Midlanders are invited to voice their opinions concerning the school district's possible bond election in an open forum at 7:15 p.m. tonight. School-board trustees will host the forum in the Midland High School auditorium. The public is invited to attend and speak before the board. The school board-appointed advisory committee recommended a $13.4 million bond issue, which included all construction and renovations in the school district's $24.5 million October bond issue, with the exception of a junior high school.

Daily News set?

NEW YORK — Leaders of three unions at The Daily News reached agreements on tentative contracts Monday night with Robert Maxwell, the British publisher who is seeking to buy the paper. The accords — with the paperhandlers, the machinists and the electricians — came after both sides had extended their talks for 12 hours beyond a morning deadline Maxwell had set for coming to terms with nine unions that have been on strike since Oct. 25. Bargaining sessions with the other six unions continued late into the night. George E. McDonald, the head of the Allied Printing Trades Council, the unions' umbrella group, said at 11 p.m. that agreements were close with at least three of the other unions.

Thatcher in Texas

DALLAS — Former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said Monday that allied forces may have to remain in the Persian Gulf region until "the position in Iraq is much clearer." Mrs. Thatcher said Iraq has produced and used chemical weapons in the past and "no assurance from her will be good enough. We must go and observe through inspection that those terrible weapons have in fact been destroyed." Mrs. Thatcher, who spoke before an estimated 2,000 people at the North Dallas Chamber of Commerce annual meeting Monday. The Dallas visit combined business and pleasure, since Mrs. Thatcher's son, Mark, lives here.

Panel pitches revised school-bond package

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

The school board-appointed bond advisory committee, citing a dramatic need for additional space, is betting that Midlanders will vote for a smaller, less controversial bond package — with no tax increase.

Steve Davidson, chairman of the 15-member committee, said the schools are overcrowded and renovations and construction are necessary, but a junior high school will have to be put on the back burner.

Davidson

Davidson announced the committee's recommendation in a 10 a.m. news conference Monday at First City Bank.

The committee recommended a bond issue not to exceed $13,375,000.

"An analysis of the outstanding debt of the district which is currently $21,000,000 indicates that a bond issue of this amount will

White House opposes diversion of oil imports

■ OPEC meets/4C

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration opposed a proposal Monday to require that a percentage of oil imports be diverted to the strategic petroleum reserve and the military.

The diversion would increase prices just like a tariff or import fee, the administration argued.

But the chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, backing the proposal, insisted, "It's a sacrifice that should be made."

The chairman, Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., acknowledged that forcing importers to provide oil for the reserve and for military use could increase the cost of imported oil by about 9 percent — about $1.70 a barrel or 4 cents a

JERUSALEM — On a day of mourning and more bloodshed, Secretary of State James A. Baker III flew to Israel on Monday and immediately prodded the government to embrace new approaches to solve the Arab-Israeli conflict.

After a working dinner with Foreign Minister David Levy, Baker said his talks with leaders of eight Arab states had revealed "signs of new thinking" and "a willingness to consider new approaches" to solve the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Whether that attitude "ripens to concrete commitment will depend in large part if there's a similar attitude coming from the other side of the equation, and we hope very much there will be," Baker said with Levy at his side.

Levy said Baker's account of the Arab talks contained "definitely encouraging signs that were not there yesterday or the day before."

Baker — who meets today with Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, Israeli opposition leaders and a Palestinian delegation — said he did not ask Levy to accept the principle of exchanging land for peace, which Washington supports but Jerusalem rejects.

"I do not come to Israel, to the region, with any specific blueprint with regard to peace," Baker said.

He came "to reason, to cajole, to plead and to offer our good offices to see if we can seize this opportunity for peace," Baker said. He advocated moving ahead simultaneously with efforts to solve the Israeli-Palestinian and Arab-Israeli

Iraqi troops shell Shiites in holy city

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Saddam Hussein's troops shelled Shiite Muslim rebels in mosques in the besieged holy city of Karbala, and defected by the tens of thousands elsewhere, opposition leaders reported Monday.

They said the Shiite fighters, as well as civilians trapped in the crossfire, were being slaughtered, and that 500 have been killed or wounded since Friday.

The Patriotic Union of Kurdistan claimed the government has rounded up 5,000 Kurds, mostly women and children, and is using them as human shields to forestall an attack on the oil industry city of Kirkuk.

PUK also said rebels had been able to seize the strategic oil town of Khanakin, about 36 miles from Baghdad.

Official sources in Baghdad claimed Republican Guard troops have reestablished control of Karbala, 60 miles south of the Iraqi capital, after several days of fierce combat.

They gave no details. But Saddam's forces appear to have been isolating centers of resistance such as Karbala and the southern port city of Basra and pounding them with artillery and tanks.

Karbala, famed for its mosques, is revered by Shiites as the burial place of Imam Hussein, grandson of the County might pull branch library

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

Midland County commissioners threatened Monday to pull the branch library out of Midland Park Mall if the owners fail to produce a more lucrative rent offer.

Commissioners scoffed at the Dallas-based Simon Development Co.'s proposal to increase the rent and add other charges.

"That's cause for alarm," Commissioner Durward Wright said. "A whole lot of things bother me relative to this thing. I have a substantial objection to it."

The county pays $11,000 annually, or $8 a square foot, for the library's 1,375 square feet of mall space. That does not include payment for maintenance, electricity, water and other costs.

The spot, located in a northeast corner, has been rented on a month-to-month basis for about 1½ years.

Under the proposed three-year agreement, the county would pay $8 a square foot the first year, $10 the second year and $12 the third year. That means yearly rent would rise from $11,000 to $13,750 to $16,500.

Also, the county would pay an annual 75 cents a square foot, or $1,031, in promotional fees, and another 75 cents a square foot to a media fund.

Wright and other commissioners complained that promotional and media fees were inappropriate because the library is free to the public and

Legislators ponder the unthinkable: state income tax

Common Cause favors lower rate

AUSTIN (AP) — The citizen group Common Cause endorsed a state income tax Monday but said retirees shouldn't be exempt from paying, as Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock proposed.

"We believe that retirees have obligations to help pay for government just as working people do," said Bill Stouffer, a Common Cause board member.

"To exempt income simply because it goes to a retiree seems unfair. We do not believe that a family whose two providers bring in $30,000 a year should pay taxes, while a $100,000 income for a retired couple goes untaxed," Stouffer said.

Bullock last week kicked off a heated debate by proposing a 5 percent personal income tax and an 8 percent corporate income tax. He proposed exempting the first $25,000 in personal earnings and all retirement income.

Common Cause also called for a lower rate on incomes under $100,000 than Bullock has proposed.

DALLAS — The unthinkable in Texas politics — voting for a state income tax — has become thinkable for a sizable percentage of the Texas Legislature, a recent poll indicates.

About 60 percent of both House members and senators responding confidentially to a survey by a professor at the University of Texas at Dallas said they would consider voting for a state income tax to help finance education and meet other critical needs.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock has announced he will actively campaign for an income tax, which also is receiving growing support from members of the business community.

Neither Gov. Ann Richards nor House Speaker Gib Lewis has endorsed an income tax, but neither has ruled out the possibility of enacting one.

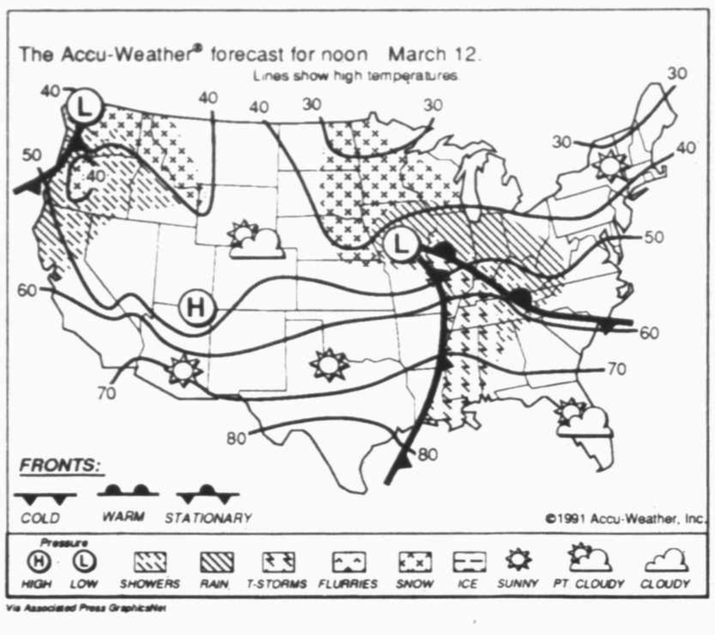

But the income tax remains highly unpopular with most Texans, and Bullock and other supporters admit it will take an extensive selling job to convince a majority of legislators to vote for one.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Via Associated Press GraphicsNet

A sunny, dusty day ahead

Today's forecast calls for sunny skies with a high near 70, a possibility of patchy blowing dust in the morning and northwest winds of 15 to 25 mph, changing to 10 to 15 mph by afternoon, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight will be fair with a low in the mid-30s.

Wednesday is expected to be fair with a high in the mid-60s.

Monday's high was 83 compared with the record high of 91 in 1989. The overnight low was 49. The record low for this date was 15 set in 1948.

STATE

A deepening low pressure in the Rockies was blamed Monday for increasing cloudiness and blustery southerly winds across Texas. But temperatures remained seasonal and no significant rain was reported anywhere in the state.

Wind speeds at 15 to 25 mph with gusts to 30 mph were common. Lake wind advisories were issued in many areas. Blowing dust was reported at El Paso, and Guadalupe Pass had wind gusts in excess of 55 mph.

Low-level cloudiness continued in the piney woods of East Texas, while considerable high-level clouds covered the west, including Wichita Falls and Abilene. Partly cloudy skies were over the central sections, including the Dallas-Fort Worth area and the far south.

Temperatures were mostly in the 70s and 80s.

Forecasters expect today to be partly cloudy, windy and warm across most of Texas with a chance for isolated thunderstorms moving eastward. High temperatures in the 70s were predicted across North Texas with some 60s in West Texas and low 80s in South Texas, and near 90 in the Rio Grande Valley.

NATION

A snowstorm that dumped 2 feet of snow on parts of the northern Rockies on Monday was expected to strengthen as it moves eastward.

The storm struck southwestern and south-central Montana during the morning, disrupting traffic, causing scores of accidents and knocking out power.

"The heavy snow and falling trees are breaking wires," said Randy Sullivan, division superintendent for Montana Power Co.

"This is absolutely the largest storm this winter," said Montana State University professor Joe Caprio, who monitors a university weather station. He said 15 inches had fallen by midmorning, equalling the record for the date.

Sam Gianfrancisco, Gallatin County road superintendent, said his plow drivers reported 24 inches of wet, heavy snow in the Bridger Canyon area.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

ISRAEL: Baker, Levy see signs of 'new thinking' conflicts.

Outside the hotel where Baker and Levy met, about 100 protesters from the ultra-right Kach party carried signs that said, "First the Butcher, then the Baker, go home troublemaker," and "Mr. Baker, the land of Israel is not yours to give away."

In answer to a reporter's question, Baker said he would like to see Israel ease economic strains on Palestinians in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. The areas have been under varying degrees of a military curfew since the beginning of the Gulf war in mid-January.

Noting that Israel is the only "real democracy" in the region, Baker said, "We would like to see freedom of expression and democratic principles permitted to flourish" in the West Bank and Gaza.

In response Levy said Israel would like to see Palestinians feel and live better, but until Israelis stopped being "prisoners of violence," they had to defend themselves.

Late Monday afternoon, about five hours before Baker and Levy spoke, two Israeli soldiers were killed in the Gaza Strip and two others injured when a car driven by a Palestinian plowed into their foot patrol.

A military spokesman said the driver was arrested and the army was investigating to determine whether the incident was accidental or a deliberate attack.

Shortly before 4 a.m. Monday, the Israeli military said, soldiers killed six gunmen who had crossed the border from Jordan. Three Israeli soldiers were injured in the fire fight near Levy's hometown of Bet Shean, south of the Sea of Galilee, the army said.

Defense Minister Moshe Arens suggested the infiltration, the fifth and largest from Jordan this year, means King Hussein might be losing control. At least two of the dead men were discharged Jordanian army soldiers, Israeli military sources said.

Four Israeli women were buried Monday, a day after they were stabbed to death by a Palestinian from Gaza in a working-class neighborhood of Jewish West Jerusalem.

As a result of those murders, Baker canceled a walking tour of part of the walled Old City with Mayor Teddy Kollek, saying a sightseeing tour was "inappropriate" under the circumstances.

He called the murders "an effort to kill peace, and it makes us even more determined to work just as hard as we can to see that we can arrive at peace between Arabs and Israelis."

After a meeting at the King David Hotel, Kollek said Baker was "horrified" by the murders and promised to see the Old City another time.

SHIITES: Rebels reportedly seize strategic oil town

(From 1A)

Prophet Mohammed and one of the sect's principal saints. It has a peacetime population of around 120,000.

In other developments Monday:

■ Exile leaders met in Beirut to coordinate their campaign to oust Saddam.

■ Iraq agreed to turn over the remains of 14 allied military personnel who were killed in Operation Desert Storm.

■ Saudi Arabia celebrated its victory over Iraq and its defense minister said he would seek more military hardware from the United States.

■ Pro-democracy activists in Kuwait demanded that the emirate's rulers set a date for parliamentary elections.

At the meeting of Iraqi opposition leaders in Beirut, Ayatollah Taqi al-Mudaressi, leader of the Shiite Islamic Labor Organization, told reporters that Republican Guardsmen were "ruthlessly and indiscriminately shelling the holy city of Karbala."

"They're massacring the people there," he said. "I have sent letters to the world's religious leaders, including the pope, to prevent Saddam's criminal regime from massacring the Iraqi people."

There was no independent confirmation of the reports on the rebellions by the Shiites in the south and by Kurds in the north. Fighting also was reported in another Shiite holy city, Najaf, and in Basra and low-income Shiite suburbs of Baghdad.

The Kurds have claimed major advances since the uprising began March 1 following Saddam's crushing military defeat by the U.S.-led coalition force that liberated Kuwait.

Mudaressi said two army brigades, about 10,000 soldiers, "have joined the popular uprising" in the south since Sunday. He claimed the Shiites have captured 42 helicopter gunships and 11 surface-to-surface missiles since the revolt began.

DIVERSION: Proposal would increase oil prices gallon.

The aim is to nearly double the size of nation's emergency petroleum reserve to 1 billion barrels within five years, Johnston said.

Opposing the idea, Robert Gentile, assistant secretary of energy for fossil fuels, told the committee, "The effect would be the same as a tariff."

Segments of the U.S. petroleum industry, especially independent domestic producers, have strongly supported the Johnston proposal or similar measures for several years because the price of domestic oil would increase if import prices increase.

But many large oil companies with overseas production and refiners relying heavily on imports have opposed it. The American Petroleum Institute, the industry's major trade group, in testimony Monday called it an "inappropriate funding mechanism" for the reserve and the petroleum needs of the military.

The legislation envisions oil importers providing 220,000 barrels a day for the government reserve and another 500,000 barrels a day for military use, or about 9 percent of the 8 million barrels of oil imported daily. The United States imports about half its petroleum.

The proposal would raise America's oil costs 9 percent to 10 percent and "much of these costs ultimately would be passed on to American individuals and firms that consume oil," said Charles DiBona, president of the American Petroleum Institute.

President Bush has opposed tariffs and noted in announcing his national energy strategy earlier this month that it contained no energy tax increase.

While not technically a fee or tax, the proposal "is tantamount to a variable ... oil import fee," said Gentile. He said it "would impose increased costs on a broad segment of the economy," threaten economic growth, increase inflation and harm U.S. companies competing in foreign markets.

LIBRARY: Rent increase alarms commissioners serves as a draw to the mall. The library has been in the mall since 1985.

The county could save money by moving the library to a storefront-type mall, Wright said, but that would entail moving costs and a possible drop in library users.

Mall manager Cory Skinner, who presented the lease offer to commissioners, said the leaseholders simply are trying to recoup escalating operational costs.

"We want to keep services like yours in the mall," Skinner said. "We're trying to get into a more equitable situation. We are a business and we certainly are for profit."

He said the promotional and media fees are needed to increase the shopper base and the number of library patrons.

Commissioners, who tabled action on the lease proposal, instructed Skinner to make Simon Development a counteroffer of a three-year lease at $8 a square foot. The agreement would not include promotional and media fees.

"I don't think we should be paying promotions," Commissioner Louisa Valencia said. "We're giving the tenants a promotion by being there."

Wright said it would be difficult for mall officials to quickly find another tenant because the library's spot is "off the beaten path."

"A lot of people go to the mall and don't even know it's there," he said.

PACKAGE: Committee cites need for space result in the limiting of the debt portion of the local tax rate to 10½ cents," Davidson said, reading from a prepared statement.

Ken Morrison, the school board president, said that the $13.4 million bond issue would not increase taxes, roughly speaking.

The debt portion of the current $1.10 tax rate is 10⅛ cents. The debt retirement portion of the proposed bond would be 10½ cents.

The failed October bond issue would have limited the increased of the debt service portion of the school tax levy to 5 cents, translating to an annual increase of $21.45 for the "average" home valued at $53,210.

"Saying taxes won't be increased is a matter of semantics here since the tax rate would drop without the bond," Morrison said. "The debt service is scheduled to drop the amount we can use to finance the new bond. So, essentially we will be maintaining the same debt rate."

Voters turned down the school district's $24.5 million bond issue last October. The bond package proposed by the advisory committee is intact with the exception of the deleted junior high school.

"We are not suggesting that there is not a need for a junior high," said Bill Franklin, advisory committee member.

"The transition from grade school to junior high is important. It is a time students really deal with peer pressure and building a new junior high needs close attention. There needs to be additional studies and marketing done, first."

School board member Adela Marmolejo noted that the $13.4 million bond package "has a better chance of passing without the junior high school."

Elvia Hernandez of the advisory committee agreed. "We just wanted to avoid the junior high school location controversy," she said. "We wanted to pass the other things which are more critical right now. We just couldn't add the junior high and risk the bond issue not passing again."

"I think the committee realized that the board was split on some of the issues," Morrison said. "They wanted to come up with something more people can support."

Morrison said board members "knew going in that the committee might not support our previous package 100 percent."

The board president said the projected enrollment for 1995 could easily fill four junior high schools.

"In the meantime there is going to be serious strain on support facilities, such as the cafeterias," Morrison said.

Although school board trustees were disappointed not to see the junior high school included in the bond package, Ms. Marmolejo said she was relieved to see the Alternative Center wasn't cut.

"I'm real proud to see that the advisory committee included the Alternative Center. It's not just a center for blacks or Hispanics. There are Anglos who also need that center. The enrollment keeps growing."

Franklin said he was "extremely impressed with the Alternative Center's outreach program."

"This center is for students who have dropped out of school for whatever reason," he said. "The most common reason is a need to work. There were 97 students in this program when we visited the center, that's 97 dropouts who will now finish high school."

Ms. Hernandez said the next step for the advisory committee members is to "speak to PTAs and organizations, get all the chambers behind the bond and do some real grass-roots politicking."

"Midland has always had a first-class image as being an educated town," Ms. Hernandez said. "We need to keep it that way."

The $13.4 million bond would fund the construction of Greathouse Elementary School, the Alternative Center, classroom additions to nine elementary schools, multipurpose rooms for 11 schools, science renovations to both high schools and Lee Freshman High School and a library renovation for Lee High School.

RATE: Group is backing tax

(From 1A)

Common Cause urged a 4 percent rate on incomes between $25,000 and $100,000, with a 0.5 percent increase in the tax rate for each additional $100,000 of income up to a maximum rate of 8 percent or 9 percent.

"We would like to see the tax rate stay relatively light for the average Texan," he said.

Common Cause became the first group to openly disagree with the details of Bullock's income tax proposal rather than over the question of whether to have an income tax at all.

Stouffer said such "quibbling" over details adds to the tax debate by assuring the public that all facets of the income tax are examined.

However, he said, the 7,500 Common Cause members believe that an income tax should be added to the property and sales taxes now levied in Texas to create a fair and balanced tax system.

Stouffer likened the state and local tax system to a three-legged stool with only two legs. "In order to balance our tax system we must discard one of the hoary old slogans of Texas politics — no new taxes." he said.

In a related development, the sponsor of a state lottery proposal said Bullock's income tax proposal has sparked renewed interest in the gambling game.

Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, said some lottery opponents may be ready to change their minds when faced with public objections to an income tax.

"They've talked to me about it. One said he was getting so much heat in his district that he was going to change his vote," Wilson said.

Although a lottery was favored by more than 70 percent of Texans in a recent opinion poll, the House last month rejected a constitutional amendment to start one. Wilson noted that a lottery was projected to earn the state $730 million in 1992 and more than $1 billion a year after that.

TAX: Idea remains unpopular with most Texans

through questionnaires and personal interviews, when legislators were asked to simply answer "yes" or "no" to an income tax, they overwhelmingly — 72 percent of House respondents and 76.5 percent of senators — said "no." Only 25.9 percent of House members and 23.5 percent of senators said they supported one.

But when given a third option — "maybe" — 60.2 percent of House respondents and 61.6 percent of Senate respondents indicated they would be willing to consider an income tax under certain circumstances.

But 25.5 percent of House members and 27.8 percent of senators still answered "no" to that question, while 13.3 percent of House respondents and 11.1 percent of senators said "yes."

Ninety-seven House members and 18 senators answered the question with the "maybe" alternative.

The survey also questioned legislators as to the reasons that would prompt them to support an income tax. In the House, 62.9 percent gave educational finance as a reason for an income tax; 24.4 percent, to pay for welfare; 28.2 percent, for prisons; and 46.2 percent, as part of an overall financial strategy for the state.

In the Senate, 80 percent cited educational finance; 26.7 percent each for welfare and prisons; and 46.7 percent as part of an overall financial strategy.

The Legislature is facing a revenue shortfall projected at $4 billion to $5 billion for the next two years and is facing a Texas Supreme Court order to enact a more equitable plan for financing public education.

Bullock has said that an income tax — coupled with property tax relief and repeal of the corporate franchise tax — is the only way to fairly and adequately meet those needs. He has predicted the budgetary crisis will force the Legislature to enact an income tax this year.

His plan, he said, would raise $8.4 billion during the next two years. It would bring about the most fundamental restructuring of state taxes since the Legislature enacted the sales tax in 1961

Texas is one of only a few states without either a corporate or personal income tax.

George Christian, a consultant to the Texas Association of Taxpayers — a business group whose executive committee has recommended an income tax as part of an overhaul of the state's revenue system — said an income tax may have a chance if the public can be convinced it would be a fair trade off for property tax relief.

The prospect of a large transfer of the tax burden from business to consumers could add to the political controversy over an income tax.

"Inevitably, the allocation of the tax burden will become a core issue in the fight over an income tax," said Tom "Smitty" Smith, director of the Texas office of Public Citizen, a consumer organization.

Kuwait is divided between those who stayed, fled

By Philip Shenon
N.Y. Times News Service

KUWAIT CITY — For many of the men and women who stayed, this nation has been divided into camps, between those Kuwaitis who remained here to witness the brutal seven-month occupation by Iraq and the majority of their countrymen who chose instead to flee.

The division, they say, will forever change the political structure and social order of the emirate.

In interviews with scores of Kuwaitis who stayed and survived the Iraqi occupation, many said the long ordeal created bonds of friendship and of experience, some of it horrifying, some of it inspiring, that cannot be shared with those who left.

For the rest of their lives, they said, it would affect their choice of political candidates, business partners, and friends.

Many do not deny that they are bitter toward their compatriots who chose to leave Kuwait — some of them fleeing to comfortable lives of exile in Europe, the United States, or elsewhere in the Middle East — instead of staying behind to face the Iraqis.

"When these people come home, I will tell them they were cowards," said Atef Marafi, a 25-year-old Kuwait City accountant.

Faisal Naqi, a 53-year-old businessman, said: "Kuwait is our home. If necessary, we were supposed to die here."

Majd Ansari, a wealthy 28-year-old engineer who is the son of Kuwait's ambassador to Indonesia, said he could easily have escaped from Kuwait and moved into his pick of his family's luxurious homes in Brazil, Spain, or Switzerland.

"I had a four-wheel-drive, and it would have been simple to get out," he said. "I felt we had a moral obligation to stay behind and protect our homeland. I respect the people who stayed much more than the people who left."

A senior Western diplomat here said the division was "startling."

"Clearly, a lot of Kuwaitis who had never had to struggle a day in their lives suddenly had to struggle and fight, and in many ways they grew up," he said. "They look at the Kuwaitis who chose to escape and who spent the occupation doing almost nothing to help, and they are furious."

Kuwaiti officials have estimated that nearly two-thirds of the nation's 800,000 citizens fled or were stranded outside the country after Iraq's invasion on Aug. 2. The majority of the country's nearly 1.2 million foreign workers also left.

Most of the Kuwaitis and foreign workers have not yet returned, on advice of the Kuwaiti government, which is still trying to restore electrical service and water. For many Kuwaitis, there were important reasons to leave their homeland last summer.

They were old or sick or had ties to the Kuwaiti military or the royal family that would have made them suspect to the Iraqis. Many young men fled to enlist in the Kuwaiti army in exile and to fight alonside the allied coalition in the war against Iraq.

"Some people had to leave," said Sami Jacon, a 27-year-old accountant. "If they were in the army or the navy, they had to leave or the Iraqis would kill them. But most people did not have to leave. The real Kuwaitis wanted to stay."

For those who remained, the mass flight of their countrymen in the first hours after the Iraqi invasion created a sense not only that they had been abandoned, but also that they had been put in unnecessary danger.

Homes that were deserted by the fleeing Kuwaitis were often confiscated by Iraqi soldiers, who turned them into well-armed garrisons in civilian neighborhoods.

"One of my neighbors left after the first or second week after the invasion," said Soud Mutawa, 32, an inspector with Kuwait's central bank who had been a member of the Kuwaiti resistance. "This put my family's life in danger because I knew the Iraqis would move into his house."

Mutawa said he searched for days until he found a Kuwaiti to live in the house during the occupation.

Because of their nation's extraordinary oil wealth, most Kuwaitis had lives of solid comfort before the Iraqi invasion. For more than a handful, it was a world of opulence, of Rolls-Royces, private jets, and weekend visits to homes along the Mediterranean.

For most Kuwaitis who remained after the invasion, the luxuries vanished overnight, replaced by shortages of even the most basic goods, and by a gnawing fear.

"It was 24-hour, constant tension for seven months," said Ansari, who remained in Kuwait along with his mother and brother. "I've seen so many things. I saw seven people executed in front of me. My house was ransacked by 15 armed Iraqis who held us at gunpoint."

Air Force: U.S. pilots treated harshly in captivity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five Air Force pilots captured by the Iraqis during U.S. bombing raids "were treated somewhat harshly" and received injuries while they were held as prisoners of war, an Air Force general said Monday.

Brig. Gen. Robert W. Poel, commander of Malcolm Grow Air Force Medical Center at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington, said all of the pilots returned malnourished, fatigued and suffering from a loss of weight.

Poel said the injuries ranged from broken bones to cuts and bruises and that "some of their injuries were a product of their captivity." He declined to describe the specific injuries but said "the prisoners were treated somewhat harshly."

An Army doctor, meanwhile, said five Army personnel who were held as POWs received good medical treatment from the Iraqis and were not mistreated by the Iraqi military.

Col. Russ Zajtchuk, deputy commander of Walter Reed Army Hospital, said the five former POWs from the Army were "in good spirits and happy to be home." He praised them for showing "amazing courage, stamina and discipline."

The 10 Army and Air Force members were among 21 former POWs who returned to the United States on Sunday. Navy and Marine personnel were taken to Bethesda Navy Hospital, which provided no information Monday on their condition.

Poel, in a news conference at Andrews Air Force Base, said the Air Force pilots received sparse rations in captivity and that those who were held the longest had lost 20 to 30 pounds.

Iraq's oil industry seriously damaged, oil survey says

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iraq's oil production capacity was reduced to one-third of its prewar capacity by allied bombing, a respected newsletter reported Monday.

The Middle East Economic Survey, an oil industry publication, said Iraq's southern export facilities suffered the most from six weeks of allied air strikes.

Before Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2, its production capacity was estimated at 4.5 million barrels a day, although it was producing about 3.4 million barrels because of an OPEC quota.

Oil exports were Iraq's main source of revenues, which were badly needed for reconstruction projects after the 1980-88 war with Iran.

Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil exports were halted by a U.N. trade embargo imposed after the Iraqis invaded the emirate. Saudi Arabia and Turkey shut down Iraq's overland pipeline routes after the invasion.

Among the oil installations hit, according to the Nicosia-based newsletter, was the P-3 petrochemical complex near Basra, which was later reportedly set ablaze by artillery and tank fire from President Saddam Hussein's troops fighting Shiite Muslim rebels.

Also seriously damaged was the PS-1 pumping station south of Zubair, near Basra. Before the war, the complex was the main dispatch point for pumping 1.6 million barrels a day by pipeline across Saudi Arabia to the al-Muajjiz terminal on the Red Sea.

The K-2 pumping station in northern Iraq and the K-3 facility in the west were among export facilities were also hit by allied bombers.

The K-2 station was a key facility in the flow of 800,000 barrels a day of crude oil from the Kirkuk fields through a pipeline across Turkey to the Mediterranean Sea. That pipeline was also used to carry another 800,000 barrels a day pumped from southern Iraq through the K-3 station at Haditha.

The T-1 pumping station in western Iraq was damaged as well, the newsletter reported. Crude oil for Jordan was trucked across the desert from there.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, MARCH 12, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Look forward to greater prosperity and romantic happiness. A job promotion or significant raise could be yours by midsummer. Loved one may be bowled over by your plans in July. Offer reassurance! Far-ranging travel plans could be part of the picture in September. Although the course of true love will not be entirely smooth, you and your mate will work out some very agreeable compromises. Real estate investments begin to pay off early in 1992.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: playwright Edward Albee, actress Barbara Feldon, singer Al Jarreau, entertainer Liza Minnelli.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Stay close to your business base today. A creative enterprise could cost you more than you bargained for. Postpone signing any papers until you can consult your partner or legal counsel.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Other people are ready to lend a hand, yet you hesitate to accept their assistance. Perhaps you are more accustomed to giving than receiving. Give a friend the opportunity to repay a favor.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You are elected to an important post. Your associates are impressed by your ability to handle several projects at one time. Mate is concerned that you are pushing yourself too hard.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your patience will be tested today. Keep cool and sign nothing. A message brings good news. Someone from your past reappears. Let others do as they please.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A personal relationship is easier to understand now. Put your thinking cap on and devise new ways to save money. A family member shows an interest in your credit rating. Put romance on hold.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Someone's stubbornness can work to your advantage. An influential associate is impressed by your style. There is new emphasis on the ability to work well when under pressure.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Now is the time to conquer any financial worries. Choose your advisers with care. Loved ones are supportive. You make the correct decision regarding a trust or security. A dream could come true!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your natural good taste will guide you in the right direction now. The key word is "moderation." Your mate or partner may become embroiled in a family argument. Refuse to be the mediator.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Move with the times. A tendency to cling to the past will slow financial growth. To prevent future embarrassment, check all business details, no matter how small. Romance looks rosy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A missing paper or document comes to light. Romance may have to take a temporary backseat to your career. Do not let loved ones distract you during work hours. Curb spending.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Any extra funds should be invested for your family's welfare. Previous endeavors begin to pay off. It is surprising how much can be achieved through talks and travel today. Go all out!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Conditions are favorable for you to enhance your reputation today. Meet with influential people. A deteriorating relationship can be salvaged by careful nurturing.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are very intuitive and can quickly size up people and situations. This can be a terrific asset in both the classroom and the boardroom. Though reluctant to leave home, once these Pisces make the break, they will really blossom. Calm and flexible, these children are at their best in times of crisis. Others instinctively follow their lead. Water sports and travel are these Pisces' favorite leisure-time pursuits.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 ◇	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♠

There is a school that believes in always showing a four-card major in response to a minor-suit opening, regardless of the strength or distribution of the responding hand. Usually, part of the partnership agreement is that the major suit cannot be raised without four-card support. However, the 4-3 major fit can be a potent weapon, and the late Sonny Moyse was a resolute champion of that combined holding.

Obviously, North-South had no such restriction. When South responded one spade to the one-diamond opening bid, North had no hesitation in raising to two spades. South's diamond jump showed a singleton, and the result was a hairy four-spade contract.

From the bidding, West deduced that North-South might be relying on scoring tricks with ruffs, so that defender got off to the good lead of a low trump away from the king. Since the contract was going nowhere if the king of spades was with East, declarer took the finesse. After cashing the ace of diamonds, declarer ruffed a diamond in hand, cashed the king and ace of clubs and led another club.

If West ruffed with the king of spades, declarer would have discarded a heart from dummy, so West discarded a heart. The club was ruffed, the ace and king of hearts were cashed and another club was led, ruffed with the ace as West discarded another heart.

Declarer had now taken the first nine tricks. When a diamond was led from dummy, East had to ruff with the ten to prevent declarer from scoring the eight as the fulfilling trick. Declarer discarded a heart and, when East shifted to a heart, South ruffed with the eight. West overruffed and was down to nothing but diamonds. On the forced return of that suit, declarer had to score the nine of trumps as the fulfilling trick.

Janet Jackson's new deal might be recording's largest

Janet Jackson has signed what is believed to be the most lucrative contract in the history of recording. The 24-year-old singer, songwriter and actress signed an exclusive contract with Virgin Records it was announced Monday.

Jackson

Although the financial terms were not disclosed, the deal has been widely reported as yielding Ms. Jackson from $40 million and $50 million for three to five albums.

The singer has made four solo albums for A&M Records, but only her last two, produced by the team of Jimmy Jam and Terry Lewis, were blockbusters.

"Control," released in 1986, sold more than five million copies in the United States. "Janet Jackson's Rhythm Nation," released in 1989, recently passed the six million mark in sales in this country. Each has sold more than eight million copies worldwide.

Ms. Jackson's record for the most lucrative contract is expected to be broken when her older brother Michael re-signs with Sony Records in an agreement that is reportedly close to being signed.

LOS ANGELES — Producer Irwin Winkler found directing the film "Guilty by Suspicion," about the blacklisting of Hollywood figures during the 1950s, a very new experience.

"As a producer, the most important call you can get is on Saturday morning, when the Friday night grosses come in," said Winkler, whose production credits incly:o/" and "Goodfellas."

"As a director, you want your film to be successful. But your outlook is a bit different. . . . The stakes are higher: If the film succeeds, you take the bow. If it fails, there is no one else to blame," Winkler, 59, said.

"Guilty by Suspicion," starring Robert De Niro, explores how McCarthyism changed the motion picture industry. It opens Friday.

LOS ANGELES — Actress Lucie Arnaz says her late mother, Lucille Ball, saved everything.

The comedian even saved the stationery from the Detroit hotel where she and Desi Arnaz spent their honeymoon, Ms. Arnaz noted.

"I don't think there's a hope chest anywhere big enough to hold all this stuff," she said.

Some of Miss Ball's possessions were lent to "Lucy: A Tribute," opening at Universal Studios Hollywood on March 22. The attraction is a 2,200-square-foot museum of costumes, photos, clips from the "I Love Lucy" television series, sets and home movies.

And there's plenty more. A second museum will open in Jamestown, N.Y., next year, near Miss Ball's birthplace of Celeron.

"Believe it or not, we still have a ton left," Ms. Arnaz said.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Author Tom Clancy says the United States should not slow its development of arms just because of its successes in the Cold War and the war against Iraq.

"People are talking about a peace dividend, but they've got it wrong," the author of "The Hunt for Red October" and other Cold War thrillers told about 60 people at reception. The $100-a-person affair Sunday raised money to buy gifts for the USS Annapolis crew.

Holding up a model of the nuclear attack submarine under construction in Groton, Conn., he said, "This is the investment that will keep the peace. Don't trash the military just because we won the war because we might need them again some day."

Clancy's sixth novel, "The Sum of All Fear," is due out by May.

The USS Annapolis is the fourth ship to bear the name of Maryland's capital. The first was commissioned in 1896.

NEW YORK — Mayor David Dinkins and hotelier Jonathan Tisch say they'll fight to keep the Grammy Awards in the Big Apple another year.

Dinkins announced Monday that Tisch, president and chief executive of the Loews Hotels, had agreed to be chairman of New York's Grammy committee.

"New York and the Grammys are truly a match made in heaven," Dinkins told a news conference. "We aren't wasting any time in establishing our effort to bring next year's Grammys to our city."

Tisch, also a board member of the New York City Convention and Visitors Bureau, said, "We want Los Angeles to know they don't have a divine right to have this show every year or every other year."

Bush calls for Mideast peace

Flush with victory in the Persian Gulf, President Bush has thrown the full weight of the United States and the victorious allies behind an effort to secure an Arab-Israeli peace.

Bush's bold and emotional speech to a special session of Congress showed that he does not intend to lose the momentum from the gulf war. Shunning the many voices urging caution, Bush said the "time has come to put an end to the Arab-Israeli conflict." No one, he said, "will work harder for a stable peace in the region than we will."

In grasping this tar baby, Bush is taking a gamble. Failure could quickly erase benefits from victory in the gulf. But his calculation, the correct one, is that without settling the Israeli-Arab dispute, success in the gulf will prove ephemeral, and that with his prestige and U.S. power higher than ever, now is the moment to press forward.

The key phrase was in the reiteration that an Arab-Israeli accord was grounded "in the principle of territory for peace." The Israeli government of Yitzhak Shamir has been talking and acting as if it no longer accepted that principle. Bush was reminding both sides that a settlement had to meet the "twin tests of fairness and security."

It should be clear to all parties, said the man who for four months tried to compromise with Saddam Hussein, that "peace requires compromise." His plan for a new world order in the region not only includes Arab-Israeli peace, but a permanent U.S. naval presence in the gulf and restraint in arms shipments to the region. Secretary of State James Baker will be pressing both those points on a 10-day trip to the Middle East and Soviet Union, that began Thursday.

The United States clearly doesn't have to make this effort. Having won the gulf walkover, it would be easier to sit back and bask in self-congratulation, which, with its cheerleader's attitude Wednesday night, Congress seemed willing to do.

The president, by wanting to get to the roots of a conflict that could suck the United States back into war, is showing high statesmanship.

Texas delegation pressures NASA

WASHINGTON — Texas congressmen are on a scavenger hunt for projects to bolster the Johnson Space Center in Houston and are scheming to snatch space agencies from other states if that's what it takes to bring jobs to Texas.

Anderson

The lawmakers fear that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will centralize the space shuttle program and other NASA projects in Florida and that the Johnson Space Center will fall by the wayside. In anticipation of that, the Texans are trying to persuade NASA to move other projects to Houston.

In a tug-of-war with other states for precious jobs, the Texas lawmakers will be a formidable foe, especially with a nationwide recession compounding the oil slump Texas has been in for years.

In a recent letter to NASA Administrator Richard Truly, 22 members of the Texas delegation urged him to move the Space Station Freedom headquarters from Reston, Va., to Houston. The Texans told Truly that the move "makes sense for the space station and for NASA as a whole."

But it doesn't make sense for Virginia. Sens. Charles Robb, D-Va., and John Warner, R-Va., are fighting to keep the facility in Reston, outside of Washington, D.C. They have met with Truly to discuss the issue, but they may be out gunned by the Texans. The proposed move to Texas is gaining momentum in NASA.

The Reston facility is the brain trust of the space station — a project with a total annual budget of $2 billion. Parts of the space station project are scattered across the nation and in three foreign countries, but Reston is the headquarters. Space Station Freedom, scheduled for launch in late 1995, is a manned laboratory in the sky for the study of low-gravity sciences.

Moving the office to Texas would cost at least $26 million, according to internal NASA estimates. But the big cost would be the inevitable delays. One highly placed source in the space station project told our associate Jim Lynch that the move could delay the launching of the station by at least a year and possibly two. At $2 billion a year, that's an expensive wait.

Sources told us that NASA could also lose as many as half of its top space station engineers who would refuse to move.

The move would also contradict the recommendations of a string of government commissions that said the headquarters for the project should not be alongside one of its primary manufacturing facilities. That is the reason that NASA moved the space station headquarters from Houston to Reston in 1987. Now, only four years later, all signs point to cuts at the Reston facility.

Special language in this year's budget specifies some belt-tightening at Reston, but there is no such frugality spelled out for the Johnson Space Center. Instead, Congress found $10 million for improvements to the Johnson visitors' center.

A NASA spokesman told us that nothing has been decided yet about the move, and that it was unlikely all of the Reston functions would go to Texas.

Fiscal wisdom should dictate what happens to the space center headquarters, but it appears more likely that pork barrel politics will make the decision.

ALL IN THE FAMILY — The trial of Winnie Mandela has muddied politics in South Africa. Her husband Nelson Mandela has become the symbol of moderation. In a spirit of give and take, he is negotiating an end to apartheid and has agreed to halt the guerrilla war against the white government. But Winnie Mandela is a symbol of militancy. She is backed by black activists who favor the politics of revolution and intimidation. So the Mandela household is split politically down the middle. What keeps Nelson Mandela standing by his wife's side is his strong love for her and loyalty that apparently transcends political differences.

MINI-EDITORIAL — From Panama to the Persian Gulf, Americans have put their lives on the line for their country, yet the greater danger to America lies on the home front. The national debt is soaring, the economy is skidding. Now the pace of that slide has been accelerated by the war. We can't escape responsibility by entrusting our national conscience to our leaders. They have been unwilling to make unpopular decisions to cut spending, tighten belts and impose discipline. This impoverishment of leadership will lead ultimately to the impoverishment of our country unless the people force on their leaders the solutions that they have avoided.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

School issue pulls out state's stuffing

Leninism may be stone-dead in Eastern Europe, but it's stirring, blinking, and scratching itself in Texas. Yes, good old freedom-loving, get-outta-my-way, blankety-blank-the-bureaucrats Texas!

What we're doing hereabouts is trying to uplift mediocre school districts by pillaging successful ones. These we've lined up against the wall, while the legislature strip-searches them for property-tax revenues. We're going to take the extra money they spend on their own pupils and pass it around to those who, sniff, sob, need it more. Who defines "need"? The state court.

Murchison

It's the educational equivalent of the Bolshevik revolution in Russia. It should prove just about as fruitful.

A certain degree of human sympathy is due the legislators, into whose chambers the state Supreme Court wheelbarrowed this noisome mess.

The Texas Constitution, 115 years old, says Texas must provide an "efficient" system of public education. No court for 113 of those years ever said this meant mandatory redistribution of local property tax revenues.

Nevertheless, in Edgewood vs. Kirby, decided in late 1989, the court pounced on the mathematically indisputable fact that districts with higher property values are able to raise more revenues than districts without.

Inefficiency! the justices hollered. In the next breath they told the legislature to Do Something. The lawmakers voted $2 billion over the next five years for poorer districts. These, unappeased, returned to court. The Supreme Court snarled again at the legislature: Absolutely not; you have to redistribute.

This reminds us, I hope, that the nub of the school problem isn't lack of funds. Districts with less taxing capacity already receive compensatory monies from the state. (The spending gap between the "wealthiest" and the "poorest" districts averages less than $1,000 per pupil.)

No, the nub of the problem is Envy — second of the Seven Deadly Sins. The litigants don't just want more for themselves; they want others to have less. Their spokesmen in the state capital are toiling to make sure this happens.

One reason they toil is that many of the "poorer" districts — including Edgewood, lead district in the lawsuit — are Mexican-American. Democrats, who presently control the state government, can't afford the appearance of racial "insensitivity." Anyway, Texas whites increasingly vote Republican. To hell with them!

The state Senate's creative plan calls for rolling the state's 1,052 local districts into 20 taxing regions for more efficient rapine and pillage. A more "moderate" plan passed by the House would do the same job, only at the countywide level.

The underlying principle is the same: Everybody taxes at the same rate; everybody spends the same. The more you raise; the more you lose. We might as well live on a collective farm in the Ukraine, so little respect the legislature pays hard work and private initiative. Give us a few years, we'll settle down to sloth and comfortable mediocrity. Einstein? Yeah, some heavy-metal rock band, right?

The state's better districts, under the new dispensation, will have to reduce programs and staff. The Highland Park Independent School, one of the country's best, would have to double local school taxes just to stay even.

The profound irony here is that some of the "richer" districts serve large numbers of poor people. (Property-rich Dallas has few white students, thanks to busing). Likewise some of the "poorer" districts serve large numbers of the affluent.

The facile assumption in judicial circles is that all these extra feathers plucked from the geese would adorn the instructional process. The reality is otherwise. Detailed studies in New York City and Milwaukee show that administration and maintenance account for more than half of total educational spending.

CHARLEY REESE

The sound of rage isn't difficult to decipher

We would do well to remember that while it took Iraqi invaders to pillage Kuwait City, our own cities are pillaged by their inhabitants. Before 1991 was two months old, 87 people had been murdered in Washington, D.C.

Reese

Blockheads slobber about guns at the mention of crime, like a certain well-known dog in the annals of psychology, but people and guns have lived together in America for over 200 years. In fact, in the past, guns were far more accessible to people than they are today.

Obviously it is not these inanimate tools which are the cause of urban crime. If that were so, then crime would be uniformly present in a rough approximation to the population's access to guns. Though no one wishes to say so, everyone knows this is not the case.

Guns are equally if not more accessible to white, upper middle-class people but there is no unusual murder rate occurring in that group. In economic terms, the great burst of crime occurs among the poor. In ethnic terms, among blacks. Last year, some thousands of young blacks died of homicide mostly at the hands of other blacks.

But if we hang on to common sense and keep pursuing this question, then we have to face the fact that black Americans and guns have coexisted for over 200 years, and, in the past, there was no fratricide going on in the black neighborhoods at the level of today's violence.

What that tells me is that the problem is neither black skin nor blue steel guns, but a human situation, peculiar to our time and to certain places. All of which is creating a sizeable group of young men filled with hostility to such a degree that the better human qualities like compassion are absent.

From these hostile young men a subculture of violence has been created and if we would quit playing phoney baloney games, it wouldn't be hard to figure out why.

The dole or the minimum wage forever is a bleak prospect for someone in America. We have to add the place because all human beings and all human problems exist in context. An American minimum wage in Haiti would be paradise. But low income in a high consumption, hedonistic society in which 7,000 advertising messages per day per person crow about the good life of consumerism, four dollars an hour forever is a damned bleak prospect.

Poverty with no hope of escape is painful. It cuts the body and rubs raw the soul in a thousand ways. It is a life of hopeless dreams, of frustrated desires, of daily humiliations not only of yourself but of the people you love. We have helped intensify this permanent poverty. We have taken away many of the good blue-collar jobs that could lift man out of poverty and packed those jobs off overseas where the dollar earns a higher return.

We have inflated the currency. We have allowed the giant corporations to kill off the small businesses, which were the traditional workplace "colleges" for the poor young man or woman who wanted to learn a trade or skill. We overlay that devil's brew with a culture that emphasizes and glorifies violence and get-ahead-at-any-cost.

If all that were not enough, we have added the insult of apathy and hypocrisy. The conservatives tend to tell the poor they are shiftless skunks who deserve no help while the liberals tend to tell them they should be docile and permanent wards of the benevolent state.

The sound of gunfire in our cities is the sound of rage. It is the young man trying, as Dylan Thomas advised, to "Rage, rage against the dying of the light."

Charley Reese's column is distributed by King Features Syndicate.

LEWIS GRIZZARD

Let's hear it for the red, white and blue

Announcing the war in the Gulf had been won, President Bush, our esteemed and victorious commander in chief, said, "... It is not a time to gloat."

That's like telling Georgia Tech football fans, whose team won a national championship last season after a lot of years of being kicked around, they couldn't raise a glass and a finger and proclaim, "We're number 1."

Grizzard

Mr. President, Korea was a flop. Vietnam was worse. Iran took our citizens hostages and we couldn't do anything about it.

And for how many years now have we turned on our television sets to see Arab masses in the streets chanting anti-American slogans, burning our flag and daring us to take one step in their direction?

Mr. President, with all due respect, I think there ought to be a national day of gloating.

Let the kids out of school. Close down work places. Cancel the National Hockey League schedule. Let's have parades and victory celebrations and get down to some real old-fashioned gloating.

We've got a lot to gloat about.

Saddam Hussein, my foot. (I can't say you-know-what in a family newspaper.)

He's a brilliant military commander? He's started two wars in the last ten years and lost them both.

That blustering, bull-headed, bloodthirsty booger of the burning sands.

He amassed the fourth largest army in the world and it took us one hundred hours on the ground to chop it to pieces.

I like what Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf said of President Meathead.

"As far as Saddam Hussein being a great military strategist, he is neither a strategist nor is he schooled in operational arts, nor is he a general, nor is he a soldier... "

Sounds like somebody assessing any number of Atlanta Falcons head coaches.

And the courageous Iraqi soldiers.

What a bunch of wimps. A television reporter was describing a dead and very flat Iraqi soldier smeared on a street in Kuwait City. "He appeared to have been run over by one of his own tanks in a hurry to get out of the city."

In that same report, somebody talked about Iraqi soldiers going into homes in Kuwait City looking for sheets or anything white with which to make flags of surrender.

Some Iraqi troops even surrendered to the press. That's like Hulk Hogan saying "Uncle" in a wrestling match with Regis Philbin.

And there were those grimy, beaten Iraqi prisoners raising their fists in the sky chanting, "George Bush! George Bush!"

If only the Ayatollah lived long enough to have witnessed that.

We're back. We're strong, We're united. And we have stopped taking it and we've finally dished it out.

Go ahead and gloat all you want is all I say. Gloat, cheer and give thanks it's over "over there" and we, by God, whipped their Iraqi (Al-bagoongahs), the Iraqi word for you-know-what.

Sorry, Mr. President. But it's party time.

Anti- and pro-Communist demonstrators rally in Serbia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Tens of thousands of pro- and anti-Communist demonstrators staged rallies Monday in Belgrade, where weekend violence launched the strongest opposition to Serbia's Marxist rulers since World War II.

Serbia's hard-line president, Slobodan Milosevic, told an emergency session of Parliament that foreign enemies were to blame for the unrest that left two dead and more than 125 injured.

Serbia, Yugoslav's largest republic, is resisting pro-democracy moves by four of the five other republics to turn this Balkan nation of 24 million into a loose confederation of sovereign states.

The anti-Communist crowd of about 20,000, listening to Milosevic's speech on loudspeakers outside Parliament, booed and jeered every sentence and shouted "Slobo-Saddam" and "Slobo-Stalin."

Patriarch Pavle, leader of Serbia's Orthodox church, pleaded with them to disperse "to prevent bloodshed." But they refused to leave, chanting "Treason! Treason!"

The latest protest began early Monday when students reached downtown Belgrade after clashes with police. Thousands of protesters were still present after sunset.

The demonstrations were reported to have spread to the Serbian cities of Novi Sad and Nis.

But about 30,000 people, many bused in from factories around the state, gathered near the confluence of the Sava and Danube rivers in Belgrade at the rally called by Serbia's ruling Socialist Party, the renamed Communists.

"We will prevail over those who want to destroy Serbia!" exclaimed Dusko Matkovic, a deputy in the legislature.

Three days of demonstrations have posed the most serious challenge to Milosevic since he came to power in 1987 and hurt him in negotiations with other republics over the future of the nation.

The anti-Communist protesters were mainly students and other young people. The Communist rally attracted workers and older Yugoslavs.

Anti-Communists demanded dismissal of Serbia's interior minister, Radmilo Bogdanovic, who is is seen as a symbol of the Communist grip on the media in Serbia that protesters blame for Milosevic's victory in December elections.

The protesters also demanded release of an estimated 170 people jailed over the past three days; an end to censorship of Belgrade's independent radio and TV, and resignation of officials they blame for police violence and censorship

"Democracy and freedom will prevail over Communist darkness," proclaimed one placard.

On Monday, university professors and other intellectuals declared support for the protesters, and actors went on strike.

"A regime that arrests its youth has no future," said author Mirko Kovac.

Milosevic made no mention of the protesters' demands, saying only that problems should be solved within Parliament, where the Socialists hold 194 of the assembly's 250 seats.

A group of 19 opposition deputies on hunger strike outside the Serbian parliament since Saturday said they would continue fasting until the demands were met.

Student leaders said they would boycott classes at Belgrade University, the largest in Yugoslavia.

Soviet lawmakers call for censure of Yeltsin

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda attacked Boris Yeltsin as a "belligerent" and lawmakers called for the censure of the Russian president Monday, a day after his campaign to oust Mikhail S. Gorbachev drew 500,000 protesters.

Shouts of "Resign! Resign!" reverberated off Kremlin walls Sunday as the hundreds of thousands of demonstrators demanded that President Gorbachev and his fellow Communists relinquish power.

The rally was one of at least 16 held Sunday in cities across Russia to support Yeltsin in his political fight with Gorbachev. Yeltsin has called for Gorbachev's resignation and on Saturday he turned up the heat by "declaring war" on the Communist leadership.

In a front-page commentary Monday, the Communist Party daily Pravda said Yeltsin's speech had been "belligerent," "confrontational" and unworthy of a veteral political leader.

"It's surprising what level of confrontation one can reach if one sets a goal, not of prosperity for the people, not of strengthening the union, not of improving all spheres of life, but (of furthering) one's personal political ambitions," the newspaper said.

The strong rhetoric on both sides comes amid a buildup to two key political events: a nationwide referendum March 17 on preserving the union of Socialist republics, and a proposed no-confidence vote against Yeltsin in the Russian republic's parliament on March 28.

Yeltsin has long been the chief rival to Gorbachev, who ordered the referendum and is pushing the 15 republics to sign a new Union Treaty holding the country together.

State television virtually ignored Sunday's rally, although nightly newscasts carried several anti-Yelstin speeches from debate Monday in the Supreme Soviet Legislature.

One parliamentarian, Nikolai N. Engver, said Yeltsin has had the flu and must have had a fever when he "declared war" on the top officials. "To announce a war ... is a betrayal of democracy," he said.

Another lawmaker said Yeltsin may have violated the Soviet Constitution's prohibition against attempting to overthrow the government by force.

Some lawmakers wanted a resolution condemning Yeltsin, but the legislature adjourned without taking any action after others contended such a move would only garner Yeltsin more publicity, the state news agency Tass reported.

Yeltsin, meanwhile, ignored the attacks and met with striking coal miners instead of attending the legislative debate, Tass said. The dispatch said the miners promised to back Yeltsin by "all possible non-violent means."

Sunday's was the largest anti-government demonstration in Moscow at least since the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution. People waving flags and protest banners filled Manezh Square next to the Kremlin. Many shouted that they will not allow a dictatorship to be restored in the Soviet Union.

The crowd was estimated at 500,000 by one of the speakers and journalists.

Chlorine plant in Mexico explodes; 3 dead, 350 injured

COATZACOALCOS, Mexico (AP) — Pipes in a chlorine plant near this southern city exploded Monday, setting fire to the installation, authorities said. Three people were reported killed and about 350 injured.

The blasts shook buildings and shattered windows in nearby towns. Flames shot more than 100 feet into the air and were visible for miles around.

"At first people thought it was an earthquake," said Cira Ines Jimenez Martinez, a social worker at the hospital in Nachitlan, a few miles from the plant. "The second one was stronger and everyone panicked."

Officials at Petroleos Mexicanos, S.A., said in a news conference that three employees died in the explosion at its petrochemical plant in Pajaritos, near the Gulf Coast city of Coatzacoalcos, 300 miles southeast of Mexico City, the local newspaper El Diario del Istmo reported.

"They were the most impressive blasts ever heard here," said Maria Elvira Santa Maria, a reporter at the newspaper.

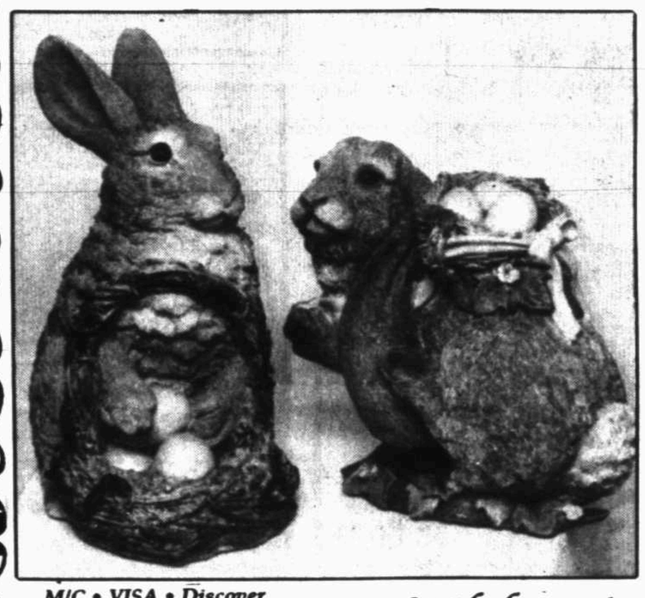

"They shook the whole population. Afterwards a tremendous mushroom cloud was seen," she said.

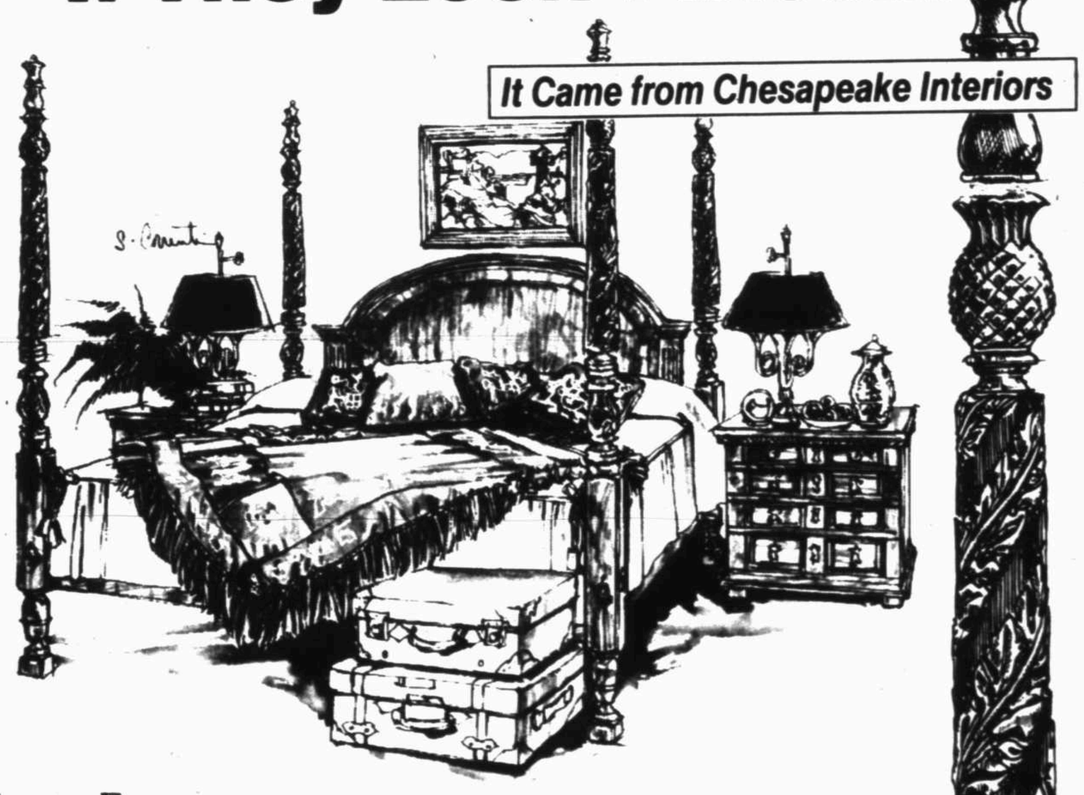

The noise was heard throughout an urban area of some 312,000 people, she said.

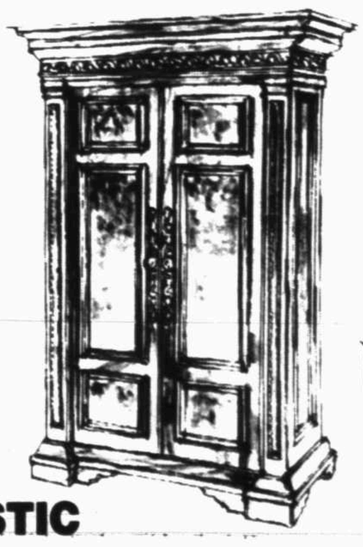

Vania Munoz, spokeswoman for Petroleos Mexicanos, or Pemex, said autopsies had not yet determined how the employees died.

Bush sends anti-crime bill in test of postwar clout

■ President wants death-penalty provisions back in.

WASHINGTON — Declaring Monday that "our veterans deserve to come home to an America where it is safe to walk the streets," President Bush sent Congress an anti-crime bill that is the first test of his postwar clout.

In an attempt to transfer some of his success in the Persian Gulf to the domestic arena, Bush last Wednesday gave Congress a deadline of 100 days for passage of a highway bill and a crime bill.

"We stood by our troops, and today it's time to stand up for America's prosecutors and police," Bush told a gathering of state attorneys general as he unveiled an anti-crime package that would expand the death penalty and cut off repeated appeals by death-row inmates.

Despite Bush's towering popularity ratings, his staff attempted to dampen expectations for quick acceptance of his crime proposals, which are almost identical to those he made last year. Congress stripped away most of Bush's get-tough provisions before voting for a crime measure last October.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said that climate now has changed "only in the sense that there's a new session of Congress, and a new opportunity to fight for this bill."

NATION

In fact, Bush's proposals appeared headed for yet another showdown over gun control on Capitol Hill. Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph Biden announced he would go along with Bush's proposals only if the president would accept a ban on the manufacture and sale of semiautomatic guns.

"If the president would join the Congress in banning the murderous weapons that are killing police officers, children, and countless innocent bystanders, we could easily pass a comprehensive crime bill within the next 100 days," said Biden, a Delaware Democrat.

Bush has repeatedly rejected controls on semiautomatic guns.

His administration threatened a veto last year as Congress considered attaching such a provision to crime legislation. As a substitute, the president proposed a 10-year mandatory sentence for using semiautomatics in drug crimes.

Bush's top crime-fighting priority has long been a tougher federal death penalty. "Those who kill must be prepared to pay with their own life," said Bush.

Currently, capital punishment can be enforced in only two types of federal crimes, airline hijackings that result in death and some drug-related murders. The Bush bill would correct constitutional problems that hamper enforcement of other existing death penalties and add new categories of capital crimes, including terrorist murders of Americans abroad and murder for hire.

Inmates already on death row would find it harder to appeal their cases under Bush's limits on access to courts that "would stop frivolous appeals and ensure that punishment was not only just, but also swift and certain."

Firearms and other evidence seized from defendants could be used in court even if the police violated constitutional rights, under the administration's crime proposals. The test would be whether a law enforcement officer had made a "good faith" effort to follow legal procedures.

"It is simply intolerable that these armed criminals should go free when good solid evidence is available," said Bush.

La. governor jumps parties

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Gov. Buddy Roemer switched from the Democratic to the Republican Party on Monday, believed to be the first incumbent governor in history to jump parties.

Roemer, 47, promised to remain a maverick.

"Frankly, I'm not entirely satisfied with the details of either party," he said.

For example, he said he supports affirmative action programs to protect blacks against discrimination. The GOP is unhappy with affirmative action.

But, Roemer said, the GOP "is becoming most open to new ideas, new thinking, new people; most open to team building, to opportunity building."

No governor ever has switched parties while in office, said Joseph Kallenbach of the University of Michigan, who has written a three-volume history on American governors.

President Bush looks forward to working closely with Roemer and has invited him to the White House on Monday, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said.

Bentsen plans legislation to restore IRA tax breaks

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — As Democrats try to turn the public debate from guns to butter, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen is gaining strong bipartisan support in the Senate with a plan to restore once popular tax deductions on Individual Retirement Accounts.

The Texas Democrat, on the list of possible presidential hopefuls, will introduce legislation Tuesday to restore tax advantages on IRAs that were wiped out by tax reform four years ago.

Bentsen's bill in fact improves on the original incentives for investment in the accounts by easing restrictions on withdrawals before retirement. Money withdrawn for first homes, college tuition or catastrophic medical bills would not be penalized.

"I believe the IRA is a retirment plan that should never have been retired," Bentsen said in lobbying fellow senators for his bill. "We must provide all Americans with additional incentives to save."

The measure, as of late Monday, had attracted 70 Senate supporters, 43 Democrats and 27 Republicans. That is a comfortable margin for passage and is also sufficient to override a presidential veto if the high level of support holds up.

In the House, Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, a member of the House Ways and Means Committee, plans to introduce an identical bill later this week. Support in the more volatile lower chamber isn't yet clear.

"It's kind of hard to say how it's going to go at this point," said Dave Mason, Pickle's spokesman. "We haven't heard any indications one way or another."

Before tax reform, one thing was clear. IRAs were extremely popular with a Baby Boom generation of taxpayers looking for ways to shelter their retirement savings from Uncle Sam.

In 1985, the peak year for investment in the accounts, 16 million individuals and couples took tax writeoffs on IRAs, 16 percent of all U.S. taxpayers. They had a total of $38 billion in savings in the accounts.

After the federal government removed most of the incentives in the 1986 Tax Reform Act, the number of participating taxpayers fell to 6 million, with 12.5 billion in savings, in 1988.

"They certainly are a plus for the taxpayer, who is encouraged to put a few thousand aside in a year," said Paul Merski of the Tax Foundation, a non-partisan research group.

Bentsen's bill would allow an individual to invest up to $2,000 a year in one of two kinds of IRAs.

Judge to permit Exxon settlement talks to proceed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge said Monday he will let the government settle legal claims over the Exxon Valdez oil spill as long as the rights of five native Alaskan villages are protected.

But the villages' attorney said later the two sides had been unable to agree on a way to protect the right of the villages to pursue their own claim against Exxon.

A settlement could be reached by Tuesday if U.S. District Judge Stanley Sporkin cleared the way for its signing, said Alaska Gov. Walter J. Hickel, who came to Washington to join the negotiations.

Sporkin ordered the federal and state governments last week not to sign any agreement with Exxon until he determined whether it might harm the native Alaskans' rights.

The government had appeared close to agreement on a settlement, which Alaska state Attorney General Charles Cole said would be about $1.2 billion.

But the villages filed suit last week, contending the government could be negotiating away their rights without allowing them to join the talks.

Sporkin said at a hearing Monday he would lift his order and allow a settlement to be signed if both sides agreed on a new order intended to protect the rights of the villages.

A new order should declare that any agreement does not affect the rights of the villages, and should not bar the villages from pursuing their claims against Exxon in state court, Sporkin said.

Arco, ex-employee meet in court

■ The former Arco staffer is suing the oil and gas firm, claiming sexual discrimination.

By David Morris
Staff Writer

A woman suing Arco Oil & Gas Co. for sexual discrimination told a federal judge Monday that the company gave preferential treatment to men when handing out promotions.

Linda L. Yates, 50, said she was passed over numerous times for a supervisory job in the materials department of Arco's Odessa office. Arco gave the job to men with less experience than she had, Ms. Yates said.

An Arco employee from 1971 to 1989, Ms. Yates filed a sexual discrimination suit against the company in September 1990, seeking unspecified damages. Testimony in the suit began Monday before U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton III.

Ms. Yates told the judge she resigned from Arco after company managers refused in 1989 to interview her for the job of materials representative.

"It was just obvious to me that they did not want a woman in that position," she said.

That was not the first time she'd been turned down for the materials representative job, which involves supervising the delivery and storage of oil-well equipment and supplies.

Under questioning by her attorney, Melissa Hirsch of Odessa, Ms. Yates said she was passed over for the job, and ones like it in regional Arco offices, six times between between 1981 and 1989.

> 'It was just obvious to me that they did not want a woman in that position.'

> — Linda L. Yates, plaintiff in suit

In 1981, the job was given to a man without a college degree who had been working for another oil company.

"He was hired off the street," Ms. Yates said. "He didn't know Arco policies or procedures."

She added that it had been her responsibility to train the new man in his position.

Ms. Yates said she was told in 1983, when the job opened up again, that she didn't have enough knowledge of pipe systems to qualify for the position. So she went to work in an Arco pipe yard to gain the necessary experience, she said.

However, she was passed over again when the job became available in 1985. Although she said she'd been recommended for a materials representative job in Artesia, N.M., the job was given to a man.

"I wasn't given a reason," she said. "At that time, I thought I'd just keep trying and sooner or later one (a position) would open up."

But in 1988, a man with a college degree and two years of experience at Arco got the materials representative job, she said.

She said a degree was not listed as a necessary qualification for the job. But her supervisor, Bennie Guy, told her in 1988 that Arco wanted degreed people in the materials representative job, she said.

Ms. Yates, who does not hold a college degree, said she considered this explanation an excuse for not choosing her over

Kids love Pied Piper

■ With his 'Big Tootsie' doll in tow, an extraordinarily busy and inventive grown-up captures the imagination of Midland's children.

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

Bob Cornell is a nature-hike guide, artist, boomerang expert, teacher, tennis coach, humorist, chaperon for trips to foreign locales, Pied Piper to the younger set and the first to volunteer his help at the scene of a disaster.

His deeds have become legend, reported in newspapers from West Texas to New York. And since legendary deeds call for a legendary character, Cornell created Bigfoot, ... er ... Big Tootsie, a kinder, gentler Sasquatch, if you will.

Big Tootsie, "Bigfoot's nephew," is Cornell's mascot, who appears on flyers, decals, bumper stickers, and in the guise of a hairy stuffed toy, 28 inches tall with a single 33-inch long foot similar to a human one.

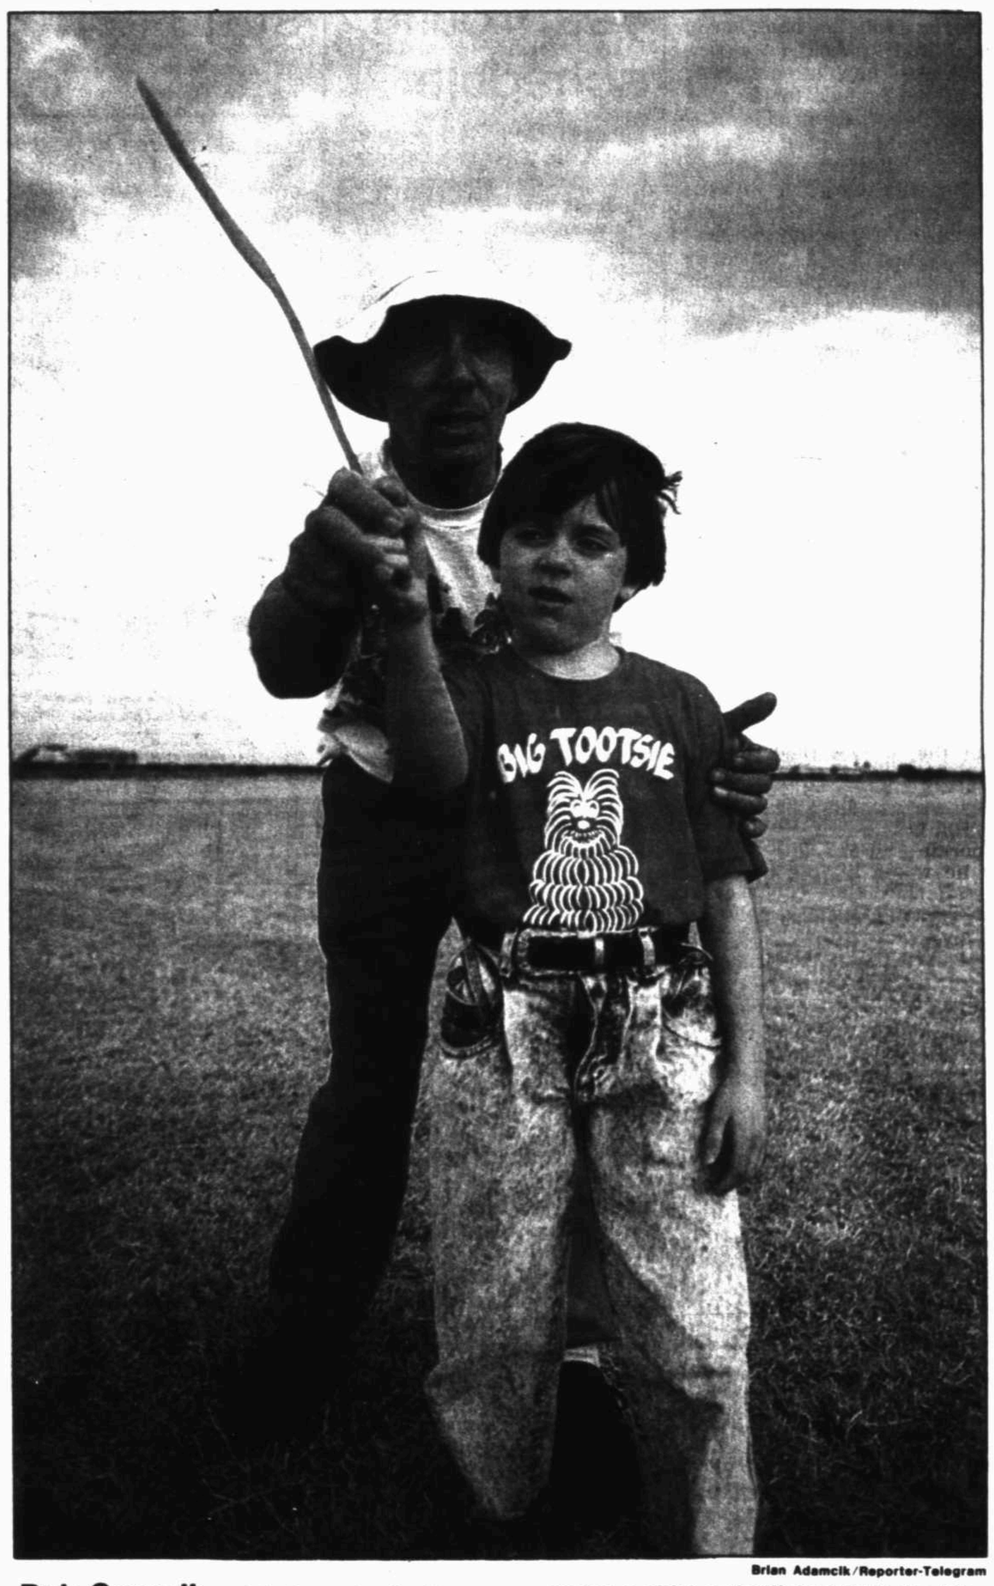

Cornell said Big Tootsie initially appeared in a dream he once had and resulted in his creating the character in cartoon form.

Now the mascot makes appearances at Big Tootsie Family Adventures organized by Cornell.

Youngsters (usually ages 6-12) sport Big Tootsie T-shirts, and clutch furry dolls to their chests when attending such diverse activities as rattlesnake roundups, excursions to Elvis Presley's Graceland and even treks through Belgium.

When asked about Big Tootsie, devotees are likely to parrot the character's motto: "It's nice to be nice."

Term limitation's time has come, Mosbacher says

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

A nationwide movement to limit terms of state legislators and U.S. congressmen has overwhelming bipartisan support, former lieutenant governor candidate Rob Mosbacher said Monday.

Mosbacher, speaking during a Midland Republican Men's Club luncheon at the Plaza Club, said he was here to stir support for a campaign to put the issue before voters.

"It's universally popular," Mosbacher, a Republican, told the audience of about 30 people. "It's not an idea that Republicans like and Democrats don't. This idea does have enormous support."

Mosbacher is co-founder of Texans for Term Limitations, a grassroots organization working on a 500,000-signature petition showing support for term limitations.

After collecting enough signatures, Mosbacher said the group hopes to push state lawmakers into putting a proposed amendment on a ballot by 1992.

If approved, those elected to governor, lieutenant governor and attorney general only could serve two four-year terms. Comptroller of public accounts, treasurer, agriculture commissioner and land commissioner also would be limited to two four-year terms.

Mosbacher

Texas Railroad Commission members would be limited to one six-year term.

Texas senators would serve a maximum of two four-year terms, while state representatives only could serve four two-year terms.

The most U.S. senators from Texas could serve would be two six-year terms, while four two-year terms would be the limit for U.S. representatives.

The rules would apply only to Texas politicians.

The most U.S. senators from Texas could serve would be two six-year terms, while four two-year terms would be the limit for U.S. representatives.

The rules would apply only to Texas politicians.

Oklahoma, Colorado and California have passed similar amendments regarding term limitations for their politicians.

Because congressional term limitation is not included in the U.S. Constitution, it would take an amendment before that could be implemented, Mosbacher said.

County: We need help funding drug task force

■ If the county alone cannot cover a projected budget shortfall, it will call for neighboring counties to pitch in and help.

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

Midland County commissioners Monday approved letting the county serve again as Permian Basin Drug Task Force host and grantee, but there will be a financial catch this year.

The 32 other West Texas entities sponsoring the task force will have to help pay for liability insurance and pick up their share of any budget shortfall, commissioners decided.

In addition, the court approved seeking $1.13 million in federal funding for the drug-fighting team. Friday is the application deadline, with the proposal expected to go before the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission on Wednesday.

County Judge Charles W. "Bro" Seltzer said Midland County's participation in the task force is contingent upon other entities throwing in their financial support.

Rep. Smith pays tribute to hospice volunteers

Staff Report

WASHINGTON D.C. — Volunteers of the Hospice of Midland are the first recipient of the Outstanding Volunteer Award for the 21st District, Congressman Lamar Smith announced.

Thelma Upton, volunteer coordinator of the hospice, was notified by Smith of the award.

Volunteers of the Hospice of Midland is a group that has assisted the terminally ill and their families in the hospice for more than 10 years.

> 'Their role has been invaluable....'
> — Rep. Lamar Smith

"I am very glad that we have this opportunity to recognize a group of volunteers like those who work with the Hospice of Midland," Smith said.

"Their commitment to the patients and families of the hospice is admirable. Their efforts and the benefits gained from their labor is proof that a little time and care can make a difference," he said.

"Volunteers prepare meals, provide transportation and offer comfort to patients and their families," Smith said. "Their role has been invaluable and provides an excellent example for the community."

The monthly Outstanding Volunteer Award is part of a program implemented by Smith to recognize volunteerism in the 21st District.

Smith encourages residents of the district to nominate volunteers by sending the name of the volunteer, a brief description of his or her outstanding contribution and a phone number. The nominator should also include his or her name and phone number for verification to Smith's Washington office, 422 Cannon, Washington, D.C., 20515.

Odessa Representative files legislation to limit UIL

AUSTIN (AP) — Lawmakers have filed bills that would place the University Interscholastic League's finances under control of the state treasury and prohibit the UIL from using any means of chance to decide a playoff berth.

The first measure, which also would require the UIL to abide by the state Administrative Procedure Act, was filed by Rep. Gary Watkins, D-Odessa.

The Odessa Permian Panthers were banned from Class 5A football playoffs last year for holding supervised practices prior to the Aug. 20 date mandated by the UIL.

Watkins said he is not trying to seek legislative revenge. He said his bill reflects 1988 Sunset Commission recommendations that were not passed into law.

UIL spokesman Peter Contreras told the Houston Chronicle that the bill would wipe out the agency's savings account, encourage unnecessary spending and likely result in higher fees to member schools.

The second bill is by Rep. Ted Kamel, R-Tyler. It comes after the Tyler Chapel Hill Bulldogs were eliminated from playoff contention on a coin flip last November.

The Bulldogs, who were the defending Class 4A state champions, had tied for the District 17-4A title with Corsicana and Athens.

BIG: 'Tootsie' came to creator Cornell in a dream

(From 1B)

The motto sums up Cornell's purpose for creating Big Tootsie and dedicating countless hours outside of his school teaching job to organize outdoor activities and character-building charitable functions.

An Emerson Elementary science and math teacher when school is in session, Cornell perpetuates the legend of Big Tootsie in his off hours.

He organizes tennis tournaments and was instrumental in developing junior tennis for Midland. He leads annual Martin Luther King Jr. Day hikes, stages R.A.T. (Race a Teacher) races, boomerang throws and pancake jamborees complete with "flying" (tossed) pancakes.

Cornell annually heads up excursions to New York, and hikes in national parks. He organizes fundraisers and even stages silly contests, including a standing on one leg contest in order to break Guinness records.

Behind the fun and silliness, however, are the events he stages to benefit individuals in need of cheering, money or services.

Whenever help is needed, Cornell is liable to be on the scene.

He was in Jessica McClure's backyard the day she was pulled from the well. "I mostly helped the Japanese camera crew move their equipment," he said. "I was there for moral support."

Cornell and a Big Tootsie puppet (sporting a pink ribbon in honor of Baby Jesscia) also attended the Midland parade to honor Jessica's rescuers.

The teacher rounded up a group of concerned students to help feed, clothe and entertain the children of Saragosa after a West Texas tornado struck the area in 1987.

Aside from collecting donations for Saragosans, Cornell raised funds at a garage sale to donate cash to Saragosa families. He also invented a game involving tennis balls threaded with string for the children.

Cornell said the game — dubbed Saragosa Ball 1 and 2 — was invented so that the "children of Saragosa could have pride in a game that would be uniquely their own."

Whenever help is needed, Cornell is liable to be on the scene.

The Saragosa project didn't end in 1987, however, and Cornell has made more tennis balls to deliver to the area in May. The updated version of the toy consists of bright yellow and green tennis balls threaded with neon shoelaces. The laces are used to launch the balls into the air in a batless form of softball.

"Wait till the kids see these," said Cornell, bouncing a tennis ball in his hand, his face breaking into a wide grin, a common occurrence whenever the spry man mentions "the kids."

Cornell is also quick to brag about how talented his junior tennis players are, what an expert local champion boomerang catcher Tiffany Hadden of Odessa is, and how exceptional a job the tiniest of tykes can do pulling weeds or painting a house for the Christmas in April project, which repairs homes for the elderly.

"I have one favorite memory of a Christmas in April project," Cornell said. "We had children pulling weeds from a back yard where the yard was nothing but weeds, and all of them taller than the kids."

The woman who owned the house was hospitalized in Arkansas, Cornell said.

"We spent the entire day pulling weeds and cleaning that yard," he said. "At the end of the day a man came to the back fence with tears streaming down his face. I thought we had raised so much dust it made him cry."

Cornell later learned that the man was the son of the homeowner, and was moved to see complete strangers working so hard to help his mother.

"I was really touched. I'll never forget it," Cornell said.

Another favorite Big Tootsie moment involved surprising a woman with a cake on her 111th birthday when Cornell lived in Ithaca, N.Y. "I took a whole gang of kids along. They prepared the party," Cornell said. "I was really proud of those kids, they were so willing to do something for someone they had never met."

Cornell said it is easy to spark young minds to do good deeds.

"Kids are inspired by the least little things," Cornell said. "You can make a game out of paper tubes and keep their interest for hours."

Cornell said that he strives to "get kids actively engaged in projects," preferrably outdoors. "I try to instill a spirit of volunteerism in children and get them away from the TV. I shudder at some of the things I see on TV, especially violence."

On a recent windy day Cornell hosted a boomerang toss with dozens of children and adults. "It's really too windy for this," he said. "This is actually kite weather."

Nonetheless, Cornell forged gamely ahead, toting sacks bulging with plastic toy boomerangs which he tossed to waiting hands.

As Cornell launched the first large boomerang high into the sky, children and adults alike shrieked with glee.

"Did you hear all those oooooohs and ahhhhhs?" he asked, as he hopped from one foot to the other. "Some children have never done this before. Seeing these things fly so high is a break from daily routine," Cornell said, as he leaned forward to tilt the wrist of a young girl into proper boomerang launching position.

The girl hurled her boomerang into the air, laughed and jumped up and down.

"See," Cornell said, pointing to the new boomerang fan. "This is what it's all about."

less-qualified applicants.

However, an Arco official testifying for the defense said that in 1988, company policy dictated that materials representatives have college degrees.

Pam S. Pierce, an Arco operations manager from Houston, said there might have been some confusion about this policy because the company was undergoing a restructuring.

Defense attorney W. Bruce Williams said the company in fact offered the materials representative job to women with college degrees on two occasions. He said Ms. Yates, far from being the victim of discrimination, was simply not qualified for the demanding position.

Williams cited an unflattering appraisal of Ms. Yates' work at the pipe yard as well as managerial complaints about her absenteeism as evidence of her unsuitability for the job.

But one of her former supervisors, John Hadamek, described Ms. Yates as a "better-than-average employee."

Hadamek, now retired from Arco, told Bunton that Ms. Yates had performed the duties of a materials representative while the position was vacant. He said she probably could have handled the position on a full-time basis, had it been offered to her.

Ms. Yates, now unemployed, said she has applied for 20 jobs since she left Arco, to no avail.

Although she resigned her position, she qualified for unemployment benefits, according to testimony. Last year, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission issued her a "notice of right to sue" in connection with her departure from Arco.

Testimony in the trial is scheduled to resume today. Judge Bunton said he expects to render a decision in the case by the end of this month.

Plano OKs year-round schedule

PLANO (AP) — The summers may seem a bit short to some North Texas elementary school students who will participate in an experimental year-round calendar.

Plano's Carlisle Elementary is the first school in the Dallas-area to adopt the year-round schedule.

It joins almost 900 schools nationwide that have abandoned the traditional calendar, according to the National Association for Year-Round Education in San Diego.

"From an educational perspective, people are really excited about it," said Carlisle principal Charles McCasland, who proposed the plan.

A majority of Carlisle parents approved the three-year pilot plan.

LIMIT: Mosbacher leads state term-limitation effort

(From 1B)

He said interest in term limitation is growing state by state. His organization already is mobilizing to field nationwide support for the proposal.

"The greatest need is to bring in some new ideas, some fresh ideas, and convince more people to run," he said. "We're trying to get back to public service rather than careerism. We want to eliminate the huge advantages of incumbency."

Mosbacher, a Republican, was defeated by Democrat Bob Bullock last November in the race for lieutenant governor.

"I'm fully recovered from the 1990 election," he said.

Houstonian Jim Calaway, a fund-raiser who has worked on Democratic presidential candidates' campaigns, also is a co-founder of Texans for Term Limitations.

Midland Mayor Carroll Thomas, who attended Monday's luncheon, said he supports the term limitations movement although it has its flaws.

"I think it has a lot of merit," Thomas said. "The public is very supportive of it."

However, he said he is wary of losing valuable experience in public office.

Assault

A 23-year-old Midland man was slashed with a knife outside a local bar Sunday evening, police officials said.

Police responded to a vehicle check in the 1100 block of Andrews Highway about 11 p.m. and discovered Allen Delong, suffering from a cut in his right shoulder, sitting in a Oldsmobile Cutlass.

Delong told police he had been at Rumors, 3305 W. Front St. When he left the bar he was confronted by a man in the parking lot. Delong ran to his car after he was cut by the man.

He refused treatment from paramedics, police said.

The police report did not have a reason for the assault.

The attacker was described as a white man with brown hair, 25 to 30 years old and 5 feet 10 inches tall.

Robbery

Police are investigating an aggravated robbery of a woman at the Lakes Apartments, 516 N. Loop 250, that occurred about 9:38 a.m. Monday, police officials said.

Three black men, one armed with a .22-caliber handgun, and two other men with shotguns, entered the apartment of Sandra Williams, 35, through an unlocked door, Ms. Williams told police.

The men demanded and took and undermined amount of money from Ms. Williams before tying her up and putting her in a closet.

Ms. Williams was transported to Midland Memorial Hospital where she was treated and released.

State agency plans seminars

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The state comptroller's office will provide Midland and Odessa residents with an economic forecast tailored to the local area as part of a series of 25 regional seminars in March and June.

A seminar is tentatively scheduled for the Midland-Odessa area for June 12, but the site has not been selected.

Comptroller John Sharp said the seminars will give business, civic and government leaders an in-depth analysis of the local economy, the state's finances and the state's relationship to the national economy.

The seminar will give details on the outlook for various segments of the economy, including manufacturing, trade, construction, real estate, services, agriculture and government.

"This kind of specific, targeted information has rarely been available to local leaders before, or provided in such a user-friendly way," Sharp said.

A $10 charge per person will cover the cost of the meeting and materials. Those interested can get additional information by calling 1-800-272-2729.

After forming his own band, Stewart toured as an opening act for Dan Seals. He also has opened for The Judds, Eddy Raven, Vern Gosdin, Steve Wariner, Lionel Cartwright and Eddie Rabbitt.

Stewart, now a Dallas resident, has recently released his second album, "Give Me A Sign." His first, "Brazos," was released in 1985. Both are independent releases.

Governor blasts unethical treatment centers

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards called on drug and alcohol counselors Monday to "clean up your house" of unscrupulous and unethical treatment centers that she said abuse adolescents and prey on troubled families.

"We have been receiving consistent complaints about young people being locked up for treatment they don't need and problems they don't have," Richards told about 150 people representing private and government substance-abuse programs.

Richards also criticized the state prison system for dragging its feet on implementing drug and alcohol programs, and she urged passage of a Senate bill that would increase counseling for inmates.

■ More state news/6B

Richards, a recovering alcoholic, said some treatment centers are hiring "headhunters" to sell expensive programs to troubled families "that has little or nothing to do with their specific need or situation."

"It is loathsome behavior and it cannot be tolerated," Richards said.

"We are drowning in people with a profound need for help and we have among us people with so little conscience that they put hustling the almighty dollar above the serious human concern," she said.

Richards later refused to give details about the complaints she referred to, saying, "Today, I wanted to fire a warning shot."

She said the problem is not widespread, but added that some centers urge treatment for normal, adolescent problems.

"Any kid that perhaps has depression, suddenly these centers are places where their parents can unload them and the hustlers are out there ready to take them."

She called on the drug and alcohol treatment representatives to expose these centers.

"We cannot allow a bunch of con artists to cash in on other people's misery. They make a mockery of what we know to be a life-saving discipline," she said.

Ed Cooper, an associate administrator at Charter Hospital of Austin, a psychiatric and substance abuse hospital, said Richards' comments "certainly paint a very broad brush."

He added, "What she says is applicable to any industry. In any industry there are a few bad apples. Unfortunately, because of the nature of our business, the bad apples produce more tragic results."

Bob Dickson, executive director of the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse, said the panel recently adopted a rule that would ban so-called headhunters by prohibiting anyone from taking a fee for a referral to a treatment center.

He said the most frequent complaints about treatment centers to the board concern high-pressure salespeople and not receiving the treatment paid for.

He also said many of the television advertisements are "overdramatized."

FORCE: County must scramble for funds

(From 1B)

Because the state last year cut its share of funding, the task force is faced with having to make up $282,000 of the budget through selling confiscated property, Seltzer said.

If auctioning falls short, he said the entities will be asked to help make sure the budget stays in the black.

They also will be asked to split the premium cost of liability insurance to protect Midland County from lawsuits, Seltzer said.

Tom Finley, commander of the three-year-old task force, estimated that insurance premiums would be between $9,000 and $12,000.

Finley said he expects all other task force supporters to cooperate with Midland County's requests. "We've always had their support," he said.

No lawsuits have been filed in response to task force activities, Finley said, but the county, as task force host and grantee, risks losing millions of dollars in court, Finley said.

In other action Monday, commissioners approved a $6,000 contract with a Dallas-based demographer who will conduct a redistricting study using 1990 census data.

The city, school district and hospital district in Midland also are hiring Delbert Taebel, who works for the University of Texas at Arlington.

Taebel is expected to visit Midland on Wednesday to discuss the upcoming study and meet the county's redistricting committee members, whom commissioners also approved Monday.

Two representatives were selected from each of the county's single-member districts. The committee will act as an advisory body during the study, Precinct 2 Commissioner Guy McCrary said.

The members are Alan Holmes and Carol Stovall of Precinct 1, Joel Ford and Fred Westmoreland of Precinct 2, Joe Jimenez and Johnny Williams of Precinct 3 and Marilyn Allen and Sam Terry of Precinct 4.

Serving as at-large members will be Seltzer, Midland County Republican Party Chairman Rick Davis Jr. and Midland County Democratic Party Chairman Chris McCormack.

Midland County Attorney Mark Dettman and Midland County Elections Administrator Bettye Calvert will serve as non-voting advisory members.

In other action Monday, commissioners:

■ Accepted a gift of an unspecified number of trees from the Midland chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

■ Adopted a resolution declaring March 23 as Salute to Troops Day. A parade has been planned on Wall Street that day.

■ Approved hiring a librarian for the Midland County Law Library.

■ Approved seeking a state grant to pay for an additional prosecutor for the Midland County District Attorney's office.

G&G Pharmacy believes your time is very important

Enjoy professional, caring service and the convenience of insurance card acceptance, a handy drive through window and home office prescription delivery from G&G Pharmacy.

G&G Pharmacy, located at 2101 N. Midland Drive in northwest Midland's Market Manor strip, is close to you. G&G is nearby as you leave Primary Medical Clinic on Andrews Highway or Emergy Clinic on Midland Drive, if you live at Manor Park or Terrace West, or as you are on your way home from the doctor or work.

Mothers with small children who are tired and exhausted after a visit to the doctor appreciate the convenience of the G&G drive through window. Save valuable time and have your physician call in your prescription — it will be ready for you to pick up in the store or at the window when you arrive.

Owners and registered pharmacists Gary and Gwen Prensner are committed to giving prompt, courteous service to each of their customers. The Prensners recently purchased what was formerly Allen's Pharmacy at the same location. All records were transferred at that time.

Many Midlanders will recognize Gary from his six years in the Skaggs Alpha Beta pharmacy. And those who traded at Allen's will remember Gwen, who has been associated with the pharmacy since 1984.

Gary and Gwen, who met at the University of Texas pharmacy school, have been married for 22 years. They are the parents of Jennifer, a Lee High School senior, and Steve, a fourth grader at Lamar Elementary.

G&G Pharmacy now gladly accepts Blue Cross Blue Shield, PCS, Medicaid and Farm Bureau third party insurance card plans. "We welcome your insurance card business," said Gary. "Since you pay the same with your insurance card, why not choose the convenience of G&G Pharmacy?"

In addition to third party cards for easy payment, G&G also accepts American Express, MasterCard and Visa for your pharmacy purchases.

It is comforting to know that Gwen and Gary are fully knowledgeable about your prescriptions. "We realize your medication is important," explained Gwen. "We are happy to counsel when you have questions." They strive to inform you about possible side effects and drug interactions. They also carry books on your special medical problems.

At G&G Pharmacy, enjoy personal, prompt service with no hassles of waiting in line. Other advantages include computerized records for income tax purposes, top quality generics, close up parking, and city wide prescription delivery to your home or office.

Personal service at G&G goes beyond what you might even expect from a pharmacy. "We will be happy to stock health care and grooming items that you have trouble finding elsewhere," noted Gwen.

G&G even carries some products not found in many pharmacies. For example, the Prensners compound progesterone suppositories, which are widely prescribed by many gynecologists around town.

Even though G&G is a small pharmacy, they are competitively priced, especially when you consider the convenience and personal service.

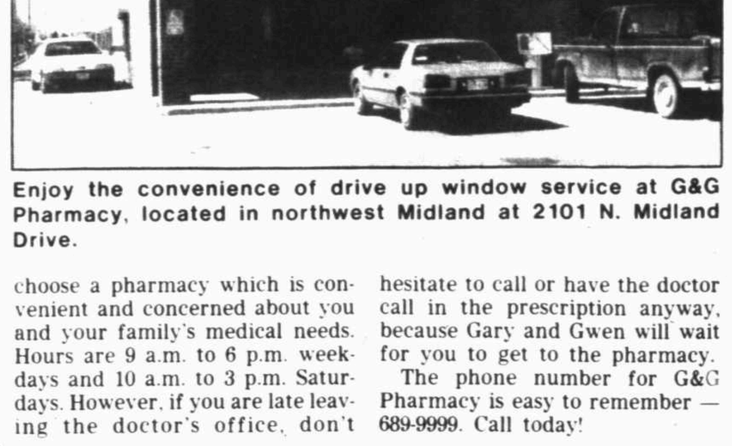

Senior citizens enjoy a discount at G&G Pharmacy.

If you want to transfer your prescription to G&G Pharmacy, just bring in your prescription bottle and Gwen and Gary will take care of the details for you.

"Customers appreciate that we are sensitive to their medical problems," noted Gwen.

You have a choice — so why not choose a pharmacy which is convenient and concerned about you and your family's medical needs. Hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays. However, if you are late leaving the doctor's office, don't hesitate to call or have the doctor call in the prescription anyway, because Gary and Gwen will wait for you to get to the pharmacy.

The phone number for G&G Pharmacy is easy to remember — 689-9999. Call today!

Lifetime Siding & Window Co. offers "superior" installation

Neil Letkeman, owner of Lifetime Siding and Window Company, stands in front of this home at 3321 Providence. Homeowner Jerry Bechnye contracted Lewellen Construction to install quality no maintenance steel siding.

"We were the first and still are the only siding company in Midland to use screws to install siding," declared Neil Letkeman, owner of Lifetime Siding and Window Co. "Our superior installation methods have made us the number one siding company in Midland."

More and more Midlanders have come to realize that using screws and rivets when installing siding is a far superior method, compared to the old methods, such as stapling and nailing, Letkeman added.

However, in order to keep costs down, many siding companies have resorted to lower quality materials and faster installation methods such as stapling and nailing. These methods are standard in the industry. But are they the best? Lifetime Siding and Window doesn't think so.

"We start by replacing any rotten and warped boards," explained Letkeman, "and we refasten loose boards. We make sure that all the wood on the house is in good shape before we start installing our siding."

When installing siding, Lifetime Siding specialists use screws and rivets in all critical areas of installation. It does not take an engineer to figure out that screws and rivets secure siding better than staples and nails.

These installation methods, together with the highest quality lifetime warrantied steel or vinyl siding will give you a permanent solution to your painting problems. Just call Lifetime Siding and Window Co. at 689-0307 for a free money saving price quote.

That was just what Jerry Bechyne did. He went so far as to get an estimate for his home at 3321 Providence from Lifetime Siding and two other siding companies. "Neil's salesmanship played a big part in my decision," Bechyne recalled. "Also, the quality and the price played a role. The price was very reasonable — more down to earth than the others."

He stated that the installation method used by Lifetime Siding is excellent. "I believe how Neil does it is important — using rivets to adhere the materials together in critical areas. The use of screws is also important due to the wind. You have great movement of materials in West Texas."

Bechyne, who has painted the outside of his home several times, said, "It's no fun, especially working the ladder and climbing up and down."

"Lifetime Siding and Window Co. has a lot going for it," he concluded.

Lifetime Siding and Window Co. specializes in covering the eaves and overhangs on brick homes and installing storm windows.

For energy efficiency, protection for your home and family, noise and dust reduction, as well as overall savings, Letkeman recommends storm and replacement windows for your home.

Storm windows, which are great for insulation, can come with tinted glass. And replacement dual glass thermal break windows are solid investments for the long term.

If you have ever considered siding your home or installing new windows, this is the best time of the year to get a free, no obligation estimate. Call Lifetime Siding and Window Co. at 689-0307.

"We will continue to be a leader in the industry, giving our customers the highest quality products at the lowest prices," Letkeman concluded.

Other ideas include Fridgie refrigerator magnets, night lights, southwest long burning (35 hour) candles, Coaster Stones, arrowheads, trade beads, gorgeous handmade baskets, a wide variety of Kachina dolls, 100 percent Alpaca area rugs and wool weavings and rugs.

The Cutting Edge has an exclusive on Windstalkers Original Pottery from Arizona. This pottery is handcarved and painted in traditional Southwest scenes and figures — animals, pots and wedding vases — in such colors as gray, mauve, blue, brown and peach.

Decorate throughout your home with Figi Graphics hand cast paper and art work. Many are available in wicker frames. C.M. Russell prints are framed and matted. Statue art from cowboys to snakes is available.

Don't miss the Cutting Edge grand opening, and meet J.B. Taylor and Cutting Edge manager Kathy and her staffers Gloria, Marty and Brad.

There will be several gifts to be given away during the grand opening. Just come by and sign up —you need not be present to win. This is one of the ways the Cutting Edge can say "Glad you came to see us and hope to see you often in the new location." Store hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Gift wrapping is free. MasterCard, Visa and American Express cards are welcome. Call 694-8346 for more information.

The Cutting Edge manager Kathy Barrett displays a sampling of the many items found at The Cutting Edge, in its new location in Midland Plaza. The Cutting Edge is your source for quality knives, collectibles, Native American and southwest designs and home decorating items.

Imperial Flag & Banner says "Welcome home troops!"

Do your patriotic duty and help welcome home our troops with an impressive 3' x 5' flag from Imperial Flag and Banner. Owner George Leach has ordered plenty of red, white and blue flags which can be displayed proudly at your home or business.

You can purchase one of these new, exclusive and timely flags at Imperial Flag and Banner, located one mile south of the downtown post office, at 1613 S. Main. Hang this flag and show your support for the return of U.S. troops from Operation Desert Storm.

Another flag of special interest at this time in history is a bright yellow 3' x 5' Desert Storm "Support Our Troops" flag. As you prepare to welcome home a loved one or if you merely want to exhibit a show of support, remember Imperial Flag and Banner for a roll or a length of yellow plastic "Welcome Home" tape or a roll or a length of yellow ribbon.

Yellow ribbon bumperstickers and lapel pins and handsome wooden and engraved brass desk and wall plaques commemmorating Operation Desert Storm are just a small portion of the vast array of patriotic merchandise available at Imperial Flag and Banner.

The desk and wall plaques are a special reminder of the Persian Gulf conflict; however, Leach has extended a touching offer: To the family of any soldier killed in action, they may select one free plaque of their choice.

Of course, as one might guess, the most popular items at Imperial Flag and Banner these days are 3' x 5' United States flags and miniature United States flag desk sets. Many other sizes of superior quality nylon and polyester flags up to an impressive 20' x 30' United States flag are in stock.

Imperial Flag and Banner carries a huge selection of flag accessories, including Halyard rope in a variety of sizes, tassels, all sizes of poles, brackets, bases, snaps, balls and eagles (for outdoor poles), and stars, crosses and other religious symbols for indoor poles.

If you have a large indoor flag for a church or a school auditorium, for example, Imperial Flag and Banner can fit your flag with a custom base. And Imperial Flag and Banner has even more patriotic United States flag items to fit your needs. Choose from license plate covers, patches, decals, stickers, lapel pins, balloons, belt buckles and buttons.

History buffs will enjoy United States flags from the past, Texas flags, Confederate flags (up to 5' x 8' in stock) and others. A popular method of display is in the desk set or the miniature flag set.

Impressive wooden bases are available for you to display and enjoy a complete set of miniature United Nations flags, a United States state flag set or a set of flags representing the Organization of American states.

If the flag you want is out of stock, it can be ordered and shipped to Midland quickly. Imperial Flag and Banner also ships across the country.

Another way of demonstrating patriotic spirit is to wear a hand-crafted sweatshirt from Imperial Flag and Banner. Custom made 100 percent cotton shirts colorfully sport timely patriotic topics.

In addition to flags from around the world and patriotic items, Imperial Flag and Banner has earned a reputation for carrying a large selection of 3' x 5' and 3' x 10' premanufactured message banners for stores and businesses.

To promote special events, such as a garage sale or a grand opening, Imperial Flag and Banner has lines of attention getting pennants in a variety of colors, including metallic and safety glo. These come in lengths of 100', 60' and 30'. Sports teams and apartment complexes often find themselves in need of a flag. Imperial Flag and Banner stocks sturdy nylon 3' x 5' blank flags in just about any color you could want.

Imperial Flag and Banner has the capacity to manufacture custom flags and banners with company logos and elementary school names. Professional quality kites and windsocks are in stock.

Display this red, white and blue 3' x 5' welcome flag as the troops return from the Middle East. This flag is available at Imperial Flag and Banner, 1613 S. Main, one mile south of the downtown post office.

Other services include custom T-shirts for sports teams, alterations, dressmaking, tailoring and flag repair.

Imperial Flag and Banner is open Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Call 682-3562 for more information.

Midland Tire & Brake Center accommodates its customers

At Midland Tire and Brake Center, the number one goal is customer satisfaction through the winning combination of personal service, expertise and a large inventory of quality, name brand products.

Since 1973, Midlanders have depended on Midland Tire and Brake Center, located at 2210 W. Front, for a variety of state-of-the art services on foreign and domestic cars and trucks. These services include front end alignments, brake repairs and servicing, tire mounting, and no charge lifetime rotating and balancing on any tire purchased at the store. All tire prices include mounting, balancing and valve stems.

Whether you are new to Midland or a valued longtime customer, be sure to clip the coupon in today's Business and Industry ad and treat your car to a front end alignment and a four wheel balance for $34.95. (Four wheel alignment cars are slightly higher). This offer is good through March 19th; however, be sure to check the ad in this section each week for a different special!

Many Midlanders will recall that Midland Tire and Brake was called Johnson Tire and Supply for years. When the Johnson family retired and sold the business to James and Shirley Woodfin of Odessa, the name changed, but the well-established commitment to customer service remained solid.

Perhaps the key word to describe the philosophy of Midland Tire and Brake Center is accommodating. "Once we have made someone our customer," said J.P. "Pat" McDaniel, "we're not through with them after the sale. We'll do whatever we can to help them — whether we repair their car or refer them to someone else."

McDaniel, a lifetime Midlander with 17 years of experience as Midland Tire and Brake's manager, stakes his reputation on the service he and his staff of technicians can offer you. He added, "If I don't establish a personal relationship that each customer can find trust in, then I haven't accomplished anything."

"If we jeopardize that trust and take a chance on losing a customer, then Midland Tire and Brake Center won't be here. We're here to serve the customer — whatever it takes." And that includes pickup and delivery whether you are at home or the office during the day.

McDaniel's staff includes Kip Woodfin, in sales and service, two experienced full time brake and front end mechanics and a longtime tire serviceman. Hours are 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 Monday through Friday, plus special arrangements when necessary to accommodate your busy schedule.

Choose Midland Tire and Brake Center for your next set of tires or a replacement tire. "Our mainstay is Dayton," noted McDaniel. "This is our largest working line which offers high quality and reasonable pricing." Uniroyal tires are carried to service the original equipment customers. Michelin is another popular line of tire in stock. And Midland Tire and Brake Center has access to all major brands, including Pirelli and Dunlop for exotic and unusual performance vehicles.

When you purchase a set of tires at Midland Tire and Brake Center, bring them by every 7500 miles for a no charge rotation and balance for the life of the tire. A reminder sticker will be placed in your window to help you with this service.

Other services include complete four wheel front end alignment and front end mechanical services, even for high end cars, shock and strut replacement (with equipment to replace McPherson struts) and total brake services, including disc brake systems and conventional brake systems. Customers can enjoy no charge inspections on front ends and brakes.

At Midland Tire and Brake Center, he continued, "We are fully capable of handling all performance styled wheels, we repair flats, and we mount and dismount tires. We have the equipment and the expertise."

"All of our brake and alignment work is done in house for total control. Nothing is sent out. We guarantee customer satisfaction on anything we do."

Take care of your car by taking it to Midland Tire and Brake Center at 2210 W. Front or its counterpart in Odessa, Odessa Tire Center at 1906 East 8th. Visa, MasterCard, American Express, Discover and Dayton National Credit are welcomed. Call 682-7911 for more information.

Thatcher: Keep troops in gulf

DALLAS (AP) — Former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said Monday that allied forces may have to remain in the Persian Gulf region until "the position in Iraq is much clearer."

Mrs. Thatcher said Iraq has produced and used chemical weapons in the past and "no assurance from her will be good enough. We must go and observe through inspection that those terrible weapons have in fact been destroyed."

One of the United States' staunchest allies, Mrs. Thatcher resigned Nov. 28 after a rift in the Conservative Party threatened her authority.

Mrs. Thatcher, who addressed an estimated 2,000 people at the North Dallas Chamber of Commerce annual meeting Monday, said she plans a private trip to Orange County, Calif., next week before a visit to Canada.

The Dallas visit combined business and pleasure, since Mrs. Thatcher's son, Mark, lives here.

She said that the United Nations should continue to impose sanctions against Iraq to prevent a supply of chemicals and military equipment from reaching the war-torn nation.

"Iraq cannot be allowed freely to rebuild her armed forces," she said. "Our own people have suffered too much to have that happen to them, and so have the people of Kuwait."

Mrs. Thatcher said "some Western forces may have to remain until the position in Iraq is much clearer. It is vital for all of us that international seaways remain free from any possible attack."

Mrs. Thatcher added that she hoped "the people of Iraq will deal with Saddam Hussein."

The former British leader also addressed the Arab-Israeli conflict, saying "there is now a better chance" to solve the Palestinian issue than before the war.

"I believe since the most decisive effort of President Bush and the coalition forces, there is now a better chance to get negotiations going than ever before," Mrs. Thatcher said. "There has to be. What the world has learned is that missiles are not respective of national borders and the only way to dwell in peace and safety is to come to a reasonable agreement with your neighbor."

She stressed that a settlement can't be imposed on the region.

"They themselves have to do the negotiations — Israel and the Palestinians — possibly against the background of an international conference where the world says to them, 'We believe it is time. You resolve these problems,'" she said.

Mrs. Thatcher praised the efforts of allied forces in the war, saying "it was strong, decisive and brilliantly successful."

"Both of us have such wonderful generals," she said referring to U.S. Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf and British Gen. Peter de la Billiere. "It was they who planned the most brilliant military campaign. We gave you our best. You certainly put up your best. Together, they were the bestest ever.

"The success of the operation confounded the pessimists, and weren't we pleased?" she said. "And what a lot of merchants of doom there were."

The decisive victory proved President Reagan was justified in pursuing a massive military build-up during the 1980s, she said.

"At the time, they came under great criticism, possibly for spending too much on defense," Mrs. Thatcher said. "How ill-judged that criticism now seems. They were right and if they hadn't kept up their defenses and the SDI (Strategic Defense Initiative) research, we should not have been able to bring the Gulf to such a swift and satisfactory conclusion."

The address was one of Mrs. Thatcher's first major speeches since resigning office. She arrived in Texas from Washington, where she was presented the Presidential Medal of Freedom at the White House last Thursday.

In her speech, she also addressed concerns that Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev was slowing down perestroika. Mrs. Thatcher said the Soviet Union is entering "its most critical phase."

She praised Gorbachev's accomplishments, including allowing democracy to take root in Eastern Europe, but she said economic reform at home still has not been achieved.

"Real hardship is being visited on many people within the Soviet Union," Mrs. Thatcher said. Speaking to Gorbachev, she said, "Mr. President, it is easier to destroy communism than to build a free-enterprise economy. Destruction is always easier than construction."

But Western nations shouldn't lose their patience with Gorbachev's reforms, she said.

"Let us be under no illusions about the size of the task," she said. "I'm often asked, 'Can we still do business with Mr. Gorbachev?' We have to, because it was his courage and vision which embarked on this great adventure. He has already achieved so much. We must not underestimate his reforming zeal to achieve the rest."

Wrestler wins

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — John Smith, the first American to win four consecutive world wrestling titles, received the Amateur Athletic Union's James E. Sullivan Award Monday night as the nation's outstanding amateur athlete for 1990.

Smith, 25, of Stillwater, Okla., was a finalist for the fourth time and became the first wrestler to receive the Sullivan Award.

The award, presented annually since 1930, has traditionally gone to an individual performer rather than to athletes in team sports.

Trivia Teaser

Tuesday's Question — Don Mattingly was recently named the 10th captain of the New York Yankees, the latest in a broken line of superstars that included Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Thurman Munson and Ron Guidry. Who had the longest tenure of any previous Yankee captain?

Monday's Answer — Duke's Mike Gminski, Virginia's Ralph Sampson and ... Clemson's Dale Davis are the only three major college players to compile 1,500 points, 1,200 rebounds and 200 blocks.

Ping! 4-5A baseball arrives

■ Midland High travels to Midland Lee today to open the district campaign.

By Bill Price
Staff Writer

As the District 4-5A baseball season opens today, it is accompanied by what has become something of a tradition.

Just like the other sports in the league, the district's opening day is highlighted by cross-town rivalries, as Midland High visits Midland Lee for a 4 p.m. game at Lee's Johnson Field.

The two teams have already faced off once this year in non-district play, as Lee downed the Bulldogs 9-3 in the Tournament of Champions March 1. Both teams are also coming off a tournament last weekend at Carlsbad, N.M., where they both won one game and lost two, making MHS 4-6 for the year and the Rebels 7-5.

Elsewhere in district play, Odessa Permian (4-4) visits Odessa High (8-1) and preseason No. 1-ranked Abilene Cooper (10-3) takes on Abilene High (7-4). San Angelo (7-7-1) is open today.

For the Rebs, the MHS game marks the beginning of a three-game stretch that could define the district race early into the schedule.

"The Midland High game is very important because we have Cooper next, then Permian. We need to face Cooper with a win behind us," said Lee head coach Jesse Benavidez.

"We can't play like we did in Carlsbad. We got good enough pitching to win, we just didn't score any runs. I guess we left our bats here."

Lee's likely starting pitcher is Brian Tomlin (2-2), who earned the Rebels' win in Carlsbad, while the Bulldogs could counter with James Madrid (2-1). However, MHS head coach Rick Wood might decide to go with another hurler.

"It just depends on how James' arm feels. He was sore after throwing Thursday in Carlsbad, so we'll just see. If James doesn't throw, it will probably be Dewayne Culpepper (2-2)," Wood said.

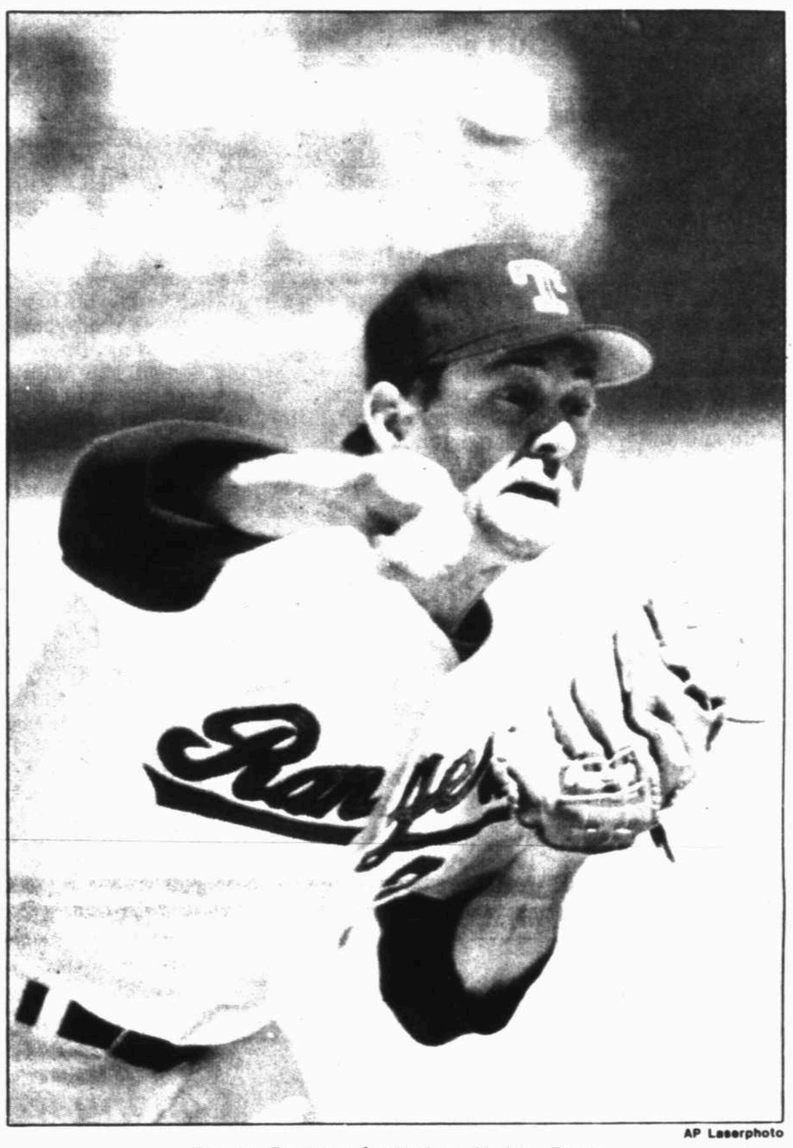

Just as important as the pitching, the coaches added, is the atmosphere the rivalry provides.

"I think both teams will settle down and play better than they did in Carlsbad. I wish all games had this kind of atmosphere. We won't have to use the revenge factor (from the 9-3 loss) because of the pride aspect.

"It's a matter of personal pride, because our guys have to live with them next week and next year, and don't want to have to hear about losing to them," Wood said.

"Any time we play Midland High, we get pumped up. Also, our kids have played Madrid (a 10-game winner a year

Texas Rangers' pitcher Nolan Ryan
...still going strong

Nolan Ryan still turning heads

■ At the age of 44, "Big Tex" is still charting his own course.

By Blackie Sherrod
The Dallas Morning News

PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. (AP) — Big Tex, as the aliens call him, was the only one who didn't think it a big deal.

Customers at the Rangers-Twins affair were loudly impressed, without really realizing why. Graybeards in the pressbox were trying, and failing miserably, to recall any other pitcher ever, ever, ever throwing five innings his very first spring outing.

History doesn't record such trivia, unfortunately, but until some dedicated researcher with a nose for dusty newspaper files says differently, we may consider this an all-time record, this Sunday outing of Mr. Nolan Ryan.

Never mind his 44 years; this has never been done by any young buck, either.

Traditionally, your established major league hurlers, judging their own conditioning and limitations, attempt no more than three innings maximum, sometimes two, in their first spring outing.

And here is the Ranger elder, first crack out of the box, pulling another of his patented shockers. Granted, the spring outings are now counted by number of pitches, rather than innings. But the rule of thumb is 15 pitches per inning.

And if you don't think Mr. Ryan steers his own ship, listen to Ranger skipper Bobby Valentine.

In a pre-game chat, a pressboxer asked the normal question: How many innings for Ryan?

"Aw, I can't do anything with him," said Valentine with a wave of his arm and a resigned grin. "He should go 30 pitches. Two or three innings. Especially in this wind."

There was a gale of maybe 25 mph chilling the Florida sunshine.

"You know what he wants?" Valentine spreads his palms wide. "He wants to go FOUR innings. He's got it in his head that's what his schedule should be."

Bulldogs, Rebels fighting for final playoff berth

By Bill Grimes
Staff Writer

One thing is for certain in the ever-so-heated District 3 soccer race: Midland High must defeat Abilene Cooper today to stay in the playoff picture.

If MHS wins today's match, which begins at 4:30 p.m. at the MHS field, and Lee defeats Abilene High in Abilene today, that makes another thing for certain: Midland Lee would have to defeat or tie San Angelo to clinch the district's second playoff berth.

Otherwise, the Rebels would drop into a tie with their crosstown rivals based on the formula suggested in the University Interscholastic League Administrators Manual for soccer.

"Unless the district executive committee specifies otherwise, tie games shall count as one-half game won and one-half game lost," according to the manual.

MISD Athletic Director Jack Tayrien said Monday that District 3 has no separate provision for figuring ties into won-loss percentage. Consequently, he added, district officials will use the UIL formula to account for ties.

District 3 Soccer

For example, if both Midland schools win today and Lee loses to San Angelo, Lee will finish the regular season with a 7-3-2 district record. Adding a half-point to the win and loss columns for each tie would give the Rebels an 8-4 mark, or .667 winning percentage.

Midland High, which would finish the regular season at 6-2-4 with a win today, would also finish at .667 after ties are factored into the won-loss percentage.

Of course, all the talk about a possible tie is a moot point if 1) Midland High loses today, or 2) Lee wins both its matches this week. Lee would also earn the second playoff spot with a win today and a tie with San Angelo.

Howard, SPC gain finals as OC Wranglers fall

■ Howard College and South Plains are both in today's Region V basketball finals as expected, but both had to come-from-behind for advancement.

Staff Report

WACO — The top-ranked Howard Hawks overcame a sizable halftime deficit to nip the scrappy Odessa College Wranglers, 93-90, in the semifinals of the Region V basketball tournament here Monday.

The Hawks, 31-1, will meet South Plains for the third time this season in the Region V final at 6 p.m. today. The winner will meet the Alvin-San Jacinto winner at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the first ever Texas Junior College championship game.

That winner will earn a berth in the upcoming National Junior College Athletic Association tournament in Hutchinson, Kan.

South Plains, also 31-1, handed Howard its only loss of the season early in Western Junior College Athletic Conference play.

But the Texans also had to come from behind to post a 99-79 win over New Mexico Junior College in Monday's other semifinal. The NMJC Thunderbirds boasted a 21-point first half lead and a 49-34 halftime lead, but South Plains outscored the T-Birds 65-30 in the second half to advance.

In Region XIV action Monday, Alvin beat Tyler 74-67 while San Jacinto outlasted Kilgore 99-89. The bitter Houston-area rivals will meet at 8 p.m. today in their regional championship game.

Odessa College, 25-9, used the inside-outside tandem of Rodney Dent and Robert Shannon to build a 49-37 halftime lead. Dent had 15 points at the break, including 7-of-9 from the free throw line, while Shannon fired three three-pointers en route to 13 first-half tallies.

But Howard came back in the second half behind Johnny McDowell, who scored 12 of his team-high 16 points in the second 20 minutes. Rich Campbell added three three-pointers in the second half for the Hawks.

Howard led much of the last few minutes, but Dent made it interesting with a strong inside move to cut the Hawks lead to 91-90 with 38 seconds left. Dent drew a foul from Dexter Abrams on the play, but missed the subsequent free throw attempt.

Antonio Valiengo made two free throws with 30 seconds left to provide the Hawks with some insurance.

OC had a chance to tie in the final seconds, but Shannon put up an air ball on a three-point attempt with 10 seconds left, and Howard was able to run out the clock.

Campbell and Harvey Petty each added 13 points for Howard, while Abrams and Valiengo both had 11 for the Hawks.

Shannon led all scorers with 24 points, while Dent added 23. Tony Martin added 10 points for the Wranglers.

South Plains 99, NMJC 79

David Diaz led five South Plains players in double figures with 27 points, while Dwight Stewart had 16, Charles Outlaw 15, Terry Alexander 14 and Corey Beck 13.

Greg Brown and Will Scott led NMJC with 17 points each.

'Refocused' Hogs play mad, get even

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas enters the NCAA tournament with a No. 1 seed and a tip of the hat to Texas.

On March 3, Texas and Tom Penders beat Arkansas and Nolan Richardson 99-86 in Austin.

During the following week, Arkansas beat Texas A&M, Rice and Texas by 47, 29 and 31 in the Southwest Conference tournament.

"Tom's team beating us down in Texas gave me the opportunity to get our team refocused," Richardson said Monday. "After the Vegas game, we were never the same basketball team. The greatest thing that ever happened was to get refocused.

"We know now we can't just go out and play basketball and expect to win. That spanking came at the right time. Like I tell our kids, all sickness is not death."

Arkansas (31-3) opens the NCAA tournament against Georgia State (16-14) on Friday at Atlanta. Asked what he knows about Georgia State, Richardson said, "absolutely nothing."

"I don't really spend a lot of time harping on what other teams do," he said. "I just want to know who their main players and what kind of style they play."

Richardson used words like focused and intensity when asked about the way the Razorbacks played in the SWC tournament.

The performance, he said, left no doubt in the players' minds that they are as good a basketball team as they want to be.

"I feel very comfortable going into the NCAA tournament with that kind of attitude," he said.

On Sunday, Arkansas led 55-49 at halftime and outscored the Longhorns 21-2 in the first 3:59 of the second half.

"It was kinda like getting hit by a truck," Penders said.

The Longhorns are the No. 5 seed in the Midwest and Penders made it clear that he is happy Texas is not in the same bracket as Arkansas. Last year, the Razorbacks beat Texas to reach the Final Four.

There was much ado about Richardson pushing the Razorbacks hard after the Texas loss, but he said that was just his style and that the players are accustomed to it.

Jim Palmer pelted hard in first stint

Associated Press

The way Jim Palmer pitched Monday, he may have to turn in his baseball uniform and go back to selling underwear.

Palmer, trying to revive his career at age 45, looked like a batting practice pitcher in his spring training debut for Baltimore. With a fastball barely reaching 75 mph, he was hit hard — when he got the ball over the plate.

Palmer, who retired in 1984, put just 19 of his 38 pitches over; Boston batters swung 15 times and missed only once. That was by 21-year-old Phil Plantier, who singled sharply on the next pitch.

In all, Palmer gave up two runs on five hits, a walk and a balk in two innings as Baltimore beat Boston 3-2.

"I was disappointed. I expected more from myself. I would like to have done better," Palmer said. "But I think it would be premature to quit now. If I did, I still wouldn't know if I could do it."

Basically, Palmer showed no improvement over last week's intrasquad game, when the Orioles teed off. Plus, this time he aggravated a right hamstring to go along with recent Achilles tendon trouble.

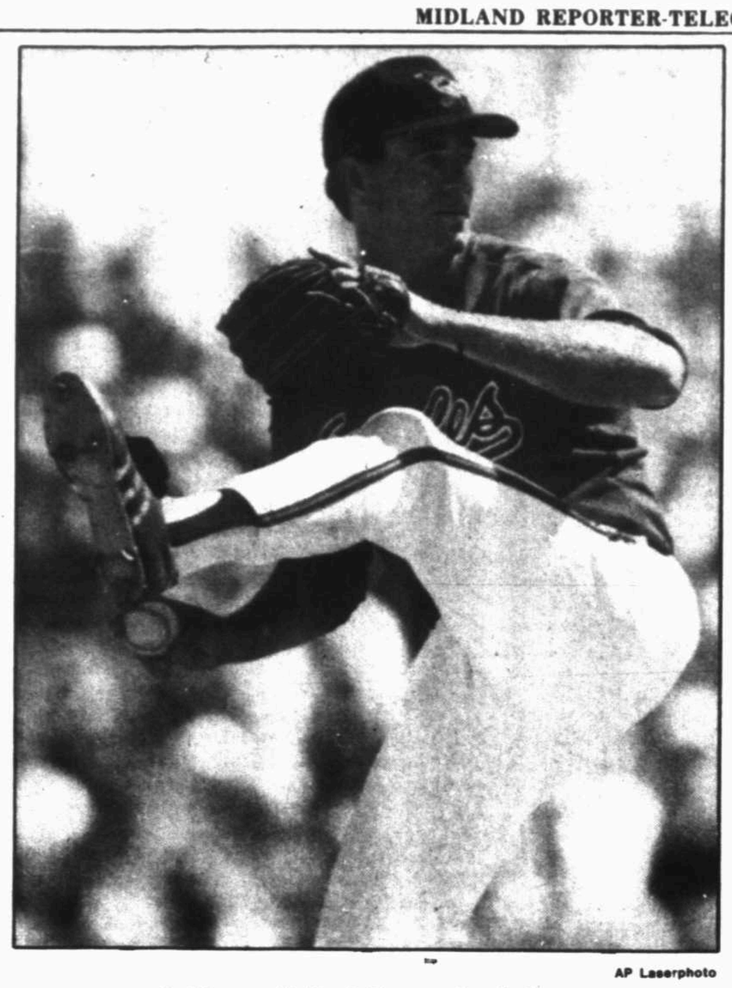

"I just know I have to pitch better than I did to be effective," he said. "It doesn't matter if you're 45 or 25, if you don't have command, you're not going to be successful."

THERE WERE two major injuries Monday. Cleveland first baseman Keith Hernandez will need back surgery and miss half the season, and Mets pitcher Sid Fernandez broke a bone in his arm when he was hit by a line drive.

"Surgery will be necessary to repair Hernandez's herniated disk," Indians president Hank Peters said. "Further tests will be performed early in the week, and a decision will be made as to when and where the surgery will be performed."

Hernandez, who agreed to a $3.5 million, two-year contract with Cleveland before the 1990 season, was examined in New York last week by two doctors who supported the previous finding of the team's orthopedic surgeon. Hernandez, 37, was sidelined by leg injuries and had just 130 at-bats last season.

Fernandez will be out for up to three months after he was hit just above his left wrist by a grounder off the bat of Houston's Javier Ortiz. Fernandez, who will be in a cast for six weeks, sustained a nondisplaced fracture of the ulna bone.

Spring Training Roundup

"I'm just real disappointed," Fernandez said after the Mets lost to Houston 11-4. "It's not a real bad break. It's still in place it's just shattered."

Actually, the bone was not "shattered," but fractured. The ball did not appear to be hit that hard, but Fernandez failed to get a glove on it.

"It wasn't hit that hard," Fernandez said. "It just took an overspin and came up. At least I can come back. It's a setback. It's always disappointing to have an injury like this. It was just a freak thing."

Fernandez was 9-14 with a 3.46 ERA last season. He has a career mark of 78-59. Fernandez has allowed 6.64 hits per nine innings, second only in major-league history to Nolan Ryan's 6.54.

IN OTHER games, Detroit beat Kansas City 7-5, St. Louis beat Philadelphia 3-2, the New York Yankees beat Atlanta 2-1, Los Angeles beat Montreal 5-4, Texas beat Cincinnati 13-5, Minnesota beat Toronto 14-6, Cleveland beat Chicago Cubs 6-5, a Milwaukee split squad beat Oakland 11-5, a San Francisco split squad beat a Brewers split squad 13-7, Seattle beat a Giants split squad 16-4 and California beat San Diego 9-4. Pittsburgh played the Chicago White Sox on Monday night.

In other camp news on Monday:

— Bob Welch, the American League's Cy Young Award winner last year, has a sore hip and will probably have his first appearance of spring training pushed back.

Welch was scheduled to pitch Wednesday against Seattle ar Tempe, Ariz., but did not participate in the Oakland Athletics' workout Monday.

"I don't think he'll pitch Wednesday," said Oakland manager Tony La Russa, who did not think Welch's injury was serious.

— American League president Bobby Brown gave representatives of Roger Clemens until March 22 to file a brief in the Boston pitcher's appeal of a five-day suspension and $10,000 fine.

Brown hopes to decide shortly after that whether to uphold the penalties he imposed for Clemens' confrontation with home plate umpire Terry Cooney in Game 4 of last year's AL playoffs.

Brown met for 35-40 minutes Monday with AL umpires supervisor Marty Springstead, AL counsel Bill Schweitzer.

RYAN: Only passing grade in first outing

(From 1C)

As usual, when the old marvel makes his first spring appearance, there was a bumper crop of media on hand. And to their eyes, Ryan was his usual self. He fanned the first batsman, Dan Gladden, on four pitches. He waled Randy Bush on five pitches, then quickly disposed of Shane Mack and Brian Harper on fly balls. First inning, 13 pitches. And so on.

At the end of four innings, no runs, no hits, one strikeout, three walks, 55 pitches.

The pressbox denizens hurried down stairways, across a grassy plot and into the Ranger locker room to await the man. Charley Kerfeld, Ryan's locker neighbor, called: "What you guys doing in here? He's going five."

The authors stared at him. Four innings the first day was unbelievable enough, but five?

"You think I'm kidding? He's going five," Kerfeld insisted.

The writers still milled like confused sheep until somebody called, "He's back on the field!"

"What the hell is he trying to do," muttered a guy, "pitch another no-hitter?"

Sure enough, the old-timer threw 13 more pitches, with Chili Davis getting the first hit on a harmless right-field drive, before he set the Twins down again and finally pulled on his blue windbreaker and headed for the barn.

To him, it was just another day in the fields.

"I threw 30 straight minutes of batting practice a couple days ago, and I figured I was ready to throw 60 or 70 pitches," he said. (Actually he threw 40 strikes, 28 balls.)

Wasn't this the longest he had ever pitched on his first try?

"I guess so," he said with a grin. Then he referred to his occasional wildness.

"It usually doesn't take that many innings to get my pitches in. But I feel I came into camp this year physically a little ahead, and I didn't want to lose the edge. I wanted to get the innings in because next week I start my regular-season routine."

Of his opening act, Ryan gave himself a passing grade, but no more.

"Overall, I was satisfied, but I was a little disappointed in my velocity and in my control," he said. "Probably the key was my change (of pace). You have to remember the hitters' timing is off, and they are not yet used to seeing a change."

If Ryan suspected he had set some sort of spring record, it made no impression whatsoever. It was like a neighboring farmer informing Ryan he had just plowed a straight furrow.

Surprise! UNLV ends up No. 1

Associated Press

AP Top 25

For the 17th time this season, UNLV is No. 1. Jerry Tarkanian and the Runnin' Rebels only need one more.

"I just hope we're as good as people think we are," Tarkanian said.

UNLV, with a 41-game winning streak, is just six NCAA tournament victories away from repeating as national champion. The Rebels (30-0) completed a perfect season in the rankings Monday when they were voted No. 1 in the final Associated Press poll.

They were No. 1 in the preseason poll, held the spot for all 16 regular-season polls, and were a unanimous choice eight of the last nine weeks.

UNLV, the top seed in the West Regional for this week's tournament, received all 64 first-place votes and 1,600 points from the nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Arkansas (31-3), the Southwest Conference champion, jumped from fifth to second.

The Razorbacks, the top seed in the Southeast, received 1,490 points, 44 more than Indiana (27-4), which didn't receive a No. 1 seeding from the selection committee and held the third spot from last week's poll.

Johnson named All-America

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Odessa College star Larry Johnson and Stacey Augmon, the forwards who have helped top-ranked UNLV to a 41-game winning streak as it prepares to defend its national championship, were named on Monday to the Associated Press All-America basketball team.

They become the fifth set of teammates to be named to the first team and the first since North Carolina's Michael Jordan and Sam Perkins in 1984.

Johnson also became the 39th player to repeat as an All-American, earning the honor in both of his seasons playing for the Runnin' Rebels after transferring from junior college.

Joining the seniors on the first team were forward Billy Owens of Syracuse, a junior, and Louisiana State center Shaquille O'Neal and Georgia Tech guard Kenny Anderson, both sophomores.

A nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters voted for three teams each, with points awarded on a 5-3-1 basis.

Spurs lead Jazz by one game

NBA Roundup

SAN ANTONIO — David Robinson has never lost to the Utah Jazz in San Antonio. And with the Midwest Division lead at stake Monday night, he wanted to make sure the streak would continue.

Robinson scored 33 points to lead the Spurs to their fifth straight win, 105-96 over the Jazz. It was also Robinson's fifth win in a row against Utah in San Antonio and gave the Spurs a one-game lead in the division.

"This was a really big game for us, one that hopefuly will maintain our momentum," said Robinson, who hit 11 of 14 shots from the field. "When you have Utah in your house, you can't stumble and give them the upper hand."

Karl Malone led Utah with 34 points, including 13 in the final period. John Stockton added 20 assists but the Jazz still lost their third game in a row.

"We played hard, but give them credit because they did, too. We played hard and were in the game at the end and then something just happened," Malone said.

Scoring eight consecutive points for the Jazz, Malone brought Utah within four, 89-85, with 7:00 to play.

Knicks 90, Nets 85

NEW YORK — Patrick Ewing made just six of 18 shots, but scored 12 of his 20 points in the final 8:52 to rally New York over New Jersey.

The Nets, who lost their 13th consecutive road game and sixth straight overall, never trailed in the second half until Ewing hit two free throws to give the Knicks an 86-85 lead with 36 seconds left.

Ewing, who finished with 16 rebounds, then stole the inbounds pass from Chris Morris at midcourt and drove in for a dunk, giving the Knicks a three-point lead. Charles Oakley completed the scoring with a last-second layup.

The Nets, who led by as many as 14 points in the first half, had an 83-78 lead with 4:24 to play, but were outscored 12-2 down the stretch to lose for the 27th time in 32 road games this season.

Sam Bowie led New Jersey with 24 points, while Kiki Vandeweghe scored 16 for the Knicks, winners of eight of their last nine games.

Bowie's two jumpers capped a 13-4 third-quarter run that snapped a 54-54 tie and gave the Nets a 67-58 lead.

Bucks 96, Pistons 85

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Dale Ellis came off the bench to score 30 points, including 11 in the fourth quarter, leading Milwaukee over struggling Detroit.

Milwaukee moved within one game of the second-place Pistons in the Central Division. Detroit has now lost four of five games at home.

Milwaukee led by four points, 71-67, entering the fourth quarter, then broke the game open with a 10-point run midway through the period to take a 85-71 lead.

Trail Blazers 104, Cavaliers 96

PORTLAND, Ore. — Clyde Drexler's 26 points, 12 in the third period, helped Portland break a two-game losing streak.

Jerome Kersey added 21 points, all in the first three quarters, and Kevin Duckworth grabbed a game-high 13 rebounds.

Brad Daughtery led the Cavaliers with 24 points and 9 rebounds and John Williams added 19 points.

Drexler gave Portland its biggest lead of the game at 74-63 with 1:20 left in the third with a corner jumper, concluding his scoring in the period.

Portland held a 78-70 third-quarter lead and the Blazers built it to 92-82 with 7:07 left in the game.

Prices lower

NEW YORK (AP) — Energy prices turned mixed Monday, weakened over prospects that OPEC would cut crude oil production but buoyed by tight supplies of gasoline.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in April settled at $18.99 per barrel, down .32 cents, at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

The U.S. supply of gasoline is at its lowest level in years for this time of March, which is leading into the peak summer driving season. Traders have also been pushing gasoline prices higher in recent weeks amid fears about tight refining capacity.

Unleaded gasoline for delivery in April settled at 71.41 cents a gallon, up 1.43 cents.

"Fill up your gas tank before you go home," Hill said.

Home heating oil for delivery in April fell .96 cent a gallon, settling at 54.43 cents.

Natural gas prices were mixed, with gas for April delivery closing at $1.362 per 1,000 cubic feet, up .3 cent.

Dollar up

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar gained moderately Monday despite two concerted efforts by major central banks to reign in the currency's post-war advance.

Gold was lower. On the New York Commodity Exchange, gold bullion for current delivery fell $5 a troy ounce to settle at $364.70. Republic National Bank later quoted a bid for gold of $365.00, off $4.50.

The unified sell-offs helped knock the dollar off its highs for the day. The dollar, which traders said peaked at 1.5870 German marks earlier in the U.S. session, ended at 1.5815 marks.

The pound also slipped in New York, where sterling fetched $1.8515, less expensive than late Friday's $1.8645.

In New York, dollar settled at 138.20 yen, up from Friday's 136.82.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Friday's rates, included: 1.3705 Swiss francs, up from 1.3692; 5.3845 French francs, up from 5.3515; 1,180.00 Italian lire, up from 1,174.00; and 1.1558 Canadian dollars, down from 1.1614.

Silver prices were mixed. On New York's Comex, silver bullion for current delivery settled at $4.07 a troy ounce, down 9.5 cents from Friday.

Stocks lower

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market settled lower in a quiet session Monday, beset by doubts about the interest-rate outlook.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 15.84 to 2,939.36.

OPEC opens first post-war meeting

■ OPEC opened its first meeting since the Gulf war in an uneasy atmosphere, with Saudi Arabia resisting calls for sharp cuts in production in order to boost crude prices.

Associated Press

GENEVA — OPEC ministers met Monday for the first time since the Gulf war to consider halting excess oil production in an effort to boost crude prices.

But Saudi Arabia, the cartel's most important member, appeared to be taking a tough stand and resisting calls for sharp cuts.

Iranian Oil Minister Gholamreza Aqazadeh said the "atmosphere is not very easy" for the meeting of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Iraq, defeated in the six-week war, did not send a representative. Kuwait, freed of Iraqi invaders but its oil industry shattered, was represented by a deputy oil minister, Sulaiman al-Omani.

Yousef Omeir Bin Yousef, oil minister for the United Arab Emirates, and Ginandjar Kartasasmita, the Indonesia minister, told reporters no substantive discussions were held and it was premature to draw conclusions about the outcome.

Shortly after Iraq's August invasion of Kuwait, the cartel suspended supply limits to pump extra oil and compensate for the loss of 4 million barrels of Iraqi and Kuwaiti crude. The oil was embargoed by U.N. sanctions.

RRC says production off in 1990

AUSTIN (AP) — Preliminary figures indicate that Texas crude production in 1990 dropped 2 percent from 1989, said Railroad Commission Chairman Robert Krueger.

Krueger on Monday said the 1990 total was 632,192,872 barrels, compared with the 1989 preliminary total of 645,036,694 barrels.

Also Monday, Krueger said preliminary Texas oil production figures for December 1990 were up from both November 1990 and December 1989.

The preliminary December 1990 mark is 53,826,906 barrels. Krueger said preliminary oil production figures for November 1990 were 53,228,401 barrels, while the December 1989 figure was 51,929,949 barrels.

Texas daily crude oil production in December 1990 was lower than the November 1990 average, but higher than in December 1989, Krueger said.

Production averaged 1,736,352 barrels daily in December 1990, according to preliminary figures.

Preliminary reports for November 1990 put the daily average production at 1,773,825 barrels, he said. December 1989 preliminary production was 1,675,160 barrels daily.

Staff Report

The Honorable Lena Guerrero, the first lady to ever serve the Texas Railroad Commission, will meet with the PBPA Environmental Issues Committee and the Association's Board of Directors, Advisors and guests on March 21.

As a member of the House State Affairs Committee, Mrs. Guerrero developed a detailed knowledge of energy, utility and transportation regulation, then successfully passed legislation that protects and conserves Texas' environment. She continues to be an advocate for the development of the State's natural resources; her record in passing more legislation that any other non chairman in the House during the 71st session was one of many reasons she was named to Texas Monthly's "10 Best" list.

U.S., Britain agree on Heathrow rights

■ The U.S. and Great Britain have reached an agreement that will let United and American airlines replace Pan Am and TWA at London's Heathrow Airport.

Associated Press

NEW YORK — American and British negotiators reached agreement Monday on arrangements to permit two strong U.S. airlines, United and American, to replace two weaker rivals, Pan AM and TWA, at London's Heathrow Airport.

Pan Am and TWA will be paid a combined $735 million for giving up the prized London routes.

The agreement, which came after months of contentious bargaining, also gives British airlines greater access to lucrative U.S. markets.

Transportation Secretary Samuel K. Skinner said the deal also paves the way for a new round of talks on expanding the British and U.S. air travel markets.

He said those negotiations could begin within a month, and could result in a significant easing of restrictions on air travel between the two countries.

Under the present agreement, the British will allow the strapped Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airlines to sell their London routes to United Airlines and American Airlines for $290 million and $445 million respectively.

The British had initially objected to the transfer of the Heathrow landing

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Private loan entailes risk of nonpayment

By Bill Doyle

Q. We are a retired couple and have $100,000 we want to invest. Would it be better to put this money in a certificate of deposit at 8 percent or just put it out on loan to someone at 10 percent for five years?

A. It stands to reason you will do better financially with the loan, IF payments of both interest and principal are made promptly. After all, 10 percent is two percentage points higher than 8 percent. That's a substantial 25 percent difference.

Doyle

But the "IF" above is mighty big. Making a loan to a private "someone" entails risk of nonpayment. Unless you are absolutely sure of repayment or the $100,000 is money you do not need, you would be wise to obtain collateral, such as a deed to property, if you go the loan route.

Assuming you don't want to take any chance of losing even part of that money, my advice is to put it in a CD where it will be safe and sound with Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. coverage.

FDIC coverage, of course, stops at $100,000 per depositor per institution. So, if you leave interest to accumulate on the CD, the amount above $100,000 will not be insured. You can avoid that by withdrawing your interest and putting it elsewhere.

And, now that rates have come down, your thought about getting 8 percent CD interest creates another problem. Some banks and savings and loan associations pay that much. Most do not. You would have to shop carefully to obtain 8 percent.

Q. The interest from all my CDs is automatically deposited in my money market deposit account each month. I live on this income. Some of the CDs will mature in a few weeks. Is there a federal government security that acts like a CD, meaning monthly interest would be sent to my bank account?

A. No, because no federal government security pays interest monthly. But don't give up on your idea.

Our federal government sells three types of securities to investors — U.S. Treasury bills, notes and bonds. T bills, which come with maturities of 13, 26 and 52 weeks, are discount securities. Notes have maturities of two to 10 years. Bonds have maturities as long as 30 years. Both notes and bonds are current-income securities and pay interest every six months.

You can buy bills, notes and/or bonds by opening your own "Treasury Direct" account through the Federal Reserve Bank serving your part of the country. Discounts on the bills and interest on the notes and bonds then will be directly deposited in your personal bank account at whatever bank you designate.

By having bills, notes and bonds with various maturities, you can arrange to have discounts and/or interest reach your bank account at the times you want.

For example, if you own Treasury notes maturing in January, February, March, April, May and June, the interest from the first note will go into your local bank account in January and July, the interest from the second note in February and August, etc.

This would be a complicated process, requiring careful planning — including watching for U.S. Treasury note offerings. Nonetheless, it can be done.

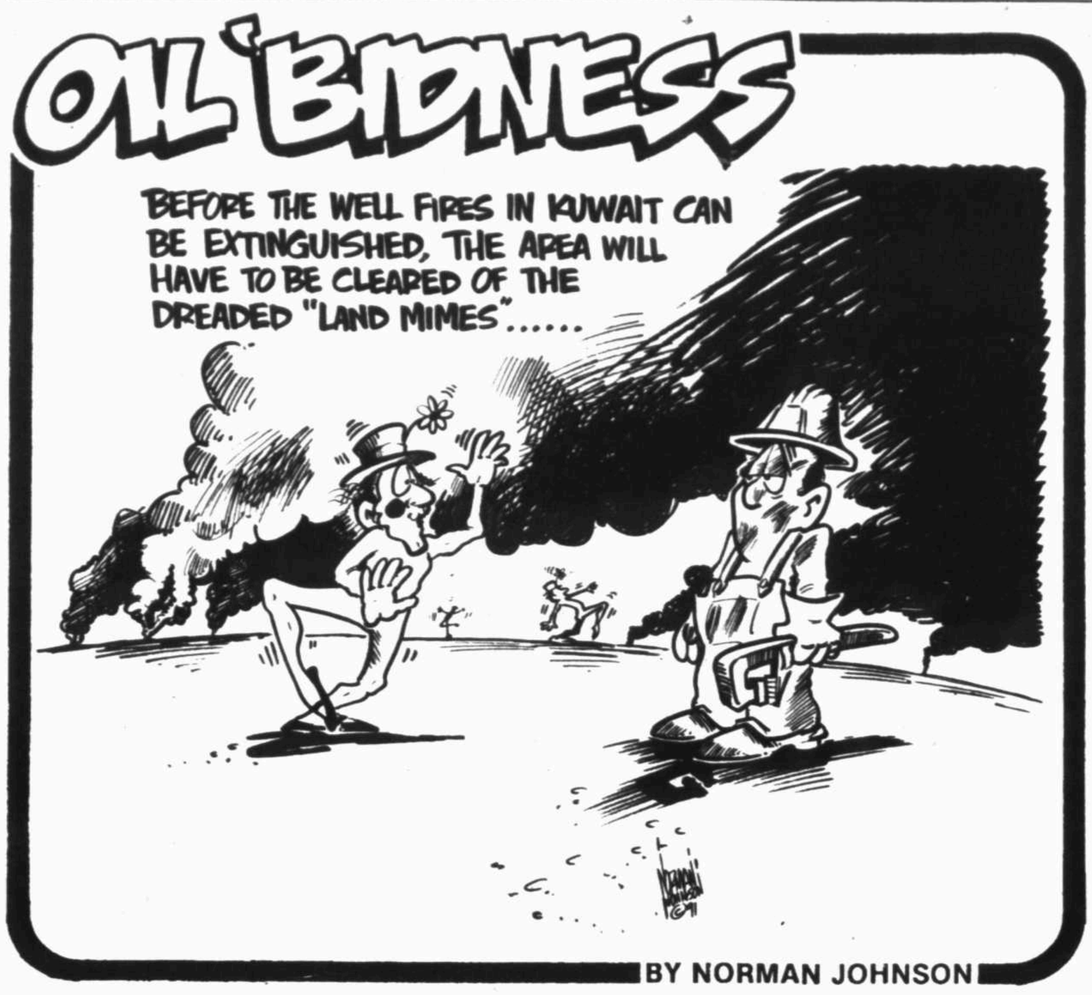

Q. I have an interest-paying money market deposit account at a local bank. The bank stays open until 1 P.M. on Saturdays. I have made several Saturday deposits of more than $1,000. Checking my bank statements, I notice the deposits are not posted to my account until the following Monday. Thus, I lose two days' interest.

Are banks permitted to post Saturday deposits two days after the actual deposit dates?

A. Yes. No rule forces a bank to immediately credit to customers' accounts deposits made on nonbusiness days, such as Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. For that matter, if your bank is open in the evening and you make a deposit at that time, you will almost certainly find the money is posted to your account the next business day.

rights, saying it was prohibited by an air travel treaty between the two nations.

Skinner had earlier expressed frustration over the British position, calling London's negotiators "recalcitrant."

"We can now put this chapter behind us and move forward into what should be wonderful opportunities for both countries and for consumers of both countries," Skinner said at a news conference.

He said the agreement also represents "a particularly important step for Pan American and its ability to preserve financial viability."

A Pan Am spokesman, Jeff Kriendler, said the deal will be crucial to Pan Am's chances for financial recovery. The airline is now under protection from creditors in Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code.

Pan Am will have to use at least $100 million of the $290 million and probably more to repay an emergency loan that it was unable to pay back by a deadline on Friday.

Stephen M. Wolf, United's chairman and president, said that after arrangements are complete the airline will offer service to Heathrow from New York, Washington, D.C., San Francisco, Los Angeles and Seattle.

The transfer of Pan Am's London routes to United was approved by the Transportation Department on Feb. 6. But approval was conditioned on the granting of rights for United to serve Heathrow rather than Gatwick or other British airports.

TWA's application to transfer its routes to London to American is now pending before the Transportation and Justice departments. That sale also hinged on the granting of landing rights at Heathrow.

Heathrow is the most desirable air destination in England, because it is located within the London metropolitan area and offers better connections for flights to other European cities.

In exchange for settling the Heathrow landing rights issue, the United States made these concessions:

- Agreed to permit a second British airline, other than British Airways, to operate to the United States from Heathrow.
- Granted British airlines broader rights to make cooperative agreements with U.S. airlines.
- Increased the numbers of cities in latin America, Canada and Asia to which British flights can continue after stopping at airports in the United States. One British carrier will be allowed to operate one flight a day between Seattle and Australia.
- British airlines would be permitted rights to a limited number of flights from six countries in Europe to the United States, on routes primarily connecting the United States and Great Britain.

Compaq offers free laptop mouse

HOUSTON (AP) — Compaq Computer Corp. began offering Monday a new, free, more versatile mouse to buyers of its laptop and notebook-sized computers.

Compaq is co-marketing the popular pointing device for personal computers with software giant Microsoft Corp.

The "mouse," introduced in the mid-80s by Apple Computer for its PCs traditionally has had one drawback, users said: it needed a flat surface, such as a desk or tabletop, to operate.

Consequently, using a mouse has been particularly awkward with the more portable PCs that allow people to compute in cars and planes.

So a more versatile mouse was created.

"Customers have been saying the mouse needed to be enhanced," said Ross Cooley, vice president of Compaq's North America division.

Cooley said rather than using the palm-sized mouse with a rotating ball on the bottom that is rolled along a flat surface, Microsoft "turned it upside down" to create the "Ballpoint" mouse.

The ball in its mouse sits on top and is rotated using the thumb or index finger. That configuration allows the mouse to be clipped to the side of the keyboard.

Houston-based Compaq is offering a free "Ballpoint" mouse to buyers of an SLT laptop or LTE notebook machines through June 30. The new mouse has a recommended retail price of $175.

The new mouse is designed to work with Microsoft's new Windows graphical program and the Compaq laptops.

OPEC: Major decisions not expected

(From 4C)

Led by heavyweight Saudi Arabia, OPEC is producing an estimated 23 million barrels of oil a day. The kingdom alone is pumping about 8.4 million barrels.

Some producing nations worry that unless the cartel restrains output, crude prices will tumble in the spring, when demand for oil falls in the United States and other consuming nations.

The average price of OPEC's crude oil was $17.72 a barrel last week, well below the group's target of $21.

Prices for light sweet crude, the most commonly sold grade in the United States and Europe, generally run $1 to $2 higher.

Estimates of demand for the cartel's oil in the April-June quarter vary widely.

OPEC Secretary-General Subroto said the group's economists pegged demand at 21.4 million barrels a day. But he said estimates from the delegations ranged from 20.9 million barrels to almost 22.5 million barrels.

In advance of the meeting, several ministers suggested the cartel should withhold up to 2 million barrels of oil a day from the market in the spring months, but said the Saudis oppose such a large reduction.

Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Hisham Nazer repeated on Monday his doubts that the session, which is technically a monitoring committee meeting to review the markets, would become a decision-making conference.

Victorious in the war against Iraq, the Saudis will be pivotal in determining oil policy for the coming months. Its willingness to trim production — and by how much — will help set the price.

Nigerian Oil Minister Jibril Aminu suggested an output ceiling of around 21 million barrels a day might be acceptable in the spring quarter.

Such a sharp reduction, though, would require Saudi Arabia to slice its production considerably, probably by at least a million barrels a day.

A Gulf source, who spoke on condition of anonymity, dismissed a ceiling of 21 million barrels a day as too low but said a cap in the range of 22 million barrels might do.

ANALYSIS

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market settled lower in a quiet session Monday, beset by doubts bout the interest-rate outlook.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 15.84 to 2,939.36.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 7 to 5 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 649 up, 935 down and 467 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 161.60 million shares, down from 206.85 million in the previous session. Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 205.96 million shares.

Analysts said investors were struggling to sort out a confusing interest-rate outlook.

The Federal Reserve appeared to nudge short-term interest rates lower on Friday following a weaker-than-expected report on employment for February.

But long-term interest rates rose amid widespread conjecture that the economy might have started to pick up again this month, with the end of the Gulf War.

Brokers say this mood of uncertainty may persist for a while, until Fed policymakers and stock traders can get a better fix on the postwar direction of the economy.

All of February's data are presumed to have been skewed at least slightly by the war. Readings on the state of consumer and business activity for March won't generally be available until early to mid-April.

Kite-making workshop open to youngsters

Science sessions for fourth, fifth and sixth grade students will continue Saturday at Pages and Prints Bookstore, 40 Plaza Center.

Jack Hickman, science and art instructor from Trinity School, will be in the Children's Center for another special demonstration and hands-on learning experience. This Saturday's project will be kite-making and begins at 10:30 a.m. "These Saturday morning sessions are designed to introduce or review some basic principle of science and then create a model which illustrates the principle," said Patteann Daniel-Beverley, owner of the bookstore.

The $5 fee covers kite-making materials and a hot dog lunch at the Windlands Park where participants will fly their kite project. Students are asked to bring their own fabric for the kite tail and a ball of kite string.

Margarine product not living up to its name

By Linda Anderson

There's two things guaranteed to get my attention in a product (not guaranteed to get my money, you understand, just my attention): (1) a goofy name; and (2) an advertising challenge. When you have both those things in one, then I can't resist trying the product for myself.

Anderson

"I Can't Believe It's Not Butter" has got to be the goofiest product name to enter the supermarkets in a long time. Not only that, but it's also an advertising challenge — maybe I can believe it's not butter. Anyway, of course I had to check it out for taste, price and advertising accuracy.

A 16-ounce tub of ICBINB (sorry, I just can't bring myself to write it out more than once) cost $1.29, which is more than I'm used to paying.

Of course, when you talk about label advertising, the first claim is the name, "I Can't Believe It's Not Butter." Among the other label advertising claims were: "No Cholesterol," "Flavored with Sweet Cream Buttermilk," and "75 percent vegetable oil spread."

Nutritionally speaking, ICBINB is supposed to contain 90 calories per tablespoon, as well as 10 grams fat, no protein or carbohydrates, and no cholesterol.

However, on the ingredients listing, the first products listed (in order) are liquid soybean oil and partially hydrogneated soybean oil, and sweet cream buttermilk. The label also lists a toll-free number (1-800-735-3554) to call for questions and comments, so I called and asked the woman who answered how this product can be cholesterol-free if it contains "sweet cream buttermilk." She said that in the churning process, the fat in the cream solidifies, and the buttermilk that is left (which is used in making the product) is cholesterol-free. Well, I still have my doubts, but that's what she said.

In taste-tests, adult tasters agreed that the product tastes somewhere between margarine and butter. "It's not as salty as margarine," said one, "but it's not as buttery as butter."

The younger taste-testers couldn't tell the difference between ICBINB and their usual margarine (the above-mentioned three-pound tubs).

Will I buy it again? Probably not. It's not a bad product, but (1) it's not a lower-calorie margarine; (2) it's more expensive that I'm used to paying; (3) and I certainly can tell it's not butter.

Price listed is from a local supermarket. Price at other locations may vary.

AT WIT'S END

Heavenly harmonies are few, far between

By Erma Bombeck

I was stopped at a traffic light when I heard it ... a low rumble that sounded like bombs exploding in the distance. As my car began to quiver, I realized the sound was getting closer. The noise reached a crescendo seconds later when a pickup truck pulled up next to me with a stereo at full power. Once again, I was a victim of secondhand music.

Bombeck

Everyone has been so busy spreading the hazards of secondhand smoke to our health that deafening decibels have been allowed to flourish without so much as a murmur. Loud music is one of the most pervasive intrusions in our society today.

I have been in specialty stores at the mall where I have to shout to buy something. Some restaurants play music so loud you have to read the waiter's lips. And a quiet day at the park or at the beach is out of the question.

I honestly do not know the clinical side effects of loud music. I can speak only of personal symptoms from the experiences of my generation, who gave birth to a group of kids who can't enjoy music unless it is accompanied by chest pains.

It is not a coincidence that most of my friends have been left with abnormalities brought on by loud music. My best girlfriend suffers from Car Radio Anxiety. She sits behind the wheel of her car sometimes for hours, too terrified to turn the key. She knows that if her teenager has driven her car last, the blare of the radio will make her teeth swell.

For years, another friend of mine thought she was hearing voices. They weren't distinct enough for her to make out what they were saying, but they were there. It took her months of therapy to realize it was "leakage" from her kids' headphones.

I haven't really felt well since one of my kids played Prince's "Purple Rain" for three solid months.

We lived in hope that when the kids left home, things would get better, but that has not been the case. As movie theaters get smaller, the volume gets louder. As music gets worse, the batteries last longer. Rockers and rappers take their music with them wherever they go — on buses, to the office, on airplanes and on the streets.

It's time we categorized music for what it is, something to be played in designated areas "For Listening Only." This would preclude doctors' offices, elevators, restaurants and the workplace.

I'm probably overreacting. There may be no side effects, but ... oh, I'm sorry. Your lips are moving. Did you say something?

Anti-theft devices improving

By Doron P. Levin
N.Y. Times News Service

DETROIT — Making the most of anti-theft technology, automakers are bringing out new cars with highly advanced electronic controls as well as more pedestrian measures: metals that are harder to bend and locks that are tougher to pick.

One of the most effective devices to be offered as standard equipment is an electronic system that prevents a thief from starting the car. As electronic components have replaced mechanical components, automakers have been able to design security systems that disable vital parts like the fuel pump if the proper key is not used.

Variants of this technology have been introduced by General Motors Corp. on several models and by Toyota Motor Corp. on its fanciest Lexus luxury sedan.

"We think electronics is the way to go," said Donald B. Cameron, the president of Tech-Cor Inc., Allstate Insurance Cos.' research subsidiary.

BUT AUTOMAKERS NOTE that previous innovations have not prevented the rate of car theft from rising steadily, and they seem ambivalent about how much more theft-resistant they want to make their vehicles.

While anti-theft features are important to buyers, especially luxury-car customers, automakers believe locked cars should not be made too difficult to open and start, since owners often lose their keys or lock them in their cars. Moreover, repossesors and tow-truck operators who must move locked cars say that the new technology is making their work difficult. And so, the argument goes, even the most advanced systems are eventually breached by the most skillful thieves. Besides, if all else fails, the entire car can be lifted onto a flatbed truck and hauled away.

"There is a conflict between theft deterrence and customer convenience," said Sachiro Kataoka, an electronics researcher for Nissan. "If a person locks the keys in the car, we need a way to help."

LAST SPRING, an illegally parked Lexus LS 400 made news in Manhattan, where cars are often stolen in a trice. A towing crew of five struggled for an hour to pick the door lock. "Fifty spectators cheered the car," Newsweek reported.

Toyota later explained that Lexus LS 400 keys, which are made of an unusual nickel-silver alloy, are difficult to duplicate and the locks are so precisely made that only the correct keys can open them.

As in many new models in recent years, the Lexus door lock is positioned so it cannot be reached with a coat hanger. In any case, the starter is electronically disabled unless the correct key is used. And Toyota has also shielded the internal lock mechanism so that it cannot be opened with a "slim-jim," a blade that thieves, police and parking-lot attendants can slide between the window and rubber gasket to open a door lock.

The Lexus LS 400 also contains an alarm, although skillful thieves are not easily deterred by alarms, police officers and insurance companies say.

TO HELP LEXUS owners avoid locking their keys in their cars, an electronic system prevents the locks from being activated when the driver's seat is not occupied and the key is in the ignition. Should a key be lost, Lexus says it will deliver a new one within 24 hours. Naturally, the electronic security system helps justify the Lexus LS 400's $40,000 price tag, and the system is costly enough — Toyota will not say precisely how costly — so that it will probably not be used in lower-priced models.

Mercedes-Benz has taken a different approach. It has replaced the metal surrounding its ignition switches with harder and harder alloys, but the company declines to be too specific about such measures so that thieves will not become wise to them, said A.B. Shuman, a Mercedes spokesman.

To further foil thieves, Shuman said, "we also make it a major megillah to get a spare key."

Sensors, encoded keys are foiling thieves' attempts

Associated Press

General Motors' PASS-Key, an electronic anti-theft system that is standard equipment on several models, has won praise from insurance companies and police officers alike.

The PASS-Key — the acronym stands for Personalized Automotive Security System — is used in conjunction with conventional mechanical door locks.

The system works like this: Electronic sensors built into the ignition lock "read" an encoded ignition key. If the wrong key is used, or if an attempt is made to start the car without a key, the system disables the engine for three to four minutes.

Certain GM models like the Corvette and Camaro had become prime targets for thieves, in part because they were easy to steal. Now, the PASS-Key has made stealing these models difficult, GM says. For example, since 1986, when the key was introduced, thefts of Corvettes have declined 45 percent.

GM assumes that thieves already have obtained coded keys, but if they have to try several keys each time they break into a car, it could take them as long as 30 minutes to start the car.

"The enemy of a thief is time," said Donald B. Cameron, the president of Tech-Cor, a subsidiary of Allstate Insurance Cos. "The longer it takes to start a car, the less likely it is to be stolen."

DEAR ABBY

Reverend's note has timeless message

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The Nazis killed my aunt not long before I was inducted into the service in 1945. My father's last days at age 94 (some 45 years later) were consumed by that terrible occurrence.

Van Buren

Just today I watched a television talk show where a vocal minority made some very convincing comments against our involvement in the war against Iraq. Although I would not wish to silence that group's warnings, because I, too, felt uneasy about our entering yet another war, I'm enclosing a gem of a piece that appeared in your column. Please print it again. It is timeless. — ERIC SCHOENHAAR, GREELEY, COLO.

DEAR ERIC: That "gem of a piece" has appeared in my column several times, and I agree, it is indeed timeless. And it's also timely.

It was written by the Rev. Martin Niemoeller, a German Lutheran pastor who was arrested by the Gestapo in 1938. He was sent to Dachau concentration camp where he remained until he was freed by the Allied forces in 1945. It was titled "I Didn't Speak Up" — and here it is:

"In Germany, the Nazis first came for the communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a communist. Then they came for the Jews, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant. Then they came for me, and by that time there was no one left to speak for me."

DEAR ABBY: The man I love is 73. I am 47. "Irving" and I have known each other for many years and there is no doubt about our love for each other. We get along very well, have a great deal in common and our sex life is great! The problem: I would like to get married, but Irving doesn't want to marry me. He says he's afraid that one day he'll be a sick old man and I will have to take care of him.

His wife died two years ago after a very long illness through which he nursed her devotedly, and he doesn't want me to have to go through the same thing with him. I try to tell him that growing old does not necessarily mean getting sick and becoming a burden.

I want to marry this man and enjoy whatever time we have left together. What words of wisdom do you have to help me convince this wonderful man that we must live in the present, take our chances and hope for the best? — IN LOVE WITH IRVING

DEAR IN LOVE: Your own words of wisdom sound pretty good to me. None of us has a contract with God, and it's just as well that we don't know what the future holds for any of us. Think positive, take good care of yourselves — and each other — and hope for the best.

DEAR ABBY: At least 40 years ago, our son who was in junior high needed a motto to use in an art project, so I gave him a Chinese proverb I found in Reader's Digest. I cut it out and put it into an antique frame, and it's been hanging on our wall ever since:

"If there is righteousness in the heart, there will be beauty in the character.

"If there be beauty in the character, there will be harmony in the home.

"If there is harmony in the home, there will be order in the nation.

"When there is order in the nation, there will be peace in the world."

— E. COLBY

"How to Be Popular" is for everyone who feels left out and wants an improved social life. It's an excellent guide to becoming a better conversationalist and a more attractive person. To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Popularity Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

PART-TIME INCOME AVAILABLE

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several routes which need to be filled with qualified, responsible individuals. Now is one of the best times ever to obtain a route in your area!

OFTEN ASKED QUESTIONS:

Is it worthwhile for adults also?

Yes! Our current carrier force is already 75% adult and 25% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:

- ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a carrier, you do not need daycare!
- COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- YOUTHS who are involved in afternoon school functions, but want to work!
- SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends.

How much money can I make as a carrier?

Depending on the size of the route(s) from $300 to $700 monthly! Some motor routes make even more!

How long does it take?

The actually delivery takes 1 - 2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2 - 3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the route(s). Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many carrier's choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subscribers' papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!

When do papers have to be delivered by?

6 a.m. Monday - Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, carriers do take days off by finding a friend or family member to substitute for them!

RESERVE YOUR ROUTE NOW!
