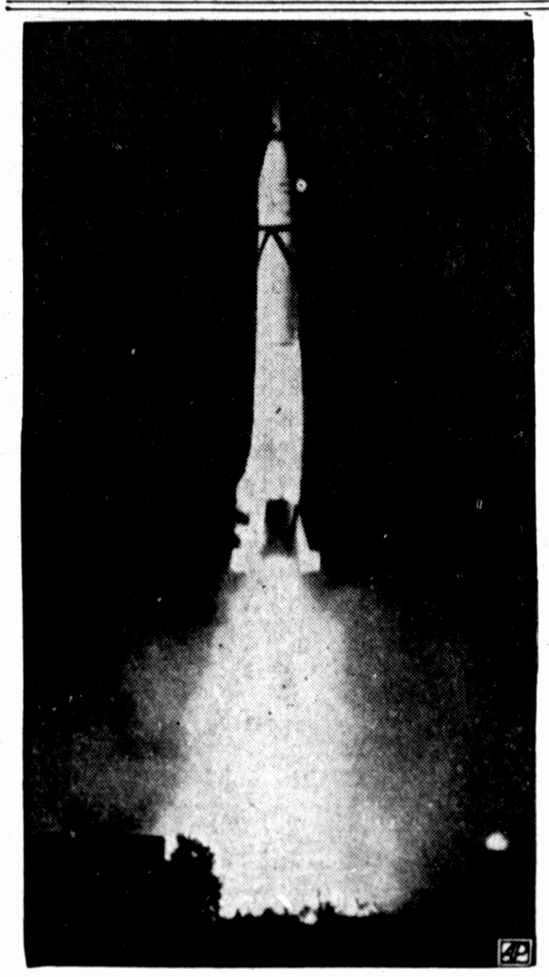
American Satellite Sending 'Priceless Data' To Earth



Off And Flying

The U. S. Army missile Jupiter-C roars through the night sky at the Cape Canaveral, Fla., Missille Test Center carrying the first U. S. satellite to be launched into outer space. Light near the nose of the missile is a stobe unit used in tracking the flight of the missile.

Second Jupiter Ready For Flight

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP) — America's first earth satellite radioed priceless data back to earth today as it whirled through space in a long-lease orbit that may keep it aloft for 10 years.

The solid success of the baby moon was established within hours after the long tube-shaped instrument carrier was catapulted high into the skies over Cape Canaveral, Fla., Friday night and given a mighty shove around the world by an Army Jupiter-C rocket.

It is traveling generally west to east around the Globe's girth, in contrast to the north-south paths followed by the Russian Sputniks, but is not likely to be visible to the naked eye.

Scientists in Washington reported to newsmen that radio transmissions from the Explorer, as the Defense Department named the satellite, are being picked up by tracking stations and "everything is working very well."

The 30.8 pound satellite, lofted after a sister Navy project encountered agonizing setbacks, is sending valuable automatic reports on temperatures, cosmic rays and meteorites. This data is being shared with all nations under the International Geophysical Year program.

Dr. Wernher von Braun, the German-born scientist who played a leading role in developing the Jupiter-C at the Army's Redstone Arsenal in Huntsville, Ala., said the Explorer is only "a rival in spirit to Sputnik."

The first Russian satellite, launched last October, weighed 184 pounds and the second Sputnik, still orbiting after three months, weighs 1,120 pounds.

"The frightening thing is the rate of progress of their effort," Von Braun said of the Russians. "If we should attain a rate 20 per cent greater than theirs it would still take five years to overtake them."

Praise for the Army's accomplishment — President Eisenhower considered it "An American achievement" — came from both Democratic and Republican leaders in Congress.

CONGRATULATIONS

Eisenhower wired his congratulations to Dr. Alan Waterman, director of the National Science Foundation which has over-all supervision of the U.S. satellite program. The President, who is weekending at Augusta, Ga., thanked Waterman, his colleagues and all other hands who had a part in the launching.

Von Braun said a second Jupiter-C has been prepared to send up another satellite adding that between 10 and 15 more satellites will be launched this year and he predicted nearly half of them will be American.

The Russians' dog - carrying Sputnik II, launched last Nov. 3, was reported by Moscow radio to have completed more than 1,200 revolutions around the earth. The dog has long since died.

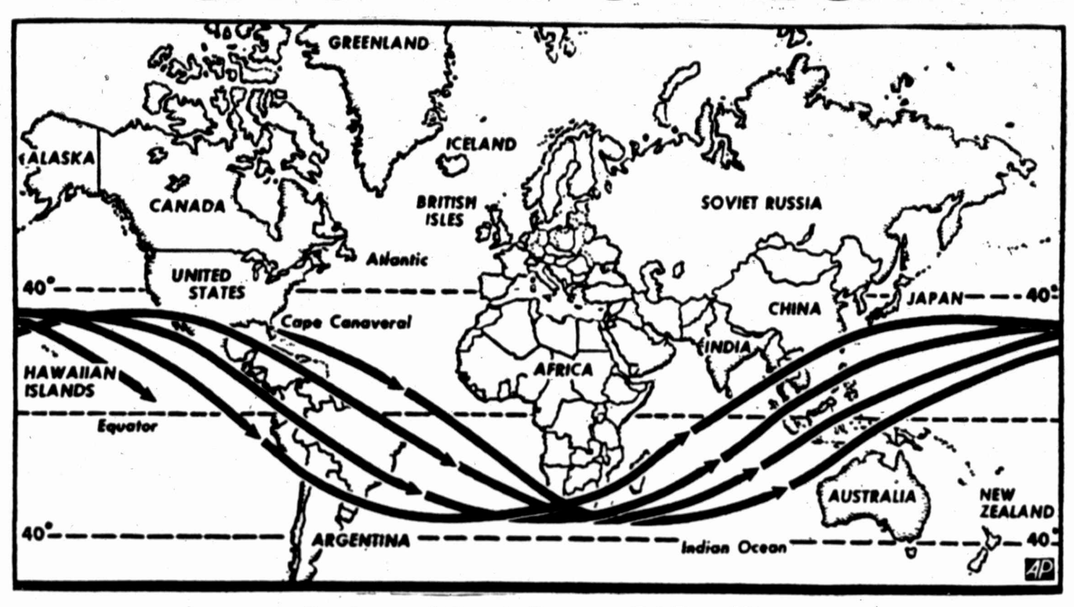
On the basis of one complete circle around the globe every 114 minutes, the American satellite Explorer had made a little more than eight revolutions by 3 p.m. today. It was placed in orbit at 10:55 p.m. last night.

Explorer is following an egg - shaped course that ranges from 200 to 1,700 miles in altitude and is traveling 18,000 miles an hour.

Von Braun stood on his estimate that it will take five years to pull abreast of the Soviets in missile and satellite achievement.

Scientists made it plain the United States is freely giving the world information about Explorer and the data gathered by it, as this country promised the others participating in the International Geophysical Year (IGY) it would do.

The Soviets have made similar promises, but newsmen were told that so far only "very rough information," such as times of passages over cities, has been received.



Projected Earth Passes Of Satellite

This map locates first four projected passes over the earth by the Army's Jupiter-C missile. It was launched to orbit at about a 35-degree angle to the equator. This orbit is between the 35th degree latitudes North and South. This map is based on one issued by the Army.

Mysterious Assailant Slays Big Spring Man

A mysterious gunman stuck a .22 rifle through a North Side cafe door after midnight Saturday and fired.

One man fell dead and another was possibly wounded. Dead on arrival at Cowper Hospital was Benancio Acosta Arispe, 26, who was hit in the chest. He had been rushed there in a River ambulance. Another man was taken to Malone & Hogan Hospital for treatment.

Witnesses in the drive-in said that Arispe was sitting in a booth with four other Latin Americans when the assailant, armed with a .22 caliber rifle, stepped into the building. Immediately after firing "four or five" shots, he fled.

Sidney Casselman, who had stopped there for a cup of coffee, said he looked out in time to see the man with the rifle jump into a 1956 tan Ford. Casselman said the car headed north on the Lamesa Highway.

At least one of the others in the booth with Arispe was hurt.

Bennie Marquez said he was sitting beside Arispe in the booth, and Marquez said he dived to the floor when he saw the man step in with a rifle. He said he could not describe the assailant.

Others in the cafe said that the killer had not been in the drive-in before.

Unknown Number Dead In Fighter-Transport Collision

NORWALK, Calif., Feb. 1 (AP)—A big military transport and a Navy night fighter collided in flight tonight and crashed in flames into this heavily populated Los Angeles suburban area. The planes were reported to have carried a total of 49 persons.

In the confusion of fire, explosion and shock there was no immediate estimate of casualties. The Civil Aeronautics Administration said the transport carried 35 passengers and a crew of seven.

But the terrific destruction as the transport crashed at the rear of the Norwalk sheriff's station made it unlikely that there could be many survivors, deputies said.

The shooting flames set two houses afire.

The Navy plane fell to the northeast of the bigger one and set a second fire.

Dep. Coroner Lee J. Malims said seven bodies had been taken from the transport "and there'll be a lot more."

Jim Tucker of Norwalk said he saw three bodies inside the wreckage of the smaller plane.

He said he talked to a Navy airman who had been catapulted out of the wreckage. He said this injured man told him the fighter plane carried seven persons.

The transport took off from nearby Long Beach Municipal Airport bound for Maguire Air Force Base, N.J., the CAA traffic control tower said. It had been unreported for a short period before the crash.

The big plane, a four-engine C118 known as the Liftmaster, has a capacity of 76 troops.

It plunged to earth 20 miles southeast of downtown Los Angeles.

The wreckage severed power lines and plunged the Norwalk and Downey areas into darkness, complicating rescue efforts.

Coroner's deputies said there "an unknown number of bodies" at the rear of the Norwalk sheriff's station.

It was impossible immediately for rescue workers to determine whether there were casualties in the houses set afire by the exploding wreckage.

O. J. Franklin telephoned the CAA that he was driving on the Santa Ana Freeway when he saw the collision.

Franklin, the first person to report seeing the collision, said:

"I saw a ball of fire in the air. I thought it was fireworks at first. Then there were three or four explosions, and I could see a four-engine plane coming down out of control.

"In the light of the fire I also saw a single-engine plane coming down out of control.

"The big plane was burning all the way down—one engine after another kept bursting into flames. When it hit—it couldn't have been more than a mile from me—there was a tremendous burst of fire that spread flames all over the area."

Curious motorists jammed traffic solidly on the Santa Ana Freeway within minutes of first reports of the accident.

Knowledge Now To Come In Rush

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (AP)—Knowledge of space secrets now promises to come in a rush from U. S. and Soviet satellites.

Quick disclosures are expected of some main or unusual findings by the very young U. S. moon.

A few of its 11 meteorite detectors already have been broken, it was announced. But it's too early to say whether meteorite hits did it, or something else happened on its flight up into orbit.

The first few hours of cosmic ray measurements show nothing unusual, said Dr. Wernher von Braun.

Coded radio signals are reporting on cosmic rays, meteorites, and temperatures inside and on the skin of the rod-shaped moon. This code was announced to all nations.

Some gross meanings of the signals can be reported quickly. But precise analysis of the reams of records were being gathered will take months.

American scientists, from careful study of the Sputnik I flight, estimate the air 250 miles up is 40 times denser than had been thought. At heights of 140 miles, it may be nine times denser.

So what? Denser air would shorten the previously expected lifetime of any moon touching these heights. The air density findings may help explain some effects of the sun or other forces affecting life on earth.

The radio probings made from above could tell more about the extent and structure of the ionosphere. The relatively low radio frequency signals from Sputniks were subject to bending or blocking by the ionosphere. This made them less useful than the high U. S. frequency for tracking a satellite accurately but useful as ionosphere probes.

All these are just some beginnings. Coming are more moons, either bigger or with more elaborate or varied eyes, ears, and fingers to explore space.

Reviewing The

Big Spring Week

With Joe Pickle

The week turned up more than its share of violence—four dead from unnatural causes. George W. Foy of Coahoma became the county's first traffic fatality of 1958; Wayne Howard Wise was killed in a fall from a cooling tower; Leslie Clarence Hall was accidentally shot to death; Russell Emmerson was asphyxiated while he slept.

Another record in which we can take no pride is the number of indictments which the grand jury found necessary to return. You can give authorities and the jury credit for bringing 49 offenders before the bar of justice, but you can't give us too much as a community for generating that much crime.

The Colorado River Municipal Water District elected to issue $4,600,000 in additional revenue bonds last week. The cost of money was 4.12 (including discount), somewhat different from the 2.48 on the original $11,750,000 issue. But then that first rate was so attractive for a project that was only a dream tha it was almost an act of God.

Another sign of our inflated time came from the city commissioners' meeting. City bus operators were authorized to raise fares five cents. That puts the adult fare at 20 cents.

Satellite Corps Ready To Rally

Big Spring Satellite Observers Corps, all set and ready, will rally to the observation post on instant notice if opportunity offers for it to study the skies for the newly-launched American satellite.

However, E. B. McCormick, chairman of the group, said that insofar as he knows at the present time, there may not be any observing for the corps to do.

"Letters sent me about the satellite," he said Saturday, "indicate that it may not be visible and therefore the services of groups such as ours may not be required.

"The latest information I received about it — sometime late in December — did not hold out any promise that we would be called upon to lend a hand."

McCormick emphasized that if conditions change and if the U.S. satellite is observable, the local group is all set to man their posts on an instant's notice.

"I will have to be out of town for about a week," he said, "but I have been in touch with J. T. Clements at Howard County Junior College and with the officials at WAFB. We are all ready for any development."

The Corps was created when the geophysical year activities were begun and assisted once or twice in checking the skies for the Russian sputniks.

McCormick pointed out that so little was known of the man-made moon the U.S. projected into space Friday night that he was in no position to say definitely if the local observers would have any work to do or not.

Thieves Break Into Service Station

Two Latin Americans, were reported to have broken into the Cecil Cooley Service station at 4th and Presidio Saturday night about 11:15 p.m.

A pane of glass was broken from the station, and observers said the pair ran south from the station. They were reported to be armed with a rifle.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Feb. 1 (AP)—A four engined DC4 plane crashed tonight with 70 passengers and 9 crewmen aboard. It could not be learned immediately how many casualties there were.

Mexican Worker Brutally Stabbed

STANTON, Feb. 1, (SC)—An unidentified man, believed to be a bracero, was stabbed and cut badly here about 11:30 p.m. Saturday in an apparent robbery attempt.

Authorities said that the man, in a car, was enroute to the Basin Growers office when he was attacked by two men. He suffered four severe stab wounds and lost a large amount of blood. Arrington Funeral Home rushed the victim to the Howard County Foundation Hospital at midnight Saturday. Officers were searching for the assailants.

Glasscock Livestock Show Set Monday In Garden City

GARDEN CITY, Feb. 1 (SC)—The 21st annual Glasscock County Livestock Show, postponed two weeks ago in the face of threatening weather, will be staged here Monday.

Apparently nothing short of a major ice or snow storm can forestall the exhibition again. Oliver Werst, Glasscock County agricultural agent, said the show will be staged in the old high school gymnasium.

"The building will be heated and should be a comfortable place to watch the judging and other activities of the show," said Werst.

On display will be about 30 pigs and approximately 100 lambs. Herman Carter of San Angelo will judge the lambs and Clemon Montgomery of Big Spring will judge the pigs.

During the afternoon, the traditional auction will be staged with 17 pigs and 31 lambs to be offered. Jay Poynor of Odessa is to be auctioneer.

Werst said free barbecue luncheon will be served at noon. Menu includes barbecued beef and mutton, beans, potato salad and other accessories.

2 Cleanup Ideas Offered On State Convention System

AUSTIN, Feb. 1 (AP)—Two proposals for cleaning up Texas' political convention system were offered the State Democratic Executive Committee in an unusually calm session today.

Gov. Price Daniel suggested that a study be made of a plan to eliminate precinct conventions in order to bring about "majority control and honest procedures" in party affairs.

Mrs. R. D. Randolph of Houston, Democratic national committeewoman and chairman of the liberal DOT (Democrats of Texas) organization, said a party registration law plus the DOT's code of ethics would do the job.

Although there was evidence of considerable background tension, expected fireworks did not develop at the morning session of the SDEC. It voted unanimously to refer the DOT's proposed code of convention ethics to a subcommittee with instructions to report back in 30 days.

DOT leaders said this was acceptable to them. They had feared the code might be rejected at once without their having a chance to give it further statewide publicity.

Fagan Dickson of Austin, committee member who has long been identified with liberals, said the code involved many legal points that needed careful study. His suggestion for a 30-day delay was adopted without objection after leaders of both factions talked to Chairman Jim Lindsey.

Mrs. Randolph and Gov. Daniel politely exchanged differences of opinion on party affairs in speeches before the committee. Mrs. Randolph — backed by a big spectator delegation of DOT's — won a standing ovation from everyone when she was introduced to the committee.

Daniel said the DOT was a minority faction, like the Republicans, "trying to defeat the official Democratic party in Texas." He said the use of the name "Democrats of Texas" by what he called the splinter group was "misleading and confusing."

Daniel pledged he would help work for majority victories at precinct and county conventions this year. He said everything possible should be done to see that party conventions are conducted "properly, orderly and fairly."

Mrs. Randolph said the present election code is not enough to guarantee fair play at conventions.

"The legal niceties of the election statutes are silent on some sore issues and ambiguous in others to the point of confusion," she asserted. All Democrats want fair play and an honest count in conventions, she added.

The DOT, under Mrs. Randolph, and the SDEC, under Daniel and Lindsey, are in a struggle for control of the precinct conventions and ultimately of the party machinery in Texas. It is a continuation of many years of conflict between liberal and conservative factions of the party.

Daniel called the precinct convention plan "outmoded" in his surprise recommendation that a study be made to eliminate it in favor of direct election of county convention delegates.

His speech touched off murmurs of surprise and considerable applause. Most of the surprise seemed to come from a section of the committee room where DOT visitors gathered.

Daniel's suggestion would require new laws which could not be effective until 1960. Either a precinct delegate might be elected, or the precinct chairman—who is also elected—might be authorized to cast the precinct vote's in the county convention.

The governor said that to preserve the right of petition, any qualified voter should be permitted to present resolutions to county conventions.

D.O.T. CHIEF WON'T QUIT

AUSTIN, Feb. 1 (AP)—Democratic National Committeeman Byron Skelton today demanded that Democrats of Texas (DOT) dissolve and the DOT's chairman, Mrs. R. D. Frankie Randolph retorted, "Indeed not!"

The exchange blew all hopes of party harmony out of the window at a meeting of the State Democratic Executive Committee which had been calm, almost peaceful, during the morning session.

The committee voted at the morning session to refer a code of ethics proposed by the DOT to its resolutions committee with instructions to report back within 30 days. This was an apparanent compromise between the liberal (DOT) faction and the conservative majority of the committee.

But in the afternoon session, no mention was made of the code in a report of the resolutions subcommittee. It rec-

Quimby's Duties Start Monday

Bill Quimby, new Chamber of Commerce manager, will be on the job for the first time Monday.

Quimby is coming here from Colorado City, where he has been Chamber manager for the past two years. He received a watch from the Colorado City organization Friday evening in appreciation for his services there. He succeeds Wayne Smith, who resigned in December, in the local office.

Chamber of Commerce directors will get acquainted with the new manager at their first February board meeting Monday. The directors' session is scheduled for noon in the Chamber offices, Permian Building.

Principal item on the agenda is discussion of a possible survey of natural resources in this area. Dr. J. E. Hogan, new president of the Chamber, will preside.

Garcia Freed On Instructed Verdict

ODESSA, Tex., Feb. 1 (AP)—Dist. Judge Sterling Williams today returned an instructed verdict of not guilty in the misappropriation trial of Amando Garcia, Jr.

Garcia, former clerk of Duval County, was accused of misappropriating $56.80 in county funds. Eight similar indictments are still pending against him.

Judge Williams said that for the state to prove its case it would have had to present evidence that a competent audit had been made of county funds. Such evidence was not presented, he ruled.

"No one is more anxious than I am to clear up the Duval County situation," Judge Williams said, "but for me to pass this case to the jury would be a cowardly act.

He said this was the first time that he had ever given an instructed case.

Garcia, who had sat quietly at the defense table throughout the two hours of arguments that preceded the judge's ruling, showed no sign of his feelings.

Defense Atty. Percy Foreman of Houston had rested his case without calling any witnesses. In cross-examination of state witnesses he had hinted at the defense's contention that the $56.80 was used to buy revenue tax stamps.

HCJC Enrollment Is Ahead Of Fall Term

Howard County Junior College, running ahead of the autumn semester pace with 507 registrations through Saturday, is anticipating a substantial increase this week.

Dr. W. A. Hunt, president, said that there were approximately 30 registrations on file but which had not yet cleared the business office. HCJC does not count them until they are processed by the business office.

Indications are that a number of transfers from senior colleges will be enrolling this week. Several had returned home and others had told officials that if they could not get the schedules they needed at senior colleges they would be back.

Registration continues all this week, both day and in the evenings, said Dr. Hunt. The only exception will be Friday evening. Registration is due to cease at noon Saturday.

Although it was indicated that the college had received well over a score of transfers already, one reason for an expected increase in this number is that most senior colleges did not register for the second semester until this weekend.

Dr. Hunt estimated that of the 507 registered so far, upwards of 275 were daytime students, the remainder being in the evening classes. All courses so far signed are for college credit.

The adult education program will start after the regular registration is out of the way. It is interesting to note, however, that during all of 1957, some 500 adults took non-credit courses at the college.

Forgery Suspect Released On Bond

Jeppy Williams, under indictment for forgery, was released from jail on $2,500 bond Saturday morning.

Her husband, Ernest Williams, and James Alfred McCrary and his wife, Patsy Pauline, indicted in the same series of check activities involving the Williams woman, were still in jail. Sheriff Miller Harris said that Lubbock attorneys had told him bond would be posted for Mrs. McCrary soon.

The two couples were arrested several weeks ago when they sought to cash a number of forged payroll checks at Big Spring stores. A check writer, an old typewriter and a book of blank checks which had been purchased earlier the same day from a local bank were seized by the arresting officers.

Easier Than Algebra

These students of Anna Smith's physical education class at high school find more fun in these tumbling acts than working algebra problems. The PE department is considered an important phase of the curriculum, however.

THE THREE R'S—TODAY'S VERSION

Physical Education Program 'Inadequate'

By DON HENRY

Big Spring is on the inadequate list in physical education.

Big Spring doesn't have the corner on this market, however, since the state generally is behind on its physical education programs, school administrators claim.

But the PE program is probably the weakest link in the Big Spring system, according to school officials and to tests given students here.

Throughout the state, lack of interest by citizens and shortage of money seem to be the factors which force interscholastic competition to the front and leave the great majority of students without adequate health and physical training.

The situation—generally—could be listed as good in senior high, fair in junior high, and poor in elementary school.

Because of the pressure from schools—Big Spring included—have been forced to concentrate their efforts on outstanding athletes, thus leaving the large numbers of students without instruction.

PLAY AT RECESS

There are no gymnasiums in Big Spring at elementary schools, and there is no supervised physical programs for these students. Teachers are in attendance at play periods — recess — for elementary students, however.

Athletic competition is provided in football, basketball, softball, and track for elementary students, but it is on a voluntary basis and conducted after regular school hours. This reaches only a few boys and no girls.

Lack of funds is also back of the inadequacy. Teachers with playground training are available, but the schools cannot afford to hire them. It would take more than one per school to fully develop a supervised program in elementary schools.

The fact that elementary students do not receive adequate physical training is shown by tests given here and criteria from accrediting organizations. A test given by school students here in the fall of 1956 revealed that 52 per cent of elementary boys were physically deficient, and 58 per cent of the girls were deficient. The test consisted of exercises.

Throughout the entire school system here, the average ran 51 per cent of the girls deficient and 47 per cent of the boys. This is better than the national average of 49 per cent deficient, but poor in comparison with the eight per cent deficient in three European countries.

HEALTH TRAINING

In health education, the elementary schools give classroom training beginning with 5th grade. Prior to that, however, teachers bring personal health into daily work, and quite often, the students' reading brings in health topics.

The classroom work includes taking care of teeth, ears, sitting, standing, and walking habits, and other personal problems. In addition, teachers have a chance during lunch periods to observe the students' manners and habits and instruction is thereby given.

Big Spring's physical education program improves in junior high with instructors assigned to the program. The drawback here is large classes and the fact that boys and girls have to use the gym at the same periods. This gym situation will be helped next year when a second junior high is put in use, but classes will probably continue to be overloaded.

In high school, all students who take marching band, Distributive Education, Diversified Occupations, or who have requests from their doctor for physical reasons, are excused from physical education.

Of the year's work, all but six weeks for boys and 10-12 weeks for girls is devoted to organized physical activities. This includes games and organized sports. Intramural tournaments are held among the various classes.

CLASSROOM STUDIES

In classroom work, the boys take first aid and learn background and rules of sports and games. The girls, since they have more classroom time, have lectures by beauty operators, see health talks by doctors, in addition to receiving first aid.

One instructor is assigned full-time to the girls and one for the boys' PE work. In addition, the coaching staff helps handle the boys. There are eight coaches, in addition to Johnnie Johnson, the boys' PE instructor and basketball coach.

The school's junior and senior nurse also aids the program with tests. The schools have three nurses, but two are assigned to the elementary grades. The three work with approximately 2,000 students each.

Their work includes giving eye, ear, teeth, and other inspections, and physical hygiene.

Schools throughout the state are looking for methods of improving their PE programs. Roy Worley, high school principal, is on a state committee studying the matter.

But until funds are made available to build gyms at elementary schools and to hire competent playground instructors, and until citizens turn their attentions from the few to the many, the situation will not be resolved.

January Rain Measures 1.76

There were eight days in January when measureable precipitation was reported. On three occasions snow fell during the month.

According to the U. S. Experiment Station, the month produced 1.76 inch rain. Farmers and landowners explained that the rains during the month, while none was heavy, were ideal for conditioning the soil for the planting season. Heavy rains in the fall had provided deeper moisture; the January rains have kept the surface in good condition.

Heaviest rains of the month fell on Jan. 5, when .74 inch was gauged. Other rains and the dates on which they were reported: Jan. 4, .18 inch; Jan. 6, .06 inch; Jan. 13, .15 inch; Jan. 19, .15 inch; Jan. 20, .11 inch; Jan. 23, .29 inch and Jan. 24, .08 inch.

The month is well ahead of the normal rainfall for January in this county. For the first 50 years of the century, the average rain in January was only .52 inch. For the past eight years, the average has been only a little better than .42 inch.

Judge Revokes Suspended Term

Julio Florez, convicted here in January 1957 of auto theft and given a three-year suspended sentence, was ordered to the state penitentiary to serve five years by Judge Charlie Sullivan in 118th District Court Friday afternoon.

Gil Jones, district attorney, asked the court to revoke the three-year suspended sentence granted to Florez after the latter had been convicted recently in Medina County and given a two-year prison term for theft of a motor car.

He is being held in the Howard County jail.

Guests At Republican Breakfast

President Eisenhower chats with Republican National Chairman Meade Alcorn while Mrs. Webster B. Todd, committee vice chairman, listens as the Chief Executive arrives for a breakfast meeting of the GOP group in Washington. The President gave another of his "chins up" speeches before the committee at a closed meeting following the breakfast.

Bipartisan Praise For Moon Launching

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP)—Democrats and Republicans joined today in praising the Army for launching this country's first successful satellite, the Explorer.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas said the successful launching "is a tribute to loyalty, determination and persistence against great odds."

"Now that we have started let us press on with all the force, imagination and boldness of which America is capable with the space age," he said.

"This is most satisfying and encouraging," said Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California. "It certainly is an answer to those who were selling America short in this field."

Sen. Symington (D-Mo), a former secretary of the Air Force and a frequent critic of recent defense policies, joined Knowland in praise for the Army.

"I think this is a magnificent accomplishment," Symington said in a separate interview. "I join all American citizens in being proud of our Army."

"The reaction among our allies and the free world can be only good now," he added.

Sen. Jackson (D-Wash), another critic of administration defense plans and policies, said "the Explorer will go a long way to restoring our prestige in the world."

"This is only the beginning, however, of a tremendous effort that we must make to explore outer space," said Jackson, a member of both the Senate Armed Services and Senate-House Atomic Energy Committees.

"This is no time to get smug and complacent," he added.

Sen. Payne (R-Maine) said the first U. S. scientific satellite "will go far toward restoring American prestige in the eyes of the world."

"It is obvious that the next step is planning for control of activities of all nations in outer space to prevent either duplication or clash of efforts in this realm," Payne added.

Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, here for a meeting of the Democratic Advisory Council said:

"I hope that this first step into outer space will mean that the administration will recognize and support the need to pursue exploration in that field so vital to our security and future."

Free World Happy, Russia Poker-Faced

LONDON, Feb. (AP)—Western Europe greeted with pleasure and a sigh of relief today the successful launching of America's first artificial earth satellite. Some hoped it meant talks between East and West would de brought nearer.

The Soviet people were told of the launching by Moscow Radio. The report was brief, factual, and without comment. Two Soviet officials congratulated the United States on its achievement. One was a spokesman for the State Committee on Cultural Relations with Foreign Countries. A dispatch relaying his congratulations was held up by the Moscow censors for three hours. The other was Vitaly Bronsten, a member of the staff at the Moscow Planetarium and a member of the Soviet International Geophysical Year Committee.

"We want to express our satisfaction that the United States has also been successful in this field," Bronsten said. "Observations from this satellite will be of great value in our studies of the density of the outer atmosphere as well as studies of our planet."

A Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman reminded Western correspondents in Moscow that Nikita Khrushchev said last November Russia welcomed friendly competition in the field of earth satellites rather than armaments.

Friends of America throughout Western Europe and in Asia felt relief that they would not have to hear any more pointed jokes about previous repeated failures of the United States to get a satellite into space.

Generally, however, the American achievement had an anticlimactic air about it. Most people in Europe had expected the satellite launching sooner or later. Also, Sputnik I and II, launched in October and November, had taken the edge off.

The London afternoon papers did not even make it their major news story. It took second place to a bannered story about the finding of a missing girl's body in a woodland. Inside pages were filled with details about the American Explorer, however.

On the Continent most Western European papers gave the satellite story banner headlines.

Britain's Foreign Office expressed "delight at this splendid achievement."

An Italian Foreign Office spokesman expressed conviction the free world "holds and is developing its supremacy in the scientific race with the Soviet Union" and spoke of the "spirit of peace" centered about the American satellite development.

West Germany's Acting Chancellor Ludwig Erhard saw the satellite as a "further step in the direction of a peaceful use of rocket technique."

Across the world, Australia hailed the U.S. achievement with giant newspaper bannerlines. All Sydney papers devoted the whole front page and much inside space to it.

In Taipei, Formosa, a Nationalist Chinese official declared: "It will give joy to everyone outside the Iron Curtain." Many were convinced it would restore American prestige in the Far East.

In Tokyo, Yomiuri Shimbun, Japan's third largest paper, said the launching "illustrates the advanced state of U.S. science and its will and ability eventually to catch up with and perhaps surpass Russian science . . . ."

In Seoul, Lt. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau, the U.S. Army's new research and development chief, said the success of the American satellite "in no way justifies any complacency on our part.

"The U.S. Army has never let the country down. . . . All we had to have was an opportunity to carry the ball," said Trudeau, who takes over April 1 from retiring Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin as the head of the Army's missiles program. "I am naturally pleased."

Permit Cancelled

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP) — A permit issued last February to San Angelo Television Co. for a proposed Channel 3 station at San Angelo was cancelled yesterday by the Communications Commission. The agency said the firm had failed to construct the station in the allowed time.

Survey Shows U.S. Religious Division

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP)—Two out of three adult Americans class themselves as Protestant and one in four as Roman Catholic, the Census Bureau reported today.

Although a question on religion will not be included in the 1960 census, the bureau said the question was asked in a sample survey last March, in which answers were voluntary.

The tabulation indicates that 96 per cent of Americans of age 14 and older had a religion, 3 per cent had none, and 1 per cent gave no report.

Some 79 million persons regard themselves as Protestant, 30,700,000 as Roman Catholic, 3,900,000 as Jewish, 1,500,000 as having some other religion, and 3,200,000 as having no religion, the report revealed.

Among the Protestants, 23,500,000 consider themselves Baptists, 16,700,000 Methodists, 8,400,000 Lutherans, and 6,700,000 Presbyterians.

The other 23,700,000 Protestants of 14 and over "were distributed among many smaller denominations," the bureau said, and were not shown separately in the report.

The survey was the first made by the bureau providing religious data on a nationwide basis. In making it census tabulator interviewed persons in every part of the country.

The voluntary survey of persons 14 years old and over showed about 64 per cent of the white population and 88 per cent of the nonwhite population consider themselves Protestants.

About 83 per cent of the entire population in the South was reported as Protestant, compared with about 42 per cent in the Northeast and 69 per cent in the north central and Western regions.

In the Northeast, Roman Catholics comprised 45 per cent of the population and outnumbered Protestants, 14,100,000 to 13,200,000 in those states — New England plus New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

In the South, Catholics represented 11.6 per cent of the population; in the north central states, 24.7 per cent; and in the West, 22.3 per cent.

For purposes of the survey, the census considered the Southern region to embrace all states from Delaware south and extending west as far as Oklahoma and Texas. The West included the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast states; the north central area took in all states north of the Ohio River and as far west as the Rocky Mountains.

Among the married couples with one spouse a Roman Catholic, the other partner was Protestant or Jewish in 22 per cent of the cases. For couples with one spouse a Protestant, 9 per cent of the husbands or wives were reported Catholic or Jewish. For the couples with one partner Jewish, 7 per cent of the husbands or wives were Protestant or Roman Catholic.

The question on religion was not asked of persons under 14. But the bureau said it was possible to classify nearly all young children according to the religion reported for the head of the family or his wife.

Firemen Build New Garbage Rack As Off-Duty Sideline

Three Big Spring firemen have devised a new kind of garbage can rack and what they hope will be a profitable sideline for their off-duty hours.

The three are now turning out the racks in the garage of Fire Chief H. V. Crocker, leader of the group and who originated the idea.

So far, they have produced 105 can racks and have marketed 43. If business picks up, as they expect, they plan to lease a building large enough to shelter a complete production and assembly line.

The trio includes Crocker, Pete Anderson and R. T. (Pappy) Hale. Anderson and Hale are on duty on alternate shifts at the North Side Fire Station, so one is available every day to carry on the garbage rack business. Crocker helps out at night.

The racks are of fairly simple construction, each consisting of three two-by-four legs supporting the tread and sidewalls of an old automobile tire which forms a cushion around the garbage can. Crosspieces near the bottom of the rack support the can and add rigidity to the stand.

One of the legs stands higher than the garbage can, and to it is attached a chain for anchoring the can's lid.

The firemen install the racks by setting the legs in concrete. Crocker thinks each installation will last a good many years unless it is knocked down or crushed by a vehicle.

The stands are durably constructed, with all parts bolted together. Steel extensions are fastened to the legs for the concrete anchorage, so there's little opportunity for the lower portions to rot away.

The builders have devised some ingenious jigs to speed the construction work. Legs are cut several at a time by means of a power saw, and the old tires, picked up at various places around town, are trimmed to fit the outside of a garbage can by means of an electric powered, vibrator knife.

Painting is accomplished on an assembly line basis, with spray equipment.

The firemen are turning out three sizes of the racks—for 20, 26 and 30-gallon cans.

They have applied for a patent on their idea, and issuance is now listed as "pending" by the U. S. Patent Office.

The racks can be installed singly, or two can be joined together for a two-can setup. The charge is $7.50 for a single installation, $15 for a two-unit facility. Prices cover the mounting of the racks in concrete bases.

Crocker said orders are being taken at his home—not at the fire station, since the project is strictly an off-duty business for the three firemen.

Miller Heads Industrial Foundation

Marvin M. Miller, senior vice president of Cosden Petroleum Corp., was named president of the Big Spring Industrial Foundation at a meeting of directors Friday afternoon.

Miller, who succeeds Leroy Tidwell, has held the vice presidency, and has been active in the work of the Foundation since its inception.

Larson Lloyd was elected vice president, Clyde Hollingsworth secretary, and J. H. Greene treasurer.

The board, in its annual business meeting, voted to make payment of approximately $5,600 on notes due for the 193-acre tract of land east of the city acquired by the Foundation last year. This will leave one other payment due in 1960. A financial statement showed receipts during the year of $37,861.39, and disbursements of $29,609.02, leaving a balance of $7,762.37.

The Foundation, in order to purchase the site which will be made available for industry, raised $39,747 in membership pledges. The statement showed outstanding unpaid pledges amount to $4,742.51, of which amount $1,035 is past due.

Directors also voted to enter into a farm rental, on third and fourth basis, with Woodrow Robinson, who farmed the tract last year. Other discussion was had on possible cleaining and grading of the property, and for erection of a special sign on the tract adjacent to Highway 80.

Prior to the board meeting, stockholders in the Foundation met and re-elected five directors whose terms expired. These are Miller, Green, Vance Lebkowsky, Roy Reeder and Robert Currie. Holdover directors are Tidwell, R. B. G. Cowper, Truman Jones, Elmer Tarbox, Clyde McMahon, Larson Lloyd, P. W. Malone, Raymond River, R. L. Beale and R. T. Piner.

Announcement was made by J. N. Young Jr., manager of KBST radio, that Bill Gray is joining the KBST staff Monday as an advertising salesman.

A graduate of Gainesville High School, he attended junior college there, and also attended North Texas State at Denton. Since coming here from Dallas, he had been associated with River Funeral Home.

Red Wing-Flapping Machine Is Tested

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet machine that flies by flapping its wings like the birds and bees has undergone its first laboratory flying tests, the Communist youth paper Komsomol Pravda, reported today.

Numerous Guilty Pleas Anticipated

Gil Jones, district attorney, said that it was evident a considerable number of the 49 persons indicted by the grand jury here last week will wish to plead guilty to the indictments against them.

He said that in view of the number expected to enter such pleas it will probably be necessary to have at least two or perhaps three hearings before Judge Charlie Sullivan in 118th District Court.

He planned to set up around nine defendants at each session. The first of these may be on Wednesday of this week, he thinks, with another round on Thursday.

Under Texas law when a defendant enters a plea of guilty to the indictment against him, he must be given a hearing and witnesses presented to prove the allegation. He usually takes the stand himself to recite to the court any mitigating circumstances he wishes to lay before the judge.

Under this procedure, it usually takes at least 30 minutes to dispose of even the simplest form of indictment. In some, where the crime is graver and where complications are involved, an hour may be required to clear away all formalities and complete the plea.

The county jail is teeming with persons held for indictments returned by the grand jury. Relatively few of the indicted defendants have posted bond since the grand jury reported last Wednesday.

A considerable number of those billed will not plead guilty, Jones said he understood, and many of their cases will probably be set for trial at the criminal docket in 118th District Court on Feb. 17.

Farm Jobs Available

Need a job on a farm?

If so the Texas Employment Commission would like to get in touch with you.

Leon M. Kinney, director of the office here, said there is fair to brisk demand for farm workers now in this county and in adjacent counties.

Farmers, getting ready for the 1958 season, are in need of helpers and have appealed to the TEC to recruit workers for them.

Kinney said there are about 500 braceros still in the four counties in this district. He explained that if any native worker is in need of a job and available for one of the posts that a Mexican National now fills, the latter can be replaced by the resident.

There is a reluctance, he said, on the part of persons in need of work to sign up for the farm jobs.

Puts On Collar, Wife Reconciled

CHICAGO (AP)—Eugene R. Taylor's promises dissolved his marital troubles in Circuit Court.

Appearing at his wife's hearing on a request for separate maintenance, Taylor 38, said he would:

Turn his pay check over to Mrs. Taylor and allow her full rein on the family's financial affairs; go out with the "boys" only one night a week; permit his wife to go out with the "girls" one night a week; take his wife out one night a week; stop insisting she get a job and — stop talking about the state of his marital affairs with friends and in-laws.

Ralph White Is Candidate For Commissioner

Ralph White of Coahoma became a candidate Saturday for the office of county commissioner from Precinct No. 2.

He announced his candidacy subject to action of the Democratic primary.

White has been a resident of Howard County for the major portion of his life—35 years to be more specific. All but two years of that time have been spent in Precinct No. 2 and virtually all the time at Coahoma.

He has been active in community affairs and is now president of the Coahoma Lions Club. Before it was formed he took a leading role in the Coahoma service club. He was for 15 years a member of the Coahoma school board and served half of that time as its president.

White is in his fourth year as president of the Howard County Farm Bureau and has been a worker in the movement since it got under way in the county. He has been an active 4-H club leader; he is a director of the Plains Cotton Growers Association and was one of the West Texas leaders in the fight to prevent undue cuts of the area's cotton allotments. He is on the Howard County Crippled Children's board and on the state hospital advisory council, and on many other boards. He also is on the board and is chairman of the Coahoma Baptist Church's finance committee.

"If the people of Precinct No. 2 honor me with the office of county commissioner," he said, "I will stand for as reasonable taxes as possible, keeping in mind the general high cost of living. At the same time, I believe that the commissioners court should see that Howard County keeps pace with the progress of the county and not be put in the position of holding back progress.

"In offering my services, I believe that experiences on various boards in the past will be of benefit to me in not only dealing with people but with the problems at hand. I have been interested in the progress of Howard County as a private citizen and would do my very best to contribute to it as a public servant, if you elect me. It will be impossible to see you all personally, but I do respectfully ask your consideration, or if you do not know me to ask anyone who does."

Only 20 Marriages Licensed In January

Cupid had poor hunting in Howard County in January.

His bowmanship was at low ebb, a check of the marriage licenses indicates.

Only 20 licenses to wed were written by the office of the Howard County clerk during the month —for one of the lowest records in many months.

A little flurry as the month came to an end which brought in four applications saved the record from even greater humiliation.

There were 24 licenses issued in January last year.

Wayne Burns Asks Office Of County Attorney

Wayne Burns, Big Spring attorney, has announced his candidacy in the coming Democratic primary for nomination to the post of Howard County attorney.

Burns is a native of the Big Spring area, having been reared northwest of the city. After graduation from high school in 1946, he attended Texas Tech for four years where he received a B.A. degree in government. He next enrolled in the University of Texas School of Law. Upon his return to the United States, he entered into the practice of law and he now has his individual practice in Big Spring. He has gained extensive experience in the trial courts as well as in other phases of the legal profession.

Burns is an active member of "This is an important office that necessitates prompt, efficient and impartial action in the performance of the county attorney's duty to the public," he said. "I am prepared to give just that—and to the utmost of my ability. I pledge myself to conduct the office in a manner which shall mirror the public will and warrant the public's confidence."

During December, 29 permits were granted for building valued at $135,925. In November, building valuations amounted to $114,415.

In January of 1957, the total was $123,975.

Little League Park Drive Off To A Successful Start

Workers for the Big Spring Little League Saturday announced encouraging response in first efforts toward canvassing funds for construction of two new Little League baseball fields in the city.

Little League enthusiasts have started a systematic appeal of business firms and individuals, through which they hope to obtain the bulk of funds needed, estimated to be $10,000. The drive will continue on a regular basis.

"Initial contacts were very encouraging," said John Ed Brown, Little League president," and with the continued support of business establishments and individuals, we will be able to attain our goal. It goes without saying that our sincere thanks go out to the many who have already made donations. We hope every person in Howard County can have an opportunity to assist in providing these facilities for our youngsters."

Persons who have not been contacted and who wish to subscribe, may send checks made to the Big Spring Little League, addressed either to 620 Caylor Drive, or in care of The Herald.

The park fund received $100 from Local 826 of the IUOE, $50 from Bell's Pharmacy, $25 from the Wagon Wheel Restaurant. Donations of $10 each came from Texas Coca-Cola Bottling Co., Lewis 5 & 10, John Davis Feed Store, D-K-T Company, Charley's Package Store, Shroyer Motor Co., Western Ice Co., Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home. Gifts of $5 were acknowledged from Hi Fidelity House, Marvin Wood Pontiac, Green's Grocery, West Texas Roofing Co., Ray's Grocery, Walker Bros. Implement, Zale's Jewelry. Gifts of $2 came from Ollie McDaniel Grocery, General Welding Supply, Tally Electric Co., Sherrod Farm Store.

2,364 Qualify To Vote In Mitchell

COLORADO CITY, Feb. 1—Tom Glover, Mitchell County tax collector, reported 2,364 poll taxes and exemptions issued at the close of business Friday night. This compares with 1,704 in 1957 and 3,039 during the last presidential election year (1956).

The fact that only five county-wide offices are up for the voter's consideration may be a reason for seeming lack of interest in voting this year. Offices to be on the ballot are county school superintendent, county judge, county clerk, county treasurer and district clerk. In addition, the justice of the peace, Precinct 1, and county commissioners from Precincts 2 and 4 must run this year.

A 15 per cent hike in elective office salaries, effective this year, may stimulate interest in the offices, however. Under the new salary schedule, the offices of tax collector pays $5,037 annually; the offices of county judge, county clerk, county attorney and sheriff pay $4,830; the county treasurer, $3,565; district clerk $2,875; constables of Precincts 1, 2 and 5, $690; justice of the peace Precinct 1, $2,515, of Precinct 5, $1,035; and county commissioners Precincts 1, 2, 3 and 4, $4,324. The salary of the county auditor (not an elective office) was set at $5,037.

Ideal Weather

By Associated Press

Texans enjoyed ideal weather for weekend outings Saturday, and forecasters say it would stay that way at least through Sunday.

The Weather Bureau said it would get still cooler early Sunday and some cloudiness would develop over West and North Central Texas. Forecasts promised overnight readings down to 20 in parts of West Texas.

Business Operator Assessed Fine For Garbage Violation

For the fourth time since last September, a fine was assessed last week in corporation court for failure to keep garbage cans properly covered.

A business man drew a $25 fine in the city court for violation of the regulations governing disposal of garbage. The regulation requires a sanitary garbage can be used by citizens and businesses alike and that the cans be covered at all times.

The city sanitarian, Lige Fox, said he and Tom Hardie, the other city sanitarian, were sending out about 100 notices per week to persons not caring for their garbage properly. Only four cases have been filed, however, in corporation court.

Fox urged citizens to clear up the discrepancies before more cases are turned over to the court and before the fly season arrives.

Blame This One On The Boxer

Little Linta Sue Seabolt got a knot on her head Saturday and she strongly suspects a boxer—a boxer dog, that is.

With her mother, Mrs. W. H. Seabolt, 3101 Delano, Midland, she was riding at 11th Place and State. When the car slowed for the stop signal, their big boxer dog unwittingly knocked Linda Sue into the dashboard, inflicting cuts and bruises. She was rushed to the Malone & Hogan Clinic Hospital in a River ambulance and was given emergency treatment for minor hurts, police said.

Billy Evans Wins First In Amarillo Piano Audition

BILLY EVANS

Billy Evans, young pianist from Big Spring, placed first in regional competition Saturday and won the right to be guest soloist of the Amarillo Symphony.

Billy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Evans, 2410 Johnson, won first place in the auditions at Amarillo Saturday morning. He was accompanied there by Jack Hendrix, HCJC music department head and his teacher.

Today Billy will be at Price College in Amarillo trying for another regional award which carries with it a $150 cash prize.

Saturday he played the first movement of Beethoven's Concerto No. 3 in C Minor.

His repertoire for today will be the same as for his concert here a week ago when he won warm praise for an outstanding performance. The only change will be in the substitution of Prokofieff's march from "Love of Three Oranges" for Gershwin's Prelude No. 3.

Last year in the Amarillo competition, his first time to try, Billy won second place in the symphony auditions.

Our poll tax total dropped off. While it was above last year by seven per cent, it was far below what it should have been. With 7,039 polls (and 1,393 exemptions) we were 14 per cent below the record 1956 pace. Considering that this was an "on" year, the percentages should have been reversed and we ought to have come up with at least 7,800 polls instead of 7,000. But for some reason too many people just didn't care. Shame on them!

Parking Lot May Be Finished Soon

The new city downtown parking lot may be completed within the coming week.

City Manager H. W. Whitney said that with good weather W. D. Caldwell would be able to seal-coat the stabilized parking lot Monday. And that would leave only marking, installation of parking poles, and erection of restraining barriers near the buildings before it will be opened.

The lot is situated between Empire Southern Gas Co. and Ritz Theatre buildings. Three-hours-for-a-nickel meters will be installed on the lot.

Owner Recognizes Stolen Hub Caps

Dan Meek told police officers he recognized hub caps stolen from his car on another car Friday night, but by the time police officers arrived, the car was gone. The hub caps were taken from Meek's car last Monday.

Forms Available For Wage, Tax Reports

Plenty of blank forms are available for employers who haven't supplied their employes with the "W-2" reports on 1957 wages and tax withholdings, Ben Hawkins of the local office of the Internal Revenue Service said Saturday.

Hawkins said that the number of complaints he has received indicates many employers haven't yet issued the W-2 forms to their employes. The deadline for issuing the forms was Jan. 21.

Hawkins said a big supply of the blanks is available on the IRS materials table in the Permian Building's third floor corridor.

Egypt Syria Merge; Plan Calls For Big 'Arab State'

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 1 (AP) — Egypt and Syria merged today, hoping their action will lead to a vast Arab union embracing the Middle East and North Africa.

President Nasser of Egypt and President Shukri Kuwatly of Syria signed the proclamation of union that invited every Arab state to join or to federate.

The new state of 28 million persons, to be known as the United Arab Republic, may be functioning by fall, with Cairo as the capital and Nasser the likely president. Many steps must be taken before union is a fact.

Nasser and Kuwatly appeared on the balcony of the Presidential Palace after the signing, and 5,000 Egyptians below burst into cheers. There were cries of "Nasser, destroyer of imperialism."

"We have formed a strong country free from the influence of foreigners who used to boast of being . . . strong and great powers," Nasser declared in a brief speech.

Kuwatly called it "a great day in the history of Arabs and a turning point in world events."

Premier Sabri Assali of Syria, who made the official announcement, declared union was "the first step on the path to achieve entire Arab unity."

Kuwatly and Nasser led a parade through Cairo's streets, gaily decorated and lined and cheering thousands. They rode in an open car under triumphal arches and past the flags of both nations.

The historic proclamation, which for the first time in nearly 800 years unites two Arab states, called for the adoption of a presidential democratic system of government for the Arab Republic.

It stipulated that "executive authority shall be vested in a head of state assisted by ministers appointed by him and responsible to him."

It set up one legislative house, "one flag, one army and one people who shall remain joined in unity where all will share equal rights and duties."

Despite the optimism, the problems of merger are many, and the suspicions and jealousies of other Arab states make a greater union or even federation doubtful. Egypt and Syria are separated by 150 miles of Israeli and Jordanian territory, and both these states are hostile.

Many of the problems of unification, however, were worked out in a swift series of conferences in recent weeks. The armies of the two already are united under an Egyptian commander, Gen. Abdel Hakim Amer.

After looking at cotton patches and writing about them several months, I decided to get clear out of the cotton country for a change. So yesterday the weekly trip was down in the sheep and cow country of Sterling and Glasscock counties.

There is very little farming around Sterling City, and what there is has been shrinking. Even some of the fields along the Concho River have been turned back to grass. That's an area of big units, and the little farmers and ranchers have just about disappeared.

• • •

Foster Sims Price, who owns ranches near Sterling City and Robert Lee, says ranges have come back only in spots.

"I've got grass back in the overflow land and along the rocky cliffs," he said, "but the higher flats and the tops of the hills are still bare."

Price said some of the flat-topped hills not only had lost all grass but the soil blew off to the rocks. He thinks it will be several years before these areas come back to their pre-drought condition.

Price said ranchers were running only half as many sheep as they used to, and cattle numbers were also down. The sheepmen are stocking up faster than the cattle owners, though, because of the high price and scarcity of cattle.

Price is doing some feeding, but is trying to hold it down. He said he always fed some, even when there was plenty of grass.

Every year about this time the Mexican eagles start coming into Sterling County from the Davis Mountains. This year they are on schedule, according to Jim Henshaw of Sterling City, who said that two or three had already been seen.

The ranchers have formed a protection association and pay into a common fund which is used to eradicate the eagles. An aerial gunner from San Angelo is hired, and when an eagle is spotted, a telephone call brings the hunter winging his way to the site. He takes after the eagle and brings him down with a shotgun.

The eagles stay till spring, then the ones that escape the hunter, fly back to their Davis Mountain stronghold.

Southeast of Forsan where the hills slope down to the tobosa flats, the people are almost as extinct as antelopes. Numerous old fields can be seen but hardly anyone lives there.

One of the few houses in that area is located on the Reed Ranch and is occupied by the J. R. McMartney family. He has worked for L. R. and Bill Reed for 20 years, and has lived here all that time.

"There used to be several families around here," he said, "but most of them had left before I moved to the place. They had a school house right north of us, but it was moved away several years ago."

Not far down the road, and right on the Sterling-Glasscock line was another community named Cohasset. The residents changed the name though, calling it Connehassett and perhaps other derivatives.

But whatever the name, it didn't last long. The tough sod land required too much water and crop failures were common. Some of the old rubble can still be seen, while the rectangular fields are still visible because of the scarcity of brush on them.

A meeting to clarify the rules of the new egg law will be held at the courthouse in Colorado City Tuesday, according to Bert Badger of Big Spring, who has spent several weeks working with the new rules.

Badger said there would not be a meeting in Big Spring, but all egg producers are urged to attend the meeting at Colorado City which will start about 8:30 a.m.

Several authorities will be on hand to explain the law and answer questions, then in the afternoon an egg-grading demonstration will be held.

The meeting is being conducted by the Texas Department of Agriculture and the Extension Service.

Melvin Smith, registered Hampshire breeder of Ackerly, came out quite well at the recent Abilene breeders show. He carried five head of hogs and won several prizes. He placed second and third in the open gilt class, fifth in another class and sixth in still another.

He had the second highest selling boar, receiving $150 for him and had the fourth highest-selling gilt which brought $185.

Smith started in the registered Hampshire business in 1953 and now has seven sows and a boar. He says one of his best market is selling pigs to 4-H and FFA club members. Many of his sales have been to boys in Dawson and Borden counties.

Smith says the trend is toward long, lean hogs, and is usually set by northern breeders. He bought a boar in Illinois last year and says this was the best investment he ever made.

"To do any good at this business," he said, "you've got to stay up with the trends. Once you get behind, no one want your animals and you might as well as well quit."

Smith raises much of his own grain then mixes it with a protein and mineral supplement. He has two large granaries of maize but will sell one of them. This will leave him 50,000 pounds of maize, which will be enough to carry the hogs until next fall.

The bitterweek is already growing on ranches near Garden City, according to County Agent Oliver Werst. He said there had been no losses reported, but several ranchers had been forced to pen sheep which had grazed the weeds.

Usually when a rancher finds a sheep weakened by too much bitterweed, he puts it in a pen and starts feeding it. Except for the bitterweed, Werst said there would be very little feeding in the county.

COUNTRY SCENES

Cowboy at windmill taking time out to roll a smoke with Prince Albert. . . Hundreds of acres on the Currie Ranch east of Garden City have been root-plowed, and there's enough dead brush to fill a big canyon . . . Three farmers discussing crops and the weather in front of a country store. Inside their wives were talking about some woman who is divorcing her husband . . .

Two small boys in Dawson County pitching a basketball through a barrel hoop nailed on a shed. . . A dozen or more houses built out near South Haven and on the Wasson land in the last year . . . The Concho River isn't flowing, but there's some deep holes of water. I wondered how many big catfish were lurking in the bottom, and wished I could take off a week and do nothing but loaf and fish.

Windmill with one section missing flopping lazily before a stiff breeze. . Deserted ranch house with everyone away except a lonesome dog that kept trying to get in the car with me. . . Sheep grazing on a hillside, rooting out winter weeds less than an inch high.

Stopping at a vacant farm house where the door was ajar and the floor littered with old nespapers and magazines. After searching the fubble for five or ten minutes, I finally gave up in disappointment. The family hadn't left a single comic book behind.

Other Cage Bros. employes brought him to Coahoma where he was trasferred to a River ambulance and brought to Big Spring. Extent of his injuries could not be determined, and details of the accident were not availabe.

On Monday morning, eight boys who are members of the Howard County FFA will leave for El Paso taking with them eight lambs, three barrows and a steer. Ed Seay, vocational agriculture instructor, will be in charge of the group.

The El Paso show lasts all week.

Seay said Saturday that Esco Hamlin, Teddy Ray Covington, Joe McCown, Ronnie Richardson, Tommy Buckner, Bobby Kizer, Larry Moore, Charles Engle and Jim Engle are the FAA delegates to the El Paso show.

Seay added that the same youths will go on to the San Antonio show which opens on Feb. 7 and show the same stock they have at the El Paso event.

Howard County will send three Hereford steers to the San Antonio show, it was reported. Jerry Iden, Del Roy Buchanan and Gerry Harkrider will show the steers.

The Bexar County show runs through Feb. 16.

The 4-H group left early Saturday morning for El Paso travelling as is its custom, in the big club van. At the show, the exhibitors will make their temporary home in the van.

100 Million Gallons Of Water Consumed

Big Springers consumed just over 100 million gallons of water last month, a drop of nine million from January of 1957.

The city records showed that 75,183,000 gallons were consumed by city users, and Cabot-Cosden interests took 24,990,000. This totaled 100,173,000 for the month.

During January of 1957, the city used 109,791,000 gallons.

Scottish Rite Unit Receives Charter

Charter for the Big Spring Scottish Rite Association has been granted by the Dallas consistory of the Scottish Rite.

First session of the new unit was held Friday noon at the Wagon Wheel and was marked by a most unusual occasion—the presentation of two 50-year awards.

On behalf of Lee Lockwood, Waco, sovereign grand inspector of Texas, and John McKee, Dallas, deputy sovereign grand inspector general in Texas, Cecil McDonald, association president, gave Bernard Fisher and Charles Eberley their 50-year caps. Both have been in the Dallas consistory for half a century and have been active in Blue Lodge and Shrine as well as the Scottish Rite of Free Masonry. Fisher's father was one of the founders of the Blue Lodge in Big Spring.

Officers other than McDonald are Grover Dean, first vice president; K. H. McGibbon, second vice president; Temp Currie, third vice president, secretary-treasurer; Joe Flock, outer guard; R. W. Currie, O. W. Hildebrand Jr., Shelby Read, E. C. Smith, Bernard Fisher and Charles Eberley, directors; Jordan Grooms, director and chaplain.

The directors of the association adopted the by-laws of the Dallas consistory, to which it is responsible. These rules obligate it to hold at least three meetings each year. One of these is Maundy Thursday, a solemn ceremony of the "extinguishing of the lights" and attending the "Feast of the Paschal Lamb," a time of reflection and meditation in the spring.

In the autumn, another obligatory meeting is the "Feast of the Tabernacle," commemorating the freeing of the Hebrew children from bondage, and more especially in Scottish Rite a time of rededication to the ideals and purposes of Free Masonry because so many of its precepts are based upon the first dedication of the temple of Solomon.

The final obligatory meeting is in November when the annual business session is held. Others may be called for social, fraternal and other purposes, and the association is planning now for a big picnic for members and wives early in the summer, said McDonald. There are other Scottish Rite associations in this area at San Angelo, Sweetwater, Colorado City, Abilene, Midland, Snyder and Lamesa.

Groundhog Sees Today If Spring's Here To Stay

Today is Groundhog Day.

At the time this is written, there is every reason to believe that when Mr. Groundhog emerged from his furlined lair in the crisp morning air, this morning he saw his shadow.

Saturday, with bright blue skies, brilliant sunshine and a summer-resort temperature, offered little prospect that Sunday would bring dank and cloudy weather.

Therefore, if the weather conditions which ruled Saturday are still operative on Sunday, it can be assumed that the prophetic woodchuck must have seen his shadow etched in black on the ground before him.

And if such is the case, provided you accept the hoar legend about groundhogs and Feb. 2, you can keep your overcoat, your galoshes, your windbreaker and your antifreeze readily available for six more weeks.

The old wives' tale has it that if Mr. G. sees that all-important shadow on Feb. 2, spring is at least 42 weary days away.

On the contrary, if a low pressure or a high pressure or some sort of pressure pushed in last night (which it can readily do overnight in these parts) and the brilliant blue sky of Saturday was replaced by the drab gray of fog or clud, then Mr. Groundhog did not see his shadow.

This being the case, the wily little beast knows that things are hunky-dory—that he can forego hustling back to his den for six weeks more of hibernation. He knows—don't ask why—that winter is gone and spring is just around the corner.

Look outside and make your own decision.

VICTIM SAYS HE'S THE ONE

Suspect Denies Liquor Store Robbery, Loot Not Located

A 37-year-old man, who claims Odessa as his residence, was in the Howard County jail and officers said he had been identified as the man who robbed the Carroll Liquor Store on West Highway 80 at 4:20 p.m. Saturday.

The robber took $172 in cash and a fifth of whisky, according to Mrs. Jeanette Carroll, who was alone in the store at the time.

The man was captured 20 minutes later in Martin County by Sheriff Dan Saunders, Deputy Sheriff "Peewee" Johnson and Highway Patrolman Kel Davis.

Sheriff Miller Harris said that Johnson located the man sooh after the police radio reported the robbery and trailed him until he was joined by other officers.

The man insisted that he was not the robber when questioned at the jail.

Deputies Tommy Cole and Fern Cox took custody of the suspect in Stanton. They brought him to the liquor store, they reported, and Mrs. Carroll was quoted as saying "that's the man."

She told officers she was alone in the liquor store when a slender man, dressed in khaki clothing and wearing a jacket, entered. He wanted to buy a fifth of whisky, she said. He then told her he had no money to pay for the whisky and, holding his hand in his jacket pocket, told her that "this is a stick-up" and for her to give him the money in the cash register. She did so.

The man left the place and got into a 1949 Pontiac parked at the curb.

A witness outside saw the man get into the car and jotted down a description of the car and its license plate. The sheriff and police officers were notified and radio alert sounded.

Cole and Cox said that the man had only a little more than $18 on his person when arrested. The officers found no gun. They did find a full fifth of whisky, the seal still unbroken.

This was the fifth holdup in Big Spring since Nov. 20. Four liquor stores have been hit and one filling station have fallen victim to the raids.

Three men are under indictment and in the county jail in connection with two of the liquor store holdups. The man arrested Saturday afternoon will be charged, officers said, with the Carroll job. No arrests have been made in connection with the Nov. 20 holdup of Uncle Tom's Liquor store—about a quarter of a mile from the scene of Saturday's incident—nor have there been any arrests for the Reed Filling Station robbery. This one occurred on Dec. 26.

Mrs. Carroll told Harris that the robber took $172 including 20 one-dollar bills and about $8 in small change. The remainder of the money was in $5, $10 and $20 bills, she said.

Cox and Cole said that they had searched the suspect's person and his car but found no additional money than the $18 on him. No weapon was found.

New Seamaster Tested

The Navy's new P6M Seamaster, her tail structure redesigned, is shown during recent taxi tests in Chesapeake Bay and during flight. Twenty-four of the big 600-mile-an-hour jet-propelled seaplanes, designed for mine laying operations and photo reconnaissance, are under construction at the Martin plant in Baltimore, Md. Two previous models crashed during flight tests.

Texans Not Stirred By Political Issues

By ROBERT E. FORD
The Associated Press

Poll tax payments show Texans not greatly excited about this year's politics — a frequent situation in non - presidential election years.

This lack of white-hot interest was demonstrated Saturday in a survey of numerous areas by member newspapers of The Associated Press.

The survey came after the Friday midnight deadline for poll tax payments.

The lack of great interest occurs in the face of coming party primaries and elections for every major state office in the state, except one senatorship held by Lyndon Johnson.

Also to be elected are the customary large slates of local officers.

The decline in poll tax payments over 1956 — last presidential election year — runs roughly 10 per cent for all the cities surveyed.

However, a comparison with 1954 — the last year for statewide races without a presidential election — showed some cities with higher poll tax totals and some with lower.

Possibly contributing to lack of strong interest is the fact no political fights have developed between possible candidates.

No major candidates have yet announced for two of the political plums —governor and senator, although Gov. Price Daniel is expected to try for re-election.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, elected early this year to the unexpired Senate term surrendered by Daniel, is reported to be eyeing the governor's race after being defeated for that office by Daniel by a narrow margin in 1956.

Accurate poll tax totals still were not available in most counties because outlying payment stations had not reported.

Following are some poll tax comparisons with 1956. This year's payment totals in most cases are not final and generally are estimates by the county tax collector. To arrive at total voting strength, about 25 per cent should be added for exemptions for those who are not, for one reason or another, required to pay poll taxes.

First figure is for this year, the second for 1956 and the third for 1954:

Brazos 7,897-8,882-7,064;.
Cooke 5,078-5,211.
Denton 7,349-9,837-7,855.
Ector 16,000-19,246-11,963.
Hale 5,956-7,998-5,588.
Harris 195,000-286,902-185,811.
Henderson 5,000-5,492-5,995.
Howard 7,039-8,807-7,301.
Kerr 3,100-4,028-3,457.
Lubbock 20,000-28,100-19,660.
Midland 13,300-14,412-9,526.
Navarro 4,801-7,162-6,294.
Nueces 30,302-47,352-37,107.
Potter 15,500-22,489-17,247.
Tarrant 100,000-113,993-72,112.
Tom Green 14,800-14,691-12,229.
Travis 34,600-43,732-34,450.
Victoria 9,321-11,076-8,158.
Wichita 17,134-24,866-18,913.

Here are some comparative figures for 1958 and 1956 in which some exemptions may appear:

Dallas 210,000 and 216,000.
Hidalgo 29,000 and 32,940.
Hockley 4,644 and 6,300.
Randall 6,500 and 8,000.

President 'Proud' Over U.S. Satellite

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 1 (AP)— President Eisenhower, elated and "quite proud," today messaged personal congratulations to all who helped slam the first U.S. satellite into orbit around the earth.

An Army Jupiter-C rocket blasted the satellite into space last night. But old soldier Eisenhower regards it as "an American achievement . . . . a scientific achievement" rather than the feat of any one branch of the armed services.

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, put it that way in response to questions at a news conference today. He spoke of the development at another point as a successful experiment "By the United States," and carefully avoided any reference to the Navy's so far unsuccessful Vanguard satellite program.

Eisenhower, getting in a weekend of relaxation at the Augusta National Golf Club, waited up until about 1 a.m. for word from Washington that the Army-launched baby "moon" was in orbit. Then he immediately put out the first official announcement.

Eisenhower's own reaction to the news: "That's wonderful."

The President, still convalescing from the minor stroke he suffered last Nov. 25, was up early despite retiring very late. He had breakfast in his cottage on the edge of the golf course and then dispatched his message of congratulations.

It went to Washington to Dr. Alan Waterman, director of the National Science Foundation, which has over-all supervision of the U.S. satellite program.

The President thanked Waterman, his colleagues and all other hands who had a part in ramming the satellite into space from a launching pad at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Hagerty was asked specifically whether Eisenhower, who was in the Army for 40 years, singled out that branch of the service for praise. He did not, the press secretary replied.

As the U.S. satellite streaked around the globe and bolstered American prestige damaged by Russia's two Sputniks, Eisenhower continued to receive reports on the scientific data being collected.

He also was notified by scientists in Washington that official word regarding the launching and orbiting had been dispatched to International Geophysical Year headquarters in Brussels.

County Due To Sign Pact For Tax Survey On Monday

Howard County Commissioners Court is expected to formally sign its contract with Pritchard & Abbott, evaluation engineers, at its meeting Monday morning.

When the commissioners have attached their signatures to the contract, all steps will be out of the way for the start of the county-city-school tax evaluation project.

The county is the last group of the three involved to ratify the contract. The city commissioners and the school board have already approved it.

Under the plan, all real property in the county, except oil, industrial and a few other categories, will be surveyed by engineers from the offices of Pritchard & Abbott. A report, setting valuation figures on all such property for tax purposes will be prepared. The oil and industrial installations are covered by a separate contract.

The county will pay some $30,000 of the over-all cost of the project. The city and the school district will foot the bill for remainder of the total fee of $70,000 for the job.

Volunteer Agencies Vital To Free Enterprise, C Of C Told

COLORADO CITY, Feb. 1— "Strength of the free enterprise system comes from the work of voluntary groups, such as the Chamber of Commerce, which set out to solve community problems which cannot always be solved by those most directly involved," Dr. Trent Root, vice president of Southern Methodist University, declared here Friday night.

Dr. Root was speaker at the annual banquet of the Colorado City Chamber of Commerce.

"A Chamber of Commerce," he said, "is a selfish organization, but its members are selfless, for they cannot expect to gain directly from the work they do."

Terming a community a "commonwealth of purpose and love," Dr. Root asserted that Americans should ask themselves if they are going to continue to inhabit the Earth before taking up the question of colonizing the Moon.

"We must think in terms of understanding, taking action for something, for only things that are for something have lasting value," he said. "If we are going to save mankind, we must do it by saving the individuals.

"The one irresistible force is a life consecrated to love rather than to hate, to giving rather than to getting."

Jeff E. Taylor, who is starting a new term as Chamber president, was awarded a plaque in recognition of his work as leader of the organization.

Also honored was Bill Quimby, who has been the manager of the local Chamber for the past two years. He was presented a watch for "the outstanding work" he has done in Colorado City.

Planning of the annual banquet was Quimby's last official act as manager of the agency. He becomes manager of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce Monday.

His successor, Ernest Larmer of Fredericksburg, was a guest at the banquet. He will take over duties here March 1.

Taylor, in reporting on activities of the past year, cited work on efforts to develop an airport, and operation of the Mitchell County United Fund, which had one of its most successful campaigns in history last fall.

Taylor presented a plaque to Charles Root, chairman of the industrial committee and the United Fund campaign, in recognition of his work.

Musical protion of the banquet program was presented by the Colorado High School chorus, directed by Curtis Baker.

Officers and staff of the Chamber of Commerce for the next year are Taylor, president; James M. Boyd, first vice president; Max Caddell, second vice president; Luke Thomas, secretary; R. B. Baker, treasurer; Ernest Larmer, manager; and Nell Johnson, office secretary.

Directors are Boyd, Caddell, Paul Boyd Hunter, Harold Maniss, R. B. Baker, J. C. Costin, G. D. Foster, J. W. Randle, Dr. W. S. Rhode, O. A. Ruffin, Jeff Taylor and Luke Thomas.

Asks Competition For Cancer Fight

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Cancer research should be put on the same competitive basis as satellite development, says the science editor of the American Cancer Society.

Pat McGrady of New York City proposed that the U.S. government challenge Soviet and other foreign scientists to compete for cancer control.

"Few people," he told reporters, "would care whether a cancer cure were stamped 'Made in the U.S.A.' or 'Made in the U.S.S.R.'"

Changes Made In Chest X-Ray Plans

Drastic changes have been made in plans for the chest X-ray survey conducted here each year by the Texas Health Department, and this year's event won't be scheduled for at least three more months.

When the survey is held, X-rays will be available only to persons who have been carefully screened in advance, local health officials have been informed. In addition, the X-ray service will be available no longer for use of persons seeking to qualify for foodhandler certificates.

Details of the new plan will be explained by a representative of the State Health Department in advance of the survey. No date has been set for the representative's visit, however.

Space Mechanics Leave One Dizzy

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Army's satellite, if it performs according to expectations, will be sailing along, day after day, nose first halfway around the world and tail first the other half.

No, it won't be pointed like an arrow in the same direction all the time. It won't turn around, or tumble, or flipflop or anything like that.

All this slender tube, more than 6½ feet long, is expected to do, as it orbits at 18,000 miles an hour from 300 to 1,500 miles out in space, is to retain a fixed attitude—and we don't mean altitude—in space.

The authority for this is the spokesman for the government-owned Jet Propulsion Laboratory at Pasadena, Calif., builder of the Army satellite.

The satellite, actually the final stage of the Jupiter-C rocket, resembles an enormous pencil 80 inches long, 6 inches in diameter and weighing about 30 pounds. Most of this weight consists of the instruments inside the object.

A laboratory spokesman said the principle of the satellite's flight could be explained by holding a pencil, representing the satellite, above a ball, apple or other sphere, representing the earth.

The Army satellite, JPL says, will retain throughout its flight as a satellite the attitude—and we still don't mean altitude—it assumes at the start of the orbit. At that point, the pencil used to illustrate the principle is horizontal or parallel to the surface of the sphere.

One-fourth the way around the "earth," instead of curving with the "earth," the pencil is vertical with relation to the ground, 300 or more miles beneath it. The nose or point of the pencil is pointing directly out into space.

From here the pencil moves on below the "earth." This time, since its tail or blunt end is in front, it would appear to be traveling backward.

Now: Opposite the starting place of the orbit, the satellite again would be horizontal to the earth. And when it is three-fourths of the way around the earth, again it would be in a vertical position regarding the earth. This time, however, the nose is pointing straight at the earth.

And in this position again, the missile finds itself starting around that half of the earth in which it once more is moving forward, or, nose first.

Got it?

Recession Taps Big Spring Area Lightly

Business recession which is causing growing alarm in many parts of the nation has touched Big Spring and the Howard County area with a lighter hand so far than has been the case in other areas.

A study of the January records of the activities of the Texas Employment Commission office here offers proof of some drop-off in business and employment but the shift, to date, has not been of sufficient magnitude to create any grave concern.

Leon M. Kinney, head of the office of TEC here, said that probably the best barometer of unemployment in a community would be the increase or decrease in the number of persons who apply for unemployment compensation.

His records show that in the period Dec. 26 through Jan. 27, the office here received and handled 559 such applications. In the same period in the fading days of 1956 and the first weeks of 1957, the number was 426. This represents an increase of 133. While this is a sizable number and entitled to proper evaluation in the matter of community well-being, Kinney said that from what he hears, the situation in this area is much happier than prevails in many other part of the country.

Indicative of the employment situation is the number of applications that the TEC receives for jobs. The same four weeks noted in the compensation figures showed that there had been 24 more persons seeking employment this January than in January 1957. The total applications processed this past month was 240 as compared to 216 for the same month last year.

Kinney accounts for the increased number of job hunters to a number of recent developments. He pointed out that there has been a drop-off in oil field exploratory work in the area, for example, and that construction has diminished considerably.

He likewise cites that a considerable number of workers, having heard of the scheduled building activity at Webb Air Force Base—just now getting started—have drifted to Big Spring. These men have been augmented, he says, by a number of others who have been attracted here by the report that Cosden Petroleum Corp. is launching a sizable construction program.

There have been cut-backs in workers in a considerable number of aircraft plants in centers where such operations are major industries. Quite a number of these workers, now out of work, are residents or former residents of Big Spring and the Howard County area. They are drifting back to their old homes.

Being out of work, they show up at the TEC and apply for both jobs and for unemployment compensation which they have coming to them.

Meantime, the office has one situation which is a little in the sense of being a paradox. In an interval when numerous applications for employment are being filed, there is an urgent need in the four-county area served by the TEC office here for farm workers. Farmers, eager to get at their task of preparing for the spring planting season, are in need of help and have asked for aid. The trouble seems to be that relatively few of those in need of jobs are enthusiastic about taking agricultural employment.

Kinney points out that despite the evident decrease in the number of available positions, his office has been able to make about the average number of job placements each month.

There are always places open, he observed, for persons who are truly competent for the work required and the TEC has found work for about the usual number of such applicants throughout January.

In the field of domestic help, he said that there has been no noticeable change in the local picture.

Something To Sing About

Texas singer Pat Boone passes out cigars on the set of his television show in New York after learning his wife, Shirley, gave birth to a 7-pound, 12-ounce daughter in a Hackensack, N.J., hospital. The newcomer has three sisters — Cheryl Lynn, 3½; Linda Lee, 2½; and Deborah Ann, 1½.

8,500 Get Names On Roll Of Voters

Despite a fair-to-middling grand rush of belated applicants on Friday and Friday night, there will be a few less than 8,500 men and women of Howard County qualified to vote in the elections which are calendared for this year.

Deadline for the payment of poll tax and for the application for certificates of exemption fell at midnight Friday.

Mrs. Viola Robinson, county tax collector, said that 7,039 voters have paid their poll tax and that 1,393 persons were issued certification exemptions. This provides a total of 8,432. Mrs. Robinson said that the total would be augmented by applications sent by mail and postmarked prior to midnight Friday. Such applications have not as yet been processed. She estimated that there may be as many as a hundred such letters now on her desk.

The total exceeds by a small margin the number reported on Jan. 31, 1957. When business closed on that date, 6,586 persons had paid their poll tax and 1,635 had obtained exemption certificates. The combined total was 8,221.

In 1956, a year when a presidential election was at stake, the number of poll tax payees was 8,397. There were 1,966 exemption certificates issued for a total of 10,363.

The drop in the number of applicants for exemption certificates was not explained. In both January 1957 and January 1956, the number of such applications was larger than was recorded in the current period.

Mrs. Robinson and her deputies kept open house until midnight Friday. During the day and up to closing time, the staff issued 1,614 poll tax receipts.

Final applicant of the day drifted into the office, Mrs. Robinson reported, at five minutes to the closing hour.

There was no big rush—from four to half a dozen persons represented the biggest groups to make their appearance.

Political observers were disappointed in the small interest displayed in the matter of poll tax payments. They pointed out that this is an important political year. Ten county offices are to be filled at the primary and general elections on tap. School board members and city commissioners are to be named. In all probability, there will be special bond issues or other questions raised which will have to be determined by the vote of the public.

It had not been generally anticipated that as big a total as was achieved in 1956 would be scored. However, it was hoped that a much wider margin of gain over that of last year—politically, a "dead" year—than the results show would be noted.

Mrs. Cook, 82, Dies Friday

Mrs. Millie M. Cook, 82, widow of J. W. Cook and the mother of Mrs. Henry L. Derrick, 1204 Pennsylvania, died here Friday at 6:05 p.m. after a long illness.

She had been seriously ill since just before Christmas.

Services will be held at the First Baptist Church, where she had been a member for more than two score years, at 3 p.m. Sunday. Her pastor, Dr. P. D. O'Brien, will officiate. Burial will be in the City Cemetery beside the grave of Mr. Cook, who died June 18, 1949. Arrangements are in charge of Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home.

Mrs. Cook was born on June 5, 1875, in Arkadelphia, Ark. and was married to J. W. Cook in Jones County in 1900. Together they came to Howard County from Anson on Jan. 3, 1907, and she had made her home here continuously since that time.

Survivors include her daughter, Mrs. Derrick; a brother A. J. Smith, Gunter; and a sister, Mrs. Evelyn Bruce, San Francisco, Calif.

Pallbearers will be Velah Kemper, Tom Castle, Walter Robinson, Woody Robinson, Albert Robinson, Guy Simmons, William H. Rosser and C. R. Dunagan.

Plainsmen Slam Hawks, 97-75

BORGER, Feb. 1 (SC) — Frank Phillips of Borger whacked HCJC of Big Spring, 97-75, here Saturday night to register their first West Zone basketball win of the season. The Jayhawks are now 0-2 in conference standings.

A West Zone club has yet to win on the road this season. Borger lost its first start in Clarendon earlier this week.

Phillips hit between 65 and 70 per cent of its shots from the field. Following the game, Coach Bud Simpson said his boys hadn't looked good all season. HCJC connected only 29 per cent of the time each half.

Phillips jumped off to a 6-1 lead in the first couple of minutes but HCJC tied it at 12-12. After ten minutes of play, the Plainsmen led by ten points. Then Big Spring cut the disadvantage to two points with five minutes to play but never got any closer and at half time the tally was 45-32.

Gilbert Bell was outstanding for HCJC and led the Jayhawks in scoring with 17 points. Bill Borries, who also played excellent ball for the visitors, wound up with 15 points.

Jerry Hall led Frank Phillips with 22, followed by Frank Castleberry with 20 and Carroll Willingham with 14.

The defeat left HCJC with a 16-6 won-lost record. They meet Amarillo College in Big Spring Tuesday night.

Coach Harold Davis of the Hawks has announced his B team will play a Big Spring independent team in a preliminary go Tuesday.

Archie Moore Kayoes Neves

RIO DE JANERIO, Feb. 1 (AP)—Light heavyweight champion Archie Moore unleased a powerful left hook at 1:40 of the third round tonight and knocked out Portuguese titleholder Julio Neves in their non-title fight.

Moore, a heavy favorite, scored with the knockout punch after Neves had pinned him against the ropes and was slamming the world champion with a flurry of rights and lefts.

The experienced Moore, shielding his face and body with both arms, snaked out his left with amazing speed. Neves, who claimed never to have been knocked out, took the blow point blank on the jaw, fell back against the ropes and crumpled to the canvas.

Moore weighed 189¼, Neves 187¾.

Stapleton Gets Post At Ames

AMES, Iowa, Feb. (AP)—Iowa State College today appointed Clay Stapleton of Oregon State, another single wing stylist, as its new head football coach.

Stapleton's appointment concluded a 10-day search by the Cyclone athletic council for a successor to Jim Myers, whose controversial departure to Texas A&M Jan. 22 created the coaching vacancy.

It was the second time in little more than a year that Iowa State had reached into the ranks of the Pacific Coast Conference for a coach. Myers came here from UCLA.

Stapleton, 36, had been considered the leading candidate for the position, although the council interviewed six coaches on the campus in the past three days.

Goldman Loses By 1 Up Score At Harlingen

By BILL GIBSON

HARLINGEN, Tex., Feb. 1 (AP)—Phil Powell of Wichita Falls won a rugged seesaw battle with David (Spec) Goldman of Dallas today to take the championship of the Life Begins at 40 Golf Tournament.

Powell and Goldman were never more than one hole apart during the tournament and Powell finished one up.

Although his putter was cold, the Wichita Falls golfer stayed right with Goldman through the 15th hole, won the 16th to go one up, and halved the last two holes, Both golfers shot birdies on the 18th.

This was the third attempt at the 40 golf title for the Wichita Falls florist. In the other meets he was beaten by Warren Rieten, who took both titles.

In his two previous tournaments, friends said, Powell walked around the course and he was walking today until he reached the 13th hole. There he was one down and friends suggested he ride the rest of the way.

Powell went on to win the 13th, lost the next, but won the 15th and 16th to gain the margin of victory.

Maxwell 5 Strokes Back In Phoenix Tournament

By BOB WOOD

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 1 (AP) — Ken Venturi shot a five-under-par 66 today and took a one-stroke lead in the third round of the $15,000 Phoenix Open golf tournament.

Venturi, winner of last week's Thunderbird Invitational, posted a 54-hole total of 204, nine strokes under par for the 6,585-yard Phoenix Country Club course.

Venturi came from two strokes back to overtake yesterday's leader, Jay Hebert of Sanford, Fla.

Hebert, despite a two-under par 69 today, slipped to second with a 205 total.

Venturi, of San Francisco, opened this 72-hole tournament with a one-under 70, then shot a 68 and followed with today's 66.

Billy Maxwell, runner-up yesterday, dropped five strokes off the pace as he went one-over par with a 72.

Moving into third place was hot-shooting Wes Ellis Jr., of Ridgewood, N. J. Ellis posted a 68 today for a 207 total.

In fourth was Paul Harney with 208, and another stroke back were Maxwell and John McMullin.

Doug Ford, who also turned in a 66 today, was tied with Al Besselink and Walter Burkemo, all with 210s.

Dow Finsterwald, first round co-leader, fell to 211 and Stan Mosel, who shared the first round lead, was way off the pace with 213.

Venturi shot six birdies, an eagle and was over par on three holes.

Thompson Signed To New Contract

TEXARKANA, Tex., Feb. 1 (AP)—Duncan Thompson signed a new three-year contract as head football coach at Texarkana Junior College today.

School officials said he was granted what they called a substantial increase in salary. However, it did not specify the amount of his salary or the increase.

Thompson in one year elevated Texarkana from the depths of junior college football to a national championship. His record was 9 victories, 1 loss and 1 tie this past season. The victories included the win over Fairbury, Nebr., in the National Junior College Athletic Assn. bowl game, Nov. 29.

Houston Defeated

TULSA, Okla., Feb. 1 (AP)—Led by Roger Wendell's 27 points, a season's high for his team, Tulsa's Golden Hurricane fought off numerous Houston rallies tonight to record a 70-57 Missouri Valley Conference basketball victory.

Toski And Ferree Tied At Kingston

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Feb. 1 (AP)—Bob Toski of Miami, Fla., and Jim Ferree of Winston Salem, N. C., moved into a tie for the lead in the Jamaica Open golf tournament today with scores of 210 at the end of 54 holes.

Bob Watson of Ardsley-on-Hudson, N. Y., is fourth with 213 after posting a 69 today. Roberto de Vicenzo of Mexico City, who shot a 70, is next with a 54-hole total of 214.

THO CLUB UNCERTAIN

Dallas Included In Loop Schedule

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Feb. 1 (AP) — The status of the Dallas franchise continued unsettled but directors of the Texas Baseball League today adopted a 1958 opening day schedule that includes the North Texas city.

Dick Butler, league president, said that if negotiations still under way in Dallas fail to produce an operator for the franchise the league probably will make plans to operate the Dallas club.

Butler again refused to identify the Dallas resident who is trying to obtain the franchise. He said, however, the man will receive quick approval from the league directors tomorrow if the negotiations in Dallas are successful.

"The unidentified man called again late this afternoon and said he would let me know late tonight or in the morning if the negotiations with the Burnett interests had been successful," Butler said.

"He was encouraged by today's negotiations and said he would give me an answer one way or the other."

The league directors this morning authorized transfer of the Oklahoma City franchise to Corpus Christi. The league now has seven cities ready for the 1958 season opening on April 18—Houston, Fort Worth, Tulsa, Austin, San Antonio, Victoria and Corpus Christi.

The Dallas situation, however, prevented adoption of a 154-game schedule, normally the only major item of business on the agenda for the annual January-February meeting.

Heirs of the late Dick Burnett, former owner of the Dallas club, last year turned the franchise back to the league while expressing hope the action would lead Dallas into a league of higher classification. Several prospective operators of the franchise have sought to lease Burnett Field but have been unsuccessful.

Butler said the prospective Dallas operator talked again today with Warner Lewis, general manager of the Burnett interests.

"They are not through talking," Butler said. "My guess is there will be no developments until tomorrow. Should Warner and the unidentified man agree to terms they still would have to talk with Mrs. Burnett."

Butler would not say he is optimistic but said progress has been made.

"If it blows up, we'll meet again tomorrow and probably go along with some plans that were discussed today whereby the league would operate the franchise with or without Burnett Field," he said.

The opening day schedule adopted after nearly six hours of executive session calls for Dallas to play at Austin, Victoria at Houston, Tulsa at Fort Worth and San Antonio at Corpus Christi. On April 20 the second round of opening day ceremonies will find Houston at Victoria, Austin at Dallas, Fort Worth at Tulsa and Corpus Christi at San Antonio.

The directors refused to go along with the Southern Association in reducing postseason league playoffs from a best-of-seven series to a best-of-five. The Southern Assn. made the change in December and indicated Texas League failure to do so would bring an end to the Dixie Series that began matching champions of the two leagues in 1920.

"If this is the case, we'll try to work out a series with the Mexican League champions," Butler said.

Allen Russell, president of the Austin club, was elected first vice president of the league, succeeding Grayle Howlett, president at Tulsa.

The 1958 player limit from opening day to closing day was set at 19, including player managers or player coaches. Last year's limit was 18.

After a two-hour executive session this morning, Butler said he believes the league will operate in Dallas this summer "come hell or high water."

Butler said the tenor of conversations today had been that Dallas would be the eighth club regardless of the outcome of negotiations still under way to lease the ball park owned by the Dick Burnett interests, former owners of the franchise.

Raiders Defeat Texas Aggies

COLLEGE STATION, Feb. 1 (AP)—Texas Tech's Red Raiders came back in the last nine minutes tonight to defeat Texas A&M 57-55 in a Southwest Conference basketball game.

The victory gives Tech a tie for second place with SMU. Each stands 4-2 behind the 5-1 record of Arkansas. A&M now is 3-4.

The Red Raiders came from behind four times in the second half to stave off the Aggies. A&M had led until 7-42 in the game when Gene Arrington connected on a jump shot to give the visitors a 46-45 lead. The Cadets had led by as much as 11 points late in the first half before Arrington closed the gap with seven quick points before the intermission.

DALLAS, Feb. 1 (AP)—The Southern Methodist Mustangs stalled the last five minutes tonight and dumped the Arkansas Razorbacks, Southwest Conference leaders, 49-46, before a record Dallas basketball crowd of 9,100.

The results left the Porkers still in first place with a conference record of five wins and one loss. The Ponies now have four wins and two losses.

Nursing a 4-point lead, Mustang Coach Doc Hayes chose to have his charges stall the final minutes. But the Razorbacks pulled to within two points on one occasion in the thrilling finish.

Arkansas controlled the backboards but an SMU zone defense forced them to shoot from long range. The Porkers grabbed off 55 rebounds to 42 for SMU.

Bobby James of SMU tipped in 15 points to lead all scorers. His teammate, Max Williams, chipped in 12. Fred Grim led Arkansas pointmakers with 14.

FORT WORTH, Feb. 1 (AP)—Texas Christian University's cagers were forced to spurt in the final three minutes to snap a 47-47 tie and repulse upset-minded Baylor 57-53 here tonight in a Southwest Conference affair.

Amarillo Badgers Flog Wranglers

AMARILLO, Feb. 1 (SC) — Amarillo kayoed Odessa, 57-52, in a West Zone basketball game here Friday night, despite a 25-point scoring output by Gary Roberson of the Wranglers.

The defeat left Odessa with a 1-2 West Zone record. The win was Amarillo's first in conference play.

Dale Tarbet scored 23 points and Jimmy Bevers 18 for the winners. Roberson scored 20 of his points in the last half.

The Badgers led at the intermission, 28-20.

Ron Delany Wins Mile In 4:05.3

BOSTON, Feb. 1 (AP)—Ron Delany wote the usual script tonight, winning the Hunter Mile in the Boston AA games in 4:05.3 with a mighty burst in the last lap and a half that left his opposition gasping for breath.

With a 12,445 crowd in Boston Garden, Delany calmly followed Phil Coleman of the Chicago Track Club, Jim Beatty of the University of North Carolina and Burr Grim of Maryland at assorted stages in the race.

But when it was all over, as usual, there was the gangling Irishman from Villanova hitting the tape a cool 20 yards in front of his nearest rival.

Three SW Teams Launch Spring Workouts Monday

By Associated Press

Spring football training gets under way on three Southwest Conference campuses Monday. Rice, Southern Methodist and Texas Christian will start sharpening their 1958 gridiron wares with other schools set to follow soon.

Rice, which finished strong last year to beat Texas A&M and gain the Cotton Bowl slot against Navy, will be out to reconstruct its backfield and most of its line. The Owls lost heavily through graduation.

Aerial-minded SMU will look over a slate of promising freshmen while TCU will be out to find a man who can throw the ball.

Runner-up Texas will not take to the field until March 15. Arkansas has not yet set its spring training date and the Aggies' new coach, Jim Myers, says he will hold off training as late as possible—possibly until late April.

Baylor, which failed to crack the conference win column last year, has set a tentative date for mid-April.

Coach Jess Neely expects a slate of 75 players from which he will tap a squad to face such teams as Army, Purdue, LSU and Stanford next fall. The 1957 schedule, which marks Neely's 19th year at the Rice helm, is one of the toughtest the Owls have ever carded.

And gone are such stalwarts as All America quarterback King Hill and his alternate, Frank Ryan; Matt Gorges, guard; Larry Whitmire, tackle; Don Gillis, center, and Claud White, tackle.

But the squad will have 20 lettermen including 17 from the 1957 championship team. Three 1956 lettermen who will return to action are Bruce Hendrickson, center; G. F. Alsobrook, halfback, and Hart Peebles, guard.

The Owls' spring training sessions will end March 1 with an intrasquad Blue-Gray game.

At Dallas, Coach Bill Meek's problem at Southern Methodist will be to develop a running attack to go with the sensational passing of quarterback Don Meredith, who blossomed in midseason last fall to wind up with a 69.6 pass completion record.

His answer may come with the performances of Glynn Gregory, Abilene, and Frank Jackson, Paris, widely heralded freshmen prospects.

SMU expects 75 candidates and will have at least one letterman for each position. The veterans, however, will be hard pressed by a horde of eager freshmen.

Texas Christian has the running power but Coach Abe Martin will be out to find a passer to augment his heavy ground game. Slated to get first crack at the quarterback post vacated by Dick Finney is junior Jackie Sledge.

He is expected to get strong competition from junior John Bonnet, senior Hunter Enis, senior Rode Gonzales and a couple of flashy sophomores, Larry Dawson and Donald George.

Martin expects about 80 footballers out for the opening day's session. Included will be 21 lettermen. Spring training at Fort Worth will wind up with the annual Purple-Whites Frog Club game March 1.

Jackie Pung Leads By Three Strokes

HAVANA, Feb. (AP)—Hawaiian Jackie Pung, playing out of San Francisco, retained her lead today after the second round of the hole golf tournament.

The former national amateur champion carded a one-over-par 73 to give her 142, three strokes better than Dianne Garrett Penna of Palm Beach, Fla. Mrs. Penna shot a 75 for a 36-hole total of 145.

Betty Dodd of San Antonio, Tex. and Marlene Bauer Hagge of Del Ray Beach, Fla., were tied for third with 146. Miss Dodd had a 75 and Mrs. Hagge a 69 today.

Included in a fifth-place tie at 148 were Mickey Wright of San Diego, Calif., who carded a 72, and Bonnie Randolph of Naples, Fla., who had a 75.

Wiffi Smith of St. Claire, Mich., and Marilynn Smith of Wichita, Kan., totaled 49. Wiffi had a 73 and Marilynn a 77.

Other scores included Wanda Sanchez of Baton Rouge, La., 151; Ruth Jessen of Seattle, Wash., 152; Beverly Hanson of Indio, Calif., 153; Mary Lena Faulk of Thomasville, Ga., and Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S. C., 154.

The remaining 18 holes of the tournament will be played tomorrow.

JC Ace Becomes A Texas Aggie

COLLEGE STATION, Feb. 1 (AP)—Kelley Chapman, 6-foot-4 basketball player formerly of Tyler Junior College, enrolled at Texas A&M today for the spring semester.

Chapman, a native of Owensboro, Ky., enrolled at the University of Kentucky last fall. He was the top junior college scorer in the nation last year at Tyler.

LOUDERMILK HITS 25 AS STEERS TRIUMPH

Big Spring kept its hopes alive for a first place finish in District 2-AAAA basketball standings by belting Midland, 67-52, here Friday night.

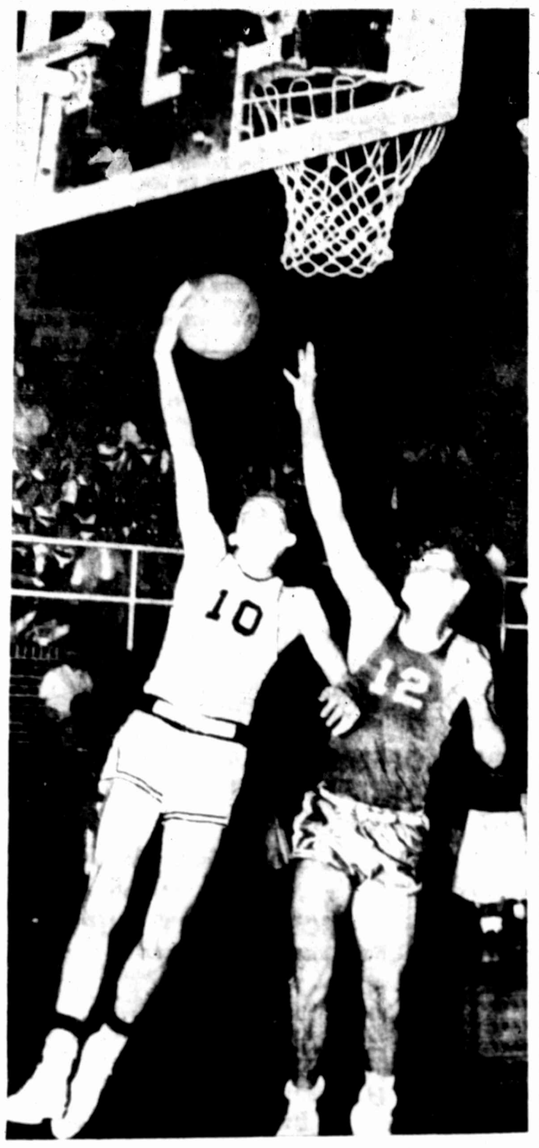
The win was the fourth in five conference starts for Big Spring. The Steers led all the way and at one stage boasted a 20-point advantage.

Jan Loudermilk was back in the groove for the Steers. He hit 25 points to run his aggregate for the season to 587, with three games left to play.

Midland tried to keep up with the Longhorns but fell behind by 11 points at the end of the first period.

The visitors pulled to within seven points of the locals at half time but could get no closer.

Bobby Fisher paced Midland in scoring with 19 points, the only visiting player to hit in double figures. Benny McCrary had 11 for Big Spring.



Sure Shot

Preston Hollis (10) of Big Spring goes up for a crip shot and two points in the above photo, snapped during the Steer-Midland basketball game here Friday night. Vainly trying to block the shot is Steve Brown (12) of the Bulldogs. Big Spring won the game, 67-52.

Coach Johnny Johnson flooded the game with substitutes toward the end and the youngsters did a good job of holding their own. The Longhorns have now won 20 games this season, the highest number of victories achieved by a local high school team in many years.

Loudermilk had 14 of his points in the first half. He has now counted 100 in conference play, 23 more than Al Dodson of San Angelo, currently second in the race.

The game was attended by an estimated 1300 fans and was ably officiated by Glenn Smith and Pete Creasey.

Big Spring lost the B game, 45-41, but both the C contest, 52-48. In the B game, Goose Russell led Big Spring with 18 points while Jerry Hanson had 13 as the Midland pace-setter.

Big Spring will be idle next Tuesday, returning to action on Friday night, at which time the locals visit San Angelo.

Glovers Active On All Fronts

FORT WORTH, Feb. 1 (AP)—The last of Texas' 19 Golden Gloves centers open their regional tournaments next week, and this will clear the path for the 22nd annual Texas championships, which open here Feb. 13.

The final half-dozen to get under way are at Austin, Brownwood, Galveston, Harlingen, Tyler and Victoria.

Galveston and Harlingen will start their tournaments Monday and will continue for three nights. Tyler opens Tuesday for a five-day run. Austin has the first of three programs Wednesday, Brownwood starts a three-night card Thursday and Victoria begins Friday for two nights.

The spotlight will be on the Galveston tournament, where two 1957 Texas champions will attempt to qualify for the state meet again.

They are Billy Joe Butler of Nederland, the flyweight who boxed out of Corpus Christi last year, and Victor Graffio, a welter who was the 1957 lightweight king. He lives in Port Arthur.

Three regions which began this week — Abilene, Odessa and Sherman — will crown their champions Monday night.

Tournaments already concluded are at Dallas, San Antonio, El Paso, Wichita Falls, Corpus Christi, Waco, Amarillo, Houston and Fort Worth.

Major Leaguers To Stay Busy This Spring

CHICAGO, Feb. 1 (AP)—American League baseball teams have scheduled 167 exhibition games against National League opposition for the 1958 spring training program.

Also scheduled are 44 intra-league games with all but two of the eight league teams training in Florida, Baltimore will open camp at Scottsdale, Ariz., and Cleveland's Indians again will be located at Tucson, Ariz.

Teams training in Florida will be Boston at Sarasota, Chicago at Tampa, Detroit at Lakeland, New York at St. Petersburg, Kansas City at West Palm Beach, and Washington at Orlando.

Missing from the exhibition schedule will be such long standing fixtures as the city series between the Chicago White Sox and the Chicago Cubs and the series between the New York Yankees and the Brooklyn, now Los Angeles, Dodgers.

Taking the Cubs' place against the Sox will be Washington with a game at Davenport, Iowa, and another at Indianapolis before the Sox open against Detroit, April 15, at Comiskey Park.

The Yankees will meet the Phillies at New York April 12 and at Philadelphia, April 13, replacing the Dodgers' series.

Reporting dates to various camps are as follows:

Baltimore—Feb. 21 batterymen, Feb. 27 full squad; Boston—Feb. 24 and March 1; Chicago—Feb. 23 full squad; Cleveland—Feb. 22 and Feb. 26; Detroit—Feb. 14-25 rookies and invited veterans, Feb. 26 full squad; New York—Feb. 22 and Feb. 25; Kansas City—Feb. 25 and March 2; Washington — Feb. 18 and Feb. 25.

CINCINNATI, Feb. (AP)—National League clubs will get in a lot of competitive baseball—217 exhibition games—even before the regular season starts.

A compilation of spring training schedules today showed the National League teams will play 167 exhibition tilts against American League Clubs and the other 50 will be intra-league affairs.

The transfer of the Dodgers and the Giants to Los Angeles and San Francisco respectively will have little effect on the spring training pattern since the Dodgers again will train at Vero Beach, Fla., and the Giants at Phoenix, Ariz.

The Dodger transfer, however, will wipe out the annual series with the New York Yankees on the weekend preceding the opening of the regular season. The Philadelphia Phils and the Yankees will play a home-and-home series, instead, on April 12 and 13.

The Giants and the Cleveland Indians will play their annual barnstorming series but they'll separate this year at Omaha, Neb., on April 3 with the Giants heading for California.

Perennial pairings in barnstorming trips home will have the Milwaukee Braves playing the Dodgers; the Chicago Cubs traveling with the Baltimore Orioles; the Washington Senators, the St. Louis Cardinals with the Chicago White Sox and, of course, the Giants and the Indians.

As usual, all clubs except the Giants and the Cubs will train in Florida. The Cubs, at Mesa, Ariz., will be neighbors of the Giants.

'57 Champions Reach Finals

HOLLYWOOD, Fla., Feb 1 (AP)—Defending champions Mary Ann Downey and Marge Lindsay reeled off three birdies on the back nine and zipped to a 4 and 2 victory in the semifinals of the Women's International Four-Ball golf tournament today.

They will meet Marlene Stewart Streit of Fonthill, Ont., and Ann Casey Johnstone of Mason City, Iowa, in the 36-hole championship match tomorrow.

Miss Downey, from Baltimore, and Miss Lindsay, from Decatur, Ill., defeated Marge Burns of Greensboro, N.C., and Dale Fleming of Tulsa, Okla., with a birdie barrage which ripped open what had been a close, tense duel. The match was all even at the turn.

Mrs. Streit and Mrs. Johnstone ousted Cookie Swift Berger of Buffalo, N.Y., and Mary Pat Janssen of Charlottesville, Va., 4 and 3.

Miss Lindsay picked up the third birdie with a 12-foot putt on No. 14. She closed out the match on No. 16 by hitting the green and two-putting for her par.

Mrs. Streit, who has won the top amateur titles in this country, Great Britain and Canada, stroked in a 12-foot birdie putt on No. 14 to extend her team's lead to 4 up. The match ended when the rivals halved No. 15 with pars.

Grades Keep King Hill On Bench

HOUSTON, Feb. 1 (AP)—Scholastic difficulties prevented King Hill, All America football quarterback, from playing basketball tonight as the Rice Institute Owls met Trinity University.

Jess Neely, Rice athletic director, said final reports on mid-term examinations will not be available until next week but that preliminary information made it advisable to hold Hill out of tonight's game.

Hill, a senior, joined the basketball squad after playing in the Cotton Bowl game in Dallas and the Hula Bowl in Honolulu. He had been expected to move into the Owls' starting lineup tonight.

Junior High Tourney Opens Here Friday

Area junior high school basketball activity will draw to a halt with the Big Spring tournament next weekend.

The meet gets under way at 3 p.m. Friday while the title game is scheduled for 9 p.m. the following evening.

A new champion is assured, since the 1957 kingpin, San Jacinto of Midland, is not returning. Andrews is an early favorite.

Big Lake and South Abilene open the show at 3 p.m. Friday. San Angelo Edison and Lamesa tangle at 4:30 p.m. and Andrews and Brownfield square away at 6:30 p.m., while Big Spring tries Colorado City at 8 p.m.

Championship semi-finals are carded for 1 p.m. and 2:30 p.m. Saturday. Semi-final bouts in the consolation bracket are down for 9 and 10:30 a.m.

If it wins over Colorado City, Big Spring plays again at 1 p.m. Saturday. A loss would send it back into action at 9 a.m. Saturday. Consolation finals are slated for 6 p.m. Saturday. Third place will be determined at 7:30 p.m. while the title game is down for 9 p.m.

The local team will warm up for the meet by playing Colorado City in Colorado City tomorrow night.

Trophies will be given to the championship, runnerup and consolation round winner in the local tournament. In addition, ten members of the all-tournament squad will get miniature gold basketballs.

Minors Seek Ways To Build Gates

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 1 (AP)—Minor league baseball launched a "let's do it ourselves" promotional campaign today to combat dwindling attendance.

George M. Trautman, president of the National Assn. of Professional Baseball Leagues, named 24 of the most successful operators in the country as envoys to aid other clubs in building up the "gate."

All clubs from class A through class D, will be eligible for promotional assistance under the plan. Four regions, including all of the U.S. and parts of Canada and Mexico, have been set up, each with its group of advisers.

Early this year Trautman wrote the men selected for the promotional campaign, asking if they would contribute some of their time helping other clubs and leagues get off to a strong start.

"The response was one of my most heartening experiences," Trautman said. "Here are unselfish men, busy with their own ball clubs, willing to devote precious hours to help others. With that kind of people behind us, minor league baseball cannot fail."

Region No. 2, which includes the Western, Three-I, Northern, Nebraska State and Sooner State circuits, has Bob Howson of Denver; Mel Jones of St. Paul, Minn.; Lynn Stone of Wichita, Kan.; Allen Russell of Austin, Tex.; Bob Scarlett of Amarillo, Tex.; Dick Wagner of Lincoln, Neb.; Terry Hind of Winnipeg, and Marvin Milkes of San Antonio, Tex., as its advisers.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR:

Referee States Few Games Are Lost By Officiating

Dear Tommy:

This letter is in defense of basketball referees who have been berated by fans and other communication media. I am sure that referees are sometimes wrong, but when wrong they are usually wrong for both teams. Therefore, these wrongs should be pretty well distributed between the teams. It is a fact that basketball officials are not overpaid—the fees are rather small in comparison to what he is called upon to do.

I am sure that there are very few basketball officials who care how the fans react to their officiating during a ball game, but the effect of this reaction upon the players is quite profound. I have observed that where the home fans do an excessive amount of moaning and groaning (i.e. booing), the players get the idea that the fans are always right and that the referees are wrong. They, the players, then get to complaining to the officials and also to their teammates, and then at the least amount of provocation, they begin to lose their tempers and fail to obey rules. Often this causes technical fouls to be called.

Technical fouls are the scourge of the game. There is no way for the official to signal to the crowd why you called the foul, therefore, this causes anxiety and discontentment among the fans. So I believe technical fouls in a basketball game should be kept at a absolute minimum.

I am sure that most officials are honest, and no official likes to be associated with any talk that he has officiated in a game wherein one team or the other has been favored. Games are not lost by the officials, but it may be that a team maneuvers itself into a position wherein it is easy to blame the officials should it lose.

I am rather disturbed by the reaction of fans in Big Spring. I came to Big Spring in 1952, and I have officiated basketball at nearly all high schools in a 100-mile radius. I have been very, very proud of our faithful fans in Big Spring for they have displayed unusually good sportsmanship regardless of a win, loss, or draw. But, lately some fans have suddenly become boozers, first class, and they complain about everything from the referees to the coaches. I certainly like to see our home team win, but it is disgusting to see our good people berate the very decency of our fine community.

I, for one, do not care how the fans cheer at a ball game—they pay their admission, and I believe they are entitled to shout and make noise. My only concern is for the players on the court, and once again may I say, that this excessive booing has a very detrimental effect upon the behavior of the players. Under this type of condition, a player cannot do his best for his team.

Please remember: Basketball is played for the fun and enjoyment it produces—not to provoke bitterness and sorrow.

Sincerely yours,
H. BOYCE HALE

Nicholson Is Quiet About His Chances

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 1 (AP)—Baseball's latest $100,000 question mark, bonus boy Dave Nicholson, won't say much about his chances of making the big leagues.

"You can't get much out of him away from a ball field," said Mrs. Larry Nicholson, mother of the husky St. Louis boy who signed last Sunday with the Baltimore Orioles.

"He signed with Baltimore because he felt he had the best chance of making their club," his mother said. "And he likes Manager Paul Richards and their scout, Del Wilber."

"I just hope I can do well enough to justify their faith in me," Dave managed to say. The brown-haired, 18-year-old has a lot of trouble expressing himself to interviewers.

The 6-2, 210-pound righthanded slugger comes to life when he steps on the field. He's an aggressive "holler guy," shouting and whistling at his teammates and the opposition.

The best guess is that Nicholson received $102,000, plus new cars for himself and his father, plus a part-time scouting job for his Dad.

Dave quit Southwest High School a year ago, because, as his mother put it, "he had no interest in anything but baseball."

Nicholson passed up high school baseball last spring and moved into the Ban Johnson League, where the age limit is 21.

As the youngest member of the nearby Collinsville, Ill., team, he began attracting attention with his booming home run drives. His batting average was well under .300, but he hit an average of one home run every two games.

St. Louis Cardinal scout Joe Monahan said Dave "really blossomed out during the past year and showed his great potential."

Dodger Catcher Shows Upswing

GLEN COVE, N.Y. Feb. 1 (AP)—Roy Campanella, Dodger catcher who suffered a broken neck in an auto accident Tuesday, is showing continued improvement although the paralysis still persists, his doctor said today.

Today's hospital bulletin said Campanella, who underwent a 4-hour, 20-minute operation soon after the accident to relieve pressure on a nerve, now was breathing without difficulty and that the lung congestion discovered Friday was much improved.

The 36-year-old athlete has regained feeling in his body down to the knee of his left leg but the paralysis still continues, the bulletin added.

Dusters Grab 57-55 Thriller Over Hawks

Webb's Dusters squeezed out a close 57-55 basketball victory over the Goodfellow Skyhawks in Webb's gym Friday night.

Webb drew first blood in the opening minute of the game on a one handed jumpshot by Don Bates. Goodfellow then found the range with three quick field goals, before Webb could score again.

The Dusters managed to go ahead and hold a 15-14 edge at the end of the first ten minutes. Before the first half came to a close, Webb was paced by Ralph Miller, who scored ten points on four from the field and two to free tosses.

Pacing the Skyhawks was Hale who also hit ten points in the first half. As the buzzer sounded at the half, the score was Webb 31 and Goodfellow 31.

The Dusters got off to a fast start after intermission with Mickey Sewell and George Powell doing the scoring at the first, as Webb pulled away to their biggest lead of 36-44. At the end of the first ten minutes Webb held the lead 45-41.

Webb maintained its four point lead going into the final two minutes of play, the Skyhawks sank a free shot to come within three points. Webb then went into a semi-stall with one minute and 30 seconds to go.

Goodfellow, trying to get the ball, fouled Sewell with 55 seconds remaining. Sewell put in the first attempt, to make the score 57-53, but missed the second. Webb yielded the ball to Goodfellow. Moore, trying to score for the Skyhawks, was fouled by Sewell, with three seconds left. Moore dropped in his two gift shots to make the score 57-55, which was all the scoring in the game.

Scoring honors went to Miller for Webb, who had 18 points. He was followed closely by Hale for Goodfellow, who had 17 counters.

Jones and Moore for Goodfellow also hit the double figures with 15 points apiece, as did Sewell and Bates for Webb, who had 15 and 10 points respectfully.

Methodist Five New Champion

The First Methodist basketball team copped the championship of the YMCA Church League, defeating the First Baptists, 62-53, in a game played last Thursday night.

The Methodists leaped in front, 15-12, at the first period ending. Frank Hardesty Jr., canned ten points in the second period to almost bring the Baptists ahead, but his team still trailed, 28-26, at halftime.

By the close of the third canto, the Baptists did hold the lead, 39-38, but a big 24-point final quarter by the Methodists set them on the way to victory. Powell was their big man with 17 counters.

The losers fouled 13 times, while the Methodists were assessed 12 penalties. The Baptists picked up the same amount, 13, of points at the free toss line, but the winners scored 16 on charity tosses.

Knott Girls Seek To Nail Down 19-B Flag Tuesday

KNOTT, Feb. 1, (SC)— Knott's girls, hopeful of the win that will pit them against Robert Lee or Mertzon in bi-district action, meet Sterling City in the local gym next Tuesday night, which will be the feature of a triple-game schedule.

At 5:30 p.m. the "B" boys tangle, the girls take the court at 7, and at 8:15 the varsity boys collide.

The Knott girls have won 20 games thus far, lost three, and ironically enough, those three losses have come in tourney championship finals. Presently, they are 4-0 in the district standings.

They lost to Stanton, 52-43, in the finals of that tournament; Water Valley handed them a 44-39 defeat in the Christoval finals; and in the Flower Grove finals, the host team edged past the Knott Sextet, 40-32.

The Knott lasssies have scored 63 points in their top offensive effort. The total came at the expense of Garden City.

Jean Sample is the team's leading scorer, and was chosen all-tournament in each of the meets. Alice Day is next, having the honor of an all-tournament selection at the Flower Grove tourney.

The Knott boys hold a 4-15 record, and are 0-4 in the district.

A game is sought for February 11 or later for the girls, provided they win the district championship.

Buffaloes Rip Coahoma 58-45

COAHOMA, Feb. 1 (SC)—Forsan won one of three basketball games with Coahoma Friday night here but the one was the feature boys' game, 58-45.

Coahoma took the "B" boys game, 27-26, and the girls contest, 41-30. The Forsan sextet was weakened by the absence of Nedelene Pitcock, away because of family illness.

Mac Robinson scored almost half of Coahoma's total, 20 points, but the Forsan crew was more balanced and won going away. Roy Newsom scored 15, Tommy Willis hit 12, and Kenneth Duffer caught 10 to keep the Buffalo scoring steady.

Top rebounders were White, Willis and Duffer of Forsan.

In the girls' game, Sherri Fletcher scored 19 for the losers, while Coahoma's Joan Davis scoed 16.

Murl Bailey was high man in the "B" contest with 14 tallies. Tyler and Reeves each had nine for the Coahoma quint.

Forsan will be host to Garden City next Tuesday night in a do-or-die struggle for the Buffs. Garden owns a 4-0 record, while Forsan has a 3-1 mark, the sole loss coming from Garden City. A victory by the Forsan team would wind up the two squads in a deadlock.

FORSAN (58)—White 1-0-2; Skeen 2-3-7; Willis 4-4-12; M. Bardwell 2-0-4; Newsom 7-1-15; J. Bardwell 2-0-4; Duffer 5-0-10; Fields 1-0-2; King 0-3-2; Totals 24-10-58.

Corpus Replaces OC In Circuit

By MAX SKELTON

HOUSTON, Feb. 1 (AP)—Corpus Christi replaced Oklahoma City in the Texas League today. The league directors reported hopeful progress in their search for an operator of the Dallas baseball franchise.

Dick Butler, league president, said unanimous approval was given to a request by Jimmie Humphries that he be authorized to move his Oklahoma City franchise to Corpus Christi.

Butler said the original vote was 6-1 but Grayle Howlett, president of the Tulsa club, changed his vote to make the action unanimous.

The league president said he may have a definite announcement on the Dallas situation later. He indicated an unidentified Dallas resident would operate the franchise there or the league itself would operate a Dallas club.

"From the tenor of our conversations this morning, I would say the directors of the league will come out with some sort of plan to play in Dallas, come hell or high water," said Butler.

Wolves Turn Back Plowboys, 58-32

ROSCOE, Feb. 1 (SC)—Colorado City, easing off of their 3-AAA slate, scored a non-conference basketball victory over Roscoe's Plowboys here Friday night, 58-32.

The winners led 30-17 at halftime. Don Black scored 16 for the Wolves, and Lewis Kirby pitched in 11 for Roscoe.

IS 'WIN AT ANY COST' PHILOSOPHY WRONG?

By BOBBY HORTON

Each New Year's Day, the country is plunged into several days of football hysterics—the gaudy Rose Bowl, the sun-drenched Gator Bowl, the clamoring Sugar Bowl, Cotton Bowl, and on as the list goes.

A tremendous amount of work, money, time, and worry go into the rounding out of each bowl and its lineup of activities for the biggest holiday of the year.

But that's not all that goes along with these stupendous displays of athletic skill and colorful artistry. A staggering burden of pressure builds up before and after football matches such as these. . .the pressure of winning, coming out on top.

Bowl games are only one example of what many people believe is destroying character-building in sports and replacing it with the "win at any cost" philosophy. James W. Carty Jr., religious news editor of the Nashville Tennessean, says games are becoming "pagan festivals and not Christian contests."

Is this true, and if so, is America asleep as to the demoralizing pageantry and glory given to the "champion," as revealed to its youth? Have the young athletes and their followers learned to lose and gain from their losses—or have they learned to win, achieve something at any means possible?

Reverend Gage Lloyd, a local minister says: "I feel that too much attention is given the star, or the outstanding individual. I'm of the opinion that the athletic program is for the populace, rather than for the individual."

When asked if he thought too much color and dramatizing of the bowl games gave youth a bad attitude toward winning, he said no.

"The bowl games, I think, are as much a part of our national life as the county fair. They give people the opportunity to get out in their new togs and enjoy themselves in a decent manner," he replied.

Reverand Lloyd expressed the feeling of enjoyment toward the New Year's football bowl slate and said he did not know if the "win at any cost" philosophy was coached to young men and women.

He did have a suggestion for the Big Spring athletic situation. He said he felt that interests should be more divided; for example, baseball was not as popular as football, and should be supported more.

Concerning colleges, he criticized the practice of carrying huge deficits year-to-year supporting football. The minister revealed that he had had experience with such a college which had been $40,000 in the red, annually. The reason was that members of the board felt the program was needed to draw a student body.

Wayne Parmenter, another pastor of a local church, was not alarmed by the so-called corrupt and demoralizing glamor of football games.

He said, "I certainly do not believe in dirty play to win in any game, but I think that when a fellow is competing, he should do his best to win the game. It's like my captain told us in the war years, 'when you have an objective out there, men, go get it . . . but I don't expect of you to stomp and curse the man you have to run over getting there.' I enjoy sports a great deal, and I feel that it is the public that causes much of the trouble, rather than the player-coach relationship. The men on the sidelines and in the stands, who gamble on a team's fortunes and the influence the men who officiate the game, ruin sports."

Parmenter spoke of his experience in coaching and said that he thought it natural for a boy to want to be a winner every time.

Odessa Races Past Bobcats

SAN ANGELO, Feb. 1 (SC)—San Angelo threw a scare into the District 2-4A leaders, Odessa, but gave way to the tough Broncs, 60-52, here Friday night.

Discoveries Reported In Nolan, Upton

Discoveries in Upton and Nolan counties were assured from wildcat tests at the end of the week.

In Nolan, the Hamm No. 1 Wilson flowed at an hourly rate of from seven to 10 barrels of oil through a quarter-inch choke. Length of time the well flowed was not reported Saturday. Perforations in the Five Sands zone are 6,167-77 feet.

The well was shut in for storage before taking potential today. Location is 2,200 feet from south and 660 from east lines of the southwest quarter, 186-64, H&TC Survey, and about 2½ miles north of Hylton.

Initial production has been sighted in the Strawn section at the Texas and Pacific No. 7 McClure in Upton County. The venture is located in the multipay King Mountain field. Current production in the field is from the Devonian, Fusselman, and Ellenburger.

The No. 7 McClure is still testing the Strawn from 8,724-56 feet, after flowing 140 barrels of distillate in 20 hours through an 18-64-inch choke. Tubing pressure gauged 1,800 pounds, and gas was checked at 3,700,000 cubic feet per day.

Gravity of the distillate was 65 degrees.

Location of the well is 900 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines, 18-4½, GC&SF Survey.

Gibson Finals Deep Venture In SE Dawson

George R. Gibson has completed the No. 1 Graves in Dawson County's Arthur field for a daily potential of 148 barrels of 38-degree oil.

The well completed from the Canyon section with perforations from 9,276-286 feet. On the potential test, flow was through a 10-64-inch choke with only 5 per cent of water being reported. Gas-oil ratio registered 325-1.

The well is in the Arthur field about four miles northeast of Ackerly. Drillsite is 2,092 feet from south and 2,000 feet from east lines, 48-34-5n, T&P Survey. Other production in the Arthur field is from the Dean and Spraberry zones.

Nearby on the Borden side, Cosden Petroleum Corp. No. 2 H. C. Shortes drilled below 3,100 feet Saturday. It is about three miles northeast of Ackerly in the Ackerly (Dean) field.

Location is 660 feet from south and east lines, 43-33-4n, T&P Survey. It is slated for an 8,600-foot bottom.

PRICE CUT IN 3 GULF POOLS

DALLAS, Feb. 1 (AP) — The Atlantic Refining Co. starting today cut by 10 cents the price it would pay for crude oil in three upper coast fields.

The company said yesterday the reduction applied to Barber Hill, Cedar Bayou and Jergens crude oil in the Texas Gulf Coast area. The company said it was reducing the price for light crude in Refugio area two cents per barrel and that it would pay $3.20 for condensate in the Gulf Coast and Southwest Texas area starting today.

The company said the action was taken to bring the price of those crudes in line with the price paid for similar crudes.

Drilling Edges Up Slightly In Basin On Latest Report

Rotary drilling operations in the Permian Basin edged up slightly during the last two weeks of January, but activities were still well below 1957 averages.

The total rotary units in operation on Jan. 26, according to the Reed Roller Bit Co. report, was 367. This is up 14 from the 353 of Jan. 10, but still 146 below the 513 of Jan. 25, 1957.

The 353 was the lowest total in well over a year.

Despite the upward trend, Howard County reported one less unit in operation on the Jan. 25 report than on Jan. 10. Eight were in operation on Jan. 25.

The leader was still Lea County, N. M., but the lead was small for a change. The county reported 46 active rotaries, compared to 44 on Jan. 10, but Ector County was close behind with 42.

Dawson County showed no units working on Jan. 10, but the figure jumped to five last week. Borden gained one to seven, and Martin's total was up one to four. Sterling, without any active rotary units Jan. 10, reported two on the last tally.

Counties reporting 20 or more active rigs, in addition to Lea and Ector, include Andrews with 35, Crane with 21, Pecos with 21, and Winkler with 29.

The county-by-county tally includes Andrews 35, Borden 7, Brewster 0, Cochran 3, Coke 1, Chaves 4, Concho 0, Crane 21, Crockett 4, Culberson 1, Dawson 5, Dickens 1, Ector 42, Eddy 5, Fisher 4, Gaines 18 and Garza 5.

Four Die In Crash Of Oil Helicopter

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 1 (AP)—The pilot and three oil field workers died in rough Gulf of Mexico waters early today when a helicopter crashed eight miles southwest of Grand Isle, La.

Company officials said the helicopter was making a forced landing. The reason was not determined.

Air and sea search craft rescued seven men after a terrifying two hours in the choppy Gulf, buffeted by waves from 20 to 30 miles-an-hour winds.

The lost pilot was E. E. Eskridge, formerly of Ventural Calif. He lived in a camp at Grand Isle, booming island center of tidelands oil drilling operations on the Gulf of Mexico due south of here. He was employed by Rotor Aids Inc., operator of the Humble Oil Co. helicopter.

The other dead were B. F. Wiley, a geologist for Humble, and J. A. Ledet and F. W. Bergeron, employes of Rowan Drilling Co., all of near Golden Meadow, La.

The bodies were recovered.

Treated at hospitals in nearby Golden Meadow and Raceland for gasoline burns and exposure were George Brosky; John Hall Jr., 32; John Lafort, 23; Roland Boudreaux, 26; Rastel Hoosier, 23; Rene Cognevich and Donald Morgan, all of the coastal area.

Humble officials said the 14-place Sikorsky helicopter was on a return flight from an oil drilling rig nine miles off Grand Isle.

The craft carried nine passengers and a crew of two. A tugboat picked up the seven survivors and bodies of the four dead.

Four Humble helicopters, a Coast Guard helicopter and several Coast Guard and private surface craft took part in the early morning search operations.

Three victims apparently drowned. The fourth collapsed after being rescued.

National Rig Total Continues Decline

Rotary rig totals for the United States and Canada dropped off again last week.

The Jan. 27 report of Hughes Tool Company for the American Association of Oilwell Drilling Contractors showed 2,083 rigs turning, whereas the week before there were 2,166. A month ago the total was 2,518 and a year ago the total was 2,549.

Western Canada with 221 actually gained 13 rigs. The United States had 1,861, a decline of 96 rigs. Texas lost 30 rigs—only three in West Texas—to show 720. Louisiana dropped 8 and had 333. California slipped à pair to hit 89; Colorado was static at 33; Oklahoma lost 22 and hit 168. Other totals, none varying greatly, included Montana 27, Mississippi 18, New Mexico 107, North Dakota 40, Utah 57, Wyoming 53 (a gain of six).

Dividends Raised

DALLAS, Feb. 1—The board of directors of Dresser Industries, Inc., a supplier of equipment and technical services for the oil, gas and chemical industries, has voted to increase the regular quarterly dividend payment from $0.45 to $0.50. The increased rate will be paid on March 17 to shareholders of record as of the close of business March 3.

Conoco Executive Raps Senate Bill

HOUSTON — The petroleum wealth of Texas is entirely dependent upon the continued efficient operation and economic well-being of the refining and marketing segments of the oil industry. Yet pending legislation in the U. S. Senate threatens to throw these segments into chaos if not into bankruptcy, Lloyd F. Thanhouser, Houston, vice president and general counsel of Continental Oil Company, said here last week.

Thanhouser spoke at a forum sponsored by five leading petroleum associations, which was held to acquaint Texas' junior senator, Ralph W. Yarborough, with oil industry problems.

Representing the American Petroleum Institute, Thanhouser said Senate Bill S. 11 is designed to kill the defense of good-fath meeting of competition and to abolish price competition throughout American business and industry.

"BLOW TO REFINERS"

"This proposed measure is far more dangerous to oil and a host of other industries than any other single piece of pending legislation," he said. "It would almost certainly condemn independent refiners to a lingering death. It would surely wipe out another whole branch of the oil business—the independent jobbers.

"Even the service station operators would find themselves gravely hurt," he added, "for their suppliers could no longer help them to survive a local price war."

Pointing out the importance of petroleum refining and marketing to the Texas economy, the Conoco executive said the combined capacity of the 56 refineries in Texas is about 2,500,000 barrels of crude per day. This represents over twice the refining capacity of any other state and more than one-quarter of all the refining capacity in the country.

There are some 13,000 service stations in Texas, he continued, with annual sales of about $700,000,000. These sales produce over $170,000,000 of yearly gasoline tax revenue for the state treasury.

LOWEST AND CEILING

"The total investment in Texas refining and marketing properties is approximately $3 billion," he added. "Some 50,000 Texans are employed in the manufacture of petroleum products and roughly another 50,000 are engaged in marketing those products."

Thanhouser explained that under the proposed legislation in the Senate no businessman could lawfully reduce his price to retain his most valuable customer or any one of them, without giving the same price reduction to all of his customers.

"His lowest price anywhere would be his ceiling price everywhere," he said.

"Manufacturers could not compete in distant markets because freight absorption would likewise be outlawed by S. 11," said Thanhouser. "That would necessarily lead to local monopolies surrounding each individual manufacturing plant, and the owner of a single plant in a rural area would be frozen out of most choice metropolitan markets.

Drilling School Has Openings

AUSTIN—A limited number of company scholarships are still available for the eighth session of the School of Drilling Technology which opens Monday, Feb. 10, at Odessa, Texas.

Sponsored by the American Association of Oilwell Drilling Contractors, the six-week school for drilling industry supervisory personnel is conducted by the Petroleum Extension Service of the University of Texas. The school is held on the campus of Odessa Junior College.

Richard L. Dailey, Petex coordinator, pointed out that this is the first session of the drilling school that has not had enrollment oversubscribed. Several foreign students have postponed attendance until the fall session, he said.

Attendance is open to all supervisory personnel of drilling contracting firms, oil producers and service companies, on a company scholarship basis.

Applications are being accepted by the Petroleum Extension Service, University of Texas, Austin 12, Texas.

The School of Drilling Technology has gained world-wide recognition since its beginning in October, 1954.

AUSTIN—Opening dates have been set for 1958 spring terms of the four Schools of Technology conducted by the University of Texas Petroleum Extension Service in cooperation with the oil industry.

The schools, probably the only ones of their kind in the world, are:

Drilling, opening Feb. 10, at Odessa; production, opening Feb. 10 at Kilgore; gas, opening Feb. 17 at Conroe; pipeline, opening April 14 at Baytown.

The concentrated courses cover 180 hours of study in six weeks, indoctrinating young college graduates and supervisory personnel in the applied methods of their fields.

Completions Are Lagging

AUSTIN, Feb. 1 (AP) — The Railroad Commission reported today 303 oil and 36 gas wells were completed during the past seven days in Texas.

The oil wells boosted this year's total to 1,592, a decrease from 1,726 last year. Gas wells were up 38 from last year with a 211 total. There were 115 holes for the week, the report said.

In unproven territory, 14 oil and 2 gas wells were completed. Both totals are down for the year. Oil wildcats number 43 as compared to 64 last year and gas wells brought in totaled nine compared to 16 for 1957.

The total average calendar day oil allowable today was down 44,323 barrels from last Saturday. The average allowable today was 2,999,660 barrels as compared to 3,043,983 last weekend.

A total 171 wells were plugged.

Martin Deep Test Making Progress

Husky & Pano Tech No. 1 W. M. Yates drilled at the end of the week past 11,373 feet in lime. The Martin County Devonian wildcat is 10 miles southwest of Patricia, and half a mile north of the Husky & Pano Tech No. 1 Breedlove, recent discovery.

Drillsite is 660 from south and west lines. Tract 22, League 263, Kent CSL Survey.

Mitchell Projects Continue Drilling

Two projects in the Westbrook field of Mitchell County were reported deepening this weekend.

The Col-Tex No. 31-E Morrison, about five miles northwest of Westbrook, made hole at 1,600 feet Saturday. It is 2,331 feet from the south and 1,680 feet from east lines, 20-38-1n, T&P Survey.

About five miles west of Westbrook, TXL Oil Corp. No. 4 Mitchell Fee drilled through lime at 2,868 feet Saturday. Location is 1,220 feet from south and 1,400 feet from east lines, 37-29-1n, T&P Survey.

Drop In Drilling Seen As Matter For Grave Concern

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Feb. 1 (AP) — The president of the American Assn. of Oilwell Drilling Contractors says a steady decline in drilling causes grave concern.

J. U. Teague of Houston said there is a strong indication that disintegration of the drilling industry has begun.

"If conditions don't change, we may be in for a serious illness," he said.

Teague blames the drilling slump on low domestic oil production levels.

"If our customer can't produce and market his oil and gas at a fair price then he isn't going to drill wells," he said.

"It is of grave concern to us that the average number of rigs operating in the United States has declined steadily since the peak reached in 1955."

Teague said continuation of the trend could threaten the drilling industry's labor force of from 50,000 to 60,000 skilled workers.

"The maintenance of this group intact and strong is as vital to the welfare and safety of this nation as its military forces," he said.

"It is as simple as this — no drilling industry, no wells drilled; no wells drilled, no oil produced; no oil produced, no nation."

The economic health of the drilling contractors, he said, is directly dependent on the health and vigor of the domestic oil producer.

Teague said members of his association own and operate about 75 per cent of the rotary drilling rigs in the United States and drill 93 per cent of the nation's oil and gas drilling operations.

He said the National Petroleum Council in 1953 estimated that to maintain a drilling program of 50,000 wells a year—a rate exceeded the past four years—about 453 drilling rigs would have to be replaced annually.

"In 1956 there were only 280 new rigs sold in the United States," he said. "In the past year, I am sure the figure was even less. If the Petroleum Council's assumption is correct, or even roughly so, we can only conclude that the American drilling contractor is using up his rigs today without hope of replacing them."

Cosden To Final Ector Prospect

Cosden Petroleum Corp. prepared to complete a well in the Goldsmith 5600 field of Ector County and also announced location of another try in the field Saturday.

The Cosden No. 1-P Cowden set seven-inch oil string at 5,745 feet at the end of the week and prepared to complete. Completion will be from the Clear Fork. The well is 555 feet from south and west lines of the west half of the northeast quarter, 9-43-2n, T&P Survey.

Cosden's new location will be the No. 3-H R. B. Cowden. Drillsite is 555 feet from south and west lines of the northeast quarter, 4-43-1n, T&P Survey, and about eight miles northwest of Goldsmith.

Drilling depth is 5,900 feet.

In Garza County, Cosden No. 2-B Stocker drilled in anhydrite at 1,335 feet Saturday. It is located 990 feet from west and 2,310 feet from the south lines, 945-97, H&TC Survey.

Stewart To Retire From Oil-Gas Post

By CHARLES HASLET

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP) — A veteran and well known oil man is about to retire for the second time—this time from government service.

Hugh A. Stewart retired the first time in 1948 after 25 years with The Texas Co. But it lasted only a year. He came to Washington as director of the Interior Department's oil and gas division.

Now 69, Stewart is retiring March 1 after eight years of handling oil and gas problems for Uncle Sam. Two crises—the war in Korea and the Suez Canal blockade—multiplied the problems for him.

"I'm just going to sit back for a week or 10 days and take a look at what's going on," he said. "Then I'll make up my plans as I go along."

He expects to remain in Washington for several months, if not longer.

Stewart was Rocky Mountain division manager of The Texas Co.'s production department before his first retirement.

One of his jobs in the government assignment was directing research work in the petroleum industry relating to national security and national defense.

In the Suez Canal crisis, Stewart helped organize the oil lift to Europe in 1956 and his office supervised the operation until tankers were again moving through the canal.

Both sides look for a close vote when the Natural Gas Bill comes before the House.

Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex) has announced the controversial bill will be called up this month for disposition.

TEXAN UNDER CONSIDERATION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP) — Reports circulated today at the Interior Department that Gordon Guiberson, Dallas oilfield equipment manufacturer, is being considered for appointment as director of the department's oil and gas division.

It was reported that Jack Porter, Texas National Republican Committeeman, had recommended Guiberson.

Another Sucessful Launching

While Von Braun was busily launching America's first space satellite Friday evening, the Big Spring lodge of Supreme Order of the Moose was successfully launching its first teen-age dance. Moose members and special guests, as chaperones, mingled unobtrusively with the 115 youngsters who attended. In the top picture, Lyn Anderson signs in as Bill Parsons, Karen Montgomery and Sandy Hale await their turn with the pen. In the bottom photo, Moose chief Sam Burns and Sheriff Miller Harris, at left, joke with Bill Borries, at right, while Janet Carpenter and Bill Sawyers, Moose Teen Club chairman, listen in.

Bids On Airport May Be Asked For About March 1

Unless unforeseen difficulties arise, Howard County Commissioners Court will be called upon to consider bids for the building of the Howard County Airport sometime around March 1.

This was the prediction Saturday when it was announced that the Civil Aeronautics Authority in Fort Worth would begin consideration of the final plans and specifications for the project Monday.

Louis Jean Thompson, engineer, said that the plans have been completed and ready for several days but that the CAA set Monday as the day it desired to receive them. Thompson, and perhaps R. H. Weaver, county judge, will go to Fort Worth. The CAA indicated it desired to confer with the engineer on the plans.

The CAA has assured the local authorities that it will act on the plans within five days. Since there seems to be no logical reason why the agency should withhold approval, it is anticipated the formal acceptance will be on hand within a week.

There may be a few minor changes suggested but Thompson said these would not preclude the publication of advertisement for bids for the $900,000 job immediately. Such advertisements will probably run for at least three and possibly four weeks. This, Thompson said, will make it possible the bids for the airport can be ready for consideration by March 1.

Car Plates On Sale Monday

The 1958 Texas car license plates, all shiny and new, will go on sale in the office of Viola Robinson, county tax collector, Monday.

The new tags, featuring black backgrounds with white lettering, are on hand. Price for the tags this year is about 10 per cent more than it was when the first 1957 tags were offered for sale.

Likewise, the new regulations require that applicants for new plates must present their certificate of title and their last year tag receipts. All applicants are urged to bring these with them to the office as a means of saving their own time and that of the deputies.

A considerable number of motorists, who requested special numbers, have already filed their papers and left their check with the tax assessor.

Daughter Is Born To Jack Shaffers

Deputy Sheriff Jack Shaffer was handing out cigars Saturday.

He is the father of a new daughter born Friday night at the Big Spring Hospital.

The Shaffers, who live at 1102 Blackmon, have one other child, a son. Mrs. Shaffer was formerly office deputy in the office of Miller Harris, sheriff.

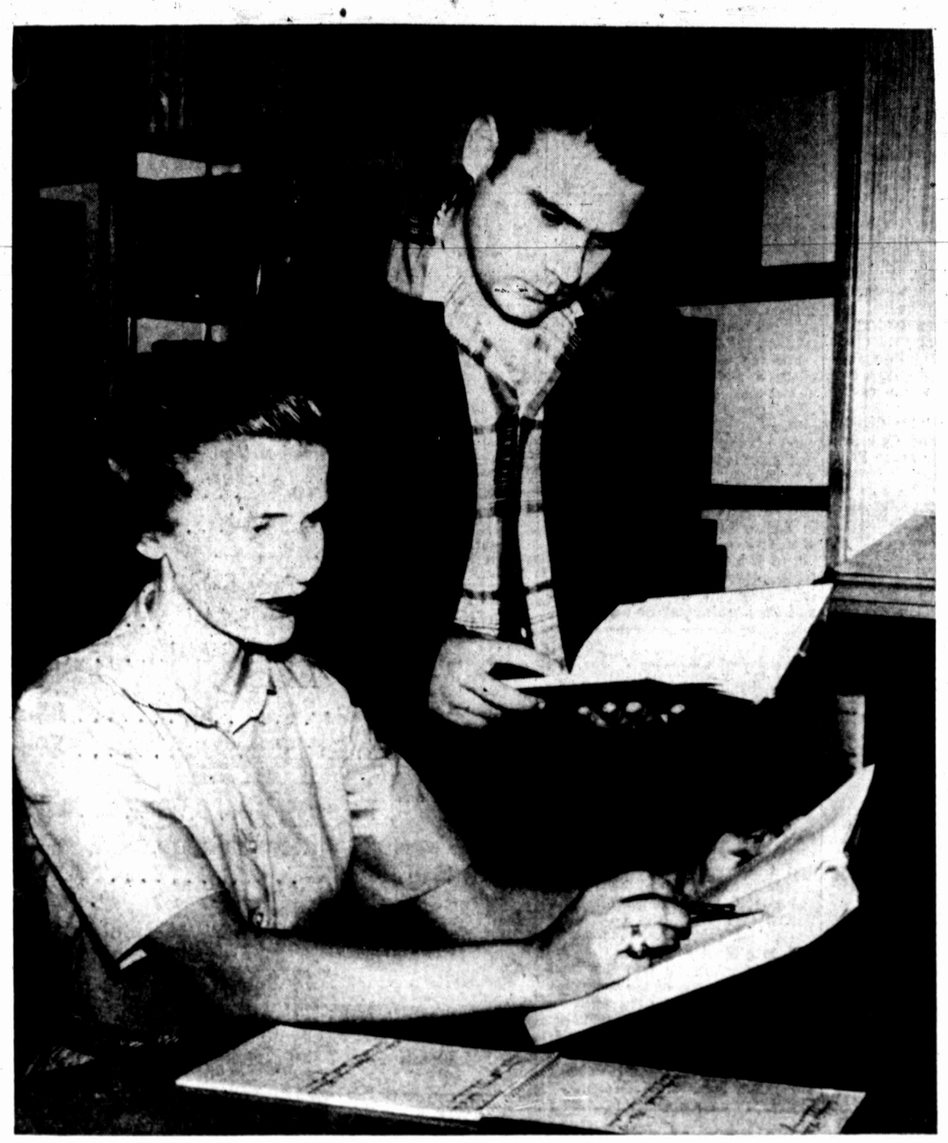
College Is A Family Affair



STUDY IS A CO-OPERATIVE THING when couples attend school as Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Earl Phillips have learned. He is a sophomore at Howard County Junior College and she is a freshman student. Though both are Big Spring products, they now live in Knott, where he is pastor of the Knott Baptist Church. The couple has lived in Knott since Oct. 28, 1957, and the added distance doesn't add to the ease of attending school. They have a son, Wesley, is 18 months old today.

WOMEN'S NEWS
BIG SPRING HERALD
SUNDAY, FEB. 2, 1958

NO TIME FOR DAWDLING over food at the Marvin Wooldridges', 1709 Settles, when class time is near for Daddy or Mommy. To save time, it is the custom of the two college students for each to prepare a plate for a child; this is just one of the ways in which the homemaker is assisted by her student husband as she pursues her studies at Howard County Junior College. Sandra, 1½ and Mike, 4½, wait eagerly to start in on the appetizing meal.

AN EVER PRESENT HELP for the HCJC co-ed, Mrs. Marvin Berkeland, is her husband, who is also a student at the college. He serves as chaplain at the state hospital, where he has been since last fall. Help with housework is always welcome to a homemaker, and this is especially true when there are classes to meet, lesssons to study and meals to prepare, with all the dirty dishes connected with that activity.

TAKES TWO AT BEDTIME in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Vick, 105 East 22nd, when it comes to tucking the boys into their beds. When Mommy keeps house and goes to school, too, Daddy has to help out before he leaves for his classes; he is attending night school at HCJC. This is his third year of school and the second for Mrs. Vick. Some of the intellectual atmosphere seems to be influencing three-year-old Greg and Stan, who is a year old, since they both "read" throughout the process of undressing.

EVEN GROCERY SHOPPING is done together, when both members of a family attend school, as witness Maj. and Mrs. Maurice January, 803 West 18th, as they return home from the food store. This is the first year of attending Howard County Junior College for both of them, and they find that it really "is something to keep you busy." Originally from San Francisco, Calif., the major is stationed at Webb Air Force Base; Mrs. January's home is in Wisconsin. They have lived in Big Spring for about two and a half years.

MR. AND MRS. DICK WILLIAMS

Rule For Happy Marriage Given By Bridegroom Of 50 Years Ago

"I just kept my mouth shut and let her do all the talking."

That's the formula given by R. O. Williams for the 50 years of married life, which he and Mrs. Williams will celebrate this afternoon at a tea in their home, 828 West Seventh.

Friends will gather from 2:30 to 5 p.m. today to honor the couple, who has lived in Big Spring since 1937. Hostesses for the tea will be two nieces, Mrs. Draper Brown and Mrs. Bernard Cottom, both of Lamesa.

Because Bea Sawyers was accompanist for the Methodist Church at Quinlan, she played the piano at a brush arbor meeting in Cash, about five miles from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sawyers.

It was there that she met her future husband, who now insists that he "didn't have a chance to get away from her." The twinkle in his eyes, as he maintains that, shows that he is glad the chance didn't present itself!

The wedding took place at the Sawyers home on Feb. 5, 1908, with a Rev. Conklin of the Methodist Church in Quinlan, reading the vows.

Williams farmed near Cash for a number of years following their marriage, and then the couple moved to Big Spring, where he did carpenter work. He is now building custodian at the Junior High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams are members of Park Methodist Church.

This afternoon, the tea table will be laid with a gold cloth under a white lace cover and will be decorated with an arrangement of gold chrysanthemums. A cake, frosted in white, will bear yellow roses and the date of the couple's wedding with their names in yellow frosting.

by Anne Klein — Junior Sophisticates

SOPHISTICATED AIR

Junior-Size Frock Cut Princess Style

Anne Klein has achieved success by giving her junior-sized collections that enviable air of sophistication which makes them right for any age with junior measurements.

This princess model with its snap-in fluted gilet and collar is cut with a special curve over the bust and side darts that give shape in the midriff.

This is the kind of handling that gives a "made-to-order" look and is simple to achieve since the pattern is accurately cut by hand. A step-in dress that can be lined if you make it in the three quarter sleeve version in wool, it is delightful for summer in novelty cottons, shantung or linen with contrasting trim.

The ruffles are gathered onto the buttoned bands for easy laundering and ironing.

From this chart select the one size best for you:

Size	Bust	Waist	Hips	Nape of Neck to Waist
9	33½	22½	34½	inches 16 inches
11	34½	24½	35½	" 16¾ "
13	36	26	37	" 16½ "
15	37½	27½	38½	" 16¾ "
17	39	29	40	" 17 "

Size 13 requires 2⅞ yards of 54-inch material for dress and ½ yard of 35-inch material for interfacing.

To order Pattern No. 1249, state size, send $1—for ANNE KLEIN label, send 25 cents.

For Jumbo 96 page booklet No. 14, send 50 cents. Address SPADEA, Big Spring Herald, Box 535, G.P.O., Dept. B-5, New York 1, N. Y.

Miss Davie, Douglas Kohout Say Wedding Vows Saturday Evening

Double ring wedding vows were exchanged by Frances Davie and Douglas Kohout Saturday evening at the Northside Baptist Church. Dr. P. D. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist Church, read the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Davie, 1107 North Gregg, and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kohout, Stamford.

The bridal party stood before a background of candelabra, festooned with greenery and tied with white satin. Baskets of white gladioli flanked the candle holders.

The Lord's Prayer and Whither Thou Goest were sung by Bud Hill, soloist, accompanied by Ima Joy Williamson of Stanton, a cousin of the bride, who played other wedding music.

The bride's father gave her in marriage. She was attired in a gown of white taffeta with a ballerina length full skirt. Tiny buttons extended down the front of the bodice, which came to points in front and back; buttons also fastened the long pointed sleeves.

The bride carried a nosegay of white carnations and white ribbon streamers on a white Bible.

The Bible is one belonging to her cousin, Mrs. Ray Weaver, and it served as something old; her dress was new, and she had borrowed pearls from Arlene Barron. She wore a blue garter.

Mrs. Charlie Lawson, of Stamford, sister of the bridegroom, attended as matron of honor, and her husband served as best man.

Mrs. Lawson's frock was made of blue taffeta in the same style as that of the bride, and she carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Guests were seated by Charles Barbee of Midland and Ted Ferrell, Big Spring. Altar taper lighters were Lunell and Arlene Barron.

A wedding reception was held in the home of the bride's parents, where the table was decorated in pink and white. A cake centered the table, laid in a lace cloth over pink, and pink flowers formed a base for the confection topped with a bridal pair.

Mrs. Royce Dean of Stamford, an aunt of the bridegroom, was at the register. Members of the house party, who assisted with the serving, were Mrs. Bennie Blissard, Mrs. Bill Grigg and Mrs. Louis Stallings.

Attending from out of town were the parents of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Homer Scott and Leatha, Mrs. Toyah Gray and Mrs. Dean, all of Stamford; friends from Ackerly, Stanton and Midland were present for the reception.

For the wedding trip, the bride chose a red knit suit with black patent leather shoes and bag, white gloves and hat.

The new Mrs. Kohout is a graduate of Big Spring High School and attended Howard County Junior College. She was a member of the volley ball team, the Shorthand Club and the Majors Club in BSHS. In the college, she was secretary of the WRA Club.

The bridegroom was graduated from Stamford High School and is now employed by the Texas and Pacific Railway as dispatcher.

Couple Channels Talents To Creative Hobbies, Volunteer Work

Prospective Writing Team

Writing is a major interest of S-Sgt. and Mrs. George Bauman whose range of talents has also been put to use in community theatre and volunteer work with teen-agers. Here they peruse a manuscript (their first as a team) which is two-thirds finished.

When they were students in Macalester College, St. Paul, Minn., the best thing that happened in Greek class was that they first met there. So state S.Sgt. and and Mrs. George Bauman, who studied at the college for four years. His major was speech and dramatics, hers was religious education.

Since their arrival Dec. 21, for his assignment at Webb Air Force Base, the Baumans have followed with more than mild interest the developments within the Big Spring Civic Theatre. They have appeared in student productions at Macalester.

In this one month of residence in Big Spring, they have taken an instant liking to the town and her people and want to become useful citizens of the community. Mrs. Bauman was hopeful of finding a YWCA here; she has had training to qualify her for volunteer work with such an organization and has worked with teen-agers.

She is a graduate model and is a skillful seamstress, making many of her clothes. Although she did not make her own wedding dress, she designed the Chantilly lace gown, all 110 yards of it. Currently she is beginning a collection of alabaster, and another collection is of teapots.

Prominent in their attractive living room at 1603-A Lincoln is a hi-fi instrument, which is kept whirring throughout the day with Sgt. Bauman's tremendous accumulation of opera recordings, classical and semi-popular selections, musicals and mood music. Sgt. Bauman, who in June will have had four years of service in the Air Force, hopes later to acquire his chaplain's commission.

Minnesota is the native state of this Presbyterian couple who will have been married 10 months on Feb. 10. A white leather album records the memorable event in photographs. There are also pictures of the elaborate wedding cake, which was baked by the woman who makes President Eisenhower's birthday cakes. The Baumans recall that their cake was shipped from Volga, South Dakota, via express. Encased in cellophane, it traveled atop a spread of 10 pillows.

The Baumans' ultimate objective is to become a writing team. Her forte will be juvenile fiction. He aspires to do adult fiction and perhaps a column in a religious organ. They are already well embarked on the first manuscript which they have drafted as a team.

Candlelight Ceremony Unites Miss Fancher, Ronald Houston

LAMESA — A candlelight ceremony united in marriage Shirley Ann Fancher and Ronald G. Houston Friday evening in the sanctuary of the Bryan Street Baptist Church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fancher of Rt. A, Lamesa, and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Houston of Mesa, Ariz.

The altar of the church was banked with greenery and white mums with branched candelabra holding white cathedral tapers completing the setting. The aisle was marked with tapers tied with white satin bows.

The Rev. Steve Kmetko of Mesa, Ariz., read the double ring ceremony. Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Dick Edwards and Carolyn Adamson presented wedding selections. They also accompanied Nancy Bowers as she sang "Pledging My Love," and Julia Holder singing Whither Thou Goest" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Tapers were lighted by Linda McPhaul and Beth Ann DuBose.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an original model wedding gown of white imported Chantilly type lace and nylon tulle. Designed with a high neckline framed with an upstanding collar of lace, the fitted lace bodice featured a sheer yoke with appliques of lace. Her long sleeves ended in points over the hands.

The chapel length skirt was fashioned of alternating ruffled tiers of scalloped lace and nylon tulle. Her veil of silk illusion was joined to a cap of lace embroidered with seed pearls. She carried a white orchid surrounded by feathered carnations atop a white Bible.

ATTENDANTS

Virginia Fancher was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Linda Hudgeons, Lubbock, aunt of the bride; Ruth Flenniken, Marylyn Cox and Lynda Gorman. They were gowned identically in ballerina length dresses of pink crystaline. Fashioned along princess lines, the accent was on the backs which had tiny double pleats at the waistlines. Their short fitted jackets featured Queen Anne collars with the long tapered sleeves ending in points over the hands. Double tiaras of iridescent braid, enhanced with seed pearls holding circular veils, formed the attendants' headdresses. Pink carnations were used to fashion the colonial bouquets.

R. E. Houston, uncle of the bridegroom, was the best man. Ushers included Larry Houston, Mesa, brother of the bridegroom; Charles Ball, Charles Zeeck and Gary Everett.

Craig Houston, cousin of the bridegroom was the ring bearer. Gienna Houston, sister of the bridegroom, was the flower girl. She wore a frock of pink crystalene fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and puffed sleeves. She wore a tiara of pink carnations and carried a basket of rose petals.

Marjean Carouth Bride Of Mr. Lankford Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Lankford are on a wedding trip to Corpus Christi following the exchange of vows Saturday evening at the home of the bridegroom, 1402 Stadium.

The Rev. A. R. Posey, pastor of Baptist Temple, read the double ring ceremony.

'ROUND TOWN

With Lucille Pickle

The young man who has taken over the designing reigns of the Christian Dior Salon in Paris has certainly caused a furore in the fashion world. His new fashions are to be unveiled on Feb. 27 and the Parisians are so excited many are weeping with just the very thought of such a great thing happening. According to the advance publicity, the styles thought up by the new genius are expected to cause even greater upsets than M. Dior's New Look.

It seems that Jayne Mansfield got sewed in her wedding dress just in time to escape the 'sack'. She'd better hurry and do something commendable before her publicity runs out, or all her assets are going to be covered loosely and for her that won't be good.

Society For Crippled

The Society for Crippled Children and Adults will have the regular meeting at the Health Unit Monday at 5 p.m. This has been announced by Bo Bowen, secretary of the society and public health nurse. All members are urged to attend.

All-America Selection Of Gladioli Announced

In the vast number of new bulb and seed introductions each year, the smart gardener is relying more and more for guidance on approval by the various reputable testing groups. One of these groups is the All-America Selections for the different flowers such as roses, annuals, gladious, camellias, and others.

Recently announced is the All-America gladiolus selgction for 1958. This new member of the growing All-America family is Emperor. It is the only variety selected for the 1958 award, and it joins the four previous award-winners, Royal Stewart, Caribbean, Appleblossom and Maytime to bring to America's gardeners the "cream of the crop."

Emperor is a plant of spectacular height. Of regal purple with an ermine white throat, it presents a colorful display. Emperor makes very tall, majestic spikes with seven or eight of its round, recurved florets open at one time. The plants are unusually robust and the spikes consistently tall and straight.

Some test gardens report it as the tallest variety ever grown, often reaching over six feet in height. The rich distinctive color of Emperor, its health and vigor, and ease of growing are characteristics which make it an ideal flower for the home garden.

It has already distinguished itself on the show table as a seedling and it possesses the qualities of an all-time garden favorite.

Royal Stewart (medium red) Appleblossom (pink and white), Caribbean (ruffled blue) and Maytime (deep pink with white throat), the previous All-America winners, and the 1958 winner, Emperor, serve to emphasize the rapid advance that has been made in improving the gladiolus during recent years. Glads are easy to grow, and with moderately good care, anyone—even a beginner—can grow show spikes in any type of soil.

Each All-America winner has been grown and rated in each of the trial gardens located coast to coast, north and south, in the United States and Canada, in every type of soil and climate. The number of trial gardens has been increased to 35 commencing with 1957.

All North American gladiolus hybridists have the privilege of entering their outstanding new orinations for the All-America Award, and recommendation by this non-profit industry-wide organization is recognized as the most coveted award for any gladiolus.

Every variety tested is rated on these specific traits: Color value, freedom from short flowerheads, floret form, substance, facing and placement, attachment of florets, freedom from weathering, opening and keeping qualities, individuality, freedom from crooking, foliage health, husk and bulb health and propagation.

CAMPUS CHATTER

By KATHY McREE

Monday and Tuesday were days set aside for registration at the college this past week. Quite a few students who are new or are transfers from other schools registered. Some of the transfers are Donald Hewitt, Pat Brunton from Tech; R. D. Ross from Texas University; Wayne Dittloff from A&M; Don Paul Jones from Oklahoma University, and Jerry Barron from Sul Ross.

A few of the new students are Bobby Mote of Midland; Frances Booker of Colorado City; Jackie Culpepper and Joe Beard of Big Spring; Charles Northcutt from Colorado City and Sonny Dyer of Andrews.

Several of the new students plan to take part in the athletic department of our school. Two new members of the basketball team are Ray Clay, a transfer from New Mexico A&M, and Ronnie Hendelimnn, who has just gotten out of the Army. Sylvia Smith has come to HCJC from Waller, to join the Queens volleyball team. R. D. Ross will serve as track manager this season.

Although we are happy to see so many new students come to HCJC, we are sorry that some left us to go to senior colleges. We certainly will miss Billie Freeman, a transfer to Tech; Royce Hull, who went to San Angelo College; Gary Tidwell, a transfer to Austin College; Dee Grissom and Jimmy Wheeler, transfers to North Texas; and Brick Johnson, who also went to Tech.

During the registration period, the Baptist Student Union very graciously set up a refreshment table, serving punch and cookies to students and teachers. Ray Weathers, Frances Reynolds, Hubert Murphy, and Kirk Faulkner were a few of the BSU members helping out.

The between-semester holidays brought many ex-Jayhawkers home. Some of them came to the basketball game or to the Student Union Building to visit with old friends. Everyone was glad to see Glen Jenkins, Billy McIlvain, Marleen and David Dibrell, Max and Laverne McCullough, Judy and Al Kloven, Marilou Staggs, Yvonne Peterson, Mary Sue Hale, Buddy Mayes, Don Lovelace.

Also celebrating the brief holiday were Dell Woodruff, Doug Barrage, Tommy Zinn and Bennie Carver. They went to Dallas, Irving, and Bowie.

Tuesday night the Hawks journeyed to Odessa to play their first conference game. Although they lost 83-71, the Jayhawk backers have high hopes for the following games.

The school took the bus to the game at Odessa and a large number of students went. Those who attended the game were Milton Farris, Cookie Sneed, Cynthia Gabert, Oscar Williams, Bounce Covert, Julie Rainwater, Glendene Philley, Sue Barnes, Ronnie Phillips, Delbert Shirey, Lovelle Fletcher, Rose Stephon, Sylvia Smith, Barbara Shields, and Billy Evans.

Track season officially began last Monday afternoon at workout. The track team consists of Bobby Fuller, Ricky Phifney, Milton French, Ben Faulkner, Don Anderson, Delbert Shirey, and Jerry Barron.

Play rehearsal for the production of "Night Must Fall" is also officially under way. Mr. Fred Short announced his cast as follows: Danne Green, Joe Beard, Jackie Culpepper, Tommy Pickle, Doyle Phillips, George Kozachuk, Mr. McBurney and Sandra Havens, who is an apprentice from high school. There are two parts left for girls, so if you wish to try for either of these parts please contact Mr. Short.

Cookie Sneed had a surprise visit from several of her Seminole friends last Tuesday morning. The four visitors are students at Texas University.

Barbara Coates went to Odessa Friday afternoon to attend the funeral of her aunt.

Designers Predict Transparent Clothes

AP Newsfeatures

Men may be going around soon in transparent suits and chiffon shirts if the present trend toward light-weight clothing continues, according to members of the International Assn. of Clothing Designers.

The average man has shed about 15 pounds in clothing weight since the turn of the century, says Carl A. Forney, president of the association, who points out:

"When the breadwinner of 1900 ran for the morning trolley, he fortified himself against the cold with long underwear, heavy suit, waistcoat, leaden-weight overcoat, muffler, gloves, bowler hat and sometimes spats or leggings.

"The aim in clothing design today is light-weight clothing without heavy padding and excess linings, to give freedom of movement and avoid bulk. Today we go to work in heated cars or trains, spend the business day in scientifically heated offices and live in homes where the temperature is kept constant, summer and winter."

Grandpa's suit was made of woolen fabric so heavy it could almost stand alone, but the modern man wears feather-weight suitings which are tailored to the natural lines of his body and don't hamper his movements.

For the age of space travel ahead, say the clothing designers, men may have transparent, weightless clothing which never gets soiled and never needs pressing.

Dr. G. H. C., Shreveport, La. asserts: "These machines will reduce fat people without harmful effects to them in any way . . . also effective in relaxing contracted muscles and moderately stiff joints that have become so as a result of certain systemic diseases."

Mrs. A. L. P., registered nurse, Dallas, Texas, says: "After only 21 treatments I am happy to say I have lost approximately 20 pounds . . . these treatments have, literally, given me a new lease on life."

Mrs. S. F., Alexandria, La., says: "In May of this year I was wearing size 20 dresses. I am now a size 16 and it has all been done with Lady-B-Lovely tables." A medical doctor, a registered nurse, and a business woman—

Receive Diplomas And Pins

All-America Selection Of Gladioli Announced

In the vast number of new bulb and seed introductions each year, the smart gardener is relying more and more for guidance on approval by the various reputable testing groups. One of these groups is the All-America Selections for the different flowers such as roses, annuals, gladious, camellias, and others.

Recently announced is the All-America gladiolus selection for 1958. This new member of the growing All-America family is Emperor. It is the only variety selected for the 1958 award, and it joins the four previous award-winners, Royal Stewart, Caribbean, Appleblossom and Maytime to bring to America's gardeners the "cream of the crop."

Emperor is a plant of spectacular height. Of regal purple with an ermine white throat, it presents a colorful display. Emperor makes very tall, majestic spikes with seven or eight of its round, recurved florets open at one time. The plants are unusually robust and the spikes consistently tall and straight.

Some test gardens report it as the tallest variety ever grown, often reaching over six feet in height. The rich distinctive color of Emperor, its health and vigor, and ease of growing are characteristics which make it an ideal flower for the home garden.

It has already distinguished itself on the show table as a seedling and it possesses the qualities of an all-time garden favorite.

Royal Stewart (medium red) Appleblossom (pink and white), Caribbean (ruffled blue) and Maytime (deep pink with white throat), the previous All-America winners, and the 1958 winner, Emperor, serve to emphasize the rapid advance that has been made in improving the gladiolus during recent years. Glads are easy to grow, and with moderately good care, anyone—even a beginner—can grow show spikes in any type of soil.

Each All-America winner has been grown and rated in each of the trial gardens located coast to coast, north and south, in the United States and Canada, in every type of soil and climate. The number of trial gardens has been increased to 35 commencing with 1957.

All North American gladiolus hybridists have the privilege of entering their outstanding new orinations for the All-America Award, and recommendation by this non-profit industry-wide organization is recognized as the most coveted award for any gladiolus.

Every variety tested is rated on these specific traits: Color value, freedom from short flowerheads, floret form, substance, facing and placement, attachment of florets, freedom from weathering, opening and keeping qualities, individuality, freedom from crooking, foliage health, husk and bulb health and propagation.

CAMPUS CHATTER

By KATHY McREE

Monday and Tuesday were days set aside for registration at the college this past week. Quite a few students who are new or are transfers from other schools registered. Some of the transfers are Donald Hewitt, Pat Brunton from Tech; R. D. Ross from Texas University; Wayne Dittloff from A&M; Don Paul Jones from Oklahoma University, and Jerry Barron from Sul Ross.

A few of the new students are Bobby Mote of Midland; Frances Booker of Colorado City; Jackie Culpepper and Joe Beard of Big Spring; Charles Northcutt from Colorado City and Sonny Dyer of Andrews.

Several of the new students plan to take part in the athletic department of our school. Two new members of the basketball team are Ray Clay, a transfer from New Mexico A&M, and Ronnie Hendelimnn, who has just gotten out of the Army. Sylvia Smith has come to HCJC from Waller, to join the Queens volleyball team. R. D. Ross will serve as track manager this season.

Although we are happy to see so many new students come to HCJC, we are sorry that some left us to go to senior colleges. We certainly will miss Billie Freeman, a transfer to Tech; Royce Hull, who went to San Angelo College; Gary Tidwell, a transfer to Austin College; Dee Grissom and Jimmy Wheeler, transfers to North Texas; and Brick Johnson, who also went to Tech.

During the registration period, the Baptist Student Union very graciously set up a refreshment table, serving punch and cookies to students and teachers. Ray Weathers, Frances Reynolds, Hubert Murphy, and Kirk Faulkner were a few of the BSU members helping out.

The between-semester holidays brought many ex-Jayhawkers home. Some of them came to the basketball game or to the Student Union Building to visit with old friends. Everyone was glad to see Glen Jenkins, Billy McIlvain, Marleen and David Dibrell, Max and Laverne McCullough, Judy and Al Kloven, Marilou Staggs, Yvonne Peterson, Mary Sue Hale, Buddy Mayes, Don Lovelace.

Also celebrating the brief holiday were Dell Woodruff, Doug Barrage, Tommy Zinn and Bennie Carver. They went to Dallas, Irving, and Bowie.

Tuesday night the Hawks journeyed to Odessa to play their first conference game. Although they lost 83-71, the Jayhawk backers have high hopes for the following games.

The school took the bus to the game at Odessa and a large number of students went. Those who attended the game were Milton Farris, Cookie Sneed, Cynthia Gabert, Oscar Williams, Bounce Covert, Julie Rainwater, Glendene Philley, Sue Barnes, Ronnie Phillips, Delbert Shirey, Lovelle Fletcher, Rose Stephon, Sylvia Smith, Barbara Shields, and Billy Evans.

Track season officially began last Monday afternoon at workout. The track team consists of Bobby Fuller, Ricky Phinney, Milton French, Ben Faulkner, Don Anderson, Delbert Shirey, and Jerry Barron.

Play rehearsal for the production of "Night Must Fall" is also officially under way. Mr. Fred Short announced his cast as follows: Danne Green, Joe Beard, Jackie Culpepper, Tommy Pickle, Doyle Phillips, George Kozachuk, Mr. McBurney and Sandra Havens, who is an apprentice from high school. There are two parts left for girls, so if you wish to try for either of these parts please contact Mr. Short.

Cookie Sneed had a surprise visit from several of her Seminole friends last Tuesday morning. The four visitors are students at Texas University.

Barbara Coates went to Odessa Friday afternoon to attend the funeral of her aunt.

'ROUND TOWN

The young man who has taken over the designing reigns of the Christian Dior Salon in Paris has certainly caused a furore in the fashion world. His new fashions are to be unveiled on Feb. 27 and the Parisians are so excited many are weeping with just the very thought of such a great thing happening. According to the advance publicity, the styles thought up by the new genius are expected to cause even greater upsets than M. Dior's New Look.

It seems that Jayne Mansfield got sewed in her wedding dress just in time to escape the 'sack'. She'd better hurry and do something commendable before her publicity runs out, or all her assets are going to be covered loosely and for her that won't be good.

OH, DEAR ME!

Designers Predict Transparent Clothes

AP Newsfeatures

Men may be going around soon in transparent suits and chiffon shirts if the present trend toward light-weight clothing continues, according to members of the International Assn. of Clothing Designers.

The average man has shed about 15 pounds in clothing weight since the turn of the century, says Carl A. Forney, president of the association, who points out:

"When the breadwinner of 1900 ran for the morning trolley, he fortified himself against the cold with long underwear, heavy suit, waistcoat, leaden-weight overcoat, muffler, gloves, bowler hat and sometimes spats or leggings.

"The aim in clothing design today is light-weight clothing without heavy padding and excess linings, to give freedom of movement and avoid bulk. Today we go to work in heated cars or trains, spend the business day in scientifically heated offices and live in homes where the temperature is kept constant, summer and winter."

Grandpa's suit was made of woolen fabric so heavy it could almost stand alone, but the modern man wears feather-weight suitings which are tailored to the natural lines of his body and don't hamper his movements.

For the age of space travel ahead, say the clothing designers, men may have transparent, weightless clothing which never gets soiled and never needs pressing.

HI--TALK

By Brenda Barr

If you have noticed the football boys looking pretty smug and happy these last few days, it's because they received their jackets in assembly Wednesday. They're mighty pretty, boys, but we wonder how long it will be before the girls start taking them away from you.

Chosen from the senior class were Nita Jones, Lynne Porter, Prissy Pond, Stephen Baird, George Peacock, Julius Glickman, and Valjean LaCroix.

Sheriff, Police Chief Agree On Need For Men

By SAM BLACKBURN

Action of the Howard County Grand Jury last week in recommending that the City Commission and the Howard County Commissioners give consideration to enlarging the personnel and equipment of the city police and sheriff's department came as a big surprise to both Chief C. L. Rogers and Sheriff Miller Harris.

"We had no idea the grand jury intended to make such a recommendation," the officers said. "Nevertheless we are most gratified at their action.

"It is nice to know that someone is aware of the difficulties we face in enforcing the law and recognizes the need for both our departments to have more men and more cars."

The grand jury was impelled to its action by the flood of felony matters which were laid before it for consideration. Fifty-nine cases were considered by the grand jury and it returned 49 indictments for an all-time record number for the county.

Gil Jones, district attorney, pointed out that these cases have developed in the past three months and that the volume of criminal investigations sems to be increasing at a dangerous rate.

GROWING CITY

In its report the county grand jury pointed out that the city has grown in population and that the number of persons to be safeguarded by the police and sheriff's staffs is far outdistancing the personnel assigned to the job.

Rogers pointed out that Big Spring should augment its police force at least eight men if it is to provide adequate police protection for a city of its present population.

The national average, he said, is 1.45 policemen for each 1,000 population. This, the chief stated, is regarded by authorities to represent the minimum number of officers needed to provide the adequate protection a municipality requires.

Big Spring has an estimated population of 30,000. It has at present only 32 persons on its police payroll. Not all of these are enforcement officers.

Technically, the chief noted, the city should have at least 40 employes to qualify for the national average.

"I have three patrol cars," he said. "We need four. We have one other car—an unmarked vehicle—which I use and which is called upon to serve many other purposes. We need one more car such as this.

"We have two motorcycles. We could use another motorcycle and another officer. We have 13 patrolmen—we should have at least 16.

TRAFFIC DIVISION

"I hope someday that we can set up a traffic division in the department — devoting its time strictly to this work and to the investigation of accidents. We would need four men for such a division and at least one car.

"We have two plainclothes detectives. We certainly need a third man and we also need a car for these officers to use. They use my car when it is here. My car is also called into duty when one of the patrol cars is in the shop."

Pointing to a map of the city, Rogers indicated the way he would like to be able to patrol the city on a 24-hour basis. Such a patrol would keep one car on constant duty in the north-northwest part of town. It would likewise insure constant supervision of the downtown area as well as all parts of the city.

"We cannot do the job the way it should be with the men and cars we now have," he said. "We know that the number of matters we are called upon to handle is increasing month by month. All we can do is try and cover the ground as best we can with the men and equipment we have."

Harris said that he has an urgent need at this time for one more full time deputy sheriff and one more official car.

"I have five deputies, one jailer and an office deputy," he said. "Two of the deputies are assigned to night patrol duty and they have done a great job. That leaves three for day-time duty.

CAR NEEDED

"We have only three cars. These are on duty all of the time and when one is broken down we are in difficulty. The county juvenile officer is required to use one of our cars when he has to make a trip out of town as he frequently does. When this happens and when one of our other cars is out of repair, we have a rough time getting our work done.

"We have the entire county to cover and routine demands made for our services keep us on the go around the clock.

"We need one full time additional deputy to serve warrants—a task which we find extremely difficult to handle with our present setup. Naturally, if we had another man we need another car. In fact, we need another car even with our present staff. I have asked that the county commissioners provide a fourth car but the decision so far has been no."

Both officers said that the success their departments have enjoyed in the past year has been result of the fine spirit of cooperation between the sheriff's officers and the city police.

"We help each other every time we can," said the officers. "This cooperation has resulted in the prompt termination of a number of investigations."

In 353 B.C. Queen Artemisia of Caria erected a structure of great beauty surrounded by luxuriant gardens as a monument to the memory of her husband, King Mausolus, from whom the mausoleum gets its name. The tomb of Joseph, the rich man of Arimathaea, became the tomb of Jesus when the rich man begged Jesus' body and interred it there. Since that time, entombent has been regarded as a most desirable final tribute. But the pyramids, the Taj Mahal, the Garden Tomb of Mausolus, even the rock-hewn sepulchres of the rich of Jesus' time were only for the royal or wealthy.

It is only within very recent years that modern engineering methods have solved the problem of building such a permanent structure at a price that could be afforded by people of average means and thereby allow them to provide such a beautiful resting place for their loved ones.

Not one piece of perishable material is to be used in this building. Concrete, marble, stone and bronze are the imperishable materials that are combined by modern engineering methods to produce this Sanctuary. Now you, the man of average income, can have, if you so desire, what only royalty or the extremely wealthy could possess in the days of the Taj Mahal or Pyramids – above ground entombment.

Trinity Memorial Park, Inc.

Is Pleased To Announce Plans For

Trinity Memorial Mausoleum

Trinity Memorial Park was incorporated and development started in 1950 – with one primary purpose in mind; "To bring to this area of our State the finest in modern Cemetery construction and development."

In keeping with this policy, and made possible through the wonderful acceptance and support from the Citizens of this entire area, it is with great pride that we announce plans for Trinity Memorial Mausoleum.

This new, modern and beautiful Mausoleum will be appropriately located on an incline overlooking and surrounded by the beautiful and peaceful Gardens of Trinity Memorial Park.

Construction on this beautiful Mausoleum will begin immediately and within a few months its facilities will be available to those who prefer above ground entombment as a final tribute to their loved ones.

Trinity Memorial Mausoleum will be, as are all the beautiful lawn type gardens within Trinity Memorial Park, operated in accordance with the State Perpetual Care Cemetery Laws – with maintenance assured by the same irrevocable Trust Fund.

A Bible Thought For Today

And these things, brethren, I have in a figure transferred to myself and to Apollos for your sakes; that ye might learn in us not to think of men above that which is written, that no one of you be puffed up for one against another. (1 Corinthians 4:6)

Public Attitude Against Crime

The current grand jury of the 118th District Court has every right to be concerned about the state of law violations in the community.

This group, in its first session of the present court term, this past week returned 49 indictments, the largest number ever returned by a local grand jury according to the court records.

This unwelcome distinction is enough to prompt the members of the jury to call for action. They did make a recommendation that the city and the county consider expanding the police and sheriff department personnel and to supply more patrol cars.

More extensive patrolling would be one answer to the upswing in crime, of course; and we are not questioning the wisdom of such a step. City and county officials who undoubtedly are as concerned about the trend as anyone else, are confronted also with the problem of budgets; and they can only provide the extent of law enforcement that the people are willing to pay for.

One of the first things that will have to be done is to convince all the public that drastic steps for law enforcement have to be taken, and to convince the public that more tax money for more policemen and deputies is, after all, money well spent.

It is the public attitude that counts.

One of the major recurring violations, the grand jury found, is in the passing of worthless checks. Here is a category that cannot altogether be stopped by policemen and deputies. It can be stopped more effectively by more vigilance among merchants and in the stores and service stations, restaurants and all other places of business.

Under Chamber of Commerce auspices, business houses some months ago set up what is called an "SOS" system, whereby general alerts were sent out via an established telephone network when hot checkers appear on the scene. This SOS system has done some effective work—can continue to do so if merchants will make prompt and full use of it.

Here again, it is the public attitude that counts. The public attitude can become so outraged that senseless speeding will be stopped on the streets; that the taverns with bad records will be denied licenses; that firm penalties be meted out in those cases when the accused are found guilty by trial; that lawbreaking is generally an unwholesome thing in Big Spring.

With this, it is well to consider more officers and more extensive patrolling. The one does not work without the other.

There's Drama In The Want Ads

You know, there's more than just commercial transactions involved in the Classified Advertising columns of a newspaper—the "Want Ads," we are accustomed to calling them.

There's human drama, a lot of times, if you just get down to reading the compact type in a lot of papers, and trying to fathom what is behind certain ads.

For instance, in the Personal Column, you might read: "Genevieve, please come home. All is forgiven." And you wonder what drove Genevieve off in the first place; and in the second place, would you really want Genevieve back? Or, if you read that Elmer Zilch declines to pay any obligations other than those incurred by himself, you know that Elmer has sure enough been having trouble at home. On the other hand, if Julius Janderfoot takes an ad to proclaim his love for his wife on their 25th anniversary, you can bet they haven't been having much trouble at home.

I got to thinking you might trace out the basis of a family history with the Want Ads, so just pretend along with me:

UAW Changes Tune On Profit Sharing

WASHINGTON—Both Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers Union, and the heads of the automobile companies seem to be on the wrong side of the dispute about profit-sharing plans for the employes.

Not so long ago Mr. Reuther's union was very strongly opposed to all profit-sharing plans, while employers in various big companies were sponsoring the idea.

"Profit-sharing," said the monthly bulletin of the UAW's research department a few years ago, "is a step backward. It brings another uncertainty into the worker's life. It makes it impossible for him to depend on the money he hopes to get, and on which his family is planning for the things it wants and needs. Management people know this is true . . . .

"Nevertheless, some employers who are for profit-sharing instead of a wage increase, say frankly that they want to make capitalists out of the workers. The idea has a kind of smell of money about it that attracts some people. But workers who have tried to be capitalists in this way have found that the idea is strictly phony . . . .

"To hear management people tell it, when they want to put over profit-sharing, their profits depend entirely on how much the individual worker is willing to sweat . . .

"On what, then, do the profits depend? Profits depend, first of all, on how much the company can sell, and then they depend on the price the company gets for its product. The worker has nothing to do with either of these parts of the job management must work out in order to make money."

Yet last week Mr. Reuther, testifying before the Senate's anti-monopoly subcommittee, was arguing that unions should have a big say in price-making. He wants a share of the profits to be rebated to consumers, and urges a government agency to hold hearings and, in effect, regulate prices.

The UAW bulletin quoted above goes on to stress the fact that profit-making is really a management function:

"A wrong decision on how much inventory should be carried by the firm may wipe out profits, or a large share of them, no matter how hard the worker has worked in the shop. Mistakes in buying materials, poor engineering of the product, or in picking the sales manager—these are only some of the factors that go into determining how much profit there will be. These are decisions made by management. Under profit-sharing, the workers pay the cost of a bad decision, even though they have no control over how the decision is made . . .

"There is another reason why employers want flexibility. It makes it possible for them to compete for business, and take the competition out of the workers' pay instead of out of their own profits. If business falls off, and management has to scramble for orders, the company with the lowest price gets the business. The profit-sharing company can cut prices—by giving away the workers' share of the profits of the business. It means competition by matching one group of underpaid workers against another, and forcing each group into lower and lower pay. That's flexibility . . .

"Besides the fact that America can't depend on profit-sharing for purchasing power when 'disinflation' begins, workers have a lot of personal reasons for being against profit-sharing plans. Most of them come out of the simple fact that profit-sharing just doesn't give the worker a steady income.

"The uncertainties in the income of the average worker today are very great. Layoffs, short work weeks, seasonal and other shutdowns—all of these make it hard enough to plan family living. Labor wants greater security and dependability; therefore unions fight for call-in pay, for a guaranteed work week, for guaranteed annual wages . . .

"But union men who have seen the problem from the point of view of the whole union have been against profit-sharing since way back when . . .

"Since the days of Gompers both AFL and CIO leaders have consistently argued for a square deal in the pay envelope without the nightmare of bonuses, accounting reports, trick computations and speedups that come with the dream of a split of the company's profits . . .

"That is the UAW position and one for which the union and its membership will continue to fight with everything at hand."

All this was published in April 1949, since which time surely the philosophy of modern business and the principles behind union demands have undergone no basic change.

How Would Economy Fare If Peace Became Certain?

"Isn't it time we begin to do some hard thinking about what will happen if the diplomats actually work out some sort of negotiated peace?" asks Charles H. Stoddard, of Washington, D. C. Shouldn't the President's Council of Economic Advisers think of major shifts in federal spending from armaments to foreign investments, schools, river development, highways, etc.?

"A negotiated stalemate in the cold war could throw the United States into an economic tailspin faster than any other development. And we'd better be ready for it!"

When Nikita S. Khrushchev urgently and repetitively demands a summit conference of Soviet and U. S. officials, Mr. Stoddard's suggestion certainly deserves thoughtful analysis. We all hope peace will arrive some day, somehow. Yet, we don't want peace to bring our system—our whole economy—tumbling down. That would only validate the Soviet contention that American prosperity depends on war, on military production.

The Russians could be playing chess with our economy: Getting us geared up to war and then, when we're least ready for it, they declare peace. Unemployment and financial distress supervene. In time of cold war, implies Mr. Stoddard, we must prepare for peace. And so we must.

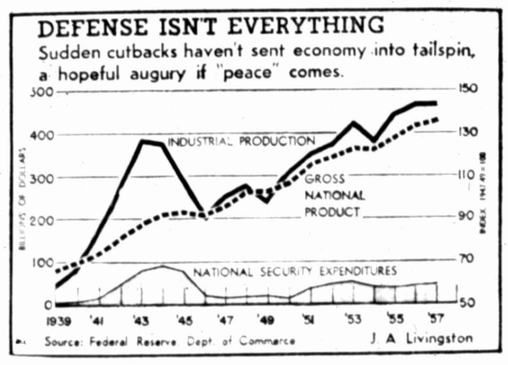
But we must put peace in perspective. Peace is unlikely to break out like Pearl Harbor. Americans—you and I—are not likely to wake up some morning to discover our jobs, our prospects, our economic security destroyed by a stroke of a diplomat's pen.

Peace is a gradual process—of reaching understanding, of generating confidence, of believing that a diminished effort to build missiles and bases and civil defense is both possible and desirable.

We've had experience with this problem—what a word for it!—of peace. After World War II, elated with the victory over Germany and Japan and anxious to "get the boys back home," we cut national security outlays:

Year	Amount
1944	$88,600,000,000
1945	75,900,000,000
1946	21,200,000,000
1947	13,300,000,000

That violent shift from "swords to ploughshares"—from $76 billion to $21 billion in a year—didn't bring chaos. Understandably, production dropped. In wartime, a much greater proportion of the nation's energies — expenditures — goes into manufacturing (planes, tanks, guns, as well as consumer goods) than into services. Activities of a nonwar, nonproductive nature are restricted. Yet, the sum of all goods and services declined only 2 per cent—from $213.6 billion in 1945 to $209.2 in 1946. (see chart).



Prophesies of 8,000,000 and more unemployed underestimated American industry's ingenuity in shifting from planes and guns to automobiles and housing.

Of course, in 1946 there was pent-up demand. Civilians, starved by wartime austerity, wanted homes, autos, refrigerators. They had the green stuff—money, saved during the war—to buy. And credit was ample.

Again, after the Korean War, the economy withstood a sharp one-year drop in national security outlays—from $51.5 billion in 1953 to $43.1 in 1954. Yet total output of goods and services declined less than 1 per cent—from $363 to $361 billion (again see chart).

Then, a tax cut averted a sharp drop in consumer buying. As the government spent less, it reduced its tax take from workers, business men, corporations. Effective spending power — demand was supported. That would recur if defense outlays were suddenly curtailed. Congress seldom is dilatory about cutting taxes. Fiscal policy suited economic necessity.

A tax cut isn't all. The federal government, even as now, would speed up peacetime expenditures. The General Services Administration in the last few weeks has been taking bids on office buildings built to federal specifications but financed privately. During 1957 lease-purchase projects, as they are called, were held up by a Treasury ceiling on GSA interest rates. Then the government wanted to curb inflation. Today, in a recession, the urgency is the other way 'round.

This isn't accidental. The Council of Economic Advisers, in concert with the Treasury and the Federal Reserve Board, studies the economic consequences of ups and downs in government expenditures of all types. What is more, President Eisenhower has a special assistant for public works planning—Major General John S. Bragdon.

Gen. Bragdon is not a policy-maker, but he and his staff are expected to know what the country's long-term needs are for roads, hospitals, schools, water works, irrigation.

In boom times, Gen. Bragdon is in a position to advise which projects can be deferred. In times of slack, he can suggest projects for an economic speedup.

Conclusion: America's not defenseless against peace.

Norman Vincent Peale

The Search For Inner Peace

This curious incident occurred when I was in a taxi headed for the National Broadcasting Company's studios in New York to make some radio recordings. Having been very busy, my manuscripts were not quite ready. In recording for radio, I read from a manuscript to be sure of exact timing. So, there in the taxi, I had the papers on my lap, trying to get through them before arrival at the studio.

The driver noticed me working and, stopping at a red light, looked back at me with a queer smile and remarked, "You must be one of those intellectuals."

"What makes you think I'm an intellectual?" I grinned.

"Well, he said, "you wear glasses, you are working on papers, even in a taxi, and you've got that busy, concerned look on your face. What are you worrying about, the world?"

"I'm certainly not worrying," I told him. And then I explained what I was doing. "To answer your question, I don't consider myself an intellectual, but naturally I am concerned about the world, as every thoughtful person should be."

"Don't let it bother you," he advised. "You ought to be like I am."

"How's that"

"Well," he answered, "I'll tell you. I drive this taxi eight hours every day. Then I go home and put a good meal under my belt. I sit around and look at TV until I get sleepy. Then I go to bed and let the world go to blazes. That's how I have peace of mind."

I tried to tell him as politely as possible that he did not really have peace of mind. Actually, all he had was a dull, desultory attitude, with no interest in anything except his physical comfort. Of course, that kind of stupid selfishness never gets anybody any lasting peace of mind. But people have to find that out for themselves. In a world like that of today, such astonishing listlessness is out of date. My taxi driver didn't understand how a person can be vitally alive to things, taking an active part in the perplexing problems of our time and yet have that wonderful quality called inner peace.

Mistaken ways of seeking peace of mind are very widespread. The tensions of modern living drive people to search for inner peace as never before. But searching for it in sound ways is another question.

Some people don't understand what we mean when we talk about peace of mind, inner peace or serenity of spirit. Some thoughtless persons even say it is a bad thing, that it is escapism, that it is a soothing potion for people who want to lead soft, innocuous lives.

Nothing could be further from the truth. The peace that comes from God—the only kind worth having—has nothing to do with escapism or evading one's responsibilities in the world. On the contrary, it is the very source of the power we need for meeting responsibilities and meeting them effectively. Even as the cyclone derives its force from a quiet center, so a person, to have real driving power, must have inner quietness. The man who is conflicted inwardly will be lacking in focus, strength and vigor. To have energy and force, to live with directed power, you must cultivate peace, the kind that is described in those felicitous words, "the peace of God that passeth all understanding."

Squeezed Against The Ceiling

NEW YORK (AP)—Uncle Sam is having cash trouble again. So he is asking Congress to help tide him over.

The financial community is speculating on the moves the Federal Reserve Board may take to make it easier for Uncle Sam to borrow—both on a long-term and a short-term basis—and at the same time help try to ease the recession.

The Treasury will have its troubles between now and mid-March keeping enough cash on hand to meet rising costs.

The cash balance has fallen below three billion dollars. Little but borrowed money will be coming in until mid-March when the corporate income tax payments are due. The following month individual income tax payments will be due. The size of the collections from taxes on business profits and personal incomes will be affected by the extent of the recession.

Borrowing is the obvious way out of the present cash difficulty.

But the secretary of the Treasury already is getting cramps from trying to stay under the federal debt ceiling of 275 billion dollars. He's within about 760 million dollars of that limit now. Each week lately he's had to tap the money market for an extra 100 million dollars.

Congress is being asked to raise the limit to 280-billion dollars until next June, when corporate and individual income tax payments should ease the strain on the Treasury.

Wall Street is speculating today on two possibilities:

1. If Congress acts quickly on the debt ceiling, there's a chance the Treasury might put out another long-term security next month when it has to refinance nearly 11 billion dollars of maturing federal debt.

2. The Federal Reserve might make borrowing easier—both for the government and perhaps for business too—by lowering the discount rate again.

Bible Words for Today

I KINGS 19:9-10 — "What are you doing here, Elijah?" He said, "I have been very jealous for the Lord, the God of hosts; for the people of Israel have forsaken thy covenant . . . and I, even I only, am left." (RSV)

* * *

Elijah answered the Lord with an alibi. Instead of giving a straight answer about how fearful and afraid he was. We can almost hear his tears splashing on his breast. His bid for pity was an alibi designed to justify his petulance and hiding.

Alice in Wonderland was able to float herself along in her tears but our world is not that kind of a wonderland. Tears bring a certain kind of help but tears of self-pity never bring real lasting good. In fact alibi-making like Elijah's is much like quick sand; it keeps pulling us down and down until we are engulfed in ruin.

The Lord shook Elijah out of his mood of pity by letting him see that seven thousand others were equally as faithful as he, and by sending him back to this fellowship. Having fellowship with the faithful is still a good cure for self-pity. Worshiping with others keeps the blues away.

Rubbled Field All That Remains Of Third Reich

BERLIN (AP)—Twenty-five years ago Adolf Hitler and the Nazi party took power in Germany and the "Thousand Year Reich" was born.

The thousand years ended 12 years later after World War II, the murder of six million Jews, the division of Germany and the spread of Russian power.

"Today after 25 years one ponders again and again whether the Hitler catastrophe was avoidable," Socialist Sen. Paul Hertz wrote in one West Berlin paper. "One asks whether readiness at the right time to resist and sacrifice could have headed off the catastrophe."

On the night of Jan. 30, 1933, more than 150,000 enthusiastic Germans packed Berlin's Wilhelmplatz in front of the Reich Chancellery. A cadenced roar swelled up: "We want to see our Fuehrer! We want to see our Fuehrer!"

The roar became a hysterical scream when a tense figure in a dark suit appeared, right hand upraised and a lock of hair plastered over his forehead. This was Adolf Hitler, 43, ex-Austrian house painter, former army corporal, and now the new chancellor and master of Germany.

Only four days after becoming chancellor, crying for "new living space in the East," Hitler set out on the road to World War II.

For the ex-house painter the road led to what is now a rubble-covered field in Soviet-run East Berlin. In the closing days of the war, as the Russians thrust into the heart of Berlin, Hitler and his new bride, Eva Braun, committed suicide in the big airraid bunker behind the chancellery. Their bodies were carried outside in blankets, soaked with gasoline and burnt.

Demos Will Ride High With Harry

WASHINGTON—In their current mood of buoyant optimism, the Democrats are planning a big national rally for former President Harry S. Truman through which they hope to enrich their long-depleted treasury by at least $300,000.

The former President is said to be preparing already for the stemwinder that he will deliver at the dinner here in the capital in his honor on the night of Washington's birthday. He told a close friend recently that he was not making any political speeches in the meantime, since he wanted to save up everything for the big night. One of the national networks already has volunteered free time for the Truman speech.

As the popularity of the Eisenhower Administration has dropped, the tendency has been at the same time to revise upward the reputation of the former President. His warm admirers who remained loyal to him through the days when the Korean War, mink coats and food freezers figured large in the headlines believe he is well on the way to being rehabilitated in public opionion.

That is the chief reason for the dinner in Mr. Truman's honor. If another reason were necessary, there is the fact that Missouri was the only state outside of the Deep South that ended up in the Democratic column in 1956. This was a reflection of the near-record majority for the re-election of Senator Thomas C. Hennings. Governor James T. Blair of Missouri will introduce Mr. Truman at the dinner.

Mr. Truman's Secretary of State, Dean Acheson, was under an attack as Virulent as that directed at the former President. Acheson is now also moving back into the news, and his views as chairman of the committee on foreipn policy of the Democratic Advisory Council were recently given prominence while his book, "Power and Diplomacy," has been widely discussed.

Some critics have accused Acheson of being as rigid in his approach to foreign policy as his successor, John Foster Dulles. In his recent public statement, Acheson agreed with the Dulles view that a summit meeting with the Russians would be futile or worse. At the same time he put the blame for America's present position partly on the Eisenhower Administration and partly on the Soviets.

To those who look at these matters in a less partisan spirit, the question is whether, with the resuscitation of Mr. Truman and Acheson, it may not seem that what the Democrats are proposing is to restore the past. And they question whether a prescription that may have properly fitted the past—such as Acheson's initiation of the containment policy — will suffice in the infinitely more complicated and dangerous present. In short, they are asking where are the new ideas and the new and younger leaders to chart a new course in the nuclear-missile age.

It is one of life's ironies that Dulles, as his close associates have let it be known, has written a letter to Acheson expressing his praise for Acheson's views on a summit meeting and the danger of a neutralist Germany. This is an interesting aspect of bipartisanship and, in view of the fierce Republican hostility toward Acheson less than six years ago, it is comparable to the mathematical feat of squaring a circle or bringing together two parallel lines.

At the big gala on February 22 the Democrats will certainly not lack for faces eagerly advertised as new. The ratio of Presidential candidates among the expected 3,500 diners paying $100 a plate at the Sheraton-Park Hotel may not be as high as half and half, but it will be high.

Think of it! In these times of increasing costs, you can still reach 9500 homes in the Big Spring Market for only 1¾c each! Less than the price of a post card alone .... lower in cost than any other advertising medium in the world! The homes your Herald ad reaches are the homes of YOUR customers . . . it is invited in daily, paid for, read carefully and remembered. It produces the most results because of its high acceptance. In a recent Gallup poll, it was found that most people regard newspaper advertising as news. This means that people read advertising to be informed about top buys, special sales and other merchandising events. In short, they depend upon The Herald to stay abreast of the times.

Before planning your next ad, talk with a Herald advertising representative. He can tell you fully of the audited Herald Circulation. You don't have to use wildly inflated claims about homes reached (most of which are out of your territory anyway). You can buy instead solid circulation into the homes of your customers any time of the week.

Gifted Grads Can Look To Many Colleges

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 1 (AP)—Gifted high school students, being told they've got to close the scientific gap revealed by Sputnik, can look to a dozen colleges next summer for guidance.

Boys and girls who want to know if they are likely to succeed in technical fields, will find answers. They may learn, too, exactly which of the many sciences should be theirs.

Two years ago Oregon State College experimented with a program suggested to it by Stanley Shirk, a stocky, energetic Portlander who has been teaching and talking about science for 25 years.

He said youngsters were being put under unfair pressure; that they were risking flunks and frustrations and costly mid-college switches by deciding on careers without knowing enough about the whole field of science.

After Oregon State's first trial, three other western colleges joined it last summer. Next year the list of colleges will reach to the Atlantic seaboard.

The program is called JESSI: Junior Engineers and Scientists Summer Institute.

Its purpose is to direct gifted high school students with an interest in science into the particular field in which they have the best chance of success.

It works by exposing selected students to the whole area of science in an intensive two-week college classroom program.

There is no instruction. Instead, in at least five daily hours of classroom meetings plus evening sessions, college faculty members go over all the programs in engineering and science. They tell what the courses encompass, what study demands will be made by each, what courses should be taken in the final years of high school to be of greatest value.

Is it successful?

The several hundred students who tried it the first two years say it is. Dean F. A. Gilfillan of Oregon State's School of Science says students are enthusiastic and faculty members stimulated.

The idea of exposing prospective students to a broad view of college science courses has been developed at several universities. It was Shirk's opinion, though, that it needed to be a national affair, so he incorporated Scientists of Tomorrow to sell the idea to the colleges and to industries which need scientists.

He has had good success. Ready for next summer's program are Clemson, Purdue, New Mexico A&M, Brigham Young, Kansas State, Montana State, North Dakota Agricultural and Oregon State. He hopes for still more.

Age Not The Only Factor Coin Collectors Consider

By DON HENRY

Big Spring is full of numismatics.

They're not subversives, however, but only coin collectors.

From all indications, there are more collectors here than in many cities this size. Many wished not to be mentioned, however, since such a collection would be very "valuable" to thieves for other obvious reasons.

Numismatics is a high-class name for a person who saves money—not in the bank but in collections, and there are several numismatists in Big Spring. These collectors usually save either foreign or American coins, but some save both. Most collectors here stick to American coins, however.

According to collectors, an old piece is not always as valuable as one minted in more recent times. Collectors delight in bright, shiny coins, and there is where the value climbs.

Old coins which a person thinks are rare are usually only worth face value to collectors, while some coins minted less than 20 years are at high premiums. For example, dealers are asking $660 for an uncirculated $10 roll of 1932 quarters, minted at either San Francisco or Denver. The great demand is for uncirculated coins.

Coins are rated for sale among collectors as good, very good, fine, very fine, extremely fine, and uncirculated, which is tops. A "good" coin is one with legible dates and lettering.

Since the San Francisco mint closed operations in 1955, any uncirculated coin from there is valuable. Also, any year when a small number of coins are minted brings a great demand. San Francisco coins are marked with an S, Denver with a D, and all others, without marks, are minted in Philadelphia.

All coin collectors are not interested in the same coins. One objective is to fill a set including every coin from each mint every year through a long period of time. Thus, one collector might look for a coin only five years old and another needs one 20 years old.

Other collectors' items are mint and proof sets. The government prepares proof sets which are carefully minted to give a perfect impression with a mirror-type finish. Mint sets are the same except they are minted for circulation. Collectors may order as many proof sets as they wish, but only one mint set per year can be obtained. Mint sets cost only face value plus cost of mailing, while a proof set costs $2.10 for the 91 cents worth of coins.

Freak coins also are valuable. These are coins spoiled in minting but which got by inspectors. The 1938 three-legged buffalo nickel is famous. It was minted in Denver, and through some fault in the die, the nickels came out with a buffalo having only three legs. The number of such coins struck is not known, thus adding to the value.

One of the joys of collecting is to find a desired denomination in a handful of change. To the contrary, however, when a coin being saved is accidently spent, the hurt is great.

Collectors usually mount their coins in special folders, which serve as holders and also show at a glance what coins are needed. These folders can be obtained for a small amount, 35 to 50 cents usually.

Since there are several avid collectors here, each numismatist feels that every time he looks through a roll of coins, someone else has already searched it.

This, though, adds to the fun of collecting coins, they say.

Quit Job 7 Years Ago, Now Wealthy

By PAUL WELLS

SEATTLE, Feb. 1 (AP)—Seven years ago a tall, balding man quit his $400-a-month sales engineering job at Seattle City Light after 15 years with the municipal utility.

Just a few days ago the same man turned down a chance to make two million dollars' profit on a single deal.

In the years between, Floyd R. Clodfelter, now 45, rose to a position of power in the Far West's financial community, handling transactions in the millions.

Now a multimillionaire, Clodfelter heads the Doric Co. of Seattle, which has assets of more than 16 million dollars and a net worth, by its latest financial statement, of $6,237,000.

Doric, a three-year-old investment and holding company which Clodfelter and his associates control, owns more than a dozen major hotels, apartment houses and office buildings in Washington and California, and is acquiring more properties on an average of one every four months.

The latest acquisition is Seattle's 18-story apartment building, the Grosvenor House-largest under one roof west of the Mississippi. Majority control was obtained for $940,000.

Doric's headquarters are in the Dexter-Horton Building here. It was this building for which Clodfelter had an offer in late December representing a two-million-dollar profit. He turned it down because Dexter-Horton "suits our needs"—and incidentally is a good money-maker.

Clodfelter's climb wasn't the overnight sensation it might seem at first glance.

The year 1950 marked the major turning point of his career. He made his "first big league" transaction—and decided to quit his City Light job.

He learned the Exeter Apartment Hotel here had been going begging for $575,000. There were no takers because the net profit was down to $2,000 a month.

Clodfelter says that 30 seconds after he heard the price he told the owners, "I'll take it."

He borrowed on the Exeter from a bank and within six months had it netting $10,000 a month. Nine months later he sold out for $850,000.

New investments and purchases followed in rapid order. They included a gold dredge in Canada, sawmill in Aberdeen, automobile agency in Seattle, and numerous rental properties.

In 1951 Clodfelter and John A. Metzger organized the Western American Investors, Inc. after acquiring the Dexter-Horton Building in 1952. Western American and the Dexter-Horton Co. merged to form the Doric Co.

Doric's properties now include the New Washington, Mayflower, Waldorf and Sorrento hotels in Seattle; Leamington Hotel in Oakland, Calif.; Mar Monte Hotel in Santa Barbara, Calif.; Grosvenor House and Dexter-Horton Building in Seattle; Bellingham Hotel; Black Angus Motel in Kennewick; and valuable building lots in Seattle.

In three years the company's stock has gone from $5 to $21 a share, annual revenue from $2,700,000 to $5,200,000 and net profit from $460,000 to $1,094,000.

Bathtub Mishap On Main Street

ASPEN, Colo. (AP)—Chuck Zordel fell out of a bathtub in the middle of Main street.

The tub was on a float entered by a plumbing firm in a ski celebration parade. Zordel leaned to wave to spectators and fell out, the tub tumbling on top of him.

The tub was loaded back on the float and Zordel was given medical aid for cuts and bruises.

Good Progress Made On Roads

County highway crews are moving ahead on the Jones road, extending a mile west from the Old San Angelo highway, Walter Parks, county engineer, said Saturday.

He reported that much of the fill work has been done and that grading is making rapid progress. Bulldozers are being used extensively on this job. The road will be brought up to condition to pave but cannot be paved, Parks explained, until later in the year when weather is more suitable.

Crews have been working on the Stanolind road, beginning two miles east of Coahoma on U. S. 80 and extending south for three miles. However, the engineer reported that work has been slowed on this job in the past few days because equipment was needed for maintenance made necessary on many county roads by recent rains.

This road, too, will be brought up to paving requirement and will be surfaced in the spring. Waiting for paving is the Salem Church road north of U. S. 80, and a short street segment in Coahoma. Also ready for surfacing is the road on the south end of Birdwell Lane.

The Three Faces Of Lizzie

Eleanor Parker is shown under control of three different personalities. This film dramatizing split personalities is after the tradition of "Three Faces of Eve," and tells the story of a girl's fight for sanity. The film sports a strong cast including Richard Boone, Joan Blondell and Hugo Haas.

Eleanor Parker Gets Triple Role In Film On Psychiatry

Moviegoers on the lookout for something unusual will find it in "Lizzie," Sunday and Monday at the Jet, with Eleanor Parker and Richard Boone in starring roles.

There has never been a motion picture quite like "Lizzie," for the heroine, portrayed by Eleanor Parker, is not one woman but three—that is, she has three strikingly different personalities, and each has its effect on her life.

To begin with, there is the drab, wan and depressed office girl, Elizabeth Richard, who is alarmed at receiving poison-pen notes from an unknown writer who signs herself "Lizzie."

But, as the plot unfolds under the suspenseful direction of Hugo Haas, it soon becomes apparent that Elizabeth, a victim of schizophrenia, one of the most widely-known of mental illnesses, is also Lizzie, who, in her periodic transitions into this personality, writes the poison-pen notes to herself, becomes a "woman of the streets," and creates hysterical scenes with Aunt Morgan (Joan Blondell), the relative with whom she lives.

Reluctantly, the latter agrees to Elizabeth taking treatments from a psychiatrist. And it is after Dr. Neal Wright (Richard Boone), through hypnosis, has delved into Elizabeth's childhood and has discovered the secret which has distorted her mind, that Beth, the third and true personality of this tormented girl, emerges.

But, while the doctor can make the normal and attractive Beth rise from the chaos of her triple-split personality, his problem is far from solved. He must eradicate the other two personalities so that the normal one will be come dominant.

The psychiatrist forces Elizabeth to re-live a shocking episode involving the death of her irresponsible mother and an action on the part of the mother's loutish suitor — a re-enactment which brings about a climactic battle between the girl's three personalities for possession of her mind and body.

Eleanor Parker, as the girl with the multiple, or disintegrated personalities, gives a remarkable performance. Without resorting to make-up disguises; largely through carriage, mannerisms and voice inflections, she is able to create three completely different characters in one.

Richard Boone, is the knowing and sympathetic doctor; Joan Blondell is the blousy, alcoholic Aunt Morgan.

Director Hugo Haas, plays himself, playing an important role as Elizabeth's neighbor.

"Lizzie" was from Shirley Jackson's book, "The Bird's Nest."

CINEMA COMMENT

By BOB SMITH

"Lizzie." Here is tremendous entertainment in the true tradition of the theatre, with the added advantages of movie camera close-ups. It is a story that, upon its release a year ago, brought laudatory reviews in the nation's leading magazines.

Eleanor Parker, who is perhaps the most talented dramatic actress in Hollywood today, gives a terrifying portrayal of a schizophrenic—terrifying, especially, if you have ever had occasion to watch a seemingly normal person change in a few moments from one person to another.

Lizzie is a girl who suffers from a "split personality"—but hers is split three ways. She is Elizabeth, the drab and discontented office worker; she is Lizzie, the beautiful seductress who writes poison pen letters to Elizabeth; she is Beth, the normal and very attractive girl.

When life becomes unbearable for those around her, Lizzie is persuaded to see a psychiatrist. The doctor makes use of hypnosis, one of the most potent of psychiatrical weapons, to make Lizzie relive an early experience that had built a mental block. It was this mental block that acted like a stone wall to shut off parts of the girl's mind and create three persons in one.

There follows a dramatic moment when the three beings within Lizzie battle for possession of her mind and body, a battle which means life for one and oblivion for two.

Richard Boone, the "Medic" of TV fame, is a natural for the role of the psychiatrist. Joan Blondell is seen as a blousy alcholic aunt of Lizzie's. Hugo Haas, who also directs the film, and is considered one of Hollywood's better geniuses, plays the part of a neighbor who persuades Lizzie that she needs a doctor.

"The Giant Claw" and "The Night the World Exploded." The first of these science horror films is more or less a copycat edition of a high-grade Japanese import called "Rodan." It is a fanciful tale of a giant space bird that uses Earth as a nesting place, having given rise in past centuries to the thunderbird and firebird legends. It is one of the ugliest monsters Hollywood ever invented, but its raucous cry of "rak, rak" makes it more of a toy than an agent of mass destruction, as far as the adult audience is concerned. The second film is equally fanciful, telling of a new element that suddenly appears in the Earth's crust. The new element expands every so often, bringing the threat of annihilation.

"The Way to the Gold." This little gem is a study in greed. Jeffrey Hunter is told by a convict friend of the location of a fortune in stolen gold, and he sets out to find it. On the way, he picks up a girl friend (Sheree North) who proves loyal and the family of a member of the original gang of gold thieves, who prove treacherous. He also picks up a marshal.

There is nothing especially outstanding about this picture, although it is a shade better than run-of-the-mill treasure hunt films. And it does have an ending overflowing with poetic justice.

"Forty Guns." There is nothing in the movie to earn it a title such as it has. It is essentially a yarn dealing with three brothers on one side, a brother and sister on another, and a dirty old sheriff between. Naturally, one of the three brothers falls in love with the sister, so everything comes out fine, after most of the principal characters have been shot or hanged. But they could have done just as well without the forty hired guns that ride across the screen at the beginning of the picture. They were just for show.

"The Living Idol." An unusual little story about a modern attempt to revive an old Mayan practice of sacrificing young virgins to the jaguar god. The story alone will hold your interest, but the background, filmed amid the Mayan ruins of Mexico, are breathtaking, if you like that sort of thing.

James Robertson-Justice does justice to his role of an archeologist who comes across some ancient Mayan ruins and an old superstition at the same time. The way the fantastic plot develops, his adopted daughter (Liliane Montevecchi) must risk her life as a sacrificial virgin in order to break the jaguar curse.

There's one bad note in the whole thing—the hero (Steve Forrest) survives a tussle with a tiger. Any big cat that's in his prime makes short work indeed of any man in hand to hand combat. (Forgive me, I forgot about Tarzan.)

"Oregon Passage." The oft-told tale of a frontier fort commanded by a jealous and slightly mad Army officer, whose shenanigans leave practically everyone dead except the hero and his girl. John Wayne first did justice to this formula, but the present version substitutes Shoshones for Apaches.

"Sing Boy Sing." Tommy Sands' movie, of interest only to teen-agers who like rock-n-roll.

"Sabu and the Magic Ring." An Arabian Nights fantasy based on stories from the original Arabian Nights. It's a vintage movie, and I recall greatly enjoying this film many years ago when I was young enough to appreciate such things. Come to think of it, this picture will probably give immense pleasure to all ages.

New Concept: Cultural Vacation

Ever hear of TICO?

It stands for Taos Institute of Creative Orientation, Inc. TICO is a sort of cultural summer school located at Taos, N. M., in one of the most beautiful spots of the nation. Taos is also famed as one of the great art centers of the U. S. The institute offers six two-week seminars and eight two-week experimental workshops.

This week I received a brochure from TICO outlining the year's activities. In the foreword, actor Vincent Price says:

"Appreciation and knowledge of the arts are no longer for a select few who have the time or money to indulge themselves. The arts are beginning to be recognized by the American people as our true identification with civilization's past and future."

TICO was designed around this concept, and has been described as "a new approach to the American concept of a vacation." The academic approach is shunned as much as possible. Activities seldom resemble classroom or laboratory work in college; most often, the lectures and demonstrations are as informal as having guests in the living room.

TICO leaders have planned schedules to allow visitors plenty of time to roam the city and surrounding areas to absorb some of the famous culture, plus opportunities to form private and stimulating discussion groups, after the bull session variety.

Subjects to be covered in the seminars include: history of art, psychology, printing arts, modern mosaics, ceramics, stained glass, watercolor and oil painting, contemporary art, philosophy of aesthetics, contemporary architecture, contemporary sculpture, sculpture participation, principles of design and basic elements, the science and psychology of color, workshop in design and color.

In addition, there will be a resume of the subjects, gallery tours, and planned recreation.

Seminars will be held from June 2, 1958 through March 14, 1959.

There will also be workshops in painting and sculpture from May 5, 1958 through Sept. 13, 1958.

The faculty list reads like a Who's Who in American culture, and would be too lengthy for this column. Those who are interested in TICO, however, may write for information to Secretary, T.I.C.O., Box 46, Taos, N. M.

Some Odd Bits From All Over:

The grandfather of all "spectaculars"—the Metropolitan Opera on the Air—reached another milestone Saturday with Puccini's "Gianni Schicchi" and Richard Strauss' "Salome" over ABC radio.

The Strauss opera was the 500th complete work to be broadcast from the stage of the world-famous opera house in New York since the series began on Christmas Day, 1931.

Now in its 27th consecutive year, the Met operacast is one radio program that has not yielded an iota of prestige, or a listener, to television. It still walks off with top broadcast and music awards, and counts some 12 million people among the faithful.

And it still boasts as its "voice" genial Milton Cross, whose commentaries have enlightened listeners since the opera went on the air.

In addition to the stage performance, there are up to 65 minutes of scripted material, including Cross' commentary and the intermission features "Opera News on the Air," "Texaco Opera Quiz," and Clifton Fadiman's interviews.

Cross describes his role as "helping listeners to hear and appreciate."

After watching nearly 2,000 hours of opera, has Cross' appetite been dulled?

"Not in the least," he says. "When we started broadcasting the Met had to give tickets away to fill the house. Now try to buy one."

Sgt. Bob Martinez, the noted classical guitarist, was almost left out in the cold when the Webb AFB band was broken up.

Martinez has his own guitar, but it does not have the electronic amplifier needed for concert work. The band had one. When the band broke up, all equipment that had been checked out to outsiders had to be turned in; band properties were to be shipped to other bases that were to keep band units.

That left the Air Force without one of its many public service weapons, since Martinez has been fulfilling various engagements to help Air Force public relations.

Some quick moves by higher echelons salvaged the electric guitar, and Martinez is still in business.

He says he's available for engagements "any time."

I notice Nashville music writers are deploring the BMI-ASCAP lawsuits over music publishing. The Nashville industry is tied mainly to the BMI.

For the uninitiated, BMI stands for Broadcast Music, Inc., and ASCAP is for American Society of Composer and Producers. BMI was organized many years ago by broadcasting interests to "break the monopoly" of ASCAP in the song writing and publishing field. ASCAP, denying monopoly, in its turn charged BMI, through its broadcast affiliations, with monopoly.

The suit against BMI is for $150,000,000, with ASCAP charging BMI's connection with the networks has been used against the playing of ASCAP songs and that this has resulted in that amount of damages to ASCAP.

Nashville is the national center for country music. The countrified song creators are, for the most part, non-professionals who come into the field naturally, humming and singing and feeling all their music. BMI, they say, has been a Godsend, what with ASCAP allegedly so hard to crack.

The BMI-ASCAP lawsuit is but the public facet of a much deeper controversy. To gain an understanding of the situation's implications requires careful reading of several pages of condensed material.

When the lawsuit finally comes to trial, it should gain quite a bit of publicity. Also, in the light of the court, the controversy should be made clear to all.

Most best selling items in records are now available in stereophonic tape to the hi-fi fan who adds playback equipment to his sound system so he can hear his favorite music via two channels instead of one.

Whether Tschaikovsky or Dixieland, Haydn or Bernstien, the pre-recorded tape is on dealer shelves. It is two or three times more expensive than the record of the same item, but usually worth the difference to the discriminating ear.

Arabian Nights

Sabu and Daria Massey face danger in this scene from the vintage film, "Sabu and the Magic Ring," Thursday through Saturday at the State. The film was based on tales from the Arabian Nights.

British Prize For Mary Ure

NEW YORK (AP)—Mary Ure is starring in the Broadway drama hit "Look Back in Anger," but she has just won a prize in London.

The Variety Club of Great Britain named her Best British actress of 1957. Prior to her appearance here, Miss Ure enacted the same role in the West End. The play was written by her husband, John Osborne.

Top Star

One of the greatest talent finds in several years is Diane Varsi, above, who has a major role in the screen version of Grace Metalious' sex-filled best-selling novel, "Peyton Place." The film continues its local run through Tuesday at the Ritz.

Star Presser

NEW YORK (AP)—One Broadway theater has a particularly neat stage door man. He gets his shirts pressed by the show's star.

A scene in "Look Back in Anger" requires Mary Ure to stand long minutes at an ironing board. A stickler for realism, Miss Ure irons neatly for the grateful gateman.

Met Raids B'Way For Stage Talent

NEW YORK (AP) — Jose Quintero, one of Broadway's hottest new stage directors, is going to try his hand next at mounting two classics for the Metropolitan Opera.

Quintero is to handle new presentations of "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" for the famous music center next season. The Met previously has tapped such theater veterans as Alfred Lunt and Cyril Ritchard to revitalize opera productions.

Quintero made his Broadway debut as director of "Long Day's Journey Into Night," which swept all of 1957's prize awards.

FFA Boys In San Antonio, El Paso Shows

Five Big Spring FFA boys will exhibit 17 head of livestock in fat stock shows at El Paso and San Antonio this week, Truett Vines, chapter leader, reported Saturday.

The group, accompanied by Edward Seay, junior high vocational agriculture teacher, will leave for El Paso with part of their stock Sunday. Vines, high school agriculture teacher, will take the remainder of the stock to San Antonio Tuesday, and the FFA members will travel from El Paso to San Antonio in time for showing in the latter city.

Judging at El Paso is scheduled for Wednesday, and the San Antonio show will be judged Saturday, Vines said.

Esco Hamlin will exhibit one steer at El Paso and another at San Antonio.

Tommy Buckner will show three lambs and two barrows at El Paso and one lamb and two barrows at San Antonio.

Charles Engle will enter a barrow and a lamb at El Paso and another barrow and lamb in the San Antonio show.

Ronnie Richardson will exhibit a lamb at El Paso and a barrow at San Antonio.

Jimmy Engle will show one lamb at San Antonio.

Vines said Robert Carr is considering the possibility of entering a lamb in the El Paso show, and Bobby Kiser is contemplating the entry of a lamb at San Antonio.

A large number of FFA animals also will be exhibited in the Houston Fat Stock Show Feb. 19, according to Vines. It is planned tentatively to enter two steers, 12 lambs and nine barrows at Houston.

Vines said that in order to make out of town trips, FFA members are required to have passing grades in all their subjects.

Latimer Will Ask Re-Election To Legislature

State Representative Truett Latimer has announced that he would seek re-election to the Texas Legislature from Taylor County. He is well known here, having been a speaker on several occasions.

A veteran member of the Texas House of Representatives, Latimer has served in the 53rd, 54th and 55th sessions of the Legislature. During his six years service, he has missed only one day on the job, and that was a very unusual 15-minute Sunday session held during the recent special session.

Latimer first was elected in 1952, one year after he was graduated from Hardin-Simmons University and he has been re-elected twice without opposition.

During the last session in Austin, Latimer was chairman of the Interstate Cooperation Committee and a member of these other important committees: Appropriations, Agriculture, Liquor Regulation and Insurance.

Latimer has been a legislative leader of insurance reform in Texas. As a member of the Insurance Committee for three sessions, he has helped re-write the Texas Insurance Code and has successfully sponsored numerous corrective measures.

He also was author of a resolution setting up a four-year study of the Texas Constitution, pointing toward constitutional revision.

Latimer was co-author of the new water planning bill passed in the first called session of 1957.

Politicians Aren't Waiting This Year For Dogwood Bloom

By GARTH JONES

AUSTIN, Feb. 1 (AP)—Texas tradition has politicians announcing their campaigns in even years about the time the dogwood blooms.

This year the incumbents and their challengers for state offices aren't waiting until late March or April for the pristine white shrub to brighten East Texas.

"My hat's in the ring again," is common conversation among Texas' representatives and senators. Candidates for other elective state offices are a little more coy, preferring to wait until nearer the May 5 deadline for filing.

Unofficial and unconfirmed figures that probably will change every week between now and the May deadline indicate:

That about 123 representatives will try to get their old jobs back. Those not choosing to run again will leave at least 27 vacancies to be filled.

That 13 present senators will seek re-election, at least 6 of them facing opposition. Seven incumbents may get by unopposed. Only 2 senators, Searcy Bracewell of Houston and Ottis Lock of Lufkin, do not plan re-election campaigns. The other 16 senators are holdovers with their four-year terms not ending until 1961.

The campaign picture for state officials is very sketchy and probably will remain that way two more months. Only Agriculture Commissioner John White and Railroad Commissioner Olin Culberson have publicly said they want to be re-elected.

Supreme Court Justice St. John Garwood said he was retiring.

Those expected to run for re-election include Gov. Price Daniel, Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey, Treasurer Jesse James, Land Commissioner Bill Allcorn, Comptroller Robert S. Calvert, Court of Criminals Appeals Judge K. K. Woodley, Supreme Court Justices Joe Greenhill, Frank Culver Jr., and Ruel Walker.

A key name missing from either list is that of Atty. Gen. Will Wilson. He hasn't said "yes" or he hasn't said "no" either to a campaign for re-election or a possible race for governor. Last week rumor had him deciding against a gubernatorial race. This week close friends said he was still considering his chances to unseat Daniel.

Information obtained from legislators, state officials, state employes, lobbyists, capitol tourists, gossip and rumor indicates the following campaign plans of legislators:

Senate:

Sens. Searcy Bracewell and Ottis Lock not running. Rep. Bob Baker and former Rep. Charles Murphy, both of Houston, announced for Bracewell's job. Reps. E. E. Shackelford of Kirbyville and W. W. Glass are reported angling for Lock's position. Said to be running for re-election are Sens. A. M. Aikin Jr. of Paris, Carlos Ashley of Llano, Jep Fuller of Port Arthur, Dorsey Hardeman of San Angelo, Wardlow Lane of Center, Crawford Martin of Hillsboro, William Moore of Bryan, George Parkhouse of Dallas, Jimmy Phillips of Angleton, David Ratliff of Stamford, Ray Roberts of McKinney, Andy Rogers of Childress and R. A. Weinert of Seguin.

The Capitol grapevine has it that Ashley will be opposed by Rep. Harold Kennedy of Marble Falls along with other opponents; that Rep. R. K. Sutton of Dallas will contest Parkhouse; and A. R. Schwartz of Galveston will run against Phillips. Rep. Leroy Saul of Kress has announced against Rogers.

House:

Those reported not seeking re-election in the House include Reps. Ben Atwell of Dallas, Bob Baker of Houston, running for the Senate; D. B. Byrd of Huntington running for county judge; William Cline of Wharton, in military service; William Elliott of Pasadena, running for Harris County judge; J. T. Ellis Jr. of Weslaco, recently named a fiscal and water aide to the governor; Ben Ferrell of Tyler, running for district attorney;

George Ford of Bogata, W. W. Glass of Jacksonville, making a Senate race; Jean Hosey of Galveston, Thom Joseph, moved from Waco to Austin; Harold Kennedy of Marble Falls, in a Senate race; Glenn Kothmann of San Antonio, planning to run for agriculture commissioner; Frank Mann of Houston, running for county judge; Jim Moore, moved from Fort Worth to Lubbock; Robert Patterson of Snyder; Joe Pool of Dallas, running for Congress; Paul Pressler, moved from Houston to Chicago; Barefoot Sanders of Dallas, announced for Congress;

Leroy Saul of Kress, in Senate race; A. R. Schwartz of Galveston, running for Senate; E. E. Shackelford of Kirbyville, running for Senate; Ed Sheridan of San Antonio; R. K. Sutton of Dallas, in a Senate race; Jack Welch, moved from Marlin to Austin; Richard White of El Paso, running for county judge.

The list may grow any day. Rep. Joe Chapman of Sulphur Springs is reported considering a race against U.S. Rep. Wright Patman. Rep. Jim Heflin of Houston has considered retiring after seven House terms. Rep. Obie Jones of Austin is looking over the state treasurer's race. Rep. Don Kennard of Fort Worth says he may run for Tarrant County judge. Rep. Carlton Moore of Houston first said he would try for the Senate then said he probably will seek another House term.

Life On Other Planets Is Unlikely, Ex-Techsan Says

LUBBOCK, Feb. 1 — A former Texas Tech scientist has come to the aid of laymen likely to be confused by reports of flying saucers and "men from Mars."

A lucid explanation of the most recent and authoritative thinking about the origin of life, possibilities of life on other planets, and the future of life on earth is given by Dr. J. H. Rush in "The Dawn of Life," published by Hanover House.

After presenting details of scientific theories on what life is and how it came into being, Rush points out the best scientific thinking about life on other planets. The only possibilities for the existence of life, as humans know it, on other planets probably have occurred on Venus and Mars, Rush declares.

He shows that the best possibilities of life on Venus probably occurred long ago—if at all — and that possibilities of life there now are very slim. "Men from Mars" supporters will find Rush's remarks on that planet most disappointing. The highest form of life thought to be possible now on Mars is a lichen or combination of fungus and algae, according to Rush.

"To say that lichens or similar organisms may now grow on Mars is not to imply that they or any life could begin under existing conditions on the planet," he writes.

"To say that life could not emerge under present conditions would be unnecessarily dogmatic; but such a process does not appear likely.

"Probably the planet was more hospitable to the life processes at an earlier period, when it still retained liquid water and a more abundant atmosphere."
