Teachers' union readies salary debate

■ Members claim more money should be available for a bigger raise than is proposed; board vote set for Tuesday.

By Daniel Arp
Staff Writer

Members of the local teachers' union held a strategy session on Friday to gear up for a possible school board decision next week on the 1999-2000 teacher pay scale.

The proposed salary placement for local public school teachers — to be voted on Tuesday during the regular meeting of the Board of Trustees — calls for the minimum $3,000 across-the-board pay increase in addition to the usual scale step as mandated by the state this year.

The group — critical of the amount of the raise — plans on asking the school district to hold off on making any decisions until more is known about next year's budget.

"Our main concern is that we're below state average at the moment, and we're putting the very minimum (toward a pay raise)," said Steve Buck, president of the Midland Federation of Teachers. "We're guaranteed only to get further behind."

One figure promises to be invoked with particular emphasis at Tuesday's board meeting: $30,500. That is the new starting salary neighboring Ector County Independent School District approved earlier this month, a $5,000 jump over last year's figure and $800 above the proposed starting salary in Midland.

"It's great to get a $3,000 pay raise. The problem is, every teacher in Texas is getting a $3,000 pay raise," Buck said.

But district officials say that next year's budget may not allow for anymore of a pay increase than what the state is providing.

"The bottom line is, the money's just not there," said Tom Holland, executive director of human resource services for MISD. "I'm pro-teacher salaries ... I put it (a larger pay increase) on the table early on."

But discussions with other administrators, Holland said, have convinced him "that that's all we can do given our budget constraints, and that's something we've got to live with."

Holland said he was confident the district could live with the new pay scale for one year — "But, it's something that's definitely going to need to be addressed in the next (2000-2001) budget," he added.

MFT members, however, are focusing on this coming year for now. At Friday's session, the seven teachers in attendance anticipated the

McCorvey recounts days as history maker-turned pro-life Christian

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff Writer

Norma McCorvey has come a long way since her days as a hippie in the 1970s.

From living in a Dallas park — under the second tree to the right, "because the third tree was taken," she said — she has worked at clinics, lived a lesbian lifestyle, suffered years-long bouts with depression, crawled inside bottles and bottles of bourbon, and fallen into drug abuse.

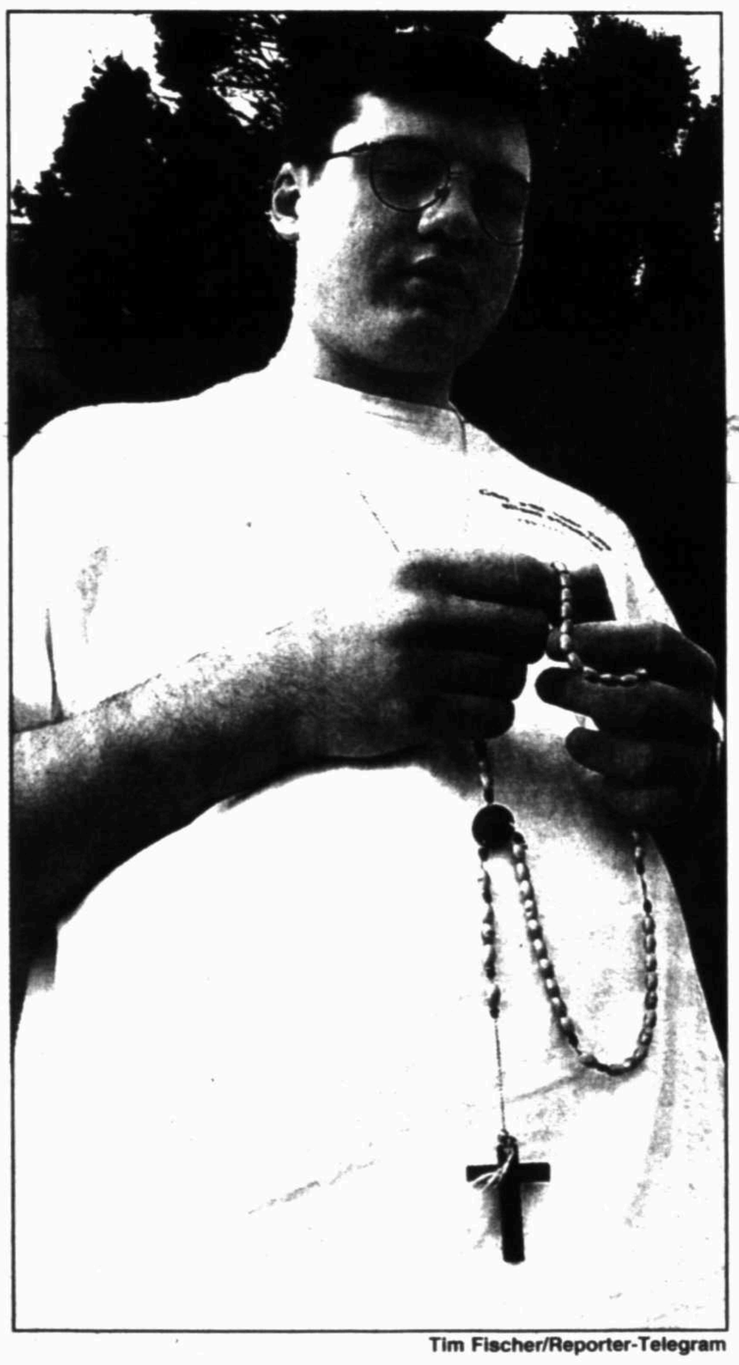

She is perhaps most well-known by her pseudonym: Jane Roe — of Roe vs. Wade fame. Ms. McCorvey, in a speech to about 500 people Friday night at Midland Center, recalled how in the course of a pizza, a couple of pitchers of beer and a night of conversation with two young attorneys named Sarah Weddington and Linda Coffey at a restaurant at the corner of Mockingbird and Greenville in Dallas, her life — and the lives of millions of other women — was changed forever.

"Linda Coffey and Sara Weddington had an agenda," Ms. McCorvey said. "They knew what their actions were going to be. They just needed a pregnant plaintiff."

As for agendas, Flip Benham had one, too. And because he did, Benham, leader of the pro-life movement Operation Rescue, Ms. McCorvey can now add to her list of accomplishments that of Christian, two-time author, international speaker and founder of her own ministry, Roe No More.

Although it is difficult to pinpoint the precise instant when Ms. McCorvey changed her views

Big Spring police investigating two shooting deaths

By T.E. Jenkins
Big Spring Correspondent

BIG SPRING — Two dead bodies and many unanswered questions.

That is what the Big Spring Police Department faced early Friday morning, as officers began the investigation into the incident that left two men dead and one injured.

Police Department Detective Lupe Leidicke said Friday afternoon the shootings are still under investigation and there no suspects in custody as of Friday evening.

"Right now it's just too early to nail down the motive," Leidicke said. "We're in the process of interviewing several witnesses, and until we can get an accurate picture of what happened, it would simply be speculation at this point."

Leidicke said two weapons were recovered from the scene in the 1000 block of Johnson.

"Officers recovered two 9mm, semi-automatic handguns from the scene," Leidicke said. "We believe they were the guns that were used ..."

Justice of the Peace Quail Dobbs was called to the scene shortly after 3 a.m. and he pronounced the two men — Francisco Javier Navarro, 22, and Antonio Miguel Armijo, 20 — dead.

When asked if the incident could be gang-related, Leidicke said it was too early in the investigation to tell.

Also found at the scene was Timothy Flores, 24, who was transported to Scenic Mountain Medical Center for treatment of what appeared to be blunt-force trauma.

"We believe Mr. Flores was hit over the head with some type of blunt object during the altercation," Leidicke said. "He was treated and released."

Leidicke said neither Flores nor Navarro had criminal records. However, Armijo was serving a three-year probated sentence for possession of a controlled substance charge that dated back to March.

Officers Dale McGimpsey and Brian Gordon were the first to respond to the report of shots fired, followed soon by

Moms' outrage postpones art show

By Richard Acosta
Staff Writer

An art show that was scheduled to begin Monday at Midland College's Allison Fine Arts Center has been postponed until June 28 because of the complaints of two mothers.

Bonnie Terrazas, a graduate of Midland High School and Texas Christian University, said the photographs for her show, "In the Third Person," were up and ready for viewing when she received word that college officials had decided to postpone the show.

The committee that selects shows for the center's McCormick Gallery had seen slides of her work and had approved the show. However, after two parents of Kids' College students complained about the show —which include self-portraits of Ms. Terrazas partially nude — the committee decided it would be best to call off the show until the end of Kids' College, classes for elementary students.

"I'm really disappointed that because of what two mad mothers said, my work could not hang," said Ms. Terrazas, who lives in Fort Worth. "They called my work 'trash' to my face and didn't care what I had to say about it. They would not listen to me and they were very rude.

"I was not going to make a big deal about it, but I have never been made to feel this way before. Normally I wouldn't care. I have had criticism before, but I have never been told my work is trash. I was so upset I just started shaking. It is ironic that I could show these pictures at a Christian school (TCU), but not a public college.

"In the Third Person" is going to be Ms. Terrazas' sixth show. She said she wanted to show her work at Midland College so her home town could see the work of one of its own.

"I'm from here so I had an idea something like this was going to happen. It is hard not to label this town when you see stuff like this happening here. I mean, only

OBITUARIES

Samuel Hawley

Sam was a loving and devoted husband for 53 years, a dedicated father, and an adoring grandfather. He lived his life by actions, although his words were always full of wisdom and sage advice. He was a true and loyal Christian. After his faith, he always put "family" ahead of every other consideration. He lived life with tremendous courage, until his very last moment on earth.

Samuel O. "Sam" Hawley was born May 30, 1923, in Direct, Texas, to Samuel Isaacs and Grayce Gertrude Thompson Hawley. He lived in several communities around Red River and graduated from Farmersville High School. Mr. Hawley entered the U.S. Army at the age of 18 at the outbreak of World War II. He served in New Guinea, the Philippines, and Australia, being discharged in 1945. He served with the inspector general's office, and his rank advanced from private to master sergeant in one year. On February 16, 1946, he married Genevieve "Gene" Frances Douglas in Fort Worth at Missouri Avenue Baptist Church. Mr. Hawley began his career with Gulf Oil Company in 1959 in Fort Worth in the records department. He was transferred to Midland in 1960 and retired in 1983 as the unit supervisor of Central Storage Archives for Midland. While in Fort Worth, he was a member of St. Mark's United Methodist Church, where he served as chairman of the board and chairman of the finance committee. After moving to Midland in 1960, they joined St. Luke's United Methodist Church, where he was active in the Keystone Class and the Primetimers. He was a volunteer with AMOS, a member of the Chevron Retired Association, and a Master Mason.

Mr. Hawley died Thursday morning, June 17, 1999, at Midland Memorial Hospital.

Funeral services have been scheduled for 11 a.m. on Saturday, June 19, 1999, at St. Luke's United Methodist Church with Reverend Richard Edwards officiating. Burial will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home. A visitation was scheduled for Friday at Ellis Funeral Home from 6-8 p.m.

Survivors include his wife; his daughters, Gail, and her husband, Dr. Steve Hankinson, of Midland and Jill and her husband, George Safi, of Houston; his sisters, Artie Bee Wivell, and husband, George, of Golden, Colorado, and Joy Nell Randall, and her husband, Dave, of Euless, Texas; and his grandchildren, Michelle Hankinson, Brandt Hankinson, Brooke Hankinson, Keith Safi, and Lindsey Safi.

Pallbearers are George Alther, Marvin Bigby, E. K. Browning, James Goode, Paul Hopson, Mike Smith, James Underwood, Forrest Underwood, and James Wilhoit. Honorary pallbearers are all members of the Keystone Class.

The family requests memorials be directed to St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3011 West Kansas, Midland, Texas 79701.

Bob Bullock, 'the last giant,' dead at 69

AUSTIN (AP) — Bob Bullock, the gruff and imposing figure who towered over Texas politics for decades, died Friday.

"He is the last giant of a past era," said Gov. George W. Bush, who visited Bullock the night before his death. "He cast a really large shadow."

In a 42-year career, Bullock went from the depths of alcoholism to the heights of the lieutenant governor's office, widely considered the state's most powerful job.

"Bob Bullock was the legendary Texan of our time. All Texas has lost a great leader," said Bush, who will deliver a eulogy at Bullock's funeral Sunday and ordered state flags flown at half staff.

"He literally gave everything he had to public service, and no person could be asked to do more," said former Gov. Ann Richards.

Bullock, 69, had suffered various health problems over the years. Most recently, he was hospitalized for congestive heart failure. He died at his Austin home about 7 a.m. Friday, said aide Tony Proffitt.

Both highly controversial and highly effective, he never lost an election or the competitive fires that burned so hot for so long.

"I don't like to lose," he once told an interviewer. "You show me a good loser, and I'll show you a loser."

The lifelong Democrat retained the power to surprise, even when he wasn't running. In 1998, he endorsed Republican Bush for re-election and for an office Bush wasn't then even seeking, saying, "I would be proud to call him my president."

Born in Hillsboro on July 10, 1929, Bullock won a Texas House seat from his hometown while still a Baylor Law School student in 1956. He was re-elected in 1958.

■ Related stories/10A

It was the opening page of a long public resume that started when no Republican held statewide office and ended when Republicans held them all.

He entered private law practice after leaving the House but returned to state government in 1967 as an assistant attorney general. He organized the office's first anti-trust and consumer protection division, winning a major recovery for Texas hospitals in a price-fixing lawsuit against national pharmaceutical firms.

Bullock served as an aide to Gov. Preston Smith from 1969 to 1971, then was secretary of state in 1971 and 1972. There, he reformed the campaign finance reporting system and oversaw the first publicly funded party primaries.

In 1974, he was elected to the first of four terms as state comptroller, the state's chief tax collector.

It was during those 16 years that Bullock's political prowess, negotiating skills, temper and relentless work habits became legend around the Capitol, where he was at the center of hard politicking and hard living.

Bullock led the transformation of a once-sleepy post into one that vigorously collected taxes and accumulated information from every corner of the government. He personally joined highly publicized raids on tax scofflaws, shutting down businesses until they paid up. In the 1980s, he worked with the committee that led to sweeping education reforms.

In 1978, two of his comptroller's office aides publicly urged him to quit for unspecified "actions that could be considered wrong legally or morally." A grand jury investigation into allegations against Bullock, including misuse of state aircraft, returned no indictments.

In 1984, Bullock suffered a major setback — abandoning a lifelong quest for governor. After earlier pledging to make fellow Democrat Mark White a one-term governor, Bullock said he was staying out of the 1986 race. His announcement showed the crusty politician's sense of humor.

"Frankly, there has been no great public clamor for my services as governor," he said. "I've had about 100 expressions of support and one $5 contribution from a Mr. Lan Nelson of Walker County, which I am returning."

In 1990, Bullock was elected lieutenant governor — a powerful job in a state that sharply limits the governor's authority.

During his tenure, the state ended a court-ordered school funding crisis, saw a once shaky budget balloon to a $6 billion surplus, and overhauled the civil justice system to impose limits on lawsuits.

After deciding in 1997 not to seek a third term as lieutenant governor, Bullock announced plans to give away his multimillion-dollar campaign bank account, donating much of it to Texas colleges and universities.

He could be dramatic. "I have no agenda, but what's good for Texas. And I have no love, but Texas," Bullock said in speeches, which he invariably ended: "God bless Texas."

He was married five times, constantly tried to quit smoking cigarettes and underwent treatment for alcoholism in 1981.

In 1972, about one-third of his right lung was removed in an operation to take out two tumors.

In 1994, during his re-election campaign for lieutenant governor, Bullock had heart-bypass surgery. He had a pacemaker implanted in fall 1998 to treat an irregular heartbeat. Earlier this year, he was treated for a pea-sized tumor found in his lung.

Rumors about his health sparked repeated news stories over the years, and those often angered Bullock.

Asked once about his health, Bullock said, "I'm so busy I ain't got time to die."

Russia, U.S. announce agreement on troops

By Robert Burns
Associated Press

HELSINKI, Finland — More than 3,000 Russian peacekeeping troops will patrol inside Kosovo, reporting to their own officers but operating under ultimate NATO command, U.S. and Russian leaders agreed Friday in a diplomatic resolution to a weeklong impasse.

"It preserves the unity of command ... and it gives Russia a unique role" by allowing its forces to operate within three of the five sectors of Kosovo controlled by NATO, Defense Secretary William Cohen said at a news conference.

The deal, which still needs formal approval by NATO, came after three days of difficult negotiations. The dispute began when 200 Russian troops startled the West by marching into the Pristina airport ahead of the alliance.

It also provided a political solution for both sides: the Americans, who insisted on full NATO control of troops inside Kosovo, and the Russians who sought their own sector to patrol.

The Clinton administration had expressed concern that giving the Russians their own geographic area could have led to a division of the province since Russia has historically close ties to the Serbs.

The agreement means there will be no such partition, U.S. officials said.

It was not clear how the troops and commanders in the field would carry out day-to-day operations as peacekeepers work to resettle the more than 1 million ethnic Albanians driven from their homes in Kosovo by Serb forces during a year of civil war and then the NATO airstrikes designed to stop the fighting.

Russia's defense minister, Marshall Igor Sergeyev, called the negotiations "difficult but constructive."

"The understanding was reached that the Russian contingent would remain under the complete political and military control of the Russian side," Sergeyev said, citing what Moscow viewed as its main objective.

President Clinton said he was pleased with the agreement. "This has been a good day. We are achieving our objectives," Clinton said from an economic summit in Cologne, Germany.

The president said NATO must ensure the security of both the Serb minority and the Kosovar Albanian majority inside Kosovo, a province of Serbia.

Having Russian troops in several parts of the province "will give confidence" to the Serb civilians, Clinton said.

A total of 3,600 Russian troops will remain inside the troubled province, said a senior Clinton administration official. Five Russian battalions, not to exceed 2,850 troops, will be spread among the American, French and German sectors, the official said. No Russians will operate in the British or Italian sectors.

In addition, 750 Russians will be deployed at the Pristina airfield and a nearby logistics post.

Under the agreement, the Pristina airport will be opened to all nations, Cohen said.

Previously, the Russians had offered up to 10,000 troops.

Key sticking points kept negotiators working for a third night in a row.

NATO insisted on a unified command for the 50,000 international peacekeepers, who began entering Kosovo last weekend after the end of 78 days of NATO airstrikes against Yugoslavia.

Russia, in turn, wanted authority over its forces inside Kosovo and was pushing for its own sector of control — something U.S. officials said NATO would not accept for fear of partitioning the province.

Secretary of State Madeleine Albright said the deal proved Russia and the United States could work together in a future Europe.

The agreement came just two days before Clinton and Russian President Boris Yeltsin were to meet at the economic summit in Cologne. Sergeyev had raised the possibility that the issue might have to be resolved by the two presidents.

The Clinton administration and NATO have said they want Russia to play a key role in peacekeeping in Kosovo, in part to provide assurances to the Serb minority that they, too, will be protected by peacekeepers.

The Russians suggested the same thing.

"There must be no double-standard approach toward the settlement of the situation when some (ethnic Albanian) refugees are coming back home while others (Serb civilians) have to flee their places," said Russian Prime Minister Sergei Stepashin. "If there is a peace, it should be a peace for all."

Kosovo rebels exact revenge, NATO holds 25

PRISTINA, Yugoslavia (AP) — With KLA rebels trying to expand their presence in Kosovo, NATO peacekeepers took 25 rebel members into custody Friday after finding mistreated prisoners at a police station. One elderly man was found dead, chained to a chair.

NATO pledged to put more military police on the streets to reinforce its authority and make the troubled province safe for Serbs who are fleeing by the thousands.

Serbs, however, reported Kosovo Liberation Army attacks across the province. German peacekeepers detained the 25 guerrilla members and rescued 15 battered Gypsies and ethnic Albanians in Prizren in what they said may be a KLA torture chamber for alleged collaborators.

KLA rebels killed three Serbs in central Novo Selo and southern Kosovska Kamenica, and kidnapped 18 Serbs in villages near Pristina, the Serb Media Center reported. The report could not be independently confirmed.

German peacekeepers taking over a police station from the rebels in Kosovo's second-largest city found 15 Gypsies and ethnic Albanians, many of them chained to radiators, most of them bruised and bloody. They also found an elderly man chained to a chair who appeared to have died just before the Germans arrived, said German army spokesman Lt. Col. Dietmar Jeserich.

The Prizren police station, which had been in the hands of the KLA since early this week, also contained grenades, machine guns, mortars and shells — and spike-studded truncheons.

Reports of abuse and violence multiplied: a Serb couple found dead on their home's doorstep, a 16-year-old Serb killed in a country road ambush.

Up to 50,000 Serb civilians have already left Kosovo and the rest are increasingly fearful as Serb troops pull out to comply with last week's peace deal.

Big Spring VAMC begins search for former POWs

By T.E. Jenkins
Big Spring Correspondent

BIG SPRING — The Big Spring Veterans Administration Medical Center has let the bugles blow once more, as officials there begin the search in West Texas for former prisoners of war.

John Webb with the medical center announced this week that his office will turn its attention to locating an estimated 50 to 60 former POWs and their families to make them aware of the benefits they are due.

"It's really a simple matter of math," Webb said. "Right now, we have the names and addresses of 111 former prisoners of war here in West Texas, and we are keeping them apprised of the benefits they are eligible for from our facility.

"If you take the number of veterans in West Texas, and compare them to the number of POWs, it looks like there is an estimated 50 to 60 veterans out there who aren't being served by our center, and we think that's a shame."

Webb said the search doesn't just end with the former POWs.

"We are also looking for the families and spouses of some of the veterans," Webb said. "They are just as eligible for many of the services provided by the VAMC, and they may not even be aware of that fact."

Also helping in the search is hospital volunteer and former POW, Buck Turner.

The hospital is searching for these POWs because they have earned it, Turner said.

"Some people will look at this as if it's some kind of government handout, but that just isn't true," Turner said. "Everything these folks receive from the VA was earned by them, and them alone."

Turner attributes the "missing 50" former POWs to a VA standard that hasn't always been up to par.

"A while back, things here at the VA were nowhere near where they are today in terms of service and overall care," Turner said. "I think a lot of veterans may have come here for help in the past, before this place was reorganized, and didn't care much for the way they were treated.

"We just want to get the word out that the Big Spring VAMC is a very different place now compared to a few years ago, and we want to do everything we can to not only help the former POWs, but for all of the veterans that have served this country.

"We serve more than 48 counties here ... and that's a lot of work, but it's worth it if these veterans are getting the help they need, and deserve."

For more information, contact the Big Spring VAMC at (915) 263-7361.

DEBATE: Union wants MISD to postpone setting salary schedules fund shortage argument and tried to come up with strategies for countering it.

(From 1A)

"If they interrupt you and say, 'Well, that's fine, and I'd love to give you more money, but where is it going to come from?' there are two things you should mention," Buck said.

First, the school district would be receiving a significant increase in Tier 2 funds from the state, Buck said, and second, the state would be fully funding full-day kindergarten.

"You could ask them, 'How much money will we gain from that full-day kindergarten?'" Buck said. "If they can't answer you then they can't point the finger at you."

Art Martin, executive director of business services, said the state has been paying for full-day kindergarten all along. "That's nothing new," he said.

Though the state did pump hundreds of millions more into full-day kindergarten funding, Martin said that was largely in anticipation of more school districts expanding their kindergarten programs next year.

Though the Midland Independent School District is among those districts — expanding full-day kindergarten to all campuses starting this fall —Martin said he does not anticipate the additional revenues generated by such a move to be applicable to other programs.

"That money will probably be used to hire additional kindergarten teachers," Martin said.

As for the additional Tier 2 funds, Martin said, "We do expect more revenues from Tier 2 and the majority of those revenues, if not all of them, will be going to teachers now. You're talking about a 10 percent raise for teachers as it is, on average."

When asked whether, in the final analysis, he thought any money could potentially be free in next year's budget, Martin made no definitive declarations.

"We don't see it right now," said Martin, who said he will be attending a workshop on Monday at the Region XVIII Educational Service Center on the new funding formulas.

Martin then will be leading a budget study session at Tuesday's meeting, and near the end of this month he will attend another workshop.

"Between those two workshops I hope to get a better handle on the new funding formulas," Martin said. "We'll have to see what moneys we have available then."

It may be this kind of uncertainty that is driving the ultimate strategy of the MFT Tuesday: to ask the school board to wait to set pay schedules until it gets a better handle on fund availability.

"I think we need to postpone," said Sandra Jordan, a math teacher at Midland Freshman, drawing consensus from the group at Friday's session. "We need to find the extra money that's out there that we don't know where it is."

Linda Hancock, president of the Midland chapter of the Texas Classroom Teachers' Association, said she had no current plans to address the board about the proposed salaries Tuesday.

"I'm not saying what we're getting is enough — no, it isn't," she said, but added, "Since that's the money the state is giving us, I don't see Midland doing anything else, mainly because of the financial crunch.

"Maybe we could come back and ask for the same next year," said Ms. Hancock.

ROE: McCorvey spares no one who wavers on abortion issue from pro-choice to pro-life, it is clear that her decision was made easier by Benham, who first moved into and took over her office at a Dallas abortion clinic, and finally changed her views on abortion. Benham first led Ms. McCorvey to a passage in Deuteronomy (30:19), which reads, in part, "Choose life, so that you and your children may live."

(From 1A)

Next, while appearing at a book-signing engagement, Benham asked Ms. McCorvey in front of everyone at the store buying copies of her first book, "Norma McCorvey, do you know you are responsible for the deaths of 35 million babies?"

In July 1995, Ms. McCorvey became a Christian. Almost a year ago, she converted to Catholicism. She has gone from participant in history — when in 1970, she filed her case to legalize abortion and in 1973, by a 7-2 vote, the Supreme Court legalized abortion — to outspoken pro-life activist.

Her opinions spare no one who wavers on the issue, including Texas Gov. George W. Bush, who recently signed into law the parental notification act, which prohibits teenagers from receiving an abortion unless their parents have been notified by a doctor.

"God bless George W. Bush for all he's done for the state of Texas," Ms. McCorvey said before her Friday appearance. "But he said a long time ago that he still believed in a woman's right to choose in the case of rape or incest.

"All candidates go back and forth on the issues because they want those votes. I've never heard a politician who couldn't stop on a dime and tell you exactly what you wanted to hear."

Ms. McCorvey said that should Bush, the Republican front runner, ultimately win the race for the White House, how he would reshape the Supreme Court and whether he would be able to appoint justices that would overturn Roe vs. Wade are "difficult questions to predict."

"I worked for a bunch of candidates in California when I was on the pro-abortion side," Ms. McCorvey said. "They would come out for women's rights, then six months down the road, they'd be pro-life. All candidates are like that. They're real wishy-washy. I remember Pete Wilson, when he was running for governor of California, would wake up pro-choice one day and the next day he'd wake up pro-life. We called him Pete the Flounder because he used to flip-flop so much."

Carla Holeva, vice president of Community Affairs for Planned Parenthood of West Texas, said Ms. McCorvey is, "definitely a very interesting person."

"She has a very interesting history on both sides of the issue now," said Ms. Holeva, who did not attend Ms. McCorvey's speech. Also not in the audience was Midland Mayor Bobby Burns, who in April signed a proclamation declaring May as a "Month of Prayer to End Abortion."

Pro-life and pro-choice advocates are, as expected, also on opposite sides of the issue concerning the parental notification act, which Bush recently signed into Texas law.

"I think it's great that young teen-age women are going to finally start going to their parents and say, 'Look, I'm thinking about having an abortion.' That girl, right then and there, needs her parents," Ms. McCorvey said. "And when you've been in pro-abortion as long as I was in it, you see these kids come in and you know their parents don't know because their friends or boyfriends usually bring them in. And those are the ones who cry the loudest when they come out from the procedure.

"With parental notification, when the abortionist calls these parents, the parents are going to have to do one of two things: they're either going to have to go with their daughter and give their consent, or they're going to have to sit down and have a talk with their daughter and the first thing they're going to say to them is, 'Where did I go wrong?'"

Ms. Holeva, though, said parental notification, will likely send girls to facilities that could endanger their health.

"People would be surprised but we don't have that many teens come to us," Ms. Holeva said. "Ninety-six percent include a trusted adult. And there are several reasons for that, one of which is that it costs money. Where is a teenager going to come up with that kind of money? But for the teens who do not talk to parents about it, for abuse situations or for whatever reason, as close as we are to the border, they can (cross the border) and get any kind of services. But is it safe? We would much rather them have a safe procedure."

Ms. McCorvey said numbers show a large percentage of those seeking abortions are single females under 20. But Ms. Holeva said that less than 15 percent of abortion clients at Planned Parenthood of West Texas are 17 and under.

Ms. McCorvey also said that the abortion issue would be the hardest issue to pin Bush to, but added, "It's not a political issue. It's a Gospel issue. It's a morality issue."

Ms. McCorvey's visit was sponsored by the La Promesa Foundation.

DELAY: Artist has bitter homecoming

(From 1A)

two ladies didn't like it. Other people really liked it."

Elise Coombes, MC's public information officer, said that the conflict arose because of the overlapping of Kids' College and the exhibit. She said that normally the gallery does not have shows during the summer so they have never had to deal with a problem like this before.

"The show will still be displayed if she wants it to be," Ms. Coombes said. "We are not asking her to pack up and go back to Fort Worth. We want her work to be shown at the college. However, the gallery is more than showing pretty pictures. It has an educational purpose as well. We also have an agreement with the artist that allows the committee to review the work once it arrives to make decisions about what can be displayed."

'We want her work to be shown at the college. However, the gallery is more than showing pretty pictures.'
— Elise Coombes, MC public information officer

Ms. Terrazas said that when she wanted to display her work at the college, she sent slides of all of the photographs that were going to be displayed and they had been approved.

Ms. Terrazas said another reason she is dismayed is that she had to juggle her schedule to be able to come to Midland.

"I work two jobs, 55 hours a week," Ms. Terrazas said. "I had to save money so I could afford to come down here. I spent eight hours setting up my pictures for my homecoming show and now I have to take it all down. It was a pretty bitter homecoming."

McCormick Gallery coordinator J. Don Wallace, said the decision was agreed upon by all the gallery committee members as the best thing to do.

"Postponing the show was a mutual decision by the committee," Wallace said. "We had no intention of doing anything to put the gallery in conflict. I called the meeting, because as the gallery coordinator, it is my job to gather the committee members together to resolve issues when they arise."

Clinton vows to fire back after House votes down gun measure

By Bennett Roth
Hearst News Service

COLOGNE, Germany — Firing a warning shot across the Atlantic Ocean, President Clinton on Friday vowed to ratchet up his fight for gun control in the aftermath of the House defeat of its gun measure.

"This week instead of listening to the American people and strengthening our gun laws, the House of Representatives listened to the gun lobby and did nothing at all," said the president, who is meeting with the leaders of industrialized nations. "The House leadership gutted this bill in the dark of night to keep common-sense gun legislation from seeing the light of day."

The statement was issued after the House killed a bill that contained a weak gun-control measure opposed by many Democrats and the White House.

Since he left for Europe on Tuesday, Clinton has been paying close attention to the gun-control issue and telephoned wavering Democrats to lobby them to support restrictions that include background checks at gun shows.

When the House, shortly before midnight, approved a watered down version of the gun-show provision the president denounced the vote and attributed it to the clout of the National Rifle Association.

The president also acknowledged the resistance to gun-control measures in the United States as he met with leaders of nations with generally tougher gun restrictions and lower crime rates.

"The United States is a great country, but it is the only country in the world that's still living as if you don't have to take reasonable precautions to keep guns out of the hands of children and criminals," he said.

■ Related story/6A

But Clinton said the House defeat had only spurred him to work harder for tougher gun legislation.

"I'm just getting warmed up," he said after meeting with British Prime Minister Tony Blair "I'm energized for the fight, and I hope Carol McCarthy is and Sarah Brady and all of our allies." Rep. Carolyn McCarthy, D-N.Y., who lost her husband to gun violence, was the sponsor of the failed anti-gun measure favored by the White House.

Gun bill falls in House; talks with Senate still planned

By David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Gun control legislation fell in a House crossfire on Friday, leaving the fate of the issue uncertain in Congress two months after a horrifying outbreak of violence at a Colorado high school.

The 280-147 rejection came as many Democrats rebelled against National Rifle Association-backed provisions in the bill to loosen some existing gun controls, while dozens of conservative Republicans objected to the imposition of new ones.

"The American people will not stand for this," President Clinton said in a statement issued in Europe. "Our nation is waiting for Washington to pass a real law that keeps guns away from children and out of the hands of criminals."

The Senate had passed a gun control bill earlier, and despite the defeat of the House bill, negotiations between the two houses are expected this summer on the issue.

In the aftermath of the vote, the leaders of the two parties searched for political gains in the bill's ruins.

"Let there be no mistake," said Speaker Dennis Hastert, R-Ill., in a written statement. "The vast majority of the Democrat caucus walked away when they had the chance to walk forward for the good of the country."

Democratic Whip David Bonior of Michigan countered bluntly: "the main obstacle here has been primarily the Republican leadership."

Beyond the political squabbling, though, the vote left an uncertain road map for lawmakers looking ahead to House-Senate compromise talks.

"It's very difficult to handicap," said Rep. Bob Barr, a Georgia Republican who opposes gun control legislation. "But I think something will come out" of the negotiations, he added.

House Democratic Leader Dick Gephardt of Missouri said that given public opinion on the issue, "I don't think you can forecast" the outcome. Public opinion strongly supports increased gun control measures.

The Senate-passed measure would extend required background checks to all sales at gun shows, including those conducted by non-licensed firearms dealers. In addition, it would require dealers to provide safety devices with all handguns; ban the importation of certain high capacity firearms clips and impose a lifetime prohibition of gun ownership by anyone convicted as a juvenile of a serious felony.

The defeated House bill included the safety device provision. And while it would have required non-licensed dealers to conduct background checks on their firearms customers at gun shows, it would have reduced the amount of time allowed for such gun show checks from three business days to 24 hours, including weekends. In addition, it would have defined gun shows in a way that would have excluded some events.

The issue rocketed to the top of the political agenda in the wake of the April shootings at Columbine High School in Colorado, in which two students killed 12 fellow pupils and a teacher before ending their own lives.

Republicans, in particular, said the answer to youth violence lay in measures other than gun control, and both houses approved bills in recent weeks to toughen enforcement of juvenile crime. The House-passed bill also permits states to allow the posting of the Ten Commandments in schools and state owned or administered facilities. That provision is not part of the Senate bill, and it, too, will have to be resolved in compromise talks.

But much of the focus of the congressional debate — and a great deal of the political maneuvering — was directed at the politically volatile gun issue.

Charlton Heston, the actor who is president of the NRA, telephoned at least one lawmaker on Thursday urging support for the gun show provision.

Several Republican officials said that after the House had agreed to NRA-backed gun show provision late Thursday night, Hastert convened a leadership meeting, including the powerful whip, Rep. Tom DeLay, to emphasize the urgency of passing the measure.

These sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Hastert said the House would be better off if it went into negotiations with the Senate with legislation of its own. But in addition, he said, failure to pass the bill would lead to constant Democrats attempts to resurrect the issue.

Giant panda stabilizes, still very ill

WASHINGTON (AP) — He's eating, he's been outside and active, but there's no way of knowing how long giant panda Hsing-Hsing's improved health will continue.

"We really have no idea," National Zoo spokesperson Bob Hoage said Friday.

Hsing-Hsing suffers from progressing kidney failure and arthritis, and is being treated with various medications. He's eating a gruel of cottage cheese, honey, vitamins, rice and minerals, which, along with the usual panda diet of bamboo, has given Hsing-Hsing some of his old energy back, zoo officials said.

"He's stabilized, he's certainly doing better," Hoage said. "Giant pandas are pretty resilient creatures."

But there is no telling how long Hsing-Hsing will be up and about. He may decline again, and the Zoo is taking a "wait and see" approach, Hoage added.

"The veterinarian chapter is just being written" on panda health and longevity, said Hoage. "We can compare with bears and dogs, but there's really no way to know."

There are only a handful of older giant pandas left in the world and none outside China, except Hsing-Hsing himself. He's 28-years-old.

Angst over family is driving campaigns, legislation

By Calvin Woodward
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — They speak of frazzled parents stuck in rush-hour traffic, grandparents shunted off to the old folks home, children adrift in an amoral sea.

Politicians of both parties are in full cry about the state of the family.

"Polls show that a majority of Americans think that getting kids off to the right start should be our No. 1 national priority," said Democrat Bill Bradley, who like almost everyone else running for president has raised family values forcefully.

"Politicians like to talk about children," he says. "Just throw in a mention of children and you get an applause line."

Still, more is at work than the verbal equivalent of kissing babies.

The House voted this week to let schools post the Ten Commandments in what the bill's sponsor, Republican Rep. Robert Aderholt of Alabama, called a first step to "promote morality" and stop "children killing children" after the Colorado school shootings.

The family is explicitly at the core of the two campaigns begun this week, those of Democratic Vice President Al Gore ("We must make family life work in America") and Republican Gov. George W. Bush, the "compassionate conservative" who declares "Some people think it's inappropriate to draw a moral line. Not me."

Republican Lamar Alexander, calling child-rearing his overarching theme, declares: "Families are broken. We've gotten busy. And we're not taking care of the kids."

Bradley asserts "our children are becoming a blur. ... It's not supposed to be this hard."

The family values theme of prior elections has turned into an all-out race to capitalize on people's feelings of inadequacy about the moral authority in their lives. It's not about putting a chicken in every pot, but letting values flourish in every home.

Members of Congress and presidential candidates alike advocate more parental responsibility. Yet families are also getting the message that what has happened is not their fault.

Generally, Republicans say taxes are so high and stacked against married couples that people must work too many hours to get by. Democrats say laws are needed to bypass inflexible employers and give parents the right to stay with an ill child or attend important school meetings.

"I don't think the public believes either party when it says we're going to solve this," says theologian Martin E. Marty at the University of Chicago. But he thinks people are glad it's on the agenda.

Marty is most struck that Democrats now feel compelled to talk about the traditional family. After years of easy divorce, the growth of single-parent families and the loss of familiar neighborhoods and organizations, the impulse to hold on to remaining old values crosses ideology, he says.

"Today when everything else has collapsed you try to shore up what is only eroded," he said. "That Gore is doing this is neither providing leadership nor dragging his feet. He's part of a force that is out there."

A recent Gallup Poll found the decline of family to be the top worry, followed closely by crime. But experts are divided on whether Americans in fact have less free time.

A new study by the Council of Economic Advisers found families are spending an average of 22 fewer hours per week away from the job than they did 30 years ago. But other studies have found that time actually spent with children has remained fairly steady.

Tribe uses casino money for pharmaceutical business

MASHANTUCKET, Conn. (AP) — An Indian tribe that has made a fortune from casino gambling has quietly built a profitable sideline business in mail-order prescription drugs, taking advantage of federal rules to undercut HMOs and pharmacy chains.

As gamblers feed quarters into the slot machines at the Foxwoods Resort Casino, a half-dozen pharmacists in white coats work nearby for the Mashantucket Pequot Indian tribe, filling pill bottles bound for patients all over the country.

Under federal regulations, Indian tribes recognized by the government can buy prescription drugs at a deep discount and resell them.

Started 10 years ago as a small health service for members of the tribe and their employees, the Pequot Pharmaceutical Network today is a $15 million business, handling 250,000 prescriptions annually.

About 2 million people are enrolled in the network, and its customers include General Dynamics, Connecticut College, AAA Connecticut Motor Club and about 40 other Indian tribes around the country.

Even the state of Connecticut, looking to cut its pharmaceutical expenditures for 85,000 elderly and disabled Medicaid patients, is considering becoming a customer.

"When we met with the Pequots, they described their purchasing power," said Michael Starkowski, deputy commissioner of the Department of Social Services. "They described to us a pricing schedule that would be 40 to 50 percent less than what we would be paying otherwise."

The Pequots refused to disclose profit figures and insisted they are not looking to put independent pharmacies or national chains like Walgreen or Rite Aid out of business.

Yet industry executives are jittery. Mark Grayson, a spokesman for the Pharmaceutical Research and Manufacturers of America, said his organization fears the government has given the Pequots an unfair advantage.

"We don't believe that the federal supply schedule can be utilized in this way," he said.

Shelly Carter, spokeswoman for the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs, said the Pequots' use of the discount is perfectly legal.

Here's why the Indians have the edge: Drug manufacturers, in an effort to capture market share, created different price schedules for different customers. Hospitals typically get a lower price than drug store chains. As the biggest consumer of pharmaceuticals in the world, the federal government gets the lowest price of all. Indian tribes are entitled to the same discount the government gets.

Other Indian tribes also obtain cheap prescription drugs for their reservation health centers.

Panel seeks to outlaw Internet gambling

By Jennifer Corbett Dooren
Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — Warning that adolescents are more likely than adults to become addicted to gambling, a federal commission recommended Friday that wagering over the Internet be outlawed and that states raise the minimum age for placing bets to 21.

The National Gambling Impact Study Commission estimates that about 85 percent of people ages 12 to 18 have gambled at least once in their lives and that about 15 percent of those are either heavy gamblers or are addicted to gambling. Among adults, as many as 7 percent of gamblers are believed to have a problem.

"These statistics forewarn of even more serious gambling-related problems in the future," said James C. Dobson, a member of the commission.

The commission, whose recommendations were unanimously supported by all nine members, sees the Internet as a particular threat.

"Gambling on the Internet is especially enticing to youth, (addicted) gamblers and criminals," the report said. "There are currently no mechanisms in place to prevent youth — who make up the largest percentage of Internet users — from using their parents' credit card numbers to register and set up accounts for use at Internet gambling sites."

The commission also recommended that states and schools form prevention programs for adolescents and remind them that sports betting is illegal. The commission found that betting on sports "may act as a gateway to other forms of gambling."

The 300-page report discusses the positive and negative aspects of legalized gambling and it includes a list of more than 70 recommendations. It will be sent to Congress, the White House, Native American tribal governments and state governors.

Much of the commission's research was conducted by the National Research Council, part of the National Academy of Sciences.

The commission, whose members included representatives of the casino industry, was appointed by a bipartisan group of lawmakers in 1996. Dobson is president of the conservative group Focus on the Family.

"I'm deeply disturbed by the impact of gambling on individuals, on families and on communities," said Kay James, chairwoman of the commission.

Gambling is a $50 billion annual industry that is permitted in some form in 47 states. It includes commercial and Indian reservation casinos, slot machines, state lotteries and horse- and dog-track betting. In 1973 only eight states had lotteries and one state, Nevada, had casinos.

Current laws do not address gambling over the Internet, the newest forum for placing bets that transcends state and national boundaries. Federal law makes placing a bet or sending gambling information over telephone lines illegal, but the 1961 law predates the Internet. Most computer users connect to the Internet through phone lines but it is also possible to use cable television lines and satellites, technically skirting the law.

The report did not delve into how U.S. regulators would control Internet gambling sites located overseas.

The gambling commission estimates that 6.9 million people gambled over the Internet in 1997 and 14.5 million people did so in 1998.

The most popular form of wagering on the Internet is sports betting, but casino-type games are becoming more popular as Internet connections become faster.

Legislation is pending in the Senate that would ban placing wagers over the Internet.

Rep. Frank Wolf, R-Va., said he would also propose legislation that would prohibit Internet gambling and include the other recommendations made by the commission. He is the author of the legislation that created the gambling commission.

But pro-gambling lawmakers have vowed to fight any effort to impose new federal restrictions on state-approved gambling.

"Gambling is already well-regulated by the states," said Rep. Shelley Berkley, D-Nev., whose district includes Las Vegas.

The report's recommendations are not binding unless they are enacted into law. Among other things, the gambling commission recommends that state governments consider a moratorium on future expansion of gambling.

Commission members admitted that they don't expect many of their recommendations to actually become law but said the report would serve to educate policymakers and the public about the downside of gambling.

"For the state legislator who has to decide whether to expand or restrict gambling activity, hopefully the statistics we collected ... will be helpful," James said. "This report and the debate is has already created will increase the amount of information available."

Wall Street closes with modest gains

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks managed a small gain Friday as investor optimism about interest rates overcame profit concerns about Intel and Gillette.

At the close on Wall Street, the Dow Jones industrial average was up 13.93 at 10,855.56. The Dow gained 365.05 this week, having risen each day, and more than wiped out a 309-point loss the previous week.

Broader stock indicators were mostly higher Friday. The Standard & Poor's 500 rose 2.94 to 1,342.84 and the Nasdaq composite index rose 19.29 to 2,563.44.

So far this year, the Dow is up 18.2 percent, the S&P is up 9.2 percent and the Nasdaq has gained 16.9 percent.

Intel, the world's largest maker of chips for personal computers, fell 3 1/16 to 54 15/16 after Morgan Stanley Dean Witter & Co. cuts its rating on the stock because of delays in launching a new chip for laptop computers. But other computer and semiconductor shares held their ground.

"This seems to be a company-specific not industry-specific issue," said Arthur Hogan, chief market analyst at Jeffries & Co.

Gillette fell after the razor and blade maker warned that second-quarter profits will miss analysts' forecasts for the rest of this year because of weak sales in Brazil, Russia and Japan. Gillette tumbled 5 1/8 to 42 3/16.

The dampened earnings outlook for the two big companies came a day after Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan indicated that only a modest interest rate hike may be needed to keep inflation well-tamed. His comments had a generally soothing effect on the markets.

Despite the news on Gillette and Intel, market watchers remain optimistic about second-quarter earnings, which will be released next month. "We are going to see some pleasant surprises and that will be the norm, not the exception," Hogan said.

Hogan expects earnings to propel the Dow back over 11,000, which it last reached on May 13.

Yet, there was still caution on Wall Street.

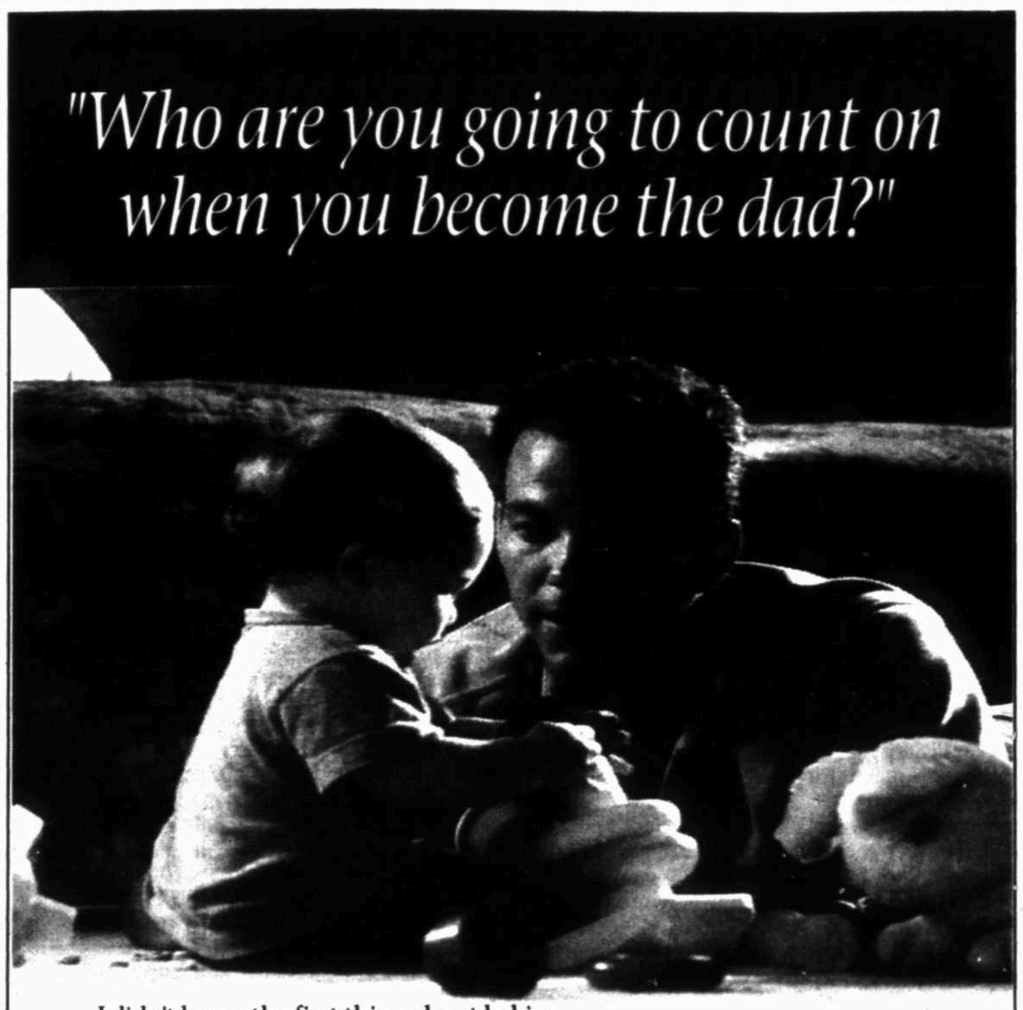

"We are still not in the most friendliest interest rate environment and with bond yields still in the 6 percent area, the trading has become choppy," said Steven Goldman, market strategist at Weeden & Co. When bond yields are trading around 6 percent, government and corporate bonds become a more attractive investment alternative to stocks.

The Dow was led higher Friday by construction equipment maker Caterpillar, up 2 5/8 to 61 1/2 and computer maker Hewlett Packard, up 2 5/8 at 61 1/2.

Bullock, Bush were political odd couple

By Michael Holmes
Associated Press

AUSTIN — They were the odd couple of Texas politics: The fearsome old Democrat and the rookie Republican governor.

But Bob Bullock, who died Friday at age 69, and Gov. George W. Bush became fast friends, confidants and allies in many legislative fights.

They grew so close that Bullock, a Democratic politician for 42 years, endorsed Bush's re-election in 1998. Shunning his own party's nominee, Garry Mauro, was no small thing: Bullock was godfather to Mauro's daughter.

He went a step further, too, backing Bush for national office long before the younger man decided to seek the White House. "I would be proud to call him my president," Bullock said.

"It's hard to put into words how I feel," a somber Bush said Friday. "I feel like I really lost a great friend."

Bullock's career, which started in the Texas House in 1956, had reached its peak when the two men became acquainted.

As lieutenant governor, he was presiding over the Senate and controlling the flow of legislation. Little became law without Bullock's fingerprints somewhere.

They had shaken hands once, at the 1991 swearing-in ceremony of Sen. David Sibley, R-Waco. "He had a huge presence," Bush said, repeating their very short exchange. "'Hi, I'm Bullock.' 'Yes sir. I'm George W. Bush.'"

Their first real meeting occurred two or three weeks before the 1994 election. It was hardly a sure bet that Bush, then 48, would defeat popular Democratic Gov. Ann Richards. But he felt obliged to pay a courtesy call on Bullock.

"I wanted to go touch base with him, just to get to know him, prior to the end of the campaign," Bush said. "He was very gracious. We sat in his living room for a couple of hours. I listened. He talked. And I learned a lot."

In a "Biography" television show that aired last week, Bullock recalled the meeting. Bullock, a recovering alcoholic, said they discussed that and Bush's decision to stop drinking when he turned 40.

"We talked about that for a bit," Bullock said. "We talked about Texas and what we saw for the future."

To his surprise, Bullock liked what he heard. "He and I saw eye-to-eye on a great deal. ... His views about the state and his issues that he was running on were just parallel to mine."

"I'm sure he was uncertain about me. And I'd heard of his reputation. But our friendship was very deep," Bush said, praising the older man's bipartisan approach to lawmaking and his deep love for Texas.

Bush visited Bullock twice this week — the night before he died and on Wednesday, the day after Bush returned from his first presidential campaign trip to Iowa and New Hampshire.

Famous Texans pay homage to Bob Bullock

AUSTIN (AP) — Some comments Friday following former Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock's death:

■ "Bob Bullock loved Texas with every fiber of his iron fist and kind heart."
— Lt. Gov. Rick Perry

■ "He was unfailingly loyal to the people he loved."
— Former Gov. Ann Richards

■ "He was Vesuvian and seemingly contradictory but always passionate about his love for Texas. ... Houston, Austin, Johnson and Rayburn better make room at the table for Bullock."
— Railroad Commission Chairman Tony Garza

■ "Texas is a better place because Bob Bullock lived here."
— Former Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby

■ "More important than specific legislation that he passed is the aggregate image of the man as a leader." — Former Houston Mayor Bob Lanier.

■ "His personal courage was legendary and his devotion to Texas was absolute."
— U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm

■ "Among Texas Democrats, depending on the situation, Bob Bullock was cussed or discussed, loved or loathed, but he was always respected for his absolute dedication to our great state."
— Molly Beth Malcolm, Texas Democratic Party chair

Stars put Sabres' backs to boards

By Alan Robinson
AP Sports Writer

BUFFALO, N.Y. — The Buffalo Sabres went on the offensive Friday — something they're not doing on the ice — by accusing the Dallas Stars of playing dirty while seizing the lead in the Stanley Cup finals.

The Stars' reaction: This is hockey, it's a physical sport, quit whining and give us your best shot in Game 6 on Saturday night.

Coach Lindy Ruff, vowing the Sabres won't be eliminated on home ice, said the Stars stepped over the line during their 2-0 victory Thursday by swinging their sticks like baseball bats. Dallas took the series lead 3-2.

Some Sabres didn't directly accuse the Stars of trying to injure them, but suggested Dallas uses two kinds of sticks: Soft on offense but much harder blades on defense, ones that can do much more damage physically.

"It is vicious out there sometimes," Ruff said. "If you look at the tape, you probably see between five and 10 really good two-handers, baseball swings, where guys are turning their sticks over while back checking. It is not a friendly game."

Stars coach Ken Hitchcock said Ruff's comments were clearly aimed at influencing the officials. The coaches exchanged words at the end of Game 5, when Sabres defenseman Rhett Warrener broke an ankle during a scuffle.

"I can show you the video where some cheap shots were taken at us," Hitchcock said. "That's the type of game it is. ... What he is hoping for is the referees read the paper."

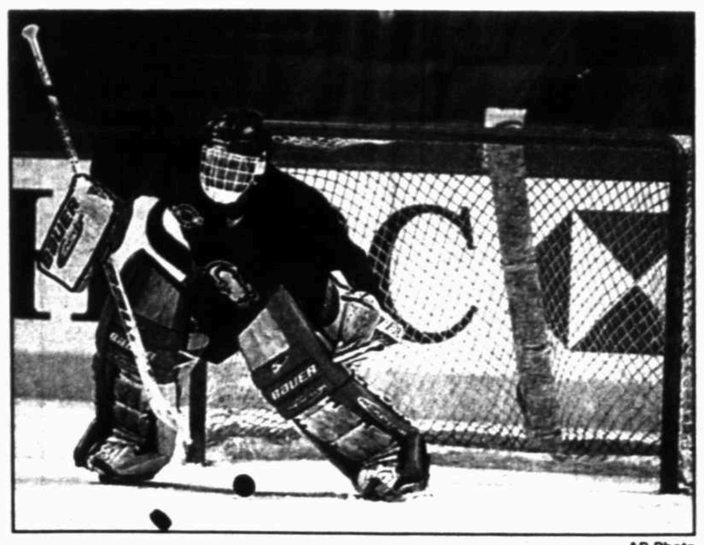

Hitchcock proposed that Ruff sent out Warrener for the final shift with the intent of making his presence felt.

"He came out and went after (Derian) Hatcher," Hitchcock said. "We both know as coaches what the message was."

Still, the Stars' Pat Verbeek said, "I don't think it's a very dirty series at all."

Stars center Guy Carbonneau broke out laughing upon learning of Ruff's remarks, saying, "We don't think we need to hurt anybody. But we will do anything to win the game. We're here for one

Spurs struggle by Knicks

■ San Antonio wins its 12th straight postseason game thanks to New York's miserable effort.

By Chris Sheridan
AP Basketball Writer

SAN ANTONIO — The San Antonio Spurs didn't need a great game to set the record for the longest single-season playoff winning streak and go up 2-0 in the NBA Finals. Tim Duncan and the cold-shooting New York Knicks made sure of that.

In what was nearly the lowest scoring game in finals history, the Spurs overcame their own offensive ineptitude to defeat the Knicks 80-67 on Friday night. Once again, Duncan led the way for San Antonio, scoring 25 points, grabbing 15 rebounds and adding four blocks.

But even Duncan wasn't as dominant as he was in Game 1, when he had 33 points and 16 rebounds.

"It was a very ugly win. No way to hide that," he said. "But we win best when it's ugly. We can pull those types of games out."

The Spurs broke a tie with the 1988 Los Angeles Lakers for the playoff streak, winning their 12th straight game in the postseason.

The teams were also close to shattering the old record of 145 combined points set by Syracuse and Fort Wayne in 1955. But a 3-pointer by Jaren Jackson with 10 seconds left and a meaningless bucket by the Knicks at the buzzer kept the teams from that dubious distinction.

Other than Duncan and David Robinson, who had 16 points, 11 rebounds and five blocks, no other player had an outstanding night for the Spurs. Nonetheless they have produced the greatest run of playoff success in the NBA's 52-year history.

San Antonio shot just 2-for-12 on 3-pointers, missed 11 of 35 free throws and let the Knicks stick around much longer than they should have.

"We're going to New York with an advantage, but I don't think we've outplayed them," Spurs coach Gregg Popovich said. "We've just knocked down some shots."

There was no secret formula to this victory. All the Spurs had to do was watch the Knicks shoot — or try to.

Whether it was layups, dunks, wide-open jumpers from behind screens or drives into the lane, New York missed plenty of each.

Never was it worse than in the fourth quarter when the Knicks went nearly seven minutes without a field goal, a drought that was epitomized by a shot from Allan Houston hitting the shot clock right as it expired.

Latrell Sprewell finally broke the field-goal drought on a jumper with 1:32 left, but Duncan answered right away with an alley-oop dunk that made it 71-61 and led to chants of "Sweep, Sweep" from the Alamodome crowd of 39,554 — the second-largest in finals history.

Game 3 is Monday night at Madison Square Garden, where the Knicks will be faced with the daunting task of trying to become just the eighth team ever to come back from a 2-0 deficit in a best-of-7 series. It has happened only twice in the finals.

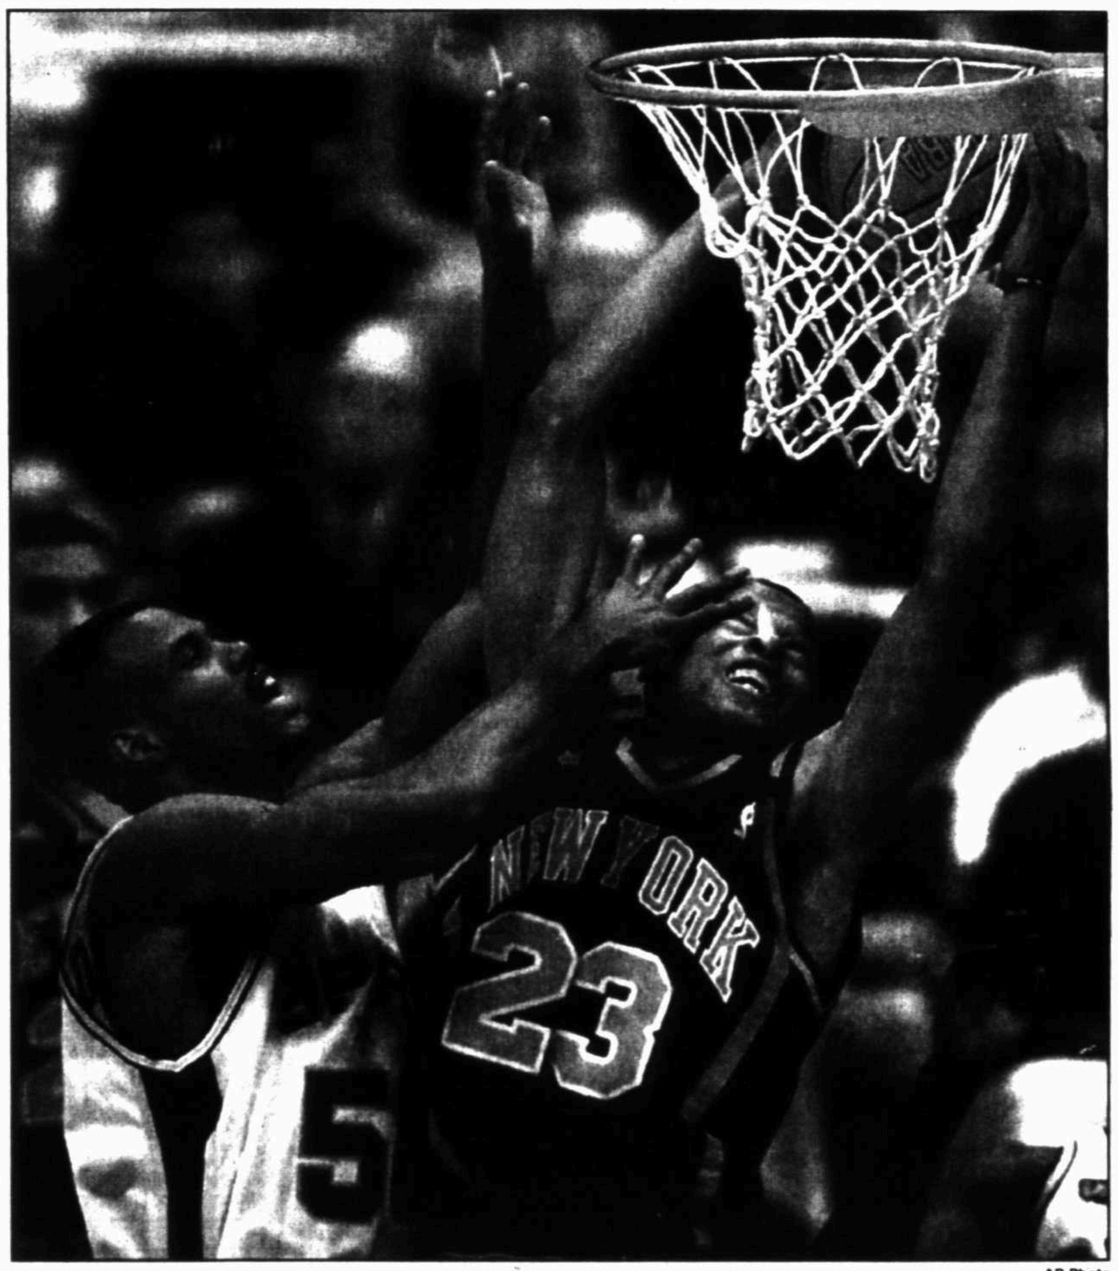

"We never think sweep," Duncan said. "We think one game at a time."

Sprewell led the Knicks with 26 points but shot just 8-for-22 from the field. Larry Johnson pitched in a 2-for-12 effort, Chris Childs was 2-for-8 and Kurt Thomas was 1-for-6.

New York's total was the second lowest in finals history since the advent of the 24-second shot clock in the 1954-55 season. The Utah Jazz scored just 54 against the Chicago Bulls last year.

Mario Elie had 15 and Sean Elliott 10 for the Spurs.

RockHounds open second half tonight

By Oscar LeRoy
Sports Writer

The good thing about the Texas League is that if a team doesn't have a great first half,.. well, there's always a second half to look forward to.

Starting today, every Texas League team starts with goose eggs on their record as the second half of play gets underway. The Midland RockHounds pick up where they left off in the first half when they host the El Paso Diablos at 7:11 tonight to start a six-game series and the first of a 12-game homestand which also includes a six-game series with Wichita.

■ 'Hounds beat Diablos

The 'Hounds and the Diablos are two teams which set their sights on winning the first half of the Texas League's West Division but those rascally Wranglers from Wichita had other things in mind as they won the games they needed to capture the first half crown and solidify a Texas League playoff spot for the sixth time in the 1990s.

Now the pressure is on El Paso, Midland and San Antonio to win the second half and make the playoffs. Although San Antonio proved to be a step behind everyone else in the division, Midland and El Paso had their chances to catch up to the Wranglers. Midland just had trouble beating Wichita, while El Paso couldn't beat the RockHounds as Midland took the final first half series from the Devils in the Sun City.

Although both franchises are under new Major League affiliations, their offenses haven't changed. (Midland, formerly with the Anaheim Angels, is

Wranglers' Strangle

The Wichita Wranglers earned their first-half title in the Texas League's Western Division largely on the strength of their performance against the Midland RockHounds. Midland, which finished second in the West, easily handled El Paso and San Antonio and played over .500 ball against its Eastern opponents (6-4 vs. Arkansas, 5-5 vs. Tulsa), but the RockHounds just couldn't beat Wichita. Here is Midland's record against its three mates in the Western Division:

Midland vs.	San Antonio	El Paso	Wichita
At home	8-3	3-2	1-4
On the road	3-2	7-4	3-8
Overall	11-5	10-6	4-12

Phillips stretches his lead to five strokes in West Texas Amateur

By Lee Passmore
Sports Writer

For a picture of where the Men's West Texas Amateur Championship golf tournament stands after two rounds, you need look no further than that guy with the funny putting stance.

Friday at Green Tree Country Club, Midland's Tim Phillips, who led after the first round, put even more distance between himself and the rest of the field with a 66, giving him a total of 134 and a five-stroke lead heading into the final two rounds. Phillips, who didn't have a bogey all day, gave himself a cushion by birdieing four of his final five holes to finish the day five under par.

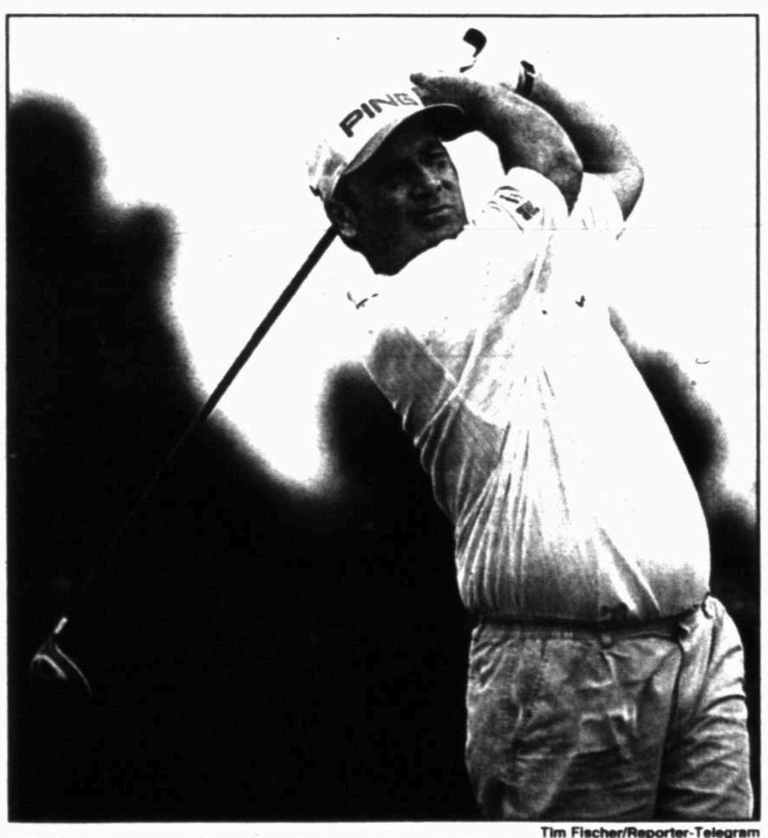

That finishing flourish gave Phillips easily the best round of the day for the second day in a row, and he is now the standard the rest of the field must live up to with a two-day total of 8-under par.

"I never really pick a number to shoot," Phillips said. "I just take it one shot at a time. If you had told me it would be five under before I teed off, I'd have taken it."

When Phillips reaches the green, that one shot at a time doesn't look like one anybody else would take. Phillips has adopted a putting approach known as sidesaddle, in which he doesn't stand to the right of left side of the ball, but directly behind it. The blade of the putter still directly strikes the ball, but Phillips looks more like he is shoveling something out the way than striking a golf ball.

"Sam Snead always putted like that," said Phillips of taking his cue from a golfing legend. "I never putted very good righthanded and I tried putting PINEHURST, N.C. — Phil Mickelson clenched his teeth. The normally stoic David Duval thought about slamming his wedge into the suddenly hard ground. Payne Stewart chomped furiously on his gum.

And those were the leaders after the second round of the U.S. Open.

The only time Pinehurst No. 2 allowed anyone to smile Friday was when the last putt fell into the cup. And even then, the smiles didn't last long.

It was scary enough to hear the wind swirling through the Carolina pines and to see balls take hard hops on the green or roll endlessly into swales and hollows that have become Donald Ross dungeons.

The real horror is what lies ahead.

It's only going to get firmer, faster and more unforgiving. The pressure is only going to get greater. Par will never look better.

"Par is ultimately the person you want to compare yourself to," said Mickelson, concerned more with a number than a leaderboard packed with some of the biggest names in golf. Of only seven players who remain under par, four of them — including Tiger Woods — have won major championships.

That experience will come in handy for the weekend. The swirling winds that sucked the joy out of

RockHounds finish in second place with fifth straight victory

Staff Report

EL PASO — The Midland RockHounds ended the first half of Texas League play on a high note as they won their fifth straight over the El Paso Diablos on Friday with a 10-9 win.

With the victory, Midland finished the first half at 36-32 and in sole possession of second place in the Texas League West Division, two games back of the Wichita Wranglers.

Three times in the game Midland took four-run leads only to see El Paso crawl back to within one run. Mike Bertotti was able to close the Diablos' doors for good as he pitched 2 2/3 innings of no-hit, shutout ball to capture his first save of the year. Benito Baez (5-1) earned the win in relief of Randy Niles.

Midland got the fireworks going in the first inning as Mario Encarnacion, who has a 16-game hit streak, hit a two-run double and Bowles added an RBI single to take a 3-0 lead. Tim Garland made it 4-0 with an RBI single in the second.

El Paso got back to within 4-3 as the Diablos were helped by a two-run fourth inning in which the RockHounds committed four errors. El Paso also connected for two hits and took advantage of two walks in that inning.

Midland answered in the fifth as T.R. Marcinczyk, who went 2-for-4 with three runs scored and two RBIs, hit a two-run blast and Justin Bowles, who went 3-for-5, added a solo homer for a 7-3 lead.

The Diablos responded in the top of the sixth with three runs of their own as the inning was highlighted by Kevin Clark's two run single.

Jeff DaVanon, who went 2-for-4 with three runs scored and two RBIs, gave Midland some cushion in the bottom of the sixth as he hit a two-run shot to give Midland a 9-6 lead.

The eventual go-ahead run for the 'Hounds came from Marcinczyk in the top of the seventh as he doubled and later scored on an error from Diablo first baseman Erubiel Durazo, who is being promoted to Triple-A Tucson along with Diablo third baseman Jarrod Patterson.

El Paso got three more runs in the seventh, highlighted by Julius Matos' two-run double, but that was all the Diablos could muster as Bertotti shut down the Devils.

with the Oakland Athletics, while El Paso, formerly with the Milwaukee Brewers, is with the Arizona Diamondbacks.) These two teams have never been shy about putting up big numbers and having scoreboards in each respective city blow a fuse or two. That's to be expected with some very explosive offenses as Midland is tops in the Texas League with a .302 team batting average, while the Diablos are second with a .293 average.

El Paso is losing some fuel to its fire as their top two hitters were promoted today to Triple-A Tucson. First baseman Erubiel Durazo departs with a Texas League best .404 batting average, while third baseman Jarrod Patterson, who was second in the TL in batting average, leaves with a .388 clip and eight home runs.

Diablo catcher Rod Barajas remains as he comes in with a .312 average with 10 homers.

Midland has the fearsome foursome of Adam Piatt (.378, TL best 26 homers), T.R. Marcinczyk (.286, 11) Jeff DaVanon (.350, 4) and Mario Encarnacion (.294, 12). However, Piatt is questionable for today's game as he sat out Friday's contest with a wrist injury.

There's no doubt that these teams can score runs. The only question is, who's going to stop the other? Both teams are at the bottom of the Texas League in team pitching. El Paso is sixth with a 4.48 ERA, while Midland is last with a 5.75 ERA. What it all equals to is some high-scoring affairs which have become almost a tradition when these two teams get together.

The Midland pitching staff has shown some improvement during the last series with El Paso although there is still a question mark: who's going to replace Chad Harville at closer? Ever since Harville was promoted to Triple-A earlier this month, Midland manager Tony DeFrancesco has been testing several bullpen pitchers in the fire. This past week in El Paso, the 'Hounds got saves from newcomer Juan Perez and Jeff D'Amico.

NBA: Spurs go up 2-0

(From 1B)

San Antonio didn't paint the prettiest picture with its play, either. The Spurs failed to grab an offensive rebound in the first half and finished with just five — all by Duncan.

"The defense really kept us in there tonight," Robinson said. "To a certain extent, they're thinking about coming to the hole. They understand it's not going to be easy to get to the rim."

New York was within striking distance early in the fourth before their long drought. After Thomas made a jumper to make it 58-53, San Antonio responded with an 11-4 run including five straight points by Robinson — a dunk, a jumper and a free throw — for a 69-57 lead.

Sprewell ended a 5 1/2 minute scoreless streak by making two free throws with 2:21 left, but by then it was too late for a Knicks team that missed 18 of 19 shots in one stretch and didn't reach 50 points until the final quarter.

New York managed only four fast-break points and committed nearly twice as many fouls as San Antonio — 25-13.

"I think the main focus is settling down and getting that first one," New York's Marcus Camby said. "Guys on this team have a lot of pride. We definitely don't want to get swept, and I don't think that's going to happen."

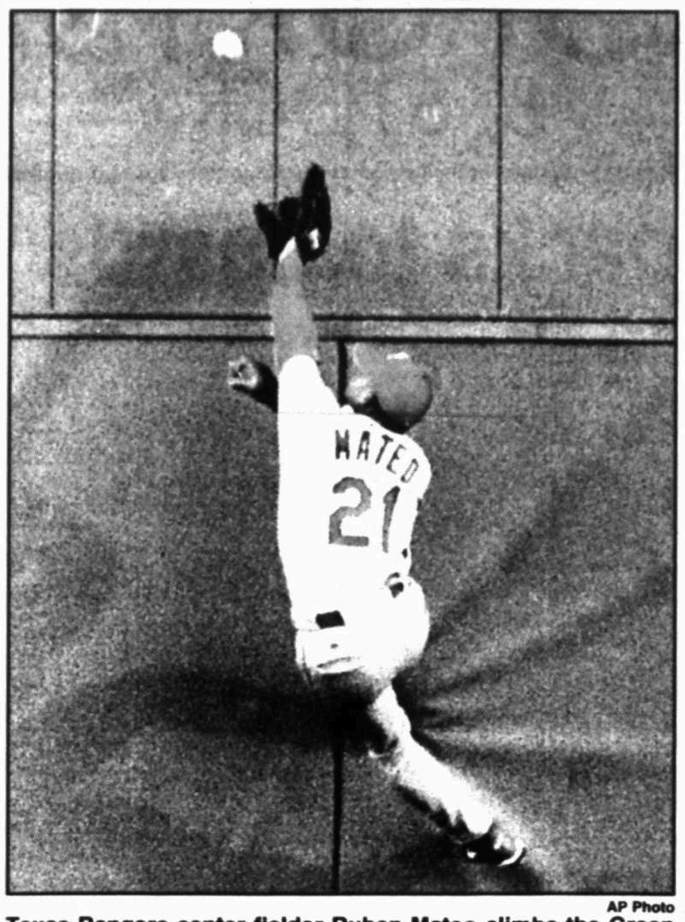

The Spurs didn't grab their first offensive rebound until 4 1/2 minutes into the third quarter, and Duncan, who had 33 points and 16 rebounds in Game 1, turned it into a three-point play for a 49-38 lead.

The Knicks got within three late in the period but were stymied on their next three trips downcourt. Duncan grabbed the Spurs' third offensive rebound and converted a put-back with seven-tenths of a second left in the quarter to give San Antonio a 56-49 lead entering the fourth.

Late in the second quarter, Duncan had five points in a 10-2 run that helped San Antonio open a 39-30 lead, but New York closed within five at the half.

Duncan and Sprewell led all scorers with 12 points apiece at intermission, and the most interesting stats were the Spurs' offensive rebounds (none) and fouls (five) and the Knicks' shooting percentage (29.8).

The Spurs led 20-15 after a first quarter in which the Knicks missed two layups and a dunk and generally blurred the line between playing recklessly and with intensity, just as coach Jeff Van Gundy had feared.

Texas' Morgan stifles Red Sox in rare visit

BOSTON (AP) — In his first start at Fenway Park since giving up Carl Yastrzemski's 400th career home run, Mike Morgan allowed three hits in 6 1-3 innings Friday night to lead the Texas Rangers over the Boston Red Sox 4-1.

The 39-year-old Morgan last started at Fenway on July 24, 1979, when Yastrzemski homered in Boston's 7-3 win against Oakland.

Morgan (7-5) beat Boston for the first time in seven lifetime decisions. Tampa Bay and Arizona are the only teams in the majors Morgan has not defeated.

Morgan, who had lost his previous three decisions, won for the first time since May 13. He struck out two and walked three.

Morgan left with a runner on first in the seventh. Reliever Jeff Zimmerman got Darren Lewis to ground into an inning-ending double play.

Zimmerman closed for his first major league save, finishing the combined three-hitter.

Lee Stevens hit a solo home run in the sixth inning for a 2-1 lead. He had an RBI single in the eighth after singles by Rusty Greer and Juan Gonzalez. Todd Zeile drove in another run with a groundout.

Stevens' 12th homer landed in the center-field stands and came against Mark Portugal (3-6). Portugal is 0-4 since his last victory May 9 against Anaheim.

Troy O'Leary gave Boston a 1-0 lead in the second with his 13th homer.

Texas tied it in the fourth when Gregg Zaun singled home Gonzalez from second base.

Note: It appeared Texas rookie center fielder Ruben Mateo made an outstanding catch on Jose Offerman's drive to deep left center. It was ruled an out, but replays indicated Mateo caught the ball after it hit the wall.

Reynolds shuts out Expos to stop streak

HOUSTON (AP) — Shane Reynolds pitched a six-hitter and had an RBI double as the Houston Astros beat the Montreal Expos 5-0 Friday night to snap a three-game losing streak.

Richard Hidalgo hit a three-run homer in the third inning and Tim Bogar had a solo homer in the fourth.

Reynolds (8-6) won for the first time since May 24. He lost his next three starts, but was the pitcher of record Sunday when the game was suspended after manager Larry Dierker collapsed in the eighth inning with the Astros leading 4-1.

That game will be completed when San Diego returns to the Astrodome July 23.

Reynolds pitched his second complete game of the season for his sixth career shutout and his first since May 21, 1998 at Montreal. Reynolds finished with six strikeouts and walked one.

Reynolds retired 14 in a row after giving up a leadoff single in the fifth before Jose Vidro singled with two out in the ninth.

Reynolds doubled with two outs in the second inning for his eighth RBI of the season to give the Astros a 1-0 lead. Reynolds went 1-for-3 and is hitting .269 this season.

Tony Eusebio singled to start the inning, went to second on Dustin Hermanson's (3-7) wild pitch and took third on a groundout before Reynolds' hit to the gap in left-center field.

Hidalgo's three-run homer was his 13th of the season in 231 at-bats while starting in left field. In 273 career at-bats before this season, Hidalgo had nine home runs.

Craig Biggio led off the game with a double to center field, extending his major league lead to 30 doubles. Jeff Bagwell walked three times, extending his major league lead in walks to 61.

The Astros are 2-3 under interim manager Matt Galante since Dierker's collapse.

Seminoles make CWS Final

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Karl Jernigan's three-run homer in the 13th inning gave Florida State a 14-11 victory over Stanford on Friday and put the Seminoles into the national championship game for the first time since 1986.

It will be an all-Florida final Saturday when the Seminoles (57-13) meet top-seeded Miami (48-13). Miami won five of six games against Florida State this season.

Bobby Spano started Florida State's 13th with a leadoff walk. He went to third when Ryan Barthelemy bounced a single over the glove of first baseman John Gall, who charged after trying to hold Spano.

Jernigan then hit a 1-0 pitch from reliever Tony Cogan into the left field bleachers. He pumped his fists as he rounded the bases.

It was a script that went exactly as Miami coach Jim Morris had hoped as he watched from the stands. After Miami reached the championship game by beating Alabama on Thursday, Morris jokingly wished for extra innings to tire out whichever team survived to play the Hurricanes.

Trinity hires golf coach

Midland Trinity has announced the hiring of Doak Huddleston to be the head girls and boys golf coach and an assistant varsity coach.

Huddleston, a 1979 graduate of Permian High School and a two-year letterman and starter on the Panther football teams then went 26-2 in 1977 and 1978. He has been coaching in Odessa the last 11 years. During the last five years, Huddleston has been the head football coach and campus athletic director at Nimitz Junior High.

Huddleston inherits three returning members of the Trinity boys team that finished second in Class 3A TAPPS. Also returning on the girls team are all of the girls that qualified for the regional tournament in 1999.

Pinehurst chews up Shark; Els out

By Paul Newberry
AP Sports Writer

PINEHURST, N.C. — The Masters proved that Greg Norman's shoulder is strong enough for him to compete with the best golfers in the world. The U.S. Open showed his head still needs some work.

Thoroughly uninspired by the majestic beauty of Pinehurst No. 2, Norman failed to make the cut Friday after shooting an 8-over 78 in the second round, leaving him with an 11-over 151 total.

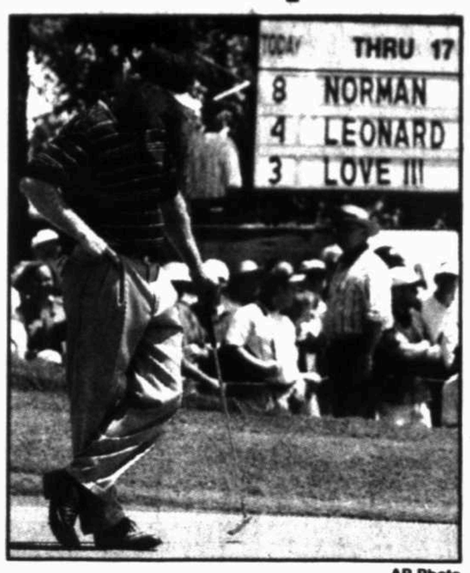

Although the Shark had played sparingly since his third-place finish at the Masters, his level of play during two days in North Carolina was shockingly inept. He started off with a 73 and hit just two of 18 greens in the second round.

"It was ugly today," Norman said after cleaning out his locker. "It's a bit of a horror story for me right now."

Among the other notables who will get to watch the final two rounds of the tournament on television are Masters champion Jose Maria Olazabal, two-time Open champion Ernie Els, Fred Couples, Mark O'Meara, Nick Faldo and Jack Nicklaus, making his 43rd consecutive Open appearance.

Chad Campbell, a former Midland College star from Andrews, also failed to make the cut, after shooting 78 Saturday.

Norman, who played only three tournaments in 1988 before undergoing shoulder surgery, came through with a stirring performance at Augusta National in early April. He was tied for the lead with five holes remaining before fading to three shots behind Olazabal.

AP Photo

The sign behind Greg Norman shows the source of his displeasure: Norman finished the second round of the U.S. Open at 8-over par and was one of several prominent players who failed to make the cut.

The Australian had played only three tournaments since the Masters for a top finish of 68th. It was hardly the kind of preparation he needed for the challenging conditions at Pinehurst.

"It's not really a physical thing for me," said Norman, a cumulative 25 over in his last four Open rounds, also missing the cut in 1997. "I guess I'd like to work on my head a little bit. I need to get fired up about playing again."

The most painful departures belonged to Olazabal, Els, Faldo and Scott Hoch.

The Spaniard angrily punched a hotel wall Thursday night after an opening-round 75, breaking a bone in his right hand. He was forced to withdraw and will be sidelined up to four weeks.

"I did something I should not have," said Olazabal, who could miss the British Open in July. "Now, I'm paying the price."

Els, who won the Open in 1994 and '97, made two double-bogeys during a round of 76, but still would have made the cut with a birdie on one of the last four holes. He missed a 25-foot putt at 16, an 18-footer at 17 and a 10-footer at 18 after a sparkling second shot, his knees buckling as the ball slid by the cup.

Asked how disappointed he was, Els replied, "I can't even explain it."

Faldo, a six-time major champion trapped in the worst slump of his career, has now missed the cut in six of his last 10 majors after consecutive rounds of 74 left him one shot short. The Englishman was 5 over with four holes remaining before three straight bogeys knocked him below the line that separates those who play and those who don't.

Hoch had an 8-foot par putt on the final hole, needing to make it to remain at 7 over and ensure his return Saturday. The ball lipped the right side of the cup, spun entirely around the edge and came to rest about an inch away. Hoch tapped in for bogey and went home.

OPEN: Duval, Stewart, Mickleson lead way

(From 1B)

Pinehurst No. 2 turned the U.S. Open into the championship it always is — a fight to survive.

Duval, the No. 1 player in the world, survived a meltdown in the bunkers by making a 12-foot birdie putt on No. 17 that gave him an even-par 70 and left him tied with Stewart and Mickelson at 137.

"You can only hope to be close to the lead come the weekend," Duval said. "And I'm going to be there."

Mickelson found out earlier Friday that his wife probably won't have their first child for another few weeks. Good thing, because Pinehurst required undivided attention to keep par in the picture.

"In a major, it's very easy to get overly excited," Mickelson said after his 70. "It's very important to try to calm down. I'm on myself to try to stay on an even keel."

Stewart had a 1-under 69 — the best score of the day — to put himself in position once again in the U.S. Open. This is the third time in the past four years that Stewart has had at least a share of the lead after 36 holes.

"The score was a good one," said Stewart, the only player to beat par two days in a row. "The way I got it was not what I envisioned, but it's what I came up with, and that's what you have to do."

How tough was the second round?

Woods had a 1-over 71 and actually agreed that he played well.

He was two strokes back at 139, despite missing two good birdie chances in the last three holes. Woods may be only 23, but he's old enough to know what the U.S. Open requires.

"I'm very pleased just to be under par — very pleased," Woods said. "I know how difficult it out there, and everyone else does, as well. But you have to hang in there."

That was no small task.

Only three players broke par — Stewart, Maggert and John Huston at 69. The course played about 2 1/2 strokes higher than the first round, and the scoring average was 5 1/2 strokes over par.

"The goal is to make pars as you stand on each tee box," Mickelson said. "And to do that takes a lot of patience."

Hal Sutton, Vijay Singh and Billy Mayfair were the only other players in the clubhouse under par, all at 139.

Masters champion Jose Maria Olazabal didn't wait for Pinehurst to beat him up. He slammed his fist into the wall of his hotel room Thursday night after opening with a 75, broke a bone in his right hand and had to withdraw.

Now, it's time to really knuckle down.

The sloped edges of Donald Ross' domed greens already were turning yellow Friday, sending balls rolling endlessly into the hollows. Just imagine what's in store for the weekend, when sunshine really starts to bake the course.

"Kind of scary when you think about it," Corey Pavin said.

Two of the past four U.S. Opens were won with a score of even par. More conditions like Friday's could lead to the first time over par has won the Open since Andy North did it at Cherry Hills in 1978.

Still in the equation is Davis Love III, despite a 73 that put him six strokes back at 143. Justin Leonard and Colin Montgomerie were at 144, while Tom Lehman and defending champion Lee Janzen barely got in at 147.

Among those who missed the cut were Fred Couples, Mark O'Meara, two-time Open champion Ernie Els and Greg Norman, who hit only two greens on Friday in his round of 78.

"If it stays breezy like this, I doubt you're going to see an under-par winner," Norman said before cleaning out his locker.

For a brief moment, Duval played as though he would prove Norman incorrect when he became the only player to get to 5 under with a birdie on No. 5, the toughest hole at Pinehurst.

But after 23 holes without a bogey, Duval made a double on the par-3 sixth when he blasted out of the bunker, past the flag and down the back of the green. Two more birdies brought him to 5 under again, but another bunker on the par-3 ninth started his slow recession back to the pack.

Mickelson made bogey from the bunker on No. 6, but birdies on Nos. 10 and 12 gave him the lead at 4 under. He made a wild bogey on No. 16, a 489-yard par-4, and Duval caught him with a birdie on the next hole.

Stewart also was at 4 under until bogeys caught up with him. He played smart, U.S. Open-type golf down the stretch, however, making important par-saving putts on the 14th, 16th and 18th holes for his 69.

Stewart also was the 36-hole leader in 1996, when he had a 76-73 on the weekend, and last year, when he led all three rounds but blew a four-stroke lead on Sunday.

"There is some unfinished business," he said.

Woods could have gone either way in the stiff breezes that dried up the course even before the sun had a chance.

He made a bogey on the par-5 fourth when his second shot hit a pine tree and caught a buried lie in the bunker, then another bogey with a three-putt on No. 6. But he never lost his cool, and made up for the mistakes with a 30-foot birdie on No. 9 and a beautifully played 3-wood putt to within inches for birdie on the par-5 10th.

Woods, who won the Masters with a record 18-under 270, has a different plan of attack for Pinehurst.

"A lot of fairways and a lot of greens," he said. "And just trying to make pars."

GOLF: Phillips leads by 5

(From 1B)

lefthanded for about 20 years. I tried (putting sidesaddle) five years ago and it just worked out."

It did more than just work out for Phillips Friday. He started out the round steadily, parring every hole on the front nine before beginning the back nine with a birdie on No. 10.

That began a string of stellar putting for Phillips, who birdied Nos. 14, 15, 16 and 18 and ended the round by one-putting the last six greens. As much as his unusual approach on the greens, Phillips feels that more favorable conditions were responsible for his even lower score in the second round.

"The greens were a little bit slower and the pins were in a little more forgiving position," Phillips said.

Tied for second behind Phillips were recent Odessa Permian graduate Austin Burk, who won the District 4-5A medalist title this past spring and Mac McGee. After Phillips, Burk and McGee each had the day's best scores at 68, and are both at 3-under 139.

Other golfers who were close behind Phillips after the first round fared with mixed results in day two. Craig McAlpine, who shot a 69 Thursday, had a 72 in the second round to stay within shouting distance of Phillips, tied for fourth at 141 with Jeff Moses.

McAlpine got off on the wrong foot by bogeying the first hole, but parred the next eight in a row before birdieing No. 10 to start the back side. Unlike Phillips, McAlpine thought Green Tree was tougher the second day.

"It was maybe a little tougher because there was more wind," McAlpine said. "I just wasn't that on today. I just made a lot of pars."

If nothing else, McAlpine was consistent. He hit every green on the back nine even though it didn't translate into a lower score.

"I always try to hit a lot of greens and work it into the pins but I just didn't get the opportunity today," McAlpine said.

Phillips, Burk and McGee will be teeing off in the top threesome today at 11:20 a.m. Besides those three, Moses and Randy Clark, who each shot 70, were the only other golfers to break par in the second round.

Phillips has definitely established himself as the man to beat over the next two days, but isn't ready to polish his trophy yet.

"I don't ever feel comfortable because nothing ever comes easy out here (at Green Tree)," said Phillips.

Marlin claims first pole in four years

Associated Press

LONG POND, Pa. — Although sitting on the pole is not unique to Sterling Marlin, a four-year drought made it seem like a new experience.

"Well, it's a new car," Marlin said Friday after breaking the track qualifying record at Pocono International Raceway. "It's a good race car. Now I hope I don't mess it up."

He certainly didn't make a mistake during his time test for the Pocono 500, getting his first pole since July 1995 by taking his Chevrolet around the 2 1/2-mile triangular oval at 170.506 mph.

"That was a perfect lap," said Marlin, who needed it to edge Dale Jarrett, the Winston Cup points leader.

Jarrett got his Ford up to 169.952, and will start Sunday on the outside of the front row.

"I wouldn't say it was comfortable, but it was fast," Jarrett said, giving most of the credit to crew chief Todd Parrott. "We weren't that happy about what we had when we unloaded, but Todd and the guys gave me something I could really be aggressive with."

Marlin felt the same way, although he knew how good the car was from the moment practice began.

"It came off the truck fast," said Marlin, who claimed the 10th pole of his career, but first in 123 races overall and in 28 tries at Pocono.

Jarrett, who leads Jeff Burton by 66 points, is coming off a rout of the field last week in Brooklyn, Mich. He is using the same car.

"The guys just cleaned it up and got it ready to go again," he said. "When you get a good car, you want to race it as much as possible."

Only Jarrett and Bobby Labonte, who is third in the driver standings, managed serious runs at Marlin.

"I tried to take it a little too easy through turn 3," Labonte said after a lap of 169.821 in a Pontiac. "I don't think I carried enough steam through there, but we're awfully happy with what we did today."

Several others weren't, notably Jeff Gordon, a disappointing 17th with a run of 168.757.

Trailing Jarrett by 349 points as he tries for a record-tying third straight series title, Gordon was hoping for better. But he was no threat to his 1996 track qualifying mark of 169.725.

"I got real, real loose out there," Gordon said after his worst qualifying effort this year. "That was the slowest we've been all day."

Not so for Marlin, who practiced fast and just kept building on that as the day progressed. He said his day wasn't without incident.

He said he nearly spun the car in practice, and realized that instability in the tight turns could be his undoing. So adjustments were made, and Marlin said team manager Tony Glover and the crew made the right call on the setup.

NHL: Stars need 1 win

(From 1B)

thing, to win the Stanley Cup."

The Stars can do that Saturday, although Buffalo is 8-1 at home in the playoffs and Ruff said of the Stars' possible clincher, "We won't want to let it happen in our building."

Friday's verbal byplay added to what already is the most competitive Stanley Cup finals since 1994 and the lowest-scoring and most defense-driven in nearly a half-century. Goaltenders Ed Belfour of Dallas and Dominik Hasek of Buffalo both have goals-against averages of 2.00, the first time that's happened in a finals since 1945.

But, unless the Sabres can score on the power play — they are 0-for-17 since late in Game 3 — the Stars may soon relocate the Stanley Cup to the Sun Belt.

"It takes 16 games to win the Stanley Cup, and we've got 15," Stars center Mike Modano said. "The anticipation of the night is overwhelming and what a great game it could be."

The first thing that strikes the listener upon hearing "Foundation," the first CD released by the Midland Christian band The Messengers is the musicianship. The vocal styles of the since-departed James Gray and the guitar work of Kyle Lent certainly sound like they come from artists much more advanced than the 17- and 18-year-olds responsible for the 10 original songs on the album.

But something else will soon occur to the listener: this music is best classi-

WHAT IT MEANS TO BE HINDU

Photos by Tim Fischer/ Reporter-Telegram

Dr. Sudhir Srivastava, top, stands with a statue of Natraj, in a dancing pose of Lord Shiva. At right, Hindu items used in worship.

Editor's Note: As part of our recurring series, "What It Means to Be ..." Religion Editor Jimmy Patterson sat down with Dr. Sudhir Srivastava, a cardiovascular and thoracic surgeon, and an authority on Hinduism. What follows is the text of their conversation on aspects of the Hindu philosophy.

Q: It's fairly impossible to briefly summarize Hinduism, isn't it?

A: To the people who wrote Hinduism's teachings, religion means the realization of our real nature. All kinds of rituals evolved out of different leaders who came along the way, so it's not really accurate to say "This is Hindu," as such.

Q: There is no single event that heralded the beginning of Hinduism is there?

A: No. The timing dates back to when the scriptures were written over 5,000 years ago by St. Ved Vyas. Prior to that, Hinduism, for a long period of time, had various seers and sages who would meditate and in their meditative state they would receive either these visions or actual mantras or pronouncements that they heard. These visions or mantras were always passed on verbally from teacher to student. That time was called The Golden Age, and people were really very dedicated to spiritual things. But Ved Vyas saw a decline developing, so he decided to put the teachings in writing. It was about 5,000 years ago that the original scriptures, like Christianity's Bible, were written.

Q: Would it be difficult for a Westerner — Christian or Jew — to make comparisons between his or her faith and Hinduism?

A: Not really. The fundamentals are much the same, actually, if you take Hinduism to its highest. In any religious philosophy, there are very fundamental teachings of principles. Then different leaders who would propagate the philosophy in their own way would come along. So we come up with different sects and groups who ultimately believe in the same principles but have a different way of approaching it. In that sense, especially in Christianity and Hinduism, there is more in common at the fundamental level than differences really. The oneness of God. The Holy Trinity that Christians have is also described in Hinduism. The principle of love, when someone asked where shall I find the kingdom of heaven, Jesus said, "Within." And "Know thyself." In Hinduism, higher consciousness is described as Brahman. When it refers to the self, Christianity is saying through the philosophy of non-dualism, that there is only one. All the manifestations that we see in and around us are purely God becoming this. It's like Jesus said, "I am in you, you are in me."

'99 is becoming an important year for ecumenical progress

By Richard N. Ostling
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK — People seldom list progress toward Christian unity as a hallmark of Pope John Paul II's reign. In fact, critics sometimes treat his two decades on the throne of Peter as a dry period for ecumenism. Yet 1999 is turning out to be an important year in spiritual geopolitics.

Most of the Vatican's negotiations with other Christians were launched before John Paul took office, but he has fostered the process and his 1995 encyclical "Ut Unum Sint," or "That They May Be One," reaffirmed the centrality of the task.

To ordinary churchgoers, the theological issues involved in these talks seem arcane. But they have defined whole cultures for centuries and continue to sunder Christianity.

The latest breakthrough occurred last week. The Holy See, representing a billion believers, and the Lutheran World Federation, with a flock of 57 million, announced an accord on "justification," the doctrine that first caused Martin Luther to launch the Protestant Reformation. The agreement will be signed Oct. 31 in Augsburg, Germany, 482 years to the day after Luther posted his "95 Theses" against t he papacy.

The heart of the new Lutheran-Catholic accord reads:

"Together we confess: By grace alone, in faith in Christ's saving work and not because of any merit on our part, we are accepted by God and receive the Holy Spirit, who renews our hearts while equipping and calling us to good works."

If salvation doesn't depend on a person's charitable deeds or piety, that sounds just like what Luther said St. Paul taught in the New Testament. But both sides now explain that, despite past misunderstandings, Protestants and Catholics really agree on this.

The Lutherans endorsed the main agreement a year ago. But Rome had more of a struggle over certain technical points so the two sides had to work out a further "annex" to the main document.

The Lutheran accord came a month after release of a discussion paper on church authority from theologians representing the Vatican and the 55 million Anglicans and Episcopalians. The text says that Christian teaching normally is stated collectively by bishops and accepted by the church membership. But "in certain circumstances" the pope by himself can defining doctrine, and that authority is "a gift to be received by all the churches."

No accord is on the horizon here, just discussion. At the moment it seems unlikely that Anglicanism would ever accept papal teaching authority.

Those disputes are young compared with the rift between Rome and the churches of the East, which date back a millennium or more. Here too, the parties are talking.

Such discussions won't change church life tomorrow, or next year. But "seeds are being sown" to overcome misunderstandings that have persisted for centuries, said the Rev. Richard John Neuhaus, a Lutheran turned Catholic and editor of First Things magazine.

The Good Book: Mark

(Pt. 42 of 66)

Overview:

Like Matthew, Luke's gospel was probably written around A.D. 80, approximately 50 years after Jesus' death and resurrection. Addressed to one by the name of Theophilus (lover of God in Greek), Luke's gospel makes an appeal to the Gentile world of early Christianity. Luke traces Jesus' genealogy back to Adam, indicating that universal nature of his mission. Jesus is portrayed as one who reaches across traditional Jewish boundaries to include such people as women, tax collectors, the poor, harlots, prodigals, Samaritans and Gentiles in the kingdom of God. Jesus' mission meets with great resistance. Religious leaders complain that he, "welcomes sinners and eats with them."

Theme Passage:

15:3-7 So he told them this parable: "Which one of you, having a hundred sheep and losing one of them, does not leave the ninety-nine in the wilderness and go after the one that is lost until he finds it? And when he comes home he calls together his friends and neighbors, saying to them, 'Rejoice with me, for I have found my sheep that was lost.' Just so, I tell you, there will be more joy in heaven over one sinner who repents than over ninety-nine righteous persons who need no repentance."

— Source: Oxford Annotated Bible; the Rev. Bill Clark, pastor, Grace Presbyterian Church.

VINCENT KITUKU

Should success bring solace or anguish?

Success is relative. Some consider themselves successful in life when they have; the career of their dreams, financial independence, a winning season in athletics or the house of their desire.

Kituku

This generation is more successful in many ways than any other generation. Advancement in technology has allowed us to do business worldwide, anytime. One doesn't have to leave his or car to make a call or send e-mail. You don't have to wait for days before getting loan for a business or family trip, it's done in hours. To know what's happening anywhere, you get onto the Internet or surf through channels. We do these things searching for a sense of accomplishment.

But, do they bring accomplishment? Does constant doing and accumulation bring solace to our lives? Do you spending enormous time, effort and resources to keep up with your "successful" status? Are you happier now looking back on your life than when you were young looking forward to life? Is your relationship with God better now or has it suffered from your "success?" Has your family closeness suffered? How is your mental and physical health now that you are successful?

We are the most divorced generation. We are the most stressed generation. Illegal drug abuse is rampant in our generation, even among those whom we think have "made it." We are peculiar generation, we may know what's going on in Kosovo before knowing our neighbors. We can cry for an extra piece of chocolate cake before thinking of the starving masses.

Has our success brought solace or anguish?

Elizabeth Dole, speaking at a Trainers Conference in Chicago recently said, "Seeking to make America better, we neglected that which made her good." At individual level, what should we avoid to neglect as we seek to better ourselves? What can one do in order to be successful in his or her life purpose and maintain healthy relationship with God and family while taking care of his or her health?

King Hezekiah, in 2 Kings 18:3-7, gives us the foundation of rewarding prosperity. It is affordable for everyone and applicable in any demographic set up.

1. Remove high places. Before Hezekiah became a King, people worshiped images in the high place instead of worshipping God. Hezekiah tore those places down, broke the images and cut down the groves. Anything which given prominence in life more than God is a "high place." It could be a career, a habit, material possession, or social status. What do you miss most, reading the newspaper or reading your Bible in the morning? What disturbs you the most: a scratch on your car, or something in your heart that needs confession? A church service that is 20 minutes too long or a Super Bowl that take 6 hours after church? What bothers you the most, spiritual emptiness or financial bankruptcy?

2. Call things by their right name. The brass serpent which was a symbol

HINDU: Reincarnation a central belief in Indian philosophy

From 1C

And he would answer "I and my father are one." When we go beyond the words and analyze them, there are more similarities: The principle of non-violence, love and service, all are very, very common to both Hindu and Christian philosophies. The principle of reincarnation is often mentioned as the difference between the two. But again in Christianity, it has been mentioned: "Thou shall be born again and again until you enter the kingdom of heaven, not of flesh and blood but of the spirit."

Q: Hinduism teaches acceptance of other beliefs, too, right?

A: Hinduism has always taught that God is like an ocean and different rivers merge into it, symbolizing total acceptance of all beliefs and all faiths, it's just a different way of reaching the same goal. Hinduism teaches a greater tolerance of every diversity that exists around us.

Q: Is the God of Christianity and Judaism the same God of Hinduism?

A: There is only one God, we just call him by different names.

Q: You have no leader of your philosophy?

A: Different subgroups have evolved based on gurus or incarnations. The people who wrote the Vedas were so humble and elevated, there are no names identified. They always remain anonymous. In Indian history, there have been many incarnations similar to Jesus, that we know. There are people who follow Lord Krishna, for instance. The term "avathar" means the manifestation of divine in a form. It is also said that when divine incarnates in human form it takes upon the limitation of the form and that's why we don't have one person living eternally in the physical form we understand.

Q: Buddha is one of the gods of Hinduism?

A: One of the incarnations of Hinduism.

Q: So there are similarities between Hinduism and Buddhism?

A: Buddhism is an offshoot of Hinduism. Mistakenly, it is considered almost an atheistic religion, which is sort of an oxymoron. Buddha's teachings were of the highest order in terms of realization. Only thing was that one of the common statements that was very popular is that a person who searches for this abstract God is likely a man who is wounded with an arrow and without removing the arrow he is looking for who shot it. So he kind of brought it down to common man's perspective, to try to do the best, to do good with non-violence and through the principles taught in all religions. He taught that, but he said do good here and don't worry about anything else because ultimately you will have the realization if you follow a certain path.

Q: Are all reincarnations of an earthly sort?

A: No, they are at all different planes. If you were to simply take the word reincarnation, all it means is continuity. The physical is mortal. The mind related to the physical is mortal. What continues are the impressions that we all gather over our existences. If we look around at our world we find that different people are born into different stages of evolution. If you look at Mozart, at 5, he was composing beautiful symphonies. Some mathematicians are geniuses at a very young age. We see a tremendous difference in the world. We all come with different tendencies and spiritual evolution levels. For today's kids, it is so easy for them to learn the computer while some of us try and continue to struggle. Why do we all have different tendencies? We are all children of God. No family or church or temple teaches us to do anything different except the unique principles of their religion. What it comes down to is, in the end, there is only one soul truly speaking, and that is none other than God, this force that has manifested everything and, in fact, has become everything. So our existence is totally dependent on God consciousness or the God force or life force that is everywhere. We see life force in an atom just as we see life force in a human being. What is considered the soul in Hinduism is individuality, personality, the mental impressions that are formed. The mind in Hinduism is considered an energy.

Q: So reincarnation is merely a part of the process of life?

A: A child who is born with multiple congenital deformities or holes in the heart, who dies a week later, what happens to his evolution? When you start asking these pointed questions, you've got to realize there has to be continuity. Like anything else, what is born must die and what is life can never die, truly speaking. In fact, death is a process of life. It's only a transformation, it is not the end of life.

Q: How is Jesus Christ viewed in a Hindu's eyes?

A: As another incarnation of divinity. He is a manifestation of God.

Q: What is the greatest misconception of your faith?

A: I think somehow that it is very mysterious, very primitive, based on maybe some rituals. Another real serious misconception is that the cow is holy. That is a serious misconception.

Q: But cows were sacred at one time?

A: If you go back in time, when society was in Golden Age, people were involved in tremendous spiritual practices. The cow was the giver of all kind of things to sustain life, such as milk for the child. The cow is a giver, like the mother. If you kill the cow, the souls of all of these things you will be killing. In Hinduism all different forces of nature are worshiped. Sun is worshiped. Moon is worshiped. Earth is worshiped. Water is worshiped. Wind is worshiped. It is said that these are all givers in this form of life so we have tremendous respect for them. If sun is not there we would not have this form of life sustained. Another misconception is that there are so many gods and goddesses in Hinduism. The reason is that each of these aspects of nature are worshiped with respect.

Q: Several years ago, was another misconception that all Hindus were Hare Krishnas who asked for donations at the airport?

A: Very serious misconception. The Hare Krishna movement was started by one of the gurus that had come. A lot of students took it up and unfortunately they started to propagate. Hinduism has never been a missionary philosophy. We do not find people or convert people. The need was never felt, because all religions are just different ways to reach the same point, so it doesn't matter.

Q: Explain the caste system? Is there a need to separate people by class in the Hindu philosophy?

A: This was a distortion that occurred 1,000 to 1,500 years ago. That is not a teaching of Hinduism. We all have classes in every society in the world: A class of intellectuals, of rulers, of workers and of business people. Those are the four main groups you find in the world. Unfortunately, the priest class in India, to kind of keep themselves superior, they created this so-called caste system, which is very unfortunate. It is still existent, but most people have gone away from it completely. People like Mahatma Ghandi opposed it very much. Most people now in present day society do not care, though there are segments that are very traditional, and they will only marry people but within their same caste.

Q: All the Hindus in West Texas, would they be considered in the intellectual caste?

A: Pretty much, yes. Most are physicians, engineers or business people.

Q: How many Hindus in Midland-Odessa and in America?

A: About 200-250 families, which is about 600-700 total, locally. In America, about 1 million.

Q: Another of your beliefs is that life has four goals: righteousness, earthly prosperity and success, pleasure and spiritual liberation. Why are these four held in such high regard?

A: There are different stages of life in Hinduism. Through the vedas, in the old times there were four stages described. Then, the average stage of life was 100 years, even though people lived much longer in the past. From birth to 25 was a time for student life whereby a rigorous discipline would exist. Students would go through learning part for whatever his tendencies were. There is no sexual activity during this time. For next 25 years, from 26-50, was the family life period, whereby people would get married. They would work based on whatever they learned, and contribute back to society, and raise the family. The learning of the spiritual things continues. The next 25 years, from 51-75, would be preparing for the final spiritual goal. Let's say by the time a person reaches 50, he has accomplished most of the so-called worldly things, brought the family up, did his worldly duties and it is time to kind of wind down his affairs and thereby gradually he will spend more time preparing himself, and detaching himself from the worldly affairs. Sexual things will take a back seat so mind can be more focused on spiritual pursuit. The last 25 years are to give up everything worldly literally, and spend that time completely for spiritual pursuit to attain the final goal of self-realization. It has been noted if you mix these things, you will have chaos.

Q: Do Hindus take stances on social issues such as abortion and homosexuality?

A: Hinduism as such, no. They are considered purely social problems. When you talk of Hinduism, everything is accepted as God's plan for whatever reason. Sometimes we don't understand or approve, but that's how it is. So very quickly a separation occurs where you don't become judgmental about such things. In India, traditionally, abortions are looked down on traditionally, because it is said that one should not have sex before marriage and that means you don't expect people to have children. The same thing with homosexuality. I don't think Hinduism has taken any position as such. But again these issues are looked down upon because homosexuality, in the traditional sense, in a sense of spirituality is that someone is caught up with the sex part of things. Since the goals are ultimately spiritual realization and self-realization, anything that obstructs that is considered not so healthful. Anything that will slow down your progress toward spiritual realization is considered evil. The ultimate goal is spiritual achievement.

MESSENGERS: Band learns much patience from series of delays and disappointments fied as Christian blues, two formats not commonly found together. What is even rarer is that on those occasions when blues and Christian music are merged together, the music is usually done by artists in their 40s and 50s, people like Glen Kaiser, Darrell Mansfield and Larry Howard. Not by high school students.

Members of the band say if nothing else, they were taught the value of patience over the last several months while enduring the process of recording and releasing the CD.

"We started last July and finished recording in August," said Lewis Franklin, one of the original members and the group's bassist. "We hoped to have it out by last September but we took it to a company to do the graphics and it took longer. The bids were a lot more than we expected. We finally found a company, but they had problems with a bad graphic format file. Then they told us they were finished, and they weren't." Finally, "Foundation" was released in late May.

Despite the disappointments and delays, the band members remain thankful and upbeat because of the experience.

"It was definitely worth it, just for the experience we gained," Franklin said. "Even if we hadn't gotten the CD released, just being in the studio was a big lesson."

Kyle Lent, who has recently been named lead vocalist after original vocalist Gray went to college, said there was definitely some disappointment with the process, but he also painted the experience as a positive one.

"It was a pretty big process for us," Lent, 17, said. "We initially went into it thinking it would just take a couple of months, but it ended up taking a lot longer. It was definitely a learning process. God tested our patience on every aspect of it.

"Delays are something we heard about the more we went through the process. We've heard it just takes a long time. It was sorta frustrating."

Other members of the band include keyboardist Byron Simpson, drummer Patrick Quain, rhythm guitarist Paul Greene and saxophonist Matt Glass.

The end result is a CD praised for its mature sound in spite of the members' young ages.

Their songs are sometimes straight praise and worship, and other times contain implied messages, such as in "Seen Her Last," a story about a man returning from a female friend's funeral after she commits suicide. The surviving friend is regretful he never had the chance to share his faith with her. The song never mentions Christ or religion, but the message is understood through the song's lyrics.

After opening the album with five straight-ahead blues-rock songs, "Seen Her Last" ushers in a more somber tone for the record. The record closes with "Party of Four," a barebones effort which features only a guitar and bass line with vocals from David Graham, a friend who, as a going away present before he left for college, was invited to record with the band. A vocal splitter turned Graham's voice into multiple voices and the result is a bluesy quartet-song with scant instrumentation.

Just as interesting is the story behind the album's cover art, which is a drawing of a fishing dock at a private pond in East Texas.

"It came from one of my best friends who had cancer," Franklin said. The friend is Jarod Hazlett, a Midland Lee senior who was diagnosed three years ago with cancer in his knee, and has since recovered.

"The picture is of his grandfather's pond," Franklin said. "It was an old dock we used to fish off of. I took a picture of it and forgot about the roll of film. We finally had it developed and felt that the scene just set a mood for us. It's kind of a peaceful, calming picture. Makes you think happy thoughts."

The Messengers face a future that is admittedly uncertain. Gray has already left for college, and will be followed this summer by Franklin, who will attend Baylor, and Byron Simpson, who will undergo his schooling at SMU in Dallas. The possibility exists that the group will disband during the member's college years.

"We're going to try to play a lot this summer," Franklin said. "We'll just be focusing on getting a lot of playing time together. We're not exactly 100 percent sure of what happens when we leave for school.

"It's definitely been a trial, but it's been worth every minute of it," Franklin said.

KITUKU: Keep God's commandments

(From 1C)

of one's acceptance of God's power, thus avoid instant death from scorpion bites, had become something to worship. Hezekiah called it by it's name, Nahushtan. Right is right. Wrong is wrong even if it's passed on from generation to generation. A far east proverb says, "wisdom begins by calling things by their right names." Are your spiritual and social perspectives defined by popular culture or the word of God?

3. Trust in God. Trusting in God relegates everything else to secondary status in our lives. When in a business venture, do you first consult Forbes's directions or God's guidance? When sick, do you first think of praying or calling your doctor? What gives you the most comfort, life insurance or hope of eternal life? Business knowledge, medical help and insurance are blessings. Trusting them more than God is the issue. See Proverbs 3:5-7.

Cleave to the Lord. Before cleaving comes, leaving. To cleave to God, His directions and admonitions, one has to leave anything contrary to His guidelines. Deep relationship with God is the result of broken ties with that which is un-Godly.

Keep God's commandments. Elizabeth Dole also said, "We can never make enough rules. What we need is individual character." There is a myriad of laws that are enacted year after year, some to out-law previous ones. God's commandments encompasses life principles that create environment for character development. Joshua was admonished to keep the book of the law, "mediate therein day and night..." and to observe to do what is written in it. Only then would his way be prosperous and "have good success."

Kindred shares stories of S. American music mission at Our Savior

Kindred, also made up of Fernando Jose Ayala, Lisa Beuerman, Martha Boyle and Abby Forbes, didn't even know each other until last August.

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff writer

With its message of Christ's love spread through music, Kindred, a group of five performers, most of whom are from the Northeast and Midwest, recently completed a tour of several South American countries and returned to the states with a revue of their show for the congregation at Our Savior's Lutheran Church.

The group visited Our Savior's prior to its departure last fall. On return, members "shared experiences we had in South America and to encourage and tell the people at Our Savior about their brothers and sisters in Christ in those countries," according to Jason Van Hove, a member of the group from Thompson, Iowa. "We had a wide variety of experiences. We shared and learned from people in both the higher classes in the larger cities and from people in smaller villages generally of the lower class."

Kindred, also made up of Fernando Jose Ayala, Lisa Beuerman, Martha Boyle and Abby Forbes, didn't even know each other until last August. They came together thanks to a group application, interview process and a lot of prayer.

Kindred toured Colombia, Ecuador, Peru and Bolivia.

"We mainly visited churches, but also school and orphanages and the open market," said Martha Boyle, Kindred's member from Havre de Grace, Maryland. "We would minister outside of a marketplace, and we would get to know the people then do a program in Spanish similar to the one we do in English."

Now that their mission work as a group is complete after four months abroad, Kindred's members will embark upon their professional careers. Ayala's degree is in chemical engineering; Beuerman will pursue a career in education; Forbes will finish her degree work in theater, and Boyle and Van Hove both have Spanish degrees.

"Often we think God is small and just in our church," Van Hove said. "But, definitely God is a huge, powerful and loving God. He can work in other places and wherever we are."

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, June 19, 1999:

Sometimes you are extremely hard on yourself — hypercritical of your every word, gesture and action. Give yourself a break! You have a lot to offer, though you could often work against yourself and become exhausted. Slow down, stay centered, don't push yourself so much. If you are single, your quick wit and your high intelligence draw others. However, choosing with whom you will be open is important. You could feel quite vulnerable. Check out new friends carefully; one could be emotionally unavailable. If attached, spend more quality time with your mate. Let your relationship grow through sharing. VIRGO is sensitive to your moods.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★ Build on established security. Do work and handle business if you feel like it. Romance seems to backfire right now; everyone sees life on the dark side. Remain focused. Put your energy where it makes a difference. Tonight: Make it easy!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ Allow others to play larger roles in your choices and your life. Sometimes you might feel that another really cramps your style. Though it certainly isn't intentional, a family member might withdraw. He wants more from you than you want to give. Tonight: Allow your imagination to go haywire.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★ A family member needs attention. Though you could feel bogged down by another's demands, he is reflecting your own thoughts. That's why he's getting to you! What is meant as a caring gesture backfires. Misunderstandings seem to occur out of the blue. Tonight: Barbecue.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ Your extravagance has repercussions, though you might not understand why. Focus on good communication, your social life and a long-term friendship. A get-together might seem a bit dull, but it is a must. Open up to new people. Tonight: Play it conservatively.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Listen to feedback from someone whom you respect but who could be harsh. Understand, though, that he could just be having a "bad hair day." Discussions surround a major purchase which could help your career and your day-to-day life. Tonight: Somehow, the cost lands on you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ You might not always understand what's eating at others. In fact, you could think someone is simply cold and difficult. However, you don't know what he is going through. Listen carefully to feedback from another at a distance. Tonight: Let your caring help others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★ Take a deep breath and think before you leap into action. Better still, defer any response. Your best intentions could go awry because a partner simply doesn't understand. A lot of problems surround this person, in general. Tonight: Slow down.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ A friend is a bit tough on you sometimes. Another wants your attention. You shine and draw others. Could someone in your social circle be jealous? Get together with a group; there is nothing like being with your friends. Tonight: Where the crowds are.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Sometimes even you can't put on your game face. Be honest about your energy levels and about what you can and will do. Others make demands. Get into work or do whatever you need to do to make the day run more smoothly. Listen to feedback from an older family member. Tonight: In the limelight!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Reach out for others, make a point of understanding them. Schedule a trip or a get-together. Make an effort to get past an immediate hassle with a partner. You might not be responding to his loving gestures in what he deems an appropriate manner. Tonight: Do something totally different.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ Take time with key friends or with one special person in your life. Release your tendency to scatter. A personal or domestic issue poses a question, but also a reason for discussion. Entertain at home; make it an exclusive get-together. Tonight: Warm and sizzling.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Others seek you out, but there are certain plans you would prefer not to change. Decide what your priorities are and what can be canceled. Allow others to offer suggestions. Gather with friends, swap jokes and catch up on news. Tonight: Out for dinner.

Crystal to host opening ceremony

RALEIGH, N.C. — Arnold Schwarzenegger, wife Maria Shriver and rocker Jon Bon Jovi will participate in the opening ceremony for the 10th Special Olympics World Summer Games.

Billy Crystal will be host of the 4 1/2-hour event, which will be held June 26 at Carter Finley Stadium here. The Special Olympics will run through July 4.

Arnold Schwarzenegger, wife Maria Shriver and rocker Jon Bon Jovi will participate in the opening ceremony for the 10th Special Olympics World Summer Games.

Schwarzenegger and Ms. Shriver are expected to introduce the parade of athletes — more than 7,000 of them from 150 countries — as they march into the stadium. Bon Jovi, a longtime Special Olympics supporter, is expected to march in with the New Jersey delegation.

Rock band Sugar Ray will perform during the opening ceremonies, and the Rev. Billy Graham will offer the invocation.

Ms. Shriver's mother, Eunice Kennedy Shriver, founded the Special Olympics more than 30 years ago to celebrate the accomplishments of athletes who are retarded.

LONDON — Three out of five Britons believe that if Prince Charles were to marry longtime love Camilla Parker Bowles, he should still be allowed to be king, a poll published Friday found.

That number — 59 percent — is up from 28 percent in the days after the death of Princess Diana in 1997, according to the poll by the MORI research group for The Sun, Britain's largest-selling tabloid newspaper.

In the survey of 806 adults, 65 percent said the prince and Mrs. Parker Bowles should continue their relationship and 53 percent said they should live together. The poll had a margin of error of 3 percentage points.

LOS ANGELES — Jay Leno the car collector sure knows a lemon when he sees one.

The "Tonight Show" host was presiding over a Petersen Automotive Museum auction Thursday when bidding opened for the privilege of dinner with museum director Ken Gross.

Leno decided it wouldn't be much of a moneymaker.

"How much will you pay NOT to have dinner with Ken Gross?" Leno asked the crowd of 1,300 at the museum gala.

The audience immediately surged to the podium with $20 bills, which were collected by Gross himself.

In under three minutes, more than $500 was raised.

LOS ANGELES — Hugh Hefner is hip again.

Universal Pictures and Imagine Entertainment's Brian Grazer and Ron Howard are planning a movie biography of the Playboy founder.

"He's cool again," Grazer said. "His lifestyle and how he handles his life is very upfront and not excessive in a way that is hurting anyone. He's not a gangster who's hurting anyone."

Hefner said in Friday's Daily Variety that he sold the rights to his story because "the time seems right."

"The magazine is a hot property and I am much in the media," he said.

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Charles Kuralt's widow has backed out of plans to give Minnesota Public Radio two stations that belonged to her husband.

MPR is trying to sort out why Suzanna Kuralt instead sold the Ely stations to a group of investors for an undisclosed amount.

Earlier this week, Mrs. Kuralt had prepared a statement saying the gift of the stations to MPR would fulfill her husband's goal of bringing a top station to Ely, a town on the edge of the wilderness that he discovered when he canoed in the area in the 1960s.

The Kuralt estate's attorney refused to comment on Friday.

Mrs. Kuralt, however, did pledge $5,000 to the network in appreciation of its "broadcasting excellence."

"Let me help you make Classified your key to success!"

GENERAL INFORMATION:

To ensure the integrity of our newspaper, for the benefit of our readers and advertisers, the Midland Reporter- Telegram reserves the right the revise, reclassify, edit or refuse any advertising. We also reserve the right to convert all advertising into digital and/or audio-text formats within our other products and services.

Please check your ad the first day it appears, and, if you find a mistake, please call our office at 682-6222 so we can correct the error immediately. This will ensure that your ad is exactly what you want readers to see. If an error does occur, you can choose to rerun your ad once for free, or we'll gladly refund the cost of the portion of the ad affected by the error. If an ad is inadvertently omitted, we will assume liability up to the cost of the ad itself – consequently, we will publish your ad in our next available edition or refund the price you have paid.

Rate charges are determined at the time of placement. All ads accepted are subject to credit approval. Some classifications require payment in advance. Credit applications are required for business accounts.

We welcome your suggestions or comments. Please call: Ember Hasenkamp, Telephone Sales Supervisor, 687-8813.

HOUSEHOLD ITEMS:

Do you have furniture, appliances, or other unwanted household items? If so, don't let these items take up precious storage space. We've got 3 economical ways for you to turn clutter into cash!

❶ Super Seller I - We'll advertise your household item (priced under $350) for… 7 DAYS 15 WORDS $10.50

❷ Super Seller II - We'll advertise your household item (priced under $150) for… 7 DAYS 15 WORDS $5.50

Write an ad with 15 words to describe your household furniture or appliance and call today!

❸ Free Bee - …That's right, we'll advertise your household item (priced under $50) for 4 days absolutely FREE! 4 DAYS 15 WORDS FREE

(Mon. - Thur.) Submit your 15 word ad in writing (please fax it, mail it, or bring it in).

All of our specials are for private, non-commercial individuals only and some specials require pre-payment, some do not. One item per ad please. One FREE BEE per family per week. Call 682-6222 for complete details.

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE:

❶ Sure Sell - Advertise anything on wheels, until it sells. That's right, everyday, as long as it takes! 20 WORDS UNTIL IT SELLS $29.95

Think of 20 words to describe your vehicle (including the price) and call us today!

❷ Real Wheel Deal - Advertise anything on wheels, with a photo, for 14 days. 20 WORDS WITH PHOTO $25.50

You'll get 24 words to describe your vehicle. You can bring a photo to us or we'll take one for you! Call us today for details.

❸ Sell It In 10 - Advertise anything on wheels for 10 days. In the unlikely event that it doesn't sell, we'll run it for 10 more days FREE! If it still doesn't sell, we'll run it 10 more days FREE if you drop the price 10%. 4 LINES 10 DAYS FREE $20.50

You'll get 4 lines to describe your vehicle (that's about 18 words, including the price). If you would like more information in your ad, each additional line is only $5.

All of our specials are for private, non-commercial individuals only and some specials require pre-payment, some do not. One item per ad please. Call 682-6222 for complete details.

PLACING AN AD:

Call 682-6222, Monday through Friday, from 8a.m. – 6p.m.

A friendly Advertising Consultant will help you word and schedule your ad for best results.

HOW TO WRITE A CLASSIFIED AD THAT WORKS!

❶ A Benefit Headline - Answer the buyer's question, "What's in it for me?" Select the main benefit of the item you are selling and write a compelling headline.

❷ The Body Copy - Make sure your information is clear, concise and complete. Stress benefits. Avoid abbreviations whenever possible.

❸ The Price - Don't be afraid to quote your price. 52% of readers won't respond to an ad that does not include a price.

❹ Call to Action - Urge readers to buy now.

TOP TEN REASONS TO BUY YOUR NEW VEHICLE FROM A MIDLAND DEALER

1. PRICING: New car dealers buy direct from the manufacturers. Prices are equalized no matter how far the dealer is from the factory. You can be assured that you're getting the best price possible on your new vehicle.

2. SELECTION: Dealers have a tremendous inventory and quick access to a wide selection of models, options, colors and safety features that meet your needs.

3. REBATES: Dealers offer you attractive manufacturer rebates that can bring you substantial savings.

4. SERVICE/REPAIRS: By maintaining your car according to the manufacturer's maintenance schedule you can retain better value and increase the life of your vehicle. Dealers employ factory-certified mechanics.

5. REGULATIONS: Dealers must comply with all federal, state and local laws, as well as standards established by the vehicle manufacturers.

6. WARRANTIES: Dealers employ factory-trained professionals to perform warranty work. Dealers can provide extended factory warranties and other factory sponsored products that protect your investment.

7. FINANCING: Dealers offer attractive financing rates through a number of sources which could result in monthly payments to fit your budget.

8. STABILITY: You can feel confident knowing that they will be available to provide service and support long after you make your purchase.

9. PRODUCT KNOWLEDGE: Dealers and their sales and service personnel are equipped with specialized knowledge of their particular product lines, giving you valuable information on vehicle performance.

10. COMMITMENT: Dealers are committed to the community, employing skilled professionals, generating tax revenues and participating in civic, cultural and charitable activities. They value lasting relationships with customers and a variety of businesses to build your trust and your loyalty.
