N. Viets Say Khe Sanh Pull-Out Is Serious Defeat For The U.S.

Between US, Russia

Early Talks On Missiles Seen

By STEWART HENSLEY

WASHINGTON (UPI)—American officials said today they expect early agreement with Moscow on a time and place to begin negotiations to limit and eventually reduce offensive and defensive nuclear missile systems.

The Soviet Union's announcement Thursday of its acceptance of a long-standing U.S. proposal on this was interpreted here as stemming from a combination of international pressures and Soviet concern over strong congressional backing for a new American antiballistic missile system.

Administration officials said talks between the two countries might begin between the head of the U.S. disarmament agency, William Foster, and his Soviet counterpart, a few days before the resumption of general disarmament talks in Geneva July 16.

The view here is that they would be carried on strictly between the Soviet Union and the United States, outside the regular conference.

One official speculated it would take three to five years to reach agreement, in view of the Kremlin's traditional reluctance to agree to any type of enforcement provisions on disarmament pacts.

The assumption in Washington was that the following factors played a big part in getting Gromyko to tell a meeting of the Supreme Soviet that his country was at last prepared to begin "exchanging opinions with Washington" on an agreement:

—The United states, the Soviet Union and Britain are scheduled to sign Monday the laboriously worked-out treaty to prevent further spread of nuclear weapons.

—Non-nuclear nations have insisted that the big atomic powers negotiate some limitation and reduction of their arsenals if the rest of the world is to forego such weapons.

—Failure of the Soviets to give any sign of movement in this direction might result in a number of nations failing to sign the treaty, which both Washington and Moscow consider important to stabilize world peace.

—The U.S. Senate has just voted overwhelmingly to finance the beginning of an Antiballistic Missile System (ABM) to match the limited installations of this sort already begun by the Soviet Union.

The estimated cost of such a system ranges from $5 billion for the limited system up to about $50 billion for a full deployment. Moscow may well have decided that it could not afford to get into another costly arms spiral of this sort.

New Violence In France Precedes Sunday Election

PARIS (UPI)—A new wave of pre-election violence struck France today, and the government said it had received warnings of a new and even more violent leftist attempt to overthrow the government in October.

Interior Minister Raymond Marcellin, who controls police, said several revolutionary groups would try again to bring down the government but that the government of President Charles de Gaulle would be ready.

As Frenchmen prepared to vote Sunday in the runoff elections for the National Assembly a plastic bomb blasted the campaign headquarters of Gaullist candidate George Gorse in suburban Boulogne-Billancourt.

It ripped open the ground floor offices of the former minister of information and shattered neighborhood windows.

Last Sunday, while votes were being counted in the first round of balloting, unidentified attackers roared past the Gorse headquarters on motor cycles and hurled rocks through windows.

Gorse's office is located near the huge state-run Renault automobile plant, where the strike of 10 million French workers was launched in May.

At La Rochelle, on the Atlantic coast, a Molotov cocktail bomb was thrown against the campaign headquarters of Gaullist Philippe Dechartre, a junior member of the De Gaulle government. Only slight damage was done.

In Paris, a Molotov cocktail was hurled at the Left Bank campaign headquarters of Gaullist Madame Nicole de Hautecloque, smashing the door and windows.

Thieves Get Mercury In Local Area

Mercury thieves have again been active in surrounding counties, according to spokesmen for major oil and gas companies in this area.

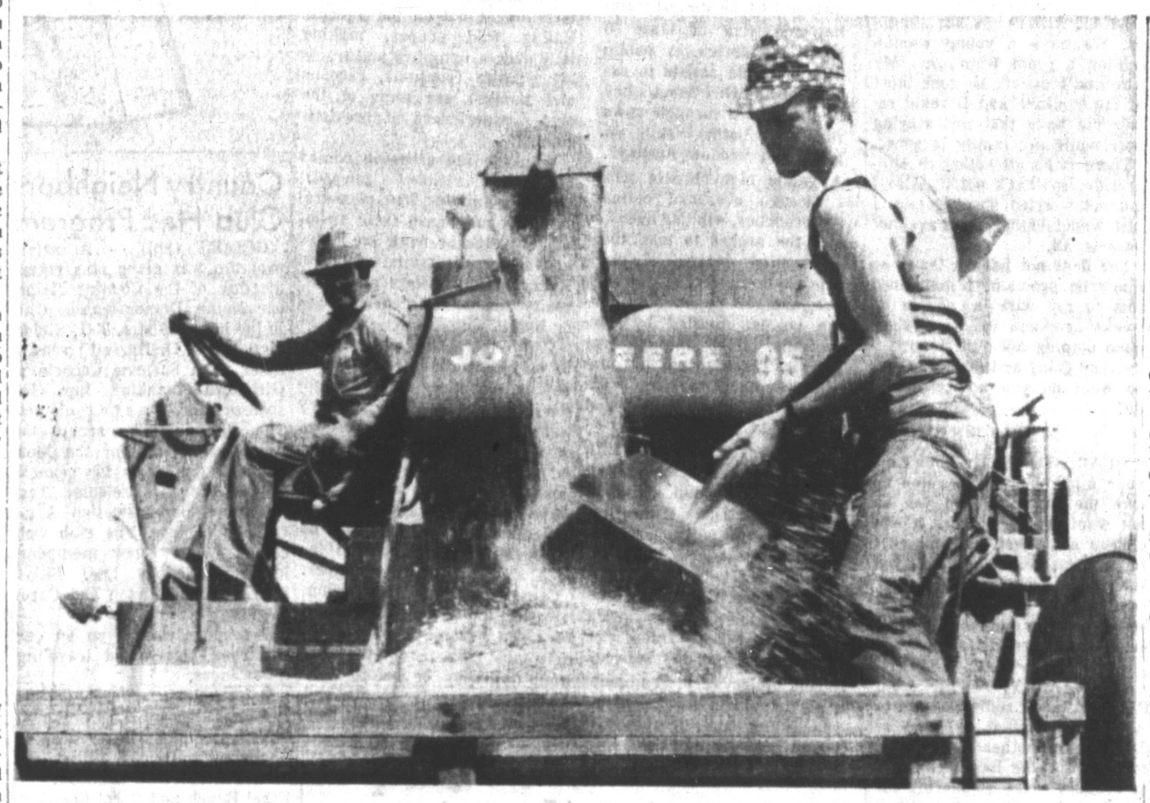

The mercury is used in oil and gas regulating pumps and is valued at about $8 a pound.

Denver Allen, field gas representative for Skelly Oil Co., said in a telephone interview this morning that the company had lost about $2,200 worth of mercury from fields in Hutchinson County during the last two days. Allen said it was the first mercury loss the company had suffered in about two years.

El Paso Natural Gas Co. reported that it had suffered loss of mercury in Collinsworth County.

Bert Teel, sub-foreman of field maintenance in the company's district office in Shamrock, said mercury from about 11 regulating meters had been

Commies Attempt To Claim Victory

By LOREN JENKINS

PARIS (UPI) — North Vietnam's negotiators at the deadlocked peace talks today claimed the American pullout from Khe Sanh is "one of the most serious strategic defeats" suffered by the United States in the Vietnam War.

A Hanoi spokesman told a news conference called to claim downing of the 3,000th American plane over North Vietnam that 15,000 American and South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and injured while trying to hold the strategic outpost, south of the Demilitarized Zone.

He said 11,700 of the casualties were Americans. U.S. Marines reported suffering 2,000 casualties—including wounded—at Khe Sanh.

Nguyen Thanh Le, chief spokesman for the Hanoi delegation, described the withdrawal from Khe Sanh as an American attempt to avoid full defeat.

The news conference was another Communist attempt to claim victory and demand an immediate cessation of U.S. bombing of the North. North Vietnamese spokesmen said the 3,000th U.S. plane was shot down over Dong Hoi, in North Vietnam's southern panhandle.

According to U.S. military spokesmen, 859 American planes were downed over North Vietnam in the course of the war.

Intensified pressure on the battlefield and propaganda efforts in Paris are major elements of the strategy of North Vietnam, Communist sources said.

The sources said Hanoi was confident this strategy would bring about a weakening of America's resolve to fight the war.

At the same time, Hanoi diplomats attempted to demonstrate they were ready to talk peace by expressing willingness to meet with all U.S. presidential candidates. Diplomatic observers called this a propaganda effort to improve Hanoi's image in the United States.

Communist diplomats said the evacuation of Khe Sanh on the heels of the Viet Cong pressure against Saigon has bolstered the position of the Hanoi peace negotiators said to be convinced their waiting game is the right course of action.

The military situation in South Vietnam and widespread fears the Communists would launch another assault on Saigon were said to be regarded by Hanoi as effective measures to strengthen antiwar and anti-Johnson administration moves in the United States.

SMUGGLING SUSPECT

PARIS (UPI)—Police arrested Raymond Guirche, 43, Thursday as the fifth suspect in a ring accused of smuggling $45 million worth of heroin into New York in an automobile.

Communists Hit Hard In Heavy US Bombardment

By JACK WALSH

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. ships, planes and artillery today pounded 200 to 500 North Vietnamese troops trapped in a South Vietnamese coastal village.

Military spokesmen said American firepower pinned down the invaders Thursday noon in the village 10 miles below the demilitarized Zone (DMZ) dividing the two Vietnams.

A spotter aboard the U.S. Navy cruiser Boston reported "he could see several enemy troops running into the water of the South China Sea to escape the shells," one spokesman said.

Fire On Troops

U.S. Army 1st Air Cavalry Division troops had been patroling the beaches northeast of Quang Tri City when they came under fire from the village. The Communists had given themselves away.

The Skytroopers closed in. The first bursts of American fire killed five North Vietnamese.

"As the ground units advanced toward the village 200 to 300 villagers moved out. They told the U.S. soldiers that there were approximately 500 North Vietnamese troops hidden in bunkers," a spokesman said.

U.S. commanders unleashed their artillery and air strikes. The GIs grabbed and captured 18 suspected guerrillas on the fringes of the exploding village.

Military spokemen said American commanders flew in more troops—making 800 in all—to "complete a cordon of the trapped enemy force."

The closing of the ring continued today. The GIs pushing in said they killed at least 22 Communists in the fighting.

Fighting in North

In other action U.S. Marines reported heavy fighting on South Vietnam's northern frontier where the Leatherneck fort of Khe Sanh was being abandoned.

The fighting, according to first reports from Marine spokesmen, raged Thursday 11 miles east of the Leatherneck base camp of Dong Ha far to the east of Khe Sanh, the fort that withstood a 77-day Red siege earlier this year.

Thus far two Marines have

Senate Talks Liquor-By-Drink

By DAVID ANDERSON

AUSTIN (UPI) —The showdown that Texas wets and drys have awaited for half a century is here.

Liquor by the drink, banned in Texas since 1891, has passed the House and survived half a dozen crises in committees. Today it reached the final crucial stage — Senate debate.

As in any good showdown, the odds were rated at 50-50. Some said the vote would be 16-15 in favor. Some said it would be 16-15 against. The three or four senators who held the balance were not talking.

If the bill passes, restaurants will be allowed to serve liquor in one-drink bottles if local voters approve. It also includes a score of "liquor reform" provisions designed to tighten law enforcement and correct abuses uncovered in investigations of the Liquor Control Board.

The Senate cleared the way for the liquor debate Thursday by passing a $177 million tax bill after two days of fruitless wrangling which Sen. Grady Hazlewood of Amarillo called "the most irresponsible two days I have ever observed."

Essentially the Same

The tax bill passed by the Senate Thursday was essentially the same thing the senators voted down Wednesday — a general sales tax increase. It would raise the state sales tax increase effective Jau. 1 hicle sales tax from 2 to 3 per cent and increase the corporate franchise tax from $2.25 per $1,000 to $2.75. The effective date is Oct. 1.

The tax bill was returned to the House, which has voted a one-cent sales and motor vehicle tax increase effectiv Jaen. 1. The House can either accept the Senate version or call for a conference committee to adjust differences.

The Senate debate was like nothing ever seen before in the upper chamber.

Opponents of the sales tax, led by Sen. A. R. Schwartz of Galveston, had enough votes most of the time to defeat sales tax proposals, but not enough to levy the taxes they wanted on such items as natural gas production.

Conservatives had enough votes to block the proposals of Schwartz and his liberal colleagues, but not enough to force a straight sales tax increase on the liberals.

Never Before

"I've never seen a situation like this in all my years," said Sen. A. M. Aikin Jr. of Paris, who has been in the Sen-

Abernathy Begins Fast In The Washington, D. C., Jail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Rev. Ralph David Abernathy has begun a symbolic fast in the District of Columbia jail to "strengthen myself in the fight ahead" to get more food for America's hungry.

But even as he announced his decision to "voluntarily join the ranks of the hungry," Abernathy's Poor People's Campaign lost another round in its fight to force the government to spend more money on food aid.

The defeat came Thursday when the campaign failed in its attempt to win a court order compelling Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman to spend $227 million in federal customs duties for food for the disadvantaged.

Chief U.S. District Court Judge Edward M. Curran turned down a suit to block Freeman from giving the money back to the Treasury when the current fiscal year ends Sunday.

Curran said Freeman's department still would have another $300 million which could be used to feed the poor even if the $227 million were turned back.

He said attorneys for the campaign failed to show how the poor would be irreparably injured by Freeman's return of th emoney.

Abernathy, serving a 20-day sentence after being arrested last Monday as he tried to demonstrate on the Capitol grounds, told a tail news conference Thursday:

"I will voluntarily join the ranks of the hungry . . . to pray for wisdom and guidance through this period of history which is dominated by racism and violence. It is my prayer that the nation will not only see my hunger—but the hunger of thousands of innocent men, women and children."

Living Costs Up Again

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The cost of living for Americans rose three-tenths of one per cent last month, largely because of an unexpected increase in food prices, the government reported today.

The Labor Department said food prices rose six-tenths of one per cent, pushing the consumer price index to 120.3 per cent of the 1957-59 base period.

That meant it took $12.03 in May to buy the same goods and services that $10 would buy about 10 years ago.

Over-all prices for farm products, from consumer products to feed grains, rose 1.5 per cent last month.

Late harvests, weather damage to crops and dwindling stockpiles were blamed. Normally food prices drop in May and a decline of about two-tenths of one per cent had been expected by officials last month.

Fruits, vegetables and meats led the advance in food prices. Dairy product prices also were up.

Wholesale food costs rose 1.3 per cent. Other prices rose four-tenths of one per cent at the retail level and five-tenths of one per cent at wholesale.

Blackstone Rangers, Who Got US Tax Money, Face Charges

By CARL NELSON

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wilbur Moore is 18, belongs to the Blackstone Rangers and appears in criminal court today on murder charges.

Moore—actually a member of a Rangers affiliate, the Ten Commandments—is not the only youth in the south side street gang to face criminal charges this summer. There are 19, in all, charged with everything from rape and murder to possession of narcotics.

The Rangers—police say there are up to 3,500 of them—are being investigated in Washington by Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark. He says they should not have been hired as "instructors" for dropouts. They were paid with $1 million in Office of Economic Opportunity money.

Police say the gang has been involved in recent shootings with the East Side Disciples in a competition for membership which has led to dozens of deaths in recent months. The Rangers also extort money from merchants on their "turf," police say.

The Disciples, maybe 1,500 strong, have 10 members awaiting trial on criminal charges.

15-Year-Old Slain

The charges against Moore stem from the death of a 15-year old boy slain in an ambush March 17. Authorities say Billy James Miles was approached by a group of youths, there was a rifle shot and Miles was killed.

Police say a shout came from the group as Miles fell: "Blackstone Rangers."

Rangers awaiting trial in other cases include seven members of the "Main 21," the gang's leadership group. These include Eugene "Bull" Hairston, 24, leader of the Rangers who was found guilty May 29 of solicitation of murder.

Police say other Main 21 members awaiting summer trials are Jeff Fort, 21, William

Witnesses In Slaying Of King May Be In 'Protective Custody'

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Three persons, believed to be key witnesses in the April 4 slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., may have been taken into protective custody.

Local authorities refused comment and a special agent of the FBI said he had "no knowledge" of the whereabouts of Charles Q. Stevens and Willie Anchutz, both occupants, and Mrs. Bessie Brewer, the former manager, of the down-at-the-heels rooming house on South Main St., from where the fatal shot was fired.

All three saw the man who checked into the rooming house and allegedly fired the shot that killed King. The FBI later identified that man as James Earl Ray, a fugitive from a Missouri prison arrested June 8 in London under the name Ramon George Sneyd.

Local authorities refused comment and a special agent of the FBI said he had "no knowledge" of the whereabouts of Charles Q. Stevens and Willie Anchutz, both occupants, and Mrs. Bessie Brewer, the former manager, of the down-at-the-heels rooming house on South Main St., from where the fatal shot was fired.

A check of the rooming house revealed that Mrs. Brewer and her husband, Frank, had been replaced in the manager's office by Mr. and Mrs. James MacDonald. Stevens' room No. 6 was padlocked, and there was no report on Anchutz.

Frank Holloman, director of fire and police, said he could make no comment on any facet of the case. He repeated the statement as he was questioned about the whereabouts of the three.

Robert Jensen, special agent in charge of the FBI office here, said he talked with Stevens a "few weeks" ago, but "I have no knowledge of his whereabouts at the present time."

Jensen refused comment about Mrs. Brewer and Anchutz, saying, "I'm sorry I'm restricted and can say nothing about the case."

Lingerie Straps Stay Put

The summer season is almost here and sleeveless, backless fashions are proving more popular than ever. It's especially important to be sure that lingerie straps stay where they belong. If you've arrived at a resort hotel and find you've forgotten the proper underpinnings, why not use a trick familiar to fashion models Very often they don't know what styles they will be wearing when photographed so they tape each strap in place with first-aid tape.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am an 18-year-old girl. I am a virgin and I intend to stay that way until I get married.

With my parents' permission, I started going steady with a boy I'll call Vic. He is 20. Vic is a gentleman and he treats me with respect.

Vic's mother invited me to her house for supper last night to "get acquainted." She seemed very nice and friendly and I really liked her. Then she got me aside and said, "it's none of my business how far you go with my son, but as a favor to me, I want you to take these birth control pills. I'll buy them and keep you supplied. All I want is your promise that you will take them."

"Abby, I was too shocked to say anything except, "Thank you very much, Mrs. ——, but I won't be needing them."

She insisted that I take them anyway, saying, "Vic's older brother had to get married three years ago, and I don't want to go through that again, so as a favor to ME, I want you to take them. And please don't say anything to Vic about this." And she shoved them into my purse.

Abby, I am not going to take these pills. I don't need them. Should I tell Vic? What if Vic's mother asks me if I am taking them? Should I lie and say yes to avoid an argument? I honestly don't know what to do and I can't ask my mother.

VIC'S GIRL

DEAR GIRL: Give the pills back to Vic's mother and tell her firmly that you appreciate her offer, but you have no use for them. I see no point in telling Vic.

DEAR ABBY: I am stumped. We have a young woman renting a room from us. My wife and kids will be gone most of the summer and I would rather not have that girl staying here while my family is gone.

There is no attraction on either side, so that's not it. Also I am not worried about gossip. I just would rather not have her here is all.

She does not have a lease, so that's no problem. I mentioned this to my wife a couple of weeks ago, and so far she's done nothing about it. I am very easy going and dislike scenes so what do you advise me to do?

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: Search your mind and try to come up with the REAL reason you do not want the girl there. (Could be you are deceiving yourself.) In any case, as long as you know you want her out, ask your wife to tell her she had better look for another room — or YOU tell her.

DEAR ABBY: Will you PLEASE make some attempt to curb the incessant babbling of doting grandmothers? Many a good card game has been ruined because these slobbering idiots don't know enough to keep quiet about a subject that is a crashing bore to others.

We even tried imposing a 10 cent fine at our bridge club for every mention of "what my adorable grandchild said." One simpleton announced that the 10-cent fine was not going to stop her from talking about HER cute little granddaughter, so with that, she threw a ten dollar bill on the table and launched into an endless monologue about the world's smartest 4-year-old. She said it was worth it.

Here's a story our minister told that brought down the house: A doting grandmother said to her friend, "Say, have I ever told you about my grandchildren?" Her friend replied, "No, and I sure do appreciate it."

Senior Girl Scout Writes Camp Experiences Article

The following feature article was written by Nan Hudson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. Ray Hudson, Pampa. She is a Senior Scout in Troop 2, and is working on her Public Relations Aide Bar. To earn an aide bar, girls must take special training and give at least 50 hours of service. A public relations aide assists in explaining the Girl Scout story to the public through news media, bulletins, club reports and window displays.

A gentle night breeze whistles through overhead cotton—wood branches, winding over and under the arches to toss about the rustling leaves. Crickets chirp rhythmically in the distance, and soft murmuring feminine voices, muffled by canvas walls, float through the night air. These sounds lull many tired campers to sleep each year at the annual Girl Scout Established Camp.

This summer will be the fifth session sponsored by the Quivira Girl Scout Council. Directed by Mrs. Jack Duke from Borger, the camp will open July 14, at the new Adobe Walls Reservation Area between Mobeetie and Wheeler. Girls who have completed the fourth grade through high school seniors are eligible for this six-day session.

During this week, campers will participate in several planned activities and, if the last four camp years predict correctly, many more "unplanned" activities. Some of the planned events are swimming, boating and canoeing, riflery, archery, and art. Special night fun is also scheduled, such as campfires, sing-ins, a staff-camper baseball game and backward night.

True to tradition, campers seem always to find some entertainment not on the agenda. Eating wild grapes, making jelly over a campfire and tracking wildlife (possums, racoons and skunks) are some of the past experiences at previous camps.

With the fun of camp comes also many visible rewards. While swimming for pleasure, campers may earn their swimmer's badge or work on junior and senior lifesaving courses. Every activity offers an opportunity for scouts to earn badges or bars.

Camp memories will be hard to put into words later. They will be familiar faces shining crimson in the evening firelight; they will be haunting songs at dusk or strains from someone's guitar; they will be parades of flashlights moving toward the various units after the day's activities have ended; they will be the feeling of comradeship for each and every other camper.

Camp is all these things—fun, rewards, experience and memories. To become a part of it, girls must register in the Girl Scout office by or before July 1. The fee is $20 for scouts, and $22.50 for out-of-council and non-scouts.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Morning is best time to take care of those responsibilities you have incurred, so that tonight you can delve into more interesting outlets. You find that those who admire you are in an excellent mood then, whereas during day they are irritable.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) —Why get into that argument between kin or one you don't particularly care about? Keep out of it and it soon blows over. Postpone solving that problem at this time. P.M. fine for having a little party at home.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — Do not drive too fast during the day or you run the risk of having some serious accident. The P.M. is easier and you can have fun with congenials. Now is a good time to get at those health treatments you have been putting off.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) — Less extravagance where entertainment is concerned is wise during day. Tonight you can save more money by taking care of some personal aims, correspondence, etc. Smile more at others. Encourage that friendly feeling.

LEO (Juyt 22 to Aug. 21) — Avoid that big disagreement brewing at home during a.m. Then tonight you can entertain there happily. You need relief from tensions and should seek congenials. Have fun and stop feeling so sorry for yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21) — Why keep thinking about that problem that has you in a tizzy when you have so many chores to do? Be a more understanding person. Everything works out just fine by early evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) —Don't try to mix business with pleasure today or you wind up with some pretty mixed-up business. Do things right — handle the practical during the day. Be with friends p.m.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) —You are paying too much attention to that trot over you or your affairs. Paddle your own canoe more. That good pal comes through with support you desire in p.m. at long last.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) —Be careful in dealing with affairs that need your prompt attention during day. It is important you do not take any risks at all while the sun shines. Tonight all eases up and you can take it easy, be with pals, etc.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Getting all worked up over money where another is concerned could cause you big loss during a.m., so wait until tonight before you settle up. Listen to that good pal. See what professional advisor has to say.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Better be more alert to any differences between you and higher-ups and partners as well. Better analysis of all occurrences is important in reaching right decisions. Don't take anything for granted.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) —Wait until p.m. if you want to make all those improvements you feel are necessary. Take it easy during the day. Others could oppose you pretty much during day so do not give them a chance to do so.

Governor Is Expected To Attend Dedication Honoring W.A. Warners

Gov. John Connally is expected to attend a special preview of the musical drama, "Texas," tonight at Palo Duro Canyon to dedicate a granite map of the Panhandle as a memorial to the late Dr. W. A. Warner and his wife, Phebe.

Historical markers prepared by the Texas Historical Survey Committee will also be dedicated.

The 10-foot by 10-foot relief map of the Panhandle is a gift of the Warner children: Greely Warner of Pampa, Miss Kerrick Warner of Pasadena, Calif, Janet Miller Warner of Pampa, and Victoria Warner Tappan of California.

The Warners were the grandparents of John Warner, attorney and Corporation Court judge of Pampa.

Special guests at the dedication ceremony will be members of the Warner family, former patients of Dr. Warner, members of the Boy Scout Troop which he organized, and members of the first women's club in Texas which Mrs. Warner founded.

The monument, erected on the grounds of the Pioneer Amphitheatre, is a relief design of the early Panhandle, delineating county boundaries and tracing rivers and streams of the area.

The map was designed by Ernest Archambeau of Canyon and made by the Wallace Monument Co. It was carved from stone quarried near Clarendon from a model by O. P. Cowart of Canyon.

Dr. Warner settled in Claude in 1897, where he set up practice. Mrs. Warner, after working her way through Illinois Wesleyan University, arrived in Claude in February, 1898, and married Dr. Warner on the day of her arrival.

The ceremony was performed in the house. Dr. Warner had bought and prepared for her. Mrs. J. D. Stocking of Clarendon had made their wedding cake and sent it to Claude by railway. The ice cream was shipped from Fort Worth.

Mrs. Warner's wedding dress, packed in a trunk, failed to arrive in Claude and instead wound up in Amarillo.

The Warners lived in the same house in which they were married until their deaths. Dr. Warner died in 1934 and his twife in 1935.

Dr. Warner organized the first Boy Scout troop west of the Mississippi River in Armstrong County in 1912. He served as scoutmaster for 20 years and was presented the Silver Beaver, highest award in scouting, for his work.

Mrs. Warner organized the first women's club in Texas after she realized that many of the area women were "home sick." She also managed to secure the first home demonstration agents for the Panhandle counties.

Mrs. Warner, who recognized the need for park development, was a member of the first Texas State Parks Board, organized in 1923.

A feature and magazine writer, Mrs. Warner wrote editorials that appeared in various daily and weekly newspapers from 1916 to 1935. She campaigned for improved parks, railroads, politics, adult education and schools. She was a member of the Texxas Women's Press Association and the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs.

For more than 10 years Dr. Warner traveled by horse and buggy. In 1908 he bought a car, which was given the number 6 by the county. The car bore the number as long as Dr. Warner drove it.

During his 35 years of practice, Dr. Warner delivered more than 2,000 babies, some of them in cow camps and dugouts.

Festivities at the preview and dedication ceremonies tonight include a barbecue and a fireworks display.

Historical markers to be dedicated tonight include the Charles Goodnight Memorial Trail and the location of an early barbed wire fence. Col. Goodnight founded the first ranch on the plains of Texas in 1876.

Other guests for the opening will include members of the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation, Inc., and their guests.

"Texas," written by Paul Green, opens to the public tomorrow night. Performances will be presented nightly through Labor Day, except on Tuesdays.

'Saga' Getting Ready For Big Show Saturday

CLARENDON (Spl)— Professional lighting equipment from Dallas will top the list of improvements for this year's production of "Saint's Roast Saga" scheduled at 9 p.m. Saturday and Sunday in Bronco Stadium in Clarendon.

Additional teams and wagons have been moving into Clarendon all week for rehearsals of the pageant. Bill Craft, Rodeo Association president, has been named parade chairman for the first portion of the show.

Mrs. Evelyn Moore, set chairman, reports that the new sets are completed and ready to use. A blacksmiths shop and half dug-out as well as an enlarged stage have been added this year.

Publicity tours traveled to 15 area towns last Saturday boosting "Saint's Roost Saga" while other groups cut tapes featuring the show for use on TV and radio. A large delegation will attend a TV show with the Clarendon Rodeo Association on KGNC at noon Saturday, June 29.

Narrated in rhymed verse, the show re-creates Donley County history with a cast of over 175 people in authentic costumes. For family entertainment, it is filled with colorful Indians, cowboys, girls and characters representing actual people and events, laughter, music and dancing. Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for children under 12 with proceeds going to the Donley County Historical Museum Fund.

Doke Thanks Those Who Backed Him

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is a letter written to the people of Pampa by Tim Doke, son of Rev. and Mrs. J.W. Doke, 121 N. StarkWeather. Tim won second place in the oratorical contest at the 50th anual Optimist Club International Convention at Louisville, Ky. last week.

By TIM DOKE

May I take this opportunity to thank all the people of Pampa whose best wishes went with me to Louisville this past week. I am so grateful to everyone for the encouragement and support I knew I had in Pampa.

This feeling of "hometown support" was invaluable to helping me to keep my own confidence up. I am sure similar support was given to Randy Matson, Kenny Hebert and Jim Bond, and aided in helping them achieve their success. I hope you don't think I am trying to be facetious by mentioning my name with these fine men who have represented Pampa so well.

It was such a great privilege for me to represent Pampa, my family and the state of Texas in the international oratorical finals. I am truly honored at the confidence the people of Pampa placed in me.

I am sorry the outcome of the contest was not more in my favor, but I have a feeling of satisfaction in my heart. I am satisfied that I did end up with a $1000 college scholarship. But, moreover, I am satisfied that there were 27,551 other boys in the contest and I went as far as I did.

While in Louisville, I made some great friends, something one can never forget or lose. As I thought on our official topic, "The Golden Opportunities of Youth," I said to myself, "What greater oportunity is there for today's youth than to go out into a crowd and make friends?"

When I look back to the things I lost this past week, I find they don't even compare to the things I gained. The personal glory and recognition of "first place winner" would have been great, and I'd like to say the boy who won deserves this recognition.

But, "to be a good winner, one must first be a good loser." I hope I've done my share of the latter, and the next time I have a chance to represent Pampa, the outcome will be more favorable."

● Costs

wear pushed apparel prices up six-tenths of one per cent and labor officials noted that nearly half of a 5.3 per cent over-the-year increase in over-all clothing costs could be traced to higher price tags on women's wear.

Charges for consumer services advanced by four-tenths of one per cent with personal care, medical care, taxes and home repairs leading the upswing. The report noted a one per cent climb in hospital charges during May, which pushed the level of such costs 13 per cent over May, 1967.

Average weekly earnings of factory workers rose $1.59 in May to a record $106.03, but so-called real earnings were slightly below a year ago.

A worker with no dependents was earning $106.03 before taxes but was actually earning the same purchasing power he would have received with $88.14 about 10 years ago.

Insurance Pays For Damage At Local Airfield

Gray County has received money from three insurance firms for damages sustained to the roof of Perry LeFors Airfield when it was struck by high winds May 29.

The high winds spawned by violent thunderstorms in the area ripped off about half of the roof of the main hangar at the airport.

Cost of repair was $776.24 and the county has received almost $675 from the three insurance firms.

been reported killed and 22 wounded. Communist losses included at least five men killed and one captured.

In the same area Thursday South Vietnam troops killed at least 148 Communists and captured 10 more in two sweeps that cost the lives of 26 government troops.

The fighting erupted after repeated intelligence reports that North Vietnam was stepping up its infiltration of troops into South Vietnam despite American protests at the preliminary talks in Paris.

In other developments:

—U.S. jets flew 138 missions Thursday against North Vietnamese northern panhandle supply lines. No planes were reported lost.

—A Viet Cong attack Thursday against a village in Quang Ngai Province of South Vietnam killed nine civilians and left 10 others wounded. The guerrillas kidnaped 10 villagers. There was a report the raiders blew up a school.

Civil Liberties Union Pushing To Abolish State Death Penalty

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Texas Civil Liberties Union Wednesday urged immediate legislative action to abolish the death penalty in Texas.

The action followed decisions by the U.S. Supreme Court in two cases handled by the union's lawyers.

Doran Williams, TCLU's executive director, said "we feel greatly strengthened in our attack on capital punishment, and should the legislature fail to abolish the death penalty, we will continue to fight capital punishment on a case-by-case basis."

ANCIENT CHURCH in Russia was built in 1552 and is now considered a tourist attraction. According to a Soviet source, the wooden building was constructed solely with axes and contains no nails.

Holy Man of India Fails to Reach Goal

By DAVID POLING

The Holy Man from India did not last six months. The Maharishi Mahesh Yogi. You remember him as the personal chaplain for the Beatles, Mia Farrow and, of late, the Beach Boys. His goal was to give America a spiritual reawakening via transcendental meditation.

A national tour had been arranged with the Beach Boys providing the music and the maharishi doing the words. It was all set but the audience and the tickets did not sell and the maharishi has disappeared. A professional always knows when the curtain should drop.

Some of us thought he would last seven months. He was launched, rather ignited, with one of the best press agent impacts seen since "Gone With the Wind." His promoters, er . . .sponsors, filled the new Felt Forum at Madison Square Garden at $2 per person. Everybody got into the swing of it. His flower countenance graced the covers of national magazines.

Johnny Carson kept a straight face for 20 minutes on the Tonight Show. The holy man had time for a quick session with U Thant and other U.N. mediatators. Things went well in New York. Lots of press and TV coverage, nicely handled by the David Merrick-type of producers who know a winner from a loser.

The paperback publishers roared in with several lifesaving manuals by the yogi from India who gave the Beatles peace, and Mia Farrow someone to talk to besides Las Vegas types. Record albums have appeared but no one is buying. Transcendental meditation, even Beatle-supported, won't sell in the discount stores. I mean, how do you make it a bargain?

Now we have the word that the holy man has winged back to Japan or India, wherever holy men go these days. His tour collapsed when the auditorium ushers outnumbered the audience and the kids went home when the Beach Boys stopped playing. Religion is a tough act anyway—and spiritual entertainers have never held the crowds for very long.

The maharishi has only himself to blame. There he was sitting on the couch in the Plaza, having this nice beauty parlor dialogue with the reporters and someone (an unsmiling newsman looking for facts) asked him why he didn't help the poor people in India. He fondled a flower and softly replied, "Poor people are lazy. That is why they are poor — and hungry." King Kong could not have put it more gently. The maharishi kept smiling. When you are holy and wise and wealthy, you smile a lot and remember how lazy the poor people are in India.

Before we are too hard on the holy man and his Broadway theologians, let us admit that most religious leaders — name any—are well-off. They have money and what this world calls "resources." The top leaders in church circles have their summer homes, expense accounts and handsome retirement benefits. Some have worked diligently and faithfully—but I doubt if you can name one that is ever short of cash or up tight for credit.

And then think for another minute about Jesus. There was no syndicate in the Sinai to promote His works. No press or TV coverage. The drugstores did not carry record albums or paperbacks.

'White Racism' Report Poses Question to Urban Americans

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

When the national riots commission blamed "white racism" for urban disorders, it left many conscientious Americans with a question:

What can one concerned individual do to combat racial discrimination in the social and economic structure?

Protestant churches across the nation are now distributing thousands of copies of a booklet published by the National Council of Churches to provide answers to that question.

The booklet is entitled "Crisis in America: Hope through action."

Here are some of its suggestions for individual action:

—Buy from merchants who hire Negroes and other minorities; boycott stores and service agencies that practice discrimination.

—When you visit your bank, look around for Negro tellers. If you don't see any, seek out a bank officer and ask why.

—Volunteer your services at a municipal hospital or welfare center to help poor people fill out government forms and deal with red tape that baffles them.

—Drive through the black ghetto of your city. If you find that it gets less municipal service, in the form of garbage removal and street cleaning, than you get in your neighborhood, write a protest letter to the appropriate city departments, with carbon copies to the mayor and your city councilman.

—Through books, lectures of discussions, study the subtle ways in which racism expresses itself. Learn to detect hidden prejudices in yourself and in social institutions which you actively or tacitly support.

—Get to know Negroes and other minority group members with whom you have something in common such as a business or profession, or a church.

—Subscribe to a Negro newspaper or magazine, and read books about Negroes and their history so you might begin to comprehend their point of view—and the bitterness of their feelings.

—Become active in politics in your local precinct. Challenge candidates to say where they stand on the massive new antipoverty programs recommended by the national riots commission.

—Write to members of Congress and the administration urging them to support the riots commission proposals.

—Be vigilant to see that human rights are not infringed in your community and when they are, protest by every means at your command.

Some things, the booklet says, are best accomplished by working with others in church or civic groups. It recommends for small groups such actions as these:

—Helping to open housing opportunities for Negroes in all-white suburbs.

—Checking public schools to see if quality education is available for all students, including inner city children.

—Serving in cooperative work projects on weekends in black neighborhoods.

The booklet says: "Having the power, we have the responsibility to serve man as our service to God.

"These suggestions are made in the hope that 'silent good people' will become the acting servants of the Lord."

Witnesses to Study Shaping of Future

Eddie Ripley, an associate minister of the East congregation of Amarillo, will speak on "The Shaping of Your Future" at the 10 a.m. service Sunday at the Jehovah's Witnesses congregation at 17th and Coffee Sts.

Speaking of his subject, Ripley said, "It is determined by one's decision now whether to act in harmony with God's will or not. Mere indecision or inaction can put us in opposition to God."

The public is invited to bring their Bibles and follow as the scriptures are read.

The Bible lecture will be followed by the weekly Watchtower Bible study at 11 a.m.

Rev. Hager To Discuss Perfection

"The Call for Perfection" is the sermon topic of Rev. Martin Hager, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, at both the 8:30 and 11 a.m. worship services this Sunday.

The textual basis for Rev. Hager's sermon will be taken from the 5th chapter of the Gospel according to Matthew.

Seminary intern Dan Snider will serve as pulpit assistant at both worship services. Mrs. Fidelia Yoder, church organist, will play "Meditation" by Becker-Aspen at both services for the offertory.

A representative from the Gideon Society will speak at the second service to explain the program of the organization.

A congregational meeting will be held immediately following the 11 a.m. service for the purpose of electing an Elder to fill an unexpired term.

Church to Discuss 'Christian Science'

"For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death."

This verse from Romans is part of the lesson-sermon to be read at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 901 N. Frost, at 11 a.m. Sunday. Title of the lesson is "Christian Science."

"Sickness, sin and death, being inharmonious, do not originate in God nor belong to His government. His law, rightly understood, destroys them," is the related passage from the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy.

FATAL MISTAKE

MUNCIE, Ind. (UPI) —"The Lord's will be done," Thomas E. Stewart shouted after Delaware circuit Judge Alva Cox said he was found innocent of manslaughter in the fatal shooting of a peeping Tom.

A few moments before, the judge had said he was guilty—misreading the jury's verdict.

Blackwood Singers To Perform

The Blackwood Singers from Memphis, Tenn., will present a concert of gospel singing at 7 p.m. Sunday at the Lamar Full Gospel Assembly, at Bond and South Sumner streets.

The group, composed of four men and two women, have appeared at various revivals, youth rallies and concerts.

According to Jack Marshall, a friend of the singers, the group consists of "soul-stirring, dynamic young singers" who have one desire: to win souls for Christ.

The Rev. Ron Blackwood serves as the manager of the group and sings baritone. His wife Sandra sings first tenor. R.W. Blackwood, Jr., sings lead; his wife Donna sings and plays the organ.

Ron Hamilton, from Louisiana sings and plays the bass guitar. Danny Stonestreet, from Dallas, sings and plays the piano.

The Blackwood brothers are sons of the late R. W. Blackwood, former manager and baritone of the Blackwood Brothers Quartet.

Gordon Bayless To Preach At First Christian

In the absence of Rev. J.W. Doke, Gordon D. Bayless will fill the pulpit for the morning worship at 8:30 a.m. this Sunday at First Christian Church.

The choir, under the direction of Miss Rosemary Lawlor and accompanied by Mrs. John Gill, with present the Anthem. J. Stanley Hill will serve as Elder this week.

The J.Y.F. Youth Group will not meet this week as most of the Juniors will be attending church camp in Ceta Glen, near Canyon. The Snack Supper also has been cancelled.

The Chi Rho Youth Group will meet at 6 p.m Sunday for their regular weekly meeting.

Several C.W.F. groups will meet during the week. They are: Group 2, 9:30 a.m. July 3, with Mrs. Betty King, 1148 Prairie Dr.; Group 3, 9:30 a.m. July 3, with Mrs. Phyllis Cherry, 2320 Christine; Rambo Group, 7:30 p.m. July 1, in the Fellowship Hall.

The B&PW Group will not meet in July and August.

Rev. Cameron To Have Topic On Classify Yourself

Rev. Dan B. Cameron, pastor of First Baptist Church, will preach for both services of worship Sunday. At 11 a.m. service, his sermon topic will be "Classify Yourself."

Randall Purvis, minister of music, will direct the Chancel Choir in singing the anthem, "In the Night Christ Came Walking" by Cain. He will sing a tenor solo, "I Believe in Miracles" by Peterson.

Miss Eloise Lane, organist, will play the offertory number, "O God of Bethel, By Whose Hand," a Scottish Psalm.

At the 7 p.m. worship the pastor will speak on "When an Inch Equals a Yard." The youth choir will occupy the choir lot and sing special music.

"God Himself Is With Us" by Neander is the selection Miss Lane will play for the evening organ offertory.

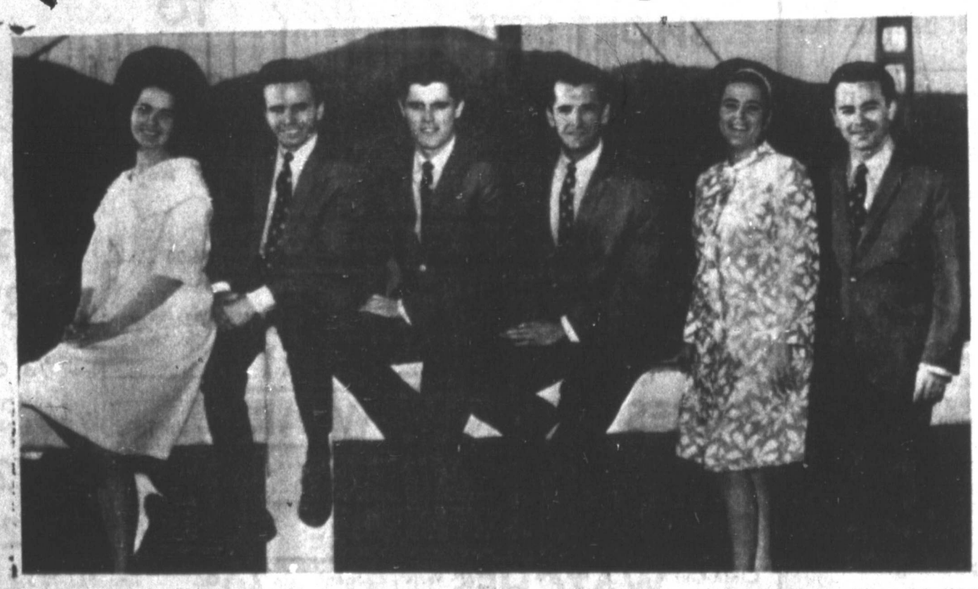

Vacation Bible School continues through July 3 with Roy Kornegay, educational director, in charge. The congregation is invited to VBS Open House on July 3 from 6:15 to 7 p.m. and to the Commencement from 7 to 8 p.m.

POSTPONE VISIT

ROME (UPI) —President Giuseppe Saragat asked Queen Elizabeth II to postpone Saragat's official visit to Britain scheduled for next month and the queen agreed. The Italian government gave no reason for the request.

Attend The Church Of Your Choice

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

H. Dewitt Seago, Pastor
FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

CAN YOU RECOMMEND YOUR RELIGION?

"He first findeth his own brother Simon, and saith unto him, we have found the Messiah." John 1:41

A great number of people in our day are becoming aware of a new movement which seems to be springing up in America. It is called personal evangelism, which is considered by many to be the most biblical form of evangelism. It has a motto according to which "each one will win one." The genius of the movement is that the individual church member, the layman, as over against the professional preacher, is the evangelizing agent.

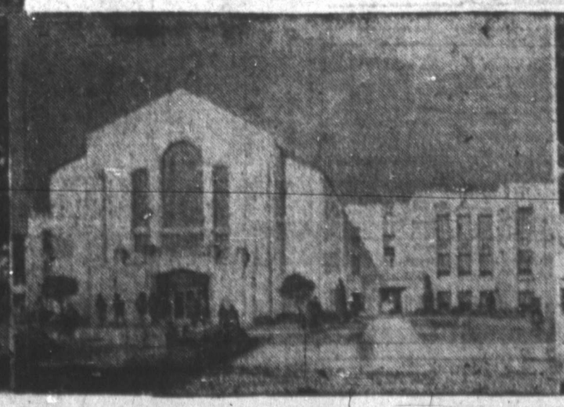

When a preacher stands in the pulpit and says that it is the duty of the Christian to give himself to his business, you then have a right to ask what is meant by evangelism. The best definition I know comes from the late William Temple: "Evangelism is the winning of men to acknowledge Christ as their Savior and King, so that they give themselves to this service in the fellowship of the church." According to that definition, the professional is not the only evangelist. Any man who can recommend his religion so as to lead another to take Christ as his Savior and King and to give himself to the service of Christ in the fellowship of the church is doing the work of the evangelist.

That this kind of thing is a part of the business of being a Christian is entirely in line with biblical example. The Great Commission was not given to the Christian ministry but to the Christian Church. It seems quite clear that when Jesus met his disciples on the mountain in Galilee about five hundred brethern were together in obedience to his summons. It was to this group, probably containing all who stood the shock of the crucifixion and maintained the integrity of the faith beyond it, that he gave the commission.

Furthermore, Paul says that pastors, teachers, and evangelists were given to the church for "the perfecting of the saints for the doing of service." The King James version, "for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry (Eph. 4:12), gives the impression that the perfecting of the saints and the work of the ministry are two separate phases of the work of pastors. But other translations correct the error. They say that these gifts were given "for the perfecting of God's people for their appointed service," in order fully to equip them for the work of building up of the body for Christ, which is the growth of the church.

In other words, the task of recruiting for the church is placed not solely on the shoulders of the preacher, but is to be shared by the layman. The pastor is not a spiritual lecturer but a religious general who marshals the forces under his charge and trains them for their appointed service, for the recruiting of others for the building up of the body of Chist. It was the great preacher Lyman Beecher who was asked one day how he was able to get so much done in the winning of people to the Christian life. His answer was that he preached to 400 people on Sunday morning and all 400 went out to live that witness during the week. Is that what we need to do here in the Pampa community?

Chinese Bomb

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—When Red China first exploded a nuclear bomb, many Americans were astonished that a country so seemingly lagging in technology could produce such a complex weapon.

We tend to forget that the Chinese have a history rich in scientific achievement, which includes the invention of both gunpowder and the egg roll.

In view of the hostility between the United States and the Chinese Communists, it is comforting to note that the Nationalist Chinese in Taiwan also are making technological and scientific advances.

A good example can be found in a press release recently [illegible] vice. It reports that scientists in Taiwan have performed a successful "chromosomal translocation" in a watermelon.

Impressive Description

I'll confess I haven't the vaguest notion of what a "chromosomal translocation" is, but anyone reading the press release is certain to be impressed by it. Permit me to cite a few pertinent excerpts:

"For years melon farmers in Taiwan have cultivated a triploid seedless watermelon, a cross between the diploid and tetraploid. The tetraploid is developed by treating the diploid with colchicine.

"This method has been in use since 1961. It, however, confronts such defects as low seed setting of the tetraploid melon, which is slow in growth and late maturing."

The announcement goes on to quote Cheng Wen-yu, a Taiwan watermelon expert, as saying "The use of chromosomal translocation has not only remedied those defects but improved the quality of the melon."

How about that, watermelon lovers?

Missing Facts

Regrettably, the press release does not supply any details as to whether the chromosomal translocation took place in the diploid, the triploid or the tetraploid melon. I assume it was the triploid.

After exhaustive research (I was able to establish that the triploid has "three times the basic chronosome number, as a result of nondisjunction during meiosis."

The tetraploid, of course, has four times the basic number, whereas in the diploid the basic number is doubled, or, putting it another way, the diploid has "twice the number of normal gametes."

Keeping this in mind, we can [illegible] China was able to come up with an A-bomb.

Any race of people capable of mastering the complexities of a watermelon obviously would find nuclear fission a breeze.

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

"If I am not capable of settling these questions then I should no longer be in this position."

—President Josef Broz Tito of Yugoslavia, June 9, 1968.

It was not the first time the 77-year-old Tito had startled his fellow Communists, beginning with Soviet dictator Josef Stalin who fired him from the Cominform for deviating from the Moscow line in 1948.

His defense of Yugoslavia's rebellious students, whose cause he made his own, was a far cry from the tough tactics employed to quell similar unrest in another Communist state, Poland, only a few weeks earlier.

Of the student grievances, he declared:

"I myself have often raised these questions and they still are not resolved."

His soft words turned away the wrath of the students who had protested harsh living conditions in the university and demanded a greater democratization within the Communist party, including press freedom.

This week, Tito told 2,000 trade union delegates that reform directives issued by the party leadership at the end of the student demonstrations "are being carried into life too slowly."

Between the restless students, the trade unionists and within his own party, Tito's problems were manifold.

After more than a year of radical overhaul of party policy and the national economy, unemployment continued to mount.

Many of the victims of the unemployment were young university graduates who had been promised jobs in which they could d use their new learning and then were unable to find any.

Within the party and in management of industry were many who owed their jobs more to their activity as underground Communist partisans in World War II than to training or ability.

They arrested both party decentralization and the economic reform which suddenly exposed Yugoslav industry to the harsh realities of international free competition.

Tito has rejected charges from other communist nations that his reform program "leads to capitalism."

Instead, he says, "It leads to socialism in a more humane way."

NEW YORK (UPI)—Hayden, Stone Inc. says the present market shows a tendency to "take two steps forward to one backward" with volume declining on the setbacks and no signs of "important distribution." The investment firm says that while many "boulders" lie ahead for the market, a selectively bullish approach continues to appear quite justified.

Scheinman Timing forecasts says selection of stocks is "only part of learning how to play the game" in the stock market, adding that it is "far more difficult" for the average investor to learn to accept profits and limit losses. The company says that without the ability to implement these two aspects of an investment strategy, an investor is not going to do well, "however brilliant" he had been in making selections.

E. F. Hutton & Co. says that except for certain special situations, a lack of aggressive buying seems to be the market's "biggest shortening" at this time. The company says the current market irregularity continues to look like a normal consolidation of a sharp previous advance and not the forerunner of a significant new decline.

PROMISES EQUALITY

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's woman minister for employment and productivity made a "categorial pledge" Wednesday to obtain equal pay for women.

Mrs. Barbara Castle said the increases in pay for women should be made at the expense of increases in male salaries where necessary. The issue has been illustrated in recent weeks by the strike of seamstresses at a Ford Motor Company plant who have demanded the same pay as men.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News it dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license, nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself. No more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Surplus of Weak Knees

"The biggest surplus in American government today is weak knees."

That quote is from Rep. Vernon Thompson of Wisconsin, the state's former governor who spoke out against the members of the United Nations who are behind in their financial obligations to that world organzation, but he drew his bead also on the whole spectrum of permissiveness.

"The moral courage which inspired the American dream of government under law has become so eroded that this nation and the world are faced with the choice of military government or anarchy," he said.

It is unfortunate that this statement did not receive more widespread dissemination, but the surplus of weak knees is not restricted to the government. It also overwhelms the newspapers of the nation, and that is a more serious problem.

What the Wisconsin congressman was saying is that our society has become so spineless that it closes its eyes to lawlessness, from the looting of a "slum area" store in Detroit to open defiance of state college administration in Berkeley and even to the piracy on the high seas by a two-bit nation which apparently can seize an American warship and thumb its nose at the world's most powerful (?) nation.

If one looks for it, he can usually find a root from which such moral decay stems.

And it seems to us that the most recent developments are the inevitable result of a society that adheres to no moral absolutes on which to plant its feet.

Our political leaders from the local level to Washington are guided by expediency. When emotion becomes overwhelming, legislation that once was rejected because it was unsound, unnecessary and unbearable, suddenly becomes an absolutely critical agenda item —the weak knees crumple before the pressure, imagined or otherwise.

Our national government permitted a group of trouble makers to camp out in shantytown fashion on national park land in Washington D.C., while its leaders lobbied for handouts. We continue to spend millions in foreign aid to nations that not only oppose the U.S. in foreign affairs, some actually send material aid to our war enemy in Vietnam.

How is it possible for a once great, straight-backed nation to have sunk so low?

What else can we expect from a society that has no moral absolutes?

That is a society that has a minister who says the only way a man can become rich is to steal. That is a society that has a minister who leads a demonstration in violation of duly constituted authority. That is a society whose children are denied the opportunity to seek spiritual comfort in the course of their academic pursuits.

That is a society that apparently sees no evil in the use of force by government to take from some to subsidize others.

It is no wonder that confusion raises over what is right and what is wrong and it is no wonder that when great crises arise, the weak knees tremble from city hall to the U.N.

A Big Surprise

Mount Angel, Oregon, is a peaceful rural community of 1,600 persons lying in the lush, rolling hills of the Williamette Valley. It is a religious and agricultural center. The visitor is immediately struck by the neatness of the community and its environs. There are thousands of similar communities throughout the United States. No one was more shocked then the residents of Mount Angel when they were advised by poverty officials that 40 per cent of the people living in the community were poverty-stricken.

It seems that the people of Angel are on the wrong side of the arbitrary line that officialdom has drawn between poverty and affluence. So now, Mount Angel is officially classed as a blighted area. The first step, apparently, is to establish a poverty office for which the residents of the Mount Angel area must put up one third of the cost. Then, the people must be educated, they must develop a new attitude, they must learn to ask for help—whether they need it or not. The good federal shepherd is ready to take them under his wing.

Not surprising, as a poverty official found, "Most of these people don't know where to find help. We point them to the employment office, welfare, to the abundant foods program or wherever they qualify . . . The good people of Mount Angel didn't even know they needed help, but they will learn as will all the inmates of the welfare state, as time goes on.

Professional Troublemakers Are Paid for Demonstrating

Some professional troublemakers are collecting money with both hands.

They are paid by followers to stage demonstrations and paid off by politicians not to.

In Chicago some infamous youth gansters, believed responsible for 28 killings so far this year, have been collecting payoffs up to $6,500 each to prevent trouble. This bribe comes from $1 million in federal funds distributed by the Office of Economic Opportunity— your dollars.

These gangsters, ostensibly employed as "instructors," are thus picking your pocket in exchange for keeping the city "cool" through the Democratic National Convention this summer.

At the same time there is evidence they are collecting big money from South Side merchants as "protection" for their property in case of further rioting.

Similarly, in the racist organization called the Black Muslims, big money is raked in by the misleadership. Elijah Muhammad, head man of this hate outfit, has boasted that he takes in $120,000 a month.

A letter to the membership mentions Muslim farms and a supermarket and a restaurant, all profitable to the Muslim movement. The restaurant reportedly brings in $2,000 a day.

The movement "advertised, and recommended" by Cassius Clay, has grown to a nationwide membership of 70,000 or more.

The Muslims, while buying up other properties, are demanding that the U. S. government should give them five states for a separate "black nation." They prefer Mississippi, Georgia, Alabama, Louisana and South Carolina. They want all of the drumsticks and hone of the necks!

Meanwhile, back in Washington—

TV, radio and press coverage of recent public demonstrations by the "poor people" constituted a nationwide promotion for "more money."

One church group kicked in $50,000. Organized labor contributed heavily. Some members of Congress made specific contributions. But incalculable cash contributions flooding the Washington post office come from sympathetic Negroes and Whites all across America, most conscientiously seeking to perpetuate what they consider a worthy and constructive "campaign against poverty."

The instances herein cited are admittedly unrelated except that in each case demonstrators are collecting money to stage demonstrations or to prevent demonstrations—or both at the same time.

And in each instance it's the taxpayer who pays. Unwillingly, he subsidizes Chicago gangsters.

Or, when compassionate persons willingly contribute to a gigantic, unaudited and terribly tempting kitty, such contributions are "tax deductible" — our Treasury is further depleted to the extent of those deductions—

So the taxpayer pays all ways.

What the World Thinks Of Us and Why

It is all but forgotten now, except for an occasional story buried in the pages of the newspaper—an article describing a "confession," perhaps.

The families of 83 men have not forgotten, though. They can only wait, and hope for the release of the Pueblo's crew. Their hope dims with every passing, do-nothing day.

John F. Lewis, associate editor of the American Security Council's "Washington Report" was a guest and his testimony, which we print below, should make every American stop and think:

"When the USS Pueblo was surrounded, boarded and captured by four North Korean Communist gunboats on January 23, the United States lost far more than 83 men and the sophisticated electronically-equipped vessel.

"It demonstrated our military weakness, Washington's seeming inability to cope with a crisis requiring immediate and effective response, and our government's utterly naive and pitiful assumption of Communist resonableness."

Lewis recalled the fact that our diplomats immediately begged the Soviet Union to help settle the Pueblo incident for us. "The appeal was promptly snubbed," he observed. It had long been clear to our intelligence agencies that the Russians were going to try to get their hands on the super-secret coding equipment that so-called "spy" vessels like the Pueblo were known to carry.

"When it was disclosed that a Soviet cargo plane took off from North Korea with a load of equipment presumably from the Pueblo within 24 hours of its impounding at Wonsan, the same U.S. officials who had so confidently turned to Moscow for help at the outset could only express shock and dismay."

That the Soviets managed to pirate our secret equipment is bad enough, but it is not the worst aspect of the story. The seizure of our ship by the Communists signified to much of the free world that the United States is no longer able to defend herself, much less her allies.

"The non-Communist world has not forgotten," said Lewis, "that in 1962, the U.S. stood firm in the face of the Cuban missile crisis only to reward a Kremlin back-down by guaranteeing Communist Cuba's immunity from any further threat of liberation stemming from Cuban exiles given asylum on our shores." Other not-forgotten items: our trading with the enemy who finances North Vietnam, and our allowing the Soviets to achieve nuclear "parity" with us. The Pueblo is simply the latest indication of our inability to stand up to our enemy.

Shortly after the seizure of the Pueblo, two anti-guerilla experts were invited to South Korea by that country's government. They were from Israel—a significant sign of what the world thinks of us today. Israel knows how to win wars, and actions speak louder than words.

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — The last mission of the Scorpion may hold the key to its fate.

At the time of its disappearance last month, the nuclear attack sub was investigating the operations of two "hunter-killer" Russian submarines.

These Soviet vessels were tracking a deep running Polaris submarine in an area near the Scorpion when the latter received its secret assignment.

The Polaris submarine was enroute to the Mediterranean to take up a secret patrol station from which her 16 missiles could reach targets deep inside Russia in the event of war.

As pieced together from reports from the skipper of the Polaris, the Scorpion succeeded in breaking up the surveillance by the Russian submarines. There is no clear indication, however, of what then happened. The Scorpion kept radio silence.

According to information furnished the House Armed Services Committee by the Navy, the Scorpion in carrying out its mission could have been disabled or destroyed by:

(1) Colliding with one of the Soviet submarines;

(2) An attack by the Russian submarines;

(3) Hitting an uncharted reef;

(4) A mechanical failure which sank the submarine in water too deep for its safety.

Speculation on a collision with or attack by one of the Soviet submarines has increased among Navy submarine officers because of the recent militant operations of Russia's anti-submarine warfare forces.

THE UNDERSEAS WAR — Since the first of the year Soviet nuclear-powered submarines usually have appeared and begun a close surveillance of American Polaris submarines as they left U.S. ports for their battle stations.

The Soviet naval watch usually lasts until the Polaris is able to outmaneuver its "hunter" and slip away or until other American submarines intervene.

The Russians are obviously determined to find out just where the Polaris submarines are going in order to keep track of the positions of their 1,500 to 2,600-mile range missiles.

As in the case of the Scorpion, it is the assignment of U.S. attack submarines to dart in between the Polaris subs and their Russian shadow, bouncing sonar and radar signals off the Soviet hull to confuse the craft's detection gear.

By these daring maneuvers, the American attack subs can usually force the Russian submarines to change course, giving the Polaris submarine the opportunity it needs to slip away.

At the present time, the U.S. has more than 35 Polaris submarines on station "off the shores of the Soviet Union and Communist China. All of these subs carry 16 missiles.

Although the U.S. Navy has no firm estimate of the number of Soviet submarines with Polaris-type capabilities, British naval sources report there are between 10 and 14.

In addition to these missile-firing submarines, the Russians have 38 nuclear-powered and 57 diesel-powered missile subs in their fleet of 500 submarines.

Each of these Russian vessels carries anywhere from two to eight missiles, with ranges up to 600 miles. During the past 12 months, the Russians are known to have successfully tested missiles fired from under the oceans that have traveled from 900 to 2,000 miles.

These longer-range missiles are believed to be the ones installed in their small fleet of Polaris-type submarines.

THE SOVIET PATROL —U.S. intelligence authorities report that the Russians are now operating a full-time submarine patrol off both coasts of the U.S. and in the Gulf of Mexico.

Most of these patrol vessels are nuclear-powered and are using a newly built naval base in Cuba as one of their away-from-home ports.

In addition to charting U.S. coasts and checking on departing and arriving Polaris submarines, the Soviet vessels are known to ferry espionage agents from Cuba to U.S. shores.

ANOTHER BATTLEGROUND —American and Russian underseas warfare experts are also playing out a cold-war battle in the Bahamas that goes well beyond the underwater spy clashes of James Bond.

Scene is the U.S. Atlantic Underseas Test and Evaluation Center (Autec), near Nassau.

Along the north shore of Cuba, somewhat over 100 miles south of Autec, Russia has countered by creating her own base for a fleet of fishing trawlers manned by oceanographic technicians.

An estimated 200 to 350 Soviet technicians are operating on at least 20 to 25 ships in this fleet, ed by oceanographic technicians. When U.S. experts with headquarters on the American-owned Andros Island conduct secret tests of torpedoes, undersea missiles or sonar tracking, the Soviets are usually on hand to do their fishing.

The underseas testing is compared in importance to the missile launchings from the major U.S. rocket and space installations. Autec was started in 1960 under an agreement between the U.S. and British governments.

For testing devices created in its laboratory, Autec uses a trench in the sea from 4,200 to 6,000 feet deep called the Tongue of the Ocean. It's a 100-mile stretch bristling with underwater devices to aid testing.

Most of the Autec testing ground is in international waters and Russia's Cuba-based submarines prowl as close as they can. A quiet but fateful battle is constantly fought as the U.S. strives to perfect underwater defenses and the Russians seek to learn how to penetrate them.

MISSING IN ACTION — Two of the Air Force's SR-71s, fastest operational planes in the world, are missing and presumed to have crashed in the Pacific or over Communist China.

These test versions of the high altitude reconnaissance jet—successor to the U-2 spy plane used over the Soviet Union and China — were on photographic missions over North Vietnam and Communist China.

The needle-nosed planes were being used to keep track of the steady flow of Chinese Communist "volunteers" from bases in Southern China into the northern part of North Vietnam.

The SR-71s are flying out of bases in Thailand and Okinawa.

President Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam and Premier Chou En-lai of Communist China were both, at various times, waiters at Chinese restaurants in Western Europe.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION: Suppose government-administered charity is desirable. But suppose maintaining the dignity of undignified recipients get recognized as an expendable frill. Then wouldn't soup kitchens and barracks — open to all, but located out of the way of productive citizens, be the answer, that is, do the essential job more efficiently? Create ghettos on purpose, for the acknowledged shiftless only? Is this desirable? Attainable? Worth working toward?

—J. D. T.

ANSWER: It is difficult to answer suppositions that are erroneous to start with. Government administration of charity is never desirable. Only voluntary charity is truly charity and desirable.

It is hard to conceive how his second supposition — "that maintaining the dignity of undignified recipients gets recognized as an expendable frill"—could ever come about. As long as the recipients of government administered charity can vote, the government is going to treat them with care.

Soup kitchens or any other distribution of emergency aid to people should not be carried out by the government but by individual, voluntary charity. Government charity or doles increase shiftlessness. And it is certainly not desirable to increase shiftlessness. If it is not desirable, it is not worthy of working for.

We do not believe that deliberate creation of real ghettos and enforced slavery within them would really handle the problem efficiently, either. Such methods have never produced any beneficial result in all history, as Athens and Rome can witness. Bad means and a wrong goal can only add to a problem.

Branch Head Bill Says:

by BILL KENNEDY

Many of the same people who "deplore" all the violence and sordid deaths depicted on the TV screens as "bad influences on our young people" recently endured four and five-day murder and funeral spectaculars in their living rooms and dens without so much as a whimper.

Television is well known for its rerun gimmick, but the numbers of times the media reproduced the killings of Senator Kennedy and Dr. King— during the days spent emphasizing and ballooning the tragedies—must be some kind of a rerun record. If the networks didn't sell murder to our youngsters as the "attention getter with these prolonged promotions, then the shooting of a crook in the streets by a movie hero doesn't have a chance to make a dent in their little minds.

We do not imply that the nation should not be informed about such tragic events. We do imply that the hypocritical concern and attention to detail—including the invasion of family privacy—enjoyed by the network newsmen is more than unnecessary. It is bad taste!

Most sickening part of the whole ordeal of "reporting" was when the liberal commentators sat stupidly around—with cross-country hookup yet—speculating on the causes. Most of their speculation was silly. They were playing politics.

They invariably arrived in verbal tripe at the conclusion that the American people, all of "society," really killed these people. Nothing could be further from the truth. . . and most folks know that. All three of the publicized killings—JFK's, MLK and RFK's — were marked with evidence that they were committed, or paid for, by enemies of the American people. There are further indications each murder may be a part of some carefully designed enemy plot. (George Wallace has long since been warned that he is on the list of intended vic-

The alleged killer of President Kennedy had renounced his U.S. citizenship to become a Communist, had been in recent contact with Cuban Communists.

The accused killer of King was a wanted criminal who could conceivably have been hired by anybody, and he was cunningly secreted out of this country.

And the man charged with Robert Kennedy's death was a citizen of Jordan, Communist supported enemy of American supported Israel.

It's hard to believe that all the "brains" of NBC news staff could spend five days rehashing the three murders—and reshowing them—posing and musing over theories and possibilities, and never once touch on this angle despite all the evidence. It takes little mental vision to see what violence in the streets, on the campus and in the trigger finger of an assassin all work to disrupt the unity of American citizens. They can create distrust and fear, break the faith and shake the confidence of Americans—the same as they have worked in other countires—to create the chaos and the climate needed for revolution.

And nobody who doesn't know by this time who is working for that climate and that revolution is some sort of a nut. They are the same forces working daily (meanwhile) to disarm individual United States citizens with a ban-the-gun law.

Not only are the big network commentators most of them and many writers, helping them with their ban-the-gun legislation, they are deliberately lending—no, insisting on using —their powerful influences to help set the stage for revolution. Television as they are using it is a far more dangerous threat to America than any weapon in the home, which you could need to protect your life and family, even if you never plan to go hunting.

Propaganda is still the most powerful weapon in the world. And our national networks are the most powerful propaganda machines ever built. If we are going to ban something. . .Let's ban TV.

Speaking Of Rising Costs

(Chicago Tribune)

"Now we are going to find out," President Johnson said as he signed a bill authorizing a federal study of automobile insurance, "why insurance premiums have jumped so suddenly —up 44 per cent in the last 10 years."

Well, there are certainly some valid complaints about the way auto insurance is working — Mr. Johnson himself mentioned the outrageous delays in court action, for example, and the enormous variation in the size of awards for comparable losses. These are among the things that affect premiums, and if a federal study can spur changes in the applicable state and local judicial procedures, fine. But our experience with federal studies suggests that the remedies that may be recommended are likely to be worse than the ills they are designed to cure.

What interests us at the moment is Mr. Johnson's concern over a 44 per cent rise in premiums in 10 years. It does not take a federal investigation to tell us that the costs of everything have been going up, for insurance companies as well as for the rest of us. So if Mr. Johnson really wants to get to the source of that 44 per cent he should appoint some federal investigators to find out why:

The cost of mailing a first class letter has gone up 100 per cent in 10 years, from 3 cents to 6.

The social security tax paid by the company and by the employe for an employe earning $5,000 a year has risen more than 130 per cent in 10 years, from $94.50 to $220, and the tax for an employe earning $10,000 has risen about 260 per cent.

The cost of the federal government has risen about 125 per cent in 10 years.

State and local taxes have for the most part more than doubled in 10 years.

We could go on almost indefinitely, but will stop with these in the hope that Mr. Johnson will want to get to work on them right away.

If you take ten fanatics, mix them well in a green bottle, and pour them out over the country you come up with a new commission on violence. That's what Elbe Jay done, and the commission is going at it tooth and nail to do away with practically everything in the country.

The ban on guns is just a start. They are going whole hog, with a little 'hell-bent for election' on the side.

Not only are they going to take real guns away from the citizens — they even are making little kids turn in their cap pistols and ratchet rifles. Not that anyone has been shot with a cap pistol yet, resulting in dire results, but there is no use taking chances — it might happen somehow.

But you ain't seen nothing yet. They want to take the guns off the Tele-vee too. It would be some sight to see 'Hoss' Cartwright pull out a little flag that states "Bang, you are dead." What puzzles me is, how are the Injuns, when they pull back a imaginary bow, goin to get across the message, "I got you first."

I guess the only solution will be to set up hand signals and signs. Then the cowboys and injuns will be flitting all around the set, giving arm signals and lookin like a bunch of ballet dancers — sort of a 'Ballet Russe' Western.

In Dusseldorf, Germany, a document was found in May 1919, entitled "Rules for Bringing About a Revolution." Paragraph "C" read, "Cause the registration of all firearms, with a view to confiscating them and leaving the population helpless."

It worked in Germany, it works in all Communist countries, and it could work here.

Ask your congressman and senator to vote NO to gun registration.

Aarons Lead Atlanta Into Runner-up Position

By FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer

Tommie Aaron will never escape his brother's shadow, but he tries his best to cast some light of his own.

Henry Aaron, the famous member of the Aaron family, added another page to his glamorous story Thursday night by belting the 495th home run of his career. But it was Tommie who provided the key hits as the Atlanta Braves edged the Philadelphia Phillies 4-3 and moved into second place in the National League.

Entering Thursday night's game, the younger Aaron was hitting only .231 and had driven in only seven runs in 108 trips to the plate. He came through against Chris Short, however, with run-scoring singles in the fifth and seventh innings to spark the Braves' triumph.

Fifth-Inning Score

Tommie's first single followed a run-scoring single by Joe Torre and scored brother Hank with a run that put the Braves ahead 3 2 in the ninth inning. His second hit came in the 7th inning following a double by Deron Johnson and helped righthander Pat Jarvis to his eighth victory of the season against five losses.

In the only other NL games, New York topped Houston 3-1 and Los Angeles edged San Francisco 6-5 in 11 innings.

In the only American League action, Boston walloped Cleveland 9-3 and Minnesota blanked Baltimore 2-0 in a game called at the end of 5 1-3 innings because of rain.

Ed Charles, batting .432 in his last 22 games, slammed three singles and scored the decisive run as the Mets edged Houston and once again crept to within one game of .500.

End Scoreless Streak

The Mets ended a streak of 31 scoreless innings at the Astrodome by pushing across two runs in the seventh on singles by Cleon Jones and Charles, an infield out and a single by Jerry Buchek. They were enough to help Don Cardwell win his second game against eight losses.

Zoilo Versalles led off the 11th inning with his second homer of the season as the Dodgers beat Juan Marichal and ended the righthander's winning streak at 10 games.

Versalles' homer was one of 14 hits the Dodgers collected off Marichal. The Dodgers used five pitchers with Don Sutton receiving credit for his fourth victory in 11 decisions. Willie McCovey accounted for four Giant runs with his 19th and 20th homers while Len Gabrielson socked a two-run homer for the Dodgers.

L. V. HOPP, 825 Kingsmill, caught these two beauties on a farm pond near Leedy, Oklahoma. One weighed 6 lbs., and the other one weighed 5 lbs., 12 oz. Both largemouth bass were entered in the Sports Afield Fishing Awards Program at Pampa Tent and Awning. Hopp was fishing in a tube floater, and using a purple flip tail plastic worm for bait.

Junior Loop Features Trio Of Ace Hurler

BOSTON (UPI)—The American League "firing squad," which will be charged with cutting down National league batters in the July 9 All-Star game, is knee-deep in heavy artillery.

For openers, the seven-man pitching crew named Thursday by Manager Dick Williams of the Boston Red Sox features the American League's top winner in Denny McLain, the top strikeout man in Sam McDowell and the master of the whitewash, Luis Tiant.

McLain is 13-2 as the big man on the Detroit pitching staff which has stood the American League on its ear in building a comfortable first place margin. McDowell has struck out 143 batters and Cleveland Indian teammate Tiant, who fashioned four back-to-back shutouts earlier in this season, has six blankings in an 11-5 mark.

Named along with that impressive trio were southpaw Tommy John of the Chicago White Sox and righthanders Mel Stottlemyre of the New York Yankees, Boston's Jose Santiago and John Odom of the Oakland Athletics.

They join the eight starters named earlier this week in voting by the players, managers and coaches. They include catcher Bill Freehan of Detroit, the leading vote-getter; first baseman Harmon Killebrew and second baseman Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins; shortstop Jim Fregosi of the California Angels; Baltimore's Brooks Robinson at third base and a hard-hitting outfield of Boston's Carl Yastrzemski, Willie Horton of Detroit and Frank Howard of Washington.

Williams, who guided Boston to its first pennant in 21 seasons last year, will name the rest on his 25-man team Monday.

Red Schoendienst, of St. Louis, the National League skipper, will name his pitchers Saturday and the rest of his club next week.

BOUT ON

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI)—Lightweight champion Carlos Ortiz settled a contract dispute Thursday and agreed to go on with his title defense against Carlos "Teo" Cruz of the Dominican Republic Saturday night.

Ortiz, of New York, said he earlier would not enter the ring unless the promoters paid the $15,000 owed him.

Golden Gloves Winner Gets Cool Reception

By KENNETH R. CLARK

EDINBURG, Tex. (UPI) —A couple of decades ago, when boxing still held such luminaries as Joe Lewis and Sugar Ray Robinson, Lorenzo Trujillo might have found a brass band and a key to the city waiting for him when he returned to his home town with a national Golden Gloves championship in his pocket.

As it is, all he found this year in Edinburg, his hometown, was an arrest for loitering. Sugar Ray and the "Brown Bomber" are only memories now.

The difference in attitude, according to the man who trained Edinburg's national featherweight champ, is a combination of medical sophistication, televison, and the unsavory reputation which too many years of underworld infiltration have given to the sport once regarded as the manliest of them all.

Support Missing

"There's just not enough community support now," said Lalo Cavazos, who now works as a livestock inspector for the state screwworm eradication program. "Nobody even met Trujillo at the bus station when he got back from the tournament in Salt Lake City. He was the national champ, and nobody cared."

Trujillo, a flashy 116-pounder who aspires to represent the United States at the Olympics in Mexico City, now trains in Corpus Christi.

"TV has taken the place of sports," Cavazos said. "They used to turn out in droves, but they won't go to the arena now because it's not air conditioned."

Trujillo is just one of the many Edinburg boys Cavazos has trained for the ring in the past seven years.

Hard Sport

An ex-Golden Gloves contender himself, he said he regards boxing one of the finest and one of the hardest sports there is. But he has run his local club in nothing better than an old warehouse which he bought and furnished with his own funds because nothing better was available.

School facilities, he said are "out," because schools traditionally are hostile to the sport—eliminating it from their athletic programs and even barring students who box outside the school from participation in basketball, football, and track.

RANDY MATSON, the world record holder in the shot put, was in Pampa visiting his parents here this week before going to Los Angeles in the trials for the 1968 Olympics at Mexico City in early October. Matson said he has been working with weights at the Amarillo Club in Amarillo and throwing the shot at the Pampa high school track. (See today's column for more on Matson.)

Rebels Play Return Games With Perryton, Wheeler

Tommy Hawkins is slated to be the starting hurler when the Pampa American Legion baseball team invades Perryton for district game Saturday night.

Al Gomez was scheduled for mound duty against Perryton but will be unable to make the trip because he works late Saturday at a local grocery store.

Coach Lloyd Summers, ex-Hollywood catcher in the Pacific Coast League, said Gomez would probably start in the district contest scheduled Sunday afternoon with Wheeler American Legion.

"I plan to use at least two pitchers against Perryton Saturday night." Slated for possible action are Tommy Hawkins, Steve Summers and Alvin Achord.

Summers plans to stick with the same lineup that was used against Borger. The lineup includes, in batting order, Steve Summers, cf; Al Gomez and Scotty King, lf; Alvin Achord, ss; John Jenkins, 1b; Eddie Hopns, c; Larry Kotara, rf; Larr Turcotte, 2b; Steve Scott, rf and Tommy Hawkins, 3b.

George Bailey, starting hurler in the Rebel's win over Perryton, will not play Legion baseball the rest of the season.

Bailey, star basketball player for Pampa High School, injured his groin muscle while practicing basketball at the Youth Center recently.

His doctor ordered him to quit playing baseball this summer.

Bailey said however, that the injury is short term and should not affect his basketball playing at West Texas State University.

Pampa holds previous district wins over Perryton, 7-2, and Wheeler, 8-3, in home games at the start of the season.

Pampa is now 2-3 in district play.

Off The Top

By WES DUMONT
Pampa News Sports Editor

Randy Matson, world record holder in the shot put and leading candidate to represent the United States Olympic team in that event, was a Pampa visitor this week.

Matson has been traveling to Amarillo to work out with weights "two or three times a week," and "throwing the shot at Pampa High School regularly."

The 23-year-old Pampa High School and recent Texas A&M graduate said he may not be assured an Olympic berth even if he should place first in the track meet at Los Angeles this weekend.

"It will depend on the evaluation of officials there."

Matson has decided to compete in only the shot put. He will not throw the discus.

"I'm down to 260 pounds and that's about right," the modest world champion said.

For a young man, he has traveled a lot. He competed in the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo. He has traveled extensively throughout the United States, particularly in New York and California, the site of most important track meets.

He now sets his own training rules and his own pace. A member of the Houston Striders, he lives at College Station, around 100 miles from Houston.

Unlike at Texas A&M, he has no official coach but really does not need one.

He is high in praise of his years at Texas A&M where he played on the basketball and the track team. His track coach was Charlie Thomas and he set a college record of 71-5½ while throwing for Texas A&M at College Station in 1967.

He chose Texas A&M for various reasons. All the needed track facilities were there. "All there was to do was study and workout."

Matson, by the way, was unable to enter the ROTC program at the University because of his height. He was 6-6 and that was over the ROTC height standard.

"Texas A&M had an excellent track tradition and good training facilities," said the world renowed Matson.

If he is selected for the Olympic team, he will fly with other United States Olympic track members to compete in Mexico City in early October.

When informed of the resignation of Terry Culley as basketball coach, Matson, who played under Culley, commented that, "I am sorry to hear he's leaving. He worked the boys hard and all of them liked and respected him."

Matson credits his junior high and high school track coach, Duane Lions, with really showing him the form that has made him a champion. "We studied films of champion shot put throwers and he spent extra hours in working with me."

Lions has since departed from Pampa and is now a football coach in Los Angeles, Matson said.

Matson must report to Amarillo for a physical for the Army in another month.

If he is inducted into the Army before the Olympic games, he is hopeful that he will be able to represent the United States as a member of the United States Army.

Hippies Move To Rural Areas

MEADVILLE, Pa. (UP)—A dirt road winds down to a ramshackle farmhouse in a rural area.

Three children, in soiled, tattered clothing, play in the mud of the fields instead of the garbage of the city.

Unhappy in metropolitan centers such as San Francisco's Haight Ashbury, Chicago Old Town or Cleveland's University Circle districts, hippies across the nation are moving to rural areas.

A band of 37, most of them from California and a few from the Cleveland area, settled near this small northwestern Pennsylania community three weeks ago.

The farmhouse which serves as their home has no plumbing or windows. They call it "anthro-poetic church."

In comparison to the outdoor hippie encampments in California's Big Sur country, the farmhouse is plush. It has a roof and walls festooned with hippie symbols.

Owner Absent

Sheriff William Grill said the owner of the property was William Close, now in California. "I think he's doing recruiting out there," Grill said.

Despite an outbreak of hepatitis and what one doctor described as "indescribable squalor" at the farm, state and local authorities said they were powerless to move the hippies.

"They created a little tension when they came but it seems to have died down now," said one state policeman.

One incident still under investigation occurred June 13 when a kindly retired farmer from Meadville went out to the farm to help show the hippies how to grow food and a group of young Meadville men threatened him with a rifle.

One member of the camp, which includes 20 men, 14 women and three preschool children, came down with infectious hepatitis and was taken to a nearby hospital.

Dr. Lewis D. Williams, state regional medical director, administered gamma globulin shots to the rest of the group and warned sightseers to stay away.

"The little children appear bright," Williams said. "But they could use some medical attention."

Well-Educated Group

The adults, in their 20s and 30s, are well-educated and include at least one recent graduate of Harvard University.

Despite long hair, beards, blue jeans and beads, members deny vehemently that they are hippies. They claim to be members of the "anhro-poetic religious sect.

To local residents they are "hippies."

Sociologists say the hippie groups are leaving the metropolitan areas because drug peddlers and prostitutes have moved in to take advantage of them.

Unlike city hippies, Meadville's hippies do not panhandle. They take jobs in the area for short periods to get money needed for food.

"As of Tuesday, almost all of them had some kind of work," Dr. Williams said.

Civil War Blockade Runner To Be Raised

By PRESTON F. KIRK

HOUSTON (UPI)—Downtown Houston will have a front-row seat on history in July when recovery of munitions and weapons from a Civil War blockade runner is expected to begin in Buffalo Bayou.

The schooner, believed to be the Augusta, developed a slow leak in 1862 after successfully running the Union blockade at Galveston, and sank near the present Milam Street bridge, only blocks from the heart of Houston.

Carroll Lewis Jr., 41, businessman-author, uncovered information on the boat while writing "The Treasures of Galveston Bay" (1966).

Will Direct Work

Lewis will supervise work of the Southwestern Historical Exploration Society which will attempt to recover any relics still buried in the mud.

The Houston Antique Gun Collectors Association is financing the search, and hopes to have something to display at its annual gun show Aug. 4.

"Probes show objects four and five feet into the mud," Lewis said. "We probed real easy, because the cannon balls are still live," he laughed. Lewis said the construction of the Milam Street bridge in the mid-50s uncovered 351 cannonballs which were taken to Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio and exploded.

The last man to board the boat was John Gresham, a retired bank employee.

Bayou About Dry

"I was on it in 1908 during a blue norther," Gresham said. "There was hardly any water in the bayou and grandpaw knew where it was. . .about 30 feet downstream from what we called a Sears & Roebuck iron bridge."

Gresham, who would only give his age as "past 71" said his grandfather, J. S. Taylor, was a cannoneer, and he believed was with Texas Hood's Brigade.

"I judge it was around about 80 feet long. And I believe the name was the Augusta. It made a trip to New Orleans, Mobile, and was seaworthy.

"Me and grandpa walked out on it. Most of the deck was gone, but you could still see the ribs. I took quite a few cannon balls," Gresham said.

Cannonballs Were Live

Gresham who has now lost most of his sight, said his mother made his grandfather and him dispose of the stil live cannonballs.

"An old fellow had a curio store and gun shop. Him and a neighbor was mixing up some homemade concrete for a sidewalk" and said they could use them as ornaments.

"People walked all over them and drove cars over them for years," Gresham said. But when the Army began its search for old ammunition still armed, he notified them and they came and chipped them out of the concrete.

"They took them to Fort Sam Houston and blew them up. It was televised and you could see the shrapnel fly everywhere," Gresham said.

He said an old musket and sabre were retrieved by his grandfather but had been lost through the years.

Scientist Wants To Start Planning For Mining Moon, Other Planets

By EDARD K. DeLONG
UPI Space Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—Planning must start now for mining the moon and planets and for using their minerals to fertilize orbiting farms if man is to survive on earth after the next 100 years, a prominent aerospace scientist said Wednesday.

Dr. Krafft Ehricke criticized the "very shallowness" of the logic used by those who oppose inter-planetary flight because they feel it can serve no realistic purpose except scientific research.

"This logic, far from being beneficial, does considerable damage to this nation," the North American Rockwell Corp. scientist said.

Ehricke said plans for developing the resources of the planets should be carefully laid — starting now— to tie in with use of earth's resources on the land in the oceans. But, he said, the resources on earth alone soon will not be enough.

"Already we are running out of (the metal) mercury," he said, "the mercury price is goning up quite rapidly. We are running out of gold, and I mean for uses other than for money. We need more food resources."

Even if earth's population did not grow, Ehricke said, it would be impossible at this time to give all men in the world the living standards of the United States.

"Within 50 years we will not be able to maintain ourselves on the basis of just the land area of the planets," he said. "I think the best way would be a combination of land, sea and space.

Before these ambitious space activities become practical, he said, nuclear rockets must be developed and spacecraft that can be used over and over again must be built.

He told the Fourth International Symposium on Bioastronautics and the Exploration of space that plans for mansuse of the planets should be drawn by 1975-80. Research should be completedly 1979-85, he said, and the initial operation should start by 1985-95.

"No impractical level of effort is required," Ehricke said. "No more than the cost of a limited war or two, but at a vastly lower expenditure rate and infinitely more constructive."

On the planets he predicted men could mine various minerals by "ripping up the surface" with nuclear explosions. Some of these minerals would be brought back to earth replacing extinct minerals formerly found on this planet.

Most, he said, would go to orbiting space farms where they would fertilize plants. The plants, in turn, would feed earth-type animals in nearby orbiting barns.

Ehicke said these animals, grown from birth in space some 20,000-30,000 miles above earth, would then give the world a ready new supply of food at a reasonable cost.

News from Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "All right, Miss Smarty, you didn't behave tonight so I'm leaving you forever."

With that Mrs. Gumm, mother of Frances Gumm, little girl singer and dancer, abandoned her in a flea bag hotel in a small town in Oregon. She packed up her bag and left the child sitting on the bed.

"I was frozen with fear," the grownup Frances Gumm recalled. The little girl was Judy Garland before she'd changed her name and she was less than 10 years old. "I sat on that bed all night and cried. It happened several times."

But Judy's mother always returned the next morning. They'd pile into a broken-down old car and head for the next play date in third rate theaters.

Judy never recovered from those frightening nights alone. To this day she has trouble sleeping, frequently calling friends at 3 or 4 a.m. and asking them to chat or come over for a drink.

At age 12 she walked into MGM where she made her screen debut in "Every Sunday."

"You'd think I lived like a princess. Wrong." Judy recalls her days at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as a nightmare. They put her in one picture after another. She needed pep pills to keep her singing and dancing before the cameras—then sleeping pills so she could rest at night.

Then in 1938 she starred in "The Wizard of Oz" and joined the immortals of the screen. Even today when the picture is shown on television half the country stops what it's doing to watch.

In an effort to escape the dictatorship of her mother and the horrors of studio life, Judy found sanctuary in her marriage to composer David Rose in 1941. The marriage dissolved in 1944.

Less than a year later she married director Vincente Minnelli who made many distinguished pictures—at MGM.

By now Judy was a grown woman, but still took orders. She's known nothing else. Minnelli directed her in "Meet Me in St. Louis" and "The Clock." Their marriage was a stormy one and ended in 1951.

Shortly after the divorce from Minnelli, Judy married Sid Luft, a man of many and varied careers. If her marriage to Minnelli was stormy, her 13 years with Luft might be described as an out-and-out hurricane. They didn't need friends, they needed a referee.

He helped guide her career and eventually perfected her left jab. Thereafter Judy's health broke down, her weight ballooned and her career went into decline.

She was pronounced washed up by the industry when she was fired from the title role in "Annie Get Your Gun" to be replaced by Betty Hutton.

"I was in my dressing room getting ready for a scene when one of those simpering jerks in a black suit walked in with a note," Judy remembers. "It was very subtle. I think it read something like: 'Get out'."

Judy jokes about it now, but it almost killed her.

(In the third and concluding dispatch, Judy's roller-coaster career of triumph and tragedy, comeback and crash.)
