Mexican quake toll now at 40

HUAJUAPAN DE LEON, Mexico (AP) — Thousands of dazed and homeless residents wandered in the streets here Saturday searching for food, water or friends in the rubble of buildings toppled by a powerful earthquake. At least 19 people died here in Friday's quake, police said, and the death toll across the nation reportedly exceeded 40.

It was expected to go higher.

About 80 percent of the buildings in this town 150 miles southeast of Mexico City were destroyed, and the collapse of a social security office, a medical clinic and the central market trapped hundreds of people, witnesses said. More than 80 injured in the social security building were said to be in critical condition.

The government sent helicopters carrying medics and food to this town of 20,000 and other stricken areas in the southern state of Oaxaca. Many people spent the night in the streets and rescue workers struggled around the clock to free people trapped in the rubble.

The quake triggered dozens of landslides in Oaxaca, blocking all major roads, toppling utility poles and cutting off most telephone services.

President Jose Lopez Portillo planned to fly here and to other stricken areas, his office said.

The earthquake was centered just off the Pacific coast near here and measured 6.5 on the Richter Scale. It was felt over a wide area of Mexico and Guatemala, and in downtown Mexico City tall buildings swayed like trees.

Oaxaca suffered most of the deaths, injuries and serious damage. But in Puebla state, between Oaxaca and Mexico City, at least 20 persons were killed by falling debris, the Red Cross and police said.

Hundreds of children attending a sports festival in a stadium in Puebla, the state capital, panicked when the quake hit. The Red Cross said 180 children suffered minor injuries.

Dr. Juan Zedeno Ferreira, medical relief coordinator for the Puebla area, said two people died in the village of Acatlan and one person was killed in the village of Huertilla. Both villages were reported 70 percent destroyed.

The village of San Mateo Xolco, between the Popocatepetl and Ixtaccihuatl volcanos, also was 70 percent destroyed. Two children there were killed and five people injured, authorities reported.

Hostage speculation growing

By The Associated Press

As the Iranian Parliament prepared Sunday to debate the fate of the U.S. hostages, an aide to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini confirmed that the legislature would set out its demands for the Americans' release.

Speculation that the hostages might be released soon grew steadily, despite the U.S. government's statements urging caution against too much optimism.

Several Iranian officials indicated the length of the debate and the possibility of new conditions or delays in the final action are not settled.

A Tehran spokesman for the Majlis, or Parliament, reached Sunday by telephone from Beirut, said the legislature would meet at 8 a.m. local time — 1:30 a.m. EDT — and "the hostage case is included on the agenda."

Asked if the fate of the captives would be decided Sunday, the spokesman who identified himself only as Mr. Manafi, said, "It depends. They may have a second round of debate."

Some legislators have predicted the debate could drag on for a week or two, but the spokesman, asked if this was a possibility, said: "No."

A top Iranian diplomat at the United Nations told CBS News there is a 99 percent chance that 40 of the 52 hostages would be released by Wednesday or Thursday. It was not immediately clear why all the captives would not be freed or what would happen to those that remained in Tehran. The diplomat told CBS his country is now satisifed that the United States has agreed to all conditions for release. But he did not describe the conditions.

One sign of possible movement on the hostage issue was the announcement Saturday by a government lawyer that hostage Michael Moeller, a U.S. Marine Corps sergeant accused of seducing a 23-year-old Iranian woman, would be released with the other hostages, should the Parliament agree to free them.

The lawyer, Iranian Justice Department investigator Ali Akbar Parvaneh, previously had said Moeller should stand trial regardless of the fate of the others. Sexual relations between unmarried people is illegal in Iran.

In telephone interviews Saturday with The Associated Press, an aide to one Iranian leader suggested debate on the hostages may be put off until after the U.S. presidential election Nov. 4. But a Khomeini aide declared: "The Majlis will meet tomorrow (Sunday) and announce the conditions."

Khomeini gave the Majlis, Iran's 228-member Parliament, final authority over the fate of the 52 hostages, who spent their 357th day in captivity Saturday.

The secretary to Khomeini's son, one of several Iranian leaders interviewed by telephone by The Associated Press from Beirut, Lebanon, predicted a quick release. He identified himself only as Mr. Faridnia, and said he believed the release would be "soon," because the United States had agreed to demands set earlier by Khomeini.

Election Day '80 looms

Plenty of choices given voters

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Come every fall, seems like there's always a race going on somewhere. Football teams start their race to the Super Bowl. Baseball winds up its streak to the World Series.

And once every four years in the fall presidential candidates run, walk, punch, pass and kick their way into the international hot seat known as the White House. The race, which started months ago with the first primary in Iowa, will be winding down on Nov. 4, a date known nationwide as Election Day.

The ballot — for those who are past the age of 18 and who have registered — will reflect not only the names of those presidential contenders who have worked tirelessly, but also will list names of state and local office holders whose time has come for review by the public, and their challengers.

The Texas ballot will have four names for president. Democrats selected incumbent Jimmy Carter with Walter Mondale as vice president; Republicans chose Ronald Reagan with former Midlander George H.W. Bush as vice president; Libertarians went for Ed Clark with David Koch as vice president. John Anderson, who started as a Republican contender, stayed in the race as an Independent. He has Patrick Lucey as his running mate.

If those choices don't seem to satisfy the tastes of most voters, presidential write-ins that have been approved by Secretary of State George Strake are Barry Commoner with LaDonna Harris, Deidre Griswold with Larry Holmes, Gus Hall and Angela Y. Davis, and the team of Marvin Edward Perkins and Dorothy L. Perkins.

FOR MIDLANDERS, the ballot will next list Kent Hance of Lubbock on the Democratic ticket for U.S. Representative from the 19th Congressional District. He first won the post two years ago and now is hoping for reelection. His challenger is J.D. Webster of Midland on the Libertarian Party ticket.

Two spots on the three-man Railroad Commission are up for a decision by the people.

One seat is being sought by Republican Henry C. "Hank" Grover and Democrat Buddy Temple.

The other race will fill an unexpired term being carried out by Democrat James E. "Jim" Nugent, who is running for election to that spot. Opposing him are Republican H.J. "Doc" Blanchard and Libertarian David Hutzelman.

Two unopposed contenders for the position of associate justice of the state Supreme Court are assured of their election. Both Democrats, Sears

Commissioner candidates in hassle over tactics

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The second round in eight years between incumbent Durward Wright and challenger Jeff Barber for the Precinct 1 commissioner's seat in Midland County was stirred up with a "wind devil" last week, when both candidates looked leerily and with suspicion at the campaign tactics each is using.

Wright, a 48-year-old former business anaylist who is seeking to extend the 12 years he has held the commissioner post, on Thursday mailed two flyers in 4,470 envelopes to households in his precinct.

One broadside extolled his role as commissioner. The other, a copy of an Oct. 8 Reporter-Telegram account of a court trial, reminded or informed voters that his Republican opponent had been accused of "pistol whipping" a youth with a .38-caliber pistol on the night of Feb. 5.

Barber

Wright suggested that he was merely trying to shed some insight to the public on the character of his opponent.

Barber, 55, a salesman for a chemical company, said the commissioner was not being "kosher" in running his hometown campaign.

"YOU KNOW," Barber said Saturday after mail carriers had delivered the Wright literature, "these are local politics and not national politics... If he (Wright) thinks he's kosher, I'll let him slip along and hang himself....

"Local politics are supposed to be halfway clean, and he (Wright) sure can't retract it (the mailouts) now."

Wright

But Wright, who has been hailed in his literature as a "blue-ribbon" candidate by fellow Democrat and elected official Robert H. Pine, said the inclusion of the newspaper account of Barber's civil trial in Midland County Court-at-Law was merely to inform the several thousand voters in his precinct. He said that the campaign literature had no tinges of mud-slinging.

"Well," Wright said after the literature was in the mail, "I wouldn't think so (that it was mud-slinging). It's a newspaper article without comment. All I'm saying is 'Something

HEARST

CHICAGO — Since you hold in your hands one of the approximately 54,000,000 copies of Sunday newspapers being read across America today (there are about 64,000,000 sold weekdays), I thought you just might find interesting some recent perspectives about this great communications medium.

Despite newspapers' almost 300 years of close association with American family life, this decade of the 1980s is viewed by some observers to be a critical one for them becuse of the huge array of new electronic media bursting on the scene.

Some pundits, as others did when radio and then television became important, are predicting dire consequences for printed media.

Last week at the annual meeting of the Inland Daly Press Association here, editors and publishers from all parts of the country enthusiastically welcomed an extremely interesting speech by the president and chief executive officer of the Hearst Corporation, Frank A. Bennack Jr.

I think the comments made by Frank who, at 47, heads not only the

Hopefuls in area races listed

election 80

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

Just like the May primaries, Democrats dominate the candidates' list in area county races. In nearly all local races in the area, Republican candidates are scattered sparsely with Democratic candidates running unopposed for most offices.

ANDREWS COUNTY

But Henry Guillet, also a Democrat, is running unopposed for the county attorney position.

Wayne E. Farmer, Democrat, is set against write-in candidate R.W. Tipton in the sheriff's race.

All other local candidates in Andrews are unopposed Democrats. Louise Williams is running for county tax assessor-collector. Bill Chesney is trying to get elected to the county commissioner, precinct 1 slot. And J.W. Moxley is the candidate in the county commissioner's race for precinct 3.

G.A. "Rags" Ragsdale is the lone candidate in the race for justice of the peace for precinct 4, place 1. Buey Braswell is fighting for the constable seat of precinct 4.

DAWSON COUNTY

In Dawson County, there are only two contested races — both for county commissioner seats.

For the precinct 1 seat, Republican Victor Magallen is pitted against Democrat J.E. Airhart. In the precinct 3 race, Alton Addison, Democrat, faces write-in candidate Orvis F. Davis.

In other races, the unopposed candidates are Democrats. Ralph Kinsey is running for the county attorney's office. Billy R. Horton is going for the sheriff's post. And Diane Hogg is the candidate for county tax assessor-collector.

MARTIN COUNTY

Because of three write-in candidates, Martin County has three contested races.

In the constable race for precinct 1, Janis Weston, Democrat, faces write-in Robert Jeffcoat. For county commissioner, precinct 2 (unexpired term) Jess Miles, Democrat, is pitted against two write-in candidates: Lonny Martin and Tanis Estrada.

In the third contested race, for constable of precinct 2, Wes Morgan, Democrat, will face write-in Lonnie Long.

In other races, Democrat Rick Hamby is running for district attorney of the 118th district. David Greenhow, Democrat, is the county attorney candidate while Democrat Dan Saunders is the candidate for sheriff.

The county tax assessor-collector's seat is sought by Democrat June Carpenter. Troy Bradshaw is running for the county commissioner, precinct 1 position.

F.E. Francis P. Kennedy, Democrat, is running for the justice of the peace office for precinct 1 (unexpired term). Democrat Shirley Scoggins is running for that position in precinct 2 (unexpired term).

UPTON COUNTY

Only two races in Upton County are contested. Constable for precinct 3 is a match against two write-in candidates: James Dennis and Ronny Hazlewood. The same is true for the precinct 4 constable race between write-in Sam Munro and write-in Joe Rowe.

Democrats sweep the other races in unopposed contests.

John A. Menesse is running for the county attorney slot. And S.O. "Sid" Langford is the single candidate for the combined offfice of sheriff and county tax assessor-collector.

REAGAN COUNTY

Write-in candidate Jesse D. Clement brought Reagan County its only contested race in the local election. Clement is running against Democrat Ralph Duefing for the precinct 3 county commissioner's seat.

Aubrey Edwards and Bill Mason are the district attorney candidates for the 3rd and 112th districts, respectively, in the Reagan County race as well as in the Upton Race.

Vick B. Atwood is the Democratic candidate for sheriff running unopposed, while Democrat Christine Gardner is unopposed for the position of county tax assessor-collector.

HOWARD COUNTY

The county commissioner's race for precinct 3 in Howard County pits Republican against Democrat as W.B. "Bill" Crooker faces Dick Nichols, respectively. County commissioner for precinct 1 is an unopposed race featuring O.L. "Lewis" Brown.

All other Howard County local races feature unopposed democrat candidates. Rick Hamby is the candidate for the district attorney's race in the 118th district.

ECTOR COUNTY

Ector County races may be somewhat more interesting as six of 12 races are contested.

Democrat Jack L. Hubbard meets Republican O.A. "Bob" Brookshire in the sheriff's race.

In unopposed county races, Democrat Mike Atkins is running for county attorney and Democrat Jackie Tripp Glover is the candidate for district clerk (unexpired term). Curtis G. Winn, Democrat, is the unopposed candidate for the county tax assessor-collector's office.

CRANE COUNTY

Glen Williamson, Democrat, meets write-in candidate Mike Fostel for the district attorney's race for the 109th district for Crane County, as is true for Andrews County.

Gene Clack is the unopposed Democratic candidate for county attorney in Crane County. Democrat Raymond Weatherby is pitted against write-in candidate Hal R. Dew for the combined office of sheriff and county tax assessor-collector.

In the county commissioner's races, both Democratic candidates face write-in candidates. In the precinct 1 race, Democrat Gordon Hooper will meet write-in T.N. White; in precinct 3, Democrat Doylan "Tip" Tippon goes up against write-in Floyd "Buster" Bowman.

All four precinct races for constable feature unopposed Democrats. Candidate for precinct 1 is E.N. Deane; in precinct 2, Roger Bulman; in precinct 3, Merle Damron; in precinct 4, R.F. Taylor.

GLASSCOCK COUNTY

There are four local races in the Glasscock County elections; three of which feature unopposed Democrats.

Royce Pruit is the candidate for the combined office of sheriff and county tax assessor-collector and Fred J. Hoelscher is seeking the spot of county commissioner for precinct 1.

Woman gives birth in restroom

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A 19-year-old woman gave birth to a premature baby girl in a hospital restroom after being turned away from the emergency room, hospital officials confirmed.

Barbara Hopler accused hospital officials of endangering her life and that of her baby. "I'd like to take a gun and shoot them (hospital officials)," she told The Orlando Sentinel Star.

The officials defended their action, saying they referred the woman to a nearby public clinic because she had not seen a physician in her seven months of pregnancy.

The 3-pound, 12-ounce baby, Catherine Linette Hopler, was in fair condition Friday at Florida Hospital in Orlando. Her mother was released Thursday from West Orange Memorial, in Winter Park.

She said she went to the hospital because she was having pains, vaginal bleeding and believed she was in labor.

Dr. Gonzalez Tabadala, on duty in the emergency room at the time, advised a hospital clerk to refer the woman to the hospital's social services department, officials said.

Will Clayton's Brilab acquittal clear up his cloudy political future?

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Speaker Billy Clayton is about to learn whether acquittal by a jury also clears away clouds that Brilab swept over his political future.

Clayton was found innocent, but some Texas politicians have learned that just being associated with a scandal can ruin a political career.

Some examples:

— John Connally was acquitted of taking a bribe from milk producers, but the scandal lingered on and was certainly a factor in his poor showing in the Republican presidential primaries.

— Ben Barnes and Preston Smith never were charged with anything, but their names popped up in the Sharpstown scandal and that was all it took to wipe them out in the 1972 governor's race.

An Analysis

—John Ben Shepperd's political career died in the veterans' land scandals of the 1950s because he served on the land board, even though nobody accused him of any wrongdoing.

Clayton had said for months that the only thing that would push him out of the speaker's race would be his failure to win acquittal "before the frost is on the pumpkin."

Meanwhile, he blessed conservative Rep. Gib Lewis' campaign for speakership pledges contingent upon a Clayton decision no longer to be a candidate.

A clearcut declaration by Clayton that he is campaigning for an unprecedented fourth term as speaker apparently awaits a canvass of his supporters and a face-to-face meeting with Lewis.

Some of Clayton's backers think the meeting should be held before the announcement, more out of personal respect than anything else.

"Gib deserves some consideration for all the work he has put in. The guy's been working his behind off for months," said Rep. Gerald Hill, D-Austin, a Clayton supporter who has promised to vote for Lewis if Clayton drops out.

Rusty Kelley, the speaker's executive assistant, said that within 24 hours of Clayton's acquittal in Houston, more than 90 House members called, telegraphed or visited to say Clayton still had their votes.

But Kelley said it would be "politically unwise" not to call each House member pledged to Clayton and verify that the pledge is still good.

"I'm sure we'll do an accurate head count after the election," Kelley said.

The speaker will be elected by a majority of the 150-member House when the Legislature convenes Jan. 13. Only Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, has announced against Clayton and he has been running since before Brilab broke on Feb. 8.

If there is any obstacle to Clayton's re-election, it could be a perception by House members that even though he was acquitted, he is tainted as far as the voting public is concerned.

A legislator might fear that voting for Clayton might damage his own future chances for re-election.

If the acquittal erases any suspicion that Clayton committed a crime, Brilab still raises questions about his judgment, one highly placed politician said.

Yet Austin lobbyists — who often have a better feel for political reality than anybody else in town — are starting to talk up Clayton.

"I used to think he could never be elected speaker again, but I've changed my mind now," said one.

"He is going to run again, I hope," said another prominent lobbyist.

The business lobby got behind Lewis' candidacy, but some lobbyists have indicated they would welcome two more years of Clayton to give them time to recruit another conservative candidate for speaker in 1983.

One lobbyist cited unfavorable newspaper stories about Lewis' involvement with horse racing interests. He said some Democratic legislators are mad because Lewis encouraged their Republican opponents.

Both Clayton and Gov. Bill Clements have suggested Brilab indicates a need for some sort of new ethics legislation.

"The lesson to be learned from this...is a reaffirmation to everybody in public office that they should keep themselves above reproach and above suspicion," Clements said Friday.

Jurors opt to believe 'native' Texan Clayton — not convicted swindler

By ROB WOOD

HOUSTON (AP) — There was Joseph Hauser, an FBI informant, convicted insurance swindler from the streets of Brooklyn, and there was Billy Clayton, a Baptist deacon, a Texas legislator for 20 years and speaker of the House for three terms.

When a federal court jury had to make a decision they went with Clayton and his ostrich cowboy boots and his down-home manner and reputation for being a fair man, both in the Legislature and on his farm in Northwest Texas.

The Brilab trial ended Wednesday afternoon after five weeks and two days.

Clayton and two Austin attorneys, Donald Ray and Randall Wood, were found innocent of all charges arising from the 10-month long Brilab investigation, an undercover operation that had Hauser and two FBI agents posing as representatives of Prudential Insurance Co.

Clayton was accused of accepting a $5,000 bribe to reopen the multimillion dollar-a-year state employess health insurance contract.

Some of the jurors had their minds made-up even before the defense presented its 50 witnesses, many of them testifying to the honesty of the three defendants.

Others listened to the secret Brilab tapes made by Hauser and decided there was no racketeering, no conspiracy, no extortion, and no fraud.

There were two pivotal points in the trial.

One was the appearance of Chip Holt, an election code expert from the Texas Secretary of State's office. The other was the track record of Hauser, the prosecution's chief witness.

Holt was called by the U.S. Attorney's office, but this backfired when he said no politician had a deadline for returning campaign contributions they had no intention of using.

Could you tell me what to put on varnished woodwork to clean it and make it shine?

I've tried furniture polish with no luck.

Also, is there anything that I can put on Formica to make it shine? — Mrs. R.C.D.

ANSWER: We are told there is nothing which can be used on varnished woodwork to make it shine. It is recommended that the woodwork be re-varnished with a glossy varnish, rather than the satin finish.

As for the Formica, there are two types, the dull and new shiny. If your Formica is not the shiny variety, it will not shine. However, there is a commercial cleaner available for Formica.

We the home owners in the 1600 block of Ventura Drive are very upset about one our neighbors who insists on using his home as his business.

Always, there is a conglomeration of construction equipment, trucks, cars, boats and trailers with flat tires and various other stages of disrepair parked in the front drive and the street in front of the house.

We have talked to Bill Clifton, city attorney, who referred us to a city inspector, who did check into this situation. Some improvement was noted at the time, which was some eight months ago. Now the situation is as bad as ever. — Sincerely, Home Owners.

ANSWER: One city inspector reports he will check on the situation again, and, if there is no improvement, the case will be turned over to the city's legal department for action.

ATTENTION BILL BUILTA: A further check on your question about a drainage ditch in Hogan Park filled with rainwater, but also seemed to have sewage draining into it.

We are informed that the ditch, which is being established as a new sewer line, is not located in Hogan Park, but in a subdivision of the park, west of Lamesa Road.

We recently bought a new home. After we noticed cracks in the corners and loose bricks in the fireplace, we discovered the foundation isn't level.

Do we have any legal right to sue the builder or the previous owner? — H.B.

ANSWER: The State Bar of Texas says the Consumer Protection Act applies to real estate just as it does to purchases of products or services.

If you were led to believe there was no structural defect in your home at the time you bought it, the law allows you to sue the person who misled you at the time of the sale.

You may sue to recover three times the actual damages you prove you have suffered as a result of the structural defects.

chapel with Dr. Daniel Vestal officiating. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery directed by Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Oliver died Saturday morning in a Midland hospital following an lengthy illness.

She was born Nov. 30, 1914, in Midland to the West Texas pioneer ranching family, the late Mr. and Mrs. Elliott F. Cowden, and was raised here. Mrs. Oliver attended schools here and the University of Texas. She was a member of the First Baptist Church and the board of directors of Trinity Towers. She was also a charter member of the Junior Woman's Wednesday Club and director of the Ida Faye Cowden Foundation.

Survivors include a son, Cowden Oliver of Midland; a daughter, Jessie Fay Castleman of Dallas; a brother, Wright Cowden Sr. of Midland; several nieces and nephews; and five grandchildren.

The family requests memorials be sent to Trinity Towers.

Midlanders choose Reagan

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

If Midland voters are representative of the nation, former Gov. Ronald Reagan will be the next president of the United States.

In a random telephone poll conducted Saturday by the Reporter-Telegram of 53 persons, 24 Midlanders said they will be voting for Reagan on Nov. 4, compared to seven residents who said they're voting for President Jimmy Carter.

Running second behind Reagan in the poll was the undecided vote. Some 14 persons interviewed had not made up their minds as to who they would support in the presidential race. Several of the undecided voters said they expect the debates scheduled Tuesday to help them choose a candidate.

Another six Midlanders said they weren't going to vote and two persons would not comment on who they supported.

There were no presidential votes pledged for U.S. Rep. John Anderson, nor any for write-in presidential candidates.

All but two persons polled were registered to vote, which seems to be a trend in Midland. Based on an estimated 58,000 eligible voters, Midland has a record-breaking 44,102 signed up to vote.

Those who said they will vote for Reagan gave a variety of reasons, ranging from "I just like the Republican platform" to "I think he's the better man" to "If he dies, he has a good vice president," referring to Reagan's running mate George H.W. Bush.

Other comments were made specifically against Carter. One woman said, "We can't afford to have Carter in there any longer." Another said, "I don't think Carter's done a good job, but I think Reagan can."

A man said he was voting for Reagan "because I don't like the way things are going." Another said, "I think he's the better man." A third said he thought electing Reagan would help because "the situation is bad right now."

"I'm going to vote Republican," one man stated, "because I don't like Carter. I've had enough of him. I'm in the oil business and he really fixed our wagons."

"More than anything," another said, "I feel like we need some changes and we need to get a new man in there."

Another woman said, "I'm not real satisfied with the way Carter's been doing it." A fourth woman said she felt "Reagan is stronger on foreign policy."

Of the people who said they were Carter supporters, one woman said she "liked him better. Carter has done his best and he's done a good job. Besides, he's a good Christian man and I like that. The rest of them are just drunkards who like to fight and everything else."

As far as local races go, although most of those polled said they will be voting in those races, few had particular interest in any of them. Most said they were paying more attention to the national election, but that they usually voted in all local elections — even during non-presidential years.

Of those who did discuss local candidates, many pointed to the sheriff's race as an important one.

"For sheriff, I want Dallas Smith," one new voter said. "He's done a pretty good job and he knows what's wrong with Midland. And (Joe) Carr's not as qualified."

"I don't like Dallas Smith," another said. "Is he running?"

One woman said she didn't know who she'd vote for in that race. "Who's running against Dallas Smith?"

However, on the whole, Smith was ahead of Carr in the poll, seven votes to three, respectively.

In other local races:

—Three votes were pledged for Pat Baskin while one went to J. "Timber" Floyd for the district judge seat.

—Three votes were pledged for Charlie Jones with none going to Tom McGinnis in the constable race.

—Two votes were pledged for Durward Wright compared to none for Jeff Barber for county commissioner of precinct 1.

—One vote each was pledged for John Biggs and Charlie Sprayberry for justice of the peace for precinct 1, place 1.

—One vote was pledged for C. DeWayne Davis while none was pledged to Alexandra Morris for the county commissioner seat for precinct 3.

Plenty of choices given voters on Election Day

For Place 1, however, Republican Jim Brady is challenging Democrat James. P. "Jim" Wallace. In the race for the unexpired term of Place 4 are Republican Will Garwood and Democrat C.L. Ray.

THE THREE CONTESTANTS for positions as judges on the state Court of Criminal Appeals don't have much to worry about — they're all unopposed. All Democrats, Marvin O. Teague is running for Place 1, Mike McCormick for Place 2 and Tom Davis for Place 3.

Locally, Tom Craddick of Midland is running unopposed for re-election as state representative from the 68th District.

In other state races, Democrat James H. Whiteside is seeking a spot as 19th District representative on the State Board of Education and Democrat William E. Ward is running for associate justice from the 8th District on the Court of Civil Appeals.

The first local race on the ballot is that of 142nd district judge which pits Republican Jay H. "Timber" Floyd against Democrat Pat M. Baskin. Both are attorneys and longtime Midlanders. The post currently is held by Perry Pickett who has served since 1954 and announced last spring he wouldn't run for re-election.

Incumbent Vern F. Martin, a Republican, is the only candidate for the spot of district attorney for the 142nd District. Robert Rendall, also a GOP man, is the only person seeking the spot of county attorney. He will replace Les Acker, who is resigning Oct. 31.

Sheriff Dallas Smith is being challenged for his job by police officer Joe Carr. The Republican sheriff has served one four-year term. Carr is a Democrat.

FRANCES M. Shuffield is the only one asking to be county tax assessor-collector. A Republican, she works as chief deputy in the county tax office under current tax assessor-collector Elmo Linebarger.

Democrat Durward Wright is seeking re-election to Precinct 1 of Midland County Commissioners Court against Republican challenger Jeff Barber. Wright has served two terms for a total of 12 years.

Precinct 3 on the court is up for grabs. Incumbent Jack Leonard was defeated in the primary this past spring. Alexandra Morris is going after the spot on the Republican ticket while C. DeWayne Davis is the Democratic candidate.

Trying for re-election as justice of the peace for place 1, precinct 1 is John H. Biggs, a Democrat. He is being challenged by Charlie Sprayberry, winner of the Republican primary.

The position of constable in precinct 1 has brought two deputy constables to opposing sides. Tom McGinnis is running on the Republican ticket while Charlie Jones is on the Democratic side. The office was left open with the death of Jack Merritt earlier this year.

Also on the ballot will be nine constitutional amendments.

Absentee balloting so far this year has been heavy, according to County Clerk Rosenelle Cherry, with 2,121 absentee ballots cast as of 5 p.m. Friday when the polls closed for the weekend in the Midland County Courthouse.

Absentee voting will continue through 5 p.m. Friday, and Mrs. Cherry said she expects the turnout to be even heavier next week.

YMCA after-school fee up

The Central YMCA is beginning its second month of the after-school program. November marks a $4 a month increase in the program fee, bringing the monthly charge to $39. The increase will allow the Y to provide a snack for children every day.

The program runs from 2:30 to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and provides bus service from Fannin, Bowie, Emerson and Sam Houston schools to the Y. Parents may pick up their children any time after they get off work until 6 p.m.

The program is operating at almost two-thirds capacity and there are still several vacancies. Registration forms are available at the front desk at the Central YMCA. For further information contact Gail harmon or Gary Seth at the Y at 682-2551.

Gallup shows dead heat

NEW YORK (AP) — President Carter and Ronald Reagan are in a virtual dead heat for the presidential election, according to new poll results released Saturday.

A Gallup poll of 1,048 registered voters for Newsweek magazine showed Carter favored by 41 percent, Reagan by 40 percent. Independent candidate John Anderson was the choice of 10 percent, and 9 percent were undecided.

Among those considered likely to vote, Republican Reagan had a 42 to 39 percent lead over Democrat Carter. A Newsweek statement did not tell what percentage in that catagory favored Anderson.

The poll, conducted Oct. 17 to 20, pitted Carter against Reagan in 11 questions on leadership qualities. Carter got a higher percentage in eight.

Reagan led Carter 42 to 25 percent when those surveyed were asked who was "best able to deal with inflation"; 43 to 24 percent on who was judged "forceful and decisive," and 39 to 36 percent on who was seen "best able to get the job done."

Carter led Reagan 52 to 23 percent on who is "best able to keep us out of war"; 43 to 25 percent on who "has the highest ethical standards," and 43 to 28 percent on who "has the greatest concern for the average citizen."

Newsweek said that due to statistical variation, the findings are considered to have an uncertainty of 3 percentage points either way.

appeared in the paper.'...'Here it is in case you missed it.' I'm not mud-slinging. It's educational.

"It (the article) is a totally unbiased approach to a news story. They (the public) ought to have an opportunity to read it."

The news article related the proceedings of a civil trial in which 18-year-old musician Craig McCartney was seeking damages in the wake of a Feb. 5 incident. The youth alleged Barber maliciously hit him with a pistol after the youth and members of his "By Request" rock 'n' roll band were playing loud music at one of his (Barber's) J-Bar rental storage units on Midland's westside.

BARBER CONTENDED that he merely tapped the youth on the head after running into some defiance by the youths.

The McCartney youth claimed he was a victim of brutality; Barber maintained he was protecting his property, wherein the rentership was in question.

After the incident, Barber said he volunteered to apologize to the youth and to his parents, but that the apology, which initially was accepted, was rejected.

Criminal charges of assault were filed against Barber, who subsequently pleaded nolo contendere — no contest — to disorderly conduct — a misdemeanor offense.

In the civil suit, the jury found that Barber had acted with "malice" toward the youth, and assessed $50 in actual damages and $250 in exemplary damages.

The youth's father, Don McCartney, maintained that neither the criminal nor the civil proceeding had no political overtones.

Barber suspects that they did.

THOUGH WRIGHT avows that he is innocent of any mud-slinging tactics in distributing the two-week-old news story, he did say that Barber's innuendo in a political brochure that Wright is a "professional political" has tinges of mud-slinging.

"That's what he is (a professional politician)," Barber said of Wright. This (the mailout) is exactly the kind of tactics professional politicians use, and we do not need this in Midland County. We've got enough of them on Capitol Hill, and we need to get rid of them."

Precinct 1 covers much of the western part of Midland and the southwestern part of the county, and the pay for a commissioner will be $19,500 starting in 1981.

Voters on Nov. 4 will decide if Barber will succeed Wright in 1981. When Barbar challenged Wright in 1972, he lost 3,036 to 2,717 votes and carried — other than the absentee voting box — only one out of five voting precincts in Precinct 1.

Wright said he wants to continue his leadership role as commissioner, as Midland — both city and county — enters a "dynamic" state of growth in population and potentially in industry, including petroleum.

Barber said he wants to make his "mark" in public service and to bring leadership anewed to the county.

Editor's Report

outside his home and then hiding behind them so he could hear the comments of passersby.

"One day a shoemaker showed up and, pointing to a full-length portrait of a man, said the man's shoes didn't have enough fasteners. Convinced the shoemaker knew what he was talking about, Apelles repainted the shoes. Next day the shoemaker returned and began to criticize the rest of the painting, saying there was something wrong with the subject's legs, and the head wasn't quite right either.

"This annoyed Applles, who jumped out from behind the painting and announced that 'a shoemaker should give no oopinion beyond the shoes.' or, as the e xpression has come down to us, 'let the cobbler stick to his last.'

"The story — however remote to the subject of modern communications — is relevant to one of the points I want to make in this brief examination of newspapers in the eighties.

"That point, simply stated, is that newspsper managements and editors urgently need to stick to what this marvelous medium does best and be very careful about that advice which suggests a blurring of the differences that distinguish newspapers from other media. Many observers, including those within the industry, seem to be counseling that newspapers are soon going to be best served by moving into the competititor's ballpark, particularly as it relates to electronic approaches to communication.

"While some of that advice has substantial merit, I'm more than a little concerned about following such recommendations to an extreme and destructive conclusion...

"I don't go along with this massive-overhaul thinking — with the idea that, in the next few years, newspapers will either become electronic instruments or be swallowed up by them. I don't buy the thought of newspapers 'published' only on cassettes...or transmitted only by cable or satellite...or shown to readers only on TV screens.

"I want to stop right here and be very precise as to my position on this entire matter of technological change. Make no mistake about it, massive and exciting changes are under way, as a nation, and as an industry, we will be affected by them. As individuals and on behalf of our companies we must learn them, use them, and participate in the progress they will inspire. Most of us are doing that...

"In the 1980s most newspapers will survive — and will propser — but only if they concentrate on the aspect of communications they know best and do best.

"I'm reminded of the story of the young man selling magazine subscriptions for the Progressive Farmer, who called on a Midwestern farmer. The old farmer, rocking on his porch, listened while the youngster held forth about the marvels of modern farming; the new devices, the new irrigation techniques, the sophisticated labor-saving approaches the farmer would learn by reading the magazine. After listening to the pitch, the old farmer leaned back and replied, 'Hell, kid, I'm not farming as good as I know.now!'

I'm afraid many of us are not "newspapering" as good as we know, and a good shape of the challenges now facing newspapers, and those that will face us in the eighties, relate to that fact. Some of our reactions to what lies ahead may well be the wrong reactions if we aren't careful...

"Let me say in a few words exactly what it is that newwspapers do better than anybody else, in fact what nobody else can do at all.

"It is give the news — on paper.

"Newspapers have that marvelous permanent printed page to drive that information home with unparalledled impact and clarity.

"Most important they have clippability and refer-back—to—what—I-just-saw-ability.

"And because this nation of ours needs what newspapers alone can provide — needs it desperately and will always need it — the future of newspapers is not only assured. It's absolutely essential.

"It would not be too extravagant to conclude, it seems to me, that to a substantial degree newspapers have thrived because they have been such involved and motivating participants in the building of our local communities, the only place I know where a nation can be won. Newspapers, as we know them in America, are local. No institutions in the private sector, including newspapers' many and varied competitors, have so directly addressed themselves to the improvement and forward movement of the local community....

"In February of 1929 William Randolph Hearst issued this statement to a meeting of newspaper executives in, of all places, my home town of San Antonio, Tex.

"The statement went like this:

" 'It is of vital importance for papers to identify themselves with the aims and ambitions of the community, and to have themselves recognized forces in the accomplishment of these aims and ambitions.

" 'If the newspapers do not make constructive crusades of this character, they are not taking full advantage of their opportunities to earn the respect and gratitude of their public....'

"It would be easy, I suppose, to sessen that commitment as our own business becomes more technical and complex and as the machinery of community building isconfronted by its own brand of complexity and difficulty. But we must not lessen it.

"Newspapers inform and enlighten in a manner to turn the wheels of a free and a free-enterprise society, while turning over — in print and in the flish — thei unique talents and influence to the accomplishments of the objectives of the people they serve.

"Nobody does that as well."

Fifth graders learning computers

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Staff Writer

Data, multi-processor, micro-processors, labeling, menu and bytes.

These are terms familar to the computer industry and now to some fifth graders at Sam Houston Elementary.

Mary Garay of Basin Business Computing Inc. at Midland Regional Airport and Sam Houston fifth grade teacher Marilyn Wilson prepared a demonstration Wednesday at Sam Houston Elementary to show students the business aspects of the computer.

Inside the classroom, all eyes were fixed on a computer printer and terminal buzzing and printing business transaction data on the terminal's screen.

Several students pretended they were a sales clerk and processed sales information into the computer.

"This is probably the closest most of these kids will get to a computer," said Mrs. Garay.

The general idea was to give students some exposure to the machine they will be involved with in their lifetime, she explained.

"We wanted to give the students a basic familiarity with the computer," said Mrs. Wilson. She noted that most of the children's exposure to the machine has been through computer games.

"I asked Mary how much the computer costs," said Mrs. Wilson, "which showed students that the computer is not a toy they can push buttons and play with."

"The computer is a super machine," said Mrs. Garay, "but the students must realize that it is just a machine. It doesn't think."

Some students have the idea that the machine can do anything which would free people for other activities.

"One of the students asked me if the computer knew when the hostages in Iran would freed," noted Mrs. Garay.

She told the student that what she puts into the computer is what comes out — "garbage in, garbage out."

Wednesday's demonstration included explanations about the computer's history, hardware, software and operating systems.

However, it also included a study in the various aspects of business operations involving time and the computer.

During the role-playing sessions, students pretended to buy bicycles on credit. Mrs. Garay showed the students how the computer recorded, stored and presented information about the business transaction.

"Another thing we demonstrated to the students was the cost of doing business," she continued.

And the students got an idea how important profit is to the businessman in continuing to do business, she added.

"All I wanted to do was to take away the mystery of the computer," Mrs. Garay said.

Mass funeral held for blast victims

ORTUELLA, Spain (AP) — This Basque mining town suffered through its darkest hour Friday with a mass funeral for 48 children and three adults who died when a boiler-room explosion brought a grammar school crashing down around them.

Rain pounded on the skylights of the three-block long warehouse used for the service as pall bearers brought in the first white wooden coffins bearing the bodies of the youngest victims — a boy and a girl of aged 5. Coffins bearing the bodies of 46 other children and three adults followed in the somber procession.

The Talleres de Ortuella, an iron and glass warehouse, was chosen for the funeral because it is the largest enclosed building in this town cut into the hills eight miles northwest of Bilbao in Vizcaya province.

A crowd of ten thousand mourners pressed into the hangar-like structure where a makeshift altar was set up for the Mass. Women in black wool dresses and men wearing the traditional Basque beret wept openly.

"Yesterday I had four children, today I have three. Tell me why?" said a gray haired mother, tears streaming down her cheeks.

The hammering rain almost drowned out the white-robed choir. The relatives of the victims sat on wooden chairs, looking up at the altar where a local priest conducted the service.

"This is a catastrophe you would think happened in a war," said Jose Muro. "Everyone wanted to be here to show their solidarity."

The streets of the town of 9,500 were deserted during the funeral. Shops were closed, and black bunting was up in many windows.

Officials on Friday fixed the death toll at 48 children and three adults. Early casualty reports had 64 people dead, but officials later said some of those bodies had been counted twice.

The bodies were buried later Friday.

The force of the blast blew out the windows of a high rise apartment building across the street and twisted the iron balconies.

Workmen had cleared the rubble from inside the eight-year-old red brick school building by Friday.

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements recently announced Ricardo Saldana of Midland will replace LaVonne Unsell of Denton on the Statewide Health Coordinating Council.

Saldana, 50, was officially appointed last Tuesday to serve a two-year term which expires Oct. 21, 1982.

Saldana is a counselor at Midland College.

Other persons appointed or re-appointed to the Council for two-year terms include: Bill Boswell of Brady; Ben Gallant of Corpus Christi; Val Jean Hide of Houston; Dr. Louis E. Gibson of Corsicana; Jose L. "Pepe" Gonzalez of Laredo; Dr. John T. King of Austin; Dr. Per Harald Langsjoen of Temple; Dr. Jose San Martin III of San Antonio; Irwin R. Salmanson of Austin; Dr. John H. Selby of Lubbock; Christin Hartung of Houston; and Boone Powell Jr. of Dallas.

China says Soviet Union now under one-man rule

PEKING (AP) — The Soviet Union came under one-man rule with the resignation of Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, China's official Xinhua news agency said Friday.

Xinhua called Thursday's resignation, which cited Kosygin's poor health, the most significant change in Moscow since President Leonid I. Brezhnev took over from Nikita Khrushchev in 1964.

In a dispatch from the Soviet capital, Xinhua said that in announcing the resignation, "Brezhnev gave no assessment of the work of Kosygin, who had headed the Soviet government for 16 years. Not even a single word of eulogy was uttered."

The agency reported that Nikolai Tikhonov, 75, had been named to replace Kosygin, and that the new premier had worked in the Dnepropetrovsk region of the Ukraine in the 1950s, when Brezhnev was Communist Party secretary of the area.

It said Kosygin became premier and second man in a ruling triumvirate in 1964, along with Brezhvev and former president Nikolai Podgorny. Podgorny was ousted in 1977 when Brezhnev took over his post, the report added.

Dangerous school buildings closed

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Early to school one morning, a drama student spotted tiny fragments of concrete falling from the Antioch High School auditorium ceiling.

School officials swiftly ordered that room and three others nearby emptied. Ten minutes later, just as morning classes normally would have been starting, 30 tons of concrete crashed onto a 40-by-100 foot section of the empty auditorium.

"There was no warning whatsoever. Fortunately, a student saw some small pieces coming down in the auditorium and alerted a buildings-supervisor," said Antioch District Superintendent Jerry Pangburn.

Since that March 25 incident, buildings with similarly designed roofs at six other California schools have been ordered closed, including a community college building in Kentfield that was evacuated minutes after state inspectors finished their tour.

Inspectors, assigned their task by the state Legislature, have noted minor defects in at least 30 other public school buildings. About 50 more schools remain to be inspected.

Engineers in the Structural Safety Section of the State Architect's office and on the Seismic Safety Commission staff are hesitant to speculate whether the problems are connected to defective design, defective materials or both.

But their inspections are concentrating on 216 buildings using so-called "precast, prestressed" concrete and steel cable roof joists.

"These precast joists tend to be heavy, so they aren't transported too far to construction sites. Therefore the schools involved tend to be close to manufacturers. You don't see them trucked to Fresno or Redding or places like that," John Meehan, chief of the Structural Safety Section, said in an interview.

All the serious defects, including the collapsed roof at Antioch High School, were found in buildings constructed from 1958 through 1964, when prestressed concrete was first used widely, except for one building constructed in 1970.

"This was early in the use of prestressed beams, and there have been design changes since then. Designs are modified as we learn more," Meehan said.

To date, no one has been injured. Damage to Antioch High School is estimated at $1.5 million. Damage at the other schools could range from $100,000 to $500,000 each for repairs, one official estimated.

The cause of the roof collapse at Antioch is what engineers call "creep," the slow shrinkage of precast joists.

The joists are constructed by pouring wet concrete over a network of tightly stretched steel cables. After the concrete sets, the cables are released from the moorings that stretched them, creating the so-called "prestressed" condition that is intended to increase their strength.

If the joists, which in these cases hold up the roof, are firmly anchored at both ends in construction, they may eventually crack when shrinkage occurs, Meehan said.

So far, all but one of the school closures have been in the San Francisco Bay area: two schools each in Antioch and Vallejo, and one each in Oakland and Kentfield.

But inspectors also are checking schools in the Los Angeles and Sacramento areas; late last month they closed the swimming building at a junior college near Los Angeles.

In addition, inspectors found serious damage at a school in Sunnyvale that had already been closed due to declining enrollments.

And defective prestressed beams were detected in the football bleachers at Oakland's McClymonds High School. Temporary wooden braces have allowed that structure to remain in use.

One school official said he believed all the buildings were designed by the same architectual firm. But Meehan said the principal effort so far has been concentrated on inspecting the schools, rather than identifying any links to particular architects or builders.

He said an analysis of designers, suppliers, contractors and the like will be made after the inspections are completed, sometime in mid-November.

Panel failed to probe Oswald-CIA link

WASHINGTON (AP) — An investigator for the defunct House assassinations committee says it failed to pursue evidence of a CIA link with Lee Harvey Oswald, President John F. Kennedy's accused assassin.

The investigator, Gaeton Fonzi, says he concluded that Oswald met with a CIA agent named Maurice Bishop in September 1963, two months before Kennedy was killed.

Fonzi also says in an 80-page article in "The Washington" he believed the CIA agent actually was David Atlee Phillips. But the evidence Fonzi cites to support his assertion is inconclusive.

Phillips has publicly denied the claim of a link with Oswald, which was also made by British author Anthony Summers in his book "Conspiracy."

Now retired, Phillips served as chief of the CIA's Cuban operations group. He has written a book on his career titled, "The Night Watch — 25 Years of Peculiar Service."

The House assassinations committee concluded that Kennedy's slaying probably involved a conspiracy. However, it ruled out a CIA conspiracy.

The committee said it could not identify any conspirators but could rule out all possibilities except conspiracies involving renegade mobsters or anti-Castro Cubans.

The investigator says the allegation of a CIA link was made by Antonio Veciana, who said Maurice Bishop directed his attempt in October 1961 to assassinate Cuban President Fidel Castro.

Veciana said he saw Bishop talking with Oswald in the lobby of a building in New Orleans in September 1963, the investigator says. Oswald was accused of Kennedy's assassination on Nov. 22, 1963.

The investigator said Veciana told him he never asked the CIA agent about Oswald because "I was not going to make the mistake of getting myself involved in something that did not concern me."

The evidence Fonzi cites of Phillips being Maurice Bishop is inconclusive.

Veciana said after a face-to-face meeting with Phillips that he was not Bishop, Fonzi wrote, but a former CIA agent named as Ron Cross said Phillips used the alias Maurice Bishop.

The investigator says he confronted Veciana after the investigation and told him: "I believe you about everything, except when you told me David Phillips is not Maurice Bishop."

He said he then asked Veciana to "tell me this one time very truthfully: Would you have told me if I had found Maurice Bishop?"

Air Force officer to speak in McCamey

McCAMEY — U.S. Air Force Lt. Col. James A. Bone, a McCamey native who holds more than 20 military decorations, will be featured speaker at the annual McCamey Chamber of Commerce banquet, keyed to the theme "A New Beginning," at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the McCamey Park Building.

Bone is chief intelligence officer for the 49th Tactical Fighter Wing at Holloman AFB near Alamogardo, N.M. He is a 1959 graduate of McCamey High School and holds degrees from Southwest Texas State University and Pepperdine College.

"We feel he will have an interesting message for all," said Raylene Chandler, secretary-manager of the McCamey Chamber of Commerce.

CRMWD nears fiscal estimates

BIG SPRING — Revenues and expenses for the Colorado River Municipal Water District were up this year through September, but the financial scene was within one-third of 1 percent of the budget estimates for 1980.

Receipts for the nine-month period of 1980 amounted to $6,002,671 and was up $188,336 over the same period in 1979. The hike was due to the increased municipal use during the unusually dry summer.

Cities, including Midland, Stanton, Big Spring and Odessa, served by the CRMWD paid $167,000 more for the nine months than they did in a comparable period last year. Oil companies paid $1,000 less. And recreational users paid $5,000 more.

Expenses, which totaled $3,185,116 for the nine-month period, were up by $166,836. The increase chiefly was due to higher electric power bills. The $1,837,787 paid for energy was up by $66,000 for the period. The total would have been "vastly more," according to the CRMWD, had it not been for much lighter deliveries in the firstpart of the year and the ability, thanks to the timely runoff in September, to deliver more water from Lake Thomas and less than estimated from the more-distant Lake Spence during June, July and August.

In September, the water delivery totaled 210,779,000 gallons less than the preceding September. The cutback was due to abnormally heavy rains last month.

Increased costs were in maintenance labor, up by $18,000; maintenance expenses, up $44,000, and water royalties, up $27,000. Administrative expenses, which amounted to $354,000, were up by $10,000.

Kermits arts, crafts fete today

KERMIT — The final day of the eighth annual October Affair Arts and Crafts Festival will be held from 1 to 6 p.m. today in the Winkler County Youth Center in Kermit.

Artists from throughout Texas and Southeastern New Mexico will be exhibiting and selling their works in a variety of media and crafts: oils, watercolors, pastels, woodworks, china painting, clock-making, weaving, jewelry, decoupage, dolls, stained glass, floral arrangements, guilting and other crafts.

In addition to the exhibits, a potpourri of foods will be on hand.

Last year, more than 90 artists participated in the October Affair.

Agri-business to be saluted

LAMESA — Humorist George McKinney will be featured on the podium and agri-business will be saluted at the eighth annual Lamesa Area Chamber of Commerce banquet at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 18 in the Lamesa High School Student Center, according to Neil C. O'Brien, executive director of the Lamesa chamber.

Entertainment will be provided by the Lamesa High School Stage Band.

Tickets to the affair are $7.50 each.

Inflation as painful as last year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the sharp but apparently short recession, the nation's agonizing inflation problem remains as painful now as it was before the economy turned down in late January.

The sharp 1 percent jump in consumer prices last month "shows that the recession had a barely perceptible impact" on inflation, says Otto Eckstein, head of Data Resources Inc., one of the nation's foremost economic forecasting firms.

Courtenay Slater, the Commerce Department's chief economist, says she did not expect the recession to deflate the inflationary bubble and adds, "I don't think it did."

The causes of this inflation are not "amenable" to traditional policies that prescribe slow economic growth — and more unemployment — to stem rising prices, Ms. Slater said in a recent interview.

"This inflation is not caused by some generalized excess demand. Therefore there is no common-sense reason to think the recession (could have) had much impact on the rate of inflation," she said.

During the recession's worst months, the nation's unemployment rate rose to as high as 7.8 percent, before subsiding to the current 7.5 percent level. Many economists still expect joblessness to exceed 8 percent by early next year as the economy recovers very slowly.

Announcement on Friday of the 1 percent jump in consumer prices was met by an immediate White House statement aimed at blunting potential political damage.

"You cannot honestly call this a failure, one month's CPI (consumer price index) an indication of failure, of the anti-inflation effort," said White House press secretary Jody Powell.

Figures show it is not a one-month phenomenon, however. The 1 percent surge translates to a 12.7 percent annual rate — exactly the pace of consumer inflation during the past 12 months.

Moreover, it is only slightly better than the 13.3 percent rate through all of 1979.

Before July and August — when declining mortgage rates cut the overall inflation rate to zero and 0.7 percent, respectively — consumer prices were rising consistently at about 1 percent a month.

Food prices at the grocery store rose 1.9 percent in September, more than at any previous time this year. The prices of clothing, transportation, medical care and entertainment were the highest since March.

Another measure of inflation is the "fixed weight index," which is not based on relatively volatile consumer prices, but on the nation's gross national product, which is the total value of all goods and services.

This indicator now measures inflation at 9.7 percent a year, just about the same as it was 18 months ago, Ms. Slater said.

"This means that inflation has been persistent throughout the whole business cycle," she added.

"What we're seeing is how subsequent recessions are making a smaller and smaller dent on inflation," said Sandra Shaber, a senior economist for Chase Econometrics Associates, another forecasting firm.

"External price shocks, like oil or housing, have been built into the economy, imbedding inflation so that it can't easily be removed," she said.

Most economists estimate that the so-called underlying rate of inflation now stands somewhere between 9 percent and 10 percent. This measure attempts to wipe away the temporary, external shocks mentioned by Ms. Shaber.

She adds: "I see a great jeopardy that with the heating up of inflation again, the Federal Reserve will be forced to tighten up the money supply. What we will get is a stop-and-go economy for an indefinite period of time."

Eckstein said September's price performance is representative of the real, underlying rate of inflation.

"Special factors have affected recent, past consumer price reports, but we cannot blame last month's increase" on such unusual events, he said.

"Whoever takes office in January will have to take that into account" when considering a tax cut or how to spend federal dollars, said Eckstein.

The months ahead offer little hope that inflation may subside, most economists agree.

Energy prices have declined for five consecutive months, and this trend should continue. Food prices are accelerating, however — eating deeply into the disposable income of families who saw their paychecks erode another percentage point in September, according to the Commerce Department.

Alfred Kahn, President Carter's chief inflation adviser, foresees food prices rising at a 12 percent annual pace in the months ahead.

Air Control Board schedules meeting on air monitoring plans in Odessa

ODESSA — The Texas Air Control Board (TACB) will co-sponsor a public meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday with the Ector County Health Department at the Chamber of Commerce's board of directors' meeting room, 400 W. 4th St., here to discuss the state's air monitoring plans and air quality issues of special concern to citizens.

The entire Midland-Ector county area is included in the local TACB region.

TACB is asking the public in a series of meetings throughout Texas to help identify local air pollution problems as well as air problems "not effectively addressed by current local, state, or national monitoring programs."

The comments and recommendations received at the public meetings will help determine the placement of the remaining resources and equipment available to the TACB.

The TACB operates 24 continuous and 92 periodic air monitoring sites throughout the state. Most of the sites were established seven to 10 years ago to measure air contaminants such as lead, particulates, ozone, sulfur dioxide and toxic heavy metals in response to federal requirements and state needs.

To provide background information on air quality matters, the TACB has prepared a packet of issue papers on subjects such as toxic substances monitoring, urban haze problems and monitoring during episodes when stagnant air traps air pollution and causes emergency conditions. The packet may be obtained from the TACB Central Office, 6330 Hwy. 290 East, Austin, Texas 78723, or from the Odessa Regional Office, 835 Tower St., Odessa, Texas 79760.

Wood heat possibly can cut the energy costs

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Millions of Americans will be burning up to keep warm this winter.

Wood-burning appliances — from simple stoves to complicated furnaces — continue to grow in popularity as homeowners look for ways to cut heating bills.

Andrew B. Shapiro, president of Wood Energy Research Corp., a private consulting firm in Camden, Maine, said that studies of three New England states — Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont — have shown that about 60 percent of the homes are using wood to some extent. In about one-third of those homes, wood is the primary fuel, he added.

The reliance on wood varies from place to place. "This is a grass-roots type of energy supply," Shapiro said. "Wood is the only resource that lets the small entrepreneur become an energy producer."

Shapiro also warned, however, that wood heat is not for everyone. "We don't feel that it makes sense to burn wood in an area that is more than 50 miles from the stump," he said.

The sale of wood-burning appliances in general "is still on a very strong upturn curve," Shapiro said, although the rate of increase will be slower than it has been in recent years due "to the overall situation in the economy."

During the 1980-81 heating season alone, sales of wood-burning devices are expected to hit 1 million to 1.2 million units, matching last year's record.

The simplest way to burn wood is in the fireplace. It also is the most inefficient. Most of the heat produced in a traditional fireplace goes up the chimney and is wasted. The fireplace also draws heated air from other parts of the house, adding to the waste.

There are several ways to cut losses. To begin with, make sure you have a tight-fitting damper to prevent heat from escaping when the fireplace is not in use. Glass doors on the front of your fireplace also can help. The doors prevent furnace-heated air from going into the fireplace and up the chimney, but allow some of the heat from the fire to radiate into the room.

To turn your fireplace into a heat producer, you'll need a system that recirculates the heat from the fire, directing it away from the chimney and back into the house, either with fans or ducts. These systems usually are easier to install if you are building a new fireplace, but they can sometimes be added to existing structures.

Wood-burning stoves offer an even more efficient alternative. The best stoves have an airtight combustion chamber with an adjustable or thermostatically controlled draft and can convert up to 60 percent of the potential heat in the wood into actual heat for your home.

Installation can be tricky, however, and insurance company and fire officials warn that the number of fires caused by wood-burning stoves is increasing. You must have adequate ventilation and the stove must be installed at least three feet from any combustible material. Check local building codes before you buy.

Two of the newest and most popular types of wood-burning appliances, according to Shapiro, are the furnace system and the fireplace insert. A furnace system provides central heating, using either a combination of fuels or wood alone. There are also add-on systems that can be attached to an existing furnace or boiler.

A typical add-on system costs from $800 to $1,000. The amount of money you can save with wood varies according to where you live.

The week in government

City Council

The issue of rezoning a piece of property near Midland High School will be up for its second reading before Midland City Council when the panel starts its bi-monthly meeting at 10 a.m. Tuesday in City Hall Council Chambers.

Two weeks ago on the first reading of the zone change request the issue illicited some heated discussion from proponents and opponents of the change.

In question is land between C and G streets on the north side of Illinois Avenue and between D and G streets on the south side of Illinois. Ron W. Boerm is asking that the land be changed from its current status of 1F-2, single family district, to MF-1, multiple family district, and O-1, office district.

The council voted on the first reading to approve the zone change to the dismay of Midland Independent School District officials and board members. School officials said the next day in a news conference that the rezoning was "not in the best interests of our community."

In looking over this week's agenda, one city official wryly remarked the only question at Tuesday's meeting will be whether the council "gets hung before sunset or after sunset."

In reconsidering another past action, the council will look at a proposal by local merchants for amending the freight loading zone ordinance. The new ruling requires vehicles to park there while loading and unloading freight. Vehicles without that permit will be towed off.

Another consideration will be an ordinance on second reading which would limit and regulate use of portable and temporary signs.

The council will consider setting a public hearing on rate-making and service standards for Texas Electric Service Co. and Pioneer Natural Gas Co. utilities as required by the Public Utility Regulatory Act. A city official said the council may wait until the state Public Utilities Commission sets its standards for the utility companies and use these as a guideline.

A plan to change traffic controls at Garfield and Industrial intersection will be outlined for the council. The plan calls for rerouting traffic on Industrial down to Florida Avenue to bypass the Garfield intersection.

Also on the agenda are 15 items concerning planning and zoning, ranging from a request to sell alcoholic beverages at No. 11 Oak Ridge Square to various zone changes.

County Commissioners

Midland County Commissioners will consider a 15-item agenda, including authorizing the issuance of $17 million in bonds for residential mortgages and the resignation of the county attorney, at 1:30 p.m. Monday. At that time they will meet in regular session in the Commissioners' Courtroom on the second floor of the Midland County Courthouse.

Earlier in the year, the commissioners sanctioned a resolution for the issuance of similar bonds, which totaled $21.6 million, for financing single-family and duplex housing in rural Midland County and in the city proper. But demand for additional house loans at the relatively low 10¾ percent in interest rate prompted the consideration of another mortgage program.

The line-up of business to be considered by the commissioners is to include:

—Public hearing to set a 40 mph speed limit on County Road 128-West (Old Bankhead Highway) from the Ector County line to County Road 1302-West.

—Consider the resignation of County Attorney Leslie Acker.

—Consider the appointment of a lawyer to succeed Acker.

—Consider bid acceptance for the emergency exit in Midland County Jail and to consider authorizing County Auditor Johnnie Thompson to advertise for bids to purchase two automobiles and trade in another vehicle for Sheriff Dallas Smith's office.

—Consider authorizing the county auditor to advertise for bids for a pickup truck for the Midland County Agricultural Extension Office.

—Consider authorizing the auditor to advertise for bids for an accounting firm to provide services for development and implementation of accounting systems for the county.

—Consider authorizing the auditor to advertise for bids for word-processing equipment for County Judge Bill Ahders' office and County Court-at-Law Judge Willie DuBose's office.

—Consider a budget amendment to add $10,543.20 for the county's share to support the Midland City-County Health Department.

—Consider authorizing the auditor to advertise for bids for a mechanical lift for the Midland County Exhibit Building.

—Consider a resolution to approve authorizing the Midland County Housing Finance Corp. to sell up to $17 million in bonds for residential mortages.

—Consider reports from the judge and commissioners.

Water level dropping, study says

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A study of the availability of fresh and slightly saline groundwater issued recently by the Texas Department of Water Resources indicates groundwater levels in the West Texas area have dropped significantly during this century.

The report, which addresses groundwater availability in the northern Hueco Bolson, lower Mesilla Valley, areas of the Salt Basin, Red Light Draw, Presidio Bolson and Green River Valley, says groundwater pumping for municipal and industrial purposes in the El Paso area caused water level declines of as much as 95 feet between 1903 and 1976.

Pumping for irrigation in the Salt Basin also has caused maximum decline of 150 feet at Lobo Flat between 1949 and 1973, the report states.

"Additional development of groundwater in westernmost Texas will be accompanied by further declines in water levels and will probably induce local migration of slightly saline or poorer quality water into fresh water areas," the report continues.

The report does not conclude, however, that more than 20 million acre-feet of water is estimated to be in storage in basins in the area, with 12 million acre-feet of that water in El Paso County in the Hueco Bolson and Mesilla Valley.

In addition, the basins contain about 7 million acre-feet of slightly saline water in the Rio Grande alluvium in the Hueco Bolson and lower Mesilla Valley and in the Capitan Limestone in the northern Salt Basin, the report states.

Democratic state senator promotes Reagan-Bush at airport appearance election 80

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Trying to keep the public from forgetting the Ronald Reagan-George Bush ticket with only a week left before the election, Democratic State Sen. Bill Meier of Euless stopped in Midland Saturday morning to express his support for the Republican ticket.

While at Midland Regional Airport before flying to San Angelo and Abilene, the longtime Democrat criticized Carter's last-ditch efforts and stood by the Republican governor's recent description of the president.

Meier, who is chairman of the state Steering Committee of Democrats and Independents for Reagan-Bush, said he voted for Carter four years ago. But he has become disappointed over the President's performance in office and he believes that Carter has done "nothing good for Texas."

Because of his disillusionment with the country's leader and the state party policies of endorsing homosexual rights, gun control and forced busing, Meier jumped the fence into the GOP pasture. As to what he will do about political parties in two years when his term as a senator is up, Meier is undecided.

"I believe the Democratic Party has become fragmented and isn't expressing the views of Texans," he explained.

Gov. Bill Clements' remark last week in a Texarkana newspaper in which he called the president "a ------ liar" and for which he refused to apologize brought the comment from Meier that the governor "has a reputation for being plainspoken. If he said that (the remark about Carter), I'm sure he thought he was right."

Concerning remarks by Bob Strauss, Carter's campaign manager, in which the president's record is defended, Meier said that Strauss "is an old campaign war horse capable of blowing a smoke screen when he doesn't have any substance."

The state senator lashed out at Carter's economic and energy policies, recalling that four years ago "our country had an inflation rate of less than 5 percent. Under Jimmy Carter's administration, it has hit as high as 18 percent. The Windfall Profits Tax will take $13 billion annually out of Texas, which is an amount greater than our entire State of Texas annual budget."

Despite Carter's last-minute campaigning in Texas, Meier said he doesn't believe it will do any good. Carter carried the state four years ago by 129,000 votes with the heaviest support coming from East and South Texas.

During Meier's speaking trips into those areas recently, he said people have told him they are voting the Republican ticket this time.

Local Democrats listed as falling in line with the Republicans this year are Tom Sealy of Midland, an attorney; L. Roy Prescott of Midland, a savings and loan executive; Edwin H. Magruder Jr. of Midland, an independent oil operator; Frank Shackelford of Midland, independent oil operator; Robert H. Dawson of Midland, attorney; Pete Alexander of Andrews, associate vice president of Commercial State Bank; Fred Barrington of Lamesa, automobile dealer; and Dr. Nathan Galloway of Odessa, member of Texas Tech University Board of Regents.

Clements helping Demos: Mondale

DALLAS (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements' use of profanity in referring to President Carter is typical of Republican "bad manners" that will help the Democrats win the presidential race, Vice President Mondale said Saturday.

"Not only do they (Republicans) use bad language, but they have bad manners, and that will make it (winning the election) all the easier," Mondale said at an Austin campaign rally.

Mondale's comment followed Friday's call for an apology by the president's campaign manager, a charge from the state attorney general that the governor's remark is "reprehensible" and some name-calling from a former U.S. Sentor who called Clements a "one-term guttersnipe."

Clements, though, issued a statement saying he has no reason to apologize.

The furor began Thursday when the Republican governor went to Texarkana, he said, to counter Carter's campaign appearance there the previous day.

He told the editorial board of the Texarkana Gazette he is "convinced that Carter is the most dangerous individual to ever occupy the office of the president, and that's why I'm here today."

Later in the conversation, Clements told the editors, " ... in all fairness, I must say this: Mr. Carter understands full well that I am after his ass."

At one point during the interview, the newspaper said, Clements told the editors:

"When Jimmy Carter says we are stronger militarily now (than when he took office), he is lying. I just can't say it any stronger. Well, I could say he's a goddamn liar."

The newspaper said Clements called Carter a "liar" eight times during the interview.

Carter's campaign manager, Bob Strauss, said Clements should apologize.

"He does owe the people of Texas an apology and I am sure he will give them one," said Strauss.

But Clements released a statement through his office in Austin saying he "had no apologies to make."

However, he said he thought the interview was off the record.

Police hunt 'trick or treat' bomber

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Four people injured when a package marked "trick or treat" exploded in an accounting office remained hospitalized Saturday as authorities sought clues to the bomber's identity.

One of those injured in Friday's blast, Kathy Corbett, 40, of Phoenix, was reported in extremely critical condition.

"She has not regained consciousness whatsoever," said Donna Walters, nursing supervisor at J.C. Lincoln Hospital.

Phoenix arson investigators joined U.S. Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents in trying to determine the type of explosive used. City homicide detectives worked with U.S. Postal Service inspectors in an attempt to trace the package.

The tag saying "trick or treat" was on a two-tiered jewel box that arrived in the mail at Brookshire's Pacific Associates Inc. addressed to Jason Himelstein, a former partner in the accounting firm.

Miss Corbett was working there when a co-worker, Starlene Grimes, 26, opened the parcel.

Himelstein, who was not there, had just given permission by telephone to open the box when it exploded, destroying a metal desk and injuring nine people in the office, police said. Five were treated by hospitals and released.

Mrs. Grimes improved to stable condition Saturday and was "really out of danger," said Ms. Walters.

Debbie Barkley, 28, remained in serious condition, and Greg Riggle, 31, was in satisfactory condition. All suffered cuts, shrapnel wounds and possible ear and eye damage, hospital officials said.

"I gave the police two or three names of persons who might want to kill me," Himelstein said. "But they are just guesses. No one has threatened to kill me."

Himelstein said he was "sick that something like this has happened to my friends." He said he sold his interest in the accounting firm in January and moved to another location because his advertising-specialty business uses noisy printers.

"To think that those people who are my friends are suffering because someone wanted to kill me is just too much," said Himelstein.

Crew foils attempted hijacking

MIAMI (AP) — The crew of a Continental jetliner wrestled a Cuban refugee to the floor of the plane Saturday after the man allegedly threatened to set the plane on fire if he wasn't flown to Cuba, FBI agents said.

Rafael A. Castanedo Reyes, 26, was arrested and charged with attempted air piracy when the plane, bound for San Antonio, Texas, returned to Miami International Airport about 20 minutes after its 1:30 p.m. takeoff, said FBI agent Welton Merry.

The incident occurred about 50 miles northwest of Miami, Merry said.

Continental Flight 67, with 125 passengers and a crew of seven aboard, took off again for San Antonio after a two-hour delay, an FAA spokesman in Atlanta said.

Castanedo, who arrived in the United States from Cuba in May aboard the refugee boatlift, threatened in Spanish to set a lighter to a bundle of newspapers if he wasn't flown to Cuba, Merry said.

The captain, a steward and a third crewman jumped him and wrestled him to the floor, Merry said. A Continental spokesman in Los Angeles said an Immigration and Naturalization Service agent who happened to be on board also helped subdue the man.

No. 1

The constitutional amendment permiting the legislature to authorize banks to use unmanned teller machines within the county or the city of their domicile on a shared basis to serve the public convenience.

This amendment (Senate joint Resolution 35) would allow the legislature to permit banks to use unmanned, electronic teller machines for al functions in the county or city in which the bank is located. The amendment also provides that a bank must share the machine with other financial institutions located in the bank's area on a "reasonable, nondiscriminatory basis, consistant with antitrust laws."

No. 2

The constitutinal amendment authorizing appeal of certain pretrial rulings of a trial court in a criminal case by either the state or the accused.

This amendment (Senate Joint Resolution 97) would grant the state and the defendant in a criminal case the right to appeal a pretrial ruling before the conclusion of the trial on: 1) the constitutionality of a statute; 2) a motion to quash, dismiss, or set aside an indictment, or 3) a motion to suppress evidence.

No. 3

The constitutional amendment requiring a single appraisal and a single board of equalization within each county for ad valorem tax purposes.

This amendment (House Joint Resolution 98) proposes to remove the authority of a county commissioners' court to act as a board of equalization. It requires that the legislature provide for a single appraisal of all property within the county. Amendment No. 3 would also require a single board of equalization for each county and disqualify elected officials from serving on the board.

No. 4

The constitutional amendment to authorize bingo games on a local option election basis if the games are conducted by a church, synagogue, religious society, volunteer fire department, non profit veterans organization, fraternal organization, or nonprofit organizationsupporting medical research or treatment programs and if the proceeds are to be spent in Texas for charitable purposes of the organizations.

Amendment No. 4 (Senate Joint Resolution 18) would allow the legislature to authorize and regulate bingo games conducted by the groups listed in the ballot wording. The law must allow voters in the cities ad counties to decide whether bingo will be allowed in their communities.

All proceeds of the games must be spent in Texas for the charitable purposes of the organization. The games must be conducted by members of the organization on property owned or leased by the organization. The law requires that the game operators submit quarterly financial reports to the Comptroller's office. Penalties to enforce the reporting requirement are included.

No. 5

The constitutional amendment to grant the governor power to exercise fiscal control over the expenditure of appropriated funds as provided by law.

The proposed amendment (House Joint Resolution 86) would empower the legislature to authorize or direct the governor to exercise fiscal control over the expenditure of appropriated funds (excluding constitutionally dedicated funds). The legislature could limit the authority, or attach conditions to it.

Any action of the governor would be subject to approval of a budget execution committee composed of the governor, lieutenant governor, speaker of the house, chairmen and vice-chairmen of the house Appropriations Committee and the Senate Finance Committee.

No. 6

The constitutional amendment to authorize the governor to remove appointed officers with the advice and consent of the senate.

This amendment (Senate Joint Resolution 8) would give the governor the authority to remove his or hier appointees with the advice and consent of two-thirds of the members of the senate present. If the governor wants to remove an appointee when the legislature is not is session, a special session of the senate may be called to consider the removal. The session may not last more than two days.

No. 7

The constitutional amendment authorizing counties with a population of 5,000 or less to perform private road work.

Amendment No. 7 (House Joint Resolution 121) would authorize any county with a population of 5,000 or less t build and maintain private roads if the county "imposes a reasonable charge for the work." Revenue collcted by the county could be used only for construction and maintenance of public roads. The legislature would be authorized to limit the authority.

No. 8

The constitutional amendment to change the name of the Courts of Civil Appeals and the names and qualifications of the justices of the Supreme Court and to prescribe the jurisdiction and authority of the appellate courts.

This amendment (Senate Joint Resolution 36) would give the Courts of Civil Appeals the authority to try criminal as well as civil cases; and changes their name to Court of Apeals. Appeals in cases involving the death penalty would go directly to the Court of Criminal Appeals. The amendment also changes the name of associate justices to simply "justices," and requires that all Supreme Court Justices be licensed to practice law in Texas.

The constitutional amendment allowing spouses to agree that income or property arising from separate property is to be separate property.

The amendment (House Joint Resolution 54) would allow spouses, or persons about to marry, to agree in writing that income or property arising from separate property is to be separate property. The amendment also says that a gift of property from one spouse to another includes all the income or property arising from that property. The amendment changes the language of the constitution from "wife" and "husband and wife" to "spouse" and "spouses."

The above information on the proposed constitutional amendments was compiled by the League of Women Voters from the Texas Legislative Coucil's "Information Report No. 80-1", the House Study Group's "Special Legislative Report #57," and information from the office of the Secretary of State. It is published by The Reporter-Telegram as a public service. The League of Women Voters' 1980 Voters' Guide for statewide and local races appears on Pages 2B and 3B.

Tax cuts, bingo, nuke power on Missouri voters' ballots

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A proposed constitutional amendment to curb state and local spending and require tax increases to be approved by voters tops a list of controversial issues on Missouri ballots this November.

Missourians also may get a chance to vote Nov. 4 on a proposal virtually outlawing nuclear power plants if the measure survives a legal challenge in the Missouri Supreme Court. If finally approved, no nuclear plants could operate in Missouri unless federally licensed disposal sites were available for storage of nuclear wastes. There are no such sites in the United States.

Also on the ballot will be proposals to allow religious, veterans and fraternal groups to hold bingo games to raise money.

The plan to put a lid on government spending has sparked the most debate, with some of the state's most powerful special interest groups lining up on both sides of the issue.

Springfield businessman Mel Hancock, who got the spending lid on the ballot, claims that although many powerful organizations were opposed to his plan, most individual Missourians supported it.

Supporters include Gov. Joseph Teasdale and the Missouri Farm Bureau.

The plan would prohibit state spending from increasing any faster than the personal income of Missourians increases. It also would require voter approval of any increases in fees or taxes.

The measure is opposed by such groups as the Missouri Association of Counties, the Missouri Public Expenditure Survey and the Missouri State Labor Council. The state's two most powerful teachers associations — the Missouri National Education Association and the Missouri State Teachers Association — also have come out against the plan.

Opponents say the spending lid would severely curtail state programs and services and is unnecessary because the state has a constitutional ban on deficit spending.

Hancock said his proposal would make sure politicians did not waste taxpayers' money and would ease the burden on Missouri taxpayers.

The Missouri Supreme Court is considering an appeal of a lower court ruling which struck the nuclear power proposition off the general election ballot on grounds it did not accurately describe the intent of the proposal. The suit was filed by Union Electric Co., which has a nuclear power plant under construction in central Missouri. It is scheduled to begin operations in 1982.

Chief Justice John Bardgett said the court will decide the issue before Friday — the last day the Secretary of State could put a measure on the ballot.

Nonpartisan statement:

The League of Women Voters is a nonpartisan organization which works to promote political responsibility through active informed participation of all citizens in their government. The League DOES NOT support or oppose any political party or candidate. It does publish and distribute factual information to help prepare citizens to cast an informed vote.

The Voters Guide includes responses from candidates in any contested statewide race. The information in the Voters Guide was obtained by means of a questionnaire sent to each candidate and is printed as received by the League. Due to space restrictions, the candidates were advised that their responses would be limited. (Word limitations follow each question.) Information on the constitutional amendments was compiled from: The Texas legislative Council's Information Reprt No. 80-1, August 1980; the House Study Group's "Special Legislative Report #57," August 30, 1980; and the office of the secretary of state.

Texas Railroad Commission

Headed by three commissioners, elected for six years, serve overlapping terms. Among duties: administers laws governing rates charged by express companies, contract motor freight companies, and buses within the state; administers state law pertaining to regulation of the natural gas and liquified petroleum gas industies; establishes reclamation requirements for surfacemined lands (coal, lignite and uranium); regulates the exploration for and production of geothermal energy; sets allowable production rates of oil and gas. Annual salary: $48,500 (1980). $51,000 (1981)

		Please describe your training and experience that qualify you for this office. (50-word limit)	What should be the role of the Texas Railroad Commission with respect to the national energy problem? (100-word limit)	What are the three most urgent issues facing the Railroad Commission and how will you address them? (100-word limit)
Democrat	Buddy Temple	Businessman: 19 years. Legislator: 4 terms; priorities: school finance, sound fiscal management of state government. Named "Hardest-working Committee Member" by Texas Monthly. Temple was the overwhelming choice of Texas Democrats in the primary. He garnered 50 percent of the vote, more then anyone else on the statewide ballot.	The Texas Railroad Commission can be the single most influential factor in a new direction for national energy policy. The commission has the expertise to be in the forefront of the solution to our national energy problem. To do that will require beefing up the Commission's presence in Washington. An all-out domestic production effort is an essential part of the solution to our national energy crisis. The commission should lead the way in lifting red tape and regulatory burdens off the independent producers.	1. A new direction in national energy policy. I want to be an aggressive, vocal spokesman in Washington for the consumers and producers in Texas, influencing the direction of our future energy policy. 2. Cutting energy costs. I pledge to make gas utilities justify every penny of the rates they charge. 3. Representing all the people. For too long, the commission has been a private club operating for the benefit of a closed circle of private interests. As a commissioner, I want to represent all the people fairly and equally.
Republican	Hank Grover	No Response
Two years, unexpired term Democrat	James E. 'Jim' Nugent	I have served nearly two years on the Commission and 18 years in the legislature, where I sponsored Texas' first ethics law for public officials, revision of criminal statutes and major funding bills for highways and education. I am a lawyer, engineer and successful businessman.	The energy crisis is real, it is sapping our national economy and making us the target of scheming of international madmen. Solutions will be found, but our immediate challenge is to produce efficiently the energy we have, conserve what we can and bridge the gap to new sources and techologies as rapidly as possible. The Railroad commission will continue as an aggressive leader in each phase of this program by efficient management of our oil and gas reserves, promotion of lignite-caol, solar, gasohol, geothermal and in situ mining technologies. We must also play a leadership role in balancing developing federal energy regulation against our own.	Texas consumers are unwitting victims of national policies designed to provide cheap energy to the Northeast. The railroads, coal-exporting states and others have used Texas for their own benefit. I will continue to oppose these out-of-state forays into Texas consumers' pocketbooks. I will hold gas utility profits to the minimum level sustainable under the law, while assisting small cities in rate proceedings with utility companies. I will continue my initiative to keep overweight trucks off our highways, saving millions in highway, maintenance and automobile repairs.
Republican	H.J. 'Doc' Blanchard	Active private law practice since 1951, member of Texas House of Representatives 1956-1961; member of Texas Senate 1962-1975 — Chaired or served on all major House and Senate Committees. Chaired Legislative Property Tax Committee. Active in administrative and private business endeavors.	Texas produces almost 40 percent of the oil and gas in the U.S. and moving to the forefront in lignite. The Commission should offer strong leadership towards solutions of the energy crisis. The Commission's failure to offer strong leadership in this area has encouraged the Federal Bureaucracy to spend billions of dollars without producing one barrel of oil and they have imposed unconscionable taxes on the people of Texas which impedes future exploration and production.	(a) Lack of effective leaderhip toward solving the energy problem. The Commission must exhibit strong leadership in every phase of energy. Texas produces 40 percent of total U.S. energy yet has no strong voice in Austin or Washington to insure that every citizen's interest in protected. (b) Red tape has resulted in the production of tons of paperwork but little energy, with added consumer cost. The Commisson should promote methods of streamlining operations to encourage production of substantially more energy. Texas should strive for incentives which will allow for greater production of energy. (c) Loss of confidence in the actions of the Commission.
Libertarian	David Hutzelman	As a consumer I have enough experience in paying high transportation and energy bills to know that competition, not Railroad Commission regulations can lower these bills. I am an ex-Air Force officer with degrees from Kenyon College and Stanford University and have a professional knowledge on the energy industry.	The Texas Railroad Commission should not have any further role in either our national or local energy problems. The Commission's past role is a major cause of our current crisis and for this reason the Commission should be abolished when its authority expires under the Texas Sunset Act in 1983. Artificially high prices have been the result of past Commission policies restricting Texas oil production and limiting imports of cheaper foreign crude oil. The naturally independent and competitive spirit of Texas energy producers, not the Railroad Commission, is the key to abundance of future energy at fair prices.	The only important issues facing the Railroad Commission is whether it should be allowed to continue its anti-consumer programs or whether it should be abolished under the Texas Sunset Act. As of now the Commission uses the money for programs to limit competition in the transportation and energy industries. This costs consumers hundreds of millions of dollars more each year in artificially high prices. To expand these programs the Commission is now requesting a 46 percent budget increase! These problems can only be addressed by "sunsetting" the Texas Railroad Commission.

Associate Justice of the Supreme Court

Has appellate civil jurisdiction and is the highest civil court in the state. The chief justice and eight associate justices are elected for 6-year overlapping terms. Judges must be at least 35 years old, citizens of the U.S., residents ofTexas, practicing lawyers or both lawyers and judges of a cout of record at least 10 years prior to election. Salary: associated justices, $51,400.

		Please describe your training and experience that qualify you for this office. (50-word limit)	What structural or administrative changes, if any, do you recommend for the Texas judicial system? (100-word limit)
Place 1 Democrat	James P. 'Jim' Wallace	I have practiced general civil law for 18 years; served two terms in the Texas Senate, gaining invaluable experience in law making; served as a District Judge and an Associate Justice of the Court of Civil Appeals, interpreting and applying the law.	The changes most needed are ones which will decrease the costs and delay inherent in our judicial process while at the same time making it more accessible to all citizens. The establishment of neighborhood justice centers, where citizens may submit their disputes to trained, volunteeer arbitrators without incurring expenses, would accomplish all three of these goals. Second, the transcription of testimony should be converted from the current system employing typewriters to computerized stenotypes. This change would drastically decrease the time needed to prepare the appellate record which is the greatest cause of delay both in civil and criminal cases.
Republican	Jim Brady	34 years trial and appellate experience in over 2,000 cases; Past president San Antonio Young Lawyers Assn. & vice-president Texas Young Lawyers; director National bank 4 years; Hold two law degrees; writer, lecturer and editor in CLE and ABA former Chief Justice Delta Theta Phi legal fraternity.	1. New simplified rules for appeals to reduce delays; 2. Permitting closed circuit videotape in trial courts to augment record on appeal; 3. Updating court reporting methods by use of electronic word processing; 4. Streamlining trial by permitting liberal summary judgment by trial courts; 5. Cut civil juries to 6 members; and 6. Limit special issues to minimum.
Place 2 Democrat	Sears McGee	Unopposed
Place 3 Democrat	Robert Campbell	Unopposed
Place 4 Democrat	C.L. Ray	Ten years on the Court of Civil Appeals, four years in the Texas Legislature, two years as County Judge of Harrison County. Education: Business degrees from Texas A&M; law degree from University of Texas; graduate of the National Judicial College and the Institute of Judicial Administration. Thirteen years in law practice.	Provide, through the rule of precedure for minor disputes to be handled by local committees through negotiation. This process has worked well to relieve the courts of minor but difficult cases in many other states. Provide for more efficiency in the court procedures through the use of modern business equipment. Both of these approaches would help relieve the court without additional costs to public.
Republican	Will Garwood	My current service as Texas Supreme Court Justice; Texas University law graduate, ranked first in class; 3 years' military; 20 years' Texas priate civil law practice; endorsements include 11 former Supreme Court Justices, 3 former Governors, 4 former Attorney Generals, 15 Texas Bar presidents; 82 percent endorsement Texas lawyers' poll.	I believe judicial elections should be determined on qualifications and character, rather than on a partisan or party label basis. There is no "Republican" or "Democratic" justice, only justice under law equally for all. The legislature and people of Texas should seriously consider changing the election of judges so they would run as nonpartisans and not under a party label. Also, we must always strive to improve our judicial system's efficiency, while maintaining its essential fairness. I have tried to do so in my service on the Texas Supreme Court. We must remember that justice delayed may be justice denied.

Judge, Texàs Court of Criminal Appeals

Has only appellate criminal jurisdiction and hears cases apealed from county and district courts. It has a presiding judge and eight associate justices. These nine judges may sit in panels of three to hear most cases. The Court is required to hear most cases involving capital punishment. Judges are elected for 6-year overlapping terms; must be at least 35 years old, citizens of the U.S., residents of Texas, practicing lawyers or both lawyers and judges of a court of record at least 10 years prior to election. Salary: Associate justices, $51,400.

Place 1 Democrat	Marvin O. Teague	Unopposed

U.S. House of Representatives, District 19

Party	Name	What qualifies you for this position (include education, business and professional experience, community service, etc.)? (75 words)	What immediate goals would you expect to accomplish during your term in office? (100 words)	What do you feel are the most important issues facing the House during the next term? (100 words)
Democrat	Kent Hance	1. Degree from Texas Tech University; 2. Law degree from The University of Texas; 3. Ten years experience in private law practice; 4. Five years experience as a college professor; 5. Very active in civic and community organizations and affairs; 6. Served four years as one of the youngest members of Texas Senate; 7. Elected Congressman in 1978.	1. A sensible energy policy that increases production rather than impedes with restrictive taxes. 2. Repeal of the so-called windfall profits tax which penalizes royalty owners and producers. 3. Push for a major tax cut along with a limit on government spending to balance the budget. A tax cut also would provide incentives for businesses to increase productivity and help give taxpayers aid against inflation. 4. More sunset legislation to eliminate excessive government regulations and needless spending. 5. Increased spending for national defense.	1. Energy — Private energy development and production must be increased with proper tax incentives instead of restrictive taxes. A sensible energy policy relies heavily on the proven free enterprise system. 2. Inflation — The solution to inflation will follow such measures as a major tax cut, reduced federal spending, a balanced budget and less dependence on foreign oil. 3. Defense — Congress must rapidly rebuild our defense system so that it is again superior. 4. Farm policy — 1981 will be the year in which the national farm policy is to be rewritten. A responsible farm policy is vital to Texas.
Libertarian	J.D. Webster	I have degrees from two colleges and am presently pursuing a third degree (in engineering) from UTPB. I have lived in eight states and two foreign countries and have had wide exposure to many different cultures. I believe the most important asset I have is my ideas. I believe in the idea "live and let live." The result would be a lasting peace, unparalleled prosperity and the human dignity which is every American's birthright.	I want to change the direction of American political thought. I envision a more open society, with people working together to solve the problems government has created. I believe that by encouraging individual freedom, our society will begin taking the practical steps necessary to end inflation, poverty, unemployment and energy shortages. The common thread in all these problems is government, so the logical step is to reduce government involvement. By removing the restrictions on the economy, people will be able to create their own prosperity; regardless of their present social, educational or economic status.	The House of Representatives needs to stop inflating our money and restricting our choices. The Congress is responsible for inflation and its disastrous consequences. Problems like unemployment, poverty, lack of opportunity, and energy shortages are caused, or aggravated, by inflation. Congress needs to cut regulation, taxation and spending. I would like to start by abolishing the DOE, repealing the Windfall Profits Tax, abolishing foreign aid and removing all taxes from the food chain. I believe these steps will stimulate business and employment, bring food prices down and allow the American taxpayer to keep more of what he earns.

Republican	Tom Craddick	Midland resident 28 years; attended Midland schools; received BBA and MBA from Texas Tech University in finance. Married, two children, Christi and Tommy. Sales Representative Mustang Mud, Inc.; owner of Craddick Properties. Presently serving sixth term in State Legislature. Currently Chairman of House Natural Resources Committee; member of Energy Committee; Representative to National Conference of State Legislatures. Appointed by Speaker to represent Texas at numerous conferences concerning oil and gas regulation and other natural resources.	To express the views and beliefs of this district on all proposed legislation. Sponsor legislation that affects this district as well as statewide legislation.	The Redistricting of the State of Texas in Congressional, State Senate and Legislative House Districts. The passing of a State budget that will hold down on State spending. Working against the imposing of new taxes on the people of Texas.

Judge, 142nd District Court

Party	Name	What qualifies you for this position (include education, business and professional experience, community service, etc.)? (75 words)	What immediate goals would you expect to accomplish during your term in office? (100 words)	What do you feel are the most important issues facing the Court System? (100 words)
Democrat	Pat M. Baskin	Successful trial lawyer for 27 years; has handled hundreds of civil and criminal cases in Texas district courts. B.A., M.A. and J.D. degrees from UT-Austin. Army legal officer and military prosecutor 1952-53. Four years Midland Municipal Court Judge. Has earned an "A" rating from Midland's judges and attorneys for more than 15 years (highest possible rating for professional competence.) Former President, Midland Bar Association. Former City Councilman and Mayor pro-tem.	1. To administer justice fairly, knowledgeably, courteously and judiciously. 2. To enforce our criminal laws firmly. 3. To apply the conservative legal principles (e.g. strict construction of the law) that have made this country great. 4. To conduct an efficient, low-cost court. 5. To keep the court independent and non-political. 6. To assure speedy justice in criminal cases. 7. To reduce the backlog of civil cases until the docket is current. (Substantial progress has already been made, but there is still a considerable backlog.)	1. We must keep politics out of the judiciary, and the judiciary out of politics. If our courts are to be respected, they must be non-political. Justice is best served by a non-partisan, independent judiciary. Such a judiciary means more competent judges, strong courts. 2. Judges must stop trying to change the law. That is the function of the legislative branch. Courtroom justice is achieved best when trial courts follow proven conservative principles.
Republican	Jay H. 'Timber' Floyd Jr.	Legal education — Graduate of South Texas College of Law. Military experience — Judge Advocate General Corps. Private practice of law in Midland County. Experience as Independent Oil Operator.	The stability of our community and the safety of its inhabitants are directly affected by court decisions. The primary objectives of a District Judge should be the prompt and impartial administration of the laws of this state.	Criminal cases are governed by the Speedy Trial Act and have mandatory trial deadlines. Civil lawsuits have no such deadlines and comprise the majority of the suits waiting for trial in Midland County. I will make a concentrated effort toward reducing the number of the pending civil cases.

Midland County Attorney

Party	Name	What qualifies you for this position (include education, business and professional experience, community service, etc.)? (75 words)	How do you evaluate this area of goveernment as contributing to the improvement of Midland County? (100 words)
Republican	Robert V. Rendall Jr.	I am a graduate of Lee High School, U.T.-Austin (B.A.) and Texas Tech School of Law (J.D.). I have worked in the private sector as well as having served as Assistant County Attorney for the past year. These positions have provided me with the necessary experience needed for misdemeanor prosecution, juvenile proceedings and child welfare matters. I am additionally familiar with current Commissioner Court programs and problems which require legal assistance.	The effective dealing with problems associated with Midland County's rapid growth must be the emphasis of the County Attorney. Aggressive prosecution of the increasing number of misdemeanor cases and juvenile offense will have a significant influence as to whether those offenders continue to violate the rights of other citizens. Continued diligence in keeping the criminal docket as current as possible will assist in a smooth and effective administration of justice. Sound legal advice to all County departments is necessary to assist all areas of County government in meeting the governmental demands of the future.

County Sheriff, Midland

Party	Name	What qualifies you for this position (include education, business and professional experience, community service, etc.)? (75 words)	What improvements would you recommend to achieve greater efficiency and/or effectiveness in the services of this area of government? (100 words)
Democrat	Joe W. Carr	17 years experience as a law enforcement officer, 15 years with Midland Police Department where I am now a sergeant in the narcotics section. More than 1700 classroom hours in law enforcement training, have almost completed requirements for Associate Degree from Midland College. Hold an advanced certification in law enforcement from the State of Texas. Married, 5 children. Deeply interested in youth and in courteous, efficient law enforcement for all citizens.	Our sheriff's department has deteriorated in both quality of services and retention of personnel under the present Sheriff. Cooperation with other agencies is at an all-time low, and this is a dangerous situation. Turnover of deputies is higher than ever, and stability must be returned to this department if we are to be secure in our homes and property. Courteous treatment to everyone, in and out of the city, must replace the highhanded arrogance now present. I have the expereince and know-how to initiate and carry out the necessary programs to restore confidence in the Sheriff's department.
Republican	Dallas Smith	I am a professional, experienced peace officer. My law enforcement experience began upon graduation from the Texas Department of Public Safety Enforcement Academy in 1964. My assignment for approximately seven years as a highway patrolman was served in Midland County. From 1973 to 1976, I gained four valuable years business experience while employed by a fine company named MGF Oil Corporation. For the past four years I have served as Sheriff of Midland County.	My term of office as Sheriff began January 1, 1977. I initiated those methods and programs that were promised during my campaign for office. Important ones were to modernize investigative and identification techniques, substitute non-sworn personnel for the performance of clerical duties and thus put more trained officers in the field, put patrol officers in uniforms and marked cars, and institute an on-going training program to make Midland Sheriff's force a professional crime fighting contingent. We have started a mandatory physical testing program for officers and joint sponsored the Silent Witness program. I plan to continue these improvements.

We try not to spend unless funds are available. Our tax rate has remained virtually constant for a decade. It would assist Midland County's Road and Bridge department if constitutional restraints were removed from allocation of funds. I would like to see conservative fiscal policy continued and continuation of services at the high level maintained. We need library expansion and a new annex. It is possible that both of these projects will become reality in the near future without bond issue and without tax increase.
Republican	Jeff W. Barber	Graduated from Jacksonville High School, attended Lon Morris College after discharge from service after World War II. Employed by Shell Oil Company in Houston 15 years and attended University of Houston while with Shell. Moved to Midland as Sales Representative for Certified Labs and just completed by 16th year with the company. Built a successful business in Midland during past 6 years. Active member and Past President of Midland's West Side Lions Club.	Work towards the elimination of partisan politics and getting a fairer and more balanced approach on the court. Continued road maintenance — not just election year maintenance. Improve the library and county roads as the tax base grows, but not with new taxes. Careful consideration and supervision of the upcoming Courthouse Annex issue. New and conservative leadership. The office of County Commissioner should be a community service position, and not one of a career politician. My opponent is seeking another term for a total of 16 years in office.

To become informed; to listen to all constituents who are interested in better government; to make as much direct contact with citizens as time will permit to assure equity in voting; and to be sure everyone's vote weighs and counts the same in any political decision. Availability and full-time service to the needs of this office would be a must. I consier a public office a "trust" and not a "possession."
Republican	Alexandra Morris	Living in Midland County 24 years, I have been actively involved in non-elective public service in the following areas: Problems of the aged, youth, family planning and health services. Through my experience with Midland Community Action Agency, I have the judgement, tempered by experience, to recognize that a dollar spent in a government program must purchase the same amount of services as a dollar spent in the private sector.	I will work for improvement in the following areas so as to increase the effectiveness/efficiency of the Commissoner's Court: 1. Improve the space allotted to the County Law Library. 2. Effectively use county road and street equipment. 3. Meet regularly with the City Council, and the other taxing bodies, in open meetings, for the improvement of communication and services. 4. Advocate citizen input in the county budget. 5. Be accessible to all people. 6. Increased representation to the Museum of the Southwest.

I believe it should be mandatory for Judges to maintain a high level of proficiency through advanced training in accredited institutions, which I have received. Citizen awareness of justice court functions should be stressed to assure willingness of citizens to serve on juries impaneled to hear matters which come before these courts. Continued efforts should be maintained for cooperation between city, county and district officials with whom the Justice of the Peace Court Judges deal on a daily basis.
Republican	Charlie Sprayberry	Qualifications include: a Business Administration degree from The University of Texas, management courses and programs provided by Burroughs Corp., Scott and Fetzer, and Farmers Insurance Group; developed skills in human relations through leadership roles and activities with youth and church groups which offer a positive attitude toward the public; educational and successful business experience in sales and management, insurance and real estate for knowledge of the needs of Midland and its justice system.	My recommendations include: the study, improvement and continuous monitoring of caseflow, calendaring and time standards for the Court's business; improvements in the management of space, equipment and facilities; the development of informational and statistical records and reports concerning the Court; initiating a program to educate and inform the public of the activities, functions and processes of the Court; establishing liasion with other governmental and civic agencies; increased representation for the Court in business, administrative and public relations matters locally and regionally; and reviews to insure response to the needs of Midland County citizens.

Democrat	Charlie D. Jones	I have been a Midlander since 1955, with 23½ years law enforcement experience in Midland County; 3½ years as Deputy Constable, 6½ years city police department and 13½ years as a Deputy Sheriff (last 3 as Chief Misdemeanor Deputy). I hold a law enforcement certificate from the State of Texas and have regularly taken and completed many continuing law enforcement education courses pertaining to my job. I know, like and can do the job.	The primary work of the Constable's office is and will be with the people involved in Justice Court civil matters and lesser misdemeanors. Because the office deals with the entire cross-section of Midland's people, it is most important that every one be treated courteously, with dignity and that the processing of the great volume of paperwork be done with dispatch and efficiency. During my years as deputy constable and throughout my law enforcement career, I have worked hard to do my job efficiently, effectively and courteously. I will do the same as Constable.
Republican	Thomas E. McGinnis	22 years experience as a Peace Officer on Federal, County and City levels. Have attended two law enforcement academies. Associate of Applied Science in Law Enforcement degree. Advanced certificate from Texas Commission on Law enforcement Officers Standards and Education. 1800 hours classroom and field studies in law enforcement and related studies. Employed for the past 6 years in Midland County with Midland County Sheriff's Office and Midland Constable's Office.	The Texas constituion provides for the Constable's Office as a county law enforcement agency. The Midland Constable has traditionally been a working force on behalf of all of Midland, particularly in rural Midland County. I will once again provide this service by making myself and the office available at all times. The patrol function of the office will be increased in an effort to prevent, detect and apprehend criminal violators. I will continue to involve myself with the young people of our community to help in guiding them to becoming useful and productive citizens.

Rabbitt, Gilley draw largest Chap crowd

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Staff Writer

Chaparral Center overflowed Saturday night as 6,200-plus country western music lovers crowded in to hear Eddie Rabbitt, Mickey Gilley, Johnny Lee and the Urban Cowboy Band.

As Chaparral Manager Larry Campbell said, "It's the largest crowd we have had for any reserved seating event in the two years we've been open."

Rock crowds, which are not reserved seating, have on two occasions — Ted Nugent and Heart — had a standing-room-only crowd of 7,200-plus.

Johnny Lee and the Urban Cowboy Band lead off the concert with "Ghost Riders in the Sky." Lee did not perform "Looking for Love," a recent hit, when he was first on stage.

When Mickey Gilley took the stage he quipped, "Don't get excited that Johnny Lee didn't sing the song "Looking for Love," — he forgot the words."

Then he added, "No, really, he'll perform it when he comes back on."

Throughout the 55-minute Lee and Gilley performance any selection that had anything to do with "Urban Cowboy" received resounding applause.

After a 30-minute intermission, Eddie Rabbitt came on stage. By the spontaneous applause it was apparent that this was the performer many had come to see and hear.

Scott says acting unhealthy profession

CHICAGO (AP) — George C. Scott says in an interview with Playboy Magazine that while acting can be "very, very psychologically damaging," he believes that the profession "rescued me from myself to a large extent."

"I have a lot of self-hatred," Scott said in the interview, to be published in the magazine's December issue. "Acting didn't cause it. Acting is, in some sense, a relief of that pressure."

Scott, awarded an Oscar for his portrayal of Gen. George Patton, warns that sensitive people who are unable to cope with the "psychological disturbances" to which acting can lead should stay out of the profession.

He cited the deaths of Elvis Presley, Gig Young and Marilyn Monroe as examples of the "high mortality rate in this business."

"Marilyn is one of the classics," Scott said. "Torn, mad, tortured, confused ... little lady — had no more business being a film star than I have being shah of Saudi Arabia ... no way is that fragile psyche going to be able to hold that. The assault is too extreme."

Scott, 53, said he will do nothing to help his children enter the acting profession. He said that when his daughter, Devon, decided to become an actress, he did not speak to her for more than a year.

With regard to his colleagues, Scott's remarks in the interview range from extremely kind to rather cutting. He described Paul Newman's performance in the movie "The Hustler" — in which Scott played Newman's manager — as "perfectly average."

"I've never thought that Paul was a particularly good actor," Scott said. "He's one of the sweet people of the world, an excellent producer. But I've never been a Paul Newman fan as far as acting goes."

He describes Jack Nicholson as "eccentric but very interesting" and Robert DeNiro as "sullen." He says he finds Woody Allen "neurotic" and his humor "unappetizing."

Scott rated Marlon Brando, Montgomery Clift and the late John Barrymore as America's greatest actors.

Much of the interview is devoted to Scott's political opinions. He spoke favorably of Ronald Reagan, praised Richard Nixon's foreign policy and said he does not "believe in fighting wars that you don't want to win."

Scott said he believes all Americans should have a right to keep guns in their homes and that he "couldn't agree more with the National Rifle Association."

He said he is particularly concerned about the safety of women and thinks they should carry guns to stop assaults.

"Make every woman a walking lethal weapon and it will stop," Scott said. "You'd be surprised how quickly it will stop."

Medoff hunting for talent

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Although he politely answered questions in a concise and thorough manner, it was obvious he was tired. And he had good reason to be.

He had arrived in Big Spring early in the morning, auditioned all day and was now spending his Saturday evening answering questions.

Playwright Mark Medoff squeezed his short trip to West Texas in between his duties as head of the drama department at New Mexico State University and his work with a newly-assembled national touring company that will perform his award-winning play, "Children of a Lesser God." This play, which won three Tonys this past spring, deals with the romance between a deaf woman and a hearing man.

Although Medoff was uncertain about the widespread appeal of a play that contains as much sign language as it does speech, his play drew solid reviews and high attendance in New York and Los Angeles. Thus, a national touring company was formed with his search for talent taking him across the country.

And talent-hunting brought Medoff to West Texas. His search for deaf actors for a Dallas Theatre Center production of "Children of a Lesser God" brought him to the campus of the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf in Big Spring.

Medoff said that of those he audition,he would "see some, go away and then see them again.

"I'm in no rush," Medoff said. "I have months before I start this production. That might be uncomfortable for someone who wants to dream the dream, but I don't want to make a mistake. But within the next week or so I will contact the people I've auditioned."

Medoff explained that the reason the Dallas Theater Center got first option on performing the play regionally was because "I have a special relationship with Paul Baker," the theater's director.

"Baker whisked me off the stage in San Antonio when 500 people were coming for me," he said, laughing.

The year was 1969 and Baker was "sponsoring a new play festival. They workshopped eight new plays by new writers and my play was the closing one. Supporters of the arts in San Antonio" were invited to attend.

"My play was supposed to be a very funny farce dealing with the insensitivity of the white man to the Indian. The audience laughed the first 10 minutes of the play. Then they stopped laughing and never started again," Medoff said, explaining that the audience seemed to be "turning to cement."

The closing playwright at the festival returns to the stage after the production and is critiqued by the audience, Medoff said.

"The critics stung me to death and I got very angry and yelled back. The audience was frothing at the mouth and Paul appeared on the stage. He said, 'This has turned into an attack on the individual' and he put his arm on me and took me off the stage."

Medoff added that responses he received at the country club reception that night were unanimously in his favor.

"People kept coming up to me and saying 'We were not among those that attacked you, we were with you.'"

At 40, Mark Medoff has spent his life writing.

"I live to write. I can't wait to get to the typewriter in the mornings."

Adding in a laughing, yet serious manner, Medoff said, "Writing keeps me in a mental state that allows me to conduct myself in a reasonably sane manner. And I intend to be one of the saner people I know."

Strike-delayed TV season opens

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Who shot J.R.?" has been THE question since the evening of March 21, and fans of CBS' "Dallas," itchin' all summer for the answer, have just a few more days to wait.

CBS and ABC start their strike-delayed prime-time programming for 1980-81 on Monday night, and both networks will premiere new and returning series over the next several weeks.

"Dallas" begins its third season Friday, Nov. 7, at 9 p.m. EST with a repeat of the March 21 episode, followed immediately at 10 by the first program in the new season.

NBC, mired in third place in the ratings since the end of the 1975-76 television year, began its fall season Sept. 15, strike or no strike, with the 12-hour "Shogun" miniseries. And through the intervening five weeks, NBC has built a substantial lead over the competition.

"You get kind of nervous, like when someone's pitching a no-hitter, you don't want to talk about it," said Brandon Tartikoff, president of NBC's entertainment division, of the network's current run of success. "But we're on a nice roll now.

"Despite the uncertainty over the start of the season," he said, "nobody laid down and played dead. The key for us now is to keep circulation and momentum in our favor after the underlying schedules of all three networks are in."

There is sure to be controversy over the season's starting date, but Variety, the trade paper, already has accepted NBC's judgment.

Indeed, the week of Oct. 27 is "Premiere Week" for ABC and CBS largely in name only. Starting dates for several series are yet to be announced, and some shows won't premiere until late December.

NBC will introduce new and returning series through the end of January. The NBC plan includes limited runs for at least four series in late November and early December — the kind of testing that normally comes toward the end of the TV year.

Two unforeseen developments — President Carter's decision to boycott the Moscow Olympics, and the 10-week actors' strike that began July 21 — were instrumental in shaping the networks' programming plans for 1980-81, most notably NBC's.

NBC had intended to broadcast nearly 100 hours of Olympics coverage, and use the opportunity to promote its fall programming. As that tactic fell by the wayside, the strike began. And NBC, with "Shogun" ready to go, decided to take a running headstart.

"There was not much argument over whether to run 'Shogun,'" Tartikoff said of the lavish production that would become the second most-watched miniseries ever, to ABC's "Roots." "We all felt that we should play the advantage that we had when the roll of the dice — the strike — took 'Who shot J.R.?' away from CBS."

In addition, NBC had original episodes from several series, like "Little House on the Prairie," completed before the strike began, and other shows, like "Real People," were not affected by the labor dispute.

The network sustained the advantage through its coverage of baseball's World Series, traditionally a winner in the ratings. As "Shogun" week was NBC's best ever, the first week of the World Series, Oct. 13-19, was the network's third highest-rated.

Here is the 1980-81 prime-time schedule, barring late changes, listing programs already on the air, as well as premiere dates for upcoming series:

MONDAY — ABC: "That's Incredible," 8-9 p.m. EST; "NFL Monday Night Football," 9-conclusion. Actress Shirley MacLaine plays opposite Bo Derek in a scene from 20th Century Fox production of a "Change of Seasons." The comedy of modern manners took five years of script rewrites and a change of directors before it was completed. Although the movie, which also stars Anthony Hopkins, endured unrest between the three stars, producer Martin Ransohoff believes it was worth it. (AP Laserphoto)

Ransohoff's battle of 'Seasons' over

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Battle-scarred producer Martin Ransohoff would be the first to admit that the miracle of "A Change of Seasons" is that it was ever made at all.

The movie's history includes five years of script rewrites, discharge of a director in mid-production, severe unrest by the three stars, constant interference by one of the stars' husband.

Now all of that is behind him, and Ransohoff is releasing the $8.5 million comedy of modern manners through 20th Century-Fox this fall.

"This is the toughest picture I've produced," says the moon-faced Ransohoff, whose credits include "The Americanization of Emily," "The Sandpiper," "The Cincinnati Kid," "Catch 22," "Save the Tiger" and "Silver Streak." "But I think the results are worth it."

The cast tells it all: Shirley MacLaine, a veteran star faced with appearing with a sensational new sex symbol; Anthony Hopkins, a classical actor with misgivings about working in a sex farce; Bo Derek, an untrained actress totally dominated by her husband, John Derek.

The saga begins five years ago when Ransohoff, having been through his own divorce and observing the marital troubles of friends, conceived the idea of a film about mid-life crisis.

"It's no longer middle-aged; it's happening to people in their late 30s and early 40s," he remarks.

He and Erich Segal ("Love Story") devised a story "about woman's choice — not a women's lib story but what happens to a woman, still attractive at 40, who discovers her husband is having an affair with a girl the age of their daughter." The script was reworked by the late Fred Segal (it was then designed for his brother George and Audrey Hepburn) and by Ronni Kern, who supplied the woman's view.

With backing from Richard St. John's Film Finance Group, Ransohoff assembled what seemed to be a dream cast: MacLaine, Hopkins and Bo, who was signed before the "10" explosion. "I paid her $100,000, and now her asking price is supposed to be $1.5 million," the producer says happily.

Since she had no acting training, Bo offered to test for "A Change of Seasons." Ransohoff saw "10" and decided no test was necessary.

The first sign of trouble came when Miss MacLaine told Ransohoff: "I've got a heavy one to lay on you. My friends have been telling me, 'I hear you're in the new Bo Derek movie.' I don't know how much of that I can handle."

The producer responded with a speech worthy of a pro football coach at halftime: "What am I supposed to do, take full-page ads that 'A Change of Seasons' is not 'the new Bo Derek movie'?

"Yes, she's the new sensation, but let's look at the facts of life. You have first billing; the vehicle is yours. Your solution is to give a knockout performance and dominate the movie."

Filming began on New England locations and proved stormy from the start. Not because of conflict between the female stars. Ransohoff said the problem centered on director Noel Black.

"There was a lot of unrest and dissatisfaction, with heavy complaints from all three stars," says the producer. "Most of all, I didn't like the footage I was getting."

Black was replaced by Richard Lang. Ransohoff and Bo Derek later appeared at a Hollywood press conference to deny reports that her husband was responsible for Black's firing. The producer calculates that the delay added $800,000 to the budget.

Ransohoff admits that John Derek constantly offered suggestions. When Bo adamantly refused a semi-nude scene in a mountain cabin with Hopkins, her husband offered an alternative: a hot tub scene during the titles. Hopkins, who had insisted that he would take part in no nude scenes, had to be talked into it.

"When John saw the footage, he was wildly unhappy and we went through a three-or four-day ruckus about it," says Ransohoff. "Finally, I told him, 'OK, you shoot it!' But the directors' guild wouldn't allow it."

Ransohoff says the Dereks remain friendly and he plans to produce a film with Bo as star and John as director.

FARM-RANCH ROUNDUP

Bittersweet year

AUSTIN — 1980 will probably go down as one of the most bittersweet year ever for Texas farmers and ranchers, as weather problems and international events pushed farm prices higher due to decreased supplies.

At the same time, many farmers and ranchers were forced out of business.

"Anyone who thinks the forces of supply and demand do not govern farm prices should look at 1980 for proof to the contrary," said Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

"Grain sorghum, corn and cotton are excellent examples of commodities whose prices have increased substantially since last season because of the outside events which decreased supplies or increased demand," he said.

The Texas grain sorghum harvest is expected to be down 28 percent due to the drought and heat wave and will be the smallest crop since 1956.

Effects of the drought and subsequent damaging rainfall at harvest time are expected to cut Upland cotton production in Texas by 35 percent this year, Brown said. However, the decreased cotton production and the steady export demand have pushed cotton prices above year-age levels.

For example, Dallas spot market prices for 1-1/16-inch, strict low middling cotton last week was 83.5 cents per pound. Last year, the price was 60 cents a pound.

China grain deal criticized

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Jimmy Carter administration hailed the recent U.S. grain sales agreement with China as a great success, providing a stable market for American farmers without increasing domestic food prices. But the deal has drawn criticism.

The American Farm Bureau, the nation's largest farm organization, questioned the agreement on the grounds that it represents growing government intervention in the grain markets which deprives producers of the opportunity to sell when prices rise.

"But farmers like an erratic market. Farmers can sell on a market at (higher) prices created by the speculator."

"One of our concerns is the government involvement" in farm exports, Delano said. "Our concern is the trend. Why do we need more government involvement."

Since President Carter imposed a partial embargo on U.S. grain exports to the Soviet Union in retaliation for the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan, agriculture trade groups have stepped up their criticism of government intervention in international farm sales.

Delano said his objection to Washington's role in controlling exports is philosophical and practical.

On one hand, Delano said, he generally favors a decreased role for government in agriculture.

In practical terms, he added, "Every farmer prides himself with being a good manager. If he can catch a big market and sell, he figures he has accomplished something. He wants to sell on the high market.

Carter claims ag success

TOLEDO, Ohio — President JimmyCarter contended Saturday that he has reversed eight years of Republican mismanagement of agriculture, and accused Republican rival Ronald Reagan of lacking "a basic grasp of our farm economy."

"My Republican opponent does not understand the complex reality of our farm economy," the president said.

"Just a few months ago, he said he was not familiar with parity. He said farm price supports 'subsidize the inefficient.' He said dairy subsidies 'are subsidizing those who could not compete.'

Parity is a theoretical yardstick by which farmers' income is measured against that of their post World War I forbears. Farmers are considered to be at 100 percent parity, for instance, if their purchasing power matches that of early 20th century farmers.

"To be fair," Carter said, "my opponent recently dropped a lifetime of opposition to government farm programs. He now says he would keep the basic elements of my programs in place. And why not? The farm programs of this administration worked. American farmers will have to decide how confident they are of Governor Reagan's election year conversion."

Carter's aides said the former California governor had spoken against price supports while campaigning for the GOP presidential nomination in Danville, Ill., in 1976. They pointed to a recent Reagan speech in Iowa as indicative of Reagan's change of heart.

Campaigning in Nevada, Iowa on Sept. 30, Reagan said: "I am convinced that farmers have no desire to return to the policies we had when government, not farmers, decided what would be planted and how much to grow. But we will not turn our backs on programs that have sought to assure the farmer a reasonable income and the consumer an abundant and reasonably priced supply of food and fiber."

Carter criticized farm policies under the administrations of Richard M. Nixon and Gerald R. Ford, saying "the farm policy I inherited was an unholy mess."

He cited vetoes of price support legislation, price controls on food, floods of imported meat and rising import quotas on dairy products.

During his tenure, Carter asserted, total gross farm income, total net farm income, total production, total consumption and total farm exports topped any previous four-year period in history.

He is safety officer of Carrier Airborne Early Warning Squadron 116, based at the Miramar Naval Air Station, San Diego. While deployed, his squadron was embarked aboard the aircraft carrier USS Constellation.

During the seven-month cruise, the Constellation set a new Pacific Fleet record of 110 continuous days at sea while operating in the Indian Ocean. The embarked air wing flew more than 28,000 sorties and logged more than 10,500 arrested landings.

The ship participated in several naval exercises with units from Great Britain, Singapore, Japan, Australia and New Zealand. Port calls were made in Singapore, the Philippines and Pusan, South Korea.

The long trip home was made extra special when 350 fathers, sons and friends of the crew embarked aboard in Pearl Harbor, Hawaii for the final leg of the homeward journey.

Carrier Airborne Early Warning Squadron 116 flies the E-2 "Hawkeye" early warning aircraft. The "Hawkeye" is outfitted with an electronically-developed radar system that is capable of long-range detection and identification of airbourne targets.

A 1968 graduate of Robert E. Lee High School, and a 1972 graduate of Texas Technical University, Lubbock, with a bachelor of business administration degree, Summerall joined the Navy in May 1972.

River traffic blocked

VICKSBURG, Miss. (AP) — More than 1,000 barges and 52 tow boats were backed up Saturday in the Mississippi River near Vicksburg, waiting for the river channel to be reopened to commercial traffic.

Dredging operations to cut an adequat' hannel on the river continued.

Billy Bridges, public affairs .icer for the engineers at Vicksburg, said the river might be reopened sometime Saturday. He added he was certain the number of barges and tow boats waiting in the river would grow during the day.

The tie-up began when 29 barges ran aground early Friday in a shallow area about eight miles south of Vicksburg, blocking the channel to shipping. The last of the grounded barges was removed Friday night, Bridges said.

The U.S. Coast Guard continued to bar all but light boats from passing the point where the mishap occurred.

"The dredge is working to cut an adequate channel," Bridges said. "And we won't move the dredge to let the barges through until the cut is made."

The Midland Reporter Telegram endorsed DeWayne Davis saying....

"It's our opinion that C. DeWayne Davis is the best choice in the race for county commissioner of Precint 3. Davis defeated incumbent Commissioner Jack Leonard in the May primary.

A former instructor of goverment, sociology and economics, Davis taught at both Midland High School and Midland College. His adherence to the principles of fairness and equality for all Midland County residents should make him a valuable addition to the Court."

Midland Independent School District is soliciting bids for an external evaluator for the Title VII Bilingual Program. Anyone interested should call Dr. John Martinez at 682-2932 between 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Bids should be made by 4:00 p.m. October 31, 1980.
October 16-25, 1980

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed proposals addressed to the Honorable Mayor and City Council of Midland, Texas will be received at the office of the City Secretary, City Hall, Midland, Texas, until 2:00 P.M., November 13, 1980, for furnishing all necessary materials, machinery, equipment, superintendence, and labor for constructing certain improvements at the Midland Airpark Airport, Midland, Texas.

Immediately following the closing time for receipt of bids, proposals will be publicly opened and read aloud. Any bid received after closing time will be returned unopened.

The project consists principally of the reconstruction of approximately 41,800 square yards of existing airfield pavement by one of two methods: (I) removal and replacement of existing surface or (II) heater scarifying the existing pavement and applying a rubberized asphalt surface treatment. The project also includes marking, concrete slabs and other related items of work.

Additive Alternate Number 1 to the project includes the reconstruction of an additional 7,800 square yards of existing airfield pavement by one of the two methods listed above, including marking, removal of existing pavement and other related items of work.

A bid proposal guaranty is to accompany the bid, thereby guaranteeing the good faith of the bidder and that the bidder will enter into the written contract. The guaranty is to amount to five percent (5%) of the total bid and must be in the form of cash or certified check, issued by a bank satisfactory to the City of Midland, or a bid bond. If in the form of cash or certified check, it is hereby expressly understood and agreed that the City of Midland is given the right to retain such as liquidated damages if such bidder withdraws its bid anytime after such bid is opened and before official rejection of such bid, or, if successful in securing the award thereof, such bidder fails to enter into the contract and furnish satisfactory performance bond and payment bond. If a bid bond is submitted, it shall be executed on forms contained in these contract documents by a corporate surety authorized to do business in the State of Texas, and acceptable to the City of Midland.

The successful Bidder will be required to furnish a Performance Bond and a Payment Bond each in the amount of the contract, written by a responsible Surety Company authorized to do business in the State of Texas, and satisfactory to the Owner, as required by Artical 5160, V.A.T.C.S., as amended by H.B. 344, passed by the 56th Legislature, Regular Session, 1959.

All lump sum and unit prices must be stated in both script and figures. The Owner reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive formalities. In case of ambiguity or lack of clearness in stating the prices in the bids, the Owner reserves the right to consider the most advantageous construction thereof, or to reject the bid. Unreasonable (or "unbalanced") unit prices will authorize the Owner to reject the bid.

Bidders are expected to inspect the site of the work and to inform themselves regarding all local conditions.

The proposed contract is under and subject to Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and to the equal opportunity clause, and the Bidder must supply all the information required by the proposal form.

The successful bidder will be required to submit a Certification of Nonsegregated Facilities prior to award of the contract, and to notify prospective subcontractors of the requirement for such a Certification where the subcontract exceeds $10,000. Samples of the Certification and the Notice to Subcontractors appear in the specifications.

Women will be afforded equal opportunity in all areas of employment. However, the employment of women shall not diminish the standards or requirements for the employment of minorities.

Minimum wages and labor rates for the construction of the proposed work have been established by the Secretary of Labor, in a schedule of labor classifications and wage rates to be paid are included in the specifications and will be made a part of the contract. The bid form shall contain a statement that the prices bid are based on such wage rates.

This project is subject to Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action paragraphs as well as all other requirements stated in the Instructions to Bidders in the project specifications and contract documents.

Information for bidders, proposal forms, specifications and plans are on file in the office of the Director of Public Works, City Hall, Midland, Texas, at the office of the Director of Aviation, Midland Regional Airport, Midland, Texas, at the office of Parkhill, Smith & Cooper, Inc., Consulting Engineers, 4010 Avenue R, Lubbock, Texas 79412, and at the office of Parkhill, Smith & Cooper, Inc., Consulting Engineers, Suite 8, Triad Terrace Building, Midland Regional Airport, P.O. Box 6058, Midland, Texas 79701

Copies of the Plans and Specifications may be secured from Parkhill, Smith & Cooper, Inc., Consulting Engineers, 4010 Avenue R, Lubbock, Texas 79412, or from Parkhill, Smith & Cooper, Inc., Consulting Engineers, Suite 8, Triad Terrace Building, Midland Regional Airport, P.O. Box 6058, Midland, Texas 79701, upon deposit of FIFTY DOLLARS ($50.00) as a guarantee of the safe return of the plans and specifications. The full amount of the deposit will be returned to the Contractor on submission of a bona fide bid on the work, with such plans and specifications; or upon returning the plans and specifications immediately after examination of same, and advising the Engineer that bid will not be submitted; otherwise, the deposit shall be forfeited.

James runs wild as SMU upsets No. 2 Steers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Ron Meyer's most traumatic week as a collegiate football coach ended in triumph Saturday with him carried off the field on the shoulders of his maligned Southern Methodist University team.

The Mustangs shocked No. 2-ranked and previously unbeaten Texas 20-6 in a thorough Southwest Conference whipping fashioned on the running of sophomore tailback Craig James.

James gained 146 yards against the well-rested Longhorns and scored SMU's first touchdown on a 53-yard touchdown run that took the heart out of Texas.

Meyer decided at midweek to bench his junior quarterback Mike Ford, who had suffered eight interceptions in the last two weeks, in favor of freshman Lance McIlhenny.

THE MOVE paid huge dividends as McIlhenny maneuvered the Mustangs without error. SMU completed only one pass for three yards but didn't need an overhead game with 283 yards rushing.

James said the change at quarterback never bothered the team.

"It was a big thing in the media, but it didn't affect us," said James.

A stunned Texas Coach Fred Akers said, "SMU just lined up and whipped us. They deserved to win.

"The Southwest Conference is tough and the season is long and people haven't heard the last of us."

Meyer said, "Our defense was absolutely fantastic. And Craig James ran very, very hard."

Meyer, who had seen his team suffer close losses to Baylor and Houston in the past two weeks, said, "This victory is a big lift for our program. It is the first time a SMU team has won in Austin since 1966. That's how big the win is."

AN INTERCEPTION return by James Mobley in the fourth quarter sealed the victory for SMU.

It was the first time in 14 years SMU had beaten Texas and the loss knocked the previously unbeaten Longhorns to a 5-1 record and 2-1 in the SWC. SMU is 5-2 and 2-2.

Texas led 6-3 at halftime on field goals of 20 and 47 yards by barefoot John Goodson but the Mustangs struck for the go-ahead score on their second possession of the second half.

James took a pitchout, circled left end and sped 53 yards for a touchdown untouched to give SMU a 10-6 lead. Eddie Garcia, who had earlier kicked a 41-yard field goal, kicked a 44-yarder and SMU led 13-6 going into the fourth quarter.

The 13-point underdog Mustangs then applied the clincher when Texas quarterback Donnie Little overthrew tight end Lawrence Sampleton. Mobley grabbed the ball and bolted 22 yards down the sidelines for a touchdown.

Texas later drove to the Mustang 3-yard line but Dick Blaylock tackled Darryl Clark for a six-yard loss and when backup quarterback Rick McIvor threw incomplete the Mustangs celebrated joyously while the partisan crowd of 73,535 sat in stunned silence.

The Mustangs killed Texas' final threat when John Simmons intercepted a pass at the SMU 30 with less than two minutes to play.

IT WAS only the fourth time Texas had lost in Memorial Stadium in 66 games.

James gained 49 yards the first time SMU had the ball, including runs of 23 and 18 yards where he was just a defender away from breaking for a touchdown. The Mustangs' strong drive died at the Longhorn 22 where Garcia hooked a 39-yard field goal attempt wide left.

Thirty-five yards in penalties and a 14-yard Little to Sanford Coggins pass setup Texas at the Mustang 2 yard line from where Goodson hit a chipshot 21 yard field goal to give the 'Horns a 3-0 first quarter lead.

SMU tied it 3-3 early in the second quarter on the running of James and a 16-yard end around run by Mitchell Bennett. Garcia was good this time from 41 yards.

The Longhorns drove from their own 20 to the Mustang 28 late in the second period and Goodson drilled a 47-yard field goal into the wind.

Baylor raises record to 7-0

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Eleventh-ranked Baylor erupted behind reserve quarterback Mike Brannan for three touchdowns in the second half and defeated Texas Christian 21-6 Saturday and remain unbeaten.

Three interceptions inside the 5-yard line and two blocked kicks by defensive end Max McGeary helped boost Baylor's record to 7-0 record, its best start ever, and a 5-0 mark at the top of the Southwest Conference.

Alfred Anderson scored twice for Baylor on 2-yard plunges. Dennis Gentry caught a 40-yard pass from Brannan for the other touchdown and ran 29 yards to set up one of Anderson's scores.

J.C. Morris got TCU's touchdown on a 1-yard run in the third quarter. Steve Stamp, who set a school passing record with 28 of 53 passes for 408 yards for TCU, connected with Phillip Epps on a 59-yard pass to set up the score.

THE TOUCHDOWN cut Baylor's edge to 7-6 midway through the third period, but McGeary got his 15th career block to keep the Frogs from tying the score. He had charged through to block Greg Porter's 53-yard field goal try in the final play of the first half.

After a scoreless first half, defensive end Charles Bensen forced a fumble by Stamp that gave Baylor the ball on the TCU 21 early in the third quarter, but Robert Bledsoe missed a 34-yard field goal attempt

TCU threatened three times in the first half. Cedrick Mack intercepted at the Baylor 9 to thwart one drive, and Porter was wide on a 37-yard field goal effort before the futile three-point try just before intermission.

The loss dropped TCU to 0-7 for the season, and 0-4 in league play.

Baylor was unable to mount a serious drive in the first half under starting quarterback Jay Jeffery. After Brannan took over in the second quarter, tailback Walter Abercrombie ripped off a 20-yard gain to give the Bears their deepest penetration at the TCU 34.

But a 15-yard personal foul after a third down incompletion took Baylor out of even field goal range.

STAMP looked most often to Epps, who pulled down seven receptions for 162 yards.

Stamp's passes of 37 yards to Epps and 14 yards to Bobby Stewart moved TCU from its 28 to the Baylor 22 on the Horned Frog's second possession. Stamp found Stanley Washington at the goal line on the next play, but Washington dropped the pass and Mack's interception at the 9 on the next play ended the threat.

Mike Dry's interception and 30 yard return of a Jeffery pass gave the Frog's possession on the Baylor 26 late in the first quarter. But Benson's sack of Stamp for a 9-yard loss forced TCU to try a field goal that was wide to the right.

Stamp took the Frogs 63 yards in 10 plays late in the first half, from the TCU 15 to the Baylor 2, beginning with a 37-yard pass to Washington. The Frogs were penalized 15 yards a few plays later for an ineligible receiver, and when Porter tried his 53-yard field goal McGeary raced through for the block.

Stamp's 408 yards passing was the third largest in SWC history, behind the record 417 of SMU's Chuck Hixson.

Gentry gained 93 yards and Abercrombie 75 for Baylor. The Bear's stingy defense held TCU to only 16 yards rushing. Marcus Gilbert had 37 yards on 11 carries, but Baylor inflicted 21 yards in losses on the TCU backs.

Rice strikes early, topples Ags 10-6

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Running back Calvin Fance turned what appeared to be a loss into a 41-yard touchdown and Kenneth Sam kicked a 34-yard field goal Saturday as Rice defeated Texas A&M 10-6 in Southwest Conference football.

The Owls won their second SWC game even though they did not get a first down in the second half against the A&M defense.

A&M scored in the third quarter on a 5-yard run by Johnny Hector after the Aggies recovered a Fance fumble at the rice 38.

THE AGGIES also drove to the Rice 11 in the fourth quarter, but freshman Thomas Sanders fumbled at the 5 and Rice defensive back Mike Downs jumped on the ball at the 3 with 11:09 remaining in the game.

Fance scored Rice's only touchdown early in the second quarter as he caught a swing pass from quarterback Randy Hertel behind the line, spun away from two tacklers, ran between two others and broke into the clear at the A&M 30 on the 41-yard scoring play.

Sam's field goal came with only 26 seconds remaining in the half after Rice had stalled at the A&M 17. The big gainer in the 51-yard drive was a 13-yard pass from Robert Hoffman — one of three Rice quarerbacks — to Alvin Runnels.

A&M quarterback Gary Kubiak, aided by a 15-yard penalty against Rice, guided A&M to the Rice 18 with a minute and a half left in the game. Rice's David England then sacked Kubiak for a 5-yard loss and his second down pass went out of the end zone on a play in which Kubiak was shaken up and left the game.

An incomplete pass by backup quarterback Mark McQueen and a fourth-down pass failed, giving Rice the ball and the win.

Both teams entered the game with identical season records of 2-4 and conference marks of 1-2, but A&M had defeated Rice six straight times.

Rice controlled the first half, holding A&M to only 64 yards total offense — all rushing — but A&M took command in the second half.

The A&M defense was so stingy in the final two quarters that Rice only mustered 31 yards rushing and missed all three passes it tried. A&M piled up 231 yards total offense in the second half and appeared on the verge of victory when Sanders lost the crucial fumble at the Rice 3.

A&M's place-kicking misfired completely as David Hardy missed a 47-yard field goal with 16 seconds remaining in the first quarter and also was wide with an extra point attempt after Hector's touchdown in the third period.

Also in the third quarter, Allan Smith tried a 44-yard field goal for A&M but it, too, was wide.

Halfback Johnny Hector, A&M's leading rusher, led both teams with 121 yards on 26 carries.

Fance led Rice with 56 yards on 21 carries, but had only five yards in the second half as the A&M defense shut down the Owls.

Senior tackle Mack More, a senior, had 17 tackles for A&M and the other Aggie tackle, Arlis James, had 13.

Lamar loses, 38-10

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Halfback Bradley Smith ran for two touchdowns, one on a 48-yard punt return, to lead the University of Southwest Louisiana to a 38-10 victory over Lamar in a Southland Conference football game Saturday night.

Lamar was unable to get onto the scoreboard until Jaime Harvey kicked a 37-yard field goal as the clock ran out in the first half for a 10-3 halftime score.

"We have a couple of juniors who can hardly write. You can't blame them. I don't really think it's their fault. Bobcats claw SFA

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) — Junior quarterback Mike Miller took Southwest Texas State on three long scoring drives late in the game to lead the Bobcats to a 34-20 comeback victory over Stephen F. Austin here Saturday in a Lone Star Conference game.

Bruised Chinn propels UH to upset

HOUSTON — Sophomore quarterback Brent Chinn, ignoring a severly bruised thigh, came off the bench to rush 137 yards and score on an 11-yard run Saturday night to rally Houston to a 24-17 upset victory over 15th-ranked Arkansas.

Chinn, replaced in the starting lineup last week by freshman Audry McMillian, was forced back into the lineup when McMillian suffered a possible broken collarbone on the third play of the game.

Chinn, expected to play only sparingly in the game, responded with 137 yards on 24 carries and scored the go-ahead touchdown that gave Houston a 17-14 lead in the second quarter.

The Razorbacks, defending Southwest Conference co-champions with Houston, jumped to a 14-3 lead in the first quarter on an electrifying 93-yard kickoff return by Derek Holloway and a 17-yard pass from quarterback Tom Jones to Bobby Duckworth.

Houston scored the first time it got the ball when McMillian ran 30 yards on the first play of the game and Chinn rushed 14 and 11 yards to set up a 38-yard field goal by David Humphreys.

Jones then rallied the Razorbacks, 4-2 on the season, to a 14-3 lead, but he fumbled in the second quarter at the Hog 27 and Houston linebacker Steve Bradham recovered to start Houston's comeback.

Eddie Wright climaxed the drive with a 2-yard touchdown run and the Cougars went ahead to stay with 6:35 in the half on Chinn's touchdown run.

Houston improved its SWC record to 3-1 and the Cougars are 4-3 on the season.

Tar Heels show off for bowl scouts

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Seventh-ranked North Carolina used a devastating ground attack, led by the 100-yard performances of tailbacks Amos Lawrence and Kelvin Bryant, and dismantled East Carolina 31-3 in a college football game Saturday.

Lawrence rushed for 141 yards and Bryant for 107 as the two tailbacks pulled off 100-yard plus performances in the same game for the third time this season. Lawrence scored twice on runs of 1 and 2 yards, and Bryant scored once on a 2-yard run.

Despite the impressive rushing display before scouts from the Cotton, Gator and Hall of Fame bowls, it again was the Tar Heels' 10th-ranked defense that brought the biggest cheers from the crowd of 48,100 in Kenan Stadium.

The Tar Heel defense set up a brick wall that the Pirates could not penetrate. The East Carolina running game that was averaging 254 yards a game was stopped cold and held to only 64 yards on the ground. And North Carolina linebacker Lawrence Taylor spent more time in the Pirate backfield than most of their running backs, sacking East Carolina quarterback Carlton Nelson and his backup Greg Stewart numerous times.

Meanwhile, North Carolina became the first Tar Heel team in 45 years to win its first seven games as it piled up 321 yards on the ground. East Carolina dropped to 3-4.

The Tar Heels opened the game driving 79 yards, all on the ground, for their first score. East Carolina then got its lone score, a 40-yard field goal, after Amos Lawrence fumbled the ball on his own 22.

The Tar Heels came back to score as the first half ended on a pass from quarterback Rod Elkins to Jon Richardson.

In the second half, the Tar Heels stopped East Carolina after the kickoff and drove 51 yards, again all on the ground for the score. Lawrence carried the ball in from the 2 for his second touchdown. Bryant got his in the fourth quarter as he led a 60-yard drve with 36 yards and went over from the 2 with 11:02 left to play.

Buckeyes belt Wisconsin, 21-0

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Quarterback Art Schlichter ran for two touchdowns after a pair of Wisconsin turnovers and fullback Tim Spencer raced 50 yards for another score, leading 10th-ranked Ohio State to a 21-0 Big Ten college football victory.

Ohio State, 6-1 overall and 4-0 in the Big Ten, took a 14-0 lead by scoring two touchdowns in a one-minute, 25-second span late in the first quarter and early in the second.

Cornerback Vince Skillings made a diving interception of an underthrown pass by Wisconsin's John Josten at the Badger 40. A Schlichter to Calvin Murray screen pass gained 27 yards to the Wisconsin 10, and Schlichter scored on a rollout to the left from the six.

WISCONSIN'S Marvin Neal bobbled the ensuing kickoff and was downed at his own one yard line. John Williams fumbled on the next play and Marcus Marek recovered for the Buckeyes on the Wisconsin 2.

Herrmann shatters air marks

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Purdue's Mark Herrmann broke the NCAA career passing record with 346 yards Saturday and directed the Boilermakers to a pair of fourth-quarter touchdowns that rallied them to a 36-25 Big Ten football victory over Michigan State.

Herrmann, who completed 24 of 46 attempts, boosted his career passing total to 8,087 yards, breaking the former NCAA major college record of 7,818 by Washington State's Jack Thompson in 1975-78.

The Boilermakers trailed 25-19 early in the final period after Michigan State quarterback John Leister lofted a 31-yard touchdown pass to Jim Williams. Herrmann, a 6-foot-5 senior, then started the Boilermakers' go ahead drive from their own 20.

Pitt mauls Tennessee, 30-6

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Twelfth-ranked Pitt answered Willie Gault's Tennessee record 100-yard kickoff return with 1-yard touchdown bursts by Joe McCall and Randy McMillan in the second period and went on to defeat the Vols 30-6 Saturday.

Rick Trocano, who began the season at free safety, made his first start at quarterback since the seventh game of the 1979 season in place of the injured Dan Marino and directed Pitt to its sixth victory in seven games by completing 14 of 25 passes for 237 yards. He also darted 31 yards for a fourth-quarter touchdown.

A capacity Neyland Stadium crowd of 94,008 turned out in sunny but chilly 44-degree weather to view the first confrontation between Tennessee Coach Johnny Majors and the school he left after leading Pitt to the national college football championship in 1976. The Vols suffered their fourth setback in seven games.

Gault's school record kickoff return at 11:13 of the opening period came just after Pitt had taken a 3-0 lead on Dave Trout's 39-yard field goal.

Wolfpack pounces on Tigers

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State quarterback Tol Avery ran for one touchdown and passed for another and the Wolfpack defense capitalized on Clemson mistakes Saturday for a 24-20 Atlantic Coast Conference victory.

Avery, a sophomore, scored on a one-yard run and passed 11 yards to split end Mike Quick after Clemson turnovers in the second quarter. The Wolfpack defense added a touchdown and safety on two muffed punts by Clemson and Nathan Ritter booted a 24-yard field goal for N.C. State before a wet crowd of 34,400.

N.C. State, 4-3 overall and 2-2 in the ACC, scored twice in the last 1:08 of the first half on Avery's pass to Quick following a pass interception and a safety when Clemson punter Rich Hendley was caught in the end zone.

FSU triumphs

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Tailback Sam Platt rushed for a school-record 188 yards and one touchdown Saturday to lead sixth-ranked Florida State to a 24-3 victory over Memphis State.

Walker gains 131 yards as Georgia marches on

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Georgia tailback Herschel Walker, nation's most touted freshman, rushed for 131 yards and a touchdown Saturday night as the fifth-ranked Bulldogs overwhelmed Kentucky 27-0 in a Southeastern Conference football game.

Walker, who had 91 yards in the first half — 21 more than the Kentucky team — got Georgia on the scoreboard with a 2-yard dive that capped an eight-play, 32-yard drive with 2:02 remaining in the first quarter.

Rex Robinson's 50-yard field goal gave Georgia a 10-0 lead with 6:14 left in the half, and his 47-yard field goal five minutes later gave Georgia a 13-0 lead at halftime.

Quarterback Buck Belue scampered three yards to put Georgia ahead 20-0 with 6:06 to go in the third quarter. Belue iced the game early in the fourth quarter when he combined with Anthony Arnold on a 91-yard scoring pass play.

Rebels romp, 27-14

NASHVILLE (AP) — Quarterback John Fourcade ran for one touchdown and passed for another to lead Ole Miss to a 27-14 win Saturday over winless Vanderbilt in the Southeastern Conference football game.

Vanderbilt opened the scoring on the first possession when running back Terry Potter punched it into the end zone from the 1. Mike Woodard kicked the conversion to make it 7-0 with 4:30 left in the first quarter.

The Rebels tied the contest in the second period when Fourcade, aided by two personal foul penalties, engineered an 85-yard, 15 play drive that ended when he sneaked the ball over from the 1. Kicker Todd Gatlin booted the point after.

Fourcade got his second touchdown on a three-yard scoring strike to split end Ken Toler, who earlier had sneared a 55-yard aerial to highlight the 77-yard, 7-play drive. Gatlin's extra point try was blocked, bringing the score to 13-7.

Florida flips Cards

The Gators scored a touchdown on their first drive of the game, a 5-yard toss from Peace to flanker Cris Collinsworth. Clark added field goals from 21 and 43 yards out as the Gators boosted their season record to 5-1.

Clark, who booted a school-record five field goals in Florida's victory last week over Mississippi, hit his first with 8:33 left in the half. His second three-pointer came with 10:37 left in the game.

Louisville punter Dave Betz missed on a desparation 54-yard field goal attempt late in the first half. Earlier, on a fourth-and-10 situation, he tried to advance the ball on a field-goal set up but lost two yards.

Gabriel rallies UNM for 22-21 win over UTEP

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — New Mexico quarterback Robin Gabriel ran for one touchdown and threw for another to lead the Lobos to a 22-21 come-from-behind Western Athletic Conference victory over Texas-El Paso Saturday night.

Lee's Schooler wins again

Rebel harrier posts 6th straight

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

Midland Lee's Robert Schooler won his sixth consecutive cross country title at Hogan Park Saturday in the Midland Invitational event, and is quickly establishing himself as the best distance runner in Rebel history.

Schooler posted a 15 minutes and five seconds over the three-mile course for a 13 second margin over a game but shell shocked David Williams of Amarillo Tascosa.

Williams held the lead until there was only ½-mile left in the race, but Schooler's punishing finish left Williams trailing in the 13 second after blast.

"I stayed about five to 10 yards behind him (Williams) for most of the race and didn't take the lead until about a half mile to go. I race against David last week in Lubbock, but this was a lot closer race this week."

IN 1962, Jeffery Earl won a state cross country championship by going undefeated in six races. But that was before cross country was under UIL direction, and the sport has really boomed since then. Schooler's victory came from a field of over 100 runners. In all, over 300 runners competed in the three divisions, and was the largest turnout in the history of the event.

Williams had nothing but praise for the effort of Schooler, "Schooler is great competition. I came here scared with him in the field. So I just said that I would have to run with him in the race. I could hear him breathing down my neck the whole way. We crossed the road at the ½-mile mark and Robert had his cheering section there and that's where I lost it. He is a great finisher."

WILLIAMS has won four of six races this year. He was third last week in Lubbock, so both races he has lost has been against Schooler.

The 15:06 was not Schooler's best time. He has broken 15 minutes twice this year, including last week in Lubbock where one Texas Tech coach stated that he didn't think any high school kid could break 15 minutes on that course.

San Angelo won the team title with 81 points as Tascosa was second with 82. San Angelo's Brent McCarty and Dirk Davis placed third and fourth, but were never in real contention for winning the race. McCarty was a distant third with a 15:35.

Midland High dominated the junior varsity division with 63 points while Andrews was second with 71. However, it was Andrews' Raul Hernandez' 16:20 that took the individual crown. Hernandez defeated Midland High's James Beverly by two seconds with a final sprint to the wire. Midland High's Mike Betteridge was third at 16:40 and Greg Sotello was fifth at 16:50. Lee's Carl Piccolo probably had his best race with a seventh at 17:08.

TASCOSA won the girls division with 49 points while Amarillo High was a distant second with 72 points. But this was the race of the day as Veronica Cavazos of Lubbock Coronado and Mindee Mayfield of Lubbock Monterey raced shoulder-to-shoulder for the entire two-mile distance.

Cavazos, a three-time winner this year, edged Mayfield by one second with a last gasp sprint, posting the winning time of 11:51.

Lee and Midland High travel to San Angelo Saturday for the all-important District 5-5A competition where region berths can be earned.

Day at pool not relaxing for COMers

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

Let's go swimming! To you or me that cry usually means a day of fun and relaxation at the swimming pool or a possible a day at the lake.

COM coach Gary Ilman has mapped out a demanding training schedule for his top swimmers. On Tuesday and Thursday mornings they are working out on weights. Then its back to the pool in the afternoon for two or more miles of swimming. On Monday, Wednesday and Friday the swimmers get to skip the weight work,but have two practices in the pool, often swimming up to six miles per workout. Weekends are easier; just one workout on Saturday morning. Of course, the weekends on when most of the club meets are held.

ACCORDING to Ilman, top swimmers work hard, then taper off as they key for a major swim meet. "We like to set a time for our swimmers to aim for during the year and at each meet. If they can get close to the times then we are reasonably sure the kids can do well in our major swim meet.For us (COM) the Texas Age Group Championships is the top meet." he explained.

Not everyone is a top swimmer and the COM has a place for everyone. Ilman said,"We never deny the chance for anyone to swim." The club has four divisons: Senior-for the top swimmers; Junior-just below the senior divison, Gold-advanced beginners; Black-beginners.
Ilman works with the senior and junior groups while his wife, Christine, works with the younger groups.

NUMBERS of the Black group are basically taught the four basic swimming strokes, butterfly, breast, back and freestyle, and terminology. As the swimmers progress upward they work more on their best stroke and technique.

Ilman is well qualified as a swimming coach. Just before coming to Midland he was head swimming coach at Colorado State in Ft. Collins for two years. Ilman lost that position when the school phased out the swimming program. Before going to CSU, Ilman held the position as graduate assistant at Alabama. Other positions held by Ilman include being head coach of the Montreal, Canada, swim club, and head coach of the Athens Greece National Team.

Ilman also has Olympic experience. In the 1964 Olympics Ilman finished fourth in the freestyle and picked up two gold medals swimming on United States relay teams.

"Swimming should be a fun situation", stated Ilman, "Until kids get to be about 13-years old then they can start aiming for goals." Ilman added, "Parents should not try to push their kids too hard, I am the one that determines how well the kid has done. A kid does not have to win the race or set a record to have performed as well as I may have wanted.

ILMAN and the COM are attempting to launch a new program called 'Learn to Swim'. In the program, children will be giving swimming lessons with an eye toward kids that maybe interested in competitive swimming. Ilman stated that "A kid is never too young to learn to swim. Babies getting in the water with their parents is great. Swimming is something, you learn how, you never forget and you never know when you may need to use your swimming ability.

COM launches its swimming season Sunday at 2 P.M. with a swimming marathon to raise money for the club. The first meet of the year will be held Oct. 25 when the club travels to San Angelo ABC team meet to be held at th Central High School pool.

When asked what the ABC meant, Ilman explained that in a meet swimmers that have no time standard are entered in C competition. B competition has time standards, and A swimmers have more rigid time standards that they must meet.

Schilling's three TD passes pace Kangaroos

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Larry Schillings threw three touchdown passes Saturday to lead Austin College, ranked eighth in NAIA Division II, to a 23-7 victory over Tarleton State in a Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association conference game.

Austin College upped its record to 7-1 while Tarleton fell to 2-6.

Sul Ross 44, LCC 0

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Joey Caseras scored two touchdowns and quarterback Larry Hill threw for another as Sul Ross State ran roughshod over Lubbock Christian 44-0 Saturday in a Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association conference game.

McMurry 31, Trinity 10

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Running backs Ddudley Woodard and Lester Lavalais scored two touchdowns each to lead the McMurry College Indians, the nation's No. 9 NAIA Division II team, to a 31-10 Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association conference win Saturday over the Trinity University Tigers.

Moore carried 20 times for 137 yards and Lavalais had 108 yards. Quarterback Mark Cox picked up 101 yards, 66 of those coming on one run.

ECU 28, Lutheran 19

ADA, Okla. (AP) — A 79-yard touchdown run by East Central University kicker Jerry Sharp took the wind out of Texas Lutheran University with 8:17 left in the third quarter Saturday, giving East Central a clear march toward its 28-19 victory.

Johnson leads Angelo State against HPC

BROWNWOOD, Texas (AP) — Tailback Anthony Johnson carried 33 times for 147 yards to lead Angelo State to a 16-0 win Saturday over Howard Payne University Saturday afternoon in a Lone Star Conference game.

The Rams, the top-ranked NAIA Division One team, had 370 yards total offense in the game, which was scoreless until a minute and a half before the first half when fullback Gary James scored on a 10--yard run.

Angelo State scored again in the third quarter on 7-yard run by Johnson. Mike Thomas kicked a 31-yard field goal in the fourth quarter to complete the Angelo State scoring.

Angelo State is now 6-0 for the season and Howard Payne is 1-4-1.

KINGSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Marcus Bonner ran for three touchdowns, including a sparkling 54-yard scoring jaunt, to pace Texas A&I toi a 42-20 thrashing of Sam Houston State in a Lone Star Conference football game Saturday.

Bonner, who led the Javelinas in rushing with 134 yards, scored his other two toucdowns from a yard out.

Sam Houston got on the board with a 34-yard touchdown run by Anthony Scott and a three-yard run by Alan Banks. Phil Harmening booted field goals of 49 and 42 yards.

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — East Texas State took advantage of ten turnovers, including a blocked punt picked up by Anthony Freeman and returned eight yards for a touchdown, to defeat Abilene Christian 24-14 Saturday afternoon in a Lone Star conference game.

Hurricane ravages West Texas

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Quarterback Kenny Jackson scored one touchdown and passed for another as Tulsa exploded in the second half for a 44-24 Missouri Valley Conference football win over West Texas State Saturday.

West Texas State, 4-4 and 1-2 in the league, scored on its first two possessions. Rob Clark kicked a 32-yard field goal after a Tulsa fumble. Running back Danny Clark plunged across from the 2 yard line on a touchdown setup by quarterback Ricky Davis' 61-yard scamper.

Tulsa, 5-2 and 1-1 in the Valley, took the lead for good when running back Kenneth Lacy scored the first of his two touchdowns on a one-yard run at 9:53 of the third quarter.

Oklahoma romps over Iowa State

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Quarterback J.C. Watts and fullback Stanley Wilson reeled off long scoring runs in the third quarter to break open a tight game and spark 17th-rated Oklahoma to a 42-7 victory over Big Eight Conference opponent Iowa State Saturday.

Iowa State drove 69 yards for a touchdown the first time it had the ball and held the Sooners to a 7-7 tie at halftime. However, Oklahoma's speedy running backs exploded in the second half, and the Sooners handily beat Iowa State for the 19th straight time.

Watts stunned an Iowa State record crowd of 52,974 when he faked a handoff and circled right end on a 45-yard scoring run to give Oklahoma a 14-7 lead with 10:49 left in the third quarter.

Wilson raced 53 yards for a score with 27 seconds remaining in the period, and the Sooners were on their way. Wilson finished with a career-high 160 yards in 24 carries as the Sooners rolled up 269 yards on the ground in the second half.

Oklahoma, which had lost 18 fumbles in its first five games, did not commit a turnover in sending its record to 4-2 for the season and 3-0 in the Big Eight. Iowa State, losing for the second straight week, fell to 5-2 and 1-2.

Oklahoma State, KU battle to 14-14 tie

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Freshman halfback Kerwin Bell flashed for touchdowns on runs of 6 and 80 yards but Kansas only managed a 14-14 deadlock with Oklahoma State Saturday as Jayhawk Coach Dan Fambrough elected to go for a tie late in the final quarter.

Kansas trailed throughout the game until Bell scored from 6 yards out with 5:27 left and Bruce Kallmeyer was called on to kick the extra point in lieu of a two-point conversion attempt.

The Cowboys took a 9-0 lead in the second quarter on a 5-yard run by Ed Smith and the first of two safeties. But Bell exploded on an 80-yard scoring run with 11:30 left in the second period to cut the deficit to 9-7.

Bell's run set a Big Eight rushing record for freshmen. He wound up with 149 yards rushing on the day, giving him a total of 716 for the season, eclipsing the record of 630 set by Oklahoma's Joe Washington.

Missouri triumphs

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Ron Verrilli's 37-yard field goal and a 1-yard touchdown run by reserve quarterback Mike Hyde capped a fourth-quarter rally and lifted No. 16 Missouri to a 13-3 Big 8 football victory Saturday over scrappy Kansas State.

The heavily favored Tigers, now 6-1 overall and 3-0 in the Big 8, led only 3-0 at halftime on a 22-yard Verrilli field goal. Kansas State's Jim Jackson, who had hit on only two of five field goal attempts for the year, booted a 23-yarder to knot the score at 3-3 in the third period.

Weaver keeps title with KO in 13th

SUN CITY, Bophuthatswana (AP) — Mike Weaver survived a barrage of crashing right hands from Gerrie Coetzee in the eighth round and slammed the South African challenger to the floor with a 13th-round knockout Saturday to retain his World Boxing Association heavyweight title.

The scheduled 15-rounder — the 28-year-old Weaver's first title defense since taking the crown away from John Tate with a 15th-round knockout March 31 in Knoxville, Tenn. — took place in a still-unfinished sports arena erected on the grounds of a South African-owned resort hotel in the sparse African bush.

Coetzee, a 25-year-old former dental technician who had hoped to become the first white holder of a heavyweight title since Sweden's Ingemar Johansson's brief tenure in 1959 until Floyd Patterson knocked him out June 20, 1960, fell like a tree when Weaver connected with a crunching left hand to the head.

COETZEE was making his second bid for the WBA title: Tate defeated him on points over 15 rounds last October in Pretoria, the South African capital. He entered the ring Saturday knowing that another defeat would almost certainly put him permanently out of the big-time boxing world.

Weaver was behind on points throughout the Tate fight until he hit Tate with a short right to the head. So Coetzee's handlers wanted him to try and finish Weaver in the early rounds, before Coetzee tired.

Coetzee went on the attack from the first round, pummeling Weaver with right-left combinations. Weaver seemed to be caught off guard by Coetzee's fierce assault. In the eighth round, Coetzee caught Weaver on the ropes with a series of vicious rights. Weaver's hands dropped and his head snapped backward.

Tension was so high in the sold-out 16,000-seat covered arena that several people fainted during the round, including an American woman in Weaver's party that flew here from his hometown of Los Angeles. The woman, a friend of Weaver's who wouldn't be identified by members of the party, had to be taken away on a stretcher. Other women threatened to beat up photographers who tried to take her picture.

BUT WEAVER pushed off the ropes and survived the Coetzee attack, which presented the South African with bad news.

"Coetzee lost his confidence because he couldn't put me down in the eighth," Weaver said after the fight.

Weaver went on the offensive and opened up a deep cut on the bridge of Coetzee's nose. Coetzee was backing off when Weaver launched his left, and Coetzee toppled into Weaver's corner and stayed there for the count from referee Jesus Celis of Venezuela. He had to be helped back to his corner where his handlers worked on him for several minutes after the fight ended.

Coetzee stayed in his room at the hotel for the post-fight news conference. But his trainer, Alan Toweel, said: "One knockout means nothing. Gerrie will be back."

Hal Tucker, Coetzee's manager, was literally speechless after the fight. He walked to his room as though in a trance.

"Gerrie was winning," Toweel said, until Weaver gave him the goodbye punch. Toweel said he wasn't sure why Coetzee wasn't able to finish Weaver in the eighth.

UTA registers upset

RUSTON, La. (AP) — Brian Happel booted fourth-quarter field goals of 22 and 18 yards as The University of Texas-Arlington scored its first victory of season Saturday with 21-20 upset of Louisiana Tech.

Tech watched a 17-0 lead disintegrate on an 8-yard touchdown pass from UTA quarterback Scott Logan to Darryl Lewis, a one-yard plunge by Tony Felder and the two scoring kicks.

Tide rolls over No. 20 Eagles, 42-7

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — "You can't be in love one week and out of love the next week. You've got to be consistent," said Coach Bear Bryant after quarterback Don Jacobs led his top-ranked Alabama football team to a 42-7 victory over No. 20 Southern Mississippi Saturday.

Bryant ought to love his team, which has turned back all comers as it goes after an unprecedented third straight national title.

Coach Bobby Collins, after suffering through Southern's first loss of the season, said, "Alabama is a great team and they certainly created a number of our mistakes.

"They are the quickest and best defense we have seen."

That defense held to the one touchdown a team that had been averaging 32.5 points a game. And Alabama tore through a defense that had limited its earlier opponents to a 11.3 points a game.

Jacobs ran for two touchdowns and set up two others with his passes in the Crimson Tide's 28th consecutive victory and commented, "I thought we had good blocking and executed well."

The victory, Alabama's 51st in a row at Bryant-Denny Stadium, came only five days after the Golden Eagles had moved into the Associated Press Top 20 for the first time in history.

Jacobs scored Alabama's first touchdown on a 25-yard scamper on fourth down in the first period and ran it in from 13 yards in the final period.

After the first Tide score, Southern drove for 78 yards to tie the game on a 1-yard dive by Sammy Winder, who went into the game as the nation's leading scorer with 78 points.

Southern's Ricky Floyd fumbled a punt and Alabama's Danny Holcombe recovered it at the Eagles' 22. Jacobs passed to the 13 and three plays later, Charlie Williams took it in from the 8.

Huskers bury Buffs

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Third-string I-back Roger Craig rushed for 176 yards and three touchdowns as ninth-ranked Nebraska overpowered winless Colorado 45-7 Saturday in Big Eight football.

Craig—a sophomore who entered the game late in the first quarter after Nebraska's top two I-backs, Jarvis Redwine and Craig Johnson, were injured on back-to-back plays— scored on a pair of 3-yard runs in the first half as Nebraska built a 31-0 lead at intermission.

Colorado had surprising success moving the ball against the nation's top-ranked defense as the Buffs generated 240 total yards. The Buffs crossed midfield three times in the first half, but all three scoring threats died on turnovers.

Middies surprise Huskies, 24-10

SEATTLE (AP) — Underdog Navy, with quarterback Fred Reitzel scoring three touchdowns, the last one on a fumble recovery in the end zone, knocked off 18th-ranked Washington 24-10 Saturday.

The Huskies, favored by 11 points after their important Pacific-10 Conference victory at Stanford last weekend, couldn't handle Reitzel when the Midshipmen got close to the goal line.

Reitzel scored on runs of 10 and two yards and fell on an Eddie Meyers fumble for a touchdown early in the final quarter.

Reitzel, a senior who was a starting safety for Navy for two seasons before being made into the Middies' quarterback this year, accounted for 158 total yards.

Despite the loss, Washington remained in the driver seat at 2-1 in the Pac-10 Rose Bowl race. Only five schools are eligible for the game in Pasadena, Calif. on New Year's Day.

BC rips Army, 30-14

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Junior Leo Smith, who had rushed for just 6 yards all season, splashed for 145 yards and one touchdown, and John Cooper kicked three field goals to lead Boston College to a 30-14 college football victory over Army Saturday.

Sophomore quarterback John Loughery marched the Eagles on first half-scoring drives of 89 and 88 yards. He scored Boston College's first touchdown on a 2-yard run early in the second quarter and passed 7-yards to Kevin Benjamin for its last touchdown late in the third quarter.

Army, now 2-4-1, was held to just two field goals by Dave Aucoin, covering 36 and 28 yards in the first half, which ended with the Eagles holding a 20-6 lead.

Cowboys face air blitz tonight

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys and the San Diego Chargers meet tonight for the first time since 1972, but both Coach Tom Landry of the Cowboys and Don Coryell of the Chargers know what to expect.

They matched wits 10 times while Coryell was at St. Louis with Landry emerging victorious only six times. Not many coaches in the National Football League bat near .500 with Landry.

"We pretty well know what kind of offense the Chargers will run because we've faced Coryell teams before," said Landry. "They throw a lot to their backs. We'll try to just slow San Diego down. You can't totally stop their passing game."

"This is the usual Cowboy team — outstanding," said Coryell. "They are always well coached and (quarterback) Danny White is throwing the ball better than we are, just absolutely great.

"Dallas is awful tough to beat in Dallas. To win we'll have to play the best ball game we've ever played."

San Diego, with losses to Buffalo and Oakland, is leading the American Conference's Western Division with a 5-2 record. Dallas is also 5-2 but trails the Philadelphia Eagles by a game in the NFC East.

The Cowboys defeated San Diego 34-28 in 1972 in the only other time the two teams have played. The Chargers are 25-9 since Coryell took over in 1978.

San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts is coming off a 444-yard passing day against the New York Giants while White suffered his worst day of the season in the loss to the Eagles as the Cowboys' offense failed to touchdown.

"You'll see it all with the Chargers in town," said Dallas special assistant Ermal Allen. "It should be quite a passing show."

Even Landry admitted it might take as many as 28 points to stay with the Chargers.

"I know it's going to take a lot of points," said Landry. "Twenty eight would be a good start. It should be an exciting evening."

Dallas was rated a one-point favorite in the nationally televised game although tailback Tony Dorsett was ailing with bruised ribs. Ron Springs was moved from fullback to tailback for insurance in case Dorsett failed to heal by game time.

Soph sparkles in UCLA victory

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Sophomore quarterback Tom Ramsey passed for two touchdowns and ran for another Saturday to lead the third-ranked UCLA Bruins to a 32-9 victory over California.

The Bruins, now 6-0 overall and 2-0 in the Pacific-10, broke the backs of the Bears in the second quarter when Jo Jo Townsell returned the kickoff 100 yards for a touchdown after Cal had scored a field goal to make the score 10-3.

Ramsey, the Pac-10's top-rated passer, hit on 11 of 16 passes for 154 yards. His two scoring passes were nearly identical, a two-yard toss to Ronnie DeBose in the first quarter, and a four-yarder to Ricky Coffman early in the final period.

Oregon defenses UNLV, 32-9

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Oregon's defense, led by tackles Scott Setterlund and Vince Goldsmith, stifled the heralded Nevada-Las Vegas offense Saturday as the Ducks blasted the Rebels 32-9 in a nonconference college football encounter.

Setterlund and Goldsmith combined for eight quarterback sacks in the contest against a Nevada-Las Vegas offense that had averaged just under 40 points per game this season.

The Oregon defense, which held Southern Cal to a 7-7 tie last weekend, recovered three fumbles, intercepted a pass and forced two safeties against the Rebels.

Wyoming passes dazzle SDS

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Junior Quarterback Phil Davis ran for two touchdowns and threw a 32-yard pass for a third to lead Wyoming over San Diego State 34-9 in Western Athletic Conference football Saturday.

Wyoming used a balanced attack built around Davis and senior fullback Mandel Robinson. Davis rushed 11 times for 82 yards and two touchdowns and passed for 70 more yards on 10 attempts. Robinson had 98 yards on 16 carries and 2 touchdowns.

The Cowboys had 461 yards total offense, 347 rushing and 114 through the air.

Utah, CSU battle to tie

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Colorado State's Jon Poole missed a 19-yard field goal with just three seconds remaining to leave Utah and CSU knotted 21-21 in a Western Athletic Conference football game here Saturday.

CSU managed to hold on to first place in the conference race. The Rams are now 3-0-1 in the WAC and 4-3-1 overall. Utah is 2-1-1 in the conference and 4-3-1 for the season.

Houston pins hopes on swaps

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers, trying to mold a championship ring out of trades with the Oakland Raiders, and the Cincinnati Bengals, doing their part to break Pittsburgh's steel grip on the American Conference's Central Division, meet Sunday in the Astrodome.

It will be a case of the Oilers, 4-3, trying to bite the hand that has already helped them twice.

The Bengals, 3-4, have beaten the Steelers twice this season to force the division into a three-way tied among the Oilers, Steelers and Cleveland.

THE OILERS, who have obtained quarterback Ken Stabler, tight end Dave Casper and defensive back Jack Tatum from the Raiders since last season, will be trying to hold onto their share of the lead against the Bengals while Pittsburgh travels to Cleveland.

In addition to sending them three key players, the Raiders also helped the Oilers Monday night by upsetting the Steelers 42-34 to throw the division into a three-way tie.

"We're back to point zero," Oilers tackle Leon Gray said. "We don't have to sit around waiting for someone to beat the Steelers. They've done it and now it's up to us. We control our own destiny."

The Oilers could be in much firmer control of their destiny going into Sunday's game if they had not been upset on successive Sundays by Seattle and Kansas City.

The Oilers have integrated their new players into an effective two tight end offense that is still sputtering occasionally. The Oilers ground out 467 total yards against Tampa Bay in 20-14 victory.

Oiler Coach Bum Phillips accepted the win but said he normally would expect more points out of 467 yards.

"Part of our problem was getting caught up in the Super Bowl syndrome," Wilson said. "We've got to forget about that and deal with Cincinnati now. Well think about Pittsburgh and the Super Bowl and the time comes."

THE BENGALS were just thinking about their first successive victories since the 1978 season.

"I was pleased we didn't allow any points," Cincinnati Coach Forrest Gregg said of last week's 14-0 victory over Minnesota. "I told the team afterward, since they were able to do it once, I'll expect it again."

The Oiler defense, which ranks first in AFC total defense, will face quarterback Ken Anderson, who had his best day of the season against Minnesota, completed 21 of 28 passes for 270 yards, and running back Pete Johnson, who gained 115 yards against the Vikings.

Warner's kickoff return ignites Penn State win

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP) — Curt Warner's 88-yard kickoff return, his second touchdown of the game, lifted 13th-ranked Penn State to a 17-8 lead early in the third quarter and the Lions then held off a late rally by West Virginia to post a 20-15 victory, their 22nd consecutive win over the Mountaineers.

West Virginia, after recovering an onside kick with 3:45 left in the game at the Penn State 47, had a chance to pull out the victory, but a third down pass by quarterback Oliver Luck was tipped in the air by Lions' defensive back Pete Harris and was intercepted by his brother, Giuseppe Harris, to end the scoring threat.

CHUCK DAVIS OUTDOORS

I was hunched down in a clump of brush that overlooked a small clearing almost directly in front of me. The early morning desert dew lifted the fresh, clean scents. I was relaxed. The serenity of the early morning stillness was occasionally broken by the drone of a diesel powered long-haul truck pulling a grade on I-20.

Almost half an hour had passed since I'd first sounded my distressed-rabbit call. I was almost ready to give up and move, but I decided to try just one more series. I cupped my varmint call in my right hand and sent the shrieking wails of a dying rabbit over the desert. I called frantically, putting all the agony I could into each squalling screem.

MY ATTENTION was riveted to the small clearing, but I must have let my eyes drift away for a second or two. I still don't know how it happened, but the next thing I knew, a big dog coyote broke through the clearing and was boring down on me.

My mind screamed coyote even as I reacted with instincts born of experience. I was using a Remington Model 600 in 6mm with a 3-9V Leopold scope.

I jerked the rifle to my shoulder, with the coyote still coming. He was so close all I could see through the rifle scope was a mass of grey hair. The little rifle bucked as I pulled-off a shot. The big dog did a sumersault, regained his feet and began retracing his path through the prickley-pear catcus.

Instinctively I chambered another round and followed the coyote path until I could discern the base of his tail centered by his ears. I then squeezed off another round. This one dropped him instantly.

This had been my second stand of the morning and I stayed on it longer than usual. Ten to 15 minutes is usually more than enough time for a coyote to respond to a properly manipulated call. Several years ago, while I was president of the Mesa Varmint Callers Club in Mesa, Ariz., several of our callers conducted a study of the length of time it took a coyote to be suckered into a well-handled call. During calling contests we determined that a coyote will usually respond within seven to 12 minutes.

USUALLY I will stay on a stand about 15 minutes unlss I'm involved in a calling contest. When calling for bobcat, bears or lions a caller should be on stand at least 45 minutes. Cats and bears respond slower than coyotes and have been known to sit and watch the area where a caller is concealed for 30 minutes or more.

Many critters are susceptible to good calling technique. I've called in javelina, deer, black bear, badgers, bobcats, hawks and have even had horses come in on the run. Some aimals are attracted by hunger, others by curiostiy.

Winter months are best for calling--November through February. Predators are most active during early mornings and late evenings. Predators like to lay up during the heat of the day and are harder to call then.

TO ASSIST persons interested in predator control the livestock and ranch operations department of Texas State Technical Institute, Sweetwater campus, and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service have jointly scheduled a predator control seminar to be held Oct. 24 on the TSTI-Sweetwater campus. The seminar is open to the public.

Predator control is a serious problem that face livestock producers and one that legislative controls have hamstrung. This seminar will concern the latest legal methods of control. Speakers will include Dale Wade, area extension wildlife specialist from San Angelo; Jim Winnat, district supervisor of the Texas Rodent and Predator Animal Control Service at Lubbock.

Other speakers are Larry Stuteville, Nolan County Extension agent; Kay Case, urban roent control specialist from Abilene; and Herschell McDonald, chairman of TSTI-Sweetwater's livestock and ranch operations program.

KENNY REDIN'S

Fin & Feather

There's always that opportunity that comes around in the out-of-doors that catch the fancier off-guard. Whether you're hunting, fishing, camping or hiking, you can bet something out of the ordinary will occur. Or you'll come up on an outdoor scene that you have never witnessed before and probably will never see again.

For instance! You may be out hiking in the Texas Hill Country and come across a trophy whitetail buck. Or witness a flock of wild turkeys...gobblers with tails flared. These are the times you wouldn't take for anything. You may never see this happen in the wild again. So in order to capture these rare moments, besides in mind alone, you need a camera.

TOO MANY outdoorsmen are either too interested in their pursuit of game or fish, their camping or hiking. They are totally too involved with what they are trying to accomplish, therefore, are forgetting about the greatest thing surrounding to the outdoor world...photographs. They had much rather have a photograph of a mother bear and her cubs than remember it in their minds. Sometimes those minds don't remember everything either. So, here's where a camera can play an important role in your outdoor experiences.

One reason so many people venture outdoors and don't wildlife shots is because they are unfamiliar with camera equipment. When you mention a 35mm camera and to the average outdoorsmen, it's like talking about wild boar hunting in Russia. They are totally unfamilar with it, most think it's too complicated.

A 35mm camera and a few basic lenses are as simple as falling off a wagon. Nowadays, there's enough automatic camera on the equipment that even a four-year-old can operate.

To capture that rare moment on film, something you can look back at 10 years from now, visit a camera center. They can fix you up quicker than you can snap a photograph, keep you in the price range you can afford and have you take quality snapshots in a matter of minutes

There's many good cameras on the market today. Just about any 35mm is a good buy. Some, though, are nore expensive than others. And some are more complicated than others. What you need for the beginning of your camera stint is something simple and inexpensive. Then when you graduate to bigger and better things, you can add until your money runs out.

A good 35mm camera will run from $250 to $1000. But as a beginner, you don't need to go out and purchase $1500 worth of camera equipment. A simple 35mm automatic, with a standard 50mm lense and maybe a short field telephoto lense is all you need.

Start with the basics. Learn how to operate your camera. Take photos of flowers, trees changing colors, butterflies, birds, insects. As you learn by applying basics, it will not take long to graduate to more complicated steps. The film is the least expensive sector of operating a camera. Evaluate from your prints or transparencies on what you need to do to improve your photos.

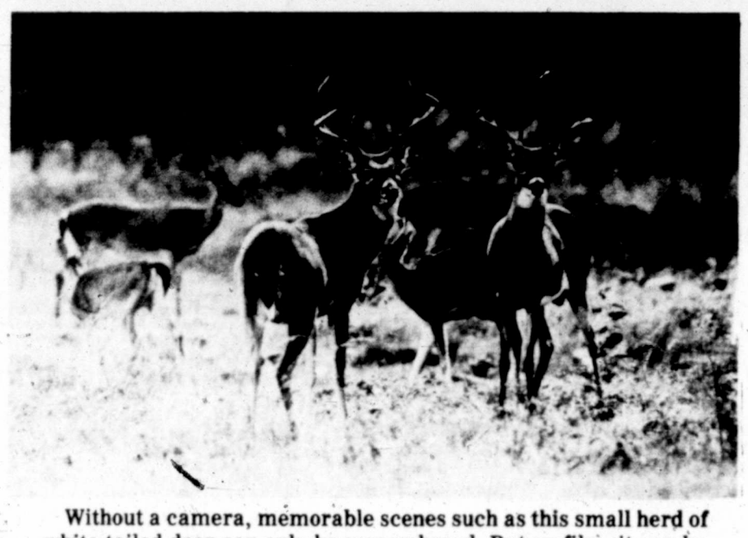
NOW, that you've taken up about 30 rolls of film, move on to bigger and better subjects.

Patience is the key to good photographs. Since you've taken all those pictures of butterflies and birds, move on to wary game animals...deer, turkey, squirrels, ducks and geese, pheasants, bears, ect. Here's where some skill from stalking and waiting plays an important role.

One of the best methods of photographing animals in the wild is to wait in a blind for several hours. By this method, you'll have an opportunity to see whatever is roaming the area. The animals will be not afraid, since they don't know where you are and they will stay posed for a longer period of time.

Another good way to take photographs in the wild is by using a predator call. However, this takes a lot more patience. This takes an experienced caller and an experienced photographer.

No matter what you're doing out-of-doors, always carry a camera with you. You can capture the moment on film, something to always cherish. Talk to your local camera dealer. He can help you in any way, except get the actual photographs for you. That you must do yourself.



Without a camera, memorable scenes such as this small herd of white-tailed deer can only be remembered. But on film, it can be filed away for life.

For fall vacationers state offers bargains

For fall vacationers, there's a real bargain available in state park cabins, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. Texas' pleasant fall weather and variety of scenery can be enjoyed comfortably and economically.

In six parks individual cabins contain sleeping accommodations, bath and kitchen. Linens and towels are provided. Rates are $12 per night for one or two with $3 for each additional adult.

PARKS with these units are Bastrop, Brownwood, Caddo Lake, which have especially rustic, lot-type cagins; Daingerfield, Morris, Garner, Uvalde and Possum Kingdom.

Two parks offer additional services. San Solomon Springs Courts at Balmorhea has 10 Spanish style motel units with kitchens and eight without for $13 for one person and $3 for each additional adult. This park is known as the "Oasis of West Texas" with its large, spring fed swimming pool, lawns and trees in a desert local.

Indian Lodge at Davis Mountains State Park furnishes comfortable accommodations in magnificent mountain scenery. Rates are: singles $16, $18 double with twin beds, $21, suite $23; each additional adult $3. Towels, linens, maid service and TV are included and there is a dining room and heated pool. Reservations are advisable and may be made within 90 days of anticipated arrival date. Call 1 800 252 9327 toll free.

TPWD stocks Coleto

Some 4,110 fingerling South American peacock bass have been stocked by the Texas Wildlife Department in the Coleto Creek Reservoir near Victoria. Also stocked were 50 year old surplus brood fish produced at the TPWD research station at Ingram.

The peacocks, which require extremely warm water, are expected to survive through the winter because of the power plant hot water discharge at the lake. Previous stockings of hard fighting fish in Lake Bastrop failed because of winter plant shutdowns which allowed the water to drop below 62 degrees, which is fatal to the peacocks.

NM offers short lines for ski lifts

With fewer than 200,000 skier days recorded last winter, and lift lines that averaged only 20 minutes in length each day over the Christmas holidays, the three southern New Mexico ski areas have plenty of room in their lodges and on their slopes for West Texans looking longingly toward the Rockies this winter.

Add some attractive ski packages through Southwest Airlines to El Paso and Albuquerque from Midland-Odessa, plus such native food delights as green chili stew and posole, ubiquitous sunshine and the lightest, driest powder skiing anywhere, and you'll begin to understand why many flatlanders—burned out on Aspen and Vail—head for New Mexico and the last bastion of uncrowded, unchallenging skiing in the Rockies.

For tracking down those ski packages, any Texan can call Resort Holidays Inc., 2010 Mercantile Building, Dallas (214 742 9438 or 1800 442 7189).

Headlining the three ski areas in southern NM lis Sierra Blanca where the vertical drop is 2,100 feet and where 40 percent of its 25 runs are beginner level and 40 percent are intermediate grade.

Because of its proximity to WT, it is the most crowded ski area in NM every weekend. But during the week, its lift lines are practically non-existent. Still, to relieve congestion in front of its beginner hill, a new triple chairlift has been intalled, replacing a Poma. The addition hiked the overall lift capacity by 1,300 an hour to 7,600 per hour, the second greatest lift capacity among NM's dozen areas.

Adult and child lift tickets are $16 and $10.

The only toll free room reservations service in NM is offered by Sierra Blanca. Ruidoso Room Reservations book 95 percent of the 65 places to stay in the villages of Alto and Ruidoso, about 40 minutes east of the ski area. The service from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. can be reached free at 800 545 5133.

Eagle Creek Ski Area, formerly Ruidoso Ski Area, offers manmade snow over a 400-foot vertical drop for novices and beginners. Its small size and nursery have made it a favorite for young parents. It offers night skiing, 6 to 10 p.m., Thursdays through the weekends. It is located a half mile west of Alto en route to Sierra Blanca. Eagle Creek is retaining last year's $9.50/$5 lift prices.

Southern New Mexico's third area is Cloudcroft, primarily a beginner and borderline intermediate ski area offering mostly manmade snow atop 16 runs that drop 500 feet through ponderosa pines in the Sacramento Mountains.

Lift fees are the same as last year, $10.50/8.50 and 20 area lodging facilities and accommodate 725 in nearby Cloudcroft.

Carlsbad beats Hobbs

CARLSBAD (AP) — Carlsbad quarterback Greg Williamson fumbled, then picked up the ball and threw it for the only touchdown of the game as the Cavemen beat Hobbs 8-0 in District 4AAAA football Friday.

Clovis 36, Roswell 0

ROSWELL (AP) — Awesome Clovis wore down Roswell with a devastating ground game and went on to score a 36-0 District 4AAAA football win Friday night behind the running of quarterback Joe Newton and tailback Ken Allen.

New slot protects bass

The new slot limit on largemouth bass slated to go into effect Nov. 1 at Lake Calaveras near San Antonio is aimed at restoring a depleted resource. The limit will make it illegal for fishermen to retain bass between 14 and 18 inches. All other sizes may be kept.

Biologist Jimmy Dean believes longtime Calaveras bass fishermen will agree that during the mid 1970s the lake produced remarkable 14-18 inch fish. This is no longer so.

This condition has been documented through studies using both chemical and rotenone and electro shocking devices since 1975, revealing a pattern of decline in 14-18 inch bass.

Your auto still most economical way to go

Gasoline prices continue to rise, but your own vehicle is still the least expensive way to reach New Mexico ski slopes this winter, but why not take along another person on your trips?

Try your local ski shop. Often, they know of individuals or groups headed for the ski areas on weekends throughout the winter. Perhaps they even have a bulletin board of rides and riders wanted.

Basic guide driving times at 55 mph, accounting for topography, congested traffic in downtown New Mexico and mountain weather, to a few NM ski areas from the city limits of Midland-Odessa:

Angel Fire—via Lubbock, Clovis, Fort Sumner, Santa Rosa, Las Vegas, Mora, Taos) 471 miles, 9 3/4 hours.

Sierra Blanca (via Andrews, Eunice, Artesia, Roswell) 300 miles, 6 1/2 hours.

Taos Ski Valley (Lubbock, Clovis, Fort Sumner, Santa Rosa, Las Vegas, Mora, Taos) 467 miles, 110 3/4 hours.

The routes suggested are recommended as the shortest, fastest, easiest to drive and times were computed from New Mexico and Texas highway maps.

Midland wins polo

Midland dumped Nambe, New Mexico 8-2 in a Governor's Cup tournament USPA Saturday at the Midland Polo Club.

Playing for the Midland club were Jim Yarbrough, Carlo Gallinda, Hector Gallinda and Alonzo Gillinda.

The match went only four periods instead of the normal six.

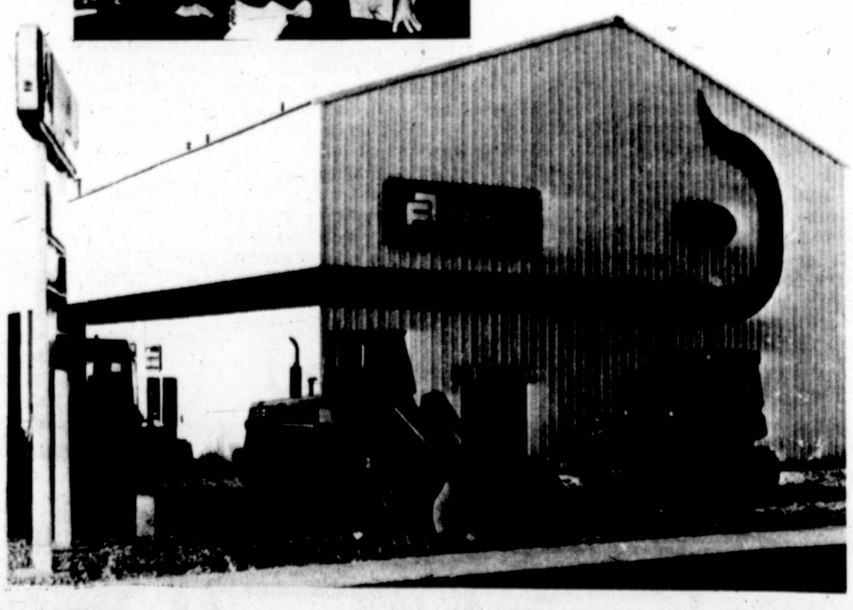
To Heavy Equipment Users:

Brown-McKee Inc. and Fiat-Allis are together to provide quality parts and service support and the Fiat-Allis product line to heavy equipment users in Western Texas.

Brown-McKee is an engineering/construction firm with a 25 year reputation for engineering expertise throughout the Southwest. Fiat-Allis is a manufacturer with a worldwide reputation for quality-built construction equipment. Now these two form a new team dedicated to meeting the service and equipment needs of machinery users in Western Texas.

Headquartered in Lubbock, Brown-McKee begins with the most important element: dedicated people. Like President E. "Jack" Brown; Senior Vice-President G. A. Husky; and Vice-President and General Manager Al Smith who brings more than 26 years of experience in the earthmoving industry.

The operation is on line right now! Trained sales representatives and parts personnel, skilled service specialists, strategic parts inventories, complete shop facilities and service vehicles — are all ready and able to support your equipment investment.



The Fiat-Allis equipment line is now more than 30 machines strong. It features crawler tractors, crawler loaders, tractor scrapers, motor graders, pipelayers and other special equipment.

So stop in soon and see for yourself how our facilities, equipment, parts support and experienced personnel are ready to work for you — now!

Sincerely,
Brown-McKee, Inc.

Insulation

Sears

Help save on fuel bills and energy

Blown-in insulation

15%

The higher the R-value, the greater the insulating power. Ask your seller for the fact sheet on R-value.

Sale ends October 31

Qualifies for Tax Credit

Energy Tax Credit for qualified products applies to those products when installed in a principal residence built before April 20, 1977. The credit amounts to 15% of the first $2000 spent on any qualifying product before January 1, 1986 (a maximum credit of $300). But at least $67 must be spent on qualifying products.

Installation warranty

Should workmanship prove faulty within one year of installation, Sears will, upon notice from you, cause such faults to be corrected at no additional cost.

Open House

This Weekend

See how Capp Homes beats the high cost of housing.

Come see an open house that's totally unique...a Capp Homes Open House. What makes this open house so unusual? The house isn't even finished yet. The exterior is erected, but the interior is not yet complete. Why? Because we want you to see for yourself all the benefits of the "Finish-It-Yourself House" program.

You'll see the excellent quality of Capp construction materials and workmanship. Capp Homes are custom built from your plans or ours. Nothing is pre-fab or modular.

At the open house, you'll learn that by finishing it yourself, or by acting as your own general contractor, you'll save a bundle — thousands of dollars, compared to having an ordinary builder construct the same house on your lot.

And Capp has financing available...both construction loans and permanent mortgages for new qualified home buyers.

Time: 1pm - 6 pm

Date: Sunday, Oct. 26th Today Only

Directions: In Midland go east on Hwy. 80 approx.3mileseastofthecitylimitsand turn north on Country Rd. 1140-N and follow the Capp Homes Open House sign.

Your Host is:

ED KRISCHKE

An affair in black and white

Scenes from last year's Beaux Arts Ball reflect a picture of opposites—and black and white. Top: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cerf Jr. carry out the theme of opposites in "beauty and the beast." Right: Harry Clark, center, and Susie Hitchcock, right, served as master and mistress of ceremonies, while "Miss Piggy" (Sharon Holman)poses as her usual elegant self. Far right: Prisoners in both black and white are, from left, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Sheehan, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Stringer, Mr. and Mrs. David Hoelscher and Mr. and Mrs Joe Davis.

The annual Beaux Arts Ball is slated this year for Saturday at Midland Community Theatre.

A benefit for Midland Community Theatre and sponsored by the theatre support group Act IX, the ball last year attracted over 300 partygoers who came in all shapes, sizes, costumes etc. And with all following the theme of black and white or opposites.

"The black and white theme can be carried out in formal wear, costume, in things that are actually black and white, or in an opposties theme, said Mrs. Robert Koziol, chairman. "For example, last year's gala event featured couples who came as salt and pepper shakers, doctor and patient, Kermit the Frog and Miss Piggy, Sylvester the Cat and Tweety Bird, and hundreds more in equally creative costume."

Admission to the $50 per person event is by invitation only. Tickets and reservations are available to interested persons by calling Shari Koziol at 684-7959 or Melanie Watts at 694-9865.

Activities for the night will include a cocktail buffet and dancing to the music in Theatre One of "First Crossing," a rock and roll group; and "Shirley and Friends," an easy listening combo from Midland.

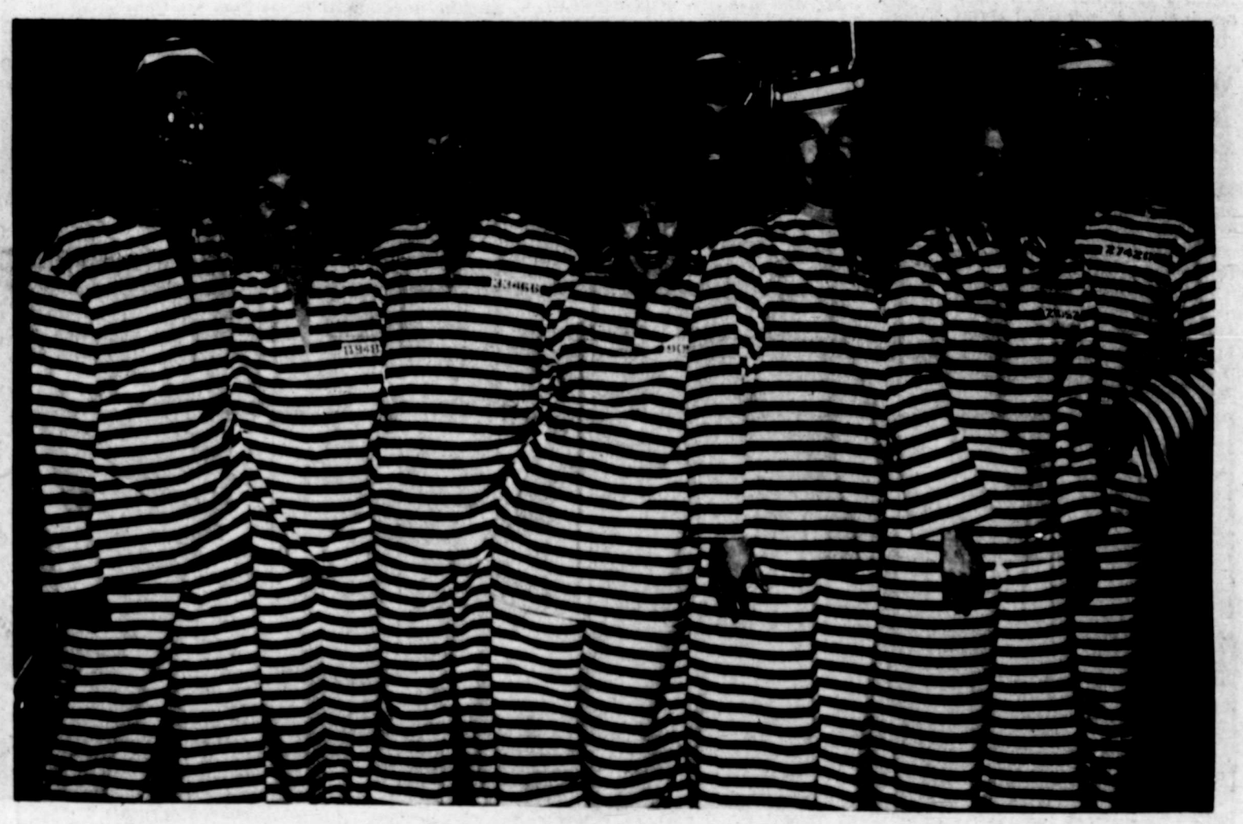
"We think it's a wonderful way to use the beautiful community theatre facility," said Mrs. Koziol.

The lobby, bar and theatre rooms will all be open and decorated for the party.

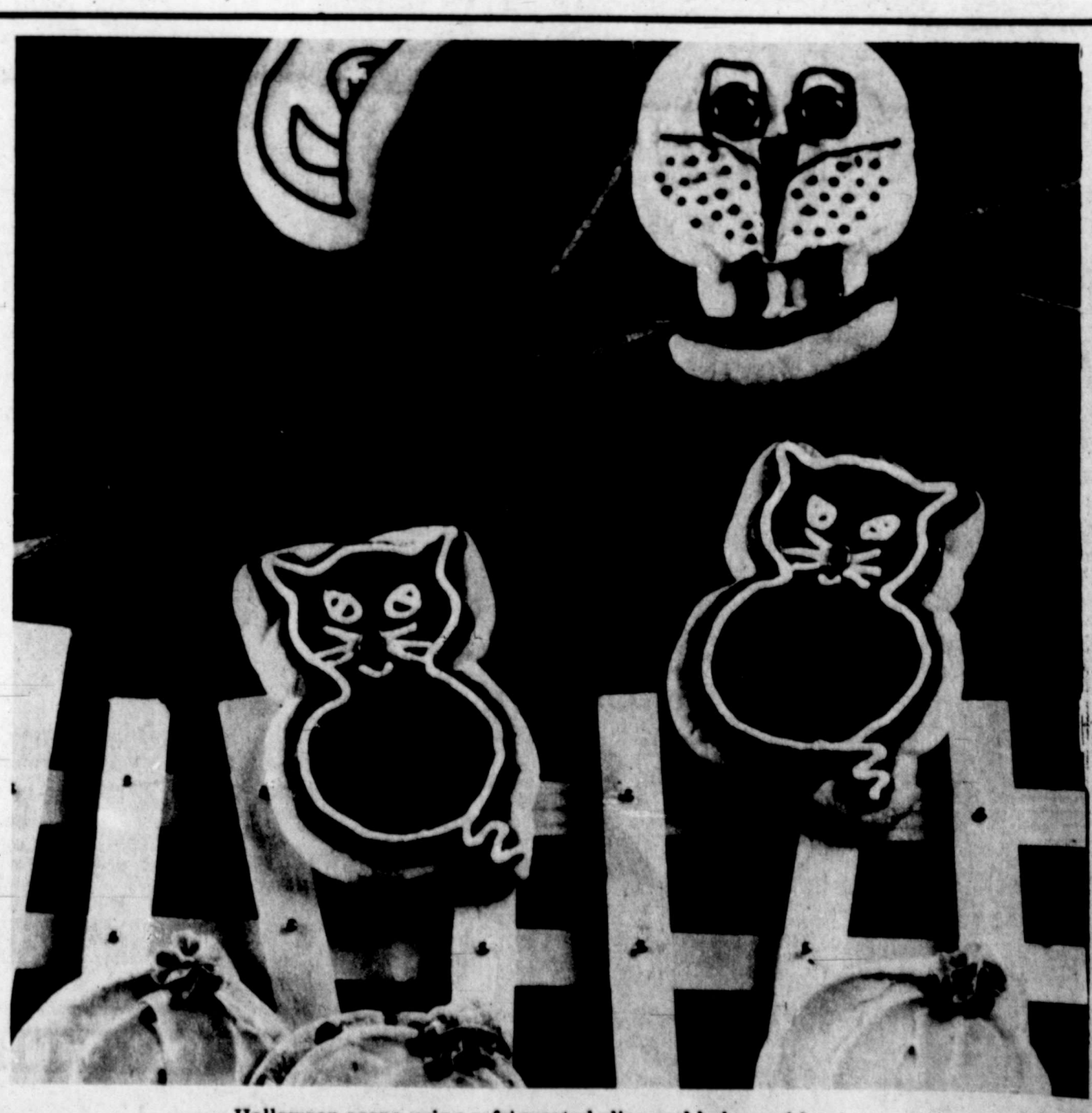
The ball is the primary fundraising activity of Act IX. Members also act as hostesses at theatre events, do the mailing, house managing, serve the Board of Governor's luncheon once a month, and serve at the annual theatre meeting.

Chairman for the Beaux Arts Ball is Mrs. Koziol. Mrs. Greg Campbell is assistant chairman and is in charge of decorations.

Other chairmen include Mrs. Randy Rodgers, food and beverages; Mrs. Pat Garrigan, secretary; Mrs. Jeff Anderson, treasurer; Mrs. George Axmann, mailing; Mrs. Joe Davis, physical arrangements; Mrs. Curtis Nicholson, security; Mrs. Jerry Langdon, babysitting for workers; Mrs. George Thomas, sponsors; Mrs. Danny Watts, publicity; and Karen Hilliard, catering.



Irish legends inspire Halloween cookies



Halloween scene using refrigerated slice and bake cookies.

Imagine a scene with pumpkins, black cats, a hooting owl and the harvest moon, and you know Halloween time is here. It's the Irish who deserve our thanks for introducing many of these symbols and the custom of Halloween to America.

When the Irish settlers arrived in the late 19th century, they brought with them their practice of trick or treating on October 31. Irish legends also gave us many of our Halloween superstitions.

We watch for black cats in our path, because the Irish thought they were sacred as the reincarnation of humans. Our carved pumpkins are named for an Irishman named Jack, who was doomed to wander earth forever with his lantern. Their name, Jack-of-the-lantern, was shortened to jack o' lantern.

Now these superstitions and legends have become part of the fun of Halloween, as we use them in costumes and party decorations. You can even create some of the shapes as special Halloween cookies.

The decorated shapes don't require special cookie cutters, because they are made with refrigerated slice and bake cookie dough. You simply slice the dough, arrange the slices according to the directions and bake.

Since the rolls of chocolate chip dough come in two sizes — the original size and a new larger roll, you can make the cookies in both large and small versions. Shaping and baking directions are the same for both sizes.

After the cookies have cooled, frost them and use decorator icing to draw the amusing faces.

HALLOWEEN COOKIES

Materials needed:

1 roll refrigerated sugar slice-and-bake cookes(17 oz.) or chocolate chip (16 oz. or 27 oz.) slice-and-bake cookies.

Ready-to-Spread Frosting or frosting mix or your favorite butter cream frosting, tinted to desired colors

Pressurized decorator frosting or pastry tubes and tips and tinted frosting

Candies, tinted coconut, tinted sugar

General directions:

For easier cutting and shaping, work with part of the dough at a time and refrigerate rest until needed. Slice cookie dough into 1/4 inch slices. Shape cookies on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 8 to 10 minutes or until light golden brown around edges. (Do not overbake.) Cool 1 to 2 minutes. Remove from cookie sheet. Cool completely on rack before decorating.

Cookie shapes:

Cat: 1) Use 2 slices. 2) Cut bottom 1/3 off one slice. Roll remaining 2/3 slice into ball to form head. 3) Cut a small pie-shaped wedge out of second slice to form tail. Push dough together where wedge was removed to form whole slice for body. Place ball above slice to form head and body. 4) Cut 1/3 slice into 2 equal pieces. attach pieces to head and shape to form pointed ears. attach wedge to one side of body, pointed-end out, to form tail. 5) Bake.

Pumpkin: 1) Use 1 slice. 2) Cut a small pie-shaped wedge out of slice to form stem of pumpkin. Push dough together where wedge was removed to form whole slice. Place wedge, pointed-end out, at top of slice to form stem. 3) Bake. Cool on rack. Frost or outline; decorate.

Owl: 1. Use 2 slices. 2) Cut bottom 1/3 off each slice. Place remaining 2/3 slices above each other, cut sides touching to form head and body. Cut 1/3 slice in half to form legs. Attach legs with pointed-end down. Place remaining 1/3 slice lengthwise under legs to form branch.

Moon: 1) Use 1 slice. 2) Cut slice in half. 3) Overlap one pointed end of each half slice, curved edges facing same direction. Press dough together to form crescent moon shape.

Child poisonings down

NEW YORK (AP) — Reduced accessibility and improved treatment have dramatically decreased childhood poisonings, statisticians report.

Youngsters have been frustrated in their attempts to open bottles and containers since the Poison Prevention Packaging Act went into effect in the early 1970s. And many other children have surivived because of the existence of poison-control centers with 24-hour telephone service.

According to a recent issue of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.'s "Statistical Bulletin," the death rate for accidental poisonings among children under age 5 plummeted 60 percent between 1968 and 1977, the last year for which official figures are available.

In 1977, 94 preschoolers succumbed to accidental poisoning — 57 by drugs and medications, 37 by other solid and liquid substances. Eleven of these youngsters, 80 percent fewer than in 1968, swallowed fatal doses of aspirin. The number of children poisoned by non-drug substances such as plants, petroleum products and household cleaners also declined by 75 percent over the 10-year period.

Citing data from the National Clearinghouse for Poison Control Centers on cases treated in 1977, the Metropolitan statisticians report that plants, soap products, perfumes, cold medications, vitamins and aspirin were the six toxic substances most frequently ingested by preschoolers.

The Health and Safety Education Division of Metropolitan Life offers this advice to parents:

—Think like a 2-year old. Remember that preschoolers have an inquisitive nature, are attracted to brightly colored objects, have an urge to put things in their mouth and a desire to imitate their parents.

Stiching witchery: The silken quandary

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

What to do with a beautiful piece of fabric once you have it in your hands! Sometimes it is quite a game trying to make a decision on just the right pattern.

Dear Betty: Enclosed is a swatch of silk I was able to buy at a huge bargain. I thought it was so beautiful and had in mind making a dress, but am at a loss as to what style to use.

What kind of pattern should I buy? Is it too soft for a tailored shirtwaist, or the wrong design for the softly gathered dresses that are so popular now?

I certainly would appreciate any suggestions you may be able to give me. I am enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for your convenience. I enjoy your column and have derived much benefit from it. -- Angie Montgomery, Burlingame, Kan.

Thank you for sending the envelope, Angie. It makes my work so much easier -- and faster. Your silk is beautiful (I'm trying to think of something I could do with the swatch you sent!). Yes, it is much too soft and filmy (10 yards wouldn't weigh a pound!) for a shirtwaist dress. Not only would it spoil the effect of your silk, but it would give you all kinds of problems.

There is nothing wrong with the design -- it would be lovely done up in a soft, gathered dress. Things to avoid -- buttonholes, lots of seams, interfacing, pockets. Look for a soft, unstructured style.

Use a small needle (9 if you can find it) and a fine thread. The machine tension should not be too tight and you should use a small stitch. The longer the stitch, the more puckering you will have.

If your pattern calls for any topstitching, try to do so near the seamline. Topstitching done one-quarter or three-eighths inch from the seamline will cause the fabric in between to pull and pucker.

Please let me know how it turns out. (Do you want this swatch back? ...)

QUICK STITCH: Do you have a sewing question? Please send it to us. We will send you a personal answer as soon as possible.

Questions may be addressed to Mrs. Betty Kinser, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

Experiencing the wonders of Dallas

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is another in a series of travel features by Carolyn Fitz-Gerald, this one dealing with Dallas. As a sidelight, the Fitz-Gerald's daughter, Mab, gives her views on seeing Dallas for those under 12 years of age.)

Where do you go from Midland if you only have a few days to vacation?

If you are tired of the San Antonio river walk, had enough of Juarez, and your horse always runs last at Ruidoso, why not do Dallas?

I went in on a Thursday, back before Texas International was giving Southwest any competition at Love Field and was amazed to find, once again, that weekday tickets were up to $37, one way. Texas International Planning Officer Stan Hulla won't say T.I. will never add Midland to the Love Field-Houston Intercontinental run but he won't say "soon", either. Ah well, most Midland-Dallas commuters would miss that Southwest stewardess line desiged for Easterners, "Now chug-a-lug and y'all come back real soon."

From Love, I stopped off for a meeting at the Executive Inn, just 30 seconds away from the airport, where I was provided with a six-person meeting room for only $35. They are used to the business trade and the service was fast and efficient.

Then from the E.I., I got a cab easily and headed downtown via the North Dallas Tollway; my destination — The Hyatt Regency Hotel.

"Dorothy had her Oz, Alice had her rabbit hole and here you are," said the cab driver, "the crystal palace of Dallas."

AFTER ASSURING MYSELF that my guess was correct — the cab driver really was a graduate student in comparative literature at SMU — I surveyed the multi-towered Hyatt which looked to me more like the ice palace from Superman's home planet, Krypton.

The Hyatt and the adjacent Reunion Tower symbolize Dallas well, all mirrored and lighted, rising on the western edge of the city just waiting to reflect whatever it is you most want to see.

I checked in, decided to go first class with the eighth floor concierge accommodations and settled down to have a drink under the trees at the Park Place bar while the bellman took my bags up.

While I enjoyed listening to the fountain and overhearing snatches of German and French around the Atrium Lobby and from the Esplanade Restaurant, I shouldn't have stopped because there was a courtesy bar on 8, complete with a lounge and a letter in my room on Regency Club stationery, telling me to just dial the Regency Club (what the eighth floor is called) extension for whatever I needed. I happened to have some peculiar needs like a typewriter, a translator and some shampoo, all of which were delivered instantly. Nothing is beyond the concierge. She handled a request for a reservation at the best restaurant in Atlanta along with tickets to the circus playing at the Reunion Arena across the street with equal equanimity and charm. That she was as good looking as she was efficient didn't seem to bother the English gentleman who asked for an authentic Texas restaurant. She directed him to the Trail Dust at Stemmons and Walnut Hill and laughed as she told him, "if you wear a tie they will cut it off and hang it on the wall."

Dinner in Fausto's Seafood Catch Restaurant convinced me that old story about dull hotel dining isn't always true. The seafood bisque was better than the last I had in New Orleans and the lobster thermidor was outstanding. The atmosphere is elegant so don't try to get in in your jeans. "Appropriate dress" is the requirement, though I saw a man or two without a coat. Also, if you want to throw a party for 3,500, Hyatt catering director Harry Ruckenstein can accomodate you complete with live decor like a real prize fight or an authentic desert oasis.

UP THE NEXT MORNING early and on a shopping spree, I stopped off at downtown Neiman Marcus via the bunny hop-a-bus that passes the hotel every six minutes. You can't miss it as the bus has whiskers and pink ears; price: 15 cents.

Back at the hotel, a friend who wanted to catch the last of the preseason fur sales picked me up and we headed for Biofano's on Cedar Springs where she tried on a natural Canadian coyote and a Norwegian fox with a striped tiger effect. Not far enough out to suit her, we moved on north toward Koslow's of Fort Worth fame which is located in Dallas in the new Caruth Fashion Plaza at 9100 North Central Expressway at Park Lane. First, I made her stop at the Half Price book store just off McKinney and Knox Streets where I finally found a copy of Wilke Collins "The Woman in White" that I had been looking for, at only $1.25. I also couldn't resist a 1949 Life magazine at 75 cents. Surfeited in mink trotters and sable full-lengths but with the fur still unbought we stopped off at Trader Vic's for a drink with a gardenia in it where she decided to try Szor-Diener wholesale furriers the next day. Next stop was the Lady Hilton beauty salon where I introduced her to Phil, master of the blow dry and Ken, a genius with sets and let her in on my secret — Ken is there on Sundays. Then on to the top of the Hilton Inn to Feathers where we had oysters on the half shell ordered and eaten right in the little kitchen behind the dance floor. The oysters were great, the disco dancers not too loud and the waitress said that rumor has it that the disco will soon give way to a restaurant and the oysters and crab legs are just a hint of things to come. Whatever they do with the room, the view never changes and it is better than the opening sweep on TV's Dallas. The view includes a prime look at the geodesic dome atop the Reunion Tower which revs up its 114,000 moving parts to put on a light show every night at 9 and 11 p.m. The effect is electrifying as the flashing lights background the city below, making Dallas at night seem even more exciting.

AS THE LIGHT SHOW ended, we decided that having watched it we would now join it, so we drove on back to the Hyatt, left the car with Valet parking and took the elevator to the observation deck for a closer look. My friend hung over the edge and looked down Central Expressway through the telescope while I talked to the radio station broadcaster a bit farther in from the deck. I never have liked heights but I slowly pushed the elevator button for the Antares Restaurant and Bar on the top floor of the tower.

The food was disappointingly reminiscent of my last airline dinner, but the revolving restaurant which sends you around Dallas every 55 minutes is breathtaking and the exotic plants like the black rose provided by the Dallas garden clubs make the Antares experience one you won't want to miss.

What have I forgotten? Somehow, in that busy Thursday afternoon when I arrived, like Alice, I went down the tunnel which seemed endless but promised a good time. No rabbit hole, the tunnel which connects the Hyatt with the refurbished Union Station, is carpeted and air conditioned and when you emerge on Thursday afternoons, it's to a tea dance reminiscent of the 1920s. The orchestra playing "Tea for Two" swings into "In the Mood" and the jitterbugging begins. There's something different every evening including Dixieland and amateur vaudeville in this national historical landmark which has been restored to include a Texas-food restaurant and entertainment upstairs along with Amtrack and Surtran ticket counters on the ground floor.

A last look at Dallas out the two-way silvered windows where you never have to draw a drape, then up the next morning to dress and try a little boutique shopping. I was searching under the bed for that elusive other shoe when I was astonished to see a small cardboard sign, "Yes — We look under here too. The Housekeeping Department." Who can resist a hotel with a sense of humor? I'll go back to the Hyatt.

(Watch for next installments on Shopping the Anatole with Paul Newman, what to do when you're stranded at DFW airport and The Plaza of the Americas in Dallas' newest hotel and the Arabs have it.)

Dallas under twelve

By MAB FITZ-GERALD

What does a kid do in Dallas when she is stuck at a hotel while her mom is gone all day?

If you are staying at the Hyatt Regency, a mirrored hotel that reflects your every move, you can watch yourself play tennis or swim or you can go down to the gymnasium and lift weights.

Or, if you like to roam a little farther, you can hop the Bunny Bus that stops at the base of the Reunion Tower right by the hotel. The bus is easy to recognize because it is pink and has whiskers and ears that wiggle. It goes downtown in six minutes. It will only cost you 15¢ and the route has stops at the Dallas Morning News building and the John F. Kennedy museum. The museum is across the street from the place where President Kennedy was shot in 1963.

If you don't mind a much longer ride, you can take a bus to Six Flags amusement park and if by now riding is your thing, then ride the Shock Wave, a new version of the old loop the loop roller coaster. If you don't like rides, walk the suspension bridge over to the island or just sit down and see the show at the Southern Palace. Hurry though, because Six Flags closes the last of November.

But if you can't go anywhere, you can always go over to Union Station right next to the Hyatt through a tunnel where the trains run overhead. When you get to the station, there are restaurants and an orchestra upstairs where old people are clutch dancing and jitterbugging.

If you get a say in picking a room, the eighth floor is a nice place to stay. The eighth floor is the Regency Club. They serve complimentary orange juice, muffins and pastries every morning and at night they serve Godiva chocolates from a little gold scale. The Regency Club also has its own bar with soft drinks for kids anytime.

After you have finished off a coke and your candy, you can take the elevator up to the thirtieth floor and sail your candy wrapper over the edge and watch it make slow loops until it lands in one of the trees at the Park Place bar below.

The Reunion Tower, next to the Hyatt, is exciting to visit, especially at night. It has glass enclosed outside elevators where you can look out as you go up the 50 stories. At the top is an observation deck where you can walk outside and around the dome which lights up with different patterns.

There is also the Restaurant Antares and a disco on the top floor. The whole restaurant revolves around Dallas every 55 minutes.

As you come back down the elevator you will see the Hyatt towers below like a little city itself with that larger city called Dallas glittering in the background.

Families report avoids certain issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's White House Conference on Families, sidestepping the most controversial issues, is identifying working conditions, alcohol and drug abuse and tax discrimination against married couples as the major problems confronting the American family.

The conference's final report, which was presented to the White House this week, ranks ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment as the 32nd priority. There are no recommendations on abortion and homosexual rights.

"We did not focus on the bizarre or extreme," said conference chairman Jim Guy Tucker. "We did not redefine the family....We found broad areas of agreement which cut across racial, religious, political and ideological lines."

The 250-page document makes few specific recommendations.

It criticizes antiquated personnel policies, for instance, but says only that they should be more family-oriented, including flexible work schedules. It makes no mention of a proposal made at one of three regional conferences to give men paternity leave.

Carter, who promised to hold such a conference when he was a candidate for president in 1976, was campaigning for re-election in Louisiana and Texas this week and was not on hand to receive the report.

But in a statement issued on his behalf, the president described the report as "a remarkable achievement" which shows "how Americans of different backgrounds and beliefs can unite around a specific program."

"The delegates' principal recommendations lay out a practical, moderate and sensible agenda to combat the insensitivity that so often characterizes the attitude of our major institutions toward the family," he said.

The priorites listed in the report include a call for tax policies to encourage home care of aging and handicapped persons, greater assistance for families with handicapped members, a systematic analysis of all laws affecting families and efforts to increase public sensitivity to problems of the handicapped.

Other recommendations include equitable economic treatment for homemakers, reform of Social Security to end biases against families, marriage and homemakers, and more efforts against employment discrimination.

Carter and Tucker pledged that the conference recommendations will be considered in the formation of policy and not shelved to collect dust.

Among the first implementing steps was a meeting of corporate leaders today to discuss the recommendations and a seminar for personnel officials to consider ways of reducing conflicts between work and family.

Toastmistress Club to host tea today

Articuladies Toastmistress Club is hosting a tea today from 2 to 4 p.m. at 1307 W. Missouri Ave.

Tea will honor the founding of the group by Ernestine White in 1938. Today, there are Toastmistress clubs all over the world in such locations as the United States, Canada, New Mexico, Japan, Australia and Greece.

Toastmistress is designed for the individual who is interested in self-development in association with others who want to continue the learning process through studyand practice. The club provides members an opportunity to increase communication skills, leadership abilities, effective listening and evaluation techniques.

Through monthly meetings, members improve their grammar and increase their vocabulary by giving impromptu and formal speeches. Members progress at their own rate, and new members are not encouraged to give a speech until they feel they are ready.

Interested persons are invited to attend the tea, said a group spokesman. The group meets every second and fourth Tuesday of each month from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. at Memorial Christian Church, 1001 Andrews Highway. For further information, contact Martha Chappell at 682-5480 or Ernestine Russell at 684-7596.

Blocked fallopian tubes cure expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government scientists say they are hopeful that within two years a new technique developed in laboratory tests may help women who are unable to conceive because of blocked fallopian tubes.

Researchers at the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development said Thursday the procedure has been tested successfully on monkeys, but that so far there have been no experiments with humans.

The technique involves removing a mature egg from one of a female's ovaries and implanting it in a fallopian tube near the uterus, or womb, where it can be fertilized by sperm. If successful, the egg, or ovum, moves into the uterus where it develops into a baby.

Margaretta Bolding, Chuck Hunnicutt and Elizabeth Real will perform "Life, Love and Laughter" at 8:30 p.m. Nov. 8 at Theatre Midland. Midland Society of University Women is sponsoring the program, which is $10 per ticket. Proceeds are used solely for financial aid to graduates of Midland's high schools.

Program on life, love

Margaretta Bolding of Houston, Elizabeth Real of Kerrville and Chuck Hunnicutt of Kingwood are bringing their musical talents back to Midland Nov. 8 for a program sponsored by the Midland Society of University Women.

The trio will present "Life, Love and Leftovers," a combination of humor about men and marriage with a potpourri of Broadway musical hits. Ms. Bolding will be narrating, Ms. Real singing and Hunnicutt accompanying on the piano. The curtain rises at 8:30 p.m. at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley.

The program is the ways and means project of MSUW with proceeds to be used solely for financial aid to graduates of Midland's high schools. Tickets are $10, are tax deductible and are being sold by MSUW members. Seats are on a first come, first serve basis — no reservations are being accepted.

Diabetes third leading cause of death in U.S.

By SANDI BREEDEN
Lifestyle Writer

Over 10 million Americans have it. It is the leading cause of new cases of blindness; it decreases life expectancy by about one-third and it is now recognized as the third leading cause of death in the United States.

People with diabetes are 17 times more prone to kidney disease, over five times more prone to gangrene and twice as prone to heart disease and stroke. The economic toll of diabetes is estimated to be $5.3 billion annually.

Diabetes is not one of the well-known diseases. It has no glamour — it's not a life and death tomorrow situation like heart attacks and cancer.

And because most diabetics lead active lives and are gainfully employed, because 40 percent of those with diabetes are not yet aware they have it and are not receiving medical attention and because insulin is popularly and incorrectly thought of as a "cure", the general public does not view the disease as the major national health problem it is.

Cherry Hill, president of Midland's Chapter of the American Diabetes Association, was diagnosed as a diabetic when she was 19. "I had the typical symptoms of juvenile diabetics," she said. Symptoms include constant urination, abnormal thirst, unusual hunger, rapid loss of weight, irritablity, obvious weekness and fatigue and nausea and vomiting.

"I was not immediately diagnosed as having diabetes, but once they made the diagnoses, I was immediately hospitalized and was near a coma," she said.

That was 15 years ago and today Mrs. Hill looks like a completely normal person, another reason she says the public does not make itself aware of the symptoms of diabetes. "You cannot look at a person and know they are a diabetic," she said. "A diabetic looks like a normal person and can basically lead the live of a normal person."

There are basically two types of diabetes, named for the time in life when they usually occur, according to Mrs. Hill. Juvenile-onset diabetes is more severe, accounting for about 10 percent of all diabetes cases. It usually appears abruptly in children and young adults and progresses rapidly. The pancreas produces little or no insulin and the patient becomes insulin-dependent.

The other type of diabetes is maturity-onset diabetes which is more common and is usually less abrupt in onset and less severe than juvenile diabetes. This type of diabetes usually occurs in middle or old age and is characterized by a relative insulin deficiency — the pancreas produces some insulin, but not in sufficient quantity. Maturity-onset diabetes can often be controlled by diet alone or by diet and oral medication.

Symptoms of maturity-onset diabetes may include any of the signs of juvenile-diabetes or drowsiness, itching, a family history of diabetes, blurred vision, excessive weight, tingling, numbness or pain in the extremities, easy fatigue, skin infections and slow healing of cuts and scratches, especially on the feet.

ACCORDING TO MRS. HILL, when a patient is diagnosed as having juvenile diabetes, he is usually hospitalized for two weeks so the doctor can regulate the intake of insulin, calories and exercises.

"The hospital visit is critical," said Mrs. Hill, "because it gives the patient time to cope with a new disease under supervision."

The age of the person when they are diagnosed as having diabetes determines how well they accept it said Mrs. Hill. "An adolescent diagnosed as having diabetes does not want anyone to know he has the disease because it labels him as different," she said.

How do parents of a diabetic child react to the diagnosis? "The parents are certainly not ashamed of having a diabetic child, but they do feel a lot of guilt," said Mrs. Hill.

Having children is not easy for diabetics, said Mrs. Hill, because diabetes can be hereditary. It is dangerous for a women who is diabetic to be pregnant, she added, because diabetes lessens the chance of a successful pregnancy and increases the frequency of birth defects and death of the newborn child.

"Any change in the body of a diabetic is potentially dangerous," said Mrs. Hill, "but a pregnant diabetic women has to deal with her hormonal changes and the fetus is creating its own sugar and the sugar of the diabetic woman is working against the fetus."

ACCORDING TO MRS. HILL, babies born to diabetic women are usually oversized and most are born by caesearan section. After giving birth, most diabetic women are put in intensive care, she added.

After learning she was pregnant eight years ago, Mrs. Hill said for the first 30 minutes all she could think of was to get an abortion. "Then I suddenly thought 'God and I could do this,'" she said. Mrs. Hill said her doctor delivered the baby by caesarean section when the fetus was seven months old to save her life, and the infant also lived.

Cherry Hill

Mrs. Hill said her now eight-year-old daughter is quite normal and has shown no sign of diabetes so far. "She is tested every year for it, but everyone should be," she added.

Understanding just what is happening in the body of a person who has been diagnosed as having diabetes is somewhat complicated for the layman, since most do not understand the functions of the body of someone without diabetes. In a normal person, sugars, starches and other foods are converted in the body to a form of sugar called glucose. The blood stream distributes this glucose to the body cells where, with the aid of insulin, it is converted to ready energy or stored for future use.

When diabetes develops, the body either does not produce enough insulin or may not be able to use what is produced. Without insulin, glucose accumulates in the blood until some of the surplus is eliminated by the kidneys and passed off in the urine.

THIS IS WHY SUGAR in the urine and too much sugar in the blood are signs of diabetes. There is also evidence that the high sugar level in blood directly causes the damage to eyes, kidneys and nerves.

November is National Diabetes Month. According to Mrs. Hill, the Midland chapter will be sending special contribution letters out during the month.

The only other fund raisingevent of the the Midland chapter, which is one of the two area offices in Texas, is the Bike-A-Thon usually held in early spring. "Last year we raised $14,000 in the Bike-A-Thon which was a record for the whole state," said Mrs. Hill.

Funds given to the association help promote programs on diabetes and a quarter of every dollar goes to research. Mrs. Hill added that a portion of every dollar is also used locally.

Chapter president is Mrs. Hill; vice president, Wendell Mayes III; secretary and treasurer, Sandy Miller; patient education, Charlotte Blaschke; patient education and public education, Melinda Cherryholmes; professional education, Dr. Ralph Greenlee and publicity and fund raising, John Bates.

...THE CURRENT COPY of the Directory of Community Services, published by the Junior League of Midland, has just been released according to Shari Kozial, publicity chairman.

The Junior League of Midland Inc. began publishing the directory in 1956 as a result of many requests from various organizations and a survey to determine the need for such a project. It is distributed to the organizations listed and other interested groups.

The directory lists agencies, private and public organizations, clubs and churches which offer community services, health, welfare and recreational services. It is cross-indexed on types of services offered. Also included are an alphabetical index and a subject index, names, addresses and phone numbers of the responsible personnel of each organization, as well as the office hours, meeting times, time of election and change of officers, source of funds and a brief description of services.

Classes are not the same

The aspiring model who decides to enroll in a modeling school should know that some "career modeling" classes aren't what they seem.

Some such programs are just charm courses that teach party manners and makeup, but little about a model's trade — keeping up with styles, posing for cameras, movement, or showing off clothing.

The classes that do try to offer professional training vary widely in cost and sophistication.

Only four modeling programs of about 500 nationwide are accreditated by the National Association of Trade and Technical Schools. According to NATTS director William Goddard, they are:

Studio 7 Fashion Career College, Covena, Calif.; Fashion Merchandising Institute of Nevada, Las Vegas; Mannequin Manor Fashion Merchandising School, El Paso, and Plaza 3 Academy in Phoenix, Ariz.

Plaza 3 has enrolled 50 students in a new NATTS-accredited 600-hour career course that meets five days a week for six months. The cost is $2,295 — not so much more than other, less comprehensive courses.

A Manhattan school, for example, offers a "career" class for $1,285. The students meet for 96 hours, mostly nights and weekends. The course also teaches etiquette.

That's one of the things school directors and agents say to avoid. Here's more advice on selecting a school from modeling agents and state officials who regulate modeling schools:

—Visit more than one school. Do some comparison shopping.

—Take a tour of the school. Talk to teachers and students.

—If you really want to be a model, ask about their job placement rate. Then follow up, call the agencies and stores they name and ask whether they use graduates of the school.

—Ask about the curriculum. Get a catalog. Get course outlines. If you really want to learn modeling, make sure they're teaching modeling and not just self-improvement.

—Don't be pressured into deciding. Take your time.

—Ask about the school at the Better Business Bureau, and be sure to check the school with your state attorney general's office. Consumer complaints are usually funneled through that office.

Ford says only God makes models

"Only God makes models," sniffed Eileen Ford, whose Ford Agency accepts about 100 of the 10,000 aspiring models who apply each year.

Three-quarters of the $50 million spent on models each year is spent here. Four New York agencies — Ford, Wilhelmina, Zoli and Elite Model Management — control 60 percent of the industry's billings.

A few models earn good money in Los Angeles, Dallas, Chicago and Los Angeles. Elsewhere — except for a handful who may earn up to about $20,000 a year — models generally find only part-time work at department stores or for newspaper ads, experts say.

Even in New York, modeling is not all glamour. Models work long hours and compete intensely for work. Those who succeed pay a high price in time, energy and self-discipline.

Julie Floyd, an 18-year-old fawn-eyed honey-blonde, is a Ford model and graduate of the Plaza 3 modeling school in Phoenix, Ariz. In the year since she came to New York, she's done ads for Countrytime Lemonade and Clearasil acne medication, among others.

Julie rises daily by 7 a.m. and spends most days trekking through a tight schedule of auditions. She often puts in 12 or 14 hours.

Most of the New York models she has met never went to modeling school, but Julie says she's glad she did.

"I really did learn a lot in school. The teachers were all models and they'd all been in Europe or New York or Los Angeles. They'd been through all this and they prepared me."

In New York, standards are rigid: A woman must be at least 5 feet 7 inches tall for fashion photography or runway work, for instance. And they're tough: Julie was once rejected because someone didn't like her feet.

"Our established models make around $100,000 a year," said Sue Charney of the Mannequin agency in New York, which handles mostly runway, or fashion show, models.

"For that money they're working all the time. There are very few — just two or three models — and they're working all day, nights, weekends."

Another form of New York modeling is designer showroom work. These models are paid up to $750 a week to be on call in a fashion designer's offices to model the designer's line for out-of-town buyers.

There is big money in cosmetic contracts. A handful of models earn up to $300,000 for a few weeks of work representing a cosmetics line.

Models who grace magazine fashion pages earn more prestige than cash. Most magazines pay a flat fee that ranges up to about $150 — much less than the $1,000 or more a day that top models earn for less prestigious work posing for, say, catalog ads.

Only a few reach such dizzy heights. And whether modeling school training eases the climb is a matter for angry debate.

School owners, predictably, say a good course can only help. Helen Rogers, a 1951 cover girl and the owner of Plaza 3, for instance:

"We've had girls come here who were passed over by modeling agencies. With a little training, they are in demand. We can take a really pretty, but ordinary girl and teach her to stand out."

Jerry Ford, like partner and wife Eileen, takes a negative stance: "If you haven't got it, no one can give it to you."

"A good school won't hurt," said Wilhelmina agency President Bill Weinberg. "But neither can it make anyone a top model."

But he warns that bad schooling can hurt: "Some girls come in here looking like they've been cloned. Same haircuts, same photos by the local photographer. Those schools are working from a textbook and have no knowledge or training beyond it."

The cost and quality of modeling training varies wildly. Some schools offer what one agent called "white glove and party manners" courses as "career modeling." Others enroll hopeless applicants.

Plaza 3 has just enrolled 50 students in a new 600-hour, six-month professional modeling class. One of four programs in the nation accredited by the National Association of Trade and Technical Schools, the curriculum covers, in part:

Thirty hours on runway modeling; 30 of TV, including on-camera work; 20 hours on nutrition; 30 hours on wardrobe; 20 on agency procedures; 20 on commercial photography; 20 on photography for beauty ads and 20 on editorial photography; 20 hours of acting; 30 on hair care and styling. And more.

"They learn everything from how a camera works, to what a client expects on certain kinds of jobs, to how to work with a photographer. When they go to work they'll know clothes and makeup and they'll have style," Mrs. Rogers said.

The Plaza 3 class costs $2,295. In contrast, a Manhattan school sells a 96-hour "career" course for $1,285. It covers: 23 hours on poise and modeling technique; 17 hours on makeup and hair care; 13 hours on figure control; 14 hours on wardrobe; 18 hours on voice; and 11 hours of "personality development," including etiquette.

Even with top-notch schooling, a model might not make it — perhaps for lack of magic, or motivation, or luck.

"I gave myself three months," said Julie Floyd. "Just like actresses, there are lots of struggling models working as waitresses. I wasn't willing to do that. But I was lucky, I got work right away."

Second pregnancy safer says doctor

Women who have a miscarriage needn't worry about giving birth to a malformed child in their next pregnancy. So says a British doctor in the current Family Circle magazine's "Here's News in Medicine" column.

The British investigator, Dr. T.J. David, bases his conclusions on a study of the most recent deliveries of 2,633 previously pregnant women, including 440 who had miscarried. The malformation rate was 2.4% after a normal pregnancy and 2.3% after a miscarriage.

Fight inflation with brown bag

Bringing your lunch in a paper bag was once considered very unchic. Certainly no executive would be caught brown-bagging it to the office. But, that was before inflation, and before the public became aware of the perils of eating foods that add pounds and raise blood pressure, blood cholesterol and triglycerides. For people who need to cut down on salt in their diets, "eating in" also eases the problem of selecting foods at a restarurant that are "on a diet."

Lunch in the conference room or at your desk can be a social occasion when other staff members join you, or a good opportunity to catch up on your reading, shopping, or exercise.

For the person on a salt restricted diet, a brochure from The American Heart Association suggests that lunch need not be a sandwich. Consider packing a leg of chicken, a small tomato, cucumber strips, low-sodium bread or cookies, and fresh fruit. Coffee, tea or milk complete the menu.

Memory lane drives her crazy

By ERMA BOMBECK

My mother is going to drive me crazy.

She has this habit of walking down memory lane and once she's there can't recall the names of the people or the places.

It's like living with Wink Martindale.

It's easy for her, she can just ask a question and then pick up her life and go on, but I'm stuck with the challenge of coming up with the answer or admitting that senility has set in.

She was watching an old movie on television while I was reading a magazine the other night when she said, "Isn't the inspector's name . . . oh, you know!"

I looked up from the magazine just as the scene changed. "What did he look like?" I asked.

"You know who he is. He's in all the old movies. Never the lead but . . ."

"E. G. Marshall? Aldo Ray? Leon Ames? Sebastian Cabot? Sterling Hayden? Broderick Crawford? Dennis O'Keefe?"

"No, he's funny."

"No, no. He married that girl who always wore tights and danced and was a dead ringer for . . . what was her name? '

"Ann Miller? Judy Garland? Betty Grable?"

"No, her last name begins with a D."

"Wrong. It was Mitzi Gaynor."

"That doesn't begin with a D," I said irritably.

"I lied. So, it's not important. Just forget it."

Around 11, the ringing of the phone jolted me out of a sound sleep. The voice at the other end of the line said, "It was Lyle Talbot. He's the one who played opposite the guy . . . you know . . . who was always the comical sidekick in Westerns with tobacco juice running down his chin. I'll think of it tomorrow. I'm sleepy. Good night."

All night I was to stare at the ceiling mumbling, "Edgar Buchanan, Gabby Hayes, Smiley Burnett, Percy Kilbride, Noah Beery, Alan Hale ..." She had done it again!

Texas Tech professors design earth home

LUBBOCK — In the footsteps of pioneer forefathers, the modern plainsman may one day scoop a hole out of his level land, plant part of his house in it and have a more energy efficient and economical modern home.

Such an earth-protected home, say Texas Tech University researchers, would be warmer in winter and cooler in summer and could provide better shelter against storms, more privacy and lower maintenance costs.

"Our main objective is to save homeowners money. Storm protection would be the icing on the cake," he said.

These natural, earth-sheltered homes, indirect descendants of the dugout houses that once dotted the Plains, are not cliff dwellings or cellars but structures that can be built on flat sites and can be as attractive as any contemporary home.

Behr and Dr. Ernst W. Kiesling, chairman of the Department of Civil Engineering, are setting out to prove so by developing a design for such a home.

The research team is working with houses partly above the ground to follow building codes to the letter, Behr said. Codes require a window of a certain size in every bedroom. Behr said completely underground homes cannot easily meet these codes.

In addition, the researchers are concerned with marketability, because they want their innovations to be accepted by the home-buying public. Popular features to consider are natural lighting, exterior views and curb appeal, the engineer said.

"We can create earth-sheltered houses that give no clues that they are earth-sheltered when you walk into them," Behr said. "However, to be marketable, they must be made competitive in terms of initial costs."

He said the majority of the estimated two or three thousand earth-sheltered homes either completed or in the planning, design or construction phase in this country last year were custom homes.

A basic aim of the Texas Tech project is to make such sheltered, energy-saving housing affordable and applicable to a wide variety of conventional residences so it may be a more feasible alternative to sky-rocketing energy costs for the average consumer.

Final designs for a flat site home will be presented to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Nov. 28. Behr said if the designs are approved by HUD, construction of a flat-site earth-sheltered house in the Lubbock area will follow.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Keep windows from fogging

DEAR HELOISE:

It's cold weather time again (at least where I live) which means I won't be able to see out my windows anymore till springtime.

I don't keep the heat over 68 degrees but I always have drippy, steamy condensation on every window in my apartment.

It's very irritating. Worse than that, the moisture encourages the growth of mold along the sills.

I can't do any major reconstruction in the apartment but isn't there something I can do? — Kathi Pistro

+ + +

The drawing you sent indicates your windows are already properly insulated, so perhaps the problem is too much moisture in the air inside your apartment, which leads to excessive condensation on the windows.

If you have a vent fan in the kitchen and bath, use them to carry off some of the moisture, especially when cooking, bathing, drying clothes or running the dishwasher.

Another thing you might try is to wipe the condensation off the windows, then use a facial tissue or two and apply undiluted liquid dishwashing detergent to the glass, as evenly as possible. Use another facial tissue and wipe off any excess.

The windows may be fuzzy looking at first, but will soon clear, however the moisture may still accumulate around the windows sills so you will have to continue mopping it up.

To discourage the growth of mold, go over the sills periodically with a cloth or sponge dipped in a solution of bleach and water.

I do hope the above suggestions help solve your problem, Kathi. One thing for sure — you'll probably have the cleanest windows in town....— Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: Need a toothpick holder? I did, and wanted one with a lid to keep the toothpicks clean.

After looking for one in stores to no avail, I thought of something I had that was just right. A bouillon cube container.

It is the right height for the toothpicks to stand upright and it looks neat, too. Just remove any labels prior to using. — N.W.S.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

To save my arthritic self needless floor-mopping I do this: When I see a spot on my light color vinyl, it may be only a shadow, so I just eye it for a moment. If it doesn't go away then I clean it up.

If it wiggles, I step on it! — Love, Bobbs

+ + +

It was such a delight to hear from you again, Bobbs, and to know you haven't lost your sense of humor. Thanks for brightening my day... — Hugs, Heloise

+ + +

DEAR HELOISE Here's an idea I hit upon after cleaning up another box of baking soda which had gotten spilled in the refrigerator.

I took a plastic container (the kind soft margarine comes in), filled it with baking soda, then punched several holes in the lid.

Popped the lid on the margarine tub and, presto!, a refrigerator deodorant that's spillproof, yet still effective. — S.G.

Members to vote on admitting women

NEW YORK (AP) — The directors of the Explorers Club, a 75-year-old international association of scientists, explorers and "rugged individualists," have recommended the admission of women.

Tuesday's recommendation will go to the Explorers Club's 3,000 members for a ratification vote during the next few months, according to a spokesman.

The board recommendation followed the 75th anniversary dinner last week at which marine biologist Sylvia Earle was one of 10 people who received Lowell Thomas awards for excellence in exploration.

Miss Earle was cited for breaking the world's record for undersea diving earlier this year. She dove 1,250 feet and walked on the floor of the Pacific Ocean off the coast of Hawaii.

Other recipients of Thomas awards included Cornell University astronomer Carl Sagan, astronaut Edgar Mitchell and balloonists Maxie and Kris Anderson.

Club members have included such notables as Teddy Roosevelt and Charles Lindberg.

New evidence produced on birth control pills

NEW YORK, N.Y — Research data presented at a press seminar supports evidence that low-dose combinations of estrogen and progesterone in birth control pills can reduce the risk of high blood pressure, blood clotting and elevated cholesterol levels associated with high-dose formulations.

Studies at medical centers across the U.S. with Ovcon-35, which contains 0.4 mg. of norethindrone and .035 mg. of ethinyl estradiol, confirm the findings presented at the seminar by Harry Rudel, MD, of Metropolitan Hospital in Mexico City and Morris Notelovits, MD of the University of Florida, Gainesville.

Allergy to aftershave

A concentration of musk ambrette, a fragrance material commonly used in cosmetics, can cause an itching, crusting, red rash on skin exposed to light, according to a report in the "Journal of the American Academy of Dermatology."

There has been an increase in the use of toiletries by men and in the concentration of musk ambrette used in aftershave lotions, according to the report. Two patients found allergic to the substance remained sensitive to light long after they stopped using aftershave lotion containing musk ambrette.

Children of alcoholic parents have problems

Children of alcoholics experience additional problems in younger years and find themselves "flattened by emotional turmoil in mid-life," according to an article in "Psychiatric News." A substantial number become alcoholics the article reports.

Impairment of such children may be minimal or severe but early intervention and treatment is likely to lessen severe forms of impairment which may include "inhibition of feeling, overachievement, and excessive taking care of others." Emotional illness, and antisocial behavior can be altered, a session of the American Orthopshchiatric Association's recent annual meeting was told.

In a report on the session in "Psychiatric News", the three authors of the paper presented stated that "untreated and left to ripen into adulthood, any of these problems — in addition to being a personal and family tragedy — can result in economic loss to society."

More reasons to lose weight

The overweight individual may develop premature arthritis and intense heel pain, according to the president of the American Podiatry Association.

The excessively overweight person frequently suffers from premature, degenerative arthritis because of the added wear and tear on the bones and joints of the feet, Dr. William F. Munsey told the APA's Annual Meeting in Hollywood, Florida in August. "The obese person often suffers from ingrown toenails caused by excessive flesh around the nails, and athlete's foot, brought on by the increased perspiration that results from tight-fitting shoes. Corns, calluses and a higher degree of arch problems, also afflict the obese, according to Dr. Munsey.

DEAR ABBY

Real estate wife may lose her home

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: How can I get the message to my mother (age 49) that if she doesn't start spending more time with her husband (he's 51), her marriage could be in trouble.

Dad has always been an excellent provider, so Mother never had to work. Well, two years ago, Mother got bored and started selling real estate. I respect Mother for doing her own thing, and she's good at it, but daytime appointments should be enough. Now she's seeing clients in the evening, too, so Dad has to shift for himself.

Last night Mom was working again, so my husband and I invited Dad, a very handsome man, to have dinner out with us. We ran into Peggy, a beautiful blonde I went to college with. Peggy joined us for a while and lost no time in announcing that she's newly divorced. She really came on to Dad, and he lapped it up. She mentioned where she was working, and I could see Dad making a mental note of it. Abby, he's not a dirty old man—he's lonely and neglected.

So how does a 28-year-old daughter tell her mother to start acting more like a wife and less like a real estate agent?—WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Just tell her what you told me—in exactly the same way—and if she's smart, you won't have to draw her any blueprints.

DEAR ABBY: I'm madly in love with a guy named Freddy. It was love at first sight. I had car trouble on my way home from work, and he stopped to help me. I treated him to a hamburger, then we went to my place and he stayed all night. (It's not what you think. He slept on the floor.)

I know it sounds awfully fast, because two weeks ago I didn't even know him and now he wants to marry me. He's 24 and I'm 20.

There is only one problem, Abby. Freddy is crazy about disco and I hate it. I'm not a very good dancer to begin with, and that loud music gives me a headache. Freddy is a fantastic dancer and he's trying to get me to learn, but I really don't care for it. You see, I'm sort of against dancing (I'm from a strict Baptist family), and I'm also against going to places where there is drinking. Freddy likes to go to discos, and even though he's not a big drinker he'll have one or two because he has to order something.

Please don't think I'm a stick-in-the-mud, Abby. I'm not. I just don't care for disco and drinking. I really love Freddy, but I wonder if a marriage can work with a man who wants to disco every night when I'd rather stay home and watch TV.—LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT

DEAR LOVE: Take a second look, and a third, and a fourth. If it's really love, it will last. In the meantime, I vote for a long engagement.

DEAR ABBY: My wife has always been jealous of the women I worked with. She said she knew she wasn't as pretty or smart as they were. Abby, I never put her down or made comparisons. I was a good husband and came directly home every night. I never mentioned any woman I worked with, but that didn't matter. We got to fighting over little things continually.

Abby, I love my wife, so I went to someone for help. He told me that a man can make his wife feel pretty and loved, or ugly and unloved. He asked me how many little gifts I bought her other than the expected ones for birthdays and Christmases. I said "None, but I don't have much extra money." He said, "You could get the extra money if you wanted some fishing equipment, couldn't you?" I had to agree I could.

He then asked me when I last paid her a compliment. I said I couldn't remember. He said, "Think of something to praise her for. Her cooking—or the way she looks." He said, "Unexpected gifts and compliments are to a woman what a raise in salary is to a man! It makes her feel appreciated."

The man I talked to was not a minister or a marriage counselor. He was my father, who had been happily married to my mother for 48 years. I took his advice, and my wife and I are a lot happier now.—LEARNED AT 45

CLUB NEWS

Aerobic dancing demonstration made before club

CONTEMPORY STUDY CLUB

Mrs. Jack Blake was hostess and Mrs. William Adam was co-hostess for the meeting of the Contempory Study Club.

In continuance of this year's theme "Celebrate or Tolerate," the program for "The Body" was presented by Terri Jenson of Odessa, an instructor of aerobic dancing. Ms. Jenson stressed proper exercise in logical sequence from warm ups, through aerobic dancing to cooling down for the best results and a healthy approach for physical fitness.

COUNCIL OF THE MIDLAND GARDEN CLUBS INC.

Dr. Austin Stockton, extension horticulturist, will present a program on "Bed Preparation" at a seminar from 9:30 to 11:30 Tuesday in Hogan Park's Activities Building, announced Mrs. Keith Somerville, president, at a meeting of the Council of the Midland Garden Clubs, Inc. The seminar will be sponsored by the council and the Midland County Agent.

Mrs. Somerville also read a letter of appreciation from the Midland Human Relations Council for the donation of furniture and other items used by the council at Lancaster Garden Center.

Marie Spencer reported on information received from the councils of the Amarillo and Lubbock garden clubs. She noted that the City of Lubbock owns the building and pays the staff of the Lubbock Garden Clubs' headquarters, according to the letter.

Mrs. Somerville announced she will attend the District I Board meeting Nov. 10 in Lubbock. She also announced the Texas Garden Clubs Inc. Annual Fall Convention to be held this week in Amarillo at the Amarillo Hilton. The hostess group is the Amarillo Council of Garden Clubs, Inc. and the theme is "Panhandle Pot Pourri".

The District I Southern Zone meeting will be Nov. 13 at the First Methodist Church, 744 Jaffe St., in Kermit. Registration will be at 9 a.m., with assembly begining at 10 a.m. Cost for the meeting and lunch will be $7 if members pre-register before Nov. 7 and $7.50 after Nov. 7. Registrations may be mailed to: Mrs. John Gammill, Box 919, Kermit, Tex. 79745.

The next board meeting will be Nov. 24 in the home of Mrs. Somerville, 1713 Douglas.

TEXAS EXTENSION HOMEMAKERS ASSOCIATION

The Texas Extension Homemakers Association held its 54th Annual Convention in San Antonio last week, with business sessions, work shops and a banquet at which officers and district directors for the 1981-82 year were installed.

Midland County had three delegates, Bonnie Bradley, Paula Shepherd and Teddy Stickney participating in the business session with Rae Dunn, Mari Tidmore, Vada Haile, Virginia Bryant, Margaret Nutt, Nora Stanley and Eileen Smith as visitors.

At the banquet held the last evening of the convention, the elected officers and district directors were installed for their two year term. Mary Evelyn Bryant of Midland was installed as district director at this ceremony.

During the convention, the participants were entertained by "Heloise," newspaper columnist, speaking on household hints and the unusual letters she has received from persons suggesting new and old ideas on everything.

They also heard Jane Segerstrom of Houston on "Look Like Yourself and Love It", a discussion on your special coloring and personality qualities and how to combine these qualities to be yourself.

MIDLAND ASSOCIATION FOR CHILDREN WITH LEARNING DISABILITIES

Dr. Samuel Kirk, expert in education, gave the keynote address at the 16th Annual Conference of the Association for Children with Learning Disabilities in San Antonio recently.

Representing the Midland chapter of the association at the conference were Jimmie DeBusk, newly elected president, and Mrs. J.R. Kelly, Midland High School learning disabilities teacher.

The conference provided workshops in such areas as the learning disabilities pre-school child, how to handle problems of learning disabilities adolescents and programs for learning disabilities adults. Other workshops focused on new research findings and methods in the teaching of reading and math.

Much emphasis was placed on experience-based education. The meeting provided a list of new sources of materials and information which Mrs. DeBusk and Mrs. Kelly plan to implement and share with other parents and teachers of learning disabilities children.

The next meeting of the Midland Association for Children with Learning Disabilities will be on the Oct. 27. All interested persons are invited to attend. Details of meeting time and place will be announced at a later date.

OLDTIMERS BRIDGE CLUB

The Oldtimers Bridge Club met for lunch and bridge at the Allison Bridge Center with Peggy Barry and Kathy Chandler as hostesses.

Juanita Hodges won high score, with Louise Morris winning second and Maxine Good taking third. Sunny Davis won the special prize.

NEWCOMERS GARDEN CLUB

The Newcomers Garden Club met in the home of Mrs. D. A. Warren. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Erven Fisher and Mrs. Charles Love.

Carla Dulling was a guest for a program on "Show and Tell."

Actress to address Christian Women

The event will be from 11:45 a.m. to 1:45 p.m.

Ms. George has worked off-Broadway and toured with the New York Shakespeare Company. She played several seasons of summer stock in the East, at the Playhouse in the Park in Philadelphia and at the Arena Stage in Washington. She has also presented her own one-woman show at the Grammercy Arts Theatre in New York, at the Dallas Theatre III and many civic clubs and other organizations around the country.

Jeanette Cliff George

Her film debut was in World Wide Pictures "The Hiding Place," in which she portrayed Corrie ten Boom, a Dutch lady who saved the lives of scores of Jews in her native Holland during the Nazi occupation. For her work in the film, Mrs. George was nominated for a Golden Apple Award by the Hollywood Women's Press Club. She was also nominated by the Hollywood Foreign Press Association for a Golden Globe Award and by the British Academy of Arts and Sciences as Most Promising Newcomer of 1977.

A career in performing theatre is only part of her life. She is equally well known as a Bible teacher, speaker, monologist and playwright. She has taught Bible classes to small groups of 10 seated around family fireplaces, and to hundreds crowded into public lecture halls.

At home in Houston, Mrs. George is producing manager for the After Dinner Players, a Christian drama company which offers Bible-based plays for churches, schools and theatres throughout the nation.

Mrs. George lives in Houston with her husband, Lorraine M. George, a construction engineer and businessman. She has completed her first book, "Some Run With Feet of Clay," released by Fleming H. Revell in January, 1978.

Also scheduled for the Christian Women's Club luncheon is a presentation by Bev Madry on "Decorating for the Holiday" from the Final Touch. A special program of song will be presented by Ty and Linda Morris.

The club has no formal membership, is interdenominational and is open to all interested women.

Every state has a Mrs. America hopeful

The search is on in every state for the woman who may ultimately be chosen as Mrs. America 1981. From each state-level Mrs. America Pageant one woman will be selected to represent her state in the national Mrs. America finals.

Entries are now being accepted. Any married woman, at least eighteen years of age, a U.S. citizen, and a resident of their state for a minimum of six months is eligible.

The state and national Mrs. America is selected predominantly on personality, poise and beauty competition. Careful consideration is given to family life and participation in community affairs.

"Mrs. America" was created to recognize the 51 million wives in this country and seeks to reflect their views, aspirations and versatility of today's American wife.

The winner of the state Mrs. America title will be awarded an all-expense paid trip to the national Mrs. America Pageant to be held in Las Vegas, Nev. The pageant will be nationally televised.

Each state winner will spend a week in Las Vegas, hosted by the Hilton Hotel.

For futher information and an entry blank, at no obligation, write at once to Mrs. America 1981 Pageant, c/o Bob Strebelow, Nationwide Advertising Service Inc., Cleveland Plaza Towers, Cleveland, Ohio 44115.

Holiday Trimmings

begin in the kitchen

Betty Ambrose displays some of the decorations she will be teaching students to make in the Christmas Decorating class offered through Midland College. Students may take the class on Tuesday or Thursday nights from 7-9 p.m. beginning this week. Cost for the course is $10, with students providing their own materials. Ms. Ambrose, who teaches homemaking at Lee High School, suggested interested students call Midland College to pre-register and to get a list of the supplies needed for the first class meeting. (Staff Photo)

The kichen is a treasure house of natural ingredients and tools for crafts: sugar, flour, eggs and spices, baking sheets, cookie cutters and, of course, the oven. What better place to begin making holiday trimmings for the home.

Contemporary holiday decorations reflect the same appreciation of nature and life as traditional ones from centuries past. Recipes today combine modern techniques and natural materials in a variety of lifelike designs to make handmade ornaments and displays with a timeless quality.

Old-fashioned decorations such as Frosted Grapes and Marzipan Fruits, and Stained Glass, Sugar Snowflakes and Meringue Angel ornamanets bring warmth and cheer to the holiday home, and just as important, cooks and craftsmen alike will enjoy making them.

Trim your holiday home with ornaments and displays from your kitchen. For your copy of "C an H Sugar Kitchen Holiday Trimmings," simply send 25 cents with your name and address to: C and H Sugar Kitchen, Holiday Trimmings, Dept. FF, P.O. Box 1170, Arlington Heights, IL, 60006.

STAINED GLASS WINDOWS

1 recipe Gingerbread Cookie Dough
1½ cups granulated sugar
¾ cup light corn syrup
6 tablespoons water
¼ teaspoon almond extract
liquid food colors

Roll out half the dough at a time on well-floured surface to ⅛-inch thickness. Cut dough with 2½ to 3-inch cookie cutters. Lift onto lightly greased baking sheet. With smaller cutter or knife, cut out centers (to be filled later with candy syrup). Be sure to leave cookie borders intact. Bake at 350 degrees for 7 to 9 minutes or until lightly browned at edges. Cool on pan 5 minutes; transfer to wire rack to finish cooling. Place baked cookies on clean well-greased cookie sheets. Slip a piece of thread through the cut-out of each cookie to act as hanger later.

For syrup, first warm 3 or 4 ovenproof glass measuring cups in 250 degree-oven. Combine sugar, corn syrup and water in saucepan. Cook, stirring over medium-high heat, until sugar dissolves. Cook without stirring until syrup registers 290 degrees on candy thermometer. Turn heat to very low. Stir in extract. Working quickly, spoon ¼ to ⅓ syrup into a warmed cup. Tint with food color as desired. Hold cup of syrup with pot holder and pour syrup in a thin stream to fill cookie cut-outs. Repeat with remaining syrup, tinting it other colors in other cups. Let cool to harden. To remove cookies from baking sheet, gently twist. Makes 4 to 4½ dozen ornaments.

GINGERBREAD COOKIE DOUGH

6 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup dark brown sugar, packed
1 egg
½ cup toasted wheat germ
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground ginger
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon baking soda
1½ cups all-purpose flour

Cream butter with sugar until blended. Beat in egg, wheat germ, cinnamon, ginger, salt and baking soda. Gradually mix in flour to form a dough.

HALLOWEEN SANDWICH

HALLOWEEN SUPPER DESSERT

Secretaries Association to give seminar Nov. 6

The Permian Chapter of the National Secretaries Association (International), will present a one-day workshop Nov. 6 at the new Midland Center, with Angeline Krout, CPS, leading the seminar on the topic of Successful Working Relationships.

Registration forms are being mailed out and registration at the door will be welcomed. Registration time is 8-9 a.m.

Mrs. Krout, member of the National Secretaries Association (International) Seminar Workshop Committee, manages her own secretarial services office after retirement from Federal Government Service covering 33 years. The most recent assignment was as administrative assistant in the office of Commanding Officer, U.S. Coast Guard, Baltimore.

She is past International President of the National Secretaries Association (International) and a member of the International Platform Association, an organization of public speakers founded by Daniel Webster.

During the Johnson, Nixon and Ford administrations, Mrs. Krout was guest at the White House on four occassions. On one occasion she was presented with a gold replica of the Presidential Seal for leadership in professional organizations.

Cost for the seminar will be $30 for non-NSA members, $20 for NSA members and $15 for teachers and students. The cost includes lunch.

Angeline Krout

Light frost does some damage

By CHARLES GREEN
Midland County Extension Agent—Agriculture

A light frost touched the county this past week, doing some damage to tender garden plants in some locations.

Cotton producers, who are already for a killing frost to defoliate cotton and allow mechanical harvest, generally reported the frost too light to be of much help to them. Some growers have been applying harvest-aid chemicals to cotton, but it has been taking two or more applications of increased rates to satisfactorily dry the plants. It appears that harvest will not get in full swing until we get a good killing freeze.

If you were lucky enough to escape frost damage the other night, here are some tips on how to protect tender plants in case of a harder freeze.

Temperatures near the freezing mark or barely below (down to 28 degrees) can often be withstood by plants if they are in a protected location, such as on the southside of the house and if they're covered with some type of good insulating material. While this may seem like a lot of hassle, it can be worthwhile if it means tomatoes will ripen or the broccoli heads won't be partially frozen.

There's a temptation to protect plants by covering them with plastic. A single layer of clear plastic doesn't do much heating insulating — it can be even colder under the plastic.

It is best to cover plants with an old blanket or similar material, possibly stretched over a frame to avoid weighting down the plants and cover with a layer of plastic to keep out the cold wind.

Another technique used in mild freezes, when it's only going to dip 2 to 3 degrees below 32, is irrigation. If plants are sprinkler irrigated throughout the night and during the freezing time, a warming effect of 2 to 3 degrees can be expected. When a more severe freeze is predicted, below 28, plants should be brought inside for the night or you can put a heating source beneath the cover. A light bulb is usually sufficient under good insulation.

If you have frost sensitive plants in a bed near the house, another idea is to tie plastic from the eaves of the house down to the ground and put a small electric heater inside this makeshift greenhouse. It's amazine how many plants you can stuff into such a small area and keep them from freeezing.

Another good natural frost protection for tender plants is water. Keep your soil moist since it will add to the compactness of the soil, which in turn will increase heat absorption. Adding 10 percent moisture to the top six inches of soil increases heat holding capacity by 50 percent.

All of this protection may seem to be futile, but remember in West Texas we might have a hard frost in October or November and not have another for several weeks. A few nights of protection might enable you to extend the harvest of warm season vegetables, such as tomatoes on into the Thanksgiving season.

Gardeners who had sweet potatoes that were nipped by the frost should dig them immediately. Sweet potatoes should be dug when the vines turn yellow, but before frost has killed the vines. Even slight frost will damage sweet potatoes, although it may not become evident until after several weeks of storage.

Sweet potatoes are a special case when it comes to handling and storage.

Immediately after harvest, the sweet potato should be cured. The curing process allows a thick, secondary skin known as the periderm to form beneath the thin, outer skin. The most rapid curing takes place at 85 degrees and 85 percent humidity. This curing process should last about one week. The curing is completed when the skin no longer slips under finger pressure to expose the wet, raw interior of the potato.

After the curing is finished, the sweet potatoes should be stored at 60 degrees F. with a relative humidity of 75 to 80 percent. There is danger in letting the sweet potatoes stay in the soil during the fall. (If you have heard about cutting the vines off and leaving the potatoes in the ground.)

When the soil temperature drops below 55 degrees, the sweet potato roots will be chilled and the surface skin will begin to break down and be more susceptible to rot.

Bradley says running optional

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley says a 1982 run for California's governorship is "an option" if he is re-elected as mayor.

Bradley made the comment Thursday as he campaigned for President Carter in San Francisco, hoping to offset the endorsement of Ronald Reagan by several black leaders last week.

The mayor of the nation's second largest city, the 62-year-old Bradley hinted he would like to become the country's first black governor. "In all candor, that option is open," he said.

Doctors vote to cease strike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Interns and resident doctors voted to end their four-day strike at San Francisco General Hospital and immediately went back to work.

Movies make a big splash

PEKING (AP) — Drive-in movies haven't come to China yet, but "row-in movies" are making a splash in the lake areas of Hubei province, the official Xinhua news agency says.

Mobile film projection teams set up screens at lakeside and peasants row over to watch films from their boats, the news agency explained.

It said there are about 3,700 such projection teams working in rural areas of the central Chinese province, where film shows are more common than television.

Officials adamant

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Despite a campus protest, Kansas State University officials say they will not withdraw a speaking invitation to former Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith.

Minority students and some faculty members held a news conference, urging the university's administration to withdraw its invitation to Smith to speak Oct. 31 as part of the Landon lecture series, a public issues forum.

Smith symbolized white minority rule to many Africans during his period as prime minister of Rhodesia, which is now known as Zimbabwe and is undeq black rule.

A university spokesman said the invitation to Smith would stand in the interest of "freedom of speech."

COOL IT - WITH SHADES

Running an air conditioner or fan isn't the only way to keep your house cool in the summer. Pulling down window shades can also do the job. Energy experts at Iowa State University give some figures that support the use of shades in dollars and cents.

Properly installed and used window shades can block up to 63 percent of the sun's heat. That's a big money saver if you air condition your home. It can save you 21 cents per dollar of cooling costs.

These estimates are based on standard window shades that cost less than $6 each. That's a lot cheaper than running an air conditioner all summer.

So, in the hot summer months, simply pull shades down during the sunny period of the day to deflect the hot rays. This will help prevent heat from building up inside the home.

Just remember to raise the shades during the evenings and early mornings. Then cooler air can flow indoors. The way energy costs are rising, every penny you can save by using "natural" energy savers counts.

If you have any questions on this subject or any other aspect of real estate, feel free to phone or drop in at DON HARVEY Realtors 702 Andrews Hwy. Phone 683-5333. We're here to help! Come in for your free copy of "Home for Living" magazine.

Stumping is no barrel of laughs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The story you are about to read is about campaign humor. It is a short story.

It begins with Jimmy Carter worrying about the "Hollywoodizing" of Washington, should a certain ex-actor become president:

"I see Pennsylvania Avenue turning into the Avenue of the Stars.

"I see the most important news personality in America is Rona Barrett.

"And then I wake up and I realize immediately it's only a bad dream."

Then there's Ronald Reagan's way of not making personal attacks:

"You know, it's something to have a brother who is obviously a bumbler and a buffoon and yet I have to give him credit. Billy Carter hasn't complained once."

And when Carter asks Americans to trust him, Reagan tells "the spoon joke." He is reminded, Reagan says, of the Ralph Waldo Emerson line: "The more he talked about his honor, the faster we counted the spoons."

Franklin Roosevelt gave us the New Deal, Reagan says, "Harry Truman gave us the Fair Deal. Now Jimmy Carter has given us a misdeal."

That's about as funny as it gets on the 1980 campaign trail, presidential version. John Anderson, by his own staff's admission, is a poor contributor to campaign humor. Anderson is so single-minded that he once failed to notice that 40 reporters were wearing lobster bibs while covering a campaign speech.

The best campaigner of the lot — by comedic standards — is Vice President Walter Mondale.

Ronald Reagan, he says, bears the same relation to the American working man as Colonel Sanders does to the American chicken.

He describes Reagan changes in long-held positions as "a strategy of selective political amnesia" and criticizes Reagan's admiring references to Franklin Delano Roosevelt with: "If Reagan wants to emerge from his cocoon, let him emerge as a hero of his own party — Coolidge, Harding and Nixon."

Mondale also thinks Republicans "are spending so much they are helping the economy" and lists the groups backing Reagan's election as "the Flat Earth Society, the Committee to Stamp Out Dancing, and Americans United Against Charles Darwin."

Along that line, the vice president commends Reagan for airing doubts about Darwin's Theory of Evolution, "thereby picking up a hot potato last dropped by William Jennings Bryan."

At times he comments "This wouldn't have happened if Reagan were alive."

Mercifully there are few examples of George Bush's attempts at campaign humor, but Reagan has a well-used (some think well-aged) supply of bons mots.

At a $100-a-plate lunch he said that "if our side doesn't win, that's going to be the regular price of lunch." And he told one audience, "I'm sure you ladies think when you go to the market it would be cheaper to eat money."

After Carter criticized Reagan for saying the country is in a depression, Reagan accused the president of hiding behind a dictionary.

"If he wants a definition, I'll give him one," said Reagan. "A recession is when your neighbor loses his job. A depression is when you lose your job. And recovery is when Jimmy Carter loses his."

Carter retorted that he has observed Reagan, muzzle in place, being led around by a group of senior advisers. "I must say they're all doing a good job," said Carter. "When he speaks you can hardly see their lips move."

Professional gag writers, such as they are, were at their best when Carter and Reagan appeared together last week, in white tie, at the head table of the annual Al Smith dinner in New York.

Carter, referring to Reagan's newly announced support of federal aid to New York City, said he had advised Mayor Edward Koch not to get too close to the Californian.

Alamo offering dance classes

Alamo YMCA is offering Western Dance classes starting Nov. 5 on Wednesday evenings from 7:30-8:30 for beginners and 8:30-9:30 for advanced dancers.

Fees for the four-week classes are $7.50 for Alamo Y members and $15 for non-members.

Instructor Leasa Tenison will teach the Schottishe, Cotton-eyed Joe and other dances.

Registration for classes will start Monday and end Nov. 5. More information can be obtained by telephoning the Y at 694-2528 or come by 901 N. Midland Drive.

Karate class to start

The Alamo YMCA is offering a karate class starting Nov. 4, meeting on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6:15-7:45.

Fees for the class are $18 for Y members and $30 for non-members.

Curtis Abernathy, instructor, has taught karate for several years at both the Alamo and Central YMCAs. He is a blackbelt and his classes concentrate not only on the skills of using hands and feet, but also on the rules and philosophy of the sport.

Registration for the class takes place Oct. 27 through Nov. 3. For further information call the Alamo Y at 694-2528 or come by 901 N. Midland Drive.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Exercise won't correct vision

Dear Dr. Solomon: Is it possible to correct one's vision by doing eye exercises? I am very nearsighted and have not been able to become accustomed to contact lenses. Yet I am very active and dislike wearing glasses when playing tennis or racquetball. Would exercise strengthen my eyes to the point that I could discard my glasses? — Ron

Dear Ron: There is no evidence that eye defects such as nearsightedness, farsightedness or astigmatism — conditions associated with the structure of the eye — lend themselves to correction through exercise. Stories to the contrary have no basis in fact.

Occasionally, a person's vision may begin to improve as he or she gets older. If such improvement occurs shortly after a course of eye exercises, the person understandably may conclude that the two events were related. The timing in such cases, however, is purely coincidental.

One result of eye exercises may be to train the patient to interpret blurred images on examination charts more accurately; however, this leaves the individual's vision unaffected. In fact, such conditioning may have unexpected adverse effects by creating a feeling of false security in a person whose vision remains as bad as it ever was.

This phenomenon was seen in a study of more than 100 patients at the Johns Hopkins University, none of whom had improved vision as a result of eye exercises. While some were able to interpret the letters on a chart more accurately, they remained as nearsighted as ever.

The reaso for the lack of success of eye exercises in correcting vision is the fact that the most common impairments are caused by the size and shape of the eye itself. Nearsightedness, for example, occurs when the eyeball is too long in relation to its ability to focus, while farsightedness results when the eyeball is too short in relation to its focusing power. These defects are not subject to cure through exercises.

For some conditions, reliance on exercises while delaying proper medical treatment can prove disastrous. Glaucoma, for example, can be arrested if treatment is begun at an early stage. Delay in treatment while the patients experiments with eye exercises can very well result in loss of vision that can never be regained.

The same is true of cataracts, a condition marked by clouding of the lens of the eye. Treatment for cataracts is surgical removal of the lens and its replacement with an artificial lens. No amount or kind of exercise can be successful in removing the cloudiness from the lens.

Neither are eye exercises of any value in treating color blindness. When a person is enabled to distinguish colors, it is the mind that has been training to do so; the vision remains unaffected.

The one eye defect for which exercise may prove beneficial is strabismus (or cross-eyes). However, not all patients with strabismus are helped by these exercises (called orthoptic training), and other forms of treatment, including surgery, often are necessary.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

State employees union claims discrimination

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A suit filed by the Texas State Employees Union alleges a state agency discriminated against an employee for joining the union.

The suit also alleges the agency and two others refused to allow the union to use their facilities for meetings and refused to allow a union official to represent two state employees at grievance hearings.

An Oct. 30 hearing was set on the union's request for a temporary injunction.

Billy Zachary of Rowlett, near Dallas, contended the Department of Highways and Public Transportation demoted him because he joined the union.

Two other state employees who joined the union in the suit are Mike Echols of Houston, an eligibility worker for the Department of Human Resources, and Martha Scott, also of Houston, switchboard operator for the department.

The third agency named in the suit is the Texas Department of Health.

Zachary, an 11-year employee who is classified as a maintenance technician, said after he informed his supervisor in mid-August he had joined the union, he was told to turn in his keys to a pickup and to the agency's warehouse at Rockwall.

Zachary said he was reassigned from "lead man" to the sign crew, and no justifications were given. He said personnel evaluations which had rated him "very good" and "good" in July fell to "fair" and "average" in September.

Californians can hire private judges

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For the going rate of $500 a day, Californians who want quick, discreet trials can rent retired judges to decide their cases wherever and whenever they want. The decision is as binding as any regular court judgment.

"Tonight Show" host Johnny Carson opted to have a private judge try his lawsuit against the National Broadcasting Co. last year. Carson wanted out of his long-term contract, but neither he nor NBC wanted a lot of publicity. They also didn't want to wait months for a court date.

The two sides hired retired Judge Parks Stilwell, who agreed not to tell reporters where the trial would be held. Eventually, NBC and Carson settled on a new contract without going through a trial.

The unusual process is legally known as "general order of reference" and exists only in California, according to the American Bar Association.

It's been on the books since 1872 but wasn't used this way until 1976 when two Los Angeles lawyers, Hillel Chodos and Seth Hufstedler, were on opposite sides of a complex dispute between the operator of a medical-billing company and two other attorneys.

Using imagination and innovation, Chodos and Hufstedler (husband of Education Secretary Shirley Hufstedler) interpreted the long dormant civil code subsection to allow for what is now called the "rent-a-judge" system.

"We had a case that required a sophisticated judge and warranted prompt attention and privacy," Chodos said. "It also saved our clients five to 10 times the amount for legal fees."

Under the system, retired judges, who already receive pensions equal to 80 percent of their final salary after 20 years of service, charge about $100 an hour to hear a case. Fee payments are shared by both parties.

The subsection — which applies only to civil cases — provides for a trial outside the system by a referee, usually a retired judge, who is selected by both parties in the case. Both sides must also agree to procedures for presentation of the case.

A petition is made to the appropriate Superior Court which then signs a general order of reference allowing the case to be tried. The only document made public is the petition to seek a private trial and any judgment that results from it. The decision is subject to appeal, like any other judgment.

With a 70,000-case civil backlog in Los Angeles Superior Court alone, speed is one of the main reasons litigants opt for the rent-a-judge alternative.

"The median time to get to trial is about 50 and one-half months," said Richard Schauer, presiding Superior Court judge, who also noted that Los Angeles County is one of the most litigious areas in the country — "We are a county on wheels and accident cases tend to go to jury trials."

Lawyer Walter Weiss says the rent-a-judge system is quicker, cheaper and more convenient. "I find it very effective and it saves time and money in the long run because you don't waste time in the courthouse. Also you can try the case at different times, like during lunch hours or on weekends, in such places as the judge's office."

Another advantage is that litigants involved in complicated business or industrial cases can chose a retired jurist who is a specialist.

"I prefer to use order of reference whenever possible," said Chodos. "Sometimes judges are not sophisticated in a certain area. Lawyers prefer not to start with the ABCs of the matter."

Two big criticisms consistently crop up. One, opponents claim the system benefits only those who can afford to spend $500 to $750 a day for a judge. Two, they say the procedure could encourage secret trials that are closed to the public and the press.

Let's Set the Record Straight.

The Democrat nominee for District Judge, Pat Baskin, says that he "believes politics should be kept out of judicial offices."

. . . Then why did Baskin seek the nomination as a Democrat . . .?

. . . and having made that choice, why does Baskin continue to omit his Party label in his advertising?

Don't be misled -- Pat Baskin is a politician. He has been an advocate and liberal spokesman of the Democrat Party for many years. He has been the keynote speaker at a Midland County Democrat Convention. He has actively served the Party of Jimmy Carter, Ralph Yarborough, George McGovern and the Windfall Profits Tax.*

The 1980 Democrat Party platform:

- ☐ Urges the repeal of Right to Work laws
- ☐ Suppports the Salt II Treaty
- ☐ Endorses tighter gun control laws
- ☐ Opposes the passage of a Constitutional Amendment to require a balanced budget
- ☐ Advocates increasing the national deficit by an additional $12 billion to increase public sector employment.

The loyalty oath of the Democrat Party requires that the Party nominees support the Party's platform and all its candidates.

There are certain drawbacks involved in 'vacation certificates'

By LINDA TRUITT
Better Business Bureau
of the Permian Basin, Inc.

You may have received a "vacation certificate" as a result of being notified you had won a free prize from a local merchant. Or, maybe you were offered a vacation certificate from a local merchant who bought a package of six or more to use as a "good will" promotion. If you have a vacation certificate of this type, or have been approached to buy a vacation plan, there are certain risks involved that you should be aware of.

Usually, the offer entitles you to free hotel/motel accommodations in Las Vegas, Reno or Miami for three days and two nights. Meals and transportation are not included.

Reservations are made through the promoter — not the motel — and usually require a deposit. Since the certificate does not state the names of the hotels or motels used, the luxurious accommodations advertised may turn out to be a third-class motel located far off the beaten track.

Or, you may be forced to sit through an extended high-pressure sales pitch for real estate, products, or services before you are given your rooms keys, or refunded your depost. There have been reports that the reservations were not made by the promoter, leaving the vacationers without a place to stay.

The small print on the certificate will usually explain that the promoter has the right to reschedule if you desire to use your certificate on weekends, holidays or other peak periods, therefore making it virtually impossible for you to use your certificate. By continually refusing your requests for a specific vacation date, many promoters hope you will eventually give up.

Often a "fun book" or coupon book is available for an additional charge. It has been found that many of the coupons for free meals, drinks, discount gambling, etc., are limited to strange hours of the day such as 2 a.m. to 5 a.m. And while free drinks and food are often mentioned as a bonus, if you are "playing," drinks are offered free and many casinos offer free food such as hors d'oeurves.

With many of the coupons you have to spend your own money first; then the promoter will match it with an equal sum. It has been determined that with a typical standard vacation certificate coupon book you would have to spend as much as a $50 of your own money to get a $13.50 value in coupons.

Some vacation certificate offers are legitimate and disclose any limitations they might have. By following these guidelines you will avoid fewer surprises:

—Request the name of the hotel involved. Personally confirm your reservations (with the hotel) before leaving home.

Annual gem show slated

The 18th annual Gem and Mineral Show, sponsored by the Midland Gem and Mineral Society, will be held Nov. 1-2 at the Midland County Exhibit Building.

An interesting feature of the show will be display cases featuring many works of gold and silversmithing, lapidary and faceting provided by the members of the society. Cases are provided by members of neighboring societies and dealers.

Hourly door prizes are made and provided by club members. The highlight of the prizes is the grand prize, made by a club craftsman, which is given away on Sunday at the close of the show. The prize this year is a unique two-piece dual purpose "gem" of gold and topaz. The pendant is a 1.27 carat silver topaz set in 14 karat gold. The tie tac is a 2.75 carat silver topaz set in 14 karat gold. The pieces can be worn separately or combined as a single piece.

A part of the exhibition area is given over to the demonstrator-dealers, some of which are steam casting, gold-filled wire work, diamond cutting, channel work and silversmithing. There will be a demonstration area where club members will be demonstrating cabachon making and faceting.

According to Clifford Chapman, show chairman, the show hours will be from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Artworks recovered

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — Sculptures by Rodin and 11 paintings stolen by a former guard from the Jean Vinay Museum in St. Antoine de l'Abbaye have been recovered intact, police said.

The art works, valued at more than $700,000, were stolen April 19 and were recovered Thursday after the ex-guard at the museum voluntarily surrendered to police and confessed.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, October 26, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Actress Jaclyn Smith, who plays the lovely "Kelly" on TV's "Charlie's Angels," celebrates her birth on this day. Because you really care about doing a good job, you will find new success this year in almost every area of your life. Romance pursues you, and an important personal relationship will have greater depth, meaning. Where finances are concerned, be very thorough in checking details, facts and figures. Luck plays a role in future career development.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Although you may feel somewhat grouchy early in the day, a loved one's caring gesture transforms your mood. Try to let things progress at their own pace. A sense of humor will help!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A change of attitude improves the chances for successful romance. Public displays of jealousy are most unwelcome. Mate's preoccupation can be attributed to any number of things.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A different approach may be needed if a short but delightful romantic interlude is to develop into a more permanent relationship. Promises made in haste are apt to be regretted.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your first impression regarding a member of the opposite sex is apt to be correct. Proceed cautiously if considering a new investment of time, money.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Social life could slow down to a snail's pace. Touch base with relatives. Now is the time to make better use of your artistic talents. A hard worker, you could benefit from a relaxing hobby.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Friends, relatives share good news. Put more time and effort into romantic relationship. A change of scenery could give you a new career idea. Weigh the advantages and drawbacks of self-employment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A spiritual experience gives new insights. In a meeting with former romantic partner, the emphasis is on remaining calm and considerate. An old grievance is not worth pursuing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An encounter in late afternoon promises future rewards, but the road to romance could be both bumpy and circuitous. Reach out to those who can assist your efforts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Map out plans for the coming week and you will feel much more optimistic about financial affairs! A new acquaintance may surprise you with a small gift.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Spur-of-the-moment invitations and trips bring greater pleasure than carefully planned projects. A love relationship may seem to have more downs than ups right now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Those connected with the arts feel truly inspired today. Romance is heavenly, and past doubts seem to disappear in love's warm glow. An evening visit is great fun.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Tackle the problems that troubled you yesterday! Artistic energy is plentiful but should be used judiciously. Do not put too much stock in the promises of those you barely know.

Monday, October 27, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Actress Nanette Fabray celebrates her birth on this day. The ability to learn new things very quickly is a definite career, business advantage in the months just ahead. More interesting projects are available than in the recent past. The price for increased authority may be a high one in terms of longer hours at work, so be sure to seek mate's reaction to your taking on greater responsibility. A dedication to excellence marks everything you do!

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You are fortunate in your family situation but realize that pride in material possessions may be misplaced. Set a good example for youngsters by showing them how to share.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The projects you tackle today are apt to be quite successful. A favor will be granted without your even asking it. For a feeling of great contentment, spend the evening with loved ones.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Work seems more attractive now, largely because of a change of attitude in your associates. Curb unnecessary spending and urge mate to do the same. Investments require closer scrutiny.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Keep any personal recriminations out of a business discussion and use logic when trying to solve minor differences of opinion. Choose confidantes with extra care.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): An ability to write well is the key to greater success. Be sincere in your praise of associates. New responsibilities come your way and you will rise to the occasion. Higher-up expresses gratitude.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Influential people may be hard to track down today. Work on your own whenever practical. The end of a troubling relationship could signal the beginning of a happier, more productive period.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The job scene is active now, and you are enthusiastic about new developments. Be careful not to shortchange yourself where romance is concerned. Travel is part of a plan to boost earnings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Check addresses and phone numbers before starting on business trip, and allow extra time to reach appointments. Partner may be feeling a little low right now. Offer your support, understanding.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Concentrate on long-term obligations, making judicious use of your authority. A speculative venture will pay off big, giving cause for celebration.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Partner is talking sense. A change in routine would be good for both of you. The outcome of a financial matter will be better than imagined.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Someone who is under great stress requires very careful handling. Talk rather than lecture and an important relationship will show improvement. Mate's wishes should be given priority now.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A good day for trips designed to increase profits or productivity. Your intuition allows you to rise victorious from the bargaining table. Be kind but firm when handling teens.

It'll be a cold day when Citizens Savings gives away a fur coat or shotgun

Guess the time and date of the first freeze in Midland* and win your choice of a lady's fur coat (or equivalent gift certificate) or a 12-guage shotgun.

1st PRIZE - winner's choice of a lady's fur coat from Dunlap's, or equivalent gift certificate; or a 12 guage over-and-under Browning Citori shotgun from Sportman's Den. Prizes are on display at our 1100 Andrews Hwy. office.

2nd PRIZE - $50 savings account.

CONSOLATION PRIZE - $10 savings account or a thermometer (for the early bird whose guess was closest to 24 hours before the correct time).

*OFFICIAL RULES

1. The object is to predict the date, hour, and minute the temperature will first reach 32° F. this fall on the Citizens Savings time and temperature sign at the home office on Andrews Highway. This is one contest only, not a separate contest at each branch.
2. To enter the contest, YOU MUST SUBMIT YOUR ENTRY AT ONE OF OUR FOUR OFFICES: Home, Oakridge, Downtown, or Dellwood.
3. Anyone can enter except Citizens Savings' employees and members of their families. There is no fee, nothing to buy, and to enter, you are not required to have an account with Citizens Savings.
4. All entries submitted the day the temperature first reaches 32°F. will be INELIGIBLE. Your entry must be submitted at least one business day prior to the date you guess the temperature will first reach 32°F.
5. To be eligible, your entry must be submitted on an official entry form at one of our four offices.
6. You are limited to one entry per day at each office.
7. The correct prediction with the earliest entry date shall be declared the winner. In the event of a tie, a drawing will be held to determine the winner. Citizens Savings will be the sole judge of all winners; winners are limited to one prize each.
8. Official source for the minute when the temperature first reaches 32°F. will be the time and temperature sign at the Citizens Savings home office on Andrews Highway. It has been wired to stop when the temperature reaches 32°F. and will continue to flash the minute the 32°F. was attained until it has been recalibrated. In case of a sign malfunction, the sign at our Oakridge Branch (Wadley at Garfield) will be used as a substitute.
9. If no one predicts the exact minute or date the temperature first reaches 32°F., the nearest prediction will be judged the winner.
10. Illegible writing or incomplete entries will be disqualified at the sole discretion of the judges.
11. No prize substitutions other than the one listed will be considered.

Independent operators still undecided on gas strategy

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Independent oil and gas operators remain unhappy with federal natural gas legislation but are undecided on strategy to be used when the new 97th Congress begins work in January.

The 6,600-member Independent Petroleum Association of America appointed a special subcommittee last May to develop such strategy within the framework of the group's long-term goal of complete decontrol and deregulation of natural gas.

The study group was to have submitted its recommendations Oct. 19, but instead asked for additional time, saying the Nov. 4 presidential and congressional elections hold the key to determining the exact strategy to follow.

A special session of the trade group's full natural gas committee now will be called within 90 days to receive and act on the subcommittee's suggestions.

While seeking time to review elect results as well as strategy, the subcommittee did report several areas of concern, including a warning "there is growing talk of applying the windfall tax concept to natural gas."

"The subcommittee feels that unless an effort is made now to bring about substantial change in the Natural Gas Pricing Act of 1978, a massiv windfall tax could be linked to 1985 decontrol, or decontrol probably will not be allowed to occur," the study group said.

"However, the outcome of the 1980 elections holds the key tohe strategy which should be followed in pursuing our long term goal of freeing natural gas from nearly 30 years of rigid production and market controls."

The 1978 act began a moved toward decontrol of new natural gas but it established a pricing system for more than 25 categories of gas and the independents say its regulatory burden continues to grow and is hindering efforts to expand domestic gas production.

"Based on price escalations contained in the 1978 act, prices for gas will continue to fall further behind imported natural gas pricees with the likelihood the 'gap' between controlled domestic gas and imported natural gas by 1985, the current date for decontrol, will be greater than when the act was enacted," the subcommittee said.

"With the present and future price differential, we note a trend in rapidly increased oil drilling without a commensurate increase in natural gas drilling. A continuation of this trend could result in a return to gas shortages."

The subcommittee also said growing restrictions on the end use of natural gas have limited some opportunities for expanded markets and limited the ability of natural gas to displace imported oil.

Although postponing action on specific 1981 legislative objectives, the independents adopted a national energy policy statement that includes a section saying natural gas production has long been one of the most overregulated segments of the nation's economy.

"Not only has natural gas been subjected to price controls since 1954, but since the early 1970s it has been confronted with end use controls which distort both gas markets and interfuel competition," the policy statement reads.

The independents said geological analysts agree vast, new sources of natural gas can be tapped to significantly reduce energy import dependence but the chief roadblocks to such an optimistic future remain in realm of federal government energy policy.

They said long range natural gas policy must result in an end to all wellhead price controls, without punitive tax treatment, to allow natural gas to sell in the market at competitive, commodity value.

And they call for removal of end use controls and priority treatment of uses.

"Unless marketing restrictions are removed, particularly those that result in wide seasonal distortions in gas use, full production potential will not be realized," the policy statement said.

Activity sets blistering pace

TULSA, Okla. — U.S. Drilling activity has set a blistering pace, straining already tight supplies of equipment and manpower, Oil & Gas Journal says in its Oct. 20 issue.

And industry forecasters say the pace will quicken even more.

Rig utilization is at an all-out rate of 95-100 percent. Industry is expected to complete about 600,000 wells this year, smashing a 24-year record.

Hughes Tool Co. says the average count of active rotary rigs so far this year is 2,829, surpassing the previous yearly record of 2,686 set in 1955.

Oil & Gas Journal has predicted 59,107 well completions for 1980. That would break the previous record of 58,160 set in 1956. Last year, U.S. commpletions totaled 51,263.

Smith International Inc., which views the statistics somewhat differently, says as many as 64,000 holes may be drilled this year. And the firm says that during 1981, 68,500 holes and more than 300 million feet of hole may be drilled.

This much drilling is expected in spite of the so-called windfall profits tax on revenue gains resulting from crude price decontrol, the weekly business magazine says.

The current drilling pace, about 35 percent higher than last year, has let to shortages of personnel, equipment, and supplies, making planning more important than ever for busy oil operators.

Spot shortages of oil country tubular goods, longer lead times for rig construction, and increasing order backlogs for blowout preventors, bits, draw works, drilll collars, and kellys have been reported.

Price increases for oil and gas have spurred drilling since the early 1970s, when U.S. drilling hit its low point. Free market crude prices in some parts of the U.S. are as high as $38 a barrel and have topped $40 a barrel at times this year. Some uncontrolled natural gas prices exceed $6 a thousand cubic feet.

How long will the drilling surge last?

With nearly all available rigs working, growth can come only from rig additions, the Journal says. Reed Rock Bit Co.'s annual survey of abailable rigs shows a net addition from August 1979 to August 1980 of 490 land and marine rigs. It says the fleet stands at about 3,675 rigs.

Considering these rig additions and those of some, operators and drilling contractors say the 1981 and 1982 drilling level will be 7-10 percent a year higher than the 1980 level. But by 1983 and for the rest of the decade, forecasters say, the increase will be only 5-6 percent a year as the growth of drilling activity becomes more moderate and consistent.

With expected drilling activity increases during the next couple years, operators and contractors believe there will continue to be spot shortages of oil country tubular goods such as well casing and generally a tight market for most oil country supplies and equipment, the Journal reports.

Venezuela to increase its industrial fuel price

NEW YORK (AP) — Venezuela is increasing the price it charges for heavy industrial fuel oil by more than 10 percent, oil industry sources said Friday.

The increase was believed to be the largest ever announced by the South American oil exporter, traders said.

Heavy oil, also known as "residual" fuel, is used to run electric generating plants and heat large apartment buidings, mostly on the East Coast of the United States. It is not used as a heating fuel for private homes.

The sources, who asked not to be quoted by name, said Venezuela notified American oil buyers by telex Friday that the price increase would take effect Monday. Venezuela did not raise crude oil prices, they said.

According to the sources, the Venezuelan price increase reflects heavy demand for residual oil in Europe and Japan since the outbreak of the Iran-Iraq war last month, rather than increased consumption in the United States.

Oil with a 1 percent sulfur content, used in areas where air pollution is more severe, climbed $3.74 a barrel to $31.58, the sources said. Oil with a 2.2 percent sulfur content rose $3.40 a barrel to $30.18, and oil containing 2.8 percnt sulfur — used as fuel in ships — went up $3.53 a barrel to $29.48, they said.

The increases will have "a direct impact" on U.S. buyers of the fuel, a source at one major oil company said. Another source said many utilities would be able to pass the price hike on to consumers quickly through fuel-adjustment clauses.

The United States each day buys about 270,000 barrels of residual oil from Venezuela, about one-quarter of its total residual oil imports and 10 percent of its 2.6 million barrels-a-day residual oil consumption.

Residual oil imports, much of them from Caribbean refineries reliant on Venezuelan crude oil, account for 5 percent of U.S. oil needs, according to government statistics.

The Iran-Iraq war has removed about 3.8 million 42-gallon barrels of oil exports a day from world markets. Included in the total is about 300,000 barrels a day of residual oil that had been coming from Iran's severely damaged Abadan oil refinery.

Drop expected in stripper well yield

TULSA, Okla. — Although production from the nation's stripper oil wells increased by more than 2.7 million barrels last year, the National Stripper Well Associaton anticipates that the impact of the "windfall profit" tax passed this year by Congress will cause a sharp decline in production in the years immediately ahead.

The 1979 output from stripper wells — those producing 10 barrels a day or less — was 394,405,100, according to a national stripper well survey conducted annually by the National Stripper Well Association and the Interstate Oil Compact Commission. Production in 1978 was 391,633,146 barrels.

The number of stripper wells being operated at the end of 1979 was 386,310, an increase of 11,675 wells over the number a year earlier.

The number of well shut down and abandoned in 1979 was 7,668, a record low. There had been 8,380 abandonments in 1978.

The average daily production per well in 1979 was 2.79 barrels, compared to an average 2.86 barrels per well per day in 1978. NSWA officials said this shows wells are being operated longer, rather than being abandoned.

Joe B. McShane Jr., of Monahans, Tex., president of Tulsa based association, said stripper wells statistics during the decade of the Seventies vividly demonstrates the impact of economic conditions on domestic oil production.

"In the first four years of this decade the domestic industry was in the doldrums and production was declining," McShane said. In the stripper oil category, this decline amounted to an average of almost 15 million barrels a year through the four-year period from 1970 through 1973.

"If this rate of decline had continued throughout the decade, stripper well production in 1979 would have benn down to 300 million barrels instead of rising to 394 million,"McShane said.

The reason for the turnaround was the improved price for domestic oil after the 1973-74 embargo and price hike.

McShane said the improved economic conditions also had a big impact on the rate of well abandonments. "In the first five years of the Seventies, the average of abandonments was 15,014 wells per year. During the past five years the rate of abandonments has dropped to an average 9,688."

The association president, who is also an independent producer, said that even with this proof that the domestic industry can improve domestic oil production under favorable economic conditions, Congress passed the so-called windfall profits tax, sharply reducing the funds the industry will have available for oil exploration and development in the 1980s.

"It seems inconceivable that a nation desperately needing to reduce its dependence on unstable overseas sources of oil supplies would take action to discourage rather than to encourage domestic production," McShane said. "Yet that is exactly what Congress did when it passed the oil excise tax this year."

He said the imposition of a tax has never increased the supply of anything — except the supply of bureaucrats.

The annual stripper well survey covering 1979, released at week's end, shows that substantial increases in stripper oil production in Texas and Oklahoma more than offset decreases in some other states.

The stripper well output in Texas last year was 136,590,230 barrels from 98,487 wells. The previous year the production was 131,210,862 barrels from 96,713 wells.

Oklahoma's stripper oil production increased 1,825,041 barrels to a total of 76,000,461 barrels in 1979. This was from 64,893 wells, an increase of 4,922 wells over the number operating the previous year.

California, the nation's third largest producer of stripper oil (behind texas and Oklahoma), showed a decline of 4 million barrels in 1979. The year's total was 45,520,810 barely enough to keep it ahead of Kansas, where the 1979 production was 43,520,810 barrels, 1.5 million barrels less than was produced in that state in 1978.

Oxy reports oil discovry

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — Occidental Petroleum Corp. announced the discovery of new oil field in California with the completion of its No. 1 Ventura Realty located in eastern Ventura County.

The discovery well was completed from selected intervals within the depths of 6,904 to 7,760 feet in the eocene formation at an initial production rate of 314 barrels of 38.4 degrees gravity oil and 755 cubic feet of gas per day.

The potential size of the new discover, named Los Robles Field, will be defined by a continuous development drilling program commencing near the end of this year.

Occidental, as operator, owns a 70 per cent interest in the primary lease block of 960 acres. The Newhall Land and Farming Co. holds a 30 percent interest in the primary lease block. Occidental also owns a 100 percent interest in an additional 1,400 acres in the surrounding area.

MGF Oil announces signing of agreement

The total cash amount of the purchase will be approximately $70 million.

NFC's oil and gas assets at Jan. 1, 1980, included proved oil and gas reserves of 908,449 barrels of oil and 31.1 billion cubic feet of natural gas. Additionally, NFC is currently engaged in a waterflood project in one of their major fields to which no proved reserves can now be assigned.

Also, March 31, 1980, NFC held approximatley 153,000 gross (63,000 net) acres of undeveloped oil and gas leases.

With this acquisition MGF will increase its proved oil reserves by approximatley 31 percent and its proved gas reserves by approximately 120 percent. At the end of last year MGF reported proved oil and gas reserves of 2.9 million barrels of oil and 26 billion cubic feet of natural gas.

R. O. "Jack" Major, president of MGF Oil Corp., and Martin Kanto, president of NFC Corp. announced that MGF and NFC have signed a definitive agreement for their previously announced cash merger whereby 'all of NFC's oil and gas properties and operations will be acquired by MGF.

As a result of acquiring the stock of NFC, MGF is only purchasing their oil and gas properties and undeveloped acreage and is not acquirinng any interest in the insurance business, which will be retained by NFC's shareholers, Major said.

NFC's reserves and acreage are located almost entirely in Oklahoma. Kantor said that NFC's insurance subsidiary would operate as an independent publicly traded company after the merger.

The terms of the merger agreement call for MGF to pay to NFC shareholders $55 million plus the redemption value of NFC's outstanding con-

Permian Basin rotary rig count holds at 342 units

The Permian Basin Empire of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico reported 342, which is the same as the count for two weeks ago, active rigs in the two-state area last week, as recorded by Reed Rock Bit Co.

Last year at this time the Reed survey counted 292 rigs.

Lea County, N. M., leader in drilling activity, reported 45 rigs, the same as for two weeks ago.

Eddy County, still in second place on the survey, recorded 28 rotaries making hole, decreasing that count by two.

In the West Texas area Pecos County was in first place with 23 units, an increase of four rigs over the last count.

Crockett County was second with 15 rigs; Ector and Loving counties were third with 14 rotaries each and Andrews was fourth with 13.

Other counties with 10 or more rotaries making hole at the time the survey was made include: Winkler with 12 and Dawson and Hockley with 10 each.

Noble reports opener

ARDMORE, Okla. — Noble Affiliates, Inc., has annouunced an oil discovery in the Devonian Duperow formation in Williams County, N. D.

The No. 1 Samedan-State, in section 16-154n-100w, was drilled to 13,906 feet in the Red River formation and was plugged back to 11,508 feet.

The well was perforated in the Duperow from 11,368 to 11,374 feet and from 11,404 to 11,408 feet and potentialed on pump for 175 barrels of oil and 113 barrels of water per day. The gravity of the oil is 38.5 degrees.

Sameday Oil Corp., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Noble Affiliates, Inc., owns a 50 percent working interest in the discovery well, subject to being reduced to a 30 percent working interest at payout.

A confirmation well has been proposed with drilling to commence late this year.

In addition, Sameday owns a 50 percent working interest in 15,491 gross and 11,275 net acres around the discovery. Among other partners, NICOR Exploration Co. holds a 25 percent interest in the prospect subject to the same reduction after payout.

Moran agrees to sell Morco

HOUSTON — Moran Energy Inc. announced today it has reached an agreement in principle to sell an additional 20.1 percent of Morco A/S to A/S Morcem for $2.2 million, thereby reducing its ownership to 9.9 percent.

Committee fete slated

The Midland Wildcat Committee will hold a reception in Midland Wednesday to honors officials of Gulf Oil Corp. and Gulf Oil Exploration and Production Co.

The event will be held from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. in the Petroleum Club of Midland.

Officials from Gulf Oil Corp. in Pittsburgh who will attend the reception are Dr. Jerry McAfee, chairman of the board; James E. Lee, president; Harold H. Hammer, executive vice president, and Edward B. Walker III, executive vice president.

From Gulf Oil Exploration and Producton in Houston will be M. J. Hill, president, and J. L. Huitt, senior vice president — U.S.

Also reporesenting Gulf Oil Exploration and Producton will be E. M. Miller of Midland, vice president, Western Division.

Fourth test well to start

WHITE PLANS, N.Y. — Texaco Inc., as operator for a group of six companies, announced that the group plans to drill the fourth well on Block 598 in the Baltimore Canyon area of the Atlantic Ocean.

Drilling operations will commence as soon as the semi-submersible rig, Ocean Victory, just released from operations on Block 642 (adjacent to and due south of Block 598), is repositioned on Block 598.

Well 598-4 will be located in the southeast quarter of Block 598: 4,075 feet from the southern and 4,225 feet from the eastern boundary lines of the block. This location is approximately 3,900 feet south-southst of the group's initial gas discovery well, 598-1. The United States Geological Survey has issued a permit to drill well 598-4 to a total depth of 16,500 feet.

Participants in Block 598 are: Texaco Inc., 31.5 percent; Getty Oil Co., 20 percent; Sun Oil Co. (Delaware), 16 percent; Allied Chemical Corp., 12.5 percent; Transco Exploration Co., a subsidiary of Transco Companies, Inc., 10 percent; and Freeport Oil Co., a subsidiary of Freeport Minerals Co., 10 percent.

Petro Jet Aviation offers customers speedy, individualized air service on almost any kind of aircraft — including a Learjet. Petro Jet's charter service eliminates the hassles with commercial airline schedules. And with its 24-hour "hot shot" cargo service, Petro Jet offers the business executive the well-rounded air service his company needs.

Petro Jet Aviation offers 'hot shot' cargo service

Petro Jet Aviation appeals to the private flying needs of a wide variety of West Texans. A charter aeronautics service company, Petro Jet primarily focuses its service on the oil-related industry.

Petro Jet can fly oil executives as well as speed replacement drilling parts to any area in the country at a moment's notice. Its 24-hour "hot shot" cargo flights can expedite the well servicing business, saving companies thousands of dollars in "down time."

Other industries benefit from Petro Jet, too. Automobile manufacturing plants have used Petro Jet to rush needed parts to factories keeping assembly lines progressing.

Petro Jet can also arrange for air medical transfers.

Ole Olson, owner of Petro Jet, and his staff can arrange for almost any type of air service — including Learjet service to over 5,000 points in the United States. And Petro Jet offers a qualified crew of airline rated pilots in its service as well.

In addition, Petro Jet air service allows executives and professionals in all types of business an opportunity to increase the length of a business day by reducing the time invested in traveling to and from out-of-town meetings. An alternative to commercial airline flight schedules, Petro Jet allows its passengers to design their own schedule with just a phone call.

Petro Jet provides customers with Rolls Royce limosine service to the airport as well. Furnished to Petro Jet by John Schaler III, the limosines will be available to pick up passengers at their business and hurry them to the runway at Midland Airport for a quick takeoff.

Whether you're interested in a quick hour and 40 minute pleasure trip to Las Vegas or you need industrial equipment sped to an out-of-state oil rig, Petro Jet Aviation can provide you with a well-rounded service and access to any kind of aircraft to fit your needs.

Making enormous caverns far beneath the surface in Colorado's shale formations requires, among other things, an enormous ventilation system. Tenneco Inc. worked inspects sections of the large ventilation pipe before it is installed in the Tenneco-Occidental shale oil development project, whih will ultimately produce 50,000 to 60,000 barrels of oil per day.

Rio Blanco starts shale burn

DENVER, Colo. — J. Blaine Miller, president of the Rio Blanco Oil Shale Co., announced that the company has started burning the first of three demonstration underground modified in situ retorts on Federal Prototype Oil Shale Tract C-A in Rio Blanco County, Colorado.

The retort is about 30 feet square and is 166 feet high. It is the first of three burns planned by Rio Blanco in a $140 million program to demonstrate the commercial feasibility of its modified in situ technology. The company plans to burn two additional underground retorts by the end of 1981.

The Rio Blanco Oil Shale Co., a general partnership of Gulf Oil Corp. and Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) acquired the lease to Tract C-a in 1974 for $210 million. The 5,100-acre lease is about 20 air miles southeast of Rangely, Colo.

Miller said the retort was ignited at the top Oct. 13, some 670 feet below the earth's surface. A downhole burner was lowered from the surface through a 12-inch vertical casing to the retort. A mixture of natural gas and air was used for ignition.

In Rio Blanco's modified in situ technology, some 30 to 40 percent of the planned retort volume is removed by mining and brought to the surface. The remainder of the retort is rubbled with conventional explosives. The rubbling creates the necessary permeability for burning.

After ignition, the combustion zone of the retort burns at between 1,400 and 1,800 degrees Fahrenheit. However, the shale oil leaves the rock at about 900 degrees — before the flame front arrives. When the flame front reaches the retorting zone, the carbon residue left on the rock after the shale oil has left serves as the fuel for the burn. The carbon has no other value.

The shale oil leaves the rock in the form of a vapor. Once away from the retorting zone, it condenses into liquid and travels down to the bottom of the retort. There it is separated from water and pumped to the surface. Gas produced with the shale oil is cleaned through surface processing facilities and vented to the atmosphere.

Miller said the burn could take up to nine weeks, depending on the rate of the burn. The rate is controlled by the use of air and steam.

He said the first oil from the retort is expected to be recovered in about a month. Only a total of 1,000 to 2,000 barrels of oil is anticipated from the first retort. The oil will probably be used in various research and testing programs.

Miller pointed out that the modified in situ demonstration program is part of Rio Blanco's phased development approach which could lead to commercial production of the shale oil from Tract C-A by 1987.

"We also have a program which could lead to construction of a demonstration Lurgi-Ruhrgas surface retort beginning in 1981. In a commercial operation, surface retorting capability would be needed for processing the oil shale removed from the mine prior to rubbling.

Miller also said Rio Blanco is engaged in engineering design and commercial planning for an open pit development plan. That plan would also require surface retorting of all the mined oil shale.

"The merits of the modified in situ and open pit technologies will be assessed in the next two to three years. We would probably not begin any commercial construction of either approach before 1983."

Rio Blanco currently has some 400 workers, primarily contractors' employees, at Tract C-a. The workforce is not expected to increase significantly over the next two to three years.

U.S. oil stock increase

WASHINGTON, D. C. — U.S. crude oil stocks at the end of September totaled an estimated 392.5 million barrels, an increase of 21.2 percent over a year earlier, the American Petroleum Institute reported today.

The total represented a slight decrease from the end of August, when the stocks, according to a revised estimate, totalled 392.6 million barrels. (The stocks do not include the federal government's Strategic Petroleum Reserve, which totals about 91 million barrels).

The end of September figure was contained in the API's Monthly Statistical Report, which also estimated that crude oil production in this country during September averaged 8,596,000 barrels per day, an increase of 1.5 percent over last September.

Deliveries of gasoline from primary storage during September averaged an estimated 6,742,000 barrels per day, two percent below a year earlier. Total domestic deliveries of all petroleum products during September were estimated at 16,330,000, a 6.4 percent drop.

Imports of crude oil were estimated at 4,948,000 barrels per day, a drop of 22.8 percent from last September. Total imports of petroleum (crude oil and products) average an estimated 6,311,000 barrels per day, a drop of 21.2 percent.

Oil imports to take big cut of Japan's import cash

By ICHIRO KAWAKAMI
Copley News Service

TOKYO — Japan this year will spend an estimated $67 billion on imported oil — more than half its total import bill.

This massive expenditure is only one of a number of impelling reasons for getting out of oil as quickly as possible. In the next decade, the Japanese government alone will spend $13 billion, and private companies several more billions, on finding viable alternative energy sources.

Research is under way into new uses of coal, both liquified and gasified, along with research into solar and geothermal energy, wind, wave and ocean temperature-generated power, and gasoline-substituting synthetic fuels and hydrogen.

Oil self-denial has suddenly become a national creed. The electric utility industry has set a target of reducing oil's share of power output from the current 57 percent to 40 percent in 1985 and only 10 percent a decade later.

The government hopes development of alternatives will cut oil's share of total energy needs from the present 75 percent to 43 percent by 1995. But achieving that target depends in large part on untried technology on which opinion is strongly divided.

Until this new technology comes on stream, hopefully by the mid-1990s, Japan is relying on a rapid expansion of coal, liquefied natural gas and nuclear-generated power.

But there are some experts who feel that Japan is merely "jumping out of the frying pan into the fire" in the switch from oil to coal. Twenty years ago, the goverment made an unpopular decision to run down the domestic mining industry and switch to cheap imported oil.

Now that the oil is no longer cheap, it is too late to revive the mines on a grand scale to meet the sudden demand for millions of extra tons of steaming coal. So, as with oil, it will have to be imported.

Isn't there a danger, then, that Japan will find itself at the mercy of an OPEC-like coal-selling cartel? No, argues energy economist Hiromi Kubo, "because Japan's main coal suppliers are countries like Australia, America, Canada and South Africa which are in similar difficulties as we are and cooperation is in our best interests."

But some industry analysts point out that increased worldwide demand for steaming coal has pushed up prices at an alarming rate in the past few months, weakening the purely economic arguments for the big energy switch. This is especially important as Japan is talking in terms of annual imports of 150 or even 200 million tons of coking and thermal coal before the end of the century.

Another problem is the siting of the coal-handling depots and environmental problems with coal-burning power stations which could easily lead to the sort of public opposition that has crippled Japan's nuclear energy program (output of nuclear power plants is now expected to be less than half original expectations due to safety and environmental problems).

This will partly be eliminated by turning the coal into liquid or gas before burning as a "clean fuel." Liquefaction projects are now under way involving Japanese cooperation with Australia, the United States and West Germany, and, perhaps at some future date, China.

But a great deal of the research effort is now being channeled into the government's "Sunshine Project," launched in 1974 to find clean, safe, alternative forms of energy relying on resources available in Japan.

The tempo is increasing. Original expectations were for 1.6 percent of the nation's energy requirements from the project by 1990. But this figure was revised upwards to 5 percent last year.

Already well advanced is solar energy. Solar water heaters were first introduced in the 1960s. Placed on the sunniest side of the roof, they produced tepid water that cut electricity bills when run through a conventional bath heater.

Court rules for Alaska dividend law

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The state Supreme Court ruled Friday that Alaska's Permanent Fund dividend law, designed to distribute millions of dollars in oil revenues to Alaska's citizens, is valid.

It said although long-term residents would receive more than new or short-term residents under the plan, it would not penalize new residents and thereby unlawfully impede interstate migration.

With Chief Justice Jay Rabinowitz writing the majority opinion for himself and Justice Roger Connor, the court said the act meets the tests of both the state and federal constitutions.

Justice Edmund Burke agreed with Rabinowitz and Connor in a concurring opinion, while Senior Justice John Dimond and Justice Warren Matthews dissented in an opinion written by Dimond.

The decision reversed a ruling by Anchorage Superior Court Judge Ralph Moody that the law enacted by the 1980 Legislature violated the equal protection clause of the state and federal constitutions.

The law provides for the distribution to Alaskan residents each year of one-half of the annual earnings of the Permanent Fund, into which a portion of Alaska's oil revenues is placed.

It specifies that each Alaskan 18 years or older receives one Permanent Fund dividend for each year of residency retroactive to 1959, the year of statehood.

The dividend for 1980 was set at $50, meaning a person who has lived here since 1959 will get a total of $1,050. New residents will be entitled immediately to a pro rata share of the first dividend.

Moody ruled in a suit filed by Ron and Patricia Zobel of Anchorage that the act violated the equal protection clause of the state and federal constitutions.

Moody also struck down a state income tax relief plan which exempted residents who had filed three or more returns from further tax liability.

He said the two statutes created an illegal durational residency requirement which penalized new residents.

The high court agreed last month on the income tax ruling, but in its ruling Friday it drew a distinction. It said a tax is a penalty, but the dividend plan benefits all residents eventually.

The court said the "link between residency and number of dividends bears a fair and substantial relationship to the legitimate purpose of making an equitable distribution" of Alaska's oil wealth.

Application approved

AUSTIN - The Railroad Commision has approved an application by a Midland-based operator to sell natural gas produced on University of Texas lands in Andrews County for ultimate out-of-state consumption.

The RRC granted Discovery Operating Inc. an exception to statewide rule 69, which prohibits interstate sale of oil and gas produced on state-owned lands, to sell gas from a lease in the Block 12 (Yates) Field to Northern Natural Gas Co.

Discovery Operating is expected to deliver 300,000 cubic feet of gas daily to Northern.

Gulf fields extended

HOUSTON — Conoco Inc. has announced the extension of two natural gas fields in the Gulf of Mexico off the Louisiana coast.

One well, drilled 30 miles southeast of Cameron, La., on East Cameron Block 47, confirmed "commercial quantities of natural gas," the company said.

Testing of the well was done by electric logging which indicated six pay sands between 9,000 and 11,000 feet.

Conoco plans to construct two platforms near the well. One will be a 12-well drilling platform, the other, a smaller facility, will hold equipment needed to produce the gas.

Production from East Cameron 47 is expected to begin in the second quarter of 1981.

Conoco said the other well, about 69 miles south of Morgan City, La., proved previously discovered gas bearing sands extended into the southern section of Ship Soal Block 158.

That well, also verified by electric logging, encountered two gas sands below 9,000 feet. No flow tests were done.

Plans are to install a single production platform at the Ship Shoal 158 location and to begin production late in the first quarter of 1981.

Conoco is the operator on both blocks for itself, Atlantic Richfield Co., Getty Oil Co. and Cities Service Oil Co.

OUR PETROLEUM BANKERS CAN GIVE YOU THE JUMP ON YOUR COMPETITION.

Petroleum financing can be a waiting game.

Your banker plays for time until he gets your property evaluation, and his staff's analysis. That's expensive. Also, time-consuming.

At The Midland National Bank, we'll show you how to get the jump on your competition. We know that financial timing is critical. So our petroleum bankers are also professional petroleum engineers who personally analyze your collateral.

We'll use our in-house computer and the latest petroleum evaluation techniques to determine your recoverable hydrocarbons, projected cash flow and the loan value of your properties. Even with only limited data on complex, new areas, we can still make a quick, confidential determination of the maximum value of your collateral.

Now you can move on your best prospects at your convenience, not ours.

The first move: Call our Oil and Gas Division: (915) 683-2751.

WE'RE MORE THAN JUST ANOTHER BIG BANK.

Richard D. Smith, Eloy Villafranca and Sarah C. Carter have joined the First National Bank of Midland, according to Charles D. Fraser, president.

Richard Smith has joined First National as an investment officer in the Investments Division of the bank. A graduate of Southern Methodist University, Smith received his BBA in May of 1977. Prior to affiliation with FNB he worked for banks in both Grand Prairie and Dallas.

Eloy Villafranca is a new operations officer with the Operations Checking Account Services at First National. Originally of Grand Prairie, Villafranca graduated from Texas Tech University in 1978 with a BBA in Finance. Before joining FNB he was affiliated with a Dallas banking institution. He was a member of the Grand Prairie Lions Club and involved in the Order of Demolay on a local and international level.

Sarah Carter has joined FNB as a loan officer in the Commercial Loans Division. A native of Dublin, Texas, Ms. Carter attended Odessa College and The University of Oklahoma where she studied installment lending. She is a member of the National Association of Bank Women and was formerly associated with another area financial institution.

Money management vital

How much are you worth? How much could you borrow in a pinch, and how much can you afford to owe? If you're like most people, you probably have to guess.

Researchers at Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc., the nation's largest securities company, learned that when it comes to understanding how to manage money, people face the same problems whether they're sophisticated investors with hefty stock portfolios or single people trying to make ends meet on modest salaries.

Too often, advice on organizing your finances consists of little more that taking paper and pencil and making lists of income and bills. Chances are, Merrill Lynch researchers says, that you won't learn much more than you do balancing your checkbook. The key to effective money management, they advise is to determine whether you're getting all the value your money can provide through sound management techniques.

ARE ALL YOUR EXCESS FUNDS earning a return and not sitting idle in non-interest bearing accounts or safe deposit boxes?

Do you have enough credit power to borrow significant sums on short notice?

Are your borrowing at low interest rates — through securities margin loans, savings account loans or life insurance loans instead of high interest credit card charges?

Are your assets liquid? In other words, can you mobilize your assets — or their credit power — when emergencies or opportunities occur?

By interviewing investors throughout the United States, a team of professional money management specialists at Merrill Lynch probed ways in which a financial institution could better equip individuals to deal with these basic money management questions.

Their work led to the development of what has been widely acclaimed the most dramatic new idea in the financial services industry in decades. It's called Cash Management Account financial services, and it's a total money management system.

The Cash Management Account program combines a variety of essential financial services in a single, consolidated account. It is designed to give individuals a system for increased control over their finances and effective management of their money.

Available cash in the account will automatically be invested once each week in a money market fund where dividends will be earned and reinvested daily. Funds invested in money market fund shares can be utilized at any time by writing checks or using the VISA card to be issued to all subscribers to the Cash Management Account program. Cash Management Account services will also furnish automatic credit through the margin loan value of the securities owned.

AND WHILE CASH MANAGEMENT ACCOUNT financial services are designed principally to meet the needs of active investors, the money management system on which they're based can work for many individuals.

It is a system built on the idea of consolidation. Poor money management, researchers found, often results from scattering financial services in a number of seperate accounts. Such uncoordinated accounts can cause people to overlook important financial links; savings and investments, for example, can produce valuable borrowing power.

To organize your financial life and create a consolidated financial picture, Merrill Lynch experts recommend, take the period of the last six months and group your financial transactions into these categories:

— Assets - savings, investments, things you own.
— Developing assets - things your're acquiring.
— Living costs - housing, clothing, ordinary budget.
— Debts.
— Credit reserves - unused available credit.

With this basic organization, you can begin to analyze your finances so that you can mobilize your resources when you need them.

Mobilizing your assets means having your full financial resources readily on tap when you need them — even on a moment's notice. In money management terms, this means being able to contend with unexpected emergencies or golden opportunities.

AN IMPORTANT STEP TO MOBILIZING your assets is to see that you're getting full value from them. Have you got excess funds in a checking account that could be earning income in a savings account or NOW checking account? Do you have funds in various accounts that could be earning a better return without increased risk?

Take your savings or investments, for example. Is your money "tied up" so that you can't get at it when you need it? Would you have to sell stocks or a vacation home to get cash if the need arose? Not if you know how to mobilize your assets and manage debts.

The ability to borrow money is a real financial asset. When emergencies or opportunities occur, it can make the difference between a problem and a solution.

Income is an asset that can and should be used to create borrowing power, before you need it. Banks are willing to extend lines of credit in conjunction with checking or credit card accounts. This kind of credit power provides a valuable and — until it's used — free reserve of credit power.

Debt management, to be effective, positions the cost of borrowing money as a real cost, and calls for careful shopping.

Researchers found that, in the past, many of us overlooked the substantial savings in interest rates that could have been gained by borrowing against securities investments, savings accounts and life insurance instead of high interest credit card or personal loans. One reason is that many people weren't aware that savings or investments could have been used as collateral for loans at substantial interest savings — and without touching their investments.

MERRILL LYNCH RESEARCHERS believe that good money management should provide liquidity — the ability to use your assets without sacrificing them.

Are such sophisticated principles of money management really of interest to the "average family"? Merrill Lynch researchers found that most of us do, in fact, want total control over our finances. And at all income levels, most people express the desire for more education and information to help them manage their money.

Abundant help is available. Financial institutions, such as banks, savings institutions, securities firms and insurance companies are ready and willing to help you learn money management techniques.

Research urged on chemicals, workers

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Members of the House Committee on Environmental Affairs, in their interim report to the 1981 legislature, urge that Texas begin funding basic research into an area of growing concern — the impact of chemicals on workers' health.

General Motors Corp already is conducting what it calls the largest cancer screening program ever in the United States — testing some 4,000 workers in its model-making shops, after three independent studies indicated such workers are more likely than other people to develop cancer of the colon.

Several other large firms also are conducting studies — and in Texas, investigations are underway at several petrochemical plants (including those of Dow Chemical, Union Carbide and Monsanto) to determine whether higher-than-normal rates of brain cancer may be related to exposure to vinyl chloride.

Occupational Safety and Health Administration has been researching records of a number of chemical firms in the Southeast Texas area in an attempt to gather additional information to assist in determining whether, and under what conditions, workers may face job-related exposure to cancer-causing agents.

Researchers note that determining that won't be easy — because of the number of variables involved; as yet, there is no clear link between any particular cancer and any chemical which the petrochemical workers may have encountered.

But there is a growing suspicion, and concern, that such links exist.

And in the committee's report, the comment is made that "the potentially 'carcenogenic' petrochemical industry involves more than 30,000 workers in the Texas Gulf Coast region and brings in $3 billion annually."

That report even raises the possibility that the industry might move "to foreign countries, where health and environmental standards are less strict" — and urges that such possibility be avoided by funding research to "help identify the health and environmental threats posed by certain chemicals."

Then, it comments, safety measures could be adopted — and "restrictive and unplanned for federal requirements" avoided.

The report notes that the Department of Health requested funding for such capability for the last biennium; the legislature refused, and the department is seeking a "scaled down" program for the upcoming biennium.

"At least $114,180" is recommended for department for the new biennium ($203,890 had been asked for the 1980-81 period.)

Texas Housing Agency has made its 1982-83 budget request — $463,648 for the first year and $442,275 for the second — compared to $28,865 for the fledgling agency in 1980 — to expand its staff from three to 13 by the end of the next biennium.

THA, set up to provide a vehicle for obtaining lower-cost mortgage funds through bond issues, tentatively plans four bond issues annually — two for single-family housing, and two for multi-family housing, Executive Director Earline Jewett reports.

THA came in for criticism from State Treasurer Warren G. Harding regarding the agency being able to keep its money out of the state treasury; Harding has asked Attorney General Mark White to rule in the matter.

State Board of Insurance met with insurance industry representatives to consider changes in surplus lines rules, and ordered redrafting of one of the amendments (dealing with policy issuances) to meet objections.

The proposed changes were drawn in a joint effort by the Texas Surplus Lines Association and SBI staff; they apparently must be republished due to clerical errors in copies which were filed with the Secretary of State's office.

Among the objections raised at the session was that the rules could make it more difficult for persons seeking insurance to obtain coverage through surplus lines, with attorney David Irona, Dallas, arguing that the legislature provided surplus lines to allow people to obtain coverage they could not find in the "admitted market."

"What have we accomplished by making it harder for a Texan to get the coverage he needs?" Irons asked.

The Railroad Commission holds a public hearing at 10 a.m. Wednedsay (Oct. 29) in Room 107 RRC offices, 1135 S. IH 35, Austin, on an "appropriate state response" to new federal legislation deregulating railroads.

Persons wishing to testify may contact Joy Wood (512 445-1330).

The RRC has asked Attorney General Mark White to review the act to determine its constitutionality; Texas is under a 120-day deadline to seek certification to administer provisions of the legislation.

Don't miss the debate

It's all settled. President Jimmy Carter and Republican challenger Ronald Reagan will meet face-to-face Tuesday evening for a one-on-one presidential debate.

There were complications, of course, and it even looked for awhile as if the debate might not come off at all.

First of all, the original debate was arranged between Reagan, Independent candidate John B. Anderson and Carter, but the president refused to take part in any debate which included Anderson. Reagan and Anderson debated anyway, but that first refusal cost Carter some points. Polls at that time indicated that Americans disapproved of the president's decision by two to one.

Then Reagan insisted he would only appear in debates that included Anderson. Carter still said no and it looked as if a debate involving both Carter and Reagan at once might not occur.

There was a lot of political finagling going on at that time. Both candidates were "using" the Anderson candidacy to their own best advantage. While they can't necessarily be faulted for that, it really didn't serve anyone well. Fortunately, that period's over now. Anderson's popularity rating has been slipping recently in the polls and their intensifying campaigns have drawn attention back to the president and Reagan.

Tuesday's debate will be extremely important in helping Americans decide which presidential candidate to support this year. National defense is about the only issue that's really surfaced so far in the campaigns so the debate will help to provide additional information to the voters on where the two leading candidates stand on particular topics of concern.

The League of Women Voters is to be commended for persevering in the effort to get the debate issue resolved and to bring the vital election information to the nation's voters.

Every American voter will play an important role in the extremely important 1980 presidential election. There is no such thing as an unimportant vote; they all are counted and they all help to elect the individual who'll lead the nation during the coming four-year period.

An estimated 23 percent of the voters in the nation have not decided at this point which candidate they'll support, polls indicate. The 90-minute debate can help them make up their minds. It will be 90 minutes well spent and one of the most important television programs ever aired.

Don't miss it.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, Oct. 26, the 300th day of 1980. There are 66 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Oct. 26, 1979, South Korean President Park Chung-hee was slain by the chief of the nation's Central Intelligence Agency in a shooting at KCIA headquarters.

On this date:

In 1962, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev offered to withdraw missiles from Cuba if United States removed bases in Turkey. He was rebuffed.

In 1976, U.N. General Assembly, demonstrating disapproval of apartheid, voted 134-0 to call on member governments to prohibit all "contacts" with the Transkei — the first of South African black homelands to secure independence.

Ten years ago: President Nixon signed a $1.7 billion military construction bill, nearly $500 million less than the Defense Department had requested.

Five years ago: Egypt's President Anwar Sadat arrived in United States with a bid for military and economic aid. He was the first Egyptian head of state to visit U.S.

Today's birthday: Former Republican Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts is 61.

Thought For Today: An idea that is not dangerous is unworthy of being called an idea at all — Oscar Wilde, Irish-born writer (1854-1900).

ART BUCHWALD

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — The big story this month has not been the presidential campaign or the war in Iran, but the saga of Mary Cunningham, the brilliant 29-year-old Harvard Business School graduate who climbed her way up the corporate ladder of the Bendix Corporation in 15 months to become an Executive Vice President, only to be forced to resign because she was too beautiful, too young and too close to the Chairman of the Board.

It has divided the country, turned families against each other, and raised so many questions that even the "Moral Majority" can't deal with it.

On one side are those who say Ms. Cunningham would never have reached her position had she not been young and beautiful. On the other are people who say no one would care if she succeeded in the executive suite, if she hadn't been a beautiful woman.

The most interesting part of the story is that this is the first time people have been more interested in what went on in the private plane of a large corporation than what happened when Farrah Fawcett split up with Lee Majors, and Jackie Onassis had dinner alone at the Stage Delicatessen.

The country was riveted by Gail Sheehy's syndicated newspaper feature of the step-by-step rise and fall of this poor young lady and, based on readership interest, we may soon be reading countless other Mary Cunningham sagas from "Fortune Magazine's 500 leading corporations list."

My worry is that most people will get a distorted view of the executive suite and how we operate.

As most people know, this column is a conglomerate. We're into books, lecturing, recycling of old columns, and TV and theatrical enterprises — too numerous to mention.

As Chairman of the Board, I was on the lookout sometime ago for a smart, young, beautiful person who could be my secretary and handle my mail and crackpot calls. I found one at Georgetown University who fitted all the requirements and hired her.

There are only two of us. Jeannie Aiyer became my confidante and closest advisor. Since she also corrected my grammar I realized she had great potential. But as soon as she started showing some talent, people in other offices on my floor started whispering that the only reason Jeannie had gotten where she was in my organization was because there was something going on between us.

Then she came in one day and asked for a raise. I told her I couldn't give her a raise but I would make her my Executive Assistant. All the other secretaries on the floor were outraged, and said to each other that if it hadn't been for her looks she would never have been made an Executive Assistant in such a short time. But I ignored the whispering because Jeannie was too valuable to me to replace.

Six months later, she came to me again and said she was desperate for more money. I said she had hit me at a bad time, and instead of a raise I would make her Vice President of the Column.

Once again there was shock and outrage on the floor. Jeannie had been with me less than a year and yet she was in on all my important business decisions. Evans and Novak said that if Jeannie was a man she would never have been made Vice President of the Column in so short a time.

The final blow came a month ago when Jeannie again asked for a raise. This time I had no choice but to make her Executive Vice President of Mergers and Acquisitions, which meant ordering my lunch for me in the office when I didn't go out.

This was too much for everyone on the floor to swallow and the pressure is on now for me to ask for her resignation.

But I'm hanging tough. If she couldn't do the job she wouldn't be here and her beauty has nothing to do with her new title.

The lesson in all this is that some companies such as Bendix give women titles because they are better than men at what they're doing. Others such as mine hand them out in lieu of giving a person a raise.

WASHINGTON-MERRY-GO-ROUND

The Garwood case: Who deserted whom?

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The tale of Robert Garwood is an embarrassment to the Marine Corps and a mystery to the American public. If all the allegations are true, how is it possible that one of the Marines' "few good men" could have put on an enemy uniform, led Viet Cong troops in battle against his former buddies and directed the interrogation and torture of American prisoners of war?

And given the charges against Garwood, how is it possible that the Marine Corps has already ruled out the death penalty for the most shameful capital offense on the books — treason in time of war?

What most Americans don't know, and what would add to their confusion over the Garwood case, is that it is not unique in its circumstances. There were others like Garwood; they were just not brought to public trial, as Garwood will be in 10 days.

The level of desertion in the Vietnam war zone was unprecedented in U.S. history. Thousands of deserters disappeared into the sleazy underworld of Saigon alone.

According to excellent military sources, as many as 500 American GIs actively assisted the enemy in Vietnam. About 30 prisoners of war went over to the enemy and played active anti-American roles in the POW camps.

And as many as six Americans are believed to have taken up arms against U.S. troops in Vietnam. At least two of these — both Marine privates — are known to have joined in combat with the Viet Cong against American forces. Yet these two men now live in the United States, unpunished, under new identities furnished by the government itself.

A Pentagon spokesman said there were "no records" to indicate that any former American soldier took up arms against U.S. troops in Vietnam.

Was it simply Garwood's poor timing — turning up years after the war was over — that got him in his present predicament? Or was his record particularly heinous?

Here is the Garwood story, as told to my reporter Lisa Krieger by sources close to the case. The reader can judge what, if any, special circumstances might set him apart from other suspected turncoats.

Garwood was a shy, emotionally troubled high-school dropout when he joined the Marines at 17. Whether he chose the military as an escape from family problems or in hopes of fulfilling boyish fantasies, he soon became disillusioned. He wound up in Okinawa, where he asked to be sent home.

Instead, he was shipped to Vietnam, apparently branded as a troublemaker. His sergeants kept on his back incessantly. Still, he was given a fairly soft assignment — driving a jeep at the big Danang military base.

According to a government source, Garwood became increasingly disillusioned with the military, and sought solace in the arms of a Vietnamese prostitute. He became friendly with a number of Viet Cong sympathizers, who nurtured doubts in his mind about the U.S. presence in Vietnam.

One day, on a trip to buy pornography in town, Garwood disappeared. One source says his jeep was later found buried, pocked with bullet holes; others say he sold it on the black market. In the government's version, Garwood survived by stealing food, cigarettes, liquor and luxury items to sell in the Vietnamese underworld.

Eventually, he wound up with the North Vietnamese. He was issued a uniform and a Soviet-made AK-47 rifle and was given command of a combat patrol, a government source alleges.

Once, when a Marine unit was ambushed in the Marble Mountain area near Danang, the lone survivor called out to a white man in enemy uniform. The turncoat identified himself as Garwood and fired point blank at the young Marine's head. "You are guilty!" he shouted at the Marine. "It is my duty to execute you!"

Incredibly, the Marine, though blinded, lived to give U.S. authorities a description that fit Garwood in every detail. By late 1971, Garwood was identified as a guard and interrogator at a North Vietnamese POW camp. American prisoners watched him strut around in his enemy uniform, living in relative comfort while they struggled for bare survival. He is also accused of striking prisoners.

Garwood's own version of events during his 14-year absence is totally different. According to a close friend, he was captured in a hail of gunfire and taken prisoner. He remained a captive until he managed to escape from a forced labor camp in the jungle years after the war was over.

He never sympathized with the enemy, this source claimed. If he was seen in North Vietnamese uniform, carrying a gun, it was only because he was forced to in his role as a Viet Cong pack animal. The only time he ever attacked an American was when he punched a fellow prisoner in frustration. "He'd never hurt anyone," the source said. "He's the gentlest man I know."

The source quoted Garwood's last letter to his girlfriend, in which he described his plans to marry and buy a home. They had exchanged rings and he expected to be sent home in a matter of weeks.

"In 1973, when the Vietnamese said he was staying voluntarily, why didn't (U.S. authorities) demand to see him?" asked Garwood's friend. "The question is: Who deserted whom? He didn't desert the U.S. — the U.S. deserted him. Bobby really loves this country. And this really hurts."

Even though there are only 52 hostages, their vote is worth wooing. Carter is reminding them that their cost of living has been reduced considerably in the past year.

●

Before voting, the hostages will be told that under this administration their taxes have been lowered, and they have been untouched by inflation, rush-hour traffic and Japanese imports.

●

The strategy is to convince the hostages, before they mail their ballots, that the rescue mission was a success.

NICK THIMMISCH

Nick Thimmesch

ST. LOUIS — To observe Ronald Reagan and reflect on him and his years in public life is to realize that he is as intelligent and qualified as Gerry Ford was when he suddenly became president. Moreover, as with Ford, it is difficult to find anyone, including jaded souls in the media, who feels any authentic animosity toward him.

People who disagree with his politics still acknowledge that Reagan truly believes what he says, and is an earnest, pleasant, considerate man. He has a reassuring, presidential presence, and perhaps this explains why he is still slightly ahead of Jimmy Carter in some key states.

But Reagan's managers know that nice guys can lose, as in 1976; undecided voters drift toward the incumbent president in the final days; and reluctant Democrats, though disillusioned with Carter, might well come home on Election Day.

That's why Reagan was persuaded to engage in a so-called debate with Carter — to stop the flow by showing an enormous television audience that he is not the warmonger or racist Carter says he is, and, it's hoped, to stand in contrast to a president showing his mean side.

No question that Reagan has relaxed many a Democratic voter's apprehension over a Republican president. Reagan is at home with farmers, truck drivers, carpenters, construction workers. Indeed, as he spoke to a large rally near the great arch here, he received a hard hat and the endorsement of several local union leaders, whom he thanked for their "courage."

Reagan, affecting a gee-whiz manner, sounds sincere when he says he doesn't want to see the U.S. in another war, and that he would do everything to keep the nation strong and out of war.

He sounds like he's on the farmers' side when he attacks Carter for embargoing grain but not technology to the Soviets. He gets cheers for his simplistic definitions: "Recession is when your neighbor is out of work. Depression is when you are. Recovery is when Jimmy Carter loses his job."

Reagan can indulge in nostalgia, as he did at his college, Eureka, contrasting its warmth with the feeling at "big diploma mills." He makes rural downstaters feel good when he tells them farm technology did more for the U.S. than the "glamour" of electronics. There's a lot of by-golly in his delivery.

And yet, while he pleads for the government "to get off our backs," he invokes Democratic President Roosevelt, who did plenty to put government in citizens' lives. While expressing gratitude for the Teamsters' endorsement, Reagan says nothing of Teamster opposition to deregulation of the trucking industry.

Those, like Carter, who scorn him as an "actor" should consult former California Gov. Pat Brown, who reminded a black child on TV in 1966 that an actor shot Lincoln, and was rudely upset by Reagan in the election. Footnote: Reagan's bold fans wear T-shirts declaring: "Why Not an Actor? We've Had a Clown for Four Years."

His managers have carefully arranged stops where the crowds are certified to be sympathetic, and where small bands of ERA and pro-abortion advocates offer feeble resistance. Several busloads of press, cameras and sound equipment are around to follow him through a friendly college reunion featuring his likeable old coach; a small-town parade on a brilliant fall day; courthouse square rallies where Lincoln's spirit is felt; the Dixie truckers' stop; a coal mine; a prosperous farm; and Lincoln's tomb. Reagan played well around Peoria.

However he moderates his views on foreign policy, Reagan seems out of touch with what has happened in the Third World and Arab nations in the past 25 years. He seems to have avoided the great cutting edges of the world.

If he is elected, I suspect he will ride his horse around the White House lawn, and buy back the Sequoia, the presidential yacht which Carter righteously sold off for a bad price. Reagan could be the entertainment-political personality who de-personalizes the presidency, according to Eugene McCarthy's prescription. He could rely considerably on bright, able advisors, and spare us the wrenching uncertainty we have felt since 1977.

If the debate happens, Reagan will be reassuring, confident, earnest and a little right — as he has been through his political career. He might show the American public that he is what they really want in a year when the catalogue is thin. His managers are gambling, but don't admit it.

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

Redistricting a difficult process, even without Texas' Voting Rights Act

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Ask anyone who watches the legislature to name the top issues which will face the 1981 Legislature, and odds are that list will begin with "redistricting."

Redistricting never has been a simple process, nor a particularly pleasant one, as anyone who's ever been through the process will swear under oath.

But if things were complex before, the Texas Legislature will soon be finding that things have become even more entangled, due to the addition of the Voting Rights Act.

Under the VRA, Texas must submit its redistricting plan for "preclearance" by the United States Attorney General — or resign itself to seeing redistricting handled by the federal courts (something which may occur, regardless of legislative efforts.)

However, legislators are attempting to head off that prospect, by laying the groundwork now for the redistricting effort this spring.

Because of court decisions and VRA provisions, the biggest problem facing lawmakers is how to set up districts of equal population, of an area as compact as possible, without diluting minority voting strength.

Goliad Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, who heads the House Committee on Regions, Compacts and Districts, has been wrestling with that problem through a series of hearings across the state (which are now at the halfway point.)

"The information," Von Dohlen says, "has been very helpful...we've been getting a good response, and not just in the groups coming to testify."

Many of those groups have represented minorities, he reports; also appearing have been local officials to explain "peculiarities" of their areas, and "most importantly," resource witnesses on "communities of interest" — including minority groups.

The VRA, Von Dohlen says, is "not to assure that so many of any minority are elected, but to assure that all persons have equal access to the process."

The committee has been working with Texas Secretary of State George Strake's office to secure data on registered voters, has bought computer time from the Department of Water Resources to analyze 1970 census data, and has compiled a 4,000-person mailing list to keep interested persons advised on its hearings.

"All this should boil down to the point where the committee makes some recommendations on how, procedurally, redistricting is to be accomplished," Von Dohlan explains.

"Everyone should know the ground rules," he adds, when the legislature starts its efforts.

"Redistricting is political, and there's nothing you can do to escape that," he comments. "But often, in the past, the rules of the game weren't known before the legislation was before the legislative body."

"We want to have everybody playing by the same rules...and trying to keep within the constitutional and statutory requirements of the state and federal governments."

But, as a special report by the House Study Group points out, there are still lots of questions left unresolved in the process.

"One thing that is certain in redistricting under the Voting Rights Act," that report argues, "is that it must be a conscious, informed process. It is no longer possible or legal...to be colorblind."

It also seems clear that redistricting plans cannot make it more difficult for minorities to control a district — "nonretrogression" is the term employed — but it is much less clear how that is to be done.

One of the biggest questions — and one which has the potential for bitter argument in the session ahead — is creation of "safe districts" for minorities, that is, districts in which minorities can control the election.

Obviously, a "safe district" would seem to need a majority of minority voters — but other factors, including voter registration and turnout, also have to be considered (and one complication there is that minorities have had a lower percentage turnout of registered voters in the past.)

Court decisions have indicated that it's permissible to create safe districts for minorities (but not for nonminorities), but have stopped short of saying it is necessary, taking the position that no group has a right to representation in proportion to its numbers.

Needless to say, that gives lawmakers a delicate balance to attempt to maintain in drawing districts — and the task will be made even more difficult by the fact that the 1980 Census data won't be ready until April 1 (assuming it arrives on time), and even then won't be complete.

And a federal judge in Detroit has ordered the Census Bureau to find some more minority group members for his city, using a "statistically defensible" method.

What effect that may have on getting the census figures out remains unknown, but it has increased concern that the figures may not be available in time for the 1981 legislature to complete its work in the regular session.

In any event, the outcome of the redistricting effort isn't likely to be known individually — it took seven years to get the Texas redistricting plans through the courts last time — and it would not be too surprising if it takes at least that this time.

Faith restored

To The Editor:

I would like to show my appreciation to the Midland County Sheriff's Department, and especially David Garcia of the Criminal Investigation Division, along with the other officers that assisted in the search and capture of a man who was involved in a scam that affected a lot of people in Midland and maybe other towns.

They have done a fantastic job, in just a few days and very little to go on. We should be very proud of our sheriff's department and our Sheriff Dallas Smith. I would also like to thank the Better Business Bureau and the Midland Police Department. My money is lost, but my faith is restored.

I would also like to remind people to watch out for door to door salesmen that come around, even if it's a once in a lifetime deal. If you're not sure about a company, contact your Better Business Bureau and then the police.

An animal's cry

To The Editor:

As I was reading my newspaper yesterday afternoon, I heard the cry of a little kitten. Once again someone had dropped an animal by our house. We live on the outskirts of Midland, but still inside the city limits. In the last three months, we have had five cats dumped here, one of them a female and she gave birth to two babies the next day.

I have all the pets I want and I can't afford to feed every stray that comes to my door. So I'm the one who has to carry them to the city animal shelter.

Won't you please take your unwanted animals to the animal shelter? Don't put me through this heartbreaking task anymore. I end up crying every time it happens. If you have ever been guilty of dropping an unwanted animal in the country, I hope the cry of that animal will haunt you for the rest of your life.

Measuring up

To The Editor:

I have just read Mr. Green's advice to wood buyers, Page 6F, Sunday, Oct. 19, and I would like to suggest that Mr. Green get his measurements correct before giving advice. A cord of wood is not 6' x 4', as he stated, it is 8' x 4' x 4'.

The short cord he writes about doesn't exist. That is a rick, 8' x 4' x 19", which is a third of a cord, so anyone using Mr. Green's measurements is going to be a fourth of a cord short.

Key and question

To The Editor:

Let's update Lincoln's remarks about the survival of this nation, or any nation so conceived (in liberty) and so dedicated (to the proposition that all men are created equal) to right now, 1980. Removal of quotes deliberate.

Survival is the key and the question. Then, as now. Today, equality of the right to vote includes men and women, and that right to vote is assured. Liberty to talk and act and vote is assured. We do have liberty. We do have the right to determine what course our nation will follow.

Why, then, do I say that 1980 is a serious test for the survival of the United States? Not as an alarmist, let me assure you. But as one who is somewhat alarmed. Voting is the key. Voting is the basic, crucial test. Can the voter survive all the media pressure?

Rerun requested

To The Editor:

I enjoyed reading your editorial on October 15, 1980, concerning the proposed constitutional amendments. In my opinion, you are absolutely correct with regard to proposed amendments nos. 2 and 8. The passage of these two amendments would cause many more problems than they would alleviate.

I would encourage you to run the editorial again on November 3, 1980, so that the voters may again be reminded of the need to vote against those two amendments.

Needs a home

To The Editor:

Busey was turned over to Animal Control Saturday the 18th of October. She needed a new home. Being a beautiful silver poodle, that shouldn't be too difficult. However, Busey was the victim of an indiscrete pregnancy and just three days earlier she miscarried her unwanted puppies.

Not knowing the family circumstance regarding the need for Busey to be taken to Animal Control, I do not fault anyone. However, she, like so many more, need responsible pet owners. She is experiencing so many things at once, no home and in a very fragile condition because of her recent natural abortion. Poodles have a special understanding of the things around them, I guess that's why Busey prompted this letter. She waits, like so many more, hoping the master will return!

If you need a dog I urge you to go to Animal Control. I feel a Busey is waiting there for you.

After a visit you'll feel good knowing Dalton Byerly and staff do a good job that could be lessened if we would be responsible for every pet we own. Busey waits with others for someone special.

How long...?

To The Editor:

There was once a TV commercial that portrayed a grizzled Texas Ranger-type with a rich baritone voice who asked, in stentorian tones with a southwestern flavor, "How long has it been since you have had a good bowl of chili?" and, like Pilate, not waiting for an answer, replied to his own question, "Well, that's too long."

The same question might well be asked of good Mexican food. Tex-Mex, that is. They don't eat that stuff way south of the border.

Though Mexican food restaurants and fast food taco stands (ugh) are springing up everywhere, la comida mexicana is about as picante as a bowl of cereal. Time was when a bite of a good enchilada would make the top of your head go off like the Astrodome scoreboard. Pantywaist palate gringos, sadly to relate, have reduced it to a dish about as exciting as diving into the ole' swimming hole with your overalls on. And sin cebollas, yet. That's without onions, son.

Now, how long has it been since — Well that's too long. Que lastima!

To The Editor:

"Wolves in Sheep's Clothing:"

If the oil companies would only admit it. They have made more money under Jimmy Carter than any president in the history of this great country.

Governor Clements and the oil companies from the start have led the people of Texas into believing the windfall profit tax would shut down all the drilling in Texas and the United States. At this time I would like to bring the public up to date on the U.S. Drilling Statistics.

U.S. drillers completed 49,816 wells in 1979, more than any 12 month period in 20 years. In the first half of 1980 they completed 26,569 wells and averaged 146 completions every day.

This was an increase of 18 percent over the first half of 1979. At this rate the last half of 1980 will break all drilling records, also in early 1981 the windfall profit tax will be lifted on royalty onwers. Texas is Carter Country. Big oil money can't change this, ReRon Reagan and Catclaw Bush are no-no's in Texas.

Happy Hoover

To The Editor:

As election day draws near, with all the candidates spouting off what is wrong with America, it brings back memories of those good old days from long ago. Back then they were called Hoover days with cotton 10¢ lb. for top grade. Gasoline 12¢ gal. Canned goods 6 for 25¢. A delicious hamburger 5¢. The best movie in town all of 15¢ per person.

A car was a family luxury. Very few could afford one and junior rode in the back seat because dad was the sole driver. You wouldn't believe what we could buy with our salary of $1 per day. The school teachers got the fabulous salary of $50 per month. So what's wrong with America?

I think all of us would love to see all those Hoover prices with the Carter wages. Can't have it all folks. The best of all is our freedom of choice. America is the greatest country on earth so put your mind where your mouth is come Nov. 4 and make the right choice and keep it great.

Making it work

To The Editor:

In these trying times of high inflation, high interest rates and tight mortgage money, people are becoming flustered and disillusioned. Many wonder what to do and what the future has in store for them. They feel something is not right and that there is not much they can do about the situation. The only certainty is that prices are all going up, from the grocery store to housing and the taxes we pay. The increase in income we receive is not keeping up with the cost of living increase.

What is wrong? Our problem is a government out of control; a government that mismanages the money we send it (through taxes we pay) then, through deficit spending, spends money it does not have. This deficit spending has fueled the fires of inflation out of control, driven up interest rates and brought about tight mortgage money.

Another problem is governmental overregulation that has stiffled business, especially small business, and added billions of dollars in additional cost of products which must be passed on to the consumer.

Those who serve in elected positions are our elected delegates who represent us in the lawmaking procedure. Why vote? Why not vote and give democracy a chance to work? It might if we all participate in the election process. Let's give it a try. Vote Tuesday, November 4.

Tennis time

To The Editor:

The Midland Tennis Club held its 20th annual fall tournament, a U.S.T.A.-Penn Circuit Event, recently at the Midland High tennis courts, with the finals being played at the Racquet Club.

This Penn Circuit Event featured many of the higher ranked players in the world, both amateur and professional. Many people worked very hard to make this tournament possible and successful.

We would like to extend a special appreciation to the following:

Fred Middleton and First National Bank; Western Company; W.P.C. Company; Neill McClung and the Racquet Club; Linz Jewlery; Ed Clements, KCRS; David Hart, KRIG; Scott Flury and Mark McEniry, KWEL and KBAT; Scott Meyer, KNFM; John Roman, KQIP; Gloria Garcia and Carl Rogers, KOSA; Dave Garcia and Judy Hill, KMID; and Ted Battles, Reporter-Telegram.

Good goals

To The Editor:

As a staff nurse, I recognize the back to basics as a beginning to public awareness of the internal conflict that continues to grow at Midland Memorial Hospital. I feel as a professional that airing internal conflicts of an institution is not wise, but when it affects the community as a whole I feel the need and that need is now.

It is true that the primary goals of Midland Memorial Hospital are to deliver quality care to its clients and maintain a public service to its community. I feel that we have come short of these goals with the most important goal playing second to the financial state of the hospital.

Field studies such as Tribrook that are not conducted over a long period of time can be seen as invalid when considering major management reorganization. Change, sure, is always met with some rebuttal by the staff members, but when conducted over a period of time it has been proven to be effective. This is not the case with MMH. Drastic changes done without proper concensus of the staff that are to be effected shall always fail, unless you turn to such tactics as the "Peter Principle," where individuals are promoted until they finally find a position that they are totally non-functional such as the case with recent promotions at MMH. This is the present policy at MMH's administration. I can just hope that the newly appointed administrator will see fit to correct these negligent acts by the present interim administration.

Back to Tribrook's efficiency study where they have found that the hospital is overstaffed. I ask how this can be true when I have been repeatedly asked to work extra in order to cover the various units. At the present time there are 15 positions available in nursing service alone. There are also 13 positions cited for other services within the hospital. The majority of the positions are for 3-11 and 11-7 time slots. I'm sure that predisposes the situation that some areas are not well covered at these times which makes me very uncomfortable about the type of care that we are able to give.

The real insult

To The Editor:

Charley Reese's column of October 17 describes a boycott on the part of "good people" against various TV programs, calling these programs an "insult to decency" and a "negative influence on young people."

But it seems to me that the real "insult to decency" is the blind support of oppression and militarism which have surfaced in television programs espousing the views of the Christian, liberal or conservative; how can any human being fail to be appalled by the testimony of violence in the name of peace which pervades such TV programs as that of James Robison, aired the night of Oct. 16? "Thank God," Robison implied, that there exist Americans who are ready to annihilate the world in the name of peace and Christ; "Thank God," Robison stated, for such true Americans as he, who are willing to wade ankle-deep in blood (the image, I'm afraid, is Mr. Robison's) in order to save the world for Christ. If the "Moral Majority" of conservative Christians really wants to remove "perversion" from the airways, let it begin with its own programming.

And let us all ask why we find ourselves so quick to fight and kill for Christian principles, but so slow to live the healing spirit of Christ's redemptive pacifism; why there are so many of us like Margaret Fell, who cried out to the Lord, "We are all thieves, we are all thieves, we have taken the Scriptures in words and know nothing of them in ourselves" — but so few of us determined to live out Jesus' terribly difficult yet sublimely simple prescription: "Love one another, even as I have loved you." Let us seek answers to our woes not in the tarnished cadences of the Old Testament vengeance, but in our efforts to create a world community in which the causes of war — greed, poverty, oppression — are eliminated; let us realize that that path is the only way we have to survive as a human community; for we cannot — must not — study war any more.

Tying it up

To The Editor:

This weekend I was shopping at Midland Park Mall when a Jayceeette approached me. She asked me to wear a yellow ribbon in support of our men and women being held against their will in Iran, as well as to sign a petition to be sent to the Iranian government on their behalf. The Jaycee-ettes, as well as the Midland County Courthouse and various businesses and individuals displaying yellow ribbons are to be commended.

At this election time we are divided on which candidates we favor. But we must continue to stand as one in support of our hostages. We united during Vietnam for our POW's and MIA's. Let us not now forget our fellow Americans who suffer untold anguish and persecution at the hands of the Iranian government, but to remember and support them by wearing and displaying yellow ribbons until they return home.

On wearing a walking cane

Those who wait until they really need the "third leg" may welcome the convenience it affords. A few may tend to resent this aid, demean it unfairly and without just cause, and thus treat themselves unjustly.

Don't.

Those who accept age and its inconveniences give grace to this noble stick.

But, why wait, when you can enjoy "cane enhancement" sooner than you need it. Do it in good health and be proud.

Here's a case: An Emersonian professor, Hubert H. Hoeltje, who didn't really need a cane, elegantly carried one. His students, including Roustin' About, at East Texas State University admired this scholar, who lived the transcendental life he taught.

He had lived a good, long, wholesome and fulfulling life, imparted his wisdom and knowledge freely, and was killed in a mishap that lacked the poetic nature he deserved. He died in 1968 at age 70.

It'd get him safely across otherwise busy intersections as if the street were bare of traffic.

"Oh," said a gracious Midland lady who's coming into her 81st year, "I don't think it's elegant, but it keeps me from falling." She carries the cane out of need.

The cane could come into vogue and could create fashion anew.

But, there are problems to overcome. And uppermost of these is "labeling." The cane, since it is associated with infirmities and frailty, is viewed as the old man's or old woman's tool.

True, the cane befits those "oldsters" who really need it. So, why not the young and middle-aged?

Try it. Find yourself two or three canes to suit the occasion and experiment in handling them.

Take the cane to work and try to conceal your self-consciousness, which will subside after awhile. Let 'em talk. Let 'em speculate. Let 'em ask questions. Tell the curious "them" that nothing's the matter and appear somewhat baffled that they should ask. Let them be mystified.

Be avant-garde. Start a trend. Make your stab at creating a whole new fashion.

If you're persnickety, you might select canes for all attires and occasions. Even select a wardrobe on the basis of the aura you might expect to project with the cane.

If you're just a natural kind of fellow, you might find a cane you're comfortable with. The walking stick will became part of your character, as sure as your hat, cap, beard and attire that separates you from the rest of the guys and gals.

POSITIVE THINKING

The instincts of child-rearing

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

It was really wonderful in those beautiful earlier days how in the this country parents knew instinctively, as the result of their religion, how to deal with children. And this is a skill that we would do well to relearn.

I recall once when our family lived in Greenville, Ohio, and I was an adolescnet that I could not sleep without tossing restlessy. My mother came in, sat on my bed and asked what the matter was. I was reluctant to tell her what was on my mind, but she was the kind of mother to whom a kid could talk, and I blurted out, "I have bad thoughts."

My mother was smart enough to know that this should be handled by my father, so she said she loved me and left the room.

Later I was awakened by my father, sitting on my bed. "About those bad thoughts," he began directly, "do they involve girls?"

I nodded shamefacedly.

"They are natural. We all have had them."

"You?" I said. "You have had bad thoughts?"

"Sure. Every real boy does."

He proceeded to give me a medical description of the "bad thought" problem, then concluded the conversation by quoting an old saying: " 'You cannot prevent the birds from flying over your head,' " he explained, " 'but you can keep them from building nests in your hair.' It is natural for bad thoughts to come to mind. But if your mind, acting as a judge, repels them, you are stronger thereby and should in no sense feel guilty. In fact, you have gained a moral victory. And," he added, "the Lord is there to help you."

Always my mother and father made us realize that the Lord was ever there to help us. And other mothers and fathers were doing the same. So powerful was this God-centered influence that as I think back to all the boys and girls I knew in my youth, the great majority turned out to be people of the finest character, their marriages were a blessing and they became what you might call the salt of the earth. Maybe we could learn something about raising children, about making real people of them.

Magnetic train may be possible in Japan

By BRYAN BRUMLEY
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese, who have been riding the 125-mile-an-hour "Bullet Train" since 1964, can look forward to riding one in the next decade that goes almost twice as fast — virtually without a sound or vibration. It will float on a magnetic cushion.

Japanese engineers began designing the magnetic train two years before the Bullet Train was inaugurated and a prototype designed by the Japan National Railways (JNR) is to undergo a new phase of tests in December.

The prototype of a slower model, designed for urban transit, is being tested by Japan Air Lines, at Higashi Ogijima, a man-made island on Tokyo Bay. The sleek eight-passenger high speed surface transport (HSST), called a "wingless airplane" by its creators, makes a sound not unlike "hsst" as it travels at speeds up to 186 mph.

"The most important factor is the ability of the (JNR) train to carry large numbers of people quickly, with very little noise," says Yoshiro Kyotani, director of technical development for the National Railways.

Kyotani predicts that magnetic levitation vehicles (Maglevs) could be shuttling passengers at 240 mph between major Japanese cities by the early 1990s to supplement the Shinkansen (Bullet Train), which has carried more than 1.5 billion passengers in 16 years.

Last December, a Maglev set a new speed record for trains, 320 mph. The new prototype is designed to carry passengers and move along a more efficient track.

Further development of either the National Railways or the Japan Air Lines systems will require government money. The railway, controlled by the Transport Ministry, is virtually assured funding, but the airline must compete with another design developed five years ago by the Japan Locomotive Association.

"The JNR system is already established," says Jiro Hanyu of the ministry's urban division. "The most important thing now is to reduce the cost," he said, estimating that it would take more than $1 billion to build a line between Tokyo and Osaka, Japan's second largest city 180 miles to the west.

"If it is developed, it will be used for long distance transport. The other two are designed for urban transit, especially between the city and the airport," Hanyu said.

Japan, 75 percent dependent on imported oil for its energy supply and consisting of a series of narrow mountainous islands in which only 20 percent of the land can be farmed or inhabited, already relies heavily on rail transport. Proponents of the magnetic train argue that it is more land and fuel efficient than other means of transportation.

Airline officials say construction of a Maglev line between Tokyo and Narita International Airport 40 miles away could cut transportation time from the current 90 minutes to 15 minutes. They say the main problem is neither the money nor technology, but land.

"The main obstacle in building the system is securing the right of way," says Akira Hayashi, general manager of the airline project.

Construction of the airport and related facilities has been plagued for years by opposition, some of it violent, from farmers and anti-government militant groups protesting the taking of land.

Irate citizen groups also threaten to sidetrack a proposed expansion of the Bullet Train, on grounds that existing lines exceed lawful limits on noise.

Other nations are moving ahead with high-speed trains. France plans to open its very-high-speed, 260-mile Paris-Lyon route next October. The French claim it will be the world's fastest train, with a top speed of 156 mph, but it will ride conventional rails rather than a magnetic cushion.

To achieve high speeds, the JNR design employs a linear synchronous motor in which a superconductor aboard the train is cooled to 269 degrees below zero centigrade using liquid helium.

The train is lifted by repulsing forces between the magnets on the train and others in a slot-shaped track. Forward motion is achieved by passing electricity through coils in the track ahead of the train, creating an attractive force for a second bank of magnets on the vehicle.

Kyotani claims the super-conductivity and the electrification of the magnets in the track make his system faster and more efficient than other designs developed in Japan or elsewhere.

The airline's HSST system employs a simpler linear induction motor, in which current passes only through magnets on the train, inducing an attractive and propulsive magnetic force on a reactive rail on the track. The HSST is lifted by attractive forces between magnets on arms which extend from the train and tuck under magnets on the underside of the monorail-type track.

May endanger the elderly

By THOMAS S. BROWN

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Energy conservation measures may endanger the lives of many elderly people who have difficulty maintaining proper body temperatures, specialists on aging have warned.

Cool temperatures which can be borne safely by the general populace can bring on hypothermia — the inability to maintain a body temperature of at least 95 degrees — and lead to death in some older people, the specialists said Thursday at a conference on Energy Equity and the Elderly.

Dr. John Stitt, a Yale University epidemiologist, said hypothermia among the old has been studied in England but is just beginning to be recognized in this country.

He cited a recent estimate by the National Institute on Aging that up to 2.3 million people over 65, or roughly one out of every 10, experience subnormal temperatures daily. Though it is difficult to pin death on hypothermia without complex autopsies, Stitt said he agreed with estimates that it claims several hundred lives per year.

"We must be careful not to throw the elderly into a panic." Stitt said, adding it was possible for an old person to withstand cool temperatures safely.

Special day proclaimed

The Texas Success Syndrome, including Winners Circle Rally and the Zig Ziglar Sales Seminar, will be in Midland and Odessa Tuesday.

Mayor Thane Akins, in cooperation with the Midland Chamber of Commerce and the Permian Basin Petroleum Club, has proclaimed Tuesday as Midland's Positive Living Day at a luncheon featuring Ed Foreman. Foreman is the only man to have been elected to Congress from two states, Texas and New Mexico, and is one of the Winners Circle Rally speakers.

The day's seminars will begin with the first annual Sales Seminar conducted by Zig Ziglar from noon to 4 p.m. in the Midland Center. It will be followed by the Winners Circle Rally from 6 to 10 p.m. in the Ector County Coliseum, featuring Dennis Waitley, author of "Psychology of Winning." Waitley assisted in training the astronauts for the space program. Foreman will also speak, and the seminar will end with Ziglar.

The seminars are sponsored by People Plus, a Lubbock organization dedicated to bringing ongoing educational programs to the public.

Foreign policy ideas starkly contrasting

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The issue is war and peace, and Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan have used it to portray themselves and their foreign policy positions in starkly contrasting terms.

Carter often pictures Reagan as an irresponsible, shoot-from-the-hip purveyor of hard-line aggressiveness whose preference for military options in dangerous situations could lead the nation into a dangerous and costly arms race or thrust it into war.

And he says those qualities raise the possibility that under Carter, the nation could drift into war.

Carter's defenders dismiss Reagan's accusations as "ludicrous," and cite the president's peacemaking efforts in the Middle East and Africa and his own self-proclaimed "passion for peace."

On the Iranian hostage crisis, which will be a year old on Election Day, Reagan says Carter's foreign policy "helped create the entire situation that made their kidnap possible."

At the start of the crisis, Reagan says, the administration should have told Iran that the hostages must be released by a specific date, or something "very unpleasant" would happen.

Reagan now says he has some ideas on ending the crisis, but refuses to say what they are.

Carter replied by ridiculing Reagan's statement as a claim that his opponent had a "secret plan" similar to Richard Nixon's claim in 1968 that he had a secret plan to end the Vietnam War.

And he recently said that if the 52 hostages are released, he will release frozen Iranian assets, lift restrictions against exports to Iran and seek normal relations between the two countries.

Iran aside, Carter and Reagan have made the "war and peace" debate a principal campaign issue, with the pending SALT II treaty with the Soviet Union at the center of the issue.

Carter says the treaty, the result of seven years of negotiations under three presidents, puts a cap on the arms race and provides a base for negotiating future deep cuts in nuclear weapons.

When the Russian troops stormed into Afghanistan last winter, Carter asked the Senate to postpone consideration of the treaty. But at the same time he made it clear he believed the pact was in the nation's interest. He now promises to ask the Senate to ratify the pact as an urgent national priority at the earliest possible moment, even though Soviet troops remain in Afghanistan.

Reagan says SALT II is "fatally flawed." He vows to scrap it and move immediately to negotiate a replacement SALT III treaty based on a threat to start an all out arms race if the Soviets do not cooperate.

"The one card that's been missing in these negotiations is the possibility of an arms race," Reagan said in an interview with the Associated Press in early October.

Carter later said Reagan was being "extraordinarily naive" if he thought that the Russians would negotiate nuclear arms reductions under his terms.

He said Reagan could bring the nation to the brink of war if he is elected president, and that the former California governor can't be trusted in the Oval Office.

In another aspect of the "war and peace" issue, Reagan claims Carter has allowed the nation's military "margin of safety" to erode and failed consistently to act in the face of an ever-increasing Soviet military threat.

But Reagan has not spelled out exactly how wide such a margin of safety should be or how much extra money he would spend on military hardware and manpower.

Some estimates run as high as $50 billion. Reagan's aides say that figure is too high, but provide no precise estimates.

"The evidence of the Soviet threat to American security has never been more stark and unambiguous, nor has any president been more oblivious to this threat and its potential consequences," Reagan said in his acceptance speech at the Republican National Convention.

Carter replied: "In every campaign, when a candidate charged the Russians were ahead of us, after the campaign, those charges were proven to be false."

The former California governor has been a consistent critic of the administration's China policy, contending that in recognizing Peking the White House "abandoned" its longtime friends on Taiwan.

Early in the campaign, Reagan sent George Bush, his running mate, to Peking and in the process got into a trans-oceanic spat over whether he would restore "official" ties to Taiwan if elected.

Carter hails the formal recognition of the People's Republic of China as one of his foreign policy successes, along with the Camp David accords and peace between Egypt and Israel, the relinquishing of the Panama Canal and support for black majority rule in Zimbabwe.

He flatly opposed the "giveaway" of the Panama Canal.

Both candidates have played the Israel card in pursuit of Jewish voters. Each has pledged to be a steadfast friend of Israel. Reagan has scored Carter for allegedly "standing by" while the Palestine Liberation Organization works to isolate Israel through terrorism and United Nations resolutions. Carter says he will never negotiate with the PLO as long as it does not recognize Israel's right to exist.

RINGING THE BELL

Christian colleges possibly are doomed

By BOB TIEUEL

According to Charles W. Conn, he states that in recent years the warning that private church-related or Christian colleges are doomed, has been sounded so frequently that it begins to sound like the fabled cry of "wolf."

Many people refuse to take the warning seriously. This is a dangerous attitude.

On the other end of the spectrum, there is a feeling that sooner or later Christian colleges will cease to exist. Yet, Mr. Conn believes the truth lies somewhere between the two attitudes.

Christian colleges are seriously threatened by numerous difficulties, but these can be solved and colleges can survive.

In general, Christian colleges are already folding at a frightening pace. And the worse is yet to come. A recent study projects that in 1980s one private college per week will close its doors and that some 500 colleges will cease operation during the decade.

Most of these, it is assumed, will be smaller black-oriented Christian colleges, such as the six or seven now operating in Texas alone.

And according to the Oklahoma Black Eagle newspaper, black colleges have become, across the years, the repository of our black culture and the source of the race's leadership. Money to support institutions of higher education usually comes from student enrollment, endowment funds, athletic programs and fund raising charismatic presidents.

Black colleges are generally short on all four.

There are approximately 220,000 students in 107 black colleges around the nation. Sixty-three of these are publicly supported, while 44 are privately supported by various denominations of blacks. Black colleges cannot solve all of the problems which face them without a large measure of help from the nation.

Dear Bob: Have enjoyed reading your column in this newspaper for a number of years, and although I do not always agree with you, I know that you have a right to "one man's opinion." Keep up the good work.

As a graduate of a black college and a black university, I hope to be present Nov. 2 at the Odessa Holiday Inn to wave our flag.

One thing more, I believe that Ronald Reagan will get a larger proportion of black votes this time around than any other Republican nominee in recent years. What do you think? — Mrs. M.P.L.

Dear Mrs. P.: I have to agree with you for many reasons.

Headquarters for the National Black Voters for Reagan-Bush is at 901 S. Highland St. in Arlington, Va., and is headed by William O. Walker, publisher of the Cleveland Call and Post newspaper of Cleveland, and we have been in constant touch will them in recent weeks.

It is my conviction that blacks should always be ready to re-examine our political behavior, to explore new alternatives, to entertain novel ideas.

With the declining importance of traditional civil rights issues, those blacks whose class interests largely coincide with the Republican philosophy may well be attracted to that party.

Thanks for your letter. Write again. — Bob

According to Vernon E. Jordan Jr., "A major barrier to social progress lies in the yawning gap between white perceptions and black experience. That is why the League's Black Pulse Survey is so important. Although the interviews were made before the full impact of the present recession hit, unemployment was clearly identified as the number one problem in the black community."

Bob's Note: This is not true for the most part in West Texas, Southeastern New Mexico and many areas in Oklahoma and Louisiana, where black employment is well above average. The findings also reflect continuing discrimination in jobs, housing, loans and contacts with public and private officials.

Court upholds militaryantigayrule

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Navy regulation requiring all personnel who have engaged in homosexual conduct to be discharged from the service was upheld Friday by a federal appeals court.

The 9th U.S. Court of Appeals said the Navy has the right "to protect the fabric of military life" by enforcing the strict rule.

However, the court also said that other Navy regulations concerning gays — approved after the strict rule went into effect — give the Navy "at least some flexibility" in dealing with homosexuals.

The ruling, in effect, means the Navy can discharge homosexuals from the service as it sees fit.

The court cited a need for discipline and order in the service and the potential for difficulties arising out of close confinement aboard ships and bases.

"A substantial number of naval personal have feelings regarding homosexuality...which would create tensions and hostilities," the court said.

At issue is a 1975 case involving Dennis R. Beller and Mary Roseann Saal, who were discharged, and James Lee Miller, who was ordered discharged but allowed to remain on duty pending an appeal.

The three, who the appeals court said had "otherwise fine performance records," admitted homosexual conduct. Each challenged the discharge orders on constitutional grounds.

The appeals court said, however, that their constitutional rights had not been violated.

Ms. Saal enlisted in 1971, was trained and assigned as an air traffic controller at Alameda Naval Air station. In 1972 she began a three-year enlistment and in March, 1973, after an investigation, signed a statement admitting homosexual conduct.

Miller is now stationed at Treasure Island. He enlisted in 1965. An investigation in 1975 led to his admission that he performed homosexual acts while stationed in Taiwan.

The state asked a federal judge on Tuesday for a seven-month extension of the Jan. 1 deadline for eliminating the practice of housing two inmates in cells designed for one.

Does modeling school ever pay?

By JANE SEE WHITE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In modeling, the magic words are "New York." And, in Fashion City, a modeling school diploma doesn't necessarily count.

"Only God makes models," sniffed Eileen Ford, whose Ford Agency accepts about 100 of the 10,000 aspiring models who apply each year.

Three-quarters of the $50 million spent on models each year is spent here. Four New York agencies — Ford, Wilhelmina, Zoli and Elite Model Management — control 60 percent of the industry's billings.

A few models earn good money in Los Angeles, Dallas, Chicago and Los Angeles. Elsewhere — except for a handful who may earn up to about $20,000 a year — models generally find only part-time work at department stores or for newspaper ads, experts say.

Even in New York, modeling is not all glamour. Models work long hours and compete intensely for work. Those who succeed pay a high price in time, energy and self-discipline.

Julie Floyd, an 18-year-old fawn-eyed honey-blonde, is a Ford model and graduate of the Plaza 3 modeling school in Phoenix, Ariz. In the year since she came to New York, she's done ads for Countrytime Lemonade and Clearasil acne medication, among others.

Julie rises daily by 7 a.m. and spends most days trekking through a tight schedule of auditions. She often puts in 12 or 14 hours.

Most of the New York models she has met never went to modeling school, but Julie says she's glad she did.

"I really did learn a lot in school. The teachers were all models and they'd all been in Europe or New York or Los Angeles. They'd been through all this and they prepared me."

In New York, standards are rigid: A woman must be at least 5 feet 7 inches tall for fashion photography or runway work, for instance. And they're tough: Julie was once rejected because someone didn't like her feet.

"Our established models make around $100,000 a year," said Sue Charney of the Mannequin agency in New York, which handles mostly runway, or fashion show, models.

"For that money they're working all the time. There are very few — just two or three models — and they're working all day, nights, weekends."

Another form of New York modeling is designer showroom work. These models are paid up to $750 a week to be on call in a fashion designer's offices to model the designer's line for out-of-town buyers.

There is big money in cosmetic contracts. A handful of models earn up to $300,000 for a few weeks of work representing a cosmetics line.

Models who grace magazine fashion pages earn more prestige than cash. Most magazines pay a flat fee that ranges up to about $150 — much less than the $1,000 or more a day that top models earn for less prestigious work posing for, say, catalog ads.

Only a few reach such dizzy heights. And whether modeling school training eases the climb is a matter for angry debate.

School owners, predictably, say a good course can only help. Helen Rogers, a 1951 cover girl and the owner of Plaza 3, for instance:

"We've had girls come here who were passed over by modeling agencies. With a little training, they are in demand. We can take a really pretty, but ordinary girl and teach her to stand out."

Jerry Ford, like partner and wife Eileen, takes a negative stance: "If you haven't got it, no one can give it to you."

"A good school won't hurt," said Wilhelmina agency President Bill Weinberg. "But neither can it make anyone a top model."

But he warns that bad schooling can hurt: "Some girls come in here looking like they've been cloned. Same haircuts, same photos by the local photographer. Those schools are working from a textbook and have no knowledge or training beyond it."

The cost and quality of modeling training varies wildly.

Hagar the Horrible

DEAR FRIENDS:

. . While you're enjoying that cup of delicious brew let me tell you how to make those exotic blends that are so flavorsome yet so expensive. Even your neighbor won't be able to tell the difference, not to mention the money and calories saved, to boot!

If you like cinnamon, then try this "Vienna" flavor: In a blender, blend ½ cup instant coffee, two-thirds cup of sugar (substitute the appropriate amount of artificial sweetener if you're calorie-conscious), two-thirds cup powdered milk or coffee creamer, and ½ teaspoon cinnamon.

Does orange flavor send you soaring? To ½ cup instant coffee add ¾ cup sugar, 1 cup powdered milk or creamer, and ½ teaspoon dried orange peel. Again blend in a blender until powdered. Um-m-m

Now here's my favorite: Mocha! Just blend ½ cup instant coffee, ½ cup sugar, 1 cup dry milk or creamer, and 2 tablespoons cocoa.

Put 2 rounded teaspoons of one of these blends into a cup and pour in a cup of boiling water for a savory pick-me-up when you want a break from the daily grind, or when that special guest drops in.

Each recipe yields about 20 cups. Here's to 'ya!

FILL 'ER UP

DEAR HELOISE:

Losing a gas cap happened to me — ONCE!

Now, when I take off the gas cap to put in the gasoline, I set the cap in my front door handle.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

When Kris, our 4-year-old, cleaned her room, toys and clothes peeked out from under her bed.

When her dad gruffly ordered her to get the stuff out from under there, she promptly protested, "No, Dad! That's what holds it up!"

Elaine Rutledge

I've often wondered what a child's reasoning was for doing that — now I know!

Just for Kids

BABY SITTER'S CRAFT KIT

DEAR HELOISE:

I babysit preschoolers, and sometimes I find it hard to entertain them.

Happy Sitter, Age 14

DOING'S MORE FUN THAN WATCHING

DEAR HELOISE:

My friends and I were sitting around one day when suddenly an idea popped into my head.

Instead of watching television, we decided to start a "Latch Hook Club."

We meet three times a week at each other's house, bring our own latch-hook kit and sit around and discuss the latest news.

It's a great way to visit or meet people and do something creative at the same time!

Dawn Ramirez

I think that's a great idea! Any type of project would work — and it's so much more fun doing it together.

PARTY ICE

DEAR HELOISE:

To 'sculpt' ice cream shapes for children's parties, slice the ice cream into ¾-inch bricks when you first bring it home from the store, then freeze it until hard.

Using a paper pattern and a sharp knife, cut out simple shapes of ducks, bunnies or cats.

Mix the ice cream scraps with thickened gelatin dessert and pour into a fancy mold. Let it set and serve it to the adult guests.

Adrianne Prince

PAPER DECOR

DEAR HELOISE:

When you wallpaper your kitchen you usually have some wallpaper left over.

If you take an empty juice or coffee can (in the large size) and cover it with the wallpaper, you've got a cute holder to store your small kitchen utensils in.

Valerie Edwards

WIND CHIMES

DEAR HELOISE:

Unfortunately I wasn't born with a green thumb, so I found another use for my pole-type plant hanger.

I hang wind chimes on each hanger and place it near the heat register.

Now, each time the furnace kicks on we hear the sounds of summer. With a string and thumbtack one could easily attach chimes to the ceiling above the register.

L.A.G.

GRATED SUGAR

DEAR HELOISE:

When cooking with brown sugar, I often find it has become hard.

So I just grate it like I do cheese and it can then be easily measured and mixed.

Barbara Maclay

Good idea for after the fact, but to prevent the sugar from getting hard in the first place, store it in a tightly closed plastic bag.

To soften it once it's become hardened, just put a piece of bread or slice of apple into an air-tight container, along with the sugar, and in a couple of days the sugar should be good as new.

THE PROVINCE MUST BE ADMINISTERED UNTIL KING ARTHUR APPOINTS A NEW DUKE. GWYNN HAS QUIETLY POINTED OUT THE KNIGHTS MOST QUALIFIED. SHE HERSELF WILL REMAIN ARTHUR'S SECRET AGENT.

IN THE PRIVACY OF THEIR CHAMBERS, VAL AND ALETA THANK GWYNN FOR HER LOYAL SERVICE TO CAMELOT. "THE KING WILL KNOW OF YOUR DEEDS," PROMISES VAL.

ALETA GLOWS WITH COMPETENCE AS SHE EXPLAINS IN DETAIL THE TANGLED SCHEMES OF LAMBERT AND HIS BROTHERS. GREED AND LUST ARE TIMELESS MOTIVES. "KISS ME AND I'LL TELL YOU HOW I..." HER VOICE TRAILS OFF AS VAL BEGINS TO SNORE.

WHAT ABOUT PAUL'S FAMILY? DOES HE HAVE ONE, ROXY?

HIS PARENTS DIED WHEN HE WAS YOUNG AND HE WAS RAISED BY AN AUNT! NOW HE HAS NO ONE AT ALL!

BRADLEY and EDGINGTON 10-26

I HAVE THE FEELING YOU'RE MORE FAMILY TO HIM THAN A REAL FAMILY MIGHT BE!

WE RESPECT EACH OTHER --AND LIKE EACH OTHER!

WHAT KIND OF A FORMAL EDUCATION HAS HE HAD --- HIGH SCHOOL?

YES--AND EVERY SO OFTEN HE TAKES SOME NIGHT CLASS AT THE UNIVERSITY!

BUT HE'S LOST INTEREST LATELY AND I DON'T KNOW WHY!

AND HE WORKS IN A MILL?

IN A FOUNDRY! A PERSON WHO IS HARD OF HEARING DOESN'T LIKE TO ADMIT IT AND THERE'S A TENDENCY TO SHY AWAY FROM PEOPLE---

OFTEN GIVING THE IMPRESSION THAT HE IS LIMITED IN INTELLIGENCE!

IT DON'T COMPUTE.. WHY HAS MONROE GOT A BUNCH OF JUNK GUNS FOR DEFENSE AND A UNARMED MILLION-DOLLAR JET?

AND WHERE WOULD HE GET THAT KIND OF MONEY?

© Field Enterprises, Inc., 1980

BUT THAT MONEY'S NOT HIS--IT BELONGS TO THE SURVIVALISTS!

Saunders & Overgard 10/26

EXACTLY.. SO HE BUYS A JET BUILT FOR SPEED, DISTANCE AND COMFORT.. WHAT DOES THAT SUGGEST?

THAT HE PLANS A FAST, LUXURIOUS GET-AWAY TO FAR-AWAY PLACES!
