LLOYD GEORGE SEES RETURN OF RUSSIAN TRADE

German Head Meets Premier in Long Session

By Associated Press.

GENOA, May 4.—The German chancellor, Dr. Wirth, and the German foreign minister, Dr. Rathenau, were summoned to Premier Lloyd George's villa today and remained for several hours in conference with the prime minister, Lord Brikenhead and Sir Edward Grigg.

Both Germans and British were non-communicative regarding the subjects discussed but rumors are current that plans were considered for ameliorating Germany's reparations situation.

To Take Up Debt

The English delegates have announced that they still adhere to the suggestion for a meeting of the signatories of the Versailles treaty either at Genoa or a neighboring city before May 31 to consider measures respecting the German reparations payments due on that date, which Germany has announced inability to pay.

The longer the Russians study the memorandum on Russian reconstruction, the less it seems to appeal to them.

Rakovsky, Tchitcherin and Litvenoff has expressed surprise at some of the sections, and the divergence between the allies caused by France and Belgium holding out on article 6 has greatly strengthened the Russian position.

Lloyd George Hopeful

It is expected that the Russians will reply to the memorandum on Saturday; meanwhile they are using their advantage skillfully. Their experts are digesting the various sections at Santa Margherita, where the whole delegation is working steadily with the exception of Tchitcherin and Rakovsky, who came to Genoa for a short time today. There is much speculation on France's position since the conference between Premier Poincare and M. Barthou. Mr. Lloyd George and the entire British delegation are still optimistic that the allies will agree and the Russians will accept in such a manner as to reopen Russian trade.

NEFF ASKED TO BLOCK PARADE

Constable Asks Him To Stop Klan

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, May 4.—Constable Charles H. Hamby of Austin, called at Governor Neff's office late today and delivered a letter signed by himself, requesting aid in preventing a parade of the Ku Klux Klan in Austin tonight.

Mr. Hamby said in the letter that he was reliably informed that the Ku Klux Klan are to parade tonight ad that he had been called on by the "Law-abiding citizens" to prevent it.

He said he intended to do all within his power to stop the parade in event it is attempted, he requested the governor to furnish "either the military or rangers, or both, to prevent the parade."

Governor Neff said later that the letter had been delivered to him but that he did not see Constable Hamby. He said he would not comply with the request.

No announcement of a Ku Klux Klan parade here tonight has been made through the local papers, as the case when a former parade was held.

PEOPLE WAIT FOR KLAN BUT ALL IN VAIN

AUSTIN, May 4.—The information given Governor Neff in a letter late today by Constable Charles Hamby that there would be a Ku Klux Klan parade here tonight did not stand up. There was no parade. A copy of his letter was published in a "tornado extra" of an afternoon paper and the people lined both sides of Congress avenue tonight, apparently waiting for the parade. Some of them waited until a late hour but no klansmen appeared.

Educate Men—
See Demagogues Go—
And Charity Come—

By H. N. F.

I AM FOR GOOD ROADS. I AM for the care of the unfortunate, the insane, the feeble minded, the deaf and the blind. I am for law enforcement. I am for everything that makes for a greater and more progressive Texas; but of all these things education is the greatest and the money which is spent on education is the best spent.—Excerpt from an address made by Governor Neff on the East Normal College campus at Commerce. This is an immortal truth. Money which is spent on education is the best spent. Knowledge broadens a man. Knowledge makes him tolerant. Knowledge makes him charitable. Knowledge develops his vision. Knowledge sharpens all his faculties. If all men and women were educated men and women there would be fewer demogagues, fewer charlatans, fewer idols with clay feet and thin minds, fewer cunning and unscrupulous birds of prey who gorge upon the people and fasten like leeches upon the body politic. Educate all the children of all the people. Give them trained hands as well as educated brains. For twenty centuries millions of men accepted the dogma of divine right to rule on the part of their despotic emperors and kings. This theory, as hideous as it was ancient, was shot to pieces on Flanders field. There is only one divine right to rule monarch now—the Mikado of Japan—and his throne is a bit shaky.

SENATOR HARRY S. NEW WAS sent to the republican political graveyard in Indiana. He was one of the ablest of the old guard leaders. Now Pennsylvania holds the center of the stage. Bois Penrose is dead. He was the boss of all the bosses. His former lieutenants handpicked a candidate for governor in order to save the machine and to continue control. They named a lawyer named Alter who is the attorney general of the state. The people had no voice; the rank and file of the republican party were not consulted. A meeting of the little bosses was held behind closed doors and these bosses picked a candidate for governor for the people of the second American state in population and wealth. Gifford Pinchot threw himself into the arena. He appealed to the republicans of Pennsylvania to name a candidate for governor at the primary ballot box. Pinchot was drafted by the progressive republicans and he is making the fight of his life to smash the old Penrose machine. He has the national administration against him, the state administration, the consolidated wealth of the great corporations and the professional politicians of his party. Primary election day comes on May 16. Gifford Pinchot was a friend of Roosevelt. His fame is international. He is a man of wealth and his intellectual attainments are of the highest. He believes in a free people and it is his proud boast that he has never bowed to a political boss. He does not believe in the use of money in politics. He does not believe that the patronage of the people should be divided among ward heelers regardless of merit or qualification or integrity. Indiana repudiated New but it is too much to expect of Pennsylvania that she will repudiate the Penrose machine and all the little bosses who are fighting for his shoes. Senator George W. Pepper voted for the vindication of Newberry. He defended the tainted dollar in politics. But he is one Newberry senator who hopes to win on primary election day. Big Business is for Senator Pepper. Also for Major David A. Reid, attorney for the steel trust who won honors as a soldier in France. Pepper is opposed to the soldier bonus. Reid is for a soldier bonus if its a good thing. In Pennsylvania this will catch them coming and going on election day.

LLOYD GEORGE IS CARRYING a greater load than any man in history. Now the labor organizations of England comprising 6 million workmen demand of him full political recognition of the Soviet government of Russia and the admission of Russia and Germany to the league of nations. They say it is indispensible to the re-establishment of political and economical peace in Europe. European diplomats are the weasels

ASKS MONEY!

Mrs. R. E. Huff Jr.

Mrs. R. E. Huff Jr., who won her name, title, and her figure, according to acquaintances, from winter plunges in Lake Michigan, is seeking a divorce from her husband, Dr. R. E. Huff Jr., of Wichita Falls.

HUFF CITED IN DIVORCE CASE

Wife Complains She Has no Alimony

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 4.—Dr. Robert Eugene Huff Jr., a denjist of Wichita Falls, Texas, was cited today to appear before Superior Judge Joseph Sabbath on May 8, to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court for failure to pay temporary alimony.

Mrs. Marguerite Huff appeared in court today and told Judge Sabbath she had received no alimony since the first order was entered Jan. 18. She was awarded $150 a month and $150 in solicitor's fee.

Mr. Huff, who is the son of a Wichita Falls banker, met Miss Marguerite Foster while attending Northwestern university. The two were married in July, 1916. They have one son, Robert E. Huff III, three years old. The Huffs separated in September, 1920.

BULLINGTON IS BEING WATCHED

Capital Dems Oppose G. O. P. Victory

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Chairman Cordell Hull of the Democratic National committee and Chairman Arthur Rouse, of the Democratic Congressional committee, today were fully alive to the possibility of Orville Bullington, republican, slipping in for the short term as congressman from the Thirteen Texas district, due to a divided democratic field.

At the national headquarters it was understood that as Governor Neff simply called for an election and not for a preliminary, primary nothing could be done from Washington.

Democrats here would much regret to see a republican elected from Texas, just on the eve of the important fall elections, but the general view was that it was a matter which the voters in the Thirteenth district would have to take care of themselves.

RODEO CROWDS PICK MASSEY AS STAR FOR DAY

He Hurls Bellowing Brahma at Feet of His Old Dad

'Twas the original Wichita Falls yesterday.

Shorn of its golden glamor of recent years, the modern city echoed again the hoof-beats as of yore.

Husky voiced cowboys held sway in what is now barely a recollection to the pioneers, and revelation to the younger generation. Girls of the plains rode as once they did in dim distant past, care-free, graceful and well.

3,500 See Show

More than 3,500 composed the crowd which filled the stands, and just that number sat or stood spellbound at the daring of the Rodeo performers as they rode through a program, both faster and more thrilling than that of Wednesday.

Calves were tied quicker and steers thrown with more speed than on the opening day. Something seemed to fill the air and both patriciapants and animals vied with each other during the entire show.

To big Jim Massey, a native son of the panhandle, goes the honor of the afternoon. Riding out almost on top of a Brahma steer, he threw the bellowing beast directly in front of the grand stand, but most spectacular of all, directly in front of his gray-haired father who had journeyed here for the occasion. Nor that alone, his time was barely two seconds under the world's record for the bull-dogging event.

"Surprised at the boy?" queried a friend.

"Surprised!" answered the aged father, "why, no, that's what I expected him to do."

"He's been raised at such. He knows the game better than he knows his own name," Mr. Massey continued, admiration filling every line of his happy face.

Envy filled the hearts of half a hundred other gladiators of the arena when they saw a "that's my boy" smile flashed upon the man who had just set a mark for them all to shoot at.

Nine and four fifths seconds elapsed between the time he rode across the starting line and when he waved a free hand above the frothing mouth of the conquered animal.

Tommy Douglas filled the crowd with hopes, when it seemed that he would stick on the unridden Bovo-

Harding to Name Demo Bank Head

WASHINGTON, May 4—Appointment of a democrat to the vacancy on the federal reserve board which will be caused next August by the termination of the term of Governor W. P. G. Harding was said today by senate republican leaders to be the present intention of President Harding. It was emphasized, however, that nothing definite had been decided on by the president.

Texas Debaters Defeat Vanderbilt

AUSTIN, May 4.—The Texas University debating team won the debate tonight with the Vanderbilt University team. Texas had the affirmative side of the question "Resolved, that the United States should maintain a navy sufficient with strength for police duty only, regardless of the policy of other nations."

TWO KILLED IN GUN CONFLICT

By Associated Press.

CANTON, Ohio, May 4.—Two men were killed and five wounded, three probably fatally, in a gun fight late today between a posse and four gunmen when was staged about five miles north of here.

Congress to Act On Disposition of Oil in Wyoming

GIRL'S THROAT SLASHED OPEN

Body Found Not Far From Horse

By Associated Press.

MEXIA, Texas, May 4.—Officers and a large posse tonight are seeking to solve the murder of 17-year-old Eula Ousley, school girl, who was found about eight miles west of here with her throat slashed and her head beaten in by blows with a club.

When the girl, who was living with her grandfather on a farm east of here between the little towns of Kirvin and Streetman, did not return from school this afternoon, a search was instituted and her body was found about a quarter of a mile from the public road while her horse was tied to the fence along the road parallel with the location of her body.

No theory for the murder has been advanced and it was declared by her grandfather and by neighbors that she had no sweetheart. Officers left here tonight to hold a post mortem examination of the body and aid a large posse that is already at work investigating the brutal murder.

Rapallo Treaty Upheld by Allies

By Associated Press.

PARIS, May 4.—In a long note communicated to the German government tonight the reparations commission fails to find any immediate violation of the treaty of Versailles in the provisions of the Russo-German Rapallo treaty but reserves to itself the right to examine closely the application of the treaty and take any action necessary to protect the allied lien on all German resources.

to expect your automobile to run without gas. Nor should you expect your business to even hold its own, without advertising, to say nothing about growth. And mighty few businesses are safe unless they are growing some, at least.

Newspaper publicity of the right sort and the right frequency and volume, backed up by good merchandise that the people consume, and good management, will come mighty near to making any business grow.

We see all around us splendid examples of the fact that people do actually respond to proper merchandising offers. Are you getting your share? If not whose fault is it?

GIRLS JAILED AS CHICAGO FLIRTS

Paint and Powder Washed Off

CHICAGO, May 4.—Traffic Cop John Smith is back at his semaphore at Madison and State streets today wearing a smile that won't come off.

For Smith is tickled. He has satisfied his one longstanding desire. Money? Nosirree.

During his turn of duty at the "world's busiest corner" Smith had a chance to look over the pride of Chicago's flappers. He did. And he wondered just what was under the coats of paint and powder only too visible to the naked eye.

He not only wondered but he worried. So did Traffic Cop Beckham on duty with him. Then they decided to find out.

Smith and Peckham arrested Miss Cather Flesser and two girl companions. "Flirting," said the officers, "to the hoosegrow."

And once at the station did they throw their fair prisoners into cells? Omyno. They took towels, soap and water and scrubbed their faces.

And then what?

"Well their cheeks were "pinkier" after we got through than they were when we started," said Smith.

"But that was because we had to rub so hard to get the paint off," chimed in Peckham. "Smith's arm is sore yet."

So is Peckham's.

Harry Sinclair Rushes to Side of Son in Special

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Harry F. Sinclair, arriving here today on a hurried trip from Mexico City, where he left a conference of American oil men with Mexican government officials to rush home to the sick bed of Harry, Jr., found the youngster recovering from an operation for mastoiditis. Mr. Sinclair used a special train from Mexico City to Laredo, Texas, in order to more speedily reach home.

MORE THAN SCORE INJURED WHEN TWISTER HITS SOUTH PART OF CITY LATE IN DAY

Woman Lifted Hundred Feet and Buried in Pile of Debris; Twister Dips Into Summer Camps, Upsetting Small Cottages; Small Stick Driven Through One of Victims

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, May 4.—Nine dead, thirty-eight injured, two probably fatally; and property damage estimated at $400,000 was the toll of death and destruction in the wake of a tornado which late today swept through the west side of Austin and on out of the city of Oakhill, eight miles southwest, according to a check of the situation late tonight.

The property damage covers buildings demolished at the Woodward Manufacturing company plant, St. Edwards College, the Negro Deaf, Dumb and Blind Institute, and residences and buildings in the south and southwest parts of the city.

The dead are:

Mrs. John Bargsley, Sr.
Miss Ada Bargsley.
Mrs. J. S. Thompson, Sr.
Mrs. J. S. Thompson, Jr.
John S. Thompson, Jr.
Maria Kinchon, negro.
S. S. Scales, 55, negro, Manchaca, eight miles south.
Laura Russell, 22, negro, Manchaca.

Eighteen months old baby of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Padgett.

With the exception of the Padgett baby, all deaths occured at Oakhill. The Bargsleys and Thompsons were members of one household, who with Maria Kinchon, negro cook, were killed when the tornado struck their home.

The Padgett baby died from injuries received when it was picked up by the tornado, carried across a road and then dropped.

This happened on the Post Road, south of Austin. The parents of the child were also carried a short distance by the twisting wind but were not injured seriously.

Other persons were injured in the Oakhill community but information from there tonight was meager and the exact number could not be obtained. It is not expected to exceed six.

The two persons reported probably fatally injured are J. S. Mussett Jr., and Mrs. W. F. Woodman. Both were injured at Pennfield by flying planks.

Hospital reports tonight are that all others injured are expected to recover.

The tornado traversed the west part of the city in its course, leaving the main part untouched. The negro institute, about three miles northwest of the city, was struck first. Then the tornado hit Deep Eddy, a bathing resort in the west part of the city, damaging several buildings. Travis Heights and the southern part of Austin came next in the tornado's swinging course, where several residences were completely demolished. The tornado then jumped to St. Edwards college, demolished the gymnasium and a dormitory and tore on in a southwesterly direction completely demolishing the three brick buildings of the Woodward plant. It was next heard of at Manchaca and Oakhill.

The greatest damage done was at the Woodward Manufacturing company, a wood work establishment located at Pennfield, just south of the city. The plant consisting of three buildings was completely demolished.

It was here that the one death occurred. The man was an employe named Jack Mussitt. He was killed by flying timber.

Approximately 15 employes of the concern are reported injured, none seriously.

Two were injured at the negro deaf and dumb and blind institute northwest of the city, neither seriously. Both of the injured are inmates. The dormitory at St. Edwards college, near Pennfield, was partially wrecked. Two of the students are reported injured, neither seriously.

The storm struck the Woodward plant squarely amidship tearing through the three buildings. The employes, about 78 in all, had time to leave the buildings and were running for safety when the storm overtook them.

Some were carried through the air for short distances. Those injured, were struck by flying timber.

The students of St. Edwards College left their building as they saw the storm approaching. The dormitory was partially destroyed.

The negro students at the deaf, dumb and blind institute were moved to one building. The two injured were struck as they were entering the building. Damage was estimated at $40,000. The laundry being demolished and a dormitory unroofed.

Comes Out of North.

The tornado approached Austin from the north and hundreds of people on the downtown streets watched the whirling cloud pass over the west section of the city. It first struck at the negro institute where the inmates all huddled in one building, were safe. Damage was done to all the other buildings of the institution.

The storm dipped again at Deep Eddy, a summer camping ground, just inside the west city limits. Here the storm cut a swath a hundred

RUSSIAN ENVOY PUT U. S. LOAN IN INVESTMENT

Borah Makes Attack On Bakhmeteff And Semenoff

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Asserting the belief that Boris Bakhmeteff, the last ambassador of a Russian government to come to the United States, never had presented to the state department credentials "properly accrediting" him as the Russian ambassador, Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, charged in the senate today that M. Bakhmeteff had used a part of the $18,000,000 loaned by the United States to the Kerensky government of Russia, and had invested it in New York and Chicago.

Mr. Borah, likewise, criticised and protested against a continuation of the policy of, according to Mr. Bakhmeteff, the privileges and immunities of a diplomat.

The Idaho senator also attacked Gen. Gregorie Semenoff, Russian anti-bolshevik leader, whose presence in this country the senate labor committee has been investigating.

Mr. Borah expressed the fear that the general was here to obtain funds to promote a new revolution in Russia, and described him as responsible for crimes, the brutality of which "has never been equalled in the history of the world."

Priest to Testify

Regarding the charge that M. Bakhmeteff had not turned over all of the American loan to the Kerensky government, Mr. Borah declared that a priest of the Greek church was ready to testify before the labor committee as to the investment of some of the funds in New York and Chicago real estate. The information which Mr. Borah had, he said, was to the effect that the property was in the hands of a holding company which was organized by M. Bakhmeteff for that purpose. The income, he assumed went to M. Bakhmeteff.

Father's Fuzzy Pink Nightie With Splits at Each Side of Tail Will Be All the Rage Again, Say Clothiers

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 4. — Father's night shirt—perhaps even the fuzzy one with the pink stripes and the split at each side of the tail—is coming back and along with it suspenders, sleeve holder and rubbers, solid, squared-toed, conspicious rubbers. The forecast of an age of innocent men's fashions for the coming year was made today by United Clothiers in convention here.

Just when the old night garment had been all but routed by the roguish pajama and was relegated to the shelf with such vanishing institutions as "my last quart," came the renaissance.

It comes double-breasted, all the way down to the shins—the coat shirt idea carried further.

It has double rows of frog fasteners, is called especially smart in confused shades of heliotrope, elephant's breath gray or pale lemon and frequently has a shawlish collar of contrasting color and raglan sleeves.

As to the sleeve supporters and galluses both were displayed by the convening clothiers in soft tones of pink, blue and lavendar. The up-to-the-minute dresser is expected to understand, of course, that either sleeveholders or suspenders should match the garters and that the brummets must have sleeve holders and suspenders to match each shirt.

Blood-Stained Rock Used on Head of Candidate for Mayor Submitted in Case and Woman Is Fined 25 Dollars

Blood stains on a ragged-edged rock was a part of the evidence submitted to a jury in the county court at law Thursday afternoon that brought a fine of $25 upon Mrs. Nora Hefner, when the jury returned a verdict of guilty against the 15-year-old defendant to the charge of aggravated assault in connection with an assault said to have been made upon O. B. Kelley, recent candidate for mayor of this city.

The rock was produced by the state as evidence that it had been used on Kelley's head during the assault which he claimed resulted in his nose being broken.

The prosecutting witness, Kelley, testified that he was en route to his home on Lee street the night the assault occurred, and that he was suddenly struck and knocked unconscious. The rock was found the next day and presented to him by a neighbor, he said.

The defendant claimed that she had seen a man strike Kelley, and her statement was substantiated by a city policeman, who said that he was walking behind Kelley when the assault occurred, and that he also had seen a man strike Kelley down.

The officer said that he had found the rock, and had laid it in a pool of blood on the ground.

FARM CREDITS HELPING TEXAS

Special to the Record News.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The cotton and livestock raising sections will not have recovered sufficiently by next July, nor in a shorter time than July of next year, for it to be safe to dispense with the sort of credit which the War Finance corporation is able to facilitate, Representative Sumners of Dallas, told the house banking and currency committee today during consideration of a measure to extend the powers of the War Finance corporation for another year from next July, when it would automatically expire.

The committee later reported the bill favorably and authorized the chairman to ask for a special rule for its privileged consideration.

"We should not, in my judgment, stop the activities of the War Finance corporation until we shall have provided and established in satisfactory working order another agency for extending long time agricultural and livestock credits," said Sumners.

Sumners expressed his entire confidence that the committee will act favorably upon the proposition to extend the corporation's activities another year and that congress will pass the necessary legislation.

Jury Imposes Fine on Drake

Fine of $250 and six months imprisonment in the county prison was the punishment imposed upon W. T. Drake by a jury in the county court-at-law Thursday afternoon, as the result of charges of aggravated assault upon a young married woman brought against the defendant.

The prosecuting witness, the young woman, testified under oath that Drake had impersonated himself to her as an officer, and that he had intimidated and assaulted her.

The defendant questioned the character of the prosecutrix, and denied that he had presented himself as an officer and had threatened to "throw her in."

Both the prosecuting witness and the defendant testified that Drake had worn a police badge which bore the number "39." Drake denying, however, that he had worn the badge at the time that the alleged assault is said to have occurred.

Now Italy and Turkey have signed a pact and Great Britain was not aware that an agreement was about to be concluded until after it had been signed by the diplomats of the two nations. He hasn't been kicked and the followers of Islam are all powerful as they were all powerful before the coming of the world war.

POLITICAL LEGPULLERS WHO train under the democratic banner in Missouri have a bad taste in their mouths. John C. Higdon of St. Louis was defeated by Breckenridge Long for a senatorial nomination two years ago. Long was in turn defeated by a republican. Higdon "took his pen in hand" and notified former President Woodrow Wilson "that when Long defeated him two years ago he was a poor man but now had lots of money to conduct a campaign." He further said that if he entered the race for senator as a democrat he would divide the support of Senator James A. Reed by those Missourians who are in favor of light wines and beer. The former president made answer. He advised the man who had lots of money "not to complicate the contest in Missouri, by becoming a candidate for the nomination for the senate." Also the man who has lots of money will keep it in his strong box. He will not give it to the ward heelers. Senator Reed voted against the ratification of the league of nations and he made a sorry blunder when he did it but he never cast a crooked vote in his life. He fought Newberry and Newberryism to a finish. He is one of the ablest champions of civil and religious liberty and the rights of the masses in the senate of the United States. Now Reed and Long will go to the mat for the toga and Missouri politicians say that Reed will win the nomination. Missourians are a clannish people. They are jealous of their rights. They never brook outside interference. Woodrow Wilson has appealed to the democrats of this state to defeat Reed. Reed has appealed to them to give him another term in the senate of the United States. It seems to be war to the knife and the knife to the hilt.

RODEO—

lupus, but the whistle failed to save him, and he followed the way of all others whose confidence has justified a fling at the greatest of all bucking steers.

Neither can it be said that Bovolupus was the only unridden animal yesterday, for both broncs and steers alike unloaded the riders in a steady stream of thumps and slides.

Following the opening parade, all participants were lined up in front of the grand stand and "shot." Mapes the movie man, photographed them for the Fox Film company, for release in the Fox Weekly News films. Doubleday, the other photographer, who has snapped action views in a thousand events without an accident, became over anxious to get Roy Mays up on "Tragedy."

Tragedy it almost was, for he ran completely over the photographer, wrecking his "box" and leaving the ambitious man to limp to safety behind the fence.

The only other accident of the afternoon was when Delbert Bledsoe missed his steer in the bulldogging event. He fell between the steer and his mount. Failing to get up, pals carried him to the side line, where his wrenched knee was given medical attention before he was loaded into the ambulance. The knee was bandaged from injuries received Wednesday afternoon when he was thrown against the grandstand by a steer.

Boys Applauded

Fancy roping was really and truly demonstrated in the opening number. Chet Byers, Tommy Kirnan and Bob Calen did things with ropes which are impossible to describe. Byers jumped twice through a spinning loop and caught a horse racing through behind his back. Tommy Kirnan stood on his head and flipped a rope securely over the head of another charger. Bob Calen's feature stunt was that of casting a loop true for a catch as he somersaulted on the ground, the throw being made as he turned. Fred and Frank Glancy, youths mature in the art of fancy rope handling, drew rounds of applause with their acts.

Two of the girls stayed up on a couple of outlaws. Florence Hughes brought Chalk Bluff out of the chute and down across in front of the grandstand amongst the cheers of the crowd. It was a beautiful ride, and did not seem to disturb her in the least. But Bea Kirnan had all she could handle on Shamrock. She raked him both ways, as he reared and charged, but his efforts were in vain. Bea furnished one of the star rides of the day.

Red Sublett forsook Mike, his mule, for a few minutes and showed he could also really ride, for Ku Klux, the big bay which he rode out of the pen, gave him something to think about, but he rode.

Mike got back into the show, however, and acted his part in all seriousness when entered in the trick and fancy riding contest.

Broncs are defined as untamed horses, and just that they were yesterday from Highpower on through to Nutt. Red McDonald hardly got out of the chute on Highpower when he was sent spinning over the head of the outlaw. Action all the way, and sometimes too much action for the riders, filled the entire event. When John Henry brought Pinto Pete back in front of the stands for a second ride after he had failed to get up the first time, he showed one of the greatest pieces of riding seen during the two days.

Johnson Wins

Then the calves were turned out and the first seven out of the slip were tied in front of the stand in time far faster than on the previous day. Ben Johnson was first in the event with 20 2-5 seconds. The other entrants who were recorded were: Barton Carter 29, E. L. Harain 31, Lee Robinson 25 1-5, Ray Bell 36, Ike Rude 22 3-4, Floyd Gale 34, Mike Hastings 25 4-5, Murray Parkinson 24, Chester Byers 31 4-5, Guy Schults 30 4-5, George Weir 25, Ben Johnson 20 2-5, Fred Beeson 21 3-5, Alex Kelman 47 3-4, Roy Quick 29 2-5.

feet or more in width, razing a number of cottages and smashing trees. One woman was blown from her cottage to the cottage of a neighbor and was buried beneath a pile of debris. Though she was lifted more than a hundred feet, she was reported not to be seriously injured.

Cuts Down Trees.

Cutting across the river where it cut down the tops of trees, engulfed in the high water, it apparently dropped closer to the ground and increased in velocity. In south Austin across the Colorado river and in Travis heights, a south Austin suburb, the storm caused considerable property damage, demolishing several houses.

More than fifteen injured were reported at the city hospital at a late hour; at the Seton Infirmary houses several more, and the Physicians and Surgeons hospital, accommodated nearly a score more. Most of the injured came from Penn field where the storm did the most damage. Injured persons were coming to the hospitals in motor cars, brought by their neighbors and persons who rushed to the rescue when the storm had passed. Police and fire companies were rushed to the storm-swept districts and searched the debris for dead or injured.

$400,000 Loss

Thirty injured persons at local hospitals and about eight others in homes and a property damage estimated at $400,000 is the toll of the tornado in the city limits. No lives were lost here, although several of the injured are reported to be in a serious condition.

One of those in a serious condition is J. S. Mussett Jr., who was reported to have been killed by a flying plank. Another is Mrs. W. F. Woodman. A small stick was driven through her face. The majority of the injured are employes of the Woodward Manufacturing company, a woodwork establishment located at Pennfield, a mile south of the city. Others are inmates of the negro deaf, dumb and blind institute, students of St. Edwards college and residents of the south part of the city.

The damage is estimated at $250,000 to the Woodward plant, totally demolished; $75,000 to St. Edwards college, dormitory wrecked and main building damaged; $40,000 to the negro institute laundry, demolished, and dormitory roof torn off; $35,000 to residences and buildings in south Austin.

The negro deaf, dumb and blind institute is the only one of the eight state institutions to suffer from the tornado. None of the students of the University of Texas or the inmates of the other eleemosynary institutions was injured or any of the buildings damaged.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—An estimate that at the present rate, the pending tariff bill would be passed on September 29, 1946, was given to the senate today by Senator McCumber, republican, North Dakota, in charge of the measure, who said the estimate had been prepared by an expert who based his calculation on the fact that just two of the two thousand odd items of the measures have been acted on in 13 days.

"I think that after listening to the debate today," said Senator McCumber, "we will have to add 30 or 40 more years to that estimate."

When the bandits found they were being overtaken, they abandoned their car and took Wise to a farm where they bound and gagged him. As the first automobile with police appeared the gunmen opened fire.

Outfight Gang

The officers returned the fire and one of the gunmen dropped, fatally wounded. The other three fugitives then abandoned Wise and fled into a small woods half a mile away where they were surrounded by the posse and the fight proceeded until all of the gunmen had been wounded and captured. They were brought to a local hospital, whether they are under heavy guard.

The local authorities declared they have evidence that the gunmen had come here to aid John S. Stephens, alias "Oklahoma Slim," who is said to be wanted in a number of cities on bank robbery charges, to escape from the workhouse here.

STORE INCORPORATES

Incorporation of the Howell store with a capital stock of $100,000 was granted with the issuance of a corporate charter by the secretary of state at Austin Wednesday, according to information received here.

To the Ladies and Gentlemen of the 13th Congressional District:

The time is rapidly growing shorter and the 13th of May, 1922, will be upon us very soon. We, who are interested in the election of Senator Williams, beg to call your attention to the high plane upon which he pitched his campaign, and upon which it has been maintained. He determined at the very outset of his campaign to run the race upon his merits, to write you of himself, to meet you in person as soon as possible and to speak to you from the political platform wherever and whenever it was possible, and he has steadfastly adhered to it. He has not indulged in personal "flings" at his opponent at any time or place or to any one. He has not concerned himself about the reputations or political standing of any one of the other candidates, he did not think that the most profitable way of campaigning, and his experience and observations of late years, have taught him that the candidate who indulges in personal or even political unjust criticism of his opponent does not attract the attention of, or win the approval of thinking men and women who are called upon to elect one to a public office. They want to hear who the speaker is and for what he stands, and how he proposes to solve or help solve.

They prefer to judge for themselves of a man's fitness for the office he aspires to, rather than to be told of his unfitness by his opponents and their advocates. They prefer to measure him or her by their standard of virtues and qualifications, rather than that of those who are interested in his defeat, and thinking men and women will entertain and listen to an unbiased, and unprejudiced one in giving the history of a man rather than a biased, selfish and exaggerated array of supposed defects in character, and fitness of record of a man, spoken or written for the purpose of prejudicing the hearers or readers against the victim of their exploit. The world loves a brave, honest, true man. A brave man will not backbite or even in the presence of the opponent indulge in unjust, unfair and unreasonable criticism. An honest man will be as careful not to take the good name of a man, as they would to take his property.

A truthful man, will, regardless of who may be elected, tell the truth about an opponent in a political campaign as quickly as he would at an old fashion class meeting.

The speakers who oppose Senator Williams and who speak for Mr. Morgan, in order to defeat Senator Williams, have not lived up to that excellent standard of even politicel ethics. They have, while speaking for Mr. Morgan, entirely forgotten to show for what things, conducing to the good of the country, Mr. Morgan stands, what political ills he proposes to right, remedy or cure. What economic procedure he will employ if he is elected. They content themselves with personal criticism of Senator Williams, and in every instance, where a charge has been made, we have shown it unjust, untrue and made only to prejudice the minds of the people.

They have even made fun of him, attempting by ridicule, to prejudice you against him. Every man who reads this will know it is so, for they have heard it themselves from the speakers.

Now we appeal to all fair-minded men and women, voters in this district to lay the straight edge of truth and justice up against all the candidates. See them for yourself, hear them for yourself, and read them for yourself. It won't take you a minute after hearing a man to ascertain whether he is prejudiced or not, and if he is, we ask you, does he challenge your admiration and respect and cause you to listen to him as you would to a conservative, unbiased man who tells of virtue instead of vice, of perfection instead of defect.

With confidence in the calm, cool, unbiased judgment of the people, we again present to you and ask that you support Senator Guinn Williams for congress.

Guinn Williams, Wise County Campaign Committee.

VERNONITES TO ATTEND CIRCUS

350 Coming From Sister City

Sergeant Chambers will endeavor to establish another record for parachute jumping Saturday afternoon at the American Legion meet.

Assurance that this feature event will be staged was received yesterday. Lieut. Brookley will bring down a ship built especially for altitude climbs. The ship as a 400 horsepower De Haviland sent to Post Field for the attempt.

Reports received from Vernon yesterday stated that the Legion post from there would bring 350 people to attend the Sunday show. Indications are that other towns will be represented in proportion.

Cyle Horchem has agreed to circle the field with his ship in an exhibition of up-side-down flying. This is a feat never before attempted here.

The army planes will number more than a score when the "line" is checked in Saturday after the aerial parade, and possibly thirty ships privately owned will also be on hand.

BETTS SUPPORTS SCHOOL PROJECT

Expression of hope that the sensible citizenship of Wichita Falls will put the junior college proposal across with a liberal vote, assuring the youth of the city such education that they will not be called upon in life to "make bricks without straw," is expressed in a communication to the Record News in favor of the proposition by Rev. W. A. Betts, pastor of the North Side Methodist church.

The general advantages of such an institution, as set forth by Mr. Betts, includes the advantage to young people not mature enough after finishing high school age to be sent away from home, and who can prepare for technical schools or higher colleges at home, and the advantage to the youths who would be deprived of a higher than high school education through the expense of going away from home.

JOHN HENRY KIRBY.

COLONEL John Henry Kirby of Houston is the president and founder of the Southern Tariff Association. Colonel Kirby is a native Texan. He was born on a farm. He fled from the farm at his earliest opportunity. He says his association is a non-partisan organization created during the year 1920 for the purpose of affording a non-partisan tribunal where problems affecting the South could be discussed on their economic basis entirely free from partisan interest or character.

Colonel Kirby says there are 57 industries represented in this association, 250 chambers of commerce and boards of trade and probably 200 individual activities not associated with organized industry. He is a yellow pine lumber manufacturer and largely interested in oil production and incidentally he has remarked there is no competition from any foreign country that would deny him a market for an additional car of product whether lumber be retained on the free list or protected by a tariff tax. Colonel Kirby insists that Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, Andrew Jackson and James Monroe were protectionists. He insists that John C. Calhoun was a protectionist until his philosophy taught him that as the institution of slavery had come to be a prominent part of the industrial life of the South it was better for his country to have the freest trade possible consistent with the necessary revenue. Grover Cleveland is given credit by the Colonel for being the first free trader or rather champion of free raw materials ever elected to the presidency by the Democrats of America.

Colonel Kirby demands protection for the cotton farmers, the cattle raisers, the sheep and wool growers, the rice farmers and the peanut farmers. He holds that if there ever was a period in the history of the United States when protective levies against the goods, wares, merchandise and products of all the rest of the world were justified that period is now. He holds that unless protection is afforded the interests enumerated the people of the South will be reduced to the level of the pauper labor of India and the Orient and to the level of the European countries impoverished by four years of devasting war.

The colonel and his followers favor a protective tariff on vegetable oils, peanuts, livestock, meats, hides, wool, grain, poultry, dairy products and all agricultural, pastoral and mineral products. President Harding bludgeoned a tariff on mineral products and the Republicans kept oil importations on the free list. European governments and individuals owe the United States government and individual American citizens $16,000,000,000. If Americans refuse to buy from Europeans will Americans be able to sell their surplus products to Europeans? They haven't the cash to pay the $16,000,000,000. They may be able to manufacture goods. If the goods are barred from these shores where are the Europeans to get the cash to pay the $16,000,000,000 due the government of the United States and individual American citizens. And why keep Mexican crude on the free list.

HEARST IN ROYAL FIGHT.

WILLIAM Randolph Hearst will run as the Democratic candidate for governor of New York this year. And former Governor Al Smith will be the Democratic candidate for United States senator.

Hearst and his newspapers claim the credit of putting Mayor John F. Hylan over by a majority of 446,000 last fall and now the publisher hopes to be elected governor of the empire state of the East. Conditions are said to be ripe for his election. Should he win, it will be an awful jolt to the publishers of the New York Times, the World, the Herald, the Sun, the Globe and the Tribune. All these publications opposed the re-election of Hylan. All the publications will oppose the aspirations of Hearst. It will be a battle royal. Hearst will finance his own champaign. He is worth a hundred million and his newspapers and magazines will do something for Willie. When is a democrat a democrat in the great state of New York?

A New Yorker has sold several thousand shares in a wireless "perpetual-light" bulb without even demonstrating the bulb. Barnum's estimate seems to have been very, very conservative.

DR. CRANE'S EDITORIAL

BARE-HANDED SELLING.

THE salesman is the advance guard of modern America.

He is to us what the Knight was to the Middle Ages. The business of selling is not that of wheeding people into buying something they may or may not want. Selling is not huxtering.

Selling means the expansion of business. It means more than that, it means the domination of the business spirit.

It is safe to say that that group of men who are engaged in selling in the United States are the cream of the country. That is, they are the men who, on whole, have the quickest wit, the greatest courage, the greatest endurance, and the finest and most adventurous spirit.

The business of selling is the most inviting career for the superior man.

The filling of offices, clerkships, and professions and the performance of routine duties can be left for the common mass, who fear the doubtul ridges of the battle. But any youth that believes that he has in him the power to create his own fortune and to realize that independence of ascendancy that is the best Anglo-Saxon legacy will find his best career in selling.

One beauty of this business is that there is always plenty of room.

Thousands of people are hunting jobs every day. There is always a cry of unemployment. Many a poor boy goes from door to door asking only for a chance to work.

All this is entirely unnecessary. There is no use going to another door. The first place you inquire will hire you.

That is, provided you are willing to do one thing. And that is to sell.

As a rule, there is no vacancy in any office for bookkeepers, typewriters, office boys, or workmen. Lines are formed outside of the door of people asking for these places.

But there is no line of unemployed salesmen. Every man that will sell, and can sell, can get a job before night.

There is only one trouble with selling, and if you will pardon our French, that trouble is, it takes guts.

I have been in Europe for some months and studied conditions rather carefully. There are many things the matter with Europe. But one thing that is the matter with it, one fatal thing, is that there are too many job holders, office holders, and the like, and not enough salesmen.

AFTER THE FLU

As I informed you, fair reader, I was bunged up with the flu; drinking yarb teas made of cedar, boneset and willow and glue; now I am slowly improving, I can see out of my glims, wearily, painfully moving on my old string-halted limbs; coughing around in the kitchen, coughing in various tongues, busting my bames and my breeshin', splitting my windpipe and lungs. Leaning against the piano, barking all over the place, coughing a screechy soprano, coughing a thunderous bass. Coughing in violent manner, straining my tendons and thews, coughing "The Star Spangled Banner," coughing "The Honeybug Blues." Coughing when darkness is creeping over the lea and the wold; people disturbed in their sleeping pelt me with dornicks and scold. Coughing when daylight is breaking, when the night shadows uproll; people, indignantly waking, pelt me with stovewood and coal. Coughing away till I banish peace from my precinct and ward, coughing in Low Dutch and Spanish, coughing the famous "Lost Chord." Yet I am slowly improving, so all the doctors agree, wearily, painfully moving, drinking my sassafras tea.

THE CONVENTIONAL

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE.

There are numerous people—in these years of jazzistic unrest their number has been steadily increasing—who take a singular delight in deriding and defying social conventions. The unconventional seems to exercise an irresistible fascination for them. At any rate they are perpetually behaving in unconventional ways.

And there are not lacking literary and philosophical apologists for their behavior. Conventionality has been made a theme of scorn, of scathing criticism. Thus we find one writer, much applauded in certain circles, denouncing conventionality as the arch-foe of progress, and prediction that the world will some day be rid of it. When that day arrives we shall have a gloriously unconventional society, wherein:

"With willingness to change a recognized virtue—a criterion, in fact, of morality—differences in others will no longer be recognized as troublesome or fearful. * * * Variation will be welcome. There will even be a cult of variability. And to this end complete freedom of personal contacts will be sought. * * *

"The impulses of sex will not be restricted in their expression to conjugality, nor will conjugality itself be considered as necessarily a habit of a lifetime. Marriage will be open to all, but it will be approved of merely for those who find themselves in a period of sexual indolence, engaged, for exampie, in child-bearing, or in some pressing economic routine."

But, clearly, a society thus constituted would no longer be a society, it would be an anarchy, a welter of selfish gratification-seeking, with pleasure-gaining at any cost the highest good.

To describe, as this writer has described, the effects of the passing of conventionality is unconsciously to make plain why conventionality is and why it will not pass. Social conventions may at times hinder progress. No doubt they do. But they conserve social health as it could not otherwise be conserved.

And in the main they do themselves definitely make for progress, insisting as they do on testing the new accepting it. Change in itself is not necessarily progress, it might be retrogression. More than this, as John Dewey has happily phrased it, to view all conventions as slaveries is to deny the only means by which true freedom in action can be secured.

"A general liberation of impulses may set things going when they have been stagnant. But if the released forces are on their way to anything they do not know the way or where they are going. * * * Convention and custom are necessary to carrying forward impulses to any happy conclusion.

"A romantic return to nature and a freedom sought within the individual without regard to the existing environment finds its terminus in chaos."

Mankind in general appreciates this if the devotees of the unconventional do not. And these devotees are foolishness personified if they expect ever to be permitted to establish the unconventional society of their yearnings—or to find happiness in it if it were established.

Stubborn Sue

Fern Ainsworth slammed the front gate and hurried up the walk. "Oh, Sue, Sue," she called as she caught sight of her friend, busy in the garden at the side of the house, "have you heard the news?"

"What is it, the repeal of prohibition or what?" grinned Sue.

"Oh, you needn't take it so calmly," pointed out Fern impatiently. "Did you know that Peter Danwoi is coming home?"

"I never met Peter," commented Sue, "so you'd hardly expect me to get a letter from him, would you."

"Oh, don't be so provoking and stubborn. You know what I mean. But I don't suppose you really do care as much as—"

"As the pretty girls in town," finished Sue equably. "Perhaps I don't. But what do you expect me to do? Go and meet him with a brass band?"

"No, but Corinne Dandwoi has asked the bunch to come up and meet her brother this afternoon. We're going to have a few games of tennis and a cup of tea. All the girls and boys will be there. You'll come, won't you?"

"Oh, of course. But you needn't expect me to dress up for Peter. You know I'm the homely girl of the crowd and I'll have to live up to my reputation," she teased.

"You're a stubborn old goose, Sue. That's what you are. You're nice looking, even if you aren't like the rest of the crowd."

Left to herself Sue sat back on her heels and surveyed her reflection in the basement window beside her flower bed. No, she was not like the rest of the girls. Where they were all luscious curves and tantalising fluffy curls, she was slender as a boy with hair that lay in blue black bands on each side a wide white forehead. In a big town Sue would have been dubbed an interesting personality. In lazy little Waynetown she was called "odd."

"Haven't I tried to look like the rest?" mourned Sue. "Didn't I curl my hair and wear ruffled organdie all last summer, and didn't I look like a silly ostrich trying to jazz? Well, they think I'm queer and stubborn. They have told me it so often that just for once this afternoon I'll be myself."

Her mind made up, Sue put away her gardening tools and hurried into the house. She really knew more about Peter Dandwoi than she had permitted Fern to suspect. Corrine had told her all about the older brother, who had worked in Alaska as mining engineer for five years and only recently returned to the States. And Corinne had pridefully exhibited his picture. Sue had to confess that she liked him—well, more than was exactly pleasant. "But I'll not bother to impress him," declared Sue. "I've tried to be nice to every young man that ever came to Waynetown, only to have him look at me once, begin to fidget and then drift off to Fern or one of the others. Well, this afternoon I'll dress to suit myself. I'll be just as odd and different and homely as I please. I'm sick of trying to copy the looks and clothes of every pretty girl in this town."

Sue shut herself up in her room and went to work. When he mother sent the maid to tell her lunch was ready Sue ordered a glass of milk and a cracker. She declared she wasn't hungry. At 3 o'clock Sue slipped into her dress. The windows of her room stood drapeless. Once on a trip to New York Sue had seen some beautiful blue silk drapes, a blue the color of blue flags, with a vivid green pattern. She plunged wildly on the purchase and ever since the drapes had graced her windows, things of beauty and joy forever, but a constant temptation. She never looked at them that she didn't think what an unusual and stunning dress they would make. And now she had yielded.

Leaving word with the maid that she was going to Corinne's and careful not to meet her mother, Sue hurried off. Most of the crowd had reached Corinne's ahead of her. She rather hoped she could get in without attracting too much notice.

"My heavens," gasped Fern to Corinne. "Sue has cut up her window curtains to make a dress! Of all things!"

Corinne stared dazedly and turned to her brother. She spoke to him, but he didn't hear. He was staring at the slender, blue-draped, black-haired princess who came swaying toward them as lightly as the blue flags whose colors she had borrowed for her dress. She looked cool and unapproachable. How could he know that her heart was thundering until she felt all must hear, and that her knees shook in a most maddening fashion.

"Oh, he is a darling!" Sue decided in a panic. "He's a hundred times nicer than his picture. Oh, I wish I had tried to dress more like the other girls."

But she luckily had no more than time for self-castigation. She had reached Corinne and somehow found her way through the necessary formalities of introduction. She managed to murmur a word or two to him, and then he turned to one of the other girls. She was glad when the started to play tennis, and she could sneak off by herself, down to Corinne's favorite nook, a summer house in the far end of the garden.

"He's just like all the other men," she told herself, sinking, a disconsolate heap, on the bench. "He takes one look and goes away. What's the matter with me, anyhow? Am I as ugly as all that? The others didn't make so much difference. I didn't care about them, either. But Peter!" She scurried guiltily away from that use of his name. She wished she hadn't come. She wondered if she could sneak out without them seeing her. She could explain to Corinne tomorrow that she had a headache. That was not a lie, either. Her head did ache furiously; so did her heart.

She picked up her hat from the bench and started for the door. A scrunch of footsteps on the gravel walk sent her scurrying to a corner. She held her breath.

The footsteps came nearer and a tall young man stood in the doorway. "I've been looking all over for you," he said, simply. Sue had nothing to say. "I wouldn't have found you now if it hadn't been for Corinne," he went on. "She said you liked this nook."

Sue nodded. "Why can't I say something brilliant?" she thought, but her mind was not working.

"Do you mind if I smoke?" he asked.

"Of course not." she told him. And then, perhaps because she had never sat companionably beside a man enjoying a smoke, or because she felt he really was the nicest man she had ever seen, Sue suddenly forgot her shyness. She felt as though she had known him forever. She tossed her hat on the table and sat down.

"This is a nice place," Peter commented. Then, giving up all pretense at following the conventions, he turned to her. "What kind of a dress is that you have on? I think it is the loveliest thing I ever saw," he remarked.

"Do you?" smiled Sue, demurely. "Well, I made it out of my window drapes."

She smiled that elfin smile that none of the girls had ever seen. Peter laughed delightedly, his eyes on an odd dimple that kept coming and going in one corner of her mouth. He thought it the oddest dimple he had ever seen.

Suddenly Peter's lips straightened. Sue shivered slightly. She felt as if the world had suddenly hushed into silence leaving only these two living throbbing human beings. Peter faced her. "Sue," he stammered the old perenially new question, "do you believe in love at first sight."

"I don't know anything about love," cried Sue, her cheeks the color of June roses.

"I—I know this is—Sue, will you allow me to teach you?"

"This is mad—"began Sue. And then, although she was never quite sure how it happened, she found herself in Peter's arms and Peter was kissing the smoothly banded black hair, the wide forehead and the lips that trembled under his.

After a while they remembered that they were supposed to be attending a party, not a two-some.

"Let's tell them," urged Peter. "Let's."

"Oh, but Peter," gasped Sue, "they will think we are crazy."

"I can't help it," laughed Peter. "I've got to tell somebody. Don't be stubborn, Sue, sweet."

At that Sue's last defense was down. Radiant, treading on air, they faced the teasing group around the tea table. "We're engaged," announced Peter brazenly.

The chattering hushed.

"My holy aunt! That's what I call quick work," remarked one of the boys.

In the laugh that followed the girls at her through the newly opened eyes at her through the newly opened eyes of Waynetonn, passed the verdict.

"My goodness gracious, Sue," she exclaimed, you look perfectly beautiful today."

The coveted praise did not even pierce Sue's consciousness. The only thing she cared a single bit about was the way Peter looked at her.

"What do I care about anything else?" she thought happily. "Peter is a one woman man, and—I've got Peter."

Little Stories for Bedtime

THE BEST SECRET OF ALL.

Did you ever, ever, ever feel
So happy that you fain would steal
Away off by yourself alone
Because such joy was all your own?

It is that way sometimes. Happiness can be so great that it almost hurts and makes one feel like getting away where one can do foolish things, like rolling in the grass and shouting and singing, without anybody to see and say that it is foolish and undignified. It was that way with Danny Meadow Mouse. He felt that he just had to get away by himself, where he could be just as foolish as ever he pleased.

"If I don't I shall certainly blow up and burst," said he to himself. "I never was so happy before in all my life, and I don't believe anybody else was ever so happy either. I've simply got to get away by myself, because if anybody should see me they would think me crazy or else they would guess my secret, and that would be worse still."

So just as soon as he could, without letting Nanny Meadow Mouse know where he was going, for he knew that she would laugh at him if he told her, he stole away from the pile of old cornstalks where their new home was and off to a secret little place he never had shown any one, not even Nanny. He made sure that no one was about to see him, not even the Merry Little Breezes of Old Mother West Wind, and then he acted as if he certainly had gone crazy. Yes, sir, Danny Meadow Mouse acted for all the world as if he had quite lost his senses. He jumped. He squealed. He tried to sing. He chased that funny little stubble tail of his round and round until he was so dizzy that he could hardly stand. He turned somersaults and rolled over and over. He even tried to stand on his head, which is a perfectly absurd thing for a Meadow Mouse to try to do. By and by he had to stop to get his breath, and when at last he did get his breath, why, he started in to do it all over again.

When he was quite tired out he lay down to rest, and then as he thought of his great happiness he grew very sober. "I must be very careful," thought he. "I must be very careful, indeed. I must not let any one guess this new secret, not a single, single soul, because—why, because it's the best secret that ever was, the most wonderful secret that ever was—and I wouldn't have a minute's peace if I thought that anybody had guessed it. No, sir, I wouldn't. I wouldn't be able to eat or sleep if I thought that anybody had guessed my secret. So I am going to be twice as smart as ever I have been and twice as careful."

With that, Danny carefully brushed himself off, for he had got very dirty rolling on the ground, washed his face and hands, and then started back for his home in the pile of cornstalks. At first he walked in a very dignified manner, but as he drew near his home he began to hurry, and presently he was running as fast as ever he could.

Have you guessed why he was running and what his secret was? Well, in that splendid little house which he and Nanny had built were four teeny, weeny babies. Yes, sir, four teeny weeny babies were waiting for him there with their mother, who, of course, was Nanny Meadow Mouse. Do you wonder that Danny was happy and that he thought this the very best secret of all the many secrets he had had?

This Dress With Cape to Match Continues a Popular Style.

Dresses with matching capes continue to be very popular. Certainly the vogue is justified for warm weather, as a lightweight wrap is a very convenient thing to have all summer long, and when it matches the frock such a wrap is attractive, even when swung over the arm.

The sketch offers a suggestion that may be developed in various fabrics, a moderately heavy silk crepe and either georgette or other light weight silk crepe combined being an excellent choice. The outfit sketched was in navy and canna. The skirt is of the wrapped type, faced with the lighter colored fabric and the two are blended in the cape. The wide collar of the cape is braided in the darker shade. The same scheme is employed on the waist of the frock, and on the little tabs or abbreviated panels of the lighter fabric that are let in on the upper skirt in front.

Light and heavy weight linen in contrasting color make a very smart dress and cape or dress and coat frock for summer, and the combination of a light weight wool fabric and a silk are always excellent.

A straight line one-piece frock of one fabric may be made to simulate a two-fabric combination by the method of trimming. A very charming dress recently seen had the waist and sleeves elaborately embroidered in contrasting color and the cape that accompanied the frock was lined in silk matching the color of the embroidery.

The vogue for capes that match the frocks they accompany, and for matching or contrasting silk or wool scarfs with sports suits, has rather hurt the fur neck piece vogue. It seems probable that compared with other seasons the number of fur neck pieces worn during the coming summer will be rather small.

A Wife or a Profession?

BY CAROLYN BEECHER

(Copyright, 1922, by Carolyn Beecher)

CHAPTER LXVIII.

All these months Annette had clung pitifully to Howard. But when they were back in town a change came over her. She withdrew into herself, seemed to be almost fighting something within her. One day she proposed:

"Would you like to ask Dr. Campbell and his wife to dinner, Howard?"

"Why—yes—if you feel able, and would enjoy them. The doctor asked me to drop in at the hospital soon, but I have hated to leave you."

"You do love me, don't you? You don't hate me because you have been my husband in place of a surgeon?"

"Of course I love you, and just as of course I don't hate you." He kissed her fondly, but a wave of crimson swept his face as it invariably did when she touched that still raw spot.

"But you would have loved to have been a great surgeon?" She made him almost squirm with the hurt of her fingers on that sore.

"Yes, dear, but that is over and we won't talk about it."

Annette said no more, but had Howard looked closely he would have seen a light in her eyes, a spirit of something very like mischief also.

Dr. and Mrs. Campbell came to dinner. Had Howard stopped to think he might have wondered how it was that they had accepted upon so short an invitation.

"Now tell him, doctor," Annette said as they sipped their coffee in the library.

"Your wife asked me to have you reappointed on the staff of the hospital, Blake, and I have done so. I'll be mighty glad of the relief you will be to me."

"But doctor! Annette! I don't understand."

"I don't blame you, dear. I have been a very bad, very selfish wife. I have almost spoiled your career. Dr. Campbell has comforted me by saying I have not spoiled it, because you are still so young, still have so many years in which to come back. And don't think I want to do this, that I want to have you away from me, for I don't. But I see how wrong I have been—Claire Gordon showed me how wicked and wrong—how selfish my love was. I tried to flatter myself all the years we have been in New York that I was making you happy, because I was giving you freedom from work. Down in my heart I think I have always known something of the bitterness you have felt, but I would not acknowledge it to myself—please let me finish, Howard," as he made an appealing gesture. "I perhaps craved love more than most women. To have all your love, all your devotion, all your time became an obsession with me after father's money made it possible. I tried to make myself believe the easy life I was able to give you made you happy, too. That time in Paris opened my eyes a little. I knew it wasn't like you to do things you did then, not like the clean young fellow I married. From that time my conscience gave me little rest—although you did not know it. Then God took a hand. Some might call it fate, but I believe He wanted me to see true before it was too late. So He let Claire finish what had ardeady been begun. It will be hard—"

"My dear child!" Dr. Campbell interrupted, while Mrs. Campbell frankly wiped her eyes.

"Please let me go on doctor." To Howard she said: "Dr. Campbell knows all I am telling you, and he has helped to carry out my plans. It will be hard for me, perhaps no one but myself can understand how hard. I have tied you to me so closely, Howard, that I seem to scarcely live when you are absent, or only to live for your return. This has gone on for years. I am afraid you will have to be very patient with me." Then choosing her voice, which had trembled on the last words, she said bravely: "And that's that! Now we'll talk of other things."

"You really mean that you are willing I shall take you my work again, Annette?" Howard asked, his face as white, so unbelieving that Annette crept to his side and put her arms about his neck. So she pressed the pale face as filled with emotion to her own.

"Ask Dr. Campbell. Don't you think I have talked enough? I have monopolized the conversation ever since dinner."

Howard Blake turned questioning eyes on the doctor.

"It is weeks now since, Annette—we call her that now, my wife and I—came to me and asked me to have you appointed, rather reappointed, upon the staff of the hospital. But I advised her to wait, to think it over more carefully, to talk with Mrs. Campbell and to be sure of her own mind before she raised hope in yours. I know only too well how bitterly you have paid for your weakness of character, Blake. You see, I do not spare you. I know you have anguished because of it, suffered perhaps at times as few men suffer, yet because of a mistaken idea of what you owned Annette you have gone on until you are in your present demoralized condition.

"I am stale, I shall be of little use," Howard's voice broke upon the words.

"That will soon change. I'll see that you have enough to do so you will not long be stale. Now we'll go and let Annette tell you the rest."

Secret of a Good Disposition

A woman who carefully safeguards her health benefits her disposition. She will be happy and attractive to all. The world unfortunately is filled with sweet women who are unhappy because they are held back from usefulness by troubles so common among them. Fretfulness and nervousness rapidly destroy good dispositions. Sickly, all-worn-out women cannot make happy homes.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a safeguard of women's health. This is clearly proven by the many letters we are continually publishing in this paper, from women who have been restored to health and happiness by its use after years of suffering. Why don't you try it? —Adv.

if nature could speak she would say:—

I have provided the only real tonic for Spring to cleanse your system of the stagnant waste of winter, purify your blood and bring to you that glorious feeling of perfect health:

—and it is S. S. S.

SPRINGTIME is the season when Nature intends all living creatures to be charged with new life and energy. But you cannot enjoy the glorious feeling of renewed strength and vigor if your system remains clogged up with the impurities which have accumulated during the winter.

At this time your blood is overloaded with stagnant waste; you are drowsy; you hate work and you are denied that irresistible energy and enthusiasm that made every moment of your childhood days bubble over with happiness and the joy of living.

Nature's Warning

This tired feeling is often accompanied by disagreeable symptoms such as boils, pimples, rashes, eczema or rheumatism. You call it Spring Fever; but that is only Nature's way of saying—Cleanse Your System. And, just as Nature has provided everything else for our comfort and well-being, so She has given us the only really effective remedy for this draggy, let-down feeling.

Ninety-six years ago these wonderful vegetable herbs, roots and barks, of which S. S. S. is composed, were found to possess remarkable power to purify the blood, eliminate skin eruptions, strengthen and aid in supplying every cell and tissue with the rich, red nourishment that is so necessary to vigorous life, health and happiness. Then it was that Nature's own great remedy for Spring fever was given to us in the form of S. S. S.

And ever since, S. S. S. has gone on converting hundreds of thousands of tired, worn-out, run-down people into strong, healthy, red-blooded men and women with the power and capacity to accomplish things and to enjoy the beauties of Nature and the happiness of life to the very fullest.

Do not be fooled into taking compounds, such as metallic iron, etc. These minerals crash into the system, attack the delicate tissues and oftentimes leave you in worse shape than before.

Nature Intended A Vegetable Remedy

Always insist upon S. S. S., for this wonderful vegetable tonic is the remedy Nature has intended for you. The soothing, healing powers of the vegetable ingredients first cleanse and then tone up the entire system without one particle of distressing after effect.

S. S. S. overcomes your tired, drowsy feeling in a natural, easy way and without the slightest harm to the most delicate membrane of your body.

S. S. S. brings you back to where you feel like a new person; you walk with a spring in your step, a sparkle in your eye and with perfect health radiating from every pore of your skin.

Don't be cheated out of your natural Springtime heritage. That wonderful feeling of new-born energy, life and strength is yours! Simply go to your druggist and get a bottle of S. S. S., now, today.

SPUDS STAGE BIG RALLY IN NINTH

Team Fights Hard Behind Ramsey's Pitching

Special to The Record News.

FORT WORTH, May 4.—The Spudders lost a ball game by six inches this afternoon. Fort Worth was leading by a margin of two runs when the ninth opened. Two hitters were out, two runners on the paths and Bob Bescher, hitting for Kitchens, Bescher drove the ball out of the lot over the right field fence, foul by six inches and failed in his final attempt to drive in the two anxious runners.

Coombs robbed the Spudders of their final chance to count when he went far back toward the fence and pulled an unreasonable catch of the final drive off Bescher's bat which would have sent two runs across the pan.

Hoffman's smash over the right wall with Kraft on ahead of him sent the Panthers two runs ahead in the eighth after Wichita had fought an uphill climb to knot the count. Two runners tallied in the first round on two clean hits, a scratch, a walk and an error by Kitchens.

"Jumbo" Ramsey went the entire route for the Spudders and improved with the game. After spotting the Panthers to two runs in the first, he settled down and was never in serious danger, although two more runs were counted in the eighth. Two men were out and Kraft was on first from fielder's choice when Calvo was forced at second. Then up stepped Dutch Hoffman and smashed the agate over the hill for a round trip plus one run more when Kraft chalked up ahead of him.

Morgan, the recruit who has shown so much stuff this year seemed to have fairly easy sailing and kept the six hits allowed the Spudders, scattered to a certain extent, but a couple of pinch knocks with runners aboard almost cost the rookie a ball game, and he was jerked after two were away in the ninth to permit Paul Wachtel, the slobber artist to almost lose the contest, but through the stellar performance of Cecil Coombs, retire the side while his club still maintained the lead.

Ray O'Brien was the star of the day, driving in two of the three Wichita runs with a double in both the second and ninth stanzas. In the sixth he raced almost to the fence spearing a drive by Hoffman and he was granted much applause by the fans who have pulled for him so many times while he was a member of the famous Panther outfield in the days gone by.

The first inning saw the Panthers accept a couple of runs when after Coombs was out, Sears beat out a hit that almost knocked Ramsey's foot from under him. Calvo singled to right, sending Ziggy to second, and a pass to Kraft filled the bags. Hoffman hit one to Ramsay, but Kitchens dropped the throw to the plate and Sears counted. Pehlam hit to White who saw there was no chance to stop Calvo at home and threw to first. Tavener flied out to O'Brien for the final out.

A grounder kicked by Hoffman gave Tex McDonald a way, and he scored from first when O'Brien drove his first double against the right field fence.

There was no more scoring until the seventh. Homer Summa led off with a triple to deep right center and scored when Jake Miller hammered one for a couple of sacks to into the same field.

The winning runs were pushed across in the eighth on Hoffman's circuit drive as Kraft occupied first.

The great ninth inning rally staged by the Spudders sent Panther fan's hearts into their throats. Summa crashed one at Tavener who threw wild to first but when the right fielder attempted to take second, a neat recovery by Kraft turned him back, and Moore covered first and Summa was out.. McDonald flied out to center.

None were on and two were out. The stands were rapidly emptying when Jake Miller singled to left. Morgan walked Beck and then O'Brien came through with his second pinch double which sent Miller across, but Beck was held at third. This was enough for Morgan and Wachtel shouldered the responsibility of a possible loss.

Bescher went in to hit for Kitchens and after fouling two, smote the ball afar over the wall, but it disappeared into foul territory and everybody went back. Another ball made the count three and two. Jumping squarely on one down the center, Bescher sent a screaming drive toward the center field fence which looked good for at least two bags, but Coombs leaped high in the air and retired the side with one of the greatest catches ever seen in Panther park.

DEMPSEY WILLING TO MEET WILLARD

By Associated Press.

PARIS, May 4.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, referring to announcements in the United States that arrangements for a bout between him and Jess Willard were progressing favorably, said today he would be glad to meet Willard again. He also was ready to meet the winner of the Carpentier-Lewis bout in London, he declared.

"Sure, I'll be glad to meet Willard again," said Dempsey to the correspondent. "He was once champion and ought to be given a chance to regain the title. Whenever the time, place and conditions are decided I'll be ready to sign up.

"Willard is a good, clean, game fighter and I would enjoy another match with him. I am in fine shape and haven't a doubt that I can easily repeat my victory over Jess.

COURT HOLDS LEASE INVALID

President of Oil Co., On Stand

Judge Orus O. Ross, acting in the 89th district court in the absence of Judge P. A. Martin Thursday, held that because the defendants testified they never intended to drill or otherwise use the lease which they hold on acreage owned by Mrs. M. M. Adams, that the lease which the defendant company held was invalid, and that they had abandoned the land.

The case was styled Mrs. M. M. Adams vs. Hodges Oil company, a corporation, suit for cancellation of a lease on 100 acres or ground, or damages.

During the testimony, witnesses for the company, including the president, testified that one well had been drilled by another company on the grounds, and that the Hodges company did not intend to drill any other well.

Judge Ross said yesterday afternoon that the higher courts have repeatedly held that a lease was valid where the defendants had drilled one well according to the contract and had indicated no intention of not using the lands for any further purpose.

In the particular case before him, Judge Ross said, the defendants had plainly admitted that they did not intend to drill any wells, but merely holding the property, which he held should be abandoned.

The judgment of the special judge is expected to bring much comment from the higher courts and from the law fraternity itself, as well as criticism.

ATHLETIC HEAD FOR SCHOOLS

Specialist to Be Employed

Athletics as well as physical exercises for the entire student body at the high school next year will be in charge of a competent all round physical director who will probably be engaged in the next few days by the school board, according to Lee Clark, superintendent of schools. The board now has on the recommendations of a number of men with fine athletic records and records as coaches and instructors from which it will make the selection.

In employing a specialist to head this department the school authorities are actuated by a number of reasons, Mr. Clark says. Among them is the belief in the development of the physical side of the growing boys and girls, along with their mental development, the desire that the Wichita Falls schools be represented with credit by properly instructed teams on the athletic fields, and the desire to use the stimulation of interest in athletics and physical development to induce students to remain longer in school, instead of dropping out, as so many do in the higher grades of the public schools.

A system employed with profit in so many schools which will insure that every student, whether taking part in athletics or not, shares in the physical training, will probably be adopted. Stimulation of school work has been demonstrated to go hand in hand with physical betterment of the student body where this system has been employed, the school authorities have found.

END MEN TO STAR IN SHRINE SHOW

After "Old Man Gloom" (Walter Caldwell) and "Miss Imigination" (Ruth Nolen) have finished their opening harangue which may better be termed the prologue, at the Shrine minstrels, to be staged next week at the Wichita theater, people of Wichita Falls will be given an opportunity to see how well the two principal end men conduct themselves.

Announcement was made last night that these two positions would be filled by Horrace Robbins and Claude Woods, both of whom are well known locally. These men, as well as six others, will constitute the comedy force of the dining salon scene, action taking place at sea, on board the steamship "Hokum-ia," where they act as waiters.

NO DECISIONS IN U. S. COURT

One Motion and Two Cases Heard

No decisions were rendered in federal court, convened before Special Judge George W. Jack, in the northern district of Texas, Wichita Falls division, Thursday, one motion and two cases being heard before the federal magistrate.

Max Weichman, formerly a baker of this city, presented a motion to strike out objections to his discharge as a bankrupt. No action was announced by the court.

The case of W. E. Stevens, trustee in bankruptcy, vs. City National Bank of Bowie, a suit to cancel notes formerly held by the bankrupt, was completed in the court, however, no judgment was rendered.

The case of Adolph Michma vs. the Empire Gas and Fuel company of Texas was also heard with no announcement as to judgment being made.

The suit was brought for recovery of $7,000 alleged indebtedness.

The plaintiff in the latter case admitted that he had pleaded guilty in the state courts to a charge of theft in connection with the stealing of 2,400 barrels of oil from the defendant company, which he had sold to the Uniform Gasoline and Petroleum company.

Under oath, he testified that he had sold the oil to the Uniform company for $7,000, which, after his plea of guilty in the state courts, he had paid to the Empire Gas and Fuel company as compensation for the stolen oil.

At that time, it was brought out, the purchaser of the oil had not paid anyone for the 2,400 barrels of fuel, but later claimed to have paid to the Empire company a total of $7,000. Michma has now brought suit to recover from the Empire the $7,000 which he claims to have paid them.

ROOM MADE FOR LARGER MEETINGS IN COMMERCE CHAMBER

Larger meetings can be cared for in the chamber of commerce rooms in the future as a result of changes in the interior arrangements being made Thursday. The meeting room, which heretofore had occupied only approximately an eighth of the space will be enlarged to take in approximately half of the whole area, and will accommodate meetings drawing an attendance of about 100.

The office of the general manager is moved further forward by the change, and the directors of the organization will in the future meet in the front part of the office.

CHAMBER TO TALK ON TRADE TRIPS

Discussion and approval or rejection of the plans for three projected trade trips by the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce during the coming summer will constitute one of the principal pieces of business to come before the business council, chamber of commerce, at their Friday luncheon.

The plans for the trips, the most ambitious and carefully planned ever staged by the local organization, will be presented by Bert Bean, chairman of the trades excursion committee, by J. W. Chatham, Jr., who worked out the itineries, schedules and costs, and who will have charge of the reservations, and other members of this committee. Every portion of the Wichita Falls trade territory will be covered by these three trips, planned during June, July and August.

RAIL MEN HERE

H. B. Coogan, of the freight traffic department of the Southern railway, headquartered in Dallas, and C. B. Preston, traveling freight agent of the Kansas City Southern, of Dallas, were in Wichita Falls yesterday on business missions.

BIGAMY CHARGES ARE FILED HERE

Charges of bigamy were docketed against a Mr. and Mrs. Graham of Electra Thursday afternoon by the sheriff's department.

The man and woman were brought here early Thursday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Will Allen, and lodged in the county prison.

County authorities said that more serious charges might develop in the case of the two persons.

ROTARIANS TO HELP SCHOOLS

Back-to-Studies Move Fostered

Rotarians will sponsor a back-to-school movement with the object of convincing students in local schools of the importance of their making plans to return to school in the fall and secure the education which will aid them through life, they were notified at the Thursday luncheon of the club.

Speakers will be assigned to each of the schools in the course of this movement, which will be inaugurated before the end of this school year. The movement has the object of decreasing the number of boys and girls who drop out of school each year and go to work without the equipment which will aid them in their future efforts.

Federal Judge George W. Jack of Shreveport, who is holding court here for Federal Judge James Wilson spoke to his fellow Rotarians on the value of good schools, and told how Shreveport property owners, when they could not vote a legal tax for school purposes some time since, voted a voluntary tax for a new high school. Judge Jack also spoke of the feeling in Shreveport for Texas and Texans, and of his personal pleasure in holding court at several points in this state.

R. E. Shepherd lead the signing as usual, but it proved a "house divided against itself" for part of the crowd insisted on singing song other than that favored by the other part.

C. C. Kirby, first vice president, was in the chair in place of President Pete Rogers, who was out of town.

BUYING SENDS COTTON UP

Market Goes Up at Opening

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 4.—A renewal of the recent buying movement caused a further advance in the cotton market during today's early trading with July selling upto 19.21, or into new high ground for the movement. Demand, however, was said to be a little less active or general than earlier in the week, while the new high prices met heavy realizing. As a result the market turned easier with July selling off to 18.74 late in the day and closing at 18.76. The general market closed barely steady at a net decline of 19 to 27 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 8 points to a decline of 6 points.

May sold up to 19.89, October to 19.20 and December to 19.40 or 15 to 22 points net higher before the buying slackened and the reactions which followed were held in check by the detailed weather reports showing heavy precipitation at many points in the south.

The volume of business tapered and realizing was heavier in the afternoon, while there was also considerable scattered southern selling here in late breaks which carried May off to 19.49, October to 18.86 and December to 18.95 or 22 to 35 points net lower. Last prices were within a point or two of the lowest on most positions. The forecast was for clear weather tonight and tomorrow in Texas and Oklahoma, with unsettled conditions and showers east of the river.

Exports today 16,853 making 4,522,481 so far this season. Port receipts 13,951. United States port stocks 900,506.

BOND MARKET

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Immediate absorption of the American allotment (2,000,000 pounds sterling) of the 900,000 pound sterling Brazilian coffee loan in this market today indicated that the demand for foreign underwritings by investors had lost none of its recent strength.

Brazilian and Argentina government bonds reflected this favorable condition in substantial advances, but the general international list was irregular, the same trend being shown by a majority of domestic issues. The only conspicuous exceptions were the bonds of a majority of the local traction companies. Gains of 1 to 2 points were scored by Interborough Rapid Transit, Interborough Metropolitan, New York railways, Third Avenue and Brooklyn Rapid transit issue on publication of the readjustment plan involving these properties.

Less activity than usual was evidenced in the liberty series, but that group, almost as a whole, rallied in variable degree from recent actions. Gains and losses among domestic rails were of a piece with similar movements in stocks of those descriptions.

New railway offerings of the day included the St. Louis & San Francisco $6,900,000 5½ per cent bonds, these finding a ready market at public sale. Total sales, par value, aggregated $18,749,000.

HEAVY DAY IN STOCK MARKET

Pressure Reflected in Industrials

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Trading in stocks today was very active at irregular price changes. Dealings were more comprehensive although oils and petroleums again bulked large in the operations of pools.

Incidentally the day marked the twenty-fifth session in which transactions ran over the million share line, sales agregating 1,400,000 shares.

The money market and general industrial conditions were helpful factors in the main. Call loans eased with the progress of the session, opening at 4 1-2 per cent, but dropped to 4 per cent at midday. In private offerings loans on demand were made as low as 3 1-2 per cent.

Technical conditions seemed to prompt an extension of the profit-taking movement, but it was not until the final hour that the selling assumed formidable dimensions. Reactions of 1 to 3 points then occurred on offerings of steels, motors, equipments and some of the oils.

Pressure was most clearly reflected in Republic Iron, Studebaker, Baldwin, Mexican Petroleum, Texas Company, Standard Oil of California, these closing at net losses of large fractions to 2 1-2 points. On the other hand Brooklyn Rapid Transit, which featured the day's lively trading in local transactions, finished at a net gain of 3 3-4 points and Kelly Springfield, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Houston Oil were materially higher.

Rails were in better demand than at any time since the question of lower freight rates became a debatable question, their absorption being attended by more favorable statements of earnings. In that group, however, gains were more or less impaired by the late reaction.

LOWER PRICE FOR WHEAT

Close Weakest for Many Weeks

LOWER——8

By Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 4.—Prospective large deliveries on May contracts together with favorable conditions for winter crop growth and for spring crop seeding did a good deal today to bring about lower prices for wheat. The market closed heavy at 1 1-8 to 2 1-2 net decline with May 1.42 1-2 to 142.3-4 and July 1.27 to 1.27 1-4. Corn finished unchanged to half lower, oats 1-8@1-4 off or 1-4 up and provisions at an advance of 25 to 42 cents.

The close in wheat was the weakest in some time, as well as being at the lowest figures of the day. Rallies had met with heavy selling of May as well as of July and September.

Reports that 50,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been purchased for importation to Mineapolis attracted considerable attention here. It was said prices based on May delivery permitted such imports to be effected at a profit. Other bearish factors included a decline in Liverpool quotations. Cash handlers here bought 300,000 bushels of cash wheat to arrive from Missouri river markets. Deliveries on May contracts here today totalled 151,000 bushels. Today's receipts of wheat here totaled 140 car loads.

Corn and oats tended lower with wheat. Country offerings of corn were larger, and plowing and planting was reported as making rapid progress.

Announcement of a big decrease in western stock of meats helped to lift the value of provisions, and so too did higher quotations on hogs.

PUPILS SELL CIRCUS TICKETS

Feature Stunts Being Booked Daily

With 24 high school teams selling tickets and legionnaires working practically as hard, the aviation meet which will be held here Saturday and Sunday at Call Field under the auspices of Pat Carrigan post, American Legion, promises to be a greater success than any entertainment given here this year.

Contracts for feature attractions are being signed rapidly, it was stated at legion headquarters Thursday morning; two contracts were signed Wednesday night, and it is understood that Cy's Horchem, who flies his plane upside down as well as he does when the ship is righted, will attempt stunts here Saturday and Sunday that he has never tried before.

Horchem flew his plane across the field last Saturday upside down; he has signed a contract to fly the same ship around in a circle for the crowd this week-end—a stunt, flyers declare, which is considered the most daring of aviation achievements.

It is said of Horchem that "he is the only flyer in America who flys upside down from day to day and 'peeps' his health."

Other attractions which the legion is putting on include a daring parachute jump by Miss Mystery and Armstrong. The pair will dive headfirst from the same plane, holding each other by the hands.

When Armstrong and Miss Mystery have reached a distance about 1,000 feet from the earth, the former will cut loose from another parachute and continue his jump earthward. At such a close distance to the ground this stunt is considered one of the main attractions of the performance.
