Loraine Business Places Have Large Stocks Merchandise

New And Seasonable Merchandise Found In All Stores

Practically every line of business is represented in Loraine. There are four good grocers that are capable of handling lots of cotton and every gin is kept in tip-top shape and strives to give their customers every advantage possible in marketing their cotton.

No town in this section can offer the buying public a better selection of dry goods than can the four good stores here. All of the four stores are loaded with new and seasonable merchandise and the prices at which they are offering to sell this new merchandise are just as cheap, and in many instances much cheaper, than they can be bought for in other towns in this section. Every store is handling high class, nationally advertised merchandise. They can satisfy the wants of the most fastidious as well as those who prefer cheaper merchandise.

Loraine is well blessed with grocery stores and meat markets. There are seven good grocery stores and three meat markets in which the best foodstuffs obtainable can be purchased at a very low price. Every store is nicely furnished and the merchandise well displayed. No finer grocery stores can be found, even in the larger towns, than are in Loraine. Two excellent drug stores, well arranged and stocked with the finest merchandise await the shoppers here. And if you need medical attention two good doctors are ready to serve you.

A hardware and furniture store that carries a splendid line of merchandise in both hardware and furniture, and the prices on many articles are way below the average.

When you come to Loraine you can buy an automobile, get a shave, have your car repaired, and of course there are plenty of filling stations where you can get gasoline to take you back home. While you are here you can enjoy a good moving picture in one of the best play houses in this section which is equipped with the latest sound equipment. Then when you start home you can buy either ice or coal to keep you cold or warm just as you choose.

Two tailor shops, one lumber yard, a bank, hotel and cafes, feed store, beauty shops, a funeral home and a newspaper are among other lines of business represented.

The latest addition to the business interests of our city is a variety store where you can buy small items ranging in price from 5 cents to $1.

Loraine business interests are anxious for you to visit here and see for yourself that your necessities can be supplied as well as the luxuries. You will make no mistake if you come to Loraine to sell your produce or to buy your supplies. Two produce houses and the grocery stores are ready and anxious to pay you every cent the market allows for your produce. If you have not been in the habit of coming to Loraine you have a special invitation to come and trade where you will have an ample number of stores in any line of business from which to make your selections.

FATHER OF LOCAL MAN BURIED AT SAVANNAH

S. E. Sadler, 81, father of H. K. Sadler of Loraine, was buried at Savannah last Friday afternoon at three o'clock following his death after a short illness. Besides his wife Mr. Sadler is survived by seven children.

Mr. Sadler has the sympathy of the entire community in the loss of his father.

Henry Neill was in Big Spring Saturday to attend the funeral of his cousin Ed Neill.

RETIRED BUSINESS MAN BURIED MONDAY

Funeral services for H. J. Askins, retired dry goods merchant, were held at the Methodist Church Monday afternoon at three o'clock, Rev. C. B. Meador officiating.

Mr. Askins' death came as a shock to his many friends here and elsewhere as very few people knew he had been ill. He had been suffering for several days with a heart attack but apparently was recovering rapidly until late Saturday when he became worse and died a short time later.

Hugh Joseph Askins was born March 31, 1877 in Lincoln County, Tennessee, came to Texas in 1898 and settled in Taylor County at Caps. He moved from there to Snyder and was there married to Miss Bessie Clark. From Snyder he moved to Maryneal and later to Miles, thence to Loraine where he was engaged in the dry goods business.

He is survived by his wife, his mother, three sisters and two brothers.

Mr. Askins was converted and joined the Methodist Church at the age of 12 and has lived an exemplary and faithful Christian life.

Pallbearers were all old time friends. They were W. M. Morton, Will Rogge, John Alexander, of Maryneal, Willis Barbee, San Angelo, T. E. Arledge, Roscoe, Jim Wheeler, Fred Ison and Floyd Richey, Loraine.

Flower girls were Mrs. Floyd Richey, Miss Lillie Nelson, Mrs. L. May, Miss Anna Bess Wilkerson, Mrs. Dan Butler, Miss Oza Gunn, Miss Ollie Martin and Mrs. Willis Barbee.

BAPTIST W. M. U.

The W. M. U. of the Baptist Church met in their regular monthly program Tuesday evening from three to six o'clock at the church. The topic for discussion this month was "Brothers in Black."

The devotional was read by Mrs. N. J. Richburg. Mrs. Kinnison gave an interesting discussion on "Brothers in Black Over There." Mrs. Tom Ray told of "Southern Baptists in Africa." Mrs. Baird brought "Our Work for our Black Brothers Over There." Mrs. G. Miller then led the closing prayer.

A short business session was held after the program.

COTTON REPORT

The Census report shows that there were 7,065 bales of cotton ginned in Mitchell County from the crop of 1934 prior to October 1, 1934, as compared with 3,459 bales ginned to October 1, crop of 1933, according to Ed Wilson, Special agent.

RELIEF FUNDS COMING TO TEXAS

Washington.—Texas will receive $2,339,000 from federal relief funds during the month of October, the F. A. R. A. announced today.

Of this amount, $1,647,000 will be for drought relief and $500,000 for rural rehabilitation. Transients will be aided to the extent of $135,000 and students, $57,000.

COTTON ESTIMATE SLIGHTLY HIGHER

The government cotton estimate reported Monday by the department of agriculture was slightly higher than the estimate a month ago, and indicates the smallest crop since 1899 with one exception. The forecast Monday indicated a yield this year of 9,443,000 bales, an increase of 191,000 bales over the September report, and 3,604,000 bales less than the 1933 crop.

Knob Knocked At Coop Gin

Prowlers entered the office of the Cooperative Gin Company here Monday night of this week and knocked the knob off the office safe but failed to gain entrance into it. No money was in the safe but some valuable papers were kept in it and the officials of the gin were having a hard time opening the safe Tuesday morning to get them.

Nothing was taken from the office except a peanut vending machine, which contained several pennies.

Entrance into the office was gained through a north window.

The drill bit was taken to Abilene to be examined for finger prints.

POOL FOR EXEMPTION CERTIFICATES NOW OPEN

County Agent B. J. Baskin announced Thursday that a pool is now open to farmers in which they may place their excess tax exemption certificates. They may go to his office at any time and place their certificates in the pool.

THORNHILL OWNS TWO BUSINESSES IN LORAIN

Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Thornhill, who came to Loraine from Laheesa about the first of this year and bought the H. J. Askins dry goods store, have recently added a variety store to their holdings here.

Both of these stores carry a complete stock of quality merchandise.

WIMBERLEY MOTOR CO. SELLS CHEVROLET CARS

V. H. Wimberley, owner of the Wimberley Motor Company, is agent in this territory for the Chevrolet cars and trucks. He also maintains a parts and repair department to service cars and trucks.

LORAIN MERCANTILE OLDEST FIRM IN TOWN

The Loraine Mercantile Company is one of the oldest firms in Loraine. The store was first opened in 1905 by Gregg and Altman and occupied a frame building where the Meek Ice House now stands. A year or two later Mr. Gregg sold his interest and the Loraine Mercantile Company was organized. The company was composed of F. W. and S. W. Altman and T. R. Bennett. In 1908 the firm occupied a building where the News office is now. Later it moved to the location it now occupies.

During the twenty-eight years the Loraine Mercantile Company has been serving the people of this territory it has seen many ups and downs in the business world. For many years this firm was known far and wide for the large stock of goods carried and its activity in the cotton market.

Today the Loraine Mercantile Company carries a good stock of high class merchandise although it is not as large as it has been in years past. They carry well known brands of merchandise of the kind the people in this territory demand.

SOPHOMORE NEWS

The Sophomore class of 34-35 met at the beginning of the school year elected: M. F. James, President; G. W. Allbright, Vice President; Lillan Hendrick, Secretary-Treasurer; Ruth Anne Hall, Reporter.

The Sophomore class plans on being the best class in Loraine High School even if it is the smallest. They were just "Fish" last year and were looked down on but this year they are going to be looked up to. Our dear old sponsor Ed. E. Williams is looking forward for us to be a leading class too. So, on to victory Sophs.

EMPLOYMENT & PAYROLLS IMPROVE IN TEXAS

Austin, Texas, Oct. 8.—A moderate improvement over both Aug. of the current year and September, 1933, was recorded in employment and payrolls in Texas during September, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. Reports from 1,578 establishments for the week ending September 15 gave a total of 86,248 employees, a gain of 1.9 per cent over August and 8.3 per cent over the corresponding week last year. Payrolls for these establishments aggregated $1,928,000, a gain of 4.4 per cent over August and 13 per cent over the corresponding week in September 1933.

P. T. A.

The P. T. A. open house Thursday evening, October 4, was well attended and the enrollment in the organization increased. The 11 room mothers acted as hostesses and tables were placed in the hallway where guests registered for each room in which they had children enrolled.

The program was opened with a band concert under the direction of W. L. Leggett. The numbers were well rendered, the band looked very snappy in their uniforms and the audience was very appreciative.

Gloria Martin gave a beautiful tribute to childhood as she read "A Child Am I," which was followed by the high light of the program, an address by Rev. Dick O'Brien, "The Home Start." Rev. O'Brien never fails to leave with his audience the very best of the highest ideals of living.

Mr. Bennett invited the guests down stairs for refreshments and the social hour was interspersed with serving of coffee and sandwiches.

The P. T. A. plans on this being its banner year.

FRED ISON HAS NEW DRY GOODS STORE HERE

Fred Ison has been known for years by people throughout this territory but only since February of this year have they had the opportunity to meet him in his own store. In February he put in a small stock of new dry goods. Since then he has increased his stock until he has among the best in Loraine.

Loraine Most Progressive Town In West Texas

URNS CAR OVER BUT NONE BADLY HURT

While driving to the cotton field Monday morning Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Wilkerson and their son Jack narrowly escaped serious injury when their car overturned near the Wiley Walker place. Jack was driving and when he approached a cross road another car driven by Houston Narrell stopped and to avoid a collision Jack turned into the ditch and the car overturned.

Mrs. Wilkerson was thrown through the back glass of the car but suffered only slight cuts and bruises. Jack and his father were not hurt. The car was damaged considerably.

STATE SCHOOL FUND BOOSTED MILLION DOLLARS

Austin, Tex., Oct. 9: The state common school fund received the record total of $8,430,112 as its one-fourth "cut" of Texas' gasoline tax income for the fiscal year which ended August 31, or nearly $1,000,000 more than in every previous year, Comptroller George H. Sheppard announced today. Schools receive one cent of the four-cent state gas tax.

Proportionate boosts went to the Board of County and District Road Bond Indebtedness, which also receives one cent of the tax, and the highway fund, which gets the remaining two cents.

Working his first full fiscal year with an adequate field force under the state's strong new "anti-bootleg" law, the comptroller boosted gas tax income $4,036,845 above last year to an all-time high total of $33,984,848, his annual report showed.

He attributed almost the entire gain to record enforcement activity and the educational campaign of the Texas Good Roads Association. In his state-wide drive against the tax-stealing "racket" his 50 field men filed 19 felony and 71 misdemeanor charges during the year, he reported.

The $33,984,848 income is broken up into three parts. In addition to the $8,436,212 for schools, another $8,496,212 goes to county tax relief in the refunding of county road bonds. Whereas the fund last year was able to pay all interest on such bonds but only 30 percent of the principal, the increase will permit paying of all interest and at least half the principal maturities, if not more, Mr. Sheppard estimated.

The remainder of the gas tax, or $16,992,424, is still devoted to the original purpose for which the tax was invented—construction and maintenance of state highways.

473 HIGH SCHOOL ENTER INTERSCHOLASTIC FOOTBALL

Austin, Texas, Oct. 8.—Enrollment in the University of Texas Interscholastic League football contest for 1934 totals 473 high schools of the State, according to Roy B. Hemmerson, athletic director of the University Bureau of Public School Interests. There are 89 schools participating in Conference A, comprised of schools of 500 or more enrollment; 323 schools participating in Conference B, comprised of schools of 150-500 enrollment; and 61 schools participating in Conference C, comprised of schools of below 150 enrollment.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation to our many friends who assisted us in any way during the illness and death of our beloved husband brother and uncle. Your words of sympathy and deeds of kindness will always be remembered.

Mrs. H. J. Askins and Relatives.
J. H. Brown and Will Terry of Ackerley, former residents of Loraine were visitors here Tuesday.

More New Buildings Here Than Any Town In This Section

In one respect at least Loraine is the most progressive town in West Texas. More new business buildings have been built here the past three years than any other town in this section. In fact Loraine is about the only town in these parts where any building has been done for several years.

All of the building operations, however, have been done by one man who was foresighted enough three years ago to start remodeling and building five business houses. To most people times were too hard and business was too discouraging to make any move of this kind, but H. Ohlenbusch looked into the future and saw the need for new places of business. He foresaw that new buildings with modern fronts would be in demand for a place in which to do business, and he built them. He also saw the need for employment and gave employment to several men all through the three years. It has meant a nice little payroll during the times when it was really needed. Now Mr. Ohlenbusch has some property that is worth something to him and to the town.

The five buildings are all occupied by stores that are modern.

Minor improvements have been made to other business buildings in town but Mr. Ohlenbusch has led in building operations. Two of the new buildings were built of native rock and are very attractive buildings.

Since the depression started in 1929 eight new business enterprises have opened their doors in Loraine. All of them are still here except one hardware store which was sold and moved to Colorado. These new enterprises have added a great deal to Loraine and will continue to do their part toward making Loraine the best trading center in all West Texas.

We venture to say that there is no other town in all of Texas, excluding oil field towns, in which that number of new enterprises has been opened during the depression. The fact is that most towns lost business institutions.

TEXAS AND MEXICO TO BENEFIT BY NEW HIGHWAY

Dallas, Texas, Oct. 6.—When Texans celebrate 100 years of freedom and progress in 1936 with appropriate ceremonies at San Antonio, Houston, Galveston, Brenham, Nacogdoches, Huntsville, Gonzales, Galveston, Dallas and other points identified with development of the State, they will have an opportunity to impress thousands of visitors who will pass through Texas cities on their way to the glamorous land of Mexico.

Fast becoming a popular vacation land for Americans, Mexico is due to enjoy a tremendous increase in automobile traffic by 1936 as the Pan-American Highway, extending from the Rio Grande to Mexico City and points farther South will be opened by them. Texas will benefit by this travel and will have an opportunity to reap vast returns from the impression that can be made by proper observance of the Centennial.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt will be invited to come to Texas in 1936 when the Pan-American Highway is opened thus calling it to the attention of citizens all over the Nation. Opening of the highway from Laredo to Monterrey a few years ago brought a prosperity to Mexico City, which has climbed steadily to higher pinnacles even during the depression.

The opening of the Pan-American Highway, therefore, is expected to increase enormously automobile touring into Mexico and Texas, at the gateway, will benefit.

Loraine merchants are launching a drive for new customers, and well they might for at no time during past several years were they better prepared to serve the buying public. Every store in town is chuck full of new and seasonable merchandise at a price that is in many instances much cheaper than in other towns on the same quality.

Practically every line of business is represented here. We have four good dry goods stores, one of them just opened for business last February and another has been under new management since the first of the year. All of them have new merchandise and are featuring nationally known and advertised goods and if you buy from any of them you get the best merchandise obtainable for the money.

Loraine is well blessed with grocery stores, all of them independently owned and operated by citizens of Loraine. Some of them have been in business here for a number of years while at least three of them have been established less than two years. The leading brands of grocery articles can be found on their shelves and you are assured that they are fresh and palatable. Three of the stores have meat markets where fresh and cured meats of the finest quality are found.

If you want hardware or furniture an ample stock awaits you in a modern store. In fact Loraine offers the buying public every service. If you want to see and hear a good picture Loraine has the best theatre in this section. A brand new variety store is being opened this week to supply your needs in this line.

Loraine is the only town in this section in which new business houses have been built for several years, and it is the only one we know of where new business enterprises have been established during the past few years.

We join with the merchants of Loraine in extending you an invitation to come and see the splendid array of merchandise that awaits you. You will not be disappointed.

SO LIVE

Some wag recently wrote, "So live that when the minister has concluded his remarks, those present will not wonder if they have attended the wrong funeral."

All men, and possibly some of the ladies, fall short of perfection. In fact the too perfect individual is viewed with no little suspicion by those ordinary mortals who recognize their own shortcomings. The man who is too good to be true may have admirers but his intimate associates are few.

Thus however, is no bar toward earnest endeavor to build character to act with integrity and to combine high principles for one's own conduct with tolerance toward the seeming faults of others.

In no place more than in business dealings do we have the opportunity to demonstrate real character. The unselfish at home are often the greedy and grasping in business. Those who give readily to the poor are sometimes not beyond driving a hard and unfair bargain in trade, and those who detest a liar have even been known to jot down mysterious figures on copy for a job of printing in the hope that some guileless printer might assume these were the bid of a competitor and offer a lower price.

It is evident what the average family needs is food, clothing, houses, automobiles, radios, and a big income with which to pay taxes. But instead of being able to enjoy them in increasing measure, the contrary is in fact, the case.

The fact is that no country is giving its own citizens sufficient purchasing power to consume their own production, which means that each country is anxious to export and not import. If each country gave its own citizens enough purchasing power to consume the whole of their own production, then no country would have any objection to exporting their surplus and receiving it back in exchange for the production of other countries. They would have enough purchasing power to consume both the retained portion of their own production and the imports which they received in exchange for their exports.

Only by a sane monetary system, nationally and internationally, will it be possible to solve this and the other problems which are now exercising the minds of all thinking men and would eliminate the destruction of food, which has so shocked the conscience of the world.

BANKHEAD ACT SUPPORTED BY BOARD MEMBERS

College Station—"We come to the concluding days of issuing the 90 per cent of tax exemption certificates in the midst of a good deal of talk about suspending the operation of the Bankhead Act, when even the author of the Act is quoted, or misquoted, as being opposed to the operation of the law he sponsored.

"R. M. Hubbard, member of the Cotton allotment Board from New Boston, said in a statement issued from the Board's headquarters. "Speaking for myself and my fellow Board members, in spite of the enormous task with which we have labored all summer and in spite of all the difficulties which are in the way of administering this piece of legislation, we think it is suspension would be a mistake resulting in loss of faith and money by thousands of cotton farmers who cooperated with the Government in the cotton control program.

"The cotton surplus is by no means down to normal. The emergency which brought the legislation into existence is not past. Upon the welfare of the cotton producer depends the business welfare of the whole South and in a measure of the whole nation. The really critical period in the cotton control program will be reached next year. Without acreage control our surplus will again pile up. Perhaps the Bankhead Act should be modified, we who have administered it in the largest cotton state in the Union could easily suggest ways to iron out some rough places, but if it is taken away altogether the benefits already in sight will be lost and the forward steps to place the cotton growing section of the country on a level with the rest of the nation will be nullified.

"Cotton acreage should be held to a safe figure until world conditions again become normal and world purchasing power is restored. The Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal Trade Commission and the Tariff Commission are set up and functioning to aid and control business and industry in the solution and adjustment of certain of their problems and difficulties. Why may not agriculture have the aid of government agencies in the solution and adjustment of agricultural problems and difficulties?

"In the opinion of most well informed people, we will have government control and supervision of industry for many years to come. Unless the cotton control plans are continued, industry and labor may reap temporary benefits, many of which will be at the expense of agriculture, but then all will lose in the long run. Recent history establishes that, and it is now generally conceded that unless agriculture prospers, industry languishes in proportion, and labor suffers correspondingly.

"The major objective of the AAA was to place prices of farm products on a parity with the things farmers have to buy. We must not lose sight of the important fact that there is still a wide gap between the two sets of places. Drought and the devaluation of the dollar, it is true, account for some of the increase in prices of farm products, but AAA, undoubtedly, is responsible for a major part of the gains.

"No one can deny that so far agriculture has been materially benefited. It has been lifted out of the depths of despair. Can it afford to run the risk of again be-

TEXAS CENTENNIAL TO CAUSE MORE ROAD WORK

Dallas, Texas, Oct. 2. (Special) — A marked impetus in the building of new roads and the repair of old ones is expected in Texas during the ensuing eight months as result of plans for the 1936 Centennial of the State's independence.

At a recent meeting at Terrell, D. K. Martin, State highway commissioner, declared that body expected to spend most of its revenues during the next two years to prepare the highway of the State for the anticipated augmented traffic coincident with the Exposition, for which a connected road system is proposed.

Particular attention will be paid to the roads leading to San Antonio, Houston, Galveston, Brenham, Nacogdoches, Huntsville, Gonzales, Galveston, Dallas and other cities of the State, where the several phases of the Centennial celebration will be held.

Included in the projects which the highway commission will be requested to complete at the earliest possible moment are:

Paving of the 40-mile gap between Rusk and Woodville on the Beaumont-Dallas highway.

Paving of the gap between Dalhart and Memphis on the road leading in from Denver.

The resurfacing of several spots near Van Horn in the highway leading in from California and passing through El Paso.

The repair and paving of several gaps in the highway leading to Santa Fe through Lubbock.

The resurfacing of portions of the highway to Texarkana and Shreveport from Dallas.

Paving of the gap between Denton and Gainesville on the road to Oklahoma City.

It was pointed out that this improvement program would put hundreds of men to work in all sections of the State.

Twice as much chic—that's the fashion secret of this cape ensemble. On the street, one likes a wrap of some sort, and a snappy detachable cape will do the trick! CHAPTER V

Jean Gerard regarded the desk in the gun room at High Ledges with pursed lips and angry eyes.

"Gee, but you make me mad!" She addressed the piece of furniture as if it were maliciously responsible for her frustration. She wriggled a hairpin in the lock of the top drawer. Then with teeth set, she grasped the handles, jerked with all her strength. The drawer came out with a suddenness which sent her sprawling and scattered three letters from the desk onto the floor.

Ruefully she rubbed the back of her head. She knelt beside the drawer and eagerly examined its contents. There were several photographs of a pretty girl. One showed her in bouffant tulle on the back of a horse. Jean's eyes dilated.

"Circus rider!" she crooned. "Goody, I'll see one like her tomorrow." She turned the photograph over. On the back was scrawled:

"Miraculous escape. From Callo and Calloway to liberty and— Fondly, Milly."

"She's a cutie all right. I— Jean gulped as a shadow fell across the photograph.

"Where's your uncle?" The photograph fell from her hand and lay with piquant, smiling face upward as Jean stared at the scowling man who loomed over her.

"I—don't know. Shall I try to find him, Mr. Calloway?" Len Calloway removed his glance from the pictures and letters on the floor long enough to glare at her.

"Tell him I want to talk with him. Scram!"

Frightened at the grayness of his face, Jean fled. She scurried through the different rooms. Called. No answer. She had better go back and tell Mr. Calloway.

As she entered the gun room, one of the long French windows banged.

"He's gone. I guess that's that."

She dropped to her knees beside the drawer. Better put it back before anyone saw it. She scrambled up the contents. Where was the picture of the cutie circus rider? Gone. Had Mr. Calloway taken it? Why should he want it? Would her uncle be mad with her for having touched the desk?

"I'd better get a move on."

She hurriedly replaced the drawer, picked up the letters. Only two! There had been three when they fell. Had Mr. Calloway snatched one? What would he do with it? "Gee, have I started something?" she thought.

In the library after dinner, Rodney Gerard glanced at Jean speculatively as she bent demurely over a book. Her absorption was out of character. She was too quiet. She had been prying with rather frightening results; he recognized the symptoms.

He glanced about the room as he refilled his pipe. Good room. Big, yet not too full of things, mellow, dignified. Not too bad a place in which to spend part of a winter. He glanced at his sister-in-law knitting rapidly in the light of one of the softly shaded lamps. Not so restful. He was in for battle. He'd better go to it.

Mrs. Walter Gerard looked up. She laid down her knitting.

I have planned to close the house der his feet, and that's where she would be.

"I appreciate your kindness, Annie, but Jim Armstrong, one of my roommates at college, who is a forester, will arrive soon to look over the timber and advise me as to what should come out. I hate like the dickens to say it, but you have been so kind to keep house for me this summer, but I would prefer not to have you here."

Jean flung herself at Gerard. "Hey there, Kurlous Kid, go slow. Want to push me into the fire?" The girl's grip tightened.

"Uncle Rod, please let me stay with you, please! I'm not going to school this winter anyway. I hate New York, and Mother and Father are always fighting, and I love to be with you, and I'll be a perfect lady, honest I will. Please let me stay. I'm—I'm always sort of peaceful with you."

Gerard's eyes were tender as he looked down at the pleading face. Peaceful. Poor, lonely kid. She did have a tough time. Not much fun living with her parents. Walter rarely came to High Ledges now. Was it too dull for him, or were there other reasons?

Should he let Jean stay? He was fond of the funny little thing. True Schogler was taking an interest in her; she was making her happy, more human than the English child she had been.

"What say, Annie? Will you let Jean stay with me until after Christmas? No," he anticipated, as his sister-in-law started to speak. "It will upset my plans to have you here; besides, you should be in New York with Walter."

"Walter doesn't want me, either."

For the first time since he had known her, Rodney heard Annie Gerard acknowledge defeat. Mighty hard on her. Walter was a bad egg, of course, but she had a cruel tongue and was so affected. That didn't excuse Walt; a me. I'm as excited as any kid in the crowd."

The girl's brilliant eyes met his.

"It's got me, too. I'm shaking with excitement. Here they come! I wonder if we'll see Chicot."

Music nearer now. A band in brilliant red coats, tall shakos on their heads, passed playing, "Stars and Stripes Forever." Countless feet tapping the rhythm. Countless throats humming the tune.

Everywhere the glitter of rhinestones among sequins. Everyone gay. Everyone smiling. The parade was hitting on all cylinders.

"Elephants are coming! Hold your horses!"

An enormous elephant led the herd, the scarlet coated man on his head seemed like a midge, the keepers strutting at his side more penguins.

Gerard felt Jean's fingers tighten in his, heard her quick breath of relief as the unwieldy beast passed. Prudence caught her free hand and smiled. Had she sensed the child's fear?

A monkey-faced clown commenced to beat up a gigantic police-crowned Jean walked.

"Chicot isn't there. He said he'd wink at me." Her eyes were deep wells of disappointment. Gerard squeezed the thin fingers sympathetically.

"Take it easy, K. K. He'll come. There he is now! See him? See him?" He caught her under the arms and lifted her for an instant. "He's on that funny little bicycle. See him?"

She nodded excited assent. He set her on her feet. "See how the big fat-faced clown on the motorcycle behind him keeps butting into his hind wheel?"

Chicot has a balloon. A red balloon like yours, K. K. He'll see you in a minute."

Prudence laughed up at him. "Chicot must have a magic charm for attracting hearts. Jean is positively tearful over him, and I warned to him at once."

"If he has touched your shellacked head, I'll offer him a fortune for his—"

"You are missing the comedy," Prue reminded crisply.

As Chicot came abreast of Jean, his balloon popped. With heart-rending sobbs he shook the bit of rubber toward the girl.

"Well of all people! If here isn't the new number firm of Schuyler and Gerard eating popcorn and watching the elephants!"

Calloway's taunting voice at his shoulder sent the blood in Rodney Gerard's body rushing to his ears in blinding, black anger. His furious eyes met the mocking eyes on a level with his.

"Shut up, Calloway! You—"

"Take mine, Chicot! Take mine!"

with mammoth black and red posters.

Gerard parked the roadster on a side street. Jean's feet barely touched the ground as between Prudence and her uncle she was swept along in the hurrying crowd. She stopped short in front of a poster showing an equestrienne in rose-color tulle skirts and a brief bodice, with the caption:

MADemoiselle MILLIE

"Why, there's my cutie—"

Gerard looked at her sharply as she bit off the next word.

"What do you mean, K. K. You—"

"Buy the kid a balloon! Buy the kid a balloon! Buy the kid a balloon!"

The hatless man with an unkempt mane of black hair and a flock of colored balloons straining at their leashes, blocked the way. Jean's eyes were like dancing stars.

"May I have one, Uncle Rod?"

"Sure. Choose the color. Have one, Prue?"

"Of course. I want that fat green one which looks as if it were about to burst from its own importance."

What fun she was! How friendly she had been on the drive over. Had she buried the hatchet she seemed always to have up her sleeve for him? She was so alive mentally and physically. Life never could get one by the throat if one had a girl like her with whom to travel through the years.

Rodney thought.

"It's coming! The parade's coming!" Prudence gripped Gerard's arm.

"Hear that bugle, Jean?"

Rodney pushed Jean in front of him. Crushed his arm against his side to keep Prue's hand there. Far down the street was a restless sea of waving plumes, shining helmets, brilliant flags.

Music billowed forward. Snarls. Drums. Cornets. Clarinets. He said to Prudence:

"The thrill of the Big Top. It's got Jean's excited voice cut into her uncle's. She darted forward. Rodney grabbed her. Missed. The motorcycle clown, looking back in a parting wisecrack, shot forward at full speed. The crowd shrieked. Chicot caught the girl. Flung her back with all his force. The panic-stricken cyclist crashed into him.

Acorns after, it seemed to Rodney Gerard, the physician, bending over

"Be a Good—Girl, Milly."

Jean's limp figure on the black hat-cloth sofa in a nearby house, straightened.

"She's coming out of it all right. Prolonged faint from shock. Better get her home as soon as she can sit up."

Prudence whispered:

"Don't look so agonized, Rodney. See, her eyelids are quivering."

"I'm all shot to pieces over this. I—I didn't know how much I cared for the Kurlous—" Gerard choked on the words.

Across the room on the floor where they had dropped him lay the clown. Rodney Gerard bent over the twisted body, laid his hand on the dirt-streaked shoulder.

"You saved her, Chicot. Can you hear? You—"

"Let me in! Where's Grandpop? Let me in!"

A girl, in the cotton velvets and plumed hat of a circus rider on parade, burst into the room. Patches of rouge stood out like fever spots on her colorless face. Her black eyes were distended with fright. With a short she flung herself to her knees before Chicot, put her arms under the old clown's shoulders, and lifted him until his head rested against her breast.

A spasm of pain contorted the grotesque face. The lids under their painted brows opened. He tried to put his hand over hers. It wavered feebly and dropped. His whisper seemed to fill the still room.

"Be a good—girl, Milly. You'll be a—great—rider—if you keep at it. I've kept you—with me—you're safe—now. I—must—get up. Time—for—my act—"

The last faint word fluttered in a sigh. Chalky lids drooped over dulled eyes. The crumpled figure settled lower in the girl's arms.

"Grandpop! Grandpop! Don't leave me! I can't bear it to have you hurt! First I hurt you and now—"

The physician gently loosened the girl's arms and eased the body of the old clown to the floor. Rodney Gerard laid his hand on her shoulder.

Confederation Articles

and U. S. Constitution

The articles of confederation conferred upon congress none but the delegated powers and recognized the absolute sovereignty of the states, notes a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Aside from the right to make war and peace, regulate foreign intercourse, receive and send ambassadors, control and coinage of money, and settle disputed boundaries, congress had no power to act without the consent of nine of the states, each casting one ballot. It could not levy taxes, and before 1787 the war debt had destroyed the financial reputation of the United States abroad.

The states were divided in their interests, and at the last Colonial congress but eight of the states sent delegates. Not the least of the weaknesses of the confederation was the nonprovision of a chief magistrate, or for a national judiciary.

To meet these needs it was found necessary to frame a new Constitution, systematically organizing a permanent form of government.

This document arranges the powers of government under three heads—legislative, executive and judicial—and places the supreme power in the people of the whole country, instead of vainly endeavoring to maintain a multitude of independent states. It replaced a disjointed confederacy of jealous states with a nation.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for October 14

THE CHRISTIAN AND HIS BIBLE

LESSON TEXT—Acts 8:26-39. GOLDEN TEXT—O how love I thy law! It is my meditation all the day. Psalm 119:97.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Learning From God's Book.

JUNIOR TOPIC—An Ethiopian Finds Good News in the Bible.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Finding Time for Bible Study.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Study the Bible.

In the conversion of the Ethiopian we not only see the Word of God in relation to the salvation of a sinner, but the Lord's work broadening in its scope.

I. Philip Meeting the Ethiopian (vv. 26-29).

1. Leaving the Lord's work by Divine direction (v. 26). The Lord called Philip away from a great work in Samaria, and specifically directed him to this man, Abrahamlike, he obeyed the divine command, not knowing why he should leave the work in Samaria and go into a desert place. As he journeyed on by faith, he espied the state chariot of the Ethiopian treasurer. The Spirit of God directed him to go near and join himself to the chariot. The tactful question put to the treasurer gained him a seat by the side of this dignified officer. The commission which at first seemed so unpromising was now clear. The way of faith begins in obscurity, but it always ends in the clear light.

2. An officer of state reading the Bible (vv. 27, 28). The Ethiopian had been to Jerusalem to worship. Despite his high official position, he was not ashamed to be a worshiper of God. Following after God should not be considered beneath the dignity of a statesman. Indeed, the world's greatest statesmen have been God-fearing men.

3. A providential meeting in the desert (v. 29). The coming together of these two men was clearly the predetermined way of God. God knew the road which the eunuch would be traveling, and the time of his passing through Gaza.

II. Philip Preaching to the Ethiopian (vv. 30-35).

1. The Ethiopian's employment while journeying (v. 30). His occupation at the time of this meeting was reading the Word of God. At the invitation of the Ethiopian, Philip joined himself to the chariot and found him reading from the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah. God will eventually show the way of life to the one who searches his Word.

2. The absolute need of an interpreter (v. 31). The Ethiopian was reading one of the clearest testimonies to the Messiah in the Old Testament, yet he was unable to understand it. The Ethiopian, a great statesman, needed an interpreter of the Scriptures. The mind of the natural man is blind to spiritual things, making the work of an evangelist indispensable. Preaching the Word of God will always be necessary. Valuable as is the Bible in the hands of men, the touch and influence of the living man who has experienced the work of God's saving grace in his own heart is needed.

3. Philip's message (vv. 32-35). He began at the Scripture which the Ethiopian was reading, and preached unto him Jesus. This shows us that the person represented in the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah as suffering in the stead of others was Jesus Christ. Instead of Israel, it shows also that the central theme of the preacher's message should be Jesus. He did not preach Jesus as a great teacher, but as a Saviour who had suffered and died instead of the sinner. He preached Jesus as the one who had offered himself as a ransom for many. If there is to be a revival, there must be a return to the preaching of salvation through the shed blood of Jesus Christ.

III. Philip Baptizing the Ethiopian (vv. 36-38).

As a result of Philip's preaching, the eunuch proposed baptism. When Christ is truly preached, men naturally desire to confess him in baptism. Water baptism is clearly included in the program of evangelization. The Ethiopian might have offered many excuses as to why he should neglect this important ordinance, but, like every man who is honest before God, he was willing at any cost to render obedience. It is faith in the finished work of Jesus Christ that saves, but those who have a genuine faith desire to seal it in baptism.

IV. The Ethiopian Rejoicing (v. 39). Having understood the way of salvation, embraced the Saviour, and rendered obedience to the Word of God, he went on his way rejoicing. Confession of Christ always issues in joy.

Rights of Others

Everywhere the Gospel bids the Christian to take sides against himself. He is to stand ready to forego his surest rights, if only he is hurt by so doing; while on the other hand, he is to be watchful to respect even the least obvious rights of others.—Dr. H. C. G. Moule.

Hurry and Despatch

No two things differ more than hurry and despatch. Hurry is the mark of a weak mind; despatch of a strong one.—Colton.

Crochet Motif for Bedspread

A bedspread in crochet is a work of art, attracts attention and frequently becomes an heirloom. A spread crocheted in one piece becomes cumbersome as the work progresses. How much simpler to crochet one motif at a time and then assemble the motifs to complete spread. Watch your work grow when it can be taken along with you to social gatherings.

The above illustration represents the "Snow Flake" motif and how it shows up when put together. This motif when made of carpet warp measures six inches. Thirty-two motifs can be made from one pound of warp. This is only one of the 29 motifs shown in our book No. 27 on motif bedspreads. These motifs can also be used to make match sets for bedroom: curtains, pillows, chair-backs, scarfs, etc.

Write our crochet department enclosing 15c for this book No. 27, illustrated, with instructions, or send 25c and receive also book No. 26, with 72 edgings and insertions in crochet for all purposes.

Tomb Centuries Old

What is described as a "beautifully painted tomb nearly fifty centuries old" has been discovered. The tomb belonged to Tisson, presumably a member of the Council of Ten comprising the executive of the then Egyptian government. The paintings are in colors so fresh that they look nearly new.

TEXAS EXPECTS 20 MILLION VISITORS IN 1936

Dallas, Texas, Oct. 9.—(Special) Twenty million visitors will be attracted to Texas in 1936 by the celebrations of the State's Centennial being planned by San Antonio, Houston, Galveston, Brenham, Nacogdoches, Huntsville, Dallas and other Texas cities. It is anticipated in view of the record of Chicago's Century of Progress and the ordinary annual movement of tourists into States offering no special event as an attraction and Texans are beginning to estimate the beneficial effects of such a tremendous influx into the confines of their State. In this connection, figures compiled by the Highway Department of Wisconsin, with a tourist season of only 100 days, are interesting and these figures multiplied by the impressive number of tourists Texas confidently is expecting to entertain in its Centennial year will furnish some startling totals.

The expected twenty million visitors to Texas will consume 320 million eggs, 280 million pounds of butter, 240 million pounds of peas, cabbage, beans, etc., 300 million quarts of milk and 150 million pounds of meat in eating approximately a billion meals in Texas.

These seemingly large totals definitely indicate that every man, woman and child in the State should be directly affected and financially benefited during the Centennial year. Unquestionably Texas' farms, dairies, gardens and factories will not be able to meet the demand and the direct result on business conditions in the State should not be underestimated.

Not the least important in direct benefit will be those who labor, as it easily can be understood that to produce the food and commodities necessary to receive and entertain such an enormous host of visitors, while serving and caring for their every need during their stay in the State, will require the assistance of multiplied hundreds of thousands of hands.

GEORGE MAHON GETS SUIT FROM TECH AND PUBLICITY FROM S-T

Free publicity and a free suit were all in last week's work for George Mahon, congressman-elect from this new 19th district.

The publicity, with a three-column picture, was the Fort Worth Star-Telegram's way of telling its readers about some of the personal things concerning George, his family, his tactics, his hopes, his life.

Fifteen hundred persons were estimated to have witnessed the presentation of a suit of clothes made of Texas Tech wool, bred, grown and woven on the campus at the Lubbock school, to the new congressman, at the Panhandle-South Plains fair grounds Friday afternoon.

The reception group included Parker F. Prouty, president of the fair association, Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Texas Technological College, and Clark M. Mullican, Lubbock runoff opponent of Mr. Mahon in the congressional race.

Similar suits have been made and presented to President Roosevelt, Vice President Garner, and others. The material was gray in color, and was cut to measure by a Lubbock tailor.

COTTON PLANTS AND BURS AS FEED

Many farmers for a long time have been accustomed to turning livestock into the cotton fields after the cotton has been harvested. There appears to be no reason at the present time and under the present conditions of shortage of forage why greater advantages should not be taken of the feeding value of the cotton plant. The green leaves when dried contain on an average about 12 per cent protein and have a productive energy of about 50 therms per 100 pounds. They have about the same feeding value as good quality alfalfa hay. The stalks are woody, contain about 7 per cent protein and 41 per cent fiber so that they have a feeding value much lower than that of the leaves and probably about the same as cottonseed hulls. Fresh green stalks are less woody and more valuable for feeding purposes than the older stalks.

It might be possible to harvest and dry some of the cotton plants, thereby making them into a hay. The leaves are likely to fall off as the plant dries and may be lost if care is not taken in handling them. As the leaves are the most valuable part of the plant, such loss should not be allowed to occur. Fresh green growth which may occur in the fall if it rains should be especially desirable for feeding purposes.

Silage has in some cases been made of cotton plants but results have not always been satisfactory so that the silage has been of poor quality. In this as in everything else, experience is necessary.

Cotton burs contain about 2% digestible protein and 23 therms of productive energy in 100 pounds. They have about one-third more feeding value than cottonseed hulls. This applies to the clean burs free from sand, earth, or trash. At some gins, there are piles of burs which are sufficiently free from sand or earth to be suitable for feeding purposes. They frequently contain small amounts of seed which add to the feeding value. In many cases, the cotton pin trash, burs, etc. from the gins contain such large quantities of sand and earth that they are entirely unsuitable for feeding. The dirt present is likely to injure the animal. Some of these piles of cleanings contain as much as 30 per cent of sand or earth. Such cotton pin trash as burs should not be fed but there are other lots which are sufficiently free from dirt to enable them to be fed.

The cotton plant offers a good source of forage to use at the present time of emergency from the drought if it is properly saved and utilized.

Fain Bros. Grocery Among Youngest Business Concerns

Fain Brothers Grocery store is among the youngest business firms in Lorraine. The store was established August 12, 1933, by A. O. and V. H. Fain. At that time a very small sack of groceries was kept but their business has grown and now a full stock of staple and fancy groceries can be purchased from them. They have a nice store and a good stock of merchandise.

Spray Gun New Weapon for Enforcers of Law

Tear gas or a smoke screen, or both, may be discharged to quell riots or to subdue barricaded criminals by policemen equipped with a new weapon resembling a paint spray gun, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Two tanks, one containing gas compressed to a liquid and the other a liquid that turns into a smoke-like gas when released into the air, are carried on the policeman's back. By turning a valve on the gun, the operator may prepare to discharge either gas or a combination of the two.

When the trigger is pressed, the gas is projected several feet in a volume 200 times that of the liquid in the tanks. Flexible metal tubes connect the gun to the tanks. The operator is protected by a gas mask. The smoke gas may be used to confuse criminals or rioters, as well as to shield a police squad from the eyes of gunmen, while the tear gas is held in reserve in the event of continued resistance.

The gas may be directed through the keyhole, under the door or through a hole bored by a pistol bullet through the door of a criminal's hideout. In several respects, the gas gun is superior to the gas bomb, which occasionally fails to explode and which cannot be directed with as great accuracy.

Age 13

Old enough for strong drugs?

It is not wise to give a laxative of adult strength to a child, just because you give it less often or in less amounts.

Stomach upsets and bowel troubles of growing children can often be traced to this single mistake.

There is a better way to relieve these occasional sluggish spells of constipation in a child of any age.

Use a liquid laxative containing senna (a natural laxative). California Syrup of Figs has the right amount for children's use, and this rich, fruity syrup does not harm or upset a child's system.

Doctors advise liquid laxatives, and hospitals use the liquid form. Almost any child who has been convalescing in the hospital usually comes out with bowels working like a well-regulated watch.

Make the change now to pure, California Syrup of Figs instead of harsh medicines, you won't risk any more violence to your child's appetite, digestion, and general physical condition. Those little upsets and complaints just disappear as a rule and the child is soon normal and happy again.

THE "LIQUID TEST." First: select a liquid laxative of the proper strength for children. Second: give the dose twice a day for three days. Third: reduce the dose, if repeated, until the bowels are moving without any help at all.

An ideal laxative for this purpose is the pure California Syrup of Figs, but be sure the word "California" is on the bottle.

Eternal Truth

It is cheaper to keep peace than it is to "make" it later.

For good digestion

—there is nothing that can take the place of your own gastric, digestive secretions. Frequently, poor digestion is due to lack of tone in the stomach walls—because of low blood strength. S.S.S., the great, scientifically-tested medicine, is specially designed to fill a two-fold purpose in this respect... it aids in stimulating the flow of natural stomach secretions... and by building up deficient red corpuscles, with their hemo-globin, it restores to a more normal functioning the secretions of the stomach digestive juices... so necessary for good digestion. This double value of S.S.S. is important.

By all means try S.S.S. for better health and more happiness. Its benefits are progressive... accumulative... and enduring. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon enjoy again the satisfaction of appetizing food and good digestion... sound sleep... and renewed strength. This is why many say "S.S.S. makes you feel like yourself again."

Do not be misled by the efforts of a few unethical dealers who may suggest substitutes. You have a right to insist that S.S.S. be supplied you on request. Its long years of preference is your guarantee of satisfaction.

Swagger Furs Will Attend Game

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IN REGARD to the swagger, swanky sports furs which will attend the football games, here's the newest of fashion notes—a seven-eighths brown lapin coat with a lighter brown suede skirt. Fancy what a sensation in spectator row such a novel and stunning combination will create. Before telling further exciting news about football modes, we would like to stop long enough to say that suede is a new enthusiasm not only among sports fans, but the loveliest of evening gowns are being made of this novel media. One such recently created in Paris for a leading American film star is of suede in that seductive "dusty pink" which is so flattering to most complexions.

To continue with more football fashion thrills, registering high in the list is the suit that uses eel gray lapin for a swagger coat which takes into itself a skirt, scarf and belt (across front only) of wool knit in the new pine green which is so widely acclaimed this season. Other refreshingly out-of-the-ordinary sports style items include huge fur pockets, tiny fur cuffs, tuxedo revers of fur, the fur waist-depth cape, which is very important, also detachable fur vests which keep you extra warm, high winds or no high winds.

Which all goes to show that the new football and otherwise sports furs are making novelty their big appeal this season.

For breath-taking novelty we cite the new suits which are fashioned of tweed in a tapestry effect (very new) that blends blue, red, purple, green and brown in indefinite stripes. Add a broad scarf collar and big pockets of brown eucal and go where you will you will sight nothing more eye-filling in the way of a sports spectator costume.

The girl in the picture to the left has selected a perfectly stunning fur-trimmed suit to accent her appearance on the grandstand. This model is as dressy as it is sporty, and therefore can be properly worn most anywhere in the daytime. Its tuxedo revers of fur stamp it as being one of the newest of the new, for the fur-rever styling is "just out." A muff, too! Just as soon as the "frost is on the pumpkin," knowing fashionables will begin to carry muffs this season. All sorts of muffs with wee muffs in the lead, also the new accordion muffs so long and narrow, they crinkle up like the instrument they are named for. The muff here shown is a compromise between the two. The wide fur cuffs and the generously cut sleeves are also important style features.

The handsome coat centered in the group is one that will quicken the pulse of any style-loving young modern. The large rolling collar and wide cuffs of dark gray Persian lamb are wonderfully effective against the lighter gray of the kidskin which fashions the coat. The dress of a plaid woolen in gay Mexican colors with green predominating and the felt hat in the new pine green is a perfect foil to the plaid gray of the fur.

A very wearable type of fur coat is shown to the right, being of a soft brown summer ermine which makes it comfortable in the early not-too-cool autumn days. The pelts have been worked diagonally in the rippled loose back. The hat is devastating. One glance at it and the wearer, and the conquering football hero will no longer be master of his fate. It is of the new Robin Hood type which flaunts a gay little feather—the sort that flirts with you whether you will or no.

IN TONES OF GREEN

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Green is exceedingly voguish this fall. The costume pictured is of one of the newest ribbed woven weaves in the much-sought-for pine-green which is so really handsome. This smart young modern has brought her dark green costume right up to date with her bag, belt and glove cuffs crocheted of green and sand crepe paper. Whatever colors you may have chosen for your fall costume, you will be able to find the right shades of crepe paper for crocheting matching or harmonizing accessories, for there are fifty shades to choose from, including black and white. Crepe paper crochets has become quite an outstanding vogue. The work is easy and the material inexpensive. The accessory ensemble pictured is crocheted in a particularly simple stitch so that even the amateur need not hesitate to undertake it.

Far Bibe

Fur should be used on suits with the collar making a bib down the front, thus causing attention and warding off pneumonia at the same time.

GLOVES STAND OUT BOLDLY THIS FALL

Gloves go gay. Never have they been so sport and full of individuality as they are today.

Gloves of the present, and those in a formative state for the fingers of 1935, no longer resignedly fit in with the costume so that one notices them only as a part of the whole. They stand out boldly from the ensemble, flaunting their merit independent of their background. Their duty now is to strike a dominant note in the ensemble either by their color or cut or other oddment.

Evening gowns are now accompanied by gloves with a vast amount of open work on the arm, occasionally cut-steel beading, and sometimes by shirring, tucking or otherwise copying some novel feature of the gown.

Monograms Are Used on Coat Lapel or as Buttons

Everyone smart is giving her right name this fall season, according to fashion shows. Coat lapels and dress fastenings feature monograms sometimes a half-foot deep, in leather, metal, wood, and even marble. Using one's own initials in leather for buttons on sports jackets is the trick of the day.

Real flower jewelry is still popular with one large house, whose collection featured a necklace, earrings and even a ring made of pale pink dahlias. White chrysanthemums are replacing gardenias and camellias as boutonnières and corsage flowers.

Artificial flowers are equally good, with copper gardenias stunning on new smoky-toned fabrics. In one instance six calla lilies were snakily twined as a girdle on an evening gown.

More Slashed Details

Slashed details are becoming more and more prevalent in dinner and evening dresses, posed not only just at the front but also appearing at side-front and back seams.

Four Acres Needed for Each Man's Sustenance

One average Englishman, employed in a manner needing a moderate amount of exertion, requires the entire produce of more than four acres of land to keep himself even moderately fit during a year. He needs in addition a large proportion of one carcass of beef and of the produce of one cow.

This is the conclusion drawn from prominent doctors and agricultural experts, writes a correspondent of the London Post.

A committee appointed by the British Medical association reported on the subject of minimum weekly expenditure on foods needed to maintain health and capacity for work.

The specimen dietary for the average man per week was drawn up primarily with a view to establishing the maximum amount of nourishment to be drawn for the minimum amount of expense. It may fairly be taken, however, as indicating an average when terms of necessary food derived per acre are to be calculated.

The vast majority of the population, of course, consume far more than the bare necessity for efficiency, with the result that the average consumption of food per head of the population is far above the produce of four acres.

The committee of the British Medical association drew up a comprehensive list of foodstuffs required in varying quantities. Extended on the weekly average over a year, the list would prescribe the following chief commodities in set quantities:

Beef, 52 lbs.; bacon, 26 lbs.; corned beef, 26 lbs.; other meat, 39 lbs.; eggs, 104 ozs.; milk, 12 gals.; flour, 250 lbs.; potatoes, 250 lbs.; cabbage, 52 lbs.; barley, 26 lbs.; cheese, 26 lbs.; butter, 13 lbs.

The totals are approximate. Fish, beverages, confections and other commodities not easily reducible to terms of acreage are also included in various proportions.

One acre of meadow and pasture land, it was decided, would produce approximately 72 pounds of beef or 133 gallons of milk during a year. Considering "other meat" as principally beef products, accordingly well over two acres would be necessary in pasture and meadow alone to produce the required complement of meats other than bacon. This is taking no account of the small proportion of other requirements for feeding the necessary amount of beef.

The entire amount of necessary dairy produce could, however, be found from the collective product of less than an acre. The amount of land needed for raising the quota of bacon would be inconsiderable. Two hens could probably supply more than the number of eggs needed by the average man, and here again the amount of land required would be small.

The estimate of the productivity of the soil in terms of flour is roughly 315 pounds to the acre.

An acre of potatoes would, on the average, produce 500 pounds. The year's requirements would, therefore, be drawn from approximately three-sevenths of an acre. About one-quarter of an acre would suffice for the production of the various green vegetables prescribed. The necessary amount of barley could be found, on similar computations, in about three-twenty-fifths of an acre.

Records Whitewashed

When John Vacko, headman of Lhotz, Czechoslovakia, returned home he found that the walls of his room had been whitewashed by his wife, so he beat her. John told the judge the local council meets in the room, and to save paper, he had written the minutes on the walls. His wife's act caused the loss of an entire year's records.

IN THE BERMUDAS

Bermuda is a group of islands in the North Atlantic, 860 miles south-east of New York. Although said to be 365 in number, of which about a score are inhabited, they occupy a space only 18 by 2½ miles. The largest has an area of 9,000 acres, and the whole group contains 12,000 acres.

Why Hospitals Use a Liquid Laxative

Hospitals and doctors have always used liquid laxatives. And the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. Do you know the reasons?

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right dose of a liquid laxative brings a more natural movement, and there is no discomfort at the time, or after.

The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good.

A properly prepared liquid laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin brings safe relief from constipation. It gently helps the average person's bowels until nature restores them to regularity. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative which all druggists keep ready for use. It makes an ideal family laxative; effective for all ages, and may be given the youngest child.

ROSCOE CARNIVAL HUGE SUCCESS

The Parent Teachers association of Roscoe greatly appreciate the part the Loraine Band took in the Roscoe School Harvest Carnival.

It added much to the life of the Carnival.

LORAINES HARDWARE IN BUSINESS SINCE 1927

The Loraine Hardware and Furniture store, owned by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Neill, has been operating since 1927. This store carries one of the largest stocks of hardware, furniture and floor covering in this section.

GEORGE & NARRELL ONE OF NEW FIRMS

The George and Narrell Grocery and Market is one of the new firms in Loraine. J. N. Narrell and R. C. George bought the store from W. J. Coon early this year and recently installed a meat market.

The George and Narrell Store is a Red and White Store and carries a complete line of staple and fancy groceries in addition to fresh and cured meats.

H. E. THOMAS GRO. ANOTHER NEW CONCERN

H. E. Thomas, who operates the H. E. Thomas Grocery, is another new business man in Loraine. Early this year he purchased the W. O. Kinnison stock and operated it in the corner building until a few weeks ago when he moved to the location he now occupies. In his new location he has a much nicer store and a larger stock of staple and fancy groceries. Mr. Thomas came here from Dublin.

SPIKES IN FEED AND TRANSFER BUSINESS

The Spikes Feed and Transfer is the only exclusive feed store in Loraine. Mr. Spikes always keeps a good supply of the best commercial feeds as well as hay and grain. He is also in the transfer business.

PRATT SERVICE STATION FIRST DRIVE-IN STATION

J. L. Pratt and his son Woodrow have been operating a service station in Loraine since 1921. The station they now operate was the first drive-in station built in Loraine. They handle Texaco products.

J. B. MAHON GROCERY HERE SINCE 1929

The J. B. Mahon Grocery and Market has been in operation in Loraine since 1929 when he purchased the store from O. S. Maggart. Until a few weeks ago Mr. Mahon occupied a building on Main Street. His business is now housed in one of the best buildings in Loraine located on the highway. Mr. Mahon carries a complete stock of staple and fancy groceries and fresh and cured meats.

YOUR DRUGGIST IS MORE THAN A MERCHANT

He gives service when all other stores are closed. At any time of night your druggist will come to your call. No other store of the city gives cheerfully and freely the different services to mankind that you have come to expect from your local druggist. He is at your service when all other merchants are enjoying their leisure, probably at home with their family, probably at the show, at the ball game or enjoying a visit with their neighbors. When others have finished their evening's entertainment and start home they probably go by the Drug Store. It might be to make a purchase, maybe to use the telephone, buy some stamps, or send a telegram. You would be disappointed if the druggist was not there so HE IS STILL ON THE JOB for your convenience.

Consider these things when purchasing merchandise the Druggist handles and the sale of which makes it possible for him to give to you this kind of service. By purchasing from your Local Druggist you show that you appreciate these services.

Remember that "THE DRUGGIST IS MORE THAN A MERCHANT."

TRY THE DRUG STORE FIRST

Last March we completed 22 years of the very best service to Loraine and Loraine trade territory which we know how to give. We have enjoyed giving it. We think we know that you have enjoyed receiving it. We expect to improve this service in every way we can find. We hope to receive even more of your valued patronage in the future.

WEEKLY COTTON REPORT

The report released to-day by the Division of Cotton Marketing at Austin, Texas giving the quality of cotton produced in Texas indicates a very slight change in grades for the week. Extra White, Strict Middling, and better grades are reported as 34.2 per cent of the cotton classed, and White, Strict Middling, and better is reported as 34.4 per cent. Middling grades in White and Extra White standards are reported this week as 19.7 per cent. Spotted Middling and better grades are estimated at 17.3 per cent this week. This leaves a very small area. The total tenderable cotton this week is 80 per cent.

MARVIN MARTIN BEEN CLEANING CLOTHES SINCE 21

The percentage of cotton shorter than 7 inch continues to increase and this figure is reported as about one-fifth of the cotton classed this week. 7 inch cotton amounts to about 54 per cent; and one-fifth of the cotton classed this week is 15-16 inch long. This leaves only 6 per cent for all other lengths.

Different areas are producing a wide range of staples. Old cotton is tenderable in the Trans-Pecos area and only 46.5 per cent is tenderable in the High Plains

Marvin J. Martin has been operating a cleaning and pressing business in Loraine since August 1921. Besides his cleaning and pressing business Marvin sells made to measure suits from well known tailoring concerns.

THE MARTIN DRUG STORE ESTABLISHED IN 1911

The Martin Drug Store was established March 1912 in a little wooden building across the street from The Loraine Merc. Co.
by Dr. T. A. Martin. Stock and fixtures invoiced $65.00.

He soon outgrew these quarters and moved into building now occupied by Marvin Martin. Soon more equipment was needed so in 1914 a complete new set of all glass enclosed fixtures was installed in adjoining building on the corner recently vacated by H. E. Thomas Gro. This set of all glass fixtures was the first to be installed between Ft. Worth and El Paso.

In 1920 The 100 ft. modern building they now occupy was purchased, more modern fixtur-s were installed and the store moved.

About 1927 a 16-foot 100%
Liquid Mechanical Soda Fountain was installed at a cost of about $2,700.00, this was again among the first of its kind to be installed in any city under 25-000 population.

The Martin Drug Store has always taken the position that its customers were in all respects entitled to the best to be obtained. That is a fixed policy.

President Calls for Truce Between Labor and Industry—
Convention of A. F. of L.—Air Combat Forces Taken Away From Foulis.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S latest radio talk with his fellow citizens was well written, well delivered and peculiarly vague as to his future intentions. He sought to reassure business and labor, both of which are questioning him anxiously, but he made no definite replies to their categorical queries. His one specific statement was that within a month he would seek to negotiate a truce between large groups of employers and large groups of employees through which there would be a cessation of the strikes that have been disrupting the nation's business. He said he would ask the representatives of those forces to agree temporarily on questions of wages, hours and working conditions, and that with such agreements in force he expected further adjustments would be made peacefully, through governmental or private mediation.

"I shall not ask either employers or employees permanently to lay aside the weapons common to industrial war," he added. "But I shall ask both groups to give a fair trial to peaceful methods of adjusting their conflicts of opinion and interest, and to experiment for a reasonable time with measures suitable to civilize our industrial civilization."

By way of reply to the appeals of many business, industrial and financial leaders that the more radical measures of the administration's program be abandoned, Mr. Roosevelt declared the New Deal is to go on. To the questions of those leaders concerning balancing of the budget, government expenses, further devaluation of the dollar or return to the gold standard, he made no reply. However, he did declare himself in favor of a system of business based on private profit. Then he said:

"I am not for a return to that definition of liberty under which for many years a free people were being gradually regimented into the service of the privileged few. I prefer and I am sure you prefer that broader definition of liberty under which we are moving forward to greater freedom, to greater security for the average man than he has ever known before in the history of America."

Concerning the NRA, the President gave praise to General Johnson and said the national recovery administration was entering its second phase, "which is in turn a period of preparation for legislation which will determine its permanent form." He admitted there was a question as to the wisdom of some of the devices employed during the first phase of the NRA, but he declared the attacks on the constitutionality of many of the things his administration has done. "We are not," he said, "frightened by reactionary lawyers or political editors. All these cries have been heard before."

Near the beginning of his address, the President said:

"I am happy to report that after years of uncertainty, culminating in the collapse of the spring of 1933, we are bringing order out of the old chaos with a greater certainty of the employment of labor at a reasonable wage and of more business at a fair profit. These governmental and industrial developments hold promise of new achievements for the nation."

First formal response to the President's speech came from the National Association of Manufacturers, which urged him to issue a proclamation for a "truce on industrial warfare" during which existing employment relations would be continued, and challenged the American Federation of Labor to take like action. Its statement said:

"The President will find employers willing to sit down with him, as he proposes, to devise means for ending the constant series of strikes which have been one of the major obstacles to recovery."

Green and Morrison, respectively president and secretary of the federation, said this was a subterfuge and that the manufacturers should first publicly announce they would obey the decisions of constituted authorities, especially concerning discrimination and collective bargaining.

WHILE President William Green and some other leaders of the American Federation of Labor, just convened in San Francisco, expressed approval of what Mr. Roosevelt said in his radio address, many others prominent in the federation are far from satisfied with the way things are going. The executive council's annual report devoted pages to an analysis of the effect of the NRA upon the interests of labor. Almost without exception, the effects were found either directly harmful or at least unsatisfactory.

The criticism was directed at the workings of the recovery program, in actual operation. The NRA and the New Deal itself were not condemned. But the committee indicted the program on these main grounds:

That it has failed to increase the purchasing power of workers.

That because it has failed to reduce hours of labor sufficiently it has also failed to create a satisfactory number of new jobs.

That its compliance machinery is ineffective, with the result that violations of the spirit of the codes are easily accomplished and quite general.

Labor does not have proper representation in either code enforcement or administration.

"In one way," the report says, pointing to what seems to be viewed as the only satisfactory accomplishment thus far under the NRA, "codes have fulfilled expectations. They have with few exceptions wiped out child labor."

PRESIDENT GREEN in his address to the Federation of Labor declared the establishment of the 30-hour week was one of the possible means of wiping out unemployment.

and said those opposing it have offered no other remedy. First actual results in the campaign for this were announced later to the convention by Frank Feeney, president of the Elevator Constructors' union. What he called the "greatest labor document ever written" has been signed—a five-year agreement with contractor employers providing the six-hour day, five-day week for the 19,000 members of the union on a pay basis of the eight-hour day. The contract will become effective immediately, Feeney said, in any locality in which any other four of the building trades unions negotiate similar agreements.

The document also provides for an absolutely closed shop and gives the elevator constructors the right to strike at any time to support any movement for the 30-hour week. While the delegates were cheering this announcement, Col. W. F. Axton, tobacco manufacturer of Louisville, Ky., arose and made a lively speech in support of the 30-hour week as the means of getting everybody back to work.

"If we want to get business back we must give employment to labor," Axton said. "Industry at the same time must be protected from unfair competition by such means as codes." The arrival of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, gave impetus to the fight for extension of the A. F. of L. into the industrial union field and to the plan to increase the executive council from 11 to 25 members.

Although Lewis, controlling 3,000 convention votes, was opposed by Green on the council plan, the miners' leader removed the last doubt concerning Green's re-election by announcing that he would not only back Green but would place him in nomination.

FOLLOWING the recommendations of a special committee appointed by the War department and headed by Newton D. Baker, the department has created a general headquarters air force, comprising all the air combat forces, and placed it under the direct command of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff. Thus all the fighting planes are taken away from Gen. Benjamin D. Foulis, chief of the air corps, and he is left in command of only the army air schools and air depots. "Benny," who flew with the Wrights in 1909 and worked his way to high command, has long been at odds with the general staff, struggling against what he considered its intrigues and politics. Now the general staff is having its way with him and, as one Washington commentator says, instead of the flying air fighter which his record fitted him to be, he has become a desk soldier and a school teacher.

Just as this order was issued Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, former chief of the air corps and a perpetual storm center, was testifying before the commission appointed by the President to study the government's aviation problem.

Mitchell called the organization of a "GHQ" air force "a lot of bunk," and he declared that all army officers who signed the Baker report should be "kicked out of the service." He referred to army aviation plans as the work of "Boy Scouts" in the War department.

According to Mitchell, these are the measures the country should adopt for its aerial defense:

Merge army, navy, and all air services under one command.

Build planes with a cruising radius of 6,000 to 8,000 miles.

Make detailed plans for war, including the evacuation of New York city in case of an air attack by Japan "from a base in Alaska."

Construct dirigibles, for 50 of them "competently" handled could destroy Japan within two days.

The upshot of this and of the veiled charges of waste—and sometimes graft—in other cities is that this government is approaching a point where it must become more or less hardboiled in its relief administration. If it does not, nearly all of the observers agree, the United States will have a relief roll of six or eight millions which will continue to serve as a drain upon the treasuries, both national and local, for a good many years to come. Some of the authorities are growing fearful.

H. H. Kung, intelligent Chinese statesman, finance minister, tells Secretary Morgenthau that he would really and truly like to know what the United States means to do about silver. Also, since this country is anxious for silver, China will sell us all she has, taking gold in exchange.

Bret Harte, considering that Chinese statesman, might add a verse to his description of Ah Sin, who possessed "a smile that was childlike and bland."

THIS WEEK

What You Read You Are
She Is Lonely
Yes, Money Does Count
The President's Broadcast

The whole country follows the "Hauptmann case," dealing with the Lindbergh kidnaping. Newspapers have increased circulation since Hauptmann's arrest. This proves that citizens, able to get along without ordinary news of national and international affairs, cannot do without the Lindbergh kidnap news.

The East reads about the "Bobby" Edwards case, that of a young man accused of killing a girl, Freda McKechnie—knocking her on the head and drowning her when he tired of her.

Others are much interested in the case of a woman with a well known name and a quarrel about control and possession of a child, heiress to several millions. Foreign princes, plain American drunks, many unpleasant details, are dragged into the story. A considerable crowd finds that interesting. That judge's decision will be interesting.

Future historians will know what we were by reading the "news stories" that interested us.

Mrs. Eva Coo, whom reporters choose to call "Little Eva" Coo, now in the women's wing of the death house of Sing Sing prison, convicted of murdering a man whose life she had insured, and waiting to be electrocuted, makes a statement.

It has nothing to do with the hereafter, death's uncertainty or its meaning, the horror of the electric chair. The statement says:

"I like company. I am so lonesome I don't know what to do."

Only a few weeks to live, the electric chair and all that is on the other side of that chair just ahead of her, and Mrs. Coo's strongest impression is that she likes company.

We are a gregarious race, and absence of imagination is a great help if you must be electrocuted.

Does money make a difference in the United States? It made some difference when, in Foley Square, opposite New York's Supreme court building, six rather old men were arrested charged with "vagrancy." One of them, sixty-four years old, who gave a name not his own, was found with bank books showing that he owned $6,000, safe in the bank.

The magistrate "suspended sentence" on the $6,000 vagrant. He was not even fined. Five others that had no money were fined $10 each and sent to jail for ten days when they did not pay.

There is a text for some budding Communist orator.

Some call President Roosevelt's broadcast "crumbs of comfort," thrown to "the right," where dwell big industrialists, disgruntled financiers and other sad conservatives.

It is taken as "hitherto shalt thou go and no farther, and here shall thy proud waves be stayed," addressed to on-rushing "radicalism."

The President's broadcast proves that gentlemen were mistaken who said the President intends to do away with "profits," making private enterprise an obedient unit in the new system of society. The address means to optimistic conservatives that the New Deal desires only to be "helpful" to private enterprise, not choke it. But private enterprise must be good, and with the New Deal, keep its eye on the ultimate happiness of the many.

If you buy whisky it is wise to buy a brand that you know. In New York, this year, government agents seized 100,000 cases of "queer" whisky, including 15,000 cases of "Scotch" whisky made in America, with one-eighth Scotch to make it taste "smoky," the rest being sherry, glucose, and home-made alcohol.

The old game for children was "Button, button, who's got the button?" The new game for grownups is, "Dollar, dollar, who's got the dollar, and how shall we tax it?"

New York city, seeking $17,000,000 a month now, more later, for welfare relief, has already put a tax on income taxes.

To "tax a tax" is a new idea. If only deficits could be taxed, the problem would be easy.

Secretary Wallace suspects, and farmers will be glad to hear it, that "an ignorant, unscrupulous" political attempt will be made this fall to make the government lend 75 cents a bushel on corn and $1 additional on wheat.

If Mr. Wallace's fears are realized the "new frontiers," as regards United States finance, will be as wide as the Milky Way and as high as the blue star Vega.

H. H. Kung, intelligent Chinese statesman, finance minister, tells Secretary Morgenthau that he would really and truly like to know what the United States means to do about silver. Also, since this country is anxious for silver, China will sell us all she has, taking gold in exchange.

Bret Harte, considering that Chinese statesman, might add a verse to his description of Ah Sin, who possessed "a smile that was childlike and bland."

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart

Washington.—As the federal relief administration looks forward to the winter months when the winter burden obviously is heaviest, Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, makes public figures showing that the average cost of maintaining a family of four on public relief now is $23.09 a month. He says this figure varies materially from section to section, that it is materially higher in the industrial centers of the South where relief rolls are largest and that, probably, the country may expect a higher average cost during the forthcoming winter.

The statement by Mr. Hopkins becomes exceedingly significant. In the opinion of observers here, especially with reference to the likelihood that there will be an increase in cost this winter. It reflects two things. First, the administration's drive to bring about increased prices through crop limitation or crop destruction or any of the several methods employed not only is adding to the burden of those with limited buying power but it is compelling Uncle Sam and the states and counties and charitable organizations everywhere to pay an added price to keep people from starving. Secondly, the Hopkins statement gives more than an indication of how many additions to the relief rolls there may be as a result of refusal of some people to accept any kind of jobs. It has been known many months that relief rolls carry a certain percentage of individuals who amount to the same thing as parasites, but the mounting cost both in the average and in the total figures are being examined by many experts with the thought in mind that considerable waste is in prospect.

The relief administration has been attempting to make surveys of relief rolls in many jurisdictions. The results in some of the cases have been quite disturbing to those in the government who are wholly desirous of lending help wherever help is necessary but who obviously are unwilling to see government funds drained off to care for individuals who are refusing to help themselves. How far this condition is going, none can foretell; nor can anyone at this time say accurately how extensive has become the list of those who regard relief rolls as their rightful meal ticket.

Some of the political leaders have become alarmed because, having knowledge of the dole system in England and in some of the other European countries, they know how hard it is to separate individuals from relief after those individuals have lost the pride and morale which causes people to support themselves. Hearings before congressional committees last winter disclosed in numerous cities how some people had declined to do the odd jobs created under the "make work" campaigns for the unemployed and had preferred to make their semi-weekly trips to the relief stores. At that time there were relief advocates of the sob-sister type who insisted that the number of such unemployed was very small and that it would not increase. Relief administration figures, however, seem to show that the contrary is true and that wherever they may be there is a certain number of the unemployed who will remain attached to the government relief roll until that roll is absolutely liquidated.

I have heard several members of congress express the opinion that this phase of the relief problem is really the most difficult of the whole structure.

They want to see the government spend all of the money that is necessary to keep people from starving but they are beginning to demand that some way be found by which the sheep may be separated from the goats and properly fed.

Here in Washington a taste of the condition mentioned above has been exposed as the result of complaints by a taxpayers' organization. The taxpayers' group declared that its investigators had found many unemployed appearing at relief headquarters driving their own automobiles. They thought it was paradoxical that a man could afford to maintain his automobile and could not maintain his family. Relief authorities in the local offices denied these charges. The relief experts said some of the destitute were being transported to relief headquarters in the cars of friends, but despite the denials there seemed to have been some fire in all of the smoke.

Whatever the facts in the National Capital situation may have been, the condition itself nevertheless is attracting attention for the reason that some of the soft-hearted individuals who usually do more talking than anything else have risen to the defense of those who called for their doles in their motor cars.

The upshot of this and of the veiled charges of waste—and sometimes graft—in other cities is that this government is approaching a point where it must become more or less hardboiled in its relief administration. If it does not, nearly all of the observers agree, the United States will have a relief roll of six or eight millions which will continue to serve as a drain upon the treasuries, both national and local, for a good many years to come. Some of the authorities are growing fearful.

A situation somewhat unique in American politics is developing in Wisconsin where the La Follette brothers are undertaking to continue the family dynasty by marching under the banner of a new organization, the progressive party. It is all being done very quietly but the facts seep through the national political headquarters here in Washington.

The regular Republican organization sees an opportunity to "knock-off" the La Follette by throwing their support to John M. Callahan, the Democratic candidate for the senate. Apparently they have little or no hope of electing their own senatorial candidate, the Wisconsin publisher, John R. Chapelle, who ended the political career of former Senator John J. Blaine in the primaries of 1932.

If Mr. Callahan does poll a sizeable Republican vote the question is whether this will offset the defections in the Democratic party. He was one of the leading supporters of Alfred E. Smith at the 1932 convention and neither the President nor his lieutenants have forgotten that it was the present Democratic senatorial candidate in Wisconsin who gave publicity to charges that Mr. Roosevelt's early campaign in the South for Presidential nomination was in part financed and supported by the officers of the Ku-Klux Klan in Georgia.

All of which leads to the observation that political leaders sometimes do very strange things. They have been known to throw their own candidates overboard when the occasion required if they were to hold their control of the party machinery, state or national. Consequently, it is not particularly strange that the Republicans will support a Democrat for the senate if it would mean the removal of the thorn in their sides which the La Follette family has proven for several decades.

Says WILL ROGERS

BEVERLY HILLS — Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, or what I see as I stroll around old Hawaii. (I don't think that the spelling of it, but spelling don't mean much out here. You just add plenty of H's, U's and K's and let her go.) And the funny part of that every one of these names over here are like that. There just aint any Oklahoma names. I tell you, you pretty near got to be a Hawaiian to be able to ask your way home.

Well it's a great country though. Was just sitting up there in the Royal Hawaiian Hotel listening to a band right down under our window. I doubt if there is a more wonderful setting in the world. Course we were placed on the ocean side where we got a wonderful view. Right there under our nose is the famous Waihi Beach. Surf boards are coming in there like Ford's down a Boulevard at home on Sunday. Those guys really ride em. Its the peculiar formation of the Coral Reefs that reach s far out that makes it possible for it to be so fine to do and here is the funny part of it, its the only place in the whole islands where you can do it. So when you see them trying it at home and not getting far, you know why.

My wife and daughter Mary had been out there and had such a good time a couple of years ago, and she kept yapping it to me, that finally on this trip, I said well lets stop a week in the islands. And I tell you it was a month or two too short. A guy on the boat from there kept telling me that the time was too short, and I kept kidding him, and asking him what I would do with the other five days.

The folks were awful excited when I was over there over the sugar quota. You see the Hawaiian Islands are really and truly a territory of the United States. Not only of those things they call an "Insular Possession." Insular possessions are like Porto Rico and the Philippines. An insular possession is like a first mortgage. You get it if nobody else pays it off and takes it up. But this ukalele group out there in the very bowels of an ocean, why it is just as much a part of us as if it was down in one of Huey Long's parishes.

But there was some kind of an argument on where the Government had kinder used them like they were only an insular possession. It was more a case of pride than a case of dollars and cents. They felt that they had been discriminated against, and I guess you come down to the thing they really had, but they had been doing well and lots of em thought it might be better not to make a fight. You know these islands are in pretty good shape, lots better shape than the mainland. There had been no drought there, and there is parts of the islands that it rains every thirty minutes. They got a golf course there where they say you get rained on at Number one, you dry off by Number two, it starts raining again at 3 and visa versa. So you are wet on even numbers and dry on odd ones.

Its the greatest country for clouds floating low over the mountains, they just come pretty near into your house. Its not a tropical country, but it just borders on to being one. They sure raise an awful lot of stuff. Sugar fields are just like wheat fields in Oklahoma. (or Kansas). In spite of all the rainfall in some places, in the sugar plantations they have to irrigate, and when you say irrigate, brother you irrigate. It takes a world of water to keep that sugar cane growing, but what a mass of stuff it is when they get harvest it. They first burn it to get all the leaves off the stalk and the blaze don't burn the stalk. They do that early in the morning when the wind is low. They burn off about what they could pile up and haul off that day. That burning is an experts job. They have to have each patch fire-guarded (that is a fairly wide swath cut around the piece being burned). Oh they have on some plantations thousands and thousands of acres. Frank Baldwin showed me his. He had in over 17 thousand acres, and from the amount of money having been spent on the growth of the stuff it must take millions to handle the whole layout. It seems no crop for poor white trash. Its all done on a large scale. Oh you could just go on for hours and try to explain the workings of some big industry over there.

Pineapple is the next biggest thing. You don't have to irrigate that its a pretty looking thing growing. They don't seem to have much wheat, have oats, and corn. Well in fact they do about everything over there they do at home. The only thing is that pictures don't get over there till maby the star of the picture is dead from old age. "State Fair" had just swept their Country. I want to go back there and see a million and one things that I didnt get to see. And thats the best answer to "How do you like the Country."

FARM PRICES UP 35% IN YR., 101% OVER '32.

Based on end of September prices, the market value of wheat, corn, hogs and cotton, four basic farm commodities defined by the Agricultural Adjustment Act, were 101 per cent higher than at the end of September, 1932, and 35 per cent above the average at the end of September, 1933. Whereas late in April this year the Chicago market prices averaged 37 per cent higher than in April, 1932, they now are almost three times that increase over the corresponding date two years ago. Early in June this year these prices averaged 71.5 per cent over June, 1932.

The average price of hogs is approximately 47 per cent higher than a year ago and 67 per cent higher than two years ago.

Corn, on the basis of December futures prices, sells at 79 cents a bushel. This is 28 cents, or about 54 per cent higher than a year ago, and 50 cents, or 172 per cent, higher than two years ago.

December wheat, at $1.04 per bushel, was 14 cents higher than a year ago and 50 cents above prices of two years ago, an advance of 92 per cent over the end of September, 1932.

Chicago cotton prices, based on quotations for October deliveries, were 27 per cent higher than a year ago and 73 per cent higher than two years ago.

100-YEARS RECORD OF CROPS AND PRICES

The following record of cotton crops and prices since 1831 has been compiled by I. V. Shannon, economist with Fenner, Beane & Underleider, New Orleans. Crops are in running bales as compared by the census bureau and prices (in cents per pound) are highest and lowest of middling cotton for each season from records of the New Orleans Cotton exchange. Crops marked (*) are in 400-pound bales. The cotton season covered the period from September 1 to August 31 prior to the season of 1914-15; since then it has run from August 1 to July 31. The 1931-32 price is over the period from August 1, 1931, to May 4, 1932.

SADLER HAS BEEN IN BUSINESS HERE SINCE 1882

H. K. Sadler, who is now operating a filling station and service shop on the highway has been in Loraine since 1923. He was first in business on Main Street, formerly the highway and has always done a big business. After the highway was changed and paved Mr. Sadler built a new station in 1929 and has been in business there since that time. He has a beautiful station and offers the public the best of service and merchandise. He and his brother-in-law, C. M. Duke, also operate a gasoline and kerosene business.

REPLACE... WORN OUT LAMP BULBS/

Lamp bulbs, like the One Horse Shag, have a funny habit of wearing out all at once. Their average life is about 1000 hours, but when they have been in use just so long something has to give out. It is when you need new bulbs, so order one or two or three of these handy packages of six assorted bulbs—you may not need them now but you will sooner or later.

BUSINESS WELCOMES PROBE OF HITS IN CREDIT MACHINERY

Washington.—Uncle Sam's program to learn what is jamming the Nation's credit machinery is quite likely to uncover some surprising banking practices. Such is the opinion of some business men who come under the classification of those designated to be included in the Treasury Department's survey.

The Treasury survey is to get from the bank files 2,000 most recent cases of small business men who have been refused credit, 20 cases from 100 banks. Also field workers are to obtain from private business men themselves, another 2,000 cases of refusals of loans to lend them money, making 4,000 cases in all.

This survey by the Treasury Department is being conducted in the Chicago Federal Reserve area which comprises Iowa, Michigan, Northern Illinois and Indiana and Southern Wisconsin. The findings are expected to illustrate the entire national situation.

The program mapped out by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., to his chief research expert, Prof. Jacob Viner, is to find out why the vast stores of credit are lying idle in banks while business claims they cannot find financing.

All of this activity by Uncle Sam in searching for the monkey wrench in credit machinery is creating no end of discussion. Reports from different sections indicate that business men, some large, some small, have many axes to grind even including the charge that usury is now being practiced by banks in some districts.

One case in point is ably presented by a keen business man in an eastern state. He terms it "the banker's new usury racket," not only illegal but subject to drastic punishment in many commonwealths. He cites laws wherein parties found guilty of practicing usury, be they bankers or small-fry money lenders, may be forced to face penalties ranging from repayment of all illegal interest rates, to complete cancellation of the entire debt or loan.

Wherein the charge is made that the usury racket is now being practiced by some banks, pertains to the general procedure of banks, in making loans, to demand that 20 per cent of the amount of the original loan be kept in the daily balance of the borrower-customer's account.

Specifically, this business man charges that in event of a $50,000 loan, a $10,000 cash account must be maintained by the borrower in addition to furnishing excessive collateral for the loan. This in itself creates a 7.2 per cent interest charge. It is also charged that regardless of a material reduction in the $50,000 loan, it is demanded that the cash account be kept at $10,000, thus increasing the interest rate on the amount of the current loan far above the legal rate. It is charged that in many instances an interest rate of 10 per cent to 17 1/2 per cent is being illegally charged and collected by the bank.

It is further charged that wherein it formerly was the bank practice to obtain a gentleman's agreement of the borrower to maintain on deposit a 20 per cent cash balance of the loan, it now is the practice of some banks to "write in" this agreement on the loan notes, thus making it a matter of record. The above is but one of the many axes which business men in cities, towns and villages have to grind with the banker. All of which the Treasury Department may find if they dig deep enough so say some business men in talks which have been "off the record"—but poured into ears of those who will listen by those in dire need of honest and fair credit.
