MOONWATCHING — Lone Astronaut Stuart A. Roosa, Apollo 14 spacecraft command module pilot, skirts the Moon's rugged surface and photographs the lunar module as it begins its descent to Fra Mauro, scheduled landing site. Spacecraft command and service modules were produced by North American Rockwell Space Division.

Apollo Spaceship Swings Into Orbit Around Moon

By AL ROSSITER Jr.
UPI Space Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Apollo 14 dived to an orbit only 11 miles above the jagged moon today and set up the $400 million mission payoff —man's first landing in the lunar hills early Friday.

"Wow, it's really a wild place up here!" exclaimed Commander Allen B. Shepard, the 47-year-old space pioneer who waited a decade to get there. "It has all the grays, browns, white and dark craters that everybody's talked about.

"It looks like you could walk along that surface and fall into nothing, absolutely nothing," said Shepard's fellow moonwalker Edgar D. Mitchell, looking at the stark difference in lighting along the line that separates daylight and darkness.

Shepard, Mitchell and Stuart A. Roosa, swung into orbit around the moon at 2 a.m. EST and dropped to within 10.7 miles of its surface 4¼ hours later in a daring maneuver never before attempted.

"Good show," said Shepard when advised the firing went off like clockwork. "That sounds good to us."

"We're here," Mitchell chimed in.

"This country down here is really rugged at this altitude," Mitchell said later.

The command ship's biggest engine fired 20.6 seconds to line the landing craft Antares up for its final descent 22 hours later. If the engine had fired six-tenths of a second too long, the astronauts would have needed an emergency "bail out" burn to avoid hitting the moon.

By using the command ship to lower Antares' orbit from the initial 67-by-191-mile-high path, Shepard and Mitchell saved precious fuel for their landing Friday in a shallow valley on the hilly Fra Mauro formation at 4:17 a.m.

"I guess we can make it down from here tomorrow," Shepard said.

They will spend 33½ hours on the surface and conduct two moonwalks lasting four to five hours apiece. Their goal is to return with a treasure of rocks that may write a new chapter in the history of the moon.

The astronauts outdistanced two problems that had dogged their flight. Sunday night after five unsuccessful tries they managed to dock their space ship with the lunar lander. And Wednesday a voltage shortage in one of the lander's two batteries signaled potential difficulties. But after close study of both problems, ground experts gave the spacemen the go ahead for the lunar exploration.

A 6-minute, 12-second braking blast from the big Apollo 14 rocket ended the astronauts' 3½ day, 230,000-mile journey from Earth and started three busy days of scientific investigation on and above the moon.

"Okay, Fredo, we had an extremely fine burn," Shepard told Fred W. Haise, the ground communicator. Haise missed an opportunity to explore Fra Mauro 10 months ago when the Apollo 13 flight was aborted by an oxygen tank explosion.

Quite A Sight'

After periods of prolonged silence most of the way to the moon, the astronauts loosened up when the satellite loomed large outside their cabin window. Even Shepard, America's quietest spaceman, was awed by the sight.

"It's really quite a sight," he said. "No atmosphere at all. Everything's clear up here. It's really fantastic."

Red Negotiators Rap Operation In Southern Laos

PARIS (UPI) —North Vietnam and the Viet Cong said today the United States has carried the Indochina war inside Laos and Cambodia, but was trying to cover up the military operations.

North Vietnam's chief peace negotiator, Xuan Thuy, and Viet Cong Foreign Minister Madame Nguyen Thi Binh lodged a strong protest against "the extension of the war" in statements at today's Vietnam peace talks session.

The Communist diplomats bitterly attacked the United States in statements to the press before the 101st meeting of the conference, which today entered its third year.

Thuy told newsmen he was "raising a strong protest against the extension of the war by the Nixon administration in Laos and Cambodia."

The Hanoi minister of state said he was also "protesting against preparations of new acts of violence in South Vietnam."

He said his third point in the protest statement was directed against Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird. Thuy said Laird was "assuming for the United States the right to extend the war on to all of Indochina."

Madame Binh said, "The United States seeks to impose a total blackout on what is presently happening in Laos, to cover up this extension of the war."

Coronado Inn To Celebrate Anniversary

Stockholders have been invited to attend Coronado Inn's 11th anniversary celebration in the Starlight Room from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 14.

Letters announcing "An Appreciation Buffet" were mailed to some 600 local stockholders today by Crawford Atkinson, president of the Community Hotel Co. of Pampa.

In his letter to stockholders, Atkinson said:

"The first 11 years have been very satisfying, and with good fortune there will be a mortgage burning in the late Fall of 1971."

Atkinson pointed out in the letter that the Coronado Inn is in an excellent state of repair, and a real tribute to the community.

He said several rooms, meeting areas and the Pampa Club will be open for personal inspection of stockholders during the anniversary celebration on Feb. 14.

"We want our stockholders to see for themselves the fine investment made for our community," Atkinson added.

SST STUDY COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans has appointed seven nongovernment scientists and engineers to a committee that will study the impact of the proposed supersonic transport (SST) on the weather, climate and radiation levels. The committee will not concern itself with possible SST noise problems, Stans said.

DEATH CAR — A Skellytown resident and his son were killed instantly near Miami last night when the vehicle in which they were riding left the road, sheared off three reflector posts and slammed into a tree. Dead at the scene were Crawford L. Hassler, 54, Skellytown and his son, Raymond, 31, 517 N. Starkweather.

Two Men Killed As Auto Hits Tree On U.S. 60 Near Miami

Two men were killed in a one-car accident on U.S. Hwy. 60 about two miles west of Miami at 11 p.m. Wednesday.

Crawford L. Hassler, 54, of Skellytown, and his son, Raymond L. Hassler, 31, of 517 N. Starkweather, were pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Mildred Cunningham, Miami, according to investigating officer Ken Evans, Department of Public Safety.

The car, driven by the younger Hassler, was westbound at a high rate of speed, Evans said, when it left the roadway and struck three reflector posts.

The 1963 convertible then traveled 225 feet and crashed into a tree. The elder victim was thrown from the vehicle on impact.

The Highway Patrol stated the body of the driver of the car was not extricated from the wreckage for over two hours.

Funeral services for the two are pending in Pampa with Duenkel Funeral Home.

Raymond Hassler, 31, born May 31, 1939, at Lindsay, Okla., was employed as a roughneck in the oil fields with Baker and Taylor Drilling Co. He had been working in Canadian and moved here two weeks ago. He was married to Brenda Ramsey July 12, 1969, in Montague.

Survivors are his widow, Brenda; two sons, Jimmy Ray and Timmy Jack, both of Kingfisher, Okla.; three daughters, Lois, Ruth and Donice, all of Kingfisher; four brothers, Archie, Lindsay, Okla.; Craig, stationed with the armed services in Germany; Doyle and Lonnie, both of Kingfisher; three sisters, Mrs. Aletha Smith, Mrs. Lois Gragg, and Miss Donna Hassler, all of Lindsay.

His father, Crawford L. Hassler, 54, was born March 12, 1916, at Velma, Okla.

He is survived by his widow, Ollie of Lindsay; three daughters; four sons, two brothers, O. R. and B. A., both of Skellytown; four sisters, Mrs. Lillie Malone and Mrs. Edna Malone, both of Panhandle, Mrs. Avie Gilbert and Mrs. Vera Akers, both of Tulare, Calif.

25 Killed, 60 Injured In Blast At Georgia Munitions Plant

WOODBINE, Ga. (UPI)— Some said afterwards they heard someone yell "fire."

Moments later Wednesday a fire-triggered explosion tore through a Thiokol Chemical Corp. munitions plant where magnesium flares were assembled for use in Vietnam.

At least 25 persons were killed, 17 of them women, said Camden County Sheriff W. E. Smith. Sixty others were injured, many of them with burned faces and limbs, and 38 of the injured were hospitalized. Six were hurt critically.

A company spokesman said Thiokol and the Army were "checking all possibilities" for the blast, including sabotage. He said "combustion of pyrotechnics' (material for making flares or fireworks) may have caused the explosion. The company will hold a news conference today.

The explosion shattered the 100-by-200-foot concrete and steel plant and its force hurled bodies up to 400 feet from the building. It was felt up to 50 miles away from the 7,000-acre Thiokol complex in this south Georgia coastal area.

A mushroom cloud was suspended above the flaming debris. Two other buildings were damaged heavily, a house trailer was obliterated, trees were blasted down for 300 yards and the surrounding woods were set afire.

Nearly all the survivors told of seeing flames or hearing someone yell "fire" before the explosion. One told of clinging to the floor to escape flaming death.

"I was sitting there at the table," said Jean Thomas of Folkston. "I could hear someone banging on the doors and screaming. There was so much fire we couldn't get out. We lay down on the floor 'til the fire sort of died down and then we ran out."

"When I saw the fire, I was gone," said Ruth Mutcheson of Brunswick. "That's all I can say. We ran over some of the bosses getting out."

The demolished building was used as an assembly center for trip flares used by the military in Vietnam.

Operation Aimed At Cutting Trail Of Reds' Supply

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. command announced today that 29,000 U.S. and South Vietnamese troops had reoccupied 1,000 square miles of the northwestern corner of South Vietnam in a major offensive that took American soldiers to the border of Laos.

The command thus lifted the tightest news embargo of the Indochina war on the massive operation that began six days ago. It insisted no American ground troops would be sent into Laos but left open the question of an invasion by South Vietnamese troops.

It was announced at the same time that 12,500 South Vietnamese troops had crossed into Cambodia today in two new operations, one in the Parrot's Beak sector and the other in the lower Fishhook region where last spring's Allied invasion was centered. This brought to 21,000 the number of South Vietnamese fighting in Cambodia.

Sepone Key Objective'

Veteran UPI correspondent Leon Daniel reported from the old Green Beret camp at Lang Vei, a mile and a half from the border, that the U.S. positions would be untenable unless supported by troops inside Laos and that the men involved were told they would be there at least three months.

Daniel said the object of the operation —the biggest in South Vietnam in three years —was to cut the Ho Chi Minh trail, and that to do so effectively meant the capture of Sepone, 25 miles inside Laos. The mountain passes leading from North Vietnam empty into the Sepone area, from which supplies are sent southward.

The drive was supported by massive U.S. air strikes into Laos, an offense by B52s and fighter-bombers that entered its 118th day today. U.S. helicopter gunships and supply planes also were involved.

Few Casualties

The U.S. command said the drive had encountered little resistance as the Allies reoccupied a string of bases already famous —Khe Sanh, the Rockpile, Camp Carroll, Cam Lo, Lang Vei—all of them just below the demilitarized zone (DMZ).

A spokesman said total casualties so far were three Americans wounded and four Communist soldiers killed.

The news blackout lifted today was the most severe of the 10-year-old war in Vietnam. It had given the Communist nations a field day for propaganda blasts against the United States and aroused misgivings among some congressional leaders.

The Communist nations charged that South Vietnamese already had invaded Laos, and the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said on Tuesday American officers were commanding them. Communist China said today the Allies were "poised" to invade Laos.

And in Paris today the chief Hanoi negotiator, Xuan Thuy, and the Viet Cong negotiator, Mme. Nguyen Thai Binh, charged U.S. and South Vietnamese troops actually were inside Laos and that the Nixon administration was trying to cover up.

Cold Winter Returns To Texas With Ice And Snow In Panhandle

By United Press International

Hard winter returned to Texas today, with ice, snow and travelers' warnings in the Panhandle, thunderstorms and hail in north central and eastern parts of the state and 70-mile-an-hour wind in the Guadalupe Mountains.

Snow swept into the Panhandle cities of Dalhart and Amarillo, cutting visibility at Dalhart to a quarter of a mile. A Panhandle low of 12 degrees was predicted for tonight with one or two inches of snow.

The National Weather Service issued travelers' warnings for the upper Panhandle.

A line of thunderstorms started east of Abilene and Wichita Falls about 2 a.m. and raced eastward, setting off a 30- to 40-mile line of thunderstorms.

The thunderstorms, moving parallel with a cold front, pushed east so fast that they dropped relatively small amounts of rain — less than a fourth of an inch in most areas.

But it was the most rain much of the area had seen in weeks or months.

The thunderstorms swept on through Northeast Texas toward Louisiana. But forecasters said that as the front worked its way through lower portions of the state, they also would get thunderstorms.

The wind at Guadalupe Pass in the mountains of Southwest Texas hit 70 miles an hour and the trans-mountain road was temporarily closed.

El Paso Hit

A high wind hit El Paso and thick dust caused a rash of automobile accidents. The wind tore an air conditioner away from a house and blew the window from a jewelry store in downtown El Paso.

Buckets and tools, impelled by the wind, flew from a 30-story building under construction in El Paso.

The temperature dropped into the lower 20s in the Panhandle.

National Weather Service said there actually were two cold fronts in the state.

One front was less than 100 miles from the other. It was the second front that brought the blowing Panhandle snow.

Some Light Hail

Marble sized hail fell at Lancaster in south Dallas County. McKinney also had hail.

Forecasters said the fronts were sweeping through the entire state, dramatically dropping temperatures. The highest due in the Panhandle before the for the night was in the 20s.

Connally Against Cuts In Oil Depletion Grant

WASHINGTON (UPI) —As might be expected of a Texan, John B. Connally is opposed to further cuts in the oil depletion allowance. Connally, President Nixon's nominee to be Treasury Secretary, is also cool to the idea of publishing figures to show how much the allowance costs the American people.

Connally's position came to light today with the publication of his answers to questions submitted to him by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., as part of his confirmation process.

Proxmire said the American people have to pay about $40 billion worth of taxes a year to make up for the revenue the government loses to the oil depletion alowance and other tax provisions "that could be regarded as tax expenditures or subsidies."

"The Joint Economic Committee and others would like to see these provisions and the amounts of revenue associated with them published annually in a usable form by the Treasudy," replied Connally. "I would you be willing to commit yourself to such a listing and publication?'

"Not without additional studdy," replied Connaly. "I would want to make sure myself that the analysis is sound and the figures are meaningful. They may well be, and I have an open mind on the matter, but I want to look at the idea carefully before I commit myself."

As for Proxmire's question whether he would favor cutting the allowance, Connally replied: 'The Congress examined these alowances carefully in enacting the 1969 legislation. I do not favor reopening these legislative matters at this time."

In 1969, Congress reduced the oil depletion allowance from 27.5 per cent to 22 per cent in a compromise action.

The allowance permits some oil companies to reduce their taxes to zero. It allows oil and natural gas companies to subtract their business expenses from their income, then deduct 22 per cent from remainder and pay taxes on what is left. It has been a target of tax reformers ever since it was written into the law in 1926.

Alton Lee Witherspoon Is Convicted Of Killing Fort Worth Businessman

FORT WORTH (UPI)—Discounting defense claims Alton Lee Witherspoon was out of town at the time of the murder, a jury convicted Witherspoon Wednesday of killing Fort Worth businessman Gordon Travis at his home last summer.

The panel convenes again today to set sentence. All jurors have been qualified on the death penalty.

Witherspoon and Curtis Dewit Fields are charged with barging into Travis' home Aug. 28, robbing the house, roughing up Travis' wife and shooting Travis to death when he tried to resist.

Fields has not yet been tried.

District Judge Charles Lindsay gave defense and prosecution three hours each to summarize their cases Wednesday. Most summations take little longer than half an hour, and three hours is considered an unusually long time. But the judge said the jury needed refreshing on the three weeks of conflicteing testimony offered during the trial.

Most of the contradictory testimony concerned Witherspoon's alibi. Defense witnesses said the defendant was in Livingston, Tex., 200 miles from Fort Worth, on the day of the murder.

But the prosecution's last witness said she was with Witherspoon in Fort Worth the night before Travis was killed and also on the day of the murder.

Iona Jones, 42, said she and Witherspoon went on a date to a motel the night of Aug. 27 and stayed there until 11 a.m. Aug. 28.

She said Witherspoon, Fields and Fields' girlfrfend, Mrs. Rosemary Keay, 17, came into the cafe where she worked the afternoon of Aug. 28, left and then returned just after mid - night.

Mrs. Keay testified earlier she sat in a parked car in a residential section of Fort Worth the night of the murder, waiting for Witherspoon and Fields. She said they returned running.

St. Matthews Plans Traditional Pancake Supper On Shrove Tuesday

The 16th annual Pancake Supper will be held Tuesday, Feb. 23, in St. Matthew's Episcopal Parish House, 727 W. Browning, from 5 until 8 p.m.

The traditional Shrove Tuesday event will be chairmaned by Ab Conway.

Tickets will be $1 each, and pre-school children accompanied by an adult will be admitted free. Tickets may be purchased at the door or at the church office.

Decorations for the annual event will be handled by Mrs. Jack Reeve. The Parish House will be decorated in the colorful Mardi Gras style as it has been in the last few years.

Shrove Tuesday, the Tuesday before Ash Wednesday, is the English equivalent of the French "Mardi Gras" and the Italian "Fat Tuesday". The English custom of eating pancakes on this day arises from the economy of using up the eggs and fat which were formerly forbidden articles of diet during the season of Lent.

Shrove Tuesday, the last day before Lent begins, is sometimes called Pancake Tuesday or Pancake Day as well as Shrove Tuesday. The word "Shrove" comes from "to shrive" or hear confessions, further explained by a translation made of the "Ecclesiastical Institutes" in 1000 A.D. by Abbot Aelfric which said that "in the week before Lent everyone should confess his deeds to a confessor who shall so shrive him. . . as he then may hear by his deeds what he is to do by way of penance."

Three Pampa Scouts On Austin Trip

Three Pampa youths will join other area Boy Scouts representing districts in the Adobe Walls Council at a celebration of Boy Scout Month starting at noon tomorrow in Austin.

They are Jimmy Forman, Laird Ellis and Gerald Sanders. Others in the Panhandle delegation will include David Huffins of Phillips, Phillip Ragen of Shamrock, Richard Allen of Perryton, Ronnie Burke of Spearman, Andy Dollins of Guymon, Okla., Kevin Wachentin of Beaver, Okla., and Earl Hartman of Wellington.

Adult leader for the Adobe Walls group will be Hamill Wilson, 709 E. 14th St., Pampa.

The scouts will stay at the Bergstrom Air Force Base while in Austin.

Auditorium Bids Received Today At City Hall

Representatives of eight prime contractors were gathering at City Hall early this afternoon for the 2 p.m. opening of bids on Pampa's M.K. Brown Memorial auditorium.

Herbert Brasher, auditorium architect from Lubbock, arrived in town last night for today's bid session.

Six of the eight bidders are from Amarillo, one from Odessa and one from El Paso.

City Manager Mack Wofford said separate bids also would be opened this afternoon on stage equipment and auditorium seats.

Texas Lt. Governor Meets Congressmen

AUSTIN (UPI) — Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes met for two days with Congressional leaders in Washington and said Wednesday he thinks the federal government is going to pay a bigger share of public welfare.

Barnes, who returned from Washington Wednesday, said he is hoping the increase in federal aid will hold down an anticipated state tax increase.

"I am convinced that Congress is going to pass legislation so that the federal government will assume a greater proportion of welfare costs," Barnes said.

He said he is now going to try to convince Gov. Preston Smith and Speaker Gus F. Mutscher to pass a one-year budget bill, with plans to come back in special session in 1972 to finance the second year.

Police Receive Break-In Report

Dog warden Don Armstrong reported a break-in of the city pound, east of Pampa, to police, yesterday at 1:05 p.m.

Someone had broken locks and chains at the facility and allowed the nine confined dogs to escape.

Armstrong reported that four of the animals had been recovered yesterday.

Resident Reports Loss Of Radiator

A nearly new radiator was removed from a 1962 pickup parked in the back yard of the residence of Madge Risenhoover, 718 N. Banks, according to a report she made to local police yesterday. Mrs. Risenhoover estimated the value of the radiator at $125 and told police she believed that it was stolen between Jan. 30 and yesterday.

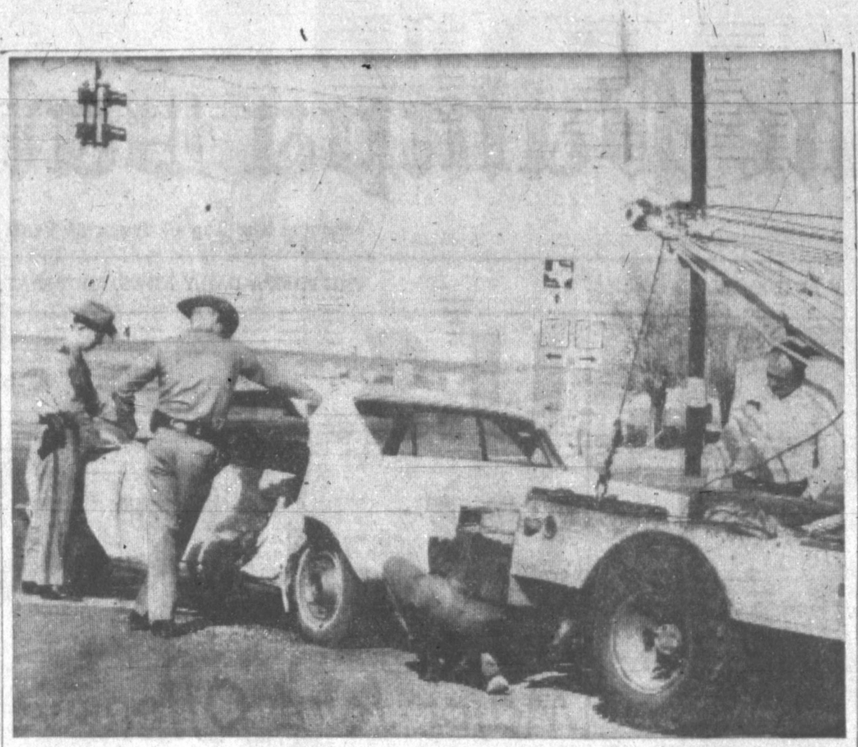

Obituaries

J.R. CARTER

Funeral services for J. R. Carter, 94, father of Mrs. Hugh Peeples, 707 N. West. St., were held Jan. 31 in Electra First Baptist Church with burial in an Electra cemetery.

Mr. Carter died Jan. 29 in Hillcrest Haven Convalescent Home in Electra.

Survivors are three other daughters, Mrs. Opal Prewett, of Oklahoma City, Miss Olive Carter, of Dallas, and Mrs. Ruth Ingram of Tulsa, Okla.; eight grandchildren, 14 great-grandchildren, one great-greatgrandchild and three sisters.

TWO INJURED — Two young Pampans were admitted to Highland General Hospital yesterday after a car-pickup accident at the junction of Highway 152 and Price Road, just west of Pampa city limits. Injured in the accident were Robert R. Robinson, 19, driver of the car, and Gary Gattis, 18, 2319 Navajo, a passenger. The Robinson vehicle was traveling east on the highway when it was in collision with a pickup driven by Purl J. Meaker, 2209 N. Russell, which was traveling south on Price Road. Meaker was not injured. Pictured are DPS officers, Jim Powell and Ken Evans, investigating officers. (Staff Photo)

Four Perryton Men Killed In One-Car Crash

PERRYTON—A one-car accident about 5:30 p.m. Wednesday claimed the lives of four young Perryton men.

Billy Wayne Matthews, 24, driver of the car, and Gerald Bentley, 23, were killed instantly. Jerry Scott, 23, was pronounced dead on arrival at Ochiltree General Hospital, and Dale Hopper, 26, died of injuries in the hospital last night.

The accident happened at the dead-end of a country road about six miles east of Perryton. All flour were employed by the Hodges Trucking Co. of Perryton.

A state highway patrol officer reported Matthews apparently lost control and his auto flipped over once at a point where the road dead-ends at an intersection.

Events In State Legislature

AUSTIN (UPI) — Events in the Texas Legislature Wednesday:

Bonds — The House of Representatives took less than 15 minutes to kill Gov. Preston Smith's plan to escape taxes by issuing $450 million in state revenue bonds.

Spending — The House approved and sent to the Senate a $48.4 million emergency appropriation bill that would permit the State Welfare Department to continue its present level of assistance payments and repay $13.5 million borrowed earlier from medical school construction funds.

Deficit — The House failed to give an emergency spending bill the 120 votes it needed to permit the state to operate $48.4 million in the red. As a result, legislators now face the immediate need of a tax bill that will produce $65 million by Aug. 31.

Tuition — The House approved and sent to the Senate a bill raising tuition at state colleges for out-of-state students from $200 to $700 a semester.

Chavez — Conservative senators abruptly adjourned the Senate after only 45 minutes Wednesday to prevent voting on a resolution by Sen. Joe Bernal, D-San Antonio, commending farm labor organizer Cesar Chavez.

Veto —A provision that would have given Gov. Preston Smith the power to veto the state's purchase of a Mustang Island tract was quietly taken out of an emergency appropriation bill which passed the House Wednesday.

Ethics — Senators, apparently having second thoughts about enactment of a strict ethics code, sent a proposed ethics bill by Sen. Ralph Hall, D-Rockwall, to a subcommittee for further study.

Poisonous Relatives

Cashew plants are related to poison ivy and poison sumac and can cause serious skin irritations on persons susceptible to exposure, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Cancer Discussed By Oral Surgeon At Rotary Meeting

One out of four persons will have cancer, according to Dr. Don Curtis who addressed the Pampa Rotary Club yesterday at the group's regular noon meeting in Coronado Inn.

"Two thirds of those who have cancer will die from it," said the oral surgeon from Amarillo. "It will touch all of us in some way during our life time. It may be a member of our family or someone at work," he stated.

Dr. Curtis has been active in the Cancer Society for the past five years and a member of the State Cancer Board for the past three years. He showed Rotarians a slide program of case histories from his own patients.

Starting in the mouth, the doctor showed slides of the oral cavity and enlarged slides of the skin lining in the mouth. "Something happens to a cell in its normal division process," the doctor said. "They divide faster than they should. It might appear as a white patch. The cells, growing faster, lose orientation and form at an abnormal rate and take an abnormal position.

"One of the next things that happens is that the cells break into the blood stream and set up housekeeping in some vital organ." He said quite a lot could be done to combat cancer and if detected early enough, it can be removed. Other treatments could be the use of X-ray therapy. He said drugs usually are used in terminal cases or those that are far advanced.

"Presently, take six cancer persons and two will be saved while the third may be, Person four, five and six will die from cancer we have no control over. We are treating number three and research is working on a cure for persons four, five and six," Dr. Curtis said.

"There is bound to be an answer somewhere to this dread diease," He said. "We will spend $220 million this year in research. There are now between six or seven thousand scientists and technicians involved in research.

The Amarillo doctor told the Rotarians approximately 1.5 million persons have been cured from cancer.

Glue-Sniffing Party Reported

Boyd Brown, Miami, advised Pampa Police yesterday that he had found evidence of beer and glue-sniffing parties in a vacant garage apartment he owns at 102 W. Browning. Investigating officers found plastic bags and empty beer containers in the apartment.

The apartment was entered by breaking a window and unlocking the door above the stairs, police reports said.

Water Meet Tomorrow In Lubbock

Felix Ryals of White Deer, manager of the Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District, and James B. McCray of Panhandle, a member of the district board, will attend the ninth annual West Texas Water Conference Friday in Lubbock.

Ryals said today discussion on results of a special water study in the Texas High Plains, along with West Texas water problems, will highlight the conference.

Bill Clayton, executive director of Water, Inc., will discuss water planning by the federal government at a noon luncheon in the Red Raider Convention Center.

Representatives from organizations which have a special interest in water resources, will discuss the Canada Water Act, water planning in the Mississippi River basin, and water planning by the federal government and will hear the findings from special water-related studies on the Texas High Plains.

Crucified Thieves

The names of the two thieves crucified with Christ are not given in the Scriptures, but there is a tradition that the one who was penitent on the cross was named Dismas and the other was named Gestas.

BOSTON (UPI) —The Boston Patriots Wednesday acquired offensive guard Jim Schmedding from the San Diego Chargers for an undisclosed 1972 draft choice.

'Cop's Cop' Quits Airline Industry

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Frank L. Rizzo known to admirers of his toughness as "a cop's cop' and to critics of his showmanship as "The Cisco Kid," resigned as police commissioner Tuesday to seek the Democratic nomination for mayor.

Rizzo, required by the city charter to end his 27-year career before seeking elective office, was succeeded by Joseph F. O'Nil, a 20-year career veteran with a degree in sociology.

City Hall insiders said Rizzo had given serious consideration to the mayoralty since the 1967 election when he was a major issue.

Democratic Mayor James H. J. Tate, praising Rizzo's firm stand against black militants and his policy of flooding areas with busloads of police at the least sign of a racial disturbance, promised to retain Rizzo in 1967. Tate won by a slim margin over aRepublican who declined to take a position on Rizzo's status and ran well in overwhelmingly Democratic black areas.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Recent activity in the glamors "has been very encouraging and warrants investors' attention," according to Harris, Upham & Co. The firm says the glamors have not fared as well as the blue chips in the current upswing. "It is a common bull market phenomenon to witness initial leadership in the blue chips (and) as leadership rotates, it is logical to expect a resumption of demand for the glamor stocks," the company believes.

Four major factors have renewed the public's confidence in the market and the economy, Hornblower & Weeks—Hemphill, Noyes, says. They are the sustained downward trend of interest rates, the upturn in housing starts, the 1.4 per cent rise in industrial output and President Nixon's full employment budget. With these in mind, the company recommends "the purchase of high quality corporate and municipal bonds and stocks of companies in the housing-related industries."

"In the context of the stock market, one can talk of the birth of a bouncing, snorting bull to a listing, wheeing bear without feeling ridiculous,' Wiesenberger Services Inc. says. The company says to those seeking to know if the bear has departed, "the answer at best is a qualified yes."

The company says the investment community is understandably wary of counterfeit bulls but it adds most indicators "either have remained in a bullish state, or have gone from bearish to neutral or neutral to bullish."

In all three of President Nixon's recent messages one theme was repeated: bigger government spending, Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis Inc. observes. The company feels the President, "by the sheer force of enormous federal spending," is determined to keep unemployment down. "Investors are going to have fiscal expansion with a vengeance," it adds.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Funeral services will be held Thursday for Robert Hilliard, a lyricist who wrote dozens of songs, including "Dear Hearts and Gentle People."

Hilliard died Monday of a heart attack at his home. He was 52.

CHATSWORTH, Calif. (UPI) —Graveside services were conducted Tuesday for James S. Bealle, a former United Press newsman and vice president in charge of radio and television for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Bealle, 59, died Saturday following a brief illness.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Services will be held Wednesday for veteran Chicago newspaperman Frederick L. Seaberg.

Seaberg died Monday in his suburban Glencoe home after a long illness. He was 70.

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Ever since collapse of Laotian neutrality, the Ho Chi Minh Trail has stood as a frustrating symbol in a frustrating war.

The Communists began violating Laotian neutrality even before the Geneva agreement of 1962 was signed but because the agreement remained a part of official U.S. policy, the American military response there has been shrouded in secrecy.

It damaged relations between the Lyndon B. Johnson administration and the Congress and the American people and it threatens similar damage to the Nixon administration.

The Ho Chi Minh Trail, for the most part a tangle of jungle trails, has played a determining role in the conduct of the war.

Most wars of the past have been of the "clear and hold" variety. Because the Ho Chi Minh Trail provided a Communist sanctuary, this war has been one of "search and destroy," with the kill rate far more important than geography.

Inaccurate Theory

A sufficient kill rate, it was believed, could wipe out the Viet Cong and their North Vietnamese allies more quickly than they and their supplies could come down the trail.

The theory proved inaccurate.

Communist men and supplies heading southward down the Annamite Mountains usually entered Laos via the Mu Gia pass just above the 17th Parallel dividing North and South Vietnam and entered South Vietnam just below the parallel, near the old former imperial capital of Hue and Da-Nang.

It was at the narrow neck separating the two Viet Nams at the 17th Parallel that the United States tried another concept to block off the trail. It was based on an electronic warning system backed by heavy artillery and other weapons and became known as the McNamara Line after then Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara. It never was completed.

This was the Do Xa of triple-tiered jungle where once the Viet Cong headquarters was believed located.

U.S. manpower never has been used against the trial, except from the air and in a very limited way on the ground. U.S. Special Forces are said to have led occasional forays against thetrial at the head of tough Nung mercenaries. Their actions would be more for intelligence purposes.

January and February have become the traditional months for the greatest activity along the trail. It is the middle of the dry season and it is the time when the Communists move into the rich valleys to take over the rice crop.

It is familiar ground to the North Vietnamese and to Vo Nguyen Giap, North Vietnam's military genius. Before Giap launched his final assault against the French at Dien Bien Phu more than 20 years ago, he launched a number of attacks up and down Laos. Place names involved were the same as now—Paksane, Thakhek, Savannakhet and the Bolovens Plateau.

They may be more important now to the Communists than before, since now they lie in the area which is believed to have become the Communists' chief storehouse since the loss of the Cambodian sanctuaries.

Twice in the last two years, President Nixon has appealed to Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin for help in establishing Laotian neutrality. Twice he has been rebuffed.

Whatever is done now will be in the name of protecting American troops in their gradual withdrawal from Vietnam. The fear is that instead, they may only be sucked in deeper.

Hollywood In Review

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Hank Mancini has been nominated for four Grammy awards this year. He already owns 18.

The 1970 Grammy nominations number in the vicinity of 45 categories, all the way from Verdi's Il Trovatore to engineer Walter Carlos for well-tempered synthesizer.

Mancini's been nominated for:

—Best instrumental arrangement for the movie "Z."

— Best contemporary instrumental performance, "Z."

—Best instrumental composition, "Sun Flower."

—Best original score written for a motion picture or television, "Darling Lili."

35 Albums Recorded

More important than awards, Mancini has recorded 35 albums in the past 10 years for RCA which have sold more than 10 million copies.

It is curious to note that as a composer almost all of Mancini's work has been done for motion pictures and television, either as individual songs or entire scores.

Asked what he'd do for a living if films and video had no need of music, Mancini was at a loss.

"I can't imagine what I'd be doing," he said.

He pondered for some time, admitting he probably would not be writing songs or symphonies or operas on speculation.

"Obviously," he said finally, "I'd be playing the piano somewhere."

"Somewhere" these days is usually the piano bar in a gin mill.

Instead, the balding, slender Composer arranger-conductor has enriched the musical world with the likes of "Moon River," "Dear Heart," "Days of Wine and Roses" and "Charade" to name a few.

More than 600 separate recordings were made of "Moon River" around the world.

Music Wins Oscars

The song won him an Oscar, as did "Days of Wine and Roses" and the score for "Breakfast at Tiffany's."

Mancini is a modest man of Italian extraction who cannot explain what he feels as he writes music. More than likely the muse flits to his side during an assignment and nimbly skips away again.

"About the Grammy award," he notes. "I don't think they help sell records like the Oscars add to movie revenue.

"By the time a recording gets the Grammy it already is a big seller and probably has a gold record to its credit."

NOT SO, says Lady Jacqueline Rufus Isaacs of the rumors linking her romantically with Lord Snowdon, husband of Britain's Princess Margaret. While London buzzed, the 24-year-old noblewoman evaded the furor by vacationing in Switzerland.

DECATUR, Ill. (UPI)—Dr. Paul L. McKay, president of Millikin University, died Tuesday in Decatur Memorial Hospital after a long illness. He was 53.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Funeral services were held Tuesday for Carl F. Wente, who rose from bank messenger to president of the Bank of America, the nation's largest.

He died Monday night at his home of a heart attck. He was 81.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—R. F. Faull, president of Chevron Oil Field Research Co., died at a hospital Tuesday at the age of 58.

NASA Expects To Obtain Information From Apollo 14 On Moon's Structure To Depth Of More Than 20 Miles

WASHINGTON — Scientists at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration expect to obtain information on the Moon's structure to a depth of more than 20 miles during the Apollo 14 mission — some 8 to 10 miles deeper than before.

The new information will be acquired by impacting the Saturn 5 third stage and instrument unit into the Moon approximately 100 miles farther away from the Apollo 12 lunar seismic instrument than the impact of the Apollo 13 third stage last April.

Distance Increased

The planned impact distance is being increased because the Moon's low frequency transmission characteristics have proved to be considerably better than first thought. The increased range of impact will permit receipt of impact vibration waves ffrom deeper in the Moon's structure.

Space agency officials also plan to photograph the impact point from lunar orbit during a command module pass. This will provide photographic data on a lunar crater of known origin for the first time.

Target Area

The Apollo 14 launch is now planned for no earlier than Jan. 31 at the Kennedy Space Center. Crewmen for the flight are Alan B. Shepard, Jr., commander, Stuart A. Roosa, command module pilot, and Edgar D. Mitchell, lunar module pilot.

The stage will be directed to hit the Moon within a target area 436 statute miles in diameter. The target point is located about 186 miles west of the Apollo 12 landing site and the lunar seismometer. Coordinates of the planned target point are 1 degree 42 minutes south latitude and 33 degrees 15 minutes west longitude.

Like 11 Tons of TNT

The 30,000-pound Apollo 14 rocket stage should hit the Moon at 5,800 miles per hour at an angle almost perpendicular to the surface more than 83 hours after launch. It will provide an energy source on impact equivalent to about 11 tons of TNT.

The Apollo 14 crew will be orbiting on the backside of the Moon during their first revolution when the Saturn stage hits the lunar surface. In the 34th revolution, just before departing the Moon to return to Earth, the crew will attempt to photograph the impact crater. The Apollo 14 lunar module ascent stage also will be intentionally impacted into the Moon after the crew is safely back aboard the command module.

Apollo 13 Experiment

The first attempt to impact a saturn stage on the Moon was on the Apollo 13 flight. The moment of impact was recorded at 8:09:39 p.m. EST April 14, 1970. The Apollo 12 seismometer recorded a signal from the impact for more than four hours.

On lunar flights before Apollo 13, the rocket's third stage completed its primary job and then was programmed into a "slingshot" maneuver, one that uses the Moon's gravity to propel the stage around the Moon and toward orbit around the Sun. On these trajectories, the spent stages sped past the Moon at a distance of about 2,000 miles on their sub-orbital paths.

OUT OF BUSINESS

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI)— Stanford University's music recording studio is out of business.

Earlier this week, nighttime burglars removed the entire contents of the recording studio in Dinkelspiel Auditorium—tape recorder, reproducer, amplifiers, speakers, microphone and other equipment, all valuedat $6,000.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Circuit Court Judge Edward Finnegan, a six-year veteran of the bench and two-term member of Congress, died Tuesday of cancer. He was 65.

North Vietnamese Troops Reported Moving Into Northern Laos To Retaliate For Any Allied Invasion In South

By United Press International

North Vietnamese troops opened a dry season offensive in Laos Wednesday, overrunning a garrison near the strategic Plain of Jars and seizing four outposts around the royal capital of Luang Prabang in the northern part of the Asian kingdom.

A U.S.-South Vietnamese task force of 34,000 men was reported mobilized in South Vietnam bordering southern Laos and U.S. officials in Washington said they would soon announce the details of its mission.

The crisis in the Plain of Jars area of northern Laos intensified speculation about the intentions of the force of 9,000 Americans and 25,000 South Vietnamese reported operating in the Khe Sanh area of northwest South Vietnam bordering southern Laos.

North Vietnamese strategy in northern Laos was unclear but sources in the administrative capital of Vientiane said it was possible that Hanoi was preparing to retaliate for any allied invasion in the south by moving hard against Luang Prabang and the Plain of Jars.

Luang Prabang is the residence of the King Savang Vatthana. The Plain of Jars controls all of upper Laos.

A news embargo has blacked out reports on the allied force in northwest South Vietnam since last Friday but Nixon administration officials indicated in Washington Wednesday that details would be made public soon on the scope of the operation. There was growing pressure by administration critics for a lifting of the embargo.

There have been reliable reports that the South Vietnamese units in the team, supported by the American force on the South Vietnamese side of the border, would cross the frontier in a campaign against the Ho Chi Minh Trail and Communist supply dumps.

Upwards of 400 U.S. warplanes, led by B52 Stratofortresses, blasted the Ho Chi Minh Trail for the 118th consecutive day Wednesday in the campaign to stop the flow of North Vietnamese troops and supplies over it into South Vietnam and Cambodia.

In what were described as "massive" attacks, other American planes were called into the fight against the North Vietnamese battalions pushing the offensive in northern Laos in the Plain of Jars area and villages near the royal capital of Luang Prabang.

The Lotian defense minister, Sisouk Na Champassak, said that a force of about 1,000 North Vietnamese soldiers supported by Russian-made PT76 tanks overran the key garrison at Muong Soui in a three-hour battle that ended at 5 a.m. Wednesday.

Muong Soui protects Long Cheng, the nerve center of the Laotian military's northern operations and the headquarters of Gen. Vang Pao, the U.S.-supported chieftain whose tribal armies hold the area against Communist domination.

SEVEN KILLED IN FIRE

STOCKPORT, N.Y. (UPI)— Seven persons were killed and two others injured Tuesday night when fire swept a two-story frame home in this village located between the Hudson River and the Massachusetts state line.

The dead were identified as Mrs. Frances Lasher, 44; two of her children, Deborah Lasher, 12, and Donald Cutler, 17; a granddaughter, Shane Cutler, 1; Mrs. Maria Grasso, 24; her son, Paul, 31, and Kemeth Caulkins, 6. Mrs. Grasso's husband, Paul, was killed in Vietnam a year ago. It was not known what relationship the Caulkins youth had with the other victims.

Those treated at Columbia Memorial Hospital in Hudson for smoke inhalation were identified as Ronald Cutler, 17, and his sister, Marie Grasso, 24.

Cutler was able to leave the house and turn in the alarm about 11:20 p.m.

Cause of the blaze was not immediately known.

The mutual alarm fire was fought by units from Stockport, Scottville and Stuyvesant Falls.

Pork Roast Satisfies Appetite For Protein

OAK BROOK Ill (Spl) — Pick a pork roast for dinner and your family and guests will be satisfied. They will be well nourished with your choice, too. Pork, still in good supply, is the richest food source of thiamine and contains high quality, complete protein. Pork is highly digestible.

Best of all tender lean pork combines' wonderful flavor, juiciness and consistent leanness. As a result, today's pork is lower in calories than pork of yesterday. An average serving, 3½ ounces of lean cooked pork, contains just 240 calories compared with 377 calories for pork of some time ago. So, if there are waistwatchers in your family or among the guests, they will be more than satisfied with your choice of meat for dinner.

You can choose a tender lean shoulder, leg or loin cut roast. If you are having company, a boneless rolled pork loin roast is attractive and easy to slice and serve. This roast is actually two boned loins that are put together and tied into a compact, meaty piece. To cook, just place the roast on a rack in a shallow open pan. Roast in a slow oven until the meat thermometer inserted halfway through the roast reads 170 degrees a four pound roast will take about 2¾ hours.

Oven browned potatoes cooked with the roast, buttered broccoli, a tossed green salad and hot rolls will compliment the roast pork. Also Hot Curried Fruit wil add a festive tuch to the company meal. Pineapple chunks, peach halves, mandarin orange segments, blue berries and sliced banana are heated in a deftly seasoned curry sauce. Served from a chafing dish the Hot Curried Fruit may be flamed if it suits your fancy.

Roast Pork Loin with Hot Curried Fruit
Yield; 8 to 10 servings

4 pounds lean boneless rolled pork loin roast
Salt and pepper
2 Tbls. cornstarch
½ tsp. ground ginger
2 to 3 tsp. curry powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
1 pound 4 ounce can unsweetened pineapple chunks
1 lb. can peach halves
11 ounce can mandarin orange segments
1 cinnamon stick
½ stick (¼ cup) butter or margarine
½ cup blueberries, fresh or frozen banana, peeled and sliced

Place pork roast, fat side up, in a rack in an open, low-sided pan. Season top of roast with salt and pepper. Do not add water. Do not cover. Insert a roast meat thermometer into the center of the thickestpart of meat. Roast in a slow oven (325 F.) until internal temperature reaches 170 F. in approximately 2¾ hours.

Meanwhile, in a large saucepan, combine cornstarch, ginger, curry mandarin oranges in a bowl, reserving the liquid. Measure and add water, if necessary, to make 2 cups. Gradually add liquid to seasonings in sauce pan. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens and becomes clear. Add cinnamon stick. Cook 6, to 8 minutes. Melt butter in skillet. Add fruits and gently heat. Combine hot fruit and curry sauce in a large casserole or chafing dish to serve. (Flame, if desired with addition of flambe liquid or ⅛ cup hot brandy).

Chicken Royale Adds Glamor

Here is economical chicken fixed with real glamor for guests in a sauce that blends the rich, mellow flavor of molasses with fruit.

In a large skillet brown two broiler-fryers cut in serving pieces, in ¼ cup butter or margarine. . . add 1 medium onion, sliced, 1 can (3 or 4 ounces) sliced mushrooms with liquid, 1¼ cups water, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon each ground cloves and allspice, and one-third cup molasses. . . cover, simmer 30 minutes or until chicken is tender. . . blend 4 teaspoons cornstarch and 2 tablespoons cold water and stir into chicken mixture. . . cook until thickened and clear. . . add 4 canned pineapple slices, halved, and 4 green-tipped bananas, halved. . . simmer 3 minutes longer. . makes 8 servings. . .

Pioneer Files Report On Net Income For 1970

MIDLAND, Tex. — Consolidated net income of Pioneer Natural Gas Co for 1970 was $7,4960016 or $1.01 per shar before an extraordinary item, compared to $6,666,405 or 90 cents per share for 1969.

The consolidated net income for 1970 is before a writedown of $1,100,000 or 15 cents per share to provide for an estimated loss on the anticipated disposition of Tran state Tire Co. in 1971 and is net after income taxes. After this extraordinary item, consolidated net income was $6,396,016 or 86 cents per share.

The operations of TranState Tire Co. have been disappointing officials stated, and TranState has operated at a loss due to production and other problems. The Board of Directors have concluded that, while the tire retread operation stil shows good potential in the longer term, Pioneer should, at the earliest reasonable time, discontinue infusion of further operating and capital funds. It is therefore planned to drastically change, curtail or terminate operation of the plants in 1971.

A quarterly dividend of 20 cents per share on the outstanding common stock of Pioneer was declared payable March 2, 1971, to stockholders of record Feb. 16, 1971.

The annual report for 1970 will be mailed to stockholders about March 17, 1971, according to pioneer officials

Peanut Butter Makes Basis For Taste-Tempting Dessert

Some desserts can make the most picky eater succumb. One such is a Fluffy Peanut Butter Dessert.

Tested on a bon vivant, man-about-town type who claims to hate peanut butter in any guise, it won his praise and he asked for seconds. It's a good company dessert.

FLUFFY PEANUT BUTTER DESSERT

1½ cup graham cracker crumbs
½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
¼ c. crunchy peanut butter
¼ c. confectioners' sugar
one-third c. crunchy peanut butter
1 pkg. (8 ounces) cream cheese
¾ c. sugar
2 c. (1 pt.) heavy cream, whipped
1 can (1 lb., 4 oz.' pie sliced apples, drained
Ground cinnamon, about ½ tsp. or as desired

Combine crumbs, brown sugar, ½-cup peanut butter and butter. Mix until crumbly. In another bowl combine confectioners' sugar and one-third cup peanut butter. Mix until crumbly. Mash cream cheese and beat in sugar gradually until mixture is very soft and creamy. Fold in whipped cream. Sprinkle two-thirds of the graham crumb mixture over the bottom of a 9x13 inch pan. Press crumbs into place evenly. Spoon half of the cheese mixture over the crumbs. Carefully spread cheese into an even layer. Place apple slices evenly over cheese. Sprinkle with cinnamon. Sprinkle two-thirds of the confectioners' sugar mixture over apples. Top with remaining cheese mixture, spreading cheese evenly over crumbs.

Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?

A. Beef Blade Pot-Roast.

Q. Where is it from? How is it identified?

A. Blade pot-roast comes from the beef chuck (shoulder) and contains the long blade bone on cut surface, sections of the backbone and rib bones. The lean is composed of several muscles intermingled with narrow streaks of fat. It is usually 2 to 3 inches thick and weighs 3 to 5 pounds.

Q. How is it prepared?

A. Pot-roasts are braised. First brown the meat on both sides in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Add liquid (water, vegetable or fruit juice, soup or sauce), season and cover tightly. Cook over low heat 2½ to 3½ hours or until tender. Do not let the liquid boil. If desired, vegetables and fruits may be added in time to cook them to tenderness.

Leftovers Star With Bacon Bits

Ever wonder what to do with leftovers? Well, here is a bright idea, which works great with bacon.

All you need is a food chopper or a meat grinder and some leftover bacon, and you'll be in business. First, you grind the meat and measure it loosely. Then you add mayonnaise, prepared mustard, sweet pickle relish, chopped onion and you end up with a he-man bacon salad spread which is tastier than any you've ever eaten. And besides, it's cheaper than the prepared spreadds and it's easy to prepar, too.

If you're the adventuresome sort you might throw in a few hardcooked eggs, olives or another type of pickle or two. But, no matter what you do, you and the spread will be a hit with the family.

BACON SPREAD

4 cups ground bacon
½ cup mayonnaise, approximately
2 Tsp. prepared mustard
3 Tbs. sweet pickle relish
1 Tbls. chopped onion
10 slices bread
Butter
Tomatoes, sliced
Lettuce leaves
Cheddar cheese, sliced

Combine the first five ingredients until well blended. If necessary, add more mayonnaise for the desired consistency. Spread bread lightly with butter; spread bacon spread on five slices of bread and top with sliced tomatoes, lettuce leaves, sliced cheese and the remaining five slices of bread for real he-man sandwiches.

Wool is the least flammable of the natural fibers, authorities report. It is slow to ignite and naturally flame resistant.

Ninth Annual Meeting On Water In West Texas Will Open Friday

LUBBOCK — What's what with water — in Canada, the United States and specifically in West Texas — will be reviewed Friday (Feb. 5) for those attending the ninth annual West Texas Water Institute representing 30 West Texas organizations which have a special interest in water sources.

Several hundred are expected to register when the conference opens at 8 a.m. at the Red Raider Convention Center.

Sessions will include discussions of the Canada Water Act, water planning in the Mississippi River basin, water plannning by the federal government and the findings from special water related studies on the Texas High Plains.

J. R. JOHNSON

EUGENE COLEMAN

Providing research results will be representatives of Texas Tech University, Texas A&M University and the U.S Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Research Service (USDA-ARS) at Bushland.

Peter J. Reynolds, head of the General Studies Section, Water Planning and Operations Branch, Government of Canada, will open the meeting. He will discuss "Canada Water Act: A Vehicle for Action," outlining the nationwide water resources program adopted by Canada.

Water planning by the U.S. government will receive special attention at the luncheon session when Executive Director Bill Clayton of Water, Inc., will be presiding.

Fred H. Bayley III, who has spent 18 years with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in Mississippi, will talk about water planning in the Mississippi River Basin during Session I. He is asitant chief of the Corps Planning Division at Vicksburg.

Moderator of this session will be Jack W. Fickessen, acting executive director of the Texas Water Development Board.

Interim Dean Sam E. Curl of the college of Agricultural Sciences at Texas Tech University will moderate discussions. Dr. J. R. Johnson, chief, Southern Plains Branch, Soil and Water Conservation Research Division, USDA-ARS, will review "Some Water Options for the Southern High Plains." Texas Tech agricultural economists James E. Osborn and William C. Mc Cray will describe "Industry Effects from water in the Texas High Plains. Dr. Osborn is program chairman for the conference.

Afternoon sessions will be devoted primarily to research results.

Texas Tech Agronomist Eugene A. Coleman will talk about "Feedlot Runoff for Crop Production: Promise with Problems." From Texas Tech's Department of Civil Engineering, Tommy Ray Knowles and Dr. B.J. Claborn will present a paper on the "Development of a Computer Model for Groundwater Management."

Representatives from the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Lubbock will describe the "Effects of Irrigation Methods and Fertilizer Techniques on Potential Pollution of Groundwater by Nitrates and Other Solutes." They are Dr. C.W. Wendt, soil physicist; Dr. A.B. Onken, specialist in soil fertility, and Dr. O.C. Wilke, agricultural engineer.

"Groundwater Recharge Research for the Texas High Plains" will be shared with participants by Arland D. Schneider, USDS-ARS agricultural engineer.

Dr. George McBee, resident director of research for the A&M research and extension center in Lubbock will moderate that session.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Dustin Hoffman, who starred in "The Midnight Cowboy," and Harry Nilsson, who sang "Everybody's Talkin'" in the film, were reunited Teusday night in a 90-minute ABC-TV musical cartoon, "The Point"—with delightful results.

The feature-length cartoon, an entry of the "Movie of the Week" series, was a gently satirical, wise and very hip tale for children and adults about a boy born with a round head in a land where everyone else —and everything else—are pointed. Hoffman was the narrator, and Nilsson, who thought up the story, wrote and sang the charming, witty songs, with their pointed yet humorous attitude about conformity and tolerance as seen from the young side of the generation gap.

Although there were several moments when the tale seemed a trifle stretched out, the script by Norman Lenzer could hardly be improved upon. The writing was the work of an intelligent man, and so was the directing and animation by Fred Wolf (of Murakami-Wolf Productions), who also contributed additional story development.

The overriding presence, however, was that of Nilsson. His singing of seven of his songs in "The Point" Tuesday night was, alone, worth tuning in for. His compositions—such as "Think About Your Troubles," "Poli High," "Life Line" and "Point of View Waltz"—all bore the mark of his distinctive sound and sense of commentary. RCA has an album of "The Point," with Nilsson, and it is a fine investment, for it illustrates his winning, self-depreciating sense of humor.

Following "The Point" on ABC-TV Tuesday night was another delightful special—this one about that daredevil amateur, George Plimpton, who has produced some incisive writing about his brief personal plunges into such sports as football, baseball and golf. The Tuesday hour found him preparing for a trapeze performance with a circus.

That is no mean trick for a fellow who is six-feet-four and 190 pounds, as well as an amateur on the trapeze. And that is what made the hour absolutely fascinating—that and the ability of Plimpton to transmit his feelings toward the magical atmosphere of circus life.

Plimpton also entered the lions' cage and was the target for a knife thrower. But the trapeze act was the main thing, and his painful yet exhilarating preparation for his try was captured remarkably well. Although the attempt before an audience did not quite work out to perfection, one could only admire Plimpton's guts and tenacity. When the attempt did succeed in privacy after the audience left, one felt like shouting hooray.

House Unit Urged To Investigate Texas Banking Scandal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez asked the House Banking and Currency Committee, for an investigation into a Texas banking scandal and attempted takeover of a San Antonio bank.

Gonzalez said stock loans on low margins and other maneuverings" involving stock control of companies have reached "epidemic portion and somethin should be done."

He referred to the Texas case brought by the Securities and Exchange Commission, accusing well-known state figures of dealing in unregistered stock with loans from the Sharpstown Bank of Houston.

Also, Gonzalez said, he is concerned over the attempt to gain control of the Groos National Bank in San Antonio, a situation unrelated to the SEC case involving the Sharpstown Bank of Houston.

Would Tighten Rules

Gonzalez introduced Tuesday a bill adding a section to the Federal Deposit Insurance Act, providing "no insured bank shall make any loan, discount, or extension of credit to provide for the purchase of stocks, bonds, debentures or other obligations of any bank."

A study a few years ago showed "nearly one bank of every 10 in this country changed hands in a two-year period and of those, more than half were acquisitions financed by other banks," Gonzalez said.

He said, "the Bank of the Southwest, which is a huge bank in Houston, has loaned $5.5 or $6 million to people who want to buy control of the Groos National Bank of San Antonio.

Not Even Qualified

"Now the problem with all this is that the man who got the loan to buy the Gross bank apparently was not even qualified to sit on its board of directors, due to the unfortunate fact that he was convicted on a plea of guilty to a federal felony crime," a statement Gonzalez put into the Congressional Record said.

AUSTIN (UPI) — What the lawmakers are saying:

Rep. James E. Nugent, D-Kerrvile, on whether to exempt foreign students from a proposed nonresident tuition increase in Texas colleges:

"How can I tell my friends in neighboring states that they have to pay higher tuition to send their kids to school here than Russians or Chinese or other foreigners?"

WANTS NAME CHANGED

LONDON (UPI)—David Shilling, a 22-year-old insurance man, says he is fed up with jokes about his almost-obsolete last name and wants it changed. He said the jokes began when it was announced Britain would eliminate the shilling from its currency system when money is decimalized on Feb. 15.

LONG RACE

CAMBERLEY, England (UPI)—Entrants in a cross-country run supposed to cover one and three quarter miles ended up doing nearly 10 miles Tuesday because pranksters mixed up signs along the course.

State Democratic Party Leader Asked To Quit Post Immediately

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Henderson County Democratic chairman has accused state party leader Dr. Elmer C. Baum and Gov. Preston Smith with "corruption of the rankest sort" and called on Baum to resign his party post immediately.

In a letter to Baum dated Feb. 1, Henderson County Democratic chairman Wililam H. Kugle Jr. asked Baum to resign "so that you may not sully the good name of the Democratic party for one more minute."

Baum and Smith admitted making a quick $125,000 profit in 1969 by borrowing money from the Sharpstown State Bank of Houston and buying stock in National Bankers Life Insurance of Dallas.

Earlier this year the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission filed suit against 28 individuals and corporations charging the stock was manipulated deliberately to run its price up for quick profits.

Bank Then Folded

After the charges were filed, the Sharpstown bank folded due to a run by its depositors. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation had to take the bank over and pay off depositors. Natinal Bankers Life also was taken over by the State Insurance Board pending a hearing on its solvency.

The bank and the insurance company were among the defendants in the SEC suit, although Smith and Baum were not among those charged.

Kugle, in his letter to Baum, charged that the state Democratic party chairman "as the highest party officer in the state, and Governor Smith, as the highest elected official and titular head of the party, have brought the party into disgrace.'

"After agonizing over your conduct for many days, I find the conclusion inescapable that your behavior is purely and simply corruption of the rankest sort," Kugle, a lawyer in Athens, said.

A serious charge

"The facts which you and the governor admit constitute thinly veneered bribery."

Kugle said he had worked in the Texas Democratic party for 25 years and is convinced that it "best serves the ill-favored in our society and is most responsible to the legitimate goals of a free society."

"I have maintained all this while that our party could not do less than insist upon standards of excellence for our leadership," he said. 'Then, I call upon you to resign so that you may not sully the good name of th Democratic party for one more minute."

Baum could not be reached for comment on the letter.

Attorney General To Help Look Into Banking Dept.

AUSTIN (UPI)—The fiveman Senate investigating committee appointed in the wake of stock fraud scandals involving some state officials today decided, to ask the state attorney general for help in looking into the State Banking Department.

"We need somebody that has some idea about the administrative way to go," said Sen. J. O. Word, D-Meridian, chairman of the panel.

"They could hand me a stack of papers a foot high and I wouldn't know what I was reading because I'm not familiar with the procedures."

Word said he will contact Attorney General Crawford Martin and ask him to assign an assistant to work as counsel for the committee.

Republicans earlier had asked Martin to mount an investigation of state officials' role in the stock manipulation scandal. But the attorney general had stayed out of the controversy.

The Senate investigating panel —named by Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes Monday—held its first meeting today and elected the lone Republican on the committee, Sen. O. H. Harris of Dallas, to be secretary.

Sen. A. M. Aikin Jr., D-Paris, was named vice chairman.

Word said he expects the committee to summon state Banking Commissioner Robert E. Stewart to testify and may call Dr. Elmer Baum and other members of the State Banking Board.

Baum, a close personal friend of Gov. Preston Smith and state Democratic party chairman, is one of the persons who made big profits dealing in stock of National Bankers Life Insurance Co.

The stock transactions were financed by unsecured loans from Sharpstown State Bank of Houston—a bank that failed last week.

The Winds Of Change

If opinion or attitude polls have any validity — and they usually do; and if 137 neophyte lawyers are representative of their peers — and they probably are; and if lawyers will continue to play a predominant role in the goverance of society—as they always have in the past, then the social changes we have witnessed in recent years are mere zephyrs heralding hurricane winds of change to come.

The poll, conducted by the Gallup organization for Redbook magazine, was taken among 137 graduating law students at 20 of the nation's top law schools last spring.

The just-published results reveal that only 7 per cent of the students planned careers in a large corporation, while 40 per cent preferred "to serve the needs of all people" in a small general firm. Next most popular career choice was the faculty of a law school, followed by the Legal Aid Society.

A large majority — 66 per cent — favored easier divorce laws, and an even greater number — 84 per cent — thought abortion should be legalized.

On the subject of drugs, 77 per cent of the law students favored legalizing marijuana, but most advocated stronger penalities for organized crime and pushers. The prevailing view was that drug addiction should be treated as a social problem and not a criminal one.

By a heavy majority of 72 per cent, the law students called for the abolition of capital punishment.

As indicated by other majorities, there was little sympathy among the seniors for laws against pornography for adults. They were concerned, in all parts of the country, against the use of the law and law enforcement to repress minorities and dissenters, and about the inability of the poor to get a fair shake under the law.

As one means of determining approval or disapproval of present society, the students were asked to rate a list of well-known public figures.

The man "least admired" was Attorney General John Mitchell. Over 50 per cent of the students characterized the nation's chief law enforcement officer as "repressive" and "totalitarian."

By far the "most admired" public figure was Ralph Nader, who was praised by 67 per cent of the students, both conservatives and liberals, for his crusades on behalf of the American consumer against big corporations.

These students are now graduated and embarked on their careers. Some will go into politics, taking seats in state legislatures, and eventually Congress, where they will write the laws a future generation of Americans will live under. In a few years, others will begin moving onto benches in local and state courts, and eventually the federal system, where they will pass judgment on those laws and on lawbreakers.

This is the real revolution, a continuation of the revolution that was begun in America more than 180 years ago.

The Elemental Triumphs

Ancient man recognized four "elements" — earth, air, fire and water. A century and a half ago, man was concerned with obtaining less than a score of chemical elements to survive and to support his industries.

Today, notes William L. Newman, a scientist with the U.S. Geological Survey, we must locate sources for more than 80 elements, many of which are needed in large quantities. In the past decade alone, 16 elements have been added to the list required to nourish the industrial sinews.

They bear such exotic names as palladium, ruthenium, praseodymium, ytterbirum, thulium and erbium. Many of these elements attained commercial use during the past few years because of new developments in color television and lasers.

A total of 104 chemical elements are now recognized. Many are short-lived radioisotopes created in reactors and not found in nature.

"By the end of the 1970s," predicts Newman, "I suspect that man will find important uses for nearly all the known elements."

And God gave man dominion over the earth and everything in it. . .

Slaves Were Protected

American parents certainly have the right to expect that when they buy toys for their children they are not unwittingly exposing them to hidden dangers or are giving them something that is inherently unsafe and can cause injury even through normal use.

Examples are toy ovens that can heat to 600 degrees, hotter than a full-size stove, or toy sunglasses which could cause eye damage.

The peril is real, for as many as 70,000 children are injured by toys each year according to one report.

Among a list of toys consummer groups want the government to ban, however, are lawn darts for example. Obviously, these things can hurt people with their heavy, pointed spikes if improperly used as can their smaller indoor relatives (which, strangely, nobody demands be banned). But just as obviously, there is nothing hidden about their potential for harm.

With toys, as with anything else, whenever we ask the government to protect us from all the sharp points and hard edges in life and relieve us of the need to exercise ordinary prudence, we are asking it to undertake a never-ending process from which we can only emerge as slaves.

Good Idea By Soviet

Soviet Russia has made one of the best suggestions we've heard in a long time. Pravda, the official Communist newspaper suggests moving the United Nations out of the United States.

It hasn't gone as far as some of us skeptics in suggesting the United States resign membership in the U.N. and quit paying anywhere from 30 to 50 per cent of the costs. It has seemed to quite a few of us that it was strange that the U.S.S.R. would have three votes with one by the United States, yet that it would pay less than a sixth of the costs. That is aside from the obvious bias of the collectivist U.N. toward the more collectivist nations.

The reason the Soviet wants the U.N. out of the United States is because some people have staged demonstrations and worse against the Russian embassies. We have seen no indignation by the Russians when Communists have staged similar attacks against people of other lands.

We suggest that it might be a good idea for the United Nations to start moving, bag and baggage out of the United States. Maybe the next step will be for the United States to pull out of the U.N.

H. L. Hunt Writes

SOCIALISM CRIPPLES BRITAIN

If any people in the world could have made socialism work, it would have been the British. And they, too, have failed. With the traditional British ability to cooperate for the good of a cause, their respect for law and order and justice and personal liberty, and their centuries of achievement in commerce, industry and the administration of government, no nation has been better equipped to operate the socialist welfare state.

The Socialist Labour Party under Clement Attlee virtually bankrupted Britain after World War II. The British voters fell for socialist promises of something for nothing while the defeated West Germans and the Japanese under the leadership of General MacArthur turned to the profit-motive system, against the advice of U.S. Keynesians, it should be noted.

Despite massive losses of capital equipment through bombings, seizures by communist Russia, occupation and reparations, the Germans and the Japanese, through capitalism, created what was called an economic miracle. The British "achieved" austerity, with everising taxes and prices and declining growth rates in trade and production.

As a result, the inept Conservatives got bark in office for awhile, but in October, 1964, new promises won another trial for the socialists under Harild Wilson. They proceeded to renew Britain's plunge into welfare-state dreariness and stagnation. Now the mass of British voters, unwilling to give up their costly "free" welfare, are paying the price, leaving the still-inept Conservative Party, which is back in office, facing impossible tasks.

Inflation, wildcat strikes, unreasonable wage demands, coupled with static productivity and mounting trade competition from nations with freer economies have again driven Britain to the edge of bankruptcy. Socialism, however labeled, always fails. There is a lesson there for us and all the world.

With Some Reservation

By INJUN WOODY

That Rep. Frank Bow (R-Ohio) is one of the very few legislators who asks the question — "Where is the money coming from?"

He says — "The modest public service employment program was turned into an outright WPA program, minus any indication that it would be only a transition for the employe . . . .

"At the same time, the Congressional Record carried speeches by three senators who offered in one afternoon three new programs that could add untold billions to the budget next year —

"Regardless of the merits, I wonder where the taxpayers and the appropriations committee will find $10 billion in the next three years for the development of federal child care centers in just about every community in the land. That was one of the proposals —

"Another would provide compensation for victims of crime, up to $25,000 each. The third was a relatively modest proposal for $500 million for child development. Day after day ideas are presented to add to the federal responsibility . . . Is anyone surprised that there will be another federal deficit this year?'

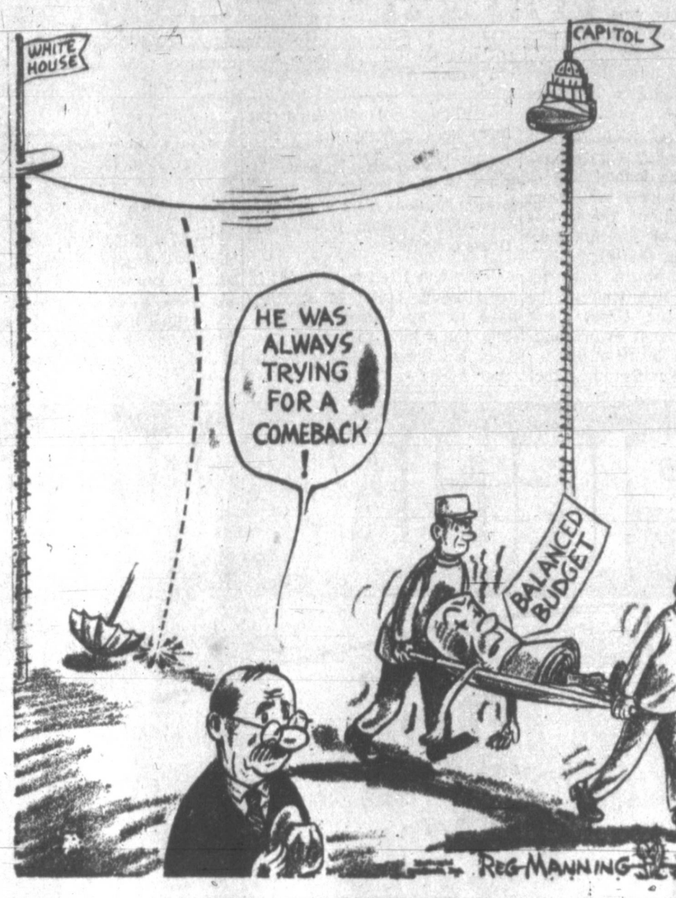

No. We ain't surprised. We know there are too many spendthrift knuckleheads in congress which nobody can afford — and evidently nobody can depose . . ..

Soaring Social Programs Bite Hard On New Revenue

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
Washington Correspondent

In new federal budget comparisons, there is no support for the argument sometimes made that we have virtually "starved" vital social programs while we fought a costly war in Vietnam.

Just as our large entry into that war was beginning, the fiscal year 1965 was ending. In that year, the federal government spent $35.4 billion in categories it now lumps under "human resources" — health services, education and manpower training, veterans' benefits and services, and income security (Social Security, unemployment compensation, welfare and other public assistance).

Over the five-year span that covered our heaviest participation in Vietnam with war expenditures running to a peak of around $30 billion a year, the federal outlays for the cited human resources program bolted upward from $35.4 billion to $72.8 billion.

Increases in "income security" accounted for about half of this rise which occurred through fiscal 1970. Another 30 per cent of the advances resulted from the introduction of Medicare.

Budget authorities say the annual hike in income security outlays is eating up 50 per cent or more of the normal growth in federal revenues.

Estimated expenditures in human resources categories for the still incomplete fiscal year 1971 (ending June 30) are $88.7 billion. And President Nixon's budget for fiscal 1972 projects outlays in these areas at $96.2 billion—more than $60 billion greater than in fiscal 1965.

It is worth noting that the $96.2 billion planned for these social programs nearly equals the entire federal budget of $97.8 billion in fiscal year 1961, exactly a decade ago.

Furthermore, war or no war, increased outlays for health, Social Security, education and manpower and veterans' help are also the wave of the immediate future.

President Nixon's budget officials expect that built-in (legislated) increases in Social Security and other programs, reflecting larger head counts and adjustments for changes in the cost of living, will add perhaps another $37 billion for human resources by fiscal 1976. Thus the advance will average about $9 billion a year from fiscal 1973 through 1976, according to present projections.

Note that the social programs here considered do not include moneys for housing and community development, for some types of rural aid, for aid and water pollution control, and for some other endeavors which might properly be defined as social efforts.

Most of these activities also have a substantially higher price tag today than in fiscal 1965, and some will likewise continue to rise in cost in the years ahead. Where, specifically, is the vast outpouring of money going?'

Well, in fiscal 1965 health programs took just $1.7 billion of federal funds. Five years later, the charge was $13 billion and the President foresees expenditures of $16 billion in fiscal 1970. Medicine, of course, is the big item.

Social Security goes on mounting and mounting. Ten years ago it cost just under $30 billion. This fiscal year it will come to nearly $34 billion under present law, and next year $35.2 billion. If proposed new legislation takes effect in 1971, another $1.1 billion could be added to Social Security outlays before June 30 and some $3 billion extra would go out for fiscal 1972.

Back in 1965, total federal expense in the income security field alone came to $25.7 billion. The guessing for fiscal 1972 is $60.7 billion. That represents mst of what the whole federal budget came to when Harry Truman was nearing the end of his presidency in 1952.

Whatever "peace dividends" are becoming available as the Vietnam war is wound down (and the existence of any sizable liberated sums is hard to demonstrate), is it plain that our soaring social programs devour new revenuew almost as fast as they appear. And the trend goes on.

Spasm of Small Muscles Causes Pleurisy Pains

Dear Dr. Lamb — Would you kindly write about pleurisy, possible causes and resulting pain and fever? Could this be contracted because of driving with an air-conditioner unit vented directly at the driver? After a recent automobile trip my husband began to have pains in his right chest where the cold air blew at him. It does not get better and the doctor says it could be pleurisy. He has been troubled for two months. Chest X rays, electrocardiograph and other tests are normal. Is there any treatment other than pain killers. Can this be cured or does it become chronic?

Dear Reader — The surface of the lungs and the inner surface of the chest cage are lined with a very thin clear membrane which is called the pleura. Inflammation of this lining is pleurisy. Interestingly enough, there are no pain fibers from this lining over the lung surface, so the pain must come from the chest wall. Many people think that the pain is caused by the inflamed lung surface rubbing against the chest cage. This is probably not true.

The pain appears to be more related to spasm of the small muscles between each of the ribs. When you breathe and the chest wal expands, these muscles move. Like any muscle cramp, the movement causes severe pain. This is why limiting the motion of the chest by tight bandages tends to relieve the pain.

Muscle spasm can indeed be caused by a cool air blowing over the body surface. Severe, sudden pain in the neck muscles can follow sleeping under a fan.

Pleurisy can be caused by a long list of medical disorders. Fortunately, most cases are caused by viral diseases that cause a lot of pain and discomfort but seldom cause any lasting damage or serious illness. The pain is usually far out of proportion to any actual danger, but it is quite severe.

Any infection of the lungs can be associated with pleurisy. This includes tuberculosis, the bacterial and viral diseases, even tumors and rare diseases we call metabolic diseases.

Treatment obviously depends upon the cause. In most cases small doses of aspirin will help a great deal. A heating pad may provide comfort and wrapping the chest tightly with an elastic bandage may minimize pain. Of course, if the underlying cause is a serious medical problem, that too must be treated.

There are other causes for similar chest pain. This includes disorders of the spine and shingles (a virus involvement of the nerve) which may involve one or more spaces between the ribs. I suspect your husband has had trouble long enough that you can forget about shingles.

Always Unusual — Footnotes on Russell

Robert Allen

WASHINGTON— Harry Truman said it first — that if Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga. had come from a northern, or even a border, state, he might "well have been president."

That appraisal was variously restated by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., and other colleagues after Russell's death last week. It is on of those brilliantly perceptive Comments which, on analysis, are not quite accurate.

Russell was, to be sure, a man endowed with presidential talents including, especially, an ability to make hard judgments. He could relate complex and esoteric problems to the real, political world. In capacity, he towered above most of his colleagues.

It is ,however, simply unreal to imagine a Richard B. Russell from outside the South. The courtly demeanor, the inflexible commitment to personal integrity, the family tradition and patriotic view of public service —all quite Southern— were an important part of Russell — a part not separable.

In that context it is worth remembering that Russell's one announced bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, at the national convention in 1952, produced an embarrassment which was to rankle with Russell for the rest of his life.

As that Chicago convention moved toward balloting, an over-zealous Russell publicist issued a statement asserting that the senator, if nominated and elected, would seek "change" in the Taft-Hartley labor law. The statement was ingeniously worded so that it could mollify organized labor and not upset Russell's conservative supporters.

Russell felt the statement added uo to an unprincipled bid for labor support. He spoke of it with distaste in later years.

FDR NEW DEALER — Much that was unusual about this extraordinary man has been ignored in the week since his death here.

In recent years he has been, as reported, a leading conservative among congressional Democrats. Forgotten, however, is the fact that as the young governor of Georgia (he was only 35), Russell gave a seconding speech for Franklin Delano Roosevelt's nomination in 1932 and that he was a FDR New Dealer during his early Senate years.

Russell wielded as has been reported, unprecedented power in military matters as chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee and former chairman of the Committee on Armed Services. Yet he viewed his sponsorship of the federal school lunch program as his proudest legislative achievement and, for years, retained the chairmanship of the appropriations subcommittee which handed out funds for farm programs.

Also of interest, at a time when the seniority system is under attack as an unfair hurdle for young lawmakers, is the fact that, with senior senators waiting, Russell was made a member of the prestigious Appropriations Committee immediately on his arrival in the Senate 38 years ago. In a series of interviews last year with Cox Broadcasting Corp., Russell recalled that Senate leaders of that era had just experienced the tuultuous arrival of the late Huey Long and did not relish a dispute over committees with another young southern activist.

One of Russell's final acts (also unreported) benefited Senate employes, including the clinque of bright young aides to liberal senators who viewed him as an unalloyed evil, an unremitting opponent of good works — especially civil rights legislation. A few days before his death, as the Senate's president pro-tempore, Russell approved a new pay schedule which will let the salaries of Senate employes keep pace with other government salaries.

NEVER AGAIN— Another one of the "old" senators, the late Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., argued for a civil rights bill a few years ago by invoking the old truism that there is no stopping an idea whose time has come. The bill was approved, over the opposition of Russell and his southern colleagues.

Perhaps it would be accurate to say that Russell was passed over as a presidential possibility not for regional reasons but because he was deeply committed to certain ideas whose time had passed — ideas which, while they were not exclusively southern, could no longer be tolerated by many office-seeking Democrats in many parts of the nation.

Consequently Russell stayed in the Senate, acquired immense power, and used it sparingly.

Americans Racking Guns

By PAUL HARVEY

Britain's Lord Snowdon refuses to go bird hunting any more. The brother-in-law of the queen says he simply does not want to kill anything any more.

It is not significant that one man, of whatever prominence, has developed an antipathy toward killing. But if his generation has, that is.

Some years ago I collected some classic firearms. Mostly shotguns. Exhibition-grade guns with masterworks of engraving and magnificent carved-wood stocks.

Young Paul and I shot skeet together — the clay targets. And we went hunting together for quail and pheasant and, I think, enjoyed it. Certainly we enjoyed the fellowship.

But I have not fired one of those guns for years.

With former hunting and fishing companions, frequently the conversation turns to those subjects. And when some one of us breaks the ice, so to speak, it is surprising how many men of my acquaintance have given up hunting.

They've not "Sworn off"; nothing like that. They've just lost interest.

I did not mention this until there were dozens of such examples of my personal knowledge — and until inveterate outdoorsmen of prominence, like Britain's Lord Snowdon, confirmed my findings.

The British, historically, are great grouse hunters. Recently Britains Prince Philip and his son, Prince Charles, were denounced by Britain's League Against Cruel Sports for participating in a pheasant hunt. Prince Philip had conducted the annual bird shoot at the royal estate in Norfolk where pheasants are raised for the purpose.

But Lord Snowdon, husband of Princess Margaret, did not attend. Says he will participate in no more royal grouse shooting parties. He says, "I simply do not want to kill things any more."

If my observation is correct, and this antipathy toward killing is increasing — why, do you suppose?

I've thought it might relate to the awfully unpopular Vietnamese war.

The original beatnik types and their successors, the flower children, have demonstrated a dramatic reaction to violence — proclaimed themselves for "peace" and "love."

Theirs could have been a backlash against militarism.

Another possibility is that many of us were subconsciously sickened by the assassinations of the 1930s, resulting in a revulsion againt violence, per se.

You'll remember the Kennedy killings triggered an avalanche of demands for gun controls, an objective with which I was not in sympathy because such laws against guns merely take guns away from people who obey laws.

Nor do I intend to crusade against so-called sport shooting. Wildlife experts have convinced me that harvesting certain crops of game birds and animals now requires the participation of hunters because we have unbalanced nature.

But I will let somebody else do the harvesting.

Coming almost to feel as Ogden Nash said: "The mighty hunter with gun strides. Bravely forth and in the tall grass hides. There, with wit and pluck, He hopes he can outwit a duck."

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I need advice from anyone who can give it to me. My son is 17. When he was 16, a married woman with two children started chasing after him. She still does.

He was always home nights until that terrible woman came into the picture. Now he lies to us and says he is staying overnight with a buddy, but it turns out that he is with this woman.

She is over 21 and is on probation, so you know what kind of person she is. My son will listen to no one since he became so infatuated with this woman. The law protects her, believe it or not. The police and even a New York judge have told us there is nothing we can do about it. Does this make any sense to you?

If he were your son, what would you do?

HEARTSICK MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: The police should know the law. And so should a judge, but since your son is a minor and this woman is on probation, it doesn't make sense to me that there isn't anything you can do. If he were my son ,I would hire a good attorney and pay him for what he knows.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's brother and his wife just moved into their new home. It is a very beautiful home and they are proud of it. The other night we called on them for the first time and brought along a housewarming gift. We sat down, had a drink and talked, but they never offered to show us through their home. Neither did we ask them to show it to us.

The next day we heard that the wife was very upset because we didn't ask them to show us the house. Please settle this, Abby. Who is supposed to do what? Should we have asked them to show us their house? Or should they have offered to take us through their new home?

FLORIDANS

DEAR FLORIDANS: Since the purpose of your call was to "warm" their new home, it would seem only reasonable that they would offer to show you through . But since they didn't, you would not have been out of order to have said, "-and now, will you give us a 50-cent tour?"

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl with a very touchy problem. My best friend has a weak msucle in her eye which makes her cross-eyed. I hear that this can be corrected by an operation, but I just can't bring myself to mention it to her. Even though I am her best friend I am afraid it would hurt her feelings.

When she is not with me, so many people ask me why she doesn't get her eye fixed for otherwise she would be so pretty. I usually say, "I don't know why," and walk away. What else can I do?

Guys notice it right away, and I am sure that's the reason she has very few dates. She is a lovely girl with a nice personality. Is there some way I can help her without hurting her feelings?

A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Yes. Only a good friend would care enough to tell her that her eye can be corrected. Perhaps she doesn't know. Or perhaps she isn't aware of how disfiguring and conspicuous it is. If you tell her in the spirit of friendly loving kindness she should be grateful, not hurt.

CONFIDENTIAL TO PROUD DAD: You have a right to be proud. True, you can't "force" a generous check on your daughter as a reward for having given up smoking, but you can send one to the American Cancer Society in your commnuity.

America's Calorie Counters Face Grim Diet Fixation

NEW YORK (NEA)—Life was blissful in the late 1940s, if you were a mere slip and loved to eat.

A 95-pounder in that era could enjoy favored teen-age snacks, maybe a root beer float and a five-inch-in-diameter chiliburger on whole wheat bun. No haranguing about calories. There were no pizza parlors and the "in" spot was Mike the Greek's, whose ice cream came from the plant at the back of the store.

Those were the good old days before the diet fixation swept the country.

It was 5 o'clock (6 at the latest) suppertime and not "dinner at eight" for all but a few sophisticates who lived in a small Midwestern town of 6,500.

Some who bought hightoned journals such as The New Yorker or The New York Times at the Smokehouse magazine-tobacco-shoe shine hangout knew Gaylor Hauser, an early swami touting healthful diets and exercise, but most people were still eating their old, haphazard ways.

There are now more than 2,200 cookbooks published each year. Then "Fanny Farmer" and "Joy of Cooking" plus some magazine recipe collections were all you found on a typical kitchen shelf.

"Eating out" was an occasion and home cooking the rule. Gourmet cooking classes hadn't begun yet; there were no Julia Childs or Galloping Gourmets.

Eating was fun. No one thought of his cholesterol count when savoring a two or four-egg breakfast with thick slices of bacon or maybe a small steak, homemade biscuits oozing with butter and topped with honey or strawberry jam. We drank our colas straight or with a dash of cherry syrup) diet drinks — and the cyclamate furor — were in the future.

The war had just ended and mother put food rationing folders away in the memorabilia cigar box. The local grocery offered a wide selection of food items, we thought. The supermarket was just breaking ground.

But more than half the items now stocked were not available even 10 years ago, let alone in the late '40s. Loyalty to Butcher Sharpe or Grocer Carmichael held and food shopping wasn't too confusing.

There were slighly less than 3,000 items to boggle the mind and prod the stomach juices. Now a swing through any supermarket brings an Ex-headache with more than 8,000 food and household labels stacked about to blur shopping intent. And, the prices!

Although Sunday family meals still are important to many, the trend is for less food on the table. In food's good old days Sunday meant creamy mashed potatoes, hopefully homemade egg noodles, if there was chicken, fresh green beans cooked with ham or pork, yeast biscuits, pineapple salad, fresh fruit pies eaten only with thick whipped cream (ice cream went on the late snack) and a chocolate marble cake. All homemade.

The moment of truth, fatwise and waste-wise, came after many years of hearty stuffing.

A trip to the breakfast-lunch-and-dinner table didn't mean calorie-counting time then. Still to be invented were the champagne diet, the grapefruit diet, Dr. Stillman's high-protein diet, the rice diet and Gaynor Maddox's ice cream diet.

New processes promise many more convenient foods. But is there any substitute for the taste of a field-ripened tomato?

Foods chock full and fortified with A, B, C, D, etc., vitamins and minerals and things to make skin glow and hair grow are good for us. They make the '70s an era of good new youth days.

There was something soothing, however, about munching homemade walnut fudge and popcorn on Saturday afternoons while the radio sportscaster helped the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame roll over Indiana U's Hoosiers, or spending evenings enjoying Sid Caesar and Uncle Miltie, who ushered in the beer and pretzel boob tube era in '48.

Gone are the days of groovy pie-and-ice-cream after an evening with Benny and Hope via radio in Rushville. Now in the dieting '70s, it's the grim late news, a carrot stick and bed.

Woman Seeks Methods To Store Leather Items

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I have invested in a leather jacket, a coat and a few more leather things. No one seems to agree as to how they should be stored. My space is limited and garment bags or clearner's plastic bags would be ideal. I have heard that plastic ruins leather and that garment bags smother the skins. Please help me as I cannot afford to lose my investment.

MISS S. B.

DEAR POLLY — I want to tell Mrs. C. S. that I found rubbing a stone over rust stains on a cement floor will remove them and crayon or other marks. Keep rubbin until the stain disappears. I love the column and do wish it was longer.

THERESA

DEAR POLLY — Please tell Mrs. C. S. to try a strong oxalic acid (poison) solution for removing those rust stains on her basement rement floor. This worked fine on my son's new white ,T-shirt after he climbed a rusty pipe in our well.

MYRTLE

DEAR POLLY — I made a wig case for my sister out of a round potato chip container. The inside and outside were both covered with adhesive-backed paper. I took the lid apart and covered the band and circle separately so it would be neatly finished. I braided handle with heavy rug yarn in a color that goes well with the paper. This was attached through holes punched on opposite sides of the container. I reinforced the holes with extra circles cut from the paper to prevent tearing. This pretty container will neatly hold a wig head and a wig if it is not too full.

These containers also make nice wastebaskets when covered with such paper on the outside and then a plastic bag can be placed inside.

Culture Club Has Officer Election

The Twentieth Century Culture Club held the regular meeting in the home of Mrs. Jack R. Hood with Mrs. V.L. Hobbs as co-hostess.

Mrs. Dan Cameron, club president, conducted the business session as officers for the coming year were elected Officers are Mrs. L.J. Zackery, president; Mrs. M.K Griffith, vice-president; Mrs. E.W. Hogan, secretary; Mrs. J.L. Case, treasurer; Mrs. Jack Hood, reporter and Mrs. Dan Cameron, parliamentarian.

Mrs. Hobbs introduced the speaker for the afternoon, Mrs. Doyle Osborne, who spoke on the life of Col. Charles Goodnight, for whom the town of Goodnight is named.

Mrs. Osborne discussed the early life of Charles Goodnight and described the family trip to Texas from Illinois in the summer of 1845.

"They came by wagon train and settled it Milam County between Waco and Austin. Young Charlie had learned to read before he came to Texas. It was a good thing for family responsibilities left he and his brothers and sisters no time for school.

Later, his widowed mother married Adam Sheek in 1853. Adam Sheek was a widower with several children. Charles and Wesley Sheek, Adam's son, became great friends and decided to go to California to look for gold," she said.

Before they got very far rfom home." Mrs. Osborne said, "the boys met a man named Clairborne Varner of Waco, who was conducting a cattle drive. Varner offered them a job as cowboys, which they accepted instead of going on to California. They remained with Varner for 10 years for a share in the calf crop and they also started buying cattle on their own," she said.

The speaker described Charles Goodnight's life as a scout with the Texas Rangers, as Indian fighter under Captain Sul Ross, explained how he became the partner of Oliver Loving and described his romance with Mary Ann Dyer, a young school teacher from Tennessee who taught school in Weatherford, Mary Ann and Charles Goodnight were married July 26, 1870.

"One of Charles Goodnight's hired hands told him of a wonderful range in the Texas Panhandle. This range was a Canyon, a strange, unexpected gash in the level prairies; so with the young cowboy as guide, he set out to have a look at what is now called Palo Duro, Canyon. It was here, near the Canyon, he and Mrs. Goodnight Osborne said.

established their home," Mrs.

He helped other settlers make a home in this prairie country, broke in new trails for cattle drives, and gave a large sum of money to establish a college at Goodnight." she said.

During the sorial hour, the hostesses served refreshments to the members present.

JEANE DIXON

FRIDAY, FEB. 5

YOUR BIRTHDAY FRIDAY: Using your common sense may turn out to be the prime factor in your success in this coming busy and productive year. Firday's natives tend to a judicial attitude, are frequently gifted in handling statistics, financial planning and the like.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Wind up your workweek neatly, with the idea that what is closed now will stay closed. If you buy, prefer the best. Keep it light in the evening, no serious discussions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Putting on airs or pretense will get you nowhere. Just spend a full day of good, consistent effort toward goals that you really seek, and mind your own affairs.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be yourself; pay no attention to people distracting or trying to discourage you. Standard procedures, common courtesy go a long way in smoothing your progress.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A run begins now of several weeks of interesting, encouraging, expansive social experience. Things are looking up for both personal and business action.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): This is a day of good opportunity — it's strictly up to you in what direction you wish to direct your energies, and how hard you wish to press forward. There is much to be gained.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Everybody seems to be on the move except you. Use the situation to organize your plans more precisely. Line up your budgets and accounts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Where you have anything to say about what is done, give everybody concerned a lot to do or something serious to think about. Use self discipline, too.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Think twice before acting. Whatever you do may be more forcible than you'd planned. Keep work concerns out of your personal relationships.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Take a firm approach to everything outside the home. You find much to watch in the clashes between others, everything to gain by remaining out of them. Your mate deserves full cooperation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Positive action in your career effort is a must Friday. In most other areas, it is better to keep the peace and wait for further developments.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-feb. 18): You may be on a personality collision course with almost everybody and not realize it. Consideration for others brings best results. You tend to wind up paying the bills.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Get rid of materials and objects which have no further use, outworn or outdated clothing, etc. Don't include too many people in your planned activities.

White Space Increases Readership!

SPACE STATION, 1978

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Space stations will be able to provide advance warning of approaching storms such as the cyclones and tidal wave which recently hit Pakistan, according to a scientist connected with the program.

"During the Pakistan disaster this type of warning may have lessened the loss," Dr. Rene Berglund said Tuesday.

Berglund is head of the advanced projects office at the Manned Spacecraft Center. He said the space station will be launched in 1978 with either a six or 12 man crew.

Bulldogs Will Host The Harvesters Friday Night

The Pampa Harvesters will square off against the Borger Bulldogs tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in Borger. The Bulldogs are still stinging from a 72 to 63 loss by the Tascosa Rebels Tuesday night while the Harvesters are still in the clouds over their 100 to 74 defeat of the Amarillo Sandies.

According to Pampa coach Robert McPherson, "We had too many fouls against the Sandies but we did show a good team effort. We were worried about their press going into the game but didn't let it bother us. Pampa hadn't scouted the Sandies and most of the information we had about them was either second or third hand accounts."

"One player I think should get a lot of recognition is Mike Jordan. He has played good ball all season long and I can rely on him to give 100 per cent all of the time he plays."

The Harvesters will be looking for many home town fans at the Borger game. Attendance has been good at the Harvester games but Borger's gym holds 'a ton of people' and Pampa has many fans who should plan on going to the game.

More fire and spunk has been shown in Pampa's team in the past few games than all season long. They are playing as a team and are sticking together win or lose.

As coach McPherson stated, "Rankings and standings mean nothing when Pampa and Borger play. The rivalry between these two schools is unbelievable. I feel, however, we have the better ball club and if we can get our fouls under control we are going to be hard to stop."

Three Pampa players fouled out in the fourth quarter of the Sandie game. Tip-off time is 6 p.m. for the Shockers and 8 p.m. for the Harvesters. Make plans to attend the game.

Shockers Dump Sandie B-Team 60 to 34, Prepare For Borger

The Pampa Shockers bounded ahead of the Amarillo Junior Varsity Tuesday night for a 60 to 34 victory. The 26 point margin was to be duplicated by the Harvesters as they defeated the Sandies 100 to 74.

The Shockers have had a successful season this year and are looking forward to playing the Borger b-team Friday night at 6 p.m.

In Tuesday's game Freddie Wilbon led the Shockers with 14 points. Steve Richardson was the only other JV member to reach double figures with 13 points.

The Shockers jumped to an early 10 to 5 advantage after the first quarter of play and kept climbing. At halftime the score read 29 to 17.

The 12 point lead quickly built into a 26-point spread by the end of the game as the Shockers held the Sandie B-squad to 17 points the second half while they scored 31 points.

Satchel Paige And Josh Gibson Are Regarded As Prime Candidates For Introduction Into Hall Of Fame

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Satchel Paige and Josh Gibson, who toiled in the shadowland of the Negro baseball leagues before Jackie Robinson's entry into the organized sport, are regarded as the prime candidates to be voted into the Hall of Fame by a special committee commissioned to honor the black players of another era.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced the formation of the 10-man committee of the 10-man committee Wednesday and said that the first Negro player to be honored by it will be named next week. The committee was appointed in recognition of the fact that 1971 is the silver anniversary of Robinson's entry anniversary of Robinson's entry into orgaized baseball with the Montreal Royals of the International League, a farm club of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Kuyn said that players in the Negro leagues before 1947 will be eligible for selection and tablets with their achievements will be hung in the Cooperstown, N.Y., shrine as part of a new exhibit commemorating the contributions of black athletes to the sport.

Campanella, who won three Most Valuable Player awards while playing for the Dodgers from 1948 through 1957, and Robinson, who pioneered the Negro's entry in the game in 1946 and 1947, are the only black players who have been elected to the Hall of Fame under the normal balloting procedures of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Such current ineligible stars as Willie Mays, Hank Aaron, Bob Gibson, Frank Robinson and Ernie Banks are regarded as certain to be voted into the shrine, but the new committee's role is to honor those players who contributed greatly to baseball in the pre-Robinson era.

Few records were kept by the gypsy-like teams of that era when Negro clubs travelled from town to town in buses, often playing two, three or even four games a day, and sometimes passing the hat to make ends meet. The task of the committee therefore, is to differentiate between legend and fact. All the committee members had a direct relationship with Negro players of Negro leagues in those days.

Paige, said by such stars as Babe Ruth, Joe Dimaggio and Lou Gehrig to have ranked with any of the white stars of the 1920s and 1930s, got his chance to play in the majors when he was signed by the Cleveland Indians in 1948 at the age of 42 and pitched until 1953.

Gibson, a right-handed hitting catcher known as the "Babe Ruth of the Negro leagues," never played in the majors and his record is lost in the mists of the shadowland of Negro baseball. He is reputed to have hit many balls more than 500 feet.

White Deer's Rick Thurman Enrolls At UT

Ricky Thurman, White Deer's Parade Magazine All-American defensive tackle has announced plans to attend the University of Texas on athletic scholarships.

Thurman, 6-3, 225, was named to the Class A All-State team on offense and was listed as an honorable mention on the Sunkist All-America team as well as Scholastic Magazines All-America team.

Thurman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. V.L. Thurman of White Deer visited the Texas campus in late January and was recruited by UT assistant coach Emory Ballard.

Thurman will ink pre-enrollment applications Tuesday according to UT officials.

PJH Bounces Phillips In District Play

Pampa Junior High School defeated Phillips in district play Tuesday 46 to 30. The Reapers were led in scoring by Billy Wilbon with 19 points and Beard with 13 points. Phillips high man was McDonald with 19 points.

The Reapers jumped into the lead by nine points at halftime after trailing Phillips 9 to 4 after the first half.

The Reapers lead increased to 10 points at the end of the third quarter with 16 point margin at the end of the game.

Last Thursday the Reapers lost their first game in the second half of district play to Perryton 46 to 29. According to Coach Moore of PJHS the Reapers were cold from the court and from the free throw line.

In Tuesday's action the Reapers hit 10 of 36 from the charity line. The next game scheduled for the Reapers is against Borger north and following that will be the Shocker B-team.

3-B District Play Opens Tonight In Lefors Tourney

Play starts this afternoon in the Lefors Invitational 3-B District Playoff Tournament at 4 p.m. when favored Miami enters the court against Samnorwood.

The tournament is a double round robin elimination with the winners of today's contests meeting tomorrow at 7 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. The winners of tomorrows contests will go on to the final round to be played Saturday evening at 7:30 p.m.

Earlier in the week Miami won the zone playoff 57 to 40 against Lefors in a game played at Canadian. If Miami should fail to win the tournament there will be a one-game playoff Saturday between them and the tournament winner.

Games scheduled for today are Miami vs. Samnorwood at 4 p.m.; second in the North zone Briscoe meets Quail at 5:30 p.m.; Groom, who finished second in the South zone at 7 p.m. against Mobeetie and Lefors, the winner of the South Zone with an 18-7 season record against Allison at 8:30 p.m.

Matson Defends His Acceptance Of Prize

World shotput champion Randy Matson is on the defensive about a television set he received for being the outstanding athlete in the Sunkist Invitational Track Meet held in Los Angeles, two weeks ago.

"The presentation was made before a crowd of approximately 15,000 people," according to Matson, "and the set isn't valued at $400. I have the television at my home if anyone would like to drop by and look at it for themselves."

Matson went on to say, "Earlier I had received a small portable tape recorder from the AAU after winning one of their meets. If that wasn't wrong then neither was accepting the tv."

Matson said this wasn't the first television he had received and that he wasn't the only athlete to accept such gifts. "It is common knowledge that before a meet the outstanding athlete will get a special gift," Matson contended, "and if the AAU chooses to suspend me, I'll be in a large company."

"High Schoo lTracksters" in 1972 will make up the Olympic team from the United States if this should be the case, Matson said.

Direct contact to the Olympic Gold Medal winner has not been made by the AAU and Matson has continued to prepare for the Fort Worth Indoor Meet this week-end.

Losing Coaches Can Usually Pinpoint Loss, But Lettuce

By United Press International

Most losing coaches can usually pinpoint the cause for defeat but Pittsburgh's Buzz Ridl may never know who cost him Wednesday night's game against West Virginia.

A pair of technical fouls against the Pittsburgh stands for throwing refuse provided the key points that enabled West Virginia to score a 95-91 victory over the Panthers.

West Virginia took the lead to stay late in the first half when the Pitt stands were assessed a technical foul for splattering an egg on the court. A second technical against the cheering section with seven seconds left —for throwing a head of lettuce —ended Pittsburgh's chances for catching the Mountaineers.

Will Robinson had 25 points and Sam Oglesby 23 to lead West Virginia. Robinson dropped in the first technical foul that gave West Virginia a 44-43 lead with 2:49 to go in the first half.

Paul O'Goreck had 24 to lead the Panthers while the Pittsburgh stands contributed three eggs, two firecrackers, a fish, oranges and a head of lettuce.

In action involving top 20 teams, 12th-ranked LaSalle trounced Loyola of Louisiana 74-53, Fordham (No. 14 downed Army 65-6; and Duquesne (No. 18) whipped San Francisco 90-77. Elsewhere, Creighton crushed Southern Illinois 90-73, Georgia Tech beat Georgia 90-77, Louisville downed Tulsa 96-85, Tulane upset Louisiana State 93-86, North Carolina State trimmed Maryland 71-61 and St. Bonaventure trounced Xavier (Ohio) 104-77.

Kenny Durrett and Bobby Fields teamed for 51 points as LaSalle boosted its record to 15-1 with a triumph over Loyola, which failed to score in the first eight minutes.

Bill Mainor scored 17 of his 20 points in the second half to lift Fordham past Army. It was the Rams' 14th victory in 15 games.

Brown And Lombardi Pro Football Famers

CANTON, Ohio (UPI)—Vince Lombardi, the coach who made winning a tradition at Green Bay, and Jim Brown, the Cleveland fullback who virtually rewrote National Football League rushing records, were among the seven new inductees announced today for the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Joining Lombardi and Brown are defensive end Andy Robustelli, quarterbacks Y.A. Tittle and Norm Van Brocklin and old timers Bill Hewitt and Frank "Bruiser" Kinard.

The seven members inducted this year by a representative from each pro football city and the president of the Pro Football Writers Association mark the largest group selected since 1968 and boosts to 70 the number of football stars enshrined.

Lombardi, who passed away on Sept. 3, 1970, gained fame late in his career but became virtually synonomous with coaching dominance during the 1960s. In 1959 he took over a Green Bay team that finished 1-10-1 the year before and two years later guided it to a division title. Lombardi's powerful Packer teams won five NFL titles and two Super Bowl championships in the next seven years.

Brown, elected in his first year of eligibility, was the premier runner in the NFL for his nine pro seasons. He led the league in rushing seven of those nine years and compiled 12,312 career yards rushing, a figure that may never be equaled. He quit at the height of his career to become a movie actor.

Robustelli, from little Arnold College in Connecticut, played 14 seasons in the pros with the Los Angeles Rams and New York Giants and finished with a first place team in nine of those years. He is tied for the NFL record for fumble recoveries in a career—22—and was named All League seven times.

Tittle, a 17-year veteran, made his greatest mark when traded from the San Francisco Forty Niners to the Giants. Never a divisional winner with the Forty Niners, Tittle won three with the Giants as an aging but highly competitive quarterback.

Van Brocklin, like Robustelli and Tittle, also gained fame late in his career, leading the Philadelphia Eagles to the NFL title in 1961. He led the league in passing three times and in punting twice.

Hewitt, who died in 1947, joined the Chicago Bears in 1932 after starting at the University of Michigan and gained acclaim as one of the great ends in the league. He played without a helmet until the league made him wear one in 1939.

Kinard joined the Brooklyn Dodgers out of the University of Mississippi in 1938 and made the All League team at tackle in his first year. He was the only all league player to switch to the All American Conference when that league was begun in 1946 and immediately became the first player to win honors in two leagues.

George Archer Is Likely To Win The '71 Hawaiian Open

HONOLULU (UPI) —It looks like it's going to be George Archer against the field in the 1971 Hawaiian Open golf tournament.

Archer, the lanky cowboy from Gilroy, Calif., and the leading money winner on the PGA tour this year, comes into the 72-hole tourney fresh from a victory in the Andy Williams San Diego Golf Open last week. The $200,000 tournament opened today over the ocean-side Waialae Country Club course.

For Archer, last week's victory is the beginning of what he hopes will be a complete turnabout from 1970. Plagued by a sore elbow, Archer failed to win any tournament last year and prior to the San Diego Open, his only other victory was the 1969 Masters.

Archer headed a list of nine of the top 10 money winners this year, a strong field vying for the $40,000 first prize here.

Other top money winners in the tournament were Miller Barber, winner of the Phoenix Open; Tom Shaw, Bing Crosby titlist; Masters champion Billy Casper, Dave Eichelberger, Arnold Palmer, Bob Murphy and Howie Johnson.

Four Blacks Quit TCU For Florida State

FORT WORTH (UPI) —Four Negro football players quit Texas Christian University Wednesday because of "limited social activities" and said they plan to transfer to Florida State.

All four were starting sophomores on TCU's football team last season.

Pittman, who came to TCU from Tulane after Fred Taylor was fired as TCU's coach at the end of the 1970 season, denied that the black athletes quit because of rules he instated discouraging beards, mustaches, and long sideburns.

"They said it had nothing to do with the present coaches or any of our rules," he said.

The four black athletes are Larry Dibbles, defensive tackle, Raymond Rhodes, running back; Hodges Mitchell and Ervin Garnett, both defensive backs.

News From Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) "The Price," Arthur Miller's play about two estranged brothers who meet after 16 years to dispose of their dead father's furniture, was presented in an excellent production on NBC-TV Wednesday night.

The 90-minute "Hallmark Hall of Fame" offering starred George C. Scott and Barry Sullivan as the brothers—one a policeman, the other a rich doctor — and Fielder Cook directed the play, which was produced by David Susskind.

But, as on Broadway, the scene-stealing performance—because of a wonderfully entertaining and humorous role written by Miller—belonged to David Burns as an elderly Jewish furniture dealer who arrives at the setting, a Manhattan brownstone, to buy the contests of the memory-filled room. Burns also played the part on Broadway.

And for viewers of Miller's works, which have never been known to overindulge in humor, the old dealer was a welcome visitor. If Burns isn't nominated for an emmy, there isn't any Santa Claus.

As the policeman who took care of his father while his brother went off to become a wealthy surgeon, Scott was his usual self—that is to say, an impeccable, controlled actor who knows when to draw on emotion and when to leave it alone so it doesn't seem overdone and cheap.

Sullivan played the doctor, and also gave a fine performance as a man whose brilliant career has left him shattered because of the breakup of his family and the realization that his values for so many years were unsatisfying.

Taped in London, this play was a perfect project for television—intimate, with a universal theme of interest to a mass audience, and written with an enviable simplicity: so natural that the words hardly seemed to have come from a playwright. The cop, the doctor, the junk dealer, the wife—all were credible human beings who just seemed to be talking, feeling each other out, tearing at each other over the matter of whether to reconcile, trying to fix blame, trying to have a future.

It is always satisfying to study the work of an author who is so mature and confident of his talent (and material) that he strips his writing of artifice, and delivers the goods in a direct and simple manner. That is real sophistication. And that is why "The Price" was so good.

Events In State Legislature

AUSTIN (UPI) — Events in the Texas Legislature Tuesday:

Welfare—The House approved and returned to the Senate a proposed constitutional amendment that would permit the state to spend more money on assistance payments. However, the House members tacked on a provision setting a $55 million a year ceiling on payments to needy children.

Bond—The House delayed for another day action on Gov. Preston Smith's proposed plan to avoid taxes by issuing $450 million in revenue bonds. That proposal, which observers say has little chance for approval, was scheduled for a vote today.

Appropriations—An emergency apropriation bill to bail out the bankrupt state welfare department and send the state on a experimental deficit spending program was scheduled for a vote Wednesday. Unless 120 representatives and 26 senators vote for the measure, the lawmakers will face the need for an emergency $65 million tax bill.

Tuition—The House tentatively approved a bill raising state college tuition for out of state students from $200 to $700 a semester.

Chavez—The House approved by a nine-vote margin a controversial resolution commending Chavez, who wil be in Austin Saturday.

Senate—The House turned down for the second straght day a proposed constitutonal amendment to increase the size of the Texas Senate from 31 to 39 members.

Rep. Harold Davis, D-Austin, on his bill caling for a $700 per semester minimum in tuition for nonresident students and a "reciprocal" arrangement for students from states with higher tuition:

"If a student comes from a state with an $800 a semester tuition, then that student would also be charged $800 here in Texas."

Rep. Delwin Jones, D-Lubbock, on his defeated constitutional amendment to increase the membership of the state Senate:

"This is just a plan to keep the senators closer to the people."

Speaker of the House Gus F. Mutscher, on Gov. Preston Smith's spend-now-pay-later revenue bond program:

'We're going to give the governor's program a complete run in the House tomorrow (Wednesday). Then we're going to have to see what course to take after the members express themselves."

Gov. Preston Smith, on charges that his appointment of Paducah Rep. W. S. Heatly's son to be a district attorney in his father's district was in violation of state nepotism laws:

"I expect the Senate Nominations Committee will look into that."

PATIENTS DIE

ROLDE, The Netherlands (UPI)—Thirteen patients, most of them children, died Tuesday night when a fire swept a wooden building at a Roman Catholic home for the mentally handicapped, police said.

When the fire started around 10:30 p.m., 47 patients, 12 to 30 years old were in the building.

A male nurse immediately sounded the alarm but very soon all of the building was ablaze.

"Personnel immediately started the evacuation of the patients, but the fire was too fast to save all of them," he said.

Beauty Break

NEW YORK (ED)—As much as I love summer fun, it's just about time to start repairing the havoc that that glorious sun has heaped upon my head. For unexposing, over-exposed hair, I like Ogilvie's Cream Conditioner with Protein. It contains a cream base conditioner with emulsifiers, moisturizers and protein—the protein attaches itself to the hair shaft and acts as a filler to help restore new life and body to damaged hair. It's the best way I know to get ready for the fall round of parties and get-to-gethers.

NOTICE AFFORDING OPPORTUNITY FOR PUBLIC HEARING

The Texas Highway Department is planning the construction of proposed F.M. Highway 3143 from U.S. Highway 66 at Main Street in McLean South and East to the Collingsworth County line in Gray and Donley Counties, a distance of approximately 5.6 miles.

The proposed route follows existing country road locations. It is proposed to assume maintenance on an existing 3.6 miles of paved county road from McLean south. The remaining portion in Gray County and that in Donley County will be new construction providing a pavement width of 20 feet and a usable shoulder width of 4 feet. No additional right of way will be required for the existing paved county road section. A minimum right of way width of 120 feet will be required for the new construction section. No displacements will be involved in the right of way taking.

Maps and other drawings showing the proposed location and geometric design and any other information about the proposed project are on file and available for inspection and copying at the Resident Engineer's Office on U.S. Highway 60 East of Pampa, P.O. Box 1136, Pampa, Texas 79065. Also, the drawings showing the proposed geometric design have been placed on file with Gray County and Donley County.

Information about the tentative schedules for acquisition of right of way and construction can be obtained at the Resident Engineer's Office.

Any interested citizen may request that a public hearing be held covering the social, economic, and environmental effects of the proposed location and design for this highway project by delivering a written request to the Resident Engineer's Office on or before Thursday, February 25, 1971.

In the event such a request is received, a public hearing will be scheduled and adequate notice will be publicized about the date and location of the hearing.

Feb. 4, Feb. 11, 1971 W-75

1 Card of Thanks

CLEO (POTTS) EMERSON

To the many friends of Cleo (Potts) Emerson: I wish to send this "Thank You" note. I do not have the address of each of you so—to the pallbearers, those who sent the beautiful flowers and each who signed the register, we wish to express our appreciation for all the love and kindness shown to us. It will always be remembered. May God bless each and every one of you.

His sister, Eula Spoon, nieces and nephews

WASHINGTON (UPI) — America's worst urban problem is not crime, or traffic, or money.

It's people. Too many people living too close together.

The 1970 census showed that about two-thirds of the U.S. population now is huddled together in urban areas comprising less than 2 per cent of the nation's land area.

Overcrowding either causes or complicates virtually all of the other difficulties involved in the present urban crisis — traffic congestion, housing shortages, racial tensions, crime, air pollution, inadequate municipal services.

It also contributes to the rapid deterioration of manners —the disappearance of ordinary decency —from human relationships in big cities. Psychological tests have demonstrated that rats, when placed in an overcrowded cage, become tense, irritable, insecure an finally vicious. Excessive proximity seems to have the same psychological effect on human beings.

While two out of three Americans are struggling with the increasingly inhospitable environment of urban life, 98 per cent of the nation's land area, including many of the most beautiful sections, remains underpopulated. In this vast expanse of town and country America, life is less stressful, the pace is more leisurely, the air is cleaner, the cost of living is lower, and it's still possible not only to know your neighbor, but to love him.

Clear the time has come for a reversal of the flow of population into urban centers. And there are encouraging signs that such a reversal may be in the making.

Between 1950 and 1960, so many people moved into cities that their population grew about 50 per cent faster than the nation as a whole. But during the decade 1960 to 1970, the growth rate of metropolitan areas was only slightly greater than that of the total population. This indicates a significant slowdown in urbanization.

All that's needed to start population flowing in the opposite direction, many experts believe, is for the federal government to offer some inducement for people to quit the overcrowded cities and start life anew in the great open spaces.

BOSTON (UPI)—Henry L. Shattuck, one of the last members of the Boston Brahmins —the city's traditional social leaders —died Tuesday. He was 91.
