Red Cross Roll Call To Open Here Tuesday

Hoping to raise funds to assist in carrying the direct relief load in Childress during the winter months, the Childress county chapter of the Red Cross will launch its annual Roll Call drive Tuesday morning.

A complete canvass of the county will be made by volunteer workers and every employed person will be contacted and asked to join the organization, according to J. M. Preston Jr., Roll Call chairman.

Memberships are $1, or more if the member wishes to contribute additionally. Fifty cents of each membership goes to the national Red Cross organization and all of the remainder goes to the local organization. Cards and pins will be issued to each new member.

The local organization, headed by Rev. Frank Travis, expects an unusually large number of requests for aid this year, due to generally poor economic conditions in this section.

Roll Call chairmen are Rush Record for the business district, Mrs. J. M. Crews for the residential section of Childress, V. H. McClintock and Miss Mary Belle Mitchell for the rural sections.

Mrs. Crews Saturday announced workers appointed by pastors of Childress churches to assist in the drive. They are Mrs. C. R. Thornton of the First Baptist, Mrs. Gilbert Bellah of the Central Christian, Mrs. C. P. Sanders of the First Methodist, Mrs. J. J. Kennedy of the Catholic, Mrs. W. E. Davis of the Episcopal, and Mrs. A. A. Henneman of the Presbyterian.

Rain Falls Over Most Of Texas

By The United Press

Slow but steady rain fell over much of Texas Saturday.

In north central and south central Texas the precipitation measured more than an inch. Fields parched by a record fall drouth soaked up the moisture and crop experts hoped the winter wheat crop would be benefited greatly.

Western Texas missed the heavier precipitation of other sections, and fair weather was forecast for that half of the state Sunday. Drizzling rain continued in a wide area southward from Dallas and measured above the one-inch mark in numerous communities.

Dallas and Fort Worth had one inch rains. Scattering raindrops in the North Texas area afforded relief for the late wheat crop which lately had been suffering from the dry spell.

Overnight rains at Austin continued through the day and caused cancellation of an Armistice celebration parade.

Football fans at Waco, College Station and Houston, where Southwest conference games were played, sat in misting rain and chilly temperatures to watch the contests.

In Childress, skies were heavily overcast Saturday afternoon and night, but only a few drops of rain fell. The mercury remained above the freezing level.

LUBBOCK COACH DIES

LUBBOCK (UP)—Weldon Chapman, Lubbock high school football coach since 1931, had a hospital nurse telephone to learn the score of the Lubbock-Plainview football game Saturday, then died a few minutes later of pneumonia.

A few minutes after his death the game was over, Chapman's team a 19 to 0 winner.

Chapman, one of the most popular high school coaches in Texas, had been ill a week. The pneumonia attack was aggravated by a throat ailment which had bothered him for ten years.

Last year his team went to the finals of the state high school campaign only to lose to Corpus Christi. Lubbock this year is a co-favorite with Amarillo to win the Panhandle district title.

Chapman was taken to a Lubbock hospital a week ago. He rallied Wednesday after doctors had despaired of his life, and until early Saturday he had appeared improving. A hemorrhage Saturday morning ended hope of his recovery. His wife survives.

It will follow a banquet, also at the auditorium, beginning at 5 o'clock.

ARMISTICE DAY HERE IS QUIET

Armistice Day in Childress Saturday was uneventful and only a few business firms and offices closed in observance of the holiday.

The American Legion and auxiliary sponsored a down-town patriotic program, a six-man football game at Fair Park, in which Williams defeated Community Center 38-0, and a dance at Fair Park auditorium.

No accidents were reported and officers said the holiday was generally quiet.

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Roosevelt declared Saturday he is seeking the road to a peace better than that brought by the armistice of 1918.

Mr. Roosevelt delivered his Armistice Day message in a telephoned address to Lexington, Va., where centennial ceremonies for the Virginia Military institute were in progress. He spoke a few minutes after placing a wreath at the tomb of America's unknown soldier of the World war at Arlington cemetery.

Mr. Roosevelt declared that the only legitimate aim of armed force was the restoration of civil peace.

The United States, he said, is working "for peace".

"We pray for peace and we arm for peace", he declared.

"The only object of arms is to bring about a condition in which quiet peace under liberty can endure", the president said.

"It is fitting to remember this day", he added. "In this season we have been used to celebrating the anniversary of the armistice of the World war. Now we need a new and better peace, a peace which shall cause men at length to lay down weapons of hatred which have been used to divide them and to forego purposeless ambitions which have created fear, ambitions which in the long run serve no useful end.

Letter Carriers In Meeting Here

Letter carriers of district 3 of the State Association of Letter Carriers met in Childress Saturday night. The session was held at the city hall.

About 30 delegates from Northwest Texas cities were here for the business meeting. Several officials of the state organization also attended.

The group named Grady Cooper of Amarillo president, Loren Leibfried of Floydada first vice president, T. V. Howard of Quanah second vice president and Joe Myers of Pampa secretary and treasurer.

The next meeting will be in Pampa next June.

Operations Are Intensified on Western Front

PARIS (UP)—Allied and German aerial forces intensified operations from the North sea to the Swiss frontier Saturday.

The Armistice day developments included:

1. A German plane attacked a French steamer shortly after it left France to cross the English channel with 90 passengers, but was driven off by three pursuit ships after dropping two bombs into the sea.

2. German scouting planes carried intensive flights over French territory from the channel to to Switzerland, ranging from the extreme north wall into the interior, and reportedly flying over Belgium and Luxembourg enroute.

3. The British air ministry announced that royal airforce planes had made successful reconnaisance flights over Southwest Germany, flying over three German towns and apparently losing one craft. French planes flew over the Rhineland front.

4. Dispatches from Zurich quoted reliable sources as saying German troops were moving from the western front toward Austria and that the nazis were fortifying the Brenner pass. The Brenner pass is the gateway between Germany and Italy. In allied sources there have ben frequent but unsubstantiated reports that Italy—fearful of soviet infringement on the fascist sphere in the Balkans—was splitting away from Germany.

The nazi aerial operations caused an air raid alarm for an hour and ten minutes in Paris and a state of alert in many other cities and towns.

In Berlin a false air raid alarm sent east end residents running to their shelters at 5 p. m. Police said that crossed wires caused the fale alarm. The all-clear signal was sounded two minutes later.

An authoritative French source said that the nazi aerial activity in the last 24 hours was on a comparatively big scale, apparently for reconnaisance, with many planes coming by way of the North sea and flying over France.

FDR Endorses Roll Call

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Roosevelt, speaking Saturday night, urged Americans to give their support to the American Red Cross as a strong shield against the forces of destruction in a world darkened by conflict and misery.

Mr. Roosevelt's address, broadcast over all major networks, formally opened the annual Red Cross roll call for members and financial support. The president, who also is president of the Red Cross, spoke but briefly. Noting that the roll call was beginning on Armistice day, Mr. Roosevelt said, "There can be no armistice against pain and want."

Clubs Interested in Conventions of Month

Delegates Will Go Tomorrow to State Federation

Convention interest, usually reserved for spring in Childress clubs, is rife this month because the annual meeting of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs will open tomorrow at Wichita Falls, Burlington Veterans clubs of the state convene in Fort Worth next Saturday and the state Congress of Parents and Teachers meets in Galveston Nov. 22.

All of these conventions, even the latest and most distant, will be attended by representatives from Childress organizations.

Not often does the state federation meet in Northwest Texas, and federated clubs here will take advantage of its nearness to send full delegations to Wichita Falls. The convention will end Thursday.

Mrs. J. M. Crews, president of the Woman's Department club and its official delegate, will head the Childress contingent.

Burlington to Elect

District officers will be elected at the Burlington meeting next Saturday, both for the Veterans club and the Auxiliary. Mrs. J. W. Green of this city is president of the Auxiliary now, and Sam L. Lewis of Amarillo of the Veterans.

A banquet, program and dance will follow the business sessions. J. W. Mode of Amarillo will be toastmaster. W. E. Dickhut of McCook, Neb., system president of the Veterans association, and Mrs. F. J. Bolshow of Omaha, system president of the Auxiliary, will be banquet speakers. Mrs. L. W. Hogsett, special representative of the passenger department, will discuss women's aid in increasing railroad passenger business.

Not only members of the organizations, but others who are interested are invited to the banquet or the program. A large group is expected to go from Childress, as well as other Panhandle cities, and they have been notified that several visitors from Denver will be present.

Bus to Make Trip

Although the Parent-Teacher convention this year is at the opposite end of the state, an unusually large representation from the Panhandle is expected to go because for the first time in its history members of eighth district associations will charter a bus for the trip.

Some of the Parent-Teacher units here have already elected their delegates, and all six groups are likely to have members at Galveston.

'A Peculiar Treasure Is' Reviewed on Armistice Day

South Childress Club to Dine on New Thanksgiving

Since the next meeting day of South Childress Home Demonstration club falls on Nov. 23, the day proclaimed by President Roosevelt as Thanksgiving, members planned a Thanksgiving buffet dinner to be given at the home of Mrs. B. B. Burton.

Plans were made in a business meeting Thursday, when Mrs. J. I. Sandifer was hostess at her home.

A demonstration was also presented by Miss Reba Curtis, county agent, who showed how to reupholster furniture. Twelve members were present.

Perhaps no more appropriate volume could have been found for an Armistice Day program in the Book club than "A Peculiar Treasure" review by a guest, Mrs. L. B. Ezell, for members at the ranch home of Mrs. W. H. Craven yesterday afternoon.

An autobiography of the popular American writer, Edna Ferber, the book is a graphic picture of the American way of life and a plea for continued tolerance and patriotism in America. Miss Ferber is a member of a Jewish family, and grew up in the midwest.

In telling the story of her life she necessarily reflects the attitude of the average middlewestern city toward her race, and although she does not overlook the prejudice which sometimes meets it, she gives full credit to the opportunities allowed all races in the United States.

Mrs. Ezell reviewed the book with emphasis on these aspects, and made her talk an interesting lesson in patriotism. Mrs. Rush Record, who arranged the program, introduced her.

Mrs. Craven served tea after the review to the guest speaker and the members: Mmes. Charles P. Boyd, A. J. Brown, Dan Davis, Ernst Davis, Malone Hagan, Bob Holland, J. B. Johnson, T. L. Lewis, Rush Record, and Miss Lula Caudell.

• US WOMEN

By Sue Vinson

When Mable Gene Campbell secured a marriage license, death and birth certificates and a divorce decree all in one day last week, puzzled officials asked if she were preparing for all emergencies. But she was getting them as material for a club program on public records, and they were all issued to her in blank form.

There's no question that clothes make the woman, and different costumes can make a different woman out of the same one. For instance, Mrs. Reid B. Scott in becoming slacks at a barbecue belies the smart-business-woman look she has in well-cut black gowns with a pearl necklace or a touch of gold at the throat.

Or Mrs. Ernest Butcher, hair swathed in a gay scarf, driving down the street in the Saturday dust yesterday, appeared not at all like the last time I saw her, slender in a deep purple formal dress, hands drifting over the piano keys.

Or Miss Alba Pixler, looking the trim club woman in dark tailored frock and sailor, turns into the enthusiastic gardener that she also is, wearing a flowered smock and a sunshade while she works in her flower beds.

Whole armies of Celts used to march into battle unclad, more than 2,000 years ago.

Mrs. Joe Richardson gave a report from the last county council meeting and Mrs. Wygal reported the county yearbook committee meeting.

Mrs. Johnny Rucker of Childress was a guest. Members present were Mmes. George Shinn, Rea, Richardson, E. J. Groseclose, Dee Groseclose, Liles, Cheatheam, Francis Lee Simmons, Wygal, Mote and the hostess.

Electra Wants Namesake Train

ELECTRA.—The Electra chamber of commerce and agriculture, represented by President Mike Baxter and Secretary-Manager C. F. McSpadden, is seeking to interest Fort Worth and Denver City railroad officials in naming for Electra the new streamlined train which is soon to be placed in service.

Basing their request on the fact that Electra has contributed a large quota of freight, citing a total of 4,206 carloads, chiefly oil and gasoline, sent from Electra last year, they also reminded Burlington officials the name "Electra" is that of a Greek goddess of flight, suggesting speed and power.

The city of Electra was named for Electra Waggoner, daughter of its founder, W. T. Waggoner.

Here is something of interest: Lubbock is about to have a big mill. The checkerboard feed people have purchased a site at Lubbock, and the information is they intend to spend a million and a half in an immense mill. And it's said they will employ away over a hundred people.

Many of us don't realize it, but the whole country is almost into a boom. It's gradually slipping up on us; it's being felt in so many, many ways.

Ranch land has started up already in a rather pronounced way. It's moving or could be moved but there isn't much for sale. A ranch sold the other day for $7 an acre. Less than 18 months ago it couldn't have been moved for $5.50.

Most of those who have purchased ranch land during the last five years could sell out now at a nice profit. And the next to come up will be farm lands, which have been dead. One big agricultural year and you'd see the farmers start going to town; that is, if they wanted to sell.

Here is something that is a fact: A representative of a big insurance company has been here the last several days trying to hire men to sell insurance at a stipulated salary of $200 a month. He said his company was so determined to secure good men that they were willing to pay $200 a month and a commission.

This is very, very new in the life insurance business and life insurance men are talking about it. And it indicates more and more of the slack is being taken up and that good men are becoming scarcer.

An old joke in Milton Wright's book, "What's Funny and Why."

A Scotchman gave a big golden anniversary wedding party. The next day his friends said at the party the champagne flowed like glue.

Interesting facts: When a federal judge in Pittsburgh informed a prisoner that if he'd quit drinking the charge against him of operating an illicit whisky still would be dismissed, the defendant replied firmly, "Never, sir;" . . . Now on the market for the hotel and restaurant trade primarily is a line of non-wobbling tables . . . Taking his cue from the drug store method, the owner of a hardware store in Edgewood, Penn., supplemented his stock of nails, saws, etc. with a complete line of women's hosiery as well as live ducks and chickens. And last February he even offered a big selection of valentines. He sold 5,000 of the latter and his hosiery sales run about 20 pairs a week . . . Although "seeing double" is popularly associated with drunkenness, prolonged wakefulness will also produce it, even if you're sober . . . Editors and publishers abroad have already felt a sharp dropping off in short story and novel writing by the top-flight authors since hostilities broke loose. It usually takes five or six months for authors to get geared up to whipping out tales with war backgrounds—but then comes the deluge . . . The weight of plaster of Paris is usually overestimated, an eminent surgeon observes. Properly applied, a plaster cast extending from an adult's armpits to his toes shouldn't weigh more than 10 pounds when it's dry . . . Bon mot snipped from somewhere: "To sit all evening in the dark is always a trying ordeal, declares a London neurologist, who perhaps has forgotten that he was ever young himself." . . . A study of 46,000 alumni graduated from 31 different colleges between 1928 and 1935 showed that the typical graduate entered an occupation that earned him an average of $1,321 his first year. After eight years of practical experience, the average income was $2,416, with 11 per cent of the top men garnering $4,000 to $5,000 or more annually and another 11 per cent at the bottom of the list receiving less than $1,500 . . . A feminine ghost writer in New York advertises thus: "I will write your intimate letters with skill: fashion verses of charm for all occasions; besides write less agreeable missives which I will pen with tact and care." . . . On left-hand curves it's the job of the locomotive fireman to watch the signals ahead and shout out to the engineer, who in turn must call them back as a double-check . . . Only about half the original weight of a steer is represented by the dressed carcass you see in the butcher shop. And of that carcass, only 2 to 3 per cent represents choice porterhouse steak . . . No less than two women —Katherine Harris and Blanche Oelrichs—were dropped from the New York social registry after marrying John Barrymore. And both were reinstated in the registry after divorcing the famed actor . . Almost human in his curiosity is the penguin of the antarctic. He will risk life and limb to get a close-up view of anything that captures his interest . . . There are seven states, plus the District of Columbia, which do not recognize "cruelty" as a ground for absolute divorce . . . Sprinkling a grain of salt on war news from various European capitals is the Baltimore Sun these days, which heads all such stories thus: "The Germans Say," "The French Say," "The Russians Say," etc.

America Still Has Promises

Thirty years ago, Herbert Croly wrote a book which he called "The Promise of American Life." Croly couldn't foresee such events as the First World War and its hangover, the 1929 depression and the Second World War. But even in that era, dimmed now by three great catastrophes, the author found the need not only for the preservation of democracy, but for conscious political effort directed toward such salvation.

Croly was more or less a pioneer in articulating the spirit that is dominant in America today. He believed in the free exercise of liberal thought, and to this end he founded a magazine in 1914. Since then, The New Republic has been generally recognized as one of the foremost organs of liberal thinking. It is read by people with a wide variety of political philosophies not because they happen to agree with everything its writers say but because here, at least, are presented problems that must be dealt with.

On its twenty-fifth anniversary, The New Republic takes time out to cast a mirror back to the First World War and to project on the future the image that it finds, using today only as a focal point. Liberal leaders in nearly every field of American life have contributed their views on the America of tomorrow.

War always blocks a clear view of the future. There is a tendency not to look too far ahead, not only because everything is confused but because there is some doubt whether there will ever be a future. But the writers in The New Republic have boldly accepted the premise of America's tomorrow and have reiterated the need for remembering that war in Europe should not distract citizens in the United States from problems at home.

If there is any one thing which all of the writers have faith, it is the theory that modern society needs intense planning. Vast enterprises are accepted as part of the American system. There is no attempt to tear them down. But there is a general subscription to the theory that only through sound planning and direction can society get its money's worth. That goes for industry, labor, education, agriculture and every other integral part of American life.

The New Deal has planned, and you like it or you don't. But even if you don't, that will scarcely upset your faith in the necessity for an integrated American life. Every phase of modern life in this country has become inter-dependent with every other aspect of life. Education can't be divorced from political thought any more than agriculture's problems can be considered independently of labor's. Whether the planning may be done by the Democrats or the Republicans or by any other dominant political party, the almost imperative need for a predirected structure still exists.

• BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON.—In a scrub-timbered tract on the banks of the Little Black river in Butler county, Missouri, there is a "lost colony" of four or five hundred people who are, collectively, a headache to their neighbors, an unsolved puzzle to the Department of Agriculture and an active worry to one of the CIO's most energetic unions.

This colony is made up of the remnants of the famous "hunger march" that drew headlines in southeastern Missouri last winter.

That march to nowhere was broken up, or petered out, after it briefly focused attention on the plight of the dispossessed sharecropper and tenant farmer.

When the end came about 100 families clung together. They had no money, no homes, no prospects and no place to go, and the authorities were ordering them to "move on."

EX-PREACHER LED MARCH

The march had been pretty largely organized by the Rev. Owen H. Whitfield, negro who gave up the pulpit for a career as organizer for the United Cannery, Agricultural, Packing and Allied Workers of the CIO.

Whitfield had had to leave the scene in haste before the march broke up; but last spring he raised a little money in St. Louis, went unobtrusively down to Butler county, and made a down payment on a 93-acre tract of land.

On this tract the 100 families camped out sometime in June. They have been there ever since—living in tents, log huts and makeshift shacks. They haven't land enough to do any farming, and they haven't the equipment anyway.

They haven't any money, except for a few who managed to get jobs during the cotton picking season. They have lived, according to reports to the cannery union headquarters here, almost solely on corn grits, meal and beans furnished by the Surplus Commodities Corporation.

Local authorities don't want them—can't afford to keep them on relief, pointing out that the wanderers came from distant parts of the state anyway.

Their presence makes for friction, especially since a number of the families are colored. Furthermore, the cotton picking season will end soon, and the camp may draw yet more casual farm workers whose jobs are finished.

NO AUTHORITY TO PROVIDE LAND

Agriculture's Farm Security Administration doesn't know what to do with them. It can make food grants, but that's just a day-to-day stopgap. It would like to settle the colonists on some land somewhere, but it no longer has the authority to buy land for that purpose.

If an individual can lease a bit of ground or get on as a tenant it can make a loan which (in theory) will enable him to get on his feet; but these people can't make any leases, partly because land commands a good price in that section of Missouri and partly because none of them can furnish a recommendation from his last employer or landlord.

The cannery union is perplexed, too, because it finds itself responsible for the upkeep of 400-odd human beings with no prospect that it can do anything but go on supporting them.

Donald Henderson, head of the union, says the whole trouble is symptomatic of the problems which the steady shift from sharecropping and tenantry to day labor is creating in the cotton belt.

TEMPORARY RELIEF NO SOLUTION

"Just keeping these people from starving doesn't solve the real problem," he says.

There are thousands and thousands of people like these. The situation hasn't changed much from the situation which led to the original hunger march a year ago.

"The government is trying to turn enough help to the cotton growers to enable them to make a fair profit. But it has never put in a guarantee that a fair share of this financial help would go to the non-owning producers.

"There ought to be new legislation. First, there should be real guarantees that sharecroppers and tenants get their share of the benefit checks.

"There ought to be a provision that benefit checks would not be given to landowners who didn't pay their help adequate minimum wage.

"And—since work in the cotton fields is bound to be seasonal—there must be more adequate relief for workers in the off season."

I've an empty sleeve to remind me
Of the war of '17,
On a nail on the wall hangs an old trench coat
A helmet and a canteen.

There's an empty chair at our table
For a brother who gave his life,
To bring peace on earth, good
will to men,
And end all war and strife.

But again our peace is shattered
By the newsboys as they cry,
"Extra, extra, Hitler Bombs

Hundreds of People Die."

Now the weeping brides of '17
Are mothers of today,
Praying there won't be another
war
To take their sons away.

• THE FAMILY DOCTOR

T. M. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

The glands of the skin do not function as actively in cold as in warm weather. Both dry heat in our homes and exposure to the cold outdoors may be detrimental to the skin. The problem of caring for the skin in winter is quite different from that in summer.

In a recent issue of Hygeia, Dr. Eugene F. Traub emphasizes the fact that the customary bath taken with soap in the winter will dry the skin. Scaling and cracking will result. This is a warning sign that protective steps should be taken. All parts of the body do not chap with equal ease. The legs, arms, hands, face and trunk are parts most likely to be affected.

The use of soap and water on the skin removes the natural lubricant. It may be necessary, therefore, to provide artificial lubrication for the skin. In the case of people past middle life, less frequent bathing is often advisable in cold weather. Two or three baths a week instead of daily baths should suffice, unless it is possible to lubricate the skin. The addition of bran, cornstarch or baking soda to the water will help to soften it.

For chapped lips, it is important to avoid irritating mouth washes, soap, tobacco and chewing gum. Any oily preparation like cold cream, petroleum or lanolin will serve to lubricate the skin until the chapping is healed.

If eczema occurs, the condition is certainly serious enough to demand medical attention.

Doctors nowadays get few cases of frostbite and chilblains. For frostbite, circulation may be increased by gentle rubbing with the palm of the hand. Stefansson, the Arctic explorer, has recommended this method and most authorities agree that it is not advisable to apply snow, ice, or ice water to frostbite. Neither should alcoholic stimulants be given. Warmth should be applied cautiously and increased gradually.

Doctor Traub has pointed out that psoriasis tends to get worse in winter probably because the patient is exposed less to the sun. We do not know the cause of psoriasis, but it has been fairly well established that it is less serious in summer than in the winter.

PERSONALITIES
TODAY'S PROFILE

By The United Press

Alexander Woollcott probably knows more playwrights than most men, yet not until this year did one of them think to make him the central theme of a play, although his is a character that fairly screams for dramatization.

So distant was this idea from the minds of his friends that one of them wrote an exhaustive magazine sketch of him and went around retailing anecdotes he had unearthed. Moss Hart and George Kaufman used the article as the basis for their hit play. "The Man Who Came to Dinner", which is Woollcott in three acts.

S. N. Behrman, one of The Town Crier's friends, had written two parts in separate works for Woollcott to act out himself. As far as Woollcott was concerned, acting consisted of being devastatingly natural, which means he moved his impressive bulk with ponderous deliberation, collapsed on settees and, at the same time, uttered epigrams—bland or biting depending on the mood of the role.

Woollcott is 52. He has a huge head, mostly forehead, two recessed eyes behind thick glasses and a small beaked nose which gives him the approximate aspect of an owl. His several chins merge in circular folds. He lives on a schedule as complicated as that of a railroad and is furious when his routine is upset. He is unmarried.

After leaving college he became a newspaper reporter and later drama critic. As a critic he became a power in the theater, although some held that he was given to extremes of praise and censure. He has written and edited a number of books, some of which were eminently successful, innumerable magazine articles and a couple of plays, neither of which created much of a stir.

Woollcott's income from his writing is about $70,000 a year. At one time he was worth $200,000. He was called away from a croquet game to be told by his broker that he had been ruined in the depression market. He went back to the game without batting an eye. His gatherings are famous, and his friends are the most celebrated writers and wits of the day. He insults them all impartially. He is a prodigious correspondent, and his letters are saved by thrifty friends against the day when they may be valuable. One of his masterpieces of invective already has been sold for $25.

Since he left the airwaves as Town Crier, he has spent most of his time in the rigidly-kept seclusion of his island hame in Vermont. The select few, among them, Harpo Marx and the creators of the new play, visit there for long sojourns. He is a legend even among the dry and skeptical natives of Vermont.

In New York, where his wide-brimmed black hat, flowing black tie and stick are familiar to veteran first-nighters, he is known as the Smartest of Alecks. Other sobriquets include the one bestowed by Edna Ferber, the novelist—"Two characters out of Dickens" and Howard Dietz's whimsical tribute —"Louisa M. Woollcott".

Admiral Byrd made a trip around the world alone at the age of 10.

Since introduction of mechanical power and machinery on farms, an American agricultural worker is able to care for three times as many acres of crops as he could 75 years ago.

Electric Service Means MORE Than Light Alone

IF you use electric service only for light, you can read under a 100-watt lamp for about one cent an hour. But—

IF you also have a refrigerator and some small appliances, such as toaster and sweeper, then you can read under that lamp 2½ hours for about one cent. And

IF you cook on a modern electric range—which earns you a much lower rate, then you can read under that lamp five hours for one cent.

BOBCATS NOSE OUT QUANAH; TO MEET COYOTES THIS WEEK

COLUMN—

Sport Parade

By Henry McLemore.

NEW YORK (UP)—This is the first and last of a series of seven articles on the various bowl football games to be played on Jan. 1. It is being written at the popular request of no one, particularly the sponsors of the games, who for some unexplainable reason like to run their own shows themselves.

Ignoring for the moment this churlish refusal to cooperate with outside meddlers, let me brush by the flowers at Pasadena, stride into the executive offices of the Rose Bowl and tell the operators of that extravaganza what they should do. My first suggestion would be that the invitation be extended to Tennessee. My second suggestion would be that the invitation be extended right now, and not withheld until sometime in December.

These late invitations work a hardship on a team. The players believe they are not going to be asked, so they dig contentedly into their school books and begin to dream dreams of a happy vacation in slush and snow and sleet. Then, all of a sudden. they are yanked away right in the middle of an exciting chapter in calculus, stowed on an uncomfortable private train, and taken to California for a disheartening round of banquets, orange groves and movie studios. If they were informed now that they were going, they could steel themselves against such a trying time.

Then there is the item of the $100,000 that goes to the school whose team is invited to the bowl. Why, if the school that is going could count in that money right now, its talent scouts could get a two-month jump on their rivals in foraging for materials for next year's team, to say nothing of the new hedges that could be planted on the campus, and the sidewalks that could be laid down in the quadrangle before the advent of winter. And the dean could go right ahead with plans to have new rollers installed on his chair.

Then we must consider the coach. If the invitation doesn't come until December, he hasn't time to beg, borrow or steal information on the team he is to play and must rely on his own skill for an offense and a defense. This is hardly cricket, as the western team hardly ever invites an opponent it hasn't scouted since the first secret practice last spring. This wasn't true of Duke last year, because all the Blue Devils had was Coach Wallace Wade and Halfback Eric Tipton. Southern California knew both of them would kick, and they did. But teams like Duke don't come along every year, much to the Trojans' regret.

But back to Tennessee. The Vols can be safely asked now, because they aren't going to be beaten. Last year Tennessee and TCU had equal claims with Duke, but were unfortunate in having better teams and so lost the bid. The Vols shouldn't be overlooked two years in succession.

Theirs is a record that deserves recognition. Then there is this to consider: If one had to pick the team right now most capable of giving Tennessee a bang-up battle, that team would be USC; a trifle slow to start, the Trojans are rolling now and probably will be rolling even higher on New Year's Day.

(In later issues I will poke my nose into the affairs of the Sugar, Orange and Cotton Bowls.)

Privitt's Kicks Save Game for Childress Team

By Doyle Vinson.

Saved by the toe of Sammy Privitt from suffering disaster in their game with the Quanah Indians at Fair Park field Friday night, the Childress Bobcats are still on top in district 2AA but they must face Wichita Falls and Electra, the two toughest teams in the district, during the next three weeks.

Privitt's two extra points gave the Cats their 14-13 margin on Quanah Friday night as the Childress men turned in one of their dullest performances of the season.

The 14-point lead stacked up by the Bobcats in the first quarter failed to convince the Tribe of Childress' superiority, so they came back in the second half to all but blast Joe Gibson's team off the field. Clark Wells, grinning Indian fullback, passed and ran the Bobcats ragged, but missed the extra point that would have tied the score.

Breaks Favor Tribe

The Quanah team got all of the breaks and after the first quarter played most of the football. After flashing to their two touchdowns in the opening period, the Bobcats sunk to mediocrity and lost the decision in every department of the game except scoring.

Morgan Goodson took the opening kickoff and rushed up the middle to the Quanah 40 before he was spilled. He then picked up nine yards, and after a pass failure, James Willeford hit the line for a first down on the Quanah 29. After Reeves made two, Goodson sailed off tackle for 14 more, then Reeves and Willeford plowed to the two and Willeford went over. Privitt's kick was true.

Quanah took the kickoff, went into Childress territory on a screen-pass play that was good for 15 yards, moved to the Bobcat 20 on ground before they were halted when Goodson intercepted a pass. The Bobcats moved to midfield and kicked into Indian territory. The Tribe booted back to midfield and on the first play, Reeves fired a long shot to Goodson for 46 yards and a touchdown. Privitt again kicked the point.

As the second period opened, Max Jones recovered a Quanah fumble on the Tribe 35 and Reeves passed to Jim Howard for 20 yards. Howard was in the clear, but the pass was short and he was nailed as he caught it. Willeford went to the Quanah 11, but the attack bogged down and Quanah took over after Buford Landers barely missed a pass over the goal line.

Kick Blocked

The Tribe kicked into Bobcat territory and Reeves attempted a quick-kick, but it was partially blocked and short and the visitors were again in the Cats' end of the field. After an exchange of punts, the Tribe moved to the Bobcat 12, but the threat was tossed back and Reeves kicked out of danger as the half ended.

Quanah took the third quarter kickoff and Wells promptly passed to Jolly to the Bobcat 45. Wells, Edmondson and Epps moved down the field on ground plays and Wells finally went over by inches on the fourth down but he missed his kick for point.

Howard took the kickoff to the Quanah 43, but Reeves' pass was intercepted on the Quanah 18. Jones promptly snared a Quanah pass and the Cats were on the Indian 20. A penalty dropped the Bobcats back, then Quanah intercepted another pass. Striking through the air, the Indians moved to the Childress 30 as the period ended.

Score On Pass

The Bobcats braced and halted the drive and Reeves kicked back into Redskin territory, but Quanah took the air again and went to the Bobcat 40 before Jones intercepted another pass. Willeford pitched to Goodson who was in the clear, but he tripped and fell on the Quanah 25. The Bobcats failed to move and Quanah took over on their 28.

Wells passed down the middle, a couple of Childress defenders touched the ball and tipped it into the hands of Jolly, who was open. He raced 72 yards for a touchdown and Wells booted the point.

An out-of-bounds kickoff started the Bobcats from their 35 and Reeves passed to Landers on the Quanah 40. Reeves made eight and Willeford 3, but the Cats were short of a first down, so Quanah started operating from their 31. A ten-yard pass registered another first down, but Foster and Howard trapped Wells and Foster stole the ball on the Quanah 31. Willeford hit the line for two yards and the game ended.

SHAMROCK WINS TITLE BY BEATING ROCKETS

Shamrock's fighting Irish won the district 3A football championship Friday night when they nosed out the defending champions, the Wellington Skyrockets, 6-0 in a standoff battle at Shamrock.

A blocked punt and recovery for a touchdown by Shamrock center Holmes gave the Irish their victory and an undefeated conference season. They were tied by McLean but defeated their other five opponents.

Clarendon iced away second place by battering the Memphis Cyclone, 55-0, and McLean beat Wheeler to hold to the third slot.

Three Teams Still in Race For Title

It's Childress, Wichita Falls and Electra in a three-way race for the district 2AA title with the Bobcats and Coyotes scheduled to duel here Friday for the right to go into the final lap.

The Childress team remained on top when they nosed out the Quanah Indians 14-13 last Friday night, eliminating the Tribe from consideration. At the same time, the Vernon Lions finally flashed their power to beat Olney, 36-18, and shove the Cubs out of the race.

Graham lost to Mineral Wells, 13-0, in a non-conference contest.

The Wichita Falls invasion of Childress will feature this week's card, but Electra must dispose of Quanah, a team that is becoming increasingly hard to beat. The Tiger-Indian affair will be in Quanah.

Vernon will go to Breckenridge for a non-conference battle to complete this week's schedule.

With three victories and a tie, the Bobcats have the best chance for a clear claim to the championship as both Electra and Wichita Falls have losses on their records. Childress was tied by Vernon, Wichita Falls lost to Electra and Electra fell before Olney.

The Cats will meet the Coyotes this week, then rest a week before meeting Electra in the Thanksgiving windup. Wichita Falls will face Olney the week after their engagement with the Bobcats, and Electra must meet Quanah and Graham before they tangle with the Bobcats.

Floydada Moves Up to Challenge Lockney's Lead

The Lockney Longhorns were idle Friday, but their lead in district 4A increased to a full game when both Matador and Spur were defeated.

The Paducah Dragons pulled the big upset by staging a last minute rally to take a 25-20 decision over Spur and Floydada whipped Matador, 13-6, to move into second place.

Crosbyton beat Ralls 25-6 in the other game.

Lockney will invade Spur in the only game on the schedule this week, but there is little chance for the title to be decided until Thanksgiving.

Kirkland Cagers To Meet Thalia

After splitting games the past week with Thalia and Odell, the Kirkland Eagles will make a home stand against the Thalia Devils Tuesday evening. A volleyball game between the two schools will open the night's program at 7 o'clock.

It was only by a three-point margin that the Eagles nosed out the Thalia five before, so Coach Glyndon Riley will be expecting the worst. It is probable that he will start Weldon Hardin in place of Connie Pelly who was injured Thursday night against Odell. The quintet will be completed by Doyle Thomas, new pivot man, Robert Clements, Roy Shanks and Norman Harris who has been rapidly improving as a guard. Ruben Thomas, Genoy White and Tom Hoper will be ready as reserves.

Armistice Day Is No Holiday In War Zones

By The United Press

British poppies were on sale in France Saturday; French cornflowers were sold in Britain. Wreaths were laid on the tombs of the unknown soldiers in London and Paris. Little knots of soldiers stood in a few French graveyards and old people streamed to church.

Saturday was Armistice Day in Europe, the 21st anniversary of the end of the war to end war.

A famous hour, 11 a. m., passed almost unheeded. The signal for the customary two minutes of silence and pause in traffic could not be given in Paris nor London. It might have been mistaken for the air raid alarm.

There wasn't any celebration. It wasn't a holiday. The work had to go on. Materials and men were needed in the new war.

Even before dawn in Paris there was an air raid alarm and the sirens drowned out the church bells.

On the other side of the war frontier, 11 o'clock was chosen as the hour for the funeral at Munich, Germany, of the seven nazis killed by Wednesday night's beer cellar bombing, the attempted assassination of Adolf Hitler. Hitler's own newspaper chose the day to summarize the war situation and announce that "the sword of decision may strike at any moment. This moment will be decided by the fuehrer at the right place and right time".

This new electric Record Player can be attached to your radio and plays the records right through the audio-tubes with all the volume, tone control and clarity of the radio itself. It is completely electric, needs no winding and comes to you in a sturdy, bakelite cabinet. Those who accumulate the 38 recordings of this offer will receive this wonderful instrument for only $3.
If you wish to receive your Record Player more quickly, you may get it by paying $5. When you have completed your 10 symphonies, $2 will be returned to you. In either case the Record Player comes to you for the exceptionally low price of only $3. For those who desire a more elaborate instrument there is available a Symphonic De Luxe Record Player at a higher price. In filling in the reservation, please indicate on the form whether or not you want the Record Player.

RULES AND CONDITIONS

To obtain the 10 symphonies and symphonic masterpieces and the electric Record Player to be distributed in this Music Appreciation Plan, proceed as follows:

First, fill in and mail the Reservation Form printed in the lower right corner of this page. The purpose of this form is not to obligate you in any way, but to enable us to estimate the quantity of records and Record Players to have on hand to meet the demand.

Each day during this music appreciation offer, we will publish a reminder coupon setting forth the date on which each symphony will be ready. You can get your first symphony (Franz Schubert's No. 8 in B minor) on or after November 4th. Subsequent symphonies will be released one every two weeks thereafter. Watch the reminder coupon which will be published daily. It is not necessary for you to clip the coupons in order to get your records or Record Player.

You obtain each symphony, which consists of three or four double-faced 12-inch records, for a payment of $1.49. This payment is not for each record, but for all THREE or FOUR records. Symphonies which consist of FIVE double-faced 12-inch records require a payment of $1.98 for the entire symphony of all FIVE records. The Cesar Franck Symphony in D minor, on account of its great length, is divided into two units, each unit consisting of three double-faced 12-inch records, and the cost of each unit is $1.49, the same as for any other three-record group.

A quantity of de luxe records, known as Philharmonic Transcriptions enclosed in beautiful record albums which have been designed individually for each particular symphony, are available at a slightly higher price.

After you have obtained all ten of the symphonies, you can secure the Electric Record Player for a payment of only $3. If you want to get your Record Player earlier, you can do so—you can get it with your first group of records, your second, third, or any other group, merely by making a deposit of $5. After you have obtained all of the 10 symphonies, $2 will be returned to you. Thus, whether you get your Record Player before or after you have obtained all of the symphonies, the cost to you is only $3.

For those who want a more elaborate Record Player, a Symphonic De Luxe Model, enclosed in a walnut case, is available at a higher price.

First, mail the Reservation Form to assist us in our distribution problems. Please check whether or not you want the Record Player reserved. We will acknowledge your reservation by mail. Filling in and mailing the reservation entail no obligation whatever on your part.

POLITICAL SATIRE FEATURES FILM PROGRAM THIS WEEK

'Mr. Smith' at Palace, Praised As Entertainment

"Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," opening at the Palace today for a three-day run, has been received enthusiastically by audiences all over the nation since its recent premiere in Washington. Even red-faced senators who saw their dignity lampooned, and newspapermen who saw themselves screened as drunken bums again, admitted that it is a good show.

Direction by famous Frank Capra seems to be the ingedient responsible for its merit. Good performances are credited to James Stewart as a vaguely well-meaning junior senator who learns to fillibuster for his principles, Jean Arthur as his competent, knowing secretary whose pity is akin to love, and Claude Rains as a senator caught in his own political toils.

The Monogram offers two features the first of the week, a stage appearance of Mel-Roy, billed as the master of mental magic, and a screen showing of "Everything's On Ice," comedy starring Irene Dare, child skater.

Mel-Roy specializes in mind reading stunts and such psychological legerdemain as spook raising and table tapping. His engagement here will end Tuesday night with a midnight "spook show."

The film headliner presents some spectacular ice ballets along with comedy furnished by Edgar Kennedy as the father of a child skating star and Roscoe Karns as her ne'er-do-well uncle who is willing to capitalize on her talent.

Still a standout in the epidemic of aviation films, "Test Pilot" will be returned at the Gem today and through Tuesday. Spencer Tracy, Myrna Loy and Clark Gable are the stars in this story of the reckless fliers who risk their lives constantly testing new planes.

More aviation development is shown in "20,000 Men a Year," the midweek feature at the Palace. It films a new angle on flying, the work of the civil aeronautics commission in training students to fly.

Randolph Scott and Preston Foster as a pair of experienced fliers, Robert Shaw and George Ernest as college students, Margaret Lindsay and Mary Healy for romantic interest, Jane Darwell and Maxie Rosenbloom for comedy, are the principal players.

First starring picture for Richard Greene, who has climbed rapidly in popularity since his screen debut little more than a year ago, is "Here I Am a Stranger," which will be shown Friday and Saturday at the Palace.

As a college youth who must choose between his socially snobbish mother and his improvident father, he is supported by a cast that includes Richard Dix and Gladys George as the parents, Brenda Joyce as his campus sweetheart and Roland Young as a philosophical professor.

Continuing the week at the Gem, the Wednesday and Thursday film will be "Mr. Moto Takes a Vacation," with Peter Lorre playing the inscrutable oriental sleuth.

Ostensibly on a pleasure trip, you would know that Mr. Moto runs into a theft of fabulous jewels and a murder in a museum. He is helped out by Joseph Schildkraut, Lionel Atwill and Virginia Field.

Introducing Gene Austin, popular song sylist, as a western star, "Songs and Saddles" will be the weekend attraction at the Gem. Austin sings five songs of his own composition and still leaves time for plenty of outdoor action in some magnificent western settings.

Victor McLaglen and Sally Eilers are starred in "Full Confession," coming to the Monogram Wednesday and Thursday.

One of Zane Grey's popular westerns, "Heritage of the Desert," appears in its screen version at the Monogram Friday and Saturday. Its cast includes Donald Woods, Evelyn Venable, Robert Barrat and Sydney Toler, a judicious mixture of heroes and villains.

Cotton Scores Good Gains During Week

NEW YORK (UP)—Cotton futures scored gains ranging to $1.60 a bale last week on broad demand despite holiday restrictions. Nearbys were in relatively better demand and showed wider gains than in the 1940 deliveries.

At Friday's close prices ranged from 2 to 32 points higher compared with last Saturday's finish.

Buying orders came from Liverpool, Bombay, Wall street and the trade. Leading bullish news item was the report that officials in Washington expect the 1939-40 loan program to bring about a "squeeze" market prior to the spring of next year.

Another was the monthly crop estimate of the bureau of agricultural economics which placed the probable yield at only 11,845,000 bales, a drop of 83,000 bales from Oct. 1 and the smallest crop since 1935.

However, the effect of the crop report was more or less discounted as it was about in line with trade expectations.

Some talk was heard in trade circles during the week to the effect that a farm bill was almost certain to appear before the next regular session of congress. This has resulted to some extent in settling the market long-range outlook.

STEAMER ESCAPES ATTACK

LONDON (UP)—A German airplane attacked a French channel steamer Saturday shortly after it left a French port with 90 passengers. Two bombs fell into the sea. The steamer was not damaged and continued its crossing to the English side.

Passengers said they saw three pursuit planes drive away the German craft which was at an altitude of about 12,000 feet.

Passengers said one bomb fell about 120 yards from the steamer.

"At one time the plane seemed to be right over us," one passenger said. "Three French or British machines flew between the nazi planes and the steamer, protecting us from the dive bombing attack that I think the pilot intended to make."

British Queen Gives Radio Address

LONDON (UP)—Speaking as a woman to the women of the British empire, Queen Elizabeth in an Armistice Day broadcast Saturday night asked them "to face the petty irritations of wartime life with the same fortitude as you face its dangers."

"You are giving real service to your country," she said. You are taking your part in keeping the home fronts, which have dangers of their own, stable and strong.

"We no less than the men have real and vital work to do. To us also has been given the proud privilege of serving our country in her hour of need.

"The last time I broadcast a message was from Halifax, Nova Scotia, when I said a few words of farewell to all the men, women and children who had welcomed the king and myself so kindly during our visits to Canada and the United States of America," the queen said.

"The world then was at peace and for seven happy weeks we had moved in an atmosphere of such good will and human kindliness that the very idea of war seemed impossible. Recollection of it still warms my heart and gives me courage."

• Highlights From Latest Books

King Arthur's court has always seemed a pretty serious place, with Knights of the Round Table out questing for the Grail, righting wrongs and rescuing fair damsels in distress; but T. H. White dispels that idea and makes the Table a roaring circle of fun in his latest, hilarious account of the era of chivalry. "The Witch in the Woods" (G. P. Putnam's Sons: $2.50).

"The Witch" is somewhat of a sequel to White's first rowdy picture of King Arthur's boyhood in "The Sword in the Stone" but escapes the faults that are usually found in sequels. There are no dull moments in this merry mix-up of fact, fancy and fun.

The lady of the title is one Morgause, sister of King Lot and mother of those four Rover Boys of romance—Gareth, Gawaine, Agravaine and Gaheris. More of Morgause's supernatural powers are devoted to making herself bewitching than to casting spells upon visiting knights. Take White's word for it—mud packs and beauty baths were invented by magicians, not beauty experts.

Three prize characters, King Pellinore, Sir Grummore and a learned and bewildered Saracen, Sir Palomides, carry a full share of the fun in this unroarious book. Beset by Morgause's amorous advances—King Lot is away at war—this dizzy trio romp through a rapid succession of adventures that send most knights scurrying home to get Lancelot.

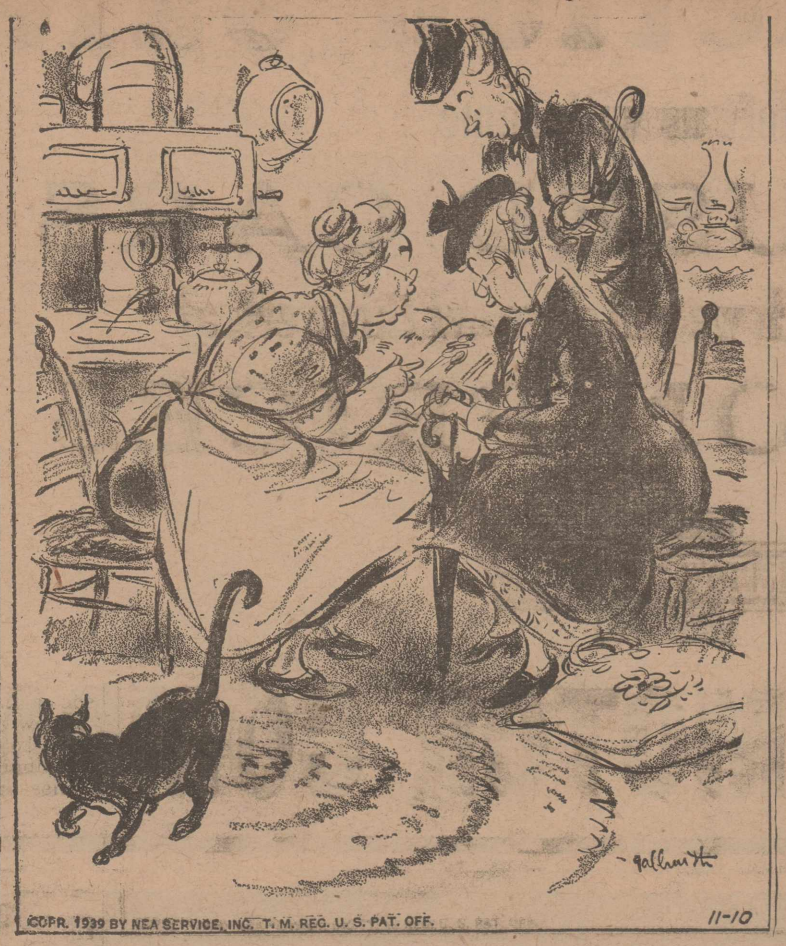

In all of his fun, White reveals a deep study of the period of chivalry and a vast understanding of human nature. Forgive his odd additions of slang and his British style of humor and you'll discover "The Witch" is one of the most delightfully enjoyable persons ever to come out of a wood.

I tell you, the mayors, the city officials, get kicked around and have more work to do than any others on the face of the earth.—Mayor Maury Maverick of San Antonio, Tex.

SERIAL STORY

JOAN OF ARKANSAS

BY JERRY BRONDFIELD

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: Joan's plan to burn the hideout works. She breaks a jar of coal-oil, sets it afire. In the confusion she reaches Sam's gun, covers Big Ed. Dan, freed, takes care of Sam as he hurries into the house. Dan herds the two kidnapers into the car, orders Joan to drive to town.

CHAPTER XXVIII

FROM every direction, people streamed toward the great Tech stadium. It was like a pilgrimage, with the huge concrete horseshoe as their mecca.

Tommy Peters, leaning upon his megaphone, stared up at the stands. "They'll hit 75,000 sure today," he remarked to an assistant.

Suddenly his eyes froze on a spot six or seven rows above him. There sat Rocco Petrone! Tommy dropped his megaphone. "Take over till I get back!" he yelled, and dashed for the Tech dressing rooms.

There was still 20 minutes before the kickoff. It was a bare chance, but Rocco Petrone might be able to lead them to Joan and Dan. Tommy swore excitedly as he raced to tell Bill Slocum.

He raced across the running track. Just as he approached the gate on the other side of the field he almost stumbled from shock.

Dan Webber and Joan Johnson, escorted by three policemen, were being rushed into the stadium.

Tommy shrieked and dashed toward them.

"No time for talk now," Dan howled happily. "Gotta get dressed."

He hurried toward the tunnel leading to the dressing rooms, suddenly stopped and ran back to Joan. He grasped her shoulders, his eyes sparkling.

"This'll have to do until later." He kissed her hastily and dashed off again.

Tommy howled and threw his arms around Joan. He shrieked in her ear but she hardly noticed. Her eyes swam with happiness as she watched Dan disappear into the tunnel.

"Hey, snap out of it . . . wake up!" Tommy pleaded. "What . . . ? Where . . . ? C'mon, tell me something or I'll pass out!"

She told him as much as she could in a rush of words. It didn't occur to her that she ought to be resting now. This was no time for convalescence. She'd call her father just as soon as she could get to a phone.

Tommy stopped short. "Tell me . . . was there a guy named Rocco . . . ?"

"Rocco?" she echoed. "Yes, but how did you . . . ?"

"Wait here," he ordered. "Don't cross the field yet!"

NEVER had there been such a scene in the Tech dressing room. Tears actually flooded Bill Slocum's eyes as he smothered Dan in his arms. Joe Donchek danced around in his stocking feet and howled in native Slav. They all acted like a bunch of Comanches, hurling helmets into the air in their delirium.

It took Dan just one minute to convince Slocum he was strong enough to play. Slocum slapped him on the back and shoved him toward his locker.

Keith came over and embraced him. "Gee, it's swell to have you back, Danny boy."

"Thanks, pal. We're gonna take these guys, aren't we? Any new stuff?"

"Very little," Keith informed him. "We'll steer you on one new formation . . . and you know all the old stuff."

Dan felt like telling him that wasn't all he knew, but let Keith find out for himself, he figured.

THE public address system had broken the news about Dan and Joan, and when the Tech squad raced onto the field, a bedlam of sound arose.

"Get yourself warmed up good," Johnny White advised. "You're probably a little soft and this is gonna be murder."

He wasn't far from right. Barney Hughes won the toss and chose to kick off. The referee blew the whistle, the Tech line moved forward, and Tony Mangano sent the ball end over end down to the five.

There was a roar as Hal Forrest took it, moved in behind his interference and started up field under a full head of steam. There was a flash of maroon as Joe Donchek, chortling like a kid with a new toy, smashed in from the side and brought him down on the 14.

Joe got up chattering furiously. "Okay, Danny boy . . . welcome home . . . that one was for you . . . let's get 'em . . . let's get 'em, Danny boy!"

The rest of them took up the cue as they lined up. Dan almost had to fight to keep the tears back. He knew how they felt.

Pitt went into a single wing to the right. The Tech line shifted out with them. Dan nosed up just behind his tackle when the ball was snapped, and was right in his diagnosis. They thundered toward an opening but Dan knifed through and dropped the runner on the line of scrimmage.

Marty Gallagher helped Dan to his feet. "I hoped you'd make the first one . . . I hoped you would!"

The first few exchanges of downs indicated what was to come. Theirs was to be a defensive battle. They had to stop Forrest and McCarroll and wait for a break of their own.

"No use springing much till we get a real opportunity," Tommy panted in their first timeout . . . "Just hold 'em . . . make 'em punt on third down if we can . . . we can't take this pounding long."

But the mighty Pitt forward wall slowly pushed them back. Dan and Tony Mangano played up close, plugging gaps desperately.

The Panthers bruited their way down to the Tech 30. First and 10. The Pitt quarter took the ball from center . . . spun. Hank Butler, Tech tackle, smashed in and was mousetrapped beautifully. Hal Forrest took the ball from the spinning quarterback and sailed through the hole for five yards.

Forrest pounded for two more before Dan and Marty Gallagher ganged him.

Pitt gave it to McCarroll on a deep reverse and the crowd stood up with a roar. The Panther blockers were carrying out their assignments with mechanical perfection. Barney Hughes was ridden out by a wave of interferers and McCarroll cut inside with plenty to spare.

Out of the corner of his eye Dan saw Marty Gallagher go down in a heap and he knew he was the last one on that side of the line who had a chance to stop the flying Pitt ball carrier.

He pounded across the field and trapped McCarroll on the five-yard line in the coffin corner.

He lunged forward to make the tackle and was hit at the same time by the Pitt end completing his downfield blocking chore.

Desperately Dan flung his outstretched hand toward McCarroll's leg . . . barely succeeded in tripping him as he went down.

Dan hit the turf hard. A sharp, piercing pain shot through his hand at the impact. Without looking at it, Dan knew he had rebroken the bone.

False Air Raid Alarm in Paris

PARIS (UP)—An air raid alarm tumbled Paris into shelters at 4:45 a. m. Saturday. One hour and ten minutes later the all-clear signal was given and Paris went back to bed. No planes appeared.

It was the sixth air raid alarm sounded since the war started and the sixth which proved false. The sky was heavily overcast and it began raining during the time the populace was in the shelters.

SUSPECT IN HITLER DEATH PLOT IS SOUGHT IN GERMANY

Description Is Given by Secret Police

MUNICH (UP)—Heinrich Himmler, chief of the secret police, announced Saturday night that a workman was under grave suspicion as the person responsible for the bombing attempt to assassinate Adolf Hitler.

Himmler appealed to the public to watch for and report to Munich secret police headquarters if a workman answering to the following description is seen:

About 5 feet 4 inches tall.
Thirty to 35 years old.
Dark, unparted hair.
Wearing dirty yellowish work clothes, knickerbockers and a visored cap.

MUNICH, Germany (UP)—Adolf Hitler appeared unexpectedly Saturday at the funeral of seven nazis killed in Wednesday night's beer cellar bombing and stood silently while the deputy fuehrer, Rudolph Hess, in the funeral oration said, "The instigators of this deed have finally taught the German people to hate."

Hitler presumably came by airplane from Berlin, where he had been seen last night, and stayed only a few minutes. His attendance had not been disclosed in advance.

The bomb which killed the seven whose funeral was held, had missed him by only ten minutes.

The hour chosen for the funeral was 11 a. m., the hour at which the war to end wars ended 21 years ago in humiliating defeat for Germany and an anniversary of triumph for Germany's enemies, Britain and France, which they observed but half-heartedly. Why it was chosen deliberately was not known.

In Hitler's presence, Hess said, "The German people bid farewell to those who were victims of a terrible criminal act whose intended victim was the fuehrer. Germany will never forget them. Their death brought to the German people a realization of the extent and violence of what was planned against the fuehrer.

"To those who instigated this act we say 'You wanted to take the fuehrer from us, but you only brought him closer to us. You wanted to weaken us but you made us stronger. Never was the German people surer of victory than today and when you set in motion the forces of evil, victory is still ours. Our victory is in the memory of these dead'."

Russia Says Finland Holds Wrong Attitude

MOSCOW (UP)—A communique issued through the official soviet news agency Tass charged Saturday night that Finland is maintaining an "irreconcilable attitude" in negotiations with the soviet union.

The communique charged that Finland had increased her troops on the soviet frontier from three to seven divisions.

The communique denied a British report that in the last conference at the Kremlin between the Finnish delegation and soviet officials, Josef Stalin rejected a Finnish offer of concession.

"On the contrary," the communique said, "the Finns have not changed their uncompromising attitude."

Belgians and Dutch Fight For Neutrality

AMSTERDAM (UP)—Holland and Belgium fought back stubbornly in Europe's war of nerves Saturday night with unshakable determination to maintain their neutrality.

Speculation and rumor regarding the possibility of a nazi thrust through the low countries, originating chiefly in Britain and France, continued unabated but the governments of both neutral nations denied reports that Germany had threatened them or made any demands. (The London Daily Mirror had reported that Germany sent Holland an ultimatum demanding sea and air bases.)

At Brussels it was reported that Belgian workers seeking to cross the German frontier Saturday morning were sent back by Belgian frontier guards.

At The Hague armed constabulary guarded the main public buildings and similar guards were posted throughout Holland, but officials said the action was to maintain law and order during the present period of tension and had nothing to do with fear of invasion.

At Venlo a United Press correspondent touring the German frontier sighted no nazi troop concentrations although inhabitants said that on a clear day large numbers of German forces could be seen. The correspondent found every road leading into Holland barricaded with concrete obstacles and guarded by Dutch soldiers.

Garner Boom To Be Launched Immediately

WASHINGTON (UP) — The political armistice ended with a bang Saturday with the revelation of the Garner-for-president plan to organize a majority of the states in the vice-president's behalf within the next two months.

Garner managers, however, will stay out of notable favorite-son states such as Tennessee and Indiana, where Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt would expect delegate support at the 1940 democratic national convention.

Managers of the Garner campaign insist that President Roosevelt will not be a third-term candidate. To suggestions that Mr. Roosevelt might bolt his 1932-36 running mate if the vice-president were nominated for the top spot next year, the Texan's associates will counter with emphasis on the part Garner played in making possible the first Roosevelt nomination. They figure that Mr. Roosevelt should be grateful.
