Carter took to offensive

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — This time they came out swinging, and Jimmy Carter swung harder — on the very issues President Ford had chosen. The voters will decide how many punches landed.

While the final impact will only come clear in an election 26 days away, it was evident that in the second of the presidential campaign debates, Democrat Carter was on the offensive.

President Ford did his share of slugging, too, in a San Francisco rematch that was far more heated and contentious than the leadoff debate.

They meet once more, on Oct. 22, in a debate that is not limited as to subject. That one, perhaps, will get to the topics people are talking about, things like Earl L. Butz and racial slurs; Carter, Playboy and secret lusts; the still unsettled inquiry into Republican campaign finances in Ford's old congressional district.

Those matters have not come up in the opening debates, under ground rules that limited the subject matter. In San Francisco on Wednesday night, the agenda was foreign policy and defense. Ford had wanted those topics debated first, since he considered them his strong points. Instead, the leadoff debate two weeks ago was on domestic affairs and the economy — supposedly heavy issues for Carter.

Ironically, Ford came out of the Philadelphia debate with added strength and Carter made a debater's comeback in San Francisco.

An Associated Press survey showed Carter gained a narrow edge in Wednesday night's debate in the eyes of the voters. A similar poll had rated Ford slightly ahead in the first debate.

In San Francisco, while Ford boasted of peace, performance and experience in foreign and security affairs, he was cast as the candidate with a record to defend. He did so.

He also used the powers of his office to disclose a hint of possible opening toward progress in the stalemated negotiations with Moscow for a new strategic arms limitation agreement, and to announce that the administration will publish today a list of U.S. firms that have participated in the Arab boycott aimed against Israel.

While incumbency worked to Ford's advantage on those points, Carter made maximum use of his role as challenger.

For him, there were no inhibitions born of the need to defend current policies. Almost every answer carried a built-in challenge, another slap at administration policies he called horrible, immoral, overly secretive and unsuccessful.

He said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger "has been the president of this country" in foreign affairs.

In fact, the language with which he keynoted his denunciation of Republican foreign policy could well serve as a capsule review of the debate:

"... Almost all style and spectacle and not substance."

Once again, the candidates generally restated positions already taken, although this time there were nuggets of new information, as on the SALT talks, the boycott list, and Carter's insistence on continuing U.S. contol of the Panama Canal Zone for the foreseeable future.

Frizzell: U.S. relying on foreign oil

By DEBBIE PIERCE

In 1976, the year America celebrates its Bicentennial, this country is 44 per cent dependent on insecure foreign oil, an official from the U.S. Department of the Interior said in a press conference Wednesday.

Kent Frizzell, under secretary of the Interior department, said that energywise, the United States is becoming more dependent on foreign oil.

"We don't know if another oil embargo will go into effect, but the affects would be catastrophic from those of three years ago," Frizzell said.

The energy picture in this country doesn't look bright, he added, before noting that the energy policy proposed by President Ford would be a step in the right direction.

"Ford's first proposal is to develop our own energy sources and decrease our dependence on imports," Frizzell explained. "The President also has proposed an increase in our production of coal, which is our most abundant resource. We have enough coal to last the next 400 years, provided it is consumed at the present rate."

Other sections in Ford's energy policy, Frizzell said, include completion of the Alaskan pipeline in an environmental manner, allow nuclear energy to take up a larger part of this country's energy consumption than it does now, create a strategic oil reserve now while there is sufficient oil, set aside approximately $4 billion for energy research and development, and stop giving "lip service" to energy conservation in America.

Frizzell blamed the "two-thirds

Norther hits city

The Permian Basin was awakened by a winter preview this morning as what might be termed a norther swept across the plains bringing high winds and heavy rains.

Windows rattled and trees swayed as winds up to 41 miles an hour were clocked at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

"We recorded some pretty stiff breezes this morning," a weather service spokesman said. "The highest was 36 knots, or 41 miles an hour, just before 6 a.m."

A cold rain accompanied the wind with .22 of an inch falling at Terminal, the spokesman said.

Andrews felt the fast-moving front about 5 a.m., a sheriff's department spokesman said. "The winds were so strong they blew clothes off my clothesline," the sheriff's dispatcher said. It was 42 degrees and raining at 8 a.m., she said.

Lamesa received .38 of an inch of rain, a Dawson County Sheriff's Dept. spokesman said. Winds also buffeted the area.

No horns, pitchforks at Republican event

I don't know who was more courageous: Mrs. Jim (Linda) Allison for inviting me to the opening ceremonies of the Ford hedquarters in downtown Midland yesterday or me for accepting.

But I was glad about both after she and the likes of Mrs. Ernest Angelo and other party regulars made me feel welcome and not too odd as one of the few Democrats of record in town. I already knew GOPers like Judge Barbara Culver and Timber Floyd and Bill Shaner (although the last time I saw him he was a redneck rancher in "The Oldest Living Graduate" and I had no idea he was the GOP chairman for Midland County), and it was nice visiting with them.

In fact, if it doesn't sound un-Democratic (or even if it does), I'm glad to see a viable Republican Party developing in Texas, and it certainly enlivens politics around the Tall City.

One-party politics is a little too incestuous for my blood, and there are two or more reasonable sides to most issues. I may be drummed out of the party for whose candidates I've always voted presidentially, but I'm definitely going to vote a split ticket next month, and anybody who prizes enlightened judgment over slavish adherence to a mythical party code

Social Security ups taxable earnings rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nineteen million Americans will have to pay up to $70.20 more in Social Security taxes next year because the Social Security system is raising the maximum earnings subject to the tax from $15,300 to $16,500.

That will raise a person's maximum Social Security tax from $895.95 this year to $965.25 next year. An estimated 19 million workers will earn more than $15,300 next year and of that group, 16 million will earn $16,500 or more.

The maximum Social Security tax on the self-employed will rise to $1,303.50 next year, compared with the maximum $1,208.70 this year.

The higher rates go into effect Jan. 1.

The government has good news for retirees. About 1.3 million Social Security retirees will be able to earn $3,000 next year without reducing the size of their Social Security checks. The limit this year is $2,760.

After earning $3,000, they then will lose $1 in Social Security benefits for every $2 in outside income. Their Social Security checks will not be reduced in any month in which outside earnings do not exceed $250, however.

The increase in the taxable wage base will produce an additional $2.3 billion for Social Security next year.

Social Security Commissioner James B. Cardwell said the increase was required by law to keep pace with the rise in average wages. The increase in tax revenue can occur only after a year in which there was an automatc increase in Social Security benefits. Benefits rose 6.4 per cent earlier this year.

The Social Security tax rate of 5.85 per cent each on employes and employers will not change next year. That means a person earning less than $15,300 this year and next year will not be affected by the higher wage base.

LATE NEWS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices soared nine-tenths of 1 per cent in September, the sharpest increase in 11 months, due primarily to higher costs for farm products and a broad range of industrial goods, the government reported today.

Pair spends honeymoon bicycling across country

By JIM STEINBERG

Some 4,700 miles after swapping their cars for bicycles, Rick Ray and his wife Suzanne pedaled into Midland, en route to the Big Bend.

They hit the road at Prince Rupert, B.C., in June after taking a ferryboat from their Anchorage, Alaska, home and have been on a honeymoon ever since.

Next June, they expect their odessey to end after reaching the Nova Scotia coast, having traveled 15,000 to 20,000 miles in an unstructured, meandering path where 200-mile side trips are no burden.

"We wanted to take off a year and really get to know each other, building a solid foundation for our marriage. We've seen so many go bad and we don't want ours to," said Rick, 26, who was an assistant pastor in an Anchorage church.

"Actually Rick wanted to take off and spend a year traveling around the country by car and I wanted to bicycle across the country during the summer," said Suzanne, 24, a special education teacher. "This was a compromise," she said, with a smile on her sunburned face.

For more than a year Suzanne had been physically training for a cross country bike trek, building endurance by jogging five miles on days when she didn't ski.

"If we survive this, we'll survive anything," said Rick with a laugh referring to the physical ordeal of the journey.

Neither said they had any regrets about the journey or have had any thoughts about turning back, a view not shared by Suzanne's parents.

"I don't think they understand me giving up my teaching job, and the both of us giving up our cars and the apartment for this trip. But I guess they think it's better that I'm with Rick than by myself," she said.

"Having traveled with her this long, I have no doubt she wouldn't have bicycled across the country alone, if we hadn't gotten married," said the soft-spoken, muscular, six-footer as he cast an admiring glance at his 5-foot, 3-inch tall, 115-pound wife.

The first two weeks were the worst, adjusting to what they called the "posterior pains of long distance bicycling, while enduring a constant downpour in British Columbia. Bears forced them into campground restrooms for overnight refuge when rains didn't drive them into expensive motels for a chance to dry off. And Rick's bicycle frame cracked after a spill, adding to their woes.

But after that it was easy riding, at least for a while. They took a week's vacation from the road in Wenatchee, Wash., and worked as apple thinners.

"It's something I've always wanted to do," said Suzanne, who landed her teaching job immediately after college graduation and now yearns for other experiences. In Florida, she plans to find work as a waitress.

So far on their journey, they rate the Lake Tahoe Section of the Sierra Nevada's and the Gila Wilderness of New Mexico (near Silver City) as the most scenic land they have wheeled through.

Weather, not sore muscles, has been their main obstacle. Outside Los Angeles they hit a 110-degree heat wave and heavy smog. On the advice of another bike traveler, they decided to abandon a purist approach to their

Three burned in oilfield mishap

ANDREWS — Two soldiers on leave from the U.S. Army and the father of one of the men were severely burned in an oilfield mishap near Frankel City around 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Injured were Pat Tibbets, 42, an operator for El Paso Natural Gas; his son, Spec. 5 James Tibbets, 23, and young Tibbets' buddy, Spec. 4 Richard Kalin, 22. Both soldiers are stationed at Ft. Bliss, near El Paso.

The men were initially treated at Permian General Hospital in Andrews but were later transferred to Brooke Army Medical Center at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, for treatment.

They were evacuated by an Air Force C9 jet transport that left Midland Air Terminal at 2:45 a.m. today for Kelly Air Force Base at San Antonio.

The three men were listed in stable, though serious, condition at the Brooke burns treatment unit this morning.

The senior Tibbets suffered burns over 20 per cent of his body; young Tibbets, over 39 per cent; and Kalin, over 30 per cent.

Nature of the fire was not readily determined. However, a Midland spokesman for El Paso Natural Gas Co. said the oilfield fire was not at site of a company lease.

The older Tibbets' address was listed as Star Route, Andrews, which is a Frankel City location.

Andrews Police Chief Frank Russell said his information on the fire itself and the cause was sketchy, but he declined to speculate.

The injured men were brought to the hospital here halfway by private car and then by a city ambulance. The mishap occurred about 15 miles west of here.

bike trip and took a bus through the Mojave Desert.

In Arizona's Painted Desert, they were engulfed by a dust storm and outside Silver City they were pelted with leg-bruising hail. On those occasions they said there was no choice but to stick out a thumb and hitchhike.

"All our rides have been with older people. It's funny, but they are the ones who really seem to appreciate what we are doing and why. I think young people tend to look at our trip as impractical," said Suzanne.

In Midland, the Rays spent their 13th night on a real bed since they left Anchorage. They stayed in the home of a high school friend of Rick's father, O. D. Schoolcraft, 806 Gulf Ave. The two men grew up together in Eunice, N.M., and have stayed in touch since.

"It's something like my husband and I would have done," Mrs. Schoolcraft said of the bicycle trip.

The Rays travel fast and long, averaging 11 mph and 70 miles in a day. And they travel light. Rick's pack weighs 40 pounds and his wife's weighs 30. Included are two tennis rackets, a guitar, and harmonicas. Suzanne brought along a good dress and Rick a nice set of clothes so they could go out occasionally to break up the monotony of outdoor cooking.

Before leaving Anchorage, Rick took a job for two weeks in a bicycle repair shop to pick up what he would need to know in case anything mechanical should go wrong with their mode of transportation, especially in remote areas.

It was a good move, Rick said, because just about everything has gone wrong. His advice for would-be cross country bicyclers is to "be able to take your bike apart and put it back together again." Mechanical ability also pays off, he said, "because sometimes there just aren't the parts you need in the town you're in."

Winter hits West Texas

Rankin, McCamey, Big Lake and Garden City also reported rain and high winds.

Cold air blew into the Texas Panhandle today, bringing a few patches of light snow and drizzle as temperatures dropped into the low 30s, the Associated Press said.

Forecasters posted freeze warnings for most of the area down into the South Plains.

The drizzle and first snow of the season fell in an area between Amarillo and the Oklahoma Panhandle.

Amarillo registered 34 degrees at midmorning. The same reading was posted at Perryton, where the mercury had slipped to 30 degrees earlier in the day.

The expected freeze tonight was not the "killing" type, forecasters said.

Clouds thickened over most sections except South Texas, where most areas remained clear, and around El Paso on the west tip of the state.

Early morning temperatures dropped to 38 degrees at Dalhart and 39 at Amarillo in the Panhandle. At the same hour Corpus Christi at 62 was the warmest spot.

Democratic Congress, particularly the liberal Eastern faction" for heading "in the direction of nationalism of energy in this country."

He said a bill which didn't get out this session proposed putting the federal government into the oil exploration business for the first time. But another bill, which was passed over President Ford's veto, provides for the government to be in the coal exploration business for the first time. He said, "If the American consumer wants to see high energy costs and energy delays, just get Uncle Sam into the picture."

Frizzell also outlined for reporters some of the activities of the Interior department, including responsibility for the Bureau of Land Management, the U.S. Geological Survey, the U.S. Bureau of Mines, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the National Park Service, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation and many others.

He said the department was created in 1849 and employs 65,000 to 70,000 persons, eight of whom are appointed by the President. He himself is a presidential appointee.

Frizzell's Midland stopover came mostly, he said, "at the request of sheep and goat raisers in Ozona and

Airline seeks authority for 11 nonstop flights

By DEBBIE PIERCE

Continental Airlines has asked the Civil Aeronautics Board for authority to connect Midland, nonstop, with 11 major cities, if economic conditions in the future would make the flights feasible.

Continental vice president Thomas G. Currigan announced the application at a noon press conference at Midland Regional Air Terminal today.

Currigan said the application, if granted by the CAB, would be the first time the regulatory agency would allow "a carrier and a city to determine their own destiny."

The decision may come within four to six months, Currigan said.

Continental filed the application with the CAB Sept. 30, Currigan, vice president for civic and environmental affairs, said.

The application lists Chicago, Kansas City, Miami, Phoenix, Portland, Ore., San Diego, San Francisco, Seattle, Tucson, Wichita, Kan. and New Orleans as the cities Continental proposes to serve from Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Continental does not propose to start service to any or all of the cities immediately, Currigan said. "It would depend on whether or not it becomes economically feasible," he said at the press conference.

Such service is not presently economically feasible he said.

Thomas G. Currigan

If the application for authority for the nonstop service is approved, Continental could begin the flights without having to return to the CAB for additional approval, Currigan said.

No hearing on the application for authority is needed, Currigan said. "We followed CAB guidelines in making the application," he told reporters.

cannot fault me for it.

(Now, at the risk of offending my new-found Republican friends in the next breath, I'm partly glad to see a real GOP developing in Texas because it will discourage the Republicans from screwing up our Democratic primaries before returning to the Grand Old Fold in November. Remember the havoc it wreaked on local races this spring when a hot GOP primary siphoned off the customary cross-over vote? Many Texans were amazed to find they couldn't vote for a Republican presidential choice and a Democratic sheriff on the same ballot.)

It was interesting to note the differences and the similarities after helping open Democratic Central up the block last week (in a space that used to be GOP territory, in fact, until the Republicans inadvertently let the deadline pass to renew their lease).

The GOP nerve center is a little plusher in the building marked for razing to accommodate the proposed downtown convention center-park complex, and the GOP regulars in attendance seemed tidier and more softspoken. One black woman dropped in, left in the heat of the Earl Butz defense by State GOP Committeeman Robert Monaghan, and decided to return a little later.

Most of the rhetoric was the obverse of that last week by the Dmemocrats, not surprisingly, and the refreshments were (American as) apple pie and coffee, but a large bowl of goobers bore the message "Reupublicans EAT peanuts."

To demonstrate my nonpartisanship when it comes to humor, my favorite decoration was a hand-lettered quote from a recent William Safire column about Jimmy Carter: "In his heart he knows your wife." (On the other hand, I was popular among curious men who wanted to know what Earl Butz really said to Pat Boone that got him ousted.)

And I'm indebted to my buddy Mackie Henderson of San Angelo, who lost the price of a year's subscription to The Reporter-Telegram on the outcome of the GOP nomination, for the use of the political button he loaned me especially for my visit to the GOP headquarters. It features the most generous analysis I've seen for a Democrat to make about the Nixon administration:

"Nobody drowned at Watergate."

New Thai ruler clamps down on leftist students

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Thailand's new military ruler clamped the iron hand of martial law on Bangkok's bloodstained streets today in the wake of clashes that left at least 26 persons dead and 180 wounded.

Soldiers stood guard at some public buildings, strict controls were imposed on the local press and quiet returned to the capital as Sangad Chalwyu sought to bring the country under his control. He met no public opposition.

The takeover Wednesday by Sangad, a hard-line anti-Communist, came after months of complaints by rightists about growing lawlessness, corruption and student violence and the weakness of ousted prime minister Seni Pramoj's government.

Sangad, a 60-year-old admiral and former defense minister, is generally regarded as proAmerican.

The military regime told all local newspapers today to apply for new publishing licenses and established a press censorship committee. However, specific instructions on how newspapers would operate in the future were not immediately issued.

A military spokesman told reporters that international news agencies would have to submit stories "critical of the government" and those dealing with Communist activities in the country to the committee for review but other stories could be sent out unimpeded.

Details of what the government considered "critical" were not provided by the spokesman.

In imposing martial law Wednesday, Sangad abolished parliament and the constitution, slapped a midnight-to-dawn curfew on the country, placed all civilian courts under military jurisdiction and banned political meetings of more than five people.

There was no open opposition to the moves either in the capital or the provinces.

Sangad contended that the Seni government had shown itself incapable of governing and that a new regime was needed to halt Communism in Thailand. The coup ended three years of democracy.

Thailand's change of government was expected to evoke strong reaction from its Communist neighbors, particularly Vietnam, which in the past has criticized Bangkok's "reactionary, military clique."

The stage was set Wednesday for Sangad's takeover after rightist groups clashed with leftist students at Thammasat University and spent...

Africans seeking embargo in U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Africans are once again seeking support in the U.N. Security Council for a binding arms embargo on South Africa aimed at forcing her to get out of Namibia.

A similar embargo was vetoed by Britain, France and the United States last year.

Informed sources said recently that if such a resolution is submitted as expected, the Western Big Three will veto it again.

African diplomats have given council members a private, informal and unofficial draft of an embargo resolution, hoping to negotiate a final text that could be submitted to the council next week.

The ... another ... afternoon ... Namibia ... South-West Africa ... Kissinger ... negotiations ... South Africa ... South-West Africa ... excluded the South-West African Peoples Organization (SWAPO), recognized by the U.N. as representative of the Namibian people.

Africans working on the resolution said it would be unwise to submit one that would bring a veto if Kissinger seemed to be succeeding in his negotiations. But they said, if it was clear that Kissinger had no chance of getting South Africa out of the territory, they could do nothing less than propose mandatory sanctions.

Some speculated that a proposal for a mandatory arms embargo was less likely to bring on Western vetoes than one for a mandatory trade boycott. The United States and Britain both trade with South Africa, but they do not sell it arms, as France does.

The speculation that there might be no veto contradicted British Foreign Secretary Anthony Crosland's remark to reporters Tuesday that "we're against" applying Chapter Seven of the U.N. charter, the section that authorizes the council to order diplomatic ostracism, embargo or force against any country threatening peace.

Ads for sale and purchase of tickets were numerous in the Dallas newspapers.

At police headquarters, officers braced for another night of often rowdy merrymaking Friday by thousands of fans who bring the normally quiet downtown streets of Dallas alive every eve of the game.

Each year several hundred persons are arrested and then released in time for the game.

Nearly 73,000 are expected to jam the Cotton Bowl for the game, which also marks the beginning of the annual Texas State Fair.

Three burned in oilfield mishap

ANDREWS — Two soldiers on leave from the U.S. Army and the father of one of the men were severely burned in an oilfield mishap near Frankel City around 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Injured were Pat Tibbets, 42, an operator for El Paso Natural Gas; his son, Spec. 5 James Tibbets, 23, and young Tibbets' buddy, Spec. 4 Richard Kalin, 22. Both soldiers are stationed at Ft. Bliss, near El Paso.

The men were initially treated at Permian General Hospital in Andrews but were later transferred to Brooke Army Medical Center at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, for treatment.

They were evacuated by an Air Force C9 jet transport that left Midland Air Terminal at 2:45 a.m. today for Kelly Air Force Base at San Antonio.

The three men were listed in stable, though serious, condition at the Brooke burns treatment unit this morning.

The senior Tibbets suffered burns over 20 per cent of his body; young Tibbets, over 39 per cent; and Kalin, over 30 per cent.

Nature of the fire was not readily determined. However, a Midland spokesman for El Paso Natural Gas Co. said the oilfield fire was not at site of a company lease.

The older Tibbets' address was listed as Star Route, Andrews, which is a Frankel City location.

Andrews Police Chief Frank Russell said his information on the fire itself and the cause was sketchy, but he declined to speculate.

The injured men were brought to the hospital here halfway by private car and then by a city ambulance. The mishap occurred about 15 miles west of here.

Duo takes bicycling honeymoon

bike trip and took a bus through the Mojave Desert.

In Arizona's Painted Desert, they were engulfed by a dust storm and outside Silver City they were pelted with leg-bruising hail. On those occasions they said there was no choice but to stick out a thumb and hitchhike.

"All our rides have been with older people. It's funny, but they are the ones who really seem to appreciate what we are doing and why. I think young people tend to look at our trip as impractical," said Suzanne.

In Midland, the Rays spent their 13th night on a real bed since they left Anchorage. They stayed in the home of a high school friend of Rick's father, O. D. Schoolcraft, 806 Gulf Ave. The two men grew up together in Eunice, N.M., and have stayed in touch since.

"It's something like my husband and I would have done," Mrs. Schoolcraft said of the bicycle trip.

The Rays travel fast and long, averaging 11 mph and 70 miles in a day. And they travel light. Rick's pack weighs 40 pounds and his wife's weighs 30. Included are two tennis rackets, a guitar, and harmonicas. Suzanne brought along a good dress and Rick a nice set of clothes so they could go out occasionally to break up the monotony of outdoor cooking.

Before leaving Anchorage, Rick took a job for two weeks in a bicycle repair shop to pick up what he would need to know in case anything mechanical should go wrong with their mode of transportation, especially in remote areas.

It was a good move, Rick said, because just about everything has gone wrong. His advice for would-be cross country bicyclers is to "be able to take your bike apart and put it back together again." Mechanical ability also pays off, he said, "because sometimes there just aren't the parts you need in the town you're in."

Frizzell blasts oil dependency

Democratic Congress, particularly the liberal Eastern faction" for heading in the direction of nationalism of energy in this country."

He said a bill which didn't get out this session proposed putting the federal government into the oil exploration business for the first time. But another bill, which was passed over President Ford's veto, provides for the government to be in the coal exploration business for the first time. He said, "If the American consumer wants to see high energy costs and energy delays, just get Uncle Sam into the picture."

Frizzell also outlined for reporters some of the activities of the Interior department, including responsibility for the Bureau of Land Management, the U.S. Geological Survey, the U.S. Bureau of Mines, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the National Park Service, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation and many others.

He said the department was created in 1849 and employs 65,000 to 70,000 persons, eight of whom are appointed by the President. He himself is a presidential appointee.

Frizzell's Midland stopover came mostly, he said, "at the request of sheep and goat raisers in Ozona and the Oklahoma Geological Society in Oklahoma City." He visited San Angelo Tuesday, attended an informal reception and dinner in Midland Wednesday, will be in Oklahoma City today, will help "an old friend in Kansas" with a political campaign on Friday, and will be back in Washington, D.C., Saturday, he noted.

The under secretary is a native of Wichita, Kan., and received a B.A. degree from Friends University in Wichita and a J.D. degree from Washburn University Law School. He practiced law in Wichita, served as attorney general for the State of Kansas two years, as assistant attorney general for the U.S. Department of Justice's Land and Natural Resources division a year, as solicitor of the interior department two years and was appointed to his present post in 1975.

Frizzell also served on the Wichita Board of Education, was a senator from Kansas's 25th Senatorial District four years and campaigned on the Republican Party ticket for governor of Kansas in 1970.

He and his wife Shirley have five children.

Rankin, McCamey, Big Lake and Garden City also reported rain and high winds.

Cold air blew into the Texas Panhandle today, bringing a few patches of light snow and drizzle as temperatures dropped into the low 30s, the Associated Press said.

Forecasters posted freeze warnings for most of the area down into the South Plains.

The drizzle and first snow of the season fell in an area between Amarillo and the Oklahoma Panhandle.

Amarillo registered 34 degrees at midmorning. The same reading was posted at Perryton, where the mercury had slipped to 30 degrees earlier in the day.

The expected freeze tonight was not the "killing" type, forecasters said.

Clouds thickened over most sections except South Texas, where most areas remained clear, and around El Paso on the west tip of the state.

Early morning temperatures dropped to 38 degrees at Dalhart and 39 at Amarillo in the Panhandle. At the same hour Corpus Christi at 62 was the warmest spot.

(Now, at the risk of offending my new-found Republican friends in the next breath, I'm partly glad to see a real GOP developing in Texas because it will discourage the Republicans from screwing up our Democratic primaries before returning to the Grand Old Fold in November. Remember the havoc it wreaked on local races this spring when a hot GOP primary siphoned off the customary cross-over vote? Many Texans were amazed to find they couldn't vote for a Republican presidential choice and a Democratic sheriff on the same ballot.)

It was interesting to note the differences and the similarities after helping open Democratic Central up the block last week (in a space that used to be GOP territory, in fact, until the Republicans inadvertently let the deadline pass to renew their lease).

The GOP nerve center is a little plusher in the building marked for razing to accommodate the proposed downtown convention center-park complex, and the GOP regulars in attendance seemed tidier and more softspoken. One black woman dropped in, left in the heat of the Earl Butz defense by State GOP Committeeman Robert Monaghan, and decided to return a little later.

Most of the rhetoric was the obverse of that last week by the Dmemocrats, not surprisingly, and the refreshments were (American as) apple pie and coffee, but a large bowl of goobers bore the message "Reupublicans EAT peanuts."

To demonstrate my nonpartisanship when it comes to humor, my favorite decoration was a hand-lettered quote from a recent William Safire column about Jimmy Carter: "In his heart he knows your wife." (On the other hand, I was popular among curious men who wanted to know what Earl Butz really said to Pat Boone that got him ousted.)

And I'm indebted to my buddy Mackie Henderson of San Angelo, who lost the price of a year's subscription to The Reporter-Telegram on the outcome of the GOP nomination, for the use of the political button he loaned me especially for my visit to the GOP headquarters. It features the most generous analysis I've seen for a Democrat to make about the Nixon administration.

Airline seeks authority for 11 nonstop flights

By DEBBIE PIERCE

Continental Airlines has asked the Civil Aeronautics Board for authority to connect Midland, nonstop, with 11 major cities, if economic conditions in the future would make the flights feasible.

Continental vice president Thomas G. Currigan announced the application at a noon press conference at Midland Regional Air Terminal today.

Currigan said the application, if granted by the CAB, would be the first time the regulatory agency would allow "a carrier and a city to determine their own destiny."

The decision may come within four to six months, Currigan said.

Continental filed the application with the CAB Sept. 30, Currigan, vice president for civic and environmental affairs, said.

The application lists Chicago, Kansas City, Miami, Phoenix, Portland, Ore., San Diego, San Francisco, Seattle, Tucson, Wichita, Kan. and New Orleans as the cities Continental proposes to serve from Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Continental does not propose to start service to any or all of the cities immediately, Currigan said. "It would depend on whether or not it becomes economically feasible," he said at the press conference.

Such service is not presently economically feasible he said.

Thomas G. Currigan

If the application for authority for the nonstop service is approved, Continental could begin the flights without having to return to the CAB for additional approval, Currigan said.

No hearing on the application for authority is needed, Currigan said. "We followed CAB guidelines in making the application," he told reporters.

New Thai ruler clamps down on leftist studen

BANGKOK (Undated) (AP) — Thailand's new military ruler clamped the iron hand of martial law on Bangkok's bloodstained streets today in the wake of clashes that left at least 26 persons dead and 180 wounded.

Soldiers stood guard at some public buildings, strict controls were imposed on the local press and quiet returned to the capital as Sangad Chaowvi sought to bring the country under his control. He met no public opposition.

The takeover Wednesday by Sangad, a hard-line anti-Communist, came after months of complaints by rightists about growing lawlessness, corruption and student violence and the weakness of ousted prime minister Seni Pramoj's government.

Sangad, a 60-year-old admiral and former defense minister, is generally regarded as pro-American.

There was no open opposition to moves either in the capital or provinces.

Sangad contended that the government had shown itself capable of governing and that a regime was needed to halt Communism in Thailand. The country had three years of democracy.

ART BUCHWALD

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Everyone has excuses for going off his and her diet. I would like to advance one that most people are afraid to admit to because their doctors or friends will think they are crazy. It's the "Devil" theory and I can speak from personal experience when I say that the Devil is responsible for every lapse in any diet that I have tried to stick to.

This is what happens. I have been able to stick to any regimen that is the fad of the month, until around eleven o'clock at night. Then my wife asks me to check to see if all the doors downstairs are locked. Unfortunately, the one she is most concerned with is the kitchen door.

I walk into the kitchen and there sitting at the counter is the Devil. He doesn't look like the ones you see in the books.

For one thing he has no horns and for another he is lacking a tail. He's actually a very charming little fellow — pudgy, of course, and quite short with a round red face and dresses in a blue denim leisure suit. I always try to ignore him, but he is the type that starts up a conversation whether you want him to or not. He might say, "While you're checking the kitchen door, why don't you take a peek in the refrigerator?"

"Why should I take a peek in the refrigerator?"

"Just to check if the light is on or not," he says innocently.

I open the door. "The light's on," I say.

"Oh, I see your wife bought some Edam cheese today. I'll bet that would taste delicious on black bread."

"We have no black bread, wise guy," I snarl at him.

"Look on the third shelf behind the diet cola."

I look on the third shelf and, sure enough, a loaf of black bread is there.

"I don't want any. I'm on a diet," I say firmly.

"Well, you could offer me some. What kind of host are you anyway?"

I take out the black bread and the Edam cheese.

"Don't forget the butter and mustard," he says, grinning from ear to ear.

I make the cheese sandwich and shove it toward him.

"Care to join me?" he asks. "I hate to eat alone."

"I'll just have a taste," I say.

He pushes the sandwich toward me. "Here, take this one. I'll make my own. You know what would go good with that sandwich?"

"What?" I ask, sitting next to him at the counter.

"A large cold glass of beer."

"I'm not supposed to drink beer on my diet."

"I know. But one glass isn't going to hurt you. You can't eat a cheese sandwich without beer."

"Where's the beer?" I ask him.

"On the bottom shelf, behind the cottage cheese."

I pour myself a glass of beer.

"I know I'm not supposed to tell tales out of school," he says, "but did you know your wife made chocolate chip cookies today to send to your daughter at college?"

"She did?" I say in surprise. "Where are they?"

"She hid them in the broom closet so you wouldn't find them. If I were you I'd be pretty angry at a wife who hides chocolate chip cookies so her husband can't find them."

"It does kind of get me mad," I admit. "What kind of marriage is it if people can't trust each other?"

"Why don't you eat them just to let her know you're not somebody who can be trifled with. Chocolate chip cookies are delicious with vanilla ice cream."

I look at him.

He grins. "In the deep freeze, underneath the cans of frozen orange juice."

"You really are a troublemaker," I tell him as I take the ice cream out of the freezer.

"What the devil are you talking about? I'm the best friend you have in the world. Who else would have told you about the chocolate chip cookies in the broom closet? Oh, by the way, before you go upstairs you better check the kitchen door. I think it's still unlocked."

Army missiles fall far short

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

The Pentagon [illegible] of sweeping [illegible] under the secrecy label.

Government accountants have found, for example, that the Army's short-range air defense system is "troubled by uncertainty and high cost." But the accountants don't have authority to overrule the military brass on secrecy. So the misspending can be concealed from the public.

We have obtained a copy, however, of the General Accounting Office's classified study of the short-range air defense system, which the Army called SHORAD for short. Clearly the taxpayers are entitled to know how their money has been wasted. As for military security, intelligence experts concede that the Soviets know all about the SHORAD system because of its widespread use in Europe.

The GAO report uses such words as "inadequacies" and "deficiencies" to describe the system. To call it a "troubled" system would be a mild assessment.

The story necessarily is technical. The GAO study covered three basic components of the SHORAD system: Chaparral missiles, Roland missiles and anti-aircraft artillery.

The Chaparral missiles form the backbone of the SHORAD system. These missiles, mounted on tracked vehicles, were rushed to Europe at the end of the 1960s to fill an "urgent" defense gap. They were supposed to be integrated with existing military weapons such as the Navy's Sidewinder missiles.

The arriving Chapparral missiles, according to the government accountants, had some "performance weakenesses" such as "an inability to engage incoming aircraft, inadequate warhead, etc." This was a polite way of saying they didn't work, since their function was to engage incoming aircraft.

The Army recognized the deficiencies and intended to correct them. Or to put it in the bureaucratic language of the Army brass, they "planned an expedited product improvement program."

But the accountants reported despairingly: "Although the Army has since come up with a number of improvements, they have not yet been made to the system. Thus the system in use today is still essentially the same as originally fielded."

Here are a few of the "performance weaknesses" that the GAO cited:

— The Chaparral is a sunshine weapon. Its "unrestricted use ... is possible only in fair-weather conditions." Unfortunately, this occurs only about 25 per cent of the time. Thus an enemy need merely strike during bad weather.

— Unhappily, Chaparral missiles are also susceptible to enemy countermeasures. In fact, enemy planes could "essentially" have complete protection from Chaparral attack, the report warns.

— Chaparral missiles also have limited tactical use. Worse, the "survivability" of their launch unit in combat is a major problem.

— The Chaparral system relies on the gunner's ability visually to detect and distinguish between friendly and enemy aircraft. This is difficult to do with planes flying faster than sound. Thus in gloomy weather the missile operators might shoot down the wrong planes.

Assuming that (1) it's a nice day, (2) the Chaparral's operators are keen-eyed and quick-witted, (3) the enemy planes are flying away from the missiles in a "tail chase" situation and (4) the Chaparral unit can survive combat long enough to shoot back, the system still has "insufficient lethality to consistently destroy (enemy) aircraft."

Indeed, the "probability of aircraft destruction is only 36 per cent," assuming the warhead is delivered almost directly on target.

If all this sounds discouraging, the Army remains undeterred. A spokesman acknowledged to us that "the GAO report as it pertains to Chaparral limitations is accurate" but promised that the Army is turning the Chaparral into a "potent" weapon.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: The Treasury Department has a strange concept of whom its main consumer representative should be. According to the Federal Register, he's supposed to "help achieve a flow of ideas between the consumer and Treasury." But the first man to get the job was a broker, named David Lefeve, from Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith. His newly named successor is an IBM official, Dr. John Webster.

— Under White House budget restrictions, the Environmental Protection Agency will be forced to turn its sensitive computer data over to a private company to program. This would make the information available to other customers, including companies that EPA is investigating. Thus an unscrupulous official of a firm, seeking information about his own prosecution, would merely have to punch up the EPA file. EPA assured us that the most sensitive data would be coded, but most codes are notoriously easy to crack. There have been past attempts, it should be noted, to tap into government computers.

Moynihan Senate Race gets attention

Moynihan's Buffalo boo-boo last month had its predictable result last week: a poll by the Buffalo Evening News showing Buckley actually leading Moynihan by 4 percentage points in the most Democratic upstate city. This Moynihan deficit is almost certain to be reversed well before the Nov. 2 election, but it points directly to the battle of strategies in perhaps the single most important Senate race in the nation: Catholic Moynihan striving to exploit the bread-and-butter issues of jobs and unemployment and to capture ethnic Catholics and blue-collar workers; Catholic Buckley seeking support on social issues like abortion, and gun control from these same Catholic ethnics.

Thus, the way the Buffalo teachers' strike backfired on Moynihan symbolized the campaign of conflicting strategies. The campaign is dramatized further by starkly differences in personality between flamboyant, gregarious Moynihan, the towering Harvard professor, diplomat and one-time Nixon staffer; and Buckley, shy and diffident.

Indeed, the campaign performance of Buckley (who was elected in 1970 with only 39 per cent of the vote in a three-way contest) may test whether post-Watergate disillusion with politics and politicians now puts a premium on candidates who refuse to act like candidates.

Campaigning in the old Brooklyn Navy Yard one day last week, Buckley shyly declined to be prodded into saying a few words to several hundred construction workers in a new tanker-building operation that owes its very existence to government loans that Buckley himself made possible several years ago.

"Jim is a helluva guy," a top officer of the tanker firm told us, "and a terrible politician."

The tour of what used to be the Brooklyn Navy Yard followed a long and acerbic question-and-answer session with elderly Brooklyn Jews at the William and Anna Blanksteen community house. A hint of what was to come was discernible in his introduction as a Senator "who many here don't agree with, so please use this opportunity to tell him."

Minutes later Buckley was attacked by an angry 29-year-old Jewish lady for his opposition to the first proposal of federal aid to New York City last year. "How can we send you back to the Senate?" she said. "How do you justify coming and asking us to send you back?"

Buckley refused the usual refuge of politicians caught by angry constituents. Instead of excuses, he attacked "clubhouse politics" in New York City as the cause of bankruptcy, meaning sweetheart labor contracts between politicians (most of them Democrats) and the municipal unions. The remedy was discipline, not money.

Such seemingly suicidal back talk to voters is a major part of Buckley's strategy, and carries the deliberate implication that Moynihan (invariably called "Professor Moynihan" by Buckley) is a gregarious trimmer who says what he thinks the voters want to hear. Few politicians think Buckley can carry it off and they are probably right — if Pat Moynihan commits no more bad boo-boos before Nov. 2.

Cooking in wilds challenge for actress Anne Baxter

By JOHNA BLINN
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Anne Baxter bases her philosophy of living on advice her grandfather, iconoclast-architect Frank Lloyd Wright, once gave her: "See into life, don't just look at it," he aaid.

Anne has always done more than merely look at life; this was dazzlingly evident during the four years she spent living in the wilds of Australia's bush country with Randolph Galt, who was then her husband.

WOMEN'S NEWS

"It was a fascinating experience for an American, particularly an actress," she said in her husky voice, seated in the comfort of her Brentwood home. "I saw that raw and glorious country through an ancient and dirty kitchen window. My ego rammed all the limitations and bent both horns!"

Not the least of her challenges was learning to cook in the wilds. "The nearest grocer was a bumpy 35 miles and 90 miles away by Land Rover from Giro." Giro was the 26-room house on the 37,000-acre cattle station (ranch) her husband owned and operated. There was no domestic help available, eo Anne did all the housework and the cooking. "The biggest problem was trying to cope with the strange looking pieces of meat," she said, smiling. Australians butcher meat in a way totally different from Americans. Baking bread became a hobby. "I even tried my hand at homemade lemon preeerves," ahe said proundly. In time, she won her battle with Bert, her nickname for the huge iron stove she found in the house.

Anne learned to plan her meals around her garden and "groceries ordered over a one-telephone line shared with 14 other families." Since her husband's hours were often long and unpredictable she became accomplished at creating last-minute specialties. She still fixes the Mexican cheese sandwiches she used to make at Giro. "f used my homemade bread out there, but now I use any good bread: whole wheat, oatmeal or sourdough. Top it with good sharp Cheddar and lay pieces of Mexican chiles on top that plus a sprinkling of cumin, chili powder and salt. Tosat it at the table in a mixture of butter and safflower oil. It's a change from the usual fondue and calls for no meat. Serve it with sliced tomatoes or salad and cold beer and you have a marvelous supper!"

"I love to plan a meal around a nice leg of lamb. If I feel inspired, I make my sweated-over-green apple pie. It's made with nothing but lemon, butter, sugar and very, very green apples."

Recipes for delicious dining, fashioned by Anne Baxter, follow:

GREEN APPLE PIE
Makes one 9-inch pie

2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ tsp. salt
10 tbsps. butter
6 tbsps. shortening
about ¼ cup ice cold water
3 cups peeled, thinly sliced tart green apples (Granny Smith or pippins)
1 cup sugar

Mix together flour and salt; cut butter and shortening into flour, using two knives or pastry blender until the particles of fat are the size of small peas. Sprinkle water over flour-fat mixture, a tablespoon at a time, tossing quickly with a fork, adding water so mixture will stick together. Lightly flour hands, gather dough together to form a ball. Knead very lightly on lightly floured board then divide in half. Roll out bottom crust to ⅛-inch thickness for a 9-inch pie lower crust. Arrange layer of apples in bottom of pastry-lined pie plate. Sprinkle evenly with sugar, few drops of lemon juice and dot with butter. Repeat layers until crust is filled up. Roll out top crust, cover pie. Pinch top and bottom crusts together to seal. Crimp or flute edges of crust with fingers and make a slash in top for ventilation. Bake in preheated 450 deg. F. oven 15 minutes; reduce temperature to 350 deg. F. and bake about 45 minutes longer, or until crust is golden and apples are tender. Serve warm alone or with a scoop of vanilla ice cream or a slice of good aged Cheddar.

MEXICAN CHEESE SUPPER SANDWICH

2 slices of sharp Cheddar cheese
2 slices oatmeal, whole wheat or sourdough bread
1 to 2 Mexican green chiles ground cumin
sprinkling of chili powder
salt to taste
2 to 3 tbsps. butter
2 to 3 tbsps. safflower oil

Lay cheese slices on two slices of bread, open-face style. Cut chiles into pieces, lay criss-cross on top of cheese. Sprinkle evenly with cumin, chili powder and salt to taste. Top with slice of bread. Heat butter and safflower oil together in sandwich grill or heavy cast-iron skillet. Fry sandwiches on each side until crusts are golden and cheese is melted.

Midland girl pledges Kappa

Ex-dog hater now loves 175

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Eight years ago, Pappy Ragsdale hated dogs. Now he has 175 of the creatures following him around his farm equipment business.

"Used to be I couldn't stand the things," Ragsdale said. "When my wife got Rags (a poodle) I didn't even want to be around it. I wanted to keep it away from me in another room."

He said he changed his mind after hearing an antivivisection poem that ended with the line, "Only a dog would spend his breath in a kiss for his murderer's hand."

First came Lady, now 16. Then Ned, Low-brow, Highbrow, Peggy, Alfred, Limpy, Lucky, Mutt & Jeff, Chowchow, Roy, Wolf, Ack Ack, Stagger and more than 150 others of all sizes, lineage and descriptions.

Most are strays that found their way to Ragsdale's canine haven. Others were dropped off by people who tired of their pets.

Food for the dogs costs about $600 a month.

Ragsdale's collection has been the subject of several visits by the Memphis Humane Society, which named him "Humanitarian of the Year" for 1976.

DEAR ABBY

Reader says our enemies right to suppress porno

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am aware that you find pornography offensive but feel that adults should be free to take it or leave it. How about children?

I recently found pictures in my 14-year-old son's room that would make Sodom and Gomorrah look like a Sunday school picnic!

While hard-core pornography is supposedly available only to adults, like drugs, it's available in abundance to kids of all ages on every street corner in America.

Our enemies suppress pornography and drugs in their own countries because they know that the way to destroy a nation is first to corrupt the morals of its youth. Corny, you think? I disagree with you and others who say that censorship violates our freedom.

If this constitutes freedom, you can have it! Believe me, a country that outlaws the ancient profession of prostitution but condones pornography is sick, sick, sick!—A FATHER

DEAR FATHER: If hard-core pornography is "available in abundance" to kids of all ages on every street corner in America (and I doubt that it is), I think the peddlers should be pinched and prosecuted.

I remind you that "our enemies" suppress many things besides pornography allegedly to avoid "moral corruption" of their youth. And if I read you right, we'd gain little by legalizing prostitution but denying adults the freedom to choose their own reading material.

DEAR ABBY: I've gone with this guy for over a year and I love him very much. He says he loves me, too, but listen to this: The other night my girlfriend and I were together changing from our regular clothes into our swimsuits in a little beach house.

My boyfriend later told me that he was "amazed" that I would show my naked body to another girl, and he actually accused me of being a lesbian! Abby, nothing could be further from the truth, but that's the way this guy had it figured out.

I did my best to assure him that he was mistaken, but he wouldn't believe me. Have you ever heard of anything so ridiculous? I swear, in today's society a woman can't even kiss her own sister without someone thinking she's gay. Help me!—STRAIGHT & HURT

DEAR STRAIGHT: Your boyfriend is jumping to some rather strange conclusions. His apparent hangup needs professional counseling. If he can't see it that way, you'd better look elsewhere for a boyfriend.

DEAR ABBY: A reader asked why he should tip a waiter when the chef cooked the excellent meal. Having been in the restaurant business for nearly 50 years, I think I can answer that question.

The chef (or cook) draws the highest salary in the place, and most chefs get "tipped" from the waiters and waitresses "in appreciation" for getting their orders out quickly.

You could call it "blackmail" for want of a better name, but that's the way it's done in the better restaurants. And there is no use going to the boss because a good chef is hard to find, but waiters can be had by the dozens.

Talk about your Primadonnas! Artists could learn a lot about temperament from these kings of the kitchen!—J. OUT EAST

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Good diet aids good night's sleep

By SHIRLEY BRIGHT BOODY
Registered Dietitian
Copley News Service

Sleep is the universal blessing that heals and restores us all. What part diet plays in the still undiscovered mysteries of sleep is unknown. Medical nutritional research may one day provide answers that will help thousands of people get the rest they need.

There are some factors, however, that are known about the effects diet has on your ability to sleep. Certain patterns and ways of eating do affect sleeping habits.

Those people who avoid breakfast, and skimp on lunch, because they want to lose weight, or because they are in too much of a hurry, build up a ravenous appetite by evening.

After stuffing themselves at dinner and while watching television, they fall into bed and wonder why they cannot sleep. After working all day at their job, they have put their body to work again digesting the food they have recently eaten.

Digestion is work. It takes energy and consumes calories just to utilize food. The body needs rest and relaxation. The miracle of sleep cannot take over when the food eaten at night needs to be digested.

Not only is restful sleep disturbed, but the food, after digestion, is stored as fat far more frequently when eaten at night, than during the active hours of the day. Studies have shown that night eaters are almost always overweight.

This eating pattern denies the body the energy needed when it is at peak activity levels. Overweight and low energy typifies those that follow the one meal at night pattern.

Begin the day with a good breakfast of fruit, whole grain cereal or bread and a good protein food such as milk, meat, fish, fowl, egg, cheese or a soy product.

Lunch, too, is necessary.

Never allow duties or errands to interfere with replenishing your energy with fruits, vegetable salads (with polyunsaturated oil instead of thick dressings) and a protein.

With this eating pattern you will not be "starved" at dinner. Place your dinner time two to three hours before retiring.

Ford, Carter differed more

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — President Ford and Jimmy Carter have set off shock waves among politicians and diplomats with their second campaign debate. Among voters, the audience that really counts, an Associated Press poll today gave Carter a narrow edge.

Ford's pronouncements on Eastern Europe and the Arab boycott, and a hard line by Democrat Carter on the Panama Canal Zone, stirred instant controversy. At the same time, the debate thrust foreign and defense policy to the forefront in the presidential campaign.

The 90-minute debate was livelier than the first encounter between the Republican President and his challenger. Both were more aggressive this time. Each attacked his opponent more freely, dropping much of the restraint and studied politeness that had marked their first confrontation.

Highlighted by sharp differences on details but broad agreement on the objectives of foreign and defense policy, the debate no sooner had ended than both candidates said they thought they had done well.

"I think I won and I'm sure he feels the same way," Carter said as he left the ornate Palace of Fine Arts, site of the nationally televised debate. Carter said he had rated the first debate a tie "but I feel better about this one."

"I think we did all right," said Ford.

Both men had the same reaction after their first encounter two weeks ago in Philadelphia.

The third and final debate between the two presidential candidates is scheduled for Oct. 22, in Williamsburg, Va. On Oct. 15, their vice presidential running mates, Sens. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., and Bob Dole, R-Kans., will debate, most likely in Houston.

The Associated Press poll that followed the first debate concluded that Ford picked up some support.

In their second encounter, neither candidate seemed as nervous at the outset. Each hit hard at the other's recommendations of ways to maintain American strength throughout the world while pursuing a foreign policy with moral as well as practical objectives.

"I treated Mr. Ford more as an equal," Carter said. "I think in the first debate, I deferred too much to him because he was President."

Ford, however, was able to use his incumbency to make two surprise announcements of international significance: He said the United States has received signals from the Soviet Union of its readiness to narrow differences and shape "a realistic and sound compromise" for a new agreement to limit strategic nuclear weapons; and he said the administration will disclose the names of American firms that have participated in the Arab boycott against Israel.

But the President also may have created a campaign issue in an unexpected area when he said, "There is no Soviet domination of Eastern Europe and there never will be under a Ford administration."

Ford was asked by panelist Max Frankel of the New York Times if he meant to say that the Russians were not using Eastern Europe as "their own sphere of influence" and were not making certain "with their troops that it's a Communist zone."

The President replied: "I don't believe, Mr. Frankel, that the Yugoslavians consider themselves dominated by the Soviet Union. I don't believe the Romanians consider themselves dominated by the Soviet Union. I don't believe that the Poles consider themselves dominated by the Soviet Union. Each of these countries is independent, autonomous."

Israeli figures elastic, elusive

WASHINGTON (AP) — In debating U.S. support for Israel, President Ford and Jimmy Carter proved once again that statistics are both elastic and elusive.

Challenging the firmness of the U.S. commitment to the Jewish state, Carter said weapons shipments to Israel have slid from 60 per cent of the Middle East total under Democrats to 20 per cent under Republican Ford.

"The shift in emphasis is very disturbing to me," Carter said during Wednesday night's debate.

Ford, on the other hand, defended his administration's support for "our good ally," citing military sales of more than $4 billion to Israel since he became President in August 1974.

In fact, military aid to Israel has boomed since the 1973 Yom Kippur war.

But, at the same time, there has been a dramatic surge of arms sales to Iran and Saudi Arabia — about $10 billion to Iran and $8 billion to Saudi Arabia.

Israel's share, therefore, is proportionately smaller.

The last $6-billion arms package to clear Congress contained $4.4 billion in arms for Iran, for example; $450 million for Saudi Arabia; and $240 million for Israel. Thus, Israel's share was about 4 per cent.

However, Israel is the major recipient in the $5.1-billion foreign aid bill for the new fiscal year, getting $1 billion in arms aid and $735 million in "security supporting assistance grants."

Eastern Europe was a second major area of disagreement between Ford and Carter, with the wisdom of the 1975 Helsinki agreement at issue.

The pact, signed by 35 nations including the United States, was intended as a diplomatic tradeoff. The Soviets would finally win acceptance of Eastern Europe's post-World War II borders but would make concessions to the West on human rights and such "confidence-building measures" as giving notice of military maneuvers.

Carter, attacking Ford's leadership, said the United States has failed to enforce the human-rights provisions. Reaching for an ethnic nerve among portions of the electorate, Carter went on:

"I would like to see Mr. Ford convince the Polish Americans, Czech Americans and the Hungarian Americans in this country that those countries don't live under the domination and the supervision of the Soviet Union behind the Iron Curtain."

Ford, claiming he has negotiated with the Russians "from a position of strength," declared flatly:

"There is no Soviet domination, never will be under a Ford administration."

The President said he did not believe the Yugoslavs, Romanians or Poles considered themselves dominated by the Soviet Union and, besides, the United States was dedicated to their freedom.

The three countries he singled out have achieved varying degrees of autonomy. Yugoslavia broke away from Moscow in 1948, Romania pursues a somewhat independent foreign policy, and Poland has managed some liberalization.

Still, Ford's assertion raised eyebrows among diplomats, and the White House quickly edged away.

Judge changes to juror's seat

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Maricopa County Superior Court Judge Harold Martin has exchanged his judicial robes for a juror's badge.

Martin was called to serve on a jury hearing the trial of Floyd Lee Evitt on charges of selling marijuana. Evitt is defending himself and chose not to strike any jurors.

During a recess, Martin explained his problem to Judge Charles Hardy.

"Make sure you tell the other jurors who you are — then you're almost certain to get elected as foreman of the jury," Hardy advised him.

Riot police stood guard on Baker Street across from the Palace of Fine Arts in San Francisco on late Wednesday afternoon to prevent trouble by demonstrators gathered near the place Jimmy Carter and President Ford were to hold their second debate.

Carter close victor, AP survey reveals

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Jimmy Carter, impressing viewers with confident stands on foreign and defense policy, scored slightly better than President Ford in their second debate, a nationwide Associated Press poll found today.

The telephone survey of 1,071 registered voters made immediately after the debate Wednesday night found neither Carter nor Ford the clearcut winner.

But 38.2 per cent of those polled said Carter had won, while 34.6 gave the nod to Ford. And 27.2 per cent called it a draw or said they didn't know who won.

While Carter's margin over Ford was statistically small, the scores in his favor were consistent throughout the varied questions asked in the poll, giving strength to the poll's basic finding on who won.

The figures from this survey of scientifically selected Americans were almost exactly a reverse of those found in the AP poll after the first presidential debate, from which Ford emerged with a slight edge.

In that survey after the Sept. 23 debate, 34.4 per cent of those polled said Ford won, while 31.8 per cent said Carter was the victor. A draw or "don't know" response came from 33.8 per cent.

The theoretical margin of error for samples of the size used in these surveys is about 2.9 per cent in either direction if the results are projected to stand for the reaction of the entire viewing audience.

Technically, this means that Carter's margin over Ford in the second debate could be due to variations in the sample.

But all the figures tabulated from interviews conducted for The AP by Chilton Research Services of Radnor, Pa., pointed narrowly but consistently to a Carter victory.

The Carter showing came despite predebate expectation that Ford's experience in Washington and especially his last two years in the White House would give him the edge over the former Georgia governor.

Carter's good showing was reflected by such survey results as these:

—Both men gained some support, but Carter more than Ford. Before the debate, Carter led Ford 45.8 per cent to 43.0 per cent, according to interviews with these same respondens within the past week. After the debate, Carter's margin had widened, 48.5 to 44.8.

—Carter picked up some new support among college-educated viewers, while Ford's support among this group slipped slightly.

—Ford did not strengthen his backing among those voters who consider themselves independent. This group was a major source of increased support for Ford after the first debate.

Texans show partisanship

By The Associated Press

Texas Republicans and Democrats each thought their man won debate No. 2 and John Connally thought President Ford was more clearly the winner of this debate than the last.

Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, Jimmy Carter's campaign co-chairman in Texas, thought his man was the clear winner, saying Wednesday night Carter showed a "competent grasping of the issues."

"To me, it came across as a parallel to Kennedy-Nixon (debates)," Armstrong said. "The President continually referred to experience but Carter showed that that experience was not a very satisfactory experience."

Armstrong said he could understand if Carter lost or tied this round since Ford had the experience, background and briefing. But during the debate, it became more apparent that Carter could think and react.

"I felt like he showed that there had been some nonmanagement or mismanagement of the foreign policy, lack of communication with the Congress, and therefore the people, and that he intended to change that."

Connally said Carter took a negative position while Ford, on the other hand, handled himself "superbly well."

"He obviously was in great command of the facts," Connally said of Ford. "He showed great knowledge and real understanding of both the economic and the foreign policy issues and manifested a real strength in his determination to deal with those issues."

Ray Hutchison, chairman of the Texas Republican Party, said the depth of knowledge and the expertise of President Ford was obvious.

"Carter attempted to turn a discussion on foreign policy into a study of morality," Hutchison said. "All clear thinking Americans know that foreign policy involves a great deal more than that."

Xerox copier wreaking havoc

The Los Angeles Times

Xerox's new color duplicating machine has spawned a wave of counterfeit money orders, payroll checks, stock certificates, U.S. and foreign currencies and other negotiable documents, The Los Angeles Times learned Wednesday.

Alarmed by potential losses, a number of private U.S. corporations have formed a special task force to work with government agencies in seeking solutions to the growing problem.

"This color copying machine has advanced the cause of counterfeiting by many years," said Martial Lester, a vice president of Jeffries Banknote Co. "The problem is horrendous."

Lester and his firm, a subsidiary of TI Corp., Los Angeles, are members of the special industry task force, known as the National Assn. of Money Order Issuers. Lester is a specialist in graphic art research and a member of Interpol, the International police network.

In an interview Wednesday, Lester showed a reporter bogus stock certificates, bank money orders, travelers checks and federal food stamps which had been produced on Xerox color copiers and successfully passed through financial institutions.

In addition, Lester said the machine was capable of reproducing U.S. and foreign currencies, bank certificates of deposit, payroll checks, Social Security checks and corporate dividend checks.

"The only limit to its uses is the criminal's own imagination," Lester said.

At present, Lester said, the fraudulent use of color copiers is "still in its embryo stage," although he acknowledged that "hundreds of thousands of dollars" worth of phony documents have already been discovered.

"The potential losses are enormous — millions and millions, certainly. These things can reproduce texture as well as color, you know."

The machine in question, known as the Xerox 6500 color copier, sells for about $26,000, but can be leased from the Stamford, Conn.-based Xerox Corp. for as little as $225 per month.

A spokesman for Xerox declined to say how many of these color machines are in operation, but Lester estimated the figure at 1,000 for the United States.

Xerox Corp. officials were unavailable for comment on the machine's counterfeiting capabilities.

In Washington, Everett Prescott, assistant director of the Bureau of Engraving, confirmed that the color copier was a source of "major concern" to private industry, but that the machine's ability to reproduce U.S. currency was "not that significant."

He added: "This is one reason why the Bureau of Engraving (a unit of the U.S. Treasury) has always maintained that U.S. currency should not be multi-colored. With lots of different colors, it is much easier for the counterfeiter to create the illusion of reality."

Prescott also confirmed that the bureau was working with the National Assn. of Money Order Issuers to help solve the problem.

According to Lester, other government agencies are also involved, including the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Justice Department and the Secret Service.

Gideon Schiller, an attorney and the executive director of the National Assn. of Money Order Issuers, said Wednesday his group was "concerned about the problem, but I really don't want to comment beyond that."

In declining to answer specific questions about the group, its members' losses to date and why he was being secretive, Schiller suggested that any publicity would only aggravate the situation.

Soybeans attract even diplomats to reception

By MARIAN BURROS
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — They gave one of those huge 5-to-7 receptions on Capitol Hill recently: Everyone came and ate up all the food.

That's not particularly newsworthy in Washington where you can always turn out a crowd for free drinks and hors d'oeuvres. What made that occasion different was that all the food was made with soybeans. And a lot of those people who showed up were ambassadors, not their second secretaries who are usually sent to such events.

How did anything which sounds as unglamorous as the Food Protein Council snag all those high-powered diplomats such as Swedish Ambassador Count Wilhelm Wachtmeister and Iranian Ambassador Ardeshir Zahedi to an event titled an International Soybean Fair?

First of all, Rep. Paul Findley (R-Ill.) got together with the Protein Council people who represent most of the producers and processors of soybean products in this country. The council footed the $10-a-head bill; Findley supplied the hall, the Caucus Room of the Cannon House Office Building. There are an awful lot of soybeans grown in Findley's district.

Then Findley's staff made up a list of every representative in whose district 10,000 acres or more of soybeans are grown; added on members of the House Agriculture and International Relations Committees, even if they didn't have any soybeans in their districts, and asked them to co-sponsor the reception. Of the 154 members approached, 70 accepted and most of them showed up.

Each of those representatives was asked to invite one or more of the ambassadors by personal letter with a personal follow-up phone call. How could an ambassador refuse, even if soybeans are not a significant source of food in his country?

The Swedish ambassador, for instance, was invited by a friend and fellow Swede, Rep. Elford Cederberg (R-Mich.). He came, brought his agricultural attache and said he learned a lot of interesting things about soybeans.

Zahedi came "because a few friends invited me and we buy a lot of soybeans from the United States." Zahedi said soybeans are very important in Iran.

Even the congressional sponsors were amazed at the response. Rep. Margaret Heckler (R-Mass.) said the high-level turnout was "really impressive." She said even though Congress doesn't realize it, and is busy "discussing arms, food is where the whole world is."

Half of the $3 billion worth of soybeans grown in this country is exported. Most of what stays here is turned into oil; the residue is fed to animals, which is why soybeans are sometimes known as cowbeans, which explains why they are not thought of too highly as people food.

Yet, the majority of the 500 or so partygoers ate the meatballs, turkey roll, salami, Vienna sausages, cocktail franks extended with soy and the meatless sausages and bacon whose base was soy, and said they were delicious.

But try to sell these people soy products on the open market and they make a face.

Vegetarians and health food fans eat them; those who must watch their intake of saturated fat do, too; but beyond that, soybeans don't sell.

Part of the problem goes back to the meatless Thursdays of World War II. According to the vice president of Archer Daniels Midland, a large producer of soy products, older Americans have a mental block against them. They remember the rather crude and unappetizing forms in which soybeans were served in the '40s.

Richard Burket said soy products have come a long way since then.

They are extruded, spun, flaked, seasoned and who knows what else so that they are hardly recognizable. What's more these technological marvels hardly have any funny taste.

Burket said there are still a lot of problems: a very strong livestock lobby, regulatory problems, and a lot of apathy. He said economic pressures overseas, which force people to buy the inexpensive soybeans, are not the same in this country. When meat prices skyrocketed a few years ago, soy producers began a campaign to sell their product and they had some success. Many people began buying textured vegetable protein as an extender for ground beef. When meat prices declined, so did the sales of the soy extender. The Soybean Fair, Burket said, was the beginning of another marketing effort.

Soy is already in many food products and with the exception of shoppers who read labels very carefully, most people don't even know they are eating it. It is used to extend all kinds of processed meat products from chili con carne to hot dogs, from ground turkey to fish fillets. It is also put in candies.

As one congressman said when asked if he'd ever eaten soybeans before: "I may have, but you know, you can't tell these days."

Chaplin had recipe

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Charlie Chaplin — world-famous motion-picture actor, director and producer — once had a favorite recipe. He contributed it to an American cookbook published, just before America entered World War I, to aid the Red Cross and Actors' Fund.

By that time Chaplin, who was born and brought up in England, had made his film debut in the United States and was living here.

In view of his English upbringing, it's not surprising that Charles Spencer Chaplin's offering was a delightful British dessert — Apple Roll. Our tasters loved our updated version of it.

APPLE ROLL
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1-3rd cup butter or margarine
2-3rds cup (about) milk
2 cups chopped (mediumfine) pared tart cooking apples
Syrup, see below

In a medium mixing bowl, stir together the flour, baking powder and salt. With a pastry blender cut in the butter until fine. With a fork gradually stir in enough milk to make a soft dough; form into a ball. On a floured pastry cloth, with a floured stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out the dough to a 14-by 10-inch rectangle; it will be about ¼-inch thick. Sprinkle with the apples, leaving a ½inch margin. From the 14-inch side, roll up tightly; seal seam by pinching together; fold over each end twice to seal. Place seamside down in a buttered 2quart oblong glass baking dish (11¾ by 7½ by 1¾ inches) or similar utensil. Holding a fork slantwise, prick the pastry across the top in 8 equidistant places; make 8 similar vents in the middle of each side of the roll. (This venting will keep the top of the roll from cracking.) Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until golden-brown — 40 minutes. Pour the hot Syrup over the roll and bake 5 minutes longer. Serve hot. Makes 8 servings.

Syrup: Shortly before the Apple Roll has finished baking, in a medium saucepan over moderate heat stir together 1½ cups sugar, 1 cup water and ¾ teaspoon cinnamon until sugar dissolves and mixture comes to a boil; do not boil further. Syrup should be hot before using as directed; if necessary, reheat but do not boil.

Galloping Gourmet has been brought to his knees

The Los Angeles Times

Graham Kerr, the Galloping Gourmet, isn't galloping anymore. He's kneeling. He's got his arms raised to the heavens and he's shouting, "Praise the Lord."

He's a changed man now. He'd rid himself of his worldly possessions. He's given away $1 million in royalties from his TV shows and commercials to a freedom from hunger agency. His swanky home and $500,000 yacht are gone. And so are his Emmys. He didn't give those away. He tossed them in the trash, for they, like all the other worldly symbols of material success, were responsible for nearly destroying his marriage, ruining his children an putting him in the devil's path.

But he's back in the fold now, living the simple life in a retreat near Vail, Colo., called Rejoice Fellowship where he, his wife Treena and children have dedicated themselves to helping divorcing couples restore their battered marriages.

So you won't be seeing Kerr on TV anymore, once the residual commercials and shows that netted him $2 million run out, if they run out. He doesn't cringe at the sight of his old "corrupt" self charming housewives on TV because he doesn't have a TV set anymore. Or telephone. Their life is humble and possessions poor. But Kerr isn't worried. Nor is his wife. "God will provide," she said.

He's through ego-tripping, womanizing, power-playing and all those wayward things of the flesh. He's not working for himself anymore. He's working for God.

"Halleluja," he says. "If it wasn't for Him, I'd be a cripple, an alcoholic, or worse, dead." And so would his wife Treena, formerly a drug-addicted, violent-tempered, cussing woman whose dramatic and sudden vision of Jesus when she was about to commit suicide 20 months ago started the whole thing. "Two months after Treena found Jesus, I had a revelation," he said. An arm that was partially paralyzed after an automobile accident was miraculously healed, and his marriage was saved. "It was the hand of God that did it," he said.

"Someplace in the Bible it says (roughly) 'My ways may seem foolish to the world.' And that's exactly what some people think about the miracle that took place with Treena and me," Kerr said gazing into his wife's violet eyes.

He is doing, he says, simply what he is being told to do.

By whom? "God, of course." God's messagers come to Kerr during prayer; clear messages that even tell him where to install the sump pump. "He tells me everything," said Kerr, standing in the courtyard of St. Vibiana's Cathedral in downtown Los Angeles.

He was told to set up three cottages that will house divorcing couples during their week-long prayer sessions for salvation, print a quarterly magazine from which funds will be used for their religious works and raise black raspberries that are high in fiber and low in calories to promote good nutrition for the clients of a neighboring restaurant.

He was also told to write a cookbook explaining his new-found love of God. It would explain his attitudes toward waste and conservation. It would inspire people to cook with love, save their money and their families, and increase nutrition, too.

The recipes for the most part are simple, everyday dishes, such as pan-fried steak, braised turkey breasts, candied oranges, vegetable casseroles, barbecued chicken, poached fish and such.

The emphasis is clearly on time and energy-saving recipes, and recipes that make the most of the food dollar and nutritional value. There is a recipe for making your own yogurt and, for the dieting individual, ways to cut calories (a reform salad dressing sounds good). Several chapters (albeit betwen exclamations of "hallelujas," "rejoice," "praise the lord") deal with ways of phasing out convenience foods and replacing them with fresh, natural foods that are "less expensive, better-tasting and better for you." There is a section on how to diet for permanent weight loss and creating a workable family food budget. There are numerous sketches showing meat and poultry cutting and carving techniques, crepe-making, omelet making and ways of getting several meals from one meat cut.

"I used to think nothing of telling people to waste food and their money and to feed their bodies with things that are bad for them," Kerr said. "Imagine telling a person who should be watching his cholesterol to eat fat and whipped cream by the cupful! People used to come up to me and say they thought my cannelloni recipe was the best ever. Of course it's the best ever. We got it from Pagpagallo's in Rome. But it also is 3,000 calories a bite."

Well, you won't find anything as tempting as Papagallo's cannelloni in Kerr's new book. But you will find "Playing Cards." Here's the recipe.

PLAYING CARD STEAKS

1 pound center-cut chuck, cut in 12 slices.
2 cloves garlic
1 teaspoon ginger
4 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon safflower oil
1 pound green noodles, cooked

Chill the meat in the freezer until firm (about 1 hour). Cutting across the grain, cut the piece in 2 equal cubes, about 3x2 inches, and slice each cube into 6 "playing card" slices. Crush garlic and combine with ginger and soy sauce. Brush marinade onto the steaks. Heat large skillet and add oil. Place meat slices in pan and fry briskly on both sides until browned. Drain and place noodles on a platter and arrange steaks around platter. Makes 4 servings.

Good allies: beans, apples

By Cecily Brownstone
AP Food Editor

There's a delicious sweet-andsour dish made with green beans and green apples. Favored by European cooks, in our opinion it should be better known on American tables.

We first tasted it about a dozen years ago at a supper given by an English friend. She told us it was her Dutch mother's recipe. Recently another friend who learned to cook from her Viennese mother gave us a similar recipe; hers adds onion to the bean and apple combination. After trying this version, we think it's as interesting as the Dutch recipe and are happy to pass it along.

APPLE SNAP BEANS

1 pound snap beans, tipped and cut into 1-inch lengths
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 medium onion, chopped medium-fine
2 medium green apples, pared and coarsely chopped
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon cider vinegar
1 and one-third cup clear and fat-free chicken broth
Salt to taste

Boil beans, covered, in a small amount of salted water until just tender-crisp — 7 to 10 minutes; drain. In a 10-inch skillet melt the butter; add onion and apple and cook gently, stirring often, until onion is softened and apple is cooked through — about 10 minutes. (The apple will probably be "mushy.") Stir in the flour; add the sugar and vinegar; gradually stir in the chicken broth; stir constantly over gentle heat until thickened and bubbling. Stir in beans and reheat, adding salt. Makes 6 servings.

Note: If you haven't homemade chicken broth to use in this recipe, you may substitute 1½ teaspoons chicken bouillon granules dissolved in 1 and one-thirds cup water.

FOOD QUESTIONS

By MINNIE BERNARDINO
The Los Angeles Times

My family is quite fond of bacon, ham and smoked sausage. If I buy these in great quantity, will they freeze well?

As a general rule, cured meats such as those mentioned have a shorter freezer storage life than fresh meats. For example, bacon, sliced ham, frankfurters and smoked sausage will keep well up to one month in the freezer but fresh pork can be frozen for three to six months.

Although the smoking process and the spices added to the meats that are cured retard rancidity, the presence of salt in great amounts also hastens the onset of rancidity. For longer freezer storage, keep bacon, frankfurters, etc., in their vacuum packages and overwrap with alunimum foil, plastic or freezer wrap.

Housing group okays appliance purchases

The Midland Housing Authority Wednesday approved the purchase of 101 ranges and 101 refrigerators for use in the city's $2 million housing project now under construction at Scharbauer Drive and Pecos Street.

Authority member Gene Abbott reported to the group that General Electric Co. of Midland and Sears Roebuck and Co. were studied to provide the needed equipment, but that GE could better meet the requirements of the housing authority.

The equipment would cost $29,581.55, Abbott said, a total somewhat less than the $35,350 budgeted for the ranges and refrigerators. All equipment purchased will be white, with the ranges to be delivered by Feb. 15, 1977, and the refrigerators by March 15, 1977.

In recommending GE over Sears as supplier of the equipment, Abbott said Sears could not supply the required size of ranges. He also said the price of service and parts would favor selection of GE. Housing authority members heard a report from Mike Butler, city community development coordinator, regarding the rehabilitation of homes to be financed with community development funds. Butler noted that, in the second year's community development application, the Midland City Council had set aside $160,000 for the rehabilitation of 100 homes in the city. Two different types of programs — one a loan type and the other a grant type — are available to the housing authority in this project, he added.

The loan type program would be low interest and payable back to the city; the grant type would be free to anyone qualifying, Butler said. Also, in using loan money, the family helped would have some control over the rehabilitation, while the grant situation has more control vested in the housing authority, Butler added.

Butler said the loan type program must have someone to collect the loans, but the grant program is more simple in that those who meet the qualifications would receive the funds.

He also noted that either program, or a combination of both, could be utilized.

Representatives of Casa De Amigos and the Human Relations Council attending the meeting said they felt more citizens would prefer the low interest loan type program in order not to receive something for nothing.

Housing authority chairman Harry Clark said the group is interested in the proposals and will leave the decision up to the city council on which method to take.

In other action, the housing authority:

— Heard a report by member Abbott, who noted the contractor in the city's housing project is proceeding on schedule;

— Delayed action on a report from secretary Fred Kester on possible procedures for naming the housing project, but noted a cite contest would be a good method.

— Delayed action on a report on a possible preventive health program to be conducted in the housing project's community room; and,

— Learned that the group's next session is its annual meeting, and two members — Joe Chavez and Smith Ray — are up for reappointment.

THIS IS THE MAN, defense minister Sangad Chalawyu, who seized power from the elected civilian government as the head of a National Reform Council in Bangkok, Thailand, Wednesday.

Dirks resigns position

WASHINGTON (AP) — The transcript of the congressional hearing didn't seem dramatic — but it did have one key element in common with fiction: it never took place.

Disclosure of the phantom hearings prompted the resignation Tuesday of Harley M. Dirks, staff head of the Senate appropriations subcommittee on labor and health, education and welfare headed by Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash.

A Magnuson aide said Dirks cited personal reasons for quitting, "but obviously it had to do with the so-called phony-hearing thing."

Columnist Jack Anderson disclosed several weeks ago that the printed record of a series of subcommittee hearings last winter on the proposed $56.1-billion budget for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare were faked — that the hearings were never held.

The 4,500 pages of transcript were actually based on written statements by witnesses and members of the subcommittee.

The text was sprinkled with remarks that made it seem hearings were actually held. At one point, for example, the transcript has Magnuson calling a subcommittee session to order and saying: "Our next witness will be Dr. Donald Tower of the National Institute of Neurological and Communicative Disorders and Stroke. That's a mouthful."

The transcript even supplies fake times. For example, at 11:45 a.m., Magnuson brings a morning session to a close, supposedly after a little more than an hour and a half, having heard about 35,000 words of testimony in that short amount of time.

Local parent group retains legal counsel

Americans for Quality Education, a Midland parents' group organized to expunge federal control from the public schools, has retained a Washington, D.C., constitutional lawyer to aid in its cause.

Don Young, chairman of the movement, said the group Tuesday night voted to hire George Leonard to prepare legal briefs. He said Leonard is a legal representative of the American Education Defense Fund.

The Midland group is opposed to the federal court-ordered integration of the city's elementary schools and to the impending "forced busing."

"We first have to get control of our schools back before we can do anything" about furthering quality education, Young said.

He said the federal government has "no business being in" the Midland Independent School District (MISD).

"The schools belong to the local people," he said.

Leonard, via a speakerphone, talked to about 50 parents gathered downtown Tuesday to organize their fight against court-ordered integration.

Young said Leonard indicated that the "federal court has no right under the constitution even to enter into the case." He explained that a ruling in 1968 determined that Midland's public schools were "unitary and fully integrated." So that issue, he said in effect, should have long since been settled.

Close at hand in aiding the constitutional law attorney will be Odessa attorneys Brooks Harman and his nephew Bill Harman, Young said.

Young said that the Americans for Quality Education represents "all areas of Midland, minorities included."

"We felt that the rights of all individuals were being usurped by the federal government (intervening in the business) of our school district."

Young said the movement, put together about six weeks ago, is an off-shoot of the thwarted Midland Council of Concerned Citizens.

"I would like to see them (Concerned Citizens) go and join forces with us, but not to lose their identity."

Lions honor White as top firefighter

Robert L. White, a fire equipment driver with the Midland Fire Department, Wednesday noon was named "Firefighter of the Year" at the meeting of the Midland Downtown Lions Club in Midland Hilton Inn.

He received two engraved plaques, one of which will hang in the lobby of the Central Fire Department, and a check for $100 awarded by the Lions Club. The presentations were made by President Morace Robb after the citation naming the first "Firefighter of the Year" had been read by John Berry, chairman of the club's Safety Committee.

The presentation highlighted the club's observance of "Fire Prevention Week."

The "Firefighter" project was launched by the Safety Committee last July. A "Firefighter of the Month" has been selected and recognized since that time, with the "Firefighter of the Year" selected from among that group of nominees.

It was announced that the program will be continued and that a "Firefighter of the Year" will be selected and honored on an annual basis.

White, who resides with his wife and four sons at 2404 Apperson St., presently is assigned to the crash station at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

The 38-year old honoree has been employed with the City of Midland Fire Department since Aug. 16, 1968.

A native of Van Nuys, Calif., he and his family moved to Midland in 1964. He is a four-year veteran of the U.S. Air Force.

He holds an associate degree in Applied Science from Midland College and is a State Certified Firefighter. He is working toward an associate degree in managent at Midland College. He previously worked for Atomica International as a firefighter dealing with radioactive material and has many hours of training in aircraft crash rescue.

White has served the Boy Scouts of America as a counselor in First Aid, Firemanship and Boating, and has worked with Midland Junior Baseball as an umpire. He also has served the American Red Cross as a first aid instructor.

He is a member of the Lee High School Dads' Club; Parent-Teacher Association, and Lee High Booster Club. He holds membership in the Permian Basin Rifle and Pistol Club and the Trapshooters Association, Trap and Skeet Club.

White is vice chairman of the Firemen's Relief and Retirement Board.

President to initiate state fair

DALLAS (AP) — President Ford will officially open the 91st annual Texas State Fair here Saturday with a ribbon-cutting ceremony and speech, fair president Robert Cullum has announced.

Special guests scheduled to be on hand for the opening of the 17-day exposition include Texas Gov. and Mrs. Dolph Briscoe and former Gov. and Mrs. John B. Connally.

Plans call for Ford to also watch the Texas-Oklahoma football game in the Cotton Bowl Saturday and attend church at the First Baptist Church before leaving Dallas Sunday.

'Scalping' to be allowed

DALLAS (AP) — If you plan to buy your way into the soldout Cotton Bowl for the TexasOklahoma football game Saturday, prepare to be "scalped."

Texas' law regulating ticket "scalping" has been repealed, opening the way for would-be ticket "scalpers" to have a field day.

"We have no legal tools for this sort of thing," said Dallas City Atty. Lee Holt.

He said that until last Jan. 1, state law required persons to purchase a license for $250 before they could sell tickets at a price above their printed face value. The law was repealed by the the 64th Texas Legislature.

Player's complaint falls on deaf ears

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A player who is dealt only one high card tends to complain about hard luck, for all the good it may do him. If he has misused that one high card, his complaints will fall on doubly deaf ears.

Opening lead — ♠ K

Declarer took the ace of spades and returned a low club from dummy. East played low, and South put in the seven.

West won with the jack of clubs, cashed the queen of spades and got out with a trump. Dummy's eight of trumps won, and declarer led another club from dummy.

This time East stepped up with the king of clubs, but it was too late. When East led a diamond, South stepped up with the ace of diamonds, correctly assuming that West held the king of diamonds for his takeout double.

SETS UP CLUBS

South next led a heart to the jack and ruffed a club, setting up dummy's suit. He returned to dummy with the ace of trumps to discard two diamonds on the last two clubs.

As you can imagine, East complained bitterly about being dealt only one king. It's not hard to imagine West's tone as he pointed out that East didn't deserve a king if he didn't know when to play it.

East must put up the king of clubs when the suit is first led. He returns a diamond immediately, and South must lose a diamond trick. This defeats the contract.

ANSWER: Bid 2 NT. This shows balanced distribution, strength in all unbid suits and 13 to 15 points in high cards.

CIA mute about Oswald trip

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Although it has declassified virtually its entire file on Lee Harvey Oswald, the CIA continues to maintain a curtain of secrecy over the accused assassin's trip to Mexico less than two months before President John F. Kennedy was killed.

Many of the deletions in the 2,400 ensored pages released last week under the Freedom of Information Act relate to Oswald's activities in Mexico City between Sept. 26 and Oct. 3, 1963.

For instance, a copy of a biographical sketch prepared by the CIA two weeks after the Nov. 22, 1963 Kennedy assassination is far more interesting for what it conceals than for what it reveals.

The 15-page document covers Oswald's life from birth to burial with no apparent deletions except for the events that occurred on Sept. 27-28 and Oct. 1, 1963. These events were removed completely from the document, but the column listing the origin of the information still remains. It appears as "sensitive CIA sources." Other source notations were not written in all-capital letters and do not carry the exclamation point.

The same biographical study was made public earlier this year but the entire page dealing with the events was left out, so there was no way to gauge the importance the CIA placed on the source of the information.

The Warren Commission, which concluded that Oswald was the lone assassin, said Oswald visited both the Soviet and Cuban embassies in Mexico City during his stay in the Mexican capital.

The CIA revealed later that Oswald probably contacted Valeriy V. Kostikov, a KGB agent who was operating under cover as a Soviet diplomat. The CIA said Kostikov was attached to the KGB department that handled kidnapings, assassinations and similar acts of political terror.

Critics of the Warren Commission have long raised questions about Oswald's Mexico trip. Some critics contend that an importer used Oswald's name at the Soviet and Cuban embassies, possibly as part of some as yet undisclosed conspiracy.

The imposter theory was fueled by a series of previously released CIA cables which indicate the agency incorrectly identified as Oswald a man who apparently visited the Soviet embassy at about the time Oswald was thought to have been there.

A CIA cable dated Oct. 10, 1963, and made public as part of the Warren Commission's report related that on Oct. 1 "a reliable and sensitive source in Mexico reported that an American male, who identified himself as Lee Oswald, contacted the Soviet embassy in Mexico City, inquiring whether the embassy had received any news concerning a telegram which had been sent to Washington." The cable described the man as "approximately 35 years old, with an athletic build, about six feet tall with a receding hairline."

Oswald was then 23 years old, 5 feet 10 inches tall and slender.

After the Kennedy assassination, according to the Warren report, the CIA sent to the FBI photographs of the man the agency apparently had mistaken for Oswald. The photo clearly shows a man about 35 years of age, about 6 feet tall with an athletic build and receding hairline. It certainly is not Oswald.

Last year, in response to a Freedom of Information Act proceeding, the CIA released to private assassination investigators Bernard Fensterwald and George O'Toole several photographs indicating that the same man had been photographed at least twice.

Photographs released with the latest batch of documents add to the speculation about possible imposters. In addition to the previously released photos, there are several new ones. In all, 11 photos were released showing the man in three different sets of casual clothing, indicating he was photographed by the CIA and identified as Oswald on at least three separate occasions.

It seems likely that the CIA's "reliable and sensitive source" was a combination of hidden cameras and electronic eavesdropping devices.

It is possible, of course, that the agency overheard someone on a hidden microphone identifying himself as Oswald and assumed that a photograph taken by a hidden camera about the same time was the same man.

It may be that the reason for the CIA's continuing secrecy about the Oswald trip is the agency's reluctance, even 13 years after the event, to admit that it had bugged the Soviet embassy. But the agency's reluctance to reveal the total record on the incident leaves two important questions unanswered: Did the man who was photographed also identify himself as Oswald? And, if so, why?

Thomas Mann, then U.S. ambassador to Mexico, attempted to launch an investigation of Oswald's activities in Mexico City following the assassination. But the State Department ordered him to call off the probe.

The CIA released the text of a cable first cited in a report earlier this year by the Senate Intelligence Committee warning that Mann was "pushing this case too hard."

The cable, drafted by Richard Helms, then a CIA deputy director, said Mann's probe "could well create a flap with Cubans which could have serious repercussions."

Mann said in a telephone interview at the time the Senate report was issued that he abandoned his investigation because he was told to do so by his superiors.

This printed receipt shows how the grocery item is named next to its price in Furr's scanner system readout. Also recorded are the price per pound of produce and the weight and cost of the produce purchased. The final items in the printout refer to bottle deposit and bottle refunds. The letters next to the price indicate whether the items can be bought with food stamps, if they are taxable and if it is a food item. After the tax, cash or check, and change lines, the number of trading stamps is computed. The last line tells the cashier's number, checkout lane and time of day.

A computerized scanning system that interprets those coded black lines on labels of many retail products is undergoing a testing and working use at a Furr's Super Market in Lubbock.

However, no immediate plans apparently have been made to install the checkout scanning system in any of the other Furr's grocery stores, including the two in Midland.

"I really don't know what the plans will be on that (checkout scanning in Midland)," a Furr's spokesman in Lubbock said Wednesday.

Furr's operates 72 grocery stores in Texas, New Mexico and Arizona.

In addition to allowing for the rapid checkout of grocery items, the electronic scanner system's prepares customers with printout tapes listing the prices and names of the items purchased. Prices of items are listed on shelve tags rather than stamped on the individual items.

The system was put into used at Furr's store at 50th and Boston streets last Sunday.

When and if the scanning system comes to Midland seems to be indefinite.

"All I know is that they are testing it in Lubbock," said Jimmy Allen, second assistant manager of the Furr's Super Market off North Big Spring Street in Midland.

"We're set up where we could convert to it with no trouble at all," Allen said.

Briton traces home life to job

The Manchester Guardian

LONDON — Husbands who think it's a good thing for their wives to work but don't lift a domestic finger to support them, are an all too familiar British phenomenon. So too are the teen-agers stricken with unyouthful inertia, clueless about the future. Now new research claims to pinpoint the source of the problem and with it the cause of Britain's economic decline. It is not just a question of female oppression and overwork, but the way in which husbands' lives are ordered at home.

Dan Miller, Professor of Psychology at Brunel University, has just completed a survey of how a man's working life affects his family and personality. Professor Miller has demonstrated that current ways of working are making British men — and possibly the economy too — unnaturally flaccid.

The trouble, Miller finds, is British bureaucracy. He has compared the home life of workers organized along bureaucratic lines, in which work and responsibility are split into the smallest possible units — in mass production lines and large-scale offices — with those still working in the fastdisappearing traditional entrepreneurial fashion. That doesn't just mean tophatted capitalists, but professional craftsmen, workers in small shops and factories, the self-employed, and people in autonomous small departments of bigger outfits.

Bureaucrats do one small job in the big organization, controlled by a long chain of authority, and have no responsibility for, and remain ignorant of, the rest. In entrepreneurial jobs there is very little authority, and one or two people, at however low the level, handle up to 45 different functions and take responsibility for them all. Both types of job, says Miller, have powerful effects on the personality.

The entrepreneurial job evokes responsibility, initiative and flexibility. Even minding a launderette demands the ability to take on a variety of different functions and observe when they need performing, and the initiative to see they are fulfilled — a degree of decision-making and autonomy. But, says Miller, display this degree of independence and initiative in a bureaucratic set-up and you become a troublemaker. Workers in bureaucracies learn to subdue their independence and initiative and to keep themselves within narrow limitations, always deferring to authority, never muscling in on anyone else's department.

Low automobile prices are really 'a steal'

The Los Angeles Times

ATLANTA — For sale: One truck and trailer-van carrying seven new Oldsmobiles and Chevrolets. Price for all: $940.

Also for sale: Brand new Cadillac and two sets of new radial tires. Price: $600.

At those prices, a buyer would have every reason to come away exclaiming, "What a steal!"

And "a steal" is just what it was to scores of undercover lawmen who made those purchases and countless others recently in metropolitan Atlanta and Savannah, Ga.

They bought $1.5 million in stolen merchandise for only about $64,000 in a five-month "fencing" operation so convincing that police once raided it by mistake.

Early Tuesday the operation ended with the arrests of a reported 74 suspects, most on theft and burglary charges.

Authorities said arrest warrants for 125 more suspects were expected, in what is regarded as the South's largest single crackdown on big-time theft.

"The dealers thought they were selling these items to other thieves, just to get rid of them fast and have a little money in their pockets, ' said Sgt. Roy Baker of the DeKalb County police department. "Instead, they sold them to police."

The project, financed by a grant of $100,000 from the Federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, was nicknamed "Operation Contact. Similar "fencing" operations have been employed by police in Washington, D.C., New York and Long Beach, Calif.

"This is an unprecedented example of coordination and cooperation among federal, state and local law-enforcement agencies in Georgia," Gov. George Busbee said Tuesday at a press conference inside an old red-brick warehouse where 1,451 stolen items were stored.

Reported among the recovered goods were 20 automobiles, two truck-and-trailer vans, numerous TV sets, CB radios, firearms and furniture — and soul singer Lou Rawl's concert sound equipment, worth $30,000.

The project is said to have required elaborate planning among police in Atlanta, DeKalb County (which embraces part of Atlanta and its affluent northeastern residential suburbs) and Savannah, in the Georgia Bureau of Investigation and in the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

But the cooperation nearly went away at one point.

One evening a few months ago, DeKalb County burglary detectives got a tip that armed men were observed inside a residence where stolen merchandise was stocked.

Led by three carloads of shotgun-armed colleagues, the detectives smashed open a door of the house, and the occupants quickly raised their hands.

Surprise! The occupants were not suspects but undercover agents — some fellow DeKalb County detectives.

The raid was a mistake that nearly exposed the operation, but raiders and agents hastily covered their blunder.

Lions learn about amublance service

The new ambulance service provided by the Midland Fire Department was described in detail by Fire Marshal James Roberts at the Wednesday noon meeting of the Midland Downtown Lions Club in the Midland Hilton.

The program was presented in connection with the observance of Fire Prevention Week

Roberts showed a series of slides to illustrate his talk, which concerned the operation of the new service, along with the training of personnel, modern equipment and scope of service.

Roberts said that since the Fire Department took over the ambulance service last June 1, a total of 573 calls have been answered in the city and 77 in the county, for an average of 5.4 calls a day. A base rate of $40 per call is made, he said.

He said that the service now is operating in a most satisfactory manner, but that it will be even better in the future.

Roberts also mentioned fire prevention, stressing the fact that it is the responsibility of everyone to practice fire prevention every day.

He said that Midland has recorded one death from fire so far this year. The average over a period of years is two per year.

Fire losses covered by insurance this year are in excess of $156,000, the marshal said.

Ector case loses appeal

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday dismissed the appeal of Cecil Earl Pigg from his conviction in Ector County on Aug. 23, 1974, of robbery by assault.

Pigg was assessed a 99-year sentence in the case.

The appeals court argued that it is without jurisdiction to hear the appeal since it is unclear whether Pigg's motion for a new trial was ever overuled by the trial court before his sentence was pronounced.

In its opinion, the appeals court said " . . . the record in the instant case is silent as to whether the trial court overruled the motion for a new trial prior to pronouncing sentence; and we find nothing in the record to . show that the motion for trial was withdrawn.

throughout the Bicentenial year of 1976

Convinced that the Church's first response to the many crises facing our Nation should be a spiritual one, a 'Summit Conference For Church Leaders' representing most major denominations and movements has issued a call for a Monthly Day of Prayer and Fasting for the Nation. The Conference urged the cooperation of all interested Christians in observing the first Friday of each month a day of repentance (II Chronicles 7:14), a day of fasting (which is a way to 'humble ourselves before God') and a day to make supplications, prayers, intercessions and t give thanks for all that are in authority (I Timothy 2:1-4 This day may be observed individually, in Bible study prayer groups, or in your Church or Fellowship to the e that 'our land' might be 'healed' according to scripture

Ex-governor's effort paid off

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Former Alabama Gov. James E. "Big Jim" Folsom visited the Alabama Institute for the Deaf and Blind, where he'll soon take up residence.

The former governor is legally blind, according to his son, Jack, who accompanied him.

George McFaden, director of the department for adult blind and deaf, said that after Folsom is admitted he will be trained in walking with a cane and taught daily living skills.

As governor, Folsom successfully backed a $2 million bond issue to build the institute in this east Alabama city.

Fire prevention week involves city's youth

Midland students became more aware of National Fire Prevention Week this week, as several of their fellow classmates were honored for winning the city's annual fire prevention poster contest.

The event is sponsored by the Independent Insurance Agents of Midland and the Midland Fire Department for students in first grade through high school.

The local contest was divided into four divisions with a $25 savings bond and trophy going to first place winners, a $15 award and ribbon going to second place winners and a $10 award and ribbon going to third place winners.

The winning posters will be entered in the State Fire Prevention Poster Contest.

Winners of the city contest, by division, include primary division (grades one through three) — Katy Butler, first, an Emerson first grader; Terry Hamilton, second, a Bonham third grader; and Mark Kappler, third, a Burnet third grader.

Winners in the intermediate division (grades four through six) include Ralph Sandoval, first, a Burnet sixth grader; Brian Hobbs, second, a West fifth grader; and Richard Allen, third, a Bowie fifth grader.

The junior high division (seventh and eighth grades) had Rob Watson winning first, a Goddard eighth grader; Kelly Patterson winning second, a San Jacinto seventh grader; and Jody Cox winning third, a Midland Christian seventh grader.

Winners in the high school division (grades nine through 12) were Laddy McMurry, first, a Midland Christian ninth grader; Joe Rubio, second, a Lee High School junior; and Bill Ezell, third, a Midland Christian ninth grader.

DEPUTY ASSISTANT AGRICULTURE SECRETARY James E. Bostic Jr. comes to the defense of former Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Portrait on wall behind him is of Abraham Lincoln.

Man owns immense collection

SAN VITO DEI NORMANNI AIR STATION, Italy (AP) — Twenty-five years ago, a youngster in Pine Bluff, Ark., traded a few of his metal toy soldiers for a handful of baseball cards. Today, Air Force T. Sgt. Dick Leech has amassed a collection of more than 65,000 cards.

"I bought cards for the first time in 1952," explains Leech, who has spent 13 of his 35 years in the Air Force. "Some of the players I remember in that first set of cards were Mickey Mantle, Stan Musial, Early Wynn, Milo Candini and Stan Jok."

It didn't take Leech long to devise a plan to quickly enlarge his collection. "I got in good with the local wholesale candy man," he recalls. "I often rode my bike to his store on the edge of town and returned home with a basket full of cards."

Leech is now a communications specialist at this small Air Force installation on the heel of Italy's boot. His collection is so immense that he was able to bring only 30,000 baseball cards with him on his assignment here.

An entire wall in the living room of the Leech home in Mesagne is hidden by the bookcase which houses his collection. Most cards remain in cardboard boxes, but he has placed his favorites, such as the 1951 Bowman Company series, in clear plastic covers in special notebooks.

"Cards have been distributed in a number of ways over the years," says Leech. "Nowadays, most cards come in bubble gum packs, and this is the way that most people have seen them. But baseball cards have also come with dog food, cereal, bread, various soft drinks, marbles and cookies."

While individual cards have changed little, series of cards have been greatly enlarged, Leech says. "Today, companies do as much as they can to increase the number of cards in a set. Up until the early '50s, they had a single picture of the player alone. Now they put in rookie cards, team cards and the outstanding players from the previous year. They even have cards on the all-time allstars, like Babe Ruth and Ty Cobb."

When it comes to cheering for a major league team, Leech is a St. Louis Cardinals fan. "When I was growing up in Arkansas in the '50s," he says, "the only games we could pick up on the radio were the Cardinals'. That part of the country was saturated with Cardinals broadcasts, so naturally I became a St. Louis fan."

During his Air Force career, Leech has traveled around the world. Wherever he goes, he takes his cards with him.

"No matter where I am," he says, "I can take out my collection and think about when I was a kid playing ball and trading cards. I always feel just like I'm in the States. I've never regretted trading away my toy soldiers."

Misinterpretation of decree leads to marijuana confusion

By JOANNE OMANG
The Washington Post

BOGOTA, Colombia — Marijuana is not legal in Colombia. Almost everyone thought it was going to be for awhile, and then when it wasn't legalized, even more people thought it had been.

The confusion, spread worldwide in news agency and magazine articles, has been a headache for drug law enforcement officials here. Top quality Colombian "red" marijuana is the center of a highly organized clandestine export industry linking isolated mountain valleys with the U.S. market in countless small planes and between the false hulls of an armada of small boats.

The trade is estimated at about 4,500 tons a year, or 10 times the amount confiscated by harassed agents of the F-2, the Colombian special drug unit. About 80 to 90 U.S. citizens, mostly young, are idling in Colombia jails awaiting trial on suspected drug offenses at any one time, more than in any other Latin American country except Mexico.

They are there because Colombian law for years made no distinction between marijuana and other drugs, providing two months to a year in jail for possession and three to 12 years for trafficking, without explaining the difference in the offenses. It was an attempt to change that law that caused all the confusion.

Minister of Justice Samuel Hoyos Arango became concerned last year about the growing trend toward marijuana decrimalization in the United States, according to sources who know his thinking.

"Why should a Colombian narcotics agent risk his life here to stop marijuana going out when smoking it only means someone will be fined $10 in the United States," he is said to have asked.

He visited U.S. officials to see whether decrimalization was working and whether it might help some Colombian courts that found 40 per cent of their cases related to drug offenses. He obtained copies of drug legislation in all 50 states and began talking of the possible benefits of decriminalization here. In early March, he announced that possession of up to one ounce of marijuana would soon be punished only by a fine and a trip to a rehabilitation center.

Smoking marijuana was too widepsread here to mean that everyone involved was a criminal, Hoyos said in a television interview. "Even schoolchildren can buy marijuana around the corner at the price of a pack of cigarettes," he said. He added that he was considering legalizing exporting the weed to countries where its consumption was legal.

"That would be a mortal blow to the traffickers who have converted this clandestine business into an endless fountain of money," he said.

The domestic reaction was thunderously negative. Most Colombians immediately assumed that decriminalization meant legalization. "I'm profoundly shocked," said Dr. Camilo Uribe, head of the Latin American Toxicologists Association.

"Marijuana is not an innocuous substance." The Catholic church, a powerful force in Colombia, condemned the plan. Rumors surfaced that cocaine, Colombia's other major drug export, would also be "legalized" for personalized doses.

Hoyos backed down. The decree signed April 12 changed nothing in the old law about penalties. It merely defined users for the first time as those who had one ounce (28 grams) of marijuana or 10 grams of hashish on them when arrested.

They would still be subject to up to one year in jail plus a fine of $30.

Other drugs and larger quantities still mean three to 12 years. But Playboy Magazine and the drug-culture "High Times" both published items saying Colombia had legalized possession of one ounce of marijuana.

"We wrote letters and sent out statements but I haven't seen any clarification," said an official involved in the control program.

The situation has counteracted the effects of previous press attention to the ongoing Colombian crackdown on drug use, according to one Colombian government official. Instead of continuing last year's decline, the number of arrests is holding steady.

EPA way of telling car size upsetting to some

The Los Angeles Times

The 1977 model cars carry a new fuel economy information label on their windows which is causing a controversy in the auto industry.

As in recent years, the Environmental Protection Agency requires that all 1977 cars carry a label which tells how well the model did in the EPA's gasoline mileage tests. In addition, however, the cars this year will also have to show the estimated annual cost of fuel to operate the vehicle and the range of fuel economy results for "comparable automobiles."

How the EPA decided what are "comparable" cars is the source of the industry controversy.

The auto makers traditionally have grouped cars by size according to their exterior length and wheel base. However, the EPA decided to rank cars according to interior roominess. The roominess is stated in cubic feet by multiplying the car's headroom by its leg room and shoulder room, and adding that to its trunk or cargo space.

The result is four basic groupings of cars — subcompact, compact, midsize and large — unlike any other groupings in the industry. Subcompacts by EPA standards, are any cars with less than 100 cubic feet of interior space, compacts are those in the 100-110 cubic feet range, midsize cars have 110 to 120 cubic feet and large cars have 120 or more cubic feet.

According to the EPA grouping, the Cadillac Eldorado — which was said to have 119 cubic feet of interior space — is a midsize car. The Pontiac Grand Prix (109 cubic feet) and Ford Thunderbird (109) are compacts. And the Ford Maverick (99) and Chevrolet Camaro (92) two cars traditionally thought of as compacts, are listed as subcompacts.

EPA defends its system as providing an objective means for consumers to compare one car with another according to the amount of space inside — which the agency thinks is what most car buyers care about most.

The groupings — and consequently the fuel economy information on the window labels — will work to the disadvantage of some cars which aren't usually thought of in the same category as smaller cars.

Trio has testified to grand jury about Scott, Gulf

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A law partner of Sen. Hugh Scott (R-Pa.) and two of Scott's Senate employes testified before a federal grand jury here last week, presumably in connection with allegations of Gulf Oil Corp. payments to Scott, sources said Tuesday.

In a deposition last November, Thomas D. Wright, a member of a Pittsburgh law firm that does work for Gulf, testified that two years earlier former Gulf lobbyist Claude C. Wild Jr., told him that the Scott firm received $20,000 a year from Gulf as a retainer for several years.

Wright also testified that Wild told him Scott was given $5,000 each spring and $5,000 each fall by Gulf for several years after the retainer ceased.

The Scott law partner who testified last week is David Maxwell of the Philadelphia law firm of Obermayer, Rebmann, Maxwell and Hippell.

The two employes are Elizabeth Dorsch, who works in Scott's Philadelphia Senate district office, and Patricia Mink, a secretary in Scott's Senate office here who handles many of his personal records.

Sources said all three testified last Thursday at the request of the Watergate special prosecutor, Charles Ruff, whose office has been investigating the alleged Gulf payments to politicians. The three appeared before a regular grand jury empaneled by the U.S. District Court here to look into violations of federal criminal law.

Scott, asked last week about the grand jury appearances of his aides and Maxwell, Scott said, "I have no comment. I have no slightest reason to believe that I have done anything wrong." Tuesday an aide to Scott, who is retiring as Senate minority leader, said the senator would have no further comment.

A committee of Gulf directors headed by John J. McCloy reported last December that Scott denied knowingly receiving corporate contributions from Gulf.

Scott repeatedly has denied that he took any money for his own use or that he accepted any money other than political contributions which he believed to be from private funds, rather than illegal corporate funds.

He told the Senate Ethics Committee in August that he had received approximately $45,000, of which $25,000 was passed on to a dozen other politicians including several senators for legal use in their political campaigns. The other $20,000 was used legally in his own campaigns, he told the Commitete.

Three weeks ago, the Ethics Commitete voted 5 to 1 to drop its investigation of Scott on grounds that it lacked any evidence that he had acted illegally.

Sources familiar with the special prosecutor's investigation said they believed that the three witnesses were asked if they knew anything about the alleged payments to Scott or about Scott's story to the Senate Ethics Commitee on what he did with the money.

Dorsch, contacted Tuesday in Philadelphia, said that she, Maxwell and Mink had appeared before a grand jury last Thursday. However, she declined to say what they had been questioned about.

Maxwell, reached by phone in Philadelphia, said he would make no comment. Mink, reached last Wednesday, first said, "Oh, yes," when asked about her upcoming grand jury appearance. Then, after leaving the phone for several minutes, she amended her statement to "I have no comment." She said Tuesday she had not been subpoenaed and declined to confirm or deny that she had testified.

Claude Wild was a lobbyist for Gulf from 1959 to 1973, a period when, according to reports and depositions filed by Gulf officials and attorneys, he helped channel some $5.4 million, part of it from corporate funds, to federal, state and local political candidates.

More than two dozen Senators and many House members were mentioned in the various depositions.

There is a six-year statute of limitations on any tax violations that might be alleged and a five-year statute of limitations on bribery.

So far, two convictions have resulted from the Gulf investigation.

Regional obstetric centers developing in nat

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — For mothers-to-be, a kind of "search out and save" program is spreading throughout the country.

It seeks to find women facing high risk of complications at birth and send them to the best-equipped and best-trained centers for delivery and postnatal care.

Ninety per cent of births are quite normal, uncomplicated events, specialists emphasize. But sudden emergencies can occur. Some women are at high risk because of diabetes, toxemia of pregnancy, or other conditions. Some didn't have good prenatal care, had poor diets, or were addicted to drugs or alcohol. Premature births can mean a fight to save the baby's life.

Saving such women from heartbreak or even death for their babies or themselves is the objective of regional development of obstetric care. It draws more meaning from the fact that 16 other countries have a lower infant death rate than the United States.

The concept calls for coordinating three "levels" of hospitals or centers within a region, or state. Each level would provide high quality care, but "the degree of complexity of patient needs determines where, and by whom, the care should be provided," says a report urging wider adoption of regional plans. A few states are already practicing it — Wisconsin, Mississippi, Arizona, Colorado and North Caronna.

Level One hospitals would provide service primarily for uncomplicated births, and be alert for earliest detection of high-risk cases. They also would provide competent emergency care.

Level Two units would be located in larger urban and suburban hospitals where the majority of deliveries occur. They would provide a full range of services for uncomplicated births and the majority of complicated ones.

Level Three units would receive the most complicated cases, and operate highly expensive intensive care units for mothers and infants.

A new report recommending widescale regional development, published by the National Foundation — March of Dimes, has come from a three-year study by a Committee on Perinatal Health. This committee was composed of representatives of the American Academy of Family Physicians, American Academy of Pediatrics, American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, and the American Medical Association.

Many studies indicate that death and sickness rates of mothers and babies can be reduced if high-risk women are found early, the report says.

A key to effective regionalization is moving high-risk women or babies to hospitals able to provide care they need, says Dr. [illegible] Henderson, acting director of the perinatal program in the south central region of Wisconsin. The state has had a regional program with the state divided into six areas for five years.

An aphorism among obstetricians is that "the uterus is the best transportation incurbator," Henderson says, and the ideal is to diagnose high-risk women early enough to take them to specialized centers. If premature labor threatens, a hospital is needed that has an intensive care unit for premature infants.

In Wisconsin, most women are taken by ambulance to a center with CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean and grain futures gained from 2 to nearly 6 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday.

Soybean meal was up $5 a ton but soybean oil prices were fractionally irregular. Iced broiler prices seesawed through most of the session and closed a fraction lower.

The soybean futures decline on the opening was led mostly by commercial interests and the local professionals. The government reported that soy oil stocks at the end of August stood at a record 1.3 billion pounds. Hedge selling also contributed to the decline.

At the close, wheat futures were 4 to 5¼ cents a bushel higher, December 2.96; soybeans were unchanged to 4 higher, November 6.49; oats were 2¼ to 3 higher, December 1.62¾, and corn was ½ to 2 higher, December 2.72¼.

Cotton

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 higher in midday dealings today.

Reports of rain in sections of the cotton belt which could be harmful to the crop prompted buying of futures contracts.

The average price for strict low middling 1 1-16-inch spot cotton advanced 26 points to 76.88 cents a pound Tuesday for the 10 leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Midday prices were 50 cents to $3 a bale higher than the previous close. Oct 81.00, Dec. 81.95, and March 82.80.

Waterfront in Boston rejuvenated

By EDWARD SCHUMACHER
Special to The Washington Post

BOSTON — If history runs in cycles, then Boston's waterfront has come full turn.

The same area that once spawned a revolution itself has become a revolution in urban renewal, and in so doing, has returned to its former glory — fittingly, by being returned to the city's people. The people are reveling.

During the warm noontime, Bostonians of all stripes come pouring in on foot from the stodgy financial district on one side, the modernistic government center on another, and the colorful Italian North End on the third. Upwards of 75,000 of them have been coming on Saturdays, many of them from the suburbs, to shop and stroll in the heart of the city they have neglected, but cannot abandon. Some surprise themselves and stay to live.

"Hey, this is going to be the second Paris," beamed busy Don Shapiro, surrounded by customers hand-picking choice fruits and vegetables from his new market stall in the area.

As the latest in a series of renewal projects started in the early 1960s by Boston's redevelopment director, Edward Logue, the full opening of the waterfront in recent months has instilled a new pride and rejuvenation in this city's downtown, one of the most livable major downtowns in the country.

Logue's secret, and that of his successor, Robert T. Kenney, is to develop on the human scale. The success of the waterfront rests on the two logical concepts that somehow seemed so bold 10 years ago when the bulldozers were poised to flatten what had become a decrepit district.

The first was to make the waterfront a neighborhood in which people live, shop, and entertain, giving it life 24 hours a day and tying it to the daily lives of Bostonians as a pure tourist development for historical restoration can never be.

The marvelous old granite wharf building sitting on harbor's edge and the surrounding brick buildings have been gutted, renovated and converted, usually into shops and restaurants on the ground floor and apartments and offices above. Most of the new construction is at one end and includes the New England Aquarium and Harbor Towers — two concrete, luxury high-rises that are cold in appearance, but give the tenants a breathtaking harbor view and the historically legitimate address of 65 East India Row.

The area had been shut off from the rest of the city by a monstrous green elevated highway built in the 1950s, but the redevelopment has opened the way down to the water, where an extremely well designed park has replaced some of the dilapidated warehouses. Once again, Boston is open to the sea.

The second concept was a renovation of one of the most fundamental and traditional centers of human pursuits, a market place.

"No, it's not a market place. It's the market place," corrects Cambridge architect Ben Thompson as he sits in a granite-walled cubby hole in the basement of his master renovation, the Quincy Market.

It and two flanking buildings were the central wholesale and retail market upon which Boston depended for over a century. In an unusual backward maneuver growing out of a controversial default by an earlier developer, architect Thompson picked super developer James Rouse of Columbia, Md., and their combined talents in 1973 won Rouse a 99-year lease and a $30 million renovation project.

Moreover, Rouse inherited $10 million in federal and city restoration work on what is probably the finest collection of Greek Revival architecture in the country.

The buildings were designed by Alexander Parris and completed in 1826 under the driving force of Mayor Joshiah Quincy in what ironically was the country's first large urban renewal project. The flanking North and South markets are still undergoing renovation, but the Quincy Market, the centerpiece, which has been shut for three years, reopened on Aug. 26, exactly 150 years after the original opening.

The copper dome, headed by Doric columns and topped by a Yankee bull weather vane, again chimes above the 535-feet-long and 50-feet-wide granite market building. The upper floor of the market is reserved for public events and meetings as in its earlier days.

Easy Yet Elegant Entertaining

The easy mode of summer living takes on a new zest with the brisk, crisp days of fall and winter and entertaining becomes more elegant. This dinner was designed to keep the best of both seasons— the ease and the elegance.

Teamed with easy-to-do rotisserie duckling are dishes made from the ingredients on the pantry shelf. The Rice Pilaf combines packaged rice and some well chosen herbs and broth, tossed with shredded Monterey Jack cheese. Frosty Salad Toss, convenient canned cling peaches tossed with crisp greens, is served with refreshing dairy-fresh blue cheese Frosty Salad Dressing, and dessert is a fast version of a fruit cobbler. Versatile fruit cocktail is topped with quick biscuits to make an elegant fruit cobbler that can wait, and all of this can be prepared while the duckling turns on the rotisserie.

Conveniently available in the freezers of the nation's supermarkets, duckling is elegant and certainly easy when roasted in this fashion. With the open hearth broiler-rotisserie, the duckling is self basting, the drippings drain off and there's no smoke or spatter. Only the tempting aroma escapes. The shelves of the same supermarkets are stocked with a plentiful supply of cling peaches canned as halves or slices, and there's economical variety of sizes to meet individual needs, as there is for fruit cocktail.

FROSTY SALAD TOSS

1 can (29 ounce) cling peach slices
1 bunch (about 1 pound) spinach
1 head Romaine lettuce
2 heads Bibb or butter lettuce
Frosty Salad Dressing

Drain peach slices, saving syrup. Refrigerate. Wash spinach leaves and remove from stems. Wash lettuce and tear into bite size pieces. Refrigerate until serving time, then toss salad greens and peach slices with Frosty Salad Dressing in chilled bowl. Makes 8 servings.

Frosty Salad Dressing

½ pint dairy sour cream
⅓ cup blue cheese
1 tablespoon crumbled bacon bits
4 tablespoons salad oil
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup peach syrup

Combine all ingredients in bowl or jar and mix well. Chill.

RICE PILAF

6 tablespoons butter
1 large onion, chopped
½ pound mushrooms, sliced or 1 can (8 ounce) sliced mushrooms, drained
1 cup uncooked rice, not instant
2 cups chicken broth
1 teaspoon salt
1 large tomato, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
1 cup shredded Monterey Jack cheese

In 10-½-inch fry pan melt 4 tablespoons of the butter over medium heat. Saute onion and mushrooms for 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove onion and mushroom mixture to bowl. To fry pan add remaining 2 tablespoons butter and melt over medium heat. Add rice and cook until lightly browned, stirring occasionally, 5 to 10 minutes. Add onion mixture, chicken broth and salt; continue cooking, covered, for 12 minutes. Remove cover; stir in tomato, green pepper and cheese and cook about 10 minutes longer or until rice is tender. Makes 8 servings.

ROTISSERIE DUCKLING

1 (4 to 6 pound) duckling, defrosted
1-½ tablespoons seasoned salt
1-½ teaspoons ground thyme
1-½ teaspoons rosemary leaves, crushed
Dash pepper
6 sprigs parsley
1 onion, cut in half.

Preheat open hearth broiler-rotisserie. Mix together salt, thyme, rosemary and pepper. Sprinkle half of mixture in duckling cavity, then add parsley and onion. Insert spit through duckling so that both pronged are tightly inserted; tighten screws. Balance duckling on spit, tie legs together and make sure string holds neck firmly in back and wings to body. Place spit on spit supports. Adjust supports so duckling is as close as possible to heating element without touching it.

Attach motor and turn on. Rub remaining salt mixture over skin of duckling. Roast about 2-½ hours or until drumstick is fork tender. Makes 4 servings.

NOTE: To cook 2(3-½ to 4 lb.) ducklings double ingredients. Place ducklings on spit so legs of first duckling overlap onto breast of second duckling and vice versa. The ducklings can be no longer than 12 inches. Tie them to spit securely. Cook 2-½ to 3 hours or until done. The last 15 to 30 minutes of cooking, prick duckling around thighs to make sure all drippings have been released. Makes 8 servings.

Freeze-ahead dish saves time, money

Whether you're seeking fuss-free for quick lunches and suppers, looking ahead to winter sports weekends, or simply wishing to take advantage of quantity specials at the meat counter, this freeze-ahead recipe may be the answer. Calling for five pounds of ground beef, easy-to-make Beef Scramble offers a welcome alternative to the usual frozen patties.

Prepared in quantity and frozen, this basic ground beef mixture is delicious as is for hearty hot sandwiches. It also can provide the makings for a variety of filling casseroles or a zesty sauce for your favorite pasta. And it's ideal to take along in the portable cooler for Saturday supper on family ski weekends.

Properly packaged and stored at zero temperature, Beef Scramble keeps well for up to three months, though chances are your family will have gobbled it down long before that.

For economy as well as convenience, freezing the basic recipe in pint-size containers using more than one for company or extra hearty appetites is suggested. With boilable plastic containers there's no need to cool the mixture before packaging. Filled containers should be quick-chilled in iced or very cold water, however, before they're placed in the freezer.

To freeze the entire recipe, you'll need six clean containers — either the square upright style with press-on lids or the 17 ounce jars with twist-lock tops. Both types will let you thaw and reheat contents by just removing the cover and placing the container in a pan of boiling water, or in a microwave oven. Stir occasionally while heating.

FREEZE-AHEAD BEEF SCRAMBLE

5 pounds lean ground beef
2 cups chopped onion
2 tablespoons shortening
¼ cup flour
4 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons chili powder
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 cans (10-¾ ounces each) tomato soup
1 cup water
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce

Melt shortening in dutch oven, then saute beef and onion until meat is crumbly. Add flour, salt, chili powder, and pepper; stir to mix thoroughly. Add tomato soup, water, and Worcestershire sauce; stir to blend. Cover; simmer about 20 minutes or until meat is done. Fill Freezettes to within ¾ inch of top; cover snugly; quick-chill in iced or cold water before labeling and freezing. Yield: 6 pints.

Serving Ideas

Tempting Beef Scramble-burgers, pictured here, are as simple as heating the basic mixture in its own container and spooning it onto warm buns. For company flair, serve it steaming-hot in a chafing dish with toasted buns in a basket. If desired, spice with more chili powder.

For quick spaghetti sauce, just combine a pint of Beef Scramble with tomato sauce and simmer for a short time before serving. Add oregano or other seasonings to taste as the sauce simmers.

QUICKIE FRUIT COBBLER

1 can (30 ounce) fruit cocktail
½ cup brown sugar, packed
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
4 teaspoons cornstarch
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
12 unbaked biscuits
Sour cream
Melted butter
Whipped cream

Drain fruit cocktail syrup into saucepan. Add brown sugar, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg; bring to boil. Combine cornstarch with water; stir into boiling syrup with lemon juice. Cook, stirring until thickened; add fruit cocktail. Heat through. Cut 12 biscuits from prepared biscuit mix using sour cream instead of milk. Turn fruit cocktail mixture into 9-inch baking pan. Dip biscuits in melted butter and place on top of fruit mixture. Bake in 425 degree F. oven 12 to 15 minutes until biscuits are done. Serve with whipped cream. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Commissioner delcares U.S. on Arab 'yo-yo'

By RICK SCOTT

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Texas Railroad Commissioner Mack Wallace says the energy shortage has left America on "an Arab yo-yo" and that the country can no longer control its own foreign policy.

"The scandal we face in the United States today is the scandal of foreign oil dependence," Wallace told a banquet of the Interstate Mining Compact Commission (IMCC) here Wednesday night.

Wallace was the stand-in speaker for Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who was unable to attend because of an upset stomach, officials said.

Wallace said the United States "was sold a bill of goods. We became dependent on cheap foreign oil." He said the nation is more dependent on foreign oil now than before the Arab oil embargo in 1973-74.

Wallace noted that Texas producers have been operating at 100 per cent efficiency levels for the past several years.

He blamed "level after level" of federal bureaucracy for stifling energy development. "We have more inspectors than we have doers," he said.

"We need a bi-partisan energy policy which will serve the nation as a whole. If we don't have one, you won't be able to recognize this country in five years. There will be confrontation with the Russians," Wallace added.

In an interview earlier, Wallace said the proposed federal Surface Mining Control Act "won't do anything but hinder the production of energy."

"Our problem is not more rules and regulations. We need energy," he said.

The proposed federal law has been a source of controversy at the IMCC fall meeting.

The organization's executive committee Wednesday called on the Republican and Democratic presidential candidates to promise "an orderly and rational" regulation of the nation's mining industries.

Delegates from 12 states are attending the meeting. IMCC was formed in 1964 by state and federal legislative and administrative officials, mining industry representatives and conservationists. It is headquartered in Lexington, Ky. Governors of the member states are commissioners.

WORKMAN RIGS UP huge oil field pumping unit at the Permian Basin Oil Show grounds in Odessa. The pump will be one of the many exhibits during the show which opens Oct. 20. Jay Alvey of Odessa, executive director of the show, said this years event will be the largest in the history of the biennial exposition, with all exhibit space long sold out.

Wildcat show crude; well finals, test set

An Eddy field gained a confirmation, an outpost was staked in another field, and a Lea wildcat recovered oil on a drillstem test.

Gulf Oil Corp. intends to drill No. 1-3 White City Penn Gas Communitized as a ⅞-mile south outpost to the nearest Morrow well in the White City field of Eddy County.

Location is 2,310 feet from north and west lines of section 28-24s-26e, 2½ miles southwest of Black River. Planned depth is 11,600 feet.

The field currently has five Morrow wells.

Perry R. Bass, Midland, has finaled No. 49 Big Eddy Unit as the second producer in the Indian Flats (Delaware) field of Eddy County, N.M.

It is ⅜ mile southwest of the No. 47 Big Eddy Unit, which is the Delaware oil discovery.

It potentialed pumping 37 barrels of 40.2-gravity oil and 40 barrels of water per day, through perforations at 3,655-3,677 feet, which had been fractured with 10,000 gallons and 15,500 pounds. Gas-oil ratio was 205-1.

Wellsite is 1,650 feet from south and 330 feet from west lines of section 35-21s-28e, 10 miles east of Carlsbad.

The discovery finaled last April for 61 barrels of 41-gravity oil daily, plus 35 barrels of water, through perforations at 3,548-3,557 feet.

Harvey E. Yates Co., Inc., Artesia, No. 1 South Maljamar Deep, Lea County wildcat reentry, four miles southwest of Maljamar, reversed out 15 barrels of oil and 15 barrels of water on a drillstem test in the Abo.

Tool was open two hours on the test taken from 8,955-8,995 feet.

Slated as a deepening operation to 12,500 feet, drilling continued below 9,485 feet.

It originally was drilled by Ashmun & Hilliard as No. 1-30 Carper Deep, and it was plugged and abandoned in 1964 at 8,176 feet.

Location is 330 feet from south and 1,650 feet from east lines of section 30-17s-32e, on the south side of the Baish field.

Irion pools consolidated

AUSTIN — Consolidation of two oil fields in Irion County has been authorized by the Railroad Commission of Texas.

The commission acted on application of Energy Reserves Group, Inc., of Midland which requested consolidation of the Sugg, North (Clear Fork) field into the Spraberry Trend Area field.

Testimony presented by the applicant indicated that consolidation of the fields would enhance the economics of future development and drilling in the Suggs, North area, where present production is marginal.

Dual completions in a single well bore now cost approximately $360,000, the applicant advised the commission. Consolidation of the fields, with the application of Spraberry field rules, would drop such costs to about $270,000.

Coquina Oil may be sold

St. Joe Minerals Corp. of New York and Coquina Oil Corp. of Midland today announced an agreement in principal for the acquisition of Coquina by St. Joe through a tax free exchange of common stock.

The transaction is subject to satisfactory resolution of corporate and tax questions which may make it difficult for St. Joe to acquire all of Coquina's shares.

It is contemplated that St. Joe would issue .555 shares of its common stock for each outstanding share of Coquina common stock, Pomeroy Smith chief executive officer of Coquina, said.

The transaction must be approved by the board of trustees of St. Joe and the Coquina board and shareholders.

Extender potentials

Lario Oil & Gas Co. No. 2 Brumley has been completed as the third well and location north extension to the Tonto, North (Strawn) field of Scurry County.

Wellsite is 517 feet from south and 670 feet from east lines of section 446, block 97, H&TC survey, six miles northeast of Snyder.

Seaway line begins fill

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. — Seaway Pipeline, Inc., today announced starting the initial fill of a new 510-mile crude pipeline from Freeport, Tex., to Cushing.

The filling operation will require 30 to 40 days before actual operations can commence.

The pipeline system is designed to move imported crude from the Texas Gulf Coast to Midwest refineries.

The Seaway line also will provide oil to connecting lines at Cushing which branch out to other parts of the country.

Initial capacity of the line is 350,000 barrels daily. With the addition of six pump stations later, capacity of the line will be increased to about 600,000 barrels daily, the company said.

Seaway is putting finishing touches on three new tanker berths at Freeport, a storage terminal seven miles west of Freeport and storage and delivery facilities at Cushing.

SLB leases 373 tracts

AUSTIN — The School Land Board leased 373 tracts Tuesday for oil and gas exploration, netting the Permanent School Fund $35.2 million, second highest total in history.

Leases totaled 282,723 acres. High bid was $3.1 million by Cities Service Oil Co. on a tract in the Gulf of Mexico.

Royalty will be one-fifth if production results from a lease.

Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong said all the leases require that pollution of offshore waters be avoided during drilling and production.

"We thought there would be some interest, but this exceeded all our expectations. It shows that you can attract bidders who will produce the oil and gas while maintaining environmental standards," he said.

Inquiry coming in worm case

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — An investigation was promised today in the death of a 70-yearold San Antonio woman from a screwworm infestation.

Bexar County Hospital authorities reported Wednesday night that Bertha Gimbel died from that cause last Friday. They gave no explanation for the delay in releasing the information.

"I don't know what happened," said the Metropolitan Health department director, Dr. Kurand Rothe, "but I intend to find out."

4-H week going on in city

This week the 505 4-H members in Midland County are participating in 4-H Week.

The theme of this year's 4-H Week is "Room to Grow."

There are eight organized 4-H clubs working in the county to provide 4-H youths room to grow. Four clubs work in all areas of 4-H including livestock, which includes beef, lamb and swine as well as foods, nutrition and clothing. These clubs and their presidents are as follows: Green Acres, Lee Schweitzer; Green Valley, Paul Folger; Cotton Flat, Pam McCain, and Sandy Land, Clem Cathey.

Of the three girls' clubs, Kim Storey heads Sunshine Makers, a home economics club, and Kathy Knox is president of Girls' Wool and Sirloin Club, which deals mainly with livestock projects. High Sky Girls' Club, headed by Lindy Wadley, also is primarily a livestock project.

Steve Thompson is president of the Horse Club.

Members now are organizing a foods project for the Christmas holidays. District competition will be conducted in December.

Youths learn clothing construction in projects held each spring. Other projects held throughout the year include rifle safety, photography and citizenship. Special projects due to start soon are recreation, veterinary sciences, small engines and home environment and design.

Livestock projects usually are year-round events. 4-Hers participated in grass judging, horse judging, livestock judging and methods demonstrations at county, district and state levels.

Interested persons may obtain more information on the Midland County 4-H Clubs through the Midland County Extension Agents.

New rules would fix Texas jails

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — All but a handful of Texas counties will have to upgrade their jails under rules being considered by the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.

A commission subcommittee has endorsed conjugal visits but the commission did not include them among the proposed requirements at its Wednesday meeting.

The standards drafted by a commission subcommittee would require sheriffs to write out detailed plans on separation of types of prisoners, sanitation, discipline, work assignments and rehabilitation and education.

The commission hopes to adopt its rules by the first of the year, according to Steve Suttle of Abilene, one of nine members of the new commission.

Despite the paperwork that would be required, Suttle says sheriffs support the commission's work. Many of them have pleaded in vain with county commissioners' courts for money to modernize jails, he said.

Only five or six of the county jails in Texas would be in compliance with the proposed standards, Suttle said. The others would have to apply for a variance pending completion of required work.

If a variance is denied, a county could appeal to a state district court in Austin but would have to prove the commission's decision was not supported by the evidence before it.

The commission could close the jail of a county that simply refused to make the necessary improvements, transfer its prisoners to another county's jail and charge the expense to the offending county.

Suttle said Texas is breaking new ground. No other state has more than a couple of pages of law on jail standards, he said.

Among the proposed rules being considered by the commission are ones calling for:

—Conjugal visits.

—Forbidding assignments of work to one inmate by another inmate.

—Visual observation of each inmate at least once every hour around the clock.

—Granting each prisoner the right to testify and present witnesses to the sheriff prior to the imposition of disciplinary measures.

—Forbidding corporal punishment.

—Make showers available at least once every two days, and for those on work assignments or making court appearances, once a day.

—Granting women prisoners access to hair styling equipment and other grooming accessories.

The 12-year-old actress, daughter of movie star Ryan O'Neal, won an Oscar for her debut performance in "Paper Moon." Her second film was "Bad News Bears" with Walter Matthau.

NEW NEW YORK (AP) Madeline McWhinney, first president of the First Women's Bank here, has joined New York University's Faculty of Business Administration as a visiting lecturer for the fall semester.

Before becoming the first president of the Women's Bank she was the first woman officer of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — As Googie Gomez might well remark, Rita Moreno's career has had more oops and downs than a jo-jo.

The Googie character was born in an off moment during the dance rehearsals for the movie version of "West Side Story" in 1961. She sang "I Had a Drim" in an almost incomprehensible Spanish accent, as if auditioning for a bus and truck touring company of "Gypsy." After a series of happy coincidences she went public in "The Ritz" on Broadway a couple of years ago, causing an upward run of the jo-jo and a fresh outbreak of stardom for her creator.

And now Ms. Moreno returns to Hollywood in sweet triumph as the same spectacularly off-key Googie in Richard Lester's filming of "The Ritz."

She came to Hollywood first at 17 in 1949 as an MGM contract player, already an experienced performer who had done a short-lived play on Broadway with Eli Wallach when she was 13.

For a long time it looked as if she were going to be irrevocably cast as barefoot exotics ("Pagan Love Song") or Latin spitfires ("The Fabulous Senorita," et al) and she got more attention in news stories than in reviews. She had had 10 fairly demoralizing years in town before she won her Oscar as Anita in "West Side Story."

But the triumph changed nothing and six months later she quit Hollywood in a mixture of despair and disgust, to try her alternate fortunes back in the theater. It was 1969 before she revised her old surroundings, talking about her brief but effective roles as a junkie opposte Marlon Brando in Hubert Cornfield's strange, failed movie "The Night of the Following Day" and as Alan Arkin's Puerto Rican girl friend in "Popi."

ENTERTAINMENT

It was becoming clearer that inside the stereotyped spitfire of all the corny roles was a fine actress waiting to be heard. By then she had married Leonard Gordon, a Manhattan internist, and had had a daughter, Fernanda, who is now 10.

She was also then keeping continuously and adventurously busy on stage, touring in "The Rose Tattoo" and, she says, "playing dotty Victorian ladies, doing farce, doing anything to stretch." She starred opposite James Coco in "Last of the Red Hot Lovers," did "The National Health" at the Long Wharf in New Haven and won an award for her performance.

There has been no tug to return to Hollywood, but now there may be. She has made two pilots for ABC, one involving the Googie Gomez character, somewhat transposed into Rosa Dolores who is receptionist for a Beverly Hills hypno-therapist ("eepno-shreenk," she calls him, Ms. Moreno says).

The actress was born Rosita Dolores Alverio in Humacao, Puerto Rico, so the name on the pilot show is very close to home. "It's a thumb of the nose to all those terrible spitfire parts with the flaring nostrils," she says.

The Googie character is that and more. A thumb of the nostril, as she says, to "all the idiots who wrote all those idiot parts." But out of observable life, Googie is also more than all the poor versions of Carmen Miranda or Lupe Velez, "She's all the bad singers I ever heard or you ever heard, and she's all the show biz hopefuls who'll never make it but who'll never stop trying. All her days she'll be flashing in back of someone else's performances."

The engendering of "The Ritz" is one of those upbeat stories that keep show biz going. She had been doing the off-key spitfire as a party piece for years and "Do her, Rita, please," had come to be a common late evening cry.

MCT's 'Washington!' nears world premiere

Charles Dixon, foreground, who portrays Gen. George Washington in Midland Community Theatre's new play, "Washington," reviews a script change with the playwright, Barrie Stavia.

The curtain goes up a week from tonight on Midland Community Theatre's special Bicentennial production, "Washington," and the Theatre Centre box office has opened to accept seat reservations from MCT members for all performances of the new play.

The box office will open to the public Friday morning.

"Washington," a fresh and dynamic dramatization of the man known far and wide as the Father of His Country, and of the conflicts and turmoil that swirled around him in the crucial years during and following the nation's struggle for independence, is from the pen of noted American playwright Barrie Stavis. His earlier play, "Lamp At Midnight," dealing with another man of destiny, Galileo, had performances at MCT in 1972.

Stavis was commissioned to write "Washington" expressly for the Midland theater, and the Oct. 14 through 30 run will be, in effect, the world premiere of the new drama. The new play was underwritten by a grant from The First National Bank of Midland as one of its special Bicentennial-year projects.

Stavis is temporarily in residence here during rehearsals of his new stage work, and he will remain in Midland through part of the play's run. The production is staged and directed by Art Cole.

Heading the cast of almost 30 (who will be portraying a total of 60 or more characters) is veteran MCT actor Charles Dixon in the title role.

Following its opening at 7:30 p.m. next Thursday, "Washington" will have presentations at 8:30 Friday and Saturday, and additional performances at 8:30 p.m. Oct. 22 and 23 and 29 and 30. A matinee is acheduled Sunday, Oct. 24.

For Thuraday's opening performance and the Oct. 24 matinee, a special student ticket price of $1 will be in effect. In addition, groups of students attending in a block may have the special $1 ticket rate for any performance. Additional information is available from the Theatre Centre box office, 682-2544.

It's a 'weird, funny show'

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A nutty new sort-of-variety series is afoot these days — "The Lohman and Barkley." Not "The Lohman and Barkley and Dawn Rainbow Hour." Just "The Lohman and Barkley."

Alas, only a handful of cities now air this syndicated series. But if your part of the handful carries it, drop everything and watch it on a weekly basis so as to keep your mind in shape.

It is a weird, funny show. It began here Aug. 22. Among other things, it featured The Swiss Family Door Slammers and a recipe for Duck a L'Orange: a pot of water, a duck, an orange and an iron.

It stars two Iowans, Al Lohman of Storm Lake and Roger Barkley of Odebolt.

Sometimes on that show they play records. Other times, they do things like promise around the world trips to everyone in the audience, or run a soap opera they call "Light of My Life," winner of the Heisman Trophy." There are a lot of those other times.

When I first saw their TV show, it initially seemed just another Merv Griffin imitation. The stars sat in upholstered chairs and talked with their guest, Martha Raye. She giggled, then sang.

Then she got serious. She spoke of a new avant-garde movie she'd just made with a French genius. Said it was full of symbolism and marked a new artistic direction in her career.

Her hosts nodded gravely. They ran the film. It indeed appeared made by a French genius. That is, until a symbolic gorilla popped out of the bushes and chased Miss Raye around.

It's no-holiday

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Sunday is just another day now in Thurston County. An ordinance adopted this week abolished Sunday as a legal holiday.

A spokesman explained if it hadn't taken the action, the county would have had to pay overtime to sheriff's deputies and firemen who work Sunday as part of their regular weekly schedules.

The issue came up when the state forwarded a list of legal holidays to cities and counties. Sunday was included. That's when the towns of Tumwater and Lacey decided to ignore it.

Thurston County commissioners, wanting to make everything legal, passed a measure making Sunday just another day of the week.

ITALIAN SKATING STAR Anna Galmarini will be among featured performers when the Ice Capades opens tonight in Odessa's Ector County Coliseum. The popular and colorful family show will have performances through Tuesday.

New play sure cure for colds

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Nudity may not be a cure for the common cold — but it can provide temporary relief from the sniffles.

At least, that's what officials at the University of Iowa deduced after a performance of the award-winning play, "Equus."

Much of the play was punctuated by the audience's hacking, sneezing and coughing that one official termed "rude, inconsiderate and unthinking."

But then Ellen Parker, who played the seductress, and Bill Barrett, who played a mentally disturbed stable boy, took off their clothes.

Don't attempt to sell this guy on progress

EASTON, Mass. (AP) — Wilford H. Woodworth was so angry with the New England Telephone Co.'s idea of progress he wrote the utility a letter on a typewriter, holding a stick between his teeth to punch the keys.

"Am I angry? You bet," wrote Woodworth, 35, paralyzed from the neck down by polio since he was 14.

His complaint was that the progress would deny him the special telephone service he needs by automating away the nearby Brockton telephone operators — the friends who have made his calls the past 10 years.

Woodworth, who is chairman of the Easton School Commmittee and attends its meetings in a wheelchair, said his old telephone had a special toggle switch, which he operated with the stick in his mouth.

"A light would go on at the Brockton switchboard that told the operator I was a special service customer — something, by the way, we pay extra for — and in less than 30 seconds the operator would put me in touch with the person I was calling," he said.

But now, the toggle switch only gives him a dial tone. He then must push another button.

"When the button is pushed, I get an operator from all over the place, including Lowell. There's no way the operator knows what kind of phone I have," he said in an interview with the Brockton Enterprise.

"When I get an operator unknown to me like this, I have to go through a question-and-answer period. The operator wants to know why I didn't dial the number. I say, 'I have a special phone.' She says, 'What kind of a special phone?'

"And there I'm stuck with having to give her a synopsis of my life's history. It's a real hassle."

One telephone company representative told Woodworth the change would be an improvement. But Thomas Whelan, coordinator of special needs for the telephone company, said this was not exactly correct.

"He should never have been told the new system would be better for him. We are not trying to 'sell' the new system to people like him.

"As we improve technology, we lose the personal touch. That is what happened in this case," said Whelan, explaining that the duties of the Brockton operators would be taken over by operators in other centers around the state.

Oklahoma gets nod over Texas Saturday

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Hey, Darrell Royal, who's going to win Saturday's Texas-Oklahoma game?

"I don't have any predictions on the outcome," says the Texas coach.

Hey, Barry Switzer, who's going to win Saturday's Oklahoma-Texas game?

"It'll probably be a toss-up," says the Oklahoma coach.

I mean, how's a forecaster supposed to pick a winner if the coaches can't offer any more help than that?

MATT CAVANAUGH, University of Pittsburgh quarterback, has been named Back of the Week by the Associated Press for his performance in game with Duke University last weekend. Cavanugh hit 14 of 17 passes for 339 yards and a school record of five touchdowns to lead Panthers to 44-31 victory over the Blue Devils.

One method might be to consult the standard—and very often reliable—signs.

Was Texas really "up" last week for Rice? Unlikely, despite a 42-15 romp.

Might the Longhorns be looking ahead to Southern Methodist? Are you kidding?

Was Oklahoma "up" for Iowa State last week? Iowa State?

Will the Sooners be honing their spurs for Kansas next week?

Yes! Yes! A thousand times yes! Last year's Kansas game—KU 23, OU 3—is the only one Oklahoma's lost in four years.

Unfortunately, the one thing wrong with this theory is that it's virtually impossible for either side to look past the other in the Texas-Oklahoma game. Call it the War of the Wishbones, the Red River Riot or whatever you want to call it, it's one of college football's classic rivalries.

And this corner calls it...Oklahoma 16-14.

Last week's score of 56 right, 13 wrong and one tie for a per centage of .812 silenced some of the disgruntled alumni. The season count is 192-77-5—.714.

Michigan State at Michigan: Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler says sports writers should be "homers,"—i.e., they should be fans of the teams they're assigned to cover and should write positively about them. "If I'm a writer and I'm following Michigan, I am Michigan," he says. No "homers" necessary this week, Bo, despite the bitter intrastate rivalry...Michigan 42-7.

Georgia at Mississippi: You won't find Bear Bryant anywhere near this one. Not only does Alabama have a game of its own, but both of these clubs have beaten the Bear this season. Ole Miss did it for openers 10-7, Georgia last week 21-0. On the theory that Ole Miss was looking ahead when it got bumped off by Auburn and Georgia was sky-high for Alabama, here's the Upset Special of the Week...Mississippi 21-17.

Stanford at UCLA: "You should always play per centage football," says UCLA Coach Terry Donahue, explaining why the Bruins punted on fourthand-one from the Ohio State 43 with less than four minutes to play last week and settled for a 10-10 tie. The vital signs point to a Stanford upset but the per centage says...UCLA 31-17.

Nebraska at Colorado: Colorado took a 7-0 lead in last year's meeting but the game wasn't as close as the score would indicate. It wound up Nebraska 63-21, and that wasn't as close as the score would indicate, either, since the Huskers led at one point 63-7. Neither team was impressive last week. Both should be on the ball this week, especially...Nebraska 28-20.

Maryland at North Carolina State: The records say the Terrapins should play ten pins with the Wolfpack, but records don't mean anything in this Atlantic Coast Conference biggie...Maryland 29-25.

Kansas at Oklahoma State: The Cowboys' next five games are with Kansas, Colorado, Oklahoma, Missouri and Nebraska. Talk about living Earl Butz lived dangerously. A hunch says this could be the Second Upset Special...Oklahoma State 24-21.

Texas Tech at Texas A&M: Tech could be the surprise team of the Southwest Conference...if they ever play a game. The Red Raiders have had two weeks off already this season with only two games under their belt. Better they should take this week off, too...Texas A&M 21-14.

Army at Penn State: "We're 1-3, I don't know how else to put it," says Joe Paterno, trying to explain Penn State's subpar record. "We can't wear people down like we used to." Army, 3-1, is one of the country's surprise teams but this might be asking a little too much of Leamon Hall and his miracle workers...Penn State 28-14.

Dartmouth at Yale: Dartmouth's the Big Green and Yale's the team with the inexperience...Dartmouth 14-12.

Auburn at Memphis State: The Tigers will win this game. The Tigers won last year 31-20. The Tigers are Memphis State. The Tigers also are Auburn. Memphis State won last year. This year...Auburn 24-10.

Kentucky at Mississippi State: Kentucky gets caught between Penn State and LSU...Mississippi State 16-9.

Midland Bullpups to face Big Spring here tonight

Coach Stan Moore's Midland High Bullpup junior varsity football team squares off against the Big Spring JV at 7 p.m. today in Memorial Stadium.

The Bullpups stand 3-1 on the year while the Steers are 1-3 on the season.

Midland took it on the chin, 17-0, last week to Odessa Permian while Big Spring lost to Abilene, 24-7.

Robert R. Lee's JV is idle until Saturday when the Stonewall Brigade, with a 2-2 record, takes on the San Angelo Bobcat JV at 1:30 p.m. in San Angelo.

Sooner drills please Oklahoma's Switzer

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Coach Barry Switzer was pleased with the performance of his Oklahoma football team in Wednesday's practice.

"Both the offense and the defense worked a lot better today than they did yesterday," he said.

Helping to raise his spirits was the return to practice of center Jody Farthing and offensive guard Greg Roberts. Both had missed Tuesday's workout.

Also participating in the drills was sophomore halfback Billy Sims, who has seen little action since the first week of pre-season practice because of a shoulder separationm

Head trainer Ken Rawlinson said Sophomore noseguard Reggie Kinlaw, the leading tackler in the Sooners defensive line, was held out of practice with a hip pointer. Kinlaw should be able to play Saturday against Texas, however.

Halfback Woody Shepard also sat out with a badly sprained ankle that Rawlinson said made him "very doubtful" for Saturday.

The chilly, cloudy weather his team encountered bothered Switzer.

"I'm concerned about the cool weather we've been having. Even though we're in pretty good shape, it has been hot in the Cotton Bowl for as long as I've been going down there," he said.

"This change in weather has forced us to do extra conditioning."

Switzer also is worried about the inexperience of many of his players. "Even though they have four games under their belts, the younger players won't be prepared for what its going to be like Saturday," he said.

"Experience means so much in a game like this, really in any big game, but when you walk down the ramp of the Cotton Bowl with 70,000 hollering fans waiting for you, it's a little different. It's something you have to experience for yourself, something an older player can't tell a younger player."

Two sharing Senior lead

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — Bus Atkinson of Houston and Rufus King of Wichita Falls share the lead going into the third round of the Texas State Senior Golf Tournament today.

Atkinson shot a four-over-par 75 Wednesday to tie King for the lead at 151 in the 40th annual event at the Wichita Falls Country Club.

Kauk, Orr lead 5-4A grid stats

Odessa Permian fullback Lyndon Kauk and tailback Tim Orr of Abilene Cooper have taken the lead after the first week of District 5-4A play in scoring and rushing.

Kauk scored three touchdowns against Midland last week in sparking the Panthers to a smashing 42-13 victory over the Bulldogs. The 175-pound speedster caught two touchdown passes from quarterback Curtis Pittman and ran one yard for another.

Orr rushed for an amazing 202 yards in Cooper's 28-19 loss to San Angelo Central. The 6-3, 200-pound senior picked up his 202 yards on 22 carries for an average of 9.2 yards per carry. He broke on an 85-yard TD scamper on the Cougar's first play from scrimmage against the Bobcats in P.E. Shotwell Stadium.

Central's Bill Woodard, another strong, swift back, rushed for 179 yards against Cooper and had a TD run of 61 yards. The only other back over 100 yards was Abilene's Joe Jones with 157 yards in 19 carries.

Kenneth Coffey of Big Spring latched on to three touchdown passes in the Steers' 43-22 loss to the quick-striking Abilene Eagles.

Royal shows concern over Texas injuries

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — At least twice this week Coach Darrell Royal of Texas has hinted he might use both of his sophomore quarterbacks, Mike Cordaro and Ted Constanzo, against undefeated Oklahoma Saturday.

Wednesday, however, Royal seemed more concerned about the physical condition of his squad.

And senior center Billy Gordon, who has only seen action on two plays against the Sooners, may have summed up the importance of the game when he said, "I think about it when I'm eating. I dream about it. It's just always in the back of your mind."

Gordon started last year but went out on the second play after he caught a finger in the eye.

Royal was asked at his news conference Monday if he intended to alternate quarterbacks against OU, and he said, "I doubt it. I might use two, but I won't alternate them." He said Cordaro would start.

He told the Longhorn Club Wednesday he "might play" Cardoro for one series and Constanzo for another, but added "I won't shuttle them."

The largest Longhorn Club crowd of the year turned out for Royal's narration of Texas' 42-15 trouncing of Rice last Saturday, but they were thinking of OU.

The Sooners, 4-0, are

Yankees to start Catfish Hunter in opening game on AL playoffs

By The Associated Press

Catfish Hunter, Larry Gura, Steve Carlton and the "Masked Marvel" will be the starting pitchers for Saturday's baseball playoff openers.

The playoff-tested Hunter has been offically tapped to pitch for the New York Yankees and a revengeful Gura has been chosen to go for the Kansas City Royals in the first game of the American League series.

The National League managers, however, are still playing "I've Got A Secret."

Manager Danny Ozark of the Philadelphia Phillies indicates that Carlton will be the Phillies' choice, although he has made no official announcement yet. Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson is pulling out all the psychological stops. He hasn't named anyone yet—and won't until Friday, 24 hours before the NL playoff game in Philadelphia.

"I know right now who it'll be, but I'm not saying," says a mysterious Anderson.

New York's Billy Martin was the first of the four managers to reveal his playoff plans when earlier this week, he selected Hunter, 17-15, and Ed Figueroa, 19-10, as the pitchers for the first two AL games in Kansas City. Either Dock Ellis, 17-8, or Ken Holtzman, 14-11, will pitch in Game No. 3 for the Yankees when the playoffs shift to New York next Tuesday.

Martin, in fact, has been the most talkative of the managers during the week prior to playoff time. On Wednesday, the verbose Martin revealed that Hunter has had a sore arm this year, perhaps explaining his sub-par season. Hunter, who led the Oakland A's to three world championships in the early 1970s, failed to make the 20-victory circle for the first time in six years.

one-two in total offense. The Cougs racked up 435 yards against San Angelo while Permian had 420 yards against the Purple Pack.

Abilene has the best defense after one game despite giving up 22 points to Big Spring.

Mark Beale, Cooper's senior quarterback, hit eight in 14 passes for 198 yards against the Bobcats with one a big 72-yard strike to Randy Jones.

Pittman has the most completions — nine with three of them going for touchdowns.

Coffey caught five passes for 133 yards while Johnny Morrison of Odessa had four for 100 yards with one being a 60-yard pass from quarterback Darrell Shepard that set up the winning touchdown in OHS' 15-14 victory over the Robert E. Lee Rebels.

Midland's Rusty Maroney has a fine 41.0 punting average with 123 yards in three punts against Permian.

Midland owns the No. 5 offense in the league and stands seventh in defense after one game while Robert E. Lee is seventh in offense and third in team defense.

Top 5-4A receivers besides Coffey and Morrison are Jones of Cooper and Permian's Bobby Riggs.

Philip Ward of Midland, who had a 26-yard TD run against Permian and threw a 16-yard halfback pass to John Northington, has also latched on to two passes for 38 yards for the Pack.

Besides Maroney's 41-yard punting average, Donald Salinas of Lee is third with a 36.6 average.

Orr, Woodard and Mike Hanson of Permian, all have scored two touchdowns each. Hanson had a 56-yard punt return for a TD called back against Midland.

Four Los Angeles players in surgery

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — It looks like "Dodgers Week" at Centinela Valley Community Hospital, as four Los Angeles Dodgers are recuperating from surgery to mend injuries suffered during the 1976 baseball season.

A team spokesman reported that all were doing fine.

If the hospitalized Dodgers should need a pitcher for their "Centinela team," they won't have to look far. San Diego Padres ace Randy Jones underwent surgery on his pitching arm at the hospital Wednesday.

Cosell will be at mike

NEW YORK (AP) — The familiar voice you hear on TV when the Yankees meet the Royals in the American League baseball playoffs Saturday will be that of your old friend, Howard Cosell.

Cosell? On Baseball?

None other. ABC-TV Sports President Roone Arledge is hauling out the big buns for the first year in which his network alternates on the playoffs and World Series with NBC.

But, you say, hasn't Cosell been one of baseball's most outspoken critics? True, yet he sees no inconsistency in his position as color man on the bestthree-of-five playoffs.

"I'll be there as an objective reporter rather than a member of the baseball establishment," Cosell said. "The baseball playoffs and the World Sries are special events, prime time attractions. In the face of the support ABC has shown me, if they assign me someplace, I'm there."

But Cosell says he has not changed his position on what he considers to be the restrictive structure of baseball.

"I'm unchanging in my objection to the anomaly we have at law in which baseball is exempt from the antitrust laws," he said. "I've testified six times before Senate and House committees on that. I'm unchanging in my opposition to the carpetbagging of franchises. My objection is to baseball operations when I think they are not in the public interest."

Cosell said his assignment came about after a skull session of producers and directors at ABC yielded the recommendation that he be on the playoff team. "Roone and I were talking alone and he said, 'Howard, I want to talk to you about baseball.'" ranked No. 3 in the nation. Texas, 2-1, is No. 16, but the game is rated a near toss-up.

Royal shows concern

One enthusiastic fan said this would be his 30th consecutive Texas-OU game, and "we're gonna beat the hell out of 'em."

Royal watched film of Texas fullback Earl Campbell fumbling against Rice and immediately noted that 17 of the 24 points OU scored in last year's 24-17 victory "came after fumbles."

"I'm hoping we can avoid giving them something easy Saturday," he said.

Royal said the Texas players "are eager and not one bit shy" about playing OU, and "the coaches feel the same way."

Freshman safety Johnnie Johnson, the fiercest tackler in the Texas secondary, will miss the game, however, with a severe "charley horse." He will be replaced by junior Steve Collier, last year's starter.

Defensive end Tim Campbell is still slowed with a muscle strain, and Russell Erxleben, the nation's leading punter, was "not walking" because of a bruised shin. But Royal said "he should be ready to play Saturday."

None of Texas' top four halfbacks, including starters Johnny "Lam" Jones and Johnny "Ham" Jones, are at "full speed," Royal said.

Another starter, defensive back Paul Jette, echoed Gordon's comments about the game's importance. "A lot of fans base the whole season on beating OU and I can see their point," said Jette. "If you're a human being, you're up (emotionally) all week."

Sparky still silent over starting hurler

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson can talk all he wants about the Reds' post-season experience and their ability to score runs. He can stay silent about his starting pitcher for Saturday's National League playoff opener.

None of it is upsetting the Philadelphia Phillies, says All-Star left-fielder Greg Luzinski.

"It's all part of Sparky's psyche job," said Luzinski. "Well, in this clubhouse it goes out like a grain of salt. He talks about starting a left-hander instead of a right-hander, because Timmy (McCarver) is catching. We won 101 games and we had to beat both sides (right and left).

"They talk about experience. We have respect for them. They have the best record in baseball (102 victories). They're a good team. But our inexperience is canceled out because we open at home before our fans. It's tough to come in here and play. The fans are behind us. They've waited a long time."

The 25-year-old Luzinski, affectionately known as "The Bull" for his 6-foot-1, 225-pound stature, will hopefully be recovered from a hamstring pull when the Phillies host the Reds Saturday in the opener of the best-of-five-game NL playoffs.

The hamstring which forced him to see limited action the last 10 days of the season is Luzinski's main concern right now, not Anderson's talk.

"It has loosened up considerably," said the Phillies' power hitter. "I've taken it easy this week, haven't really busted out on it. I didn't want to do anything to aggravate it."

Luzinski, who hit .304, slugged 21 homers and batted in 95 runs in the Phillies' dash to a nine-game victory in the NL East, said it is important to the Phillies not to get too keyed up for the playoffs.

"All the pressure is in the playoffs," Luzinski noted. "You have to win here to get into the World Series. The World Series is fun. This is tough."

Turner, Neill look for right angles

Rankin football coach Dwayne Turner and McCamey boss Joe Neill are viewing Friday night's Upton County Championship battle from different angles. Both feel it's their turn to win.

Such a prospect is not surprising. When these two teams lock horns, just about anything can happen, and usually does. They like to play each other, and that in itself is the reason why the game is one of the best area matchups every year.

The reason why both feel it's their turn to win comes from the last four years' performances. You can look at it two ways. Rankin has won on the even numbered years while McCamey has won on the odd numbered years. Also, the home team has been the victor the last four times. Well, McCamey is the home team for the second year in a row due to a schedule change.

"YOU CAN forget that odd-even theory," coach Neill says. "It's still our turn to win because the home team has always been the winner since I've been here."

Coach Turner goes the other way. "I'll go with the odd-even theory. It's our turn to win, isn't it."

Just for the record book, undefeated Rankin is favored to defeat the winless Badgers without taking either theory into account, but this series is something special and records don't mean too much. Turner puts it best.

"The McCamey kids like our kids. They always get along real well. So it has been a fun game, a game that both teams enjoy playing. Even though it is a great rivalry, the spirit has always been good. I think our kids started getting ready for McCamey right after our victory last week."

COACH NEILL also enjoys the rivalry. "Our kids don't have any trouble getting up for Rankin. It's been a enjoyable series. We've been mistake prone this year, but I feel that if we could eliminate the costly mistakes, we could beat anybody in the district on any given night. We have had six interceptions returned on us this year for touchdowns. I really don't know what to do about it."

Turner answers, "Don't throw," but one wonders wheih side he's really on. One thing is for sure, the Rankin-McCamey battle is a feature bout.

In the picking game last week, we hit 21 out of 25 games for the best wek of the year. The season total is 119 right and wrong for a .748 percentage. Now to this week.

RANKIN 24, McCAMEY 7 — Sorry Joe, but Dwayne's odd-even theory sounds best. I guess I'll have ot be there just to see which theory proves to be fact.

SNYDER 21, LAMESA 7 — The Tors' victory parade ends at two straight.

STANTON 30, ANSON 18 — That's if the Buffs didn't leave all that offense in New Home last week.

COAHOMA 14, CRANE 13 — It could be the other way, but it will be close.

Rankin, Badgers in annual tilt for Upton crown

BY TERRY WILLIAMSON

Rankin and McCamey battle yearly for a mythical title called the Upton County Championship, but a new twist has been added this year.

For the first time in the 14-year history of the event, the shootout will be a district game. McCamey fell from the AA ranks this year to join Rankin in District 6-A, so the battle has an added importance this year.

It will be the first district contest of the year for the Rankin Red Devils, who are favored to make a strong run at the title. McCamey already owns one district loss, and the Badgers need a victory desperately to remain in the race.

Rankin owns a 7-6 edge in the series, but the two teams have split decisions the past four years.

RANKIN HAS been the winner on the even numbered years while McCamey has been the victor on the odd numbered years. Also the home team has won the past four years, so both teams are claiming the right to win this year.

McCamey won last year's battle, 13-0, while Rankin posted a 27-13 win in 1974. McCamey won in 1973, 13-6 and Rankin won in 1972. It has always been one of the best area matchups of the season.

Rankin will carry an unblemished 4-0 record into the battle while McCamey is still seeking that first Class A victory with an 0-5 mark. One thing is sure, however, season records don't hold much water in this matchup.

The Lamesa Golden Tornadoes travel to Snyder Friday in a key District 3-AAA outing. It will be the first district test for Snyder while Lamesa owns a 1-0 record after defeating Sweetwater last week. The Tors can add fuel to a title run with an upset victory.

THE STANTON Buffaloes, fresh off a 77-6 conquest of New Home, will face Anson Friday on foreign soil in an effort to keep the high spirited offense greased for better things later in the year.

Crane will host Coahoma in a tough AA non-conference matchup. Both teams have been gaining strength recently. Crane has put together a three game winning streak, and need a victory over a highly touted team to gain more confidence.

Undefeated Andrews and Reagan County, who opened District 9-A play with a victory last week, will take the week off to prepare for tough loop contests in the future.

Marfa will travel to Iraan in another key 6-A game. Both have 1-0 marks in district play, and the winner will be riding high after two weeks of loop play.

Lubbock Estacado will face Lake View in San Angelo in the key 3-AAA flareup while Junction meets Wall in a 9-A encounter.

Districts 2-AAA, 5-A and 7-AA are still waiting for the non-conference schedule to end. District 2-AAA will begin their title run next week while the other two have to wait a couple of weeks.

This week's area schedule by districts

DISTRICT 2-AAA: Andrews open, Odessa Ector open, Monahans open, Fabens at Fort Stockton, Seminole at Kermit, Pecos at Artesia, N.M.

DISTRICT 3-AAA: Lamesa at Snyder, Lubbock Estacado at Lake View, Brownfield at Sweetwater, Lubbock Dunbar open.

DISTRICT 7-AA: Coahoma at Crane, Ozona at Alpine, Sonora at Burnet, Seminole at Kermit.

DISTRICT 5-A: Stanton at Anson, Wink at Seagraves, Shallowater at Frenship, Lubbock Christian at Plains, O'Donnell open.

DISTRICT 6-A: Rankin at McCamey, Marfa at Iraan, Clint at Van Horn, Wink at Seagraves.

DISTRICT 9-A: Junction at Wall, Mason at Robert Lee, Eldorado at Menard, Reagan County open.

Kick returns and pass thievery were favorite scoring plays in last week's schoolboy football wars with Tuloso-Midway's Bubba Broughton, San Antonio Southwest's Ken Cooper and Channelview's Glenn Wilson providing prominent examples.

Those Texas artists and defensive bandits all earn mention this week on the Associated Press Texas schoolboy honor roll.

Broughton, a 5-foot-11, 155-pound senior, and Cooper, a cornerback, displayed ball skills in leading their teams to victories.

Broughton scored 65 and 52 points on touchdowns and ran back a punt for another score in a 72-7 victory over Flour Bluff. He also intercepted his passes and totaled 300 yards in returns.

Cooper, unbelievable sure-handed this year, Tuloso Head Coach Bill Rhyne said. "We had no idea he could play this way."

Broughton, who has scored five touchdowns this season, all on defense, was one of seven defensive backs competing for four positions before the season started.

Cooper also scored three touchdowns for Southwest in a 48-7 victory over San Antonio West. He returned interceptions 40 and 28 yards for touchdowns and ran back a kickoff 79 yards for a touchdown.

"He's a real competitor," Southwest Coach Jori Zahava said. "He's the type that will make that type of play. He just saw them coming and made the plays."

Wilson, 6-0, 175, also caught touchdown passes of 70 and 15 yards and kicked four extra points for a total of 22 points in Channelview's 49-7 victory over Mount Carmel.

Corpus Christi Miller's Margarito Gallegos also took part in the intercepting act by picking off three passes in a 20-6 victory over Kingsville. Gallegos returned the three Kingsville miscues 92 yards, including a 31-yard touchdown run.

San Antonio McCollum wingback-cornerback Tom Vera proved a versatile scoring threat in a 28-7 victory over Laredo Nixon. Vera scored touchdowns on a 22-yard run, 14-yard pass and 85-yard interception return.

Rankin unleashed a triple 100-yard attack against Jim Ned in a 42-6 victory. Clarke Turner got 139 yards on 15 carries followed by Russell Winberley's five for 126 yards and Hilton Luckie's 15 for 104.

Other schoolboy honorees this week were:

—Ricci Ware Jr. of San Antonio Roosevelt, who hit eight of 13 passes for 284 yards and three touchdowns in a 47-35 victory over San Antonio Alamo Heights. Ware out-dueled Alamo quarterback Ray Basaldua, who completed 13 of 21 for 189 yards and two touchdowns.

—Quarterback Jennings Teel of Reagan County completed 12 of 19 passes for 269 yards and one touchdown and ran for scores of five and one yards in a 29-12 victory over El Dorado.

—Mitch Gray completed 22 of 37 passes for 269 yards and three touchdowns in Houston North Shore's 27-12 victory over Aldine MacArthur.

—Cromer Randolph led Chilton to a 62-0 rout of Jarrell with 279 yards rushing on 14 carries and five touchdowns.

—Big Sandy's David Overstreet romped for 295 yards on 16 carries and touchdowns of 55, 22, 26, 6, 85 and 25 yards and added a pair of two-point conversions for a 40-point evening in a 64-0 victory over Union Grove.

Weddington in golf win

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP) — Four-time champ Lou Weddington of Meridian and Harriet Cauthen of Clarksdale won their first rounds of match play Wednesday in the Mississippi Women's Amateur tournament and faced each other today in a quarterfinal.

Weddington beat Nada Reuss of Jackson 9 and 8 and Cauthen beat Margaret Carver of Jackson 5 and 4.

Other first round winners were Lou Garrick of Laurel over Brenda Rhea of Aberdeen 6 and 5 and Esther Hall of Biloxi over Mi Rogers of Gautier 7 and 5.

Randy Jones happy following surgery on pitching arm

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Randy Jones says there's no danger he'll need a bionic arm although perhaps baseball will be ruined by it.

The San Diego Padres ace said he underwent surgery on his left arm Wednesday that the doctors said not put any speed in his pitching, known for its lack of speed.

"Someday I hope that Jones said, "I might be a bionic arm."

Jones was in good mood because the operation was his baseball career was thought to be in jeopardy after he felt a snap in his left arm last week while pitching against Cincinnati.

Dr. Frank Jobe at the time said the injury was probably a torn bicep ligament, but hoped might be through.

But Jones, 22-14 this season and is a top candidate for the Cy Young award, woke up after surgery with his parents smiling at him and telling him everything was okay.

Dr. Frank Jobe said after the operation that fears Jones had torn a bicep muscle were unfounded, and that the structure of his throwing arm was intact. The problem, Jobe said, was instead a nerve related injury to the bicep muscle.

"At this time it is difficult to be completely accurate as to when Randy will be fully recovered. But we will work with him on a program of exercises and expect him to be ready for spring training next season," said Padres team physician Dr. Robert Kerlan, who assisted in the operation.

Jones said he was feeling fine after the 1½-hour operation at Centinela Valley Community Hospital.

He said he went into the operation feeling "scared, empty" but that when his parents gave him the good news, he felt like jumping up and running out of the hospital.

"It was a real relief finding out that it was not a tear in the bicep," he said. "I was scared going into the operation, but I felt like it was out of my control, in the doctors' hands."

He injured the arm throwing a slider in the second inning against the Reds, and asked to come out of the game shortly afterward, saying his arm was throbbing.

"Dr. Jobe said he didn't know if I would be able to pitch again," Jones recalled.

Indicating that, regardless of the injury's seriousness, he'd never considered quitting baseball, Jones said the fact that it wasn't a torn bicep muscle will make getting ready for next spring a little easier.

"I knew I was going to have to work hard, to battle my way back," he remarked. "Finding out that the injury wasn't to the muscle makes the job a heck of a lot easier."

Rangers open with win

NEW YORK (AP) — New players, new uniforms, new numbers, a newly decorated dressing room—and most importantly, a new attitude.

Those were the new-look New York Rangers, and they opened their National Hockey League season with a 6-5 victory over the Minnesota North Stars Wednesday night.

In other NHL games, the Pittsburgh Penguins whipped the Vancouver Canucks 9-5, and the Los Angeles Kings and Cleveland Barons played to a 2-2 tie.

The Rangers had finished in last place in the Patrick Division of the Campbell Conference last season, missing the playoffs for the first time in 10 years, and Coach-General Manager John Ferguson had promised some changes for this year.

He made them—in bunches.

Most noticeable was the infusion of new players—seven rookies and one other newcomer, veteran Ken Hodge, acquired from Boston—played against Minnesota. And their spirited play contributed greatly to the victory.

Phil Esposito, wearing the unconventional uniform No. 77 after sporting No. 12 last season, said, "I'm wearing 77 because Fergy asked me if I wanted to change things around and I said yes. Everything's been stagnant here for years. But these kids are not stagnant. We'll do pretty well with them."

"There's a tremendous enthusiasm here and things have been dead here for 50 years," said Hodge, whose No. 88 is the highest in the league. "I thought I played pretty well, but thatmLE (Don Murdoch) is really good."

Murdoch, one of the seven rookies, fired in two goals, including one in a decisive three-goal second period, when the Rangers broke loose from a 3-3 tie and took a 6-3 lead.

Murdoch had been informed earlier in the day by his mother in Cranbrook, B.C., that his father had suffered a heart attack, his second in recent months.

"Maybe my two goals will cheer him up," said Murdoch.

Dan Newman, Walt Tkaczuk, Greg Polis and Wayne Dillon produced the other New York goals.

Tim Young tallied twice for the North Stars, and Doug Hicks, Bill Goldsworthy and Pierre Jarry had one goal apiece. Rookie Grant Eriksson collected four assists.

VERNON RAPP, who managed the Denver Bears to the American Association baseball championship this past season, is, under consideration for a similar role with both the St. Louis Cardinals and San Francisco Giants. Rapp, 48, has been a minor league manager for the past 12 years.

New York favored to return back to World Series again

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Get ready for the World Series to return to Yankee Stadium, the House the taxpayers rebuilt.

The deck is stacked, the cards marked, the dice loaded. Not one but a dozen factors are on the New Yorkers' side when the American League playoffs start Saturday in Kansas City.

A case can be made for the Royals, but the bookies in the Bronx are having a hard time finding anyone who believes it, even at 3-to-2 odds.

If the Yankees lose, Kojak should investigate. Who loves the Yankees, baby? All the fates, it seems. The Bronx Bandits should lick a lollipop. Or like the great Yankees of old beat their poor farm-club cousins from Kansas City.

The fault lies not in the Royals' horoscope but in themselves. A few harsh numbers tell the truth about K.C.

Since the All-Star break the Royals' record is 39-41. They closed the season in an ugly slump, their pitching staff in tatters from injuries and their futile hitters killing the pseudograss on the way back to the dugout.

K.C. lost seven of its last eight games of the year and five of its six September showdowns against the fast-closing Oakland A's. Those six games showed the Royals' inability to win under pressure.

The Royals' confidence reached such a low ebb that manager Whitey Herzog admitted just a week ago, "I guess if the A's catch us, it would be the biggest collapse ever."

The Royals sank slowly in the West after their only two starters who had ever won 20 games — Steve Busby and Paul Splittorff — both left for the year with midseason injuries.

The Royals' pitching chariot has gone from cruising on white sidewalls to clunking along on patched spares like Marty Pattin, Andy Hassler and Larry Gura.

The K.C. pitching crisis, and its contrast to the Yanks' mound health, is now at its most dramatic.

Yankee manager Billy Martin may pluck his starters from a stable of five men who pitched more than 200 innings each and finished powerfully. He has the duo that powered Oakland to three world titles in Catfish Hunter, his first-game starter, and Ken Holtzman. Ed Figueroa (19-10) and Dock Ellis (17-8) have gaudy statistics if not previous playoff laurels.

Martin's biggest problem is to withhold his third-game pitching choice, after Hunter and Figueroa, to postpone the predictable explosion from Holtzman or Ellis, whoever isn't picked.

Herzog wishes he had Martin's leftovers. Instead, he will follow 17-10 Dennis Leonard with two of the alltime no-name pitchers ever to work in the postseason — Hassler, who at midseason had lost 17 straight games, and Gura, a Yank castoff, who completed only one game this year. Desperation, anyone?

Herzog has two creditable righties, Doug Bird and Al Fitzmorris, but he fears what the Yanks' lefthanded hitters would do to them. Ergo, the green southpaws, Hassler and Gura.

The Royals are compensating for their battered arms with their feisty mouths, talking a good fight.

"I think the Yankees are afraid of our artificial turf," said Hal McRae. "We're better defensively. (Catcher) Thurman Munson is their only defensive standout."

"I have a killer instinct against that team," says AL batting champ George Brett, who has fumed at Martin all season over Martin's alleged treatment of his brother, Ken. "I want to beat them bad every time I play 'em not only for the team but for my brother, too."

Opposing managers Whitey Herzog, left, and Billy Martin, shake hands prior to workouts Wednesday in Kansas City. Both the Royals and Yankees worked out at the site of the first game of the American League championship series which starts on Saturday.

Sports in brief

BASEBALL

NEW YORK — The Major League's Players Association filed a grievance to bar the use in the World Series of the designated hitters claiming the rule is in violation of the new agreement between players and owners.

NEW YORK — Rawly Eastwick, the ace relief pitcher of the Cincinnati Reds, was named the outstanding reliever in the National League for this past season.

TENNIS

TEHRAN, Iran — Argentina's Guillermo Vilas posted a straight set victory over Nikki Spear of Yugoslavia to advance to the quarter-finals of the $150,000 Aryamehr Tennis tournament.

PHOENIX — Top-seeded Chris Evert breezed through the third round of the $75,000 Women's Professional Tennis tournament, eliminating Linky Boshoff of South Africa 6-1, 6-0.

GOLF

VILAMOURA, Portugal — Teen-ager Nancy Lopez led a favored American team to a two-stroke lead after the first round of the World Amateur Women's Team Championships.

SOCCER

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — The U.S. national soccer team declared itself on strike citing the shoddy treatment it has received from the U.S. Soccer Federation.

Evert advances into tennis quarterfinals in Phoenix

PHOENIX (AP) — Chris Evert, surviving a slow start, has advanced to the quarter-finals of the $75,000 Women's Tennis Association Tournament after ousting Linky Boshoff 6-1, 6-0.

"I started off a little tentative the first two games but then relaxed and just played my game," Miss Evert said after the 50-minute match Wednesday night.

"Linky has a lot of good shots but not one outstanding shot to give me problems," she said.

Miss Evert said she will continue to need stretching exercises on her right index finger about 10 minutes before each match. The finger was injured during World Team Tennis play earlier in the year.

Fourth-seeded Virginia Wade called her game "tentative" in losing the second set to Valerie Ziegenfuss before taking the match 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

"I was rushing around and lost my timing and played two careless games," Miss Wade said. "I had so many openings but I missed the passing shots."

Seventh-seeded Mona Guerrant used a well-working backhand volley to overcome stubborn Marcie Louie 6-4, 6-3.

Martina Navratilova, seeded third, eased by Mariana Simionescu 6-3, 6-3, using an effective drop shot mixed in with deep baseline drives to keep her opponent off balance.

Francoise Durr, seeded eighth, ran into trouble and was upset by Ilana Kloss 6-1, 7-5, 6-3. Miss Durr has become the highest seed so far to be eliminated from the tournament.

Kristien Shaw downed Jeannie Evert 6-3, 6-4.

Broadway Joe, New York coach are criticized

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — "Stupid. Stupid. The stupidest thing I ever heard."

Joe Namath, the New York Jets' million-dollar quarterback, reacted testily to the suggestion that his passing skills have become so eroded that besides being unable to scramble he no longer takes the step into the pocket before delivering a pass.

"I've been reading that stuff. It's ridiculous. How are you going to step if there is no place to step?" Namath said.

With the Jets 0-4 for the season and facing O.J. Simpson and the Buffalo Bills in New York's home opener Sunday at Shea Stadium, both Namath and rookie coach Lou Holtz are having to weather an increasing barrage of criticism.

"When is Holtz going to bench Namath?" was one of the most asked questions after the Jets lost their fourth straight game last Sunday, bowing to the San Francisco 49ers 17-6. It was a game in which Namath was sacked five times and was thrwarted in attempts to initiate a touchdown for the third game.

Has Broadway Joe, 33, with fragile knees and carrying the pain of a pulled hamstring muscle, lost his old magic?

Joe doesn't think so, but the very mention of it almost sends him up the wall.

"I don't want to talk about," he snapped while dressing for a workout Wednesday at the Jets' Hofstra College training complex.

"If you want to know how I am playing, look at the films. That's all I ask. Am I missing any reads? Am I doing anything differently than I did last year or the year before?

"It's the media. I am sick and tired of it."

Namath stuck a wad of tobacco in his lower lip. He thumbed through a handful of mail. He kidded with his quarterback understudy, Richard Todd, occupying the adjacent stall, and swapped quips with other teammates.

"Specialty team on the field in five minutes," a fellow Jet yelled at him as he went out the door.

Namath took the jibe goodnaturaedly. "I'll be there," he said, spitting some tobacco juice into a paper cup.

But Broadway Joe doesn't see any humor in a line of questioning that casts a cloud on his ability to direct a pro football team.

"I feel fine," he replies tartly to questions of his health. "As good as I have in the last two or three years."

Does he think that advancing age and patched-up knees are tarnishing his ability as a frontline quarterback?

"I think can throw the ball as well as ever," he said. "As for my knees, they aren't responsible for whatever immobility I have. The real reason is this torn hamstring muscle—I have had it for three years."

Support from Briscoe big plus for Carter

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe, cattleman and banker, kept smiling as Mrs. Jimmy Carter told Texas reporters that her husband plans high taxes on the rich.

If those remarks bothered Briscoe, her host and one of the wealthiest men in Texas, he didn't show it.

Briscoe's devotion to Jimmy Carter's cause also has weathered the candidate's cutting comments about Lyndon Johnson in a Playboy magazine interview. The governor's support is a big plus for Carter's quest of Texas' 26 electoral votes.

Texans aren't used to seeing their conservative Democratic governors campaign enthusiastically for Democratic presidential candidates. Since the 1940s, Texas governors generally have been lukewarm toward the national tickets or preoccupied with state politics.

And no presidential candidate can take Texas for granted. It went for Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956, narrowly for John F. Kennedy in 1960 and Hubert H. Humphrey in 1968 and for Richard M. Nixon in 1972. The only Democrat to carry Texas by a landslide since 1948 was native son Lyndon B. Johnson in 1964.

As chairman of Carter's steering committee, Briscoe is trying to outcampaign one of Texas' most popuar governors of the past: John Connally. Connally is chairman of the President Ford Committee in Texas. Connally recognizes that Briscoe's support gives Carter a running start.

"I just am prayerful he (Briscoe) won't do all he possibly can," Connally said.

The two are old friends, and some of Connally's first campaign for governor in 1962 was planned at Briscoe's ranch in south Texas.

Connally still commands a large following of conservative Democrats despite his conversion to Republicanism in 1973 and has brought many of them together as "Texans for Ford."

He acknowledged when he accepted President Ford's request to run the Texas campaign that it would be uphill.

The President Ford Committee's latest poll shows that still is the case, says Doug Lewis, who manages the campaign's day-to-day affairs.

"We are behind but we are in striking distance. I'd like to have a poll showing (the results of) Carter's gaffes," Lewis said.

Carter has spent much time explaining that he didn't intend to accuse LBJ in the Playboy interview of "lying, cheating and distorting the truth."

"Giving John Connally an issue like that is like giving a Stradivarius to Jascha Heifetz," said Dallasite Robert Strauss, Democratic national chairman.

But a cochairman of the Carter campaign in Texas, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, minimizes the effect of the interview on voters.

"They are just not going to vote Republican because of that. The people who did revere Johnson are people who need to have a Democrat in office. I'm talking about poor people, people who need an education to get on their feet," Armstrong said.

What are the issues in Texas?

To the Republicans, they begin with the Democratic ticket's "liberalism." Disdain edges into Connally's voice when he proclaims that Carter "chose as his running mate (Walter Mondale, probably the most liberal member of the U.S. Senate."

Briscoe, whose popularity derives largely from his "no new taxes" policy, perceives Carter — a personal friend — as a fellow conservative with no real commitment to the Democratic platform.

"I don't think anybody after November is going to be reading the Democratic platform," he says.

But platforms are a big part of Ford's Texas campaign. The President's written commitment to the GOP platform is important to the disappointed backers of Ronald Reagan.

"Carter is calling in the platform for horizontal and vertical divestiture of energy companies. That's going to be a disaster for him. He is talking about destroying the economic base of Texas," Lewis says.

The Democratic platform, which Carter has basically supported in his public statements, does call for the prohibition of companies owning more than one form of energy, i.e., horizontal ownership. But the platform says vertical ownership — controlling everything from the oil well to the gas pump — should be prohibited only if it causes a lack of competition. Carter has said a wholesale breakup of the oil industry would be counterproductive.

Republican campaigners are saying that divestiture would reduce drilling and cut so deeply into Texas' $793 million annual revenue from oil and gas production taxes that a state income tax would be needed for the first time.

Harris County (Houston) Republican chairman Ray Barnhart, who led Reagan's victorious campaign in the presidential primary, is working for Ford and was aboard the Natchez riverboat cruise with the President in Louisiana Sept. 25. The GOP chairman recently mailed 10,000 copies of a pamphlet comparing the Republican and Democratic platforms.

Republican leaders say federal limits on campaign spending made it crucial that the Reaganites forget their hurt feelings and volunteer as unpaid campaign workers.

"Out of the roster of 100 national convention delegates, I couldn't name you three who are not working actively for the entire Republican ticket," said Barnhart, who emphasized that the platform has brought the party together.

Armstrong said platforms are meaningless.

As for breaking up the oil companies, Armstrong says that most Texans are consumers of oil and gas and are more interested in gasoline and utility prices than in how production and distribution are organized.

Potato exports could affect domestic market

By WILIAM H. JONES
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Major grain companies quietly are shipping American potatoes to drought-stricken Europe in unprecedented quantities, a move that could have major impact on the domestic market.

The shipments could cause potato shortages here and drive up prices by early next year, despite an expected increase in this country's key fall harvest, government and private sources said.

Never before has the U.S. been a major exporter of potatoes and never before have the grain traders been involved in the potato business.

In normal years, less than 2 per cent of the annual U.S. potato harvest has been exported, mostly across the border to Canada. One government expert said Tuesday that up to 10 per cent of this fall's harvest could be exported while other sources estimated that nearly 20 per cent of total production may be sent abroad.

Two ships loaded with fresh potatoes from the Red River Valley of Minnesota and North Dakota were scheduled to depart from the port of Duluth, Minn., in the vanguard of the first potato export business ever carried through the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Other Great Lakes ports also were loading potatoes on ships bound primarily for Rotterdam, port sources said. Facilities in Maine for loading potatoes on ships bound for Europe were reported booked solidly through early next year. In Washington State, potato processing plants are operating at full capacity for export markets.

Agricultural sources said the big grain traders have entered the potato business because they have the equipment, facilities and international trading connections necessary to handle the suddenly booming business.

The key factor is drought, which is expected to reduce West Europe's fall potato harvests by 20 to 25 per cent below last year's output. A U.S. Embassy spokesman in Paris said last week that total French imports of potatoes this year may reach a million metric tons, double an estimate of the previous week and in contrast to the previous year's volume of 3,000 tons.

Other sources said West Germany may import as much as France while The Netherlands is expected to seek about one-third the volume now estimated for the French.

The international grain traders reportedly involved in seeking to buy up American potatoes are Louis Dreyfus Corp., Continental Grain Co., Cook Industries, Inc., C.R. Cargill, Inc., and Dunge Corp.

Officials at four of the trading companies contacted either denied their involvement in the potato trade or declined to comment. The five firms were among the grain trading companies involved in secret and controversial agreements to sell wheat and corn to the Soviet Union in 1972.

The 1972 purchases, at low prices, depleted U.S. stocks and led to higher prices for meat and dairy products.

An Agriculture Department fruits and vegetables official, Charles Porter, said the big grain traders were "showing substantial interest" in potatoes for the first time. Such companies, he said, are the only ones capable of gathering hundreds of trucks or rail cars to handle the volume of potatoes now anticipated for export.

From the standpoint of American farmers, the USDA official said, the new export business will be "good news," since it was unlikely that Americans would consume an anticipated 10 per cent increase in production from the fall harvest.

Low potato prices should continue throughout the fall season but "things might tighten up" next year if the Europeans buy 10 per cent of the U.S. harvest, Porter stated. One difficulty in projecting the impact of exports, he added, is that American officials don't know whether the potatoes will be used only for feeding people or if they may be used also for feeding livestock.

Potatoes are being shipped out of Gulf ports, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and Albany, N.Y., bound for Europe, and from Washington State to Chile, normally an exclusive Dutch customer. Some Canadian potatoes also are being exported to France.
