Chaplin Body Found

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP)-The body of Charlie Chaplin, stolen from his village grave the night of March 2, has been recovered and police have arrested the two alleged thieves, a Pole and a Bulgarian, authorities said today.

The two men were arrested Tuesday after allegedly calling police demanding a ransom for the return of the comedian's remains, said Examining Magistrate Jean-Daniel Tenthorey.

He said the body was found near Villeneuve, a small town at the eastern tip of Lake Geneva about 10 miles east of Corsier-sur-Vevey, where Chaplin spent the last 25 years of his life and where he was buried last Dec. 27.

Utility Decision

AUSTIN (AP)-Large multi-county electric power systems are not required to provide separate data for each city where they apply for rate increases, the Texas Supreme Court ruled today.

The court's 6-2 decision said it is up to the cities to separate from system-wide records the information they need to make local rate decisions.

Cities can recover the cost of such data colection from the power companies, the court said. It upheld a Texas Public Utility Commission order requiring a surcharge on customers to recover the expense to the companies.

Wallace Won't Run

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)-George Corley Wallace, once a feisty symbol of segregationist resistance and four times a candidate for president, has ended his political career with a surprise announcement that he will not run for the U.S. Senate.

Court Denies Aliens Free Education

AUSTIN (AP) - Illegal alien children have no constitutional right to attend public schools free of charge, the Texas Supreme Court ruled today.

The court upheld a decision of the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals here without writing a new opinion of its own.

Lawyers for 10 children from Mexico who were denied free education by the Houston Independent School District had asked the high court to overturn the appeals court.

In their appeal, they quoted Deuteronomy on the treatment of servants and foreigners and President Carter's statement, "The nations of the world spend 60 times more equipping each soldier than educating each child."

The appeals court said a free education is not a fundamental right guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution.

Providing free schooling for illegals would either burden citizens with higher taxes or reduce the quality of education for children who are citizens or legally admitted aliens, the appeals court said.

"There are perhaps as many as 5,000 illegal alien children residing in the Houston school district," it said. "The testimony was that it is more expensive to educate such children than other children. In that connection, the evidence was that if the illegal alien children were permitted to attend school tuition-free, the added cost to the Houston school system could be as much as $8.35 million each year."

Lawyers for Carlos Hernandez and the other children on whose behalf the suit was filed said in their appeal they were legally admitted to the United States but had overstayed.

They said the Justice Department and the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service "has known about these specific petitioners for almost two years and has made no move to deport them."

Children, they said, have no control over where they live but go where their parents go.

In one case, they said, children who are parties in the case live with a sister and her children. The sister's children go to public school "but these children, living in the same home, cannot," they said.

Ask Us

Q - The Snyder city limits signs list the population at 11,171. I know this is out-dated. What is the current population of Snyder.

A - City Manager George Patterson says the estimated population of Snyder is 13,500. This is based on most recent Census Bureau estimates and other factors. However, since the federal census is taken only every 10 years and the next one will not come till 1980, there is a certain amount of guess work in any estimates at this time.

The SDN Column

There was a piece in some of the papers recently which suggested that David Crockett might have been something less than a hero in the battle of the Alamo.

We discounted it immediately. How dare anyone question the courage or the loyalty of Davy Crockett?

Now, we are pleased to report that some historians of good reputation have taken issue with the author of a book titled "How Did Davy Die?" and they have cited their own research to back up their position.

Dan Kilgore, author of the book on Crockett's death, was quoted as saying, "Crockett's heroism seemed to expand in direct proportion to the distance news had to travel about him."

Thank goodness there is another book, titled "The Bugles Are Silent," and its author, John R. Knaggs, and its publisher, W.L. Thompson of Austin, have challenged Kilgore's contention that Davy Crockett may have surrendered and was executed.

Knaggs says that a dispatch from Col. William B. Travis during a lull in the battle, singled out a few leaders, including Crockett, for their "undaunted heroism." Of Crockett, he wrote: "The Hon. David Crockett was seen at all points animating the men to do their duty!".

It is unlikely that Crockett could have surrendered even if he had wanted to when the outcome of the battle was evident, according to Knaggs. The frenzied Mexican soldiers who stormed the compound were under orders to give no quarter. The defenders in open areas were probably the first to be killed by bayonets or musket fire, Knaggs continued.

"Crockett's life before the Alamo may have been filled with misfortune, but he earned his place in Texas history as an inspirational leader in a desperate holding action that paved the way for the decisive Texan victory at San Jacinto," Knaggs said.

We agree that deeds of public figures have a tendency to expand as time elapses, but debunking heroes and men of statemanship is one of our pet peeves. We never suspected that those credited with great deeds were anything more than human beings in the first place, and their frailties and shortcomings never seemed to tarnish their hours of glory. So, it is with some satisfaction that we are able to report a rebuttal to those derogatory stories about Davy Crockett.

Top Students Of 1977-78 Receive Awards At SHS

Snyder High School's top students were honored Tuesday afternoon and awards were presented to outstanding students in various departments of the high school at the annual awards assembly.

Topping the list of honor students are five who are scheduled to graduate magna cum laude (with high honors) May 26. Ten others will graduate cum laude (with honors).

Heading the list is Christopher Jon Chamblee with a grade point average of 4.8255. The runnerup is Rita Lavelle Eicke with a grade point average of 4.7681.

Thus, Chamblee is the valedictorian and Miss Eicke is the salutatorian of the 1978 graduating class. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Chamblee Jr., and she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seabourn Eicke.

The other magna cum laude candidates for graduation are Laurie Lynn Bethel, Jeffrey Thomas Scannicchio and Debra Ann Littlepage.

Cum laude students in the top 10 seniors are Stanley Gerard Pavlik, Rachel Lynn Wimmer, Betty Lou Hook, Clayton Carl Peterson and Debra Dee Dolliver. Other cum laude students are Linda Darlene Chastain, Donna Rena West, Larry Don Huddleston, Connie Suzanne Pollard and Jeanne Marie McCormick.

The top 10 juniors are Melinda Leigh Masters. Michael Earnest Wimmer, Zenda Ball England, Anne Elizabeth Beuerlein, Sherilyn Kay Campbell, Michael Wayne Greenfield, Karen Jean Littlepage, Rita Lynn Black, Helen Kimzey and Sarah Lynn Fagin.

The top 10 sophomores are Suzanne Denise Fisher, Darrell Wayne Calvert, Bettsey Jane Patterson, Belinda Jean Scott, Donna Gayle McGee, Glenna Beth Dennis, John Mark Preston, Jamie Delaine Hataway, Jeffrey Lynn Pylant and Laquita Diane Reaves.

The top 10 freshmen are Mark Allen Robertson, Billy Kris Seale, Kim Aileen Poteet, Dalinda Kay Roberts, Mary Elizabeth Bowen, Linda Kuo, Charlotte Renee Masters, David Ornelas Martinez, Robert Earl Schooler Jr., Paul Archer Fagin and Tracey Lyn Westmoreland.

The top 10 students in each class receive scholastic awards each year from the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

In vocational agriculture, Lonnie Blackard, Tina Huddleston and Tana Springer were recognized for having attained their State Farmer Degrees, while other awards went to the state champion dairy cattle judging team composed of Robert Early, Dusty Williams and Ricky Williams, and to the first place FFA quiz team composed of Jay Cumbie, Tom Bills and Tim McCright.

Senior Picture Set Thursday

A senior picture will be taken in front of Snyder High School Thursday morning, said SHS principal Horace Bostick.

All high school seniors are urged to wear their caps and gowns, he said.

The picture will be made at 8:30 a.m. Thursday.

Americans In Zaire Rescued

WASHINGTON (AP) - Helicopters and a convoy of trucks rescued most of the Americans endangered by fighting in Zaire's Shaba province today, the State Department said. But 11 Americans were left in the combat area.

Robert Holliday of the State Department said the rescue operation was mounted by Morrison-Knudsen, the Boise, Idaho firm which employed most of the Americans in the area of Kolwezi, a town which has been captured by rebels.

There were conflicting reports about how many Americans were evacuated.

Holliday said the department did not have all the details of the operation. He said the best information he had was that the remaining Americans have not been injured and are not being held captive.

However, a company spokesman, in a telephone call to the Associated Press in Washington early this morning from the Zaire capital of Kinshasa said three of the company's employees were missing.

Meanwhile, a Defense Department source said it is "highly unlikely" that U.S. Army paratroopers, now on alert, will be sent to Africa because "the situation seems to be sorting itself out."

A Pentagon source said one report indicated 77 Americans were evacuated! The Defense Department sources asked not to be identified.

Panel Retains SS Tax Hike

WASHINGTON (AP)- The House Ways and Means Committee today voted to retain the higher Social Security taxes enacted last year, rejecting an effort to roll back part of the tax increase.

The 21-16 committee vote reversed a tentative decision of the panel last week when it voted 19-18 to recommend a $14.5-billion reduction in the scheduled tax increases that Congress had enacted only last December.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the committee, joined in the panel's flip-flop. He voted last week for the roll-back but today urged that the higher taxes be preserved.

Ullman said he considers the rollback issue dead for the year. However, Ullman promised to take up the matter again if any member can get a consensus on an alternative way of reducing Social Security taxes.

Ullman told his colleagues today that he had "decided that I cannot live with a vote on my part to" rollback the tax increase.

He said he had favored the reduction last week because the House Democratic Caucus had instructed the committee to develop a plan for cutting Social Security taxes. The caucus has not changed its recommendation since last week.

Ullman, explaining his switch, said the committee has a responsibility to the Democratic caucus, but he also has a duty to follow his conscience in voting for what he considers right for the country.

The drive to reduce the higher taxes that were enacted last December arose out of what many members of Congress considered a flood of mail from constituents complaining about a much smaller tax increase that went into effect on Jan. 1.

SNYDER TEMPERATURES: High Tuesday, 100 degrees; low, 62 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. today, 63 degrees; precipitation, none; total precipitation for 1978 to date, 3.83.

Highs today near 80 Panhandle to near 102 Big Bend. Lows tonight upper 50s north to middle 60s southeast except upper 40s mountains. Highs Thursday upper 70s Panhandle to upper 90s Big Bend.

Coffee At Chamber To Honor Henry

A "goodbye coffee" will be held Friday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce office honoring Bill Henry, the Chamber's executive director who will be leaving at the end of the month.

Chamber officials, Gold Coaters and other interested citizens have been invited to stop by the Chamber office between the hours of 2 p.m. and 5 p.m.

Henry resigned the chamber manager's post here recently to accept a position with the City of Grand Prairie.

Reading Hits 100 Again

Snyder had its second 100-degree reading in a row Tuesday as most of the state continued to swelter through a spring hot spell.

The official thermometer at the city water plant again topped out exactly on the century mark, although it dropped to a pleasant 62 degrees during the night.

Forecasts called for a possibility of thundershowers over much of the north part of the state today, with temperatures in the hundreds expected again in the south regions. Cloudy conditions were forecast for West, North and Northeast Texas.

carter's surprises

"The Surprised President" is the unflattering characterization of Jimmy Carter by Michael Ledeen in last month's Harper's. Ledeen finds that Carter has been constantly surprised by developments in foreign affairs. We think the epithet has further application because "The Surprised President" accurately describes Carter in domestic affairs, and particularly in the world of economics.

The president has been surprised by the sagging stock market and astonished at the declining dollar. American businessmen withhold support from him, a fellow businessman, and he wonders why. The West Germans and the Japanese surprise him when they reject his advice to pump up their economics.

The latest surprise for Carter is the accelerating rate of inflation. The rise in food prices announced recently indicates that the annual inflation rate is now brushing 7 or 8 percent. This is a situation Carter hardly expected; his tax and budget messages of two months ago assumed inflation would continue at a rate of 6 percent or slightly less - in itself a disastrous rate.

Given Carter's inflation surprise, it is not unexpected that he has been caught unaware by the stock market, the dollar, the attitudes of American businessmen and the West German and Japanese rebuffs. Fear of accelerating inflation explains, in great part, all these phenomena. Particularly in the United States there is also the fear Carter neither understands nor knows what to do to prevent inflation's rapid increase.

The basic cause of inflation is federal deficit spending. When the government doesn't have enough money to meet its obligations, it creates more dollars by borrowing. The more the Treasury overdraft, the more money that is created and so the more inflation we have. Deficit spending and increased debt result primarily from political pressures that government spend for this or that purpose.

Carter's surprises suggest little understanding on his part of the realtionships between politics and debt and inflation. Now the president announces a program by which labor and business would voluntarily restrain their appetites for wage and price increases - as though labor and business were primarily responsible for inflation. Both correctly balk at the idea.

Carter has taken a new tact, directing government agencies to consider adverse effects of federal regulations on prices.

This is not a bad idea, but it fails to hit the heart of the problem. Inflation is less a product of the bureaucracy than of the political system. It is only by resisting the omnipresent pressure to spend more money that Carter and Congress can control the nation's debt level and ultimately restrain inflation.

President Carter caves in to those pressures. With his urban program, he proposes to add at least $2.4 billion to the $60.6 billion the Treasury will have to borrow next year; with his farm program, he proposes to add another $3 billion to $4 billion. Is it any wonder that confidence in the administration's ability to deal with inflation is running low?

The worry is that Carter eventually will react impulsively to worsening inflation by turning to mandatory wage and price controls. If he does so, he will find they work no better now than other times in our history when they were tried and failed, adding to the blowout effect of suppressed pressures.

Until Carter understands and deals with inflation in a realistic rather than symbolic context, the world of economics will continue to hold many a surprise for him.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

A woman once wrote to me and asked, "What do you think about toilet training?"

I answered her, "Frankly, I'm for it."

To me that portion of child-raising was one of the most frustrating I ever encountered. I did everything wrong. There wasn't a day went by that I didn't engage in a series of "dialogues" with my trainee. Some of my more colorful lectures included:

"The humiliation of being listed in the Guinness Book of Records under the longest recorded case of terminal diaper rash."

"The expense of Scotchgarding the entire house."

"The physical harm to be inflicted on them if they unrolled another roll of toilet tissue."

"The ramifications of drilling holes in every seat in the house, including their bicycle and the back seat of the car."

"The option of either becoming trained or learning how to tread water."

"The threat of permanent creases on their bottoms from sitting on the stool that only surgery would remove."

And on bad days, my trump threat of "rubbing their noses in it."

That is why I anxiously thumbed through a new book that reached my desk this week - "Toilet Learning: The Picture Book Technique for Children and Parents," by Alison Mack.

I skipped over the chapter, "The Benefits of the Toilet." I know that and pressed on to the Age of Understanding. The author contends there is a new technique which now stresses the child's point of view with the emphasis on learning - not training.

For example, they don't turn on every faucet in the house and show slides of Lake Erie over the bathtub anymore. They show you in 48 pages of pictures the advantages of plumbing (theirs and the ones in the house).

They don't threaten you with a rainbow that follows you around if you don't get to the bathroom on time. They try to impress on you how wonderful it feels being dry.

And another innovation is that toilet learning has become an equal opportunity employer. Dad is involved as much as mother.

I suppose there is still camaraderie between the trainer and the trainee, but nothing to equal the closeness of my son and me. Every time we hear "The Impossible Dream" he says, "They're playing our song."

cb rules cause turmoil

There can no longer be any doubt in any CBer's mind — the Federal Communications Commission has acted like a blind dog in a meathouse. Unfortunately, the FCC regulates so many different areas of the communications field that its actions have a profound effect on everyone.

It didn't take a genius to figure out that television interference was a serious problem. But CB units were not required to protect against the transmission of spurious signals until September, 1976. And at this writing television-set manufacturers are not required to engineer the receivers the public is buying to safeguard against reception of these spurious signals.

Additionally, there was a great hue and cry for additional channels to help ease the pressure on the 23-channel units that CBers were allotted. The hullabaloo had been going on for several years. It must be assumed that a brilliant young lawyer came into an FCC conference room, bright-eyed and bushy-tailed, to present his plan for the complete solution to both problems. Let's say this was early 1976.

In late 1976, mind you, when this grand solution became a matter of regulation, everyone was in a turmoil. The FCC ordered all manufacturers of CB units to submit their schematic diagrams and photographs of their transceivers for FCC approval. They also have to be type-tested. This decree had nothing to do with whether the sets were 23 channels or 40. The advance in the approved number of channels from 23 to 40 was almost incidental, it would appear now, but it would solve the congestion problem, too. Great?

Well, look at what happened. The market place was in a state of confusion. Forty-channel sets, news reports said, would be standard equipment. The FCC then said all 23-channel sets had to be sold by January 1, 1978. The retailers and distributors panicked. Prices began to go crazy. Manufacturers' distribution systems got completely messed up with sets coming into the marketing stream and being returned because they were 23-channels. Meantime, the importers loaded the shelves with 23-channel units at low, low prices to get the benefit of the panic.

The consequence? Millions of CB units — the same as those which had caused the interference problem in the first place — were dumped on the scene. Three very large and good manufacturers went broke as a result of the created debacle. Everything went into a tailspin. The end result is that the industry is probably three years away from reasonably good health.

It means that many technological advances will be delayed and personal radio will not grow, as it might have, in a steady and logical progression of developments. The TVI will get worse. The increased number of channels available to CBers, though a good thing, was not necessarily of prime importance until more consideration had been given to moving all personal radio to another frequency range, to FM, or to 100 channels, etc.

Broadcasters, operators of commercial radio and television stations, have experienced this ineptness. It retarded the growth of UHF television for many years. Cable television operators have been fighting to make progress for 20 years and regularly confront obstacle after obstacle, winning a little bit at a time.

CB is a victim of a regulatory agency's determination to take a bite of this, a nibble at that, with no willingness to gnaw through until the bone has been cleaned. In answer to the many letters of complaint about TVI, this is it.

It's getting harder than ever to take the measure of a man. First, you have to find out whether you're using feet or meters.

Best solution to the "clean" neutron bomb program would seem to be to scrub the whole idea.

One way to cut down on cost of air conditioning: Persuade the neighbor to say her 45-minute goodbyes before you open the door.

Therefore you have no excuse, O man, whoever you are, when you judge another; for in passing judgment upon him you condemn yourself, because you, the judge, are doing the very same things. — Romans 2:1.

purchasers optimistic

NEW YORK (AP)-The nation's purchasing managers met in convention here today, and from the annual event came the reassuring news that members fail to see the shadow of inflation, at least this year.

This is big news indeed, because purchasing managers buy materials for their companies to manufacture into goods. They are at the battle-front, so to speak. They have an unparalelled record for accuracy.

Only one survey indicator, prices, has turned bad, said E.F. Andrews, vice president of Allegheny Ludlum Industries and chairman of the National Association of Purchasing Management's survey committee.

The membership, he said as he prepared his report, is "certainly optimistic but very concerned in price matters." But, he repeated, the business expansion will continue into next year.

While that news might transcend other findings, it does not follow that the economy is out of the woods. Said Andrews: "The rate of up is down," meaning the pace of industrial growth is slowing.

As he spoke, the Federal Reserve announced that industrial output rose 1.1 percent in April. But as Andrews and others point out, that increase is partly a result of a weather-induced poor first quarter.

While, 1978 output in "honest dollars" - inflation discounted - is likely to be around 4 percent, Andrews said, it must be measured against figures of around 6 percent in 1976 and 5 percent in 1976.

Declines of that nature, if continued, inevitably precede recessions, Andrews conceded, but the association's survey of members does not indicate a recession is coming. Not unless certain conditions change.

"The biggest problem is inflation," said Andrews, who regularly analyzes the returns. In the eyes of the purchasing manager, he said, the situation harks back to the Nixon days.

Nixon, you will recall, froze prices in 1971, despite promises not to do so. As the purchasers see it, that led to shortages, dislocations and the severe recession of 1974-1975. They worry about a possible repeat.

"You can see it in the remarks," said Andrews, referring to the filled-in questionnaires. The fear. "All the guys indicate it - inflation, controls, shortages, recession."

They are not forecasting a recession, Andrews observed. But he agreed that if the worst fears did become a reality, then there might indeed be a recession, perhaps by midyear 1979.

But, he was reminded, President Carter and his aides have promised repeatedly to avoid controls. "And Nixon did too," Andrews shot back.

Such promises, he suggested, are politics. British Prime Minister Harold Wilson once promised 27 times in one year not to devalue the pound sterling, Andrews recalled. "Then he did it."

In 1973, for example, inventories were building at the very time new orders were coming down. "That forebodes trouble," he said. "But it's not happening now."

martha angle and robert walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Homeowners rebelling against soaring property taxes ought to take note of a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling suggesting an equitable method of distributing the real estate tax burden in communities across the nation.

The case before the court involved Northwestern University, in the Chicago suburb of Evanston, Ill. The university owns 434 acres of land, 71 of them leased to a supermarket, telephone company and a variety of other commercial enterprises.

Northwestern pays no property taxes on any of its land, including that occupied by profit-making companies, because an 1855 amendment to its corporate charter specified "that all property of whatever kind or description belonging to or owned by said corporation shall be forever free from taxation for any and all purposes."

For more than a century, Northwestern successfully rebuffed all taxation attempts, arguing that the blanket exemption granted by the state legislature preceded an 1870 revision of the state constitution that limited later exceptions to property used for educational purposes.

Among Northwestern's current tax-exempt tenants are Pepsi-Cola, which operates a soft drink bottling plant on university property, and Nabisco, producer of cookies, crackers and breakfast cereals.

In 1973 and 1974, Cook County officials sent real estate tax bills of $83,498 to Pepsi and $38,074 to Nabisco. Both companies refused to pay and filed suit seeking the protection of the 1855 exemption. But last autumn, the Illinois Supreme Court rejected their arguments.

The corporations then appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court, but in a little-noticed order issued in early May that tribunal dismissed the appeal "for want of a substantial federal question."

The university estimates that "tax burden ultimately imposed on Northwestern would amount to approximately $1 million annually" - candid admission that the school has indeed avoided substantial real estate tax payments for many years.

The recent litigation represents merely the tip of the iceberg. Back in 1908, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled against the University of the South, in Sewanee, Tenn., in a similar case.

In a 1971 book, "The Free List: Property Without Taxes," author Alfred Balk cited studies estimating that much of all real estate in this country was exempt or immune from property taxes.

The Chrysler Building, a midtown Manhattan landmark, avoids payment of at least $1.5 million in yearly real estate taxes because it is owned by Cooper Union, a school that received a blanket tax exemption from New York's legislature in 1859.

The twin towers of Manhattan's new 110-story World Trade Center, a $600 million property, are immune from taxes because of ownership by the New York-New Jersey Port Authority, a quasi-governmental organization.

Property owned by religious groups invariably is excluded from tax liability, even though parent churches may be very wealthy and the facilities are used for catering, bowling, bingo and a host of other profit-making enterprises.

Other property enjoying tax exemption includes that owned by hospitals, cemeteries and medical facilities; labor, fraternal, social, professional and civic organizations; and local, state and federal governments.

But consistency often is lacking. Balk's books cites one survey showing that property belonging to the Moose, Eagles and Elks is subjected to property taxes in some jurisdictions but exempted in others.

The solution lies not in abolishing all real estate tax exemptions, but in requiring more uniform, rational and equitable standards of granting them. Every dollar lost on immune property must be paid by someone else - and individual homeowners invariably bear much of that burden.

Eagle Forum Topic At Auxiliary Meet

Snyder Firemen's Auxiliary met recently with president Katie Doty presiding. Ten members attended and one new member enrolled.

Wanda Justice, a member of the board of directors and Mary Gill, president of the Eagle Forum presented a program concerning the Eagle Forum, it's purpose and goals plus insight to the ERA Amendment which is before Congress. They stated that the Eagle Forum in Snyder began in Oct. 1977 but it has been a national organization for many years. The ERA Amendment has until March of 1979 to be ratified by 38 states thus making it an amendment to the US Constitution. Thirty-five states have already ratified it. However, three states rescinded the, ratification. Should this amendment pass they say, there will be no distinction between the sexes. Women would be eligible for the draft just as men should the draft come again; also members of the same sex will be able to marry and adopt children. Sex discrimination would not be allowed in public places, schools, etc. Everyone was urged to study this amendment and write their congressman.

Rosemary Kohl gave a report on the garage sale held in April. Trudie Wood reported on the District Convention held in Haskell.

Members were urged to encourage their husbands to participate in the Fire Fighting School to be held in Abilene.

The first minute books and scrapbooks of the Snyder Firemen's Auxiliary are to be donated to the Fire Museum in Grand Prairie. These will become a part of the museum to display as they wish.

Members voted to support Molly Pogar of Seguin for 4th president of the Texas Fireman's and Firemarshal's Association Ladies Auxiliary. This convention will be held in Lubbock beginning June 10.

The booth for the 4th of July celebration was discussed and will be finalized in June.

Hostesses for the June meeting will be Trudie Wood and Ann Wright. Fire call members are Carol Kozelsky, Charlotte McDowell and Pat Whittenburg.

O'Brien Gets Hemingway Award

NEW YORK (AP)-Darcy O'Brien has been awarded this year's Ernest Hemingway Foundation Award for his novel "A Way of Life, Like Any Other."

O'Brien's book is about growing up amid Hollywood glamor. The award, presented Monday, was given for the best American first novel by the PEN International writers association, and was presented by Hemingway's widow, Mary. O'Brien is the son of Hollywood cowboy actor George O'Brien. His mother was a stage actress.

The bidding should be explained. East jumped to two spades over the take-out double to show (it was part of the partnership's understanding) a spade suit of six or seven cards and very few high-card points.

South's jump to four hearts was routine. What was not routine was West's imaginative and inspired defense.

At tricks one and two West cashed his ace and king of clubs. Even though dummy was imposing, and South's bidding had been authoritative, West was not inclined to concede anything.

He had two tricks. The ace of hearts was a sure third. Where was the fourth to come from?

It had to come from the diamond suit and was only going to come if East would show up with two trumps and a singleton diamond. Consequently, at trick three West led a diamond.

South won in his own hand and led the seven of hearts. West went right up with the ace. He led another diamond and watched East ruff for the setting trick.

A slim chance is better than no chance and the slim chance had won.

RSVP Presents Awards For Volunteer Activity

Food and fellowship were the fare of the day for about 250 people who attended the Retired Seniors Volunteer Program recognition luncheon yesterday at the Scurry County Coliseum.

Numerous awards were presented in appreciation of work volunteered in many areas of community activity. Also several door prizes consisting of house plants and cash were given away.

Master of ceremonies for the annual event was Dr. Gil Fleer. The Rev. David Robertson gave the invocation and Delbert Downing was guest speaker.

Dr. Ben Broek, vice president of Western Texas College, recognized the advisory council and Ruby Anderson recognized new volunteers. Presentation of awards to the RSVP stations were made by Mrs. Marsha Krenek, RSVP director.

Mrs. Krenek also expressed appreciation to the Kiwanis Club and Snyder Nursery for the prizes and to Hinshaw's House of Flowers for corsages. She also thanked Mrs. Lois Snowden for the table roses and Mrs. Fred Davis for the table arrangement.

Twelve members staff the advisory council. They are Ruby Anderson, Evelyn Boone, H.F. Clark, Fred Davis, Herman Doak, Dr. Gil Fleer, the Rev. Thomas Jordan, Mildred Lewis, M.W. Pilcher, Lida Rhoades, Mayor John Fagin and Judge Preston Wilson.

RSVP members enrolled in the 1977-78 program include Mrs. Valtye Lilly, Earl Cary, Mrs. Sue Jones, Jake King, Mrs. Wren Moore, Mrs. Oleta Layne, Loyd Webb, Mrs. Ida Mae Webb, Mrs. Blanche Murry, Mrs. Ellen Davidson, Shade McGinity, Mrs. Tommie McGinty, Mrs. Lena Ainsworth, Mrs. Lillian Clarkson, Mrs. Bernice Reed, Mrs. Gladys Smith, Mrs. L.D. Harlin, Jess Read, Mrs. Vivian Cochran, Jack Burney, Cliff Gentry and Mrs. Hellen Gentry.

And also enrolled are Mrs. Jessie Pryor, Mrs. Pearl Reeder, the Rev. James Jennings, the Rev. Vernon Parnell, Mrs. Jeannie Henderson; John Wiman, Mrs. Lou Wiman, Mrs. Dionicia Canales, Mrs. Catarina Torres, Ben Galindo, Mrs. Vivian Fikes, Mrs. Edith Blari, Mrs. Opal Terrell, Mrs. Sarah Hammitt, D.L. Courses In Biology Set At College

Summer students at Western Texas College may earn as many as eight hours of credit in biology, Joe Carter, instructor, said.

Biology 145 will be offered in the first six weeks from June 1-July 7. Biology 146 will begin on July 13 and continue through August 18. Classes for both courses will meet from 9:30-10:50 Monday through Friday and labs are scheduled from 1-3 p.m. on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Both courses will stress outdoor learning labs, field trips and the practical side of plant and animal studies, Carter said.

Dormitory housing will be available for summer students from May 30-July 28.

Pre-registration for summer classes is now underway. Persons wishing to register are to go to the Administration Building during regular office hours. Further information about the biology courses may be obtained by contacting Carter at the college, 573-8511.

Gag Order Is Lifted

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)- Marion county Sheriff Donald Gilman has agreed to lift his departmental gag order. The order was put into effect May 4, two days after he lost a Democratic primary race for sheriff.

At a hearing in Superior Court on Monday, Gilman's lawyers said the sheriff, who has said he would "taunt the press for fun," would drop the gag order pending trial on a suit brought by two reporters, one from the Indianapolis Star and the other from the Indianapolis News. The gag order had barred any of Gilman's staff from talking to the press.

School Aid Reviewed

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department is reviewing its practice of providing aid to schools to determine the impact of possibly phasing out the government's food donation programs and shift entirely to cash payments.

Congress authorized the study in updating child nutrition programs last year. Most schools now get USDA-donated commodities in addition to cash payments.

Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman said Tuesday that the study involves schools participating in federally subsidized lunch and breakfast programs plus those in summer feeding programs.

The study has two parts. One will compare information from Kansas, the only state currently getting cash payments instead of commodities, with Colorado where USDA-donated commodities are donated to schools to help with their meal programs.

Overall, cash payments of $2.1 billion this fiscal year make up most of the federal help to school food program. Donations of commodities account for about $578 million this year.

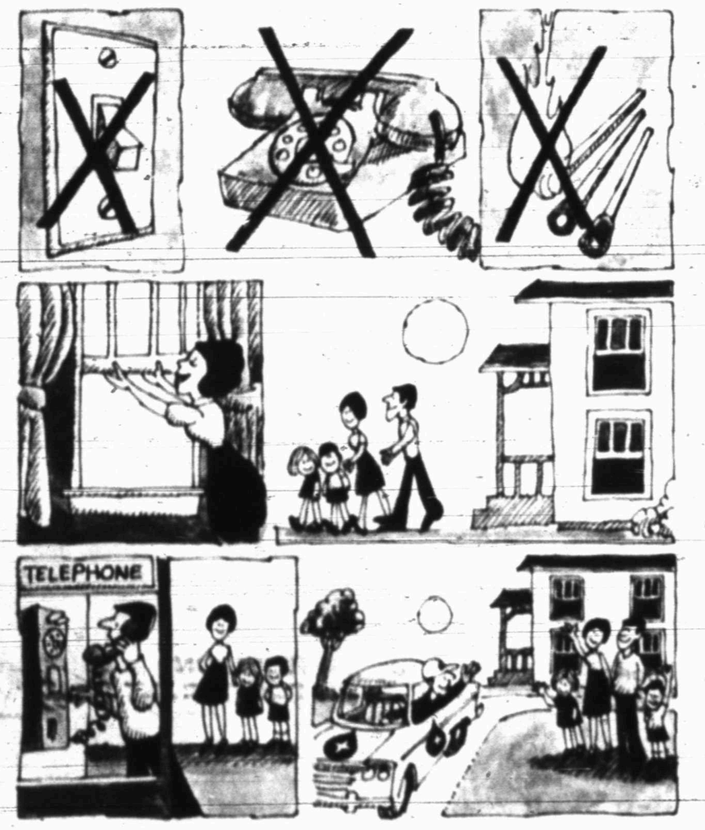

In addition, school meals are supported by about $1.3 billion in what children pay for them plus about $970 million in state, local and other contributions to operate the programs.

Ms. Foreman said that USDA began collecting information from the eight school districts participating in the study on May 8 and that beginning July 1 those will no longer receive their usual shipments of donated food. Instead, they will get cash payments for the entire 1978-79 school year, she said.

The eight school districts selected to participate in the study are: Oakland Unified School District, Oakland Calif.; Independent School District of Boise City, Boise, Idaho; St. Louis Public Schools, St. Louis, Mo.; Dayton Public Schools, Dayton, Ohio; Williamsville Central School District, Williamsville, N.Y.; Washington Public School District, Chipley, Fla.; Riceville Community Schools, Riceville, Iowa; and Jonesboro Public Schools, Jonesboro, Ark.

In addition to the statewide information to be gathered from Kansas and Colorado, local information will be obtained from school districts in Hutchinson, Kan., and Greeley, Colo., Ms. Foreman said.

IF YOU SMELL NATURAL GAS, FOLLOW THESE 3 STEPS TO SAFETY.

The natural gas industry has an excellent safety record.

The fact that you can smell natural gas is because we add a harmless chemical to it as an extra safety feature. Otherwise, it would be completely odorless. If you detect faint whiffs of what you think may be gas, investigate. It may be something that is as easily and safely corrected as a pilot light that has gone out, or a burner valve that's partially open.

If your equipment seems to be working properly and the odor intensifies and seems to be everywhere, please follow these precautions:

1. Do not switch anything electrical on or off. Do not use the telephone in your own home. Do not strike a match. Do not do anything that might cause a spark.
2. Have everyone leave the house immediately, leaving doors open to help ventilate.
3. Go to a nearby telephone and call Lone Star Gas Company. Wait until we have found the source of the odor to determine whether it's safe for you to return to the house.

You may never have a natural gas leak, but we want you to be informed in case one does occur. Please make sure your family is aware of these precautionary steps. And we suggest that you keep this message for future reference.

SI PERCIBE OLOR A GAS NATURAL OBEDEZCA ESTAS 3 NORMAS DE SEGURIDAD.

La industria del gas natural tiene un récord de seguridad excelente.

El hecho de que Usted pueda percibir el olor a gas natural se debe a que se la ha añadido un producto químico extra, que no es nocivo. De lo contrario, el gas no olería. Si detecta ciertas ráfagas de olor que cree son producidas por escape de gas, investigue. Es posible que se pueda corregir fácilmente y sin peligro, por tratarse de que una llama-piloto se ha apagado, o que una válvula de algún aparto está parcialmente abierta.

Cuando suceda que a pesar de que su equipo aparentemente funciona bien, pero el olor a gas se intensifica y se siente en todas partes, entonces siga estas precauciones:

1. No conecte ni desconecte ningún aparato eléctrico. No use el teléfono de su casa. No prenda fósforos. No haga nada que pueda producir chispas.
2. Haga que todos salgan de la casa inmediatamente, dejando las puertas abiertas para que se ventile.
3. Vaya a un teléfono cercano y llame informando a la Compañía Lone Star Gas Co., y espere hasta que los encargados de la Compañía investiguen las causas y determinen si se puede o no retornar a casa.

Es muy posible que Usted nunca tenga que enfrentarse con escapes de gas, pero queremos informarle por si acaso le sucede alguna vez. Asegúrese que toda su familia conozca estas normas de seguridad. Le aconsejamos también que guarde este aviso como referencia para el futuro. Gracias.

Lone Star Gas Company

In Shorthand, Mary Preuitt placed second in district, fourth in the region; and Jana Wesson placed fourth in district.

In science, Chris Chamblee placed first in district, third in the region and eighth in state.

Sea Life Returns

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Marine wildlife, victim of an oil tanker explosion in December, 1976, has returned to the ocean bottom in Los Angeles Harbor near the site of the blast that filled the water with oil, a team of divers reported recently.

However, they also reported finding "a lot of oil" in pools as deep as 6 inches.

The divers were under the direction of the University of Southern California Institute for Marine and Coastal Studies.

The institute has been monitoring the marine damage ever since the oil tanker Sansinena exploded, killing nine men and dumping thousands of gallons of bunker fuel into the water.

The divers said they found marine life "happily living around the oil pools." Some even found small creatures living on silt sediment atop the thick globs of oil.

New Type Buildings In The Future

NEW YORK (AP) - A "new generation" of commercial buildings, incorporating energy-saving designs and features, was predicted at the recent Energy Conservation Awards presentation here.

In a keynote address, Charles E. Peck, a vice president of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., said that one event which will help produce this new generation of buildings is: large financial institutions, which provide mortgage money, will begin to insist that the commercial buildings on which they hold mortgages are energy-efficient. Statewide building codes will begin mandating higher levels of energy conservation, he predicted.

The Energy Conservation Awards competition is sponsored annually by the corporation, and honors energy-efficient construction as a means of encouraging improved energy savings in all forms of construction.

Rene F.A. Sully Prudhomme of France won the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1901.

Living Is Hazardous According To Warnings

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Warning: Living can be hazardous to your health.

Or so it seems. If you believe everything you read and hear, it is hard to imagine how anyone survives.

Consider just a few of the dangers lurking in a typical day.

Wake up with a cup of coffee. But too much caffeine is bad for you. It causes birth defects in animals, says the Center for Science in the Public Interest. And who can afford coffee anyway?

Take a vitamin. Careful. More than 4,000 cases of vitamin poisoning are reported every year, according to the National Clearinghouse for Poison Control Centers of the Food and Drug Administration.

Bacon and eggs for breakfast? Do not take safety for granted. The government wants to sharply reduce the amount of sodium nitrite used to cure bacon because nitrite can combine with other substances to form cancer-causing agents.

"Bacon," says Michael Jacobson, of the Center for Science in the Public Interest, "is nothing but little strips of fat laced with nitrosamines. The fat promotes heart disease, America's No. 1 health problem. The nitrosamines promote cancer, the No. 2 health problem."

Just eggs, then. Wait. Egg yolks contain cholesterol and high levels of cholesterol are bad for your heart.

A quick cigarette before showering? Remember the cancer warnings: OK, there is nothing wrong with cleanliness, is there? Only sometimes. The FDA wants warning labels on bubble baths because, it says some who use them get rashes and itching.

Be careful stepping into the tub. Twenty-one million Americans are injured in home accidents every year, says the Consumer Product Safety Commission. And if the water is too hot, you may waste energy.

Back in the bedroom to dress. Stop before you spray. Aerosol products containing chlorofluorocarbons may be damaging the earth's atmosphere and the government has taken steps to ban them.

Perhaps you are female. On the pill. Read the required warning label that tells you excess doses of estrogen can cause cancer.

Off to work. Careful of that automobile. Does it pollute? Is your seat belt fastened? Drive carefully. The National Safety Council says 72.3 percent of all fatal accidents happen within 25 miles of home.

Safe at the office. Safe? Nearly 1 million Americans may be exposed to cancer-causing substances where they work, according to the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health. An additional 20 million workers face possible dangers from everything from asbestos to noise and other pollutants. Between 1,500 and 2,000 chemicals are known of suspected as cancer-causing agents.

Nervous? Try chewing gum, but not with sugar which can cause cavities.

Lunch time. Skip the three martinis. President Carter does not approve. Anyway, lots of alcohol, over a long time, can damage the liver, brain and heart, says the National Center on Drug Abuse.

Fast-food, then. Wait a minute. Just this week, it was suggested that certain methods of cooking hamburger may just MAY, mind you, be dangerous. Four Canadian doctors say some people may be allergic to one ingredient in McDonald's sauce, although McDonald's says there is no evidence the ingredients is "neither dangerous or harmful."

Perhaps a salad. Perhaps. Residues of a pesticide, DBCP, sometimes found on carrots, radishes, cabbage and cucumbers are "an unreasonable risk," claims the Environmental Protection Agency.

That is one way to reduce. Another, the liquid protein diet, may be dangerous, FDA says. It is checking. Watch artificially sweetened soft drinks. Large doses of saccharin cause bladder cancer in male rats.

A stroll in the sun should take your mind off your stomach. Careful: ultraviolet radiation from the sun is the main cause of skin cancer.

There is no refuge at the beauty parlor. Preliminary data shows that two chemicals in permanent hair dyes "are positive cancer-causing agents in rats and mice," says the National Cancer Institute.

You might as well go home.

More than half our time is spent there, says the Household Pollutants Guide published by the Center for Science in the Public Interest. Some of the dangers: aerosol sprays, cleaners, insect killers and repellents, paints and solvents, inks, spot removers and on and on.

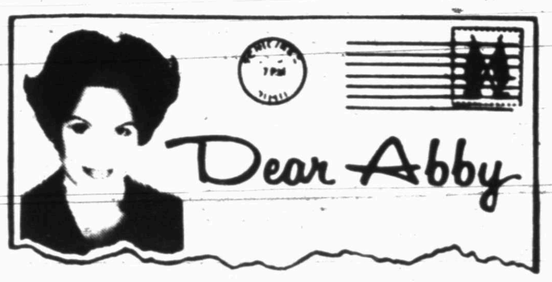

Need a tranquilizer? Or at least an aspirin? Each year, some 300,000 Americans are hospitalized with severe drug reactions.

Time for dinner. Use the microwave oven. Unless it has been found to be leaking excessive radiation.

Give up and go to bed.

As you drift off, ponder one more statistic. It may cheer you:

In 1900, when we knew of none of these dangers, the average life expectancy in the United States was 47.3 years, according to the Census Bureau. Today, it is more than 70 years.

Applied Psychology In the Right Place

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have a 6-year-old daughter I'll call Mary. My neighbor has a 6-year-old daughter I'll call Lisa. Well, we took our daughters to the doctor for their shots.

First my neighbor took Lisa in, and she screamed and hollered as if the doctor was cutting off her arm, so Lisa's mother said, "I won't let that mean old doctor hurt you. If you stop crying I'll buy you a new doll on the way home." So Lisa turned off the tears like you would turn off a faucet.

When it was my daughter's turn for her shot, I took her in and she started yelling and carrying on just like Lisa did. I said, "Wait a minute, Doctor." Then I took Mary and tore up her little bottom. Then I said, "You let the doctor give you the shot so you won't get sick and die, and I don't want to see any more scenes." After that, she behaved herself and didn't shed a tear.

When we got home, Mary said, "Mama, don't you love me?" And I said, "Sure I do, with all my heart." And then she said, "How come you didn't get me a doll like Lisa's?"

Abby, should I have gotten my little girl a doll, too?

SOFT-HEARTED MAMA

DEAR MAMA: No. If you had, you would have taught her two things: (1) If she wants something, all she has to do is scream for it. (2) A child is entitled to something just because a friend has one.

DEAR ABBY: I am a single woman, 43, going with a man of 56. Sidney is a widower with three grown children. He is very attractive and represents the kind of security a woman my age rarely finds. He was happily married for 30 years, and now he wants to marry me.

The trouble is my mother. We have lived together since Dad died 10 years ago, and ever since I told her I want to marry Sidney, she has cried and carried on like you wouldn't believe. She says he's too old for me and it will never work out. I've told her she could live with us, but she refuses to move to the city where we would live. (She and I presently live in a suburb.)

When her friends try to tell her that she should be happy that I'll have someone to look after me when she's gone, she says HE is only 11 years younger than SHE is, and he won't last that much longer.

Abby, I could be very happy with Sidney if it weren't for my mother. What should I do?

MOTHER TROUBLE

DEAR TROUBLE: Marry Sidney. And ask him if he has a friend for your mother.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is dead and I have two enlarged pictures of him nicely framed; I keep them in my living room. The other day a neighbor came in and saw them, and she said personal pictures do not belong in the living room.

Abby, I haven't had much education, and I would appreciate it if you would tell me if I am wrong to keep his pictures there.

I get a lot of pleasure out of looking at his pictures in the living room, but if they really don't belong there, I suppose I could put them somewhere else. Thank you.

DON'T KNOW

DEAR DON'T: Personal pictures should be enjoyed. And they "belong" wherever they afford the most pleasure.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Texan Airfreights Self Out Of Saudi Arabia

By SUSAN LINNEE
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - While scores of American businessmen are trying to get into lucrative deals in Saudi Arabia, one Houston building contractor airfreighted himself out of the country in a wooden crate.

John L. McDonald, president and co-owner of Heritage Building Systems International, said he doubted Saudi officials would ever let him leave the country after they confiscated his passport last November and accused him of not meeting contract obligations for construction of a cement factory on the Persian Gulf.

McDonald said he spent several weeks checking out cargo flights from Dhahran airport before he actually slipped inside a crate labeled cement he and some friends had taken through customs. With McDonald instead of a sack of cement inside, the crate was loaded on a Europe-bound plane.

"One of the real precautions I had to take was making sure the crate was shipped in a pressurized cabin," he said. "Otherwise, I was a dead man."

McDonald arrived in the European city May 7 and in Houston May 8. He said he preferred not to name the city or the friend who helped him because he didn't want to cause any problems for the airline in Dhahran.

Problems began, McDonald said, after his firm arranged for a $450,000 contract to design, make and ship pre-cast concrete housing forms for use in building the cement factory.

"The contracts were quite clear. The forms were to be delivered CIF to Jubail where the plant would be built," McDonald said. "That was our extent of obligation."

The subsequent Saudi court hearing, McDonald said, was an attempt to cover up an extortion attempt by Saudi officials for return of his passport.

"The court was very abrupt and dismissed the two contracts that spelled out our obligations," he said.

McDonald said it was his fourth visit to Saudi Arabia where he had made earlier deals with four Saudi joint venture partners. He said the four put up the money while his firm supplied materials and expertise.

The arrangement was a 50-50 split of the profits, but McDonald said his Saudi partners then tried a shakedown.

"This deal was eventually going to lead to a $10-15 million construction job. But they've collapsed any opportunity for us to do business in Saudi Arabia," he said. "If they could have thought 10 hours ahead ..."

Attempts to get help from American diplomatic sources were futile, McDonald said.

Armstrong Hurt But Understands

DALLAS (AP)-Garner Ted Armstrong said he understands why his father stripped him of his power in the World Church of God and cancelled his television show, "but that doesn't make it hurt any less."

In a telephone interview with the Dallas Times Herald, the media evangelist said he is "hurt, bewildered and embarrassed." He said he is leaving for three or four days with "some old fishing buddies" to try to sort things out and let the dust settle.

Armstrong played down speculation that a power struggle is under way for control of the 80,000 member church and college, which collects more than $60 million annually.

"There is nothing more sinister in it than that a man at the age of 86, once again wants to take over complete control of what he started," the younger Armstrong said.

Herbert W. Armstrong founded the World Church of God more than 40 years ago.

Garner Ted Armstrong said what hurt the most was that his father did it all without consulting him.

"I guess he felt that I would try to come on strong and urge him to change his mind. He was determined to do it, and he just didn't want to have to go through an hour-long discussion with me about it."

The media evangelist, who says he has not talked to his father since the announcements, said he has lost 10 pounds in the past week. He also said he will not tape any of his "The World Tomorrow" radio broadcasts for at least several days, until he is rested and in better spirits.

The younger Armstrong also hopes the cancellation of his television show is temporary and he blamed the cutback on financial problems in the church organization.

He said despite his disappointment he will remain loyal to his father. "I love my father, and I must defend him ... The best thing for me is to just try to remain low key and support him as best I can."

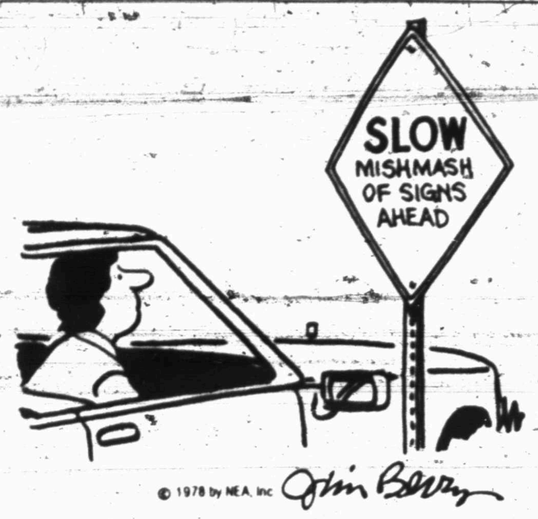

4-Month Term Levied Here

A guilty plea entered to a charge of driving while intoxicated netted one man a four-month term in the Scurry County Jail.

The plea was entered by John Michael Coonrod yesterday before the 132nd District Court.

Coonrod was arrested on the DWI charge Jan. 28.

CJD Audit Surprise...

Charges Hurled At Crime Task Force

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Dolph Briscoe Criminal Justice Division has accused Attorney General John Hill's organized crime task force of illegal sleuthing and pistol-packing.

Release of the CJD audit Tuesday surprised observers because of its potential for damaging Hill's chances of defeating Republican Bill Clements for governor.

After Hill took the Democratic nomination from Briscoe in the May 6 primary, the governor pledged his support to his former adversary.

When asked to comment on the audit, task force chief Tim James said, "I gave it to the boss (Hill). He is on the way to Washington and will read it on the way. I don't think it takes an expert to tell you how ridiculous it is."

Conceivably, the CJD could use the audit as a basis for taking away the $300,000 federal grant that funds the task force. It is awaiting Hill's response before acting, a spokesman said.

The audit, requested by Briscoe in the heat of his campaign against Hill, made these adverse findings:

—"Illegal operation of task force members as peace officers ... These activities were found to include undercover police work, surveillance work, general police work and active participation in gun-point arrest."

—"Illegal gathering, maintenance and dissemination of intelligence data by the task force ... The attorney general has no legal authority to operate an intelligence agency."

—"Unauthorized assignment of task force staff members full-time to law enforcement agencies."

—"Poor administration in maintaining records ... that fail to provide an adequate data base necessary for evaluation of task force activities."

—"Weakness in financial records," with $3,728.71 in excessive expenditures.

At the outset, the CJD audit said the attorney general lacks authority to perform police-type work, including packing guns, gathering intelligence and performing undercover work - a point James disputes.

"Until and unless the Legislature acts to grant such powers to the attorney general, any exercise of police power, which is granted by law only to 'peace officers,' must be viewed as an illegal activity," the report said.

Task force members hold peace officer commissions from District Attorney Ronald Earle of Austin so they can carry pistols, but the report said the commissions are valid only in Travis County.

The report said 38 per cent of law enforcement officers and prosecutors questioned said task force members had performed undercover work for them.

"Two local law enforcement officials acknowledged that they had personally observed task force members to be operating with their guns drawn while in the act of making an apprehension," the audit said.

Auditors also said 38 percent of the law enforcement officials and prosecutors questioned saw the task force as a source of criminal intelligence data.

Three Facing Felony Counts

Felony criminal charges have been filed against three men, court records show.

Two of the men, William P. Pack, 20, and James Norman Ricket, 22, are charged with alleged felony possession of marijuana. They were arrested in a city police drug raid May 10 that netted between half a pound and a pound of marijuana, reports show.

The third man, Lusiano Rodriquez Martinez, is charged with driving while intoxicated. That charge stems from a May 11 arrest.

All of the men have been released after posting bond.

Jail Terms Are Assessed

Reginald Reid, a former Western Texas College basketball player, pleaded no contest to two misdemeanor charges Tuesday in county court and drew two concurrent 15-day jail terms.

Reid, 22, was charged with the April 5 theft of $100 worth of food stamps from the Snyder post office, and with receiving nearly four ounces of marijuana through the mail on April 17.

The dual sentences will be served in the Scurry County Jail.

City Firemen Called Twice

Two grass fires were doused Tuesday afternoon by city firefighters.

The first fire was reported at 4:47 p.m. about 15 miles northeast of the city.

The second occurred about 6:27 p.m. at Key Trailer Park on West 37th St.

Theft Probed At Country Club

A reported $120 cash theft from the Snyder Country Club is currently under investigation.

Sheriff's deputies said the money was allegedly taken from the desk of Hector Melgar, the club manager.

The theft is believed to have occured last week.

Flynt Says CIA Shot Him

CINCINNATI (AP) - Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt says he was shot by the Central Intelligence Agency during his trial in Georgia on pornography charges.

Flynt, who has refused to be questioned by Georgia authorities since the shooting that left him paralyzed below the waist, said Tuesday night in a television interview from his hospital in Columbus, Ohio:

"I knew who did it even before I was shot. The CIA did it, the same people who assasinated President Kennedy, his brother Bobby, Martin Luther King Jr., Malcolm X ..."

Flynt whose publications have been investigating the assassination of President John F. Kennedy said the shooting hadn't changed his life "because I knew it was going to happen sooner or later. I just thank God my life was spared."

Vote Count Is Halted

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) - The Dominican army stepped in and halted the vote count in the presidential election early today but denied rumors it had seized control of this Caribbean island nation. The army intervened in the electoral process after challenger Antonio Guzman took a big lead over incumbent President Joaquin Balaguer.

A military communique, broadcast by Dominican radio, said rumors of a coup were false and added, "the armed forces respect the constitution and order." The radio said it was issued by Lt. Gen. Juan Beauchamps Javier, who was identified as secretary of the armed forces. The army gave no reason for its intervention, however.

Presbyterians Elect Texan

By George W. Cornell
AP Religion Writer

SAN DIEGO (AP)-Momentarily sidestepping their hottest issue, United Presbyterians have elected as presiding officer a Texas clergyman who has stayed neutral about whether the church should ordain avowed homosexuals.

But there was a possible straw in the wind about the highly volatile question in the voting Tuesday night for the post of moderator at the denomination's 190th general assembly.

The Rev. William P. Lytle, 54, of San Antonio, who has remained uncommitted on the matter, won on a third ballot, but his two closest contenders in a six-way race had openly opposed allowing homosexuals in the ministry.

Lytle, thanking representatives of the 2.6 million-member church for their "trust and confidence," voiced prayers that "We deliberate and do the thing that is right and good."

He got 396 votes to 199 for the Rev. James G. Emerson Jr. of Denver and 40 for the Rev. Vahe H. Simonian of Pasadena, Calif., the two runners-up. Simonian, who had vigorously fought the proposal for ordaining acknowledged homosexuals, polled higher on earlier ballots.

Lytle, in a statement prior to his election, said: "I rejoice that we are bold enough to deal with difficult questions in an open forum. Our greatest danger is not in conflict, but in failure to listen and learn."

He said two years of work by a task force, whose majority has recommended that the church allow ordination of avowed homosexuals, has helpfully "brought the subject into the open."

"We have witnessed a good deal of emotion," he added, "some latent fears have surfaced along with anger." He said that whatever decision the assembly makes, there will be some hurting and the need for healing afterward.

If the task force majority's recommendations are approved, the denomination would be the first Christian body in history officially to open its ministry to declared homosexuals.

Sharp debate about the matter has swirled throughout the church, with some warning that approval of the move would cause widespread defections.

A decision is not scheduled until Monday at this 11-day assembly which opened Tuesday.

Sorenson, Brewers Chip Away Rangers

ARLINGTON (AP)-Lary Sorensen's complete-game victory Tuesday night over Texas couldn't have come at a better time, says Milwaukee Manager George Bamberger.

"Every time you lose a game like we did Monday night and come back and win a game like this, it gives new life to the ballclub," Bamberger said after the 22-year-old Sorensen shut the Rangers down on seven hits in a 4-3 Milwaukee victory.

Texas had battered the Brewers for 13 hits and eight runs in Monday night's 8-6 win over Milwaukee.

"He (Sorensen) was great," said Bamberger. "He showed a lot of heart out there. The kid has kept us in every game he's pitched. He's only been playing professional ball since the middle of 1976."

Sorensen went the distance allowing six singles and John Lowenstein's RBI double in a two-run Texas fifth inning. Jim Sundberg tapped him for a sacrifice fly for the other Texas run in the fifth.

The Rangers nicked him for a run on four consecutive singles in the third inning, with three of them bounding off the gloves of Milwaukee infielders.

Mike Hargrove hit a one-out single off the glove of second baseman Paul Molitor, before Bump Wills lashed another shot off Molitor's glove.

After All Oliver's RBI single, Richie Zisk bounced a single off Sal Bando's glove. But the young right-hander worked out of the jam, forcing Texas to leave the bases loaded.

Giants 4, Cubs 3

Larry Herndon drove home the winning run in the eighth inning with a bloop double, and Bob Knepper, 5-1, scattered six hits as Western Division-leading San Francisco won its sixth straight.

Cubs outfielder Dave Kingman had tied the game in the top of the eighth with a booming home run, his fifth in three games.

Padres 7, Cards 5

Gene Tenace drove in three runs with a triple and a bases-loaded walk off reliever Mark Littell to pace San Diego. The Padres scored four runs in the first, highlighted by Tenace's two-run triple off the left field fence. Left-hander Bob Owchinkco, 3-2, got the win while John Urrea, 2-5, took the loss.

Dodgers 3, Pirates 2

Don Sutton, 3-4, got his first victory in three weeks, and Los Angeles scored all its runs in the first inning to beat Pittsburgh.

One of the Dodgers' runs scored on a bases loaded walk by Pirates starter John Candelaria, 2-6. The others came home on Steve Garvey's ground out and Dusty Baker's single.

Sutton gave up five hits before getting relief help from Terry Forster in the ninth.

Red Sox 3, Royals 2

Dwight Evans belted a tie-breaking home run in the seventh inning and unbeaten Bill Lee scattered nine hits for his sixth victory. Loser Paul Splittorff nursed a 2-0 lead into the fifth but the Red Sox tied it on a walk, a single by Evans, Bob Bailey's sacrifice fly, a sacrifice bunt and a single by Rick Burleson. The Royals got two men on in the ninth but Lee retired the next three hitters.

Indians 3, A's 2

Tuesday's crowd of 3,737 in Cleveland was almost 32,000 less than the one that witnessed his heralded major league debut in Texas five years ago, but they saw another bonny performance by David Clyde.

Clyde was only 18 years old, the nation's No. 1 draft choice and less than a month out of Houston's Westchester High School when he took the mound for the Texas Rangers against the Minnesota Twins on June 27, 1973.

The ballyhooed bonus baby walked the first two batters he faced but fanned the next three, went five innings, allowed one hit - a two-run homer - and emerged a 4-3 winner in a game that has been voted the big moment in Rangers' history.

That was the best of times. After that, things deteriorated to the worst of times and Clyde spent the last three years in the minors, undergoing shoulder surgery two years ago to relieve an entrapped nerve. The Rangers finally gave up and traded him and his 7-18 major league record to Cleveland this spring, where he became the personal reclamation project of Manager Jeff Torborg and pitching coach Harvey Haddix.

On Tuesday, Clyde made his first 1978 start after three solid relief appearances and 7-18 became 8-18 when the left-hander fired a four-hitter and struck out seven as the Indians turned back the Oakland A's 3-2.

Sonics, Nuggets Square Off Tonight

SEATTLE (AP)-The Seattle SuperSonics have something to prove tonight when they meet the Denver Nuggets in a National Basketball Association semifinal playoff game.

They want to show that Lenny Wilkens is the best coach in the league.

The Sonics are riled because Wilkens, who turned the Sonics from bumbling losers to championship contenders, was not named Coach of the Year by the media voting for the award.

For the Nuggets, a victory tonight is a must. The Sonics lead the best-of-seven series 3-2. A Denver victory would tie the series and force a seventh game Friday night. A Seattle victory would end the series and send the Sonics into the championship series against Washington. The Sonics never have reached the final round in their 11-year history. The championship series begins Sunday at the home of the Western Conference winner.

The Sonics have a home court streak of 19 victories. The game is a sellout.

The teams split the first two games in Denver and the Sonics won both games at Seattle. Denver, down 3-1 in the series, then won at home Sunday, 123-114. But only two teams in NBA playoff history have overcome 3-1 deficits.

The 1968 Boston Celtics did it against Philadelphia in the Eastern Division final, while the 1970 Los Angeles Lakers won their opening round series against Phoenix after dropping three of the first four.

Sonics President Sam Schulman was angry that Wilkens, who took over as coach when the team's record was 5-17, placed second in the Coach of the Year balloting behind Atlanta's Hubie Brown.

"No one in history has stepped in when a team was in the depths, the second-worst team, and done what he's done," scoffed Schulman.

Marvin Webster, Sonics center, said, "Atlanta the first part of the season started out winning. It wasn't like they came from a deficit."

Wally Walker, Sonics reserve forward, said, "When you think of the kind of year we've had under Lenny, it makes you kind of wonder what criteria the writers are using."

Stevenson Decisioned Over States' Tubbs

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia - Olympic heavyweight gold medalist Teofilo Stevenson of Cuba easily outpointed Tony Tubbs of Los Angeles in the quarter-finals of the second World Amateur Boxing Championships Tuesday.

All five judges gave the three-round decision to Stevenson, who chased the American around the ring in a frustrated effort to catch him. Tubbs, flicking weak left jabs, backtracked continually to avoid the two-time Olympic champion.

Only two Americans survived the quarter-final round and assured themselves of at least a bronze medal. Light flyweight Richard Sandoval, a 17-year-old high school student from Pomona, Calif., outpointed Bulgaria's Georgy Georgiev and welterweight Roosevelt Green of Montogomery, Ala., decisioned Miroslav Pavlov of Czechoslovakia.

Trades For Bobby Bonds...

Texas Acquires Another Bat?

ARLINGTON (AP)-The horse tradin' Texas Rangers have swapped off a large chunk of their future for Bobby Bonds - a soon-to-be free agent they are counting on as the key to this year's World Series.

The Rangers traded 23-year-old outfielder Claudell Washington, already a four-year major league veteran who is tagged as a "can't miss" star, minor leaguer Rusty Torres and a player to be named later to the Chicago White Sox on Tuesday night for the much-traveled Bonds.

"We're getting a 32-year-old superstar and we're giving up a 23-year-old budding star," Rangers owner Brad Corbett said Tuesday night.

"I felt it was in the best interest this year for Texas to get Bobby Bonds, who is a legitimate superstar. Claudell will be a great player."

Bonds, the only major leaguer ever to compile 30 home runs and 30 stolen bases in four different seasons, was traded to Chicago in the offseason from California.

He is playing out his option and will become a free agent - most likely a very expensive free agent - at the end of the season.

"I think that we will try as hard as we can to sign Bonds," said Corbett, who has shelled out nearly $6 million for free agents Doyle Alexander, Bert Campaneris, Richie Zisk and Doc Medich.

"I can't say tonight that we're confident we'll sign him, but we are confident he'll help Texas win a championship this season," added Corbett.

In Chicago, Bonds appeared to be in a state of shock. "I was happy here. My rent's paid through July. I wouldn't want to speculate that I was traded because I haven't signed a contract."

"If we had gotten off to a good start we would have considered talking to Bobby later about a contract. We're getting a young outfielder who is signed through 1979. I gambled on Bonds but now I'm hedging my bet," said White Sox owner Bill Veeck.

Astros Opening Up Fel Feels Virdon

HOUSTON (AP)-After his team wallowed in mediocrity the first six weeks of the season, Houston manager Bill Virdon believes the Astros are starting to play better baseball.

Terry Puhl extended his hitting streak to eight games with a triple and a home run as the Astros recorded their fourth straight victory with a 6-1 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies Tuesday night.

"I keep saying we've got good baseball," said Virdon. "We may not have the best, but you can't get down when things don't go right for you over a short period of time."

The Astros jumped on losing pitcher Steve Carlton, 4-4, for three runs in the first inning off Puhl's triple, run-scoring singles by Enos Cabell and Bob Watson and Art Howe's sacrifice fly.

The Phillies came back with a run in the fourth off Houston starter Mark Lemongello, 3-4, on a walk to Richie Hebner, a passed ball by Astro catcher Joe Ferguson and Tim McCarver's two-out single to right.

Lemongello pitched out of numerous jams early in the game as Philadelphia put 12 runners on base the first six innings, but managed to score only one run.

Memorial Rained Out For A Time

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP)-There's this one little item Jack Nicklaus couldn't control at the Memorial Tournament.

He's done everything else.

He created the tournament. Then he won it.

But even Nicklaus - the game's greatest player, the man who promotes silence from rowdy pros when he enters a locker room, who is held in awe by his fellow touring pros - even he couldn't handle the weather.

His pro-am tournament got rained out.

With former President Gerald Ford and Bob Hope ready to play, tournament officials announced Tuesday that the pro-am was off. A night-long rain made unplayable Nicklaus' pride and joy, his dream course, the tough, 7,101-yard, par 72 Muirfield Village Golf Club layout.

The weather, however, was expected to improve. Clearing was forecast for today's practice round for the select, invitational field of 102 pros who will be chasing about $225,000 in total prizes with further improvement for the Thursday - through - Sunday tournament dates.

And, even though he is vitally concerned and somewhat distracted by the myriad details of conducting a tournament, Nicklaus remains the favorite.

He kept his mind on the game well enough to win the second Memorial last year.

He's won twice this year and ranks second on the money-winning list.

The other leading contenders for the title are Tom Watson, Gary Player and Hubert Green. Those three, plus Nicklaus, have won more than half the tournaments this year. They have a combined total of 10 victories - three each by Watson and Player, two each by Green and Watson - in the 19 events that have been played.

Other major standouts include Tom Weiskopf, Hale Irwin, Ray Floyd, Ben Crenshaw, Australian David Graham, Johnny Miller and Jerry Pate.

The major absentees are PGA champion Lanny Wadkins and Lee Trevino, who failed to meet the entry deadline prior to his victory in the last week's Colonial National Invitation.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by CBS-TV.

NFL Used Deceit To Fool Players Says Man

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)-The National Football League used "deliberate, deceitful" tactics last year to fool the NFL Players Association into thinking its new collective bargaining agreement was better than the old Rozelle Rule, attorney Edward Glennon charged Tuesday.

"Defraud was committed by the NFL on Judge Earl Larson," said Glennon. "Judge Larson did not have before him all the facts. It was a deliberate, deceitful force of action by the NFL."

Glennon, representing the NFLPA, spoke before the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals and asked that the agreement be sent back to U.S. District Judg Larson for further investigation.

By not informing the court of its interpretation of Article XV, Glennon said the owners and league tricked the NFLPA into accepting an agreement "worse than the Rozelle Rule. And that's the deceit," Glennon added.

Article XV gives NFL teams the "Right of First Refusal," which means a club can bind a player who plays out his option and receives another offer by matching the offer, or paying that player 110 percent of his previous salary, whichever is higher.

This, says the NFLPA, creates a perpetual option-reserve clause and is no better than the old Rozelle Rule, which was struck down in 1975 when the court ruled it unreasonably restricted player movement.

Bradley Claims LA IOC Breakthrough

ATHENS, Greece - Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles Tuesday night claimed "a major breakthrough" in the negotiations to get the 1984 Olympic Games for his city.

After a private talk with Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, Bradley said, "The impasse has been broken. Through negotiations, we have come up with a plan which we think will permit the city of Los Angeles to be approved by the IOC."

Soil Quacks Are New Style Medicine Men

By F.N. D'ALESSIO
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP)-A new-style medicine man is peddling his worthless wares through the Corn Belt. But instead of human patients, the new quacks claim to treat the soil with additives that will produce better crops.

One soil expert says Illinois farmers may have spent up to $500,000 last year for just one such useless compound.

A Lee County, Ill., farmer says he has his doubts, too.

The farmer, who declined to be identified, signed on last year to become a dealer in "Genesis Two," a blue-green algae soil additive produced in Athens, Texas. But before selling the additive to his neighbors, he tried it out on his own fields. The results were negative. Now he is attempting to get his money back.

Dr. Robert Hoeft, associate professor of soil fertility at the University of Illinois, who made the estimate of losses to Illinois farmers, said today's soil quacks have much in common with the old salesmen of medical nostrums.

They almost invariably peddle door to door and make exaggerated claims for their product's effectiveness, he said.

Hoeft said the questionable "cure-alls" fall into five major categories-organic additives, microbial additives, mineral additives, wetting agents and low-volume additives.

The organic additives are the most common. They include various seaweed composts and a number of "humic acid" compounds, which usually are nothing more than ordinary coal dust.

Microbial additives include blue-green algae compounds such as "Genesis Two," which also has been sold as "Agri-Life." With the exception of rhizobium, long used on leguminous plants such as peas, beans and alfalfa, all microbial additives have been found useless.

Also proven useless in the Midwest are such mineral additives as crushed gypsum and bentonite clay.

Hoeft said wetting agents are useful in conjunction with pesticides and certain fertilizers, but they cannot ease soil drainage problems, a claim made by the soil quacks.

The low-volume additives, according to Hoeft, represent the most insidious form of quackery. He said the quacks take accepted fertilizers and soil additives, change their brand names and sell them to economy-minded farmers as special high-potency concentrates.

Hoeft said most of the worthless additives are being sold at prices that would run from $5 to $15 per acre. "Less than that," he said, "and everyone would know the stuff was worthless. More than that and you might check it out before buying it."

As in the case of medical quackery, though, the price of the additives does not reflect the full cost to the farmer. The real sting comes through the quack's assurance that his product is so good nothing else is needed.

Hill To Visit Carter Today

WASHINGTON (AP) - John Hill, the Democratic nominee for governor of Texas, planned to tell President Carter today his state is not getting a fair shake from federal policies.

Hill, state attorney general, had a 2:50 (p.m.) appointment for a 30-minute chat with Carter at the White House.

A long two days of visits, ending Thursday, with congressmen, Democratic Party chairman John White, energy secretary James Schlesinger and director Peter Bensinger of the Drug Enforcement Administration were scheduled for Hill.

Hill told reporters in Austin on Tuesday he had planned to visit only with congressmen and members of the administration, but someone arranged a White House chat as well.

"I'm not sure who arranged the meeting but I'm very pleased with it," Hill said.

He said he wanted to "improve our dialogue with the administration" on energy, farm policy and federal revenue sharing formulas that favor "Snowbelt" urban areas over the South.

"The great majority of our people do not feel Texas is receiving fair treatment today in certain key areas as far as Washington policy making is concerned," Hill said.

Hill was asked if he would brief reporters after his meeting with Carter. During his campaign, he criticized Gov. Dolph Briscoe for being non-informative after various White House conversations.

Your Birthday

May 18, 1978

This coming year you won't be satisfied with the status quo where your work or career is concerned. A more ambitious you will be seeking a higher rung on the ladder.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll do fine today so long as you can get someone else to carry out your tasks. It's not likely you'll do much about them yourself. Having trouble selecting a career? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you find yourself faced with a financial dilemma today, look into the mirror to find out who is to blame.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Feeling that nobody cares for you or that you don't belong is merely the result of one of those periodic moods. Try to shake it off.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could change your mind so many times today that one of two things happens: You'll get too confused to do anything or lull yourself into a false sense of security.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Somebody's support you've long worked for may suddenly be withdrawn today. Do what you can to prevent this. It could wind up costing you money.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Take care that key career contacts don't feel you are empire-building today. Look out for more than just No. 1.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You may have to contend with some inner turmoil today where your better nature wants you to do one thing and your less-noble side another.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you may attempt to outsmart someone who got the better of you in a business deal —and end up behind the 8-ball once again.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Failure to heed the sound advice of an associate today could cause you a severe and unnecessary problem. Don't think only your ideas are superior.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In order to get others to hustle your grips for you today, you might make them some promises you're not too serious about keeping.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Unfortunately, you may be dealing with someone today who cannot be taken at face value. Leave too much to chance, and the results will be disappointing.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Feelings are running exceptionally strong today. Harsh words can easily ensue. Don't try to buck the tide, especially with your mate.

Recount Results Due Friday

AUSTIN (AP)-The State Democratic Executive Committee certified results in most democratic primary races Tuesday, but it may be Friday before Ron Godbey will know his opponent in the June 3 runoff.

Because a recount is being conducted in that race for the 6th congressional seat now held by U.S. Rep. Olin Teague of College Station, the SDEC did not certify the results.

Joe Gaga, acting SDEC executive director, said the recount results are expected by Friday.

Vote totals originally reported to the committee showed Godbey with 23,540 votes, Phil Gramm 22,275, Chet Edwards 22,154, Don Rodney McNiel 10,466, Kay Jones 2,928 and William Lorenza Powers Jr. 1,644.

GOP Voters Reject Horse Race Betting

AUSTIN (AP)-Republicans defeated pari-mutuel betting in a non-binding referendum May 6, while not all Democratic votes have been reported, according to each party's state executive committee.

Horse race betting enthusiasts Tuesday were mulling how to block announcement of the Democratic vote until results can be double-checked.

"We are going to court to obtain a temporary restraining order to allow us time to go county by county, box by box, and attempt to determine the truth," said Al Poujol of Houston, immediate past president of the Texas Horse Racing Association.

William T. Hall, an attorney retained by the racing association, said Tuesday he had not decided what legal avenue to pursue to stop announcement of the results.

The State Republican Executive Committee Tuesday tabulated figures twice before certifying that GOP voters turned down horse race betting, 74,281 to 69,638.

The Texas Election Bureau had reported the issue passed GOP voters.

"There were 30,000 votes out when they (the Texas Election Bureau) made those announcements," said Ray Barnhart, state GOP chairman.

The Democrats did not issue results Tuesday because party headquarters only had enough time to satisfy legal requirements of certifying winners in race for state offices.

Calvin Guest, party chairman, said the results would be issued later, possibly before the June 13 meeting of the SDEC.

Poujol said the racing association wants no announcement made until it can obtain what it considers an accurate count.

the final Texas Election Bureau report showed the parimutuel issue failed in the Democratic primary, 729,560 to 676,126.

Poujol said some ballots reversed the required order of the referenda on horse racing and small loan interest rates, and election judges often called in results only by proposition number.

This, he said, had the effect of inflating the "no" votes on horse racing and the "yes" votes for the unpopular interest rate issue.

"In Dallas County, two precincts were reported as actually having carried high interest rates," he said.

Statewide, the switching of the two issues' places on the ballot cost horse race betting 30,000 votes, Poujol estimated.

There also were precincts where votes on the horse race betting issue were not counted, he said, and where non-registered persons were allowed to vote.

Illness limits sex drive

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I sent for your Health Letter about the prostate gland and it gave us much information about what my husband is going through as a result of prostate surgery. We would like some information about sex life after this operation. My husband is having trouble since he had prostate surgery nine months ago.

He was pretty sick and lost a lot of blood and had to have a transfusion. It was a couple of months before he felt better, but he is having trouble with sex. The doctor put him on a pill called Metandren Linguets but it has not helped at all.

DEAR READER — I'm always a little surprised that people expect to be sexually vigorous when they are sick. Illness of any severity is often a damper to sex. So is starvation, as occurred in prisoner of war camps. After all, the sexual functions are like other parts of the body and do not function perfectly all the time. You should expect sexual function to lag once in awhile.

When your husband has fully recovered his health he may also recover his sexual vigor. Most men do recover normal sexual vigor after prostate surgery. Some don't and this is often because they have other illnesses or because they are in the age group that sex was ready to decline for them anyway — independent of the surgery. It does make a difference whether you are 19 or 99.

Then you should know that after prostate surgery the valve mechanism at the outlet of the bladder is usually changed. As a result the normal orgasm is expelled backward into the bladder. We call this retrograde ejaculation. The usual sensation is there but the evidence of orgasm is lacking. That in itself should not prevent continued sexual enjoyment.

As men get older a few do need additional hormone support but this is seldom true. The pills (linguets) your husband takes contain male hormone. These will not help unless there is a real need for increased hormones. When they do help some men the effect is often more psychological than due to the medicine.

I'm glad you have already read The Health Letter number 1-6, Prostate Gland. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 69 years old, weigh 170 pounds and am 5-feet-11. I walk an hour each morning at the rate of four miles an hour. Then I pick up my wife and we walk approximately 40 minutes and cover two miles. How many calories do I use walking at four miles per hour for one hour and how many at three miles per hour?

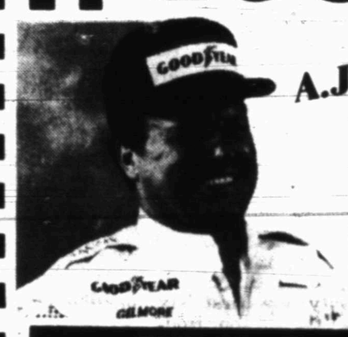

DEAR READER — Your question indicates you have the mistaken idea that the speed of walking makes a difference. It doesn't. The two most important variables are your body weight and the distance walked. At your weight you will use about 60 calories more per mile than you would have used just sitting. So if you walk four miles in one hour that would be 240 extra calories and three miles an hour for one hour would be 180 calories. Your wife will probably use less because she probably weighs less. Figure your calories on a per mile basis, not on speed.

Shortline Railroad At New Braunfels Newest

AUSTIN (AP)-On a clear day, Western Railroad Vice President John M. Mills can see his company's entire operation - all 1.9 miles of main track.

"We like to think we can see everything from our second floor office," Mills said.

Last year, the New Braunfels-based line carried 3.3 million tons of crushed stone and rock and took in $2.1 million in gross revenue. That translates into close to $1 million per mile of cross ties and creosote.

The Western Railroad is one of Texas' several so-called shortline railroads where a little mileage goes a long way at the bank.

The New Braunfels company, which actually runs between Stonetown and Solms, is one of the younger such operations with its beginnings in 1974. The Roscoe, Snyder and Pacific dates back to 1906.

Their common denominator for success usually includes a unique function, a large amount of freight originating on their lines and a low ratio of operating expenses to operating revenues.

Parker Bros. of Houston, a building materials supply company, started a rock quarry near New Braunfels in the 1960s. There were no railroad connections at the time between the quarry and other main lines. In 1974, the railroad was formed with William M. Parker Jr. of Houston president and B.K. Parker Jr. the largest stockholder.

According to reports filed with the Texas Railroad Commission, the company experienced a 31.6 percent ratio of expense to revenues, which one railroad accounting observer says is unheard of among larger companies.

"It's typical for a major carrier like Southern Pacific to run a 78 percent ratio," said Bruce Whettle, an outside consultant to the railroad commission. "That means for every dollar in revenue brought in, they spend 78 cents on expenses.

"When the Penn Central was going broke, it was up to 85 and 90 percent. Sixty percent would be almost unheard of," he said.

Although shortlines carry freight short distances, they divide revenues from the freight's entire run with larger railroads. The division of revenues is negotiated secretly and is not based on a strict percentage.

"The key is to have a high degree of traffic originate and terminate on your line," Whettle said.

Another carrier of crushed stone, the Georgetown Railroad of Georgetown, last year had a 38.1 percent operating ratio and moved 4.8 million tons of crushed limestone 7.9 miles for $4.6 million in gross revenues.

The Georgetown operation formed in 1958 when local citizens purchased track from the Missouri Pacific, which wanted to abandon the line.

The Roscoe, Snyder and Pacific began when local entrepreneurs envisioned a new company stretching to the West Coast. The vision shortened to 31 miles of track, which connects with other lines, coast-to-coast.

It remains unique in Texas, perhaps the country, as the only regional company with several out-of-state sales offices in California, Florida, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Dallas.

"Personal service" allows the Roscoe, Snyder and Pacific to compete with the majors, says President Mickey Nunley. Whettle agrees.

"It's always fascinated me, by God, that a company's got four or five offices on a seven-mile line and they know the territory," he said.

Good scout

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — I have been a volunteer Girl Scout leader for 23 years. I enjoyed my work when my own daughters were involved and still love it although both are now in college.

Lately, however, the working mothers of the girls in my troop have given me the feeling that volunteering is like being a second-class citizen. Is it just my imagination or have attitudes towards volunteers changed in the past few years?

Sometimes I resent their comments.

How dare they criticize me? Instead of going to empty houses after school, their daughters go to activities run by volunteers. Shouldn't they be grateful?

But other times I wonder if they are right. Maybe I stay with volunteer work because something inside says I don't have the right to be paid for my efforts.

Do you think I should stop volunteering and get a paying job?

DEAR READER — You will have to make that decision. But let me reassure you, it's hard to maintain the respectability of volunteer work in a society where incentives are increasingly based on monetary reward.

You may eventually take a paying job. But first reconsider the advantages of volunteer work. The criticism of the past few months may have driven them from your mind.

— You can do work you enjoy and change jobs when you become interested in something else.

— You can give as much time and assume as much responsibility as you wish.

— Your work schedule can be flexible for vacations with your family.

— You can gain skills and experience for a paying job.

— You can work without adding taxable dollars to the family income.

— Most important, you can experience the satisfying feeling of giving freely of yourself.

If you are volunteering for any or all of these reasons, you may want to continue your work with the Girl Scouts.

Look to the girls — not their mothers — for your satisfaction. Some of the hostility you sense may be their way of handling their guilt about not being available to their children after school.

Putting motives for the criticism aside, however, one fact cannot be disputed: Your contribution is desperately needed.

Women are returning to the work force in record numbers. Even wealthy women once content to run charity balls are now directing their own businesses. Volunteerism in the United States is in a state of crisis. There is too much work for too few.

One has reason to hope, though, that the volunteer crunch will be no more than a temporary phenomenon. As the work week grows shorter, both men and women will be seeking activities to fill their leisure time.

Volunteerism may emerge stronger than ever, based not as before on the economic subservience of one group but on the human need to give.
