'HARMONYS' BALK AT DRY COALITION

Baylor University Removal Revoked By Baptist Commission

Mr. Francis' Laugh—
Collegiate Voters—
For Air Rifles—
Tomato Cans—

Politics is a queer business at times. Charles I. Francis, vice-chairman of the state executive committee and Wichita county Democratic leader, was practically howled down when he attempted to address "constitutionalists" in their meeting Tuesday. In Williamson county, home of Governor Moody, where Democrats are dry but still Democrats, Mr. Francis was selected as one of the Williamson county delegates to the state convention. It seems to be Mr. Francis' turn to laugh.

Out at Junior college a straw vote of students gives Al Smith 46 votes as choice for president, and all other Democratic candidates 12 votes. The students were required to "take the pledge" to support their party nominees. Additional ballots and adding up delegates often produce quite different results, however. In The Record News straw vote, out of two thousand who took the trouble to mark a newspaper ballot, a large majority favored Smith. Out of the less than 1000 who took trouble to attend precinct conventions a majority was against Smith. The real story will be written by Wichita county with its ballot at the general election.

Two boys about 13 years old are lodged in the city jail for "plugging" a negro boy with an air rifle. It is to be hoped the lesson of a night in a city jail will prove lasting. Boys who start "plugging" enemies with air guns may continue the practice later with more deadly weapons. There is a better use for the air rifles, under such conditions. Broken off near the stock, the gun should make a right hefty paddle, and if properly used, doubtless would leave a more lasting impression than a night in one of Chief Burns' dismal but comfortable cells.

Dr. A. H. Douglass, manager of the city water department, Thursday told members of the Rotary club all about the poor water supply here. Dr. Douglass has all the facts and figures on an inadequate system that furnishes unpalatable water for domestic consumption. The people have all the results of the system. They also have the remedy.

Some one, perhaps J. Frank Dobie of Austin, head of the Texas Folklore society, once told this writer the old time westerner packed around cans of tomatoes to quench his thirst. Perhaps there is nothing to the story. But in Wichita Falls the old time westerner now has a son who has his water shipped from Arkansas, or manufactured at home by complicated electrical process, and delivered in five-gallon bottles.

Contract for the new hangar at the Municipal airport calls for a structure larger than any in Texas, and equal to those in much larger cities of the nation. Wichita Falls should soon take its place on the mail, freight and passenger air lines which are covering the country. C. W. Cahoon Jr., and his coworkers are due the sincere thanks of this city for their perseverance and success in the municipal airport work.

WACO C-C WINS FIGHT FOR SCHOOL

Central Texas City To Match Dallas Bid For Site

BUILDING PROGRAM

Arrangement Subject To Approval by General Convention

WACO, May 10. (AP)—The Baptist Educational Commision in Dallas tonight rescinded its action in voting to recommend removal of Baylor University to Dallas and entered into an agreement with representatives of the Waco chamber of commerce covering a seven-year financial program in which a feature of matching dollar for dollar with Waco's contributions is included.

Waco Gives $1,000,000

The agreement entered into between the Waco chamber of commerce and the Baptist Educational Commission, subject to adoption by the Texas Baptist general convention, will bring to Baylor University at Waco $1,000,000 in seven years from Waco citizens alone, and in the same length of time an equal amount from Baptists outside of Waco under the feature of matching Waco's contributions dollar for dollar.

The agreement retains the university at Waco and in Waco under the chartered name Baylor University at Waco; and its finances continue to be handled separate and distinct from the medical branch of the institution at Dallas.

Matching Program.

Under the agreement Waco promises to expend on a building program for Baylor $1,000,000 within seven years, conditional upon the Baptists of Texas raising within the same period or a lesser period for Baylor at Waco a like sum. In this connection, also, a covenant has been reached providing that the Woman's Memorial Dormitory, for which the W. M. U. of Texas has secured in cash and pledges approximately $200,000.00 shall be a part of this program, but money paid by citizens of Waco to this fund shall be a part of Waco's million dollar program, while money paid by Baptists outside of Waco shall be claimed by the denomination for its dollar-for-dollar matching program.

Pension Increased For Gen. Wood's Widow

WASHINGTON, May 10. (UP)—The senate tonight passed a bill to increase to $5,000 the pension of Louise A. Wood, wife of the late Major Gen. Leonard Wood, former governor general of the Philippines. She at present receives a small pension. Mrs. Wood heretofore had been granted a pension of $6,00 annually by the Republic of Cuba. The bill had been contested before but was permitted to pass without debate.

More Hot Cakes In Sun Flower State

TOPEKA, Kan., May 10. (UP)—Kansas will have a wheat crop this year of 142,000,000 bushels—an increase of 13,000,000 bushels over last year, according to an estimate made today in the May crop bulletin of the state board of agriculture.

The report to the board showed that 17 per cent of the [illegible] wheat sowing of last fall [illegible] been abandoned. The condition on May 1 was 80 per cent normal for the 10,824,000 acres remaining. Most of the year's abandonment lies in the northwest quadrant of the state, the report says.

Hambone's Meditations

Willing Witness

In sharp contrast to the demeanor of Herbert Hoover under questioning of the senate campaign investigating committee, Governor Alfred E. Smith, yesterday proved a willing and courteous witness before the senate body. He declared he is spending all his time as governor of New York and that he knows nothing about the presidential campaign. Governor Smith does not even know the names of campaign managers in some states, he said.

SMITH MAKES NO CAMPAIGN

Democrat Says He's Simply New York Governor

NEW YORK, May 10. (UP)—Gov. Alfred E. Smith flicked the ashes from a dead cigar stump, leaned across the table toward the senate campaign investigating committee in a hotel parlor here today and said:

"I promised the people of this state when I was inaugurated governor in 1927 that I would be their governor and nothing else. I told them that job would take all my time. I know nothing about the presidential campaign that has been conducted. I have done nothing. I don't intend to do anything. What my friends have done you can learn from them."

The director of Smith's "friends," George R. Van Namee, a public service commissioner of New York state, furnished the committee an account of the work done in the governor's behalf, showing $103,310 had been collected and $92,090.28 disbursed.

Large Contributions

The largest financial contributor, Van Namee revealed, is William F. Kenny, a contractor, who donated $20,000 and advanced $50,000 in loans. The committee displayed more interest in this fact than any other developed in the two-hour session for which the committee came up here from Washington.

Van Namee said that no money was or would be sent into southern or border states.

Willing Witness

Smith was a willing and courteous witness. He saluted to newspapermen when he came in, let his cigar die out while testifying, and manifested no displeasure when the questioning took on a personal color.

His position was that as far as he was concerned there was no campaign. He has appointed no manager or workers. He will not even let his Albany office force open mail coming in from outside New York State. He sends all that mail to his volunteer organization here. He did not know who had contributed to his fund. He could not tell the names of his managers in Iowa, Kansas, or California. He did not even know anyone in Oregon or Iowa, unless Iowa "Is Wilbur Marsh's home state; I've seen him at the democratic national conventions," he even though his name had been improperly spelled on the ballot in Wisconsin.

"And it's an easy name to spell," he said.

Smith told the committee he had never spent a cent to advance his candidacy and would not. His examination lasted half an hour, most of it being devoted to replying in the negative to rumors which had come to the committee in letters and telegrams, some of them anonymous.

SONS OF VETS VOTE DOWN JOINT MEETING

Confederate Body Thumbs Down on Gathering With G. A. R.

SCURRY IS SPEAKER

Wichita Falls Man Talks Against "Uniting" Two Groups

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 10. (AP)—Sons of Confederate Veterans overwhelmingly voted down late today a proposal that they support a bill now pending in congress providing for a joint reunion of United Confederate Veterans and the Grand Army of the Republic.

The proposal, made by John A. Chumbley, commander of the District of Columbia and Maryland division of the sons' organization, was vigorously opposed in a speech by Judge Edgar Scurry of Wichita Falls, Texas, member of the executive council of the organization.

Officers Named.

Gen. A. T. Goodwyn of Elmore, Ala., was elected commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans today. He succeeds General J. C. Foster of Houston, Texas.

Gen. Goodwyn and Col. R. A. Sneed of Oklahoma City, brigade commander of the Oklahoma department, were the only ones whose names were submitted to the reunion. The vote was 707 for Goodwyn and 306 for Sneed.

Goodwyn is commander of the army of Tennessee department.

General L. W. Stephens of Coushatta, La., was elected commander of the department of Tennessee to succeed General Goodwyn; J. A. Yeager of Tulsa, Okla., was elected commander of the trans-Mississippi department and General Homer Atkinson of Richmond, Va., was elected commander of the department of northern Virginia, a position he was holding by appointment.

Charlotte In 1929.

E. R. Wiles of Little Rock, commander of the trans-Mississippi department, was chosen commander-in-chief of Sons of Confederate Veterans. John A. Jones of Atlanta, Ga., the only other candidate, withdrew before the voting and Wiles was elected unanimously.

The United Confederate Veterans selected Charlotte, N. C., as their 1929 reunion city. Atlanta, Ga., was the only other bidder. The vote for Charlotte was made unanimous when it was found that city led in the balloting.

Aimee McPherson Plans Invasion of Zionist Stronghold

ZION CITY, Ill., May 10. (US) Aimee Semple McPherson plans to invade this religious stronghold here and rout the devil, it was learned today. A "four-square" gospel revival will be held here for two weeks under the direction of an understudy of the noted evangelist.

When the plans for the revival became known a great worry arose in the minds of the residents.

The followers of Wilbur Glenn Voliva, recognized "overseer" of Holy Zion, who is now in Europe, pondered Mrs. McPherson's right to establish a revival camp in a village where the devil has been absent these many years.

TWO BISHOPS FACE CHARGES

Paris and Zurich Clericals Accused of Falsifying

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 10. (UP)—Sensational developments were added to the case of Bishop Anton Bast of Copenhagen, charged with irregularities in handling church funds, when it was learned late today that two foreign bishops were named in charges filed with the secretary of the Methodist general conference here.

Bishops Edgar Blake of Paris, and John L. Nuelson of Zurich, Switzerland, are accused of withholding the truth as to the Bast charges and criminal trial in Copenhagen, where he was found guilty of fraudulent use of funds and served three months in prison. These bishops in the reports to America, misrepresented some of the facts in an effort to "whitewash" their comrade, the charges affirm.

Appeal Heard.

Bishop Bast's appeal for reinstatement in the church is now being heard by a jury of seventeen ministers of the general conference and the secret trial is expected to last for another week.

The developments in the Bast case came as a climax to important moves made today in the general conference. A campaign has been started to prevent the election of a single bishop at this conference and the delegates sidestepped the delicate problem of home rule in foreign mission fields.

Interest was added to the Bast trial when it was also learned that the Rev. John P. Ingerslew, deposed pastor of the Jerusalem Methodist church, Copenhagen, and chief accuser of Bast in the Copenhagen litigation, will arrive by motorcycle from New York either tonight or tomorrow morning.

Minister "Broke."

Lack of funds prompted him to use the motorcycle, H. Jensen of Kansas City, and at whose home Ingerslew will stay during his Kansas City visit, told the United Press. The minister is said to have been reduced to financial straits because he was removed from his pastorate following his testimony against Bishop Bast.

The new charges against the two bishops are said to also allege that an ecclesiastical court under Blake violated the church discipline in expelling Ingerslew.

Charges against Blake and Nuelson were filed by a delegate, who said he desired them to be on official record in case developments justify action.

WOMAN DENIES STATEMENT ON MATE'S DEATH

Husband Leaped at Her, Mrs. Nichols Tells Trial Jury

FEAR CAUSED SHOT

Attorneys Wrangle Over Admitting Statement As Evidence

Mrs Clara Nichols, charged with murder, on the stand in her own defense Thursday afternoon, repudiated portions of a statement which she admitted giving Sam Spence, assistant district attorney, on Easter Sunday shortly after her husband, J. C. Nichols, a cement contractor, had been shot and killed.

The signed statement, held back by the state until cross examination of Mrs. Nichols, was introduced as testimony over the protests of Cedric Taylor, attorney for Mrs. Nichols.

That portion of the statement to which the woman took exception told of the shooting of her husband.

Claims Self Defense

In telling of the shooting on the witness stand Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Nichols declared that her husband was leaping at her when she shot.

"Why did you kill your husband?" asked Ben Allred, district attorney, leading the prosecution.

"Because I was afraid he was going to kill me," Mrs. Nichols calmly replied. "I shot him in self defense," she answered.

Several times during the cross examination of Mrs. Nichols defense attorneys protested using of the statement, asking that they be allowed to read the statement before it was produced in court.

When Mr. Allred attempted to stress the fact that community property of the couple became Mrs. Nichols' property since her husband's death, Mr. Taylor entered vigorous protests. The state dropped this point.

"Mrs. Nichols," Mr. Allred questioned, "can you tell us again of the events leading up to the shooting as you told them earlier?"

Called Husband

Mrs. Nichols told of calling her husband by telephone. He was not at the place called at the time, she

Youths Queried On Robbery of Bank

Three youths, one of whom is believed to live here, were being held for investigation late Thursday night, after police had been notified by a cafe owner that persons matching descriptions of bandits who looted the bank at Leonard had been in his establishment. The cafe owner did not give his name to police.

A small quantity of liquor, however, was the only article confiscated by officers.

GREENVILLE, Texas, May 10. (AP)—Finding of an abandoned coupe which apparently had been driven hard near Kingston, Hunt county, 12 miles from Leonard, Thursday night, gave a new direction to the hunt for three masked men who robbed the Leonard National bank of $4,000 early in the day. Two farmers discovered the machine hidden behind a bush pile in a nearby timbered section.

WESTERN CITY GREETS FLIERS

Bremen Crew Arrives At Chicago

CHICAGO, May 10. (US)—The crew of the transatlantic plane Bremen has a habit of landing in the most out of the way places.

The first time was on that desolate Greenely Isle in the frozen north.

Today, while thousands upon thousands of persons—including George Getz, the mayor's official welcomer—waited at the municipal airport for Baron Von Huenefeld, Captain Koehl and Major Fitzmaurice, the trio landed at the Maywood airmail field, miles from the scheduled landing place.

Somewhat Late.

But they finally discovered their mistake, and took off from Lindbergh's old stomping ground and finally landed at 5:35 at the municipal airport.

The fliers were an hour and a half late, and when the huge monoplane was sighted, it was with a sigh of relief that a mighty shout went up from the thousands gathered at the field.

Six army planes left the municipal airport at 5:30 to search for the fliers, and had not returned when the huge monoplane settled gently to earth.

Baron First.

Two thousand policemen held back the mammoth crowd which came near rushing in front of the plane as it drew up in front of the hangars.

Baron Von Huenefeld, his monocle still tightly clasped in his eye, a huge smile on his face, was the first to descend from the Junkers plane, an exact replica of the Bremen, in which they made the first western trip across the Atlantic.

George Getz, officially appointed by Mayor William Hale Thompson to welcome the fliers, stretched out his hand and grasped that of the baron.

"Welcome to Chicago," he said.

The baron thanked him, and was followed by Captain Hermann Koehl and Major Fitzmaurice.

Then before more could be said, the committee and the fliers were surrounded by a cordon of police and they ran through shouting thousands to where an automobile waited on them.

California-to-Mexico Flight Completed

PROPOSAL FOR UNITING DEMO GROUPS FAILS

Davidson Wires Leaders Of "Constitutionals" His Refusal

QUESTIONS SETTLED

Uninstruction Advocates Declare That Voters Decide Point

AUSTIN, May 10. (AP)—Lynch Davidson, chairman of the Democrats of Texas organization supporting Governor Moody's harmony program for the presidential race in Texas, late Thursday wired V. A. Collins, chairman, and George C. Purl, secretary of the Constitutional Democrats at Dallas, refusing, in effect, their telegraphed proposal that the two factions get together on a "solid anti-Smith delegation to the national convention."

"Your telegram," Mr. Davidson said, "concerns questions which were definitely and finally settled by the people in the precinct and county conventions in favor of the program advocated by Governor Moody. The action of the people in these conventions will be ratified by the state convention at Beaumont."

The Dallas telegram was sent to Houston and relayed to Mr. Davidson at Austin where he was in a lengthy conference with Governor Moody, about other matters, Mr. Davidson said. He said he did not discuss the telegram with the governor. They emerged from a three-hour conference shortly before 6 o'clock.

Collins had proposed that the Davidson organization join the Constitutional Democrats in calling a caucus of all delegates favoring an anti-Smith delegation to agree on a national delegate list. The caucus was proposed for Beaumont the night of May 21, eve of the state Democratic convention.

COLLINS CALLS FOR PROHIBITION CAUCUS.

DALLAS, Texas, May 10. (AP)—Accepting the reply of Lynch Davidson to his invitation for a get-together at Beaumont in opposition to Governor Al Smith of New York as a gage of battle, V. A. Collins, chairman of the Constitutional Democrats, Thursday night issued a call for a caucus of "all loyal prohibitionists who are delegates to the state convention" to be held in Beaumont the night preceding the convention there.

The purpose of the caucus, Chairman Collins said, will be "to agree upon a program that will let the world know that the Democrats of Texas are for the constitution and against Al Smith."

State Senator Thomas B. Love of Dallas tonight denied that he is advocating Cone Johnson, co-leader in the Constitutional Democrats' movement, for temporary chairman of the Beaumont convention, as reported in some afternoon papers here.

"I am for Cone Johnson for any office he might want, but in this situation I believe the selection of a temporary chairman for the state convention at Beaumont should be left to a caucus of all delegates at Beaumont who are for a Texas delegation to Houston against Al Smith," Senator Love said.

The senator characterized Lynch Davidson's refusal to caucus with the Constitutional Democrats as a "blunder."

Children Find Body of Electra Man in Home; Funeral Incomplete

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, May 10.—Funeral services for R. F. Gartrell, 46, 206 East Magnolia street, who was found dead from gunshot wounds in the head here early today, had not been completed late Thursday, awaiting the arrival of relatives at Tolar, Texas, and a brother at Oklahoma City.

Gartrell, an acetylene welder who had lived here 15 years, was found by a group of children shortly before noon Thursday. Justice of the Peace R. V. Gwinn and Sheriff W. G. Bralley, both of Wichita Falls, were called. A coroner's verdict of death from self-inflicted gunshot wounds was returned by Justice Gwinn.

The victim apparently had been dead 24 hours when discovered, officers said. Neighbors reported they heard a shot early Wednesday afternoon, but did not investigate.

Gartrell was unmarried, and lived alone in his home.

Blimp Drops to Ship in Safety

NEW YORK, May 10. (AP)—The cryptic message, "Blimp landed American trader Ambrose Light," sent tonight to the Associated Press by radio was believed to signal the successful completion of another step forward in aviation.

The American Trader of the American Merchant line, left today with a specially constructed platform on her after-deck constructed as a landing stage for a blimp. The experiment was designed to prove the ability of the airship to land on and take off from the deck of a vessel at sea.

Crowell Boy Scouts Cause Man to Be Prosecuted for Burning Dog Alive

Special to The Record News.

CROWELL, Texas, May 10. — A trio of Crowell boy scouts believe they have found this city's meanest man.

With tears streaming down their faces, George Carter, Henry Ashford and Nolan McFadden ran into the office of Sheriff L. D. Campbell and between deep breaths told of they experience they had in trying to save the life of a dog which had been covered with kerosene and transformed into a living torch.

According to the boys, the dog ran for a pond of water and was trying to go through a fence when they discovered the distressed animal. Their quick efforts in pouring water on the dog failed to save its life and the youths rushed to the sheriff.

The official immediately accompanied the boys and arrested a man who was later assessed a heavy fine in the county court.

The man's testimony that the dog had snapped at his children was denied by a woman witness.

Laws to Prevent Hasty Marriages Urged by County-District Clerks

ABILENE, Texas, May 10. (AP)—A movement for legislation to prevent hasty marriages will be inaugurated during the convention of the county and district clerks of Texas, which opened here today, Chester H. Hollis, clerk of Tarrant county, said today in responding to the address of welcome.

Many evils resulting from too numerous divorces could be checked by more strict marriage laws, Hollis said.

"County clerks often are required to get up in the middle of the night to issue marriage licenses to boys and girls who suddenly become seized with the impulse to marry," he said.

"I am sure that everyone at this convention will endorse the proposed law."

Conventions of the clerks and the West Texas Sheriffs' association opened with a joint session. At noon 78 sheriffs and 74 clerks had registered for the meetings. The sheriffs will adjourn tomorrow and the clerks will meet until Saturday noon.

MRS. NICHOLS TAKES STAND

Woman Repudiates Her First Statement

said, and she asked that he call her when he came in.

Mr. Nichols later called her, she testified, and she asked him to tell a Mr. Atkinson who owed Mr. Nichols $19, to give the money to her. Mr. Nichols agreed to this, she said. She then asked him about a farm they own and whether he would be willing to sign a deed for it.

"What was Mr. Nichols doing when you shot him?" Mr. Allred broke in.

"He leaped for me and I reached for my gun and shot him."

"Did you give Mr. Spence a statement?" asked the district attorney.

"Yes."

"Immediately after the shooting Easter Sunday?"

"Yes."

"Is this the statement?" Mr. Allred asked, exhibiting a paper. "Is this your signature?"

"Yes."

Mrs. Nichols, in the presence of the jury," the district attorney said.

When the district attorney asked "Now Mrs. Nichols, in this statement you say that Mr. Nichols was leaning over a stove to strike a match when you shot him. Is that true?"

"No, he leaped for me and I reached and got the pistol and shot him. I shot him in self defense."

"He was leaping for you when you shot him?"

"Yes."

Asked For Change

"Why did you tell Mr. Spence in a statement that you shot Mr. Nichols while he was leaning over a stove striking a match?"

"I didn't mean to say that," I must have been unconscious of what I was saying. I later asked Mr. Spence to change that statement."

Again exhibiting the statement Mr. Allred asked the witness, indicating a certain paragraph, was that the portion she had asked Mr. Spence to change.

"Yes," she replied, "and you can see where he marked around that paragraph to show that it was to be changed."

"I just made those marks myself," the woman for location of the gun with which she shot her husband she said it was on the refrigerator in a room adjoining that which they were in.

"And you stepped into another room, got the pistol and shot your husband?"

"Yes."

"Were you in separate rooms?"

"I don't know."

"Did you step into the kitchen and get the gun and shoot him from there?"

"Yes."

"Then you were not in the same room with your husband when you shot him in self defense?"

"No."

Mrs. Nichols was excused.

Tells of Quarrel

In telling her story of the shooting, Mrs. Nichols had testified that a quarrel which preceded the shooting was one over a negro man employed by Mr. Nichols whom she did not want around the place.

The negro, Mrs. Nichols said, had made three visits to her house during the week preceding Mr. Nichols' death. The first time, she told the jury, she asked him what he wanted and he said he was "looking for the boss man."

A second time the negro came to the place in an automobile truck, Mrs. Nichols said, and parked in front of the house. After he had stayed in the truck a long time she went to the door. When she came out, she said, the negro started driving slowly away.

"'What do you want?' I asked him.

"'I'm looking for the boss man,' the negro replied."

Mrs. Nichols said she told the negro that Mr. Nichols was not there and did not stay there any more and that the negro drove away.

Negro Returns.

The last time the negro came to the house, the witness said, was Saturday before the Sunday when Mr. Nichols was shot. Again on this occasion the negro had asked for the "boss man." Mrs. Nichols told him then, she said, to keep away from the house, for Mr. Nichols was not there.

In telling of the gun with which Mr. Nichols was shot Mrs. Nichols said she had put the gun by her by her bed Saturday night because she was afraid the negro might come back. When she cleaned up the house Sunday morning, she continued, she moved the gun to the dresser in the bedroom and later put it on the refrigerator.

In cross examination the state attempted to show that the gun was put on the refrigerator after Mrs. Nichols had talked to her husband. Upon questioning, Mrs. Nichols said she believed she put the gun there before she talked to her husband.

Following Mrs. Nichols' testimony, the state presented testimony that on two occasions Mrs. Nichols had been heard to threaten to kill her husband if he came back to the house.

Mrs. Paul Brower, defense witness, previously had testified to hearing Mr. Nichols threaten Mrs. Nichols' life. Mrs. Brower was one of nearly a dozen witnesses called by the defense during the morning session of court. The state had rested its case after putting one witness on the stand who had told of hearing five shots Easter Sunday while he was walking near the Nichols home. Two of the shots, he said were fired in quick succession, then a pause and three more shots.

While on the stand in her own defense Mrs. Nichols, a small thin-faced woman of 38, remained perfectly cool. She replied to almost all questions with a monotonous sing-song, raising her voice occasionally to reaffirm her defense, "I killed him in self defense."

The courtroom was crowded during the trial and several times Judge W. W. Cook, presiding, had to caution spectators to be more orderly.

Many times during the day the defense and prosecution engaged in stinging personalities as first one and then the other attempted to exclude from testimony certain evidence. Both sides barked protests throughout the trial.

Assisting Mr. Allred in the prosecution are Sam B. Spence, who obtained from Mrs. Nichols the statement on which the state bases much of its hope for a conviction, and E. F. Fruechte. The state will introduce a number of additional witnesses Friday morning, it was indicated.

Excellent Bill Presented by School Students In Annual "Mock Majestic"

More than 750 persons were entertained Thursday night at the "Mock Majestic" program of instrumental, vocal, and orchestral music coupled with variety of skits.

Leo M. Underwood, directing the high school orchestra, opened the program with an overture. John Robinson, with the saxophone and clarinet, George Wright, with a banjo, and Lorene Tucker, at the piano, drew cheer after cheer with their variation of popular songs.

A talented impersonation was presented by Loyse Franklin and Harry Greer entitled "Gee, I Certainly Must Be In Love." "Penny" Prendergast threw a feeling of horror through the audience with an excellent interpretation of a dope fiend in "The Snow Bird." Then came a group of well known performers in Wichita Falls circles, "Lefty" Watson, Walter Pinney, Loneta Smith, and Katherine Keller, in "Old Friends", a comic skit of jokes and songs coupled with dancing by "Lefty". "With Lorele and Dorothy" a short skit of steamship travel, was presented with Alma Holzen and Vera Stonecipher playing the leading part. A group of screen notables passed before their eyes and cynical review.

Vivian Ross accompanied Loyse Franklin in an impersonation of Lee Morse. As a surprise number Lorene Tucker played a piano solo. "Lord Helpus" and his entertainers from "Jolly Old England" entertained the audience with a radio program of solo, vocal duets, and a quartet. Lord Helpus himself, Beelor Pasley, announced the numbers. As the closing numbers, the Little Rovers orchestra played a number of popular numbers with duet and dance by Katherine and Elizabeth Weldon.

Progress of Hospital Work Reviewed By Superintendent of Institution

The last 25 years have seen an extraordinary development in the efficiency and completeness of hospitals, said Miss Irene Dillon, superintendent of the Wichita general hospital, Thursday in discussing the celebration of national hospital day, May 12.

"There was a time," said the superintendent, "when hospitals were little more than boarding places for the sick, and the work of the hospital began and ended with the feeding of the patient, giving him medicine and keeping him as comfortable as possible. Now the hospital is a splendidly equipped laboratory for the discovery of disease and has many means of curing and relieving sickness which were unknown to the hospitals of the last generation.

"First of all the determination of just what is wrong with the patient, which is made possible by new tests in the laboratory and by X-ray examinations, has made it possible to treat diseases with much more definiteness and has helped greatly to shorten the average stay of patients in the hospital. By means of the X-ray the surgeon can also determine precisely what conditions require an operation and he knows beforehand, to a large degree, what he will meet with in its course. Then too, the increased confidence manifested by the public hospitals has tended to bring patients to them for expert attention at an earlier stage than was formerely the case. Thus, for example, appendicitis, which was so often fatal in former times, because the patients came to the hospital when it was too late for a successful operation, is now rarely fatal because they arrive in time, when an operation will effect a speedy cure.

"So, too, there has been a wonderful progress in the planning of hospitals, which now include many departments unknown in hospitals of former days, such as the X-ray department, the physical therapy department, the laboratory, and the dietetic department, where the diet is scientifically prepared to help in the cure of disease. The construction of hospitals and their equipment have also advanced enormously.

"Finally, the administration of hospitals is also greatly improved, from the standpoint of the welfare of the patient. All in all, our visitors on National Hospital day will find it well worth their while," the superintendent concluded, "to get a good idea of what hospitals are ready to do for them. It is well to have the confidence and courage which comes from a knowledge of the efficiency of the modern hospital and the many things it can do to relieve illness."

REALTORS SEE CLARK FARM

Modern Development Shown on Tour

Climbing to a bluff overlooking the Mora C. Clark farm two miles from town on the Charlie road, realtors and visitors including City Manager George D. Fairtrace, Thursday expressed amazement at the expense and development of the place which was later described by them as one of the greatest advertisements of Wichita Falls.

The party left the Kemp hotel at 4 o'clock and drove to the farm where Mr. Clark personally conducted a tour of the place.

Despite the general wheat condition in Wichita county, Mr. Clark has wheat which realtors declared would be a credit to the best wheat district in America.

A specialist in pecans, Mr. Clark's grove of pecan trees was closely inspected by the realtors.

WELL'S YIELD TO BE TESTED

Winkler Extension Gusher To Be Connected

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, May 10.—Gibson & Johnson and Kesslar & Logan's No. 1 Leck, which Wednesday marked a nine mile northern extension of the Winkler county oil field, remained shut in Thursday at 3168 feet, where it blew in at production variously rated from 4000 to 20,000 barrels of oil daily with 40 to 70 million cubic feet of gas. The well flowed only 45 minutes, being shut in for lack of storage.

It will be connected by an eight inch pipe line with a [illegible] line serving the north end of the Kendricks pool, expected to be completed in 10 days, F. Kirk Johnson of Abilene, one of the owners, announced today. He said No. 1 Leck will be opened probably Friday for a 48 hours test of its potentialities and to blow out mud. It then will be shut in until probably Monday when a separator and five 1000-barrel tanks are expected to be ready.

Gibson and Johnson have made a location for another test in the west half of the southwest quarter of section 16, block 74, and Texas Pacific Coal company, Humble and Prairie are also reported to have made locations. Rapid development believed certain will make necessary inclusion of the new area in the proration plan. This was considered by the operators committee at Fort Worth today.

SENTIMENT this week-end is being turned toward mother. For the second Sunday in May has been dedicated lovingly to the mothers of the nation.

Sunday, young and old, men and women will pay homage to mother by donning a symbolic flower in commemoration of the day, a red one, happily, a white one, reverently.

But departed or with us, mother will rule the sentiment of the nation for the day and thoughts of mother will eclipse all else in our minds. Far and near mothers will be showered with countless gifts, pretentious and humble, but nevertheless welcome. Letters and telegrams will find their way home this day even though the way home might have grown hazy in the minds of sons and daughters grown tall and forgetful with the passing of the years.

To two towns and to two persons is afforded the honor of first observing the day designated as Mother's Day.

One is the little village of Henderson, Ky., where Mary Towles Sasseen Wilson taught school on the south banks of the Ohio river, in the 60's. She labored earnestly and lovingly to have her mother's natal day, April 20 observed in the schools after the fashion that the second Sunday in May is now observed.

IN 1893, Miss Sasseen (she afterward married Judge Marshall Wilson of Florida) then still teaching, published a book setting forth her ideas, aims and objects and dedicating the volume to her mother in the hope of gaining national recognition for her pet ideal.

She traveled extensively addressing various educational meetings in an effort to have the day celebrated in the schools, but it was only in 1893 that she succeeded in having it observed in the little Henderson Center street school. The following year it was celebrated in the public schools of Springfield, Ohio, and in 1899, when Miss Sasseen became a candidate for superintendent of public instruction in Kentucky, it became widely discussed over the state that she had first conceived the idea of observing Mother's Day.

IN 1907, Miss Annie Jarvis of Philadelphia first invited a friend to spend the second Sunday in May with her in commemoration of the death of her mother. On that day, Miss Jarvis announced her hope of having the day observed nationally as Mother's Day. By the following year, through her diligence, the day was observed in the church and in homes although Miss Jarvis was too ill to participate in the activity.

Thus, Kentucky maintains that though the efforts of Miss Jarvis gave the observance of the day impetus, the origin is due Mrs. Wilson. Mrs. Wilson gave her life to the cause of motherhood when she died at the birth of her first child.

Texas Mother Finds Best Plan

When Nature fails you, try and help yourself by the most natural method! That's the advice of leading authorities nowadays; and for over fifty years it has been the plan of the makers of Clairfornia Fig Syrup. The quick, easy way this pure, wholesome product relieves children of those symptoms of stubborn bowels, such as headaches, biliousness, coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy, etc., and makes them strong, energetic and rosy-cheeked again shows there's no use drugging a child with harsh purgative medicines. And Fig Syrup helps give tone and strength to weak, flabby stomach and bowels so they continue to act of their own accord and you don't have to keep dosing them. Its popularity is shown by its sales record of over four million bottles a year and by parise thousands of mothers are fairly showering on it. A Texas mother, Mrs. M. H. Goodrich of 1530 S. Olive St., San Antonio, enthusiastically declares: "My big, fat boy, Milton, Jr., is now six. He is strong and energetic and weighs 48 pounds. I give California Fig Syrup a lot of credit for his condition. I have used it with him since babyhood for every cold or upset spell. It always regulates him quick and starts him to eating right and improving in every way."

Your protection against inferior substitutes is the word "California," which always appears on the carton of genuine California Fig Syrup.—Adv.

Betty Jo Fleming celebrated her second birthday Friday, April 13. And she went clear to Dallas for the occasion, too. She was the guest of her aunt and was honor guest at a surprise party where candles and a large white birthday cake held the center of the stage.

Charles, aged seven, is the big brother of Miss Fleming and her choice playmate. She also likes to play with her next door neighbor, Billy Martin, but can't be particularly interested in little girls.

Betty Jo possesses a pair of large dark brown eyes and sunny hair, cut after the newest and most highly approved fashion. She is quite good looking, relatives say the prettiest member of the family, but of course, we don't know.

She is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fleming, 2008 Eleventh street.

Formal presentation of the 1928 Coyote to the school was made Thursday morning.

John Emmett Lyle, editor-in-chief was in charge of the presentation program. He announced the dedication of the book to Miss Louise Kelley, faculty sponsor of the Coyote for a number of years. A special appreciation page for the help and encouragment given by Dean S. H. Rider and Registrar A. K. Preston was included. On it were placed the pictures of Alice Ann Presson and Stephen Henry Rider Jr., small daughter and son of the heads of the institution.

On page 118 is to be found a group of student pictures. Across the top is the caption "Teacher's Pets." Included are Howard Martin, Henry Helgerson, Natalie Gorin, Lillard Jackson, Lawrence Bash and Lela Belle Jenkins. Among other new features, there is an entirely new type cover on the 1928 annual.

After the formal presentation of the book the entire Coyote staff was introduced. The Coyote staff for 1928 was composed of John Emmett Lyle, Howard Martin, Mr. C. W. Williams, Miss Louise Kelley, Alice King, Jane Cameron, James Hale, Henry Helgerson, Merle Trigg, Jerry Curtis, Natalie Gorin, Virgie Mae Adams, Duncan Perkins, Cecil Sherwood, Marian Holstien and Zona Marie Elbert.

GYM PROGRAM

Two clowns announced the coming of the Gym circus at assembly Thursday morning. Usually this is the only night program of the year in which the auditorium is crowded past capacity.

SMITH SWEEPS VOTES IN JUNIOR COLLEGE BALLOT

Al Smith and the Democratic voters scored a triumph in the straw vote held at the Junior college. Fifty-nine Democratic votes were cast, 46 of which went to Smith for president, 5 for Reed, 1 for Meredith, 2 for Hull, 3 for Donahey, and 1 for Walsh.

Republican votes totaled 37 with Hoover receiving 36 for president and Lowden 1. On the Democratic ballots the voters voted in favor of revision of court system, efficiency in government without corruption, equitable and scientific revision of tariffs, farm relief, the McNary-Haugen bill, stricter enforcement of the Volstead act, joining the World Court, and against intervention in Nicaragua.

Republican voters favored the Fordney-McCumber tariff, federal flood control and the McNary-Haugen bill.

This straw vote corresponded to the party preliminaries. A general election is to be held soon and the results of it may be different due to the large number of independents who did not vote in the straw vote.

ART EXHIBIT

Much interest is being manifested in the art exhibit in the art hall of the Junior college. It is a collection of the work of the high school and Junior college students for the last year. An attempt will be made to affiliate art with the state department next year.

STUDENTS VISIT INDUSTRIAL PLANTS

Members of Mrs. Roy J. Daniel's food class in the Junior college home economics department went on an inspection tour of several Wichita Falls industries and factories Tuesday morning.

It was a continuance of the trip this same class took Tuesday to a model home in the Country club estates. They visited a dairy out at Call field, the Nafziger bakery, Lehrack's ice cream factory, and the Kraft Cheese company. These trips are being made in connection with the study of food products and their use.

Keeping the credit of the city in good standing with eastern banks and investors in securities, Wichita Falls Thursday transferred, through the Security National bank of Wichita Falls to the Hanover National bank of New York, $17,833.70 to be distributed as interest to bondholders.

This interest is the semi-annual payment on public building, street improvement and sewer bonds totaling $750,000. It includes the bonds on the Memorial auditorium.

Labor Conditions Show Improvement

The present week is seeing the best employment conditions since the chamber of commerce opened its employment bureau in the basement of the municipal auditorium.

Thursday afternoon saw a total of 20 jobs given to job seekers since the week opened. No other four day period in any week has equalled this, and if Friday and Saturday are just fair days, the week will break a two-month record, according to those in charge of the office. Pipe line workers, men to work on a swimming pool and household workers are among the leaders in classifications placed this week.

KEEP YOUNG WITH PHOTOS

Pictures Tell Truths Our Friends Won't, Says Dix

"It Would Do Us All Good to Be Photographed Every Year and Get a Close-up of Ourselves, Seeing the Truths Our Friends Are Too Kind and Our Enemies Too Afraid to Tell Us," Says Dorothy.

The other day I saw a woman whom I hadn't seen for a couple of years, and as I beheld her slim and elegant figure I gasped with surprise.

"Why," I exclaimed with brutal candor, "I hardly knew you. The last time I saw you you were—er—er—"

"Fat and getting fatter and sloppier and acquiring more chins day by day," she interpolated."

"But what happened?" I asked.

"I had my picture taken," she replied. "Stoutness had crept upon me so insidiously that I had not realized it. I still thought of myself as being a perfect 38 and having retained my girlish figure and being young and lissom, and I got the shock of my life when my photographs came home and I beheld a large, stout, middle-aged-looking lady with a face as round and mushy looking as a cream cheese.

"'Do I look like that?' I demanded of my family, and they replied that it certainly was an excellent picture and a speaking likeness.

"That night I started on a diet that I stuck to like grim death until I had lost fifty pounds and looked once more like my husband's wife instead of his mother.

"And, believe me, after this I am going to have my picture taken every year, just as regularly as I go to the dentist, so that I can keep a line on how I look to other people. For the camera will tell the truths about yourself that your family and friends are too kind to tell you and that your enemies dasn't tell you."

And I thought what an excellent thing it would be if every woman would follow this philosophical lady's example, and every now and then have herself photographed, not dolled up in her best evening gown and wearing an expression of angelic sweetness and joy on her face, but just as she appears in her ordinary, everyday, breakfast-table clothes and looks.

"If they did, wouldn't there be a scrapping of frowsy kimonos and soiled negligees and an onslaught on the crisp, clean pink and blue house gowns and bungalow aprons in the department stores? Wouldn't there be a clearing up of moody, sullen, peevish faces and a nailing on of the smile that won't come off? For no woman wants her husband and children to carry away with them for the day a picture of her as a sloven and a shrew and it is only because she has no idea of how she looks to them that she makes herself look so unpleasant.

And I thought what a pity it is that we can't all have ourselves photographed mentally and morally every now and then, so we can see how we appear to those about us. How many faults and foibles it would enable us to correct! How much easier it would make us to live with!

Suppose we could get a photograph of our dispositions. Of course, we know we are high-spirited and sensitive and have a nervous temperament. We admit to being high-tempered, but our anger is only a flash in the pan, soon over, and we are irritable or silent and morose or of a pessimistic nature. But, on the whole, we see ourselves as attractive and lovable, whose few blemishes are overshadowed by our super-abundant virtues.

Wouldn't we get the jar of our lives if we got a photograph of our dispositions and saw them as they looked to other people? If we saw that we were shrewish women whom every one feared and dreaded, and grouchy men who were killjoys who made life almost intolerable for their wives and children and employes?

And suppose that we could get a photograph of our habits. We see ourselves as pleasant and agreeable companions. Of course, we have our own little individual ways and peculiarities, and we don't bother to observe all the little foolish fads of etiquette.

And, of course, we must have just the things we like to eat, and it upsets us for anybody to take our own particular chair that is the softest and the most comfortable and has the best light for reading.

Wouldn't it shock us if we got a photograph of our characters and saw that we were nothing but monsters of selfishness, with no thought or regard for anybody else but ourselves and that we had developed the manners of boors?

And suppose we could get a photograph of our conversation. We think of ourselves as spellbinders. Of course, we talk a lot about ourselves. We discourse by the hour about our business, about our houses, about our ailments, about our automobiles, about our children, but that is because the grocery business is really so fascinating that we think everybody must be pining to hear all the details about it, and because the car we own is the best one in the world and because our third major surgical operation was a most remarkable one, the doctor said, and because our little Johnny is really a wit and says the cutest things.

How horrified we would be when we saw that the photograph of our own conversation showed us to be just the kind of a bore as every other egotist is.

Suppose we could get a photograph of our marriages. A romance slumped into nothingness, love dying because it has nothing to live upon, a series of petty quarrels over nothing, the wife blaming the husband and the husband blaming the wife.

Wouldn't it bring many a husband and wife to their senses if they got a real picture of their marriage and saw in it a cowardly man and woman, who were quitters, who fought over the right to supremacy in the homelike dogs over a bone, who had never tried unselfishly to make each other happy or put forth an honest effort to make their marriage a success?

Oh, be sure it would do us all good if we could be photographed every year and get a close-up on ourselves and see ourselves as others see us!

DOROTHY DIX.

MODISH MITZI — By Jay V. Jay

Mitzi's negligee is of orchid Chantilly lace with folded bands of orchid chiffon. By the fact that she is wearing it you can see that she isn't quite ready for the activities of the day, but Marie seems to be. "What do you want to do today, dear?" from Mitzi brings from Marie the reply that she is going to see her dentist—and there's nothing for anyone to say in answer to that. Summer negligees, in case you've been interested in Mitzi's, are showing strongly the feminine influence in styles, they are longer, many of them have trains. Their sleeves are growing more elaborate. They use the cape and scarf motifs and lace is a favorite material for them.

If this is her dentist we have made a terrible mistake. Marie looks demure in a felt with a double arrowhead ornament and in a coat of faille satin that uses the satin side for the coat and the faille side for bands of trimming. We say she looks demure but she is telling Bob that she is awfully tired of people who are old and blase.

They will tiptoe right away again leaving a note to tell the head waiter it was all a mistake. That is certainly Bob and Marie at the far table. Mitzi and the Goofer will stroll down to another reastaurant—it's nice weather and Mitzi's cape coat of faille silk has three flowers on its shoulder and is bloused and should be admired by the world.

City Plan Expert Talks at Dallas

Planning Over Long Periods Urged

DALLAS, May 10. (AP)—Improvements planned for five, 10 or even 50 year periods will result in substantial savings for cities, George B. Ford, city planning consultant of New York City, said in an address here today at the national conference on city planning.

Detroit, Mr. Ford said, estimated expenses on a 10-year improvement program would reach $779,991,477 in 1925. Two years later the program was revised with a saving of $89,000,000 he said.

Taxes some times will advance slightly in cities which have adopted budgeted programs for huge municipal improvements, but such advances would occur anyhow, he said. In preparing for a number of years ahead, cities escape much of the "wanton waste" and many of the "mistakes" that have been made in the past, Mr. Ford said.

Other speakers on the last day's program were G. H. Herrold, city plan engineer of St. Paul; S. R. Deboer, city plan consultant of Denver; Major E. A. Wood, city plan engineer of Dallas.

School Aid Problem Affects Dallas County

AUSTIN, May 10. (AP)—A tangle in the state rural school aid law was referred to the attorney general for solution Thursday by the state board of education.

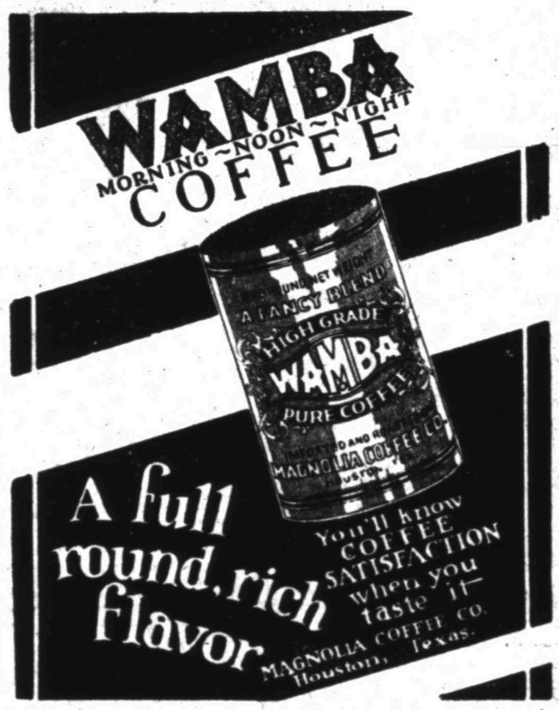

The question involved is whether a county entitled to a lump apportionment of $12,500 may collect it plus the rural aid given those of its schools not benefitting from special equalization levies.

Dallas county is chiefly concerned.

FOR WINES AND BEER

Just now all the senatorial candidates are spell binding with the exception of Col. McLemore, and he is editing a newspaper down on the banks of the Rio Grande. No, he never crosses the river. This former congressman is on the black list of the Calles government. He wields a fearless as well as a vitriolic pen and he has told too many truths about the Calles government. His latest is that Calles is planning to perpetuate himself in the office of president until the year 1930. General Obregon is a candidate for the place and will be elected, but this does not signify that he will take office until 1930. There is no opposition to the candidacy of Obregon. There was opposition in the start but the leaders and the followers of the leaders are dead.

They were branded as rebels. They were shot to death without a trial. This is the way a temporary dictator administers justice in Mexico. It is the ancient way. It has been the vogue for 400 years under Mexican-Indian skies. Candidate T. J. Rowe of Harris county is spell binding. He is a Democrat; he pledged to support all the nominees, he hopes for the return of light wines and beer but does not know just how it is to be brought about. All the other senatorial contenders are drys. They are for the Eighteenth amendment in the constitution; Texas has a Volstead act; Texas has the Dean law and the Dean law is the most drastic statute to be found in the book. It was the pet idea of Dr. Atticus Webb and the doctor, who professes to be a prophet, promises that it will not be repealed until the coming of judgment day.

To These Calamity Howlers
HOWLERS

Our young folks are going down-down; so they say.
They forget to recall their youth blood held sway.
For sometimes a young life, impulsive and gay,
Seems to old eyes, en route to despair and dismay.

Philosophical minds—I beg that you hear!
Reformers of young lives, please open your ear;
Before you abandon all hope for our race,
Make yourself just a youngster, and give them your place.

One-Minute Sermon

And call no man your father upon the earth: for one is your Father, which is in heaven.

Neither be ye called masters: for one is your master, even Christ.

But he that is greatest among you shall be your servant.

And whosoever shall exalt himself shall be abased; and he that shall humble himself shall be exalted.—St. Matthew, xxiii, 9-11.

Coxey's Victory

JACOB S. COXEY, 34 years ago, led his "army" of down-and-outers to Washington to demand work and landed in the lock-up.

Now he has won a victory—by more peaceable means. The house banking and currency sub-committee has approved his proposal for permitting states and cities to issue 25-year bonds to provide funds for public projects to relieve unemployment. What Coxey was unable to get by force, 34 years ago, he now wins by persuasion.

It is the sign of the times. The day when you could get something by demanding it, with a show of angry force, has passed. Conciliation and logic are the weapons that must be used nowadays. Coxey has learned a great lesson.

A Hopeful Sign

ADDED evidence that American industry is paying more attention to the bodily well-being of its workers is contained in a bulletin just issued by the department of labor.

This bulletin, contrasting health and welfare work figures for 1916 with those for 1927, shows that a tremendous improvement has been made. Of 375 plants which were reported, the 1916 report shows 110 had only first-aid equipment; last year, 373 had regular dispensary or hospital facilities. In 1916 only 171 of these plants employed doctors, and only 181 employed nurses; last year 311 employed doctors and 332 employed nurses.

These figures speak for themselves. Industry is realizing that the health of its employes must be safeguarded. It is an encouraging sign.

Modernize—Or Lose

THE United States cavalry is becoming modernized. Tanks, armored cars and tractors are being stabled beside the well-groomed, restive horses; light field guns have been devised that can be carried on saddles; mobile anti-aircraft guns are being assigned to cavalry units.

Every effort is being made to make the calvary arm responsive to changing conditions of warfare.

Time was when the cavalry was one of the most important branches of the service. When an army was on the march the cavalry was invaluable as a screen, to keep the movements of the main body a secret. In an invasion the cavalry was the advance guard. It opened the way for the infantry, and sought out the whereabouts of the enemy. And, when the battle was joined, the cavalry often was the spearhead of the offensive. A cavalry charge was the commanding officer's trump card; often an infantry line that had resisted all attacks would crumple before the thundering charge of a few thousand horsemen.

But how all that has changed! In the World war cavalry units found themselves ignobly dismounted and sent into the trenches on foot. Cavalry charges availed nothing before barbed wire entanglements and machine guns. You didn't need a "screen" when your army was entrenched on a 200-mile front. The traditional task of reconnoisance, under such conditions, was impossible.

So the calvary has to be modernized. The most picturesque branch of the service must meet new conditions or go on the shelf.

This change that has come upon the calvary is symbolical of the new era in which we live. There are many, many men in the world today who, without knowing it, are still in the old-time calvary. In other words, they are trying to fight the battles of 1928 with weapons of 1861.

A general who, in 1915, had ordered an extended cavalry charge on entrenched positions, would have been considered a madman. Similarly, we would make reservations in an asylum today for a business man who conducted his office in the style of a century ago, using quill pens, wearing a beaver hat and foregoing such modern aids as the typewriter, the telephone and the adding machine.

Yet a great many men are laboring under handicaps just as great.

If, in this year 1928, you still cling to the old superstitions, the old formulas, the old viewpoints, you are working with antiquated tools. To be effective you must study the new era and accept the new conditions. If you are trying to run a business without taking note of the new conditions mass production has brought; if you are planning a political career without taking into account the modern leadership of business and science; if you are looking on the world in the light of 1870, forgetting the new impulses that have been born in the twentieth century—then, in whatever walk of life you find yourself, you are in the cavalry. You will have to modernize yourself or you will be defeated.

POLITICS AND THE VALUE OF FARMS

ANOTHER SERMON ON GOOD ROADS

There are three questions asked by the prospective merchant or land buyer when entering our gates, and one of these is, "have you good roads?" There is no better county in the state than Cooke, but one thing we fall short of is good roads—ask any tourist, he'll tell you how our roads stack up. We have heard them say, coming from all directions into this county, "we had good roads all the way until we hit this county." Other counties have realized the value of good roads as enhancing the value of farm property, making better market out of towns and building cities out of once towns.

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

Skin Elimination for Health

The skin has four important functions. It forms a covering for the body—keeping more delicate tissues from being injured—preventing poisons and disease germs from entering the body. It is an organ of feeling, covering sensory nerves. The skin also assists in regulating the heat of the body. The last but perhaps the most important duty which the skin performs is to assist the lungs and kidneys in excreting water from the body.

This throwing out of liquid in the form we know as sweat has as its objective the elimination of toxins as well as a means through which excessive amounts of internal heat or radiation are eliminated.

On some portions of the body there are as many as 2,500 openings, or pores, to the square inch of skin. These are the mouths of the sweat glands through which the sweat is poured out from the blood. One could live but a short time if the pores could be completely stopped so that the sweat containing bodily wastes, could not be eliminated.

Those suffering from various disorders always have a definite odor to the skin, which varies according to the disease. These skin odors are especially strong if not enough baths are taken, as the poisons deposited upon the skin become foul and rancid and not only block the pores but are unquestionably to some extent reabsorbed.

When one understands the excretory functions of the skin, it is necessary to see how the skin must be kept healthy to insure general bodily health. It is also apparent that if the skin is stimulated to an unsual degree, its functions can be extraordinarily increased so that there will be what might be called even "un-natural" but helpful throwing out of toxins.

The skin may then be considered as an instrument to be used in the cure of any disease caused by an excessive amount of bodily toxins. Physical culture exercises, with walking or running, will increase the circulation and produce greater skin elimination whether or not a perceptible sweating is experienced. Cold shower baths increase the tone of the skin through bringing more blood to the surface of the body, and by the effect of the cold water upon contracting the tiny muscles which open and close the pores. Temporary shock of the cold water serves as a means of exercising these skin muscles.

Sunbaths taken with the body completely exposed to the sun's rays has a sterilizing effect upon the skin, and stimulates its functions. When the skin has been long enough exposed to get the beneficial effects of the ultra-violet rays, it is always heated by the infra-red and others rays of the sunlight. A cold shower or sponge bath is then unusually stimulating and beneficial.

The one who is trying to recover from any disease should exercise, take sun baths and cold showers, and rub the skin vigorously to promote better skin health and encourage elimination. Even after a cure the benefits derived will continue as the healthy skin performs its work better, and through this a greater degree of health can be maintained.

Questions and Answers

QUESTION: Mrs. H. W. writes: "Have severe pain at back just below the shoulders, toward the right side. It is more painful at night and keeps me from sleeping. Also have large brown spots on my neck; is this liver trouble? Is tea harmful in such a complaint?"

ANSWER: The location of your pain is indicative of liver trouble, but of course I cannot accurately diagnose you by mail. It is not advisable for you to use coffee or tea, or any other drink which will place a burden upon the liver.

QUESTION: Eva Asks:: "What is a 'Chona?'"

ANSWER: The "Chona" or "Bream," or "Sailor's Choice," are the titles given one of several tropical fishes. It is a small pan-fish of the Atlantic coast.

QUESTION: D. H. G. writes: "Please tell me why orange juice makes my feet and legs swell and pain he so. I am much overweight and took the orange juice for four or five days and lost ten pounds, but had to stop on account of this swelling and pain."

ANSWER: The orange juice fast is given to patients who have swollen hands and feet. You can rest assured that if you had continued your fast the swelling would have disappeared. The "crisis" period frequently arises on the third to fifth day of the fast, and often various symptoms are produced by the stirring up of the toxins in the blood stream, some of them by being swellings or pain in those parts of the body where there have been large deposits of impurities. Try the fast again, and keep on fasting until you pass the crisis period.

The Day Book of a New Yorker
By BURTON RASCOE

NEW YORK, May 11.—Sights for sightseers in the biggest city in the world:

The waiter in the Times Square beer emporium who carries 14 schooners without a tray and without spilling a drop. He attaches one to each finger and balances four on top. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh escaping public notice on a stroll down Fifth avenue by the simple device of wearing horn-rimmed spectacles. The sun glistening upon the guns of battleships in the Hudson river. W. C. Fields, the famous stage and movie comedian, gaping at the sideshow freaks at the circus. Christopher Morley, the novelist and poet, reading while balancing himself in a corner of a crowded subway car. The Leviathan going down to sea, as it appears from my office in Times tower. Persons who stand in line three hours to gain admission to a movie theater on Sunday.

The richest grand opera singer is Robert Ringling, son of the late Charles Ringling, and nephew of John Ringling. He is heir to fortunes amassed by the circus family in shows and other investments. His appearances in opera in this country follow study and initial performances abroad. He is a baritone, 30, married and a motorboat enthusiast.

Only one of the second generation of Ringlings, a cousin of Robert, now has anything to do with the circus business. But despite his vast interests, which include control of Madison Square garden, New York; heavy stock ownership in industrial enterprises and control of big realty interests in Florida, John Ringling still keeps close touch with circus affairs. At a performance of the show in Madison Square garden the other night, I saw him hovering in an exit, watching the performers with as much avidity as any boy present.

One of the worst novels of the season is enjoying extraordinary attention because it was chosen for distribution by one of the book clubs. The reason, those on the inside are declaring at literary teas, is because all the really notable books of that particular month were written by friends of the judges. To avoid suspicion of log-rolling, the judges picked a novel by some one they didn't know. The woman who wrote the book was as surprised as anybody.

The well-meaning guides who took George W. Russell, the world famous Irish poet and economist who is better known as AE, in hand on his long tour, didn't permit him to see much of the United States. They showed him plenty of sights, but gave him little opportunity to roam and explore.

He came up to my office in the Times tower for a visit the day before he sailed back to Ireland, and gazed long and lovingly at the New York skyline, remarking that it was his first chance to get a good look at it.

He said that the thing he missed most in the United States was grass that was really green.

A few nights before, at a dinner at the National Arts club, AE rescued an evening from dull speakers by talking for two hours in his musical, captivating voice, about the development of the new Ireland, in which, he says, poets are the motivating factors. He mentioned some of his Irish literary friends, among them George Moore. When AE first met him Moore had been in Dublin for 10 days, and had employed six cooks in a vain effort to get an omelet done to his taste. One cook got so frightened at his anger that she called a policeman. Moore nonplussed, brought the officer into the dining room, showed him the omelet and asked, "Is there a law to compel me to eat this omelet?"

The Story Thus Far.

The jewel case had been opened with a steel chisel after being battered with a poker. And this puzzles Vance when it is found near the strangled body of Margaret Odell. Finger-prints lead to Skeel's arrest, and Vance indicates he believes Skeel was hiding in a clothes closet in the "Canary's" apartment when the murder was committed. Markham, believing in Skeel's guilt, ridicules the theory of Vance's notion that the crime was committed by a man of superior intellect and ingenuity. Vance proceeds to explain how he arrived at his conclusion.

CHAPTER XXIV

"Y' know, Markham," Vance began, in his emotionless drawl, "every genuine work of art has a quality which the critics call elan—namely, enthusiasm and spontaneity. A copy, or imitation, lacks the distinguishing characteristic; it's too perfect, too carefully done, too exact.

"Even enlightened scions of the law, I fancy, are aware that there is bad drawing in Botticelli and disproportions in Rubens, what? In an original, d' ye see, such flaws don't matter. But an imitator never puts 'em in: he doesn't dare—he's too intent on getting all the details correct. The imitator works with a self-consciousness and a meticulous care which the artist, in the throes of creative labor, never exhibits.

"And here's the point: there's no way of imitating that enthusiasm and spontaneity—that elan—which an original painting possesses. However closely a copy may resemble an original, there's a vast phychological difference between them. The copy breathes an air of insincerity, of ultra-perfection, of conscious effort. . . . You follow me, eh?"

"Most instructive, my dear Ruskin."

Vance meekly bowed his appreciation, and proceeded pleasantly.

"Now let us consider the Odell murder. You and Heath are agreed that it is a commonplace, brutal, sordid, unimaginative crime. But, unlike you two bloodhounds on the trail, I have ignored its mere appearances, and have analyzed its various factors—

"I have looked at it psychologically, so to speak. And I have discovered that it is not a genuine and sincere crime—that is to say, an original—but only a spohisticated, self-conscious and clever imitation, done by a skillful copyist. I grant you it is correct and typical in every detail. But there is where it fails, don't y' know. Its technic is too good, its craftsmanship too perfect. The ensemble, as it were, is not convincing—its lacks elan.

"Esthetically speaking, it has all the earmarks of a tour de force. Vulgarly speaking, it's a fake." He paused and gave Markham an engaging smile. "I trust this somewhat oracular peroration has not bored you."

"Pray continue," urged Markham, with exaggerated politeness. His manner was jocular, but something in his tone led me to believe that he was seriously interested.

"What is true of art is true of life," Vance resumed placidly. "Every human action, d' ye see, conveys unconsciously an impression either of genuineness or of spuriousness—of sincerity or calculation. For example, two men at table eat in a similar way, handle their knives and forks in the same manner, and apparently do the same identical things. Although the sensitive spectator cannot put his finger on the points of difference, he none the less senses at once which man's breeding is genuine and instinctive and which man's is imitative and self-conscious."

He blew a wreath of smoke toward the ceiling, and settled more deeply into his chair.

"Now Markham, just what are the universally recognized features of a sordid crime of robbery and murder? . . . Brutality, disorder, haste, ransacked drawers, cluttered desks, broken jewel-cases, rings stripped from the victim's fingers, severed pendant chains, torn clothing, tipped-over chairs, upset lamps, broken vases, twisted draperies, strewn floors, and so forth. Such are the accepted immemorial indications—eh, what?

"But—consider a moment, old chap. Outside of fiction and the drama, in how many crimes do they all appear—all in perfect ordination, and without a single element to contradict the general effect? That is to say, how many actual crimes are technically perfect in their settings? . . . None! And why? Simply because nothing actual in this life—nothing that is spontaneous and genuine—runs to accepted form in every detail. The law of chance and fallibility invariably steps in."

He made a slight indicative gesture.

"But regard this particular crime: look at it closely. What do you find? You will perceive that its mise-en-scene has been staged, and its drama enacted, down to every minute detail—like a Zola novel. It is almost mathematically perfect. And therein, d' ye see, lies the irresistible inference of its having been carefully permeditated and planned.

"To use an art term, it is a tickled-up crime. Therefore, its conception was not spontaneous. . . . And yet, don't y' know, I can't point out any specific flaw; for its great flaw lies in its being flawless. And nothin' flawless, my dear fellow, is natural or genuine."

Markham was silent for a while.

"You deny even the remote possibility of a common thief having murdered the girl?" he asked at length; and now there was no hint of sarcasm in his voice.

"If a common thief did it," contended Vance, "then there's no science of psychology, there are no philosophic truths, and there are no laws of art. If it was a genuine crime of robbery, then, by the same token, there is no difference whatever between an old master and a clever technician's copy."

"You'd entirely eliminate robbery as the motive, I take it."

"The robbery," Vance affirmed, "was only a manufactured detail. The fact that the crime was committed by a highly astute person indicates unquestionably that there was a far more potent motive behind it.

"Any man capable of so ingenious and clever a piece of deception is obviously a person of education and imagination; and he most certainly would not have run the stupendous risk of killing a woman unless he had feared some overwhelming disaster—unless, indeed, her continuing to live would have caused him greater mental anguish and would have put him in greater jeopardy, even than the crime itself.

"Between two colossal dangers, he chose the murder as the lesser."

Markham did not speak at once; he seemed lost in reflection. But Vance with a dubious stare, said:

"What about that chiseled jewel-box? A professional burglar's jimmy, wielded by an experienced hand, doesn't fit into your esthetic hypothesis—it is, in fact, diametrically opposed to such a theory."

"I know it only too well." Vance nodded slowly. "And I've been harried and hectored by that steel chisel ever since I beheld the evidence of its work that first morning. . . . Markham, that chisel is the one genuine note in an otherwise spurious performance. It's as if the real artist had come along at the moment the copyist had finished his faked picture, and painted in a single small object with the hand of a master."

"But doesn't that bring us back inevitably to Skeel?"

"Skeel—ah, yes. That's the explanation, no doubt; but not the way you conceive it.

"Skeel rippe dthe box open—I don't question that; but deuce take it!—it's the only thing he did do; it's the only thing that was left for him to do. That's why he got only a ring which La Belle Marguerite was not wearing that night. All her other baubles—to wit, those that adorned her—had been stripped from her and were gone."

"Why are you so positive on this point?

"The poker, man—the poker! . . . Don't you see? That amateurish assault upon the jewel-case with a cast-iron coal-prodder couldn't have been made after the case had been pried open—it would have had to be made before.

"And that seemingly insane attempt to break steel with cast-iron was part of the stage-setting. The real culprit didn't care if he got the case open or not. He merely wanted it to look as if he had tried to get it open; so he had tried to get it open; so he used the poker and then left it lying beside the dinted box."

"I see what you mean." This point, I think, impressed Markham more strongly than any other Vance had raised; for the presence of the poker on the dressing-table had not been explained away either by Heath or Inspector Brenner. . . . "Is that the reason you questioned Skeel as if he might have been present when your other visitor was there?"

"Exactly. By the evidence of the jewel-case I knew he either was in the apartment when the bogus crime of robbery was being staged or else had come upon the scene when it was over and the stage-director had cleared out. . . . From his reactions to my questions I rather fancy he was present."

"Hiding in the closet?"

"Yes. That would account for the closet not having been disturbed.

"As I see it, it wasn't ransacked, for the simple and rather grotesque reason that the elegant Skeel was locked within.

"How else could that one clothes press have escaped the rifling activities of the pseudo-burglar? He wouldn't have omitted it deliberately, and he was far too thoroughgoing to have overlooked it accidentally.—Then there are the finger-prints on the knob. . . ."

Vance lightly tapped on the arm of his chair.

"I tell you, Markham, old dear, you simply must build your conception of the crime on this hypothesis, and proceed accordingly.

"If you don't, each edifice you rear will come toppling about your ears."

Favorite Jokes of Famous People

As Told by Them to

FRANK ERNEST NICHOLSON

By SAMUEL GOLDWYN.

Samuel Goldwyn, often called the dean of the motion-picture producers, was born in Warsaw, Poland, in 1884. His parents, who were very poor, died when he was still a youngster, and at the age of 11 Sam emigrated to America in the steerage. Arriving here he secured work in a factory. Not a great many years later he became a big thumb and finger man in the glove business at Gloversville, New York.

Goldwyn decided to enter the motion-picture business in 1910. He helped form the Lasky company in New York with Jesse Lasky and Cecil B. DeMille as his associates. Six years later the company expanded amazingly and Mr. Goldwyn was then instrumental in bringing about the famous Players-Lasky merger, becoming himself chairman of the board of directors. A year later he formed the Goldwyn Pictures corporation of which he became the president and chief owner.

SAMUEL GOLDWYN.

With the seemingly endless string of war pictures, one begins to believe that the movies are still in their infantry. Some one recently came forth with the theory that what is wrong with the picture business is "the preseverence of the uninspired."

As his favorite joke, Mr. Goldwyn related a true incident.

"On a recent trip from New York to California," he said, "I was sitting in the smoker when the train pulled out of the Grand Central station. Presently a serious-looking fellow came in and handed each of us little folded slips of paper.

"'Put these in your pocket as is, boys,' he said, 'don't read them till ten minutes have passed—it will be something to your interest.'

"The gentlemen of the smoking car sportingly obeyed, and the man lit a cigaret and walked out.

"'How'd you like to be the wife of a bozo like that?' spoke up one of the travelers.

"'And speaking of wives,' chimed in another, 'have you seen the picture of that swell-looking actress who's marrying that millionaire from Seattle?'

"An elderly, portly stock-broker type, put his hands to his ear for further details.

"'While we are on the subject of swell looking dames,' he puffingly reminisced, 'I was in Hollywood not long ago—'

Some one broke in with the information that the ten minutes was up. Each passenger opened his note, read it and then stared sheepishly into space.

"The elderly gentleman slowly crumpled his bit of paper and let the note fall to the floor. It read: "In ten minutes you fellows will be discussing women—that's why I am smoking in the vestibule.'"

Bare Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER
(Copyright, 1928 by Universal Serv.)

NEW YORK, May 10.—While looking over the list of American contestants in the British open golf tournament we must hand the Chinese credit of refusing to dilute war with peace conferences.

While Lindbergh, Fitzmaurice and the Baron are flying over 3000 miles of sea-food the Chinese continue to scratch each other with finger-nails that have been handed down for countless generations.

Good will flights may tie continents in new bonds of gestures and debts, but the Mongolians refuse all modern improvements in a war that they hope will break the record of Abie's Irish Rose.

A cave-man with one club requires no caddy to assist him on his rounds. The Chinks are following the same policy of quick sales and small profits.

China has had 10 centuries of peace and has decided that war is better publicity. They have even requested the United States to lend 'em some marines for the close-ups and fade-outs.

While C. C. Pyle's ankle excursionists parade from Los Angeles to New York, the modest celestials march from Tingpoo to Tsinan carrying the vacuum cleaner of destruction. Their emblem is a dragon breathing flame which is the equivalent of a chameleon that has been drinking college gin.

Geneva, Lausanne and The Hague may claim the world is at peace, but they must be using last year's telephone book.

The Chinese are fighting the Mongolians and if you aren't a Manchurian you cannot dance in this Pekin block party.

This is a family war without allies, and, therefore, without bickerings, jealousies and arguing which have spoiled so many of our wars.

We love to teach the school kiddies that the Chinese march to war equipped with fans. When a Chink fans you now, he does it with a blackjack.

This war will last about four hundred years, for the Chinese are industrious and patient. It will end suddenly without the explanations and apologies which finish one occidental war and lay the foundations for the next.

Sagerton Forges Ahead To Beat Rochester, 6-2

Special to The Record News.

ROCHESTER, Texas, May 10.—The Rochester prep nine was defeated by the Sagerton high school team by the score of 6 to 2 here Tuesday afternoon. The score stood at 2 all at the end of the fifth inning, after which Corley, tossing for the local club, lost control, and the opponents forged ahead for an easy victory. Alvis, on the Rochester team, crashed a homer in the fourth, with bases empty.

JAVELIN ALMOST FATAL

William Kirkpatrick, an official at a field meet in Philadelphia, narrowly escaped serious injury when a javelin was accidently hurled through his hat.

PYLE SECRET WITH PRIZES

Marathon Runners to Get $48,500

By GEORGE STRICKLER
Universal Service

FREMONT, Ohio, May 10.—Somewhere C. C. Pyle, the man of a million ideas on how to make a dollar, has put away $48,500 for the payment of prizes when his troupe of callous collectors arrives in New York from Los Angeles late this month.

Just where this money is, if it is money, Pyle refuses to disclose, but it has been put away for a long time. So long in fact that there is some apprehension regarding Charlie's ability to remember where he put it when pay-off day arrives.

Rumors of insolvency regarding the Pyle caravan and others connecting a newspaperman in New York with the keeping of the prize money were denied by Charlie here today during the few minutes he wasn't arranging for a sizeable guarantee from the local merchants, pending the arrival of his marathoners in this city Friday night.

"Just tell the skeptics to look back over my record," Charlie chided. "They said Suzanne Lenglen wouldn't get her guarantee; that Miss Browne wouldn't get hers; that Richards would never be paid, but dear little Charlie paid 'em all off, and paid 'em off when the money was due. The same thing will happen here."

Referee to Return

Pyle pointed out that no one had the right to question the prize money, because it had not been won yet, and since he was offering it, it belonged to him until such time as one or another of the contestants qualified for it.

Commenting on the withdrawal of Referee Arthur Duffy, of Boston, at Gary, Ind., Monday, Pyle explained that Duffy was called back by his employer in the east, who refused to extend Duff's leave of absence over 65 days.

Duffy will be back, however, Pyle said, to referee the race the last three days, rejoining the troupe somewhere outside of New York. Pyle left here today for Cleveland, from where he will work into New York to arrange police protection for his runners on their arrival there.

Pyle said he would immediately arrange for his six-day running race in the Madison Square Garden, which he intends to start on the second Sunday in June.

Here's Adversary For Mr. Tunney

By EARL L. SHAUB.

NEW YORK, May 10. (US)—Another educated boxer arrived here today.

He believes he can beat Gene Tunney in the ring or in Shakespeare and he is sure he can knock the champion out in the first round of a Dante contest.

Umberto Torino, the heavyweight champion of Italy, says he is as good a Shakespeare scholar as Tunney. He wants to meet the latter in the ring, too. But he must train for the latter and that is what he is going to Philadelphia to do.

Large As Willard.

Torino is 22 years old. He is six feet, two inches tall and weighs 230 pounds. His arms are unusually long, so long that three men can stand under each arm and he can close his fingers down and touch the ears of the two at the end of the reach.

"I am surprised," he said, "that a prize fighter of the United States should attract comment to himself because he has read Shakespeare. I have been reading Shakespeare for years and I have always enjoyed it. Likewise, I have read many other works in my own language and others. Does Tunney know of Dante? Probably not. He has something to enjoy before him."

George Calza of Philadelphia who brought Torino here had this to say about him:

"He is already a great boxer. He has been fighting for two and a half years. He has knocked out ten men before the fourth round.

He Likes Opera.

"Torino is an enthusiastic opera goer and he played several musical instruments including the violin and the flute. He also likes to visit the art galleries when he is resting from training."

Torino said there are lots of men from cultured families in the ring in Italy. His father is a physician and a director in a hospital.

His sister is a famous harpist.

When he discusses literature he doesn't stop at Shakespeare and Dante. He knows Virgil and Ovid, too.

Thirteenth Brown Traded

... number 13 be lucky or unlucky for the St. Louis Browns this season?

That's the question that faces the Missourians as they go through their early season battles.

Just when St. Louis fans had it figured that the club had gotten rid of all its "undesirables" in the general housecleaning, which sent 12 good players to other clubs in the American league—Dan Howley announced the trade of Walter Gerber to the Boston Red Sox.

Manager Howley gets Pitcher Harold Wiltse in place of Gerber, who follows such capable fellows as George Sisler, Harry Rice, Bing Miller, Elam Van Gilder, Chester Falk, Milton Gaston, Tom Zachary, Ernest Wingard, Leo Dixon, Otis Miller, Ken Williams and Sam Jones into "exile" from the Browns.

Next to Sisler, Gerber had seen the most service under the banners that blow over St. Louis. That makes him the second oldest veteran involved in the shakeup. Brown fans had come to look upon him as a fixture at shortstop.

Gerber began his baseball career with the Marion club of the Ohio State league in 1910. The same year he went to Columbus in the American association.

Walter played with Akron of the Ohio and Pennsylvania league until 1911 when he went back to Columbus where he stayed until 1914, when he was taken on by Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh sent the shortstop back to Columbus in 1916. He came back to the big leagues when the Browns took a chance on him in 1917. It wasn't much of a chance, however, for he played short for the St. Louis club a solid decade thereafter.

Despite his long service in baseball—18 years—Gerber is still a good player and should bring strength to his new club, the Red Sox.

FINALS IN BRITISH OPEN GOLF TOURNAMENT BEGIN TODAY

AMERICA'S TRIO FORGE TO TOP

Argentine Champion Leads Field

By ARCH RODGERS
United Press Staff Correspondent

SANDWICH, Eng., May 10. (UP) America's, "big three"—Gene Sarazen, Walter Hagen and Bill Mehlhorn—are nicely placed for the final drive on the British open golf championship.

The conclusion of the second round of the championship today found this redoubtable trio occupying three of the first five places in a field of 52 which qualified for the final 36 holes on Friday.

Jim Barnes, who won the British open in 1925, was the only other American survivor, the day's play resulting in the elimination of Tommy Armour, Bob Stupple, and John McHugh, the San Francisco amateur.

Argentine Leads.

Leading the field, as a result of another brilliant round of golf, is that persistent little Argentine champion, Jose Jurado. Alone of all the mighty golfing host gathrede at Sandwich, the South American bettered par today, shooting a 71.

The leaders at the end of the first 36 holes are:

Jose Jurado, Argentina, 145; Gene

Jose Jurando, Argentina, 145; Gene Sarazen, U. S. A., 148; Walter Hagen, U. S. A., 148; Bill Mehlhorn, U. S. A., 149; Arch Compston, Great Britain, 149; Stewart Burns, Great Britain, 150; F. Taggart, Great Britain 150; T. Williamson, Great Britain, 150; Percy Alliss, Great Britain, 151.

Five Tied.

Five golfers, four Britishers and the Frenchman, Aubrey Boomer, are tied at 152, their number including George Duncan, one of the favorites, who slipped back today, and when he required a 77 for his round.

Tony Torrance, the Scottish amateur, leads the Simon-Pures with 153, which finds him tied with the veteran Abe Mitchell and Jean Gassiat of France.

Jim Barnes, finding his game at last, turned in a good round of 73, which, with his 81 of Wednesday, placed him in a tie for 18th place with an aggregate of 154.

Great Britain's hopes of getting back the open championship, won the past two years by Bobby Jones of Atlanta, rest upon the broad shoulders of Archie Compston, the hard hitting professional who recently walloped Walter Hagen in a match for $3750 at Moor Park.

Compston has been quietly and steadily improving his game, after playing rather indifferent golf in the qualifying rounds.

If Compston cannot make the grade, then it may remain for a real "dark horse—Stewart Burns, Fred Taggart, or Tom Williamson—to save for Brittania her most coveted golf title.

Hagen Improves.

Walter Hagen, like Compston, has been showing steady improvement, and "The Haig" is just as much a threat as he was in 1922, when first he won the open championship over these windswept links.

Little Gene Sarazen of New York, making his most serious bid for a British title, believes he has his worst round out of his system. Sarazen retained his hold on a half-share of second place, despite a rather shaky round of 76 today.

As for "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, who was so jauntily leading the parade at the end of the first round, the blonde pro apparently succumbed to the golfer's bogey of overconfidence. He was out in 37 and home in 41 today, his 78 taking him back to a tie for fourth place with Compston.

All those within 15 strokes of Jurando qualified, the 52 including heroes of former British championships, Ted Ray with 155, Harry Vardon, 157, Arnaud Massey, the Frenchman, 158, and James Braid, 159.

Bob Stupple, the Chicago pro, and Johnny McHugh, brilliant young amateur from the Olympic club, San Francisco, were hardly expected to qualify, but there was considerable disappointment when Tommy Armour, American open champion, was eliminated.

Manager Orders Lax Pitcher Home

But Lame Teammates Also Topple

By FRANK GETTY
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, May 10.—Jess Petty, who is left handed when on the pitching mound and occasionally where training habits are concerned, is coming home alone, but the Brooklyn Robins will be be following him shortly, considerably reduced from the high estate they enjoyed when they started into the west.

Fined $200

Petty's defection, which resulted in a $200 fine and a peremptory order from Uncle Robbie to go home and stand in the corner, is indicative of the difficulties facing the rotund manager of the Brooklyn club.

Playing over their heads at the start of the season, against indifferent opposition from the Braves and Phillies, the Robins set out on their western visit in first place. Tonight, they are in sixth place—and it is only the extreme weakness of the Braves and Phillies which provides the Brooklyn Birdies even that high a perch.

Baseball is no bed of roses for Uncle Wilbert Robinson, who is one of the most genial and companionable of human beings and could be so happy if his Brooklyn connections would behave themselves. Besides managing the Robins, he has to serve as president of the club, because it is owned by two warring factions who will accept only Robbie as mediator.

Robbie Gets Mad

With a make-shift ball club, Robbie has had to do a deal of shifting and experimenting with infield and outfield. He had hoped for good performance from his strong pitching staff, and then Jess Petty let him down.

"Go home," said Robbie, in righteous wrath, "and stay there until I get back. And consider yourself fined $200 as a reminder to try to remember that you're not an Alexander."

Petty had won one game and lost four at the time Robbie's wrath descended.

Meanwhile the Robins are living up to their reputation as a poor road club. They seem unable to strike a consecutive winning streak away from hoem. From first place, the team toppled to sixth. Erratic fielding did not help much, when combined with only fair pitching. Only Babe Herman and Del Bissonette, of the regulars, are hitting over .300.

Home Hitter Loses

Herman is the club's leading hitter, which is proving a costly business for Brooklyn. The Babe's fielding and base running is so poor as to offset his excellent stick work.

Del Bissonette is batting at a .319 clip, but six of his blows have been home runs. Until today, he was tied for the season's leadership with Babe Ruth, but the Yankee slugger drove out another and now is out in front.

Wednesday Herman's stupid base running and Bissonette's failure to hit for the tenth consecutive time at bat cost the Robins a ball game to which the good pitching of Buzz McWeeny entitled them.

Uncle Robbie's life is not a happy one.

HEENEY SPARS WITH CULTURE

Musters Broad Grin In Latin "Lecture"

NEW YORK, May 10. (US)—Gene Tunney, Shakesperean scholar and heavyweight champion, need worry no longer about his place of security in the ranks of culture. Not, anyway, as far as Tom Heeney his next opponent, is concerned.

Booked to "lecture" on Latin before members of the Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity at the Fraternity club in East Thirty-eighth street today, Heeney tried nobly, but failed utterly and ignobly.

"Dum vivimus vivamus," a Latin inscription for "while we live, let's live," hung on the wall of the dining and "lecture" hall, got the quickest decision ever recorded over the British contender.

Called on to prove that Tunney's recent Shakespearean triumph at Yale wasn't so much, Heeney took one look at the inscription and then signaled his manager, John Mortimer, to toss in the sponge.

Awful Sincere.

"'Dum' —that's me. I'll let my manager 'take' that one. It's a push-over for him."

And Heeney sat down amid the cheers and laughter of his hosts.

But what he lacked in the niceties of culture, Heeney made up in an utter lack of pretension to things literary and thereby won his audience.

Laughingly he told of having read in newspapers of his reported "lecture" and referred genially to the "Shakesperean" scholar from whom he will attempt soon to wrest the championship.

With a broad grin over his features, Heeney obligingly posed in the role of "lecturer" at the head table, as the infection of his unassuming modesty spread among his listeners.

Scholarly Mr. Tunney Now Leaves Impression He's Not Overly Serious

Impending Battle With Heeney Fails to Impress Champion, Is View of Observant Loungers Along Boul' Baloney

By DAMON RUNYON
Universal Service

NEW YORK, May 10.—I seem to be hearing gabble among the loungers along the Boul' Baloney, otherwise the street of the tired men, which is the district where gather the boys implicated in the manly art of scrambling ears to the effect that Mister Gene Tunney isn't taking his coming battle with Thomas Heeney as seriously as he might.

Naturally it is a trifle early for Mister Tunney to be takihg seriously an event that is nearly three months away, but somehow the boys seem to have gathered the impression that the great Shakespearean scholar has become indifferent, not to say blase, toward the general proposition of Thomas Heeney.

Viewed With Alarm.

They point out that it is nearly always the guy the champion doesn't take seriously who licks the champion, and so they are viewing Mister Tunney's apparent indifference with alarm. Not that it will mean anything to the boys one way or the other. It is merly that there is nothing else to view with alarm at the moment, and if the boys didn't view with alarm most of them would be without any occupation whatever, and subject to the vagrancy laws. Well, perhaps some of them are so subject, anyway.

The gabble runs that Mister Tunney's "fight" training in Florida was indeed light—about two pounds lighter than a straw hat. And what is more the boys feel that Mister Tunney's association with millionaires has had a tendency to reduce his morale, or some other softening influence.

Not knowing much about millionaires, save the kind produced by a couple of jolts of gow, or a jab with a needle, the boys along the Boul' Baloney figure that a millionaire must be bad company.

I fain would quiet the alarm. I think Mister Tunney will take a very serious slant indeed at Thomas Heeney when the time comes.

But Mister Tunney goes about these things in his own peculiar way. He is like no other fighter the game has ever known, which I say is another reason why he is a great fighter.

He did not fight for nearly a year before he won the championship from Mr. Belasco's newest star, Jake Demski. And his training for that first championship bout was generally pronounced quite unorthodox and very terrible by some of our most astute authorities.

He did not fight again until he met Jake Demski the second time, and indulged in little boxing in between, whereas Jake in between battles, when he was champion, was constantly dodging in and out of gymnasiums, and putting on exhibitions.

The training methods pursued by Mister Tunney for the second Demski battle were as apparently haphazard as before, and the astute authorities groaned again, though not quite as loudly as at Stroudsburg, for they had come to know Mister Tunney slightly.

A jolly shellacking for Jake Demski was the result of Mister Tunney's second training, so I say if Mister Tunney doesn't seem to be taking his fight with Thomas Heeney very seriously right now, do not take Mister Tunney's apparent lack of seriousness seriously. He will be all right when the time comes.

Deadly Serious.

I doubt if there is anything Mister Tunney doesn't take seriously, including himself. I believes his lecture at Yale on Shakespears proves this. He is deadly serious about everything. Perhaps too serious about some things.

But he is a great fighter none the less, and notwithstanding, as he demonstrated by twice outgalloping one of the greatest fighters that ever laced on a boxing glove. Mister Tunney may not go beyond this feat, but on that he may safely rest his claim to pugilistic greatness.

I would say that if there is any one thing in life that Mister Tunney has failed to take as seriously as he might, it is the racket that got him that invitation to lecture at Yale on Shakespeare. I refer to the boxing game. I am taking it for granted that Mister Tunney scarcely assumes that he would have been asked to Yale if he hadn't been heavyweight champion of the world.

Mister Tunney on winning the title immediately dropped all personal contact with the boxing game, apparently holding it and all its associations in contempt. Well, it is a rotten game at that and I have no more illusions concerning it than Mister Tunney. Perhaps the monarch of the pastime has the right to wrap himself in royal atmosphere, but I think it is a mistake.

Mister Tunney may realise his error when he undertakes that inevitable come-back after he is relieved of his title, and he learns what the loss of it means. Oh, yes he will! I mean will try to comeback when his day is done. They all do.

But aside from his personal idiosyncracies, Mister Tunney is, I repeat, a great fighter. A master boxer. A cool noodle. A good punch. And enough courage.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, May 10. (AP)—Early declines were followed by rallies in the cotton market today with July contracts selling up from 20.97 to 21.28 and closing at 21.25, compared with 21.15 at the close the previous day. The general market closed firm, at net advances of 9 to 13 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 4 to 12 points and sold about 14 to 19 points net lower in early trading under liquidation combined with local and southern selling on the better weather news and relatively easy cables.

October eased off to 20.93 on this decline, which seemed to bring in a renewal of buying by brokers with trade and commission house connections. Later fluctuations were irregular, but in a general way the market worked upward, reaching the highest prices of the day in the late trading, when May sold at 21.50 and October at 21.25, or 13 to 17 points above yesterday's closing quotations. Last prices were a few points off from the best under realizing.

Part of the early selling was attributed to showers, or prospects for showers in the southwest, and prospects for higher temperatures in the eastern belt. Late advices showed very little rainfall in West Texas, however, while there was some criticism of the higher temperatures reported in both Texas and Oklahoma. These features may have led to covering by early sellers and trading, which was very quiet during midday, became more active in the last half hour, when demands was more urgent.

Exports for the day were 24,478, making 1,622,807 so far this season. Port receipts 13,694. U. S. Stocks 1,445,206.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, May 10. (AP)—The cotton market was comparatively quiet today with reactionaries in possession until the last half hour of the session when a sudden bulge on good trade and speculative buying and shorts covering sent prices up for a moderate net gain. All active months closed 12 points net higher with the market steady.

Prices eased off in early trading in sympathy with Liverpool cables that came in from 3 to 5 points lower than due. Reports of favorable weather over the belt was a contributing factor to the decline which ranged from 11 to 14 points. July sold down to 20.70, October 20.52 and December 20.48. The downward movement was checked with the appearance of brisk trade buying and covering due to an official forecast for thundershowers in the western belt, prices recovering 20 to 22 points from the early lows.

The market eased off again after midsession on a renewal of liquidation and selling on the large decrease reported in unfilled steel orders and fears that trouble between China and Japan would have a damaging effect on the goods trade. July eased off to 20.80 and October to 20.95, 12 to 15 points down from the highs.

Active covering and trade buying was promoted near the end of the session by easy money conditions and a more active stock market stimulated prices with all positions registering new highs for the day. July at 20.98, October 20.78 and December 20.75, 26 to 28 points up from the lows. The close was slightly lower than the best.

Cotton futures closed steady at a net advance of 12 points.

Grain

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE
Universal Service

CHICAGO, May 10.—A crash in the grain markets today knocked the price of wheat down 5¼ to 6¼ cents and of corn 2⅝ to 2¾, shaking bulls in those grains to their heels. Thomas Howell was credited with leading the selling of wheat but nobody wanted to take the other end of it.

Oats and rye weathered the storm sturdily. The former closed only ¾ lower to ½ higher, and rye at the end of the session was unchanged to 2¼ up.

The blow fell on the wheat market after it had advanced a couple of cents from a lower opening. It sent prices sprawling.

This happened early in the day and never again was wheat able to get up. It was like a man knocked flat who was handed another one every time he lifted himself to his knees. At the end prices were close to the bottom with May wheat that sold at $1.71½ only a dozen days ago down at the humble figure of $1.52.

The break seemed to be so excessive a clean-out that the market today may have a sharp upturn, regardless of what its course may be next week.

Corn has been bulled for months, and in that fact lies, perhaps, a market weakness. Shorts who sold corn at very much lower prices have long since covered and sold short again. But bulls who have long had big profits on paper may not yet have tried to take them.

Trading on Stock Exchange Is Lighter But Afternoon Rally Wipes Out Morning Losses

BY BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, May 10.—Another afternoon rally was experienced on the stock exchange today, in which most of the losses of the morning were recovered. Trading was lighter, as operators waited on the Federal Reserve and the General Motors meetings scheduled for after the close, but the nervousness concerning those meetings was offset somewhat by easing of the call money rate to 5 1-2 per cent from a renewal of 6 per cent. A few specialties such as Wright, fluctuated forward in excited manner but the session as a whole was the most orderly in weeks. Speculative sentiment was considerably improved when Steel common rallied strongly following the report showing the surprisingly large drop of 463,073 tons during April due largely to cancellations. Foreign exchange was rather quiet with the Japanese yen most active in steady recovery. Wheat, cotton and other commodities were weaker on receipt of bearish weather advices.

Expectation of a favorable decision on the Nickel Plate plan was the one strong prop for the bulls. Industrials, with the exception of those comparatively few stocks influenced by individual developments, appear more tired each day while liquidating pools are passing on their "pets" with more success than ever before. It was impossible to learn what aroused the supreme confidence that the commerce commission would approve the Van Sweringen's new plan but all wire queries to Washington brought back the same answer; viz, that there was belief the deal would be permitted. In the event of a favorable decision practically all of the rails would benefit as it would mean more confident work on other merger plans by the railroad interests.

In addition to the merger expectations there was the added incentive of hope for an increase in dividends and receipt of valuable rights to influence the continued good absorption of New York Central. One firm advised that rights for new stock to be issued, to take care of bonds to be retired, will be worth from $10 to $15 a share. Prior to the central division increase, it is thought, the Southern Pacific directors will jump their dividend rate to a $7 annual basis. Another railroad helped by outlook for a larger dividend is Southern.

Armour and Company "B" was the most active single issue, with particularly excited trading witnessed in the afternoon, due almost entirely to the operations of the Cutten group which have just closed an option for the stock at $6.50 a share.

Curb

Leading Issues on New York Market

NEW YORK, May 10. (AP)—Price trends were confused on the curb market today.

The rise of American Gas and Electric coincident with public offering of $50,000,000 in bonds, proceeds to be used in retiring debentures, was a feature. The issue moved to a new peak at 175, up nearly 16 points, and then sagged to 168¾, later moving back to 171⅛. American Light and Traction, Mohawk Valley and United Gas Improvement recorded good gains, but Middlewest Utilities sagged 6 or more points and some others, among them Electric Bond and Share, also were weak.

The activity of Niles Bement Pond, which dropped back to 62 and then moved to 68 after having touched a new high at 73¾, was outstanding in the industrial group. Northwest Engineering also was active in the advance, reaching a new top at 41¾. Minneapolis Honeywell Regulator, Fedders Manufacturing A, Aluminum company of America, Bendix, Bancitaly and Mercantile Stores showed gains of 2 to 11 points. Columbia Graphaphone was under pressure.

Darby Petroleum again extended its gain, establishing a new high price record of 25½. Gulf, Prairie and Leonard Oil and Pipe lines had small gains, but Penn Mex Fuel, Vacuum and others sagged.

BUILDING-LOAN FIRM ELECTS

J. C. Mytinger New Head Of North Texas

Control of the North Texas company and of its subsidiary, the North Texas Building and Loan association, Thursday passed into the hands of A. H. Britain, J. C. Mytinger, A. C. Estes and associates by purchase from J. W. McReynolds and Durwald McDonald.

The building occupied by the building and loan association is owned by the North Texas company.

J. C. Mytinger succeeds Mr. McReynolds as president of the building and loan association, and Mr. McReynolds will devote his time to the management of the Southwestern Bond and Mortgage company.

Estes Active Vice President.

A. C. Estes succeeds Mr. McDonald as active vice president and secretary. McDonald is to become state manager of the National Title Insurance company. Mr. Mytinger has been a director of the organization for four years. Mr. Estes has advanced through the company from special representativ at Burkburnett to Vernon manager to Amarillo district manager and vice president.

The North Texas company operates under the same character of arrangement as do the managing officers of most building and loan associations. Instead of the operating contract being with one or two individuals, in the case of the North Texas Building and Loan association, it is with a corporation, the North Texas company, with a capital of $100,000, of which $82,500 is paid up at this time. This paid up capital is in effect, an expense reserve for the association, and is in addition to the reserve shown in the statement of the association. As the association grows the capital of the North Texas company will probably be increase.

Rapid Growth.

Meteoric gains in assets of the North Texas Building and Loan association have been registered since it was organized in April, 1923. The following table illustrates the growth.

Year—	Assets
Dec. 31, 1923	$ 19,439.38
Dec. 31, 1924	137,370.54
Dec. 31, 1925	631,346.69
Dec. 31, 1926	1,298,255.97
Dec. 31, 1927	2,442,693.30
May 7, 1928	2,931,251.82

It now has 6000 savings and investment patrons and 2000 real estate loans. It has accounts from 39 states and five foreign nations. These holders include estates, insurance companies and corporate reserve funds. Its loans are made almost entirely on owner occupied homes on a monthly repayment basis.

The officers and directors of the association are: A. H. Britain, chairman of the board; J. C. Mytinger, president; A. C. Estes, active vice president and secretary; B. C. Davis, vice president; J. P. King, vice president; J. G. Green, treasurer; J. T. Harrell, John W. Bradley, John W. Thomas, James M. Williams, Bert King, W. R. Ferguson, C. P. Engelking, W. P. Killingsworth, O. E. Bennett, Jerry M. Shaefer and John H. Taylor, directors.

Today At the Theaters

OLYMPIC: William Boyd in "The Skyscraper." Jimmy Adams comedy. Pathe newsreel.
MAJESTIC: Lillian Gish in "Annie Laurie." Paramount news. Krazy Kat comedy.
MISSION: Closed by fire.
GARDEN: "Breed of the Sunset." Serial. Comedy.
GEM: "Smoking Guns." Serial. Comedy.

Marion Davies in "The Patsy," opening Saturday at the Majestic.

What happens when two friends, riveters on a metropolitan skyscraper drop white hot rivets in each others pockets for joking purposes and make love to chorus girls as giant cranes swing by the chorines on a theater roof, is what makes 'Skycraper" a good wild comedy. It is packed with the old time "hokum" and is now playing at the Olympic.

Unbelievable in many ways, the play is therefore better entertainment than if it were a normal and prosaic affair. Sue Carol and Alberta Vaughn are the feminine attractions and William Boyd and Alan Hale are the manly riveters who star.

Marion Davies, playtime girl of the movies, who gets just serious enough to play in a light society comedy like "The Patsy," which is opening Saturday at the Majestic, is seen in one of the best motion picture adaptations of a stage-comedy recently. Miss Davies is a good artist in her vampish way and has a world of attraction for the male of the species whenever she appears. "The Patsy" is one of the most successful plays Barry Conners ever wrote, and it should make a good picture.

JONES HEADS PANHANDLE CO.

Wichitan Re-Elected President at Annual Meet

Roy B. Jones was re-elected president of the Panhandle Refining company at the annual stockholders meeting, it was announced Thursday. Other officers of the Panhandle elected at the same time were W. D. Brookover, vice president; T. S. Sherman of New York City, vice president; M. A. Chambers, vice president and treasurer; R. C. Stanford, secretary; H. F. Bennett, assistant secretary and treasurer; H. E. Cabaniss, assistant treasurer; G. W. Reed, assistant secretary, and Henry S. Fullerton Jr., of New York City, assistant secretary. Directors were named as follows: Roy B. Jones, Frank Kell, W. D. Brookover, M. A. Chambers and R. C. Stanford of Wichita Falls and A. B. Lawrence and E. C. Lynch of New York City.

Growth Reviewed

Officials of the company reported a splendid growth since the organization of the company in 1915, growing from a small skimming plant with a capital stock of $200,000 at that time, to an industry with an appraised value valuation of more than $11,000,000 at the present time. Roy B. Jones has been at the helm of the company since its organization.

Steady progress has been made in each of the departments. Considered the most notable is the achievements of the production department, which has been consistently successful in the drilling of North Texas. The Panhandle's No. 7 McCluskey in Young county is considered one of the outstanding wells ever drilled in the district. The company has been successful in drilling Archer and north Young counties, resulting in opening up several new shallow fields. A wildcat well on a 1000 acre block in Jack county has only recently been completed as a nice producer, with admirable chances of extending the production some distance over the holdings.

Departments Active

The refining department has also progressed with the other divisions of the company and is one of the best plants in the North Texas district. The most modern methods of refining have been installed and are in use.

The tank and structural steel department, known as the Panhandle Steel Products company, has made extensive improvements in buildings and machinery, and is adding large stocks of structural and building steel of every character, and is fully equipped to supply builders and contractors with their every need in structural steel.

Operating 19 wholesale jobbing stations in the North Texas fields, the wholesale marketing department of the company has shown very good advancement, extending its territory considerably in the past year, officials said.

The company is progressing splendidly, officials declared, and is in the best physical and financial condition in its history.

Condition of Thrift Boy Still Critical

Bernard Williamson, 17, who was struck by an automobile near his home near Thrift Wednesday afternoon, was slightly improved Thursday evening but was still in a critican condition, according to attendants at the Wichita General hospital.

The boy jumped from a truck in which he was returning home from school into the path of an automobile. Although the driver of the automobile swerved in an effort to avoid the youth, his car did not completely miss the boy, the rear fender striking with considerable force and fracturing his skull, jawbone, and wrist and causing other minor injuries.

He was taken in the car which struck him to Burkburnett where he was given emergency attention by Dr. Bain Leake. He was then brought to the Wichita General hospital by ambulance.

Sanitation Director Urges Wichitans To Keep Trash Off City Streets

"No dumping signs have been placed in several parts of the city, and public attention is called by Dr. L. I. Lucy, city director of sanitation, to the fact that the city has a free dumping ground and incinerator for dumping purposes.

"There is an ordinance covering such things, and people should get out of the habit of dumping their tin cans, trash, automobile bodies and the like on property of others," Dr. Lucy declared.

"The city provides a place which is much easier to reach than many places which people seek out. To reach the dump, drive out the Petrolia road pavement on Seventh street past the depot, the ball park and the Washington school. Just beyond the Washington school, the pavement turns to the right and the road to the dumping ground turns to the left. This is a very short distance from the river's edge where there is a man in charge of the oincinerator to tell people where to dump refuse.

"In the interest of a cleaner and more sanitary city, everyone is asked to observe the 'no dumping' signs in other places and to use the free city dumping grounds."

Many Improvements At Scout Summer Camp

Frank B. Creighton, scout executive, returned from the camp at the Diversion lake Thursday, reporting that the well which is being dug to supply water is down 32 feet with only a few feet more to go.

The kitchen of the camp building was enlarged on the trip with plans being made to supply running water to the kitchen before the first session of camp opens. A gas engine has been donated to provide pumping power. Work is also progressing on the athletic field, Mr. Creighton said.

Manager to Complete New City Budget Soon

The city manager's recommendations on the budget for the year probably will be made known to the city council a week from Monday night, according to an announcement made Thursday by George D. Fairtrace, city manager.

Mr. Fairtrace has been working on the budget and conferring with department heads and aldermen.

As a basis for his work, Mr. Fairtrace has the budget recommendations of the department heads and also that of Mayor J. W. Akin whose recommendation is $200,000 less than that of department heads.
