, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
2 garlic cloves, pressed
5 small cans tomato paste
1½ tsps. Italian herbs garlic salt, salt and pepper to taste

Brown sausage and drain.

Saute onions, green pepper and garlic in butter until tender. Then drain.

Place sausage and onion mixture in dutch kettle. Add tomato paste and seasonings. Add enough water to mix tomato paste evenly. Sprinkle a little sugar in mixture and stir well. Let simmer with lid on for several hours.

Repeat layers again, ending with a third layer of sauce. Sprinkle Parmesan cheese on top. Bake at 350 degrees for 30-40 minutes.

HOT CHEESE AND SAUSAGE DIP

2 lbs. processed cheese, melted
2 lbs. Owens hot sausage.
1 large can evaporated milk
1 pkg. dry garlic salad dressing mix

SAUSAGE CORNBREAD

1 cup flour
⅜ tsp. soda
1 tsp. baking powder
1 large or 2 small eggs
½ to 1 lb. Owens sausage
1 cup cornmeal
¼ tsp. salt
2 tbsps. sugar
1½ cup buttermilk

Sift dry ingredients together, then add eggs and buttermilk. Mix well. Fry sausage, drain and crumble. Place sausage in the bottom of a lightly greased square pan. Pour batter over the top and bake in a 400-425 degree oven until lightly browned on the top. Serve with syrup, if desired.

GREEN CHILI CASSEROLE

1 can milnot
1 onion, chopped
½ lb. cheddar cheese, grated
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 can green chilies, chopped
1 or 2 sm. hot peppers, chopped
1 pkg. tortilla chips

Brown sausage and drain. Mix all ingredients except cheese and tortilla chips. Bring just to boiling point. Place layer of chips in greased casserole dish. Cover with half of sauce. Place half of grated cheese on top. Repeat layers, adding cheese last. Bake in 350-degree oven 15 minutes or until cheese bubbles. Makes 6-8 servings.

Cheese Casserole Wins At Fair

BY JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

Ever fantasized that you prepared something especially delicious, entered the dish as an entry in the Women's Division at the State Fair of Texas and then, to your surprise — won!

It could happen and does every year at the state's biggest fair, located at Dallas; and this time, one of the nicest and happiest winners in the casserole category was Mrs. J.N. Bailey, Dallas. Mrs. Bailey is no newcomer to winning in the culinary events; but now she says she has to work harder, since grandchildren have entries in the contests.

Does a prize-winning recipe have to be elaborate? The following recipe supplied by Mrs. Bailey should answer the question with a resounding "no".

CHEESY SPAGHETTI CASSEROLE

1 12-16-oz. package thin spaghetti
1 lb. ground beef
2 8-oz. cans tomato sauce
¾ cup chopped onions
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 tbsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 tbsp. chili powder
1 lb. sliced American cheese
1 can condensed Cheddar cheese soup
1 bell pepper, cut in rings
2 or 3 fresh tomatoes

Cook spaghetti in boiling salted water until tender. Meanwhile, saute onions, garlic, sugar, salt and chopped bell pepper until tender. Add meat and cook until gray. Add tomato sauce and chili powder and cook about 10 minutes longer. Line bottom of casserole with part of spaghetti. Make a layer of sliced cheese and a layer of spaghetti, then meat mixture. Repeat again. Pour Cheddar cheese soup over top and bake 15 minutes at 350 degrees, or until soup has melted. Remove from oven and lay fresh tomato wedges and bell pepper rings on top. Serves about 8.

Appeals Court Reverses Death Sentence In Slaying Of Nurse

AUSTIN (AP) — A San Antonio man Wednesday won reversal of his death sentence in the 1975 stabbing slaying of a nurse who survived for six days after she was apparently left for dead in a field.

Donald Gene Franklin was convicted of abducting Mary Margaret Moran during the early morning hours of July 25, 1975 as she was leaving the hospital where she worked. The indictment charged he killed her during aggravated robbery, kidnapping and attempted rape.

The nurse was found six days later in a weed-covered field. She died one day later from the stab wounds and exposure. Franklin, then 22, was convicted on March 8, 1976 after the case was moved to Nueces County.

The appeals court, which previously upheld the conviction, Wednesday reversed the case in a 5-3 decision.

Franklin's appeal complained the trial court improperly allowed prosecutors to ask him why he did not talk about his alibi during three pre-trial hearings. The majority opinion issed Wednesday said the proscution was trying to show Franklin's alibi was a "recent fabrication."

The majority opinion, written by Judge Wendell Odom, said Franklin was not "expected to speak out" about the case during the pre-trial proceedings.

"Merely having the opportunity to say something does not constitute circumstances in which one would be expected to speak out," the majority opinion said.

The court agreed Franklin testified "for a limited purpose" at the pre-trial hearings. Franklin properly used his right against self-incrimination when he did not talk about the slaying at those proceedings, the court said.

A concurring opinion written by Judge John Onion agreed that the alibi was "totally irrelevant" at the hearings. Onion said the trial court committed "totally unnecessary error" by allowing the prosecution to ask Franklin about his failure to talk about the alibi at the pre-trial hearings.

In the dissenting opinion, Judge Carl Dally said that even if the prosecutor's questions were improper "such error was harmless beyond a reasonable doubt."

Dally contended that jurors heard other evidence which showed the alibi was not made up shortly before the trial. A pair of San Antonio policemen testified Franklin told them the same story shortly after his arrest.

"So considered, the error perceived by the majority is clearly harmless," Dally said.

Other decisions issued Wednesday by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals:

•Reversed and remanded the murder conviction of Jerry Michael Sellers. Sellers had been sentenced to 99 years in prison for the August 1975 death of his wife. Mrs. Sellers' body was found n a shallow Hunt County grave. Sellers claimed he buried the body — but did not kill his wife. The appeals court, in a split decision, found the trial court had improperly allowed hearsay testimony.

•Ordered state prison officials to free Dean Buchanan of Tarrant County. Buchanan had been sentenced to 75 years in prison for the 1968 shooting death of Austin Greer. Buchanan, then 16, was certified to be tried as an adult. He successfullly contended he was denied a required examining trial before he was indicted.

•Affirmed the murder conviction of Paul Jackson Luck. Luck was sentenced to life in prison for the 1976 shooting and stabbing death of Robert William Elledge in Dallas County. The appeal complained the state took no action to correct false testimony offered by a prosecution witness.

•Affirmed the murder with malice conviction of Michael H. Meyer. Meyer was sentenced to life in prison for the 1972 death of a San Antonio convenience store manager. Meyer claimed their was insufficient evidence for conviction.

Hearsay Testimony Spoils Conviction

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals agreed Wednesday a Northeast Texas man convicted of killing his wife should get a new trial because of hearsay testimony at his first trial.

The appeals court, in a split decision, reversed the conviction and 99-year prison sentence for Jerry Michael Sellers. A Hunt County jury found Sellers guilty of the 1974 murder of his wife.

Mrs. Sellers's body was found in a shallow grave in the Northeast Texas county on Oct. 5, 1974. The indictment charged Sellers used drugs to kill his wife on Aug. 20. Sellers admitted he buried the woman — but said he did so after finding the body in his home and fearing he would be charged with the crime.

The appeal was based on the testimony of a Utah sheriff's deputy who was sent to search a trailer rented by Sellers in Utah. The deputy said he was sent to look for guns in the trailer. He testified the landlady at the property became concerned when she was asked about the guns.

The deputy said the landlady told him, "The woman was not shot, she was suffocated."

Sellers's lawyers objected, claiming the testimony was based on inadmissable hearsay. The appeals court agreed and sent the case back for possible retrial.

A dissenting opinion written by Judge Leon Douglas said the admission of the statement was "harmless error."

"In view of the other evidence of the appellant's guilt, the admission of the hearsay statement was not reversible error," Douglas aid.

Court Rules Photos Admissible

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ruled Wednesday prosecutors can offer as evidence photographs of a murder victim who was mutilated.

The ruling came in a 6-3 opinion affirming the murder conviction of a Dallas County man found guilty of killing a man and cutting the body into nine pieces.

Paul Jackson Luck was sentenced to life in prison in the January 1976 stabbing and shooting murder of Robert William Elledge. The slaying occurred after an argument in Luck's apartment.

The opinion stated Luck disposed of the body parts in various locations in Tarrant and Dallas Counties.

Luck's appeal complained the photographs of the victim's body were entered as evidence "solely to inflame the jury," the opinion said.

But the majority opinion said "a photograph is merely a graphic portrayal of oral testimony" and ruled the pictures were admissible.

The appeal also said the trial court erred by allowing prosecutors to talk about an extraneous offense — abuse of a corpse. But the opinion said "events do not occur in a vacuum and the jury has a right to hear what occurred immediately prior to and subsequent" to the crime.

The appeals court also denied several other points of appeal, including Luck's contention that the murder was committed in self-defense. Luck was stabbed during the fight.

The dissenting opinion, written by Judge John Phillips, said the trial court should have allowed jurors to consider a voluntary manslaughter charge.

Marshall Says SALT Allows Strong Defense

world much smaller these last three decades, he said, and every part of the world is vulnerable to attack.

The key to our nation's security over the last years is that we have used technology to create a strategic force of such destructive power that its use is unthinkable, Marshall said.

In 1954, there was clear evidence the Soviets were testing long-range missiles, he said. Development of a U.S. missile capability was undertaken quickly and very successfully, he said. "Had that not happened, we would have been vulnerable to being held hostage by another power," Marshall said.

Marshall said he feels our relative stability with other world powers today is an indication the U.S. is on the right track.

The commander said U.S. strategic forces are built on a triad concept, using land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles, manned bombers and submarines using ballistic missiles.

In addition to land-based ICBM's, in the 1950's large rockets also were designed, he said. To this day, those rockets are the vehicles that put our satellites in orbit, Marshall said.

Our space systems offer military planners many unique applications, he said. Satellites can provide surveillance of other powers' military situations and our milittary commanders can use the satellites to monitor our own forces, making sure they are in the right place at the proper time.

"Space systems help make the cost of national defense much more affordable," Marshall said. As an example, he he said the commanders' monitoring and placing own troops would enable them to decrease the size of the forces.

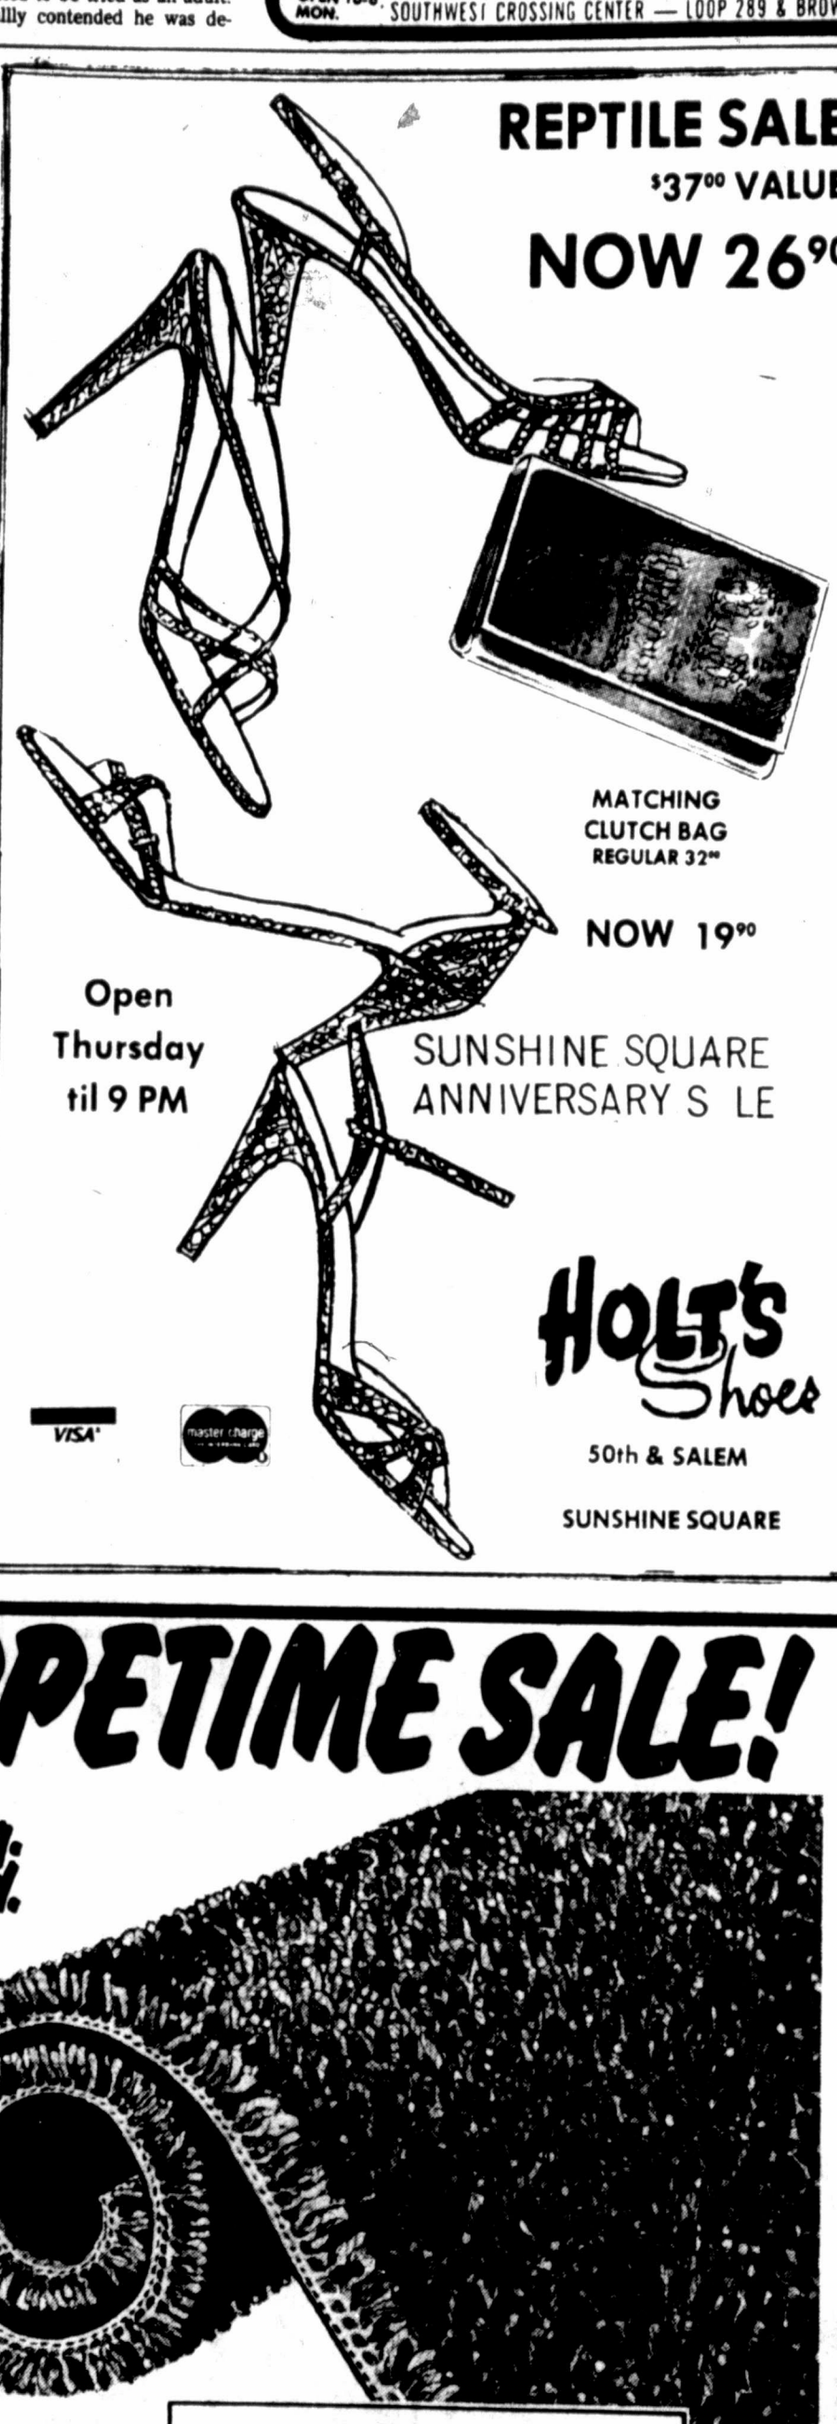

Satellites have given us great improvements in both navigations and meteorological forecasting, Marshall said.

Natural Gas Explosion Injures 15 Evacuees

STANARDSVILLE, Va. (AP) — A natural gas explosion leveled the Greene County government building Wednesday, injuring 15 persons who had fled outside moments before when a foreman dashed in and "told everybody to get on out."

The resulting fire also gutted the adjacent 140-year-old courthouse building, a county landmark. The building's 20-foot-high steeple collapsed through the roof.

"We got all of the people out before it blew," Sheriff Harold Chapman said.

"I ran out with a pen in my hand. That's all I saved," said Alice Mooney, secretary to the county school board.

No one was killed in the explosion that occurred after a backhoe working on an addition to the office building ruptured a gas line about 10:15 a.m.

Witnesses said the construction foreman, Jay Klingel, 30, of Charlottesville, dashed inside the 40-year-old building to warn the 21 persons inside that an explosion was imminent.

Minutes later, the two-story brick building that houses most county offices was reduced to rubble. A side wall, the roof and the floor collapsed. Doors, papers and shattered glass were blown nearly a block. A car parked next to the building was burned to a metal shell.

"We had somewhere around 10 minutes before it blew. They came in and told everybody to get on out" when the line ruptured, said Hunter Birckhead, vocational director for schools in the rural county in north-central Virginia.

"Some workers went back to see what happened, and the whole front of the building blew off," he said.

C.C. Kurtz, chairman of the county board of supervisors, credited Klingel for saving lives. "It's one of their workmen who did some quick thinking to save lives," he said. "You can rebuild buildings, but you can't bring back lives."

He estimated damage at between $2 million and $3 million.

Five rescue squads took 13 of the injured to the University of Virginia Hospital in Charlottesville, about 30 miles southeast of this county seat of 300. About 100 firefighters battled the blaze.

The hospital said seven persons were admitted while the others would be treated and released. All suffered burns and cuts.

Among the injured was Klingel, superintendent for J.S. Mathers Construction Co. of Charlottesville. He who was reported in good condition at the hospital, but refused to talk to reporters.

Authorities said no one was inside the building at the time of the explosion.

A fire started by the blast quickly spread to the adjacent county courthouse. Firefighters were hampered by a water shortage, and the building was reduced to a brick shell before the blaze was brought under control.

Commonwealth's Attorney David C. Dickey said county tax records were destroyed, and there was some question about whether court records kept in a vault in a court clerk's office were burned. Dickey said officials didn't know whether workers closed the vault door before they ran out of the building.

The county government building housed the offices of the court clerks, the county administrator, the school board, the commonwealth's attorney, the county registrar, the treasurer and the commissioner of revenue.

PERFORMING TODAY — Kathi Taylor twirls two loops during a trick roping act involving her, her husband, George, and 5-year-old daughter Tracy. Taylor, in background, also performs as a rodeo clown with different animal acts. The Taylors will be thrilling the fans today through Saturday at the Texas Tech Intercollegiate Rodeo beginning at 8 p.m. in Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Tech Rodeo Opening Today Far Cry From First Campus Event

Topnotch rodeo action blasts off at 8 p.m. today for the first round of the 1979 edition of the Texas Tech Intercollegiate Rodeo in Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

More than 350 cowboys and cowgirls will pit their riding and roping skills against the clock and the tough rodeo stock of Harry Vold of Colorado before top hands are named at the Saturday finale.

The opener is family bargain night, with all seats in the coliseum $3 each on a first-come basis. Tickets go up to $5.50 for reserved and $4.50 for general admission for the Friday and Saturday performances, when country and western singing is added to standard rodeo fare.

Contestants from 15 colleges and universities in the southwest region of National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association will be vying for NIRA points in bareback and saddle bronc riding, bull riding, calf roping, steer wrestling, barrel racing, goat tying, breakaway roping and team roping.

Arena action unwinding today through Saturday is a far cry from the first attempt at rodeo on the Tech campus back in 1930, when the aggie club figured rodeo would raise some needed funds.

There were no hats, boots or jeans to tell the cowboys from the other students. There also were no horses, pickups or trailers.

"Those of us that, from necessity, had learned to rope on ranches, agreed to enter. I was too big a coward to ride broncs or bulls so I entered calf roping."

He intended to go home to Whiteface and ride a horse in to Lubbock for the event, but rain poured down all week turning the campus into "a sea of mud" for the rodeo.

The Aggie club members, Boyd recollects, went out and built two or three corrals to hold stock just west of the old agriculture building.

There was no arena.

"The action faced west and there wasn't a fence, nothing to restrain the animal when it came out of the chute. If you didn't catch it, it could wind up in Cochran County. As I recall it, stock scattered pretty well all over the campus."

"Leather Hat Brown," whose father was a horse trader, brought some horses in from Wolfforth for bronc riding.

Bull riding, Boyd believes, took place on some steers "Tech had on feed" that were sneaked from the pens for the event.

About a dozen cars and two dozen people showed up in weather "still spitting rain straight down."

Boyd borrowed a horse from one man, a saddle from another and the reluctant loan of a rope from under the slicker of a mounted rider helping with the stock.

"Grass ropes were stiff as a poker in rain. Three drops got on it and it was like a board."

The "lucky boys" missed their calves, but Boyd landed his loop like any ranch hand, then had to bail off into the mud to put two wraps and a hooey on a struggling calf.

His prize was a catch rope.

There was little way Boyd could miss the calf. He'd been roping since he could walk, taking "a cotton window sash rope" after his mother's turkeys and chickens.

Then, the lambs put in the barn to rid it of fleas fell prey to a flying loop every time his father wasn't looking.

"I wasn't big enough to unrope a calf if I caught it, but I could handle the baby lambs."

Back then his hero, like for all ranch boys, was a famous neighbor across the fence on the Slaughter Ranch who roped at Boyd roundups.

"The all-mighty Jake McClure would lope 20 miles for the chance to rope. Every little boy tried to copy him."

Boyd did, too, until the first rodeo on the Tech campus showed him he wasn't cut out to be a professional rodeo hand.

Lubbock's Crime Tally Up 4.8 Percent From Previous Year

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The number of crimes reported in Lubbock in 1978 rose 4.8 percent over the previous year, a rate more than twice the national average for the same period.

Statistics released Wednesday by the Federal Bureau of Investigation — which are about a year behind — showed only a 2 percent hike in reported crimes from 1977 to 1978. More than 11 million crimes were reported to law enforcement agencies last year.

The FBI's figures show 5,109 offenses were reported for each 100,000 persons living in the country. However, in Lubbock 22,969 incidents were reported for a population of 175,250 in 1978.

The difference in the FBI figures and Lubbock's statistics may be misleading because the FBI takes in the country's total population, rather than concentrating on just the heavily populated urban areas, local law enforcement officials said.

The rise locally and nationally in violent crimes — murder, rape, robbery and assault — were almost identical, with Lubbock reporting a 4.7 percent increase to the FBI's figure of 5 percent.

Lubbock also jumped ahead of the national average in the rise of reported property crimes from 1977 to 1978. City police reported a 6.9 percent hike, compared to a nationwide increase of only 2 percent.

In more recent preliminary figures, the FBI says reported crimes have jumped sharply in 1979, rising by 9 percent for the first half of the year when compared with the same period in 1978.

Crimes reported in the city from January 1 to September 30 of this year showed only an 8 percent increase over the same time frame last year.

The total number of reported property crimes — burglary, theft and auto theft — for the first nine months of this year in Lubbock was 9,242, compared to a 9,803 tally for the same period in 1978.

The city has recorded 25 homicides for the nine-month period. Two murders have occurred in the city this month.

In the first nine months of last year 24 persons had been murdered, according to reports.

There have been 37 reports of attempted rape and 66 complaints of rape in the city for the third-quarter period of 1979, compared to numbers of 30 and 56 for the same period last year.

City police have investigated 179 reports of robbery during the period this year, which is down from the 206 tally during the same duration in 1978. Business robberies totaled 28, with 31 such reports registered last year.

Assaults reported during the period in 1979 totaled 952, with complainants saying they were injured by a firearm, knife, other weapon or during a fist fight.

The FBI said the number of reported crimes had decreased in 1977 but turned back to an upward trend in the middle of last year.

The bureau's report is based on statistics supplied by more than 15,000 state, county and local police agencies.

The national figures showed that the murder rate rose by 2 percent over 1977, but decreased by 6 percent from 1974. Men were the victims in three of four murders. In one of every five murder cases the victim was related to the assailant.

Other findings:

—Rape was up 7 percent in 1978 and an estimated 60 of every 100,000 females were victims of forcible rape. More than half of the people arrested for forcible rape were under age 25.

—Car thefts rose by 2 percent from 1977 and one of every 145 registered vehicles was stolen last year. Seventy percent of those arrested for car theft were under age 21 and 51 percent were under 18.

—The FBI said police arrested suspects in 21 percent of the crimes, including 46 percent of the violent crimes and 18 percent of the property crimes.

Government Consumer Regulation Said Easing

By JOE GULICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The government is gradually moving out of the field of consumer regulation and allowing business to practice self-regulation, South Plains Better Business Bureau director Alan Bligh said Wednesday.

In the monthly board of directors meeting Bligh said the government is, in some cases, reluctantly departing from consumer regulation, but in other cases has voluntarily passed on control. The BBB is growing everywhere, Bligh said.

Bligh and incoming first vice-president of the South Plains BBB Henry Huneke recently attended the National Council of BBB's international assembly in San Juan, Puerto Rico. Huneke said an often-discussed topic was Texas Attorney General Mark White's giving the BBB the informal customer complaint process of his Consumer Protection and Antitrust Division.

Bligh said the Attorney General's office referred six complaints to his bureau in September and in October has passed on 10 complaints. In Dallas, the BBB is receiving 200 to 300 referrals a month, he said.

The government spends many times more than what it costs the BBB to handle the problems, Bligh said.

Bligh mentioned three significant programs discussed at the international assembly.

First was a Council of BBB program in Minneapolis and St. Paul in which the General Motors Corporation requires all of their dealers to have a binding arbitration process in dealing with consumers. The program has an 83 percent satisfaction rate, Bligh said.

Another significant program Bligh mentioned was the Auto-Line Pilot program being tested by the council in Des Moines and Milwaukee. The project has the support of six major automobile manufacturers and their new car dealers who work with the BBB to arbitrate customer complaints involving their vehicles.

A third program Bligh mentioned was the "Tel-Tips" program, which Bligh said is very similar to the local Tel-Med program. A consumer needing information on a subject calls in and is allowed to listen to a tape containing information on the subject.

The program is already operating in the Western Pennsylvania BBB. Huneke estimated the local bureau is about two years away from beginning a Tel-Tips program.

In other action, the board elected Fred Gothard, Jose Ramirez, Dale Elms and James Miller to three year terms on the board to begin Jan. 1.

War Veterans Plan Pancake Breakfast

The Hub of the Plains No. 1489 organization of World War I veterans will meet for a pancake breakfast Saturday from 8:30 to 11 a.m. in the Adult Center, 26th Street and Avenue P.

Both the women's auxiliary and the men's barracks division will gather for the breakfast to discuss the 1979-80 membership drive.

Mary Forrest of the veterans group said recruitment is especially aimed at the auxiliary which has 84 members. She said that sisters, daughters and granddaughters of veterans now are eligible to join the group.

Members also will discuss plans for the World War I fall district meeting in Big Spring on Nov. 5. Mr. and Mrs. Tom Gill are district officers.

Experiences Of Freshmen Review Set

Academic Vice President Charles S. Hardwick has named a chairman of a blue ribbon committee to conduct the year-long study and recommend general policy guidelines for the freshman year at the university.

Horn Prof. Warren S. Walker of the English department has agreed to chair the committee.

"In the course of its work the committee will review existing university and college requirements, curricula, grading practices, advisement and other academic goals and procedures which bear directly upon the freshman experience," Hardwick said. "It is anticipated that both statistical and subjective data will be sought, and that a broad cross section of the campus community will be involved in the study. The committee may, in the course of its work, seek assistance from various units of the university.

"We want a careful picture of what happens to a student during the freshman year, what courses are taken, who teaches them, attendance records and other pertinent data which can help us improve our quality of teaching and our retention rate — in short how we can better serve freshman students during their time of transition from a home and family environment for studying to an independent, self-disciplined learning situation."

The committee will work closely with the academic council. Three members of the council, Deans Carl H. Stem of business administration, Samuel E. Curl of agricultural sciences and Donald S. Longworth of home economics, have been named to a liasion committee between the Freshman Year Study Committee and the academic council.

Hardwick expects the study committee to complete its work and provide a report by May 1, 1980.

Recent Votes By Area's Congressmen Recorded

HOUSE

SPECIAL-INTEREST MONEY By a vote of 217 for and 198 against, the House adopted an amendment limiting to $70,000 every two years the campaign contributions a House candidate can receive from special interests. Such money usually is provided through political action committees. Of the 435 House members, about 52 received more than $70,000 in PAC contribution during the 1978 campaign. Hundreds of business and labor PACs are registered with the Federal Election Commission. A PAC usually expects a congressman it supports to legislate according to its desires on a given issue.

This amendment also reduced from $10,000 to $6,000 the maximum contribution a PAC can make to a candidate for a primary and general election campaign. It was attached to a Federal Election Commission bill (S 832) later passed and sent to conference with the Senate.

Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., a supporter, said that "left unrestricted, PAC money will become a predominant force in the democratic process which in effect would render the 'process undemocratic."

Rep. Mendel Davis, D-S.C., an opponent, said the amendment wrongfully attacks "constitutionally protected activity, such as free spending by individuals and groups to promote and support their own candidacies or views...."

Reps. Samuel Hall, D-1, Charles Wilson, D-2, James Collins, R-3, Ray Roberts, D-4, Phil Gramm, D-6, Bill Archer, R-7, Jake Pickle, D-10, J. Marvin Leath, D-11, Jack Hightower, D-13, Joe Wyatt, D-14, Kika de la Garza, D-15, Richard White, D-16, Charles Stenholm, D-17, Kent Hance, D-19, Henry Gonzalez, D-20, Tom Loeffler, R-21, Ron Paul, R-22, Abraham Kazen, D-23, Martin Frost, D-24, Manuel Lujan, R-1 (N.M.), and Harold Runnels, D-2 (N.M.), voted "nay."

FUND RAISING By a vote of 298 for and 14 against, the House adopted an amendment that restricts the credit a candidate for a House seat can receive. The vote came during debate on S 832 (see previous vote). A major thrust of the amendment is to require candidates to pay cash-on-the-barrelhead for direct-mail fundraising services. Delayed payment is the equivalent of receiving a campaign contribution, according to the amendment.

Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., the sponsor, said his amendment was in keeping with the bill's overall purpose of limiting special-interest contributions.

Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., an opponent, said the amendment would primarily benefit three groups — the AFL-CIO, Common Cause, and "the incumbent members of the House who would like to have as little challenge as possible."

Members voting "yea" favored the amendment.

Hall, Roberts, Gramm, Leath, Hightower, Wyatt, Stenholm, Hance, Loeffler and Paul voted "nay."

Leland did not vote.

OIL PRICES By a vote of 135 for and 257 against, the House refused to reimpose price controls on the U.S. crude oil from already-discovered wells.

President Carter in June began the gradual removal of price controls as a means of increasing domestic oil production and cutting consumption. The attempt to resume controls came on an amendment to a Department of Energy bill (HR 3000) that was headed for final passage and the Senate.

Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., sponsor of the amendment, said government regulation "is admittedly cumbersome in some respects, but it gives at least some protection to consumers."

Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, an opponent, said shortages and price increases would result if Congress "subsidizes the import of expensive foreign oil by holding domestic producers' prices down."

Roberts and Frost did not vote.

SENATE

PAY RAISE The Senate voted, 43 for and 42 against, in favor of permitting a 5.5 per cent cost-of-living pay raise for congressmen to take effect. After the House concurred, pay for Senate and House members was increased to $60,663.

This vote killed an amendment to block the raise. It came during debate on a funding bill (HJ Res 412) that included money for federally-subsidized abortions. Because it was entwined with other emotional issues, it was less than a clear-cut expression of sentiment on the raise.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D, voted "yea."

Sen. John Tower, R, Pete Domenici, R (N.M.), and Harrison Schmitt, R (N.M.), voted "nay."

SYNTHETIC FUEL The Senate voted, 59 for and 38 against, to establish a $20 billion fund for synthetic fuel projects to be undertaken primarily by private enterprise under the sponsorship of a federal Energy Security Corp. The multi-year fund would be part of President Carter's proposal to develop alternate fuels, such as liquid coal, in order to lessen dependence on foreign oil. The vote came on an amendment to an Interior Department appropriations bill (HR 4930) later passed and sent to conference with the House.

Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W. Va., the sponsor, said "synthetic fuel production is an imperative" if the U.S. is to cut its reliance on imported oil.

Opponents either thought the price tag too high or disliked the procedure of appropriating money before legislation specifically authorizing a synthetic fuels programs had been passed. Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., objected to buying "a $20 billion pig in a poke."

Tower and Schmitt voted "nay."

HERMAN TALMADGE The Senate voted, 81 for and 15 against, to "denounce" Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., for "reprehensible" financial misconduct. The resolution (S 249) adopted by this vote stated, in part, that some $43,435 in official expense money had been wrongfully claimed in his name. This marked the first Senate discipline of one of its members since the 1967 censure of Sen. Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., for unethical conduct.

Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., a supporter, said: "The words gross neglect, reprhensible, dishonor, disrepute, and denounced used in the resolution as reflecting the (Ethics) committee's judgment of Sen. Talmadge should be interpreted in their literal as well as their historical meaning.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., an opponent, said it is "only fair" to note that Talmadge's chief accuser, Daniel Minchew, "pleaded guilty to a federal offense of filing false expense account vouchers and admitted before the Ethics Committee that he lied about a number of matters."

Senators voting "yea" wanted to discipline Talmadge.

Bentsen, Tower, Domenici and Schmitt voted "yea."

Message To Washington

MESSAGE—My luggage was lost on a June 4 flight from Dallas-Fort Worth Airport to Houston. I filed a "Mishandled Baggage Report" in Houston and followed up with a letter two days later to the claims department of the airline involved. They later sent me a form titled "Sworn Statement in Proof of Loss," which I completed and mailed to them on July 25th. By August 21st I had not heard from the airline and sent another leter asking them to expedite my cliam. To date, I still have heard nothing and my patience has worn thin. Please tell me how I can get this settled. M.B.-Cedar Hill

SENATOR BENTSEN RESPONDS—Your check for $564 is on its way, along with an apology from the airline for the long delay. You may be interested to know that the Civil Aeronautics Board recently investigated the claims rules of domestic air carriers and instituted changes that will end some of the problems that have occurred in the past.

BUSINESS TAX DEDUCTIONS AT HOMES

MESSAGE—I need an interpretation of the Tax Reform Act of 1976 as it applies to a music school which I operate out of my home. I have several organs and two pianos in my living rrom and front bedroom and I use my den as a theory room and music supply store. I have a rack of music there that I sell and I also provide theory books and supplies. All my students have use of my bathroom and kitchen as well, to fix coffee and light snacks. I thought if a person sold business products in one part of his house the entire dwelling could be used a sa tax deduction. Am I right? J.L.—Dallas

SENATOR BENTSEN RESPONDS—You are partly right. According to the Internal Revenue Service, only space consistently occupied by materials for sale can be considered to be used "consistently for business." Since your den is used for the sale of music materials, IRS agrees that its use is an allowable deduction. However, since you and your husband use your living room, kitchen and bathroom for personal as well as business purposes, business expenses for those areas would not be allowed.

Committee Considering Legal Aid For Flood

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ethics Committee refused Wednesday to postpone proceedings against Rep. Daniel J. Flood, but agreed to consider giving the Pennsylvania Democrat free legal counsel.

Louis G. Feldmann, who handles Flood's home district legal affairs, had asked the panel to dismiss its case against Flood because the 75-year-old congressman is in ill health.

That request was denied by a 7-0 vote after the committee ruled that it has heard no testimony showing that Flood is not capable of answering the panel's 25 counts against him.

Feldmann also was unsuccessful in requesting that the committee postpone action until the conclusion of Flood's scheduled retrial on federal criminal charges.

The committee has charged Flood with bribery and perjury in violation of House rules.

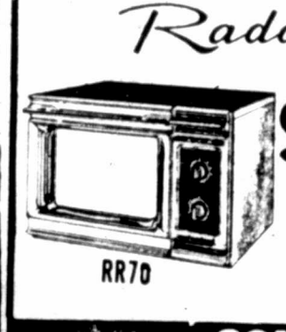

Those charges parallel criminal charges pending against Flood by the federal government — charges that he took more than $50,000 in bribes in return for using his influence as chairman of a house subcommittee on labor, health, education and welfare.

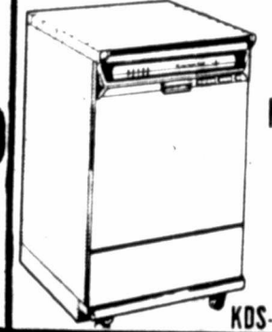

Committee action could result in a fine, a reprimand, or Flood's expulsion from the House.

Pie Thrown In Face Full Of Pins, Says O'Hair

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Atheist leader Madalyn Murray O'Hair said Wednesday she was hit in the face by a chocolate cream pie filled with pins. The pie-thrower denied the allegation.

The pie was shoved in Mrs. O'Hair's face Tuesday night during an organizational meeting of a local chapter of American Atheists as several hecklers shouted and refused to leave.

Mrs. O'Hair filed a complaint against Allen R. Hunter, 31, saying he should be charged with aggravated assault.

"She alleged that the pie was filled with straight pins," Assistant District Attorney George Morrison said. "She said she had pins on her shoulder and pins were found in the pie.

Morrison said the district attorney's office was investigating the case to determine if felony or misdemeanor charges should be filed.

Hunter said he planned the pie-throwing ever since he heard Mrs. O'Hair was coming to the city. He said he bought the ready-made, frozen pie at a supermarket, put it in his briefcase and took it to the meeting. He denied it contained pins.

Hunter said he was a Roman Catholic who resents Mrs. O'Hair's activist brand of atheism.

"She got the Supreme Court to outlaw prayer in public schools while I was a little kid in school," he said. "I really got mad at her back then.

"She intrudes on my environment. The stuff she spreads pollutes my air, and if she contributes to pollution, I have the right to step on her tongue."

Community Services To 'Walk Fine Line'

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock Community Services will be walking a thin line to meet the requirements of the federal agency that funds it and stay out of the way of other city departments that work with the poor, Director Archie Bottoms said Wedensday.

"We're mandated by CSA (Community Services Administration) to seek input from low income people in the neighborhoods," Bottoms told the commission at its monthly meeting. "But we're reluctant to go at it full force because so many other offices are doing the same thing."

Bottoms is particularly concerned with "duplicating Community Development efforts." Those federal funds are allocated annually to the city for improvements in low and middle-income areas of the city. The city determines which improvement projects will get the funds by seeking citizen input through a series of public meetings.

Although they control no funds, VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America) conduct neighborhood surveys as well to determine where to direct their efforts, Bottoms said, noting "We can use what they know; we want to cooperate with VISTA."

Bottoms said Community Services will establish neighborhood groups in the areas it serves to be under its sponsorship and help determine priorities.

"We're not looking for a one-time huge meeting," he said. "We want a nucleus of interested people to meet once a month to advise us."

Bottoms said he is often frustrated as director "because we'll ask the people what they need, then they'll want to know why we can't help them." He said Community Services is limited by the funds it has available, which won't cover the number one priority of the poor — housing.

"We see needs greater than we can solve," he said, "but we can help."

Bottoms also is concerned that the number of surveys conducted throughout the neighborhoods will cause people to loose interest in the different programs. "People can take just so many meetings," he commented.

In other business, Bottoms told the commission that federal funds for Community Services' crisis intervention program have yet to be approved by Congress.

The program steps in to pay utility bills in qualifying cases, but Bottoms says he has no idea when the money will come through or how much it will be.

He attributed the delay to congressional debate over federal appropriations. The funds, which are dispensed through the governor's office, should be appropriated by Nov. 1, Bottoms said.

"I'm getting concerned because we're getting into colder weather now, and we'd be in a bad way if we started spending money we don't even have."

PROTESTERS ARRESTED

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Six people who chained themselves together in a '60s-style anti-war protest were arrested Wednesday at the Military Electronics Exposition. The arrests at the exposition — dubbed a "War Fair" by demonstrators — brought to eight the number of protesters arrested there in two days. "They used plastic tie-loops to tie themselves together," said Dean Grose, spokesman for the Anaheim Convention Center.

Membership Granted Libraries

Twenty-five libraries in the 29-county area served by the West Texas Library System have qualified for membership in the regional public library system during the year that began on Sept. 1. As system members they will be able to take part in cooperative activities to improve library service and increase the range of library materials available in the area.

To carry out these programs, the system will receive a $246,609 grant this year from funds appropriated under provisions of the Texas Library Systems Act of 1969 administered by the Texas State Library. Lubbock City-County Library serves as the Major Resource Center for the system.

System services in the area will focus upon providing technical assistance to libraries and upon increasing the range of print and audiovisual materials and access to these materials. Individual libraries will be able to purchase materials for their collections through the system office. The young adult paperback book circuit, including such support materials as posters and bookmarks will continue.

The 16 mm film collection will be expanded, and libraries also will have access to sound filmstrips on a number of topics through packets rotated bi-monthly. Emphasis will be placed on sound filmstrips in children's literature and guidance for pre-school age children.

Clerk's Reception Date Corrected

It was incorrectly reported in the Avalanche-Journal this week that a reception would be held for retiring Lubbock County Chief Deputy Clerk Evelyn Matthews Wednesday afternoon.

The reception will be from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 31, in the county clerk's office on the second floor of the Lubbock County Courthouse.

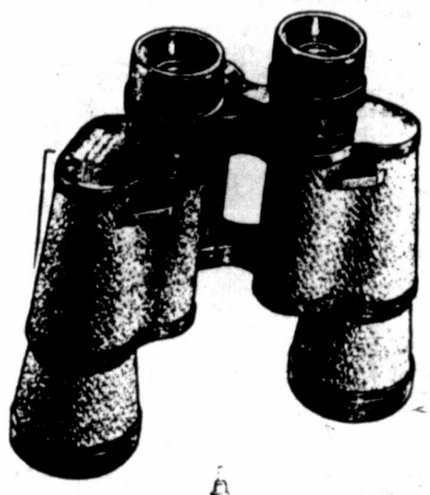

Naval Plane Gets Credit For Rescue

SINGAPORE (AP) — The appearance of a U.S. Navy plane prevented three Vietnamese refugee women from being raped by Thai fishermen at sea last week, a refugee said Wednesday.

The refugee said seven Thai fishermen jumped into the Vietnamese boat carrying 20 refugees, stole money and valuables, tied a tow rope to the boat and took three women into their own craft. He said, "they tried to take away the women's clothes and use force but the U.S. Navy plane came. They quickly released the women ... and cut off the tow line."

'Snowbird' Singer's Schedule More Precise Now

But things weren't always that precise.

"It used to be I'd be on the road for 11 weeks and end up being in places I didn't even know why I was there," she said in an interview between shows at Harrah's hotel-casino.

"That's a stupid way to do things, but I was caught up in it. I Was completely consumed by it."

The change began with her marriage four years ago, and the birth of her son William the next year.

When he was about a year old, the career urges began nagging again, but with some changes in following them.

"I was ready to work again and my attitude was so good — I now had some kind of perspective. Within a half an hour on the phone, I had half a year mapped out. That's the way this year's going. And next year."

Along with the release of her new single, "Broken Hearted Me," this year's Murray plan included the Country Music Association Awards show on national television this month, and two Christmas TV Specials. One television show with Johnny Cash was completed in mid-October, and Perry Como's Christmas special is scheduled for taping at the end of this month.

"In the last year and a half, I've had so much airplay people are wondering, 'Who is this person?' They haven't seen me on television in almost a year. We've got to put a face on and that's what I'm out to do."

She opened her current show in September and plans to expand to a world tour next year. "Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Japan, Hong Kong, Bangkok — and I'm taking the kids. It's five or six weeks. After that, I may be carried away in wet sheets."

She is hopeful her Reno appearance wasn't an indication of things to come. Both 3-year-old William and 6-month-old Dawn required hospital treatment for ear infections. "They were just miserable the whole time," she said.

That was not part of the Murray Plan.

Neither was her success as a country singer.

"When 'Snowbird' became a hit on the country charts, I was flabbergasted because I never had really sung or listened to country music — it was the last kind of music I was introduced to.

"In Nova Scotia, country music probably is the most popular kind of music, but I just never listened."

It was in Nova Scotia that "Snowbird" was born. Miss Murray was appearing on a summer replacement show on Canadian television that originated in her native province. A fellow performer on the show wrote the song and it was produced by the show's musical director.

The 1970 hit was followed by 18 best-sellers including "Danny's Song," "You Won't See Me," the Grammy-winning "Love Song," "Shadows in the Moonlight" and her personal favorite, "You Needed Me."

One event this year that wasn't in the Murray Plan was the Grammy as Best Pop Female Singer of the Year. "That was the breakthrough. I've always liked to sing all kinds of music. That Grammy told me, 'Hey, now you really can sing whatever you want whenever you want.'"

Directing 'Electric Horseman' Proves Difficult

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The Electric Horseman" may offer a prime lesson in how not to make a major movie, admits Sydney Pollack, who directed the Robert Redford-Jane Fonda film.

Yet he happily reports that a recent preview in St. Louis scored the second highest reaction in Columbia Pictures history (No. 1: "Close Encounters of the Third Kind"). The response is gauged by rating cards filled out by members of the preview audience.

"I must say that I have never trusted preview cards," said Pollack. "It seems to me that anyone who stays afterward and takes the time to fill out the card probably has mixed motivations. A lot of them must be exhibitionists.

"I prefer to go by the audience reaction during the screening. I've never had a more vocal response. They yelled and cheered and stomped. They seemed to enjoy seeing a happy picture. The good guys win in the end, even though the lovers don't stay together. But the audience seemed to accept the fact that the romance couldn't be permanent."

Pollack returned to the cutting room to trim 87 seconds from earlier sections and re-record a few lines of dialogue he considered fuzzy. He has to work fast, because the co-production of Columbia and Universal is opening across the nation Dec. 21.

If "Electric Horseman" has a happy ending at the box office, it could knock holes in the old saw: Never start a movie without a completed script.

"We were into shooting with only the first 40 pages written," said Polack, an intense man with curly black hair and a rugged build. "Jane's role didn't begin until page 45. She proved herself a great friend by committing herself without knowing what the script would be. She had worked with me on 'They Shoot Horses, Don't They,' and with Bob in 'Barefoot in the Park.'"

The director explained the production haste. He and Redford had been preparing their fifth film together (others: "This Property Is Condemned," "The Way We Were," "Jeremiah Johnson," "Three Days of the Condor"). The new one was to be "A Place to Come to," based on Robert Penn Warren's book. Scripting ran into snags, and Pollack-Redford were committed to begin production.

The pair remembered a script they had read and rejected in 1973. It concerned a faded rodeo star who is ill-used by a giant conglomerate to sell breakfast food. Pollack and Redford found the script was owned by Producer Ray Stark. Would he like a co-production? Silly question.

All of the principals contributed to the script during filming, Pollack said. The main problem was that Redford, seeing a championship stallion mistreated, steals the horse and escapes on page 25.

"Thus he accomplishes his mission in the first act," the director reasoned. "What could we do after that? We couldn't revert to melodrama. Once he steals the horse, you can't send a villain after him. It was tough to have a second and third act.

"We solved it by taking a lighter approach. The script had begun as a serious piece, but we discovered it was a mistake to take it seriously."

To Pollack's surprise, the sequence he feared would be the toughest proved simple. Redford had to ride the horse, covered with a coat of blazing lights, down from the stage of Caesar's Palace showroom, through the casino and into the Las Vegas Strip. Despite the crowds, the sequence was filmed in three days.

"I thought I was home free," Pollack sighed. The company moved on to St. George, Utah, and encountered unseasonal blizzards that prevented filming for two weeks at a time. Even so, Pollack reports that "Electric Horeman" finished at $12. million,about $1.3 million over budget.

Two Prison Inmates Convicted In Slaying Handed Life Terms

ATLANTA (AP) — Two federal prison inmates convicted of murder in the 1977 fatal stabbing of "French Connection" drug figure Vincent Papa were sentenced Wednesday to life imprisonment.

Daniel Cavanaugh and Alan Reed were convicted Tuesday of murder and conspiracy to murder Papa, who was stabbed to death in the U.S. Penitentiary here as he returned from jogging. Inmate Herbert Sperling was acquitted of hiring Cavanaugh and Reed to commit the killing.

U.S. District Judge Ernest Tidwell sentenced Cavanaugh and Reed to life imprisonment for the murder conviction and 15 years for the murder conspiracy conviction.

Tidwell ruled that the sentences would be served after Reed and Cavanaugh complete their present sentences. Reed is serving 120 years for kidnapping and second-degree murder and Cavanaugh is serving 19½ years for robbery.

Attorneys for both men said the latest convictions would be appealed.

The 59-year-old Papa had been serving a 22-year sentence for a 1975 conviction on charges of conspiracy to distribute 160 pounds of heroin when he was stabbed on July 26, 1977.

Investigators had linked Papa to the $70 million worth of drugs, processed through drug laboratories in France, that were stolen from the New York City Police Department's property room in 1972.

The 398 pounds of heroin and cocaine had been seized in what became known as the "French Connection." The case became the plot of a book and a movie.

During the trial, defense attorneys maintained that key government witnesses made up their eyewitness accounts of the stabbing to gain transfers or parole consideration.

Assistant U.S. Attorney William Bartee defended the witnesses' credibility. He argued that even though some of them testified in other federal prison murder trials, it is not unusual for an inmate to witness more than one violent act.

Precision haircutting is a technique for cutting the hair in harmony with the way it grows. Your hair eventually grows out but it doesn't lose its shape with a precision haircut. Consequently your haircut will look as good after five days as it does after five minutes. And because the hair falls naturally into place you won't have to keep fussing with it. Usually a shake of the head does it.
At Command Performance we shampoo, precision-cut and blow dry your hair for fourteen dollars, whether you're a gal or a guy. And no appointments are ever necessary.
We also offer permanent waves, coloring, frosting and conditioning. But we really shine with precision. And so will you.

Nation's Textile Educators To Meet At Texas Tech Sunday

Textile educators from throughout the United States will, for the first time, hold their national meeting in Lubbock.

The Oct. 28-30 conference is being coordinated by the Texas Tech University Department of Textile Engineering.

Representatives of the National Council for Textile Education (NCTE) and the Educational Committee of the American Textile Manufacturers Institute (ATMI) will hold both individual and joint meetings on the Texas Tech campus.

In addition to discussions on the status of research and education among NCTE institutions, delegates will tour the ACG Textiles plant in Littlefield and will see examples of cotton harvesting, field storage of cotton, ginning, petroleum production and cattle feeding.

James S. Parker, chairman of the Texas Tech department of textile engineering, explained that all of the out-of-town delegates are from eastern states. Texas Tech is the only institution west of the Mississippi River involved in textile education.

"The delegates asked specifically to arrange for them to see some of the activity on the South Plains," he said. "ACG Textiles is unique in that it is the only plant in the nation producing denim fabric from 100 percent open-end cotton yarn."

Parker said that Texas Tech's Textile Research Center, which he directs, also will be host for a delegates' reception.

Represented at the meeting will be Auburn, Clemson, Southeastern Massachusetts and North Carolina State universities, Georgia and Massachusetts institutes of technology, the Institute of Textile Technology at Charlottesville, Va., University of Lowell (Mass.), Philadelphia College of Textiles and Science, Southern Technical Institute in Marietta, Ga., and the Textile Research Institute, Princeton, N.J.

These, with Texas Tech University, are the only schools in the United States which offer textile education," Parker said.

In addition the ATMI delegates will include: Morris Bryan, ATMI president and president of Jefferson Mills Inc.; George D. Ray Jr., chairman of the ATMI Education Committee and president of Southern Mills Inc.; Donald Comer III, committee vice chairman and president of Avondale Mills; George H. Cornelson, president, Clinton Mills Inc.; E.C. Gwaltney Jr., president, Russell Corp.; and Jerome D. Hayes, ATMI Education Committee secretary.

The largest and most valuable diamond ever found is the Cullinan I, mined in South Africa in 1902. In the rough it weighed 3,106 carats or about one and one-third pounds before being cut into nine large stones and 96 smaller ones.

Court Overules Alcoholic's Revocation

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Glenn T. Proctor doesn't have to go back to prison just because he's fallen off the wagon, a federal appeals court ruled Wednesday.

Proctor, 66, described as a chronic and hopeless alcoholic, was ordered back to prison last year when the U.S. District Court in Greensboro ruled that he had violated his probation by drinking alcohol.

"They didn't have nothing against me. Just hearsay," Proctor said Wednesday after the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond struck down the order that his probation be revoked.

The court, in its ruling, said there was no question Proctor was an alcoholic. He had served six months of a two-year sentence for violating liquor laws and was on five-years' probation when the court tried to revoke his probation.

"Imposition of an active sentence, in effect, would punish him for being the victim of a disease over which he has no control," said the appeals court said.

"This unfortunate man, admittedly in ill health, sits quietly in his rural retreat in Guilford County, N.C., and indulges himself in his uncontrollable appetite for alcohol," the court said.

It ordered the case back to the lower court with the suggestion that Proctor be given treatment at "an appropriate institution."

Proctor, a retired tobacco and corn farmer, said Wednesday he was not an alcoholic.

"No sir, I can take a drink and quit, and not take another one for three days," he said. "It don't make no difference what they say about me, I know I don't do it. I don't mess with nobody."

In reversing the lower court, the appeals court said he was a solitary drinker who does not become drunk in bars, on the street or in other public places.

Proctor's court-appointed attorney, Joseph John of Greensboro, said Proctor had been ordered by his probation officer not to drink when he was released from prison in 1975. Last year, the district court ruled he had violated probation because he had been ordered to "follw the probaton officer's instruction and advice."

Requiring an alcoholic to refrain from drinking as a condition for staying out of jail constituted cruel and unusual punishment and was a violation of his rights under the 8th amendment of the Constitution, John said.

Proctor said his original liquor-law conviction came after federal agents found a gallon of moonshine in his pickup truck.

He was twice committed to the state's alcoholic treatment hospital at Butner, N.C., and was allowed to leave after 72 hours.

Proctor said he drinks only moonshine and beer and does not intend to return to the hospital.

"They didn't do a thing, just give me a shot or a pill once in a while," he said. "I don't see there'd be no use for me to go back."

AMC MPG UP

DETROIT (AP) — American Motors Corp. said Wednesday its 1980 model cars should average 21.1 miles per gallon, a figure that would bring the average for the U.S.-built fleet to 21.5 mpg or only ½ mpg less than the industry requirement for 1981. AMC's average last year was 19.9.

Council Action Set On Overton South

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The five-month effort of the Overton South Neighborhood Association to have the central Lubbock area declared a Design-Historic district is expected to reach some form of conclusion today when the city council acts on the association's request.

However, a decision on the district and on the 11 recommended landmark structures inside the neighborhood should be anything but simple.

During Urban Design Commission and Planning and Zoning Commission hearings on the proposed district, opposition to the eastern boundary surfaced from some Avenue Q businesses, primarily American State Bank.

The businessmen have said they fe..r the eastern boundary, now recommended to follow Avenue R roughly between Broadway and 19th Street, would limit commercial development west of Avenue Q.

Opposition to the association's district application came most recently from Lubbock school trustees who voted to ask that Lubbock High School and Thompson Junior High not be designated landmarks and that the schools be removed from any design-historic district.

Two other proposed landmarks, owned by the First Baptist Church, also have generated controversy. The church purchased the two 13th Street houses, intending to use the lots for parking.

However, the Zoning Board of Adjustment refused to grant the approval for the parking lots and the Urban Design Commission halted demolition on the two houses until a decision on their landmark status is reached.

Efforts by the association to purchase the houses have been unsuccessful.

Amid the controversy over the district and its landmarks, the council began discussing an amendment to the Urban Design Ordinance to essentially make the landmark designation voluntary on the part of property owners.

Those involved in historic preservation in Lubbock said such a change would nullify the year-old ordinance.

The council will discuss what form that amendment should take at Thursday's meeting.

At 10 a.m. council members will hear public comment on a Human Relations Commission recommendation that Quirt Avenue be renamed in honor of Martin Luther King Jr.

However, a 1949 city ordinance which establishes the procedure for naming streets east of Avenue A would have to be amended to change the street name and council members have said they fear setting a precedent of naming a street after a person.

Because of those factors, council members also want suggestions on alternate ways to honor the slain civil rights leader, like naming a city park after King.

That idea has been rejected by the Human Relations Commission.

Also, council members are expected to approve on final reading an ordinance changing 15th and 16th Streets between University Avenue and Avenue Q from one-way to two-way.

That change was recommended in a traffic study the council received in July, but Tuesday a group of downtown businessmen said they will oppose the change.

The council will consider allocating $32,000 in Community Development contingency funds for a traffic signal at 23rd Street and Avenue A, recently approved by the highway department.

Citizens Traffic Commission member Harold Chatman requested council action on the signal and the council voted to seek the light even if it does not meet highway department accident and traffic volume requiements for a signal.

The council is expected to formally set Jan. 19 as the date for an election on a request by firemen for a 15 percent pay hike and collective bargaining rights.

At the last meeting, the council rejected the proposed pay increase ordinance.

Also at the meeting council members are expected to:

— Discuss financing low interest loans with the sale of mortgage bonds.

— Discuss ways to finance a senior citizens room at the branch library to be built at Loop 289 and South Quaker Avenue and consider authorizing bids for the structure.

— Consider the claim of W. A. Holeman that a historic house he owned and which burned Aug. 19 was damaged extensively because the Lubbock Fire Department did not respond immediately.

Jobless Rate Dips; Factory Work Lagging

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock unemployment has fallen to 3.2 percent from a summertime high of 4.3, but manufacturing employment has lagged behind fall 1978 levels, according to a Texas Employment Commission report.

In mid-September, the civilian labor force in Lubbock County totaled 104,500 or almost 4,000 more than a year ago.

TEC labor market analyst Jerry Boudreau said he can't pinpoint the cause of the manufacturing slowdown and said he is not certain it is related to the current national recession.

"Manufacturing is probably the most volatile segment of the local economy," Boudreau said. "It goes up and down in relation to orders."

Lubbock manufacturing employment was 13,300 in September 1978 and 12,480 last month, the TEC said in its latest Labor Market Review.

"Expectations for the final quarter of the year are for continued expansion as harvest-related needs and holiday shopping exert further demands for capable help," the review said.

"The civilian labor force is expected to surpass the 105,000 mark with employment falling to 3 percent or lower by year's end."

Boudreau said total employment showed a slightly stronger increase than expected in September.

"Wage and salary totals moved up by more than 3,000 additional jobs over the previous month," the report said. "Almost all of the increase seemed to be seasonal with three out of four of the jobs attributed to the public sector as Texas Tech University and the Lubbock public schools began the fall term.

"Manufacturing is the one major segment that appears to be lagging behind last year's totals in employment.

"Both durable and non-durable goods manufacturing are trailing year-ago levels. Hiring activity as a whole is lower than usual, although in non-durable goods the closing of two plants within the past year is the major cause of the deficit."

The report referred to the closing of Levi's and Rainbo Baking plants.

Boudreau said a strong fall showing from the agricultural segment, which experts are cautiously saying is possible, would help all segments of the Lubbock economy, especially the manufacture of non-durable goods because cotton oil mills are a major part of that segment.

"Following the normal pattern for the area," the report said, "mid-September unemployment moved downward to 3,360 or 3.2 percent from the 3,790 or 3.7 percent of August.

"The decline is expected to continue during the final quarter of the year and follows the trend evident across the Panhandle and West Texas area."

California has more than 25 percent of the nation's five million registered aliens, or 1,260,841. New York is second with 800,719 and Texas, Florida, Illinois, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Michigan, Pennsylvania and Connecticut follow in that order.

Steelers, 'Pokes Set For Super Bowl Practice

"They don't give you a trophy if you beat them Sunday," Landry said. "They just give you one game."

And Steeler head coach Chuck Noll is just as coy. He won't say anything out of the ordinary about the forthcoming battle between the National Football League's two giants. For the Steelers, it's just another game in a 16-game regular season schedule.

That game Sunday means more to me and the followers of both teams than just another win or loss. I call Sunday's clash Super Bowl XIII 1/2 — because these, the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Dallas Cowboys, are the same two teams that met in Super Bowl XIII in Miami and thrilled millions with their gridiron exploits.

I call this Super Bowl XIII 1/2 because these are my picks to meet again in Super Bowl XIV in Pasadena in January.

What else can you call this game — placed exactly halfway through the 1979 season? It is a game between the two best squads the NFL has to offer. When these two teams meet there is excitement, tension, thrills and a hundred other things that other NFL contests just don't have.

These two teams hate each other, but they also respect one another to the Nth degree. They've traded insults, compliments, bar-jarring tackles and touchdowns. Meetings between the Steelers and the Cowboys have developed into the most intense rivalry in pro football.

The Cowboys have gone through the so-called motions and won seven of their first eight football games. Dallas hasn't been spectacular in whipping San Francisco, Chicago, St. Louis and the rest, but they have the best record in the professional ranks.

Landry did get the troops up for a Sunday night encounter with arch-rival Los Angeles two weeks ago and the 'Pokes punched the lights out on their supposed greatest threat in the NFC by a 30-6 margin.

And then there's Pittsburgh, a team that was embarrassed less than two weeks ago by the lowly Cincinnati Bengals. In that game, the Steelers turned the football over nine times and were thrashed 34-10.

BUT IT WAS THE SAME Steelers who demolished the Denver Broncos 42-7 Monday night. It was an awesome display of offensive and defensive prowess. And it proves that Noll's clan is still moved by a challenge, from anyone.

Both Noll and Landry are correct on one count. The loser of Sunday's game in Three Rivers Stadium is by no means going off in a corner and hide. No way. These teams have a date with destiny Sunday, January 20 in the Rose Bowl. The loser will just go its own merry way until these two bastions of football excellence cross paths again. And when they do, it will be no-holds barred.

Keeping Dallas out of the playoffs this season would be like trying to keep the oil industry out of your pocketbook. Unless you're into jogging to work and cooking food on a wooden stove, it's no use.

No team in the National Conference can compare with Dallas when it comes to sheer football expertise and execution. The Cowboys have all the weapons and the generals who know when to use them.

Philadelphia and Washington may offer some resistance to the Cowboys' march to the playoffs, but it will be token. Once there, Landry will burn a trail of triumphs like Patton did across France and Germany.

LOS ANGELES, TAMPA BAY, New Orleans Philadelphia and Washington are the best bets for the other playoff berths and between the five

Picadors Host Ranger JC

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

The top-ranked junior college football team in the nation will be in Lubbock this evening to help the Texas Tech junior varsity grid squad close out its three-game 1979 schedule.

Ranger Junior College and the Texas Tech Picadors tangle at 7:30 p.m. on the carpet inside Jones Stadium.

Tim Marcum's Rangers have posted a 7-0 record this season and have been ranked No.1 all year by the National Junior College Athletic Association.

The Picadors are 1-1 after last week's 42-7 loss to the University of Houston junior varsity. Tech's lone victory was a 10-8 decision over the University of New Mexico JV.

Ranger and Tech played at Jones Stadium last season. Ranger's Joe Calderon booted four field goals as the Purple and White kicked the Pics 12-3. The Picador points came on a field goal by John Greve.

The Rangers move on offense from the split-back veer and I formations. Tech is strictly a split-back veer team.

Freshman running back Clifford Bailey and junior split end Walter Turner turned in good performances for the Picadors in the 42-7 loss to Houston. Bailey, a 6-2, 195-pounder from Tahoka, rushed for 81 yards, and Turner, a 6-1, 165-pounder from Houston, caught two passes for 38 yards and Tech's only touchdown.

The Ranger attack features the running of sophomores Jerome Lanier and Cleo Lewis. Lanier, a 6-0, 229-pounder, has scored 17 touchdowns and gained 909 yards in seven outings this season. Lewis, 5-10 and 184 pounds, has added 914 yards on the ground.

Defensively, the Picadors will go with freshmen Jeff McGowan and Rob Wills at the outside linebacking positions. Freshmen Brent Bates and Van Hughes will begin the contest at the tackle spots and junior Rick Kempf will open at noseguard.

Stan Williams and Greg Chafin, another pair of first-year players, get the starting nod at inside linebacker. Freshmen Calvin Wilke and Steve Heniford are the Tech cornerbacks and Jerry Hatchett and Keith Davis are the starting safeties.

Jesse Garcia, who is one-for-one in the field goal department and two-for-two with extra points, will do the punting and kicking for the Picadors.

There will be no admission charge for those persons wishing to watch the Picadors against the Rangers.

Raider Club Meets Today

Texas Tech head football coach Rex Dockery and one of his asssistant coaches will be on hand at today's weekly Red Raider Club luncheon to discuss last Saturday's 30-7 victory over Rice and preview the November 3 meeting the Red Raiders have with the University of Texas Longhorns in Austin.

The Red Raider Club meeting begins at noon at Vann's Koko Palace, located at the corner of 50th Street and Avenue Q. All Red Raider Club members and their guests and persons interested in joining the Red Raider Club are invited to attend and hear Coach Dockery speak.

Felton Not 'Cornered' — Yet

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Eric Felton finds himself living in a bubble these days. But to tell the truth, he'd rather be there than in a safe, high-rise condo any day.

Cornerbacks are like that, you know.

A starting corner in the New Orleans Saints' defensive secondary, Felton regards the position — considered the most demanding in the National Football League — as a challenge, nothing more, nothing less. So every Sunday afternoon, under the watchful eyes of both in-stadium fans and TV viewers, Felton goes to work, knowing full well that his every footstep is being studied. But, then again, cornerbacks wouldn't have it any other way. In another life, they'd probably want to be that bug under the scientists' microscope.

"Sure it's demanding," agreed the second-year pro from Texas Tech. "But I don't think I'd like it if it wasn't. I enjoy that challenge. I really do. That's what the game is all about. . . the challenges."

Because of his relative inexperience in the league, Felton thought moreopposing quarterbacks would single him out. You know, pick on the block's new kid. But so far, Felton says, that hasn't happened — yet. And if it did, well, that's OK, too.

"I like to have quarterbacks throw at me," admitted Felton. "When they throw at you, you get to see how good a football player you really are. You get to prove yourself.

"But they haven't been throwing at my side lately. I don't know why, either. If I was a quarterback I would."

And if Felton gets beat every now and then while while putting in his 40 hours, he says it's nothing to mourn about. It simply comes with the turf, fans.

"Things like that are going to happen," commented Felton. "Everyone has gotten beat...everybody. What you have to do is make up for it the next time. You learn from your mistakes and try not to let it happen again. You just keep working."

An All-Southwestern Conference performer at cornerback for the Raiders in 1977 (the year Tech tied Houston for the SWC title), Felton has played the corner so long "it's my home now. I wouldn't feel comfortable anywhere else."

Felton, also a former Lubbock High football and basketball standout as a schoolboy, took over the starting position four weeks ago against the New York Giants. Prior to that contest, he'd been hobbled with an ankle injury suffered against Tampa Bay and had sat out the first four weeks of the season. But now he's healthy and ready to help lead the Saints to a divisional crown.

"We're starting to come around as a team," said Felton about the Saints, now 4-4 for the year after putting together a four-game win streak. "I think we're looking pretty good. The defense had some key people hurt early. But they're back and our timing is starting to come around. We're playing like a team."

Currently the Saints are tied with the Los Angeles Rams, the division winners last season, for the lead. Both teams are 4-4 at the midway mark.

According to Felton, the winning ways of late for New Orleans has not only had an exhilirating effect on the team, but also the entire win-starved city.

"This is one of the greatest sports cities in the country," said Felton. "The fans are really crazy about football — just like at Tech. They really want a winner here bad. If we could put things together and win (the division) there's no telling what they'd do here."

Last season — Felton's rookie year — the Saints finished the year with a 7-9 mark. Although a games under .500, it was still the best record ever posted by a New Orleans team since the club's conception. Like this season, the team was 4-4 at the midway point, but as the year wore on the Saints fell into a slump, losing five of their next eight games. The backstretch was nothing to write home about. It was during that slide, Felton hoped to break into the starting lineup, but he never did.

"As a rookie I thought I should have started," said Felton. "But coach (Dick) Nolan doesn't like to start rookies. I knew that. The first year they (the coaches) try to teach you how to play cornerback like a pro — not like in college. It's a lot different. You learn it's not only a physical game but also a mental one, too.

"When some (rookies) start they like to go-go-go instead of thinking. And it's important to think in this game. But when I got here I already knew that. I'd had good coaching at Tech. It was just second nature to me."

Felton feels the toughest aspect of the pro game is the long season, which consists of 16 regular season games and four exhibition contests.

"It can take a toll on a player," commented Felton. "It gets to you after the 14th game. You begin to feel sluggish . And if you don't have the playoffs to shoot for that makes it even tougher on you — mentally especially."

Because Felton was a rookie instead of a seasoned-veteran he didn't have trouble getting ready for the final few games, despite the fact the contests were meaningless.

"Last year I was excited everytime we played," said Felton. "It was a new experience...a new town."

Still, though, the game isn't like the one he remembers at Tech or Lubbock High. Football has changed for Felton.

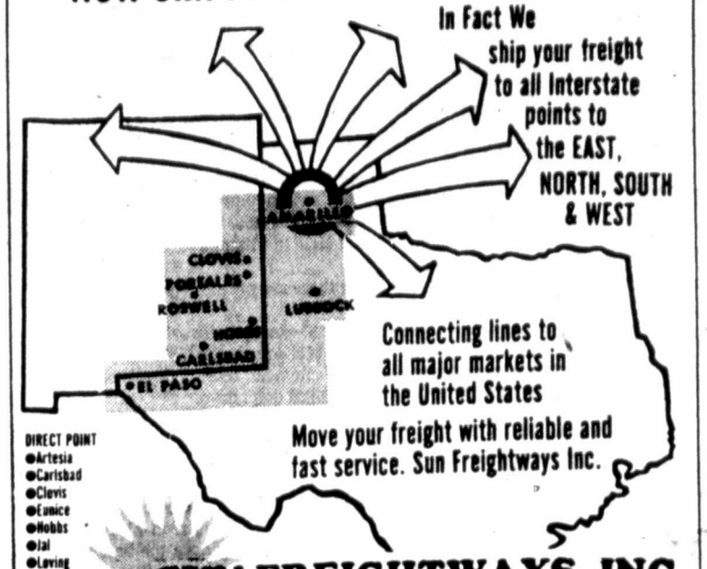

"It's not that rah-rah stuff any more," explained Felton. "And I guess it's not as much fun — in a certain way. Now it's more a stratigical game and I guess I enjoy that more."

Panthers Host Canyon Tonight

The Dunbar Panthers, desparately in need of a win, will host the Canyon Eagles tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Lowrey Field.

The Panthers are 1-5 on the year and 0-1 in district play after they suffered a 42-6 setback at the hands of the Levelland Lobo's last week in Levelland.

Canyon, on the other hand, is tied with Estacado for the loop lead with a 1-0 slate. On the season the Eagles are 3-3. They opened district play last week by crushing Borger 20-7.

Fullback Barry Watson, an all-district selection last year, leads the Canyon ground attack. Veteran halfback Robert Johnson is also a threat in the Canyon backfield.

The Canyon defensive unit, although not as strong as a year ago, has been stingy with the opposition. After being blown out 35-7 by Monterey in the season opener — the Eagles have yielded only 32 points in the last five ballgames.

Last year, the Eagles posted four shutouts and allowed only an average of 5.5 points an outing. Dunbar did slightly better than most teams against the Eagles a year ago as they posted seven points against Canyon.

However those seven points didn't stack up too well against the 34 tallied by Canyon. Incidentally Watson scored three touchdowns that night as he gained 66 yards on 14 carries.

Undoubtedly, the Panthers remember him well.

Fabian Garcia heads the Dunbar offensive attack. Garcia has proven to be the most consistent of an entire fleet of Panther backs thus far in the season.

The wife of Dunbar head coach Van Jefferson has been hospitalized since the beginning of the season and the Panther boss has been unable to work with the team as much as he would like.

Yeoman Says Cougars Need More Toughness

HOUSTON (AP) — A stranger to the University of Houston campus would have little trouble sensing that a big event was brewing, like Saturday's showdown between the sixth-ranked Cougars and fourth-ranked Arkansas Razorbacks.

"Everyone's talking about the game," defensive tackle Hosea Taylor said. "I guess I'm superstitious but this means something to me. Like, nobody talked about the Aggies before that game and we weren't up for it.

"We did talk about the Baylor and SMU games and we were up for those. Coach (Don) Todd told us the SMU game would be won at the line of scrimmage and so will the Arkansas game. Our defensive line has yet to get really up for a game, but I think we will for this one."

Getting "up" is the least of Coach Bill Yeoman's coaching problems this week. The high stakes atmosphere takes care of that but getting the UH offense untracked is harder.

"Our backs are just not tough enough," Yeoman said. "They haven't yet taken the bit in the mouth. They just need to get a firmer frame of mind. When you have that firmness, the ball doesn't drop out of your hands as much.

"We're going to have to throw better and catch better. We've just not been aggressive enough offensively."

Yeoman will open with Delrick Brown at quarterback with "relief pitcher" Terry Elston ready to come off the bench. Terald Clark and John Newhouse will be the running backs.

A victory over the Razorbacks would give the Cougars a 7-0 record and their best start in history. Houston got off to a 6-0 start in 1973 but lost the following week to Auburn.

Arkansas' ability to capitalize on opportunities worries Yeoman.

"They got 189 yards against Texas and that's not exactly scorching the Astroturf," Yeoman said. "What they did do was when the opportunity afforded itself, they did what had to be done to win the game."

Hadnot Fifth In Nation

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The 204 yards that Texas Tech fullback James Hadnot accumulated last weekend against Rice made him the nation's fifth-leading rusher, according to statistics released this week by the NCAA.

Hadnot is averaging 132.6 yards a game. Charles White, Southern Cal's fleet halfback, is leading with an average of 166.8 yards per contest.

Gary Anderson of Arkansas is 14th on the punt return list with 192 yards for an average of 10.7 yards per return. But his 130 yards against Texas Tech is the most any punt returner has had in one game this year.

Five SWC kickers are in the rankings. Goodson's 12-for-17 field goal performance ranks him No. 1 with 2.4 field goals per game. Texas Tech's Bill Adams, who hasn't missed an extra point this year, has kicked 12 of 15 field goals and is third nationally with an average of 1.71 three-pointers per contest.

Seahawks' Largent Accidently Shot

KENNEWICK, Wash. (AP) — Steve Largent, the Seattle Seahawks' acrobatic wide receiver, provided a little extra excitement for some of his teammates but was not seriously injured by a shotgun pellet that struck him in the neck.

Sawyer, who has spent the season on the injured reserve list, admitted he was scared when he heard Largent shout on impact, but regained his composure quickly.

Center Art Kuehn and fullback Dan Doornink also were in attendance during the accident.

PGA Plans Tourney For Senior Golfers

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Boasting more than $400,000 in winnings between them, Andy Bean and Jerry Pate have been installed as favorites for the National Team Golf Classic at Disney World this weekend.

But the pre-tourney talk among the pros and their officials centered on decisions to add a "seniors" tour, plus a "minor-league" mini-series of qualifying tournaments for players who fail to make the top 100 money list.

PGA Commissioner Deane Beman has outlined plans to set up four $100,000 tournaments late next spring which would be used to give qualifying exemptions for the rest of the tour year to the champions and top-five money winners of the series.

This could eventually lead to a permanent split of the current tour into major and minor tours.

Beman also announced tentative plans for six tournaments for players 50 years and older for 1980.

Details and sites of the two new series were incomplete, but Beman said the plans had been approved by the Tournament Policy Board, meeting here in conjunction with this last event of the year, a unique $250,000, best-ball event featuring 104 two-men teams.

Floridians Pate and Bean were the pre-tourney best-bets based on their strong season and their familiarity with Florida courses. But the championship has usually gone to the unknowns, or tour rabbits, such as last year's champions Wayne Levi and Bob Mann.

Jack Nicklaus, Tom Watson, Lee Trevino and several of the top tour winners are not entered, but other favorites include the teams of Tom Weiskopf-Ed Sneed, Ben Crenshaw-George Burns, Tom Kite-John Mahaffey, Larry Nelson-Lyn Lott and the defending champions.

The first two rounds of the 72-hole event, which provides a year's qualifying exemptions for the winners, are played on Disney's Magnolia and Palm Courses.

Beman told an annual players meeting Tuesday that 34 older players are committed to play six seniors tournaments in 1980. The series would have a Seniors Championship event with a purse of about $200,000, Beman said.

South Carolina Players Threaten Walkout If McGuire Removed

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The 14 members of the University of South Carolina basketball team threatened to quit Wednesday if Coach Frank McGuire was fired.

A broadcast report Tuesday said McGuire had rejected a demand by the South Carolina trustees that he agree by Friday to step down as coach and accept a public relations job at the university.

Team captain Mike Doyle, in a statement signed by the other 13 members, said, "The team unanimously agrees that if Coach McGuire is fired we will not play."

McGuire said Tuesday he had no knowledge that he would be fired, adding that he expected to coach at least through the 1979-80 season.

University President James Holderman said the report by Columbia radio station WSCQ was based on "unfounded rumor," and trustees chairman R. Markley Dennis said the board had not issued any "ultimatums" to McGuire.

Doyle told The Associated Press Wednesday that the statement "was the team's idea. Our coach had nothing to do about it." McGuire, advised of the statement, said "he's proud of us. He's happy we're behind him," Doyle added.

The statement was signed by Doyle, Kevin Dunleavy, Kevin Darmody, Michael Schwartz, Cedrick Hordges, Henry Atkins, Jim Graziano, Zam Fredrick, Derrick Scott, Jimmy Foster, Mark Connaughton, Jim Strickland, Tom Wimbush and Kenny Reynolds.

A Columbia newspaper reported Wednesday that McGuire turned down the trustees' offer of a $75,000-a-year job as special assistant to Holderman. According to The State, McGuire also was told he could conduct basketball camps at the school's Columbia and Conway campuses and could receive profits from those ventures.

"It is rumored that at the board of trustees meeting this Friday, Oct. 26, enough votes will be received not to renew Frank McGuire's contract as head basketball coach unless he agrees to take a job as vice president for public relations next year," Doyle's statement read.

"Our team is angered by the way the board of trustees has seemingly gone out of their way to embarrass Coach McGuire and demoralize our team on the eve of the season we know will be a highly successful one," it continued.

Doyle said he wrote the statement because "I wanted everybody to know about this. The team is confused over this. We're behind Coach McGuire 1,000 percent."

He said the team was "going to stand behind him (McGuire) all the way," no matter who was considered by the university as a successor. WSCQ reported that Philadelphia 76ers' assistant coach Chuck Daly was among those being considered by South Carolina officials.

Asked if he realized he might lose his scholarship because of the statement, Doyle said, "I know."

McGuire, the only college coach to win more than 100 games at three schools, has been at South Carolina for 15 years. Elected to the National Basketball Hall of Fame in 1977, McGuire led North Carolina to the NCAA title in 1957. His first collegiate coaching job was at St. John's.

Houston Restrains Cruz's Declaration

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros obtained Wednesday a state district court order restraining outfielder Jose Cruz from declaring his free agency status and denying that he has a contract agreement with the National League team.

State District Judge T.M. Gupton said the order may be extended if the Astros, Cruz and Cruz' agent cannot participate within 10 days in a hearing on a permanent injunction.

Tal Smith, Astros president and general manager, had indicated Tuesday the club might take legal action in that a letter-of-intent on a contract extending the 32-year-old outfielder's services with Houston through the 1984 season had been signed in June.

Chargers' Fouts Takes Aim At Record

OAKLAND (AP) — No National Football League quarterback has ever thrown for more than 300 yards in four straight games. Dan Fouts hopes to become the one in that number tonight.

Fouts will be leading the San Diego Chargers against Oakland Raiders after throwing for more than 300 yards against Denver, Seattle and Los Angeles.

"If it happens, I'll be happy, but a victory would be more satisfying," Fouts says. "We always have a score to settle with them."

Fouts was referring to the Raiders' 20-5-2 record against the Chargers, including last year's so-called "Immaculate Deception" game when Oakland players fumbled the ball into the end zone to win 21-20.

Six other quarterbacks have had three straight 300-yard games — Frank Tripucka, John Unitas, George Blanda, Cotton Davidson, Sonny Jurgenson and John Hadl.

Fouts also has a shot at Joe Namath's NFL record of six 300-yard games in a season. In his last four games, Fouts has completed 98 of 146 passes for 1,200 yards and seven touchdowns.

Since last mid-season, the hot quarterback has led the Chargers to a 13-2 record, including a 6-2 mark this season.

The Raiders, meanwhile, once the scourge of the American Conference West, are stuggling at 4-4. They got off to a 1-3 start, won three games and then were embarrassed by the New York Jets last week.

They also are not a bit happy about playing on Thursday.

"The fact that we played 3,000 miles away on Sunday is tough," said Coach Tom Flores. "You never feel that's fair. Personally, I feel if we were going to play a Thursday night game, we should be home the previous Sunday. They (the Chargers) don't even have to change time zones."

The short week does little for San Diego Coach Don Coryell, either.

"I hate it," he said. "Men aren't physcially able to play. They just aren't well. I think it takes a man a week to recoup from a game.

The Chargers lead the West by a game over Denver and two over the Raiders and Kansas City Chiefs. San Diego has not won a championship since 1965 in the old American Football League.

Dolphins' Griese Says He's Not Through Yet

MIAMI (AP) — Bob Griese is as puzzled as anyone by his subpar performance, but Wednesday he peevishly dismissed suggestions he's in the decline of his career.

Griese, the National Football League's most consistent and most productive quarterback the last five seasons, is off to his worst start in a decade. He's been intercepted nine times and statistically he ranks near the botton among league quarterbacks.

Worse, with Griese quarterbacking, the playoff-minded Miami Dolphins are 3-3 and were losing 12-7 to Minnesota before Don Strock came off the bench to spur a 27-12 victory recently.

In Miami, the widely expressed feeling among fans and the media is it's time to replace the 34-year-old veteran with Strock or even young Guy Benjamin.

Griese though doesn't think all the blame is his.

"I don't know what the problems can be attribted to," he admitted. "If I knew the answers, I would be doing things to correct them.

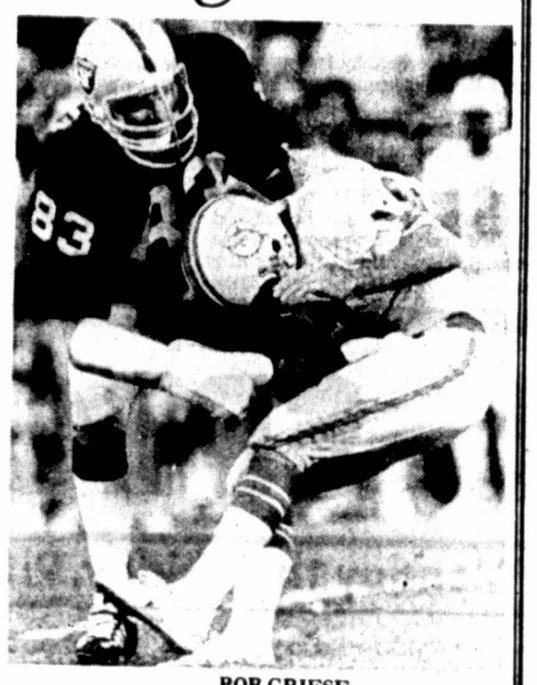

"Interceptions are going to occur anytime you put the ball in the air, some of them are going to be deflected, you're going to be hit as you're throwing — I'm not going to be perfect everytime I throw.

"Some of them have been my fault, there is no question about it. But it's just not the quarterback ... can his line give him time to throw touchdowns, can his receivers make good moves, will his receivers run the routes ... I'm not saying that's the entire problem, but it all plays a part."

Griese said as long as he's giving "110 percent" he's not bothered by what the fans and media say. But he demonstrated during an interview that he was well aware of the criticism.

"I'm not trying to hold on to this job for as long as possible or for any certain length of time," Griese said.

"I don't feel I have a lock on the job and I don't think I should be starting just because of who I am," he said. "But as long as Coach Shula wants me to be his starter that's the only opinion I'm interested in and if someone else can do better I'm just interested in helping the team."

Steelers' Wagner Injured

The Pittsburgh Steelers placed veteran safety Mike Wagner on the injured reserve list Wednesday and signed former Steeler Jack Deloplaine to replace him on the roster.

Wagner has been bothered all season with a chronic left leg problem and a team official said it is hoped that rest will heal the leg.

Wagner must remain on the injured reserve for four games and can be reactivated at any time after that period. He'll be eligible Nov. 25 for the Cleveland game.

J.T. Thomas will replace Wagner in the starting lineup.

Deloplaine, who was signed primarily for special teams work, is in his third stint as a Steeler. Pittsburgh signed him as a sixth-round draft choice in 1976. He played two seasons before being waived.

He then played two games for Washington before he was released. The Steelers signed him again and he played the last 13 games during the 1978 season. Deloplaine was cut by Pittsburgh again this year and was signed by the Chicago Bears, where he played five games. Chicago released him Oct. 17.

Lions Get Blackwell

The Detroit Lions have acquired running back Alois Blackwell and linebacker Garry Cobb, the National Football League team announced Wednesday.

To make room for the two new players, the Lions placed linebacker Charlie Weaver on the injured reserved list following knee surgery and released defensive back Dave Parkin.

Blackwell and Cobb were assigned as free agents after being released by the Dallas Cowboys.

Campbell Probable Starter

Houston Oiler running back Earl Campbell, recovering from a thigh bruise, was listed as probable Wednesday for the Oilers' game Sunday against the New York Jets in the Astrodome.

Campbell rushed only three times last week in Houston's 34-14 loss to Seattle.

Five other players also were listed as probable for the game including Rob Carpenter, back bruise; Ronnie Coleman and Carter Harwig, both thigh bruises, Ken Kennard, rib cartilage and Ken Burrough hamstring strain.

Campbell, who dropped to second among National Football League rushers, returned to workouts Wednesday but was not at full speed.

Browns Have Playoff Hopes

Halfway through the National Football League season, Cleveland Browns Coach Sam Rutigliano is guarded when discussing the Browns' chances for making the playoffs for the first time since 1972.

Cleveland has a 5-3 record, even though star running back Greg Pruitt was sidelined for three entire games and parts of two others while injuries kept linebacker Dick Ambrose and defensive end Lyle Alzado out of action for two games each.

"Considering the things that have happened, we could be 2-6, or even 1-7 very easily," said Rutigliano as he prepared for Sunday's clash with the Cardinals at St. Louis.

The only American Conference teams with better records than the Browns — Pittsburgh, New England and San Diego — each lead their divisions and have 6-2 marks.

Miami, Houston and Denver have the same record as the Browns and will be among those fighting for two conference wild card berths in the playoffs.

"What we've got to do is continue to grow and stay free of further injuries. If we do, we have a chance to be a good team, a very good team," Rutigliano said.

Bonds Seeks Free Agency

CLEVELAND (AP) — Veteran outfielder Bobby Bonds told the Cleveland Indians on Wednesday that he is exercising his right to be traded to another team.

Bonds claimed the right to be traded according to Rule 17-D of the basic agreement between the Players Association and the owners of the major league teams.

The Indians announced that Bonds, who can withdraw his request at any time before March 15, said he wants to stay in Cleveland and that his first preference is to work out a new long-term contract.

Bonds earned about $440,000 as a member of the Indians last season, but asked for a new pact, including a sizable pay raise, during June.

From that point, he complained about heckling of fans in Cleveland who were chiding him from their right field seats because of his contract demands. He was fined $500 following one incident with the fans late in the season.

In 146 games with Cleveland last season, he hit .275 with 25 homers and 34 stolen bases. In 11 full major league seasons, he has played for six teams and hit 321 home runs while stealing 441 bases.

SHAVERS HAS SURGERY

Earnie Shavers is recovering from eye surgery following his unsuccessful attempt to capture the World Boxing Council heavyweight crown and will be back in the ring in six weeks, his manager says. Manager-trainer Frank Luca said the operation was successful and denied a recent report that Shavers' career was in jeopardy as a result of the injury to his left eye during his Sept. 28 loss to WBC champion Larry Holmes.

Net Tourney Set Friday

The three-day meet opens Friday at 8:30 a.m. on the Tech Varsity and Recreational Courts. Evening play is also on tap Friday and then the action resumes Saturday and Sunday at 9 a.m.

Not only will this tourney showcase all 14 members of the Tech varsity but it will also mark the debut of the 40-Loves — a group of Tech coeds who will be on hand to boost the Raider netters and fans.

Admission is free and the public is invited to attend. Joining the Raiders are New Mexico, West Texas State, Midwestern, Lubbock Christian College, South Plains and Midland College.

Hamilton said the singles champion would likely come from one of a group of Zahid Maniya, Jose Rivera and Jeff Bramlett of Texas Tech; David Goatz of New Mexico; Paul Nunley, Richard Holmes and Stacey Foster of WTSU; and Sam Rivera (Jose's little brother) and Des Ward of Midland College.

In the doubles action, Hamilton said that the Tech team of Maniya and Mark Thompson and the WT team of Nunley and Foster would be the main contenders. The two teams met earlier this year with the West Texans taking a split sets decision.

Hamilton said he would enter his entire 14-man roster in the meet. Other Tech players who have shown potential this fall are Chow Wah and Gregg Davis — the mastermind behind the Love-40's. Former Lubbock Dunbar High School star Kevin Bryant will also be competing for the Raiders.

"I'm excited about this tournament," said Hamilton. "This is the first year we've tried to have it, but I'm hopeful that Lubbock tennis fans will come out to take a look at our program."

Women Lead Midland

Tech Fems Practice

Johnson Top AAAA Player

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Willie Johnson was a mere JVer when Plainview publickly ridiculed Monterey 46-27 a year ago. So it seems No. 22 wouldn't have any reason in the world to hold a grudge against the Bulldogs; bystanders usually don't.

But noooooo. None of that letting bygones, be bygones stuff for Johnson, folks. Not last Friday night anyway.

Obviously it didn't matter if Johnson had been on the field or in the stands eating popcorn a year ago. He took the drumming personally. In helping to lead Monterey to a 17-7 victory over the defending District 4-AAAA champions, Johnson carried the ball 31 times for 119 yards and scored the only two TDs of the night. The superb effort has garnered Johnson the Avalanche-Journal's Class AAAA player of the week honor for the second time this season.

Johnson scored Monterey's first touchdown on a three-yard run with 3:58 left in the first period, giving the Plainsmen an early 7-0 lead in the key loop matchup. He later added the second TD on a two-yard burst with 6:51 left in the game. The final score gave the Plainsmen a 10-point lead and — more important — a little extra breathing room.

Johnson finished the first half with 51 yards on 14 carries and added 68 more steps on 17 tries after the first-half intermission. Indeed it was a busy night for the MHS tailback.

WILLIE JOHNSON
AAAA Player Of Week

But Johnson's been a busy fella all season. This year he has carried the ball 162 times for 923 yards, by far the most yardage by any runner in 4-AAAA. Plainview's Ervin Davis is second on the list with 487 yards on 97 tries.

Only against defensive-minded Estacado did Johnson fail to top the century mark. But others haven't been as lucky. Here's a quick look at Johnson's accomplishments this year: Plainview (31-119), Hobbs (12-119), Estacado (20-86), Midland (25-145), Wichita Falls Rider (31-139), Canyon (23-105) and Carlsbad (20-210).

Head coach James Odom says part of the reason — along with raw talent — that Johnson has excelled this year is because of the strong blocking of fellow backs Dwayne Smith and Ricky Pinkerton.

"Those are two short-legged backs that have been throwing some fine blocks," commented Odom. "It usually doesn't set that well when a coach asks a back to block. But Smith and Pinkerton haven't complained. They've done an excellent job."

Odom also points to tight end Mac Tatum, and interior linemen Kelly Grammar and Mike Gregg as other reasons for Johnson's success.

Cross Country Team Prepares For Conference

The Texas Tech cross country team will participate in its most important fall meet on Monday when the Raiders run in the Southwest Conference Championships.

It will begin at 11 a.m. on the Texas National Golf Course in Willis, near Conroe. Tech will be out to improve on last year's sixth-place finish. Greg Lautenslager, who finished 44th in the national meet last year, paced the Raiders with an 11th-place finish.

"Arkansas will be favored, no question about it," said coach Corky Oglesby. "I really don't know how we will do because I don't know that much about the strengths and weaknesses of the other teams. We haven't seen many of the other conference teams this fall."

"Greg has run well for us this fall," said Oglesby. "I'm very optimistic about him finishing in the top 10. Even though there will be some awfully good runners there, he is capable of doing it."

In Tech's five meets this fall, Lautenslager has finished first once, second twice and fourth once. He was second last week in the Texas Tech Invitational, covering the six-mile course in only 12 seconds slower than winner Johnson Bett of West Texas State.

CLASS AA ROUNDUP

Unbeaten Abernathy Uncomfortable

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Most folks would figure Abernathy was sitting kinda pretty, what with a 5-0-2 overall record and a District 4-AA win already under its belt.

Antelope coach Larry Aldridge isn't one of them.

"I hope we're for real," he said, not quite sure. "We're improving every game. The last three weeks the offense has really been moving the ball well and the defense is really improving now."

Forgive Aldridge his wariness, but he's been there before. Last year about this time the Antelopes were 5-2 with the only losses coming to District 3-AA champ Muleshoe (by only 26-20) and District 4-AA foe Tulia (by 28-18).

Despite big wins over Lockney and Idalou on the next two weekends, a final-game loss to Floydada buried Abernathy's playoff hopes.

"We've still got to play Floydada and Idalou," he said, "and they're looking tough as nails.

"And we're scared to death of old Lockney. After the way we beat them last year, you know they'll be after us."

The Antelopes came from behind after being outplayed all game to edge Lockney 15-14 last year. The Longhorns are 4-2-1 now, with losses only to tough Floydada and Littlefield.

Aldridge looks to a new-found offensive balance as the Antelopes' strong point. "Our running game and our throwing game are really balanced. Tony Heath (Abernathy quarterback) is really coming along," he said. "I think our offensive line is coming off the ball real well now, too. They've really come on."

Heath and running back Sylvester Dunn lead an explosive offense that is averaging 277 yards a game over the season. But the offense has been progressing steadily. Until last week's 30-7 win over Tulia, the Antelopes had increased their total offensive yards every game.

Leading that surge is Dunn. He had only seven carries through the first three games (and sat one out entirely). But at this point in the season he has carried 93 times for 764 yards, an average of 8.27 a game and an average of over eight yards a carry.

Until a couple of weeks ago, the Antelopes had another back to go with Dunn, Roger Lindsay. But he was hurt in a motorcycle accident.

"That (Lindsay's loss) really hurt us to the outside, but I think the whole club has gotten with it a little better since we lost him," Aldridge said.

"I really don't know how much it hurt us to tell the truth, Roger was really coming on. But now our other backs have picked up the slack. I don't know how much it hurt us."

"We still have to play more consistently," he said. "We allow to many big plays. We'll hold for a while and hold for a while and then give up a long gain.

"We've been playing real rugged defense down near the goal line, but that's too late usually. We are just doing too much bending."

Virdon Named UPI Manager Of Year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Virdon of the Houston Astros, a quiet, yet demanding leader who transformed the lowest scoring team in the National League into a pennant contender, was named NL Manager of the Year Wednesday by the United Press International.

The 48-year-old Virdon, the Astros' manager for the past five seasons, was a runaway winner in a balloting of 30 UPI Baseball correspondents from across the nation after guiding Houston to a second place finish in the NL West Division. Virdon received 16 first place votes as compared to seven for runnerup Dick Williams of Montreal.

John McNamara, whose Cincinnati Reds beat the Astros for the NL West title, was third with six votes and Chuck Tanner, manager of the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates, received only one mention.

Under Virdon's guidance, the Astros stayed in contention in the NL West until the final week of the season and they did it without very much offense. The Astros were last in the league in runs scored (583) and home runs (49) yet managed to win 89 games and finished only 1 1/2 games behind Cincinnati. A Year ago, the Astros finished in fifth place in the division with a 74-88 record.

The Astros' secret this season was pitching (3.19 ERA) and speed, but it was Virdon's patience and field leadership that kept the young club from folding through the pressures of the pennant race.

"He's quiet, very observant," said Deacon Jones, one of the Astros' coaches. "He doesn't miss anything. He stays on top of things before they start spreading. He's probably the most consistent manager I've been around."

76ers Pummel Pacers 132-110

Julius Erving scored 17 of his 25 points in the second half as the unbeaten Philadelphia 76ers scored their sixth National Basketball Association victory by downing the Indiana Pacers 132-110 Wednesday night.

Behind Erving in scoring for Philadelphia were Steve Mix, who made 16 of his 23 points in the fourth quarter; Doug Collins with 22; and Bobby Jones with 20.

Pittsburgh has a much tougher row to hoe. They have Houston and Cleveland in their own American Conference Central Division. And waiting for them in the playoffs will be such upstarts as San Diego and New England. Those teams are capable of beating anyone on any given day. The Steelers happen to let down on one Sunday afternoon and its Dallas and New England in Super Bowl XIV.

The playoffs are still two holidays and a couple snowfalls away, but Sunday's matchup in Pittsburgh will be the closest thing to a playoff game that football fans will see until December 23, the day the playoffs begin.

And who wants to wait until then?

Carson Campus Up In Air

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — There's a move afoot to name a community college facility at Elkhorn the Johnny Carson campus, but proponents haven't been able to reach the talk show host to tell him.

A new policy on the naming of buildings at Metropolitan Technical Community College goes into effect next month and college board member Richard "Zeke" Larsen is proposing Carson's name.

Larsen said he was tried twice to reach Carson by telephone to tell him of the plan, with no luck. Now, he plans to write him.

Besides, Larsen noted, Carson recently gave the University of Nebraska $100,000 for scholarships.

Larsen said the Elkhorn campus also might be named for the University of Nebraska Heisman Trophy winner, Johnny Rodgers.

Non-Voters For Kennedy?

BILLY CARTER

"As I've been going around the country I haven't heard that much support for Kennedy," he said in a brief interview. "The only ones who're for Kennedy are the press and the college kids — and they don't vote anyway."

Presidential Sought Candidate

DENVER (AP) — Experienced politicians need not apply.

Carl C. Wilm, a self-employed personnel consultant, makes that restriction in a "help wanted" ad seeking a suitable candidate for president.

For Wilm, a suitable candidate must have no political experience or ties and he or she must have a successful employment record, an unblemished background, a well-knit family and absolute integrity and good character.

Wilm, 61, conceded he might have a hard time finding someone with those qualifications and he said he expects most responses to his ad to be from "kooks who are answering just because they need a job."

Truck Drivers Marry

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The invitations were sent out by citizens band radio and the guests arrived in 18-wheelers.

"I finally found me a codriver and look what happens," said Eddie Hatch, 40, just before he married Vicki Woods, 24, at a Las Vegas truck stop.

The two met a month and a half ago. Miss Woods quickly got a license to drive a rig and joined Eddie behind the wheel.

Defiant Dog Lover Arrested

DENVER (AP) — Park Hill's 83-year-old "Dog Lady" has been arrested for defying a judge's order to get rid of some of her pets, but she'll spend her 10-day sentence at Denver General Hospital rather than in jail.

It was latest turn of events in Mildred Martindell's 22-year battle with the courts over how many dogs she can have.

District Judge George M. McNamara Tuesday ordered Miss Martindell to spend 10 days in a nursing home. But the nursing home declined, saying it could not hold her against her will, so Denver General admitted the woman instead.

Lindsay Still Undecided

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — Former New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, in Munich on Wednesday as master of ceremonies at a horse show, said he hasn't made up his mind about running for the U.S. Senate.

JOHN LINDSAY

"Sometimes I miss public life, but eight years (as mayor) was enough," Lindsay told The Associated Press.

"Some of my quote-unquote friends want me to run for the Senate from New York, but I haven't made up my mind if I want to be poor again," he said.

Lindsay, a former Republican turned Democrat, said he hoped Sen. Edward Kennedy would run for president. "We need leadership."

Lindsay, recovering from an operatin for a bocked intestine, is appearing at a special perfomance of the Austrian Lippizaner stallions put on for the American Society of Travel Agents.

Soldier Finally Gets Medals

The 74-year-old ex-sergeant on Tuesday was awarded a Bronze Star and Purple Heart for his bravery and injuries.

After the war, Seiderer went back to work for the Port Authority of New York for 25 years. A bachelor, he retired to Florida eight years ago from Union City, N.J.

For 15 years, he's been trying to get his two awards from the government. He said the records had been misplaced.

Seiderer got his Bronze Star in the mail about a year ago. When the Army agreed to award the Purple Heart, officials decided to make both presentations formally.

George Burns Goes Country

GEORGE BURNS

Burns will be in Nashville on Oct. 31 to record a country music album, according to Charles Fach, who will produce the disc for Phonogram Inc.-Mercury Records.

"You know, George has a history of singing," Fach said. "That's the way he started out in show business. And he sings very well."

Fach said it wasn't difficult finding suitable music for Burns, just time-consuming.

"You just have to wait in a case like this to find something that will suit itself to a particular artist," he said.

At age 79, Burns accepted a role in the movie, "The Sunshine Boys," and won an Oscar for Best Supporting Actor.

Governor Readies For Race

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — When Gov. Fob James returned from a duck hunting trip he read in the newspapers that he might run for president.

So he started getting ready. He appointed his 11-year-old son, Patrick, his campaign manager.

"He's been writing about presidents and studying them in school," the governor said. "If you want to talk about presidential politics, talk to him.

"That's how serious it is in our household."

Students Sought For Nation's Census

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wanted: students to work part time counting residents of the United States and Puerto Rico. College credit plus $4-an-hour.

That's the word from the Census Bureau, which has to recruit 270,000 census takers to help conduct the nation's 20th head count next April.

More than 40 colleges and universities are working with the bureau, providing credit for instruction the students will receive concerning the information collected, census procedures and uses of the data by both government and private business.

The courses, coupled with the actual census work, will give the students a knowledge of population and housing statistics and will deepen their understading of urban problems, said Census Director Vincent P. Barabba.

In past years many of these temporary jobs have been filled by housewives who wanted some extra income without being tied down to a permanent job.

However, the increasing number of working women has depleted this source, leading the bureau to turn to students as an alternative.

Barabba said 40 to 50 jobs will be available at each of the schools participating and the students will earn $4-an-hour or more. Plus, for students who do well, there may be additional summer jobs available at the Census Bureau.

Participating schools are:

Alabama State University, Montgomery; California State at Dominguez Hill; California State at Long Beach; California State at Los Angeles; Chicago State; City College, New York; Hunter College, New York;

Norfolk State, Norfolk, Va.; Northeastern, Boston; Northeastern, Chicago; Pan American, Edinburg, Texas; Rutgers, Newark, N.J.; San Francisco State; Shaw University, Raleigh, N.C.;

Southern, New Orleans; St. Augustine, Raleigh, N.C.; St. Louis, St. Louis, Mo.; Temple, Philadelphia; Tennessee State, Nashville; Texas Southern, Houston; Trinity, San Antonio, Texas;

Universidad Catolica de Puerto Rico; University of Alabama, Birmingham; U.C.L.A.; University of Cincinnati; University of Houston; University of New Mexico; University of Puerto Rico;

University of Texas at El Paso; University of Texas at San Antonio; University of Washington and Wayne State, Detroit.

Attempted Suicide Kills Mother, Injures Baby Boy

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — An 8-month-old boy was reported in satisfactory condition Wednesday at a hospital where he was brought after his mother took him in her arms and jumped 80 feet off a bridge.

The mother, Jean Krauser, 24, died soon after reaching Hennepin County Medical Center following her plunge from the Lake Street Bridge over the Mississippi River Tuesday, authorities said.

Mary Anne Frank, nursing supervisor at Hennepin County Medical Center, said the son, Ryan, was being held for observation, "but so far he is doing fine."

Two employees of the Minnesota Department of Transportation said they were sitting in the cab of their dump truck at the west end of the bridge when they saw the woman walk onto the bridge's sidewalk with the baby in her arms.

Her first attempt to get over the 45-inch-high railing failed but, before the two workmen could get out of their truck to try to stop her, she tried again.

Mrs. Krauser landed about 30 feet from the water's edge, on her back with her head on a log. Ryan was found about four feet from her, face down and crying.

Lack Of Insulation May Cause Hot Water Loss

By BARBARA McDOWELL
NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

Start with your hotwater storage tank. Touch it. If it feels warm, it probably needs more insulation. That alone can cut your energy bill by as much as $20 a year.

Fourth In A Series

Insulation is especially important if your hot-water heater is located in an unheated area of your home. If it is situated in a heated area, the warmth it gives off serves the useful purpose of reducing some of the load on your central heating system; in this case you might benefit from insulating the tank only for the part of the year when you do not need the heat.

The easiest way to insulate your hot-water tank is with one of the kits sold for about $25 at most hardware stores. Take care not to block the air vents; that can be dangerous.

Also try to insulate the pipes running from your hotwater tank to your faucets. Top priority should go to those passing through unheated areas such as attics and those leading to faucets farthest from the tank.

Check for leaks before insulating heater or pipes. And remember to call the plumber as soon as you notice even a tiny leak. You can seal it temporarily with plastic electrical tape.

Now check the temperature of the water in your tank. Chances are it is between 140 degrees and 180 degrees.

If you do not have a dishwasher, turn your water heater down to 120 degrees. That is plenty hot for all household uses. The Energy Department says that reducing the temperature setting from 140 to 120 can cut by 18 percent the amount of fuel you use to heat water.

If you do have a dishwasher, set your water heater at 140 degrees. Some dishwashers operate effectively at lower temperatures, however, so you might try turning your heater down a bit more to see how your appliance performs.

TOO HOT WATER HEATER? — If your hot water storage tank gives off enough heat to cook hot dogs, chances are it needs to be insulated. That is, unless it is located in a heated area of your home where the warmth it gives off serves the useful purpose of reducing some of the winter load on your central heating system.

If you will be away from homw for some time, you might wish to turn your water heater down or off ("pilot" for gas heaters). It should take no more than two hours for the water to heat up again.

Have your water-heating system serviced and de-limed annually.

Ask the service person to show you how to drain a bucket of water from the bottom of your hot-water tank to remove sediment. That buildup can cost fuel by insulating the tank water from the heat source. This process should be repeated twice a year for older heaters and six times a year for newer ones.

Check each faucet in your home for drips. Have them repaired promptly. One drop of water per second will fill up a bathtub in little more than a day.

Consider installing aerators on sink faucets to reduce water flow. Also check into water-restricting shower heads; the Energy Department estimates that the average family could save about $24 a year by reducing the flow of water through the shower head from 8 gallons per minute to 3 gallons per minute.

You can save water by switching from baths to showers provided you are not in the habit of singing an entire Wagnerian opera as the water streams over you.

You can get extra duty out of that warm water by hanging clothing in the bathroom while showering to steam out wrinkles. If you shower in the bathtub, put in the stopper and allow the water to accumulate; after showering, open the bathroom door and let the water stand, heating and humidifying your home, until it reaches room temperature.

Use cold water whenever possible for household cleaning. That includes operating the food disposal; not only do you save hot water but you help the disposal work more efficiently by causing grease to solidify so that it can be ground up and washed away.

Operate your dishwasher and clothes washer only when filled. But do not overload or you may wind up having to wash again. Measure your detergent carefully as oversudsing makes the machine work harder.

Wash all but your dirtiest laundry in warm or cold water rather than hot and rinse in cold water. Genrally, warm water is recommended for synthetics and cold water for other washables. If coldwater washing causes some clothing to look a bit dingy, wash them every third or fourth time in warm or hot water.

Even if your detergent is formulated for cold-water washing, you might have better results if you dissolve it in warm water before adding it to the washer. If you have hard water, use water softener when washing in cold water.

And take advantage of the "suds saver" feature if your machine has it. That will enable you to use one washer of hot water for several loads of laundry.

Sharp Increase In Major Crimes Noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Banks and service stations are increasingly popular targets of robbers, burglars are shifting their working hours from nighttime to daytime and arrests for drug violations have dropped sharply in the past five years, the FBI reported Wednesday.

These were among the findings in the bureau's 1978 annual report on crime trends based on reports from about 15,000 state, county and local police agencies.

Overall, the report said, the national crime rate rose 2 percent last year over 1977. That figure is close to a preliminary report earlier this year that the crime rate rose 1 percent in 1978.

But it fails to reflect a sharp increase in major crimes that the FBI has discovered this year. It reported earlier this month that the crime rate rose 9 percent in the first half of 1979 over the same period in 1978, continuing a trend that apparently began in the latter half of last year.

FBI officials are reluctant to give definite reasons for the turnaround, although some have said that harder economic times may be contributing to a sharp rise in property crimes.

For 1978, the violent crimes of murder, forcible rape, robbery and aggravated assault rose by 5 percent. Property crimes, which represent 90 percent of the total offenses in the FBI report, rose by 2 percent. This group includes burglary, larceny-theft and car theft.

Bank robberies rose 43 percent from 1974 to 1978 and service station robberies rose 52 percent in that period.

The FBI has removed itself for the most part from investigating bank robberies, leaving solution of the crime to local police as the federal agency turns more to sophisticated white-collar and organized crime.

Arrests for drug abuse violations in 1978 decreased by 1 percent. From 1974, drug arrests dropped 17 percent.

The FBI did not offer any reasons for the trend, declining to say if local police were becoming more tolerant of minor drug offenses, particularly involving marijuana.

The FBI said that since 1974 burglaries of homes had dropped 1 percent during the night and had risen 10 percent during daytime hours. Burglaries involving all other buildings dipped 15 percent during nighttime hours and rose 18 percent in the daytime in the 1974-1978 period.

In 1978, there were an estimated 3.1 million burglaries, making up 28 percent of the total offenses tabulated in the FBI index. Burglary rose 2 percent since 1974 and increased by the same amount in 1978 compared with 1977.

The FBI also reported that one violent crime in America occurs every 30 seconds and one property crime every three seconds.

More than 11 million serious crimes were reported in 1978, an average of 5,109 offenses for each 100,000 persons in the United States.

Five Men To Hang For Armed Robbery

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — A military court on Wednesday sentenced five convicted robbers to death — part of a government crackdown on crime. It was the first time in recent history that robbers have been sentenced to death.

The five were convicted of tying up film star Shabnam, her husband and young son at gunpoint in their house and taking $10,000 in cash and jewelry.

Physician Says Court Martial Anticipated

CAMP LEJUENE, N.C. (AP) — Lt. Steven Suits, a doctor, says a Navy officer's recommendation that he be court-martialed for refusing a medical assignment on a ship is "what we expected of course.

"What I hope now is that they'll go ahead and push on through with the trial," Suits, 26, of Spartanburg, S.C., added after learning of the decision Tuesday.

Lt. Col. Roger K. Ryman recommended that Suits face a general court-martial for his refusal to board the USS Iwo Jima to serve as one of two doctors.

Suits says he refused the assignment because he was pressed into duty before he received proper medical training.

Ryman recommended that Suits, if found guilty of missing the movement of his unit by design, be sentenced to dismissal from the service, confinement at hard labor for one year, forfiture of all pay and allowances or a fine.

The recommendation goes to Maj Gen. David W. Twomey, commanding general of Camp Lejeune, who will make the final decision about a court-martial and what punishment Suits might face.

Suits claims he had not been adequately trained as a general practitioner when he was called to active duty after completing one of five years of surgical residency.

Chile declared its independence from Spain in 1810.

Newsaholic Turns Hobby Into Money

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Thomas Thompson is a newsaholic, one of those print junkies who devour every newspaper and magazine they can get their hands on.

His latest is "Serpentine," just published by Doubleday and destined for immediate bestsellerdom. Also the movies. We met on publication day, which was also the day when the loose ends of a multinational movie deal were being tied up.

GETS IDEAS FROM READING — Author Thomas Thompson poses with a copy of his best seller, "Serpentine," during an interview in Los Angeles. Thompson is described as a newsaholic, a print junkie who devours every newspaper and magazine he can get his hands on. His latest success is from a small item he read in a magazine (AP Laserphoto)

"It all started three years ago, when I read a small item in Time or Newsweek, I can't remember which," he related. "It was from New Delhi, and it told about a man and his female accomplice who had been arrested on charges of killing many, many tourists all over Asia. They were compared to the thugees, — from which our word thug comes — Indian outlaws who preyed on travelers long ago."

Thompson felt a "gut reaction" to the item, convinced Doubleday to invest some seed money, flew off to New Delhi with visions of writing about far-off places in the manner of Joseph Conrad and Somerset Maugham.

"After one day in New Delhi I knew that I was onto a fabulous book," said the author.

Tommy Thompson has the look of an adventurer. He is tall, clean-featured, with a dashing mustache. His career has taken him from his native Texas through newspapering and magazine work (Life), foreign assignments and all. The first demise of Life set him adrift in the book world. A good thing for Thompson as well as book readers.

The author hit his stride with "Blood and Money," a riveting tale of greed and murder deep in the heart of Texas. Thompson reports that CBS has budgeted $18 million to dramatize the story in five two-hour shows to be directed by William Friedkin ("The Exorcist").

"Serpentine" also involves greed and murder, the central figure being Vietnam-born Charles Sobhraj, a handsome charmer who cold-bloodly murdered tourists in a dozen nations.

"I was always intrigued by the Thornton Wilder book, 'The Bridge of San Luis Rey,'" said Thompson. "Five people are killed when an ancient bridge falls in Peru. Wilder traced what those five people were like and how they got there.

"I did the same thing: Why were people in the wrong place at the wrong time? The theme of my books is generally along the lines of what happens when fate throws a thunderbolt at ordinary persons."

Thompson spent two years and made three round-the-world trips to trace the infamous deeds of Sobhraj. He visited the victims' families in California, Canada and elsewhere, and traveled to remote parts of Asia.

"I even climbed 14,000 feet up the Himalayas," he recalled. "It ended up as a two-paragraph scene, but it was an important one."

The quest took its toll. At one point he was desperately sick and remembers praying, "Oh, Lord, just let me live two more weeks so I can finish this book." He reasoned "there was no way anyone could put the book together posthumously."

He talked with 100 major characters in 15 languages, including Hindi, Urdu, Thai and Nepalese. Sometimes three interpeters were needed for a single interview. Thompson also attended the culprit's New Delhi trial, which provides the surprise e ding of "Serpentine."

Next Thompson is writing his first novel, "Celebrity," tracing the careers of three Texans who find success in the world. He admits that if he doesnt succeed in fiction, he'll go back to combing the public prints for another true saga.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

TRADE SOURCES WEREN'T SURPRISED that domestic cotton consumption in September was up for the sixth consecutive month and up from daily use in the corresponding period a year ago.

The Census Bureau this week reported daily cotton consumption in September at 24,326 running bales, up 3 percent from 23,617 the previous month and up about 6 percent from 22,780 in the year-earlier period.

Trade sources had expected the September consumption to be at least equal to or slightly more than the year-earlier rate. Most mills have been consuming more cotton the last few months, sources said, which can be attributed to continued strong demand for velours, denims and corduroys.

Although up, the September daily consumption rate is the third lowest since World War II, according to U. S. Department of Agriculture figures.

Monthly mill consumption probably won't exceed a 24,000-26,000-bale rate for the next few months, some sources said. Mills continue to buy cautiously so they will not be caught with large inventories if an economic recession hits the textile industry.

BUT IN SPITE OF OVERALL SIGNS of lower annual consumption, many trade sources still expect mill use in the 1979-80 marketing year to be 6.2 million bales, as estimated by the USDA, or slightly more.

Cotton stocks in mills at the end of September were 750,839 running bales, third lowest since World War II. This compares with 849,662 running bales the previous month and 1,032,259 bales a year earlier.

Stocks in public storage totaled 1,879,130 running bales, down from 2,197,603 the previous month and 3,433,886 a year earlier.

The decline in mill stocks, sources said, is indicative of the late crop and delays in getting cotton shipped to Southeastern textile plants. The decrease also reflects an effort by mills to dodge current high interest rates, sources said.

One analyst, noting cotton business as a whole is good, commented:

"We don't know how badly the textiles economy will be affected by interest rates, but pessimistic projections have not been borne out yet. As we understand it, business is really booming around the world. With the exception of one or two soft spots on our own scene, we could not ask for a much better pace."

JOE SHEELY OF TOLLESON, ARIZ., chairman of the board of directors of Cotton Inc., and his wife were killed in the crash of their single-engine plane last Saturday.

Sheely, 55, had been a Cotton Inc. director since 1971 and was elected chairman in 1979 after having served as treasurer. He also was a director of the Farm Credit Bank of Sacramento.

He and his wife were returning from a cotton meeting in California.

Sheely was a cotton producer and was active in many civic and farm organizations. He was a board member of the National Cotton Council and was chairman of the Arizona Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

L. C. Unfred of New Home, vice chairman of the Cotton Inc. board, will become chairman, according to the group's by-laws.

COTTON FUTURES HELD IN A TIGHT RANGE in mixed trading Wednesday to close off 33 points to up 10 points.

Nervous late speculative selling countered earlier trade buying to minimize price movements, floor brokers said. The quiet trading indicated a market in rough equilibrium, they added.

December closed off 17 points at 65.01 cents, while March slipped 33 points to finish at 65.68 and May dropped 32 points to end at 66.90. Distant October and red March posted the only gains, both on closing bids, at 68.90 and 70.60, respectively.

Estimated volume was 5,550 lots.

There were reports of a weakening within the past week in the Mid-South basis. Some early pickings in the Mid-South were reported to be turning out respectable yields of good quality cotton.

CHINESE REPRESENTATIVES MAY HAVE bought about 200,000 bales last week while visiting the Cotton Belt, some sources have reported. Much of the purchase reportedly involved Memphis-Texas-Oklahoma cotton.

Earlier this month, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission's report covering "on call" positions showed that as of Oct. 12 there were 750,900 bales on the December contract which were still to be fixed or rolled into March.

This may provide support and "prevent a free-fall," one analyst said, but added that soaring interest rates remain a bearish factor. With the prime rate hitting 15 percent this week and some predictions being heard that it may reach 17 percent before the end of the year, he said, no one will want to inventory cotton.

"Mills and merchants will live on a hand-to-mouth basis," he commented.

1979 Seed Important For 1980 Cotton Crop

Seed for next year's cotton crop on the High Plains will have to come largely from this year's yield and handling of this seed will be crucial, area cotton specialists say.

Since much of this crop will be "moduled," particular attention should be given to moduling only dry cotton, the area cotton agronomist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Lubbock cautioned.

If the moisture content of the plant components — lint, seed, burs, stems and other — going into the module exceeds 10 to 12 percent, excesssive heating could occur, damaging the seed and even the lint, explained Dr. James R. Supak, the extension specialist.

Similar damage can occur to "wet" cotton that is stored in ricks or trailers for two to three days before gining, he said.

"The last good cotton seed crop we had was 1977," Supak said. Some good seed was produced in 1978, but with 4.6 million acres of cotton planted on the High Plains this year the seed supply has been nearly depleted.

"Cotton farmers will depend heavily on 1979 seed for their 1980 planting," Supak said. Producers and delinters both will have to be careful how they handle this seed, he stressed.

Particular attention should be given to monitoring the temperature of cotton stored in modules, the extension agronomist said. Temperature readings should be obtained and recorded daily until it is apparent that temperatures have stabilized.

The critical temperatures for cottonseed are around 110 to 120 degrees, he noted. Seed from modules that reached these temperatures shouldn't be saved for planting seed.

"If the decision is made to 'risk' seed that were exposed to temperatures of 110 degrees or more, let your delinter know about the problems and show him the daily temperature readings obtained for that module," Supak urged. "This will give him an indication of the extent of damage and enable him to make a more critical inspection of the seed."

In addition to the standard germination test, the delinter may suggest additional evaluations of such seed, such as cold germination, Tetrozolium (TZ) and fatty acid tests, the agronomist said.

"This extra effort will involve some time and money, and in the end the seed may still be sent to the oil mill," Supak said. "This, however, is a much better alternative than ending up with a barn full of seed that fails to produce a stand."

Computerized Meat Pricing Endorsed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two of the government's biggest meat-buying agencies say they would go along with a nationwide computer system for the wholesale meat trade.

Advocates of the computerized system say it would make the wholesale meat business more competitive and eliminate opportunities for price manipulation by a handful of big meat packers and supermarkets.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said recently the Agriculture and Defense departments endorse the nationwide computer system.

But it should be set up by private industry free of direct government subsidies, new laws or new regulations, Bergland told the House Small Business Committee.

The committee has been sharply critical of the current system by which supermarket chains, large meatpackers and others use "average prices" from only a few sales by others as a basis for buying and selling beef.

The cotton and egg industries have a computerized system now, with producers offering goods for sale and buyers bidding on them through the network. Bergland said the programs operate like the computerized market in over-the-counter common stocks.

This summer, he put the beef industry on notice that it had a year to change its practices or he would consider legislation to require a different approach. His warning stemmed from findings by a task force on meat pricing he appointed a year ago under pressure from the committee.

"We're waiting for someone in private industry to begin a system. ... As soon as they do, we're in" as a large-volume buyer for school lunches and other feeding programs, he said.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown wrote him this week that the Pentagon also will participate. The two agencies alone would make such a system "commercially sound very quickly," he said.

Cotton Dust Exposure Standards Upheld

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The U. S. Court of Appeals Wednesday upheld proposed federal standards limiting workers' exposure to cotton dust, a substance the government claims causes a respiratory disease known as brown lung.

But the court held that the government had not clearly defined the economic impact of its proposed standard on the cottonseed oil industry and asked the government to clarify further that aspect of its proposed rules.

The standards, proposed by the Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), were challenged by labor unions and the cotton industry.

A cotton warehouse association contended that the proposed regulations were not technologically and economically feasible and the AFL-CIO attacked some provisions as being too lax.

The court said with regard to the cottonseed oil industry that OSHA's position, in contrast to the industry's arguments about the standards' economic impact, "is neither clear nor adequately supported by the record."

The industry has estimated that the standards, if implemented, would result in the closing down of 62 of the existing 83 oil mills.

"In sum, our review leads us to uphold the standards, except for application to the cottonseed oil industry," the appeals court said.

"As for the cottonseed oil industry...we are unable to discern the basis for the agency's feasibility determination."

Assistant Secretary of Labor Eula Bingham said the court decision is "an important step" in protecting American workers against the effects of cotton dust disease.

In a statement released by OSHA, she said: "This decision vindicated our regulatory approach favoring engineering controls over personal protective equipment, and accepts our arguments as to the urgent necessity of the standard."

The court decision, however, was stayed for 20 days to give petitioners time to show that the standards should not be implemented.

New Herbicide Raises Fear Of Erosion

In West Texs, southeastern New Mexico and western Oklahoma about 8 million acres of sandy soils support sand shinnery oak, a toxic shrub which inhibits its forage growth.

A commercial company will soon market a herbicide that can kill the oak population effectively, but a Texas Tech University range expert is concerned that without improved conservation the 8 million acres may be subject to severe erosion after the chemical tretment.

And to control the erosion owners may have to plant the sand shinnery oak back on their land.

Dr. Russell D. Pettit, associate professor of Range and Wildlife Management, has used Elanco's "Grasslan" herbicide on sand shinnery oak areas with success. Forage yields have increased sevenfold, according to results from experimental plots.

"But there is real danger of wind erosion if we kill the entire oak population, as the grasses, mainly blue stem, may not hold the soil together during an extended drought," Pettit said.

The root system of the blue stem grass is not as extensive as that of the sand shinnery oak, "and the soil may not hold together with blue stem."

Pettit is convinced that the chemical works in controlling the shrub, but he is not convinced that area ranchers are aware of the erosion hazards after treatment.

Depending on severity of the drought, landowners may have to seed sand shinnery oak back on their land because of the shrub's ability to withstand water stress, he said.

Grasslan, for controlling sand shinnery oak, is expected to be cleared by federal and state licensing agencies for use by the end of this year.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat and corn futures fell Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade after the government reported larger-than-expected amounts of both grains on hand.

Local and commission house selling in an absence of commercial buying pushed wheat futures 7 to 10¾ cents lower. Liquidation by speculators and anticipation of harvest-time sales by commercial firms pushed corn 4½ to 5¾ cents lower.

The Agriculture Department said late Tuesday that U.S. corn stocks as of Oct. 1 were 1.29 billion bushels, 16 percent more than a year earlier, and U.S. wheat stocks were 2.29 billion bushels, 7 percent more than a year earlier.

Cattle Futures Decline

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 90 to 150 points lower with all contracts except distant December limit down Wednesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Sales held to the day as they fell to one-week lows.

The market was on the defensive from the start as cattle and hog arrivals ran ahead of estimated and cash prices fell sharply. Traders also noted weakness in beef at noon. The cash cattle connected commission house was an active seller again.

Deliveries total 2,036 thus far. Wholesale beef was unchanged to off 1 at 95¼ to 96¼ cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were steady to off $2 with the best top $67 per hundredweight at Indianapolis. Slaughter was 120,000 head. About 10,800 head are expected today at the major markets.

Feeder cattle futures closed 75 to 150 lower with all contracts except September at the limit decline. Sales dwindled to about 1,786 contracts with heavy unsold offerings at the close.

Prices were lower from the start and slipped to the lowest in one week on local and commission house selling. Heavy livestock arrivals and limit level lower live cattle futures pressured the market even though cash feeder cattle were strong.

Deliveries total 168 thus far. Cash feeder cattle were steady to up $6 with the best top $115 at Amarillo. Receipts at the major terminals today are expected to total 7,350 head.

Hog futures closed 70 to 137 lower with December under the most pressure after slumping the 150 limit. Sales totaled 7,179 lots.

Selling spilled over from limit declines in other meat pits with heavy hog runs and sharply lower prices prime influences. Cash hogs tumbled to three-year lows to less than half the value of cash cattle. Pork in turn was mostly weak.

There have been 3 deliveries thus far. Wholesale hams were unchanged to off 4 at 69 to 77 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were of 50 cents to $2.50 with the best top $34.25 per hundredweight which is the cheapest since November 1976. Kill was 358,000 head. The major markets are expecting about 31,500 head today.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 172 to 200 lower led by May. Volume was 5,256 cars. The market was weak from the start and slumped the limit in most contracts at times. Selling spilled over from limit declines in other meat pits on heavy livestock arrivals.

There was also profit taking after three-week highs and a gain of 6.50

Stocks Post Modest Gain

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which showed gains throughout the session and had been up about six points late in the afternoon, ended the day with a gain of 1.53 at 808.36.

Gainers barely outnumbered losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume came to 31.48 million shares against 32.91 million in the previous session.

Analysts said that trading was mostly dull, except for some buying by investors attracted by low prices. There was also activity in issues connected with earnings reports or takeover possibilities. Many investors were staying out of the market, waiting for signs that it was about to take a definite turn, analysts said.

Robert Stovall, analyst at Dean Witter Reynolds, described the market as "stabilizing" after the steady declines of the past two weeks. "The rally was fleeting and fitful," Stovall said.

New York (AP) — Wed.'s national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

THE SUPERMARKET SHOPPER

By MARTIN SLOANE

Dear Supermarket Shopper: I recently started trading refund forms by mail with a few friends in other cities. So far the results have been great and I have a lot of new forms.

But one of the forms I received looks suspicious. One the back of the form is printed a description of another manufacturer's refund offer. I think it is a counterfeit. What should I do with it?--S.N., Spokane, Wash.

Dear S.N.: It certainly sounds like a counterfeit. Don't try to use it.

When manufacturers spot counterfeit forms, they usually throw away both the form and the proofs of purchase. It could be very embarrassing if a manufacturer decided to take action against you.

When I receive a counterfeit or a photocopy of a refund form, I send it back to the person who sent it with a note saying that I won't trade with him or her again if I receive any more. It usually works. I advise all refunders to follow this procedure.

Dear Supermarket Shopper: I have heard it's possible to write to Procter and Gamble for several refund forms. Is this correct and can you give me the address?--L.C., Houston

Dear L.C.: Procter and Gamble will send you several refund forms if you request them.

The company will even refund your postage and give you an extension slip if the refund offer is close to expiration. You can send your request on a post card.

Be sure to name the specific refund offers you are interested in. Merely putting down the name of the product is not enough.

A tip about Procter and Gamble refunds: In most cases the company will accept several smaller-size proofs that equal the required larger size.

Dear Supermarket Shopper: If two refund offers ask for cash-register tapes and I buy both products at the same time, can I send each manufacturer half the tape?--C.M., Los ANgeles

Dear C.M.: Manufacturers who ask for a cash-register tape as a proof of purchase usually want the whole tape. It is additional evidence that you purchased the product.

One way to solve your problem is to ask the cashier to ring the two purchases separately. But only do this when the store isn't crowded and no one is waiting in line behind you.

Then be sure to circle the purchase price of the refund product even if the refund requirements don't specifically request you to do so.

Experienced refunders save all their cash-register tapes so they will never be at a loss for a required one.

Dear Supermarket Shopper: Can you really use a supermarket coupon and a manufacturer's cash-off coupon to get two discounts on the same item?--G.C., Milwaukee

Dear G.C.: YES! In most cases you can use the coupon in a supermarket's newspaper advertisement in combination with a regular manufacturer's cash-off coupon. This is what we call a "double play" discount.

But there are two exceptions to this rule.

Look at the supermarket coupon carefully. If you find "MFGR" or something similiar on it, it is actually a manufacturer's coupon that the store has included in its ad as part of a cooperative advertising program. Although it may otherwise look like a store coupon, it can't be used in combination with a regular manufacturer's coupon.

The second exception is the supermarket coupon that says "one coupon per item purchased."

This usually means the store won't let you use more than one if its own coupons for each item, so you can still make your "double play" discount. But a few stores interpret ths to mean you can only use one coupon of any kind.

American Dynamism Called Key To Success

WALTER A. GILBEY

The Isle of Man, in the Irish Sea near the southern tip of Scotland, has a constitution-type government which has lasted for 1,000 years, according to Walter A. Gilbey, executive chairman of the country's Mannin Trust Bank Ltd.

Gilbey, in Lubbock recently for a visit to the West Texas area, has some encouraging words for a younger democratic nation.

"I think the dollar will definitely recover sooner or later — it's purely a question of timing. The great thing that impresses me about America is the dynamism of the people, which is the key to economic success.

"The way people work, their willingness to work hard, the willingness with which they meet customers in shops. . .this is the very essence of private enterprise," he said. "And when you have got an economy which has this, I don't think it can fail to succeed eventually, in spite of the incompetencies of politicians.

"It is really the people, and the enterprise, and the energy of businesses that lead to a country's success," he said.

Gilbey added, "When you compare yours with that of many other countries, the other countries are sadly lacking compared to yours, aren't they?"

In addition to his banking interests, Gilbey and his wife, along with business partners, operate one of the most famous horse training and riding schools in the world.

The interest in horses is something of a family tradition. In 1830, Gilbey's great grandfather, Henry Gilbey, originated the "Cambridge Fly," a stage coach line into London. His son, Sir Walter Gilbey, was knighted for distinguished work in breeding Hackneys and Shires (dray horses).

For generations, Gilbey Distilleries made deliveries through heavy London traffic in sparkling carriages drawn by six shining bay geldings. When the board of Gilbeys concluded the stables must be discontinued, the third Walter Gilbey acquired the stable of horses, fine carriages and coaches.

Gilbey is impressed with the West Texas region. "I find it very stimulating to be here, to see such economic growth and activity, and such a very dynamic economy."

The Isle of Man banker thinks there is hope for the future. "I think that one has got to combine traditional values of morality and common sense with modern technology. The trouble is that we sometimes get carried away — not only with modern technology — but with the modern sense of values, which certainly aren't lasting ones."

Gilbey said, "I think there are a lot of people who are standing firm in believing that the swingback will come. This is really like the ripple effect. It's up to everyone who believes in traditional values to stand up for them.

"As you throw a pebble into the pond, a small pebble can make quite a ripple. So does the view of all of us have a ripple effect."

Gilbey plans to continue touring the West Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma area for a few more days before returning to the Isle of Man.

Complaint, Media Lead To Repair Of Hole

WASHINGTON (AP) — A personal complaint to Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti, and some resulting media attention, have brought results to immigration officials who have been trying to get a hole repaired in a detention room at a local immigration office here.

On Tuesday, Narciso P. Leggs, a deportation officer with the Immigration and Naturalization Service, told Civiletti at a public meeting of Justice Department employees that the hole in the detention room wall was big enough for prisoners to escape and had gone unmended since at least last December.

Leggs said that "one of these days" someone being kept in the room was going to escape.

Kellogg Whittick, the supervisor of the district office, said Wednesday that Leggs' complaint had finally brought action.

He said three inspectors from the General Services Administration showed up and promised it would be repaired on Thursday.

"We've had very remarkable success," Whittick said. "You know the reason as well as I do."

He said that up until now it's been impossible to get through "the bureaucratic morass."

But, he added, "It's better late than never. I'm elated. I just wish all government could move as quickly as this when we have true problems."

The hole in the wall is about four feet by three feet and leads into an INS office where employees are working. The hole has gotten progressively bigger over the months as detainees have chipped away at it.

The local office of INS is located in downtown Washington several blocks from the Justice Department.

Whittick said GSA inspectors estimated a while back when the hole was smaller that it would cost about $2,000 to repair.

Man Uses Free Drug Ring To Lure Girls Into Sex

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — A Long Island man gave out free drugs to lure at least 50 teen-age girls to his apartment and force them to have sex, authorities said Wednesday.

Nassau County District Attorney Dennis Dillon said the girls, ranging in age from 13 to 17, were lured to Campbell's apartment with offers of free drugs.
