Snyder detour

Q. I heard there is a detour on the road to Snyder. What is the best route to get to the football game tonight?

A. Mike Chetty, resident engineer of the Texas Highway Department, said to take the Coahoma exit off I-20, taking FM 820, until it goes back to Hwy. 350 to Snyder. The detour is due to construction on a bridge six miles out of town, he said. It will be several weeks before it is expected to be completed.

Finger-pointing

Teresa Lee finds herself the subject of all the finger-pointing Friday morning. The action took place as the other members of her group seek to find the missing Simon during the skit of "Seven Silly Simons" at Bauer Magnet School. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy R. Lee, Big Spring and a member of Ann Budke's fourth grade class.

Staff and wire reports

Both Big Spring and Coahoma school districts are among Texas districts using a high school health textbook which the State Board of Education has recommended be deleted from the state-approved list because it doesn't include sex education.

In a 7-3 Thursday vote, the state board tentatively backed a critic's call to bar Texas schools from using "Modern Health." A final board vote is set for Saturday.

Coahoma High School principal Ronnie Bourland said the district has used the book for seven years and had no parental complaints.

However, health instructor Kim Nichols has said the book is quite out-of-date and doesn't deal with some subjects high school students should be aware of, including venereal disease, he said.

Nichols and a home economics instructor have had to use outside resources to deal with the subjects, he said.

"It's a touchy situation because it's very private," he said, adding that teachers are quite careful in the way the subject is taught, so no students will be offended or embarrassed.

Big Spring Superintendent Lynn Hise said this morning that the local district has not received any complaints of which he is aware concerning the text.

"I don't believe there has been any objection to the book currently in use."

He pointed out that the issue is being raised in connection with the rebidding of the text which has been in use for seven years. Such rebidding is required each seven-year period.

Hise indicated that teachers in the Big Spring system have expressed satisfaction with the text.

Forsan schools don't use the book in question, but another volume, "Health and Safety and You," published by Webster, Superintendent J.L. Poyner said.

He said he's never had anyone question the district's policy on sex education, and the subject "don't mean beans" to 99.9 percent of the people."

He added that school districts are under pressure from fundamentalist extremists who believe no sex education should be taught, and others who believe it's "a must," because of the AIDS epidemic.

An official with Holt, Rinehart and Winston, publisher of the book, said the volume does not talk about sex education because many districts prefer it that way.

"There are areas that feel very uncomfortable with blatant sex education," said Dan Franck of New York, a senior editor with the publisher.

But board member Rebecca Canning of Waco said districts should not be allowed to use a health education book that does not include sex education information.

"It is necessary to talk about human reproduction," she said.

Textbook critic Elizabeth Judge of Houston told the board that "Modern Health" leaves students without crucial information about reproduction and sexually transmitted diseases.

Program to prevent polluters successful

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Big Spring has not had persistent hazardous waste polluters, after implementation of a program last year to prevent such waste from being dumped into the wastewater treatment system, Public Works Director Tom Decell announced today.

Last year, illegal dumping of hazardous materials devastated the system, prompting Environmental Protection Agency attention.

Decell said the city never discovered who polluted the system, but it established the program in an effort to deter future dumping.

The program requires examination, "on a regular but no-notice basis," of wastewater entering the treatment system from various city locations, primarily near industries, he said.

The water is checked for acidic and dissolved oxygen levels and appearance. If the appearance is suspect, the water may be sent for analysis at a Midland laboratory. It is tested mainly for petroleum products, heavy metals and other hazardous materials, he said.

It's nearly impossible to delete heavy metals from the system, once they are introduced — the contaminated sludge must be quarantined for a number of years, a very expensive process, he said.

The EPA and the Clean Water Act established maximum contaminant levels. Waste with hazardous materials above the level is classified as hazardous waste, and must be stored in a designated area, he said. There are several such areas in Texas.

"You're talking about a megabuck operation," he said. "The prevention is a lot easier than the cure."

If hazardous materials enter the wastewater treatment plant, it could destroy the "digestive" process by which the water is cleaned, Decell said.

Algae is grown on rocks in the trickling filter at the plant, "the key to the purifying process," he said. The algae eats organic waste material present in the water. A similar process is used for solid wastes, he said.

If something upsets the balance, however, the algae could be destroyed.

That's what happened last year, when someone dumped large quantities of inorganic acids into the system, he said.

City officials were summoned to EPA headquarters in Dallas regarding the matter.

Jury to consider fraud case

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

When Reeves County grand jurors convene Saturday morning in Pecos, they will hear evidence concerning election fraud on the local precinct elections only, said Jack McGowen, district attorney in Reeves County.

"There are no allegations against Larry Don Shaw or John Anderson's campaign workers. This involves internal county politics," McGowen said.

The two 69th District candidates, who fought a long and hotly contested race that Shaw narrowly won, are involved only by the fact the race was on the voting ballot, McGowen said.

"We're trying to clear up some monkey business on certain local precinct races," McGowen said.

The prosecutor's office has scheduled 10 persons as of this morning who will express their complaints, McGowen said. The convening is expected to stretch beyond Saturday, he said.

McGowen requested FBI assistance in the probe conducted by his investigator Jack Brewer.

FBI Special Agent Gary Webb confirmed on Wednesday that the agency had agreed to comply with McGowen's request, but he also declined to elaborate.

Veterans ceremony slated

The Veterans Day celebration in Big Spring Tuesday will begin with a ceremony at 11 a.m. in front of the Veterans Administration Medical Center.

Congressman Charles Stenholm will speak. The Honor Guard of Goodfellow Air Force Base, San Angelo, will play taps, and there will be a 21-gun salute.

The American Legion Auxiliary will serve refreshments at 10:30 a.m.

Nationally, Veterans Day will be observed at Arlington National Cemetery. The celebration will begin with a musical program by the U.S. Navy Band.

President Reagan will lay a wreath on the grave of the Unknown Soldier, followed by a program of speeches and patriotic music and displays, according to a Veterans Administration news release.

The Blinded Veterans Association is the host of this year's activities at Arlington.

Observance of Veterans Day dates back to 1921, when an unknown American soldier, killed during World War I, was buried at Arlington National Cemetery.

Similar ceremonies occurred in England and France, where unknown soldiers also were buried.

The activities took place Nov. 11, giving universal recognition to the celebrated ending of World War I hostilities at 11 a.m., Nov. 11, 1918 — the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month, known as Armistice Day.

Armistice Day was named in 1926 through a Congressional resolution, and became a national holiday 12 years later.

The nationalistic hope was that the war would be "the war to end all wars," but shortly after the holiday, World War II broke out in Europe and shattered the dream.

Liasion office expects worst

By ANDREW MANGAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the political pendulum swinging from Democrat to Republican in the Texas governor's race in this week's national election, staffers at the Texas liaison office here are bracing for some changes.

Some of those appointed or hired during the administration of Gov. Mark White said Thursday they expect the newly elected governor, William Clements, to bring in his own team to run the Texas Office of State-Federal Relations.

The office serves as the eyes, ears and mouthpiece for the Texas governor in Washington, but it is also charged with working for the state legislature and private interests.

Under White's Democratic administration, the staff of five coordinators, four support workers and two executives focused primarily on education and banking issues, said associate director Claiborn Crain.

Many of those staffers face the loss of their jobs with the victory in Tuesday's elections of Clements, a Republican.

"It's uncertain what's going to happen," Crain said. "I think everybody's watching this to see what other kinds of jobs are out there and what opportunities will still be available here."

During Clements' previous administration, the state office staff concerned itself largely with pursuing and developing oil and gas legislation for presentation in the two houses of Congress.

"When Clements first came into office in 1978 he didn't look very closely at this office," Crain said. "Later he realized the value of the office that looks after state interests here."

Many of the Clements' staffers who were "more overt politically," were asked to leave when the White administration took over the governorship in 1982, Crain said.

John Hanson, current director, said he expects Clements will use the office to serve as a pipeline into the White House to take advantage of his close relationship with Ronald Reagan.

"But keep in mind, this is an office for the legislature, as well as for the governor's office," Hanson said.

Pushing for Hispanic, female history

By DANA PALMER
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — At the urging of one Hispanic board member, the State Board of Education on Thursday asked publishers to propose ways they can add more Hispanics and women to Texas history books.

That action came at the urging of board member and Corpus Christi attorney Mary Helen Berlanga, who complained that too little attention is paid to the contributions of Hispanics who fought for Texas independence, as well as the women who have made Texas a great state.

Publisher representatives already have said they can make the necessary changes in time for use next year, Berlanga said.

However, the board decided to wait until Saturday to look at publishers' proposals for answering Berlanga's concerns before giving final approval to the three Texas history books recommended by the board's textbook committee.

In response to a request from Jean Newberry of Corpus Christi, the board also asked that two publishers revise the drug chapters in their high school health books to include the latest information available from state and national "War on Drugs" programs.

In addition, the board pushed through tentative requirements that the new health texts contain thorough sex education information, as well as the latest data on AIDS or acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

The board is meeting this week to hear public testimony and consider the proposed purchase of $114 million in new textbooks, ranging in subjects from elementary handwriting to high school driver's education.

Final board votes on textbook changes for the 1987-88 public school year will be taken Saturday.

Concerning the junior high Texas history texts, Berlanga said prior to the board meeting that for too long Hispanics read Texas history and felt like outcasts.

"All we could identify with was Santa Anna," she said. "I always thought I was one of the bad guys."

However, she noted that the Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio has published a list of 167 Hispanics who contributed significantly to Texas history.

That list includes 25 names of Mexicans who fought with others to defend the Alamo, Berlanga said, adding that she expects the publishers to use many of those names in their revisions.

was first raised in October when Brewer told news correspondents that the district attorney's office began receiving complaints from mail ballot applicants.

Those persons said they were harassed when they received their ballots, Brewer reported. Some ballots were hand-delivered.

Many of those voters were reported to be elderly Hispanics who said they were signing ballots without knowing for whom they had voted, Brewer said.

Neither Shaw nor Anderson could be reached this morning for comment.

According to vote tabulations from the Reeves County clerk's office, Shaw carried the county by finishing with 3,012 votes compared to 1,329 for Anderson.

The incumbent will serve a third term beginning Jan. 1. He unofficially finished with 12,849 votes compared to Anderson's 12,125 from the 13-county district.

Election results must be approved by county commissioners before they are official.

Immediately after results were announced early Wednesday morning, Shaw said that the race was the most personal he had been involved with. It was unknown how much attacks from the Anderson camp on Shaw's personal life and his family swayed voters, the winner said.

The Republican challenger earlier reported a vote recount was contingent on information he expected to receive concerning voting irregularities in Reeves, Culberson, Hudspeth and Jeff Davis counties.

A petition for a vote recount in the entire district would have to be made through the Secretary of the State's office, said Mark Jordan, assistant general counsel in the elections division of the Secretary of the State's office.

The petition would have to be made by 5 p.m. of the second day after the state canvasses the votes.

State canvassing has tentatively been set from Thanksgiving to Dec. 4, Jordan said.

Sheriff's log

County break-ins under investigation

Howard County sheriff's deputies are investigating two break-ins that occurred between 5 p.m. Wednesday and 9 a.m. Thursday in businesses located north of Big Spring on Highway 87.

Norma Morrow of the State Hospital Credit Union reported that someone broke into the office, ransacked it and stole $150 in cash. The ransacking resulted in $1,000 worth of damage.

Grady Walker of LP Gas Co. reported that someone broke into his business and ransacked the building. Nothing was reported missing and no value had been determined regarding the damage.

• Deputies released Lloyd Francis Lee, 34, of Scranton, Pa., Friday morning to Lackawanna County, Pa. law officials for transfer back to that county where he has been charged with possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver.

He was arrested Oct. 28 by deputies on a fugitive warrant from that county after he was released from confinement at the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp.

• Deputies arrested Sandra Kay Matthews, 21, 2003 N. Monticello St., Thursday night on an issuing a bad check warrant.

She was released after paying a $38 fine.

• Police transferred Ken Cobb, 20, Route Three Box 347, to county jail Thursday morning after he was arrested for suspicion of driving while intoxicated and possession of a controlled substance.

He was released on bonds totalling $2,000.

• Police transferred Clarence Hubert Whitsitt, 28, 1503 E. Third St. No. 13, to county jail Thursday morning after he was arrested for suspicion of DWI, driving while license suspended and failure to maintain financial responsibility.

He was released on bonds totalling $4,000.

But Mrs. Canning said the volume is no longer adequate for a state with major problems with sexually transmitted diseases and school-age pregnancies.

Susan Nation, an Austin teacher and member of the textbook committee that made recommendations to the board, said "Modern Health" was placed on the list because some districts do not want to teach sex education.

"We had feedback from some committee members that a textbook with sex education would not be used," she said.

Vidal Trevino, textbook committee chairman and Laredo ISD superintendent, said "Modern Health" should be left on the list.

"I do not believe it is the responsibility of the state to dictate to 1,100 districts to what extent they will teach sex education," he said.

Weather

Forecast

By The Associated Press

The Panhandle will see isolated showers and thunderstorms this evening. Weather will be fair and windy through Saturday. Lows tonight will be near 40 in the north to the mid 40s in the far west, Big Bend and southeast. Highs Saturday will be near 60 in the north to the mid 70s in the south.

Nation

Snow fell from the Rockies to the Nebraska Panhandle today, leaving a blanket up to 9 inches thick and prompting storm warnings and travelers' advisories across the area.

The low-pressure system over Colorado causing the storm combined with high pressure off the Oregon coast to generate strong winds across California, as another storm system brought rain and snow to the Pacific Northwest.

Polluter program

The EPA administrator "looked me in the eye and said, 'prove one of two things: prove its not your people dumping or prove who is dumping,'" Decell recalled. He was able to prove the former, but the actual culprit was never identified.

"If you catch a midnight dumper, it's sheer luck. There are so many areas he can dump on you," he said.

In addition to the testing process to help deter such dumping, state law requires the names of persistent polluters be published on a quarterly basis.

Since the process was introduced last year, a few areas of town have had rather high pH levels, Decell said. However he was able to work with those involved to rectify the matter.

Veterans Day

Americans served during World War II and more than 400,000 died. To pay tribute to them and to Americans who have served in all wars, Armistice Day was changed to Veterans Day by President Eisenhower in 1954.

Two more unidentified American soldiers, one from World War II and another from the Korean Conflict, were added to Arlington cemetery in 1958 and buried beside the World War I soldier.

On Memorial Day 1984,

another from the Vietnam War was buried there.

From 1971-75, Veterans Day was observed on the fourth Monday in October in compliance with a 1968 law that changed most national holidays to Mondays.

Congress, however, passed a law in 1975 which returned Veterans Day to Nov. 11, believing that the date held great significance for this country.

The law became effective in 1978, the 60th anniversary of the World War I armistice.

Guilty plea is entered

A 37-year-old Big Spring man pleaded guilty in county court Thursday afternoon to driving while license suspended and theft of service.

In addition to fines totalling $300,

County Judge Milton Kirby ordered Lonnie Ray Clanton, 208 Carey, to pay court costs amounting to $192. He was credited for jail time previously served.

Drug program ordered

SANTA ANA, Calif. — A teen-ager who went to police with a stash of drugs she said belonged to her parents says she would do so again, but is happy a judge ordered them into a drug program rather than jail.

"I'm glad they didn't get a hard sentence — jail time," Deanna Young, 14, said Thursday after her parents, Bobby Dale Young and Judith Young, were ordered to take part in a drug diversion program.

Later, she said, "I'm glad I did it and I'd do it again."

Orange County Municipal Judge C. Robert Jameson told the Youngs that if they successfully complete the program, he will consider dropping drug possession charges at a May 8 hearing.

Deanna, then 13, walked into a police station Aug. 13 with a bag that authorities said contained cocaine, marijuana, pills and drug paraphernalia. She decided to go to police after hearing a church lecture on the evils of drug abuse.

New AIDS virus found

LOS ANGELES — A new AIDS virus discovered in west Africa last year may be as deadly as the original virus and could pose an international health threat, a prominent French researcher says.

Initially, the new virus was thought to cause only rare cases of AIDS, but Dr. Luc Montagnier of the Pasteur Institute in Paris said it is a major cause of AIDS in West Africa and has spread to several countries in Western Europe.

"We are just at the beginning of the spread of a new virus," said Montagnier. "It is unavoidable at some time that LAV-II will reach the United States."

AIDS studies released

CHICAGO — The AIDS virus, previously thought to leave the body open to disease only after attacking the immune system, may in fact directly cause some diseases in the brain and lung, according to new studies published today.

The three studies, published in the Journal of the American Medical Association, provide new clues about how AIDS spreads and could force scientists to rethink their approach to treating the deadly disease, the researchers said.

Waldheim info released

WASHINGTON — The German army unit with which Kurt Waldheim served during World War II was directly involved in the deportation of 68,000 Yugoslav civilians to concentration camps, The Washington Post reported today.

The newspaper, citing captured Nazi documents, said the quartermaster of the Wehrmacht's Combat Group West Bosnia was assigned the duty of setting up collection points and transporting the prisoners to camps.

The family of space teacher Christa McAuliffe placed a gravestone at her burial site this week near her home in Concord, N.H. The wreath, with red, white, and blue flowers was sent by President and Mrs. Reagan. This photo was taken Wednesday, the day the memorial was erected.

McAuliffe's tombstone erected

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — "S. Christa McAuliffe. Wife. Mother. Teacher. Pioneer Woman. Crew member. Space Shuttle Challenger. America's first ordinary citizen to venture toward space."

So begins the inscription on the black stone that now marks the grave of the Concord High School teacher who died in the Challenger explosion.

McAuliffe, 37, who won a nationwide competition in 1985 to become the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's teacher in space, was buried May 1, three months after the blast.

Until Wednesday, no tombstone marked the grave.

The marker, seven feet long and three feet high, was made in Vermont from African marble.

President and Mrs. Reagan sent a large wreath of green foliage with red, white and blue flowers. The wreath was placed on a stand next to the headstone, which also features the symbol of NASA's Teacher in Space program, a torch with the shuttle ascending toward the stars.

The inscription, written by McAuliffe's husband, Steven, continues:

"She helped people. She laughed. She loved and is loved. She appreciated the world's natural beauty. She was curious and sought to learn who we are and what the universe is about. She relied on her own judgment and moral courage to do right."

"She cared about the suffering of her fellow man. She tried to protect our spaceship Earth. She taught her children to do the same."

There are two other tributes to McAuliffe in Concord. A small stone outside Concord High reads, "I touch the future... I teach." In White Park, near the McAuliffe home, seven trees were planted to commemorate the seven crew members.

The city also will receive a Concord city flag that McAuliffe took with her on the shuttle flight. The flag was recovered by NASA from shuttle debris.

Crash victims missing

SUMBURGH, Shetland Islands — A diving support ship searched today for wreckage and the cockpit voice recorder from a helicopter that crashed in 300-foot-deep waters of the North Sea, killing 19 people and leaving 26 missing.

The twin-rotor Chinook 234 was carrying three crew and 44 oil industry workers from the Brent offshore oil field to Sumburgh Airport when it crashed Thursday two miles south of Sumburgh, in the southern end of the Shetland Islands.

Two survivors were pulled from the frigid water and 19 bodies were recovered. Police believe all aboard the aircraft were British, but the names were withheld pending notification of relatives.

Japan affected by GM

TOKYO — General Motors' closure of 11 plants will bring increased pressure on Japan to limit auto exports, an official of the Japan Automobile Manufacturers Association said today.

America's largest automaker announced Thursday that it would close the plants over the next three years to cut costs. About 29,000 workers will lose their jobs.

"Because of these job losses, we expect another (U.S.) protectionist move to be accelerated," said Takayuki Imajo, a JAMA spokesman. "Japan will be under increased pressure to keep exports down."

Aquino still confident

MANILA, Philippines — President Corazon Aquino said today the Philippine military was on maximum alert, but also said she was confident there would be no coup attempt when she leaves on a state visit to Japan in three days.

"Everytime I plan a trip abroad there is so much talk about a coup. If I believed there would be a coup, I wouldn't leave," she said, adding that she planned to depart for Japan on schedule Monday.

Mrs. Aquino, in a press conference, played down the significance of military alerts, saying they were relatively commonplace. Similar alerts were also in effect before her two previous trips abroad, including a September visit to the United States.

New proposal planned

VIENNA, Austria — The Soviet Union plans to present U.S. negotiators in Geneva a new package of proposals today on nuclear weapons reduction and space defenses, but senior U.S. officials said they do not expect a breakthrough.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz arranged to meet with government leaders in France today, a day after concluding talks in Vienna with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze. Officials on both sides said the talks failed to settle differences stemming from the meeting between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Iceland last month.

Chinese policy positive change

Chinese leaders are demonstrating again that they are serious in their desire to have their country increase its participation in the world's economic mainstream.

The world's most populous nation is discarding some investment policies that were threatening to keep it in the Marxist backwater where it had been since 1949.

Foreign investors who bring in high technology or produce goods for export are now being offered tax incentives. Their access to bank loans and other services is being improved. For the first time, they are being given the right to hire and fire their Chinese workers.

These changes could be an inducement for outside companies that were prohibited from doing business in China until 1979. In recent years, efforts to increase the participation of such businesses in the Chinese economy have faltered because of the stringent rules.

The changes are causing some foreign investors to ask just how far China plans to go in the direction of free enterprise. For example: The 1979 rules permitted joint ventures of Chinese and foreign firms. Such companies can determine their own production and operating plans and set their own wage levels.

This must be heady stuff for the Chinese, who only a few years ago were caught in the draconian controls of the "great leap forward."

A vice minister of the State Economic Commission said the aim of the new rules is to improve the investment climate to the point where China can compete with South Korea, Singapore, Taiwan and other Asian countries.

If China, with its resources and its population of a billion people, succeeds in improving its economy to the point where it could compete with the fast-growing free-enterprise countries of the Pacific Rim, it could be on the way to becoming one of the world's most influential trading nations.

That's a possibility that few other nations — not Japan, not the United States and particularly not the Soviet Union — can afford to ignore.

New tuna treaty serves all sides

The American tuna fleet and the nation's security interests both should be well-served by the new treaty agreed upon by the United States and 16 South Pacific island nations. If ratified, the treaty should end seizures of U.S. tuna boats and reduce Soviet influence in the region.

The treaty will assure the U.S. tuna fleet access to nearly 10 million square miles of the South Pacific. In exchange, American tuna fishermen will pay $1.75 million in licensing fees and provide $250,000 in technical assistance to help the island nations develop their own fishing industries.

In addition, the United States will contribute $10 million a year in economic assistance to the 16 members of the South Pacific Forum Fisheries Agency.

Tuna fishermen and the South Pacific nations have been at odds for years over whether the islands' 200-mile economic zones should apply to migratory fish such as tuna. The United States recognizes only a 12-mile limit for migratory fish.

Disputes over fishing rights have resulted in the seizure of U.S. tuna boats, most recently in 1984. That's when the Solomon Islands seized the Jeanette Diana and held it until February 1985, when the boat's owners were permitted to buy it back.

During the period of dispute between American tuna fishermen and the island nations, the Soviet Union signed a $1.7 million agreement with the island nation of Kirabati, granting a Soviet fishing fleet access to Kirabati waters.

This Soviet encroachment into the South Pacific aroused concern among other island nations and U.S. military officials, who worried that the Soviets were less interested in tuna than in gaining an economic foothold in the region. Fortunately, other South Pacific nations refused to enter into similar agreements with the Soviets.

Ratification of the tuna treaty should help U.S. tuna fishermen and the island nations' fishing industries and improve relations with our South Pacific allies as well.

The treaty should receive quick Senate consideration when the 100th Congress convenes in January.

French continue to appease terrorists by non-cooperation

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — France's appeasement of terrorists has taken another ugly turn. The French refuse to let Turkish counterterrorist investigators see secret French photographs of the man who has directed the slaughter of Turkish diplomats and their families.

For more than three years, Turkish intelligence officials have been pleading with the French to give them just one picture of the No. 1 Armenian terrorist, who uses the nom de guerre "Hagop Hagopian."

Since 1975, Armenian terrorists have assassinated 70 Turkish diplomats, members of their families and others who got in the line of fire; more than 300 were wounded in these attacks. Of all the world's terror groups, the Armenians are "probably the most impressive in terms of effectiveness," according to a former chief of the CIA's counterterrorism unit.

The deadliest of the Armenian organizations is ASALA, the Armenian Secret Army for the Liberation of Armenia. Its goal is to force the Turkish government to acknowledge what they claim was the 1915 genocide of 1.5 million Armenians by the Ottoman Turks, and to establish an independent Armenian state in eastern Turkey.

Another terrorism expert calls ASALA "the most dangerous terrorist organization in the world" because of its kill ratio. Someone has died in 87 percent of ASALA's attacks, compared to a 14 percent fatality rate for all other terrorist groups.

ASALA was founded in Beirut in 1975 by the shadowy Hagopian, a Syrian-Armenian with Marxist inclinations. His shooting and bombing targets were Turkish diplomats in Western Europe, Canada and the United States. But his policy of indiscriminate butchery, in which innocent bystanders were also victims, led at least one group to break away from ASALA.

Following the Israeli invasion of Lebanon in 1982, Hagopian fled and set up new bases in Damascus and Athens. He also broke with the Palestine Liberation Organization, which had given ASALA training and support. Hagopian linked up with Abu Nidal, the anti-PLO leader responsible for much of the anti-American terrorism in the past year or so.

Hagopian has never given a face-to-face interview, and descriptions of him vary. A photo of him would of enormous value to the Turks, who have been trying to track him down.

The French secret services have obtained photographs of Hagopian. Intelligence sources tell us that a top PLO leader, Salah Khalaf, slipped the French some pictures of Hagopian and other Armenian terrorists in December 1982, following the ASALA-PLO break.

Using these pictures, the French were able to identify Hagopian when he visited Paris in April 1983. They didn't arrest him, but followed him to all his secret meetings and compiled an extensive file on ASALA.

As we reported, the French cut a deal with ASALA in January 1982, releasing an Armenian leader in return for an end to a series of deadly bombings. The truce was broken in July 1983, by the premature detonation at Orly Airports of a bomb terrorists say was intended to go off aboard a Turkish airliner.

Using the information from their surveillance of Hagopian, the French quickly rounded up 51 people linked to ASALA. One of them, Varadjian Garbidjian, was sentenced to life for murder; he is one of three terrorists whose release has been demanded by those responsible for the recent wave of bombings in Paris.

One astonishing theory for the French refusal to give Hagopian's picture to the Turks is that Garbidjian, the Armenian terrorist now in a French prison, may be the elusive Hagopian. A photo of Hagopian would enable the Turks to prove this by comparing it to pictures taken of Garbidjian at his public trial.

The Hagopian/Garbidjian theory would explain the wave of Paris bombings. ASALA (with a little help from Abu Nidal) wants its founder released; with the previous deal as precedent, the Armenian terrorists figure they can win Hagopian/Garbidjian's freedom with a series of bombings.

They could be right. The French may selfishly decide to free Hagopian/Garbidjian and save France from Armenian terrorism — at incalculable cost to Turkey.

STOP SKULKING: Treasury officials have been complaining for years about the poor quality of economic intelligence the CIA produces, and say that's why, for example, the United States was blindsided by the sudden emergence of the Latin American debt crisis.

One former high Treasury official attributed the CIA's economic weaknesses to the spooks' predilection for cloak-and-dagger intrigue as opposed to more humdrum research.

I said (to CIA Director William Casey), 'I bet you can tell me how many jeeps there are in the Mexican army.' I went there and argued with Casey about the economic stuff,' he recalled. He said he implored Casey to upgrade economic intelligence.

Execution quotas not the answer

By STEPHEN CHAPMAN

On May 13, 1978, in the course of an armed robbery of an Atlanta furniture store, Warren McCleskey killed a police officer with two gunshots, one of them fired at close range into the victim's head. Five months later, he was convicted of murder and sentenced to die.

But the Supreme Court may spare him. In a potentially historic case, his lawyers argue that McCleskey is the victim of racial discrimination that invalidates his sentence. If the court rules in his favor, the death penalty may disappear.

That is a desirable result, but this is the wrong vehicle. The decision on whether to abolish the death penalty, which is explicitly sanctioned by the U.S. Constitution, belongs with legislatures, not the Supreme Court. And if the court thinks capital punishment is fundamentally at odds with the constitutional ban on "cruel and unusual punishment," it couldn't find a worse occasion to invoke that standard.

The most striking fact about this supposed episode of discrimination is that McCleskey, who is black, doesn't claim he was selected to die because of his race. The argument is that he was selected to die because of the race of his victim, who was white. His lawyers claim that due to the persistence of racism in Georgia, killers of whites are 11 times more likely to get the death penalty than killers of blacks.

That is the sort of statistic that gets attention. It is also badly misleading. According to the study cited by McCleskey's lawyers, most of the racial disparity is readily explainable by "legitimate reasons."

Blacks are more likely to be killed in family disputes and barroom brawls, while whites are more prone to die in robberies. The latter cases, for reasons having nothing to do with race, tend to be treated more severely.

The study found that for crimes roughly comparable to McCleskey's, the likelihood of a death sentence is just 20 percent greater when the victim is white than when the victim is black.

Even this figure, however, is derived after excluding the most serious and the least serious crimes — those in which death sentences are most likely and least likely. The statistic refers only to those cases in between.

Worse, the study did not — could not — measure a host of intangible elements that might explain the disparity, from the credibility of witnesses to the quality of police work. It reveals more about the limitations of statistics than about the demands of the Constitution.

No one doubts that some residue of racism may subtly tilt the weight of Georgia's laws, though the evidence in this case is less than compelling. But there are a variety of procedural safeguards that keep such illegitimate factors to a minimum.

If these statistics are adequate to strike down Georgia's death penalty, then no criminal law is safe. Blacks are greatly over-represented in the nation's prisons. This is not because the laws are drawn with an eye to penalizing blacks, but because blacks as a group are more prone to crime than whites.

Does this mean that some black criminals are entitled to go free to compensate for this "disparate impact"? Are the nation's courts supposed to abide by racial quotas in meting out criminal punishment — quotas reflecting not merely the race of the criminals but that of their victims?

Of course the argument that killers of whites get rougher treatment than killers of blacks offers a simple remedy: Execute more of the latter.

Of course McCleskey would prefer the remedy of sparing his life. But the Supreme Court can't go along with his preference without erecting unreasonable obstacles to those states that wish to maintain the death penalty.

Nothing in the Constitution mandates that result.

Ice cream is becoming a big favorite in Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Ice cream has come a long way in Japan from the days when only children liked it and the flavors were just vanilla, chocolate and strawberry, sometimes topped with corn flakes.

A hundred years after ice cream was first introduced, gourmet varieties from abroad now have young adults flocking to ice cream shops and domestic makers are coming into the market.

Selling what they call "super premium" ice cream, Haagen-Dazs, Hobson's and even cookie king Famous Amos have opened shops that now are taking their place alongside fast-food hamburger and fried chicken outlets.

Haagen-Dazs Japan, a joint venture of the U.S. Pillsbury Co., the Suntory Ltd. brewery and a Japanese dairy firm, introduced its first ice cream "shoppe" — pronounced "show-pay" in Japanese — among trendy boutiques in November 1984.

"When we started here ... our aim was to make a new market," Kiyoshi Inoue, a Suntory spokesman, said in an interview.

Until then, most ice cream shops offered the standard vanilla, chocolate and strawberry, and pre-packaged ice cream came in red bean "chip" and cheese-covered flavors.

Inoue said Suntory chose Haagen-Dazs over a local brand because "the (U.S.) dining-out industry sells well in Japan. There's no resistance to American things."

In two years the firm has set up 14 shops, a rate of expansion that Inoue says Haagen-Dazs expects to sustain.

While Haagen-Dazs was dishing out about 4,000 orders a day in each shop, other firms opened up with variations on the super premium theme, suddenly giving Japanese a choice of ordering their ice cream straight, topped, or with candies, cookies and fruits hand-mashed or machine-blended in.

"It's the era of individual tastes," said Kenichiro Kataoka, president of the Asahi Gourmet Co., which inaugurated the first overseas branch of the Boston-based Steve's Ice Cream in August in Tokyo.

Steve's, the originator of the "mix-ins" in which small candies, bananas or just about anything sweet is blended into the ice cream, hopes to have 10 stores operating in a year.

Hobson's, which also serves mix-in varieties, opened in October, 1985, and has similar ambitions.

Those most likely to be seen at any hour at ice cream shops are women from their late teens to late 20's, a group that Kataoka said differs from the clientele of the past.

"Ice cream was introduced to Japan about 110 years ago, but it was seen as something for children so it had to be cheap. And because it was cheap it wasn't so good."

Perceptions of ice cream changed, he said, when America's Lady Borden hit the market 15 years ago with Japan's first "premium" ice cream.

Borden, negotiating a cheese arrangement with the Meiji Milk Products Co., proposed taking a chance on selling Lady Borden, a representative U.S. ice cream, said Meiji spokesman Toru Takao.

"Most ice cream at the time was selling for 20-30 yen (13-19 cents) a portion," Takao recalled.

"We had doubts how far we could get with an 800-yen ($5.19) product."

Takao said Japan's premium ice cream is more expensive than it is in the United States because the ingredients cost more in Japan and the scale of production is smaller.

Sales the first year were bleak, Takao said, but rose rapidly the winter of the second year when Meiji presented its product as an alternative to the ice cream cakes Japanese buy at Christmas.

Since Lady Borden arrived, ice cream has come to account for 12 to 13 percent of Meiji's sales, compared to 7 to 8 percent before, Takao said. Meiji's ice cream division now claims to have the biggest share — 18 percent — of Japan's ice cream market.

Not to be outdone by the new "super" brands, Meiji came up with its own "Penny Patch" chain last spring and has since established 10 stores. In three years, it hopes to have 100 shops around the country, Takao said.

According to Health and Welfare

Ice cream used to be child's play in Japan, but over the past year the Japanese have started taking their frozen desserts very seriously. Young Japanese girls, above, line-up in front of an ice cream shop that just opened in August.

Ministry nutrition reports, Japanese are eating less sugar than they did 10 years ago. Those in the ice cream business say the gourmet ice cream boom does not signal a growing Japanese penchant for sweets, but a growing sense of "good taste."

Suntory's Inoue said Haagen-Dazs sells because of its "natural ingredients." Kataoka called Asahi's tie-in with Steve's a part of its strategy to bring to Japan "healthy, delicious products from around the world."

Hairdresser's gift display upsets customer

DEAR ABBY: Recently my hairdresser had a birthday. She received many cards with checks, which she displayed so her customers could not miss seeing them. (I had given her a nice card without a check.) I took her display as a hint for clients who may have forgotten, or didn't know it was her birthday. Since then I've noticed a definite coolness toward me.

It started me to thinking: Why should hairdressers always be on the receiving end of the goodies? What do their clients get besides a raise in prices and a lot of waiting while they work in extra customers on the regulars' time?

A really smart hairdresser would keep track of her customers' birthdays and give each one a complimentary shampoo and set, then when her birthday came around, all her clients would reciprocate with a nice check or gift that would more than equal the price of a shampoo and set.

If you use this, sign me...

SATURDAY STANDING APPOINTMENT
DEAR STANDING: At the risk of sounding like a broken record: Gifts are never mandatory. Also, many hairdressers give as much as they get, so don't tar them all with the same brush — no pun intended.

DEAR ABBY: I read with great interest your letter regarding the policy of banks in Washington state concerning "dormant" accounts. They're lucky. Here in Texas, an inactive account is considered "dormant" after three years. Then the bank makes no effort to notify the customer either by phone or mail.

My two children's savings accounts were declared dormant by a local bank, and the first notice I had of it was when I received the quarterly bank statements showing a zero balance. When I asked the people at the bank if an error had been made, they said "No," and explained that the money had been sent to the state — that they did not have time to try to contact people and that they just published a list of names in the local newspaper in hopes that we would see our name there. They gave me a form to fill out and send to the state to reclaim the money. It was a typical government form — long and very tedious.

I told them that I felt that it was their responsibility to do this since they had not made any effort to contact me. The least they could have done was to have a message printed at the bottom of my children's statements the previous quarter telling me what was going to happen if some activity was not generated in the accounts. Apparently the state does not want people contacted. A banker friend of mine says that this practice puts millions of dollars into the state treasury. Get my drift?

J.W. (TRICKED IN TEXAS)

DEAR J.W.: Yup.
DEAR ABBY: You asked readers to send in their "family codes" to let families know of their whereabouts during World War II.

You may want to go to your public library and check out a copy of "The Codebreakers" by David Kahn (Macmillan, 1967). Chapter 16 deals with several examples of just these types of codes.

First, you will likely enjoy Khan's delightful accounts of chicanery vs. censorship. Second, "The Codebreakers" has been read by many, and it would be interesting to see if any of your readers had submitted an anecdote from Chapter 16 of that book and tried to pass it off as their own.

NEW JERSEY READER
DEAR READER: Thus far, I've had no repeats.

CONFIDENTIAL TO THE D'S IN WHITE PLAINS, N.Y.: If you want a baby only because:

1. You think it will "save" your marriage.
2. All your friends have one.
3. Your parents are hounding you to give them grandchildren.
4. You want someone to take care of you in your old age.
5. Susie wants a baby brother (or sister).
6. You want to be "fulfilled" as a woman — or "prove" you are a man.

7. You're trying for a girl (or boy) this time.

DON'T

DEAR ABBY: In reference to letters about the unfairness of giving one gift to a pair of twins to share, I want to mention another version of "half-gifts" that is equally unfair.

Most children whose birthdays fall around Christmas time receive combination birthday-Christmas presents.

A teen-ager can usually handle such disappointments, but it's hard on a younger child. I've known people born in November, January and February who have received "combo" gifts because their birthdays were so close to Christmas.

I realize that Christmas is a very expensive time of year, but is saving a few dollars worth a lifetime of disappointing memories for a child? I'm 32 and I still have some resentful memories.

DECEMBER BABY
DEAR D.B.: This letter should shake up an army of gift-givers who have made a practice of giving "combo-gifts." You know who you are. (I'm included.)

And to those lovebirds who get married on their birthdays: Expect some friends to cheap out.

DEAR ABBY: (To get Abby's booklet, "How to Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

History of Big Spring reviewed

Joe Pickle reviewed the "History of Big Spring" at the Nov. 4th meeting of the 1955 Hyperion Club.

He told many stories about the early days of Big Spring and about when the Indians roamed across West Texas in 1535, Captain R.B. Marcy going south to Rio Grande in 1849 to find a route into Mexico and Jay Gould and the Earl of Aylesford of England.

He mentioned cotton farms, oil boom days, World War II, Webb Air Force Base, building of shopping center, highways and the growth of Howard Junior College.

Next meeting will be on Dec. 2 at the home of Mrs. Jimmy Morehead, 704 Highland, at 12 noon. Members will celebrate a Christmas luncheon and will exchange Texas Christmas ornaments.

German woman shares traditions

Christmas in Germany was the theme of the Green Thumb Garden Club's Nov. 4th meeting at the home of Sue Wasson.

Monika Robinson, a club member born and raised in northern Germany, shared family Christmas traditions and demonstrated how to make four German Christmas tree ornaments.

How to make a folded Christmas star, foil lanterns, woven foil hearts and wheat straw stars were demonstrated to the club.

The ornaments will be used in the club's entry in the Heritage Museum's wreath decorating contest.

Special memories Mrs. Robinson shared included the coming of St. Nicholas. She said German children clean their shoes and put them on the window sill with their Christmas wish lists in early December.

In the morning, surprises like nuts and marzipan were in the shoes. Naughty youngsters would find a switch and a letter of warning.

Christmas trees are traditionally decorated on Christmas eve in Germany and homemade ornaments are the most popular, according to Mrs. Robinson.

"I remember our living room with the tree being locked until Christmas day," she said, reminiscing. "Oh, come ye, children, enter, enter the living room" was the joyous song the children in her family would sing when they could finally enter the living room where the Christmas tree and presents awaited after church services on Christmas day.

Pickens 'delighted' over Yamani's ouster

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Texas oilman T. Boone Pickens Jr. says Ahmed Zaki Yamani's ouster as Saudi Arabia's oil minister means oil may rise to $20 a barrel by spring, but that won't reverse the downturn in U.S. drilling.

He told the Tulane Business Forum that he's delighted that the Saudi royal family ousted Yamani, whom he compared to Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker.

"There was a time for Volker and for Yamani, and that time has passed for both of them," he said Tuesday.

Pickens, chairman of the Amarillo-based Mesa Petroleum Co., said Saudi Arabia will once again resort to being the swing oil producer, cutting back its production to keep the supply under control.

As production falls, he said, prices will rise.

He predicted that they will reach $28 a barrel in two years, but that the U.S. oil industry will not recover until oil reaches $35 per barrel, with the anticipation of a rise to $50 per barrel.

At $20 per barrel, Pickens said he thinks the U.S. rig count will flirt with its 1986 low of 663 rigs next summer.

Even more important than the oil price, Pickens said, is the price of natural gas. That will be the barometer to watch because the bulk of the reserves will be gas, he said.

When natural gas prices rise to $5 per thousand cubic feet, with the anticipation of reaching $10 per mcf, Pickens predicted, the recovery will be under way. He says this will not occur before 1990 and possibly as late as 1995.

Louisiana gas for the interstate market was selling for $1.39 per mcf at the wellhead, Natural Gas Week, a Washington, D.C.-based industry newsletter said this week.

Louisiana's best crude oil closed Tuesday at $14.70 per barrel on the spot market.

Safest transfusions are one's own blood

CHICAGO (AP) — People facing surgery should have their own blood collected in advance to provide the safest transfusions possible and avoid contracting communicable diseases like AIDS, says the American Medical Association.

Use of the patient's own blood is called autologous blood transfusion, and it eliminates the risk of contracting diseases from someone else's blood, said Dr. Ira Friedlander, a member of the AMA's Council on Scientific Affairs.

The council's report endorsing autologous blood transfusions, adopted as general policy by the AMA in June, was published in today's edition of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"The risk for hepatitis and communicable diseases that you can get through blood transfusions — and that includes AIDS — is pretty much in the public's mind right now," Friedlander said, explaining why the AMA decided to adopt the policy.

Of the 26,878 reported cases of AIDS in adults since 1981, 485, or about 2 percent, were contracted through blood transfusions, the national Centers for Disease Control says.

Among children, 48, or about 13 percent, of the 376 AIDS cases reported since 1981 were contracted that way, said CDC spokeswoman Jeanie Daves.

AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome, devastates the body's ability to fight disease and is believed to be passed through transmission of body fluids, primarily through sexual contact and use of contaminated needles or blood products.

Autologous blood transfusions, when administered under guidelines established by the American Association of Blood Banks, carry no risk of hepatitis, malaria or AIDS, the AMA report said.

Polyunsaturated oils best for heart

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Is corn oil or any vegetable oil, including olive oil, a contributor to hardening of arteries? I know that animal fats definitely are. I indulge in the use of corn oil, especially in my salads. Any harm? — G.S.

I know you've heard the often-quoted adage for controlling blood fats — that it's safe to use any fat that is liquid at room temperature. But as with any generalization, this bit of advice needs a closer look. Warnings about use of some of the liquid-at-room-temperature fats have caused some confusion.

What you want to do is increase the amount of polyunsaturated fat in your diet. I hate to ring in this mind-boggling phrase, but it really goes to the heart of the fat problem.

Polyunsaturated is a chemical term that has to do with the amount of hydrogen in the fat. We can skip the chemistry beyond that. Think of it this way: A saturated fat is like a wet sponge. A polyunsaturated fat is like a dry sponge. The dryer the fat molecules in the sponge, the less trouble they cause.

The way we tell a nicely polyunsaturated fat is its tendency to stay liquid at room temperature. That's where the rule comes from. Vegetable oils pretty much qualify, and some more so than others.

Dr. Donohue

Corn, safflower, cotton seed, and soybean oils are highly polyunsaturated and therefore really good ones.

I mentioned olive oils and urged caution in use for those trying to control fat intake. I got questions about that. Olive oil is only monounsaturated, meaning that it is a damp sponge, to continue our analogy. It's not a good substitute for the others. Also, coconut and palm oils are the bad, saturated kinds, even though they are liquids. They increase cholesterol levels. And when peanut oil becomes a large part of the diet, it, too, increases the fat risks.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Can you diet control arthritis? I do wish you would have an item on this since the subject has arisen in our group, where some have insisted it is true. — Mrs. R.R.

It may sound like a banal observation, but the only truly important association of food to arthritis is that the person with the illness needs to maintain a healthful balanced diet so as not to miss any vital nutrient.

Now it is true that some have associated allergy to aggravation of arthritis symptoms. Recent studies indicated that only a very small number of people might fall into that category. For example, a sensitivity to a food might be involved. This idea has been studied and in only a few people has there been any indication of a connection.

I don't think that's what you are referring to. Many diets and food emphasis ideas have been put forth, mainly of the crackpot variety, claiming to be a "cure" for arthritis. You can safely steer clear of such ideas.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What can you tell me about angioimmunoblastic lymphadenopathy? Are steroids used? — H.G.

This is a difficult illness, which strikes anywhere between the 20s and 90s (average age is 62). Without warning, lymph nodes swell, liver and spleen enlarge, weight is lost. There is fever and night sweats, and there is skin itch. I was asked by another writer recently whether this was cancer. It isn't, but it behaves somewhat like cancer.

It's actually an extreme form of hypersensitivity, with the allergy source unknown. Yes, steroids are sometimes used to treat it. If they don't work, then some of the drugs more common in cancer therapy are given.

Because this illness weakens the body's immune defenses, infections can be a serious problem for the patient. The outlook in angioimmunoblastic lymphadenopathy is variable, and I cannot be specific about the case to which you refer.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What is a cruciferous vegetable? — A.J.

Examples are broccoli, cauliflower, brussels sprouts and cabbage. They are rich in A and C vitamins, also fiber.

You can lose weight if you really want to! The booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and $1.00.

Associated Press Writer
CUAUHTEMOC, Mexico (AP) — When General Motors Corp. opened a subsidiary assembly plant in this northern agricultural hub 18 months ago, many local people were wary.

Apple growers feared they wouldn't find pickers, housewives thought there would be a shortage of maids and many people believed the industry would overtax city services and attract the wrong kind of people.

But many people then without jobs have them now, and nearly 800 such U.S.-connected plants across Mexico's northern tier — maquiladoras, as they are called — are bringing in the foreign currency the country needs to help pay off a foreign debt of almost $100 billion.

"Maquiladoras are a medicine. They won't cure us but they sure can give us some relief," said Dulgado Anchondo, director of the Chihuahua state Industry Promotion office.

Maquiladoras are U.S.-linked assembly line operations that produce goods for export, mainly to the United States. The term maquiladora derives from "maquila," a measure of corn a miller takes for himself for the service of grinding it.

U.S. labor unions oppose maquiladoras on grounds they take jobs from Americans.

Hector Tovalin, industrial relations director for the subsidiary here, Alambros y Circuitos Electricos, said the plant now employs 515 people to make electric wire components for General Motors cars. Plans call for 1,000 employees by early next year, he said.

For the American companies, the maquiladoras are a source of cheap labor.

In Mexico, they provide badly needed jobs, although critics contend the Mexican workers are exploited.

The maquiladora program, which started in 1965 with 12 plants, was considered for many years by Mexicans solely a source of employment for the undeveloped border region stretching from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific.

The Mexican government now views the maquiladora industry as an essential part of its economic known throughout the country.

But Esther Duarte Burrola, 31, and her husband were struggling to support their five children in Cuauhtemoc before the GM subsidiary opened.

She sought for work packing apples but was turned down. Then Alambros opened and she applied for a job.

Mrs. Burrola said she had quit school at age 15 and by age 16 had become a wife and mother.

"We couldn't make it on my husband's salary and I was just watching television and wasting time," she said.

She now supervises two dozen employees at the plant.

"Many people then without jobs have them now, and nearly 800 such U.S.-connected plants across Mexico's northern tier — maquiladoras, as they are called — are bringing in the foreign currency the country needs to help pay off a foreign debt of almost $100 billion."

Christian couple loves people

By CARLEEN EVERETT
Lifestyle Editor

B.J. and Helen Bateman are People Loving People.

Not only is their company named PLP (People Loving People), but the husband and wife Christian team say they really do love people.

"People don't love people like they should," Bateman says.

In his opinion, being a true Christian not only means loving God, but loving people.

"If you really love people, give your money to that poor man who needs it," he says.

"Preachers and people have to turn to the Lord and stop this money, money, money. Quit sending it to the TV preachers and give your money to the Lord."

Bateman, a former inmate at the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp, said he is dedicating himself to the poor and that his motel — The Homestead Inn — "belongs to the Lord."

Being in prison "wasn't being at home. I would have much rather been with Helen," Bateman said.

"It was a fulfillment for the will of the Lord. He put me in the camp to humble me and to witness to the families. And, some of them have turned to the Lord."

He said that he and Helen, while still in the camp, had a vision that they would help prisoners and their families after he was released from prison.

"We know all about it — we care."

After getting out of the camp, the couple stayed in West Texas.

"The Lord decided to keep me in Big Spring. God's plan was for us to house, feed, provide airport shuttle and a rented car for two days for the prisoners' families — all for $150," he explained.

B.J. and Helen Bateman, left to right, operators of The Homestead Inn check in a guest. As operators of The Homestead Inn, they have devoted their motel to the Lord and to helping the prison inmates and their families.

Even though he said all odds were against him, everything fell into place, Bateman said. "The Lord has blessed us and opened doors," Mrs. Bateman said.

"I went from a $500,000 cash flow to nothing. When I got out of prison I had $103 to my name. My loan was approved (to buy the motel), even though I had a prison record."

On July 27 he and six other investors began operating the motel. On Oct. 1, they bought it, he said.

It hasn't been that easy, he said, adding that a lot of legal problems have developed over buying the inn. But they are being solved, Bateman said.

"You have to believe and trust in the Lord."

The motel is the home of the monthly Mayor's Prayer Breakfast, but Bateman is planning some changes.

"I want the breakfast to be free. I don't think people should be charged to come and worship."

Two dollars will be charged for the breakfast this month, but Bateman hopes that December's breakfast will be free. The November breakfast is Saturday from 8 to 9 a.m.

Other changes also have been made at the inn, he said. The bar/nightclub has been replaced by a dinner club where Christian entertainers, style-shows and the prayer breakfasts are conducted. Only non-alcoholic beverages are served now, he said.

Bateman's old lifestyle was very different than the one he lives today.

He spent 13 months in the Federal Prison Camp as a result of his conviction for the sale of stolen motor vehicles, according to prison camp records.

"Nothing — no one mattered. Now it does," he said.

He admits that something very strange has happened since he has turned his life over to the Lord.

"I was as tight as bark on a tree. I don't know what has gotten into me. I go to the store and buy groceries and give them to people."

"B.J. is always helping people," Mrs. Bateman said. "The other day, he helped a man who was hitchhiking."

Bateman said he picked up a man at the corner of Gregg St. and I-20.

"I took him to the resthome. He said he had walked 20 miles in the last two days. He needed something and I was there. He said that he's a good maintenance man and we need a good maintenance man."

Bateman plans to offer the man a job at the motel.

"The great thing is — there is hope for the people in prison and for the people in Big Spring," he said.

Next meeting will be the Christmas program and party on Dec. 1 at the church.

Religion roundup

By the Associate Press
WASHINGTON — About 2,500 Roman Catholics cheered and applauded as a succession of speakers at a conference here urged full equality of women in the church, including their ordination as priests.

The conference was sponsored by a private agency that organizes educational events on Catholic topics.

Benedicting Sister Joan Chittister of Erie, Pa., the keynote speaker, urged Catholics to "swamp the chanceries and offices of the world with petitions for change" until "sexism is seen for the sin it is and repented."

The Rev. Richard M. McBrien of the University of Notre Dame said "all of us — women and men, clergy, religious and laity — are called in principle to fulfill whatever ministries are required" for "the sake of God's kingdom."

ATLANTA — The Southern Baptist Home Mission Board has voted not to give financial support to any woman who is a pastor of a local church.

Under Baptist practice, a local church can ordain whomever it deems fit, and more than 200 women have been ordained, despite opposition to such ordinations by fundamentalists.

The board's action came amid growing fundamentalist power in the denomination.

WASHINGTON — In the end-of-the-session flurry, the U.S. Senate on Oct. 15 confirmed the nomination of Frank Shakespeare Jr., currently U.S. ambassador to Portugal, as the new U.S. ambassador to the Vatican.

The action came in the face of protests by some religious and church-state organizations, including Baptists, who urged it be delayed until the U.S. Supreme Court decides whether to review a pending case.

Baptists had appealed to the high court, claiming a diplomatic appointment to the Vatican would violate the Constitution's requirement of government neutrality toward faiths, bestowing a special status on Roman Catholicism.

CHICAGO — On advice of her order, a nun activist in women's issues, Sister Margaret Ellen Traxler, has resigned from a justice group lobbying Congress for federal funding of abortions for rape and incest victims.

Sister Traxler, director of the interfaith Institute of Women Today to help women in jails and prisons, told National Catholic News Service she had been told to stay away from the abortion issue.

GENEVA, Switzerland — The World Council of Churches, through its special fund to combat racism, has made 1986 grants totalling $400,000, much of it to groups opposing apartheid in South Africa.

Of grants to 51 groups in a dozen countries, 45 percent of the total went to the African National Congress, which received $80,000, and the South-West Africa People's Organization, which received $110,000.

Both organizations are outlawed in South Africa.

The grants, target of some U.S. critics in the past, are specified for humanitarian purposes and come only from gifts specially designated for the fund by churches, anti-racist groups and governments in Western Europe.

Phone cable cut affects service

DALLAS — A freak coincidence in which two major telephone cables were cut, disrupted long distance service between Dallas and much of the nation and paralyzed several area businesses.

A construction crew crushed the main cable linking Dallas to the Midwest at about 1 p.m. Thursday, officials said. The cable also helps connect Dallas to Western states.

About 90 minutes later, a construction crew near Spring, Texas, just north of Houston, partly severed a cable linking the southern part of the state and Dallas.

Service was restored by about 5:30 p.m., but thousands of telephone customers were frustrated.

"There could have been hundreds of thousands of calls afected, considering the number of repeated attempts," said Diane Schwillig, a spokeswoman for American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Companies that rely on long-distance service for most of their business were hardest hit.

Hilton Reservation Center in suburban Carrollton was essentially out of business for about four hours. The center takes reservations for Hilton hotels around the world.

"We lost close to 10,000 calls," said Marie Dobson, reservation service president. "I can't help but ask the question, 'Why aren't those lines protected?' We will certainly want to debrief AT&T."

She said about 250 employees had virtually nothing to do for several hours.

Judge blocks prisoner transferral

NEW ORLEANS — The state of Texas has asked a federal appeals court to overturn a federal judge's order blocking the transfer of minimum security prisoners to a former National Guard fort.

The state says the move is necessary to help resolve overcrowding in the prison system.

At issue is the Texas Prison Management Act, which dictates that a ceiling of 95 percent occupancy be maintained by releasing prisoners at the ratio other felons are ordered behind bars.

After an hour-long hearing Thursday before the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, the inmates' lawyer, William Bennett Turner, said the law had never been put into effect because Texas Gov. Mark White did not want to be known as the man who set convicted felons loose.

Texas Assistant Attorney General Scott McCown, arguing that unprecedented arrests and convictions were aggravating the prison situation, said, "We would have more prisoners if we had built expanded facilities," and insisted that expanded facilities would be ready by next summer.

Turner responded, "I have learned from 12 years in this case ... that they (the Texas Department of Corrections) have never met a construction deadline."

No indication was given when the appeals court would rule.

People Express deadline passed

NEWARK, N.J. — The deadline has passed for People Express Inc. debtholders to approve lower interest payments on publicly held debt securities.

Debtholders had until midnight Thursday for the approval, which was the last hurdle in the airline's sale to Texas Air Corp.

Houston-based Texas Air Corp., which has gained approval from the federal Transportation Department to purchase People Express for $298 million, set the lower interest rates for debtholders as a condition of the deal.

Meanwhile, People Express announced Thursday it will begin hourly service between its hub, Newark International Airport, and Chicago Nov. 15, and discontinue flights to Detroit and Dulles International Airport in Washington, D.C., Dec. 1. The financially troubled airline will continue to fly to National Airport in Washington.

Russell Marchetta, a People Express spokesman, referred all questions about the debtholder vote to attorney Jim Freund.

A woman who answered the telephone at Freund's New York City office said he was out for the day.

Texas GM plant won't be closed

DETROIT — Industry analysts see the planned closing of 11 General Motors Corp. plants in four states as surgery needed to keep the nation's top automaker healthy, but for 29,000 workers it means uncertain times ahead.

Six final assembly plants and two body works will close by 1988 and three stamping plants by 1990 in a move that will reduce GM's fixed costs by $500 million a year, Chairman Roger Smith announced Thursday. The company showed an operating loss of $338 million for the year's third quarter.

A GM plant in Arlington, Texas was spared and officials announced plans to expand operations there.

Analysts said the cutbacks were necessary for GM and the U.S. auto industry as a whole, which is expected to be burdened with too much production capacity later this decade.

But that meant little to workers who fear losing their jobs, or to communities whose economies will suffer.

"It's going to be disastrous for Flint," said Earl Henry, president of United Auto Workers Local 598 in that Michigan city, where one plant is to be closed and another will lose one of its two assembly lines.

Arrest warrant delay causes family fear

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Members of a San Antonio family say they lived in terror for six days because red tape delayed the issuing of an arrest warrant for a man charged with killing a loved one and her boyfriend.

Leopoldo Lugo and his family were armed and barricaded in their home starting Saturday night, when Lugo's daughter, Ester, and her boyfriend, were shot and killed.

Ms. Lugo and Armando Rodriguez were shot as they sat in a pickup truck in her sister's driveway.

Three witnesses identified the attacker.

But police could not arrest the suspect because the district attorney's office did not approve a warrant until late Thursday, two days after the police delivered the case file.

Meanwhile, the Lugos believed they knew the killer, and they feared that he might come after one of them.

Police Lt. Jack Summey said it took two days to investigate and prepare a file on the slaying.

Summey said the file was delivered to the district attorney's office early Tuesday.

Assistant District Attorney

Therese Huntzinger said the file was not acted on immediately because the officer who delivered it did not tell her office an emergency warrant was needed.

Ms. Huntzinger said once she learned of the situation, a warrant was issued within hours.

Police have charged Ms. Lugo's ex-husband, Jose T. Zepeda, 32, with murder in connection with the incident.

He was being sought Thursday night.

Leopoldo Lugo armed himself with a rifle, a shotgun and two pistols to protect his wife, six children and 10 grandchildren until police arrested Zepeda, a family member said.

The family had obtained a peace bond June 10 ordering Zepeda to stay away from their home.

After the family had expressed concern, police provided protection at the funeral and parked outside their house until Tuesday, but there have been only routine patrols since then, said Gloria Lugo, Ester's sister.

Leopoldo Lugo, owner of a recreation center, said he has not worked since the shooting for fear of being killed.

Fear also prompted the Lugos to keep their six children home from school this week.

Friday Football Forecast

Compiled by Herald Sports Staff

Big Spring (7-1) at Snyder (2-6)

When the Steers whipped Monahans last Friday to secure a spot in the playoffs, everybody pretty much assumed they won the district that night as well. That's probably true, because the Steers should beat Snyder and Andrews.

Nevertheless, Snyder and Andrews are district opponents, and two losses would knock Big Spring out of the top spot in the district. The point is, the Big Spring Steers are not district champs...yet.

After tonight, however, the Steers will wear that crown. Snyder has some studs, but they're all big hosses, the kind that don't carry the ball. Injuries have greatly depleted the Tiger backfield, and they're hurting. In the second half against Sweetwater they were stomped 28-0. Everybody knows how strong the Steers have been in the second half this year.

Phillip Mathews will have his way, James Harlin will get his first 100-yard game, and Paul Decker will throw two touchdowns. Snyder, without a fast back, will go nowhere against the Steers' defense. It's that simple.

The party is in Snyder, and the Steers are district champs.
Big Spring 32, Snyder 6

Sonora (6-3) at C-City (1-7-1)

In the last game of the season, the Wolves will have one last chance to rid themselves of the fumble bug that has cost them so dearly this season.

Colorado City has at times looked strong, but have almost without exception killed themselves with the turnover. Sonora is a good ball club, and season long habits are tough to break.

Sonora 21, Colorado City 13

Coahoma (0-9) at Merkel (5-4)

The Bulldogs go on the road for the last game of the season still looking for that first win. Merkel, on the other hand, is closing strongly, having stomped Brady last week.

To win, the Bulldogs must play with the ferocity and tenacity of pit bulldogs. Otherwise, they're 0-10 for the season, and that sounds a lot worse than 1-9.

Coahoma has one last shot. Here's saying they'll make the most of it.

Coahoma 8, Merkel 6

Rankin (4-5) at Forsan (8-0-1)

The Buffaloes started the season strong and have become better. With Wayne Wright totting opponents for nearly 200 yards in each of the last several games, and quarterback Brant Nichols zooming in on his big receivers, the Forsan offense has become a mighty force.

On defense, the linebacker corp of Wright, Shane Clanton and John Roman make a habit of engulfing opposing backs at about the time they hit the line of scrimmage.

Mark this up as a confidence builder and warm-up before the Buffaloes playoff opener next week.

Forsan 38, Rankin 12

Stanton (6-3) at Ozona (3-6)

The end of a fruitful, but frustrating season for the Stanton Buffaloes. The end of just a plain old long season for the Ozona Lions. Stanton saw its playoff hopes dashed with a 14-6 loss to Reagan County last week. Ozona, dropping from class 3A, has been a big disappointment in its new district.

It's the last hurrah for the Stanton wishbone backfield of Derek Sorley, James Vidal and Greg Barnhill. They want to close out their prep gridiron careers in style, and they will against Ozona's inconsistent defense.

Look for Barnhill to go over 100 yards, Vidal to break at least one long one and Sorley to pound the Lions' middle.

Stanton will win going away, but it will still have an empty feeling because it came up short in its playoff bid.

Stanton 27, Ozona 12

Miles (0-9) at Garden City (0-8)

The name of this game is pride. What we have here is two inexperienced and injury-plagued teams that will go at it tooth and nail in one last grasp for victory.

If you don't think this game won't be hotly contested, you're wrong. This could very well be the best game in the area.

The Garden City Bearcats will play well in front of their homecoming crowd, they'll cut down on the turnovers and keep the pressure on Miles freshman quarterback Chris Blackwell.

This time Garden City will make the two-point conversion.

Garden City 15, Miles 14

Dawson (1-7) at Klondike (3-6)

It has been somewhat of a disappointing for the Klondike Cougars. After starting out line gang busters, the Cougars' 53-33 win over Grady last week was their first in the last six weeks.

The Dawson Dragons are better than their record indicates. They played district front runners Borden County and Loop tough games. But running back-linebacker Cisco Arrendondo will see that the Cougars win their last game of the season. He'll get ample help from quarterback Kirt Tidwell and receiver Wesley O'Brien.

Klondike 40, Dawson 34

Grady (0-9) at Sands (4-5)

The Sands Mustangs are another team that has suffered a disappointing season. They are definitely better than a .500 team. If not for about 18 points, the Mustangs could be gearing up for the state playoffs.

On the other hand, Grady is a team that expected a tough season and got it. The Wildcats are just too small and inexperienced this season. But giving credit where credit is due, they did improve and they didn't quit.

If Sands goes into one of its mental lapses, this could be a good game. Conceivably Grady could win. Do you believe in miracles? Not this time.

Sands 60, Grady 40

B-County (6-2) at Wellman (9-0)

This is the top game in the area this week. The playoffs start now for the Borden County Coyotes. If they lose this one, B-County can kiss any hopes of state playoff good bye. If they win, it forces a three-way tie in 4-A six man.

Wellman is loaded with speed plus it has a stout defense. Borden County is a team with a reliable, but not spectacular offense. It relies on its hard-hitting defense.

The Coyotes will play their hearts out, but it won't be enough to overcome Wellman's speed and home field advantage.

Hawks win season opener

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

MIDLAND — While Howard College Hawks' Basketball Coach Larry Brown was driving from Big Spring to Midland Thursday before last night's game, he gave some thought to the past and the present.

"I was thinking about it on the way over. I've never lost an opening game with a new team and I didn't want to start it off that way here," Brown said.

His record is intact. The hustling Hawks blew open a close game with a 20-5 run midway through the second half and coasted to a 95-90 win over the Garden City, Kan. Broncbusters.

The win advances the Hawks into the second round of the Midland College Chaparral Classic. They'll play Midland College at 7 p.m. tonight. The Chaparrals whipped Grayson 115-63.

Though the Broncbusters started a 6-10 center and a 6-7 forward, they were unable to establish an inside game against the Hawks, whose tallest player is 6-4. However, Garden City was effective from the perimeter, with sharp shooter Horace Chaney nailing five three-pointers and scoring 23 points.

Led by a hot Chaney, the Broncbusters rallied from a 39-36 deficit at the half to go ahead 61-54 with less than 12 minutes remaining in the game. At that point, the Hawks were over the foul limit and the Broncbusters were going to the charity stripe after every Hawks' foul.

And at that point, Kevin Bradsher, one of the Hawks' main scoring threats, had just five points. Teammate Mitchell Porter had four fouls and fewer points at the same juncture. Both woke up.

Bradsher ignited the Hawks rally when he hit a layup, stole the Broncbusters' inbound pass, scored and was fouled. The big leaping sophomore scored five points in less than five seconds, and the psychological effect proved strong for both squads.

The Hawks began playing like gangbusters while the Broncbusters suddenly seemed flat-footed. Bradsher scored the next four points, one bucket coming on a pretty feed from forward Myron Wright after an offensive rebound.

Porter and Bradsher both hit several key baskets in the stretch. Just as crucial to the comeback was the pressure defense of the Hawks. During the stretch run, Brown inserted both his small guards, 5-6 Dennis Rhodes and 5-9 Sammy Jackson. The two water-bugs harrassed the Broncbusters

MITCHELL PORTER
...ignites rallyLARRY BROWN
...first collegiate win

into countless mistakes, and Garden City lost its composure.

At the 12 minute mark the score was 61-54, Garden City. With seven minutes remaining the score was 74-66, Hawks. That stretch was the difference in the game.

In the locker room after the win, freshman Bruce Mitchell yelled, "Even 5-6 was killing them on the boards!"

Mitchell was referring to

Rhodes, who claimed an amazing seven rebounds. Rhodes also scored 21 points on 8-12 shooting, and had ten assists. However, the Hawks' little big man wasn't satisfied with his 10 turnovers.

"The ball got slick and it was hard to control. And they called a lot of travelling calls and I was dragging my pivot foot. But that can be corrected. We're just learning."

Holmes calls it quits

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Holmes, ex-fighter, was scheduled to break ground today for an office complex at Easton, Pa.

On Thursday, at Larry Holmes' Commodore Inn across the Delaware River in Phillipsburg, N.J., the former World Boxing Council and International Boxing Federation heavyweight champion became strictly a businessman by announcing his retirement.

"I'm tired of people using me," Holmes told The Associated Press in a telephone interview. "I'm tired of fighting and I'm tired of not getting the decisions I earned."

Holmes bitterly disputed his split-decision loss to Michael

Purdue mentor to step down

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Leon Burnett has announced that he's stepping down as Purdue's football coach at the end of the current season, saying that staying around for another season would be unfair to the players he recruited.

"My ultimate concern is the young men I've recruited," Burnett told a Thursday news conference in the school's football complex. "I felt that at this stage that our recruiting would suffer and it was not fair to those players (for him to remain)."

Burnett, 43, has four more years remaining on his contract and Athletic Director George King said the agreement would be honored by the school despite Burnett's decision to resign.

"There comes a point where you have to step down and evaluate where you are and where you're going," said Burnett, who has compiled a 20-32-1 mark in five seasons as Purdue's head coach. "I will be assigned to George (after the season) for a period of time and my ultimate goal, first of all, is to place all my assistant coaches ... George has assured me that will be my primary job."

Purdue officials extended Burnett's contract after the 1984 season — his only winning year.

Burnett said he began considering resigning prior to last week's 17-16 victory over Northwestern, which ended a six-game losing streak by the 2-6 Boilermakers.

The Boilermakers host third-ranked Michigan on Saturday and then finish up with Iowa and arch-rival Indiana.

"I want to coach again. I don't know at this point where I want to coach," Burnett said. "My problem is trying to decide if I want to go to the NFL or stay in college. Coaching is important to me."

Burnett said his family and his players were the major reasons he decided to give up the job he took over in 1982 after first arriving here as a defensive coordinator in 1977.

Alumni and fans have subjected the Boilermakers to frequent boos during the current season and Burnett said he wanted his players to realize the boos and criticism were directed to him and not them.

"No one pressured me to quit. I initiated the conversation with George (King)," Burnett said. "The climate was not such that it was conducive for our players. You cannot go into a recruiting season and have the type of recruiting year that you need with that over your head."

"The basis is here for an excellent team, but Purdue needs an excellent year (recruiting)," he said. "The longer I put off my decision, the more disadvantaged they were."

King said the process of selecting a replacement had not started.

"I'm sure I'll start tomorrow (Friday) morning, at least with my staff," he said. "My guess is early next week the (search) committee will be named by the (Purdue) president and we'll really begin the whole process after that committee has met."

Two tied for leadership in championship golf

INAGI, Japan (A) — American Bob Tway shot a 65 Friday to tie West Germany's Bernhard Langer for the individual lead after two rounds of the $900,000 World Championship of Golf.

In the team competition, the European team beat the U.S. squad 8-4 while Japan beat Australia-New Zealand 7-5.

The Europeans led the team competition with 15 points, followed by Japan and Australia-New Zealand each with 12 and the defending champion U.S. with nine.

Six players from each of the four PGA Tours are competing for both individual and team titles in the 72-hole tournament on the hilly Yomuri Country Club course, a 7,017-yard, par-72 layout just outside Tokyo.

Playing under a cloudy sky, Tway, who won four tournaments on the U.S. PGA tour this season, carded birdied the 4th, 5th and 6th holes and chipped a 20-yard bunker shot into the cup for a birdie on the 9th. Tway then eagled the 11th hole and added two more birdies on the last seven holes for his 7-under-par 65.

"I don't know why I'm in good shape. But I practiced so hard this season that I gained confidence," Tway said.

Langer, the 1985 Masters champion, bogeyed the first hole, birdied three in a row, then added a par and three more consecutive birdies on his way to a 66.

"My putts were good today," Langer said.

Five players were tied for the runner-up spot at 136. Tsuneyuki Nakajima, Japan's current leading money winner, shot a 68, his countryman and first-round co-leader Koichi Suzuki had a 69, Australia's first round co-leader Ian Baker-Finch also had a 69, as did American Hal Sutton. John Mahafey, the captain of the U.S. team, had a 68.

Knicks win first game; Mavs score 147 points

By The Associated Press
The pressure was building on the New York Knicks. They had lost their first four games of the season. There was talk the team had no intensity. There were rumors that Coach Hubie Brown's job was in jeopardy. The Knicks needed a win, any kind of win. They got one Thursday night against another one of the NBA's poorer outfits, the Sacramento Kings, 106-95.

NBA

"It feels fine," Brown said. "I think, of course, it takes a lot off their minds."
In other games, the Los Angeles Clippers beat Houston 104-97, Denver topped Utah 135-121 and Dallas outscored Seattle 147-124.
What made the Knicks' victory extra special was where it came. Because of annual commitments to the National Horse Show, Madison Square Garden is usually booked up for much of the early part of November, meaning New York winds up going on a long Western trip early in the season.
In Brown's four years with the Knicks, the team had been 0-20 in those season-opening Western games until winning in Sacramento.

"It has been very tough on us coming out here," said Knicks veteran center Bill Cartwright, who scored 21 points.
"We are the only team to be on the road this much this early in the season. We are just trying to put that out of our minds."
New York had lost eight straight road games, including the final five last season, before beating the Kings. Sacramento has won only once in four tries this year.
Cartwright and Rory Sparrow helped New York break the game open early in the third quarter with two baskets each in a 12-2 that put the Knicks ahead 63-54. Gerald Wilkins added 20 points for New York.
"I think it took a lot of pressure off us. We are a much better team than our record shows," said New York's Pat Cummings, who scored 11 points and had a game-high 11 rebounds.
Derek Smith scored 26 points for Sacramento.
Clippers 104, Rockets 97
Larry Drew scored six of his 25 points in the last three minutes, helping Los Angeles win in Houston.

Drew made three baskets and Marcus Johnson had two in the closing minutes as the Clippers held off the Rockets.
Akeem Olatunji scored 31 points for Houston, which had won its first two games of the season. Olatunji made three baskets that pulled the Rockets within 98-95 with 1:18 left.
Houston led 80-75 after three quarters, but Lancaster Gordon scored six points as the Clippers outscored the Rockets 12-2 to start the fourth period.
Mavericks 147, SuperSonics 124
Reserve Al Wood scored 25 points and Mark Aguirre had 24 as Dallas beat host Seattle.
The Mavericks raced to an 18-6 lead and shot 14 for 18 from the floor in the first quarter, leading 44-27 at the end of the period. Rolando Blackman scored 18 points as Dallas had eight players in double figures.
Xavier McDaniel scored 18 for the host SuperSonics.
Nuggets 135, Jazz 121
Alex English scored 36 points, Darrell Walker added 24 and Lafayette Lever had a triple-double as Denver beat Utah.

Canadiens skate past Kings

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Montreal's Bobby Smith may have had three goals, but he knew which one did the most good.
"We needed this game," Smith said after the Canadiens defeated the Los Angeles Kings 6-4 Thursday night.
"The goal early in the third got us going."

NHL

Smith's second goal of the game came on a 2-on-1 break after Chris Nilan carried the puck into the Kings' zone and fed Smith a perfect pass. All Smith had to do was swat the puck into a wide-open net, tying the score 4-4.
With 3:33 to play, Sergio Momesso scored the game-winner off a pass from Stephane Richer, who carried the puck behind the Los Angeles net and fed it to a wide-open Momesso.
Smith, who also scored a first-period power-play goal, completed his fourth career hat trick with an empty-net goal with 51 seconds to play to round out the scoring.

The victory stretched the Canadiens' unbeaten streak to seven games and pushed them past the Quebec Nordiques into first place in the Adams Division. Montreal has gone 5-0-2 during that stretch.
Ryan Walter and Claude Lemieux also scored for the Canadiens, who jumped to a 2-0 first-period lead.
The Kings erased a 2-0 first-period deficit with four unanswered goals in the second period. After defenseman Grant Ledyard and Bernie Nicholls scored his first goal of the contest 36 seconds later to tie the game, Los Angeles went in front on Nicholls second goal and a power-play goal by Jim Fox.
The Kings have not won in their last eight games with only a tie against the Edmonton Oilers Sunday night in Edmonton.
Devils 5, Flyers 5
Doug Sullivan capped a sensational rally in the final 9½ minutes by New Jersey, which trailed 5-1. Sullivan poked in a rebound of his own shot to tie it with less than three minutes left.

Claude Loiselle started the Devils' comeback, beating Flyers goalie Hextall with a 35-foot shot with 9:07 to play. Aaron Broten cut the lead to 5-3 with a 20-foot wrist shot less than two minutes later. Greg Adams made it 5-4 with a 10-foot backhand with 4:33 to play.
Sullivan got the Devils' fourth goal in a 6:14 span when he converted Mel Bridgman's pass from the corner.
A Flyers' record was set by Murray Craven and Mark Howe, who scored shorthanded goals 26 seconds apart in the first period.
"I've got to be honest," said Sullivan, "we're thrilled to death with the tie. We accomplished something, scoring four goals in 10 minutes against the best defensive team in the league."
North Stars 4, Maple Leafs 1
Dino Ciccarelli, who leads the NHL with 10 power-play goals, tied Pittsburgh's Mario Lemieux for the overall goal-scoring lead with his 17th. Keith Acton had three assists as Minnesota snapped a three-game losing streak. Toronto had a four-game winning string ended.
The triumph gave Minnesota a 9-0-1 record against the Leafs since last losing to Toronto on Feb. 27, 1985.
"There's gotta be something there when records go like that," said Acton. "Toronto is much improved from a year ago, but we have positive feelings against them because of our record against them. It's gotta build confidence for us and be depressing for them."
Ciccarelli will go head-to-head with Lemieux on Saturday.

Tom Chambers (top) of the Seattle SuperSonics puts up a shot over Brad Davis (15) of the Dallas Mavericks, during first quarter action in Seattle Thursday night. Dallas' Detlef Schrempf (32) and Seattle's Xavier McDaniel (34) are also in the action.

Hawks

ing each other's games, but it'll all come together.
"Big Spring's going to be surprised to see what comes out of Coach Brown's season. We're going to be tough," Rhodes said.
Sophomore Sam Williams, the Hawks' tallest player at 6-4, led the team in scoring with 22 points while grabbing eight rebounds. Perhaps more importantly, Williams was instrumental in stopping the towering Bronxbusters. Garden City's 6-10 starting center George Ackles scored just four points and was not a factor.
"I don't think they (G-City big men) were that effective. That proves that height doesn't always matter," Williams said. A statement he probably hopes to repeat throughout the season.

Bradsher's strong finish gave him 19 points on the evening, and Porter finished with 15. Bradsher also had eight rebounds and four steals to lead the team. Wright finished with six points and four rebounds, and Sammy Jackson, who handled the ball well, scored five points and handed out six assists.
Brown was happy with the win, but not that happy.
"The effort was there but we made a lot of mental and physical errors. We hope to correct those but the kids played pretty hard," Brown said.
There were many firsts in the game. The Hawks won their first game of the season; Larry Brown won his first college game; and a handful of Hawks' fans saw the first game with an almost entirely new Hawks' squad. If what they saw last night is any indication, Big Spring could have another winner.

Spinks in their rematch last April 19 and appealed to the IBF to overturn it. The appeal was rejected.
Another reason for retirement, Holmes said, was "I got old too."
Holmes, considered the world's premier heavyweight from 1978 to 1985, celebrated his 37th birthday on Monday.

After the news conference Thursday, two reporters were talking to Holmes when his mother, Flossie, approached and said, "Larry, are you really retiring this time?"
This time, Holmes said, retirement would stick.
"I'm 50-0," Holmes said. "People know it. They can question the 49th (the outcome of the first Spinks fight), but they can't question the 50th."

Holmes also said he asked fight promoter Don King for $400,000 he contends the promoter still owes him for the two Spinks fights.

Upsets rock tennis

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Unseeded Betina Buge, 23, of Monaco, contributed to the elimination of the Maleeva sisters of Bulgaria and looked forward to another round in the Virginia Slims of New England tennis tournament.

But top-seeded Martina Navratilova warned potential challengers she's feeling stronger.

Keeping Manuela Maleeva, 19, anchored at the baseline in the final two sets, Buge whipped the sixth-seeded Bulgarian 2-6, 6-0, 6-0, late Thursday to set the stage for a third-round contest against third-seeded Helena Sukova.

Navratilova, the top seed, ended the evening action in 44 minutes as she won 11 straight games in whipping Australian Dianne Balestrat 6-0, 6-1 in the second round.

"I felt much better tonight than I did in my first round," said Navratilova, 30. "I was hitting harder and moving better."

"With the youngsters coming along, you have to be read for each match or they'll surprise you."

Sukova overcame outstanding net play earlier in the day by Rosalyn Fairbank of South Africa to win 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, while fourth-seeded Pam Shriver cruised to a 6-1, 7-5 victory over Katerina Maleeva, Manuela's sister.

Sukova, 21, hammered a pair of forehands to score a decisive final game service break and win the opening set. However, the aggressive Fairbank, rushing the net for critical points, allowed Sukova just five points in the final three games to take the second set.

Panthers out to stop Vinny

By The Associated Press

With Vinny Testaverde at the controls, it would be logical to assume that Miami football Coach Jimmy Johnson has no quarterback worries as he prepares his top-ranked Hurricanes for Saturday's game at Pittsburgh.

But Testaverde, whose passing has led Miami to an 8-0 start, isn't the problem. In fact, Johnson doesn't know who is — for Pitt.

"We're going to have to be prepared for anything and everything," Johnson said Thursday, mindful that Pitt starter John Congemi is out for the rest of the year with a back injury.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 3 Michigan is at Purdue, Missouri is at No. 4 Oklahoma, California is at No. 5 Arizona State, No. 7 Nebraska visits Iowa State, Cincinnati is at No. 9 Auburn, No. 10 Arkansas visits Baylor, Northwestern is at No. 11 Ohio State, Stanford visits No. 12 UCLA, No. 13 Washington is at Oregon State, No. 15 North Carolina State travels to Virginia, No. 16 Iowa is at Illinois, No. 17 Arizona visits Washington State, No. 19 Georgia plays Florida at Jacksonville, and North Carolina is at No. 20 Clemson.

No. 18 Louisiana State is at No. 6 Alabama in a night game, while eighth-ranked Texas A&M and No. 14 Southern Cal are off.

Gottfried, whose Panthers are 4-3-1, has pondered the quarterback problem since Congemi, the second-leading passer in Pitt history, suffered a hairline fracture of his back in last week's loss to Syracuse.

Johnson's main concern is that Congemi's absence may alter the Panthers' offensive game plan. With Congemi at the controls of Pitt's run-and-shoot offense, the Panthers were averaging nearly 40 passes a game.

Testaverde is the most dominant player in college football this season, completing 63.4 percent of his passes for 1,958 yards, 20 touchdowns and seven interceptions.

Defense was on the mind of Penn State's Joe Paterno, who believes the current crop of Nittany Lion defenders is as good as any he has ever coached.

"It's tough to think we've had a team that played any better," said Paterno, whose team could extend its record to 9-0 with a victory over Maryland, 4-4.

One would think that unbeaten Michigan, coming off 69-13 pounding of Illinois, wouldn't worry about the likes of Purdue, which snapped a six-game losing streak last week against Northwestern.

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer plans to use two quarterbacks, as he did in last week's 64-3 pummeling of Kansas. Jamelle Holieway and Eric Mitchel will alternate against Missouri, which comes in at 3-6.

"Jamelle Holieway is our starting quarterback, he's our best quarterback," Switzer, whose Sooners are 7-1, said. "We're going to play Eric Mitchel when the situation dictates we can... we're giving him an opportunity to prove himself right now, and he's doing a good job."

Arizona State, 7-0-1 overall and atop the Pacific 10 standings at 4-0-1 with an inside track to the Rose Bowl, figures to have an easy time with California, 1-7.

Arizona State Coach John Cooper also has quarterback Jeff Van Raaphorst, who has completed 67 percent of his passes for 870 yards, seven touchdowns and no interceptions.

A victory by Alabama, 8-1 and 4-0 in the Southeastern Conference, would douse the title hopes of LSU, 5-2 and 3-1.

Nebraska, 3-1 in the Big Eight and 7-1 overall, needs a victory over Iowa State to remain in the thick of the conference race.

Arkansas, 7-1 overall and 3-1 in the Southwest Conference, trails Texas A&M by a game as it takes on Baylor.

UCLA, trailing Arizona State by one-half game, needs a victory over Stanford to stay in the hunt for the Rose Bowl. The Bruins are 4-1 in the Pac-10 and 6-2 overall.

A victory by North Carolina State, 4-1 in the Atlantic Coast Conference and 6-1-1 overall, would force Clemson, 4-1 and 6-2, to beat unranked North Carolina to maintain a share of the lead. North Carolina, 3-1 and 5-2-1, would drop from contention with a loss.

Ohio State, 7-2, is a prohibitive favorite over Northwestern. The Buckeyes, 5-0 in the Big Ten, are tied with Michigan for the league lead.

University of Miami Heisman Trophy candidate quarterback Vinny Testaverde will lead the Hurricanes into their Saturday game against the Pittsburgh Panthers. Testaverde is completing 63 over 60 percent of his passes.

SWC Thumbnails

DALLAS (AP) — Here is a look at this weekend's games involving Southwest Conference football teams:

ARKANSAS (7-1, 4-1 SWC) at BAYLOR (5-3, 3-2 SWC), 12:00 noon (CST). Raycom Sports Telecast USA Network (National). — In a real SWC headliner the Razorbacks seek to retain second place in league standings behind 5-0 Texas A&M while Baylor hopes that a crucial home win can keep the Bears in the thick of the title race. The teams are meeting for the 65th time since 1904 in one of the SWC's oldest and closest rivalries in terms of wins and losses. The Hogs have captured the last two games in the series by scores of 20-14 last fall in Little Rock and 14-9 in Waco in 1984 to take a slim 32-30-2 series lead. Baylor last won 24-21 at Fayetteville in 1983, and the Bears have a 19-10-2 advantage over UA in games played at Waco. Arkansas coach Ken Hatfield is 51-38-2 (eight years) as a head coach, 24-1-1 (three seasons) at UA, and 15-6 in SWC play. Baylor coach Grant Teaff is 128-122-7 (24 campaigns), 86-76-5 (15 years), BU's winningest head football coach with the Bears, and 57-53-3 in SWC play. Teaff is also 9-4-1 in Homecoming games as he enters his 15th reunion game for Baylor alumni and friends. Baylor sports one of the most versatile athletes in the nation in junior SE-QB Matt Clark. Clark takes over for Cody Carlson in short-yardage situations and has rushed for five touchdowns in 16 carries (58 net yards) while as a wideout he has grabbed 15 passes for 279 yards and an average per catch of 18.6 yards. Linebackers Ray Berry (77 total tackles, eight for losses of 39 yards) and Aaron Grant (67 tackles) anchor a rugged BU defense. The broadcast: Frank Fallon and Mike Nail on the SWC Radio Network. Merle Harmon and Kevin Kiley on Raycom Sports. Eddie Doucette and Kyle Rote, Jr. on USA Network.

SMU (5-3, 4-2 SWC) at NOTRE DAME (3-4), 12:00 noon (CST). — The Mustangs and Fighting Irish battle for the 12th time in history as coach Bobby Collins sends his squad against Notre Dame, coached by former Arkansas mentor Lou Holtz. SMU relives a bit of history as the Mustangs visit Notre Dame Stadium where they played in the opening game on Oct. 4, 1980, and fell to the Irish 20-14. SMU won the last game in the rivalry, though, as Collins' forces downed then-coach Gerry Faust's ND squad 27-20 in the 1984 Aloha Bowl to cut the Irish's series lead to 8-3. Collins stands 90-42-3 (14 years) overall at Southern Mississippi and SMU and 42-1-1 (five seasons) with the Mustangs. Holtz is 119-69-5 (17 years) at five universities and is in his first year at Notre Dame after arriving from the University of Minnesota. Holtz was 60-21-2 from 1977-83 at Arkansas and was also an even 3-3-1 in games against SMU during that era. The Mustangs base their high-powered offense on the passing artistry of junior quarterback Bobby Walters (106-for-199 for 1,513 yards and 11 TDs this year) while senior SE-Ron Morris 44 (128 catches for seventh place on the SWC career list, see page 4) is the prime receiver. Senior RB Jeff Atkins is third in Mustangs' career rushing history with 3,236 net yards on 663 carries for 29 TDs and stands ninth (77 yards to move) on the all-time SWC list. The broadcast: Gary Gallup and Norm Hitzges on the SWC Radio Network.

HOUSTON (1-7, 0-5 SWC) at TEXAS (3-4-2 SWC), 1:00 p.m. (CST). — The Cougars and Longhorns both look to return to the win column in a Memorial Stadium encounter, the 13th football game played between the rivals since Texas topped a 28-7 triumph at Austin in 1983. The Fred Akers-coached UT crew is 3-3-1 in Austin against the Cougars, who downed the Longhorns 29-15 in 1984 in the Texas capital. The Longhorns prevailed 34-24 at the Astrodome in 1985, and that win kept UT's mark perfect in Houston at 4-0-1. It's another battle of two of the nation's highly-respected coaches as UH coach Bill Yeoman takes a 160-105-4 (25 years, longest consecutive term at one university by any Division I-A coach) mark and a 51-32-2 SWC record into the game. Texas' Akers is 94-42-2 (12 seasons) overall, 64-29-2 (11 years) at Texas, and 58-18-1 in SWC contests. The combined SWC winning percentage of the two coaches is an outstanding .682. Texas has found new life in 1986 on offense behind QB Bret Stafford (120-for-224 for 1,446 passing yards and 7 TDs), whose favorite targets have been WR Gabriel Johnson (24 receptions for 408 yards and a 17.0 yards per catch average) and RB Eric Metcalfe. Houston finds solace from a schedule which includes seven teams that played in 1985 bowls. UH has gotten solid defensive play of LB Gary McGuire, an All-America candidate with 127 total tackles in eight games, and LB Robert Harper, who had 122 total stops through last week's UH-TCU game. Sophomore RB Darren Norris of the Longhorns has been a catalyst in the running game while the Cougars rely on the option carries of QBs Mark Davis and Gerald Landry. The broadcast: Ron Franklin and Mike Edmonds on the SWC Radio Network.

TEXAS TECH (5-3, 3-2 SWC) at TCU (3-5, 1-4 SWC), 2:00 p.m. (CST). — The sizzling Red Raiders seek to extend a three-game winning streak and stay in outside contention for the SWC crown as they invade Amon Carter Stadium in Fort Worth to face the Horned Frogs, who also have momentum after a 30-14 triumph over Houston last week on the road. This game marks an anniversary of sorts as Tech QB Billy Joe Tolleriver set a conference record by passing for 423 yards last Nov. 9 against TCU at Jones Stadium in Lubbock. Tolleriver has teamed with Monte McGuire and Aaron Kessie to make the Raiders a continued "air force" as Tech owns team totals of 138 completions in 229 attempts (most in the SWC and a school season record) for 1,594 yards and six touchdowns. But the Tech defense, led by LB Brad Hastings and Michael Johnson, has continued to develop quickly. TCU has just a bit of series history on its side, though, as the Frogs hold a 20-19-3 edge in games played between the squads since 1906. TCU won 27-16 at Fort Worth in 1984, but the Tech is 2-1-2 in the last five games with the Horned Frogs. Tech coach David McWilliams is in his first season as a college head coach and has won five of eight games, including a 23-21 verdict, over the Texas mater Texas last week. TCU coach Jim Wacker is 120-57-5 (15 years) overall, 16-24-2 (four years) at TCU, and 7-2-1 in SWC battles. Tech's Tyrone (Smurf) Thurman rolled 96 yards with a punt return against Texas last week. The broadcast: Brad Sham and Jack Dale on the SWC Radio Network.

Angels manager doesn't get proper credit

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

California's Gene Mauch, the best baseball manager never to win a pennant, turned up an also-ran again this week, finishing a distant third in the American League Manager of the Year voting behind Boston's John McNamara and Bobby Valentine of Texas.

This does not disturb his supporters one bit. They still marvel at the man's record.

"He's managed for 25 years," Detroit's Sparky Anderson said, a note of awe in his voice. "I don't care who you are or what your record is. You manage for 25 years. That's Hall of Fame."

Only three men — Bucky Harris, John McGraw and Connie Mack — managed longer than one quarter of a century in the majors. And Mack had an edge. He owned the team.

The problem with Mauch is that he is linked inevitably with some of the great collapses in baseball history.

His 1964 Philadelphia Phillies led the National League by 6½ games with 12 to play and still found a way to finish second. In 1982, his Angels won the first two games in the best-of-five playoffs and then, one victory away from the pennant, proceeded to lose three straight to Milwaukee. He got closer than ever last month, one strike away from eliminating Boston, only to see the whole thing blow up in his face again. The Red Sox would later learn firsthand in the World Series, just how excruciating that episode had to be.

Did Anderson feel sorry for Mauch, having to endure still another disappointment?

"No way," Anderson said. "He doesn't need anybody feeling sorry for him. He's going to have some fun for the next six years. He's got the best young players in the league."

Then Anderson ticked off the names — third baseman Jack Howell, shortstop Dick Schofield, first baseman Wally Joyner, outfielders Gary Pettis and Devon White, pitchers Mike Witt and Kirk McCaskill. "They can flat out play," Anderson said. "Don't worry about Gene. He's going to have some fun, and he's going to have it soon."

That's good. It is time. The man has suffered long enough, carrying the albatross of those collapses in past pennant races.

What people forget is that the '64 Phillies were the product of three reconstruction seasons, a team Mauch rebuilt from one that had finished 60 games under .500 in 1961. That was the same Phillies team that Manager Eddie Sawyer fled on the day after the 1960 season began, with this famous farewell:

"I'm 50. I want to live to be 51."

They forget that Mauch has had a lot of bad teams in that quarter of a century of managing. There were Sawyer's leftovers, then Montreal's expansion team, then Minnesota, where penurious management shipped expensive players elsewhere.

Mauch is a hard loser and that is why a newsman, assigned to do an anniversary piece on the '64 Phillies, approached the man with understandable trepidation. After making some small talk, the writer got to the point.

"What do you remember about that final week?" he asked bravely.

Mauch's eyes narrowed. He stared at the reporter, his face showing no emotion, with no hint as to how the hard question had been received.

"Not much," he said.

Then he drew on his cigarette.

"Just every damn pitch."

Many of those pitches were made by Jim Bunning, elected this week to the House of Representatives from Kentucky's Fourth District. It was Bunning's second run at elective office. He lost a previous bid for the state's governorship.

That may be a good omen for Mauch. Perhaps, if you keep trying, sooner or later, you'll win.

Immigration bill brings mixed feelings to valley

By ED ASHER
Brownsville Herald

BROWNSVILLE — Jose Ibarra has lived in constant fear of the day immigration officers would finally catch up with him and order his family to abandon the home he and his sons spent four years building.

A 49-year-old farmworker from the Mexican state of Zacatecas, Ibarra illegally crossed the Rio Grande into the United States with his family five years ago.

"I wanted my children to get a good education and have more opportunities in life," Ibarra explained.

He and most of his 12 children have labored for a normal life by picking vegetables in Hidalgo County farm fields for less than minimum wage. Without a Social Security card, his wife has been unable to find work.

The family of 14 lives in a wooden home, 20 feet by 36 feet, with six beds. It cost Ibarra five years in payments, but he says he now has a title to the tiny plot of land in a rural colonia near San Juan on which he built his home.

Since moving across the river, Ibarra has gone to the farm fields every morning wondering whether U.S. Border Patrol officers would be there waiting for him. Despite this hide-and-seek game, Ibarra says he is proud that he has been able to keep his children out of jail and most of them in school.

But Ibarra says he isn't afraid anymore. He is certain he will be granted amnesty under federal immigration reforms "because I am a hard-working man."

Some — the United Farm Workers union for example — say Ibarra and others like him deserve amnesty under provisions of the Immigration Reform and Control Act, passed by Congress a little more than a week ago.

Others say he is one of thousands of illegal aliens who, if granted amnesty, will overwhelm the already overburdened social services in the Valley. Another fear is that amnesty will only draw a whole new wave of illegal immigrants to the border hoping to gain legal residency through deception.

Immigration officials say they really don't know what to expect, other than that they too will be swamped — with amnesty applications and fraud cases.

The bill, signed into law by President Reagan yesterday morning, is the first major immigration reform legislation in the past 20 years. According to congressional estimates, the reform will grant temporary resident status to between 12 and 20 million illegal aliens who will have an opportunity to become permanent resident aliens after 18 months.

No one is venturing to guess how many illegal aliens in South Texas would qualify.

"Thousands and thousands," said David Turner, deputy district director for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in Harlingen.

"There's no question about it. There is absolutely no way we could possibly handle those numbers. We'll have to open a whole new office" to process amnesty applications.

In order to give the INS time to train personnel and set up facilities, applications will not even be accepted for at least six months after the bill becomes law, he said.

To help the INS carry out the added responsibilities, the bill provides for an extra $422 million in

"This is going to create a whole class of people, the overwhelming majority of which are in the lower echelon of society, who eventually will become eligible for social services."

fiscal 1987 and authorizes an additional $12 million for the Executive Office of Immigration Review.

The bill also provides $1 billion a year for four years to state and local governments for the added public assistance, health and education costs resulting from amnesty. And families granted amnesty would not be eligible for federally funded public assistance programs, such as the food stamp program, for five years.

But some say that is not enough. "The bottom line is that this legislation is the beginning of bad things for us along the border," said Dr. Antonio Zavaleta, a Texas Southmost College anthropology professor who has studied border problems for more than 10 years.

"This is going to create a whole class of people, the overwhelming majority of which are in the lower echelon of society, who eventually will become eligible for social services."

"The whole system, like schools, housing authorities, clinics — not to mention programs like food stamps — are going to be overwhelmed."

Zavaleta, who is also a Brownsville city commissioner, said the five-year moratorium on federal assistance will be only a buffer period. But thousands of illegal immigrants will be drawn to the area "to get under the blanket of amnesty."

"We deal on a day-to-day basis with people who are here illegally and ask for public assistance. And we know that once they are here, it is hard to turn them away," he said.

Texas Health Commissioner Robert Bernstein called the section of the bill providing for at least partial federal reimbursement to states "at least a gesture and a recognition" of problems that will confront the states.

Brian Packard, associate commissioner for budget, planning and economic analysis for the Texas Department of Human Services, said the department probably will not make an analysis of the bill's impact until mid-November.

Packard noted there is a limit to the federal funding. But he is uncertain whether the state is responsible for picking up any health costs that exceed that limit.

In addition, aliens who are granted amnesty, and who have children who were born in the United States, are likely to step forward now and claim services like Medicaid for those children, he said.

Illegal aliens are generally reluctant to claim benefits for their U.S.-born children.

"Stand by for a flood gate, the word is out," said Mike Rodriguez, Illegal aliens cross the Rio Grande along an area of low water southeast of Brownsville. Valley residents have mixed feelings about the new immigration law the President signed into effect yesterday.

president of Concerned Citizens for Church and Country, a conservative group based in Harlingen.

"What has happened by Congress even considering amnesty is that it has induced people to take a risk and enter the country illegally. Eventually, there will be a tremendous burden on our schools and social services."

However, a United Farm Workers of America spokeswoman said talk of overburdening of the welfare system has been "overblown and overplayed."

"We have always thought that the only way to end exploitation of labor (that is) here illegally was to legalize them," said Rebecca Harrington, UFW Texas Project director.

Once workers are legalized, they would no longer be afraid to complain of substandard wages, she said. Border Patrol Chief Silvestre Reyes agreed with Harrington that a lack of an illegal alien work force would tend to drive wages up.

Harrington said the legalization program, therefore, would tend to take people off welfare rolls rather than put more people on them.

Amnesty is also expected to create a huge market for counterfeit documents. Social Security cards, rent receipts, school records, even doctor and telephone bills will be at a premium. And counterfeiters are already stocking up on their supplies.

For example, U.S. Customs agents apprehended a U.S. citizen a week ago at the Hidalgo international bridge who was carrying 2,500 blank Social Security cards. The man said he paid 5,000 pesos — about $650 — to have the cards printed in Reynosa. Officials said the blank forms are worth at least $125,000 on the black market.

The Border Patrol, at least, expects to see a huge increase in personnel. They have requested an additional 150 officers, but will not know for some time how many actually will be funded.

Many businesses fear employer sanctions in the immigration bill will overtax already depressed border industries.

"The more regulations and paper work they throw at us, the more our operating costs shoot up. They are slowly killing an industry," said Dennis Holbrook, a citrus grower and president of the Texas Valley Citrus Committee.

Recent legislation, such as stiffer pesticide laws and unemployment compensation for farmworkers, have made it extremely difficult for growers to stay in business, Holbrook said.

"It's gotten to the point that there are not many people left willing to stay in the business. At this point, the rest of us are just trying to survive," he said.

Under the Immigration Reform and Control Act, employers would be fined at least $250 for each illegal alien in their employment for a first offense. The fine increases to as much as $10,000 per illegal alien for a third offense.

Employers would be required to verify all new hires by examining two of the following documents: either a U.S. passport, a U.S. birth certificate or a Social Security card and either a driver's license, state identification card or an alien identification document.

Father pleads guilty to abandoning sons

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — A man pleaded guilty Wednesday to abandoning his seven sons, who lived by themselves in poverty after their mother and grandfather died, and was sentenced three years in prison.

Thomas Wayne O'Kelley, 36, also pleaded guilty to stealing cash and farm equipment that had been willed to the boys, aged 8 to 18.

O'Kelley also was sentenced to pay $3,000 restitution, serve seven years' probation, and to have no contact with the boys until after Jan. 1 and then only through a third party. He was also ordered to undergo treatment for alcoholism for 15 years.

The brothers lived in a run-down, extended trailer house with their grandfather after their mother, Judy O'Kelley, 33, died of cancer in 1983. Her dying wish, they said, was that they remain together.

The oldest boy, Terry, 18, dropped out of school to help support the family.

The grandfather died in August, 1985, leaving debts from everything from Christmas gifts to funeral expenses and a mortgage on the 7.4-acre farm.

Their father returned to help settle the estate, then left with some of the assets, prosecutors said.

Seventeen-year-old Tommy also took a job, but his income and Terry's was not enough to support the seven youths and the four youngest were placed in a foster home.

Terry, Tommy, and Charles, 16, remained in the trailer until fire destroyed it and most of the contents last August. They now are living with a court-appointed guardian.

The four younger brothers, Jason, 8, Michael, 11, Jeff, 13 and David, 14, remain in a foster home, where they were put last May by the Hall County Department of Family and Children Services.

The guardian, poultry distributor Jack Hodge, led a community effort to build a new house for the boys and managed a fund for the youths that was raised through contributions.

By early September, when Hodge stopped releasing the amount of the donations, the fund had passed $45,000.

Hodges said Tuesday he has recommended that the fund be turned over to a bank to manage.

"It has gotten too complicated for me and the church to handle it," said Hodge. "It's all we can do just to write thank-you notes to all the people who made contributions."

He declined to give the current amount in the fund but said "it's a bunch. They've got plenty."
