In Haiti...

Amnesty talk gets opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deposed President Jean-Bertrand Aristide, blaming Haiti's military leaders for thousands of deaths, is urging the Haitian Parliament not to grant them blanket amnesty.

Aristide's comments, made shortly after the parliament convened Wednesday for the first time since January, ran counter to the agreement struck by former President Carter in Haiti 11 days ago that headed off a full-scale U.S. invasion.

That agreement refers to a "general amnesty voted into law by the Haitian Parliament" — covering both political and common crimes.

Aristide had remained silent on the issue until Wednesday night when he was interviewed by Jesse Jackson on CNN's "Both Sides."

"There's talk about general amnesty," Aristide said. "We had over 5,000 people killed by the coup leaders during the last three years.

"Once you have crimes against humanity, you cannot talk about blanket amnesty," he said.

He said the amnesty should be limited to the political crimes committed by the Haitian military when they overthrew his fledgling democratic government three years ago Friday.

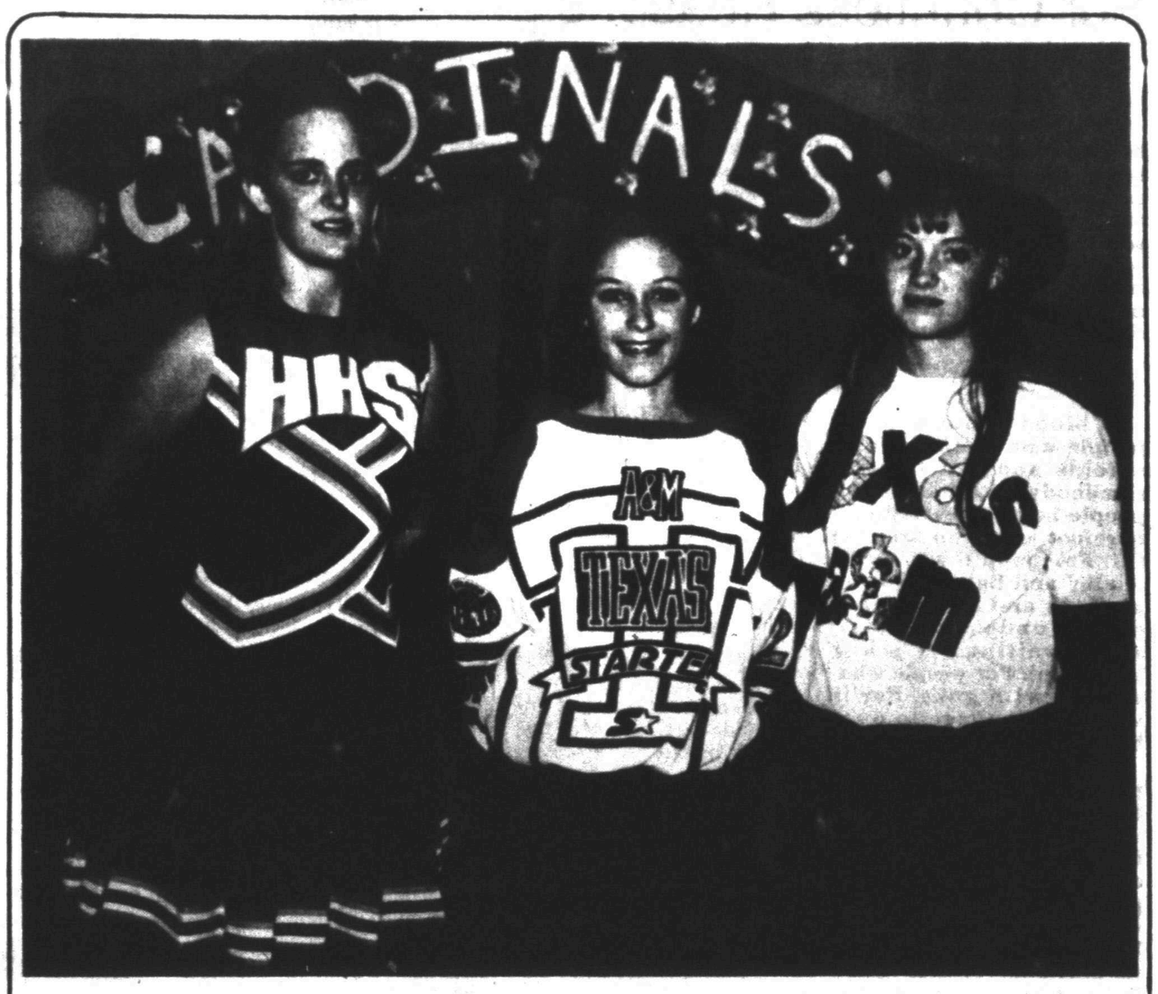

The amnesty issue was one of several key issues before the parliament when it reconvened. If the parliament refuses to grant blanket amnesty to the military rulers, that presumably would leave them open to prosecution after Oct. 15, the date by which they must step down under the agreement reached by Carter.

Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras, the army commander, has indicated he wants to remain in Haiti afterward, but Aristide said he wants the military chieftains to leave.

As before, Aristide made no direct reference to the Carter agreement, repeatedly sidestepping Jackson's questions about it.

According to aides, Aristide does not view the accord as binding because of the role played in the negotiations by Emile Jonassaint, who was installed as president by the military and their backers in May. Aristide has said nothing since the agreement was reached to give it — or Jonassaint — legitimacy.

Parliament reconvened Wednesday under the protection of the U.S. military as the House Foreign Affairs Committee voted 27-18 to authorize the American troops to remain in Haiti only until March 1.

HISD homecoming Friday

Hermleigh School celebrates homecoming Friday with the traditional crowning of a queen and naming of a football hero at halftime of the varsity football game.

Hermleigh, off to a hot 4-0 start, entertains Wilson at 7:30 p.m. in Cardinal Stadium.

Tickets are $2 adults, $1 students.

Homecoming nominees are Lori Anderson, Tammie Holder, Brandy Atkinson and Michelle Roemisch. Nominees for football hero are Jimmy Digby, Chris Roemisch, Brendan Blair and Joey Sanchez.

A dance, sponsored by the junior and senior classes, will be held in the cafeteria after the game from 10 o'clock until 1 a.m.

Tickets to the dance are $3 each or $5 per couple. Refreshments will be available.

Mexico City...

Official's murder shakes up politics

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Thousands came to the ruling party's headquarters to mourn its No. 2 official, whose assassination jolted Mexico's already jittery political scene.

Jose Francisco Ruiz Massieu, fatally shot in the neck Wednesday outside party headquarters, was the second top official of the Institutional Revolutionary Party to be assassinated in seven months.

His body, inside a closed coffin, was placed in party headquarters, and Mexico's president and president-elect were among the party leaders who paid their respects by candlelight late Wednesday. Thousands of people crowded into the street outside.

The body was later taken to a funeral home, where small groups of mourners gathered overnight.

The killing shocked officials still recovering from the March 23 assassination of PRI presidential candidate Luis Donaldo Colosio, shot at a Tijuana campaign rally. Ernesto Zedillo, his successor, won the Aug. 21 presidential election and takes power Dec. 1.

"This is a day of mourning for all Mexicans," Zedillo said. Salinas called the killing a "hideous crime."

Mexico also was shaken this year by an uprising in January by Mayan Indians in southern Chiapas state, kidnappings of businessmen for ransom and drug-related violence.

Drug traffickers are accused of murdering Roman Catholic Cardinal Juan Jesus Posadas Ocampo in a case of mistaken identity at the Guadalajara airport in May 1993.

Ruiz Massieu, a 48-year-old lawyer, was a rising figure in Mexican politics. He married President Carlos Salinas de Gortari's sister, Adriana, but they divorced eight years ago. They have two daughters.

He was governor of the impoverished western state of Guerrero, where Acapulco is located, from 1987 to 1993 and was named PRI secretary-general in May as the party reorganized itself in the wake of Colosio's murder.

Ruiz Massieu was elected to congress in August and was selected to lead the PRI delegation that would dominate the lower house. He had just left a breakfast meeting with 180 other fellow deputies-elect when he was killed.

A single shot from a submachine gun felled Ruiz Massieu shortly after he got into the driver's seat of his car. He died in a Mexico City hospital emergency room an hour later.

County, city...

Jobless rate dips slightly

The jobless rate took a slight dip in both Scurry County and Snyder for August, according to statistics released by the Texas Employment Commission.

Unemployment countywide dropped from 7.1 percent in July to 6.8 percent, according to the TEC, and from 7.6 to 7.3 percent for the City of Snyder.

TEC bases its calculations on an estimated county labor force of 7,501 people, 6,990 of whom were employed. The 511 people unemployed but seeking work represents 6.8 percent.

Scurry County began the year with 7.4 percent employment. That rose to 7.6 in February and the year's high of 8.1 percent in March. Other monthly calculations were 6.7 percent in April and May, 8.0 in June, 7.1 in July and 6.8 in August.

TEC's statistics for the City of Snyder are based on an estimated labor force of 5,044 people, 4,764 of whom were employed in August. The remaining 370 make up 7.3 percent.

City unemployment has paralleled that of the county, with March's figure of 8.9 percent being the highest and 7.2 percent in April and May representing the low.

TEC's August figures for area counties included:

—Fisher County: 5.6 percent, based on a labor force of 1,887, with 1,782 employed and 105 seeking work.

—Kent County: 1.9 percent, based on a labor force of 463, with 454 employed and 9 seeking work.

—Mitchell County: 6.5 percent, based on a labor force of 3,322, with 3,105 employed and 217 seeking work.

—Nolan County: 7.5 percent, based on a labor force of 8,159, with 7,548 employed and 611 seeking work.

—Taylor County: 5.2 percent, based on a labor force of 57,656, with 54,660 employed and 2,996 seeking work.

Next COT class filling fast

Academy expected to be filled within two weeks

Anyone considering applying for the next Correctional Officer Training (COT) class at Western Texas College had better decide quickly.

The January academy is already half full, WTC officials have announced.

"The deadline for applications is Dec. 2 but we'll be full way before then," said Linda Proctor, Criminal Justice Training Center (CJTC) secretary. "I'm expecting this class to fill up within two weeks."

The class is limited to 225 applicants. The academy begins Jan. 23 and will run through Feb. 15 here. Applications are available on the college campus.

Classes will be held from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Tuition is $300.

As soon as the January class fills, CJTC administrators will begin taking applications for a class to be held April 2-26.

In the meantime, 176 applicants are being interviewed this week for a COT class which will be held Oct. 17 through Nov. 9. Twenty-two others have already been tested and interviewed and are awaiting results, Proctor said. That leaves a "pool" of 198 potential students and college officials are predicting a class of 140 to 150.

In addition, 99 other students will complete an academy here next Wednesday, Oct. 5.

Students who complete the academy and are certified are eligible to become correctional officers for the Texas Department of Criminal Justice. Approximately 1,500 people have been certified through the college since it began the classes in 1989.

WTC also conducts in-service training for security and non-security officers from prison units here, in Abilene, Colorado City, Lamesa and Fort Stockton. The program began in 1991 with the training of Price Daniel officers. Currently WTC is serving 40 to 45 officers a month through that program.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Enemies are made, not born."

It's about time!

It's probably a situation that has kept you mind racing and wide awake at night. But starting this year, we can all fret about something new.

The State Fair of Texas opens tomorrow in Dallas and Big Tex, a 43-year-old state fair tradition, will be on hand to greet visitors.

Real Texans will be pleased to learn that Big Tex, the 52-foot mascot, will no longer be wearing polyester. This year, he will be adorned in natural fiber.

Wrangler, which boasts that its Western originals were invented by cowboys for cowboys, lassoed the contract to design and make Big Tex's 1994 outfit. This year the outfit will be 100 percent cotton. The shirt will be a dark blue denim Western design with "W" stitching on the pocket.

The jeans, built to fit a 22½ -foot waist and a 16-foot inseam, also will be dark blue. The jeans weigh 70 pounds.

About 129 square yards of denim were used to make the shirt, enough to make 40 regular shirts. For the jeans, some 109 square yards were needed. This would make about four dozen regular jeans.

The shirt's neck is 12 feet, 6 inches with 22-feet sleeves. The chest is 31 feet, and the shirt's total weight is 53 pounds.

Justin is providing the boots and belt buckel. The jean pockets are 4 feet by 4 feet — just right for a giant, economy size of snuff.

Blood Donors Are Good For Countless Reasons

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1994 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: You may be one of the lucky ones who have never been rushed to a hospital following an accident that required a blood transfusion. However, there are countless people who were not that lucky. In any case, if you've never thought of being a blood donor, please consider this:

WHAT GOOD IS A BLOOD DONOR?

A blood donor is good for people who go through windshields and red lights. For somebody with leukemia. For people being operated on. For barefoot kids who aren't careful. For people who are into feudin' and fightin'. For hemophiliacs and daredevils. For people undergoing dialysis while waiting for a kidney transplant. For people who fool around with guns. For little kids who manage to uncap a bottle of something poisonous.

A blood donor is good for people who have been badly burned. For new mothers who need transfusions. For new babies who need a complete change of blood supply. For people having open-heart surgery. For cancer patients. For people with severe hepatitis and anemia. For kids who fall out of trees or whatever. For anybody at any age with bleeding ulcers. For people who were in the wrong place at the wrong time.

A blood donor is good for people who are in a lot worse shape than most people you know.

A blood donor is good for life!

DEAR ABBY: Do you think it is ethical for a physician's wife to work as a receptionist in her husband's office?

I go to two doctors whom I like very much, but I don't want their wives to know my medical history or the status of my bills. Some wives are even worse than regular receptionists when it comes to protecting the boss from patients' calls and messages.

Do you think they should work in the office?

NO NAME, SMALL TOWN

DEAR NO NAME: Many young physicians, when they first go into private practice, hire their wives (some of whom are nurses) to assist them in the office. The wives of physicians are intelligent enough to realize that their husbands' practice would suffer should it become known that someone in the office blabbed about a patient's medical history or credit.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were married on May 2, 1992. Since then, we have been invited to 13 weddings. The last one wasn't in our budget, so instead of buying a wedding gift, I found a lovely gift (still in its original gift box) we had received for our own wedding.

I rewrapped it carefully, and sent it to the bride and groom. (The groom was a relative of my husband who lived in an adjoining state, and we rarely saw them.)

Two weeks after the wedding, we received a telephone call. The bride and groom wanted to know if my husband and I had given them a wedding gift, because they couldn't seem to find one from us and feared it had been lost. Finally, they asked what we had given them, and, after we told them, they responded, "Oh, yes, we received that gift, but the card inside said 'Jane Doe.'"

I almost fell to the floor. 'Jane Doe' is the friend who gave that gift to us!

I'm sure my husband and I aren't the first couple to have recycled a gift, but it was quite embarrassing.

P.S. The bride and groom sent us a nice thank-you; inside, it read: "And please thank Jane for us, too."

Abby, if you use this letter, sign it ...

Convict freed by DNA test

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The victim, the prosecutors and the jury all agreed that he did it. So at age 26, Frederick Daye was convicted of a rape he did not commit and sentenced to life in prison.

Ten years later, DNA testing proved his innocence and he was set free.

"I think the No. 1 thing I'd like to do is go to church Sunday because I truly believe I was blessed," Daye said Wednesday, sitting on the porch of his mother's home.

Daye and Charles Pringle were convicted in separate trials of kidnapping, raping and robbing a San Diego woman in January 1984.

The victim identified one of her assailants as a black man with a gold cap on his left front tooth, and picked Daye out of a lineup. Daye has a silver cap on his right front tooth.

"If you look at just the evidence presented during the trial, he's guilty," said Deputy District Attorney James Atkins. "He was identified by both the victim and a bystander and his alibi had more holes than Swiss cheese."

But there were indications of Daye's innocence all along. At Pringle's trial, a woman testified that her boyfriend admitted being Pringle's accomplice. Pringle himself said in 1990 that Daye was innocent. And several people said they had seen Daye at a birthday party at the time of the rape.

Finally, Carmela Simoncini, a San Diego lawyer who was appointed to represent Daye on appeal, persuaded an appeals court to pay for DNA testing — which was still in its infancy when Daye was tried.

When initial results came back in April, they showed that semen on the victim's clothing could not have come from Daye. Even then, however, prosecutors and the trial court would not reopen the case.

Prosecutors say Daye wasn't released from California's Solano state prison until Tuesday because of paperwork delays and the need to run a second set of tests. Simoncini, however, says a San Diego TV station applied the pressure to speed things along.

KGTV discovered that Daye's tests had been performed by Cellmark Diagnostics, the same Maryland lab handling evidence in the O.J. Simpson case. The station broadcast several reports saying San Diego prosecutors were ignoring DNA results while Los Angeles prosecutors built their case around results from the same lab.

"I have to credit KGTV," Simoncini said. "They picked up the story and kept pushing."

No sweet dreams for chocolate lover

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is there any connection between nightmares and a chocolate allergy? On relaying a terrifying dream to my sister and her husband recently, he said, "You had chocolate last night, didn't you?" This appears to be common in people with this condition.

DEAR READER: Chocolate contains many complex substances to which some people are highly sensitive. These substances can, in some cases, lead to insomnia and disordered sleep patterns, which may be associated with vivid dreams.

Nonetheless, this relation is unusual. Most people who have bad dreams have not eaten chocolate. As a general rule, people can eat chocolate without experiencing nightmares.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Sleep/Wake Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Are there vitamins or minerals that are able to boost the immune system? I've read that one physician is using co-enzyme Q10 and B12 to treat patients. Is this doctor on the right track?

DEAR READER: All vitamins affect the immune system, either directly or indirectly. Therefore, a balanced diet is necessary for good health. Every person should make sure that he or she receives the recommended daily allowance of vitamins and minerals, either through a nutritious diet or by supplements. There is no single vitamin (or vitamin combination) that "boosts" the immune system, because any vitamin excess is ordinarily excreted by the body.

Co-enzyme Q10 is claimed to aid patients with heart disorders, although there are meager case reports in the medical literature to support this allegation.

Vitamin B12 is necessary for proper blood-formation and nerve-functioning. A B12 deficiency leads to a serious blood disorder called pernicious anemia. The vitamin is prevalent in meats and dairy products.

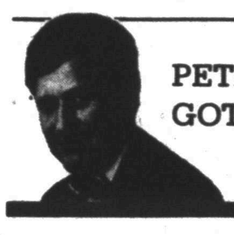

I do not know whether the doctor you mention is on "the right track." If he uses Q10 and B12 as part of a larger therapeutic program, OK. If Q10 and B12 are his only methods, no way.

DEAR DR. GOTT: The tips or ends of my fingers crack and split when the temperature becomes cooler. Salves don't seem to work and I would appreciate knowing how to prevent this problem from occurring.

DEAR READER: Cold air often aggravates dry skin, leading to cracked, painful fingers. In general, moisturizing creams, especially those containing lanolin, are useful in treating this condition, as is Bag Balm, a petroleum-based product that many farmers (and their families) swear by.

Fisher, Hutchison campaigns exchange jabs in new TV ads

AUSTIN (AP) — The television wars in the U.S. Senate campaign have begun in Texas.

On Wednesday, U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison aired her first televised campaign commercial of the general election at the same time as her campaign was calling on Democratic opponent Richard Fisher to withdraw his political ad, saying it is inaccurate.

Fisher's campaign defended his ad and said Mrs. Hutchison's commercial was a "feel-good piece that means absolutely nothing."

The two candidates face-off on Nov. 8.

Mrs. Hutchison's ad was to start in Austin, then Houston and Dallas before airing statewide next week.

It shows Mrs. Hutchison on the campaign trail, shaking hands and talking to people.

Mrs. Hutchison claims in the ad to have voted against higher taxes "every time" and pushed for spending cuts.

Susan McCue, a spokeswoman for Fisher, described the ad as "a bunch of rhetoric from a Washington insider. It sounded like a lot of feel-good stuff that means absolutely nothing."

She said that Mrs. Hutchison voted last year for a Republican budget that would have increased taxes by $15 billion over five years, and was found by a conservative group to have voted against spending cuts 35 percent of the time.

David Beckwith, a spokesman for Mrs. Hutchison, said there were no new taxes in the Republican budget and that she voted for spending on Texas projects.

Beckwith said Fisher should stop airing an ad that accuses Mrs. Hutchison of "cash register politics." The ad says Mrs. Hutchison accepted $727,000 from health care interests.

Ms. McCue said Fisher stands by the ad. "She is the top recipient of health care and insurance money," she said of Mrs. Hutchison.

Man planned robbery and killing

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — A man accused of killing an adult video store clerk has told police he intended to rob the store and kill anyone inside.

College Station officers said Stanley Allison Baker Jr., 27, shot John Wayne Walters, 44, of Bryan, four times with a 12-gauge shotgun in the early Wednesday robbery.

Walters was shot several times in the head, police said.

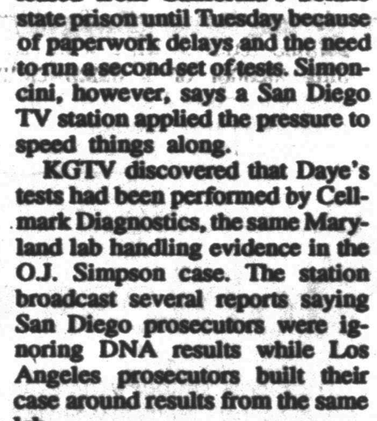

Baker is charged with capital murder and was in the Brazos County Jail Thursday in lieu of $250,000 bail.

It was the fourth murder in less than three months in College Station, a town that before July had not had a murder since 1989.

Brown bats useful, but fussy tenants

By SPORTS AFIELD
A Hearst Magazine
For AP Special Features

An increasing number of Americans are putting up bat houses in the hope of attracting the flying mammals — but they have found that bats are fussy tenants.

One reason people want bats around, George Harrison wrote in an article in the current issue of Sports Afield, is because of their appetite for mosquitoes and other insects.

There are nearly 1,000 species of bats worldwide, representing nearly one-quarter of all mammal species on Earth. Some 43 bat species live in the United States and Canada; 40 percent of them are threatened or endangered.

The little brown bat is one of the most common species in the United States. A single little brown bat can capture 600 mosquitoes in an hour.

Widespread interest in attracting bats began in the early 1980s when Dr. Merlin D. Tuttle, an internationally respected bat authority, popularized the tall, thin wooden boxes with an entrance at the bottom and partitioned chambers inside where bats can roost upside down. Thousands of bat houses have been placed in back yards, parks and forests.

Bats, it turns out, are picky about where they hang. In Chautauqua, N.Y., wildlife biologists Alison Neilson and M. Brock Fenton studied little brown bats. For three years the bats turned up their noses at every bat house the scientists erected. Despite their proximity to the nine Chautauqua Institution buildings in which colonies of little brown bats roosted, none of the bat houses were used — not even when entire bat colonies were evicted from the buildings.

Tuttle, meantime, found such great interest in bats that he founded Bat Conservation International, a nonprofit educational organization of 12,000 members worldwide, based in Texas.

Because bat houses are a major conservation tool but so many are unoccupied, BCI has undertaken a new study of the specific conditions that make bat houses attractive to bats.

A survey by the North American Bat House Research Project of 420 people in 26 states and one Canadian province who had built or bought one or more bat houses found that 52 percent of the houses attracted bats.

The project found the following conditions make bat houses successful:

— Solar heat inside bat houses was important. Occupied bat houses in northern locations all received eight or more hours of direct sun daily. They can be painted dark or covered with tar paper to enhance solar heating. If left a natural wood color they require 12 or more hours of sun.

— Locations near water seem desirable as bats center much of their feeding around ponds, lakes and streams. In the BCI survey, 78 percent of the bat houses located within a quarter-mile of water were occupied.

— Height also is important. Bats prefer houses located 10 to 30 feet above the ground. Bat houses located on poles and buildings facing south are preferred to those in trees.

— House design varies, but all have entrances on the bottom and rough surfaces or screening inside for easy gripping. BCI offers plans for at least six models, ranging from a small house with a single chamber to a large house with six deeper chambers. Large houses have been more successful.

Bats are gentle, intelligent and clean. They do not attack people and rarely carry disease. Fewer than 25 Americans have contracted rabies from bats during the past 50 years.

Clean bathtub, no problem

For AP Special Features

Making your bathtub or shower sparkling clean need not be a chore if you know the right steps to follow. Regular cleaning once a week usually wins at least half the battle. Here are some tips that can help you achieve complete victory.

The best time to clean a tub or shower is right after using it, when steam has loosened the dirt. Before you exit, just wipe off the damp surfaces with a towel. If you are in a hurry and must set aside another time to clean the bathroom, run the shower on hot for a minute beforehand, then open the shower curtain or tub door to help loosen dirt on other bathroom surfaces. Be sure to close the curtain or door eventually, so it can air-dry.

Wiping tub and shower surfaces while they are still wet is important if you live in an area where water is "hard" (contains minerals). Commercial cleaners applied with a sponge or damp cloth will remove hard-water scale and film. For a homemade cleaner try white vinegar, undiluted or mixed with up to four parts warm water.

To avoid bathtub rings, don't use oily bath preparations. If a ring does form, wipe it off with undiluted ammonia (wear rubber gloves) or a wet sponge generously sprinkled with baking soda. For stubborn rings, wipe with white vinegar or automatic dishwashing detergent, then rinse.

Wipe mildwed areas with a cloth dipped in household bleach. Again, wear rubber gloves. (CAUTION: Never mix any combination of bleach, ammonia and commercial cleaners; a toxic gas may result.) To reduce and often eliminate mildew, increase ventilation as much as possible by installing an exhaust fan (or by increasing the size of the present fan) and opening doors and windows soon after bathing or showering. Extend shower curtains so they dry thoroughly and leave shower doors ajar so that air can circulate inside the enclosure.

Clean stained porcelain surfaces with a commercial bathroom cleaner containing mild abrasives or by applying a paste of cream of tartar and hydrogen peroxide. Avoid cleaners with harsh abrasives; when used repeatedly they can mar smooth finishes. Spread the paste over the stain and scrub lightly; let the paste dry and then wipe or rinse it off. To shine chrome fixtures, wipe with rubbing alcohol or a damp cloth dipped in baking soda.

To clean a fiberglass tub, use a water conditioner for dishwashers or a commercial bathroom cleaner containing EDTA (ethylene diamine tetra acetate).

Wiping with bleach, vinegar or alcohol will clean the caulk around bathtubs. However, cracked caulk must be replaced.

The worst disaster in aviation history occurred in 1977 when a KLM Boeing 747 crashed into a Pan Am 747 on a runway in the Canary Island of Tenerife. The resulting explosion and fire killed at least 580 people.

Buried treasure aids in solving Peruvian mysteries

NEW YORK (AP) — Before the Sipan tombs were found, archaeologists believed that personages depicted on ceramics of the ancient Peruvian Moche civilization were mythological, said Craig Morris of the American Museum of Natural History.

But regalia excavated from the tombs — from that of the individual archaeologists refer to as the Warrior Priest, for example — corresponded exactly with regalia of figures shown in the paintings on the ceramics.

A selection of these expressively decorated ceramics is on display in an introductory gallery of the museum's current exhibition, "Royal Tombs of Sipan." Many of them are masterpieces of ceramic art, and the majority of them are on loan from the Fowler Museum of Cultural History, of the University of California at Los Angeles.

"This first gallery tells us about the state of Moche studies before Sipan," said Morris, curator of the exhibition's current venue. "Now with the combination of the iconography in this art and the objects found in the tombs, we've actually been able to pinpoint this leader as a real person."

Exhibition co-curator Christopher Donnan, director of the Fowler Museum, said he'd identified the Warrior Priest in art several years ago, "but I wasn't sure at the time that he was a real person. I never imagined we would actually find his tomb.

"We now realize that the art is in fact showing real people, and what we suspected were supernatural activities were real events that occurred in Moche life."

President William McKinley asked Congress for a declaration of war againt Spain April 11, 1898. Exactly one year later, the treaty ending the Spanish-American War would be declared in effect.

The unexpected is comprehensible

By Phillip Alder

What is "the most unexpected of all the things that happen to a man"?

One person's answer to that query at the end. But it made me think of a friend, let me call him Joe, and a bridge analogy. Whenever something unusual happens during the auction, Joe immediately shuts down his brain. He makes no effort to work out a logical explanation. East's action on today's deal would be wasted on Joe. What do you think his double means?

East's three-spade overcall was preemptive, showing a weak hand with, usually, a decent seven-card suit. So how can he suddenly produce the high cards needed to defeat five hearts? Answer: He cannot. The best interpretation for this out-of-the-blue double was first proposed in 1929 by Theodore Lightner. He suggested that the double of a freely bid slam should imply a side-suit void. It was hoped partner could work out which suit to lead.

Since then, the concept has been expanded to encompass lower-level contracts. Here, East is showing a minor-suit void with his double. And it isn't hard for West to work out which minor it is. He leads a club, selecting a high spot-card as a suit-preference signal for spades. East ruffs, returns a spade to his partner's ace and receives a second ruff to defeat the contract.

Without the double, it would be normal for West to lead the spade ace, after which the contract cannot be defeated.

It is a clever idea, but not without its dangers, as we shall see tomorrow.

Trotsky's answer to the initial question was "Old age."

Kermit faces tough task

Coach Dollar says defense must have big game

There are many ways that a coach tries to predict how a team will perform on a week to week basis.

Possibly the biggest quality a coach looks for is the team's maturity. If team maturity translates into football wins on Friday night, then the Kermit Yellowjacket should be 4-0.

Kermit boasts 10 seniors starting on both the offense and defense. But, back-to-back close losses to both Alpine (52-39) and Denver City (24-21) have placed Kermit in the same position as the Snyder Tigers. They both must win this week in order to set the tone for district play which starts next week.

According to head coach Bruce Dollar, Kermit has been getting the job done on the offensive side of the ball, however, the defense is a different story.

"We don't play a lick of defense," Dollar said. "It has been extremely difficult for us to stop anyone."

If the Yellowjackets are going to be able to get by the Tigers, a solid defense must hit the field on Friday night.

"We have yet to play good defense this year," Dollar said. "The key to tomorrow night's game is defense, defense, defense.

"With (Chris) Mitchell in the backfield, Snyder will probably play a ball control game and use up a lot of clock, kind of like what Denver City did to us last week. We only had the ball six minutes of the second half."

Dollar said his main concern on defense is tackling Mitchell.

"He (Mitchell) is a great football player," he said. "We've been practicing on tackling all week."

"If we don't wrap him up, it will be a long night. He's not afraid to run over a tackler. I'm also very impressed with the ability of their quarterback (Matt Parker)."

Another fact that Dollar expressed was the fact that the Tigers have beaten both Andrews and Monahans.

"I don't care what people say," he said. "Anytime a team is able to beat Andrews and Monahans back-to-back, they're a good team.

"We scrimmaged against Monahans this year and they beat us two touchdowns to one. It will be hard to step up in class this week."

Yellowjackets that will be trying to shut down the Snyder offense will be returning All-District performers middle linebacker Wesley Jamison and cornerback Edward Draughn.

Jamison has the distinct pleasure of trying to slow down Mitchell, while Draughn will be faced head-to-head with split end Marlowe Riggins.

Although, the Kermit defense has struggled to stop opposing teams, the Yellowjackets offense has had no problem scoring points.

In the the Alpine game alone, starting fullback Devalon Bryant had five touchdowns.

Beside Bryant, the Yellowjackets' offensive weapons include tailback Edward Draughn (6-0, 160), who has missed the last three games due to a severely sprained ankle, quarterback Buddy Bowerman (5-10, 170) and split end Brantley Heiser.

Bowerman has been impressive in his first season at quarterback since his freshman year, and Heiser (6-4, 200) presents a tough task for any defensive back.

A split end like Heiser could be an effective weapon, but because of Kermit's Wing-T offense, the Yellowjackets do not throw the ball nearly as much as they run it.

"We don't throw the ball that much," Dollar said. "We have only been averaging sixty or seventy yards passing per game.

"With running backs like Bryant and Draughn, we haven't had to really throw the ball."

WTC rodeo teams set for Vernon trip

After an impressive start last week at the Eastern New Mexico University NIRA Rodeo in Portales, N.M., Western Texas College students travel to Vernon for action today through Saturday.

Last week's performance showed head coach Todd Danley that his team will be competitive in the toughest rodeo conference in the country.

"Our women's team won last week and I fully expect them to do that again this week," Danley said this morning.

The three-member women's team is made up of Chasity Rickman of Hereford, who won the all-around at Portales, Shawna Davidson of Lubbock and Mandy Harsh of Chandler, Ariz.

The men's team will be two members short, but Danley is still looking for a good performance.

"We're missing a couple of guys but I think we can still have a little better showing than last week," said the coach, whose men's squad placed fourth overall at ENMU.

Guy Smith suffered a knee sprain and is expected to miss two rodeos. Davey Shields, who won the bareback for WTC last week, has qualified for the Canadian Finals Rodeo and will be there this week. He hails from Alberta.

Making up the men's team this week will be Bronc Collier of Snyder, Pete Ellis of Fort Worth, J.J. Kincheloe of Gail, Todd Loesch of Fort Worth, Shawn Minor of Gordon, Neb., and Cleve Schmidt of Belle Fourche, S.D.

A total of 27 Western Texas College students will compete in the Vernon Regional Junior College NIRA Rodeo. Only designated team members can win points for the team; however, individual points can also be earned. At the end of the 10-rodeo season, the top two individuals and top two teams advance to the College National Finals Rodeo in Bozeman, Mont.

Vernon RJC is the defending men's NIRA champion.

Slocum, Aggies want shot at SWC title

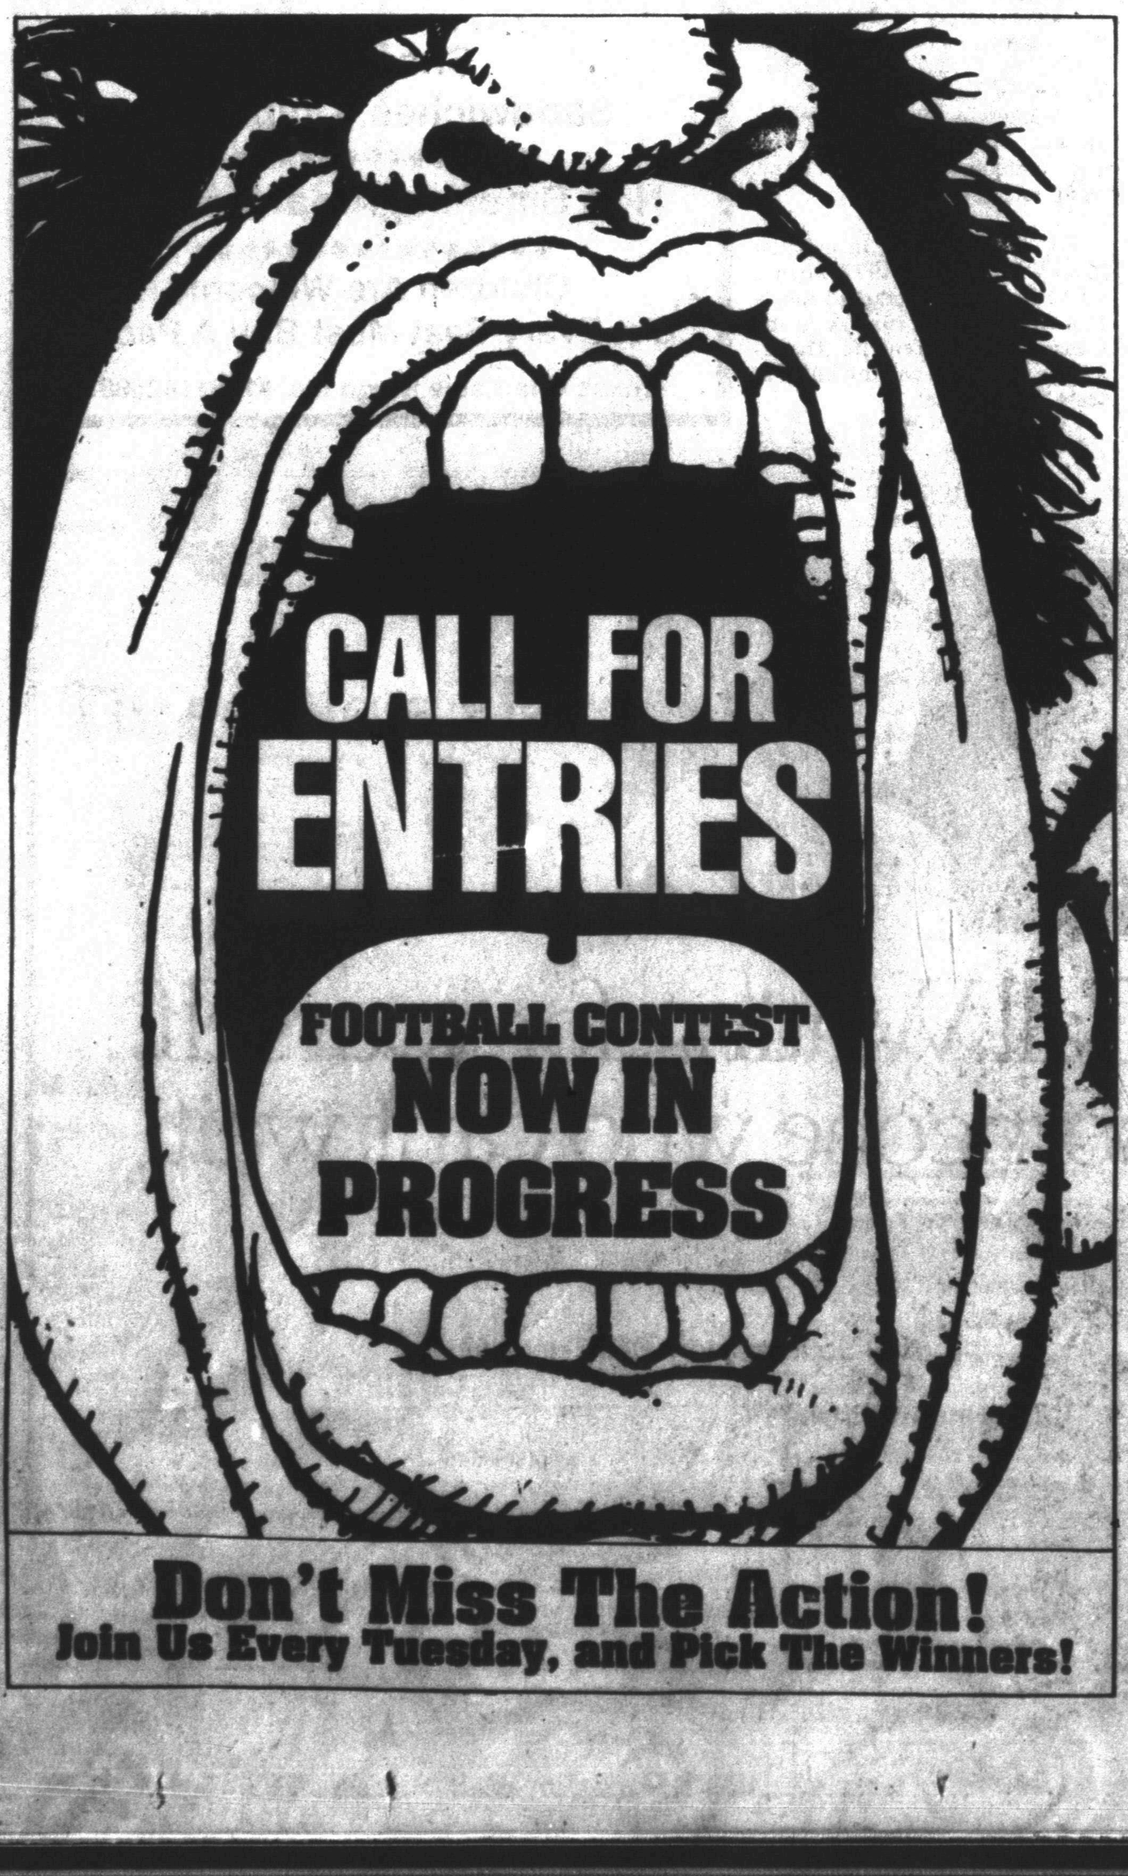

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — In the Southwest Conference standings, Texas A&M is on the bottom, and the Aggies will stay there all season, no matter how many games they win.

Beside their name is an asterisk that denotes: "ineligible for title."

But A&M head coach R.C. Slocum says his team, ranked No. 10 nationally, winners of their last 22-straight SWC games, plans to repeat as league champions, even if no one else recognizes the claim.

"When you win championships, it's not so much a physical thing as it is a mental thing in knowing that you won all your games. It's knowing that we played in the conference and that we won the championship. This year we have the opportunity to do that again," he said.

The Aggies are under NCAA sanctions because a former Aggie football player paid several players to purchase championship rings for the team.

Colorado, Texas gives fans Big 12 preview

No. 5 Colorado Buffaloes at No. 16 Texas Longhorns

AUSTIN (AP) — Voodoo dolls? Hexes?

Texas offensive tackle Blake Brockermeyer says he'll do whatever it takes to end Colorado's "luck."

The 5th-ranked Buffaloes and No. 16 Longhorns meet in Austin on Saturday.

"They are a great team, but they are lucky too," Brockermeyer said. "I am going to do everything I can to break their luck — maybe sacrifice a buffalo. Something needs to be done."

Brockermeyer cited Colorado's 1990 national championship season in which the Buffaloes defeated Missouri with help from a fifth-down TD run that occurred because the officials had lost track of the downs.

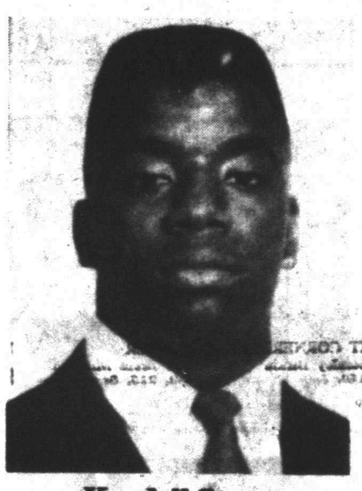

Then, of course, there was the Miracle in Michigan on Saturday. The Buffaloes defeated the Wolverines 27-26 with no time remaining when Kordell Stewart's desperation 64-yard bomb into the end zone was tipped into the hands of Michael Westbrook.

Brockermeyer has reason for concern. The parallels between Colorado's 1990 season and this year are somewhat eerie.

Colorado had lucky breaks in each season that resulted in victories. The Buffaloes also visited Texas in 1990, claiming a 29-22 victory over the Longhorns.

For Texas, the loss to Colorado that year was the only regular season blemish. The Longhorns won the Southwest Conference title and went to the Cotton Bowl, where they lost to Miami 46-3. It's the only bowl appearance Texas has had since 1987.

Saturday's game is a test of how far the Longhorns have come under third-year coach John Mackovic, who describes his team as "green and growing."

Kordell Stewart

"This is a chance to showcase our program," said Mackovic, who marveled at Colorado's offense, which is averaging 536 yards and 43 points per game after victories against Northeast Louisiana, Wisconsin and Michigan.

"For them to be rolling up the points and yards against teams like Wisconsin and Michigan tells you they have great players and solid blocking," Mackovic said.

Brockermeyer, one of the most outspoken Longhorns, said, "This is the biggest game of the season for us because Colorado is a national power that brings a lot of exposure. Everyone will pick them to blow us out. In order for Texas football to get going, it will be important for us to do well."

Texas has beaten Pittsburgh, Louisville and TCU to reach 3-0 for the first time since 1985. After a miserable defensive performance against Pittsburgh, in which the Longhorns yielded 251 yards to a single running back, Texas has toughened, holding Texas Christian and Louisville to an average of 59 yards rushing.

Mackovic said his team's improved defense was a key to the Longhorns grabbing a 24-3 halftime lead against TCU and then closing out a 34-18 victory on Saturday.

Despite the Longhorns' victory, they dropped one spot to No. 16 this week.

Colorado defeated Texas 36-14 at Boulder, Colo., last year after turning three of six Longhorn turnovers into touchdowns.

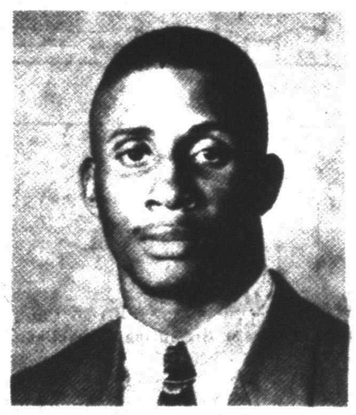

"We can't have those kinds of mistakes this year," Mackovic said.

Both teams return most of the same players from last year.

NOTES — Longhorns receiver Mike Adams, who missed the first game of the season for violating NCAA rules, has now been sidelined for three to six weeks with a knee injury.

Texas coach John Mackovic said that Adams, an All-Southwest Conference performer last season, has a sprained medial collateral ligament in his right knee.

Adams was hurt while returning a punt in the third quarter of the Longhorns' 34-18 victory Saturday at Texas Christian.

White will return to starting lineup

HOUSTON (AP) — An injury cost Lorenzo White a chance to play last season, and now an injury is giving him a chance to play.

"Opportunity is what this game is about," the Houston Oilers running back said Wednesday. "It was unfortunate that I was injured last year, but now it's great that I have an opportunity to start and help the team."

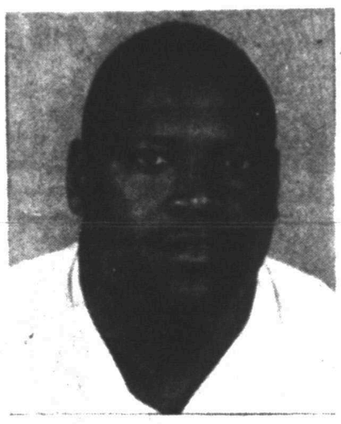

White rushed 1,224 yards for the Oilers two seasons ago and was the starter last year until a hamstring injury gave Gary Brown a chance and Brown responded with a 1,000-yard season.

When Brown suffered a twisted ankled in Sunday's game against Cincinnati, White was back in the lineup and he'll start Monday night's game against the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Could this be another fortunate turn in White's up-and-down career?

"Any time I can get on the field, it's good for me," White said. "I have to go out there and play for the team and for Lorenzo."

White became a free agent at the end of last season and tried to sign with other teams. To his surprise, there were no takers, even teams that needed running backs.

Lorenzo White

If White wants to showcase his talents on national television to show those teams what they missed, he won't say it.

"I feel I can go help the team anywhere," White said. "As far as trying to prove a point to some other teams, that would be selfish on my part. I don't have anything to prove. Under certain circumstances, I got hurt and lost my job."

Men's golf association presents annual awards

Western Texas College's men's golf association completed their six months of Monday evening play with an awards dinner at The Shack Tuesday night.

The MGA's annual golf tournament, played on Sept. 24 and Sept. 25, showcased 49 golfers in action.

Senior flight winner Wayne Monroney scored a net of 71. Johnny Noble and Bud Coonrod tied with a net score of 75.

Tommy Wright captured the "D" flight championship, for the second year in a row, with a net score of 61. Darwin Baze took second with a 65, Kenneth Parker finished with 66 and Pete Rios placed fourth with a 69.

Tommy Hunter, the "C" flight champion, had a playoff with runner-up Robert Scott, both Hunter and Scott shot a 65. Third place went to Levi Hill, who shot a 67, and fourth place ended in a tie between Joe Medrano and Ricky Starnes. Medrano and Starnes each shot a 71.

The "B" flight champion was Juan Hernandez. Hernandez grabbed the trophy with a net score of 63. Second place went to Coy Berryman, who shot a 65. John Bane came in third with a 67 and Jim Caldwell finished with a 69, good enough for fourth place.

Ernie Armstrong outlasted Russell Fisk in a playoff for the Championship flight trophy, both Armstrong and Fisk fired a 75. Third place went to Mike Carter, who ended the tournament one shot back with a 76.

Long drive honors went to Juan Hernandez and Ramond Drury, while Jim Erwin and James Liner won closest to the pin.

Former priest charged in naked picture case

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A former Episcopal priest charged in Austin with displaying harmful material to children is the son of a high-ranking official of the Episcopal Diocese of West Texas in San Antonio, a church official says.

Christopher Mark Jennings, 33, of Austin, was beaten severely by the father of two young boys who said a man had shown them pictures of naked men and women outside their home Sunday, police said.

Displaying harmful material to a child is a Class A misdemeanor punishable by up to a year in jail and a fine of up to $4,000.

Police said Jennings was jailed Wednesday after his release from Brackenridge Hospital.

Jennings was beaten after being chased by the boys' father and another man, officials said.

The man's sons, ages 7 and 9, were skating with a friend near their home when a car drove by and stopped, according to police.

The 9-year-old son told police a man got out of the car, jogged by the children and dropped several pictures of naked men and women.

The child said the man told him if he looked at the pictures, he would become sexually aroused.

The boy said he told his father, who chased the man.

Jennings was unconscious and not breathing when police found him.

The father was not charged. The case will be reviewed by a Travis County grand jury, authorities say.

Jennings is the son of the Rev. C. Eugene Jennings of San Antonio, archdeacon of the Episcopal Diocese of West Texas, and is a 1979 Churchill High School graduate, according to the Right Rev. John MacNaughton, bishop of the West Texas Diocese.

The younger Jennings was ordained a priest for the Diocese of West Texas in 1989 and served in the Church of the Advent in Brownsville for a year and a half, then briefly at Trinity Church in Junction and Calvary Church in Menard, the bishop said.

"I suspended Mark in 1990, and about a year ago, I requested that he voluntarily renounce his order. He did that earlier this year," MacNaughton said.

"He hasn't functioned as a priest of the Episcopal Church in nearly four years," the bishop said.

Jennings pleaded no contest in December 1990 to a charge of indecency with a child in 1990 and received 10 years' probation, a spokesman for the Kerr County District Attorney's Office said.

On May 16, 1994, a motion was made to revoke that probation after two complaints were made against him in Travis County, including one for display of harmful materials to a minor Oct. 31, 1993, the spokesman said.

A hearing was to be held Oct. 20 on the revocation motion, he added.

Jennings' case is the diocese's only sexual misconduct case to date, MacNaughton said.

The diocese implemented a sexual misconduct policy in 1993.

"The policy wasn't created because of his case, but we were in the process of developing it before his 1990 charge," the bishop told the San Antonio Express-News. "It's made all our clergy and church leaders aware of what's expected of them. Behavior is very precisely defined, and that's made it so violations aren't likely to occur."

System fails to guard against food chemicals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Better government monitoring is needed to avoid incidents like the one in which the wrong pesticide was sprayed on oats used in Cheerios and other breakfast cereals, a government watchdog agency says.

"It was basically luck that we found this at all," Ed Zadjura, researcher for the General Accounting Office, told a House Government Operations subcommittee Wednesday.

Urging such an overhaul in the oversight system, the GAO said the current monitoring scheme is a tangled mess run by three different agencies. Instead, the GAO said, scarce resources should focus on government-monitored quality control rather than trying to catch problems just through inspections.

The GAO also said one agency should run food safety.

The congressional investigative agency released two reports criticizing how the government guards meat, poultry and other foods against unsafe residues from pesticides, drugs and other chemicals.

The food industry generally supports the shift to quality control, known as hazard analysis and critical control points. The Agriculture Department and Food and Drug Administration are coming up with regulations to make that shift for seafood, meat and poultry and other foods.

Because of a lax, overly stressed system, the FDA didn't discover until May, during routine surveillance of grain silos, that an unapproved pesticide was being used on oats.

By that time, Dursban had been used to fumigate the oats for a year. Four million of the 21 million bushels of contaminated oats had been turned into Cheerios, Frankenberry, Kix and other cereals.

Authorities said the Cheerios incident posed no health risk. The chemical used is a cheaper cousin of an approved version.

Still, the incident cost Minneapolis-based General Mills Inc. more than $100 million to throw away 50 million boxes of Cheerios and other cereals this summer. A pesticide contractor has been indicted on fraud charges in the case.

The FDA samples 1 percent to 2 percent of the food supply to ensure that pesticide levels are within bounds. State agencies and the Agriculture Department also monitor residues, while the Environmental Protection Agency sets acceptable levels.

"The system did work," said FDA spokesman Jim O'Hara. "Could the system work better? Yes."

Dr. Lynn Goldman, assistant EPA administrator for prevention, pesticides and toxic substances, said the Cheerios incident would be less likely under proposed pesticide legislation that calls for tighter record-keeping, enforcement and penalties for violators.

The GAO found that the FDA rarely enforced violations of meat and safety residue limits reported by federal inspectors employed by the Agriculture Department.

From 1989 through 1992, only one prosecution, two citations and 12 injunctions resulted from 21,429 reported violations, the GAO said. Of those violations, 2,274 were repeat offenses.

Also, the Agriculture Department's Food Safety and Inspection Service has ranked the potential harm of only one-third of the 367 compounds that could show up in meat and poultry, the GAO said.

Moreover, the inspection service may not guard enough against contaminated imports, the agency said.

Frisa wins over GOP incumbent

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — Rep. David Levy lost the Republican congressional primary by 54 votes to maverick candidate Dan Frisa in the country's first upset of a GOP incumbent this year.

Soon after the official count was announced Wednesday, the first-term congressman asked the state Supreme Court to invalidate the election and order a new one, based on reports of voter irregularities.

County Elections Commissioner Richard Blum said Frisa captured 12,487 votes to Levy's 12,433. Unofficial results from the Sept. 13 primary had showed Levy trailing Frisa by 276 votes.

Levy is the first Republican and fourth incumbent to lose in a primary this year.

Frisa, a former Republican assemblyman, ran independent of the GOP machine. He had been denied the nomination in 1992 and lost to Levy in that year's primary.

Levy's lawyer, Peter Bee, filed papers seeking a new primary for the 4th Congressional District, which covers parts of Nassau County on Long Island.

Pupils helped on state's skills exam

AUSTIN (AP) — Round Rock elementary school students say teachers helped them pass a state skills test in May by pointing out answers and making gestures to indicate whether answers were correct, according to records of their testimony.

The Austin American-Statesman, citing Round Rock Independent School District documents obtained under the Texas Open Records Act, reported Thursday that school district staff has found "strong evidence" to support allegations of testing irregularities against three Round Rock teachers.

A lawyer representing two of the three teachers said their mistakes were unintentional and minor.

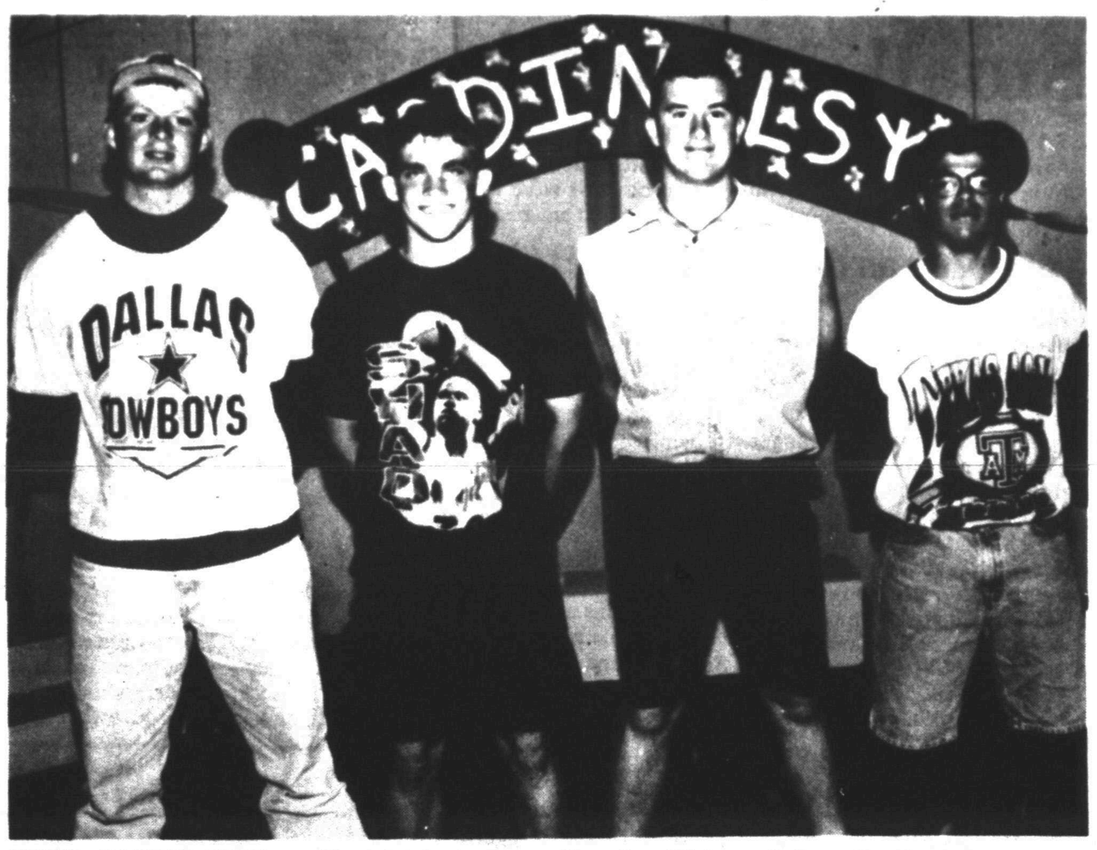

The Texas Education Agency is not investigating the incidents, which occurred at Purple Sage, Forest North and Gattis elementary schools in Round Rock, north of Austin. The Texas Assessment of Academic Skills covers reading, writing and math.

"It's not a paramount issue at this time because we feel comfortable with the action the (district) took," said Della May Moore, a TEA spokeswoman. "That doesn't mean we won't go back and review the incidents at a later time."

Ms. Moore said 32 reports of "testing irregularities" were received from the 6,300 sites statewide where the TAAS was administered in May.

Since May, the Round Rock school district has adopted a local policy reiterating the state's strict testing procedures, said Rutha Leffel, Round Rock coordinator of student assessment. She said not much more could be done.

Superintendent Tom Norris said disciplinary action was taken against two of the teachers and that the third teacher resigned in June, citing several reasons.

Scientists disagree about risks of India's latest plague cases

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A top health official predicted today that India will soon contain its plague epidemic, even though it already has spread further than the last major outbreak nearly three decades ago.

But scientists at the World Health Organization said it is too early to say that.

And six Gulf states and Yemen on Wednesday suspended flights indefinitely to and from India to keep the plague from reaching their shores.

During the 1940s and early 1950s, the plague routinely killed thousands of Indians each year as the impoverished nation fought for, and eventually won, independence from Britain.

That annual death toll fell sharply between 1957 and 1966, when the last plague death occurred, said Dr. K.K. Datta, director of the National Institute of Communicable Diseases.

On Sept. 20, for the first time in 28 years, Indians began dying of the plague in the western city of Surat. Since then the official death toll in the port city on the Arabian Sea has risen to 54, and unofficial estimates to 300.

Hundreds of thousands of people fled Surat and already have spread the disease further than the last major plague epidemic, which killed 100 people in a southern state in 1962.

In 10 days, plague cases already have spread hundreds of miles from Surat to New Delhi and the states of West Bengal, Madhya Pradesh and Maharashtra. Many other states are examining hundreds of suspected plague cases in overcrowded hospitals.

In New Delhi, where the first plague case was identified at the Infectious Diseases Hospital on Saturday night, the number of patients had risen to 47 by today, according to Dr. R.C. Panda.

To fight the epidemic, India is handing out antibiotics, spreading insecticides and poison to kill the fleas and rats that carry the disease, cleaning up its many garbage-strewn streets, and searching for plague victims, especially from Surat. Every hour, state-run TV and radio tell people how to fight the plague.

Dr. Datta predicted Thursday that India will soon contain the epidemic and stop it from killing people.

Search for Estonia wreckage continues

TURKU, Finland (AP) — Salvage workers were searching for the sunken wreck of the ferry Estonia this morning, as authorities asked grieving relatives to help identify dozens of bodies recovered from the frigid Baltic Sea.

Helicopters and ships from Finland and Sweden were crisscrossing the area where the Estonia capsized and sank in a storm early Wednesday, but did not expect to find any more survivors of one of the world's worst maritime disasters. The water temperature was 46 degrees.

Just 138 people survived out of nearly 1,000 passengers and crew aboard when the ferry, en route from Estonia to Sweden, capsized in a storm, Finnish authorities at rescue headquarters in Turku said this morning.

The death toll is believed to be 826, the authorities said. Figures on both the dead and survivors have fluctuated because of confusion among the nations participating in the rescue.

A board of inquiry was expected to focus on the seals on the ship's large bow door, used to load vehicles and cargo. A surviving ship's engineer said water began pouring through it about 30 minutes before the ferry went down.

Survivors said that as the ship's hold filled with water, the vessel listed over to port in three big lurches. The engines stopped, power went out and the ferry sank, bow up.

Ships were using sonar to look for the Estonia's sunken hull, believed to be 260 to 290 feet under water, said Raimo Tiilikainen, the Finnish coast guard commodore in charge of the rescue and salvage operations.

A robot camera will be used to examine the wreck and possibly spot bodies, Tiilikainen said at a news conference.

Dr. Aki Linden, the chief medical examiner, appealed at the news conference for relatives to send in pictures to help identify bodies. Forty-two bodies are waiting to be claimed in Turku.

But medical examiners cautioned it will be difficult to identify bodies that were disfigured by cold water and exposure to the elements.

Linden said that in some cases relatives may have to send in hairbrushes, which could provide hairs needed for sophisticated DNA testing.

"If we have fresh corpses to study, they can be identified by their physical appearance," Linden said. "But as time goes by, deterioration becomes advanced. It's hard even for relatives to identify them."

Letter reproaches foreign students about body odor

BOSSIER CITY, La. (AP) — High school administrators have caused a stink by sending letters about body odor to 16 exchange students.

The letter was sent Sept. 21 after a teacher complained about the hygiene of one of the students, said Airline High School Principal D.C. Machen.

The letter said "Americans find body odors highly offensive" and that the students should adopt "a daily ritual of cleanliness so as not to offend your American hosts."

"I read it and put it in the trash because it was so stupid," said Leo Antunes, a 16-year-old Brazilian.

After three students complained, Machen and counselor Gene Self, who wrote the letter, apologized to all 16 who got the letter.

Ms. Self should have spoken with the one student privately, Machen said. "She realizes she made a mistake there," he said.

In the letter, Ms. Self wrote of her observations while traveling in Europe.

"American girls shaved their legs where European girls, on the whole, did not," the letter read. "Americans seemed to pay more attention to appearance. They were well-groomed, neat, squeaky clean. The boys were clean-shaven with short hair. No one looked like Andre Agassi."

She said despite the tennis star's appearance, "I'll wager he showers daily, uses deodorant and washes his hair regularly."

Agassi, who sports a scruffy beard, shoulder-length hair and earrings, won the U.S. Open earlier this month.

Annapolis, Maryland's historic capital, boasts more prerevolutionary brick buildings than any other U.S. city.

Small fish survives California quake

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The damsel did it.

More than eight months after an earthquake walloped Southern California, a charcoal-colored, white-dotted domino damselfish was discovered alive all by itself in a damaged apartment.

"He'd had no food, no filtration, no nothing for eight months," said Theresa Madok, who has adopted the fish that belonged to her brother, Robert.

The tough little fish survived in an evaporating supply of dank water amid the decomposed remains of a handful of other fish and a hermit crab.

Robert Madok, like other residents of the Sea Castle apartments, had been barred from the building because it was severely damaged in the Jan. 17 quake. He and his sister were finally allowed in Friday to collect his belongings.

Theresa, a tropical fish enthusiast, went to work emptying her brother's prized 60-gallon aquarium. When she got to the gravel at the bottom, Robert pointed out what looked like a dead fish. But Theresa thought it odd that the body was still intact and looked closer.

"You could see the little gills going back and forth," she said. "My brother said 'No way! This is impossible.'"

They quickly refilled the tank. After a worrisome hour, the survivor started swimming.

"I'm not surprised, really," said ichthyologist Richard Feeney of the Los Angeles Natural History Museum. "Some types of fishes are amazingly adaptable."

However it managed — Feeney theorized that the critter lived on algae — the fish is getting along swimmingly.

"When we found him, he was maybe the size of a dime," said Theresa Madok, who keeps the damsel in a new 10-gallon tank. "Now he is the size of a quarter."

Anonymous donor buys lotto ticket

FORT WORTH (AP) — It's doubtful that a city ever won a state lottery drawing, but it could happen here thanks to "The Phantom."

Fort Worth Mayor Kay Granger says she has never bought a lottery ticket because gambling "just has no appeal to me."

But she admits she has taken a special interest in the twice-weekly Lotto Texas drawings in which six winning numbers can produce a multi-million dollar jackpot.

The mayor said Wednesday that an anonymous donor, identifying himself only as "The Phantom," has been sending the mayor a lottery ticket each week for the past three weeks.

The "Phantom" has one condition attached to the gift.

"If it wins, the money goes to the city budget," the mayor said.

The mayor has assigned city employee Patricia Garcia to monitor the drawings in hopes that the city will suddenly be dealing with a budget surplus instead of a budget shortfall.

The jackpot for Saturday's drawing is an estimated $18 million.

Stone interviewed

NEW YORK (AP) — Sure she's posed nude for Playboy and made millions as Hollywood's favorite femme fatale, but don't get Sharon Stone confused with her "slutty and wild" public persona.

"I'm very, very monogamous. And I'm personally shy," Stone told ABC's "20/20" in an interview scheduled to air Friday.

"I think that's why I like playing some of these bigger-than-life characters, and just really letting it rip, because, you know, there aren't any consequences," said Stone, who stars with Sylvester Stallone in "The Specialist."

Previously, producers of the Emmy-winning show had denied a TV Guide report that Morrow was leaving.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Usually your hunches and intuitive insights are reasonably accurate, but today it could be best not to rely upon them too heavily. The signals might be misleading.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Unless your need is absolutely urgent today, play it safe and don't borrow anything of value from others. Things might go awry with the property of friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is not the proper time to request favors from influential persons you know only on a casual basis. Wait until the relationship strengthens with age.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Some big ideas with which you've been toying will remain without power if they aren't implemented. Try to do something about them today; producing is as critical as prophesying.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be extremely realistic and prudent in money matters today. Operate with the funds you have at your disposal, not with those you hope will shortly be forthcoming.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today might usher in some unusual complications. You may find it difficult to get started, especially in arrangements that involve partners or allies.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you fail to finish incomplete assignments, your schedule could get out of whack today. This might cause you to duplicate efforts and deal with unnecessary frustrations.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Buyer's remorse could set in rapidly today if you're extravagant and frivolous. This is the time to trim nonessential expenditures, not increase them.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Ill will could result today if you become too concerned about your personal interests at the expense of others. Provide for number one, but look out for others as well.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Unfortunately, you might be more of a talker than a doer today. Your broadcasted intentions will be interesting, but your actual accomplishments may be hard to discern.
