Carter attacks Ford on economic policy

By The Associated Press

Jimmy Carter said today Republicans have failed to stop inflation "because they believed that unemployment was the cure." President Ford's spokesman countered that economic indicators, which have dropped overall for a second straight month, show "solid growth."

Carter's attack came in an economic position paper. It accused Republicans of fearing "to stand up to powerful special interests ... They have sought to play business and labor and agriculture and consumers against each other rather than seeking cooperation."

The Democratic presidential nominee said he would aim economic aid programs at areas of high unemployment, enforce antitrust laws more intensively and launch an active White House effort to hold down inflationary price increases.

Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen took note of the second monthly decline in the government index designed to predict future economic growth by saying: "An examination of the leading economic index shows that the recent pause in our economic recovery is concluding, and the economy will continue its solid growth."

The index declined seven-tenths of a per cent in September. It dropped by the same percentage in August. Although it indicates a current economic slowdown may continue, economists say they are not certain of a sustained decline until the index drops three months in a row.

The major factor in the September drop was a decline in new orders for consumer goods and materials. Other factors were a drop in the average work week, an increase in the manufacturing job layoff rate and deterioration in vendor performance, liquid assets, sensitive prices and money balance.

"We are particularly encouraged by the two key indicators which have the most influence on future economic activity," Nessen said. He cited capital goods orders and building permits. "Both are significantly higher," he said.

White House chief of staff Richard Cheney said Thursday that Ford is "very close" to victory and is overtaking Carter largely because of his smooth-running campaign and his television blitz.

Ford apparently has confidence in his ability to win California and will not return there. But Cheney said that as a result of Republican polls, Ford will spend part of this final pre-election weekend in New York, although he had earlier been considered too far behind Carter there to merit another visit.

Ford aides appear pleased with the "Jerry and Joe Shows," paid television programs that allow Ford to field questions he wants to answer in a talk-show format. In those 30-minute programs, beamed into key states, Ford is lobbied questions by sportscaster Joe Garagiola.

Midland parents seek intervention

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

A motion to void the desegregation settlement for Midland elementary schools was filed in federal court this morning by a group of Midland parents.

The parents are part of a group called Americans for Quality Education but filed as individuals. Among them is Don Sparks, Midland school trustee, although the motion stated that he is not acting in that capacity.

The motion to intervene in the case is based on the contention that the court had no jurisdiction to reopen the case in 1970 because a 1968 judgment declared that the Midland Independent School District "has eliminated all discrimination that may have heretofore existed."

The persons filing the motion were Don and Betty Young, Bobby and Barbara McKee, John and Barbara Edmonson and Don and Gwyn Sparks, for themselves and "on behalf of all parents similarly situated."

When informed of the petition, school board president Joe Dominey responded:

"I recognize that Don's (Sparks) position has been in opposition to the consent decree settlement and that he is certainly within his rights as an individual and as a parent to join in any law suit. I'm glad that the motion makes it clear that he is filing as an individual and not as a representative of the school district. Perhaps the filing of the suit will result in clearing up some legal questions that the school district was not in position to raise."

Dominey said he would prefer "that we went ahead and worked toward smooth implementation of our desegregation plan" but said he is pleased that groups in opposition to the plan are using "strictly legal means," rather than nonlegal means

Trick or treatin' time is near

By JIM STEINBERG

The calendar says Halloween is Sunday, but many Midland youngsters will be out "trick or treating" Saturday night.

Midland's young goblins will be out gathering the traditional bonanza of candy and fruit Saturday to avoid conflicts with church services, Police Chief Wayne Gideon said.

"The police department will be at full strength" for patrol work, Gideon said. Officers will also be patrolling the areas around elementary school carnivals scheduled tonight and Saturday night, he said.

For older students not willing to give up the ghosts of the past, the Midland College student senate is sponsoring a costume dance at 8 p.m. Saturday in the student center. Sweet Briar will play and a $20 cash prize will be awarded for the best costume in the event.

The Lee High School Chorale is sponsoring a frightening experience on the corner of Mississippi Avenue and Weatherford Street. There, the group has set up a spook house which will be ready for the daring Saturday from 7:30 to 10 p.m.

For those who plan to take to the streets for a little bit of the old fashioned "trick or treat," the National Confectioners Association has a few safety tips: visits should be confined to the neighborhood and made in the afternoon or early evening hours, costumes should be brightly colored, short enough to prevent tripping, nonflammable and decorated with reflective tape for greater visibility in the beam of car lights. A parent should accompany young children on their "treating" rounds.

Two junior high schools plan activities today. A dance from 7 to 10 p.m. will be held at Goddard Junior High and San Jacinto Junior High will have games and dancing from 6 until 8 p.m.

Three elementary schools plan carnivals today. Listed, with special event and time, are: DeZavala, 5 to 9 p.m., Mexican dinner (5 to 7 p.m.); Lamar, 6 to 8:30 p.m., burrito dinner; Washington, 6 to 8 p.m., hot dog supper.

Thirteen elementary schools plan carnivals Saturday: Bonham, 6 to 9 p.m., chili dogs and frito pie supper; Bowie, 5 to 9 p.m., spook house and costume parade on patio; Burnett, 5 to 9:30 p.m., frito pie and pinto beans; Crockett, 6:30 to 9 p.m., "House of Horrors"; Emerson, 6 to 8:30 p.m., carved pumpkin contest; Fannin, 6 to 9:30 p.m., spaghetti supper and costume contest; Henderson, 6 to 9 p.m., Mexican dinner; Houston, 6 to 9 p.m., Mexican fiesta; Jones, 6 to 9 p.m., Mexican dinner and costume parade; Long, 6 to 8:30 p.m., hamburger and hot dog supper; Milam, 6 to 9 p.m., burrito dinner (5 p.m.); Rusk, 5 to 8:30 p.m., costume judging and hot dogs, and South, 5:30 to 8:30 p.m., taco supper.

Alpine researchers charting vast desert

ALPINE—One of the nicest parts of the Terlingua madness for me has been the proximity of the chiliocty to this high-desert mountain town, so I've had an excuse to detour through Alpine and check up on some of the finest people in Oestexas at work on one of the most fascinating—and potentially important—projects I know.

They're Dr. Dwight Deal and Dr. Grainger Hunt and their associates at the shoeing laboratory known as the "Chihuahuan Desert Research Institute" housed in an outgrown elementary school complex made available by an enlightened school board for something like $5 a year. And the commitment of the CDRI is no less than to chart and master (intellectually) one of the biggest and least studied deserts in the world, the Chihuahuan Desert that ranges from deep in Mexico northward into New Mexico with its unique forms of flora and fauna, its August mountain system among the most rugged in the Southwest, and mineral treasures whose exploitation alone will justify any expenses for study. (A project that should be of great interest to Oestexas ranchers is the current study of means of controlling a voracious weed called "African rue" that could threaten countless livestock herds, as well as mesquite, salt cedar, species, creosote bush and broomweed.)

But I like the CDRI best because it is a living example of good people doing something useful that they love, and doing it against all odds and with the help only of a few far-seeing individuals and groups who share the vision of "the dirt doctor" (Deal, a geologist) and his friends.
As many as two dozen students from across the nation worked out of the CDRI last summer, camping in rustic dormitory facilities and eating from a pleasant but less than elegant dining hall when they weren't in the field stalking peregrine falcons, "cave pearls" and rare species of snakes.
They're getting together the first exhibits (such as a dozen rare snakes) they hope to expand into a living "desert experience" (not a "zoo,"

Earthquake hits again in Indonesia

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — A major earthquake hit the Indonesian province of Irian today for the second time within five months, missionaries in the provincial capital reported.

There was no immediate word on the extent of the damage or whether there were any casualties.

It was the 11th major earthquake reported in the world this year.

Irian is the thickly jungled, mountainous western half of the island of New Guinea. Most of the people are primitive tribespeople.

An official of the Mission Aviation Fellowship said he received a telephone message that the quake was felt in Jayapura, the provincial capital, about 11 a.m. (11 p.m. EDT Thursday).

The message said the center of the quake was believed to have been in the remote jungle area where a major quake last June was reported to have killed at least 1,000 people and caused heavy damage.

U.S. government seismographs in Golden, Colo., recorded both the quake in June and the one today at 7.1 on the Richter Scale of quake strength. The tremor today registered 7.0 at the Uppsala (Sweden) University Seismological Institute and 6.8 at the Hong Kong Royal Observatory.

Bad Basin weather expected to clear

The buckets of rain and snow which have fallen on the Permian Basin for the past two days are expected to let up some tonight.

Temperatures, too, should be closer to autumn weather, rather than the chilly winter-like temperatures of the past few days.

The National Weather Service reported that the two-day rain total in Midland was 1.40 inches at Midland Regional Air Terminal and 1.67 inches near Midland Air Park. The city had .58 inches during the past 24 hours.

Today dawned cool, calm and mostly overcast across the area, with some stations still reporting light rain. In Crane and Stanton, it was rainy, overcast and calm this morning, while Rankin had cold temperatures, rainy skies and calm winds.

Andrews reported about one inch of snow which stuck to the ground this morning, while Lamesa's .52 inches of snow had melted by the morning hours. Both cities had calm winds and overcast skies near dawn today.

In Big Lake and Odessa, it was cloudy and calm with the rains letting up near dawn today.

The weatherman said the rains will cease by late afternoon today, with skies becoming partly cloudy and temperatures warmer on Saturday.

Temperatures tonight should dip down into the upper 30s and rise to the mid-40s on Saturday. Winds will be light and variable tonight.

Snow and rain kept Texas weather cold and dreary for this Halloween, the Associated Press reported. The moisture was expected to taper off in most sections, however, by tonight.

A mixture of snowflakes and light rain dampened much of the Panhandle-Plains for a second

State to receive political visitors

HOUSTON (AP) — Politicians will be swarming across Texas this weekend, attending football games, Halloween parties, visiting the Alamo, and other things near and dear to the heart of Texans in an effort to win this pivotal state in the Nov. 2 presidential election.

Most of the Jimmy Carter family will be at one place or another in the sprawling expanses of Texas, from the arid lands of the west to the rich vegetable and fruit growing acres of the south.

President Ford will center on the state's largest city — Houston — and attend a high school football game — a Friday night tradition for most Texas folks — at the nearby city of Baytown.

Not to be outdone, Rosalyn Carter, wife of the Democratic presidential nominee, will attend the Grambling and Texas Southern University football game at the Houston Astrodome, make a few brief remarks and flip the coin for the kickoff. Grambling and TSU are two predominately black schools with outstanding football reputations.

While Ford is centering his appeal to the Houston sections, where one-sixth of the state's voters live, Carter will be touching base in McAllen, a couple of miles from the Mexican border, and in San Antonio. Both of these cities have a strong Mexican-American vote.

Caron Carter is going to appear in El Paso and at Midland-Odessa; while Chip hits Fort Worth and Austin and Jeff in Wichita Falls, San Angelo and Waco.

Sheriff candidates tell plans, aims, priorities

Ed Darnell

Midland County sheriff's election race is shaping up for Tuesday's election, with former highway patrolman Dallas Smith challenging incumbent Ed Darnell.

Darnell and Smith both agree that the department needs to keep abreast of latest crime fighting techniques. Smith is challenging what he terms the department's large personnel turnover, and, although he said early in the race he would not do so, seems to be making Darnell's age an issue in the race. Smith is 34 and Darnell is 71 years old.

The Reporter-Telegram asked each candidate what he believed were the major issues of the race. The questions and answers to the questionnaire follow:

DALLAS SMITH

Please provide a thorough biographical statement:

Graduate of Texas Department of Public Safety Law Enforcement Academy. Seven years experience as a DPS law enforcement officer in Midland County. During these years with DPS, had opportunity to encounter every kind of criminal problem — burglary, rape, narcotics, stolen vehicles, homicide.

While in U.S. Army Reserve, responsible for organizing and training personnel in riot control, use of weapons, care of equipment.

In past year have completed college courses in Texas law, evidence and criminal investigation.

Describe the duties of the office which you seek, and assign priorities as you view them:

The sheriff of Midland County is responsible for keeping us safe in our persons and property, to protect the innocent, to identify and apprehend the real wrong-doer.

The sheriff must recruit, train and supervise. He must be familiar with and utilize all of the modern scientific investigation techniques. The sheriff should cooperate with other law enforcement agencies. He is responsible for the security of the jail, serving warrants for the courts, providing bailiffs for the courts, and serving civil papers.

Priority is proper recruitment, proper training and improved internal organization in sheriff's office.

What are the most important challenges in that office during the next term:

The important challenges are to modernize investigation and identification techniques, create a narcotics division to handle our growing problem in hard drugs, create a juvenile division to work with young people, and to organize a good patrol function for rural Midland County.

Also we must institute an ongoing training program to make the Midland sheriff's force a professional crime-fighting contingent.

What policy or operations changes do you propose (or plan to continue) if you are elected:

All policies are going to be directed toward providing service to the citizens of Midland County. When a citizen calls for help, he is going to receive help.

Policies are going to include required training programs and increased visibility of our law enforcement (marked cars) for deterrent purposes.

ED DARNELL

Please provide a thorough biographical statement:

Midland resident since 1919; married; two daughters. I have been sheriff of Midland County since 1941, during the years of our greatest growth. Many honors have come to me and to Midland over the years because of the high quality of our law enforcement, having been named Outstanding Sheriff of Texas by the Texas Law Enforcement Conference in 1958, and again by Men of Achievement in Texas in 1972-73.

I served as president, vice president and board chairman of the Texas Sheriffs' Association, as a member of the board of directors of the White House Youth Conference, and many committees, both state and national, relating to law enforcement.

I have graduated from more than 200 special law enforcement training schools, keeping fully abreast of modern methods and techniques, and have lectured and taught in many others. Member, executive committee on law enforcement, Midland College.

Describe the duties of the office which you seek, and assign priorities as you view them:

Fighting crime and keeping organized crime out of this county as your chief law enforcement officer is our first duty — but there are others. My greatest pleasure has come from working with young people and having a part in turning many of their lives into lives of useful, productive citizenship.

Aside from those duties, your sheriff is primarily an administrator, supervising the work of 29 deputies and other jail and clerical personnel.

Your sheriff must not only arrest criminals, investigate crimes and keep accurate and thorough records; we also serve thousands of citations in civil cases in our courts each year; we furnish bailiffs to keep order at every session of our five courts; we serve subpoenas and bring witnesses into court;

We enforce judgments and conduct sheriff's sales; we patrol the county; check all voting machines; transport mentally ill persons to hospitals and institutions; testify in court; maintain the county jail and prepare and feed meals to an average of 80 prisoners each day, both federal and state;

We keep communications open to all other law enforcement agencies 24 hours a day and work with them; return prisoners from other states to be prosecuted here; transport convicted felons to prisons; we develop and implement emergency plans and procedures for handling riots, civil disorders and disasters — all these and many other duties, which call for a high degree of administrative expertise, personal leadership and executive experience.

What are the most important challenges in that office during the next term:

Law enforcement in general is under attack all over our country, and those who have no respect for the lives, property and freedom of others are taking full advantage of it. We must maintain our solid front against the efforts of organized crime to come into Midland.

We have always kept them out, and we shall continue to do so. Individual crime is rising, but we have been able to recover most stolen oilfield equipment and property, and to make prompt arrests and secure conviction of those who commit these crimes.

We also want to continue to maintain our policy of helpful, courteous, effective service to every citizen with the least possible burden on our taxpayers, and to utilize all of our experience to see that this is done. We shall, as always, treat every person fairly and decently, no matter where they work, or where they live, or the color of their skins. We must maintain the respect and the trust of all our people, in these explosive times.

What policy or operations changes do you propose (or plan to continue) if you are elected:

Our never-changing goal is to do a better job of law enforcement every day than we were able to do the day before, which means that we are constantly improving the quality of our service to the people who need us.

We shall continue to expand our working agreement with Midland College, where our deputies are required to complete courses in law enforcement, and where we participate in the college's intern program for training new officers. We are upgrading our department and our services every day, because we must keep abreast of every development and every trend in law enforcement, if we are to do our jobs.

Arizona border towns feel peso problem

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The disease which has ravaged Mexico's economy is infecting Arizona's border towns.

The struggling peso plunged in value Wednesday for the second time in two months, and hovers at less than half of its August value.

A peso was worth about 3 cents Wednesday. For 22 years, it had been worth 8 cents.

"This means disaster for Nogales (Ariz.) businesses," said Charles Fowler, executive director of the Nogales Chamber of Commerce. "Of course the people who are going to suffer the most are the Mexican people who are paid in pesos and buy their products here."

Mexicans had to shell out more than twice as many pesos Wednesday for each dollar's worth of product as they did before August 31, when the peso floated from 8 cents to 5. The situation makes shopping north of the border impossible on most Mexican pocket-books.

In Nogales, where a majority of businesses are supported by Mexican customers, stores have reported drops in sales from 70 to 90 per cent.

But Fowler said nobody is ready to close.

"The main effect will be additional layoffs in employees," he said. "The peso is still floating and we really don't know yet what's going to happen."

Others echoed Fowler's

opinion. "It's up to the Mexican government now," said a Phoenix banker. He also pointed out that capital has been flowing out of Mexico for years and the August devaluation, possibly designed to stem that flow of foreign investment, apparently was unsuccessful.

Merchants in Tucson and Douglas said the timing could not have been worse for the peso's drop, because ordinarily early Christmas shoppers would be crowding the stores.

Illegal gun shipments to Africa being probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is investigating allegedly illegal shipments of handguns and rifles from two major U.S. arms manufacturers to sporting goods dealers in South Africa.

Chief Assistant U.S. Atty. H. James Pickerslein in New Haven, Conn., confirmed the investigation of Colt Industries Inc. of Hartford and Olin Corp., the parent firm of Winchester-Western International, of Stamford, Conn.

Pickerslein declined to furnish any details of the grand jury investigation.

Both companies said employees have been fired because of the sales and that the transactions had been reported to the government. The firms deny that senior executives knew of the shipments in advance.

The Olin firm said the sales to South Africa averaged more than $300,000 a year from 1972 through 1975.

A spokesman for the State Department's Office of Munitions Control said the agency started the investigation last year when it noticed unusually large shipments of sporting guns to the Canary Islands. Those islands off the northwest coast of Africa were one of the intermediary points for shipment to South Africa.

"We got suspicious, because there were too damned many elephant guns going to the Canary Islands," said one State Department source. "Being alert gentlemen, we realized that you don't shoot canaries with elephant guns."

The munitions office said it alerted U.S. customs officials about the suspicious shipments, and that the information was passed on to the Justice Department.

Smith charges incumbent Darnell with 'character assassination'

By JIM STEINBERG

The Republican candidate for sheriff of Midland County today charged his incumbent opponent with "character assassination" in the wake of a political advertisement published in Thursday's editions of The Reporter-Telegram.

Dallas Smith blasted Democrat Sheriff Ed Darnell for including in the ad only 16 lines of Smith's transcribed court testimony from the 125 lines contained in the transcript.

Darnell was guilty of "character assassination for waiting until four days before the election to take a court case and print it completely out of context," Smith said.

"I would like to point out that this ad was very carefully placed in the paper after the deadline had passed to place in the paper a (paid) reply," Smith said.

The advertisement read, in part: "Your sheriff must control his temper, if he is to control lawbreakers." It cited excerpts from the Feb. 16, 1970, trial of a man Smith had stopped for an alleged traffic violation. Smith, who at the time was a Texas highway patrolman, testified during the trial regarding his arrest of the man. The excerpts pertained to force used by Smith in making the arrest.

"For weeks I have heard reports of vicious lies and misrepresentations about me being circulated by supporters of my opponent," Smith said. "Until yesterday, I discounted them as being the work of a disgruntled element."

"It was with great disappointment that I read this ad, which reveals that the campaign of smears is the official Darnell effort."

Smith offered three transcripts to the public available for inspection at his campaign office at 401 N. Big Spring.

One part of the Darnell advertisement quoted Smith as saying: "I felt I needed a little action, so I reached over and got him by the front of the shirt, by his collar, and yanked him around in the front seat."

But the transcript Smith showed today read:

Question: "Your voices were very loud?"

Answer: "Right, very loud. And, Mary, she was doing just what I was doing. And she tried to tell him, 'Frank, she said, 'be quiet,' and tried to get him by the arm and kind of push him around in the seat a little bit. And she tried to tell him to be quiet. I think that was her only words, just 'Be quiet Frank.' And so, finally, Frank got loud enough that I felt I needed a little action, so I reached over and got him by the front of his shirt, by his collar, and yanked him around in the seat."

Smith said he ultimately arrested the man on a drunk driving charge. The jury, he said, brought back an innocent verdict in the trial.

Another part of the advertisement read: "And I kicked him. I kicked him on the neck, here."

The transcript read:

Answer: "Well, I was able to get loose from him. He kind of got up in the seat kind of up over me a little bit there, and I kind of had to get him off of me so I could get a little room to get hold of him." Question: "All right. Then what did you do, or what action did you take?" Answer: "Well, of course, he was still trying to fight. And I got him against the door over there. And I kicked him. I kicked him on the neck, here."

Smith said the FBI had received a complaint about his handling of the arrest prior to the trial and that after conducting interviews decided not to pursue the complaint.

The internal affairs section of the Department of Public Safety did not look into the arrest as a possible misuse of force, he said. "Internal affairs needs to start an investigation is an anonymous telephone call, Smith said.

Shortly after Smith's press conference had concluded, Reese Cleveland, chairman of Darnell's campaign committee, issued a press release reasserting the statements contained in the newspaper.

He added that the Darnell committee first learned of the case and Smith's sworn testimony two weeks ago, and ordered a typed transcript of it from the official court reporter. The transcript was delivered last Saturday and the testimony was published Thursday, the earliest publication date after Smith asked the Darnell committee to submit proof of allegations that Smith did, as a patrolman, been guilty of using excessive force. Darnell tried the allegations at a public forum Oct. 25.

Continental studying possibility of merger

LOS ANGELES, Calif. - Continental Airlines is conducting internal studies of the feasibility of merging with any one of three other air carriers, a Continental public relations spokesman said today.

Jack Gregory, manager of publicity for the Los Angeles-based airline, said Continental currently is only studying the merger possibility internally, and no talks have yet begun with other air carriers.

"No one knows the names of the three carriers our management is studying for merger possibilities," Gregory said. "However, the company has entered into preliminary study with Pan American Airlines."

Gregory said the internal study had begun "sometime before the strike" by Continental's pilots, which got under way at 2:01 a.m. CDT Saturday. He quoted Robert Six, chairman and chief executive of Continental, as saying last July that the airline was studying three other air carriers for the feasibility of a merger. Six said then that the study was just that — a study — and that "this is not necessarily talking to" the other carriers.

Meanwhile, Continental is still without flights due to the pilot strike early Saturday. Gregory said nothing had been scheduled in the way of talks to negotiate toward a common ground, and that the airline will be out of service at least through Nov. 5.

Guinn upheld the school district in its contention that the school system was not required to desegregate further.

The ruling was overturned by the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals. In 1971, Judge Guinn approved a plan which would have involved Washington Elementary School only. That ruling was appealed both by the U.S. Justice Department and a group of black intervenors.

After four years in appeals courts the case came back to district court, this time under U.S. District Judge D. W. Suttle, last spring. Judge Suttle had been directed by the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court to eliminate the dual system.

The parties agreed to a settlement outlined in a consent decree which was approved by Judge Suttle in September. The settlement involves full integration of grades four through six and cultural exchange activities for kindergarten through third grade.

Midlander Bryan Bristol and I spent some time in her cage en route from Terlingua, and I must say there is no experience quite like having a beautiful feral creature nibble on your hand to give you an appreciation of nature.

Leonita is now at a zoo in Illinois, with a promise of offspring when the CDRI gets its menagerie going.

Right now, it's a matter of raising the last of $100,000 to assure another year of operation and to launch the Desert Experience display.

Dole schedules Midland visit

Sen. Robert Dole, the Republican party's vice-presidential nominee, will be in Midland this weekend.

Sen. Dole is due to arrive at Midland Regional Air Terminal late Saturday night and spend the night in Midland.

He will address a Republican rally Sunday. The place and time have not been confirmed, a Republican party spokesman said this morning.

of protest as has been the case in some other communities.

Dominey said the filing of the motion will not affect the school district's plans to implement the provisions of the settlement. "We're under a court order. We're going to implement on schedule," unless a stay is issued by a higher authority.

The petitioners requested the court to grant them intervenor status because "the entry of any decree herein is void for lack of subject matter jurisdiction" due to the 1968 ruling.

The "compelled consent" of the school district to the Sept. 16 decree "was taken without consultation with the parent groups previously represented by that defendant" and abandoned the defense of lack of jurisdiction, the motion said.

The applicants also have petitioned the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals to set aside the consent decree on the same grounds outlined in the motion to intervene, the motion said.

The federal district court in 1968 issued a ruling that desegregation of the secondary schools had eliminated "all vestiges of the dual system" of schools in Midland. The ruling was not appealed.

When the case was reopened in 1970 to challenge the elementary schools, the U.S. Justice Department's plaintiff "failed to allege any discriminatory changes in the organization of said school district occurring in the two-year period prior to Aug. 24, 1970," the motion filed today said.

At that time, the defendants raised the issue of lack of jurisdiction as a "fourth defense" but that defense has never been ruled on, the motion said.

Consent by the parties to the case this year was "in excess of their statutory authority" and would be "irrelevant to the point" in any case because "parties may not confer jurisdiction on a federal court by consent."

The court would have had jurisdiction after 1968 only if there had been new segregation caused by official action, de jure segregation, the motion said.

Among the nine points outlined in the 1968 judgement issued by the late U.S. District Judge Ernest Guinn after the school district desegregated at the secondary level is one that stated, "All elementary students, attending grades one through six, are presently attending neighborhood elementary schools without regard to race, color or national origin."

Veterans in school to get more benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) - Some 1.2 million veterans attending school under the GI Bill will begin getting higher benefit checks, starting Monday, and the first check will have an extra bonus.

A new law boosts veterans' education benefits 8 per cent, effective Oct. 1. The new benefit checks due in the mail Monday also will include the higher benefits that were retroactive to Oct. 1.

The new law allows a veteran to use up to 45 months for either graduate or undergraduate study. Previously, a veteran could not use any entitlement for graduate study beyond 36 months.

Since men and women who join the military after Jan. 31 are not eligible for that program, the VA and the Pentagon are preparing a new program for them. Under the new law, men and women joining the military after Dec. 31 may contribute $50 to $75 monthly from their salaries, up to a maximum of $2,700. The VA will match that at the rate of $2 for every $1 contributed, and the total can be used for education.

China to purchase American computers

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials say the Ford administration will allow the sale of two "relatively advanced" computer systems to China as a symbol of support for the new government consolidating its power in Peking.

The Chinese say the first of the $2-million Control Data Corp. computers will be used to aid in oil exploration. The second, to be delivered later, is to assist in the detection of earthquakes which regularly plague the country, the Chinese said.

A knowledgeable U.S. official said "conceivably it has defense uses." However, informed sources said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger overcame skepticism within the Pentagon and among some intelligence specialists with the argument that the sale has international political value.

In his third debate with Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter last Friday, Ford was asked whether he would sell military equipment to China.

"I do not believe that we, the United States, should sell, give or otherwise transfer military hardware to the People's Republic of China, or any other Communist nation, such as the Soviet Union and the like," he responded.

With Hua Kuo-feng, the new premier, succeeding the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung and gaining the upper hand over so-called "radical elements," the State Department was said to be eager to demonstrate friendship for the new regime.

The deal still must be approved by "COCOM," an association of NATO allies and Japan, that monitors the supply of sensitive equipment to the Soviet Union and other Communist countries.

Some research analysts at the Pentagon and others in some intelligence areas were said to have had reservations about the potential use of the computers in radar operations. As a general rule the Pentagon especially is reluctant to see foreign sales of electronic systems such as computers, semiconductors and microcircuitry, which this country leads in.

Sale of the Cyber 172 system is to be arranged through a French subsidiary of Control Data, with the Chinese restricting the number of Americans permitted to oversee the installation.

A group of Chinese computer experts on a recent visit to the United States had expressed interest in buying the computer, which one U.S. official described as "relatively advanced."

On the Chinese side, the deal demonstrates Peking's interest in importing western technology. Unlike radical Chinese elements, the moderates now in power are known for their practical interest in commercial ties with the West, an inclination the Ford administration wants to encourage.

IRA's revenge expected soon

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Protestant leaders predict a new wave of assassinations, street shooting and bombing by the Irish Republican Army in reprisal for the murder of IRA woman leader Maire Drumm in a Roman Catholic hospital.

The fiery, 56-year-old grandmother (her name is pronounced Moy-ra) was shot Thursday night by three young men who walked into the ward on the third floor of Belfast's Mater Hospital where she was recovering from eye surgery. A stray bullet hit another woman patient in the leg, but she was not seriously hurt.

The assassins escaped.

A spokesman for the IRA's Provisional wing said the killing was the work of the Ulster Defense Association, a Protestant guerrilla army.

"We know the identity of one of the killers," he said.

Born in 1920, the year Ireland was partitioned, Mrs. Drumm until a month ago was vice president of Provisional Sinn Fein, the legal political arm of the outlawed IRA Provisionals who have been fighting to end British rule in Northern Ireland for more than seven years.

She resigned her vice presidency to undergo cataract operations but was re-elected a member of the high council of Sinn Fein, which means Ourselves Alone in Gaelic.

Her family had been making arrangements to move her from the hospital after a Belfast newspaper published her whereabouts this week.

A cheerful, motherly woman in her home, Mrs. Drumm was a fiery speaker before Catholic crowds in the streets. "Send the British soldiers home in their coffins," she told one rally. Last summer, she threatened IRA destruction of Belfast "stone by stone."

British troops called her Grandma Venom.

Mrs. Drumm, her husband, Jimmy, and their four children are passionate supporters of the IRA and the reunification of Ireland.

Mrs. Drumm and her husband met in a British internment camp, and he spent 13 of their 30 years of married life in jails for Republican activities.

She was sentenced to six months in jail in 1971 for inciting a crowd to join the illegal IRA and in 1973 was sentenced to 22 days for the same offense.

Her 27-year-old son, Seamus, spent three years in detention as a suspected terrorist. Her 21-year-old daughter, Maire, is serving an eight-year jail term for carrying a gun.

Mrs. Drumm was arrested again last August after her destroy-Belfast speech and charged with leading an illegal march. A magistrate dismissed the charge for lack of evidence.

State bar says it is innocent

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas State Bar owns the land its new building sits on — not the state — and the building has not been financed illegally, says bar president Gibson Gayle.

"The state bar was created in 1939 as an independent, self-governing agency with the power to contract with respect to its own affairs," Gibson Gayle said in a statement Thursday. "Further, the State Building Commission, Board of Control and State Legislature have continually formally recognized our authority to own property and conduct our financial affairs."

No such unrestricted power has been recognized by the attorney general's office, according to a bar director, Joe K. Longley.

Longley charged Wednesday the bar illegally mortgaged the new building for $4 million with the American Bank of Austin.

The bar is a state agency and, like all other state agencies, is forbidden by the Texas Constitution from extending the credit of the state, Longley said.

Gayle said, "Record title has always been in the State Bar of Texas, and the state has never owned, exercised control or made any claim to any part of the property in question."

"The allegation that the State Bar has financed the building illegally because it has encumbered state funds is totally groundless. The State Bar receives absolutely no state monies for any phase of its operation, and the Texas Law Center is being financed solely through private donations," Gayle said.

Longley made the allegation Wednesday. He said the bar president in 1974, Leroy Jeffers, asked the attorney general's office if the bar had the power to encumber property.

"Somebody at the AG's office must have called him and told him he couldn't do that, so he submitted a revised request," Longley said.

After receiving the revised request, the attorney general's office issued an opinion saying the bar could build its new building with private donations, rental revenue, current dues and foundation contributions. It specifically noted, "You have not proposed a mortgage of state property."

Issues are important

The issues at stake in the upcoming presidential election are unusually important, and voters should consider them before going to the polls Tuesday.

Both presidential candidates are committed to the platforms of their respective parties. This is what makes the issues so vital in this year's election.

Going down the line and hitting the high points of the two platforms, the Democrats favor divestiture of oil companies and discouragement of nuclear power by private enterprise, while the Republicans oppose divestiture of energy firms. And concerning right-to-work, the Democrat platform favors repeal, while the GOP supports right-to-work.

The Republicans support the right of citizens to keep and bear arms, while the Democrats favor gun control.

The Democrats favor massive tax-financed employment programs. Republicans oppose massive, federally-funded public employment programs, such as the Humphrey-Hawkins bill.

The Democratic national platform favors reducing defense spending by $6 billion, while the GOP platform supports a "national defense posture second to none."

The Republicans oppose federalization of welfare and guaranteed annual income concept, while the Democrats favor federalization of all welfare programs and guaranteed annual income.

The Democrat platform favors national economic planning and intensified regulation of industry and farm production. The GOP platform favors reducing federal regulation, including the reduction of federal paperwork, and encourages full production for farmers.

Mandatory national health insurance is supported by the Democrats and opposed by the Republicans.

And one plank of major importance to all Americans, the Democratic party's platform favors increased federal spending, while the Republicans favor a balanced budget and reduced taxes.

These are some of the platform planks which point out the importance of the issues at stake and which all voters should consider before casting their ballots Tuesday.

"If one were forced to describe the key economic issue that differentiates Democrats from Republicans in 25 words or less, it might be: less government intervention is better (and you have 20 words left over to use with your favorite cereal boxtop)," according to The Credit & Financial Newsletter, published by the National Association of Credit Management.

Teamster trustees

Leaders of the Teamsters union gathered at La Costa, Calif., recently to play in the seventh annual Frank Fitzsimmons invitational golf tournament and talk over their pension fund troubles.

Federal legislation in 1974 established standards for private pension plans, including the Teamsters plan, controlled jointly by the Teamsters and the trucking industry.

The result has been a federal investigation of the $1.4-billion Teamsters pension fund. Such an investigation was overdue.

Now there are reports that 11 of the fund's 15 trustees are planning to resign, after agreeing on the appointment of their successors.

This might keep the fund from being put in receivership under the supervision of a federal judge.

The federal government and the federal courts should not be diverted by such a maneuver from the effort to place control over the assets of this pension fund in the hands of responsible administrators.

The interests of the rank-and-file Teamster members who are depending upon the fund for their retirement benefits must be protected. That would probably best be accomplished by placing the fund under independent management.

WASHINGTON MERRY — GO — ROUND

Legionnaires' killer pinpointed

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Congressional investigators believe that "a demented veteran or a paranoid, anti-military type" with some knowledge of chemistry may have been responsible for the mysterious deaths of 29 American Legion conventioners in Philadelphia last July.

A study, stamped "Secret Classified" suggests that the madman mixed dry ice with deadly nickel carbonyl. With this witches' brew, he could have released a cloud of tasteless, odorless, invisible gas into the air ducts of the Bellevue Stratford hotel, where the Legionnaires stayed.

The study was ordered by Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., in preparation for hearings next month. His investigators called the handling of the mysterious epidemic a "fiasco." They blamed local, state and federal medical authorities alike.

First, the authorities mistakenly concentrated upon swine flu as the most likely cause of the frightening Legionnaires Disease. Not until after vital tissues of the dead victims had been contaminated did the medical examiners turn to nickel poisoning as the probable cause.

"The failure to save and keep free from contamination the tissues," the secret document charges, "... is clearly the reason that ultimate resolution of the cause of Legionnaires Disease may never be found."

Yet the disaster was not without its heroes. One was Dr. Ernest Campbell of Bloomsburg, Pa., who spotted three individuals with the same symptoms. This was enough to alarm him, and he tried to arrange for immediate tests. But he was told "that the state laboratory was closed for the weekend," the investigators relate.

The Pennsylvania Legion's adjutant, Edward Hoak, also tried in vain to contact state health authorities on July 31. But it was a Saturday, and he couldn't reach anyone. Not until Monday was he able to get through. Then the outbreak of fevers and death had become epidemic.

Belatedly, some 150 federal, state and local physicians, biologists and chemists began a scientific search for the killer. They followed the lead of the federal Center for Disease Control, which directed all efforts "toward the swine flu virus as the causal agent," report the congressional investigators.

Yet "highly qualified professionals" had already warned that the symptoms suggested not swine flu but toxic poisoning. The experts finally came around to the same conclusion. But it was too late. The contaminated tissues and improper autopsies made the detection of nickel or other toxics almost impossible.

Dr. William Sunderman Sr., a toxicological expert, told the investigators that "medical authorities were remiss in not recognizing toxic symptoms... at an earlier date." He claimed that an antidote he has developed could have "saved a great

HEMISPHERE REPORT: U.S. bankers still believe in Mexico

By WILLIAM GIANDONI Copy News Service

While in Mexico there is talk of another devaluation of the peso, and worse, in the world's financial centers bankers are backing their professions of faith in Mexico with hundreds of millions of dollars.

A month after President Luis Echeverria decided to devalue the peso, Mexico City daily newspapers still were commenting on the "collective hysteria" that resulted. Some still were complaining that devaluation proves the total breakdown of the nation's development strategy. And a few columnists even were obliquely referring to the parallel between Chile in 1973 and Mexico today, which amounts to talk of a military coup.

Yet the contrast between what Mexicans think and say about their country and what bankers abroad not only say but do could not be greater.

For example, from San Francisco, Mexico got the news that the Bank of America, heading a group of eight private U.S. banks, had agreed on a $170 million credit to cover part of the cost of seven new sugar mills the Mexican government plans to build.

From Zurich, Switzerland, came word that Swiss and French banks were advancing National Financiera, the Mexican government investment bank, over $20 million to help with some of its economic development projects.

Earlier the Mexican Treasury Ministry announced that the U.S. Treasury, the Federal Reserve System and the International Monetary Fund were making another $1.2 billion available to support the peso.

Nevertheless, the question arises, how the bankers and monetary experts can be so free with their clients' money in face of Mexico's expressions of gloom and impending doom.

Jeffrey Morby, vice president of First National Bank of Boston, discussed that point in an interview. First, Morby explained, bankers with experience in Latin America have great faith in Mexico. "Mexicans are very sophisticated, money managers," he said.

Devaluation did not jeopardize Mexico's ability to pay off its long-term debt. Devaluation does not impact on that. What is important to the foreign banker is Mexico's ability to generate foreign exchange, and Mexico's oil and tourist potentials are "tremendous," Morby said.

Of course, a massive devaluation, such as Mexico's, which took the peso down from eight to five cents in dollar value, calls for a whole series of adjustments within the country to bring the economy back into line.

(President Echeverria has decreed up to 23 per cent wage increases for government workers and the armed forces, raised price ceilings on basic foods and necessities 10 per cent, and made other adjustments that primarily affect the Mexican domestic economy.)

From an external point of view, though, devaluation has made Mexico more credit worthy than before.

Morby said that if, for example, a businessman had been considering investment in Mexico three months ago, he might have put the decision off out of fear of massive devaluation and the loss of 30 to 40 per cent of his money. But now that the peso has been allowed to float, the big threat has been eliminated.

Having worked in Latin America, in countries that have lived with devaluation problems for decades, Morby feels that Mexico should follow a policy similar to that of Brazil. There the government has developed an index that relates internal inflation to a basket of foreign currencies. Every month or two, Brazil decrees a new rate of exchange, usually about 1.5 or 2 per cent devaluation, to make sure that the rate reflects the real value of the cruzeiro, the Brazilian monetary unit.

Morby said that bankers have been inclined to look favorably on both Mexico and Brazil for years now. Both have tremendous export potential. That means they will be able to earn the dollars needed to pay their bills, no matter what their own money may be worth.

INSIDE REPORT:

Post-Watergate politics is vote issue in Tennessee

By ROWLANDE EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

Evans Novak

NASHVILLE — Sen. William Brock of Tennessee, who has been emerging as the principal national hope for the future of the Republican party's dominant conservative wing, is fading badly in his race for reelection and may lose on an issue typifying post-Watergate politics: his personal income tax returns.

Nobody alleges any illegality by Brock. Rather, his refusal to fully disclose details of his personal finances has been compounded by the revelation that he paid only $2,026 federal income tax on $51,670 of adjusted gross income for 1975. The political result is reflected by a campaign button sweeping the state: "I paid more taxes than Brock."

Simultaneously, Brock has failed to draw ideological battle lines between himself and his opponent, former Democratic state chairman James Sasser, a 40-year-old Nashville lawyer making his first try at public office. Sasser is unquestionably a liberal and surely would vote that way in the Senate but shows no ideological inclination in his campaign based on "trust" and "credibility."

Although the race is considered a tossup, there are confident smiles in the Sasser camp and worried frowns in the Brock camp — underlying the problems of conservative Republicans in 1976. Tennessee is no less conservative now than it was in 1970 when Brock defeated liberal Sen. Albert Gore on the Vietnam war, gun control, school prayer and racial busing; today, however, the issues are less emotional and Sasser is more careful than Gore. Furthermore, in post-Watergate politics, how much taxes Bill Brock pays is more important than what he thinks.

Actually, Brock has evolved into one of the Senate's most thoughtful and innovative conservatives since arriving six years ago with a reputation of a neanderthal. While the hard right grumbles he is moving leftward, Brock has attempted conservative solutions — often using tax incentives — for such human problems as unemployment and catastrophic illness. He has been expected to seek the presidential nomination in 1980 with considerable conservative support.

What got Brock's Senate reelection in trouble in the first place was not of his own making: President Ford's precipitous fall in Tennessee, mainly because of Jimmy Carter's popularity but also because of the outspoken First Lady's impact on the important Baptist vote. "We still haven't recovered from Betty Ford here," one state Republican leader told us.

What happened next was Brock's own fault: his decision not to publicly disclose details of a blind investment trust containing his considerable inherited assets. When the numbers of his 1975 tax return leaked out, millionaire Brock released the figures showing that heavy business losses and charitable deductions resulted in a tax payment lower than what is paid by most working men. By refusing to reveal the taxes paid for earlier years, he keeps alive an issue that could have been disposed of weeks ago by full disclosure.

Democrats have had a field day. Addressing a coffee in Kingsport last Friday, Sasser evoked hearty laughter and applause by saying that a Brock billboard showing the Senator holding two fingers closely together "indicates that he's saying, 'I just paid that much tax last year.'"

This non-issue dominates the campaign. Sen. Howard Baker, probably the state's most popular politician, came to Nashville last week to boost Brock. What received the publicity, however, was Baker responding to a press conference by saying yes, he would disclose his own tax returns in any future campaign.

Frustrated and annoyed by the turn his campaign has taken, Brock tried to assume the offensive last Thursday by declaring that Sasser is a McGovern liberal who "has sought in recent weeks to hide his philosophy behind a negative campaign." This will be Brock's constantly reasserted theme in the campaign's final week. But Sasser is no Albert Gore; in the eyes of prominent Democrats here, he is less idealistic and less venturesome but also less vulnerable. Sasser not only denies any ties to George McGovern but says he opposes gun controls, forced busing, the Kennedy-Corman health bill and the Humphrey-Hawkins jobs bill. "Bill can't lay a glove on him," a Republican strategist told us.

Failing that, Brock can only hope that Carter is declining enough among conservative Tennessee Baptists to avert a landslide that would elect Sasser.

Otherwise, Brock's national ambitions will be shattered and he will be retired to private life for insisting that his personal financial affairs are nobody's business but his own. That insistence may not be compatible with a political career in this post-Watergate climate where openness is elevated above ideology, experience or ability.

LIVINGSTON, Tex. (AP) — Lester Battise, his stomach bouncing over his belt buckle, flashed a smile and told visitors to the Alabama-Coushatta reservation, "When you get aboard the bus have a ticket, money, or your scalp ready."

During the bus tour down a narrow, winding road deep in the Big Thicket of Southeast Texas, Battise said, "There are many snakes out there, but they have learned to live with us. They only bite whites."

A group of young Indian men and women don the colorful costumes of long ago and perform the traditional dances of the tribe.

One said, "It beats cutting timber for a living."

Others guide tourists through the Indian museum, serve hot dogs and cheeseburgers at the restaurant or sell jewelry, pottery, and toy tomahawks—in the gift shop.

There's a miniature train that wiggles through the underbrush and beneath the tall pines, giant oaks and fat maples, a reptile center and an outdoor theater.

The Alabama-Coushatta have turned the 4,500-acre reservation into an amusement park, using the white man's ways to provide jobs, build new homes and eventually become self-sufficient.

Billboards dot roadways throughout Southeast Texas advertising the reservation. There are commercials on Houston television stations.

The buildings resemble a western fort far more than an Indian encampment. That doesn't seem to bother the hundreds of youngsters who dash across the grounds playing Indian around the Indians.

Roland Poncho, 33, director of the tourist section, said, "Once long ago our people went to the federal government said 'we need some help, but don't help us too much.' That same feeling exists today."

The tribe now receives state aid and is under the direction of the Texas Indian Commission. Poncho said, "With the tourist attractions, which brought us 300,000 visitors last year, we are getting closer and closer to the day when we will be self-sufficient, paying for all of our needs."

Emmett Battise, the assistant chief of the 550 tribesmen said, "We have made a delicate step forward, but it is a step. While we are a tourist attraction, we are showing visitors the culture and the life of the Alabama-Coushatta. While we attempt to become self-sufficient in this program, we are teaching non-Indians to know us, to understand us, and learn something about us."

Poncho pointed to a rusty colored creek that flows across the reservation and said an alligator nests there and if hungry can be brought to the surface with a whistle—a bit of outdoor knowledge for the tourists—and an attraction to bring the visitors back should the gator fail to appear the first time.

Before the seven-member tribal council decided to move into tourism, it considered a lumbering operation and a furniture factory.

"It wouldn't work," Poncho said. "The tribe was reluctant to cut the trees and feared pollution. They have a great love for the forest and the wildlife."

In the woodlands of the reservation—if you walk softly—a deer can be seen grazing, a big owl in a tree, and a raccoon scrambling down a branch.

With campfires now available along the banks of a fish-stocked lake, the tribe attempts to extend its attractions from the one-day visitor to the week-long outdoorsman.

South Korea tried to give bribe, gifts

The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — During the final months of the Nixon administration, the South Korean government attempted to give a $10,000 cash gift to a White House aide and 10 or 12 expensive presents to presidential staff members and their wives, according to one former aide and State Department source.

The $10,000 in cash, all in $100 bills, was in an envelope marked "bon voyage" given to John E. Nidecker, a White House aide visiting Seoul in May 1974. Both Nidecker and other State Department sources identified the Korean who signed the envelope as Park Chong Kyu, one of South Korean President Park Chung Hee's closest confidants.

Nidecker, he and State Department sources both said, turned over the cash-filled envelope to Philip C. Habib, then the U.S. ambassador to Korea. Habib in turn gave the cash to the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency chief of station to return it to Park Chong Kyu, who was head of the presidential security force in Seoul.

The money in the envelope incident occurred at the same time, investigators say, that the South Korean government was engaged in giving cash payment, gifts and campaign contributions to U.S. congressmen to influence congressional action concerning South Korea. In particular, investigators say, Washington-based Korean businessman Tongsun Park dispensed between $500,000 and $1 million annually in such gifts and contributions to U.S. congressmen and other officials during the 1970s.

Nidecker, who said he was in Korea in May 1974 to attend the seventh annual prayer breakfast for President Park, was also given a variety of gifts while there. They included a 1,000-year-old set of wine cups valued at $10,000 and a $500 painting. He turned the gifts over to the General Services Administration for disposal, according to records.

Shortly thereafter, Korean National Assemblyman Ro Chin Hwan visited Washington and left expensive gifts for between 10 and 12 White House aides and their wives, according to Nidecker. Each White House aide refused the gifts and Nidecker mailed them back to Ro in Korea, said Nidecker, who was a special assistant to the President.

Ro left a matched pearl necklace and earring set for both Rose Mary Woods, President Nixon's personal secretary, and Nidecker's wife, Jeanne, according to Nidecker. Both gifts were returned.

Nidecker recalled that Gen. Alexander Haig, then White House chief of staff, and his wife were also given expensive items and turned them down. Ro indicated he wanted to meet with President Nixon at the time, but Nidecker met with him instead.

Nidecker said he traveled extensively throughout Korea in 1974 and on several occasions he was presented with expensive gifts, which he either refused or turned over to the U.S. government.

When it came time to leave Korea, Nidecker said he was driven to the airport in an entourage of Korean officials. When the entourage stopped at a golf course, an aide to security chief Park Chung Kyu presented Nidecker with the plain white envelope on which was written bon voyage. It was signed by Park Chong Kyu.

As Nidecker walked to his flight, he tore off a corner of the envelope. Recognizing that he had been given a large quantity of cash, he gave the envelope to an embassy official who took it back to Habib, Nidecker said.

Several days later Nidecker said he called Habib, who told him that the envelope had contained $10,000 in cash. Habib also told Nidecker that he had called a Korean official to his office and given the money back, Nidecker said.

Other sources said that Habib gave the cash to the CIA station chief in Seoul who took the cash back to Park Chong Kyu.

Reagan not giving Ford top billing

WASHINGTON — In the closing days of one of the tightest presidential campaigns in history, Ronald Reagan is balking at giving all-out aid to President Ford.

When Ford was campaigning in California last weekend, he telephoned his defeated former GOP foe and asked him to campaign with him. Reagan, then at his ranch in the Santa Barbara hills, declined, saying he was meeting with party leaders.

Reagan so far has turned down requests to do a California fly-around for Ford, to do a television program for him Saturday in Texas and to campaign for him in Texas and Florida. A source close to Reagan said Thursday that there is slim chance of Ford and Reagan appearing on the same platform "unless Ford wants to go somewhere to appear with him."

"You cannot say that Gov. Reagan has been particularly helpful in this campaign," a top Ford strategist said Thursday.

Sources close to the former California governor say he resents such descriptions of his role. They point out that Reagan has campaigned for Ford in the West, including a speech he gave Thursday in Colorado, and inroduced the President on his first campaign swing through California early this month.

But Reagan's intimate acknowledgment that he does not have that much enthusiasm for the candidacy of the man who defeated him, even though he wants to see Jimmy Carter defeated. When Reagan introduced Ford in Los Angeles, he mentioned the President's name only in the last night of the speech.

"His head's in the campaign but his heart isn't," says a former Reagan strategist.

Some aides at the President Ford Committee privately acknowledge that the Ford side erred in its approach to Reagan. According to a generally accepted account, White House chief of staff Richard Cheney delayed for two weeks in calling Reagan chief of staff Michael Deaver when campaign plans were being drawn up in September.

Reagan is always in demand as a public speaker. During this delay, he filled up many of the dates on his calendar with speeches, both for his own benefit and for conservative congressman for whom he had promised to campaign.

The tensions between Ford committee staffers and Reagan aides were aggravated Wednesday when a story appeared in The Washington Star quoting Norman (Skip) Watts, deputy director of the Ford campaign, as saying that people will be "pointing a lot of fingers" at Reagan if Ford narrowly loses the election.

Ford campaign aides said Thursday that this statement was resented by Reagan and will make it even more difficult to get the former governor to cooperate in the campaign's final days.

Nonetheless, hope that Reagan will come through at the 11th hour still flickers at the Ford committee.

Stuart K. Spencer, a chief Ford strategist, said Thursday that Reagan will make a speech for the President in San Diego on Friday.

"Will this be on television?" Spencer was asked.

"No, on Carter," he replied.

As the campaign goes down to the wire, anti-Carter speeches seem to be

West Germany nixes asylum for hijacker

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — The West German government has refused to return a young defector who hijacked a Czechoslovak airliner with 111 persons aboard and probably will try him on air piracy charges, authorities said.

The government rebuffed the Communist government's demand that the hijacker be returned immediately, and the Ilyushin 18 flew back to Prague before dawn today without him.

None of the other 104 passengers or six crew members sought asylum, police said, and all were aboard the four-engine turboprop when it took off from the Munich airport.

Police said the hijacker was named Rudolf Bečvar and that he was 26. Sources in Prague said he was a railway worker.

The plane had loaded at Prague Thursday for a flight to eastern Czechoslovakia, and Bečvar took control of it as soon as its engines were started, a source at the Prague airport reported.

He was armed with a Russian submachine gun and a Czech pistol. It was not disclosed how he slipped the weapons through the tight security checks at the Prague airport.

Evidently mindful of the killing of another Czechoslovak pilot during a hijacking four years ago, authorities in the Prague control tower told the captain to use his own judgment in responding to Bečvar's demands.

The pilot took off nearly five hours behind schedule at 9:30 p.m. and landed in Munich at 10:58 p.m. Bečvar immediately surrendered and was taken to the airport police station for questioning.

The police said the young man was obviously politically motivated and hoped to secure asylum in the West. But West Germany is leading a campaign in the United Nations to get an international agreement against the taking of hostages.

Three years ago, a West German court sentenced nine young Czechoslovaks to prison terms ranging from three to seven years for bringing a Slov-Air plane with 17 persons aboard across the border. The pilot of the plane was killed during a struggle in the cockpit, and the 22-year-old hijacker accused of firing the fatal shot hanged himself in his cell before the trial.

African blacks want elections

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Black Rhodesian leaders called today for elections that would effectively freeze whites out of a two-year interim government designed to pave the way to black rule.

White Rhodesian sources said Prime Minister Ian Smith reiterated his position that the conference's sole purpose was to ratify a plan under which whites would lead the interim government's ruling council and head the police and army ministries.

The plan was presented to Smith and black leaders last month by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. But Kissinger and Britain say the plan was a basis for discussion, not an agreement to which the blacks were committed.

Today's session recessed after 80 minutes for what its British chairman called "a period of informal consultations."

The four black Rhodesian leaders at the conference say they want power transferred immediately to the 6.4 million blacks in Zimbabwe, the African name for the British colony whose 278,000 whites declared independence from Britain 11 years ago.

"We have come here to do one thing, and that one thing is to work out the mechanics for the transfer of power from the colonial administrator (Britain) to the people of Zimbabwe," said Joshua Nkomo.

The other black leaders are Robert Mugabe, head of the guerrilla forces fighting from bases in Mozambique, and two Methodist clergymen, Bishop Abel Muzorewa and the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole.

Nkomo and Mugabe have formed a "Patriotic Front" alliance for the talks and rebuffed overtures for unity from Muzorewa and Sithole.

The opening conference session Thursday was delayed for more than two hours while the British chairman, Ivor Richard, Britain's ambassador to the United Nations, got his government to agree to a demand by Nkomo and Mugabe that Richard be given cabinet rank.

Nkomo told reporters his side had "gone a long way toward...getting the British to accept their responsibility" as the legal sovereign authority in Rhodesia. But the British government in the past 11 years has demonstrated that it has neither the military forces nor the inclination to whip the Rhodesian whites into line.

Richard told the opening session the conference aims for majority rule in Rhodesia within two years, and he said all have a duty to work for that goal.

He read a message from Prime Minister James Callaghan which said, "The British objective for Rhodesia is an independence which will serve the interest and fulfill the aspirations of all the peoples of Zimbabwe."

Beirut fighting breaks silence

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Heavy fighting broke out in Beirut during the night for the first time in the nine-day-old cease-fire. The civil war's 57th truce was also threatened by fighting south of the capital and by the return of more Palestinians to southeast Lebanon.

Leftist Moslem and rightwing Christian forces in Beirut traded grenades and machinegun fire at close range all night. Hospital and militia sources reported that more than 45 persons were killed and 65 wounded, a toll comparable to the nightly totals before the cease-fire began Oct. 21.

Each side said it repulsed repeated tank and armored-car assaults along the front line dividing the city into Moslem and Christian sectors.

A spokesman for the small Arab League peacekeeping force said the outbreak was a "serious setback that we are trying hard to contain before it undermines the whole Arab-sponsored peace plan to end the Lebanese conflict."

More fighting was reported by Former President Camille Chamoun, the most militant of the Christian decision makers. He charged that Moslem socialist leader Kamal Jumblatt's mountain warriors were attacking Chamoun's hometown, Deir el Kamar, 20 miles southeast of Beirut.

"Leftists are also storming into two neighboring Christian villages, ransacking and dynamiting Christian homes in what may develop into another massacre," said Chamoun, who appealed to Christian President Elias Sarkis to send peacekeeping forces to stop the attacks.

"If Arab peacekeepers fail to repel the attackers, then Syrian intervention troops should be called in by the president," Chamoun said. "Otherwise we will have another round of fullscale war."

Syrian President Hafez Assad abandoned the Palestinians and leftist Lebanese Moslems last June and sent 21,000 troops into Lebanon to prevent them from overrunning the Christians and setting up a radical government.

Seven intervenors file Bell petitions

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Utilities Commission announced Thursday it has received cases from seven of the intervenors in the Southwestern Bell rate case. The deadline for filing was noon on Tuesday.

Houston recommended a revenue increase of $60 million for the phone company. It also recommended approval of the firm's proposed "411" charge for calls to information. And Houston asked that it be combined with Dallas in the lower cost Rate Band 9, and that there be no increases in local rates.

The federal government, represented by the General Services Administration, recommended a revenue increase of $29 million, based on a rate of return of 7.62 per cent.

Neither Texas Retail Federation and nor Texas Alarm-Signal Association filed alternative dollar figures to Bell's request for $298.3 million, but the former attacked Bell's proposed business rates as unduly discriminatory toward business, and the latter opposed any increase in private line service used by the alarm and signal industry.

Dallas recommended a 4.5 per cent increase from the Dallas metropolitan area. The city agrees with Bell's request for directory assistance charges but says it should be pegged to cost of service rather than value of service.

Fort Worth also supports the "411" charge, with a base of five free calls.

Ablene, Burkburnett, Midland, Odessa and Tyler say Bell's present rates provide a fair rate of return. They also urge future telephone cases be considered on a regional rather than a statewide basis.

Cheaper pesos help tourists

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — Tourists from the United States and most of the 55,000 retired Americans living in Mexico find it hard to suppress gleeful grins as pesos multiply in their wallets.

Two devaluations in two months have made Mexico one of the world's great tourist bargains and doubled the number of pesos a retired American gets for his dollar pension check.

"I can live like a king here now," said Ed Schopp, who used to farm in Salix, Iowa.

Mexican wage earners and foreigners who live on income from investments inside the country were stunned, however. The government has made no real effort to explain what devaluation might mean to them.

Mexico's currency was allowed to float — seek its own level of value — on world money markets on Sept. 1 after 22 years of being pegged at 12.5 pesos to the dollar. The government later stabilized the rate of exchange at 19.9 to the dollar but in a surprise announcement last Tuesday night allowed it to float freely again. It immediately shot to 26.5, and on Thursday a dollar bought 25.79 pesos in major banks.

"This is my 20th trip to Mexico since 1958 and it has never been so cheap," said Linda Binkele of Santa Barbara, Calif. "My parents and I have one of the best rooms at one of the best hotels in Guadalajara for $5. I bought a leather jacket for $40 yesterday. That same jacket would cost $200 or $250 in the United States."

Prices of hotels and most restaurants are controlled by the government and have been allowed to rise only 20 per cent. A top-class hotel room that cost the equivalent of $28.80 on Monday now costs $21.69. Taxi fares, bus fares, meals and tourist goods and services dropped similarly.

John Colobero and Bill Austin of Newport Beach, Calif., found Guadalajara a tourist's dream.

"We spent $17 for dinner for two last night, with cocktails. The same meal in a comparable restaurant in California would cost us $35 or $40," Colobero said.

Filet mignon in a plush Guadalajara restaurant costs $2.20. A bottle of local wine costs $1.50.

Retired Americans in Mexico were very worried before the first devaluation because inflation had been so heavy in the past three years that their fixed incomes were dwindling.

"When my wife and I moved here seven years ago we rented our apartment for $160 a month. It went up to $224 a month but now with the devaluations it costs me only $112 a month," said Elliot Prescott, formerly of Oak Park, Ill. "You can do a good deal more with your money here now than in the States."

Brown foresees no war for now

HOUSTON (AP) — The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff says the nation's top military men do not foresee war with the Soviet Union as long as America maintains a rough equivalence with Soviet forces.

Gen. George Brown said Thursday that doesn't mean that the United States has to "match the Soviets division for division."

Although the Soviet Navy is growing, he told a Houston Club Men's Forum, it "can't match the U.S. navy on a one-for-one basis."

However, he said U.S. Navy now has the capability of getting reinforcements to Europe in case of war only after "paying a heavy price."

While the Navy could supply Hawaii, he said, control of the seas west of Hawaii would be spotty.

He said the Soviet Union "remains our principal adversary."

"For nearly three decades even while actively engaged in security operations elsewhere, we have had to keep our guard up with respect to the Soviet Union," he said.

"Detente, with its promise of reduced tensions, has not reduced the requirement of vigilance."

The United States must begin a long term program to ensure that American forces are able to continue to maintain their rough equivalence with the Soviet Union.

Seven intervenors file Bell petitions

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Utilities Commission announced Thursday it has received cases from seven of the intervenors in the Southwestern Bell rate case. The deadline for filing was noon on Tuesday.

Houston recommended a revenue increase of $80 million for the phone company. It also recommended approval of the firm's proposed "411" charge for calls to information. And Houston asked that it be combined with Dallas in the lower cost Rate Band 9, and that there be no increases in local rates.

The federal government, represented by the General Services Administration, recommended a revenue increase of $29 million, based on a rate of return of 7.62 per cent.

Neither Texas Retail Federation nor Texas Alarm-Signal Association filed alternative dollar figures to Bell's request for $296.3 million, but the former attacked Bell's proposed business rates as unduly discriminatory toward business, and the latter opposed any increase in private line service used by the alarm and signal industry.

Dallas recommended a 4.5 per cent increase from the Dallas metropolitan area. The city agrees with Bell's request for directory assistance charges but says it should be pegged to cost of service rather than value of service.

Fort Worth also supports the "411" charge, with a base of five free calls.

Abilene, Burkburnett, Midland, Odessa and Tyler say Bell's present rates provide a fair rate of return. They also urge future telephone cases be considered on a regional rather than a statewide basis.

The Bell case opens before the commission Monday.

Cheaper pesos help tourists

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — Tourists from the United States and most of the 55,000 retired Americans living in Mexico find it hard to suppress gleeful grins as pesos multiply in their wallets.

Two devaluations in two months have made Mexico one of the world's great tourist bargains and doubled the number of pesos a retired American gets for his dollar pension check.

"I can live like a king here now," said Ed Schopp, who used to farm in Salix, Iowa.

Mexican wage earners and foreigners who live on income from investments inside the country were stunned, however. The government has made no real effort to explain what devaluation might mean to them.

Mexico's currency was allowed to float — seek its own level of value — on world money markets on Sept. 1 after 22 years of being pegged at 12.5 pesos to the dollar. The government later stabilized the rate of exchange at 19.9 to the dollar but in a surprise announcement last Tuesday night allowed it to float freely again. It immediately shot to 26.5, and on Thursday a dollar bought 25.79 pesos in major banks.

"This is my 20th trip to Mexico since 1958 and it has never been so cheap," said Linda Binkele of Santa Barbara, Calif. "My parents and I have one of the best rooms at one of the best hotels in Guadalajara for $5. I bought a leather jacket for $40 yesterday. That same jacket would cost $200 or $250 in the United States."

Prices of hotels and most restaurants are controlled by the government and have been allowed to rise only 20 per cent. A top-class hotel room that cost the equivalent of $28.80 on Monday now costs $21.69. Taxi fares, bus fares, meals and tourist goods and services dropped similarly.

John Colobero and Bill Austin of Newport Beach, Calif., found Guadalajara a tourist's dream.

"We spent $17 for dinner for two last night, with cocktails. The same meal in a comparable restaurant in California would cost us $35 or $40," Colobero said.

Filet mignon in a plush Guadalajara restaurant costs $2.20. A bottle of local wine costs $1.50.

Retired Americans in Mexico were very worried before the first devaluation because inflation had been so heavy in the past three years that their fixed incomes were dwindling.

"When my wife and I moved here seven years ago we rented our apartment for $160 a month. It went up to $224 a month but now with the devaluations it costs me only $112 a month," said Elliot Prescott, formerly of Oak Park, Ill. "You can do a good deal more with your money here now than in the States."

Brown foresees no war for now

HOUSTON (AP) — The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff says the nation's top military men do not foresee war with the Soviet Union as long as America maintains a rough equivalence with Soviet forces.

Gen. George Brown said Thursday that doesn't mean that the United States has to "match the Soviets division for division."

Although the Soviet Navy is growing, he told a Houston Club Men's Forum, it "can't match the U.S. navy on a one-for-one basis."

However, he said U.S. Navy now has the capability of getting reinforcements to Europe in case of war only after "playing a heavy price."

While the Navy could supply Hawaii, he said, control of the seas west of Hawaii would be spotty.

He said the Soviet Union "remains our principal adversary."

"For nearly three decades even while actively engaged in security operations elsewhere, we have had to keep our guard up with respect to the Soviet Union," he said.

"Detente, with its promise of reduced tensions, has not reduced the requirement of vigilance." The United States must begin a long term program to ensure that American forces are able to continue to maintain their rough equivalence with the Soviet Union.

Wise named Dawson agent

LAMESA — Joe Ed Wise, county agent for Gaines County, has been named extension agent for Dawson County, effective Dec. 1. Wise will conduct county extension programs and provide leadership for the 4-H Club, Billy C. Gunter, district agent for the Texas Agriculture Extension Service, said in announcing the appointment.

Wise assumed the post in Lamesa which was vacated when Lee Roy Colgan announced his retirement after 33 years with the extension service, including 28 years in Dawson County.

Gunter said Wise has done an outstanding job as county agent in Gaines and Crosby counties and as assistant agent in Dawson County. His background qualifies him well for the responsibilities of being county agent in the key cotton county, Gunter said.

Wise was born in Brady in 1946 and reared in Rockwood in Coleman County where his parents now live.

He attended San Angelo State College and Howard Payne University after graduating from Santa Anna High School. He graduated from Texas Tech University with a B.S. degree in 1968 and an M.S. degree in 1974. He has taken other graduate work at Texas A&M University.

Wise was a member of the livestock judging team at San Angelo State and at Texas Tech, was on the dean's list, a member of the Block and Bridle Club, the agricultural council and the meats judging team.

Wise joined the extension service in 1968 as assistant agent in Dawson County. He was named extension agent for Crosby County in 1971 and moved to Seminole as Gaines County agent in 1974.

He was superintendent of the junior show of the Panhandle South Plains Fair and assistant swine superintendent of the Southwest Junior Livestock Show. He is a member of the Texas County Agricultural Agents Association.

Wise and his wife, the former Ruth Ann Walker of Santa Anna, will reside in Lamesa. They are members of the Methodist church and have two children, Bradley, 5, and Nathan, 6 weeks.

Vitamin C may help with terminal cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Terminal cancer patients live about four times longer after receiving large doses of vitamin C, says Nobel laureate Dr. Linus Pauling. Other researchers say his findings look promising enough to warrant further study.

A study conducted in Scotland by Pauling and Dr. Ewan Cameron says the mean survival time of 100 dying cancer patients was more than 210 days after they were declared untreatable by conventional methods.

This compared with a mean survival time of 50 days for 1,000 terminal patients who were used as study controls because they did not get the vitamin, said the report in the October issue of Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

Pauling, awarded the Nobel Prize in chemistry in 1954 and the Nobel Peace Prize in 1962, has been at odds with much of the medical community for advocating large vitamin C doses to prevent and treat common colds. There still is no overwhelming consensus on that issue.

Dr. Paul Chretien of the National Cancer Institute said Thursday there are serious questions about the methods used to conduct the cancer study. But the results still are encouraging enough to indicate vitamin C may be useful in conjunction with other therapies in treating cancer, he said.

"This study should prompt a repeat study of an identical nature that is controlled by a statistician," said Chretien, chief of tumor immunology in NCI's surgical branch.

"There would be no question about the results if it had been done by random patient selection as a double-blind test in which neither doctors nor patients knew what medication was being given," he said.

In the study, conducted at Vale of Leven District General Hospital in Loch Lomondside, the researchers knew all patients getting vitamin C. The 1,000 control cases were drawn from the hospital's records over the last 10 years and not selected at random.

Statisticians say these methods leave room for unintentional bias in selecting patients and interpreting results.

In the study, patients were listed as "terminal" on the date anticancer treatment, such as surgery, drugs and radiation, was abandoned, or when they were hospitalized for "terminal care."

The 100 patients, who suffered with a variety of cancers, received 10 grams of vitamin C per day intravenously for 10 days and the same amount orally thereafter.

The researchers concluded that there is strong evidence that the treatment increased survival time "by a factor of about 3 for most" patients in the experiment.

They added, "It is our opinion that a similar effect would be found for untreatable cancer patients in other countries."

Veterans in school to get more benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 1.2 million veterans attending school under the GI Bill will begin getting higher benefit checks, starting Monday, and the first check will have an extra bonus.

A new law boosts veterans' education benefits 8 per cent, effective Oct. 1. The new benefit checks due in the mail Monday also will include the higher benefits that were retroactive to Oct. 1.

The new law allows a veteran to use up to 45 months for either graduate or undergraduate study. Previously, a veteran could not use any entitlement for graduate study beyond 36 months.

Since men and women who join the military after Jan. 31 are not eligible for that program, the VA and the Pentagon are preparing a new program for them. Under the new law, men and women joining the military after Dec. 31 may contribute $50 to $75 monthly from their salaries, up to a maximum of $2,700. The VA will match that at the rate of $2 for every $1 contributed, and the total can be used for education.

VA Administrator Richard L. Roudsbush said that for a single veteran attending school full time, the new monthly allowance is $292, up $22 from the previous rate. The new monthly rate for veterans enrolled in full-time training with one dependent is $347, compared with $321; with two dependents $396, compared with $366. For each dependent above two, the rate is $24, up by $2.

The 8 per cent increase applies to all GI Bill training, except flight training, which remains the same.

The new law is estimated to cost $473 million in this fiscal year, decreasing to $68 million in fiscal year 1981.

Roudsbush said that because of the priority placed on getting out the GI Bill increases, some 16,000 checks that veterans enrolled in vocational rehabilitation training receive Monday will include only the 8 per cent for November. The October increase will be sent later.

Sen. Robert Dole, the Republican party's vice-presidential nominee, will be in Midland this weekend.

Sen. Dole is due to arrive at Midland Regional Air Terminal late Saturday night and spend the night in Midland.

He will address a Republican rally Sunday. The place and time have not been confirmed, a Republican party spokesman said this morning.

Government announces index down for second month in row

(Continued from Page 1) because of the recent unfavorable statistics on unemployment and economic growth, acknowledged in advance that the indicators index probably would be down again.

But they continued to maintain that the slowdown in the economy was about over and that the economic recovery remains basically sound.

The indicators index, compiled by the Commerce Department from other statistics, is designed to foreshadow future trends in the economy.

Commerce Department economists say the figures aren't conclusive unless they show a similar result of three consecutive months. But one analyst said the September report was certain to raise new questions about the strength of the recovery.

Jimmy Carter's top economic adviser, Lawrence R. Klein, said Thursday that the recovery "definitely is in trouble" and that the next president will need to take new actions to stimulate the economy next year to head off a new recession.

"This economy is due to have some kind of a slowdown by 1978 or 1979 and nobody is doing anything about it," except for the kinds of policies Gov. Carter favors," he said.

Alan Greenspan, President Ford's top economic adviser, said Wednesday that the economic recovery is not running out of steam and predicted that a year from now "we'll wonder what all the fuss was about."

Economic policy is on the right track, he added.

However, Klein told the National Press Club Thursday that when historians look back on this period they will "decide that the economic policies look very poor."

He said that "remedial action" will be needed next year and this could take the form of tax cuts, or increased spending. He also said that in order to plan for the future, the administration needs to solve the "mystery" of the missing $11.4 billion in budget money that was unspent in the first nine months of this year.

Incumbents in city today

U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and U.S. Rep. George M. Mahon, Democrat incumbents for their respective offices, were to have been speakers at noon today at a meeting of the Midland Democratic Club.

The luncheon was to have been held in the Permian Ballroom at the Midland Hilton.

Mahon will be spending the remainder of the day campaigning in Midland, the last time he will visit the city before election day.

Civic group plans voter transportation

Midland Jaycees will provide transportation to the polls for persons desiring it from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday.

The project is intended to further voter participation in the election, a spokesman said.

Interested persons may call the Midland Jaycees at 682-9952 for further information or to arrange transportation. Those needing rides should call at least one hour before they want to be picked up, the spokesman said.

Team probes desert lands

(Continued from Page 1) they swear eventually. But they had to give up an early treasure for lack of funds to hire a qualified attendant: a six-month-old mountain lioness (also called a puma) named "Leonita" who looks and acts like a playful housecat but weighs about 30 pounds and could easily take your arm off with a serious swipe.

Midlander Bryan Bristol and I spent some time in her cage en route from Terlingua, and I must say there is no experience quite like having a beautiful feral creature nibble on your hand to give you an appreciation of nature.

Leonita is now at a zoo in Illinois, with a promise of offspring when the CDRI gets its menagerie going.

Right now, it's a matter of raising the last of $100,000 to assure another year of operation and to launch the Desert Experience display.

Ford camp assured; Carter assails GOP

By The Associated Press

President Ford's key aides say he is "very close" to capturing the White House for the next four years as he prepares for his last campaign weekend on the road before Tuesday's balloting.

As Ford stressed his foreign policy experience Thursday night, Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter was assailing the Republican administration as being incapable of stopping inflation or fighting unemployment.

Ford was heading today for Milwaukee, St. Louis and Houston. Carter was to campaign in Philadelphia, St. Louis and Toledo, Ohio.

As for the vice presidential candidates, Republican Sen. Bob Dole was on the road today, and Democratic Sen. Walter Mondale took the day off.

In New York on Thursday night, Carter asserted that Ford's administration was a captive of special interest groups, and he said Ford's efforts to portray himself as "the champanion of the middle class are a cruel hoax."

In a position paper issued from New York, Carter said the Republicans "failed to stop inflation because they believed that unemployment was the cure, because they were afraid to stand up to powerful special interests, because they have sought to play business and labor and agriculture and consumers against each other, rather than seeking cooperation, understanding and restraint."

Carter said his administration would aim economic aid programs at areas of high unemployment, would more intensively enforce antitrust laws and would launch an active White House effort to hold down inflationary price increases in basic industries.

White House chief of staff Richard Cheney said Thursday that Ford is "very close" to victory and is overtaking Carter largely because of his smooth-running campaign and his television blitz.

Ford apparently has confidence in his ability to win California and will not return there. But Cheney said that as a result of Republican polls, Ford will spend part of this final pre-election weekend in New York, although he had earlier been considered too far behind Carter there to merit another visit.

Ford aides appear pleased with the "Jerry and Joe Shows," paid television programs that allow Ford to field questions he wants to answer in a talk-show format. In those 30-minute programs, beamed into key states, Ford is lobbied questions by sportscaster Joe Garagiola.

Cheney said that foreign policy is becoming an increasingly important issue and that's what Ford concentrated on in the program with Garagiola in Cleveland on Thursday night.

"I've had the experience of dealing with the serious problems in the area of foreign policy," Ford said on the show. "I don't think there's any substitute for that kind of experience..."

He stressed his meetings with Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev, saying, "That experience is sitting across the table from General Secretary Brezhnev and saying, 'I don't agree with you. We aren't going to make that kind of a deal.' Or sitting across from a group of allies and saying, 'We can't do it this way, we can't do it that way.'"

In Cleveland, Ford told an audience in an ethnic neighborhood that as long as he is president their relatives still under Soviet domination will not be forgotten.

Ford didn't mention the blunder he pulled in his second debate with Carter, in which he declared that the Soviet Union does not dominate its Eastern European satellites. But he told the crowd Thursday night that "the United States as a matter of fundamental principle supports the aspirations for freedom and national independence for the people of Eastern Europe."

Nasty weather to break soon

The buckets of rain and snow which have fallen on the Permian Basin for the past two days are expected to let up some tonight.

Temperatures, too, should be closer to autumn weather, rather than the chilly winter-like temperatures of the past few days.

The National Weather Service reported that the two-day rain total in Midland was 1.40 inches at Midland Regional Air Terminal and 1.67 inches near Midland Air Park. The city had .58 inches during the past 24 hours.

Today dawned cool, calm and mostly overcast across the area, with some stations still reporting light rain. In Crane and Stanton, it was rainy, overcast and calm this morning, while Rankin had cold temperatures, rainy skies and calm winds.

Andrews reported about one inch of snow which stuck to the ground this morning, while Lamesa's .52 inches of snow had melted by the morning hours. Both cities had calm winds and overcast skies near dawn today.

In Big Lake and Odessa, it was cloudy and calm with the rains letting up near dawn today.

The weatherman said the rains will cease by late afternoon today, with skies becoming partly cloudy and temperatures warmer on Saturday.

Temperatures tonight should dip down into the upper 30s and rise to the mid-60s on Saturday. Winds will be light and variable tonight.

Snow and rain kept Texas weather cold and dreary for this Halloween, the Associated Press reported. The moisture was expected to taper off in most sections, however, by tonight.

A mixture of snowflakes and light rain dampened much of the Panhandle-Plains for a second straight day, falling from around Canadian southward to near Lubbock and Guthrie and westward into New Mexico.

It added to a two-inch cover at Lubbock — what was left from a record 4-inch blanket deposited the day before. It also was the heaviest for any 24 hours there in this month, eclipsing an .02 mark set Oct. 31, 1967. Amarillo received nearly as much snow, measuring 3.2 inches.

Rains, frequently heavy, were widespread across most other sections of the state. Much of this rain was concentrated in areas from the Davis Mountains in far West Texas and the Middle Rio Grande eastward over Central Texas. It also extended south to the Middle Texas Coast.

Official forecasters warned motorists to be on watch for water-filled spots at low points in streets and highways.

Wet and cloudy weather kept temperatures unusually low Thursday and it was uncomfortably chilly this morning. At El Paso the top mark Thursday was a record low for the date of 42 degrees, and the mercury went no higher than 41 at Alpine in the West Texas mountains.

All caught up in preparing for Halloween are David Harris, 4, and John Harris, 7, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Harris, 2205 Sinclair Ave. The "spider web" was "spun" on the Harris' front porch to greet trick or treaters who come calling Saturday night.

Trick or treatin' time is near

By JIM STEINBERG

The calendar says Halloween is Sunday, but many Midland youngsters will be out "trick or treating" Saturday night.

Midland's young goblins will be out gathering the traditional bonanza of candy and fruit Saturday to avoid conflicts with church services, Police Chief Wayne Gideon said.

"The police department will be at full strength," for patrol work, Gideon said. Officers will also be patrolling the areas around elementary school carnivals scheduled tonight and Saturday night, he said.

For older students not willing to give up the ghosts of the past, the Midland College student senate is sponsoring a costume dance at 8 p.m. Saturday in the student center. Sweet Briar will play and a $20 cash prize will be awarded for the best costume in the event.

The Lee High School Chorale is sponsoring a frightening experience on the corner of Mississippi Avenue and Weatherford Street. There, the group has set up a spook house which will be ready for the daring Saturday from 7:30 to 10 p.m.

For those who plan to take to the streets for a little bit of the old fashioned "trick or treat", the National Confectioners Association has a few safety tips: visits should be confined to the neighborhood and made in the afternoon or early evening hours, costumes should be brightly colored, short enough to prevent tripping, nonflammable and decorated with reflective tape for greater visibility in the beam of car lights. A parent should accompany young children on their "treating" rounds.

Two junior high schools plan activities today. A dance from 7 to 10 p.m. will be held at Goddard Junior High and San Jacinto Junior High will have games and dancing from 6 until 8 p.m.

Three elementary schools plan carnivals today. Listed, with special event and time, are: DeZavala, 5 to 9 p.m., Mexican dinner (5 to 7 p.m.); Lamar, 6 to 8:30 p.m., burrito dinner; Washington, 6 to 8 p.m., hot dog supper.

Thirteen elementary schools plan carnivals Saturday: Bonham, 6 to 9 p.m., chili dogs and frito pie supper; Bowie, 5 to 9 p.m., spook house and costume parade on patio; Burnett, 5 to 9:30 p.m., frito pie and pinto beans; Crockett, 6:30 to 9 p.m., "House of Horrors"; Emerson, 6 to 8:30 p.m., carved pumpkin contest; Fannin, 6 to 9:30 p.m., spaghetti supper and costume contest; Henderson, 6 to 9 p.m., Mexican dinner; Houston, 6 to 8 p.m., Mexican fiesta; Jones, 6 to 9 p.m., Mexican dinner and costume parade; Long, 6 to 8:30 p.m., hamburger and hot dog supper; Milam, 6 to 9 p.m., burrito dinner (5 p.m.); Rusk, 5 to 8:30 p.m., costume judging and hot dogs, and South, 5:30 to 8:30 p.m., taco supper.

Alpine researchers charting vast desert

ALPINE—One of the nicest parts of the Terlingua madness for me has been the proximity of the chihuideo to this high-desert mountain town, so I've had an excuse to detour through Alpine and check up on some of the finest people in Oestexas at work on one of the most fascinating—and potentially important—projects I know.

They're Dr. Dwight Deal and Dr. Grainger Hunt and their associates at the shoestring laboratory known as the "Chihuahuan Desert Research Institute" housed in an outgrown elementary school complex made available by an enlightened school board for something like $5 a year. And the commitment of the CDRI is no less than to chart and master (intellectually) one of the biggest and least studied deserts in the world, the Chihuahuan Desert that ranges from deep in Mexico northward into New Mexico with its unique forms of flora and fauna, its August mountain system among the most rugged in the Southwest, and mineral treasures whose exploitation alone will justify any expenses for study. (A project that should be of great interest to Oestexas ranchers is the current study of means of controlling a voracious weed called "African rue" that could threaten countless livestock herds, as well as mesquite, salt cedar, senecio, creosote bush, and broomweed.) But I like the CDRI best because it is a living example of good people doing something useful that they love, and doing it against all odds and with the help only of a few far-seeing individuals and groups who share the vision of "the dirt doctor" (Deal, a geologist) and his friends.

As many as two dozen students from across the nation worked out of the CDRI last summer, camping in rustic dormitory facilities and eating from a pleasant but less than elegant dining hall when they weren't in the field stalking peregrine falcons, "cave pearls" and rare species of snakes.

They're getting together the first exhibits (such as a dozen rare snakes) they hope to expand into a living "desert experience" (not a "zoo,"

Economic index down once more

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government index designed to predict future economic growth declined for the second month in a row in September, the Commerce Department said today, bringing more bad pre-election news for the Ford administration.

The decline in the index of leading economic indicators was seventeenth-tenths of a percent in September, the same as in August. It indicates that the economic slowdown may continue.

Economists say they are not certain that the index points to an economic decline until it has gone down for three months in a row.

But the latest report seems certain to raise new questions about the strength of the economic recovery, since other recent statistics on economic growth and unemployment have also been disappointing.

However, one Commerce Department analyst said it wasn't clear from the index whether the decline reflected the slowdown in economic growth that has already occurred, or whether it pointed to a further slowdown in the months ahead.

State to receive political visitors

HOUSTON (AP) — Politicians will be swarming across Texas this weekend, attending football games, Halloween parties, visiting the Alamo, and other things near and dear to the heart of Texans in an effort to win this pivotal state in the Nov. 2 presidential election.

Most of the Jimmy Carter family will be at one place or another in the sprawling expanses of Texas, from the arid lands of the west to the rich vegetable and fruit growing acres of the south.

President Ford will center on the state's largest city — Houston — and attend a high school football game — a Friday night tradition for most Texas folks — at the nearby city of Baytown.

Not to be outdone, Rosalyn Carter, wife of the Democratic presidential nominee, will attend the Grambling and Texas Southern University football game at the Houston Astrodome, make a few brief remarks and flip the coin for the kickoff. Grambling and TSU are two predominately black schools with outstanding football reputations.

While Ford is centering his appeal to the Houston sections, where one-sixth of the state's voters live, Carter will be touching base in McAllen, a couple of miles from the Mexican border, and in San Antonio. Both of these cities have a strong Mexican-American vote.

Political observers say the election in Texas, with its 28 electoral votes, is too close to call. How Texas goes, so may go the election.

Not only is Carter and his wife barnstorming the state this weekend, but so are his son Chip and son Jeff and daughter-in-law Caron.

Mrs. Carter and little Amy, 8, will be in Houston for an airport news conference and then attend a Halloween party at Poe Elementary School, located in a middle-class neighborhood.

Caron Carter is going to appear in El Paso and at Midland-Odessa, while Chip hits Fort Worth and Austin and Jeff in Wichita Falls, San Angelo and Waco.

Sheriff candidates tell plans, aims, priorities

Ed Darnell

Dallas Smith

Midland County sheriff's election race is shaping up for Tuesday's election, with former highway patrolman Dallas Smith challenging incumbent Ed Darnell.

Darnell and Smith both agree that the department needs to keep abreast of latest crime fighting techniques. Smith is challenging what he terms the department's large personnel turnover, and, although he said early in the race he would not do so, seems to be making Darnell's age an issue in the race. Smith is 34 and Darnell is 71 years old.

The Reporter-Telegram asked each candidate what he believed were the major issues of the race. The questions and answers to the questionnaire follow:

DALLAS SMITH
Please provide a thorough biographical statement:

Graduate of Texas Department of Public Safety Law Enforcement Academy. Seven years experience as a DPS law enforcement officer in Midland County. During these years with DPS, had opportunity to encounter every kind of criminal problem — burglary, rape, narcotics, stolen vehicles, homicide.

While in U.S. Army Reserve, responsible for organizing and training personnel in riot control, use of weapons, care of equipment.

In past year have completed college courses in Texas law, evidence and criminal investigation.

Describe the duties of the office which you seek, and assign priorities as you view them:

The sheriff of Midland County is responsible for keeping us safe in our persons and property, to protect the innocent, to identify and apprehend the real wrong-doer.

The sheriff must recruit, train and supervise. He must be familiar with and utilize all of the modern scientific investigation techniques. The sheriff should cooperate with other law enforcement agencies. He is responsible for the security of the jail, serving warrants for the courts, providing bailiffs for the courts, and serving civil papers.

Priority is proper recruitment, proper training and improved internal organization in sheriff's office.

What are the most important challenges in that office during the next term:

The important challenges are to modernize investigation and identification techniques, create a narcotics division to handle our growing problem in hard drugs, create a juvenile division to work with young people, and to organize a good patrol function for rural Midland County.

Also we must institute an ongoing training program to make the Midland sheriff's force a professional crime-fighting contingent.

What policy or operations changes do you propose (or plan to continue) if you are elected:

All policies are going to be directed toward providing service to the citizens of Midland County. When a citizen calls for help, he is going to receive help.

Policies are going to include required training programs and increased visibility of our law enforcement (marked cars) for deterrent purpose.

EDDARNELL
Please provide a thorough biographical statement:

Midland resident since 1919; married; two daughters. I have been sheriff of Midland County since 1941, during the years of our greatest growth. Many honors have come to me and to Midland over the years because of the high quality of our law enforcement, having been named Outstanding Sheriff of Texas by the Texas Law Enforcement Conference in 1958, and again by Men of Achievement in Texas in 1972-73.

I served as president, vice president and board chairman of the Texas Sheriffs' Association, as a member of the board of directors of the White House Youth Conference, and many committees, both state and national, relating to law enforcement.

I have graduated from more than 200 special law enforcement training schools, keeping fully abreast of modern methods and techniques, and have lectured and taught in many others. Member, executive committee on law enforcement, Midland College.

Describe the duties of the office which you seek, and assign priorities as you view them:

Fighting crime out and keeping organized crime out of this county as your chief law enforcement officer is our first duty — but there are others. My greatest pleasure has come from working with young people and having a part in turning many of their lives into lives of useful, productive citizenship.

Aside from those duties, your sheriff is primarily an administrator, supervising the work of 29 deputies and other jail and clerical personnel.

Your sheriff must not only arrest criminals, investigate crimes and keep accurate and thorough records; we also serve thousands of citations in civil cases in our courts each year; we furnish bailiffs to keep order at every session of our five courts; we serve subpoenas and bring witnesses into court;

We enforce judgments and conduct sheriff's sales; we patrol the county; check all voting machines; transport mentally ill persons to hospitals and institutions; testify in court; maintain the county jail and prepare and feed meals to an average of 80 prisoners each day, both federal and state;

We keep communications open to all other law enforcement agencies 24 hours a day and work with them; return prisoners from other states to be prosecuted here; transport convicted felons to prisons; we develop and implement emergency plans and procedures for handling riots, civil disorders and disasters — all these and many other duties, which call for a high degree of administrative expertise, personal leadership and executive experience.

What are the most important challenges in that office during the next term:

Law enforcement in general is under attack all over our country, and those who have no respect for the lives, property and freedom of others are taking full advantage of it. We must maintain our solid front against the efforts of organized crime to come into Midland.

We have always kept them out, and we shall continue to do so. Individual crime is rising, but we have been able to recover most stolen oilfield equipment and property, and to make prompt arrests and secure conviction of those who commit these crimes.

We also want to continue to maintain our policy of helpful, courteous, effective service to every citizen with the least possible burden on our taxpayers, and to utilize all of our experience to see that this is done. We shall, as always, treat every person fairly and decently, no matter where they work, or where they live, or the color of their skins. We must maintain the respect and the trust of all our people, in these explosive times.

What policy or operations changes do you propose (or plan to continue) if you are elected:

Our never-changing goal is to do a better job of law enforcement every day than we were able to do the day before, which means that we are constantly improving the quality of our service to the people who need us.

We shall continue to expand our working agreement with Midland College, where our deputies are required to complete courses in law enforcement, and where we participate in the college's intern program for training new officers.

We are upgrading our department and our services every day, because we must keep abreast of every development and every trend in law enforcement, if we are to do our jobs.

Arizona border towns feel peso problem

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The disease which has ravaged Mexico's economy is infecting Arizona's border towns.

The struggling peso plunged in value Wednesday for the second time in two months, and hovers at less than half of its August value.

A peso was worth about 3 cents Wednesday. For 22 years, it had been worth 8 cents.

"This means disaster for Nogales (Ariz.) businesses," said Charles Fowler, executive director of the Nogales Chamber of Commerce.

"Of course the people who are going to suffer the most are the Mexican people who are paid in pesos and buy their products here."

Mexicans had to shell out more than twice as many pesos Wednesday for each dollar's worth of product as they did before August 31, when the peso floated from 8 cents to 5. The situation makes shopping north of the border impossible on most Mexican pocket-books.

In Nogales, where a majority of businesses are supported by Mexican customers, stores have reported drops in sales from 70 to 90 per cent.

But Fowler said nobody is ready to close.

"The main effect will be additional layoffs in employees," he said. "The peso is still floating and we really don't know yet what's going to happen."

"It's up to the Mexican government now," said a Phoenix banker. He also pointed out that capital has been flowing out of Mexico for years and the August devaluation, possibly designed to stem that flow of foreign investment, apparently was unsuccessful.

Merchants in Tucson and Douglas said the timing could not have been worse for the peso's drop, because ordinarily a early Christmas shoppers would be crowding the stores.

Illegal gun shipments to Africa being probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is investigating allegedly illegal shipments of handguns and rifles from two major U.S. arms manufacturers to sporting goods dealers in South Africa.

Chief Assistant U.S. Atty. H. James Pickerstein in New Haven, Conn., confirmed the investigation of Colt Industries Inc. of Hartford and Olin Corp., the parent firm of Winchester-Western International, of Stamford, Conn.

Pickerstein declined to furnish any details of the grand jury investigation.

Both companies said employees have been fired because of the sales and that the transactions had been reported to the government. The firms deny that senior executives knew of the shipments in advance.

The Olin firm said the sales to South Africa averaged more than $300,000 a year from 1972 through 1975.

A spokesman for the State Department's Office of Munitions Control said the agency started the investigation last year when it noticed unusually large shipments of sporting guns to the Canary Islands. Those islands off the northwest coast of Africa were one of the intermediary points for shipment to South Africa.

"We got suspicious, because there were too damned many elephant guns going to the Canary Islands," said one State Department source. "Being alert gentlemen, we realized that you don't shoot canaries with elephant guns."

The munitions office said it alerted U.S. customs officials about the suspicious shipments, and that the information was passed on to the Justice Department.

STORRS, Conn. (AP) recommends that children who show delinquent tendencies be directed to individual sports such as weightlifting, backpacking and bicycling.

DEAR ABBY

Thinks most men do, too

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I disagree with your answer to the 47-year-old woman, signed PUSHOVER, who described her date as the kind of man she'd like to marry, even though she went to bed with him on their first date. She regretted having yielded so easily, thinking that now she may not be "marriage material."

You said a man may want a pushover for a date, but not a wife. That's upholding a double standard!

I would hope that the man would appreciate her as a sensitive, affectionate woman ready to act on her own basic needs. I would hope, also, that she would have a little more pride than she seems to in her honest desire for fulfillment and closeness. If she did, she might be asking herself whether a man who did not appreciate this in her would be the kind of man SHE wants to marry.

If I were testing for marriage material, I'd score affection, honesty and openness a lot higher than game-playing and holding out.—ALSO 47

DEAR 47: What I call caution, modesty and restraint on a first date you see as "game-playing and holding out." I prefer the former, and I think most men do, too.

DEAR ABBY: There is a simple, foolproof way to pay your restaurant check when you are consistently ignored by the management and waiter after you are long finished with eating and would like to leave. I first used this method at the Ft. Riley Officers' Club, but it works in almost any kind of establishment from Howard Johnson's to the Waldorf. You simply draw a reasonable facsimile of your check on the tablecloth or placemat. If you know what you owe, fill it in. If you don't, write in what you were served, sign your name, print your name and address and note how long you waited.

If the management has the guts to send you a bill instead of an apology, you can then pay it.—W.T. RABE

(P.S. The cavalry officer running the Ft. Riley Club requested that I pay $2 for the tablecloth, which I did. I then insisted that I owned the tablecloth and asked him to cut out the check, which I framed. He finally thought it was funny, too, and pinned the tablecloth with the hole in it to the wall of his pantry for his help to see.)

Millions in political gifts now poured into congressional races

By DON McLEOD

WASHINGTON (AP)—Big political money, driven from the presidential election by post-Watergate reforms, is rushing in unprecedented volume into congressional races with the potential for greater impact than ever.

The Federal Election Commission says there are at least 125 political committees which have given as much as $50,000 each. With the figures for some committees in the $1 million range, the over-all total and its clout is massive.

Common Cause, the self-styled citizens' lobby, computed that as of Sept. 1 special interest groups from big labor to big business had reported contributions totaling more than $10 million.

That is twice the amount given by special interest groups to congressional candidates during the same campaign period two years ago. Dairy farmers, who had difficulty placing their money in 1974 in the wake of the milk fund scandal, have tripled their donations so far this year.

Figures coming in from October filings indicate that the final tally for the 1978 campaigns may run 50 percent or more above the September level.

FEC reports show that the American Medical Association, for example, had given $904,940 to Senate and House candidates as of Oct. 1, $350,000 of it in the 30 days since the September report.

"The record certainly appears to show that not only is special interest money coming in record amounts but that it is focused on legislative and political goals," said Fred Wertheimer, vice president of Common Cause.

"It's never been an accident that special interest groups focus on congressional committees that have life or death power over their issues," Wertheimer said. "What's happening is that with the role of special interest money eliminated from the presidential system, everyone is flocking to Congress."

The biggest spender by far is the AMA and its related state societies. Gifts from AMA-related committees totaled $963,725 by Sept. 1.

The AMA had another $1 million in its war chests, some of which is being reflected in reports coming in now.

Common Cause has filed a formal complaint with the FEC charging that the AMA's system of giving up to the maximum $5,000 from both national and state units circumvents the legal limit. AMA claims its state units are autonomous and can make their own contributions.

The California Medical Political Action Committee alone has given out $50,750 to Senate and House candidates, some of it overlapping gifts from the national fund.

AMA groups gave a total of $21,815 to 16 of the 37 members of the House Ways and Means Committee as of Sept. 1. And among members of the Senate Finance Committee, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., also briefly a presidential candidate, got $20,000 and Sen. Harry Byrd, Ind. Va., $6,000.

Those are the committees that deal with health insurance legislation.

The next largest bloc of congressional contributions comes from the dairy industry, which benefits from numerous federal laws and regulations, including milk price supports which have been raised three times in the last two years.

The industry's primary contributions go through political committees representing the three largest milk cooperatives. They had given $682,184 by Sept. 1.

Dairy gifts of more than $131,000 have gone to at least 21 of the 43 members of the House Agriculture Committee. The biggest beneficiary was Rep. John W. Jenrette, D-S.C., who received $27,000.

Other Democrats on the committee getting large dairy gifts included Reps. John Melcher of Montana, $15,000; Richard Nolan of Minnesota, $14,725; Charles Rose of North Carolina, $9,000; Joseph Vigorito of Pennsylvania, $9,000; Glenn English of Oklahoma, $8,000; and Tom Harkin of Iowa, $7,000.

The leading Republican on the dairy gift list was Rep. Richard Kelly of Florida, who got $6,000. Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., a member of the Senate Agriculture Committee running for re-election this year, has been given $12,000.

Common Cause figures show agriculture, professional and business groups giving $4.9 million to Senate and House candidates, compared with $2.1 million at the same stage of the 1974 campaign.

Bentsen leads the list of individual recipients with $100,450, including some funds he received while seeking his party's presidential nomination. Other top recipients were Sens. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., $85,150, and Robert Taft, R-Ohio, $74,115.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., was the largest recipient from all labor sources as of Sept. 1. He had been given $96,850 and Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., with $90,493.

Common Cause estimates that all labor contributions to congressional candidates as of Sept. 1 had totaled $4.1 million, compared with $2.8 million for the same period in 1974.

Political committees of the AFL-CIO had given $630,974 by Sept. 1, more than $600,000 of it going to Democrats. The new October figures show the national Committee on Political Education giving $727,689.

Real estate interests had contributed $25,000 to 17 Democrats and eight Republicans on the 44-member House Banking, Currency and Housing Committee.

The political arm of the National Association of Realtors had given $314,373 in all to Senate and House candidates, the bulk of it to Republican incumbents. The Truck Operators Non-Partisan Committee, had given to ten of the 23 members of the transportation subcommittee of the House Public Works and Transportation Committee.

The new October figures show the political action committee of the National Education Association has given $399,437, most of it to Democrats. The NEA gave a higher proportion of its money to challengers than did most other groups.

Common Cause pushed the new system of financing presidential campaigns with federal funds to reduce the clout of special-interest contributions and has been critical of Congress for leaving its own gifts free of legal barriers.

Electronic checking defended by bankers

WASHINGTON (AP)—The banking industry disagrees with consumer groups that contend individual privacy is threatened by futuristic bill-payments systems that could replace cash and checks.

A representative of the American Bankers Association, Kenneth V. Larkin, predicted Wednesday that these electronic systems will provide more protection of privacy than the cash-and-check system now being used.

Under the electronic systems, customers will present a plastic "debit card" when making a purchase. A device linked by telephone line to a computer will instantly remove the amount of the purchase from the consumers' bank account and deposit the funds into the store's account.

Consumer representatives have called for strict safeguards on the electronic devices at hearings this week of a government study commission looking into the technology that some predict will produce a "cashless society."

The consumer witnesses have said the ability of computers to store massive amounts of financial information about people and make it readily available presents an unprecedented threat to personal privacy.

Tavern-on-the-Green more than place to eat

NEW YORK (AP)—To Warner LeRoy, a restaurant is not just a place to eat. It's a grand production on the glittery scale of Cecil B. DeMille.

"I view a restaurant as a form of entertainment. It's a spectacle," says LeRoy, the 41-year-old pudgy creator of Maxwell's Plum and Tavern-on-the-Green. "I try to create a total environment. I think I'm setting up atmospheres for people to communicate with each other and nature—places where people can indulge their sensual feelings."

Indulge indeed. At Maxwell's, diners in the back room sit beneath a brilliantly colored Tiffany glass ceiling, illuminated by more than 1,200 60-watt bulbs. In the cafe section, an ornately designed copper ceiling casts reddish hues on the surrounding antique wood paneling.

"Old World" lanterns, some with the famed Tiffany shade, dangle from the copper casing. Near the brass railed bar, an army of art nouveau statuettes abound. There's an endless array of stained and painted glass, antique mirrors and pictures.

Maxwell's is either a romp through a country squire's manse or a mad tumble through the Alice in Wonderland looking glass. It depends on your tastes.

Tavern-on-the-Green is a giant birthday cake, just waiting for patrons to sample the frosting. Soft pastel colors cover the walls of the Tavern's main dining room.

A collection of $1,500 Baccarat chandeliers hang from the ornate, icing-like ceiling. On one side of the Crystal Room is a rustic wood-paneled ara, complete with bubbled mirrors and two lifesized white stags.

"I create my fantasy world," confessed LeRoy. "After all, I grew up in fantasy."

Warner is the son of Hollywood movie mogul Mervyn LeRoy and got his penchant for spectacle at an early age.

Before his splashy entrance into the restaurant business with the Hardwicke Co. as partners, LeRoy produced off-Broadway theater productions.

"When I was very young, I was more interested in intellectual content," he said. "But I became increasingly more interested in spectacle—in the sensual and creative aspects of theater."

Little by little, LeRoy's artistic drives led him to sculpture and crafts. He said he wanted to create with his hands. He wanted to build.

This was about 12 years ago, a time when New York had a dearth of sidewalk cafes.

"New York has the greatest streets," said LeRoy. "So I decided to build a sidewalk cafe."

The birth of Maxwell's Plum.

Next on LeRoy's creative fantasy trip was the jungle amusement park in New Jersey, Great Adventure, also done with Hardwicke.

Caucus leader urges black vote for GOP

By ELAINE SMYTH
Copley News Service

The president of the National Women's Political Caucus says she hopes this November's election "will show a strong black vote for President Ford."

Audrey Colom, a black elected in June 1975, to a two-year term as president of the 35,000-member caucus, said she felt the traditional black support given the Democratic Party was "a great mistake."

"One of the reasons I'm serving on President Ford's national steering committee is to insure that the campaign activity goes after the black vote and we don't just write it off," she said, "and to also insure that the input from women is taken into consideration in planning the campaign strategies."

Director of women's activities for the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, she describes her company, based in Washington, D.C., as "a quasi-governmental agency established to develop public broadcasting."

Colom, who helped in the late Robert Kennedy's Senate campaign and has worked in the civil rights movement, became a Republican in 1968.

Why is she more comfortable with the Republican philosophy?

"Because my basic philosophy is much more in tune with the Republicans in having government much closer to the people with minimal involvement from the federal government," she said.

In commenting on the defeat in September of Congresswoman Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y., by Democrat Daniel P. Moynihan, Colom said, "I think if Bella had had a little more time and a little more money, she would have been able to close that 1 per cent gap."

Colom believes the ERA will pass — so far 32 states have endorsed it with four more needed.

"I think we're going to make it and I think it's going to be in the 11th hour," she said.

Efforts by some states to rescind their earlier ratification of the ERA, said Colom, will require a decision by the Supreme Court.

Colom said President Ford is "extremely supportive on the ERA, to the extent he has requested that the Justice Department look at all federal laws for their impact on women and to make specific recommendations to him on what needs to be done to equalize these laws."

And, she notes that while Jimmy Carter is in favor of the ERA, "he hasn't been able to get it ratified in his own home state."

Colom brushed aside the fact Carter is no longer governor of Georgia — "he still has all the ties."

She also said the caucus is in favor of the Supreme Court decision on abortion "and will work against any attempts to have a constitutional amendment which would nullify the Supreme Court decision."

Colom said that although the Republican Party platform is opposed to the Supreme Court decision that gives women greater freedom in deciding on abortions, "President Ford says he is in favor of the states making the decision, which is consistent with Republican philosophy."

"Unfortunately, this is one of those issues where it is important to have federal leadership."

"There are times when you need to have federal leadership protecting the rights of individuals."

She said President Ford is doing what is consistent with his own philosophy, but would be opposed to a constitutional amendment to prohibit abortion.

Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter, she added, supports the Democratic Party's platform, which supports the Supreme Court decision.

Colom said that although she knows First Lady Betty Ford, they're not personal friends. "But I have a great deal of respect and admiration for her."

Have Mr. Ford's campaign leaders put a muzzle on the First Lady until after the election?

Colom said no, she feels it's more a case of the physical difficulty for Betty Ford in campaigning as actively as she might wish.

"She's been going out quite a lot," Colom said.

"But it's just as it was with the Republican convention when they had to cancel a number of activities because she hadn't been feeling well."

Refillables save money for buyer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A soft drink in a refillable bottle costs an average of five cents less than in a throwaway bottle or can. Beer in returnable containers costs $2 a case less than a case of throwaways.

Those are the key findings of a 28-city survey conducted by the League of Women Voters and announced today by the Environmental Protection Agency.

The study provides further ammunition for groups seeking to ban throwaway bottles and cans to save energy and protect the environment. In some states and localities, voters will be asked to decide whether to adopt laws or constitutional amendments designed to discourage throwaway containers either through outright bans or economic incentives. The issue is expected to be hotly contested in Congress next year.

The League of Women Voters found that a six-pack of soft drinks in 7-to 16-ounce refillable bottles costs about 30 cents less than the same size of throwaway containers. The biggest saving potential is for users of 22-ounce soft drinks: refillables cost an average of 16.8 cents less than throwaways.

Of 37 direct comparisons, all but one found refillable bottles were cheaper. The 37th, at a market in San Francisco, had a 28-ounce refillable bottle of ginger ale at the same price as a disposable.

The biggest price spread between the two types of containers was found in Roseville, Minn., where a quart of 7-Up in a refillable bottle was 66.7 per cent cheaper than in a throwaway.

Nationwide, the savings per refillable ranged from one to 10 cents per container of up to 16 ounces when purchased in six or eight-packs. The range on quart bottles was from 14 to 18 cents.

The survey showed that a beer drinker could expect to spend from 30 cents to $2 a case less for beer purchased in refillable containers. The saving for premium beer would be slightly less.

Workshop set in November

A workshop designed to train school personnel in techniques for screening school children for possible hearing problems will be conducted Nov. 16, 17 and 18 at the St. Nicholas Episcopal Church.

Texas Department of Health Resources will conduct the three audiometric screening techniques workshops.

A calibration survey will be conducted to determine if audiometers used in the schools meet national standards.

Persons wishing to attend one of these one-day sessions should contact the Texas Department of Health Resources, Division of Maternal and Child Health, Hearing and Vision Screening Program, 1100 West 49th St., Austin, Tex., 78756, no later than Nov. 9.

Area dentists conclude class

Dentists in the Midland area have completed a program in cardiology and dental hygiene. The program was held at the Midland Hotel from Nov. 6 and 20.

The 18 dentists from Odessa, Midland, Big Spring and Lamesa participated in the American Heart Association's course to become the first professional group in the area to be certified by the association in basic life support, said Midland cardiologist Dr. Brian Mohr, one of the instructors.

Other instructors were Marianne Simpson, Bob Hertenstein and Stephanie Fletcher. The dentists took the course as part of the continuing education program of the Permian Basin District Dental Society. Dental assistants and dental hygienists employed by society members will take the training program Nov. 6 and 20.

Piranhas relieve poverty

By LEONARD GREENWOOD
The Los Angeles Times

MARAJÓ ISLAND, Brazil — Father Giovanni Gallo, 50, has used the vicious piranha fish to transform the poverty-stricken towns of Santa Cruz and Jenipapo, on this giant island at the mouth of the Amazon River.

At Jenipapo, a town literally on wooden stilts because rain and floodwaters cover the ground for months each year, the Italian Jesuit priest has built 1,000 feet of wooden walkways, a big new landing stage for the riverboats and the region's first medical post.

In Santa Cruz, he has built the first airstrip, laid out a new cemetery and inspired the people to create a community museum that would be a credit to any small American city.

And he has paid for most of it with piranhas, the savage, flesh-eating fish of the Amazon rivers, while fighting equally vicious rumors that he had committed peccadilloes with the women of Marajo.

When Father Giovanni arrived three years ago he found a region so poor the people were sunk in apathy. An older priest before him had tried several projects but they had all foundered through lack of raw materials.

diluting it, and after a long time the pain eased and my sight came back."

Taking elaborate precautions, he set up a production line of 10 women from the town and gave them goggles to protect their eyes. Soon he had stuffed and mounted 12,000 piranhas and sold them in Europe. The money was pouring in.

"The people here were staggered, and I looked for a way to bring them into the project while it was new," said Father Giovanni. "I began a small museum. Quickly I had people from both towns bringing me animals, birds and snakes to mount."

"I had no experience, but I bought mounted birds and animals and cut them open to see how it had been done. I sent to Europe and the United States for books, and the Goeldi Museum in Belem helped me."

Today the museum has more than 60 birds and 30 snakes, from small poisonous ones to an anaconda 26 feet long. One anaconda arrived in such bad condition it could not be preserved, so he reconstructed the skeleton and mounted that.

The museum has many other rare exhibits, including a calf with two heads; the Jacareacu, a 12-foot alligator which has been hunted almost out of existence in Marajo; a botu, or river dolphin, and a freshwater sea cow or manatee. With a total of 1,500 birds, animals and reptiles, the museum has branched into an excellent collection of the primitive model pottery of the region, including extremely rare pieces from the ancient Indian civilization based at Lake Arari more than 1,000 years ago.

The enthusiasm inspired by Father Giovanni also provoked a jealous reaction from groups that had controlled Jenipapo and Santa Cruz. He received threats of beatings and was warned, during the building of the airstrip and the medical post, that he would never finish them.

When the threats failed, a rumor campaign began. He was accused of having lovers among the village women and charged with having failed to pay a woman employee money he owed her. Impatient with the campaign against him, Father Giovanni turned it into a public challenge. He would not shave, he vowed until he was publicly cleared of the charges.

"The day I was cleared, people would pass me in the street with my face newly shaved and give me the thumbs-up sign," he said.

Businesswomen being catalogued

WASHINGTON (AP) — The names of enterprising women who own their own businesses are being recruited for a pioneer directory.

The National Association of Women Business Owners is compiling the directory with a $20,000 grant from the nation's third-largest insurance company, which was frustrated in finding a list of women-owned firms it could patronize.

The first edition will include women business owners in the Washington-Baltimore metropolitan area as a pilot project for a national directory planned for 1977.

After the directory is completed, neither the government nor private business can claim they don't know where to find women-owned firms, said association Vice President Dona O'Bannon.

"They will have a directory that we hope to keep relatively up to date," she said.

Despite growing pressure on industry and government to do more business with firms owned by women and minorities, no one has put together a comprehensive list of women-owned firms. There are many listing minority-controlled companies.

Manufacturers of cars probably will up production, not prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The price of a typically equipped 1977 U.S.-made automobile is up $333 from the 1976 version, but government officials say they foresee no further increases in this year's models.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability, which monitors inflation for the federal government, said recently that manufacturers are expected to stabilize their income by turning out more cars rather than by raising prices again.

The council, after studying confidential data from the four largest auto manufacturers, reported a 4.1-per-cent hike in the price of 1977 sub-compact, a 6.9-per-cent increase in mid-sized cars and an over-all average boost of 5.9 per cent. In other economic developments: —General Motors reported record-shattering profits in the third quarter, reflecting improvement in the national economy.

—The Labor Department announced that output per hour of work was up at an annual rate of 3.8 per cent last quarter, a leveling off. Hourly compensation of workers, adjusted for inflation, rose 1.2 per cent, the smallest gain in five quarters.

Pennsylvania votes rated toss-up

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The political line on Pennsylvania is crucial, and it's still a toss-up in the narrowing election struggle between President Ford and Democratic challenger Jimmy Carter.

So important is the nation's third largest state, with its bloc of 27 electoral votes, that Carter and Ford scheduled more time in Pennsylvania than anywhere else in the campaign's closing days. Their vice presidential running mates also foraged for Keystone State votes.

"We're neck and neck now," claimed Martin Hamburger, executive director of Ford's drive in a state where Democrats outnumber Republicans by 650,000 out of 5.2 million registered voters. Only New York and California have more voters and more electoral votes.

Latest polls show Carter with a three-point edge, and Ford still gaining from the summer's 12-point bulge.

"It's going to be close," acknowledged Joseph Timilty, Carter's state campaign manager. "There's no question we have more votes than Ford in Pennsylvania. But we're not running against him at the moment, we're running against apathy."

Only five times out of 24 elections in this century has a candidate won the presidency without Pennsylvania's electoral votes. Woodrow Wilson did it in 1912 and 1916, Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932, Harry Truman in 1948 and Richard Nixon in 1968.

"Pennsylvania is of paramount importance," Timilty says. "We can win the White House without Pennsylvania but it would make it awfully, awfully difficult."

Hamburger takes a similar position: "Pennsylvania is absolutely crucial to Ford. We need this state and also New Jersey, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan to beat Carter."

A low turnout, coupled with leakage to independents Eugene McCarthy and Lester Maddox, could wreck Carter's chances.

Buffalo, N.Y., woman life

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — When a young mother of three called police and asked them to rush to "319 Victoria," they went to Victoria Ave. By the time they got to Victoria Blvd., she had been knifed to death. Amalia DeLong had neglected to mention that she lived in Kenmore, a suburb. Buffalo police released

Wednesday the transcript of the taped phone conversation.

"Police? Police, please come to 319 Victoria right away!"

"What's wrong?" asked the man at the emergency switchboard.

"There's a burglar...I saw his face in the back. He was trying to break into the house. Please come right away."

"Okay, right away." A squad car was dispatched immediately to 319 Victoria Ave. in Buffalo. Officers reached the street in minutes, but reported the number was nonexistent.

Meanwhile, at 319 Victoria Blvd. in Kenmore, Mrs. DeLong was being attacked. Police said Wednesday that even if Mrs. DeLong, 28, had specified that she lived in the village adjacent to Buffalo, they might not have arrived in time to stop the killer on Monday. But they said they definitely would have had a better chance to catch the killer.

Kenmore police chief Elmer A. Arnet said there have been no significant leads in the slaying.

Ford woos farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's election committee has mailed about one million "Dear Fellow American" letters to farmers in at least 11 states where the farm vote is considered critical to Republican chances next Tuesday.

Committee spokesmen said the letters, bearing Ford's signature, were directed primarily to the "more stable" farm families considered as potential Ford supporters. Copies also were mailed to specific individuals including representatives of farm organizations, agribusiness and other farm-related groups.

In the letter, Ford stressed his usual campaign positions on the economy, inflation and his use of "the application of common sense" in attempting to hold back what he called "the free-wheeling Congress from spending us into national bankruptcy."

Ford also applauded his vice-presidential running mate Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., as a person of "extraordinary energy and common sense."

According to the Ford committee, the mailing effort was directed primarily to farmers in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas and Wisconsin.

The letter did not mention Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter by name.

much has been said about diamonds some fact... some legend.

The history of the diamond is a fascinating tale in which history, romance, and legend are closely interwoven. Great diamonds have served as ransoms and gifts of Kings, have caused disastrous wars, and even caused the overthrow of dynasties.

Prior to the mid 17th century, diamonds were found in quantity only in India. It was there that the Kohinoor Diamond was found. It is the oldest known diamond with a history dating back to the thirteenth century.

Legend says that "he who owned the Kohinoor, ruled the world." The diamond has a history of frequent violent death of its owner, unless the owner was a woman. Today the Kohinoor Diamond safely rests in the crown of the Queen of England.

Marie Antoinette had a passion for diamonds. She amassed a vast diamond collection which included the famous blue diamond known today as the Hope Diamond. Diamonds motivated European Royalty for centuries and even captivated Napoleon Bonaparte who presented Josephine with pins, necklaces, earrings, and a fabulous diamond tiara which remains intact to this day.

However, the world was rapidly changing and royalty's destiny for diamonds was ending. Two events contributed. The first was the emergence of the wealthy industrial and mercantile princes. The second and most important was the discovery of diamonds in South Africa. An entirely new diamond aristocracy was in the making... YOU!

Diamonds are formed within the earth by tremendous heat and pressure. The diamond bearing rock called Kimberlite, or "blue ground" is mined and sent to the surface where it is carefully crushed and washed to eliminate everything but the diamond concentrate. A conservative estimate says that of every 250 tons of ore, miners are lucky if they find a single diamond large enough to cut into a one carat gem. The load, of course, will yield smaller diamonds for industrial use.

When diamonds come from the earth some look like odd shaped pebbles, some resemble pieces of broken glass and some have a dull coating on the outside. To be beautiful they must be properly cut to attain a very high degree of "fire" or brilliance. Over the years, the brilliance of the diamond became symbolic of the fire of love... the flame that burns without consuming... the symbol of betrothal.

Rough diamonds are studied by experts to determine how the stone should be cut. The stone is marked with India ink to indicate where the stone should be cleaved or sawed.

The diamond cutter must study a stone very carefully for inclusions (bubbles, specks, and tint lines) and decide how it can best be cut to yield the largest stone having the fewest inclusions with the least amount of waste. When a rough diamond is finished, an average of 50% of the original weight is lost in cutting.

Because it is less hazardous, more diamonds are sawed than cleaved or split. The saw used is a disk thinner than a sheet of paper, with diamond dust on the edge of the blade (only a diamond will cut a diamond). It takes one full day to saw through a one carat rough diamond that may yield two 1/4 carat finished diamonds.

The next step is to put facets on the diamond to make it brilliant. This is done by placing the diamond against a steel turntable coated with diamond dust, and wearing the diamond down until each facet is exactly the right size, shape, and angle.

Very tiny diamonds called "single cuts" have 17 facets, or polished sides. The larger round diamonds are called "brilliant or full cuts" and have 58 facets. The fancy shaped stones including the marquise, pear, emerald cut, oval, and heart also have 58 facets.

Finished diamonds in all their beauty. They have completed their journey from the depths of the earth and are ready to be set into precious jewelry. From left: brilliant or round cut, pear, heart, emerald cut, oval and marquise.

There are many combinations of things that determine the value of a diamond. The most valuable diamond is one that is completely devoid of color and highly transparent with the possibility of a very slight blue tinge. The only exceptions are stones having a strong tint of blue, pink, green, or violet. Such stones are extremely rare and command a considerably higher price. The Hope Diamond is really blue, the Tiffany Diamond is yellow, and Queen Elizabeth has a pink diamond. Like all things created by nature, every diamond has minute imperfections. However, a diamond can be called flawless or perfect only if a trained diamond expert cannot find an imperfection in the stone when examining it under 10 power magnification.

The larger the stone, the greater its value, but only in comparison with other diamonds of similar quality. Diamonds are weighed by the carat, which is made up of 100 parts called points. It is interesting to note that 142 one carat diamonds weigh only one ordinary ounce.

Ardan knows diamonds, we're experts. We know, too, that you're looking for quality and value. Our diamond collection reflects these in depth... it's almost overwhelming. Whatever style, whatever kind of jewelry you've been dreaming of, we want you to think of it as an investment... in beauty, in sentiment, in love, in honest-to-goodness value... the kind of value Ardan is known for.

Answers To Frequent Diamond Questions

WHAT ARE THE FOUR 'C's'? Color, clarity, cutting and carat weight are guides in determining the value of diamonds.

WHERE ARE DIAMONDS CUT? Prior to World War II, Antwerp, Belgium was considered the diamond center of the world. Today the greatest number of large diamonds are cut in New York City, and Israel is specializing in the cutting of small diamonds.

DO DIAMONDS NEED SPECIAL CARE? Yes. They should be cleaned frequently in a detergent and ammonia bath or a liquid jewelry cleaner. The setting should be checked at least twice a year to be sure the diamonds are secure. (Ardan will be happy to check your diamonds and clean them free of charge.) When storing, wrap each piece separately... diamonds can even scratch each other.

WHO CONTROLS DIAMOND PRICES? The International Diamond Syndicate. This syndicate controls over 90% of the diamonds mined all over the world. They exercise world-wide control of diamond prices, therefore insuring the stability of the diamond market. Your investment in diamonds is well protected.

HOW CAN ARDAN SAVE YOU UP TO 50% ON YOUR DIAMOND SELECTION? Simple. First, we have multi-million dollar buying power and deal directly with one of America's largest diamond cutters. This diamond cutting firm, along with a handful of similar firms, receives a large shipment of uncut diamonds once a month from the International Diamond Syndicate. Second, we manufacture much of our jewelry in our own shop, and can, therefore, offer you a choice of unlimited styling plus savings.

Contrast Ardan's combined jewelry manufacturing and large buying power with the typical retail jeweler who buys diamonds from a ring manufacturer. The ring manufacturer makes a profit on the rings plus a profit on the diamonds they usually purchase from a diamond wholesaler. The diamond wholesaler, who makes a profit, often buys from the Diamond Exchange in New York. And naturally the Diamond Exchange, who buys from the cutters... perhaps Ardan's own diamond cutter... makes a profit. Ardan eliminates all the "middle men" and sells on a small profit margin to offer diamonds to you at the greatest savings.

To Cinderella or youngsters it's pumpkin

NEW YORK (AP) — Peter, Peter, curcubita eater.

Then there's the "Legend of Sleepy Hollow" in which a ghost throws his curcubita head at Ichabod Crane.

Or, how about Cinderella's golden coach fashioned by the good fairy from a curcubita?

Doesn't ring quite true, does it? "Curcubita," however, is the scientific name for "pumpkin." It's not all that scientific, though, since "curcubita" means both "pumpkin" and "squash."

Imagine, the lowly pumpkin, every Halloween witch's favorite vegetable — or is a fruit? — has no scientific name of its own. Botanically speaking, there is no distinction between squashes and pumpkins.

Somebody ought to do something about it, but before they do that, they'd better decide what word "pumpkin" itself means. You see there's no agreement on that, either.

The word "pumpkin" is a culinary term, and botanists don't find it very precise. (What do they know? They're the ones who settled on "curcubita.") The name appears to come from the Greek "pepon" or "large melon" by way of the French which converted it to "popon" and then "pompon" and eventually "pumpion." The ending was converted to "kin" in the American colonies and "pumpkin" became a word. In Shakespeare's "Merry Wives of Windsor," there is a reference to a "gross, watery pumpion." That's sounds mighty like a melon.

But anybody who's ever carved a jack o' lantern knows that a pumpkin is not a melon — or a squash either. And besides when the Greek word "pepon" was doing all that evolving, there weren't any pumpkins in Greece, France or even Shakespeare's England.

The pumpkin, you see, is as American as, er — well, it's as American as apple pie — maybe even American-er.

According to the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association, archeological diggings in North America have uncovered pumpkin remains between 7,000 to 5,500 B.C. But the pumpkin didn't get from the New World to the Old World until the end of the 16th Century. Nobody knows what the Europeans did for jack o' lanterns until then — perhaps they carved up cucumbers.

(They're curcubitas, too.) Dr. Ashby M. Rhodes of the University of Illinois seems to sum up the argument over how to define the word "pumpkin" with uncommon clarity for a botanist: "All edible members of the genus curcubita may be considered squash. However, the round orange fruits used for jack o' lanterns and pies are generally called pumpkins."

We need more men like Dr. Rhodes, men willing to call a pumpkin a pumpkin.

Atlantic City priest, rabbi plug gambling

By JOHN J. GOLDMAN
The Los Angeles Times

ATLANTIC CITY — It is a unique interfaith dialogue. The priest in his clerical collar and the rabbi in a conservative dark suit are seated side by side — selling gambling.

"Casino gaming in Atlantic City involves moral issues," Rabbi Howard Simon says.

"Like people without jobs," interjects Msgr. Glendon Robertson.

The two clergymen explain alternately, staring into a TV camera, that proceeds from roulette wheels, dice and slot machines really will help the poor and hungry, welfare recipients, people in a state of despair. All the good samaritanism is cast in an economic framework helping such unfortunates will reduce the burden on taxpayers throughout New Jersey.

"Many religious leaders believe these are the real moral issues," Robertson says.

"We believe casino gaming in Atlantic City can help solve them," Simon adds.

The television commercial is part of a sophisticated $1 million political campaign designed to bring casino gambling to this seaside resort, which has fallen on hard times. The surf rolls in to few spectators these days; sea gulls wheel and screech above dozens of deserted hotels.

But powerful forces backed by Resorts International, a Miami-based company operating a casino in the Bahamas that is one of the world's largest, are betting on a renaissance and are working hard to see it come true.

The forces are pushing a constitutional amendment on the Nov. 2 ballot that would authorize the New Jersey Legislature to set up and regulate gambling casinos in Atlantic City.

Five offices have been opened throughout New Jersey to promote the measure. A telephone drive is under way to identify the most favorable voters and a computerized effort will help get them to the polls on election day. Realizing after a poll that a large portion of the pro-gambling vote could come out of New Jersey's black communities, advocates joined in a statewide voter registration drive with emphasis on black neighborhoods. More than 57,000 persons were registered.

The stakes are high. This seaside site, situated close to New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore, would be ideal as a new Las Vegas.

"You're sitting three hours away from one-third of the nation's population," said Sanford L. Weiner, executive director of the Committee to Rebuild Atlantic City. "That's one hell of a market."

In its literature, the committee avoids the Las Vegas analogy, preferring to envision Atlantic City as potentially another Monte Carlo. But the potential has not escaped some hotel owners in Las Vegas.

"There has been a lot of Las Vegas interest," said William J. Downey, director of the Atlantic City Housing Authority and Redevelopment Agency. "Three of the major casino operators have been in town, one as recently as last Monday."

Downey would not identify them.

The casino gambling measure has also attracted some important opponents. Two of the most outspoken are Jonathan L. Goldstein, the U.S. attorney for New Jersey, and Col. Clinton L. Pagano, superintendent of the New Jersey state police.

Both Goldstein and Pagano fear that the casinos will attract organized crime.

"We have worked hard in this state over the past six years to create a depression in one industry: organized crime," Goldstein said. "We should not now enact legislation whose only certain result will be to rejuvenate that industry."

Illness dogs cruise ships

By MORRIS D. ROSENBERG
The Washington Post

In the wake of an outbreak of gastrointestinal disease that struck 57 per cent of the passengers aboard a Caribbean cruise ship recently, the National Center for Disease Control (CDC) has intensified its efforts to combat general health problems aboard cruise vessels sailing from Miami and other U.S. ports.

"It's a continuing battle," said Dr. Robert W. Ryder, medical epidemiologist, who listed three steps now being taken or planned:

—A vessel sanitary inspection program, which began 15 months ago.

—Interviews with returning cruise passengers.

—A high-level study to determine the best way to handle potable water on these ships.

According to CDC's "Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report" of Oct. 8, "of the 511 passengers who boarded the M-S Sun Viking in Miami" for its Sept. 11-25 voyage, "285 became ill.... The disease was characterized by diarrhea, nausea and vomiting, cramps, headache and fever. The median duration of illness was two days, with a range of 1-12 days."

It was "the fourth outbreak of gastrointestinal illness aboard the Sun Viking investigated by CDC in the last 28 months," the report continued. "The first outbreak was due to Salmonella enteritidis, which was isolated from patients and the ship's potable water system. The second and third investigations did not clearly implicate a vehicle of transmission. In each outbreak illness began and peaked within two to three days of the ship's departure from Miami...."

In the September case, investigators worked while the Sun Viking was docked at St. Thomas, U.S. Virgin Islands, and when the vessel returned to Miami. "Questionnaires circulated to passengers indicated that the risk of illness was directly associated with the amount of water consumed.... Coliform bacteria in numbers too numerous to count were found in the ship's potable water distribution."

According to the CDC report, though the Sun Viking chlorinates its fresh water when it is taken aboard and stored in tanks, the water is then pumped "through an ultra-violet (UV) light water-disinfection system and stored in three potable water tanks" from where it is then pumped "to various points in the ship. There is no further chlorination after the UV light system. Only one of four water samples taken from points (distant) to the UV light system demonstrated residual chlorine levels."

Investigators found that there were "leaks in the fresh water suction line" and that sewage had "leaked into the bilge." They determined that the "mechanism for contamination of the ship's water system may have been suction of bilge water into the fresh water... pipes." The ship later went into drydock, "and the suction lines were raised above the high-water mark of the bilge. In addition, temporary chlorinators were installed."

CDC complimented the shipping line, Royal Caribbean Cruise Line, Inc., for its "prompt notification... and continuing cooperation in the investigation.... No further cases were reported after the continuous chlorination procedures were instituted."

Thomas A. Fester, general sales manager of Royal Caribbean based at the Miami office, said recently that "we are on top of the situation and we certainly intend to give our fullest cooperation to the CDC as we always have in the past." The line's home office is in Oslo, Norway.

HOMECOMING QUEEN nominee at Baylor University is Marcia Blackwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Blackwell of Midland. Miss Blackwell was nominated by Circle K, a national coed service club.

Weatherman promises as Lee, PHS cross fingers

A relenting weatherman promises clearing skies and warming temperatures as the count down begins for the Midland Lee vs. Odessa Permian shootout at Memorial Stadium tonight.

For the Rebels, who have struggled back from a district-heartbreaking district-opening defeat at the hands of Odessa, it could be the pot at the end of rainbow. For Permian, its just another rung in the relentless climb to another championship.

A crowd of more than 12,000 is expected for the 8 p.m. kickoff and most of the rest of the district will have an ear cocked to the play-by-play of the game, because the Rebels carry the hopes of a lot of other folks into the game as well as their own.

PERMIAN LEADS the race with a 4-0 record, but in close pursuit are Lee, Odessa and Abilene with 3-1 records and still hopeful Midland High at 2-2.

Midland plays Odessa High at 8 p.m. in Odessa's W. T. Barrett Stadium Saturday night and, while the Broncos are favored, this has been a series in which more than one Upset Jack has popped out of the box.

In other 5-4A action tonight, Abilene risks its share of second against San Angelo, smarting from three league defeats. Abilene Cooper, winless in conference, figures to break the ice against Big Spring in the battle for last place.

Midland Schools Athletic Director Sam Cox reported that there were "a couple of 100 tickets left" Thursday afternoon. "But if the weather starts to clear, I'm sure they'll go in a hurry."

"I DON'T know for sure how many seats this stadium seats, but I'm sure the crowd will be right around 12,000."

Field conditions? "With clearing weather, I think we'll be all right," Cox said. "We called the Odessa-Midland JV game Thursday night to keep from tearing up the field and we are having a problem rescheduling it. Most of the officials had planned to go up to the Tech-Texas game Saturday, so we are having a problem there. The Midland Lee-Odessa Permian JV game has been rescheduled for 3:30 p.m. Saturday in Odessa."

Fans attending tonight's game at Memorial Stadium are in for a double-barreled treat. Not only will two of the league's top teams clash on the field, but two of the top bands in the district promise an elaborate and colorful halftime extravaganza.

Tech favored by one

By The Associated Press

The Southwest Conference's list of undefeated and untied teams will drop to two after this weekend and maybe just one if Rice quarterback Tommy Kramer works some magic in Arkansas.

The way Texas Coach Darrell Royal sees it there probably won't be an unblemished record in the league after the final shot is fired Dec. 4.

"I have the same obvious thoughts other people have ... it is going to be hard to go through unscathed," said

Royal. "There are three undefeated teams now, and since we play Tech it is a pretty good bet there will be no more than two after this week."

The sixth-rated Texas Tech Red Raiders were a one-point favorite to drop the 15th ranked Longhorns out of a three-way tie for the SWC leadership. A sellout crowd of 50,000 was expected to jam Jones Stadium in Lubbock for the clash.

"I'M JUST glad I have a ticket," jokes Tech Coach Steve Sloan, who has guided the Red Raiders to their best start in 25 seasons. "They'll be sitting on apple crates, telephones poles and ladders."

Tech comes into the game off a convincing 52-27 rout of Arizona while the "Horns were happy to settle for a 13-12 victory over Southern Methodist.

"They should be favored," said Royal. "They are undefeated and rank pretty high in the top 10."

"I just hope we can tackle Earl Campbell because we haven't tackled him since I've been here," said Sloan.

Garner takes Karate second

Grant Garner, a fourth grader at Sam Houston, took home a second place trophy two weeks ago in the Central North American Karate Championships held in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

The youngster, who was been learning the martial art for the past year and a half at the Eagle Park Karate School, won his award in the fighting classification of the Junior Division (9-10).

McGee captures lead

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Jerry McGee is building a new home in Ohio, which should be ready for occupancy in a couple of weeks.

"It's got a trophy room in it," McGee said, and grinned. "And I've only got one trophy. It sure would be nice to get another one."

He took a step in that direction with a four-under-par 67 that gave McGee a share of the first-round lead Thursday in the $125,000 Pensacola

Open Golf Tournament, the event that last year provided him with the only trophy he now owns.

"After playing out here on the tour as long as I have, I didn't think it would happen, but I was really nervous on the first tee," McGee said. "I've never been a defending champion before."

"There's a lot of pride out here on this tour we play. I really wanted to play well. It was awfully important to me. I didn't putt particularly well, but I played that last nine about as well as I can play.

"And I will play well the rest of the way. If I can get that putter rolling a little, I will be in the hunt."

McGee, who missed only one green and didn't have a five on his card, played his back nine in 32—and had to do it to hold off the afternoon challenges of Tommy Aaron, John Schlee and Bob Murphy, who matched McGee's effort on the 6,549-yard Pensacola Country Club course and took a share of the top spot.

Tom Weiskopf, former champion Lee Elder, Grier Jones, Bob E. Smith and Mark Hayes were just one stroke back at 68.

U.S. Open champion Jerry Pate, playing before his hometown friends and neighbors, could do no better than a 75. "I just didn't have my mind on my game," he said.

Lee Trevino was well back at 73 and Hubert Green shot a 72 in the chilly, cloudy weather.

While McGee, with more than $100,000 in earnings this year, is looking for his second career title, Murphy and Schlee have something else at stake—an exemption for next year.

This is the last individual event of the season and, therefore, the last chance the players have to add to their official money-winnings. The top 60 for the year are exempt for the 1977 season. Those from 61st down are not exempt.

"It's kind of exciting, coming into the last tournament of the year in the No. 60 spot," said Schlee, who occupies that last position that qualifies for an exemption. Murphy is No. 61.

"I think I'm scrambling for it a lot more than John is," Murphy said. "After all, he's $2,500 ahead of me. With him shooting a 67, I guess I've got to forget him and try to get past somebody that's even higher on the list."

BATTLE SCENE

Orange Bowl has an edge

BY TED BATTLES

One thing and another and, quick now, when Pat Zachry pitched the Cincinnati Reds to a win over the New York Yankees in the third game of the World Series, the Waco-born hurler was only the fifth Texan to win a World Series game...bet you can't name two others.

City golf to resume

The Midland women's City Golf Tournament once again was victimized by rain Thursday and will be resumed Tuesday.

Tennessee.

ONLY A few years ago, Battle was regarded as the prime candidate to replace Bear Bryant at Alabama. Now that honor seems destined to fall on the shoulders of Texas Tech Coach Steve Sloan. Personally, we think Steve would be wise to pass up the "Bama job the first time around and let someone else try to follow in the Legend's footsteps.

On the OU-OSU radiocast, Charlie's arrival on the field in the second half was noted with the observation that he wasn't much of a passer, but he was the best one on either team....

Five years ago Colorado College changed to the single wing offense and to date its record is 42-6-2 with the antique formation. And they don't even give athletic scholarships....

It's said the reason for Moses Malone's availability is that he's overweight and last year lacked the competitive drive that made him an American Basketball Association star when he jumped from high school to the pros....

El Paso scribe Mike Sowell reports Texas was able to catch that Oklahoma spy a couple of weeks ago, "because the guy fell asleep watching the Texas offense. The Longhorns were trying to put in a trick play called the forward pass."

STEVE OWENS, once the star running back for Oklahoma and later the Detroit Lions, had a street named for him in his hometown of Miami, Okla., Steve Owens Boulevard. However, he is quite sure it's the honor it's cracked up to be. "I'm just an SOB in Miami," he notes....

The Texas Rangers reportedly have 1974 MVP in the American League Jeff Burroughs on the trading block along with Tom Grieve, Gaylord Perry, Jim Umberger and Len Randle....

Oklahoma State's win over Oklahoma was vindication for Cowboys' quarterback Charlie Weatherbie, who was chopped up in the Oklahoma City papers after OSU's loss to Colorado a week earlier. Weatherbie entered the game with OSU trailing 24-13 and sparked the Cowboys to a 31-24 win over the Sooners.

Anybody figure out which Texans posted World Series victories? George Munger was the last to do it before Zachry, beating Boston for St. Louis in 1946, but Schoolboy Rowe did it in 1935 while James Hippo Vaughn and Wiley Moore were the other Texans to turn the trick.

Running for the Lee Rebels will be Charles Hamilton, George Pickens, Ricky Parsons, Greg Weeks, Steve Hooper, Jim Bicknell, Brian Smith and Alan Jones.

Houston can survive without superstars

HOUSTON (AP) — The chairman of the board of the Houston Aeros says that his World Hockey Association team could not only survive but win without the Howes.

George Bolin made the comment Thursday in response to a Hamilton, Ont., newspaper story that said one or two or possibly all three Howes may be returning to the National Hockey League next season.

as saying. None of the Howes was available for comment, but Bolin issued a statement....

"The Houston Aeros have bargained in good faith throughout," Bolin said. "We will continue to bargain in good faith. This, however, does not mean we are willing to turn over our franchise in order to keep the Howes."

"If it is their wish to go to Boston next season, so be it. We will continue to have major league and winning hockey in the city of Houston." Rich Burk, Aeros' director of media relations, said the team has been negotiating with the Howes on a "sporadic" basis.

"Their contracts don't terminate with us until June so we have eight months to reach an agreement," he said. "We're not pressuring them to get contracts signed. We feel we have the better part of a year to get things settled."

The Hamilton Spectator quoted Colleen Howe as saying her husband Gordie and sons Marty and Mark become free agents at the end of the 1978-79 WHA season.

She said that Gordie planned to move "into general business as well as hockey" and that she has discussed Mark's career with the Toronto Maple Leafs and the Washington Capitals of the NHL.

Mrs. Howe, who acts as business agent for the Howes in their hockey contract negotiations as well as business enterprises, reportedly also talked with Harry Sinden, managing director of the Boston Bruins who hold Mark's NHL rights.

"Marty and Mark, as well as Gordie, are free agents this year and there have been a lot of considerations, including several interesting offers coming into our homes," the newspaper quoted her.

Cavaliers reverse feeling of respect

By The Associated Press

Before meeting the New York Knicks, the Cleveland Cavaliers gave them great respect.

"We figured the Knicks were the best team in the league...we lived in fear of their fast break," said Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch.

After beating the Knicks, the respect was reversed. "They didn't allow us to run as well as we did in the past," said New York Coach Red Holzman after his team lost a 114-90 National Basketball Association decision to the Cavs Thursday night.

"We didn't play well and they did. They are a good ball club." Good preparation was the key to Cleveland's victory.

"We had to stop their fast break," said Fitch, "...and we did. They just got one out of their system. We played well with the lead tonight—unlike our first two games."

The loss was the first after three victories for the Knicks while the unbeaten Cavaliers won their third game.

In other NBA games, the Boston Celtics whipped the Buffalo Braves 112-105, the Denver Nuggets stopped the Milwaukee Bucks 119-100, and the Golden State Warriors trimmed the Portland Trail Blazers 112-92.

Bobby Smith scored 23 points and Campy Russell added 18, leading Cleveland's victory. The Cavaliers went on a 31-11 tear in the second quarter to break open the game.

The Knicks played without guard Walt Frazier, who was out due to a death in his family. Austin Carr came off the bench to score nine points and ignite the Cavaliers' second-quarter burst as the Knicks never got within 14 points after that.

Celtics 112, Braves 105. Charlie Scott scored 31 points, pacing Boston over Buffalo. The unbeaten Celtics, who won their third game, had a 14-point lead by halftime and maintained an 11-point bulge at the close of the third period. The outcome never was in doubt after that.

Nuggets 119, Bucks 100. Dan Issel poured in 26 of his game-high 30 points as Denver, also unbeaten in three games, jumped to a 60-51 first-half lead and cruised past winless Milwaukee. Warriors 112, Trail Blazers 92.

Rick Barry scored 34 points with the help of a newly developed set shot in leading Golden State over Portland. Rookie center Robert Parish and substitute Charles Dudley, along with Barry, keyed the Warriors offense in the third quarter when they went ahead to stay.

Washington expects Staubach to play

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sunday's National Football League game in RFK Stadium between the Washington Redskins and the Dallas Cowboys could become a battle of the injured quarterbacks.

Redskins Coach George Allen seems to be leaning toward starting Bill Kilmer at quarterback. "We'll go along, see how Billy's arm is," Allen said following Thursday's closed practice. "Right now, it's a tough decision either way. I haven't made up my mind."

His option would be to start Joe Theismann, as he has done for several weeks while Kilmer recovered from a deep bruise on his throwing arm.

But Allen is sure of one thing: that Roger Staubach will start at quarterback for Dallas. "I've never seen him look so good," Allen said about the Dallas star. Allen said he was keying his planning on Dallas Coach Tom Landry starting Staubach, despite the quarterback's fractured pinky.

"I don't anticipate any problems," Staubach said before Thursday's practice in Dallas.

Bulldog girls take over first in 5-4A volleyball

The Midland High girls volleyball team polished off San Angelo Central, 15-4 and 15-11, Thursday night in the MHS Gymnasium in a key District 5-4A game.

With the victory, Midland moves into a first place tie in the standings.

Midland's junior varsity also won, 15-4 and 15-2, to complete the sweep for the Bulldogs over the Bobcats.

The Bulldogs play Odessa High in Odessa next Tuesday in their 5-4A outing and then face Abilene Cooper and Midland Lee to wind up the regular season.

Big Spring also won, beating Robert E. Lee to stay even with the Bulldogs in the 5-4A race. The Steers, Bulldogs and Odessa Permian all share first place in the loop standings.

Jo Ann Johnson and Amy Grimes stood out for the Pack in the spiking department while Diane Fisher and Susan Bash were great in the setting department.

JV tilts are reset

The junior varsity football games scheduled in Midland and Odessa between MHS, OHS, Lee and Permian, were called off Thursday night and reset for 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

Midland's Bulpups take on the OHS JV in Memorial Stadium while the Lee Stonewall Brigade tangles with the Permian JVs at the Permian practice field. Permian is 7-0 while Lee is 3-3-1. Midland sports a 4-3-0 record while OHS stands 5-2-0 on the year.

Michigan faces 'Brown Jug' test

By The Associated Press

Top-ranked Michigan takes on a crippled Minnesota Saturday in the 59th renewal of their battle for the Little Brown Jug.

The rivalry, which will be televised on the East and West coasts, started in 1903 when the Wolverines forgot their war jug after a game in Minneapolis. When Michigan Coach Fielding Yost asked that the jug be returned, it was told, in effect, "Come and get it."

The Wolverines have won the Jug 36 times, Minnesota 19 times and twice the game has been tied. Minnesota owns the longest winning streak in the series—nine games from 1934 through 1942—but Michigan, 70, is a heavy favorite to post its eighth straight victory in the series Saturday at Ann Arbor.

"We'll be ready," Minnesota Coach Cal Stoll said. "We're not traveling that far just to show up."

But what kind of a chance does Minnesota with a 5-2 record its best start since 1967, have against the Wolverine?

"This Minnesota team is a squad that must play healthy and with great emotion," Stoll said, noting that 16 of his players are either out with injuries or playing hurt.

Another ABC regional telecast will pit 10th-ranked Missouri at 16th-ranked Oklahoma State.

The Missouri Tigers include fourth-ranked Southern California, eighth-ranked Ohio State and ninth-rated Nebraska among their victims this season. But they also have lost twice. Oklahoma State, upset victors over 13th-ranked Oklahoma last week, has a 4-2 record.

Other regional telecasts will have Wyoming, 6-1, at Colorado State, 4-3; Kentucky, 4-3, at fifth-ranked Maryland, 7-0, and Texas A&M, 5-2, at Southern Methodist, 2-5.

In other games matching ranked teams, 15th-rated Texas travels to sixth-ranked Texas Tech, No. 18 Mississippi State is at No. 17 Alabama, No. 20 Cincinnati is at No. 7 Georgia while No. 13 Oklahoma is at No. 19 Colorado.

Syracuse visits No. 2 Pittsburgh, No. 3 UCLA is at Washington, California is at No. 4 Southern California, Cincinnati goes to No. 7 Georgia, No. 8 Ohio State is at Indiana, No. 9 Nebraska travels to Kansas, Navy plays No. 11 Notre Dame at Cleveland, Auburn is at No. 12 Florida, Rice is at No. 14 Arkansas.

Trinity wins

Trinity closed out their 1976 football campaign on a winning note Wednesday, topping Goddard 7-0. The winning score came on a 60-yard punt return by Joe McSpadden.

Trinity finished with a 4-1 record.

Anderson splits with Ed Garvey

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dick Anderson, president of the National Football League Players Association, has split publicly with executive director Ed Garvey in a personal letter to player representatives of the 26 NFL teams.

"I really believe that we will never be able to achieve an agreement with the owners that would be acceptable to Ed Garvey," Anderson wrote. "He wants too many things from them that they will never give up."

The Associated Press obtained a copy of the letter, which Anderson suggested be made available to all members of the NFLPA if Garvey failed to honor a request and publish its contents in the Checkoff, a NFLPA publication.

It is understood that Anderson's letter, dated Oct. 14, already has been posted in the locker rooms of several NFL clubs.

In challenging Garvey, a move which could lead to a power struggle for control, Anderson acknowledged there was a split in the ranks on how to deal with the owners.

But he refuted accusations that he had sold out the players to the owners while working out an agreement with Dan Rooney, president of the Pittsburgh Steelers and management's representative in the talks.

Anderson said in signing the memorandum of understanding with Rooney, which was not binding on the association, he was merely trying to gain benefits for the players and to help create more jobs.

While conceding he may have been hasty in calling a Board of Representatives meeting on Aug. 31, before certain legalities were settled, Anderson said "squad size was very important at the time."

The tentative agreement called for a player limit of 43 plus a taxi squad of four players. But after that was tabled, the squad limit for the 1976 season was set at a flat 43.

"If the proposal in principle was agreed upon," Anderson said, "then we would have saved 112 jobs for players."

In the letter, Anderson said he favored a common draft of players and was willing to concede the league structure requested by the owners.

William Alverson resigns

MILWAUKEE (AP) — William Alverson, sidestepping the scythe James Fitzgerald is expected to wield in a sweeping Milwaukee Bucks housecleaning, has resigned after nearly five stormy but stabilizing years as club president.

Alverson, first victim of the nearly two-year-old internal power struggle climaxed by Fitzgerald's coup, expressed no bitterness as he announced his long expected action at a news conference Thursday.

"I am extremely grateful for having had the opportunity to control this corporation for nearly five years," he said. "It's not really a sad moment because the way this came about was not unexpected. When I first met you guys (reporters), I was told I would be interim president for two to three weeks or two to three months. That was almost five years ago. It's been quite a ride, and a very pleasant one."

Alverson, 43, said he had made his decision a few weeks ago when Fitzgerald, majority stockholder in the Bucks' parent corporation since January, announced the intention of the group he heads to purchase all outstanding stock shares in the National Basketball Association franchise.

The group announced Wednesday that the offer to purchase had expired last Friday and would not be extended. Fitzgerald's group failed to purchase all outstanding shares, but obtained enough to assure it firm control.

Fitzgerald, a cable television executive, virtually is certain to be elected chairman and chief executive officer of the Bucks at the next corporate meeting, tentatively set for Dec. 1.

Alverson said he had resigned, effective immediately, "since Mr. Fitzgerald and his associates had completed their purchase for control, I felt it only right that they be given complete opportunity for active management and control of the corporation."

The power struggle began early in 1975 when Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the Bucks' superstar center, said he wanted to be traded because he felt culturally deprived in Milwaukee.

Failing to persuade the most dominant big man in the NBA to remain with the Bucks, Alverson and

General Manager Wayne Embry engineered a trade that sent Abdul-Jabbar to the Los Angeles Lakers for Elmore Smith, Brian Winters, Junior Bridgeman and Dave Meyers.

Fitzgerald, then a minority shareholder, vehemently opposed the trade, which prompted him to buy enough additional shares to give him controlling interest.

FACTS OF LIFE YOU SHOULD KNOW

The Midland Reporter-Telegram's editorial staff and my opponent know these facts; but so far they have been adept in not telling you about them.

I have been in the oil patch all my life, taking time out only for school and war. I've held jobs from Roustabout, Roughneck, Map Boy, Pipeline Clerk, Accountant, Landman Scout and District Landman to Exploration Manager. As an independent I've even "drilled 'em myself." There is hardly a fence row in the Permian Basin I haven't driven up and down at least once. There is hardly a County Courthouse in all of West Texas I haven't been in at least once to do business and check records. I've yet to find a Republican in any of them except in Midland-Odessa. "Midland Republican" is an epithet you hear as soon as you get thirty miles away from here in any direction. Runs up the price of leases.

The Democratic Party controls Austin politics and it controls local politics all around Midland as far as you can get until you get to Dallas.

I'm a Democrat and an Oil Man. Now, really, who is better qualified to represent us in our State government? A car wash operator Republican, or an oil man Democrat? Think about it.

As to my opponent's record; he has had 8 years in which he has accomplished absolutely nothing for our district. He never runs on his record. It's always something he's going to do "next time."

The Speaker of the House gave him a committee title. The title gives him local prestige, but accomplishes nothing for you. Actual political fact is that a Republican being chairman of that committee weakens its effectiveness.

Let's talk about WATER for West Texas.

My opponent is going to introduce a bill. That's just the point. He'll INTRODUCE a bill, but based on past experience, it's safe to say it will not pass the Legislature. Witness his record on getting a new District Court Remember U.T.P.B.? On the water issue, do you think for one minute the other West Texas legislators, Democrats, will let the little Republican steal their thunder? Think about it.

What kind of a bill, anyhow? Who is going to write it for him? Which lobby group? You know the professional lobbies have poured thousands of dollars into his campaign fund (Midland Reporter-Telegram, October 9, 1976).

The solution to the dropping water table in West Texas (something we've all known about since my opponent was in grammar school) will require MASSIVE Federal Aid and COMPLETE cooperation of the surrounding states. The problems may even be insurmountable. Be that as it may, no local Republican will ever be able to do one single thing about it. It will take a Democrat, working with our Democratic state government and a Democratic controlled Congress, to get anything done at all. Think about it.

The other matters my opponent talks about, and many he hasn't talked about, such as the new Presidential Primary law, coming up in the next Legislature, can be important to us; but he will be, as before, powerless to do anything about any of them. He talks a good game, but he simply can't play.

When I asked Billy Clayton, Speaker of the House, about committee chairmanship and speaking engagements, he laughed and said, "If a Democrat really wants it, you know who'll get it."

John White, Secretary of Agriculture, when discussing Midland's sending a Republican to Austin, asked me, "Why do they do it? They're just wasting their seat."

Governor Briscoe told me, "Oh, I'd love to see you take that Republican's place."

Joe Christie, the Insurance Commissioner, supports my candidacy because I am a Democrat, but I think he'd rather I didn't show up down at Austin. I'll be able to make REAL waves!

Bob Armstrong, Land Commissioner (How many of you do business with the Land Office?) supports my candidacy wholeheartedly. The following is an authorized, direct quote from Bob Armstrong: "Obviously, I support the whole Democratic ticket, but I am particularly enthusiastic about the candidacy of Bob Corley because he will be able to get things done in the predominantly Democratic atmosphere in Austin. And I look forward to working with him."

Now, really. Think about these things. Forget the theory. Forget the smokescreen. Think. Do what's best for you, your family, and the future of this great area. And vote, not for the prestige of a local political clique, but vote for your own self-interest for a change.

Think about it and then...

Jackson denies dealing

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Slugging outfielder Reggie Jackson says his appearance in San Diego is unrelated to baseball's first re-entry draft, the San Diego Padres or Padres owner Ray Kroc and his millions.

Jackson, of the Baltimore Orioles, was seen in San Diego as the Padres were spreading the word they would be only lukewarm on getting Jackson in the re-entry draft Nov. 4.

The Padres say they have heard that Jackson wants $3 million for a five-year contract.

Jackson was asked about his apparent rejection by the Padres.

"I hope they do well. I'll always eat Big Mac hamburgers. I hope Randy Jones' arm comes back, but I got other things to do," Jackson said Thursday.

Jackson insists he is only staying at the posh Rancho La Costa resort near San Diego for a short for a nationally syndicated television sports show.

But he is known to have had one meeting with the Padres, and Jackson also is aware that Kroc, the McDonald's hamburger magnate, has promised to make his team very competitive in the re-entry sweepstakes.

BATTLE SCENE

BY TED BATTLES

One thing and another and, quick now, when Pat Zachry pitched the Cincinnati Reds to a win over the New York Yankees in the third game of the World Series, the Waco-born hurler was only the fifth Texan to win a World Series game...bet you can't name two others.

The Cotton Bowl folks are up in arms over the Orange Bowl's admission that it wants Pitt as its visiting team, but there isn't much they can do to prevent it.

Pitt Coach Johnny Majors has recruited several Miami boys on his Panther squad and probably would welcome the Florida exposure as an aid to future recruiting endeavors in the event that his alma mater beckons after the departure from Pitt of Tony Dorsett.

Majors reportedly has all but replaced Bill Battle as head coach at Tennessee.

ONLY A few years ago, Battle was regarded as the prime candidate to replace Bear Bryant at Alabama. Now that honor seems destined to fall on the shoulders of Texas Tech Coach Steve Sloan. Personally, we think Steve would be wise to pass up the 'Bama job the first time around and let someone else try to follow in the Legend's footsteps.

On the OU-OSU radiocast, Charlie's arrival on the field in the second half was noted with the observation that he wasn't much of a passer, but he was the best one on either team....

Five years ago Colorado College changed to the single wing offense and to date its record is 42-6-2 with the antique formation. And they don't even give athletic scholarships....

It's said the reason for Moses Malone's availability is that he's overweight and last year lacked the competitive drive that made him an American Basketball Association star when he jumped from high school to the pros....

El Paso scribe Mike Sowell reports Texas was able to catch that Oklahoma spy a couple of weeks ago, "because the guy fell asleep watching the Texas offense. The Longhorns were trying to put in a trick play called the forward pass."

STEVE OWENS, once the star running back for Oklahoma and later the Detroit Lions, had a street named for him in his hometown of Miami, Okla., Steve Owens Boulevard. However, he is quite sure it's the honor it's cracked up to be. "I'm just an SOB in Miami," he notes....

The Texas Rangers reportedly have 1974 MVP in the American League Jeff Burroughs on the trading block along with Tom Grieve, Gaylord Perry, Jim Umberger and Len Randle....

Oklahoma State's win over Oklahoma was vindication for Cowboys' quarterback Charlie Weatherbie, who was chopped up in the Oklahoma City papers after OSU's loss to Colorado a week earlier. Weatherbie entered the game with OSU trailing 24-13 and sparked the Cowboys to a 31-24 win over the Sooners.

Anybody figure out which Texans posted World Series victories? George Munger was the last to do it before Zachry, beating Boston for St. Louis in 1946, but Schoolboy Rowe did it in 1935 while James Hippo Vaughn and Wiley Moore were the other Texans to turn the trick.

Houston can survive without superstars

HOUSTON (AP) — The chairman of the board of the Houston Aeros says that his World Hockey Association team could not only survive but win without the Howes.

George Bolin made the comment Thursday in response to a Hamilton, Ont., newspaper story that said one or two or possibly all three Howes may be returning to the National Hockey League next season.

as saying. None of the Howes was available for comment, but Bolin issued a statement.

"The Houston Aeros have bargained in good faith throughout," Bolin said. "We will continue to bargain in good faith. This, however, does not mean we are willing to turn over our franchise in order to keep the Howes."

"If it is their wish to go to Boston next season, so be it. We will continue to have major league and winning hockey in the city of Houston."

Rich Burk, Aeros' director of media relations, said the team has been negotiating with the Howes on a "sporadic" basis.

"Their contracts don't terminate with us until June so we have eight months to reach an agreement," he said. "We're not pressuring them to get contracts signed. We feel we have the better part of a year to get things settled."

Cavaliers reverse feeling of respect

By The Associated Press

Before meeting the New York Knicks, the Cleveland Cavaliers gave them great respect.

"We figured the Knicks were the best team in the league...we lived in fear of their fast break," said Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch.

After beating the Knicks, the respect was reversed. "They didn't allow us to run as well as we did in the past," said New York Coach Red Holzman after his team lost a 114-90 National Basketball Association decision to the Cavs Thursday night.

"We didn't play well and they did. They are a good ball club." Good preparation was the key to Cleveland's victory. "We had to stop their fast break," said Fitch, "and we did. They just got one out of their system. We played well with the lead tonight—unlike our first two games."

The loss was the first after three victories for the Knicks while the unbeaten Cavaliers won their third game.

In other NBA games, the Boston Celtics whipped the Buffalo Braves 112-105, the Denver Nuggets stopped the Milwaukee Bucks 119-100, and the Golden State Warriors trimmed the Portland Trail Blazers 112-92.

Bobby Smith scored 23 points and Campy Russell added 18, leading Cleveland's victory. The Cavaliers went on a 31-11 tear in the second quarter to break open the game.

The Knicks played without guard Walt Frazier, who was out due to a death in his family. Austin Carr came off the bench to score nine points and ignite the Cavaliers' second-quarter burst as the Knicks never got within 14 points after that.

Celtics 112, Braves 105. Charlie Scott scored 31 points, pacing Boston over Buffalo. The unbeaten Celtics, who won their third game, had a 14-point lead by halftime and maintained an 11-point bulge at the close of the third period. The outcome never was in doubt after that. Nuggets 119, Bucks 100. Dan Issel poured in 26 of his game-high 30 points as Denver, also unbeaten in three games, jumped to a 60-51 first-half lead and cruised past winless Milwaukee. Warriors 112, Trail Blazers 92. Rick Barry scored 34 points with the help of a newly developed set shot in leading Golden State over Portland. Rookie center Robert Parish and substitute Charles Dudley, along with Barry, keyed the Warriors offense in the third quarter when they went ahead to stay.

Washington expects Staubach to play

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sunday's National Football League game in RFK Stadium between the Washington Redskins and the Dallas Cowboys could become a battle of the injured quarterbacks.

Redskins Coach George Allen seems to be leaning toward starting Bill Kilmer at quarterback. "We'll go along, see how Billy's arm is," Allen said following Thursday's closed practice. "Right now, it's a tough decision either way. I haven't made up my mind."

His option would be to start Joe Theismann, as he has done for several weeks while Kilmer recovered from a deep bruise on his throwing arm.

But Allen is sure of one thing: that Roger Staubach will start at quarterback for Dallas.

"I've never seen him look so good," Allen said about the Dallas star. Allen said he was keying his planning on Dallas Coach Tom Landry starting Staubach, despite the quarterback's fractured pinky. "I don't anticipate any problems," Staubach said before Thursday's practice in Dallas.

Bulldog girls take over first in 5-4A volleyball

The Midland High girls volleyball team polished off San Angelo Central, 15-6 and 15-11, Thursday night in the MHS Gymnasium in a key District 5-4A game.

With the victory, Midland moves into a first place tie in the standings.

Midland's junior varsity also won, 15-6 and 15-2, to complete the sweep for the Bulldogs over the Bobcats.

The Bulldogs play Odessa High in Odessa next Tuesday in their 5-4A outing and then face Abilene Cooper and Midland Lee to wind up the regular season.

Big Spring also won, beating Robert E. Lee to stay even with the Bulldogs in the 5-4A race. The Steers, Bulldogs and Odessa Permian all share first place in the loop standings.

Jo Ann Johnson and Amy Grimes stood out for the Pack in the spiking department while Diane Fisher and Susan Bash were great in the setting department.

JV tilts are reset

The junior varsity football games scheduled in Midland and Odessa between MHS, OHS, Lee and Permian, were called off Thursday night and reset for 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

Midland's Bullpups take on the OHS JV in Memorial Stadium while the Lee Stonewall Brigades tangle with the Permian JVs at the Permian practice field. Permian is 7-0 while Lee is 3-3-1. Midland sports a 4-3-0 record while OHS stands 5-2-0 on the year.

Michigan faces 'Brown Jug' test

By The Associated Press

Top-ranked Michigan takes on a crippled Minnesota Saturday in the 59th renewal of their battle for the Little Brown Jug.

The rivalry, which will be televised on the East and West coasts, started in 1903, when the Wolverines forgot their war jug after a game in Minneapolis. When Michigan Coach Fielding Yost asked that the jug be returned, he was told, in effect, "Come and get it."

The Wolverines have won the Jug 36 times, Minnesota 19 times and twice the game has been tied. Minnesota owns the longest winning streak in the series—nine games from 1934 through 1942—but Michigan, 70, is a heavy favorite to post its eighth straight victory in the series Saturday at Ann Arbor.

"We'll be ready," Minnesota Coach Cal Stoll said. "We're not traveling that far just to show up."

But what kind of a chance does Minnesota with a 5-2 record its best start since 1967, have against the Wolverines?

"This Minnesota team is a squad that must play healthy and with great emotion," Stoll said, noting that 16 of his players are either out with injuries or playing hurt.

Another ABC regional telecast will pit 10th-ranked Missouri at 16th-ranked Oklahoma State.

The Missouri Tigers include fourth-ranked Southern California, eighth-ranked Ohio State and ninth-rated Nebraska among their victims this season. But they also have lost twice.

Oklahoma State, upset victors over 13th-ranked Oklahoma last week, has a 4-2 record.

Other regional telecasts will have Wyoming, 6-1, at Colorado State, 4-3; Kentucky, 4-3, at fifth-ranked Maryland, 7-0, and Texas A&M, 5-2, at Southern Methodist, 2-5.

In other games matching ranked teams, 15th-rated Texas travels to sixth-ranked Texas Tech, No. 18 Mississippi State is at No. 17 Alabama, No. 20 Cincinnati is at No. 7 Georgia while No. 13 Oklahoma is at No. 19 Colorado.

Syracuse visits No. 2 Pittsburgh, No. 3 UCLA is at Washington, California is at No. 4 Southern California, Cincinnati goes to No. 7 Georgia, No. 9 Ohio State is at Indiana, No. 8 Nebraska travels to Kansas, Navy plays No. 11 Notre Dame at Cleveland, Auburn is at No. 12 Florida, Rice is at No. 14 Arkansas.

Trinity wins

Trinity closed out their 1976 football campaign on a winning note Wednesday, topping Goddard 7-0. The winning score came on a 60-yard punt return by Joe McSpadden.

Trinity finished with a 4-1 record.

Anderson splits with Ed Garvey

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dick Anderson, president of the National Football League Players Association, has split publicly with executive director Ed Garvey in a personal letter to player representatives of the 28 NFL teams.

"I really believe that we will never be able to achieve an agreement with the owners that would be acceptable to Ed Garvey," Anderson wrote. "He wants too many things from them that they will never give up."

The Associated Press obtained a copy of the letter, which Anderson suggested be made available to all members of the NFLPA if Garvey failed to honor a request and publish its contents in the Checkoff, a NFLPA publication.

It is understood that Anderson's letter, dated Oct. 14, already has been posted in the locker rooms of several NFL clubs.

In challenging Garvey, a move which could lead to a power struggle for control, Anderson acknowledged there was a split in the ranks on how to deal with the owners.

But he refuted accusations that he had sold out the players to the owners while working out an agreement with Dan Rooney, president of the Pittsburgh Steelers and management's representative in the talks.

Anderson said in signing the memorandum of understanding with Rooney, which was not binding on the association, he was merely trying to gain benefits for the players and to help create more jobs.

While conceding he may have been hasty in calling a Board of Representatives meeting on Aug. 31, before certain legalities were settled, Anderson said "squad size was very important at the time."

The tentative agreement called for a player limit of 43 plus a taxi squad of four players. But after that was tabled, the squad limit for the 1976 season was set at a flat 43.

"If the proposal in principle was agreed upon," Anderson said, "then we would have saved 112 jobs for players."

In the letter, Anderson said he favored a common draft of players and was willing to concede the league structure requested by the owners.

William Alverson resigns

MILWAUKEE (AP) — William Alverson, sidestepping the scythe James Fitzgerald is expected to wield in a sweeping Milwaukee Bucks housecleaning, has resigned after nearly five stormy but stabilizing years as club president.

Alverson, first victim of the nearly two-year-old internal power struggle climaxed by Fitzgerald's coup, expressed no bitterness as he announced his long expected action at a news conference Thursday.

"I am extremely grateful for having had the opportunity to control this corporation for nearly five years," he said. "It's not really a sad moment because the way this came about was not unexpected. When I first met you guys (reporters), I was told I would be interim president for two to three weeks or two to three months. That was almost five years ago. It's been quite a ride, and a very pleasant one."

Alverson, 43, said he had made his decision a few weeks ago when Fitzgerald, majority stockholder in the Bucks' parent corporation since January, announced the intention of the group he heads to purchase all outstanding stock shares in the National Basketball Association franchise.

The group announced Wednesday that the offer to purchase had expired last Friday and would not be extended. Fitzgerald's group failed to purchase all outstanding shares, but obtained enough to assure it firm control.

Fitzgerald, a cable television executive, virtually is certain to be elected chairman and chief executive officer of the Bucks at the next corporate meeting, tentatively set for Dec. 1.

Alverson said he had resigned, effective immediately, "since Mr. Fitzgerald and his associates had completed their purchase for control. I felt it only right that they be given complete opportunity for active management and control of the corporation."

The power struggle began early in 1975 when Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the Bucks' superstar center, said he wanted to be traded because he felt culturally deprived in Milwaukee.

Failing to persuade the most dominant big man in the NBA to remain with the Bucks, Alverson and

General Manager Wayne Embry engineered a trade that sent Abdul-Jabbar to the Los Angeles Lakers for Elmore Smith, Brian Winters, Junior Bridgeman and Dave Meyers.

Fitzgerald, then a minority shareholder, vehemently opposed the trade, which prompted him to buy enough additional shares to give him controlling interest.

FACTS OF LIFE YOU SHOULD KNOW

The Midland Reporter-Telegram's editorial staff and my opponent know these facts; but so far they have been adept in not telling you about them.

I have been in the oil patch all my life, taking time out only for school and war. I've held jobs from Roustabout, Roughneck, Map Boy, Pipeline Clerk, Accountant, Landman Scout and District Landman to Exploration Manager. As an independent I've even "drilled 'em myself." There is hardly a fence row in the Permian Basin I haven't driven up and down at least once. There is hardly a County Courthouse in all of West Texas I haven't been in at least once to do business and check records. I've yet to find a Republican in any of them except in Midland-Odessa. "Midland Republican" is an epithet you hear as soon as you get thirty miles away from here in any direction. Runs up the price of leases.

The Democratic Party controls Austin politics and it controls local politics all around Midland as far as you can go until you get to Dallas.

I'm a Democrat and an Oil Man. Now, really, who is better qualified to represent us in our State government? A car wash operator Republican, or an oil man Democrat? Think about it.

As to my opponent's record; he has had 8 years in which he has accomplished absolutely nothing for our district. He never runs on his record. It's always something he's going to do "next time."

The Speaker of the House gave him a committee title. The title gives him local prestige, but accomplishes nothing for you. Actual political fact is that a Republican being chairman of that committee weakens its effectiveness.

Let's talk about WATER for West Texas.

My opponent is going to introduce a bill. That's just the point. He'll INTRODUCE a bill, but, based on past experience, it's safe to say it will not pass the Legislature. Witness his record on getting a new District Court Remember U.T.P.B.? On the water issue, do you think for one minute the other West Texas legislators, Democrats, will let the little Republican steal their thunder? Think about it.

What kind of a bill, anyhow? Who is going to write it for him? Which lobby group? You know the professional lobbies have poured thousands of dollars into his campaign fund (Midland Reporter-Telegram, October 9, 1976).

The solution to the dropping water table in West Texas (something we've all known about since my opponent was in grammar school) will require MASSIVE Federal Aid and COMPLETE cooperation of the surrounding states. The problems may even be insurmountable. Be that as it may, no local Republican will ever be able to do one single thing about it. It will take a Democrat, working with our Democratic state government and a Democratic controlled Congress, to get anything done at all. Think about it.

The other matters my opponent talks about, and many he hasn't talked about, such as the new Presidential Primary law, coming up in the next Legislature, can be important to us; but he will be, as before, powerless to do anything about any of them. He talks a good game, but he simply can't play.

When I asked Billy Clayton, Speaker of the House, about committee chairmanship and speaking engagements, he laughed and said, "If a Democrat really wants it, you know who'll get it."

John White, Secretary of Agriculture, when discussing Midland's sending a Republican to Austin, asked me, "Why do they do it? They're just wasting their seat."

Governor Briscoe told me, "Oh, I'd love to see you take that Republican's place."

Joe Christie, the Insurance Commissioner, supports my candidacy because I am a Democrat, but I think he'd rather I didn't show up down at Austin. I'll be able to make REAL waves!

Bob Armstrong, Land Commissioner (How many of you do business with the Land Office?) supports my candidacy wholeheartedly. The following is an authorized, direct quote from Bob Armstrong. "Obviously, I support the whole Democratic ticket, but I am particularly enthusiastic about the candidacy of Bob Corley because he will be able to get things done in the predominantly Democratic atmosphere in Austin. And I look forward to working with him."

Now, really. Think about these things. Forget the theory. Forget the smokescreen. Think. Do what's best for you, your family, and the future of this great area. And vote, not for the prestige of a local political clique, but vote for your own self-interest for a change.

Lee defense tries Permian offense

By BOB DILLON

Robert E. Lee's Rebels can play the part of giant killers in Memorial Stadium tonight.

Odessa Permian's No. 1-ranked Panthers come to the Tall City in a big District 5-4A football showdown.

Permian remembers its last two visits to Memorial Stadium. In 1972, the Black Cats barely escaped with a 14-13 victory over the Rebels on their way to the Class AAAA state championship and then in 1974, Lee blasted Mojo, 34-7, and went on to the state playoffs for the first time in the school's history.

Clyde Gary, only a sophomore in '74, had a great night against Permian, scoring three touchdowns in the rout which left the Panthers badly beaten.

Gary is back in the lineup tonight and is hoping for another super night against the small, but quick Panthers. Permian, like in 1972 and 1974, brings a perfect 7-0 record into the battle. In 1972, the Panthers had only given up 32 points and in 1974, their defense was even stingier with 13 points scored in seven games.

This year, Mojo has a potent offense, but its defense is not as strong as in the past five years. The Panthers have yielded 57 points this year, but have already scored more points than they did in playing 15 games last year.

While Permian has the best offense in rugged 5-4A, Lee has the No. 1 defense and if the game is played on a muddy turf, the Rebels could have the edge because of bigger size in the line.

Lee has only given up a total of 946 total yards on defense in compiling a 3-1 league record while Permian has racked up a total offense of 1,448 yards on offense with 1,147 of those coming on the ground.

Tailback Kerry Bullard and quarterback Curtis Pittman lead the Wing-T attack for the Panthers while fullback Brian Crowell and Gary, spark the Rebel offense.

Bullard has rushed for 451 yards on the season and Pittman 375 while Crowell, who may only see duty at strong safety, has picked up 446 yards and Gary 330. Crowell will start at strong safety and if able to run, will also play some at fullback behind 200-pound sophomore Jeff McCowan.

Joining McCowan in the starting backfield will be Gary, quarterback Brad Wright and wingback Robert Ochsner.

Pittman and Bullard will be joined by Mark Graves and Don Hanson in the starting backfield. Graves is a junior and Hanson a senior.

Hanson is the top receiver for Permian, with 10 receptions for 151 yards and five touchdowns. He had a 68-yard TD pass from Pittman called back last week in the Panthers' 31-10 victory over Abilene Cooper.

Pittman has connected on 37 of 70 passes for 579 yards and 10 TDs thus far and has had none intercepted.

Lee, meanwhile, uses both Wright and David Hobbs at the quarterback slot. Hobbs has connected on 24 of 46 aerials for 444 yards and four TDs while Wright has hit 12 of 37 passes for 182 yards and two touchdowns.

Split end John Lowery and Ochsner are the top receivers for Lee. Lowery has eight catches for 207 yards and Ochsner has 15 for 204.

Bobby Riggs, split receiver for Permian, also has 151 yards in receptions on 11 catches and is the punter. He has a 38.5 punting average on the year and 38.0 in 5-4A to lead that department.

Lee has a bigger size in the line even with two-way starter Brian Ramey out. The 230-pound senior suffered a knee injury in the Big Spring game and is out of action tonight.

Filling in for Ramey on offense will be junior Pat Calhoun, a 200-pounder and James Lundy, a 184-pound senior, will man the tackle slot on defense for Ramey. Lundy also plays some at nose guard. Denzil West, a 198-pound senior, will see some duty at tackle tonight for the Rebels.

Kickoff for the big showdown is set for 8 p.m. with a capacity crowd of 14,000 expected to be on hand to view the fireworks.

Permian leads the series 13-2, but has had plenty of trouble with the Rebels in the past four years.

Rebel Coach Jim Acree reports his team ready and anxious to play Permian. "We have had good workouts this week despite the rain," said Acree.

Permian Coach John Wilkins, meanwhile, is impressed with the Rebel defense. "They (Lee) have two great nose guards in Lundy and Jeff Degenfelder and two fine linebackers in Donald Salinas and Robin Barnett. It will be a physical game," said Wilkins.

McNight continues to pace grid stats

SHAWNEE MISSION, Kan. (AP) — Ted McNight of Minnesota-Duluth continued as the leading rusher and scorer among the nation's Division II football teams, but Michigan Tech's Jim VanWagner, who won the rushing crown the past two years, was closing in, according to statistics released today by the NCAA.

VanWagner, a 6-foot, 200-pounder, rolled up 266 yards and five touchdowns last week to move into second place in rushing and scoring rankings. McNight, who picked up 229 yards and four TDs Saturday, is averaging 255.4 yards and 14.8 points a game. VanWagner is averaging 253.8 yards and 13 points a game.

The rushing and scoring crowns could be determined Nov. 13 when Michigan Tech and Minnesota-Duluth clash head-on. Portland State's James Jones remains the Division II leader in passing (20 completions a game) and total offense (a 280.9-yard average).

Other leaders include Livingston's Willie Williams, averaging 22.8 yards per punt return; Derrick Battle of Mississippi Valley, a 1.3 pass interception per game average; Tennessee-Chattanooga's Greg Carter, punting at a 46.3-yard clip; Bo Darden of Shaw, 6.3 pass receptions a game, and Phillip Henry of Los Angeles State, averaging 38.2 yards per kickoff return.

In Division III, Byron Stallworth of Nebraska-Wesleyan is the top rusher with 147.3 yards a game. Rickie Haygood of Millsaps leads in total offense (259.5 yards a game) and passing (17 completions per game).

Chris Hipsley of Cornell, Iowa, is the leading scorer, 15 points a game; Mike Manson of Illinois Benedictine is the top punter, a 47.8-yard average;

Rick Fry of Occidental is the top receiver, seven catches a game; John Belskis of Valparaiso leads in interceptions, 1.3 per game; Milt Williams of Norwich is tops in punt returns, 32.1-yard average and Daryl Brown of Tufts leads in kickoff returns, 44.7 yards per return.

Shue earns large pact

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers are one of the highest paid teams in the National Basketball Association, and Coach Gene Shue and General Manager Pat Williams are included on that list.

F. Eugene Dixon, the team's millionaire owner, announced Thursday that he had signed Shue and Williams to multiyear contracts.

Shue's four-year contract reportedly is worth about $1 million, some $800,000 in cash and the rest in fringe benefits.

Shue joined the 76ers prior to the 1973-74 season after seven years as coach of the Baltimore Bullets. His 76ers teams have improved each year, going from 25-57 in 1973-74 to 46-36 last season when the club made the playoffs.

Williams served as the club's business manager in 1968-69. He then spent four years as general manager of the Chicago Bulls and on year with the Atlanta Hawks. He is named general manager of the 76ers last season.

Metcalf waiting to strike back

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A resolute Terry Metcalf is going about his business quietly this week, but the wheels in his mind are churning.

And unless Joe Gibbs misses his guess, Metcalf may be ready to explode with a performance in the National Football League that will blot out the memory of a nightmarish game.

Metcalf, appropriately labeled the "Franchise" by the St. Louis Cardinals, coughed up four fumbles during their 20-10 loss to the Washington Redskins on Monday night.

But Gibbs, who has served as the Cards' backfield coach during each of Metcalf's four NFL seasons, believes his protegee has the fortitude to bounce back.

"One of the best things about Terry is the maturity he's developed in the past two years," Gibbs said of St. Louis' elusive running back.

"The first year or two when something went wrong he'd really get down on himself," Gibbs said. "Now, he still lets things bother him, but he's learned to accept adversity."

"I think the Dallas game was a good example of the progress he's made," Gibbs said, referring to an error-beset first half for Metcalf in a 21-17 Cards win.

"He was down at halftime but he didn't let it beat him. In the second half he came back with some big plays and made things happen like he has in the past."

The 185-pound Metcalf, the NFL's most dangerous all-purpose back the past two seasons, is no stranger to fumbling, having done so on 14 occasions in 1974.

But Gibbs, in Metcalf's defense, classifies him as an "energetic runner—a guy that's a dasher and darter."

"Those kind get caught in more dangerous situations than other types," Gibbs said. "They keep the ball in front of their hip. He's fighting for every inch he can get. And sometimes he pays the penalty."

Following the loss to the Redskins this week, a caller during a radio talk show suggested that Metcalf be relieved of his position in the Cards' starting lineup.

"He's going through a rough time," tackle Dan Dierdorf responded on the broadcast, "but when a baseball player like Ted Simmons is in a batting slump you don't put him on the bench."

St. Louis Coach Don Coryell, meanwhile, echoed Dierdorf's sentiments in terms of his own.

"Terry will snap out of it," Coryell said. "He'll come back and he'll fight that much harder the rest of the way."

Runners live short lives in NFL

By DAVE BRADY
The Washington Post

The spate of new names every four or five years among leading ball carriers in the National Football League is as predictable as inflation.

Walter Payton of Chicago, John Cappelletti of Los Angeles, Delvin Williams of San Francisco, Mike Hogan of Philadelphia, Bubba Bean of Atlanta and Chuck Muncie and Tony Galbreath of New Orleans have joined the more familiar Lawrence McCutcheon, Chuck Foreman, Mike Thomas, Terry Metcalf, Jim Otis and Larry Csonka at the top of the NFL.

In the AFC Woody Green of Kansas City, Ricky Young of San Diego and Archie Griffin of Cincinnati are in the top rank with Lydell Mitchell, Greg Pruitt, Sam Cunningham, Otis Armstrong, Franco Farris, Ben Malone, Don Woods and of course, O. J. Simpson. Why the rapid turnover?

THE DALLAS Cowboys, who stay on top by studying these trends and doing something about them, say there is no mystery.

Ermal Allen, the Cowboys' special assistant who concentrates on research, and "It is the constant beating the running backs take: they get tackled so much more than the receivers or the quarterbacks. And knees are the No. 1 injury."

"If a wide receiver averages four catches a game, he is having a hell of a season. That means he gets tackled four times a game. A back carries 20 times a game, he gets tackled 20 times, and frequently by more than one defender."

"John Brockington of Green Bay is the best example. He had three great years (gaining more than 1,000 yards each time) and that was it. He had a 50-50 season in 1974 and '75. He was a vicious runner the first three years. Unbelievable."

The year 1974 was a "year of the runner," with six ball carriers in the AFC going over 1,000 yards: Simpson, Csonka, Marv Hubbard of Oakland, Harris, Mike Garrett of San Diego and Mercury Morris of Miami. Others among the top 10 were John Riggins of the New York Jets, Essex Johnson of Cincinnati and Leroy Kelly of Cleveland.

In the NFC, Larry Brown of Washington, Ron Johnson of the New York Giants, Calvin Hill of Dallas and Brockington made the 1,000-yard club, Brockington for the second time. Simpson has survived and should be back to near-peak efficiency in his eighth season, Allen said, "because he is so elusive the tacklers rarely get a good piece of him."

WHAT ACCOUNTS for the high number of quality backs coming out of college who are almost certainly fated to be phased out in turn by the battering?

"Well," Allen said, "we (the pros) don't like the colleges using so much wishbone offense, because the quarterbacks do not pass enough to develop that talent, the blockers do not get used to enough pass-protecting for our purposes, and the running backs do not get to catch enough passes."

"But, the wishbone does get the backs ready to be pro runners much more than in the past."

Amritraj drops out

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Topseeded Vijay Amritraj dropped out of the opening match of the Tucson Tennis Classic Thursday night with a bad back, while Puerto Rico's Charles Pasarell ousted local favorite Fred Stolle 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Amritraj, of India, won his first set in the quarter-finals against Dennis Ralston by a 6-3 margin, but when he was losing the second set 0-5, he forfeited. Amritraj said he woke up with a stiff back after taking a nap Thursday and it got worse as the match progressed.

In Friday's quarter-finals in the $20,000 tournament, Anand Amritraj faces Andrew Pattison.

Johnny Bench expects to catch three more years

NEW YORK (AP) — Old baseball catchers don't die, they just waste away, says Johnny Bench, who figures he will be lucky if he reaches his goal of wearing the tools of ignorance until he's 32 years old.

That gives him three more years to go.

"The life of a catcher in the majors should be about half that of an outfielder," the A1Star receiver of the champion Cincinnati Reds insists. "The body takes a tremendous beating. It just wears out."

"I look at the records of guys like Bill Dickey and Al Lopez and wonder how they did it. Maybe it's the longer seasons now, the air travel and the added pressures."

DICKEY CAUGHT 17 years with the New York Yankees, starting in 1928, while Lopez toiled 19 years with Brooklyn, Boston and Pittsburgh in the National League before finishing up with the Cleveland Indians.

Bench was in New York Thursday to receive a sports car from Sport Magazine for being voted the Most Valuable Player of the 1976 World Series. After a disappointing season because of an ailing shoulder, he batted .533 and hit two home runs in the final game in the Reds' four-game sweep of the New York Yankees.

"When I broke into the majors in 1967, I figured I would be able to catch until I was 30," Bench said. "I thought by that time, if I stayed in baseball, I would have to look around for a softer position."

"Now that most of my physical problems seem to be clearing up, I hope to stay around until I am 32, I will have to make a decision then."

BENCH WAS asked if he or Manager Sparky Anderson had considered the feasibility of moving him to another position.

"Well, you can eliminate the outfield, shortstop, second base and pitching," Bench replied. "That leaves first base and third. Tony Perez is pretty well fixed at first with Dan Driessen as a backup, and who's going over to third base and tell Pete Rose I want his job. Not me."

Bench's dotting mother, Katie, said in Oklahoma City during the summer that the punishment of catching was taking such a toll on her son's physical condition that he should retire in two years.

"His shoulder is just crushed from years of catching—his whole body is wearing out," Mrs. Bench said. "Ten years of catching is like 20 years of playing in the outfield."

"I told mom to say that," Johnny said with a broad smile when he was reminded of the comment. A powerfully looking figure at 6-foot-1 and 197 pounds with an arm like a cannon, the Reds' catcher looks like anything but a basket case.

"I've had my problems," Bench said, "but I was really encouraged by my comeback in the World Series. I am looking forward to a good year in 1977 and I hope I can play until I am 32."

He suffered a sprained thumb on his left hand in spring training and got a whack on the back of his hand from a foul ball.

His other shoulder—his right—became inflamed early in the season from a cartilage and he suffered agonizing spasms in his back. It was said that surgery might be necessary again after this season.

Late start, liquor produces fan violence

BOSTON (AP) — The managing trustee of Schaefer Stadium in Foxboro, Mass., home of the New England Patriots, says that smuggled-in liquor and a late starting time were largely to blame for fan violence that followed the recent Pats-New York Jets National Football League game.

Phil D. Fine of Stadium Realty Trust, owner of the stadium, also said Thursday the incidents following the Oct. 18 game were blown out of proportion in news accounts.

Following the nationally televised night game, won by the Patriots 41-7, police arrested 26 persons on various charges.

"It appears to me 50,974 people were victimized by the rest," said Fine, referring to the total crowd of 51,000.

Fine said the Patriots' management reported that "thousands" of empty liquor bottles were found in the stadium. Only beer can be purchased during a game.

He also said the late starting time of the game gave fans more opportunity to drink before kickoff.

"I think the scheduling of Monday night games at 9 p.m. in the East is insanity," he said.

Fine said the incidents at the game were unusual.

"To isolate one game out of 65 at the stadium and to say that caused massive problems ... is unfair," he said.

Tuesday, the Foxboro Board of Selectmen voted to ask Canteen Corp., which handles the food and beverage sales, to voluntarily sell beer only in concession areas, not in the stands.

Fine said the company agreed to do this, although he emphasized that Stadium Realty has no say in whether the request should be honored. The company leases the rights to the concessions from the stadium owner, which splits a percentage of the sales with Patriots management.

Fine also said stadium personnel will check those entering the stands to see if liquor is being carried in.

Lee loses to Big Spring

Midland Lee fell to 1-3 in the second half District 5-4A volleyball race in the Lee gym Thursday night with a 15-11, 15-2 loss to Big Spring.

Big Spring is tied for the second half lead with Midland High, both with 3-1 records.

Lee also lost the JV contest in a hard fought 15-6, 8-15, 15-11 match with Big Spring. The Lee JV will be in the Big Spring tournament Saturday, meeting Permian at 9 a.m.

The Lee varsity meets Permian Tuesday in the Lee gym in the next 5-AA outing.

He underwent an operation for a cartilage in his left shoulder last

'Brown coal' may be state's energy hope

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas will face critical economic problems by 1985 unless alternate sources of energy are found — and lignite may be the answer, officials say.

plants using primarily lignite are already operating, and two more soon will be on line. Texas officials say probably all new generating plants will use lignite.

develop near the lignite mines. They said lignite could be converted to use in the manufacturing of petrochemical products, such as plastics.

ENERGY OIL & GAS

said Frank White, executive director of the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission.

State Geologist Billy Williams said there is an estimated 15 billion tons of lignite in the area from Pine Bluff to Little Rock to Texarkana.

Earlier, the governor's office said up to 25 billion tons of lignite had been found under Crowley's Ridge in northeast Arkansas. Williams said there has been less study of lignite in northeast Arkansas, but the potential may be as great as in southwestern Arkansas.

Williams said Arkansas lignite — often called brown coal — burns at between 10,000 BTU (British thermal units) and 11,000 BTU, while top-grade coal burns at 14,000 BTU, and western coal burns at between 10,500 BTU and 11,000 BTU.

One of the major uses for lignite would be firing electricity generating plants. Williams said an average electric-generating plant would use five million tons of lignite a year.

White said that Arkansas Power and Light Co. has projected it won't be able to provide electricity to new industry by 1982 or 1983 unless alternative fuel sources are found.

"The state must aggressively address lignite as a solution. It would be counter-productive to do so," he said.

State Energy Office Director Mac Woodward said the extent of the deposits wasn't really known until 1973. The Arab Oil Embargo that year prompted interest in alternate fuel sources.

He said Phillips Petroleum, Shell Oil, Exxon and the International Paper Co. are now making extensive efforts to develop lignite deposits. He said the development is being concentrated in Clark, Nevada, Iveland and Dallas counties in southwestern Arkansas.

There are major environmental problems, Woodward said. Strip mining would be required to economically develop lignite.

"The state would have to take steps to assure that the strip mines were re-filled, and that the water in the area is not damaged. I feel certain this will be no real barrier."

He said lignite development is past the experimental stage.

SPE announces plans for meeting in London

DALLAS — The Society of Petroleum Engineers has announced plans to conduct the first SPE European Offshore Petroleum Conference and Exhibition.

The meeting will be staged at Earls Court, London, Oct. 24-27, 1978.

The Institute of Petroleum will be a joint sponsor for the comprehensive technical program and exhibition focusing on North Sea exploration, drilling, production and transportation technology for oil and natural gas.

"North Sea operations are the center of worldwide offshore petroleum technological developments today and will continue to be for a number of years," F. F. Craig Jr., SPE president, said.

Craig is manager of petroleum engineering for Amoco International Oil Co. in Chicago.

"The North Sea is clearly the most hostile offshore operating environment yet encountered on a full scale by the petroleum industry," Craig said. "The technology and accompanying equipment and services used in this environment will provide the basis for operations as the industry moves to the even more hostile Arctic areas."

This conference and the other SPE meeting programs will continue SPE in its role as the principal disseminator of new technology on oil and gas. We look forward to the 1978 meeting in London as a major feature of this effort."

SPE also is the manager and principal organizer of the Offshore Technology Conference conducted annually in Houston.

Two outposts staked in West Texas areas

A pair of outposts have been staked in West Texas area, and the fourth well has been finished in a Reeves County pool.

Diamond Shamrock Corp. of Amarillo will drill an 8,000-foot project in Glasscock County, eight miles northwest of Garden City.

It is No. 1-B Steve Calverly Jr., 1.980 feet from north and 680 feet from east lines of section 14, block 35, T-3-S, T&P survey and 2 1/4 miles southeast of a Wolfcamp discovery.

Texasco Inc. No. 2-D Peccos Fee is to be dug as a 12,000-foot operation 3/4 mile northwest of Gomez (Wolfcamp) production in Pecos County.

Location is 600 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 25, block 48, T-9, T&P survey and 13 miles northwest of Fort Stockton.

American Quasar Petroleum Co. No. 1-20 Worrham has been completed as the fourth well in the Worrham, North (Fusselman) field of Reeves County.

Location is 3,000 feet from south and 933 feet from west lines of section 20, block 6, H&N survey.

Operator reported a calculated absolute open flow potential of 5.4 million cubic feet of dry gas per day. Production is from perforations at 17,533 to 17,582 feet. Hole is bottomed at 17,632 feet, with five-inch liner at 17,652 feet. Pay was topped at 17,533 on ground elevation of 2,500 feet.

Operations divided

TULSA, Okla. — Parker Drilling Co. has divided its U.S. operations into two districts and created two new management positions to head each area.

Donald B. Quarles has been named manager of the South District which includes operations of 24 rigs in Texas and Oklahoma.

Jim Linn will serve as North District manager and will be responsible for 16 rigs now operating in the Rocky Mountain area and in Alaska.

The two new managers will be located in Tulsa and will report to Robert L. Parker Jr., executive vice president.

Quarles joined Parker in 1964 and has served as resident manager of Parker drilling operations in Alaska, Peru, Colombia and Ecuador.

Prior to his promotion, he served as domestic contracts manager in Midland.

Linn joined Parker in 1973 as an international contract representative and a year later was named an assistant to the vice president of U.S. operations.

Floyd area gets wildcat

Gulf Oil Corp. announced location for a 3,600-foot wildcat operation in Floyd County.

The project will be drilled as No. 1 W. B. Eakin, with drillsite 600 feet from south and east lines of section 31, block K, TTRR survey. There is no nearby production.

Triple-zone strike seen

WICHITA FALLS — Galaxy Oil Co. has reported prospects for a triple-zone discovery in Dimmit County.

The project, No. 1 Strake, had a combined daily flow rate from two of the zones of 3,865,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

The prospect was perforated opposite the McKnight section from 6,563 to 6,632 feet and tested for 2,046,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through a 3/4-inch choke.

From 6,258 to 6,479 feet, it flowed at the daily rate of 1,819,000 cubic feet through a 3/4 choke.

A third possible zone is from 5,970 to 6,170 feet.

Location is 15 miles northwest of the J.F.S. (Edwards) field.

HANFORD NO. 2 reactor is one of three nuclear power plants worth $3 billion being built on the 570-square-mile reservation at Richland, Wash. Backers of a state nuclear regulatory initiative say they have not bothered to organize an office in the area because of the 10,500 area residents who work on the reservation.

Changes of venue given six defendants in Alaska case

The Los Angeles Times

SAN FRANCISCO — Six of nine defendants indicted on charges of conspiracy to promote a large-scale gambling and prostitution operation near the terminus of the trans-Alaska pipeline were granted changes of venue by a federal judge here Thursday so they can be tried in Alaska.

The six include former U.S. Atty. Richard L. McVeigh, 43, of Anchorage, and Alexander Miller, 54, of Fairbanks, a one-time aide to ex-Governor William Egan and a Democratic national committeeman.

U.S. District Court Judge George B. Harris rejected Justice Department arguments that trying the defendants in Alaska would be tantamount to acquittal and said the government could be protected from bias through questioning of prospective jurors.

Three other defendants, including known Mafia figures Charles (Charlie the Blade) Tourine, 71, of Miami, were not included in the change of venue motion, but Harris suggested they be reintroduced in Alaska if the government wants to avoid a duplicate trial in San Francisco.

The nine persons were indicted by a federal grand jury here last July after a 18-month investigation by a federal organized crime strike force into reports of widespread corruption surrounding construction of the pipeline. All have pleaded innocent.

Also named in the indictment but not indicted himself was Martin Hobas, the so-called "porno king" of New York now serving a one-year federal prison sentence in Florida on a tax evasion conviction.

McVeigh was alleged to be assisting Hobas and two other men in establishing "large-scale prostitution" in the state's largest city, Anchorage, and all along the 798-mile pipeline route.

The indictment also alleged that McVeigh and Miller were to use their political connections to "fix things" with local law enforcement agencies.

In granting the change of venue, Harris said the defendants planned to produce a number of character witnesses, virtually all of whom reside in Alaska. He said a trial in San Francisco would disrupt their lives and involve considerable expense.

The judge also noted that all six defendants seeking a transfer live in Alaska and that it would be in their best interests to have the trial conducted in federal court in Anchorage.

McVeigh quit under fire as U.S. attorney in Anchorage amid accusations in 1968 that he mishandled an investigation of Alaska Teamsters Union boss Jesse L. Carr. He was suspected of leaking intelligence information to Carr's lawyers.

As a result of that investigation, Carr was indicted six times by a federal grand jury in Anchorage on charges of embezzlement, extortion and making false statements to obtain a government loan. He subsequently was acquitted on four counts and the other two were dropped.

McVeigh, after leaving the Justice Department, went to work for the Teamsters as an attorney for the union's prepaid legal trust. But he severed that relationship after his July indictment.

Also winning a change of venue Thursday in addition to McVeigh and Miller were Frank Irick, 58, an Anchorage real estate consultant; Andrew Day, 41, of Valdez, a stevedore; Vickie Cornell, 37, of Valdez, and Donald MacNamee, 33, a Valdez trailer park operator.

Besides Tourine, the defendants not included in the transfer motion were John L. Schumaker, 44, a Valdez bar owner, and Donald E. Owens, 48, of La Plata, Md., a former Nevada casino owner.

Second well assured in Eddy Morrow pool

The Bubbling Springs, West (Morrow) gas field of Eddy County, N.M. field apparently has an assured second production and a 1 1/2 mile northeast extension, with the flowing of gas for 11 hours at the rate of 400,000 cubic feet daily, along with 18 barrels of lead, at Llano, Inc. No. 1 South Willow Draw-Communitized.

Flow was through a 1-inch choke and perforations at 9,757-9,781 feet, after an acid treatment of 2,500 gallons.

Drilled to 10,109 feet, where 5 1/4-inch casing was set, it is plugged back to 10,064 feet.

On a 15-minute drillstem test of the Cinco at 7,948-8,148 feet, oily drilling mud was recovered; a three-hour and five-minute test of the Strawn at 8,585-8,630 feet flowed gas at the rate of 82,000 cubic feet per day on a 3/4-inch choke and recovered drilling fluid; and a three-hour and five-minute test of the Morrow at 9,655-9,749 feet flowed gas at the rate of 25,000 cubic feet per day, on a 3/4-inch choke, with a recovery of 120 feet of gas-cut mud and 3,300 feet of salt water.

The project is 1,980 feet from south and 900 feet from east lines of section 18-20a-20b, five miles southwest of Lake Wood.

The discovery, American Quasar Petroleum Co. of New Mexico, No. 1 Federal was finished Oct. 24, 1973, for a calculated absolute open flow of 1.53 million cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 9,968-9,983 feet.

Wildcats scheduled

A Sutton County wildcat has been staked, a wildcat re-entry in Runnels and an outpost in Upton.

HNG Oil Co., Midland, has made plans to drill No. 1-59 Fields as a 6,200-ft Strawn gas wildcat. It is three miles northeast of Canyon gas production in the Sutton County portion of the Sawyer multipay field.

Drillsite is 933 feet from north and 63 feet from east lines of section 59, block B, HE&WT survey, 4 1/4 miles southeast of Sonora.

Trans-Texas Energy, Inc., Dallas, has filed an application with the Texas Railroad Commission to enter and deepen to 4,300 feet at the former J. Frank Stringer No. 1 P. J. Beck, a Runnels County 4,257-foot bore. It is No. 1 J. F. Block.

Reentry site is 1,980 feet from south and west lines of Wilhelm Schulte survey 150, 4 1/4 miles southeast of Owens.

It is also 1 1/4 miles southwest of the e-well TJC (Capps) oil field.

A 10,000-foot Ellenburger oil test in a Fradean multipay oil and gas field Upton County has been staked by A. Kaespar of Midland. It is the No. 2 J. Shirk Estate.

Located 12 miles northeast of McCamey, it spots 330 feet from south and 600 feet from west lines of section 30, block 2, MK&T survey.

Clear Fork yields show

Arvin Norwood Drilling Co. of Midland No. 1-30 Cowden, 3/4-mile southwest and northwest stepout to Clear Fork production in the E.R. field of Crane County, showed gas and oil on a drillstem test.

The zone tested was from 3,106 to 3,145, with tool open 1 hour and 15 minutes. Recovery was 1,300 feet of gas in the drillpipe and 90 feet of oil and gas-cut mud.

Purchase announced

Texas American Oil Corp. of Midland has announced the completion of the purchase of substantially all of the oil and gas properties and other operating assets of Hardin Oil Co. of Dallas.

The transaction, which was consummated early this week, is effective Sept. 1.

The purchase price paid for the properties in Texas and New Mexico was $2,600,000 cash. The transaction results in Texas American acquiring an interest in 90 gross wells, 40 of which will be operated by the company.

TAO also announced that its purchase of the Osceola Refinery in West Branch, Mich., from United Refining Co. is still pending and that such transaction will be consummated shortly after receipt of approval from the Federal Energy Administration of a joint application for exception filed by TAO and United.

The purchase price of $5.3 million cash will be paid upon closing for the refinery assets and final settlement for crude and finished products inventories being acquired by TAO will be made on or about Dec. 1.

Cement firm agrees to pay

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Atty. Gen. John Hill said Thursday that Universal Atlas Cement has agreed to pay the state $35,000 to settle alleged violations of Texas' air pollution standards.

Hill said in a statement the agreed judgment was entered by Dist. Judge Derwood Johnson of McLennan County.

Hot campaign advances slightly

By MARY GANZ

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — Pete McCloskey, a symbol of protest since he challenged his party's president on the Vietnam war, is being crowded out of his role as Establishment critic this year by another kind of dissenter.

Harris has mounted a promising campaign in the district south of San Francisco where Republican McCloskey has cornered the Democratic vote for nearly a decade.

"It's really strange for Pete to be put in an Establishment role," mused a McCloskey aide. "He doesn't like it at all."

From his first election to Congress in 1967, when he took on the party regulars who backed Shirley Temple Black in the GOP primary, Paul N. McCloskey has cultivated the outsider's image.

It reached its peak of publicity when he dared to enter 1972 primaries as a test of GOP support for President Nixon's war policy.

"He was great on the issues of Nixon and the war," Harris says now. "But those issues aren't around any more. On other issues, his voting record is standard Republican."

To counter that image, McCloskey, 49, is waging a campaign that includes jogging from precinct to precinct and appearing for many of his speeches dressed in rumpled T-shirts, jeans and tennis shoes.

Harris, on the other hand, appears everywhere in a suit — even on the college campuses where he drew huge crowds 10 years ago as a symbol of student anti-war dissent. This year he is 30, and he must convince the Democrats who usually turn out for McCloskey that he is not dangerous.

"People's perceptions of the '60s are in our big lump," he says. "Down in that lump in their minds they have women's lib, the SLA and campus demonstrations. In their minds I'm part of that lump."

As an activist student body president at Stanford and then the husband of folk singer Joan Baez, Harris was highly visible when he refused to be drafted and spent nearly two years in federal prison.

Jury raps state law

HOUSTON (AP) — A former Harris County grand jury says a Texas oral confessions statute forced the panel to no-bill a "vicious rape-murderer."

The grand jurors said in a letter released Thursday they wanted the law changed so oral confessions could be used in trials. The letter was mailed to state representatives and state senators.

Restrepo to parallel Cronkite

LOS ANGELES (AP) — True, Guillermo Restrepo lacks the fame of a Walter Cronkite. But on Nov. 2, he'll be Cronkite's equivalent for hundreds of thousands of viewers who want their news in Spanish.

He'll be in New York, anchoring Election Night coverage of the Spanish International Network (SIN), begun here in 1961 to provide programs for Spanish-speaking viewers in the U.S.

Restrepo's broadcast — called "Destino '78" — will be fed by satellite,

SIN says, from the company's New York outlet to seven stations in four states and possibly to Mexico's Televisa network.

All six SIN-owned stations in New York, Miami, San Antonio, Texas, and Los Angeles, Fresno and San Francisco, Calif., will air the show, as will two stations in Modesto, Calif., and Chicago.

All serve areas with high concentrations of Hispanic residents.

Restrepo, 33, says the company's New York outlet to seven stations in four states and possibly to Mexico's Televisa network, which the company says will cost $100,000 to put on, will of course report on the outcome of the night's main event — the presidential election.

But unlike the major networks, which will take the broad approach to election night coverage throughout the U.S., SIN will be far more specialized in its coverage and analyses, he adds.

For starters, Jacobo Zabludovsky, news director of Mexico's Televisa network, will be working with him, commenting on possible effects of the election on Latin America, he said.

And SIN won't emphasize state-by-state returns, said Restrepo, who says he began in news at age 12 as a police reporter on the newspaper of his hometown of Pereira in eastern Columbia.

He said the network instead will concentrate on election night results of House, Senate and gubernatorial races in 14 key states with large concentrations of Spanish-speaking persons.

Restrepo, speaking by phone from SIN's New York offices, said close attention also will be given election-night winners — regardless of state — who now serve or want to serve on congressional committees whose work directly affects Hispanics or Latin Americans or Latin Americans.

Porno defended

HOUSTON (AP) — A University of Houston sociologist and sex researcher says recent studies show pornography has no effect on a child's sexual adjustment.

But its absence, said William Simon, is usually indicative of a repressive environment that may produce disturbed adults.

Simon, 46, a former senior research sociologist for the Institute of Sex Research at Indiana University, said Houston parents who want tighter controls on pornography sales may be doing their families more harm than good.

HOUSTON (AP) — A former Harris County grand jury says a Texas oral confessions statute forced the panel to no-bill a "vicious rape-murderer."

The grand jurors said in a letter released Thursday they wanted the law changed so oral confessions could be used in trials. The letter was mailed to state representatives and state senators.

Restrepo to parallel Cronkite

LOS ANGELES (AP) — True, Guillermo Restrepo lacks the fame of a Walter Cronkite. But on Nov. 2, he'll be Cronkite's equivalent for hundreds of thousands of viewers who want their news in Spanish. He'll be in New York, anchoring Election Night coverage of the Spanish International Network (SIN), begun here in 1961 to provide programs for Spanish-speaking viewers in the U.S. Restrepo's broadcast — called "Destino '78" — will be fed by satellite,

SIN says, from the company's New York outlet to seven stations in four states and possibly to Mexico's Televisa network. All six SIN-owned stations in New York, Miami, San Antonio, Texas, and Los Angeles, Fresno and San Francisco, Calif., will air the show, as will two stations in Modesto, Calif., and Chicago. All serve areas with high concentrations of Hispanic residents. Restrepo, 33, says SIN's election night program, which the company says will cost $100,000 to put on, will of course report on the outcome of the night's main event — the presidential election. But unlike the major networks, which will take the broad approach to election night coverage throughout the U.S., SIN will be far more specialized in its coverage and analyses, he adds. For starters, Jacobo Zabludovsky, news director of Mexico's Televisa network, will be working with him, commenting on possible effects of the election on Latin America, he said. And SIN won't emphasize state-by-state returns, said Restrepo, who says he began in news at age 12 as a police reporter on the newspaper of his hometown of Pereira in eastern Columbia. He said the network instead will concentrate on election night results of House, Senate and gubernatorial races in 14 key states with large concentrations of Spanish-speaking persons. Restrepo, speaking by phone from SIN's New York offices, said close attention also will be given election-night winners — regardless of state — who now serve or want to serve on congressional committees whose work directly affects Hispanics or Latin Americans. He cited as examples the Foreign Relations, Judiciary and Appropriations committees of the Congress.

'Brown coal' may be state's energy hope

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas will face critical economic problems by 1985 unless alternate sources of energy are found — and lignite may be the answer, officials say.

ENERGY OIL & GAS

said Frank White, executive director of the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission.

State Geologist Billy Williams said there is an estimated 15 billion tons of lignite in the area from Pine Bluff to Little Rock to Texarkana.

Earlier, the governor's office said up to 25 billion tons of lignite had been found under Crowley's Ridge in northeast Arkansas. Williams said there has been less study of lignite in northeast Arkansas, but the potential may be as great as in southwestern Arkansas.

Williams said Arkansas lignite — often called brown coal — burns at between 10,000 BTU (British thermal units) and 11,000 BTU, while top-grade coal burns at 14,000 BTU, and western coal burns at between 10,500 BTU and 11,000 BTU.

One of the major uses for lignite would be firing electricity generating plants. Williams said an average electric-generating plant would use five million tons of lignite a year.

White said that Arkansas Power and Light Co. has projected it won't be able to provide electricity to new industry by 1982 or 1983 unless alternative fuel sources are found.

"The state must aggressively address lignite as a solution. It would be counter-productive to do so," he said.

State Energy Office Director Mac Woodward said the extent of the deposits wasn't really known until 1973. The Arab Oil Embargo that year prompted interest in alternate fuel sources.

He said Phillips Petroleum, Shell Oil, Exxon and the International Paper Co. are now making extensive efforts to develop lignite deposits. He said the development is being concentrated in Clark, Nevada, Leaveland and Dallas counties in southwestern Arkansas.

There are major environmental problems, Woodward said. Strip mining would be required to economically develop lignite.

"The state would have to take steps to assure that the strip mines were reforested, and that the water in the area is not damaged. I feel certain this will be no real barrier."

He said lignite development is past the experimental stage.

"In Texas, two electric generating plants using primarily lignite are already operating, and two more soon will be on line. Texas officials say probably all new generating plants will use lignite."

Because of the high cost of transporting lignite, Woodward and White said in separate interviews Thursday that they expected industrial parks to develop near the lignite mines. They said lignite could be converted to use in the manufacturing of petrochemical products, such as plastics.

Woodward said lignite development could free other fuels — especially natural gas — for other parts of the state.

Pampa chemical plant will convert to coal

PAMPA, Tex. (AP) — The chemical plant owned by the Celanese Chemical Co. here will be converted to use coal instead of natural gas as boiler fuel, a company official said Wednesday.

Harry B. Bartley, president of the company, said the multimillion dollar project will be the first step in the company's program to change plants in Bishop, Bay City and Clear Lake from natural gas to coal.

Brown and Root is the contractor. Bartley said conversion to coal would help assure the availability of Pampa's long range fuel supplies and should also result in reduced energy costs.

"The four-state region of Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Arkansas, which accounts for 80 per cent of natural gas production, has been hard hit by escalating gas costs," Bartley said, "and the region's traditional low-cost energy advantage has virtually disappeared with the drastic increase in natural gas costs over the last few years."

In late 1975, the Texas Railroad Commission, responding to the growing problem of increased prices and curtailment of natural gas ordered Texas users to natural gas as a boiler fuel to begin an orderly conversion to other forms of energy, he said.

Bartley said Celanese supports the Railroad Commission's ruling because it "encourages the use of this precious natural resource for higher priority uses than boiler fuel. Most of us appreciate the vital role that plastics, manmade fabrics, pharmaceuticals, synthetic rubber and agricultural chemicals play in our daily life."

"But few of us realize that these food, shelter and health products are made from petrochemical derivatives which in turn are almost completely dependent on the molecular structure found in oil and natural gas."

Plans for the Pampa conversion project call for boiler fuel coal to be shipped in by unit train at the rate of approximately 100 cars every four days in order to meet a 100-ton per hour demand. 850,000 tons of coal per year.

"Unlike the Eastern Seaboard where industry has used coal to generate steam for many years, coal as a source of energy is a relatively new dimension for industry in this part of the country," said Gene Steel, manager of the Celanese Pampa plant.

SPE announces plans for meeting in London

DALLAS — The Society of Petroleum Engineers has announced plans to conduct the first SPE European Offshore Petroleum Conference and Exhibition.

The meeting will be staged at Earls Court, London, Oct. 24-27, 1978.

The Institute of Petroleum will be a joint sponsor for the comprehensive technical program and exhibition focusing on North Sea exploration, drilling, production and transportation technology for oil and natural gas.

"North Sea operations are the center of worldwide offshore petroleum technological developments today and will continue to be for a number of years," F. F. Craig Jr., SPE president, said.

SPE is manager of petroleum engineering for Amoco International Oil Co. in Chicago.

"The North Sea is clearly the most hostile offshore operating environment yet encountered on a full scale by the petroleum industry," Craig said. "The technology and accompanying equipment and services used in this environment will provide the basis for operations as the industry moves to the even more hostile Arctic areas."

This conference and the other SPE meeting programs will continue SPE in its role as the principal disseminator of new technology on oil and gas. We look forward to the 1978 meeting in London as a major feature of this effort."

SPE also is the manager and principal organizer of the Offshore Technology Conference conducted annually in Houston.

Contract announced

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. — Kerr-McGee Coal Corp. has signed a supply contract with a Texas electric utility that will provide more than $80 million in sales revenues over a three-year period, company officials announced.

The contract with Houston Lighting & Power Co. calls for delivery of 12.7 million tons of low-sulfur, steam coal from 1978 through 1980 for the utility's W. A. Parish generating plant in Thompson, Tex.

Triple-zone strike seen

WICHITA FALLS — Galaxy Oil Co. has reported prospects for a triple-zone discovery in Dimmit County.

The project, No. 1 Strake, had a combined daily flow rate from two of the zones of 3,865,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

The prospect was perforated opposite the McKnight section from 6,563 to 6,652 feet and tested for 2,046,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through a 1/4-inch choke.

From 6,258 to 6,475 feet, it flowed at the daily rate of 1,819,000 cubic feet through a 1/4 choke.

A third possible zone is from 5,970 to 6,170 feet.

Location is 15 miles northwest of the J.F.S. (Edwards) field.

Changes of venue given six defendants in Alaska case

The Los Angeles Times

SAN FRANCISCO — Six of nine defendants indicted on charges of gambling to promote a large-scale operation near the terminus of the trans-Alaska pipeline were granted changes of venue by a federal judge here Thursday so they can be tried in Alaska.

The six include former U.S. Atty. Richard L. McVeigh, 43, of Anchorage, and Alexander Miller, 54, of Fairbanks, a one-time aide to ex-Governor William Egan and a Democratic national committeeman.

U.S. District Court Judge George B. Harris rejected Justice Department arguments that trying the defendants in Alaska would be tantamount to acquittal and said the government could be protected from bias through questioning of prospective jurors.

Three other defendants, including known Mafia figures Charles (Charlie the Blade) Touraine, 71, of Miami, were not included in the change of venue motion, but Harris suggested they be reintroduced in Alaska if the government wants to avoid a duplicate trial in San Francisco.

The nine persons were indicted by a federal grand jury here last July after a 16-month investigation by a federal organized crime strike force into reports of widespread corruption surrounding construction of the pipeline. All have pleaded innocent.

Also named in the indictment but not indicted himself was Martin Hobas, the so-called "porno king" of New York now serving a one-year federal prison sentence in Florida on a tax evasion conviction.

McVeigh was alleged to be assisting Hobas and two other men in establishing "large-scale prostitution" in the state's largest city, Anchorage, and all along the 788 mile pipeline route.

The indictment also alleged that McVeigh and Miller were to use their political connections to "fix things" with local law enforcement agencies.

In granting the change of venue, Harris said the defendants planned to produce a number of character witnesses, virtually all of whom reside in Alaska. He said a trial in San Francisco would disrupt their lives and involve considerable expense.

The judge also noted that all six defendants seeking a transfer live in Alaska and that it would be in their best interests to have the trial conducted in federal court in Anchorage.

McVeigh quit under fire as U.S. attorney in Anchorage amid accusations in 1968 that he mishandled an investigation of Alaska Teamsters Union boss Jesse L. Carr. He was suspected of leaking intelligence information to Carr's lawyers.

As a result of that investigation, Carr was indicted six times by a federal grand jury in Anchorage on charges of embezzlement, extortion and making false statements to obtain a government loan. He subsequently was acquitted on four counts and the other two were dropped.

McVeigh, after leaving the Justice Department, went to work for the Teamsters as an attorney for the union's prepaid legal trust. But he severed that relationship after his July indictment.

Also winning a change of venue Thursday in addition to McVeigh and Miller were Frank Iriek, 58, an Anchorage real estate consultant; Andrew Day, 41, of Valdez, a stevedore; Vickie Cornell, 37, of Valdez, and Donald MacNamee, 33, a Valdez trailer park operator.

Besides Touraine, the defendants not included in the transfer motion were John L. Schumaker, 44, a Valdez bar owner, and Donald E. Owens, 48, of La Plata, Md., a former Nevada casino owner.

Second well assured in Eddy Morrow pool

The Bubbling Springs, West (Morrow) gas field of Eddy County, N.M. field apparently has an assured second producer and a 1 1/4 mile northeast extension, with the flowing of gas for 11 hours at the rate of 470,000 cubic feet daily, along with 18 barrels of load, at Llano, Inc. No. 1 South Willow Draw-Communitized.

Flow was through a 1-inch choke and perforations at 8,757-9,781 feet, after an acid treatment of 2,500 gallons.

Drilled to 10,109 feet, where 5 1/2-inch casing was set, it is plugged back to 10,044 feet.

On a 15-minute drillstem test of the Cisco at 7,540-8,148 feet, only drilling mud was recovered; a three-hour and five-minute test of the Strawn at 8,585-8,830 feet flowed gas at the rate of 92,000 cubic feet per day on a 1/4-inch choke and recovered drilling fluid; and a three-hour and five-minute test of the Morrow at 8,455-9,749 feet, flowed gas at the rate of 83,000 cubic feet per day, on a 1/4-inch choke, with a recovery of 130 feet of gas-cut mud and 3,300 feet of salt water.

The project is 1,500 feet from south and 900 feet from east lines of section 19-20e-28e, five miles southwest of Lake Wood.

The discovery, American Quasar Petroleum Co. of New Mexico, No. 1 Federal was finished Oct. 24, 1973, for a calculated absolute open flow of 1.53 million cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 1,988-9,863 feet.

The purchase price paid for the properties in Texas and New Mexico was $2,000,000 cash. The transaction results in Texas American acquiring an interest in 80 gross wells, 40 of which will be operated by the company.

TAO also announced that its purchase of the Ocoila Refinery in West Branch, Mich., from United Refining Co. is still pending and that such transaction will be consummated shortly after receipt of approval from the Federal Energy Administration of a joint application for exception filed by TAO and United.

The purchase price of $5.2 million cash will be paid upon closing for the refinery assets and final settlement for crude and finished products inventories being acquired by TAO will be made on or about Dec. 1.

Texas American anticipates that the consummation of the refinery purchase will occur in November.

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Atty. Gen. John Hill said Thursday that Universal Atlas Cement has agreed to pay the state $35,000 to settle alleged violations of Texas' air pollution standards.

Hill said in a statement the agreed judgment was entered by Dist. Judge Derwood Johnson of McLennan County.

Ehrlichman begins serving prison terms

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — John D. Ehrlichman, one of former President Nixon's two top White House aides, Thursday began serving a prison sentence of 30 months to 8 years for his convictions in the Watergate coverup and the White House "plumbers" criminal cases.

The 51-year-old Ehrlichman reported to the Swift Trail Federal Prison Camp at Safford, Ariz., around 12:30 p.m. EDT, according to his Washington attorney, Stuart Stiller. Earlier U.S. District Judges Gerhard A. Gesell and John J. Sirica had signed a joint order at Ehrlichman's request clearing the way for him to begin serving the prison terms.

Ehrlichman had been free on personal bond pending appeals of his convictions in the two criminal cases.

John D. Ehrlichman

Stiller said Ehrlichman would continue to press his appeals while serving the prison term.

He is the highest-ranking member of the Nixon Administration to go to prison as a result of criminal charges from the Watergate scandal.

Two other ranking Nixon aides — former White House chief of staff H.R. (Bob) Haldeman and former Attorney General John N. Mitchell — are free pending further appeals of their Watergate coverup convictions. Each also received a 30-month-to-8-year prison sentence.

Stiller refused to say why Ehrlichman decided to begin serving the prison term. However, persons familiar with the coverup case said Ehrlichman apparently felt he had little chance of winning in the Supreme Court after the U.S. Court of Appeals here rejected his appellate arguments.

The U.S. Court of Appeals ruling in the Watergate coverup case officially takes effect on Nov. 2. Ehrlichman could file a motion for reduction of sentence within 120 days after that date.

The motion would be filed with Sirica, who two years ago significantly reduced the prison terms of former White House and Nixon aides John Dean III, Jeb Magruder and Herbert Kalmbach.

Ehrlichman, who has written a novel and part of another book, and who has lived a reclusive life in Santa Fe, N.M., for the last two years, was domestic affairs adviser to Nixon until April 30, 1973.

Navy's ill-fated F-14 difficult to recover

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Navy's ill-fated F-14 tomcat has demonstrated again that it is one of the most elusive fighter planes in the world even though it is still grounded on the ocean floor.

In its last communique on the great sea hunt, the Navy has announced that the rope broke as a recovery crew was hauling the aircraft from the ocean depths about 75 miles northwest of Scapa Flow, Scotland.

"The aircraft returned to the bottom," the Navy reported from London, Norfolk and Washington. "Another attempt will be made to raise the plane from the bottom as weather conditions permit."

The NR-1 nuclear powered recovery submarine had managed with its mechanical arm to put a rope around the F-14 on Wednesday as the plane lay on its back in 1,800 feet of water.

After the 30-foot line, 30 inches thick, had been looped around the left landing gear of the F-14, the Navy said, the oil right ship Constructor dropped down a second line to the NR-1. The crew of the NR-1 submarine attached the Constructor line to the one already around the F-14 landing gear. The submarine crew then passed the other end of the long line to another ship on surface, the Oil Harrier.

In bucking seas, the Navy said, the Oil Harrier started to haul up the F-14 from the bottom. Each wave stretched the line between the 28-ton plane and the bobbing surface ship.

Ordinarily, the navy would have sent divers down to wrap more than one line around the plane before trying to haul it up. But the weather got so bad on the North Atlantic, the Navy said, that the salvage officers decided sending down divers would be too risky.

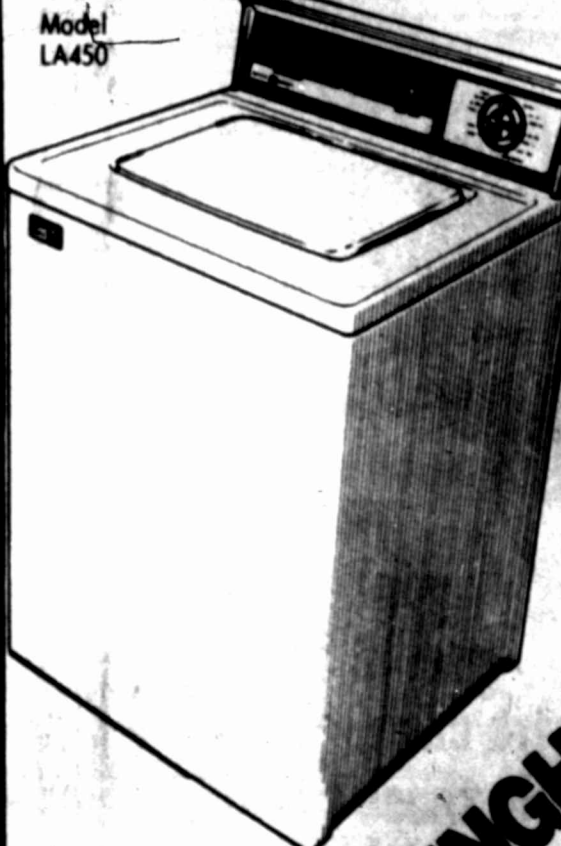

"It appears that the heavy weather which greatly increased tension on the line caused it to fail," the Navy said in Wednesday's communique.

While the Navy will undoubtedly be able to relocate the F-14 on the sea bottom there was no word Wednesday on the location of the highly-secret Phoenix missile which apparently broke away from the F-14 as it tumbled to the Atlantic floor on Sept. 14.

The Tomcat plunged off the deck of the aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy when one of the plane's two engines malfunctioned as the two-man crew was about to take off.

At first the Navy predicted recovery within three days. It took about three weeks to find the sunken plane with a sonar searching device.

On Oct. 19 the Navy's cable-controlled underwater recovery vehicle (CURV) lost power after being lowered three-fourths of the way to the bottom. Operations were suspended again.

Both Carter, Ford push vote drives in New York

By MARTIN WALD

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Carter and Gerald Ford count New York State's 41 electoral votes among their prime targets in the closing days of the campaign, but local politicians fear that many voters may not notice.

The state campaign organizations, plagued by strict new campaign spending limits and a general voter apathy that makes volunteer workers scarce, have been left with little to do and little money to do it with.

Television advertising and personal appearances by the candidates are at the heart of the campaign, and they are controlled by a central organization. The principal job left to the state parties is getting out the vote and the principal tool they have is volunteers.

Gone are the storefront offices, the buttons and the bumper stickers that make a campaign locally visible and that many politicians say lend an aura of participation and excitement.

"What the press sees as apathy is really a lack of money," said Richard Wade, the college professor who ran Sen. George McGovern's statewide drive in 1972. "New Yorkers really expect a different kind of election than they're getting."

The main battlegrounds of the kind of election New Yorkers will get are likely to be the New York City and Buffalo metropolitan areas — the state's most populous regions and largest media markets.

Ford partisans are predicting a close race and promise a major effort despite recent polls that show the President trailing.

Most Texas legislative leaders to return in '77

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

There will be some new faces in the 1977 Legislature but no matter how the voting goes next Tuesday most of the 1975 Senate and House leaders will be back in Austin on Jan. 11.

Sixteen Senate seats will be on the Nov. 2 ballot along with the 150 House places.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Democrat, presiding officer of the Senate, is in the midst of a four-year term so he will not be up for a vote.

Speaker Bill Clayton, Democrat, has already won re-nomination in his West Texas district with no general election opponent. He is expected to be re-elected speaker of the 1977 Legislature with little or no opposition.

Eight of the 16 Senate seats have already been settled in the primaries and of the eight remaining contests the seven incumbents involved are favored.

Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan, 1975 chairman of the power State Affairs Committee, is home free in the Tuesday election. Sens. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, chairman of the Jurisprudence Committee; Tom Creighton, D-Mineral Wells, Economic Development, and Max Sherman, D-Amarillo, National Resources, also get a free ride Tuesday.

A Senate newcomer is Rep. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, who was promoted in the primaries. He takes the place of retiring Sen. Roy Harrington, D-Port Arthur.

Another new face will come out of the race between Rep. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, who defeated Sen. Mike McKinnon, D-Corpus Christi, and now is opposed by Republican James T. Smith of Ingleside.

In the 150 House races there are 82 incumbents without opposition Tuesday, including five Republicans.

They include such 1975 House leaders as Reps. Bill Prenal, D-Bryan, chairman of the influential Appropriations Committee; Tom Uher, D-Bay City, chairman of State Affairs; Joe Wyatt, D-Bloomington, Ways and Means; Tom Craddock,

Dr. Sproule wins patent

ODESSA — A patent for a computer combinational logic arrangement has been obtained by Dr. Betty A. Sproule, assistant professor computer science at The University of Texas at the Permian Basin, and her co-worker D. M. Rouse.

The patent, awarded in September, is for work completed in 1974 while Dr. Sproule was employed at Bell Telephone Laboratories in Columbus, Ohio. All rights to the patent are assigned to Bell, she said.

The combinational logic arrangement is a circuit designed to be incorporated into the central processing unit of a computer to perform binary data manipulation functions, she said.

Two Sandhills jobs approved

AUSTIN — Two repair projects at Monahans Sandhills State Park have been approved by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission.

The projects are part of the commission's $1,579,563 park major repairs program for the fiscal year 1977. A total of $870,582 remain to be allocated in the program.

The two projects include $6,400 for repair and seal coat of the picnic area road and $1,280 to repair and seal coat the residence area road.

Resident tells police of theft

A Midland man told police $1,150 in stereo equipment was stolen from his westside Midland home Thursday.

Jesse Marsh, 3116 W. Louisiana Ave., reported theft of four records, two speakers, one turntable and one amplifier to police Thursday afternoon. The thefts occurred between 7 a.m. and 3 p.m. Thursday, police said.

Briscoe vague on Yarbrough

HOUSTON (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe says the candidacy of Texas Supreme Court nominee Don Yarbrough is a "special situation."

Briscoe hedged Thursday about supporting Yarbrough but did not recant his recent position urging the vote of a straight Democratic ticket Nov. 2.

Yarbrough, the Democratic nominee who has no Republican opposition, is a defendant in several lawsuits and the State Bar of Texas recently asked a civil district court to begin disbarment proceedings against him.

After a speech to the Texas Association of Business convention, Briscoe was asked by newsmen to respond to a question posed Wednesday by Tom Loran, a Houston lawyer who is challenging Yarbrough as a write-in candidate.

Loran wanted to know if Briscoe, by urging the straight Democratic ticket, also was endorsing Yarbrough.

"I have not investigated this particular problem," Briscoe said, adding the Yarbrough candidacy was a "special situation."

Secret hidden by wigs

MANCHESTER, Conn. (AP) — "Baldie, baldie, baldie," schoolmates in Michigan called after her more than 25 years ago.

Once, during a fire drill, a child pulled the wig off and exposed her bald head, to the delight of the rest of the pupils.

To this day Kaye, now 36, winces when she says the word bald and doesn't even like to say the word wig.

She says her own maturity and the popularity of wigs have helped give her "a free psyche."

But the scars are still there. She has never allowed her husband of 17 years to see her bald head. She wears a wig to bed and will shop only in wig boutiques where there is a back room for her to try on hairpieces.

And she didn't want her real name used in a story, although she couldn't explain exactly why.

She doesn't know how many other women have the same secret — that under the wig there is no hair — because most people are ashamed to talk about it. The owner of a large local wig boutique, however, says that of every 100 women who buy wigs from him, one is completely bald.

Kaye's hair fell out when she was 4 years old, after she had suffered a low-grade fever for several months. No doctor has been able to explain why.

She says she blanked out about six months of that time and doesn't remember when she first realized she was different. But tears came to her eyes as she recalled that her mother found her standing in a corner one day when she was 4½, crying. Her mother said that when she asked what was wrong, the child replied, "I look funny, don't I?"

Throughout school she was teased by other children and always felt "like a second-class citizen." Occasionally, schoolmates invited her to sleep at their houses hoping she would take her wig off at night, when she had thought they were her friends.

"For years desperately I would dream that when I woke up in the morning all my hair was there." Her parents, who were not wealthy, spent thousands of dollars on human hair wigs, doctors' visits, injections and heat treatments in the hope her hair would grow back.

During early adolescence, when her body underwent hormonal changes, she grew some hair. When that fell out she realized it never would grow back and began to try to accept it.

When Kaye was 17 or 18, a Methodist minister went to her house to talk over her problems, telling her:

"You've just got to learn to accept it, and say, 'Yes, I do wear a wig. So what?'"

"Now that I look at it, it's so simple I don't know why I ever tried to hide it," she said. "I am in control of my life now."

"You don't ever get over the scar of being rejected by other kids. To the day I die I will never feel comfortable in this body."

Gift cures big problem

NEW YORK (AP) — Finding it ironic that Tahiti's Gauguin Museum was Gauguin-less, magazine owner Malcolm Forbes recently cured the problem, when he presented, on long-term loan, the Paul Gauguin painting Les Enfants dans la Rue (The Children in the Street) to the museum.

The Forbes Magazine Gauguin, insured for $150,000, depicts the wife and children the artist abandoned in France to begin his colorful life in Tahiti where his paintings of the island's people made him famous.
