Soviet Reaction Hurts

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Carter says surprising adverse Soviet reaction to his human rights crusade apparently is blocking nuclear arms limitation talks more than he thought it would.

"We have not made any additional steps forward toward a SALT agreement," he said.

Carter said the intensity of the Soviet reaction was one of four things that have surprised him as President. In an interview with editors and news directors from around the country, made public Saturday by the White House, Carter also listed:

-The complexity of some of the nation's problems.

-The time it will take to resolve some international questions, "if they are solved."

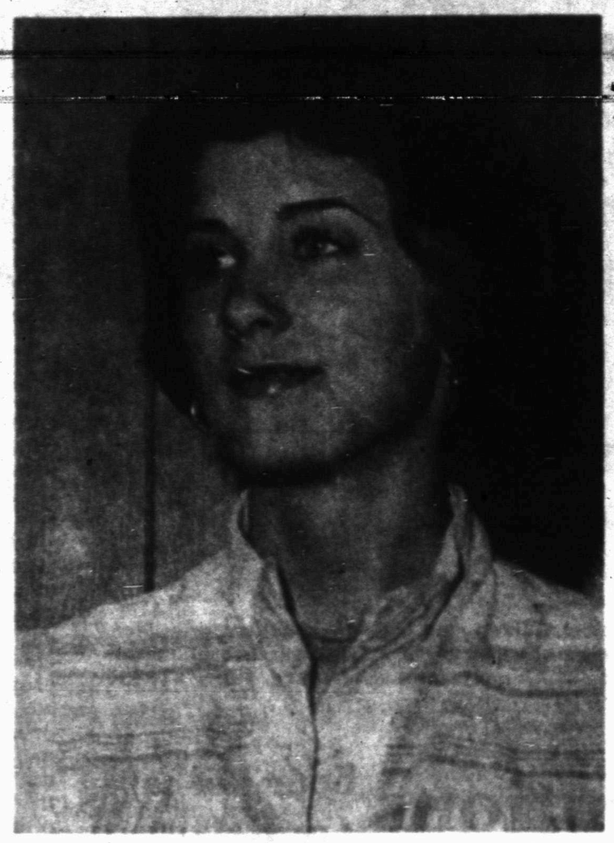

The amount of traveling Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance must do to meet expectations created by his globetrotting predecessor, Henry A. Kissinger.

"There has been a surprising adverse reaction in the Soviet Union to our stand on human rights," Carter told the editors and news directors, who met with him Friday. "We have never singled them, the Russians, out. I think I have been quite reticent in trying to publicly condemn the Soviets.

"I have never said anything except complimentary things about Mr. Leonid I. Brezhnev the Soviet leader, for instance, but apparently that has provided a greater obstacle to other friendly pursuits, common goals, like in SALT, than I had anticipated."

Three-Day Celebration Set Again

Although it won't quite match the Bicentennial-Centennial event of last year, Snyder's July 4th celebration again will stretch over a three-day period this year.

In fact, one event actually will begin on Friday, July 1, which technically makes it a four-day event. The first event on the calendar is the opening of the junior division of the July 4 Tennis Tournament. It will get underway at 2 p.m. Friday.

Then, beginning Saturday and continuing through the big fireworks display on Monday evening, there will be a continuous string of major events that are expected to keep huge crowds in Towle Memorial Park and other sites of special events.

The Arts and Crafts Show in the National Guard Armory and the annual July 4th Art Show in the Towle Park Barn, two of the most popular events, will be opened to the public at 1 p.m. Saturday. Meanwhile, the adult tennis tournament will be underway all day Satur-

Charles Holland and his wife, Kay, report that they have their own business going in the television commercial production field in Dallas.

"If we aren't careful, we may do O.K. in spite of ourselves," Holland scribbled on the bottom of an interesting report compiled by his wife, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K.O.Pitner.

Holland, former associate professor of speech and drama at Western Texas College, resigned at WTC effective at the end of the spring semester to try to get into his own business. He and Kay have formed Holland Productions and are officing at 222 Carillon Tower East 13601 Preston Road at LBJ, Dallas.

During their brief experience so far they have taped a qualifying meet for the Texas Hillclimber's Association, a baseball camp for an advertising agency, four TV commercials for an office furniture client of another advertising agency, six commercials for an Odessa bank for yet another advertising agency, and a commercial for an Irving auto dealer. They also have done three radio commercials and two TV commericals for the Dallas County Community College District.

It seems only weeks ago (or months at most) since Charles Holland arrived at WTC to set up the drama department. And he hardly got his feet wet in a figurative manner before it happened literally. His first WTC production, the Fantastiks, started out as an outdoor production in the WTC Central Courtyard, but attracted a driving rainstorm before the first performance was completed. Subsequent performances were completed in the Scurry County Coliseum.

And that is the way drama got its start at WTC.

From here it looks as if the Florida orange juice people will have to think twice, or more, before firing Anita Bryant as their No. 1 spokesman. If all of Anita's backers in the recent referendum on homosexual rights should suddenly switch to California and Texas juices, their share of the market would hit the skids.

Four In Race For Queen Of Tractor Pull

Four sponsors have announced their entrants for the first annual July 4th Tractor Puller Queen's Contest.

The queen will reign over the big Independence Day Tractor Pull, which will be held this year on Saturday, July 2, and Sunday, July 3, at the Scurry County Rodeo Grounds west of town.

Entered in the contest are Joan Bunch, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club; Alice Elaine Hollis, sponsored by the Jaycees; Laurie Bethel, sponsored by the Snyder Rotary Club, and Jeana von Roeder, sponsored by the Snyder Lions Club.

The winner will be decided on the basis of the number of July 4 Celebration tickets that are sold in her behalf prior to 5 p.m. Friday, July 1. The tickets, which help finance the Independence Day Celebration, which is sponsored each year by the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, sell for $1 each. They also may be used for the tractor pull event at the rodeo grounds.

Mrs. Bunch, the Kiwanis Club candidate, is the wife of Travis Bunch. Her hobbies include collecting albums, growing plants, cooking and traveling, and skiing, both on water and snow, and swimming.

Miss Hollis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F.B. Hollis. Her hobbies are playing piano and organ, scuba diving and both

Daily News To Take Holiday

The Snyder Daily News will not publish an issue on Monday July 4, Roy McQueen, publisher, has announced.

This will enable employes of the newspaper to participate in all of the Independence Day activities scheduled in Snyder over the July 4 weekend. Also, it means that the newspaper is observing the major summer holiday adopted for closing by Snyder merchants. The regular Sunday issue will be published on July 3 and the next issue after that will be published on the afternoon of Tuesday, July 5.

185 Scurry Cattlemen Sign For Referendum

About 185 Scurry County cattlemen have registered to participate in the nation's first beef referendum, said Roy Hanson, executive director of the Scurry County office of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service.

The 185 Scurry County cattlemen who have registered to participate in the beef referendum are among approximately 42,000 cattlemen registered in Texas and 295,000 cattle producers registered throughout the United States.

Only cattlemen who registered during the June 6-17 signup at their local ASCS office are qualified to vote July 5-15, Hanson said. The voting, he added, will be conducted by secret ballot.

If the beef referendum is passed, Hanson said, cattle producers will assess themselves three-tenths of one per cent, or 30 cents per $100 value, for each animal they sell. The money will be "passed through" at the point of each sale, but money would be remitted only at the time the animal is slaughted.

The funds will then be

Alaska Pipeline Oil To Ease Trade Deficit

NEW YORK (AP)-At the same time the U.S. Commerce Department was reporting a record $4.32 billion international payments deficit this past week, the first trickle of relief was moving slowly down the trans-Alaska pipeline.

The record first-quarter deficit, for all of last year it was only $1.36 billion, was blamed by analysts on the country's increase in oil imports.

For the first three months of the year, some of the coldest months on record, the United States imported about 820 million barrels of oil and oil products, a 36 per cent increase from a year before.

There's no question that the oil imports can be blamed for the deficit, experts said.

The balance-of-payments deficit should ease as the pipeline begins carrying more and more oil-American oil-to market in the lower 48 states, experts said.

The 800-mile, $7.7 billion pipeline began operation Monday, with small quantities of oil being moved south as the line is tested.

Elderly May Have A Refund Coming

Persons 65 years of age or older may be able to get a tax refund based on their income taxes for 1976, according to the new tax law recently signed by President Carter.

Under provisions of the newly enacted tax law, retired taxpayers who filed their income tax returns by April 15 are now being given the chance to amend these tax returns in order to retroactively claim either Retirement Income Credit or the Credit for the Elderly, whichever would benefit them the most.

Those who choose the Retirement Income Credit must file an amended return with the Internal Revenue Service to get their refund.

As a public service, H&R block, the nation's largest professional tax preparation service, is offering free help to assist persons in determining which method of filing is most advantageous and will provide and complete the amended return forms at no cost. Individuals need not be H&R Block customers to take advantage of this offer.

Several factors must be considered in determining the most beneficial way to file tax returns for individuals 65 and older, and the options can be very complex. Taxpayers who think they may qualify are advised to consult the Internal Revenue Service or the participating H & R Block office by calling 573-9002.

sent to a national beef board, administered by 68 cattle producers. Texas is expected to have six members on the board if the measure passes, Hanson said.

"Passage of the proposal requires a two-thirds vote of those certified cattle producers who registered," said Hanson.

Local reaction to the proposed beef referendum has been varied, Hanson pointed out. "Those cattlemen in favor of the beef referendum feel it will be their only chance to have a program like this," Hanson said, while those opposed to it cite the possibility of government interference.

The 185 Scurry County cattlemen who signed up to vote on the proposal came from the ranks of approximately 800 cattlemen who were eligible, Hanson said. Although only one-fourth of the local cattlemen signed up to vote on the proposal, Hanson said that "for this type of election, that's about normal."

Eligibility standards for voter signup required only that the participant had owned at least one head of cattle during 1976. Ownership of hogs, goats and other non-cattle livestock did not meet eligibility standards.

Because there is no age limit governing voter signup, members of Future Farmer of America clubs and 4-H chapter members were eligible to register, Hanson said.

However, voter registration for youngsters under the age of 18 was relatively light. Hanson estimated that "probably only a dozen or so" youngsters under 18 years of age signed up to vote in the referendum.

According to a prepared statement made by J.D. Sartwelle, chairman of the Texas Beef Development Taskforce, the referendum proposal will raise an estimated $30 to $40 million annually, if passed. The money will be used for beef research, education, promotion and foreign market development.

In order for the referendum to be valid, at least 50 per cent of those who registered must return to their ASCS office and vote. Then, at least two-thirds of those must vote 'Yes' before the program will be put into effect.

Certify Crop Acreage Now

Certification of crop acreage is now underway at the Scurry County office of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service.

"To prevent a last minute rush, farmers who have not already done so should come by the ASCS office and certify the crops planted on their farms," said Roy Hanson, executive director of the local ASCS office.

Hanson estimated that approximately one-fourth of the farmers needing to certify their crop-acreage have already done so. Certification began June 1 and continues through July 15.

Crop certification is for farmers wishing to participate in government sponsored programs operated through the ASCS office.

Legion Post, Auxiliary To Install Slate

Layne-Kite Post 181, the American Legion, and its Ladies Auxiliary will have a joint installation of officers for the coming year at 8 p.m. Monday at the post home, 1802 Avenue R.

Mike Mireles of San Antonio will install the Legion officers and Mrs. Werentte Smith of Snyder will install Auxiliary officers.

There also will be a report from the three Scurry County boys who attended the American Legion Boys State held in Austin earlier this month. Three youths, Joe Allen Hall of Ira, Britt Fuqua of Hermleigh and Clay Peterson of Snyer, went to Boys State. They were sponsored by the Legion Post, with the Kiwanis Club and Rotary Club assisting.

All Legion and Auxiliary members have been urged to be on hand for the installation ceremonies.

day, beginning at 9 a.m.

A new event, a truck rodeo, will begin at 2 p.m. Saturday on Houston Avenue on the west side of the park, and then have another performance at 2 p.m. Sunday. The Blue Grass Band Festival, another event, will have its first session at 2 p.m. Saturday in the park, and other sessions will follow at the same hour on Sunday and Monday.

Then, on Saturday night, the annual July 4th Tractor Pull will begin at 7:30 at the Scurry Conty Rodeo Grounds. It will continue with a second session at 8 p.m. Sunday.

Also, there will be volleyball at 2 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday.

Meanwhile, in Towle Memorial Park, a community worship service will be held at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. It will feature music by a community choir including representatives from several local churches.

The Arts and Crafts Show and the July 4th Art Show will be open from 1 p.m. to 10 p.m. Sunday and from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and 8 p.m., respectively, on Monday, July 4.

The annual July 4th Parade will be held in the park at 9 a.m. Monday, and the Jaycee Fishing Rodeo will begin at 10 a.m.

Prizes will be awarded and a skit will be presented by Frist Baptist Church just prior to the big fireworks display on the evening of July 4.

There will be the usual line-up of concession stands in the park during the celebration, and the carnival is scheduled to arrive Wednesday and remain through July 4.

Two Executions Set Wednesday

PHOENIX (AP)-Preparations for the execution of two convicted murderers at the Arizona State Prison were announced Friday.

John Henry Knapp and Paul William Jordan are scheduled to die in the gas chamber at the prison in Florence, Ariz., 90 minutes apart next Wednesday, said Tom Rippey, an aide to Gov. Raul Castor.

Unless the U.S. Supreme Court intervenes, the executions would be the first under Arizona's new death penalty statute. The last execution in the state was in 1963.

Applications for stays of execution for both Knapp and Jordan are pending before the U.S. Supreme Court. The justices were scheduled to consider the requests Thursday, but a spokeswoman for the court clerk said a decision is not expected until Monday.

Rippey said the details of the executions were worked out between Castro, Corrections Director John Moran and prison warden Harold Cardwell.

Rippey said invitations to witness the executions were extended to the Arizona Republic, the Phoenix Gazette, the Arizona Star, Tucson Citizen, Associated Press and United Press International. Photographs of the two men and the gas chamber will be allowed from 9 a.m. to noon Tuesday, said Rippey.

"No pictures will be allowed of the execution itself," he said.

The governor and corrections officials want to keep it orderly with no circus atmosphere."

Knapp, 30, was convicted in Maricopa County in 1974 for the deaths of his daughters Linda, 3, and Iona, 2. The jury found him guilty of setting a fire at his Mesa, Ariz. home in which the girls were killed.

Jordan, 37, of Texas was convicted in Maricopa County in 1975 of robbing and killing Abraham Osso, 77, a suburban Tempe, Ariz., grocery store owner.

Fire Damages Dwelling Here

A bedroom of the Albert Highfield home at 610 24th St. was gutted by fire Fridav afternoon.

Mrs. Highfield and two children were home at the outbreak of the fire, but escaped injury. The fire, Mrs. Highfield told firemen, reportedly began in a closet in the children's bedroom.

The cause of the fire is still being probed. The fire was reported at 4:25 p.m. Friday.

At 6:22 p.m. Friday, a minor grass fire was extinguished about 16 miles southwest of snyder, firemen reported.

Four Mishaps Are Reported Here Friday

Cars driven by Charles Clark Allen and Charles P. Dryden, both of Snyder, collided about midnight Friday at the intersection of 37th St. and College Ave., according to police reports.

The reports show Allen was driving a 1973 Pontiac and Dryden was driving a 1974 Mercury. Moderate damages were reported to each car. A wrecker was summoned to remove the Allen car from the scene of the collision.

Three other traffic accidents were also investigated Friday by Snyder police.

The intersection of 34th St. and Beaumont Ave. was the scene of a two-car collison Friday evening. A 1965 Ford driven by Pamela Dawn Burrus was in collision with a 1977 Oldsmobile driven by Charles Everette Jones. The mishap occurred at 7:12 p.m. and only minor damages were reported to the two cars.

A hit and run was reported Friday afternoon near the intersection of 27th St. and College Ave. A 1977 Pontiac owned by Lois Russell Havnerwas struck by another car which allegedly left the scene of the mishap. The incident was reported to police at 2:50 p.m.

Two cars collided in the 3700 block of College Ave. Friday at 9:55 a.m. Involved in the mishap were a 1971 Ford pickup truck driven by Charles Rivers of Rotan and a 1971 Ford driven by Lillian Golihar.

Good Samaritans Have No Regrets

EDITORS' NOTE - Where most people would hang back, these stepped forward and risked life and limb to save a stranger. They paid a heavy price. Do they have any regrets? And what makes for unselfish bravery in a world where indifference often is the norm?

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

CONNEAUT, Ohio (AP) - They stepped out of the shadows of ordinary life into the glare of danger, and they carry the scars they earned for being Good Samaritans. It changed their lives.

Not one of them regrets it.

Not Dorothy Kochs in her wheelchair, nor Don Hemphill with his crippled hands and tissue paper skin, nor Christal Lynn who taught himself to walk.

Don Hemphill says it best. He dashed after a gasoline truck that was being dragged by a train, through a sea of gasoline. He tried unsuccessfully to pry the driver from behind the steering wheel before it blew. The explosion threw Hemphill through the air, afire.

"No Sir, no regrets," he says 23 years later, many of those years spent in pain. "If I had to do it over, 'I'd been a little quicker, maybe I'd have done it. I had a brother driving a bus at the time. If that had been my brother in there, I'd want somebody to do something."

People like Don Hemphill have always been the exceptions, but in recent years the reluctance of people to step forward - risking danger or merely becoming "involved" - has been subject of much social comment.

However, while there are no statistics to prove it, there are some indications that the tide of indifference may be turning. More often now, New York police arriving at the scene of a crime find the culprit in the hands of bystanders. In Washington, D.C., police say, it's more common now for bystanders to tail armed robbers until they find the police or to thwart a pickpocket on a bus.

There are signs, a New York police official says, that "the public has had enough," that more people answer calls for help.

Why do ordinary citizens step forward? Each has his own reasons. Hemphill, who delivers mail and farms in Union Mills, N.C., shares the produce of his farm with his neighbors. "I was brought up that way. I had a good mother and father. And the Bible tells you to love your neighbor as yourself."

Dorothy Kochs, who now lives quietly in a small white farmhouse outside of Conneaut with three immense German shepherds, grabbed the arm of a gunman to deflect his aim, saving the lives of two policemen. But she was paralyzed from the waist down by a police bullet. Regrets? "No, none."

Christal Lynn of Bainbridge, Ga., who answered the screams of an 11-year-old boy, found himself facing a drunk-crazed man with a shotgun. Lynn took shotgun blasts at close range in his left foot, his right leg, his right chest, still staggering forward to plead with the gunman. Then he lay there for 4½ hours bleeding and praying, dissuading the gun-wielding drunk until help arrived.

"The things that bothered me most when I came to was the expression on that child's face, and the look on my wife's face when she came to the emergency room."

All these Good Samaritans are winners of Carnegie Hero Fund awards that were established in 1904 by Andrew Carnegie with these words:

"We live in an heroic age. Now seldom are we thrilled by deeds of heroism where men or women are injured or lose their lives in attempting to preserve or rescue their fellows."

The Carnegie commission investigates hundreds of heroic acts each year, gleaning the most deserving. Last year it made 57 awards, 11 of them posthumously.

Dorothy Kochs is 54 now. Her hair is gray and frizzed, but her smile is bright and her features recall prettier days. She was a nightclub dancer in Cleveland, a tough and independent girl who grew up in the depression in Chicago.

From time to time she ponders that awful moment of decision in 1956 when she threw her 5-foot-3 frame and the future of her baby daughter into a wrestling match with a menacing gunman.

"There isn't much time to think. It's just knowing that this terrible thing is going to happen and trying to prevent it from happening. And many ridiculous things come into your mind. A lot of ideas that don't make sense... The last moment before I made my move, the realization that I'm going to die came in. And that's when I said, 'Dear God,' almost like a prayer, and, 'Jody forgive me.' Because a sudden emotion went through me: 'Gee, what a rotten ideal I'm giving this kid, I' divorce her father, and she has nobody but me, and I'm taking me away.'"

Alex Patitsas is 56 now. He was a lean 225-pounder in 1965, an athletic man who liked to fish and hunt, who earned the name "rubber legs" as a halfback in high school. He prided himself on his speed afoot.

His job as a railroad switchman was dangerous. Empty gondola cars rolling free are called "silent death" by railroaders. Loaded, they sound like a screaming woman. He already had seen a fellow worker cut into pieces by a rolling train he neither saw nor heard. He had a premonition one night that something bad was going to happen.

One night, Patitsas outran a seven-car train to throw a body block at a man standing in its path. Patitsas lost his legs.

"It was just a reaction. To be honest with you, if I'd known I was going to be hurt, I certainly wouldn't have done it. I'm not the hero type," he says

"Would I do it again? I don't know. If it meant saving somebody's life, maybe. I just can't answer the question."

Dr. Douglas Lenkoski of Case-Western Reserve University concedes that psychiatrists don't know much about such people because they are not the kind who come for help. "We know least about healthy things," he said.

They are, he says, people with high ideals, altruistic people. "They do these things because it's right to do these things in their own minds."

All of the Carnegie award winners came out of their ordeals even more fiercely independent than they had been before. Dorothy taught herself to control her bodily functions and never used the support equipment the hospital gave her. Alex Patitsas taught himself to walk on his artificial legs.

They shunned help. "If I let someone do little things for me, it took away my mental security," Dorothy explains.

Alex tried to help other amputees, especially those who came out of the war in Vietnam. Once he walked up to a group in a Chicago area hospital, and one of the young men brashly told him, "Okay Mac, you go ahead and talk all you want, you've got your legs." Whereupon Alex showed his artificial legs.

"You could have heard a feather drop," he says now.

"And I told them, you're not dead. You're just as alive as you ever were. You can do 95 per cent of the things you used to do. The other five percent is the hardest-and that is to believe in yourself."

Every year the rolls of the brave increase-along with the stories of people who stand by and watch murder and rape and fires and drownings without lifting a finger. The elite Carnegie list now numbers nearly 6,200. But the nature of unselfish bravery is as much a mystery now as it ever was.

Dorothy Kochs remembers trying to fend for herself, making dinner in her little kitchen shortly after the accident. A grease fire started on the stove. Her little daughter saw it, and in spite of the flames she ran to her mother. Dorothy smothered the fire with salt, but she remembers her daughter's action.

"You know," she says smiling, "little children are courageous. I think they lose their courage from watching adults."

The wolf was the last animal to become extinct in Great Britain.

THE OBJECT of their attention is an ornately inlaid 17th-century table. It is among hundreds of works now on display in the new Italian wing of the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Amnesty For Aliens Pondered

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The Carter administration soon may offer a package proposal giving amnesty to illegal aliens who would be classified as "nondeportable," says the nation's top immigration official.

Leonel J. Castillo, commissioner of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, said Friday the proposal would be included in a package being developed by the Carter administration to deal with illegal immigration.

The immigration commissioner said the administration has not determined yet the rights and benefits that would accompany the nondeportable designation. They would probably include the rights granted to permanent resident aliens, who are only refused the right to vote.

As workers, the aliens also may be given the right to receive unemployment benefits, said Castillo.

President Carter will give final approval on the package, which also may include a better way to monitor the entry of foreign workers into the country, Castillo said.

Chief Wants Prisoners

FORT MILL, S.C. (AP) - Police Chief Floyd Foss wants more prisoners for his new jail.

He says the facility, open only 22 months, has space for 19 persons but the average daily population is one.

Foss is applying to the U.S. Bureau of Prisons to use the jail to house federal inmates.

He said a requirement for federal facilities is that three meals a day be furnished, but that anyone now in his jail gets sandwiches three times a day.

Game Protector Treating Bobcat

EMPORIUM, Pa. (AP) – Norm Erickson, Cameron County game protector, is nursing an old bobcat back to health these days.

The bobcat, the biggest he had ever seen, was found along a road, Erickson said. "It was scrawny. It was full of porcupine quills. It was so weak they were able to capture it and put it in a bag," he said.

When the bobcat was brought to him, Erickson took it to Dr. William Mitchell, a veterinarian, who, without charge, treated the animal.

Flames 23, Seniors 15

Evelyn Wesley swatted two doubles and a pair of singles, and Martha Braziel and Vanessa White each slapped a double and a single to lead the Flames over the Roughneck-Hotshots Friday night.

Braziel scattered nine hits and walked 18, while losing pitcher Shari Cotton allowed 23 hits and three walks.

Mary Braziel, Flames third baseman, collected four singles and Sharon Harvey grabbed three. Hitting two singles for the Flames were Sharon Johns, Rusty Durst and Debbie Johnson. Retha Davis and Barbara Moffett each slapped one.

Sharon Halford pounded a double and a single for the Hotshots. Eva Rich knocked a trio of singles and Karen Gonzales took a pair. Single-hitting was Anne Beuerlein.

Bears 10, Eagles 9

Lisa Rosa gave up only five hits Friday as the Bears took the Eagles in extra innings.

In the fifth period, Denise Merritt raced home on a Eagle mixup for the winning point.

Jackie Parham proved to be the leading hitter for the Bears. She slugged a home run, a double and a single. Suzie Bollinger also tapped the Eagle defenses for a double and a single. Becky Natividad drew two singles and Brenda Zajicek, Julie Williams, Denise Merritt and Angela Lay each grabbed one.

Tammie Robinson circled the bases for a homer on errors. Teammates Teresa Beuerlein and Teresa Ashworth each knocked a pair of singles for the Eagles. Robinson also had a single.

Ashworth takes the loss.

Greens 11, Reds 4

Robyn Harlin gave up a double to Pam Gray and two singles each to Sherry Stewart and Terri Murphy as the Majors Greens washed the Reds.

Hitting for the Greens were Kim Harlin with a double and a single; Billie Owens with four singles; Connie Weber and Sherry Rich with three each; Cindy Clayton with two; and Nancy Zajicek and Robyn Harlin with one each.

Pam Gray took the loss.

Boy's Leagues

Little League...

Cubs 8, White Sox 6

Seven runs in the second inning sealed the 'Sox's fate Friday night. They attempted a series of comebacks in the fourth and fifth innings, but fell two short.

Robert Tovar, playing shortstop and pitcher for the losers, whapped a home run and a single to lead the night's hitting. The Cub's John Overton blasted a pair of doubles.

Also knocking doubles for the Cubs were Britt Vincent, winning pitcher, and Darren Jackson. Jimmie Cain slapped three singles and Chris Hicks had one for the victors.

Norman Malone, losing hurler, and Sterling Williams and Henry McCarter each had one single for the White Sox.

Indians 12, Braves 1

Monti Gambol scattered three hits and struck out six Friday evening to boost the Indians past the Little League Braves. Teammate Curtis Gafford led the hitting with a home run and single. David Nicholson knocked a double for the winning team, and Tracey Neves and Willie Greathouse each hit singles.

Vance Andress chopped a double for the Braves, and Roy Overton and Whit Parks, losing pitcher, got a single apiece.

Farm League...

White Sox 10, Cubs 5

According to the scorebook, there were only six hits in this contest Friday night. Jacob Rodriquez of the White Sox powered a homer and a single, while teammates Ricky Rodriquez and Brett Martin each grabbed one single. Hits indicated for the Cubs were a double each from Billy Ray Newton and Jerry Comstock.

Comstock was tagged with the loss. Jacob Rodriquez earned the win.

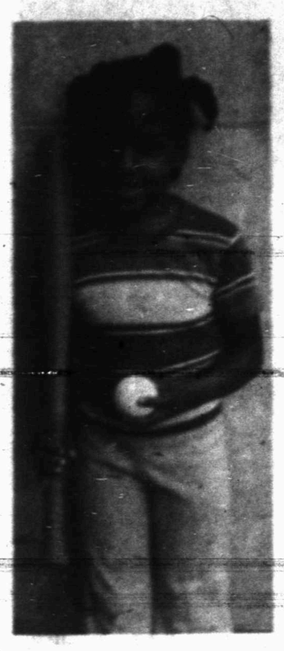

Indians 19, Braves 4

Eddie Collins gave up six hits as winning pitcher Friday in the second of two Farm League contests. The Indians hurler allowed a double and a single to Terri Hauley, and one single each to Michael Kenner, Mike McCravey and Kenneth Breedlove.

Hitting for the Indians were Mark Camire with a double and a single; Mike Christian with a trio of singles; Eddie Collins and Lex Webster with two singles each; and Alex Lopez with one single.

John Sullivan was the losing pitcher.

Southpaw Tom Zachary delivered the pitch that Babe Ruth hit for his 60th home run in 1927. Two years later, Zachary was pitching for the Yankees, Ruth's team, and had a 12-0 record.

SCSR GIRL—Scurry County Summer Recreation program's Girl of the Week is Yolanda Anderson, daughter of Mrs. Virginia Anderson. Nine years old, Yolanda participates in gymnastics, baseball and volleyball.

Just Some Family Help

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)- Paul Westphal, the crack guard of the Phoenix Suns of the NBA, shoots with either hand when in range of the basket. He developed that rare ability playing one-on-one against his older brother, Bill, in the family backyard.

"Bill was bigger than I and I couldn't score much against him," Paul recalled. "He would overplay me to my strong side and half the time I couldn't get a shot off. Finally, Bill suggested I learn to shoot with either hand. As a natural right-hander, shooting with the left didn't come easy. But I did learn and up to 10 feet I can shoot pretty accurately. I have gotten some key baskets in the NBA by shifting the ball from one hand to the other before shooting."

ACCORDING TO AP CAGE POLL

Big Ten Gathers Top Dozen

Big Ten Gathers EIBIJW, ROANOKE, Va. (AP)— Where have all the players gone? To the Big Ten, that's where.

The Big Ten signed 12 of the nation's top 40 high school basketball players as rated on an annual survey done for the Associated Press by the Roanoke Va. Times and World-News.

It was the biggest sweep by a conference in the nine years of the survey, a compilation of the top players from two coaching services, seven scholastic All-American teams and the advice of some of the nation's finest basketball recruiters.

Eight of the Big Ten schools landed at least one Top 40 performer, with only Minnesota and Northwestern left out. Although the Big Ten was dominant with its dozen players, the Atlantic Coast Conference got the two biggest names among the seven its signed.

Albert King of New York, 6-foot-6 younger brother of Tennessee All-American Bernard King, signed with Maryland early this month. And Eugene Banks of Philadelphia, also 6-6, is going to Duke.

Earvin Johnson, a 6-8 forward many consider the equal of Banks and King, stayed at home in East Lansing by signing with Michigan State.

Elsewhere in the Big Ten, a couple of second-year coaches in their first full season of recruiting struck it rich. Ohio State's Eldon Miller virtually swept his home state, including 6-10 Columbus star Herb Williams, and also got 6-3 Kenny Page out of New York. Wisconsin's Bill Cofield landed the last blue chipper to sign, guard West Matthews of Bridgeport, Conn. Matthews and Darnell Valentine, joining his high school coach at Kansas, were the best of the guard crop this year.

Notable among schools failing to land a Top 40 player was UCLA. This was the first time in the nine-year survey that the Bruins haven't gotten at least one of the elite prospects.

How valid is the Top 40 list?

Every member of the 1976 Olympic champion U.S. team except Dukes Tate Armstrong was Top 40 alumnus. Half of this year's first-round draft picks in the National Basketball Association were Top 40 players. Of the 1973 Top 40 squad, 20 players either are already in the pros or were first-round or second-round draft picks this year.

Oilers Remain On Teen Peak

The Oilers nipped the Buffs 4-3 in a low-hitting contest Friday night to keep their hold on the Snyder Junior Teenage League lead.

Losing pitcher Devin Donelson hurled a two-hitter, but a pair of crucial errors and 10 walks gave the Oilers enough edge.

William Robinson takes the win for the Oilers. Robinson relieved starter Keith Bryant after four innings. Both pitchers allowed two hits. Bryant struck out six, Robinson fanned three and Donelson blanked five.

John Wilson slapped a double for the Oilers. Teammate Keith Bryant grabbed a single.

Giff Gives Vince Credit

NEW YORK (AP)-Frank Gifford, one of the new members of the Pro Football Hall of Fame, says the late Vince Lombardi was responsible for most of his success. Lombardi became an assistant coach of the New York Giants in 1954, Gifford's third year with that team.

"To me, Vince was the difference between my being a good pro player and just another halfback," Gifford said.

Beat the boll!

Use Malathion ULV* Concentrate Insecticide

Get early season boll weevil control by applying malathion now while squares are in the pinhead to 1/3 full grown stage. You'll reduce early cotton losses and help prevent the build-up of larger more damaging populations later.

Less Hazard with Malathion

Malathion has low hazard to man and wildlife. There's less hazard to the total environment, and that's important if drift should occur. Important to nearby livestock and crops.

Malathion Is Easy to Use

Malathion can be applied by air or ground Ultra Low Volume equipment. It's non-corrosive to equipment and non-irritating to applicators.
This year make the life of your cotton a little easier. Beat the boll with Malathion ULV—the economical, dependable answer to early-season boll weevil control.

See your chemical supplier or custom applicator for malathion.

Use pesticides effectively. Read and follow label directions carefully.

Foyt Bickers With Stecher

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP)-"People talk about me retiring," A.J. Foyt began. "I'll tell you, it's hassles like this that make me feel like retiring from racing."

The tempestuous Foyt found himself once again in the eye of a storm of controversy as he prepared to lead the field to the start of Sunday's $400,000 Schaefer 500.

"It's a good thing I enjoy racing so much still, because if I didn't I sure wouldn't put up with all this," Foyt said during an extraordinary 45-minute meeting he called with the press Friday at Pocono International Raceway.

The hassle Foyt referred to centers on the decision of Citicorp Services to terminate its sponsorship of the U.S. Auto Club Indianapolis car circuit, a move that could cost the series $350,000-$400,000 by the end of 1978.

Fred R. Stecher, Citicorp chairman, said Foyt's behavior after being booed during qualifying Thursday "was the straw that broke our back." Stecher said Foyt made an obscene gesture to the crowd, and behaved in a manner "detrimental to the sport of auto racing."

Foyt, who won the pole position with a speed of 189.474 miles per hour, denied making any such gesture.

Stecher criticized USAC President Dick King for failing to reprimand Foyt.

Stecher said he was considering legal action against Foyt, accusing him of preventing Citicorp from exercising the terms of its contract with USAC. Foyt said he might sue, too.

Spanning The 'Bridge'; Actor To Tennis Nut

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)Acting presents a problem to Lloyd Bridges. It has to do with locations...It keeps him off tennis courts.

"When actors aren't working, they're playing tennis," said Bridges. "You've got to be careful what job you take. If it's not good, it interferes with your tennis."

Lloyd Bridges is an admitted "tennis nut."

The actor, who made a reputation on television battling bad guys in the deep 20 years ago on "Sea Hunt," which still can be seen on the tube, is so taken with the landlubber's game that he is promoting it for the United States Tennis Association.

Bridges is doing advertisements for the USTA, which is bidding to get weekend players, even buffs who do not play to become members.

"They've (The USTA) been too much identified with tournament players" said Bridges, in an interview at a Central Park hotel. "it's not just for tournament players."

He noted that there are 35 million tennis players in the United States but that the membership of the USTA formerly USLTA numbers only 120,000.

So Bridges now appears in advertisments, shown in tennis togs leaning on a net above a caption that reads: "The United States Tennis Association Offers Something for Every Tennis Player."

What made him a tennis nut?

"It came late to me, this tennis. I just got interested in it in the last eight years."

His interest shows no signs of slacking.

Asked if he would be staying in New York long, he said he was leaving the next day to prepare to play with a pro against actor-comedian Bill Cosby and another pro in Detroit in the semifinal of a charity tennis tournament.

"I want to sneak in an extra day of practice," said Bridges.

"That's a tennis nut."

Partnership Meet Planned June 30

The Snyder Country Club Ladies Invitational Partnership Golf Tournament will be held June 30 at Snyder Country Club, it was announced at the Women's Golf Association monthy luncheon.

Entry fee is listed at $25 per team with carts reserved for $8 per team. "Information has revealed that the tournament now has a full field of players entered," the club announced.

In other WGA news, Play Day West will be held at Big Spring Municipal Course this month. There will be a 9 a.m. shotgun start. Coffee and doughnuts will be available at 8:30 a.m. for the June 28 Play Day.

Two new members joined the association during May. They were Mary Beth Vestal and Diana Gary.

May winners include:

May 3-Best Ball for nine holes-Wilma Dillard, Delores Key, Ester Guelker and Debbie Maytubby.

May 17-Flag Tournament-18 hole players: Ester Guelker and Evelyn Thomas. Nine holed players: Loretta Dodson and Sandra Campbell.

May 24-Low Score on Odd Holes-18 hole players: Kathy Rhodes. Nine hole players: Kathryn Dodson.

Rams Face Exes Plus

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Los Angeles Rams will be facing NFL teams coached by ex-Ram players or coaches in seven of their 14 games in the 1977 season.

Ken Meyer and Leeman Bennett, both Ram assistants last year, are head coaches now, Bennett at Atlanta and Meyer at San Francisco. Both teams will play the Rams twice.

Cat Nets Grow At Lake Spence

Large strings of channel catfish were showing in fishing reports at Lake E.V. Spence during the week, along with more black and white bass, but striped bass continued as the variety most frequently caught.

The stripers are still schooling on top of the water, but many of them are being caught on jigs in 20 feet of water. The largest for the week was a 14-lb. specimen. There also was an 20-lb. yellow catfish.

Reports included:

Metric Road Sign Plan Abandoned

WASHINGTON (AP) - A public outcry is forcing the Federal Highway Administration to abandon its plan to convert the nation's highway signs from miles to kilometers at a cost of $100 million.

"There simply was too much opposition to the proposal from the general public," William M. Cox, director of the Federal Highway Administration, said Friday.

Of 5,000 comments received since the plan was announced in April, "about 98 per cent of them were negative," Cox said.

"In light of such overwhelming sentiment, the Federal Highway Administration has determined that it would be inappropriate to issue a regulation converting ... to metric standards," he added.

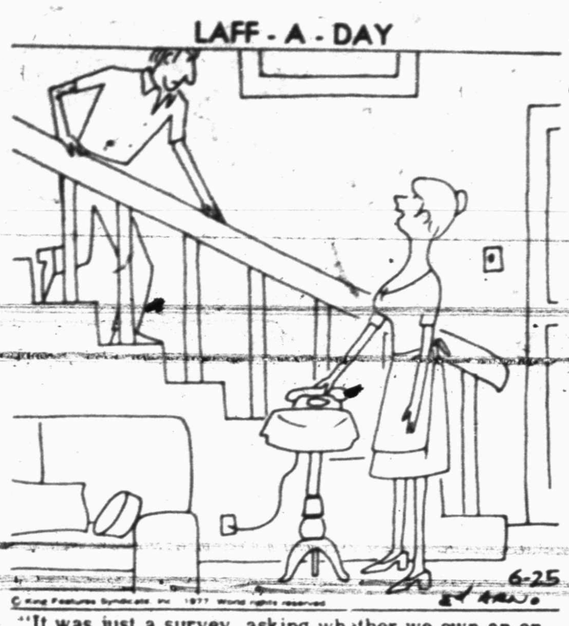

An agency spokesman said the complaints centered on both the estimated $100 million conversion cost and resistance to change.

Cox said his agency is closing the book on the matter and there are no plans to revive the short-lived plan in the future.

When the recommendation was made in April, the agency said it was acting in line with the national policy of converting to the metric system as outlined in the Metric Conversion Act of 1975. The act makes conversion voluntary.

Under the proposal, the conversion of all speed limit and vertical clearance signs would have been completed by Dec. 31, 1979. Instead of 40 m.p.h., for example, a speed sign would have read 65 k.p.h. kilometers per hour. Warning and regulatory signs were to have been switched by Sept. 30, 1980, and milepost and guide signs by Sept. 30, 1982.

Former President Gerald R. Ford signed the conversion act in December 1975 and stressed that compliance was voluntary. But he declared that continued use of the English system of measurement was making the United States "an island in a metric sea."

"It was just a survey, asking whether we own an encyclopedia, if we have $250 in the bank, and whether we're home evenings."

Meat Prices Rise In May

WASHINGTON (AP) - New government figures show that retail beef and pork prices rose again last month, due mostly to higher prices paid farmers for live cattle and hogs.

The average national retail price of beef, measured on an all-cut basis, was more than $1.38 a pound in May, up 4.4 cents from the composite retail price in April. That was the highest beef price since last December when the average was nearly $1.39 a pound.

As used by USDA, the price covers choice-grade beef sold in grocery stores. That is from cattle which have been "finished" or fattened in feedlots on grain rations.

The report, issued Friday, said that the market price of choice live steers in May averaged $41.43 per 100 pounds over the entire month, compared with $39.73 in April.

Translated to the supermarket, the report said that farmers received an equivalent of 82.8 cents of each retail pound of beef in May, up from 78.6 cents in April. It takes about 2.3 pounds of live steer to make one pound of store beef.

The middleman's share for transporting, processing and selling beef was 55.6 cents a pound in May against 55.4 cents in April the report said.

Cattle prices, meanwhile, have dropped since their spring peaks and by mid-June were averaging around $38 or so per 100 pounds of the major markets as the feedlot supply rose and packers became more selective, according to other USDA reports.

Retail pork prices rose to nearly $1.21 a pound in May from less than $1.19 in April. However, that was about what pork cost consumers last February and March.

Farmers received an equivalent of 73.8 cents a pound for pork sold in retail stores last month, compared with 64.5 cents in April. Middlemen's shares dropped to 47.1 cents from the April average of 54.4 cents a pound, the report said.

Live hog prices averaged $41.79 per 100 pounds in May, up from $36.97 in April. Through mid-June, hog prices have held fairly steady, according to recent USDA market reports.

Since red meat makes up a large portion of family grocery bills over a year's time, it has a heavy bearing on over-all food costs.

USDA economists expect this year's grocery prices to average around 6 per cent higher than in 1976. Last year, food prices rose 3.1 per cent, compared with 8.5 per cent in 1975 and 14.5 per cent each in 1974 and 1973.

Officials expect that U.S. farm products will account for only about half of this year's over-all food price increase, with seafood and imported products - mainly coffee, cocoa and tea - accounting for the rest.

Friday's report said "marketing spreads," or middleman charges for a market basket list of farm-produced food items, declined 1.5 per cent over-all in May, the first decrease this year. Even so, the May price spread between farmers and consumers averaged 2.9 per cent more than it did a year ago.

Put another way, the report said that farmers in May received an equivalent of 39.3 cents of each dollar spent by consumers on market-basket food, compared with 38.8 cents in April and 40.1 cents in May, 1976.

Briscoe To Meet With Germans

AUSTIN (AP) -- During the coming week, Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe will be talking with German industrial leaders trying to sell them on German investments in Texas, his office said Friday.

The exportation of Texas agricultural and industrial goods also will be a subject on the speaking tour in four West Germany cities.

Briscoe, who has been in Vienna for a vacation and social visit, will speak in Munich on Monday, Stuttgart on Tuesday, Cologne on Wednesday and Frankfurt on Thursday.

The meetings are sponsored by German-American Chamber of Commerce.

Accompanying the governor will be James Harwell, executive director of the Texas Industrial Commission, which has the aim of attracting new industry to Texas, and Kurt DeBoer, director of the German-American Chamber of Commerce office in Houston.

Following the meeting with German business leaders, Harwell will represent the governor at similar meetings in Egypt and Sudan.

Clayton To Give Boy's Ranch Check

AUSTIN (AP) -- House Speaker Bill Clayton present Boy's Ranch at Old Tascosa a check for $6,000 Sunday, the second $6,000 gift made as a result of Speaker's Day observances recently.

The first $6,000 check went to Girlstown at Whiteface.

Clayton told friends and employees that contributions made to him on Speaker's Day would be given to the two homes.

Clayton said there were no stipulations as to the use of the funds. He indicated it could either be used for general expenses for special projects the homes might undertake.

Former Snyderite Receives Honor

W.H. Harbour Jr. of Pittsburg, Tex., a former Snyder resident, has been selected for inclusion in the 1977 edition of "Outstanding Young Men of America."

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Harbour Sr., former teachers in Snyder Public Schools who now live in Denton.

The Outstanding Young Men of America Program is co-sponsored by the United States Jaycees and numerous other leading men's civic and service organizations through the nation. Serving as chairman of its 12-man advisory board is Doug Blankenship, U.S. Jaycee past president.

Harbour, along with some 11,000 fellow Outstanding Young Men from the United States, will be featured in the prestigious annual awards publication. The honor is reserved for young men who work diligently to make their cities as well as their country better places to live in and have distinguished themselves in one or more fields of endeavor.

Criteria for selection include a man's voluntary service to community, professional leadership, academic achievement, business advancement, cultural accomplishments and civic and political participation.

Here's an oddity about one of the greatest players in baseball history -- Lou Gehrig... Everything important that ever happened to Gehrig in his great baseball career -- and in his life -- strangely enough, happened in the month of June...He was born June 19, 1903...He started his famous streak of playing 2,130 consecutive games on June 1, 1925...His biggest day at bat, when he tied the all-time record by hitting four homers in one game, came on June 3, 1932...A crippling disease forced his retirement from baseball June 21, 1939...And so it goes...To top it off Gehrig died, at the age of only 38 on -- you guessed it -- June 2, 1941.

One question a lot of fishermen ask is what's the biggest fish ever caught?...The official record for catching a salt water fish with rod and reel, is held by Australian, Alfred Dean, who hooked a shark that weighted 2,664 pounds! The shark was just two inches short of being 17-feet long...Dean made his record catch in 1959.

Has any player ever played ALL 9 positions in one major league baseball game?...Oddly enough, it has happened...Bert Campaneris did it for the A's in a game in 1965, and Cesar Tovar did it for the Twins in a game in 1968.

Farm Wives Organize To Preserve Livelihood

EDITOR'S NOTE-Consumers worry about high food prices. Farmers worry over low grain prices. It has long been thus, but now a band of farm wives have organized to bring their message to government and people. They feel they have to step in where their husbands have been reluctant to pursue.

By George W. Corness
Associated Press Writer

WEATHERFORD, Okla. (AP)-Distressed but determined, five farm wives met in a rural home in this wheat and short-grass country, talking of the rising women's battle to preserve a livelihood on the soil.

"The survival of the family farm is at stake," said Arlene Neufeld. "it's getting scary. Something we thought couldn't happen is happening."

Colleen Buckmaster, mother of two, said, "It has reached the point where our whole way of life is threatened...My house, my children, our future ...We see it all slipping away."

"We're fighting for our living," said Shirley Regier, wife of a cattleman and wheat grower. It was in their brick home, rimmed by a wooded creek, a vegetable garden and stretches of waving wheat, that the women gathered as harvest time approached

They are part of a national uprising of farm wives, organized to combat the cost-price squeeze that cramps American farmers, particularly in wheat-growing Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska.

Wheat prices hover around $2 a bushel, about the same as a quarter-century ago, but costs have multiplied, the price of machinery and fertilizer more than tripling in the last decade.

To produce a bushel of wheat now costs about $3, but the crop brings a third less than it costs to produce, an incongruous market imposed by national and international processes beyond the farmers' control.

"It's just impossible mathematically," said Mrs. Buckmaster, whose husband raises wheat and cattle near Hydro, seven miles east of here.

"A bushel of wheat won't even buy a hair cut," complained Mrs. Neufeld. "And this year, we aren't even buying spare parts for machinery. We're just welding the old ones."

It costs more to put a loaf of bread in a plastic bag than to put the wheat in it," said Anabelle Lowry, noting that about 2½ cents worth of wheat flour goes into a 60-cent loaf of bread.

"Why isn't the low wheat price reflected in the supermarkets?" asked Betty Jeanne Steiner.

The farm wives' movement has grown to more than 10,000 women in 13 states since its first convention last fall in Kansas City. It's purpose is to educate the people about the farmer's problems and of the farm's importance to the nation. They are taking their cause to Washington, state capitals and the news media.

"Our husbands are so busy being the best producers in the world that it's necessary that women take on this responsibility," Sharon Steffens of Grand Rapids, Mich., national coordinator of American Agri-Women, said in telephone interview.

At the Regier home northwest of Weatherford, the wives -members of Oklahoma Women for Agriculture-talked of their new roles.

"Farm men are a peculiar breed who won't organize even for a common purpose, so it had to be the women to do it," said Mrs. Steiner, whose husband raises wheat, milo and cattle.

Mrs. Lowry, a sprightly wife of a wheat-cattle grower near Colony, 15 miles south of Weatherford, says that farmers have neglected to organize "right to the verge of bankruptcy."

"I feel I've been let out of a box," she says. "For the first time, when we get together, we don't just talk about our children, but about something that involves us all."

These activists already have deluged city-minded state legislators, Congressmen and federal officials with visiting delegations and letters, including two truckloads of 70,000 letters driven from Oklahoma to the nation's captial on May 3.

The teams of Oklahoma farm wives have been stopping Congressmen, invading federal offices, taking their cast to whoever would listen.

"We got a run-around," said Mrs. Jerry Shaffer of Pond Creek, Okla., back from one of the Washington sorties in May.

But the women keep up the pressure- in meetings, publications, petitions, classroom lectures. And their national organization plans a farm wives' swoop from various states on Washington late this month or early in July when farm legislation comes up in Congress.

"Most of us don't consider ourselves women's libbers," Mrs. Steffans said. "We're on the tractor enough with the men already, and we're not uptight on women's issues. Our objective is survival of the family farm."

As late as 1940, nearly 25 per cent of the U.S. population lived on farms, but the proportion fell to 8.7 per cent by 1960, declining to 4.5 per cent, or about nine million, today.

Department of Agriculture figures show the cost-price twist has cut the average farmer's net income by 32 per cent in the last three years, from $11,727 in 1973 to $7,920 in 1976. Because of high equipment and land investment costs, a farmer may have a financial worth of $350,000 but an income of only about $8,000, tiny compared with ordinary returns in other businesses.

The farm wives say farmers now get less than half of the $5.08 parity price for wheat, a government-figured level for a fair return above costs.

Mrs. Lowry says, "I get very indignant when I hear some senator talk about providing a 'break-even point' for farmers. What that means is we work for free. Let everyone else make money for their work, but we don't get a dime out of it."

Mrs. Buckmaster likened the farmers to exploited laborers in the 19th century before they organized for collective bargaining rights."They were at the mercy of employers, but once they gained a collective voice, people started listening to them.

"We've never really told our story until now, of how everyone depends on the land, how forcing more farmers into the city only compounds urban problems and continually weakens the essential work of producing food."

A recent Agriculture Department survey of bankers indicated that farmers in Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Montana, the Dakotas, Texas, Minnesota and Colorado face serious credit problems, with 73,000 in severe straits and 14,000 likely to lose farms.

The credit crunch was reported harshest in Oklahoma, Nebraska and Kansas, where bankers are wary of farm loans, and equipment dealers charge up to 18 per cent interest for machinery sold on credit.

The farm wives say actions by former Presidents Nixon and Ford in throttling wheat sales abroad undercut U.S. wheat markets. They argued that amid much-heralded world food shortages of three and four years ago, farmers were urged to all-out production boosts to create safer grain reserves but now are being penalized for doing so.

The women, citing $14.2 billion in government subsidies to railroads, shipping and airlines, maintain that only a fraction of such subsidies are needed to stablize fare economics.

They say manufacturers and retailers maintain profits by price-wage adjustments, but farmers have no protection against inflation.

The women argue for a system of government grain reserves, as a cushion in poor crop years and to help hold wheat prices at parity.

Near the end of their four-hour meeting, Shirley's husband, John, observed: "The only wealth of the nation comes out of old Mother Earth. If the farmers are going to be put out of business, we're all done."

"American people need to know the facts," Mrs. Steiner said."I just don't think they're hard-hearted enough to let the farmers starve."

The Balkan War was fought by Bulgaria, Serbia, Greece and Montenegro against Turkey in 1912-13.

INSECT CONTROL MEETING

There will be a meeting Tuesday night June 28 at 8 p.m. in Room A of the Scurry County Coliseum for the purpose of discussing early insect control. The rains of the past improved crop prospect, so we need to watch more closely for insect damage.

Generally cotton is making excellent growth. Most of the cotton is in its first week of fruiting.

Insects are generally light. Some fleahoppers have been found but these remain at low populations at the present.

Boll weevel emergence has decreased during the past week. The peak emergence of the boll weevil was around May 30-June 1. Since the boll weevil will live usually 10-14 days after emergence unless cotton squares are available for reproduction, it appears that the uniform planting date of May 16 was an excellent choice.

Squares large enough for weevil reproduction (pencil eraser size or 1-3 grown) require approximately 40-45 days growth after planting. A very high percentage of the weevils that have emerged up to now were not able to survive because of the lack of these large squares.

This does not mean we will not have a boll weevil problem. Weevils are emerging continually until late June and early July. What it does mean is that the high population buildup usually present in late August will be postponed into September and we can mature more crop with this delay. Early season control of weevils will also aid in delaying weevil buildup in the fall as well as reducing the total population buildup.

BLOSSOM END ROT OF TOMATOES:

If the bottom of some of your tomatoes are turning dark, they probably have a condition called blossom end rot. This is not a disease, but physiological condition of the tomato plant.

Researchers are not quite sure of the cause of blossom end rot but do agree that it is associated with a deficiency of calcium or excessive water loss. In our area we tend to discount calcium deficiency as a cause since we have caliche subsoil and our soil PH is moderately alkaline. This leaves the main cause of this condition suspected to be excessive water loss.

Severe fluctuation in available soil moisture is blamed for contributing to this problem. A uniform watering schedule, mulching around the tomato plants and shading should be considered when blossom end rot is a problem. Excessive transpiration by the tomato plants during hot, windy days is considered to be the main cause of blossom end rot in this area. Practices that will cut down on transpiration will aid in controlling blossom end rot.

Early Insect Control Topic Of Meeting

On Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Room A of the Scurry County Coliseum, there will be a meeting on early season cotton insect control according to Billy Roach, County Extension Agent. The meeting will be a discussion on identification and control practices recommended for Scurry County producers.

The prospects of a good price for cotton and recent rains may justify a more intensified control program for area farmers Roach said.

Over 80 per cent of the cotton squares (and potential bolls) are set during the first four weeks of the fruiting period. This makes control of damaging populations of insects very important during the early season.

Area producers are encouraged to attend this meeting.

CARD OF THANKS A-3

IN APPRECIATION: I would like to take this opportunity and means to express my sincere appreciation to the faculty and teachers of West Elementary for the lovely gift and the thoughtfullness shown to me. I would also like to thank them all for the cooperation and concern expressed, by encouraging all their students to eat a nutritional lunch, which is such an important part of our educational program today. God be with each of you.

In Sincere Appreciation,
Beth Hicks

IN APPRECIATION: For all the cards, calls and love donations, words cannot express my gratitude and appreciation to my fellow workers of the school cafeterias. For this support and kindness shown, I will always be in your debt. To just say thanks would seem so very little.

In Love and Gratitude
Always, Beth

Over 25 To Exhibit In Art, Craft Show Here

More than 25 Texas artists and craftsmen will be showing works ranging from steel sculpture to crochet at the third annual Arts and Crafts Show and Sale scheduled here from July 2-4.

"We are well pleased with the variety of items which will be included in this year's show," Ernest Sears, chairman, said.

"Visitors to the show will see some beautiful and unusual items, some they have not seen in this area before, we believe. Some of the exhibitors have been with us before and have let us know they are returning because of the good response they received at previous shows."

Among the new exhibitors this year will be John Bullock of Alpine who produces hand-crafted steel sculptures depicting a variety of western or nature scences. The uniqueness of his sculpture lies in the difficulty of obtaining intricate detail in steel, which must be worked at temperatures around 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit, he says. It cannot normally be melted and poured like bronze, and thus is primarily the exercise of the art of the blacksmith.

Bill Craig of Tahoka will also be showing metal sculptures. He held a one-man show in the Scurry County Museum this spring and has shown at many area shows as well. Exhibitors who had reserved spaces for the Arts and Crafts show by Friday included:

Ted Bigham of Snyder-wood vases and sculptures, watercolors and pottery.

Trudy Bodine of Colorado City-hand painted porcelain jewelry and tea sets.

Mr. and Mrs. P.C. "Pete" Chanack of Burnet- miniature Western buildings.

Bus and Freddie Ellsworth of Beeville-paintings.

Billy and Merle Evans of Snyder-painted plasters, dolls.

Donna Falcioni of Abilene-spoon ring jewelry.

Mrs. James Gilstrap of Colorado City-knitting and crocheting.

Margaret Gorczyniski-porcelain enameling and china painting.

Mr. and Mrs. Del Hirst of Snyder-pottery.

Jerry and Mickey Hodge of Amarillo-scenic view photos and rock jewelry.

Robert Marsh of Grand Prairie-glass blower.

Bob and Carla Martindale of Amarillo-air brush painting, pen and ink drawings.

Patsy Massey of Snyder-wooden easels and frames.

Dale Neves-handmade dolls, hand painted T shirts, key chains etc.

Roy Neves and Ronnie Fitzgerald of Snyder-polished rocks, belt buckles.

Ann Orr of Lubbock-jewelry.

Andres A. Rios, Jr.-Midland-wire sculpture.

Jim Ritchey of Hereford-handmade hunting knives.

Pete Sanders of Big Spring-lapidary and silversmith.

Scurry County Museum Association-wood carvings by Sanchez and A.J. Crowder.

Weldon and Karen Sears of Snyder-photographs, hand painted egg shells and print making.

Charmaine Triplett of Snyder-wildlife prints, macrame and jewelry.

Janice Wagner of Sweetwater-tole painting.

The show will be held in the Naitonal Guard Armory in Towle Memorial Park. Spaces for 40 booths will be provided, and indications are that all the spaces will be filled before the opening of the show on July 2.

Hours for the show will be 12 noon to 10 p.m. on July 2, 1-10 p.m. on July 3 and 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on July 4. The Art Show, which will be held in the Towle Park Barn near the Armory, will be open from 1-8 on July 3 and from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on July 4.

VBS Is Set At Church Of God

Vacation Bible School will begin Monday at the Church of God, located at 21st Street and Avenue O.

There will be crafts and Bible teaching and refreshments will be served at each session, according to the Rev. Lonny Langehennig, pastor of the church. The Vacation Bible School will continue through Friday, July 1.

Dope Found In Toothpaste

BROWNSVILLE (AP)- The toothpaste market is flooded with all kinds of exotic cavity fighters. Cameron County authorities had to remind Antonio Avalos that marijuana is not one of them.

Avalos' marijuana-stuffed toothpaste tube earned him a stay in the county jail after the 23-year-old Brownsville man allegedly tried to smuggle it to a prisoner he was visiting.

Avalos brought a sack of personal items for a prisoner to the jail Tuesday. Cameron County Sheriff's Department Lt. Zeferino Rodriguez found the toothpaste tube had been opened, toothpaste removed and the weed inserted in its place.

Avalos remained in jail Thursday after being charged with Class B misdemeanor possession of marijuana. County Court-at-Law Judge Roverto Hernandez set bonds at $1,000.

When European explorers and settlers first arrived in the New World, there were a little more than a million Indians living in what is not the United States and Canada.

Conservationists To Attend Session

Directors of the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District will be in Ballinger on Monday, attending the West Texas Association of Soil and Water Conservation Distrticts Meeting.

State Representative Tom Massey of San Angelo and Kenneth Krueger, district supervisor, Texas Water Quality Board at San Angelo, will be the principal speakers.

J. M. Sterling, president of the organization, said that the meeting will begin at 10 a.m. in the Community Center. Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m.

Rep. Massey, who will discuss recent legislation, was chairman of the House Public Education Committee during the 65th Legislature. He also served on the House Administration and Natural Resources Committees.

Krueger will discuss pollution problems and permits as they pertain to agriculture. He supervises the Water Quality Board's District 9 area which consists of 20 counties.

Joe Antilley, chairman of the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board and Kenneth Kuykendall, president of the Association of Texas Soil and Water Conservation Districts will present reports on the activities of each organization.

Following the buisness session, a tour will be taken of the Mueller Supply Company.

Sixteen soil and water conservation districts are members of the West Texas Association. They include: Upper Colorado, Upper Clear Fork, Concho, Middle Clear Fork, Mitchell, North Concho River, Coke County, Runnels, Middle Concho, Sandhills, Mustang, Howard, Midland, Nolan County, Andrews and Central Colorado.

Current officers of the organization are J. M. Sterling, president Colorado City; J. D. Crawford, president elect, Midland; and Cone Robinson, Sr., treasurer, Norton.

Directors of the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District are W. L. Wilson, Jr., Chairman, Big Spring; Walter Stirl, Vice-Chairman, Loraine; Carl Williams, Secretary-Treasurer, Hermleigh; Leon Sterling, Snyder; and Burl Belew, Fluvanna.

CB-Shaped Soap Is Hit

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP)-It's called "Breaker, Breaker, Bubble Maker" and two brothers here hope to "clean up good buddies throughout the country -and become millionaires in the process.

Randy and Rick Olson introduced the soap-on-a-rope, shaped like a citizen's band radio microphone, shortly before Fathers Day. The first 10,000 in area stores have all been sold.

"They took off like the 'Pet Rock'" did two years ago," said Rick, "and that was just in the Seattle area," added Randy.

"Did you know there are 34 million CB'ers now?" asked Rick. "If we can sell to 7 per cent of them, we'll be millionaires."

"And if we can't at least we'll be clean," said Randy.

Couple Wed In Ira Church

MR. AND MRS. MYRON FRANK CALLEY

(Photo By Tiffany Studios)

Ronda Kay Corbell became the bride of Myron Frank Calley Friday, June 10 at Ira Baptist Church with Rev. Jim Mosley officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. R.V. Corbell and Mr. and Mrs. Billy Calley all of Ira.

The altar was centered with a 15 branch brass arch candelabrum flanked on either side by a spiral candelabrum.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a white gown of dacron polyester organza, trimmed with cotton Venise lace with an attached brush train and sheer sleeves with Venise lace cuffs. The chapel length veil of illusion was edged with lace. She carried a bouquet of white daisies, baby's breath and carnations accented with yellow silk daisies.

Carrying out tradition, the bride wore for something old a hair comb belonging to the groom's great grandmother; something new, her dress; something borrowed, the veil from the groom's sister; and something blue; her garter. She also wore two pennies minted in the year of the couple's birth in her shoe.

Maid of Honor was Carla Corbell, cousin of the bride and bridesmaid was Maryanna Corbell, aunt of the bride. Melissa Martin, cousin of the bride, was flower girl.

Attendants wore floor length dresses of yellow and white gingham. The dresses were fashioned with a square neckline, short puffed sleeves and ruffles at the sleeves and hem. White hats with yellow ribbons accented the outfits. They carried bouquets of white daises and baby's breath with yellow silk daisies.

Dale Wiggins served as his cousin's best man. Jeston Corbell, uncle of the bride was groomsman and ring bearer was Cody House, cousin of the groom. The attendants wore brown suits and yellow shirts.

Seating guests were Royce Corbell and Darryl Calley, brothers of the couple. They also lighted the candles.

Mrs. Donna Plumlee, organist accompanied herself as she sang "More." She also accompanied Jim Patrick and Kay Kenner as they sang "If" and "Twelfth of Never." Mr. Patrick sang "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride's mother chose a floor length gown of lime green while the groom's mother wore an aqua blue floor length gown.

The reception was held at Ira Community Center. The bride's table was centered with a basket of daisies. The tiers of the cake were pale yellow decorated with small daisies. Yellow icy punch was served from a cut glass punch bowl. Serving the guests were Kathy Huddleston and Angeline Autry. Other members of the houseparty were Mrs. Jerry Stokes, Treva Boyd and Charlene Heston.

Linda House and Gwen Patrick presided over the groom's table. A three candle centerpiece holding yellow candles and daisy rings decorated the table. Chocolate cake and coffee were served.

The bride and groom are graduates of Ira High School.

After a short wedding trip, the couple now resides in Ira.

Walk Those Calories Off

NEW YORK (AP)-Take up walking to keep your own figure, the Diet Workshop advises brides, citing figures from the Committee on Exercise and Physical Fitness of the American Medical Association.

If you eat only 96 extra calories (about two chocolate cream-filled cookies) more per day than you burn up, you can expect to be 50 pounds heavier by your fifth anniversary. But just 25 minutes of walking a day will keep you at your wedding day weight, the workshop points out.

Quilt Show At Museum In July

The quilt show at the Scurry County Museum will be held over through the month of July, Sharon Sutton, museum director, has announced.

"The response to the show has been excellent," Miss Sutton said. More than 550 persons have visited the museum since the exhibit opened on June 5.

Both antique and contemporary quilts and coverlets are included in the exhibit. The Scurry County Centennial quilt, made especially for the 1976 Centennial-Bicentennial celebration, is among the quilts on display.

Bids will continue to be taken on the Victorian Crazy Quilt which was to have been sold on Sunday, Miss Sutton said. The quilt was made by Mrs. C.E. Daniel and Mrs. Z.W. Davis and proceeds from the sale will go to the museum. The quilt is displayed in the museum lobby and written bids may be left in a box at the information desk. A white-on-white quilt which has been quilted in the lobby during the display will also be sold to the highest bidder.

Saccharin was discovered by Constantine Fahlberg on Feb. 27, 1879. He was working under the direction of Professor Ira Remsen at Johns Hopkins University.

COUPLE PLANS AUGUST WEDDING-Mr. and Mrs. Jack D. Burrus of Childress, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sabrina Renah, to Neely C. Landrum, son of Mr. and Mrs. H.C. Landrum of Fluvanna. The wedding will be an event of August 21, 3:30 p.m. in First United Methodist Church, Childress. Miss Burrus attended West Texas State University and will continue her nursing studies at Amarillo College. Her finace is a senior at WTSU and is a Methodist ministerial student. He is now student pastor at Wildorado.

STITCHIN' TIME

Quilt Now For Warm Winter

By Joanne Schreiber

Of all the hundreds of quilt designs, the prettiest are the flower quilts. Roses, sunflowers, dahlias, primroses, morning glories, tulips, iris — all these are traditional quilt designs, created in long-ago springs and summers.

Chances are that next winter will be as cold as last winter. You can start now to do as our grandmothers did and make a beautiful flower quilt, to put the promise of summer into a bleak winter.

"Grandmother's Flower Quilts" is available exclusively to readers of this newspaper and offers both inspiration and instruction to summertime quilters.

There are pattern pieces and full directions for 16 beautiful quilts in this colorful booklet. You can choose your favorite flower and work it in your favorite technique — pieced, appliqued, embroidered or in a combination of quilting styles.

Fascinating bits of history accompany the designs. For example, with a pattern for an iris design, we learn that the young bridegroom of yesteryear often designed his bride's quilt and that many of the designs were single-flower motifs, such as the iris. Furthermore, it was considered poor etiquette to ask the bride for the pattern for her quilt — she usually destroyed the original pattern so it could not be copied.

EMROIDERED ROSE, cross-stitched on gingham squares creates one of the most beautiful flower quilts. Cut your gingham into 14-inch squares to start your own embroidered quilt.

In addition to the patterns for 16 quilts, "Grandmother's Flower Quilts" has plenty of how-to information, so that even a beginning quilter will know exactly how to proceed. There are instructions on applique, patchwork and finishing, plus patterns for the actual hand-quilting that goes through all layers of the finished quilt and keeps the padding from shifting. Tiny, tiny stitches are recommended — 12 to 14 to the inch. Quilting is done in straight square or diamond designs or in more intricate designs such as a spider web.

Order your copy of "Grandmother's Flower Quilts" now, to bring color and warmth to winter months. Just send $1.25, with your name, address and zip, to: "Grandmother's Flower Quilts," Stitchin' Time, care of this newspaper, Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Preying Mantis Is Better Name

WASHINGTON (AP) - The praying mantis would be better named a preying mantis, says National Geographic, referring to the insect's predatory habits.

Although it is harmless to humans, an adult mantis gobbles up flies, boll weevils, locusts, crickets, wasps, beetles, and grasshoppers. In addition the female often devours the male after mating, says Geographic.

Because of its dining habits, it has gained a new popularity among gardeners as nature's answer to pesticides.

Doctor Visits

NEW YORK (AP)-More women than men in the United States visit doctors, according to the Health Insurance Institute.

The Institute says that estimates based on government figures show that 8 to 10 of all women have visited a doctor at least once a year, while the male ratio is 7 in 10.

The American auction of American furniture at Sotheby Parke Bernet in January this year totaled $1,975,535, a new world auction record for sales of this type.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED-Mr. and Mrs. S. Barber Martin announce the engagement of their daughter, Raleen to Tim Sloan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Waymon Sloan of Kaufman. A wedding date has been set for September 3, at the 37th Street Church of Christ.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South wins the heart lead and sees that his contract will be a cinch if diamonds don't break 4-0.

A careless South will lead a low diamond toward dummy at trick two. East will win with the ace and return a spade and South will suddenly discover that his contract won't come in.

A careful South will see that an immediate lead of the diamond queen will guarantee the contract against any defense and any combination of adverse cards.

East can't afford to win this first diamond because South can continue by leading a low diamond, ducking in dummy and winding up with four diamonds, three hearts and two spades.

So East must duck that first diamond. Now South has one diamond trick. He can abandon diamonds, go after clubs, and make three clubs, one diamond, two spades and three hearts.

Suppose diamonds break 3-1. South is now going to make four notrump. He will lead a second diamond and go after clubs after the defender with the ace of diamonds ducks, as he must.

HEALTH TIP from DEAN

Loud rock music played at levels common in discotheques can permanently damage the hearing of many listeners. The hearing loss may occur without the person feeling any pain. This has been demonstrated by laboratory tests. If young people listen to the amplified sounds for as long as two hours, about one in six persons will experience severe changes in hearing.

AS PUBLIC LIAISON ASSISTANT

Midge Stands Between Carter And Constituents

EDITOR'S NOTE- Midge Costanza is the only woman, the only ethnic, the only Catholic, among President Carter's closest aides. She's also the only person who stands between the President and those among his 220 million constituents who want his time. She's Carter's assistant for public liaison.

By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)- Midge Costanza, the only woman in the upper echelons of the White House, was addressing a Kiwanis banquet in her native Rochester, N.J., when a fire bell interrupted her oratory.

"It's God calling," cracked Midge. "That's the next job I'm looking for. Only as an assistant, of course."

Midge Costanza already has a fairly important job as an assistant-for public liaison- to President Carter. The trim, 5-foot-1 Midge-the real name she never uses is Margaret-has the power to decide who, among thousands of groups and individuals wanting to see the President, gets past the White House portals.

The job keeps her telephone ringing 200 times a day while hundreds of letters pleading for a hearing in the White House pile up. They come from a diverse lot: Shoe industry representatives. Montana Indians. Practical nurses. Interpreters for the deaf. Activist Hawaiians.

Midge let the gays into the White House, and dissenting mail promptly followed.

Midge, 44 and single, is a former vice-mayor of Rochester, and the daughter of a Sicilian sausage company owner.

"I love being the only woman in the White House," she says. But she wishes there were others. "I can't represent every woman in the nation."

She's also the only ethnic, the only Catholic, the only Northeasterner, and the only former elected public official on the White House staff.

Striding in her pantsuit and three-inch heels into the White House, she calls out occasionally, "Tell the President I'm back so he can feel secure again."

One time, hand on hip, playing the vamp, she sashayed past a group of startled White House visitors and murmured huskily, "When you see me, you know what the President meant when he talked about lust in his heart."

Midge clearly admires the President as much as Carter appears to enjoy her style. He calls her "Midgie" and often, when they meet publicly they hug each other. "I'm a toucher, he's a toucher," she says.

Her dark eyes light up behind octagonal-shaped thick glasses when she says of her mission:

"This is one of the greatest opportunities in my life. To serve 220 million people. To be part of history. And in a position to effect change."

Midge and Carter met in 1974 when she was running for Congress in Rochester and he was National Democratic Committee chairman.

She lost her election but helped Carter win his when she co-chaired his New York campaign. After the election, she called and said, "I'm going to advise you from Rochester," and he replied, "Would you like to do it from the White House?"

She started in a cluttered room just a few doors from the Oval Office. Much of the work for her and a staff of 10 involves referring petitioning groups to different agencies.

Sometimes there are tangible results. Thanks to Midge's office, a Jewish cemetery in Russia was saved from being bulldozed. And organizers of Food Day got to cater a meatless meal in the White House, despite the protests of the cattle industry

"I will never apologize for allowing any organization to participate in the government it helped elect," Midge says.

She was serious, but most often her seriousness is concealed behind an uninhibited display of irreverence.

"You know when the President kept talking about spending more time with your families?" Midge asked a group of federal executives. "Well, I don't have one, so just when I decided to start a family, he told me I couldn't sin.

"So I asked him what was the difference between sinning and funning. 'It's sinning when I catch you,' he said."

Midge's raucous humor, her uninhibited style "is refreshing," says Stuart Eizenstat, assistant to the President for domestic policy. "It's much needed here. I don't normally kid around with anybody, but she is one of the few people who can get a laugh out of me."

Midge displays confidence in her assignment.

"I'm not in the position where I need permission to do something," she says. "I feel the confidence of the President, and he has never criticized me."

But she is sensitive to critics who say that she lacks real clout in the White House.

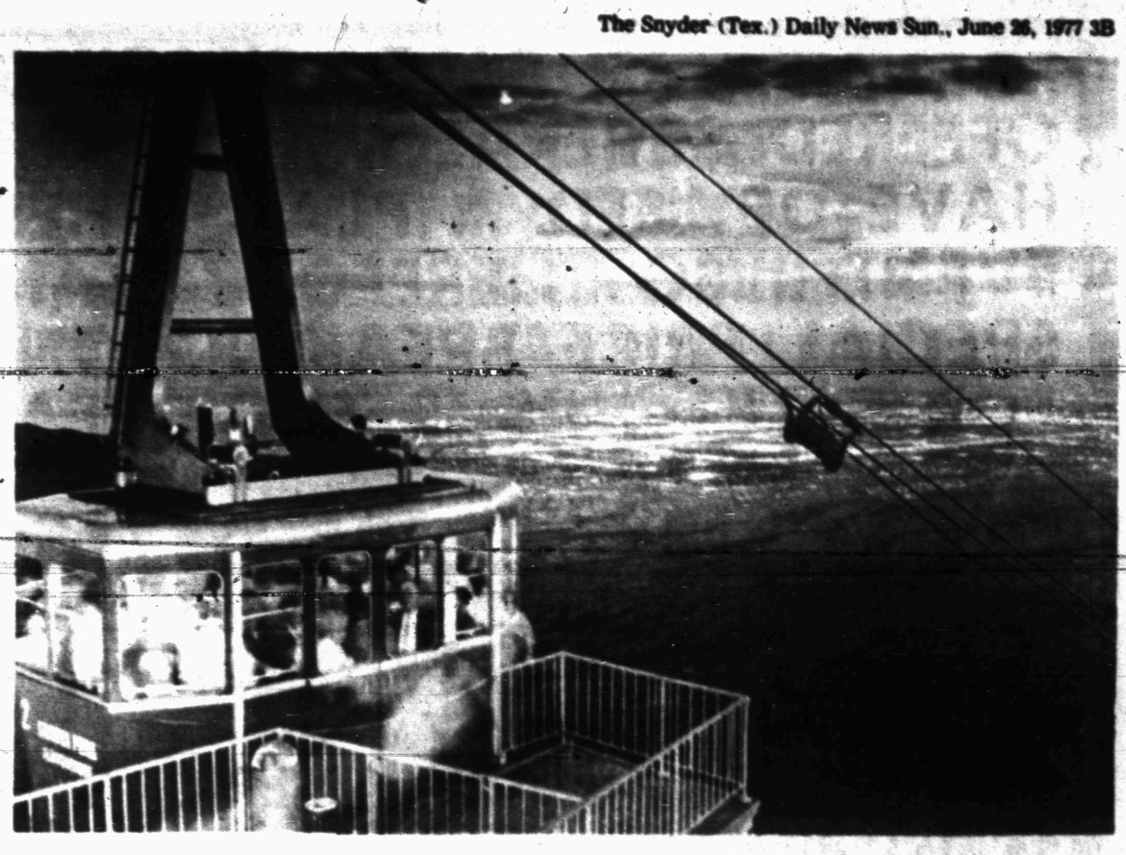

"I have the opportunity to affect policy as well as anybody else," she says. "If I see issues we're not addressing, nothing stops me from pointing them out - as I have done."

She works almost nonstop through the day, skipping lunch, staying late to "reach out to the people."

"We want to find out what they feel about Presidential policies, and we react to the requests of people who call us and say 'There is a need out there that you are not serving.' This government and every government belongs to the people. We have no business treating people as if they were interrupting our agenda.

"They are the agenda."

Vanocur Named To ABC Post

WASHINGTON (AP)- Sander Vanocur, a former television network newsman and now television editor at the Washington Post, has been named an ABC vice president in charge of special reporting units.

Roone Arledge, president of ABC News and Sports, said Thursday that Vanocur will supervise the network's political and investigative reporting. He also will make occasional on-camera appearances.

Vanocur spent 14 years at NBC and served as the network's White House correspondent, national political correspondent and Washington correspondent for the "Today" show.

He's A Lover, Not A Husband

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc

DEAR ABBY: At the age of 44, I'm stumped. All my life I've worked with the public and thought I had seen and heard everything, but my own situation has me completely baffled.

After 12 years as a divorcee, I remarried. My problem is sex. When I dated my husband our sex was great, but as soon as we got married it started to go downhill, until now it is nothing. Six months of nothing, and I am ready to climb the walls.

I love my husband, Abby, and he claims he loves me. What is wrong? I am his fourth wife. His three previous wives told me that sex with him was wonderful—until they got married! They all admitted that they had cheated on him. (One he caught in bed.)

I don't want this to happen to us. Or me. When I mention seeing a doctor he flares up and throws a tantrum like a kid.

He is 50, drives a truck and looks like a stud, but since our marriage he has been a dud. Help me.

"ME" IN N.J.

DEAR "ME": It's psychological. Some men are turned on only by illicit sex. But as soon as it becomes legal (and therefore no longer forbidden), it loses all its excitement and appeal. In extreme cases, they are unable to perform.

Psychotherapy could help. If your husband refuses, you have no choice but to climb the walls until you reach the top—and then go over to join his three former wives.

DEAR ABBY: I have been trying to teach my children, ages 4 and 6, NEVER to accept any kind of gift from a stranger.

My problem is that many times when we are on a bus, or shopping in some public place, some well-meaning person will admire my children and offer them candy, gum and even money!

I hate to hurt their feelings, but, Abby, it makes it so hard for mothers to train children NOT to accept anything from strangers when strangers keep offering them goodies and money.

Can you please say something to help our cause?

ONE MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I'll try. Perhaps it hasn't occurred to all you generous, well-meaning people who "love children" and can't resist offering them goodies or money, that this is the technique used by child molesters who hope to gain a child's confidence in order to get him to "go for a ride" or "not tell" after improper advances have been made.

So if you love children, please don't offer them candy, money or gifts of any kind.

DEAR ABBY: One of the girls I work with is constantly talking about her sex life with her husband. (She's not a young kid, either.) Some of us are bored and others are embarrassed by her daily morning reports of what went on in her bedroom, but no one has the nerve to tell her.

We know she reads your column, so if you can't think of a better solution, how about running this letter?

THE OFFICE GANG

DEAR GANG: If no one has the courage to speak up, you all deserve to be bored or embarrassed. I'll run your letter, not as a "solution" to your problem, but as a reminder that the meek are destined to put up with a lot.

Crude Oil Is Finally Flowing From Alaska

HOUSTON (AP)-Just a month short of nine years from the date of discovery, crude oil finally is flowing from Alaska's Prudhoe Bay region.

During those nine years, crude oil output in the lower 48 states declined 12 per cent and the nation's requirments for imported crude and petroleum products soared by 226 per cent.

Domestic demand for petroleum jumped from 13,393,000 barrels a day to 18,854,000 barrels daily during the long delay, in completing the 800-mile pipeline needed for moving Prudhoe oil to markets.

It was in July 1968 that Atlantic Richfield Co. and Humble Oil & Refining Co., now Exxon Co. USA, confirmed the discovery of oil on the North Slope.

Domestic crude production then was averaging a record 9,096,000 barrels a day and imports of foreign oil were averaging a record 2,840,000 barrels a dav.

In a mid-June report, the American Petroleum Insitute said domestic output the first five months of 1977 averaged 7,997,000 barrels a day, the lowest level since 1965 when production averaged 7,804,000 barrels daily.

The Institute's report also said January-May imports of crude and products had averaged a record 8,863,000 barrels a day.

From the record 9,096,000 barrel level for 1968, domestic crude production moved to 9,238,000 in 1969 before hitting the all-time high of 9,637,000 barrels a day in 1970.

The start of North Slope production now is expected to break a six-year decline in domestic output.

From the all-time high of 1970, domestic production dropped to 9,463,000 barrels a day in 1971, to 9,441,000 in 1972, to 9,208,000 in 1973, to 8,774,000 in 1974, to 8,362,000 in 1975, and to 8,156,000 barrels a day in 1976.

From the initial 300,000 barrels a day, the Trans Alaskan pipeline operating level is to be increased to 600,000 barrels daily and, late in the year, to 1,200,000 barrels a day as additional pumps are placed in service

In its mid-year supply and demand report, the Independent Petroleum Association of American forecast that the start of Prudhoe Bay production will boost the 1977 domestic crude output average to 8,217,000 barrels a day.

The forecast included a range from 7,928,000 barrels daily the first quarter of the year to 8,689,000 the fourth quarter as Prudhoe Bay moves to the 1,200,000-barrel level.

At the same time, the independents said the rate of decline in domestic production, excluding the North Slope, has moderated from an annual decrease of 4.7 per cent in 1974 to an expected decline of about 2 per cent in 1977.

The improvement was attributed to a drilling activity upturn that has been under way since 19733.

Plans for the Alaskan pipeline were announced in February 1969, just seven months after the AROO-Humble discovery.

The $100 million order for the 48-inch diameter pipe was placed two months later and delivery was completed in October 1971.

In rapid order after the award of the $100 million pipe contract, the consortium of North Slope producers filed application for the pipeline right-of-way and the Department of Interior held public hearings in Fairbanks and issued requirements to minimize environmental damage.

On Dec. 31, 1969, Congress enacted the National Environmental Policy Act with an effective date of Jan. 1, 1970.

Environmental groups and others then filed suits to block construction eventually resolved the resulting litigation by approving the Trans Alaska Pipeline Authorization Act that was signed on Nov. 16, 1973.

Mobilization of equipment and manpower got under way two months later and contstruction began on April 29, 1974.

Oilmen Spend $1.2 Billion

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Oilmen spent $1.2 billion Thursday for the right to hunt for oil on 152 tracts in fairly shallow water in the Gulf of Mexico. The figure was about twice what was predicted.

Gulf Oil Corp. spent the most-$378 million. Gulf also made the largest single bid, offering the Department of Interior $77,878,080 for a tract southeast of Galveston, Tex.

The tract is 5,000 acres under water less than 100 feet deep, sitting about 80 miles southeast of Galveston in an area surrounded by oil and gas wells.

Gulf also laid out $72.3 million for another tract, about 100 miles south of the Rockefeller Game Refuge in southwest Louisiana.

Overall the company offered the apparent high bid on 13 tracts.

"If you want a tract, you go for what it's worth and are not concerned about the money left on the table," said James M. Bibee, a Gulf vice president.

Snyderite Honor Grad At Harvard

Kathleen O'Banion, a National Merit Scholar from Snyder High School graduated with honors at Harvard University at the university's spring commencement.

Flying to Harvard to attend the graduation rites were her parents, Dr. and Mrs. John O'Banion, and her brother, Jack O'Banion of Snyder; her sister, Patricia O'Banion, and her grandmother Mrs. Elliott Mendenhall, both of Dallas.

Miss O'Banion, a premedical student, had the history of medical science as her undergraduate field of interest. Between her sophomore and junior years, she went to the Dominican Republic where she lived with natives and did research on infant mortality and translated medicines shipped there from the United States.

She was the only undergraduate chosen from Harvard by her biochemistry department to attend the International Convention of Biochemists in Montreal, Canada, where she had a paper published.

Following graduation at Harvard, she left for a nine-weeks tour of Europe. She will return to Dallas this fall and enter Southwestern Medical School where her father received his doctor of medicine degree.

doctors fight back

Medical doctors, who've been fair game for sometimes frivolous malpractice suits in recent years, now seem to be turning the tables on their tormentors.

Last year a radiologist in Skokie, Ill., was awarded $8,000 in a countersuit against a woman who sued him (unsuccessfully) for $250,000 after claiming he failed to properly diagnose a tennis injury to her little finger.

Since that time, doctors in Montana and Missouri have won even larger awards for malicious prosecution. An orthopedic surgeon in Vero Beach, Fla., was awarded $175,000 just the other day in a countersuit against a former patient and his lawyer.

The patient had sued the surgeon, Dr. John Sullivan, for implanting in his broken arm a steel rod that he said was one inch too long. The patient dropped the suit when the doctor refused to settle out of court. The doctor then filed a suit of his own.

What this seems to show is that doctors who resist flimsy malpractice suits can fend off such suits and perhaps even collect damages from their accusers.

If more doctors (and their insurance companies) were willing to challenge unwarranted charges, the number of malpractice suits would decline and the cost of insurance-- which is passed along to the patient - might be substantially reduced.

Legislatures in Indiana and other states have done their part in passing new laws protecting doctors against frivolous suits and limiting the fees a lawyer may collect.

Whatever the reason, the number of suits, the size of awards and the cost of malpractice insurance appear to have leveled off in some parts of the country.

That's good news for doctors - and equally good news for patients, who end up paying the bill.

semantic nonsense

It is not unusual for federal agencies to submerge themselves in semantic gobbledygook, but recent announcements by the Food and Drug Administration should take some sort of prize.

One day, the FDA announced that a list of "daytime" sedatives would be removed from over-the-counter stocks in drug stores. The next day, another announcement advised that these sedatives really would not be removed from the public's reach, but that they would be relabeled as "nighttime" sedatives.

Presumably a person could buy the products during daylight hours, but would be required to wait until nightfall to put them to use. There was no mention of requirements for affidavits, or even pledges that the user would take heed of the time of day when he took them into his body. And there was no indication that the effects on the human system would be any different if taken at night instead of during daylight hours.

But we can be certain of one thing that will result from this order: Relabeling is going to make them cost the consumer more than they have in the past and getting that order implemented is going to cost us more from the Washington end of the saga.

The latest edition of a government - published telephone directory used by Treasurey Department employees had some helpful tips for improving the telephone manners of bureaucrats.

Page 140 of the booklet has 24 hints on what a government employee should say on the telephone under various circumstances.

Tip No. 2 states that, "After you have picked up the receiver, do not continue to talk to someone else in the office."

Tip No. 4 is more explicit: "Hold the mouthpiece well up in front of lips and never answer with food or chewing gum in your mouth."

Among suggestions for placing calls, the directory advised the employee to "Make sure you are on the line ready to talk when the called person is reached."

The tips were compiled by the pool of telephone operators who work at the Treasury.

"This is for people who have no mannners," said the chief operator.

We couldn't find out how much the little booklet cost but that's probably just as well.

"Great!" exclaimed the man, "I'm rich!"

At which point the telephone operator came on the line and said, "Your three minutes are up. Would you please deposit a million dollars."

invitation to rape?

Are school-age girls inviting rape--by the way they act and the way they dress?

A Wisconsin judge said they are. And he, Judge Archie Simonson, refused to jail a 15-year-old boy for what the judge called; "reacting normally" to the sex stimuli all around him.

Madison (Wis.) County Judge Simonson considered the case of the boy accused of raping a girl, 16, in a schoolhouse stairwell. Then he released the boy to go home--subject to one year of "court supervision"--but no confinement.

Some women, individually and organized, reacting with indignation, picketed the courthouse with signs reading "Rape is not normal!" and "Archie Must Go!"

But the position of the judge is supported by an increasing number of educators and sociologists--that our sex-oriented atmosphere inflames passions, encourages rape.

The judge says the state university town of Madison, Wis., is particularly permissive.

He mentioned revealing female clothing plus sex emphasis in movies and magazines, billboards and nude bars.

In person., Judge Simonson does not sound like a close-minded puritanical prude.

Simonson is married, father of four, including three daughters.

He seems genuinely to be searching for an explanation and solution to an increasing problem which is glutting his court.

The noisy response to this court ruling is now causing some educators to say aloud what they have been thinking: that the deterioration of public education might be traceable to a relaxation of the school dress code.

Academically, we are going backward.

No need to re-recite the sad statistics relating to fundamental illiteracy; nobody is defending the public education record any longer.

Mrs. Trudy Clayton abandoned the teaching profession in Michigan because of the chronic problems of deportment, disinterest and surrender to slovenliness.

She is convinced that much of the blame relates to the relaxed dress code.

Whether sloppy attire was more cause than effect is debatable, but it is her observation that the braless look and the shabby shoes and the unclean jeans begat undisciplined conduct and disdain for academic excellence.

Young people tend to be imitators--of their peers and their idols. In apportioning the responsibility, one must acknowledge the bad examples of the playactors who show up for TV talk show interviews looking like unmade beds.

Further, an economic factor must be recognized in this recent revolt against stockings and starch, creases and cleanliness.

It's expensive to look neat.

But somehow, even during the John Boy Walton depression days, we managed it.

Any excess ultimately is its own undoing.

Perhaps the situation in Madison will encourage that and other communities to look at themselves in the mirror and see if they really like what they see.

Bancroft Prizes Awarded

NEW YORK (AP) - Historians Alan Dawley, Robbert A. Gross and Barry W. Higman were recently awarded Columbia University's Bancroft Prizes for 1977.

The $4,000 prizes were given in recognition of books on American history and diplomacy the three men published in 1976. The winning books were "Class and Community: The Industrial Revolution in Lynn," by Dawley, "The Minutemen and Their World," by Gross, and "Slave Population and Economy in Jamaica, 1807-1834," by Higman.

Dawley is an assistant professor of history at Trenton State College in New Jersey, Gross is assistant professor of history and American studies at Amherst College, in Massachusetts. Higman, born in Australia, has been a lecturer at the University of the West Indies since 1971.

Tags On Bags More Important

NEW YORK (AP) - With airlines carrying more than half a million passengers a day, identification tags for all checked baggage has become more important than ever, says the Air Transport Association. Proper identification, it said, helps the airlines trace suitcases gone astray and prevents passengers from picking up the wrong bag. The ATA adds that most airlines provide free baggage identification labels at the ticket counter for passengers who need them.

WASHINGTON (NEA)-Is it possible that the World Bank and other international development funds are in the business or rewarding tyranny, dictorship, repression, torture and blatant violations of human rights?

Of course not, insist the major international financial institutions, all beneficiaries of heavy financial support from the United States. But the record suggests otherwise, as indicated by these examples:

-From 1970 to 1972, the Phillipines received $69 million from the World Bank and three similar organizations which specialize in providing aid to developing nations. In late 1972, President Ferdinand Marcos imposed martial law, ordered strict censorship and arrested citizens suspected of political opposition to his regime.

During 1973-75, the three years after initiation of those repressive measures, aid totalled $214 million, a whopping 210 per cent increase over the three predictatorial years.

-From 1970 to 1972, South Korea received $105 million from the same four international financial institutions. In late 1972, President Chung Park Hee placed the country under martial law, then engineered revision of the constitution which allowed him to hold office for life, weakened the legislature and restricted civil liberties.

During the next three years, 1973-75, aid amounted to $284 million, an increase of 170 per cent over the 1970-72 period when the nation enjoyed at least some semblance of democracy.

-From 1971 to 1973, when Chile's government was headed by Salvador Allende, a Marxist who nevertheless attained office through a popular and constitutional election, that country received only $6.4 million from the World Bank and three other aid funds.

An Army-led coup toppled Allende in late 1973, leading to the establishment of a military junta which today governs the country under a reign of terror. During that government's first three years in power, 1974-76, aid totalled $77.6 million, a phenomenal 1,112 per cent increase.

Those figures, compiled from official reports by Americans for Democratic Action, are being quoted frequently these days as Congress and the administration wrestle with the question of how to implement President Carter's oft-repeated pledge to emphasize human rights in our dealings with other nations.

The setting for the debate is pending legislation which authorized a United States contribution of more than $5.2 billion during the next three years to the World Bank and five similar assistance funds.

A coalition of conservative Republicans and liberal Democrats convinced the House to approve an amendment to that bill which directs this country's representatives to those international organizations to vote against aid "to any country which engages in a consistent pattern of gross violations of internationally recognied human rights."

The White House, however, opposes that approach on the grounds that it is unnecessarily negative and deprives the United States of needed flexibility and negotiating options in the financial organizations.

In a close 50-43 vote, the Senate sided with the administration, which prefers weaker language in the law, stating that this country's representatives should use their "voice and vote" to "advance the cause of human rights."

That crucial difference now remains to be resolved by a House-Senate conference committee, where there is good chance that relatively strong language will be adopted.

But the debate has shown Carter to be a man apparently intent upon ignoring Teddy Roosevelt's wise admonition to "speak softly and carry a big stick." Carter's questionable approach to international human rights appears to center around tough talk and weak followup.

robert schuller

it's possible

Several years ago we bought a new home. We were so excited! We moved in as quickly as we could and for a while only our house and the one next door were occupied. All the other homes in the tract were vacant.

Being raised on a farm, my first task was to landscape the barren ground. There was a parkway between the curb and the sidewalk that was 12 feet wide and 80 feet across. For several weeks, we discussed what we could do with that area. Finally, Mrs. Schuller suggested, "Let's pave it with bricks. We'll never have to feed it, or weed it, or mow it. And the bricks will ad some charm to the front." She quickly convinced me.

Now possibility thinking says that first you make the right decisions. Then you solve the problems. So once we made the decision, it was then up to me to solve the problems.

One of the first things I found out was that you can't just lay the bricks on the ground. If you did that, the bricks would sink into the earth several inches with the first good rainstorm. I was told that before I could put the bricks down I would have to excavate 10 inches of dirt, fill the area with eight inches of sand, and then place the bricks over the sand.

"Well, that made the job a little less desirable. But we had made our decision. And the more I put off getting started, the more my wife started preaching my own sermons to me. "Beginning is half-done," she said. "Inch by inch, anything's a cinch," she continued. Finally, I got up one Monday morning determined to begin.

I got the wheelbarrow and a shovel and approached my task from one corner of the parkway. I had a couple of shovel fulls of dirt in the wheelbarrow when my neighbor pulled out of his driveway, came up alongside the curb and asked, "Are you going to plant a tree?" "No," I answered and then described my plan.

That's when he hit me with future shock. "What are you going to do with all that dirt?" he asked. I played it cool on the outside, but my mind was churning away trying to solve my new problem. Finally I answered him, "I'm going to make a mound. Yes, I'm going to make some mounds in the back — big mounds! I like big mounds."

"Well, it'll sure be a big mound, Schuller, but the way you're doing it you'll be at it for a month of Mondays." "Not me," I shouted to him as he started to drive off, "I'm a possibility thinker!"

I shoveled two more loads of dirt into the wheelbarrow and suddenly discovered one of the great unpublished laws of physics. And that is when you take a previously undisturbed piece of ground and shovel it into a wheelbarrow, it multiplies 10 times. I had a hole in the ground no more than one foot square and 10 inches deep, but the wheelbarrow was overflowing with dirt. But I enthusiastically wheeled it into the backyard and dumped it.

But as I came back out front and looked at the parkway, I said, "Lord, there's got to be an easier way." And what happened next you would not believe.

Down the street came a truck and on the door of the truck it said in big red letters, Excavating and Dirt Hauling. The driver was my center aisle Sunday morning church usher. He stopped and looked at me in my grubby clothes and said, "Reverend, what happened? What are you doing here?" "Hi Roy, this is where we moved to," I said. "What are you doing here?" And he answered, "I'm lost."

"What are you doing with the wheelbarrow?" he asked. After I told him, he suggested, "You know, that's a tough way to do it. I've got a tractor here on the truck and I've got a skiploader in front of it. I can have that dirt out for you in no time."

"No, Roy. I know that's expensive equipment to rent, and I just don't have that kind of money." He bent down, picked up a piece of dirt that had fallen out of my overloaded wheelbarrow and enthused, "This is good black dirt." "Yes," I agreed. "This was an orange orchard before they built these homes and you know how they fertilized those orchards."

"I'll tell you what I'll do, Reverend. This is good top soil. I can sell it. I'll take it all out and haul it away for you free — in exchange for the dirt!"

If I should live to be a hundred I shall never forget the beautiful sound of that tractor and skiploader. By 11 o'clock in the morning he had finished the job. My parkway was ready for the sand and the bricks and his truck was overloaded with good rich dirt.

I was out front sweeping off the curb and whistling away when my neighbor came home from lunch. You should have seen his face! He was an instant convert to possibility thinking!

You have a choice. You can either live a life that is filled with the fun that comes by looking for possibilities or a life filled with the fear of impossibilities. But remember, an impossibility is nothing more than a big idea that hits a mind that has to think bigger! So think big! Possibility thinking really works!

Artery block to heart

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 60-year-old male and recently had extensive tests which showed one artery blocked which enters the heart and another partially blocked. My doctor seems to be vague about my condition or he is explaining my condition in a way I do not understand.

Presently I am taking Inderal and Sorbitrate which make me feel much better. My question is do I continue with this medication for a lifetime or do I need an operation? Also, when is open heart surgery necessary?

DEAR READER — Each person has two main arteries to his heart, a right coronary artery that goes down the back side of his heart and a left coronary artery. The latter divides into two branches and supplies the left side and front of the heart. Some people include another branch of these arteries to describe four major arteries. Your heart muscle is like any other muscle and must have a continuous blood supply to work and even to live.

The fatty-cholesterol deposits so common in our society set up a chain of events that start to plug these arteries. Your doctor is trying to tell you that one of your arteries is completely plugged with such deposits and another one is partially plugged.

In evaluating the importance of this finding it makes a difference which arteries are plugged. If the plug is in the left coronary artery before it divides into two branches most authorities agree that surgery is indicated. A small amount of build up in any artery that still permits adequate flow is not considered important.

From what I have said you can guess that the decision to operate or to treat a patient with medicines has to be individualized to each case. Apparently your doctor thinks you can do just as well, at least for the time being, with medicines. You may need to take medicines the rest of your life but the ones you are taking are not particularly troublesome.

I would suggest that if you have any fat at all on your body that you should try to eliminate it. Many people do not get the maximum benefit from a diet because they do not lose all the fat they should lose. So you can be the judge and if you have any fat, with your problem I think you should get rid of every pound of it. I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet to help you with this. Others who want a weight losing diet can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing to Post Office Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. This is also a low-fat low-cholesterol diet of the type you should be using with your condition.

Of course if you smoke you should stop at once. To the extent that your condition permits you should have a regular exercise program. I would suggest a simple walking program without over doing it. If your doctor does not disapprove you could start by walking 15 minutes at a time and gradually build up from there. Do not walk or exercise if you have any discomfort at all, but stop and rest. With a good dietary program, good control of your weight and a sensible exercise program you may never need to have surgery at all.

Because of the volume of mail Dr. Lamb cannot answer your letters personally but he will answer representative letters of general interest in his column.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 54-year-old female of medium weight. A few months ago I was diagnosed as having Sjorgen's syndrome. Presently I am suffering from very dry and burning lips and nose, and a severe burning of the external genital organ. My eyes are dry, for which they give me eye drops. Every night I have to put hormone cream into the vagina.

If I have any cold or sore throat I have to take extra medicine. Drinking water by the gallons wouldn't soothe the burning inside my stomach and cheeks. One thing that helps to soothe this burning is taking buttermilk, at least two quarts every 24 hours. The doctors inform me that this is a rare and incurable disease.

So far I can swallow freely without food sticking to my throat.

What is your advice for my situation? I desperately need some encouragement. Is this disease restricted to females or do males have it too?

DEAR READER — Your doctors are doing about all that can be done for your problem. We know that the disease is associated with an infiltration of the tear glands of the eyes and salivary glands by white blood cells (lymphocytes). This may make the salivary glands enlarge around the jaw bone.

Less than 10 per cent of patients with this disease are males. It often occurs in women who have rheumatoid arthritis. In addition to the absence of tears and the dry mouth that can lead to difficulties in swallowing, it may cause dryness of the entire respiratory tract, skin and vagina.

Artificial tears, as your doctors are giving you, help the eye problem some. A similar solution can be used as a mouth wash. There is some new work on the use of immune suppressing drugs similar to those used to prevent rejection of transplanted organs, but this needs further study.

I know how discouraged you must be. I think it is important for you to realize that the methods of treatment available are limited and that your doctors are doing all that anyone could do. Stay with your doctors and hope that some new means of treatment will be found soon.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I was working at an air base and a jet went over and made a loud noise. Now I have ringing in the ears all the time.

I have been to several doctors and they tell me there is nothing that can be done. Do you know of anything that could be done or something I might do to control it?

DEAR READER — Your story is that of noise damage to your ears. This type of damage affects the nerve mechanism that transmits hearing. You can have ringing of the ears from many other causes — some of which can be treated.

The treatment of your type of problem, involving the hearing nerve, is not very satisfactory. Often time alone permits some recovery so perhaps by the time you receive my letter you will have improved. I hope so.

The episode is a severe warning to you to protect your ears when you are around any form of noise. Individuals exposed to noise are usually required to wear protection devices against noise.

For information on "Aspirin and Related Medicines" readers can send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 8-8. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Revenues, Costs Of CRMWD Rise

Revenues and expenses ran slightly ahead for the Colorado River Municipal Water District through May, according to the district's monthly operating statement. The volume of water for the period was slightly less.

Income amounted to $2,773,492 for the first five months of the fiscal year. Of this, $1,663,971 came from the cities up $196,959 due to rate adjustments, and $1,018,807 came from oil and industrial users, a gain of $180,965. Net increase in revenues amounted to $338,506.

Expenses amounted to $985,710, up $105,714 for the five months, and a good bit of this was in power costs of $437,866, up only $16,000 for the year because a lesser volume of water was pumped for the billing period (which lags one month behind actual production).

Deliveries for the first five months stood at 6,958,587,000 gallons, down only 44,790,000 gallons for the period compared to the previous year.

Latin America Art Displayed

NEW YORK (AP) - "Americas: The Decorative Arts in Latin America in the Era of the Revolution," exhibited last year as part of the Bicentennial celebration at the Renwick Gallery in Washington, is on display at the Center for Inter-American Relations' Gallery through August 7.

The exhibition of over 150 pieces of 18th-century Latin American decorative art reflects the Spanish and Portuguese tradition combined, in some cases, with pre-Hispanic tastes.

A friend who has political clout may take a further interest in you this year. As a result, you could be involved in a very different project.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Spontaneous activities are the ones that will afford you the most pleasure today. Toss out your schedule. Fly by the seat of your slacks. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Circumstances may develop today so as to enable you to tie something down that has heretofore eluded you. If the chance arises, jump on it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll be welcome today if you decide to visit an old friend without an invitation. He'll be as glad to see you as you are him.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be alert today for unique opportunities. One could pertain to finances, the other to the advancement of your career.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You have the happy faculty of saying things today that have an uplifting effect. You may not be aware of the impact of your words till later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Good friends will be doing things for you today that you couldn't possibly accomplish yourself. What's even nicer — they won't even tell you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Project yourself into any situation today that gives you the chance to meet new people. You could establish a very valuable future contact.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) What you do today, you do quite well. You really shine if confronted with a challenge and the opportunity to put forth your best efforts.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This day is one where you should be with friends who like to do things which are daring and innovative. You thrive in such company.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you've wanted to get the attention and consent of the family about a change you'd like to make, this is the day to broach the subject.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Not only are you a fast thinker and the possessor of excellent judgment today, you're a person who knows how to implement your ideas.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're exceptionally clever today at dreaming up ideas that could make money. There are dollars in your tool box and in your gray matter.

ASTRO-GRAPH
Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

June 27, 1977

It's very likely you'll have an active social life this coming year. Enjoy yourself, but don't try to keep up with the more affluent Joneses.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You could be an unwise shopper or a poor investor or both today. For some reason you're not adept at making your dollars work for you. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's the wrong day to draw a comparison that would put a family member in a bad light against an outsider. Sparks will surely fly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept.22) Bite your tongue before you make sarcastic remarks about a loved one today. The hurt may go much deeper than you could imagine.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Impulse could lead you to yield to pressures to part with something of value today. Try to resist. You'll have regrets after sober reflection.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Discord could arise between you and your mate if either tries to pass the buck concerning duties. Pull together rather than apart.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The marker could be called in today for an obligation you hoped somehow to put off. Perhaps next time you'll better face up to reality.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you're approaching friends to solicit favors today, use the most tactful presentation possible. They'll be turned off if you're demanding.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Nothing will be handed to you on a silver platter today. There are those in the wings who'll try to stymie your achievements.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There's a possibility today you'll ignore a painful lesson gained through experience. If you do, it could forcefully be brought home to you again.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be very careful if you're controlling assets for another. Dissensions could arise to leave slow-healing wounds.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) One-to-one relationships are an especially touchy area for you today. Even the normally complacent could get their feathers ruffled.

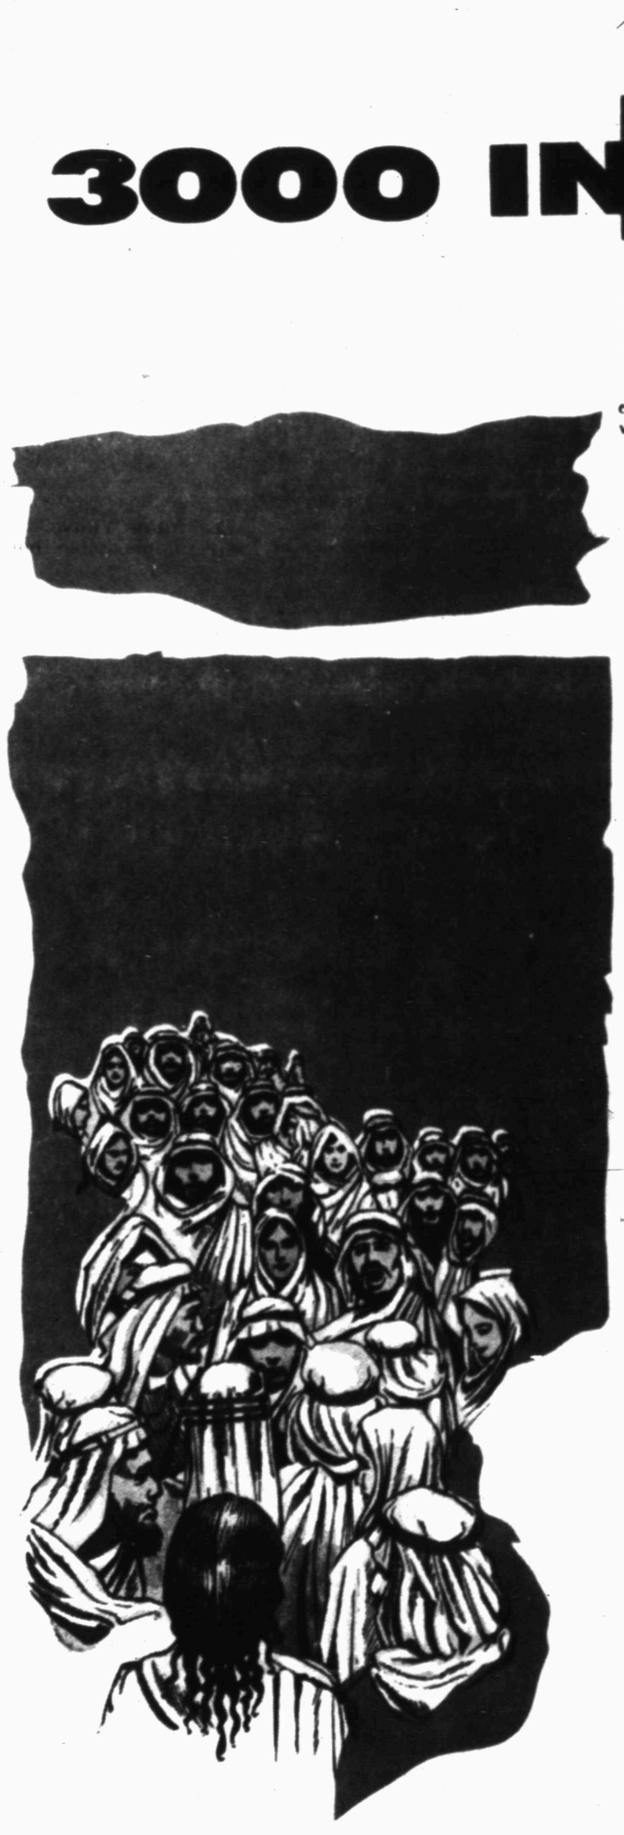

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Helping someone you like today may lead you to accept some additional responsibility. It could prove to be more than you'd ordinarily assume.

Prints Exhibited

MYSTIC SEAPORT, Conn. (AP) -- An exhibition of 65 marine lithographs by Currier and Ives will be on display throughout the summer at the Maritime Museum in Mystic Seaport.

The pictures, all published between 1841 and 1887, range from whaling scenes and disasters at sea to portraits of clipper ships, steamships and yachts.

3000 IN ONE DAY

That glorious day on which Christ's church or kingdom had its beginning is fully and plainly described in the second chapter of Acts, the fifth book in the New Testament.

That single day in history -- on Pentecost in Jerusalem exactly 50 days after the crucifixion of Christ -- was filled with marvelous demonstrations of the power of God and the fulfillment of divine prophecy and promise.

You will remember some of the background for this mighty event:

(1) Old Testament prophets had foretold of the coming of a kingdom, which would have its beginning in Jerusalem (Isaiah 2:1-3) during the days of kings and would stand forever (Daniel 2:44).

(2) Jesus himself promised to build his church or kingdom and promised that Peter would be given the "keys to the kingdom," thereby granting to Peter the privilege and authority to announce the terms of admission into the kingdom (Matthew 16:18,19).

(3) Christ had told his apostles that the kingdom would come "with power" (Mark 9:1) during their lifetime, and then after his resurrection he instructed them to wait in Jerusalem for the coming of the Holy Spirit with power, which would inaugurate the grand occasion (Luke 24:46-49, Acts 1:5).

Clearly, the establishment of the church would be accompanied by the coming of the Holy Spirit with power from on high. This is exactly what happened. These promises and prophecies and others were all fulfilled on this one day.

The Holy Spirit did come with power and moved the apostles to preach in different languages for the benefit of the Jews who had gathered from "every nation under heaven" (Acts 2:5). Peter publicly declared the divinity of Christ and pointed out that Christ had ascended to the spiritual throne of David and was now reigning over his kingdom (Acts 2:29-33).

And, significantly, in fulfillment of Christ's promise, it was Peter who first announced terms of admission into the kingdom. To those hearers convicted of Christ and their own sins, the apostle commanded:

> "Repent ye, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost" (Acts 2:38).

And a few sentences later, we read of the results:

> "Then they that gladly received his word were baptized: and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls" (Acts 2:41).

Yes, three thousand conversions on that first day! How were they converted? It was simple, not mysterious. They heard the gospel preached in its purity to have faith, they were convicted of their need to be saved, they repented of their sins, and they were baptized into Christ for the remission of sins. They then began growing in grace and knowledge.

Times have changed, but man's need for a Saviour is just as great today as it was for the multitudes of Jews gathered in Jerusalem on that day long ago. If you are convicted of Christ as the Son of God, and if you are also convicted of your own sins, the same divine instruction applies to you today -- no more, no less. When you are converted to Christ, the Lord in the same process adds you to his church (Acts 2:47). By becoming obedient to the same teaching, you will be added by the Lord to the same church.
