Gregg

Engineer: Work will be on time — or else

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

The contractor who is eventually selected to complete the Gregg Street widening projects should plan on finishing the job on schedule — or else.

State Department of Highways and Public Transportation Resident Engineer Mike Chetty said that he will personally be supervising the projects and delays will be dealt with harshly.

"We're going to be more difficult to work with than in the past. If the work is not completed on time we are going to charge damages," he said.

That means the contractor will not be paid for work performed past the specified deadline for completion of the projects, Chetty said.

Chetty, who came to Big Spring from San Angelo in September 1986, serves as resident engineer for Howard, Mitchell and Nolan counties.

Highway Department officials announced on May 23 they had decided to proceed with a project to widen Gregg Street from 10th Street to Farm to Market Road 700. The project generated months of discussion and debate among Big Spring residents.

Highway officials notified Mayor Cotton Mize June 8 they have approved a separate project — a continuation of the street widening which will include Gregg Street on U.S. 87 to the Missouri Pacific Railroad overpass — just north of 2nd Street.

On Tuesday night, the council unanimously gave its approval to begin seeking an engineer to design the relocation of the water lines to comply with highway department officials' request for the Gregg Street widening project.

Big Spring Public Works Director Tom Decell estimated it will cost the city $341,013.11 to move the waterlines from beneath Gregg Street to parallel alleyways.

Chetty said bidletting will begin in April 1989 and estimated it will take approximately one month for a contract to be awarded.

"It should take two weeks to a month for the contractor to move in and set up so they should get started by the end of May or the first of June," he said.

Qualified contractors throughout Texas will be allowed to bid on the projects, Chetty said.

"We've done work with contractors from Kansas City (Missouri) and Kansas, but I don't think these projects are big enough to attract out-of-state contractors," he said.

Several merchants whose businesses are located on Gregg Street where work on the second project will occur expressed concern this week the construction will adversely affect them.

Both projects will be completed within four months, Chetty assured.

"We usually give them ample time, more than enough time (to complete a project), but we're going to really be tough on this one. We want them to be on time, to get in and get out," he said.

Whether work on the projects will occur on Saturdays has not yet been decided.

"That will be up to the contractor and me, but with the volume of traffic on Saturdays working could very well create a safety problem for the workers," Chetty said.

There will be two inspectors from his office at the job site at all times, the resident engineer said. "We have the ability to add more when necessary," said Chetty.

Although the projects are technically considered separate, contractors will bid on both.

"They are only separate in the sense the money comes from different places. Construction work will be done at the same time," Chetty said.

Merchants to have input on street plans

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

State Department of Highways and Public Transportation Resident Engineer Mike Chetty — who is in charge of both Gregg Street widening projects — said he will begin meeting with Big Spring business owners personally Monday.

Chetty said he will be speaking with owners of businesses located in an 18-block area — from 10th Street to Farm to Market Road 700 — in an effort to ease parking problems that will be created by the construction slated to begin next year.

"Right now we're in the process of getting plans and information together on the southern leg of the project. I'm going to be doing it myself and working out where the driveways will be.

"We will be trying to work with business owners so it's most advantageous to them," he said.

Chetty said he expects to be visiting about 42 businesses — an endeavor that will take him approximately a month unless he has trouble contacting them.

Business owners are also welcome to contact his office to schedule an appointment, he said.

"Although we are interested in talking to people who work at the businesses, we really want to talk to the owners," said Chetty.

Although he must follow guidelines mandated by state and federal officials on driveway policy, Chetty said he wants business owners to provide feedback.

"Rather than me saying 'I'd like the driveway to go here,' I'd

UPS driver uses truck to stop bank robbers

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Colo. (AP) — A United Parcel Service driver is a hero to police, but his bosses apparently want to discipline him for crashing his truck to stop some robbers.

Tom Swartz, 30, walked unknowingly into an armed robbery and hostage situation Thursday at a store in this tiny Denver suburb, police said. He used his truck to pin the getaway car to a fence, and two of the three suspects were captured on foot.

Afterward, witnesses said, a UPS supervisor came to the scene, cursed Swartz in front of police and threatened to take away his company good-driving record.

The robbers had held five people at gunpoint, binding three of them with duct tape. When they fled the store, Swartz tried to follow them to get their license number.

Mountain View Police Chief Robert Kelley said Swartz turned his truck into an alley behind the store to see where the robbers had gone, only to see them barreling straight at him.

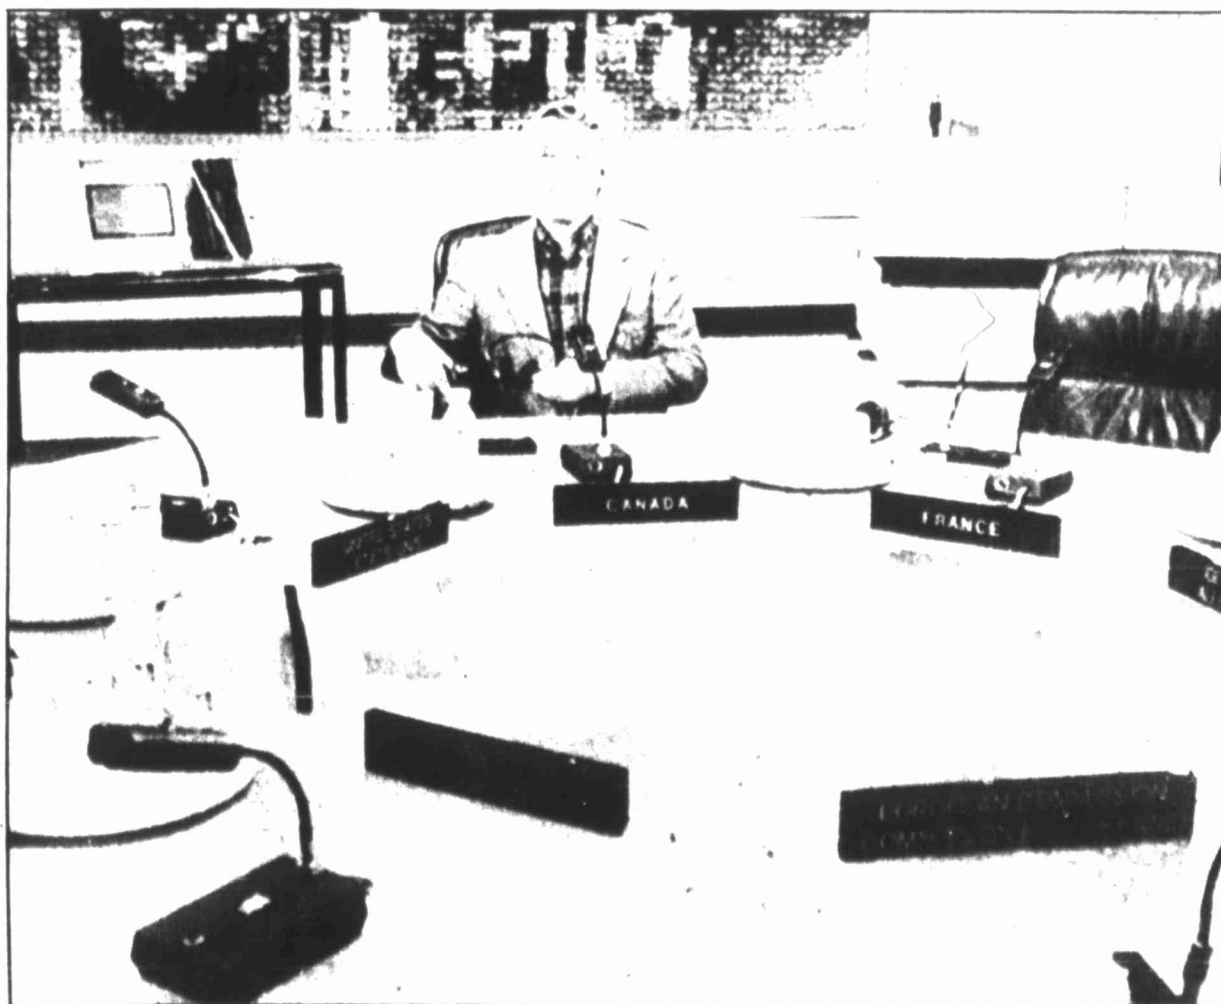

"He was as surprised to meet them in the alley as they were to see him coming," Kelley said. "So he floored his gas pedal and pushed the car backwards. 'Some of it was heroics, and some of it was that it happened so fast that all of a sudden he was involved in it ...

"He felt that gunning the gas on his truck and pushing them was a self-defense matter rather than a let's-stop-them-from-getting-away matter."

The car was pinned to a fence. Swartz jumped into the back of his truck and locked the doors.

The robbers ran off on foot. A man and a woman were captured blocks away, Kelley said. A second man remained at large.

Farm subsidies hot topic at summit

TORONTO — Prime Minister Brian Mulroney sits at the table set for leaders of the seven nations attending the Economic Summit in Toronto.

TORONTO (AP) — World leaders went out of their way to stress international cooperation Saturday on the eve of the seven-nation economic summit, but a contentious fight over agricultural subsidies threatened to disrupt the hoped-for tranquility.

The 14th annual meeting between the world's largest industrial countries — the United States, Japan, West Germany, Britain, France, Italy and Canada — was being held under the tightest security ever seen in Canada's largest city.

A 3,000-member security force was deployed around the Metropolitan Toronto Convention Center where the government leaders will begin meeting Sunday, protected by 15-foot-high chain link security fences.

In his weekly radio address, broadcast from the Oval Office, President Reagan looked back to his first economic summit, also in Canada. He said there had been changes for the better in the world economy in the intervening seven years.

"We have led the world toward a remarkable consensus that economic freedom, not state planning and intervention, holds the key to growth and development," Reagan said.

Reagan said the Toronto summit would be a chance to assure that this "great venture to progress continues" through doing more to support economic coordination among the major countries and by removing remaining trade barriers.

This year's summit is expected to be a low-key gathering, in part because President Reagan is a lame-duck with only seven months left in office but also because the economy is doing surprisingly well, especially in light of the fears of a global recession that were widespread immediately following the October stock market crash.

Growth in most of the major countries has accelerated this year, driving down unemployment rates to the lowest levels of this decade.

Student leaders set plan on tuition, financial aid

AUSTIN (AP) — Students from 29 public colleges and universities met at the Capitol Saturday to work out a plan of action for influencing the 1989 Legislature on tuition and financial aid.

"Policies promoting affordable education are necessary to the future of Texas. Progress depends on a highly educated workforce and electorate," the Texas Student Coalition said in a statement released at a news conference.

The coalition is composed of student associations, said Beatrice Navarette, student association president at the University of Texas at El Paso, where she is a junior. Student government leaders from colleges around the state were involved in the meeting.

Among the coalition proposals presented by Ms. Navarette at the news conference were:

- The establishment of tuition rates should remain in the hands of the Legislature to ensure that rates are "set in an open and deliberative context promoting a state policy which encourages educational opportunities." Students in an earlier statement expressed concern over the possibility of tuition rates being set by regents.

- Tuition rates should not be increased again until an assessment is completed on the effects of the most recent rate increase.

- Tuition policies should be "more fair" to non-resident students, who typically pay higher rates than Texans.

- A statewide work-study program should be established, and supported by the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board.

- Current financial aid programs should be reviewed, and the need of institutions that have a greater percentage of low-income students should be recognized.

- State grant programs should be better-funded to relieve over-dependency on loans.

- Student service fees should be classified as student-appropriated money, not state funds, to "maintain the integrity of these funds which are designed to meet direct student needs."

SAN ANTONIO — Democratic presidential hopeful Michael Dukakis gives the eulogy at the funeral Mass of Hispanic civil rights leader Willie Velasquez at St. Mary's Catholic Church. Velasquez, 44, president of the San Antonio-based Southwest Voter Registration Education Project, died of kidney cancer Wednesday. Velasquez' non-profit organization helped increase Hispanic voter registration from 2.5 million in 1976 to a projected 5 million for the general election in November.

Gov. Dukakis eulogizes Hispanic rights leader

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Democratic presidential hopeful Michael Dukakis eulogized Willie Velasquez Saturday, saying the Hispanic rights activist changed the world by inspiring people to vote.

Velasquez, 44, president of the San Antonio-based Southwest Voter Registration Education Project, died of kidney cancer Wednesday.

Velasquez' non-profit organization helped increase Hispanic voter registration from 2.5 million in 1976 to a projected 5 million for the general election in November.

The organization also filed suit against hundreds of local governments, forcing them to change from at-large election systems to single-member districts in order to gain Hispanic representation.

The Massachusetts governor likened Velasquez to the late Robert F. Kennedy.

"Willie Velasquez believed in democracy. He believed in the ability of people to make the right decisions in their own lives when given the freedom and the power to do so," Dukakis said.

"He changed the world because he understood great victories required great efforts and today Willie's victories are everywhere — in the state legislatures, in city halls and county courthouses all over the Southwest," Dukakis said. Dukakis said Velasquez will never be forgotten and that his work will continue.

"We must open up the door of opportunity to all of our people. We must make democracy live for every man, woman and child in our land and people everywhere," said Dukakis, who spoke in English and Spanish during his 10-minute eulogy.

Velasquez, who had taken a year's leave from SVREP, had been scheduled to introduce Dukakis at the state Democratic Convention in Houston on Saturday.

More than 1,000 people packed St. Mary's Catholic Church and 200 others stood outside listening to the two-hour funeral Mass.

Among those seated inside were Mayor Henry Cisneros, Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, Treasurer Ann Richards and Land Commissioner Garry Mauro.

Trumpet-playing mariachis started and ended the bilingual Mass, which was celebrated by several priests, including Archbishop Ricardo Ramirez of Las Cruces, N.M.

"Once in a rare moment in the world's history, the Lord raises a man such as this, kind of like a comet that doesn't appear very often but flies to the sky in a shining and brilliant light, but always only for a brief moment," Ramirez said.

"But the image and impact of that comet remains imprinted in our minds forever," Ramirez said.

Velasquez, who grew up and attended Catholic schools and universities in San Antonio, became involved in Chicano activities in the mid-1960s.

Convoy goes to capitol

HOUSTON (AP) — Members of the Veterans' Peace Convoy, who were turned back at Laredo in their bid to deliver food and other supplies to Nicaragua, left Houston Saturday morning after attending the state Democratic Convention.

The group, traveling in 30 cars and trucks, is on its way to Washington, D.C., to protest regulations barring it from delivering the vehicles and their contents to the Central American country.

The vehicles contained medical supplies, food and other materials. Convoy spokesman Bob Livesey said the group stopped in Houston to gain support from the Democratic Party.

"The people have spoken. Now it's time for the representatives to speak," he said. "We're looking for a new administration to come in and make a difference."

Several delegates and guests at the convention Friday evening applauded members of the group as they entered noisily, carrying banners and posters.

Later in the evening, the crowd gave the convoy a standing ovation at the behest of the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

"These veterans for peace deserve our special commendations," he said. And as the audience applauded, two convoy members on the podium behind him unfurled a slogan-filled banner.

U.S. Customs Service agents in Laredo impounded four convoy vehicles Wednesday after the group tried to go into Mexico without export authorization. U.S. Treasury Department officials said the group's plan to leave the vehicles in Nicaragua would violate a trade embargo.

hoping his position as the summit host will give him a political boost at home, said Saturday that it would be wrong to dismiss the summit as a do-nothing affair just because no major initiatives are expected.

"The coordination and cooperation economically that emanates from the summits is a very major contribution towards world growth," Mulroney said during a visit to the rooms where the nearly 3,000 journalists from 50 countries were setting up shop.

"What would we have done last October in the light of the market meltdowns without the Group of Seven," Mulroney asked, referring to the seven summit nations. "The G-7 was able to step in and send signals of confidence to markets around the world."

Reagan, who is attending his eighth and final economic summit, will be the last world leader to arrive on Sunday.

The president said Saturday that efforts to stop illegal drug trafficking and rebuild the economies of Afghanistan and the Philippines also would be on the agenda for the summit as would his proposal, first made last year at the Venice summit, to end farm subsidies by the end of the century.

But Reagan's farm proposal has drawn support from few of the other leaders, with Japan, West Germany and France raising some of the strongest objections.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl warned in a speech to the Canadian Parliament earlier in the week that leaders must not move too quickly on the farm question, and Jacques Delors, who represents the European Economic Community at the summit, complained that the U.S. position on farm subsidies threatened to "spoil the atmosphere" of the talks.

In an interview Saturday, Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III acknowledged that the United States was facing intense opposition on the farm question and any breakthrough would be "extraordinarily difficult." But he said the United States hopes at least to get commitment that the problem will be a prime topic for discussion during the current round of trade liberalization talks.

School boards to meet

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Trustees of the Forsan Independent School District and the Grady Independent School Board will meet this week.

A called meeting of the Grady board in Lenorah has been scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday. According to board president Jacky Romine, the board's agenda will include only one item of new business: consideration of applications for a superintendent.

The Forsan board will consider a tentative budget and concession stand operation, among other items, when the board meets at 7 p.m. Monday night.

The agenda includes bids on roof repairs, a policy concerning payment for cafeteria meals, and an amendment to the policy for commencement exercises.

Also listed are changing the date for the board's July meeting, joining the Texas Association of Community Schools and contracting for asbestos requirements.

The board is also expected to consider having buildings appraised and discuss summer work programs.

Personnel issues also may be discussed, possibly including discussion in an executive session.

Bentsen says Deaths

U.S. needs energy policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Failure to enact a national energy policy will force the United States to maintain its presence indefinitely in the unstable Persian Gulf, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said Saturday.

"Unless we can develop a sound energy policy in this country, they (American soliders) are going to be there a long time," Bentsen said. "And the reason for that is there is a growing dependence on that politically unstable area ... for oil for this country."

Bentsen released a study Saturday by the Bureau of Economic Geology at the University of Texas at Austin that indicates U.S. dependence on Middle Eastern oil is going to increase, while production in Mexico and Canada is decreasing.

"By 1995 we will be importing 3 million barrels a day from the Middle East," Bentsen said. "That'd be a third of our supply. And that means that we're going to have to be there trying to settle these quarrels between these Arab nations. That means that we have to have an energy policy that'll resolve these problems — and we haven't seen it."

According to the study, Saudi Arabia in 1987 became the nation's third-largest source of imported oil behind Canada and Mexico by more than doubling its 1982-1985 average exports to the United States from 345,000 barrels a day to 747,000 barrels a day.

like people to tell me their ideas. Numbers and widths are what we are interested in," he said.

Plans for the street widening project will be delivered to the Abilene office in mid-July and then forwarded to Austin, the resident engineer said.

Project plans call for Gregg Street to be widened by seven feet on each side of the highway to allow for construction of a left turn lane.

Highway officials said the 10th Street to FM 700 project was proposed based on the accident rate of that portion of the highway, thus qualifying for $700,000 in federal funds. An additional $50,000 will be awarded for traffic lights.

"We feel the lack of left turn signals is responsible for the many accidents that have occurred. There have been a number of people seriously injured."

"We are concerned about the public's safety. There is obviously something wrong and we want to do something about it," Chetty said.

A separate street widening project involving Gregg Street on U.S. 87 to the Missouri Pacific Railroad overpass — just north of 2nd Street — was approved by highway officials last week.

The second project will be funded with $400,000 in state monies.

Both projects will be completed at the same time in an effort to avoid more problems for business owners, Chetty said.

"All utilities (Texas Utilities and the city of Big Spring) will be removed before we go to contract."

Within five years all the signal lights on Gregg Street will be upgraded, Chetty said.

Clean up

Big Spring street and sanitation crews will be collecting large, unwanted items Monday in area number three, shown on this map. Residents should place large items on the curb for pickup, as trucks can't make it through the alley. The elderly or handicapped can call the Chamber of Commerce at 263-7441 for any help.

Opinion

No free lunch — no free fireworks

"There's no such thing as a free lunch." Who's not heard that line? It's as true today as it's ever been, and can be applied to a local event that's only two weeks away. Fourth of July fireworks. Kids love 'em, families picnic and party beneath them, and the West Texas skies are illuminated by them. But not for free.

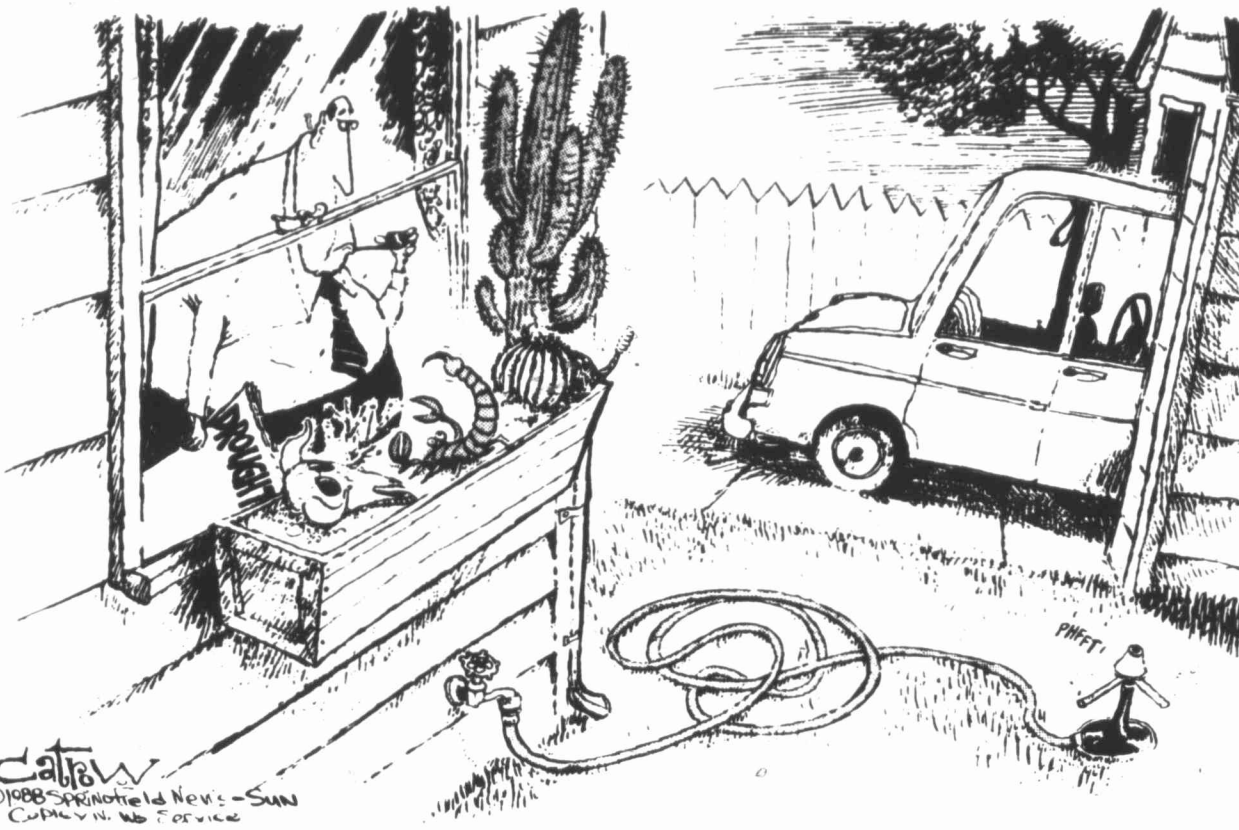

Times are changing and, more and more often, somebody else is looked to pick up the bill when such an occasion is planned. That is exactly the case for the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce this 4th of July holiday.

The chamber is organizing the fundraising effort to gather $5,000 to finance the sky-brightening delights for the young and young of heart. This is the chance to help pay your way for an event enjoyed by many in the community.

Are you among those looking forward to fireworks this 4th of July? Then there's no reason you shouldn't be willing to contribute in a small way to see the bill be paid.

Figuring that there are more than 10,000 families in this community — and perhaps half of them will enjoy the planned demonstration — the mathematics are pretty simple: A little bit by many of them will go a long way.

We hope you'll do your share — and enjoy!

Researching Hispanics' political thinking

By JESSE TREVINO

An extraordinary undertaking is beginning at the University of Texas at Austin. It may revolutionize how Hispanics in the U.S. are perceived — and how they perceive themselves.

A mammoth, $2-million, three-year research project being directed by the director of the Mexican-American Studies Center, Dr. Rodolfo de la Garza, seeks to establish how Hispanics think politically.

This is not a public opinion poll. Funded in its initial stages by the Ford Foundation and conducted with Angelo Falcon of the Institute for Puerto Rican Public Policy; F. Chris Garcia of the University of New Mexico; and John Garcia of the University of Arizona, the study is not about what Hispanics think.

It is about what makes them think the way they do.

To date, de la Garza points out, how Hispanics voted in the 1984 presidential election is still a mystery, because no one has been willing to measure the Latino population precisely. All three television networks, the country's major newspapers and the two major political parties report different percentages of Hispanic votes for Walter Mondale or Ronald Reagan.

If that is so, he says, then how does anyone know what Hispanics think?

De la Garza has a point there. A great number of assumptions are made about Hispanics, even by Hispanics about other Hispanics. De la Garza will test, for example, the long-accepted claim, that Hispanics consider knowing or learning Spanish important.

Asking Hispanics what steps they take to retain Spanish goes beyond simply asking Hispanics, as other public surveys do, if they support bilingual education.

De la Garza points out that many observers consider Hispanics conservative. If they are conservative, are they conservative because they are Hispanic or because they are poor? De la Garza believes his study will answer some basic questions about Hispanics.

The focal point of de la Garza's study is a question that is crucial to the future of the United States. What is, de la Garza wonders, the political significance of Latino ethnicity?

This all-important question will address the level of assimilation of Hispanics into U.S. society and culture. If the researchers find that being Latino means that they think in a manner different from the rest of U.S. society, then some important social and cultural movements are underway.

To test this theory, de la Garza is undertaking the most sophisticated research project ever conducted on Hispanics. That makes the project quite expensive.

To date, the cost of achieving a scientifically reliable sample of Hispanics has limited what we as a country know about the Hispanic population.

What de la Garza and his investigators will do to achieve the most reliable sample of Hispanics yet is interview at great cost 800 Mexican-Americans, 600 Puerto Ricans, 600 Cubans, and 600 non-Hispanics — each for an hour and five minutes.

The total amount of interview time, almost 3,000 hours or almost five solid months, compares to the 400 hours many polling companies use to survey Hispanics.

The new Latino National Political Survey seeks answers to critical questions that gnaw at the average non-Hispanic as the Hispanic population grows and expands.

Do Latinos care about public issues? Do they understand tolerance, that one does not shoot the opposition? What do Hispanics believe a person is individually responsible for and what should the role of government be? Do they trust anyone beyond their family?

For three decades, this country and the country's politics have labored under a Hispanic-political ethic that has been invented by individuals and groups other than Hispanics or by Hispanics who had very little survey experience, de la Garza believes.

Many of those perceptions are untested and may be false.

If so, de la Garza's study may create an uproar lasting longer than 3,000 hours or five months of research. It may last forever.

Jesse Trevino writes a weekly syndicated column on Hispanic issues.

Just my type

Therapy — in writing

By ROBERT WERNSMAN

Everybody needs to have their method of dealing with things that upset them.

Some people might curse — but that's inappropriate at certain times.

Others might chop wood to vent their fury — good if you have wood, or a fireplace, or a friend with one of the two.

And others might kick their dog — not recommended here under any circumstances, but particularly if you have either a large dog or a conscience of any size.

What do I do when I get perturbed? Write a newspaper column.

It can be the greatest therapy in the world and it doesn't cost a thing — beyond my privacy now and then.

This has been a bad past week in terms of those things I find upsetting. Likely we all have them, but it doesn't seem as though it's quite as apparent or frequent as in the past few days.

So, there's my list of woes. Thanks for listening — I feel better already.

What did I find upsetting? To begin with, a perfectly healthy woman in a practically brand new, expensive luxury car zipping into a parking spot at a local grocery store Friday. As she jumped from her car, parked in a handicapped parking zone, she flippantly declared, "Oh, I'm handicapped."

Showing the class you'd expect from an aged carcass, she went about her shopping and I stewed. Granted, being that insensitive she may have a mental handicap, but it hardly qualifies her to park where she did.

My thanks again to the police officer I saw long ago ticketing a car at Wal-Mart for the infraction.

What else did I find upsetting? Less than 24 hours later I was treated to a youthful driver of a car whizzing along Gregg Street — a child in her lap and another standing in the passenger's side of the front seat.

While I've railed from this spot before about people who refuse to wear seat belts, it seems you'd have to be entirely without conscience to allow a child's body to be threatened with mayhem if your speeding car comes to a very sudden stop.

Another irritant: Folks who dial the wrong number and are so ignorant or flustered when they realize what they've done that they simply hang up.

It will happen, on the average, four or five times a week at the office. Part of it is the similarity our number has with the Big Spring police department — I know it surprised a woman when I answered "Herald newsroom" about 3 a.m. one late night of work and she was seeking the police.

Call a wrong number? Please, just say: "Sorry, wrong number." It happens to us all, and besides, we'll never know who you are anyway.

Finally, there's a magazine advertisement that has me puzzled.

It's had me just a bit curious ever since a fellow brought a copy to a social gathering and asked everybody he could cajole into trying to explain it.

He had little luck. It's a cigarette advertisement that includes two photographs. Admittedly, both photos show people having a good time and, not incidentally, most of them smoking cigarettes.

Maybe they are so pleased at the idea that they can sue tobacco firms for manufacturing a product that's unsafe and get a $400,000 court award for willingly inhaling smoke for years and years, while causing themselves ill health. But I don't think that's the concept the manufacturer is pushing.

Here's what's in the first photo: Five young adult women sitting around a table — four of them obviously smoking — with a balding, fleshy man. He's saluting a young man standing across the room, who's wearing only his pajama bottoms. The women are smiling.

In the smaller, secondary photo, the young man has a hand on one woman's shoulder and she's caressing his face, the fleshy man patting him on the back.

Call me a country bumpkin, but I just can't understand how this combination of photos would entice anyone to try the particular brand of cigarettes.

Maybe he's the one who's going to collect the $400,000 court award. Wernsman is editor of the Herald.

Shopper complains

To the editor:

I am often amused at the "Shop Big Spring First" ads. After attempting to do so many times for convenience, I find it is usually less frustrating and faster to drive to Midland. I do not feel local merchants attempt to get local business. The following is an example:

I have just returned from a two-week vacation in which I used more than 50 American Express Travelers Cheques in every type of establishment from restaurants to fast foods, amusement parks, hotels, rental cars and grocery stores.

Some places looked at my driver's license to ensure it was the correct person. If at any point the cashier asked for help she was told, "they are just like cash."

Upon returning home, I had to get groceries and went to Winn-Dixie. My purchases totaled $41.52. Upon giving the cashier the cheque, she called for Ted Tarbett who had to initialize the cheque. She then copied all my driver's license information on the back, ran it through like a check and gave me my change.

On giving me my receipt, she pointed to the 75-cent "check fee" and told me she had to charge me for using a check. I explained that these were not used as checks but were always taken as cash. She argued that they were checks. I asked her to call the manager, at which point she called Mr. Tarbett back to the register. I told her I wanted the manager. She stated, "He's the head office boy."

I again asked her to call the manager, Mr. Parker, at which point she did. Upon his arrival, I explained that I had used over $2,000 in AETC over a two-week period from Texas to Tennessee and everywhere I used them had taken them. He stated, "They are cash — there's no problem."

I then explained the fee I was charged, at which point he stated, "Oh, if it says check on it we charge a fee — we are charged at the bank for depositing them so we have to charge the customer."

Upon returning home, I called every bank and savings & loan listed in town. All stated the AETC were treated as cash. They all stated no one was charged for depositing anything unless the check was so insufficient. Some of the banks laughed — one stated it was very strange and another that it was weird. All stated they had never heard of it happening.

Unless Winn-Dixie, a local merchant, uses an out-of-town bank, the manager lied and the store is charging customers using Traveler's cheques for purchases an extra amount just for shopping there. DEBRA WALLACE HC 77, Box T14F

Editor's note: David Parker, contacted after receipt of the letter, said the policy is mandated from the firm's central office in Ft. Worth. He said that bank fees are part of the chain's cost of doing business. A representative of First National Bank, where Winn-Dixie banks, said that no bank charge is assessed specifically for traveler's checks.

'Thanks' for the help

To the editor:

The Humane Society wishes to thank Hunan Restaurant at 12th and Gregg for their generous support of our fundraising booth at the 1988 Heart of the City Festival. Mr. Hsu donated the Chinese delicacies that we sold to raise money to support our Adoption Center.

Thanks also to the many volunteers who donated their time to make this project profitable.

She faults pool complaint

To the editor:

Regarding the complaints against the $2 charge for swimming at the city pool; I find the whole thing quite ridiculous, for the following reasons:

- People spend $4 and up to go to a 1½- to 2-hour movie.
- People rent videos for $1 to $4 for the same amount of time.
- What's the cost of bowling now days? And for how much time?
- What's the cost of any entertainment for a couple of hours?
- What's the cost per hour for a baby sitter? $2 for five hours is not a bad price.

In other words, what else can a person or family do for five hours for $2? Also, the article did not mention the fact that on Tuesday and Thursday nights an entire family can swim three hours for $3. I sympathize with low income families, however. I wonder how many can afford a six-pack of beer or cigarettes, but can't afford for their children to go swimming.

Also, regarding the benefits for city employees and families, I think this is wonderful. Most companies offer benefits to employees — why should there be a difference?

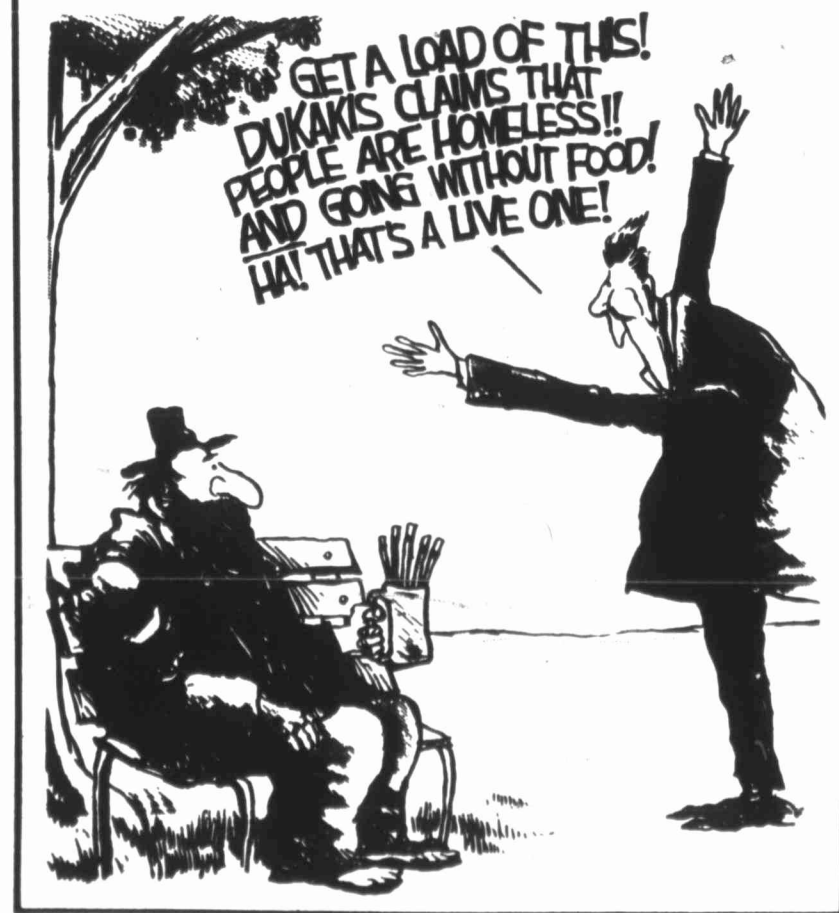

I really feel that the citizens of Big Spring should be more concerned for their safety regarding letting criminals out on our streets to commit the same crimes. I feel that we should all look more closely at important issues, such as the above mentioned crime, and the total cost of living.

BARBARA EVANS

806 Johnson

Editor's note: The letter writer is correct; the story should have included the information about family nights at the pool. According to city officials, entire families can swim for $3 from 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Teens learn of Indians

PINE RIDGE, S.D. (AP) — When 35 teenagers from across the nation arrived at the Sioux reservation here, they knew little about Indian culture, but after a week, they found a lot to admire and sympathized with Indian problems.

"When I found out I was going to a reservation, I thought about teepees and open range," said Gary Levenston of Coral Springs, Fla., who participated in the program that ended Friday. "I'm surprised by similarities between their culture and mine. A lot of their beliefs and values are ones everybody should follow."

Indian youths, too, said they benefited from the exchange, sponsored by the non-profit National Conference of Christians and Jews.

"I've been off the reservation, but not enough to stay and talk with people and learn about different cultures," said Mia Whirlwind Horse of nearby Wanblee. "It's really been valuable. I've got new friends. I learned to open up to people."

Quake rocks California

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — A small earthquake shook an inland area of Southern California on Saturday, but no damage was reported, authorities said.

The 6:22 a.m. quake was centered 23 miles southeast of San Bernardino and measured 3.2 on the Richter scale of ground motion, said Robert Finn, spokesman for the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena.

Sheriff's dispatchers in Yucaipa, 75 miles east of Los Angeles, and San Bernardino received no reports of damage. A dispatcher in adjacent Riverside County said the quake wasn't strong enough to wake sleepers.

The quake was measured at 3.7 on the Richter scale at the National Earthquake Information Center at Golden, Colo., said geophysicist Waverly Person. Discrepancies between local and distant measurements are common.

Lawmakers see drought

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

Congressmen touring the drought-stricken Plains promised farmers Saturday they would introduce relief legislation, while dredges continued cutting safe channels through shallow sections of the Mississippi and Ohio rivers.

The nation's worst drought since the Dust Bowl has left some bodies of water in the Southeast too low to supply water to cool power plants. Officials of one Illinois town voted Saturday to cut off water completely to customers who violate conservation measures.

"We haven't had enough rain to amount to anything in five years. It's pitiful," said David Lee Rhodes, whose family grows apples near Edneyville, N.C.

Turkey

Prison escapee shoots premier

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — An escaped convict shot and wounded Premier Turgut Ozal on Saturday, moments after Ozal urged his country to reject violence. Twenty-one people, including the gunman, were reported injured when police opened fire and the crowd stampeded.

Ozal, 61, was shot in the right hand and slightly wounded as he gave the opening speech at the convention of his governing Motherland Party.

"We have a more civilized atmosphere now. People of different views can now talk to each other instead of fighting or drawing their guns," Ozal said before the first shot struck the microphone. A second bullet hit Ozal.

Police fired at the assailant and hit him in the arm. Scores of people ran screaming as shots rang out. Sixteen suffered bullet wounds, and four were bruised in the stampede.

Prosecutor Cemal Ozer, who interviewed the gunman in a hospital, identified him as Kartal Demirag, 32, and said he escaped from the Mugla prison in western Turkey six months ago.

Ankara governor Saffet Arkan Beduk said Demirag had just begun serving a 10-year sentence for attempted murder when he fled the low-security prison.

Earlier, The Associated Press erroneously quoted Ozer as saying Demirag was serving time for murder. Authorities had not established a motive for the attack, Ozer said.

Turkish news agencies reported responsibility claims from the outlawed Kurdish Labor Party and another group called The Revolutionary Officers Organization.

None of the claims could be confirmed independently.

The Kurdish Labor Party is fighting for an independent Marxist state in parts of eastern and southeastern Turkey. About one-fifth of Turkey's 52 million people are ethnic Kurds.

The assassination attempt occurred three days after Ozal returned from a historic visit to Greece, Turkey's longtime enemy.

Police said Demirag, a schoolteacher, stayed in a hotel near the convention hall under the name of Hayati Ipek on Friday night. Beduk said police were investigating Demirag's possible political affiliations.

Police took into custody about 50 people, many of whom helped decorate the convention hall.

World

200 soccer fans arrested

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Police said Saturday they arrested 220 brawling English and West German soccer fans and expected more street clashes after Britain lost another European championship match.

Police said the arrests late Friday and Saturday in Munich and Frankfurt included 16 right-wing West German extremists. Twelve more rowdy fans were picked up just before Saturday's match between Britain and the Soviet Union. The Soviets won 3-1.

Following the match, police helicopters buzzed overhead and hundreds of lawmen patrolled the city's main train station, where fan disturbances had broken out late Friday.

Frankfurt police spokesman Kurt Kraus said 16 people arrested in Frankfurt early Saturday "are members of the notorious Eagle Front fan club." The Eagle Front is a group of violent young fans who profess right-wing extremist beliefs and often have tattoos of neo-Nazi emblems resembling swastikas.

Khomeini seen on TV

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini appeared on Iranian television Saturday, two days after reports surfaced that the 87-year-old Iranian leader was dead.

Khomeini was shown at a meeting of volunteer guards at the Jamaran mosque, near his home in northern Tehran.

The television report showed Khomeini sitting to one side of a podium as Ali Mohammed Rahmani, head of the volunteer guards, discussed the United States' impending $1.9 billion arms sale to Kuwait and other issues.

At the end of the meeting, Khomeini got slowly out of his chair and lifted his right hand to acknowledge the cheers of the guards. He did not speak and appeared weak, but he moved without assistance. The broadcast was monitored in Nicosia.

Haiti fires army chief

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Opposition leaders said Saturday they were puzzled by President Leslie Manigat's abrupt dismissal of his military chief, but they applauded the demonstration of civilian authority over the armed forces.

Youths chanting, "Down with Manigat, long live the army!" put up tire barricades Friday night on the main east-west highway at Petit Goave, about 30 miles west of the capital of Port-au-Prince.

Soldiers dismantled the barricades Saturday and arrested one of about 20 youths who began demonstrating in the town. Radio Haiti Inter reported.

Several rounds of gunfire were heard early Saturday from the army barracks of Petionville, a suburb of the capital. Radio Haiti Inter reported an explosion near the Champ de Mars Plaza.

She feels the city needs to bring in more business, clean up trash and clear vacant lots, and attract outside business.

SHERRY KLOSS

Sherry Kloss, employed by ClayDesta Communication, San Angelo, is active in United Way, Blue Blazers, Coahoma Athletic Booster Club and March of Dimes. She joined Leadership to gain better insight into local industries, business and organization, and to "become more involved." She feels Big Spring's problems are: depressed economy, negative attitude and lack of industry.

LISA BROOKS

Lisa Brooks, assistant director for Rape Crisis/Victim Services, is a member of the Chamber's Blue Blazers. She says she joined Leadership "to gain a better understanding of the city's history and a clearer perspective of its future." She feels that the community has failed to capitalize on its existing assets (Moss Lake, auditorium, amphitheatre, etc.) She believes it's suffering from regional state-of-shock over the tight economy and its effects.

MARK MORGAN

Mark Morgan is owner of Mark L. Morgan, CPA, and managing partner of Morgan Cattle Co. He is a director of Andrews Savings & Loan, a member of the Chamber, Friends of the Fair, professional organizations and Andrews Presbyterian Church.

His list of reasons for joining Leadership: gain knowledge of the community, become more aware of local problems/explore remedies; and become a "contributing member of the community." He defines local problems as the city's attitude toward itself; lack of economic development and diversification of the economy; and lack of community support.

JAN FORESYTH

Jan Foresyth, director of personnel for Howard County Junior College District, is active in 1948 Hyperion Club and Big Spring Country Club Ladies Golf Association. She joined Leadership to gain "more exposure to the community. I hope to increase my understanding of the community and its problems, and maybe in some small way to help overcome this situation." Pressing problems, she says, are depressed economy, lack of industry and low morale.

BEN GWIN

Ben Gwin is manager of Energas Company. He moved here recently from Slaton, where he was president of the Industrial Development Foundation; president of Slaton Chamber of Commerce, officer of Rotary Club and board member of American Red Cross. In joining Leadership, he hoped to "be a part of the community and help where help is needed." Problems he sees in the area are loss of business and people; getting new industries to locate here; and getting more help from the Chamber for existing businesses.

KAY BANCROFT

Kay Bancroft is co-owner of Artifacts and a realtor associate at Home Realtors. While living in Midland Kay was active in Junior League, Museum of the Southwest and Hearstone Advisory Board. Locally she has served on the Heritage Museum board, Chamber Beautification Committee and the Sesquicentennial Committee. She joined Leadership to learn more about the community in order to be an effective and efficient volunteer. She perceives local problems as poor self image, lack of economic diversity, and the fact that young educated adults do not return here to live.

SHERRIE BORDOFSKE

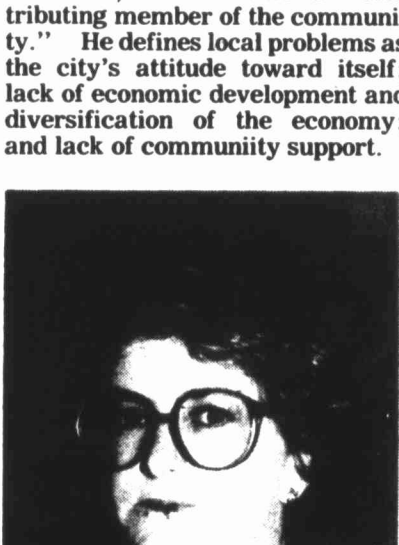

Sherrie Bordofsky, executive director of United Way, is active in Blue Blazers, Convention & Visitors Bureau, American Cancer Society and American Heart Association. She was president of Crossroads Stampede in 1985-86. By attending Leadership classes, Sherrie hoped to "have a better education of what Big Spring has to offer possible citizens in industry and entertainment." She believes the city faces a slow economy, lack of unity among "city fathers" and residents, and lack of interest in building a better environment.

BETTY CLERE

Betty Clere is head of occupational education division and business instructor at SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf. She is active in HCJCD Women's Association and Texas Junior College Teachers Association. From enrollment in Leadership, she hoped to gain a "better awareness of Big Spring and ways SWCID's O. E. division can interface with the business community."

Problems she perceives: lack of progressive attitudes toward business development, unemployment and declining population.

LINDA CONWAY

Linda Conway is dean of admissions at Howard College. She's active in First Methodist Church, the HC Hawk Club, Chamber publications committee and professional organizations. She hoped to gain understanding of economic factors, and get insight into growth patterns through her involvement with the Leadership program. She lists as problems needing solutions: leadership, economy and attitude.

ROBERT GARCIA

Robert Garcia is store manager at Don's IGA. He's active at Sacred Heart Catholic Church, and enjoys tennis and racquetball. Through this course he hoped to understand the impact of social and economic conditions on the city, and to understand city government and city functions. Lack of civic pride, poor economic conditions and declining population base are problems he sees.

BETTY SCHOENFIELD

Betty Schoenfield is office manager for the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce. She is active in Blue Blazers and is former organist at Miles (Texas) First Methodist Church. She joined Leadership to become better acquainted with the city, and to gain knowledge of city and country government. She sees problems in the flooding of Beals Creek, an inadequate city water system, and the condition of city parks.

RICKY MYERS

Ricky Myers, manager of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, is active in First Christian Church, Human Services Council, a member of the advisory board of Howard College Vocational Dept. From Leadership, Ricky hoped to gain insight into the city's present, past and future; to meet and learn from present leaders how development can be achieved in the future. Problems he sees: need for better communication between city council and citizens; need to develop job opportunities; and need to take better advantage of local facilities to attract tourism and major events.

DAVID TAYLOR

David Taylor, formerly occupational therapist at Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, is active in New Life Chapel Pentecostal Church and professional organizations. He holds a blue belt rank in karate. Through Leadership he hoped to learn more about community resources, and about the needs that could be filled by the Rehab Center. He cites as problems a poorly diversified economy, lack of idea interchange, and poor morale.

DANA JONES

Dana Jones, research chemist and lab director at Permian Research, is active in First Baptist Church, U. S. Tennis Association and professional organizations. Through Leadership he hoped to gain better working knowledge of the city and ways to improve it. He cites as problems: poor appearance/appeal to prospective industries; loss of tax base; decline of agriculture/industry; apathy of citizens; and politics.

DONETTE PHILLIPS

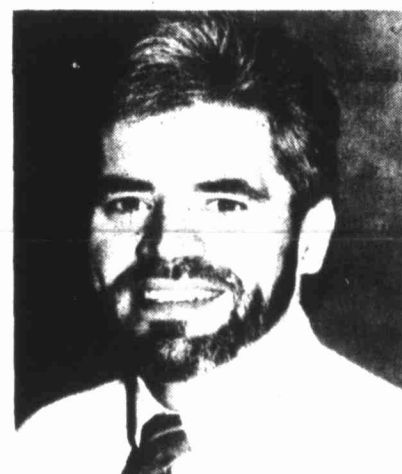

Donette Phillips, administrative assistant at TU Electric, is active in the Chamber Blue Blazers and an affiliate member of the Big Spring Board of Realtors. In her leisure she likes to try her hand at fishing and growing plants. She joined Leadership classes to "get an insight into the inner workings of the community." Donette believes the closing of businesses and a limited city budget are Big Spring's problems.

MARJORIE DODSON

Marjorie Dodson is broker-owner of South Mountain Agency Realtors. She is active in 14th & Main Church of Christ, Big Spring Board of Realtors and professional organizations.

She joined Leadership classes "to expand my knowledge and broaden my interests in Big Spring; and to learn how I can become a more positive participant in various community projects." She feels that problems facing the city are a declining population and the community's attitude toward this; and the city's physical appearance.

ROBERT WERNSMAN

Robert Wernsman, managing editor of the Big Spring Herald, was a member of the Vietnam Wall Committee, and serves on the boards American Heart Association and American Cancer Society. He has served with the Red Cross and the Retired Senior Volunteer Program. He hopes to obtain a better understanding of the values and hope among the leaders in the community. He believes the city's problems are lack of economic base, declining occupancy of homes and commercial structures, and poor general appearance.

BILL MYERS

Bill Myers, co-owner of Myers & Smith Funeral Home, is active in First Baptist Church, Morning Optimist Club and I.O.O.F. He looked for "self improvement" from the Leadership course, and expects to offer help with community improvement and unity. His perception of the problems: negative attitude, lack of employment for young people, and appearance of the city.

DAVID WRINKLE

David Wrinkle is owner-general manager of KBST Radio. He is a board member of Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center and Dale Carnegie Institute, Big Spring State Hospital volunteer, serves on the Chamber Beautification Committee and is active in First Baptist Church. He joined Leadership to become more active in the Chamber, a role he thinks more business and individuals should take.

He believes problems facing the city are aesthetic appeal; older residents "who have their fortunes made" but still control decisions; and losing retail dollars to adjacent cities. "Most people don't know or care how important it is to trade in Big Spring," he says.

Congratulations to the graduates of LEADERSHIP BIG SPRING

ARC members hear about new legislation

By ALISHA GOLDMAN
Copy Editor

Concerned citizens and members of the Association for Retarded Citizens learned Thursday night how they can involve themselves in legislative and funding issues.

ARC Austin representative Pat Brenner told about 30 people attending the 3-hour meeting about her successes — and failures — in seeing bills passed.

Brenner tearfully told the group, "(My daughter Shelley has) given back a lot more than she's taken. It's my responsibility and yours to see that the Shelleys of the world get what they need to be a member of society."

"If you don't do it, it's not going to get done," was Brenner's advice to the volunteer organization. "We need to be learning the issues."

She emphasized that volunteers can actively participate in the legislative process by calling state legislators.

"If we are going to see any change in the state of Texas, we're going to have to help (finance it)," she also told them.

Those attending the meeting included the vice president of the ARC Region 18, superintendent of the Abilene State School, coordinator of training centers from the Abilene State School, and an ARC staff member from Austin.

Others included parents and grandparents of mentally disabled children.

Gene Adkins, director of special education for the Big Spring school district, also spoke to the group and gave a report on local funding of special education.

He said the local system was responsible for 34 percent of the special education budget during the last school year, and he expects it to be 40 to 45 percent in the coming year.

He said the high percentage of local funding "shows a 'whale' of a lot of support from the school board."

Brenner added that some school districts do not contribute "even one penny" to special education and commended the local school board for its support.

Both support "mainstreaming" of mentally disabled children into the regular classrooms for at least some time. Brenner noted personal family experiences of the reaction of children toward her mentally retarded daughter.

At the school that integrated mentally retarded children, there was acceptance and even understanding; while at another school — where there was no integration, her daughter was ridiculed for her disability.

Brenner briefly mentioned several new laws pertaining to the mentally retarded that could help families with funding.

She urged them to contact U.S. Senator Lloyd Bentsen (D-Houston) about Medicaid reform legislation that will affect families with mentally retarded children.

Motorcycle course coming

Howard County will be one of the counties to have a mobile motorcycle training program, based on the severity of accidents. The county ranks 33 out of 254 counties and Big Spring ranks 35 in the state on the indices measuring rates of motorcycle accidents by county and city.

In cooperation with the Texas Department of Public Safety, the Howard College Continuing Education Department will be sponsoring a course next weekend. The course, "Riding and Street Skills," is a 17-hour curriculum developed by the Motorcycle Safety Foundation, that includes both classroom and on-cycle exercise.

Motorcycles, helmets, and insurance are provided for students who want to learn how to ride but don't own a bike. The course is open to anyone over the age of 15; those under 18 must have taken a Driver Education course.

"Our goal is to reduce the number of motorcycle accidents in the state. The figures are alarming — motorcyclists accounted for 11 per cent of all fatal vehicle accidents in 1986, yet only comprise 3 per cent of the total motor vehicle population."

"One way to reduce the fatality and accident rate is to improve operator skill levels and develop practical street survival and accident avoidance strategies. That is exactly what this program does," said Linda Aronovsky of DPS.

Call Howard College at 267-6311, extension 315. Pre-registration is required, no later than June 22. The fee for the course is $25.

Albany invites fire volunteers to 'Fandangle'

ALBANY (AP) — The last time an army of volunteers came to this West Texas town it was to battle a massive brush fire fanned by gusty winds, but this time the volunteers were met by rain and a "fandangle."

Invitations to the Fort Griffin Fandangle Friday were sent to hundreds of volunteers who helped fight March brush fires that scorched 300,000 acres and came within a mile of the city limits.

Other invitations to the festival of Western dancing and singing went to the farmers who donated hay after the week-long blaze and the 300 people stationed at Dyess Air Base who also came to help.

Their return for the Fandangle, which marks a 50th class reunion, was delayed by a surprising rain shower.

Ron Pettit, of Vidor, works on a wax figure before it is cast into a mold.

Vietnam influences artist

VIDOR (AP) — Ron Pettitt carries a badge and a gun, but he's more at ease with sable-hair paint brushes and the simple tools of a sculptor.

"I don't look at myself as a policeman who does art work, but as an artist who does police work," Pettitt says. His sculptures of Vietnam War veterans have gained him a national following.

One catalog of military-related items has a special boxed section for the creations of the Ron Pettitt Studios.

Pettitt, who served in the Army three years and was in Vietnam, says the sculptures appeal to the emotions of veterans.

The statues are about 10 inches high and depict working soldiers, not officers. Each has a replica of the Vietnam Service Medal and the flag of the Republic of Vietnam on the base.

Pettitt sculpts the figures in wax. The lifelike faces are lined and the uniforms creased and wrinkled.

Three-inch machine guns have rows of tiny air vents.

It's meticulous work, done with a small blade and two sticks.

"Some of these pieces can take a couple of hundred hours to do, just on the wax," Pettitt says.

But the sculpting isn't over when the wax figure is finished. Then comes the careful work of making a mold.

Statues are made from a powdered foundry stone, mixed and poured into molds. When molded and dried, each piece is hand-painted to minute detail.

Pettitt has now recruited and trained his wife, Dianne, to help with the painting.

New group addressing dropout problem

By ALISHA GOLDMAN
Copy Editor

A local group is addressing the problem of dropouts in schools at a forum for parents and their children next week.

Members of Hispanic Women for Progress met Tuesday night to solidify their plans for a public forum at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the West Side Community Center, 1311 W. 4th St.

Parents of children in the fifth to eighth grades are encouraged to attend and learn about tutoring opportunities, said Lupe Dominguez, president.

"We hope by targeting this age group we can encourage them to finish high school," she said.

Members of the group will be notifying area residents through churches this weekend.

"We want to address the parents — that is why we are going to the churches," said Dominguez.

According to the by-laws, the organization hopes to give help to parents and students who are at high risk for dropping out.

"Already in the first grade we have a list of students who are at risk (of dropping out). These kids have already met failure," said Martha Martinez, secretary for the new organization.

The three speakers at the forum will attempt — by sharing their own life experiences with education — to encourage students to remain in school, said Dominguez.

The speakers are Maria Alvear, a recent

Big Spring High School graduate who has received a scholarship to Notre Dame University; Debra Gwen, a nurse at a local medical center; and Ike Lowe, head nurse of the operating room at Scenic Mountain Medical Center.

A question and answer session will follow the speakers.

The group hopes to establish a free tutoring service for students having difficulty in school, beginning with those who attend the forum. They are seeking volunteers to help with the project.

The tutoring project is only the beginning of the group's plans for projects, however, Martinez said.

"We hope to offer counseling. We aren't just tutoring... we want to have different areas," she said.

Mitchell County buys equipment for officers

COLORADO CITY — Mitchell County Commissioner's Court Monday purchased a $10,578 radio console for the sheriff's department.

Motorola Company submitted the only bid for the five-channel dispatcher, expandable to eight channels.

Commissioners agreed to advertise for a new water transport truck for use in precinct three and for a seal coating project in precinct two.

Commissioners also:

- authorized the two justices of peace to utilize their part-time help as much as necessary in getting their computer system on line up to a total of 260 hours each during a three month period;
- renewed a one-year, one-dollar lease with Colorado City B&PW Club for the rodeo grounds;
- approved the closing and abandonment of an approximately one-mile road, CR 359 in the Hyman Community area, requested by Leon Applin;
- agreed to purchase a breath test reference device for use by city and county law enforcement officers with the DPS intoxilyzer at a cost of $199, and;
- approved the Mitchell County Appraisal District's estimated of tax values of $441,916,175 for the county, $438,328.195 for the county road fund and $10,151.07 as the county's share of the $42,512.89 proposed budget for the appraisal district.

The board of directors of the Colorado City Area Chamber of Commerce has agreed to establish a visitor's bureau as a means to help inform tourists about the area.

The visitor bureau will be established in the Fort Wood jail. Fort Wood is a commercial development located on Interstate 20. Brochures and traveler information will be maintained at the visitor's bureau.

The board has also agreed to begin gathering and compiling statistical information that would be available for inclusion with a proposal next year for a TDC prison unit.

Chamber Manager David Janca said that plans are proceeding on the business incubator project to help upstart businesses and industries. Don Altman of Abilene is scheduled to present a complete report on the incubator project at the next quarterly breakfast, July 20 at 7 a.m. in the First United Methodist Church fellowship hall.

Rogers wins doubles trapshooting victory

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Big Spring resident Kelly Rogers is the new Texas State Doubles Trapshooting Champion.

Rogers won the title June 10 at the Texas State Trapshooting Tournament in Amarillo, outlasting about 250 other competitors. He tied with five others with a score of 98X100 after regulation.

Kelly, Andy Smith of Lubbock and Gary Sherrod of Idalou shot perfect in the first shootout, with Sherrod dropping from contention in the second shootout.

In the third and final shootout, Rogers outscored Smith 20 to 19 to capture the state title.

The title is the third for Rogers, who won the Texas All-Around and Junior championships in 1982.

He was named runner-up in this year's All-Around and Overall competition, placing second behind Britt Robinson of Tahoka in both events.

Robinson scored 391X400 to Rogers' 387X400 in All-Around competition. In the Overall category, Robinson edged Rogers, 676X700 to 671X700.

Rogers again had to edge Smith in a shootout to capture second place in the Overall category, which occurred on the last day of competition at the Amarillo Gun Club.

About 375 competitors registered for the six-day event, with top shooters from Texas and several other states attending.

Rogers' high marks enabled him to be named to the 1988 Texas State Trap Team. Other members of the team are: Mike Fisher, Australia; Charlie Long, Houston; Smith; and Robinson.

The women's first team members are: Betty Johnson,

Fort Worth; Diane Stanley, Odessa; Pauline Bailey, Anna; Debbie Pinkston, Houston; and Beth Kirkpatrick, Odessa.

The 1989 state trap meet will be held in San Antonio in June, it was also announced.

Magazine report portrays Mike Tyson as wife-beater

NEW YORK (AP) — Eight days before the biggest fight of his career, heavyweight boxing champion Mike Tyson is portrayed in a Newsday report as a person who has hit his actress wife and raised fears among her family about their marriage.

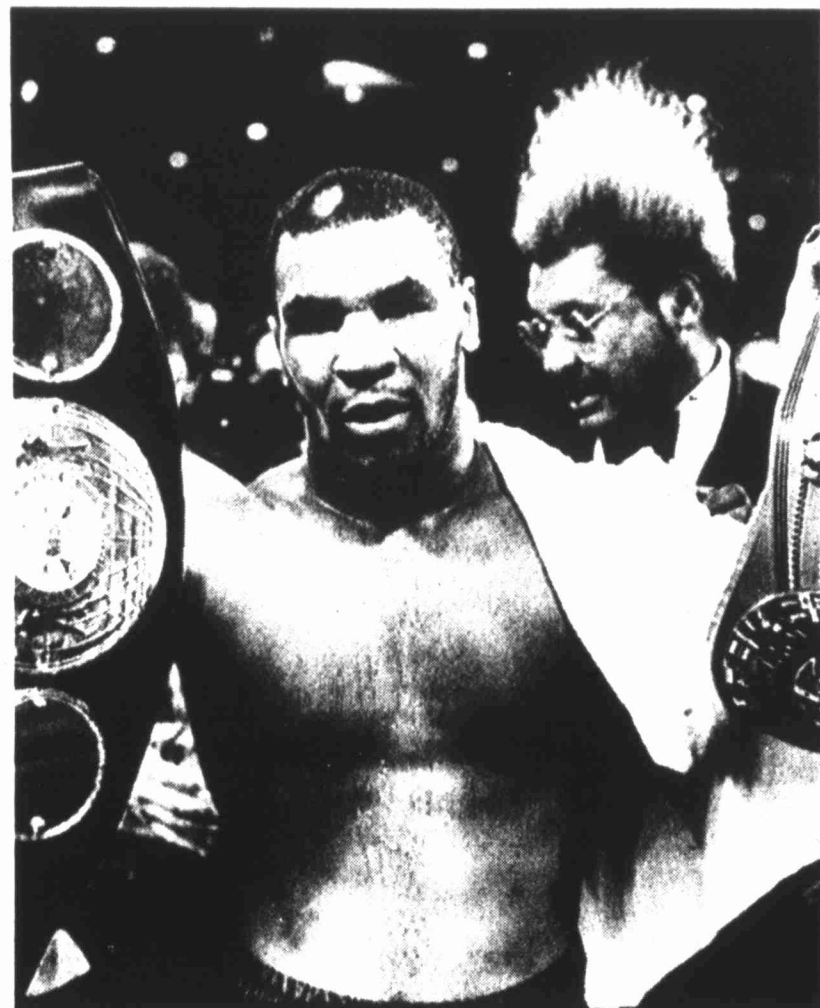

In its Sunday editions, Newsday reported that Stephanie Givens, sister of Tyson's wife, Robin Givens, contends that the marriage was a mistake from the beginning, that Tyson has emotionally and physically abused his wife, and that the stress of the rocky relationship caused Robin to have a miscarriage last week in Atlantic City, N.J.

"I've felt it's all been a big mistake from the beginning," Stephanie Givens told Newsday from Madeira, Portugal, where she was playing in a tennis tournament. "Michael's supposed to be the good guy and everybody else is supposed to be abusing him. Nobody knows how abusive Michael is. Robin has definitely been harmed emotionally. Not as much physically. But you never know what he is going to do."

In early May, the newspaper said, Stephanie Givens spent a week in Los Angeles with Tyson and Robin Givens, who was filming a television movie, "The Women of Brewster Place."

Stephanie Givens said Tyson was drinking heavily every day and one morning showed up at the set drunk. "(He) caused a terrible scene," the newspaper quoted her as saying. "He started breaking the lights, using foul language, throwing things. They had to stop filming. Robin had to leave the set to calm him down."

On another night, the report added, Tyson and his wife "had a Strange scrambles to third-round lead at U.S. Open

By BOB GREEN

AP Golf Writer

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Curtis Strange survived a late lapse Saturday and clung to a one-shot lead after the third round of the 88th U.S. Open Golf Championship.

Strange, needing only a major title to confirm his stature as one of the game's great players, was three shots ahead of the field with three holes to play, but had to one-putt the final green to retain sole control of the lead.

He had to contend with a storm delay — which he demanded — and occasional driving rain before completing a 2-under-par 69 for a 54-hole total of 206 on the historic course at The Country Club.

"I made a lot of good putts. I felt very comfortable all day long," said Strange, hailed by many of his fellow pros the finest player in the world.

But bogeys on the 16th and 17th cut into his comfort zone, trimmed his once-commanding margin to a single stroke and opened the door to a host of potential challengers in Sunday's final round.

Foremost among them are British Open champion Nick Faldo of England, the lone surviving serious contender of the formidable foreign contingent, defending champion Scott Simpson and Bob Gilder, who hasn't won in five years.

They are tied at 207, one shot back. Faldo's last-hole birdie finished off a 68 and Gilder shot a 70.

Simpson, the second-round leader who is seeking to become the first man to successfully defend his Open title since Ben Hogan in 1951, rallied for a 72.

D.A. Weibring, with a 68, and former Masters champion Larry Mize, with a 72, were another shot back at 208 — putting six men within two strokes of the top spot.

Mark O'Meara, who matched the tournament's best round with a 66, was at 209, one shot ahead of Fred Couples, who matched par with a 71.

Masters champion Sandy Lyle of Scotland all but shot himself out of it with a 75 that left him at 214, eight strokes back.

Seve Ballesteros of Spain, twice a Masters champion and a two-time British Open winner, was another stroke behind at 215 after a 72, and Greg Norman of Australia was at home in Florida nursing a sprained left wrist, which forced him to withdraw Friday.

But Faldo took over where they left off.

He was four shots back with three holes to play but made up one stroke per hole the rest of the way in, including a birdie on the 18th hole. Meanwhile Strange, playing behind him, took two bogeys before paring the final hole.

"I was making up ground sitting in the television tower," said Faldo, seeking to become the first British player to hold both major national titles since Tony Jacklin in 1970.

"I've just got to play solid again tomorrow, stay in the hunt," he said.

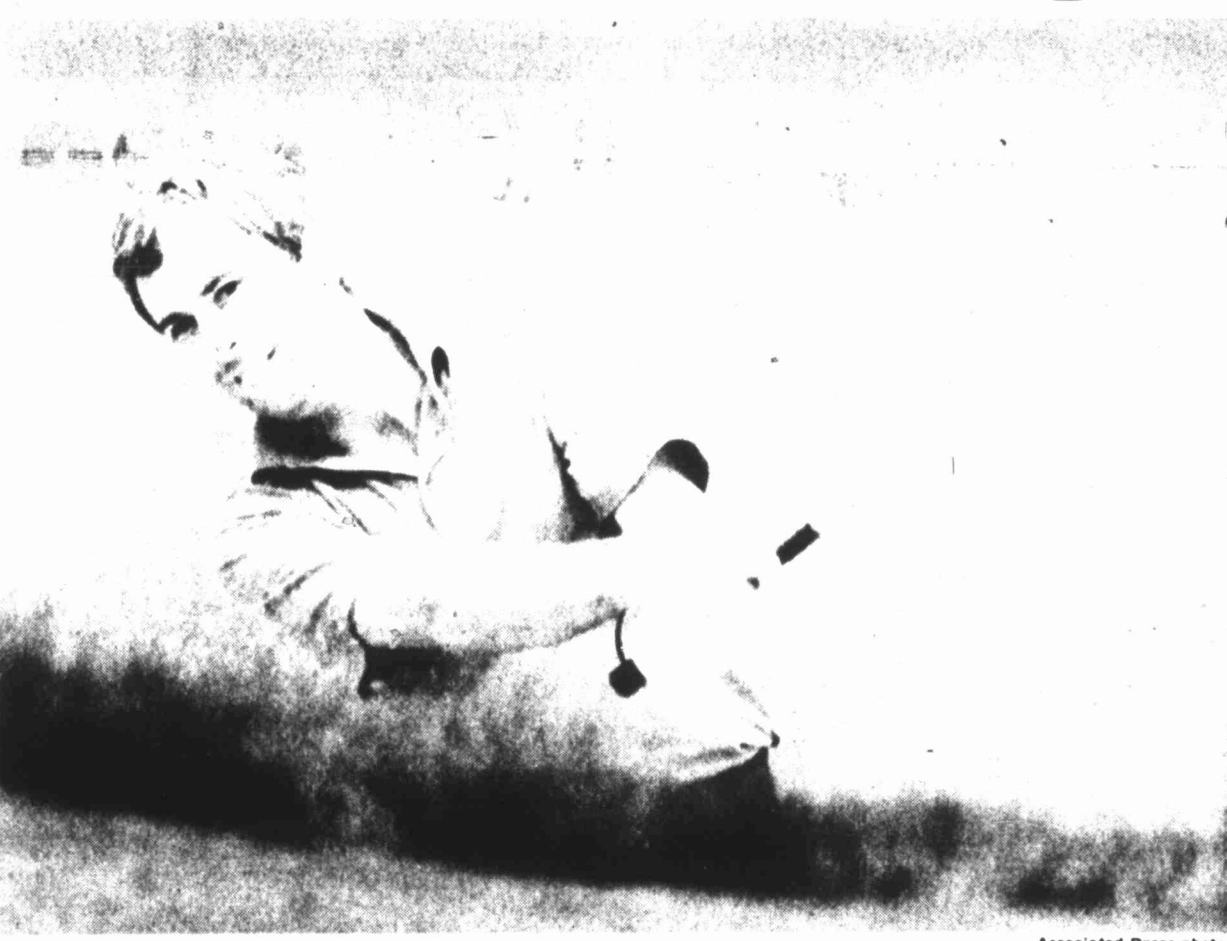

Strange, 33, who has won five titles in the last 10 months and set money-winning records in two of the last three seasons, took the lead with consecutive birdies on the eighth and ninth holes.

Simpson paved the way for him, surrendering the top spot when he got tangled up in the rough on the fifth, took four to reach the green and made double bogey-6.

Strange, meanwhile, birdied the third from about three feet, made a couple of 6-8 foot par-saving putts and then got a share of the top spot with a 15-foot putt on the eighth.

He went in front with a slightly longer effort on the ninth.

Gilder, playing with Strange, tied him with a 40-foot birdie on the 14th, but Strange dropped a 20-footer and was ahead again.

Myricks, Echols, Wilkens among winners at Mobil championships

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Larry Myricks got two medals while competing in only one event, Sheila Echols completed a rare double and Mac Wilkins won his record-tying seventh men's discus title Saturday in the Mobil Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

Myricks was presented with the bronze medal for finishing third in the long jump in the 1987 World Championships at Rome nine months ago before he earned a gold medal for winning his first national championship in the men's 200 meters.

The three-time Olympian, a 1979 World Cup champion and 1979-80 national champion in the long jump, was presented his World Championship medal belatedly by Dr. LeRoy Walker, president of The Athletics Congress, the national governing body for the sport.

The medal originally had been awarded to Giovanni Evangelisti, but the Italian relinquished it after it was discovered that officials had mis-measured the jump on which he was given third place.

Myricks, who originally had finished fourth, then was declared the bronze medalist.

"It was great to finally get the (bronze) medal," Myricks said. "It's an emotional thing. I've been waiting for it for a long time."

He also said that getting the medal before the 200 pumped him up for the race.

"It made me go out there and run a little faster," said Myricks, who led all the way and was timed in 20.50 into a strong headwind.

Echols, the 1987 NCAA long jump champion from Louisiana State, took the field event Saturday after winning the 100-meter dash Friday night. It was the first double by a woman in those two events in the national championships in 25 years.

Echols won with a leap of 21 feet, 1 1/2 inches Saturday. She had won the 100 in 11.04 after running her semifinal heat in a personal-best 11.01.

The last woman to win both the 100 and the long jump in this meet was Edith McGuire in 1963.

Four others have done the same double since women began competing in the national championships in 1923, including Stella Walsh, who did it in 1930, 1943, 1944 and 1948.

This was the third year in a row that Echols competed in both events in the national championships, but the first time that she won either competition.

Last year, she finished seventh in the 100 and third in the long jump, and in 1986, Echols was eighth in the 100 and second in the long jump.

Her winning long jump effort Saturday, however, was the worst winning performance in the national championships since 1972, when Willye White leaped 20-6 1/4.

"It didn't go all that well," Echols said about her jumping. "But it was well enough to win. As far as distance, I wasn't happy."

She also said she was unaware that she had broken the drought of 100-long jump doublers.

"I didn't know they kept records like that," she said.

Wilkins, the 1976 Olympic champion and 1984 silver medalist, won the discus at 214-2, ending John Powell's string of five straight national titles.

Wilkins, 37, won his first national championship in 1973, then began a streak of five in a row in 1976.

Pistons on brink of squashing LA repeat hopes

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Superior play put the Detroit Pistons on the brink of their first NBA title. A superior attitude may be needed to get it.

If Detroit — a fragile mix of personalities — keeps playing determined basketball and wins Sunday's sixth game at the Forum, the Pistons will dethrone the Los Angeles Lakers and win the championship, four games to two.

If they don't, a seventh game will be played in the Lakers' home

Tuesday night, keeping alive their hope of becoming the first team to win consecutive titles since the 1969 Boston Celtics.

Los Angeles lost Game 5 Thursday night because of poor rebounding, foul trouble and an inability to capitalize on a 12-0 start or stop Adrian Dantley.

Coach Pat Riley, who guaranteed successive championships a year ago, continued to voice optimism.

"I like our chances," he said after the 104-94 fifth game loss. "I still believe that this team is going to win the championship this year."

The Pistons, who scrambled back from a 2-1 deficit to win the last two games at their Pontiac Silverdome, don't expect any problems getting in the right frame of mind for the biggest game in the history of a franchise that began in Fort Wayne, Ind., in 1948 and moved to Detroit in 1957.

"Our letdowns come at home," center Bill Laimbeer said. "On the road, we're just 12 players cheering each other on."

"I don't think there'll be a letdown," said forward Dennis Rodman. "It'll be a question of who wants it more. We have to be concentrating and stay in our game and not do anything stupid."

During the series, guard Vinnie

LOS ANGELES — Detroit Piston Isiah Thomas, standing, reads a newspaper after the team boarded a bus upon arrival in Los Angeles Friday. The Pistons, leading the NBA championship series, 3-2, will

Johnson and forward Ricky Mahorn complained about playing time. Before the fifth game, the serious Dantley chided teammates about their light-hearted behavior in the locker room.

Throw in the emotional Rodman and John Salley and an eventful week in which Isiah Thomas played with a painful back injury and became a father, and the Pistons' psyche becomes critical.

"That's the makeup of our team," Dantley said. "We've gone through this all year. Some guys don't like criticism but you've got to get on them.

"Sometimes we have a tendency to get a little cocky when we win, getting to talking," he added. "When we lose, we're very quiet, good concentration."

Coach Chuck Daly has learned to live with his team's quirks.

"I can't get the whip out. They won't allow me," he said. "If you don't know at this point what's out there for you..."

"But, hey, it's the human mind, the human element."

"We proved we could win a big game when it counted," Laimbeer said after the fifth-game victory.

The sixth game of last year's finals also was played at the Forum. But the Lakers went into it

"I don't think there'll be a letdown. It'll be a question of who wants it more. We have to be concentrating and stay in our game and not do anything stupid." — Pistons' forward Dennis Rodman.

"I still believe that this team is going to win the championship this year." — Lakers' coach Pat Riley.

Martina to skip Olympics

EASTBOURNE, England (AP) — Martina Navratilova says she will skip the Seoul Olympic Games because they aren't important enough and because she doesn't want to be treated "like a child."

"The Olympics just don't mean as much" as tournaments on the Virginia Slims circuit, Navratilova said. "I would have to sacrifice the circuit to play there. The most important thing for me is becoming No. 1 again. The Olympics won't help me."

This year, tennis is returning to the Olympic Games as a medal sport for the first time since 1924. Four years ago in Los Angeles, it was a demonstration event.

Unlike the regular men's and women's professional tournaments, there will be no prize money at stake in Seoul, computer rankings will not be affected and strict restrictions will be imposed on endorsements and sponsorship.

Navratilova, who begins her bid for a record ninth Wimbledon women's singles crown next week, said she welcomed the return of tennis to the Olympics. But she said it was definitely not for her.

"It's too much to play my scheduled tournaments and the Olympics," she said. "I feel a lot more obligation to the circuit, which has made us what we are. Hopefully, the Olympics will do a lot for tennis and I would love to represent the United States. But I did not feel it essential to be there."

The left-hander made her comments after winning the $250,000 Pilkington Glass championships Saturday in her final build-up for Wimbledon.

She said she also did not approve of the financial restrictions imposed on Olympic athletes.

"The whole thing about it is so far removed from how the circuit operates," Navratilova, 31, said. "It would be like going back to the amateur days. I would have problems with that... being treated like a child again. We should get rid of the hypocrisy and admit we are all professionals."

Rodeo facing bullfigter shortage

A series of injuries has left this year's Big Spring Rodeo short a bullfigter, according to rodeo board member Quail Dobbs.

Rodeo clown Deacon Jones, who had committed to the Big Spring rodeo, suffered broken ribs and a bruised artery when he was struck in the chest by a bull at a recent rodeo. He will be out of commission for several months, Dobbs said.

A replacement for Jones — veteran clown Jeff Grigsby — was hired Wednesday, but he had to withdraw because of injury also, Dobbs said.

A third clown, Roach Hardeman, was contacted, but had to decline because of a broken jaw suffered as a result of an encounter with a bull, Dobbs added.

With the spate of recent injuries, the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo Association is looking for a bullfigter. Interested persons can contact the association by calling (915) 267-9370.

Panthers blast Dynamites, 26-2

Jenny Conaway and Jennifer Ornelas combined to pitch a four-hitter, and their teammates rapped 16 hits as the Panthers bombed the Dynamites, 26-2 in UGSA Division II action Thursday evening.

Winning pitcher Conaway also swung the big stick for the Panthers, going four-for-four with a triple, two doubles and seven RBIs to lead her team's winning effort.

Fawn Goodblanket, Sandy Franco, Ornelas, Brandi Belew and Debbie Cunningham had two hits apiece for the Panthers.

Heather James, Michelle Landreth, Teri Gonzales and Heather Birdwell each had one hit for the Dynamites. Melinda Machado was the losing pitcher in the contest.

With the win, the Panthers kept their season record perfect at 9-0, while the Dynamites fell to 5-4 for the season.

Dynamites rebound in big way

The Dynamites rebounded from the shellacking they received Thursday by blasting the Bullets, 24-9, in Division II action Friday evening.

Rachel Ortega and Heather Jones led a 24-hit attack for the victors, with each rapping four hits. Kari Blauser, Michelle Calvio, Melinda Machado and Michelle Landreth each had three hits for the Dynamites.

Ortega, Jones, Blauser and Calvio each blasted home runs for the winners.

Angela Griffin and Toni Chester had two hits apiece — including homers — to pace the losers.

James and Machado combined efforts on the mound, with James earning the victory and Machado recording her fourth save of the season. Griffin was the losing pitcher for the Bullets.

The Dynamites improved their record to 6-4 with the victory, while the Bullets fell to 1-7 with the loss.

Astros trade for gold glover Bell

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds traded third baseman Buddy Bell to the Houston Astros Saturday for a minor leaguer to be named after the season.

The Reds said the move cleared a roster spot that will be used for outfielder Eddie Milner.

Bell, 36, lost his starting job to rookie Chris Sabo and didn't have a role on the team. He had hoped to finish his career this season in Cincinnati, where he grew up, but welcomed the chance to play for a contender.

The Astros began the day in second place in the NL West. The Reds are tied with San Francisco for third.

"I'm pretty comfortable with going over there," Bell said. "I've played with a lot of guys who are over there. ... At this point, I have very mixed emotions."

Bell will join the Astros Monday, when they return to Houston to open a series with the Reds.

"I think Buddy will be a good addition," Houston manager Hal Lanier said in Atlanta, where the Astros played the Braves Saturday night. "He's a proven hitter and a seasoned veteran who can help us. He still has all the tools."

Bell, now in his 17th major-league season, has a .281 career average with 2,431 hits, including 194 home runs, and 1,066 RBI. He is also a six-time Gold Glove winner.

Bell, who began his career with Cleveland in 1972 and was traded to Texas in 1979, came home when he was acquired by the Reds in July, 1985. His father, Gus, was an outfielder for the Reds from 1953-61 and is in the Reds' Hall of Fame.

He received his father's No. 25 and put together two of his best seasons in 1986-87. He hit .278 with a career-high 20 homers and 75 RBI in 1986, and followed that with .284, 17 homers and 70 RBI last year.

He had arthroscopic surgery on his right knee last January, then twice sprained his left knee during spring training, forcing him to open the season on the disabled list.

He was activated April 10 and reinjured the knee while chasing a ball during a game in San Francisco, putting him back on the 15-day disabled list April 14. That gave Sabo the chance to play every day.

The rookie became one of the hottest hitters on the team, relegating Bell to the bench when he came off the DL again May 11. Bell has just 10 hits in 54 at-bats with three RBI.

"The only reason he wasn't playing was that the rookie was playing so well," Lanier said, adding that he would meet with Bell before deciding how to use him.

Sabo went 4-for-4 Saturday with a homer, a triple and two doubles to raise his average to a club-high .316 with a club-leading 23 doubles, eight homers and 26 RBI.

"A guy gets hot, he (Sabo) gets in there, and it's hard to get him out," manager Pete Rose said. "That's really what happened."

Rose and General Manager Murray Cook said the trade was made to give Bell a chance to play. "It was a way to accommodate a player who has been very good to this organization," Cook said.

Bell reaffirmed Saturday that he'll probably retire after this season.

Milner was suspended for a year by Commissioner Peter Ueberroth when he had a drug relapse in spring training. Milner went into a drug rehabilitation program and the suspension later was shortened to two months. He has played in 16 games for Class AA Chattanooga while working back into shape, hitting .206 with four RBI, no homers and no stolen bases.

Rangers lose in 13 innings

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Ron Hassey's one-out single scored Luis Polonia from second base in the bottom of the 13th inning Saturday and gave the Oakland Athletics their second straight extra-inning victory, 2-1 over the Texas Rangers.

Oakland won 7-6 in 14 innings Friday night and played 27 innings in less than 24 hours. Texas reliever Dale Mohoric, 2-5, lost for the second game in a row.

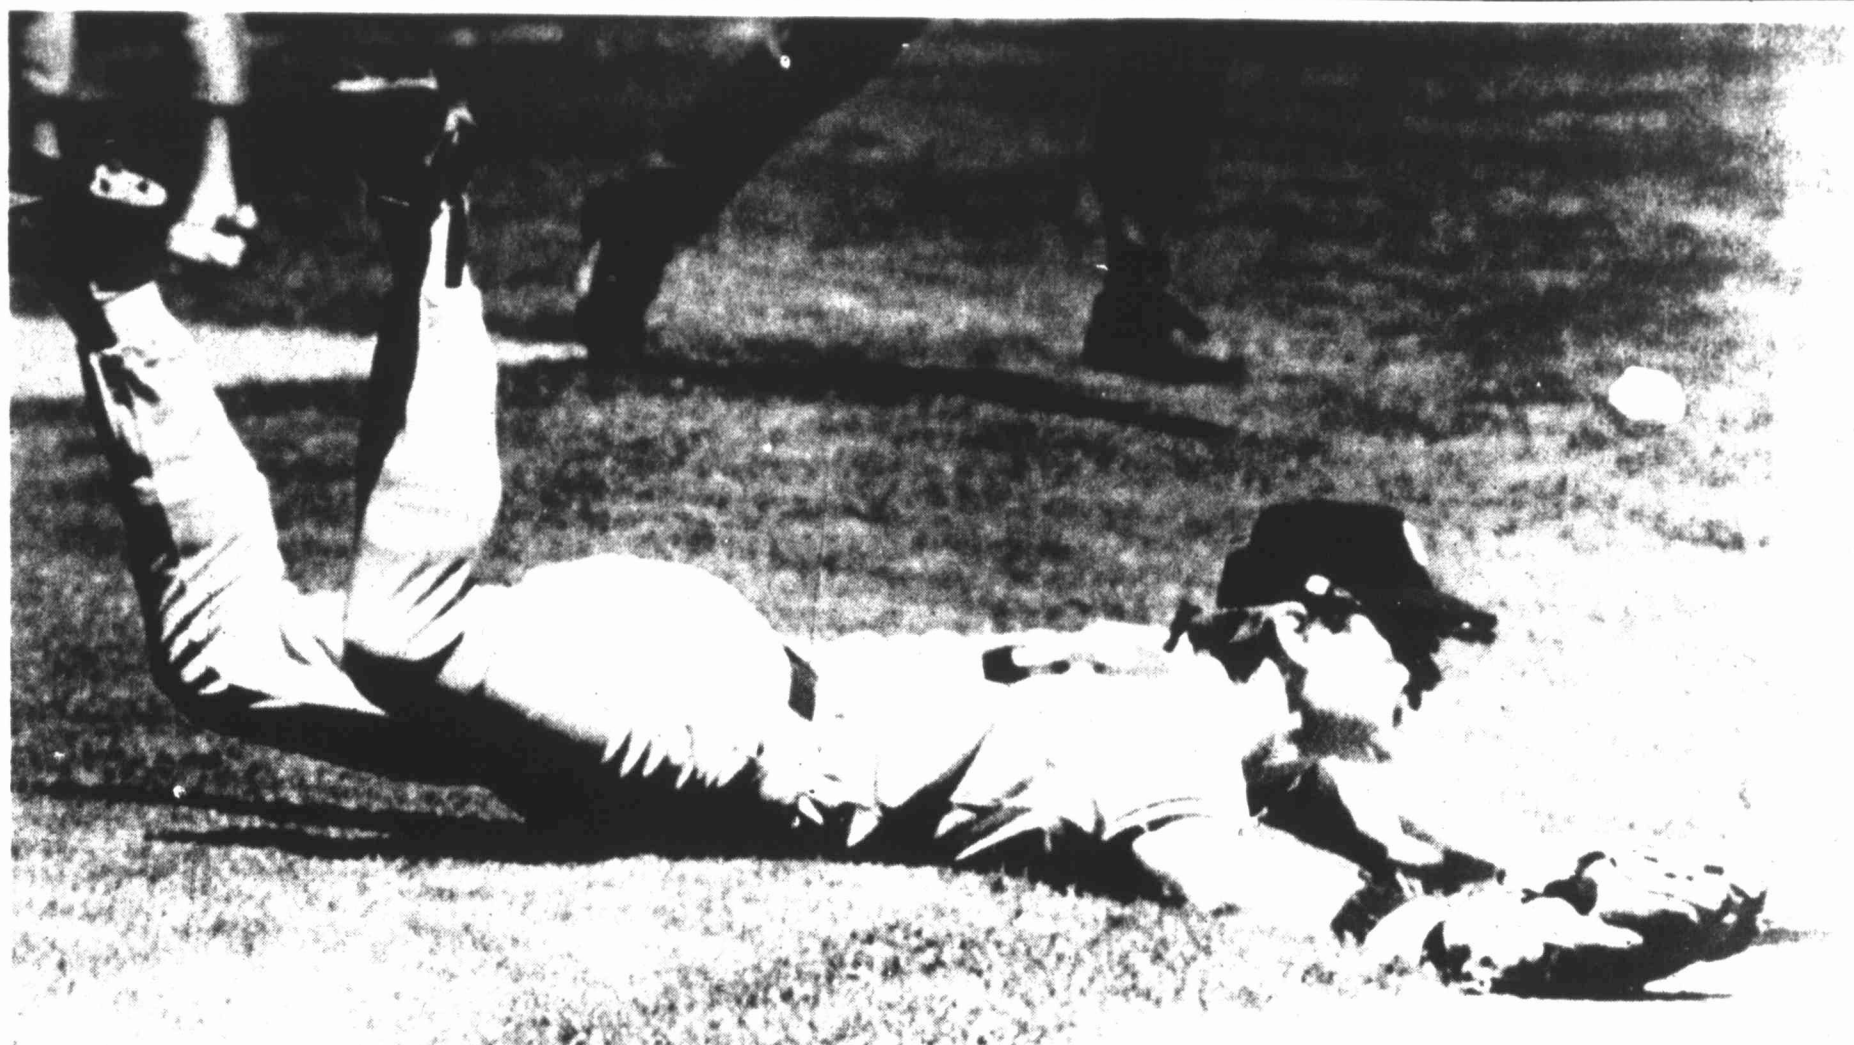

Polonia singled with one out in the 13th, stole second and scored when Hassey hit a 2-0 pitch for his seventh game-winning RBI to make a winner of Gene Nelson, 5-2.

Nelson pitched 3 1/3 shutout innings despite yielding two hits and four walks. The Rangers loaded the bases with none out in the top of the 12th but failed to score.

Texas' Charlie Hough held Oakland to five hits and one run in 10 innings. Oakland rookie Todd Burns, making his first major-league start, allowed five hits and a run in eight innings.

The Rangers took a 1-0 lead in the top of the fifth. Geno Petralli singled and Barbaro Garbey walked to start the inning. After Steve Buechele lined out, Curtis Wilkerson singled to load the bases. Petralli was forced at the plate on Cecil Espy's grounder but Scott Fletcher walked on four pitches to force in the Texas run.

Hough pitched four perfect innings before Dave Parker led off the Oakland fifth with a single. After Parker took second on Petralli's passed ball, Hassey and Stan Javier walked to load the bases. Parker scored on Mike Gallego's grounder.

CLEVELAND — New York Yankee first baseman Don Mattingly makes a diving try but fails to catch a pop foul off the bat of Cleveland Indians' batter

Andy Allanson in the fifth inning of the Yankee-Indian game Saturday.

Clemens rebounds from bad outing with his sixth shutout

BALTIMORE (AP) — Roger Clemens bounced back from the worst outing of his career and pitched his major-league-leading sixth shutout of the season Saturday, scattering nine hits as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Baltimore Orioles 5-0.

American league

Clemens, who was tagged for nine runs and 15 hits in 6 1/2 innings by the New York Yankees last Monday night, walked one and struck out nine to raise his major-league-leading total to 149. His 10-4 record tied him with Cleveland's Greg Swindell as the only American League pitchers with 10 victories.

"When you have a (lousy) performance, you want to get back out there and pitch well," Clemens said. "I had to get back out there and do what I did."

"I had a better breaking ball today; I think I had better stuff against New York. They only hit about three balls hard. Today, they hit more than that hard but those were caught, and when I broke their bats the balls dropped in front of the outfielders."

Clemens walked one and struck out nine to raise his major-league-leading total to 149. His 10-4 record tied him with Cleveland's Greg Swindell as the only American League pitchers with 10 victories.

Clemens is 8-0 on the road this season and has won 11 consecutive starts away from home. In his eight road starts this year, Clemens has yielded seven earned runs in 68 1/2 innings — an ERA of 0.92 — and has held opposing batters to a .181 batting average on 45 hits in 249 at-bats.

Boston took a 2-0 lead in the first inning off Jose Bautista. Wade Boggs walked to open the game and scored on Dwight Evans' double. Mike Greenwell singled to score Evans. Boggs had an RBI single in the second, Evans singled home another run in the fifth and Marty Barrett had an RBI single in the ninth off Tom Niedenfuer.

Yankees 6, Indians 3
CLEVELAND (AP) — Don Mattingly tied the game with a two-run double and Dave Winfield's two-run homer capped a five-run fifth inning as New York ended a three-game losing streak.

Rick Rhoden allowed the three Cleveland runs and six hits in six-plus innings for his first victory since May 21. Cecilio Guante relieved after a leadoff double in the seventh and pitched three hitless innings for his eighth save.

Loser Scott Bailes gave up the five New York runs in the fifth after limiting the Yankees to one hit through four innings. Rafael Santana started the Yankees' fifth with an infield hit and was forced at second on Joel Skinner's grounder.

Rickey Henderson singled Skinner to second and both runners scored on Mattingly's double. One out later, Jack Clark singled Mattingly home for a 3-2 lead.

Maddux hurls shutout to garner 12th victory

CHICAGO (AP) — Greg Maddux became the major leagues' first 12-game winner with a five-hitter Saturday, pitching his third shutout of the season as the Chicago Cubs beat the Montreal Expos 2-0.

San Francisco has lost six of seven.

Ron Robinson, 3-5, scattered five hits over five innings and snapped a personal three-game losing streak. It was Robinson's first victory in eight starts since he came within one out of a perfect game against Montreal on May 2.

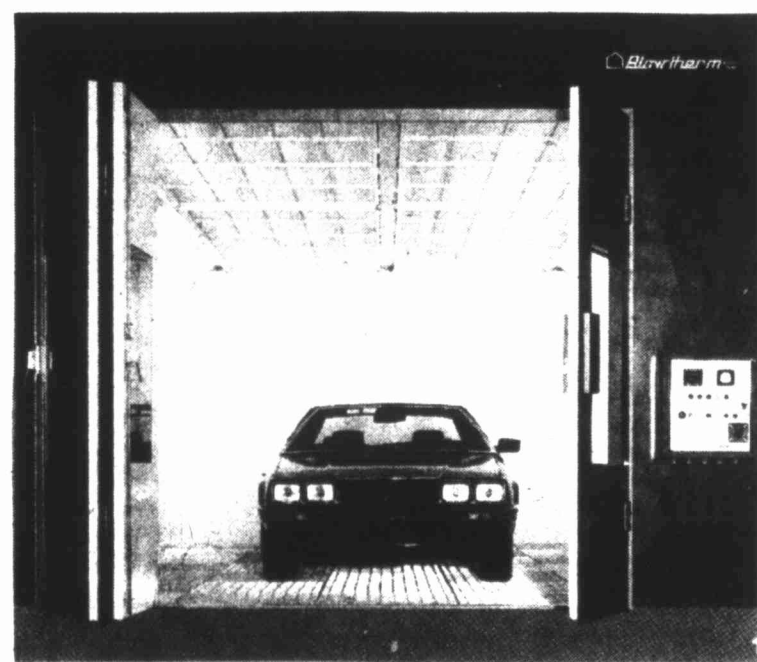

Sabo opened the third with his eighth home run of the season and his fifth against the Giants. He doubled in the fifth off Downs, then tripled in the seventh off Don Robinson and scored when second baseman Chris Speier's relay throw to third bounced off Sabo's helmet for an error.

Dodgers 3, Padres 0
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rookie Tim Lincecum combined with two relievers on a five-hitter and Jeff Hamilton hit a two-run homer as Los Angeles snapped a three-game losing streak.

The victory also ended a five-game losing streak against San Diego.

John Shelby led off the second with a single against Eric Show. 5-7. Two outs later, Hamilton hit his second homer to right.

Opinion

Forget the associations, let's get back to basics

By ED SCHUYLER
AP Sports Writer

Boxing is Johnny telling Billy at recess, "My father can beat up your father," and getting punched in the nose for his trouble.

It's some guy in a bar saying, "C'mon outside, ya bum," and the challenge being accepted.

"May the best man win," old-time ring announcers used to say to conclude their introductions.

Boxing is basic.

The International Boxing Federation, the World Boxing Council and the World Boxing Association, the three international governing bodies of the sport, often forget this in pursuit of their own interests.

The IBF is threatening not to sanction Mike Tyson's scheduled undisputed heavyweight title defense against Michael Spinks on June 27 unless the fight is set for 15 rounds, and Tyson's manager, Bill Cayton, is threatening to sue the IBF if it strips his fighter of title recognition.

If the IBF withdraws, why not replace it with another lettered organization such as the:

FBI — Prefight examinations consist of fingerprinting and profile photos. Instead of listing the top 10 challengers, the 10 most-wanted are listed.

NEA — Teachers are the judges and they score on a multiple-choice basis — win, lose or draw. Instead of rest periods between rounds, there is a recess.

AMA — All fouls are referred to the Ethics Committee. This organization of doctors might soften its official stance against boxing if it was paid sanctioning fees.

CIA — The official decision will be leaked.

ABC-TV — One-minute rounds, three-minute rest periods.

ABA — Instead of judges, there will be juries. All decisions will be appealed.

FAA — Fights must start at 10:30 p.m. precisely, approximately. There is no smoking in the aisles and fights of eight rounds or less are non-smoking fights.

NBA — Each championship will have three referees and be the best-of-seven.

CBS-TV — One-minute rounds, three-minute rest periods.

PGA — 18 rounds. Draws are settled by a sudden-death playoff.

NBC-TV — One-minute rounds, three-minute rest periods.

IRS — 12 rounds after fighters fill out 12,000 simplified forms.

AFL-CIO — Overtime for any fight that starts after 5 p.m. Double time for holidays.

NHL — Perhaps its president, John Ziegler, would like to see a fight without a hockey game.

Of course things would be better if there was only one worldwide governing body. Should such a thing come to pass, a perfect commissioner would be C. Everett Koop, surgeon general of the United States. He would allow any heavyweight who can stand up to challenge for the title except Smokin' Joe Frazier.

"I would find it intolerable," Cayton says of the possibility the IBF will withdraw championship recognition from Tyson.

Such a move would be more foolish than intolerable.

The bout will be scheduled for 12 rounds, and whoever wins the battle of unbeaten fighters between Tyson and Spinks at the Atlantic City Convention Center is the heavyweight champion of the world. Period.

Local boxing club renders thanks

To the sports editor:

Since the existence of competitive boxing in Big Spring, we have many to thank for the long, hard struggle to get a permanent training facility, financial backing, public acceptance, and community support. For these things we are deeply grateful.

We're grateful to the individuals and businesses who donated money, supplies, and materials on many occasions. These are too numerous to mention.

We're grateful to the Big Spring Convention and Tourists Bureau that awarded us enough funds to rent the National Guard Armory which allowed us to have our West Texas Box-Off and Our Junior Olympic Tournament. Numerous boxers, coaches, families and friends from all over West Texas came to watch the competitive tournament matches.

We're grateful to the boxers who dedicate themselves to excellence. They represent Big Spring, Texas admirably, we are very proud of you.

We're grateful to the parents, relatives, and friends of the young boxers for their continuing encouragement and support.

Finally, we're grateful to the news media, especially the Big Spring Herald, for giving this "new" sport, coverage and publicity.

Boxing is an often misunderstood sport, but one that has a long history and one that meets the athletic interests of a group of which no other sports can take its place.

To all of these people, we the undersigned offer our gratitude and admiration.

Sincerely,

The Big Spring

Ex-Hawk player praises coach

To the sports editor:

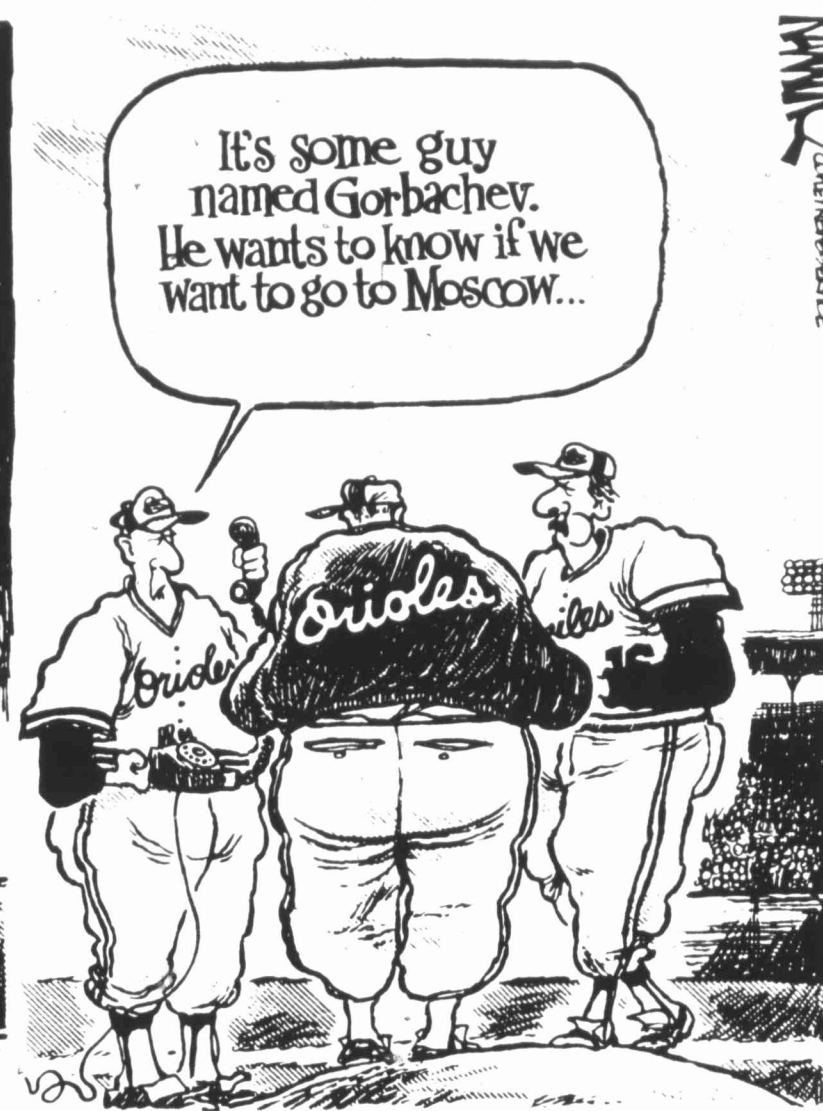

Over the years I have read several articles concerning players who played for Coach Harold Davis. Being one of those players, I would like to say that Harold Davis was not just a great coach, he also is a great gentleman. He had a very positive effect on my life as well as other ex-Jayhawks. I am very thankful to have been lucky enough to have played for this man.

Where to play the U.S. Open

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

The United States Golf Association, caretaker of the game, operates with an appreciation of history and a sense of tradition not always evident in other sports.

The USGA, for example, would never think of legislating an extra club in the players' bag the way baseball added another hitter in the lineup.

It would never change the value of a birdie depending on its distance, the way basketball did with the three-point field goal.

So, it was no accident that on the 75th anniversary of local caddy Francis Omet's stunning playoff victory in the U.S. Open, and the 25th anniversary of Julius Boros' dramatic playoff win, that the Open returned to The Country Club in Brookline, Mass.

Expecting a fancy condominium course like the ones the pros play almost every week on the PGA Tour? No way. The USGA does not operate that way.

Playing this tournament in this setting was no simple matter from a logistical standpoint. Galleries were limited to 20,000 fans each day and even then, the place was crowded. Traffic and parking were perpetual headaches because Brookline's boulevards aren't designed for Open-sized audiences.

That is a continuing problem for the USGA, which must balance the rapid growth of its marquee event with its desire to keep the tournament anchored in golf's intimate, traditional settings.

"We go to courses that are not otherwise available to the pros," said Bill Battle, newly installed president of the USGA. "I don't see the rotation changing."

So, the world's best golfers will be at Oak Hill in Rochester, N.Y., next June, at Medina, Ill., in 1990 and at Hazeltine outside Minneapolis in 1991.

Four years ago, the Open was played at Winged Foot in tiny Mamaroneck, N.Y., and still vivid are the images of players like Larry Nelson and Tom Watson abandoning their cars in traffic jams and running off to make their tee times.

Two years ago, the Open went to Shinnecock Hills on Long Island, where it took major road reconstruction in a two-lane area to accommodate the crowds.

And, this year it came to The Country Club, a logistical nightmare in the affluent Boston suburb of Brookline.

"You know what the problem is?" asked retired player Dave Marr, now broadcasting for ABC. "The country clubs aren't in the country anymore. The cities have come to the old clubs, like Merion, Winged Foot and maybe here."

"You have to give the USGA credit, though. It finds ways to make it work."

It is not easily accomplished. The USGA's Battle talks about the army of volunteer marshalls, parking, concession and gallery arrangements necessary. Augusta National hosts the Masters every year; it knows what to expect. The Country Club had the Open twice before — in 1913 and 1963.

"I would hate to see them change and leave courses like this," Marr said. "Playing at the old places, you can make comparisons. Maybe they've got to limit the galleries even more. You know a stadium seats 60,000 and they don't sell more tickets than that. But I'd hate to make it an elitist or corporate event where an ordinary citizen can't buy a ticket."

That is the delicate balance that troubles the USGA. Limited galleries reduce the tournament's exposure to fans as well as the income this type of event can generate. That's why there are 34 corporate hospitality tents, each peddled at $100,000 apiece, dotting the landscape at The Country Club.

"The tents are a bit of a departure for us," Battle said. "A great deal of thought went into that. From our point of view, that review was important. It's a need to balance between realism and what we'd like."

"They're a necessary evil. I'd prefer to see wide open space out there, grass, trees, flowers. But the tents have been done tastefully. They're not offensive. It's not like a carnival."

Image is always a major concern in this sport. That is why, unlike some major college football bowl games and unlike the Olympics, Battle promises there will never be an official U.S. Open car or drink. He also promises the USGA will not abandon the old, traditional layouts, their size limitations notwithstanding.

"It's a concern, but not an immediate problem," he said. "The benefits so far outweigh the inconveniences and additional work."

When the USGA picked Shinnecock Hills for the 1986 Open, Southampton residents warned of disaster. The USGA went ahead anyway, constructing overhead bridges for pedestrians to cross a nearby highway, and watched it flourish.

"I don't think any tournament in my memory received the applause of the players as much as this one and Shinnecock," Battle said.

"The players don't get to the old courses very often. That makes it a pure test. Nobody has an advantage. They appreciate the old courses because they're so steeped in history. They stand the test of time."

"I like the history. Our last three Opens — Shinnecock, Olympic (San Francisco) and here — they are super courses. Granted, we can't have 50,000 or 60,000 fans. But 25,000 or 30,000 get to see and enjoy it and millions more watch on TV."

And don't worry about the size limitation causing too much impact on the ample coffers of the USGA.

"Money isn't everything," Battle said. "Preserving the integrity of the game is very important. That's the attitude of the USGA. There are no commercial temptations. And there won't be any in my term."

Bobby V likes what he's doing

By DENNY FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Bobby John Valentine leans on the metal bar behind the batting cage, watching line drives fly around Arlington Stadium.

He alternately offers soft advice and needles. The players jaw back. It's good baseball talk. Valentine loves it.

Bobby V is comfortable. He should be.

He's the youthful commander of a major league team. He owns six successful restaurants, two in the same city he manages. Valentine could walk away from baseball in its 16 years of existence.

He's had to learn to swallow a little pride with the Texas Rangers, a franchise which hasn't earned a division flag in its 16 years of existence.

Bobby V and general manager Tom Grieve are building a patience-taxing team through youth ala the Dodgers and the Mets.

"While with the Mets I saw them bring in young players like

Conn. Valentine went from there directly to the Los Angeles Dodgers as a first round 1968 pick, the fifth player to be selected in the nation.

His big league career went south when he collided with an outfield fence in 1973, breaking his right leg in two places. The scrappy Valentine was a .260 singles hitter in the big leagues for the Dodgers, California Angels, and New York Mets. He only had 12 home runs.

Valentine learned a lot about the baseball trade at the knee of Dodgers' manager Tom Lasorda.

Later, Valentine was an assistant coach with the Mets and was named manager of the Rangers on May 16, 1985, at the age of 34, the youngest in the majors.

Valentine has number 2 on the back of his uniform but second isn't in his dictionary. He burns to win.

He's had to learn to swallow a little pride with the Texas Rangers, a franchise which hasn't earned a division flag in its 16 years of existence.

Bobby V and general manager Tom Grieve are building a patience-taxing team through youth ala the Dodgers and the Mets.

"While with the Mets I saw them bring in young players like Dwight Gooden, Darryl Strawberry and Ron Darling," Valentine said. "I saw what worked and what didn't work in developing these young players. I believe in young players and the Texas Rangers. I also believe in my ability to manage them."

At times it's been rewarding; the Rangers improved 25 games in 1986 and finished second in the division only five games out of first. At times it's been a downer; Texas won 12 less games last year than in 1986 and finished 10 games out and sixth in the division.

The 1988 Rangers are struggling around .500 and there have been some direct torpedoes below the waterline on the youth movement.

Bobby Witt, the Rangers' hope for another Nolan Ryan, has become so wild they had to ship him to Oklahoma City.

Edwin Correa, a youthful and talented right-hander, will miss the season with a mysterious shoulder injury that sent him to five different doctors.

Catcher Mike Stanley has become as big a bust offensively as he is defensively.

Second baseman Jerry Browne was given a plane ticket to the minors for poor hitting.

Centerfielder Oddibe McDowell hasn't lived up to Valentine's hopes and could be on his way to Oklahoma City if his average doesn't jump.

Balancing the negatives is Pete Incaviglia's improved work as a leftfielder; third baseman Pete Buechele's hitting; and the pitching performances of Jeff Russell and Paul Kilgus.

"I still believe we are on the right track," Valentine said. "We are in it for the long haul. We want to get to the point where we will be good year after year. You can spend a lot of money for a quick fix and it might help you one year."

Recently, owner Eddie Chiles gave Valentine a contract extension through 1991.

It was a commitment for the Rangers and Grieve to keep building through their farm system and it likely will take until 1991 before the Rangers are a threat to win the pennant.

Valentine has already set one record at Arlington.

It's difficult to believe but true — he has the longest tenure of any Rangers' manager in history.

Bobby John has outlasted Ted Williams, Whitey Herzog, Del Wilber, Billy Martin, Frank Lucchesi, Eddie Stanky, Connie Ryan, Billy Hunter, Pat Corrales, Don Zimmer, Darrell Johnson, and Doug Rader.

Senna pole-sitter for Detroit Grand Prix

By MIKE HARRIS
AP Motorsports Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Brazilian Ayrton Senna locked up his sixth consecutive pole position Saturday, but Ferrari made some inroads into the McLaren-Hondas domination by taking the second and third starting positions for Sunday's Detroit Grand Prix.

Senna's fast lap on Friday, which won the provisional pole at 1 minute, 40.606 seconds — 89.458 mph — remained the fastest of the weekend on the tight, bumpy 2.5-mile circuit.

But Gerhard Berger of Austria and Michele Alboreto of Italy, the drivers of the two blood-red Ferraris, moved past Senna's McLaren teammate Alain Prost of France on a slick, deteriorating asphalt surface Saturday.

Berger, who spun twice during the final 60-minute qualifying session as he chased Senna's time in vain, improved from 1:42.283 on Friday to 1:41.464, while Alboreto jumped from 1:43.925 to 1:41.700.

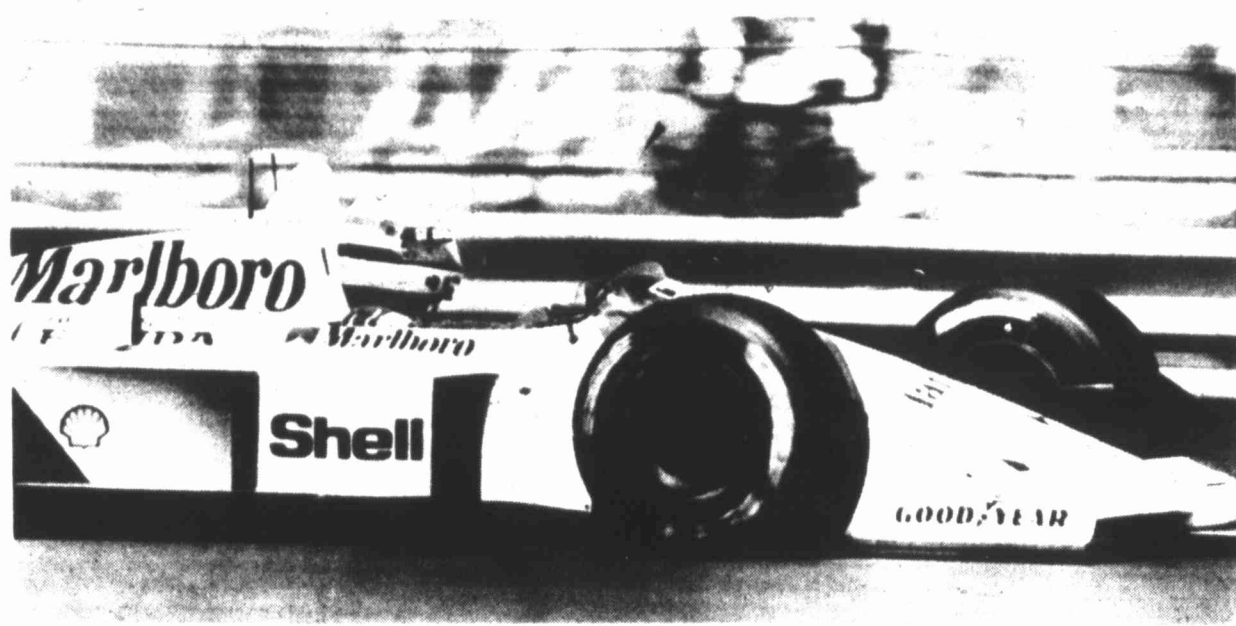

Prost failed to improve on his Friday lap of 1:42.019, but held onto the fourth starting spot. His best lap Saturday was 1:43.420.

Nobody came close to Senna's two-year-old track qualifying record of 1:38.301, 91.547 (147.331) — a record set when unlimited turbocharged qualifying engines were in use.

Turbocharged engines now are limited by the rules and have been legislated out of Formula One in 1989.

"The track only had any real grip for the first 10 or 15 minutes," Senna said. "So, even when I went out to do my first run, it was already extremely slippery. I brushed the wall with my left-rear wheel on one occasion."

DETROIT — Brazil's Ayrton Senna races through the streets of downtown Detroit Saturday during practice for Sunday's Grand Prix race here. Senna's lap time of 1:40:606 during Friday qualifying enabled him to grab the pole position.

which runs along the Detroit River ended a string of four straight side-by-side front-row starts by the McLaren team, which has won all five races this season — three by Prost and two by Senna.

Prost started third in the season-opening Brazilian Grand Prix, behind Senna and the Williams-Judd of England's Nigel Mansell.

Berger, Alboreto and several other drivers who improved over Friday's times, went out early in the session.

Mansell, who qualified sixth for Sunday's race, said, "The track has deteriorated incredibly and is breaking up on about six corners ... I think it is going to be an incredibly difficult race just to finish and stay on the circuit."

Alboreto agreed that the track has deteriorated, saying, "Tomorrow, it is going to be like a wet race, the track is so bad."

Berger, who has finished second twice this season and is third in the season standings behind leader Prost and Senna, said, "The big problem will not be McLaren, but the circuit. If it is breaking up already in practice, it will be terrible with full tanks."

"You put one wheel off line and pick up dirt on the tires and the car is impossible to drive for three laps. I think there will be a lot of crashes."

Sunday's race, which will be televised by CBS Sports beginning at 1:30 p.m. EDT, will cover 63 laps, translating to 157.44 miles.

Behind the leaders in Saturday's qualifying, Thierry Boutsen of Belgium, driving a Benetton-Ford, vaulted past Mansell to take the fifth spot on the 26-car starting grid.

Boutsen improved to 1:42.690, while Mansell lowered his best time to 1:42.897.

The other Benetton-Ford driver, Italian Alessandro Nannini, was seventh with his Friday clocking of 1:43.117, followed by three-time Formula One champion Nelson Piquet of Brazil, whose Lotus-Honda improved to 1:43.314.

Rounding out the top 10 were England's Derek Warwick in an Arrows-Megatron at 1:43.799 and Riccardo Patrese of Italy, in the other Williams-Judd, with his Friday time of 1:43.810.

Eddie Cheever, the only American in the lone Formula One event in the United States, fell from 14th to 15th.

Frenchman Philippe Alliot crashed his Lola-Ford early, but was not injured.

Danny White target of investigation, lawsuits

DALLAS (AP) — In an effort to save his troubled pickup parts corporation, Dallas Cowboys quarterback Danny White has become the target of a mail fraud investigation, lawsuits from angry creditors, and liens by the Internal Revenue Service. The Dallas Morning News reported Saturday in a copyright story.

A subpoena was issued last week for White to appear in a Dallas courtroom as part of the opening round of litigation brought by a man who claims White and his business partner defrauded him of a $30,000 stock purchase in Kowboy Krome Accessories, the newspaper said in its early Sunday editions.

White's company manufactures chrome tailgates and other decorative "after-market" accessories for pickup trucks.

Recently, White and his partner, identified as Paul Linford, raised cash for unsuccessful public stock offerings by trading on White's prominence as a professional sports personality, the newspaper quoted former employers and creditors as saying.

Bank records show about $42,000 of the $167,000 raised for the stock offering was funneled into other accounts controlled by Linford, who ran the company for White, the News reported. Once in Linford's other bank accounts, Linford used the money to pay for groceries, loans, credit card expenses, clothes and other personal incidentals, the newspaper said.

According to The News, Linford said investors' checks were deposited to his personal accounts because they were paying for stock he was selling. However, investors say they did not enter into any personal sale agreements with Linford.

Bank records also show that Linford and White used more than $56,000 of Kowboy Krome investor funds to pay off part of a delinquent IRS tax bill accumulated by Kowboy Kustom Inc., the News said.

The newspaper also reported court records filed in the civil case indicate federal authorities are conducting a mail fraud probe of the company's activities.

The Associated Press was unable to contact White for contact. He has an unlisted phone number, and Cowboys' offices were closed Sunday. The Morning News said White declined comment, canceling an interview that had been scheduled.

The newspaper, noting White's claim that he never used his influence as a prominent football player to raise funds for his company, reprinted a letter White wrote a Houston investor on Dallas Cowboys stationery.

In the letter, White claimed he was "merely a stockholder." However, the News said corporate documents show he served as chairman of the board and majority owner of Kowboy Kustom Inc.

"I have accepted the responsibility of trying to work out a deal that will get all of your money back," White wrote. "I have put, personally, many hundreds of thousands of dollars into KKI and for that reason, I am obviously as interested in its success as you are."

Clear Lake edges Plano as best overall Texas program

HOUSTON (AP) — Clear Lake High School won no state titles this past year, but the Falcons' 11 district and 5 regional championships was enough to allow Clear Lake to capture a newspaper's award as Texas' best overall high school athletic program.

Plano, which won three state championships, finished second in the Houston Chronicle's annual All-Sports Award competition. Duncanville, winner of one state title, finished third.

Clear Lake totaled 43 points to Plano's 33 and Duncanville's 32.

"We try not to put an emphasis on one or two big sports, because a lot of kids don't participate in just those one or two big sports," said Clear Creek Independent School District Athletic Director Larry Glover.

"Our kids in golf, tennis and soccer have just as much emphasis as football and basketball. They prove our philosophy is correct because we gave them a chance and they came away winners."

Houston Stratford football coach Oscar Cripps, whose team advanced to the Class 5A state title game, echolink because a school has a good football team, they are a good overall program," Cripps said. "To me, there's no sport that's the most important. To me the most important sport is the one the youngster wants to be in."

Some considered this a down year for Clear Lake. Last year, the Falcons had 12 district championships and seven regional titles.

"These successes are not something that has just happened every one or two years," Glover said. "In the past, Clear Lake has won state titles three years in a row in volleyball, boys' and girls' swimming and girls' cross country."

Plano Athletic Director John Clark said the top three schools all have excellent facilities for athletics, but that's not the most important ingredient of a successful program, he said.

"In my opinion, it doesn't require elaborate facilities," Clark said. First of all, you have to have community support. And it's an obvious advantage for a school when you expect achievement in all areas — academics as well as athletics. Anytime your teachers expect a lot of young people in all areas, it certainly makes your job in athletics a lot easier."

In determining the winner, the Chronicle awarded two points for winning a district championship, one point for being district runnerup, and one point for every playoff victory.

The point system favors the sports with the most student participation — football, volleyball, basketball, soccer and baseball — since they each have six playoff chances in Class 5A.

For sports with only regional and state tournaments in the playoffs — golf, team tennis, swimming, cross country, track and field — the most points a team can garner is four. That would include two points for a district championship and one point each for regional and state championships.

Houston Sam Houston received eight points for the state basketball title — two as a district champion and one for each of its six playoff victories. The Dulles girls' golf team won the state title, and received four points: two for the district championship and one each for the regional title and state championships.

The thinking is it's easier to win a golf title than a basketball crown because about half as many schools participate in golf.

Clark agreed with the point system. "Some people are in little bit harder districts, so if you're in a weak district, you could cruise (if you count only competition within the district)," Clark said. "Winning in the playoffs is a good sign of the better teams."

"It's going to give you a good picture of the best overall programs," said West Orange-Stark Athletic Director Dan Hooks. "You'll never please everybody with any point system, but I like this one because it has checks and balances against weak districts."

Only University Interscholastic League-sponsored team sports were counted in the poll. Spring tennis — which includes singles and doubles — was not counted because the same players participate in team tennis, which is played in the fall.

Class 4A teams in the bigger sports — football, basketball volleyball, soccer and baseball — earn seven points for a state championship. Many class 4A teams have zone playoffs, which did not count under the Chronicle's point system.

The other 4A sports — such as golf, swimming and team tennis — are scored the same as for 5A schools.

Individual accomplishments — such as the state's top shot putter, gold medalist golfer or champion tennis singles player — also were not counted. There are 17 UIL team sports.

Browns' draftee failed drug test

CLEVELAND (AP) — Van Waiters, a 6-foot-4, 240-pound linebacker drafted from Indiana to shore up an aging Cleveland Browns defense, failed a drug test at an NFL evaluation camp in February and the Browns knew it, a report published Saturday said.

The Akron Beacon Journal said it had been told by three unidentified sources who had access to confidential reports from the camp that Waiters tested positive for marijuana in a drug screening administered by team doctors in Indianapolis during the league's annual workouts for top college seniors.

Sources said the level of marijuana present in Waiters' drug screening indicated casual usage within 48 hours of the test, the newspaper said.

"I have nothing to say. I don't know what's going on with that," Waiters said recently when asked about the matter.

Although the newspaper said the Browns had access to the Indianapolis reports in advance of the April 24-25 draft, the team picked Waiters in the third round.

Harry Buffington, head of the National Football Scouting combine, said: "If a kid tested positive at our camp, we don't know it, but every team doctor does. All the clubs have the same information."

Browns coach Marty Schottenheimer declined to discuss the matter.

"We've had a long-standing policy in this organization in regard to that sort of thing. We're not going to comment on it. As an organization, we feel it's in everyone's best interests to keep that a private matter," Schottenheimer said.

The Beacon Journal said it had been told that the Browns' decision to draft Waiters was one of the factors involved in the May 11 ouster of Chip Falivene as director of player personnel.

Falivene and, at first, Schottenheimer, were opposed to the decision to draft Waiters, the sources said. They said Schottenheimer eventually was persuaded to go along with the decision.

"Had I not wanted to draft him, he wouldn't be here. I think he's a fine football player, and we're glad to have him," Schottenheimer said.

Indiana football coach Bill Mallory said he got along all right with Waiters, although the coach suspended the linebacker for his entire sophomore season.

Mallory would not disclose the reason for the suspension. "The important thing is that he came back and developed into a very good player," Mallory told the newspaper.

Waiters was an All-Big Ten selection as a junior and senior.

Reports of Waiters' drug test surfaced almost two years after Don Rogers, the Browns' free safety, died of cocaine poisoning. Rogers, 23, died June 27, 1986 in Sacramento, Calif., after a bachelor party two days before he was to have been married.

amazed." Tyson, contacted at his hotel room in Atlantic City, where he will defend his title on June 27 against Michael Spinks, was asked by Newsday whether he had struck his wife.

"Well, you know, this is my wife, we have arguments," he said. "I would never bruise or beat up my wife. I never hurt my wife."

Stephanie Givens said she decided to go public with Tyson's behavior without the consent of her mother or sister.

Robin Givens, 24, would neither confirm nor deny the allegations of her sister. "We've had four hard months of marriage," she said. "He's under a lot of pressure, and it's made him act in ways I'd never seen before. He has changed tremendously in the year and five months that I've known him."

"I can understand Stephanie's position. But I really feel that Michael has not been socialized. He's only 21, and he's a young 21."

"I love Michael dearly. When I'm not with him, I miss him. I wonder what he's doing. I think we can make a great team. I hope we can have a life together."

As for the public comments of his sister-in-law and others in the Newsday account, Tyson told Newsday:

"I can't understand it. Maybe

I'm not the man for them, you know what I mean? Maybe I'm not man enough for them. I'll get by somehow. I always find a way to get by."

The Newsday report also quoted Ruth Roper, Tyson's mother-in-law, concerning her efforts to get an accounting of the fighter's finances from his manager, Bill Cayton.

"I don't want to manage Mike Tyson," Roper said in the newspaper. "I don't want to take Mike Tyson from Bill Cayton and deliver him to Don King. I want Mike to understand his business so he and Robin and their children will be well-provided for. I don't see what is not normal about that. ..."

Mr. Pete remembers Juneteenth

Article by STEVE GEISSEN

"Mr. Pete! Mr. Pete!" yelled Artice Berry towards the little rent house in her back yard on the north side of town. "Mr. Pete, someone's here to see you! Mr. Pete!"

A barely audible rustling sound could be heard coming from inside the little house that was covered on the top and the sides with grey shingles and trimmed in light blue.

"Mr. Pete, someone wants to talk to you!" "What's that?" came a voice from inside the house.

"Mr. Pete, someone from the newspaper wants to talk to you about Juneteenth!"

The light blue screen door of the little house creaked open, and Pete Johnson, known to his friends as Mr. Pete, slowly walked out onto his porch with the aid of a shiny metal cane.

An 80-year-old, short, thin black man, with grey hair that stands straight up on his head, Mr. Pete wore a dirty white T-shirt with a clothes pin stuck in the upper left corner and grey slacks that could have used the aid of the belt dangling unfastened from his waist.

After introductions were made, Mr. Pete made it known that the interviewer had come to the right man to get the low down on Juneteenth in Big Spring.

"Sit on down, and I'll tell you 'bout the 19th of June.

To my knowin', there's only been one 19th of June here. Right there in that park over there. Mr. Pete points with his cane to the west of his house, located on North West Fifth Street. Right over yonder in Lakeview Park.

I went over there and you know what they was doin'? They was sellin' it! Dollar and a half for a plate of barbeque! I ain't lyin'. Right over there. He jabs his cane in the direction of the park.

I didn't get none of it. I just went over there, looked, turned around and walked right on back.

That's the last I heard of a June 19th being here. They don't have nothin' here, like all the people do. He shakes his head from side to side with a look of disgust. They don't get together and have nothin'. They might have somethin' 'round their home or somethin' like that, but the last 19th of June that's been 4 or 5 years. They don't have nothin' 'round here like everybody else.

I came to Big Spring in 1941. The first of '41 I hit Big Spring, and I've been here off and on ever since. Came here from Marlin on the cotton pool. They brought a truck load of us here.

After pickin' cotton, I got a job washin' dishes. I'd wash dishes here, then go off. I'd go off, come back, go off, come back.

Then I went to cleanin' yards. I was cleanin' yards when they had that June 19th in the park.

Lucille Houston, my old lady then, said "Daddy, you know tomorrow is the 19th."

I said, "Yeah, momma."

She said, "Now, don't work none. I'm goin' off to work, and I'm goin' to get off 'bout 3 or 4 o'clock if I can."

"Alright, momma," I said. But I knows I was lyin' 'cause I had two yards to do over there in Banks. I cleaned them two yards then I came on home.

When Lucille got home she said, "Daddy, what you want to do about tomorrow?"

I said, "Momma, they supposed to have a little June 19th over there in the park."

She said, "You want to go?"

I said, "No, momma, cause they tell me their sellin' that stuff over there, and I ain't goin' to give them nary a nickel."

Momma said, "No, they ain't sellin' nothin'."

Well, the 19th came, and who was it who come by? Some lady came by and asked us if we wanted to ride over there. We rode up that way and turned down there He points out the route with his cane, and we went around to the side of the park.

I walked up there and said how much is it (the barbeque)?

And he said, "Dollar and a half a plate."

Mr. Pete's eyes flare.

Momma walked up there and said, "No, I don't believe I want any of it. Daddy, you want any of it?"

"I don't want none of it, no." He quickly shakes his head. I said, "Momma, we got enough to eat at home."

And, man, that has been the last one! He raps his cane on the porch step.

I sure wish I was home back in Marlin when they come havin' the 19th of June. Mmmm, Mmmm. A smile breaks across his face. Out in Marlin, Lawda mercy, man, they start on a Friday.

They start barbequin' on a Friday night.

You talk about niggers havin' one of the best times they ever had. Dance as long as you wanta, then stop and go eat. Eat all you want — free! Beef, steak, ribs, hogheads, anything you wanted, and they had a whole barrel of soda water sittin' up there.

They had this nigger down there called Fresh Robinson, he could barbeque, ain't no lie. When he barbequed you could smell it before you got there.

Last time one of my friends went down there, he said, "Pete, boy, you oughta been in Marlin. They had one of them old time 19th of Junes down there."

I said, "I know they did, you don't have to tell me about it — I know. I was in such bad shape I couldn't get up there."

But 'round here: nothin'. They don't have anything here, not here. I ain't gonna sit here and tell you no lies. They — don't — have — no — good — 19th — here. He emphasized each word with a rap of his cane.

That 19th here, some white man gave those niggers a hog and half a yearlin'.

They sat over there cut it up, barbequed it, and all they didn't sell they divided up and carried it home. They didn't give you nothin'! No they didn't. No — they — didn't.

I didn't want none of it no how. No, they don't have nothin' here. If you want somethin' for the 19th you have to get together and go in with your friends and neighbors.

I ain't gonna sit here and tell you no lies and say, His voice drops down to a low pitch

"Yeah, they have a good time 'round here for the 19th." Because I know. If I didn't know, I'd tell you: I don't know. But I know, so there ain't no reason to sit here tellin' you no lies.

This year I'm gonna see if my landlady feels like barbequin', and if she do, a couple days before the 19th I'm gonna start huntin' me up some mesquite wood.

We'll go into together and buy us some ribs and chicken and beef and invite our friends around. Chester across the road out there can barbeque as good as you want.

Oh, we're gonna get together and try to have something even if we have to buy it. If the Lawd is willing, we'll try to have something on the 19th of June. It may not be all that much, but we'll enjoy the 19th.

How it came to be

Two and a half years after Abraham Lincoln's emancipation proclamation, Union major general Gordon Granger arrived in Galveston and announced that all Texas slaves were free.

Lincoln's proclamation during the Civil War had little effect in the Confederacy, but Granger's declaration on June 19, 1865 brought the long-awaited realization of freedom to Texas slaves.

Some historical facts pertaining to Juneteenth, culled from the June 1988 Texas Monthly:

- Some descendants of emancipated slaves later remembered that June 19 was marked by solemn services of thanksgiving, while others reported jubilous festivities.

- In 1979 black legislators successfully pushed through legislation establishing Juneteenth as a state holiday. But some prominent blacks — those who viewed the celebrations as being strongly associated with negative stereotypes and segregation — opposed the legislation.

- It is not known how the day became to be known as Juneteenth. Black newspapers didn't use the term until the 1920s when the day was an unofficial holiday on which blacks were excused from work.

- Texas is not the only state where emancipation celebrations take place. Other states have their own emancipation celebrations, depending upon when local plantations received the liberation news. Florida's holiday is May 20 and Mississippi's is May 8, for example.

- Blacks who left Texas took Juneteenth with them. June 19 is celebrated in Oklahoma, Arkansas, and even in Milwaukee and San Francisco.

- In the past, on Juneteenth, the all-white city governments in Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio and Houston allowed blacks to have access to whites-only parks and zoos. In 1953, after a group of black ministers in Fort Worth protested the unfairness of the practice, the official Juneteenth observations in that city went into decline, then were stopped in 1961. They were revived in 1974.

- In East Texas, Juneteenth became the black Fourth of July and was celebrated in similar ways. Family homecomings, suppers under shady trees, baseball games, speeches and readings from historic documents were the order of the day on Juneteenth in East Texas.

BREAST CANCER DETECTION UNIT AVAILABLE TO AREA WOMEN

MONDAY, JUNE 27, 1988

BIG SPRING, TEXAS
HIGHLAND SHOPPING CENTER

A Service of PLANNED PARENTHOOD

CALL 263-8351 FOR APPOINTMENT

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of ten women in the United States will develop breast cancer sometime in her lifetime. It is currently estimated that over 37,000 women die each year as the result of breast cancer.

Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to feel have a 50 percent five year survival rate. A woman who is diagnosed as having breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97 percent five year survival rate and a 90 percent 10 year survival rate.

A mammogram can detect a cancer this small, even before it can be felt.

Appointments may be made by calling 263-8351.

The Mobile Breast Cancer Detection Unit will be in Big Spring on Monday, June 27th.

The American Cancer Society has established guidelines for mammography in asymptomatic women. (Women who have no symptoms of disease). Those guidelines have been adopted by the American Academy of Family Physicians, American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, and The American College of Radiology. Those guidelines are:

I. 35-40 years of age — One baseline mammogram.

II. 40-50 years of age — A mammogram every 1-2 years depending on breast type and risk factor.

III. 50 years of age and over — An annual physical examination and annual mammogram.

IV. Asymptomatic women under 50 years of age with significant high risk factors should be examined at appropriate intervals. These risk factors include previous breast cancer and family history of cancer.

V. A symptomatic woman should have a mammogram at any age when she experiences a mass, nipple discharge, skin changes or unexplained breast pain.

A screening mammogram is an x-ray of the breast using extremely low dosages of radiation (usually comparable to dental x-rays) and is designed to find very early cancers.

A female technologist who is highly trained in mammography will perform the examination.

The charge for the screening mammogram is $50.00. The Unit accepts cash, check, Visa, MasterCard and American Express.

The Mobile Breast Cancer Detection Unit will be at Highland Shopping Center.

Dad's lesson teaches son to save money

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago, you had a letter in your column from a father, telling how he had taught his young son to save money. I didn't cut it out, but I wish I had. Would it be possible for you to find that letter and print it again?

I am the father of two sons, ages 6 and 3, and I would like to get them into the habit of saving.

NEWARK FAMILY MAN
DEAR FAMILY MAN: Thanks to the most senior member of my staff, Sylvia Singer, whose memory an elephant would envy, here it is. And what better time to run it than on Father's Day:

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: As a father, I made a lot of mistakes (my son is now 14), but I know I did at least one thing right, and I'd like to share it with you.

When my son was 3 years old, I started giving him an allowance of 50 cents a week. There was one catch — he could spend 25 cents on anything he wanted, but the other 25 cents he had to put in his piggy bank. He could spend his piggy bank savings any way he wanted, but only after it reached $10.

Each week he spent his 25 cents on candy and gum, but he never really thought much about his savings — until he got his first $10. When he realized what he could get if he saved up his money, he began saving ALL of his allowance.

Every year on his birthday, his allowance was increased 50 cents, so he had 25 cents more to save. Also, the amount he was required to save increased by $10.

He now has his first after-school job, and he's saving for a set of drums and a school trip to France.

I have never talked to him directly about the virtues of saving, but he saves money like no other teenager I know.

PROUD SEATTLE POPPA
DEAR POPPA: You have a right to be proud — of yourself, as well as your son. You gave him a gift that will last a lifetime: a lesson on saving.

People are eating them up! To order your copy of Abby's favorite recipes, send your name and address, clearly printed, plus check or money order for $3.50 ($4 in Canada) to: Abby's Cookbooklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. Postage and handling are included.

ON YOUR FEET

Dr. CARLOS DIMIDJIAN — Podiatrist

SURGICAL REMOVAL OF BUNIONS

If you have a bunion condition that is causing extreme pain when you walk or wear shoes, your podiatrist may recommend surgery to remove it. A bunion is an enlargement of the joint behind the great toe. As the joint becomes increasingly deformed, not only that toe but the toes next to it may be pushed out of normal position. The pain that results is caused by the inflammation and swelling of the bursa or lubricating sacs for the joints which become irritated by the abnormal pressure.

The surgical procedure used, called a bunionectomy, involves the correction of muscle and tendon alignment in the affected toes as well as the metatarsal joint in the great toe. By removing the bunion and correcting the positioning of the toes, pressure is relieved and so is the pain.

You should not ignore any foot problems, especially those that are causing pain and discomfort, because the problem will probably get worse until you receive the treatment you need.

Deep-silk scalloped lace bordered the cascades of ruffles at the hemline. A Dior bow highlighted the waistline above the cathedral-length train which repeated the cascades of ruffles the full length of the train. Her fingertip-length, pencil-edged veil of silk illusion, was gathered to a braided pearl headband, and highlighted with an arrangement of pearl flowers and waterfall bells of Ireland and pearls, which draped the left side. A puff of ruffles sprinkled with pearls graced the back.

She carried her mother's Bible, covered with a cascading bouquet of white roses, baby's breath, baby carnations and gardenias.

Tidbits

By LEA WHITEHEAD Staff Writer

Letha Duke was in Ft. Worth last weekend attending the 40th reunion of her graduating class from St. Joseph Hospital School of Nursing. That was the last class trained for the U. S. Cadet Nurse Corps for World War II, Letha says.

Of the 38 graduates 40 years ago, 21 were present at the reunion, coming from as far as California and New Jersey. It was the first class reunion Letha had ever attended: "I saw people I hadn't seen in 40 years, and it was great!"

Letha's sister, Margaret Hinton, who also made the trip, got to visit with a former high school classmate, LaRue Head Peterson of Ft. Worth, a St. Joseph graduate from the class of '42.

A reunion guest, Mary Hulsey of Ft. Worth, sent greetings back with the Big Springers to her former college roommate, Ramona Weaver Harris.

Bob and Jan Noyes attended graduation festivities in Ft. Worth for his son, Edward, recently.

They were on hand when he received his diploma from Texas Christian University, then attended a reception and dinner in his honor, hosted by Edward's mother, Jacqueline Doyle. Other guests were six of Edward's college classmates, along with their parents.

Dariece and David Bauer are readying for a visit from Swedish student Anna Christina Nilsson. Anna Christina will spend the school year here under the American Intercultural Student Exchange Program.

Barbara Webb, who is our area representative for the program, expects to place another Swedish student in Midland, and an Australian student in Andrews.

Several local residents can be proud of granddaughter Kimberly Gwen Land who just graduated from Garland High School. Kimberly, a former Big Spring resident, is the daughter of Michael and Debbie McDonald, Garland, and Thomas Land, Almagordo, N.M.

Her grandparents are Martin and Gwen Fryar and Garland Land, Big Spring, and Louise McDonald, Dallas.

Danny and Carolyn Kerley hosted a reception for family and friends in their Garland home.

Lu Jian, an official in the China tourist industry, expects to visit Don and Marilyn Newsom in late July.

Lu was their guide when the Newsoms were in China and Hong Kong recently. When they discovered that Lu was coming to the U.S. as an interpreter for a group of tour officials, they naturally invited him to see Texas! After the tour is over, Lu will head for Big Spring.

Highlights of the Newsoms' four-week trip, according to Marilyn, were Xian, where they viewed the life-size terra cotta sculptures of horses and warriors unearthed from the tomb of Qin Shi Huang Di; and the Guilin region where strange, rounded rock peaks line the Li River.

Byron and Sandra Smith's five-week vacation took them to Alaska. They drove the entire way, taking the Alcan Highway through Canada, as far as Prudhoe Bay (where they got snowed in for three days, and their camper had to be literally carried out by an 18-wheeler.)

Tulsa employees anxious about Texaco situation

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Employees of several Tulsa-area firms once targeted for takeover attempts can empathize with the stress local Texaco Inc. workers feel in the struggle between Texaco management and the company's largest shareholder, Carl Icahn.

The drawn-out proxy fight is at a climax at the company's annual shareholder meeting in Tulsa.

"It's an incredible anxiety," one takeover veteran said.

The area's buffeted, petroleum-centered economy has left many companies exposed to buyouts and mergers. In recent months, Cities Service Oil and Gas Corp. has become OXY USA Inc., reflecting its acquisition by Occidental Petroleum Corp. Earlier this year, Texaco Corp. became Memorex Texaco after fighting off a hostile takeover by New York investor Asher Edelman.

When takeover artists arise or companies collide, entire departments can disappear. Jobs and careers may evaporate.

Even if unsuccessful, unfriendly overtures can drive a company into the arms of a friendly suitor or be so costly to fend off that layoffs occur.

More than 750 Texaco employees work at the company's regional headquarters. Another 900 Texaco retirees are in Tulsa. Ron Tiernan, regional Texaco manager, said there are 1,461 Texaco stockholders in Tulsa County.

Tulsa Mayor Rodger Randle, noting that Texaco has been a part of Tulsa's business community for 75 years, declared Friday "Texaco Day."

"Texaco is a proud part of Tulsa's history. We hope that Texaco will be an important part of our future," Randle said Thursday.

Ironically, some of the seeds of Texaco's current travail were sewn in Tulsa federal court, where a judge ruled against a Pennzoil Co. attempt to block Texaco's acquisition of a part of Getty Oil Co.

The Getty Oil marketing headquarters in Tulsa soon wore a Texaco star.

Pennzoil later won a $10.3 billion judgment when a jury ruled Texaco had improperly interfered with Pennzoil's deal to acquire Getty. The ruling ultimately led to Texaco's filing for bankruptcy court reorganization in April 1987.

A December agreement by Texaco to settle with Pennzoil for $3 billion was a key part of an organization plan approved by the court in April.

Coincidentally, Pennzoil spent part of that settlement in Tulsa when it bought Facet Enterprises Inc., a Tulsa-based TULSA — Financier Carl C. Icahn arrives at Texaco's annual meeting in Tulsa, Okla., Friday morning. Icahn has offered to buy Texaco for $60 a share, or more than $12 billion.

filter manufacturing company, for $250 million in May. Facet had been fighting off a hostile tender offer from the Prospect Group Inc.

Phillips Petroleum Co., the state's top entry on the Fortune 500 list, fought off unfriendly takeover attempts by Texas oilman T. Boone Pickens in 1984 and Icahn in 1985. Since that time, the Bartlesville-based company has reduced its work force by nearly one-fourth.

Last month, Phillips chairman and chief executive officer C.J. Silas announced a "work force stabilization plan" to ease the fears of employees who are jittery about new takeover rumors.

"Phillips has been mentioned frequently as a takeover candidate, and the board has been concerned that such speculation is affecting our ability to retain and motivate employees, and therefore how well we're able to perform for our current shareholders," Silas said.

The prospect of a takeover can affect the "general mood" of a company's work force and result in a loss of productivity, said one official who asked not to be identified.

"Your operations as a whole take a real hit," the official said.

Workers become concerned with their financial status and their futures.

Icahn says he talked to two Canadian firms

NEW YORK (AP) — Takeover strategist Carl C. Icahn says he discussed a joint acquisition of Texaco Inc. with two Canadian oil concerns and that Citibank verbally agreed to finance such a deal.

The disclosures were contained in a weekend deposition of Texaco's largest shareholder conducted by attorneys for the oil giant, reported today by the Wall Street Journal.

The deposition was part of escalating legal maneuvers between Icahn and Texaco over his attempt to buy the company for $60 a share, which values it at $14.6 billion.

Icahn and Texaco have been engaged in an acrimonious takeover dispute since last month, the latest episode in the troubled oil giant's attempt to normalize following its prolonged bankruptcy-court ordeal.

The investor, who owns 14.8 percent of Texaco stock, is conducting a proxy fight for five seats on the company's board in an effort to pressure management into letting shareholders vote on his takeover offer. Results of the proxy contest will be disclosed at the company's annual meeting this Friday.

Icahn disclosed to Texaco lawyers that in the last two weeks he held separate discussions toward a possible takeover partnership with Gulf Canada Ltd. and Husky Oil Ltd. Icahn also said a Citibank representative assured him that financing a Texaco takeover was "eminently doable."

His disclosures could substantiate Texaco's claim that Icahn has improperly failed to disclose the extent of his takeover talks with other parties. Icahn has denied any wrongdoing.

Other court documents unsealed at the request of the New York Times indicate Icahn once tried to arrange the purchase of a large stake in Texaco held by the investment firm Kohlberg, Kravis, Roberts & Co. to Canadian investor Marc Belzberg, but the deal never happened because of a price disagreement.

Texaco attorneys say those documents suggest Icahn may have improperly attempted to find allies for coordinated purchases of Texaco stock as part of a broader plan to take over the company. Icahn has denied such charges in the past.

Saudi deal biggest ever

NEW YORK (AP) — Texaco Inc. and Saudi Arabia announced Thursday they will jointly refine and market petroleum in the United States under a pact that the troubled U.S. oil giant said would give it $2 billion in cash and cost savings.

It was the biggest joint venture ever announced between a foreign supplier and a domestic oil company in the "downstream" end of the business, the process for changing crude into gasoline and other products.

Such a venture would help provide an assured market for Saudi Arabia, the world's biggest exporter of oil. But some analysts said it raised serious questions about the consequences of increased foreign leverage over the U.S. oil industry, which has become more reliant on imports in the past few years.

"We've been predicting for months that this joint venturing of refining and marketing assets would accelerate," said George J. Gaspar, oil analyst at the Milwaukee investment firm Robert W. Baird & Co. "It could potentially put the smaller refining and marketing operators at a disadvantage."

The announcement also came as Texaco management took a battle against takeover strategist Carl C. Icahn to its annual shareholder meeting Friday, which could determine the destiny of the nation's third-largest oil company.

The timing of the announcement reflected the intense pressure management faced to foil Icahn by convincing shareholders it was taking aggressive steps to restructure Texaco and raise the value of their investment.

"Texaco is locked in the struggle with Icahn, and it is coming down to the wire," said Stephen Smith, an analyst at Bear Stearns Cos. in New York. "Clearly Texaco managers need to tell their story. We are a new company, we've put the past behind us. We're aggressively going to downsize."

Texaco management has said it plans to sell about $5 billion in property to offset the disastrous effects of prolonged litigation with Pennzoil Co., which resulted in bankruptcy protection and a $3 billion payment to that company. Icahn, Texaco's largest shareholder, has denounced management performance and has offered to buy Texaco for $60 a share. But doubts about who will prevail helped depress the stock by 37 1/2 cents a share Thursday to $49.50.

Under a letter of intent between Texaco and Saudi Arabia, Saudi Refining Inc. will have a half interest in Texaco's refining assets and marketing system in 23 eastern and Gulf Coast states as well as Washington, a company statement said.

The joint venture's assets will include three major Texaco refineries, in Delaware City, Del.; Convent, La.; and Port Arthur, Texas; 49 terminals, about 1,450 owned and leased service stations and a distributor network of more than 10,000 stations.

New owners at diner, restaurant

HERALD STAFF REPORT

A new diner has been added to the menu of Big Spring eating establishments and a local Chinese restaurant is under new ownership.

E.A.'s Diner and Delivery Depot at the College Park Shopping Center officially opened Friday, said Brenda Sandridge, owner.

She is also the three-month owner of Godfather's Pizza.

The diner will feature a hamburger and sandwich fare, as well as a breakfast menu. It is open from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Various family members are joining in the project, she said, including her two sons who are experienced cooks, a daughter and a daughter-in-law. The diner is named for her late father.

She has a total of six employees at the depot. Godfather's Pizza employs 14.

The diner features a motif of a train depot and invites family dining, she said.

"The more business you have in one area, the more people you are going to pull into the area," she said about opening a second restaurant in the shopping center.

• The Golden China Restaurant on South Highway 87 has new owners.

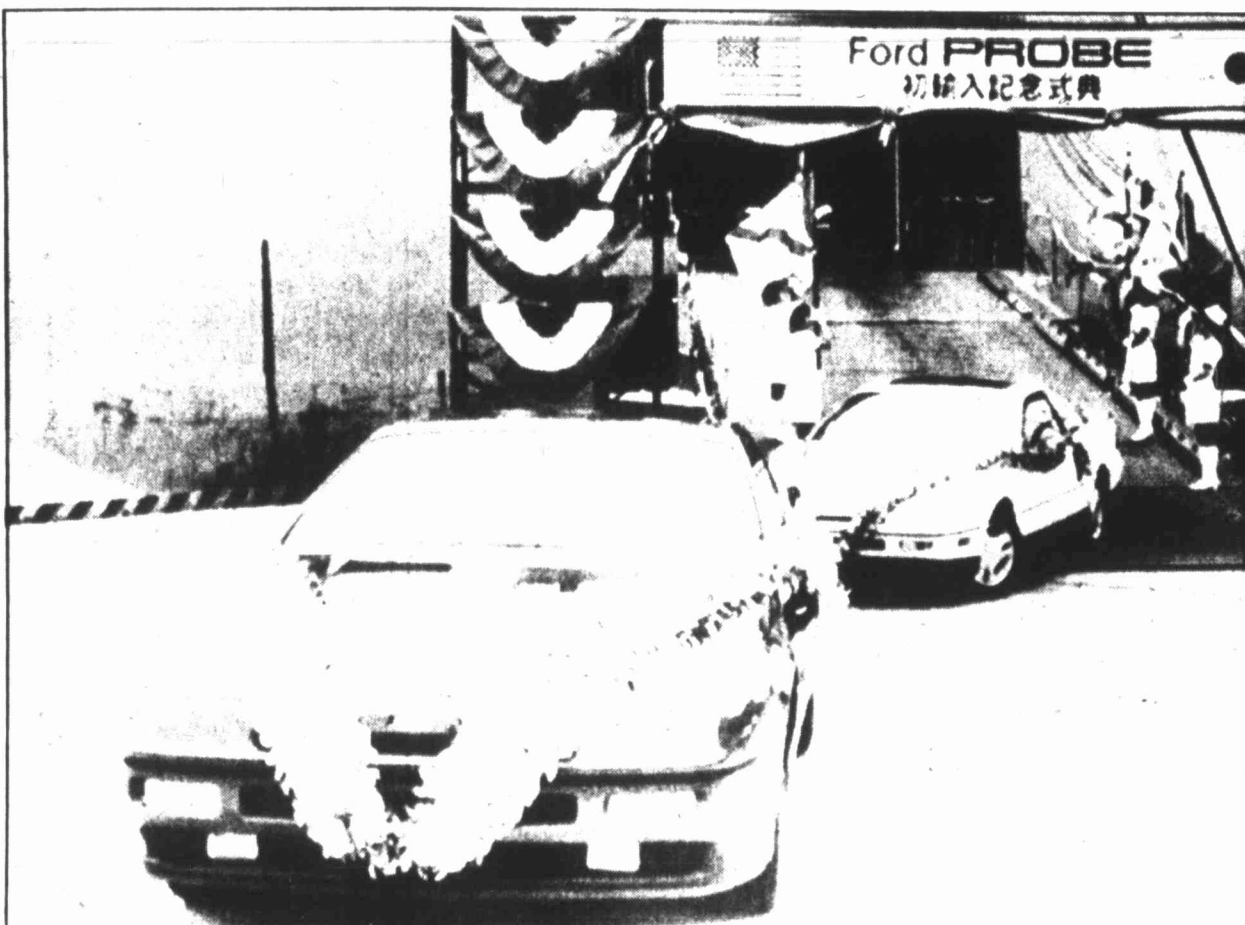

Mr. and Mrs. Tseng Cheng-Hsiung, known in English as Tony and Teresa, are managing the restaurant, according to a spokesman.

Tony has his master's degree in culinary arts from Taiwan.

The menu will remain the same, including the six-day buffet open daily at noon, he said.

The main change has been an addition of wait people. "There's now a new staff of wait people," he said.

The restaurant is open in the afternoon and until 9 p.m.

New moms go back to work

WASHINGTON (AP) — The working mother has made the transition from novelty to national norm, with more than half of new mothers remaining in the job market for the first time, the Census Bureau reported Wednesday.

"Every time a statistic approaches the 50 percent mark of the labor force, it's not an oddity anymore, it's a way of life," said Martin O'Connell, chief of the bureau's Fertility Statistics Branch.

The labor force participation rate for new mothers climbed to 50.8 percent last year from 48.9 percent in 1986, marking the first time a majority of women reported they were working or actively seeking employment within a year of giving birth.

By comparison, only 31 percent of new mothers were counted in the labor force in 1976, the first year the Census Bureau sought to calculate this rate.

O'Connell noted that the share of "(Women have) greater financial resources to enable them, once they have a child, . . . to get back to the labor force much quicker."

new mothers remaining in the workforce has grown steadily over the last decade, a result of women's increasing propensity to delay marriage and childbearing in favor of jobs and education.

Women who accumulate more years of schooling and work experience before having children have "greater financial resources to enable them, once they have a child, to obtain child-care services and get back to the labor force much quicker," O'Connell explained in a telephone interview.

In addition, they have "increased career commitment and increased cost of staying out of the labor force, compared to an 18- or 19-year-old who had a child earlier" in life, he said.

O'Connell pointed to findings that 68 percent of women who had their first child at age 30 or over remained in the job market, compared with 54 percent of those age 18 to 24. For women with college degrees, the rate was 63 percent, well above the 38 percent rate for those whose education ended with high school.

The new study, "Fertility of American Women: June 1987," also disclosed a substantial increase in the number of two-earner families with children. It concentrated on women age 18 to 44, the normal childbearing ages.

The increasing share of mothers returning to jobs led to a total of 13.4 million two-worker families with children last year, up from 8.3 million in 1976.

Big Spring Herald sees personnel changes in news, circulation areas

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Two newsmen have recently joined the staff of the Big Spring Herald, and a new circulation sales manager has been named at the newspaper.

Steve A. Geissen and Michael Duffy have joined the news staff as reporters.

Geissen, a 23-year-old graduate of Stephen F. Austin State University in Nacogdoches, will specialize in health and education coverage. His previous experience includes a position with Ultra magazine, a Houston-based monthly publication.

"I'm finding it's quite an adjustment," Geissen said, "moving from Houston to Big Spring. I'm enjoying the climate, compared to the Houston humidity."

"I knew some people who had lived in Big Spring before, and they told me the best thing about it was how friendly the people are. I'm finding that to be true."

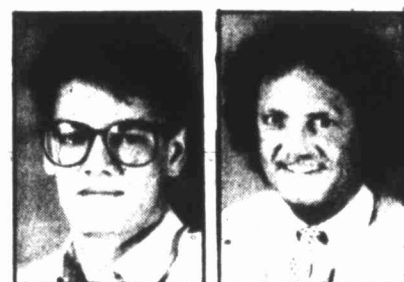

Duffy, 38, is a graduate of Northeastern Oklahoma State University. He comes to the city beat from Chickasha, Okla., where he was managing editor of the Chickasha Daily Express, an afternoon newspaper with a circulation of approximately 7,000.

He is married. He and wife Debra Ann have two children, Jason Reed and Matthew Duffy, and are expecting another.

"I've been very impressed with the professionalism of a paper this size," said Duffy, whose experience includes a 4 1/2-year position with the Tulsa World, "and the attention to detail of the people at the paper."

Donna Brence, a senior computer major at Southwestern State University in Weatherford, Okla., has joined the newsroom staff as an assistant for the summer.

She is a 1984 graduate of Minco High School in Minco, Okla., and is the daughter of Samuel and Marcella Brence. Mr. Brence is the manager of the broom factory being moved to Big Spring Federal Prison Camp. Donna, 21, is the youngest of four children; two brothers remain in Minco and one is a resident of Alexandria, La.

Dale Ferguson has moved from his position as retail manager to circulation sales manager.

"It's a new title for an old position," he said. "Circulation has always been viewed as a delivery job, but Thompson views circulation as a sales position. We don't just deliver the paper, we sell the paper."

"And really, that's true," he said. He has worked for the Herald for almost 10 years in all. He and his wife April have four children: Shelby, Jarrett, Chelsea and Neiman.

Ferguson, 35, replaces former circulation manager Billy Warden, who has taken a position with a newspaper in Hamilton, Ohio. Bennie Jones has replaced Sylvia Collins, former assistant circulation manager. A Snyder native, Jones has one daughter, Autumn Smith.

This is her first newspaper position, Jones said.

Equity gains dip after rise

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was holding at lower levels Friday as equities mirrored a plunge in bond prices and erased much of the gains posted in the previous two, record-setting sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which struggled to reach its second consecutive post-crash high Wednesday, was off 21.16 points at 2,110.24 at midday.

Volume on the Big Board came to 79.11 million shares. Losers led gainers by about 12 to 5 with 398 up, 958 down and 455 unchanged as of noon on Wall Street.

Market watchers attributed the decline to disarray in the credit markets, which were reacting to an unsubstantiated report in a West Germany newspaper that indicated the central Bundesbank might be tightening monetary policy.

The Treasury's bellwether 30-year issue was off 1 1/4 points, or $12.50 per $1,000 in face value at midday.

A pull-back in stock prices has been anticipated since the Dow has climbed more than 200 points in recent weeks. But analysts called today's decline jolting.

Among actively traded issues, Texaco was down 3/4 at 49 1/2. The oil company, which will face off against Carl Icahn at its annual shareholders meeting Friday, announced a joint venture with a Saudi Arabian oil company.

Zenith was up 1 at 28 1/2. The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers union proposed Wednesday to acquire part of the company through an employee stock ownership plan.

Investors give way to 'asset allocators'

NEW YORK (AP) — The big game for money managers on Wall Street these days is not investing, but something called "asset allocation."

This is not just the substitution of a fancy phrase for a simple word to make the subject sound more elaborate.

It is a different approach to the business of managing pension funds and other large pools of money that comes close to the heart of the recent debate over computerized "program trading," the collapse of stock prices last fall and the future of the market.

To put it in simplest terms, asset allocation involves the effort to spread and shift money among various categories of investments for the greatest possible return.

The three main categories of financial investments in the U.S. markets are stocks, bonds and short term interest-bearing securities, such as Treasury bills, that are known in Wall Street parlance as "cash."

The philosophy behind this, as described by the brokerage firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co. in a treatise on "our position on financial market reform," is that "the asset allocation decision, the choice of the proportions of the portfolio to hold in stocks, bonds or cash, is of greater importance than the stock selection decision."

"These new asset allocation strategies ... consider the U.S. equity market in aggregate. "Active management is employed in shifts between stocks, bonds and cash, but passive management may be used within each category of assets."

Passive management means not trying to beat the performance of a given market, but rather simply seeking to duplicate it.

In the case of stocks, that may translate into buying a fund or package of stocks set up to duplicate the performance of a market index such as Standard & Poor's 500-stock composite index.

When you get seriously into the process of asset allocation, "program trades and stock index and bond index futures are the mechanisms whereby exposure to each asset class are most easily adjusted," Kidder Peabody said.

What could be wrong with all this? Many pension managers, sensibly enough, stopped trying to pick individual stocks when they were confronted with studies showing they had little chance of beating the market that way. They were just too big.

Brokerage firms developed program trading, the index futures strategy known as portfolio insurance, and other asset allocation systems in large measure to try to meet the needs and desires of those pension managers, who are some of the brokers' most important customers.

In addition, the growth of international investing has contributed to the popularity of asset allocation and index investing.

As Kidder Peabody says: "Many global investors view a country's stock market as a single unit and prefer to trade it as such. Buying and selling individual stock issues when an investment in a foreign market is desired can be a very inefficient and costly means of active international investing."

employed and the wife of childbearing age increased from 3.0 million to 4.3 million over the 11-year period.

"A lot has been said about DINKS (dual-income, no-kids families) ... (and) given the attention, one would be led to think there are many more than there actually are," O'Connell said.

"The real story is the number of dual-employed couples where they have a child ... that's the big news that's been happening the last 10 years," said O'Connell.

At 13.4 million, dual-earner couples with children make up more than 40 percent of all married couples in the childbearing ages, O'Connell pointed out.

That, he added, means that American businesses will have to pay close attention to the needs of these workers and families.

O'Connell addressed the topic last year in a separate, privately published analysis, "Juggling Jobs and Babies: America's Child Care Challenge."

That report, which he said remains valid, warned that smaller numbers of people born in recent years means fewer workers available, making it harder for business to replace experienced women who have children.

The result will be a need to cope with the needs of working mothers, including such possibilities as flexible work schedules, employer-sponsored child care, flexible benefit plans and other new approaches, he wrote.

Other findings of the new Census Bureau study included:

• The national birth rate for the 12 months ended in June 1987 was 71 births per 1,000 women age 18 to 44, up slightly from the rate of 70.3

per 1,000 a year earlier. The rate was 68.5 for white women, 83.2 for black women and 95.8 for Hispanic women. It was 95.0 for married women, 38.1 for single women and 23.5 for women who were widowed or divorced.

• Labor force participation among new mothers was 53 percent for blacks, 51 percent for whites and 36 percent for Hispanics.

• Widowed, divorced and separated mothers were most likely to be working, at 66 percent. Married women were second at 49.8 percent, followed by single mothers at 49.5 percent.

The statement said Saudi interest in these assets was valued at $800 million and the Saudi side would provide 30 million barrels of the venture's initial inventory of 40 million barrels.

It said Texaco expected to "achieve approximately $2 billion in cash benefits and savings from the formation of the joint venture based on current oil prices."

The statement did not explain how the $2 billion figure was derived, nor did it say whether either side could withdraw if there were a major change in Texaco such as an Icahn-led takeover. Texaco officials at the company's White Plains, N.Y., headquarters declined to offer further explanation.

Other U.S. oil companies have engaged foreign partners for refining and marketing petroleum in this country. Venezuela's state-owned oil company, for example, has an interest in Citgo Petroleum Corp., which operates one of the largest U.S. refineries. But the Texaco-Saudi deal would be the largest.

Some analysts said such significant foreign influence in the domestic oil industry was bound to upset Congressional lawmakers and federal energy officials who already are concerned about America's appetite for foreign oil.

"I think there are a couple of people in Washington who aren't in favor of it," said Carol Epstein, managing editor at Petroleum Analysis Ltd., a New York consulting and publishing concern. "People still remember the long gasoline lines of the 1970s, and it's not their most pleasant recollection."

Oil prices drop

NEW YORK (AP) — A negative tone spread over the energy futures market Friday, sending prices for crude oil and refined products lower.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, the July contract for West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude oil, finished 21 cents lower to settle at $16.45 per 42-gallon barrel.

Pictographs promoted by family

By TUMBLEWEED SMITH

Paint Rock is famous for its Indian pictographs. Usually when you visit a place with Indian drawings, you will see the work of one group of Indians. But when you go to Paint Rock, you see the work of all the nomads that wandered up and down the Concho River. It's like going to an art gallery where you see the work of someone like Rembrandt and Picasso side by side. You see the techniques of entirely different groups of people with different cultures.

Kay Campbell is a teacher in Paint Rock. She lives on a ranch just north of town where an outstanding display of Indian pictographs is located.

"The land was settled by my grandfather back in the 1870's and I inherited the land from him," says Kay. "The pictographs were made by Indians both pre-historic and historic. There are about

Tumbleweed Smith

1,500 paintings that were made over a period of about 900 years by various nomadic tribes who wandered along the rivers of Texas.

The pictographs cover a large area. They are on a limestone bluff nearly a half mile long and 60 feet high which is located about a hundred yards from the Concho River. Climbing is not recommended, since cactus grows profusely on the hillside leading up to the rocks where the pictographs are.

Kay has become an expert on the pictographs. She has spent much time studying them and interpreting what the different symbols mean.

"My family has taken it on themselves to protect the paintings and we try to share them with people as best we can. But still we need to protect them. And that's why we insist that everyone go view the pictographs with a guide."

Right now the way Kay and her family are sharing the pictographs is by a little river tour. They have a dock in Paint Rock near the Highway 83 bridge over the Concho. "We have trained teen-agers in town to be the guides and all summer the teen-agers take the little river boat down the Concho about a half mile and they follow a trail up to the pictographs."

Kay thinks the boat trip is probably the best thing they have done as far as getting people to the pictographs. "We're making the young people in our area aware of the significance and the historical background of the paintings."

Passengers board a pontoon boat that holds fifteen people. The cruise is offered every day and takes about two hours. Kay comments, "Anytime anyone is coming and bringing a larger group they do need to notify us so we'll wait for them and have extra guides on hand." The ticket office for the Concho cruise is in a 100-year-old building in Paint Rock that was once a barber shop.

The pictographs at Paint Rock are the most numerous in the state. "The other day a scholar from California was here and he said he had always been interested in pictographs and he had visited many pictograph sites. He said he saw more pictographs here than at all the other sites he had ever visited."

Wandering whale

Teen runaway visits Big Apple, turns around

NEW YORK (AP) — A wayward humpback whale who strayed up the Hudson River cut his Big Apple visit short after Coast Guard officials gunned their engines, banged pipes and sounded horns to get him to turn around.

The 30- to 40-foot whale, described by ocean researchers as being a juvenile, was last spotted just after 6 a.m. today off the Earle Naval Weapons Station in New Jersey, said Coast Guard spokesman Larry Lawrence. The station is approximately 50 miles from New York City.

The gray-and-white whale wandered into the Hudson Thursday afternoon. "He just made a wrong turn following the contours of the ocean floor," said Judy Rabb of the Long Island-based Okeanos Ocean Research Foundation.

The whale went as far as 80th Street before two Coast Guard boats that were tracking him got the endangered mammal to reverse direction by sounding horns, banging pipes, gunning their engines and doing anything else they could think of to annoy the creature.

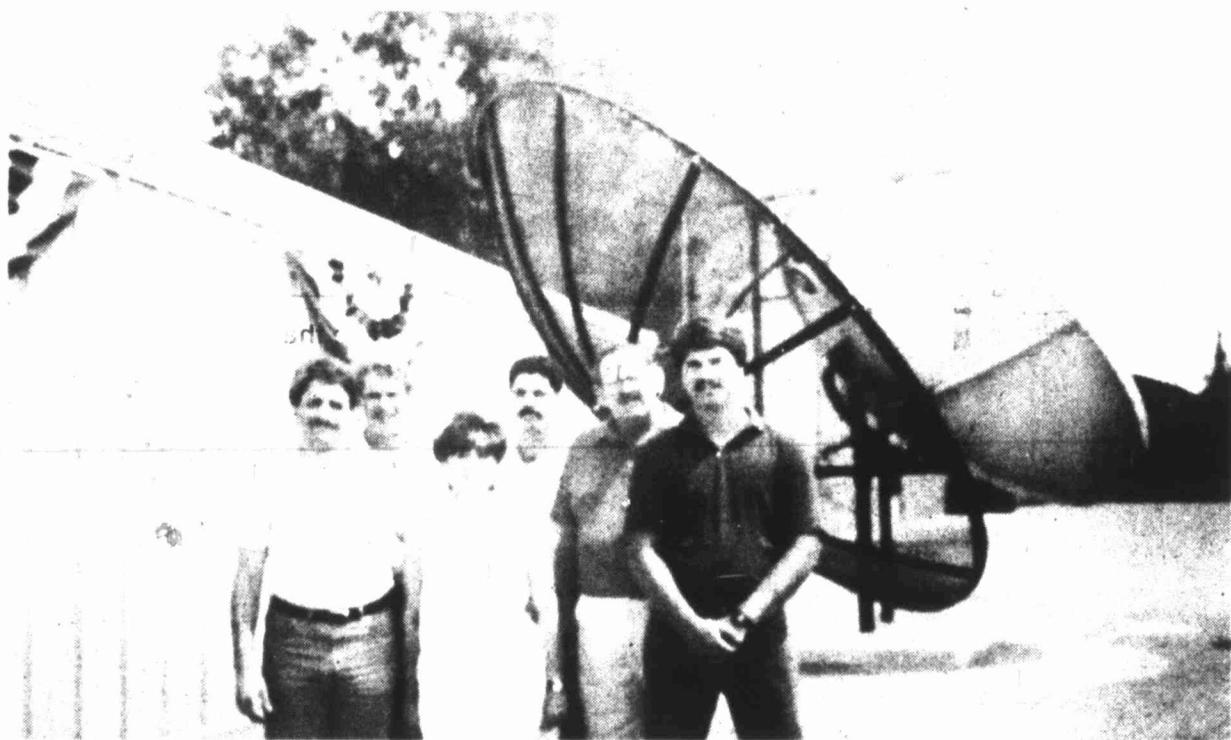

Lawrence said the Coast Guard was through babysitting the wandering whale.

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

Satellite system: entertainment bonanza

Circuit Satellite's staff invites the public to drop by June 25 at their Consumer Information Show to learn more about new state-of-the-art satellite systems that are easy to use and offer a potential of more than 150 channels of information and entertainment. The staff includes (left to right): David Pappajohn, James Crawford, Dawn Berry, Fred Gonzales, Edward Berry and Blane Dyess.

If you haven't looked into home satellite systems in the past several years, you may be in for a surprise.

"If your satellite system was purchased before 1987, it's like a dinosaur compared with the systems of today," says David Pappajohn, partner in Circuit Satellite, 2605 Wasson Road.

"When the home satellite system industry began in 1979-80, they were bulky, very big and expensive, and not at all user-friendly," says Pappajohn.

"The industry has made about a 180° turnaround," he says. "All the components — positioner, decoder and receiver — are in one compact box. The easy-to-use hand control is pre-programmed; it's as easy to use as your conventional TV hand-control."

Perhaps the greatest news is the entertainment potential posed by the state-of-the-art home satellite system. Viewers get 24 channels on each of 17 satellites — a total of over 150 channels to choose from: music, education, documentaries, movies, foreign language, major networks, video, religion, sports, health, the superstations, and more.

"About 90% of what the dish owner watches is not available on conventional TV," says Pappajohn. The system also provides many small features: it gives the time, it tells you how many minutes are left on the show you've just tuned in, and it even tells you what the next show is!

The public can learn more about home satellites at Circuit Satellite's Consumer Information Show Saturday, June 25, at their Wasson Road location. The event is scheduled from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., and free barbecue and soft drinks will be served. A live radio broadcast will add to the festivities.

"We hope to answer everyone's questions — and remove any doubts — about home satellite systems," says Pappajohn.

Circuit Satellite offers complete sales and service. They sell and install new systems, update old systems, make repairs and do programming.

"Our middle name is service," declares Pappajohn. "We're here and accountable." Their service area covers a radius of 60-miles from Big Spring.

Their most popular model is the Tracker 5 IRD. For a price tag of $2,595 the homeowner will get a 10-ft. aluminum mesh dish, fully installed and guaranteed. Included is a one year's bonus subscription package, including HBO, Cinemax and other choice channels. And remember, you can receive 80 free channels.

Of special interest to area farmers and ranchers is the data transmission network monitor which will enable them to receive data on stock market, futures, weather, money rate of exchange and other marketing information.

Pappajohn's partner, Blane Dyess, is field technician, in charge of installation and repairs, and home presentations. Jim Crawford is his assistant. Others on the staff are Edward Berry, store manager; Dawn Berry, secretary/book-keeper; and Fred Gonzales, electronics technician.
