San Antonio police seek wife's killer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A neighbor said they were "Mr. and Mrs. Ideal Couple," a banker and his wife, living in an exclusive residential area.

But today, police were trying to find Rebecca Jo Patton's killer.

She was found shot to death Wednesday after her husband, Frank, received an extortion call at his office from a man who demanded money and threatened to harm his wife, the FBI said.

Police found Mrs. Patton, 42, lying face down in the hallway of the couple's home in Alamo Heights, only 20 minutes after her husband alerted authorities, FBI spokesman Patrick Cowley said.

Patton is president of Castle Hills National Bank.

"They are Mr. and Mrs. Ideal couple," Bud Coffey, a next-door neighbor of the Pattons, told the San Antonio Express-News. "This incident is going to scare my wife to death. It is such a shame. I can't get over it. She was a lovely lady."

Patton received the anonymous call about 2:40 p.m. Wednesday. He immediately called the FBI and local police and told them about the man's threats.

"They did not ask for a particular dollar amount," Cowley said. "They told him that they wanted 'just as much as you could get your hands on.'"

The caller told Patton to go to an area shopping mall and wait by a pay telephone for a second call with further details, the agent said.

Cowley said the caller never identified himself nor gave any indication if he was working with others. He also said some money was put together at the bank for a ransom, but he declined to say how much or what happened to it.

FBI agents staked out the pay telephone at the mall, but the call never came. Police officers found Mrs. Patton's body about 3 p.m. in the couple's yellow and white frame house.

"They could see a woman through a window where she lay bleeding," Cowley said. Mrs. Patton suffered multiple gunshot wounds.

Two daughters, Amy, 14, and Kathleen, 10, were picked up by police at school and placed in protective custody, he said.

Bill Smith rests on the wing of his Navion after he safely flew the craft in a gear-up forced landing south of Sky Ranch Airport.

Midland man crash-lands plane

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Pilots joke about landings being "controlled crashes."

Bill Smith last weekend got his chance to crash and die or crash-land and survive to fly again.

He decided to be sensible in a forced-landing situation.

"I spent all that time (five years) building it up, and it just took a few minutes to tear it up," he said of his 1946 Navion, a four-place, single-engine airplane often called the "Poor man's P-51 Mustang."

"That's my pride," he said. "It's stout. I know you're lucky if you come down and live."

Last Saturday just before dusk, Smith and his "wingman," Johnny Rister, took off in their Navions at Sky Ranch Airport southwest of Midland to make some low-level passes and to entertain "the troops" at Ernie Webb's Bash '85. A third vintage Navion, owned by pilots Steve and Joann Price, normally would have been on the flight but was hangared. Rister was on Smith's tail as they gained attitude after departing the north-south runway. Once at attitude, Smith cut back from full throttle to 2,500 rpm.

"I STARTED making a turn and got a little pop out of it."

He scanned his instruments, surmised his aircraft had struck a bird, detected nothing amiss, and completed the turn.

Two more "pops" blasted into his cockpit, and his engine quit, though the propeller kept spinning; it's pulling power was nil. A connecting rod in his 205-horsepower six-cylinder Continental engine broke and knocked holes in his engine block. Smoke trailed from the aircraft and soon smoke filled the cockpit. He pulled the mixture control and "went ahead and shut everything off."

Smith banked his aircraft and turned south into the wind.

"I turned directly into the wind and looked for an opening (to land on range)," recalled Smith, a 56-year-old private pilot who has been flying since 1948. "You need all the help you can get."

He opted not to turn downwind or try to make it back to the airport; pilots in similar circumstances have. Many have ended up crashing after the plane stalled out or flew into trees, hills, structures or other obstructions.

"You can't stretch a glide," he said. "If you think you can't, you don't need to try it."

Into his descent, Smith lowered his flaps to gain "a little better control at slower speeds," kept his landing gear in the retracted position, picked out a clearing among the mesquite bushes, let his airspeed fall to about a near-stall 55 mph and pulled back on the stick moments before the aircraft slid 96 feet on the grassland, which was somewhat soggy from recent rains.

He shoved the canopy back, stood up and waved to Rister and his son, Steve, in the circling Navion to signal that he was safe and uninjured.

"IT WAS JUST like in the movies," Rister said of the landing. "It was textbook all the way."

Weir: Captors plan kidnappings, killings

By R. GREGORY NOKES
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON — The Rev. Benjamin Weir said today that the terrorists who held him captive for 16 months are ready to kidnap other Americans and to execute their remaining six hostages if their sole demand is not met — freedom for 17 prisoners in Kuwait.

Weir said that before his release Saturday he saw four of the Americans — Terry Anderson, David Jacobsen, the Rev. Lawrence Jenco and Thomas Sutherland — and that they all appeared well.

As for the other two, Peter Kilburn and William Buckley, "I do not know anything about them," he told a 50-minute news conference five days after his release.

The captors "have released me as a sign of their good intentions" and to convey the demand, which he did which he did when he talked to President Reagan on Monday.

The president, he said, did not respond "in any specific way."

Management team to assist minorities

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

A management group from El Paso that specializes in assisting the minority small businessman and local governments in finding minority contractors will be opening an office in the Midland-Odessa area.

A team of three from Avante are in Midland this week looking for office space and meeting with city leaders and minority businessmen to introduce their program. They tentatively have planned an open house next week with the assistance of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

Pete Parraz is assistant branch manager and Joe Ballesteros is business specialist in the El Paso Avante office while Richard Garcia is marketing specialist in the Dallas office. The three met Wednesday afternoon with some minority business people to explain their program, which is funded by the Department of Commerce and Department of Transportation.

Avante Business Development Center, according to a brochure, "is to help minority small businesses grow and prosper. Avante has a team of talented small business professionals for loan packaging, new business procurement and other management assistance."

"WE IDENTIFY minority businesses in the community and help them become viable businesses," said Parraz. "We try to upgrade or help them upgrade themselves and try to educate the small businessman so he doesn't go under. We're a management counseling type firm."

In addition, the group works with city governments in meeting their goals of hiring minority businessmen for work that is being paid by federal money, according to Garcia.

Some of the federal grants to cities require that 10 percent of the money goes to minority-owned businesses and another 2 percent to women-owned businesses, according to the men.

"Many times the cities say they can't find the people to meet the goals," said Garcia. "We feel they're not putting out the efforts. We're there to help any city cover any goal."

Rare interview reveals Garbo's homesickness

By LARS FOYEN
Associated Press Writer

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Greta Garbo, the reclusive movie star who turned 80 Wednesday, said she is homesick for Sweden and hinted she is "tired of being Garbo," according to a Swedish publisher who said he obtained the first interview with her since 1927.

Sven Broman, 63, a Garbo biographer and magazine publisher, said Miss Garbo is homesick for her native Sweden but "fears the commotion that would follow on her return after years of absence.

"She wants to be left alone," he told reporters in the town of Malmo in southern Sweden.

In a nationally broadcast tribute to Miss Garbo Wednesday night, Broman, a respected journalist, said the former star told him that she wanted to correct some popular myths.

"No, she did not have long feet, but did have her own long eyelashes," he said.

She did not laugh on the screen the first time in "Ninotchka," but in "Queen Kristina," he added. And she does not like the name Garbo, once given her by another teenage actress in Stockholm, and avoids it.

Broman said a "natural, relaxed, humorous and still beautiful" Miss Garbo talked openly to him and his wife of her favorite directors. She said she would have liked to film a comedy with another screen legend, Charlie Chaplin, but never was asked to do so and was too shy to ask him.

Greta Garbo

She also denied reports in the American press that she has a fortune in California real estate.

"They have said I hold half of Rodeo Drive (a major shopping street in the Beverly Hills area of Los Angeles), but I don't own an inch off it," Broman quoted her as saying.

Broman said earlier that he had three sessions with Miss Garbo and spoke for hours last month with the star of films such as "Camille," "Mata Hari," and "Ninotchka."

"It was the event of my life," he said of the interviews he conducted at an unidentified alpine hotel in the German-speaking part of Switzerland.

Major quake off coast shakes Mexico City

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major earthquake occurred today in the Pacific Ocean off the coast of Mexico and early reports said it was felt as far away as southern Texas, the U.S. Geological Survey said.

Preliminary seismograph readings said the earthquake had a magnitude of 7.8 on the Richter scale and was centered about 250 miles southwest of Mexico City, the survey said. According to initial reports it was felt strongly in Mexico City, the survey said.

Waverly Person, chief of the USGS National Earthquake Information Service in Golden, Colo., said the earthquake occurred at 7:18 a.m. Mexico City standard time or 9:18 a.m. EDT.

"It would probably cause some damage," said Frank Baldwin, of the USGS Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo. "We have some unconfirmed reports that it was felt in Houston."

Only three survive tribal ceremony

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The high priest of a mountain tribe forced his followers to eat poisoned food, and 69 of them died in the ritual, a regional military commander quoted a tribal leader as telling soldiers today.

Brig. Gen. Jaime Echevarria said in a telephone interview from Davao, on Mindanao island about 600 miles southeast of Manila, that Philippine Marines talked to a tribal leader who described the incident.

Echevarria said the tribal leader told the military that three people had survived the ceremony, held in a remote area about 25 miles from the main population center of Davao.

He said the soldiers did not see bodies of those who were reported to have died, and no independent verification was available.

The soldiers were checking on a Davao and Manila newspaper reports of a mass cult suicide.

Newspapers had said about 60 people died on Sept. 9 after the high priest Mangayanon promised members of the Ata tribe they would see God if they ate the food.

"These are fanatics. Those who survived said they were made to eat food poisoned by their high priest."

South African, Mozambican officials meet at border

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A spokesman said Foreign Minister R.F. Botha met Mozambican officials in a border town today, a day after Botha was quoted as saying South Africa had violated a peace treaty by aiding anti-Marxist rebels.

The meeting at Komatipoort followed a news conference Wednesday night in which Botha was quoted as saying that South Africa had violated the March 1984 accord by helping rebels build an airstrip and maintain radio communications.

Botha's comments came on the eve of the first meeting between President Samora Machel of Mozambique and President Reagan, whose administration had hailed the peace pact as a step toward regional stability.

Mozambique, long reliant on Soviet support, has softened its anti-capitalist stance in recent years and sought more Western assistance.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman confirmed Botha went to Komatipoort, where the 1984 treaty was signed, to discuss the situation with senior Mozambican officials. The spokesman said he did not know who would attend from Mozambique.

The South African Press Association said Botha had been summoned to Mozambique over the weekend and confronted with evidence from a rebel commander's diary, which was seized by Mozambican forces when they overran insurgent headquarters last week.

Botha was quoted by the South African Press Association as saying Wednesday that the violations of the Mozambican accord were "technical," and that South Africa had aided the rebels only to soften their resistance to stalled peace talks with Machel.

But he was quoted as saying: "The allegations in broad terms are correct, and the Nkomati accord was violated."

Under the accord between the two neighbors, South Africa promised to stop supporting National Resistance Army guerrillas fighting to oust Machel's Marxist government.

In return, Machel pledged to stop allowing guerrillas of the outlawed African National Congress to use his country as a base in their violent struggle to overthrow South Africa's white-minority government.

Machel, whose virtually bankrupt country was reeling under rebel activity, signed the historic treaty ignoring objections from the Soviet Union and other black African nations.

Botha called a news conference for South African correspondents to disclose the results of a three-day investigation into Machel's allegations. Foreign journalists were excluded, but an account was made available by the South African Press Association.

Machel confronted Botha with the diary of the rebel commander at a meeting on Sunday in Maputo, the capital of Mozambique. The diary of the rebel leader, identified only as J. Vaz, gave details of contacts with South Africa from before the accord was signed until last July.

The rebels' headquarters were at Gorongoza in Mozambique's Sofala province. South African officials said the diary showed that Botha's then deputy, Louis Nel, paid clandestine visits to the Gorongoza headquarters between June and October of last year, news reports said.

Botha confirmed the diary's revelations that radio contacts were set up between the Mozambican rebels and the South African army and that South Africa had helped the rebels build an airfield, the news agency said.

The news agency quoted Botha as saying the contacts were "humanitarian aid" to the rebels, it said.

Botha's comments were regarded as highly damaging for South Africa's government, already under attack abroad for its racial segregation policies.

South African officials said they had no new details on a four-day-old incursion by nearly 500 troops into Marxist Angola, the region's other former Portuguese colony.

The military said Wednesday that the South African-led troops had crossed into Angola to "destroy" 400 to 800 guerrillas fighting to end South African rule over South-West Africa, also known as Namibia.

But Angola's defense minister, Pedro Maria Tonha, charged that South Africa actually launched the raid to prop up anti-Marxist Angolan rebels, and not to attack the Namibian guerrillas who operate from southern Angola.

PLANE

Rister had flown above and to the right of Smith's Navion, as it headed for the clearing. There was no radio contact — Rister had pulled his radios to install other avionics. "We just followed him down. It's a helpless feeling."

"We just hated to see a beautiful airplane get crunched, wrinkled," Rister said. "He had a good place to put it down. The terrain was smooth."

The aircraft's damage was minimal; the wood Hartzell propeller was busted and a few crinkles appeared in the aluminum skin of the fuselage. Midland aircraft rebuilder Jack Bagwell said the Navion will be flying again within six weeks.

"They are made like a tank," Smith said of Navions. "They're well built." His Navion, which he bought in 1980, "in fact had no damage...'til I got my foot in it."

Smith reflected on his crash-landing.

"When your motor dies or you have a failure, you're coming down," he said. "You've just got to make up your mind how you're going to do it, because you're coming down for sure."

Smith said he wasn't worried in his descent.

"You're trained for all that junk — forced landings. You don't just jump in them things (airplanes) and go."

Smith said he tries to stay well versed in emergency procedures. In case of an in-flight emergency, the pilot rarely would have time to review his aircraft manual on proper procedures in emergencies.

"It (a forced landing) could happen again the next time you go up," said Smith, who owns an oil-field pumping unit service in Midland. "But you hope it never happens. When you have wide-open country, there ain't nothing to landing. Some people make a big deal out of it. I don't think nothing of it."

QUAKE

Attempts to learn of possible damage were hampered by disruption of telephone service to Mexico City. Steve Cross, of AT&T Communications in New Jersey, attributed the failure to the earthquake, but said he had no details.

Gordon Burton of the Pacific Tsunami Warning Center in Hawaii said his agency "has issued a regional tsunami watch based on the location and magnitide of the quake and the possibility that a tsunami may have been generated." A tsunami is a tidal wave or great sea wave.

He said there has been no confirmation yet of a tsunami. A watch means that a tsunami could occur but none has been spotted.

"Historically, given the size of the quake, it might have generated a tsunami that would be destructive" near the source of the earthquake, but probably will not do damage elsewhere, Burton said. He said his agency has not been able to communicate with Mexican officials.

Munich police office explodes

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — An explosion rocked the state police headquarters in this southern West Germany city today, authorities reported.

Police spokesman Hermann Schern said the blast occurred at 9 a.m. (3:00 a.m. EDT) in a bunker outside the main building.

He said there appeared to be no injuries.

The blast did not appear to be an attack, Schern said.

"It's too early to say but it looks like explosives stored in the bunker went off," he said. "The blast released a large amount of smoke and we are having trouble reaching the bunker."

WEIR

Weir, appearing fit and composed and speaking in a firm voice, warned that the terrorists "are not willing to wait much longer."

The 61-year-old Presbyterian missionary said his captors were prepared to release the other Americans if their demand is met for freedom for the 17 accused truck bombers, who blew up parts of the U.S. Embassy and other facilities in Kuwait.

Weir wore a yellow ribbon on his lapel. Yellow ribbons, a Vietnam War symbol of Americans held prisoner and revived during the Iranian hostage crisis, adorned each pew of the National Presbyterian Center, where Weir spoke.

Weir said he feels in good health both physically and mentally and that he "deeply resents the injustice of having been kidnapped."

The minister, who speaks fluent Arabic, was asked if he had anything to say to his captors. He declined.

He said he was held in solitary confinement for most of his captivity and his chief problem was boredom. He said he was treated with respect as a man of the clergy and fed a "simple Lebanese diet."

Weir said he was suddenly released by his captors "just before midnight" on Saturday.

"I made contact with the American Embassy, whose ambassador and officials promptly and efficiently arranged for me to be transported to the U.S.A." He said he arrived in Norfolk, Va., Monday evening and agreed to remain secluded because of the possibility that "one or more" of those left behind might also be freed.

Weir said he feels there remains only a small "window of opportunity" for the safe release of the remaining six.

"I fear that opportunity might not last long," he said.

In addition, he said, if the terrorists' demand is not met soon, "they are prepared to kidnap other Americans." But they while they "do not want to harm anyone," they will "go so far as to proceed to execute their hostages if their demand is not met."

During the news conference, Weir declined to answer several questions about his captivity and release because "I do not want to put in jeopardy the safety and welfare of the remaining hostages."

Weir said he was permitted for the first time to meet with the other four hostages July 2. "It's like Christmas come on July 2, but unpredictably."

"I and Father Jenco and others (had) asked for permission to worship together," he said. He said their captors permitted them to worship while blindfolded on two occasions, a week or 10 days apart.

He said they were later allowed to meet together and talk in a locked room with their blindfolds off. "We would read the Bible, we would pray together, we would celebrate Mass ... what was going on with us ... sharing experience and getting mutual support from one another."

Weir said he would meet privately after the news conference with the hostage families to share information he had on four other hostages he had met.

He said he had not been given any detailed set of reasons for the hostage-takings, but, from conversations understood that his captors:

—"Were taking extreme, radical action to recover the 17 prisoners from Kuwait."

—Are "very much opposed to the Israeli invasion of South Lebanon and the continuing effect spilling out from the occupation."

As an example, Garcia said the city of Midland gets a $500,000 grant from the Urban Mass Transportation Administration for MidTran, the public transportation system. Of that, $400,000 goes for personnel. The remaining $100,000 is set aside for different contracts, of which 10 percent must go to minority owned businesses and another 2 percent to those owned by women.

For Midland to meet its goal, said Garcia, the city is having to go to a minority business owner in Stanton.

Councilwoman Oralia Corrales said construction of a new YMCA building for east Midland is being delayed because "there's not enough minority businesses to bid it out."

GARCIA ADDED THAT "a lot of goals are not being met." When the office opened in El Paso, that city was "way, way down on their goals. And the city of Midland has not met a goal yet."

Avante can work with the businessman or someone who has an idea to start a business in a number of ways, according to Parraz.

"If someone comes in with an idea, we sit down with him and see about financing. We try to help as much as we can. Our goal is for him to eventually say, 'I'm on my own and don't need your help any more.' We follow up on disbursements of funding and make sure he's on good footing, on his way to becoming a vital part of the business community."

For minorities who already have a business but are experiencing problems, Avante can assist, according to Parraz. Avante can identify loan sources and develop loan packages, seek possible loans through the Small Business Administration, Texas Industrial Commission and other loan institutions, give procurement assistance in finding contracts with government agencies or big businesses, analyze and restructure the business' organization, give personnel management service, study the accounting system design and development or the computer system.

Avante's computer data base includes the U.S. Census data, Dun and Bradstreet credit information, Dodge Report Construction data, Federal Procurement data and Technology Transfer information.

Parraz cited one minority businessman in El Paso who previously had grossed about $250,000 on his construction business. After working with Avante in locating contracts, his business in the last fiscal year grossed $3.5 million. "We helped him identify some construction projects out there and helped him out on his performance bond," he said.

In addition, Avante assisted El Paso businessmen in getting about $2.5 million in loan packages during its first year of operation "so we have a good relationship with the bankers," Parraz said.

In El Paso, Avante has accomplished 96.9 percent of their goals in the first year. "Last year we assisted in 32 start-ups with 96 percent of those successful."

A fee is charged for the services, he said. The initial interview is free. If the business grosses half a million dollars in sales the fee is $10 an hour; if more than half a million dollars the fee goes up to $17.50 a hour.

IT WAS THE Department of Commerce which determined that an office needed to be opened in the Midland-Odessa area, said Parraz, and Avante's El Paso office was granted money to open one this year.

At first, the local office won't be staffed full-time, he said. A telephone number will be set up here so it will ring in El Paso, and a consultant there will schedule a time to be in Midland. Depending on the requests, Parraz said he expects people from his office to be in the Permian Basin two days every other week.

"We're not miracle workers," said Parraz. "But, hopefully, we can be in a position to help the minority businessman."

Customs fee favored with Canada, Mexico, adjacent islands exempt

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The Senate Finance Committee Wednesday approved a $5-per-person fee on each person passing through a Customs station from countries other than Mexico, Canada and islands adjacent to the United States.

Heeding the vehement protests of Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., who are members of the panel, the committee backed down on an administration proposal to impose a $1 fee on each person crossing the Mexican and Canadian border as well.

The original proposal, included in a package of fees for the U.S. Customs Service, was offered by Finance Committee Chairman Robert Packwood, R-Ore., at the indirect request of the Reagan administration.

The proposed fees were aimed at raising $333 million in revenue. Of that amount, $152.8 million would have come from the $1 fee on persons crossing land borders.

"In essence, it would have drained $152.8 million from an area already depressed by continuing unemployment and the ongoing peso devaluation," said Bentsen, through an aide.

"It would have affected both Americans and Mexicans – whoever crossed the border would have to pay the $1 fee," he added.

The two border state senators were surprised by the passenger fee proposal. "We heard about it only one day before it came up in committee," said Felix Sanchez, a legislative aide to Bentsen.

Bolivia ends strike, declares state of siege

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — The Bolivian government decreed a state of siege today and arrested top labor leaders after talks failed to end a 16-day-old general strike over the nations' huge inflation rate.

After meeting through the night to negotiate an end to the dispute over how to attack a 14,000 percent inflation rate, union leaders balked at the government's proposal to end the strike.

Reporters saw police and army troops in La Paz's main square, a union radio station and six union halls where hundreds of people had been staging a hunger fast in support of the strike.

Strake: Nothing short of death, debacle can stop Hobby

STATE

AUSTIN (AP) — The Republican who lost by over a half million million votes to Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby in 1982, State Party Chairman George Strake, says possibly nothing short of death or debacle could stop Hobby from winning re-election.

Hobby, with typical lack of fanfare, has let it be known that he will run for a fifth term next year that could stretch his time in office to 18 years, far longer than any other lieutenant governor.

"I plan to run for re-election as lieutenant governor," Hobby told an airport news conference at Sherman this week as he completed a two-day swing through five cities.

He devoted the remainder of the session to promoting water proposals on the Nov. 5 ballot and announcing the appointment of his traveling companion, Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, to the State Sunset Commission that reviews state agencies.

"He hasn't made a formal announcement. The Sherman thing was off the cuff," Hobby press secretary Bob Cargill explained Wednesday.

"The only reason I know he's running is we've opened a campaign office, and we're going to have a reception — make that fundraiser," said Cargill, who also is Hobby's pilot.

Strake, who lost by 558,226 votes to Hobby three years ago, was asked Wednesday about Hobby's re-election bid, and said, "I think we could have better representation in that office, and I think some of these offices ought to be limited to eight years so people don't build up little fiefdoms."

Strake noted in a telephone interview that he had said the lieutenant governor's race "would not be one of our priority races." He said, however, the party was considering getting a contender in the Republican primary to guarantee that Hobby would have opposition.

"I have had two people who called me and wanted to run against him," Strake said.

Asked if Hobby is viewed as unbeatable, Strake replied, "Nobody is unbeatable, as Muhammad Ali and everybody else learned. Obviously he is in there pretty tight because of his long tenure and deep pockets."

Records filed earlier this year showed Hobby had raised $1.3 million for a possible re-election effort. His personal financial statement filed in April showed he was worth nearly $8.4 million.

What would it take to beat Hobby?

"He could get run over by a train or a scandal could erupt," said Strake.

Hobby already holds the record for longevity as lieutenant governor, a job generally considered to be the most powerful in state government. He has held the office for 12 years, eight months.

Ben Ramsey, who resigned in 1961 to accept an appointment to the Railroad Commission, held the old record of 10 years, eight months, but was elected a record six times to two-year terms. In 1974, the office became a four-year position.

It amazes some that Hobby has never sought the governor's office. But he says, "Everybody assumes that a lieutenant governor goes to bed every night and wakes up every morning thinking how he'd like to be governor — which is not the case. And, you know, it may turn out that I'll run for governor some day. I don't mark each day off the calendar as if I'm going to run for governor."

Hobby first was elected in 1972 after surviving a Democratic primary runoff against Wayne Connally, brother of former Gov. John Connally. His campaign message was, "He will make a good lieutenant governor — honestly."

He has outlasted virtually every lawmaker who served in the 1973 Legislature.

Hobby has displayed a particular interest and understanding of state finances, so much so that former budget board director Thomas Keel once said of a Hobby drawing of a flow-chart on finances:

"There are not five people in state government who can understand the state funding structure, much less draw a picture of it."

His presence and persuasion help each session to keep conference committee talks on the budget moving, even as tempers heat up.

'Dapper bandit' still on the loose after 14 suspected bank robberies

DALLAS (AP) — A bandit blamed for one of Texas' longest-running bank robbery sprees is believed to have started his unlawful career seven years ago wearing a fake goatee and dark glasses, authorities said.

But the still-free bank robber has taken to wearing three-piece suits and has been dubbed the "dapper bandit." He is suspected in 14 bank robberies where $500,000 was taken.

Law enforcement authorities say the man apparently committed his first Dallas-area robbery seven years ago. Initially, the bandit used amateurish disguises and sometimes made clutzy entrances.

"I noticed him because he came up to the front door and walked into it. It made enough noise," said a former bank employee who watched a robbery at Pan American National Bank in 1978. "It was like they weren't his glasses."

Then the man wore an open-neck shirt and zippered jacket. He also had a wig and tinted glasses. He has eluded police despite a $15,000 reward for his capture and photos posted in numerous Dallas-area bank lobbies.

'He's very professional," said Vicki Arbogast, who works in new accounts at Medallion National Bank. "He's very cool. He wears a three-piece suit and carries a briefcase. He doesn't stand out. He blends right in with the rest of the customers."

Ms. Arbogast said she saw the bandit strike twice, first when she was interviewing for a job at Dallas' Liberty National Bank in June 1981 and then when she was working at Empire Bank in February 1982.

Man shot for allegedly stealing meat

AUSTIN (AP) — A 25-year-old man suspected of shoplifting a package of pork chops lay paralyzed Wednesday with an off-duty police officer's bullet lodged near his spine.

Donald W. Brown was shot in the back Tuesday night during a struggle with the officer, who was working as a grocery store security guard, police said.

Brown's parents, Emma Smith and Freddie Brown, said their son has lost the use of his legs.

"The doctor assured us that he is paralyzed and would be permanently," Freddie Brown said. "They left the bullet in, because they said right now it might cause more damage to remove it."

Brown, who was unarmed and who has not been charged, was listed in serious condition Wednesday at Brackenridge Hospital.

"I'm trying not to be bitter, because I don't want that in my heart," his mother said. "What I need to do right now is pray, and that's what I'm doing. But it's hard not to be bitter."

Assistant Police Chief George Phifer said Patrol Officer Ruth Ann Bullock, 29, has been placed on restricted duty while the department investigates the shooting.

"We tell our officers out there to only use deadly force to protect their life or someone else's," he said.

But Phifer said he wasn't sure if departmental policy on the use of deadly force would apply to the shooting since Ms. Bullock was off-duty.

"It is a gray area," he said. "It becomes difficult when a person is acting basically as a private employee."

Police said Ms. Bullock chased Brown and another man out of the store and down the street for about two blocks after she was alerted by a store employee.

The three struggled and Brown was shot once with a .38-caliber handgun, police said, adding that a package of pork chops was found on the street nearby.

The other man disappeared during the scuffle, police said.

Deputy Chief Don Doyle said investigators have not determined whether Ms. Bullock fired deliberately or whether the gun went off by accident.

Browns' parents said that even if their son was trying to steal the meat, he should not have been shot.

"I don't say shoplifting is right, but to shoot somebody for shoplifting?" Freddie Brown said.

Both said Brown had never been in trouble with the law and didn't need to steal food.

"There certainly was no reason for him to shoplift or to take anything like that," Ms. Smith said. "There's plenty of food in the box, and if he needed money, he could come to his father or me."

Victims of plane crash hitch ride to hospital

TEXARKANA, Texas (AP) — Three people hitched a ride to a hospital after suffering only minor injuries Wednesday when their plane crashed in a pasture near Mount Pleasant, officials said.

Injured in the crash were the plane's pilot, Alex Leon Frazer, 49, and passengers, Bea Frazer, 43, and Calvin Allen Frazer, 13, all of Hughes Springs.

The plane took off from Mount Pleasant Municipal Airport but could not gain altitude and crashed in a pasture, said trooper Ira Covington of the Texas Department of Public Safety. He said the Piper 300, went down about three miles south of Mount Pleasant, Covington said.

The three people reportedly walked through a wooded area after the crash and hitched a ride to the Titus Couny Hospital, officials said. The plane's wings and underside were damaged in the crash.

A hospital spokesman said the three were treated for minor injuries and released.

Girl sees alleged attacker

HOUSTON (AP) — A youth who allegedly broke into a southwest Houston home last year and stabbed a 13-year-old girl was identified by the girl at a high school football game, police said.

Sgt. Ted Thomas said the alleged attacker, now 17, has been charged in juvenile court with attempted capital murder because he was 16 at the time of the attack.

Assistant Fort Bend County District Attorney Bryan Best said it is likely he will try to have the youth certified as an adult.

A friend who was with the girl at the football game Friday night knew the youth's first name and helped police identify him, police spokesman J.C. Mosier said.

The girl was attacked by an assailant who broke into her house on Dec. 27 and used a butcher knife from the kitchen to stab her repeatedly, police records show. She was found with a knife still in her back, he said.

Even though specialists feared at one time the girl would not walk again, she now can walk with a slight limp and is doing well, investigators said.

Man arrested after chase

LEWISVILLE (AP) — A man who allegedly forced a Carrollton woman to drive to a bank to withdraw money was arrested Wednesday after a 15-mile chase in which he tried to run down a state trooper, authorities said.

Debbie Flowers, 28, said First City Bank employees called police after she told them the man was in her car.

Sgt. Robert Genova said he fired three shots into the suspect's car. The man then drove off, with police in pursuit. Lewisville police said they chased the man for about 15 miles on Interstate 35 to Denton where he tried to down a Texas Highway Patrol officer.

The suspect, James M. Wyatt, 23, then rammed the trooper's car and kept driving until he ran into a ditch, police said. He was arrested by state troopers and Denton police, who said Wyatt had cut his wrist with a pocket knife.

Wyatt was treated at a Denton hospital and then arraigned by Lewisville Municipal Judge Steve Stephens, who set bond at $150,000 on a charge of attempted capital murder and $10,000 on one charge of evading arrest, police said.

Falcons found in Big Bend

AUSTIN (AP) — Wildlife biologists have identified seven peregrine falcon nests in Big Bend National Park, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department said Wednesday.

Biologists participating in a cooperative study funded by the department, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the National Park Service reported that 10 young peregrines were fledged from six sites, the best ever reported for the species in the park.

This year's production was up from three young fledged in 1984 and one in 1983.

Officials reported that a study of eggshell fragments revealed that the eggs are approaching the danger point of the thinning condition which can hinder reproduction. Contamination from the insecticide DDT is the suspected cause of the thinning, Parks and Wildlife officials said.

Bus driver fired after wreck

AUSTIN (AP) — A school bus driver fired after a wreck that injured 19 children had at least three traffic convictions and another accident on his record, a Department of Public Safety official said Wednesday.

Austin school district officials said they knew about the record, but it wasn't bad enough to justify firing the man until he got two more tickets after the accident Monday.

DPS spokesman Mike Cox said Samuel Earl Culliver, 24, was convicted of a speeding violation in February and March 1984 in a private vehicle.

CIA director says U.S.S.R. uses foreign press

DALLAS (AP) — CIA Director William J. Casey says accusations of CIA involvement in the assassination of Indira Gandhi is an example of how the Soviet Union manipulates the foreign press.

Charges that a Korean Air Lines jet was flying a spy mission for the United States when it was shot down also were fed to Western newspapers and spread to other parts of the world by the Soviets, Casey said Wednesday.

Speaking to about 300 people at a Dallas Council of World Affairs luncheon Wednesday, Casey called the foreign press an "unwitting propaganda machine" the Soviets use to change U.S. policies.

He said such manipulation is a "typical Soviet tactic" used in Nicaragua and, increasingly, in other countries.

Manipulation (of the foreign press) is a "typical Soviet tactic" used in Nicaragua and, increasingly, in other countries.

— CIA Director William J. Casey

Casey, a World War II Office of Strategic Services officer and former chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, was appointed head of the CIA in 1980 after serving as President Reagan's campaign director.

A broad range of groups used by the Soviets as "front groups" are also manipulation tools, he said.

Casey named the World Peace Council, the World Federation of Trade Unions and the World Federation of Democratic Youth as front groups for the Soviet Union.

The World Federation of Democratic Lawyers, he said, is a Soviet front group "responding to directions from Moscow."

"I'm not trying to whip up anti-Soviet hysteria...like President Reagan and all Americans, I hope to negotiate meaningful, verifiable arms control and disarmament," Casey said.

Casey said the CIA has recovered from sluggish times in the 1970s when the agency lost 50 percent of its people and 40 percent of its funding.

"That's all changed as a result of the strong presidential and congressional support," Casey said.

The Dallas speech was sponsored by the non-profit Dallas Council, which frequently brings world leaders here to speak to the group.

Whitmire, opponent face off in first debate

HOUSTON (AP) — Mayor Kathy Whitmire said she thought not enough issues were raised and opponent Louie Welch said the mayor was inventing statistics as the two major candidates for Houston's top political job faced off in the first of several debates.

A crowd of more than 1,000 attended the debate sponsored by the Houston Young Republicans.

Mrs. Whitmire, 39, seeking a third two-year term, and Welch, 66, who served five terms as mayor from 1964 to 1974, top the ballot facing voters in the nation's fourth-largest city Nov. 5.

Predictably, Mrs. Whitmire touted her accomplishments in office — water and sewage improvements, added police officers, widening streets — as making Houston a better place to live. Welch, meanwhile, most recently president of the Houston Chamber of Commerce, complained that poor planning, low police morale and proliferation of sexual businesses made the city a worse place to live.

"I felt that it went well," Mrs. Whitmire said after the 90-minute confrontation. "I felt that somehow not all the issues came up that I had wanted to come up and there seemed to be too little time to address each one."

Asked how he viewed his performance, Welch said: "This was not a performance for me. I feel very comfortable."

At least three of the questions concerned sexual matters, with Welch noting the mayor's support of a gay rights referendum soundly defeated by voters earlier this year.

The gay rights issue "split the town wide open" and never should have been raised except for "the arrogance of power," he said.

Secrecy cloaks Weir's release

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
AP White House Correspondent

An analysis

WASHINGTON — Much about the Rev. Benjamin Weir's release from captivity in Lebanon remains secret, and what little President Reagan and others have said concerning the matter raises new questions about how and why the missionary was kept in hiding for four days after he was freed.

More than 16 months after he was kidnapped while walking down a street in Beirut, Weir "was released to the U.S. government authorities in Beirut" last Saturday, a White House spokesman said Wednesday.

But Reagan and his spokesman, Edward Djerejian, said the release was kept secret until midday Wednesday for the sake of the six Americans still being held hostage in Lebanon.

"We were trying to keep it so quiet because we don't want to do anything that endangers the chances of the other six," Reagan told a crowd outside the New Hampshire Statehouse as he surprised his audience by tacking what he called "a little news note" onto the end of the latest in a recent series of income tax speeches.

Djerejian offered only a shard more explanation.

"We kept his liberation secret because we were concerned that making it public would interfere with what we hoped would be the imminent release of the remaining six hostages," he said. "That is the basic reason why we have kept that information secret until now."

To maintain the secret, only a very few people in government, in Weir's church and in his family were told of his release.

It never came up at White House senior staff meetings or in preparing Reagan for questions he might be asked at his Tuesday night news conference, said one senior official who asked not to be identified.

And a usually well-informed State Department source said, "No one here knew about it. It was very tightly held" by the National Security Council at the White House.

It would be understandable for American officials to remain silent until they knew Weir was safely in their custody. It was only last June that the White House prematurely announced the release of 39 hostages from TWA Flight 847.

But Weir was back in the United States by Sunday, spirited out of the Middle East in a manner not yet disclosed.

"I can't get into the specifics on how he came back," Djerejian said, "but we did assist in his return."

Nor is it clear how secrecy might have led to the release of the six who remained behind when Weir's captors apparently wanted his release made public. An anonymous caller identifying himself as a member of the terrorist group Islamic Jihad, which claimed credit for kidnapping Weir and the others, telephoned the Reuters news agency on Sunday to say Weir had been freed.

But that report, without official confirmation or Weir's appearance to substantiate it, faded away.

Djerejian said it became clear late Tuesday night the release of the remaining six hostages was not imminent.

Reagan's national security adviser, Robert C. McFarlane, who was within the tight circle of officials who knew Weir had been released, suggested the information was withheld because various groups in Lebanon appear to be struggling for control of the hostages.

He also said the Presbyterian minister "deserves a normal family life" and the administration facilitated Weir's reunion with his wife by keeping quiet.

Officials said privately that intelligence officers were most anxious to debrief Weir immediately and thoroughly while his memory was fresh and before the crush of publicity disrupted his concentration.

Djerejian all but confirmed that without saying it.

"The U.S. government naturally has an interest in talking with the Reverend Weir about the criminal act involved in his being held captive," the spokesman said. "Let me just leave it at that."

Reagan said the administration was planning to announce at midday Wednesday that it had Weir home and he decided to "jump the gun" to make the announcement himself in New Hampshire after word began to leak out.

An official of the Presbyterian Church in New York confirmed the release for The Associated Press on Wednesday morning in a statement church officials later briefly tried to retract.

"I wasn't going to say anything because we were going to make the announcement from Washington at 12:30 p.m."

American funds would counter Central American terrorism

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, citing leftist guerrilla attacks in El Salvador, will seek $54 million in counter-terrorism funds to arm and train soldiers and police in five Central American nations, according to a government document.

The administration detailed its plan in a 21-page briefing paper sent to Capitol Hill on Wednesday. Congressional sources, insisting on anonymity, said the formal legislation was expected by the end of the week.

"Terrorism in Central America is directed against fragile governments with limited counter-terrorism capabilities," the briefing paper said. It also repeated charges that Cuba, Nicaragua and extreme-left groups support those actions.

The document makes no mention of longstanding charges that security forces in El Salvador and Guatemala have participated in rightist "death squad" activities that have claimed thousands of lives over the past five years.

The administration has reported a sharp drop in abuses in both countries, but private human rights groups dispute that, contending security forces are still responsible for significant numbers of political murders and torture.

The administration proposal calls for spending $27 million to help military forces in combating terrorism, $26 million to upgrade police and $1 million for witness protection.

The largest recipient would be El Salvador with $22 million for items ranging from sophisticated communications gear and helicopters to submachine guns and sniper rifles with night-vision scopes. Guatemala would receive $5 million for training in investigations, hostage rescue and riot control and for buying police vehicles and secure radios.

Under the plan, Costa Rica would get $9 million, Honduras $11 million and Panama $6 million. The other $1 million would go for guarding witnesses.

The administration argued that in El Salvador, "anti-government forces turned to urban terrorism in past six months" with attacks that included the June slaying of four Marines and nine civilians at a cafe in San Salvador and the recent kidnaping of President Jose Napoleon Duarte's daughter.

Following the June attack, Congress lifted a ban on aiding police forces in El Salvador and Honduras but added no money. The administration currently is requesting $256 million in military aid to Central America for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

In a related development, 70 officials from religious, human rights and foreign policy groups urged Congress to reject the new proposal, noting that Congress banned police training in 1974 because some police forces were implicated in torture, disappearances and murder.

Meet for peace

There's a great deal of speculation going around concerning the upcoming summit between President Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. That's to be expected since it will be the first summit between the two superpowers in six years.

Some analysts are predicting little of substance will come from the November summit. Others are indicating it will offer the first real opportunity in recent times for the leaders of the world's most powerful nations to establish a framework for future relations and, in that context, this will be a most important meeting.

No doubt it will be — to a degree simply because the nations' leaders don't get together too often. Perhaps that's a mistake. The two nations — and, thus, the world — might benefit from the rapport that likely would develop if the president of the United States and the leader of the Soviet Union sat down together more often.

What would it hurt? Are they afraid they might not like each other? Or that they would learn they support governments with conflicting philosophies? Maybe they're simply too busy to get together more often.

Well, it really wouldn't matter if they found they did not care for each other. Or if they found each other personally likeable. Liking someone may make a relationship more enjoyable, but it doesn't assure the ability to overcome major differences of opinion.

And the fact that the American and Soviet systems of government are incompatible is well documented. Seems that would be the primary impetus for sitting down to talk a little more often.

The other possible consideration — not having the time to meet more often — is a bit hard to swallow. What's a day or two a year if decreased world tension and improved relations between the superpowers is the result?

Actually, the only legitimate argument against more frequent summits is the loss of any advantage either leader might claim to hold in public image-making. We would a lot rather see them sacrifice their posturing in the interest of more frequent summits and greater hopes for international understanding.

Tax appraisals accurate

The Midland Central Appraisal District has recently been subject through the media of extensive criticism by well-meaning but uninformed individuals. As a matter of information: The Midland Central Appraisal Review Board was created by the Legislature of the State of Texas to represent all taxpayers within the boundary of the Midland Central Appraisal District.

1. The appraisal district is responsible for appraising property in the district for ad valorem tax purposes of each taxing unit that imposes taxes on property within the district.

The appraisal district handles the appraising of property for:

— Midland Independent School District.
— City of Midland.
— Midland Junior College.
— Midland County.
— Greenwood Independent School District.
— Midland County Hospital District.

2. The specific purpose for the existence of the Review Board is to see that all property within the district is placed upon the tax rolls equally, based upon "market value" as of Jan. 1. Market value means the price at which a property would transfer for cash or its equivalent under prevailing market conditions if:

A. Exposed for sale in the open market with a reasonable time for the seller to find a purchaser;

B. Both the seller and the purchaser know of all the uses and purposes to which the property is adapted and for which it is capable of being used and of the enforceable restrictions on its use; and

C. Both the seller and the purchaser seek to maximize their gains and neither is in a position to take advantage of the exigencies of the other.

The Appraisal Review Board represents the taxpayers. All taxpayers have the opportunity to appear before the board if they desire to protest the value placed upon their property.

We, the members of the Midland Central Appraisal District wish to affirm the position taken by the chief appraiser, Roland Wilkinson, in establishing all the appraised values placed upon property in Midland County.

We wish to point out that Mrs. Midge Erskine was twice invited by Mr. Wilkinson's staff to appear before the representatives of the Midland Central Appraisal District. In the event that his staff could not answer her questions satisfactorily he volunteered to make an appointment with the Appraisal Review Board.

Mrs. Erskine has to date refused to meet with Mr. Wilkinson. Neither has she been in contact with any member of the Appraisal Review Board regarding any allegations made through the news media. Of primary consideration is the fact that she has not availed herself of the opportunities that exist to determine the reasons for different property values.

After examining 567 recent sales or 28% of all homes for sale in Midland, comparing the appraisal district appraised values of these properties with the actual sales prices, we find the appraisal district values to be within 3% of the actual sales prices. We believe this record would surpass any major appraisal office in the State of Texas.

This percentage of accuracy points out the fact that the Midland Central Appraisal District would rank as one of the highest in the state in achieving its state mandated charges of arriving at market value and being equal and uniform.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, Sept. 19, the 262nd day of 1985. There are 103 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Sept. 19, 1796, President George Washington published his farewell address. In it, the first chief executive of the United States advised: "Observe good faith and justice toward all nations. Cultivate peace and harmony with all."

On this date:

In 1777, American soldiers in the Revolutionary War won the first Battle of Saratoga over the British.

In 1783, Etienne Montgolfier launched a duck, a sheep and a rooster aboard a hot-air balloon at Versailles in France. They were the first animals to go aloft in a manmade craft.

In 1881, James A. Garfield, 20th president of the United States, died of wounds inflicted by an assassin 11 weeks earlier.

In 1906, addressing the annual dinner of The Associated Press in New York, Mark Twain said, "There are only two forces that can carry light to all the corners of the globe ... the sun in the heavens and The Associated Press down here."

In 1928, the first "talking" cartoon — Walt Disney's "Steamboat Willie," starring Mickey Mouse — premiered in New York.

Five years ago: Leaking rocket fuel exploded inside an underground Titan 2 nuclear missile silo near Damascus, Ark., killing an Air Force sergeant and injuring 22 other people.

One year ago: Great Britain and China announced they had reached agreement on a joint declaration that would transfer Hong Kong from British to Chinese rule by 1997.

Today's birthdays: Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell is 78. Journalist Clifton Daniel is 73. Author William Golding is 74. Newspaper columnist Mike Royko is 53. Actor David McCallum is 52. Singer-songwriter Paul Williams is 45. Actor Jeremy Irons is 37. Actress Twiggy is 36. Actor Kevin Hooks is 27.

Thought for today: "If you are patient in one moment of anger, you will escape a hundred days of sorrow." — Chinese proverb.

Senate may join House on TV

WASHINGTON — A mighty television battle is building — but it's not among the networks over the new season's ratings. The arena is the U.S. Senate, whose members like to think of themselves as the world's greatest deliberative body.

Jack Anderson

What the senators are mulling over, for the fifth time in recent years, is whether to allow live television coverage of Senate proceedings, as the House has done for the past six years. Proponents of TV coverage have gained support since their last defeat, and think they may have a chance to win this time.

In fact, a recent poll by C-SPAN (Cable Satellite Public Affairs Network), which sends the House debates to client stations around the country, found that 62 senators would support TV coverage in some form, while only 18 would vote against it no matter what. The rest, as senators are wont to do, hedged.

One of the fiercest opponents of Senate TV coverage, Sen. Russell Long, D-La., is retiring, but will still be around to vote against the idea one last time. His opposition is unflattering to his colleagues.

"Every senator with an inflated ego or higher political aspirations would always be tempted to take the floor and make eloquent speeches," Long has predicted, adding that most Senate floor speeches are "uninspired" to begin with. He presumably doesn't want to demean an institution he loves by displaying its shortcomings to a nationwide TV audience.

Sen. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., doesn't necessarily disagree with Long's prediction, but he doesn't agree that changed behavior by senators would be a bad thing. As a representative, Gore supported the House's decision to allow TV coverage.

In a survey taken shortly after the House allowed the cameras in, 77 percent of the members thought colleagues were making speeches they wouldn't have made without TV, while only 10 percent admitted making such speeches themselves.

Gore not only believes the 10 percent figure is more accurate, he feels the Senate, by refusing to appear live on the tube, has sacrificed prestige to the House and the president.

"In a democracy, perception affects political power," he explained to our reporter Diane Jacobs. Gore thinks that changes in senatorial behavior caused by "concern about what the American people think" would be all to the good.

But many senators are wary of letting their chamber fall into the partisan mudslinging that characterized the snarling match between Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., and New Right Republicans such as Reps. Newt Gingrich, Ga., and Robert Walker, Pa. Nettled by their late-session harangues, O'Neill had the cameras pull back to show that the speeches were being made to an almost-empty chamber.

House TV coverage is still tightly controlled by the speaker, through his designated surrogate, Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C. The Senate will have to decide, if it chooses to allow TV coverage, whether it will work out a similar system of control, or abdicate its authority to the networks.

INTEREST-ING BATTLE: Should interest rates by held down or pushed up? This question has provoked a backstage battle between Treasury Secretary James Baker and Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker. Low interest encourages people to borrow, which stimulates the economy. But low rates can also fuel inflation, which cheapens the value of the dollar. Both Baker and Volcker are shrewd political operators. Baker will try to keep interest rates low enough to loosen the money supply. Volcker will try to keep the rates high enough to tighten the money supply. The battle is on.

DUST IN OUR EYES?: Scientists at the Environmental Protection Agency won't say the State Department's "spy dust" scare is a hoax, but they do say the boys in Foggy Bottom hyped it up a bit by claiming the Soviet tracking chemical is a carcinogen. The chemical, called NPPD, is dusted on U.S. diplomats' belongings and can then be traced to dissidents' homes by the KGB. The EPA experts say NPPD is classed as a mutagen, which means it "might" cause cancer — but so might some 8,000 other chemical mutagens found in ordinary household products. Identifying those that are definitely cancer-causing would take millions of dollars and years of research.

MINI-EDITORIAL: We generally don't support "equal time" broadcasting regulations, but we think President Reagan may have inadvertently come up with a whale of an idea when he bemoaned Soviet access to the U.S. media and suggested he be given the opportunity to address the Russian people on television. Maybe there ought to be an international rule that every world leader be allowed to address the body politic in adversarial nations. Little harm and a lot of good might result if the Greeks and Turks talked to each other. And the Cambodians and Vietnamese. And the Iraqis and Iranians. Sticks and stones hurt, but words?

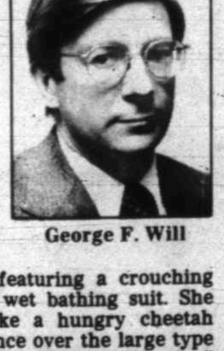
GEORGE F. WILL

'Playboy' enters middle age

CHICAGO — When the French Revolution passed from its first frenzy into a slightly less intense stage, it entered what historians have called the "Thermidor" period, named for the month in the French Revolutionary calendar when Robespierre fell. Judging by Playboy magazine, the sexual revolution has entered its Thermidor period.



George F. Will

The front cover of the September issue features a woman's face and not much else of her. She is demure enough for the cover of Popular Mechanics. But the back cover contains an ad featuring a crouching woman in a wet bathing suit. She stares out like a hungry cheetah ready to pounce over the large type that commands, "Light my Lucky." When the ads of Playboy's back cover carry more sexual wallop than the front cover, the magazine has entered middle age. Time was when Playboy's ethos communicated the message that middle age is a social disease.

In the 1950s the mere mention of Playboy produced sharp intakes of breath and pursing of lips. Today the magazine faces the tricky task of adjusting to altered values that it has been instrumental in altering. The supervisor of this tradition sits in a corner office filled with editorial clutter and overlooking Michigan Avenue's "Magnificent Mile." She is wearing a severe black suit, an electric pink blouse and a cameo brooch that looks Victorian. She is not. Victorian, that is.

Christie Hefner, 32, is slightly older than the magazine that generates $120 million of the $200 million revenues of Playboy Enterprises. Long ago Playboy's founding father decamped from the Chicago headquarters, going to earth in Los Angeles and taking up the arduous business of eating lotuses full-time. His daughter looks as though she dines exclusively on nouvelle-cuisine portions of whatever she eats. What there is of her slender self is fetching, but hers is not the, shall we say, pneumatic style of female form preferred by Playboy readers.

She wants Playboy to become a magazine people will put on the coffee table "next to Forbes." The domestication of Playboy may be evident in the fact that more people now get Playboy by subscription than buy it at newsstands.

She regards the magazine's rabbit logo tolerantly but dismissively as "institutional kitschiness." She hopes to give the magazine an elan suitable for people like her, who "grew up with the world Playboy made." Citing what Kinsey reported about Americans nearly 40 years ago, she argues that the sexual revolution has been more in attitudes than behavior.

In 1948, Kinsey, another Midwestern revolutionary (he taught at Indiana University in Bloomington), published the first volume of his "report." Writing with the cool immersion in detail appropriate to a zoologist, which he was, he showed that Americans were sexually ... well, busy. He seems to have been startled that people were shocked by his statistician's tone of voice when he said things like: It is not surprising that some teen-agers are sexually active, considering that there are 450,000 instances of sexual intercourse among residents of Indiana each week.

But decorousness was in vogue at a time when the New York Times changed an advertisement for "naughty but nice" lingerie to "Paris-inspired — but so nice." And a nightclub advertisement of "50 of the hottest girls this side of hell" became "50 of the most alluring maidens this side of paradise." Four years later, Playboy came hopping along and decorum has not been the same.

Playboy, says Ms. Hefner, was from the start concerned with "whatever lifestyle was called before we called it lifestyle." We called it consumption, which Playboy has treated as a semi-erotic activity. But the most dated aspect of Playboy is its relentlessly liberal politics, which resembles the young Marx as misread by the old Mailer.

Two of the entrepreneurial brainstorms of the postwar world — McDonald's and Playboy — began in Chicago. Both are monuments to monomania — Ray Kroc's focus on one kind of appetite, Hugh Hefner's on another. Why does Chicago loom so large as the incubator of marketing prodigies? Chicago grew to greatness as a railhead and as a butcher of animals that came by rail. Today it is a splendid blend of the elemental and elegant, with perhaps the nation's finest university, art museum and symphony. But McDonald's and Playboy pertain to the less delicate, more universal and insistent imperatives.

Playboy, with its leavening of literature, is like a city in that it has a high ratio of low to elevated concerns — more commerce than cathedrals. To Ms. Hefner's credit, she disdains emulating those magazines that began in emulation of Playboy and now must try to titillate a jaded society that has millions of videocassette players pumping X-rated movies into living rooms.

Poor Penthouse, desperately seeking ways to disregard standards in a society where standards are thin on the ground. Iconoclasm is hard labor when you are ankle deep in the dust of smashed icons.

ART BUCHWALD

Lindbergh had best flight plan!

Traveling is a pleasure instead of an ordeal when you go by air with baby or junior. It is wise to notify your airline ahead of time, however, so they will have certain things aboard for baby's comfort ....

Art Buchwald

If he is a little older, make a game out of acquainting him with the objects around him. By the time he leaves the ground he will feel quite at home. You might take along a favorite toy to keep him busy and add to his feeling of security.

Children love to fly. They enjoy the excitement of boarding the big plane and watching the clouds go by the window. It is an experience they'll remember always and cherish. And so will Mother, because of the time and effort it has saved her in traveling with small fry. — From a pamphlet distributed by the Air Transport Association.

I was reading this pamphlet on a flight across the Atlantic Ocean recently. Standing next to me on the seat, reading over my shoulder, was a 2½-year-old boy who happens to be related to me.

There are certain things I would like to call to the attention of the Air Transport Association at this time. I followed their instructions to a T and it's apparent that the person who wrote the pamphlet has never flown higher than a 30-inch desk.

In the first place, it's not as easy to take along a child's favorite toy as the article would imply. In my case X Jr.'s favorite toy happened to be a three-and-a-half-foot red and yellow stuffed teddy bear. Although Pan Am wanted my child to feel secure they pointed out that all stuffed teddy bears three feet or over took up as much space as a 2½-year-old child and were subject to the same fare. We had to leave the bear at home. As soon as he boarded the plane, X Jr.'s insecurity was apparent.

He refused to buckle his safety belt and tripped the stewardess as she was explaining how to use a life jacket properly. As an afterthought he howled through the whole demonstration and I'm quite sure that if the emergency ever arose there were very few people on the plane who would know what to do.

Once the plane was safely in the air and out of danger, X Jr. decided to fasten his seat belt. It took his mother and his father and a stewardess to get it unfastened.

Children are usually fed first on a plane. In theory this is a good idea, but in practice it works like this. The child, having finished his meal and noticing other passengers are just starting theirs, will wander down the aisle staring at the people while they eat. Few people can stare down a child, and before I got wind of what was happening X Jr. had managed to procure three pieces of cake, a lamb chop and a cup of salad dressing.

Following the article's suggestion, I made a game out of acquainting X Jr. with objects around him. If he pushed the light switch he got one point. If he pushed the buzzer for the stewardess he got three points. If he pulled out the ash tray he got five points, and if he hit the person in front of him he got 15 points. When he received a total of 50 points, he got the spanking of his life.

When a child gets bored with "watching the clouds go by the window" (it usually takes about 30 seconds), he will head for the water fountain. The water fountain to a child is by far the most interesting part of an airplane. Aeronautical engineers, realizing this, have designed the fountains so that the water buttons are out of reach of tiny hands. Few children are daunted by this measure. In X Jr.'s case he stole a woman's jewelry case and someone else's movie camera and a copy of "Andersonville." By piling them up he not only managed to reach the water button, but was also successful in destroying a month's supply of Pan American's paper cups.

The question of whether a parent should let his child wander up and down the aisle during the night or keep him in his seat is something each person must work out in his own conscience.

If you let the child wander you can probably get some sleep — but nobody else on the plane can. At 3 o'clock in the morning X Jr. was serving Life Savers and chewing gum to the other passengers, or so I was told the next morning by several bloodshot-eyed people.

There is no doubt that traveling with a child is a memorable experience that everyone would like to forget.

Lindbergh had the right idea. He flew the Atlantic alone.

Nicaraguan defector: Mass execution by Sandinistas routine

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Nicaraguan defector says the Sandinista government routinely executes suspected political opponents and is able to keep its activities secret by destroying official records and intimidating families of the victims into silence.

Alvaro J. Baldizon Aviles, a former Interior Ministry official, told a news conference Wednesday that thousands have died since the revolution through "individual or mass execution" by Sandinista security forces.

He said not even the Interior Ministry has precise figures on the death toll "because the lists of approval and authorization were burned."

Asked how he knew thousands had died, he said the estimate was an extrapolation. When investigating the murder or disappearance of a single Nicaraguan, he said he sometimes would discover that dozens of others had been killed in the same region.

He said clandestine burial grounds in two northern provinces contain the remains of hundreds of execution victims. Only about 60 of the deaths were reported to the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights "because the families of the others feared they would have the same end as those who had been killed." That same pattern was repeated elsewhere, he said.

Baldizon, 26, said that between July and September 1982, 150 Miskito Indians were executed because of suspected counterrevolutionary tendencies. They were selected from a group of 500 Miskitos who Baldizon said had been arrested, "interrogated and tortured."

He said he became aware of the extent of the Sandinistas' alleged abuses when he was asked by his superiors to investigate complaints lodged by the rights commission.

Nicaraguan defector Alvaro Jose Baldizon Aviles speaks from the State Department in Washington, D.C., Wednesday, with the help of interpreter Barbara Phillips.

AP Laserphoto

Baldizon said his factual accounts were turned over to a special panel, which produced twisted versions of the alleged abuses that invariably absolved the Sandinistas of responsibility.

His charges were disputed by the Nicaraguan Embassy. Francisco Campbell, embassy political counselor, said Baldizon's comments represent "one more desperate maneuver by the administration to distract attention from the case brought by Nicaragua against the United States in the World Court.

"We believe that sound policy must be based on facts and not on absurd and groundless accusations," Campbell said.

In its World Court suit, Nicaragua is accusing the United States of aggression by supporting the Contra rebels in their fight against the Sandinista government.

The Sandinistas have acknowledged that atrocities have taken place in Nicaragua but said the Contras are responsible for the overwhelming majority.

A former rebel leader, Edgar Chamarro, has said that, as a recruiting device, rebel forces routinely kill Sandinista officials and their sympathizers in small towns.

Baldizon painted a particularly unflattering portrait of Interior Minister Tomas Borge. He said Borge, as a means of obtaining sorely needed hard currency for Nicaragua, has engaged in the the trafficking of cocaine to the United States.

He also said Borge maintains two offices, one where he receives journalists and visiting religious groups and another where he carries out his official duties.

In the former office, "there are pictures of poor children, there are crucifixes carved in wood and Bibles," he said. "In his real office where he acts as interior minister...he has pictures of Marx, Engels, Lenin, all the volumes of Das Kapital, of Marxism-Leninism. There is no Bible, no crucifix, no picture of any child."

In private, Borge speaks disparagingly of the religious leaders with whom he meets, calling them "naive" and "useful fools," Baldizon said.

According to the State Department officials, Baldizon's testimony is considered credible because he passed a number of lie detector tests.

NATION in brief

Teen tried in kidnapping

LA PLATA, Md. (AP) — A 14-year-old girl accused of kidnapping a toddler she was baby-sitting and hitching with him to Pittsburgh and Dallas has been ordered held in a juvenile correctional facility until her trial Oct. 7.

Tammy Lynn Giles, of Waldorf, will be held at the state-run Montrose School in Baltimore County following an order Wednesday by Charles County Circuit Judge George W. Bowling.

Miss Giles is charged as a juvenile with kidnapping 21-month-old Michael Justin Fitzgibbon, also of Waldorf, on Aug. 4 and taking him on a cross-country trek that ended Saturday when she surrendered to police in Pittsburgh. The boy was returned to his parents Sunday in Dallas. He was unharmed.

The 10-minute preliminary hearing was closed to the public, but according to spectators who were in the courtroom waiting for other cases, Miss Giles did not enter a plea.

Ten days later after Miss Giles disappeared with the boy, the child was found wandering on a busy street in Dallas, and police turned him over to welfare workers. Despite a nationwide search for the boy, welfare officials returned him to Miss Giles when she claimed him.

Studds: AIDS slighted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even though he labels AIDS research a top administration priority, President Reagan has only spoken out once about the deadly disease, and then only when prompted by reporters, says Rep. Gerry E. Studds, the only acknowledged homosexual in Congress.

"...The president said last night it is one of the top priorities of the last four years," the Massachusetts Democrat said in an interview Wednesday. "Under those circumstances, it is more than a little difficult to imagine why he has never mentioned it once before in public."

"This is a major national public health crisis," Studds said. "There are medical authorities who think it is one of the very worst we have faced in a very long time."

At his news conference Tuesday night, Reagan, responding to reporters' questions, said more than $500 million had been spent to try to find ways of combatting AIDS, a fatal virus which attacks the body's ability to fight disease.

Guru offers olive branch

RAJNEESHPURAM, Ore. (AP) — Indian guru Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh has offered to welcome his wayward personal secretary, Ma Anand Sheela, back into his flock, but says he won't hesitate to turn her over to authorities.

Sheela and about a dozen other top Rajneesh lieutenants left the guru's central Oregon commune over the weekend. Rajneesh accused them of an array of crimes, ranging from a conspiracy to bomb the Wasco County courthouse from the air to electronic eavesdropping.

As Rajneesh held out the olive branch Wednesday to Sheela during his morning discourse and an afternoon news conference, law enforcement officials met with disciples in The Dalles to begin sorting out the accusations.

Veronica is the youngest finalist in the history of the Colorado Lottery and will be spinning the wheel with about a dozen others Sunday, hoping to win the $1,221,282 grand prize.

"People here don't get too excited about things," said Veronica's grandfather, Joe Smith. "But I guess it's pretty good."

State law prohibits people under 18 years of age from buying lottery tickets but Veronica's grandmother, Elsie Springer, bought the entry ticket for her.

Cocaine 'major threat'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cocaine has become a major public health threat, with more than one out of four young adults experimenting with the drug and cocaine-associated deaths tripling in recent years, a top health official says.

A series of studies released by the government Wednesday show cocaine "is one of the most powerfully addictive drugs known," said Dr. Donald Ian MacDonald, head of the federal Alcohol, Drug Abuse and Mental Health Administration.

County forecasts

Midland, Ector, Glasscock, Upton, Reagan, Crane, Gaines, Andrews, Dawson, Borden, Martin and Howard counties: Tonight, a 40 percent chance of thunderstorms with a low in the upper 60s. Southeast wind 5 to 15 mph. Friday, a 50 percent chance of thunderstorms. A high in the mid 80s. Southeast wind 10 to 20 mph.

Sterling, Coke, Irion and Tom Green counties: Tonight, a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms with a low in the low 70s. Southeast wind 5 to 15 mph. Friday, a 40 percent chance of thunderstorms. Cooler with a high in the mid 80s. Southeast wind 10 to 20 mph.

Thunderstorms still forecast

From Staff and Wire Reports

Midlanders may want to keep their raincoats and umbrellas within reach as the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport expect thunderstorms to continue through Friday.

Forecasters are calling for cloudy skies and a 40 percent chance of thunderstorms tonight with a low in the upper 60s. Continued cloudy skies are expected Friday as the possibility of thunderstorms increases to 50 percent. The high will be in the middle 80s. Winds will blow from the southeast at five to 15 mph tonight, increasing to less than 20 mph Friday.

Wednesday's high of 86 was 12 degrees below the record set in 1945. This morning's low was 22 degrees above the 1971 record of 46.

STATE

A minor upper air trough sent thunderstorms rumbling through West Texas Thursday morning, while heavy rainshowers splattered the coast near Bay City and south of Galveston.

Elsewhere, the National Weather Service said it was fair over the coastal plain and East Texas into the Red River Valley but low clouds huddled over south Central Texas and the Hill Country into the Permian Basin.

The heaviest storms were near Seminole and Bownfield and northeast of Panhandle, the weather service said.

A dome of high pressure ridged from the deep south into East Texas and the coastal plains, bringing a light and variable wind. The western half of the state was buffeted by a south wind at 15 to 25 miles an hour, the weather service said.

The forecast for North Texas called for scattered showers and thunderstorms through Friday with lows in the 60s and 70s and highs in the upper 80s and low 90s.

NATION

Rain was widespread across the West and Plains today after heavy thunderstorms rumbled across New Mexico and the Texas Panhandle.

Thunderstorms early today ranged across eastern New Mexico, the Texas Panhandle and the Oklahoma Panhandle into southwest Kansas.

Rainshowers were scattered from western New Mexico across Utah and Wyoming into southern Montana, the western Dakotas and Nebraska Panhandle. Rain also was scattered across southern California and eastern Florida.

Marble-size hail fell near Hobbs, N.M., Wednesday evening and there was minor flooding at Carlsbad, N.M., the National Weather Service said.

MHS looking to stay perfect against Estacado

Big-play Matadors host Air-Bulldog at Lowery

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

LUBBOCK — Unbeaten Midland High takes its highly efficient air attack to Lowery Field here at 8 p.m. Friday to take on the high-octane machine of Lubbock Estacado in the last non-conference football game of the year.

Coach Louis Kelley's Matadors, ranked as the No. 9 Class 4A team in the state, are off to an explosive start and searching to make the Bulldogs a third straight 5A notch in their gun belts.

Estacado owns victories this year over Plainview (14-9) and Big Spring (41-12), both 5A schools. And the Matadors have accomplished the feat despite starting 12 juniors.

"I'm very pleased we're 2-0 at this stage of the season," says Kelley. "We still have a long way to go with 12 juniors starting, but I think they are coming around to where we want them. With the schedule we play, they better age in a hurry."

JUNIOR TAILBACK Edward Walker, who had 228 yards rushing against Big Spring last week, leads the Estacado rushing attack with 252 yards this year. Senior fullback Tyrone Moore has 139 yards in two games while reserve tailback Jimmy Doss, another junior, has 127 yards rushing. They form a potent punch.

"What impresses you about Estacado is its overall team speed," noted MHS coach Doug McCutchen. "They really haven't driven the ball down field this year, but they haven't had to. They may get nothing for two plays, then they bust one for 40 or 60 yards. If we're going to stay on the field with them, we'll have to stop the big play and that may be easier said than done. They do have some burners. They probably have more speed than any team we will face this year."

Midland High Offense

Midland High Defense

Lubbock Estacado Offense

Lubbock Estacado Defense

ASKED IF Estacado's ranking would be a plus for his team, Kelley replied, "We don't think too much about the rankings. We went to the semifinals one year and were never ranked higher than eighth. If you drop a game, you fall about 20 places."

This outing is the last chance for the Bulldogs to hone both the offense and defense since they open District 4-5A play in Big Spring next week.

"This is a big game for us. I'm glad we're playing a tough team this week. We need this kind of test. Andrews was a good test for us and now we have another one. It's going to help us," said McCutchen.

Thus far, the Bulldogs have shown one of the most impressive aerial attacks in West Texas as quarterback Matt Marcum has completed 27 of 50 passes for 423 yards and two touchdowns. The only negative is four interceptions. Split receiver Kenny DeLaGarza has been the main target with 169 yards on 12 catches, owning both TDs. Tight end Bobby Williams has caught seven passes for 134 yards while four other receivers have eight receptions.

With the obvious reason that Marcum has an accurate arm out of the way, one of the key reasons the Bulldogs have shown a highly explosive passing attack is the fact that Marcum hasn't been sacked in two games, despite throwing 50 times.

Guards James Campbell and Marvin Mitchell, tackles Bryan DuBose and Phillip Speight and center Robert Fortune have combined to keep the pressure off Marcum for the most part.

"There is no question that our offensive line has done the job. We didn't do too good a job in one half against Andrews, but Marcum was able to scramble out of some pressure situations. He's much better — faster — at that than he was last year," noted McCutchen. "Still, the offensive line deserves a lot of the credit."

The Bulldogs would like to see a little more production out of the running game, however. Halfback Jake Madrid has 163 yards rushing in two outings, averaging a neat 7.8 yards per carry, but no other MHS runner has over 100 yards rushing.

Defensively, the Bulldogs are a little behind, but have given up nothing big to speak of. It isn't a shutout type of team, but they have made teams work for points. Tackle Steve Pruitt and end Brent Barton were noted for solid defensive efforts against Andrews while tackle Campbell, starting both ways, had a great outing against Lubbock Monterrey.

Mets get needed win over Cubs

Associated Press

Not three months removed from the minor leagues and seasoned by the adversity of a 1-3 streak, 23-year-old right-hander Rick Aguilera has the rest of the season scripted for the second-place New York Mets.

The goal: make up two games and overtake St. Louis — a 7-0 winner Wednesday night over the Phildelphia Phillies — in the National League East.

"We've got to sweep these games, then go on to the Pittsburgh series and sweep," Aguilera said after beating the Chicago Cubs 4-2 Wednesday night. "(This) was a big win for me. But it was a bigger win for the club. Both of us needed it."

While the Mets and Cards were winning, the San Francisco Giants beat the San Diego Padres 9-6, the Houston Astros handed the Los Angeles Dodgers a 7-2 loss, the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Atlanta Braves 7-3, and the Pittsburgh Pirates outlasted the Montreal Expos 10-6 in 11 innings.

The problem for the Mets is that St. Louis keeps winning. The Cards are currently sitting on a seven-game streak, and they extended their lead to two full games Tuesday night by sweeping a doubleheader.

"There's pressure, sure," said Aguilera, who won five of his first seven starts after being called up June 30, then lost three out of four before his six-inning, four-hit victory Wednesday night. "But we've got to stay within ourselves and let it happen."

The Mets wind up the series with Chicago tonight, then entertain the Pirates for three games before a road trip that lasts until the final three games of the season, when Montreal visits Shea Stadium. The road show ends with three games in St. Louis Oct. 1-3.

Ray Knight, hitting just .207 in a frustrating season, drove in the tying and go-ahead runs as the Mets scored three times in the fourth off Cubs left-hander Steve Trout, 8-6.

National League

Cardinals 7, Phillies 0

Bob Forsch, who had back surgery in 1984, threw a three-hitter, his first shutout since a Sept. 26, 1983, no-hitter against Montreal. At one time he thought his baseball career was over, but now he finds himself with an 8-6 record on a first-place team.

"Everybody gets pumped up for every game," he said. "Each game is super-important. But we just go out there and do the job we're capable of doing.

"We have been a consistent club, and consistent is the big word. We don't have super players, but with everybody pulling the wagon, we can go a long way."

Forsch, 8-6, struck out four and walked three in his third complete game of the season. The loss ended a three-game winning streak for John Denny, 11-12.

NL batting leader Willie McGee, now hitting .363, had a double and two singles, drove in a run, scored his 107th run and stole his 48th base.

Astros 7, Dodgers 2

Mike Scott's fifth straight victory helped the Astros extend their winning streak to eight games. Los Angeles, still 6½ games ahead of Cincinnati in the NL West, has lost three of its last four but still needs a combination of 12 victories and Reds losses to clinch.

Many time defending champion Susan Britton chips onto the green during the Midland Women's City golf tournament at Hogan Park. Britton faces Ann Coombes for the title today.

Coombes, Britton gain City finals

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

Forgive Susan Britton if she lacks her usual confidence in her 13th straight title defense in the Midland Women's City Golf Tournament.

For the past 13 years, Britton has gone into the annual tourney the defending champion, defending successfully the last 12. Today, she will make her 13th title defense, this time against Ann Coombes, and Britton hopes it will be her 14th straight city championship. For the first time in that span, however, Britton may be considered the underdog in today's final with the young Coombes, admitting she feels that her reign is over.

"But I'm certainly not going to give it to her," Britton said Wednesday after advancing to the final round of match play with a one-up victory over Mary Robinson. "I do think it's time one of the young kids won it, though. They play a lot and they deserve it. This is the first year that I've not felt confident with my golf game. I guess I deserved a year off.

"I've had some lucky wins before, though. You have to be lucky to win 13 in a row."

COOMBES, WHO is finishing up physical education degree at New Mexico State after completing her four-year athletic eligibility at the Las Cruces school, advanced to the showdown with Britton by way of a 5-3 win over Jo Dickson.

It's her youth and experience at the college level, as well as her play in recent Women's West Texas tournament's, that gives Coombes a fighting chance to stop Britton's long running streak. And she seems to be stroking the ball consistently right now.

"Other than this cold I picked up when I came down here from school, I've been playing some good golf. I've been surprised," said Coombes, who is making her first run at the city title.

In the past, Coombes has been unable to compete in the tournament because of obligations to collegiate tournaments, and before that high school classes at Midland High.

"THE TOURNAMENT has always seemed to be at a bad time for college golfers and high school golfers. It's too bad because it restricts the quality of the field.

"I think maybe it's time for somebody to come down, somebody new maybe, to win.

"Anything can happen in match play, though."

Coombes and Britton have never faced each other on the golf course, and in fact, met for just the first time, at least to Coombes' memory, in qualifying play Monday. Their first match should be one they will both remember.

"I'll actually be relieved when somebody finally beats me," Britton said "It's hard to keep winning year after year. Everyone expects you to hit every good shot all the time.

"Of course, I like to win a lot better than losing. So does everybody."

Championship Flight: Susan Britton, 1-up over Mary Robinson; Ann Coombes, 6-4 over Jo Dickson. Consolation: Marian Spears 2-1 over DeDe Plank; Margaret Vann 1-up over Darla Smith (22 holes).

1st Flight: Betty Clarke, 3-2 over Helen Brant; Sue Campbell 4-3 over Marcia Stanley. Consolation: Sara Seber, 4-3 over Ella Heath; Martha Pritchett, 3-2 over Kay Lawson.

2nd Flight: Pam Camarata, 4-3 over Dorothy Melzer; Jere Anderson, 5-4 over Jean Elkin. Consolation: Carolyn Henry, 2-1 over Florence Larah; Jean Banks over Rachel Lyman.

3rd Flight: Phyllis Maxwell, 1-up over Joyce Cramer; Shirley Rosignol, 2-up over Bobbie Fischer. Consolation: Marge Tope, bye. June McGill 3-1 over Edie Stahl.

4th Flight: Treva Gieb, 2-1 over Nelda Johnson; Marilynn Philpy, 2-1 over Liz Robinson. Consolation: Mattie Chenowith, bye. Jo Ladaga, 6-4 over Nancy Cox.

5th Flight: Ginny Piette, 4-3 over Toni McMillan; Jean Connor, 5-4 over Maymie Calloway. Consolation: Maureen Phillips, bye; Cleva Brown, bye.

Walker overcomes handicap

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

At first glance, you might think everything comes easy for Kenny Walker of Crane.

He is 6-4, 212 pounds, runs the 40-yard dash in 4.5 seconds, bench presses close to 400 pounds and has a vertical leap of 39 inches.

Beyond that, bearing a striking resemblance to the Incredible Hulk, he terrorizes opposing quarterbacks like a wolf in the chicken coop. He is described by many as the best natural athlete in the state, he is certainly one of the most sought after by college recruiters.

But as easy as things have come for him on the football field, it has been just as hard off it.

Kenny Walker is deaf, has been since birth. Because he has never had the luxury of hearing the words he speaks and lip-reads, he speaks in a slurred, halting tone that is difficult for the uninitiated to understand. Because of his limited vocabulary, he speaks of things as being either "easy" or "hard." His handicap belies the intelligence and sensitivity that he expresses in one-on-one communication.

"HE'S AN exceptionally intelligent kid," says Rickey White, head coach of the Golden Cranes. "He's a good student, he passes everything in our mainstream program."

Since moving to Crane for his sophomore year of high school from Denver, Colo., Walker has overcome the shock of his first experience with a public high school. He gets along well with his teachers, coaches and fellow students, communicating with his quick smile and flashing eyes. He reads lips and uses hand signals. His teachers speak into a microphone connected to a hearing aid that supplies him with 10 percent hearing in his left ear.

It was a shy, sheltered, but physically imposing, young kid that White took under his wing when Walker came out for football in 1983. In three years, White and his coaching staff have helped Walker come out of his shell. "We can't get him to shut-up sometimes, now," White says.

WHITE HIMSELF has a hard time keeping quiet when listing the accomplishments of his prize pupil. And what an impressive list.

In track, Walker displays the athletic skills that have college football scouts all over the Southwest and Big Eight Conferences drooling. He long jumps nearly 24 feet, runs a 22.4 200-yard dash "and if he could hear the gun, he'd probably take state in the 100."

On the football field, Walker uses cat-quick instincts to react to the ball as a defensive end. As a wide-out on offense, his assignment is relayed to him by a hand signal and he moves off the line when he sees his linemen move.

"I like to tackle," Walker says proudly. "If I get to the quarterback once, I can make him scared the rest of the game. I helped cause two interceptions against Big Lake."

Tigers keep Niekro from claiming 300th victory

Associated Press

Phil Niekro wants to win his 300th game. His New York Yankees want to win any game.

"I've won 299 and everybody's making a big deal out of one more ballgame," Niekro said Wednesday night after failing in his second bid to reach the milestone as the Yankees lost 5-2 to the Detroit Tigers.

The setback came at an inopportune time for both Niekro and the Yankees.

New York saw its losing streak reach a season-high six games and missed a second straight chance to gain ground on American League East-leading Toronto, which lost 13-1 in Boston.

American League

The second-place Yankees remained five games behind the Blue Jays, whose magic number for clinching the division moved down another notch to 13 despite two consecutive losses in Boston.

"We'd better put everything in perspective, especially this time of year when we're five behind Toronto," Niekro said.

Niekro was trying to become the 18th pitcher in major-league history to win 300 games. He had fallen short in his last start, losing to Toronto 3-2 on Friday the 13th.

Red Sox 13, Blue Jays 1

Rich Gedman hit for the cycle and drove in seven runs, powering Boston over Toronto.

"You want the best team from your division to win," said Gedman. "If the Blue Jays are the best team, by all means, let them win it. But let them fight for it."

The Red Sox pounded out 18 hits and beat the Blue Jays for the sixth time in six meetings at Fenway Park this season.

Gedman hit a solo home run — his 18th of the year — in the third inning, had a three-run triple in the fourth, added an RBI infield single in the fifth that made it 10-0, and had a two-run double in the seventh. He became the first Boston player to hit for the cycle since Dwight Evans did it on June 28, 1984.

Wade Boggs, the leading hitter in the majors, went 4-for-5 and raised his average to .372. Jim Rice and Bill Buckner had three hits apiece.

Mariners 6, Royals 0

Bill Swift, Roy Thomas and Ed Nunez combined on a three-hitter to help Seattle pitch consecutive shutouts for the first time in its history.

The loss, coupled with California's victory, cut Kansas City's lead in the AL West to one game.

The fifth-place Mariners, who blanked the Royals 7-0 on Tuesday night, have beaten Kansas City eight of nine times this season.

Swift, Thomas and Nunez gave up one hit apiece. Swift pitched the first three innings and left with a groin strain, and Thomas, 7-0, relieved and got the victory.

Angels 9, White Sox 3

Don Sutton won the 295th game of his career and continued to pay dividends for California.

Sutton, acquired from Oakland in a trade Sept. 10, is 2-0 for the Angels and 15-8 overall. He pitched 6 2-3 innings and gave up three runs on seven hits.

Orioles 4, Brewers 2

Fred Lynn, rebounding from a torn ankle ligament that disabled him for 21 games, homered for the second straight night to help Baltimore past Milwaukee.

Lynn's 21st home run of the season capped a two-run rally in the sixth inning that gave the Orioles a 3-2 lead.

Twins 4, Rangers 3

Minnesota's Ken Schrom beat Charlie Hough of Texas for the third time in three meetings this year.

Schrom, 9-12, pitched six innings and helped the Twins win their fifth straight game. Hough, who pitched a complete game, fell to 14-16.

Tim Teufel's two-run double broke a 1-1 tie in the sixth inning.

A's 1, Indians 0

Jose Rijo and Jay Howell teamed on a seven-hitter and Dave Collins' pinch-single drove home Oakland's run in the eighth inning.

Rijo, 4-3, gave up seven hits in seven innings. Howell set down the last six Cleveland batters for his 26th save.

WALKER

LAST SEASON his developing skills and defensive prowess drew the attention of local media, often causing Walker to clam up and let White do the talking for him.

"I feel more comfortable this year...last year was confusing for me," Walker said. "Sometimes I just didn't want to talk much. I would just think about something else while they were asking me questions."

But in his senior season, Walker seems to have dedicated himself to cooperating with outsiders, and making himself into the most feared defensive player in West Texas, if not the state.

"After basketball last year, I started working out with the other kids in off-season (football) workouts," he says, with some interpretation from White. "They were all ahead of me and could lift more (weight) than I could. It embarrassed me, I worked hard to catch up."

HE NOT only caught up, he passed every kid on the Crane squad, working out every day during the summer to bulk up for his final high school season. It seems to have worked, Walker now tosses offensive lineman around like so many toothpicks on his way into the opposing backfield.

Walker has come full cycle since his timid introduction to football as a sophomore. White teases Walker about being a "sissy" in his first season.

Walker first shakes his head no, then, laughing, admits, "it made me nervous. When I would rush in and they'd block down on me, here (he points to his mid-section), I would just stop and say 'Forget it.'"

"He didn't know he was supposed to keep trying after he was blocked," laughs White.

NOW WITH Walker leading the way, White hopes to return the Golden Cranes to the playoffs, where they made it to the quarterfinals in '83.

"When we play in the district, everyone will be ready. I like to play the top teams and accept the challenge, it makes us better. I feel like the Cranes can go to the playoffs and win two games, maybe more."

With Walker doing what he pleases with opposing offenses, the Cranes just may do that.

But, if there is one thing Walker likes to do better than sack the quarterback, it is dunk a basketball, averaging more than four dunks a game last season for Crane, earning his second straight District 7-3A MVP award.

"I love to dunk," he admits, his smile dancing around his face. "Besides, football hurts more."

But as a 6-4 post player, his basketball skills would likely keep him in a smaller school. His football skills are definitley major college material.

"WHATEVER HE decides, if he is lucky enough to be offered a scholarship, which it looks like he will, Kenny is going to have to go to a school that can help him. Not just one where he will help them," White said.

Wherever he goes, with Walker's character and ability, it's hard to say who will be getting the better end of the bargain.

Scott, whose previous best season was 10-6 in 1983, improved to 18-7 as he scattered four hits over six innings.

Pinch-hitter Burt Pena, batting for Scott, delivered a sacrifice fly to right to ignite a four-run Houston rally in the seventh that broke a 2-2 tie.

Giants 9, Padres 6

Bob Brenly and Rob Deer homered to give new Manager Roger Craig his first victory with San Francisco.

Brenly hit his 18th homer, a two-run shot, in the first and Deer led off the second with his sixth home run of the year.

San Diego, the defending National League champion, dropped under 500 with its 13th loss in 17 games this month.

Carmelo Martinez hit his 19th homer for San Diego.

Reds 7, Braves 3

Nick Esasky, happy to be playing in his hometown, drove in four runs, two of them on a double as the Reds scored four times in the first inning. Esasky also homered in the eighth.

"When I come here I always have a relaxed feeling," said Esasky, whose home is in the Atlanta suburb of Marietta, Ga. "And since I've always hit so well, I go to the plate each time with confidence I can do it again."

Dale Murphy hit his major-league-leading 37th homer in the bottom of the first and reached the 100-RBI mark for the fourth straight season.

Pirates 10, Expos 6

Tony Pena's three-run homer in the 11th inning, his second home run of the game, sealed it for the Pirates, who had already gone up by one when Sid Bream, who also homered in the game, hit an RBI double.

Montreal's Hubie Brooks had three doubles and drove in five runs, raising his RBI total for the year to 89. Brooks' third double brought in Terry Francona in the eighth to tie the game after Pittsburgh had overcome a four-run Expo advantage.

BULLDOGS

Strong safety Ben Grimes has produced interceptions in both of the Bulldog victories.

ESTACADO HAS not gone to the air quite as much as the Bulldogs, but junior quarterback O.T. Thomas has completed 10 of 21 attempts for 139 yards. He hasn't been intercepted this year and has tossed two touchdown passes to split end Richard Ross, a senior who has caught three passes for 60 yards.

Estacado is making its 1985 home debut Friday at Lowrey Field, beating both 5A foes on the road. However, Kelley isn't sure if that's an advantage for his Matadors.

"I don't want to give the wrong impression because we are thrilled about playing at home, but at the same time, I'm a little concerned about it because we've seemed to be a better road team over the past few years."

A&M's Murray not answering

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

COLLEGE STATION — Texas A&M Coach Jackie Sherrill put on his best "open and candid" look and said he'd answer all questions about allegations that quarterback Kevin Murray had received illegal payments from an alumnus involving a lease car.

Only Sherrill said he didn't know much.

"I'm going to be very open and candid about this," said Sherrill, who then explained that he had reported the allegations to the university, its lawyers, the Southwest Conference and to the NCAA.

"I want it clear that I won't be involved in any of the proceedings," Sherrill said. "I've done what I'm supposed to do."

Murray was less informative. He sat beside Sherrill briefly at a Wednesday news conference and read a brief statement.

"I have decided not to talk to anyone (media) at this time," Murray said. "I will be open with university officials, and when this is over I'll be happy to talk with you."

Then the player left the room without commenting on specific allegations, made by sources of Dallas television station WFAA.

The station said it had a copy of a 36-month lease agreement on a car signed by Murray with cash payments made by Aggie alumnus Rod Dockery.

Bears, Vikes to show Black and Blue is back

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — With both the Chicago Bears and Minnesota Vikings off to good starts, Thursday night's nationally televised National Football League matchup could be a blast from the past for these "Black and Blue Division" rivals.

"I've always thought that the (National Football Conference) Central Division was a great division," Chicago Coach Mike Ditka said. "I think it got kind of a bum rap over the years."

The last few seasons, the NFC Central has been won by teams finishing barely above the break-even mark. Chicago was 10-6 in winning the division last year. The Vikings were a dismal 3-13.

The teams in the NFC Central "have always played tough football," Ditka said. "It became known as the 'Black and Blue Division.' But it came down to, 'Well, they play hard, but they don't know what they're doing,' which is kind of silly because there are a lot of great football teams in the division."

Both teams bring 2-0 records into the 7 p.m. CDT game at the Metrodome.

The Bears will be without one of their offensive stars. Quarterback Jim McMahon, who suffered a stiff neck and muscle spasms in his upper back during last Sunday's 20-7 victory over New England, did not practice Wednesday and will not start, team spokesman Ken Valdiserri.

Steve Fuller, who led the Bears into the NFC title game in place of an injured McMahon, will get the nod. Running back Walter Payton, the NFL's all-time leading rusher, is a probable starter despite a rib injury.

Fuller and Payton will be facing the Vikings' ball-hawking defense, which leads the league with a dozen takeaways.

"We have cycles in sports, just like in other things," said Minnesota Coach Bud Grant. "If you go out there and tell everybody to try to tackle ... for a fumble, it would never happen. You just have to be aggressive and gang tackle."

Cornerback Rufus Bess and safety Joey Browner have been the keys to the Vikings' victories over San Francisco and Tampa Bay. Browner injured his shoulder against Tampa but is expected to play Thursday.

One Bear who was unimpressed with Minnesota's early showing is Dennis McKinnon, Chicago's top pass receiver.

"If we play our kind of football, if we get up on them early, it won't really be a match," McKinnon said Monday at Chicago's media luncheon. "Even though they're 2-0, I don't think they're as good as their record says."

The Bears' "46" defense sacked opposing quarterbacks an NFL record 72 times last year. Eleven of those came in a 16-7 victory over Minnesota.

"They squeeze everything down the inside and blitz the hell out of it," said Grant, who added that Chicago's main man is Mike Singletary, "the best middle linebacker in football today."

Tommy Kramer will try to withstand the charge. The Vikings' oft-injured quarterback last faced the Bears in 1982, when he threw five touchdown passes in Minnesota's 35-7 victory.

"I burned that film," Ditka said. "He put on a clinic. If we don't put pressure on him ... it's going to be a long night."

Discounting his trip-up in the San Francisco game, Kramer has not been sacked this season.

"A lot of times you say, 'Tommy, that was a terrible pass,'" Grant said. "But it's a semi-concious effort to get rid of the ball. And we throw a lot of short routes."

Grant said Kramer would do more of the same against the sack-happy Bears.

"Chicago's got eight sacks," he said. "That's a more viable thing to talk about than the fumbles we cause."

Dollar climbs

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar continued to climb in early European trading Thursday as dealers predicted a moderately good U.S. economic growth estimate to be published Friday. Gold prices were mixed.

In Tokyo, where trading ends before Europe's business day begins, the dollar rose to a closing 242.53 Japanese yen from Wednesday's 242.05. Later, in London, it was quoted at 242.48 yen.

Other dollar rates at mid-morning, compared with late Wednesday:

—2.9160 West German marks, up from 2.8940

—2.3975 Swiss francs, up from 2.3807

—8.8850 French francs, up from 8.8275

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $314.40 a troy ounce, compared with late Wednesday's $314.30. At mid-morning Thursday, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $315.90.

In Zurich, the bid price was $315.25, down from $316.50 late Wednesday.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold rose 22 cents to close at a bid $316.37.

In New York Wednesday, gold fell $1.70 to close at $314.90.

U.S. said to be tightening Libyan oil imports

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration is preparing to crack down on imports of Libyan oil products, an official said Tuesday.

Assistant Secretary of State William L. Ball III, told three oil state congressmen that a ban on Libyan crude imports needs to be tightened to prevent Libya from shipping refined products into the U.S.

The ban on Libyan oil was imposed because of that country's support of "international terrorism, subversion and other activities contrary to the norms of international behavior," Ball said.

In a Tuesday meeting with Democratic Reps. Albert Bustamante, San Antonio, Texas; Jack Brooks, Beaumont, Texas, and Mike Synar, Tulsa, Okla., Ball pointed out some "practical problems" that have so far delayed the amendment of the existing crude oil ban.

Brooks, the chairman of the House Government Operations Committee, and committee members Bustamante and Synar, had complained earlier this month that Libya was circumventing the import ban. They provided details of two recent, major shipments from Libya.

Bustamante believes Libyan imports hurt Mexico's sales of oil products to the U.S., a major trading partner and "good neighbor." Brooks and Synar represent districts in which major oil refineries are located.

Ball acknowledged that some Libyan refined oil products are slipping through the ban. Until now, the administration has attempted to stop it by trying to persuade U.S. importers not to buy such products.

"We have been devoting a great deal of effort to sending a proposal forward to the president soon," Ball wrote the congressmen.

In addition to the problem of issuing an enforceable ban, Ball said, "recent pressures from some in the U.S. refining industry have raised concerns . . . that a ban on Libyan product could be interpreted as the beginning of a move by the administration to restrict all imports of refined petroleum products."

This would not be the case, Ball said. "A ban on Libyan refined product imports would be a limited, non-protectionist measure designed exclusively to preserve the existing ban on crude oil.

"When we inform our allies of the ban, we will urge them to take similar steps," he added.

Brooks said he is pleased that the State Department has responded to his and his colleagues' concerns and said he will monitor the President's actions.

Shell pulls out of block near Florida

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Shell Offshore Inc. has plugged and abandoned a second exploration well and doesn't plan to drill again in a nine-square-mile area of the Gulf off the Florida Panhandle, a spokesman says.

The action could mean that Shell and Amoco Production Co., which jointly bid $31.8 million for drilling rights in Block 160, have lost a costly gamble. It was the most ever paid for any block in the eastern Gulf of Mexico.

"We do not have plans to drill another well on Block 160 at this time," Jimmy B. Fox, a spokesman at Shell's headquarters in New Orleans, said Tuesday.

Fox was asked if the capping meant the second well was a dry hole. He said he wasn't permitted to characterize the well, abandoned last month, in any way.

If it was dry, it would be the latest of more than a dozen non-producing wells drilled off the Panhandle since 1972.

It also could make Shell and other oil companies less enthusiastic about other drilling sites off the Panhandle and Florida's west coast that the federal government plans to lease in the future.

Block 160 is about 80 miles southeast of Pensacola and due south of Destin in what is known as the Destin Dome, an arched formation in the earth's crust that is a potential trap for oil and gas deposits.

Shell was the first company to complete drilling in new areas put up for lease last year, but others now are sinking wells or plan to do so.

Drilling is allowed only in 900,000 acres of the eastern Gulf. But the Reagan administration wants to open all 57 million acres to oil and gas exploration.

Syd Verinder, environmental specialist with Minerals Management Service, a federal agency that oversees offshore exploration, said Shell reported its latest well was plugged and abandoned at a depth of 16,957 feet.

Shell's first well, abandoned in July, was characterized as failing to produce gas or oil in "paying quantities," Verinder said.

Fox said Shell has moved its drilling rig out of the eastern Gulf.

Foreign oil imports fall; housing starts up

Associated Press

U.S. imports of petroleum products are down 10.2 percent for the first eight months of the year as companies use up existing stocks in expectation of further declines in oil prices, the American Petroleum Institute says.

Meanwhile, Saudi Arabia has cut the price of its oil, U.S. housing starts are up and construction of new homes and apartments also rise.

Energy Secretary John Herrington said Wednesday that Saudi Arabia has executed contracts effectively cutting the price of its oil below the official $28-per-barrel OPEC level.

"We know of three contracts that appear to have been executed and one in negotiation," Herrington said. "Certainly the action is significant, but I'm not sure that it is determinative yet."

The reduction only brings the Saudi price down $2 or $3 to what other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries have been charging recently, he told reporters.

Also in Washington, the Commerce Department said new housing construction rose 6.2 percent in August, its best gain in five months and a reversal of a 3.2 percent decline from June to July.

Construction of new homes and apartments rose to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.75 million units in August, the biggest increase in housing activity since a 14.7 percent March advance.

For the first eight months of the year, construction starts totaled 1.18 million units. That is 4 percent below the pace set in 1984 when starts reached 1.75 million homes.

Herrington's remarks on Saudi oil prices were the first confirmation by a government official that Saudi Arabia had negotiated new supply contracts.

The Middle East Economic Survey said Monday that Saudi Arabia had negotiated new supply contracts with Exxon Corp., Mobil Corp. and Texaco Inc. The oil newsletter, published in Cyprus, said the Saudis were negotiating with Shell Oil Co. for a similar arrangement. The contracts, effective Oct. 1, would boost Saudi production from 2.5 million barrels per day to 3.5 million.

Officials of the four oil companies have declined to comment.

Herrington dismissed suggestions by some analysts that the Saudi action could trigger a dramatic drop in crude oil prices to as low as $15 to $18 per barrel. "I don't see anything percipitous or volatile at this point. What you're looking at is a gradual lowering of oil prices," he said.

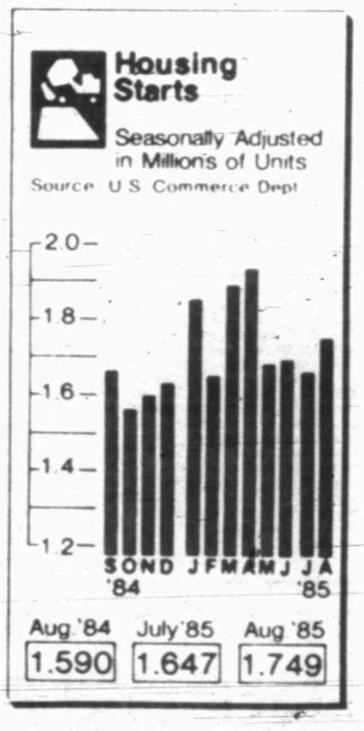
The American Petroleum Institute said petroleum inventories in the United States at the end of August were 1.0243 billion barrels, down 4.1 percent from levels of August 1984.

Imports averaged 4.645 million barrels a day in August, against 4.864 million a year earlier.

From January through August, imports averaged 4.719 million barrels a day, accounting for 30.2 percent of U.S. oil consumption. A year earlier, imports averaged 5.253 million barrels a day, 33.1 percent of consumption.

In other economic developments Wednesday:

—Net farm income could edge up slightly from a previous estimate but still be far short of last year, the Agriculture Department said. The USDA Economic Research Service said 1985 net farm income could be in the range of $23 billion to $27 billion.



House committee okays billions in oil offshore revenues

Los Angeles Times —
Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — The House Interior Committee narrowly approved a plan Wednesday that would give West Coast and Gulf states billions of dollars in disputed offshore oil revenue, as well as a share of future federal oil payments.

Under the legislation, which is far more generous to the states than a plan advanced by the administration, California would receive $375 million this fiscal year, $225 million over the next several years and several hundred million dollars more in later years.

In a reverberation of an ongoing battle over future oil and gas drilling, the legislation also would require Interior Secretary Donald P. Hodel to give governors of coastal states substantially more clout in leasing decisions.

"California and other coastal states were promised very substantial benefits from offshore oil development, and the federal government has reneged," Rep. George Miller, D-Calif., said after the vote. "The bill we approved will compensate California for our natural resources and the impact of outer continental shelf development."

The legislation, approved 21 to 17, attempts to resolve a seven-year-old dispute over the amount of revenue Gulf and Pacific coast states should receive from federal leases bordering on state waters.

While the states have jurisdiction only over waters within three miles of their shores, they have long contended that they should share in revenue produced from oil drilled in federal waters but actually drawn from reserves lying under state waters.

Oil and gas companies pay the government for the right to lease in federal waters. In addition, royalties are derived from the profits earned from the oil and gas that is produced.

Congressional budget committees decided last spring, with the administration's consent, to give seven coastal states about 27 percent of $5.8 billion in offshore oil revenues that had been set aside pending settlement of the dispute.

The new plan, while distributing the existing money, also stipulates that future revenues will be divided and distributed along the same lines. Proposed by Rep. Jerry Huckaby, D-La., it first failed on a tie vote and then passed by four votes.

The committee rejected by one vote an administration plan, introduced by Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., to limit the states' share of royalties.

Both the Huckaby and Udall bills apply to a federal zone three to six miles from shore, and both would give states a share of bonus and rent money from leases in that area.

The two bills differ over royalties: Huckaby's would give states 27 percent of royalties from all federal leases in the zone, even if they lie only partially in it; Udall would have limited states to royalties from leases that actually draw oil and gas from pools under state waters.

Opponents of the Huckaby measure complained that it would deprive the deficit-ridden federal government of needed funds while giving states money earned from oil and gas that is not located in state waters.

Texaco asks for instructed verdit against PennzoilCo.

HOUSTON (AP) — Pennzoil Co. rested its case Wednesday in its $15 billion lawsuit against rival oil company Texaco Inc., prompting Texaco to ask State District Judge Anthony J.P. Farris for an instructed verdict against Pennzoil.

"The evidence before the court at the conclusion of Pennzoil's case proves conclusively that there was no valid and binding contract with which Texaco could have interfered," Texaco said in its motion. "In the absence of a binding contract, Pennzoil's claim of tortious interference fails as a matter of law."

In the suit, now in its 12th week of trial, Pennzoil contends that when Texaco acquired Getty Oil last year, it induced Getty to breach an earlier agreement to merge with Pennzoil. Texaco has denied the charge, saying Pennzoil and Getty never had a valid agreement.

Pennzoil's requested damages would amount to $7.5 billion in actual damages and $7.5 billion in punitive damages, or the equivalent of the 1 billion barrels of oil and gas that Pennzoil believes it would have acquired in the merger.

Farris said he would rule on the Texaco motion Thursday.

Texaco attorney W. Robert Brown said evidence shows Pennzoil did not have a binding contract with Getty Oil Co., the Sarah C. Getty Trust and the J. Paul Getty Museum. In addition, Brown said, the alleged contract was illegal because it violated Securities and Exchange Commission regulations and was therefore unenforceable.

Without a binding contract, Pennzoil has no cause of action, he said.

"That dog won't hunt," Pennzoil attorney James Kronzer said, responding to Texaco claims.

Texian Inn offers non-smoking rooms

Manager says rooms 'great success'

From Staff Reports

When the Texian Inn, 4108 N. Big Spring, opened two months ago it brought some new amenities to Midland such as two phones per room, free local calls and remote controls for television sets.

One of the bolder innovations, however, is the firm's non-smoking section, which comprises about half the hotel's 115 rooms.

While other hotels offer non-smoking rooms, company president Jerry Kimbrough said he doesn't think they're as serious as his chain.

Kimbrough said he believes the 50-50 ratio is practical. "I was interested in Muse Air, a non-smoking airline, recently saying it's okay to smoke now. The truth lies somewhere between smoking and non-smoking."

He noted that there were some totally non-smoking inns that didn't succeed.

His idea, however, has been a great success. "I've seen situations where a couple - a smoker and a non-smoker - stay in a non-smoking room. The smoker will go outside and have a cigarette, then go back inside. There haven't been any problems."

Kimbrough sees a trend in the non-smoking areas, adding that he thinks it's part of a cultural trend. "Habits are changing. First people smoked nothing but pipes, then they smoked cigars, then it was cigarettes. Now there are more and more non-smokers. When Miller came out with their Light beer, people thought it was a good thing."

The company's non-smoking area, Kimbrough said, has attracted some new guests, and reinforced others' decision to stay there.

Another reason for the positive response, he added, was that the rooms are not 'remakes'. They start out smoke-free, he said, because converting a room doesn't always work.

"The smoke gets into the carpet, the air conditioning system. It's just never totally smoke-free."

The non-smoking rooms actually cost a little less to maintain, Kimbrough said, because there are no ashtrays to buy or clean, and the rooms are easier to keep fresh.

The non-smoking section began, Kimbrough said, because the company tries to meet the needs of its guests, providing what they want.

OIL & GAS REPORT

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Eddy discovery flows 130 barrels

From Staff Reports

SURE ENERGY has completed the No. 1 Connie "C" State, a Delaware discovery surrounded by production in the Millman East field of Eddy County, New Meico.

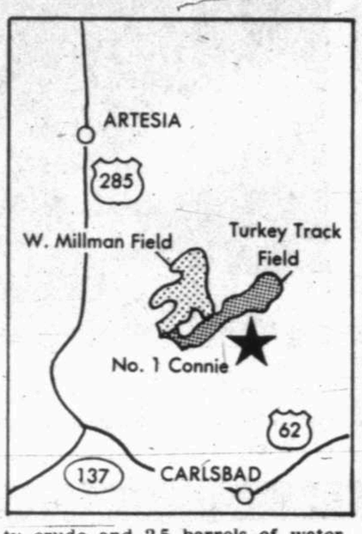
The well potentialed to flow 130 barrels of 40 gravity crude, 100 Mcfd and 141 barrels of water on a 16/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 400 psi. Gas-oil ratio is 769:1.

Production is through perforations 3,336 to 3,351 ft., which were acidized with 1,500 gallons of 15 percent HCL acid and fractured with 20,000 gallons gel and 55,000 lbs. sand.

Scheduled as a 3,500 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to that depth, where 5 1/2 inch casing was set, and plugged back to 3,472 ft.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 3,357 ft., include Salt at 415, Base Salt at 796, Seven Rivers at 1,240, Queen at 1,880, and the Delaware at 2,866 ft. Pay was topped at 3,336 ft.

Location is 1,980 ft. from north and east lines of Section 25, T19s, R28e.



Crockett discovery pumps 72 barrels oil

The Hoover field of Crockett County has gained San Andres production with completion of J. CLEO THOMPSON, Dallas, No. 1 University "29-11".

The well potentialed to pump 72 barrels of 32 gravity crude and 16 barrels of water through perforations 1,999 to 2,058 ft. The interval was acidized with 1,000 gallons of acid. Gas-oil ratio is 278:1.

Total depth was 7,756 ft., and plugged back depth was 2,570 ft. with 8 5/8 inch casing set at 2,919 ft.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 2,708 ft., include the San Andres at 1,980 ft., Strawn at 7,166, Detrital at 7,413, Devonian at 7,447, Silurian at 7,536, and the Simpson at 7,726 ft.

Location is 1,320 ft. from south and west lines of Section 11, Block 29, ULS survey, 25 miles west of Ozona.

Lea County discovery tested for 38 barrels

A Bone Spring discovery has been completed in Lea County by CURRY RESOURCES.

The No. 1 Sedco "21" State potentialed to pump 38 barrels of 41 gravity crude and 2.5 barrels of water through perforations 8,560 to 10,294 ft. The producing interval was acidized with 29,000 gallons of acid.

Drilled to 11,875 ft., the operator set 9 5/8 inch casing set at 12,000 ft.

On ground elevation of 3,485.5, ft., formation tops include Anhydrite at 3,250 ft., Salt at 3,600, Base Salt at 4,370, Delaware at 5,108, Bone Spring at 8,648, and the Wolfcamp at 11,666 ft. Pay was topped at 8,560 ft.

Location is 1,750 ft. from north and 1,980 ft. from east lines of Section 21, T23s, R34e.

Morrow strike tested to flow 8.2 Mmcfd

A Morrow gas discovery, approximately seven miles southwest of the Rock Tank field of Eddy County, and a mile south and slightly west and a mile north of two other wildcats, has been finaled by CITIES SERVICE OIL & GAS CORP.

The No. 1 Federal "AC" was potentialed for a calculated absolute open flow of 8.2 Mmcfd on various chokes with a flowing tubing pressure of 2,318 psi. Production is through perforations 10,202 to 10,234 ft., which had been acidized with 5,000 gallons of 7.5 percent acid.

Scheduled as an 11,000 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 10,707 ft. and plugged back to 10,383 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 10,426 ft.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 4,416 ft., include the Bone Springs at 4,865 ft., Dean at 7,082, Wolfcamp at 7,407, Cisco at 8,435, Canyon at 8,763, Strawn at 9,202, Atoka at 9,516, Morrow B at 10,202, Morrow A at 10,374, and the Barnett at 10,546 ft. Pay was topped at 10,202 ft.

Location is 1,797 ft. from south and 1,525 ft. from west lines of Section 35, T23s, R23e.

Cities Service has staked two other wildcats, the No. 1 Federal "AF", a 9,000 ft. wildcat, about a mile north of the discovery, and the No. 1 Federal "ACO" about a mile south.

Runnels recompletion pumps 39 barrels oil

A recompetion in Runnels County has yielded a Home Creek discovery in the Bubba field.

PLEXUS PETROLEUM CO., Snyder, re-entered and plugged back the No. 1 Fred Spreen, producer in the Gray formation of the field, and potentialed the well to pump 39 barrels of 39 gravity crude and 63 barrels of water through perforations 2,374 to 2,378 ft. The interval was acidized with 500 gallons of acid.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 1,742 ft., include the Cook Sand at 1,590 ft., Serratt at 1,890, Home Creek Lime at 2,340, Gray Sand at 3,100, and the Ellenburger at 3,770 ft.

Location is 467 ft. from north and west lines of Section 107, block 1, GH&H survey, five miles south of Talpa.

The well was originally completed Nov. 10, 1982 as a Gray gas discovery, potentialed for a calculated absolute open flow of 1.2 Mmcfd through perforations 3,100 to 3,108 ft. It was reclassified Oct. 24, 1984 as an oil well, pumping 19 barrels of 39 gravity crude from the same perforations.

Pennsylvanian strike tested for 4 barrels

TENNECO OIL CO. has completed the No. 1 Plains SL "19", a Pennsylvanian discovery surrounded by production in the Race Track field of Chaves County.

The well potentialed to flow 4 barrels of 61 gravity crude, 867 Mcfd and three barrels of water ona 15/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 646 psi.

Production is through perforations 6,598 to 6,632 ft., with no treatment recorded.

Planned as a 7,000 ft. explorer, the discovery was drilled to 7,115 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set, and plugged back to 7,070 ft.

On ground elevation of 3,760.4 ft., the well topped the Yates at 430 ft., Queen at 1,045, San Andres at 1,565, Glorieta at 2,760, Tubb at 4,240, Abo at 5,025, Wolfcamp at 5,900, Atoka at 6,460, Mississippian at 6,655, and the Devonian at 6,785 ft. Pay was topped at 6,598 ft.

Location is 380 ft. from north and 2,200 ft. from east lines of Section 19, T10s, R28e.

Two gas discoveries finaled in McCulloch

Two gas discoveries have been finaled in McCulloch County by W.J. WHITT, Moran.

The No. 3 Fred Wolff potentialed for a calculated absolute open flow of 1.7 Mmcfd through perforations 890 to 898 ft., natural production.

Total depth was 1,400 ft. with 4 1/2 inch casing set at the plugged back depth of 981 ft.

The well topped the Caddo Lime at 865 ft., Smithwick Shale at 1,100, and the Marble Falls Lime at 1,245 ft.

Location is 500 ft. from north and 700 ft. from east lines of Section 1, BS&F survey, Abstract 171, five miles northeast of Fife.

The second gas discovery, the No. 8 Fred Wulff, potentialed for a calculated absolute open flow of 1 Mmcfd through perforations 983 to 897 ft., natural production.

Total depth was 2,630 ft., with 4 1/2 inch casing set at the plugged back depth of 1,026 ft.

Formation tops include the Caddo Lime at 730 ft., Smithwick Shale at 900, and the Marble Falls at 1,015 ft.

Location is 1,200 ft. from north and 1,500 ft. from west lines of Section 5,Block OO, James B. Parker survey, Abstract 1,498, five miles northeast of Fife.

Strawn gas discovery tested for 500 Mcfd

Crockett County has gained a Strawn gas discovery, a rank wildcat located approximately three and a half miles west of the Ozona field.

DELTA CORP. potentialed the No. 1 Childress for a calculated absolute open flow of 500 Mcfd through perforations 8,513 to 8,353 ft. Delta acidized with interval with 8,000 gallons of acid and fractured with 40,000 gallons of gel and 80,000 lbs. sand.

Permitted as a 9,000 ft. test, the well was drilled to 8,840 ft., where 4 1/2 inch casing is set, and plugged back to 8,380 ft.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 2,534 ft., include the San Andres at 1,098 ft., Spraberry at 5,086, Wolfcamp at 5,152, Canyon B at 6,009, Strawn at 8,311, and the Ellenburger at 8,490 ft.

Location is 2,250 ft. from south and 1,000 ft. from west lines of Section 21, Block CD, GC&SF survey, 10 miles northeast of Ozona.

Tenneco to explore in Bahamas

HOUSTON (SWN) — Tenneco Oil Exploration and Production has signed an exploration license agreement with the Commonwealth of the Bahamas and renewed two existing licenses to explore for petroleum on the Great Bahama Bank.

Nine blocks are included in the new license, increasing the company's holdings within the these license areas to 29 contiguous blocks. Total area covered by three licenses is 2.2 million acres.

Under the existing licenses, Tenneco will begin drilling an exploratory well before the end of 1985. The well, about 60 miles south of Andros Island, will be the first well drilled in the region in almost 15 years.

Jobs' departure from Apple marks end of era

Los Angeles Times —
Washington Post News Service

It has been said about Steven P. Jobs that he would have made a good king of France. It's too bad the position has been eliminated, because the 30-year-old co-founder of Apple Computer is suddenly available.

Jobs' bitter resignation Tuesday from the chairmanship of Apple marks the unofficial end of a brief era of technology in which the mercurial young entrepreneur — perhaps more than anyone else — managed to personalize the computer, make it affordable and persuade millions of ordinary folks that they needed it.

The rich tale of Apple Computer, founded in 1976 by loner Jobs and his nerdy high school chum, Stephen Wozniak, has become as familiar to baby boomers as Horatio Alger stories were to an earlier generation. And Apple's overnight transformation into a $2 billion company that couldn't be properly managed by a computer hacker or a temperamental marketing genius is a classic example of the metamorphosis of a business.

Through it all strode Jobs, a complex college dropout variously described as brilliant, arrogant, private, egotistical and an extraordinary pitchman who was totally consumed by his creation. He is said to command an almost religious devotion among the youthful electronic zealots who developed the computers that, in what might have been Jobs' niftiest idea of all, were called Apple.

The Apple label somehow managed to link the computer — a cold and fearsome machine in the minds of many — to such Woodstock-generation values as environmentalism, friendliness and other non-threatening and distinctly non-corporate ideas.

"History may record that this was Jobs' most important contribution to Apple: his dead-eye accuracy at understanding precisely what his generation thought of itself and then playing that tune in perfect pitch," writes author Michael S. Malone in "The Big Score," a recent history of Silicon Valley, the high-technology center south of San Francisco.

The adopted son of a machinist, Jobs grew up in what was becoming the Silicon Valley and attended high school in Cupertino. With Wozniak and others, he tinkered with electronics and, among other things, made a device that enabled phone users to bypass Ma Bell and make free long-distance calls. He later dropped out of Reed College in Oregon, flirted with Far Eastern religions, worked for Atari and tried communal living and vegetarianism.

In 1975, while working for Atari, the company that pioneered video games, he frequented meetings of the local Homebrew Computer Club. Wozniak, who had quit the University of California, Berkeley, was a serious club member who was developing a computer that was to become the Apple I.

By most accounts a second-rate technician, Jobs knew a good idea when he saw it, and the seed for Apple was planted. And it was to become a press agent's dream that the new partners financed the prototype of their new computer with proceeds from the sale of Jobs' Volkswagen bus, the unofficial vehicle of the "flower children."

They began calling on venture capitalists and approached Regis McKenna, a powerful Silicon Valley public relations man, for help. McKenna made the most of the entrepreneurs' unlikely backgrounds, and Jobs' beard, sandals and blue jeans became part of the rapidly evolving Apple image. Later in his book, "The Regis Touch:" McKenna recounted:

"The environment was perfect for Apple. ... America was beginning to look upon entrepreneurs as the saviors of American capitalism, so Apple played up the rags-to-riches story of its dynamic founders. ... Time and again, Apple public relations people told the story of the two Steves working late at night in their garage. Apple stressed the fun and potential of the new technology."

Wozniak's was largely a technical role. He has left the company twice, and, after his latest departure in March, started a company called Cloud Nine to make a remote-control device.

Jobs, on the other hand, led Apple on its dizzying path to success. Faster than any company before it, Apple cracked the Fortune 500 within five years. Largely on the strength of its Apple II computer, the company in December 1980, went public in one of Wall Street's most successful new stock offerings.

Ford, UAW pact talks to continue

LORAIN, Ohio (AP) — At a time when Ford Motor Co. is emphasizing cost efficiency, quality workmanship and productivity, the 5,200 hourly workers at a sprawling assembly plant in this Lake Erie port say they are resolved to stay on strike until the competitive pressure eases.

For the first time since the strike began 12 days ago, Ford and the United Auto Workers agreed Wednesday to meet in negotiations. Talks were set to resume today.

The members of UAW Local 425 walked off their jobs Sept. 8, citing health and safety issues and what they said was the company's unwillingness to listen to their concerns.

The plant produces Ford Thunderbirds, Cougars and Econoline vans.

According to Mike Pohorence, Local 425 president, the key issue is the company's unwillingness to hire needed workers. He said plant ventilation and equipment safety are also important issues.

"It's linked to their trying to be competitive, and I think they've overdone it," he said. "We acknowledge that they have to be competitive, but not to the point they are asserting this kind of pressure and stress on line workers. It's not going to continue to happen in our plant."

Bob Hicks, 47, a lineman at the plant since 1965, picketed at one of the plant gates Wednesday and said workers are determined to continue giving up their paychecks, on average about $500 a week before overtime, until the health and safety issues are resolved.

"There's pressure from supervisors," Hicks said. "They demand better and better quality. But if you are overloaded, how are you going to do good quality. You can only do it to a point. When you work on the line, then you know what the strike is all about.

"At the end of every shift, I would feel exhausted. They keep adding this and that. It maybe doesn't seem like much, but when you do it 10 hours a day along with all the other things you have to do, it's quite a lot."

He said he would regularly forsake his lunch and rest breaks to get required work done. The company also required him to work a sixth day every other week, he said.

"There's just too much work, and they couldn't keep going. So it's a strike," Hicks said. "It was the only way to get something done about it."

Firestone plants scheduled to close

ALBANY, Ga. (AP) — Jim Franklin followed the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. to this southwest Georgia city seven years ago when he was laid off at the company's plant in his hometown of Akron, Ohio.

Now he's one of more than 2,500 workers facing an uncertain future because Firestone is shutting its tire plant here, the largest employer of its seven factories in North America, and cutting back production at another.

Firestone announced Wednesday it was closing the Albany plant and ending production of car and truck tires in Des Moines, Iowa, where only tractor tires will be made. The Albany plant will be phased out beginning in April.

About 2,050 employees, including 400 salaried workers, will lose their jobs in Albany and 500 in Des Moines, company spokesman Bob Troyer said. The Albany workers averaged about $22 an hour in wages and benefits.

Firestone decided on the actions because it was making more tires than it was selling, Troyer said. "We have sufficient capacity in place (at other plants) to meet the demand."

He predicted that no more than a handful of employees would be able to relocate to other Firestone plants.

Franklin, who says he might return to Akron and go back to college, said he felt betrayed because the company promised to protect workers from layoffs and shutdowns.

"This is not the first time that Firestone has broken a promise," said Franklin, 37, secretary of the United Rubber Workers' local that represents the employees.

WTGS to discuss reservoir development

Rick C. Tobin will be the speaker at the luncheon meeting of the West Texas Geological Society at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday at the Midland Center.

Tobin's talk will cover "Reservoir Development in the Ellenburger Group of West Texas." A senior geologist with Amoco Production Co. in Houston, Tobin is currently Regional Carbonate Petrologist, concerned with research and research coordination in exploitation and exploration.

He received his bachelor's degree in geology from James Madison University in 1977, and his master's degree and doctorate in geology from the University of Cincinnati. He has been with Amoco since receiving his doctorate in 1982.

The meal will cost $7, and reservations can be made by calling the Society at 683-1573.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, in accordance with an order of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice that on August 20, 1985, the Company filed tariffs which propose revisions to the Joint User Tariffs and implementation of Shared Tenant Services Tariffs.

If the tariffs are approved by the Public Utility Commission, the Company will grandfather existing customers to the Joint User Tariffs and totally withdraw the Joint User Tariffs one year after the date of approval of the proposed tariff revisions, with one exception. Even after the one year period, existing single-line customers subscribing to Joint User Tariffs may continue their service under certain conditions.

Also, if the tariffs are approved, the provision of shared tenant services will require partitioned switching equipment.

No new rates are being proposed in the aforementioned tariffs. As a result of the partitioning of switching equipment, some existing customers may require additional PBX trunks. If so, the Company's revenues may increase. The Company is unable, at this time, to estimate the additional revenues, if any, which would result therefrom.

The Commission received these tariffs as Docket 6450 and a prehearing conference will be held at 10:00 A.M., Monday, September 23, 1985, at the Commission's offices at 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, in Austin, Texas.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. Motions to intervene should be filed with the Commission on or before 4:00 P.M., Friday, September 20, 1985. A request to intervene, participate or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223, or (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221, teletypewriter for the deaf.

Aviso Público

De conformidad con una orden de la Comisión de Servicios Públicos de Texas, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company anuncia el registro de nuevas tarifas, las cuales proponen ciertas modificaciones de las Tarifas para Usuarios Mancomunados (Joint User Tariffs) y la implementación de Tarifas para Servicios Compartidos por Inquilinos (Shared Tenant Services Tariffs).

De aprobar la Comisión tales tarifas, la Compañía mantendrá vigentes los acuerdos con usuarios actuales en lo que respecta a Tarifas para Usuarios Mancomunados, pero descontinuará tales tarifas a partir del primer aniversario de la fecha en que se aprueben las nuevas tarifas. Sin embargo, existe una excepción; aún después de tal aniversario, los clientes con líneas sencillas que actualmente cuentan con el servicio para Usuarios Mancomunados podrán seguir con tal servicio sujeto a ciertas condiciones.

De aprobarse las nuevas tarifas, las disposiciones correspondientes a los Servicios Compartidos por Inquilinos requerirán el uso de conmutadores separados.

Las citadas tarifas no proponen nuevas cuotas. Sin embargo, es posible que debido a la separación de equipos de conmutación, algunos clientes actuales requerirán nuevos troncales PBX. De ser así, los ingresos de la Compañía podrían aumentar. En la actualidad, la Compañía no puede determinar el monto de ingresos adicionales que resultarían de tales tarifas.

La Comisión ha registrado este asunto bajo el Docket 6450. Se llevará a cabo una audiencia preliminar para discutir todo asunto relacionado con el Servicio Compartido por Inquilinos el lunes 23 de septiembre de 1985, a las 10:00 de la mañana, en las oficinas de la Comisión, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, en Austin, Texas.

Toda persona que desee intervenir o participar en el presente proceso debe notificar a la Comisión lo antes posible. Las solicitudes de intervención deberán presentarse ante la Comisión antes del viernes 20 de septiembre de 1985 a las 4:00 de la tarde. Las solicitudes de intervención, participación o información deben dirigirse a: Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Para obtener mayor información debe llamar a Public Utility Commission, Consumer Affairs Division, (512) 458-0223, o (512) 458-0227, o al (512) 458-0221 si requiere teletipo para personas con impedimentos de audición.

Group to again voice complaints about appraisals

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

A group of Midland County residents will again voice their concerns with the Midland Central Appraisal District and its procedures for assessing values on property Monday during a regular meeting of the Midland County Commissioner's Court.

The handful of Midlanders last week asked Midland County Attorney Mark Dettman to request the State Attorney General investigate the appraisal district and its procedures for assessing values on Midland County lands.

Dettman, who has yet to file a formal request, reported the attorney general was reluctant to commit to any inquiry because a precedent for investigating taxing entities has never been established.

Midge Erskine, who spearheaded the demand for an investigation, refused to divulge any information pertaining to her next appearance before the commissioners, saying only, "We're going to be asking for several different things."

The group claimed evidence collected from public records shows "discrepancies" in assessed land values. The most obvious appear north of Midland in the Saddle Club Estates area, she charged.

According to Ms. Erskine, the data show land values in Saddle Club Estates are assessed at $1.50 per square foot while property in the less exclusive Saddle Club Lakes, Saddle Club North and Saddle Club South have been assessed at $6, $4 and $2.25 respectively.

Public records revealed property values did, in fact, vary from $1.50 per square foot in Saddle Club Estates to $4 in Saddle Club North.

But Chief Appraiser Roland Wilkinson said those figures don't tell the whole story.

He said other variables are taken into consideration when determining the value of property.

For example, several subdivisions such as Saddle Club are developed on the basis of a nonprofit association which maintains ownership of swimming pools, parks, meeting halls, parking lots, tennis courts or other property to be used only by its members.

He added that this property is appraised at face value to avoid double taxation that would result if it were appraised at market value.

Wilkinson admitted not all property is assessed at 100 percent of its market value. The reason, he said, is the "roller coaster effect" of the Midland market.

The Midland Central Appraisal District uses the "Market Appraisal Approach" which simply asks, "For what price are properties similar to this selling?"

By making a comparison between the property being valued and other similar properties which recently have been sold, the appraiser can estimate what property would sell for if placed on the market. After making such comparisons, the appraiser can estimate the property's value and apply it to the tax rolls.

Wilkinson has said he "welcomes any and all investigations" of Midland County appraisal procedures. He reported his office recorded over 500 sales during the first six months of 1985 and maintained a 96 percent average ratio on assessments.

Judge revokes appeal bond for alleged molester

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

Joseph Gallagher, the former Boy Scout Master, substitute teacher and Big Brother volunteer who was convicted in February of molesting an 11-year-old Midland boy, spent Wednesday night in county jail after 142nd District Judge Pat Baskin revoked his appeal bond.

"The court is compelled to believe that Mr. Gallagher is likely to commit another offense if he remains at large," Baskin said after a Wednesday afternoon hearing.

Gallagher, 38, is appealing the conviction and 13-year sentence he received in February for molesting the boy, whom he had met at a Scout ranch last July. While free on a $10,000 appeal bond, he was arrested after a June incident involving a 10-year-old boy who lives near Gallagher's home at 610 W. Cowden. He was indicted for attempted indecency with a child, but remained free on a $50,000 bond.

On Sept. 6, Gallagher was arrested again, this time for attempted aggravated kidnapping, and released on a $60,000 bond. According to police reports, he tried to handcuff the head administer of Trinity School because he thinks the school owes him $2,400.

"I wanted to take her downtown to the police station to see if she had any outstanding warrants or citations," Gallagher told reporters after the hearing in a brief interview before Vernon Reichle, his attorney, interrupted.

"I advise you to keep your mouth shut," Reichle told his client. Earlier, when Gallagher was on the stand, Reichle had asked Gallagher if he was remorseful about the two incidents.

"Do you realize the seriousness of the two incidents you've committed?" asked Reichle. "Are you sorry the incidents happened?"

When Gallagher hesitated, his attorney grew brusque.

"I asked you for an answer, not an explanation," Reichle thundered, whereupon Gallagher meekly expressed remorse for the alleged incidents.

"No similar incidents will ever occur," he said.

Gallagher has not been tried for either offense, and has not yet been indicted on the aggravated kidnapping charge. After the hearing, he retracted his apparent confession.

"I did not do what I was indicted for. I was basically sorry I suppose for just associating with them (the 10-year-old boy and Margaret Simmons, the Trinity head administrator)."

Bishop Michael D. Pfeifer

Pfeifer wants to build 'bridges' of trust, of love

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — The Most Rev. Michael David Pfeifer, O.M.I., the new Bishop of the Diocese of San Angelo, was in the Odessa-Midland area Wednesday to meet people and become acquainted with other religious leaders in the area.

Pfeifer, who was ordained Bishop of San Angelo July 26, said, "West Texas has been very friendly, very good to me and that has helped to make my job, my ministry very easy so far."

As to his mission, the bishop said, "I'd like to build, what I call, bridges of trust, bridges of communication, bridges of collaboration-cooperation and, mainly, bridges of love." His top priority, however, he said, "Is just coming to know the good people out in this area of West Texas and discovering the good that is being done by so many good people and, with time, I hope to build on that."

Asked if an apparent general decline in Roman Catholic church population extends to this area, he said, "I can't really say if our Catholic population has gone down. I believe there's a slight increase (in this area) from the records I've read."

Pfeifer said he believes "there's a great openness to the faith in this area. I believe too, that people are coming to recognize the need for God, and especially Jesus Christ, in their life in a new way."

The 48-year-old bishop was born in Alamo and has served the church in Texas, Mexico and the newest mission field, Africa. At the time of his selection as bishop, Pfeifer resided in San Antonio as Provincial of the Southern U.S. Province and had charge of 245 Oblate priests and brothers working in Texas, Mexico and across the southern United States.

As Provincial, Pfeifer oversaw completion of a number of important goals of the Oblate order, including their removal from St. Ann's parish in 1984 because their work had been completed. He also sent Father Cornelius Scanlan, O.M.I., to San Angelo in 1982 to become the first director of Christ the King Oblate Retreat Center. Pfeifer has also encouraged the Oblates to move into lay ministry education, with a number of programs developed by the Oblate School of Theology.

Concerning the sanctuary movement, which has resulted in the prosecution of two members for immigration violations, Bishop Pfeifer said, "I believe there's a place for the sanctuary movement. It's helping people who are political refugees and they need our help very, very much.

Expert says no decision has been made on feasibility of water reuse

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — About 50 representative of West Texas cities and water resource experts gathered at the Holiday Inn Centre Wednesday for a day-long seminar on water reuse sponsored by the City of Odessa.

The seminar touched on many of the areas contained in the water reuse study done by the Dallas-based consulting firm of Camp, Dresser & McKee, which was presented to the city council in July.

Those attending the seminar heard presentations concerning water quantity and quality, the law relating to water use and reuse, and financing water treatment projects, especially wastewater treatment.

Daniel Okun, Kenan professor of environmental engineering (emeritus) at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, related experiences with projects in St. Petersburg, Fla., Singapore in the Far East, and in the Irvine Ranch Water District in California.

According to Okun, there is no decision yet on the feasibility of reclaiming wastewater for potable (household and drinking) purposes. In An Overview of Water Reuse dissertation distributed to those attending the seminar, Okun observed that "many attitudinal surveys made in the U.S., particularly in water-short California, have shown little public acceptance of reuse of wastewater for drinking, where there is acceptance for nonpotable purposes."

Okun said the piping of treated wastewater directly into a water supply system that provides water for drinking "appears attractive and/or necessary" to some and they have undertaken research to support this approach.

One of the major problems with attempting to treat wastewater to drinking water standards, Okun said, is the development of new chemicals, which are introduced into commerce and industry "at the rate of some 1,000 annually and ultimately find their way into water courses that drain urban and industrial areas."

Casa to continue free diabetes screenings

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

Julia Mitchell was having headaches and feeling tired all the time.

The 53-year-old grandmother thought her high blood pressure was causing these symptoms. However, diabetes was the dianosis after Mrs. Mitchell and 12 others participated in the first free dfabetic screening for low income Midland residents.

With the help of a $5,000 grant from United Way, Casa De Amigos has begun free diabetic screenings twice a month. Diabetes impairs the body's ability to use sugar. At the first screening on Sept. 7, Mrs. Mitchell was diagnosed as a diabetic.

Casa De Amigos will conduct free diabetic testing from 8 to 10 a.m. on the first Saturday and third Tuesday of every month, said Elizabeth Valenzuela, the program's coordinator. Persons of all income levels may take the free test, she said.

Along with her headaches and fatigue, Mrs. Mitchell said she was experiencing dizzy spells and a loss of circulation in her feet.

These are some classic warning signals for diabetes, Ms. Valenzuela said. Other signs include increased thirst, a craving for sweets and increased appetite but loss of weight, she said.

"We saw a lot of people in this low income area who don't have the money to go to the doctor when they have these signs," Ms. Valenzuela said.

Cost for a first visit to a doctor and a diabetes test could run as high as $85, she said.

Do TV, computers, high-tech make for a better life?

What would life be without television?

Adventuresome.

It's even that today.

I can tell you that.

I don't watch TV much more than television personalities scan newspapers. Now, there's a lot of worthwhile viewing on the tube but the key to that is to refine your definition of worthwhile. Otherwise, your cultural highlight of the day could be a down-in-the-dredges soap opera.

Now, back when I was a toddler, television was a military secret and soap operas were 15- and 30-minute radio drama sponsored by Camay soap, Duz or Ivory and tide had something to do with the rise and fall of oceans and not washing clothes, and Lava soap had its hands in "The FBI in Peace and War." Personal matters, aside from headaches and aspirin and corns and patches, were not openly discussed on radio the way they are today on TV. Fact is, we didn't discuss them at home. Or if we did, I didn't; I wasn't around to hear such private and potentially embarrassing discussions on Taboo Row and reserved for never-never land or, if you were desperate, for one of those liberal preachers not familiar to tabernacle-goers and holy-rollers.

"Ignore the problem, and it'll go away" was my view. Or if it didn't, it would atrophy and would be rendered as harmless as ghosts, which still frighten me if I dwell on the beings from another dimension. Generally, these days I'm too busy with the mundane things to dwell at length on the unseen world.

Now, before the days of TV and portable radios and tape-players and the high- and low-tech jargon, we children used to think about the unseen world. Now, the denizens in that dimension were and still are ghosts. The good ones were never visible, but the bad ones, represented by the bogeyman, were always looming. I never really saw the real bogeyman, but he generally kept me out of dark and dreary places. And I'd forget him in my chase for June bugs, lightning bugs and shooting stars which streaked across the heavens before I could decide which wish to play mental dice with. Or we'd exchange ghost — never horror — stories — and see who could frighten whom the most. I could always see the porch light at home and really wasn't as scared as I might have appeared. I knew I could run fast on the sod in real life, but I was put into slow motion in my nightmares when I was chased by a bear. I still wonder if I ever was caught. And if I were, I wonder what the bear did to me. It never occurred to me that he might be friendly and would do something for me.

In later years, we'd listen to radio comedies, dramas and those suspenseful mysteries. And we made more time for reading even before we discovered that the Bible was considered literature.

So, what would life be without television and computers and "Star Wars" technology and new-found diseases that baffle medical science? I'd like to say it would be serene and trouble free. That would be too much make-believe. When was man not without woes?

Never.

So, we'll just trudge along, check out this resource called television to see what's new and resurrected and go about our journey in life.

Realtor announces congressional bid

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

David Hunsicker, a Realtor from San Antonio, said he wants to bring his experience as a businessman to the 21st Congressional District.

"In my business you have an asset side and a liability side. To be a success you have to have assests bigger than liabilities. We need to run this country like a business," said Hunsicker, a Democrat, who says immediate steps need to be taken to slash the federal budget.

Hunsicker was in Midland Wednesday campaigning for the 21st Congressional District seat. He is the fourth person to announce his intentions to run for this district. Other announced candidates include David Wentworth and Lamar Smith, both Republicans from San Antonio. Terry Lowery, a Democrat from Midland has also announced his candidacy. The primary election is in May and the general election is in November 1986.

Hunsicker, an Air Force veteran of 100 combat missions in Vietnam, said most of Congress is made up of attorneys and non-veterans, while in the past the majority used to be veterans. He said Congress needs more veterans and small businessmen to get back some common sense.

The 46-year-old candidate said he has never run for a political office before and that he has sold all but 14 percent interest in his San Antonio real estate company to campaign full time.

Hunsicker, who spent almost five years as an officer at the Pentagon, said he is in favor of a strong defense, but he would like to see some of the waste cut.

"There is so much waste, you could start at the local level and work up. We have many programs that are a waste to taxpayers money. We have planes that won't fly. We have goldplate on a lot of planes. We have a lot of battleships out there. We don't need more battleships in 1985," Hunsicker said.

However, Hunsicker said he supports the "Star Wars" defense plan because there will be research and technological gains from the program to benefit mankind.

Hunsicker also said terrorists, not Russians, pose the greatest threat to the United States.

"They are the ones who would use a nuclear device," Hunsicker said.

Hunsicker said he sees another danger on the domestic level.

"I'm concerned very much about the economy and the loss of jobs in the country. I think we have dismantled our industrial might. We lost $45,000 in the manufacturing sector last year. The service sector took up the slack. If the trend continues, we're in danger of becoming a nation of shopkeepers," he said.

Big Spring man, juvenile held in attempted theft

From Staff Reports

An 18-year-old Big Spring man and a juvenile male were placed in custody about 3:30 this morning at B and B Trading Post, 617 E. Illinois, after police responded to an alarm, reports said.

They were apparently trying to steal five revolvers worth a total of about $2,190, reports said. The 18-year-old was expected to be charged later today.

In other reports from law-enforcement agencies, three Midlanders were taken to Midland Memorial Hospital after a 4:48 p.m. accident Wednesday in the intersection of Andrews Highway and Louisiana Avenue, according to police reports. Treated and released was 37-year-old Susan Franklin, 1800 W. Illinois, according to a hospital spokeswoman. The other two people left the hospital without being treated, she said.

The accident occurred while Ronald Franklin was westbound on Louisiana in a 1983 Ford Escort and Juana Mendoza, 3001 N. Midland, was southbound on Andrews in a 1975 Pontiac Firebird, reports said. The two cars collided in the intersection.

Jim Randolph, Route 9, Box 9212, reported a $240 hoist, a $115 drill and about $300 worth of tools were taken from his pickup sometime between Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, according to Sheriff's Office reports.

Dan Fender Tire Co., 1400 W. Florida, reported the loss of three wrenches worth about $270 and $50 in change in a burglary which occurred sometime between Wednesday and this morning, according to police reports.

A $500 snakeskin purse, $300 in traveler's checks and a $100 gold pen-and-pencil set were among $1,150 worth of items reported stolen by Amy Diane Allen, 1600 W. Illinois. The auto burglary occurred at the North Park Cinema on Loop 250 sometime between Wednesday night and this morning, reports said.

Ladena Doggett, 1902 N. Midland, reported a Wednesday burglary of her 1975 GMC pickup in which a $230 bed cover and two tool boxes with about $300 in assorted tools were taken, reports said.

A $900 bedroom set, a $300 table-and-chair set and a $150 chair were reported stolen by the Lakewood Apartments, 4410 Lanham. The furniture was taken from apartment 74H sometime between Sept. 10 and Wednesday, reports said.

A $300 car stereo was reported stolen by Quality Auto Co., 211 W. Florida. The burglary occurred sometime between Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, reports said.

Classic Crafted Inc., 3329 W. Wadley, reported the loss of $400 in assorted tools in a burglary which occurred sometime between Tuesday and Wednesday, reports said.

City to auction vehicles, equipment

From Staff Reports

With the arrival of fall every year comes the cleaning out of City Hall closets and garages with the action resulting in an auction. That auction is scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday at the Municipal Service Center, 500 N. Carver St.

Police cars, pickups, passenger cars, utility trucks, dump trucks and vans, plus various types of construction and street maintenance equipment, will be sold.

Also on the auction block will be 50 to 60 bicycles, assorted abandoned or confiscated property, office desks and furniture.

Renee Bates Auctioneers of McKinney will conduct the sale for the 17th consecutive year.

Bidders may inspect most vehicles and equipment beginning at noon Thursday and from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday and 7 to 10 a.m. Saturday before the auction begins.

According to a city spokesman, property will be sold "as is, where is." Warranties or guarantees are not offered. Terms are cash or check and all items are to be paid for on the day of the auction before they are removed.

DIABETES

Mrs. Mitchell said she wasn't surprised that she had diabetes, because many of her family members were diabetics.

"I figured I would before the end, with it being so thick in the family," she said.

To control their disease, diabetics should eat lots of fresh vegetables and high fiber foods, Ms. Valenzuela said. However, the high starch diet of many low income people makes them susceptible to diabetes, she added.

"After they buy the basics — potatoes, bread and beans to keep the kids from getting hungry, they don't have much left over for broccoli and vegetables," Ms. Valenzuela said.

"You just don't have the money," agreed Mrs. Mitchell who relies on Medicaid to pay her medical bills. "We eat a lot of backbones and stuff like that. And we eat a lot of hamburger," said Mrs. Mitchell, who used to work as a nursing aid before arthritis disabled her.

Casa De Amigos' diabetic testing program is the start of preventive medicine aimed at teaching people how to stay healthy, instead of waiting for an emergency to happen, Ms. Valenzuela said. It's cheaper to detect and diagnosis a disease then to wait for an emergency, she said.

"Any little cut or scrape will turn into a medical emergency for diabetics. They are very suspectible to infections. Diabetes is the number one cause of amputations in the United States," Ms. Valenzuela said.

Mrs. Mitchell is in the early stages of diabetes. With a proper diet and exercise she should be able to control the disease, Ms. Valenzuela said. If the disease had reached later stages, Ms. Valenzuela said, she might be paying up to $2,500 per year for medication and care.

Once more diabetics are detected through the screenings, Ms. Valenzuela said, Casa De Amigos will conduct monthly education programs on controlling diabetes. Volunteer nutritionists and dieticians are needed for these education programs. To volunteer, contact Casa De Amigos, Lamesa and Garden Lane, at 682-9701.

BOND

Reichle argued that if bond were to be denied, it should have been denied after Gallagher's two subsequent arrests, before he gave over $10,000 to a bondsman.

"Here in this instance he has committed two subsequent offenses," said Reichle, who is not representing Gallagher in connection with those alleged offenses. "You're depriving the man of his due process of law. My contention is the district attorney had a shot at Mr. Gallagher (before his June and September bonds were granted). Why come in at this late date?"

Assistant District Attorney Tom Morgan, who had requested the hearing, said later he wanted to revoke Gallagher's appeal bond instead of denying him bond on the kidnapping charge because it would keep him in jail longer.

Ms. Simmons testified that Trinity owes Gallagher nothing, and that she had ordered him to stay off the campus at 3500 W. Wadley. Under questioning from Morgan, Gallagher said he was also trying to collect $84,000 from Doug Palmer of the Boy Scouts Buffalo Trail Council, and $52,000 from St. Ann's School, because he feels Palmer helped get him fired from a job at St. Ann's several years ago.

Gallagher must remain in county jail until an El Paso court rules on his appeal. Morgan said that ruling would probably come down before the end of the year.

PFEIFER

"I know it's a very delicate question: When do we say people are here for economic reasons and when are they here for political reasons of oppression back home. But for those people that really need this type of assistance, I believe in it and would support it very much," said the bishop.

On the question of fundamentalists and the so-called new right in religion that seems to dominate much of the United States, he said, "If you understand fundamentalists as going back always to the gospel's of Jesus Christ, I think that's beautiful.

"And if we all go back to those," he said, "especially the fundamental gospel of love, I think we'd have less problems in this world. I think our churches would be brought together in a much closer way also," the bishop said.

WATER

"He contended "knowledge about the health effects of these chemicals and the technology for their monitoring and removal (from wastewater) will always lag behind the development of new chemicals."

John Burgh, Camp, Dresser & McKee engineer responsible for the Bishop's Lodge wastewater reclamation-reuse project north of Santa Fe, N.M., described how successful development of the project changed the attitude of neighbors who initially opposed the project.

Bishop's Lodge is a dude ranch that has been operated by the same family for several generations. Future growth of the lodge was jeopardized by lack of additional area for wastewater disposal.

Burgh explained that a system was designed to retain wastewater on site. It included advanced treatment facilities, ponds that were stocked with goldfish and construction of a waterfall, utilizing an old, unused road that rose about 100 feet above the lodge. He showed slides of the lodge and the completed wastewater project to demonstrate how it blended in with the lodge and surrounding area.

The benefits realized from the project, Burgh said, were several. Use of potable water was cut in half. It was a major aesthetic achievement and resulted in approval of the lodge's 20-year expansion plan.

Burgh stated that any community, irrespective of size, can develop a viable reuse project.

Larry Soward, the new executive director of the Texas Water Commission, said that under the previous administration the agency was not as responsive as it should have been.

Soward, keynote speaker at the seminar luncheon, said the state agency is being restructured so that it will be able to respond much more quickly.

He described the new water commission as "decision makers" who will make the decisions necessary to manage the water resources of Texas.

TAX

Wilkinson reported a July audit by State Property Tax Board revealed that the district also maintained a 94 percent average ratio on assessments of homes, apartments and vacant land.

Persons wishing to contest the current market value of their property may visit with Wilkinson or his appraisers in Suite 160 at Dellwood Mall or call 699-4991.

Otherwise, they may make an appointment with the Midland County Appraisal Review Board which has the sole authority to change the appraised valued up to the time they approve the tax rolls.

Horse psychologist, trainer to conduct seminar

From Staff Reports

A horse seminar featuring nationally acclaimed Emery Henderson of Phoenix, Ariz., is slated for 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at the County Arena. The seminar is being sponsored by Midland College, Midland County Extension Horse Committee and Desert Wind Equestrian School of Midland.

Henderson is a horse psychologist and trainer. He will be doing psychology training, kindergarten and up training, line driving, trail and packing, plus having a question-and-answer session to handle anyone's individual problems.

Charge is $8 per person for 4H members and $12 for the general public. A concession and lunch stand will be provided by the 4H Club.

Henderson has ridden the prestigious Tevis Club Trail and traveled rim to rim at the Grand Canyon. He has trained Arabians, thoroughbreds, Connemaras, quarter horses, paints, mules, Clydesdales and Morgans. His psychology training has resulted in numerous trophies, ribbons and awards in pleasure classes, trail, halter, futurities and carriage. His horse, Buddy, was National Champion Working Horse at the A-Z Show this year in Arizona.

He and his wife, Betty, are lifetime members of the National Morgan Horse Association, Arizona Horse Association and National T.R.A.I.L. Conference.

According to Dixie Knapp, Midland College horse science instructor, Texas is one of the five leading states in horse population with residents spending more than $4 billion a year on horse care. This doesn't include land, barns, fencing, tack or clothing, she said.

For further information about the seminar, call Dixie Knapp at 684-7851, extension 147, or 697-4701.

Angola claims South African raid supports anti-government rebels

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Angola's defense minister challenged South Africa's account of a raid by almost 500 soldiers into his country, saying the real purpose of the incursion was to help rebels fighting Angola's Marxist government.

The United States and other Western governments Wednesday condemned the raid, in which South Africa said soldiers are trying to flush out black guerrillas of the South-West Africa People's Organization, or SWAPO.

The guerrillas are fighting for independence for the territory west of South Africa and south of Angola, which is known both as South-West Africa and Namibia.

South African military spokesmen said warplanes staged an air strike on the guerrillas' forward command post near the village of Nehone, 60 miles into southern Angola. There was no word on casualties.

Angola's defense minister, Pedro Maria Tonha, said the raid's real purpose was to aid a South African-backed rebel movement that is fighting to overthrow the Angolan government. He said the South African force was under heavy fire from a government offensive.

Tonha, in a statement issued through the official Angolan News Agency monitored in Lisbon, Portugal, said 18 South African warplanes bombed Angolan army positions at Mavinga, 150 miles north of the Namibian border.

Angola has battled the anti-Marxist rebel movement Unio for the Total Independence of Angola, or UNITA, for a decade since independence from Portugal. UNITA claims to control the southeastern third of Angola.

South Africa's Defense Force accused the Angolan army of aiding SWAPO in violation of a 1984 accord to end South African presence in southern Angola. The statement warned Angola not to interfere with the new incursion.

SWAPO has fought since 1966 to end South African rule over Namibia. South Africa seized the territory during World War I and has ignored U.N. resolutions demanding that it withdraw.

The Reagan administration urged South Africa on Wednesday to withdraw from Angola. State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said in Washington that the administration is "not sympathetic to South African assertions of any right to conduct military expeditions into Angola under the theory of defending its illegal presence in Namibia."

The United States is one of five countries trying to negotiate a ceasefire in the Namibian war.

Foreign Minister R.F. Botha admitted Wednesday that South Africa has violated a 1984 peace accord with Mozambique by setting up communications for rebels fighting that country's Marxist government, the South African Press Association quoted him as telling a news conference.

In anti-apartheid unrest in South Africa, police said they shot and killed a mixed-race 10-year-old boy, not a girl as they reported earlier, in a street clash in the Cape Town area.

Lawyers said they would seek a court order next week for the release of the Rev. Allan Boesak, an anti-apartheid leader whose Aug. 27 detention triggered violence in Cape Town. Boesak, of mixed race, had planned to lead a march in Capetown on Aug. 28 demanding the release of Nelson Mandela, head of the outlawed African National Congress guerrilla movement.

In Cape Town's mixed-race districts, youths put up burning barricades in the Elsie's River suburb and took to the streets in bands in the neighboring Valhalla district.

High schools in Cape Town's mixed-race districts were closed Sept. 6 after rioting against apartheid, South Africa's system of racial segregation under which 5 million whites rule 24 million blacks. Officials said they were unlikely to reopen until Oct. 1.

Thirteen months of rioting have claimed at least 660 lives, the government says. A private monitoring group said more than 700 have died.

Reagan shows radical 'other side of coin'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is meeting with Mozambican President Samora Machel, a one-time radical who has been steadily forging closer ties to the West to help ease his nation's severe economic problems.

Machel was once known for his outspoken anti-Americanism, and U.S. officials believe his transformation toward more non-aligned policies represents a major setback for the Soviet Union in southern Africa.

Machel, who is making his first visit to the United States in his 10 years as president, planned a late morning meeting followed by a luncheon with Reagan today. His schedule also includes meetings with Secretary of State George Shultz and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

U.S. officials, who briefed reporters Wednesday on Machel's visit on condition they not be identified, said the discussions were to focus on Mozambique's economic problems and the overall situation in southern Africa.

There are several thousand East bloc technical and military advisers in Mozambique but the officials said Machel has been turning increasingly toward the West because the Soviets have provided little concrete assistance.

Last year, Mozambique joined the Western-dominated International Monetary Fund and World Bank. In addition, Mozambican support for Soviet positions in the United Nations no longer is automatic. Machel also has been resisting Soviet proposals to establish military bases in Mozambique.

At his news conference Tuesday night, Reagan said Machel has been having "second thoughts" about his ties to Moscow.

"We just think it's worthwhile to show him another side of the coin," Reagan said.

But some conservatives believe Machel's changed tone is cosmetic.

Mexican opposition leaders to be charged in fiery riot

AGUA PRIETA, Mexico (AP) — Five opposition leaders will be charged with helping incite a fiery riot that erupted in this border city when the new mayor from the ruling party tried to take office, the Sonora state attorney general said Wednesday.

Aides to U.S. Rep. John McCain, R-Ariz., and Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., said the officials were deciding whether to lodge formal protests over the detention and alleged physical abuse of a Phoenix television cameraman by authorities in Agua Prieta.

Mayor Bernardino Meza Ortiz of the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI, began his term of office in a motel room, the government news agency Notimex reported.

The city hall was gutted by fire Monday when the violence peaked in this community of some 40,000 people, located in the state of Sonora across the border from Douglas, Ariz.

Officials of PRI and its chief opposition, the National Action Party or PAN, have traded charges of bringing in outside agitators to incite the riot.

State Attorney General Carlos Robles Lustaunau said there was sufficient evidence to charge five local PAN leaders with criminal association, burning public property, weapons offenses, and responsibility for the results of threats.

Those charged are former mayor Leonardo Yanez Varga, of the PAN; ex-candidate Carlos Munguia Jr., who lost to the PRI candidate July 7; local PAN president Eduardo Corella; his sister, PAN adviser Viola Corella Manzanilla; and PAN's national representative in the state, Norberto Corella.

In Arizona, McCain complained about the rough treatment Mexican authorities gave John LaCount, 30, a cameraman from station KTSP in Phoenix.

"It has the appearance of intimidation of the American news media in the coverage of events in Mexico," he said.

LaCount was detained Monday night outside the home of a PAN official by plainclothes officers. He said he was bound and kicked at least 10 times in the head and groin during his detention.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, September 20, 1985

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: A close associate is a visionary, dreaming up new ideas that could make the two of you rich. You must be the practical partner. Pay special attention to details and budget figures. Member of opposite sex gives you the kind of support many people will never have. Repay someone's trust with loyalty. If a friend or loved one felt deceived, he or she might walk right out of your life. Protect your domestic happiness. CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: Sophia Loren, basketball coaching great Red Auerbach, Brooklyn Dodgers manager Chuck Dressen, comedienne Anne Meara, hockey star Guy Lafleur, newscaster Pia Lindstrom, jazz great Jelly Roll Morton.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You should feel both comfortable and excited about beginning a new job or assignment. Heed a warning from a good friend and you will get off on the right foot. Confirm weekend plans.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You get the money you need to move forward. A longtime benefactor comes to your aid once again. Repay this person's loyalty by doing a wonderful job. Creative endeavors prove richly rewarding.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Children are the biggest beneficiaries of today's events. Listen to someone who is both experienced and respected when it comes to investments. A bold approach helps you beat out the competition.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be sure a plan is cost-effective and you will score major gains with those in authority. Take a friend along on a visit you make today. Dress with understated elegance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Family members begin to gather for an important event. A patient, conciliatory attitude works wonders! You will be judged on your performance, not your promises. Make your views known.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Find out what it's like to stand on your own two feet. Independence can bring lasting financial success. Help a child develop his or her special talents. Your encouragement means everything!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Trying to justify a mistake will not work. Find the right solution before someone asks questions. Romance paves the way for a change in lifestyle. Remain true to your principles.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An extraordinary collection or exhibit stimulates your interest in the natural sciences. Further research could lead to a whole new career. A love relationship becomes more fulfilling.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may not have as much time as you would like to study a problem. Look at various solutions and act before the weekend. A relationship with a client deserves more attention.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Show good taste when making a career decision. Someone could decide to sweeten a deal if you play a waiting game. Trust your instincts. Seeking a second opinion will only cause delay.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): See that service exceeds your customer's expectations and business will flourish. Word-of-mouth recommendations are the very best advertisement. Get better organized at both work and home.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): To use power unfairly is irresponsible. Share authority with those who helped you get where you are. Use your financial resources wisely. Loans and favors should be repaid as soon as possible.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ◇	Pass
1 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of ♠.

"Return partner's suit" is almost an unwritten law of bridge. That is usually sound advice, but blindly adhering to it can be fatal, as this hand proves.

The auction was unremarkable. South showed a balanced, minimum opening bid and North, also with a balanced minimum opening, had no reason do anything other than raise to three no trump.

West led the ten of spades, and South was pleased with his prospects. It seemed that he was assured of nine tricks even if he had to lose two diamond tricks. He won the opening salvo in hand and ran the eight of diamonds to East's queen. The spade return was taken by dummy's jack and the ace of diamonds was driven out. East shifted to a heart, and the ace in that suit was the defenders' third and last trick.

East should have seen that to continue with the spade attack was hopeless. West would need two entries to establish and run the spades, but simple arithmetic showed the West could not hold more than 4 or 5 points.

Careful analysis of the position reveals that the only chance to defeat the contract was for East to find his partner with specifically A-10-x-x in hearts. Even so, it needs accurate defense to defeat three no trump.

When East wins the queen of diamonds, the only return that will defeat the contract is the nine of hearts! Whether declarer plays the king of hearts or a low heart, West must duck. If declarer's choice is a low heart, the table's jack wins. Now, when East gets in with the ace of diamonds, he must return the queen of hearts. That enables the defenders to get three heart tricks in addition to the two diamonds.

Hudson gratified that his misfortune has helped other victims of disease

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Rock Hudson, commenting publicly for the first time since revealing he has AIDS, says it's gratifying to know his personal misfortune has helped in the battle against the deadly disease.

In a letter to be read tonight by actor Burt Lancaster at a black-tie "Commitment to Life" gala, Hudson tells his show business colleagues he was too ill to appear, but will be with them in thought and spirit.

Lancaster

"I am not happy that I am sick. I am not happy that I have AIDS, but if that is helping others, I can, at least, know that my own misfortune has had some positive worth," Hudson wrote.

The letter was read at a luncheon and media briefing Wednesday by AIDS Project Los Angeles Chairman Peter Scott. It marked the first time Hudson has publicly commented on his incurable illness.

"I am particularly proud to learn that there is such a significant turnout of people from my industry present, and extremely proud of my good friend, Elizabeth Taylor, who organized this event," he said.

"I have also been told that the media coverage of my own situation has brought enormous international attention to the gravity of this disease in all areas of humanity, and is leading to more research, more contribution of funds, and a better understanding of this disease than ever before."

Hudson spokesman Dale Olson said late Wednesday the 59-year-old star of television's "Dynasty" and "McMillan and Wife" was "stable and in decent spirits and seeing friends periodically."

Actress Morgan Fairchild and actor Roddy McDowall attended the luncheon.

"People should not sit back smugly and say, 'This is not my problem,'" Miss Fairchild said. "Sometimes people will listen more to celebrities than to a doctor somewhere in a newspaper."

McDowall said he felt the gala would offer an "extraordinary opportunity for Hollywood to show its concern" about the AIDS problem. "The rewarding thing is the nation seems to be becoming more aware."

Miss Taylor will co-host the event with Burt Reynolds, Sammy Davis Jr., Shirley MacLaine and Lancaster. Reynolds will read a message from President Reagan.

Project spokesman Bill Melamed said the expected $1 million raised by the benefit will help support AIDS victims and fund education programs.

Former first lady Betty Ford will be given a special Commitment to Life Award by Miss Taylor.

There will also be performances by Cyndi Lauper, Rod Stewart, the Gay Men's Chorus of Los Angeles, Carol Burnett and Sammy Davis Jr. The finale will feature Bette Midler performing with the Gay Men's Chorus via a remote voice-over from Germany.

In addition, Phil Donahue and wife Marlo Thomas will make a pitch for contributions from more than 2,500 people who paid up to $500 each to attend the benefit.

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome cripples the body's immune system, leaving victims vulnerable to infections and other diseases, including cancers.

In the United States, AIDS' most common victims have been homosexuals, abusers of injectable drugs and hemophiliacs. In Central Africa, where the disease is now believed to have originated, its victims have been equally divided between heterosexual men and women. AIDS can apparently be spread by sexual contact, contaminated needles and blood transfusions, but not by casual contact.

As of Sept. 12, AIDS had struck 13,074 people in the United States. Since 1979, 6,611 of those people had died, the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta reported.

Lynn

HURRICANE MILLS, Tenn. (AP) — The farmer-husband of Loretta Lynn says he probably would lose his 1,100-acre spread without his wife's successful country music career.

Oliver "Mooney" Lynn said he expects to lose money on his Tennessee farm this year as he did in 1984 in the face of rising costs for fertilizer and machinery and lower crop prices.

The farm, about 60 miles west of Nashville, likely would fold without his wife's successful career, he said.

Lynn was speaking Wednesday to promote this weekend's FarmAid concert at which his wife is among entertainers scheduled to perform.

Funds raised from Sunday's star-studded benefit in Champaign, Ill., should go to help American farmers regain the foreign buyers they once had, he said.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Even if you have a famous face, it's tough to get out of India without the right papers — just as Gina Lollobrigida found out.

The actress-turned-photographer found that out Wednesday when she tried to board a jet at New Delhi airport after losing her passport.

Immigration officers turned her away from her flight until she could get an emergency replacement passport from the Italian Embassy. Because she was bound for California, she also needed a replacement U.S. visa.

"I can't understand how it disappeared," Miss Lollobrigida said. "I am very organized, very precise. I found out at the airport that I didn't have it."

She was in New Delhi to interview Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi and his Italian-born wife Sonia for an Italian television program.

• • •

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Multimillionaire industrialist Norton Simon, 78, is suffering from Guillain-Barre syndrome, a neurological disorder that causes paralysis, says his wife.

Mrs. Simon, former Academy Award-winning actress Jennifer Jones, made the announcement in a statement she prepared for a benefit reception today at the University of Pennsylvania School of Nursing.

It had been reported previously that Simon was ill, but this was the first time the publicity-shy family has talked about the nature and extent of the problem.

"In the early months, a team of 10 nurses maintained an intensive-care facility for my husband" at the family's Beverly Hills home, Mrs. Simon said. "And now, with his progress, they maintain a rehabilitative unit."

DEAR ABBY

Wife's violence frightening

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: "Mary" and I are both 41. We've been married 20 years and have four children. We both work. The last several years we have been slowly growing apart. We've had marriage counseling with positive temporary results.

Mary is quick-tempered and critical of me and our children. I am more even-tempered and laid-back. In the last two years she has lost her temper and thrown knives and garden shears at me. She has also threatened me with a hot flatiron. In a fit of anger, she has destroyed photos of me and thrown out things belonging to our teen-aged children, knowing the loss would hurt them deeply. Last night at bedtime I had a coughing spell and apologized for making so much noise. Mary said, "That's OK; you'll know when you wake up that I've cut your throat!"

I don't like the person I see her becoming. Is it normal for women her age to occasionally threaten violence? Will she get over it in time? I feel that she is unstable and wonder if she would ever harm me or the children if she were provoked.

I need some suggestions to help our family situation. — FEELING UNEASY

DEAR FEELING: Don't wait to find out if your wife would ever harm you or the children. Call your family physician now and report Mary's violent, aggressive behavior. She may have a serious problem that can be arrested and controlled if treated early. Mary's behavior is not normal.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have noticed a trend lately that we don't like. Very often when we visit friends, they don't have the courtesy to turn off the TV when we arrive, and they usually leave it on throughout our visit. We usually call ahead rather than drop in unexpectedly.

It seems to be getting worse. On another occasion, we were having a party at our home. There were a dozen guests present when one of our guests turned on our TV and spoiled the party. Please comment. — NOT TUNED IN

DEAR NOT TUNED IN: You say you "usually" call ahead. When you don't call ahead, if your friends are watchng TV, you should not expect them to turn it off. On the other hand, if you were invited, it's rude for your host to keep the TV on during your visit.

As for the guest who turns on the TV while a party is in progress, he might just as well tell the host that the party is boring and needs an electronic transfusion. That's gross and insulting — even if it's true.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are desperate for a solution, as a friendship of many years is beginning to "circle the drain." Our friends, "Ed and Angie," have an only child I'll call Sue, who was conceived after 12 years of marriage. (They tried all that time.) Sue is now 2 years old, and it's impossible to carry on a normal conversation with Angie without her bringing Sue into the conversation.

Changing the subject doesn't help, as Angie always finds a way of getting back to Sue. (Ed isn't as bad as Angie, but he's bad enough.)

Angie stays at home. She says she waited so long for Sue she's making a full-time career out of motherhood. I realize she is thrilled with motherhood, but that doesn't give her the right to bore everybody to death with what Sue said and what Sue did. Talk of Sue is getting on everybody's nerves. My husband and I are beginning to avoid these old friends, and so are other friends of theirs.

We really like them, but we have had all we can take. Is there a solution? Maybe if you print this, they'll see it and take the hint. — CHICKEN IN PENNSYLVANIA

DEAR CHICKEN: And what if they don't see it? If you value the friendship of this couple, it would be an act of kindness to take Angie aside and tell her quite frankly what you have told me. The alternative would be to avoid these old friends until Sue grows up.

BETTER BUSINESS

'Dream' jobs nightmares

By LINDA TRUITT

Advertisments for jobs that seem to be pulled directly out of your teen-ager's fantasies have appeared in local newspapers, and probably will reappear. A typical advertisment for one of these door-to-door sales positions can sounds something like this:

"Nationwide Travel Program: Must be free to leave for U.S. Beach Resort Areas. All Transportation and Expenses Furnished. High Pay and Casual Conditions. Work at your pace."

An ad such as this would conjure up an image in any teen-agers' mind of the perfect job, while also giving him or her the opportunity to demonstrate to mom and dad that he or she can make it on their own. Before your teen-ager starts proving his or her independence, keep in mind that many of these advertisements are deceptive or downright false.

The interviews for these jobs usually take place at a local hotel or motel by a crew chief who makes exaggerated claims about income, luxurious travel, accommodations, parties and other amusements available to salespeople. Often those interviewed are pressured into making an on-the-spot decision about whether to accept the job.

Once the new recruits are on the road and away from home, they find the job involves door-to-door sales for magazines, books or chemical cleaners. Of course, conditions are usually not at all what the teen-ager expects to find. Very long hours and work weeks with close supervision can be expected, instead of the parties and free time the recruiter might have promised. Oftentimes, recruits are not allowed to call home unless a crew chief is standing by listening to every word. To avoid homesickness, friendships are encouraged between crew members to form new bonds.

Several persons may be crammed into lodging arrangements not up to their expectations. The low man on the totem pole, the person with the lowest sales for the day, may find the floor as his bed for the night. As opposed to having all expenses furnished, the teen-agers usually must earn their own keep. If their sales lag, the crew chief may lend money to the recruits for expenses. Then the teen-agers are made to feel indebted to the chief.

Police organizations have reported that some teen-agers reported as runaways by their parents are actually on traveling sales crews, and are prohibited from making contact with their parents. Complaints received by Better Business Bureaus have indicated some young people have even been threatened with bodily harm should they report the conditions in which they are working. Also, threats may be made against other members of the sales crew, if one of the members of the group reports to authorities any information about the sales company.

Such traveling sales crews usually hit town for only a few days, work long hours and then hit the road again.

Keep in mind when a young person knocks on your door claiming to "earn points to win a trip" or "earning points to win a college scholarship" by selling a product, there is a good chance that young person is in fact part of a traveling sales crew actually earning enough money so that he or she will be able to buy dinner in a fast-food restaurant.

CONSUMING INTERESTS

Coke controversy continues

By LINDA ANDERSON

As the Great Coca-Cola Controversy heats up, more ammunition is added to the fire.

First there was plain, old Coke. Then the company announced the change of its 99-year-old formula and the introduction of new Coke, and consumers all over the country protested. Finally the company admitted there was definitely still a market for the original product, so they re-introduced old Coke under the name "Classic Coke."

In the midst of all this clamor, another new old product, Cherry Coke, was quietly placed on supermarket shelves. It's not that the product wasn't advertised — it was — but with all the noise about new Coke and old Coke, Cherry Coke had to take a back seat for a while.

Now that some of the uproar has died down, consumers are turning to Cherry Coke in hopes of finding — in a canned soft drink — the old familiar soda-fountain favorite of the past.

The taste-testers were no different. The adults have fond memories of cruising to the local hamburger drive-in and ordering a "cherry coke with lots of ice." The teen testers have heard us talking about the drink and wanted to taste it. The small children testers are always eager to try any soft drink — a rare treat for them.

Cherry Coke was tested for taste and price — and of course we compared it to the cherry cokes of memory, which are almost impossible to find anymore.

A six-pack of 12-ounce cans costs $1.69 on sale. Regular price was not posted, but most soft drinks cost between $2.25-$2.49 for a six-pack at regular price. (Prices listed are from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.)

The little children liked the soft drink — it had bubbles in it (or feathers, as they call the carbonation)! They cannot drink too much, however, because like most Coca-Cola products, Cherry Coke contains caffeine.

The teen-age testers were more skeptical. One said it was different (but admitted she didn't like it much), one didn't like it at all and another didn't like it much but will drink it when she is thirsty and nothing else is available.

Most of the adults were disappointed in the taste. Cherry Coke does not taste like fountain cherry cokes of memory. Of course, it must be pointed out that canned Cokes don't taste like fountain Cokes, either, but we're talking about treasured memories here.

One adult said the new canned soft drink does taste like Coke with cherry in it, but it is the wrong cherry flavor (tastes more artificial). One adult thought it was the only sugar-sweetened soft drink she had ever tried that tasted as if it had saccharine it, and, to be fair, one adult said he did like the product because it didn't have too much cherry flavor.

People who like Coke and don't mind obviously artificial flavors might find Cherry Coke to be a refreshing change from their regular brand of soft drink. But consumers who try the drink for a sip into nostalgia may be disappointed.

Fat content of fish varies

By MARIAN FARR

We tend to think of meat as fat or lean and fish as just plain fish. Yet fish do vary in fat content, and the degree of fat can be important, especially when it comes to freezing them. Fatty fish are more susceptible to rancidity due to exposure to oxygen.

With fish such as tuna, the high fat content of the raw fish will oxidize when exposed to even a small amount of air and gradually cause the frozen fish flesh to become strong, taste "fishy" or even taste rancid.

The analysis of fish fat content is complicated because the quantity of fat varies from fish to fish, even in the same species, and may differ with the seasons of the year or the temperature of the waters where the fish is found. As a result, most statistics now available are based on relatively small samples of fish.

However, Texas A&M University Sea Grant researchers have assigned some categories that can be used to classify fish as fat or lean, until more information is available.

A fish is categorized as lean when the fat content is less than 2.5 percent. It's classified as moderate if the fat content falls between 2.5 percent and 6.5 percent, and fat if the fat content is more than 6.5 percent. Using these guidelines, mackerel and salmon herring are classified as fat fish, while cod, flounder, croaker drum and trout are lean.

Some fish such as halibut or mullet, which seem to be oily and might be thought of as high in fat content, are actually classifed as lean. However, larger samples of these fish will need to be tested to more accurately establish their level of fat content.

Tax on distilled spirits to increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Liquor prices will be rising in a few weeks, due to increases in the federal excise tax on distilled spirits.

A 19 percent federal tax increase will take effect Oct. 1.

The Distilled Spirits Council of the United States estimates that this will increase the average price of a liter of 80 proof spirits by 66 cents. Beer and wine taxes will not increase.

In addition to increasing the tax normally paid by distillers, the government will also require retailers to pay a one-time tax of $2 per 100-proof gallon on current stock.

The Spirits Council, a trade group representing liquor makers and sellers, thus expects dealers to offer sales and special promotions to reduce their stock, where state laws permit.

U.S., Soviet teams resume arms talks after two-month break

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — U.S. and Soviet negotiators resumed arms reduction talks today after a two-month break, and the chief Soviet delegate said all chances of progress depend on the United States.

"If they (the Americans) show willingness to reach effective solutions, there will be progress. If they don't, there won't," Viktor P. Karpov said in response to a journalist's question before entering the U.S. arms control offices to begin the third round of negotiations.

Chief U.S. delegate Max M. Kampelman told a reporter that the goal during the latest round of talks "is agreement and stability." Kampelman had said the negotiations would also prepare for the summit between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev in Geneva Nov. 19-20.

As the talks resumed, the superpowers remained split on whether Reagan's detemination to develop "Star Wars" weapons blocks chances of an overall arms control agreement.

The first two rounds produced no evident results, and each side blamed the other.

In the seventh-floor negotiating room, the Soviet delegation, led by Karpov, Yuli A. Kvitsinsky and Alexei A. Obukhov, was greeted by the chief U.S. negotiators, Kampelman, John G. Tower and Maynard W. Glitman.

Sitting at the long wooden table, Kampelman and Karpov shook hands after photographers urged them to do so. At the request for a third handshake, Kampelman said, "Why not?"

Karpov replied, "Let's hope that helps us."

At a White House news conference Tuesday, Reagan told reporters he does not regard his plans to test space-based missile defenses, popularly known as "Star Wars," as "a bargaining chip" to be played at the Geneva talks.

The Kremlin has charged that the U.S. space weapons plan, officially known as the Strategic Defense Initiative, violates existing treaties and will end any chance of agreement in the two other fields open to negotiation, medium- and long-range nuclear arms.

In an interview with Time magazine published earlier this month, Gorbachev said "the Geneva negotiations will lose all sense" if the Reagan administration sticks to its commitment to develop space-based arms.

Mexicans dig into task of repairing historic park

MEXICO CITY (AP) — More than 4,000 soldiers, scientists and city workers are digging into the task of repairing damage done to historic Chapultepec Park since Aztec emperors hunted there four centuries ago.

Millions of rats now live in the park and screw worms are destroying the trees, while hundreds of thousands of visitors leave an estimated 400,000 tons of trash each weekend.

Animals who inhabit the 62-year-old Chapultepec zoo are under heavy stress, says director Maria Elena Hoyo. They are born in cramped cages into "a life of promiscuity and prison," now breeding, now dodging rocks, cigarette butts and junk food.

The effort to change all this and restore the park to its green glory began this week with the closing of the oldest 395-acre section, the one most visited. The 2.5 billion-peso (about $6.5 million) project is to end Dec. 15, in time for Christmas.

Already, 325 rats' nests have been targeted, each home to an estimated 800 to 1,000 rats, according to Manuel Diaz Infante, who represents the area on the city's legislative body.

Scientists are shunning rat poison in the campaign, since it could harm more desirable wildlife.

Nearly 1,000 dying or damaged trees and shrubs are being uprooted, and the Mexican Army has sent in troops to dig holes for planting 150,000 donated replacements.

The Chapultepec boating lake, which now shines an unhealthy emerald green, will be drained and dredged for the first time by the Navy.

El Salvador rejects kidnappers' demands

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The government has rejected rebel demands that military operations be halted before talks begin on the release of the kidnapped daughter of President Jose Napoleon Duarte, a government spokesman said.

The spokesman, who spoke anonymously for security reasons, said Wednesday that the government, through the International Red Cross, gave the leftist rebels a radio transmitter to keep in contact. He said there has been communication.

Six gunmen seized Ines Guadalupe Duarte Duran, 35, and a woman friend Sept. 10 as they arrived for classes at a private college in San Salvador. One of Mrs. Duarte Duran's bodyguards was killed and another wounded in the attack.

The spokesman said the rebels demanded, as a condition for further negotiations on Mrs. Duarte Duran's release, that the government stop its military operations against guerrillas fighting the U.S.-supported government in a 6-year-old civil war.

He also said the rebels demanded a blackout of local news on the kidnapping. President Duarte has met with Salvadoran media to ask their cooperation, he said.

A news director at a local radio station, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said editors were told the government would not give them any more information about the abduction, but that they were free to use reports from international news agencies.

The government spokesman said Duarte was played a message, apparently tape recorded, from his daughter on Monday in which she said she was well and was a prisoner of the Pedro Pablo Castillo Front of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front.

The Castillo Front is an obscure rebel group that claims to represent Salvadoran political prisoners. The Farabundo Marti Front, known as the FMLN, is the umbrella organization for five leftist guerrilla armies fighting the government.

The FMLN has not said what, if any role, it had in the kidnapping.

Government officials have said the guerrillas' silence on the abduction and their political front's denial of involvement has raised speculation that the rebel high command did not order it.

"It is our analysis now that it was people within the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front but that they were acting independently, without orders from above," said a government official who spoke on condition he not be identified.

"You have guerrillas in the city and in the countryside. How do you control 6,500 guerrillas?" he said.

Rival Moslem militias fight house to house in Tripoli

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Rival Moslem militas fought from house to house today in a street battle that convulsed the northern port of Tripoli for the fifth day. Police said five militiamen were killed in gunfire and artillery duels.

Six Lebanese army soldiers also were reported wounded as the pro-Syrian Arabian Knights and the Palestinian-backed Tahweed Islami movement contined to battle for control of Tripoli, Lebanon's second largest city.

Police said the soldiers were wounded during a raid by Tahweed Islami on an officers' club, during which jeeps and munitions were taken. The army has not participated in the Tripoli fighting, and the overnight attack suggested Tawheed may be running short of ammunition.

Fighters from the rival Moslem militas continued their close-quarter combat today for control of high-rise buildings between the densely populated districts of Baal Mohsen and Bab Tabbaneh, police in Tripoli said.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Mexico restricts imports

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The government prohibited as of Wednesday the importation of 311 luxury items in another attempt to conserve badly needed foreign exchange.

The ban on luxury goods, among them wines, perfumes, china and electrical appliances, came only weeks after the government had eliminated some commercial barriers to foreign products.

The Commerce Department, in a list published in the federal register, said that "exceptions will be authorized only when the merchandise that is intended to be introduced to the country is not produced in Mexico and proves strictly necessary to carry out industrial activities, investigation and education or is required to be used in programs for exports or the tourism sector."

Included on the list are several types of cheese, Christmas trees, nuts, prunes, coffee, prepared meats, caviar, sweets, olives and dried fruits.

Also banned are imported beers, such wines as sherry and port, champagne, whiskey, brandy and cognac, perfumes, clothing and accessories, china, mirrors, electrical appliances, paintings and sculpture.

Czech couple seeks aid

LONDON (AP) — A Czechoslovak couple who are devout Adventist Christians have appealed for help from the West to avoid being incarcerated in a psychiatric hospital, a British human rights group said.

Keston College, a London institute that monitors religious dissidents in the Eastern Bloc, said Wednesday that Jindriska and Karel Korinek, residents of Prostejov, were told July 8 that Brno Regional Court had rejected their appeal of an earlier district court ruling recommending "medical incarceration."

The couple claim they have been victimized by authorities since 1967 because of their adherence to strict religious practices, Keston College said.

The report could not immediately be confirmed by independent sources.

Crash caused by ill driver

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — An error by the driver of a passenger train who became suddenly ill caused a weekend crash that killed five people and injured 56, investigators said.

Daniel Hofman, who led the investigation, told reporters Wednesday that the Geneva-Lausanne train slammed into two coupled locomotives Saturday after the driver failed to stop at a warning signal. The coupled locomotives had the right of way, he said.

Both drivers and three Swiss passengers were killed.

GENERAL NEWS

Tax hikes would hit recent grads, travelers, smokers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Less than a year after President Reagan was reelected on a no-tax-increase platform, the Republican-controlled Senate Finance Committee is taking steps to raise taxes — with Democratic support.

The committee approved three tax increases Wednesday and hoped to complete action today on a fourth — boosting the federal tax on cigarettes.

While the votes would not result in a general tax increase, they would require that millions of people who fit into various groups — smokers, travelers, recent graduates or state and local government employees — pay more money to the federal treasury.

Most Republicans on the committee have agreed publicly with Reagan that taxes should not be raised to reduce the government deficit. But all voted for one or more of the tax increases — as did most Democrats — for the purpose of reducing the deficit.

Democrats could not resist reminding the Republicans of past promises. And as the panel voted to require state and local government workers to pay taxes into the Medicare fund, even Chairman Bob Packwood, R-Ore., volunteered: "This is a tax increase. There's no question."

But the committee is not considering a general tax increase — anything that would raise income taxes on most Americans. And there is little indication any such action is coming in the near future. The House Ways and Means Committee, controlled by Democrats, has approved tax increases similar to those in the Senate plan — but without GOP support.

The senators have their hands full of controversy with the cigarette tax.

The tax, now 16 cents a pack, is scheduled to drop to 8 cents on Oct. 1. But that is unlikely to happen, because of the government's shortage of money. The big question is what level of tax is proper — and anything above 8 cents will be considered a tax increase under Reagan's budget.

The committee voted 10-8 Wednesday against a 32-cent tax and was preparing to vote on 20 cents when Majority Leader Robert J. Dole offered a compromise that, he said, was supported by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chairman of the Agriculture Committee, and other tobacco-state senators.

In exchange for accepting a 16-cent permanent tax, Dole said, Helms was demanding that the Finance Committee attach to the legislation a far-reaching plan, supposedly supported by the cigarette companies, that would revamp federal price supports for tobacco.

The Finance Committee has no jurisdiction over that plan, which must be cleared by Helms' panel, several Democrats complained. As Democrats threatened to attach their own pet farm amendments to the tax bill, Packwood delayed the whole cigarette issue until today.

The committee disposed of another touchy dispute by exempting walkers, bicyclists and people in private cars from a $5 fee that would hit millions who come into the United States through Customs stations. As approved by the panel, the fee would apply to passengers who enter by commercial train, plane, bus or ship, exempting those from Canada, Mexico and the Caribbean.

O'Neill: Tax overhaul has no chance through Congress this year

WASHINGTON (AP) — A decision by leaders to try to adjourn Congress by Thanksgiving has all but dashed President Reagan's hope of seeing tax reform legislation on his desk by the end of the year.

"I don't think it has any chance of getting through Congress this year," House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said Wednesday. He made the comment following a private meeting with Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., and other top leaders from both sides of the Capitol to discuss the legislative agenda for the remainder of the year.

O'Neill emphasized that the House will pass a tax bill this year, but Dole and the speaker said it was unlikely both houses of Congress could complete action on the measure this year.

"We've agreed that we're going to be out of here before Thanksgiving" for the year, O'Neill said.

Earlier Wednesday, Dole repeated his view that "I don't see how we can finish it this year."

Congressional leaders discussed the calendar as the president was in the midst of another out-of-town stop in his sales campaign for his proposals to revise the federal tax code.

Reagan scoffed at suggestions there is little enthusiasm for the plan he has made one of his top domestic priorities for the fall.

"There are politicians in Washington — some of the same ones who constructed this tax code monstrosity — who say you, the American people, are not interested in tax reform," Reagan told a cheering crowd from the steps of the New Hampshire State House in Concord.

"The political establishment back in Washington says you don't care about these things," he said. "I say the Washington establishment is out of touch with the people."

But members of Congress say the calendar and more pressing business is pushing final action on a major tax bill into next year.

O'Neill, Dole, House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia and House Republican Leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois compared lists of "must" legislation Wednesday and generally agreed they must act first on:

— Deficit-reduction measures.

— Money bills to finance government operations.

— Renewal of expiring farm subsidy programs.

— An increase in the government's authority to borrow money.

— A renewal of the government's "Superfund" toxic waste cleanup program.

— Possibly trade legislation.

O'Neill, wary of Reagan blaming Democrats for foot-dragging on the tax legislation, always stresses that the House will act this year, but he said, "We didn't anticipate that the tax bill would be ready (for the Senate) until sometime at least the middle of October or late October."

The House Ways and Means Committee's first formal meeting to discuss the tax bill and alternatives to it is scheduled for Sept. 26. No votes are likely before Sept. 30.

Bundle of joy takes parents by surprise

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — With only an hour and a half advance warning that they were about to become parents for the third time, Sharon and Dutch Harnitz compressed nine months of pre-natal anxiety into 90 minutes of quick adjustment.

Cory Andre Harnitz was born at 1:32 a.m. Sunday, shortly after Mrs. Harnitz awoke feeling discomfort from what she thought was a bladder infection.

"I woke up and the bed was wet. I felt pressure and went into the bathroom, and that's when I saw the baby's foot in the mirror," she said Monday while cuddling her new baby in her room on the obstetrical wing of Immanuel-St. Joseph's Hospital.

She called her husband, who was at work, and broke the news. "He was shocked," she said.

He rushed home and drove her to the hospital where the baby was born by Caesarean section a short time later.

Surgical delivery was used because the baby was in a breech position, said Mrs. Harnitz. Her obstetrician, Dr. Stephen Penkhus, could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

Pediatrician Donald Swenson told the Harnitzes their baby, who weighed 4 pounds, 9 ounces at birth, was four or five weeks shy of being full-term.

"He's healthy. He seems to be OK," Swenson said of the infant.

> "He's healthy. He (the Harnitz baby) seems to be OK. It's quite common for someone not to know (they're pregnant) for four, five or six months but this is very rare."
>
> — Dr. Donald Swenson

"It's quite common for someone not to know (they're pregnant) for four, five or six months but this is very rare," he said.

An internist Mrs. Harnitz saw recently for a urinary tract infection did not discover the pregnancy, probably because a full examination was not needed, Swenson said.

Mrs. Harnitz, who is overweight, said the pregnancy went undetected because after she had had gall bladder surgery about 1½ years ago, her menses became very light for a while, then stopped.

"I thought I was going going through an early menopause," said the 41-year-old mother.

The couple's older children, Andre, 20, and Kelly, 17, were surprised, but excited, said Mrs. Harnitz.

Surprised is what Sharon and Dutch Harnitz of Mankato, Minn. were to have a new baby on Sunday, especially since they didn't know Sharon was pregnany.

De Lorean breaks free of 'deadliest sin'

John De Lorean

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — He speaks as if emerging from a long illness, a disease called egomania which devoured his fortune, broke up his marriage and dragged his name through the courts in a celebrated criminal trial.

John Z. De Lorean, still mourning the loss of his car company and devastated by his divorce from model Cristina Ferrare, says he's recovering slowly. And he's written a book to tell his side of the story.

"I believe I deserve what happened to me," De Lorean said, a year after his acquittal on cocaine trafficking charges and two years after the collapse of his auto company.

"The deadliest sin is pride," he said. "I was an arrogant egomaniac. I needed this, as difficult as it was, to get my perspective back. My relationship with the Lord more than compensates for anything that happened to me."

This is the new De Lorean style — religious, relaxed, self-deprecating and at times even humorous.

Speaking of his wife's re-marriage to ABC-TV executive Tony Thomopoulos, De Lorean quipped: "She said he reminded her of me. I guess we do have a lot in common. I put Pontiac in third place and he put ABC in third place."

Tooling around Beverly Hills in his decidedly unglamorous truck, the striking-looking, silver-haired De Lorean, in blue jeans and a denim shirt, was deeply tanned and 35 pounds slimmer than at his trial.

He spoke of the future while he ran errands preparing for a trip to San Diego for a church benefit for the homeless. Also on his agenda was a tour to promote his just published autobiography, "De Lorean," and negotiations for a movie deal. Then there's a plan to move back to New York and to build sportscars again.

At 60, John Z. De Lorean, the ultimate survivor, clearly is back in the race.

He predicted that the tangled litigation in Detroit over his bankrupt car company will soon be over, and he'll be in business again. He said he plans to sue the U.S. and British governments for violating his civil rights, claiming the two governments conspired to have him caught in a "sting" operation involving cocaine.

But the problems which preoccupy De Lorean most are personal. He hasn't recovered from the breakup of his "perfect marriage" to Ms. Ferrare, a fashion model who became a TV talk show host after De Lorean's acquittal.

"If this were a fairy tale," he says in his book, "Cristina and I would have taken our children and ridden off into the sunset to live happily ever after."

Instead, he said, his wife of 12 years told him a month after his trial that she was leaving him to marry Thomopoulos with whom she had been having an affair. De Lorean said he had been under too much stress during his trial to notice signals that his wife was straying.

"Of all the things that happened to me, that was the most shattering," De Lorean said. "I lost 33 pounds in 90 days. It was an absolutely shattering experience."

Only his religious experience as a born-again Christian has saved him from despondency during the divorce, De Lorean said, declaring, "I wouldn't be alive today if it weren't for the Lord."

He said the two De Lorean children, Zachary, 13, and Kathryn, 7, have suffered emotionally from the divorce and Zachary at one point ran away from home after a dispute with his mother.

"We found him wandering on Sunset Boulevard," De Lorean recalled. Zachary, who spent the summer with his father, recently moved in with Mrs. Thomopoulos, who also has temporary custody of Kathryn. Both children will visit De Lorean on vacations.

De Lorean said "tremendous hostility" remains as he and Cristina battle for custody of the children. "Right now, we don't communicate at all."

His return to New York, he said, is motivated by finances but may help him make a new start and leave unhappy memories behind.

Money remains important to De Lorean, who was a powerful General Motors executive before he quit to launch his De Lorean Motor Car Co. He said he has been living on a $1 million advance he received for his book.

His New York apartment and New Jersey farm can't be sold because of the pending bankruptcy proceedings, he said. He decided to move back to the New York apartment because he can't afford the elegant Beverly Hills home he has been leasing.

De Lorean still owes thousands to the attorneys who defended him in Los Angeles. If he should be indicted in a Detroit investigation of his car company finances, he said he will need more money for lawyers. A movie deal might pay the bills, he added.

Asked whether he worried about being able to maintain his expensive lifestyle, De Lorean was optimistic.

He said: "Every time I get buried and I'm three months behind in everything, some money just shows up from somewhere. The Lord takes care of you — that's what I believe."

WWII baby meets American father, 40 years late

PITTSBURGH (AP) — An Englishwoman born of a short World War II marriage sought out her American father after almost 40 years because she wanted her son to have a "a proper granddad" and she felt time was running out.

That search led to a reunion here this week between Lorraine Bedford, 39, and her father, James Roth, 62, of Holiday, Fla.

"I think we're both surprised that we wanted each other, you know," said Mrs. Bedford, of Shipston-on-Stour, England.

"I grew up thinking there was something slightly wrong because nobody talked to me about my father. So I was embarrassed to ask," she said Wednesday.

The reunion took place in Pittsburgh because father and daughter were brought together by Pittsburgh Post-Gazette reporter Mark Roth, whose aid Mrs. Bedford sought after she saw him interviewed on British television.

Since Roth is an uncommon name in England, she hoped he might be related to her father and wrote him asking for help.

After locating incomplete military records, the reporter called James Roth's hometown of Oley, in Berks County, and found a secretary who knew the former GI's sister, who still lived nearby.

A telephone call was arranged, and Mrs. Bedford and her father spoke for the first time on Father's Day.

Roth, a U.S. Army private, married Mrs. Bedford's mother, Joan Cicely Hawkins, a British army private, in 1945. The newlyweds were separated after only a few days when Roth was sent to fight on the continent.

Roth said he and his wife had agreed before marriage to live in the United States after the war. So he returned home to Reading, where he furnished an apartment in anticipation of the arrival of his bride and their newborn daughter.

"I kept writing letters. She'd never answer questions about coming over," Roth said. "In March 1946, I heard she wasn't coming over."

Roth remarried. He and his wife of 37 years, Leona, have two daughters.

He said he decided not to search for his daughter, thinking she might have been adopted by a stepfather. He also feared "her mother told her bad things like I abandoned them and she didn't want anything to do with me."

The father and daughter spent Wednesday in a hotel and in downtown parks chatting about "the things that you take for granted."

Mrs. Bedford, her husband, Bill, and their son, Robert, plan to visit with Roth and his wife in Pittsburgh until Friday, when they all will fly to Roth's Florida home. Roth said he plans a trip to England next year.

"Mainly, we plan up here just to get to know each other," he said. "Down there we've got Disney World and I've got to take Robert to see Mickey Mouse."

"I think there's a lot of things to see in America, but the best one sat right by me," his daughter said.

Mrs. Bedford said she began searching for Roth after her son was born four years ago. She said she wanted to give him "a proper granddad."

"You get the feeling that time's running out as you get older," said Mrs. Bedford, who also has a 20-year-old daughter.

"She didn't know how close that was," said Roth, who had heart surgery in 1983 and cancer of the throat in 1984.

BUYERS GUIDE
IMPORTANT: Spoken promises are difficult to enforce. Ask the dealer to put all promises in writing. Keep this form.
WARRANTIES FOR THIS VEHICLE:
☐ AS IS—NO WARRANTY
YOU WILL PAY ALL COSTS FOR ANY REPAIRS. The dealer assumes no responsibility for any repairs regardless of any oral statements about the vehicle.
☒ WARRANTY
☐ FULL ☒ LIMITED WARRANTY. The dealer will pay 100 % of the labor and 100 % of the parts for the covered systems that fail during the warranty period. Ask the dealer for a copy of the warranty document for a full explanation of warranty coverage, exclusions, and the dealer's repair obligations. Under state law, "implied warranties" may give you even more rights.
SYSTEMS COVERED: Engine: Cylinder Block and All Internal Parts, Cylinder Head Assemblies, Timing Case, Chain, Gears, Belt and Sprockets, Harmonic Balancer, Oil Pump, Water Pump. Transmission: Case and all Internal Parts, Torque Converter, Drive Plate, Flex Plate, Fly Wheel. Rear Axle: Housing, Transaxle Case or Rear Axle Housing and all Internal Parts, Drive Shaft and Axle Shaft Assemblies and their Housings, Axle Shaft Bearings, Drive Shaft Center Bearings, Constant Velocity Joints, Universal Joints and Yokes
DURATION: All listed components are covered for 3 Months from the vehicle sale date or 3,000 miles from the vehicle's odometer reading at the time of vehicle sale, whichever comes first, after payment by the customer of the first $50 of covered repair costs for each repair visit.
☒ SERVICE CONTRACT. A service contract is available at an extra charge on this vehicle. Ask for details as to coverage, deductible, price, and exclusions. If you buy a service contract within 90 days of the time of sale, state law "implied warranties" may give you additional rights.
PRE PURCHASE INSPECTION: ASK THE DEALER IF YOU MAY HAVE THIS VEHICLE INSPECTED BY YOUR MECHANIC EITHER ON OR OFF THE LOT.
SEE THE BACK OF THIS FORM for important additional information, including a list of some major defects that may occur in used motor vehicles.
