Eight killed, four injured

Car plows into about 50 high school students

MARIA STEIN, Ohio (AP) — A car plowed into about 50 high school pupils standing at a rural intersection Sunday night after they halted their car caravan on the way to a dance. Eight of them died, and four others were injured, authorities said.

The young people, pupils at the high school in the small town of Minister, six miles from the accident scene, apparently were trying to figure out how to get to the dance, officials said. Lt. John Schlosser, commander of the highway patrol post at nearby St. Marys, gave this account:

The teen-agers, traveling in nine cars, were standing on the roadway when a car, coming from the opposite direction, went through a stop sign, crossed the intersection, sideswiped the first of their vehicles and then ran into them.

Not every visitor was baseball aficionado

The Big Spring Steers played a double header on a cold day in Steer Park Saturday afternoon, winning one and losing one.

But Kent Newsom, catcher of the Steer team, was the real loser. While he was representing the school and town in the ball game, somebody stole the CB radio from his car, parked at the baseball park.

'Action, reaction' column to begin

After today the Herald will undertake a new feature called "Action, Reaction," in which members of the staff will try to respond to questions put to them by readers.

The column will not run daily but only at such times the Herald staff can research the information sought by the petitioner and provide what the editors reason are satisfactory responses.

The Herald, of course, reserves the right to screen all letters and phone calls and act only on those not regarded as frivolous.

Letters can be addressed to Action, Reaction, The Herald, Box 1431, Big Spring, 79720.

Fighting erupts in Spain

MADRID (AP) — Civil guards opened fire on demonstrating workers who refused to disperse in Spain's tense Basque region today, hitting one in the head and killing him.

The victim of the shooting in the Bilbao industrial suburb of Basurri was identified as Vincente Ferrero, 18. He was the seventh victim in two weeks of disorders.

Police and workers also clashed in the Basque city of Santurce, 18 miles north of Bilbao, and several police were reported injured when a jeep was stoned.

The new violence erupted as tens of thousands of persons launched a general strike across northern Spain to protest police killings of four workers in the Basque industrial city of Vitoria last week.

First accounts from nongovernment labor sources estimated nearly half a million persons were on strike.

More than 100,000 were idle for labor demands ahead of the strike call, made last week in Vitoria's cathedral during funeral services for the slain workers.

Labor sources said 150,000 struck today in Guipuzcoa province. Businesses in San Sebastian, its capital, closed.

In Bilbao, tens of thousands of workers were reported out. School buses were empty as mothers kept children at home.

In Madrid, the army put nine officers on trial for military rebellion. The case was considered politically explosive for the new government as it tried to liberalize after years of dictatorial rule.

A spokesman for the army men, alleged to be members of a secret officers' movement demanding democracy and a national referendum to endorse the monarchy of King Juan Carlos, said some of the strike calls were in support of the accused officers.

Leaflets in Madrid called for workers to strike "so the blood of our assassinated brothers will not have been shed in vain." A leftist guerrilla group promised to avenge the Vitoria deaths.

The trial of one major and eight captains, reported to be leaders of the Democratic Military Union (UMD), was believed to be the first to be held for political reasons since the Spanish Civil War.

Local rainfall only .1 inch

Sunday's rainfall in Big Spring, though much needed, was only a meager tenth of an inch. Combined with one other rainfall and a sprinkle of .01 of an inch, the total precipitation for the city in 1976 is .17 inches.

Motor grader purchase is authorized by commission

County Commissioners Court this morning authorized the county engineer to prepare specifications for bids on construction of a new storage shed.

Fire which swept through the compress area recently also destroyed the county's oil storage shed, a $1,100 compactor and cedar post pile. County Engineer Neel Barnaby said.

The building was insured for $2,100 and its contents $1,250, County Auditor Virginia Black said.

Barnaby recommended installing a 20-by-20-foot prefabricated structure on a concrete slab.

In other business, the court:

• Voted three-two to purchase a motor grader from Treanor Equipment Co., Odessa. The cost will be $45,510 plus trade-in. Commissioners Simon (Cy) Terrazas and William B. Crocker Jr. opposed the purchase of this grader. Bids from four dealers were opened.

• Planned to replace a leaky water tank on the Knott fire truck.

• Heard Barnaby say construction crews were rotating from commissioner's precinct three to one today. Road crews will be completing work on Howard County 17 and 19 east of Vealmoor.

• Heard that a road-stabilization material distributor offered 55 gallons for the county to try free of charge. Barnaby noted two gallons of the material is mixed with 1,000 gallons of water and agreed to test it. He was not optimistic about the material working in the four different soil types in Howard County.

• Learned some older paved roads needed an emulsifying substance applied.

• Traded an embosser for a new

Reagan predicts win in Florida primary

MIAMI (AP) — Republican challenger Ronald Reagan, wrapping up a Florida presidential primary campaign he said is "building a real head of steam," accused President Ford today of yielding to election year pressure to perk up the economy.

The former California governor was making a four-city swing in the state before flying to Champaign, Ill., to hunt votes in that state's March 16 primary.

Reagan told a Miami news conference he does not expect to lose in Tuesday's GOP balloting, but "if it should happen, it'll be a close race and I don't think it will make any difference" in the competition for the Republican presidential nomination.

Reagan said that whatever happens in the primaries he has no intention of dropping his challenge to Ford unless and until the President has enough committed votes to win the nomination.

He said he doesn't expect that to happen before Republicans convene in Kansas City on Aug. 16. "The final fight will be waged on the convention floor," Reagan said.

On the economy, Reagan said he is not questioning the figures that show a decline in unemployment and in the rate of inflation. But he said, "They are the result of artificial stimulants to the economy."

He said that the Democratic Congress is basically to blame, but he also said that Ford is not doing enough to stop it.

Reagan once again cited the experience of the last presidential campaign when the economy improved during the political year and then soured after the voting.

"I think both in the case of President Nixon, he yielded to the pressure also, and I think President Ford has yielded to the pressure," Reagan said.

But he provided no specifics. When asked for a bill of particulars, Reagan replied:

"In most of the programs that have been adopted there has been no real effort to control inflation by curbing the size of government..."

Reagan said the President should put himself in an adversary position and go over the head of Congress to appeal to the American people for action to control spending, cut the deficit and thus fight inflation.

Democrats Jimmy Carter, Henry M. Jackson and George C. Wallace also were at their campaign tasks today, the eve of the year's fourth presidential primary election.

Carter, campaigning in Tampa Sunday, said Wallace can't possibly win the Democratic presidential nomination and Jackson "can't get elected in Florida."

"I intend to be the next president," Carter told about 3,000 people at a free fish fry. "There's no way to stop me."

UMD sources say one mission of the underground movement is to prevent a possible rightwing army coup during Spain's political transition period after 36 years of rigid rightist rule under the late Gen. Francisco Franco, who died in November.

Carter, Jackson and Wallace are the major Democratic contenders, with Gov. Milton J. Shapp of Pennsylvania campaigning, too. The rest of the Democratic field is on the ballot, but the other entries have not actively campaigned.

CONNALLY SPEAKS TO STATE GOP LEADERS — Former Texas Governor John B. Connally, as he spoke to the Texas Republican Executive Committee meeting in Austin today. Seated are State Rep. Bob Davis, R-Dallas, right, and State GOP Chairman Ray Hutchison, Dallas.

Connally labels Congress 'worst'

AUSTIN (AP) — Former Texas Gov. John Connally called on Texas Republicans today to advocate that no members of Congress be eligible to run for president unless they resign their congressional seat.

The proposal was one of several the former Democrat-turned-Republican made to the State Republican Executive Committee at a regular meeting here. He was interrupted numerous times by loud and long applause.

"This is the worst Congress in my lifetime," said Connally, 59. "The American people know something is wrong... I think what we need is a new relationship between business and government, and the Republicans need to advocate it."

Connally repeated his recommendations that the president should serve one six-year term, that U.S. senators should be limited to two six-year terms, and House members should serve a maximum of three four-year terms.

"I am also against federally financed elections," he said amid loud applause.

Connally said, "It is time to turn this thing around. We have to have a crusade on the part of you and every Republican in this country, and if we are not prepared to do that, we should fold our tents and disappear."

Connally took time at the beginning of his speech to recommend Sen. John Tower of Texas as the next GOP party leader in the Senate.

"I cannot think of anything better for the party or for the country than for Sen. Tower to succeed to this leadership," Connally said.

Punishment testimony

Coahoma gets green light

COAHOMA — The city that received national publicity by turning back revenue sharing funds is now authorized to receive the funds.

The new administration of the city applied for membership last year in the Permian Basin Regional Planning Council and immediately requested that group to help them obtain their share of the revenue sharing.

Through correspondence to Washington, the city has been approved for the next allocation of funds. The PBRPC is also trying to obtain the back funds from the time the city administration changed.

However, the funds turned back prior to last April, are "probably long gone," according to spokesmen at the PBRPC. The city was featured in Time Magazine in 1973 as a city that did not want help from the federal government.

Franklin convicted in slaying of nurse

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — Testimony begins today in the punishment phase of the capital murder trial of Donald Gene Franklin, 24, convicted in the 1975 slaying of a San Antonio nurse.

The same state district court jury that convicted Franklin on Saturday will decide between death or life imprisonment. Prosecutors are asking for the death penalty.

Franklin, who claimed in testimony last week that he had been mistaken for another black man, swallowed hard several times as he stood listening to the verdict rendered Saturday by the jury of Anglos and Mexican-Americans.

Franklin, of San Antonio, was accused of killing Mrs. Mary Margaret Moran, 27, a nurse at the Audie Murphy Veterans Hospital in San Antonio.

Mrs. Moran was abducted from the hospital's parking lot last July 28. Searchers found her three days later in a field near the hospital. Officials said the partially nude Mrs. Moran had been stabbed and was suffering from exposure. She died within 12 hours after being found.

Judge James Barlow tried the case here on a change of venue from San Antonio.

Franklin was arrested at his apartment by officers who testified they found several items belonging to Mrs. Moran in a trash can behind the apartment. Police also said they found a pair of bloody pants soaking in a bucket in the apartment.

'Do best you can,' farmers tell court

LAMESA — A group of Dawson County farmers went on record favoring county land values be set at $20 per acre for grassland, $65 per acre for dryland and $75 per acre for irrigated land for tax purposes during a special commissioners court meeting Thursday.

The group asked the county commissioners "to do the best you can" for county land owners.

The action came after two hours of discussion during which the need to raise county land values and add omitted property, including rural homes and improvements, to the tax roll.

Oil companies owning property and doing business in Dawson County have requested that the tax load be equalized, pointing repeatedly to the inequity of outdated values on farm land and property not included on the county tax roll.

Currently, land in Dawson County is valued at $16 an acre on grassland, $24 an acre on dryland and $48 an acre on irrigated land.

Meetings will be discussed

All clubs interested in the possibility of having a regular meeting place at the Dora Roberts Community Center are invited to send a representative to a meeting Wednesday.

Mrs. Mary Joy Cowper has requested each club to send a representative to a meeting at 9:30 a.m. in the city council room.

The city is in the process of setting up plans for more utilization of the building, located near the Figure Seven Tennis Center.

Rules and regulations for the clubs will be discussed at the planning meeting.

CB radio gone

Larry Peterson reported a citizen band radio stolen from his vehicle while attending church at Luther Sunday, the sheriff's office reported.

COMET WEST IN THE EAST — The most spectacular comet visible in the United States in several years was the subject of at least one amateur photographer here recently. 1st Lt. David Blubaugh, a T-37 instructor pilot at Webb Air Force Base, took this picture of the comet at about 5:45 a.m. Thursday. The comet rises at about 5:20 a.m., according to Blubaugh, in the eastern sky and remains visible until about 6:45 a.m. He took the pictures using a Mamiya-Sekor 35mm camera with a 110mm lens. Exposure was on Tri-X film rated at an ASA of 2,400 for 15 seconds at an f-stop of 1.8. Blubaugh made the pictures from a point just east of the Howard County Airport to get away from city lights.

Texas violence

Eleven killed in car wrecks

By The Associated Press

Traffic fatalities far outnumbered other deaths by violence in Texas last weekend, including five persons killed in multi-car smashups.

The Associated Press counted at least 13 violent deaths between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday, including 11 in traffic. One person was fatally shot and another died in a fire.

These were among the victims:

Larry Travis, 27, was shot to death in an apparent gas station robbery at Adrian in the western Panhandle. Police said his body was found Sunday night with a bullet wound in the head. The station's cash register had been emptied.

A Raymondville man, Adolfo Garcia, 25, died Sunday night of injuries suffered when he was hit by a car on Farm Road 2812 near Monte Alto in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Authorities said Garcia was attempting to direct traffic around his stalled grain harvester when a car skidded into him.

William A. Moore, 79, of Atoka, Okla., a pedestrian, was killed when struck by a car as he tried to cross a Dallas expressway.

A two-car collision north of Baytown early Sunday left two Houston women dead. They were identified as Jenny Lee Avery, 22, and Gloria J. Kennedy.

State troopers said Larry Gutierrez, 20, of Rosenberg was killed early Sunday when his car went out of control on U.S. 90A in Fort Bend County and overturned after hitting a bridge guard rail.

Lori Lehr, 18, of Longview and Joseph M. Rodden, 26, of Houston were killed in a two-car, head-on collision Saturday night just outside Longview. Officers said Miss Lehr was one of three young women in one car who had just taken part in an opera at Kilgore College. The other two young women suffered injuries.

A three-car crash near Texas City killed two Houston residents. The dead were identified as Charles W. Russell, 43, and Toby O'Daniel, 13.

Theft charge is lodged

Ace V. McDowell, 43, is being held in city jail on charges filed in county court for theft over $20 and under $200.

An investigation revolving around theft of gasoline from Ralph's Fina Station at 2709 Wasson Road through use of a BankAmericard has led City Detective Leroy Spires to information that McDowell had in his possession a card reported missing in Warden, Montana. The card was in his possession when arrested, according to Spires.

The card has apparently been used in Montana, Utah, New Mexico and Texas.

SAFETY IS IMPORTANT — Students in Mrs. Thelma Williams' fourth grade class at Bauer School display some of their own illustrations used to make an educational filmstrip.

Safety filmstrip is completed by pupils

Fourth grade students in Mrs. Thelma Williams' class at Bauer Elementary School have completed their own production of a special safety filmstrip. Using illustrations by the students, the filmstrip depicts safety rules for pedestrians and cyclists.

Materials for the project are provided by the Governor's Office of Traffic Safety. With these materials the students create illustrations to show various safety fundamentals.

Some of the ideas that the students dealt with were: using reflectors and wearing brightly colored clothes when riding a bicycle; the danger of running into the street from behind parked cars; and the necessity of looking before crossing the street.

When the illustrations were completed, they were sent to Canson Associated Limited of Austin, where they were reproduced in filmstrip form. The filmstrip and a sound recording have now become the property of the school, and will be used to teach safety rules to future classes.

Mrs. Williams, the class teacher, reports that the filmstrip was a great success.

"It is a great learning aid, and the children all seemed to enjoy doing it," she said. This was verified by all 25 students in the class.

Parents of the students were invited to two showings of the filmstrip in the classroom. All were very impressed with the work, according to Mrs. Williams.

The same project is offered across the state. Last year nearly 250,000 Texas school children participated in the program. It will again be offered free to all Texas fourth grade classrooms this fall.

Thefts

Belt-driven tiller reported stolen at White's Auto. Value: $279.95, 2:31 p.m. Saturday.

Two wheel covers taken from 1970 Chevrolet parked at the Bowl-A-Rama. Fred Pena reported the theft to police.

R. E. Smithie reported a burglary of a storeroom at 1810 Johnson. The report lists items valued at $912 missing.

Four Odessans are treated

Four Odessa Women were treated and released at Malone-Hogan Hospital Sunday afternoon after their car rolled over a bridge embankment.

The accident happened at the IS-20 bridge over the railroad east of Coahoma, Texas Highway Patrolman Ben Lockhart said.

Eunice Wadleigh lost control of the car on the slick overpass, crashed into the guard rail and rolled over, Lockhart said.

Alert Ambulance transported Mrs. Wadleigh and her daughter, Debbie Scharne, to the hospital. Taken to the hospital in a separate vehicle were Lola Henry and Veronica Trotter.

Autopsy check

Justice of the Peace Gus Ochotorena Jr. is awaiting a report of an autopsy on Jack A. Bruton, 51, San Angelo.

Bruton died at the Veterans Administration Hospital Friday night.

FFA, 4-H members enter stock show

The annual Dawson County Junior Livestock Show will be open to all active FFA and 4-H members in Dawson County and Klondike, O'Donnell, Ackerly, Welch and Lamesa school districts.

Animals purchased after Dec. 1 are ineligible to be exhibited.

The show opens Wednesday, March 10, 8 a.m. with the barn open to receive animals.

On Thursday, March 11, 8 a.m. - 7 p.m., weighing of all livestock will be held. FFA member or 4-H'er or supervisor or parent must be present at time animal is weighed.

Judging starts Friday, March 12, 9 a.m. with classifying of all lambs to begin. At 1 p.m., judging of swine will be held and at 7:30 p.m., judging of steers.

Saturday, March 13, 9 a.m., judging of lambs will be held. All animals remain in place until lamb show is completed on Saturday, March 13.

Superintendents for the Barrow Division are Billy and Bobby Shofner with Billy Wayne Cozart and Jimmy Williams assisting. This division will be judged by Marcus Phillips, vocational agriculture teacher from Hereford.

Superintendent for the lamb division is Jim Beam with DeLacy Frampton and Dan Harp assisting. The lamb classifier will be Stanley Young, assistant county extension agent, Lubbock County. The lamb judge will be Richard Powell, vocational agriculture teacher from Alpine, Texas.

Superintendent for the steer division is Donald Love with Arlan Youngblood and Nelson Hogg assisting. Jerry Mimms, Hereford Breeder, Lorenzo will judge the steer division.

Leo White, retired county extension agent, Plains, will serve as judge for the showmanship awards. To be eligible for a showmanship award a boy or girl must be a FFA or 4-H member and own and show at least one animal in the show.

General Superintendent of the show is D. V. Phipps being assisted by Gayland Airhart. Other superintendents are: Arena and ribbon, L. D. "Doc" Echols; WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is forecast today for most of the eastern third of the nation. Snow is forecast from Michigan to western New England. It will be mild in the extreme Southeast but cold over most of the country.

The world at-a-glance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate won't vote for a new majority leader until next January, but the outcome of the contest could well be decided by the end of this week. Discussions with senators and staff aides indicate the contest is shaping with Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., majority whip for the past five years as the early frontrunner. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., would be a strong candidate for the job, but he would have to decide to abandon hopes for the Democratic presidential nomination. Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, and Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., a Southern moderate, are also interested in the post. Current Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana announced Friday he would not seek re-election.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Social Security taxes, jobs, the Federal Election Commission and the leak of the secret House intelligence report are among the topics up for congressional consideration this week. Little major legislation was scheduled for floor consideration in either chamber, but committees were expected to be busy. In the House, Administration Committee Chairman Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, has set a goal of Tuesday to reach major decisions on legislation to reconstitute the Federal Election Commission.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia has shipped new supplies of weapons to Mozambique amid reports of increased guerrilla operations against neighboring white-ruled Rhodesia, U.S. intelligence sources say. Two Soviet ships were said to have unloaded T34 and T54 tanks, truck-mounted rocket launchers and other arms at the port of Beira. Three other Soviet ships were reported en route to Mozambique. The focus of Soviet and Cuban activity in Africa appears to be swinging toward support of Rhodesian black nationalist efforts now that Marxist-backed forces have won in Angola.

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (AP) — Top executives of four American oil companies and Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani stayed secluded today at a plush, beachside resort negotiating Saudi Arabia's takeover of Aramco, the giant Arabian-American Oil Co. As with everything else concerning the unusual meeting in this small Florida Panhandle city, the talks were shrouded in secrecy and heavy security. The tight security presumably stemmed from concern about a terrorist attack like the one in December during a meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in Vienna.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A psychiatric expert who has disputed Patricia Hearst's claim that she helped rob a bank under fear of death was scheduled to return to the witness stand today. Dr. Joel Fort's appearance Friday touched off some courtroom fireworks that left both U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. and defense counsel F. Lee Bailey tense with rage. Bailey was particularly angered at one of Browning's questions, and U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter postponed until today a ruling on whether Fort's answer will be allowed to stand.

Judy Tereletsky 'Terrible sense of guilt'

to attend show

Judy Tereletsky, Howard College freshman, has been notified by the Starving Artist Show commission of San Antonio that she is one of 1,200 artists selected from across the state of Texas for assignment in the 1976 Starving Artist Art Show.

The art show is scheduled Sunday, April 4, from 10 a.m.-6 p.m. in San Antonio. It is sponsored by the Little Church of La Villita.

Artists selected to attend the show display items for sale. All work displayed must be handcrafted or painted by the artist registered.

Ms. Tereletsky is a full-time student at H.C. In addition to her studies at Howard, she takes courses in art at Western Texas College in Snyder.

Early this week, he and the town weekly, the Bumfudgeon Eagle, set up the WWW-Bumfudgeon Eagle Poll. It's similar to the New York Times-CBS News poll that CBS uses in its primary election broadcasts. But it differs in one major

Late Millard Fillmore leads Bumfudgeon poll

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In the New Hampshire and Massachusetts primaries, teams compiling a "vote profile analysis" for network anchor men asked voters leaving the booths why they voted the way they did.

It'll happen again Tuesday in Florida. But Everett Scrimshaw, news director at WWW-TV in rural Bumfudgeon, Fla., doesn't plan to let the networks beat him to the punch in analyzing voters' profiles.

Another 16.9 per cent, all vacationing from Worcester, Mass., said they'd already spoken to the networks. The remaining 13.6 per cent fled into the night with respect. Scrimshaw, feeling that true beliefs aren't represented in post-vote opinion samples, is resorting to chicanery.

He says researchers for the WWW-Bumfudgeon Eagle Poll set out late one night, visiting every saloon in the area at closing time to ask departing patrons why they voted the way they did in Florida's primary.

A key finding of the poll, to be broadcast tonight by WWW, is that 87.2 per cent of those responding were "so hammered" they thought it was Tuesday and they'd already voted in the Florida primary.

Another 16.9 per cent, all vacationing from Worcester, Mass., said they'd already spoken to the networks. The remaining 13.6 per cent fled into the night with "no comment" and a "terrible sense of guilt," the poll reports.

"We should caution that the poll is subject to a sampling error of 17.7 per cent either way," Scrimshaw cautioned.

A major finding of the poll is the unexpectedly strong support in Florida for the late Millard Fillmore, who ran poorly in the New Hampshire and Massachusetts primaries.

The poll found that a whopping 74.9 per cent of the respondents said they voted for Fillmore "because he's against forced issues."

Of the remainder, 23.7 per cent had "no opinion" while 18.7 per cent "had never heard of" Millard Fillmore, the poll said.

It cited the fact he did virtually no campaigning in Florida this month as a possible reason for his "lack of recognition factor."

Of the 81.5 per cent who said they voted for Fillmore instead of other presidential candidates, nearly 42 per cent said they did so because he alone opposed the Smoot-Hawley Act.

This was surprising, the poll said, because the Smoot-Hawley Act hadn't been considered one of the major issues in the primary, at least not in the Bumfudgeon area.

Another surprise was Fillmore's broad base of support, the poll said. Of those responding to the poll, 55.6 per cent were blue-collar conservatives, 49.4 per cent were white-collar liberals and 17.7 per cent were dead.

News director Scrimshaw was asked if, by releasing the results of the WWW-Bumfudgeon Eagle Poll now, he might not be subtly influencing the outcome of the real Florida voting on Tuesday.

"Don't care," he said. "I'm moving to New Hampshire then."

Some move on, others move up

"When it rains it pours" is a way we have of saying that bad things often seem to come in groups.

DURING THE PAST few weeks, Big Spring has by coincidence lost a number of people whose dedication and hard work in behalf of this community had placed them in leadership roles.

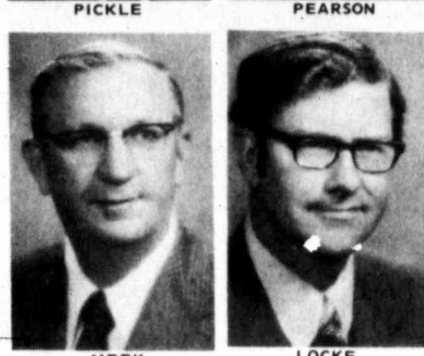

One of these, of course, is Paul Meek, former president of Cosden Oil & Chemical Co. here who is moving to Dallas to become president of American Petro-Fina, the parent company.

The feeling that this community has developed for Meek was evidenced by the crowd of 300 persons who turned out last week for his going away party.

His departure is a moment that saddened the entire community, even though we all know that he leaves to assume a most important post.

Meek said Big Spring had been good to him. He arrived 20 years ago with very little other than his family, and he leaves with the bonds of 20-year friendships enduring.

And Meek's departure won't leave a gap in the leadership because Ken Perry, vice president and chief operating officer of Cosden, has often demonstrated his continuing concern with our community.

I had not been in Big Spring long enough to know Meek very well, but I had been here and around him enough to know that he is both literally and figuratively a giant of a man.

Another shocker was the Tuesday announcement that Texas Electric Service Co. Division Manager Tom Locke was being transferred to a bigger job in Wichita Falls.

You know Tom Locke if you have been involved in any community service activity at all. He was everywhere. If there was a project that involved the community being, you'd find Locke, either carrying the burden of a chief or working hard as one of the Indians.

ONCE AGAIN, however, we are left in good hands. The new division manager, Jack Redding, is a most impressive fellow to meet. He has spent much of his time with the company in Odessa and is a believer in West Texas.

Here at the Big Spring Herald, we also have had turnover in two of this newspaper's top spots.

First longtime Editor Joe Pickle retired. Pickle is a living legend of Texas journalism. Although I had not been around him much, I felt as if I knew him very well just from his reputation in Texas journalism.

Pickle could not have left a more capable successor than Editor Tommy Hart. The new editor is an extremely well-read and intelligent man, and he is a newspaperman to his core. The editorial product of the Herald will continue to progress under Hart's leadership as it has for many years under Pickle.

A second loss to the Herald and the community was the promotion of Publisher Dub Pearson to Bryan. Pearson is a man of endless energy, and he never tired of expending it on Big Spring.

These men all go on to great things, and we're happy for each of them. But there is sadness in it too.

Best of luck to all of them.

—J. Tom Graham

Urge to kill Around the rim

James Werrell

One of the great mystery writers, I forget who, said that it isn't the great calamities in life, but burnt toast in the morning that drives people to murder.

IN LIGHT OF THIS, I would like to list some of the bodily afflictions that aren't fatal but, because of their irritation level, give one the urge to kill family pets, pieces of furniture, or a best friend.

The list must be headed with the common cold. Not enough nasty words can be said about his blight on mankind. If one could just crawl into a cave for two weeks until the cold goes away, it wouldn't be so bad.

But we all have to keep up the illusion that we are normal, functioning human beings while a little voice tells us, "by dab dose feels like hamburger."

Next on the list is cutting your finger on a piece of paper. This is so horrible, I can hardly write about it. Let it suffice that the cut finger is useless for about a week.

Very high on the small torture list is the act of knocking a shin on a hard object. This results in pain that must be close to that of childbirth.

The shin slowly turns purple and then a shade of sickly yellow. The odds are good that at a point in the same day, you will hit the same shin on a toy truck, and curse the day you were born.

Chapped lips are another nightmare. Chapped lips start out small, but, by the time they are licked for about two hours, they begin to feel like a pair of pot holders. When they get to this point, somebody cracks a joke, laughter follows, and your lips suddenly resemble a quartered tangerine.

There is not enough space to list the awful things that happen to the rest of the mouth; atrocities such as biting your tongue, burning the roof of your mouth on a pepperoni pizza, or chewing on the side of your mouth after a trip to the dentist.

THERE IS NO room either for a complete list of horrors such as hangnails, hitting your head on an open drawer, long nosehairs, ingrown toenails, falling on your tailbone, eating ice-cream too fast, or stepping on marbles with bare feet.

No list would be complete, however, without mention of the scourge of the word, pimples. Even the word "pimple" is horrible, and blemish or teen-age flare-up is no better.

Despite what we are told by Dick Clark and Wolfman Jack, no member of the human species ever completely grows out of, or in any other way totally rids himself of, the scurrious pimple.

BANK PRESIDENTS, generals, senators; they all get pimples. I have seen my father with his nose lit up like a beacon, scouring the house for Clearasil. When none was found, all he could do was lay off the chocolates and wait it out.

No matter how hard one tries, there is no escape from all these odd little tortures. Throughout the world, pictures are being hung and fingers are getting smashed with hammers as you read this. Just be happy you are reading, and it isn't happening to you.

Easy wins scored

Jack Anderson, Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Israel can never again expect to win an easy victory over the Arabs, according to the Pentagon's latest secret intelligence estimates.

The Arab nations have amassed tremendous stockpiles of Soviet weapons, giving them vastly superior firepower.

THE COMPARATIVE figures are classified "Secret-Sensitive." Since the Soviets supplied the equipment, they obviously know the figures. We, therefore, believe the American people, who may be called upon to support Israel, are also entitled to the facts.

The six leading Arab powers — Egypt, Syria, Jordan, Iraq, Libya and Saudi Arabia — have a combined strength that is overwhelming.

Roughly, they have a 4-to-1 superiority over Israel in combat planes, a 3-to-1 edge in trained pilots, a 19-to-1 advantage in antiaircraft missiles and a 3-to-1 superiority in ships and submarines.

It is the Pentagon's view, nevertheless, that Israel would win the next military conflict but that the victory would be costly.

Concurring, the Central Intelligence Agency estimates that a future Arab-Israeli outbreak would produce at least 36,000 Israeli casualties. On a proportionate basis, this would be equivalent to about 2.5 million casualties for the United States.

Here are some highlights from the secret intelligence figures:

The six Arab countries have a combined air strength of 1,509 supersonic and subsonic fighter jets. Israel has only 426, of which 206 are supersonic. The Egyptians alone have 347 supersonic fighters, the Syrians another 338. In addition, these two Arab nations possess 62 of the latest Soviet MIG-23s, which are superior to any jet plane the United States has yet sent to Israel.

Most Arab planes and missiles have been supplied by the Russians since the October 1973 war. Syria, especially, has been loaded down with extremely sophisticated equipment. In contrast, 220 of Israel's subsonic planes are U.S.-supplied A-4 Skyhawks, which are 20-year-old models.

THE SIX ARAB nations have 2,530 trained pilots, including 1,740 who are qualified to fly jet fighters. Israel has 1,100 pilots, of whom 700 are jet qualified. All told, the six Arab air forces have 78,600 airmen, as opposed to only 19,000 for Israel.

The Israelis have only 800 antiaircraft missiles, including the short-range Chaparral. They have 114 launchers, but only 15 are now in operation.

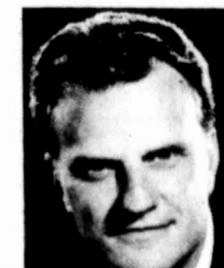

On the other side, the Arab Six have a formidable 15,285 SAM missiles of varying sophistication, with 2,678 launchers. But only 399 launchers are actually deployed in the field. All in all, the Arab air defense system has been described in intelligence reports as "the most dense in the world."

During the 1973 war, only one Israeli plane was shot down in combat. But a sobering 120 were brought down by antiaircraft weapons, particularly the Soviet SAM missiles.

The combined Arab navies are five times greater in manpower than Israel's navy of 5,000 seamen. But the Arabs have 49 destroyers, submarines and missile boats, compared to only 18 missile boats and one submarine for Israel.

FLORIDA ODDS: Our political oddsman, Jimmy the Greek Snyder, is giving odds that President Ford will win the crucial Florida primary. By Jimmy's reckoning, the President is a two-to-one favorite to defeat Ronald Reagan. This would just about knock Reagan out of the presidential race.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I've heard that the Bible says many will come pretending to be God's messengers although they are really Satan's agents. How can we know those who preach the truth? — N.M.

DEAR N.M.: Perhaps you are thinking of II Corinthians 11:13, 14: "For such are false apostles, deceitful workers, transforming themselves into the apostles of Christ. And no marvel; for Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light."

In this, and other passages, the Bible teaches us that there are some who claim to be Christ's messengers, although what they preach is actually opposed to Christ's truth.

A devotion for today

"You are to be perfect, even as your Father in heaven is perfect." (Matthew 5:48, TLB)
PRAYER: As we look at the life of Jesus, Father, we can clearly see our imperfections. But we know that You will guide us and strengthen us to live as we should if we surrender our will to You. In Christ's name we pray, not our will, but Yours be done. Amen.

Shows up Cornell

William F. Buckley, Jr.

On December 9, very nearly three months ago, Marshall Ky rose to speak at Bailey Hall in Cornell University. Not quite on schedule, because an unannounced speaker, at the appointed hour, materialized, occupied the podium and harangued the crowded hall on the theme of Ky as a mass murderer, assassin, and fascist, who jailed, tortured and killed tens of thousands of people. The self-invited speaker was not a student, but one Michael Parenti, a visiting professor — of government. Perhaps he is holding down the chair left vacant five years ago when the distinguished professor Walter Berns left Cornell in protest against the University's failure to discipline students who occupied critical parts of the university using only rifles. So far, no disciplinary action has been concluded.

MOST OF THE CROWD — Mr. Jim Myers' account in the Ithaca Journal is exemplary in the detail of the evening — loved it. So that when Marshall Ky walked on stage he was greeted with derision, abuse, and obscenities. He announced that in deference to the temper of the audience he would suspend his prepared speech and devote the evening to answering questions. But — he asked — would the audience please give him just two minutes in which to make a statement? He proceeded, but two minutes proved too great a tax on the patience of the Ku Kluxers. "Nothing Ky said could appease the protesters in the slightest," reported the Journal, "and, in the end, as missiles and, it appeared, eggs and rotten fruit began to fly towards the stage, Ky stepped back from the podium, waited as the disruption grew, and finally left the hall, escorted by Cornell Safety Division officers."

During the question period Ky was not so much asked as informed that he was a) a fervent admirer of Adolf Hitler (Ky said he wasn't — his legendary reference had been only to Hitler's skills as a leader in the early 30's. In the same breath he had named Nasser); b) a dope smuggler (Ky denied it); and c) a land-thief (Ky explained that the land he "took" was undeveloped land, available to any Vietnamese who undertook to develop it).

A typical question from the floor was "How do you sleep at night?" — no doubt asked by a young member of the revolutionary nobility in America whose scars date back to when he was sent to sleep by his mother without a popsie. The presumed hero of the evening was not a student, but an assistant professor of philosophy, Mr. Richard Miller. He spoke from the floor, referring to Marshall Ky only as "the creep." Mr. Miller wanted to know what Ky was doing there. The philosopher's impatience with the audience was, one gathers, in its failure to accept the role for which it was clearly qualified by temperament. "The object of any people's court I've heard about is to find out if someone is a murderer and, if he is, to shoot him."

Stock mart only reacts

John Cuniff

NEW YORK (AP) — "What is the stock market telling us?" asks one broker after another, inadvertently reversing a state of affairs in which the market does nothing but what investors make it do.

"The stock market is weary," said the broker, "so investors might best be advised to stay away." No sir, that's not the situation at all. The attitude produces the effect; it is the adviser who is weary or wary, and the market which mirrors it.

Right now, the advisers are saying, the stock market is consolidating the 160 or more points the Dow Jones industrial average has added since last December, in one of the most energetic leaps in recent history.

Whatever consolidation means isn't very clear, but presumably it suggests investors now are trying to feel firm and secure at this 972.92-point level (as of the beginning of trading today).

As a result, the once explosive rally now sputters forward a few points and then falls back. A morning advance withers by midday and then resumes faintly near the close. A slight decline sets off a slight rally.

In such a situation, those who are supposed to be able to see current world history in the market's performance never are without explanations. They might not be correct, but who's to know or to care?

The current reasons for weariness or wariness include fears about the British pound sterling, concern that the Federal Reserve will impose monetary restraint, and an inability to create enthusiasm among individual investors.

It continues: The big institutions which supported the 1976 rally now are heavily invested and not in a position to lead an advance. And the economic measurements, while improving, show we have a long way to go.

But that's the bad news, and the stock market so far hasn't been receiving only bad news. Take a look at the other side of the very same reasons:

The British don't seem particularly worried about their own currency. If the Fed feels we need monetary restraint then it must feel the recovery is very strong. And small lot sales-purchase ratios suggest small investors are growing more interested.

It might be true that some of the institutions now are heavily invested,

The pressure's on

Rowland Evans

WASHINGTON — Close advisers of President Ford, agonizing over possible primary defeats of the President, are eyeing a new, hard-line foreign policy aimed squarely at the Soviet Union as one way of reversing the tide.

Indeed, a distinct minority of these advisers believe that such a dramatic presidential switch away from détente could conceivably work only if reinforced with a companion move: the replacement of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, original architect along with former President Nixon of the now-tarnished policy of détente.

OTHER PRESIDENTIAL intimates strongly dissent, claiming that although Kissinger's standing in Congress and the Washington bureaucracy has plummeted he is still the lusterless administration's brightest star out in the hinterland whose ouster would backfire on the President, especially in the general election campaign.

Just how discredited détente has become in the eyes of rank-and-file voters is shockingly clear from highly reputable polls taken over the past few weeks by various presidential candidates in the primary states of New Hampshire and Massachusetts. One such sample shows the trend.

Item: The key question, asking whether détente has favored Moscow, Washington or both equally, received these responses from a statistically sound sample in Massachusetts, Sen. George McGovern's only winning state four years ago: favored the Soviet Union, nearly 70 per cent; favored the U.S., less than 5 per cent; favored neither, but some of them — mutual and pension funds, for instance — also have an inflow of new dollars to be invested. Many of them are growing.

True, many economic measurements — unemployment, inflation and the like — remain at a disturbingly high level, but if they are pointing in the right direction doesn't that mean better times for investors?

The market today is somewhat like the political race. Everyone seems to hang on the words of the candidates, just as everyone seems to listen to the various explanations of market place behavior.

less than 3 per cent.

Item: Another key question asking whether the U.S. has been too tough, too easy or just about right in its Soviet policy brought this response from Massachusetts voters: nearly 70 per cent "too easy," less than 2 per cent "too tough."

Such findings in dovish New England help explain the rising attack on the Ford-Kissinger policy of détente by such non-dovish presidential candidates as Sen. Henry M. Jackson, Democrat, and Ronald Reagan, Republican.

UP TO NOW, Mr. Ford has made not the slightest concession despite Reagan's hard-line speech in Exeter, N.H., earlier this month. Reagan charged that the military balance has been shifting toward the Soviet Union since 1970 "through the years of so-called détente."

In recent campaigning, Mr. Ford has seemed on the defensive over the Reagan attacks on détente, claiming that U.S. military strength has "reassured our allies" (a dubious proposition to some of those allies) and that his own reputation during a quarter-century in Congress was that of "a tough Yankee trader."

Some presidential advisers believe that if Mr. Ford loses the early primaries, only a reversion to a hard-line Soviet policy could set the political stage for recouping his fallen fortunes in later primaries. They feel — and display the polls as evidence — that the impact on U.S. voters of the Soviet decision to train, supply and use Cuban mercenaries in Angola, 8,000 miles from Moscow, has been sharp enough to make such a switch credible and widely acceptable.

Battled big banks

Texans mourn death of Rep. Wright Patman

By The Associated Press

Wright Patman, who spent 48 years away from Texas fighting big banks and special interests in the House of Representatives, has come home to stay.

The 82-year-old Democrat, dean of the House, died Sunday in Washington of pneumonia. His body was flown home to Texarkana for burial.

Patman was hailed by fellow Texas congressmen as "a populist" and "one of the finest Southern gentlemen who ever served in Congress."

Democratic Rep. Jim

Wright of Fort Worth said Patman "never hesitated to take an unpopular stand if he believed it was right."

"Long before today's self-proclaimed consumer advocates were born, Patman was in Congress waging a lonely but effective fight against those who would exploit his fellow citizens of modest means."

Wright said Patman "earned himself a place forever in the hearts of plain people who believe, as he did, that you don't have to be wealthy or influential to be entitled to an even break in America."

Gov. Dolph Briscoe called Patman "a fierce advocate of the people" who "fought the special interests, denounced bigotry in any form and became the respected spokesman of workers and farmers throughout the nation."

"The last of the old-time populists, a great public servant and a good and beloved man, his passing leaves a void that will never be filled," Briscoe said.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., who served with Patman in the House in the late 1940s and early 1950s, called Patman, "as institution in Congress, serving his district, his state, and his country for more than 53 years in the tradition of the early day populists."

"Congressman Patman was a man of great vigor and integrity and he will be missed," Bentsen added.

Rep. Dale Milford of Grand Prairie, a Democrat, said Patman "will take his place as one of the great legislators in Texas along with (former U.S. House Speaker Sam) Rayburn... and will be marked as great for a different reason."

"Mr. Patman was a populist. And you know another word for populist is representative. He believed in representing the views of his people. And he did so for a record length of time in the U.S. House. He'll be missed," Milford said in a statement.

Rep. Jim Collins of Dallas, a Republican, said he "never agreed with Patman on many votes. We usually saw things differently. But I'll tell you one thing about him. He was one of the finest Southern gentlemen who ever served in Congress."

Collins said Patman "was a man who had warmth about him, an inner warmth. One of Patman's longtime Democratic opponents, attorney Sam B. Hall Jr. of Marshall, called for a temporary moratorium in campaigning for his seat."

Hall, one of 12 persons who filed for the seat after Patman announced in January he would not run again, said Patman's career was "long" and "distinguished."

Irwin blasts TV Sunday, wins tourney on Monday

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Hale Irwin scored a routine par on the fourth extra hole Monday—the sixth hole of the delayed, controversial, two-day sudden death playoff—and defeated bitterly-disappointed Kermit Zarley for the title and the $40,000 first prize in the Citrus Open Golf Tournament.

A groan of dismay went up from the small gallery that had gathered under threatening skies and Zarley's shoulders slumped when his two-foot, par-saving putt missed the cup on the par three 16th hole at the Rio Pinar Country Club course.

Irwin, rapidly moving up in the ranks of the game's great players, and Zarley had finished the regulation 72 holes tied for the top at 270—18 under par—and matched pairs on two playoff holes before darkness halted the proceedings Sunday.

"We should have finished," the irate Irwin said at the time. "We should make decisions out here on the tour, not in a network office in New York."

They returned Monday morning and matched strokes over three more playoff holes before Zarley's bogey on the fourth playoff hole of the day and the sixth of the tournament.

The bogey provided a decidedly disappointing anticlimax to the long playoff.

They started Monday's play on the 17th hole and both birdied, Irwin rolling in a testing four-footer after Zarley had holed a 6-8 foot putt.

Both parred the 18th routinely and they went to the 15th, the first television hole. It's a 510-yard par-five, the green guarded by a creek. Both drove the fairway. Irwin boldly went for the green, putting his second shot on the fringe. And that forced Zarley to do the same. He also cleared the water and got it on the fringe. Both chipped close, Irwin to about eight feet and Zarley to about four. And both missed the birdie putts.

Irwin two-putted for par three on the 16th. Zarley ran his 15-18 foot first putt about two feet beyond the cup, then missed it coming back and the playoff was over.

It was the second victory in three weeks for Irwin, and the sixth of his career. The $40,000 check pushed his earnings for the year to $113,612 and made him the first man on the tour to go beyond $100,000 this season. Zarley collected $22,800 for second and now has $23,682 for the season.

NBC-TV taped Monday's play for viewing later in the afternoon.

NCAA berths filling up

Cavs upset Tar Heels

By The Associated Press

The North Carolina Tar Heels hadn't planned on it, but they're going west for the NCAA playoffs.

This little trip was arranged at the last second by the Virginia Cavaliers.

Surprising Virginia pulled off one of the biggest upsets of this year's college basketball season Saturday night, whipping the fourth-ranked Tar Heels 67-62 in the finals of the Atlantic Coast Conference playoffs.

North Carolina will be forced to travel to Dayton, Ohio, for the NCAA's Midwest Regionals next Saturday instead of playing in the more familiar surroundings of Charlotte, N.C., site of the East playoffs.

North Carolina will face a tougher draw because of it, too. Virginia's startling victory gave the Cavaliers a first-round game against DePaul. North Carolina's loss means a first-round NCAA date with the winner of the Southeastern Conference and puts three of the nation's top four teams in the same regional — top-ranked Indiana, second-ranked Marquette and the fourth-ranked Tar Heels.

The SEC race will be decided Monday night when Alabama faces Vanderbilt in the season finale. The Crimson Tide must beat the Commodores for the championship, otherwise a coin flip will decide North Carolina's eventual opponent.

The SEC race was thrown into a turmoil due to Saturday's results, which produced a 90-85 upset for Kentucky over Alabama and Tennessee's 86-70 romp over Georgia.

Elsewhere, several other teams landed berths in the NCAA's with victories Saturday.

Cincinnati defeated Memphis State 103-95 to win the Metro-Six tournament; Arizona stopped Arizona State 77-72 to take the Western Athletic Conference crown; Missouri won the Big Eight with a 95-60 rout of Colorado; Texas Tech defeated Texas A&M 74-72 in the Southwest Conference finals; Hofstra won the East Coast Conference title with a 79-72 whipping of Temple; Wichita State took the Missouri Valley crown by beating Drake 75-69 while Southern Illinois was losing 103-92 to New Mexico State in overtime; Boise State won the Big Sky championship with a 77-70 double-overtime victory over Weber State; and Pepperdine took the West Coast Athletic Conference title with an 85-84 overtime decision over San Francisco.

In the ECAC's regional playoffs, Syracuse hammered Niagara 77-68 to win the Upstate New York tourney; Connecticut grabbed the New England Regionals with an 87-73 upset of Providence; Georgetown beat George Washington 68-63 for the Southern title and Rutgers whipped St. John's 70-67 to win the Metro Division championship.

NIT field

NEW YORK (AP) — The field for the National Invitation Tournament, the nation's oldest basketball classic, was completed today with the selection of six teams including North Carolina State and San Francisco.

The NIT said that North Carolina State, 19-8, of the Atlantic Coast Conference; San Francisco, 23-7, of the West Coast Athletic Conference; Kansas State, 20-7, of the Big 8, and independents St. Peter's, N.J., 19-10, North Carolina-Charlotte, 21-5, and Holy Cross, 21-9, have accepted bids to round out the 12-team field for the tournament starting Saturday.

Louisville, Kentucky, Oregon, Providence, Niagara and North Carolina A&W were named to the field Sunday.

Baylor breaks Texas Border Olympic hold

LAREDO, Tex. (AP) — While Baylor and Texas slugged it out for the 44th Border Olympics championship, it was Rice's classy sprinter Zoe Simpson who supplied much of the fireworks.

Simpson claimed 20 points to be the meet's high point man Saturday and tied one of three Border Olympics records touched during the event.

His 9.3 second 100-yard dash tied the Border Olympics record set first by James Hines of Texas Southern in 1967. And while Simpson's 21.3 in the 220-yard run felled no mark, it took first in this year's competition.

Despite the Rice sprinter's one-man show, Baylor claimed the crown with 94 1-3rd points, followed by Texas with 91 1-3rd and Rice a distant third with 76.

Few standards fell or were even tied during the South Texas early season track and field affair.

Generally, this town's sunny climate provides excellent conditions for record assaults, but Saturday night temperatures in the 40s and cold, drifting rains plagued the meet.

The only new Border Olympics record established came when Jim McGoldrick of Texas whirled a discus 193-7. The old record was 186-7 1/2 set by Eric Handaway of Sul Ross in 1971.

Davy Duncan of Baylor brushed the only other record affected with a 13.9 in the 120-yard high hurdles tie to the meet record.

No college division records were replaced. Baylor claimed its first Border Olympics title since 1961 and continued its assault on University of Texas dominance in Southwest Conference track.

However, their win came only on the last event when Baylor's Mark Collins, Michael Carter, Steve Lang and Tim Son combined for a 3:12.2 mile relay and first place. Texas finished fourth.

The mile relay finish moved Baylor to the front. Texas had won the previous three Border Olympics. Abilene Christian outlasted Southwest Texas 86 1/2 points to 86 for the college division crown, and Ranger walked away with the junior college competition with 119.

Abilene High School won the schoolboy division with 58 points.

Steer frosh, Runnels Goliat in SA meet

SAN ANGELO — Eddie Puga, Ricky Cluck and the 1320-yard relay team picked up first place points to lead the Big Spring freshmen to a third place finish Saturday in the San Angelo Junior High Track Meet.

Puga snapped the tape in 23.9 to win the 220. Cluck won the 330-yard dash in 38.2. Cluck, Puga, Danny Winton and Byron Harris manned the winning 1320 relay team which won with a 2:37.7 time.

Harris finished fourth in the 660 with a 1:32.0. Bobby Regal hurled the discus 132 feet for third place. Puga finished sixth in the broad jump with a 18-foot 6-inch jump. Ronald Sunday's 10-foot 6-inch mark garnered the fourth spot in the pole vault.

Runnels finished eighth in both the seventh and eighth grade divisions. Goliat was ninth in the seventh grade and 11th in the eighth grade.

Goliat's 440 relay team of Mark Harris, Loyd Benson, Sonny Gonzales and Eugene Bodle came in third in the eighth grade with a 48.6.

Runnels team of James Hayes, Gerald Adams, Tony

Arripe and Joe Willie Jones finished sixth, 49.3.

J.W. Jones also picked up a second in the 330 in 39.1 and ten minutes later a fourth in the 220 in 25.0.

Brocky Jones, of Runnels, was third in the 70-yard high hurdles in 10.7.

Big Spring had two third's in seventh grade competition, one from each school.

Ben Watson, of Goliat, got third in the 220 in 26.3. Rudy Ortega, of Runnels, copped third in the 70-yard high hurdles, 11.5. Watson was the only one from Goliat to qualify for the finals.

Runnels' 440 relay team of Curtis Williams, Johnny Abreo, Dick Wrightsail and Ray Jones finished sixth in 52.3. Edwin Mathews was sixth in 70-yard high hurdles in 11.9. Abreo also picked up a sixth in the 100-yard dash in 12.1.

Mathews, Jimmy Carrillo and Ortega were four, five and six in the 252-yard low hurdles with times of 36.0, 36.4 and 36.5.

Carrillo picked up a fourth in the discus with a throw of 96.5 feet.

Proper nutrition during pregnancy gives infant headstart in health

This is the second in a series of six articles prepared to inform you about ways and means to assist you to keep physically fit through proper application of good nutrition principles and through practicing good health habits. The theme for this Bicentennial Year (1976) is "IMPROVING NUTRITION FOR THE NATION" and it is the aim of the members of the West Texas Dietetic Association and your county extension agent to inform the public regarding the importance of good nutrition.

National Nutrition Week is being observed the week of March 7-13; the West Texas Dietetic Association urges everyone to apply the ABC's of good nutrition to their every day life.

By LISETTA S. BRICKMAN, R.D.
DOES YOUR FOOD MAKE A DIFFERENCE?

No matter how old you are, or where you live, or what your occupation or work may be, your health depends to a great extent on the foods you eat. This is especially true during pregnancy when the expectant mother must satisfy the unborn baby's growing needs for food in addition to her own needs.

Your physician or dietitian or public health nutritionist will help you as much as they can with your planning of meals but this part of your prenatal care is a very special personal responsibility. The expectant mother who regularly eats a well balanced diet during the prenatal period is more likely to have a normal pregnancy and is less apt to have complications than one who does not eat properly. Also she is more apt to have a healthy child and an adequate supply of milk for breast feeding.

It is advisable for you to check your diet with information given in nutrition guides. Once you have in mind what foods you need daily (with suggested quantities), it will be easy for you to choose the foods that supply you with the materials needed for growth, for repair of body tissues, for manufacture of energy, and for your general well being.

If you have always eaten properly and your weight is within normal limits for your age and height, you may not have to make many changes in your food pattern during your pregnancy. Someone may have told you that you are "eating for two." This is true but it doesn't mean that you have to eat twice as much food as you have been getting. A healthy breast-fed baby does not need as much food as his mother eats. So, choose and eat the proper amounts of the right kinds of foods.

WHAT SHOULD YOU EAT?
Daily, your food should supply you with three different kinds of essential building materials or nutrients: proteins — for growth and repair of your body; carbohydrates and fats — for energy; and minerals and vitamins for growth and to keep your body in good working order.

Most foods contain more than one of these nutrients. No single food has all of the nutrients you need in the required amounts. This is the reason it is important for you to have variety in your meals, but it should not be a hit-or-miss arrangement. In good meal planning, foods are combined in accordance with a few simple rules, and such meals do not have to be monotonous. There are many different foods to choose from, no matter what your background may be, so it is possible to work out meal plans and include the foods and you and your family really like to eat.

To plan meals wisely, you need to know what foods are essential, how much of each essential food you should eat, which foods can be interchanged, and how quantities of different foods are measured and compared.

Your doctor, a dietitian or a public health nurse or nutritionist can suggest one or two good books on nutrition for you to read. These are available from the public library.

Foods are classified into groups on the basis of the principal nutrients in them. The food groups are milk and milk products group; meat group; vegetable and fruit group; bread and cereal group.

In addition, fats and oils, sugars and sweets add calories and some nutrients to your diet. When you plan meals for the day, choose foods from each of these four groups. The foods listed in the above groups are similar in nutrient content but equal size portions may vary as to total quantity of each nutrient. For example, a half cup (4 oz.) of orange or grapefruit juice contains more than twice as much Vitamin C as 4 oz. of tomato juice. Select a variety of foods which together will supply all the nutrients needed.

Your doctor will advise you as to the total number of calories and varying foods you should eat, depending on your weight, age, height, allergies or other health problems.

Some doctors recommend four small meals each day instead of three large ones so that you do not get hungry between meals. The best choice of snack foods is raw vegetables, fruits and milk from amount allotted each day.

It is also important for the expectant mother to drink fluids. Your doctor may recommend that you have as much as 2 quarts of liquids every day. Such fluids as milk, fruit juices and soups may be counted in the total amount of fluids needed in addition to water. Tea, coffee and other beverages may be used, if permitted by your doctor.

WEIGHT GAIN DURING PREGNANCY
Should you gain weight because you are pregnant? You will almost certainly weigh more toward the end of your pregnancy than when it began, but you should regain your normal weight after the baby is born.

The average full-term baby weighs 7-8 pounds. Many physicians recommend a total weight gain during pregnancy of about 20 pounds, though this is a general recommendation. Gains and losses in your weight are due to gains and losses of fluid and fat stored in the tissues of your body. Your physician will prescribe your diet and other treatment if you have water retention.

Some foods have many calories, others only a few. If you gain weight easily, eat very little candy, cake and pastry and avoid gravies, salad dressing, rich sauces, soft drinks made with sugar, beer and other alcoholic beverages and bakery snacks served with them. There are "hidden" calories in fried foods.

Expectant mothers sometimes think if they eat very little, the baby will be smaller and birth easier and that the mother will look better. Recent studies seem to indicate that the size of the baby is not closely related to the mother's diet. Nutritionally speaking, the better fed the expectant mother is, the better she will feel and look.

It is also important to observe good health habits such as getting sufficient rest and sleep each 24 hours. Women should have moderate amount of enjoyable exercise daily, preferably outdoors, wearing comfortable clothing and shoes. Expectant mothers should have a daily bath or shower and should refrain from use of tobacco, drugs and alcohol.

NUTRITION DURING INFANCY

A baby actually does not need any food except breast milk or his formula until he is about six months old. However, you may want to accustom him to different tastes and textures of food prior to that time.

Start spoon feedings slowly and in small amounts. Try one new food at a time and feed it several days before another food is started. By following this procedure one

Garden Club meets Wednesday

The Big Spring Garden Club met in the home of Mrs. John Coffee on Wednesday.

Mrs. Marvin Sewell served as co-hostess for the meeting.

Mr. Wesley Deats presented a program on vegetable gardening. He exhibited various samples of onion plants. He said that when planting the white Bermuda onion plant it in shallow, loose soil and water it generously. This should produce a larger onion.

When setting out tomato plants, he advised the group to cover the plant with soil up to the first leaf growth. This will enable the plant to develop a better root structure.

A type of seed planter set which would facilitate early indoor planting of seeds to be transferred later outside was demonstrated.

After a drawing, Deats presented Mrs. John Hogan with a hummingbird feeder, and Mrs. Earnest Greer with a gardening tool.

Next meeting for the group will be held at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, April 7, in the home of Mrs. D. O. Gray, 102 Washington Blvd.

Charge husband's batteries to increase frequency

DEAR ABBY: Mrs. Ready Kilowatt wrote to you complaining that at bedtime, all her electrician husband wanted to do was talk about his business, while she had other things in mind.

FULLY CHARGED

DEAR FULLY: Why talk? Non-verbal communication is sometimes much more effective. Assuming that the husband's batteries aren't dead, the proper action could lower his resistance and increase his frequency.

DEAR ABBY: Last October you had a whole column on fire prevention and suggested having a hand fire extinguisher in every home. Well, that gave me an idea for my married son's Christmas present.

CANADIAN

DEAR CANADIAN: Thanks! Your letter made my day.

DEAR ABBY: Someone asked you if you thought a grandmother should be expected to sit with grandchildren who were rude and disrespectful. She said she had two married sons who each had two little boys under 10. The sons of one family were a joy to sit with, so she often did, but the other two boys were mean and mouthy, so she refused to sit with them. Her problem was that she was being criticized for playing favorites. You told her to turn a deaf ear to the criticism.

Well, Abby, CRITICIZED made her first mistake when she didn't correct her disobedient grandchildren the first time they got out of line.

One grandson sassed me, so I told him that his Daddy didn't sass me when he was growing up and that I wasn't going to put up with it from him, either. Then I gave him a smack and set him down. He was so surprised he sassed me again, so I gave him another smack and set him down again. That was our first and last scene.

Later, I warned his younger sister, "You'd better mind Grandma or you'll get what your brother got."

Try to win their respect with love and firm discipline. If it doesn't work, refuse to babysit. Who needs frayed nerves and a headache?

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR ABBY: This concerns people who never seem able to accept a compliment graciously. For years I was one of these people, and it took me a long time to understand why. It goes back to my childhood. My family (bless them) never gave me an honest-to-goodness compliment. If I looked especially nice, they would say, "You look nice—but can't you do something else with your hair?" This made it impossible for me to say, "Thank you." Instead, I was always trying to make apologies and put myself down. Compliments should be given freely and without little digs to spoil them.

"THANK YOU"

DEAR THANK: And thank YOU!

Daughter born to Twinings

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Twining of Port Orchard, Washington, announce the birth of a daughter, Hillary Anessa on Feb. 25. The girl was born at 4:55 p.m. in the Harris Memorial Hospital in Bremerton, Washington.

The infant weighed 8 pounds, 14½ ounces.

Maternal grandparents are Mrs. Catharine Williams of Big Spring and O. B. Williams of San Antonio. Maternal great-grandmother is Mrs. Susie McKenney of Itasca.

Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. J. Dean Twining of Muncie, Ind. The Twinings have one other son, Josh.

THE REACH OF AGENCIES INTO OUR LIVES — This sketch by AP artist Jim Hummel illustrates how the 24 major U.S. Federal regulatory agencies have a voice in what Americans eat, breathe, hear and drive.

A little lower

Iceberg and oil well

By WILFRED CALNAN
Director
HC Family Service Center

One morning when I sailed the north Atlantic during World War II, the crew was alerted and brought to battle stations upon the sighting of an iceberg. It was a majestic sight, but we gave it a wide berth. To have come close would have been disastrous, for most of the iceberg, perhaps nine-tenths, is below the surface. Human feelings are like that. So much is below the surface. The feelings below the surface get rammed and then we don't understand what happened.

That chill morning in the North Atlantic, I did not know that I would be using this figure as I talked with families in West Texas thirty years later. Sometimes it startles my clients and even mystifies them when I talk this way to describe human feelings. Then I suddenly convert the iceberg I have pictured on the chalkboard to the image of an oil derrick. Light begins to dawn then. You can do a similar thing for the farmer or rancher. It is the energy underneath that brings up the grain or cotton, or feed for cattle.

Human feelings, or emotions if you will, are like this. We all have feelings. Some of them show on top. Much is underneath. The trick is to contain what is beneath when appropriate and to release what is underneath when it's appropriate to do so. What happens so often is that we are not aware enough of our feelings or afraid to acknowledge them. Or somewhere in life we were kept from expressing them, perhaps forbidden to.

Actually, we all are endowed with devices to check our feelings so that we do not express them inappropriately. Something enables us to be decorous in a court room even though some happening in the proceedings may have comic aspects. Sometimes, though, because of fears, or because it has been forbidden us, we do not give vent to emotion that needs to be expressed. For example, a person may be fearful of expressing anger and store it up.

Eventually, the pressure gets to be too much and such disasters as an ulcer occur. The results can be even worse, as in depression. Sometimes parents find it difficult to find ways of expressing love for their children. They may be afraid to discipline them because maybe then the child won't believe he is loved. They may even go further and substitute things as gifts to their children rather than love. The family, despite all that has been said to the contrary, is still the most important of our institutions. It is important because of the importance of its functions. A predominant function is to enable its members to express themselves fully and appropriately. It needs to help all members know that they have feelings and that these feelings are a logical part of order and living. The oil well, the farm, and the ranch are better figures to describe the feelings than the iceberg because in looking at these figures we can perceive the movement and the power underneath that determine the courses of our lives. The family tends these treasures.

Washington's reach

'Horror stories'

By BROOKS JACKSON and EVANS WITT

WASHINGTON (AP) — They decide that factory stairways must be at least 22 inches wide, and they protect bank depositors from losing billions of dollars in savings. They won't allow cut-rate, $135-a-person airline service between New York and London, and they make commercial radio and television broadcasting feasible.

They bungle, and drive a toymaker to the edge of bankruptcy. They succeed, and save motorists' lives.

They have a voice in what Americans eat, breathe, wear and drive.

"They" are the unelected federal regulators, a growing band that now makes more rules directly affecting the people than do the elected members of Congress.

In the past decade, three presidents and Congress have vastly increased the regulators' reach and power. The number of major regulatory agencies has doubled to 24 since 1965, and they now employ 105,000 persons, up from 58,455. The cost to America's taxpayer has more than doubled.

Nobody in the federal government keeps track of all the forms that departments and agencies send out to people and businesses. An Associated Press survey turned up more than 9,800 forms the government sends out to the public. An estimated 556 million responses are sent back every year, with hundreds of millions of hours needed to gather the data and complete the forms.

This explosion in federal regulation has created a reaction.

President Ford accuses the regulators of "petty tyranny," joining other presidential candidates in seeming to attack the very government they seek to lead. Republican hopeful Ronald Reagan says business and government bureaucrats share a "warm cocoon" in regulation that protects both. Democrat Jimmy Carter pledges to consolidate many government agencies into simpler, more responsive ones. Even Ralph Nader, who inspired much of the new safety regulation, wants to get rid of regulators he says are wasteful.

The drive for change has taken on a name: "regulatory reform." Are the criticisms justified? Will Congress reverse its decade-long trend toward centralized regulation?

The answer to both questions is yes. And no. Big and Getting Bigger Regulation does cost money, and it also produces benefits.

Examples of delays, bangles, overzealous regulation and conflicting rules are easy enough to find. Yet much federal regulation is carried on without complaint or with strong support of the persons being regulated or with calls for more regulation.

It is true that, in sheer bulk, Washington's body of regulations is big and getting bigger. The Code of Federal Regulations, containing only the basic, standing rules set down by the bureaucracy, already packs a shelf 15 feet long with 60,000 book-size pages of fine print.

The number of pages has grown 20 per cent a year for the past several years.

These regulators — appointed officials and civil servants — now make more rules than the elected members of Congress.

A Library of Congress study found that during 1974, Congress passed 404 laws while the federal bureaucracy churned out 7,496 new or amended regulations. That's 18 regulations for every law.

Most of the regulations carry the force of law, meaning violators could be subject to fines or jail.

The budgets and number of employees of the regulators have soared in the last decade. In 1965, the 12 major agencies spent $860 million, employing 58,455 people.

President Ford's proposed budget for this coming fiscal year lists $3.8 billion for the 24 major agencies and 105,000 employees.

That means the cost of regulation has gone from $4.43 per American to about $10.36, adjusted for inflation.

The Spreading Impact

This growth came as Washington answered demands for cleaner air and water, for less job discrimination against blacks, browns, women and the elderly, for safer autos, workplaces and consumer products, and for more honest elections.

The result is a sea of alphabet soup. EPA. OSHA. NATSA.

That's the Environmental Protection Agency, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. Then there's the FEA, FEC and the EEOC. The list goes on and on.

Regulators still make up a tiny minority within the federal government. The current $3.8 billion for the 24 major agencies is less than one per cent of Ford's proposed budget. Yet their impact, once confined to a few industries — transportation, communications, agriculture, finance and drugs — now has spread to many unaccustomed areas.

Federal job safety inspectors can fine a New York girder maker $500 for locking his emergency fire doors. It happened recently to Anita Foundations Inc.

Auto safety officials press California, Utah and Illinois to force motorcyclists to wear approved crash helmets.

Pollution officials are moving to outlaw traditional marine toilets on even the smallest cruising boats, requiring either waste-treatment devices costing $400 and up or inexpensive but inconvenient tanks that hold waste on board.

Regulations' Cost

How much does all this regulation cost? There is simply no accurate way to measure regulation's total impact on the nation, although many are willing to try.

President Ford's aides in the Office of Management and Budget estimated regulation's cost at $130 billion a year in artificially inflated prices, additional costs to business and lost productivity. This estimate — totaling about $2,000 for each family — is based on a mishmash of economic assumptions, projections and guesses.

Top social worker will be selected

Local members of NASW (National Association of Social Workers) have been planning the celebration of National Social Work Month in March. Big Spring Mayor Wade Choate has proclaimed Thursday as Human Services Day.

On this day recognition will be given to the outstanding social worker of Howard County chosen by ballot of local social workers from the following five nominees: Wilfred "Cal" Calnin, Director of Family Services; Gerald DiGrappa, Social Service Department of VA Hospital; Pauling Ferguson, Social Service Department of Big Spring State Hospital; Julian Patterson, Chief Social Service, VA Hospital.

Also recognized will be an outstanding citizen of Big Spring, who has promoted, supported, and contributed to human services. This citizen, to be announced, was chosen by acclamation.

Awards will be given at the Howard County Social Workers Banquet at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Western Sizzler Sirloin Room. Those interested in attending the event may contact Jake Glickman or Bob Ferguson for tickets no later than Wednesday at the Big Spring State Hospital (7-8216).

NPA forum scheduled

A proposed revision of the Texas Nursing Practice Act will be discussed at a forum sponsored by the Texas Nurses Association in Abilene, March 18.

The NPA licenses individuals to practice professional nursing in Texas. The forum will be held from 7:00-10:00 in the Steakery Room at Hardin Simmons University Student Center. The registration fee will be $4.

The meeting is open to all registered nurses and others interested in nursing care.

Kenneth L. Rinker, TNA Executive Director, will conduct the forum. Included in the program will be the introduction of the initial draft of the proposed revision of the NPA written by a TNA task force, a slide tape presentation and a question and answer session.

The forum is one of 20 being conducted statewide by TNA and its district affiliates to provide information and to receive input and ideas on the proposed NPA revision.

TALKING BACK TO THE AUCTIONEER — One bull up for auction seems to be talking back to auctioneer Bert Reyes at the microphone during last year's Texas Tech University Center's Performance Tested Bull Sale at Pantex. This year's annual Field Day and Bull Sale will be conducted Thursday at the center, located 14 miles east of Amarillo on U.S. 60. More than 60 bulls will be auctioned, beginning at 1:30 p.m. The Field Day begins at 8 a.m.

Bulls from four pure breeds will be sold Thursday

LUBBOCK — More than 60 performance tested bulls representing seven breeds will cross the auction block Thursday at the 25th annual Field Day and Performance Tested Bull Sale at the Texas Tech University Center at Amarillo (Pantex).

Two Texas Tech agricultural sciences professors will speak to Field Day audiences the morning of the sale. Auctioneer Bert Reyes will get the sale underway at 1:30 p.m., with Duane Jenkins, president of the PanTex Performance Proven Bull Sale Association, presiding.

Bulls from the four pure breeds — Hereford, Angus, Charolais and Santa Gertrudis — and from three cross breeds — Simmental, Limousine and Chianina crosses — will be auctioned at the Texas Tech Center. The center is located 14 miles east of Amarillo on U.S. 60.

The bulls are rated on the 140-day test according to fat measurements, daily weight gain and weight per day of age. The bulls are indexed by divisions within breeds. Results of the 140-day test will be announced prior to the sale.

The bulls are consigned to the Texas Tech University Center at Amarillo by "cooperators" for the 140-day performance test. Not only are weight gains and fat content on the bulls measured, but a semen test is also conducted on each animal. Each animal to be auctioned is evaluated according to the tests and its breeding background.

The Field Day activities begin at 8 a.m., March 11, with a coffee and inspection of the bulls at the center at Pantex.

Dr. Anson R. Bertrand, dean of the Texas Tech college of agricultural sciences, will welcome the Field Day and Bull Sale audience at 10:30 a.m.

Dr. William Mies, director of the Texas Tech Center, at 10:40 a.m. will discuss "Crop Residues for Wintering Cows."

Dr. Robert Long, animal science professor
