H. M. YOUNG, 33 SHOT, LUCIEN BARNETT HELD

Officers Unable To Learn Reason for Shooting Saturday

EXAMINATION MONDAY

Barnett Surrenders To Deputy Sheriff But Discloses No Reason

Special to The Record News.

HEADLEY, Texas, Feb. 5.—H. M. Young, 33, is dead and M. L. Barnett, 35, is in custody at Clarendon pending examining trial set for Monday, as a result of a fatal shooting Saturday in the outskirts of Headley on the Clarendon highway.

The shooting resulted in instant death for Young, according to eye-witnesses. Young was on his way to Clarendon in his automobile, a small coupe, when Barnett hailed him. Young halted his car, according to M. McLaughlin, witness, who resided at the shooting scene, and Barnett opened the door of the coupe, firing four shots into the driver's body.

One bullet passed through Young's neck, one entered his chest, and two lodged in his shoulder.

Immediately after the shooting, Barnett surrendered to Deputy Sheriff J. C. Coffey of Headley, who took him to Clarendon, county seat of Donley county.

Young is married and had one son, Robert, 14, with whom he resided in Headley at the home of his brother-in-law, R. E. Mann. Young's wife is in Tennessee and has been notified of his death.

Barnett is a single man and a brother of the late sheriff-elect, M. O. Barnett of Donley county.

DEAD MAN EMPLOYED BY DENVER RAILROAD.

HEADLEY, Texas, Feb. 5. (AP) H. M. Young, telegraph operator of the Fort Worth and Denver railroad here was shot and instantly killed here about 1 o'clock this morning. Two hours after the shooting Lucien Barnett, son of a prominent family here surrendered to the sheriff of Donley county at Clarendon in connection with the slaying. He is being held in jail at Clarendon without bond following the filing of formal charges of murder against him in connection with the affair.

Mystery surrounds the shooting and Barnett has refused to make a statement since surrendering to the sheriff.

Young had just left the railroad station and had driven his automobile 300 yards when Barnett, who was afoot stopped him. An argument apparently started and Barnett is alleged to have fired four bullets into Young's body.

J. R. Barnhill and J. L. Pallant, Amarillo oil men were the only eye witnesses to the shooting. They had to suddenly turn their car aside to avoid the rain of bullets. They did not hear the argument or have any idea of the shooting, according to officials of the sheriff's office at Clarendon.

AUSTIN, Feb. 5. (AP)—Governor Dan Moody Saturday granted his first act of legislative clemency, when he granted J. L. House, sentenced to ten years for forgery, a two-day furlough to attend today the funeral of his uncle, William House, at Houston.

The furlough was granted on the condition House bear the expenses of the prison guard who accompanied him.

GIRL HELD IN RAID ON BANK

VERMILLION, S. D., Feb. 5. (AP)—Desire for a university education—a pressing need of $24 for freshman tuition fees—led a 19-year-old University of South Dakota co-ed into an unsuccessful attempt to rob the First National bank here today.

With stolen tools, Miss Marion Meyers forced entry to the bank in the early morning darkness, only to meet failure and arrest.

Just as she was about to apply an electric drill to the bank's vault door a patrolman on his rounds alarmed her and she fled. A few minutes later they found her huddled in fright on a rear stairway.

Her courage gone, broken and racked by sobs, she cried herself to sleep tonight in the county jail where she will remain until her preliminary hearing Monday on a charge of attempted robbery.

"For heaven's sake don't tell mother," was her constant plea, not knowing that her widowed mother, Mrs. M. D. Meyers was expected here from Woonsocket, S. D., where she works in a restaurant.

While State's Attorney H. O. Perkins and other officials sought for evidences of male accomplices, the girl steadfastly insisted that she had been alone. The finding of a boyish campus hat with her name printed on the brim led to her identification.

Telegraph wire in the alley behind the bank and telephone wires within the building had been cut in a manenr that officials believed pointed to the participation of accomplices.

Prof. C. C. Josey, in whose home the girl worked for her broad and room said she had been a little "queer" but had no criticism of her previous work or behavior.

MOODY ASKS DATA ON NEW APPEALS COURT

APPROVAL EXPECTED

Number of Appeals and Civil Cases Pending Shows Need of Court

Governor Dan Moody has asked the appeals court committee of the Wichita bar association for information showing the need of the 12th Court of Civil Appeals provided by legislative enactment last week, it was learned Saturday from W. J. Townsend, Wichita Falls attorney, who returned Friday night from Austin.

Data showing the number of civil cases now pending in Wichita courts, and the number of cases appealed, as well as other information is being prepared by Mrs. Townsend, Judge R. E. Huff and others.

Bar To Meet.

A meeting of the bar association committee and other supporters of the bill will be held Monday to decide on methods of quickly securing the same information from other counties in the proposed district, Mr. Townsend said.

It is likely that district clerks in other counties will be asked to write the desired data to Governor Moody at once, it was stated.

The governor's request for information on the need of the bill is considered most favorable, and it is considered likely on this basis that the measure will become a law. Mr. Townsend pointed out that the need of the court here can be easily shown, and expressed the opinion that more than sufficient appeals to keep a court busy would be listed when the desired information is completed. The number of appeals cases from Wichita county alone is exceeded by only two other counties, Dallas and Harris.

Checking Records.

While the check of Wichita court records has not been completed, Mr. Townsend estimated that perhaps 500 civil cases are pending in local district courts, with several hundred more in other courts of the proposed district.

"While Governor Moody has not expressed his attitude in the matter, we consider his request for data, and his interest in the bill, as very favorable indications of final approval," it was stated.

Because, the bill creating the court and locating it at Wichita Falls failed by a small margin to secure the necessary two-thirds majority in the senate, the emergency clause in the measure became inactive, and it will therefore become effective 90 days after adjournment if finally approved, Mr. Townsend said.

Only minor corrections were made in the measure from the original draft.

Moody Revokes Conditional Pardon Issued By Governor Ma Ferguson

AUSTIN, Feb. 5. (AP)—Governor Dan Moody Saturday revoked a conditional pardon granted by former Governor Miriam A. Ferguson granted Gratten Davenport, convicted of murder in Tom Green county and sentenced to life.

Mrs. Ferguson issued Davenport a conditional pardon Jan. 8 on the condition he be remanded to a state or private institution for the insane.

Moody set out in the proclamation that the terms of the pardon have not been complied with, as Davenport is still in jail and has never been sent to an insane hospital.

In the trial of the case, Governor Moody's proclamation asserted, Davenport's defense was that he is afflicted with "dementia precox" and the jury in finding him guilty held he was not insane.

Davenport, Moody's proclamation said, filed an appeal in the court of criminal appeals and "with other prisoners sawed from the Tom Green county jail while it was pending."

Incarcerating Davenport in an insane asylum would not be a sound public policy since the jury found him not insane, the governor's statement concluded.

5 CONVICTED IN PEON TRIAL

Willacy County Officials Found Guilty

CORPUS CHRISTI, Feb. 5.(AP) Five men, including Sheriff Raymond Teller of Willacy county, were found guilty of peonage by a jury in federal court here tonight.

In addition to Sheriff Raymond Teller, those pronounced guilty were Justice of the Peace Floyd Dodd, former Deputy Sheriff Frank Brandt, former Deputy Sheriff Carl Brandt and L. K. Stockwell, a farmer. C. S. Stockwell, his brother, County Attorney R. F. Robinson, R. G. Reisdorph, a farmer, and Lloyd Burnett, another farmer, were acquitted.

The cases went to the jury at 1 p. m. and a sealed verdict was returned at 4:25 p. m. Judge J. C. Hutcheson and the defendants, however, were not in the court room when the verdict came it was opened when a special session of court was called at 6:40 p. m.

The defendants showed no emotion when the verdicts were read by United States Clerk L. H. Masterson.

Teller, Frank Brandt and Floyd Dodd were found guilty on both counts of an indictment which charged them with violation of the peonage statutes and conspiracy. The jury recommended leniency in the case of Dodd.

On another indictment, Frank Brandt, Carl Brandt and Sheriff Teller were found guilty of both counts, with leniency recommended in the case of Frank Brandt.

In still another case Frank Stockwell was found guilty on both counts. The jury found not guilty verdicts against Tellez, Dodd, Frank Brandt, R. F. Robinson and Lloyd Burnett.

The men were charged in connection with the alleged working of boys arrested on vagrancy charges by the Willacy county peace officers.

FIRE DESTROYS NEW OIL WELL IN PANHANDLE

Cigarette Stub Ignites Oil In Slush Pit of Ramsey No. 1

RIG BURNS DOWN

Located in Cimarron County, Okla., Well Opened New Field

Special to The Record News.

AMARILLO, Feb. 5.—A cigarette stub, carelessly thrown away by a sightseer at the Raysey Brothers No. 1 State in 27-5n-5e, near Boise City, in Cimarron county, the Oklahoma Panhandle, that extended the scope of the Panhandle oil field 160 miles to the northwest, when it found oil at 4095 feet, caused the destruction of the well early Saturday afternoon while it was being cleaned out.

The lighted cigarette ignited the oil in the slush pit and the flames spread rapidly into the rig, driving the crew out and in no time the whole derrick was afire. Before the drillers could try to hook up a water line to fight the fire the rig had been burned to the ground.

The derrick will have to be rebuilt and the hole cleaned out before any further developments can be expected from this interesting Panhandle oil strike.

Late Friday and early Saturday the Ramsey well had been deepened four feet to 4100 feet, entering a hard white lime, which under analysis appeared to contain evidence of quartz, indicating that it was near the granite wash.

Before Friday night the discovery had been swabbed and bailed daily, averaging 2 to 3 barrels an hour of 38.6 gravity oil, possessing a high lubricating base, and classified as Pennsylvania oil.

Tiny Stars Thrill Wichita With Brilliant Acts In Lions Club Show

Stars who some day may twinkle luminously in the firmament of theatricalism twinkled with a flashing beauty Saturday night that was none the less spectacular because the performers in the Lions club "Stars of the Future" program were youngsters still on the sunny side of primary grades.

It was a real show, this "Stars" program that packed the Palace theater to capacity. Fond mothers and dads, not to mention brothers, sisters, uncles, aunts, grandparents and cousins, filled every seat in the theater and overflowed into the aisles to watch the juvenile performers in the varied and uniformly meritorious offerings. The only score on which the program might be criticized at all was its length. There were 37 individual numbers listed, and while none of them were long, the combined effect was quite extended. However, that was merely an incident.

It would be impossible, or rather inadvisable, to attempt to pick the outstanding stars. Matters of individual taste would enter into that. Music, of course, was there in pro-

Governor's Name Comes Into House Bribe Inquiry

House Committee Ends Hearing Late Saturday; Plans to Vote Decision Monday

AUSTIN, Feb. 5. (AP)—The house committee of nine investigating bribery charges against F. A. Dale and H. H. Moore, representatives in the 40th legislature, late today completed its hearing after Speaker R. L. Bobbitt and Brigadier General Jacob F. Wolters of the Texas national guard had testified and the name of Governor Dan Moody had been brought into the case.

The committee announced that it will go into executive session Monday morning over a transcript of testimony for guidance in recommendations to be made subsequently to the house.

Governor Dan Moody knew the circumstances of the case in which Representatives Dale and Moore are charged with accepting a $1000 bribe, and said those suspected "should be exonerated or put in the penitentiary," Speaker Bobbitt of the house of representatives, testified before a house investigating committee.

Moody Told of Plans

Declaring he was loath to quote the governor, Bobbitt said he was "worried beyond good judgment" by the story of W. W. Chamberlin, Houston optometrist, about purported bribery offers involving Dale and Moore and that he, Bobbitt sought the governor's advice.

Bobbitt told of hearing Chamberlin's story of being very solicited for $1000 by Dale to kill Moore's bill to tax stationary optometrists, and of conferring with the governor, who approved the speaker's suggestion of referring the matter to house members. Bobbitt said he called a few house members together last Wednesday afternoon. When Chamberlin was grilled about his story, and that the final sense of the meeting was that he inform rangers.

Both Dale and Moore flatly denied on the stand charges of Willis Chamberlin, Houston, legislative lobbyist of the Texas Optometry asociation, that they had accepted $1000 to engineer an adverse house committee report on Moore's bill to tax stationary as well as itinerant optometrists $50 annually.

$20,000 Worth Hidden In Cabbage Car

LAREDO, Feb. 5. (AP)—Liquor valued at $20,000, hidden in a box car under heads of cabbage, was seized by federal officers in the railroad yards here this morning.

The Laredo Times will say today that E. M. Stevens, real estate man of Fort Worth, has been arrested. Papers in the possession of Stevens are said to have contained names of persons prominent in Fort Worth financial and social circles.

Stevens at an examining hearing at noon, was released under bond of $2,000 on a charge of transporting liquor. The case is to be brought up before the Webb county grand jury March 21, according to District Attorney Valls.

CARGO OF LIQUOR IN FREIGHT CAR.

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 5. (AP)—Seizing a carload of cabbage billed for Fort Worth, mounted customs inspectors in Laredo Saturday found 1,000 gallons of grain alcohol and twenty-eight cases of whiskey concealed beneath the vegetables, according to telegraphic advices reaching Collector of Customs Ed Cotulla of San Antonio.

One man was arrested when he secured the bill of lading for the car.

Brought Across Border.

The liquor was smuggled across the Rio Grande at night, Mr. Cotulla said, after which it was buried beneath the cabbage. The freight car, which had been on a side track in the Laredo freight yards for several days, had been under the observation of customs officers for some time, it was reported.

It was planned at first, Mr. Cotulla said, to let the car go on to Fort Worth. He explained, however, that officers feared they might lose trace of it before it reached its destination, so they made their arrest in Laredo.

The alcohol was contained in five gallon cans, two of which were in each of 100 cases.

MAJORITY FOR BONDS PASSES 4 TO 1 MARGIN

With Few Small Boxes Not Reported Vote Stands 1162 to 261

LARGE ROAD PROGRAM

More Than 100 Miles to Be Improved in Archer Territory

By a majority of nearly five to one, Archer county Saturday voted a bond issue of $1,500,000 for permanent highway projects, according to returns of the election compiled by The Wichita Falls Record News through its correspondents in Archer county Saturday night.

With but a few small boxes not yet reported, the Archer county vote Saturday night stood at 1162 for and 261 against the permanent road improvement program. More than 100 miles of Archer county roads are included in the program to be financed by the bond issue, with the addition of federal and state aid, amount of which has not been determined.

Good Roads Victory

Adoption of the $1,500,000 bond issue is a signal victory for good road enthusiasts in Archer county, whose plans were held back from consummation through more than two years of litigation in the nationally famous Archer county bond case. This case, involving a suit against a previous bond issue, was carried to the United States supreme court and resulted in a ruling declaring the Texas district road bond issue law illegal. Defects in the law pointed out by the federal court were eliminated at a special session of the Texas legislature called by the then governor, Mrs. Mariam A. Ferguson, late in 1926.

Reports from eight principal community centers of Archer county in Saturday's bond election received by The Record News Saturday night were:

Town	For	Against
Archer City	494	73
Megargel	153	86
Holliday	118	3
Windthorst	108	4
Dundee	88	2
Lake Creek	21	*
Liberty	19	*

*—None.

Less than 200 voters remain unaccounted for in delayed reports from smaller boxes in the county, according to officials at Archer City who declared that the two-thirds majority necessary for the adoption of the bonds was assured with a handsome margin to spare.

Several Big Projects

Two federal and two state highways are included in the road-building program, and prospects are considered favorable for a large allotment of state and federal aid.

The building program contemplates $10,000 per mile for the following roads:

Southwest trail, highway No. 79, from Lake Wichita through Archer City and Anarene to Young county line, near Olney. This is the main traveled route between Wichita Falls and Archer City.

F. P. F. highway, cutting across southwest corner of county, through Megargel.

Highway No. 29, entering Archer county near southeast corner, thence north to Windthorst, thence west to Archer City, and on west for 12 miles, thence northward through Mankins to Wichita county line connecting north of Mankins with surfaced road to Electra.

$100,000 For Unit

The sum of $100,000 is allotted for the road north from Windthorst through Scotland and Lake Creek to the Wichita county line.

In the southeast corner of the county, it is planned to expend $70,000 on roads to be designated later.

Although the amount of state and federal aid is undetermined, Archer county officials hope to obtain sufficient amounts for concrete construction on the more important highways and for a high type of surfaced road on the less-traveled ones.

The construction program was agreed upon after extended discussion by representatives of all communities in the county. It includes the main roads to the oil fields in the county, which have added greatly to its taxable wealth in recent years.

Advisory Committee

An advisory committee, to assist the county commissioners in the sale of the bonds and in the letting of contracts has been named by the Archer County Chamber of Commerce. All sections of the county are represented on this committee which consists of S. G. Helm of Dundee, Arthur M. Carter of Holliday, W. M. Creighton of Megargel, J. F. Meurer of Windthorst, Henry Pridcaux of Grahams, C. L. Abercrombie and T. B. Wilson of Archer City, C. E. Graham of Anarene, and E. O. Andrews of Jean.

MOORE AND DALE DENY CHARGES THAT THEY SOLICITED BRIBE

SOLONS TAKE STAND IN QUIZ

day by Assistant Attorney General D. A. Simmons, related that Chamberlin's story of Dale's purported offer to "fix things" for $1000 "worried" him so that he took the matter to Governor Dan Moody, later to his house advisers, and finally advised Chamberlin to warn state rangers.

Brigadier General Wolters, legislative attorney for the Texas Oil company, testified to conferring with Bobbitt and Chamberlin on the latter's story and advising how evidence could be prepared and arrests made.

Bobbitt said C. D. Walde, capitol correspondent for the Houston Chronicle first told him of learning that a "proposition" to influence legislation for money had been made, and that he forced Walde to give names of all concerned. After grilling Chamberlin and learning his status at Austin and conferring with Brigadier General Wolters, an old friend, Bobbitt said he laid the entire case before the governor.

Bobbitt Hesitates

Expressing a hesitancy to quote Moody, Bobbitt said the executive declared that circumstances were such that "the suspects should be exonerated or sent to the penitentiary."

The speaker then told of calling a conference of about eight house members, summoning Chamberlin to tell his story, and finally referring Chamberlin to state rangers. That was Wednesday afternoon, a few hours before Dale, arrested near a hotel alley entrance as Chamberlin gave him $1000 in bills whose serial numbers had been noted in four copies of memoranda, Moore was arrested a few minutes later in his room.

Bobbitt said Chamberlin had the $1000 with him at the conference and laid the bills on a table together with copies of their serial numbers.

Wolters confirmed Bobbitt's account of a meeting between them and Walde Tuesday night preceding the arrests and of detailing the "marked money" plan of detecting the suspects if actually guilty. He said he later gave the rangers some "pointers" on the search and seizure law as applied in such cases.

Moore Denies Charges.

Representative H. S. Moore of Cooper who took the stand in his defense as the first witness Saturday, swore he had never received money to influence pending legislation and categorically denied charges made against him Friday by Willis Chamberlin, Houston optometrist.

With Representative F. A. Dale of Bonham, Moore is charged with accepting Wednesday night $1,000 from Chamberlin to kill a bill by Moore placing a $50 occupation tax on stationary optometrists—a tax now paid by itenerant optometrists.

"No mention of money was ever made to me by Dale or Chamberlin. The question of money was never mentioned in my presence," Moore said.

Moore said that when Chamberlin came to his room Wednesday night, "he came without invitation." Asked if he resented Chamberlin coming to his room, Moore said, "well, I didn't like it."

Dale Was Present.

He said that Dale was there with Chamberlin and that the two stayed about twenty minutes. "As they went out, I called Dale back, and told him I didn't want Chamberlin to come to my room again, and that if he did come any more, I would put him out."

Moore said he a number of times came to his desk and talked against the optometry bill.

"Chamberlin was two-thirds drunk when he came to my room Wednesday night," Moore said.

Wolters Called Lobbyist.

Asked if he knew who lobbied for the oil interests, Moore said, Jake Wolters of Houston was one of the "oil lobbyists."

"Is that the same Wolters who gave the rangers legal advice Wednesday as to how far they could go?" John Shelton, defense counsel, asked, and Moore replied in the affirmative.

Moore said he was the author of a bill increasing the oil production tax from two to four per cent. That bill was killed Wednesday night by the house committee on revenue and taxation, as Moore was at the court house arranging his bond.

Assistant Attorney General D. A. Simmons, cross examining Moore, could not pin him down to a direct statement as to what transpired when Hamer came to Moore's room and arrested him.

Moore would not say that he had told Hamer that Dale had just been in the room, but said he told of having seen Dale "several times recently."

"Didn't Hamer ask you about a deal involving $1,000 in your room?" Simmons asked.

Hamer Arrested Him.

"No he just came and asked whose room it was. I introduced Corley (Moore's roommate, who had just come in) to him. He said he guessed he take me along to the court house."

Despite lengthy questioning by Simmons, during which John Shelton of the defense protested, the witness would not budge from that general statement. Shelton, resenting efforts of Simmons, declared that he expected to get "justice" regardless of whether it was a trial or whether the attorney general's department was involved. Simmons desisted.

Moore testified that he never had heard of the $750 offer Chamberlin testified Dale told of having received from proponents of the optometrist bill. He said he never heard of any money consideration until after he and Dale were arrested.

Tells of "Supper"

"Tell us all about this supper you and Dale and Chamberlin had," directed Simmons. "Did you know Chamberlin was coming?"

"Oh, he just pushed the door open, came in, threw off his coat onto the bed—he was about half shot," Moore said.

"Was Dale there, did you know anything about a dinner date?" Simmons queried.

"Yes, Dale was there, but I thought he had just dropped in as he did frequently. I didn't know anything was arranged."

"How did you know Chamberlin was half shot?"

"Well, you could tell. Fellow come breaking into a man's room that way——."

Moore said Chamberlin insisted on ordering supper and that "he must have had it already fixed, because here it came in almost no time."

No mention was made of his optometrist and gross oil production tax bills during the supper, Moore told Simmons. Chamberlin said nothing of wanting to "hire an attorney," as Simmons suggested, Moore said.

"You just had a nice pleasant conversation on general topics, did you?" Simmons prompted.

"Well, yes."

He Smelled Whisky

"Did Chamberlin still act drunk when he and Dale left?"

"Well, he walked straight, but you could tell he had some whisky in him."

Simmons previously had brought out from the witness that he and Dale had adjoining rooms at another hotel until last week. He said Dale had access to his room, "almost any time," and that there was a connecting door. His room was 218 and Dale's 216.

Moore denied giving Chamberlin the slip directing him to Dale at "room 218" as Chamberlin testified yesterday in relating his first conference with Moore about the optometrist bill. Moore said he only mentioned Dale as one of the revenue and taxation committee before which the bill was pending for report. He related that he refused one of Chamberlin's invitations to lunch with the legislation that he "didn't intend to go to any lobbyists' banquets."

Responding to Simmons' querrying about origin and history of the optometrist bill, Moore said he introduced a bill of the same nature in the 39th legislature and did it again this session, "for the same parties." He said "an old man and his two sons had been up here," trying to get the bill through.

Moore's a Farmer

Moore said he was a farmer in Delta county, and that he had to take his eye glasses to town to get them repaired at a stationary optometrist's place.

Representative John Rawlins of the investigating committee asked Moore about copies the latter had of circular letters from headquarters of the Texas Optometry association assessing members $15 each for legislative purposes, and of a letter Chamberlin wrote J. Howard Clark, association president, Houston, asked $100 a day expenses at Austin. Moore said he had planned to have the letters read before the house but later decided to bring them first before the committee considering the optometry bill. They were not read to the committee, however, he said.

Chamberlin testified yesterday that he is legislative chairman of the association and has been coming to Austin several years to protect interests of his profession in legislative matters.

Moore Saw Hubbard.

Further queries by Rawlins elicited testimony that Moore had talked to R. M. Hubbard of New Boston some months ago about his, Moore's, bill proposing increase from two to four per cent the gross production tax on crude oil. Hubbard was formerly chairman of the state highway commission. Moore said he had talked to several others before introducing the bill, which his been reported unfavorably.

Representative F. A. Dale of Bonham who followed Moore to the stand testified that Willis Chamberlin, Houston optometrist, "most unexpectedly" slipped a roll of bills into his hands, whispering, "here's a little retainer. Slip it into your pocket before any one sees you."

Dale said he placed his hand on Chamberlin's shoulder to protest, but before he could speak, Ranger Captain Frank Hamer, "confronted me, while Chamberlin walked right on, and for the first time I realized the frame-up."

Dale said Chamberlin had discussed with him whether Dale as an attorney, would represent him in the event contempt proceedings were brought against Chamberlin, in connection with certain letters relating to proposed optometry legislation.

To Represent Him.

"I had agreed to represent him, in the event I should be given the permission of the house to do so; but we had never discussed any fee, and the handing of the money to me, as we walked down the sidewalk, was a complete surprise."

Dale and Moore vigorously and repeatedly denied the testimony given Friday by Chamberlin that $1000 given by Chamberlin to Dale was to influence Dale and Moore to work against Moore's bill proposing a $50 yearly occupation tax on stationary optometrists, the tax now paid by itenerant optometrists.

The two accused said that Moore had told Dale to tell Chamberlin not to come to his room again. "I should have thrown him out the window, and I intended to, if he came up there again," Moore related.

Moore and Dale were the only witnesses who testified, before the house recessed until, 1:30 o'clock. T. H. McGregor, defense attorney, announced the defense likely would offer C. D. Walde, correspondent for the Houston Chronicle. Chamberlin testified that Wade was the first person he advised of the alleged offer of Dale to accept a bribe.

Dale Startled.

Dale said he was so shocked by the entire proceedings, the exchange of the money and the arrest that he didn't remember what he did say to Captain Hamer. He said he didn't know whether he assented or objected to being searched, but that the $1000 was "in one of his pants pockets," he didn't know which.

Dale said Chamberlin first introduced himself at the capitol and wished to talk to him about pending legislation; but that he didn't have time and that Chamberlin asked him to eat with him that night.

They Dined Together.

"We did have dinner together, in a cafeteria with the tables very close together. He said his people were against the occupation tax bill for optometrists. I told him that I was against the bill because I was against raising taxes and that I would vote against my own bill, increasing the gasoline, gallonage tax from one to three cents, unless some means could be devised to lower at the same time motor registration fees.

"He paid the dinner bill and we parted."

Dale said his first dinner with Chamberlin was last week and that he next saw him at noon Wednesday of this week in Chamberlin's hotel room, "Mr. Moore, I believe it was, saying that he had invited us to lunch, but Mr. Moore did not go."

Chamberlin Worried.

He said that Chamberlin appeared worried over a circular letter from the headquarters of the Texas Optometry association, assessing members $15 each for legislative purposes, and a letter Chamberlin wrote to J. Howard Clark, association president at Houston, asking $100 a day expense money at Austin. Chamberlin's letter recited that it cost much to buy dinners for legislators and otherwise entertain them.

Chamberlin said he understood the letters would be read to the house and that he was afraid contempt charges would be brought against him. He said, "you're an attorney. Can't you represent me, in case I get into trouble?"

"I told him I'd study the matter over and in case I could legally do so, I should be glad to represent him."

Dale said he saw Chamberlin Wednesday afternoon in a capitol hall as, he (Dale) was coming from the state library after obtaining some statistics for county judge.

"He said he wanted to see me about six o'clock and I told him I was going to Mr. Moore's room to discuss the gross production oil tax bill of Moore's.

"I saw him that night in Moore's room. He pushed the door open, came in, pulled off his coat and ordered dinner for three. Moore and I told him we were in a hurry to get to a committee meeting; and he told the waiter to rush the dinners.

Started To Meeting.

"After dinner, I left for the committee meeting and Chamberlin said he wanted to go with us. When we were downstairs, he said his son was waiting for him in the lobby of another hotel about two blocks away, and asked me to walk over there with him, before we went to the committee meeting.

"We started, I thought to that hotel when Chamberlin most unexpectedly, forced the money into my hand, and then I was arrested."

Assistant Attorney General D. A. Simmons, cross-examining Dale about Chamberlin's visit to Moore's room, asked if Chamberlin was drunk. Moore this morning said Chamberlin was "half shot."

"No, I wouldn't say that," Dale replied. "But he seemed jovial and cheerful like he might have been drinking."

He said he had not invited Chamberlin to the room but had seen him that afternoon and told him he, Dale, would be at Moore's room that night. Chamberlin, he said, had asked to see him again that night. It was Wednesday, the night Moore's optometrist bill and gross oil tax increase bill were to come before the house revenue and taxation committee. Dale said Chamberlin volunteered to come up to Moore's room.

Dale reiterated that nothing was said during the meal Chamberlin ordered about the optometrist bill or Chamberlin's alleged fear of contempt.

No Trade Discussed.

Dale admitted that he ate three meals with Chamberlin but stuck to his story that nothing ever was said about influencing a report on the optometrist bill one way or the other.

He said that even as he and Chamberlin left Moore's room the night of the arrests, there had been no agreement of a fee for him to act as counsel for Chamberlin. He reiterated that he was surprised when Chamberlin "shoved" him a roll of bills outside the hotel.

"Yet both of you knew there had been no charges of any kind filed against Chamberlin?" Simmons asked, in effect.

The witness assented.

Dale testified he was certain he did not tell Ranger Hamer that "Moore can tell you all about this deal."

Later he said:

"Mr. Moore knew nothing about it."

"When they arrested Mr. Moore I think he was asking them what it was all about. I heard him say several times: 'You didn't catch anything on me, did you?'"

Moore Knew Nothing

Questioned by Simmons, Dale said he had not conveyed to Moore in any manner that money had been taken from him.

"Did you see Chamberlin drink anything Wednesday?"

"I saw him take a drink at the hotel. He drank in his (Chamberlin's) room. A Mr. Dulaney, Mr. Hill and Mr. Franklow were there."

Dale said he "took one drink of Cognac, Mr. Chamberlin gave it to me. He also gave all the others a drink except Mr. Franklow. In addition to a quart of cognac, Mr. Chamberlin had a quart of Gordon gin on the dresser."

Clifford Stone, attorney for Chamberlin, asked permission to prove, "that it wasn't Mr. Chamberlin's room or whisky."

Chairman Sinks would not permit.

Dale said Chamberlin said something about a contempt proceeding, previously mentioned in the testimony.

Dale then testified he never represented any person on contempt proceedings and later said he knew no such proceedings had been filed in the house against Chamberlin.

He said it did not occur to him why he should have been questioned about contempt proceedings, "unless that was part of the frame-up."

Dale Denies Charge

Dale denied going to Moore's room to talk about the optometrist bill. "The only thing I wanted to talk about was the oil gross production tax bill which was coming up before the tax and revenue committee that night."

Attorney McGregor, for the defense, asked Representative Fly, a member of the committee, if Chamberlin came into the house of representatives today and sat down by him.

"Yes," said Fly, "I told him, 'dern you get out.'"

C. D. Wade, staff representative of the Houston Chronicle, was asked by the defense: "Do you represent any other interest beside the newspaper?"

Walde replied he has departmental errand service in which he serves three Houston law firms. He earns about $10 per month from each in this manner, he said.

"My work has nothing to do with legislation. I merely run errands and so forth."

Represents Lawyers

The law firms he represents are Andrews, Streetman, Logue and Mobley; Fullbright, Crocker and Freeman and John E. Green, one of the attorneys for the Gulf Oil company at Houston, Walde testified.

After defense attorneys and Dale had returned to their chairs after a brief recess, the prosecution recalled Captain Hamer.

Hamer swore Chamberlin was not drunk from about 5:30 o'clock on the day of the arrests until after he last saw him following the arrests. Hamer said he "smelled liquor on Mr. Moore's breath."

Captain Hickman, also called by the state, gave substantially the same testimony concerning Chamberlin.

Thousands of Foreigners In Danger As Chinese Forces Battle In Strife For Control of Seaport of Shanghai

By Universal Service.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 5.—Thousands of foreign residents in this city today awaited with varying degrees of trepidation news from the great battlefront, where the Cantonese armies are clashing with the troops of sun Chuan Fang.

The stake is this seaport, with its millions of dollars in port revenue and its valuable influence on world trade as the door to China.

If Sun Fang's troops are defeated, this may mean that Shanghai will be, for the time being at least, practically in the control of the warring Cantonese. Foreigners in this city believe that serious fighting in the vicinity of the international settlement may ensue.

Reports from the front lines indicate that Sun Chuang Fang is hard pressed but is fighting back to the limit of his strength. Reinforcements are being rushed to his aid.

Hangchow is the chief stronghold of the Shanghai defenders. It is a river port and has no large population. A number of missionaries, however, are stationed there.

The general feeling expressed here today is that if Hangchow falls before the Cantonese, they will reach this city.

Special to The Record News.

SILVERTON, Texas, Feb. 5.—The dairy cow, the sow and the hen held first place in the subjects discussed at the chamber of commerce banquet here Wednesday evening to which each business man had invited a farmer friend. More than 100 were present. Paul Huey, county agent of Hale county was the principal speaker of the evening, on the subject, "The Dairy Cow, and How She Can Help to Stabilize the Farm Income." Other out-of-town guests were J. C Anderson Jr., of Plainview, Ray B. McCorkle, Lockney; T. S. Stephenson. Floydada; Judge W. D. McCoy, of the Fort Worth and Denver South Plains railway; S. L. Rushing, Floydada; Jimmie Caldwell, Amarillo. Local men who made good addresses were Frank P. Bain and T. J. Hodges. Judge C D. Wright acted as toastmaster and the Silverton orchestra furnished the music.

Insular Rule By Special Bureau To Be Created Endorsed By President

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Establishment of a new government department in which would be lodged control of all the insular possessions, in addition to Alaska, is favored by President Coolidge, it was announced at the White House today.

The new bureau would have jurisdiction over the Philippines, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Virgin Islands, now administered by the army or navy.

President Coolidge is said to feel that it might be well to get away from a policy that smacks of military rule of the insular possessions.

The war and navy department's administration of them is partly accidental, he believes. They took charge, he feels, because they happened to be on the scene when the outlying territories came into Uncle Sam's possession.

President Coolidge feels that the army and navy have administered these possessions with honesty and skill, but the people who live there get the idea that they are controlled by the military and the president feels that impression should be relieved by establishing civil control under a new joint bureau, he does not expect that this change will be made by this session of congress or at any time without prolonged discussion.

GIVES ALIBI FOR HER SON

Parents Seek to Assist Son To Clear His Name

GEORGETOWN, Feb. 5. (AP)—The aged parents of Harry J. Leahy, charged with the murder of Dr. J. A. Ramsey of Mathis, took the witness stand here today in their son's trial. Leahy also was on the stand to deny that he had killed the Mathis doctor and then hid his body in the hills of Live Oak county as the state charges.

Mrs. Leahy, infirm and stooped, said that before the tragedy she had been well and strong, but that the charges against her son had crushed her. She testified her son, Harry, remained about the house until eight or nine o'clock on the night Dr. Ramsey disappeared and then he left, that she heard him return and saw him in bed about 11 or 12:30 o'clock the same night.

The defendant's father, H. J. Leahy, said he had lived in the region if Mathis for 76 years. He could give little light on the tragedy. He said he did not see his sons that night. On the question of whether Manuella Garza, Mexican servant, had washed any bloody clothes the next day after the doctor's disappearance, he said the girl did not do the family washing for them the day following the killing.

The defense rested late in the afternoon, and the state completed its rebuttal in short order. The testimony was closed before 6 p. m. and the jury was locked up for the week-end. The charge will be read Monday and arguments will follow. More than 100 witnesses departed for their homes.

Will V. Boyd of LaGrange, a cattle buyer, testified he was in Mathis about the time Dr. Ramsey disappeared and that he saw the defendant about sun down on that day. Leahy, he said, came to the shipping pens where Boyd was handling cattle.

After the cattle had been shipped, Boyd said he drove with Leahy's brother, Ed Leahy, to the Leahy home, reaching there about 9 p. m. He saw Harry J. Leahy, the defendant, standing on the front porch at that hour, he testified.

Under cross examination he testified he had pleaded guilty to swindling, growing out of a hotel bill.

J. Pridgen of Corpus Christi testified that he owned an automobile wash rack in Corpus Christi.

"Did you ever wash any bloody clothes at that wash rack?" asked Attorney Dolan for the state. The witness said "NO," but the defense objected to the question and answer.

In its rebuttal, the state first called Adolphs Saehinge, of Mathis, who told of making a small hoe for Harry J. Leahy a few days before Dr. Ramsey disappeared, and that Leahy told him he wanted it for his mother. Mrs. Leahy had testified her son did not give her a hoe.

Robert Matines, co-defendant and state's chief witness, testified on rebuttal that the hoe was similar to one used by Leahy at the grave of Dr. Ramsey.

Dean Miller said he talked with Leahy in a drug store, telling the defendant he understood he was going to get his ranch back. The witness said Leahy replied:

"Yes, that old ——— ——— won't get to enjoy it much longer."

FAVORS EXCHANGE

Judge Nicholson Tells Status Of County Securities.

The plan to exchange $246,500 of Wichita county warrants bearing 5 1-2 and 6 per cent interest into bonds bearing 5 1-4 per cent interest is now in the hands of the Texas legislature, according to County Judge E. W. Nicholson.

Of this sum, $54,500 worth of the warrants bear 6 per cent, while the remainder is bearing 5 1-2 per cent, Judge Nicholson said.

At present there is no law authorizing this exchange, and a bill is now before the legislature.

"The commissioners' court has no jurisdiction in the matter as it now stands," Judge Nicholson said. "The proposition for the exchange has been accepted only on the condition that the bill is passed by the legislature."

Judge Nicholson expressed himself as favoring the exchange of warrants into bonds.

Tiny Tots Give Wichita Thrill

fuction. Dramatic readings, fancy dances, comedy sketches and all the rest were also on the tapis.

Of the most spectacular presentations, however, it remained for Electra to send down what was perhaps the most colorful. Boy Scouts of that city, more than a score of them, gave an Indian dance that was a sensation. A primitive brave who drew fire on the stage with his bow and spindle frictionizing in inflammable wood started it, and then came the fantastic steps, the eerie cries and solemn beat of tom toms. Gorgeous Indian raiment and effective lighting combined to make this a sight well worth seeing.

In the line of organization work, also, was the presentation of the Camp Fire girls of Wichita Falls, the "orchestra" number of pupils of Mrs. E. E. Fisher, the Austin school orchestra and others.

Marjorie Faye Hoenschiedt in her vaudeville skit "My Cutie's Due at Two to Two" with an accompanying chorus was a clever number as was Little Miss Hoenschidt's other selection "Hy-Did-Die-Did-Le" in which the chorus also supported.

A team of Junior college tumblers under the direction of C. C. Frazee held the audience breathless with its daring acrobatics. "The Ford Salesman" demonstration by Gerald Pond Jr., the song and dance numbers by the Crowson kiddies, the "Sleepy Town Special," might be classed as among the highlights. But everything was good.

Lions club officials declared themselves as more than satisfied with their first venture. It exceeded all expectations.

The parade staged in the afternoon as a prelude to the big events of the night broke all records in one respect.

It started on time.

The marchers began gathering at the courthouse square soon after 1 o'clock and by 2:45 everything was in readiness. The star was made from Travis and Seventh, the line of march extending east on Seventh to Scott, south on Scott to Tenth, east on Tenth to Ohio, north on Ohio to Seventh, west on Seventh to Indiana, south to Tenth, west to Lamar and back to the courthouse.

Heading it all was the inevitable corps of motorcops cleating the way. The police department's uniformed firemen, Police and Fire Commissioner Quelsser and Chiefs George Hodgins and J. L. McClure, respective heads of the police and fire departments, road regally in an open car with their brass buttons gleaming. Behind them was the Lions club boys band, resplendent in brand new uniforms of grey trimmed with gold and black.

It was the band's first appearance in their new outfits.

A live lion borrowed from the Wortham shows followed by several members of the Lions club on foot came on next and were followed by the Electra Boy Scouts' band of Indians in feathers and war paint. Boy Scouts of Wichita Falls, Camp Fire Girls, Y. W. C. A. delegates and a Salvation Army truck wound up the procession with the exception of the stars who were to appear in the evening program.

Big Saturday afternoon crowds of shoppers lined the curbs all along the route to get a glimpse of the procession.

SIGNS FOR STREETS

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Feb. 5.—The Business Girls' club has secured the cooperation of the city council in the street sign campaign. The council has agreed to appoint a committee to work with the club in this matter. The work will be pushed and will likely not be long until Memphis has street signs and house numbers.

RAZOR'S NICK ON LIP FATAL

Electra Man's Tiny Wound Causes Blood Poison

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Feb. 5.—The tiny nick of a razor on his lip, an apparently insignificant wound when received two weeks ago while being shaved, was credited today with being indirectly responsible for the death of Paul Guinn, 24, employe of the Texhoma Oil company here.

About two weeks ago Guinn received a small cut on his lip, which later developed blood poisoning. He was carried to a Vernon hospital for an operation, developed pneumonia, and died there at 6:25 tonight. His body was returned here Saturday night, and funeral services will be held from the Masonic temple Sunday at 12 o'clock. The body will be sent to Pittsburgh, Pa., for burial.

One sister, Mrs. C. M. Bryson of Tampa, and one brother, Sy Guinn of Tulsa, Okla., and the young man's fiancee, Miss Willie Mae Waters of Electra, will accompany the body to Pennsylvania for burial. He is also survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Guinn of Pittsburgh, and seven other brothers and sisters.

THE PERFECT MAN: HIS STORY BY BRUCE BARTON

The Man Nobody Knows

Installment I

IT was very late in the afternoon.

If you would like to learn the measure of a man, that is the time of day to watch him. We are all half an inch taller in the morning than at night; it is fairly easy to take a large view of things when the mind is rested and the nerves calm. But the day is a steady drain of small annoyances, and the difference in the size of men becomes hourly more apparent. The little man loses his temper; the big man takes a firmer hold.

It was very late in the afternoon in Galilee.

The dozen men who had walked all day over the dusty roads were hot and tired and the sight of a village was very cheering, as they looked down on it from the top of a little hill. Their leader, deciding that they had gone far enough sent two members of the party ahead to arrange for accommodations, while he and the others sat down by the roadside to wait.

After a bit the mesengers were seen returning, and even at a distance it was apparent that something unpleasant had occurred. Their cheeks were flushed, their voices angry, and as they came nearer they quickened their pace, each wanting to be the first to explode the bad news. Breathlessly they told it—the people in the village had refused to receive them. Had give them blunt notice to seek shelter somewhere else.

The indignation of the messengers communicated itself to the others, who at first could hardly believe their ears. This backwoods village refuse to entertain their master! It was unthinkable. He was a famous public character in that part of the world. He had healed sick people and given freely to the poor. In the capital city crowds had followed him enthusiastically, so that even his disciples had become men of importance, looked up to and talked about. And now to have this country village deny them admittance as its guests—

"Lord, these people are insufferable," one of them cried. "Let us call down fire from Heaven and consume them."

The others joined with enthusiasm. Fire from Heaven—that was the idea! Make them smart for their boorishness! Show them that they can't affront us with impunity! Come, Lord, the fire—

There are times when nothing a man can say is nearly so powerful as saying nothing. Every executive knows that instinctively. To argue brings him down to the level of those with whom he argues; silence convicts them of their folly; they wish they had not spoken so quickly; they wonder what he thinks. The lips of Jesus tightened; his fine features showed the strain of the preceding weeks, and in his eyes there was a foreshadowing of the more bitter weeks to come. He needed that night's rest, but he said not a word. Quietly he gathered up his garments and started on, his outraged companions following. It is easy to imagine his keen disappointment. He had been working with them for three years . . . would they never catch a true vision of what he was about? He had so little time, and they were constantly wasting his time. . . . He had come to save mankind, and they wanted him to gratify his personal resentment by burning up a village.

Down the hot road they trailed after him, awed by his silence, vaguely conscious that they had failed again to measure up. "And they went to another village."

Eighteen hundred years later an important man left the White House in Washington for the war office, with a letter from the president to the secretary of war. In a few minutes he was back in the White House again bursting with indignation. The president looked up in mild surprise.

"Did you give the message to Stanton?" he asked.

The man nodded, too angry for words.

"What did he do?"

"He tore it up," exclaimed the outraged citizen, "and what's more, sir, he said you were a fool."

The president rose slowly from the desk, stretching his long frame to its full height, and regarding the wrath of the other with a quizzical glance.

"Did Stanton call me that?" he asked.

"He did, sir, and repeated it."

"Well," said the president with a dry laugh, "I reckon it must be true then, because Stanton is generally right."

The angry gentleman waited for the storm to break, but nothing happened. Abraham Lincoln turned quietly to his desk and went on with his work. It was not the first time he had been rebuffed. In the early months of the war when every messenger brought bad news, and no one in Washington knew at what hour the soldiers of Lee might appear at the outskirts he had gone to call on General McClellan, taking a member of the cabinet with him. Official etiquette prescribes that the president shall not visit a citizen but the times were too tense for etiquette; he wanted first hand news from the only man who could give it.

The general was out and for an hour they waited in the deserted parlor. They heard his voice at last in the hall and supposed of course that he would come in at once. But the "Young Napoleon" was too filled with his own importance; without so much as a word of greeting he brushed by, and proceeded on his haughty way upstairs. Ten minutes passed—fifteen—half an hour—they sent a servant to remind him that the president was still waiting. Obviously shocked and embarrassed the man returned. The general was too tired for a conference, he said, he had undressed and gone to bed!

Not to make a scene before the servants, the cabinet member restrained himself until they were on the sidewalk. Then he burst forth, demanded that this conceited upstart be removed instantly from command. Lincoln laid a soothing hand on the other's shoulder. "There, there," he said with his deep, sad smile, "I will hold McClellan's horse if he will only bring us victories."

Other leaders in history have had that superiority to personal resentment and small annoyances which is one of the surest signs of greatness; but Jesus infinitely surpasses all. He knew that pettiness brings its own punishment.

The law of compensation operates inexorably to reward and afflict us by and through ourselves. The man who is mean is mean only to himself. The village that had refused to admit him required no fire; it was already dealt with. No miracles were performed in that village. No sick were healed; no hungry were fed; no poor received the message of encouragement and inspiration—that was the penalty for its boorishness. As for him, he forgot the incident immediately. He had work to do.

DRUGGISTS TO MEET

Special to The Record News.

NO POX EPIDEMIC

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Feb. 5.—Memphis is in no immediate danger from a smallpox epidemic, local physicians declared. Several cases have been reported but they are all isolated.

How It Came to Be Written

The little boy's body sat bolt upright in the rough wooden chair, but his mind was very busy.

This was his weekly hour of revolt.

The kindly lady who could never seem to find her glasses would have been terribly shocked if she had known what was going on inside the little boy's mind.

"You must love Jesus," she said every Sunday, "and God."

The little boy did not say anything. He was afraid to say anything; he was almost afraid that something would happen to him because of the things he thought.

Love God! Who was always picking on people for having a good time, and sending little boys to hell because they couldn't do better in a world which he had made so hard! Why didn't God take some one his own size?

Love Jesus! The little boy looked up at the picture which hung on the Sunday school wall. It showed a pale young man with flabby forearms and a sad expression. The young man had red whiskers.

Then the little boy looked across to the other wall. There was Daniel, good old Daniel, standing off the lions. The little boy liked Daniel. He liked David, too with the trusty sling that landed a stone square on the forehead of Goliath. And Moses, with his rod and his big brass snake. They were winners—those three. He wondered if David could whip Jeffries. Samson could! Say, that would have been a fight!

But Jesus! Jesus was the "lamb of God." The little boy did not know what that meant, but it sounded like Mary's little lamb. Something for girls — sissified. Jesus was also "meek and lowly," a "man of sorrows and acquainted with grief." He went around for three years telling people not to do things.

Sunday was Jesus' day; it was wrong to feel comfortable or laugh on Sunday.

The little boy was glad when the superintendent thumped the bell and announced: "We will now sing the closing hymn." One more bad hour was over. For one more week the little boy had got rid of Jesus.

BRUCE BARTON

Years went by and the boy grew up and became a business man.

He began to wonder about Jesus.

He said to himself: "Only strong magnetic men inspire great enthusiasm and build great organizations. Yet Jesus built the greatest organization of all. It is extraordinary."

The more sermons the man heard and the more books he read the more mystified he became.

One day he decided to wipe his mind clean of books and sermons.

He said, "I will read what the men who knew Jesus personally said about him. I will read about him as though he were a new historical character, about whom I had never heard anything at all."

The man was amazed.

A physical weakling! Where did they get that idea? Jesus pushed a plane and swung an adze; he was a successful carpenter. He slept outdoors and spent his days walking around his favorite lake. His muscles were so strong that when he drove the money-changers out, nobody dared to oppose him!

A kill-joy! He was the most popular dinner guest in Jerusalem! The criticism which proper people made was that he spent too much time with publicans and sinners (very good fellows, on the whole, the man thought) and enjoyed society too much. They called him a "wine bibber and a gluttonous man."

A failure! He picked up twelve men from the bottom ranks of business and forged them into an organization that conquered the world.

When the man had finished his reading he exclaimed, "This is a man nobody knows."

"Some day," said he, "some one will write a book about Jesus. Every business man will read it and send it to his partners and his salesmen. For it will tell the story of the founder of modern business."

So the man waited for some one to write the book, but no one did. Instead, more books were published about the "lamb of God" who was weak and unhappy and glad to die.

The man became impatient. One day he said, "I believe I will try to write that book myself."

And he did.

OLNEY SOCIETY

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, Feb. 4.—The faculty of the Olney public schools presented a play at the high school auditorium Friday evening, Feb. 4, proceeds from which will go into the athletic fund. The skit, "The Elopement of Ellen," was a delightful comedy, depicting the troubles of a young and inexperienced bride when her maid leaves without notice, provided an evening of mirth, with members of the faculty filling the various roles. Between acts members of the glee club furnished popular musical numbers, and several clever novelty musical acts were given. Following is the list of characters:

Molly, his wife, Mrs. O'Hair.

Robert Sheperd, Molly's brother, W. L. Watt.

June Haverhill, Wellesley graduate, Miss Katherine Carmichael.

Junior Altruistic Club.

The Junior Altruistic club met in regular session Friday afternoon, Feb. 4 at three o'clock at the home of Mrs. Fred Harrell. The lesson was on the last half of Dickens' David Copperfield and the following papers will be read by club members:

Character Contrast of Dora and Agnes, Mrs. Herbert Tanner.

Dickens' Humor, Mrs. Frank Thomas.

Characters: How Far True and How Far Exaggerated; the Secret of Their Vividness, Mrs. Clyde Benson.

L. C. Club Entertained.

The L. C. club was entertained at the home of Mrs. John Sharp Wednesday afternoon from two to four o'clock. Progressive games were played and Miss Clotye Blacker won high score.

The following officers were elected during a short business session. Mrs. Richard Warren, president; Mrs. E. D. Cawser, secretary and treasurer and Miss Cloyte Blacker, reporter.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. W. E. Wells, Mrs. Richard Warren, Mrs. Jack Berker, Mrs. L. C. White, Mrs. O. R. White, Mrs. Luther Adkins, Mrs. E. D. Cowser, Mrs. Clyde Fulkinson, Mrs. Lewis Star and Miss Cloyte Blacker and the hostess. The next meeting will be held at Mrs. W. E. Wells'.

Parent-Teacher's Association.

The Parent-Teacher's Association met in regular session at the grammar school building Wednesday afternoon at 3:45. The program for the day was in observation of Lincoln's birthday and interesting numbers were furnished by grammar school pupils. During the business meeting it was decided not to hold any meetings of the organization after April 6, as the next regular date would conflict with the district federation meeting and the schools would be busy in May with examinations and other details involved in the closing of school. Announcement was made of the laying of the cornerstone of the new high school building which will take place next Monday afternoon at three o'clock, and all members of the Parent-Teacher's Association were urged to attend.

Song, America.

Prayer, Mrs. R. A. Drum.

The Life of Abraham Lincoln, Erline Whitsitt.

Oration, Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, Henry Keene Kirkpatrick.

Altruistic Club With Mrs. Schulkey

The Altruistic Club met in regular session last Friday afternoon with Mrs. B. C. Schulkey as hostess. The lesson was on Shakespeare's Hamlet, and roll call was answered with familiar quotations from the play. A brief business session was held preceding the program, during which the club accepted with regret the resignation of Mrs. Will O'Connell, who is moving this week with her family to San Antonio. Following are the details of the day's program:

Story of the play, Mrs. O. T. Anderson.

Readings: Hamlet's Advice to the Players, Something of the Play and Players in Shakespeare's Day, Mrs. S. J. Marcell.

Soliloquy—State of Hamlet's Mind, Mrs. H. C. McKinney.

After these numbers a general round table discussion of the play was held, following the questions outlined by Miss Kate Friend's analysis, with all of the members participating enthusiastically. The next lesson will be a continuation of the study of Hamlet.

During the social hour following the program the hostess, assisted by her sister, Miss Genevieve Rice, served delicious refreshments of creamed chicken in pattie shells, hot rolls, molded fruit salad, olives, coffee and spice cake. Club members present were Mrs. O. T. Anderson, Mrs. Rhea Anderson, Mrs. Henry Byrom, Mrs. Sam Casey, Miss Glen Elliott, Mrs. W. C. Harrell, Mrs. J. F. Hollis, Mrs. W. N. Lunn, Mrs. H. C. McKinney, Mrs. S. J. Marcell, Mrs. Tom Gulmarin, Mrs. Ralph Schuler, Mrs. J. R. Suits and Mrs. Chas. T. Wolverton.

Shower for Mrs. O'Connell.

As a parting courtesy to Mrs. Will O'Connell, who with her family left for her new home in San Angelo Wednesday, the As You Like It Club, of which Mrs. O'Connell was a loved member, gave her a linen shower last Tuesday afternoon. Members of the club met at the home of Mrs. J. P. Alexander and all went together to Mrs. O'Connell's home, where they "showered" her with their daintily wrapped gifts. Mrs. O'Connell was completely surprised and overcome with pleasure, and graciously expressed her thanks, as well as her regret at leaving the many warm friends which she has made since coming to Olney to live.

At the same time the little girl friends of Willene O'Connell had gathered at the Alexander home and had gone with the grown-ups to shower her with a lovely array of dainty handkerchiefs. Those participating in this pleasant surprise for Willene were Ruthell Lunn, Maurine Rice, Mona and Dorothy Mary Keeter, Charlsie Guimarin, Doris Anderson, Mary Jane Alexander and Martha Marcell.

Miss Manton Entertains.

Miss Catherine Manton was the charming hostess for a delightful party last Friday evening at the home of her sister, Mrs. A. A. Cooper. Four tables were set out for bridge and after several hours of interesting play, Mrs. S. O. Callahan held high score for the women, and was given a desk set. High score for the men, a cigaret case, was won by Paul Smith. Miss Janice Jones, who was a guest in the Cooper home was presented with a beautiful pair of book ends. Miss Jones is an accomplished violinist, and after the games delighted the guests with her artistic playing. At a late hour the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Cooper, served refreshments of chicken patties, hot rolls, tomato aspic salad, coffee and frozen fruit salad to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Roy Roach, Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Callahan; Misses Lois Shawver, Leone McCracken, Bernice and Geneva Groves, Katherine Carmichael, Mary Catherine Cooper and Janice Jones; Bruce Nesbit, Joe Menson, Frank Thyng, Paul Smith and Barlow Bryant.

Dance at Country Club.

Saturday evening a crowd of young people, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Cooper, enjoyed an informal dance at the Country club. Music was furnished by the panatrope, and several delightful hours were spent in dancing. Ginger ale punch and cookies were served during the evening. Those present on this pleasant occasion were Misses Gae Wix, Katherine Manton, Mary Catherine Cooper, Janice Jones, of Hillsboro; Leone McCracken, Bernice and Geneva Groves and Edna Wood; Paul Smith, Troy Dees, Frank Thyng, Kibble Gragg, Clyde Jones, Elby Crosby, Johnny Teddie, Ernest Edwards, Johnny Hennessey, Bill Hallman; Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Cooper

Try a little diapepsin. Beats the world for stomach comfort. Hard to tell what upsets a stomach. Sometimes it's milk or fresh bread or steak and onions. Almost anything will cause gas, biliousness or heartburn. But whatever it is diapepsin works like magic. It actually digests food, rests the stomach, absorbs the sour acid, brashy risings from whatever cause. Even in the morning if you get up with a coated tongue, feel nauseated and the thought of breakfast repels food, one or two diapepsins will make you feel good and want to eat.

Anyone at the mercy of restaurants and lunch counters can fortify their stomach against trouble with one or two diapepsins after eating.

And in the fire of spring

CLARA NEWS NOTES

Special to The Record News.

CLARA, Feb. 4.—The Clara P.-T. A. met in its regular business meeting Tuesday night. Services were opened with a sing-song. In the business session it has been decided to have a parliamentary drill each business meeting and every third meeting there will be a social instead of the business meeting.

Mr. Belcher was appointed to refill the first aid kit. Tennis shoes will also be bought for gym periods for the children, who cannot buy them. The association will also put on a play soon, the characters being selected from the parents and teachers only, and directed by Mrs. Orville Jordan.

A talk was made by T. F. Majors on "Child Hygiene." Fifteen pictures were displayed of which ten will be selected for the school and sponsored by the P.-T. A.

Clara Represented At Cashion

Last Friday evening at 8 o'clock the Wichita County Teachers association met at Cashion. The president, E. W. Cullers, of Clara, was in charge of the meeting. This was the second meeting of its kind this school term, meeting last November at Valley View. After the business meeting in which the by-laws and constitution were read and adopted, a banquet was served to more than 20 teachers by the glee club and home economics girls of the Cashion school. Miss Opal Russie of Valley View had charge of the music. The following teachers from Clara were present: Mrs. Tom Williams, Miss Kathryn Whittenburg, Mrs. Dwight M. Davis, Mrs. O. B. Jordan, Mr. E. W. Cullen, also Mrs. E. W. Cullers.

The association was invited to meet at Clara next time and the invitation was accepted. The time of the meeting is yet to be set. It will probably be in April.

Orchestra Organized

Carl Goetze of Iowa Park met with his pupils and some of their parents at the Clara school house Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock to advise with them about the different instruments to be used in the orchestra that is being organized. They will all soon be at work. Some of them already are making a good start. Clara can soon boast of a good school orchestra.

INTERIOR DECORATING

OFFERING YOU THE ADVANTAGE OF PERSONAL CONSULTATION, ADVICE AND SEEVICE ON INTERIOR DECORATING THAT IS SECOND TO NONE

WE ARE pleased to announce to our many friends and customers that we have just returned from an extensive educational trip of "sunny" California. We made this trip for the sole purpose of viewing and studying the new and modern ideas of interior decorating. It was our pleasure to visit and inspect seven of the most beautiful theatres in the world, all the modern public buildings, churches, business houses and beautiful new homes in the principal cities of California. As a result of this trip we are in a position to offer our friends and customers an untold wealth of new ideas in interior decorating. We are especially prepared to present exclusive ideas that are adapted to the new Mediterranean type homes. Whether you contemplate either building or remodeling we will be pleased to have you call on us.

CONOCO GIRLS' CLUB FORMED

Officers Elected at First Meeting at Y. W. C. A.

The Conoco Girls' club with an initial membership of 37 was organized Friday night at a meeting at the Y. W. C. A. The club membership comprises a majority of women employed in the headquarters offices of the Continental Oil company of Texas here.

P. D. Barthelot, formerly of Denver, who was instrumental in the organization of the Conoco Men's club shortly after the company entered Wichita Falls, was present at the meeting and assisted in forming the club.

A short program included the singing of several songs followed by the serving of refreshments. Several committees were appointed following the election of officers and adoption of by-laws. The new club will function as a social and educational unit, while some charity work will be done, it was announced. One of the first activities will be to lend assistance to the men's club in staging a show.

The following officers were elected: Miss Jim Covey, president; Miss Ethel Andree, vice-president; Birdie Simmons, secretary; Elizabeth Moffett, treasurer, and Miss Clara Krajca, sergeant at arms.

Meetings will be held every other Friday night at the Y. W. C. A.

COMPLETE TOUR

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Watson Study California Architecture

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Watson of the Watson Paint company have returned from a tour of California cities where they have been studying the Mediterranean type of interior decoration. They expressed their satisfaction of their trip Saturday and felt that the new ideas obtained from their inspection of the most beautiful homes of the state would be warmly accepted by home builders of Wichita Falls.

"While in California, the state of wonderful architecutre, we visited seven of the greatest theaters of the world, many of the finest homes and we found many opportunities to work out the type of decoration that we desire to present to the people of Wichita Falls.

"The Mediterranean style of interior decoration is entirely new here and it is our aim to put it before the public and to serve our friends and customers."

ORACLE'S VOICE

Traffic Director Uses Microphone to Warn Crowds

Captain Lyle Donohue, head of the police traffic department, gave the second lesson in his school for pedestrians and automobile drivers Saturday night by stationing himself before a microphone on the awning of the Kruger Jewelry company at the corner of Eighth street and Indiana avenue.

From this point he spent several hours during the rush period politely "calling down" traffic violators who officers on the street were unable to detect.

Many who passed the intersection were unable to determine the origin of the strange voice through the loud speaker that called to them to "wait until the bell stops ringing," or "turn on your lights."

Boy Scout News

TROOP EIGHT

Troop Eight, Gibson McLarry, scoutmaster, held a peppy meeting Friday night at the Floral Heights Presbyterian church with 19 boys present. The boys were honored by a visit from Mr. Whatley, father of one of the scouts. The scoutmaster, Mr. McLarry, announced that all the fathers will be welcome at the scout meetings at all times.

The following games were enjoyed: Poison, pillow fighting and leg wrestling, after which the boys passed cooking and fire building tests. Three tenderfoot tests were passed by Ernest Allison, Vernon Cobble and Mason Rowell.

TROOP THIRTEEN

The jinx is afoot again. Every scout troop in the city is warned to get out its rabbit's foot and hang onto it, for Troop Thirteen is again functioning and the boys are "raring to go."

The troop met Thursday night at 7:30 at the Temple Israel with the new scoutmaster, John H. Kauffman, in charge. Some wonderful plans were laid for the year and good resolutions were made that, if carried out, will make the "Jinx" the best troop in the city.

John Kauffman Jr., and Crawford Stovall will be junior assistant scoutmasters. These boys are both merit badge scouts and, with their help, the boys expect to advance swiftly in the ranks of scouting.

TROOP THREE

Troop Three, Lee Loeffler, scoutmaster, had a very enjoyable time Friday evening when they met at the First Methodist church at 5:30 o'clock and went to the Country club in the scout truck.

The following boys passed tests for second class: Ted Brooker, Jerome Jenkins, Howard Douglas and Melvin Edwards.

An appetizing supper was followed by a business meeting and songs and yells closed the meeting. The boys returned home, tired but with a feeling of having accomplished something toward advancements.

TROOP FIFTEEN

Troop Fifteen met at the Highland Christian church Friday night with the scoutmaster, A. King Davis, in charge. The meeting opened at 7:30 with the scout oath, followed by roll call.

Mr. Davis scoutmaster, gave a short talk, after which the boys reviewed the events that took place at the jamboree that was held last Friday. A short time was spent practicing drill formations.

Mr. Davis gave the boys a treat in the form of popcorn balls.

The scout who had been appointed to find a good camping place for the troop, reported and it was decided to take an over-night hike next Friday night.

The meeting closed with the scoutmasters' benediction.

TROOP SIXTEEN

Troop Sixteen, Kenneth Erwin, scoutmaster, had a splendid meeting Friday night at the First Baptist church, with 19 boys present. Several new members were initiated into the troop and Mr. Barron, troop committeeman, gave a talk, followed by announcements by Mr. Erwin.

A stunt period was held, the following stunts being given: The three bearers, Beaver patrol; an acrobatic stunt, Flying Eagle patrol; demonstration of a good turn, Bull Moose patrol, and a playlet by the Panther patrol.

The troop was honored by a visit from the scout commissioner, Ralph Hyer, and the scout executive, Frank B. Creighton.

TROOP FOUR

Troop Four, John Tevis, scoutmaster, met Friday night at the First Christian church, with 41 boys in attendance. The meeting opened with the singing of "America," followed by the flag ceremony.

Separate patrol meetings were held, each patrol discussing the future patrol contest, to start in three weeks. The Rattlesnake, Raccoon and Stag patrols put on several stunts, giving scout demonstrations.

A new member, William Andrews of Troop Two of Birmingham, Ala., was taken in and Jack Gotcher was awarded his second-class badge.

Plans were made for a big over-night hike to be held some time in the near future.

Mr. Tevis urged all the boys to be in the Lions club parade Saturday afternoon and announced the scout apiary, soon to be started with the assistance of C. C. Bunnenberg, park superintendent, in which all scouts of the city are to have a hand.

Edwin Sutton, senior patrol leader, challenged each patrol to a fire by friction contest for next Friday night. Carlisle Norwood and Harry Bunart volunteered to compose a signaling team.

A boxing match was put on between Bryant Creighton and Carlisle Norwood. After three furious rounds it was called a draw.

Special stress was laid upon scout anniversary week, February 7 to 13 and all the scouts were urged to attend the special scout service to be held at the church Sunday, February 13.

Attendance prizes, consisting of tickets to the Lions club show, were awarded by the scoutmaster to five of the scouts and each of the scouts in the troop was given a "Boy Scout Lives Here" poster to put in his window during anniversary week.

The troop was visited by the scout commissioner, Ralph Hyer, and the scout executive, Frank B. Creighton.

Taps was sounded by Edwin Sutton and the meeting was closed with the scoutmasters benediction.

John Tevis has announced that all scouts of Troop Four desiring to pass tests, may meet at his home at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Next Friday night Troop Four will have initiation of new members.

TROOP ELEVEN

Troop Eleven, Floyd Billingsley, scoutmaster, was deprived of its meeting place Friday night on account of a church party but, nevertheless, the boys had a very enthusiastic meeting, together with Troop One, Lowell Nichols, scoutmaster.

Five new members were initiated into the troops and first and second-class tests were passed.

The meeting closed with the scout oath and law by the assembly.

SCOUT PICTURE

Chief Creighton wishes to urge all scouts to be sure and attend the showing of the scout picture Tuesday evening at 7:30 at the Grace Methodist church. It will be in honor of the seventeenth anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America.

Rev. Edward S. Dunlap Here Feb. 14-15

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 5.—Rev. Edward S. Dunlap, newly appointed canon of Washington cathedral and field secretary of the National Cathedral association, will begin an intensive tour of Texas this week to express the appreciation of the bishop of Washington, dean and chapter of the cathedral for the generous annual offerings made to the project by members of the association in this state. These offerings from Texas have helped to make possible the steady progress since the war in the building of the cathedral.

Canon Dunlap has said that he considers it a privilege to make this personal report of progress to Texas committees and members. He is bringing with him the latest photographs and lantern slides of the cathedral to exhibit them to friends of the cathedral during his month's visit.

He will confer with the committee of the National Cathedral association in Wichita Falls, February 14-15.

In his report to Wichita Falls committees and contributors Canon Dunlap will tell how work has progressed steadily on Washington cathedral since the war until today the crypts are practically completed including two beautiful chapels soon to be open to inspection by pilgrims, the chapel of the resurrection under the south transept and the chapel of St. Joseph of Arimathea under the crossing, both of massive 11th century Norman architecture. The chapels have been pronounced by foremost architects as among the most noteworthy in design of Norman chapels now in existence.

ROPES WILD DEER.

Cowboy Recaptures Doe Which Escaped From Canyon Park

CANYON, Texas, Feb 5.—After wandering more than 30 miles fro mthe Palo Duro game preserve, a deer recently was captured in a Canyon yard. The deer jumped the fence into the garden where a cow was grazing.

A cowboy roped the doe and carried her back to the preserve in a truck.

The Palo Duro preserve contains 45,000 acres and is stocked with wild turkeys and deer. The preserve was created through the efforts of Dr. Earl Axtell, formerly of Fort Worth and now federal game warden for the Panhandle district.

OLTON SEEKS NEW BUSINESS

West Texas Town Goes Out For More Citizens

Special to The Record News.

OLTON, Feb. 5.—Banker, merchant and lawyer are to be imported into Olton, Texas, county seat of Lamb county, as a part of the Olton Chamber of Commerce program for 1927. The commercial organization recently underwent a remobilization of its forces and actively pledged themselves to secure a bank, a mercantile business, and a lawyer for the town. In addition to these aims, the chamber plans to attend Olton's needs of a railroad, and of hard surfaced roads. As an initial move in securing their 1927 goals, the Olton Chamber of Commerce is soliciting aid of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Big Trade Territory.

Olton is in a trade territory of 400 square miles and includes an independent school district of 240 square miles. Tillable land on the section constitutes 95 per cent, while only 40 per cent is in cultivation. Land is valued from $35 per acre for raw acreages to $45 per acre for improved acreages. Agricultural production for 1926 included cotton, kafir, maize, red top cane, wheat, Sudan grass, corn, alfalfa, oats, spelts and other products. Livestock included cattle, hogs and sheep.

Olton has a population of 800, with estimated population of its territory 2,500. The scholastic enrollment is 504. Ninety per cent of its people are home owners. There are 26 business concerns in the district. Shipments of the section include 100 outgoing cars, and 300 incoming cars of varied commodities.

Three Churches.

Community activities of the Olton territory center around three church organizations, a school fully affiliated with 19 1-2 units of credit, a community council which is non-sectarian and non-political, an active chamber of commerce, and a pure Cotton Seed Association. Specialties of the district are dairying, poultry, hogs and pure seed.

The Olton Chamber of Commerce, through co-operation of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, is taking a definite stand to accomplish its 1927 program for securing its needs of a railroad, bank, hard-surfaced roads, mercantile business and a lawyer.

RUNYON SAYS

Old Mike Is a Wonder. Leopard Changes Spots. It May Be Conscience. Hope For Some Others. The Case of M. Burke.

By DAMON RUNYON

It seems a little too much to hope, but possibly the astounding transformation of old Mike McTigue may induce other boxers of his type to emulate his example and become rip-snorting gee-whizzers.

On this vague possibility, I am deferring organization of my Association For the Suppression of Snatchers and Grabbers, which is designed to exterminate boxers of that style, with some reference to the counter fighters. It may be that we are facing the dawn of a new and glorious era of pugilistic entertainment, though I would not bet on it.

It took old Mike McTigue many weary years to muster up courage enough to throw right hands at an opponent's chin. We can scarce wait that long on others of his ilk. Old Mike was snatching and grabbing on both sides of the Atlantic ocean when many of the boxers of this period were in their swaddling clothes, and I had no idea that Michael would be found snatching and grabbing down to the final earthly bell.

It was his nature. It was based on the inborn instinct of self-preservation, and caution, if not downright cowardice. Then, suddenly, he underwent a remarkable change, not only in his pugilistic style and manner, but in character. He is crowding the 40-year mark, and the change came only a few months ago.

He knocked out King Solomon, Billy Vidabeck and one Soldier King, and wound up the splurge by his ferocious charge upon Mr. Ex-Punch 'em Paul Berlenbach last week. If he had knocked out only Berlenbach you might say it was an accident, or a flash in the skillet, but back beyond that were the other knockouts.

In each fight, old Mike displayed aggressiveness, and confidence, and a degree of savageness that no one suspected could possibly be in his make-up. I am quite sure that this is the first time on record that the leopard has changed its spots.

As I say, it leads me to hope for some of the other lads who have been taking money for snatching and grabbing. I name no names, but suppose Mr. Martin Burke of New Orleans, or George Godfrey, the Black Shadow of Leiperville, or Harry Wills, the Brown Panther, or some of those other lads who are rather adept in the manly art of S. and G. should suddenly become imbued with the spirit of old McTigue?

They would perhaps rewrite pugilistic history, and afford some unexpected diversion for the ringworms. You take the Mr. Martin Burke, aforesaid, for instance—a master boxer, strong, beautifully set up, thoroughly seasoned, and not overly old—he might be champion of the world if he would dispense with snatching and grabbing, and let 'em flicker.

This is also true of George Godfrey if he does not fall up too much. It is true of Harry Wills, though Harry may be a bit advanced in years. Still, he is not as old as Mike McTigue, and never was more expert in snatching and grabbing, though Harry is pretty good, too.

There are many others in the same class. Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia, is not so much of a snatcher and grabber, but he is too thoroughly devoted to the art of self defense. He takes few chances.

He is a beautiful spectacle in action, fast moving, skilful. He is a remarkable straight hitter, a sharpshooter with his right hand on the order of St. Ovila Chapdelaine, otherwise Jack Delaney. He seems to have an idea that his right hand lacks punching power, but this apparent lack is probably due solely to the fact that he does not let it fly with any confidence back of it.

And the lack of confidence behind a punch takes away most of its muscular power, as you know. Old Mike McTigue was so economical with his right hand shots in other years that he couldn't dent a derby with it when he did throw it. He was generally stepping away behind the shot instead of stepping in with it.

What a terrible man he was, to be sure—and what gall he had to accept money for the exhibitions he put up! Perhaps his conscience hurts him to such an extent that he is now trying to make restitution to the pugilistic public. He should. So should a lot of others.

I am wondering if Mr. James J. Johnston, the ever-voluble manager who is responsible for old Mike's rejuvenation uses a prescription, or hypnotic power on the lean Irishman. Whatever the process, Mr. Johnston is entitled to some thanks from the ringworms for forcing Mike to this belated discharge of a long standing debt.

He is entitled to thanks for giving us this little ray of hope for the other snatchers and grabbers. Perhaps it might be a good idea to raise a public fund to engage the services of Mr. Johnston in working on all the snatchers and grabbers, to the end that boxing might be made less of a bore than it has been in the past when one or more of the snatchers and grabbers are on the bill.

On his fight against Mr. Ex-Punch 'em Paul, old Mike is now one of the best fighters in the world, and make no error there. On the strength of his past performances he was one of the worst. I say this is a climb almost unprecedented in the history of the dear old manly art.

EIGHT STRAIGHT WINS

Pan Five Starts Race Anew Against Improved Opposition

Commercial Basketball League Bolsters for Last Half Championship Drive to Be Inaugurated Tuesday On Junior College Court

John Tyson's Panhandle cagers who loom as coming champions of the Commercial league start out all over again Tuesday at the Junior college just as if they hadn't won a game yet. For the season has been split by league vote on the powerful Oiler outfit and a new race swings under way this week.

Panhandle was crowned champion for the first half of the pennant scramble with five games won and none lost.

The Tyson crew opens its bid for second half honors Tuesday against Continental. The Conocos have been doing a bunch of revamping little by little and hope to make it interesting for the rest of the league before the race is run very far. Fact of the matter is, all the clubs in the league have taken new leases on life, started rebuilding and strengthening here and there, and begin to stack up as far more evenly matched than during the first half of the drive.

Chubby Neal's Landon-Hill aggregation, 1926 champion, is steaming up power which Neal hopes will turn the tables on Tyson's men. Neal has been revamping his squad right along until he feels the gang is just about ready to breeze through to a championship.

Metzger at Draughon's business college is buzzing right along, too, developing a powerful machine all his own. The business collegers finished the first half in a triple tie for second place with Landon-Hill and the headquarters, Texas national guard, company five. These three teams expect to bolster sufficiently to overtake Panhandle. If they succeed in coming up to the Longhorn standard the race no doubt will be a heated affair.

Panhandle's prowess as compared to the rest of the teams in the league is displayed by the scoring figures rolled up at the midway mark.

The statistics follow:

Hub Clothiers versus Guardsmen.

Continental versus Panhandle.

Five Clubs Loom In National Race

Cubs, Cards, Giants, Pirates, Reds Menace

NEW YORK, Feb. 5. (AP)—The National league pennant today was flapping noisily before at least five outstanding contenders in the gusts of mid-winter trade winds which have blown a million dollars worth of ball players back and forth across the baseball map. The entire complexion of the circuit has been radically altered since the Cardinals rose to the world series triumph behind the broad shoulders of Rogers Hornsby last October. Rogers himself has been caught in the middle of a $500,000 player turnover while two other clubs, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, who have called on new helmsmen, six teams have shaken up the infields they attempted to bolster a year ago and one club, the Brooklyn Robins, has prepared to enter the conflict with virtually a new team.

Observers here were inclined to the opinion that the champion Cardinals had lost nothing in player strength by accepting Infielder Frankie Frisch and Pitcher Jimmy Ring from the Giants in exchange for Hornsby. But they also pointed out that only time would tell whether the loss of Hornsby has effected the morale of the team. The Cardinals are still looked upon as a powerful contender for Frisch, a hustling, hard-hitting second baseman, promises to make St. Louis fans quickly forget Hornsby.

O'Farrell Under Scrutiny

How the team will fare under the direction of its new leader, Catcher Bob O'Farrell, is the chief speculation of the stove league. Critics look for powerful opposition to the Cardinals this year from the Pirates, 1925 winners, whose challenge last season was weakened by internal strife. The Dreyfuss aggregation is one of the few clubs that have not figured in outstanding player swaps this winter, but observers believe the team made a big stroke in placing Donie Bush at the tiller. The dash of this new leader, who replaces Bill McKechnie, is expected by baseball men to supply the necessary spark for a youthful squad of unquestioned power.

The Cubs, Reds and Giants loom as the three other leading contenders, although the Chicago team still is as uncertain of its infield as it was a year ago. Manager Joe McCarthy this year again has indicated he will juggle his inner line to make room for a high priced shortstop, Elwood English, from Toledo. On the outcome of this maneuver hangs the hopes of the Cub team which last year was in the thick of the fight nearly all the way.

Reds, Cubs Build Infield

The Reds, while apparently no stronger than last year, finished close enough to the top to still be threatening. Like the Cubs, they are depending on improved infield play with Ford jumping into a breach at shortstop which handicapped the club last year.

The Giants appear to be the most uncertain of the big five. Not only will much depend on whether Hornsby has fully recovered from his slump of last year, but on McGraw's attempts to rebuild his outfield and catching departments. He will have a brand new catching corps with Devormer apparently slated to handle the bulk of the work, while his outfield is a doubtful quantity. Bevo Lebourveau, the hard-hitting acquisition from Milwaukee, may help solve the problem, although tentatively McGraw has slated Young, Tyson and Mueller for the garden posts. Of this trio only Young, who has been seriously ill this winter, played regularly last year.

Phils Take Life

The Phillies, finding a new leader in Stuffy McInnis, have added a few new faces without seriously threatening rival hopes.

The new Robin team will bank heavily on three recruits—Infielders Jimmy Partridge of Nashville and Bobby Barret of Memphis and Outfielder Arnold Statz of Los Angeles. Bobby has also added catching strength through the acquisition of Henline to handle the curves of an admittedly powerful corps of hurlers.

TITLE REGAINED

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5. (AP) Clarence C. Pell and Stanley G. Mortimer, New York, Saturday regained the national amateur racquets doubles championship by defeating Robert A. Gardner and Howard Linn of Chicago. The scores were 15-8, 15--9, 3-15, 15-12.

SOUTAR STILL KING

PHILADELPHIA, Feb 5. (AP) Jock Soutar, Philadelphia, today retained the world's professional singles racquets championship by defeating William Standing, New York. The scores were 15-6, 15-6, 14-15, 15-13, 15-9. The first half of the match was played in New York a week ago.

SWIMMER FAILS TO START

LONG BEACH, Cal., Feb. 5. (AP)—Peter Meyer, Cincinnati, O., swimmer, who early Saturday was reported to have started an intended swim of the San Pedro channel from Catalina island to the mainland, did not start due to his convoying boat having a breakdown.

THEY MENACE WICHITA FALLS POLO LAURELS

Cowbows Swap Lariat for Mallet And Seek Southwest Title

The Wichita Falls Polo club is champ of the southwest and fully prepared to defend the title but quite a bit of hot competition is expected in the southwestern circuit tournament which opens in San Antonio Feb. 13. Among other tough competitors the Wichita Falls worthies will encounter is the Camp Wood polo team which hails from the hill country near San Antonio.

Five rugged cowboys have graduated suddenly from cattle punching with the professional accoutrements of chaps, spurs, five-gallon hats and high saddles, into a championship polo squad.

Called off the range in the hill country of Real county, five cowboys in that section, who heretofore had played only other cowpuncher polo teams, hurriedly bought store clothes in which to play, substituted for an army team which was unable to participate in the mid-winter tournaments at Brownsville and won the championship.

That team was the Camp Wood polo aggregation. Mounted on cow ponies, some of which had not borne a flat saddle until a week before the tournament, and wearing polo apparel purchased en route to Brownsville, the cowboy team fought its way to the championship.

Now the noble ranch hands are out for more blood. They would wrest the southwest circuit championship from Wichita Falls, Horace Robbins, Dave Whyte et al.

And the powerful Wichita Falls squad is not making light of this menace which looms over night as it were. Wichita Falls will tackle the Fort Sill team Sunday afternoon on the fairgrounds field at 3 o'clock in what is to serve as a conditioner. A stronger array will be sent to San Antonio this week than the one that captured the first leg on the championship trophy last year. Jim Minnick, Horace Robbins, Charley Featherston, Dave Whyte and probably Joe Riley of Tulsa will represent Wichita Falls in the South Texas invasion.

This afternoon's game will find most of these men in the line-up. The Sill club probably will be composed of Walter Kluss, Capt. Young, Lieut. Kane and either Major (Doc) Fletcher or Lieut. McKennan.

McTigue's ring career has given the boys cause for fresh comedy. They did say, at one time, he couldn't fight and was also a bad card at boxing.

But today he is a different Mike and his past can be recorded parallel with his training experience. There was a time when Mike instructed boxing at the New York Athletic club. Instructing a group of business men for the exercise to be derived therefrom is exceedingly foreign to the ring.

His job was to do nothing more than duck. Mike wasn't paid by the association to knock out its business men. They were only to be limbered up, so's to speak.

In such work Mike's style was accumulated rather than appointed by himself, and caused him much worry when facing opponents, which was with a teaching atmosphere rather than a grudging prize fight.

Mike will probably be a different fighter in the gymnasium. If so, he loses his N. Y. A. C. job to win in the ring; if not, he loses in the ring. At that point you may take it or leave it.

We mentioned in these columns a few weeks ago that wee Bobby Cruickshank would be one of the most dangerous golfers to come over the horizon since his winning of the Los Angeles open.

Also we mentioned the coming of that determined golfer, Larry Nabholtz. Now they have finished first and second, respectively, in the Texas open.

They will finish first and second in further important events before the national open.

It took Bobby a long time to come across. He has been hovering close to the top since Bobby Jones defeated him for the national open at Inwood.

He has become accustomed to the gallery and the breaks of the game which have kept him from winning many titles. He and Von Elm will do the battling when the summer brings us pro-amateur events.

Larry Nabholtz is one of the youngest of the game today and only recently has gone after tournament play. He made a fine bid in the Los Angeles open and now runs into second place in Texas.

Women's Athletics

By Mary Isabel Caldwell

Dribbling as a means of enabling you to get the feel of the ball is excellent, but will, if used too much encourage individual rather than team play. However, there is always the proper time when dribbling becomes of paramount importance so another word on the subject will not be amiss. Some girls have the habit of bouncing the ball too hard causing it to rise from the floor to the height of their heads. This is bad dribbling, for the ball interferes with the line of sight, is easier to intercept, and takes longer for each bounce. Keep the ball bouncing at the level of your waist and you will find the dribble to be a handy friend in need.

PHILS SIGN MURPHY

One-Time Star of Mack Infield To Be Coach

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5. (AP) Danny Murphy, one-time star second baseman and outfielder of Connie Mack's Athletics, has been engaged as coach of the Philadelphia Nationals.

Murphy was a leader in batting and defensive tactics when Stuffy McInnis, now the Phillies' manager, joined the Athletics in 1909. Murphy taught Stuffy many points.

After his playing days ended Murphy coached the Athletics for several years. He resigned in 1925.

WISCONSIN RELAY, MARCH 19

The annual relay carnival of the University of Wisconsin will be held March 19. The special attractions include inter-fraternity, inter-sorority, and inter-society relays, academy and high school relays, a match relay between one Big Ten team and the University of Wisconsin. Also open handicap events in the high jump, 40-yard dash, 12-pound shot-put, broad jump, high and low hurdles. Over 400 have competed in the past Badger carnivals.

Second Base— And That's All

McManus Agrees He Is Not First Baseman

DETROIT, Feb. 5.—Marty McManus is wearied of being shuffled around the infield and wants to play second base for the Tigers, to which club he has been traded by the St. Louis Browns.

Three years ago McManus was rated as the most promising infield prospect in the big leagues. Then came the illness of George Sisler and Manager Fohl was forced to switch Marty to first base.

When Sisler recovered McManus went back to second base, only to be shunted over to third when the the far corner, Oscar Melillo could play second but not third, so there was nothing to do but adopt the Browns developed a weakness at combination.

McManus agrees that he is not a great first baseman or an outstanding third-sacker, but he does believe he's step and step with the boys around the keystone sack. And he wants to stick there for Moriarty.

McManus went to the Browns in a deal involving 19 players, of which the Browns received four and the Toronto club five. Stewart, Mullen and Miller of the Leafs joined St. Louis in addition to O'Rourke of the Tigers. Toronto gained Catcher Hargrave and Infielder Lamotte of the Browns. Infielder Burke and two other players from Detroit. All the Tigers received was McManus.

All Set For Resumption of City's Biff Game This Week

Tommy White Comes Back to Wichita Falls Ring in Old Feud With Clyde Hull—Critics Dispute Outcome Of Fight in Fort Worth Friday

The biffing game, that sport in Wichita Falls which all but expired in 1926 and outside of a few half-hearted gestures at a comeback the past season has been dormant, takes new life this week and under new direction—under direction of that master of matchmakers, that promotorial genius, one Alec B. Ross.

For the veteran Ross, finding the field clear of competitive promoters and upon request by officials of the Wichita Falls boys' band, has agreed to endeavor to revive the sport under auspices of the band.

As a starter, Ross has lined up two of the southwest's most popular welterweights, Tommy White of Texas City and Clyde Hull, formerly of St. Paul but who recently has been headquartering in Fort Worth. Hull and White resume their argument of two-year vintage Thursday night at the Palace in the feature bout of the boys' band benefit card.

Decision Disputed

White earned a popular decision over Hull Friday night in Fort Worth, at least, so one dispatch from Cowtown says. But another critic gave the bout a draw due to a great finish made by the game St. Paul battler. All Fort Worth fights are no decision affairs as far as the referee is concerned, the verdict being left up to the newspapers. Some of the boys declared White deserved the laurel wreath because he led the fight for eight rounds and had Hull in trouble several times. But others declared Hull's comeback in the ninth and tenth rounds when he came very near to turning the tables on his sturdy little Texas rival warranted a draw verdict.

These clever, also colorful boxers, are well known to the city's fandom. In fact, each boasts a host of friends here. Both have performed in Wichita Falls off and on against all comers and the pair bows to no welterweights in all the southland.

Both White and Hull are expecting in the city Monday to taper off their training exercises, says Ross. Each, however, is said to be in great condition already. They are to battle over the 10-round route.

Martin Ambitious

The popular Buster Martin, Wichita Falls heavyweight, is working away to be in tiptop condition for his eight-round semi-final melee with the tough and hard-hitting Jack Adkins of Childress. Both big fellows are crowd pleasers. Martin hopes to show the fans he has improved very much since his last appearance here in 1926 and is working for a main event with some topnotch middlewest or eastern heavy. Buster has championship aspirations, but realizes he must climb the ladder step by step. He's satisfied to start right out in his own home town.

Supporting the Adkins-Martin scrap is to be a six-rounder between Buckshot Peoples, Wichita Falls welter, and Pug Humphries of Lawton. Both boys have heavy followings here. Each knocked off several battles locally in the old days under the other fight regime.

Arrangement of preliminary bouts have not been announced, but Ross says he is on the lookout for several likely youngsters to card up for a couple of four-rounders.

GERMANY INVITES ROWERS

Crews from all of the leading universities of the world have been invited to the international German rowing regatta, which will be held at the Ems again this year. The chief trophy will be the President von Hindenburg cup.

The races will be held on July 23 and 24 on the Lahn river, a tributary of the Rhine, and the starting point Ems.

LONG DISTANCE SCOUTING

The Spudders travel afar in quest of ball players, one Breezy Guy Airey, club sec, would have you understnad. Even to the other side of the world, as it were. It's about this J. J. Buvid fellow, at present one of Uncle Samuel's well-known marines. Buvid, they say, is an exceptionally warm number. Been burning 'em up in the navy loop. He's a thrower, a right-hander. Some wall-eyed fan running around over in China one day is said to have seen J. J. doing his stuff on a Mongolian diamond or something or other in a game with some super-nine off one of Uncle's super-dreadnaughts. This gink liked the way Buvid worked, so he pinned it in his bonnet to put some professional ball club hep when he returned to the country of free speech, give me liberty or give me death and Volsteadian edicts. The amateur ivory sleuth calls Kentucky his home, so when he got back to the Blue Grass state he sat down and wrote himself a letter to some other baseball bimbo out on the coast he had looked for upon landing but had missed, telling him all about Buvid. Now this other guy is some kind of a sure enough baseball scout, according to Breezy. A month or so later Buvid and his marine corps came to Los Angeles or maybe it was San Francisco and started playing a round robin series of ball with other service teams. Scout number two went out and looked Buvid over, liked him, then got in touch with the Spudder management. Spudders signed the Devil Dog up for a tryout pronto and he's coming in this spring. Gets his release from the government March 20 but is going to be allowed a 30-day furlough, so expects to arrive in Wichita Falls about the first week of next month.

Now if that isn't going a long ways after a fellow, what is?

There isn't much doing right now on that gymnasium proposition. Can't say much other than the outlook is fairly rosy. Walter Cline, the ramrod of the Y. M. C. A. committee, is on deck stripped for action and declares he's ready to go ahead and open fire in drive for funds to construct a building with. The committee is in communication about something or other with Y. M. C. A. officials at Dallas and New York.

Meanwhile the basketballers are about the only ones getting away with anything in the sporting line and they're finding the road rough and ragged. No facilities for practice. The girls teams suffer the most. Males manage to jump up and run around the country for practice games here and there. Which recalls Frank Ramsey's Which recalls Frank Ramsey's Conocos, feminine, want to play some out-of-town team here, if some out-of-town team will do it and if the junior college court can be obtained.

ABOUT THOSE CAGE RULES.

"Dear Blondy:

"I note with pleasure the discussion started on basketball played here. Hope everything gets straightened out. Funny little thing, you know, last week I saw the Continental girls team play the Electric company girls team. They certainly were rough. Played under boys rules I guess. But what makes it so funny is I went back to the college this week and saw six boys teams play three games in the Commercial league apparently governed by girls rules.

"Haven't the boys and girls got mixed up on their rule books? I bet I know, you funny devil. You probably framed the two referees just as a prank.

"C'mon on, 'fess up.

"AN OLD BASKETEER."

Deny the allegation.

"Dear Mr. Cross:

"Just can't resist the temptation of entering the discussion about girl's basketball.

"When played according to the rules, girl's basketball is as interesting as any other athletic contest. It would be folly to institute the men's rules of basketball for the girls now playing on the Junior college court. Although women have carved records in the sport books, they are not physically capable of undergoing the strain of competing in a long distance contest. That is practically what the men's game is.

"Spalding's revised rules give the girls greater freedom of the court and when the girls becomes accustomed to this style of play, there will be better teamwork. Teamwork, as you know, will reduce the number of fouls called and speed the game. When the referee "bears down" and calls the fouls with an explanation to the players, it will be a lesson for future reference and will have an indirect bearing toward cleaner playing. True, many fouls are intentional. It's the same way in football, boxing and track or any other sport. But every sport has its penalties and regulations. That is what makes competition.

"The Treasvant and Cochran team, three times Southern A. A. U. champions of girl's basketball, play in accordance with the strict three court section rules. However, they are not "powderpuff" athletes but a real snappy quintet that knows how to handle, pass and shoot the ball. At the present time, they are open for games with any girls' team within a reasonable radius of Dallas and if the recipient of this letter and other readers wish to see a real girl's team in action, I don't believe it would be hard to arrange a date for them.

"Yours for real sport,

"N. W. HARRIS."

All right, all right.

"Dear Blondy:

"The letters and articles which have appeared in your paper the last few days about the officiating in the city league basketball games have been very interesting, but certainly do not coincide entirely with my ideas. I do agree, however, in the desired result—hard-fighting, clean, fast basketball. I have played and officiated probably as much as anyone in this section of the country, and from personal experience I know the officiating here is not as strict as in most other places.

"Basketball is essentially a game of skill, speed, agility, cleverness and ability—personal contact nullifies these attributes which make basketball the game that it is, and should be eliminated as much as possible. Fouling is certainly no reflection on the playing character of the player, and is not only permissable, but desirable, under certain conditions. It is good basketball to foul under such conditions, but it certainly should receive its penalty, since it receives its benefits illegally. And the time comes to foul, I believe in making a hard, smashing foul that will have some psychological effect on the fouled. Tagging, grabbing, guarding from the rear, pushing, and other unnecessary bodily contacts have no place on the court—they nullify the fundamental essence of the game. A PLAYER CAN FIGHT JUST AS HARD, DO JUST AS MUCH GOOD AND DEAL JUST AS MUCH PUNISHMENT—physically and mentally—TO HIS OPPONENT AND STILL NOT FOUL. AS HE CAN BY PLATING A GAME THAT IS NOT CLEAR-CUT. Contact in a game can not be prevented avocially on a small court, but it should not be exaggerated as would be the case if the players were unleased. All personal contacts should not be fouled, especially the unintentional ones, but I believe if the officials would be stricter on contacts that hinder the player, that the games would be harder, faster and more interesting because a real fan does not go to see a game featured by mob playing and brute force, but rather a game where skill and scientific play are the essentials. At least that is what I go to see.

"A player is not necessarily yellow if he would rather play clean-cut, scientific basketball, rather than pull a mob scene with the other fellow. I believe in a hard, fast, smashing game and such is more easily played under close officiating than otherwise. If the players know that when they snag an opponent that they will be fouled, they will soon stop playing a game that is not clear-cut, and which necessarily slows down the game.

"If anything, I believe the officiating is not close enough. When I go to a game I go to see basketball played as it should be—not a free-for-all.

"Sincerely,

"F."

You win.

Basketball Fandom Turns To Conoco-PBM Tilt Wednesday

Department Store Crew On Rampage to Regain Lost Laurels in Feminine League Play By Drubbing Oiler Outfit

The girls are all steamed up almost enough to sock a cop. It's over that cage encounter carded between the Conocos and P. B. M. sisters Wednesday night at the Junior college. These clubs have developed a rivalry that borders very near the realms of hostility and the battle is doped to be a torrid affair.

Conocos stand at the top of the loop on a percentage tie with the Electrics. Kilowatt girls caught P. B. M. off form last week and took 'em to a cleaning, so John Barnard's bunch is on the warpath in comeback effort Wednesday night, expecting to topple the Conocos from that deslock for the league lead and then rally later to upset the speeding Electrics.

Heavy Interest Manifested

The third double-header set of games in women's league play is slated Wednesday and, for that matter, the other game between the Electrics and Whippets could be left off the card without hurting the gate receipts very much, so heavy is the interest manifested in the Conoco-P. B. M. melee. Each team has taken out a number of tickets to sell and both expect to show up with large rooting detachments behind them.

When Ollinger and Hallman of P. B. M. clash with Covey and Anderson, Conoco guards, sparks are sure to fly. And the same can be said the other way round. When the high-scoring Mrs. Bill Abbott, Louise Boyce and Thelma Holt tangle with the P. B. M. defense array there will be action aplenty.

However, not all the fireworks will be produced in the Conoco-P. B. M. battle, for word from rival camps has it the Whippets and Electrics will be in there scrapping away for bear. The powerful Kilowatt aggregation may expect far tougher opposition from the Whippets than the automobile crew has offered before, declare Coaches Clary and Neal. The Whippet squad is leaving very little undone in the way of rehashing the line-up and whipping around into winning form.

Whippets Improve

In Wright and Arbuckle, Whippet guards, Captain Jessie Duke and Ollinger, Electric forwards, will face two formidable opponents, Walker and Holcomb expect to give Ash, Ramsey and Anderson, Kilowatt guards, a merry chase when they open their goal-shooting foray.

P. B. M. although having lost a game, leads the league in scoring, Ollinger and Hallman showing the way with 15 points each. The club has tabulated 42 points in three games. Abbott of the Conocos is high scorer, leading the league with 26 points

Coyotes Tackle Clara Monday

Whippets Clash With Conoco Sextet On Same Bill

Coach Bud McCallum plans a busy week for his high school Coyotes as they prime for the district cage tournament. The high school mentor has billed a game with the speedy Clara Greyhounds for Monday night on the Junior college floor and hopes to make room for games later in the week with the fast Petrolia and Archer City teams. Petrolia, incidently, nosed out the sturdy Archer City crew Friday night, 32-31.

A double offering is on the Monday night card with Chubby Neal sending his Whippets against Frank Ramsey's Conoco girls. The game is to serve as a conditioner for the Whippets who play the Electrics Wednesday and the Conocos who tackle the P. B. M. club the same night in women's league play.

Coach Herb Ludgate of the Junior college is planning a return game with Altus this week, also. The Indians have won one and lost one to the Altus Junior collegians.

Tennis Association Gives Gate to Vin, Mary and Howard

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.(AP) The United States Lawn Tennis association in annual session Saturday adopted an executive committee amendment excluding Vincent Richards, former Davis cup star, from its 1926 ranking list.

The action was taken despite an appeal for support of this report from the ranking committee which took the stand that Richards was entitled to ranking because he had completed the outdoor season as an amateur.

The decision of the association also eliminated possibility of a ranking for Mary K. Browne, former national women's champion, and Howard O. Kinsey, both of California, who have turned pro with Richards.

The delegates adopted the rankings which placed Tilden at No. 1. The remainder of the first 10 rankings approved by the meeting was as follows:

No. 2, Manuel Alonzo, former Spanish Davis cup player; No. 3, Takeiichi Harada of Japan; No. 4, William M. Johnston of California; No. 5, Eward G. Chandler of California; No. 6, Lewis N. White of Texas; No. 7, Alfred H. Chapin Jr., of Springfield, Mass.; No. 8, I. C. Norton of St. Louis; No. 9, George M. Lott Jr., of Detroit; No. 10, George King of New York.

The approved women's ranking placed Mrs. Molla M. Mallory of New York first, while No. 2 position was allotted Miss Elisabeth Ryan, California. Other first 10 players were ranked as follows:

No. 3, Eleanor Goss of New York; No. 4, Martha Bayard, Short Hills, N. J.; No. 5, Mrs. A. H. Chapin Jr., Springfield, Mass; No. 6, Mrs. J. D. Corbiere, Boston; No. 7, Margaret Blake, Boston; No. 8, Penelope Anderson, Richmond, Va.; No. 9, Mrs. E. H. Roeser, New York; No. 10, Mrs. William Endicott, Boston.

Hornsby Off For Stock Discussion

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 5.(AP)—In an effort to devise a plan for disposing of 1167 shares of stock in the Cardinal baseball club owned by Rogers Hornsby, the former Cardinal manager now captain of the New York Giants, left today for New York to confer there with President Charles Stoneham of the Giants and President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals.

Hornsby was accompanied by William J. Fahey, his attorney.

Breadon has turned down Hornsby's request for $195 a share, which Hornsby declares is a "reasonable price" and no outsiders have offered what he considers an adequate price.

CALLING 'EM RIGHT

I made the right decision,
That's very plain to me,
Although he got a base on balls,

Let's get right down to cases,
I want you all to know
I told him he was out because
Three men were on the bases,
And he had no place to go.

Ban Plastered On Player Wagering

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., Feb. 5.(AP)—Adoption of the Landis resolution forbidding betting on ball games by players, managers or any one connected with the conduct of the contests, was announced tonight following the opening session of the spring meeting of Western league club owners.

Dale Gear, president of the league, announced that the owners had taken no other action during the meeting. The major league waiver rule, sale of the Lincoln club, and preparation of the season schedule were discussed, he said.

Although opinion apparently prevailed against the rule which would give major leagues the right to draft players at a flat price of $5500, definite action was deferred to the fall meeting at Dallas, Texas. The rule would be coupled with an agreement by major clubs to carry not more than two recruits having had no minor league experience. At present the majors may draft only players who have played in the "big time."

ZACK WHEAT—THE UNUSUAL

Surroundings Should Make Little Difference to Slugger

By GEORGE MORIARTY

Zack Wheat's entrance in the junior circuit as a member of Connie Mack's 1927 cast, is one of the most unusual cases on the major league docket. He leaves the elder loop after a period of service that stretches over 18 seasons. He is one of the real sluggers of the game, and will undoubtedly demonstrate that he can wallop the onion to the far places although the hurlers and surroundings will be entirely new to him.

His name brings back an odd experience to me. About seven years ago, I was officiating in a Yankee-Brooklyn spring series. At Atlanta, on the way north, a large crowd turned out to see Ruth, Wheat, et al, do their stuff. Part of the crowd stretched across the right field line in front of the fence. A ground rule was made for two bases on a hit into the crowd. Wheat came up in the seventh inning, and drove the ball on a line in the direction of the overflow crowd. As the ball neared the spectators, they scattered, and without touching any of the fans, the ball proceeded on its journey through a hole in the bottom of the fence. This queer turn changed the fabric of the ground rule; the tying run had scored on the hit, and it then became a question of whether Wheat's clout was a two-base hit or a home run. Then a stranger thing happened. While Miller Huggins, Wilbert Robinson and the umpires were discussing the odd happening, the fans cut loose with a shower of cushions, and soon the infield was literally covered with them. A desultory tiring of detached seats continued, and when it was found impossible to restore order, the game was called.

Nobody Likes Charley Any More But He Still Hangs Around Town

Why? Because Like or No Like Customers Pay Off Hoping They'll See Him Take Licking.

THE CARD

Time: 8:15 Tuesday night.

Place: Palace theater.

Apparently they can't get enough of this bullet-head around here. They cuss him and razz him, ride him and roar, but Charley Grip's coming back for more. The pudgy, baboon-faced wrestling man has most of fandom outside of a group of the Palace and Majestic Theater stage hands down on him. Why the theatrical boys are for him is a question. But fandom, rather a large part of it, doesn't care much for Mr. Grip any more for two reasons, one, he's never been defeated here, two, because when near defeat several times he's come out from under by use of tactics foreign to wrestling ethics.

SMART GUY, ALEC

Dutch Mantell is just as big a roughneck as Grip but the fans would like to see Dutch trim the bullet-head. Swede Jensen is just as much roughness as Grip but he hasn't made himself as obnoxious with the rank and file, so fandom would like to see Jensen drub the baboon bozo.

That's the answer. Alec Ross, a wise old promoter, matches Grip up with Jensen because he knows the majority of the fans want Grip defeated and because he thinks he knows a majority of the fans believe Swede can turn the trick. There's the catch. Maybe Swede can't do it, but if fandom thinks he can fandom is willing to cash in at the gate just to see whether he can or cannot. Smart man, Alec.

Yeah, and the Grudge

Then back of it all, Ross has gobs of color. Didn't Grip and Jensen both have a fight in an Amarillo dressing room a couple or three weeks back and both get slugged into the fog? And then, didn't Grip wrangle with Swede here week before last over Jensen's performance as third man in the ring while Charley was wrestling? And didn't Charley take Swede on for a one-fall match and get trimmed that same night? And didn't Charley and the Swede hook up at the end of that second fall last week between Dutch and Charley?

What more do you want? There's the old grudge ballyhoo all lined out and deciphered for you. And that one-fall victory is sufficient for some people to believe Swede can beat the Lithuanian in a finish match. Yeah, Ross is a wise old hombre, or is he?

With the popular Teddy Waters and Billy Dixon staging the preliminary scuffle Ross has developed a background for possibly a very interesting evening and a heavy click of the box office register.

County Tourney At Burk Friday

Iowa Park and Clara Rule As Favorites

The Wichita county basketball tournament will swing into action Friday morning off the Burkburnett court to determine the championship five for 1927. At the present time there seems to be some doubt as to the real favorites of the senior games with both Clara and Iowa Park hogging the limelight.

The pair have not met this year but they are expected to clash at the coming tourna..ent and this is the game that will draw the big interest of the fans. The Hawks were the winners of last year in this classic battle and the Clara five is out for revenge this year.

But there is still a threat left in the Electra Tigers and they may upset the dope bucket. Coach Jim Reese has a strong club at Electra and a fast one, but none of the critics is giving them much of a shot at the championship.

The junior teams will have many contenders while the sub-junior teams will be well represented. Also Burkburnett and Electra will have several teams of both. Clara, Iowa Park, Cashion, County Line, City View, Rocky Point and several other rural schools will be entered.

Double-Header At Fairview Monday

The new Fairview high school gymnasium will catch a wad of heavy basketeering Monday night, it was announced Saturday. A double-header cage card has been lined up for edification of Burk and Fairview court fans. A heavy crowd is expected to turn out.

The Fairview high school team will play the Burkburnett High School Bulldogs in one game. The fast-stepping Thrift Nighthawks are billed with the steady Burk faculty quintet in the other battle.

Action aplenty looms on this program. The first game is to start at 7:30 o'clock.

AUSTIN, Feb. 5.(AP)—With the score tied at 24-all and a minute and a half to play, Holly Brock, flashy Texas sophomore forward, dropped a long shot through the hoop an dfollowed it a few seconds later with a magnificent dribble through the Arkansas defense to loop an easy crip shot and give Texas a 26 to 24 victory over the Arkansas university basketball eagers, here tonight.

It made a clean sweep of the series for Texas, the Longhorns having won Friday nigth 32 to 23.

Spudders Marshall Strong Brigade For Training Camp

21 Pitchers and Three Catchers to Answer First Call March 1, Rest of Gang to Be On Deck By March, Orders Manager Williams

Repeating the hot stovers' national anthem, "It Won't Be Long Now!"

With fair weather—baseball weather already answering roll call, plans of Spudder officials are speeding up. A new and fancy park—the same old orchard dressed up until in playing field and diamond it ranks as one of the best, if not the best, in the south, will greet a new team—the same old team dressed a little differently with a new spirit and improved mechanically here and there, March 10, when Manager Carl Williams opens officially the spring training camp.

But many of the boys will be breezing in earlier than that. The Trojan Carl is expected on deck about February 27, and the batteries have been ordered to report March 1 for inaugural limbering-up exercises.

A powerful array of throwers and receivers will answer the call the afternoon of March 1. Twenty-one pitchers and three backstops have been ordered to report for duty.

Frank Tobin, the veteran catcher obtained last fall from Portland in the Metzler deal with the Macks; Pete Lapan, the heavy-hitting midget and mainstay of the Spud staff throughout the 1926 drive, and E. Perschik, Chicago semi-pro sensation, recommended by Bill Whitman, the Cub scout, compose the receiving staff.

The Throwers

Heading the pitcher list, of course, is the veteran Williams, himself, hard-working right-hander, who still carries many a good game in his sturdy frame. Shovel Hodge, Tom Estell, the spitballer; Joe Kiefer, the pudgy starboarder who was an enigma to many an ambitious Texas club last year; Big Jim Roberts, the ace of the Spudder mound corps; the youthful Lester White, and the lefthanders, Fred Fussell and Buster Ross, comprise the Spud hold-over pitching list. Fussell expects to have a great year, and much is expected from young Ross. Vernon Glass, Spud portside rookie, will be back also. Added to this array are A. T. Wood and J. E. Sargent, lefthanded semi-pros; Dan Schmidt, Lincoln righthand semi-pro; Gene McClung, a righthander, who was the San Angelo oil field sensation last season; John Roberts, Big Jim's brother; Sheet Ratliff, one of Sled Allen's youngsters at Lubbock; Ronie Glidewell, star of the Wichita Falls Twilight league, and J. J. Buvid, one of these here now Devil Dogs, an honest and truly marine corps hurler. Then on top of the hold-overs and the ambitious youngsters comes a quartet of flingers purchased or swapped for during the winter by Spudder moguls. George Payne, the husky righthander, was bought outright for a large sum as Texas league transactions go, from Portland. Hal Diviney and Milt Steengrafe, both well-known in Texas league circles, were picked up. Steengrafe, for one, looms formidably. Herb Cobb, drafted from Wilson of the Virginia league, served under Bunny Hearn, who declares this young righthander is potential major league material.

Tough Proposition

Williams probably will find it difficult to cut down a staff out of such a host of high-powered chunkers, but the infield and outfield appears fairly cut and dried. George LaFayette is back at first base; Pete Turgeon at second; Rabbit Benton at third with Swede Swenson endeavoring to root him out, and Johnny Mann, the Macon flash, battling Marvin Smith, obtained from Portland, for the short field berth.

The outfield that finished the 1926 season, Tom Jenkins, Howard Fitzgerald and Lyman Lamb, will be back with Mel Kerr, the Canadian flash; Floyd Trexler, one of Jenkins' former team mates; E. P. Almon, Corsicana semi-pro, recommended by Estell, and Clyde Wren, former manager of McAlester team, fighting for jobs.

FARMERS REVAMP LINEUP

Petty Out, Sikes to Center, Clark, Davis, Webster, Forwards.

COLLEGE STATION, Feb. 5. (AP)—A changed line-up from that used so far this season will be put on the court in Fort Worth Monday night by A. and M. where it meets Texas Christian university, Coach Dana Bible announced today. The change was made necessary by loss to the basket ball team of Red Petty, declared ineligible. Petty was the Aggie's leading scorer.

COOPER TOPS HAGEN

DALLAS, Feb. 5.(AP)—Harry Cooper of Los Angeles was four up on Walter Hagen at the end of 36 holes of their 72-hole match here Saturday. Today's round was played over the Cedar Crest Country club. The final 36 holes will be played Sunday at Tenison park, the local municipal course.

IMPORTANT PRODUCERS IN WICHITA AND COOKE FEATURE WEEK

GRIFFIN POOL IS EXTENDED

Second Producer in Meunster Makes 150 Barrels

BY TOM TRULY.
Oil Editor, Record News.

A three-quarter mile extension to the Griffin pool in Wichita county, the second producer in the Muenster townsite pool of Cooke county and three big producers in the Turbeville area of Archer county constituted the most interesting events of the past week in the North Texas oil district.

The Griffin pool "extensioner" was the Bridwell and Heydrick No. 2 which had five feet of sand topped at 1,818 feet and which is estimated to be good for a daily production of 75 to 100 barrels since shutting off salt water which was found at 1,823 1-2 feet. This test is in the W. H. Spillers survey and across a horseshoe bend in the Wichita river from the main pool.

Find New Sand.

Northeast of the above area Bridwell and Mayfield in their No. 2 J. & J. Waggoner, block 12, Hezikiah George survey, and west of the Mitchell production in the P. Castleman survey, not only made a slight extension to the pool but produced from a new sand horizon. It is pumping 40 barrels at 1,310-12 feet.

A small territory four miles north and slightly east of the Griffin pool received a severe jolt when the Fain-McGaha Oil company abandoned as a duster its No. 1 Ferguson. This followed closely the completion of a failure by the Panhandle Refining company on the same farm but some distance to the south. Geologists still place a great deal of confidence in this area, however, and Fain-McGaha have made location for their No. 2 and it is said that the Panhandle will put down two more tests before condemning the territory.

Just when the choir was beginning to chortle the swan song for Cooke county as an oil district, along comes what appears to be the biggest strike to date in the Muenster pool proper in Oil Operators Trust No. 1 Klejas, drilled on a townlot. This well had a sand at 1,338 feet which produced oil in retail quantities but the owners decided to drill a little deeper and at 1,512 feet a rich sand was found which quickly filled the hole with oil. After partly cleaning out the hole was swabbed and was reliably reported to have made 150 barrels in a 24-hour test. This undoubtedly will stimulate activity in the townsite which was lagging since several nearby tests had failed to hit the Muenster sand.

Turbeville Pool.

The Turbeville pool in central Archer county which has furnished from one to ten new producers nearly every week since its discovery nearly a year ago, demanded a little attention this week when L. T. Burns brought in his Nos. 2 and 3 "D" lease in block 142 with a combined production of 500 barrels daily. No. 3 made 200 barrels from 1,433-61 feet and No. 2 swabbed 300 barrels at 1,436-60 feet. The Simm Oil company completed one of the largest producers of the year in Archer county in No. A-16 Turbeville in block 172, which swabbed 450 barrels initial from sand at 1,472-96 feet.

The Pandem Oil company's efforts to increase the output of Baylor county went unrewarded when No. 2 J. J. Sykora failed to pay off at 1,450 feet. Out of five attempts in Baylor county, the Pandem has made one producer.

The Buttram Petroleum company brought in a pair of commercial wells in Jack county, its No. 4 C. K. Cullers being the best in 1927. It started off at 100 barrels from 2,095-2,100 feet and placed on the pump, it made 75 barrels. This company's No. 9 Joe Preston is pumping 40 barrels from the sand at 2,072-77 feet.

Petroleum Producers No. 2 N. H. Thomas, block 1, N. Thomas survey, was a duster at 1395 feet.

Baylor County

Pandem Oil corporation No. 2 J. J. Sykora, W. H. Loggins survey, abstract 248, was dry and abandoned at 1449 feet.

Jack County

Pipeline Runs Past Week Decrease 10 Barrels As Wilbarger Shows Gain

Daily pipeline runs in the Wichita Falls district were just 10 barrels less than those of the previous week when the daily average was 100,805 barrels. Five fields showed substantial gains last week but losses registered by the other six offset this. The big wells completed in the Fluhmann pool in Wilbarger county boosted that area's production by 200 barrels while Throckmorton county was close behind in the amount or gain with a 185-barrel increase. Electra gained 30 barrels, Baylor county, 15, Cooke, 25 and Montague, 125 barrels. Both Archer and Young counties decreased 255 barrels in daily runs and the other fields showed smaller losses.

Daily runs by fields follow:

Field—	Past Week	Prev. Week	Difference
Electra	16,180	16,150	gain 30
Burkburnett	11,255	11,345	loss 90
Iowa Park	4,355	4,520	loss 165
Archer County	29,305	29,560	loss 255
Baylor County	130	115	gain 15
Clay County	780	785	loss 5
Cooke County	1,135	1,110	gain 25
Jack County	715	725	loss 10
Montague County	12,455	12,330	gain 125
Throckmorton County	2,125	1,940	gain 185
Wilbarger County	12,975	12,685	gain 290
Young County	9,385	9,640	loss 255
Totals	100,795	100,805	loss 10

ANOTHER PEAK AT SEMINOLE

But Water Intrusion Is Discouraging News

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., Feb. 5.—Production for the Seminole pool for the 24 hours ending Feb. 5, was 251,-215 barrels, or a gain of 10,000 barrels over the previous 24 hours.

This is expected to be increased when Monday's figures are announced, for the reason that 12 new wells are being drilled in. The two outstanding producers reported from the pool today were: Atlantic Oil Producing company's No. 1 Harjo in 35-9-6 which is flowing from air pressure at the rate of 3,400 barrels a day. Carter Oil company's No. 1 Cudjo 35-9-6 is flowing 2,000 barrels a day.

Discouraging news from the field today was the fact that the Indian territory illuminating company's two gusher wells in 13-3-8 and 15-8-6 are showing water. The former has dropped from 5,000 to 4,300 barrels a day and the latter is still holding up at 6,500 barrels.

News of The Fields

RAZOR, SWISHER.

Jack Razor, et al., have made location to drill No. 1 A. E. Swisher, 150 feet from the south and west lines of the north half of the northeast quarter of the J. M. Swisher survey, abstract 396, in Archer county.

TIDAL, TURBEVILLE.

The Tidal Oil company's No. 2-A J. H. Turbeville, located in block 152, Robt. Carson survey in Archer county, has been abandoned as a dry hole at a total depth of 1,499 feet.

GHOLKE, WILSON.

The Gholke and Bean well on the L. F. Wilson land, block 248, Geraldine subdivision in Archer county, has a sand at 1,570-71 1-2 feet and is showing some oil. It is expected to make a nice producer when salt water is shut off.

GOLDSMITH, WILSON.

N. B. Goldsmith, et al., in their No. 2 J. R. Wilson, section 409, T. E. & L. survey in north Young county, was plugged and abandoned at a depth of 1,110 feet.

CONTINENTAL, RICHARDSON.

The Continental Oil company and others have made location to drill a test on the J. T. Richardson land, 1,060 feet from the east line and 750 feet from the south line of block 9, Thomas McCoy survey in southwest Archer county.

BUTTRAM, PRESTON.

The Buttram Petroleum company is starting two more tests on its Preston-Slagel lease in the D. Slagel survey, abstract 1003 in Jack county. No. 2 is rigging up cable tools while No. 3 has been announced as a location. The past week the Buttram completed a pair of nice wells in the Cullers area. No. 4 C. K. Cullers is pumping 75 barrels from 2,095-2,100 feet and No. 9 Joe Preston is on the pump for 40 barrels daily at 2,072-77 feet.

GRISHAM, KUNKLE.

W. J. Grisham and associates have made location for No. 1 Kunkle in the southeast corner of the west 54 acres of the east 114 acres of the J. A. Self survey, abstract 814, Archer county.

MAER-STANIFORTH, WILSON.

Maer and Staniforth and the Continental Oil company have reached a depth of 1,050 feet in their No. 1 L. F. Wilson, located in block 119, A. T. N. C. L. survey in Archer county.

PETROLEUM-UNITED, TURBEVILLE.

Petroleum Producers and United Producers have completed a 40-barrel pumper in their No. 13 Turbeville, block 171, Carson survey, Archer county, which had the sand at 1,500-16 feet.

GULF, PURCELL.

MAGNOLIA, LITTLE.

The Magnolia Petroleum company has completed its No. 15 I. C. Little in the Crawford subdivision of the I. Holman survey in the shallow sand belt of north Young county and the well swabbed 92 barrels initial from sand at 1,579-85 feet.

HUNTER, PARRISH.

T. F. Hunter and associates No. 4 J. E. Parrish in section 8, Hooper and Wade survey in Archer county, has been completed and swabbed 40 barrels of oil in the first 24 hours from four feet of sand topped at 1,647 feet.

DORIAN-PETERSON, TAYLOR.

Dorian and Peterson have made location for No. 1 W. H. Taylor, 500 feet from the east line and 810 feet from the south line of the 53-acre tract out of the W. H. Taylor

MARLAND GETS WONDER WELL

No. 3 Mason Still Flows At Initial Production

Special to The Record News.

ABILENE, Feb. 5. Marland Oil company's No. 3 J. C. Mason, in the Noodle Creek field continues to hold the interest of the oil fraternity operating in this part of the state. This well came in on Jan. 21 with an initial daily production of around 1,500 barrels and has been holding close to that amount each day since. Due to the lack of gas pressure in this well it is likely that an air lift will be installed in order to stimulate oil production. It swabbed and flowed 1,700 barrels of 40 gravity oil on Monday.

Midwest Reaches Sand.

The No. 2 Thornton of the Midwest Exploration company has set casing on the pay sand and is expected to be drilled in momentarily. This well is an offset to the Midwest's No. 1 Thornton, which has been producing for several months.

The Gibson and Johnson-Hurley, John Wheeler wildcat in the George Creath survey, five miles northwest of Noodle Creek, reported a showing of oil several days ago at 2593 feet, but further developments have been held up by trouble caused from salt water. The water is being worked out of the hole and further reports from this test will be closely watched.

In addition to the Midwest's No. 3 Thornton, rigging up in the southeast corner of that company's Thornton lease, two other wells will soon be spudded in on that tract. One of these will likely be a west offset to the No. 2 Thornton, which is now on the pay.

Phillips Petroleum company has just started its Tessie No. 2 and is rigging up for Beasley No. 1 Thornton No. 2 and Joe Winter No. 3.

Marland Oil company's No. 1 Hodges, in southeastern Fisher county, is running 12 1-2-inch casing at 2880 feet.

Marland's No. 1 S. R. Cox, southeastern Jones county, has re-run six-inch casing to 3591 feet after pulling pipe to cut out underreamer, lodged at 2200 feet.

Marland's No. L Larson, in northeastern Jones county, was spudded in the first of this week and last reports gave it as 114 feet deep.

Shackelford County

It is reported that the Massey-Ramsey Oil company is making a location on the B. C. Harvey fee, nw 1-4 section 8, block 14, T. & P. Ry. land, about half-way between the T. K. Simmons, B. C. Harvey, No. 1 in west Shackelford county and the Harry J. Brown, Mrs. J. V. Wright test in east Jones county, section 13, block 14, T. & P. Ry. land. The Simmons well is producing about 32 barrels a day from a new sand at 1715 feet, while the Brown No. 1 Wright found plenty of sand, but failed to produce. This well had a good showing at 1900 feet, but this was passed up and is still drilling. The new location to be made on the B. C. Harvey fee will be on a quarter located in both Shackelford and Jones counties, and it is not yet known which county the test will be in.

The Mid-Continent Oil and Gas company's No. 1 Henry Evans, in section 4, block 2, S. P. Ry. company land, nine miles west of Anson, is drilling past 550 feet.

Grisham-Hunter, Wildman's No. 1 Phillips, Harrison county school land, league 333, eight miles west of Anson is waiting for repairs at 3200 feet. The same owners' No. 1 Mrs. D. Williams, league 334, seven miles southwest of Anson, is drilling at around 1400 feet.

World Oil company's No. 1 Boyd, north part of Samuel Jones survey, No. 244, ten miles southwest of Anson, drilling at 800 feet.

Midwest Exploration company's No. 1 Charley Herndon, sw 1-4 of section 6, M. E. P. & P. Ry. land, two miles south of Anson, is spudded in.

Gillette and Hickey, Cowboy Evans, No. 1 King plantation, Manuel Bueno survey, No. 197, is reported to have fished out all tools in the hole except a bit. This well made a fine showing of oil at 2070 feet and is now reported to be standing 600 feet in oil.

Hart and Cole, No. 7 Cranston, ten miles northeast of Merkel has resumed operations at 2215 feet.

Young County's Location

YODERS GARAGE

PRODUCTION GAIN

Moore County Added To Panhandle Field.

Special to The Record News.

AMARILLO, Feb. 5.—The Panhandle oil field the week just closed averaged 129,311 barrels a day from 925 wells, a gain of 18 new wells and 1,545 barrels in output. The 18 new wells had an estimated initial production of 4,750 barrels.

Outstanding feature of the week was the addition of Moore county to the producing lists with one well, the E. V. Cadman and others No. 1 Sneed, in section 68, block 2, that has been completed for 20 barrels a day. Carson county has 70 wells doing 5,669 barrels a day; Gray, 101 wells making 8,444 barrels; Hutchinson 740 wells for 113,392 barrels; Moore, one well for 20 barrels; Potter one well for 35 barrels and Wheeler, 15 wells for 1,751 barrels.

BRISCOE COUNTY

C. S. Rice to Put Down Important Test.

SILVERTON, Feb. 5.—Material is being moved by C. S. Rice of Kansas City, Mo., for an important wildcat in the southeast corner of the northwest of section 23, block B-5, B. S. F. survey, in Briscoe county. A 2500-foot test will be drilled by R. E. Sweeney, drilling contractor.

The test is on what E. C. Bergman, geologist, calls the Tule creek anticline. The well is 25 miles northeast of Tulia, the nearest rail point, and 33 miles southeast of Happy.

STILL FLOWING

TAMPA, Feb. 5.—The Prairie Oil and Gas company's No. 1 McConnell, in section 67, block 4, I. & G. N. survey, and southeast of the main Roxana pool, is still flowing around 100 barrels an hour, the owners report. The eight-inch pipe was set at 3000 feet; sandy lime was found at 3104 feet; the base of it was at 3113 feet; hard lime was from 3112 to 3149 feet, and oil sand from 3149 to 3150 feet.

IN CASTRO COUNTY

In northwestern Castro county, the Colorado Oil and Refining company has slush pit dug, material on the ground and is building rig for No. 1 Slemmons, at 1520 feet from the west line and 660 feet from the south line of section 78, block M-7, B. S. F. survey.

HUMBLE, LANGFORD.

The Humble Oil and Refining company is erecting the derrick over a new location on the R. S. Langford land in section 987, T. E. & L. survey in Throckmorton county. The location is 466 feet each way from the southeast corner of the northeast quarter of the section.

RAMSEY STRIKE KILLS DOUBT

Well Certain to Make Some Kind of Production

Special to The Record News.

AMARILLO, Feb. 5.—While for months the Panhandle district has enjoyed a high place in the world of oil, it is now felt that activities to come in the near future will soon place it at the top rank of all.

This is based upon the Ramsey discovery in Cimarron county, in the Panhandle of Oklahoma, which is now expected to be incentive for a veritable flock of derricks scattered over the 150 miles lying between that well and the northwestern edge of the Panhandle. As a result new pools are expected to be opened.

All doubts of the first showing have been removed by the swabbing of 75 barrels from this rank wildcat in the former Cherokee "bad lands." It is located in the center of the northwest of the northeast of 27-5n-3e CEM, some 12 miles north of Boise City. Literally thousands have visited the site, and already townsites are being mapped out. It is on state land, the Ramsey brothers of Tulsa owning thousands of acres around it.

Moore Holds Hope

In the Panhandle field itself, hopes of a new pool at present are still centered around the Humble Oil and Refining company's test in section 28, block 44, Moore county. With splendid gas showings and the lime hit within the 1000-foot contour, hopes are high for a producer within the next 300 feet.

Declining estimated production, which in the last report available touched some 125,000 barrels per day, is now expected to start upward again, as a result of back pressure methods of recovery.

Compression plants are being installed to apply back pressure of gas and air on declining wells. The work is now more or less in the experimental stage with reference to the amount of gas to be used.

Raise the Price?

Crude stocks in storage last week showed a gain of 51,000 barrels per day, with the report here that there is a movement afoot among local operators to store their oil in the hope of a premium. Specific cases have been reported of premiums being offered ranging around 20 cents, which is bringing with it the hope of an early raise in posted prices. Panhandle storage is now approaching the 11,-000,000-barrel mark.

The Roxana area in Carson county again forged forward when the gusher of the Prairie Oil and Gas company was followed by a 30-barrel an hour producer from Marland's No. 2-A Bryan, section 92, block 4.

Randal county's Red Hill Petroleum company's No. 1 Canyon, which was reported abandoned and the tools removed, has been revived to be deepened 500 feet. It was carried to 3500 without a showing. This county has one other test in the Patterson hole in the southeastern edge of the county.

The Cimarron discovery has placed Dallam county in a much more favorable light. Activity there has been approaching the feverish within the past few days, especially since the James well, now to be deepened, reported a showing around 2600 feet. Woods and Woods, and Harry Skelly have completed a two months fishing job on their No. 1 Capital reservation, where it was feared the rig would have to be skidded at 1150 feet.

GAS FOUND IN CONCHO COUNTY

Magnolia Plans Casing-Head Plant in West Texas

SAN ANGELO, Feb. 5.—Extension of the Church-Fields pool in northern Crane county a half mile south and 660 feet east through two new producers, the addition of another producer to Upton county's list and announcement of a casing-head gasoline plant by the Magnolia Petroleum company in the Chalk shallow field in southeastern Howard county were leading oil developments in West Texas this week. They followed closely the bringing in late last week of two wells by the Dixie on its Burleson lease in Upton and two by George A. Henshaw, Jr., & Co. of San Angelo in the Fry field in Brown county.

Concho county again attracted attention through striking of another 1 1-2 million cubic feet of gas in Arkansas Fuel & Oil company's No. 1 Hartgrove, 30 feet below the first big showing or at 1147 feet. The gas carried about a quart of oil to 1000 cubic feet. New locations included two by the Dixie on its Nidever lease in Upton county. Opened Wednesday after having been shut in for several weeks for storage, the Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental Oil companies' No. 1 Ira G. Yates, Pecos county discovery producer, flowed 90 barrels the first hour under the heavy gas pressure that had accumulated. The first 55,000 barrel steel tank at the well has been completed and a second tank of like size is under construction.

Two For University

Both Crane county producers are on University land and will swell the revenue of that school. From the development standpoint the greatest significance is the indication that the Church-Fields and McElroy pools may be joined. Eastland-O'Keefe & Collett's No. 1 University, marking the biggest extension, a half mile south, began flowing Sunday a rated 100 barrels an hour after being deepened five feet from 2900 feet, where it was only a small producer. The well is in section 47, block 30, a half mile south of Atlantic-Simms' No. 1 University, a 180-barrel-a-day well, and but 2 1-2 miles north of the nearest Gulf producer in the McElroy field.

Flowing 27 barrels an hour Thursday, Magnolia-O'Keefe's No. 3 University provided the 660 feet eastern extension of the Church-Fields pool, being that distance east of the same company's first producer. It is in section 28, block 30, and while not the best well in the area it will make a good one, it is believed. The well Thursday had penetrated the pay 10 feet to 2947. Mariand-Zoch's No. 2 Hughes in Crane county was standing 300 feet in oil with the top of the showing at 2540 feet.

Prairie Oil and Gas company Thursday got its first production in the southeastern extension of the Burleson area, three miles east of McCamey, by drilling in its No. 1 Lane, flowing 325 barrels in 24 hours. The well is located in the southwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 5, G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. survey, and is an offset to the T & P. Coal and Oil company's No. 1-A Lane in the same section. Prairie has three other tests and locations on the same lease. The Rio Grande Oil company's No. 1 Estep in the Taylor-Hughes area in Upton county was reported flowing 100 barrels a day from a total depth of 2406 feet.

Plan Gas Plant

Increasing of production in the Chalk pool in southeastern Howard county and the Iatan area in Mitchell county to around 1500 barrels a day caused the Magnolia to begin plans for a casing-head gasolene plant there. Magnolia has several producing wells and will handle gas from others in the two areas. The company already has a pipeline to Iatan on the T. & P. Mariand, which has the largest production, has a pipeline to its tank farm and loading rack on the T & P. near Coahoma.

Erection of a derrick was begun in Upton county by M. D. Bryant, 150 feet each way from the south corner of a 7 1-2 acre tract in the southeast quarter of section 7, M. D. Denton survey. The test will offset the Republic Production company's No. 5 Baker and will be known as Bryant-Atlantic's No. 1 Baker.

Pecos County Active

Buel, Hagan & Emsch's No. 1 University in section 31, block 24, University in Pecos county, 12 miles northeast of Fort Stockton, encountered a rainbow of oil and a puff of gas in anhydrite at 1260 feet. The test has not topped the lime at 1465 feet. Owens and Sloans, discoverers of the Chalk shallow field in southeastern Howard county, acquired leases on 240 to 320 acres in Pecos county a half mile west of Quinby No. 2 Bennett, in section 532, which has made some oil. A test will be started on this acreage during February. The California company is preparing to drill on the Pecos county ranch of W. W. Turner of El Paso, in section 10, block 141, T. & S. L. Ry. Co. survey. It will be about 10 miles southeast of Quinby No 2 Bennett and about eight miles northeast of Buel, Hagan & Emsch's No. 1 University.

Materials are being moved into Pecos county for Kirby Petroleum company's first test in West Texas. It will be six miles southeast of Beuna Vista, in the irrigated district, 330 feet from the north and east lines of the southwest quarter of section 30, block 2, H. & T. C. Ry. Co. survey. Caldwell & Owen's No. 1 Henry Mills in northern Val Verde county had a showing of gas at 400 feet. Skelly Oil company has materials on the ground for its No 1 Leeman in Winkler county in sections 21 and 24, block 73, public school land. Cope, Hagan & Emsch's No. 1 Moore in Reagan county, 2 1-2 miles southwest of Stiles, topped the salt at 1028 feet, 20 feet higher than in the nearest test. Pure Oil company is preparing to spud an offset to the Southern Crude Oil Purchasing company's No. 1 Hendricks in Winkler county. The rig has been moved from Pure's No. 1 Kloh in section 1, block 63, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey, which was abandoned at 3105 feet.

Leasing is reported active in Sutton county, C. D. Wyatt recently leasing 1600 acres at $1 an acre to the Dixie. The tract is the north half of section 2, all of section 4, block 6, T. W. N. G. survey, and all of section 51, block A, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey

Cotton--Latest Market Quotations--Cattle

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.(AP)—Extensive week-end readjustment of speculative accounts imparted considerable irregularity to today's stock market, which was again featured by the bullish demonstrations in the so-called "merger rails." Heaviness of the standard industrials and rails was attributed in some quarters to profit taking by traders who had bought stocks "for a turn" and in others to distribution by pools and large financial institutions. Trading was unusually heavy for a half holiday session, total sales running close to 3,500,000 shares.

Wheeling and Lake Erie common, which has been the feature of recent markets, quieted down considerably, less than 2000 shares changing hands with the closing price of 84 representing a net loss of four points. The unusually high premium of $5.50 a share was charged for borrowing the stock over the week-end. Directors of the road meet Monday to consider plans for the issuance of additional common on which the preferred and prior lien stocks may be converted.

Western Maryland common changed hands in enormous volume despite the denial of reports that the Baltimore and Ohio railroad was buying stock in the open market. It moved up over five points to a new record at 38¾, closing within a point of the top. Gulf, Mobile and Northern rose five points higher at 52¾ after touching a new record top at 54. Wabash common and first preferred, New Haven, Erie first preferred, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, the Missouri Pacific and Bangor and Aroostock also reached new high ground. At the close of the market the average of 20 leading railroads was at the highest level since the war.

Bullish demonstrations also were resumed in the oil group, but most of the earlier gains were substantially reduced or wiped out. Houston again was the leader, moving up 4½ points to 91½ and then easing to 87. It was followed into new high ground by Barnsdall "A" and the Phillips Petroleum A. M. Byers, M. H. Macy, General Railway Signal, Jewel Tea company and Remington Typewriter also scaled their previous peak prices.

Except for brisk recoveries in the Spanish and Norwegian rates, there were few changes of interest in the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.84⅛ and French francs around 3.95 cents.

Livestock

TEXAS LIVESTOCK.

FORT WORTH, Feb. 5.(AP)—Livestock reaching the market Saturday sold early. Cattle and calves brought steady prices, hogs displayed an advance of five to ten cents, and an lambs values were quotably unchanged.

Three carloads of beef steers were shown, all being of lightweight and of the yearling order. One car went at $5.00 and two loads brought $4.75. Cows came in mixed shipments only. Single head went at $6.00 to $6.50 and package lots were taken at $3.00 to $6.25. Two loads of fairly good yearlings matched $7.40. A few bulls were around and cashed in at $4.50 to $5.00. Calves cleared within a general range of $5.50 to $6.50.

Under the advance, one car of hogs was good enough to bring $13.15. Other sales of desirable loads at $12.60 to $12.75. Packing sows moved at $10.75 to $11.25, stags were $10.00 to $10.50 and pigs stopped at $11.00.

Two decks of fresh shorn wethers brought $7.75. Some lambs were brought in from a packer feed lot.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.(AP)—Lively buying based on belief the McNary-Haugen agricultural bill is to become a law did much to make wheat prices average higher today. The finish in wheat was 2 to 4c net higher, while the advance in corn ½ to ¾c up, oats at ¼@¾c to ⅝@⅞c gain, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 12c.

Corn and oats proved responsive to buying ascribed to unfavorable weather and to possible extension of the corn borer quarantine so as to cover Illinois.

Higher quotations on hogs gave steadiness to the provision market.

TEXAS CASH GRAIN.

FORT WORTH, Feb. 5.(AP)—Wheat was a little lower on the Fort Worth cash grain market Saturday with export bids running around $1.46⅝. Demand was reported fair both for export and milling grades. Corn stronger with No. 2 yellow 94 to 95c. Other grains practically unchanged.

Wheat: No. 1 dark hard, milling $1.45⅛@1.51; No. 1 ordinary hard, milling $1.40@1.50; No. 1 red, milling $1.38@1.52; No. 1, 70 per cent red, milling $1.40@1.43⅛.

Oats: No. 2 red, 44⅛@47c; No. 2 red, 44⅛@46c; snapped corn, 66@70c; No. 3 barley 78@86c; No. 3 milo per 100 pounds $1.10@1.14; No. 3 kaffir, $1.05@1.07; maize heads $17.00@18.00; kaffir heads $14.00@16.00.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.(AP)—Lively buying based on belief the McNary-Haugen agricultural bill is to become a law did much to make wheat prices average higher today. The finish in wheat was 2 to 4c net higher, while the advance in corn ½ to ¾c up, oats at ¼@¾c to ⅝@⅞c gain, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 12c.

Corn and oats proved responsive to buying ascribed to unfavorable weather and to possible extension of the corn borer quarantine so as to cover Illinois.

Higher quotations on hogs gave steadiness to the provision market.

TEXAS CASH GRAIN.

FORT WORTH, Feb. 5.(AP)—Wheat was a little lower on the Fort Worth cash grain market Saturday with export bids running around $1.46⅝. Demand was reported fair both for export and milling grades. Corn stronger with No. 2 yellow 94 to 95c. Other grains practically unchanged.

Wheat: No. 1 dark hard, milling $1.45⅛@1.51; No. 1 ordinary hard, milling $1.40@1.50; No. 1 red, milling $1.38@1.52; No. 1, 70 per cent red, milling $1.40@1.43⅛.

Oats: No. 2 red, 44⅛@47c; No. 2 red, 44⅛@46c; snapped corn, 66@70c; No. 3 barley 78@86c; No. 3 milo per 100 pounds $1.10@1.14; No. 3 kaffir, $1.05@1.07; maize heads $17.00@18.00; kaffir heads $14.00@16.00.

RAILS STILL POPULAR BUYS

Industrials Also Fare Well On Market Saturday

BY BROADAN WALL.
Universal Service Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Railroad stocks were again the outstanding feature in the two hours of trading in Wall Street. Industrial specialties also were in good demand throughout the session. With the stock market facing the possibility of a reduction in the rediscount rate next week, the buying movement in stocks should broaden. Certain leading traders say that the federal reserve rediscount rate never should have been increased because of the plethoria of funds. A reduction in the bank rate should first be felt in the investment market and then in the stock market. Fresh buying was noticeable in the cotton market. Traders believe that the farm relief movement should have a tendency to lift values. Cotton yesterday sold above the 14-cent level. In wheat prices were reactionary. Spanish pesetas recovered lost ground but elsewhere in the

THE RECORD NEWS

HOOVER MOTION UP THIS WEEK

Judge Martin May Hear Plea For New Trial

Criminal court will be quiet in Wichita Falls the coming week, a survey of dockets discloses.

None of the district courts will be occupied with criminal matters but a heavy civil list is awaiting attention.

W. M. Hoover, convicted last week on a charge of murdering Mrs. Katie Goodman and sentenced to life imprisonment, will probably be given a hearing some time during the week on his motion for an new trial, but when this will be decided is a matter of doubt. The formal motion has been filed but no hearing has been held.

A lengthy list of reasons charging reversible error in the case has been drawn up by Hoover's attorneys, it is understood. In event the motion is overruled by P. A. Martin, the trial judge, an appeal to the court of criminal appeals will be taken.

BURK SOCIETY

Special to The Record News.

BURKBURNETT, Feb. 4.—The Mother's club met at the First Baptist church where an art program was presented. The president, Mrs. Rex Smith, presided and during the business hour plans were discussed and committees appointed for a St. Patrick party to be given by this club.

Mrs. Carl Cowles leader of the afternoon's program then took charge directing the papers and talks on the lesson subject: "The Use of Good Pictures in the Training of Children." The special paper was read by Mrs. S. G. Cruse, and Mrs. Frank Kelley presented "Culture and the Fine Arts." This number was followed by a reading entitled: "Uncle John Valentine," which closed this interesting study of child life in the home for the afternoon.

Those present were Mesdames A. L. Loehofener, Chester Bell, Carl Cowles, J. Frank Kelley, Ed Williams, R. D. Cunningham, H. A. Dodson, R. C. Tevis, R. H. Mc Farlane, S. G. Cruse, Rex Smith and the following visitors, Mrs. Hugh Preston and Mrs. Bert Embree, the latter being a special guest of her cousin, Mrs. Cunningham.

Camp Fire Organized.

Under the executive leadership of Mrs. Hallie M. Dougan, a number of Burkburnett girls gathered Tuesday afternoon at five o'clock in the Methodist church and made a preliminary organization for a Camp Fire in this city.

They opened with a song, signed the pledge as given below and elected the following officers: President, Miss Mildred Keith; vice president, Chiquita Grennell; secretary, Ethel Hamilton; treasurer, Wilma Potter, and reporter, Hildagarde Haynes. Mrs. Henry Prinzing and Miss Bess Morman assisted Mrs. Dougan in her program or organization.

The Camp Fire pledge was signed by the seventeen girls present: "We the undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves (1) to attend all meeting possible, (2) To respond when called upon to duty required by Camp Fire. (3) To have true Camp Fire spirit." Mesdames Bunnie Knauth, Ruby Lowery, Mildred Pilkerton, Wynona Gregg, Nadine High, Ethel Hamilton, Hildagard Haynes, Katherine Ellis, Mildred Keith, Chiquita Grennell, Mildred Smith, Wilma Potter, Bonnie Jean McGuire, Nannie Mae Snoddy, Dorothy Fry, Ursey Gore and Mary Moody.

An appeal will be made to the various benevolent organizations and women's clubs for small appropriations to finance the establishment of the Camp Fire in Burkburnett. In return the girls pledge co-operation in any civic and community enterprise in which they can take a part either in general or program work.

Friendship Shower.

Among the pretty complimentary parties of the season was a friendship shower given Thursday afternoon, by the ladies of the Young Matrons Sunday school class of the Baptist church to Mrsfl Pat Crawford, one of their number.

The function was held in the class room of the church with the following special hostesses in charge: Mesdames Guy Willis, Baker, Belden, Tex Willis and Vaught.

A program of entertainment during the first hour included readings by Billie Walker and Virginia Lee Vaught, a piano solo by Mrs. Roy T. Magers, and a contest of jumbled words in which Mrs. Lochofner and Mrs. Wylie Browning were the winning players, they in turn presented their prizes to the honoree, Mrs. Crawford.

The feature of the occasion, however, was the presentation of the "Good Luck" basket, decorated in pink and white and filled with beautiful useful and artistic gifts for the popular honor guest.

After a merry display of the rare collection of dainty articles, the hostesses served a treat of hot chocolate with whipped cream and cake to the party, the personnel of which were the following: Mesdames J. A. Kelley, Wid Phillips, Wylie Browning, B. H. Gregory, J. E. Kelley, F. B. Ford, H. C. Brookman, J. S. Adams, I. B. Hullum and Baby Irene; Brooks Robertson, W. L. Walker and son, Billie; A. H. Lochofner, Roy T. Majors, D. L. Richardson, A. P. Yeary, J. P. Kelley and baby, Betis Marie; Neeley Vaught, Guy Willis, Baker, C. B. Belden, Tex Williams and the honoree, Mrs. Crawford. Other friends not present but represented by gifts were Mesdames O. B. Wofford, J. M. Allen and C. B. Ray.

Distinguished Visitor.

Among the distinguished visitors in Burkburnett recently was Robert J. Roth, P. D., field secretary of the alumni society of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science. He was a guest of Ed Heine, proprietor of the Burkburnett Pharmacy who is a graduate of the college and member of the society.

There are thirty-one Philadelphia College graduates in the state, and among these are A. N. Richardson, the postmaster of Electra who was a classmate of Mr. Heine and well known in Burkburnett.

CITY COUNCIL MEETING

Routine business matters will be the principal factor in Monday night's city council meeting, city officials believe. There are no important hearings scheduled and nothing else, it is reported, of more than routine nature.

Bank Offers Income Analysis In New Budget System for Housewives

"Household budgets are becoming more and more important in the operation of a home, and the City National bank is rendering a distinct service to women of the city by the installation of their budget department."

This from Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, famous lecturer on cookery.

"We feel that there is a vital need in this day and time, for a better system and a better understanding on the part of the housewives," said W. S. Abbott of the City National bank, yesterday. Every woman knows the value of the budget system and nearly every woman is now trying to operate on a budget of some sort.

"We have investigated various systems inaugurated by the largest banks in the country and have selected the best features of each system. The old system as advocated by various home economic experts, that of the percentage system, or of a scale of ratios worked out for various incomes is entirely inadequate and causes much confusion.

"We have learned that every home and family in its living presents an individual problem. Things that apply to one family do not apply to another and although the incomes of two families may be the same, a fixed rule cannot be made that will practically fit each case. Consequently our system which provides the convenience of a personal income analysis and expense analysis, provides each family with a budget that is made especially for them.

"The budget system is the simplest system known today in business and no business can exist in the haphazard manner that some have been known to do in the past. Women too, feel that they are entitled to a better place in the home—not literally, but actually entitled to partake in the business of running the home. If by a systematic method of spending the family income they are able to cut operating expenses, save here and there and by other things that are desired, they actually step into a business which they themselves have created.

"We want to again urge that every woman who is interested in the least bit in a budget system that really works, to drop us a note or call at the bank.

"We are now preparing to order the necessary supplies and equipment for the women who are really interested in getting the most out of life. When the supplies arrive we will call in the women who are interested and will give them full instructions upon the use of the budget. We will give them full benefit of our experience and the experience of big bankers in the north and east who have made a study of household financing.

"We hope that every woman will take advantage of this added service."

Life Worth Living If You Make It So, Pastor Tells Club In Speech

"Is Life Worth Living" was the subject of a short address by Dr. S. Stephen McKenney, pastor of the First Methodist church, at the University club luncheon Saturday noon.

"In answering the question, 'Is life worth living,' I would say that it is entirely up to the one living that life," he declared.

Dr. McKenney compared men to other forms of life, saying that the measurement of a man was much greater than that of a set of scales or a yard stick.

"There are many great things on earth, but the greatest of these is man," he said. "What makes the ground in New York City valuable? It is because of its great population. After all, it is society that gives value to everything."

Artist Speaks

Herbert Dunton, artist, of Taos, N. Mex., whose paintings are to be on exhibit at the Wichita Falls Junior college next week, was a guest at the luncheon, and briefly compared the successful painter to the successful business man.

"They both have the same ideals," he said. "The successful business man cannot help but make money. But to the artist, if he is a success, if his painting can hang in the archives of the world, if they give one beautiful thought to his fellowmen, then it is of no consequence if he dies a pauper."

Dr. W. T. Mather, professor of physics; Dr. H. Y. Benedict, dean of the College of arts, and Dean T. H. Shelby of the extension department of the University of Texas, were honored guests at the meeting.

Many Visitors

Several vocal duets were sung by Mr. and Mrs. Grieve, evangelical singers, who are here on business in connection with the union services this spring, and little Miss Marjorie Faye Hoensceidt, daughter of Fred Hoenscheidt, formerly of this city and now of Amarillo, gave a short song and dance act. Both musical numbers were accompanied on the piano by J. S. Pitman, pianist for the Maskat Chanters.

William Baldridge, Leo D. Haney and L. E. Huffins, were introduced as new members to the club.

The program next Saturday will be featured as Lawyer's Day, with Judge A. H. Britain, vice-president of the Wichita Falls Bar association, who will speak on "The New Code of Judicial Proceedings, and the New Court of Civil Appeals."

Record Attendance Indicated For West Texas C-C Convention Here

Plans for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention to be held here May 16 and 17 are going forward, under direction of the publicity and conventions committee of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce and the staff of the organization. Several meetings of the committee and staff have recently been held and the general plans for the convention outlined. Another meeting will likely be held this week at which time President W. B. Hamilton of the committee is expected to make further committee appointments.

Inquiries from over West Texas are already being received, which begins to indicate that Wichita Falls may expect the largest attendance the West Texas convention has ever had. Possibly a score of special trains are to bring delegates to the convention and plans for packing these trains have already been made.

In connection with the entertainment plans numerous committees are to be appointed and much work will of necessity be done by these committees in order that the convention may be the success that it should be.

RETRIAL REFUSED

Martin Turns Down Motion For Second Trial of Carroll

A motion for a ne wtrial was overruled Saturday by Judge P. A. Martin in the 89th district court after Oscar Carroll, convicted several days ago on prohibition violation charge, asked for a rehearing. Carroll was given a one-year penitentiary term.

Several of the jurors who convicted Carroll were present in court and were asked questions concerning their method of arriving at a decision.

AMUNDSEN LECTURE

Committees Prepare For Appearance of Noted Explorer.

The Optimist club of Wichita Falls is making big plans for the presentation of Capt. Roald Amundsen, recognized as the world's greatest explorer in a lecture program at the Junior college auditorium on the evening of February 23. Proceeds from the lecture will be used to carry on the boys work which has been started by the members of the Optimist club. Captain Amundsen will speak on the subject, "By Dirigible from Rome to Teller." He is recognized as an able speaker and his appearance is expected to draw an unusually large crowd.

Committees Named

Colon R. Featherston, president of the Optimist club, has announced several committees in connection with the plans for the lecture. These committees and the personnel are as follows:

Advertising—Billy Burke, chairman; Bob Cornelison, Vendope Pistocco and Leslie B. Huffines.

LEADS TEXAS SALES

POTENTATE'S TOUR

Speaking Dates Arranged For National Shrine Head.

The Texas speaking dates of Judge David W. Crosland, Montgomery, Ala., imperial potentate of the Shrine, were received here Saturday by Albert Ellis, recorder of Maskat temple.

They are, Houston, February 21 and 22; Fort Worth, February 23 and 24; San Antonio, February 26, and El Paso, February 28.

In a letter to the local temple, Judge Crosland expressed his regrets at being unable to visit Maskat temple, and urged that as many nobles as possible make arrangements to visit him in the other Texas cities.

Last year Wichita Falls was visited by Imperial Potentate James C. Berger of Denver, Colo.

Lovely Valentine Tea Compliments Three Attractive Matrons

Complimenting Mesdames Lewis B. Holland, Wallace J. Masters and George T. Singleton, Mrs. C. W. Stevenson entertained with a lovely tea at her home Saturday afternoon between the hours of 3 to 5. The reception suite was beautifully decorated for the occasion in red carnations, roses and tulips carrying out the Valentine colors, which were also noted in the refreshment plate.

The guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. C. R. Hartsook and little Miss Gladys Stevenson, daughter of the hostess, wearing a charming frock of green pliated georgette, received the cards in a red satin heart suspended from her shoulder by a red satin ribbon from which miniature valenties were hung in shower effect. Mrs. Stevenson was assisted by her mother, Mrs. George Graves and her sister, Miss Minnie Graves of Waco, and others in the house party included Mesdames Frank S. White, Robert H. Brown, N. B. Chenault, Julian Montgomery, Homer Lee, Everett Jones, M. R. Garrison, B. L. Fain and Miss Iva Willis.

Mrs. Stevenson wore a handsome gown of jade green beaded georgette; Mrs. Holland wore a gown of white crepe Roma embroidered in crystal beads of green and white with white satin pumps and rhinestone buckles; Mrs. Masters wore a gold silk net model over flesh satin embroidered in gold and outlined in gold spangles, and Mrs. Singleton wore her wedding gown of white satin embroidered in crystal beads and pearls, with corsage of roses and sweet peas.

The dining room presented an unusually lovely appearance with walls, windows and doors entwined in southern smilax. Red lights arranged at intervals, suggested a woodland scene where the tea table with forest green satin cover appliqued in red fruit was arranged.

The picture was further enhanced by the soft glow of lighted crimson tapers in silver holders. Here fruit punch, heart-shaped sandwiches, mints and angel squares were served. The elaborate appointments were in silver and crystal.

Music was furnished by a stringed orchestra and several hundred guests called during the afternoon.

On the Air—
Wichita Falls Artists—
Popular Visitors—
Social Activities—
Work For Women—
Federation Meeting—

DEAR KITTY: There are so many things happening all the time these days that are constantly bringing Wichita Falls to the front, that we grow accustomed to being in the public eye and almost forget the people who are helping to put us on the map. However, another invitation from the city of Dallas to a group of our most talented musicians to broadcast over WFAA, Baker hotel studio on the evening of February 13, serves again to refresh our memories a little.

Lately we have furnished more than one artist for radio concerts both at Fort Worth and Dallas, when for several weeks, Miss Katherine Cook, soprano soloist, and Jessie Mae Lawler, pianist, made weekly trips to Dallas and broadcast from various stations, and the high school orchestra was heard from Fort Worth, and then I almost forgot our singing mayor, who is becoming quite a prominent entertainer in air circles. But the latest addition to these musicians of the air is the Stanley Raub stringed quartet for the thirteenth, composed of Mesdames Bruce Greenwood, C. R. Eyssen and Messrs. Stanley Raub and M. A. Ellis. On this program will also be Mrs. Harwood Stacy, pianist who will give several numbers. Mr. Raub will play a violin solo.

AND just a few words about the two who will give the solo numbers: Oft times, I think, we do not exactly appreciate just what we have right in our midst, probably because we do not know much about the wonderful training they have had. Mr. Raub (exceptionally modest) tells nothing, but a friend of his who knows a little about his musical training whispered to us that he undoubtedly has one of the most finished musical educations of any violinist in this section of the south. He is a graduate of the Institute of Musical Art in New York City and also a post-graduate of the same school, and studied chamber music under the noted Kneisel and was a pupil of Leopold Auer. And then Mrs. Stacy who has been president of the Musician's club the past year, and recognized as one of the city's artistic pianists, is both a bronze and silver medalist from the Acadamy of Music at London, Eng., and is also a pupil of Pugno at Paris, France.

AND while we are speaking of artists I am reminded of another talented dramatic reader (you remember we had Miss Irene Bewley last week). Mrs. E. E. Haverstick of St. Louis, who will "kill two birds with one stone" when she is to be the entertainer at the annual luncheon of the civics department of the Women's Forum Tuesday at the Kemp hotel and also visit her sister, Mrs. W. B. Jarrell. Mrs. Haverstick comes highly recommended as a reader of ability, and on this occasion will give "The Piper" by Joseph Preston Peabody.

AT present we are entertaining two unusually popular and attractive visitors, Mrs. Joe King of Okmulgee, sister-in-law of Mrs. J. L. McMahon and Mrs. George Greer of Dallas, who is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peyton Gwynn and will be remembered by intimate friends as Gay Gynn. Mrs. King was honoree at luncheon given at the Wichita club by her hostess Saturday and both Tuesday and Wednesday she will furnish inspiration for parties when Mrs. J. L. Powers will be hostess at luncheon at the Wichita club and Mrs. R. H. Delaney

Mrs. Haverstick Will Entertain At Annual Luncheon

With Mrs. E. E. Haverstick of St. Louis, dramatic reader, as entertainer, the annual luncheon of the civics department of the Woman's Forum will be held at the Kemp hotel Tuesday at 12:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Haverstick, who comes recommended as a reader of the highest type, will give a four-act drama "The Piper," written by Josephine Preston Peabody Marke, which is described as a new treatment of the legend of the piper who freed a city of rats, and then to punish the citizens who refused to pay him, piped away the children as well.

The scene is laid in the marketplace of Hamelin, at a ruined monastery in which the children are confined and at the crossing of two roads on the way to Rudersheim.

Tables for the luncheon will be arranged and decorated in keeping with the various months of the year and each guest will be requested to sit at the one representing her birth month. Each will be presided over by a hostess. At the one representing January, will be Mrs. D. O. Johnson; February, Mrs. I. H. Roberts; March, Mrs. Curtis Atkinson; April, Mrs. Ben G. Ackerman; May, Mrs. A. G. Holmes; June, Mrs. Abe Marks; July, Mrs. C. P. Burton; August, Mrs. Hubert Harrison; September, Mrs. W. H. Street; October, Mrs. T. B. Noble; November, Mrs. E. B. Bailey and December, Mrs. E. P. Bass.

Hostesses at the speaker's table will include Mesdames W. L. Mulligan, Hugh Bassett and E. P. Haney. Executive officers of the forum and of the civics department will also be seated at this table.

Assisting on the program will be Mrs. F. E. Collard, W. M. Young and the Rev. Dan Grieder.

Forum members, prospective members and their friends are invited and requested to make reservations with Mrs. William Huff not later than Monday afternoon.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂ ⁂

Mrs. Bentley Hostess To Sunday School Class

Members of the L. W. Sunday school class of the Grace Methodist church were entertained at the home of Mrs. J. T. Bentley on Bell street Thursday afternoon when Mrs. Lee Gary was a joint hostess.

Fancy work and games featured the diversion, at the close of which refreshments were served to Mesdames D. A. Allen, W. P. McCurdy, Dooley, Otho Hendrix, Frank Jones, Hal Shivey, C. L. Lutz, C. B. Earl, W. L. Dalton, R. R. Russell, W. W. Sherrill, Alderson, Annie Hendrix, C. E. Johnson, T. G. Fletcher, Kennedy, C. B. Baker, Sam Nash, G. W. Lobough, Manauschagian, J. E. Handy, L. E. Council of Jewish Women Will Meet

The Council of Jewish women will meet in regular monthly session at the Temple Israel Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The program will include a paper on "Judaism, Its Discipline and Poetry," which was given at the recent triennial conference held in Washington, D. C., by Mrs. Joseph M. Asher, and will be read by Mrs. J. W. Ginsburg.

Musical numbers will also be given and reports on recent pledges will be made.

Unity Club Meets With Mrs. Daugherty

With Mrs. Walter J. Daugherty hostess, members of the Unity club studied the biographies of several authors at the meeting held Friday afternoon when Mrs. H. B. Patterson led the lesson.

Following roll call, Mrs. J. C. Hunt read a paper on "Booth Tarkington;" Mrs. Daugherty read one on "James Whitcomb Riley," and Mrs. J. T. Montgomery read one on "Mark Twain," prepared by Mrs. M. M. B. Darnell. Mrs. Patterson gave "Recollections of Joan d'Arc" by Twain.

During the social hour refreshments were served to Mesdames E. B. Gorsline, J. C. Hunt, Carrie Joline, J. A. Kemp, O. E. Maer, W. N. Maer, J. T. Montgomery, H. B. Patterson, W. M. Priddy, W. L. Robertson, Eugene Sherrod, Claud Woods, H. C. Young, and J. C. Berney.

Miscellaneous Shower Given Mrs. Ballew

Complimenting Mrs. H. J. Ballew who has recently moved into her new home on Miami Avenue, ladies of the Highland Heights Baptist church entertained with a miscellaneous shower Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. C. Mosley. The house was decorated in the Valentine motifs and colors, and the honoree received numerous lovely gifts.

Refreshments were served to Mesdames A. L. Kirby, C. H. Hodges, M. J. Driskell, J. M. Fuller, F. S. Fowler, E. R. Moore, E. A. Woody, L. P. Walters, W. C. Fowler, J. E. Ferris, E. L. Horner, W. L. Wood and Misses Claudine Vaughan, Jewell Sellars, Fanny Leach and Dorothy Mozley.

Starlight Study Club Meets With Mrs. Edmonds

Mrs. Lillie Edmonds was hostess to the Starlight Study club at her home Thursday afternoon, when an interesting lesson was led by Mrs. Mary Wright. Following the lesson games were played and refreshments suggestive of Valentine's day were served to 10 members and guests.

IN THE PICTURES

Mrs. C. W. Stevenson, attractive matron and prominent in the city's social circles, entertained at one of the loviest teas of the season at her home on Tenth street Saturday afternoon.

Honorees at the tea included Mrs. Lewis B. Holland, wife of Dr. Lewis B. Holland, and a recent addition to the younger married set; Mrs. Wallace J. Masters, who with her husband, Dr. Wallace J. Masters, is prominent in Wichita Falls' social circles, and Mrs. George T. Singleton, who before her marriage recently to Dr. George T. Singleton, was Miss Lillian Fain, prominent in social, church and club circles.

Popular Couple Wed At Home of Bride

Of interest to a large number of friends is the wedding of Miss Sibyl Thornberry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Thornberry, and Lyle W. Goodale, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Goodale which took place Monday evening at the home of the bride's parents.

The ceremony was read by Dr. S. A. Barnes, pastor of the Floral Heights Methodist church before an improvised alter formed of pink carnations and ferns. On either side of which were tall cathedral candles. Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Luella B. Thompson sang "O Promise Me," with Mrs. O. E. Nichols at the piano, and the couple entered the living room to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March. They were preceded by little Miss Patsy Lou Thornberry, the ring bearer.

The bride wore a lovely gown of pearl beaded georgette over flesh satin and carried a shower bouquet of pink rose buds and lilies of the valley.

Immediately following the ceremoney, Mr. and Mrs. Goodale left for a motor trip to points in South Texas after which they will be at home at 1105 Brook Street.

Those present were Messrs. and Mesdames T. C. Thornberry, H. T. Thornberry, Lank Thornberry, R. J. Goodale, Dave Shepherd, Claude Williamson, Jasper Ferguson, Parker Simison, Reed and Mrs. Barnes Mesdames Luella B. Thompson, O. E. Mrs. Karrenbrock Hostess at Party

Observing her husband's birthday, Mrs. Herbert A. Karrenbrock entertained at her home on Dayton street with a lovely surprise party Thursday evening. The house was prettily decorated for the occasion in hearts, cupids and other Valentine motifs, and tables were arranged for progressive "42". Tallys, score pads and table numbers were also in keeping with the Valentine color scheme.

In the games, Mrs. Floyd Pace won the high score favor among the women guests, and Mrs. Alfred Kass was consoled for low. Charles Brooks was most fortunate among the men, while Homer Karrenbrock won the low score prize.

The birthday cake was cut and served with a sandwich plate to Messrs. and Mesdames Levi Bradshaw, Floyd Brooks, John Elder, Homer Karrenbrock, I. W. Karrenbrock, Alfred Kass, Floyd Pace, Marvin A. Parks, and Misses Martha Maude Apple, Johnnie Groves, Zula Hearn and Messrs. Charles Brooks, James Somerville and Dr. J. A. Johnson.

The hostess was assisted in entertaining by her sister, Miss Johnnie Groves and by Mesdames I. W. and Homer Karrenbrock.

Peggy Peidmont

will entertain 12 tables at bridge at the Country club Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Greer was honoree at a lovely bridge party given by her mother, Mrs. Pyton Gwynn at their home Thursday afternoon.

AND women down here are not the only ones interested in a good game of bridge for some of the men folk are qualifying as experts in this recreation. One of the most enjoyable affairs of the week was at the Municipal club Wednesday night when the women members entertained their husbands. Six tables were arranged for the games.

THESE are also the days when various women's conventions are being held, and some of the weighty problems of the future are being worked out. At a recent meeting in Washington, D. C., of the executive board of the General Federation of Women's clubs, many questions of surpassing interest to these organizations were decided.

Among these is the launching of a campaign for a federation foundation fund of $5,000,000, the interest only from which will be used to finance the many-sided educational, legislative, welfare and cultural program of the federation.

Each side participating in the raising of the fund will receive half of the amount raised in its state, which will automatically become a part of its permanent endowment fund for carrying forward the work of its state federation.

Communist propaganda was declared to be one of the most serious things confronting America today by Mrs. John D. Sherman, president of the General Federation of Women's clubs, at the meeting.

"We need not organize ourselves as amateur detectives," said Mrs. Sherman, "but we must be sure that each of us sees to it that our homes, our schools, our churches, our communities, are conducted according to the principles of our government, that our loyal and steadfast support of its laws may strengthen its whole fabric against assault."

Mrs. Sherman recommended the "defeat of insidious propaganda against women's organizations by standing by principles, refusing to be intimidated or stampeded." Other recommendations were: A closer study of federal government; work for recognition of homemakers in the census law to require the United States census bureau to secure data in regard to the home as it does for factories and other industries; and the establishment of the foundation fund.

Hubert Work, secretary of the interior, in an address before the board, paid a high tribute to the work of the federation with special reference to its program on the American home.

Others bringing interesting news to this meeting were Dr. Clara B. Burdette of Pasadena, Cal., correspondent of foreign and territorial clubs, and Mrs. Frederick G. Smith, Somerville, Mass., chairman of membership, who reported 179 new clubs with an approximate total membership of 5341 joining the federation since May.

DELIGHTFUL social features were arranged for the board members. They were received by Mrs. Coolidge in the blue room of the White House and by President Coolidge at the executive offices. A visit to the bureau of standards and an afternoon ment in the United States senate were enjoyed. Mrs. Herbert Hoover gave a tea at her home for the board members. The state presidents were entertained at luncheon given by Mrs. Virginia White Speel, president of the State President's club. Large teas were given for the visiting club women by the Woman's National Republican club and the Women's National Democratic club.

Headquarters was the scene of a large reception given the evening preceding the opening of the session. Several hundred invitations were issued and the official leaders of the capital city, as well as leaders in organization and social life were among the guests.

Nearly every state in the union was represented at the board meeting.

I haven't any idea of continuing this dissertation any longer, for I fear I'm going to follow the fashion and grip a cold. Surely there's something better in store for—

Mrs. Vanston Hostess To Clasby Gleaners

Members of the Clasby Gleaners Sunday school class of the First Baptist church met in a combined business and social session at the home of Mrs. N. C. Vanston Wednesday afternoon when the reception suite was decorated for the occasion in Valentine motif and colors. Mrs. E. Thomas gave the devotionals and Mrs. C. E. Bentley led in prayer.

The program included a discussion of women of the Bible as follows: "Hannah," Mrs. H. A. Covington; "Esther," Mrs. Ada Moore, and the two "Marys," Mrs. John Finch. Mrs. W. W. Brown discussed the Baptist conquest campaign, and Miss Edna Rundell gave a reading.

In the business session it was voted to serve luncheon at the First Baptist church Wednesday evening at the meeting of the officers and teachers.

Contests were enjoyed and partners for refreshments were chosen by matching hearts.

A surprise for the class was the appearance of little Preston Brown, who passed a basket of letters which had inclosed a Valentine card and dainty handkerchief for each guest, gifts from his grandmother, Mrs. W. W. Brown.

Those present were Mesdames A. E. Jones, M. M. Whisenant, W. D. Davis, J. H. Gibson, H. A. Covington, J. A. Thompson, R. P. Davis, W. B. Beach, F. W. Trout, C. T. Spangler, J. M. Wilhite, P. M. Tunis, D. Knowles, Ada Moore, Florence Collins, W. W. Brown, Mary Davis, J. J. Lory, J. T. Brooks, John Finch, R. H. Joyce, C. E. Bentley, E. F. Tarman, W. T. Henderson, W. A. Mallock, Mary Gibson, F. R. Froman, C. L. Renfro, H. G. Karrenbrock and Miss Edna Rundell.

Twentieth Century Club With Mrs. Parker

Mrs. R. B. Parker was hostess to the Twentieth Century club Friday afternoon when Tennyson's "Enoch Arden" furnished the subject for the lesson. Roll call was answered with quotations from Tennyson and Mrs. E. J. Shaw gave a paper on "Old English Customs." Mrs. W. D. Gant was leader for the afternoon.

During the social hour, refreshments were served to Mesdames V. E. Ashford, D. H. Allday, Walter Bachman, J. D. Bright, Roy I. Carter, W. D. Gant, A. B. Lipscomb, D. A. Lundien, Guy Raley, Hugh Bassett, Julian Ivy, I. G. Craig, William Scott, and Martin of Dallas.

The new HOOVER

It BEATS ... as it Sweeps as it Cleans

Think of the finest and most efficient vacuum cleaner you have ever seen.

Then think of that cleaner as having added to it a new principle, a plus advantage, which more than doubles its efficiency!

Now you have a rough idea of the immense advance accomplished in The New Hoover, through its revolutionary cleaning principle "POSITIVE AGITATION"

By reason of this exclusive principle The New Hoover cleans faster, easier, deeper—so much so that it surpasses even the celebrated standard-design Hoover in these important particulars:

1 For the first time, it makes possible "Positive Agitation" of floor coverings.

2 By actual test, in the ordinary cleaning time, it beats out and sweeps up from carpetings an average of 131% more dirt.

3 It is an even greater rug-saver; the oftener a carpet is cleaned with a Hoover the longer that carpet will wear.

4 It is virtually service-proof; every part, including the new motor, requiring no oiling.

5 It increases the efficiency of its remarkable dusting tools because of its 50% stronger suction.

6 Its exclusive new bag is made of the most efficient dust- and germ-filtering cloth yet devised.

7 Its form and finish are of startling beauty; and every new feature insures even greater operating ease.

You buy a cleaner to save time and energy—why not be sure you get the cleaner that saves them most?

We will deliver you The New Hoover complete with dusting tools for only $6.25 down, with the balance in easy monthly payments

CALUMET'S DOUBLE ACTION

Gives you a baking powder containing two leavening units—one begins to work when the dough is mixed, the other waits for the heat of the oven, then both units work together — your guarantee against failure— against waste.

When you employ CALUMET you do not have to use extra care and precaution. You get best results in a moderate oven, but you may bake either in a hot or slow oven with safety—you may move the food in the oven or open the door for inspection without fear of it falling—you may mix a pan of biscuits at night, put them in the ice chest and they are ready for the oven in the morning.

With CALUMET you get double efficiency —double value. You are always sure of success, a big time and money saver.

Wichita Falls Artist

Ethel Allen Nelson, well known local violinist and composer will furnish a composition which will be interpreted by Misses Marguerite Fisher, Ora Arnold and little Mary Kate Ard at the Musical Festival to be presented by the Woman's Choral club at the Junior college auditorium Tuesday evening, February 14.

Local Composer And Violinist To Furnish Number For Festival

BY MRS. CLAUDE WILLIAMSON

One of the interesting numbers to be presented in the "Musical Festival" to be given by the Women's Choral club, February 14, will be a ballet d'entr'acte. "The Two Spirits," a recent composition by Ethel Allen Nelson well known local composer and violinist.

The work will be presented by the String Symphony assisted by Misses Marguerite Fisher, Ora Arnold and little Mary Kate Ard a pupil of Miss Arnold's.

The basis of Mr. Nelson's inspiration is of a more or less philosophical nature—the eternal conflict between Youth and Age—irresponsible romance versus experience and reality.

The curtain rises to the wierd strains of a mysterious chant, followed by several bars of interesting counterpoint which fittingly prepares the listener for the dramatic story that follows.

A quick change in tempo and the God of Youth leaps in, bending, beckoning enticing his victim, a beautiful oriental figure, who follows slowly, reluctantly, with bewildered hesitation, but quickly succumbs to Youth's spell and his seductive, sensous music. The theme developes into a frenzied climax ending in a crashing chord at which point the dancer's sensous delight is suddenly changed to horror as she beholds in the distance a black robed figure slowly, stealthily, approaching. Here the music changes to a melody of morbid sadness combined with a plaintive tenderness, a most fitting motif for this character and beautifully demonstrates Mr. Nelson's creative ability.

The black robed figure draws nearer the dancer who covers her face with her hands and shrinks away in fear. She cowers before the awful spectre, who seeks to impress her in uncanny pantomime with the folly of the fleeting pleasures of youth. The black robed ghost finally finishes his admonitions, and leaves his prostrated victim to her bewildered meditations.

However, once more gay irrepressible Youth appears! More enticing, more alluring than erer, in contrast to the gruesome figure of Old Age, and once more the dancer yields to his spell, and resumes her dance to the former exotic maze of melody which terminates in another crescendo of dramatic intensity.

But, lo! the haunting phantom again appears, and filled with a loathing fear the dance retreats from his menacing presence, leaving the Spirit of Old Age reigning triumphant, supreme, as "The God of Unromatic Reality."

The next senate is sure to be colorful. With those radicals there, the conservatives are bound to see red which will make some of them blue and turn others purple with rage.

Probably nobody is more lonesome than the woman who does her own house work attending a party where the servant problem is the chief topic of conversation.

IN THE GLOW OF THE CAMP FIRE

A training course for leadership in Camp Fire Girls work will be conducted at the First Presbyterian church, beginning February 17. The course will include lectures and instruction in the theory and workings of Camp Fire Girls. Health program, including first aid, hiking and camping, symbolism, program planning, handcraft and nature lore.

Frank B. Creighton, scout executive, will assist in camp craft, teaching members how to make fire by friction.

Miss Mary Sutherland, Red Cross nutritionist, will lecture on Camp Fire Girls health chart, discussing the various phases of the health program. Mrs. Beal will give instruction in first aid; Miss Louise Lottspiech will talk on "Symbolism" and give instruction on ceremonial gown decoration and making of block prints and stenciling.

Camp Fire songs will be included in the various meetings and an outdoor session will be held when firemaking tests will be given.

If the weather permits, an over night hike will be held, when meals will be cooked over the camp fire.

Guardian certificates will be offered to adults completing the requirements, assistant guardian certificates will be offered to members under 18, who complete the course and interested members certificates will be awarded to the members who come to meeting for information, but do not care to fulfill requirements or take examination. Anyone desiring to learn more about the program is invited to attend the classes, whether they intend to take up active work or not. Further information may be obtained from Camp Fire Headquarters, 3035.

Doughnut Day

Saturday, February 19, has been declared "Doughnut Day" by the Wichita Falls Camp Fire Girls, when several local bakeries will bake the delicious cake doughnuts which the girls will deliver to their customers fresh from the stoves. The next two weeks will be spent in advertising this day, so that every person in Wichita Falls will have an opportunity to give an order for a dozen or more fresh doughnuts. Keen competition is expected between the various groups to see which one will secure the most orders. Any one who is not solicited by any Camp Fire Girl may phone their orders to one of the following groups: Alahi, Mrs. Daisy Ayres, guardian, call Charlotte Kennedy, 5018 or Camp Fire headquarters, 3035, between 1 and 3 o'clock. All orders must be in by Friday noon.

COMEDIENNE

Is another great comedienne on the way?

For six years Julia Faye was a screen vamp with only moderate success. Then Cecil B. DeMille did a daring thing. He plucked her from a heavy emotional environment and cast her for the vivacious Tartar maid in "The Volga Boatman" — one of the outstanding comedy roles of the year.

Overnight, she achieved a new popularity and "fan" interest.

Now, in "Turkish Delight," Irvin S. Cobb's first original screen story, Miss Faye promises to reach the pinacle of comedy fame once held by Mable Normand. Paul Sloane is directing this unusual comedy and Rudolph Schildkraut, Kenneth Thomson, May Robson and Louis Natheaux have other featured roles.

CLARA BOW and Elinor Glyn —What a fine combination! We are to have it in "It," the Paramount production which concerns that strange power possessed by certain persons which has aroused nation-wide discussion during the last 12 months.

Comedy is the chief ingredient in Clara Bow's liveliest manner, strengthened by such laughable titles as "I feel so low, old chap, that I could get on stilts and walk under a Dachshund."

But plan to see this unusually entertaining film yourself, for "It" has "It" and will begin showing on February 11 at the Majestic theater. Valentine's will be an appropriate day for initiation into the mysteries of "It."

THESE are the remarkably reasonable prices of Miller-Ferguson's beautiful spring "undies" — step-ins, teds and pajamas, respectively, in all shades of beautiful voile trimmed daintily in lace and ribbon.

It is a great temptation to "lay in quite a store" of this pretty and serviceable lingerie, for voile is by far the most comfortable thing for spring and summer, while the variety of shades offered (soft peach, lemon yellow, flesh-pink and rose) and the clever elaboration insure Milady against growing weary of these garments.

The small lace yoke being used in the latest Parisian models, triangular pockets, tucks and tiny pleats characterize the pajamas at Miller-Ferguson's.

CAKES, pastries—all of the things you wish to be an especial success for Valentine dinner should be prepared in the latest, and consequently the most convenient, kitchen utensils. Mrs. Ida Chitwood, our proven authority, selected Noble-Little Hardware company to furnish her with these, and all housewives who follow her example will pronounce her selection excellent, for Noble-Little's, with their complete line of the latest utensils, is prepared to supply you with any desired article.

LOUISE'S Rental Library has moved to the Marchman hotel. Her cozy corner of the lobby has the added attraction of gifts as well as books for sale and rent.

AS the beautiful new spring things the merchants have brought back from New York appear in the shops and windows, do you see the very dress, the exact coat and the identical hat that you had dreamed or now begin to dream of as being perfectly suited to bring out the particular charm and beauty of your type? Many do and find them just a little beyond their means, but there is a way to make next season different.

The North Texas Building and Loan association pays 6 per cent (more than usual) interest on its savings accounts which involve no fees and allow withdrawal at any time. These are especially convenient for women and if more of them realized how rapidly a good sized principal accumulates in these accounts, they would immediately begin periodic savings. The small amount placed here will hardly be missed at the moment, but in a few months a welcome sum will be found at your disposal. Drop by the North Texas and receive detailed information first hand.

SPORT frocks and coats have been clever and smart before but never so ravishingly beautiful as are those of this season shown at the Orchid Shop.

A stunning model, which plainly shows the influence of Queen Marie's tour, is of white crepe made basque with a gleaming gold belt, a bolero jacket of handsome bright colored all-over hand embroidery, and banded with harmonious colors (including Roumanian purple, of course) at the hemline as peysan. It is by far the most distinctive thing to be found—a real creation.

Many of the attractive costumes are composed of sleeveless flannel jackets and long sleeved crepe dresses or vice versa as to sleeves. The decorative motifs for these are most original.

Here, too, are sport coats of every spring type, but it is safe to guess that when summer arrives none will be found so attractive as the white crepe enhanced by bright colored all-over embroidery and white fox collars and cuffs.

HOW nice it is to find that the old day for each lad to single out his lassie with a love note has become one of the four most festive dates on the calendar. No other is so fitting a time upon which to express your regard and nothing can do this so adequately as flowers.

Valentine baskets of special spring flowers—the most tender remembrance of the year for friend, sweetheart or mother! The Wichita Floral company offers these baskets with heart-shaped handles, favorite pot plants in appropriate wrappings, and "Bebbouquets." The beauty and sweet fragrance of the latter will rest on many a happy woman's shoulder. Acacia—the beloved, is also employed by Wichita Floral, you know what it is, do you not? A yellow baby's breath is the best pen portrait to be drawn of dainty, golden Acacia.

LOVE and evil in conflict supply the absorbing theme for Rex Ingram's "The Magician," starring Alice Terry with the noted German, Paul Wegener, at the Olympic theater this week. It reminds us to a marked degree of the play "The Monster" with the added attraction of beautiful European settings, for this magnificent production was a year in the making on the continent, original locations described by the author being used. Its author gives "The Magician" another claim to our interest—he is Somerset Maugham of "Rain" fame.

Ill Health the Great Obstacle to the Woman Of Middle Age

—Adam's Studio

"At time of middle life I was in very poor health," said Mrs. Mary McKinnie of 1925 Wall St., Beaumont, Texas, "and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was the only thing I found to benefit me. I took half a dozen bottles and it gave me relief from all aches and pains, dizzy spells, etc., and left me with almost perfect health. I am truly glad of an opportunity to recommend this wonderful remedy."

Cardui "has done me a great deal of good"

MRS. W. L. TREVATHAN, Hopewell, Va.

Nurse Had Pains in Her Side

"AT times I have had such severe pains in my sides I did not know what to do," says Mrs. Walter L. Trevathan, of Hopewell, Va. "I am a trained nurse by profession. I was on my feet a great deal and this seemed to aggravate my trouble.

"One day I read about Cardui in the paper at my home in Vermont. I got a bottle and tried it. It has done me a great deal of good. . . . The pains in my sides used to grow very intense. I would take Cardui by the directions and it helped me wonderfully.

"My appetite grew very poor. I did not care for anything to eat, but when I took a few doses of Cardui my appetite picked up. I wouldn't be without it."

Mrs. Trevathan says that she has recommended Cardui to women whom she has nursed—"and always with beneficial results." "I am glad to make this statement," she adds, "so that other women may know about the wonderful benefits of Cardui."

CARDUI

NOTE.—Many women who are particular about their personal hygiene, use Cardoseptic, harmless, aromatic, detergent. Price 50 cents. B-276

Something Unusual

Ladies particularly, will be interested to know that there will be a very interesting and instructive school on the proper selection of Acme Paints and Varnishes for any particular room, floor, ceiling or furniture. Although your painter may know how to properly select and match colors and blends, the women are always looking for ideas of how and why, when it comes to springtime house cleaning. Many women at all times are ready to refinish or decorate the room if they only know just what would look best.

Now, that is just what the Wichita Hardware Co., have in mind when we speak of something unusual. We have made all arrangements whereby we are going to instruct the housewife to suggest to her painter or contractor ideas that she could not obtain otherwise.

In order that our prospective customers get the very best and first-hand information, we have contracted with a Mr. and Mrs. Spears of Detroit, with their assistants, to conduct this school in our store Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, beginning the 8th and ending the 12th of this month. This entire time will be given to instructing and advising in the proper selection and uses of the celebrated Acme Paints and Colors. This will include everything from pictures in water, oil, etc., to furniture and interior decoration; all free. You will not be urged to buy a thing. Information and instruction we offer at this school will be absolutely free to you.

Your visit to our store during this school will be greatly appreciated. Remember the dates: 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th.

SPRING STYLES FAVOR BEIGE

Charming Frocks and Hats Displayed at Markets

"If your spring outfit is in the new beige tones or any of the blue range, it is sure to be smart," says Mrs. James Lomat, buyer for P. B. M. company who has just returned from eastern markets.

"Navy and black continue their prominence, and are often seen with other blues, in the new "compose" idea, where two or three shades of a color are used on the same garment.

"Queen blue and Maritza are deep, dashing blues, directoire is a little lighter, and Alice joins with hydranged as a soft, delicate shade. The new greens are in two classes, yellow, including pistache and gooseberry, or the cool blue watergreens called niagra, seaspray and water sprite.

"Banana beige is the newest and smartest beige. Mother Goose and monkey skin are a little deeper, and the new sunburn tan is at its height in fashionable southern resort wear. The orchid shades are aster, diadem and sweetpea, and the new pinks range from cameo to meadow pink and on to strawberry.

Pleats Important.

"Crepe Elizabeth is perhaps leading the fashion field for spring frocks. Ninette and romaine are very important, and the afternoon mode introduces taffeta with tulle or chiffon.

"Pleats are absolutely the password for the smart frock. Every detail is pleated someway. A frock may be pleated entirely, or employ only a touch, but pleats there must be. Necklines often take the new square outline though the new cardigan v-neck has many followers.

"The jacket is a fashion essential. It is shown of silk to harmonize with the silk frock. The smart woman wears a jacket frock for simple sports and street needs or for the elaborate affairs of afternoon, changing only fabric and detail. Crepella, a light wool crepe is used, as is canton faille, canton crepe and occasionally jersey.

"Coats of the sport type use the compose mode of several color shades or harmonies. They are of tweed, imported plaids, or the Rodier stripe, using flattering furs of badger or fox, and swagger belted lines.

"Coats of jorella or kasha-like fabric will be worn, and Carnegie introduces the black coat of dragon or wool back satin, richly furred with broadtail, ermine, fox or monkey.

Attractive Millinery.

"Millinery is attractive this spring and extremely wearable. The shapes are silkly soft, whether of French felt, or the new supple tightly crocheted viscas. More than that, they must fit the head of the wearer by means of skillful manipulation. That is why our millinery salespeople have been carefully trained, and are now called "fitters," just as glove fitters and shoe fitters are termed.

TWO ADDED TO CAST

Robert Edeson and Frank Reicher have been added to the cast of "The Heart Thief," the new Metropolitan production in which Joseph Schildkraut and Lya De Putti are featured. Nils Olaf Chrisander is directing this screen version of the Lajos Biro play, "The Highwayman."

Emma Goldman, disgusted with Russia, would like to return to the United States. He wotten do our Eutopias fail to Eutope!

Chorus of 60 Singers To Appear In Presentation of "Student Prince"

No event on the theatrical program for the season is more eagerly awaited than the coming to the city of "The Student Prince" with its male chorus of 60, which will be presented at the Palace theater Wednesday, Feb. 9.

The opening of "The Student Prince" at the Jolson theater in New York was one of the most important occasions in the history of the theater and though its lovely predecessor, "Blossom Time," is now playing in its fifth season, there is every reason to believe that this record will be met and surpassed by the newer production.

There is a rare union between the beautiful, tender love story of the old piece produced by Richard Mansfield at the Lyric theater on Oct. 12, 1903, and the exquisite score of "The Student Prince," as it is presented today.

In the main the modern development of the operetta-successor to the popular old non-musical comedy is that of the love story between Prince Karl, and Kathie, the little maiden at Heidelberg, far beneath him in all save heart and soul. And the story gains greatly from being interpreted, by an additional art, that of music, which has been supplied in this case by Sigmund Romberg, who also wrote the music for "Blossom Time," "Maytime," and scores of other popular successes, both in the line of operetta and many in a more frolicsome vein. The book and lyrics are by Dorothy Donnelly, who arranged the book of "Blossom Time." Prominent in the cast are Louise Mets, Elizs Gergely, Vernon Jacobson, Leo Stark, Jessie MacDonald, Sarah Edwards, Sylvia DeFranke, Leslie Stowe, Tom Ryan, Granville Bates, Fred Goodrow, Chas. Chesney and Rex Carter.

TO LOSE ACTOR

But Britain Hates To Give Up Comedy Star.

Advices from London indicate that England feels keenly the thought of losing Jack Buchanan to America. The famous English musical comedy star, while in Hollywood as the star of Charlot's Revue, signed a long-term contract with Cecil B. DeMille to begin with the termination of the London presentation of "Sunny," for which he had previously been signed. Buchanan expects to complete his "Sunny" contract in the early spring and will leave immediately for America to start work on his first DeMille picture.

DARING EXPERIMENT

One of the most daring experiments into the unexplored fields of the motion picture industry—a picture in which there is no lapse of time and in which the entire action takes place in less than one day—is being made at the De Mille studio by William K. Howard. This picture is "White Gold," Jetta Goudal's current starring feature. The plot is laid on an Arizon sheep ranch and deals with but four characters. Garrett Fort is credited with the unusual continuity.

Advertising, it appears from the statement of the apple growers, will make about anything edible. Then let's try it on spinach.

HALE WILL ACT

Noted Director To Be Seen On Screen Again.

The man of Robert Louis Stevenson's novel who had two personalities, "Dr. Jekyll, and Mr. Hyde," had nothing on Alan Hale, director, who is about to reassume his former personality as Alan Hale, actor.

For the next few weeks Hale will lay aside his megaphone and don grease paint once more to play the featured heavy role opposite Leatrice Joy in "Vanity," her next De Mille feature. His return to acting, however, will be but temporary, for Hale is considered one of the "ace" directors on the De Mille roster and it has been necessary to postpone the starting of his next picture—the first of four he will direct for De Mille-Metropolitan during 1927.

Even though two could live as cheaply as one, every young man should remember that in the game of matrimony two is not the limit.

PICKING BEAUTIES

Noted Movie Producer Referees Contests.

Cecil B. DeMille is now in the midst of his usual seasonal stunt of judging winners of beauty contests held by colleges and universities in all parts of the country.

Mr. DeMille and Florenz Ziegfeld share honors as the two most-sought judges whenever collegians decide to place a laurel wreath on the head of the most beautiful girl of their campus. DeMille, it will be recalled, is credited with having made more stars than any other film producer.

CHOCOLATE PUDDING.

Mix together one-quarter cup of butter, one cupful of sugar, one egg, one and one-half squares of chocolate, two-thirds cup of milk, one and one-half cups of flour, and one teaspoon of vanilla. Mix according to the rule and bake in individual muffin tins 20 to 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve with a sauce made of one-third cup of butter, one cup of light brown sugar, one egg yolk, one tablespoon of milk and one-fourth cup of chopped browned almonds. Cream the butter and sugar together, add the milk and the egg yolk slowly and beat until smooth.

MOVIE STRONG MAN

WHEN COTTON IS A MAKER OF POVERTY

A HOUSE committee of the Fortieth Legislature has given its disapproval to the Parrish bill, which would have prohibited the planting of cotton on the same land for two consecutive years. It is admitted by the author of the bill, sent to its grave by Texas lawmakers, that there is no hope for resurrection at this time. This is a reminder that the federal department of agriculture, in a recent bulletin, declares the outlook for cotton production the coming season is none too encouraging, taken as a whole. This is the warning given by the department:

"Only drastic curtailment of cotton production the coming season will restore the balance between consumption and supply at renumerative prices to growers. Presuming average yields a reduction of 30 per cent in acreage appears necessary to give the greatest gross value to the next crop."

This is more than a warning. It is a phophesy that another bumper crop of cotton in the southern belt will spell financial disaster for 2,000,000 southern farmers, will cut their purchasing power to a minimum and will vitally affect all those who are directly or indirectly interested in the cotton industry. This is another excerpt taken from the annual review of the federal department of agriculture.

"A burdensome crop of American cotton for the next 12 to 18 months seems inevitable. With an estimated 1926 production of 18,600,000 bales and a world carry-over of American cotton on August 1, 1926, estimated at from 5,400,000 to 5,700,000 bales, the supply this year totals 24,000,000 bales or more as compared with approximately 19,400,000 bales in 1925-26; 16,300,000 bales in 1924-25 and 13,500,000 bales in 1923-24."

This is the story of the bumper crop of 1926. It is a story that will strike terror in the ranks of those engaged in the growing of cotton as well as those who are engaged in the selling of cotton. This is another excerpt from the bulletin, which should be read by all those connected with the industry:

"The world consumption of American cotton for the 12 months ending July 31, 1926, was about 14,000,000 bales. Since that time consumption in this country has proceeded at a record rate. Assuming a continuance of consumption at the same rate this country and allowing for some further acceleration of mill activitiy aboard, a total world consumption for the present year of 15,000,000 to 15,500,000 bales is quite possible. A 15,000,000 bale consumption exclusive of linters, would equal the record established in 1915, and a 15,000,000 bale consumption would set a new world record. In either case the probable carry-over at the end of the present season would be from 8,500,000 to 9,000,000 bales or at least 3,000,000 bales more than the year before."

There is an army of landlords in the south. These landlords operate their own holdings or rent on shares. There is a larger army of croppers in the south. They live from hand to mouth. They rent or work the land on shares. When a bumper crop comes they go broke. When a lean crop comes they have a little surplus left over after their debts have been paid to the landowner, the banker and the merchant. They have the figures before them. They have the government report at hand. They are reminded there will be a tremendous over-carry of American cotton, and this is the final warning given by the federal department.

If past relationships of prices to supplies hold for 1927 the maximum income to growers next season (the season of 1927-28) would likely result if production were 11,000,00 bales or a little less."

That is, if the growers of the south will produce 11,000,000 bales or less than 11,000,000 bales this season, there will be a chance for them to obtain prices somewhere near the level of the cost of production. If they produce a crop above 11,000,000 bales, ranging all the way from 11,0000,000 to 18,000,000 bales, then dire poverty will be the reward of the million who are carried by landlord, banker and merchant and their purchasing power will realize it. Merchants should realize it. In a sense they are masters of the situation. In its grave is the Parrish bill. There will be no new departure this

A NICHE IN HALL OF FAME

REPRESENTATIVE J. F. WALLACE of Teague has won for himself a niche in the Texas Hall of Fame. He has submitted a bill providing one to five years penalty for carrying a prescription whiskey bottle longer than 10 days after the purchase date.

Representative T. L. Anderson of Bexar county did not take kind kindly to the Wallace proposal. He declared that usual dosage of medicinal liquor is four drams, three times daily, or 12 drams in 10 days. He has figured it all out. There are 128 drams in a pint.

Thus he says, a man strictly observing medicinal use of whiskey would be a felon by a margin of eight drams after 10 days under this measure if he carrys the liquor. Why five years? Why not the electric chair?

This would end the suffering of the patient as well as finish his thirst for medicinal liquor. If it is right, go all the way. After a man has been successfully electrocuted he does not feel the pain.

GETTING READY FOR A COMEBACK

SIR JOHN DAVIS of Dallas addressed the state senate of Texas. Big John is a former member of that august body. His is a former member of the house. He was born on a rocky farm in San Jacinto county. In his senate address, he said, his "blood tingled to get back in action."

There is an open road. He knows the way. Another term in the house and then a whirl at the senate or the congressional seat now held down by the Hon. Hatton W. Summers.

There is said to be 12 of the 31 senators ambitious to break into seats under the big dome in Washington. This is a free commonwealth. There are no strings on an ambitious man or his program. It is his American privilege to jump from the place where the water is shallow to the place where the water is over his head.

Deep water political swimming is a great game. There are well defined rumors that two Texas congressmen will invade the senatorial pool.

The HOLLYWOOD GIRL

By BEATRICE BURTON

READ THIS FIRST:

BOBBIE RANSOM, a little blond school teacher, is "movie struck" and wild to go to Hollywood to get into pictures. Failing to borrow the money she needs from her father, a widower, and her AUNT GERTRUDE, she asks ANDY JERROLD to lend it to her. But Andy, who wants her to stay at home and marry him, refuses.

Bobbie finally borrows the money from the WIDOW PARKINS, who is to marry her father. She gives Andy back his ring and leaves for Hollywood. At MRS. MANGAN'S boarding house she meets STELLA DELROY, an extra in the movies. Through Stella she gets a few days' work at the Magnifica Studios, where ROY SCHULTZ, a famous director, takes great interest in her for a few days and then apparently forgets her. However she becomes great friends with his wife, LOTTIE. Schultz's assistant director, GUS MacCLOUD falls in love with her and she with him.

But when she learns that he's married, and that his wife is divorcing him, she drops him. But later, her longing to be with him, triumphs over her resolution to leave him alone until he's free, and she goes to a party at his house. That night Stella kills herself and leaves a note that tells about her unhappy love affair with Gus.

Another Magnifica player, MONICA MONT, a perfect gold-digger, hints to Bobbie that Gus really cares a great deal for her and her careless ways, but Bobbie only half believes her. Monica get a good part, and leaves Mrs. Mangan's boarding house, taking some of Bobbie's best clothes with her.

Bobbie's aunt dies, and her father sends on a diamond brooch that she left to her. Bobbie decides to convert it to cash, and also Andy Jerrold's Christmas present, a bracelet. Gus wants Bobbie, who's becoming discouraged, to go on location at Laguna Beach, but she refuses upon the advice of Lottie Schultz, who tells her that Gus' morals aren't what they might be, and further tells her that he has his divorce at last, and ought to marry her if he's so crazy about her. So Bobbie stays behind and teaches JOLLY SCHULTZ her letters. Gus and Monica drive to Laguna together, and are hurt in an automobile accident. Bobbie decides to forget him, and go on with her career in pictures.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER XLII.

Hollywood boulevard is never so lovely as it is in late afternoon when all the shop windows are aglitter in the lemon-colored sunlight.

It is the hour when the most gayly dressed women in the world—the Hollywood women—go strolling along, colorful as flowers in a rose parade. Movie actresses with make-up clinging to their faces like bloom to a peach. Slender, lovely girls with wide eyes and heart-shaped mouths, scarlet with rouge, and lovely legs in lustrous silk stockings. Handsome matrons, sweated and massaged to a solid slenderness.

"Been Looking All Over Hollywood for You," He Said, "From Western Avenue to Beverly Hills."

The shop windows, themselves, had never seemed so alluring to Bobbie as they did on this particular February afternoon as she walked along—just as lovely and just as slim and graceful as any girl on the boulevard.

"Why is it that things always seem so much more wonderful when you haven't any money to buy them?" she wondered, stopping before a window where a hat of lavender straw, a scarf of lavender silk embroidered with violets, and a string of lavender beads on display. Lavender—her favorite color.

Farther on a confectioner's window held her with its offerings for Valentine's day—a rose-and-silver heart filled with milk chocolates. A cocoanut cake, fat and rich and covered with red candy hearts. An open box of salted almonds.

Next door was a gown shop, with one dress exhibited in the window. A darling little dress of oyster white silk, with tiny bows of dull blue velvet all down the front of it, and a roll of the same velvet around the bottom of the skirt.

Shoes were in the next window. White sport shoes with green or scarlet leather trimmings. Silver slippers for evening wear. Little lace trimmed satin mules for the bedroom. Deauville sandals, and beach sandals, painted with bright colors.

She tried to look away from them as she thought of the little purse that lay, flat as a burned pancake, in the bottom of her bag. They were pot for her—the little high-heeled shoes, the lavender beads, the oyster-white silk dress with blue bows. Not for her!

"What I ought to be buying is zwieback and 'instant coffee' for breakfast tomorrow morning," she told her self grimly, and started across the street to the market at the corner of Cahuenga street.

It was then that she saw Gus, she couldn't believe her eyes at first. She had not heard of his leaving the hospital near Laguna Beach—and here he was! Not ten feet from her!

He was coming toward her, with the sun in his eyes, and his face lit with a broad welcoming smile. And, as he reached her, he took both of her hands in his, and pumped them up and down wildly.

"Been looking all over Hollywood for you for an hour—from Western avenue to Beverly Hills," he said, breathlessly. "Where you been?"

Bobbie couldn't answer. Her heart seemed to have risen to her throat, and begun to beat there frantically. Tears came into her eyes—tears of shock and the kind of sudden joy that is exactly like sudden pain.

She shrugged her shoulders and looked away down the boulevard with eyes that saw nothing but a blur of sunlight.

Gus tucked her arm under his, and she followed him around the corner, scarcely realizing where she was going. She knew simply that she was with him again, and that it seemed far far too good to to be true, she was dazed, but she was magnificently happy, just the same.

His car was parked halfway down the block. Not the old cream-colored roadster, but a new one that was painted the dark green of laurel leaves. It had green leather seats and bright new nickel trimmings.

At the sight of that new car, bought no doubt to take the place of the one that had been wrecked, her senses seemed to come back to her. She turned, with one small foot on the step of the car, and raised brown troubled eyes to Gus' bright blue ones.

"Tell me—was that story in the paper true? Are you and Monica engaged? Were you on your way to Santa Ana to be married—that day? Tell me!"

But Gus shook his head with its smoothly brushed blond hair. He laughed.

"Get in the car!" he said shortly.

"No! Tell me first!" She was not going to go for any drive with him if he was engaged to Monica or to any other girl. She might be crazy about him, but she wasn't that crazy! No, indeed! She shook her head.

"Get in, or I'll throw you in," he threatened cheerfully.

And then, as she shook her head again, he made good his threat. He good, except Cedarhurs. Don't let picked her up bodily and fairly threw her down on the soft green leather cushions of the car.

He hopped in after her as swiftly and easily, as if he never had known how hard a hospital bed can be, or how long a night and day in a hospital can last!

"There, now, that's what you get for telling me what you aren't going to do!" he said with a sharp nod of his head, as they started off. "Of course, I'm not engaged to Monica. That was just a newspaper yarn and you've known it all along. It was just a good press-agent story for Magnifica Studios."

But Bobbie hadn't known that it was a press-agent "yarn." Except for a moment or two of doubt, she had believed the story.

"I thought it was straight goods," she told him quietly. "That's why I didn't go to see you in the hospital, or send you a book or anything."

"Oh, I wasn't hurt much. Just shaken up, and cut around the scalp a bit."

He slid one arm along the seat behind her, and pressed her shoulder with his fingers. "What have you been doing?"

"Teaching Jolly her letters."

He gave her a quick glance like the blue spurt of a lighted match. "No studio work?"

She shook her head, her eyes downcast. "Not a single call from anybody."

Suddenly she half turned in the green leather seat, and faced him. "Gus, I think I've begun to see just what I'm up against in this movie game," she said huskily. "I'm going to talk plainly to you. I know I'm pretty—"

"Pretty as a pansy," he broke in. But she didn't want any flattery now. She was telling the truth, and she didn't want to hear anything but truth.

"Not a bit prettier than a hundred other girls in this town!" she said flatly. "Oh, you needn't shake your head. I know! There are a hundred of them, just as good-looking as I am, jerking sodas, waiting on tables, selling clothes in the little shops. Last week I was in their class—teaching Jolly Schultz her letters!"

Her voice was full of quivering scorn of herself.

"I'm a blank as a movie actress, I guess. But I'm going to give myself one more chance. I'm going to get together all the money I can, and make one last effort to break in. I'm going to sell everything that I have that's worth a cent."

Gus laid one of his big blond hands on her wrist. "This? You going to sell the love offering from the beau back home?" he asked with something like a sneer.

She nodded. "Yes, and the two diamonds in Aunt Gertrude's brooch. And my silver vanity case—everything! I'm going to put the money in the bank, and when it's gone, I'm going home—unless I've made good, of course."

Gus turned his car at the next corner. "Your aunt's diamond pin is at Mrs. Mangan's, I suppose?" he asked.

Bobbie nodded. It was. It was sewn into the flowered mattress of her blue-painted bed. She had cut a tiny hole in it and hidden Aunt Gertrude's diamonds there. She supposed Mrs. Mangan would have a fit if she knew it, but what she didn't know certainly couldn't hurt her!

"I'll buy your stuff from you, and give you what it's worth, Bobbie," Gus said slowly, his eyes straight ahead of him on the crowded road. "You won't get a third of its value if you pawn it or sell it for second-hand stuff."

"No, I suppose not," answered Bobbie, remembering the one diamond she had sold for a tiny sum of money. "But, Gus, are you sure you can spare the money?"

"Sure. And even if I couldn't, there's nothing I wouldn't do for you, Bobs. I don't want you to get discouraged and go home. It gives me the 'blue creeples' to think of losing you."

Bobbie wished she could believe him.

But it was awfully hard to believe him when he talked like that. There were so many women in his life that she felt sure he never would miss her if she went away—especially when she remembered how gaily he had left her two weeks before and gone down to Lagona Beach with Monica.

The dark green roadster stopped before the house. And while Gus sat dropping gray cigar ash on the clean floor of Mrs. Mangan's porch, Bobbie went upstairs to rip open the flowered cover of Mrs. Mangan's fine hair-mattress and take out Aunt Gertrude's "dirty" diamonds.

They were not there. They were not in it.

She probed carefully at first with her small fingers. Then frantically. But there was no brooch where she was sure she had hidden it. She went dizzy and faint with the shock, and grew dreadfully sick to her stomach.

Finally, white and quivering, she went down to Gus, holding Andy's sparkling bracelet in her hand. She held it out to him on her pink palm.

"Where are the diamonds?"

She shrugged. "Gone."

"What?"

"They're gone. I sewed them up in my mattress, but someone's taken them out." Her voice was dull and it dragged. She wanted to tell him that she was just as sure that Monica Mont had taken them, as she was sure that her own name was Roberta Ransom. But, of course, she couldn't. There are some things that just can't be done—and to tell him was one of those things.

"But you must be mistaken! Did anybody know you had them in your mattress? Did this boarding house woman know it?"

"Mrs. Mangan? No." She shook her head. Only two people had known about it—Stella and Monica. And Stella had gone to that mysterious country from which no one ever returns, and she had taken no diamonds with her.

"Well, who did know it?"

Bobbie silently looked at him. She was thinking of the night when Monica, all perfume and furs and silk, had sat in her room and watched her hide her treasure.

What a simple little fool she had been to trust Monica! After all, it was only another kind of gold-digging to steal. She might have known that a girl with no honor at all, would never rest until she got those diamonds and turned them into money.

But then, that was before she had discovered the theft of the gold kid slippers. She had not actually known that Monica was an out-and-out thief at the time she had hidden the two old diamonds—well, it was her own fault, and there was no use in crying over spilled milk or stolen jewelry.

"How much will you give me for the bracelet?" she asked briskly. She did not look at it. All at once, she seemed to see Andy Jerrold hanging over a jewelry-store counter picking out that glittering bracelet—Andy. A lump came into her throat as she thought of him. She was so square and honest and unassuming, even if he did fall in love with his secretaries now and then.

"I'll write and tell him I've sold his bracelet," she thought wickedly. "That'll make him feel pretty rotten. At least I hope it will!"

"Come on up to my house and I'll write you a check," said Gus, breaking in upon her thoughts.

The Acid Test for Reformers

By BRUCE BARTON
Illustrated by RAEBURN VAN BUREN

A HUNDRED and fifty years ago there lived a man who wrote a splendid book.

The title was "The Friend of Men"; and the progressive elements in France and England hailed it as an important contribution to their cause.

What sort of a man was the author, the Marquis of Mirabeau?

He did his best to ruin the career of his son, the great Mirabeau.

He kept his wife locked up in an asylum the greater part of her life, while he lived with another woman.

He persecuted his daughter, and reviled his second son.

In his study, locked away from the world, he could dream fine dreams of universal kindliness and friendship; but in actual life the "Friend of Men," as Carlyle said, "was the enemy of almost every man he had to do with."

I have known a good many reformers in my life, and have found them an interesting study.

Of course, as a class, they are not as interesting as reformers were two hundred or three hundred years ago; and for the simple reason that there is now no danger nor inconvenience attached to the profession.

When a man ran the risk of being burned at the stake or losing his head on the block for the sake of convictions, he compelled a certain admiration whether one agreed with him or not.

But the modern reformer runs no such risks. He may denounce the rich until he is out of breath, and the penalty is only applause. He may thunder away at the church or the state, and instead of incurring any sacrifice he wakes up to find his picture in the Sunday papers.

But the two general types of reformers remain what they have always been—the small, quiet, conscientious group of those who back up their words by their works; and the noisy, unpleasant and selfish group who criticize conditions as they are, but do nothing by their lives to make conditions better.

Before I accept any man's criticism at face value, I want to know of him:

Is he supporting a wife and children? Is he as good a husband and father, on the whole, as the men he is denouncing?

Does he pay taxes and vote? Is he as good a citizen as those whom he assails?

Does he meet his payroll regularly and treat his employees well? Is he as good an employer as those whom he would overthrow?

If he does not meet these tests, then though he speak with the tongues of angels, he does not interest me, and I will not leave my book at night to go out to a hall and listen to him.

Why was it that with all his faults we loved T. R. so well? He preached at us disturbingly, but he practiced what he preached.

In his zeal to make us better, he did not neglect the duty of being a good father and good citizen out at Oyster Bay.

This truth was written many years ago:

"If any man say 'I love God' and hateth his brother he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?"

That's the real acid test of reformers to me. Before they tell me how much they love God and the race, I'd like a chance to ask them, please: "First, how do you stand at home?"

A Prize for Young

George Young, Canadian who swam the channel from Catalina, is said to have captured the heart of Irene O'Byrne (pictured herewith), one of the daughters of Henry O'Byrne, who trained Young. Miss O'Byrne, likewise, is very much of a swimmer. She was named "The Most Winsome Nymph" in a Toronto contest in 1925.

NOTED PICTURES SCHEDULED AT WICHITA FALLS THEATERS

WRIGHT STORY AT MAJESTIC

"Winning of Barbara Worth" To Open Here

Although a picture of the west has not been on the bookings of the Majestic since the opening of that theater, "The Winning of Barbara Worth" is bringing an example of what such a setting as the Black Rock desert of Nevada may mean as a background.

Tense dramatic incidents, an incomparable love story, unusual scenic effects, together with an underlying strain of comedy and the graphic portrayal of desert reclamation are joined in this picture which will be shown at the Majestic th ugh Wednesday.

A critic in a recent issue of an Oklahoma paper said:

Filmed on the great arid Black Rock desert, the story unfolds a world of entertaining and educational features before Ronald Colman, as Willard Holmes, begins to feel sure that he has finally won the fair Barbara, played by Vilma Banky.

Ronald Colman's ride with the payroll to stop a threatened revolt of laborers in the town of Barba, built by Jefferson Worth, Barbara's father, to compete with Kingston, is one of the high spots of the production. Over miles of barren desert and through the beautiful canyons of the Harlequin mountains, Willard Holmes and Abe Lee rode through the night. Bardita, hired by James Greenfield, Holmes' foster-father, waylaid the pair in Devil's Canyon. The battle, distinguished by its sincerity and the excellent acting of the characters involved, resulted in the wounding of both men. This bit of action afforded Colman opportunity to perform one of the most spectacular screen feats he has undertaken in his successful career.

Vilma Banky, who as the grown-up Barbara, casts the magic spell over Ronald Colman, young easterner, and Gary Cooper, as Abe Lee, desert-bred western engineer, plays the mother of the infant Barbara in the prologue of the picture. For more than a week, with the temperature hovering around 120 degrees, the talented actress worked in the biting blasts of manmade sand storms in order that she might give the limit of realism to the part, which called for great dramatic portrayal and emotional acting.

Buffalo Bill Jr. At Garden Sunday

If there is one type of screen actor who must be born and reared to his role it is the cowboy star of the western photoplays. At the Garden theater Sunday is one of the latest and best of this type of motion pictures seen here in many a day. It is titled "Rawhide" and has Buffol Bill Jr. a real cowpuncher, as its star.

Buffalo Bill Jr., is not only real according to all history handed down by his press agents, but he acts real. His horsemanship is thrilling and beautiful to look upon. Not only that but his work with the lariat would make Will Rogers turn green with envy. And how he handles his six shooters and in lieu of them his fists when caught unawares by one of his screen bullies and bad men.

THRILLS AT GEM

Dick Talmadge Plays Here In "Doubling With Danger."

Dick Talmadge's pictures are noted for their fast action, and he upholds his reputation in his latest F. B. O. release, "Doubling with Danger," which is coming to the Gem theater next Tuesday for a one day run. With a thrilling tale of a secret invention and the attempts made to get it by a group of foreign spies as the background, Bounding Dick plays the role of the secretary who eventually manages to save the papers and bring the miscreants to justice, aided by Ena Gregory as the lovely heroine. The action is fast and exciting throughout, with a high degree of suspense, and Director Scott Dunlap has introduced plenty of clever comedy touches to enliven the production. The supporting cast does excellent work and includes such players as Herbert Prior, Harry Dunkinson, Joseph Harrington and Paul Dimmes. Grover Jones is responsible for the story and continuity.

FIRST LEADING WOMAN

Alice Terry stars in "The Magician," opening at the Olympic Sunday.

FRENCH ACTOR AIDS INGRAM

Noted European Helps Film "The Magician"

Rather more than ordinary interest is attached to the fact that Firmin Gemier, French actor and stage director, has an important role in Rex Ingram's production of "The Magician" for Metro-Goldwyn which will have its first showing at the Olympic theater today.

It might be said that Gemier is to France what a blend of David Warfield and David Belasco are to this country—if such a comparison be permissible. He is the director of the Theatre National de l'Odeon of France, the Trodadero of Paris, is an officer of the Legion of Honor, the Order of Leopold of Belgium and the Royal Order of Denmark.

He is also generally regarded as the leading actor of France and is known everywhere the footlights shine. He was one of the first actors to play Ibsen, Bjornson and Tolstoi in France and succeeded in making a success of Shakespeare, which he presented in the original settings. He played O'Neill's "Emperor Jones" in France and will soon produce "The White Cargo" and "Rain" there. He has the French rights for both these plays.

Gemier and Ingram met for the first time in Paris when Ingram was preparing to film "Mare Nostrum." They became close friends, and Gemier accepted the director's invitation to spend several weeks at the studio near Nice while some of the interior episodes of the Ibanez story were being filmed. During this visit Gemier made a study of the camera, and all the factors which enter into picture making.

FILM REVIVES OLDEN DAYS

"Exit Smiling" at Strand Two Days

Memories of olden days of the stage are revived by the quaint and, today, laughable reproduction of an old "town hall" in "Exit Smiling," at the Strand theater Sunday and Monday. The new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy of life with a "rep show" shows the queer little stage, auditorium heated by a wood stove, and strange scenery and actors that marked a chapter in American's dramatic history.

The company is a replica of the small companies that once toured small towns in American, until the motion picture put an end to their prosperity, and now, strangely, the motion picture puts them back again—only this time as comedy.

Beatric Lillie, famous English musical comedy star, famous as the stage-star-wife of Sir Robert Peel, noted London peer, makes her picture debut in the new offering, with Jack Pickford as hero. Sam Taylor, former director of Harold Lloyd, directed the new production, a hilarious series of adventures with a "tank town" show.

Marc Connelly, noted New York playwright, is the author and Tim Whelan Myers, Louise Lorraine, Doris Lloyd, Franklin Pangborn and other players of note.

A replica of one of the old "show cars" in which actors and scenery traveled together in the old "ten jwent thirt" days, is the scene of much of the hilarious action of the story, in which Miss Lillie plays a small town Bernhardt, general utility actress and ex-officio wardrobe mistress of the troupe.

If you are inexperienced in the investment business and feel the urge to buy stock, make it live stock.

BABY STAR WINS

Vera Reynolds "Delivers Goods" As Actress.

Vera Reynolds, Wampas Baby Star of 1926, admirably has justified the confidence of the Western Association of Motion Picture Advertisers who elected her to that honor. Since her election she has starred in four pictures, the current production being "The Little Adventuress," which William De Mille is directing.

Sally Rand, one of the youngest of the DeMille players, has been elected to similar honor this year by being chosen as one of the Wampas Baby Stars of 1927.

PLANTS WORK AT FULL TILT

Increase in Production By Many Factories

BY RAY PRIEST
Universal Service Automobile Editor.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 5.—Indications of a revival of the spring rush for cars are seen by a number of manufacturers.

Those in the Detroit, center of motor car building, this week increased output schedules from 12 to 50 per cent over January.

Sales departments in a dozen or more of the larger factories found that dealer orders were exceeding production plans and on February 1, the situation was corrected, bringing the total daily production increase in February to approximately 1600 cars.

Employment conditions were bettered materially in this city by the production increases.

Plants Kept Busy.

The Hudson Motor Car company kept its employment offices open Saturday and Sunday of last week hiring men preparing to go on a 1200 car per day schedule February 1.

At the Chrysler Motor Car company all of the employes who were working short hours were put on a full-time basis February 1.

Packard, which had an overstock on hand from some of its departments during January, has used all this material and reopened the entire factory.

Dodge production's scheduled increase is 200 cars per day.

Briggs body, which is said to be the largest independent body manufacturing concern in the United States increased production 30 per cent, necessitating greatly increased employment.

Cadillac production was restored to what is considered a normal basis for this time of the year by an increase in the February daily schedules.

Chevrolet will build more cars per day than in January due to the less number of days in February. Requirements for the month are listed as 10,000 cars.

Ford, by far the largest employers in this district, was reported to be holding an even production schedule for the first half of 1927.

Optimism In Bundles.

Optimism came to the manufacturers in three large bundles in January. The New York, Detroit and Chicago automobile shows drew the largest crowds in history. Attendance in each instance was about one-third better than any previous year.

Interest in new cars displayed by this attendance can mean only one thing, that sooner or later each of those present would buy one of the hundred or more new models that are being shown. Desire to be in style, manufacturers say, will prompt the discarding of the old car.

Registrations of new cars in this country during the month of January showed that there were a number of upsets in the rank among the leaders in sales.

Those cars that swung into top position were those that are being hailed as the most stylish. Motor car manufacturers, salesmanagers agree that the Wayne county, Mich., registrations caused a disturbance among officials of their factories. For a great many years makers have watched Detroit, believing that it gave an indication of what the rest of the country would start buying.

Joseph A. Schultz, president of the Detroit Auto Dealers association and general manager of the Cadillac sales branch in Detroit and a man recognized by the factory as one of its best merchandisers is demanding that his salesmen increase their contracts with prospective purchasers. He states that the old day of "high pressuring" an automobile sale has ended. The buyer of today virtually sells himself on a certain new car and the salesman's part is to be on hand often to help him want that new car bad enough to step down to the sales room and sign the order.

Leaders In Sales.

Leaders in sales in this territory are starting to sell cars by other methods than just telling the prospective new owner how much better their cars are than those of some of their rivals.

Leading manufacturers who are watching the Detroit sales turn state that it wont be long before there will be a new era in motor car selling in the entire United States.

AUTO FREIGHT

Shipping Total of Industry Runs To Huge Figure.

George C. Conn, director of traffic of the Buick Motor company, has compiled statistics on traffic for 1926 which show in graphic form the tremendous volume of freight business created by the automobile industry.

Shipments received and forwarded by the Buick Motor company at Flint during the past year exceeded all previous records. There were 42,446 carloads. This compares with 36,432 carloads of incoming and outgoing freight during 1925, the biggest previous year. According to Mr. Conn's figures, if these 173,448 carloads were put into one train it would reach from New York City to Chicago via the New York Central lines and have a few cars left over.

"Anticipating the usual increase in traffic from Buick," Conn said, "the Pere Marquette and Grand Trunk western railways are increasing their facilities at Flint by the construction of about 20 miles of trackage in two new operating yards at a cost of over one million dollars, all of which will tend to improve the good service already given. There has never been a time when the railroads generally have rendered shippers such active co-operation in the movement of freight traffic. Notwithstanding the heavy snows in this territory, there has been no interruption of service."

FAN PROTECTS DODGE MOTOR

Dirt Can't Reach 'Innards Of This Auto

Probably no single mechanical feature now in use is more effective in prolonging the life of a motor car than the air cleaning device.

The cleaner which is now standard equipment on Dodge Brothers motor cars is simply in construction, consisting of only the outer shell and a rotating fan. The clarifying of the air is accomplished by centrifugal force; that is the rotation of the fan, through which all the air passes, throws the particles of dirt against the side of the outer shell and they drop through the bottom of the cleaner, allowing only the clean air to pass through to the combustion chambers. When we realize that an automobile engine breathes from 50 to 100 times as much air as we do, we can readily see that the air cleaner by preventing dirt and grit from mixing with the engine lubricant insures longer life in the main and connecting rod bearings, the pistons and rings and the cylinder walls.

According to figures furnished by the professors of automotive engineering of Purdue university, 50 per cent of the wear and tear on an engine is caused by road-dirt and dust which enters through the intake. Likewise, this same dust combining with the oil of the engine is the chief ingredient of the so-called carbon which accumulates in the combustion chambers. It is appreciated by the automobile driver that Dodge Brothers, in equipping their car with the air-cleaner, have eliminated 95 per cent of this trouble. Dodge Brothers engineers in testing the new device in the dustiest desert in the West declared it to measure up to Dodge Brothers exacting high standards.

While a special manifolding was required to mount the new air-cleaner, the cleaner with the correct manifold can be installed in Dodge Brothers power plants previously built.

Oakland Honored In Own Country —Leads In Sales Of Home County

there was an old saying to the effect that—a prophet is not without honor save in his own country and in his own home. Succeeding years developed nothing to show that St. Matthew was wrong when he coined that precious thought—nothing, that is, until the automobile came along and gave a new twist to the old notion, just as it has revolutionized many other commonly accepted theories and beliefs.

In the automotive version of that old saying, the Oakland Motor Car company assumes the role of the prophet; and Oakland county, Mich., where Oakland and Pontiac cars are made, becomes the prophet's own country. Statistics compiled by the registration of the division of the Michigan state highway department show that not only is this "prophet" honored in his own home, but that he is honored to an extraordinary degree.

For the 11 months ending Dec. 1, 1926, cars produced by the Oakland Motor Car company, stood third on the list of new car registrations in Oakland county. The actual figures are; New Oaklands, 352; New Pontiacs, 557.

These figures are far ahead of any other maker of six cylinder cars. The two companies leading Oaklind are both manufacturers of small four cylinder cars.

The figures show conclusively that neighbors of the Oakland Motor Car company who have first hand knowledge of its products, are completely sold on Oakland and Pontiac Sixes and believe firmly that these cars are supreme in their own fields.

500 ATTEND OLDS BANQUET

Dealers Vision Record Year In Auto Sales

A future as bright as the chromium plating on Oldsmobile radiators was visioned by the western dealers of Olds Motor Works at their annual dinner held Wednesday of the past week in the gold room of the Congress hotel, Chicago. Nearly 500 dealers were present at this meeting, held during the week of the Chicago national automobile show. It was the most optimistic gathering in the long history of Oldsmobile annual dealer dinners.

Industry Solid

The keynote of the evening was given by I. J. Reuter, president and general manager of Olds Motor Works, who declared that the steady gains made by Oldsmobile during the past two years predicated still greater prosperity in the future.

"All indications point to a good automobile year in 1927," said Mr. Reuter. "American business and American people are pursuing a sane course without inflation or extravagance. This should make for continued prosperity in general. And the continued demand for transportation, both by business and individuals, is highly favorable for the automotive industry."

Mr. Reuter tendered praise to the General Motors corporation and its officials for the sane, conservative policies that have brought the corporation to the position of eminence it has attained. Part of this success, he said, has been due to the consistent advancements made by Oldsmobile, and the parent corporation is solidly backing Oldsmobile to greater success.

Leads In Gain

Recapitulating the records of 1926, Mr. Reuter pointed out that the automobile industry as a whole has gained 2.58 per cent during the year while the gain for the year by Oldsmobile in domestic sales, he said, was 33.15 per cent, or more than 25 times as much as the gain of the entire industry.

Keynote speakers at the dinner were D. S. Eddins, vice-president and general sales manager, and H. S. Wier, assistant general sales manager.

Chevrolet Backs Dealers' Meetings

One of the most significant events in the automotive industry today is the series of nation-wide sales meetings of the Chevrolet Motor company now in progress. They are destined to reach 15,000 dealers, associate dealers and bankers in 21 of the largest cities before their close in April.

Sales plans of the company for what is expected to be the greatest year in its history are outlined at these meetings by officials of the sales, advertising and service divisions. As the world's largest makers of three speed transmission cars the company is looking forward to 1927 for a measurable increase over 1926, when production records for the previous year were exceeded by more than 40 per cent. Recently announcement was made that the company's facilities had been expanded to make possible production of 1,000,000 units yearly.

R. H. Grant, vice-president and general sales manager, will direct the meetings and outline the most comprehensive sales campaign ever attempted by a manufacturer of automobiles.

The meetings will be held from coast to coast and will place the entire dealer organization in personal touch with company officials and will give first hand information on the workings of the sales plans. A graphic presentation of these pla..s will feature the afternoon session at the meetings. Playlets will demonstrate new policies of sales, advertising, service and used car merchandising under the 1927 program. Dealers will be guests of the company at banquets following the meetings.

Approximately 3000 bankers will attend the meetings, reflecting their interest in Chevrolet's position and influence in the automotive industry today.

Assisting Mr. Grant in the meeting will be C. E. Dawson, A. W. L. Gilpin and H. J. Klingler, assistant general sales managers; R. E. White, sales promotion manager; J. E. Grimi Jr., advertising manager; J. P. Little, manager of the parts and service division; William A. Blees, manager of the purchase certificate division; Sidney Corbett, manager of the fleet sales division and W. G. Lewellen of the sales promotion division.

BIG RAIL PROGRAM

Amarillo Improvements Listed By Rock Island.

CHICAGO, Feb. 4. (AP)—The Rock Island lines will spend nearly $27,000,000 in 1927 for improvements, it was announced today. The budget is the largest since the war and follows one of the most prosperous years in the road's history. Round houses and adjacent property will be improved at Dalhart and Amarillo.

Conservatives no doubt have their good points, but it must be pretty hard to love one of them.

EXPERT FEARS WASTE OF OIL

Would Have Texas Adopt Conservation Law

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. Stirred by the government's sensational report that the country's oil supply will be gone in eight years unless new methods of recovery are established, the oil industry is prepared to take extraordinary steps to meet the emergency.

President Coolidge was so advised today by Mark L. Requa, California oil expert.

Requa, who had charge of the government's oil stores during the war, said the industry accepts the estimate that five billion barrels now constitutes the supply that can be taken from the ground by the methods of extraction now in use. The country is using oil at the rate of 800,000,000 barrels a year.

"A nation without oil cannot defend itself against a nation that has oil," Requa declared. "Civilization rests on an adequate supply of minerals. So far as our leading mining engineers can see, there is sufficient copper to last not more than 50 years.

"Without minerals our great centers of population would disintegrate. Imagine the great city of New York, with only a seven-day's food supply on hand at most, and no metals for the locomotives and steamships to bring in additional food. The people would have to become pastoral or starve to death.

"Our industry has undergone a revolution in the few short months since the report of the president's oil conservation board. It was the most important contribution in all the history of petroleum. We are determined to do everything possible to meet the situation and thus avert the possibility of government control."

Requa agreed with the oil board that the ground still contains 25 billion barrels that could not be extracted by known methods.

The oil industry's first effort, he said, will be to obtain passage of state laws in Arkansas and Texas to permit conservation of the gas.

NEW EXECUTIVES

Oakland Names Officials To Care For Exposition.

In line with the rapidly expanding program of the Oakland Motor Car company, W. R. Tracy, vice-president in charge of sales, announces a division of the 22 districts of the country into two new sales groups to be known as the eastern and western divisions with a seasoned automobile man in charge of each.

W. B. Sawyer, formerly Boston district manager for the Oakland company, has been named by Tracy as eastern sales manager, and E. M. Lubeck, formerly Chicago district manager for Oakland-Pontiac, becomes western sales manager.

Both men will maintain headquarters at the Oakland factory at Pontiac, Mich., where they will be in direct touch with Mr. Tracy, and each one will have full charge of all sales activities in his respective division.

Child Gets Sick Cross, Feverish if Constipated

Look at tongue! Then give fruity laxative for stomach, liver, bowels

"California Fig Syrup" can't harm children and they love it

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign the little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Fig Syrup" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious, "fruity laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside cleansing." Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," then see that it is made by "The California Fig Syrup Company."—Adv.

COURTESY AIDS TRAFFIC FLOW

Proper Use of Signals Urged By Auto Secretary

Highway courtesy in its simplest form provides one of the most effective ways of facilitating the smoother flow of traffic, in the opinion of James Boyle, executive secretary of the Wichita Valley Auto club.

What is the simplest form of highway courtesy? According to Mr. Boyle it consists in giving precise and intelligible signals to indicate clearly every intended change of course while driving, whether it is to be a right turn, left turn, a complete turnabout, or a full stop. On this point he says:

"One of the fundamentals of traffic safety is the signal system devised so that one driver may apprise all others of his intentions. To reduce the number of accidents on American streets and highways, it is essential that each driver pay 100 per cent attention to this fundamental. Inquiries conducted by the A. A. A. of which this club is a member, indicate that many drivers do not consider giving of signals primarily as a mark of courtesy. Certain individuals admit that while they try always to give them, self-preservation is their real motive. They were frank to confess that they never had considered the matter from the courtesy angle.

"It might be helpful for each driver to do a bit of introspection to determine just what motivates him when he puts his arm over the side of the car. Certainly the situation would be improved if signalling could be made totally unselfish; if real courtesy could be the impulse behind it. This applies particularly to stopping. Abrupt, unsignalled stops have been the cause of innumerable traffic mishaps. The number could be greatly reduced if each driver were conscious of his responsibility to all other street users as well as to himself."

OLGA LOSES SUIT

Actress Must Pay Author $7,730 Damages.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. (AP)—The appellate division of the supreme court today affirmed the $7,730 judgment obtained by William Henry Roberts, English playwright against Olga Petrova, actress, last year. Roberts claimed the actress plagarized his play "La Ruvia" which she produced under the name of "the White Peacock." The late Rudolph Valentino was one of the principal witnesses for the actress at the trial.

Railways Use Trucks In Door-To-Door Deliveries Under New Shipping Plan

"Now that the use of the truck in commercial transportation is spreading out like a fan, developments of great importance and interest to every business man come frequently," said Wm. O'Neil, president of the General Tire and Rubber company, in a recent interview. "American truck men, tire men and all business men who ship or receive goods should not overlook a slow step now being taken in England that will finally put a new face on terminal transportation and greatly increase the use of trucks and truck tires. The step is in the direction of the general adoption of store-door delivery as part of the business of transportation.

"When this is thoroughly developed the carrier—a railway for instance—will pick up goods at the manufacturer or seller's door, and deliver the shipment directly to the customer—all as a part of the business of transportation.

"Advocates of this new and more complete and efficient system are not lacking in the United States. But our attention is called to the fact that in Great Britain the transportation agencies are ahead of us in this, at least.

"A recent news dispatch says that one of Great Britain's four railway companies is now working on a scheme to recover at least a portion of the freight traffic that has been lost to motor transport. The plan is to provide manufacturers with door-to-door facilities on a greater scale than heretofore and at a cost lower than that of road transport. Motor trucks will be used, of course.

"In America the railroads are fighting the truck and seeking legislation to hamper its competitive activity everywhere. In Great Britain it is interesting to note the recognition of the transportation process as continuous from producer to consumer.

"We believe American railroads will finally accept the truck as inevitable and adopt it to their own uses, in greater service to the public. And when they do, they may have cause to regret the legislative burdens they are now trying to lay on truck transport.

"The electric railways were formerly bitter enemies of the passenger bus, which competed for their passenger trade. For a time the electrics were hand in glove with the steam roads in an effort to suppress the bus. Now the principal intercity bus lines are owned by their former foes. The busses open up lateral territory, feed the electrics, and take the place of track extensions that would otherwise be necessary. So bus ownership is being centralized in stronger hands than when the individual independents began their experiments with made-over touring cars. And just as the bus has developed and changed, truck design and capacity will ultimately be modified for new duties, and new tire problems will arise all the time."

WILLYS ASSETS CLIMB HIGH

Prosperity of Company Reflected in Securities

With the completion of the Whippet Six which is now being shown for the first time, Willys-Knight has completed the task of redeveloping its entire line of motor cars in the strikingly short time of two years.

The work behind this achievement has been going on for the past four years inside the walls of the Willys-Overland plants in this country and at Willys-Knight-Crossley, Ltd., of England.

Three years ago, the Toledo manufacturer had products in two price classes, the Overland four-cylinder models which competed in the low price field and the four-cylinder Willys-Knight which was in the top section of the middle price class of that time.

New Models.

It was not a contender in the six-cylinder market in which the sales volume was increasing in tremendous measure.

Two years ago the development of the Willy-Knight Great Six brought Willys-Overland to the front in the field of luxury motor cars of multi-clylnder construction and the Overland Six marked its entry into the light six field. The middle price field was served by a four-cylinder Willys-Knight model.

A year ago, the four-cylinder Willys-Knight was discarded and the middle price field was served with the new "70" Willys Knight Six. In this car, the features which have made the great six a favoriate in the higher price ranges, were added to by other developments which had been going on in the Knight motor field of engineering, and surprising power results were obtained by owners of this new car.

Up to this time, the achievements of Willys-Overland had been looked upon as noteworthy. They had been accomplished without any slow down in manufacturing or selling. The output of the company was held to a steady increase.

Six months ago the Whippet made its appearance. This car was the veary heart of the volume production of the organization. It was entirely different from any product of Willys-Overland just as the Overland Six and the two Willys-Knight models were entirely new.

Facilities Enlarged.

It required even more sweeping change-overs in factory plans and equipment than any of the other three developments. Yet it was put on a waiting market with the loss of but two months production and from the very start it set new manufacturing records in the plant.

The Whippet Six has completed the program which was laid out fourt years ago.

Not only have the cars been completely redevolped, but the manufacturing facilities have been materially enlarged in the past two years to prepare for the volume of output which must follow in a natural manner the usurping of a strong sales position in every price field.

Coincident with the changes in product and the enlargement of factory facilities, the financial structure of the organization was going through a similar build up. The value of the securities of the company was steadily enhanced. Assets were built up to put the organization in a strong position to start the strenuous sales program ahead.

Today the actual book value of Willys-Overland stock is one of the highest in the industry. Factory equipment and plants are carried at heavily depreciated figures. The possible output from the present equipment has been greatly increased through the use of highly efficient production methods.

The value anticipated for 1927 according to the most conservative estimates of the management will represent one of the largest proportionate turn-overs of invested capital in the industry.

You may think you are lucky to be alive, but what do the folks who know you think about it?

If the way to judge the future is by the past, a lot of people are going to have a pretty tough time in heaven—or wherever they may go.

OPEN CAR IN FAVOR AGAIN

Chrysler "70" Given Credit For Renewed Popularity

With their new appearance, new smartness, new comfort, new richness of upholstery and fittings, the Chrysler "70" cars displayed at the annual automobile show, apparently will inaugurate distinctly new vogues in automobile body designing, judging from the comment of show visitors.

Innovations are evident in all the various body types shown in this model. Even the Chrysler "70" roadster, which was the leader of the revived popularity for the open car when it created a sensation on its original presentation, has its novelties this year in the form of long-grained leather upholstery in striking color combinations to harmonize with body colors, the latter also setting a new style in that body color is used on the running board splash guard. Leather hinged seat backs, which move with the occupants' bodies and add much to riding ease, offer still another novelty in the roadster.

The smart brougham, with its trunk and two door roominess; the fleet new coupe and the two sedans—the graceful Royal and the Crown, "the Finest of the Line"—all the closed cars of the new, finer Chrysler "70" model this year present that swagger air of snappy altertness conferred by the new military front and cadet visor which has attracted general admiration.

Yet with the striking individuality of the cars, the Chrysler "70" models of this year unite in impressing upon the observer the realization that Chrysler engineers in the body lines of 1927 have achieved the exact mean in size and balance, line and color distinction, comfort and compactness, that art and efficiency could demand.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

Constipation! How to Keep Bowels Regular

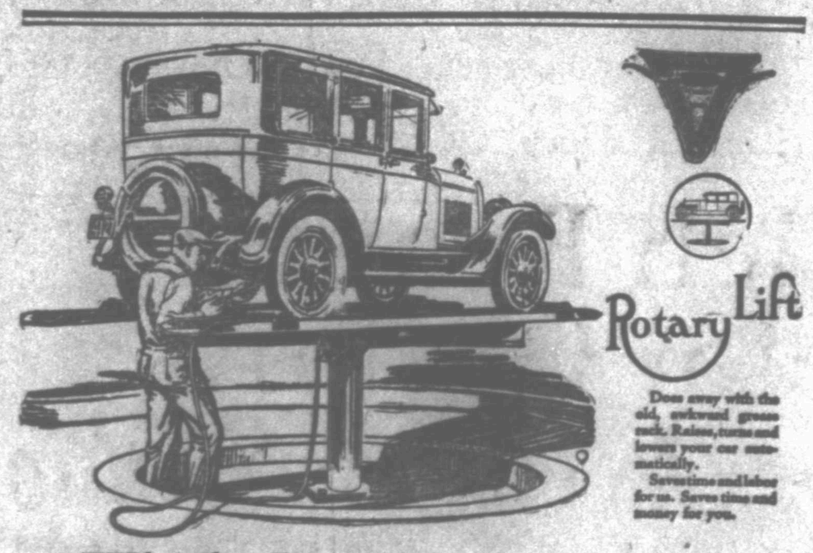

Dr. W. B. Caldwell of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated men, women, children and particularly old folks, had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all headaches, billousness, indigestion and stomach misery, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to establish natural bowel "regularity" even for those chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it never gripes, sickens, or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, billous, sick child gladly takes it.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine or write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, for a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE and just see for yourself.

MEMORIAL TO BAYLOR DEAD

Friends of Athletes to Pay Honor to Memory

WACO, Feb. 5. (AP)—A proposed memorial to the ten Baylor university athletes, killed in a railroad crossing collision at Round Rock last month, has been deferred until after the present conquest campaign of the Southern Baptist church in Texas.

Officials of the university said no immediate effort toward a memorial would be made, as President Brooks, the faculty, and students are all deeply interested in the success of the conquest campaign for $2,000,000 to pay off debts of the denomination's institutions, one of the largest of which is Baylor university here.

Dr. J. M. Dawson, an official of the conquest campaign, and editor of the Baylor university alumni monthly, has announced, however, that the monthly will devote its February issue entirely to the deceased athletes as a memorial number.

"Baylor university received the largest amount prorated in the present campaign," said Mr. Dawson, "and it is felt that this will absorb all the interest and attention of Baylor friends among the Baptists in the immediate present.

"This, of course, is not intended to interfere with any spontaneous impulse that any loved one or friend of the dead athletes may be cheerishing."

GRANDFIELD NOTES

Special to The Record News.

GRANDFIELD, Okla., Feb. 5.—Twenty-one students were selected as members of the state honor society at a faculty meeting Tuesday. The senior class led with nine on the list: the juniors second with seven; the sophomores came next with three and the freshmen last with two.

The ones evening this honors are: Gladys Bleeker, Ethel Brasher, Bernice Brisco, Norman Clemmer, Texline Doss, Clara Dykes, Ulpin Gilbreath, Clara Grant, Robert Helton, Ralph Johnston, Avas Kerr, Floyd King, Charles Mounts, Hugh Riley, Marie Sarrett, Monta Simms, Leo Speckman, Lawrence Vail, Virginia Warhurst, Mora Wilborn and Lena Winchill-Potts.

The numbers of names on this list, according to state regulation is 10 per cent of the highest average grades in the high school. Scholarship, activities, leadership and school attitude are four things considered by the faculty in naming these members.

Athletic Field Named.

"Chambers Field" is the name recently given to Frandfield's athletic field in honor of the coach of 1927, all victorious football team.

At the banquet given the football team, E. D. Burks suggested that the football field be named for Harry Chambers. A vote was taken and all present were in favor.

Schools to Close.

Both the high school and grades will be closed for the state teachers meeting which will be held in Oklahoma City Thursday and Friday, Feb. 10 and 11, according to J. B. Stout, superintendent. All high sechool teachers will attend and probably most of the grade teachers.

De Molays Initiate.

Don't Take This Too Seriously.

Lucien Lelong, famous dressmaker comes out with a statement "to every dress its perfume." Perfumes were the first commodities ever sold in Paris dress houses besides dresses themselves. Lelong explains this by the statement that certain gowns demand certain perfumes. The dressmaker has a better opportunity of understanding a woman's needs, hence his success as a perfumer.

"The dress you wear is the basis of your good appearance," says Lelong, "but you attain perfection only where everything else you wear, even your perfume is in artistic conformity with that basis."

GOING ON A HEALTH HUNT

BY JAMES J. MONTAGUE

I'd been to see a lot of doctors. They all asked me innumerable intimate personal questions, the answers to which they carefully wrote down on desk pads. They were almost as curious about my past as the operatives in a passport office. After they had questioned me they took X-ray pictures of my interior. I saw some of these, and can only hope that they did not do me justice.

Every doctor told me to come back in a week for a further talk. In the meantime I was counselled not to eat anything that didn't agree with me, and not to smoke too many cigars. When I asked them how many cigars were too many they replied "More than are good for you." I was satisfied with that advice. My family is hard to live with, when I can't smoke.

To each doctor in turn I came back in a week. Each doctor looked over the pad on which he had written the week before, asked me a few additional questions and then said:

"There is nothing the matter with you but nervousness. What you ought to do is to control your nerves. What are your working methods?"

When I had told them that my working methods consisted of doing as little work as possible, when one has a living to make, they said:

"You had better go away for two or three weeks. A change of climate and environment will do you good. The trouble with you is that you're nervous."

So I decided to go away. Immediately I began reading the advertisements of places to go to, and sending for the literature that the owners of the places were good enough to supply without charge. Also I talked to my travelled friends about places to go to.

Bill was the first man I spoke with. "You want to go to Cedarhurst," he said, "and don't let anybody steer you away from it. There's good gold down there and bracing weather, and elegant food. Two weeks of it will put new life into you and you won't have a nerve in your body when you get back."

I decided right away to go to Cedarhurst, and bought tickets for that point the next morning—two weeks in advance. That night Howard came in to see how I was getting along. I told him that a lot of doctors had told me to go away.

"Good idea," said Howard, "almost any place away from here is good, except Cedarhurst. Don't let anybody talk you into going there."

"What's the matter with Cedarhurst?" I inquired, uneasily.

"Oh I suppose the place is all right, but the climate is terrible and the golf course is rotten, and they don't know what the word food means at the hotel.

"I was down there for two weeks last fall, and what with the cold rain, and the jiggers that got into my skin every time I went out on the golf course, and the terrible stuff I got for meals, I had to go to Seaville and spend a month recovering. Seaville is the place you ought to go. Wonderful, the best hotel in the world, and a swell gang of people—take you right to their heart. I'll give you a letter to the hotel proprietor, and he'll see that you get the right kind of looking after."

I cancelled my reservations for Cedarhurst the next day, and bought tickets for Seaville. That night Dave came in on a matter of business.

"You look like the devil," he said, "you ought to go away."

I told him I was going away.

"Fine," he said, "go any one of a half dozen of those Southern places, and you'll have a fine time, but keep clear of Seaville. Three friends of mine have been down there lately and all of them had to go to the hospital as soon as they got back to New York."

"What happened to them?"

"Oh, that's one of the few places left where they haven't cleared out the malaria mosquitoes or hook worms, or some form of parasites that knock people cold after the first couple of days. Nobody goes there much except sick people, and they get sicker as soon as they've been there a couple of days, too sick to come away most of 'em. It's a paradise for doctors and trained nurses, Seaville is, but I've been through there three times now and I never saw a healthy person there except the natives, and they're all immune by this time. I'm going to Double Bay next week. Why don't you come with me?"

The following morning I exchanged my tickets for Seaville for tickets to Double Bay, and told Dave I would be ready to start with him. That night Elmer came in to say he'd heard I was sick, and wanted to talk to me about going away.

"You need a rest," he said, "everybody knows that you imagine you're sick, and that your disposition's getting rotten, and that you haven't any control over your nerves. Why don't you get out of town for a while?"

I told him that was what I intended to do.

"Good," he said. "Go to Bogport. It's a nice little place where there isn't any society, and plenty of hunting and fishing, and a fairly good golf course. You can dress as you like, and get a little real corn whiskey if you want it, and enjoy yourself generally. I know what I'm talking about, for I just got back from there day before yesterday. I was a wreck when I got there—could hardly walk, in fact, after the most miserable fortnight I ever spent in my life at a dump, which ought to be burned down or blow up it's such a miserable unhealthy, lonesome hole."

It was then I had a premonition. "I suppose you mean Double Bay" I said.

Elmer looked at me in blank astonishment.

"Sure I mean Double Bay, but how the duce did you know?"

"I just made a good guess," I said. "But you don't need to talk to me about Bogport. I'm not going anywhere."

And I didn't which is probably the reason why my nerves are still out of control, and I get short of breath after I've finished my tenth cigar.

Easiest of all Cars To Handle

When you drive a Ford, your car is more flexible in traffic—with starts, stops and speed changes made faster and more easily. Complete control through foot pedals makes it unnecessary to remove your hands from the wheel.

These advantages are due to the Ford planetary transmission—developed as the simplest, most direct and reliable means of speed control for light cars.

Gears are constantly in mesh—preventing the possibility of stripping. The transmission, therefore, stands harder abuse—there are no costly replacements.

Let us explain and demonstrate this remarkable feature of Ford design.

SEDAN $795

COUPE $735

COACH $735

ALSO A 4-PASSENGER SPEEDSTER $750

In performance as well as appearance, the Essex Super-Six is an entirely new car.

It reveals the capacity of the Super-Six principle. It attains an engineering triumph in low maintenance and operating cost.

It possesses such stamina that 50 miles an hour all day long is an easy accomplishment. And so nimble and alert is its action that no car will surpass the quickness with which it may be driven through traffic or in touring, whether the trip is one of a few city blocks or hundreds of miles. To both driver and passengers, there is rare comfort in any kind of going.

Unusual accessibility means big savings in replacement, service and all shop work. Economy in fuel and oil is also a notable feature of the new Essex Super-Six.

It holds further exclusive advantages in its Super-Six motor. Four years of development has resulted in a chassis that would permit full use of its capacity. In the Essex Super-Six, performance, safety and reliability are realized to a degree never approached in a car of its size or price.

There are four new bodies on the Essex Super-Six chassis—all beautiful, all smart in line, finish, appointment and upholstery. They are easily the paramount values of Essex history.

NOTED RANGER OF PIONEER DAYS WAGES BATTLE WITH DEATH

James E. Lucy Stopped Thompson With Soft Words and Sam Bass At Pistol Point At Round Rock

HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD.

If there are sermons in stones, there must be sermons in the lives of men. If there are voices in the whispering trees then there must must be voices in the deeds of men who have assisted in making a new civilization in a comparative wilderness, a civilization which bids fair to be greater and wiser and broader and stronger than any of the civilizations that have passed away. There are men who carry the weight of years, who are as modest as the flowers of spring-time. They never speak of the work they have wrought, the deeds they have heroically performed, the thrilling incidents of their lives in defense of law and order and liberty, the seeds of kindness they have planted as they walked along life's pathway, seeds which blossomed and bore rich fruit in the lives of those who were the beneficiaries of kindly acts and helping hands.

Modest Man

Texas has had a most romantic history. There isn't an American state where the rich material awaits the historian of the future as that which may be found by the inquiring mind under the flag of the Lone Star. There has never been a great historian in Texas. There has never been written a great history of this imperial commonwealth which has known six flags. Great men have lived in Texas; ripe scholars have lived and died in Texas. Dashing soldiers have made history in Texas or for Texas. They made it long before the coming of Stephen F. Austin. They made it before Fannin died at Goliad; they made it before the Alamo fell and fallen became the cradle of Texas history.

They made it before the shining blade of Sam Houston triumphed at San Jacinto, and Santa Anna, who called himself the Lion of the North, saw his banner trailed in the dust forever. They made it in the war between the States, in that greatest of all fratracidal strifes between brothers, for that war was a war between families as well as states. They made it in all the wars that America has known since Austin laid the foundation of an empire.

All this reminds the writer that a modest man on a bed of pain has a history as romantic as that of many of the knightly men who came to Texas before the birth of the Planters Republic and in his way carved out a name for himself, which would have made thrilling material for Richard Harding Davis or any other knight of the facile pen and lively imagination. Captain James E. Lucy was born under the skies of Missouri. His parents were pioneers of Missouri in the days when Thomas H. Benton was one of the distinguished leaders of the American senate. Franklin County was his home.

His father was a leading citizen of Missouri. He sent his son through the public schools and it was at the famous Missouri University at Columbia that the hero of this sketch finished his education. Three of his classmates became men of mark in after years. Eugene Field and Ross Field were two of his close University chums and Paul Waples was another. Eugene Field will live in literature, poetry and song as long as English is spoken. His "Little Boy Blue" is a classic and a thousand other products of his gifted pen are cherished by those who were children when he was a famous editor and poet of America. Ross Field was a brilliant newspaper writer and his poem and prose creations made for him a place in American literature. Paul Waples came to Texas after graduation, became a power in the business world as well as a power in the democratic politics of the state and was a millionaire when his life was snuffed out while his auto was making its way over one of the deadly grade crossings of Texas.

Came Early to Texas

Paul Waples' name is never mentioned now, but only a few short years ago he was chairman of the democratic state committee and a mighty influence in the politics of his adopted state. These three products of the Columbia University and Captain Lucy never forgot their college days and were close friends until that trio disappeared from the land of the living. As for Lucy, college bred and idealistic, he came to Texas when he was nineteen. Texas had a wonderous lure for Missourians of that period. Civil war was over, but the reconstruction days were on in Missouri and thousands of the natives of that state came to Texas, the land of romance, vast wilderness in a sense, and all the intervening years since 1872 he has been been a citizen of this proud and fast growing commonwealth.

He succumbed or surrendered to the lure. He made Texas his home. He became a part of Texas and ever for Texas. Richard Coke was inaugurated governor in that year. Reconstruction died in 1873. Texas from that hour to this has been dominated by those who did not believe in a military form of government or the reconstruction methods of those who held the septre of power from the fall of the stars and bars at Appomattox until the followers of Coke inaugurated him governor and declared their independence of Edmund J. Davis and his lieutenants and followers.

Fought Forgers

Captain Lucy was drafted for the ranger service in early youth. There was a prime necessity for it. A state wide conspiracy for the forging and selling of land titles had its ramifications throughout the southwestern empire within the border lines of the Texas of that period. These land title forgers were entrenched in power. They had powerful financial and political affiliations. Their transactions ran into the millions. They victimized citizens of other states who desired to invest in the lands of this commonwealth. They almost defied the law.

A ranger was needed who had the necessary education for administrative skill, who had courage of the unquestioned undaunted kind, who was cautious as well as fearless and combined the skill of a born detective with the other qualities or qualifications necessary for a man to fill the position which an attorney general, an adjutant general, a governor determined to rid the state of a nest of conspirators had carved out for the right man when the right man was found. It was a long drawn-out contest. Lawmakers of Texas enacted a statute which provided that those guilty of land frauds or those suspected of guilty complicity, should be indicted and sent to trial in the county of Travis, the seat of government of the commonwealth. A real story of the work that was done by Captain Lucy in the land fraud cases would fill a large size volume. He held a position fraught with danger. He held a position where no mistakes could be made on his part. He held a position that made him implacable enemies, political and financial and social in Texas, but he never unfurled the white flag of cowardice or the yellow emblem of fear.

He did the work carved out for him. A ring of land forgers, a ring conducted on a mighty scale, was smashed. There were many convictions in the county of Travis. History makes note of the fact that the conspiracy was broken into fragments, many of the conspirators paid the penalty, the practice or custom was eliminated from the land affairs of Texas and history also makes note of the fact that the crushing blows administered by those who stood for the law and justice were so terrific that in all the intervening years land frauds, on a large scale at least, have never been revived in this commonwealth.

Terror to Lawbreakers

Thus it was that the product of the Missouri University became a ranger, a terror to evil doers and while very young, was nominated for the position of chief of police by the law loving people of the capital city and triumphantly elected to that position which had been filled by Ben Thompson, whose deeds and final passing with King Fisher and others in the city of San Antonio are found in the files of Austin newspapers of that period and in the books and pamphlets dealing with the noted gunmen and noted characters who led lurid lives and covered their personal records with hectic deeds.

This was the age of the gunman in Texas. Indeed, the gunman has been in evidence in every age in Texas, long before the coming of Stephen F. Austin, the empire builder. Ben Thompson had never submitted to an arrest in his life. It is not necessary to tell the reader that Thompson, while in one of his warlike moods shot up the town while bent upon a hell-raising mission. He met his waterloo that fated day. A stripling, a man of slight stature, and no taller than Napoleon of Corsican memory, tapped him on the shoulder and whispered to him, "Ben, I want you, you are under arrest. Come with me." And, the warlike Thompson became as docile as a child and walked to the city prison where he made bond and promised to behave himself.

His captor did not hire the services or the pen of a publicity agent to tell the story to the press of the world. He had taken in his man and that man one who had never submitted to arrest. He had warned his man that he must behave himself in future or again he would be disarmed and taken to the bastile. He did not kill Thompson, although he would have been justified. The young chief of police was not a killer. He was an officer of the law, sworn to protect property and make life sacred. He did not have the blood mania. He never had it. He was not ambitious to have notches on his gun. He was cool and he is cool today on his bed of pain. He never lost his temper and he placed the law above all in those days of a memorable career. It would take another large size volume to cover the incidents of his life of a personal nature, his narrow escapes, his thrilling adventures, while an agent of the law and ever for its supremacy.

As has been stated, he was and is a modest man. His tongue has never been garrulous. He has ever been reticent to speak of self or the life which he led in those days of his youth when he was a famous ranger bent on the destruction of conspirators against the law or later in subduing Ben Thompson and others who were half outlaw and half decent citizens, depending largely on the quantity of liquor that they had consumed or their moods when drunk or sober. Sam Bass closed his career near Round Rock in Williamson County. He began at Denton in Denton county. With men of the same caliber Sam Bass started out to make an easy living with his trusty gun. He died with his boots on near the place where the little stone monument tells the traveler that near this spot a desperado perished. Captain Lucy and a squad of trusty men were on guard in the outskirts of what is known as the Round Rock of today, when Sam Bass, gun fighter and robber, passed on to that land beyond the river. They were there to see that Sam and his companions were given permits for transportation across the Styx on that fated day or night. These are incidents of bygone days. They are milestones of memories in the lifetime of Captain James E. Lucy and milestones of historic value in the annals of Texas.

Entered Bond Business

Richard Coke was elected governor in 1872. Captain Lucy was an ardent democrat, like his father before him. He has never forsaken the faith. He has known every governor from Richard Coke to Dan Moody and when the red-headed incumbent of the office of governor smashed masked violators of the law in Williamson and Travis counties, this ranger of other days and noted police chief declared that a new leader of the people had come and was destined to hold high place in the political life of his native state. As an active democrat throughout all the years from Coke until the present, this veteran has taken sides as an active partisan, ever for those he looked upon as the truest to the fundamentals of American liberty and institutions and above all, his friends say, those who stood for civil and religious liberty and the administration of justice in the court house of the commonwealth regardless of consequences or the price that he would be called upon to pay.

More than thirty years ago he deserted forever the ranger and police guardianship of society and embarked in the Lond and surety business which has engaged his attention ever since. A man of few words, he has been close in his friendships. In his ranger and police days, William and Robert Pinkerton, the famous sons of a famous father, Allan Pinkerton, were among those who were close to this Texas ranger and police chieftan and later business man, ever attending to his own affairs unless called into the arena of politics by Joseph Weldon Bailey, Charles A. Culberson, John H. Reagan, James Stephen Hogg and giants of lesser mould who have been participants in the bitter political rivalries which have made this state the cockpit of personal politics almost since the passing of Sam Houston in the long ago. Joseph Weldon Bailey never had a closer or truer friend. Friendship has never been lip service alone on the part of Captain Lucy. He goes all the way; he never starts and goes half the way. In his ranger and police years he knew all the veteran ranger captains and their trusted men. He was close to Captain J. C. Arnold of Dallas, one of the most noted police officers that ever lived in Texas. He was close to Major Larry Harrigan in the seventies and eighties, the noted superintendent of the St. Louis police force, who tracked criminals who were fugitives from justice to Texas and Mexico.

Hopes For Health

Closer than all were the Pinkertons. Never a Christmas went by that boxes of cigars did not come from these most famous of all American detectives to the quiet man on the banks of the Colorado River. He knew McMurry and McNally, famous in their days as ranger captains. He covered that part of Texas west of Fort Worth when the cowman and cowboys and herds were in possession and no man dared to dispute their rights. He was close to the kings of politics, the kings of the lobby, the kings of the cowmen, the rail builders of Texas and the men who came after them. In fact, all of those who have departed or those who are still clutching at the fringe of life, who have made history in this empire dedicated to freemen and the freemen who come after them by liberator Houston and his rifle bearers.

And, yet with it all, he has gone his way without the blare of trumpets, the beating of drums, the burning of red lights or the music of the anvil chorus. He has lived his life as he chose to live it, loving the few and respectful and courteous to the many. For 49 years he has lived at 1802 San Gabriel. It is as picturesque as an edifice in the black forest of Germany. Mocking birds and red birds sing in the trees which ornament the large lawn. It overlooks the canyon, with its superb rustic beauty. This house was built at the close of the Civil war by a man named Robertson. It was in the heart of a woodland.

There it was a timber district between the home spot and the capitol. It was scenic paradise where the native warblers of the forest gave their concerts every day of sunshine. This has been his home for 49 years. It is something to have been sheltered by the roof of this quaint building for almost 50 years, far from the maddening crowd, where God's trees have been given the protecting hand of man, where the beauties of nature have not been destroyed by the vandals of marching time and across the canyon can be seen the violet crowned heavens ever and anon without powerful telescope or friendly spy glass. It was in Austin that the one romance of his life came. Here he met the girl who became his wife. Here she died years ago. Here his son passed away years ago. Here he made history and here he made friends. Here he did his part in a quiet way to push along the car of progress, the Texas car of progress.

Here into his life came a vast wealth of material which would make if placed in cold type reading as rich as has ever appeared in bound volumes for the libraries of the land. In this family of Missouri in the long ago, there were three boys and a girl. Captain Lucy has spent his life in Texas as has been set forth in this narrative. A brother has passed on. His remaining brother has been in charge of the industrial department of the Missouri Pacific Railroad for forty years with headquarters in St. Louis. His sister lives in a distant city.

For years and years a quartet of close friends passed many a pleasant evening together with this man of memory who would rather discuss Eugene Field and his poems than tell of the desperadoes of early Texas, gun fighters all, who died with their boots on. This quartette referred to was composed of Walter Tips, Louis Hancock, Dr. H. L. Hilgartner and the man who made Ben Thompson good, temporarily at least, with one tap on the forearm.

There is another, Peter Lawless, who came here in his youth, more than fifty years ago. A bond of friendship has existed between the captain and the retired railroad man for upwards of half a century. It has never been broken by the wars of time or the passions of politics. There are others, many others, who are close to this college chum of the sweet minstrel of American children who sang his songs for childhood alone.

Some day when the flowers of spring perfume the passing breezes and the mocking birds and the red cardinals flood the valleys and the hillsides with their exquisite melodies, Captain Lucy hopes to be able to be among his friends again and he promises that with the return of health and some of the buoyancy of other years, he will be able to take down the treasured volumes, the song classics of Eugene Field and again drink in the soulful outpourings of his departed friend.

And, the writer, who has known Captain Lucy for many years, trusts that his prayer will be realized and that the viabrant spirit voice of the minstrel of the children of America shall ring in his ears as it did when the little book treasures first came from the press.

Clarendon C-C Picks New Officers For 1927

Special to The Record News.

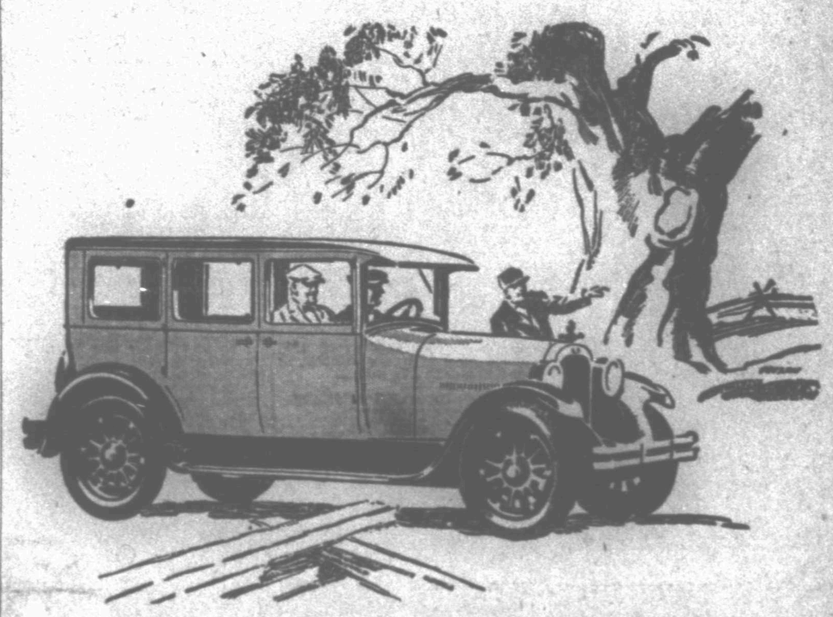

CLARENDON, Feb. 5.—At a special meeting of the Chamber of Commission, the following officreception of the Clarendon College Commission, the election of officers of the Clarendon Chamber of Commerce were elected: J. T. Patman, president; J. R. Porter, vice president, and W. C. Stewart, secretary-treasurer.

Homer Mulkey retiring president; O. C. Watson, retiring vice president, both made short talks of the accomplishments of the past year and wished for the incoming directors better success during 1927.

Secretary A. T. Holcomb who has served the organization for the past nineteen months presided at the election of the new officers and announced that the committee personnel for the various departments would be ready at the regular monthly meeting, Feb. 10.

When Aimee called the devil a liar he probably did what the home folks of a certain president are said to have done when they were told he had been elected—"jes laffed."

How to read Percentages

Were Dodge Brothers to sell 100 motor cars one year and 200 motor cars the next, they could truthfully announce that their sales had increased 100% in a single year. Yet they would only have sold 300 motor cars in all.

In other words, PERCENTAGE of annual gain is not conclusive. The NUMBER of cars sold is the true test.

That Dodge Brothers sales in 1926 showed an increase of 27.6% over 1925 is not the MAJOR fact to consider—striking as it is.

But that Dodge Brothers sold 259,967 cars in 1925, and then in 1926 sold 331,764—a gain of 71,797 sales in twelve months—tells a story of growth that stands out like a tower on the skyline of the industry.

Three hundred and thirty-one thousand buyers LAST year! Many more vital improvements added THIS year! No increase in price! Three powerful arguments for earnestly investigating this smart and sturdy product before deciding what to buy!

Focusing Spotlight

complete with batteries

HERE is a 300-ft. focusing spotlight that sells for little more than half the price formerly charged for a 3-cell spotlight

It has a new and exclusive locking switch that can be removed for cleaning, repair or replacement in a moment's time, yet is as simple and convenient to work as the light switch on your wall.

The lens is of purest, clearest glass specially compounded for spotlight use. An octagonal rim prevents rolling when lying on a flat surface. The reflector has a highly polished silver surface encased so that it need never be touched when changing lamps. The head is removable, allowing use as a candle. The case is heavily nickeled.

This new spotlight is made by the makers of the famous Ray-O-Vac radio batteries and it is equipped with Ray-O-Vac batteries, too. These batteries have staying power.

Ray-O-Vac spotlights and batteries are sold by flashlight dealers everywhere. Be sure to ask for them by the name Ray-O-Vac.

'PAIR PRAYING' FOR CAMPAIGN

Baptists Give Literal Test To Faith in Drive

DALLAS, Texas, Feb. 5.—"Pair praying" has been adopted by Texas Baptist in their conquest campaign to raise $2,000,000 to pay off debts of the denomination's institutions in this state.

Following the promise of Jesus that, "if two of you shall agree on earth as touching anything that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of my Father who is in Heaven," leading Baptists are putting to a literal test their faith in these words, according to Dr. J. M. Dawson of Waco, one of the officials in charge of the campaign.

Rev. Mike Elliott of the Southwestern Theological Seminary at Fort Worth suggested that the Baptists form "prayer partnerships" in the interest of the campaign. The Students' Union at Baylor university, Waco, and the Stuednts' league at Baylor college, Belton, joined with the students at the seminary in doing this.

Now headquarters for the campaign here states that thousands of Texas Baptists, husband and wife, pastor and layman, friend and friend, are daily praying by twos for the success of the campaign.

All Help in one tablet for Colds

Modern science has developed four effective helps for colds. Now they are combined in one tablet, called HILL'S. One of the world's largest laboratories perfected the prescription. It is so well-proved, so quick and complete that we paid $1,000,000 for it.

HILL'S stops a cold in 24 hours. It checks the fever, opens the bowels, tones the entire system. It is kept ever-ready in millions of homes by people who have proved its powers.

Don't rely on lesser help. And don't delay. A cold need never develop if you keep HILL'S on hand. And it need not continue when you get it. Start it now.

The prairie!

Hot—monotonous—maddening. Or cold—leaden—lonely.

Flaying heat—or sweeping, uninterrupted cold.

Or—the prairie—mysterious—with rolling acres like the ocean, rolling mist like fog.

The prairie, pearl colored and beautiful.

HOW hot it was! The day stood stock still, so to speak. To Ida, who was bitter about the monotony of the country she lived in, there was something about the merciless prairie sun that was actually maddening. Maddening in the dreadful, literal sense of the word.

Sometimes it seemed to Ida, who lived in a shanty along the railroad tracks with her two brothers who were railroad engineers and gone for days at a time, that her head would fairly burst with the pressure of heat and monotony and long, eventless days..

In winter it was scarcely better. Then the cold sky stretched in a leaden universe out to the horizon and sometimes snow drifted four or five feet high against the clapboard house and her brothers' trains were delayed and she would be alone for week-end on week-end.

Her brothers sometimes urged her to move to the nearest town; a community of five hundred down the line called Eaton. But Ida and her brothers had been born in that little shanty beside the railroad tracks. At thirty she was not the one to change her habits easily.

And yet, in spite of the weight of monotony and the hungry soul of her and the disappointed youth of her, there was plenty of prettiness left to Ida. She had gray eyes and black hair and black lashes, a combination to envy, and even in the blue gingham uniforms she wore year in and year out, her form rippled through entrancingly.

It was said along "the line" that, except for the isolation of her life, Ida could have had chances. More than one railroad engineer had set up to her, as the saying goes, but Ida was of her environment and yet not quite of it.

Marriage with any of the young railroad engineers who had wooed her favor, and then a probable settling down in Eaton or some horror of a town like it, was not to Ida's liking.

She could do that well keeping house for her brothers, who were personable enough fellows and not bad to live with.

The prairie was what was "getting" Ida. She hated it. She loathed its monotony. Its beauties were quite submerged, in her mind, by the grayness, the listlessness, the flaying heat in summer and the sweeping, uninterrupted cold in winter.

Ida's dreams lay beyond the prairie. She dreamed of mountains tipped in snow that swooped down into green valleys. She dreamed of steamships cleaving through waves. She coaxed her little strip of garden to grow, always with the luxury of tropical gardens in her mind's eye.

In the lonely years upon the lonely moor, Ida had read her fill. Her brothers brought her books from the public library of Topeka, Kansas, when they came home from long runs, and the outside world, therefore, had flowed and seeped into this lonely shanty by the railroad track.

Sometimes Ida stood at the door to wave to her brothers and watched the passenger express trains swoop by on their way out to the big cities.

To the travelers who glimpsed her from their sleeping cars or from the dining cars, she was only a lonely prairie girl standing in her doorway. Nothing of her heart ache or heart beat or heart loneliness was registered into the picture except by the bleak horizon flowing endlessly behind the shanty, or by the droop of Ida's eyelids which, however, were not discernible to the traveling public, nor, indeed, even if it had beheld Ida closer, would it have paused to understand.

The Prairie. The Prairie. The Prairie. Ida had read somewhere that unless you watch out, the ocean will crack your bones and eat you. Ida felt that way about the prairie. She hated it. She cried salt tears into her lonely pillow nights, with hating it. She grew into her lovely young womanhood full of the bitterness of this hatred of her loneliness.

People in Eaton declared Ida was becoming queer. Her brothers, great, clumsy fellows, more than content with their lot, grew aware of this, too, and tried to divert her.

Tod, the eldest, brought home a radio one night. That jerked the great world closer. Hour after hour, Ida, when her housework was finished and her garden tended and her small store of live stock looked after, sat to the enchantment of this instrument. Voices came to her from the high seas, music drifted into this lonely shanty by the railroad. Out there was a great, great world—free of the taint of monotony.

Poor Ida.

One day her brothers brought home a great big viking of a fellow named Orlaff Brinton. He was half Swede, a civil engineer and a graduate of the University of Iowa. There were irrigation problems in this part of the state that fascinated him. Brinton was a student of prairies, of deserts and of the corollary irrigation problems. His great hands were full of the sinew of energy. His gigantic life task seemed expressed by the powerful thrust of his head and by the gleam in his bright blue eyes.

There was not much preliminary to the thing that happened between Brinton and Ida. They swept headlong into love. The first dinner that Ida prepared for him was an oblation.

Her gray eyes were the windows of a new universe for him.

Brinton, who never did things by half measures, blurted out his entire state of mind and state of heart to her brothers the second evening he was there.

They slapped him on the back and bade him do his best—or his worst.

With Ida it was almost the same. No inhibitions deterred her.

It was a case of sure-fire, first love.

It is doubtful if Brinton ever even asked her to marry him. They were standing out in the pale light of a prairie dusk. A pearl-colored light that flowed over them and wrapped the great horizon and the sleeping country in a mantle of mystery and made the rolling acres seem almost like ocean and the rolling mist like fog.

Suddenly she was in his arms and his kisses against her black lashes and against her black hair and against the delicate line of her cheek were his preamble to the question that he was never to ask except with more kisses.

They were married in Eaton that same week.

It was decided that they would live on in the shanty beside the railroad tracks.

Brinton was as much of the prairie as a sailor is of the sea.

His future lay in studying it, in irrigating it, in conquering it. To stand in that shanty doorway and to contemplate its mystery was to him the key to the universe.

And here is the strange thing.

Suddenly the prairie, to Ida who hated it, became a charmed and insidious thing. Its mysteries came out to her like mice from peep holes. New beauties. New lures. New mystifications.

The prairie became beautiful. The prairie became the scene of her home. The home of her man. The home of her children.

For twelve years of her married life, while her husband has grown more and more into his magnificent task of conquering the prairie, Ida has remained in the shanty, which meanwhile has been built on to and enlarged until it is a mansion big enough to house five children.

Ida loves the prairie. Sometimes, after a hard day's work, she and Brinton arm in arm, stand contemplating it with reverence.

Safe After His Perilous Journey from the Jungles of Burma, Pawa Bestows a Smacking Kiss Upon His Plebeian Bride, Who Outweighs Him by a Mere 2,000 Pounds. Dr. Saw Durnay Po Min, Owner of the Sacred Pachyderm, Is Shown with Pawa (Right) and the Latter's Mate, Minkolee, After Their Safe Arrival in America. At Right: A Religious Procession in Burma with Elephants Decked Out in Royal Trappings.

"OBSERVE the pinkish cast to his white ears! See the grayish white head. Note the white eyes rimmed with pink—yes, he's a true albino, one of the rare and sacred pachyderms of Burma."

The little group of solemn-eyed scientists gathered closely about a small, mild-mannered elephant, talking excitedly. The ponderous little beast had just been lifted from the hold of the Atlantic transport liner, Minnetonka, and deposited with much ceremony on the flooring of a New York shipping pier.

Grouped about him were his owner, Dr. Saw Durnay Po Min and his six white-turbaned Burmese keepers, who would sacrifice their lives to protect the exalted creature. Thus did Pawa, king of his kind, valued at $1,000,000, arrive in America. He is the second sacred white elephant ever to land on the shores of the Western continent.

The scientists, representing prominent zoological societies and museums, went over Pawa with a microscope. They were almost as impressed as a Buddhist native of Burma, who worships the white elephant as God, would have been. Dr. Raymond L. Ditmas, of the New York Zoological Gardens, said Pawa was the pinkest white elephant and the best all-around specimen he had ever seen.

Pawa's journey halfway around the world from Burma to New York was a honeymoon trip. It was fraught with perils. Although only eight years old Pawa has had an exciting life.

He has been smuggled through Burmese cities under cover of night and numerous blankets, and he has been watched by keepers night and day to keep him from being poisoned. Just before leaving Burma he was betrothed to a female elephant utterly strange to him. Finally, he had to run past the great army of spies who sought his destruction.

This sounds fantastic, but it's true. Pawa was discovered in the jungles of Burma by his owner, Dr. Min. In that land when a man tries to take such a rare creature from the country, both man and beast are marked for destruction.

But Dr. Min risked it to exhibit Pawa to English and American scientists and—because of the lure of good American dollars. After being shown in the States, the elephant will be taken back to a part of India, where his owner will be safer than in Burma. There the natives, Dr. Min hopes, will shower gifts of money, gold, and precious gems for a chance to worship his elephantine lordship.

And now as to Pawa's own story. In 1919, when he was a mere wisp of a lad weighing a scant half ton, he was captured by Dr. Min with a herd of one hundred other elephants at Tongu, fifty miles inland from Pegu, on the Irrawaddy River.

He was by his mother's side, and at first his rare peculiarity was not noticed, because he had been wallowing in the mud and was slightly soiled. Not until several days later, after most of the elephants in the herd had been sold down the river for heavy trucking, did a keeper come running excitedly to Dr. Min.

The result was a close examination of Pawa's pink eyes, a good bath to reveal his hide, and much hushing, shushing and secrecy all around. A special cabin and small stockade were built for the animal, blankets were thrown over him when he went outside his house. Only the British Government was told of the rare find, and it promised to keep the secret.

The reason for the concealment was that if Burmese officials and priests had heard of little Pawa they would have seized him straightway and made him a chief figure in the church rituals. The Burmese believe that every time a white elephant is born the soul of Buddha comes to life in him. Scientists tell us that only one white elephant is born every fifty years, so the Burmese get little opportunity to celebrate the return of their prophet.

The natives also believe that good crops are insured and storms are warded off by the presence of such a sacred creature. But Dr. Min is a Christian Burmese, so he saw only the scientific, and commercial possibilities of Pawa.

For six years the baby white elephant lived in his secret stockade, seen only by the keepers whom Dr. Min could trust. These Burmese, although they were true believers, were prevailed on to keep the secret because of the enormous spiritual benefits their close association with the animal would bring them.

Finally, Dr. Min decided to take him out of the country. British scientists wanted to see him, and the British Government finally gave the word for his removal, providing it was done secretly and under cover of darkness.

This was accomplished by long night journeys, the small Pawa lining up with a herd of ordinary elephants, and proceeding stolidly along the road. In the daytime he was confined in specially improvised thatch houses.

Before every meal his food dole of three bales of hay, several bushels of potatoes and numerous loaves of native bread soaked in water was carefully gone over by the attendants in a search for poison.

But finally Pawa reached the last stage of his journey by land and was deposited in a ship's hold along with another young elephant, a female, Minkolee by name. Then his actual honeymoon trip began.

The first part of it, to England, was not a success. Whether Pawa (his name, by the way, means Mr. White) missed the fresh, sweet smells of his leafy stockade back in Burma, whether the rolling of the sea upset his tummy, or whether he just naturally felt superior to his bride, Dr. Min does not know.

His mate, Minkolee, is an ordinary gray Indian elephant, two years older than Pawa and one ton heavier. Perhaps she tried to lord it over Pawa because of her advanced age. At any rate, he arrived in London a very cranky pachyderm.

There, however, he received all the special attention from scientists his elephant's ego could ask. And when Dr. Min left London for America, he came armed with documents from the head of the London Zoo asserting that Pawa was the finest specimen of his class ever seen in the British capital.

On the journey to New York Pawa and his companion were not lowered into the vessel's hold. A special cabin was built for them on the forecastle of the Minnetonka. On the day he arrived in New York a large delegation of zoologists and newspapermen was on hand to greet him.

He created a coarse and raucous scene when his Burmese keepers attempted to strap large canvas slings under his middle, but the work was finally accomplished. The ship's lifting crane hoisted him high in the air, nose down, then finally deposited him squarely on his four pudgy feet on the wharf.

"Pawa created a coarse and raucous scene when large canvas slings were strapped under his middle, but the work was finally accomplished. The ship's lifting crane hoisted him high in the air, nose down, then deposited him squarely on his four pudgy feet on the wharf."

Native Burmese Family Who Believe That the Soul of Buddha Returns to Earth in the Guise of a White Elephant. Scientists Claim That Only One White Elephant Is Born Every Fifty Years.

The ship reporters were critical; they suggested he was just a dirty pinkish-gray undersized elephant. But Dr. Min pointed out that he was dirty from the journey and that he would be much whiter when washed. This turned out to be true.

The scientists pointed out that the term "white elephant" was something of an exaggeration. True white elephants are not milky white, but a pale grayish white. Their marks of distinction lie in their pink and white eyes and in the pinkish pigmentation which shows under the skin, especially that of the ears.

Although history records the landing of one white elephant on American shores before Pawa, the latter is said to be much the superior beast. The first albino was brought across the seas by P. T. Barnum, celebrated showman.

This creature was named Toung Taloung, and he arrived in 1884. Barnum chartered a tug to meet the vessel carrying him as it entered New York harbor. When the circus-owner and his entourage, which included many of the famous newspaper men of the day, first saw their distinguished guest, they were taken aback.

He was not as white as their imaginations had pictured him. Later, when he was exhibted as one of the main attractions of Barnum's circus, he appeared considerably whiter. This led many imaginative persons to assume that a coat of whitewash had been applied to his royal hide. Barnum's sensitive showman's soul was revolted by these aspersions cast on his costly attraction; he denied the allegations hotly and produced documents to prove the beast genuine.

The peculiar thing about it was that Toung Taloung was a true white elephant, but so great was Barnum's reputation as a trickster that many people refused to believe his earnest assertions.

In Siam the discovery of a white elephant means the declaration of a new legal holiday. Even as recently as 1855, the captor of such a beast became the nation's hero. He was at once made a member of the Siamese nobility, given exemption from taxes or the possibility of capital punishment, wedded to one of the ruler's daughters and given as much silver coin "as he could push with his little finger on a smooth surface."

Romance of Valentino's First Bride and a REAL Sheik

Will Winsome Jean Acker Wed---or Jilt---the Fascinating Egyptian Fakir Who Once Punctured Her Great Lover's Arm With a Needle?

By ANGELA CLAREHAVEN.

FIRST, she fell in love with a screen sheik. They were married, quarreled, divorced. Then he died. And NOW—! Will petite Jean Acker, Rudolph Valentino's first bride, wed a real desert prince?

You have me there. But I have heard chums of jaunty little Jean murmur: "My dear, it's a real love match. Mark my words! He'll sweep her off her feet." On the other hand, more dispassionate observers have violently pooh poohed the notion. "Marry? He? Not likely! And, anyhow, she wouldn't consent."

The mysterious "he" of all these conjectures is Rahmin Bey, swarthy, stalwart, Orientally handsome "fakir," who came to America last year, and remained here lengthily, despite the beckoning of Sahara sands and suns. Perhaps his loitering on this side of the Atlantic is due to the grip that someone has exerted on his heart. Perhaps not.

Uncertified as the report of Rahmin's and Jean's possible betrothal is there appears to be enough speculative material in it for interested psychological observation and comment. In laymen's terms, boiled down to one pert and pertinent query, this is:

"Has Jean Acker acquired a sheik complex?"

Anyway, the facts are as follows:

On the marquee of a Chicago vaudeville theatre appeared in sparkling electrics the names of the sheik and the actress.

Rahmin Bey played host to Miss Acker at various luncheon and dinner parties, Chicago restaurateurs say.

They took long, silent walks together.

They had met, it seems, at Texas Guinan's night club in New York City. Thereby hangs an extraordinary tale, in which Rudy Valentino figured. The movie sheik, on his last, fateful visit to the metropolis, got in touch with the first Mrs. Valentino the minute he set foot inside the Pennsylvania Station.

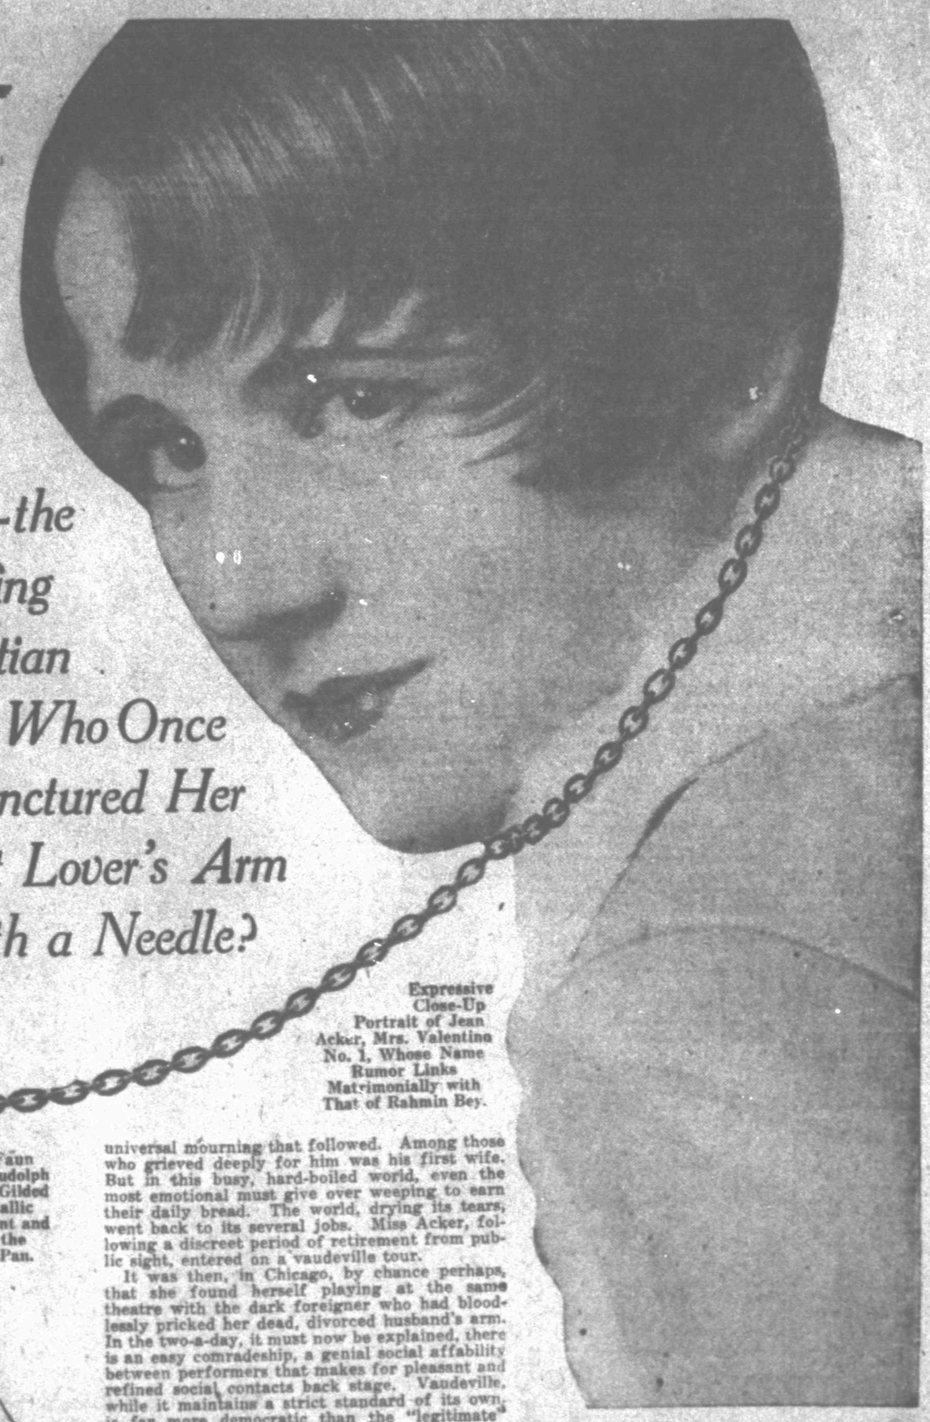

You remember, of course, their firecracker romance several years ago out Hollywood-way. Rudy was just beginning to make a name for himself. For years he had been slugging along, usually cast as "heavies," or a minor, but spotless, characters in support of Clara Kimball Young and Katherine MacDonald.

He met the fascinating Miss Acker and married her. But the ceremony didn't "take" as far as duration was concerned, and presto! there was a divorce action. The two went their separate ways, the girl to the vaudeville stage; the man into the arms of a second wife, Natacha Rambova.

The passage of years had healed whatever ears were left in the hearts of Rudy and Jean. They felt, I suppose, "like old friends," and it s certain that in the weeks just preceding his eath he found warm companionship and amiable mirth in Jean's company. I saw them one ight at a play. There was nothing the least ushy about their conduct—they simply seemed ke two affable kids off on a quiet lark.

George S. Ullman, biographer of Valentino, ight have something to contribute at this oint. Mr. Ullman, personal manager to the ead Great Lover, says the eyes of Jean probably first looked into those of Rahmin at Miss Guinan's supper club. Valentino and his divorced, but pally, spouse were seeking diversion among the twinkling lights. They scraped together a party of friends, including Ullman, and made for the Guinan club.

Rahmin Bey, it developed, was another guest there. Valentino's dusky brown eyes twinkled with interest when he heard of the foreigner's presence; those of Miss Acker gleamed appreciatively; for both had heard of the Bey's "psychic" powers. A short time before, newspapers had blazoned forth Rahmin's "fakirism"; its trials, perils and physical tortures, and the impressions which these had made on New York physicians, surgeons, scientists, mystic cultists and the general public.

Among the Bey's feats was the insertion into his person of pins and needles; the ability to go into a "cataleptic trance" while a heavy iron plate was lewered onto his chest and pounded vigorously with hammers, and his immersion in the Hudson in a sealed casket. While lots of people were unimpressed by these achievements, terming them delusions of the senses, many others were awe-struck by the Bey's powers of "mind over matter."

Polite Mr. Valentino was too well-bred to express any skepticism he may have felt about these manifestations, and the personality of the real sheik attracted him. So when he was asked to grant permission for Rahmin to experiment on him, he courteously acceded.

The Bey approached the table where the Valentino-Acker party was seated. His dark, glowing eyes swept the company; rested intensely but lightly on Miss Acker's cropped pate with Oriental gravity and respect.

Drawing a glistening needle from the fold of his "abba," the "fakir" thrust the sharp point firmly into the bronzed arm of the Great Lover, and held it there for a moment. There was no expression of pain, or even surprise, on Rudy's face. He looked as calm as crystal. Then when the Bey withdrew the needle, to the astonishment of all the rest, no spurt of blood ensued from what should have been a wound-puncture.

"Well! Isn't that marvelous!" Jean Acker exclaimed. The others echoed her surprise, and bent over the unscarred Valentino arm. The Bey, with impassive dignity characteristic of his race, stood more or less at attention in the background. He neither smiled nor spoke—(he can, despite his foreign birth, speak excellent English.) Nor did he, bystanders remarked, do more than glance now and then at little Jean. But when he did look in her direction, a curious, breathless stir of something unspoken passed through the crowd.

Composite Photo of Rudy, Showing How Much He Would Have Resembled the Bey if He Had Worn Moustache and Chin Whiskers with His Screen Sheik-Apparel.

Valentino's party at Miss Guinan's was one of his last on earth. A few weeks later, he succumbed to the dread intestinal malady that cut short his career. All the world remembers the universal mourning that followed. Among those who grieved deeply for him was his first wife. But in this busy, hard-boiled world, even the most emotional must give over weeping to earn their daily bread. The world, drying its tears, went back to its several jobs. Miss Acker, following a discreet period of retirement from public sight, entered on a vaudeville tour.

It was then, in Chicago, by chance perhaps, that she found herself playing at the same theatre with the dark foreigner who had bloodlessly pricked her dead, divorced husband's arm. In the two-a-day, it must now be explained, there is an easy comradeship, a genial social affability between performers that makes for pleasant and refined social contacts back stage. Vaudeville, while it maintains a strict standard of its own, is far more democratic than the "legitimate" stage.

It is no uncommon thing for a humble trapezist or animal trainer to get on friendly terms with a great star from the speaking stage or prima donna from the Imperial Opera House at Warsaw. And this goes with additional force for two stellar individuals, whose names are bracketed in lights with equal prominence. So there is, you see, nothing at all mysterious about the acquaintanceship of Miss Acker and the man from the Far East. Followed that series of informal luncheons and walks and drives which first set the gossip-top spinning—"Jean Acker's seeing a good deal of Rahmin Bey!"

As is usual in such cases, far-fetched, harmless, even absurd, rumors began to fly about. Some impressionable souls went so far as to hint that the Bey was exercising over the sensitive-minded Jean strange hypnotic influences; that, in order to win her regard, he was marshaling his powers of fascination.

Less flighty observers maintained that the material facts were enough to prove the sheik's respectful attachment to the petite actress. Seen together, each gave every evidence of being enthralled by the personality of the other. And what a charmingly contrasted couple they made—he, tall, dominant, sombre and exotic; she, tiny, girlish, mercurial and flapperish!

But there is one hitch in the predicted romance of Jean and Rahmin. When the Bey first came to America, he gave out an interview in which he sketched his "ideal woman." She must be, he stressed, a "nice blonde." "And if I marry," the Bey boomed to the assembled reporters, "my bride must use no rouge." No, he didn't mind bobbed hair, although he wasn't especially crazy about it.

There were other stipulations. Mrs. Rahmin Bey-to-be must wash the sheik's linen, be deft in the cuisine, cook with especial care those dishes which appealed to a Bey-ish palate—and finally consent to be left in the lurch when her husband wearied of her!

Now, it takes no mind-reader to realize that Miss Acker fulfills none of these specifications. She is not a blonde. Her head is shingled. She hates cooking, although she does it well. And as for that slave stuff about husbandly superiority—that would be "out" before it was mentioned.

For Jean Acker is decidedly a modern maiden, and even if she were in the midst of a violent infatuation, you may be sure she would insist on complete personal independence as a wifely right.

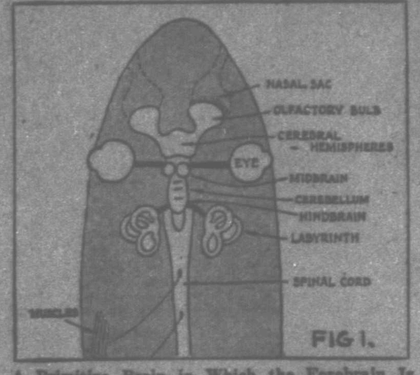

There may prove to be three answers to the question: "Has Jean Acker a sheik complex?" Those are: "Yes," "Yes" and "No."

Yes, if she decides to stay faithful to the memory of the screen sheik; yes, if she finally "falls for" the real desert article in the form of Rahmin Bey. No, if she casts in her lot with a matrimonial partner who is a blonde Nordic with a pronounced disdain for slave bracelets, caveman caresses and ships of the desert. Which would pretty well let the Bey out.

HOW Science Has SOLVED Old MYSTERIES of MAN'S BRAIN

A Primitive Brain in Which the Forebrain Is Mainly Concerned with Smell, the Midbrain with Vision and the Hindbrain (Labyrinth) with Balancing.

A and B Are the Areas in Forebrain for Stimulating the Sense of Smell and Causing Movements That Are Guided by the Midbrain Through C. The Letter D Shows the Path Taken by Smell Impulses That Stimulate the Digestive Organs (by the route of E and G) and the Appetite Which Intensifies the Stimulus F to the Cerebral Cortex.

Enormous Expansion of the Neopallium in the Human Brain. The Newly Developed Areas, F, P and T, Are Closely Related to the Functions of Sensory Discrimination and Control Through the Cerebellum of Muscular Tone and Mechanisms of Skill.

THE human brain is the greatest automatic machine. The mysteries of this marvelous mechanism have now been so thoroughly investigated that such terms as "memory," "imagination" and "originality" are used in somewhat the same mechanical sense as the "compression," "exhaust" or the "explosion" in the engine of a motor car.

As a result of long-continued search on the origin, evolution and function of the brain scientists have recently made some strange new discoveries about man's thinking machine, which G. Elliot Smith, Professor of Anatomy, University of London, describes in the Scientific American.

"The leading part of the brain (cerebral hemispheres)," says Prof. Smith, "is at first essentially an instrument for the reception of impressions that provoke a consciousness of smell, and for enabling his senses to influence the animal's behavior. By smell the earliest vertebrates discovered their food and instinctively appreciated its qualities, and distinguished friends from enemies . . . But if the sense of smell was at first the obtrusive element in consciousness and the chief stimulus to action, its influence was limited by the fact that it conveyed to the animal no clue as to the position in space or the movements of the exciting cause of the sensations it provoked.

"Vision provides the qualities that smell so conspicuously lacks—the sense of spatial relationships and appreciation of movement. Smell calls to its help the senses of vision and touch and what may be called the labyrinth-sense. By this is meant the information conveyed by an organ (labyrinth) specially developed to appreciate wave movements and other disturbances in the water. It is the instrument that eventually (in particular when the animal leaves the water and adopts a terrestrial mode of life) develops into the organ of hearing."

Prof. Smith explains how the fundamental plan of the brain is determined by these facts. "Smell takes control of the forebrain, and dominates behavior," he says. "The nerves from the eyes convey impulses to the midbrain which is put in direct connection with the motor nuclei (in brain and spinal cord) that activate the muscles and effect the movements of the animal.

"But all movements influence the equilibrium of the body, and a complex mechanism (cerebellum) develops in connection with the nerves coming from the labyrinth, which is concerned with the business of regulating the tone of the muscles that automatically maintain the animal's posture, when the activities of the forebrain and midbrain provoke movements. Hence, there is developed in the midbrain an important instrument, known as the red nucleus, which controls the tonic activities of the muscles—those automatic reactions which maintain the animal's posture—and is under the influence of both the midbrain and the cerebellum . . . ."

When a primitive fish-like animal first left the water to adopt a terrestrial mode of life, an entirely new mode of locomotion had to be adopted, which, as Prof. Smith points out, involved profound alterations in the brain. At first the animal used its newly adapted four limbs in a clumsy and inefficient way. Greater control over the limbs was attained as the result of the growth and development of the cerebral hemispheres. This led to the emergence of reptiles, whose movements are both more rapid and more precise than those of an amphibian.

One of the Human Brain's 9,200,000,000 Nerve Cells Magnified Thousands of Times. Each Cell Is So Placed That Its Frayed End Almost Touches the Unfrayed End of Another. Thought Impulses, Believed to Be Electrical, Pass Through the Cells Until They Reach the Proper Muscle and Set the Body in Motion.

"With the cultivation of a greater degree of control over the limbs," Prof Smith continues, "there emerged from the reptile type two kinds of vertebrates distinguished by exceptional degrees of skill. One was a group of highly modified creatures—birds—whose muscular skill is most distinctively displayed in their ability to fly, an extreme form of specialization, both of limbs and brain. The other group, mammals, retained much more of the primitive structure and developed their powers more evenly and without such a high degree of specialization . . . .

"It is significant that in both these higher groups the attainment of greater skill confers upon the creature the ability to raise its body away from the ground. This in turn is associated with an increase of the body temperature and the development of a heat-regulating mechanism in the brain; also of body coverings (feathers or hair) to minimize heat loss. Warmth promotes tactile discrimination and this in turn helps in the attainment of muscular skill.

"The new powers of locomotion in both birds and mammals were intimately associated with the enhancement of the functions of the forebrain. The latter acquired a much greater control over the motor mechanisms of the rest of the brain than it had in any of the lowlier groups. This was due to the development of greater representation of the senses of vision and touch than the cerebral hemispheres had in the lowlier vertebrates."

Prof. Smith says that this was especially the case in mammals, in whose forebrain there developed what is known as the "neopallium," an area that gave vision, touch, hearing and in fact, all the senses, much fuller representation in what was originally the olfactory part of the brain.

"The development of the neopallium," he says, "confers upon mammals the possibility of the attainment of much greater skill and adaptability than any other living creatures acquire . . . .

"It is found in examining the cerebral cortex of man that a very large part of the neopallium is in functional connection with the cerebellum, or with some part of the motor apparatus in the lower part of the brain and spinal cord. The attainment of muscular skill (and with it the enhanced ability to learn by experience) is one of the fundamental purposes of the highly developed type of brain. Man differs from all other living to this skill by freeing the hands and learning to perform skilled movements of infinite variety and complexity. . . Hence, it is perhaps no exaggeration to say that high intelligence is largely one of the results of the attainment of muscular skill."

However, Prof. Smith declares that the development of skillful hands, out of which emerges this higher knowledge and intelligence, and the erect attitude, which by freeing the hands from the function of locomotion enables them to be devoted entirely to skilled movement and tactile discrimination, are not the primary cause of man's high state of intelligence. "They are merely," he says, "the means used by the developing brain to achieve these great results. The erect attitude is rather one of the expressions of the enhancement of muscular skill; but in turn it becomes a means of still further adding to this skill by freeing the hands and enabling man to adopt an upright posture. When this happens he is able the better to use his powers of vision, and to bring his body into a position adapted for the display of skill.

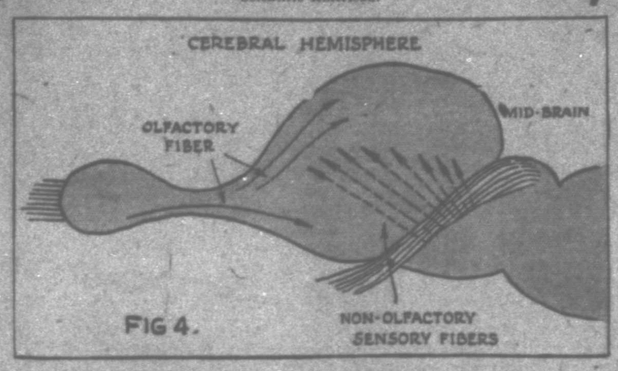

"In mammals vision has acquired full representation in the neopallium, which controls the consciously skilled movements of the body, and in addition is the chief instrument of the mind. Hence, vision can become the dominant sense, as it did in man's ancestors, without impairing in any respect the efficiency of the forebrain—the cerebral hemispheres. The cultivation of vision in a mammal, in fact, provides a most powerful stimulus for the enhancement of the powers of the forebrain itself and the growth of intelligence. It becomes the dominant factor in stimulating the development of the cerebral cortex, in the way that leads to the emergence of human characteristics, the use of visual guidance in the cultivation of skill, the full exercise of the discrimination and the increase of understanding.

"It is found in examining the cerebral cortex of man that a very large part of the neopallium is in functional connection with the cerebellum, or with some part of the motor apparatus in the lower part of the brain and spinal cord. The attainment of muscular skill (and with it the enhanced ability to learn by experience), is one of the fundamental purposes of the highly developed type of brain."

Professor Smith explains that with the progressive development of the brain there is built up in the central nervous system a complex system of automatic mechanisms to regulate the posture of the body.

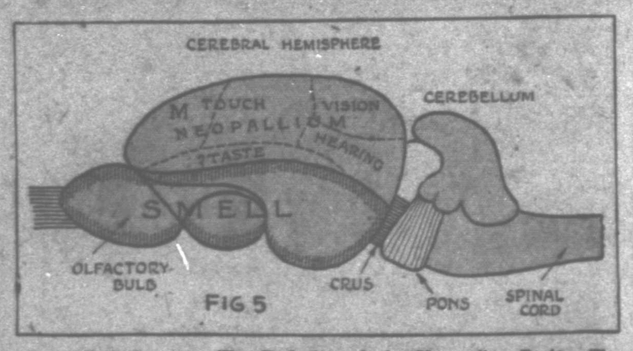

"The essential instrument in effecting this," he says, "is the labyrinth which records the position of the body and its movements in space, so that if the animal's equilibrium is disturbed, this mechanism operating through the mid-brain and the hind-brain, will restore the equilibrium. It it helped by other mechanisms, sensory nerves in the soles of the feet, in the skin on the sides of the body, as well as the nerves that carry impulses from the muscles of the neck.

"Man differs from all other living creatures in the range of his aptitude for education, and for learning to perform skilled movements of infinite variety and complexity. His understanding of the nature of things and the nature of the forces acting around him, is largely acquired by experiment; and during the process of experimentation, understanding of the meaning of things is acquired. It is perhaps no exaggeration to say that high intelligence is largely one of the results of the attainment of muscular skill."

Thrilling "RUSHES" for PLATINUM

THE lure of platinum has replaced the lure of gold. Let platinum be discovered in any part of the world and a platinum rush follows with the same enthusiasm which inspires men to risk their lives to dig gold. The remarkable popularity of platinum has started a world-wide search for the metal. The regions in which it is found have become enormous sources of wealth. The search for the precious metal has never been carried on so vigorously and over so wide a territory as it is today.

In the past five years the world's production of platinum has been practically doubled in amount and more than quadrupled in value. There has been a rapid recovery since the war, but the total production of platinum is today only about one-third of the maximum in pre-war days. The situation is largely due to the failure of the Russian output. The world is looking today chiefly to South Africa for platinum.

A careful search is being made in many parts of the United States at present for platinum, with considerable success. Last year the total production amounted in all to over 41,000 ounces, valued at about $5,000,000. Crude platinum is being mined in California, Oregon and Alaska, although the deposits have not been sufficient to start a platinum rush comparable to the familiar gold rushes. Meanwhile the United States is a large importer of platinum. In 1925 alone more than 100,000 ounces of platinum were brought in, valued at over $11,000,000.

Canada is today producing large quantities of platinum, chiefly in British Columbia, and it is expected that the search for deposits now in progress will result in the discovery of new fields. The most important deposits of platinum in South America are found at present in Columbia. Upward of 50,000 ounces of platinum are produced.

Platinum is used for a great variety of purposes in the United States at present, and the demand is rapidly increasing. Some 13 per cent of all the platinum consumed is used in dentistry, and about the same amount in the electrical industries. About half this quantity is used chemically. By far the largest demand for platinum, however, comes from the jewelry industry, which consumes regularly more than 60 per cent of the supply.

Weather Balloons

A NEW idea in the floating of pilot balloons, tried out recently by the United States Weather Bureau, is to send up a man in an ordinary free balloon, carrying with him a number of the little ones, to be liberated at every 1,000 feet of elevation up to about two miles.

When this is done, the drift of the pilot balloons at various heights is observed from the ground with a theodolite, the direction of the wind and its velocity at different levels being thereby determined.

How Lost Objects May Be Located by "Reading" the Muscles

PEOPLE have often wondered how it was that a magician or some other individual gifted with what he sometimes prefers to call his sixth sense can locate a concealed object. The answer to the question, according to Science and Invention, is that the demonstrator employs what is known to the profession as "muscle reading." It is considerably easier to explain the effect than it is to go out and produce it. The latter requires many months of practice with a multitude of persons.

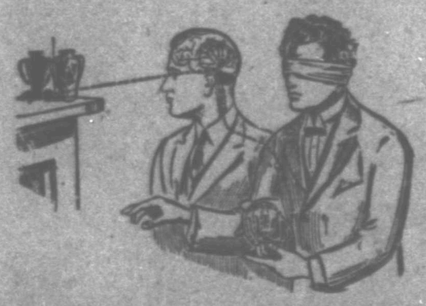

Reading the Muscles by Holding the Subject's Wrist to Feel the Muscular Twitches as the Individual Approaches the Hidden Object.

If the person demonstrating the effect informs his spectator as to what he is going to do, the spectator invariably tries to trick the demonstrator. While this effort at trickery is sometimes successful, it more frequently enables the muscle reader to locate the concealed object with even greater facility.

There are several methods at the disposal of the demonstrator of muscle reading in one of which he may lightly touch the fingertips of his subject.

Another method available is to have the subject grasp the muscle reader's wrist.

The performer must be on the alert for many things. He must be able to sense a slight guiding movement toward the concealed object, or a tug away from the concealed object, and he must know by a sort of an innate sense whether the person who concealed the object is deliberately trying to dissuade the muscle reader from the place of concealment of the object, or whether he is subconsciously guiding him to the object. He must be careful to register the kind of breathing which is normal to the spectator and how this breathing will change if the demonstrator approaches the concealed object.

When an Individual Conceals an Object and Later Approaches It the Brain Subconsciously Causes the Muscles of the Arm and Finger-Tips to React. It Is by Means of These Muscular Contractions That the Demonstrator of "Muscle Reading" Claims to Be Able to Locate Hidden Objects. The Dotted Lines Show the Path of the Impulses from the Brain to the Finger-Tips.

One can obtain an idea as to how broad this field may become by the following test: A gold coin was concealed in an officer's hat at a busy intersection in a large eastern city. After guiding the automobile through the streets, the "muscle reader" although blindfolded, was said to have located the hidden coin.

Turning Vines Into Furniture

WHILE most people are familiar with rattan furniture there are very few who know where this curious plant is grown or how important is the industry of growing and preparing it for commerce. Rattan belongs to the palm family and resembles the familiar tropical trees. There are about 50 species of rattan, all characterized by long, slim stalks consisting of a succession of nodes and internodes. The latter vary in length. The plant itself grows to an immense length—sometimes more than 800 feet. It resembles a vine rather than a tree. Its leaves terminate either in a spine or a tendril and their surface is covered with a number of short thorns or prickles.

Rattan has very small flowers, either pink or pale green in color. The fruit is extremely hard, looks like a pineapple, and is used for manufacturing, small articles. The plant flourishes only in the tropic zone in very warm and humid climates. It is found in the Islands of the Sonde and the Molukkas, in Borneo, Celebes, the Philippines, Burma, Australia and parts of Africa. The only plants employed in the industry at present, however, are those of the Malaysia and the peninsula of Malakka. Dragon's blood, the dark red resin used in pharmacy and in the varnish industry, is made from one species of rattan.

When the plants are mature they are harvested and the canes stripped of their leaves and cut into sections which vary in length according to the species. Their usual length is from 16 to 28 feet. Every effort is taken to have as little difference as possible in the diameter of the two ends of each section. The species that have a hard silicious covering are subjected to repeated twisting and bending in all directions to remove this coat and render them more flexible. The sections are next sorted according to size and color, after which the finer pieces are washed. The sections used in making baskets have to be perfectly sound, very flexible and strong. The color of the rattan used in basket making, however, is not so important, while that used in making seats for chairs, etc., must be free from mold and all of the same color.

What the Inventors Are Doing

HOUSE numbers in paint containing a radium substance and placed on the sidewalk where they can easily be seen at night have been devised by a Western inventor. They are said to glow with sufficient light to be plainly legible in darkness and are readily seen by day. Inclosed in neat holder, they present an attractive appearance.

A new invention in pie pans comprises the old pan with a deflecting wall of a circumferential construction that deflects the juices from the pie and prevents it from entering between the pan and the pie. Adjacent to the deflecting wall is a hollow part that catches the juices so deflected and prevents the juice from entering the oven of the stove.

A three-wheeled automobile has been newly patented by Hjalmar Kinvall, of Leipzig-Stotteritz, Germany. It is of small size, with a collapsible body that can be folded conveniently for housing in a limited space. The two side panels are so bent as to meet at the front end of the machine, which is supported by the driving and steering wheel. The motor is carried on the frame of the front wheel. The driving wheel (controlled by a steering handle) is pivotally connected to the front end of the body of the car.

A novel decoy duck has the advantage of being collapsible, so that many such decoys can be packed in a small carrier for transportation. The body is of light canvas, cut in a design to imitate the shape of a duck, and so stitched as to form a hollow body with head, neck and extended tail. The body thus formed is slipped over an oblong board which serves as a float.

A "head-protector" for berths on sleeping cars has been newly patented by Max Levi, a Baltimore man. It is meant to safeguard the passenger in case of collision. When the device is not in use, it can be folded flat against the frame, and the whole affair stowed away with the mattress and bedclothes in the closed berth overhead.

Just What Is Wrong With This Picture?

HERE is a scene in a busy shoe-shining shop with which you are very familiar. Therefore, you should have no difficulty in finding each of the seventeen errors that the artist has made.

As one example, you will notice that although the cat's back is humped up in fright over meeting the dog, the artist did not make the hair of the cat's tail stand on end, as you know it does under these circumstances. Now see if you can find the other sixteen mistakes.

Hidden Trees

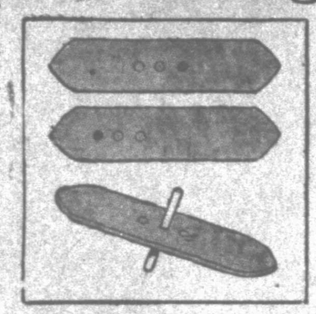

EACH of the following sentences contains the name of a familiar tree. How many of them can you find?

1—Death on the field of honor was a great glory to a knight of old.

2—The runner soon gave up the race as he knew he could not win.

3—It is very annoying to be echoed by a parrot.

The Magic Board

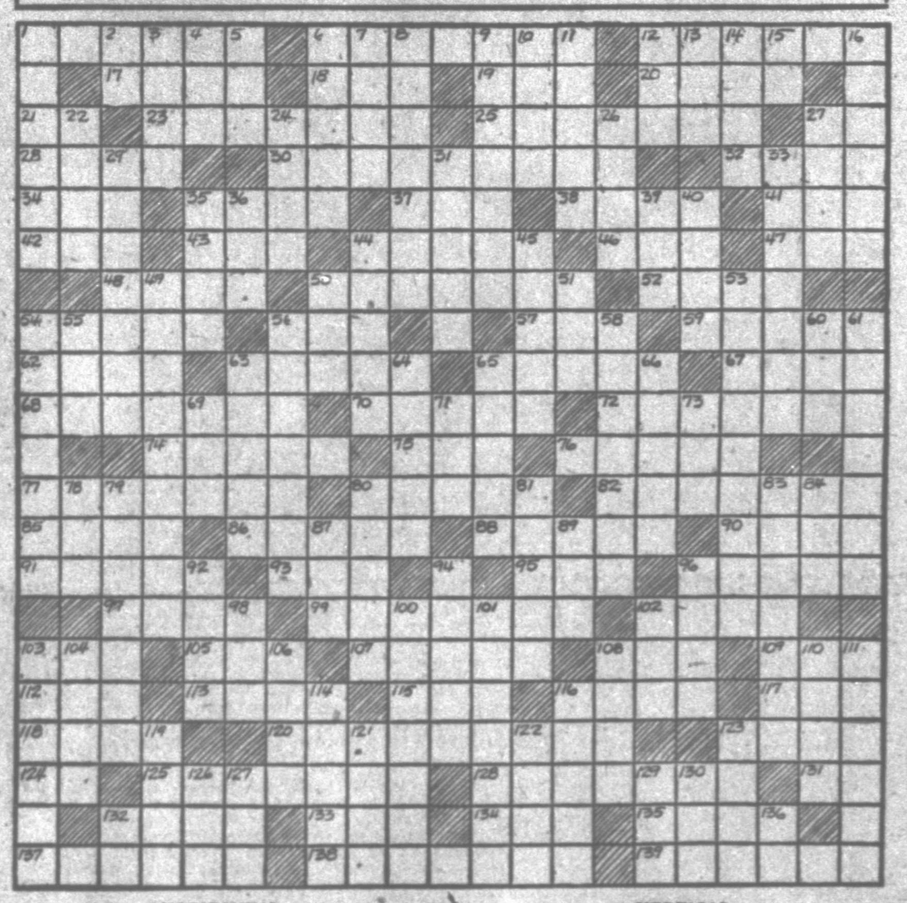

TO make a magic board secure a suitable strip of wood about three-fourths of an inch wide, one-fourth of an inch thick and three to five inches long. Sharpen it to a point at each end. Then bore two holes through the stick with a gimlet as shown by the rings in the top of the drawing and one hole almost through as indicated by the black dot. Now turn the stick over and you will see two holes on the reverse. To the left of these holes bore another hole almost through the stick. Next get a toothpick and your magic board is ready to do its "stuff."

Ask your friends to watch carefully while you place the toothpick in one of the holes, the end one for example. Now wave the board and, presto! the toothpick appears in the middle hole. The secret is this: As you wave the board turn it over so that the toothpick appears to be in the middle hole.

A Puzzle Problem

GRANDPA SMITH is living to a ripe old age and celebrated his birthday yesterday. He has passed one-sixth of his life in childhood and one-twelfth as a youth. After he had lived one-third of his present age he became the father of a son who died when he had reached one-third of his father's age, the latter at that time being exactly halfway through his life journey. How old was Grandpa Smith on his last birthday?

Answer to Last Week's Cross-Word Puzzle

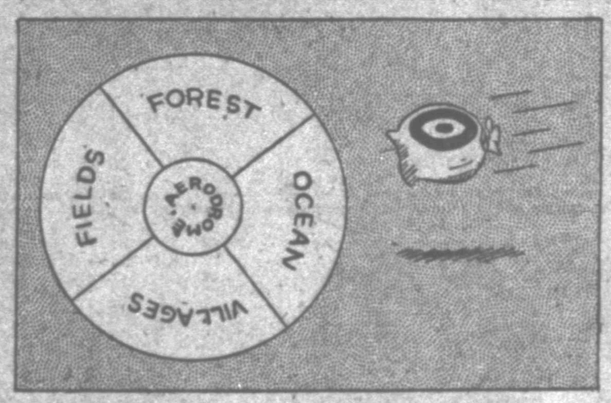

Krazy Kut for Kiddies

CUT out each of these odd-shaped pieces, paste them together correctly on a square of cardboard and you will have a silhouette drawing of a player of a popular Winter sport.

It is suggested to the readers of this page who are interested in collecting these "Krazy Kuts" and preserving them for future entertainment that they can easily do so by cutting out the entire drawing along the border line, mounting it on cardboard and then cutting out the various black pieces. The puzzle can then be joined together at any time.

The Game of Aviator

TO play the game of aviator draw a large circle on the ground and divide it into spaces for the hangar, (centre), fields, villages, forest and ocean. Then draw a straight line six feet from the circle.

A large paper bag, marked with a suitable design, is provided for each player. Each bag is tightly inflated with the breath and tied at the neck. The players stand on the line and all throw their bags at a signal. The bag that lands on the hangar scores six; on a field five and on an ocean four. Bags landing on towns or forest count two against the player. The first player to score an agreed number of points wins.

The Young Astronomer

THREE words are missing from this "jolly jingle" about the foolish young astronomer. Can you supply the correct ones and complete the rhymes?

An Acrostic

THE initial letters of the words that name each of the following objects spell the name of a small evergreen shrub:

Can You Solve These "Changers"?

PUT on your thinking cap and give a few thoughts to finding the correct solution to these twelve "changers." By correctly substituting a certain letter in each of the words that appear below the drawings you will spell the word that is suggested by each of the twelve pictures.

Romantic American Hunt for the Lost "Cup of Love"

Has Cellini's Gorgeous Goblet, 400 Years Astray, Suddenly Turned Up in a New York Auction Shop?

IS the golden Italian goblet that Monsieur S. Cluny, New York gem expert and dealer in antiques, recently bought in an East Side auction shop for a paltry $100 the fabulous "cup of love" of Benvenuto Cellini?

If it is (and the savants who know their Cellini say yes) it is worth $100,000 or more.

For centuries men have searched for Cellini's "cup of love." In recent years they have sought it from Port Said to Shanghai to San Francisco—and at all the other ports of call where one is likely to find objects of art, precious in themselves and carrying dark tales of forgotten days.

About four hundred years ago Benvenuto, the Gorgeous—goldsmith extraordinary, fashioner of sculptures, salt shakers, medallions for popes, cardinals and kings in Italy, braggart and flute player, murderer, great lover, and author of the frankest and spiciest autobiography on record—made his "cup of love."

When it was completed, he adored it, he loved it as he would love a woman. In fact, he dedicated the precious ornament to his mistress, the fair and faithless Angelica.

Angelica is the mystery woman of medieval romance. Benvenuto left no fine authentic record of her such as Leonardo da Vinci created in his aloof and smiling Mona Lisa. He did not fashion her features in bronze, apparently, because his work tended toward the heroic, the florid, the magnificent.

But he described her beautifully in words and when he made the "cup of love" for her he planted in its slender golden sides the rarest gems he could find—a great handful of them. Afterward, strange things happened.

The cup was lost for three hundred years. But always men hoped, because of something Benvenuto had said about it, that it would be found.

A century after, they gathered together in their castles, those bewhiskered, beautifully appareled art patrons of the later Renaissance, and whispered:

"We understand the 'cup of love,' by the great Cellini, has been seen in Cairo. Then, quite suddenly, it was gone."

Two hundred years later a group would form at Duveen's in London, or perhaps at the Sorbonne in Paris. And someone would venture:

"The cup of love—I understand an agent of the Czar has bought it. What a find!"

But the reports were untrue. The cup eluded all searchers until (if the lay sacristans of our art treasures can be believed) Monsieur Cluny, gem expert, wandered past an East Side auction shop.

Monsieur Cluny knows his gems and he is shrewd. But, as it turned out, he was not quite shrewd enough. Ah, there is so much to know in the world! Now Monsieur Cluny raises his hands in a gesture of resignation touched by sadness.

Monsieur Cluny went by the auction shop. He saw in the window an old tarnished goblet. He entered, casually examined several other things, finally allowed his attention to wander back to the goblet.

Behind him was the din of the sale. The droning voice of the auctioneer, the shuffling of the feet of the crowd. Bids in staccato. Canny Hebrew second-hand dealers from Third avenue, buying brass, silver, gold objects, weighing them out on hand scales.

The keen-eyed auctioneer saw Monsieur Cluny's apparently careless handling of the goblet; he put it on the block. The second-hand dealers looked it over and murmured among themselves. They had already appraised it at $35—its value as gold. The stones?

"Oh, they're glass!"

Around the rim of the cup was a double row of green stones sunk flatly into the metal, and festooned beneath these were loops of red stones, interspersed with transparent, glassy squares. Near the ornamented stem were pale and dull yellow nuggets, nearly obscured by the deepening patina.

Ah, Monsieur Cluny is a shrewd man! He had given the goblet a careful appraisal. From his experience with the jeweler's craft he knew that the medieval settings of gems were flat, because our present method of cutting stones had not been developed.

Furthermore, he reasoned, if carbuncles were set flatly, even with a flattening foil, the sparkle and gleam we get in our jewels today could not be expected of gems almost uncut. The color and texture of them strengthened his belief in them, too.

But Monsieur Cluny kept his thoughts and emotions to himself, the auctioneer asked for bids, the little drama was on.

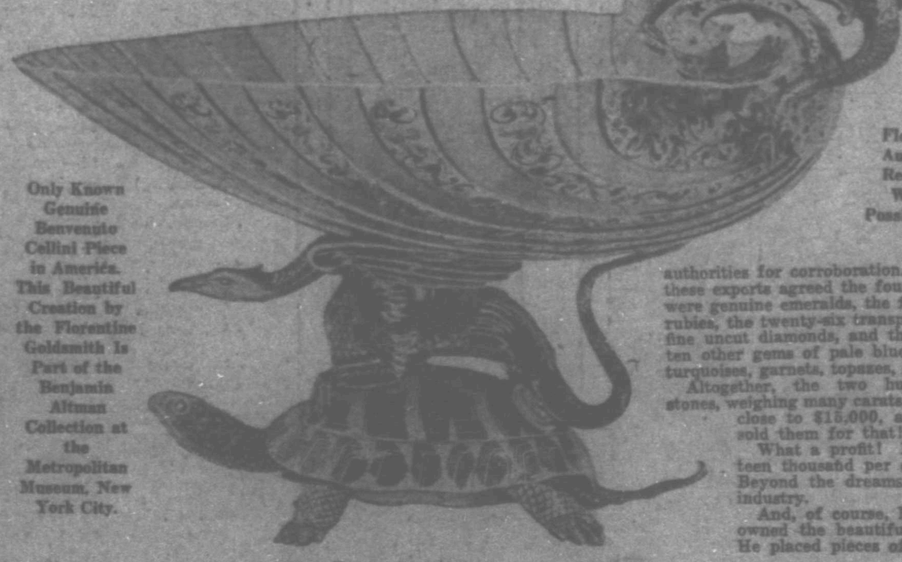

The first offer was $35, the second—from Cluny—was $40, the goblet was put up to $50. The dealers looked at the well-dressed bidder. Evidently a collector; perhaps the thing was worth more. They followed him in his bidding until he offered $100. Then they dropped out and the goblet belonged to Monsieur Cluny.

Cluny carried his treasure home, cleaned it and polished it himself. At once it bore itself with new beauty and distinction. With the removal of the tarnish, fine foliated scrolls in the gold and silver became perceptible between the gleaming stones. Delicately twined vines accentuated the sleek lines of the cup.

With the vanishing of the tarnish new lights had appeared in the stones. Monsieur Cluny was overjoyed—he knew now that they were real.

He dug them from their old blucher settings. Each setting, it turned out, had obscured nearly half the stone beneath the flanges, so that what appeared to be a small jewel in each case came out twice its apparent size.

Monsieur Cluny took the gems to other authorities for corroboration. Without question these experts agreed the fourteen green squares were genuine emeralds, the forty red stones real rubies, the twenty-six transparent, glassy stones fine uncut diamonds, and the two hundred and ten other gems of pale blue, yellow, red, were turquoises, garnets, topazes, sardonyx and so on.

Altogether, the two hundred and ninety stones, weighing many carats, had a market value close to $15,000, and Monsieur Cluny sold them for that!

What a profit! It is—let's see—fifteen thousand per cent profit, isn't it? Beyond the dreams of any captain of industry.

And, of course, Monsieur Cluny still owned the beautifully wrought goblet. He placed pieces of colored glass back

For weeks it stood there, proud, aristocratic, and the dust gathered against the delicately twined vines on its slender body.

Then a stranger entered and asked the price. Monsieur Cluny suggested $250, and the cup, minus its jewels, passed into new hands.

About a month later information was circulated among art collectors all over the world that the famous "cup of love," by Cellini, had been found in America. It was minus the gems that had once graced its sides but, still, it was a true Cellini and priceless. Priceless? Well, not exactly; everything of that nature has a price, as rich American art buyers know, but the price is stupendously high.

The only other Cellini cup in America now is in the Altman collection at the Metropolitan Museum in New York City. That is NOT for sale.

So the word has run round the world that Benvenuto's favorite cup, if not his grandest and most florid one, is found. And men remember how the visionary Florentine said four hundred years ago that the cup should last longer than any of his works because God had blessed it and the scarlet lips of the white Angelica had curved over its mouth.

Romance persists. The "cup of love" is small, but Benvenuto was the great lover of the Middle Ages and his figure dances in memory. Only last year playwrights delved into history to create a play, "The Firebrand," built about the gay brawler and lovemaker.

Cellini met Angelica in Rome while he was at the height of his fame. Perhaps it was the glamour that surrounded the doughty sculptor-warrior that attracted the lady. He was a good soldier (he admits it himself in his memoirs) and when the Constable Duke of Bourbon and the Prince of Orange attacked Rome he was conspicuous in its defence. In fact, he declared that in a sortie he killed both commanding princes with his own hand.

At any rate, when the siege was over he was feted by the citizens of Rome and heralded as one of the saviors of the city. He was the outstanding war hero of his day, his future seemed assured, and he loved Angelica more than he adored any other of the numerous mistresses mentioned in his autobiography.

But Benvenuto had enemies at court; such a fiery soul as he could not keep out of trouble long. He left Rome hurriedly to save his skin, only to return when Pope Clement VII. established him in favor once more and appointed him engraver at the mint.

Angelica, shortly after this, tired of him. Perhaps she was merely fickle, perhaps she wanted a man of more peaceful inclinations. Benvenuto was beyond the managing of any woman. When his enemies became active against him again and his life seemed in danger, she left him. Without her the great lover was in anguish, but he remained in Rome and intrigued against his enemies until he learned that they were planning to clap him into a dungeon. Then he deserted his workshop and rode out of the city at night.

He went to a necromancer, who told him he would find Angelica in Naples. With a price on his head, he traveled there, found her, and they were reconciled. In gratitude, he made the "cup of love." It was a creation of ecstasy; he put into it all his cunning as a goldsmith, all his reawakened joy as a lover. He swore that it was holy and that it should never be lost.

Perhaps he forgot his vow when Angelica deceived him again a short time after. We don't know. We, only know the modern savants of medieval art say the "cup of love," with all its dark and lustrous memories, has been recovered and the search of several centuries is at an end.

And Monsieur Cluny, who is shrewd, believes that in this case he may not have been clever enough, after all.

What, then, will its new owner do with the "cup of love?" Perhaps in time he will tell the world.
