BANK BUILDING STARTS UP—Until last week all the work on construction of a new building on the northeast corner of the square for the Snyder National Bank had been in digging foundation and basement excavations. But last week forms went up for the concrete foundations and much of the foundation work has already been done. It will be several months before the building is complete, however. Blast At Truman, Nixon Battle Marks GOP Show

Civil Rights Issue Flares

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18 (AP)—The tentative civil rights plank in the Republican National Convention platform today failed to meet the approval of delegates from the Southern states of Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas, Mississippi, Georgia, Florida and Virginia.

Tom Stagg of Shreveport, La., reported that, after a caucus, delegates from these states decided to appeal to the full Platform Committee that the language be softened with respect to the Supreme Court ruling outlawing racial segregation in public schools.

Failing in this, Stagg said the Southerners would consider the possibility of filing a minority report and taking the issue to the convention floor, as was done at the Democratic National Convention at Chicago.

Stagg said, however, he did not know yet whether, under convention rules, the Southerners would have sufficient committee strength to get the issue placed before the convention.

Republican party policy drafters meanwhile finished what they described as a "short, easy-to-read" platform lauding President Eisenhower and promising to continue his foreign and domestic programs.

The civil rights issue also was controversial at the Democratic convention, the compromise language smoothed over a threatened party split.

Republican spokesmen in San Francisco said the party's Platform Committee of 105 members had aid from the White House, and would carry some of the highlights of President Eisenhower's State of the Union message to Congress last January.

Its key features were declarations that the Republicans have brought "peace, security, progress and prosperity" to the land.

Spokesmen also said the platform would pledge that if the party is returned to power, it will pursue policies which would ensure continuance of these benefits.

Details of the platform were kept under cover until its presentation to the convention Tuesday for adoption. The committee arranged to give the documents its final okay at a meeting later today. Gov. Samuel Wilder King of Hawaii indicated one of the planks would call for statehood for Hawaii.

Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois, chairman of a Civil Rights subcommittee, said the Republican platform will endorse the court decision and call for its implementation—endorsements not given at Chicago.

New Outbreak In Palestine Area Claimed

JERUSALEM, Aug. 18 (AP) — A new clash broke out today on the Palestine frontier, taut from two previous outbursts of violence.

Jordan charged four Israeli soldiers in a jeep drove more than 600 yards into Jordan and exchanged shots with Jordanian patrols. A Jordainian military source said one Israeli soldier was killed.

This informant said Jordanian police on patrol challenged the Israelis south of the village of Faroun and the Israelis opened fire. He said the jeep burned and the Israelis crossed back over the border carrying their dead comrade.

An Israeli military spokesman denied an Israeli soldier was killed. He charged the patrol was fired on from Jordan and only shot back.

Jordan lodged a strong complaint with the Mixed Armistice Commission and U.N. observers began an investigation.

Meanwhile, Gen. Ali Abu Nawar, Jordan's army chief of staff, arrived in Damascus for talks with Syrian officers. An official source said the talks were aimed at unified measures to meet any "emergency at either country's Iserila border."

Knight Hits Nixon Move

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18 (AP)—Gov. Goodwin J. Knight was put in as chairman of California's 70-member Republican National Convention delegation today in a "compromise" settlement of a dispute over endorsing Vice President Nixon for renomination.

Knight, Nixon's longtime political foe and advocating an "open" convention choice, was voted chairman with the understanding that the delegation would enforce the unit rule on the vice-presidential choice.

Thus, Nixon assuredly will win California's 70 votes in a second caucus scheduled for next Tuesday. A simple caucus majority under the unit rule binds all the delegation votes.

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel offered the compromise before a showdown vote in a contest between Knight and Sen. William F. Knowland for the chairmanship, a post which traditionally goes to the governor.

In angry caucus debate earlier, Knight had protested Knowland's demand that Knight go along with a Nixon endorsement or withdraw as chairman.

Knight called the move to unseat him as chairman "an un-American things." Said a reporter able to overhear the discussion, Knight declared "not even a precinct worker would stand for it."

Nixon, silent through the caucus debate, and Knowland control two-thirds of the delegation. While the unit rule assures Nixon's endorsement, Knight is thus excused from declaring open support for him.

Nixon went into the caucus session after a warm and cheering welcome on his arrival on the convention ground this morning.

GOP Chairman Leonard Hall blasted Harry S. Truman, former Democratic President, in an opening salvo of a Republican jamboree aimed at making Dwight D. Eisenhower president another four years.

..In a news conference, Hall called upon the new Democratic ticket to ask Truman to apologize for a statement Hall said Truman made in his address to the Democratic National Convention finale last night. Hall quoted Truman as having said:

"I wish I could go on and discuss with you the finances of this government. I don't think there is anybody alive that knows any more about this than I do, and I want to say to you that they are in danger right now from this bunch of racketeers."

Hall termed this an insulting statement and said:

"Harry Truman is making this statement reached a pretty low ebb in politics. I'm not surprised

British Warn Egypt Troops Are On Guard

LONDON, Aug. 18 (AP) — Britain urged a peaceful settlement of the Suez crisis today, but warned that British troops will stand by in the Mediterranean until her vital interests are assured.

Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd asked the 22-nation Suez conference for unanimous approval of the West's proposal for an international authority to operate the canal seized by Egypt.

He called on the nations represented, most of whom support the West, to draw up a broad statement of principles and lay them before President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt for his reaction.

Lloyd opposed the Soviet Union's idea of convening a larger conference to give the other Arab and Communist nations a voice in the dispute.

In explaining the hasty military measures taken by Britain after Nasser nationalized the canal July 26, Lloyd said Nasser's methods were "indicative of an attitude of mind such that anything might might happen at any time."

Asserting that Britain — with 13,000 citizens now in Egypt—has never forgotten the bloody anti-British rioting in Egypt in 1952, Lloyd said "I have not the slightest doubt we were right" in speeding land, sea and air forces to the area.

"As a nation," he said, "we are very slow to anger, but when it is clear that vital interests are threatened by acts of deliberate hostility, we stand fast whatever the odds."

As the conference recessed until Monday, 14 of the 22 nations were solidly lined up behind the Western idea of international operation of the canal.

Western leaders want a unanimous statement of principles on the future of the 103-mile waterway.

Dulles met with Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov for an hour and 25 minutes today. This was the first step in the West's diplomatic maneuver. Both were smiling as their talks ended.

"There was an extensive exchange of views on both sides," the U. S. spokesman said. "They really went into it."

Lloyd, in presenting Britain's views on settlement of the crisis today, said the terms should include:

1. Fair compensation for stockholders of the Suez Canal Co.

2. Arrangements for efficient operation of the canal.

3. Freeing the canal from politics.

4. Some "international system must be evolved."

SNYDER SPOTLIGHT

By WACIL McNAIR

We have been fortunate enough to receive No. 255 of exactly 2,000 copies of a book titled "The First Thirty Years." It is a history of Texas Technological College from the time it was founded through the year 1955. The author is Ruth Horn Andrews, daughter of Dr. Paul W. Horn, who was named first president of Tech when it was founded back during the administration of Gov. Pat M. Neff.

"The First Thirty Years" is packed full of names and incidents that are familiar to tens of thousands of West Texans.

In fact, the "incident" of Tech's founding is one that many West Texans can recall, because no less than 37 cities and towns in the area made spirited bids for the new college. Snyder was among them, of course.

However, the author notes at the outset that another volume will be required to record the "long-drawn-out struggles of West Texans to secure a state college of their own."

Nevertheless, the book portrays in chronological order the development of a modern college, and in so doing the author necessarily records a splash of West Texas history.

The State Health Dept. reminds us that hay fever season is upon us. Late summer and autumn months send the pollen flying from various trees, shrubs, grasses and just plain weeds. However, the "season" may not be so severe in some parts of the state as it has in the past. Pollen counts are down considerably in comparison to other years in the West Texas area.

However, the health department reminds us that Russian thistle (that is a parlor name for tumbleweed) is one of the prime offenders.

Suggested methods for relief if you are susceptible to hay fever: 1. Take a sea voyage during the "season." 2. Stay in an air filtered room. 3. Check with your doctor about a series of "pollen extract" shots.

The announcement that Snyder was establishing new records for water consumption came as no surprise. Local residents have been forced to rely on city supplies to keep parched lawns and shrubbery alive. There were reports that other member cities of the Colorado River Municipal Water District were logging similar gains in consumption. It appears that the CRMWD definitely is not jumping the gun in exploring the possibilities of developing additional sources of supply.

Brazoria County Has Clean-Up Campaign

ALVIN, Tex., Aug. 18 (AP)—Brazoria County has filched an idea from the Netherlands to help keep its streets and highways clean.

Signs dot the highways reminding motorists of fines for littering highways. Trash barrels have been placed in service stations. Hotels pass out a "litter bag" to all departing motor guests.

Net Earnings Given

DALLAS, Aug. 18 (AP)—Delhi-Taylor Oil Corp. reported today net earnings of $1,365,750 for 6 months compared with $1,311,229 in 1955.

Military Housing Curtailment Seen

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP) — Some building interests think—and hope—that the two-billion-dollar military housing program may be curtailed under new laws passed by Congress.

But the Pentagon doesn't.

Although opening of bids on some major projects has been postponed "indefinitely" for restudy, defense officials say they expect that 150,000 houses for service families will be erected on schedule over the next three years.

Yet there are watchdog clauses in the new laws which would permit a quick scaling down of military housing plans if, as now seems probable, the strength of the armed forces is reduced next year.

Back of the legislation was strong pressure for curbing the program in areas where builders and real estate firms feared the new housing would depress rentals and damage the market for new, private construction.

Congress responded to the pressure by writing safeguards into two bills passed in the final days of the session. One measure was the military construction bill, belatedly revised after President Eisenhower vetoed the first version. The other was the omnibus housing bill, which amended the Capehart housing law of 1955.

Dale Bellamah, Albuquerque, N. M., builder and chairman of the National Assn. of Home Builders, acclaimed the legislation as a "victory for private enterprise."

Bellamah cited provisions which in his view, might slow up and curtail the program. These included:

1. A waiting period of up to 180 days for each project to permit study by the Senate and House Armed Services Committees.

2. A limitation, implied by the Senate committee but not expressly stated, on the percentage of servicemen at each post for whom, Caphart housing could be provided.

3. A requirement the Defense Department take over, by purchase or condemnation, all the old "Wherry Act" housing at military bases where the new Capehart housing is to be built.

Fireman Give Hot Elephant Relief

FREDERICKSBURG, Tex., Aug. 18 (AP)—Drought conditions in Central Texas are bad enough to change the bathing habits of elephants.

Gerry, 3500 pound pachyderm appearing at the 68th annual Gillespie County Fair, needed his Saturday night bath.

Ordinarily he would have sprayed himself in a convenient pool, but since the hot summer sun had dried up all available ponds, the fire department came to the rescue with a good hosing.

LAMESA, Tex., Aug. 18 (AP)—Ernest Edward Abbott, about 30, of Big Spring, a trusty at the Dawson County jail, walked off a work gang at the fair grounds today. He was serving a jail sentence for negligent homicide.

Students Here Will Register In Elementary School Monday

Several hundred students in the Snyder school district will begin to realize that schooltime is nearly here again when elementary school registration starts tomorrow.

Tomorrow and Tuesday, from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., elementary students will register at the elementary buildings in their attendance areas. There is one exception. Those who will attend Northeast Elementary School must register at Central Elementary, formerly known as Central Primary.

Students now attending preschool need not register, since they have already done so. Students starting in the first grade will be expected to have birth certificates on hand when they register.

Frank Wilson, director of curriculum and instruction for the schools, stressed the importance of registration, since class sections and other arrangements are based on registration data. Assignments are made after registration so the elementary schools can get started on the first day of school, Sept. 4.

Between 2,700 and 2,800 elementary students are expected to enroll this year. About 450 beginners are expected.

Pre-school has been underway one week and will last another week for students starting the first grade, attending pre-school on a voluntary basis. A total of 307 students were enrolled in pre-school at the end of the week. Wilson said students can still enroll in pre-school if they wish. Pre-school is held at all the elementary schools except Northeast with Northeast students going to Central. Sessions are held for one and one-half hours, with one group starting at 8 a.m. and another at 10 a.m.

Stubbs Will Attend Meet

Earl Stubbs, scoutmaster of Boy Scout Troop 27, which is sponsored by the First Methodist Church, has been chosen to attend the national scout Jamboree next summer.

Stubbs is one of 12 leaders selected in the Buffalo Trail Council, which covers a wide area of West Texas. He will act as an assistant scoutmaster. Also chosen is Pat Shields of Colorado City.

Several scouts from this area, possibly a troop from here, are expected to attend the Jamboree, which will be held at Valley Forge, Pa., next July 12-18. The Jamboree is held every four years, and this is the fourth time it has been scheduled.

Hundreds of scouts and leaders from all over the U. S. will attend the Jamboree. Boys attending will learn much about history by camping where Washington camped and by visiting such places as Independence Hall, Carpenter's Hall, and many other points of interest in the area.

Local scout units are already beginning to determine which boys will go to the Jamboree from here. An Explorer or second class scout or higher, at the time the Jamboree opens, can attend. The national Jamboree fee is $50, including food and expenses.

Bigger Income For U.S. Is Reported

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—Almost everybody made more money last year, the Commerce Department reported today.

It said the personal income of Americans rose to new records in all regions and in most states in 1955. North Dakota had the biggest percentage gain over 1954 — 16 per cent.

In only four states did personal income last year dip below 1954. These were Iowa, down 5 per cent; South Dakota, down 6 per cent; Nebraska, down 4 per cent; and Kansas, down less than one per cent.

The department said these losses were "traceable to a reduced volume of farm income." In these states as elsewhere, total nonfarm income set an all-time record.

For the country as a whole, the 303-billion-dollars in personal income for 1955 was 7 per cent above the 1954 total.

North Dakota's spectacular advance was attributed to a strong recovery in the state's farm income following several years of decline. A big increase in wheat yields contributed to a 60 per cent increase in North Dakota's net farm income.

Thirteen per cent increases in total income were registered by Alabama and Nevada, and gains of 11 per cent were shown in Maine, Mississippi, Georgia and Florida.

Over the country as a whole, per capita income amounted to $1,847 in 1955, a 5 per cent increase from the previous year.

The range of per capita income was wide, however. Delaware led with $2,513 and Mississippi trailed with $946.

Others in the top rank of per capita income were Connecticut, $2,499; Nevada $2,434; District of Columbia, $2,324; New Jersey, $2,311; California, $2,271; New York, $2,263; and Illinois, $2,257.

Adlai Given Even Chance

CHICAGO, Aug. 18 (AP)—What are Adlai E. Stevenson's chances of defeating President Eisenhower in November?

Democratic leaders convinced themselves at their national convention here that the odds are at least approaching the 50-50 level.

They base this estimate on a combination of factors and issues, some of them conflicting, but all pointing to one overriding theme of campaign discussion — Eisenhower's health and its effect on his job.

Whatever the words they employ, Democratic campaigners intend to make it clear to the voters they don't believe that at 65, with two serious illnesses behind him, Eisenhower is equipped to continue to carry on the crushing burdens of the presidency.

Stevenson framed the issue in the spotlight for millions of television viewers to see when he tossed the selection of his vice presidential running mate into the hands of the convention delegates.

Stevenson spoke of the possibility that a "higher will" might prevent a president from serving out his full term. He recalled that 7 of 34 presidents came into the highest office that way.

In effect, the Democratic presidential nominee was saying:

Look, Mr. Voter, President Eisenhower may not live out his term. If he doesn't you may be electing Richard M. Nixon to the office.

That is only one facet of the Democrats' campaign to counteract what they admit is the continuing personal popularity of a president who swept 39 states and 442 of the 531 electoral votes in 1952.

The Democratic attack is oblique. It deals with Eisenhower's reputed delegation of powers to subordinates. It encourages jokes about the time he spends golfing. It suggests the President is a fine man who doesn't really know what is going on.

Democratic strategists know, however, they cannot depend sufficiently on destroying Eisenhower's personal popularity. They must make some substantial gains in strength in critical fields.

The leaders agree generally that the party must:

Hold the segregationist South together while it brings back into the fold Negroes and other minority groups which may have the balance of power in pivotal Northern states.

WEST TEXAS: Cloudy with scattered thundershowers and cooler South Plains and upper Pecos Valley eastward today; otherwise cloudy to partly cloudy with widely scattered thundershowers today and Monday.

HE'S SEEN IT ALL BEFORE—Boom of drums in the Democratic convention hall aisle in Chicago, Ill., doesn't stir former Sen. Tom Connolly to action. The Texas veteran of many political wars has seen—and heard—all of it many times before. He's a delegate to this one.

SOME RESIDENTS have probably been wondering about that hole in the front of the post office building and why it has been there so long. The hole was knocked in the building July 13 when a car struck the back end of pickup which was parking in front of the building and knocked it into the wall. The building is not government-owned, and the insurance company told postal officials it would not repair the building until it got a release from the owner of the building,who has been in Europe. In the top picture, Randy Northcutt, 7, points to the hole, and his size shows that the hole is large enough for a person to crawl through. The bottom photo shows the hole from the inside. Local efforts have been underway for several years here to get the government to construct a new post office building. The post office, in addition to keeping things locked up inside, has secured closer police watch on the building at night. (Lee Watson photograph).

gister until the first day of school, Sept. 4.

Students of the high school, if they did not pre-register last spring in the junior high or high school, or if they did not register last week, have been asked to contact the principal's office at the high school for registration. Class rolls are now being made up, and classes will meet in short sessions on the first day of school.

The first day schedule calls for all students to be at school throughout the morning, from 8:30 a.m. to noon. In the junior high, the schedule will be different, with all bus students to report to the auditorium to register at 8:30 a.m. Students who do not ride buses, and whose last names begin with the letters A through M, are to report to the auditorium at 11 a.m., while students who do not ride buses and whose last names begin with the letters N through Z are to report at 1:30 p.m.

The buses will run on the first day in time to get students back home at noon.

Other schedules call for a workshop for cafeteria workers next Wednesday through Friday.

On Aug. 27, an orientation program for all new teachers will begin, while it will continue Aug. 28-31 for all professional personnel of the schools. A get - acquainted party will be held Aug. 28 for professional personnel, sponsored by the Classroom Teachers Association.

The Labor Day holiday will be observed, followed by the beginning of school the next day.

Hotel Man Is Quizzed

LUBBOCK, Aug. 18 (AP)—A hotel employe testified today that B. R. Sheffield, on trial for forgery in veterans land cases, rented a room in the Commodore Perry Hotel in Austin Aug. 25, 1953.

Vernon Jordon testified to substantiate testimony that Sheffield and former Land Commissioner Bascom Giles discussed veterans land transactions in the hotel on that date.

Giles is serving six years in prison for irregularities in the program. He was head of the Veterans Land Board.

The witness who earlier testified that Giles and Sheffield talked over veterans land transactions in the hotel Aug. 25, 1953 was Stanley Stribling, San Angelo mortage loan dealer.

He testified Sheffield once told him "five million dollars can be made out of this veterans land thing and it could be split three ways."

Sheffield, Stribling and Giles would take part in the split, Stribling said Sheffield explained.

Four Die In Crash Near Mineral Wells

Jimmy Wayne Cranford, 15, Perrin, and Gerald S. Plowman, 18, Boonville, died instantly. Morris Ray Sreves, 19, and R. Williard Cranford, father of Jimmy, died in a Mineral Wells hospital.

Joe Cranford, son of the dead man, was in critical condition.

Witnesses said the father apparently lost control of the car. It hit a culvert, plunged into a ravine, turned over and hit the other side of the culvert.

Succession Issue Causing Concern

WASHINGTON, Aug 18 (AP)—How would a major party fill a vacancy on its national ticket if one of its nominees died or became disabled before the Nov. 6 election?

Who would become president if the winning candidate should die between the election and his inauguration next Jan. 20?

The questions have arisen partly as a result of President Eisenhower's statement he would tell the American people if a pre-election physical examination convinced him he would be unable to undertake another term.

The answer to the first question is comparatively easy, although modern methods of procedure have not been tested. The Republican and Democratic National Committees have authority from their national conventions to select a new candidate or candidates in event of death, resignation or disability before the election.

In such a situation, the national committee members from each state would cast the same number of votes as their state has in the national convention and a majority of the total votes would pick a new nominee. Republicans authorize its national committee to call another national convention if there is time. Democrats make no mention of this.

It is only in recent years that the procedure was adopted of requiring the committee to use the same vote bases as the convention in filling vacancies. The Democrats have just approved this method at their convention just closed. The GOP spelled out this method several years ago.

The Democratic manual — the party's Bible of precedents—says its national committee filled a vacancy on the ticket in 1860, but the procedure followed was not explained. In that year Benjamin Fitzpatrick of Alabama, nominated for vice president, declined the nomination and his place was filled by Herschel V. Johnson of Georgia.

The problem of who becomes president in case of a vacancy between the election and inauguration has never had to be met. The answer depends on whether the vacancy occurs before or after the presidential electors have cast their ballots. This year they will do so Dec. 17.

If the winning candidate dies after the electors have cast their votes, the 20th Amendment to the Constitution provides that the vice president-elect shall become president.

Far less certain is what happens if the winner dies between the time of the popular election in November and the balloting in the Electoral College. Nothing like this has ever happened. There's no certain answer. This is because the people do not choose a president directly. Instead they vote for presidential electors who meet in their state capitals in December to cast their votes for president and vice president.

Hold-Up Is Spoiled

TEMPLE, Aug. 18 (AP)—Quick thinking by the Postmaster Opal Robertson spoiled a hold-up. A man demanded yesterday of Roberson "Give me at least $50." The postmaster told the man she had to get the money in the back room. There she called police. Attempted robbery charges were filed in Waco.

because he was reared in Missouri and got his training under the old Pendergast machine. (The late Tom Pendergast was the political boss of Kansas City.)

"I think that Democrats and Independents as well as Republicans will resent this vicious attack on Mr. Eisenhower and his administration."

Hall noted neither the Democratic presidential candidate—Adlai Stevenson—nor the vice presidential candidate—Sen. Estes Kefauver—made similar references. He said Stevenson and Kefauver should ask Truman to apologize to the American people for his remarks. Or, Hall added, "perhaps he will say again he had been misquoted."

"By remaining quiet," Hall said both Stevenson and Kefauver "indirectly endorsed what Truman said." The two candidates followed Truman to the podium in Chicago last night to deliver their acceptance speeches.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon arrived on the convention scene during the day. He told greeters he was on hand "with only one purpose—to assure that President Eisenhower and his leadership will be continued."

But when a hotel crowd started chanting "We want Nixon" he promptly made his own drive for renomination plain by grasping his hands overhead and replying: "We'll be in there fighting."

In another interest-catching development in advance of Monday's opening, seven Southern states announced a caucus protest against a civil rights plank, drafted by the Platform Committee, urging implementation of the Supreme Court decision banning public school segregation.

This was the first flare of discord in a convention which party leaders have said would be a convclave of unity behind President Eisenhower.

The seven Southern states said they would ask softening of the civil rights plank language on the court decision. The states joining were Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas, Mississippi, Georgia, Florida and Virginia.

The convention spotlight focused mainly on Nixon. His welcome outside the Mark Hopkins Hotel was the biggest demonstration thus far in the Republican gather-session opens Monday morning.

Nixon assured his cheering backers, "We'll be in there fighting. The Nixon renomination forces did however, encounter opposition.

Harold Stassen, presidential assistant on leave to oppose Nixon, told a press conference Nixon's name on the ticket would cost an over-all loss of 4,620,000 in President Eisenhower's total vote.

report on a professional poll, Sen.

Minutes after Stassen gave his Styles H. Bridges told reporters of a scientific poll showing 54.3 per cent of the voters for an Eisenhower-Nixon ticket, 25.7 for an Eisenhower-Herter ticket. Twenty per cent gave no opinion.

Nixon proceeded to a conference with Sen. William F. Knowland and Gov. Goodwin J. Knight just fornia delegation, which Knight before a caucus of the 70-vote Calihas said he wants uninstructed.

The delegation is expected to give endorsement to Nixon, but delegates friendly to Knight said a roll call vote would be demanded on every question, including the anticipated Nixon endorsement.

Stassen, after giving what he said were results of a professional nationwide poll, said Gov. Christian Herter of Massachusetts has done the right thing "for the time" by asking that his name be kept out of the convention.

In sum, Stassen's poll—"financed by Republican leaders and contributions"-were:

Running with Nixon, President Eisenhower would poll 27,420,000 votes and Adlai Stevenson, as Democratic candidate, 23,580,000 of a base total of 60 million votes. The poll estimated 8,280,000 uncommitted.

Texas Roses Decorate Demo Convention Hall

CHICAGO, Aug. 16 (AP)—The Democratic convention hall was blossomed with the yellow rose of Texas last night.

Thousands of the bright yellow flowers were flown from Tyler, rose capitol of the world, for distribution to delegates.

The roses, handed out on invitation of the Democratic National Committee, were sent to the convention by Slick Dean and Clark Kidd of Tyler.

The theme song of the Democratic campaign will be the tune of the old folk song, "The Yellow Rose of Texas."

Daniel, Yarborough Trying To Regain Voter's Interest

By Garth Jones
Associated Press Staff

Sen. Price Daniel and Ralph Yarborough tried Saturday to regain Texas voters' interest after playing second fiddle most of the week to the national Democratic convention in Chicago.

Both headquarters were hesitant in giving itineraries for the final week of the runoff for the Democratic nomination for governor.

"Nobody wants a candidate the last week of the campaign," bemoaned a harried worker in one headquarters.

Daniel spent Saturday in a corner of Northeast Texas stressing his stand on support of the nominees of the national Democratic party. He said his policy was unchanged since Adlai Stevenson's nomination—that he would vote for party nominees unless something like the tidelands or equally as serious comes up again. Daniel has said he switched to Dwight Eisenhower in 1952 because Stevenson would not back Texas' tidelands fight.

"I hope nothing like that occurs," Daniel said in visits to Clarksville, Mt. Vernon, Mt. Pleasant, Daingerfield, Pittsburg, and Quitman.

"I will stack my work for the Democratic party up against my opponent's any day. Of course I don't ride the party as much as my opponent does. I work for the party."

Daniel's uncompleted plans for the final week showed visits to Dallas and Fort Worth Monday, with Tuesday spent in Austin.

Yarborough planned to be in San Antonio Monday, and in Houston Tuesday. He planned a Central Texas rally in Waco Wednesday night. Thursday and Friday Yarborough planned to be in the Fort Worth area with a Thursday night rally in Denton. Saturday he will return to Austin.

Yarborough stressed his drought plans in a Saturday morning speech at Floresville.

"By my vigorous campaign, I have forced the senior governor-junior senator team to request more drought relief," Yarborough asserted. "There is no Texas state drought relief law and no Texas state long range drought planning law.

"Under my plan, I pledge Texas a state drought relief law with cash payments to farmers and areas to prevent them from being forced off the land during droughts and to save enough livestock for breeding purposes until the rains come again."

Yarborough charged "the senior governor and junior senator only think of drought relief in Texas for the three weeks before the primary every two years. Then they lapse into silence until another election comes around."

Tom Moore, runoff candidate for attorney general, pledged in Corpus Christi to "revitalize the anti-trust department to represent the people and not corporate interests."

Will Wilson, also running for attorney general, returned to Austin after an appearance at Quitman. he had tentative plans to visit San Angelo Monday and be in Wichita Falls Tuesday.

In Dallas, A. M. Fairstein, secretary of the Texas Preferred Depositors Assn. sent Daniel a telegram asking "clarification of your association with the collapsed U.S. Trust and Guaranty Co." and saying that 6,000 Texans had invested money in the firm.

"When this company collapsed, numerous people wrote to you for help and advice. Not one of our number received an answer or a recognition of their message," Fairstein said.

Daniel said in Daingerfield he would work for improvements in Texas insurance laws.

"In the closing days of this campaign, my opponent is trying to mislead the people by saying that as attorney general I approved some of the insurance companies which went busted," Daniel said. "The truth is that the attorney general approves insurancee charters and amendments only as to legal form and not as to the merits or financial status of the companies."

Ike Starting To Work On His Speech

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—The White House said today President Eisenhower has begun work on the speech he'll make to the Republican convention next Thursday accepting the party's presidential nomination for the second time.

James C. Hagerty, Eisenhower's press secretary, disclosed the start of work on the acceptance speech. He said he didn't know whether the President will keep at it over the weekend.

Eisenhower will fly to the convention in San Francisco next Wednesday and remain in California for four days of vacation after he addresses the GOP delegates.

Hagerty was asked today if he is sticking to his prediction that the party will renominate Vice President Nixon as Eisenhower's running mate.

"I leave that to the convention," he replied.

Newsmen sought Hagerty's views on whether his boss can beat the Democratic ticket of Adlai Stevenson and Estes Kefauver, nominated this week in Chicago.

"Certainly," he said.

Yesterday, before Kefauver was selected as Stevenson's vice presidential running mate, Hagerty replied to a similar question about Eisenhower's chances against Stevenson by saying:

"Just say I laughed and then said 'Sure.'"

Blaze At Denison

DENISON, Aug. 18 (AP)—Two houses in the cotton mill district burned yesterday and two others were damaged by a fire that broke out when a kerosene stove exploded. Damage was estimated at $15,000. Charles Beall, 15, fell from a roof while helping fight the fire and broke an arm.

The average American eats more than 160 pounds of meat a year.

Scouts Seek To Remove Indian Bodies

DALLAS, Aug. 18 (AP)—Dallas Explorer scouts are going to seek return to Texas of the bodies of Cynthia Ann Parker and her son, Indian tribal chief Quanah Parker.

The group left today for Cache, Okla., to seek permission to move the bodies.

They hope to meet with relatives of Chief Parker at Cache to discuss possible movement of the bodies to the site of Ft. Parker near Mexia.

The graves now are in the Post Oak Mission Cemetery in Oklahome. The cemetery is in an area where the Ft. Sill Artillery School plans to expand its firing ranges.

Mrs. Parker was kidnaped from old Ft. Parker as a child. Later she chose to stay with the Indians and married a Comanche chief, Peta Nacona.

Cynthia Ann later was catured by Rangers and soldiers including Sul Ross, who became a Texas statesman and who is credited with founding the Texas A&M college system.

After her capture, Mrs. Parker seemed heartbroken and died shortly thereafter. One of her sons, Quanah Parker, was called perhaps the greatest Comanche chief.

In 1954, only 200 Americans died from diptheria.

Radioactive Wave Moves Over Nation

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—A weak wave of radioactivity has moved across the United States the past week, the Public Health Service disclosed today.

Henry Rechen, senior sanitary engineer for the service, said "it may have been the slow-moving tail of the nuclear tests in the Pacific last month."

He said there also was a "very slight chance" it might have been caused by secret Russian nuclear test in Siberia or elsewhere, or natural causes may be involved.

He added the fallout is "infinitesimal" and there is "no danger to health." He said the "normal" radioactivity is so low that an increase of several times in its intensity is not dangerous.

There have been reports of the presence in the air, near ground level, of several times the normal amount of radioactivity the past 10 days, Rechen said. The activity was reported in Denver last weekend and later in Indianapolis. Still later it was detected near Washington, D. C.

The Atomic Energy Commission July 24 announced that the final test shot of a 1956 series of atomic and hydrogen test blasts in the Pacific had been completed "successfully."

The Outward Signs

A casual and careless look at some of the institutions of democracy can give a man a bad scare if he looks no further than surface indications.

But it is rather too easy to look at the spectacle of a national convention and jump to the wrong conclusion. Billows of cigarette and cigar smoke at times obscure the head and shoulders of whoever happens to be speaking from the podium at the moment. The remorseless eye of the camera takes little bites and pieces out of the delegates and visitors on the floor, and reveals practically nobody paying any attention to what is being said. They lean over someone to address a third party about something or other—perhaps a compliment on a hat or a dress, or to retail the latest piece of gossip. (That prissy little thing from Whodunk is certainly pursuing that handsome delegate from Upper Pneumonia, isn't she? Her husband must be blind.)

Feet from which the shoes have been removed stick out from under the drapery around the boxes. A couple of camera addicts face each other at a distance of eighteen inches and fire away in sort of mutual ecstacy. What used to be known as bank walkers stroll all over the place, giving the assembled multitude a treat. Some old party who would be better off in the privacy of his or her home sits on the front row with his or her mouth agape from weariness.

But these are superficial manifestations, not to be taken seriously. As in legislative assemblies all the real work is done in committee and caucus. This is merely the crowd, the fans, the sidewalk superintendents come to see the elephant—opps! the donkey—and hear the owl.

Somehow, behind the scenes, in the privacy of caucus or committee, the real work manages to get done. The rest is window-dressing of a sort.

'Uncle Sam . . .'

We doubt if Sam Rayburn enjoyed overmuch those banners bearing the inscription "Uncle Sam Rayburn" which clustered around the speaker's platform as the Texas demonstration in his honor got under way at his swearing-in as permanent chairman of the Democratic National Convention. (A dozen other states joined in.)

"Uncle" implies age in Texas and the South, and at 74 Sam Rayburn refuses to make any concession to age whatever. Almost everyone who knows him intimately calls him "Mr. Sam," a title that happily outnumbers the "Uncle Sams" on the agitated banners clustered around the podium. He is "Mr. Sam" to almost all the younger elements on both sides of the House aisle, where Mr. Sam has presided as Speaker for a longer period than any man who ever lived.

Mr. Sam's ears must have burned a cherry red when the Democratic newcomer, Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, was expatiating on the evils of the Eisenhower "grab" of the tidelands. In common with an overwhelming majority of his fellow-Texans, the only "grab" recognized by Mr. Sam was that engineered by the late Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes in the 1940s. It was Sam Rayburn, Lyndon Johnson and Price Daniel of Texas who legislated the tide-lands back into the ownership of Texas and other coastal states.

The stocky, rock-solid figure of Mr. Sam set another record there on that podium. It was the third time he had presided as permanent chairman of a Democratic National Convention. His speech was full of vigor for all his 74 years, and his bristling attack on the Eisenhower administration's record in office filled out the gaps in the keynote address of Governor Frank Clement of Mr. Sam's native state of Tennessee.

One of the microphone masterminds, spotting Mr. Sam's momentary departure from the speaker's stand (he was back in a few minutes) gave a dramatic and wholly imaginary estimate of this sudden move. He was sure Mr. Sam had gone off to confer with other leaders about momentous matters of vast importance, and our hero even undertook to identify and interpret the probable outcome.

It had reached the point where the permanent chairman couldn't ask his way to the men's room without throwing the excited mikemasters into hysteria.

Timing Must Be Used By Politician In Convention To See He's Not Forgotten

By ARTHUR EDSON

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18 (AP)—To a politician at a national convention, it often is a question of timing.

Either he wants to be in the winner's corner early, so that he can point to an unfaltering devotion, as everyone seems to be in Dwight D. Eisenhower's corner in the Republican convention opening Monday.

Or, where there's a first-rate contest, he dreams of jumping on the successful candidate's bandwagon as it rolls to victory.

If he jumps too soon, he may be forgotten. If he is too coy, it may go off and leave him.

But if he plays it right, and leaps aboard at the strategic moment that assures the candidate a glorious triumph, the theory is that his timely help will be remembered forever, with gratitude and juicy appointments.

As spectacular a display of bandwagon leaping as seen in any recent political meeting occurred at precisely 12:45 p.m. on July 11, 1952. At that moment, as a climax to a bitter, name-calling convention, the Minnesota delegates nimbly hopped to Eisenhower.

This not only assured the general the nomination. It also put him in a spot where, four years and two serious illnesses later, no other Republican has been able to challenge him.

Curiously, a key figure in 1952 was Harold Stassen, who has rippled the preconvention GOP calm this year by suggesting that Vice President Richard Nixon be dumped in favor of Gov. Christian Herter of Massachusetts.

Looking at the Republicans today, so cool and collected, it's difficult to recapture the excitement of 1952.

It began long before the convention, and it built up steadily.

Remember the fight over the 72 contested delegates? Remember Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi, Florida, Georgia?

A couple of quotes will recall how desperately these were fought over.

After a decision had gone against him, John Minor Wisdom, a Louisiana pro-Eisenhower delegate, cried: "It's a day of infamy! The Republican National Committee was tried and found guilty."

But another Louisianan, John E. Jackson, who favored Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, hinted that the Eisenhower supporters down there were nothing but political play boys.

At last, the great day.

Minnesota, with most of its 28 delegates pledged to Stassen, Long had been recognized as a key state that coud swing the verdict either way.

On the morning of the 11th Minnesota hed a caucus. When it broke up, reporters were sure they saw tears in Stassen's eyes. Nine or ten delegates, it turned out, had rebelled. They wanted to go with Eisenhower at once.

At 11:48 the voting began.

When the roll call reached Minnesota, Sen. Edward J. Thye said 19 for Stassen, 9 for Eisenhower.

Thye continued to keep a running score of the great Eisenhower-Taft battle.

At the end, his tally sheet showed something every bandwagon jumper dreams of: 595 votes for Eisenhower, with 604 needed for the nomination.

Thye was on his feet, madly waving the Minnesota standard, seeking recognition.

"Mr. Chairman!" he shouted "Minnesota wishes to change its votes to Eisenhower!"

The official record here reads, "Applause, long and prolonged." If anything, that is an understatement.

After months of jockeying for position, after weeks of increasingly bitter infighting, Eisenhower had won on the first ballot. And it had taken less than an hour.

A final note: Political observers later argued over Stassen's role at the convention as they probably will argue over his role in this one.

Had Stassen given the signal for the great jump? Or was he in the position of a captain who, seeing his crew desert, calls out, "Go right ahead, boys; you have my permission?"

As it turned out, it didn't matter. Included among Eisenhower's earliest appointments was this one: Harold E. Stassen, mutual security director.

A fine old political tradition had been preserved.

Lately this wing of the party has been turning its glances toward Vice President Nixon as a possible leader who might replace Taft. The campaign of Harold E. Stassen, Eisenhower's vacationing disarmament aide, to replace Nixon on the ticket with Gov. Christian Herter of Massachusetts has elevated Nixon to a new position with the conservatives.

Back of Stassen's campaign has been the obvious but unspoken belief that if Nixon is renominated and something happens to Eisenhower the party's reins will fall into the hands of men more likely to adopt the political philosophy of Taft than of Eisenhower.

Whether or not this is a fair evaluation of the course Nixon might take, Stassen's view unquestionably is shared by some other members of what might be called the Eisenhower wing of the party.

Eisnhower himself has set out to do something about the numerical weakness in Congress of the Republicans who follow his philosophy to the hilt. He has been encouraging men he believes think as he does to run for the Senate and House. He is expected to give them some special consideration in his limited campaign activities.

This is part of the President's plan to carry out his anndunced intention to "rebuild" the Republican party—one of the objectives he said played an important part in his decision to run again despite two illnesses.

But even if he makes some major strides in this direction, he would be likely to face in a second term a completely different party situation than has confronted any other president.

A constitutional amendment limiting his tenure to two terms will take from him power over the party's course that other presidents have been able to maintain up to their last months in office by the simple expedient of not saying whether they would seek a third term.

If he is elected again, he is likely to enjoy a honeymoon period with the Republican.

LITERARY GUIDEPOST

OFF THE BOOKBEAT — Despite all the proven drawing power of such distractions as TV and the open road, more people read more books last year than ever before in American history.

That is not the way the American Book Publishers Council states it, but it seems to be an accurate interpretation. The Council reports that "sales of general books reached an all-time high in 1955." Dollar sales were up 8 percent over 1954, 12 percent over 1953, and 19 percent over 1952. That includes all kinds of books, according to the encyclopedias.

There is no over-all dollar figure, though one may be available later, for the survey does not include every publisher. Increases in sales appeared notably in religious, paperbound, juvenile and technical books, and the publications of university presses.

In spite of all the stories about jack-pot authors who pick up a quarter of a million dollars on one novel and a half million on another, the survey reports that "adult trade books continue to show a profit margin after taxes of 3.1 percent," and that takes in extra income from reprint and other jackpot rights.

Adult trade book prices cost on the average at whosesale $1.84 in 1955 as against $1.77 in 1952, or rose in price 3.95 per cent. Book club books, however, at $1.42 in 1955, were $1.64 in 1952, or a drop of 13.41 per cent.

Bigger And Better Town Rebuilding In Connecticut After Flood Takes Big Toll

By JOHN M. SLOCUM
of the Hartford Times

WINSTED, Conn., Aug. 18 (AP)—It was June 1, 1956, and a hot, humid day.

Joseph Isaacson, 53-year-old veteran department store owner and past president of the Winsted Chamber of Commerce, was standing in front of the glass doors of his new store, a smile and hearty handshake to all those who stepped on the plush carpet.

Men, women and children flocked inside. The parents received refreshments and the children, soda and balloons. It was a big day in the life of Joe Isaacson.

But he was keenly disappointed. The air-conditioning system, the largest unit of its kind in town, was only in operation in the lower mezzanine in the rear of the store. Up front, it was 90—just like out on the wooden sidewalk in front.

"Of all the days for something to go wrong. This thing was working okay yesterday. Today, it's on the fritz right here but the sales girls in the mezzanine have their sweaters on.

"But I can't complain. Just short of 10 months. I never thought I'd see the day. I can remember back last August when I said to myself 'Where do I go from here'."

And you have to go back to last Aug. 19 to get the true story.

A couple of hurricanes, that weren't supposed to hit, didn't. But nobody said anything about the moisture they carried — over 12 inches of rain.

It was still raining when Joe and his wife Beatrix closed their store that evening at 6 o'clock. A half hour later, it stopped. Joe went across the street and turned up Bridge Street. Looking over the bridge railing, "Mad River looked kind of high, but nothing to worry about."

Minutes after midnight, the bell alarm system of the fire department sounded. It was the civil defense alert. Isaacson hurried back to the store. Water was coming over the banks of the generally peaceful Mad River.

With his son Herbert, now 19 and a junior at Dartmouth College, they began to take the merchandise from the lower shelves and place them on countertops. They did this until 5 a.m. Then the water came over the curb and in the front door. The CD ordered them out.

Joe's good friend Morris Gaber, a tailor, was in his small store up the street that dreary morning. He had to swim out the back window.

The river rose — all over Main Street and its off streets, and for the most part, along North Main Street. Then buildings, weakened by the water, began to slide off their foundations.

By noon, the rain slackened. By 8 that night, Friday, there were two rivers in the business center—Mad River and one right down the center of Main Street with broken curb lines for its banks.

Saturday morning, the sun came out. It was hot, humid. This writer with Mayor P. Francis Hicks started the speechless tour. For Joe Isaacson, his store was no more. One of Ernie Williams' new 1955 Buicks, right from the show room, had come down Main Street and hit the corner of the store durinf the high water. It hit so hard, the back wall buckled out, the side one split and the roof caved in.

In Winsted, the toll was seven drowned, well over 12 million dollars in damage to public property facilities, churches and town property. Industries, 11 of them, were hit hard. Winsted lost $3,359,380 worth of taxable property, which equals 10 per cent of the city's grand list.

For Joe Isaacson, it meant starting life anew. At 53, would he start all over again?

As he considered, Joe's telephone began to ring. It was not customers, but retailers "who were waiting for me to make a decision. Some, I think, kind of put me on a spot but I had an obligation. Besides, who wanted to retire at 53?"

And so, as Army engineers began the tedious task of putting back Main Street and its public utilities, Joe entered the red tape field. Applications for this and that had to be filled out. Also Joe had an obligation to the community. He is a member of the Town Planning Commission.

Eventually, his loan from the Small Business Administration was approved—$100,000 for a new store.

White contractors began pulling away what was left of his store, the city's Board of Selectmen likewise had to dig in. A nonpartisan board, and only a part-time job, it was a 24-hour operation for many long weeks.

In a nutshell, the Main Street area had to be rebuilt. A new front, with a futuristic outlook, was needed.

As buildings were being torn down, unsafe because of the flood damages, temporary housing was established. First it was to be an 85-unit project. Today, there are only 16. The local housing authority is going all out for 50 permanent homes under a state grant on the same site.

Property owners are receiving preflood values for their buildings that were condemned and razed so that the State Highway Department can push through a new highway.

The merchants, aided by Small Business Administration and money from the Winsted disaster fund, which reached over $160,000, have some of the most modern stores of today.

The new industrial commission, in less than a month after being organized, brought a small but growing electronic industry to town. Today it employs 50. Later it will reach 150.

Industries, damaged last August, have increased their pay scales.

The town lost 13 bridges over the Still and Mad rivers. The state will build new ones of the most modern design with state and federal funds. The state will also replace the present two-lane Main Street with a four-lane concrete highway.

Army engineers have planned a five-million-dollar dry dam on the Mad River for future protection.

And what does Joe Isaacson think of all this? "Great job," he says.

And what of the future for Winsted?

The city is growing. It might look a bit rough on the edges and heavy rain always will rekindle the thoughts of another flood. But it can be said with certainty, that Winsted will be a bigger and better place in which to live.

WASHINGTON LETTER

There's No Vacation For Busy Campaigner's Wife

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Vacations for most congressional families are something only their kids understand and enjoy. Dads are busy campaigning. Mothers take to the road with them. Young Jack and Jill Lawmaker are put in camp, or in the care of doting relatives.

For most wives whose husbands are up for re-election this November, there are endless hours of travel, one-night stops in motels and little hotels, platform appearances, a lot of handshaking and in many cases, speechmaking.

"While folks are taking vacations, your're making votes in hot locations," is a line in a ditty once sung by a group of congressional wives in a dinner party skit they put on for their husbands.

For some wives, campaigning is an old story. Mrs. George Bender, wife of the Republican senator from Ohio, has been at it for 36 years. It began back in their courting days in 1920 when he was running for his first term in the Ohio State Legislature. He took her to political rallies instead of to parties or the theater.

"He even wanted to spend our honeymoon at the Republican National Convention and he never quite forgave me for talking him out of it," Mrs. Bender said.

Mrs. Omar Burleson, wife of the Democratic congressman from Texas, says the only real vacation she ever gets is when she comes to Washington while Congress is in session — even with all the heavy duties she's shouldered as president of the wives' Congressional Club the past two years. Visits back home are just "plain campaigning" — from six in the morning till midnight.

Mrs. Lyndon Johnson, wife of the Democratic senator from Texas, who, though not up for re-election, will be one of the party's busiest men this summer, says she's her husband's "nighttime secretary," chauffeur, bag - packer and phone answerer. He calls her Lady Bird.

25 YEARS AGO

(Taken from the files of the Scurry County Times, Aug. 20, 1931)

Finishing touches this week were being put on the new roque grounds in East Snyder, just east of the Ollie Stimson place. Lighting facilities were being installed yesterday. Three courts have been constructed. Concrete courts around all the grounds were completed Saturday, and wickets were set early this week.

Most folks around Snyder thought the early birds were trying to kid them Sunday morning when they began talking earthquakes. It was not until the radio reports flickered in that the doubters were convinced that an earthquake had really come. Three distinct shocks were reported here. Three distinct shocks were reported here. D. P. Yoder, whose home sits atop a rock foundation on the west side hill, probably felt the most noticeable tremors. He reports that his bed shook, windows rattled and the radio gave off a slight noise. Many residents reported hearing their windows rattle, but most of them thought the vibration was caused by a train or by the passing of a heavy truck.

Company G, 142nd Infantry, Scurry County National Guard Unit, has been appointed as the governor's bodyguard for 1931 as a result of taking first place at Camp Hulen, Palacios, last week in competition with all other rifle companies of the state. The ward, while largely honorary, points to the local group as an outstanding part of the state's climb to leadership under direction of Capt. John E. Sentell, who organized the company.

If a championship team can be molded from four lettermen and a passel of young huskies who are willing to fight their lives out to make the squad, then Coach Red Moore of the Snyder Tigers will probably be turning the trick in a few months. For when suits are issued to 30 or 40 men Monday morning at 9 o'clock, only Jessie and Leslie Browning, Buck Howell and Bedford McClinton will compose the bunch that helped win the regional championship bunting last season.

Peddlers operating in Snyder or Scurry County will be subject to new fees beginning Sept. 1, under terms of a regulatory measure passed by the legislature last week. Farmers who wish to seel their produce in town are exempt from payment of the fees, according to S. T. Ezra, assistant tax collector. He states that the tax was peddlers who drop in to dispose of imposed only to catch itinerant peddlers who drop in to dispose of their wares.

Blaze Extinguished Without Fire Truck

They fought the blaze in the basement with a garden hose after putting in a phone call for help.

But a city ordinance prohibits taking the fire truck out of town—and the Reynolds knew it.

Soon, however, Fire Chief Walter Brumfield and several of his men showed up and quickly put out the flames.

The ordinance confining the fire truck to town didn't say a word against volunteer firemen leaving without it.

They just brought the extinguishers.

Drinks On The House

RICHMOND, Va., (AP)—Jackson Jenks thinks the man who entered his home was just looking for a quiet place to get drunk! The prowler took nothing but left a dozen empty cans of beer the intruder furnished the beer.

Hollywood Today

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This was a big movie production conference?

The assistant director lay on the floor, his eyes closed. The director was on a sofa, his legs in the air, his feet resting against a slatted window. The star-producer Alan Ladd, sprawled in a huge leather chair.

Ladd is one of that new breed of businessmen actors who produce as well as star in their own movies. He handles the business end at luncheon meetings in his dressing room, I was told. So I sat in, expecting to see million-dollar deals, careers bought and sold and epic scenes planned.

But this break between morning and afternoon shooting was for relaxation only. The nearest thing to a million-dollar deal was when Alan handed a stuntman friend 12 bucks to buy Ladd three pairs of athetic-type shorts — "waist-size 30."

"A chance to pick stories," replied Ladd, who is only a thin slice more talkative than Gary Cooper.

Ladd Enterprises, Inc., is a family affair in which Alan's wife, Sue Carol, and their four children are members of the board and could conceivably outvote him. On the screen the company calls itself Jaguar Productions.

"Buffalo Grass" is the company's fourth picture. The first, "Drumbeat," has grossed more than five million. Ladd and Warner brothers, where he produces, split the grosses 50-50.

Alan brought 66-year-old George Berthelon, "the best in the business," out of semi-retirement to be his associate producer. Berthelon, for 10 years Paramount production manager, reads scripts, assembles crews and makes recommendations on story lines.

Alan remembers fellow actors from his radio days and has Berthelon track them down for picture parts. He has Berthelon keep files on promising bit players for future re-use.

Ladd takes no screen credit as producer—"Why should I?"—and seldom watches other actors do their scenes because? "I wouldn't want another actor watching me."

Texas Demos Face Problem Of Unity, Boosting Ticket

By DAVE CHEAVENS

CHICAGO, Aug. 18 (AP)—Two tough political jobs face the new Texas Democratic leaders returning home from the national convention: Selling their presidential ticket and maintaining unity.

Sen. Lyndon Johnson and Speaker Sam Rayburn at last have gotten the Texas party back in physical harmony with the national party organization, if not in total agreement on political philosophy.

Texas now has two full-time loyalist members of the national committee that went to work today on its primary objective: Electing Adlai Stevenson and Estes Kefauver the re-united feuders, as president and vice president. They are Byron Skelton of Temple and Mrs. Frankie Randolph of Houston.

Many members of the Texas delegation said privately it will be a hard selling job in Texas, where President Eisenhower is still a powerful threat.

On the surface at least, Johnson took it on the chin on two major points at the national convention:

1. His favorite son presidential candidacy failed to develop and Texas in reality never got in anything but a perfunctory "aye" vote for Stevenson. This is almost always done at national conventions to make the situation look good.

2. The Texas delegation's choice for vice president, when the chips were down in the dramatic floor contest Friday for votes between Kefauver and Sen. John Kennedy of Massachuseets was defeated. Again Texas joined in the formality of making it unanimous.

On the plus side, Texas had a large part in bringing out a platform that was not considered obnoxious to most delegates on the touchy question of segregation. This carefully-worded statement of party policy was chiefly written to appease the South.

Johnson and Rayburn toiled for many hours to achieve this point, working close with Johnson's representative on the platform committee, Vann Kennedy of Corpus Christi and Mrs. Max Brooks of Austin. Johnson characterized the entire platform as one on which the Democrats could and would win in November—in Texas and over the nation. He said he had never hoped for unanimity on the platform, but for unity. He said the Democrats would field a fighting and winning ticket.

The vote for the platform may have been more fundamentally important, especially on the segregation issue, than the lost causes on the ticket personalities.

It is going to take some neat political footwork and furious talking by many Texas delegates to persuade other Texans to vote for the Stevenson-Kefauver ticket. Most Texas delegates just didn't ever want Kefauver, and that included the top leaders. They are probably going to have to do some reconciling with him, also.

The Texas caucus action in turning to Kennedy and rejecting Kefauver came after speeches from both Johnson and Rayburn. In view of Johnson's tight-fisted control of the delegation, it was evident that the dozen or so Kefauver backers on the delegation of 56 were snowed under.

On the state level, liberal-loyalists on the Texas delegation won from Johnson a pledge that he would not permit the conservatives to win the Sept. 11 state convention.

Many liberals said off the record they held little hope that Ralph Yarborough would be able to win over Sen. Price Daniel in the governor's race.

They are afraid they would be left out in the cold on the new State Executive Committee if Daniel wins. What they hope for now, if Daniel wins, is at least a minority voice on the important central committee which has been dominated for seven years by Gov. Shivers and his conservatives.

Johnson promised the presidential electors named in May would be loyal to the national party and cast Texas' votes for the Democratic nominee if the Democratic ticket carries the state.

The liberals must get at least their proportionate share of places on the executive committee if Johnson hopes to preserve his coalition of liberals and conservatives which knocked Shivers out of power in the May state convention. Johnson promised that the legally-elected delegates from the big contested counties, and else where would be seated at the September convention.

Politicians are eager to see how it turns out at the state session in Fort Worth. Much of the outcome, of course, hinges on what the voters say about their choice of Daniel or Yarborough in the second primary next Saturday.

CIUDAD ALEMAN, Mexico, Aug. 18 (AP)—Moises Ramirez, 20, burned to death yesterday in a $20,000 fire which raged out of control for more than three hours and destroyed the largest business here. He was pumping gasoline into a truck in the Pemex service station when a spark from the truck engine set the fuel afire.

A wholesale stor e behind the station containing tires, oil and batteries, also was destroyed.

J. T. Morrow, civil defense director for Rio Grande City, Tex., said huge clouds of black smoke billowing from the fire could be seen from Rio Grande City, 13 mile away across the Rio Grande.

Suez Crisis Puts Focus On Imports

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—The Suez Canal crisis has brought oil imports into sharper focus.

Thirteen oil importing companies have been asked by the government to form a "Middle East emergency committee" to formulate plans to supply Europe, and possibly the United States, with oil should the Suez route be closed.

The committee first will determine oil requirements of all countries now receiving supplies by way of Suez. Linked with this study will be a survey of facilities available in an emergency.

Arthur Flemming, director of defense mobilization, told of the plans which brought a prompt protest from the Independent Petroleum Assn. of America, a leader in the fight for reducing foreign oil being brought into the United States.

Robert Wood, IPAA president from Midland, asked that domestic oil producers be consulted on any United States petroleum supply study resulting from the Suez crisis.

Wood said any presumption there would be a shortage of oil in the United States if the crisis is not properly settled "is unfounded and unjustified." He advised Flemming it would be "an improper approach" for the question of United States supply to be studied only by representatives of importing companies.

Less than 24 hours earlier, IPAA and 18 other independent domestic oil and gas producer associations had advised Flemming the nation's shut in oil producing capacity this year will average over two million barrels daily.

THREATENED OIL LIFELINE — Black line and ship symbols illustrate route now followed by tankers carrying critical oil cargoes from Mid-East wells to Europe and America by way of the Egyptian-seized Suez Canal. American, British and French interests are main sources of concern over the current Suez crisis.

Painter Is Fatally Shot

DALLAS, Aug. 18 (AP)—A painter, Olley Rule, 43, was shot to death early today in the Fruitdale home of a woman compaign. Police arrested another woman.

The arrested woman told detective G. R. Boyce she and Rule were out together with several couples last night, and that he took her home about midnight.

She looked for him this morning, she said, and found his car parked in the other woman's yard.

The woman said she was admitted to the home and during the argument grabbed a rifle and shot Rule once in the left side.

The painter's body, clad only in shorts, was found lying on the floor of the bathroom, Justice of Peace W. E. Richburg said.

Gas Facilities

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—El Paso Natural Gas Co. had temporary authority today from the Federal Power Commission to build and operate $1,004,000 worth of natural gas facilities in Nolan and Coke counties, Tex. The facilities will permit the firm to take up 20,230,000 cubic feet a day of residue natural gas from West Lake Natural Gasoline Co., a subsidiary.

Hearing Set For Testing Water Laws

AUSTIN, Aug. 18 (AP)—A hearing on a precedent - making suit to test Texas waters laws on riparian rights has been set for Aug. 29 in District Court at Karnes City.

R. M. Dixon, chairman of the State Board of Water Engineers, said the board filed the suit Friday to protect domestic and livestock users of water from Cibolo Creek against withdrawals by irrigators. He added the suit is the first of its kind ever filed.

Judge H. D. Barrow issued a ten-day restraining order pending a hearing on the state plea for a temporary injunction. Styled The State of Texas against Charles Aubin, the suit names 15 defendants plus riparian owners on Cibolo Creek from Randolph Field to its confluence with San Antonio River.

Dixon said irrigators have appropriations from the stream for storm and flood waters only, and these have been non-existent for a long time. This results, he said, in depriving riparian owners of water for livestock and domestic use.

The state is relying on a Supreme Court decision that the state holds flowing waters in trust for riparian owners.

Dies Is Planning To Run For Senate

HOUSTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—Rep. Martin Dies said today he definitely will run for the Senate whenever a vacancy occurs.

A vacancy could occur this month, Sen. Price Daniel has said that should he win the Democratic nomination for governor Aug. 25 against Ralph Yarborough, he will resign his Senate seat at such a time that a special election will be necessary to select his successor.

"I do not plan to resign as congressman-at-large unless I am elected senator," Dies said. "In that event, I shall resign and my successor would be named at a special election. If I should resign before Nov. 6 my successor would be named by the state Democratic Executive Committee and the rank and file of the voters would have no voice in the selection."

Dies, renominated congressman at large in the July primary, said he decided to campaign for the Senate after talking with key supporters in Houston.

"My first objective in the U.S. Senate would be to develop a comprehensive program for alleviation of recurring droughts," he said. "We must capture a far greater percentage of the annual rainfall. The government payroll includes some of the world's ablist engineers who could devote their talents to this problem."

While not in Washington, Dies divides time between his home in Lufkin and his farm in Jasper County.

Texas voters in July gave him 905,685 votes, the largest number received by any candidate in a contested race.

Dies said Americans face three major issues—the worldwide menace of communism, waste in government, and centralization of power in Washington.

"I'm in favor of cutting out for the money at home, where it is sorely needed," he said. "There is a backlog of 10 billion dollars appropriated but not expended for foreign aid. This is another reason I voted against all foreign aid bills."

In 1954, Dies said, Congress approved his bill to outlaw the Communist party and its subsidiaries.

"If the majority of Congress had voted as I have voted the last four years we could have balanced the budget, reduced taxes, and paid large sums on the national debt without impairing any vital services or renigging on any obligation," he said.

Dies was among about 100 Southern congressmen signing the recent Southern manifesto condemning the Supreme Court desegregation ruling.

"I helped extract the teeth of the so-called civil rights bill which passed the House but died in the Senate," he said.

Report Given On Oil Wells

AUSTIN, Aug. 18 (AP)—The Railroad Commission said today 384 oil wells were completed this week, lifting to 10,661 the total for the year.

A year ago the total was 9,621. Forty-five gas wells were listed bringing the year total to 1,118 compared to 683 a year ago. Dry holes for the week were 175. That brought the year total to 5,192 compared to 4,654.

Wildcatters completed 10 oil and 2 gas wells. Oil wells on unproven territory this year total 384, well ahead of last year's 288. Total wells plugged for the week was 248. That increased the year total to 7,344 compared with 6,252.

The daily oil allowable today was 3,387,271 barrels, an increase of 15,812 from a week ago.

Former Con Is Wounded

FORT WORTH, Aug. 18 (AP)—Marvin Dunham, 41, a former convict, was critically wounded a about 4:30 a.m. today at a service station parking lot here.

Police pleaded with the four-time loser to name his assailants, but Dunham refused to do so.

Dunham was gunned down apparently by several men in a car that had been following him.

He was in the car of James Parrish, former Fort Worth policeman who got a 25-year sentence last September for the fatal shooting of Wilcid Mathews during a tourist court dice game in May of 1955. The Court of Criminal Appeals reversed the decision and ordered a new trial.

Parrish said they were just "driving around" when they thought they saw a car following them. He said he pulled into the service station to use the rest room and was inside when the shooting occurred.

AUSTIN, Aug. 18 (AP)—Price Daniel reported today he has spent $219,530 in his campaign for governor. Ralph Yarborough said he spent $118,453 trying for the same job.

Daniel's report showed contributions totaling $205,305, loans of $15,638 and debts of $6,063.

Daniel said he had spent $32,-917 since the first primary and had received $20,866 in contributions. He listed a $5,000 loan from Ellen Daniel of Liberty.

Yarborough's expense account showed $115,202 in contributions and debts of $15,005.

Yarborough listed a $1,000 gift from Mrs. Patsy Parten of Houston.

Conservation Part Of Soil Bank Set

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson today invited farmers to shift some of their crop land to grass, trees or water uses for periods ranging up to 15 years.

The secretary set in action machinery to start the second phase of the new soil bank plan —called the conservation reserve program.

Phase one of the soil bank plan, taking some basic crops out of production in return for government payments on a year-to-year arrangement, already has begun. This is called the "acreage reserve" program.

Phase two also is designed to reduce farm commodity surpluses. But the payments, around $10 an acre plus some cost sharing for conservation practices, will be smaller and the land will be out of production from 3 to 15 years.

Any farmer can participate in the conservation reserve, even this year, Benson said, if he enters contracts with the department on or before Oct. 15. For 1957 the deadline is March 15.

A department spokesman said comparatively few farmers are expected to join the conservation program for 1956. To be eligible their land must not have been used this year for crops, grazing or hay that is cut. Its the rare farmer who has land of that description.

But over the long run Benson hopes that from 20 to 25 million acres of land will go into the conservation reserve.

"Farmers interested in qualifying for this year's conservation reserve program should get in touch with (their) county agricultural stabilization and conservation committee soon," Benson said.

"The program provides an excellent opportunity to effect a permanent adjustment in land use throughout the country. . . conservation of soil and water resources now would provide us with the insurance of better productivity for future generations or times of emergency.

"Many acres of land now producing crops could better be devoted to trees, adding materially to our timber resources."

In general, the minimum amount of land that will be accepted under the conservation reserve is five acres. However, the minimum is only two acres if trees are planted, and special provisions have been made for small farms.

Total annual payments in the conservation reserve normally will be limited to $5,000 for single producer. Violations of conservation reserve contracts may result in cancellation, recovery of payments and in some cases additional fines.

PROVINCIAL BENCH IS PERFECT FOR ACCENT

By BILL BAKER
Furniture Designer to the Stars

A perfect accent item for any home — that's what I want to tell you about today. It's a beautiful do-it-yourself Provincial bench.

You'll notice in the smart rooms pictured in home magazines that a change-of-pace item of furniture is used many times to add a note of elegance. And just such an item is the Provincial bench. Strictly modern or Early American, the warm lines of the unit add a touch that you'll like in your living room dining room or hall.

The bench is 50 inches long, 34 inches high at the back and 16 inches deep.

I said that the bench is a do-it-yourself project, and it's true. Even a novice woodworker can build the bench with the help of my pattern package 139.

Dowels, forming the back and arms, are of standard size and offer no work-shop problem. The elegant legs are also available in standard size.

An exact-size duplication in heavy-weight paper of each part of the bench is included in the pattern package. It's a tack, trace and cut job.

A full material list, suggested time-saving assembly directions and full finishing hints are also included.

And you won't have to use a lot of equipment to build the bench, either. A coping saw will be used for the curved sections. Add to this only standard tools.

Now here's how to order your pattern package: send your name and address (very clearly printed), together with only one dollar ($1) in check, cash or money order, to Bill Baker, (Snyder Daily News), P. O. Boxx 1111, Los Angeles 53, California. When you write, be sure to ask for pattern package number 139.

AT WATER CONFERENCE

Rainmaking To Be Talked

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Aug. 18 — (Spl) — A frank and objective discussion of the possibilities of artificial rain-making by a representative of the U.S. Weather Bureau, will be one of the features of the second Water for Texas conference, to be held on the A. and M. College campus, Sept. 17-19, it was announced here today.

The conference, to which all Texans interested in the state's water problems are invited, is under the sponsorship of the Water Research and Information Center of the Texas A. and M. College System.

The U. S. Weather Bureau has been making a thorough investigation of the possibilities of artificial rainmaking for the past several years, Gibb Gilchrist, head of the A. and M. water center, said in making the announcement, and the information which it has collected should be of great help to Texans in evaluating many of the proposals made for solution of drouth problems.

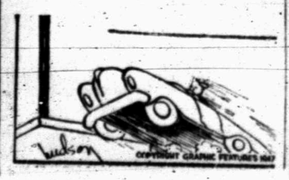

Also featured on the three-day program will be discussions by national and state authorities of watershed development and management, water laws of Texas, needs and uses of water in the production of oil and water for Texas agriculture and forestry. Panel discussions during the three days will deal with better uses of water for engineering works and agricultural irrigation as well as with a statewide plan for water use and methods of financing a statewide program.

Co-chairmen for the conference are Dean John Calhoun of the A. and M. College of Texas school of engineering and Director R. D. Lewis of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. Program chairman is Paul Weaver, distinguished professor of geology at the college.

Driver training and safety education courses were first held in 1933 in Pennsylvania.

FARMERS TO TALK PREVAILING WAGE

Farmers in this area had trouble last fall, and are still having it, when a dispute with the government arose over the amount paid cotton harvest laborers.

Planning to ward off any further dispute over such, the Scurry County Farmers Union has called a countywide farmers meeting for 8 p.m. Thursday in the district courtroom here. At the meeting, the prevailing wage on farm labor for this year will be discussed.

Meeting with the group will be Ben E. Harlow of Sweetwater, representative of the Texas Employement Commission, and a field man for the U. S. Department of Labor.

The labor department early this year demanded additional payment from West Texas farmers, charging that they did not pay the prevailing wage to Mexican national laborers. The prevailing wage used by the labor department was set by the Texas Employment Commission and was disputed.

There is still litigation in the courts concerning this dispute.

Two Liners Collide In Dense Fog

QUEBEC, Aug. 18 (AP)—The Italian liner Homeric and the Greek liner Columbia collided today in the dense fog and semidarkness of Quebec Harbor.

No injuries were reported among the 1,197 passengers aboard the 18,152-ton Homeric. The ship was inbound from Europe.

No passengers were aboard the 8,500-ton Columbia, tied up at the dock. A Columbia crewman, shaving in his cabin, was injured slightly.

The huge bow of the Homeric cut a gash 20 feet long in the Columbia's side and crushed some lifeboats.

The Homeric's bow was damaged slightly, but a spokesman for the owners said the liner would sail on schedule tomorrow. Agents for the Columbia said her departure would be delayed only a few hours.

One of the heaviest fogs of the season hung over the St. Lawrence River when the vessels came together.

The Homeric was being taken to her berth by tugs. The impact was described by harbor officials as light. Several passengers said they did not know anything was wrong.

The Homeric is owned by the Home Lines, Inc., an Italian firm. The Columbia belongs to the Greek lines.

Butler Re-Elected As Demo Chairman

CHICAGO, Aug. 18 (AP)—Paul Butler today was re-elected chairman of the Democratic National Committee and James Finnegan was picked to manage Adlai Stevenson's campaign for president.

The top positions in the Democratic party for the White House contest ahead were filled at a meeting of the Democratic National Committee.

Butler submitted his resignation. But, Stevenson pleaded with the members of the national committee to reject it.

Butler was re-elected by acclamation. Stevenson then chose the grey haired Finnegan who managed his campaign for the nomination, to be his campaign director.

Livestock Market New Service Wilts

HOUSTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—Houston area farmers and ranchers and the port city stockyards may soon be without a government-sponsored livestock market news service.

J. D. Sartwelle, vice-president of the stockyards, said that unless the federal government can quickly provide funds, the market news service office at the yards will close the last of this month.

Similar offices may be closed at the San Antonio and Amarillo markets, he said.

These agencies furnish daily livestock receipts and prices on their own yards and then send them by teletype to other markets. Livestockmen, commission houses and buyers watch the daily reports closely and gauge their business accordingly.

News offices at the Houston, San Antonio and Amarillo markets are financed co-operatively by state and federal funds.

Sartwelle said the financial trouble stems from an oversight during the last Texas Legislature when it appropriated money for just one year's operation of the market news services instead of two years.

When state money is not available, he said, then the federal government will not come in with its share of the operating funds.

"All that is needed is about $15,000 a year to keep the three news agencies going" he said.

Letters and telegrams are being sent to Secretary of Agriculture Benson urging him to make the $15,000 a part of the recently enacted drought relief program for Texas.

At Austin, Agriculture Commissioner John White said he expects Washington to act on the request for more money by Monday.

White said he was optimistic about keeping the services going. They may be stopped, however, he added.

Heat Stroke Victim's Body Goes Home

FT. HOOD, Aug. 18 (AP)—The body of Army trainee Harold Brody, 20, who died of heat after drilling in 110-degree temperatures Wednesday, was en route to his home in Brooklyn today.

Brody collapsed in the late afternoon while his unit was marching in formation within his battery's area. The unit had just completed about an hour of close order drill.

A 4th Armored Division spokesman Lt. Joseph Strear, said Sgt. Bernard Forette, assistant platoon sergeant, noticed Brody staggering. Forette called to the platoon sergeant, Sgt. Wilton H. Jackson, who ran to Brody and caught him as he was falling.

"We took Brody into the shade," the spokesman quoted Forette as saying, "and applied first aid until an ambulance arrived about 15 minutes later."

Brody died at the Ft. Hood station hospital about 5 p.m., an hour after his collapse.

Doctors at first thought he was a victim of heat exhaustion, but after an autopsy reported death was due to a heat stroke.

Brody was a member of the 4th Armored Division.

The New York World-Telegram and Sun earlier quoted the public information office at Ft. Hood as saying that although Brody was overweight, there was no medical reason for his not drilling in the sun.

Several persons have died in Texas during the current prolonged heat wave. Maximum daily temperatures have been over 100 degrees at most points for several weeks.

Outside Buyers In Need For Amarillo Area Cattle Herds

AMARILLO, Aug. 18 (AP)—The need for more outside buyer interest for stockers in the Amarillo area is greater now than at any time, several Amarillo cattlemen said yesterday.

More and more Panhandle rachers are being forced daily to liquidate their cattle heards because of burned-up pastures due to the prolonged drought.

Each week receipts of thin stocker cattle, cows and calves are increasing, they said. This promises to continue unless a general rain is received at once.

In five weeks, cattle sales in Amarillo were 76 per cent higher than last year. Volume sales through the third week of July were below last year's.

D .W. Vanderflught of the Department of Agriculture livestock market news service said, "Many cattle coming into the Amarillo market are those being forced off the ranges by the continued drought. They are cattle which normally would be kept until a later date and grazed on wheat pastures this fall.

Several Go To Meet Of Farm Bureau

Several leaders of the Scurry County Farm Bureau attended a district Farm Bureau policy development planning meeting late last week at Big Spring.

Attending the session were C. H. Stahl, president; M. W. Bavousett, vice-president; M. L. Andress, secretary-treasurer; John Layne, director; and Mrs. Andress, a member.

In the meeting, the group discussed methods of getting more Farm Bureau members to participate in policy development. County organizations adopt county policies and make recommendations to the state convention on state and national issues.

The more important issues facing farmers and ranchers today were also discussed at the meeting. State issues included insecticide law, statewide disease control, water, and reapportionment of state legislator districts. National issues included higher net farm incomes, surplus disposal, expanding markets, and getting the government back to the people.

Jack E. Tubb, formerly of Snyder, has enrolled in the aeronautical engineering course at Northrop Aeronautical Institute, Inglewood, Cal.

The course requires two years of study, and Tubb plans to enter employment with a major airline or aircraft manufactoror afterward.

HOBBS — Twilight Jersey Field Day has been set for Tuesday evening in Fisher County, when the Texas Jersey Cattle Club and several Jersey breeders in Texas will work together with Fisher farmers and discuss dairy problems.

Those interested will gather at the Nash Miers Jersey Farm, located in the Hobbs community. The farm is three-fourths of a mile west of the Hobbs school and two miles north.

Farmers and Jersey breeders throughout the area are invited to attend the field day, according to James Norman, Fisher County agricultural agent.

The program will begin at 7:45 p.m., with judging of Jerseys. At 8 p.m., a thumbnail history of Jerseys will be given, and at 8:30 p.m. good cows will be compared to strippers. A film on making more profit per acre will be shown at 9:30 p.m., and at 9:50 p.m. the meeting will be ended with refreshments of Jersey milk and cookies.

Norman said the meeting is a family affair, and all those interested in attending and participating are urged to attend.

Navajo Freight Lines Makes Merger Plans

DENVER, Aug. 18 (AP)—An official of Navajo Freight Lines, said today the firm has completed negotiations to buy the El Paso - Pecos Valley Truck Lines.

The merger must be approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Navajo expects a hearing within 60 days at Santa Fe or El Paso.

The spokesman declined to discuss the purchase price or other details "in advance of the ICC hearing." He said the El Paso-Pecos firm, which operates between Texas and Roswell, N.M., would be merged with Navajo and some employee may be retained.

BUCKIN' THE LINE

By BUCK FRANCIS
News Sports Editor

SNYDER FOOTBALL FANS who want to be assured of a good seat at all home games for the 1956 season had better get down to the Chamber of Commerce tomorrow to pick up your season tickets.

The season tickets will be on sale at the CC office only tomorrow.

The advantages of purchasing season tickets are so many that it would be foolish for a fan who plans to attend all games not to buy one.

For one thing, the tickets cost no more on a per-game basis than they do by buying them one at a time. The season ducats are selling for $6.25, good for five home games. Single game tickets sell for $1.25.

No Standing In Line

Another advantage of owning a season ticket is that there will be no need of standing in line at any time during the season to get tickets for any one of the five home games. Then, too, you won't have to go early to get a good seat. You can get to the game five minutes before the kickoff and a choice seat will be there waiting for you—if you have a season ticket.

Still another advantage is that fans owning season tickets this year will be given an option of buying the same seat for next year before the tickets are thrown open to the general public.

If these aren't enough advantages, then add the fact that season ticket holders, in all likelihood, will be given the option of keeping their same seats for any possible playoff games at home before they are put on sale to the general public.

We also might point out that general admission tickets to each game are $1 and for just two-bits more per game you can reserve a choice seat for the entire season.

There are still possible other advantages of owning a season ticket but these listed here should be enough to prompt any football fan to latch on to one of these valuable paste boards.

Snyder will be hosts to what promises to be a very fine Women's softball tournament this weekend.

Nine gal teams from over West Texas will play in the tournament.

You haven't "lived" until you see a girls softball game. The gals play the game for all its worth. The Snyder Texettes, the tourney hosts, have built up a fine record this season and will stand a good chance of annexing the tourney title.

Lubbock Scribe Praises Snyder LL Team

While in Lubbock last week, we picked up a quote that speaks well for Snyder's American Little League All-Stars.

George Wallace, who covered the District Little League tournament at Lubbock for the Avalanche-Journal, told us it probably would have been best, as it turned out, for Snyder to have beaten Lubbock in the district finals.

"I've never seen a team that hit Jimmie Haliburton (big and husky right hander for Lubbock) as Snyder did in the district finals," Wallace said.

"Haliburton wasn't used to having anyone hit him like that," Wallace added. "He usually strikes out just about everybody he faces."

"With Snyder being able to hit Haliburton like she did, I believe it would have done better in the Sectional Tournament than Lubbock did because of a better round-ed pitching staff," Wallace concluded.

Haliburton was the only thing Lubbock had in the way of pitching.

Since Haliburton pitched the last game of the district tournament, he wasn't eligible to pitch in the first game of the sectional tournament and, as result, Lubbock lost its first game in sectional play. Haliburton, thus, did not get to pitch in the Sectional Tournament.

The Snyder American Leaguers got eight hits off Haliburton but lost a tough decision, 6-4.

The fact that the Snyder American's didn't "back down" against the bigger boys paid off in the team's success.

The first instance came in the Area semi-finals against Big Spring American. Big Spring had a big, strapping youngster in Jerry Dunlap who had pounded 15 homeruns over the season.

Dunlap was also a pitcher. But against Snyder American, Dunlap was batted out of the box in the second inning and he went hitless at the plate.

Size of the boys made no difference to the Snyder Americans. They just stood up at the plate and whacked away at the ball regardless of who was tossing 'em up.

Snyder CC Tourney Set Sept. 14-16

West Texas Pro-Am Here Thursday

Two big golfing events at the Snyder Country Club will come off within the next month.

The Country Club tournament committee met during the past week and set the dates for the 2nd annual Invitationl tournament for Sept. 14-15-16.

Already on tap was the West Texas Pro-Antateur tournament set for next Thursday.

Thursday's pro - amateur will commence at 10 a.m. and continue throughout the day.

Entry fee for the pro-am will be $3 for amateurs and $5 for pros.

More than one dozen professionals in the West Texas area are expected to be on hand for the pro-amateur. Between 75-100 amatuers are due for the big one - day event.

Shanty Hogan, local pro, participated in the recent Hobbs, N. M. pro-am and got assurance from several of the pros they would be here Thursday.

Cash awards will go to the winning pros Thursday while the winning amateurs will receive merchandise.

Qualifying for the Invitational Tournament will be Sept. 14 with match play to be unreeled Sept. 15-16.

Dr. Dean Strack, Snyder, is the defending champion. Dr. Strack is expected to seek a second straight title.

Dr. Strack defeated Dan Winters of Abilene in last year's tournament finals.

Bill Craig, Colorado City, medalist for last year's tournament with a 67, is expected to be among the entries for the invitational.

The Invitational Tournament is expected to draw in the neighborhood of 100 despite the fact that the tourney will be held after school starts. Many college golfers will be unable to participate in the tourney due to the start of school.

Last year's tournament attracted 87.

Women's Softball Tourney Set Here

Nine teams will compete in the Snyder Invitational Women's Softball Tournament set this weekend starting Thursday.

The tournament hosts will be the Snyder Texettes. Another Snyder team, the Negro All-Stars, will participate in the tournament.

The seven out-of-town teams to play in the tournament are Hamlin, Midland, Coahoma, Bronte, Lubbock, Childress and Iraan.

All games will be played on the softball diamond in Towle Memorial Park.

At least two games will be played nightly Thursday through Saturday.

The tournament pairings haven't been drawn up.

The Texettes will be among the tourney favorites. Managed by Earl Davis, the Texettes have won 15 of 22 starts this season.

Bagwell Is Suspended

CLOVIS, N.M., Aug. 18 (AP)—Bill Bagwell, a 23-game winner who leads the Southwestern League in victories this year, today faced a permanent suspension from organized baseball as a result of an assault on an umpire here last night.

Bagwell was fined $200 and permanently suspended by league president W. J. Green for the alleged assault on umpire Matt Ryan after Ryan ordered him to return to the mound when Bagwell disputed a close call at second base. Bagwell's San Angelo teammates won the game, 7-3.

Bagwell allegedly threw a baseball at Ryan, hit him twice with his fists and kicked him when he fell to the ground.

Ryan and the other umpire during the game, Wayne Lipp, told Green in their report on the incident that it was the worst assault they had ever seen during their years in baseball.

Bagwell, a veteran pitcher, has hurled for teams in the Big State League, the defunct Gulf Coast League and was with Dallas in the Texas League in 1954.

Musial Sets Another Mark

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Stan Musial was relaxing in the dressing room when a sports writer handed him an all-time National League record sheet which showed him high in almost every department.

"Get that thing outa here," said Hank Sauer, roommate of the St. Louis Cardinals' $80,000 - a - year man. "If he sees himself close to some new record, it'll take him nine years to reach it."

Musial, 35-year-old first baseman - outfielder, had just set a new National League mark for extra-base hits.

His 1,072nd was a scorching liner off the right field screen in the seventh inning last night. He'd been chasing the record since last Sunday, when he tied it.

Net Tourney Cut To One Division

The annual Jaycees' Invitational Tennis Tournament will include only an "Adult Division" according to Denton Lambert, tournament chairman.

The Junior and Senior Division portion of the tournament was cancelled due to lack of entries, Lambert said. Only one Senior entry was received and three Junior entries.

The lone Senior entry, Ronnie Smith, will play in the Adult division.

The Adult Divison will commence play Aug. 27.

Sixteen players have cast entry blanks in the Adult Division, Lambert said, with several more expected before the entry deadline this weekend.

Any other adults wishing to participate in the Jaycee Tournament may fill out registration slips provided at the tennis courts at Towle Memorial Park. The registration slips may be found in the entry box adjacent to one of the courts.

There is no entry fee. Only requirement is that the players furnish their own tennis balls for the matches.

EDMUNDSTON, N. B., Aug. 18—Moe Norman retained his title as Canada's top amateur golfer today when he scored a 5 and 4 victory over Jerry Magee of Toronto in the 36-hole final of the Canadian Amateur Golf Tournament here today.

Aaron Favored, But Not As Youngest

CINCINNATI, Aug. 18 (AP)—National League history favors Hank Aaron winning the league batting title this year, but the 22-year-old Milwaukee outfielder won't be the youngest bat champ.

That distinction is held by Pete Reiser, who won the crown as a Brooklyn Dodger at the age of 22 in 1941. His 23rd birthday was more than a month later than Aaron's.

The Milwaukee slugger is currently hitting at a .338 clip, with 17 home runs and 69 runs batted in.

A breakdown of the National League's 20th - century batting champs by position shows that outfielders have taken the crown 26 times, while the next - best group, shortstops and second basemen, have taken nine. First basemen have won seven times, catchers three and third basemen twice.

Masters Hurls No-Hit Game

Ted Masters kept Hermleigh atop the City League standings Friday night with a no-hit performance against Ira, Hermleigh winning easily, 15-2.

The win was the sixth in seven starts for Hermleigh in the second half. Hermleigh is one game ahead of second place Snyder Furniture who owns a 5-2 record.

Hermleigh will meet Snyder Furniture Tuesday night in a game that will go a long way in determining the second half champ.

Hermleigh can clinch the title by winning Tuesday.

Masters had complete command of Friday night's Hermleigh win over Ira. In addition to allowing no hits, Masters struck out 15. He walked only three.

The only two runs off the Hermleigh right hander come on walks and errors. Ira scored in the fourth and sixth innings. In each instance Masters walked one with errors bringing the two runs around.

Bermon Corbell led Hermleigh's hitting with three hits in three trips, two of them doubles. Don McNew, J. Corbell and Doug Chitsey each had two hits for Hermleigh.

Hermleigh scored in every inning but one.

Yankees Clip Birds Behind Sturdivant

BALTIMORE, Aug. 19 (AP—Tom Sturdivant hurled a six-hit, 4-1 victory for the league-leading New York Yankees over the Baltimore Orioles today as the Bombers crashed three home runs in spacious Memorial Stadium.

It was Sturdivant's 11th victory of the season compared to six defeats. The loser was Heck Skinny Brown, who tamed the Yankees 10-5 in New York one week ago.

After Gerry Coleman bunted Joe Collins home to start the Yankee scoring in the second, Bill Skowron followed with a homer in the fourth, Billy Martin socked one in the fifth and Gil McDougald ended the scoring attack with a homer in the left-field stands in the seventh.

Baltimore's only score came on Bob Nieman's tremendous 440-foot smash over the center-field barrier in the second inning.

Ex-Sluggers Say Mickey Can Do It

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 (AP—Take the word of those who made the most determined assaults on Babe Ruth's heretofore unapproachable home-run record, Mickey Mantle has a great chance this year to equal or better the immortal Babe's 60 of 1927.

Hank Greenberg, who offered the most serious threat to Ruth's record before being stalled at 58 with five games remaining, thinks Mantle has "an excellent chance."

Jimmy Foxx, who also bogged down at 58, believes the New York Yankees' switch-hitting star, will break the record "if he stays healthy."

Johnny Mize, the only strictly southpaw slugger aside from Ruth ever to reach the 50 homer mark in a single season, is of the opinion Mickey can do it "if he just keeps on swinging."

Even Mrs. George Herman Ruth widow of the late Bambino, is inclined to believe Mantle may wipe out her husband's most coveted achievement.

"Excellent Chance"

"Mickey is quite a few games out in front, isn't he?" she asks. 'I should say he has an excellent chance, wouldn't you?"

In view of the repeated failures of all previous challengers, it is surprising that Greenberg, Foxx and Mize all agree that Mantle may accomplish what they and other home-run sluggers like Hack Wilson, Ralph Kiner, Lou Gehrig, Mel Ott and Willie Mays failed to do in the past.

Whether he mades it or not, Mickey definitely has established himself as a real threat not only this year, but the next and the next. The 24-year-old outfielder with the neck of a bull and the shoulders of a wrestler may be the most powerful hitter the game has ever known.

Switch-Hitting Ability

The switch-hitting ability gives the Oklahoma kid an advantage none of the others had. It makes no difference to him whether the opposition tosses a righthander or a lefthander. Mickey has demonstrated time and again that he could hit with tremendous power from either side of the plate.

In his team's 114 games through last Thursday, Mantle swatted 42 home runs, putting him 11 games ahead of Ruth's 1927 pace when Babe did not hit his 42nd home run until the Yankees' 125th game. That means Mickey will need 19 home runs in 40 games. It is the opinion of many that if Mantle can go into September with 50 home runs, he will be even money to dethrone Ruth.

Ted Homers Twice But Red Sox Bow

BOSTON, Aug. 18 (AP—Washington defeated the stumbling Boston Red Sox for the 11th time in 15 games today, 9-7, despite Ted Williams' slump-breaking barrage of two home runs and a double.

Williams drove home four runs while Ted Lepico accounted for Boston's other three with another pair of homers.

The loss was the sixth in the last seven games for the Red Sox and their fourth in a row to the Senators.

Bible To 'Retire' Effective 9-1-57

AUSTIN, Aug. 18 (AP—Dana X. Bible, in his 20th year as director of the University of Texas' Athletic program, said today he had asked to be placed on "modified service" effective Sept. 1, 1957.

A Hall of Fame football coach, Bible will observe during the year his 50th anniversary in athletics—as athlete, coach and administrator.

The athletic director said he had requested the university to place him on modified service a year from next month, stating it was his desire "to get out of the active picture and serve in a limited capacity as athletic director emeritus."

He establishes eligibility for modified service Oct. 8, when he becomes 65. His present contract with the university is in effect until Sept. 1957.

Bible coached eight Southwest Conference championship teams during his 21 seasons at Texas and at Texas A&M. Previously he served as coach at Nebraska, Louisiana State, Mississippi College and Brandon Prep (Tennessee).

Bible received the Alonzo Stagg Award and the New York Touchdown Club's 1954 award for outstanding service to football.

He is listed in "Who's Who in America." He was president of the American Football Coaches Assn. (1934), a member of the National Football Rules Committee for 27 years and served three times on the coaching staff of the West in the annual Shrine game.

Since Bible arrived at Texas in 1937, Texas has won national titles in four sports and has scored near misses in four others. Of the 162 team titles awarded by the SWC since 1937, Texas has won 87 outright and owns shares of eight others.

Texas also has leadership in team championships in eight sports and has won as many undisputed titles as any other rival the ninth one.

Sooners Out For 1st Win In Oil Bowl

WICHITA FALLS, Aug. 18 (AP—Power - packed squads from Oklahoma and Texas clash here Friday night in the 19th Oil Bowl football game. The Sooners still seek their first victory.

The game became a Texas - Oklahoma affair in 1945. The best the boys from across the Red river have been able to do in the 11 games is a 6-6 tie in 1954.

Texas has one of its finest squads and will be the favorite. Oklahoma looks formidable.

Coached by Earl Sullins of Ponca City, Bobby Goad of Tulsa and Blue Gaither of Stroud, the Sooner stars will be led by Brewster Hobby of Midwest City, a 175-pound halfback rated as probably the finest player in the state's schoolboy history.

The Texans have standouts like Bobby Lackey of Weslaco, Larry Duiett of Corpus Christi Miller, Wahoo McDaniel of Midland, Gordon LeBoeuf of Port Neches and Charles Milstead of Tyler, all of whom have played in all-star games this summer. Rusty Russell, coach of Victoria Junior College, and Ted Dawson, former Texas schoolboy coach, are directing the Texans.

Oklahoma expects to have a strong line featuring 235 - pound tackle Buster Barclay of Cushing, guard David Thayer of Blackwell and end Rocky Boydstun of Muskogee. The Texans can counter with a top forward wall spearheaded by Sam Caudle of Abilene and Jim Shillingburg of Kermit.

A crowd of 14,000 is expected, the usual sellout.

Both squads will arrive Sunday and begin workouts Monday.

U.S. Amateur Qualifying Starts Tuesday

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 (AP—For the second straight year a record-breaking number of golfers will try to qualify for the 56th U. S. Amateur golf championship next week.

A total of 1,612 players filed entries for the tournament at the Knollwood Club, Lake Forest, Ill., Sept. 10-15, and of these 1,063 will compete in the sectional qualifying rounds.

The tournament proper, conducted entirely at match play, is limited to 200 contestants and only nine are exempt from the sectional tests.

Thirty sectional qualifying tests, each over 36 holes, will be required to whittle the field down to 200. The first is scheduled at San Francisco, Tuesday, Aug. 21. Rounds will be held at Chicago and Portland, Ore., Aug. 27 and at the remaining locations Aug. 28. A scheduled round at Salt Lake City was cancelled because of lack of entries.

The nine exempt players are defending champion Harvie Ward of San Francisco, former champions Charley Coe of Oklahoma City, Dick Chapman of Pinehurst, N. C., Willie Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y., and Chick Evans of Chicago; former British Amateur champions Joe Conrad of San Antonio, Tex., and Bob Sweeny of New York; James H. (Junie) Buxbaum of Memphis, the current U. S. public links champion, and Harlan Stevenson of Long Beach, Calif., recent winner of the U. S. junior amateur championship.

All nine members of the 1955 U. S. Walker Cup team entered and of these only Ward and Conrad are exempt. Bruce Cudd and Dick Yost will play their sectional rounds in a 20-man field at Portland, Ore., which was assigned three qualifying places.

Other Walker Cuppers are Capt. Bill Campbell, who will try to qualify at his home club in Huntington, W. Va.; Don Cherry in the 153-man Metropolitan New York section, playing at Montclair, N. J.; Jimmy Jackson at St. Louis, Dale Morey at Chicago and Billy Joe Patton at Hickory, N. C.

Others who must play through the sectional rounds include William Hyndman III, runner-up to Ward last year, and Jimmy McHale, former Walker Cup player, at Philadelphia; Ken Venturi, leading amateur in the U. S. Open and near-winner of the Masters, and veteran John Dawson, another former Walker Cup player, at San Francisco, and Hillman Robbins Jr.; a semifinalist last year, at New Orleans.

Crandall Sidelined With Eye-Ankle Injury

CINCINNATI, Aug. 18 (AP — Catcher Del Crandall may be lost to the Milwaukee Brves for the rest of the series here with Cincinnati's Redlegs after a home plate injury in last night's game.

Crandall is definitely out of the lineup for tonight's game, when Toby Atwell will be behind the plate.

Crandall went to a hospital here today for treatment of an eye and ankle injury sustained in the eighth inning last night when Redleg shortstop Roy McMillan collided with him while scoring from third.

L. C. Morgan, Meridian, Miss., lightweight, won 10 of his first 17 bouts by knockouts.

Stan Shows No Sign Of Fading

By The Associated Press

Ted Williams had just polled a home run into the bullpen in Griffith Stadium in the sixth inning to give the American League All-Stars their first runs. The loudspeaker in the press box droned:

"Attention press: That home run ties Williams with Stan Musial for the most All-Star homers—four."

In the very next inning, Musial connected with one of Tom Brewer's fast balls and deposited it in the right field seats. Once again the loud-speaker informed the scribes:

"Attention, press: Give the record back to Musial."

Musial has always been noted for his perfect timing. Perhaps, this home run wasn't as perfectly timed as the one he hit in the twelfth inning of the All-Star game in Milwaukee last year to win the game for the National Leaguers, but it helped to point up the fact that Musial was playing in his thirteenth All-Star game, another record.

On the eve of the All-Star game in Washington, Musial had been presented with a grandfather's clock for having been voted the Player of the Decade. Perhaps Musial interpreted the "gift" as a subtle hint that, at 35, he was rapidly approaching the grand-pappy stage. His fifth All-Star home run was anything but subtle.

Few will argue that Stan Musial hasn't been the outstanding major league player over the past ten-year stretch. His amazing record argues for itself.

Ike's Brother 2nd In Senior Tourney

VICTORIA, B.C., Aug. 18 (AP—An Eisenhower, who plays golf with fewer headlines and fewer strokes than his more illustrious brother, lost again in his bid for the Northwest Seniors' golfing crown here yesterday.

Ed Eisenhower, Tacoma, Wash., attorney, blew a solid lead on the home stretch and lost to Corydon Wagner, also of Tacoma, on the 19th hole.

Eisenhower was 3-up with 4 holes to play when his steady game fell apart as though he might have just heard a Democratic keynote speech.

Eisenhower has been a perennial candidate for the elder golfers' title. It was the seventh time he had been a finalist without a victory.

Cincy Pro Gets Ace In Milwaukee Open

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 18 (AP—Art Doering, Cincinnati pro, shot a hole-in-one today during the heavy rain in the third round of the $35,000 Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament.

Doering got his ace on the par 3, 172-yard 12th hole. The Cincinnati golfer had a 36-hole total of six-over-par 146 before the start of today's third round.

Heavyweight boxer Harold Carter of Linden, N. J., played Police Athletic League football.

Chisox Nip Tigers, 2-1

CHICAGO, Aug. 18 (AP—The Chicago White Sox bounded to within half a game of third-place Boston today on Walt Dropo's eighth-inning double that gave the Sox a 2-1 decision over Detroit and their fifth triumph in a row.

Boston, meanwhile, was losing to the Washington Senators 9-7.

Dropo's double scored Minnie Minoso from third base and proved the difference in a tight pitching duel between young Paul Foytack of the Tigers and Chicago's Bob Keegan.

19th HOLE CHATTER

Pro-Amateur 1st Of 2 Big Events Here Within Month

Thursday will be a big day at the Snyder Country Club.

Pro Shanty Hogan has a West Texas Pro-Amateur tournament on tap for Thursday at the local layout.

A goodly number of out-of-town golfers will be on hand. There should also be a good turnout of Snyderites for the one-day affair.

The pro-am here is a kickoff for bigger things to come at the Snyder CC. The second annual Invitational Tournament has been set for Sept. 14-15-16.

We trust the most of our linksmen here plan to take in both the pro-amateur and the invitational tournament.

Don Scott and Shelby Coker, the champion and runner-up respectively in the City Tournament just recently completed, were touring the local course yesterday.

Bill Craig, Colorado City, medalist for last year's invitational tournament here with a 67, played a round on the Country Club course Friday. Bill got away before anyone could find out what he shot.

Craig, one of the most formidable golfers in West Texas, is a likely entrant in both the pro-amatuer and the invitational tournament here.

Dr. Dean Strack, defending champion in the Snyder CC Invitational, is taking part in the Clovis, N. M., Invitational now in progress.

Dr. Strack qualified for the Championship Flight at the Clovis meet with a 75.

John Conley, Tiger grid mentor, recorded his first birdie on the Par 4 No. 4 hole here Wednesday. John was about 18 inches away from the cup on his second shot.

Several golf fans here missed the final results on some of the flights in the recent City Tournament since most of the finals were played on different dates.

For the benefit of those who might have missed some of the winners, here they are in a nutshell:

CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT
Winner—Don Scott.
