"Give the farmer a break. You don't need this blood money, sir!"

Death of a farmer

Protests swell over prices, debt auctions

By the Associated Press

SIGOURNEY, Iowa — Angry protesters jeered an auctioneer as he sold off a farmer's machinery after it was seized by a bank, while thousands of farmers from three states rallied in Sioux City to demand a boost in commodity prices.

Roger Escher's two tractors were the last to go Thursday, while more than 200 people crowded at the auctioneer's lot.

The tractors and 14 other items went in less than two hours, despite protests by dozens of farmers wearing adhesive tape crosses on the backs of their coveralls and shouting "No sale! No sale!"

"Nobody that's here today who'll tell you they don't have a problem isn't farming," said Joanne Neuzil, who with husband, Paul, runs a farm southwest of Iowa City. "We've got farmers here who were millionaires a couple of years ago."

In Sioux City, 4,000 farmers from Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota jammed an auditorium to demand a change in a proposed 1985 Farm Bill to make it shore up commodity prices and rescue farmers in financial distress.

"Let's send a message very loud and clear — there's one thing we need in agriculture today, and that's a decent price for our product. That will cure everything," Sen. James Exon, D-Neb., told the crowd.

The rally was organized by the Emerson, Neb.-based Farm Crisis Committee, whose leaders said the Rev. Billy Graham has promised to deliver a petition against the proposed 1985 farm bill to President Reagan during his inauguration.

For Escher, the auction was the end of years of work raising livestock, corn and soybeans on a 300-acre farm in Kalona that he said once was valued at $850,000.

"His equipment was taken up for non-payment of loan, in this case more than $300,000 he owed the bank," said President Allen Kloess from the United Central Bank & Trust Co. in Kalona.

"This is my machinery. It belongs to me. It's still in the courts. It has not been decided whose it is. I ask you to refrain from bidding," Escher shouted.

Frank Cordaro, a deacon intern at St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church in Corning, shouted to auctioneer Robert Mallinger: "You don't need to sell the equipment. You don't need to sell it. Give the farmer a break. You don't need this blood money, sir!"

"It's not blood money. I'll tell you what, fellows: You've had your say. It's been consigned here ... and I'm going to sell it now," Mallinger replied.

"I feel sorry for everybody that loses stuff," he said before the sale. "It's an unfortunate circumstance, but he's not the only one." Forced farm sales have prompted many farming coalitions to urge Gov. Terry Branstad to declare a state of emergency, which would invoke a Depression-era law temporarily banning foreclosures.

County's Junior Livestock Show takes center stage

By KEELY COGHLAN

Staff Writer

Cattle, lambs and kids — the human kind — crowded the Howard County Fairgrounds Thursday night as they weighed and registered their animals for the Howard County Junior Livestock Show this weekend.

Cattle, capons — also known as "steer chickens" — swine and lambs were being counted, entered and assigned pens before the big show this weekend, as agriculture officials, farmers and ranchers helped direct the livestock traffic at the buildings.

Preparations for the show started early this week, when Howard County Extension Agents, stock show volunteers and youths began readying the arenas and pens for the show.

Lambs were waiting patiently as their young owners and the extension agents began shearing the wool off their eyes, legs and bodies in anticipation of their turns in the spotlight tonight.

This weekend's show will be the first time the new Dora Roberts Building, completed in late summer by the county, will be used to house and display livestock. According to agents and county commissioners, the new barn provides more room and better facilities for the stock show.

Contestants start about a year in advance of the stock show, training, grooming and feeding their animals for the annual competition. Winners often go on to regional stock shows to try their chance at larger purses and wider recognition.

Showtime at the new Dora Roberts showbarn starts at 6 p.m. tonight when Howard County Future Farmers of America and

Cotton: every little byte helps

Growers urged to plant future with computer know-how

By the Associated Press

LUBBOCK — Texas cotton growers must vault their operations into the computer age to keep up with a U.S. public that is buying more cotton products now than at any time in the last decade, a study says.

Texas already produces about half the annual U.S. cotton crop, and despite intensive advertising about competitive synthetic fibers, cotton use will continue its upward trend, according to a report given to 800 Southwestern cotton growers

Wednesday.

Robert Boslet, chief executive officer of the marketing and research firm of Cotton Inc., said in presenting the report that Texas' high volume means Cotton Inc. must intensify its efforts in High Volume Instrumentation development — a computer-assisted sales technique.

HVI classing of cotton is a method where cotton growers sell their product to mills based on detailed computerized information about the quality of a particular bale by its fibers.

Boslet said Cotton Inc. has developed computer software that enables textile mills to organize and blend bales of cotton — based on HVI data — to achieve the most efficient yarn for a specific product.

"The textile industry is finding it can be a useful tool in their business," Boslet said. "The more the mills know about the fiber, the better. And if we help our customer, we help ourselves (cotton)." Cotton page 2-A

Teen shoot, kills parents

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. — The 18-year-old son of a high school assistant principal faces charges he murdered both his parents with shotgun blasts to the heads, police said.

Johnnie Mac Trice II, 18, was held without bail Thursday on two counts of murder and possession of a firearm while committing a felony, police said. He was arrested Wednesday.

He is accused of shooting John and Alice Trice at their home on Friday night. Police Chief William Kohnke offered no motive for the slayings.

Woman suing hospital

TOWSON, Md. — A woman suing a hospital and a gynecologist for $2 million says she was "devastated" when she became pregnant after being raped because a hormone that was supposed to prevent the pregnancy didn't work.

The 33-year-old woman alleges that Dr. Julio C. Novoa prescribed the estrogen hormone Estrace in too small a dose to prevent the pregnancy, according to testimony Wednesday in Baltimore County Circuit court.

Repairing eyes with tacks

DURHAM, N.C. — Doctors are reporting success in repairing badly torn and folded retinas by reattaching them to the wall of the eye with minuscule stainless steel tacks, say officials at Duke University Eye Center.

An unidentified Alabama man whose retina was repaired with tacks was quoted by the eye center Wednesday as saying his sight has doubled since the procedure and he can "pick up colors now and movement."

Relaxing improves grades

DELAND, Fla. — Students reported better grades, more confidence and better athletic performance after undergoing deep relaxation, but a school board official has ordered an end to high school hypnotherapy sessions.

Principal Chuck Williams underwent the therapy and found nothing wrong with it, but halted the sessions Tuesday after Vice Chairwoman Ohse Davis of the Volusia County School Board said they should be stopped at DeLand High School.

Abortion vigil

Counselor, 24 clinics planning protest vigil

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Alabama abortion counselor, whose clinic is one of more than two dozen planning overnight vigils this weekend, says she won't surrender to anti-abortion terrorism despite injuries she suffered during a protest.

Kathryn Wood, a counselor at the Women's Community Health Center in Huntsville, and others from clinics around the nation spoke Thursday in support of vigils planned by the National Organization for Women at 25 clinics in 18 states. The vigils, to begin tonight, come just before the 12th anniversary of the Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion.

NOW says the overnight stays by women supporting the right to abortion will "signal our determination to stand up to the terrorists and the bullies" who bombed or burned nearly 30 clinics last year.

But some of the clinic workers also said the bomb throwers have taken their toll.

Ms. Wood, who says she underwent surgery for her injuries, told reporters of anonymous letters to her neighbors calling her a baby-killer and of bomb threats on her home. She told of her children being attacked at school by other children and being insulted by some of their teachers.

And she told of fear. "The closer I get to the clinic in the morning, the more my heart races," she said. "We know we will be verbally assaulted as soon as we get out of our cars, called Nazis, murderers and baby killers. We are afraid..."

In mid-June, a Catholic priest entered Ms. Wood's clinic with red paint that he hoped to pour on surgical equipment used in abortions.

"I was afraid for our patients' lives, and tried to block his way," Ms. Wood said. "He threw me against a wall and I blacked out. Injuries to my neck have already required surgery."

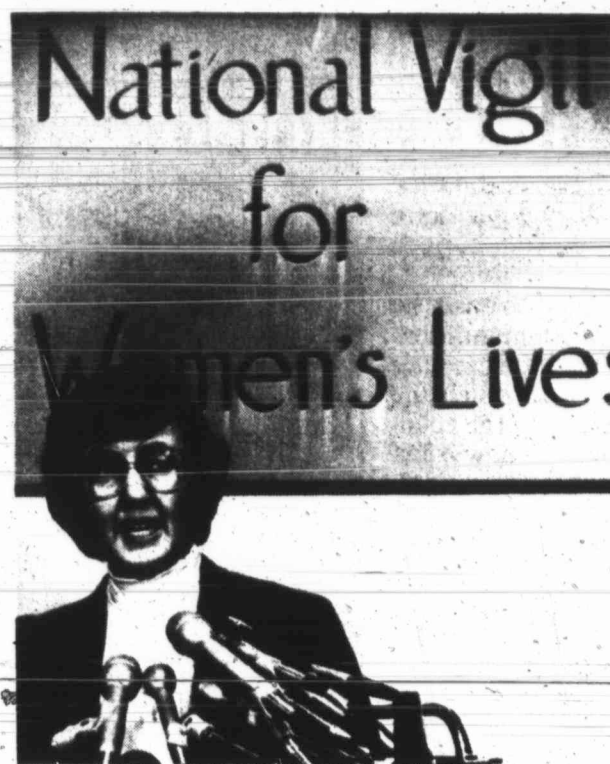

"I keep reading that the anti-abortionists haven't hurt anyone," she said. "The newspapers in Alabama were more interested in the intruder than in the pain I have suffered. Despite my physical injuries and the fear that our clinic staff feels, we are absolutely determined not to give in."

"The psychological harassment has reached levels that are absolutely intolerable," said Judy Goldsmith, NOW president. When clinic workers and their patients are threatened, she said, "That is not free speech. That is illegal harassment."

Ms. Goldsmith said the vigils by NOW members will demonstrate that they are not surrendering.

"We serve notice that women are activated, mobilized and absolutely determined not to go back to the days when we had to risk fear, pain, injury and even death to terminate a pregnancy," she said. "We will never go back to that time."

"Neither will we tolerate the continuation of a situation in which women are accosted, followed, intimidated and harassed when they seek to exercise their constitutional right to abortion," she added.

She said the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms did not advise against the vigils. But, in response to a question, she also said that vigils were cancelled in "very few... two or three" cities where local police advised against them. She said she could not identify the cities.

The NOW president added, however, that she did not believe women participating in the vigils are running an unacceptable risk, saying clinics involved will be well-lit, clearly marked, and obviously occupied.

"We believe that we are taking no greater risk than women take every time they seek to exercise their constitutional right to abortion," she said.

Ms. Goldsmith also said she has sent telegrams to anti-abortion leaders, asking them to tone down the rhetoric that has inflamed the abortion controversy.

One killed in skirmish

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A car bomb exploded in Moslem west Beirut and shells blasted the Christian sector today, killing three people, wounding 17 and jeopardizing another government effort to neutralize rival militias, police and Beirut radios said.

The radio said dust and fog at Beirut Airport delayed the arrival of U.N. Undersecretary-General Brian Urquhart, who is trying to coordinate Lebanon and Syria's response to Israel's plans to begin a three-stage withdrawal from southern Lebanon next week and complete the first stage by Feb. 18.

Police said two pedestrians were killed and 12 wounded in the car bombing in the Beir El-Abed neighborhood just before midday in a vacant lot usually used as a playground. Witnesses said not many children were around when the bomb went off.

Armed militiamen blocked reporters from the scene. But chunks of metal, barely recognizable as an automobile, could be seen in the lot.

Police said six shell blasts hit the Christian neighborhoods of Furn El-Shubbak and Ein El-Rummaneh at 7:25 a.m., wounding three school children and an adult. Christian-controlled radio stations accused "unruly elements" among Moslem militias in west Beirut of firing the artillery shells.

Shells and rockets crashed in the Christian suburbs of Hazmieh and Baabda, where the presidential palace is located. Police said one civilian was killed and another injured in Hazmieh.

Fire traced back to liquor

DHAKA, Bangladesh — The train fire that killed at least 27 people earlier this week reportedly began in a restroom in which illegal, home-brewed liquor had been stowed alongside a burning lantern.

The English-language newspaper New Nation, quoting witnesses, said Thursday the fire that raced through three coaches of the Samanta Express near Bheramara station originated with two drums of "methylyated spirits" brought aboard by a passenger at Puradhaha.

Bangladesh Railroad authorities suspended two more employees because of Sunday's fire, which survivors say may have killed 150 people. Five employees were suspended earlier in the week.

A judge's ideas for equal justice

The U.S. Supreme Court must decide crucial constitutional and legal questions. As Chief Justice Warren Burger correctly says, the task requires that the justices have adequate time to reflect on the weighty issues before them.

Hence, Burger has renewed proposals designed to ease the court's workload. Some of his ideas deserve implementation.

One sensible proposal is for creation of an intermediate court, an "intercircuit tribunal" to hear cases in which the federal Circuit Courts of Appeal in different parts of the country give conflicting answers to legal questions. The new court would not have permanent judges; its members would be drawn temporarily from among judges in lower federal courts. The intercircuit tribunal's decisions would be binding, unless the supreme Court itself modified such a ruling.

Perhaps there is a need for safeguards, such as permitting a case to be transferred to the Supreme Court by vote of some specific number of judges of the intercircuit court, as well as by order of the high court. The essential point is to preserve the Supreme Court's role as final arbiter while giving the justices some respite from the immense volume of cases they now must hear and decide.

However, we question another Burger proposal — to add a 10th associate justice to the Supreme Court. The new justice would not hear cases, but would help with the administration of the federal court system. It seems to us that if Burger can delegate some administrative duties to the court bureaucracy, or to chief judges of the lower courts, he should do so. If the duties absolutely require the chief justice's attention, there seems to be no proper way that Burger can escape them.

Some folks can't lose for winning

Well, everyone seems to be back in town, not only the winners, but the losers in last November's election. The victors have taken their seats in the House and Senate, and the losers have taken theirs in one of Washington's 100,000 prestigious law firms.

Ex-Congressman Turtleback is one of the losers, if you call making $350,000 a year with Tort & Tort a losing proposition.

"I thought you'd go back to Wistful Country after you lost your seat," I said.

"You ever been in Wistful Country?" Turtleback asked me.

"Can't say that I have," I admitted. "All I know about it is what you said on the floor of the House — that it was America's biblical Garden of Eden."

"I'm not on the floor anymore, and Wistful County is the pits. I'm not just saying that because I lost the election after serving the people there for 20 years. It was the pits when I first came to Congress, and it's the pits now."

"Did you ever practice law before you got elected to public office?"

"No, and I don't intend to practice it now. I'm going to be the rainmaker at Tort & Tort."

"What's a rainmaker?"

"The fellow that makes it rain new business on the firm because of the people he knows. I may be out of office but I still have friends who owe me a few favors."

"Then you're going to be an influence peddler."

"Never. My job is to provide advice and consent to the private sector which can't operate under the oppressive laws passed by a vindictive anti-business Congress," he said. "Clients will come to me, not because of the influence I still wield, but because of my expertise in getting around the overbearing rules and regulations I demanded when I served the people."

"I can see where Tort & Tort would want you to be a partner in their firm," I said. "Will you also provide lobbying services?"

"You can't be a rainmaker in Washington if you are not willing to stand up for the things your clients believe in. The reason ex-congressmen and ex-senators are in demand by Washington law firms is that we have access to our former colleagues on the floor, not to mention the use of the congressional dining rooms and the gym. It's amazing how much law you can practice when you're doing Jane Fonda exercises with the chairman of a House or Senate committee."

"And they don't treat you any differently because you are no longer a member of Congress?"

"They treat you better, because now that you're with a big law firm you are a potential source of funds for their future political campaigns."

"What about the administration? How do they look on you?"

"Kindly. If you were a former Republican congressman, they want to make it up to you for losing your election. And if you were a former Democratic congressman, they are so delighted that you are no longer in opposition that they'll go overboard to show they don't hold grudges."

"You can't say Washington doesn't take care of its own."

"Had I known then what I know now I would have lost an election 10 years ago," he said.

The phone rang and Turtleback picked it up. "Willy, how are you? How are things at Wistful Tools?"

You don't say? The Navy refuses to pay you for the Snail Darter tool kit? ... They claim you overcharged them by $10 million? No problem, Willy, we'll not only get your money, but we'll get an apology from the Pentagon." Turtleback hit the Tort & Tort timer on his desk and then said, "Tell me the story."

After 20 minutes he hung up and winked at me. Then he broke into song: "I'm singing in the rain, singing in the rain. What a glorious feeling da de, da da da."

Donovan didn't kiss and tell

WASHINGTON — The relationship between Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan's construction company and an alleged mob-connected subcontractor was a lot closer than Donovan and the FBI told the Senate Labor Committee during his stormy confirmation hearings, according to a long-suppressed FBI teletype I've obtained.

The information in the teletype came from the same tape-recorded conversations that provided important evidence for Donovan's recent indictment on criminal counts. Yet the FBI never saw fit to give the complete text of the incriminating teletype to the Senate committee.

Nearly 1,500 hours of FBI tapes recorded the business dealings of William P. Masselli, principal owner of Jopel Contracting & Trucking Corp., the subcontractor that did work for Donovan's Schiavone Construction Corp. on New York City subway jobs. The tapes were part of an FBI investigation code-named "TUMCOM."

The teletype from the New York FBI office to Washington headquarters, dated Jan. 10, 1981, was obtained by my associate Tony Capaccio. It referred unmistakably to the secret tapes, saying: "A review of the pending investigation entitled 'TUMCOM,' which included the use of court-ordered electronic surveillance, revealed that William P. Masselli maintained a very close and personal relationship with the Schiavone Construction Corp. and its upper management." Donovan was executive vice president of Schiavone.

Yet 17 days later, FBI official Francis "Bud" Mullen, now director of the Drug Enforcement Administration, assured the Senate committee that there had been "very, very limited contact, especially where the nominee (Donovan) was involved," between executives of the two companies.

Another FBI official, Anthony Adamski, who was in charge of the Donovan background check, told the senators that there had been "some contact, but nothing I would consider to be significant" between the two firms' executives.

Why should anyone care how close the Schiavone and Jopel executives were? Because, as the teletype informed Washington, "Masselli is a self-admitted member of the Vito Genovese family of La Cosa Nostra."

The New York office teletype said of the Schiavone-Jopel contacts: "This relationship included social engagements and frequent business contacts."

Yet when Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, the committee chairman, asked Donovan, "Have they (the Schiavone-Jopel contacts) been on a close or social basis, or more a contract-business basis?" The nominee replied, "Totally on a contract-business basis."

The teletype specifically noted that Donovan "was never recorded in the 'TUMCOM' investigation, nor was the appointee directly referred to in any recorded conversation save one." Donovan's name came up in a conversation between Masselli and his son, Nat, who was later murdered.

In this conversation, significantly, the elder Masselli was recalling a social affair he attended with a Schiavone executive — an apparent direct contradiction of Donovan's claim that his company's relationship with Jopel was "totally on a contract-business basis."

Senator: Our system is failing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bernhard Goetz, the man accused of shooting four teenagers on the New York subway, is a symbol of the criminal justice system's failure to protect people "against thugs and toughs who operate with impunity," Sen. Alfonse D'Amato said Thursday.

The New York Republican said he would be glad to testify on Goetz's behalf that young criminals make the subway a dangerous place, but he added it would be wrong to "condone vigilantism as the answer" to the problem.

"I'm afraid to get in that subway system even when I'm with a bodyguard and even my bodyguard is afraid," D'Amato said at a hearing of the Congressional Crime Caucus.

"I've been on that subway when three, four and five thugs get on a train. They don't have to threaten you. They are very menacing by their presence and some of them get a kick out of it," the senator said.

D'Amato and the caucus chairman, Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., said solutions to the growing problem of arrogant toughs and career criminals are mandatory jail sentences for serious crimes and building more prisons.

The caucus, an advisory group, said it held the hearing to examine a possible rise in vigilantism in America.

"I believe the people of this country are truly fed up with the judicial system," Specter said. "If we cannot provide law, order and justice, then people will take the law into their own hands."

'I'm afraid to get in that subway system even when I'm with a bodyguard and even my bodyguard is afraid.'

D'Amato said he sympathized with the situation Goetz faced and that the case "will not be an isolated instance because it represents the building emotions of millions of people who live each day knowing that there is a very real possibility that they will be the next target of some thug."

Goetz's lawyer, Joseph Kerner, a witness at the hearing, responded to D'Amato's remarks by saying, "I think I'll subpoena you, sir. Would you be willing to testify?"

D'Amato responded, "I'd be glad to."

Later, however, Kerner, asked whether he would subpoena D'Amato as an expert witness on crime in the New York subway, responded, "I haven't considered it seriously, but the senator is a very fine and eloquent speaker and would be a good witness."

Goetz, an electronics engineer, is awaiting possible trial on charges that he shot and wounded the youths after they harassed him on a subway train Dec. 22. He has reportedly told New York police he shot the four in self-defense.

Two of the four remain hospitalized and one of them is in a coma. None of the four youths has been charged.

Kerner told reporters Goetz is "a compassionate, reserved man who wouldn't hurt a fly, but after his leg was maimed in a mugging in 1981, he couldn't stand to be violated again."

"He reacted to the situation like a woman would react when she is about to be raped," said Kerner, who himself has been the victim of two muggings.

Kerner told the caucus that Goetz has yet to reveal certain details about the shootings that will exonerate him if he is tried.

"He (Goetz) is the personification of the finest we can produce in America," Kerner said. "He has never been arrested, he worked to obtain a master's degree, and he is a gentle person."

After he was mugged, Goetz tried twice to get a pistol permit from the New York police department but was denied one. Weapons charges were also filed against him.

D'Amato, who recalled an instance when his daughter was fondled on a New York City subway train, said Goetz is a hero to many because he stood up to what he called the growing arrogance of young criminals.

"Why is it that young thugs and toughs operate with impunity?" D'Amato said. "It's because after they are apprehended the likelihood that they will spend any time in prison is minuscule."

Around The Rim

Growing up by the bay

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
America's most hyped and commercialized annual television event is about to descend on us again this Sunday.

Super Bowl XIX.

Pop artist Andy Warhol said in a 1980 New York Times telephone survey taken before Super Bowl XV that he was going to prop himself in bed with a mound of pillows and not miss a second of the entire televised event.

I and scores of Americans as well as people around the world plan to do the same.

I'm not sure about being in bed surrounded by a mound of pillows though.

Since the game is being played in Palo Alto, just south of San Francisco — the ABC producer will more than likely call for an aerial view from the Goodyear blimp of that big city with the Golden Gate Bridge.

In 1973 while traveling from Oregon to southern California, I stopped in San Francisco's North Beach area to visit City Lights Bookstore and look for Beatnik poets Lawrence Ferlinghetti and Gregory Corso.

How romantic. How stupidly dangerous.

I slept on a bench in Pioneer Park surrounding Coit Tower that night.

In 1975, after spending the day viewing European paintings at DeYoung Museum in Golden Gate Park, I wandered into what I thought was a restaurant in the Greek section of town near Fillmore.

Instead, someone at the door told me a Reverend named Jim Jones was holding a free community dinner. Jones was to give a sermon afterwards.

I was asked to stay. I had sense enough not to. Something seemed out of tune about the entire setting.

Three years later I'm staring in shock at newspaper headlines talking about a mass suicide in Guyana. Some crazed fellow named Jim Jones who moved his followers and temples from San Francisco and other parts of California.

On second thought, maybe I will get in bed and bury my head in a mound of pillows if ABC calls for a camera zoom from the blimp of that city with the bridge.

Opinions expressed in this column are those of the staff writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the newspaper's management.

Today

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, Jan. 18, the 18th day of 1985. There are 347 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Jan. 18, 1919, the World War I Peace Congress opened in Versailles, France.

On this date: In 1782, lawyer and statesman Daniel Webster was born in Salisbury, N.H.

In 1788, the first English settlers arrived in Australia's Botany Bay to establish a penal colony.

In 1862, the 10th president of the United States, John Tyler, died at the age of 71.

In 1911, the first landing of an aircraft on a ship took place as pilot Eugene B. Ely brought his plane in for a safe landing on the deck of the USS Pennsylvania in San Francisco harbor.

In 1912, English explorer Robert Scott and his expedition reached the South Pole only to find that Roald Amundsen had beaten him to it. Scott and his party died during the return trip.

In 1936, author Rudyard Kipling died.

In 1943, during World War II, the Soviets announced they'd broken the long Nazi siege of Leningrad.

Also in 1943, a ban on the sale of pre-sliced bread went into effect for the duration of World War II in an effort to save on labor costs and steel cutting equipment.

In 1970, Mormon president David McKay died at the age of 96.

Ten years ago: The situation comedy "The Jeffersons" premiered on CBS.

Five years ago: The price of gold hit a record $845 an ounce in Europe.

Dr. Donohue

Doctor comments on a.m. headache

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: In a recent column, you discussed headaches on waking up in the morning. In addition to the possibilities you discussed, I want to mention that a buildup of carbon monoxide due to a faulty furnace or wood stove with inadequate ventilation can do the same, especially if several family members have the problem. I enjoy your column and learn from it. — M.D.R., M.D.

An excellent recommendation, doctor, and an opportunity to once again warn people about carbon monoxide poisoning, which I do every year about this time. Carbon monoxide is a colorless, odorless gas that arises from incomplete combustion of any fuel. Portable space heaters in a closed room are notorious sources of this gas. Since you cannot see or smell the gas, the symptoms, including headache, creep up on you. A cherry-red skin color is supposed to be a tip-off, but that is a sign of very severe poisoning, and earlier, more subtle, signs would precede that.

As the doctor points out, sometimes the only symptom is the awakening headache that disappears as the person gets fresh oxygen, as when he opens windows or leaves the house.

The symptoms are caused by the nature of the gas. Carbon monoxide competes with oxygen for attachment to our red blood cells. And it's an overpowering competitor for that attachment space. So the symptoms of CO poisoning are those of oxygen lack. Usually getting the person to a CO-free atmosphere reverses the problem, although in serious poisoning, an oxygen chamber may be needed to get rid of the CO buildup in the blood.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What are the various medicines for peptic ulcer? — W.L.

There are three: antacids to neutralize stomach acid, medicine to protect the ulcer surface from stomach acid erosion, and a third kind, one to actually block production of the acid. One or a combination may be used.

Hostesses honor Sharnell Flournoy at bridal shower

Sharnell Flournoy, bride-elect of Leland Daniels, was honored at a shower at the Fellowship Hall of Trinity Baptist Church, Jan. 5.

Hostesses for the event were: Sue Bradbury, Pat Daniels, Sharon Grant, Merlene Brown, Melva Cooper, Nelda Colclazer, Donna Grant, Jeanie Knocke, Gladys Thompson, Sharon Bronaugh, Betty Griffith, Sandi Henderson, Neva Shaffer, Quita Shryack, Sue Lane and Lela Baker. The hostesses presented Miss Flournoy with a vacuum cleaner and a red corsage containing kitchen gadgets.

Special guests included: the honoree's mother Mrs. W.L. Bowman, the prospective bridegroom's mother Ms. Melvin Daniels, the honoree's grandmother Mrs. Leo Berry, her sister Sharla Flournoy, and the prospective bridegroom's grandmothers Ms. T.L. Daniels and Mrs. A.C. Hodges.

The couple will wed Jan. 26 at First Baptist Church of Boerne.

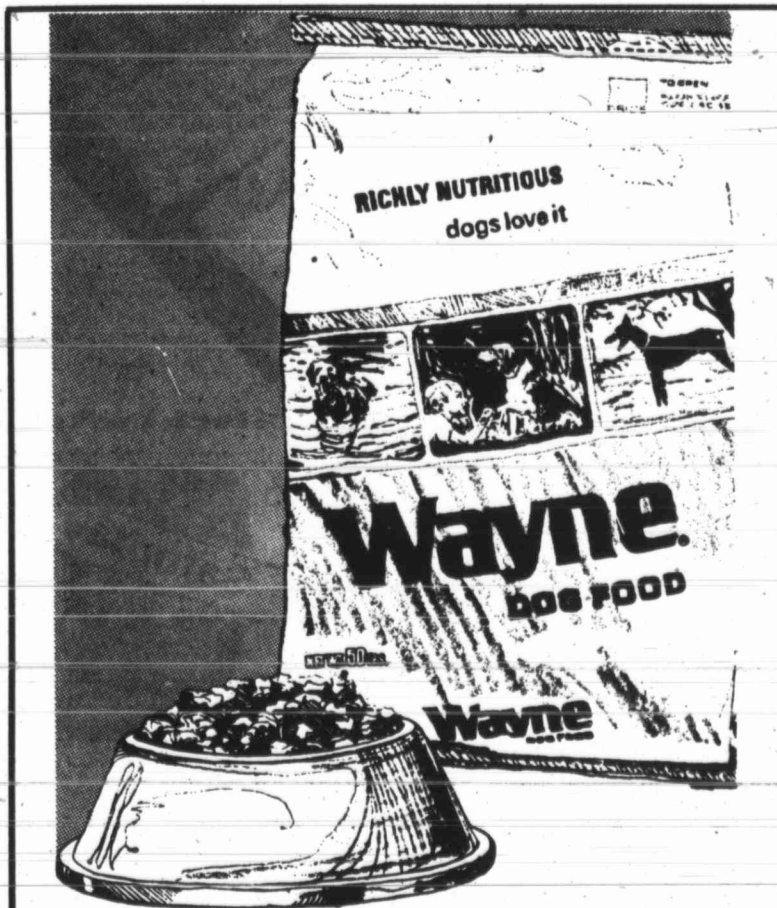

Mother's March needs volunteers

Volunteers are needed to walk for the Mother's March of the March of Dimes, which will be Jan. 29. To volunteer, call Linda Floyd at 263-3014 or Pam Walker at 399-4478. March of Dimes works for the prevention of birth defects.

Dear Abby

Friend wants to swap husbands

DEAR ABBY: My best friend of almost 15 years was married for the third time about a year ago.

Two months ago, she asked me if I was interested in "swapping" husbands. I immediately said "No" because: (1) I think it's immoral; (2) I value my marriage; (3) I do not want to have sex with another man ... especially with my best friend's husband. (She said it was her husband's idea.)

Since then, my best friend has been cool to me, but she's been coming on to my husband ... flirting, pressing against him, etc. Also, her husband has been coming on to me. He told me he's been dreaming about me, and ever since he heard I refused to go to bed with him, it makes him want me all the more!

I asked my husband what he thought about the swapping idea just to see what he'd say, and he said, "I'll think about it." I was angry because he didn't say no right off the bat like I did.

I still value my friendship with my best friend, and I feel sorry for her because she married that jerk.

How can we stay friends with this couple without agreeing to swap, which I think is what everybody wants, except me?

NO NAMES, SMALL TOWN

DEAR NO NAMES: You can't. And the sooner you say goodbye to your best friend and the jerk she married, the healthier your marriage will be.

DEAR ABBY: This is a suggestion for "Hurt Grandmother," whose grandchildren (living in a distant state) never found the time to write thank-you notes for her lovely gifts and generous checks:

On the next gift-giving occasion, send a generous check — but "forget" to sign it.

I guarantee that within three days you will receive some kind of written message plus the check for your signature.

DEAR BARBARA: Beautiful. But most grandmothers are such pigeons, they would probably sign the check and promptly send it back.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 62 years to a man who has the habit of mumbling. No one can understand him because he won't speak up. And to make matters worse, he has the habit of putting his hand over his mouth when he talks.

Everytime he says something, I ask him to repeat it. It really is nerve-racking.

I have asked him in a nice way to please keep his hands away from his mouth when he talks and to speak up, but it's like talking to a wall.

Is there a solution? Or is it true that you can't teach an old horse new tricks?

MUMBLER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: When your mumbler says something you aren't able to understand, don't ask him to repeat it, just ignore him. If it's important (to him), he'll repeat it until he gets his message across.

You can teach an old horse new tricks if it's in the best interest of the old horse to learn.

Rebekahs install new officers

Mary Stewart was installed as noble grand during the Big Spring Rebekah Lodge #284 meeting Tuesday.

Other officers installed were: Mary Cole, vice grand; Juanita Hamlin, financial secretary; Lucille Brown, treasurer; Iva Kenney, junior past noble grand; Mary Leek, warden; Annie Branson, conductor; Mabel Morrison, chaplain; Myrtle Gring, color bearer; Beatrice Bonner, outside

Assisting the District Deputy President Lila Holland with the installation were: Frances Loftis, June Wiggins, Mildred Collins, Lucille Brown, Mary Leek, Mrs. Melton and Mrs. Branson.

Those named to other offices are: Mrs. Branson, funeral marshal; Mrs. Leek, reporter; Hugh Rhyme, sweetheart; and Mrs. Morrison, term mother.

Members having birthdays in January were honored following the business meeting. The next meeting will be Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

The making of a hero

New film features Chernenko as military leader

MOSCOW (AP) — A new film extolling the border guard service of President Konstantin U. Chernenko a half-century ago is being shown, apparently to portray him as a military hero in time for the 40th anniversary commemorations of the victory over Nazism.

The 20-minute documentary, shown to the public for the first time this week at movie theater in an outlying district of Moscow, recalls Chernenko's service as a border guard in the central Asian republic of Kazakhstan from 1930 to 1932.

Many Soviets and Westerners in Moscow see the film as part of the effort by cultural and political authorities to commemorate the victory in the Great Patriotic War, as World War II is known in the Soviet Union.

The anniversary, celebrated by the Soviet Union on May 9, has already prompted Soviet newspapers to run articles recalling World War II military leaders. A daily feature on the evening television news shows footage of Soviet troops advancing toward Berlin 40 years earlier.

In light of the personality cults which surround top Soviet leaders, it would be unnatural for Chernenko to be excluded from this effort.

By the time the Nazis invaded the Soviet Union in 1941, however, Chernenko was already out of the armed services and entrenched in Communist Party work. Thus his two years in the border guard may have been seen as the best vehicle for portraying him as a military figure.

The first sign of this was an article on April 10 in the Defense Ministry daily, Krasnaya Zvezda (Red Star).

The article, which officially marked the 60th anniversary of the Red Banner border detachment where Chernenko served, praised him as a "crack shot" who "never missed the mark when throwing hand grenades" and a gallant horseman who always rode at the head of a detail when guarding the border with China.

It did not cite any specific heroic deeds performed by the future leader and gave his work in the Communist Party, which he joined in 1932, as much prominence as his military prowess.

The film also gives no detail of individual feats performed by Chernenko in defense of the Soviet border — a duty always cited as a high priority in this vast, security-conscious nation.

Grigory Konev, a farmer who served alongside Chernenko, recounts that the time of their service was "very difficult" because of the collectivization of peasant holdings into state-owned farms that was taking place in Kazakhstan.

Queens round up Ranger

By CHARLIE ALCORN
Sports Writer

The Howard County Hawks-Queens flew past Ranger Junior College with stingy defense and fine offensive execution in a 67-47 rout of the Rangeannes.

The turning point in the game occurred early in the first half when coach Don Stevens instructed his squad to switch from a man-to-man defense to a 1-3 zone. "We found out pretty early that we were not going to be able to handle their speed one-on-one," said Stevens. "Once we got our zone adjusted the girls shut them down."

While the Rangeannes were able to hit several early buckets driving against the slower Howard squad, the Queens countered with the long range bombing of Molly Early, who led Howard with 19 points. Early was also the catalyst for a late first half scoring streak which put the Queens ahead to stay, 29-22 at half.

"Ranger was leaving Molly open from the outside and our girls were able to reverse the ball to her," explained Stevens. "It's a mistake to leave her open and she sure proved it during that streak." The Queens had a fine defensive second half led by Howard's own twin towers, Allison and Diane Dickson. The 6'4" posts effectively clogged the lanes, forcing Ranger to put up a number of low percentage shots.

"Actually, the players we have starting for us now are much better suited for the 1-3 zone than the girls at the first of the year," commented Stevens. "We've got some long arms out there on the wings which makes the zone even more effective."

Midway through the second half, Ranger tried a full court press which had given the Queens trouble in two earlier contests. But Howard handled the press with ease behind the excellent ballhandling of guards Lori French, Stacy Eitner and Alex Provincio.

Another factor in the lopsided victory was the Howard County free throw shooting in the second half. The Queens made 10 of 14 in the last period after only making 9 of 18 in the first.

"I wasn't too happy about our first half free throw percentage and I told them to concentrate. It made a big difference in the second half," explained Stevens.

Besides the offensive minded Early, the Queens had balanced scoring from the rest of the squad including 11 points from Provincio and eight points apiece from Diane Dickson, Tami Winnsman, and Eitner. French led the Queens rebounding effort with 10 and Allison Dickson pulled down nine. The Queens also had 11 steals for the night including five by French.

Coach Stevens was delighted with the progress his team is showing after the major line up changes that occurred after the Christmas holidays. "The girls are still getting used to playing together and they were a little tentative at first tonight. I was real proud of the way they executed the offense and hustled on defense. We were not expecting an easy ball game, but they took it to Ranger and played good ball the whole night."

Howard's record goes to 16-5 with the victory. Their next game will be against the nation's top junior college team, Odessa JC, who is undefeated and averaging 100 at 6:00 p.m., Monday night at the points a game. The game will start Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

San Francisco quarterbacks MATT CAVANAUGH (6) and JOE MONTANA sit in the access gate to the field at Candlestick Park. CAVANAUGH has taken a back seat to MONTANA throughout the season but is considered one of the finest backup quarterbacks in the league.

Miami, 49ers stay healthy

SAN FRANCISCO — "The mental approach is an integral part of the winning edge," said All Pro guard Ed Newman, a man with a psychology degree from Duke University.

"Coach Shula's always talking about it. At the professional level we all have the tools — great strength, great speed, great concentration — so it's the extra knowledge we have that sometimes makes the difference."

Shula was more concerned with the soggy turf at his team's Oakland practice site.

"We can't go at full speed because we don't want anyone to pull hamstrings or groin muscles," he said. "It's hard to get down the timing between our quarterbacks and receivers that way."

One of those receivers, Mark Clayton, was even more explicit.

"It's the pits," he said of the field, once the home of the Raiders before they moved to Los Angeles. "You can't make a turn. The ground comes up every time."

The Dolphins had one more day of workouts on the field before moving to Stanford Stadium, site of the game, for a light drill on Saturday. "We won't have any problems there," he said. "It's a fast track, just how we like it."

That fast track, of course, is perfect for Marino, who tore up the NFL record book this season with 48 touchdown passes and 5,084 yards. His San Francisco counterpart, Joe Montana, is considered a close second among NFL quarterbacks.

The obvious theme of Montana vs. Marino has dominated the discussion this week. A lesser theme, and the one that may prove to be just as important, is the attempt by each of the coaching staffs to get into their opponents' heads.

One key theme, for example, is the duel between the fertile offensive mind of San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh and the Dolphins' defensive coordinator, Chuck Studley.

Studley coached under Walsh for 11 years, is a close friend, and ran the San Francisco defense in their Super Bowl year of 1981.

"Bill's going to be looking across the line at me wondering 'What is Chuck thinking?'" And I'll be looking across the line at him wondering the same thing about him," Studley has said.

The same duel will be going on between George Seifert, Walsh's defensive coordinator, and Shula, who calls most of the team's plays in conjunction with son, David, the team's receiver coach, and veteran backup quarterback Don Strock.

That will show up during the game in subtleties.

"It's Studley's system to slide people around. They change along their front just enough to throw you off," said 49ers' right guard Randy Cross. "They have very smart people. You can tell by thinking about them that they're always thinking out there."

So is the 49er defense. For example, Walsh wanted linebacker Jack "Hacksaw" Reynolds to retire this year and become an assistant coach, but Reynolds declined and continues to play with his brain more than his 37-year-old legs.

"I've seen a lot of guys come into the NFL with great talent and great speed," Reynolds said. "But if they don't study and they don't think, they're not gonna play very long."

One big question is how the 49ers will try to contain Marino — by blitzing or using a secondary that's one of the NFL's best to blanket the Miami receivers. Walsh and Seifert have indicated that they would prefer the latter, using a three- and four-man pass rush.

But that's leaving some Miami players and coaches wondering whether they're not putting out that information deliberately, then will come with a blitz.

"It's hard to figure," said Newman. "I think they'll probably play their basic defense, but they may come with four or even five defensive linemen to put pressure on Marino. Putting pressure on him has to be the key to their defense."

In fact, the San Francisco defense depends in large measure on keeping an opponent off balance by guessing just who's in the game.

The 49ers have nine defensive linemen, most of any team in the NFL, and use them all in various alignments.

MIDLAND — Four minutes is not a long period of time in a 40 minute basketball game. For the Howard College Hawks it was long enough to prevent them from upsetting the first place Midland College Chaparrals in Western Junior College Athletic Association play.

Thanks to a cold four minute span late in the final half the 6-0 Chaps escaped with a 81-78 win over HC coach Ed Sparling's scrappy eight-man unit.

The Chaps were fortunate to come away with the victory taking into consideration the way the Hawks shot. Howard hit a scorching 64 percent from the floor, 28 of 44 attempts. The Hawks also sank 22 of 32 free throws but turned the ball over 16 times compared to six turnovers by their opponent.

If not for the stellar performances turned in by Midland's "big and little men", the Chaps might not be tied with Odessa College for first place. Midland's "little man" in the spotlight was 5-4 freshman guard Pokie Wigington, who came off the bench to collect six steals and six assists. His pestering defense was one of the main reasons for Hawk turnovers.

The Chaps "big man" was 6-10 Tevin Binns, who turned in a game-high 27 points and 11 rebounds before fouling out with one minute remaining. The Chap post got most of his shots from the 7-10 foot range over the shorter Hawks.

The second half cold period was what did the Hawks in. It started at the eight minute mark in the second half with the scored tied 60-60. It ended four minutes later after Midland had scored 10 unanswered points. HC post Marty Jenkins' basket broke the drought in which Howard was plagued by fouls and turnovers.

Ironically, it was the first time Midland took the lead in the second half, after leading for most of the first half. The Hawks ran off a 8-5 scoring spurt in the final four minutes of the half to take a 34-32 halftime lead.

After their scoreless four minutes, the Hawks fought gamely to get back into the contest, slowly creep-score to one Midland iced the game when Wigington made four free throws.

6-7 Jenkins put in a good nights work as he hit 8-11 from the field, 10-13 from the line for a team-leading 26 points. He also pulled down 10 rebounds and blocked two shots.

A dejected Sparling talked about his team's loss after the game. "The deciding factor was that they kept going to their bench for fresh players to keep the pressure on us. We made some mental mistakes and didn't adjust to the pressure. We have a young squad and everything just takes some time, but the improvement is always there."

The entire Hawks squad shot well for the game. Guards Michael Porter and Bruce Kimble scored 17 and 20 points respectively. Porter sank 5 of 8 shots while Kimble connected on 10 of 14 attempts.

Kimble caught fire late in the first half and continued in the second period. At one time he bombed seven-in-a-row from the outside. He was HC's main weapon in the early going of the second half when Howard hit seven of its first 10 shots.

ing their way back into contention. HC narrowed the margin to 77-74 on two free throws by Jenkins with one minute remaining.

The Hawks pulled to within one, at 77-76, when the ever-present Jenkins grabbed Bruce Kimble's missed free throw attempt and put it in with 35 second remaining. The

Peete fires 65 to lead Phoenix Golf action

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Calvin Peete, the most successful black golfer the sport has produced, said two factors have contributed to his fast start this season.

"The weather was gorgeous — ideal," said Peete, a notorious hot-weather player who has scored all his eight PGA Tour triumphs in summer heat.

And, too, there was some work during the offseason.

"I worked on my game over the holidays," Peete said Thursday. "Usually, I don't do that, just put the clubs in the closet and forget about 'em for a while."

The result was a no-bogey round of 6-under-par 65 that staked Peete to the first round lead in the $450,000 Phoenix Open.

"It was a very enjoyable day," said Peete, 41, who last season won the Vardon Trophy as the leading scorer on the PGA Tour.

"I managed my game well. And, at this stage of the season, that's what I'm trying to do, manage my game and have patience. This early in the year, you don't expect to hit shots like I did on the last two holes," he said.

Those two shots, with an 8-iron on the 17th and a sand wedge on the 18th, each nestled to within 18 inches of the flag, giving him tap-ins for the birdie-birdie finish that lifted him into the lead.

Isao Aoki of Japan, Morris Hatahsy and rookie Phil Blackmar shared second at 66, a single stroke back. Blackmar chipped in two chip-ins, including an eagle-3 on the 18th, and used only nine putts over the last nine holes.

Lanny Wadkins, a winner last week in the Bob Hope Classic, could do no better than a round of 70 on the 6,726-yard Phoenix Country Club course, and Masters champion Ben Crenshaw struggled to a 73.

B-County splits with New Home

GAIL — The Borden County Coyotes split wins with the New Home Leopards in District 10-A action last night.

The Borden County girls, ranked No. 6 in the state, dropped the Leopards by a score 51-22. Kelli Williams led all scorers with 10 points. Teri Billington and Sherry Vaughn added 10 points each.

The win ups the Lady Coyotes' district record to 4-0 and 18-1 overall. It also sets up a showdown with O'Donnell (4-0, 19-1) Tuesday in O'Donnell. New Home sinks to 0-15 for the season.

The Borden County boys came up on the short end by a score of 63-51. Robin Hood and Chris Cooley combined for 34 BC points.

The Coyotes are now 0-4 in district play and 5-14 overall. New Home is 9-7 and 1-3 in district.

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JAN. 19, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Except for taking chances where social and romantic matters are concerned leading to some upsetting incidents, it is a good day and evening to get into practical affairs.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Contact someone who has the ability to assist you in your career and state what it is you need the most.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have fine ideas of a practical nature that can be made to work with the assistance of out-of-town newcomers.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A good day to talk over with business persons just how to become more prosperous in the days ahead.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Think over what demanding partners expect of you and satisfy them only to the right extent.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Get right down to the core of any work ahead of you and polish it off nicely, but cooperate more with fellow-workers.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get into the activities that will give you surcease from worry and have a delightful time. Show more affection for your mate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good day to stay at home and get it into fine condition. Then invite guests in later and treat them very nicely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) An ideal day to join with as many friends as possible and plan for greater success in the days ahead.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get all those fine ideas down to a workable level and be more practical to get right results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get your personal aims well organized in the morning so that you can gain them quickly. The evening can bring lots of fun.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Try to get your visionary ideas down to a practical and workable level today. Buy some charming gift for your mate.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get in touch with that older person you know if you want to attain some personal longing with ease.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be a born organizer and should have courses along such lines so that your progeny can become an expert in such an important profession. One who will be able to get along just fine with persons of importance and who can be of much assistance.

Fellowship network serves community

By KIM KIRKHAM
Religion Editor

The Howard County Ministerial Fellowship, an interdenominational network of ministers and other professional church staff members, is a service to the community.

"Fellowship is the key word in the name of the group," said Dixie Robertson, president. "It is basically a chance for ministers to get together." Other officers are: Keith Gibbons, vice president; Carl Powers, secretary; and Kenneth Patrick, treasurer.

According to Miss Robertson, a good rapport is established in the fellowship, giving ministers the opportunity to share success stories and good and bad experiences of their ministry.

"Part of the purpose is to respond to the community needs," said Miss Robertson. "The Rainbow Project was conceived and developed by the ministerial alliance and still receives a great deal of support from member churches," she said.

The fellowship sponsors the annual Bible Fund drive. Money raised pays for the Bible class at Big Spring High School. "The goal is to do some high quality education regarding the scriptures," said

Miss Robertson.

If, because of school reform changes, Bible classes are not allowed to be taught in the schools, "the ministerial alliance's task would be to establish some alternatives," said Miss Robertson.

On Feb. 22, a film series by Billy Graham, "The Prodigal," will be shown at the Cinema in Big Spring. The evangelistic program was channeled through the fellowship and is sponsored by a mixture of denominations in the city. "It's a good film about family relations, especially parent-child relationships," said Miss Robertson. The community is invited to attend.

Majority of Americans favor prayer in school

By LAWRENCE KILMAN
Associated Press Writer

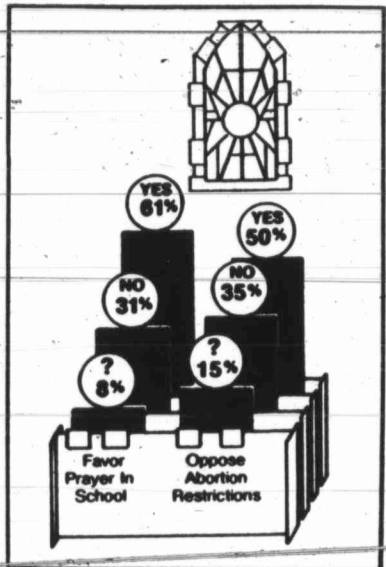

NEW YORK (AP) — Six of 10 Americans in a Media General-Associated Press poll said they would favor a constitutional amendment to permit organized prayer in public schools, but less than half said they went to church often.

The nationwide telephone survey of 1,476 Americans also said nearly seven of 10 Americans had no doubts about the existence of God. In addition, half of those surveyed said they would oppose a constitutional amendment to further restrict legal abortions.

The respondents were asked, "Do you support or oppose a constitutional amendment to allow organized prayer in public schools?" and 61 percent said they would support it, 31 percent said they would oppose it and 8 percent had no opinion.

Asked the same question about a constitutional amendment to further restrict legal abortions, 50 percent said they would oppose it, 35 percent said they would support it and 15 percent had no opinion.

When asked how often they attended the church of their choice, 46 percent said often, 22 percent said sometimes, 26 percent said hardly ever and 5 percent said they had no church of choice. One percent didn't answer.

The U.S. Supreme Court has been asked to decide whether state laws allowing public schools to set aside daily moments of silence for students may mention "prayer" as one possible activity during the silence.

At least 23 states have moment of silence laws, but not all of them mention prayer. Numerous political candidates last year, including President Reagan, called for a return of organized prayer in public schools. The court, which will announce its decision by July, was sharply divided in arguments last month.

The respondents in the Media General-AP poll also were asked which of several statements came closest to their beliefs about God. Sixty-nine percent chose "I know God really exists and I have no doubts about it." Only 3 percent chose "I don't know whether there is a God, and I don't believe there is any way to find out."

Twelve percent chose "While I have my doubts, I feel that I do believe in God"; 8 percent chose "I don't believe in a personal God, but I do believe in a higher power of some kind"; and 5 percent chose "I find myself believing in God some of the time, but not at other times." Three percent didn't answer or had no opinion.

Respondents in the Media General-Associated Press poll included a random, scientific sampling of 1,476 adults across the country Nov. 12-19. As with all sample surveys, the results of Media

General-AP telephone polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variation in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,400 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way because of chance variations in the sample. That is, if one could have questioned all Americans with telephones, there is only 1 chance in 20 that the findings would vary from the results of polls such as this one by more than 3 percentage points.

Of course, the results could differ from other polls for several additional reasons. Differences in exact wording of questions, differences in when the interviews were conducted and different methods of interviewing could also cause variations.

Bishop says arms talks significant step

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of the nation's Roman Catholic bishops says the U.S.-Soviet agreement to resume substantive arms control negotiations is "a small but potentially significant step toward creating a saner, safer world."

Bishop James W. Malone of Youngstown, Ohio, urged the two governments to "pursue the future negotiations seriously and with an appropriate sense of the urgency of reaching workable agreements to reduce and eliminate the nuclear threat."

Leader terms proposals irresponsible

NEW YORK (AP) — A leader of the American Jewish Committee terms "irresponsible and immoral" current proposals to change Israel's law of return to recognize only Jewish converts approved under Orthodox Jewish rules.

Rabbi David M. Gordis, the committee's executive vice president, says that for a small Israeli minority to "impose their definition of Jewishness" would violate the "religious freedom and equality" of the world's Jews.

Baptists pray for rain in Africa

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Southern Baptist leaders have urged the denomination's 14.3 million members to make 1985 a year of prayer for rain in drought-stricken Africa.

"Starving millions of Africans in some 30 countries have long since passed the point at which human wisdom alone can find a solution to their agony," says the Rev. R.

Coggon to give anniversary service

NEW YORK (AP) — The Archbishop of Canterbury, the Most Rev. Donald Coggon, will be the preacher for an ecumenical service tomorrow at St. Bartholomew's Church, marking its 150th anniversary.

The majestic Episcopal church in midtown Manhattan was started on the Bowery on Jan. 19, 1835.

Resolve to be a homeowner in the New Year!
5 Excellent reasons that you may never find a better time to purchase a home:

1. SELECTION — Over 400 properties now on the market offer a wide range of prices and amenities.
2. PRICE — During the last year, housing values have come down appreciably.
3. INTEREST RATE — Lower rates provide the best payment range since June, 1983.
4. AVAILABLE MONEY — Funds are readily available, and there are numerous loan packages tailored to fit your needs.
5. TAX BENEFITS — Home ownership provides deductions while enjoying the amenities of private property ownership.

NOW IS NO TIME TO HIBERNATE!

Yes, you could just roll over and sleep until next year hoping for the housing market to change — there's always that chance. But most likely you'll wake up, a year from now, to find that nothing has really changed... except that housing costs have risen again.

So call us at HOME REALTORS and let one of our specialist help you find your new home. As members of M.L.S. we can show all available houses in town. See our Sunday ad for many of our listings.
