'Killer Bees' Return; Bill Fails

Recession Warnings Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Speculation that the economy is dipping toward a recession was fueled Tuesday by a report that new orders for durable goods declined 8.7 percent in April, the biggest monthly drop in more than 11 years.

Durable goods are those that last more than three years, such as transportation equipment, household furniture and machinery. A sharp decline in such orders could lead to a decline in business activity and a rise in unemployment.

The Commerce Department said total new orders for durable goods were down $7.3 billion in April, or 8.7 percent, to a total of $77 billion. By contrast, orders in March had increased 2.8 percent.

Biggest Since 1968

The decline in April was the largest since January 1968, when orders were off 8.9 percent. Orders declined 8.6 percent in December of 1974 during the deep 1974-1975 recession.

The government said the April decline was widespread throughout the economy, led by the non-electrical machinery industry, steel and other primary metals, fabricated metals and transportation equipment.

Orders for capitals goods used by non-defense industries for production of other goods were down $21.4 billion, or 13.6 percent.

A large number of prominent private economists have predicted the country will enter a recession sometime this year, even though the Carter administration has maintained that one will not occur.

In Line With Statistics

There have been a number of other statistics in recent weeks that also point to an economic slowdown, including a drop in industrial production, sluggish growth in retail sales and personal income and a decline for three consecutive months in the index of economic indicators.

The overall economy, as measured by the gross national product, grew at only an 0.4 percent annual rate in the first three months of the year, which is very close to the recession level.

A recession is said to occur when the economy shows negative growth for a period of two consecutive quarters. Because it takes at least six months, the beginning point cannot be determined until well after a recession has actually started.

Industrials Down

The Commerce Department said orders for non-electrical machiney were down $2.4 billion, or 15.6 percent in April, the sharpest decline of any major industrial category. Orders for steel and other primary metals were off $1.1 billion, or 15.2 percent. Transportation equipment was off $1.9 billion or 9.1 percent.

The department said the April decline in durable goods orders was accompanied by a sharp drop in shipments of $5.4 billion, or 6.9 percent, to a total of $72.4 billion. Shipments of automobiles and automotive equipment was off $1.3 billion, or 10.5 percent,

Because new orders still exceeded shipments, the backlog of orders increased by $4.7 billion, or 1.8 percent, to $257.1 billion in April.

The 2.8 percent increase in orders in March was a revision from an earlier report that orders had decined 2.5 percent. The initial reports are subject to revision, and it is likely the April decline will be revised too.

WELCOME BACK — Sen. Gene Jones, D-Houston, in the light coat, is greeted as he and 11 other Texas state senators returned to the senate chamber Tuesday afternoon after skipping out for five days to block passage of an early presidential primary bill for next year. Another returning senator, Carl Parker, Port Arthur, is to the left of Jones (man in dark tie). The group had been dubbed "Killer Bees" and were the object of a statewide search by law officers. Two-Thirds Vote Eludes Sponsors

AUSTIN (AP) — The dozen Killer Bees of the Texas Legislature, after stinging efforts to pass an early presidential primary bill, swarmed back to the Capitol Tuesday to a heroes' welcome.

The "Buzzin' Dozen," absent five days, were present when the Senate roll was called and claimed victory.

"We think the bill is dead," Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, one of the absentees, said at a news conference.

The Senate gallery burst into applause and cheers as the 12 senators entered the chamber surrounded by wives, friends and media.

After Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby pronounced a quorum for the first time since last Thursday, the Killer Bees were excused to tell their story to a packed room of reporters and photographers.

Bill Approved

Later, the bill the group claimed was being used to enact a separate primary was tentatively approved, 17-14, but because of the closeness of the vote — a two-thirds majority is needed — the bill probably will never clear the Senate. The session ends Monday.

"It's breathing rather slowly right now," said the sponsor, Sen. Bill Meier, D-Euless.

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, said nine of the group stayed together in a friend's home, but he would not disclose where.

"There was one toilet and one phone and half of them kept wanting to trade the toilet for another telephone," Parker said.

The controversial primary measure would establish a March presidential primary separate from the May general party elections.

Common Practice

Parker said Texas historically has changed election rules to benefit favorite sons, including Lyndon Johnson and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

"Here we come along with John Connally," he said of the former Texas governor now seeking the Republican presidential nomination. Connally seved six years as a Democratic Texas governor.

The split primary would have cost Texas $5 million, Parker said.

"We saved the people $1 million for

Chance For More Rain Due Area On Friday

A-J News Services

NATIONAL Weather Service forecasters predict cooler-than-usual temperatures and an above-normal chance for more precipitation in the area through the end of the month — conditions hinted at by recent record rainfall and chilly weather.

The weather service predicts that until June 1 temperatures will range up to 5 degrees cooler than monthly norms of 87-degree highs and lows of 59.

Precipitation chances for the South Plains will be about 20 percent for the next 10 days, which for this time of year is "a little above normal," a weather service spokesman said.

Most Rain Since Tornado

Lubbock, which was inundated Monday after a two-day threat of heavy rains, had its wettest day since May 11, 1970, which was the day of the devastating tornado.

On that day nine years ago, 3.25 inches fell on the city. Monday, 3.23 inches flooded Lubbock in steady downpours that lasted most of the day.

All National Weather Service reporting stations recorded some rain Sunday and Monday, with the greatest amounts noted at Silverton with 3.68, Paducah with 3.14 and Olton with 2.53.

New Fronts Due Friday

Lubbock residents will not have to worry about more rain at least until Friday, however, when new storm fronts will develop.

By late Tuesday, a weak cold front moved across the South Plains, driving before it the tempestuous thunderstorms that have plagued the area and leaving behind fair, dry weather.

The sun will shine across the South Plains through Thursday, and temperatures slowly will warm.

High Today In Upper 70s

The weather service predicts a high today in the upper 70s, with tonight's low in the mid 50s. Thursday afternoon the temperature will climb into the lower 80s.

Easterly winds will fan the area at 5 to 10 mph today.

The extended outlook calls for scattered showers and thunderstorms at the end of the week, with highs in the 80s cooling to the 70s, and lows ranging in the 50s.

As the new cold front pushed the old through the state Tuesday, tornadoes and high winds played havoc with property and lives.

Grain Elevator Razed

The storms toppled a house trailer, destroyed a grain elevator and knocked out power for thousands of Harris County residents as the front pushed through to the coast.

Although the front was near the coast and Louisiana border by Tuesday afternoon, showers and thunderstorms continued across portions of North Central and Northeast Texas.

A grain elevator west of Houston was destroyed by an apparent tornado,sheriff's deputies reported. The facility, owned by the Wise Grain Corp., sustained damage in excess of $100,000.

Two Injured

Harris County sheriff's deputies said a house trailer, also in the western part of the county, was overturned. Two persons were treated for minor injuries.

Houston Lighting & Power Co. reported thousands of homes without power as the storm swept across the area.

A Houston Fire Department spokesman said numerous house fires were started throughout the city because of downed electrical lines.

Up to 5 inches of rain fell in the Austin area and roads were reported under water at one time in Sherman and Breckenridge.

Drinking Age Plan Claimed Stalled By Lubbock Legislator

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

LUBBOCK Rep. Froy Salinas is trying to kill legislation being supported by Texas educators to raise the legal drinking age to 19, the bill's House sponsor says.

Rep. Mike Ezzell of Snyder says the legislation has been bottled up in a subcommittee headed by Salinas since being approved by the Senate in early April.

The last House action on the bill was April 25 when the Liquor Regulation Committee held a hearing on the bill, then sent it to Salinas' subcommittee, Ezzell said.

The Lubbock legislator "just wants to study the bill and refuses to call a meeting of the subcommittee," Ezzell said.

"He's just trying to kill the bill" and doesn't want the House to vote on it, Ezzell said. "If he wants to take credit for killing the bill, that's fine with me."

Salinas defended his actions, saying he's been attempting to get an Attorney General's opinion to determine whether the bill violates equal protection guarantees in the Texas and U.S. Constitutions.

Also, Salinas said, the bill doesn't have the requisite six votes to get out of committee and onto the House floor.

"The question was raised in the subcommittee," Salinas said, about whether the legislation is constitutional because 18-year-olds are classified as adults when it comes to voting and going to prison, but wouldn't be permitted to drink.

Constitutionality Question Raised

Specifically, Rep. Frank Tejeda of San Antonio, a subcommittee member, raised the constitutionality question, Salinas said, as did members of the Liquor Regulation Committee.

However, Ezzell labeled the constitutional question a "smokesscreen" for Salinas' efforts to kill the legislation.

"It's interesting he's the only one who seems to have the concern," Ezzell said. "If that's a problem, other states (that raised the drinking age) have that kind of problem."

The Snyder legislator said he told Salinas he had information on the bill's possible effects on equal protection guarantees, but Salinas "didn't choose to look at" the information.

Past court decisions indicate there would be no constitutional problems if the bill became law, Ezzell said.

"He's had the bill almost a month. Why, all of a sudden is he so concerned with one week left (in the legislative session?" Ezzell asked.

Salinas said he wrote a letter asking for the opinion from Attorney General Mark White the day after the drinking

Furr's Files Bankruptcy Act Plea

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

FURR'S Inc., filed a petition Tuesday for reorganization under Chapter XI of the Bankruptcy Act, but the company's vice president said none of the Lubbock supermarkets would be affected by the move.

"Lubbock stores are going to run as they've always run," Robert Boverie told The Avalanche-Journal late Tuesday. "The petition basically is just a breathing spell for the company to reach an arrangement with its creditors."

Arizona Stores Falter

Boverie said the chain's primary financial problem is with the 10 stores in the Phoenix, Ariz. division. Two stores there will be closed, but no local closures are planned.

Under the petition filed at 4:55 p.m. Tuesday in the Fifth Circuit Court, Northern District in Fort Worth, the company "seeks the opportunity to retain control of its assets and business as a Debtor-in-Possession pending the completion of an arrangement with its creditors."

In a statement released by company officials, Furr's Board of Directors chairman Roy K. Furr cited as the reason for the petition "increasing difficulty over the past two years due in large part to problems in being able to obtain sufficient and timely funding for long term commitments."

"This has had a substantial impact on

Court Bill's Approval By Senate Looms

AN AMENDMENT to legislation allowing municipal courts of record in Lubbock is expected to be approved by the Texas Senate today. The bill then will need only the governor's signature to become law.

The House approved the amended bill, sponsored by Sen. E.L. Short of Tahoka, on Friday — seven weeks after the legislation received Senate approval.

However, Senate action on an amendment allowing two current Municipal Court judges to remain in office until next spring's elections was delayed with the exit Friday of 12 renegade senators dubbed the "Killer Bees."

The return of the missing senators allowed the Senate officially to accept referral of the bill from the House Tuesday afternoon, but a 24-hour "lay out" period is required before Senate action on a bill referred from the other body.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby is expected to recognize Short sometime after 4 p.m. today so the Senate can concur on the amendment.

The need for the amendment became apparent following Senate approval of the bill when Short learned neither of the current Municipal Judges would meet residency requirements established by the bill since both men live outside Lubbock.

To be elected to the offices they now hold, the two judges would have to move into Lubbock at least six months before the beginning of their new terms.

Area Farmers May Face Diesel Fuel Shortages

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

SUPPLIES of now precious diesel fuel across the South Plains are barely holding out, but distributors are warning that "if something doesn't happen to increase our supplies, this could be a sad smmer for agriculture."

The diesel supply situation in Texas and across the nation is being called everything from "okay for now" to "critical," and appears to be compounded by an impending shortage of gasoline for agricultural use.

The U.S. Department of Energy has ordered refiners to make diesel a top priority, and has implemented a special rule allowing farmers to get diesel without so much red tape. Area farmers and co-op managers say they appreciate those efforts but insist it won't make any difference if there isn't any fuel to get.

Supply "Okay For Now"

The area diesel supply now is balanced precariously between the farmers' assault on newly planted fields and the slowdown brought on by recent rains.

Most area distributors and co-op managers contacted by The Avalanche-Journal said their supplies were "okay for right now," but voiced concern for adequate supplies in June and July. They also said they doubted President Carter could fulfill his promise to provide enough diesel for the nation's summer agriculture needs.

"I think the president's full of peanuts if he thinks we're going to have enough diesel," said Don Moore, manager of Plainview's United Farm Industries, one of the region's premier fuel distributors. "Our diesel is holding out okay right now, but no one's been in because of the weather. It's going to be hell here in another week when everyone gets back in the fields."

"Our supply is pretty good but we're still buying extra shipments from Abilene," said A.J. Jester, manager of the Farmers Co-op in Tahoka. "Without that extra supply we'd have been dry several times."

"Our diesel's okay for today, but I'm worried about our gas supplies," said Bub Sparks of Hereford's Consumers Fuel Co-op. "We were out of regular all day Monday, and only get new allottments every week, so we'll see."

Jester also expressed concern over dwindling gasoline supplies. "The gas supplies really worry me, because I think our big diesel use might be over, and we'll still be stuck."

Through "Special Rule No. 9," the Government Opens Case Against Former Banker

The federal government opened its embezzlement case against a former Plains State Bank officer Tuesday with testimony to indicate he accepted a $35,000 check from a prominent depositor when he knew the account on which it was drawn to be insufficient.

Present and former officials of Amarillo National Bank testified that Ben Pate, mayor of Plains and former vice president and cashier of the Yoakum County bank, was informed by telephone that checks totaling almost $100,000 were being returned prior to his July 8, 1976, acceptance of the $35,000 check.

Bank officer Monte Brogdin and former clerk Sharon Plumlee, now of Arlington, said bank records indicate Pate was informed of the checks drawn on the Bank of the West in Lubbock for deposit at Plains State being insufficient on four occasions between June 24 and July 6.

The first count of the March indictment of Pate charges he misapplied funds by accepting the $35,000 check from the late Edward Hunter of Plains on July 8 on a Bank of the West account for deposit in Plains.

Pate is charged with misapplying a total of $141,200 in several 1976 and 1977 transactions, Assistant U. S. Attorney Bob Slough said in opening statements Tuesday morning.

Dapper defense attorney Leon Taylor of Albuquerque, N.M., told the jurors in a deep and booming voice that "evidence will show" Pate "did not violate any law" during the transactions.

Slough said Pate was indicted in March for accepting a $35,000 check for deposit on July 8, 1976, from a prominent depositor when he knew the account on which it was drawn to be insufficient, and for more than $100,000 in bank transactions involving a drive-in restaurant he was having built in Plains.

It was the first time the amount of money allegedly involved had been publicly disclosed.

Solar Weather Maps May Aid Forecasts

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government scientist said Tuesday that "weather maps" of giant magnetic-field patterns on the surface of the sun may soon improve forecasting of solar disturbances affecting the earth and the rest of the solar system.

Patrick S. McIntosh of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said the method promises to do for the solar observer what traditional weather maps have done for the weather forecaster.

The maps, he said, "reveal the general circulation of the sun's gases and the relationship between his circulation to solar-terrestrial disturbances that produce dangerou radiation, block radio waves, and play havoc with power and telephone lines."

Descriptions Of Killer Bees Vary From 'Heroes' To 'Children'

By The Associated Press

The flight of Texas' Killer Bee senators has left state newspapers with mixed emotions.

The 12 senators fled the Capitol in protest of Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's method of trying to push through a bill that would split Texas' presidential primary. Hobby, for want of a quorum, ordered Texas Rangers and Department of Public Safety officers to track down and arrest the itinerant senators. One person was arrested — a senator's brother who was released when he pointed out the mistake.

The dozen senators began drifting back to Austin Tuesday.

The Dallas Times Herald Tuesday said the missing senators "deserve to be remembered as heroes." The editorial said the senators are "sincere, independent men of considerable integrity who exposed an ignoble ploy by Hobby to pass a split-presidential primary bill through the Senate under the guise of an innocent-appearing election bill."

"The senators are 12 good men who exposed Hobby's naked assertion of political power to change the Senate's rules in order to achieve his own selfish goals," the paper said.

The Dallas Morning News, however, said the absence of the Killer Bees cannot be condoned. "By denying the upper house a quorum, they are only intensifying the chaos that normally develops during the closing days of a session. A great deal of important state business is left in limbo, and a special session is becoming more of a probability because of their absence," the Tuesday editorial said.

The Austin American-Statesman condemned both the Killer Bees and the Worker Bees — those senators who stayed in the crippled Senate.

The Legislature is setting "a historically bad example in conduct and behavior," the paper said in its Tuesday editions. "The legislators look like children rolling in the dirt during a recess fight. They should break clean, dust themselves off, shake hands and go about their business."

The Corpus Christi Caller said the wandering senators "deserve applause for waging the public's fight with good humor, imagination and with serious intent underlying it all."

Hobby is "acting like a spoiled child," the Fort Worth Star-Telegram said in its Wednesday editions. "The 12 who fled to make their point in the battle over separate primaries may have gone to an extreme but sometimes an extreme action is needed to prevent another extreme."

And the San Antonio News pointed to the publicity the state is receiving, saying, "The Killer Bees and the pursuit thereof has been good for Texas."

The Tyler Courier-Times-Telegraph said it also planned a favorable editorial in its edition for today.

The Abilene Reporter-News, however, warned the Killer Bees "are playing a dangerous game — dangerous to themselves and to the public interest and mood."

In its editorial, the Beaumont Enterprise-Journal said explaining the senatorial disappearance is "frustrating and there's no way you can do it without feeling embarrassed and disgusted but also a little bit proud ... Perhaps this extreme action was necessary to uncover Austin's back room politics."

The San Antonio Express, calling the ploy "an amusing tactic," said "A complex political evolution in Texas" of Democratic crossover voting is behind the move.

The Lufkin News watched the events with amusement. "The lawmen will need some pretty big butterfly nets to catch these bees and will have to be careful not to get stung," the paper said. "Meanwhile, the law-abiding senators who remained in the Capitol must be asking themselves, 'To bee or not to bee?'"

Rebel Sen. Longoria Angered By Hobby

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. Raul Longoria, one of the Killer Bees, said Tuesday he was ready to return to Austin as soon as Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby calls off the Texas Rangers, who are searching for the 12 missing senators.

Longoria, D-Edinburg, said it "made me angry" when he walked out of state court in Edinburg on Friday and learned Hobby had signed warrants for the arrest of 12 absent senators, including himself.

"I saw no reason why I should submit myself to Texas Rangers to be handcuffed and returned to Austin," Longoria said. "I had violated no law. I had been legally excused, so I decided to stay out of sight."

Longoria had been excused to be in court.

His statement was released by his daughter, Elaine, to KGBT-TV in Harlingen.

Longoria said he skipped a religious retreat at San Juan, but said "I did have a retreat by myself with my God as my guiding light. I will have to say that it was very fruitful because I am completely satisfied that my decision not to go back to Austin until the 'call on the Senate' has been removed was the proper one," he said.

Longoria reiterated his opposition to the presidential primary bill that triggered the exodus of senators, who fled after Hobby announced he would not require a two-thirds majority to bring up a bill that could result in a presidential primary.

Their only hope of blocking the bill to hold a March 1980 presidential primary — two months before the regular party primaries — was to cut out and leave the 31-member Senate two short of a quorum, they claimed.

"It seems to me," Longoria said, "that the lieutenant governor is more interested in helping John Connally than he is in the needs of the people."

Connally, a former Democratic governor of Texas who is now a Republican candidate for president, apparently would benefit from the earlier primary because conservative Democrats could vote for him than switch back to the Democratic Party primary in May.

"I will state that it is my feeling that the Killer Bees have the best interest of the people of Texas and that of the Democratic party at heart," Longoria said.

"I am ready to return to Austin as soon as Lt. Gov. Hobby acts in a mature and responsible way and allows me to return with dignity and under my own volition and not under the custody of the Texas Rangers," he concluded.

Disavow Primary, House Members Urge Governor

AUSTIN (AP) — More than one-third of the 150-member House has urged Gov. Bill Clements to commit himself to vetoing a split presidential primary in order that the legislature can get "back on course."

The five-day absence of 12 senators opposed to holding a presidential primary in March 1980 — two months before the regular party primary elections — has stalled legislative action.

"We believe that you hold the key to solving this problem," 58 House members told Clements in a letter.

The 140-day regular session must end by midnight Monday.

The letter, dated Monday, reads, in part:

"With a single action — your public commitment to veto a separate, costly presidential preference primary and to prohibit special session consideration of this subject — you could provide the leadership necessary to get this legislature back on course.

"There is no reason whatsoever that any good legislation should die in this session. Likewise, there is no reason that the proposal for a separate $4.7 million presidential preference primary — which has been opposed by both the State Democratic and Republican executive committees, as well as by a majority of members of the Texas House of Representatives — should stifle the legislative process for a single day longer.

"We urge you to provide prompt and strong leadership."

Contaminated Road Danger Discounted

AUSTIN (AP) — Residents of five East Texas subdivisions where contaminated road oil was applied to rural roads face no serious health hazards, according to a tri-agency report released Tuesday.

The Texas Department of Water Resources, Texas Department of Health and the Texas Air Control Board said in a joint report that levels of cyanide "do not constitute a health hazard."

The report said potential health hazards from nitrobenzene found in the roads "should be alleviated when the required clean-up is complete."

No significant runoff of the hazardous chemical was detected in vegetation or aquatic life, the report added.

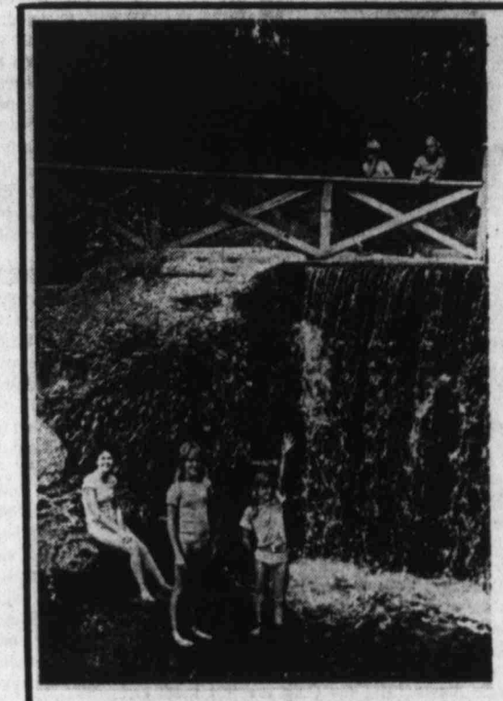

The Texas Water Commission ruled May 4 that Browning-Ferris Industries Chemical Services Inc., would have to remove hazardous materials from 1.7 miles of road in Reiley's Village, a subdivision in Polk County.

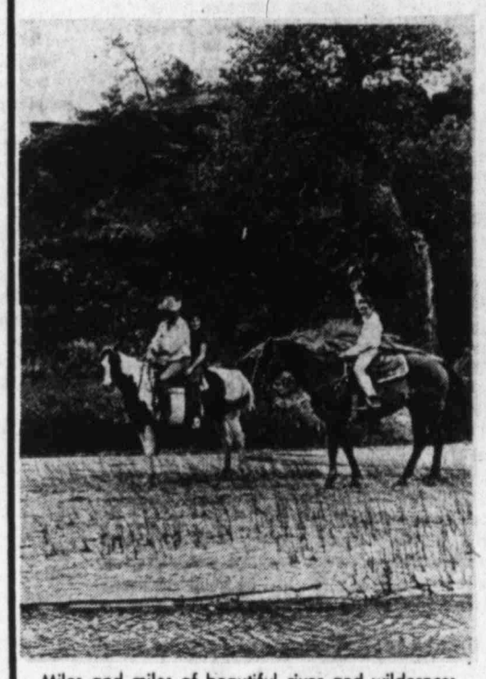

The commission also ordered the Houston-based company not to dispose of hazardous wastes at unauthorized disposal sites.

The 'Bees' And 'Democracy'

ALTHOUGH ALL is supposed to be fair in love and war, and presumably legislative shenanigans, the tactics adopted by the so-called "Killer Bee" members of the Texas Senate leave something to be desired in "serving the public's best interest."

The truth of the matter is that probably a majority of the public doesn't fully understand all the ramifications of the dozen state senators who by the simple act of disappearing have stalled legislative action at Austin.

THE "DIRTY Dozen," if indeed there were that many, made themselves scarce, their spokesmen claimed to make a point.

The point is that they wanted to block Senate and House approval of an early and separate presidential preferential primary in Texas next year.

The purpose behind an early primary, separate and apart from the usual May party primaries is two-fold: 1. To give Texans a chance to have a more powerful voice at a time when it counts in the 1980 presidential nomination process for both parties, but particularly the Republicans; and 2. According to some, make it possible for conservative Democrats to cross over and vote in the GOP presidential primary without losing a chance to vote for regular Democratic candidates at a later date.

THIS LATEST ploy, some observers charge, would be an advantage to Texas' own former Gov. John Connally in his GOP fight against George Bush and Ronald Reagan.

The reasoning is that conservative Demos who still think highly of "Big Jawn" would cross over and help him win the Lone Star state's delegates to the National Republican Convention.

Who are the "Killer Bees?" For the most part, they are those senators who might be dubbed hardline or Liberal Democrats who see the separate primaries as a threat to their control of both offices and party.

They reason that if the conservative Demos want to cross over to vote in the GOP presidential primary badly enough, then they should have to give up the right to vote in the regular primary elections in May. So, if held at the same time, presto, the restriction automatically would apply, as it always has.

WE CAN SEE both sides of the argument, but we also see something more important involved.

Regardless of one's feelings about the early primaries, the point here is that a dozen members of the Senate have taken it upon themselves to use a most unusual—and tacitly illegal—method of not only blocking specific legislation but the whole Legislative process.

There are other ways and means—from filibusters to outright defeat or parliamentary stalling—to handle controversial proposals. It is indeed ironic that a group of Democrats would resort to such an unusual undemocratic process to achieve their own selfish aims.

AN EDITORIAL:

Rhodesian Ball In U.S. Court

A PERSUASIVE case can be made that support of Rhodesia by the Carter administration would lead to stabilization of the chaotic power relations in Africa and to progressive change throughout the continent in the direction of moderate, multi-racial, democratic societies.

The administration's arguments against lifting sanctions do not appear very compelling when examined in the context of Rhodesian circumstances and African affairs.

"...In no other instance has the U.S. either refused recognition to a government or imposed penalties on it merely because of its constitution or quality," writes Heritage Foundation policy analyst Samuel Francis.

"THE U.S. has had diplomatic relations with Nazi Germany, the Soviet Union, and, most recently, the People's Republic of China," says Francis, "all of which were or are far less democratic and far more repressive than Rhodesia has ever been."

UCLA Professor John Hutchinson in testimony last week to the House subcommittee on Africa reminded lawmakers that the citizens of Zimbabwe Rhodesia have cast their vote and thereby endorsed the internal agreement and its resultant constitution. Said he: "We should not seek to substitute our judgment for theirs."

In terms of the practical effects of lifting sanctions, it is doubtful that the result would be a serious setback in our own relations with African states—almost all of which are conscious of their need to improve relations with the U.S. in the face of Soviet presence in Africa and of the benefits they would gain from expanded contacts with Rhodesia.

"What we in the West have," argues Hutchinson, "is the opportunity to help the loneliest country in the world towards what could be the first enduring constitutional system, in all of Africa."

RHODESIA IS now in a strong position to emerge as one of the freest and most powerful states on the African continent.

As such it would play a major role in promoting progressive change throughout the continent and in stabilizing the internal politics and increasingly violent international relations of Africa.

If sanctions are continued in force, Rhodesia may still succumb to the terrorism of Nkomo and Mugabe as well as the imperialism of the Soviet Union.

Last week, the Senate passed by an overwhelming margin (75-19) a resolution declaring that it is the sense of Congress that the recent elections were free and fair, that installation of the new multi-racial government satisfies U.S. demands for majority rule and that sanctions should be lifted. The next move is up to the President.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

Presidency Bid Died, But Wallace Survived

MILWAUKEEAN ARTHUR Herman Bremer, 21, attempted to assassinate Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace May 15, 1972, and wounded three bystanders. Wallace was campaigning at a Laurel, Md., shopping center. Bremer's shot cost him his run for the presidency.

Today, Wallace's lower limbs are paralyzed.

Twice, while still a youth, Wallace won the Golden Gloves boxing championship. His stamina remains phenomenal.

A patient in the Silver Springs, Md., hospital, the doctors told Wallace that, weak as he was, only a second major operation could save his life.

The critical hours of that second operation came and went. But since 1972 Wallace has faced a third, fourth, fifth and sixth.

WHEN GOVERNOR, Wallace built an elevator at the rear of the governor's mansion, carrying him to the second floor. There he practiced his daily therapy.

Wallace, in speaking engagements, stands at a podium supporting his legs, much in the manner President Franklin D. Roosevelt used for many years.

But Bremer remains to this day unable to explain satisfactorily why he shot and paralyzed the former Alabama governor.

A jury found Bremer guilty and sentenced him to 63 years in Baltimore's Maryland State Penitentiary. Today he works in the prison printing shop.

Warden George Collins, calling Bremer a "loner," says:

"He refuses even to talk with his mother. Bremer's mother came at Christmas all the way from Milwaukee, but he talked with her only a few minutes. Then he went inside, preferring not to be bothered. But Bremer is a good inmate, an inmate obeying the rules."

YOU FIND Wallace, privately and publicly, a deeply mellowed man. There is not an ounce of rancor left in him. He shrugs off Bremer's shots and concentrates on the injured bystanders.

As a World War II flyer, Wallace volunteered for many dangerous missions. He is inherently fatalistic.

Presidential assassinations and attempted assassinations go back to President Abraham Lincoln, killed by John Wilkes Booth in Washington, April 14, 1865.

Leon Czolgosz assassinated President William McKinley in Buffalo, Sept. 6, 1901.

In Miami, Feb. 15, 1933, anarchist Joseph Zangara shot at President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt.

LEE HARVEY Oswald assassinated President John F. Kennedy in Dallas, Nov. 22, 1963. While his brother Sen. Robert F. Kennedy ran for the presidency, Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, a Jordanian, assassinated him in Los Angeles' Ambassador Hotel.

We should concern ourselves with retribution, a deterrent. The result of this process, pursued for sociological purposes, means less crime and loss of freedom and security—the supposed goals of judicial lawmaking.

Instead of falsely blaming "society," our proper concern is retribution. This is horribly weakened. Again and again, we bombard the U.S. as a place where "society" is at fault.

We must strive to create a more perfect Union. But an insidious, weakening poison is pumped into our national structure by those who call assassination "society's fault" and dismiss the individual from responsibility.

They preach and preach the rights of individuals and ignore individual responsibility.

GEORGE F. WILL:

Cub Fans Off Base

WASHINGTON—I have come, suddenly, to a jolting conclusion: Chicago Cubs fans, of whom I am one, are at least symptoms of what ails the West, and may be what ails the West.

This thought broke like thunder in the quiet of my sluggish mind when, on opening day, a Cubs fan cheerfully said that all the team needed in order to be a winner were "three starting pitchers and an outfielder."

The fan was not being witty, as Oscar Wilde was when he described a particular woman as "a peacock in everything but beauty."

Rather, that Cubs fan, like most of them, fits the description of Lord Halifax, Britain's foreign minister at Munich: "He had an infinite capacity for being trodden on without complaint."

But Cubs fans can complain, as I learned when, on the eve of the season (on the "Today" show), I said, approximately, this:

When the Mets were dreadful, they were cute. When the Red Sox blew the pennant, they had tragic dignity. But the Cubs are just mediocre, and if they play this season they will just embarrass themselves and their fans.

If, however, they flatly refuse to come out of the dugout, they can give the world a shining example of a heroism suited to an age of anti-heroes, lowered expectations, tempered hopes, contracted horizons and expensive beef: Heroic resignation.

A white towel hoisted over the dugout would be a banner to which realists could repair, a symbol of unconditional surrender to undeniable facts.

This thought touched the flaming, tigerish spirit for which Cubs fans, unlike their teams, are noted.

MANY FANS have communicated with me in simple, austere terms—the philosophic gist being that I am the sort of person who would be much improved by being drawn and quartered.

But Cubs fans exemplify the muddiness of mind that made Munich (and Suez, the Department of Energy, and other calamities) possible.

They fancy themselves idealists, but theirs is a dotty idealism that confuses ecological and athletic criteria.

They idealize the team for playing at home on real grass, illuminated by solar energy. An idealist, as H. L. Mencken said, notes that a rose smells better than a cabbage and concludes that a rose also will make better soup.

But I have received a letter from a Virginia lawyer whose professional address—on Jefferson Davis Highway—suggests that he should be heard on the subject for losers.

JOHN NIES says that my strategy for the Cubs—unconditional surrender—is "by Washington standards rather barren.

"As Mr. Califano will tell you, the situation in which the Cubs find themselves is not of their own making. The basic truth of the matter, at least in Washington, is that failure is any enterprise is always someone else's fault.

"This is the corollary, of course, of the proposition that success is a product of avarice and related vices."

Nies has some suggestions:

"First, consider the possibilities of affirmative action. The Cubs' ineptitude is obviously the product of years of neglect.

"THIC CAN be corrected by requiring the Yankees and the Red Sox to accept as starters those Cubs who, because of broken homes or other socioeconomic reasons, have a batting average of less than .100 or who can't throw a ball straight more than five feet.

"This program, called Ineptitude Transfer (IT), if carefully monitored, should be productive.

"Next, let us think about whether it is really fair to retire a Cub hitter after three called strikes, which is the same standard used to judge the skills of a Ted Williams or a Reggie Jackson..."

It is too much to hope that government will accept the truth taught by competitive sports, and even by uncompetitive sports, such as the Cubs play.

THE TRUTH is that, as a carpenter once said to William James, "There is very little difference between one man and another; but what little there is, is very important."

A concluding unscientific postscript:

Since my season-opening fit of foul temper, the Cubs have been, if not awesome, at least marginally adequate.

This year the June Swoon did not come, as it usually does, in early May, which may, or then again may not, prove something.

The seven-year-old came home from school clutching a half-dollar in his hand. "Where in the world did you get that?" asked his mother.

"I found it in school."

"But are you sure it was lost?"

"I know it was lost, because I saw another boy looking high and low for it."

ANDREW TULLY:

To Draft Or Not?

WASHINGTON—Predictably, the old dishonesty has cropped up in debate over the proposed resumption of registration of 18-year-old males for possible military service.

It's almost as if Franklin Roosevelt were still around to promise no American "boys" ever would fight on foreign soil.

In 1979, some Congressional proponents of registration go around claiming that it would be merely an "insurance policy" that would not draft a single individual.

Their own phrase is a contradiction of their shameful sophistry.

Registration for national service would serve no purpose other than to establish a pool of young men whose bodies would be available to serve in battle.

IF CIRCUMSTANCES dictate, then there must be standby registration. It's as honestly obvious as that, and the debate on Capitol Hill should not be cluttered up with the mouthings of self-serving liars.

The argument for registration is powerful. The Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps are falling short of the 373,000 recruits they need this year to attain a total strength of slightly more than 2 million.

The volunteer system established after the Vietnam War to placate anti-war activists has been a failure. All four services ended 1978 needing 10 percent more people in uniform. The Army's Ready Reserve is half a million short.

Meanwhile, the pool of 18-year-olds is declining, meaning there will be fewer volunteers in the Eighties.

MOREOVER, THERE is something almost shameful in the makeup of the armed forces. Most recruits come from the poor, the unemployed and the less educated.

Voluntarism, as should have been expected, is not attracting the college-educated or the young people of middle-income backgrounds. Almost 40 percent of the Army's male recruits now are black.

Of course a draft has to be realistically considered. If enough of those little wars with which the world is tortured explode their boundaries, no one can guarantee the United States will be able to remain on the sidelines.

So standby machinery to mobilize reinforcements in case of war is urgently needed. Even if the Army were up to strength, it would need draftees within 30 days—probably as many as 100,000 in two months and more than 600,000 in six months.

THERE ARE no more draft boards, so it would take 110 days to call up the first draftees and 40 days more to draft 100,000.

In this context, I am touched by a letter from the mother of two young children. Mrs. Judith Woods of Aptos, Calif., notes that older men decide whether the nation's youth should be put into uniforms.

If older men feel what they have is worth fighting for, she says, "then you fight for it...don't ask anyone else to do it for you."

Alas, I can offer Mrs. Woods only a fact-of-life reply. Wars have to be fought by the young, simply because they are burdened with the strength and vitality of youth.

Thus, it is adding insult to injury to claim that standby registration would never expose our young men to the draft.

JAY HARRIS:

The 'Me' People...

CAN A NATION brought up to expect, nay, demand "the good life," with gusto and all the trimmin's, make the sacrifice necessary to save itself in the next decade?

Can a generation or more of "me first" addicts cope with what may be ahead, on the energy front, the inflation front and the foreign policy front?

Those aren't idle questions. They are for real and must be answered. How and when may well determine the future of America.

For whatever it is worth—and it's been worth plenty—Americans long have been noted for their willingness to sacrifice for the common good, to share and "make do" when faced with a national crisis. Whether personal, on a community basis when tragedy strikes in the form of weather or such, or in a war, the majority has always risen to the occasion.

THE BIG question in a lot of people's minds is "What now?"

In recent days, as the gasoline crunch got crunchier, the lines at the stations got longer and tempers got shorter, there were those who pointed and said:

"See, we told you so. They can't handle it..."

"They" in this case were the motorists, the guy or gal next door perhaps, if you lived in a suburb of Los Angeles or some other West Coast point. "It" was the gasoline shortage.

Sociologists and psychologists could have had a field day with what has been happening as the cars inch toward the pumps from San Diego to San Francisco. There were those who waited patiently. And there were those who didn't.

There was the case of the fellow with a yen for gas in a hurry. He took it at the point of a gun. Another, irked at thinking a person had moved in ahead of him, took a tire tool to the supposed offender's hood. Others used language even the "family hour" couldn't repeat.

THERE WAS a time when such "uncouth" behavior would not have been tolerated, let alone displayed by your average American in public.

But, times have changed. And so have peoples' attitude toward what they expect, from life, their government and one another.

And there's a very simple explanation for it all. It's called the "Me Generation" syndrome.

And it doesn't just apply to a gas station line.

Recently, columnist Anthony Harrigan took note of the GW Forum, a publication of George Washington University, which devoted an entire issue to the "Me Generation."

One of the contributors to the issue, Mirsolava Dow, says: "I take the 'me generation' to mean people chiefly interested in and conscious of themselves. It is used currently to describe an exclusive and total involvement within oneself, an involvement which nullifies all contracts and all but the most fleeting relationships."

FOR THOSE who share such a view, the measure of each act is how "pleasurable" or personally satisfying anything or anyone is, Harrigan observes.

Selfishness, in the eyes of the apologists for the Me Generation, is the ultimate good. If if makes you feel good, then it's worth doing.

The Me Generation syndrome rejects concepts of public duty and sacrifice in support of the national well-being. Thus, the growing opposition among such persons to any sort of military draft, any public service which entails personal sacrifice, time, self...

The opposition to national interests, if it entails personal sacrifice, doesn't just end with those who see no need for a draft or even to defend the nation.

Charles G. Koch, chairman of Koch Industries, recently charged that "national security interventionists have been among the leaders in destroying free enterprise." Those who say "me first" also often reject any policy which imposes upon them a shared responsibility.

THE RECENT protests over nuclear power plants and the accompanying often unfounded and irrational charges and accusations do not represent a rational approach to the problem.

On the contrary, such protests, while perhaps merited at a more objective and logical manner and in a more calm forum, nevertheless are often supported by the rabble-rousers of another "me generation."

We refer to those who blindly tore a nation apart over the Vietnam War. What those people never seemed to realize, was that their country was at war, right or wrong. And it either had to win—which is always preferable—or lose or draw. And the question always remained: Did they oppose the war on principle, or for strictly selfish and personal reasons?

Just when it appeared that the U.S. was shaking off the divisive nightmare of Vietnam, the "no nukes now" shouts drowned out any semblance of sanity and reason on the nuclear power issue. The mobs have returned to the streets.

THIS IS NOT to say that the majority of Americans subscribe to this self-serving and self-destructive philosophy.

On the contrary, the vast majority of Americans, though silent, still believe in this nation and all it has stood for, and are willing to fight to protect it, if necessary.

But, as has all too often been the case in recent years, the voice heard the loudest—on television and in the headlines—is that of the rabble-rouser, a voice with more than one axe to grind.

As Prof. Stephen J. Tonsor of the University of Michigan says: "It may very well be that we have come to the awareness in the U.S. that freedom, aside from the context of community, is meaningless..." If so, we are in trouble.

The Me Generation offers an empty, destructive view of life. It does not answer the challenge of just so much gasoline to be shared, a common enemy in Moscow waiting to "bury us." It is a selfish, sick generation which feeds on itself and one another...

Bill To Hike Interest Sent To Clements

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas legislators finally passed and sent to Gov. Bill Clements Tuesday a bill raising the interest rate ceiling on home loans.

But the 92-41 House decision to accept Senate changes was short of the 100 votes that would put the new interest rates into effect the moment Clements signs the bill.

Clements himself proposed the essential provisions of the bill, which he said was necessary to assure a supply of mortgage money in Texas.

Without 100 votes, the bill won't take effect until Aug. 27.

Rep. Jerry 'Nub" Donaldson, D-Gateville, the sponsor, said there was a possibility he might later move to reconsider and try once more for 100 votes.

He said his chief hope lay in persuading 11 representatives who abstained because of possible conflicts of interests to vote for the bill.

The bill would, for two years at least, lift the present 10 percent ceiling on home loan interest rates. In its place would be a "floating rate" of two percentage points above the average monthly rate for 10-year U.S. Treasury notes and bonds — now bearing just above 9 percent.

In no instance, could the rate rise above 12 percent. That also would be the ceiling if Texas courts held the floating rate unconstitutional.

The new ceiling would be in force only until Sept. 1, 1981, unless the 1981 legislature extends it.

Senators removed a House provision outlawing "points" that lenders charge sellers of homes.

They also changed a section forbidding penalties for prepayment of a home loan to allow penalties that are required by an agency created by the federal government.

Donaldson said such agencies as the Federal National Mortgage Association ("Fannie Mae") require the penalties but usually waive them where they conflict with a state law.

Donaldson said senators did not change what he described as a major House provision that denies the higher interest rates to lenders who "redline" or otherwise discriminate on the basis of race.

Rep. Henry Allee, D-Houston, urged the House to reject the Senate amendments and send the bill to a conference committee but his pleas were rejected, 86-46.

Allee said the House should fight to keep the prohibition against seller "points," which he said can easily add $2,000 or $3,000 to the price of a house when passed through to buyers.

He said it was "not fair" to give lenders higher interest rates and at the same time allow them to continue collecting "points."

"As a builder, I can tell you that eliminating points is not going to reduce prices. What you are doing is increasing the profit to the builder. ... I can tell you, I am not going to reduce the price, and neither is any other builder. I'm going to put the money in my pocket," replied Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Salado.

Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, also urged rejection of the Senate amendments, coupled with a call for conference committee negotiations.

He said House provisions on prepayment penalties and seller points made the bill more acceptable by "taking care of some of the overreaching by the (savings and loan) industry that has been going on for a long time."

"This bill is an interest rate hike from 10 to 12 percent. That's all it is," Bryant said.

The House initially accepted Senate amendments, 85-44, but took another vote after Rep. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, urged them to put the bill into immediate effect with 100 votes.

McFarland contended that a family buying a $60,000 home in May would have to wait until September to close it because money would not be available until the bill becomes law. Just in that period, he said, inflation could raise the price of the house by $2,000.

Donaldson also said the wait could damage small builders.

House Passes Real Estate Measure

AUSTIN (AP) — The House voted Tuesday for legislation giving real estate customers new protections but also removed a safeguard that had been proposed.

The bill, which extends the life of the Texas Real Estate Commission and makes several changes in its structure and operations, advanced on a voice vote.

It must be considered once more before the legislation can return to the Senate for action on changes made by the House.

The bill enlarges the commission from six to nine members, with three-consumer representatives added to the six persons appointed from the real estate industry.

The measure increases maximum payments from a special "Recovery Fund" established to help consumers defrauded by real estate agents, from $10,000 to $20,000.

Contract forms must inform buyers, where appropriate, that information is available concerning hazards to property along the Gulf Coast.

The commission would have to maintain a file of complaints from consumers and make quarterly status reports to the persons who griped until their grievances are resolved.

House members removed, without any record vote, a provision requiring real estate contracts to contain a section informing consumers where to lodge complaints — that is, the real estate commission.

Rep. Jerry "Nub" Donaldson, D-Gatesville, the bill's sponsor, accepted the change and called the provision "onerous."

"Many prospective buyers don't see any documents until they are down to signing the contract," he said.

Campaign To Protect Rhinos Renewed

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Kenya's president announced a stepped up campaign Tuesday against rhinoceros poaching. The 2,000-pound beast faces extinction because of demand for its horns to make knife handles and love potions.

In a special announcement from government headquarters here, President Daniel Arap Moi directed the Ministry of Tourism and Wildlife and the police to bring an end to the killing and poaching of the animal.

Wildlife conservationists had warned that the rhinoceros faces extinction within three years if poachers were not stopped.

Kenya's February 1978 ban on professional big game hunting — including rhinos and elephants — and a subsequent ban on the sale of wildlife trophies and curios has slowed down the once-rapid decrease in the rhino population, but poaching in the country's wildlife parks continues.

The rhino — a ton of flesh, bones and leathery skin — is captured and slaughtered by poachers for the 4.4 pounds of horn that tops its snout.

In North Yemen the horn is used to make dagger handles while in the Far East rhino horn, when pounded into powder, is sought after for alleged aphrodisiac properties.

Airport, Industrial Park Manager At Big Spring Quits

A-J Correspondent

BIG SPRING — Harry Spannaus, manager of Big Spring Industrial Park, resigned his position following a city council meeting Tuesday.

The resignation becomes effective June 1, but the council unanimously requested that Spannaus stay on in an advisory capacity for 30 days.

Spannaus's replacement will be appointed by the new city manager, said Mayor Wade Choate.

Spannaus cited "personal reasons" for his decision to resign, which he outlined in a letter to the mayor.

As a colonel in the Air Force, Spannaus held the position of wing commander at Webb Air Force Base. Following the closure of the base, he was appointed industrial park and airport manager in 1977.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. My wife and I are compulsive spenders. Our combined annual income is $24,000 but our total savings are only $1,500. We badly need some scheme of forced savings, if we are ever to realize our dream of putting a down payment on a home.

Should we start buying U.S. Savings Bonds, which pay only 6½ percent, tax-free? Or would we do better starting a program of monthly investments in a "no-load" mutual fund — which hopefully will keep pace with inflation?

A. It's unlikely either of your suggestions will work, until you regiment yourselves to start socking money away. I know that's not easy. When my blue-eyed finance officer and I were saving for our first home, we did without a lot of things to build our "down-payment fund."

Assuming that there is a payroll savings plan for U.S. Savings Bonds where you work, you could sign up to buy Series E bonds on a steady basis. The money will be deducted from your paycheck and, because you won't get your hands on it, it won't be available for your compulsive spending habits.

That forced savings feature of payroll savings is about the only thing the U.S. Savings Bond program has going for it these days. E bonds now being sold build up interest at an average annual rate of 6½ percent only if they are being held for five years. In the earlier years of each E bond's "initial maturity period" the interest accrues at lower rates.

E bond interest is not "tax-free." It is "tax-deferred" until the bonds are cashed or reach final maturity. At that time, the accrued interest is subject to federal income tax.

A steady investment program in a good no-load mutual fund might work out better. It might not. The value of all mutual fund shares can rise or fall. House down-payment money should be put where there is no risk involved.

It comes down to this. The logical place to keep money intended for a home down payment is an insured savings account. You and your wife may have to sign a pact — in blood — to keep putting money into your savings account and not take any out, until you are ready to buy a house.

• • •

Q. I definitely remember that Congress passed and the president signed a bill allowing the interest rates on U.S. Savings Bonds to be raised to 7 percent. But, more recently, I read that savings bond interest rate has been increased to only 6½ percent. What's going on?

A. Your memory is faultless. The U.S. Treasury Department's handling of the situation deserves far less complimentary words. On May 10, about 3½ weeks after receiving authorization to raise the interest rate on savings bonds from 6 to 7 percent, the Treasury raised that rate to 6½ percent.

That "half a loaf" hike certainly came as a big disappointment to many owners of savings bonds and just might cause more of them to redeem their bonds. U.S. Savings Bonds have been in a "net redemption position" — more being cashed in than are being sold — since November 1978.

It must be explained that, when Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal finally got around to asking permission to raise the savings bond interest rate, he asked to hike it to 6½ percent. Congress, recognizing that much higher rates are available on many other investments, gave the Treasury authority to go to 7 percent on savings bonds. But Blumenthal opted for his original choice of 6½ percent.

• • •

Q. We would like to buy some U.S. Treasury bills because, as you explained, "T-bills" pay high rates of interest which is not subject to state or local income tax. Our only concern is the risk of loss, by theft or fire of T-bills in bearer form. How can we eliminate or minimize this hazard?

A. That hazard has been eliminated. T-bills no longer come in bearer form. All T-bills are now on the "book-entry" system. When you buy a T-bill you receive a receipt, rather than an engraved certificate. Your ownership is recorded in a book-entry account established for you at the U.S. Treasury.

You don't have to worry about losing a bearer-form engraved certificate.

Doyle welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

Education Workshop Scheduled

An education workshop focusing on building a good educational climate through administrative effectiveness, teacher job satisfaction and pupil achievement will be held June 25-29 in the University Center Coronado Room.

Texas Tech's College of Education and Division of Continuing Education are sponsoring the workshop in cooperation with the Texas Elementary Principals' and Supervisors' Association.

School climate, according to Dr. Charles A. Reavis, professor of administration and supervision at Texas Tech, is dependent on respect, trust, morale, opportunity for input, continuing academic and social growth,cohesiveness, problem-solving and caring.

Workshop topics were chosen to help participants improve school climate through leadership, goal-setting and creative problem-solving, evaluation, positive mental attitudes and conflict management.

"Principals in new situations, including administrators recently appointed or transferred to a new school with rapidly changing student populations (including integration) or with a number of new faculty, facilities or programs would especially benefit from the course," Reavis said. "Teachers who expect or aspire to becoming principals will find the workshop of interest and value."

Workshop instructors include Dr. Robert H. Anderson, dean of Texas Tech'sCollege of Education; Gerald Judd, assistant principal at McWhorter Elementary in Lubbock; Bettye MacPhail, former director of secondary education in the Chesapeake Public Schools of Virginia; Dr. Karolyn Snyder, vice president of Pedamorphosis, a non-profit organization devoted to the study and improvement of school leadership and organization; and Reavis.

There will be nightly entertainment with a western barbecue, social hour, theater and disco dancing. Meals are available at the University Center.

Tuition is $75 and dorm rooms will be made available to workshop participants.

Persons may register for two hours of graduate credit in course EDAD 5191, "Advanced Education Workshops in Teaching and Administration," at an extra cost of $40. Persons wishing three semester hours of credit may register for a preconference study packet to be completed before the workshop.

More information information is available from Dr. Michael Mezack, director of continuing education at Texas Tech.

School Lunch Program Subsidy Boost Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — State school administrators were spurned Tuesday in their drive to get increased federal assistance with the expense of running subsidized school lunch programs.

A House subcommittee approved a bill that would simply extend for two more years the Agriculture Department's expiring authority to offset some state administrative expenses. The aid formulas wouldn't be changed. The states had asked for about $16 million more, said Rep. Carl D. Perkins, D-Ky., the panel's chairman.

The department reimburses states about $19 million a year now for administration and about $2 billion for the meals.

Rubber Strike Talks May Resume Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United Rubber Workers and Uniroyal Inc. said Tuesday they are trying to resume stalled contract talks aimed at ending the union's two-week-old strike against the big tire maker.

"We are talking with the union about resuming talks," which have not been held since 8,300 workers struck a dozen Uniroyal facilities on May 9, said Yanis Bibelnieks, a spokesman for the No. 3 U.S. tire company.

Janis Froelich, a spokeswoman for the union, said URW President Peter Bommarito "is awaiting word from Uniroyal" to start bargaining again.

No definite schedule has been set for resuming the negotiations, deadlocked over President Carter's anti-inflation wage guidelines. But both sides indicated that talks could begin before the end of the week.

The union hopes to reach a settlement with Uniroyal that will set a pattern agreement for all 55,000 workers it represents at the "Big Four" tire makers. The union's last contracts with Uniroyal, Goodyear, Firestone and B.F Goodrich expired on April 20.

The new round of negotiations apparently would be in Akron, Ohio, where the union is based. Previous bargaining sessions have been in Washington and New York, where the company is headquartered.

Miss Froelich said some company bargainers reportedly arrived in Akron on Monday to begin preparations for resuming the talks. She added that the union's bargaining committee planned to meet on Thursday, a possible prelude to contract negotiations with the company.

The parties might resume bargaining without federal mediators, who had tried to lead the parties toward a settlement before the strike.

Chief federal mediator Wayne L. Horvitz has indicated that bargaining would be unproductive until a federal judge rules on a suit challenging Carter's right to enforce his 7 percent wage guideline.

The suit, brought by the URW and other labor groups, contends that Carter lacks congressional authority to deny federal contracts to companies that exceed his guidelines. A ruling is expected later this week.

The URW has rejected Carter's 7 percent ceiling on annual wage and fringe benefits as inadequate in the face of inflation running in excess of 10 percent, but the company, which holds $37 million worth of federal contracts, has pledged to comply with the guideline.

The talks have been deadlocked over Bommarito's claim that the two sides were in agreement on guideline-busting economic terms but that the company reneged on the deal when the administration threatened to stop buying Uniroyal tires.

The company denies that it ever reached such an agreement.

Stride Rite Faces Fight For Uniroyal Footwear Business

BOSTON (AP) — Stride Rite Corp. faces a potential court fight in its efforts to acquire Uniroyal Inc.'s footwear business, a purchase the Boston shoe manufacturer hopes will double its sales.

Stride Rite President Arnold Hiatt says the offer to buy Uniroyal's established trademarks, including "Keds," "Pro-Keds," "Sperry Topsider" and "Grasshoppers," could add $125 million to the Boston firm's sales.

Stride Rite, a Boston-based manufacturer and retailer, had sales of $122.4 million in 1978. The firm makes children's shoes and camping and hiking boots. It also runs 145 retail outlets.

Stride Rite's announcement that it will spend between $80 million and $90 million for Uniroyal's footwear inventories, receivables and trademarks faces a challenge by Oxalaga International Enterprises.

Oxalaga, which agreed to buy Uniroyal's footwear division last June, has threatened to sue. Stride Rite has responded by asking a Boston federal court for an injunction against intimidation by Oxalaga.

Uniroyal called off the deal two months ago, citing Oxalaga's ties with Mitsubishi's footwear division as a potential antitrust problem. Mitsubishi is a major Japanese firm.

Hiatt says he has received "preliminary approval" from finanical institutions for the purchase of the Uniroyal division, which has not shown a profit in the past two years.

He said Stride Rite hopes to turn the situation around by "improving marketing, controlling inventories and upgrading quality standards."

Stride Rite's acquisition plan does not include Uniroyal's manufacturing facilities. Production would be contracted out to plants in Georgia and Korea.

Justice Of Peace Rules Shooting Death Suicide

The shooting death of a Lubbock man late last week was ruled a suicide Tuesday by Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack.

The body of Herman G. Baca, 28, of 2305 Fifth St., No. 114, was found on the bed in his apartment Thursday by his girlfriend. Baca had been dead three days when his body was discovered, police said.

Baca was shot once in the right temple with a .22-caliber rifle, reports indicated. When police arrived they found Baca on his back on the bed. The rifle lay between his arms, facing his head, reports said.

The body was taken to Sanders Funeral Home, and later transferred to a Roswell, N.M., funeral home.

A 15-year-old girl has told sheriff's deputies that she stabbed a man in the back after he kidnapped her, threatened her with a nail-pronged board and then raped her.

The Lubbock teen-ager, however, did not appear at the sheriff's department Tuesday to meet with authorities and then prefer charges against the suspect.

Sheriff's Capt. Alton Hobbs said deputies wanted to check out several inconsistencies in the girl's story.

The girl did not report the incident, which she said occurred Saturday night, to deputies until late Monday night.

Police have not received a report of a stabbing victim from local hospitals matching the suspect's description — a black man about 25 years old.

A West Texas Hospital spokesman, however, told police that the girl arrived at the hospital's emergency room Sunday and was told to go to Health Sciences Center Hospital, where Rape Crisis Center representatives can be consulted.

In other activity, police were searching Tuesday for a suspect who robbed the 7-Eleven convenience store at 4201 Boston Ave. late Monday.

Belle Perez, clerk at the store, said a bandit wearing a Dallas Cowboys ski mask held up the business about 9 p.m. and stole about $40 cash.

The clerk said the bandit, who never displayed a weapon but kept a hand in his pocket as if he had one, asked for a package of cigarettes.

She said that when she told the man how much the item cost, he said, "Just give me the cash and we'll call it even. Just give me the large bills."

The suspect was described as white, about 25 years old, 5-foot-8 and muscular. He was clad in a brown raincoat over a black coat, blue jeans and brown gloves.

In a reported assault about 11 p.m. Monday, a 21-year-old man told police he was beaten up after being asked to leave a local nightclub because he was dancing with another man.

The complainant said he was dancing with a male friend when the manager confronted him and ordered both of them to leave. He said he told the manager he could dance with anyone he pleased.

Reports indicate a crowd gathered, and the victim and his friend decided to make a hasty exit. The man said that once outside the nightspot, several men jumped him and beat him up. The victim required medical treatment for a cut over his left eye.

A 24-year-old Lubbock woman said that a man grabbed her about 9:30 p.m. Monday, and when she kicked him, the suspect displayed a knife and stabbed her boot.

The receptionist told police she was walking out of a gate near her apartment when confronted by the knife-wielding suspect. She said she kicked the weapon out of the man's grasp, and that he picked it up and ran off, "laughing very crazy-like."

She said she apparently had come into contact with the short, blonde white man before, because she remembered hearing "that crazy laugh."

A convenience store manager said a male customer in the store about 8:30 a.m. Tuesday had his pants unzipped and was exposing himself while he paid for a bottle of juice.

Reports indicate the man made his purchase and walked out of the store without saying a word. He drove away, heading east on Fourth Street.

The suspect was described as a tall white man, in his 20s or 30s, wearing a brown coat and jeans.

A city policeman said he was on routine patrol shortly after midnight Monday when he saw a man in a Fourth Street nightclub parking lot push a woman off her feet and into the mud. He said he then watched the man get into a fight with the woman's male escort.

The officer said he broke up the fight and arrested the 18-year-old Lubbock man for fighting and suspicion of public intoxication.

Reports state the man was combative until he was placed in the patrol car and was en route to the county jail. The arresting officer said the man then became talkative and started crying.

World Series Of Poker Gets Started

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The big game in the 10th annual World Series of Poker got started Tuesday, with some of the best-known gamblers in the country seeking a chunk of the $540,000 in prize money.

The game — Texas-style "Hold 'Em" — attracted 54 players, including two women, who had each bought in with $10,000. The first cards were dealt in a crowded, smoky room brilliant with television lights at Binion's Horseshoe Club in the downtown "Glitter Gulch."

Among those entered were such well-known gamblers as Thomas Austin "Amarillo Slim" Preston, Doyle "Texas Dolly" Brunson and Bobby Baldwin, winner of last year's big game.

But the sentimental favorite appeared to be Jarlath Joseph Whelan, a quiet, affable Social Security employee and some-time poker player from Boston, who won a two-week trip here along with the $10,000 buy-in.

Whelan, 53, said he had bought Doyle Brunson's book, "How I Won a Million Dollars Playing Poker," and won a drawing sponsored by the publishers. It was the first trip to Las Vegas for Whelan and his wife, Elsie.

"I'm thinking I'm going to go ahead and win it," Whelan said when asked how he saw his chances. If he loses, he said, "we'll have to think about it."

Whelan wouldn't say how experienced a poker player he was or what stakes he had previously played for, but his wife said in an aside that the Horseshoe game was "the first time he's played with chips."

In Hold 'Em, a game played in Texas and other parts of the Southwest, five cards are dealt and each player uses those five plus two community cards to come up with the best five-card poker hand.

The winner receives $270,000, half the buy-in, with the rest divided among the four longest-lasting players.

The poker series started 10 years ago at Binion's.

Man Hospitalized With Gunshot Wound

An elderly Muleshoe man remained in critical condition late Tuesday at Methodist Hospital, suffering from a gunshot wound to the head.

Ollie Jones, 83, was found shot once in the head shortly after 9 a.m. Tuesday at his home, Muleshoe Police Chief Johnny Richards said.

"We know it was self-inflicted, but we don't know whether it was accidental or intentional," Richards said. "We're still investigating it."

The victim was shot with a .38-caliber pistol, according to Richards.

Oil Decontrol Plan Blasted In House

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a test vote Tuesday, House Democrats expressed nearly two-to-one opposition to President Carter's plan to lift price controls from domestically produced oil.

Meanwhile, administration officials said refineries are being asked to boost their gasoline production to ease lines at the pump. But these officials insisted that the move would not threaten heating oil supplies for next winter. And the Energy Department said available evidence does not back up speculation by the Federal Trade Commission that "the current gasoline shortage may be contrived."

On a 153-82 vote, the House Democratic Caucus rejected an attempt to sidetrack a resolution expressing opposition to Carter's oil deregulation move. "This is a complete repudiation of the president's position," said Rep. Edward J. Markey, D-Mass., after the vote. "The Democratic Party has put the president on notice that the litmus test of the 1980 elections will be how he comes to grips with energy problems."

The White House issued a statement late Tuesday through the office of press secretary Jody Powell, saying "any thoughts that such votes will change the president's policy are completely misdirected.

"The president continues to seek a phased end to controls coupled with a windfall profits tax to finance an energy security fund to help develop alternative energy forms," the statement said.

Controls Unacceptable

It said continued oil price controls are "not acceptable to the administration unless accompanied by measures to encourage conservation, reduce imports, increase domestic production and support alternatives to petroleum."

A vote by the House Democratic Caucus — composed of all 276 House Democrats — on the anti-decontrol resolution had been scheduled for Tuesday. But after the vote to reject a motion to kill the resolution, the caucus was forced to recess for lack of time, delaying final action until Wednesday.

Markey and other supporters of the resolution predicted a similar margin of victory when the caucus votes on the anti-decontrol resolution itself.

Symbolic Gesture

Although he resolution is non-binding, backers called it an important symbolc gesture against higheroil and gasoline prices. The resolution would have little substantive impact because it is being circulated only among members of the House Democratic Caucus and is not before the House itself.

Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., prime sponsor of the resolution, said Tuesday's test vote shows that the president lacks the support of his own party on the controversial oil-pricing issue.

"I'd like to help him rise from the political dead and come back to the party position on energy prices," Moffett said.

In the effort to ease gasoline lines, refineries are being urged to reduce their existing inventories of gasoline and oil to counter the present shortages, Energy Department spokesman Jim Bishop said.

Refineries 'Conservative'

"Refineries have been somewhat conservative in using their available stocks of both crude oil and gasoline," he said.

But both Bishop and White House aide Rex Granum denied that this means less heating oil will be available for next winter.

The administration is still committed to making sure refineries produce and set aside enough heating oil to keep homes and businesses warm this winter, Granum said.

"That remains our priority," he said. "We have not altered it one iota."

In testimony Monday, Deputy Energy Secretary John F. O'Leary said federal officials have asked refineries to "help ease the immediate shortage by increasing the rate of use of available crude oil and gasoline stocks."

Bob Hall, director of refining for the American Petroleum Institute, an industry trade organization, said refiners will go along with the administration's request and will increase refining generally.

Shift Not Large

Hall said the shift of emphasis to gasoline is not large, because it would affect only about 10 percent of the heating oil production. "As long as you're making gasoline you're making heating oil as well," he said.

Current oil and gasoline reserves coud be tapped by as much as 380,000 barrels a day through the end of August, O'Leary said in testimony to the Senate Energy Committee.

Such a step woud permit gasoine supplies to reach aout 96 percent or 97 percent of last year's level and "help reduce long lines at gasoline stations," he said.

O'Leary added that crude oil and gasoline stocks could be drawn down "by a total of of about 42 million barrels by the end of the summer without causing serious operational problems."

Drinking Age Bill Said Sidetracked

age bill was sent to subcommittee.

"I acted as fast as I thought I could," Salinas said.

Liquor Regulation Committee Chairman W.G. Coody of Weatherford "saved the bill" by sending it to subcommittee, Salinas said, because the bill would have been "dead" if it had been voted on the same day as the committee hearing.

Salinas said he checked with committee members Monday and found only four members favored reporting the bill out of committee, while six affirmative votes are needed.

"I could have done the easy thing and kicked it over there," Salinas said, "but I don't like political tricks."

Ezzell said he thinks the votes are there. though, to get the bill out for a House vote and said Salinas is attempting to "make excuses for not trying to report the bill out."

Ezzell said the legislation has "statewide importance" because of student drinking and related discipline problems in Texas public schools.

If a school has an open campus, Ezzell said, there's nothing to prevent an 18-year-old student from "having a few beers at lunch, then coming back to school."

Not Cure-All

The legislation "is not going to completely solve all the problems," Ezzell said, "but it's encouraging the problem by leaving it like it is."

Ezzell said the only opposition to the bill he is aware of is that from high school students who might be affected by the legislation.

However, he said he hasn't received one letter in opposition to the bill, adding, "I don't think any other legislators have been flooded with letters in opposition."

But, Salinas said the bill may be the equivilent of trying to "kill a gnat with a bulldozer."

Salinas said it's the responsibility of parents to keep their children from drinking while at school, and said Texas schools currently have the "authority to expel kids who come to school drinking."

There has not been an "outcry from any other school district except Highland Park in Dallas," Salinas said. "If it was a real bad problem, I would have heard about it back in the summer or earlier in the session."

He said Lubbock school officials are supporting the bill, but theorized they were asked to put pressure on Salinas "when they heard I was sitting on the bill."

The legal drinking age was lowered to 18 in the early 1970s when 18-year-olds were given the right to vote.

Killer Bees Return; Bill Vote Fails

every day we were gone," he added. "That's more than all of them (the other 19 senators) can point to in 130 days of the session."

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, explaining the group's actions during the five-day period, said, "We had some sleeping bags brought in. We listened to tapes of the speeches that were being made up here (the Senate). Did some reading and worked on some legislation."

No Other Way

Mauzy said the plan was hatched as a joint effort after the group felt there was no other way to stop the primary measure.

"We decided late Thursday and Friday that the only way we could be assured that a split presidential primary bill could not be passed was to break a quorum," the 12-year Senate veteran said.

"Twelve honest people gave each other their word and stuck with it," Parker said when asked why nothing leaked about the flight.

Earlier Tuesday, Democratic Sen. Gene Jones of Houston, one of the first to return, said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby had agreed not to order any of the absentees arrested if they returned Tuesday.

Spoiled Children

Gov. Bill Clements had threatened to declare their seats vacant.

"We ought to do something about the spoiled children," the Republican governor said When he returned from an out-of-state trip. "We might spank them."

The senators took flight Friday in an effort to thwart passage of a presidential primary bill they feel is loaded in favor of Republican John Connally and other conservatives.

Clements, who had taken a hands-off attitude earlier, said he might declare the absent senators' seats vacant and call a special election.

"Unofficially the call is off," Jones said.

Hobby put a "call on the Senate" Friday which compelled the senators' attendance under threat of arrest.

The dozen dissidents fled and the Texas Rangers gave chase. Killer Bee T-shirts came into vogue and somebody wrote a song about their flight.

Without at least two of the missing senators, the 31-member Senate lacked the 21 members needed for a quorum and could do nothing.

Connally Was Target

After going undercover, the renegades said they wanted to block passage of the primary measure they say would boost Connally's campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

Connally, who was Texas governor six years as a Democrat, has said he does not care when his home state holds a presidential primary.

The Killer Bees complained that the Hobby-backed bill would allow Democrats to vote in a March GOP presidential primary and also cast ballots for state officeholders in the May Democratic general primary.

On Monday, Hobby told reporters the primary measure probably is dead for this legislative session, which ends at midnight Monday.

But he refused to withdraw the bill.

"To reward behavior of this sort is obviously not wise," he said.

Court Appeal Saves Darden From Death

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — Condemned murderer Willie Jasper Darden Jr. won a temporary reprieve from death Tuesday when a federal judge delayed his execution 15 hours before he and Death Row companion John A. Spenkelink were to die in the electric chair.

U.S. District Judge William T. Hodges ruled in Tampa that Darden's execution must be delayed until his appeal can be heard in the courts. Darden contends the remarks of the prosecutor in his 1974 trial were inflammatory.

Meanwhile, Supreme Court Justice William H. Rehnquist rejuffed a last-gasp effort Tuesday by lawyers for Florida death row inmate John Spenkelink to save the condemned murderer's life.

Rehnquist refused to grant a stay of execution.

The justice's action was announced at 8:06 p.m., just 10 hours and 54 minutes before Spenkelink was scheduled to die in Florida's electric chair.

Spenkelink lawyer Joel Berger immediately requested that the stay application be sent to Justice John Paul Stevens, and court sources said Stevens' law clerks were busy trying to contact him.

Berger reportedly asked that if Stevens were to deny the stay, the request be sent to Justice William J. Brennan and Justice Thurgood Marshall, in that order.

Both Brennan and Marshall are on record as the court's only members opposed to the death penalty under all circumstances, but neither likely would grant a stay of execution unless he was sure that four justices — the minimum to grant review to appeals — wanted to hear new arguments raised by the condemned man's lawyers.

"I have consulted all of my colleagues who are available, and am confident that four of them would not vote to grant (review) to hear any of the numerous constitutional claims previously presented by (Spenkelink) in his three earlier (appeals) to this court," Rehnquist said in a six-page opinion timed off at 7:35 p.m.

"(Spenkelink) has had not only one day in court. He has had many, many days in court," Rehnquist said.

"I do not believe that the claim presented in the present application (for stay of execution) would be any more successful than the claims presented in the preceeding three (appeals)," he said.

At the prison here, Spenkelink's mother made a tearful plea for her 30-year-old son's life. Lois Spenkelink emerged from a four-hour visit with her son to beg Gov. Bob Graham, who signed the death warrants Friday, to reconider. "He doesn't even know my son," said the ailing, white-haired woman. "How can he kill my son? My only son...Governor Graham, I am calling upon you to issue a stay to save my son," she said.

Wednesday's would be the first execution in the United States since 1977, and the first of an unwilling prisoner since 1967. Florida's last previous execution was in 1964.

Death penalty opponents began arriving Tuesday morning to protest the execution. They were directed to a field across a highway several hundred yards from the prison, and separated by ropes from an area reserved for persons expected to demonstrate in favor of capital punishment.

Besides the protesters, representatives of the news media have converged here. Reporters were assigned an area in the field facing the prison buildings, which are surrounded by two high barbed-wire fences and a broad field of closely-cropped grass. The reporters are between the two protest areas, by chance or by choice a buffer zone.

Spenkelink was convicted off the Feb. 4, 1973, shooting of a traveling companion, Ohio parole violator Joseph Syzmankiewicz, who was killed in a Tallahassee motel room. He was captured several days later in California.

Darden was convicted by a Citrus County jury of the Sept. 8, 1973, shooting of Lakeland, Fla., furniture store owner James Turman.

Juror Says No Malice Shown In Milk Murder

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jurors, whose manslaughter verdict in the trial of the man accused in the Moscone-Milk slayings spurred a mob to storm City Hall and torch a dozen police cars, said there was no basis for a first-degree murder conviction. But Mayor Dianne Feinstein diagreed.

"I found Harvey's body. I tried to get a pulse. Like many others, I know what I saw," Ms. Feinstein said during a news conference called Tuesday to appeal to the community to refrain from violence. She was referring to Supervisor Harvey

Milk, a homosexual, who was shot last Nov. 27 along with Mayor George Moscone at City Hall.

Jury foreman George Mintzer, in a copyright interview reported Tuesday in the San Francisco Examiner, said jurors originally agreed to keep silent about deliberations in the trail of Dan White. But, he said, television news reports of a riot Monday night by a crowd made up largely of homosexuals made him realize he had to explain the voluntary manslaughter verdict.

No Evidence

"No one could come up with any evidence that indicated premeditation," a factor required in first-degree murder, Mintzer told the newspaper. "We ruled it out quickly ...

"There was no doubt there was an intent to kill," said Mintzer. "But the killing was done out of a passion that was aroused given the stresses he was under. The issue was 'a reasonable doubt.' That was the thing that took the most time to find out."

Ms. Feinstein told reporters, "To think that somebody who strikes down in the course of duty two public officials is going to do less time than people who are serving for lesser offenses is a very hard blow to swallow."

She testified for the prosecution at the trial.

The jury had the options of returning guilty verdicts against White ranging from first-degree murder with special circumstances to involuntary manslaughter.

Verdict Ignites Riot

The relatively lenient verdict, which carries a prison penalty of about five to eight years, ignited a riot by about 5,000 persons.

Police guarded the ravaged City Hall area Tuesday and braced for more emotional protests in a tense city.

A Tuesday night party for the city's homosexual community, to celebrate what would have been Milk's 49th birthday, has been planned for weeks on Castro Street, where Milk operated a camera store.

The police permit to close a block of the street was issued before the verdict and subsequent riot.

The violence raged into early Tuesday morning. Scores of protesters, police officers and news reporters were treated at Central Emergency Hospital. Police said at least a dozen patrol cars were gutted by flames, City Hall wndows were smashed and the glass doors were shattered. Fire Chief Andrew Casper said damage to city owned property and the cost of overtime for police and firemen totalled $1 million.

Twenty persons were arrested, mostly for looting.

City officials, who assailed the verdict as unjust, called for peace as they expressed concern of further demonstrations.

Mayor Feinstein, weary from Monday night, warned that rioting would not be tolerated:

"I know feelings are running high in the city and I understand and I share them. But there is no excuse for this kind of violence."

Furr's Seeks To Reorganize Supermarkets

the working capital of the company," Furr said.

The financially troubled Phoenix stores have been "unable to to successfully garner its share of the market from a group of more centrally located and aggressive competitors," Furr said in the release.

Curtailments Expected

He added that "we anticipate that some phases of the company's retail outlets will be curtailed."

Boverie said, however, that the planned curtailment does not now include the 1,000 persons employed by the 10 Furr's supermarkets in Lubbock.

Furr noted in the release that, "The majority of the company's stores are making a profit and there will be no material changes in these areas; indeed everything will be done to keep them as a viable and profitable contributor to the company.

"Steps have been taken and are continuing which will infuse more capital and equity support into the company and cash flow remains sufficient to assure employees of continuing and prompt payment of their wages each week."

Pending the arrangement with its creditors, Furr's is protected by federal law from "acute collection practices and is, accordingly, relieved of the immediate cash problems which have hampered its operation in very recent months," according to the statement.

Boverie added, "As far as any current business goes, (the petition allows us) to start off with a clean slate."

Officials said the decision to file the petition in Fort Worth was made "because of its convenience to suppliers and other parties in interest."

In addition to the supermarket chain, Furr's Inc. operates Frost Bakery Company, Odessa; Clardy Dairy Company, Roswell, N.M.; and Officenters, Inc. and Furr's General Contractors, both in Lubbock.

These holdings, as well as publicly-owned Furr's Cafeterias Inc., are not included in the petition, Boverie said.

Refineries Boost Gas Production

NEW YORK (AP) — America's oil refineries, which have been operating slightly below full capacity to build up crude oil reserves, are heeding a request from the government to step up gasoline production to ease lines at service stations.

But by adjusting their operations to maximize gasoline production, the refineries are producing less heating oil and diesel fuel from each barrel of crude oil. Diesel supplies already are short, which is causing problems for farmers who need fuel for tractors now that they are in the planting season.

And the nation's stocks of heating oil are low. But Carter administration officials insisted Tuesday they would be adequate for next winter.

Underscoring the problem, Getty Oil Co. said Tuesday it was temporarily halting sales of diesel and heating oil in the Midwest because it had run out of the two fuels.

Despite shortages of gasoline, diesel and heating oil, refineries in the past few months have been running at less than full capacity. This has been the case because refiners, with the approval of the Energy Department, have been withholding some supplies of crude oil from the refinery process because inventories of crude dropped to unusually low levels earlier this year.

During late 1978, when crude oil supplies were adequate, high demand for gasoline and heating oil forced refiners to step up production and deplete crude oil inventories. At one point in January, crude oil inventories dropped to about a half-day's supply. Five days' supply is considered about right. About three days' supply now is on hand.

At the same time refiners have been attempting to build up their supplies of crude, the amount of crude available has been declining. With the world oil market tight as the result of the revolution in Iran, crude oil has been difficult to get lately. And the first shipments of crude since Iranian production resumed are just now starting to arrive.

Area Farmers May Face Diesel Fuel Shortages

Department of Energy has made it possible for farmers to get their 100 percent allocation, when it is available, without having to formally apply for it, according to State Sen. E.L. Short of Tahoka.

"Any supplier will be required to supply any farmer, upon either oral or written certification by that farmer, the gallons of fuel needed for 100 percent agricultural use," Short said.

But the suppliers say there is no way to fulfill the demand for 100 percent allocation because there simply isn't enough diesel to go around.

Farmland Industries of Kansas City, Mo. which supplies 95 area co-ops with diesel and gasoline, says its situation is "the same as it's been all spring — critical."

"Our goal is to supply 100 percent of our demand," said George Statham in the company's home office. "But if we don't get what we're supposed to from our suppliers (the major oil producers), we have to allocate to our dealers what is being allocated to us. Right now, we're on 80 percent diesel and 90 percent gasoline."

"We're making every effort to come up with special consignments and allocations," said Dale Glasson from Farmland's Amarillo office. "It's too early to tell if we've made any progress, though."

A Farmland crew spent last week in Washington meeting with representatives from the DOE, the U.S. Department of Agriculture and several Congressmen. "We feel confident we'll get some relief," Statham said. "But the system is complicated and we just don't know."

June Crucial Month

Glasson agreed with area distributors that June could be the make-or-break month for High Plains farmers, but predicted little improvement during the month. "If we could get our allocated gallons, we could almost catch up to the area's requirement," he said. "But our suppliers keep telling us they can't get enough crude."

Though it's of no consolation to South Plains farmers, the diesel shortage encompasses the nation's entire Farm Belt. "Bad shortages" are prevalent across the Midwest and Getty Oil, one of the Midwest's largest suppliers, announced Tuesday it was cutting back on diesel production to concentrate on gasoline.

Short, the chairman of a Senate subcommittee on diesel fuel shortages in agriculture, is still delving into the elusive problem without much luck.

"We've stayed in touch with the refiners and farmers who've testifed at our meetings," said Jessie George, Short's legislative assistant. "But we've received no additional information.

"We don't really know how it's going."

Warning Issued Against Storing, Carrying Fuel Cans In Autos

WASHINGTON (AP) Thousands of drivers hoping to avoid a shortae of gasoline are storing additional cans of fuel in their cars, turning their vehicles into potential firebombs, the Transportation Department warned Tuesday.

The trend toward storing gasoline in portable cans in homes and automobiles is becoming an "extremly dangerous situation," the department said.

It said the explosive power of a gallon of gasoline equals that of 14 sticks of dynamite.

"People are traveling with lethal liquid bombs in the trunks of their cars; it's like riding around with dynamite that can explode at any time," said Joan Claybrook, administrator of the department's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

"Even a minor rear-end collision or a spark from a short in a tail light or brake light could set off an inferno resulting in injury or death," she said in a statement.

Mrs. Claybrook said the public has a vivid memory of the long lines at service stations during the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo, and with gasoline shortages in many parts of the country "people once again are filling any available containers — from plastic household trash cans to gasoline cans — with fuel."

"Storage of gasoline in portable containers in the car or around the home always involves a high degree of risk," she warned.

She said recent inquiries by her agency show that the sale and production of gasoline cans has risen as much as 100 percent and that retailers are increasing their inventories, especially of five-gallon cans used for storage.

In California, where the most serious fuel shortages are reported, there have been several accidents caused by the ignition of stored gasoline cans.

A man and two children were burned to death in Edgemont in Riverside County when gasoline being stored in a house was ignited by sparks from a wall heater. Seven members of a Santa Ana family were seriously burned when a spark from a gas heater ignited fumes from gasoline stored in a 30-gallon plastic trash can in a closet.

The safety agency said motorists should consider the transportation of fuel only in extreme emergencies. In such cases, the container should be rugged, securely closed but vented and protected against accidental spillage or damage, it added.

Especially hazardous, the agency said, are glass, plastic and rusted metal containers. It said gasoline vapors can expand and split the seams of an unvented container. Expansion also can cause vapor leakage from a vented safety can, it warned.

The agency said there are no federal regulations on the construction or storage of gasoline cans, only rules requiring specific labeling of potentially hazardous materials.

Solons Urged To Block Oil, Coal Mergers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the Tennessee Valley Authority urged Congress Tuesday to act as a "court of last resort" and block major oil companies from buying into the coal business.

S. David Freeman, chairman of the board of directors of TVA, told the Senate antitrust subcommittee that oil company acquisitions have contributed to sharp rises in the price of coal.

He also said the Justice Department and Federal Trade Commission, the government's antitrust agencies, had failed to act aggressively enough, in his view, against the acquisitions.

"We are presenting these statistics to the committee as a court of last resort," he said.

Freeman said TVA's average coal costs jumped from less than $5 per ton in 1970 to more than $24 in 1978. He said as much as 10 percent of this might be caused by oil company acquisitions.

The TVA head testified as the subcommittee opened hearings on a bill sponsored by its chairman, Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the parent Judiciary Committee.

The bill would prohibit the top 16 oil companies from acquiring any other company with more than $100 million in assets.

Metzenbaum said the bill ws aimed partly at what he called a "shameless buying spree" in which oil companies have purchased cardboard companies, real estate developments, life insurance firms and other unrelated businesses. He said the money should be spent on energy development.

Freeman said he supported restricting oil industry giants from purchasing other businesses in the energy field. He took no position on the purchase of other types of business.

James Q. Riordan, a senior vice president of Mobil Corp., and T.A. Burtis, chief executive officer of the Sun Company, opposed the bill.

"We see no need for...legislation that would restrict the right of large companies to invest and compete," Riordan said.

He said Mobil, and the oil industry in general, already spend more on energy development than they make.

Burtis said Sun had expanded into other fields because it decided that "ultimately, oil and gas resources would not be sufficient to sustain a healthy, growing company."

The most common surname in the Soviet Union is Ivanov, the Russian equivalent of Johnson.

Black Activist, Restaurateur Plans 'KKK Appreciation Dinner'

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A black activist and restaurant owner said Tuesday he hopes to "spread a little love" by serving free turkey, ham, lemonade and sweet potato pie at a Ku Klux Klan rally.

McINTOSH

"No blacks are scared of the Ku Klux Klan. We got our own problems," said Robert "Say" McIntosh, who plans his "KKK Appreciation Dinner" at the Klan's June 9 rally on the campus of the University of Arkansas at Little Rock.

"We are scared of each other," he said. "They (the Klan) aren't the ones who put our women on the streets as prostitutes, shoot us up and break into our houses.

"I don't hate them (the Klan) for what their daddies and mothers did 40 years ago," McIntosh said.

Klan Imperial Wizard David Duke of Jefferson, La., said he was indifferent to McIntosh's plans.

"We are not trying to suppress the Negro in any way," Duke said in a telephone interview. "I think he is trying to make a point to show how nice blacks are. It seems to be a tiny gesture when you think about how much the white majority has given to them."

McIntosh circulated flyers Monday and Tuesday which said he appreciated the Klan for "showing your hatred for blacks."

"I wish you would dye some of your robes black for the black thieves, pimps, rapists and dope pushers who sell their black sisters and brothers of all ages deadly drugs," the flyers said.

The Arkansas chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People seemed to be taking a hands-off approach to McIntosh's gesture.

"I really don't think too much about it at all," said the Rev. Lamar Keels, state NAACP director. He said he thinks it's up to the white people to worry about "a bunch of clowns running around with sheets over their heads."

Jerol Garrison, a university spokesman, said its facilities are open to all groups as long as they abide by school policy. He said the Klan had agreed to abide by rules governing use of the facility.

McIntosh is the owner of the popular "Say McIntosh Restaurant" and a partner in The Sports Page Restaurant, both in Little Rock. He is widely known around the state as an activist in community affairs.

For several years, McIntosh has served free meals to various organizations to promote brotherhood in the community. He has also portrayed "Black Santa," distributing hundreds of gifts to the poor at his own expense.

House Texans Back Carter On Oil Decontrol

WASHINGTON (AP) -Texas members of the House Democratic Caucus lined up almost solidly Tuesday behind President Carter's plan to decontrol oil prices, but failed to fend off a resolution opposing it.

The vote on the non-binding resolution itself was delayed until the caucus resumes discussions this morning.

Seventeen of 20 Texas members voted on the losing side of a motion to table the resolution and effectively kill it. The motion failed 153-82, a margin the resolution's supporters hailed as a preview of their strength on the upcoming final ballot.

"I think this vote was our minimum strength," said U.S. Rep. Toby Moffett of Connecticut, the resolution's sponsor.

Another supporter, U.S. Rep. Edward Markey of Massachusetts, said the test vote was "a repudiation of the president's policy."

He said, 'I think this is the first clear indication that he (Carter) is totally at odds with what this party stands for."

The three Texans voting with the majority were U.S. Reps. Bob Eckhardt and Mickey Leland of Houston and Henry B. Gonzalez of San Antonio.

Carter does not need congressional approval to lift controls, but Congress can attempt to restore them.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth said that if the caucus passes the resolution "it would deeply embarrass the president of the United States. It would deeply embarrass the Democratic party."

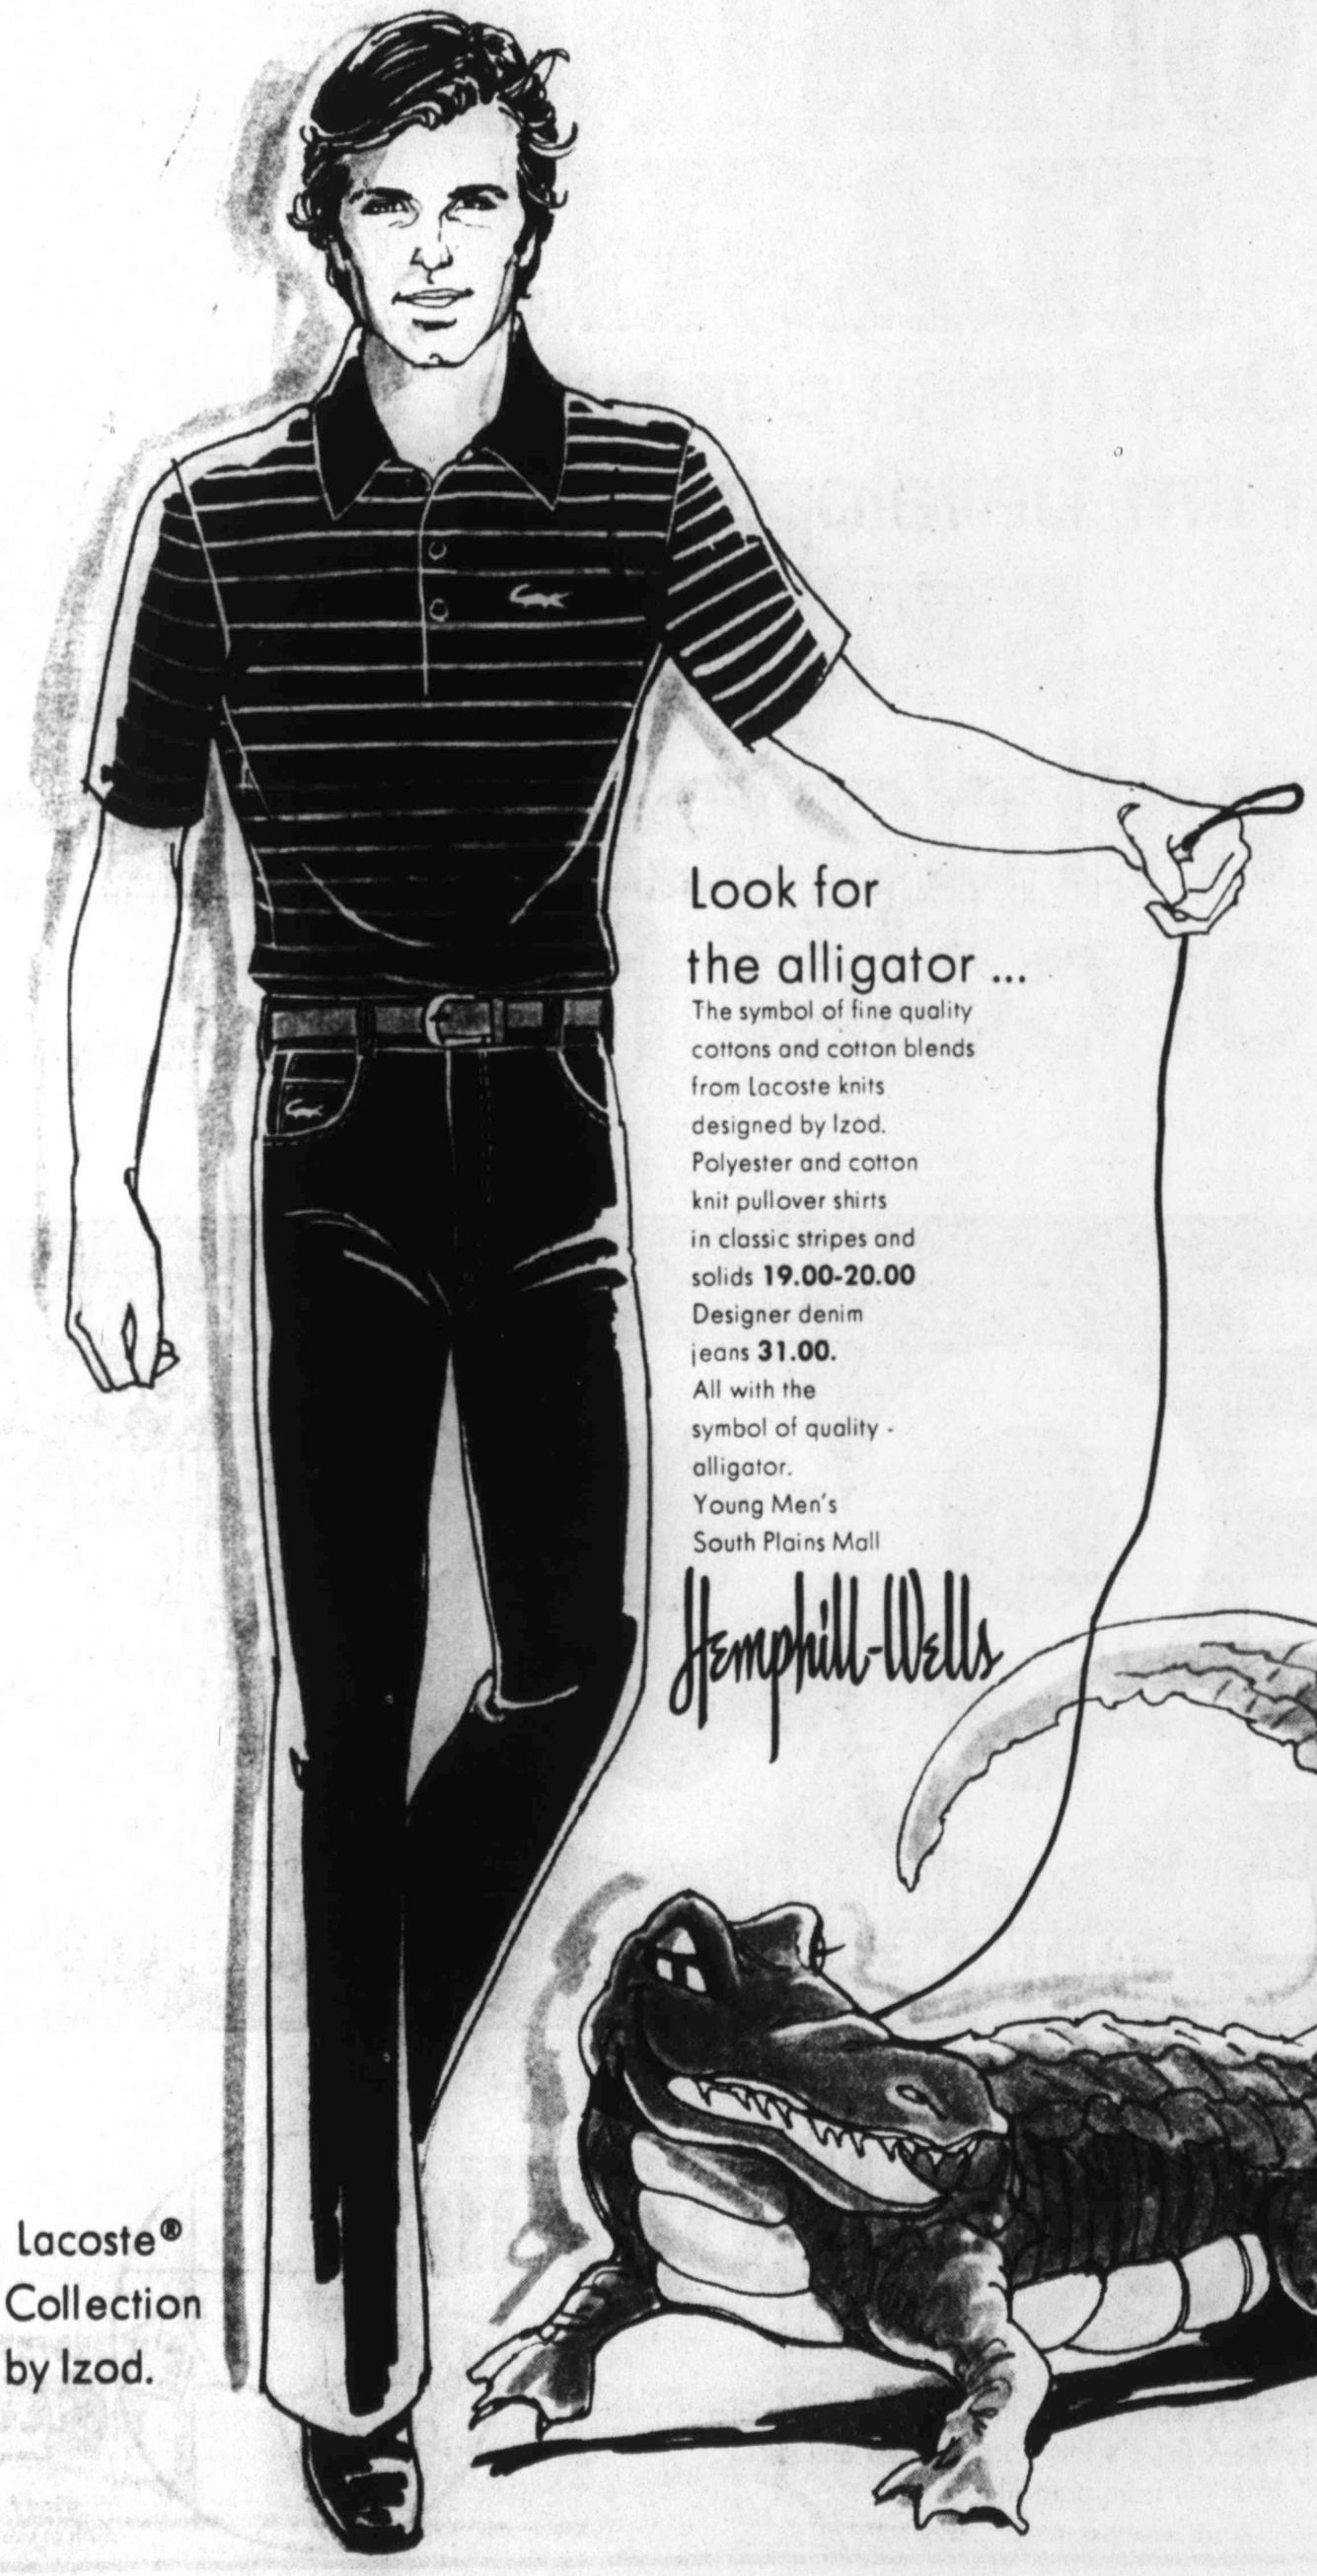

He said federal regulation of the domestic oil industry since the 1973 Arab embargo has served only to speed up the flow of dollars abroad.

"Let's not look for scapegoats, gentlemen. Let's look for solutions," Wright said.

New Officers Elected For City Unit Of American Cancer Society

Officers were elected and awards were presented at the annual meeting of the Lubbock unit of the American Cancer Society Monday night in the gold room of First Federal Plaza downtown.

Bill Horton was named to succeed Dr. Preston W. DeShan as president. Other officers elected included David Miller, vice president; Les Eubank, treasurer; and Janet McWhirter, secretary.

The "sword of hope" award was presented to First Federal Savings and Loan Association for providing facilities, hosting and catering the unit meeting and for offering volunteer time of numerous employees.

A special award also went to the citizens of John Knox Village for continuing readiness and assistance, especially in manning the information and guidance programs; and to Dave Knapp of the Avalanche-Journal for continuing cooperation and interest in the ACS.

Special recognition went to A.C. Wimberly of KMCC and to the Channel 28 station for producing and coordinating public service announcement ads; Mike Ogletree of Market Media for writing and coordinating the spots; and to Lisa Paikowski of the A-J for a feature series on cancer patients.

DeShan recognized Dr. John O'Brien, last year's crusade chairman, and lauded Tom McGovern for his work in increasing public education and Dr. Charles Votava for increasing professional education. Both are committee chairmen. Jeanne M. Knapp, public information co-chairman, was cited for outstanding achievement in public information.

Ballenger School Parents Group Asks Approval To Construct Swimming Pool

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A group of Ballenger School parents will ask the Lubbock school board Thursday for approval to construct a swimming pool to help improve the physical and motor development of mentally retarded students.

Clifford Scheffler, spokesman for the parents, said the proposed "therapeutic exercise facility" at the school for the trainable mentally retarded would be funded through the community, especially through the business community and community clubs.

He said "no total cost package" has been put together, but he estimated the facility would cost about $150,000.

The school district will be asked to absorb operating expenses, maintenance and repairs, which Scheffler said "should be minimal."

According to the proposal, the pool would be built in an alcove of the school formed by three already existing walls. Scheffler said the alcove "looks like it would be utilized for a facility of this type."

The pool would be 42 to 51 inches deep and equipped with ramps to accommodate the handicapped students, he said.

Scheffler said the idea originated from his own experience with his handicapped son, whose "confidence level and motor capabilities" have improved with use of a pool at their home.

"The handicapped are probably closer to normal in the physical area than in any other area," he said. "Their greatest success potential is in the physical and motor activities."

He said he approached Ballenger School principal Tommy Herring with the idea and "Tom thought it would be a great idea for the school there."

Although the district would not fund the building of the pool, Dr. E.C. Leslie, assistant superintendent for administration for the school district, said board approval must be obtained to initiate the proposal, especiallly inasmuch as the school district would handle maintenance and operating costs.

Other items on the school board agenda:

—Explanation of the federally funded Title I program by Warner Sims, director of special projects for the schools and Title I consultant Ann Bacon.

—Action on bid on dumpsters for the school system.

—Approval of vending machine bid specifications.

—Action on personnel matters.

The school board will meet Thursday at 7:15 a.m. in the Administration Building, 1628 19th St.

Man Given 30-Year Prison Term

A 20-year-old Lubbock Man Tuesday was sentenced to 30 years in the penitentiary for the Feb. 8 aggravated robbery of a Lubbock meat market.

The 140th District Court jury deliberated an hour and 10 minutes Monday afternoon to find Ricky Don Thornton of 2207 E. Cornell St. guilty and took 2 1/2 hours Tuesday morning and afternoon to set his punishment.

Prosecutors had enhanced the charge against Thornton because of two prior felony convictions, and he faced a maximum sentence of 99 years or life.

Assistant Criminal District Attorney Mark McBride asked a 99-year sentence. Defense attorney Lane Arthur asked a 15-year sentence, which was the minimum the jury could have given.

Thornton was charged with the shotgun-point robbery of Newburn's Meat Market at 215 Quirt Ave. of $50.

Gunman Frees Hostages To End Standoff

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A gunman who barricaded himself in a downtown Portland motor hotel with two women hostages surrendered to police Tuesday after a five-hour standoff, officers said.

No shots were fired and no one was hurt.

Police said James B. Lawson, 28, of Portland was charged with first-degree robbery. Bail was set at $100,000.

At different times through the afternoon, the gunman allowed three other hostages to leave and a fourth escaped.

Police said the man sent his handgun out with the final two hostages — Joan Wilson, 42, reservations office supervisor at the Red Lion Motor Inn, and Dee Meckfessel, 22 — and surrendered.

The man walked into the central reservation area about 4 p.m. EDT and gave a note to Tracey Felker, 20.

She returned to work without looking at it. "People come in all the time and give us notes for people and things like that," she said. "I really didn't look at it until he said, 'This is serious.'"

Miss Felker took the note — demanding money from all cash registers and money that was being prepared for an armored car service — to the front desk of the motel. A second worker, Loyce Jacobs, 20, was sent to tell motel officials they had three minutes to give up the money.

Job Training Program's Audit Reveals No Fraud

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A detailed audit of the operations of a federal job training program turned up approximately $148,000 worth of questions but uncovered no fraud, an auditor told South Plains Association of Government board members Tuesday.

Charles Cole of Kelly, Cole and Co. told board members his firm was asked by the Department of Labor to perform a financial and compliance audit of Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds from October 1, 1976, through June 30, 1978.

That audit was submitted to the Department of Labor in November, Cole said, and awaits the board's answers to questions raised in the audit.

Cole said his firm "did a very literal audit and questioned anything not in exact compliance" with federal regulations.

"We found no evidence of fraud," Cole said, adding the $148,409 worth of questions may be resolved when the South Plains Association of Governments submits its explanations.

"There has been substantial improvement in CETA operations," Cole said.

On questioning by Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan, Cole acknowledged "the preponderance" of the problems occurred in the first 12 to 13 months of the audit period.

Board president Medlin Carpenter labeled disclosure of the audit "premature" and suggested that an ad hoc committee be appointed to explore the audit in depth once the Department of Labor completes its examination.

With board approval of that idea, Lubbock County Judge Rod Shaw, Mrs. Jordan and Post Mayor Giles McCrary were named to study the audit and report back to the board.

On questioning about why the audit was not presented to the board earlier,Cole said the area governmental panel's management was aware of the audit and Carpenter said he attended the exit interview for the audit in November.

Cole said it was his understanding the audit would be presented to the Department of Labor before being presented to the governmental panel's board since the federal government was paying for the audit.

"The process has not been completed at this point in time," Cole said.

Some of the procedures questioned in the audit included "some instances where we couldn't find documentation on certain participants as to their eligibility" and some participants not meeting residency requirements within certain parts of the city of Lubbock.

Also on Tuesday the board received its annual audit and accompanying management letter which recommended certain procedural changes.

Cole suggested "closer control over contracting agencies" and that separate books be maintained for each of the association's major subcontractors. However, board members seemed at odds over the meaning of the recommendations in the management letter.

Mrs. Jordan noted the board received "a letter like this every year" and said it is "not unusual for you (Cole) or any auditing firm to present a letter suggesting changes."

Cole agreed, saying the management letter is a "common practice in the industry," but said it is "not a common practice to give it to the board of directors."

Shaw questioned why board members had just received the audit and letter dated in January, but Cole explained the documents are dated when field work is completed on the audit.

In other business, it was noted that 19 persons have expressed interest in filling the job of executive director for the South Plains Association of Governments. The position has been vacant since former director Truett Mayes'sdeath Feb. 28.

Glenda Robinson, the association's executive secretary since 1968, has been serving as acting director.

All applications will have been turned in by the end of May, Carpenter said, adding he expects the new director will be appointed in August.

Board members voted approval on two grant applications for federal, state and local funding of a proposed regional emergency medical services system. The requests for a combined $954,280 in federal funds, $200,000 in state funds and $597,419 on the local level come after years of debate on the proposed system.

The first grant application is directed to the establishment of training programs for physicians, nurses and other medical personel in emergency medicine. The application for funding states that diagnosis and treatment during the first hours of emergency care require special training.

The second application is directed to the initial development of comprehensive emergency medical services systems for three Texas planning regions, including the South Plains, under the administrative coordination of the Texas Department of Health. The funds would be used to train and certify personel, provide ambulance inspection and improve communications systems.

Both applications will be sent to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

If federal funds are appropriated, the South Plains Emergency Medical Services Inc. will be responsible for coordinating a four-year development program.

According to Judy Atcheson, South Plains Health Systems project review director, there has been some misunderstanding about the development of a regional system.

Mrs. Atcheson said the desire to establish a coordinated regionwide system is not a negative reflection against existing ambulance services across the South Plains. The plan is intended to both boost existing services and provide emergency medical services capabilities to counties which now have none.

Sundown School District Hit With Suit

A Sundown elementary school teacher who in January married the principal of the school in which she was teaching filed suit Tuesday in federal district court for what she claims was the unconstitutional refusal of the school board in March to renew her contract on the basis of a policy against employees supervising spouses.

Donna Gayle Gill, wife of elementary school principal Dalton Gill, claims in the suit filed by Lubbock attorney Barbara K. Hoffman that the school approved the policy in January after she was married.

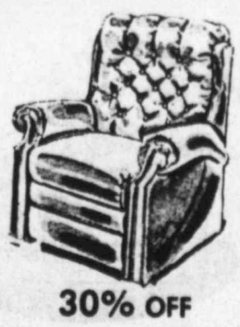

The fourth-grade teacher is asking that the Sundown Independent School District be ordered to renew her contract and that she be awarded $140,000 in damages.

She claims school superintendent G.D. Lasater told her in a March conversation that his recommendation against renewal was because of the board policy and was not related to her job performance.

Hints from Heloise

HI THERE:
We get letter after letter asking how to restore the shine to dulled marble after cleaners have been applied. Also, how to remove stubborn stains and water rings. You might recall that a few years ago we told you how to take care of "genuine" marble table tops but, since requests keep coming in, here's the first of our "Worth Repeating" hints.

These tips, courtesy of the Marble Institute of America, are for genuine marble only, so easy does it, friends. They may damage materials that only resemble marble. If you are in doubt about an item you want to clean, check with a reputable marble dealer.

Beautiful and durable marble-topped furniture should be treated with the same care you would give any other fine finish on a valuable piece of furniture.

Since marble is a somewhat porous substance, food and beverage stains that mar the finish of fine wood may also mar polished marble. Moisture rings may result from sweating glasses. Beverages containing acid fruit juices, such as wine, may etch the finish, so be sure to use coasters under glasses — and blot up spills immediately. Wash stains with water and a soft cloth.

If the stain cannot be removed with water, you'll have to apply a poultice. The poultice can be made of white blotting paper (paper napkins, towels, or cleansing tissues). The poultice should be soaked in one of the following solutions, depending on the stain. Once in place, cover the poultice with plastic (a bread wrapper works fine) or place an upended glass over it to prevent evaporation of the moisture.

For organic stains caused by beverages, flowers, color dyes, use a poultice of hydrogen peroxide (20 volume) or full-strength household ammonia.

For oil stains caused by butter, milk, hand lotions, crayons, etc., apply a poultice of amyl acetate or acetone.

Rust stains caused by flowerpots, cans, nails or any metal that rusts, call for a poultice soaked in a commercial rust remover.

A poultice may take from one to 48 hours to work, depending upon the stain.

On oooasion, even though the stain has been removed, etch marks that resemble dull scuff marks will remain. Acid causes this, but repolishing the marble can remove them.

To do this, wet the surface with clear water and sprinkle on a polishing powder of tin oxide, available from hardware stores or marble dealers.

Rub the powder into the marble with a damp cloth and continue buffing until the etch marks disappear and the surface shines. For further protection, use a non-yellowing wax.

Hopefully this will solve your problem, although there is a limit as to what can be achieved with home remedies. If your marble has been severely abused or badly discolored, dbn't hesitate to ask a professional marble dealer for help.

In the meantime, sit down and have a cup of coffee while you clip out this hint for now or sometime in the future when you find yourself face to face with this problem. — Hugs, Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
I'm a mother of two children under the age of 3.

Occasionally when one of them is ill, the doctor will suggest giving him a smaller dose of adult medicine.

I have found a good way to remember just what the dosage is, and also to keep the spoon handy.

I use a rubber band to attach the proper size measuring spoon to the neck of the bottle. This is also handy in that you will be using the same spoon over and over (after rinsing it clean, of course) rather than using several. — Kae

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

Every year I like to set goals for myself. This year is no exception. For 1979, I vowed I would (a) find inner peace, (b) study the religions of the world, (c) buy a bathing suit.

I was going to compromise the third goal when I got out my old two-piece bathing suit this year. Only one piece of it fit me. It is not important for anyone to know which piece it was. It is sufficient to say that if I appeared in it in public it would totally destroy my aura of mystery.

I don't buy a new bathing suit every year. It isn't because it represents a major purchase. It is because if I wanted that kind of pain I'd run the Boston Marathon or give birth in a Volkswagen.

To begin with, I am never psychologically ready for the styles. When I heard that this year's bathing suits were one piece, I had an entirely different concept in my mind as to what they would look like. Imagine my surprise when I picked up a one-piece suit and it caught on my ring finger.

The nymphs who appear in the ads lead me to believe the artist is sketching from memory. There hasn't been a girl with those measurements since Scarlett O'Hara trussed herself into a 16-inch corset.

To survive the summer at the pool I had to devise a list of "Rules for Swimming."

1. Never frequent pools with full-length mirrors in the dressing room.
2. Do not go into the pool area until you have seen three women who look more rotten than you do in a suit.
3. If someone is wearing the same floral suit, do not stand close unless her flowers are opened at the same size as yours.
4. Make sure the chlorine foot bath is deep enough to tread water in.
5. Do not go into the water until three hours after you've eaten or your stomach goes down, whichever comes first.
6. A beach ball, a folding chair and an air mattress may seem cumbersome, but when worn cover the effects of a long winter.
7. When sunning, hold a child on your lap.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: I'm 66. A couple of years ago I got rheumatoid arthritis in my joints. My doctor prescribed Indocin. It relived my discomfort, and I have my blood checked periodically for thinning. Is aspirin as effective as Indocin? How much aspirin is equal to a 25-milligram Indocin tablet? What is the name of the drug or drugs that make up Indocin? — S.A.H.

What you're really asking is why take a drug many times more expensive than aspirin if the effect is the same? Medicine and economics don't mix very well, but here goes.

The drug you name (indomethacin) is one member of a new "family" of medicines for control of arthritis inflammation. Since no drug cures this condition, the question is which drug controls it better for you with the least side effects, the lowest dosage and least cost. If cost was the only factor, the answer would be easy. An aspirin tablet costs a few cents, with the average dose for control about 12 a day. A 25-milligram indomethacin tablet may cost 20 cents and you may need several a day.

Unfortunately, it's not that simple. These new anti-inflammation drugs were developed to provide an alternative to aspirin for people who could not use it. Many cannot tolerate continued high dosages of aspirin. It may cause problems in some, not in others, or the side effects may be less severe from one of the newer drugs than from aspirin.

Don't switch from your present drug to aspirin without consulting your doctor, because the side effects (ringing in the ears, upset stomach, etc.) may be different depending on which is used. If you think you can fare as well with the relatively inexpensive aspirin, you can ask your doctor to let you try.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I was reading in a magazine about how a movie star had his hearing restored by a surgeon who made a new stapes bone for his ear. I am practically deaf without my hearing aid. I am 51 and interested in this new technique. Could you tell me the name of the surgeon who did this? — Mrs. P.L.

Nothing new about this. The surgery has been done successfully for many years. Any ear specialist can inform you about this and tell you whether improvement would be possible. It might since you tell me you have success hearing with a hearing aid. That indicates conduction deafness rather than nerve deafness.

Let me explain briefly. When sound waves enter the ear they cause the ear drum to vibrate. The stapes (STAY-peez) is bone on the inner surface of the drum. When the drum vibrates so does the stapes. These vibrations travel through the ear fluid and are picked up by special nerve endings. You hear this way. No vibration, no sound.

So long as there is no nerve disorder or eardrum defect the surgery to construct a new stapes bone is quite successful. There are many other reasons for conductive hearing loss, involving other structures. So not all deafness can be helped by the surgery, even if there is no nerve damage in the ear. The most common cause of conductive hearing loss is otosclerosis, a kind of thickening of this hearing mechanism. This may be helped by the surgery.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Is it harmful to use straight undiluted formaldehyde on fingernails? Many women at my office are using it. It does make my nails hard and prevents splitting. But I have noticed white spots appearing on my nails. — E.K.

I wouldn't advise it. This chemical compound is a potent irritant. It may be found in very minute and harmless amounts in some commercial nail hardeners. But in its pure state it is very likely to cause skin irritation and discolor nails, even cause you to lose one. It may take months for the nails to recover. The white spots indicate damage to the nail bed (matrix). You can be a office hero by passing on this information.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have read that menstrual blood does not clot. Why not? — L.B.

It clots, but does so within the uterine cavity. It then returns to liquid form and does not clot again.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Since my parents have been gone for many years and loved me very much, I don't want to raise any rugs looking for dirt. However, the letter from "Throckmorton and Mehitabel" could have helped me a lot had it appeared 50 years sooner.

My parents gave me initials — no name. The result was that I became introverted — almost withdrawn — knowing that everyone who entered my life would have some comment like: "What, no name? You MUST have a name."

While other kids wanted ball gloves and bikes, I would have settled for just having a name — to be a REAL somebody.

Then came the legal forms — credit cards, military papers, etc. Can you believe, they came back time and again: "Incomplete." "Sorry, we must have your complete name. No initials, please." "First NAME, middle initial. Please read the instructions."

Because of my parents' inability to foresee these complications, I suffered needlessly. Almost every day someone asks, "What is your REAL name? What do the initials stand for?"

So to all parents who are about to name a child, I ask you not to force them to go through life silently questioning, every time they look at you, "Why did you do this to me?" — C.E. Of Rockford

Dear Rock: Great letter. Thanks on behalf of all the initialed nameless out there.

• • •

Dear Ann Landers: I applaud the confidential answer to "Full of Doubts." I think it spoke for many of us. (I believe you said, "Some people who are institutionalized are more rational than many individuals who are walking the streets.") I'd like to share my view of counseling and the "sanity" of some of us who've experienced it.

It's hard for me to believe the inability of people to speak to a trained, qualified therapist in order to help themselves sort out their lives. It's also hard to realize that some people think if you have had or are having counseling, you are either weak or a little cuckoo.

I first went for counseling eight years ago because I was very unhappy and I didn't believe my life had to be that way. (My goal is not a bed of roses but I would like fewer peaks and valleys — more steadiness and self-confidence.)

I believe I'm a great deal healthier than some of my relatives and friends who continue to blame overbearing (or weak) spouses, a boring job, demanding parents, ungrateful children and insensitive friends. Therapy has taught me that I am responsible for how I feel. It saved my sanity. — Still Battling

Dear Battler: You spoke to and for a great many people today. Thanks for an excellent message. Your last paragraph is a gem.

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday I was visiting in the home of a friend. Her small child was sitting on her lap while we were enjoying a cup of hot tea. The youngster (age two) suddenly upset the tea cup and scalded herself on the arm. My friend immediately put butter on the burn — said it was something she had learned from her grandmother. My mother always put a cold towel on our burns. What is the best thing to use? — Scranton

Dear Scran: Ice cubes.

INEXPENSIVE DECORATING IDEA — Who would believe that behind this attractive pit sofa lurks a plywood core? This environment can be built in a weekend for under $500. Use ¾-inch plywood, pre-cut to size by a lumber yard. Cover it with wallcovering. White velvet fabric slipcovers the foam cushions elegantly.

Plants Help Filter Air

Many joggers tell of running alongside a busy road gasping for breath because of auto fumes, and nearly sick from the odor. They turn off the road into a quiet, well-landscaped community, perhaps a park, and almost immediately the noises are muted, the temperature cools, the air is fresh and the noxious odors are gone.

As remarkable as this may seem to the jogger, it's no news to the gardener. He has always known of the air filtering and cleaning effects of living plants. With almost no effort these same advantages can be brought into any home or community environment to make it more healthy as well as attractive.

Just about anything planted will enhance the environment, but recent studies have shown that trees not only act as windbreaks, but also cause dust and airborne particles to settle out of the atmosphere. In some cases, the additional turbulence caused by irregular surfaces of tree tops actually makes their air cleaning efforts more effective.

Another study has shown that a dense row of hedges cuts the lead content in polluted air by 40 percent.

Evergreens are considered best for air filtering action because they stay green and dense all year. They are also known for their superior capacity for removing submicroscopic particles from the air.

But whatever the plant, it will make a contribution. The deciduous trees that have hairy leaf surfaces and rough bark, as well as some plants like sunflowers, have an amazing absorption effect on noxious odors. Plants act much like commercial air conditioners in their capacity to rejuvenate stale or "bad" air.

All plants have oxygen-rich air in, around and under them. As bad air moves through the plants it is mixed, filtered, and finally diluted by the richer good air. It stands to reason, then, that the more plants one can introduce into his environment, the healthier and cleaner that environment will be.

According to the American Association of Nurserymen, the air filtering plants are part of the Green Survival work force everyone should be aware of. Trees remove a wide range of impurities from the air such as ash, dust, pollen, smoke odors and fumes. As people become aware of the air-saving quality of plants and begin to add more trees, shrubs and grasses to their homes, the environment of our communities will become inviting for jogging as well as a wide array of other outdoor activities.

Filtering the air with living plants is another expression of Green Survival.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

When a hand is played a couple of hundred thousand times it is almost impossible to get a complete top or bottom score. Nevertheless, we are going to show a couple of results that would come close if all results could be tabulated together.

At nearly all tables someone will play at a low part score and probably make it or go down a trick or possibly two. At this one table North, who liked to open the bidding and never bid a four-card major, opened one diamond. South didn't know exactly what to do and just raised to two.

Now West, a free spirit, elected to compete with a takeout double. East responded with two spades and South bid his six-card club suit. When this got back to East he went to three spades. North wanted to double, but he got no chance. South went to four clubs and West doubled.

He had an interesting reason for this double. He was looking at three aces and he thought that his partner would have just one diamond. Therefore, he led the three of diamonds.

East produced the ace much to West's happy surprise and promptly led the suit back. West was then able to collect tricks with his own three aces and give East a diamond ruff to come out with plus 500 on a nondescript sort of hand.

Food Stamp Boost Scheduled July 1

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food stamp allotments for low-income families will go up July 1.

The increase will be 6.8 percent, explained Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman, and is based on the increases in the cost of foods in the department's thrifty food plan.

With the increase, the maximum monthly allotment in the 48 contiguous states and the District of Columbia for a family of four with no net income will rise from $191 to $204. Nearly all food-stamp households will receive less than this, however, because allotments are reduced if a family has income.

The maximum monthly income a family of four may have and still receive stamps will increase from $542 to $596.

Although the cost of all foods rose 7.9 percent, the stamp allotment is rising by a smaller amount because it is based on using the least expensive foods available to achieve an adequate diet. These less costly foods have not increased in price as much as more expensive items, Ms. Foreman explained.

Health Sciences Hospital's Financial Situation Getting Worse

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The question is no longer whether Health Sciences Center Hospital will run out of money — but when.

Monday's meeting of the Lubbock County Hospital District Board of Managers indicated hospital district officials are growing more concerned with the teaching hospital's uncertain financial situation.

The increasing concern was evidenced by a proposal to ask county commissioners to appoint a blue ribbon committee to explore, among other things, alternate sources of revenue — including a wider tax base.

LCHD Executive Director Gerald Bosworth has repeatedly stressed that by the end of the year the hospital could face a cash shortfall of more than $900,000. This projected shortfall does not take into consideration a current $4 million state grant which will run out this year.

The Board of Managers is preparing a presentation to the county commissioners which will probably accompany the request for a wider tax base. Several board members have expressed doubts that the commissioners will be receptive to increasing the hospital's county subsidy in light of recent problems in the hospital's billing system.

Financial reports for March indicate that though the amount in accounts receivable (uncollected bills) is up, collection has been stepped up for accounts more than 30 days old, more than 60 days old, and more than 120 days old. This indicates that hospital officials are starting to catch up on the institution's staggering backlog of unpaid bills.

In a meeting of the board's finance committee (which also met Monday) committee chairman C. Wayne Smith said expenses were down last month, but revenue was down also. The decrease in expenses was not enough to put the hospital's financial situation ahead.

Bosworth claims the biggest problem the hospital is facing is its inability to fill its beds. Admissions are running behind expectations, he said.

Bill Stinnett, the hospital's associate director for finances, said the hospital would have come close to expected revenue figures had hospital occupancy come up to expectations.

"Had we had the volume, we would have come pretty close," Stinnett said. "The volume is what's causing the shortfall at this point."

The board discussed two approaches to strengthening the hospital's financial picture.

Stinnett is working on a study of projected receipts for Health Sciences Center Hospital, to predict "where, down the road, we could conceivably run out of cash."

Board member Don McInturff hesitated to supply funds for an auditor's survey of Stinnett's report, however. He found it difficult to authorize the spending of more money when facing "bankruptcy," just to have the auditor say, "Yes, you're facing bankruptcy."

The board voted to get an auditor's estimate before approving the appropriation.

In another approach, Bosworth called for the formation of a county commissioners' "blue ribbon committee" to study alternate forms of revenue for the hospital district as well as the projected economic impact of the hospital on the community over the next few years.

Bosworth predicted a study of the hospital's contribution to the community would be "very revealing," adding that the hospital and medical school add to the economy through continued construction jobs as well as retail sales growth.

Bosworth quoted what he called a "conservative estimate" of expected community benefits, claiming Lubbock's economy could be stimulated between $1.2 billion and $1.5 billion over the next 10 years.

Hospital district officials will ask for the formation of the "blue ribbon committee" at the next meeting of the county commissioners.

The jackpot drawing will be held 30 days after the termination announcement (place and time to be announced later in our ads). All Bingo winners will have 7 days after termination announcement to claim prizes, and be eligible for jackpot drawing. All jackpot drawing will be supervised by the Certified Public Accounting firm, Alexander Grant & Co. in Oklahoma City.

Heartline

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Heartline is a service of senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 East Dayton Street, West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.)

Sometime last year, you had information in your column about person over the age of 80 being able to receive birthday greetings from the president. My father will be turning 82 this fall and I wanted to arrange for him to receive this greeting. However, I have misplaced the address you said to write to to make these arrangements. Could you please reprint this information? — L.C.

The White House sends out birthday greetings to American senior citizens who are 80 years or older. To receive a greeting from the president, just drop a letter in the mail stating your name, age and date of birth. The president also sends greetings to 50th wedding anniversary celebrants. Mail your requests to: Greeting Office, White House, Washington, D.c. 20500.

HEARTLINE: I received an honorable discharge after completing a two-year enlistment in the Army. Am I eligible for a headstone or grave marker even though I have no wartime service? — S.M.

A headstone or grave marker is available for a deceased veteran of wartime or peacetime service (other than for training) who was discharged under conditions other than dishonorable. Reservists who die while on duty may also be eligible.

HEARTLINE: Do I need a Social Security number to receive wife's benefits? — R.V.

Yes. If you do not have one, you must apply for a number when you file a claim for benefits.

HEARTLINE: How do I go about withholding taxes on my Civil Service pension? I have read about writing here and there before, but it seems so complicated. Isn't there a simple way? — A.B.

The simplest and fastest way to withhold taxes from a Civil Service annuity is to contact your local Internal Revenue Service Office and ask for the W-4P tax withholding form. This form asks for your name, address, Social Security number, annuity identification number, amount to be withheld from each pension payment and the signature of the annuitant. This form can be completed and mailed to the payer of your pension.

HEARTLINE: How much of a reduction widow's benefits must I take by drawing Social Security widow's benefits before age 65? — C.P.

If you draw Social Security widow's benefits before age 65, your benefits are reduced 19/40th of one percent per month for each month prior to age 65 that you begin drawing Social Security widow's benefits. If your husband never received any Social Security benefits, then your percentage is figured on his unreduced age-65 benefit. If your husband was drawing Social Security benefits at his death, then your widow's benefit percentage is based on the amount of money he was drawing. The following shows the percentage of husband's benefits you are eligible to receive as a widow:

Age 60 — 71.5 percent; age 61 — 77.2 percent; age 62 — 82.9 percent; age 63 — 88.6 percent; age 64 — 94.3 percent; age 65 and over — 100 percent.

Credit Opportunity Rule Tightened

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board has extended its equal credit opportunity rule to people who arrange credit.

The rule prohibits discrimination in lending.

The change took effect Monday. The regulation now covers real estate brokers, home builders and automobile dealers as well as the lenders themselves.

The change was made at the suggestion of the Federal Trade Commission staff, which expressed concern about real estatee brokers infuencing credit extensions. In addition, a study by the Department of Housing and Urban Development indicated that "steering" by real estate brokers has caused problems for minorities trying to obtain housing.

The change does not cover persons whose only part in a credit transaction involves honoring a credit card.

Broad Support Urged For SALT Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign Minister Pierre Aubert of Switzerland told Vice President Walter F. Mondale Tuesday he hopes the strategic arms limitation treaty between the United States and Russia will receive broad international support.

Aubert, concluding a five-day official visit to the United States, met with Mondale for a half hour at the White House.

A vice presidential aide who declined to be identified said Mondale expressed the administration's admiration for Switzerland's human rights record, and Aubert noted "with satisfaction" the progress toward a SALT II treaty that Carter is due to sign in Vienna.

Crime Prevention Council To Cut Costs

By JEFF McCASLIN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

In an effort to hold down its mounting debts, the Lubbock County Crime Prevention Council's executive committee decided in a special meeting last week to suspend all future expenditures unless authorized by the board of directors.

LCCPC President Mal Cleland, reporting on the special meeting to the council Tuesday, said the organization still owes $9,400 in outstanding debts while the bank balance shows $2,815 in receipts from the Business Crimes Symposium held May 3.

Cleland said that although the council needs to come up with about $6,600 to meet the debt load, the executive committee decided the LCCPC should raise $20,000 during its first year of operation.

"I don't think it (raising $20,000) is a major undertaking," Cleland said, adding he will ask the fund-raising committee to meet and discuss possible funding efforts.

Cleland also told the council that the executive committee decided to observe Roberts' Rules of Order at all subsequent meetings to keep the LCCPC apolitical.

"We should put it in the by-laws of this council that we will follow Roberts' Rules of Order and stay out of the political arena," he said. "We must not become involved in political issues."

Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford said Operation Identification, which was launched three weeks ago, is moving slowly, but meticulously, down the road of helping curtail crime in Lubbock.

"It's too early to tell the statistical effects of Operation Identification but my feeling is that the citizens know our county is getting tough on crime, and Operation Identification is the key to cutting down the crime rate.

"This project is not going to cut down the number of burglaries overnight, but the street talk I've heard is in favor of law abiding citizens."

Montford said all the markers purchased for Operation Identification should be checked out by the end of the summer, adding it will take some time because the city is being canvassed on a block-to-block basis.

Three young offenders who are serving time in the state prison at Huntsville visited Lubbock last week as a preview of a program that will be available to schools by the Concerned Citizens Crime Commission.

Ray Chapman, who represents the Concerned Citizens on the LCCPC, said the youthful offenders presented their life stories on the road to crime and how they plan to rehabilitate themselves to fit back into society.

Chapman said the program won't cost the council any money but is very beneficial to students in teaching them what happens to young criminals.

The council also approved supplying local realtors with logos and information sheets on Operation Identification but requiring them to purchase their own marking devices to help new homeowners mark valuable items.

The LCCPC also accepted the resignation of Rick Childers as treasurer and nominated council member Nat Kizer to fill that position. He will also act as purchasing agent for the council.

Childers' cited lack of time and extra work load in his position as administrative assistant to Mayor Dirk West as reasons for his resignation.

Before adjoining Tuesday's meeting, Montford lauded the group's efforts to curb crime in Lubbock County.

"As Criminal District Attorney I would like to say I think this council has done an outstanding job in preventing crime. If you look back five months ago, what crime prevention did we have then?

"I think we've come a long way since we got this thing started and hope we can continue."

The LCCPC will meet every first and third Tuesday at 7:15 a.m. in the Emergency Operations Center in City Hall.

Long-Distance Life Flight Set

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Air ambulance service, designed for long distance transport of critically or terminally ill patients, will begin serving the South Plains from Houston June 1.

The service, called Life Flight LD, will be offered by Houston's Hermann Hospital. It is patterned after a similar hemisphere-wide air ambulance operated since 1972 by St. Anthony's Hospital in Denver, Colo.

Life Flight LD will operate a turboprop jet, medically equipped to carry three patients. Each flight will carry a registered nurse trained in emergency treatment, and a one-pilot crew.

The long-distance service is an outgrowth of Hermann Hospital's helicopter emergency transport service, which covers a 130-mile radius from the Houston-based Texas Medical Center.

Life Flight LD stems partially from Houston's interest in the terminally ill, according to a spokeswoman for Hermann Hospital.

"People come to Houston from all over the country for cancer treatment at M.D. Anderson Hospital," she explained, "and when their treatments are finished they want to go home.

"Often they are too ill and come from too far away to be moved any other way," she said.

Critically ill patients who need specific treatment only available in a distant city also could benefit from the service, according to the spokeswoman.

Patients can be transported to and from any locations which have adequate landing facilities for the plane. Hermann Hospital plans to serve the continental United States, Canada, Mexico and South America.

St. Anthony's Hospital reports that in their five years of operation, "Flight for Life" planes have taken patients to 28 states, Canada, Mexico and Costa Rica.

The Life Flight LD plane will be in Lubbock today, arriving at 1:30 p.m. at Avtech Aviation. The public is invited to inspect the aircraft at that time.

PEOPLE PLACES THINGS

Singer Plans TV Special

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Singer Anita Bryant, known for her campaigns for oranges and against homosexual rights, says her first television special will provide an entertaining alternative to the current fare of sex and violence.

ANITA BRYANT

Miss Bryant, in Ohio for three days of filming, said Monday she believes the show, which has been in the works for a year, "will be able to compete with the best."

Filming for the special, which is expected to be aired sometime this fall, has taken the singer-evangelist and her crew to Sun Valley, Idaho, West Point, N.Y., Valley Forge, Pa., and to Zanesville.

Money to put the special together was raised by Miss Bryant, with contributions from persons sympathetic to r views, she said in a telephone interview Monday night.

A variety show planned for the former Miss Oklahoma was cancelled because of the controversy arising from her successful campaign in Dade County, Fla., to repeal an ordinance outlawing discrimination against homosexuals.

Referring to that cancellation, the singer said, "This is all the more reason why (the special) has more meaning."

She said she hopes the special proves that "the alternative of a God, family, and country show, getting back to basic values, can be done in an entertaining way."

"It's encouraging to see this kind of support," she said.

Davis, Girlfriend To Wed

FORT WORTH (AP) — Cullen Davis and his long-time girlfriend, Karen Master, will marry this week, after his divorce becomes final, the multimillionaire industrialist says.

MRS. MASTER

While Davis wouldn't say exactly what day, a close friend said, "The wedding will probably be Thursday. They want to be married as soon as the divorce is final."

Mrs. Master, who has been married once previously, was a key witness for Davis at two criminal trials — when Davis was accused of murdering his 12-year-old stepdaughter during a shooting spree at the Davis mansion in August 1976 and when Davis was accused of putting out a contract on the life of his divorce court judge.

Mrs. Master testified Cullen was in bed with her at the time of the shooting, and Davis was acquitted. Several months ago, she corroborated his story that he was "just playing along" with Cries David McCrory, his former employee-turned-informant, when they discussed various murder plots. A hung jury resulted.

Davis said his marriage to Mrs. Master will be a quiet affair at a friend's home in Fort Worth, with only a few couples on hand.

"It won't be at Karen's and it won't be at the mansion. We want to keep it very small and very private," Davis said of the wedding.

Inmates Aid Police To-Be

ANGOLA, La. (AP) — At least two future police officers can thank a group of inmates at Angola State Prison for their education.

The Angola Amateur Boxing Association, which began a scholarship program six months ago, already has $5,000 and has presented two high school seniors $1,000 each to study law enforcement.

"It's hard to understand why an inmate would want someone to go into law enforcement, but they're trying to help close the communication gap," said Lt. Col. Richard Wall, an Angola security officer and boxing association sponsor.

Part of the scholarship fund comes from the inmates' pockets and part from the sale of sandwiches at boxing club fights.

Each scholarship represents thousands of hours of inmate labor at wages of t to five cents an hour.

The first scholarships of $1,000 each went to Tennie Brouillette Jr. of Marksville and Roy LeBlanc Jr. of Bordelonville.

Film Of Monitor Eyed

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Underwater explorer Jacques Cousteau wants to film the wreckage of the Civil War ironclad Monitor and local officials have set a May 29 meeting to consider the application.

COUSTEAU

The Monitor, which sank in 1862 after a battle with the Confederate ironclad Virginia, is under 200 feet of water off Cape Hatteras. It's exact location was not known until 1973.

The Monitor Technical Advisory Committee will meet in Raleigh to consider Cousteau's application to conduct a three-day expedition at the site during the first week in June.

Larry Tise, director of the state Division of Archives and History and chairman of the Monitor committee, said Cousteau plans to film the wreck for a future program in his "Undersea World" television series.

Tise said he felt an expedition by Cousteau would benefit the overall research program of the Monitor.

"I think it would be a good thing as long as it is a 'hands-off' operation," Tise said. "There certainly needs to be some sympathetic publicity, especially as regards the fragility of the wreck and the difficulty of access to the site."

Love On Auction Block

SAN DIEGO (AP) — You may not be able to buy love, but if your bid is high enough, you can get rid of it at a San Diego charity auction.

Two attorneys have donated divorces to the upcoming annual Combined Arts and Education Council auction.

One uncontested divorce valued at $750 has been put on the auction block by Philip Andreen. Attorney Mark S. Dodge is offering eight hours of office work and the filing-fees to the unhappy couple.

The something-for-everyone auction catalog also features a vasectomy valued at $150. The surgery was donated by an anonymous urologist.

TOP TEACHER — Clint Ramsey, track coach at South Plains College in Levelland for the past 10 years, has received the annual Excellence in Teaching award. The honor also includes a $1,500 check from the First National Bank of Levelland. Ramsey, whose track squads consistently include the top sprinters in the Southwest, was voted recipient of the award by the SPC faculty.

Fresh, Raw Vegetables Usually Less Costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The time for fresh vegetables is arriving, and here's some food for thought from the federal Office of Consumer Affairs:

"In season, fresh raw foods usually cost less then canned or frozen varieties. Depending on the time of year and your personal preference, it is a good idea to comparison shop between different forms of the same food. For example, according to U.S. Department of Agriculture researchers, fresh carrots usually cost less than the canned or frozen varieties. But, frozen spinach generally costs less than spinach in canned or fresh forms. Always compare and watch for sale prices as well."

Castration Bill's Fate Ires Sponsor Of Measure

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — A female legislator who wanted to castrate child molesters is angry that even a compromise measure appears dead.

Rep. Joyce Lewis, R-Auburn, dropped her asexualization plan some weeks ago to embrace a different treatment technique. The revised bill called for a $5,000 study of treating repeat child molesters with hormone injections. But the House of Representatives refused to fund the study and on Monday a conference committee failed to reach an agreement.

"It makes me mad," Mrs. Lewis said. "In other words, they want business as usual. They want little boys to continue being molested."

Don Henry
North Bound And Down

HERE HE WAS getting ready to shoot for national honors in the halfmile and James Mays was talking about runnning a leg on a mile relay.

"Yeah," grinned the Raider sophomore, "we got up this mile relay. The (Richard) Sweet guy from SMU, Bruce Gingrich (Rice) and Pat Mitchell from Arkansas and I... .they were needing a mile relay from the Southwest Conference, so we ran.

"Got second in about 3:08 something. And we'd have run better except Gingrich tried to pass off the baton in my ear."

He laughed. "Gingrich was used to looking for one of his own teammates, and I was waving, and he didn't see me or realize who he was to hand the baton to until right at the last. I ran 47.1 on the relay."

What the patchwork relay did was whip one of the nation's top mile relays, the Texas U. unit. But, it was all in fun, as Mays and others were representing the SWC in the tri-conference meet against the WAC and SEC teams at Austin last Friday night. From here on out, however, it's every school for itself.

• • •

THE TREK NORTHEASTWARD begins today, too, for Raider coach Corky Oglesby and three Raider runners.

Mays, Ricky McCormick and Greg Lautenslager have qualified for the NCAA nationals at Champaign, Ill., the first weekend in June, and the trip will bring a stop this weekend at Wichita, Kan.

The Wichita meet is sponsored by the college track coaches and is the last time for collegians to qualify for the NCAA. But is also brings in a host of athletes who are past college age. Two world records were set there two years ago.

"It's just a good tuneup for us," said Oglesby, "and besides, it's on the way. We can compete up there, then go straight on to Champaign."

Mays has qualified for the nationals in the 800 meters and will run that race at Wichita. McCormick, the only senior, will run the 800 meters but will enter the 1500-meter run at the NCAAs. Lautenslager will run the 1500 meters at both events.

Until last week, only Mays had made the NCAA qualifying standard, but both McCormick and Lautenslager reached the 1500 mark of 3:45. Last week in the tri-conference meet at Austin, McCormick ran 3:42.9 for fourth and Lautenslager was fifth at 3:43.0.

• • •

"THAT'S JUST ABOUT a four-minute mile," said Oglesby. "You usually figure 17 more seconds in converting from 1500 meters to a mile, but it looks as if both of them would have been close to four minutes."

"I think it will be good (at Wichita) to get some speed work," said McCormick. "I imagine in the preliminaries at the nationals, that the pace will be slow, then they'll all kick. So it'll be good to run the faster race.

"I don't know what it'll take to qualify (for the finals) at the NCAA meet." He grinned. "I'd like to just mail in my 3:42 and see if that would get me in."

For McCormick, that trip to Champaign looks to be the end of the collegiate line. His time last week is a school record in the 1500 meters, and this is by far his best year of competition. But, for the others, there is more time ahead.

If they do well in the NCAA meet, Mays and Lautenslager could be eligible for an Olympic Development Camp, to be held the week following the Champaign meet.

"I'd like to get in that," said Mays, whose 1:47.174 is the third best in the nation this spring. "I imagine if I can get in the finals, I might get an invitation. That will really be good experience.

"They pick some teams for foreign trips there, I think, and I'd like to make some of those."

• • •

MAYS HAD TO get a special invitation to compete in the tri-conference meet last week. It was for the top two from each conference in each event, but he finished fourth in the SWC meet. His performances earlier in the season brought him an at-large invitation. Same with Lautenslager.

"But, all three of them ran well down there," said Oglesby. "There's no way of telling how they'll do, either at Wichita or in the NCAA meet. We just feel quite fortunate to have three who have made it."

Tate Named Aggie AD

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Marvin Tate, one of 27 survivors of Coach Bear Bryant's legendary 1954 Junction training camp, was appointed director of athletics at Texas A&M, university officials announced Tuesday.

Tate, who has been serving as acting athletic director after the resignation of Emory Bellard last October, will head a department with a $3.5 million budget and direct programs for 280 student athletes in eight intercollegiate men's sports and on nine women's teams.

The university's board of regents approved Tate for the position Tuesday, acting on a recommendation by the athletic council.

"Marvin Tate was a successful Houston businessman prior to joining the athletic department as associate director in 1967," said President Jarvis E. Miller, who recommended the promotion to the regents.

QUALIFYING ACTION — Lelan Chiles, of Odessa, eyeballs his chip shot on the No. 9 green during action in the U.S. Open Qualifiers meet at the Hillcrest Country Club Tuesday afternoon. Chiles led the tourney after 18 holes but got into trouble during the afternoon and wound up with a 148. For story, results, See page 3, Sec. C. (Staff Photo By Paul Moseley).

EL PASO—On top of the Monterey dugout along the first base line, painted in big wide letters, was written the word E-N-E-M-Y.

But in the fifth, the Plainsmen played more like friends by committing two errors and misjudging a fly ball that went for a triple. The mistakes helped El Paso Austin rally for six runs and defeat the Plainsmen 11-7 in the opener of a best two-of-three game regional baseball series Tuesday afternoon.

With one out and a runner on second base, El Paso Austin pitcher Doug Woods hit a fly to right field, but Monterey outfielder David Faulkner lost sight of the ball on the descent, allowing it to bounce over his head and roll all the way to the wall. Panther second baseman, Albert Lopez, scored easily on the play.

Woods had thoughts of heading for home before coach Leon Antwine held up his hands for Woods to put on the brakes.

"The ball sounded real good off the bat," said Woods. "I didn't see it though and had no idea of what happened until coach Antwine gave me the holdup sign."

Monterey third baseman Kent Potts then figured into Austin's offensive picture with two consecutive errors, which brought two more runs home. Potts committed the mistakes on the same batter: designated hitter Tony Bravo.

First, Potts allowed Bravo to reach first by bobbling a grounder. Then Potts was charged with a second error on Junior Salas' double to left field. Potts was out of position on the relay and the ball got by him, which allowed Bravo, who has stopped at third, to come the reamining 90-feet home.

Indy Up To Bumpers In Trouble

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The U.S. Auto Club, seeking a compromise in a bitter battle over speed controls, offered an unprecedented special qualifying session Tuesday for 11 cars bumped from the field for Sunday's Indianapolis 500-mile race.

The proposal, subject to approval by those already in the lineup, was aimed at quieting the drivers who said a last-minute rules clarification on the size of exhaust pipes gave their competitors a decided advantage in the last day of regular qualifying.

It did nothing, however, to settle a suit filed earlier in the day by embattled car owner Wayne Woodward to stop the $1 million race unless his car is allowed in the field.

Woodward's car, driven by rookie Dick Ferguson, was not among the 11 given another shot at making the race. It was removed Saturday after qualifying amid allegations of cheating on power restrictions imposed by USAC.

The compromise offer could increase the field for the world's richest auto race to 44, the first time in more than four decades that more than the traditional 33 have started. Anyone qualifying in the special period, which would be held Thursday, would start behind the current lineup.

USAC President Dick King said the proposal, made under a special rule "for the well-being of autmotive competition," was contingent upon the agreement of all those already in the field. If even one says no, the deal is off, King said.

To qualify in the special session, a car would have to at least equal the slowest speed in the current field — 183.908 mph by veteran Roger McCluskey.

Lindsey Hopkins, who owns the car that Johnny Parsons qualified on third row, said he would agree to the proposal. "I think it's a temperate, wise decision," he said.

King said the action was taken because the 11 cars involved qualified before a USAC bulletin issued before the final day of time trials "suggesting" that intake exhaust pipes have a minimum inside diameter of 1.47 inches.

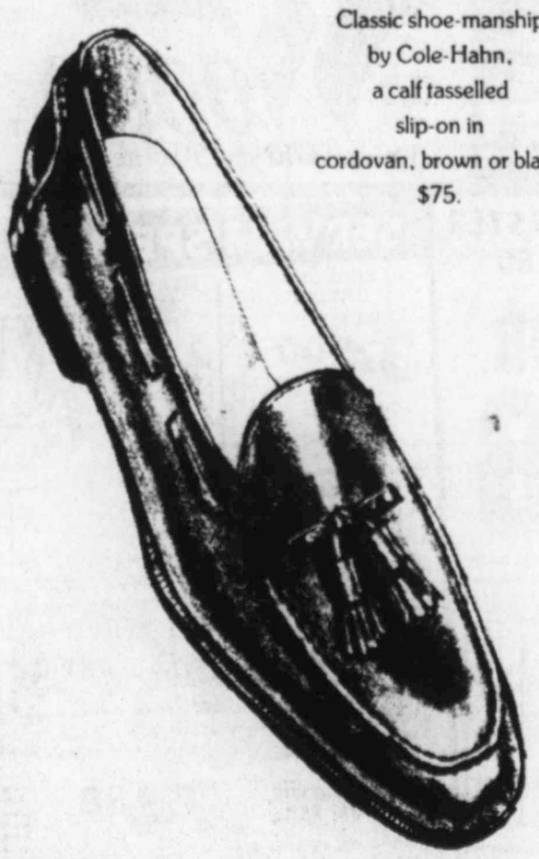

The bumped drivers said that amounting to legalizing attempts to override the power restrictions and put them at a competitive disadvantage.

The standard size of the exhaust pipes is about 2.5 inches. By allowing a smaller opening, the wastegate valve affecting turbocharger boost overloads and forces more air pressure back into the engine. That can increase horsepower and speeds.

The special qualifying session, beginning at 10 a.m. Thursday, would be open to the cars originally qualified by Steve Krisiloff, Spike Gehlhausen, John Martin, Bill Vukovich, Dana Carter, Jerry Karl, Al Loquasto, Tom Bigelow, Joe Saldana, John Mahler and Larry Cannon.

Krisiloff, Gehlhausen, Bigelow, Saldana and Mahler qualified in other cars after they were bumped.

MacPhail Suspends Bosox Shortstop

NEW YORK — American League President Lee MacPhail Tuesday suspended shortstop Rick Burleson of the Boston Red Sox for three games, because of physical contact between Burleson and home plate umpire Lester Pratt, which took place in a game at Fenway Park May 16.

MacPhail has delayed imposition of the suspension until after a hearing which Burleson has requested. The hearing will be arranged as soon as possible, MacPhail said.

Harold B. Guiver, a vice-president of the Rams, said that Andrews signed four one-year contracts. He would not reveal the figures but said the bonus was "large and in six figures."

ROME — Unheralded Dominique Bedel of France, ranked only No.211 in the world, crushed sixth-seeded Brian Gottfried of the United States 6-2, 6-4 Tuesday in the first round of the Italian Open Tennis tournament.

Gottfried was the third prominent American to be eliminated in the $200,000 tournament on the slow, red clay courts of the Foro Italico. Third-seeded Roscoe Tanner of the United States pulled out when he injured his right knee in practice Monday, and fourth-seeded Peter Flemingo lost to countryman Sandy Mayer 6-1, 2-6, 7-6.

UCLA Advances At NCAA Net Meet

ATHENS, Ga.— Top-seeded UCLA breezed past No. 16 Brigham Young University 5-1 today in a rain-delayed opening round match of the NCAA tennis championships, advancing the Bruins to the quarter-final round later today against Pepperdine.

UCLA swept three singles matches Monday at the University of Georgia courts before rain postponed further play until this morning.

Bird, Celts Still Dollars Apart

BOSTON — The Boston Celtics and Larry Bird still are some $200,000 apart in their stalemated contract talks, and the college player-of-the-year's representative said Tuesday, "If present conditions continue, I would not be optimstic."

Attorney Bob Woolf, Bird's agent in negotiations with the National Basketball Association team, called a news cerence to complain that Celtics' President Red Auerbach simply won't bargain.

Fitch Assured Of Boston Job

BOSTON — Assured the job is his, Bill Fitch, who coached the Cleveland Cavaliers for nearly a decade, was due in Boston on Wednesday to take over the Celtics.

Only minor contractual details remained to be resolved, and Celtics President Red Auerbach said, "I think we'll get together."

Fitch, freed from the last two years of his Cleveland Cavaliers pact on Monday, said in a telephone interview, "If someone said to me where would you go, it'd have to be Boston. I talked to three other clubs before and a fourth one Tuesday and I have to get to the point where I tell them not to wait."

Tulsa Runner Inks With Raiders

Texas Tech picked up its third track prospect of the spring, with the signing to a national letter-of-intent of Steve Tidrow of Tulsa, Okla.

Tech track coach Corky Oglesby announced the signing of the Tulsa Memorial athlete who was second in the state of Oklahoma last fall in cross-country.

Tidrow, whose father formerly taught at Tech, had a best time of 9:48 in the two-mile run. On the Tulsa Memorial two-mile relay this spring, he had a 1:57 halfmile.

Previously, Tech had signed sprinter-quartermilers Darryl Hicks of Lubbock High and Archie Moore of Coronado.

Malone Named Top NBA Player

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston center Moses Malone, who won the National Basketball Association rebounding title and led the Rockets into the playoffs, was named Tuesday as the NBA's most valuable player for the 1979 season.

Malone won the post season honor in a landslide, just as he was the runaway winner for the league's rebounding title.

Malone, 24, received 112 votes in the balloting while San Antonio's George Gervin was a distant second with 35 votes and Elvin Hayes of Washington was third with 28.

The 6-10 Malone won the NBA rebounding title with a 17.6 average. His 4.8 winning margin over Los Angeles' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and New Orleans' Rich Kelley was the third widest margin in NBA history.

MOSES MALONE

"There are a lot of great players in this league and I'm just happy to be selected for this honor," Malone said. "I had a lot of help from some great players like Rudy T (Tomjanovich), Calvin Murphy and the rest of the team."

Malone played 3,390 minutes last season, more than any other player in the league, and ranked fifth in league scoring with a 24.8 average. He set a season individual high of 37 rebounds against New Orleans on Feb. 9.

Malone led the league in both offensive and defensive rebounds and his 587 offensive rebounds set an NBA record. Malone got 857 defensive rebounds.

Jabbar and Kelley tied for second in league rebounding with 12.8 averages.

"My style is a lot different from Jabbar's," Malone said. "He's 7-4 and has that big sky hook. I'm only 6-10 so I have to do other things. Mainly, I work hard on my game.

"There are a lot of players better but I don't want anybody working harder than me."

Malone worked the Rockets into the first round of the NBA playoffs before losing to the Atlanta Hawks and Rockets Coach Tom Nissalke says best is yet to come.

"He's only three quarters of what he can be," Nissalke said. "He's only scratched the surface of his potential."

Jabbar finished fourth in the voting with 15 votes followed by Bob Dandridge, Washington, 7; Lloyd Free, San Diego, 5; Jack Skima, Seattle, 4; David Thompson, Denver and Phil Ford, Kansas City, three each and Walter Davis, Phoenix, two.

Nine other players received one vote each.

Jabbar and Bill Russell of Boston, each have won the title five times while Wilt Chamberlain, Philadelphia, won it four times and Bob Pettit, St. Louis, earned two trophies.

Other previous winners are Bill Walton, Portland; Bob McAdoo, Buffalo; Dave Cowens, Boston; Willis Reed, New York; Wes Unseld, Baltimore; Oscar Robertson, Cincinnati; and Bob Cousy, Boston.

Kroc Admits Padres In Sad Situation

SAN DIEGO (AP) -"We've got the best talent since I bought the ball club, but everying's going to hell," says Ray Kroc of his San Diego Padres.

When he shelled out $12 million five years ago for the National League club, Kroc promised that the Padres would be a contender.

It's a a promise Kroc still wants to keep. The 76-year-old Kroc, who turned a single hamburger stand into the McDonald's fast food empire, is mad at the failure of that promise to be met.

"A fourth of the season is gone, and we've in a helluva fix," said Kroc after Monday's 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers. That win improved the Padre record to 17-26i, good for fifth place in the six-team National League West.

"We've go a gas shortage, no chicken and the team is losing." The chicken, the local radio station mascot called the KGB Chicken, recently was fired over a contract dispute. During his days at San Diego Stadium, people laughed and didn't mind so much when the Padres lost.

In 1974, the outspoken Kroc seized the microphone after the first game — a loss — and apologized to the fans in the park for "some of the stupidest baseball playing I've ever seen."

But until now, he's kept a public lid on his latest frustrations.

As one local sportwriter suggested Monday, Kroc is partly angry over the riches spent without reward. Kroc figures he lost $2.8 miliion alone on Oscar Gamble, before trading off the oft-traveled, sullen outfielder who failed to hit for San Diego.

When Tommy John and Pete Rose put themselves on the market, Kroc let them both go by with no bid. Rose is now challenging for the National League batting lead and John is 9-0 with the New York Yankees.

The cause of the problemw the Padres is a mystery to everyone, Kroc said in an interview. On Monday, manager Roger Craig shook his head and noted that "when we hit, we can't pitch and when we pitch well, nobody hits."

There have been occasional bright spots, including the hitting of outfielder Dave Winfield, who has one of the league's best averages.

But overall, says Kroc. "It's pretty sad. I'm not blaming Roger, not a bit. He's doing everything he possibly can. Roger can't hit or pitch for these fellows, and that's probably a good thing. He was never very good at either."

Spur Trackster Sets Sights On Moscow Olympics

By TONY BATT
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Moscow, 1980 is on the tentative itinerary of Essie Kelley.

And it's not all that tentative.

Miss Kelley, a native of Spur and a junior at Prairie View A&M University, was ranked as the nation's top female athlete in the 800-meters after last summer's U.S.-Russia track and field meet. Russia won the event, but Miss Kelley ran a 2:01 (her best time ever) and finished a strong second. Her career as a world class athlete had begun. Now her training is geared toward becoming a member of the U.S. Olympic team in 1980.

"I think if I work hard, and stay after it, then I'll make it," she says.

Her confidence is complemented with competition against the best 800 meter female runners in the world. This summer, for instance, Miss Kelley plans to race in the Pan American Games, the World Cup, and the University World Cup.

The world record in the 800 meters is 1:55.8, and Miss Kelley entertains no aspirations of threatening that mark. However, she says she is capable of peaking at 1:58 or 1:57.

Her best time thus far this season came at the Lite Invitational in Durham, N.C. on May 19 when she ran a 2:04.5.

"She is definitely the most talented athlete I've ever coached," says Wendell Neff, a coach at Jayton who was Miss Kelley's high school coach at Spur. "Her biggest asset is her combination of stride and sprint speed. And she is an extremely hard worker with a tremendous amount of endurance."

The hard work is evidenced by Miss Kelley's three high school state championships in the quarter mile. She might have won the title all four years, but she slipped ten yards from the finish line in her freshman year. She was leading at the time.

Even more remarkable was the national quarter mile record of 55.0 Miss Kelley established as a junior at Spur. She went on to break the record as a senior with a time of 54.9.

"I encouraged her to run the 880 as a senior," Neff said. "But she wanted to beat her record. Then, when she got to college, her coach moved her to the half (800 meters), and I think it was a good move."

Miss Kelley's freshman year at Prairie View A&M had its rough spots. Not only did she have to put up with a bad case of homesickness but she found she was no longer a dominant force in the 440.

"The girls I ran against were a lot faster. My endurance has always been my strong point, and it wasn't helping me that much against that speed," Miss Kelley said.

Still, she managed to be named the outstanding freshman on the traditionally powerful Prairie View A&M women's track team. At the end of the season, Coach Barbara Jacket made the decision to move Miss Kelley to the 800 meters.

"I didn't want to start running the half," Miss Kelley said. "I didn't think I'd be any good at it."

She didn't convince herself until she competed well in the Muhammad Ali Games as a sophomore. Then came the summer when she zoomed to the nation's top ranking.

"I used to spend two-thirds of the race just trying to catch up with the other people in the 800," she says. "Now, I keep up with them from the start, and I've had better results."

Yet Miss Kelley maintains a desire to try the 440 again "just to see how it would turn out." She also misses basketball. In her senior year at Spur, she averaged 25 points a game.

But her success in the 800 meters has enabled her to travel, something she thoroughly enjoys, and she is contemplating a career as a track coach.

"I wouldn't want to coach right after college," she says. "But I'm pretty sure I want to do it someday."

Miss Kelley does not plan to run professionally because of the meager financial rewards, but she intends to run with track clubs after graduation.

And the first club may the 1980 U.S. Olympic team.

Shapira Heads Golfers

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

By the time the first 10 U.S. Open Qualifier scores had been posted on the scoreboard at the Hillcrest Country Club Tuesday afternoon one thing was already apparent about the 36-hole tourney.

It was going to be very close.

Only four golfers of the 28 competing in the regional qualifier would be selected to go to the state meet in Dallas. And of those first ten scores, three were identical par 144's.

Lubbock's John Farquhar, Midland pro George Clark and Lamesa's Ronnie Rosson owned the even par's and with 18 golfers still on the links a playoff seemed inevitable.

But it never came about.

Andrew Shapira was the only golfer of the day to do better. He turned in a 143 to win the competition and join the other three who will make the trip to Dallas.

"I'm just a weekend golfer," said the Midland oil man. "This is the first time I've ever qualified for the state meet...it's pretty exciting."

Shapira shot a 71 for his first 18 holes and that put him right in the thick of things. Only two other golfers had opening round scores of 71 and Midland's Clark had the low round of the day, a 70.

But things got a little tougher in the afternoon. Lelan Chiles, who had an opening 71, ballooned to a 77 in his afternoon round and wound up out of the running.

David Hand missed making the cut by a single blade of grass on the final hole of the day. His 12 foot effort on the 18th lipped the cup and he had to settle for a par 72, giving him a 145 total.

The tournament was originally scheduled for Monday but the heavy rains postponed it until Tuesday. As a result four golfers did not show for the tournament.

But none of the golfers that stayed the extra day were complaining about the conditions of the course.

"It made the course play a little longer," said Shapira. "But the greens were in excellent shape. I thought the course really played well."

"Nobody was complaining about the course," said Hillcrest pro Richard Whittenburg. "But after that rain on Monday, it wasn't the most ideal day for a golf tournament."

Shapira has competed in the west Texas regional qualifier before but the closest he had ever come to going to the state meet was three years ago when he was lost out in a sudden death playoff. And things nearly went sour for him this time.

"I bogeyed the third and the fifth holes on the second round," he admitted. "I got feeling pretty down then— but I had two excellent birdie putts on the 15th and 16th that saved me.

"I've never made two good putts in a row like that."

Shapira dropped a 25-footer on the 15th and then pulled himself out of the rough with another clutch shot on the 16th. He was the only golfer to finish the 36 holes under par.

"Well, it'll take a lot better score than a one-under to win in Dallas," he said. "I'll be playing with some people that you've heard of down there."

Ahlenius Inks With Wayland

Steve Ahlenius, who has been a basketball and track standout at Coronado High for the last three years, has accepted an offer to continue competing in both sports on the collegiate level.

The 6-5 senior has accepted a combination basketball-track scholarship at Wayland Baptist College. The grant is $800 and may be extended to a full scholarship after the fall semester.

Ahlenius, who averaged over 17 points and 10 rebounds a game his senior year, was also offered a scholarship from Northwestern, Oklahoma but decided to go with nearby WBC.

"I liked the coach (basketball coach Bob Clindaniel) and usually a scholarship confines you to one sport, " explained Ahlenius.

"Now I can still compete in basketball and track and that's what I wanted to do."

Ahlenius finished third in the high jump at the distric meet with a leap of 6-8.

The Wayland Baptist basketball staff indicated that Ahlenius will see considerable action on the junior varsity squad as a freshman.

"We'll start him out playing the post position for the junior varsity," said WBC assistant coach Rocky Clindaniel. "Since he played a post in high school he ought to be more comfortable there. But we may move him to a forward as the season progresses.

"He'll definitely get to play a lot."

Sonics Ready For Round Two

LANDOVER, Md. (AP)—The Seattle SuperSonics, outrebounded 55-41 in their 99-97 loss to Washington in the opener of the National Basketball Association's championship series, say they've got to hit the boards harder if they expect to even the best-of-seven playoff final Thursday night.

'The Bullets are a great rebounding team, but I think we can match their board strength," said Paul Silas, the Sonics' reserve forward who has built his reputation on rugged rebounding over 15 NBA seasons.

"We're not a great shooting team," said Sonics guard Dennis Johnson, noting that the club's field goal percentage of .468 was among the worst in the league during the regular season. "We have to make up for it with rebounding, and we have the people who can do it."

Most o Seattle's offense comes from its backcourt trio of Johnson, Gus Williams and Fred Brown, three of the team's top four scorers.

But Silas feels the Sonics must balance this with some production from the frontcourt — centers Jack Sikma and Dennis Awtrey and forwards Lonnie Shelton, John Johnson, Wally Walker and Silas — in order to beat Washington.

"We'll look to exploit their guards as much as possible, but we still have to go inside if we want to win," said Silas. "Whoever is the best inside is going to prevail."

During the regular season, Washington was the best team in the NBA inside. The Bullets, led by Elvin Hayes, Wes Unseld and reserve Mitch Kupchak, topped the league with 4,077 rebounds and were the only team to surpass 4,000. They hauled down 358 more rebounds than their opponents.

Dynasty Talk Surfaces After Canadiens Win Cup

MONTREAL (AP) — It is customary talk at this time of spring: The Montreal Canadiens and the word "dynasty" often end up in thesame sentnce. Deservedly so, since the team has won four consecutive National Hockey League titles and may well match its all-time record by winning a fifth next May.

"I don't know that next year there would be a more meaningful rallying cry than, 'Let's tie the all-time record,'" said goalie Ken Dryden Monday night after the Canadiens had beaten the New York Rangers 4-1, won the best-of-seven playoff final 4-1, and annexed the 22nd Stanley Cup crown of their 70-year history.

At the same time the dynasty talk begins, a question arises; How can this team team be so good, year after year?

The players answer this readily. They point to the fact that every athlete who wore the Montreal uniform Monday night was a product of the draft — from left wing Bob Gainey to defenseman Larry Robinson to rookies Mark Napier and Rod Langway.

"I'm very seldom afraid of a team that's thrown together with two players from one team and four from another, a couple of others from various other places," says Gainey, a first-round pick in 1973.

"I remember during the preseason this year, we were playing an exhibition game at Halifax (Nova Scotia), and there were 25 guys on the bus pointing out the sights in Halifax because we'd all played there at one time or another," he continued.

"Maybe players don't like to get held in the minors, but to me, it makes a difference when you have a feeling of which team you're playing for," said Gainey.

And just about every Montreal player has had that taste of the minors, because with rare exception — the magical Guy Lafleur, for example — every one of them is sent right to Nova Scotia to learn the winning ways of the Canadien system.

"The Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds have followed that idea in baseball, and teams like Dallas and Pittsbugh have done it in football, and it just seems to work better," said Gainey, who earned the Conn Smythe Trophy as the playoffs' most valuable player.

Dryden, a seven-year veteran who spent most of his first season with Montreal's American Hockey League farm team, notes another factor.

"Where you have the best and most successful mold is where you have players of various ages on a team," he says. "When you're on a good team, you really need that mixture. If you don't have it, you have the younger players joining a vacuum where there is no structure."

When Dryden was part of the younger group, fellows like Jacques Laperriere, Jean Beliveau, Henri Richard and Frank Mahovlich were the older group. Players like Jacques Lemaire and Serge Savard were in the middle group, providing examples for the youngsters.

Niekro Picks Up 100th Victory

By The Associated Press

Right-hander Joe Niekro pitched a six-hitter for his 100th career victory Tuesday night as the Houston Astros downed the Atlanta Braves 4-1.

Enos Cabell belted a solo homer, his fourth of the season, off Mickey Mahler, 1-4, in the fourth inning and added an RBI single in the fifth when the Astros scored three runs.

Niekro, 5-2, hurled a five-hit shutout against Atlanta on April 8. His brother, Atlanta's Phil Niekro, who beat the Astros Monday night, claimed his 200th career victory earlier this season.

The only run off Niekro came on Bob Horner's RBI single in the ninth.

The Astros took advantage of two Atlanta errors in their three-run fifth. With two out, Houston got consecutive singles from Julio Gonzalez, Jose Cruz and Cesar Cedeno, the later driving in one run and Cruz and Cedeno each advanced an extra base when Jeff Burroughs bobbled the ball in left field.

BOSOX 7, ORIOLES 5

Fred Lynn's three-run homer topped a seven-run Boston burst in the second inning and the Red Sox held on to beat the Baltimore Orioles 7-5.

Butch Hobson doubled to launch the uprising afte Mike Flanagan, 6-3, retired the first two batters. After George Scott walked, four runs scored on consecutive singles by Dwight Evans, Gary Allenson, Jerry Remy and Rick Burleson.

The victory pulled Boston within one-half game of first-place Baltimore in the AL East. It was only the sixth loss in the last 29 games for the Orioles.

RANGERS 4, TWINS 3

Buddy Bell drilled his first home run of the year in the bottom of the eighth inning as the Texas Rangers defeated the Minnesota Twins 4-3, handing Jerry Koosman his first American League loss.

Bell who had singled home two runs in the third inning, blasted the ball into the center field seats over 400 feet from home plate.

The Twins chased Texas starter Steve Comer in the eighth inning and Kern worked the final 1 1/3 innings.

In the Minnesota first, Roy Smalley singled, moved to third when Ken Landreaux' liner bounced into the right field stands for ground rule double and scored on Butch Wynegar's ground out.

Texas tied it in the second on doubles by John Ellis and Jim Sundberg.

Texas went ahead 3-1 in the third on Buddy Bell's two-run single. The Twins scored in the fourth on Rob Wilfong's ground out and tied it in the sixth on Ron Jackson's seventh homer of the year.

WHITE SOX 5, A'S 4

George Orta's two-run homer in the eighth inning lifted Chicago to a 5-4 victory over the Oakland A's Tuesday night, snapping a three-game White Sox losing streak.

Lamar Johnson opened the eighth with a single off Rick Langford, who then gave way to Dave Heaverlo, 2-3. Alan Bannister sacrificed pinch runner Joe Gates to second before Orta smashed his second homer of the season. Reliever Rick Hinton, 1-1, picked up the victory.

The A's took a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Dwayne Murphy opened the game with his fourth homer of the season and Mitchell Page singled, stole second and scored on a single by Dave Revering.

METS 4, CUBS 2

Richie Hebner drove in three runs to back the combined six-hit pitching of Kevin Kobel and Dale Murray as the New York Mets defeated the Chicago Cubs 4-2 Tuesday night.

Hebner hit his third homer of the season in the first inning off Dennis Lamp, 3-1, after Lee Mazzilli beat out an infield single with two out. Hebner singled home Frank Taveras in the fifth inning for the final New York run after Taveras beate out an infield hit, stole second and advanced to third on a wild pickoff attempt by Lamp.

BREWERS 7, ANGELS 1

Paul Molitor's two-run single sparked a five-run fifth inning and Larry Sorenson pitched a five-hitter, leading the Milwaukee Brewers to a 7-1 victory over the California Angels.

Dick Davis also knocked in two runs for the Brewers, who won for only the second time in their last nine games and snapped the Angels' six-game winning streak.

PHILLIES 3, CARDS 1

Greg Luzinski's one-out, two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth carried the Philadelphia Phillies to a 3-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

St. Louis right-hander Bob Forsch, 1-4, had a four-hitter starting the ninth and retired the first batter on a routine grounder. But Pete Rose, who has been on base in all but five games this season, singled to right.

Luzinski worked the count to two balls and two-strikes, then lined a pitch over the right field fence for his fifth homer of the season.

EXPOS 6, PIRATES 3

Tony Perez's bases-loaded double keyed a four-run third inning and paced the Montreal Expos to a 6-3 victory over streaking Pittsburgh, snapping the Pirates' six-game winning streak.

Montreal starter Ross Grimsley, 4-2, held the Pirates to a single run until a pair of errors on the same play in the seventh narrowed the Expos' lead to 5-3.

Veteran Woodie Fryman came on in relief to shackle the Pirates over the final 22-3 innings and nail down the victory, the Expos' fourth in their last five starts.

INDIANS 8, BLUE JAYS 6

Andre Thornton hit the first grand-slam home run of his major league career to lead the Cleveland Indians to an 8-6 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

The third-inning homer, Thornton's sixth of the year, raised his RBI total for the season to 23 and gave Cleveland a 5-1 lead.

After the Blue Jays rallied to tie the score 5-5 with a run in the third and three more in the fourth, Cleveland regained the lead in the sixth on RBI singles by Toby Harrah and Tom Veryzer and a sacrifice fly by Gary Alexander.

Blake Rocks German

Robin Blake of Levelland continued his march toward national recognition and a berth on the United States Olympic boxing team last Friday in Memphis when he scored a decisive win in international competition over Ulrich Junger of West Germany, with a knockout in the first round.

Junger, 22, is a veteran of over 100 fights. The U.S. team took 10 of 12 fights from the West Germans.

Pecos Trips Borger

PECOS (Special)— Danny Garcia ripped a bases loaded double in the fourth and teammate Larry Mosby followed with a three run homer as the Pecos Eagles exploded for six runs in the fourth inning and went on to win the first game of their bidistrict series with the Borger Bulldogs 8-2.

Danny Garcia went the distance on the mound for Pecos scattering eight hits and allowing only two runs to record the victory.

The two teams square off in Borger on Saturday.

Monterey Falls 11-7

said Monterey coach Bobby Moegle. "Today, we proved it."

The Plainsmen used three pitchers in the contest, with Ricky Pinkerton (7-2) taking the loss. Woods, who tossed five innings, improved his record to 10-1.

After Salas' double and both the Panther third baseman and leftfielder Greg Quinn scored, Stan Zeler was called in for relief duty.

"This game wasn't typical of the kind of contests we've been in this year," said Quinn, the Panther's leading hitter with a .444 average. "Usually we get four runs in the first inning. We were a little nervous when Monterey took a 1-0 lead, but we weren't worried."

Besides the one-run edge, the Plainsmen were able to rab a 3-2 advantage after four innings. The lead changed hands four times and the game was tied once before the Panthers' fifth-inning explosion.

"We're going to have to stop their hitting in the next game," said coach Antwine. "It's been a long time since an El Paso team has been able to beat Monterey in the first game of a playoff series."

The Plainsmen got doubles from catcher Kelly Smith and designated hitter Steve Coleman that led to runs. Coleman's blast scored first baseman Tom Bevins and Potts as Monterey evened the score 5-5 in the fifth.

Monterey fought back in the seventh with two runs. Potts came to the plate with bases and a chance to tie the game. But on a 3-2 count, he struckout.

It was neither Potts' nor Monterey's day.

Field Tour Of Wheat Research To Be Conducted At Bushland

BUSHLAND — A field tour of wheat research is scheduled at 1 p.m. here Thursday at the U. S. Department of Agriculture Research Center.

Dr. B. A. Stewart, USDA director of the facility, says the tour will feature several new wheat varieties from Texas and surrounding states.

Tours will begin at 15-minute intervals and will last about 1½ hours, said Dr. G. B. Thompson, research director of the Texas A&M Research Center at Amarillo.

Development of new wheat varieties will be described by Dr. K. B. Porter, wheat breeder with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Growers will get a first-hand look at TAM 105 and TAM 106, new wheat varieties that will be distributed to certified seed growers in 1979.

"We are excited about TAM 105 and we believe it will produce more grain than wheat presently grown under irrigation in the High Plains," Porter said.

In addition, plots of triticale, oats, barley and hybrid wheat will be shown by Dr. Earl Gilmore from the Texas A&M Center at Vernon.

New wheat varieties from other states and commercial companies that will be observed are Newton, Bennett, Cheyney, Rocky, Payne, Wings, Centurk 78, Vona, Lindon, Tex Red and Rall.

Advantages and disadvantages of these varieties will be discussed by Dr. Frank Petr, agronomist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Amarillo.

A dryland small grain ursery will be described by Gary Peterson, wheat researcher from Bushland.

Other stops on the tour will include an irrigated wheat experiment described by Jack Musick, USDA agricultural engineer, and an irrigated wheat-sunflower rotation being tested by Dr. Paul Unger, USDA soil scientist.

Furrow diking and conservation bench experiments also will be observed.

Dr. Nolan Clark, USDA agricultural engineer, will discuss research on wind energy.

The field day will be sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, the USDA's Agricultural Research, Science and Education Administration, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and the Texas Wheat Producers Association.

INSPECT NEW WHEAT — Dr. B. A. Stewart, left, director of the U. S. Department of Agriculture Research Center at Bushland, and Dr. K. B. Porter, wheat breeder with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, inspect heads of TAM 105, a new wheat variety to be introduced at a tour at 1 p.m. Thursday.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures rose while corn futures fell slightly Tuesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

A government report of larger-than-expected exports of wheat last week at 19.2 million bushels encouraged some buying, analysts said. A slowdown in cash sales of wheat after last week's release by the government of 400 million bushels in farmer-held storage under loan was a background factor.

Corn futures drifted lower after the Agriculture Department said U.S. corn plantings were 67 percent complete, after severe delays earlier this month. A pickup in farmer selling of grain encouraged some sales of futures as well.

Livestock Futures Finish Mixed In Active Trading

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 50 points higher to 35 lower in active trade of 31,984 cars Tuesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. August was up the most with April down most. Earlier, the market gained 55 and lost 70.

Spreaders were buying August and selling April toward the close. The market reacted after climbing to two week highs on continued strength of cash cattle and beef. Much of the selling was profit taking.

Wholesale beef was up 1 to 2 at 108½ cents a pound, f.o.b. river points, which is a one-week high. Cash cattle were up 50 cents to $1.50 with the best top $74.50 per hundredweight also at Omaha. Slaughter was 116,000 head. The major terminals are expecting about 13,600 head today.

Feeder cattle futures closed up 25 to 95 led by November at the day's high. Sales totaled 5,003 lots. The market rallied after slipping 50 in May.

Prices rose to the highest in more than one week on spillover buying from Monday's limit advances in most contracts. Further gains in cash feeder cattle and carcass beef sparked fresh buying as did discount of futures to cash.

Deliveries total 506 thus far. Cash feeder cattle were steady to up $3 with the best top $133 per hundredweight at San Antonio. About 4,100 head are expected today at the major markets.

Hog futures closed 2 to 77 lower led by distant June on 5,901 lots. Prices turned downward after rising to 1½ week highs on reduced hog arrivals and sharply higher cash prices. The mostly firmer pork products at noon also brought on buying. However, much of the cash hog gains were already in the market as a result of Monday's limit level advance in futures. Cash and futures were just about in line.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to up 3¼ at 71 to 71¾ cents a pound, f.o.b. river, which is a six-week high. Cash hogs were steady to up $1.75 with the best top $46.50 per hundredweight at Peoria. Kill was 284,000 head. Receipts at the major markets today are expected to total 29,300 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 105 lower to 5 higher on 5,334 cars. May was off the most with only distant July up on a bid.

Resistance was met after prices rose to one week highs on light hog runs and higher prices coupled with mark-up in cash bellies at noon. The possibility of sizeable out of town storings dampened late enthusiasm.

There have been 208 deliveries thus far. Wholesale bacon was unchanged to up 2 at 40½ to 45¾ cents a pound, f.o.b. river, which is a 1½ week high.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

NATIONAL COTTON COUNCIL PRESIDENT Hoke Leggett this week stressed the continued urgency of finding a practical and lasting solution to the cotton dust problem.

Addressing the annual meeting of the National Cottonseed Products Association at San Diego, he pointed out that a federal appeals court decision still is pending on the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's dust standard.

Industry experts estimate compliance costs associated with the standard at about $2.5 billion.

"No matter what the court decides — whether it's in our favor or OSHA's — the cotton dust problem will remain our most critical issue until we can eliminate or deactivate the unknown factor in cotton dust that can potentially cause byssinosis," Leggett said.

UNTIL THIS IS DONE, SEVERAL — if not all — segments of the industry are likely to be under some kind of dust standard sooner or later, he said.

The council president noted that it is virtually impossible to distinguish between byssinosis and chronic bronchitis, emphysema, or other pulmonary diseases. Because of this difficulty in diagnosis, he added, cotton dust could be blamed for every lung disease found in industry workers.

Leggett expressed optimism that a study now underway by the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health in cottonseed oil mills will confirm the absence of a significant dust-related health problem in these areas.

He told the oil mill leaders that the council is remaining alert to every possibility to push forward with cotton dust research, and recently urged congressional committees to restore proposed cuts in agricultural research that would adversely affect government dust studies at the U. S. Department of Agriculture's laboratory in New Orleans.

THE COUNCIL PRESIDENT ALSO SPOKE OUT in favor of repealing the 1902 Reclamation Act's acreage limitation and residency requirements.

He pointed out that the antiquated law provided that a farmer could not get irrigation water from federal projects if he owned more than 160 acres.

However, Leggett said, rules proposed by Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus to enforce the act applied the 160-acre limit to leasing as well.

"What this means is that for the first time the federal government would be putting a limit on the size of a farm," the council president said, "and this is a dangerous concept."

Feedlot Manure Beneficial

Feedlot manure can solve iron deficiency problems in grain sorghum that reduce crop yields, says an engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Grain sorghum iron deficiency causes chlorosis, or limited chlorophyl formation. With high calcium soils, yield losses can average as high as 40 percent. Sorghum growth is severely reduced on high calcium soils because free calcium carbonate interferes with the crop's ability to use iron, explains Dr. John Sweeten, a specialist in waste management.

Texas has about 1 million acres of iron deficient, high calcium (calcareous) soils used for sorghum production. States west of the Mississippi River produce sorghum on 12 million acres of calcareous soil.

According to Sweeten, U. S. Department of Agriculture researchers at Bushland have found that mixing feedlot manure with a calcareous soil corrected iron chlorosis problems and increased sorghum yields.

Three treatments were compared in greenhouse experiments: Feedlot manure with and without additional iron, commercial fertilizer with and without additional iron, pelleted and finely-ground manure were tested on a fine sandy loam soil.

Applications of 5, 10, 20 and 40 tons of dry manure per acre were used. Ferrous sulfate was applied at rates of 0, 5, 10, 20 and 40 parts per million (pm) of iron.

Without supplemental iron, the fertilizer worsened the iron chlorosis condition in sorghum, says Sweeten.

ON
TEXAS/ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY AGREEMENT FOR CONDUCTING PROGRAMS
UNDER THE FEDERAL CLEAN WATER ACT,
FEDERAL SAFE DRINKING WATER ACT, AND THE FEDERAL RESOURCE CONSERVATION AND RECOVERY ACT

The State/EPA Agreement, prepared through a cooperative effort of the Texas Department of Health, Texas Department of Water Resources, and Texas Railroad Commission, represents an Agreement between the State of Texas and the Regional Administrator of Region VI U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for conducting programs under the Federal Clean Water Act, Federal Safe Drinking Water Act, and Federal Resource Conservation and Recovery Act. The document specifically delineates the role of State agencies, areawide agencies, and EPA to ensure coordinated response to health and environmental problems relating to water supply, solid waste, and water pollution control.

Preparation of the Agreement has been preceded by and closely linked to preparation of strategy documents relating to water quality, water supply, and waste management which establish goals for addressing problems over a multi-year period. The Agreement translates the strategy documents into a management work program for fiscal year 1980.

In order to provide adequate opportunity for public participation, five workshops will be conducted jointly by the Texas Department of Health, Texas Department of Water Resources, and Texas Railroad Commission to receive comment on the State/EPA Agreement, strategy documents, and a water quality assessment document. The time and location of each meeting are as follows:

DATE — TIME — LOCATION
June 18, 1979, 9:00 a.m., EPA Region VI Conference Rooms 29A & B, 1201 Elm Street, Dallas, Texas
June 19, 1979, 10:30 a.m., Midland Community College, 3600 North Garfield, Midland, Texas
June 20, 1979, 10:00 a.m., Alamo Area Council of Governments, 400 Three Americas Bldg., San Antonio, Texas
June 21, 1979, 10:30 a.m., Houston-Galveston Area Council Annex 1, 3701 W. Alabama, Houston, Texas
June 22, 1979, 10:00 a.m., Coastal Bend Council of Governments Conference Room, 2910 Leopard, Corpus Christi, Texas

Following the workshops, appropriate changes will be made to the documents which will then be the subject of a public hearing tentatively scheduled for August 15, 1979. Adequate notice will precede the public hearing.

Drafts of the State/EPA Agreement, Appendices to the Agreement, and stategy documents will be available after May 23, 1979, from Mr. Frosty Gray, Texas Department of Water Resources, P.O. Box 13087, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711 (512/475-3454), Mr. Wiley Osborne, Texas Department of Health, 1100 W. 49th Street, Austin, Texas 78756 (512/458-7717), and Mr. George Singletary, Texas Railroad Commission, P.O. Drawer 12967, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711 (512/475-6669).

We ask that you reference specific documents in your requests to avoid unnecessary mailing charges for documents which you do not want. In particular, the Appendix documents to the State/EPA Agreement are very detailed and voluminous and should be requested only if you feel they are essential.

Hobbs Wants Share Of Funds

A-J Correspondent

HOBBS, N.M. — City manager Joe Harvey will submit an application on behalf of the city for a share of $7 million in Community Assistance Council funds which are available statewide for New Mexico cities that have felt the "impact of energy growth."

Harvey said those responsible for administering the funds are "interpreting the law to eliminate areas that are not using all of the gross receipts tax allowed by the state and which do not have a large amount of bonded indebtedness."

He also said that because the funds are obtained from the sale of bonds supported by the state severance tax, "Hobbs should have its fair share because 85 percent of this tax comes from Lea County."

In the past, most of the funds have gone to cities in the northwest area of the state, such as Farmington, Gallup and Grants, even though any severance tax derived from the mining of coal and uranium (in those areas) "is small in comparison to the tax derived from oil and gas in Lea County," Harvey said.

The city manager said he doubts Hobbs will receive any funding, but "when hearings are held to determine the funds to be distributed, City Attorney Gary Don Reagan will be present to argue the case for Hobbs."

City officials believe Hobbs is continuing to grow because of an energy boom, and the Hobbs Chamber of Commerce has compiled statistics which reveal the city is approaching a population of 40,000.

Hobbs' Growth Rate Noted

A-J Correspondent

HOBBS, N.M. — Hobbs City Manager Joe Harvey says survey results show that Hobbs is prospering and growing at the rate of 12 percent annually with a population estimated at 35,200 and virtually no unemployment.

Harvey said a 1975 survey projected the growth rate of Hobbs at 4 to 5 percent, but the city has surpassed the survey's estimates.

According to Harvey, 63 percent of the people living in Lea County reside in Hobbs and there has been a 23 percent increase in the labor market since 1976.

Harvey cited statistics showing Hobbs is the third largest city in the state in home building with a growth rate of 568 percent, following Gallup and Las Cruces.

During the past two years, sales tax return from the state has increased by 41 percent and the rise in secondary oil recovery will boost oil production.

The city's budget will increase 11 percent above last year's budget to keep pace with the rise in population, but the new cost per capita per day will be 67 cents for the 1979-80 fiscal year beginning July 1. That number compares to the current 65 cents.

The overall budget for fiscal year 1979-80 is $24,498,349 in estimated resources with expenditures estimated at $21,518,718.

Childress Hospital Profitable

A-J Correspondent

CHILDRESS — Childress General Hospital is operating at a profit, according to year-to-date financial records. Hospital administrator Pat Horn attributes the gain partially to the steadily increasing number of doctors practicing in Childress.

Horn said the net income for April was $26,611, boosting the year-to-date gain to a total of $47,444.

Three new doctors have opened practices here within the past three months and another is expected to begin this summer.

Hospital officials are anticipating the growth of Childress as a medical center, so they created the Joint Conference on Long Range Planning Committee.

"The purpose of the committee is to ensure the medical needs of the community are appropriately met in the future," Horn said.

The committee is studying the feasibility of offering kidney dialysis treatment at Childress General Hospital. Before it can do so, however, committee members must determine whether there is a need for the treatment in the area, how many patients would use the service and whether a sufficient number of trained personnel could be hired to operate the department.

The medical respiratory service is scheduled to be operating only in Childress within a few months. The service is contracted with an Oklahoma agency, but the contract has not been renewed. "Existing personnel here under the contract will be hired by the hospital," Horn said.

Sagerton Plans Homecoming

SAGERTON (Special) — The sixth Sagerton Homecoming will be Saturday and Sunday at the Sagerton School Community Building.

This homecoming marks the 50th anniversary of the school at the current site. Three buildings were constructed between 1907 and 1964. Commemorative plates will be sold picturing the last building constructed.

No tickets will be sold for the Sunday dinner; donations will be accepted. Reservations are requested.

A bus tour from 3 to 5 p.m. Saturday of the historical sites in and around Sagerton will be offered.

A reception will be held at 6 p.m. Saturday in the school building after informal meetings in the afternoon.

About 400 people, approximately four times the population of Sagerton, are expected to arrive for Homecoming Weekend.

Health Tests Offered Free June 1

CHILDRESS (Special) — Childress General Hospital will offer free diabetes and blood pressure tests until June 1 as a community service.

The decision to offer the tests followed favorable response from the community to the hospital's open house and health fairs during National Health Week, May 7-12.

Administrator Pat Horn said about 200 people visited booths during the week. Booths were set up downtown and at a store in the shopping area at the northwest edge of town. Tests offered at the health fairs were for diabetes, blood pressure and anemia.

Horn said citizens wanting the tests should call the hospital before 10 a.m. Monday through Friday to make an appointment.

Childress To Offer Land Lease

A-J Correspondent

CHILDRESS — The city council has reversed earlier plans to sell about 1,100 acres of city-owned property near Baylor and Childress lakes. It has decided to lease the land if fencing problems can be solved.

The property has been leased in the past, but a rancher owning adjoinging land says a fence the city built is not adequate to hold either his cattle out or the lessee's cattle in.

The present lease-operator told the council he could not construct new fences on the city-owned land.

The council has decided to go to the area and look at the fences to see how much repair work is needed.

Cowboys, Cowgirls Head For Clovis

CLOVIS (Special) — The nation's top cowboys and some pretty cowgirls are making plans to be here June 7-9.

Pioneer Days, Eastern New Mexico's largest summer celebration, will feature pro rodeo at its best again this year, according to Don Smith, spokesman for the Curry County Mounted Patrol, which sponsors the annual event.

Rodeo performances will be at 8 p.m. nightly and tickets are available at the chamber of commerce.

Other highlights of the celebration are a 10 a.m. parade June 9 followed by a barbecue, an art show, an antique car show and a fiddling contest.

Construction Bids Requested

CHILDRESS (Special) — The U.S. Postal Service is asking for construction bids to build a new main post office building here.

Bids should be sent to Blenard C. Wilson, Field Real Estate and Buildings Office, U.S. Postal Service, P.O. Drawer 239, Dallas, 75221.

Bids will be opened at 2 p.m. June 12 in Room 550, General Post Office Building, in Dallas.

Pre-construction cost range for the building is estimated at $450,000 to $550,000.

The proposed building will have approximately 9,800 square feet of interior floor space and will be located at the southeast corner of U.S. 287 and the Sixth Street NW intersection. The site was purchased in August for $72,937.50.

Killebrew-Rucker and Associates of Wichita Falls is the project's architect.

Jud Schedules Homecoming

JUD (Special) — The annual Jud homecoming celebration is slated for Sunday at the Jud Community Center in Haskell County.

Festivities begin at 9 a.m., and participants are encouraged to bring covered dishes for the noon barbecue.

Little Effect Seen From Flight Cuts

A decision by Braniff International to drop two flights daily from Dallas-Fort Worth Airport to Lubbock on June 1 is not expected to have any significant effect on Lubbock's air traffic, according to a Braniff spokesman.

"We don't foresee any problems at all for Lubbock people," said Mike Kaeser, Braniff's public relations director. "The two flights we are dropping ran pretty close to others, and weren't very efficient. We're just consolidating them into a more efficient flight pattern between the two cities.

"Our early morning flight still runs, and we dropped the mid-morning flight because it was only lightly used," he continued. "The same idea applied to that 10 p.m. flight we're cutting. We just moved our 10:50 flight up and consolidated the two."

Beginning June 1, Braniff flights will leave Lubbock for Dallas at 6:30 a.m., 9:35 a.m., 2:35 p.m. and 7:35 p.m., a realignment of the current schedule. Until May 31, Braniff flights leave for Dallas at 6:55 a.m., 9:40 a.m., 11:40 a.m., and 3:40 p.m., and through Amarillo at 5:55 p.m.

Until May 31, Braniff will depart Dallas for Lubbock at 8:20 a.m., 10:20 a.m., 2:20 p.m., 4:50 p.m., 10 p.m., and 10:50 p.m.

When the 10:20 a.m. and the 10 p.m. flights are dropped, Braniff will fly from Dallas to Lubbock at 8:20 a.m., 2:20 p.m., 4:50 p.m. and 10:30 p.m.

GERMANY CONGRATULATED

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter congratulated West German President Walter Scheel Tuesday on his republic's 30th birthday.

NEW EAGLE SCOUTS — The Eagle Scout award — highest honor a Boy Scout can achieve — was bestowed Monday on three young men of Troop 404. Only one percent of all scouts make it to the Eagle Scout level, and the designation of three at one time is a rare occurrence, said the troop's scoutmaster Dr. Charles Taylor, right, whose son was among those honored. Honored as Eagle Scouts were, from left, Peter Taylor, 15, Steve Addison, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. W.C. Addison, and Louis Frank Rothenberg, 18, son of Mrs. Oliver Ramsey and Lewis Rothenberg. At left is Dr. Cecil Mackey, Texas Tech president, who was guest speaker at the award ceremony. Troop 404 is sponsored by First Presbyterian Church. (Staff Photo by Gary Davis)

Canadian Conservative Win Looms

TORONTO (AP) — Canadian voters making a historic choice for the future of their troubled nation appeared to be dumping Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau in Tuesday's election in favor of a minority Progressive Conservative government headed by 39-year-old rookie Joe Clark.

A mood of dejection prevailed at Trudeau's election headquarters in Ottawa as Conservatives made inroads into Liberal areas in Canada's eastern provinces, especially in Ontario. The western vote, still out at the time, was expected to be heavily Conservative.

"I would think he is disappointed," Trudeau's press secretary, Arnie Patterson said of the 59-year-old prime minister. "The edge undoubtedly favors the Tories (Conservatives) at this point."

Trudeau was re-elected to his own seat in Montreal, meaning he will return to the House of Commons as a member if not as prime minister.

At Clark's headquarters in Spruce Grove, Alberta, an aide watching the returns with the Conservative leader said Clark was "jubilant and grinning from ear to ear."

The outcome of Canada's election of a new 282-seat House of Commons could be critical in determining whether separatist-minded Quebec secedes or stays within the 112-year-old confederation.

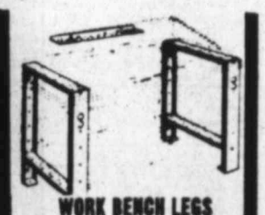

Trudeau, Liberal party prime minister for 11 years, said only he could keep Canada whole. Challenger Clark who would become the world's youngest major government chief, told the voters the nation's sluggish economy needed rescue and it was time for a change at the top.

Returns from eastern Canada pointed to a Clark victory, even though his party was trailing in seats won, but the Conservatives had cut into Liberal strongholds and were counting on their strength in the West to bring them through.

Excavations In Virginia Unearth 17th-Century Plantation Town

E NEWS
Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
Wednesday, May 23, 1979

WASHINGTON (AP) — The earliest traces of British colonization in America have been unearthed near Williamsburg, Va., in what archaeologists say is the most important discovery in the country's history.

Ivor Noel Hume, chief archaeologist at Colonial Williamsburg, told a news conference here Tuesday that the complete outline of a 17th century plantation town has been unearthed in excavations along the banks of the James River.

Also discovered in over three years of digging were the only visored military helmets found in the new world, the earliest British-American pottery ever found and the bones of a victim from the first Indian massacre.

Relics found at the site already are changing historial interpretation of the early colonial period, with definite evidence that life in the first colonies was not as crude as had been thought.

Tableware inlaid in gold and silver, clothing with golden threads, domestic conveniences brought from England as well as arms and armor have been unearthed.

The project has provided what Hume calls an American Rosetta stone for the dating of early colonial artifacts. It is considered by experts to be the most significant discovery of its kind in British America.

"Archaeologists don't like to speak in superlatives but I can't disagree with that statement," Hume said.

The first British settlement to survive in America was planted on Jamestown Island in 1607. Foundations of some late Jamestown houses survive, but the original stockaded settlement has never been found.

Archaeologists have long believed that the original Jamestown site was washed away by the James River, although Hume said he hopes the new finds will encourage another look.

The village discovered by Hume's team was Wolstenholme Towne, established in 1619 by London speculators and destroyed in 1622 in the first Indian massacre to sweep the Virginia colony.

"What makes these new discoveries so important is that nothing of the Jamestown settlement and fort dating from 1607 has ever been found," Hume said. "Thus, the remains of buildings and artifacts unearthed at Wolstenholme provide us with our earliest evidence of life and death in colonial Virginia."

The first clues to Wolstenholme Towne were found by accident during excavations at the 18th century Carter's Grove Plantation, which is owned by the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. The work was carried on with the aid of grants from the National Geographic Society.

Since then the archaeologists have found a complete outline of the settlement, includig a pale and plank fort, storage and work buildings, stables, a large warehouse and individual dwellings dating to the 1619 settlement.

Nearby digs have unearthed later habitations stretching to 1680, long a missing link between Jamestown and the 1740 Carter's Grove.

Equally significant is the discovery of a complete Indian village and burial ground which predates and possibly overlaps the first white settlement.

Excavation at that site, which would be one of the few unspoiled repositories of early Indian artifacts if it proves as fruitful as the diggers hope, was begun only last week by pre-history experts of the Virginia Historic Landmark Commission.

In conjunction with Williamsburg, which was a colonial capital of Virginia and figured prominently in the American Revolution, Hume said archaeology in the area will provide a continuous history of America's earliest English colonization.

Purveyors Of Worthless Land Snare Victims Via Deception

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joseph Hakun was on his honeymoon in 1964 when he was approached on a Miami street by a man who asked if he might be interested in investing in some Florida land.

He was driven across the state to a development called Golden Gate Estates, where there were some houses already built on the land. "Those houses were just a front, I found out later," said Hakun, a Spring City, Pa., construction equipment operator.

"I always wanted to invest in land. I thought it would really amount to something in 15 years," he said of the land near Naples that he hasn't seen since.

He paid almost $6,000 over seven years on the land, but the developer did not provide the promised utility services. "Nobody could live there," Hakun says now.

This case is one of many that government officials are using in calling on Congress to tighten land sales laws to prevent frauds. With land sales now increasing — along with the risk of dishonest salesmen — the Federal Trade Commission and the Department of Housing and Urban Development want new consumer protections for buyers of land.

"Our investigations have uncovered a myriad of deceptive marketing and sales practices which have harmed consumers," Jeffrey Harris, an official of the Federal Trade Commission, said in congressional testimony.

The abuses in land sales include misrepresenting the value of the property, telling consumers about plans o build roads or utilities that never materialize and making oral promises that are contradicted by the fine print of sales contracts, Harris said.

"For some, the loss has represented the bulk of their savings," he said in calling for changes in the 1968 Interstate Land Sales Act, which required disclosures about the land offered for sale.

HUD requires the developers to file reports on the property and the FTC prosecutes administrative cases against developers subject to widespread complaints of abuses.

Rep. Joseph Minish, D-N.J., an advocate of consumer protection legislation, said HUD is hampered by a small staff while FTC enforcement is only on "a spotty basis."

He said the disclosures now required have little effect because salesmen try to get consumers to sign a contract on the same day a sales pitch is made. Minish said this practice works against consumers carefully considering the required property report in making a purchase.

The requests for changing the 1968 law have set off a debate on Capitol Hill between federal consumer protection officials and developers, who want the 1968 law's reporting requirements loosened.

Today's FOCUS

Richard C. Farrer, an official of the National Association of Realtors, said HUD's "burdensome and complicated rules and regulations" make registration difficult and expensive.

George Potts of the American Land Development Association said, "The FTC has vigorously gone after people in our business. They are doing a good job. And HUD has authority to suspend a developer and can ask the Justice Department to go to court. There are plenty of tools now."

It appears that each house of Congress is moving in a different direction on the subject. The Senate Banking Committee has reported a bill to the floor supported by developers that could provide exemptions from the reporting requirements for some sales.

But the House Banking Committee has approved a bill, one part of which would allow states to sue on behalf of many consumers with complaints against the same developer.

Harris said consumers frequently don't realize they have been bilked until much later. "They may live hundreds of miles away from the land and by the time they discover the difference between what the salesman said and the contract they have signed, it may be years later. They don't remember the name of the salesman and he is long gone. They are out of luck."

The FTC has investigated more than 35 land sales companies this decade. Major companies that have been issued orders include GAC Corp., Cavanagh Communities Corp., Great Western United, ITT Community Development and Palm Coast, Australian Land Title, Flagg Industries, and Bankers Life and Casualty Co. of Chicago.

In its most recent consent agreement, involving Bankers Life, the FTC said the result will be up to $14 million in refunds and canceled debts for buyers of undeveloped Colorado land. The buyers were told they were buying land comparable to mountain resort areas but the land was "of little or no use or value to purchasers," the FTC said.

GAC, the company that sold the Florida land to Hakun, once was the largest land sales and development company in the country. It now is being reorganized under federal bankruptcy law.

Despite the FTC order against the company for financial compensation or alternative homesites, Hakun doesn't expect to get back much of his investment. "I could have bought some land around where I live and have it worth six or eight times as much by now," he said.

Stock Mart Inches Up

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, confronted with a seemingly gloomy bit of economic news, staged a late rally Tuesday to post its second small gain in a row.

After showing a small loss for most of the day, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials finished with a 2.94 gain at 845.37.

The average had risen .52 on Monday.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange picked up to 30.4 million shares from 25.55 million Monday.

The upswing near the close followed the government's report that new orders for durable goods took their steepest drop in 11 years last month, falling 8.7 percent.

Such news might ordinarily be a negative influence on the market, signaling a decline in business activity.

But investors have reacted favorably to such developments lately. Analysts say this "bad-news-is-good-news" mood reflects hopes that a slowing economy will bring with it a reduction in inflation and interest rates.

One of the few losers on the active list was Caesars World, down 3⅜ at 66 as of the 4 p.m. close in New York.

24-Hour Cable News Network Announced

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Sportsman Ted Turner has announced the formation of a 24-hour, 50 percent live, all-news network solely for cable television stations, with former CBS newsman Daniel Schorr as chief Washington correspondent.

Although he has no subscribers yet, Turner told a news conference at the National Cable Television Association convention here Monday that he intends to start the $2-million-a-month Atlanta-based operation by July 1, 1980.

A prime-time two-hour newscast will be the centerpiece of the news network which will present live coverage of major news events as well as in-depth sports, financial, and feature items, Turner said.

He said Reese Schonfeld, current managing director of the Independent Television News Association, will be president of the new company, called Cable News Network.

Part of the funding for the operation will come from Turner's sale of WRET-TV at Charlotte, N.C., to Westinghouse Broadcasting Corp. He declined to disclose the price of the sale but indicated it was in the neighborhood of $20 million.

Turner, who owns the Atlanta Braves baseball team and the Atlanta Hawks basketball team, said the project is a financial risk for him but he believes it is needed.

"Current national news is limited to 24 minutes a day," said Turner, chairman of Turner Communications, Inc. "You can do a lot more in 24 hours than you can in 24 minutes."

Rates for the cable system would range from 15 cents to 20 cents per subscriber per month, depending on whether the cable system currently carries Turner's WTCG-TV "super station" in Atlanta.

The all-news program would be carried by RCA satellite. Turner said he has plans for 10 domestic bureaus, with discussions under way for possible foreign business. He said a nationwide search would be undertaken for the initial staff of 200.

Mobile Home Interest Rate Ceiling Raised

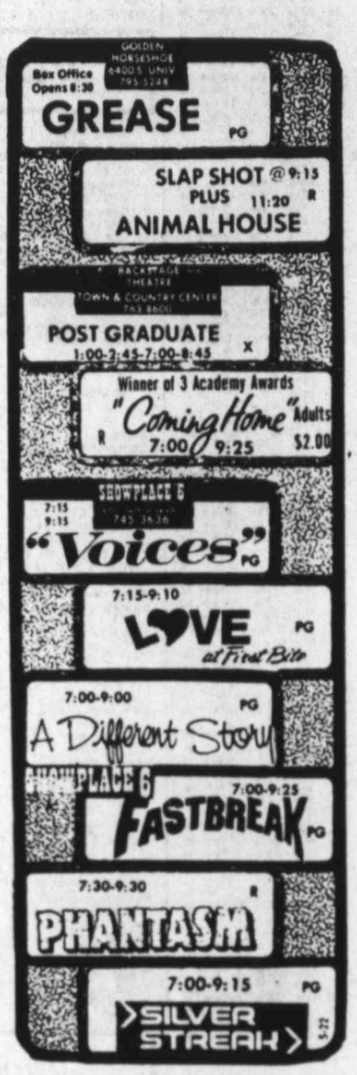

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Housing and Urban Development has increased the maximum interest rate allowed on mobile home loans

The increase in the maximum from 12 percent to 12.5 percent "is designed to bring the maximum finance charge on these loans into line with other rates currently prevailing in the market," the department said.

The maximum rate for loans under the combination and mobile home lot loan program was also raised, from 10.5 percent to 11.5 percent.

The rule covers loans insured under HUD's Title I program.

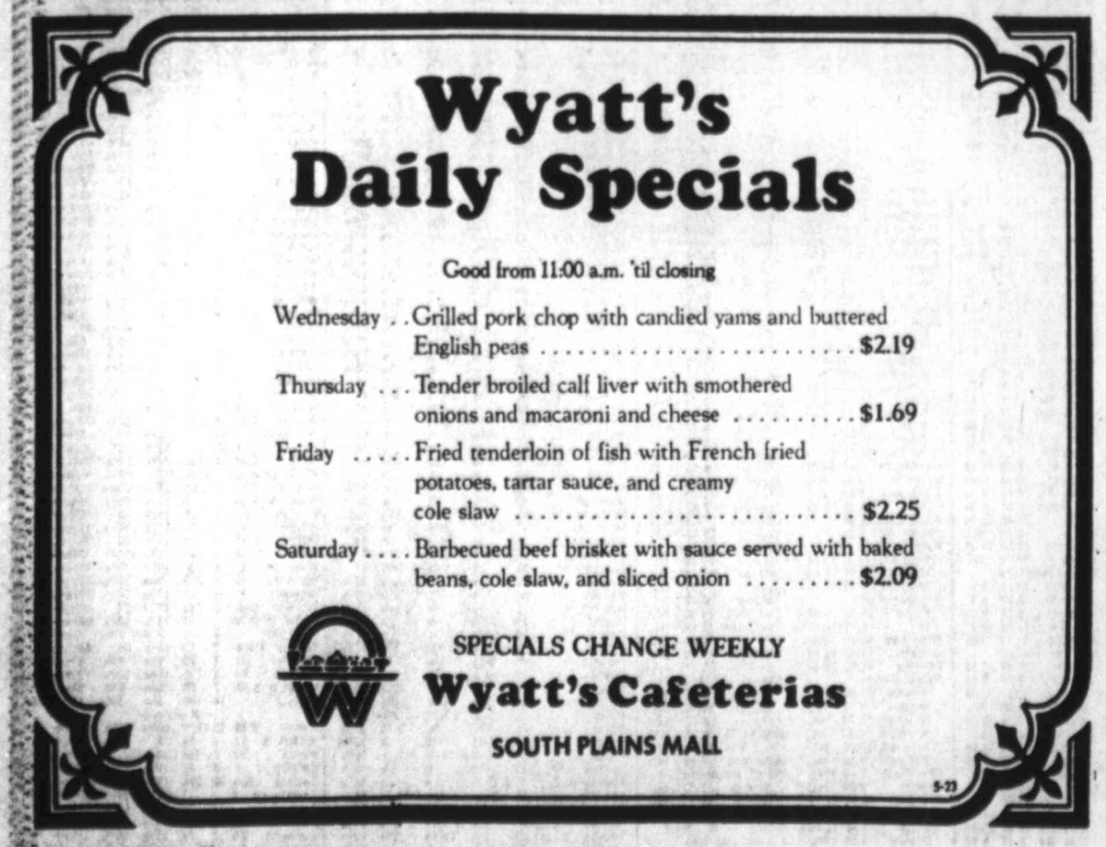

Leonardo da Vinci spent four years (1503-1507) painting his Mona Lisa, but when he sold it, to Francis I of France, it was still unfinished.

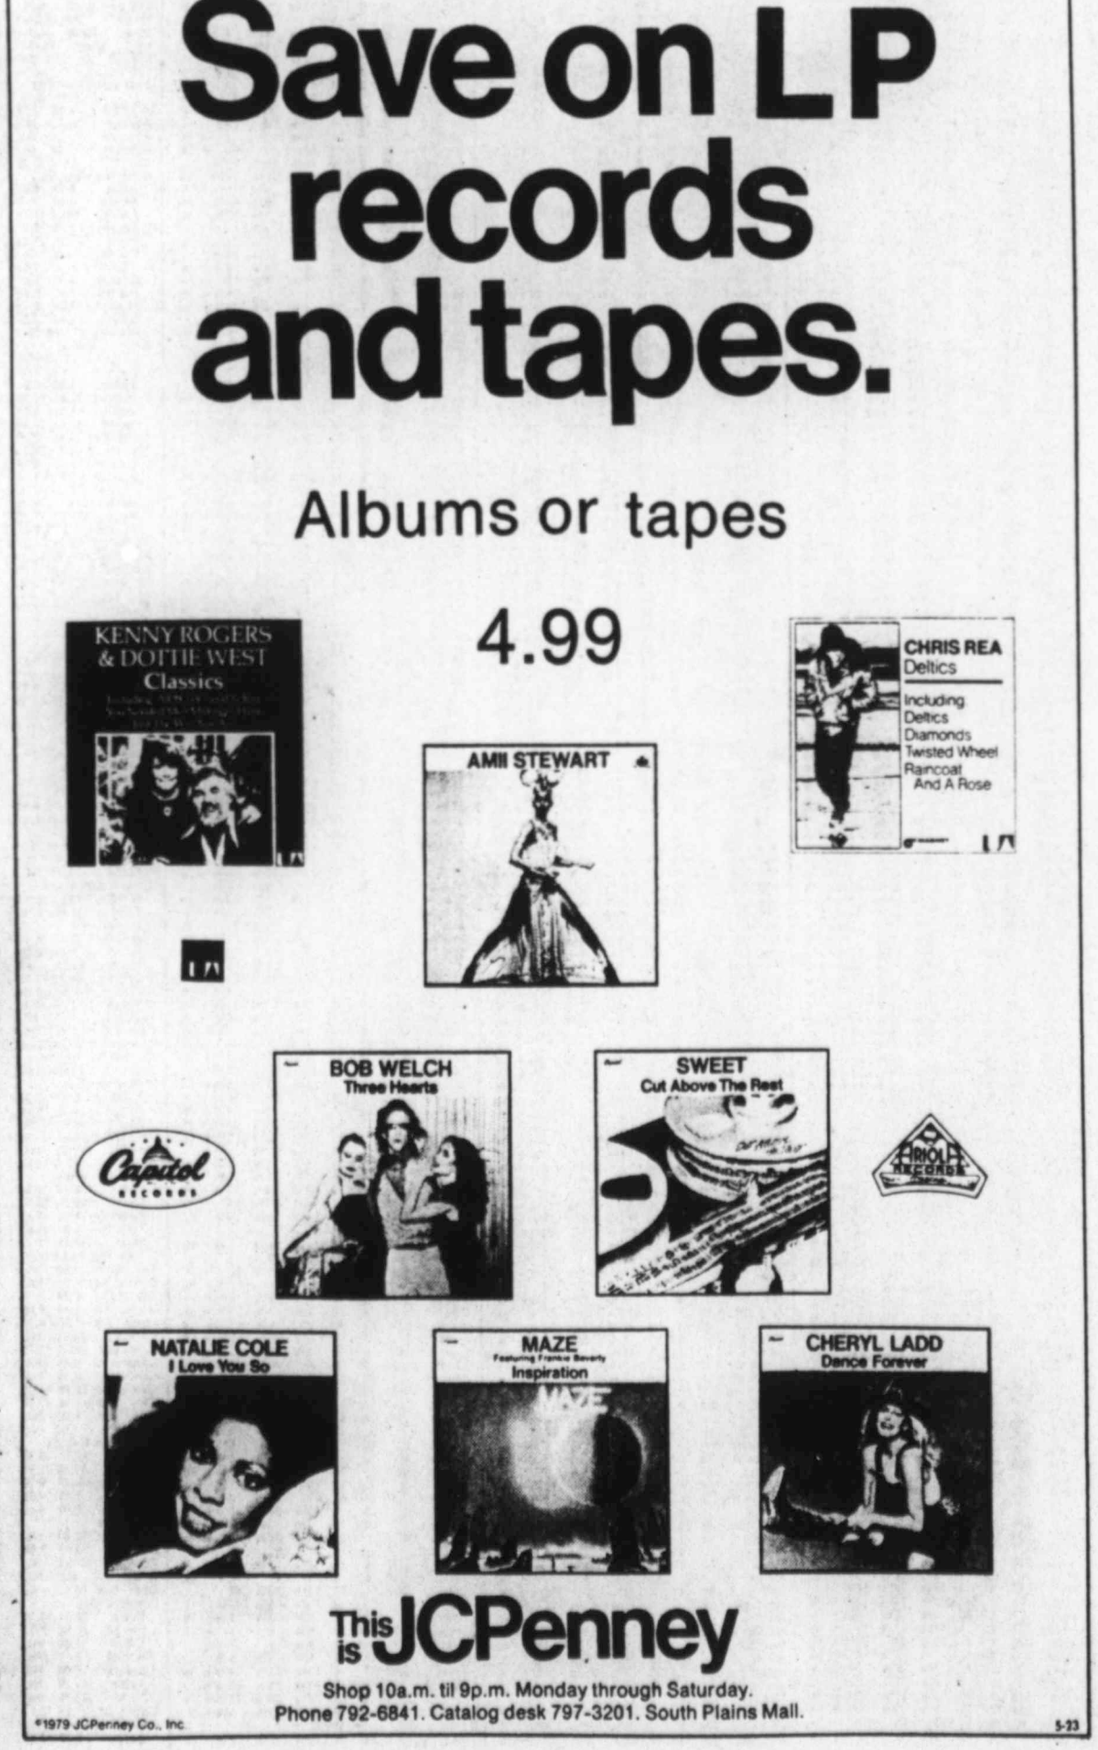

Director Huston Busier Than Ever At 73

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Back from an operation that might have ended a less durable career, John Huston is busier than ever as he nears 73.

Items:

1. He is putting the final touches on the first film he has directed in four years, "Wise Blood," filmed in the South for $2 million.

2. He is preparing to direct "The High Road to China," to be filmed in Spain starting in August at a budget of $18 million.

3. He has completed and delivered to Knopf his autobiography, as yet untitled.

4. He continues to accept acting roles, including one in his own "Wise Blood" and another in the belatedly released "Winter Kills."

The ever-genial Huston talked about such things in his suite at the Beverly Hills Hotel. It was afternoon, but he appeared in white pajamas and a blue, polka-dotted robe. His nights were occupied with the editing of "Wise Blood," about which he said, "I'm keen to know if it's good."

Gone was the familiar Huston cigar. A ban on smoking is the only aftermath of his operation two years ago to repair an intestinal aneurysm with plastic tubing. "I used to inhale cigars, I was so addicted to them," he explained. "My lungs were in such bad condition that the doctors were in doubt whether they should operate. They almost built up a case against operating, since they didn't want me to perish on the table.

"I stopped smoking, and they were able to bring my lungs back to normal in 10 days. I miss the cigars, and I plan to start smoking again when I'm 75. That'll be in a couple of years; I'll be 73 in August."

Huston had directed his last film, "The Man Who Would Be King," in 1975. He finished his last U.S.-made movie, "Fat City," in 1972. "Wise Blood," filmed modestly without big-name stars, seemed a curious vehicle for his return.

"It's all due to a young man named Michael Fitzgerald, son of Robert Fitzgerald, the distinguished translator of 'The Iliad' and 'The Odyssey,'" Huston explained. "He had never produced a film before, but he wanted to make 'Wise Blood,' the novel by Flannery O'Connor. He sent me a copy of the book and asked me if I would like to direct it.

"I said, 'By all means, but you're going to have trouble financing the project. It's funny as hell, but it's also very black.' He said he'd get the financing, and he continued to visit me — in Italy, in Mexico and twice here. I told him, 'Don't pursue it too long, because it may be impossible.' He said, 'I'll get the money,' and I'll be damned if he didn't. German money, mostly."

Being a novice producer, Fitzgerald sought Huston's advice on many business matters. The director recommended hiring his longtime associate Tommy Shaw as production manager and letting him run the show.

"The result was as efficient a crew as I have ever worked with," said Huston, "and there were only 25 of them! The least I'd ever had was 50, and usually my crews have been 75 to 100. Tommy cut more corners than Barney Oldfield. There were no union problems among the crew members — because there were no unions. Most of the people were Americans, others were imported from England, Germany and Italy. Nothing illegal about it; we were working outside union jurisdiction."

There will be no corner-cutting on "The High Road to China." Huston will be commanding three film units and a huge cast in the high adventure set in China after World War I. As with "Wise Blood," he'll probably play a brief role. Even tough he has been nominated for an Oscar ("Chinatown"), he refuses to take acting seriously.

"It's simply well-paid fun," he shrugged.

Rock Star Acclaimed By Russians

LENINGRAD (AP) — Elton John said Tuesday that the surprise success of his first Soviet concert has inspired him to write a song based on his trip to Russia.

"I've been tickling the ivories this morning and I've come up with something," the 32-year-old British rock star told reporters at an informal news conference.

John also said that Soviet officials have given the go-ahead to sell an expected 100,000 copies of his new album, "A Single Man."

The singer's manager, John Reid, said details of the contract were still under discussion "but it's all agreed."

John said Vladimir M. Kokonin, deputy director of the official Soviet concert agency, Goskonsert, congratulated him on the success of his Monday night concert, even though thousands of young people chanting "El-ton, El-ton" went into a frenzy during the performance.

There had been some speculation that the Soviet officials might be displeased with the wild crowd that characterized John's initial appearance. but there were no Soviet moves under way to concel any of the seven more concerts John will make, the singer said.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR MAY 23, 1979

Lows: 4-19, 37-52, 70-85 ..... Avoid decisions today

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Inflation Curbing American Generosity

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Inflation is putting the squeeze on American generosity.

Officials of major charities say they face a three-pronged problem: it is harder to raise money, costs are going up and appeals for help are increasing.

"It's really rough," said Martin K. McAnally, senior vice president of the United Way of Greater St. Louis. "We have been hit more and more for emergency situations related to things like being able to pay gas and electric bills.

Money Lacking

"The volunteer agencies are no longer able to keep up with requests for that kind of help. We just don't have the money."

McAnally said the chapter has raised $21.3 million for 1979 — about 7 perce more than it did last year. "But it's not even coming close in terms of increased service requests," he said.

Tucson An Exception

The picture varies from area to area and charity to charity. An Associated Press spot check showed, for example, that in Tucson, where the economy is booming, charities are in good shape. And the hardest-hit associations appear to be local, social service groups rather than organizations with national affiliations.

On a general basis, Fred Schnaue, director of public relations for the American Association of Fund-Raising Counsel Inc., said: "Charities are having a tough time."

Increase Seen

Schnaue said, however, that "overall giving has risen." From 1977 to 1978, he said, contributions to charities increased 9.4 percent, a little more than the rate of inflation.

Individuals gave $32.8 billion to charity last year, 82.9 percent of the total and 11.4 percent more than in 1977.

The biggest chunk of the money — 45.6 percent — went to churches an religious groups, Schnaue said. Educational organizations got 14 percent, causes related to health and hospitals received 13.8 percent and the remaining money went to social welfare, the arts, civic groups, etc.

No Prediction

Schnaue said he could not predict what will happen in the coming year, but added: "Obviously, the other components of the economy hurt giving to some degree."

William Schweinler, executive director of the Kansas division of the American Cancer Society, said his group normally can expect a year-to-year increase in contributions of 7 percent to 12 percent. "But we are working hard now just to keep even with last year."

A similar story came from Dan Henroid, director of the Easter Seals chapter in St. Louis. "We have seen kind of a flat maintenance if not a slight erosion" in contributions, he said. At the same time, Henroid said, the chapter is getting "more and more of a call for our kind of assistance not from peoplewho are poor, but from middle-class people who have never had to ask for help before."

Columbus Keeping Up

Dick Compton, communications director of the United Way in Columbus, Ohio, said 1978 contributions totaled over $9.6 million, up 11.6 percent from the year before. "We're keeping up with inflation," he said. "But the agencies receiving the money are finding that it doesn't buy as much as it used to."

Carl Smith, executive director of the Arkansas Heart Association, said 1979 contributions are running about the same as 1978's. But door-to-door solicitations are down and Smith said the association is sponsoring more and more special events to raise money.

Tucsonians Prosperous, Generous

There are some exceptions to the trend. Ray F. Carmichael, director of development and public affairs for the Jimmy Fund of the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute in Boston, said the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30, 1978 was the best ever. So far this year, he said, the fund is "about $127,000 ahead of a year ago." Carmichael had no specific explanation for the group's success, but said: "It is clear we would not be seeing inflation or other economic factors having a negative effect on the Jimmy Fund."

Charities in Tucson, where several electronics plants have opened recently, reported no problems with fund-raising. The Tucson United Way collected $2.6 million last year, reaching its goal for the first time in several years. "Employment is up, the Tucson economy is expanding and many organizations are going ahead with programs they were forced to postpone for years when our economy was so flat," said Timothy Creedon, vice president of the Valley National Bank and fund-raiser for Junior Achievement.

New Radio Suspense Shows Get British Flavor

BOSTON (AP) — National Public Radio is bringing in the British to bolster its first major dramatic series, and some old-time American radio dramatists feel burned.

"Americans are tired of British voices," says Himan Brown, who producesthe CBS Radio Network's "Mystery Theater" and holds the patent on the ominous, creaking-door sound that opens each episode.

"I'm sick and tired of British voices and the snobbery that goes with it. They won't give an American actor a job in England," says Brown.

Elinor Stout, a producer at Boston's WGBH-FM, says her radio station would like to make its new "Masterpiece Radio Theater" an all-American series, but she says recycling British Broadcasting Corp. productions is cheaper and the shows are better.

WGBH is one of about 220 public stations on the National Public Radio network.

"We haven't been doing radio in this country in so long that we rely on their (British) experience," says Mrs. Stout. "We have a commitment to our own American talent. It's our intention to expand that."

The cost of acquiring 36 hours of BBC episodes was $30,000, compared to more than $83,000 budgeted for 11 WGBH-produced hours, she says. The money was provided by the Mobil Corp.

The 52-week series of classic American and British drama, broadcast over the public radio network and with American actress Julie Harris as hostess, began May 5 with "Anna Karenina," a BBC Production in three parts.

"The kind of shows we're putting on are the old chestnuts," says Mrs. Stout. Shows like "Moby Dick," "Jane Eyre" and "Sons and Lovers" will put the audience "in touch again with old favorites," she adds.

Mrs. Stout says she can learn from the British and has all but stepped aside for the first WGBH production, Edith Wharton's "The House of Mirth," to let BBC senior producer Kay Patrick show her the way. She will produce the other two WGBH-originated shows herself. The six other plays are BBC-produced.

"The House of Mirth," five hour-long programs, premieres May 26 at noon.

Besides more sophisticated recording equipment — stereo and quadrophonic as opposed to mono — Mrs. Stout says the British are better at mixing spot effects with the actors' voices. Also, says Mrs. Stout, the British spend more time rehearsing and encourage more movement for better radio acting.

All this is nonsense, says Himan Brown.

"They may be doing their show in stereo. I do mine in mono. I see no advantage in stereo in radio drama," says Brown. "The essense of radio drama is presence, immediacy."

Hollywood radio drama syndicator Charles Michelson, who distributes rerecorded versione of such classics as "The Shadow" and "The Lone Ranger," says his productions "make extensive use of sound effects."

And, he adds, "we don't limit the range of a story from being inside a sitting room. Our shows are action shows — 'Dragnet,' 'Gunsmoke' — where the guys are out running. This is what the English lack."

Radio dramatsts on both sides of the ocean agree that radio drama in the United States has lagged behind television in the last 15-20 years. Brown blames this on uninterested sponsors.

"Nothing goes on here unless its sponeored. They don't have sponsors over there — that's why it kept going," says Brown.

Although she admits "its not going to be done overnight," Mrs. Stout hopes National Public Radio's new commitment to radio drama will help change all that — with or without the British.

A severe earthquake hit northeastern Italy in 1976, killing nearly 1,000 people and injuring another 1,000.

Veteran Diplomat Named British Envoy To U.S.

COOMBE, England (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has plucked Sir Nicholas Henderson out of retirement in this sleepy little village 60 miles west of London to be Britain's ambassador in the bustle and excitement of Washington. Lady Henderson is "delighted."

The Hendersons had planned a few quiet years in rural England after globetrotting on diplomatic assignments, culminating in the ambassador's post in Paris until his retirment last March at the age of 60.

The present British envoy in Washington, the most prized post in Britain's diplomatic service, is Peter Jay, son-in-law of former Prime Minister James Callaghan, who has resigned and will be leaving this summer. The job had been offered to Edward Heath, prime minister from 1970-74, whom Mrs. Thatcher ousted as Conservative leader. Heath was reported to have brusquely turned the offer down.

"We were a bit surprised by the appointment," said Lady Henderson Tuesday. "But we are delighted. I simply love America and am looking forward to going there tremendously."

It will be the Hendersons' second stint in the U.S. capital. Sir Nicholas was previously second secretary in the embassy there just after the war. Since then, he has held posts in Bonn, Warsaw, Cairo, Athens, Vienna, Santiago and Madrid.

The Hendersons were busy having an extension built to their retirement cottage in Coombe so their 25-year-old daughter Alexandra and her husband could live there with them.

Before she married Sir Nicholas in 1951, Lady Henderson worked in the United States as a correspondent for Time and Life magazines.

Lady Henderson prides herself on being an expert cook and has written a book, due to be published in September, of recipes called "Mary Henderson — Paris Embassy Cook Book." But she says she doesn't know much about American food. "When I worked over there I used to go to hamburger havens and drugstores."

The material known as gingham derived its name from a town in Brittany called Guingamp, where the fabric was made.
