Hometown Support

A friendly squable arose at the State Democratic Executive Committee meeting Saturday over where to hold the next meeting, in Amarillo or Odessa. Arguing for their respective cities were from left, Claudie M. Brummett, Amarillo, and Mrs. Gerald K. Fugit, Odessa. Amarillo won. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Amarillo Wins Nod For Demo Meeting

WICHITA FALLS (AP) —A friendly hassle over where to hold the next State Democratic Executive Committee meeting was finally won by Amarillo over Odessa, Bay City and Austin here Saturday.

The anticipated highlight of the business meeting—the election of a new chairman to replace Marvin Watson of Daingerfield, who resigned to join the White House staff—failed to materialize.

LEAVE VACANT

On the motion of Garrett Morris, Fort Worth, chairman of the subcommittee on nominations and organizations, the 41 committee members present voted unanimously to leave the chairmanship temporarily vacant.

The duties of the office will continue to be carried out by Mrs. Alfred Negley, San Antonio, the vice chairman, and Will Davis, Austin, the secretary.

The three-way discussion over the site for the September SDEC meeting arose when Mrs. Howard Hurd, Brownfield, chairman of the convention site subcommittee, said her group had considered offers from Odessa, Bay City and Amarillo and recommended the latter.

Before the vote could be taken, John Singleton Jr., Houston, 6th District committeeman favored a more central location.

ROVING

Davis, presiding, pointed out the committee had previously decided on the roving quarterly meetings to "let us see some of the folks and some of the folks see us."

In answer to Singleton's complaint about the distance, Miss Claudia M. Brummett, committeewoman from the 31st District, said, "It is as far from Amarillo to Houston as it is from Houston to Amarillo." She added that the Amarillo delegation makes all of the meetings. Urging a vote for Amarillo, she said, "We kind of feel like a step-child up there in the north."

Mrs. Gerald K. Fugit, Odessa, told the SDEC the Democrats of her area very much needed the psychological support of having the meeting there.

DECLINED

Joe Entzminger, 15th District committeeman from Bay City, declined to get into the squabble, saying he didn't want to compete with "two beautiful women."

Amarillo finally won by a narrow margin.

Mrs. Hurd reported that while the 1964 state convention had 2,834 delegates, the 1966 convention will have 6,285. No site for that convention has been selected. Invitations are welcomed, she said.

POLL TAX

The SDEC went on record as being unanimously for the elimination of the poll tax.

Other resolutions passed unanimously included commendations to Watson; to the 59th session of the Legislature for "an outstanding record of accomplishment"; to Gov. John Connally for "leadership of unexcelled character."

Astronauts May Stay Aloft An Extra Day

But Probably Be Down On Schedule

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The two U.S. Gemini astronauts may get a chance to surpass or match the Soviet marathon orbital record of 119 straight hours — perhaps pushing their space stint to nearly five days.

Flight director Chris Kraft said he didn't think that such an extending decision would be made — but that there was consideration of it. A decision, he said, could be put off until as late as the final orbit.

The Soviet record was set by Lt. Col. Valery Bykovsky who flew a one-man spacecraft for 119 hours and 6 minutes, June 14, 1963.

Kraft told a news conference that — despite his feelings—a decision to continue the flight could be made. If it was made, he said, it would be at high levels in the space agency administration.

The astronauts would have to switch to a secondary oxygen supply, but there was enough on board to support the added hours.

Earlier — in space — the two astronauts showed some signs of transient wear, and then got some gently chiding orders from their wives by radio from Gemini control.

"Have a drink of water, both of you," ordered Patricia McDivitt, wife of command pilot James A. McDivitt. "And no static on that."

"Jim, disconnect your headset communications at the neck ring (of your helmet) from now on at the start of your sleep period. No static on that either," she said in a sharp, businesslike voice.

After a little bit, she came back on and ordered again, "Drink some water."

"Do I sound a little hoarse?" asked her orbiting husband.

"Yes, you do sound hoarse. Now drink some water," she insisted.

VOICE LOWER

McDivitt's voice was a little lower than its normal tenor quality — but still a contrast with the baritone of pilot Edward H. White II. White's wife, Patricia, came on first taking over from the capsule communicator, Maj. Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom. She passed on the information that the second-stage booster had re-entered the earth's atmosphere and burned.

"A big improvement over Gus. I'll tell you that," said White's cheerful voice.

The wives were waiting at Gemini control as were White's two children, Eddie, 11, and Bonnie Lynn, 9 — awaiting the spacecraft's passage over the North American continent.

Without any introduction, the wives took over the capsule communicators chores, relaying instructions from flight officials, to their husbands above. Listeners could sense the surprise of the two astronauts.

Both astronauts were told they would have some 18 hours of inactivity and radio silence — and they were both expected to disconnect their radios to get some undistrubed rest.

WATER ROUTINE

Even White got the water routine, passed on by his wife from the flight surgeon.

The two astronauts passed the halfway mark of their four-day mission at 11:15 a.m. EST on Saturday as their spacecraft piled up 48 hours and 58 minutes of flight on its 32nd orbit high over the United States.

Flight officials and the astronauts alike puzzled over the identity of the mystery object with big arms sighted Friday from the spacecraft. They finally decided that — with distances so hard to measure — the object was likely to be the winged satellite Pegasus, biggest U.S. object in space.

BOOSTER BURNS

The second-stage booster — with which the astronauts failed to rendezvous in the first orbit — re-entered the atmosphere and burned up at 12:34 a.m.

Gemini 4's mission is due to end with splashdown in the Atlantic Ocean 400 miles southwest of Bermuda at 1:14 Monday.

At the 48hour mark in Africa flight, Mission Control Center reported that McDivitt had sa far eaten four space meals totaling 2,126 calories and had consumed about 6½ pints of White had downed five meals for 3,055 calories, and about seven pints of water.

MEDIATION TEAM WORKING

Noisy Rebel Demonstration Has Anti-U.S. Overtones

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — A crowd estimated at 15,000 turned out Saturday in the rebel-held portion of downtown Santo Domingo and gave a noisy demonstration of support for Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, the rebel leader. There were anti-U.S. overtones.

Long-time residents said it was the biggest crowd they had seen in the city since ex-President Juan Bosch returned from a European junket after his election in 1962.

'YANKEES OUT'

Speakers, including Caamano, were frequently interrupted with shouts of "Yankees out." Among the many placards critical of U.S. intervention was one in English that read, "A Warning to Bunker and Company — The People of the Dominican Republic Will Never Accept Political and Military Interference in Our International Affairs."

Ellsworth Bunker is U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States and a member of a new three-nation mediating team helping the OAS find a possible solution to the Dominican conflict.

Bunker and the other members of the mission, Ambassadors Ramon de Clairmont Duenas of El Salvador and Ilmar Penha Marinho of Brazil now have received a first-hand glimpse at the political chasm that separates the contending factions.

MEDIATORS

The mediators met with the rebels Friday and the civil-military junta Saturday. They also have conferred with the papal nuncio, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Emanuele Clarizio, one of the prominent early mediators, and with representatives of the United States and OAS here.

In their meeting with the mediators, the rebel high command reaffirmed its determination to stand by a restoration of the 1963 constitution before elections can be considered. President at the meeting at rebel headquarters were Caamano, his presidential minister, Hector Aristy, Foreign Minister Jottin Cury and the armed forces chief, Col. Manuel Ramon Montes Arache.

ACCEPTABLE

The rebels said an election or plebiscite was acceptable, within 60 days, after an interim government was installed under the 1963 constitution. All members of the rebel government also would resign.

The mediators asked about the possibility of amending the constitution before an interim government took over and were told this could be done only by a congress and not by them. The mediators did not spell out what amendments were contemplated, a high rebel source said.

The election formula, which has Washington's official endorsement, was first advanced by the civil-military junta last week. The mediators also discussed this on Saturday with junta members.

McDivitt Spots 2nd Satellite

HOUSTON (AP) — Astronaut James McDivitt spotted a second satellite in space Saturday night as his Gemini 4 capsule passed over the Pacific Ocean on its 38th orbit.

The object was quite a bit further away than the first satellite spotted by the Gemini 4 astronauts Friday, he reported.

McDivitt took a picture of the second satellite with his camera, but did not have the opportunity to report any details on what it looked like.

Cong Mortar Barrage Presses Ground War

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Communist guerrillas Saturday night launched a mortar barrage upon the district headquarters at Dak Sut, 50 miles southwest of Quang Ngai, scene last week of one of the Vietnamese war's major battles.

A U.S. military spokesman said two Vietnamese soldiers had been killed and three others injured as the Viet Cong's 81mm mortar shells blasted the headquarters.

BURNING

The headquarters buildings was reported burning.

Initial reports from Pleiku, an important U.S. post 50 miles south of Dak Sut, in the Vietnamese central highlands, said 12 Americans and 300 Vietnamese soldiers were at Dak Sut.

Intelligence reports said two battalions of Viet Cong are in the area.

The Vietnamese casualties brought to 304 the number of Saigon forces killed, wounded or missing in action in the last four days.

Approximately 200 Vietnamese were killed and that many wounded last weekend during the big offensive by the Viet Cong at Quang Ngai.

Some 600 U.S. Marines carried out a sweeping "search and destroy" mission in the area a few miles west of Da Nang air base, 80 miles north of Quang Ngai, on Friday.

SIX WOUNDED

Six Marines were wounded by snipers and boobytraps. Three Viet Cong and another 30 suspects were captured, mostly at the village of Le Son.

American air strikes against North Viet Nam continued, with five separate raids north of the Communist border Saturday.

Fourteen F105 Thunderchief fighter-bombers destroyed or damaged 12 trucks and two bridges on armed reconnaissance flights over highway routes. They ranged from 75 to 90 miles north of the border.

In another mission, 20 Navy A4 Skyhawks, supported by eight F8 Crusader fighters from the carrier Bon Homme Richard, bombed and strafed the Ben Thuy port facilities near Vinh, about 160 miles south of Hanoi.

A U.S. military spokesman said pilots reported they hit an offshore wharf with missiles and damaged a coal yard and warehouses. A direct bomb hit was scored on an antiaircraft site.

In other strikes, trucks and bridges were destroyed.

Several hundred Roman Catholic rioters clashed Saturday night with Saigon police, who fired shots in the air while the mob overturned and burned an official car.

One policeman was hurt by a flying object in the scuffle, but according to spokesmen of both the police and the rioters, there were no other casualties.

The situation remained tensed, with club-wielding youths and children holding several blocks in the outskirts of the city and police waiting just outside the area.

WAIT OUTSIDE

After the burning of the car police did not try to force their way back into the area even to tow out the burning and demolished car. An official said the police would wait outside for orders.

Coup In Sudan Averted As Arms, Suspects Seized

CAIRO (AP) — A broadcast from the Sudan said Saturday the government had averted a coup by seizing a quantity of arms and arresting a number of suspects in the alleged plot.

The announcement by the Omdurman radio broke several hours of silence between Khartoum, the Sudanese capital, and the outside world, which had raised concern of a possible political crisis in the Sudan.

Earlier, informed Egyptian sources in contact with the Sudanese capital said a general strike had been called for undisclosed reasons this morning. Other signs also pointed to political trouble.

The Omdurman radio broadcast, picked up in Cairo, said: "The Interior Ministry is investigating, with all suspects arrested, the arms seized in the capital."

The broadcast added that all public gatherings had been banned but gave no further details.

Other reports reaching Cairo said four Sudanese army officers, including a general, had been arrested.

The broadcast came after all telephone communications between Cairo and Khartoum had been broken earlier in the day. The last previous broadcast said without elaboration, "The Cabinet has a scheduled meeting tonight to discuss the demands put up by the workers."

Cairo Airport said it had lost radio communications with Khartoum's airport. A flight to Cairo by the Sudan Airways was canceled and no reason was given.

Without explanation, a dispatch from Khartoum Friday said Premier Sir el Khatim el Khalifa had resigned to make way for a new government.

Reviewing The Big Spring Week

With Joe Pickle

The big jolt of the week turned out to be the big jolt of the decade when the conference committee of the Texas legislature shuffled Howard County out of the 19th into the 17th district in its congressional redistricting. It was all done in the smoke-filled room without warning, and our shock was matched only by that of Rep. George Mahon, who has represented this district since its creation in 1934.

In the farming belt there has seldom been a busier week than the one immediately past. Farmers worked almost around the clock to get the remaining cotton seed in the ground. By the end of the week most fields were up to stands, and some had been up long enough to get almost to the point that a rain wouldn't cover it up. The next week to 10 days will be crucial.

Webb AFB and Big Spring welcomed Col. J. H. Sherwood as new commander of the Air Base group. He succeeds Col. Elmer Masters, who is leaving military service. Another familiar and much loved military personality here who is being shifted is Capt. James W. Coahoma school patrons pushing for school improvements must have learned from their experience in January when a bond proposal got plastered. This time the issue for $395,000 in bonds was resubmitted, the information campaign was carefully organized, and voters responded yesterday by giving the bonds their approval.

Coahomans Okay Bonds For School Improvements

COAHOMA — Voters in the Coahoma Independent School District balloted 268 to 147 Saturday in favor of issuing $395,000 in bonds to finance school expansion and improvements. This was a reversal of voters' feelings last January when a $450,000 bond issue was defeated.

Voters in the Coahoma box, at the city hall, voted 252 to 147 for the issue of the bonds, and Vincent, 16 voted for and none against. A swimming pool, called for under the January proposal, was omitted from the proposal Saturday.

Improvements and expansions to be made under the $395,000 issue, include: immediate remodeling of the old auditorium into five elementary classrooms, $25,000; 12 other classrooms to be built as needed, $110,000; Midway School improvements, $5,000; elementary - junior high gymnasium for physical education, $80,000; land purchases, west of the school grounds, $20,000; band hall, $25,000; elementary kitchen extension, $15,000; football stadium enlargement $35,000; track, $5,000; high school field house, $25,000; enlargement of junior high field house, $5,000; furniture, $7,000; utility extension $15,000; fencing, concessions and restrooms, $4,000; architect-engineer fees $15,000; fiscal agent $4,000.

"We will get started as soon as possible," Supt. W. A. Wilson said Saturday night. "The bonds must be approved on the state level and must be sold, before contracts can be awarded for the work," he continued. This will take several weeks."

The 22-year bonds will be financed through a 10 cent tax rate increase. The present rate is $1.80 per $100 valuation, and the new rate will be $1.90 per $100.

The valuation used for assessment is 40 per cent of actual, and the assessed valuation for the 1964-65 year was set at $13,890,000. Oil properties accounted for 75 per cent of this figure. The estimated assessed valuation for 1965-66 is $15,500,000.

The Coahoma school board and its supporters, went all-out to explain in detail the need for improvements and expansions called for in Saturday's election.

"We are happy with the outcome and feel that taxpayers in the Coahoma School District will continue to be proud of the system as a result of the Saturday vote," Wilson said.

Safety Net Ready For Astronauts

HOUSTON , Tex. (AP) — A huge safety net of men and machines stretches out beneath American's daring young men in the spacecraft Gemini 4, waiting to catch them when they fall.

And fall they must to return to earth on Monday.

The net is woven of some 15,000 people, 88 airplanes and 22 ships, most of them provided by the Department of Defense.

WASP

Prime recovery ship is the carrier Wasp in the Atlantic Ocean. Its weather office Saturday forecast continued favorable weather in this general recovery area. Water and air temperatures will be between 75 and 80 degrees, wave heights only two to four feet, and half to two-thirds of the sky should be clear when the astronauts make their descent.

The people standing by for the recovery include nurses ready to check astronauts' pulses, pararescue men prepared to jump into the ocean from low-flying planes, and officers reploying ships from one orbital path to another as the flight proceeds.

The planes include helicopters, propelior-driven amphibians, and the supersonic Phanton jet fighters; the ships, an amphibious landing craft, the tiny but quick minesweeper Nimble, and the carrier Wasp.

EYES

The electronic eyes of the Gemini tracking network — 18 land stations and four ships — keep constant watch on astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H White II. They also maintain voice contact with the astronauts.

The bulk of the recovery fleet is concentrated in the Atlantic Ocean where the flight of the Gemini 4 is programmed to end 97 hours, 50 minutes after it began. The Wasp will be standing by about 400 miles south of Bermuda to pick up the space buddies and their craft.

The Atlantic fleet is Task Force 140 under command of Rear Adm. Ben William Sarver, a man from the farm country of Minnesota and North Dakota who got his sea legs at the Naval Academy.

A smaller fleet, Task Force 130, is scattered across the Pacific where the only landing would be an emergency landing. It is commanded by Rear Adm. H. S. Persons at Kunia, Hawaii.

MOVING

Pararescuemen of the Air Rescue Service stand by their planes at airstrips along the orbital tracks around the world, a lineal distance of 1,575,000 miles. They are ready to fly from many corners of the globe: the Azores, the Canaries, Pago Pago, Johnnesburg, Mauritius, Singapore, Lima, Rio de Janeiro, Asencion.

Fourteen of this aircraft are concentrated in the Bermuda area, the planned landing area. These planes will be in the air when the Gemini 4 parachuets to a watery landing. They will home in on the spacecraft after it hits the water, and a crew of pararescuemen will jump into the water near it. They will attach a flotation collar around the capsule to prevent it from sinking, then give the crew any aid they require.

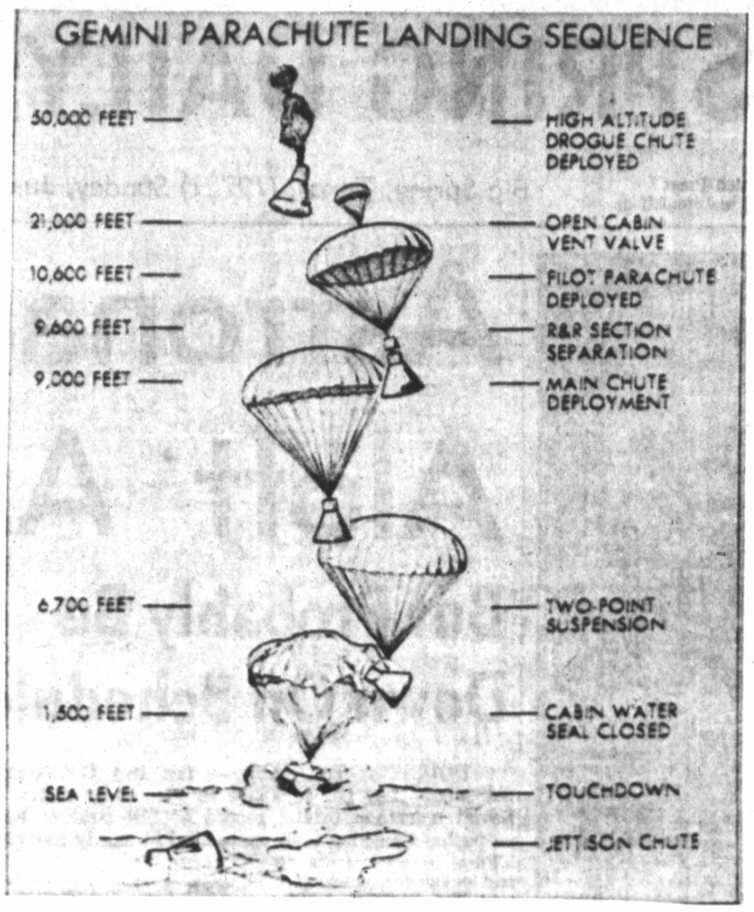
The other pararescue crews scattered round the world are ready to do the same job should an emergency landing be necessary.

STANDING BY

Also standing by in the worldwide net are 89 doctors, nurses and technicians. They provide astronautic support as needed. They can include any medical thing from a radio warning that suit temperatures are getting a little high, to emergency surgery once the Gemini crew has returned to earth.

Bernal Released

Federal authorities at Abilene have released Ralph Napoleon Bernal, 31, who gave Big Spring as his home address, to San Antonio for trial on charges of possession of heroin for purposes of sale. Bernal was picked up here by local authorities and taken before U. S. District Clerk Gladys Wall in San Antonio.



How Gemini 4 Will Land

This drawing illustrates how the Gemini 4 spacecraft will be parachuted into the Atlantic Ocean after it reenters the earth's atmosphere. The craft, manned by Astronauts James McDivitt and Edward White is scheduled to land Monday June 7 after a 4-day, 62 orbital flight. (NASA Photo via AP WIREPHOTO)

Texas Weather Is Calming Down

By The Associated Press

Rains fell widely over Central and northeast Texas Saturday, with some light moisture extending south to the Rio Grande.

Most of the falls were light, but enough to drive tractors, combines and cotton choppers from the fields. And in nearly every part of Texas, harvesting and weed control were growing problems.

But on the ranges and in some of the row crops, the rain was needed, for winds and heat had dried a lot of the earlier moisture.

Most of West Texas was fair, except for the upper Panhandle which was cloudy. Southeast and extreme South Texas were partly cloudy and quite warm.

Other sections were several degrees cooler than on Friday.

The Weather Bureau said clearing was gradually moving eastward and that North Central and Northeast Texas likely would be free of rain by dawn. A few showers were expected in South Texas Sunday.

The rains that fell were mainly light, and mainly without the punishing winds.

On Friday night, a tornado struck a farm house near Shamrock, 90 miles east of Amarillo, killing elderly W. H. Dees. Another tornado was spotted near Silverton in the southern Panhandle. Yet another touched ground south of Vernon in the Red River Valley. Except for the Dees house, the tornadoes apparently did no harm.

High winds at Dallas struck again at the Addison Airport, which sustained $500,000 damage in a windstorm a week earlier. Hangar doors were blown out and six planes were damaged.

Here and there, North Texas spots were Wichita Falls and Carrollton had temporary power losses due to severed lines.

REAL STORY NOT TOLD

Value Of Air Strikes In Question

By BEN BASSETT

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Those who predicted that U.S. air strikes in North Viet Nam would bring a decision in the Vietnamese war have had four months to prove their point.

About the most they can claim is that the air strikes have helped advance the day when some solution can be sighted and it is not even easy to back that contention.

The bombings began Feb. 7. Hundreds of sorties have blasted the northern area ruled by Ho Chi Minh. The announcements tell of scores of bridges and other targets damaged or wiped out.

The real story of the effect has not been told, for several reasons.

No Western reporters are in North Viet Nam nor are any taken along on the raids, as was done in World War II. The returning pilots are normally not available for newsmen's questioning and what they could tell of observable results is questionable anyway.

U.S. officials depict the bombings as heavily oriented in the direction of psychological warfare as a means of convincing the powers that rule from Hanoi and their Chinese backers that theirs is a losing game, that they are likely to suffer greater damage unless they do their part to call off their help to the Viet Cong forces fighting on the ground in South Viet Nam.

On the evidence available they have not been convinced. There would be a lot of surprised officials in Saigon if Ho Chi Minh waved a white flag tomorrow.

The war that seems likely to bring the payoff—the ground war—continues by bits and pieces across the miles of fruitful fields and wide jungle areas that make up South Viet Nam's countryside.

The idea that the Saigon government's forces are fighting this war against the Viet Cong with an occasional U.S. adviser standing by still is promoted.

But not so much attention can be paid to it because the U.S. commitment in manpower has gone up more than 200 per cent in two years, with the result that 46,500 U.S. servicemen are here now.

Waiting Subs Not Detected

WASHINGTON (AP) — American missile submarines now have been on firing stations off the Red Chinese and eastern Russian coasts for six months — apparently undetected by the Communists.

It was learned Saturday that none of the four Polaris submarines presently in the western Pacific force has reported any approach by antisubmarine ships, submarines or aircraft which might be seeking to plot positions for use in event of hostilities.

The obvious procedure in a hunt for the American missile subs would be to lay off the approaches to Guam —where a Polaris submarine tender provides a forwarding operating base — and then seek to follow a submarine as it clears the harbor.

The U.S. Navy has its own antisubmarine forces, including nuclear-powered attack submarines, deployed in the western Pacific. One of their missions is to warn of the presence of foreign submarines or ships.

Soviet craft and planes are seen in the Sea of Japan on occasions when U.S. ships operate in those waters, but the Russian ships and planes appear to be engaged in surface and air scrutiny rather than actual antisubmarine activities.

In the tubes of the four Polaris boats already deployed are 64 missiles with a destructive power of more than six million tons of TNT. The range of their missiles reaches deep into Russian Siberia and covers all major targets in Red China.

The four submarines now deployed are the Daniel Boone, Tecumseh, Ulysses S. Grant and Stonewall Jackson. Sometime later this year or early in 1966 the two remaining subs of the western Polaris force will join the other four. The two are expected to be the Kamehameha and Mariano G. Vallejo.

The deployment of the four missile submarines has facilitated assignment of the attack carriers of the 7th Fleet to the tactical bombing missions against North Vietnamese targets.

Stock Market Extends Losses

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market last week had one of its worst losses of the year and extended its weekly series of declines to four straight.

As the week ended, Wall Street analysts were citing the level of around 900 in the Dow Jones industrial average as a support line that could provide a springboard for a traditional summer rally — if the support really holds.

Overhanging Wall Street and reaching its influence into the White House itself was a statement by the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, William McChesney Martin, which was cited as a factor in the week's decline. Martin said there are "disquieting similarities" between the present and the boom that preceded the depression of the 1930s — but he added that the United States has a good chance of avoiding another depression if it heeds certain lessons.

Some Wall Streeters asserted that other factors were more important in the decline. The analysts cited six-months profit taking on stocks bought late last year and they also mentioned an unusually large budget of big security offerings coming up this month.

This includes six million shares of Ford stock offered by the Ford Foundation and $250 million of long-term notes by Chase Manhattan Bank. These will sop up a lot of investment money from the market.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 17.17 to 900.87, its worst loss since the week ended May 22 when it fell 17.61.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 7.4 to 328.4. This was its sharpest decline since the week ended Nov. 23, 1963, when it fell 9.8 in reaction to the assassination of President Kennedy.

Most State Farmers Have Plenty Of Moisture Now

COLLEGE STATION (AP)—Texas farmers found weather conditions generally unfavorable last week.

Rains, spotted hail, winds, weeds and insects all beset farmers, said John Hutchison, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Much of the state now has adequate to surplus moisture and farmers, especially in the eastern two-thirds of the state, would like to see warm sun.

Panhandle moisture ranged from short to adequate. Spotted hail caused some damage. Prospects for irrigated wheat were good but dryland crops were below average. Harvesting is expected to start in a week to 10 days. Cotton seedling disease is causing trouble. Grain sorghum planting is being rushed.

More rain in the Rolling Plains, ranging from showers to 3 inches, left moisture adequate. Wheat harvesting is general when conditions permit. Two counties reported hail damage. Cotton and sorghum plantings are continuing.

More rain in North Central Texas hampered all field work. Row crops are suffering. Grains have been damaged by rains and winds. Sun and dry weather are needed for cotton, corn, sorghums and harvesting.

Weed control in row crops is a serious problem in Northeast Texas. Spraying of pecan trees is under way. The strawberry crop was short.

FARTHER WEST

In far West Texas, it is still dry west of the Pecos. Light to heavy rains in other parts improved moisture and ranges. Irrigated crops were excellent. dryland crops are being planted. labor was short.

Moisture is adequate in West Central Texas and sun is needed for the grain harvest and cotton planting. Sorghums grew well. A good pecan crop is set. Sheep shearing goes on.

Moisture in Central Texas is often surplus. Crops have been damaged by excessive rains. Practically no small grain has been harvested. Some cotton is still to be planted or replanted.

East Texas moisture is adequate to surplus. Hay is ready for harvest. Some oats were damaged by rains. Cotton damaged by flooding is being replanted. Corn is making good progress.

Wet fields are hampering the southeast and weeds are a problem in cotton. A lot of hay, cotton and other field crops was lost to excessive rains and flooding, but some of the cotton in the flood area will survive. Cotton is squaring, corn tasseling, sorghum heading and pastures are growing.

South Central Texas moisture is good. Ranges are good, crops are growing well but weeds are a problem in cotton. The flax harvest is on. Grasshoppers are a menace.

Moisture is adequate in most of South Texas and cotton is making excellent progress with only light to moderate insect infestation. Vegetables are moving from the Valley. Tractor operators and vegetable harvesters are in short supply.

Light Plane Training Pilots Get Instructions

By M. A. WEBB

The first steps in preparing for the Air Force's new training program for pilots are being taken at Howard County Airport and at Webb Air Force Base. Six of the T-41A Cessna light propellor driven craft are at the airport where civilian instructors are being given standardization instructions by Webb Air Force Base personnel.

Wilbur Paris, of Central American Airways, was in Big Spring during the week to supervise the opening phase and assign a part of his personnel. Central American has the contract with the Air Force to give incoming student pilots pre-jet training. The program will involve two types of training. One, for students with no former training, will take 30 hours of flight training over a six-week period, while students holding private licenses through ROTC training, will get 12 hours of training in flight time.

"We have 12 men here as instructors," Paris said. "Half of them will start immediately in getting standardization instruction from Webb Air Force Base personnel. When they have completed this six-hour course, another six will come in for training. The first 62 students will begin training on July 29. We will have completed the training of our own personnel by the middle of July."

A retired Air Force colonel, J. C. Wolf, who was also here during the week, will be in charge of the training program in Big Spring for Central American Airways. Paris listed the names of some of the first group to train as instructors. They are Maj. Edward Milosevich, Big Spring; Victor Ames, Big Spring; Dallas Shirley, San Antonio; and C. W. Compton, Air Force major, retired.

Three Webb Air Force Base officers will be assigned as controlling personnel to train Central Airways men, and will be attached to the school. They are Capt. Donald D. Anderson, Capt. Glenn W. Young, and Lt. Robert J. McCusker.

Twenty-one of the new T-41As have been delivered to Webb AFB, and six have been flown to Howard County Airport for initial training of instructors. The airplanes are the equivalent to the Cessna 172, but have the rear seats taken out and full equipment added for communications, navigation and other required training. The single-engine planes bear Air Force markings, and the metal coverings are unpainted.

The office-building-hangar is going up fairly fast now, with Ray Dunlap as contractor for Howard County, and will be ready for use when the program begins. The grass "island" between the ramp and building will be topped for use, and will give a solid base in front of the new building.

Charles Leahy Dies In Dallas

Charles Leahy, brother - in-law of Glynn Jordan, died Friday at 9:30 a.m. in the VA Hospital in Dallas after a long illness with cancer. He and Mrs. Leahy had visited here with Glynn Jordan and friends on numerous occasions.

Services will be held Sunday afternoon at the Denton Funeral Chapel in Fordyce, and burial will be in that city's cemetery.

Key Personnel For Flight Training

Wedding Bells Are Ringing

Howard County wedding bells are going to get their hardest work-out in years this month At least that's the impression of Pauline S. Petty, county clerk.

Mrs. Petty said Saturday that she is issuing more June wedding licenses than she has ever done before.

There were eight licenses issued June 1 and seven June 2. At last count, 19 had been issued.

331st Back From Special Mission To Caribbean

The 331st Fighter-Interceptor Squadron, an Air Defense Command unit based at Webb AFB, was "back home" in force Saturday.

The squadron, commanded by Lt. Col. M. W. Sharek, had completed a special assignment order which took it out of Big Spring under rush conditions on May 7, when the Dominican Republic trouble erupted.

There was no official communication available on where the 331st had been, or what its specific mission was, but obviously it played a role in the U.S. "show of strength" in the Caribbean as ordered by President Johnson as the "Dominican crisis grew."

"All I can say," said Col. Sharek, "is that our men were given a job to do, and they did it—splendidly. The whole period passed without incident without major problem. The troops maintained highest morale, were at peak efficiency. Officers and men alike responded as they were expected to respond in a situation of this nature. I am paying them my whole-hearted tribute."

And, said the 331st skipper, the men really worked, on their distant assignment. "It was the biggest flying month in 104 history," he said. The squadron's aircraft are the speedy F-104's, equipped with high speed cannon and capable of carrying missiles.

The entire personnel and all aircraft dispatched from here were back Saturday.

Sweetheart Of Guard Unit

Miss Big Spring (Nancy Haralson) is perched athwart the barrel of a 155 Howitzer mounted on an M44 as she takes aim on the Texas National Guard sweetheart contest. Units from over the state are entering their candidates, one of whom will be named Texas National Guard sweetheart. With ammunition like this, said Capt. Johnnie Hooper, commanding A battery, 3rd Battalion, 231nd Artillery, 49th Armored Division, the unit can't lose. The guard unit goes to camp at North Fort Hood June 18-Aug. 1.

Don Hickson Aims At National Title

Don Hickson, 14, regional champ, is in Washington, D.C. today for a crack at the national Spelling Bee title.

The actual contest comes off Wednesday and Thursday, but before and after, Don will face a crowded schedule of events that will take him to a score of points of interest.

With his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hickson, 623 State, and sister, Cynthia, Don left Saturday for Dallas, where the family boarded a jet liner for the nation's capital. They will return here a week from today —with the national crown, they hope.

"This has been a family affair," Bob Hickson said. "This is Don's third year and we've all sort of been in this together. It's a wonderful experience and a wonderful program. I hope The Herald will keep sponsoring it because it is a good thing. All the studying Don has had to do has splashed over into other school work."

Monday morning the Hickson's have an appointment with Rep. George Mahon in the Sam Rayburn building. He has arranged some special tours for them in addition to the round that Bee officials have set up. Those originally planned included visits to Congress, the FBI, Lincoln and Jefferson Memorials, Ford's Theatre, Pentagon, and a host of other points.

In his first year of competition, Don didn't do much. The second year he won the Runnels Junior High and Howard County title. This year, he went all the way and captured the regional championship at Lubbock, thus qualifying for the national finals.

RECEIVES DOCTORATE
Rev. Lloyd V. Hamilton, Dr. Gordon Bennett (rt)

McMurry Honors Rev. Hamilton

ABILENE — The man who has been superintendent of the Big Spring District of the Methodist Church for two years, Rev. Lloyd V. Hamilton, last week was among three Methodist leaders honored by McMurry College in Abilene at its spring commencement.

Rev. Hamilton was given the doctor of divinity degree by McMurry. Also honored were Rev. H. Dewitt Seago, superintendent of the Brownfield District, and Chester T. French, Methodist layman, Albuquerque, N. M.

Dr. Hamilton last week moved to Lubbock where he will become pastor of St. Luke's Methodist Church. He was given the new assignment last week as the Northwest Texas Conference met in Lubbock. The new Big Spring District superintendent will be Dr. Hubert H. Bratcher who has been serving as Stamford District superintendent.

Reading the citation for Hamilton's doctorate was Dr. Marvin E. Boyd, Lubbock, executive secretary for the Northwest Texas Conference Council.

McMurry graduated 148 students in its spring commencement. Speaker was Dr. Charles Pardue Bunch, Artesia, N. M., physician and lay leader in the Methodist Church.

Dr. Hamilton came to Big Spring two years ago from Borger. He has served charges at Sagerton, O'Brien, Knox City, Rule, Crosbyton, Memphis, and Borger.

Dr. Hamilton is a graduate of Wilson (Texas) High School, received his BA degree from McMurry in 1938, and got his bachelor of divinity degree from Perkins School of Theology at SMU in 1941.

He has been active in the Lions Club and Rotary Club, and is associated with the Masonic orders, including the Blue Lodge, Scottish Rite, and Shrine.

He has served on the NWT Conference Board of Education 14 years, part of the time as chairman of the committee on adult work. He has been a member of the committee on urban life, is a trustee of McMurry College, and a trustee of the Wesley Foundation of Texas University.

Post Abolished

QUEBEC (AP)—The post of attorney general in Quebec was abolished last week when Claude Wagner was sworn in as minister of justice.

No Decision On Scurry College

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Education approved Saturday a junior college for Fort Worth.

By a 16 to 2 vote, the board waived its regular procedure of appointing a study committee to allow the Fort Worth sponsors to proceed with plans for a junior college.

Nearby Dallas recently was allowed to start a four-campus junior college. There are 31 junior colleges in Texas.

The board also heard petitions for junior colleges in Eagle Pass, Waco, Bee County and Scurry County. Committees were appointed to study the applications more thoroughly.

The Waco petition was presented by Henry V. Griffin. The school would be located on part of the James Connally Air Force Base, which soon is to be deactivated and deeded to the state. Texas A&M University will establish a technical institute on most of the base, but Griffin said A&M was willing to share part of the property with the junior college.

Harry Provence, president of the Waco Chamber of Commerce and editor-in-chief of the Waco Times-Herald and News-Tribune, said that about 5,000 civilian and military people worked at the base at its peak capacity, and he said he believed there is adequate room for A&M's technical institute and a junior college.

Griffin said the Waco area had backed a junior college for 14 months and learned only 60 days ago that they might be able to use the air base facilities.

He said the A&M institute will not offer courses toward any degree program.

NOT MUCH CHANCE

California Senate Votes To Split Populous State

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—California's embattled Senate, fighting reapportionment like the '49ers beat off gold mining claim jumpers, has acted to split the nation's most populous state in two.

But the State Assembly, Gov. Edmund G. Brown—and maybe the Congress of the United States—all appeared ready to head the move off at the pass.

Sen. Richard J. Dolwig, a Republican from the San Francisco Bay area community of San Mateo, offered his plan as an answer to a federal court order for the rural-dominated Senate to reapportion itself by July 1.

Dolwig reacted in angry, frontier fashion to an order that would turn the legislative upper house over to populous counties —particularly those in the southern part of the state.

But the Assembly, dominated by Southern California, was certain to turn the plan down.

"We're one state, one California," snapped Assemblyman Don Allen, D-Los Ungeles, whose assembly committee would have to approve the legislation.

Gov. Brown has spoken similarly in the past.

The Senate voted 27-12 Friday night for a constitutional amendment dividing the state at the Tehachapi Mountains. A 22-16 vote sent a companion bill to the Assembly. Pending is a resolution asking Congress to approve the separation.

The southern state would have a population of 10.3 million—the third largest in the nation. It would consist of Los Angeles, Ventura, San Bernardino, Orange, Riverside, San Diego and Imperial counties.

The northern state, which would have 7.8 million people, would have 51 counties.

Dominican Refugee Evacuation

Capt. Carl A. Wyrick (right), 776th Troop Carrier Squadron pilot, and his Loadmaster, assist a 96-year-old Dominican refugee after an air evacuation from San Isidro to San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Coahoman Played Big Part In Airlift

By M. A. WEBB

COAHOMA — Capt. Carl A. Wyrick, 31-year-old Coahoman, played a leading part in refugee evacuation from Dominican trouble spots, and in airlifting personnel and equipment into the area. His was the first aircraft on the ground and he, along with Col. William L. Welch, wing commander serving as Airlift Task Force commander, took over the San Isidro Air Base tower and directed landing operations for the other pilots. There were 144 Hercules aircraft in the first operation landing April 30.

DELIVERED HERALD

Capt. Wyrick graduated from Coahoma High School in 1952. He attended Howard County Junior College, and worked at Cosden refinery, before entering the service in February, 1954. The captain delivered the Big Spring Herald in Coahoma for four years while in school. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Wyrick, Coahoma.

The young pilot has had a varied career in the Air Force since getting his wings in 1955 at Reese Air Force Base in Lubbock. He was first stationed at NORAD headquarters in Colorado Springs, served two years in France, although Pope Air Force Base was his home base; was on a tour in Viet Nam for six months in 1962 when he was with the first Air Force unit of C123s in the area; he served a tour in the Congo during the air lift.

Capt. Wyrick is now at home for a three-week visit, following the air lift into and out of Santo Domingo.

"I was in the process of enrolling at North Carolina State University when the Dominican trouble broke out," the captain said, "and now I am scheduled to attend the University of Nebraska at Omaha next year to complete work on my B.S. degree. I intend to make a career of the Air Force."

DECORATIONS

When asked about his decorations he listed the Air Medal with four oak leaf clusters for 127 combat missions in Viet Nam, Air Force Commendation award, Presidential Unit award with one oak leaf cluster, Air Force Outstanding Unit award with two clusters, Air Force Expeditionary award with two bronze stars for action in the Congo, Viet Nam and in Lebanon (1958), Good Conduct medal, National Defense and Air Force Reserve Award, and Sharpshooter's medal.

"I was in command of the first formation into San Isidro," he said. "I could not speak Spanish, but Col. Welch, who was with me, could. We managed to get our C-130 Hercules on the ground after we were told, following a political decision, that there would be no airborne assaul'. We 'hot-footed' it to the tower and managed to get the other 143 craft on the ground. It was quite a chore since much of the equipment was loaded for 'drops' instead of landing.

"We remained at the air base for eight days," Capt. Wyrick continued, "and we had our problems in keeping a continuous operation going to get men and equipment in, and refugees out. Much of the equipment was unloaded while the airplanes were turning around, and they averaged about 15 minutes from touchdown to takeoff.

LIGHTS FAILED

"The landing lights failed a couple of times, so we commandered all the automobiles, trucks, and other vehicles with headlights, lined them on the runway and kept planes coming in and taking off. We had as many as 1,500 vehicles at one time.

"During our stay in San Isidro we lived in the Hercules-Hilton Hotel (our airplane) because that was all we could find. The planes were flying between the field and Ramey AFB in San Juan for as many as three trips a day hauling wounded, refugees, and returning supplies. Food and water, plus all the ice we could scrounge, were brought in. Ice was at a premium. It was a miserable, job, but we got it done."

Capt. Wyrick's crew members aboard the "Hercules - Hilton" on the frist landing were: Capt. Warren L. Long, co-pilot; Capt. Bobby R. Gassleot and 1st Lt. John E. Coble, navigators; T. Sgt. John L. Daly, flight engineer; and S. Sgt. Miguel P. Cadiz and S. Sgt. Bobby C. King, loadmasters.

PEOPLE

"We came in contact with all kinds and ages of people in the evacuation," he said. "Some were wounded, some ill and needed immediate treatment, and some were in good health and spirits. We evacuated one 96-year-old woman who was very active for her age."

The captain is attached to a TAC unit at Pope AFB, N. C., and this unit's crews flew more than 1,000 missions during the first six days of the effort by the Organization of American States to restore peace.

Permits Push Building Totals Higher For '65

Construction in Big Spring for 1965 pushed above the $1,670,000 mark during May, although the month's activity was the lowest amount recorded during the first five months of this year.

A total of $203,652 in building permits were recorded in the city building inspector's office during the month, a drop from $394,670 the previous month.

High month for the year remains February, when $563,076 in permits were recorded.

Two major projects were begun during May, for the new sanctuary of Trinity Lutheran Church, to be constructed at 1801 Virginia, with the permit at $43,000, and a new Gulf service station, to be constructed at 616 E. IS 20 with the permit at $32,000.

South Mountain, Inc., recorded a permit for $15,000 for a foundation at the new Highland Shopping Center at FM 700 and US 87.

Six new residences were begun during May, totalling $67,500, and 16 residential additions, $24,295.

The number of re-roofing jobs begun on residences showed a hike during the months, after the recent hail damage. A total of 21 permits were taken out, totalling $7,372.

Other activity included two residential remodeling permits, $1,300; three moves of residences, $625; one demolishing permit, $3,500; and four business signs, $1,060.

DEAR ABBY

Doubting Thomas!

DEAR ABBY: I sure get a kick out of your column. I don't suppose you really write all of it yourself. You probably have a staff of writers. And that picture of you is a lulu! How old is it? I'll bet you're really a fat old maid taking out her frustrations by telling other people how to run their lives. You get a letter with just one side of the story and you hand out advice like you knew all the answers. I'm a 31-year-old bachelor. And if that's your picture, and it's not 20 years old, I might even ask you to marry me. (How would you like to live in Salt Lake City?)

WOODY

DEAR WOODY: I don't have any writers, so I'll take all the credit for what is printed here. (And all the blame, too.) I don't give advice, I express an opinion. To give advice one must know both sides, but I do the best I can with the facts I have, and if I am able to help, I'm happy. The picture is mine, and it's comparatively recent. Salt Lake City would be fine with me, but I'm 15 years older than you, and very much married, so I won't hold you to your offer.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I am 24 years old and just had the most bewildering proposal of marriage. He's a young man I've known a long time, but I never dreamed he was thinking of me as "wife material." He said he would marry me if I got my nose fixed. Now, I do have a big nose, but I accepted it as part of me, and it goes with my face, so I never considered getting it fixed. Frankly, I don't think it would make that much difference. It's not as though my nose stands between me and my being a perfect beauty. This young man would make a good husband, but I wonder if I should take his proposal under consideration.

MISS S.

DEAR MISS S.: If your nose has never bothered you and you've never considered getting it "fixed," tell the young man that your nose goes where you go. And if he doesn't want you, nose and all, heaven knows he's not for you.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: Can you answer a few very simple questions for me? I am the mother of four children and this is very important to me. What is the correct definition of "common-law marriage"? Where is it recognized? What does "community property" mean? Is that the same all over? Exactly what is the legal definition of "bigamy"? And finally, what does "extradite" mean? I thank you.

GETTING NERVOUS

DEAR GETTING: You don't need a dictionary—you need a lawyer. I suggest you get one immediately. It's his business to keep a confidence, so don't be afraid to tell him the truth.

Students Recruited For Farm Labor Shortage

About 5,000 Texas high school students have been recruited to meet the farm labor shortage resulting from the end of the bracero program, Henry LeBlanc, farm placement chief of the Texas Employment Commission, states.

Big Spring High School assistant coach Cliff Patton has organized two A-Teams totalling 54 boys. The A-Team program is derived from "Athletes in Temporary Employment as Agricultural Manpower," however not all are athletes.

Although Arizona employers have already contracted for 23 teams of 20-31 El Paso area boys each, and farmers in Michigan and other states have expressed interest in hiring them. Texas farmers have not shown much interest. LeBlanc said that a number of Texas growers have agreed to hire the boys, but that more jobs are needed as the number of boys volunteering exceeded expectations.

TEC officials are reluctant to send teams out of the state if they are needed in Texas. "Whereas the out-of-state jobs might provide a little more glamour, the boys will actually realize more profit from their work if they can be employed nearer their homes," LeBlanc said.

Those who hire the boys must furnish housing approved by the U. S. Department of Labor, and menus developed by the agriculture department.

Meeting Slated

The Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association will conduct its summer quarterly meeting at the Lincoln Hotel in Odessa, June 18-19. The meeting will be in conjunction with the Miss Wool of Texas Pageant the night of June 18 in Ector High School Auditorium in Odessa.

Bank Slaying Scene

Three bank employees, shot in the back by an icy-calm killer, lie dead on the floor of their office in the Farmers State Bank of Big Springs, Neb. They are Mrs. Lois Hothan, 35; Andreas Kjeldgaard, 77, bank president; and Glenn Hendricksen, 59, cashier, at right, partially obscured by opened cash drawers looted by the bandit. A fourth bank employee, 25-year-old Franklin Kjeldgaard, was wounded and taken to a Denver hospital (AP WIREPHOTO)

Officers Have No Clues To Killer

BIG SPRINGS, Neb. (AP) — Pounding rains left western Nebraska back roads awash Saturday and frustrated haggard peace officers seeking the track of the cold-blooded killer of three bank employes.

A fourth man shot in the back by the cool, polite killer rallied from his critical wounds in a Denver hospital raising hope he could shed some light on the apparently unprovoked slayings.

WAIT TO QUIZ

FBI men stood by in the hospital waiting a go-ahead from doctors to question the wounded man, Franklin Kjeldgard, 25.

The killer, apparently concealing a 22-caliber automatic pistol in a briefcase, walked brazenly into the little Farmers State Bank just before noon Friday.

He ordered the four employes to lie on their stomachs, scooped about $1,500 from the cash drawers, and then fired point-blank shots into their backs. Three were killed instantly.

With a polite, "Good morning," to a customer who brushed by him as he left, the gunman walked to his late model car parked beside the red brick bank and drove off. Twenty-four hours later officers could find no trace of him.

Fear of the trigger-happy gunman gripped the area. Streets of this western Nebraska village of 510 persons were deserted as the gloomy rain began to spatter against windows late in the day.

The rains poured harder during the night, and this morning some roads in the area were under four to five feet of water.

An air search launched after the slayings fell victim to rain.

Criminal investigators of the state patrol, the FBI and Sheriff Floyd Stahr all had the same story:

The search thus far had been fruitless.

The slayings had all but wiped out the staff of the little country bank that served ranchers, wheat farmers and sugar beet raisers. Dead were the president, Andreas Kjeldgard, 77; Glenn Hendricksen, 59, the cashier, and Lois Ann Hothan, 35, the bookkeeper.

Stanley Melton Dies Saturday

Stanley Melton, 65, long time resident of Big Spring, died early Saturday in a hospital in Austin.

The body was returned here, and arrangements are in charge of Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home.

He was born in Charleston, W. Va., on March 21, 1900 and moved here in 1912 when his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Melton, purchased a ranch next to the Tom Good spread in southern Borden County. After 3½ years on that place, they moved into Big Spring, and later Mr. Melton, before his death, and the boys operated a ranch in the near Sierra Blanca.

His mother later was married to C. S. Holms, and Stanley Melton made his home with her at 611 Gregg for many years.

Survivors include one brother, U. Brent Melton, San Jose, Calif., who was reported en route here Saturday, and one sister, Mrs. Howard Duff, who resides in Washington state.

Deleon's Sanity Hearing Postponed

A sanity hearing, scheduled before a jury Friday, was postponed because of the inability of the defendant, Antonio DeLeon, to answer questions. A jury had been seated for the hearing in Judge Ralph Calton's 118th District Court, and was excused.

DeLeon had been indicted for theft on charges of stealing Chief of Police Jay Banks' car after he was released from the city jail on a vagrancy charge Aug. 24, 1964.

Judge Caton said he did not know just when the hearing would be reset because he will be holding court in Martin County for the next two weeks.

Big Springers were capsule happy Thursday evening. Conscious that we were in the path of orbiting Edward White and James McDivitt, scores of people jumped to the conclusion that a research balloon in the northern skies had some connection with the space flight. It happened to be a plastic balloon launched at Palestine earlier in the day. It made such a showing because it was about the size of a football field.

Deputy Calls Shots 'Silly And Pathetic'

BOGALUSA, La. (AP) — Chief Deputy Doyle Holliday, a barrel-chested veteran law officer, said Saturday the firing of six shots at his home was "uncalled for, silly and pathetic."

Holliday is the chief criminal investigator for this racially troubled area, and Washington Parish. He said he and his wife were sitting in their den when a car roared down his gravel driveway Friday night and six shots were fired.

Holliday said he ran from his house with a 357-magnum service revolver and fired six rounds at the fleeing car.

No one was injured in the house. Two of Holliday's three sons were asleep. The small-caliber bullets slammed into a window air-conditioning unit, the side of the wood-frame house and the carport.

The Holliday home is about six miles west of Bogalusa and about 75 yards off the road.

Holliday told newsmen, "I don't know who did it, but they aren't going to scare me out of my duty. But I am concerned when they start messing with a man's home and family."

Holliday had spent most of the day helping direct the investigation of the ambush slaying of O'Neal Moore, one of the first two Negro deputies in the parish.

One white man, Ernest R. McElveen, 41, Bogalusa, has been charged with murder. He was arrested a short time after the shooting near Tylertown, Miss., about 40 miles northeast of Bogalusa.

The governor said the names of those who could furnish information would be kept secret. He added the identities would go unknown unless essential in successful prosecution.

SIDELIGHTS ON SPACE TRIP

Wife Uses Private Code, Astronauts To Be Woozy

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — You know how it is when your wife wants to tell you something and there are a lot of people around. She uses the private husband-wife code which tells you, "It's time to leave this cocktail party" or sometimes, even, "You're really not such a bad guy."

That seems to be how it was Saturday when Patricia McDivitt talked from Mission Control Center here with Gemini 4 command pilot James A. McDivitt as he whizzed around the world.

ALL WOULD HEAR

Mrs. McDivitt knew the whole world would get to hear a rebroadcast of their chat and read a transcription of it in the newspapers.

"Your left eye is looking good," she said.

"How'd you know my left eye was red?" said McDivitt.

"I said your left eye is looking good."

"Okay."

What did it mean? Did it refer to some esoteric space medicine problem picked up by electronic sensors here?

Dr. Charles E. Berry, chief medical officer, was asked about it in a news conference Saturday.

"It was some private communication with them," he said. "I honestly don't know what it meant, and I assume only Jim and Pat knew what it meant."

WOOZY

If you've ever been forced to stay in bed for a few weeks, your first woozy attempt to get back on your feet gave you an insight into what astronauts James A. McDivit and Edward H. White II will experience when they return to earth.

The spacemen not only are reclining as they revolve around the earth, they virtually are immobilized. Their hearts are beating somewhat more rapidly than normal, but without the force of gravity in effect, the blood doesn't circulate properly.

When the men first stand on their feet in the earth's atmosphere, the blood will rush downward and may cause the astronauts to faint.

Doctors are expected to have adrenalin or other heart stimulants on hand to counter the reaction. They will closely study the mens' circulatory system in hope of being able to cope with the problem in future flights.

• • •

CUT CAKE

While astronaut Edward H. White II whirls around the globe, his family and friends have been snacking on a large cake which is a replica of the Gemini 4 spacecraft and the top section of the Titan 2 booster rocket.

• • •

How would you like to live four days in the front seat of a small automobile?

That's about what James McDivitt and Edward White are doing in their 97-hour trip around the world.

Norman Shyken, McDonnell Aircraft Corp. Gemini spacecraft crew engineer, said, "Ed and Jim's living space has about as much room as the front seat of a Volkswagen."

Yet in this small space, the two astronauts are eating, sleeping working and exercising — and doing it well.

John Hodge, Manned Spacecraft Center flight director, said the most significant part of the flight to him so far, besides the walk in space, was the "real, good, solid spacecraft we have."

The trouble with calling Air Force Maj. Edward H. White II's solo excursion into space either a stroll or walk is that there just isn't anything to stroll or walk on up there.

And, in fact, the back and forth walking motion of his legs — had he tried to walk — might have generated some torque and given him a tumbling motion.

He had a much better way of getting around anyway. He carried a space gun not too unlike the kind that cartoon-strop spacemen used to get around when space travel was still a fiction.

Two jets pointed backward and one pointed forward, and they spit out oxygen when White pressed one of two triggers. This way he was pushed forward or backward at will — propelled gently at any rate in the resistance-free weightless world of space.

FALLING

The only verbs that count probably are "falling" or "floating" — since White on the end of his golden tether was actually falling around the earth at about 17,500 miles an hour.

• • •

A "water gun," a "cap pistol" and improvements for the propulsion gun carried by Edward H. White II in his space walk are being developed for future space flights.

Harold Johnson, division chief of crew systems at the Manned Spacecraft Center, said one piece of equipment uses a series of tiny rockets. "It is sort of a cap gun," he said. "It fires 20 times a second and gives about three times the energy of White's space gun."

Vandals Break Windows, Rip School Bus Seats

School buses were damaged by vandals to the extent of $740 Friday night, according to Bill Gray, Big Spring school maintenance superintendent. Two new buses had windshields broken, with the cost of replacement estimated at $200; one bus had seats slashed with damage set at $168, and one $10 glass broken; another had seats damaged $294, and a door damaged $48, and two door glasses broken, costing $10 each.

"The 23 windows broken out of Washington Place school Thursday night, was apparently done by smaller children," Gary said, "but it took some fair-sized boys to do the damage to the buses."

Another report of vandalism, came to police Saturday, when a car being driven recklessly ran through a yard and over some shrubbery, doing considerable damage and the driver failed to stop.

In other police activity, two thefts and a burglary, were investigated.

Col. L. J. McNeil, who lives at the Carlton House, told officers that a back-type parachute, with helmet and helmet bag, was taken from his pickup while parked at the rear of the apartment. He placed the value at $210 and said he first thought equipment personnel from Webb AFB had picked it up for 120-day inspection. He did not report the loss until he checked at the base.

A later report to police said Jack Lewis had found the equipment in a ditch.

Linda Walker reported the loss of two wrist watches, photographs, and a white western hat, from the lawn at 1402 Lexington. She placed the value at $95.

A power lawn mower, valued at $40, was reported stolen from the W. A. Underwood home, 611 Goliad, between 12 noon and 1 p.m. while he was at the bank Friday.

Trailer & Pickup Wreck

Billy Joe Campbell, 29, of Haskell, was treated for bruises and held at Cowper Clinic-Hospital for further observation following a pickup-trailer accident 10.4 miles north of Big Spring at 3:50 p.m. Saturday. Two passengers in the pickup were not injured.

Highway Patrolman Jimmy Parks, who investigated the accident, said Campbell was driving a tandem trailer loaded with household goods. The family was moving from Odessa to Haskel. Parks said that the right front axle on the trailer broke and caused the pickup to turn over. The household goods were damaged as they were strewn along the barrow ditch. They belonged to Campbell's sister.

Big Spring Ambulance Service brought Campbell to the hospital. Damage to the pickup was estimated at $500.

Parks said another one-vehicle accident was investigated about 11 p.m. Friday when the driver lost control about 15 miles north on the Snyder highway. The pickup flipped on its top and back on its wheels. The driver William Coy Ford, Vincent Rt., Coahoma, was not injured.

CANDIDATES DRAW PLACES

Drawing of names for placement on the Howard County ballot for the June 26 election of state representatives for the 78th district took place at 9 a.m. Saturday in the office of Howard County Clerk Pauline S. Petty.

Present at the drawing were Frank Hardesty and Harold Hall, both candidates in the election; W. J. Sheppard, county Republican chairman; Ed Cherry, and members of the news media.

The official Howard County ballot will carry the candidates' names in this order: Frank Hardesty (1), Roger D. Brown (2) and Harold M. Hall (3), according to Mrs. Petty.

Youngster Hurt In Traffic Mishap

A five-year-old boy, Richard Moren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin R. Moren, 1607 Stadium, was treated and released from Cowper Clinic-Hospital Friday morning following a car-pedestrian accident at Stadium and Birdwell Lane. Driver of the car was Charles Casbeer, 700 N. 5th, Coahoma.

Police, investigating the accident, said witnesses told them Richard was crossing the street with Ed Moren 9, and Butch Stewart 13, when the accident occurred.

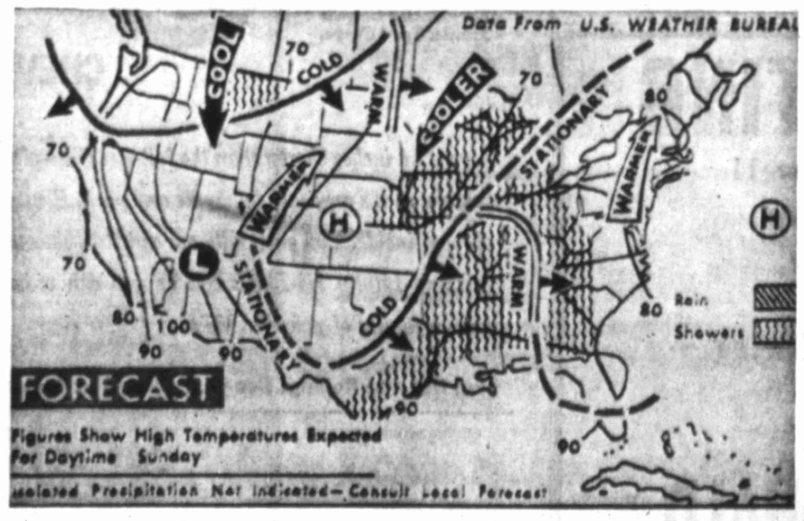
One other minor injury accident was reported shortly after noon, when a car driven by Claudio Gurro Rodriguez, 502 NE. 9th., was in collision with a vehicle driven by Ester Harper, 501 NE. 8th. Rodriguez was taken to the Medical Arts Clinic-Hospial for minor treatment.

Locations of the other accidents, and drivers of vehicles involved, were: FM 700 and Scurry, Coye Conner Jr., 202 W. 6th, and Ralph Lydie, 2210 Merrily Drive; 1810 Gregg, Gloria Laudermilk, 810 E. 24th and Jose Munoz, 108 NE 10th; 1510 Gregg, Nella Morrell Stephens, 1111 W. 2nd, and Lold B. Patterson, 1404 Settles.

Gets Notice Of Election

County Clerk Pauline Petty has received notice of the constitutional amendment election on Sept. 7.

The referendum will be on Senate Joint Resolution No. 44 which proposes to increase the membership of the Texas Senate from 31 to 39 members, and to retain the number of members in the House of Representatives at 150. The amendment also contains a proposal that membership of the Senate be according to population and drops the present limitation that no single county is entitled to more than one senator.



Weather Forecast

Showers and thundershowers are expected Sunday from the Gulf coast to upper lakes and Mississippi valley. There will be occasional rain in the mid-Mississippi valley and showers in the northern Rockies. It will be warmer along the coast and from the southern plateau northward; cooler from the upper lakes to the central plains, and the northern Rockies. (AP WIREPHOTO)

L. L. Moore, Ira, chairman of the Ira Water Supply Corporation, said that arrangements had been made to secure treated water from Snyder at 30 cents per thousand gallons. Trail Riders Due Tuesday On Way To Johnson City

The Johnson City Trail Riders, who left Lubbock Tuesday morning, will ride into Big Spring Tuesday night for a two-day stop before proceeding on the 390-mile trip to Johnson City for a three-day rodeo and other activities. They plan to ride into the home town of President Lyndon B. Johnson by July 1, where they will be greeted by a member of the official family.

There were around 40 riders on the trail Friday. They had spent Thursday night in Brownfield where a barbecue and dance were held for them. Friday night they camped at Welch and then headed for Lamesa where the riders were to spend Saturday night and Sunday.

The trail riders are due to arrive in Big Spring Tuesday night. A street dance downtown has been scheduled that night. They will be joined by Ernest Tubb for two shows in the city auditorium, and Thursday morning they will begin trail blazing again for a campsite somewhere between Big Spring and Sterling City.

Jack Aufill, a stockman with long experience, is trail boss. He is a former rodeo producer and now operates the Lubbock Horse Auction.

"We want all riders, whether individuals or riding clubs, to join us on the trail," Glenn Anderson, ramrod, said. "We will have many who will join us and ride for a time and then have to go back to work. If anyone can go all the way with us, we welcome him — even the whole family."

Plenty of entertainment is planned along the trail and those in charge are doing all possible to insure a safe and pleasant trip. A registered nurse is being provided in case of accidents or sickness, and means for caring for small children of riders are being provided. The riders are trying to average from 15 to 30 miles per day.

A three-day show is planned June 13-15 in the San Angelo coliseum at 3 p.m. each day, and then the group will head out through Eden, Brady, Cherry Spring, Fredericksburg, Stonewall and Johnson City.

Onager Born

LONDON (AP)—A rare Persian wild ass—onager—has been born at Whipsnade Zoo. The onager is high on the list of protected animals in danger of extinction, and Whipsnade is trying to build up a herd.

Wheat Users Take Issue With Proposed Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of wheat processors, millers and bakers, joined by two wheat and bakery industry labor unions, is taking issue with Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman's assertion that the administration's proposed new wheat program is designed to help the family farm.

Instead, says the group, the program would help "a handful of large commercial farms which control about three-quarters of the nation's wheat acreage."

The group has organized to fight the bill. It calls itself the Wheat Users Committee.

The committee centers its attack on a provision of the wheat legislation which would require millers and processors to buy certificates the rate of $1.25 a bushel on wheat they use for food for domestic consumption. Funds from these certificates would be used to make payments to wheat growers complying with the government's control program.

The committee said that about 15 per cent of the nation's wheat farmers would get three quarters of the funds obtained from sale of the certificates. The total might well run $750 million.

The committee's opposition is based mainly on the contention that the legislation would raise the cost of wheat to millers and processors — costs which would have to be passed along to consumers in the form of higher bread and bakery prices.

This industry attack on the proposed program recalls threats made a year ago by some millers and bakers to contest the legality of a somewhat similar program for wheat put into effect for the 1964 crop. Under it, the certificate cost was 75 cents a bushel. But the matter has not yet been taken to the courts.

Beauty Has Many Titles

TULAROSA, N.M. (AP) — Discussing Jane Nelson can be confusing.

She's a brown-haired, green-eyed young lady with lots of personality whose father is assistant superintendent of schools in this southern New Mexico community.

She's also Miss New Mexico, at least until July, and she's just beginning to reign as Miss Arizona. She's a member of that lovely group near the top of Miss America's court, and she's the No. 1 stand-in for Miss U.S.A.

On her way into this maze she was one of the two at-large entries in the 1963 Miss Teen Age America Pageant, and she won and lost the New Mexico Maid of Cotton title.

"She's always been active," said her father, George Nelson, Friday night after his daughter was named first runner-up to Ohio's Sue Ann Downey in the Miss U.S.A. contest at Miami Beach, Fla.

The Tularosa beauty was in the contest as Miss Arizona, a state that adopted her from the Arizona State University campus at Tempe where she is a voice major.

Her year as Miss New Mexico in the Miss America program ends next month. She was one of the finalists in last fall's pageant at Atlantic City.

For a while she was both Miss New Mexico on her way to the Miss America pageant and New Mexico Maid of Cotton on her way to Memphis, Tenn., where they choose the national maid.

The state's Maid of Cotton committee decided it didn't want its maid in the Miss America contest and set Miss Nelson aside in favor of an alternate.

Crop Support Loss Pegged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department's Commodity Credit Corp. reported Saturday it lost $2,859,838,000 in carrying out federal crop and farm income support and related activities during the ten-month period ended April 30.

This compared with $2,107,884,000 lost a year earlier. The losses included payments made to farmers for holding down acres of feed grains and cotton under programs designed to prevent overproduction.

Losses incurred in storing and handling surplus commodities totaled $659,491,000 compared with $962,692,000 a year earlier.

The corporation's investment in surpluses totaled $6,985,352,000 on April 30 compared with $7,627,222,000 a year earlier.

Ohio Blonde Wins USA Title

By KELLY SMITH

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A stunning blonde beauty from Ohio, who dreamed as a child of becoming a nun, holds the scepter of Miss U.S.A.

Statuesque Sue Ann Downey, 20, of Columbus, Ohio, won the crown Friday night over 14 other finalists in the field of 47 and will represent this country in next month's Miss Universe pageant.

First runnerup, and Sue's standin, is Jane Nelson who as a voice major at Arizona State University represented that state. She lives in Tularosa, N.M., and was a finalist in last fall's Miss America Pageant as Miss New Mexico.

Judy Baldwin of Clovis, N.M., was second runnerup. The youngest entrant, Julie Andrus, 18, of Mayfield, Ky., was third. Blonde Dianna Batts, a secretary at the Pentagon in Washington from Falls Church, Va., was fourth.

"I'm elated. I don't believe it. It seems so, so impossible," said the shapely 35-24-35 inch, 5-foot-8 Ohio State University coed. "It's the most marvelous thing that has ever happened to me."

Usually calm and poised Sue ripped through rehearsals so fast Thursday she ended in bed with ice packs for an injured leg. But it was nerves, not the leg, that bothered her in Friday's finals.

She was still shaking after the crowning was over.

Sue won $5,000 in cash, a $5,000 personal appearance contract, and a mink coat, among other prizes.

"This is-well, it's beyond dreams. When I was a child, I wanted to be a nun. Now most important to me is being a good wife and mother."

The man? "He'll be the kind that's honest, someone you can respect." Right now, she says, "there are lots of them."

Her proud parents, the John E. Downeys, and brothers Jeff, 11, and David, 17, were here for the crowning. Like others, they noticed a striking resemblance between Sue Ann and her predecessor, Bobbi Johnson of Washington, D. C.

To Sue, that's no problem. She says each girl is judged individually, in beauty contests, and all her life. "No, a resemblance won't hurt me. There are many blondes."

To Honor Saint

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The post office announced it will issue a two-stamp series July 2 commemorating St. Benedict, who was proclaimed patron of Europe by Pope Paul VI last October on a visit to the restored abbey of Monte Cassino. One shows a portrait of the saint, the other the ruins of the abbey after Allied bombings in World War II.

Baptists Adopt Fresh Outlook

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Relation Writer

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Having mapped their new path, Southern Baptists today faced the task of walking it.

A "turning point," their convention president, the Rev. Dr. Wayne Dehoney, commented in appraising the results of the denomination's 108th annual convention, which closed Friday night after four days of sessions.

MODERATE COURSE

It sketched a freshly moderating course for the big, predominantly white Southern church body, revising some past positions, and projecting it more strongly into contemporary social concerns.

The convention signaled a shift from "reactionary, negative thinking and introspection to a fresh outlook and spirit," said Dr. Dehoney, of Jackson, Tenn., newly elected to a second term.

"The actions taken here indicate a progressive maturity among Southern Baptists as they face the challenges of a lost world and assume a greater responsibility for the great social issues which confront it."

On its final day, the assembly of a record 16,086 "messengers" added some tempering approaches to questions raised.

They rejected a motion to ban from Baptist bookstores a book by Biblical scholar Ralph Elliott, "The Message of Genesis," which stirred a furore at their convention three years ago.

TURNED DOWN

They turned down another proposal that they condemn the new federal aid-to-education program as a branch of church-state separation, despite oratorical appeals to Baptist sensitivities on the matter that they do so.

They pledged to work for reconciliation among the races, for "peaceful compliance with laws assuring equal rights for all," and "to go beyond these laws in the practice of Christian love."

"A new standard has been raised," Bill Moyers, top administrative aid to President Johnson, told the convention in evaluating its results.

"A whole new army of the concerned and committed has moved to the battlefield."

Moyers, a Southern Baptist, noted that the denomination in the past has tended to stress individualistic faith but do little to apply it in the social sphere.

He added: "Southern Baptists are deciding to become part of the world as it is—in order to make the world what it can be.

NEAR END

"We are drawing near an end to the feud betwen the partisans of personal Christianity or. the one hand and the partisans of social Christianity on the other."

Both, he said, are necessary.

Merchant Ship Found By Divers

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—A wreck appearing to be that of a merchant ship of the late 17th century has been located by skindivers in the archipelago off Stockholm, and it may be the oldest known merchant ship.

Stockholm boasts of the world's oldest naval ship recovered from the bottom, the 17th century Vasa.

Rugged Field Is Foreseen For Golf Open

J. GREEN

Jerry Green, golf professional at the Big Spring Country Club, foresees the strongest field ever lining up for the third annual Big Spring Open here June 12-13.

Considering some of the talent the meet has boasted in the two previous years it has been held, that is quite a statement but the early registration already bears great promise.

The Open division of the tournament already has 30 teams entered while the True Amateur flight is more than half full. In all, 72 teams will be allowed in each flight.

Tournament officials have learned never to expect the Open flight, in which a pro can team with an amateur or two top amateurs can play together, to fill up until a day or two before the tournament starts.

Among the early entries are Earl Stewart Jr., Dallas; Bobby Maxwell of the Colonial Country Club in Fort Worth, who may team with the great Bob Dickson of Chickasha, Okla.; Bob Patterson, Weatherford; Billy Bob Coffey, Weatherford; Danny Swain, Odessa; Luke Thompson, El Paso; Bobby Wright, Big Spring, Robert Atkins, Carlsbad, N.M.; Dean Strack and Stuart Chancellor, both of Midland; and W. E. Ramsey and Red Ramsey, a brother combination.

Bobby Layne, an all-time pro football great, and Dick Jennings, both of Lubbock, should form a formidable twosome.

R. HUGHES

Jay Hatch, assistant pro at the club here, will team with a fellow townsman, Donald Lovelady. Among players in the True Amateur flight who were getting in practice licks at the course Saturday were Roy Hughes and Al Kloven.

Chancellor is the reigning National Lefthanders' champion. When he is on his game, he's hard to contain.

Green said eight tons of fertilizer had been added to the fairways and tee areas in time for the recent rains. Huge areas of the layout have been reseeded and the grass is thriving.

Fine merchandise awards will be given to winning amateurs, including sets of McGregor woods. The pros, of course, will be shooting for cash awards. The pro on the winning team earns $300 while five others on the winning tandems will share in the money. In addition, the pro posting the low medal score over 36 holes gets $100. Prizes will also go to six low teams in the True Amateur division.

The entry charges have been lowered substantially Open players pay only $12.50 each (campared to $20 last year) while True Amateur entries will be charged only $7.50 each.

AL KLOVEN

Among late entries Saturday were Elwyn Stabaugh and Raymond Hart, San Angelo; J. B. and Jim Wetsel, both of Sweetwater and Charles Bruce and R. J. Kidd, both of Snyder.

If Maxwell does not get Dickson as a partner, he'll likely go with Gil Jones of Big Spring. Dickson, who played in the inaugural show here in 1963, once shot a fantastic 11-under par 59 on the 6,475-yard Muskogee Country Club where par is 70.

On his electrifying round, Dickson (who stands 6-3) hit 15 greens and needed only 24 putts as he rolled in nine birdies and an eagle to go with eight pars.

Stewart had made the pro tour from time to time. In 1953 he won the Greensboro Open the hard way after sharing the 72-hole lead at 275 with Sam Snead, Doug Ford and Art Wall Jr. In an 18-hole playoff he and Snead shot 68's. In a 'sudden death' playoff, he beat Slammin' Sammy on the 19 hole.

Stewart once made two holes-in-one on a nine-hole round. He holed his tee shots on the 115-yard third hole and on the 163-yard seventh hole. He wound up with a 31 for the round.

Winners here will be determined on a low-ball basis over 36 holes. The 6,940-yard course has a par of 71.

Hail To All Winner Of Belmont Stakes

NEW YORK (AP) — Hail to All, using his patented stretch run in the final one-eighth of a mile, won the 97th running of the $147,900 Belmont Stakes Saturday at Aqueduct in a three-horse blanket finish.

Under the lash of lanky Johnny Sellers' whip, Mrs. Ben Cohen's son of Hail to Reason, traveled the 1½ miles in 2:28 2-5 and hit the finish line a neck in front of Preakness winner Tom Rolfe from Raymond Guest's Powhatan Stables.

First Family, an outsider in the field of eight 3-year-olds, was the surprising third in the colors of C.T. Chenery's Meadow Stables. He was a length back of Tom Rolfe.

Dapper Dan, owned by Ogden Phipps, also staged his usual stretch charge to get into the thick of the battle but fell back in the final strides and finished fourth, beaten three-quarters of a length by First Family.

Hail to All, fifth in the Kentucky Derby, third back of Tom Rolfe and Dapper Dan in the Preakness and winner of the Jersey Derby last Monday, earned $104,150 for his fourth triumph in 10 starts this year.

The purse boosted his over-all earnings to $362,474.

Hail to All, the third choice back of the entry of Dapper Dan and Bold Bidder, and Tom Rolfe, paid $7.30, $4.10 and $3.60. Tom Rolfe, the second choice, paid $3.50 and $2.90. First Family, originally not considered in triple crown class, returned $8.80 to show.

Pre-Tournament Trouble

Arkansas coach Frank Broyles slams his way out of a sand trap as coaches from the Southwest, Southeastern, Big Ten, Big Eight and Missouri Valley conferences limber up for a 36-hole golf tournament at Cherokee Village, Ark. Watching the action is Nebraska coach Bob Devaney, whose team the Razorbacks beat in the Cotton Bowl this year. (AP WIREPHOTO).

McDowell Hot In Tribe Win

CLEVELAND (AP) — Sam McDowell pitched a four-hitter, striking out 15, and Vic Davalillo drove in the winning run with a double in ths 10th inning as Cleveland edged Detroit 2-1 Saturday night.

Davalillo's double to right center with two out scored Leon Wagner, who led off the inning with a single off reliever Terry Fox.

McDowell brought his record to 5-3 with his strong performance and now has struck out 99 batters on the season, tops in the American League.

Both teams scraped together single runs in the first. The leadoff Tiger, Jake Wood, walked, moved to third on Don Demeter's single, and scored on a passed ball by Camilo Carreon.

Mickey Lolich walked Dick Howser, the lead Indian. The speedy infielder stole second and came home on two successive infield outs.

Tony Lema Leader In Michigan Play

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Defending champion Tony Lema, in trouble a couple of times but making up for it with razor-sharp putting, shot a 69 Saturday and took a one-stroke lead in the third round of the $100,000 Buick Open Golf Tournament.

Julius Boros, a winner here two years ago and the leader at the midway point of the 72-hole tournament, stayed tied with Lema until a bogie on the 222-yard 17th hole dropped him one stroke behind.

Johnny Pott and Jack Nicklaus each carded two-under-par 70s over the 7,280-yard Warwick Hills course to tie Boros for second.

Lema finished the day with a 210, while Boros, Pott and Nicklaus were bunched at 212.

Lema, who started the third round two strokes behind Boros, wasted no time getting his first birdie, sinking a 12-foot putt on the second hole.

He failed to get out of a trap on his first effort at the fifth hole and took a bogie, but he got that back and more with 15- and 3-foot putts for birdies on the next two holes.

A bunker on the 12th hole and a three-putt green on No. 13 gave him his two bogies on the back side. He picked up birdies on the 13th hole with a 20-foot putt, on the 16th with a good second shot and two putts, and with an eight-foot putt on the last hole.

The fourth hole-in-one in the history of the tourney also marked the day's play.

Archie Dadian, in his second year on the tour, aced the 204-yard third hole. The feat earned the 31-year-old Milwaukee, Wis., native, a new car from the tournament sponsor.

Arnold Palmer triple bogied the 18th hole and finished with a 73 to join a half-dozen players at 218.

Yank Net Squad Sews Up Match

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — The United States Davis Cup tennis team eliminated Canada from American Zone competition Saturday when Chuck McKinley and Marty Reissen combined for a 9-7, 6-2, 6-3 victory over Harry Fauquier and Keith Carpenter.

The win gave the Americans a 3-0 lead in the best-of-five series and assured them of a trip to Dallas, Tex., at the end of July to meet the Mexico-New Zealand winner.

The Canadians played their best tennis in the first set when the Americans broke Fauquier's serve in the 15th game to take an 8-7 advantage.

The break came when Fauquier drove a forehand volley into the net.

In the final game, Riessen served well and put away the victory with a forehand passing shot down the alley.

After the hard-fought opening set, McKinley and Riessen dominated the match.

They opened the second set by breaking Carpenter's serve. The final point of that game was made on a hard cross-court volley by Riessen.

The Americans held service without difficulty. In the seventh game McKinley gave the U. S. another service break when he drove a forehand service return past Fauquier.

Riessen closed out the second set with an ace, driving his serve past Carpenter and giving the Americans the 6-2 win.

McKinley and Riessen stayed atop the third set as well. They took a commanding position when they broke service against Fauquier in the third game.

In the final game the score went to advantage U. S., and Carpenter doubled-faulted, ending the match.

A pair of singles matches will be played Sunday. Although they will count in the scoring, they are little more than exhibitions because the U. S. now has a lead that can't be headed in the series.

Flash Elorde Is Winner By Kayo

MANILA (AP) — Flash Elorde of the Philippines retained his world junior lightweight title by knocking out Japan's Teruo Kosaka in the final minute of their brutal 15-round fight Saturday night.

The 30-year-old Filipino dominated the bout, his fifth against the tough Japanese challenger, and floored Kosaka five times. The final knockdown brought a dramatic end to the bloody battle, staged before 40,000 spectators at the Araneta Stadium.

A series of rights to the nose put Kosaka almost out on his feet, then Elorde stepped back and whistled in a crushing overhand right to the mouth that dropped the younger boxer. Struggling gamely, Kosaka got to his feet at the count of eight. But before the fight could resume he toppled to the mat.

The end came at 2 minutes, 14 seconds of the 15th round.

Kosaka, well-battered and bloody, had to be half-carried to his dressing room by two handlers and was told by a doctor to take an hour's rest before trying to leave the stadium.

Elorde, making the eighth defense of the title he won five years ago and in his 89th professional fight, weighed the division limit of 130 pounds to 127½ for his 24-year-old opponent.

Robinson Shines In Oriole Win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Brooks Robinson rapped four hits, including a homer, and drove in four runs Saturday as Baltimore whipped the Los Angeles Angels 7-0 behind Wally Bunker's five-hit pitching.

Robinson, who also collected two singles and a double, capped the Orioles' 13-hit attack with a two-run homer in the ninth inning.

Bob Johnson slugged a bases-empty homer for the Orioles and Sam Bowens had a single and double.

Bunker singled home a run en route to his second victory against two defeats. It was the most impressive performance of the season by the 20-year-old right-hander, who had started his sophomore season in disappointing fashion.

Radatz Blast Defeats A's

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Pitcher Dick Radatz smashed his first major league home run in the 11th inning, snapping a 3-3 tie, and struck out eight in a scoreless three-inning relief stint, pacing Boston to a 5-3 victory over Kansas City Saturday night.

Radatz homered off Kansas City reliever Jesse Hickman with one out in the 11th. The Red Sox added an insurance run when Lenny Green walked, stole second, took third on an infield out and tallied on Felix Mantilla's infield hit.

Radatz came on in the ninth inning and struck out the first two men he faced before yielding a single and a walk. He then struck out four in a row and got the last two outs in the 11th via strikes.

The Red Sox had come from behind with two out in the ninth to tie the score on Lenny Green's double and a single by Dalton Jones.

State Amateur Lead Is Taken Over By McBee

MIDLAND (AP)—Rives McBee of Dallas shot the only subpar round of the day—a two-under 70—and took over the lead at 54 holes in the Texas amateur golf tournament Saturday.

His 218 gave him a one-stroke margin over John Farquhar of Amarillo, Ron Petri of Houston and Bobby Lockett, the San Angelo sailor home on leave. Farquhar shot a 73, Lockett a 74 and Petri 73.

Ras Allen of Cleburne and Buddy Branum of Midland who were tied with Lockett at 145 for the lead at 36 holes, fell down the list. Allen soared to an 80 and was tied for eighth at 225. Branum had a 77 and was in fifth place with 222.

Marty Fleckman of Port Arthur, the defending champion, had a 75 and rested at 228—10 strokes off the lead.

David (Spec) Goldman of Dallas, another former champion, picked up after seven holes. Billy Bob Coffey of Fort Worth, the other ex-champion in the field, skied to an 86 and had 245.

The field was cut to the low 30 and ties Saturday with the cutoff point 230.

Sacred Heart Cards Host Merkel Today

The Sacred Heart Cardinals will play the Merkel Loboes in Steer Park today in a single baseball game beginning at 2 p.m.

The Loboes, 5-1, won the last time the two teams played by 4-3, gaining the victory on a last-inning run. The Cards are 5-3 for the year.

Abilene, San Angelo and the Midland Colts as well as the cards have fallen victim to the Loboes. All their wins have been shutouts, except the Cards and the Colts, thanks to their excellent pitching.

Joe Cadenhead will probably start for the Cards. He is 3-2 on the year. Tony Fierro and Joe Morelion will stand by for relief pitching.

Two veterans of the Big Spring Tigers, Robert (Sonny) Dutchover and Pat Martinez Sr., will also be in the card lineup.

Starting lineup will be: Pano Rodriguez, second base; Guy Lara, third base; Pat Martinez Jr., shortstop; Pat Martinez Sr., first base; Dutchover, catcher; Benny Marquez, left field; Joe Cadenhead, pitcher; Avel Ramirez, center field; and Tony Fierro in right field.

Two players who performed for many years with the Big Spring Tigers, Dutchover and Pat Martinez Sr., are now with the Cardinals. Dutchover will be in uniform for the first time today.

Houston Lee Ace Is SMU Bound

DALLAS (AP)—Doug Cameron of Houston Lee has signed a letter of intent to attend Southern Methodist, track coach Glenn Gossett said Saturday.

He is the brother of Southwest Conference 100-yard dash champion Bruce Cameron of SMU. The brothers helped set a national high school 440-yard relay record.

Steen Is Star In Pirate Win

The Pirates, benefitting from a bases-loaded double by pitcher Ricky Steen in the fifth inning, toppled the Stars, 6-3, in an American Little League game here Friday night.

The Bucs collected only two hits but the Star hurlers were liberal with their walks. Errors hurt the losers, too. The Stars are now 4-7 for the season while the Pirates are 5-7.

Steen fanned 15 in the six-inning bout while yielding only three hits. Two of those were by Grady Ray, the other by Pete Shaffer.

Irons Won't Be In SMU Lineup

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist end John Roderick, a 1963 letterman, has regained scholastic eligibility and will be one of 32 lettermen for the Mustangs this fall.

Two other 1963 lettermen who did not play last year because of injuries will return in the fall. They are quarterback Mac White and halfback Larry Jernigan.

SMU spring semester grades were issued Saturday. The only scholastic casualty in football was freshman tackle Dick Irons of Big Spring.

Texas, Seven Other Teams Set For Meet

OMAHA (AP) — Eight college baseball teams, including one repeater from last year and one making an initial appearance, were poised Saturday for the annual NCAA College Baseball World Series.

The repeater is Arizona State University, a team that went out in the third round last year and comes into this year's series, opening Monday, rated the top college team in the nation.

The newcomer to series play is St. Louis, a team that handed Missouri, last year's runner-up, two straight defeats in the playoffs.

one ex-champion is in the field. That is Texas which has a chance to tie Minnesota for second place in series championships won. Minnesota has won three. Texas won in 1949-50, but the best the Longhorns have done since is a second place finish in 1953.

Southern California leads in championships with four.

The other 1965 entries are Washington State, Lafayette, Connecticut, Ohio State and Florida State. Of this group, only Washington State ever made it to the final game. Washington State lost to Texas in 1950.

Play will start Monday at 11 a.m., CST, if it doesn't rain, and that is a fear that has Omaha backers of the meet on edge. Last year the series had five successive days of rainouts, yet still finished with an attendance record.

In the opening 11 a.m. game were Florida State and Ohio State, the latter possibly the hardest hitting team in the series. The day play will conclude with Washington State meeting Texas at 2 p.m.

Arizona State and Lafayette are scheduled for 6 p.m. and Connecticut and St. Louis for 8:30 p.m.

Here is how the top clubs were ranked in the final poll of the season, first place votes in parenthesis, scoring on 10-9-8, etc., basis:

1.	Arizona State (15)	332
2.	Ohio State (13)	327
3.	Texas (10)	312

Pools Will Close

All public swimming pools in Big Spring will be closed every Monday, beginning tomorrow, in order to give the lifeguards a day off. The announcement was made by Jimmy Marcus of the recreation department.

Chicago Sox Know Howard Is Back

NEW YORK (AP) — Elston Howard, just off the disabled list, whipped a pinch hit single in the 10th inning that gave the New York Yankees a 4-3 victory Saturday over the Chicago White Sox and their previously unbeaten reliever, Eddie Fisher.

Howard came to bat with no one out after the Yanks had loaded the bases on a walk to Phil Linz, a double by Bobby Richardson and an intentional walk to Roger Maris.

The star catcher, who underwent surgery for removal of bone chips from his right elbow May 4 and returned to the active list only Friday, then hit his single through the drawn-in White Sox infield.

Mel Stottlemyre went all the way for New York, allowing seven hits and smacking a homer.

Fisher, winner of Friday night's 15-inning 2-0 shutout of the Yanks, now is 5-1.

The White Sox scored twice in the opening inning on singles by Don Buford, Floyd Robinson and Bill Skowron, plus an error in left by Mickey Mantle on Skowron's hit.

After the Yanks went ahead 3-2, Chicago pulled even in the seventh when Buford walked, stole second and raced in on another single by Robinson.

Stottlemyre's homer in the third was the first Yankee run in 24 innings, and they took the lead in the sixth.

A homer by Mantle and double by Clete Boyer chased White Sox starter Gary Peters and brought on knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm. Boyer came around with the go-ahead run when two of Wilhelm's butterfly deliveries got by J.C. Martin for passed balls.

Mack Jones Star In Braves' Win

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Mack Jones, determined to nail down a permanent job in his fifth trial with Milwaukee, cracked his first grand slam homer Saturday in powering the Braves to a 9-1 victory over the National League-leading Los Angeles Dodgers.

Jones' bases-loaded blast came in the first inning off southpaw Johnny Podres and was all Milwaukee right-hander Tony Cloninger needed in hurling the runner-up Braves to within three games of the injury-riddled Dodgers.

Podres, who had won his first three 1965 decisions in rebounding from arm surgery last year, retired the first two batters but surrendered singles to Hank Aaron and Joe Torre.

With the count 2-and-2 on Gene Oliver he unloaded a wild pitch and then gave an intentional pass to load the bases and bring up Jones.

The muscular outfielder, a bust in previous tests with Milwaukee, promptly hit Podres' first pitch over the right field wall for his eighth homer.

Was Football Merger Near?

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The American and National Football Leagues were almost set to merge when their expansion battle erupted this week, the owner of the AFL's Buffalo Bills was quoted Saturday as saying.

"The talks had been going on for three months," the Buffalo Evening News said it was told by Ralph C. Wilson Jr.

The News also said in a copyrighted story the AFL and NFL were ready to begin inter-league play this season, have a common draft of college players in the fall and play a championship game in 1966.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle was not available for comment.

The News quoted Wilson:

"What finished the merger talks was money. We were to pay the National League an indemnity. We thought we could get the indemnity through increased television revenues for inter-league play.

"But NBC (National Broadcasting Co., which will telecast AFL games this season) wouldn't guarantee the extra money. We would have had to dig down ourselves for the indemnity."

Hogan Will Play In Carling Open

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Ben Hogan will make one of his infrequent competitive appearances in the $200,000 Carling World Golf championship Aug 19-22 at Pleasant Valley Country club.

He is exempt from qualifying. He won the U.S. Open four times and the Masters and PGA titles twice each.

Hogan will celebrate his 53rd birthday Aug. 13, just before the competition gets under way.

Without Team Assured, Oakland Builds Park

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A $25.5 million monument rises to Oakland's faith in landing a major league baseball franchise and taking a leading role in all sports.

More than 300 workmen are busy building the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum complex, housing a convention and sports arena and combination baseball-football stadium.

Oakland has the Raiders of the American Football League and wants an American League baseball team since San Francisco, across the bay, has the National League Giants.

Charles O. Finley of the Kansas City Athletics and Gabe Paul of Cleveland conferred with officials last year about what Oakland has to offer. Yet the building is proceeding without any concrete promises of getting a baseball club.

The football stadium, which will seat about 54,000 should be ready by fall of 1966 for occupancy by the Raiders. If big league baseball comes to Oakland, the stadium will be ready for it in the 1967 season.

Cards Outlast Houston, 4-3

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ken Boyer tripled and scored on Tim McCarver's single in the 12th inning, giving St. Louis a 4-3 victory over Houston Saturday.

Boyer got his triple with one out when center fielder Lee Maye lost a fly ball in the sun. McCarver followed with a single to right field off Ken MacKenzie.

Bob Aspromonte's leadoff homer in the ninth against Tracy Stallard pulled the Astros into a 3-3 tie. Phil Gagliano had vaulted the Cardinals ahead with a two-run homer off Hal Woodeshick in the eighth.

AFL Planning To Take Lead In Expansion

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

OCEANPORT, N.J. (AP) — The American Football League is expected to get in the first punch in the pro football expansion war Monday or Tuesday, likely unveiling a piggy-back expansion plan that will take the 5-year-old league into Atlanta and territory currently held by the rival National League.

The setting for the first moves that will alter the pro football map will be Monmouth Park Race Track, where the AFL expansion committee is scheduled to report to the full board of eight club owners.

Speculation about the possible moves, which undoubtedly will affect 1967 expansion plans of the older NFL, revolve around three southern cities — Atlanta, Miami and New Orleans — plus five cities where the National League currently has no competition — Philadelphia, Chicago, Los Angeles, Cleveland and Detroit.

12-TEAM LEAGUE

Most observers expect the AFL to announce a two-stage expansion plan with Atlanta and Philadelphia the most likely candidates to put teams on the field in 1966 and two more teams to be taken in and complete a 12-team alignment for 1968.

Joe Foss, commissioner of the AFL, acknowledged that "it is our hope to add two teams for 1966 and two more in the next couple of years, probably by 1968. We are looking for the big cities, those that can take two teams but where only one teams now exists."

Foss said he will recommend to the assembled club owners that they act to expand but pointed out that it would take a vote of six of the eight owners to actually bring about expansion. Foss, however, added that if he made such a recommendation, he presumed the club owners would agree.

That would give the AFL a one-year head start in a budding expansion battle that could possibly wind up with about 30 pro football teams operating by 1968.

Chicago Cubs Edge Phils

CHICAGO (AP) — George Altman's single following a 35-minute rain delay drove in the winning run in the ninth inning as the Chicago Cubs edged the Philadelphia Phillies 9-8 Saturday.

The rain interruption was the second in the inning. The game was delayed for 27 minutes before the Phillies tied it 8-8 in their half of the ninth on a walk to Rich Allen before the rain and singles by Tony Gonzalez and John Herrnstein after the rain.

Ed Bailey led off the Cubs' ninth with a double against Gary Wagner. Larry Jackson ran for Bailey and moved to third on Jimmy Stewart's ground out. Pinch hitter Don Landrum was walked intentionally, and Harvey Kuenn struck out before the rain fell again.

When play was resumed, pinch hitter Altman rapped Wagner's first pitch for a single to center field.

The Cubs snapped a 7-7 tie in the sixth on singles by Joe Amalfitano and Billy Williams and Ron Santo's sacrifice fly to Johnny Callison in right field.

Cardinals Batter Devils, 19-10

The Cardinals outslugged the Devils in a 19-10 scoring contest Friday. Raymond Swafford was the winning pitcher in the National Little League game.

The Cards went ahead 4-1 in the first inning and were never behind as the Devils tried to play catch-up. Loser Aubrey Huff was tagged for 15 hits, two of them doubles. Swafford gave up 11, one of them a homer by Huff.

The win brought the Cardinal record 5-5, as the Devils lost their third game against nine wins.

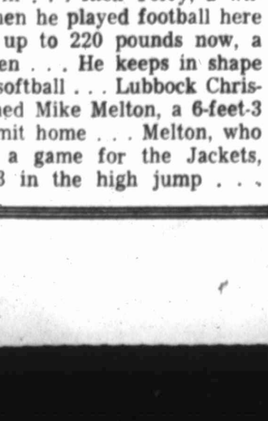
LOOKING 'EM OVER

Steers Did Well With Champs

By TOMMY HART

Officials at some schools in Districts 1-AAA and 2-AAA need to reappraise their athletic programs and impress upon their coaches and athletes the wisdom of showing maturity and respect for opposing teams and game officials . . . There's entirely too much wrangling going on at some of the contests within the leagues and the coaches are responsible for a lot of it . . . In one baseball game in particular up that way recently, a coach of one team actually threatened the life of another mentor and game officials who work that way in other sports expect to be roasted from time to time . . . When the Big Spring Gage Oilers play in Pecos June 20 and again July 4, they will be working without a cash guarantee but will be treated to post-game barbecues by their baseball hosts . . . It appears now the Oilers will play at least a 26-game schedule this year, which is about as busy as a weekend ball club can stay . . . Texas (baseball) league officials are wooing Lubbock, hoping to get a stadium built there for 1966 entry into the circuit . . . The league needs two more clubs . . . Lubbock, quite probably, will not warm to the suggestion unless it can line up an A-1 working agreement with a big league club . . . Time was when Lubbock had the best Class C franchise anywhere but club officials invariably spent more than the team took in . . . Rick Terry, a willowy 170-pounder when he played football here a few years ago, is up to 220 pounds now, a fine physical specimen . . . He keeps in shape by playing golf and softball . . . Lubbock Christian College has signed Mike Melton, a 6-feet-3 cager who calls Kermit home . . . Melton, who averaged 12 points a game for the Jackets, has also cleared 6-3 in the high jump . . . He's the fifth (and shortest) cager signed by LCC this spring.



MELVIN ROBERTSON

• • • •

Although they failed to play .500 ball, the 1965 Big Spring Steers did very well in baseball when you consider the fact that they defeated four conference champions along the way — Odessa High, Lubbock Monterey (both Class AAAA schools), Snyder (AAA) and Colorado City (AA) . . . Melvin Robertson, the former head coach of the Stanton Buffaloes, has taken a coaching assistant's job under Bill Yeoman at the University of Houston . . . More recently, Robertson has been on the Odessa High coaching staff and was prevailed upon to become an aide at Odessa Permian by Gene Mayfield before the Houston offer came along . . . Robertson is considered one of the best assistants in football . . . He doesn't especially aspire for a head coaching job . . . Ben Hurt, who has been working under Gene Henderson at Nederland High School, also joined the Houston staff . . . Although the New York Giants finished last in the NFL Eastern division last season, they had no cancellations among their great army of season ticket holders and now find they have 7,000 on the waiting list . . . Joe Jaure and Robert Jackson are among the high school athletes here who will probably work in the cantaloupe harvest in Arizona this summer . . . Pearl Ward, assistant golf pro at Hogan Park in Midland, has taken over as pro of the Treasure Island Golf Course in Lubbock . . . Ronnie Henson, the fine San Angelo athlete, will play summer baseball in an Illinois collegiate league . . . Four Glendora, Calif., youths drove 1,600 miles to Houston recently to watch the Astros in a single game (and view the famed dome), then turned around and went home . . . "The stadium is marvelous," one said. "It was worth all the trouble we had getting here" . . . West Texan Norm Cash may be traded by the Detroit Tigers to the New York Yankees . . . The Yankee brass reasons Yankee Stadium is made to order for Cash . . . The Professional Golfers Association has a rule that calls for expulsion of any member who applies for the position of pro at a club where no vacancy exists . . . In other words, those who desire a change had best not seek another man's job.

HE'LL REPORT NATIONAL OPEN ON RADIO

Johnson Is High On Cards

By TOMMY HART

One of pro football's most talked - about personalities, Big Spring's own Charley Johnson, will be afforded the opportunity of balancing the medium of conversation in the 1965 National Golf Open, which starts June 17 in St. Louis.

The chore won't be new to the articulate Johnson, who along with his wife and two children are visiting relatives here for a few days before returning to their home in St. Louis Mo.

The talented quarterback of the NFL Cardinals, awaiting the start of his fifth season in the professional circuit, has a five-minute radio show the year around over station WIL in St. Louis. He does the six-times weekly 8 a.m. program 'live' most of the time but tapes the show in advance when he knows he's going to be out of town.

TO MISS OPEN

Charley, good enough in golf to play on the New Mexico State University team when he was in college, expressed disappointment when he found out the Big Spring Golf Open was going to be held a week later than it ordinarily is (the tournament was delayed to avoid interference with the Texas State Amateur in Midland). He tries to make it a point to enter the local meet as often as possible.

In the National Open, Johnson will do cameo interviews with the leading contestants.

One of Charley's missions here will be to serve as a guest speaker at a program to be held at 7:30 p.m., Monday at Webb AFB's Withycombe Hall auditorium.

His audience will consist of student pilots and flying instructors at Webb. His appearance was arranged by 2nd Lt. Richard Bailey of Webb's Class 66-A. Lt. Bailey is the brother of Monk Bailey, former Utah player, now one of Johnson's Cardinal teammates. Monk is a defensive back.

Two Cardinal films were shipped here for the program. They concern highlights of Cardinal games and outstanding plays of the entire NFL.

There will be no charge for the program and everyone is invited, base officials state. Johnson says the program will be informal and he will conduct a questions-and-answers session rather than offer a speech.

LOCAL BOY WITH TOOLS OF TRADE
QB Charley Johnson

STARTS JULY 19

Charley, who enjoyed a sensational season with the Cardinals last year, goes into summer drills July 19 at Lake Forest, Ill. Most of the club reports for work July 24. The Red Birds play their first game against the Baltimore Colts in New Orleans as early as Aug. 10.

Although coach Wally Lemm has expressed some concern for the depth in his defensive line, Johnson is looking forward to the 1965 season with soaring hopes.

"Sometimes I think I'm over-optimistic," Charley concedes. "But things never looked better for us."

The Cardinals came within a whisker of winning the divisional title last fall. A mid-season letdown cost them the flag. If Charley and his teammates can remain healthy this year, the Texan sees no reason why the Cardinals can't go 'all the way.'

Already the possesser of two college degrees, Charley expects to qualify for his doctor of science degree by next June at Washington University (St. Louis), if all goes well. He has specialized in chemical engineering.

Still in his mid-20's, Johnson has already played in the Pro Bowl game at Los Angeles and the Miami Runnerup Bowl. He threw more passes than any one in the history of the NFL last season, secure in the knowledge that he has the finest receivers in the league in such boys as Sonny Randle (injured early in the year and, for that reason, incapacitated most of the campaign), Bobby Joe Conrad, Billy Gambrel and others.

TRIPLETT BACK

The Cardinals will be boosted this year, Charley says, by the presence of exuberent Bill Triplett, whose weight dropped from 210 to 170 at one stage when he was sidelined with the TB bug. Triplett is completely well now and is back to 217. He figures to add a lot to the Cardinals running game.

Coach Lemm went principally for tight ends in the pro draft, Johnson recalls. A prize package the St. Louis club picked up, Charley thinks, is Ray Ogden, formerly of the University of Alabama.

It's acknowledged Johnson is high on the Cardinals' title hopes. How do the Cardinals feel about Johnson? Good enough to drop out of the bidding relatively early when Joe Namath's name came up for grabs. The Cards knew what Johnson could do under fire and realized that Charley is now just reaching his prime. Namath went to the New York Jets of the AFL with a contract that some say was over $400,000. To Lemm and the Card brass, however, Namath is a pro freshman with a knee problem.

In other words, in a poker game, would you rather bet with a full house or draw to an inside straight?

The parents of both Mr. and Mrs. Johnson reside here. Charley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. (Perry) Johnson of 210 Circle Drive. His wife is the former Barbara Shields, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Shields of 1610 E. 5th.

The younger Johnsons, along with their children, plan to return to St. Louis about Friday.

Pace Setters Pepsi Upsets

Pepsi shut out Skateland 2-0 in a Friday night American Softball League game behind the four-hit pitching of Joe Blassingame, handing the losers their first loss of the year.

Scoring started in the first inning when Skateland's pitcher Paige walked center fielder Bill Reynolds. Shortstop Herb Sorley's fly drove Reynolds in. Sorley scored the game's only other run in the fourth.

Paige gave up five hits, striking out five batters, while Blassingame fanned eight.

Coahoma smashed Big Spring's 3560th 9-2 Friday, as Thilbert Camp hurled a three-hitter and Coahoma bats thumped for a nine-hit attack in the other game.

Coahoma got a three-run head start in the first inning on centerfielder Jerry Lenderman's double and left-fielder Bobby Dodson's single after third-baseman Ronnie Dodson got on via a shortstop error. Camp helped the cause with a singled-in run.

Camp got two more rbi's in the Coahoma four-run seventh with a triple.

The 3560th's only compensation was a sixth-inning homer by centerfielder Boyce.

Koeffner took the loss.

Aussie Shatters Distance Record

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I'm not surprised at the time, really. I knew I could do it, especially under these fine conditions."

So remarked Ron Clarke of Australia Saturday in retrospect after reducing to shambles his own world records in the 5,000-meter and three-mile runs.

Performing in the transplanted Compton Memorial Coliseum Friday night, the 28-year-old Australian achieved:

A time of 13:25.8 in the 5,000 meters, eclipsing the 13:33.6 he set last Feb. 1, at Auckland, New Zealand.

And 13:00.4, for three miles en route to the 5,000-meter target, breaking the 13:07.6 he registered at Melbourne Dec. 3, 1964.

Free Agent Draft Nears

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's first organized free agent draft gets under way Tuesday and there is a strong possibility that Rick Monday, hard-hitting Arizona State outfielder, will be the first youngster selected from among hundreds of eligible college, high school, American Legion and sandlot players.

It was reliably reported that the Kansas City Athletics, having first pick because of their last place finish in the American League last year, will select the 19-year-old sophomore whose home is Santa Monica, Calif.

Monday, one of the most widely scouted youngsters in the country, is considered by most big league scouts as the best free agent prospect in the country. A left-handed hitter, the 6-foot-e, 195 pounder was the Sun Devils's leading hitter with a .380 batting average through last Saturday's games. Thirty-one of his 63 hits have been for extra bases. These include 10 doubles, 12 triples and nine home runs. He has driven in 45 runs in 50 games.

FIFTEEN CIRCUITS

Fifteen leagues,encompassing 122 professional clubs from the majors through Class A in the minors, will particpate in the unprecedented draft.

The New York Mets, 1964 cellar-dwellers in the National League, will have second pick. Thereafter, the rest of the major league clubs will make their selection according to the inverse order of finish.

Under the procedure outlined by Commissioner Ford Frick, the two Triple A leagues — the International and Pacific Coast — will follow the majors in the selection process. Then will come the three Double A leagues followed by the eight Single A circuits.

Each big league club will be permitted only one selection. Triple A clubs are allowed two picks each, Double A clubs three and the rest unlimited selections.

All minor league clubs are affiliated with the big league teams, either through direct ownership or working agreements. Triple A selections will be made according to the finish of their parent clubs. All other clubs, from Double A down, already have drawn lots to determine the order of selection.

Under the rules, clubs are not permitted to transfer negotiation rights. If a player and club cannot come to terms, the free agent is held over for a special draft preceding the regular semiannual draft next January. Unlike the regular draft, clubs wil, draw lots to determine the order of selection in the special draft.

"There has been the mistaken impression that the free agent draft will deprive youngsters of receiving large bonuses," said a baseball man. "That is not true.

"There is no restriction on how much money a free agent can get. If he's a good prospect, he'll command good money. What this draft will do is curb excessive bonuses handed out to fringe players. These may be given incentive bonuses, based on their ability to advance to the majors."

Eligible draftees included high school graduates, collegians who have finished their sophomore baseball season and youngsters finished with American Legion play.

Preston Leader In Tumbleweed

COLORADO CITY — Harold Preston, Loraine, is the first day leader in the Colorado City Tumbleweed Junior Golf tournament, which started here Saturday. Preston had a first round 72.

Play will be continued through another 18 holes today.

Three Big Spring players rated the second flight. They included Bill Schwarzenbach, who had an 85; Ken Chadd, 87; and Mike Weaver, 87.

Schwarzenbach Is Junior Champion

Bill Schwarzenbach won the Junior Ringer Golf tournament concluded recently at the Country Club, beating Ronnie Broadrick in a playoff.

The meet started May 3 and continued for a month.

In the nine-hole flight, Mark Slate beat out Dick Nicholson for first place. Winners in each flight were given two golf balls.

Austin's Arnold Tames Bronchos

ODESSA — El Paso Austin's Rudy Madrid made an eighth-inning, game - saving catch Friday afternoon, and ended Odessa's hopes of advancing to the state AAAA regional baseball playoffs.

The catch came in the bottom of the eighth with Broncho runners on second and third base. Ernie McReynolds hit deep to center field, but Madrid made an over-the-head running save.

The Bronchos scored first in the fourth inning of the final game of the three-game bi-district playoff. Tris Bars, Read and Fritz Wernli singled to produce what was to be Odessa's only run.

A Mark Dillion sacrifice fly in the sixth scored Madrid to tie the game. Then loser Jack Green was relieved in the eighth after an Ed Morales double. Reliefer Gilbert Vasquez, pitching to Madrid, broke for the plate as the Austin centerfielder attempted a squeeze bunt. The ball popped over Vasquez head and landed in front of the mound, and pinch runner Parks, on third via a sacrifice bunt by Perez, scored the winning run.

El Paso Austin now advances to the regional playoffs against Lubbock Monterey Monday afternoon.

Winning hurler Bob Arnold picked up his 14th win against one loss. The big southpaw left 12 Broncs stranded on base.

Mets' Winning String Ends

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Willie Stargell drove in four runs and Jim Pagliaroni three in support of Vernon Law's two-hitter as Pittsburgh snapped the New York Mets' four-game winning streak with a 9-0 victory Saturday.

The only hits off Law were Bobby Klaus' leadoff single in the first inning and Ed Kranepool's single in the fourth.

Law, who lost his first five decisions, now has won three straight.

The Pirates got Law off to a fast start with six runs in the first inning. They loaded the bases with none out on singles by Bob Bailey and Bill Virdon and an error by pitcher Gary Kroll on Roberto Clemente's grounder. Stargell then cleared them with a double to left field.

Jim Bethke relieved Kroll and walked Bill Mazeroski and got two out before Pagliaroni slammed a three-run homer.

Optimists Lose To ABC, 5-2

ABC topped the Optimists, 5-2, Thursday on the three-hit pitching of Ronnie Steen in a Hi - Junior League baseball game.

Loser C. Smith gave up only two hits, but the Optimist pitcher walked too many and had too many passed balls to keep his opponents from scoring.

ABC scored three runs in the fifth inning on passed balls and walks, breaking up a 1-1 deadlock, before Smith was replaced by J. Pate, who gave up another run.

Angels Flog Lions, 6-1

The Angels flogged the Lions, 6-1, in a Sophomore league game here Friday night.

The Angels did the damage with the help of only two hits. One was a sixth inning triple by Richard Walling, the other a seventh inning single by Gary Newsom.

The Lions drove out four safeties, including a double and a single by James Newman. Bill Davis and Fernando Mendoza had the other blows for the Lions, who got their lone run in the third when Mendoza went around after accepting a base on balls.

Matson Probably Won't Be On American Team

NEW YORK (AP) — Only athletes qualifying in the Amateur Athletic Union's Outdoor Track and Field Championships will be eligible for International competition, AAU President Clifford Buck reaffirmed Saturday.

This, apparently, rules Texas A&M's Randy Matson, world record holder in the shot put, out of the coming duel with Russia because of the National Collegiate Athletic Association bans on undergrads' competition in AAU meets.

START JUNE 26

The AAU national championships are scheduled in San Diego June 26-27. The First two American finishers in each event become eligible for the team that will compete in Russia, Poland and West Germany later this summer.

Further, the AAU championships will be the basis for selection of athletes for all international meets this summer, Buck said, including the World Games in Budapest, generally known as the Student Olympics.

"We recognize that a number of college men will be completing their eligibility this month," the AAU president said in a prepared statement.

"Fortunately, these men have an opportunity to move up the competitive ladder to met the mature, experienced athletes of other nations."

He scotched all suggestions that some men—such as Matson—would be picked on the basis of performances earlier this season, and emphasized that only these athletes qualifying in the AAU championships will be eligible for international competition.

"In head-to-head competition in the National AAU championships, the men will be competing against the nation's best athletes on the same track, on the same day and under the same competitive and weather conditions.

"From this competition will emerge men who have proven their right to a place on the United States' team after meeting and defeating the other top athletes of our country. Our top athletes expect and accept such a policy.

"It is regrettable that there will be some undergraduate students who will be deterred from gaining this valuable experience along with an opportunity to compete against our top stars," he said.

He pointed out that the selection method is the same as that used for the selection of Olympic teams.

"In fairness to these athletes we shall again have the team actually select itself," Buck said. "As in the six previous meets between the United States and the U.S.S.R, the first two American placewinners in each event will qualify for our team. We are sure that no top American athlete would want it any other way."

He predicted the U.S. men would beat Russia and pointed to U.S. Olympic gold medalists such as Billy Mills, Bob Schul, Mike Larrabee, Ollan Cassell, Paul Drayton and Gerry Ashworth, and world hammer throw record holder Hal Connolly as top candidates for the U.S. team.

Oilers To Visit Snyder For Two

Jim Baum takes his Big Spring Gage Oilers to Snyder today for a baseball doubleheader with the Snyder Eagles, an all-Negro contingent. The first contest gets under way at 1:30 p.m.

The Oilers are 3-1 on the year, having beaten the Big Spring Tigers twice here last Sunday.

In a previous meeting with Snyder, Big Spring won by a score of 11-2. However, Snyder later beat Abilene, a club that took the measure of the Oilers.

Probable starters for the Oilers are Jerry Barron, shortstop; Tommy Young, center field; Tito Arencibia, first base; Tommy McAdams, third base; Roy New, right field; Joe Sharpnack, second base; Doyce Lankford or Jackie Blizzard, left field; and Jim Baum or Dean Christian, catcher.

Bowman Roberts, Chubby Moser, Danny Valdes and Bobby Suggs will be available for mound duty for the Oilers.

Baum said he was still seeking games for July 18, Aug. 15 and Aug. 29.

Briton Likely To Win Crown At Porthcawl

PORTHCAWL, Wales (AP) — They tee off Monday in the British amateur golf championship and the betting should be that a Briton will win it.

But it isn't.

There are 27 Americans in the field of 176 trying to win a rather tawdry cup that means a lot but can't be bought or sold.

Fourteen Americans have won it, starting with Walter Travis in 1904 with Lawson Little taking it twice, in 1934 and 1935.

Bobby Jones needed it — and got it — in 1930 to manufacture his grand slam.

Five times there has been an all-American final. The last one was in 1959 between Deane Beman of Bethesda, Md., and Bill Hyndman of Philadelphia at Sandwich.

This time the betting is that Bill Campbell, the 42-year-old from Huntington, W. Va., could be the new champ.

He is wearing the United States amateur crown at the moment and he knows British courses over long periods of frustrating attempts to win the British Amateur. Campbell lost to Doug Bachli of Australia in the 1954 at Murfield.

The British field is headed by defending champion Gordon Clark, who beat England's Mike Lunt at the 19th hole last year.

Neither Clark nor Lunt was among the early arrivals. The American contingent has been sizing up the 6,658-yard, par 75 seaside links since Thursday.

In addition to Campbell, the American entries include Hyndman, who also was runner-up in the 1955 U.S. Amateur; veterans Bob Sweeny and Dick Chapman of Palm Beach, Fla., both former British Amateur winners; Bob Gardner of Essex Fells, N.J., runner-up to Beman for the U.S. amateur title in 1960, and Jimmy Bostwick of Westbury, N.Y., who won he French Amateur last year.

Yogi Anderson Lone Longhorn On Squad

Yogi Anderson, Big Spring junior catcher, was the only Steer named to the 1965 District 2-AAAA all-star baseball team chosen by coaches and sports writers.

Anderson came on fast after conference play started and wound up hitting .353 against league foes.

Champion Odessa had three players named to the squad while the Bronchos' Jack Green was selected as the Most Valuable Player in the circuit. Green won six of seven starts and usually played the outfield when he wasn't pitching.

Coach of the Year is Bill Herron, who received nine of the possible 12 votes.

Only juniors in the lineup are Wayne Merritt, Midland outfielder; and Anderson.

Charles Burdette, a right-hand pitcher, was the only other Big Spring player to rally any votes. He gained the Honorable Mention list.

Two players tied in the voting for the first base position. They were John Scott, Cooper; and Lee's Terry Schreiner.

No boy was a unanimous selection but Merritt and Green led in the balloting, with ten votes each.

Leading hitter on the squad was Odessa's Danny Rodriquez, who wound up with a .455 mark against conference foes. Rodriquez is a second baseman.

Four other players received votes for the Outstanding Player award. They were Pat Brown, Permian; Julio Guerrero, San Angelo; Rodriquez and Ronnie Harris, Cooper.

All eight teams in the circuit placed at least one boy on the mythical squad.

Only repeater from last year's squad is Terry Schreiner, Lee first baseman.

Kiwanis Club Winner, 8-6

The Kiwanians got their runs in clusters in beating the Duncan Drillers, 8-6, in a Hi-Junior baseball league game here Friday night.

The winners counted three times in the first, two in the third and followed up with three in fourth.

The Drillers outhit the Kiwanis, 8-5, but winning hurler Junior Mendosa scattered his blows more effectively. Mendosa was also a power at bat for the Kiwanis, driving out a double and a single.

Kirby Horton hit a fourth inning double that accounted for two of the Kiwanians' runs. Lonnie Clanton had two of the Drillers' safeties, both singles.

Big blast for the Drillers was a homer by Jerry Ryan, the blow coming with Sammy Mims aboard.

Independents Fret Over Gas Imports

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) — Tighter restrictions on oil imports are their major objective but independent oilmen are becoming increasingly concerned about the level of natural gas imports.

Nearly three times as much Canadian natural gas is being consumed in the United States now than in 1960. Further increases are anticipated.

Canadian gas production has doubled since 1960 and more than one-third of all production is being exported to the United States.

Canada's output last year averaged more than 3 billion cubic feet a day, of which 1.08 billion came to this country.

Nearly 90 per cent of the Canadian gas goes to California, Washington, Oregon and Wisconsin. Other customers are in Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, Idaho, Montana, Nevada and New York.

TREND UPWARD

Canadian gas accounted for only 2.5 per cent of U.S. demand last year but independent oilmen see danger in the upward trend. Approval of applications now before the Canadian government and the Federal Power Commission would permit Canadian gas to claim 3 per cent of the U.S. market by 1967.

The independents estimate Canadian gas imports currently approved exceed 458 billion barrels a year, an amount equivalent to 224,000 barrels of crude oil daily. Pending permit applications would boost this crude oil equivalent to 264,000 barrels a day.

The Independent Petroleum Association of America has approved its first formal policy statement on Canadian imports.

The statement contends Canadian gas is supplanting domestic gas and is causing additional natural gas liquids production to seek a market.

The independents also contend Canadian gas is supplanting domestic petroleum products and therefore is, in some cases, undermining the Interior Department's mandatory program to control oil imports.

OFFICERS INTERVENE

Officers of the Association were authorized to intervene in the pending gas import permit cases and submit to the FPC evidence to show domestic ability to meet market demand.

The statement also solicits support from other trade groups and expresses vigorous opposition to gas imports increasing at a rate greater than the growth rate of domestic gas production.

A policy on Canadian oil was adopted by the independents in 1961. It endorsed preferential treatment of Canadian oil in relation to other petroleum imports into the United States but not in relation to domestic production.

The 1961 statement called for a coordinated continental oil policy that would permit reducing U.S. and continental dependency on less secure overseas sources.

The independents also said the Canadian and United States governments should reach an understanding and agreement as to future levels and long range policy on shipments of Canadian crude oil, natural gas liquids and furnished petroleum products into the United States.

TIPRO President M. D. Abel of Midland, in another statement, prediced the nation's oil independents will soon by carrying their import problems to Congress.

"There are reliable indications that Interior Department officials will recommend no meaningful revision in the present unsuccessful oil import program," he said.

1,500 Service Stations Close As A Protest

HOUSTON (AP) — A service station owner says 1,500 stations from San Antonio to Beaumont will close Sunday in protest of what they call unfair practices by major oil companies.

Mike Fennell said it will be the third successive week that stations have closed on Sunday. About 300 closed the first Sunday and 850 last Sunday, he said.

The majors have increased the cost of gasoline and other service station products to dealer-owned stations in recent years but have kept prices at company-owned stations steady, Fennell said.

Anderson Asks Rusk To Reconsider Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Clinton Anderson, D-N. M., has asked that the State Department review its opposition to any reduction in oil imports from the Caribbean area or any cut in military oil purchases there.

Anderson wrote Secretary of State Dean Rusk he understands the department is adamantly opposed to any such reductions.

He said he has been advised that "it is the position of the department that petroleum income to the Venezuelan government must not be reduced, otherwise our relationship in Venezuela will be jeopardized."

Anderson said the average annual increase in crude oil production in Venezuela since the mandatory oil import program was put into effect, has been 125,000 barrels daily.

"Since 1959 Venezuelan production has increased 22 per cent which is twice the rate of growth in United States oil production," Anderson told Rusk.

Noting that the Interior Department now is re-evaluating the mandatory oil import program, Anderson said he hopes the State Department will further consider its position "since it appears that both the Department of Interior and the Department of Defense would be willing to make some adjustments in this import program and military purchases outside the United States."

All Federal Roads Built By Funds From Special Motor Taxes

NEW YORK — Special taxes paid by motorists for the privilege of owning and operating motor vehicles provide all the money the federal government puts into road-building. Roughly 80 per cent of this money comes from the 4-cents-a-gallon federal tax on gasoline.

Taxes on highway users also provide the federal government with more than $2 billion a year which is spent on non-highway projects.

Flame Cultivation Is Summarized In Article

Proceedings of the Second Annual Research Symposium on the Use of Flame in Agriculture have been published by the National Gas Processors Association and the National LP-Gas Association.

A concise and up-to-date summary of techniques developed for what has become known as "thermal agriculture," the proceedings are the collected presentations of a research symposium held in St. Louis under the joint sponsorship of NGPA and NLPGA.

Included are reports on flame weed control, thermal defoliation, and insect control in the nation's largest money crops: cotton, corn, grain sorghums, and alfalfa. Techniques for weed control in specialty crops such as blueberries, grapes, and strawberries are also shown.

The data evaluate effectiveness of experimental techniques, yield data, and economics of flame weed control, as developed in programs at some of the nation's principal agricultural colleges. Among the organizations participating in the symposium were: Iowa State University, Kansas State University, Michigan State University, Purdue University, Oklahoma State University, High Plains Research Foundation, the U. S. Department of the Interior, the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and California Research Corporation.

Copies of the proceedings are available from either the Natural Gas Processors Association, 429 Kennedy Bldg., Tulsa, Okla., or the National LP-Gas Association, 79 West Monroe St., Chicago, Ill.

He was in a naval unit attached to the Marine Corps and for 28 months was in action in the South Pacific. When he returned to civilian life, he was discharged as metalsmith third class.

As surely as flowers are a part of each wedding, they are a token of love with each passing anniversary.

If you are planning your wedding this June, we surely hope you took your florist into your confidence long ago. It has been said that love is blind, but we hope not to the extent that couples forget that others may have chosen the same day to say their vows. Wedding flowers are delicate, fragile things of beauty; they cannot be arranged hastily, nor by unskilled hands. Your wedding day ought to be the most wonderful day of your life. Still a subscriber to The Herald, Mrs. Williams, who was secretary to commanding officers at Webb AFB for a number of years prior to her marriage, read a Herald item telling of CAPT. ALLEN ROBERTSON'S station in St. Louis. They had been at Webb at the same time so she telephoned him an invitation for dinner with the Williamses. Capt. A seven-inch rain fell the night before they left for home, so they know why everything is so pretty and green all the time and why the lakes and streams are so full.

The Stevensons are to begin building a new home soon.

Refreshing Skin Aids

This is the time when a woman's skin reflects the full impact of fluctuating seasonal temperatures. The day-to-day cliff - hanger weather proves especially irritating to dry or mature skin.

Run your hands over your upper arms and elbows. Do they pass the touch test? Take a good look at your face and neck in strong light. Do they have a parched look? If they do, they need daily care.

Each night cleanse your face thoroughly with a cream cleanser and skin freshener. Apply a hypo - allergenic moisturizing cream. The mature woman needs one that contains natural oils normally found in healthy young skins.

How you apply such a cream is as important to your skin health as the cream itself.

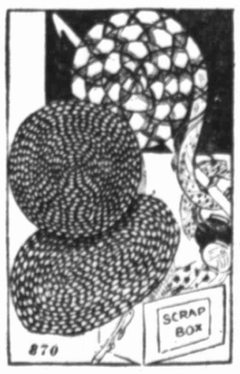
A beautician suggests this nightly routine before you go to bed:

1. Apply the moisturizing cream sparingly with two fingers. Massage the chewing muscles, using upward circular motions.

2. Use forefingers to massage laugh lines. Start from bottom of chin and massage upward.

3. Continue to massage around the nostrils, on the bridge of the nose and gently around the eyes.

4. The forehead calls for firm circular massaging.



Crocheted Rugs

Round or oval rugs are crocheted by crocheting carpet warp over strips of discarded stockings. Pattern No. 870 gives the instructions.

Our New Spring and Summer Needlework Book containing actual patterns and a free coupon which is good for any pattern of your choice is 50 cents.

Send 25 cents plus 5 cents postage in coins for this pattern to MARTHA MADISON, Big Spring Herald, Box 1490, New York 1, N. Y. Add 15 cents for first class mail.

DR. PRESTON HARRISON, MRS. HILA WEATHERS

Hila Weathers Ends Career At Hospital

Friends said "so long" Friday afternoon to Hila (Stormy) Weathers as coordinator of volunteer services at the Big Spring State Hospital.

Mrs. Weathers, who has resigned her post, is going to California to make her home near her daughter.

There were several gifts, but predominant was a corsage of coins, an envelope bulging with currency, and a money tree presented by R. W. Whipkey, who spoke for the volunteers who had worked with Mrs. Weathers.

"I've never known anyone who has given such all-out enthusiasm, effort and devotion to a job as Stormy has," he said. "She has been a light that has illuminated the entire volunteer program. We think that the program here is the best in the state, and it has been largely because of her efforts."

The many who called at the volunteers' lounge in the Allred Building were served cake and coffee from a table laid with a white cloth, appointed in a red and white color scheme, and with red hurricane lamps matching the flower bowl with white flowers—spider mums and gladioli in a triangular arrangement.

Employes had given the money which went on the cleverly-decorated tree. In addition, many friends had given, and just as spontaneously as the other had developed, Stanton friends sent over an envelope full.

The cake carried a legend: "Congratulations California, You're Getting a Great Gal . . . Our Stormy."

Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Joe Ward, Mrs. Ennis Cochran, Mrs. Robert T. Piner, Mrs. Lois Blalack, Mrs. Bill Simpson and Mrs. Jack Kimbell.

TRAVEL TALK

Yucatan Is Intriguing

By HULIN FOWLER

Yucatan, that great thumb of land jutting out from the southernmost tip of Mexico into the tip of Mexico into the Caribbean, is not a place to inspire romantic dreams of an idyllic tropical resort.

Yet, largely due to air travel, the once remote peninsula is a rather popular resort, especially to the historically-minded who desire to study the ruins of the ancient Mayan civilization.

The Yucatan Peninsula primarily belongs to Mexico and is composed of the colorful states of Yucatan, Campeche, and the Territory of Quintana Roo. The remainder consists of parts of Guatemala and the British Honduras.

In reality, Yucatan is neither remote nor forbidding. It is only about 1½ jet hours from New Orleans. In astonishing contrast with the rugged, mountainous terrain of the rest of Mexico, Yucatan is flat, clear and relatively free of jungle except for the extreme southwest part.

Merida, capital of Yucatan and "Gateway to the Mayan Ruins," is a modern city of 150,000 people, fourth largest in Mexico. It is widely regarded as the cleanest city in Mexico, its wide streets tree lined and relatively uncongested by traffic.

Founded on the site of a Mayan city in 1542, Merida is a pleasing contrast of the old and the new in architecture. Sections of handsome modern villas blend in with 400-year-old Spanish colonial buildings with a decided Moorish flavor. Modern hotels dot the city, several looking out over the town plaza, shaded by huge laurel trees, and a 367-year-old cathedral built on the site of a Mayan temple.

Possibly the most startling sight in Yucatan is the windmills. The peninsula rests on great subterranean reservoirs. While the ancient Mayas dug "cenotes" (wells), their modern counterparts discovered windmills in the 1920's. Merida alone has an estimated 20,000 windmills on as many rooftops, or about one windmill for every seven persons.

The people in Yucatan are different from those in the rest of Mexico. Descendants of a once strong proud people, the Mayans, both men and women dress entirely in white. Their features are broad and stoic, but they are a friendly people, proud of their heritage of a once modern civilization known the world over for its stone architecture.

The Mayan ruins are regarded by many archeologists as the most remarkable and extensive relics of ancient civilization anywhere in the western world. Though exploration and study began in 1923, the bulk of the work is yet to be done. Amateur archeologists and historians find the sites fertile ground for their explorations, relatively untouched by the professionals.

Two of the most famous groups of ruins lie within 50 miles of Merida and can be comfortably explored thanks to the unique and up-to-date travel services offered on the peninsula. One of these, Uxmal, is believed to have been the aristocratic center of Mayan rule, built between the seventh and eleventh centuries. The other, Chichen Itza, has a huge four-sided pyramid which provided a 90-foot platform from which the ruling Mayan high priests conducted sacrificial rites.

Comfortable hotels and other accommodations are never very far from the historic ruins. Of course, this could be a disappointment to tourists who expect to come to Yucatan and "rough it," but it makes for a comfortable and enjoyable visit to some of the most important excavations in the western world.

Hints From Heloise

Dear Folks:

When baking loaf cake or making tea cakes in your muffin tins, do you know that you could buy a milk chocolate bar in your dime, grocery or drug store, and the minute you take your cakes from the oven, break the candy bar up into little squares, lay one on the top of each hot tea cake (or if you are making loaf cake, break it up in pieces and spread them out), let them melt, then take your knife, give it a few swirls, and you save yourself the job of making icing and there is no bowl to wash!

HELOISE

'Cause the cake is hot, the candy bar will melt, so spread it over the cake as soon as it melts. If you don't get around to spreading the melted candy over the cake . . . no matter . . . you will have some icing on your cake with little effort on your part . . . Heloise

• • •

Dear Heloise:

I would like to tell you of one more use I have found for those little pieces of indispensable nylon net.

Being a farm wife, I raise and dress my own broilers. After the chicken is killed and the feathers picked off, I take a piece of your nylon net (kept especially for this purpose) and rub the chicken all over with this to remove that thin layer of yellow skin which sometimes takes so much time and scraping to get rid of.

I just put the chicken in a pan of water, or hold it under a faucet of running water, and scrub it with the net . . . like I would a "dirty youngun in the bathtub" and the yellow skin comes off like magic.

When finished, wash the net out under hot water, take it outside and shake out the remaining particles. Hang up to dry, and it will be ready to use again . . . Faithful Fanny

• • •

Dear Heloise:

I save the shirt cardboards and plastic bags from the laundry, and when we take a trip I use them for my blouses.

Just fold the blouses on the cardboards in the same manner shirts are folded, put them in the plastic bags, and they will stay fresh and unwrinkled. . . . Amanda C.

• • •

Dear Heloise:

My mother made the cutest "dining room" for our dog! His water dish and food dish were always being upset or pushed around . . . trying to get the last drop or last bite!

She got a heavy cardboard box, removed the top and cut out all of one side of the box except for about an inch along the bottom (so the dishes would not slide out), then she covered it inside and out with adhesive-backed plastic paper.

It looks nice in the dog's special corner of the kitchen and is so easy to keep clean.

Isn't she smart? . . . Cathy

• • •

She certainly is, Cathy, and a hug and kiss to you for telling us about this cute idea . . . Heloise

Receptions In China

TOKYO (AP) — How should newlyweds in Communist China conduct wedding receptions?

Engaged couples took the question to the comrade editor of the Nan-Fang Jih-Pao — southern daily — in Canton. He solicited opinions from his readers and they came up with an answer:

"Continue working on your wedding day so as not to affect production, buy some sweets and give a simple evening party."

All the readers opposed lavish banquets, once popular.

"Holding a feast was a practice adopted by landlords and rich people who lived by the labor of others," commented one reader.

Issues of the newspaper received in Tokyo indicated couples were torn between allegiance to the government's austerity programs, and pleas from parents to follow traditions and host lavish parties.

One reader told newlyweds to forget about age-old customs that required dowries — "a bourgeois idea" — and to concentrate on hard work and frugal living.

WORKED FOR EDISON, FOUGHT WITH CHURCHILL

Mr. Potter Marks 99th Birthday

By TOM BARRY

A Big Spring resident who worked with Thomas Alva Edison, fought with Winston Churchill, built and worked for railroads on two continents and sailed with the merchant marine, will add to his list of accomplishments Sunday when he celebrates his 99th birthday.

J. G. Potter, whose life story reads like a history book, will be feted by friends and workers at Bennett House.

Most Big Springers remember Mr. Potter as time-keeper for the city, and before that as an employe of the Texas & Pacific Railway Co. here and in Colorado City. But few have heard the little man tell of the things he did long before Big Spring existed.

SCOTLAND

Born and raised in Scotland—he no longer remembers where—the year after Lee surrendered to Grant, Mr. Potter took a degree in metallurgy from Edinburgh University, then sailed with the merchant marine for a few years. When the Boer War in South Africa broke out Oct. 11, 1899, he enlisted, was shipped to the front and assigned to the same regiment as a young major named Winston Churchill. Wounded, he was sent home and mustered out.

An adventuresome man, Mr. Potter emigrated to the United States shortly thereafter. After some years in New York City and Philadelphia, he moved on to South America, where he helped build railroads in several countries.

Then it was back to the States, and Orange, N. J. There he worked for Edison as a metallurgist in one of the famous inventor's four small, but productive, laboratories.

In later years, Mr. Potter worked for the Texas & Pacific, first in Colorado City and finally in Big Spring. He met and married his wife, Georgie Ann, in Justin, in 1924. Then moved to Big Spring in 1941. T&P retired him during World War II, but Mr. Potter didn't like retirement.

J. G. POTTER

He told the city of Big Spring a wee fib about his age and was hired as time-keeper. He kept the payroll records until an automobile accident disabled him in 1955.

WIDOWED

Widowed in 1953, Mr. Potter, who has no children, now lives at Bennett House, where he is the thoroughgoing favorite of the staff.

A life-long member of the Presbyterian church (he was a choir member and elder of the First Presbyterian Church and later of St. Paul's), he still takes great pleasure in looking at St. Paul's steeple when the sun is right and he can go outside. He can see only large objects, and those indistinctly, but the steeple's bulk is perhaps only part of what he sees, looking at it.

Life for this lively man has become slower now. His hearing is as poor as his sight, his feet are partially crippled, and, he says—his speech still strongly Scots—"I hae nae teeth."

But none of these things keep him from being cheerful. After all, he can walk about now, after a year of treatment, and make his bed and dress himself, although the clothes are sometimes inside out, as his color sense is about gone. And he has an anniversary picture of himself and his wife that he shows to every visitor.

PEGGY

"Peggy," he will say, "was a good, chubby girl." He always refers to his late wife as "Peggy" because it is his favorite name, though it was never her favorite. "She threw a platter at me the first time I called her that," he says, "but she got used to it."

Each Christmas the local Brownies bring him a tree with lights, and he enjoys that, too.

Most of all, though, Mr. Potter loves "conversation." Sitting in his chair, punctuating his words with rapid hand maneuvers, running his fingers through his feathery white hair while remembering a century of history, he makes a fascinating conversationalist. It is rather odd "conversation" since he does all the talking, and can't be interrupted except by shouting in his ear. But "that's what makes it so much fun."

Old Settlers Reunion Slated For July 30

The 41st annual Howard-Glasscock County Old Settlers Reunion has been set for July 30. Officers of the association met Friday afternoon to start arrangements for the barbecue, program, and dance.

"We have arranged for 2,000 pounds of beef from Chapman's Meat Market; 10 goats from the W. L. Wilson ranch; some 500 pounds of son-of-a-gun; 200 pounds of beans; and all the pickles, onions and bread," President Jess Slaughter said Friday. "We will serve the barbecue at noon, and will have some speaking, an old fiddlers' contest, and a dance will be held from 8:30 to 12:30 Friday night."

Slaughter said he and Joe Hayden will act as the finance committee. Donations and contributions will be accepted at any time from now until the reunion. Some contributions have been made, he said. Any of the officers, including vice president Cecil Long, and Mrs. Dorothy Taylor, secretary-treasurer, may be contacted.

"We have arranged for Sam's Band, with "Tex" Shorty, world champion fiddler, to play for the dance," Slaughter said. "We have been assured of a sound system for the meeting as Baldridge's Bakery has agreed to provide its truck from 9 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. The system to be used for the dance music will be provided by the band."

Cecil Long will be in charge of the barbecue, and other committees will be named later.

Lighting System Up At New Park

The lighting system for the new city softball park, under construction at FM 700 and Eleventh Place, has been installed, with the recreational area near completion.

A flag football field has been constructed, with a water system installed and grass seeded.

A water sprinkler system has been placed for the softball park and grass will be seeded next, according to Parks Superintendent J. O. Johansen.

The lights include 22 mercury vapor units of 1,000 watts each, City Electrician Roy Rogan said.

IMPROVING WATER STORAGE
Construction is under way for concrete reservoir

Concrete Water Reservoirs Are Life Savers In Drouth

A uniform distribution of grazing is the aim of the 35 concrete water storage facilities constructed on ranches and farms in Howard and Glasscock counties during the past year.

The Big Spring work unit of the Soil Conservation Service, which includes the two counties, is encouraging stockmen to look to the construction of such storage spots as a sometime "life saver" during drouth periods.

A storage tank five feet in height and 20 feet in diameter will hold some 11,164 gallons of water, enough to supply 106 head of beef cattle for seven days, William Sowers, soil conservationist of the unit here, pointed out.

A facility of that size is now being constructed on the M. M. Edwards Ranch, south of Coahoma.

A five by 30-foot tank will hold 25,118 gallons, or enough to supply about 240 head of beef cattle for seven days.

SUPPLY NEEDS

The supply needs are based on minimum daily requirements of 15 gallons per day for horses and beef cattle, 30 gallons daily for dairy cattle and two gallons for sheep, goats and swine.

The conservation workers recommend the construction of such storage facilities in a location where an adequate and dependable amount of water storage will help furnish more uniform grazing.

"In cases where a well does not have an adequate storage facility, cattle may suffer during periods of well failure or over any length of time in which the windmill is not pumping fast," Sowers said.

"Most ranchers prefer to build the storage facility at the well and then run one or several pipelines away from the storage into different pastures or locations in a large pasture," Sowers said.

This helps in grazing distribution in that cattle have a tendency to stay fairly close to water in hot weather. In areas away from water, rangeland may be undergrazed while overgrazing occurs in spots close to water supplies.

A five by 20-foot concrete storage tank, built according to SCS specifications, will cost from $650 to $700, depending on the location and the accessibility of the site. The larger five by 30-foot tank will cost about $1,000.

COST-SHARES

The Great Plains Conservation Program, administered by the Soil Conservation Service, can provide a cost share on these storage facilities as well as on pipelines to and from the storage.

The 35 facilities constructed during the past year were in the northern part of Glasscock County and in Howard County.

"These concrete storages, when properly constructed, have a long life expectancy," Sowers pointed out. "When the cost is amortized over a period of 20 to 30 years, it becomes apparent that this is an inexpensive source of water storage, and during emergency periods its value becomes priceless."

Pension Fund Assets Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The assets of private pension funds increased by $5.4 billion last year to $51.9 billion, even though they paid out $1.7 billion in benefits.

Figured at their present market value, however, the value of the funds reached $63.4 billion.

Most of the funds cover corporation employes and many are administered by unions.

The figures were contained in an annual report released Thursday night by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

A Devotional For The Day

The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. (Galatians 5:33-23)
PRAYER: Lord God, we thank Thee for Thy great love to us. Overrule our wills and direct our lives. Baptize us with the Holy Spirit that we may bear fruit for Thee. We ask in the name of our living Savior, Thy Son Jesus Christ. Amen.

Your Chance To Help

Residents of Big Spring and Howard County are beginning to respond in a fine way to appeals for help in furnishing the Howard County Rehabilitation Center.

Within about two months, this handsome new structure should be completed and ready for occupancy. As to design and construction, it will be just what is needed to serve the public for years to come. However, physical therapy and allied programs require specialized equipment and unique apparatus for effective achievement. Almost every taut or weak muscle or stiffened joint calls for a specific item, and these mount into the scores.

Without this equipment the center will be about as helpless as a tournament golfer with only a driver, mashie and putter. The present store of equipment, some of it outmoded or worn out, simply is not adequate for the job that lies ahead.

The Dora Roberts Foundation has picked up the check for the $160,000 plant and half block of centrally located property on which the center is situated. Had this not been the case, perhaps the center would still be merely a dream.

Will our people respond to this challenge by seeing that the needed equipment and furnishings are provided? If so, we will have a center that will have few equals in all of West Texas and will become a singular asset and blessing to our community.

You can help by checking with the center on items which are needed—items which range in price from a few dollars to several hundred dollars. You can help, too, by encouraging the organizations to which you belong to select pieces of equipment which will be a worthy memorial for the organization. You can help most of all by doing something about it now and not waiting.

Time To Stop

Based on reports from numerous sources, the practice of juniors hazing sophomores in high school is getting out of hand. As with most things, a handful of people seem to be causing most of the stir.

Few will object to prankish initiations, but when serious bodily harm may result from the antics, it's time the whistle is blown. This business of spraying preparations on the face of young sophomores, of bumping them as they walk in front of cars, and similar senseless doings simply must be stopped.

And so must the business of simply terrorizing youngsters with threats of rough treatment.

Parents can put a stop to this by having a heart-to-heart talk with their juniors to make sure they are not doing and will not do this sort of thing. Other parents can help by naming names when harm is inflicted on their children. After all, those who use initiation as an excuse for doing things they wouldn't have the courage to do otherwise are depending on a cloak of silence.

What's That Number Again?

It's like I've been telling you, the numbers are going to get us, even before Johnson grass and the Texas Aggies.

Every month that rolls by brings in new evidence of the absolute authority of the computer and the robot machine, which know nothing but digits. It may be time for revolt, and in truth I have already started my own type of write-in about which more later.

THE BELL TELEPHONE system is a wonderful institution, but must take the blame for having touched off this numbers racket. Now they say they are going to have digit dialing in these parts. This means you dial one digit to get to bat, three more to get you to second base, then seven more to get you to home plate.

If Mother Bell doesn't mind, I would rather pick up my phone, talk to that "voice with a smile," and tell her I want to talk to Ed Klunk, who lives in a little town in southern Virginia. I don't remember the name, but I think it starts with an "M". You think those operators wouldn't keep trying until they found old Ed, or at least reported back that he is out fishing this weekend? If you use digit dialing, how are you going to know old Ed went fishing?

WELL, FORGET the phones for a minute. It's these "account numbers" that are bugging me. Why an account can't be assigned to just a person's common name, I'll never know, except that the robots are in control.

If you're affluent enough to have an account in three banks, each of which has an account number, how are you going to keep up with them? Credit cards? Well, take a dozen for assorted purposes, and I defy you to get yourself familiarized with all those numbers. I used to think that remembering my own phone number and the post office box number was enough burden for anybody, but you can see what has happened.

LIKE Frankenstein, the numbers are getting more autocratic all the time.

These big outfits are now asking, you will note, for you to enter your "account number" on the outside of your envelope, right under the return address. I say to heck with this. If they don't think enough of my account to look up the number themselves, let 'em go without this month's check. If you sit down to pay your bills (happy thought!) who wants to clutter up the envelopes with all those series of digits, dashes, zeroes and letters.

IT WAS antagonizing enough to get a bill with those computer-punched spaces, with the dire warning: "Do not staple, clip, perforate, fold or otherwise mutilate this card." I took this as long as I could stand it, and now have a standard practice of punching about seven extra holes in every machine-card I send back. That shows 'em.

And now for my write-in resistance campaign. Where they call for my "account number" on the outside of the envelope, I uniformly write "7-4-1776". You see, that's July 4, 1776, when we are supposed to have declared some independence. The independence may be gone, but I sure am fouling up somebody with my "account numbers."

Prelude To Santo Domingo

WASHINGTON—It seems incredible that erroneous impressions should have been spread about what the United States did or failed to do before landing marines in the Dominican Republic.

It seems strange, too, that the United States has been charged with taking an impulsive action without consulting the Latin-American countries, when it now turns out that the government here did consult at least 14 of the Latin-American countries and even the peace committee of the Organization of American States before the landing of any military units.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON told the whole story of the Dominican Republic episode in great detail to his news conference on Tuesday. What he said in an impromptu answer to a question from a reporter at the press conference is particularly significant. It reads as follows:

"Many months ago we became aware of the increasing tensions there, and the difficulties that would likely confront us. On the Sunday before we went in there on Wednesday, we asked the ambassador, who had already come to Washington at our calling, to leave his family home and come here to meet with us. Ambassador Bennett met with us on Monday. We rushed him back to the Dominican Republic and set in motion certain steps.

"FIRST WAS to attempt to obtain a cease-fire. Second was to take the precautionary steps necessary to protect approximately 5,000 Americans, as well as thousands of other nationals if that should be required. We moved our ships up there on Sunday.

"The ambassador arrived there on Monday. He talked to various leaders. We did all we could to bring about a cease-fire in cooperation with the Papal Nuncio and others who were active on the scene. On Wednesday at noon, it became apparent that danger was lurking around the corner, and the ambassador gave us a warning in a cable about one o'clock. We had met on Monday and we had met on Tuesday. We met on Wednesday, and we had had many conversations on Sunday on which we did not issue any handouts. During that period—I think from the time we were notified on Saturday until we intervened on Wednesday—we spent a good part of both day and night giving our attention to this matter, from moving the ships up to making the final decision.

"I HAD 237 individual conversations during that period and about 35 meetings with various people. Finally, on Wednesday afternoon at four something, we got another warning that we should have a contingent plan ready immediately, and a little before six o'clock we got a unanimous plea from the entire country team made up of the ambassador, CIA director, USIA, Army, Navy and Air Force—to land troops immediately to save American lives.

THE PRESIDENT, in answering another question at his news conference, took occasion to demolish the misconception that has arisen concerning the so-called "Johnson Doctrine"—as if something new had been devised. Actually, the United States was merely following its traditional position. He said:

"I am afraid that the people that have branded the Johnson Doctrine were unfamiliar with the fact that the nations of this hemisphere have repeatedly made it clear that the principles of Communism are incompatible with the principles of the inter-American system . . . President Kennedy enunciated that on several occasions. The OAS itself has enunciated that. I merely repeated it."

BUT WILL the explanation by the President of United States policy in the Dominican Republic overtake the misinterpretations that have been so widely circulated in recent days?

Three Different Accents On Our Economic Goal

Wall Street promptly called it the "Martin market." This was natural—cause and effect. Yet it could have been called the "Ackey market," the "Fowler market," or—more accurately—the "Ackley-Fowler-Market syndrome."

Federal Reserve Board Chairman William McChesney Martin Jr. provided the impetus. At noon, on June 1, he recited to the alumni of Columbia University some "disquieting similarities between our present prosperity and the fabulous 'twenties," including the growing belief that a "new economic era had opened . . . in which business fluctuations had become a thing of the past."

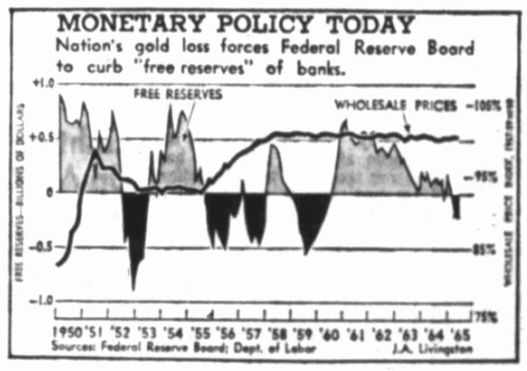
AS MARTIN'S message whizzed around Wall Street, stocks fell. Yet his speech had followed equally important speeches by Gardner Ackley, chairman of President Johnson's Council of Economic Advisers, and Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler.

The three speeches reveal basic agreement. Martin, Ackley and Fowler are not—as of now—in blazing conflict. Far from it. But their emphases differ on how to maintain stable, lasting prosperity undergirded by a strong, internationally-respected dollar. Therein lies danger.

TODAY'S difference in emphasis could fester into out-and-out policy dispute tomorrow. But Ackley, Fowler and Martin are far too circumspect not to realize that such a dispute, making headlines around the world, would be economically disturbing, if not disastrous. National interest and self-preservation impose on all three self-restraint.

The seeds of potential conflict can be discerned in the agreements and disagreements of the President's top economic helpers in these excerpts from recent speeches.

Ackley, on May 26: "Excessive unemployment continues to be our most serious economic problem." Not once did he refer to the balance-of-payments deficit. Yet the title of the address was: "The American Economy: Problems and Prospects."



FOWLER, MAY 27: The elimination of the (balance-of-payments) deficit is at once the most serious and most difficult economic task facing the United States today . . . The standing of the dollar directly affects our national security and our capacity for effective diplomatic, political or military action. A strong currency is essential to our success in meeting our worldwide responsibilities."

MARTIN: "If the dollar is to continue to play its role in international commerce, world confidence in its stability must be fully maintained; the world must be convinced that we are resolved to eliminate the long-persistent deficit in our balance of international payments."

So far, Martin and Fowler are together, Ackley apart. But let's look further.

ACKLEY: "We saw in the 1950's what . . . fiscal and monetary restrictions did to jobs, to profits, to investment and to productivity . . . It is in the interest of all of us to avoid falling back into that trap . . . If we do maintain reasonable stability of costs and prices, we can continue the expansionary monetary and fiscal policies that have contributed so much to our present prosperity."

Fowler: "To raise interest rates . . . not only conflicts with our need to maintain our domestic expansion . . . but would not solve the (balance-of-payments) problem . . . An interest rate increase large enough to have a significant effect . . . would almost certainly bring a recession. A recession, in turn, would severely damage the climate for foreign investment in the United States and would also create a strong movement to reduce interest rates immediately."

MARTIN: "Our common goals of maximum production, employment and purchasing power can be realized only if we . . . prevent orderly expansion from turning into disorderly boom . . .

"If an occasion arose when we could preserve the international role of the dollar only at the expense of modifying our favored domestic policies, even then would we need to pay attention to the international repercussions of our actions."

AND THERE you have the differences in emphasis. Martin carefully avoids saying so directly, but pleads for flexibility in interest rates — freedom to tighten credit; Ackley argues for low-cost, plentiful money and credit. Fowler stresses protection of the dollar without cramping prosperity. Differences, yes. But out-and-out conflict, no.

The Bank of England provided an assist. It lowered its discount rate from 7 per cent to 6 per cent. This helps the dollar, Martin, Ackley, Fowler—all of us. It brings international interest rates down closer to ours. It reduces the pull on the dollar —on the U.S. gold supply.

This makes it easier for the formulators of policy to submerge their emphases and avoid conflict.

All-Purpose Press Release

WASHINGTON — Things happen so fast these days that the State Department no longer has time to put out a statement for each crisis. To solve the problem a friend of mine has devised an all-purpose press release which is being sent out to newspapers, magazines and television stations throughout the country.

It goes like this:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE
ALL-PURPOSE PRESS STATEMENT
(Date)

For Release ———.

The United States government welcomes the progress, during the past twelve hours, toward freedom and increased stability in ———. While reluctant to condone any resort to violence, we regard the events in ——— as a significant step toward more orderly democracy and the strengthening of the ——— world. We pledge our firm support to Gen. ——— of the ——— party, and are encouraged by his promise to return ——— in due course to civilian rule.

Our support for Gen. ———'s government represents no change in United States policy toward ———.

Nor does it change the United States posture vis-a-vis ——— or ——— or ———.

To help the people of ——— get back on their feet, the President has authorized a special fund of ——— dollars to pay for the salaries of the army and new government officials. The President has also promised ——— dollars in loans to ——— and has promised military aid and advisors to prevent another ———.

The ——— U.S. Fleet has been dispatched to ———, the capital of ——— to prevent further bloodshed and to protect American ——— there.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk denied that the fleet was sent to ——— to influence in any way the internal affairs of the country. The fleet had been requested by Gen. ——— and under the ——— agreement we had no choice but to provide American support to prevent a ——— takeover.

Mr. Rusk promised that as soon as things stabilized he would withdraw the ——— Fleet and the ——— Marine Brigade which was landed three days ago.

The President and the National Security Council met today to discuss the ——— situation and the President is sending ——— ——— as his personal representative to give him a first-hand report and to make future recommendations. This in no way shows his lack of confidence in Ambassador ——— ———, who has been called back to Washington for consultation.

A Fighting Man's Income Tax

WASHINGTON — Until a recent executive order the most glaring inequity in the operation of the federal income tax law was one that hit comparatively few taxpayers. If you were a service man in a jungle fox hole in Viet Nam the federal tax was levied not only on your base pay but on your extra compensation for "duty subject to hostile fire."

THIS LAST was a bit of bureaucratic gobbledygook intended to evade the word combat. Protests began to come from Congress about men under fire having their pay subject to federal taxation. Noting that one of his constitutents, Capt. F. R. Kendrick, a helicopter pilot from El Dorado, Ark., had raised a question about this obvious injustice, Sen. John McClellan called on the President to exempt men in Viet Nam.

The President has that power under a precedent established by Congress at the request of President Truman six months after the start of the Korean War in 1950. President Johnson issued an executive order on April 24 designating Viet Nam and the waters within 100 miles of the Vietnamese coast "as an area in which armed forces of the United States are and have been engaged in combat." The order was made retroactive to Jan. 1, 1964.

THIS NOT ONLY righted a conspicuous injustice but it was official recognition — the only one thus far— of the grim reality of what is happening in Viet Nam. With nearly 50,000 Americans on the ground in the Vietnamese conflict the fact can no longer be evaded that this is a war albeit an undeclared war.

Now a move is on to make the Dominican Republic a combat zone. Although whether Congress has any authority in this field is questionable, Sen. George Smathers (D., Fla.) had introduced a bill specifying April 28 as the date on which combat began in the Dominican Republic and adjacent waters. Marines and paratroopers in service there would also be exempted. As in Viet Nam, this would apply to enlisted personnel. Officers in combat get a $200-a-month deduction.

WHEN SET alongside the income scales and spending standards of the affluent society military pay appears niggardly. Granted that you cannot recompense men for patriotism, duty, dedication to service in the armed forces, nevertheless compensation should be at least adequate. And the feeling is growing in Congress that even the proposed five per cent increase in military pay will still leave most grades short-changed.

The beginning pay of an enlisted man is $78 a month. This goes to a high for a soldier with 26 years of service of $573.90. That is base pay. It does not include about 40 per cent additional compensation for housing and subsistence, most of which has in peacetime been exempt from income tax.

COMBAT PAY is an across-the-board addition for all grades of $55 a month. It was the ruling that this amount, along with regular pay, was subject to federal taxation that caused the greatest resentment among men daily under fire.

A five per cent pay boost will mean very little to enlisted personnel. To a lieutenant general with monthly pay of $1,614 it is a sizable increase. That is the inherent injustice of an across-the-board proposal — it gives slight help to those in the lower ranks.

THERE HAS BEEN a lot of talk about giving relief to the small taxpayer but so far nothing has come of it. A large proportion of the 2,600,000 men in the armed forces of the United States are in this category and, except for approximately 50,000 in Viet Nam, they are subject to federal income tax.

Billy Graham

The Bible contains many references to fasting. You once quoted Mark 9:29: "This kind (of spirit) can come forth by nothing but prayer . . .", but you omitted the last two words, "and fasting." Does this indicate that you do not believe in, nor approve of, fasting? Why? G. M. Z.

On the contrary, I do believe in fasting. If for no other reason, because it is clearly taught by the Bible.

Gluttony is one of the vices of an affluent society. Most of us overeat, and are overweight—setting ourselves up for coronary attacks (the nation's number one killer) and other diseases.

The New Testament seems to indicate that God desires health for the whole man. Such Scriptures as: "I pray God your whole spirit, soul, and body, be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ," underscore this truth—(idea).

Fasting, we now know, is not harmful, but helpful, to the health of the body. Certainly to forego food and the pleasures of eating, should be a valuable discipline for our souls. But, most of all, we should practice fasting because our Lord said, "This kind goeth out only by prayer and fasting."

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — The legendary "Wabash Cannon Ball" now lives only in song.

Russell B. Eaton, Norfolk & Western Railway Co. official, says the term "Wabash" gradually will be deleted from all references to the new N&W system.

The famed "Wabash Cannon Ball" became the plain old Cannon Ball Oct. 16, 1964, when the Wabash Railroad was leased to the Norfolk & Western.

How To Test A Baby For PKU

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Friday we described PKU (phenylketonuria), a disease which relentlessly turns otherwise normal babies into mentally retarded ones, unless it is discovered early and a special diet is adopted.

How do you know when a baby has PKU? For one thing, the urine has a musty smell. But how do you know just what I mean, by that? You don't! And I can't describe it any better than that.

However, there is a very simple test which will show when phenylalanine is appearing in the urine, which is a test for the disease. A drop of 10 per cent iron chloride on a wet diaper taken from the child will turn blue.

An easy, inexpensive test! But when it means the difference between having a normal child and a retarded one which may have to spend all the rest of its life in an institution, there is no excuse for not testing every baby.

There are some aspects which should—I think MUST—be understood, however. In some areas it is now mandatory, under state law, to test every newborn baby for PKU. Generally the rule is to test the babies when 3 days old.

The trouble is, the condition does not always show up quite that soon. The premature baby, the baby who must be artificially fed, or given limited feedings, or even the baby who for some reason just doesn't want to eat at first, will not get enough protein, and hence not enough phenylalanine, to show up in the test.

Thus it is important that testing also be done later. The ideal, and I rely on specialists to whom I have talked, would be to have the first test before the baby leaves the hospital, and repeat tests at two weeks, six weeks and two months. That way we probably would detect every case, and detect it in plenty of time.

Indeed, if we found every case when the baby was no more than three to six months old, and then started the special diet, we would prevent all, or nearly all, of the brain damage from PKU.

True, there is a blood test for PKU. It will detect some cases before the economical urine test will, simply because there is a little lag at the beginning. The phenylalanine will build up first in the blood, and a bit later will "spill over" into the kidneys and the urine. The blood test costs several dollars.

When you remember that PKU occurs only once in every 10,000 or 12,000 children, you wonder how much we should spend to find each case. A few cents per baby, spent at the right time, is one thing. A few dollars per baby is something else when multiplied by 10,000.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible for a doctor to tell, from hearing tests, whether a patient has nerve deafness or immobilization of the stapes? Can he differentiate?—H.L.H.

Definitely yes.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

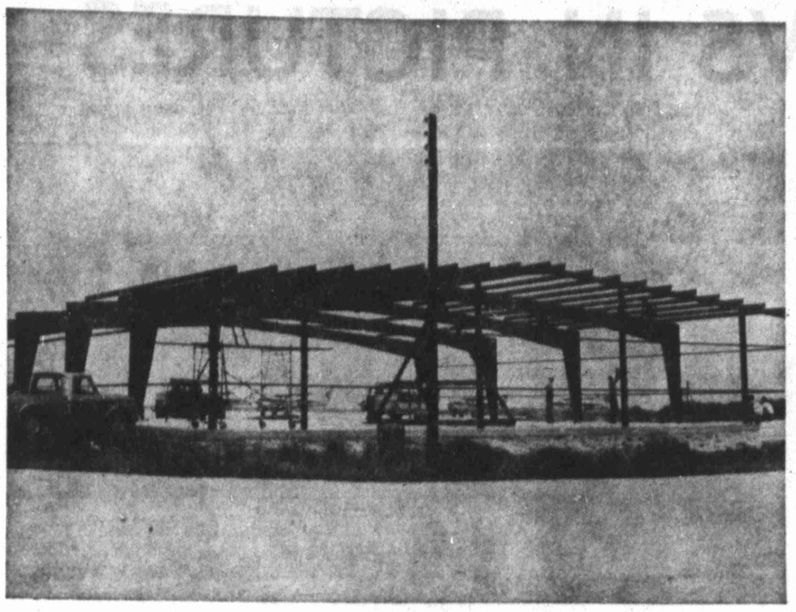
Busiest Year

CHICAGO (AP)—The National Labor Relations Board had its busiest year in its 30-year history during 1964.

Commerce Clearing House said the board caseload reached a high of 27,403 accepted cases and the disposal of 26,715 of them.

The cases included 15,620 unfair practice changes and 11,685 representation cases.

Back pay was awarded to 5,142 employes under the direction of the NLRB which found them to have been discriminated against by employers, unions or both. The awards amounted to $3 million, an all-time high, and above the previous year's figure of nearly $2.75 million.



A New Hangar–Office Takes Shape

Steel goes up on the new structure at Howard County Airport. In the background are some of the T-41A airplanes to be used in training Webb Air Force Base pilots in a pre-jet program to be handled here by Central American Airways.

Boardings High During May For T-TA At County Airport

By M. A. WEBB

Two hundred and 15 passengers, the greatest number since December, boarded Trans-Texas Airways flights out of Big Spring in May, Dean Berry, station manager, reported. The December boardings totaled 249.

Incidentally, Trans - Texas' faster prop-jet airliners, to be put into use this fall on its six-state system, will be known as "Silver Cloud 600." The name was accepted at the close of an employe contest in which Capt. Bill Paradis of Humble submitted the name to express the comfort of the new airplane. The Convairs will be equiped with the Rolls-Royce turboprop engines on the Convair frames.

"We have suddenly run out of ramp space," Howard Loyd, manager of the Howard County Airport, said Friday. "Six of the new T-41A Cessnas to be used in training Webb Air Force Base pilots, are now tied down; a couple of mesquite-spraying craft, a twin Bonanza, and an Apache, plus aircraft hangared at the airport. When one of the bigger birds, like a B-26 which came in this week for a time, a Cessna Sky Knight, and another twin-Bonanza, come in, we are fresh out of space, but business looks good."

Colorado Oil Co. representatives came in the B-26; Dow Chemical Co. men in the Sky Knight, and Tetro-Rolite men in the twin Bonanza.

The new hangar, being erected for Central American Airways, by Ray Dunlap, is fast taking shape. Steel went up Thursday afternoon and Friday, and other materials will be up soon. Everything is supposed to be in readiness to begin the training of Air Force pilots by Aug. 1 when the Air Force program of light plane training goes into effect.

Two brand new owners of private licenses are now flying out of the airport with flying clubs. Travis Waller and Kert Dotson were checked out this week. Waller took his check ride at Midland and Dotson at Abilene.

Flying club members up this week, were: Webb Aero, in Cessna 150 — Davidson (cross country), Sammye (4), Kathy (4), Morrell (1 and 2 cross country), Druyun (3); Cessna 172—Gariani (4), McComas; Howard County Flying Club, in Cherokee—Waller (cross country and 4), Garner (4), Dotson (2), Reed (3 and cross country), Ames; Colt—Green (cross country), Eaton, Garner (2 and cross country), Donica, Moore, Dodson, Waller; Big Spring Flying Club in Colt—Hopkins (1 and cross country); Skyhawk—Stewart (5), Stanley.

Gardner Flying, Inc., Brownwood, has two sprayers at the airport. Friday afternoon the firm brought in a bus and three other vehicles to use in connection with their spraying service in this area.

Student Hazing Is Out Of Hand

Several parents have complained that hazing of sophomores entering Big Spring High School has gotten out of hand, and that it has continued as a summer threat.

School officials said they had a number of complaints prior to the end of school that juniors were inflicting various types of punishment in the guise of initiation of sophomores.

"We asked for and got wonderful cooperation from the police in re-doubling the patrols around school," before the semester ended," said Supt. Sam Anderson. "We took and will take all possible measures to control this so far as the schools are concerned. Since school is out, no complaints have reached us, which is natural because our jurisdiction, not our interest, ends with the school."

Parents, notably mothers, have contacted The Herald concerning hazing. Most of the accounts deal with threats which have made a number of sophomore girls afraid to leave the house or reluctant to go out with friends.

Earlier there were some reports of thoughtless use of sprays and other preparations as a means of hazing. One girl had her eyelashes, eyelids and face painted with a nail polish which could have been damaging to the eyes. Another had pepper sauce put in her eyes, according to reports, and still another had an abrasive type of Christmas snow sprayed in her face.

Most of this, according to parents contacted, has dwindled with the summer season, but the tempo of threatening telephone calls has stepped up.

School officials and law enforcement officers have taken a dim view of these goings-on. They run into a lot of barriers, not the least of which is a reluctance on the part of parents or students to be identified with a complaint. The reason given is that this might mark the sophomore for more hazing or for the cold shoulder. However, if specific complaints are made, this gives officers something to work on.

One odd facet that officials say they have run into is that some few youngsters solicit or provoke severe hazing as a means of recognition. Officers have urged parents to caution their children about initiations which could be physically dangerous or emotionally shattering.

Normandy Invasion Staged For Screen Spectacular

Capturing on the screen the human story of the 24 hours of June 6, 1944, that changed the course of history, "The Longest Day" will provide motion picture audiences with a front-row seat for the Allied invasion of Normandy when it opens today at the Jet Theatre in conjunction with world-wide observance of the 20th anniversary of D-Day.

The presentation is a $10,000,000 dramatization of Cornelius Ryan's best-selling account based on interviews with over 3,000 D-Day participants from both sides. Because there were no cameras to record the actual invasion and the thousands of human incidents of that historic day, Zanuck assembled 42 international stars for the most important of the 167 speaking parts and thousands of combat troops to re-stage on actual invasion sites a look at the events as seen through the eyes of the men who were there.

There were no cameras clicking on the night before the assault as the French underground prepared to sabotage the German communication network; as gliders filled with paratroopers began their silent journey across the Channel; as General Eisenhower made his crucial decision to attack despite bad weather. All of this is part of the enormous canvas of "The Longest Day" as it unfolds on the screen.

Not a foot of "library"—or wartime newsreel—film is used in "The Longest Day."

Heightening the historic and dramatic values of the film is the fascinating insight into the seemingly incredible German errors. German intelligence had broken the Allied code and actually knew the hours, if not the places, where the invasion would occur. But the German high command refused to act. Hitler slept until the early afternoon on D-Day, and Field Marshal von Runstedt was unable to get the vaunted Panzer reserves to the front in time.

Months of painstaking preparation preceded the two years required for actual production of the film. As Zanuck himself put it: "General Eisenhower had his men and material. I had to find mine for the film."

Outstanding cooperation by the American, British, French and German governments aided Zanuck in his herculean efforts to gather the fleets of ships, squadrons of outdated planes, tanks and trucks and the thousands of combat troops to support his all-star cast.

Special permission was obtained to restore German bunkers and trenches, shell-torn terrain and battered buildings—many scars long since healed by time—along the Normandy coast. Entire villages were evacuated for weeks at a time while battles were re-staged and the Normandy skies lit up at night as glider and paratroop landings were re-created at their original sights in the deadly glare of "enemy" fire.

John Wayne, Richard Burton, Robert Mitchum, Henry Fonda, Stuart Whitman, Rod Steiger, Tom Tryon, Peter Lawford, Fabian, Tommy Sands, Robert Ryan, Paul Anka, Curt Jurgens, Richard Todd and Red Buttons are among the international stars portraying key figures in "The Longest Day."

'THE GIRLS ON THE BEACH'
Opens Thursday at Ritz

Musical Film Aimed At The Teenage Set

A swinging, dancing, musical film in color is "The Girls On The Beach," which opens Thursday at the Ritz Theatre.

When boys meet girls, inevitably, there is bound to be lots of action, intrigue and romance. And as the complications pile up as a result of a bluff made by the lads about their close acquaintanceship with a popular English singing group, the fun and frolic builds to a happy climax.

The surfing and swinging action of this lively teen set takes place during the surf-side vacation of a group of comely co-eds, whose antics and musical merriment uniquely captures the pulse of this younger generation.

Noreen Corcoran, Martin West, Linda Marshall, Steven Rogers, Anna Capri and Aron Kincaid star in "The Girls On The Beach," which highlights the popular "Beach Boys," Lesley Gore, and "The Crickets." Also featured are Nancy Spry (Miss Teen USA), Sheila Bromley, Lana Wood, Mary Mitchel, Gale Gerger, Peter Brooks, and Linda Saunders.

Reincarnation Tale Is Filmed

"My Blood Runs Cold" could well become the spine-chilling hit of the year. A suspense story, built by climax upon climax, the new release unfolds a tale of tension and terror.

"My Blood Runs Cold" stars Troy Donahue in a new departure from the romantic roles he has been playing; beautiful and talented Joey Heatherton stars a rich girl who might have undergone reincarnation; Barry Sullivan as the arrogant and impatient tycoon who is her father; Nicholas Coster as a sympathetic but sharp-witted lawyer engaged to her; and Jeanette Nolan as a keen but eccentric aunt who knows all the dark secrets of the family.

"My Blood Runs Cold," scheduled to open Tuesday at the Ritz Theatre, tells the story of an escapee from a mental institution who nearly mesmerizes a young, headstrong girl into believing she and he were lovers in the long-ago. The fantasy he spins is accompanied by a penchant for killing by use of a garrot, a knotted rope applied to the throat of a chosen victim.

Exteriors for the film were made in the Monterey area of California to capture the rugged scenery, the wild surfs and the fog-bound vistas which are integral to the plot. Other sequences were done along the 17 Mile Drive, in the Carmel Highlands, at Seal Rock and Santa Cruz. The thrilling chase-finale was shot at the Del Monte Sand Plant.

Fascinating Tour For A Vacationist

One of the most fascinating points of interest on the West Coast is the Huntington Library, Art Gallery and Botanical Gardens, located at San Marino near Pasadena. It is situated on the 200 acre grounds of the Henry E. Huntington (1850-1927) estate, and founded in 1919 by Huntington and dedicated to the public as a free art gallery, museum and botanical garden, as well as a free research library for qualified persons.

It is best known perhaps for its art collection, principally a group of eighteenth and early nineteenth century British paintings, including works in portraiture and landscape. Represented are Gainsborough, Reynolds, Romney, Lawrence, Turner and Constable. Of these, the most commonly known are perhaps "The Blue Boy," by Thomas Gainsborough, and "Pinkie," by Sir Thomas Lawrence. These, as well as "Sarah Siddons as the Tragic Muse" by Sir Joshua Reynolds, hang with others in the main gallery.

SEVEN GALLERIES

The collection is housed in seven principal galleries and 15 smaller galleries and halls, which also include drawings, tapestries, furniture, silver, clocks, porcelains, and miniatures from England and France produced in the eighteenth century. Sculptures are found in the museum, as well as throughout the grounds, including a fine collection of Renaissance bronzes.

The gallery, until the founder's death in 1927, served as the Huntington residence, and has only been slightly altered since then.

The library was completed in 1920 and contains many rare printed works and manuscripts. There are 250,000 items in the book collection, and more than two million pieces in the manuscript vaults.

The principal items on permanent display include:

BIBLE

The Gutenberg Bible (Mainz, about 1450-55), which was the earliest book produced in Europe with movables types and the first printed Bible;

"The Recuyell of the Historyes of Troye" (Caxton, 1475) the first book printed in the English language;

The Ellesmere manuscripts of Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales," made about 1410;

First collected edition of Shakespeare's plays, printed in 1623 and known as the "First Folio;"

George Washington's genealogy in his own hand, 1792;

Benjamin Franklin's "Autobiography" in his own hand, 1771-89.

The gardens of the estate are breathtaking.

Broad lawns greet the visitor at the gate, with a great mesa oak, some 200 years old, providing restful shade between the two main buildings. The gardens were started in 1905 and contain rare evergreens and deciduous shrubs and trees from every continent.

Cycads, a primitive group related to conifers, are represented by 50 specimens. The North Vista features seventeenth century stone figures from Padua against a background of azaleas and camellias; the Shakespeare Garden contains plants named in the poet's works; and there is a Rose Garden and Herb Garden.

JAPANESE

A Japanese Garden was built in a small canyon, with traditional Japanese shrubs and stone ornaments. A moon bridge is the center of interest, and a winding path skirts a stream and waterfalls.

The Camellia Collection has 1,200 varieties on a five-acre hillside. The Palm Garden has 200 specimens from both hemispheres on two acres.

The Desert Garden contains the largest collection of mature specimens of cacti and other succulents in the world on 10 acres. There are more than 25,000 plants, representing 1,500 species and varieties.

The Huntington Library, Gallery, and Gardens is a highlight of any trip to California, yet it is scarcely mentioned in the tourist brochures, which lean to the more spectacular. Unfortunately, the grounds are open only 3½ hours daily, and it requires more than one trip to make the complete tour. But it is certainly worth the time, and is second to nothing else California has to offer.—GLENN COOTES

Employers Urged To Hire Extra Help This Summer

By TOM BARRY

With summer here and schools closing, more than two million American youngsters, ages 16 to 21, will be looking for summer jobs, many of them with a view to training for future careers. Every year these boys and girls comprise half the national summer unemployment. Most of them will remain without jobs, if past experience is any guide.

Some of them, including about 1,000 high school youths, will be looking for meaningful employment in Big Spring. Whether they find jobs depends not only on their own desires, but on opportunity—job openings provided by local businesses.

SENA JO GOODLETT

Sena Goodlett Edits Yearbook

STEPHENVILLE — Sena Jo Goodlett, Big Spring, has been reappointed editor of the Grassburr, yearbook publication of Tarleton State College. She will edit the 1965-66 annual.

Miss Goodlett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Goodlett, 1802 Goliad, will be entering her third year as editor-in-chief of a collegiate annual. She was editor of the 1965-65 Grassburr and editor of the Howard County Junior College yearbook before transferring to Tarleton last year. She received the associate arts degree from Howard County.

The blonde coed is a senior elementary education major at TSC. She is a 1962 graduate of Big Spring High School.

Miss Goodlett was appointed to the position through action by the publications committee and TSC president E. J. Howell, who made the announcement.

EXTRA HELP

President Johnson, seeking to lower summer unemployment, has asked federal, state and local governments to help provide needed jobs. He has directed government departments and agencies to make efforts to find work or training opportunities this summer for one extra trainee for every 100 employes on their present payrolls. The President indicated, however, that the program (the Youth Opportunity Campaign) will be a failure unless U.S. businessmen do their part to employ the summer job-seekers.

In line with the YOC, Mayor George J. Zachariah has proclaimed June as Youth Opportunity Month.

"I encourage all our citizens to join with me in developing every possible work or training opportunity for youngsters this summer," he said. "These boys and girls represent Big Spring's future."

The Herald took a sample of local businesses which normally employ youngsters during summers. All the firms checked were swamped with applications for summer work.

EMPLOYS 4-5

Paul Hathaway, manager of J. C. Penney, said the store usually hires four or five summer or part-time workers. But jobseekers run high above the number possible to hire. "There's someone in here every little bit looking for a job," Hathaway said.

Nel Transfer and Storage Co. is presently using three vacationing college students, but has had more than 30 applicants, according to Williard Neel.

McMahon Concrete Co. reported "at least" 30 requests for jobs. The company normally hires two summer employes.

Randall Polk, at Hemphill-Wells, told The Herald Thursday, "We have had a number of applicants, and hired one of them last week."

W. D. Caldwell said his contracting firm has had "a number of high school boys looking for jobs — six or so — but we can't possibly hire them all."

The local office of the Texas Employment Commission does all it can to place youths in summer jobs. It welcomes all applicants, but cannot guarantee anyone a job.

MANY APPLICANTS

"There are always many more applicants than available jobs during the summer months," said the commission's Leon M. Kinney. "The need is for local employers to make summer jobs available. Local governmental agencies can provide only a few jobs. TEC tries to get jobs for the youngsters, but the openings just aren't there."

Anyone wishing to apply for possible job placement should call AM 3-2324 or visit the commission offices at 801 W. 16th.

Air Strikes Not Enough, Veep Avers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey says air strikes alone won't do the job and the war in Viet Nam will have to be won on the ground by South Vietnamese forces.

Humphrey said in an Associated Press interview he believes that South Vietnamese fighting units — given sufficient time — can subdue their Communist opponents.

He said he thinks the Viet Cong will call it quits once the Communists become convinced the United States is determined to stay to the end in South Viet Nam.

Humphrey said that while a year or two ago he had deep concern over U.S. involvement in the area he now strongly supports the kind of action President Johnson has taken there.

"I'm still concerned, but I know what we're doing is what we have to do," he said.

Some questions and answers on Viet Nam:

Q. Do you really believe we can win there?

A. If we have the patience and the will and the determination, and if we seek no quick and easy answers and any sudden victories, I believe we can win. I think we'll have to win on the ground, and I think we'll have to win in South Viet Nam.

Renomination Due For Adm. McDonald

Guardsmen Plan Summer Training

Two weeks of summer training that will put some 7,000 National Guardsmen of the 49th Armored Division into North Fort Hood is to begin in mid-July, including three officers and 70 enlisted men of Big Spring. Joining the other 49th Guardsmen will be Big Spring's A Battery, 3rd Battalion, 132nd Artillery.

An advance party of several men will leave prior to the encampment, but the two week training period is scheduled for July 18 through Aug. 1.

Objective of the training will be sharpening of combat skills for the division, including a series of maneuvers and test exercises under simulated combat conditions. A quarter of a million rounds of blank ammunition will be used in mock battles. Weapons from the M-1 rifle to the 8-inch howitzers will be used. Division artillery units in Big Spring, San Angelo, Shamrock, Wichita Falls, Paris and Marshall will alternate firing positions in the field during the two weeks. Dr. Castner Will Retire

RUSK — Friends of Dr. Charles W. Castner will gather Thursday at Rusk State Hospital to mark his retirement as its superintendent and from more than a half century of service to Texans. Hospital employes will be hosts at the informal open house from 1:30 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Dr. and Mrs. Castner plan to spend the summer near their daughter in Massachusetts and return to East Texas for their permanent residence.

He joined the state hospital system as a staff physician at Terrell early in 1915 to which post he returned after service with the U. S. Army Medical Corps in World War I.

His first tenure as superintendent of the Rusk hospital began in 1923 and he subsequently served San Antonio and Wichita Falls State Hospitals in like capacity. From 1937 to 1942 he was chief medical officer for all state eleemosynary institutions which were then under supervision of the State Board of Control. (During this period the state hospital in Big Spring was established.)

After seven years as superintendent of Austin State School, he returned to Rusk State Hospital as its administrator in 1954.

Professional and civic honors have been heaped upon him. He was accorded life membership by the American Psychiatric Association.

A Texas Senate resolution in 1955 paid tribute to his valor during an April 16 riot in the maximum security unit of the hospital. The fifty-eighth legislature joined in a concurrent tribute to his contributions in state service.
