Senators to return to redistricting

By NATALIE GOTT
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

AUSTIN (AP) — After several tough days last week, state senators returned to the Capitol this week to try to figure out how to redraw congressional districts in a way that satisfies most of the chamber.

The Senate Jurisprudence Committee has been presented proposed maps by Sen. Todd Staples, chairman of the Senate Republican Caucus, and Sen. Jeff Wentworth, R-San Antonio. On Monday, Staples presented yet another map, replacing the proposal he laid out last week.

Republicans seek to give the Texas GOP as many as 22 seats in Congress, compared to 10 for the Democrats. Wentworth says his plan could give Texas Republicans a 19-13 majority in Congress.

The new map keeps Webb County in one district, but divides Hidalgo County into three districts, a move some South Texas lawmakers have adamantly opposed. A district that runs along northern Travis County now extends northwest to Lampasas County and northeast to Robertson County, but does not stretch into Harris County as it previously had. Staples' first map split Webb County into two districts and Hidalgo County was divided into two districts.

Committee chairman Robert Duncan, R-Lubbock, set Wednesday as the target date for the committee to vote on a plan.

Republicans are leading the charge to redraw the congressional boundaries during the special session that ends July 29.

Lawmakers failed to draw the districts during the 2001 legislative session, leaving federal judges to create the current plan. Democrats hold a 17-15 margin in the delegation. The GOP says that voting trends show that Republicans should have more representation in the Texas congressional delegation.

Democrats in the Senate are nearly united in their opposition to the plan. All but one of the 12 Democrats in the chamber have signed a letter saying they are opposed to passing a redistricting bill.

Sen. Bill Ratliff of Mount Pleasant is the only Republican who has signed the letter but he and the 11 Democrats are enough to block a bill from getting

Bobwhite Brigade teaches important ecology lessons

By CODY MATHEWS
SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

Canadian FFA member Cody Mathews, a sixth generation rancher on the King Ranch in Lipscomb County, attended the 11th Battalion of the Rolling Plains Bobwhite Brigade recently at the Krooked River Ranch near Leuders.

Mathews was sponsored by the Hemphill County Soil and Water Conservation District. This intense camp followed a rigorous schedule from 6:30 am until midnight.

Motivation and teamwork were stressed at every opportunity. Cadets learned to march to cadences promoting ecological lessons such as, "Texas ranchers they've got class. Bobwhite quail nest in bunchgrass," and "Cattle grazing is okay, if it's done the proper way."

Campers were divided into "coveys." These groups worked together each day to complete assignments, assemble presentations and compete in contests.

Cadets learned about bobwhite quail anatomy, behavior, predation and habitat management. Each camper studied taxidermy and completed a quail mount to take home.

Sessions were held in wildlife conservation, preservation and management. Plant collection and identification were also learned. Each cadet improved their media interview skills, journalism and public speaking skills. They also received instruction in radio telemetry, firearm safety and wildlife photography.

The main emphasis during this camp was leadership. Cadets were encouraged to motivate themselves and each other to improving in all areas of life. They were taught how to step up and be a leader and to know when to take charge. Leadership involves being a positive role model and taking the time to help others.

The Bobwhite Brigade encourages participants to return home and educate the public by writing articles and giving presentations promoting the Texas Brigades.

Anyone interested in a presentation for their organization can contact Mathews at (806) 323-9946 or e-mail him at wildlife_mgt@hotmail.com.

Bronze Star recipient dies in Iraq ambush

HOUSTON (AP) — A Texas soldier who earned a Bronze Star for bravery died over the weekend in an ambush while on patrol in Iraq, military officials say.

U.S. Army Lt. Jonathan D. Rozier of Katy was killed Saturday when his unit was attacked by rocket-propelled grenades and small-arms fire in Baghdad, just outside a municipal building, according to the Defense Department.

Rozier died just three days after his 25th birthday, becoming the fifth Houston-area soldier to have died serving in Iraq.

"There were no limits to his aspirations," said his father, David Rozier of Katy. "He wanted to have a career in the military, clear through to retirement."

The younger Rozier, assigned to B Company, 2-70th Armor Battalion, 1st Armored Division out of Fort Riley, Kan., had won the Bronze Star for valor during the battle of Al Hillah. Just 15 of the 4,000 Bronze Stars awarded during Operation Iraqi Freedom were given for valor.

Rozier, a Dallas native, moved to Katy with his family in 1991. He graduated from Texas A&M University in 2001 with a bachelor's degree in economics and also married that year. He and his wife, Jessica, have a 9-month-old baby, Justin.

"We certainly knew he would be in danger," said Rozier's father.

The last time the soldier had spoken with his wife was the day before he was killed.

"We thank God that she had the opportunity to talk with him and that they had the opportunity to talk about the future," said his father. "That was a real blessing."

The Defense Department said in a prepared statement Sunday that the lieutenant's unit was providing security at the municipal building when the attack occurred.

"He loved the Army, he loved everything about it - he knew it was a cause worth fighting and dying for," Jimmy Parker, a family friend, said Sunday.

City Commission to meet Tuesday

Pampa City Commissioners plan to public recognize the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association and Gray County for their work at the regular meeting at 6 p.m., Tuesday, July 22, in City Hall.

Commissioners also will consider advertising for bids for the sale of paint booths in the old U.S. Bus Building, 822 E. Foster before meeting in executive session to discuss an appointment to the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority.

The commission will continue to review the proposed 2003-2004 budget in a work session at 5 p.m. in the main floor conference room.

Diplomatic focus on Mideast shifts to Washington

JERUSALEM (AP) — The diplomatic drive for progress on a Mideast peace plan widened Monday when the Palestinian premier headed to Egypt for talks and the European Union hosted the Israeli and Palestinian foreign ministers in Brussels.

The discussions follow a summit on Sunday between Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon and Palestinian Prime Minister Mahmoud Abbas that yielded no breakthroughs, shifting focus on the leaders' upcoming trips to Washington to meet with President Bush.

Sharon was also expected to address parliament later Monday.

A temporary cease-fire declared by main Palestinian militant groups on June 29 has greatly reduced violence, but progress on the U.S.-backed "road map" peace plan has been thwarted by an Israeli-Palestinian standoff over conditions for moving ahead.

The Palestinians are pushing for a mass release of Palestinians held in Israeli jails, further Israeli withdrawals from West Bank towns and other steps. The Israelis say they cannot move on those demands until the Palestinians begin disarming militant groups responsible for attacks that have killed hundreds of Israelis.

Abbas was to head to Egypt on Monday for talks with President Hosni Mubarak, to be followed by a visit to

Marines receive orders to positions near Liberia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 4,500 more American sailors and Marines have been ordered to position themselves closer to Liberia amid renewed fighting in the West African nation, officials said Monday.

Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld signed a deployment order over the weekend ordering a three-ship amphibious ready group from its position off the Horn of Africa into the Mediterranean Sea, defense officials said. That would put the group in a position to get to the west coast of Africa faster, if needed for an evacuation of Americans, peacekeeping or some other mission.

Heavy fighting the Liberian capital Monday killed at least 60 people as mortars barraged the city in a battle between rebels and forces of President Charles Taylor.

Angry Liberians lined up at least 18 bodies in the street outside the U.S. Embassy compound, after a shell hit an American diplomatic compound across the street, where at least 10,000 refugees have taken refuge.

With the weekend deployment order, it would take the amphibious group several days to get into the Mediterranean, where it would await further orders, Pentagon officials said. From there, it would take seven to 10 days to get to Liberia, if ordered to do so, officials said.

There are 2,000 Marines and 2,500 sailors in the group, led by the USS Iwo Jima, which has been in the Horn of Africa region as part of the global war on terrorism. It would typically be only the Marines who would go ashore.

Some 200 Americans already have been sent to Liberia and nearby countries since African nations and the United Nations asked for U.S. help.

On a request from the U.S. Ambassador John W. Blaney, 41 Marines were sent Sunday to Monrovia to reinforce security at the American Embassy in the war-shattered capital.

There are 32 other Americans in Liberia from two teams sent to assess the humanitarian needs and the military situation. President Bush has said their report will help him decide how to respond to calls for Americans to lead a peacekeeping force made up partly of African troops.

The report was submitted to officials late last week, but its details have not been publicly disclosed.

There also are 100 Americans in neighboring countries standing by with aircraft as transportation or for possible evacuation of the assessment teams.

The Bush administration doesn't want to send peacekeepers until Taylor steps down. Liberians, Taylor, and leaders from a number of countries have called for the United States to send some 2,000 troops to lead the force in Liberia, founded in the 19th century by freed American slaves.

On Sunday, the State Department decried the renewed violence, calling it "the latest round of serious ceasefire violations."

"We call on all parties to immediately cease all military activity and focus on the ... peace talks in Accra, Ghana," said spokesman Philip Reeker, referring to talks under the Economic Community of West African States.

Index of leading indicators rises for third consecutive month

A key measure of future economic activity increased slightly in June for the third month in a row, in line with analysts' expectations.

The Conference Board reported Monday that its Index of Leading Economic Indicators rose by 0.1 percent in June to 111.8, after a 1.1 percent rise in May and a 0.1 percent rise in April.

The report lent support to the view among economists that the worst was over, although it did not alter their opinion that consumers and businesses still are on shaky ground.

"I still think we need to be a little cautious," said Ken Goldstein, an economist for the board.

"But," he added, "we may finally, after a year and a half delay, be moving into a real recovery."

Sung Won Sohn, chief economist at Wells Fargo in Minneapolis, was equally circumspect.

"We have really not seen meaningful economic growth so far, especially in employment," Sohn said.

The index measures where the overall U.S. economy is headed in the next three to six months. It stood at 100 in 1996, its base year.

Four of the 10 components of the leading index rose in June, including the real money supply, stock prices and building permits.

MIDEAST

King Abdullah II in Jordan, most likely on Wednesday. The trip will lead to Washington, where Abbas is to meet Bush at the White House on Friday. Sharon is scheduled to meet separately with Bush on July 29.

In Brussels on Monday, Israeli Foreign Minister Silvan Shalom and his Palestinian counterpart, Nabil Shaath, joined the European Union foreign ministers for back-to-back meetings. EU diplomats said logistics prevented a joint session.

The EU helped the United States, Russia and the United Nations draft the "road map" plan, which calls for an end to violence and a Palestinian state by 2005. EU officials said they wanted to make sure on Monday that the plan is being implemented and press for more confidence-building measures.

"We are sticking to full implementation of the road map," German Foreign Minister Joschka Fischer said heading into the talks.

On Sunday, each side indicated willingness to move toward the other — the Palestinians by outlawing violent groups and the Israelis by hinting at new flexibility over release of prisoners.

Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat on Sunday reissued a 1998 decree outlawing incitement to violence and advocating change by use of force, a move aimed at militant groups and anchoring a shaky ceasefire in Palestinian law.

The meeting, the fourth in Jerusalem between Sharon and Abbas in recent weeks, produced no concrete results on the prisoner dispute and other issues.

Israel currently holds some 7,700 Palestinians in jail and has agreed to release several hundred, though it has refused to free anyone directly involved in attacks on Israelis. Abbas, however, is pressing the Israelis to release thousands of them, including members of militant groups Hamas and Islamic Jihad.

Sharon agreed to consider widening the scope of the releases, but postponed a special ministerial committee meeting on that until after he returns from Washington. The Palestinians said they were disappointed by the delay, hoping that the United States would urge the Israelis to move faster.

Underscoring the fragility of Israeli-Palestinian peace efforts, a 64-year old Israeli man was moderately wounded late Sunday in a stabbing attack in Jerusalem.

Israel Police spokesman Gil Kleiman said authorities were treating the incident as a probable terrorist attack.

Also on Sunday a Palestinian man was killed when he activated an explosive charge at a passing Israeli patrol near the West Bank city of Jenin, military sources said. No Israelis were injured in the incident. Palestinian security officials identified the bomber as Rami Isleit, 23, a member of Islamic Jihad.

In what appeared to be an effort to satisfy Israel's demands for action against the militants, the decree issued by Arafat bans "incitement that encourages the use of violence that harms the relations with foreign countries" and says violators would be judged according to Palestinian law.

In language that seemed directed at militant groups, it also bans "illegal organizations that encourage violence and arouse the public to bring about change through force" and "incitement that encourages the violation of the agreements signed by the PLO and foreign countries."

SENATORS

out of the Senate if a rule requiring support from two-thirds of the chamber's 31 members before a bill can be debated stays in place.

That may not be enough to stop the bill from passing though.

If lawmakers fail to pass a redistricting bill this session and Gov. Rick Perry calls lawmakers back again, Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst, who presides over the Senate, said he would do away with the rule so that only a majority of senators would be needed to vote to let a redistricting bill be debated on the floor.

Democrats are weighing their options.

"Our options are showing up and getting rolled over or having to leave," said Sen. Leticia Van de Putte, meaning the senators could boycott the Senate. "All options are realistic at this point."

Van de Putte is chairwoman of the Senate Democratic Caucus.

When a redistricting bill faced state representatives during the regular session, 51 House Democrats fled to Oklahoma, breaking a quorum and killing the redistricting bill.

Dewhurst is standing firm in his resolve to get a map approved.

"Quite frankly, we are either going to come up with a fair plan now or we are going to come up with a fair plan later," Dewhurst told reporters last week.

He is urging Democrats to work with Republicans on a fair plan and said he believes there is a plenty of time to reach an agreement.

"I think we are going to come together," Dewhurst said. "It may be in August. I hope its in July."

DEAR ABBY

written by Pauline Phillips and daughter Jeanne Phillips

Checklist For Checkups Will Help Readers Stay Healthy

DEAR ABBY: People want to stay healthy at any age. In order to accomplish that, they need the most current information on how to prevent disease. They also need a practical tool to help them when they talk to their doctors.

The Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality (AHRQ), part of the U.S. Department of Health & Human Services (HHS), has developed screening test checklists for women and men, which include the most recent recommendations from the U.S. Preventive Services Task Force. They describe which tests you need, when and why.

"Women: Stay Healthy at Any Age, A Checklist for Your Next Checkup" lists screening tests such as mammograms, Pap smears, colorectal cancer and depression, and pointers on eating a healthy diet and quitting smoking.

"Men: Stay Healthy at Any Age, A Checklist for Your Next Checkup" contains a similar checklist, including prostate cancer screening, STDs, cholesterol checks, blood pressure and an immunization schedule.

I hope you will pass the word along to your readers, Abby.

TOMMY G. THOMPSON,
SECRETARY, HHS

DEAR SECRETARY THOMPSON: Thank you for a helpful letter. Effective medical care consists not only of curing illness, but also in giving people the necessary tools to prevent disease.

Dear Abby readers can request these free, pocket-size booklets in English or Spanish by calling the AHRQ publications clearinghouse toll-free: (800) 358-9295, or sending an e-mail: ahrqpubs@ahrq.gov. To download these prevention and wellness booklets — and many others — visit the Web site: www.ahrq.gov/consumer.

DEAR ABBY: I am home for the summer after my freshman year at college and need some advice about my mother's behavior.

Before I left, I thought Mom and I had a normal mother/daughter relationship. However, the whole time I was away at school, not once did she ever call, write or e-mail me. (My father did stay in close contact.)

Now that I'm home, Mother gets annoyed by everything I do and say. Five days ago, I became so stressed about my summer job and things going on in my personal life that I started to cry. Mom marched into my room and screamed at me to "stop bawling!"

I screamed back, telling her to leave me alone. She continued to yell at me, saying I don't appreciate all she's done for me. Nothing could be further from the truth! I have always been grateful to both of my parents and have worked hard to make them proud of me.

Then Mom floored me by saying she "didn't need me around" and "didn't want me anymore." I ran out of my room sobbing and we haven't spoken since. She occupies herself with her girlfriends and her women's club.

Abby, my poor father feels caught in the middle. Can you please help me sort out what to do?

SAD AND DESPERATE IN VERMONT

DEAR SAD AND DESPERATE: Have a frank talk with your father about your mother and find out what has caused her change of behavior. You are an adult, and you have the right to know. It appears that she is overwhelmed, stressed and angry about something — and it may have nothing to do with you. Since there appears to be a major communication problem right now, ask your father to schedule some appointments so the three of you can talk this out in family counseling. If your mother refuses to go, you and your father should go without her.

PAMPA — KGRO (1320 AM) Radio will broadcast the State 11-12 Softball Tournament game between Pampa and Waco Midway at 4 p.m. Tuesday in Waco.

The Pampa All-Stars are the Section 1 champion.

FOOTBALL

LUBBOCK — The West rallied past the East 36-28 to win the Six-Man Coaches Association All-Star Football game 3628 Saturday night at Lowrey Field.

The West scored 30 points in the second half for the comeback victory.

Fort Elliott quarterback Jason Hathaway played a key role for the West when he threw a 10-yard touchdown pass to Whitharral's Brandon Hoskins late in the fourth quarter. That turned out to be the final TD of the game as the East failed to score in the final 16 seconds.

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — The New York Jets signed first-round pick Dewayne Robertson on Sunday. The 6-foot-1, 317-pound defensive tackle out of Kentucky was the fourth overall pick in the draft.

BASKETBALL

LUBBOCK — Fort Elliott's Tamara Hartline helped lead the North squad to a lopsided 64-35 win over the South in last weekend's Texas Six-Man Coaches Association All-Star Girls Game.

Hartline was the North's second leading scorer with 8 points. Hedley's Lauren Hill led the North with 9 points.

Alisha Stegemoller of Priddy led the South in scoring with 12 points.

BASEBALL

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Wins are tough enough for Tampa Bay. Blowout victories are even rarer.

On Sunday, the Devil Rays accomplished both in a 15-4 rout of the Texas Rangers.

Tampa Bay turned the tables on Rangers, who have 140 homers this season. The Devil Rays outhomered Texas 4-1, including three-run shots by Aubrey Huff, Al Martin and Travis Lee.

"It's really a pleasant thing to watch," Tampa Bay manager Lou Piniella said.

The Devil Rays have gone deep 72 times. At home, they have been outhomered 67-33

The 15 runs equaled a team record and was the most ever at home for Tampa Bay, 8-8 in July after going a franchise-worst 5-21 in June.

A strange week, a surprise winner at British Open

SANDWICH, England (AP) — Hardly anyone knew Ben Curtis before the British Open.

He was a PGA Tour rookie who had never cracked the top 10. He was No. 396 in the world ranking and a 500-1 longshot with the British bookies. The first reaction from the local caddie hired on the spot to guide Curtis around Royal St. George's was, "Ben who?"

Strangely, the answer now is British Open champion.

Surprised?

Not on the most unpredictable links in golf. Not after one of the wackiest weeks in the game's oldest championship. Not even with Tiger Woods and an All-Star cast in position to restore order.

"Many people are probably saying, 'Well, he doesn't really belong there,' " Curtis said. "But I know I do, so that's all that matters."

He earned his spot in golfing lore by closing with a 2-under 69, leaving him the only player to break par at 283.

He got plenty of help from Thomas Bjorn, who took three shots to escape a pot bunker, dropped four shots on the final four holes and finished as the hard-luck runner-up with Vijay Singh.

"Major championships are sometimes won out of the blue," Bjorn said. "This is one 'won out of the blue' for sure."

The Open took a zany turn right from the start when Woods, the world's most watched player, lost his opening tee shot in the rough.

It ended with a player hardly anyone knew holding the claret jug.

Bjorn still had a chance to force a playoff with a birdie chip from just short of the 18th green. When the ball turned away, caddie Andy Sutton turned to Curtis on the practice range and said, "Ben, you're the Open champion."

The words might not have sounded so strange had he been talking to Hogan.

Then again, he was the perfect winner to cap the craziness that didn't end until Curtis' name was engraved on the jug.

Some highlights:

— Woods opened with a triple bogey when two dozen marshals and 2,000 fans couldn't figure out where his ball was hiding.

— Bjorn was penalized two strokes Thursday for slamming his club into a bunker after failing to get out — a no-no when the ball is still in the sand.

— Davis Love III hit a tee shot that was going out of bounds Friday until it ricocheted off a white boundary stake only 3 inches wide.

— Local hero Mark Roe, who would have been paired with Woods in the final round two shots behind, was disqualified Saturday for putting his score (67) on Jesper Parnevik's card.

The final surprise was the biggest of them all.

Curtis is believed to be the first player since Francis Ouimet at the 1913 U.S. Open to win a major championship in his first try.

"I came in here this week just trying to play the best I could, hopefully make the cut and compete on the weekend," he said. "Obviously, I did that and went out there and probably played the best weekend of my life."

Stars Modano honored by hometown

WESTLAND, Mich. (AP) — The city has renamed its ice arena in honor of hometown hero and NHL All-Star Mike Modano.

"You can take away the goals and the Stanley Cup and to have your name on an arena and have impact on children ... this is truly amazing," the 33-year-old Modano said at a renaming ceremony on Sunday.

"The city of Westland has always been good to me."

The Dallas Stars center is a two-time member of the U.S. Olympic hockey team. He was the No. 1 pick overall in the 1988 NHL draft.

He honed his skills by playing in various hockey leagues at the arena, which used to be called the Westland Sports Arena, The Detroit News reported.

Bagwell hits 400th career home run; Astros beat Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jeff Bagwell downplayed his 400th career homer, crediting longevity instead of his powerful swing.

Teammate Craig Biggio wouldn't hear of it.

"(Bagwell's) been a great hitter for us," Biggio said. "If he hadn't played in the Astrodome ... he might have 480 or 490."

Bagwell hit two home runs Sunday to become the 35th member of the 400-homer club, leading the Houston Astros to a 6-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

He drove in Houston's first four runs as the NL Central-leading Astros beat Cincinnati for the 10th straight time. The Astros completed their eighth series sweep of the season and have won 10 of their last 11 games.

Bagwell connected off Danny Graves (4-10) in the fourth and sixth innings to reach 400 homers, passing Dale Murphy and Al Kaline on the career list. Hall-of-Famer Duke Snider is next up with 407.

"I'm just glad that I've gotten the opportunity to play," Bagwell said. "I was a Punch-and-Judy hitter when I first came up. I hit 15 that year, and that was a lot for me.

"I'm just glad I got it over with. More important, I'm glad we won. It just means that I've played a long time."

The Reds have lost seven in a row at home, matching their longest skid since dropping nine straight in Cincinnati in 2001.

They dropped into fifth place in the NL Central when Pittsburgh beat Milwaukee.

Wade Miller (7-9) allowed three runs — two earned — and three hits in 5 1-3 innings to improve to 5-0 in 10 career appearances against the Reds. Miller struck out nine.

Jeff Kent added a solo homer in the ninth for Houston, his 12th of the season. It was also his first since June 18 — he was sidelined the next day with tendinitis in his left wrist and activated after the All-Star game.

The Astros manufactured a run in the first. Biggio led off with a double, moved to third on Morgan Ensberg's groundout and scored on Bagwell's sacrifice fly. Houston has outscored the Reds 25-2 in the first inning in 11 games this season.

Ensberg singled to lead off the fourth, and Bagwell followed with his 19th homer of the season. He took over the team lead with a two-out solo shot in the sixth.

Bagwell became the third Houston player in three games to hit two homers, following Richard Hidalgo on Friday and Lance Berkman on Saturday. Twelve players have had multihomer games against the Reds this season.

Miller didn't allow a hit until Jose Guillen singled with one out in the fourth. The Reds went on to load the bases, but Adam Dunn popped out and Jason LaRue struck out.

Permian claims 7-on-7 state title

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Shea Smith completed 26 of 31 passes for six touchdowns as Odessa Permian beat Burnet 41-27 in Saturday's 7-on-7 state championship at Kyle Field.

Smith, who will be a junior this fall, was the tournament's most valuable player.

Burnet led 20-19 at the half, but Permian had three TD receptions by DeCobian Williams, two in the second half.

Burnet's Texas A&M quarterback commitment Stephen McGee was 18-of-25 passing with four touchdowns. Jordan Shipley, a University of Texas receiver commitment, caught seven passes for one score.

In the consolation championship game, Southlake Carroll defeated Katy 54-40.

Armstrong has 15-second lead in Tour de France

LOUDENVIELLE-LE LOURON, France (AP) — After two grueling weeks, Lance Armstrong's bid to become the second rider to win the Tour de France five times straight hangs by the thinnest of threads.

Two more days in the Pyrenees and one final time trial should decide his fate. Trouble is, he's still not feeling his best.

"Something's not going right and there's nothing I can do about that now. All I can do is wake up every morning and do my best," Armstrong said Sunday after watching rival Alexandre Vinokourov get away from him.

Having started the day 61 seconds back, Vinokourov closed his gap with overall leader Armstrong to just 18 seconds. That leaves him, Armstrong and 1997 winner Jan Ullrich, just 15 seconds back, locked in a nail-biting battle with only six days of racing to the winner's podium in Paris.

Monday stage to Luz-Ardiden, with two monstrous ascents, will be crucial, offering Armstrong a vital opportunity to distance the two riders tightening the noose around him.

"Tomorrow is important — it's my big stage," said the 31-year-old Texan. "If I feel good, I will probably attack."

Armstrong wants a bigger cushion than 15 seconds over Ullrich, whom he views as his biggest rival, going into the final time trial to the town of Nantes next Saturday. Ullrich was devastating in a previous time trial Friday, taking a huge chunk out of Armstrong's overall lead.

"He's strong, so you have to wait until you see a weakness or a weak moment and so far I haven't seen that," Armstrong said of the 29-year-old German.

By this stage in previous years, Armstrong had a comfortable lead. Now in uncharted territory, he faces the prospect of being unable to equal Spanish great Miguel Indurain's record of five successive victories.

"I knew it was going to be close. I probably didn't expect it to come down to the last few decisive stages — two days in the mountains here ... and then the final time trial," he said.

"If we get to Nantes and I have 15 seconds and I lose by 16, you know it will go down as the closest Tour de France in history and I'll go home and have a cold beer and come back next year."

Cutting his losses, Armstrong stuck with Ullrich on Sunday, letting Vinokourov power ahead up the 5,158-foot Col de Peyresourde pass, the last of six climbs that made the stage one of the hardest of four in the Pyrenees.

"It's obvious that I'm not riding as well as I have in the years past. I can't exactly say why," Armstrong said. "I'm still not 100 percent and when you're lacking and when you're missing form, you've just got to rough it."

Vinokourov placed sixth in the 119-mile stage, 43 seconds ahead of both Armstrong and Ullrich. They finished 11th and 12th, 1 minute, 24 seconds behind winner Gilberto Simoni of Italy.

Ullrich's 15-second deficit to Armstrong overall did not change. Simoni took 5 hours, 31 minutes, 52 seconds to cover the jagged route from Saint-Girons to Loudenvielle-Le Louron.

Vinokourov said he was confident he can take the overall lead in the Pyrenees.

"It's still doable," said the soft-spoken 29-year-old rider for Team Telekom. "It's always a dream, I believed I would today, but there remains another hard stage tomorrow."

Horoscope BY JACQUELINE BIGAR

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Tuesday, July 22, 2003:
Never lose sight of your goal this year, and you will succeed. Often, major distractions surround you, though they vary in what they are. Don't be a victim of overthinking or becoming too analytical, except with funds. Finances could be a major concern, but do know that you can tame your spending if you so choose. You will make more money, but the key to your success is spending less. Also use a care within partnerships. What seems too good to believe probably is. If you are single, you will meet someone late in the year. This person could be quite special, encouraging you to settle down. If you are attached, your relationship will develop because of your willingness to team up and go for what you want. Refuse to create even more money issues. TAURUS helps you get what you want.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Though you might need to sort through a lot of information this morning, by the afternoon, you will have the full picture. You might not always act in sync with those around you. Be open to the brainstorming process, and your views could change considerably. Tonight: Your treat.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ Investigate what needs to happen to help others understand better and to have a more effective work situation. Talk to each individual, and you'll get a lot more feedback than you expected. Confusion surrounds a personal matter. Tonight: Act like the world is your oyster, because it is right now.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★ Sit back on your haunches before taking a strong action. You might need some extra time to sort through an opportunity. Everything might not be as clear as you would like it. Your discussions draw forth interesting information. Tonight: Take your time. Sort through a problem.
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ Though a partner could make a situation more than nebulous, trust yourself to get down to the very basics. You will need to focus on your goals and not settle for anything less. A work associate helps you along. Tonight: Where the gang is, but hold on to your wallet.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★ Continue to assume a leadership position at work, even if you might not like what comes your way. What you need to realize is that everyone has different priorities, so stay mellow and direct. Let differences of opinion exist. Tonight: A must show, which might have you grumbling.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Think out of the box. You might want to break a pattern or try something quite different. Observe a tendency to go to extremes, and this might not be you, but someone else. Detach, and you can keep a project on target. Tonight: Try a new vista.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★★ Work with each individual with the idea of getting key matters managed. You could find certain issues difficult to resolve. Spin that extra creative touch on a problem, and you'll find a solution. An associate or friend might be the source of incorrect information. Tonight: Make nice.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ Others make strong demands. You could find a superior more confused than he or she realizes. You might need to work with this individual carefully to make sure that both of you are speaking the same language. Tonight: Say "yes."
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★ Bite the bullet and decide to get the job done. Others have a distracting manner, and you might need to screen out distractions. You could be a lot happier if you flow with opportunities as they appear. Tonight: Easy does it.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★★ A partner has a unique style of expressing him- or herself. Think deeply about your response. You could be overwhelmed by someone's disorganization. Try to steer clear and tap into your imagination. Tonight: Ever playful.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★ Basics do count, but you might need to sort through a substantial amount of confusion. A friend attempts to put clarity into an interpersonal matter, and he or she will succeed. Still, you might have difficulty sorting through what others really mean. Tonight: Be direct, especially with family.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ Reach out for others, allowing for a greater sense of direction and opening up new pathways for communication. A boss has a strong sense of what is possible. Evaluate a decision more carefully. Tonight: Tell it like it is, especially involving a day-to-day matter.
