Red clouds signal topsoil damage

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

The Big Spring area has been experiencing quite a bit of cloudiness lately. Only the clouds are red and made of dust.

This past Sunday Big Spring was engulfed by a dust storm straight out of Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath." Visibility was limited, dirt raced in sheets across highways and people coughed and wheezed their way around through the red fog.

It was one of those days when you could taste the grit between your teeth.

Not only was the dust a discomfort, but it was damaging to area farmers' topsoil, according to Chesley Wilson, district superintendent of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service and Bill Fryrear, of the U.S. Big Spring Field Station.

"The wind definitely has an effect on the soil. That fine material you see up in the air is really the best part of the soil. The wind carries the nutrients away," Fryrear said.

"Sunday's storm was pretty bad. We estimate that some areas had a 200 ton loss per acre, which is pretty heavy," Wilson said. According to Fryrear 200 tons per acre is approximately one-fourth inch.

Fryrear said the effects of one wind storm are small, but repeated storms can cause a drastic effect on the land.

He said measuring erosion caused by wind is a difficult process because soil can be carried and mixed with other soil, which makes specific figures impossible.

"The erosion process is slow, but each time soil is blown away it takes a little more rain next time to maintain ground moisture," Fryrear said. "Erosion takes away just a little bit of the land's productive powers every time.

"The wind has come at a bad time this year. Right now farmers are between stripping and getting the land plowed and worked, so the soil is susceptible to wind erosion."

Fryrear said the situation could get worse if the area doesn't receive some rain in the next few months. He said the soil could get too dry for farmers to work, which would lay open the land to disastrous winds.

"The situation depends on how quickly we get rain and if farmers can get the land worked. I'm afraid yesterday could be the beginning of a very dusty spring," Fryrear said.

Fryrear said the Field Station has been studying the effects of wind erosion in the area for 40 years. He said during the first and last 15 years of the study, soils had been reduced about 30 percent in productiveness.

"This is why we've seen more farmers using commercial fertilizer with appreciable results. The nutrients in the soil are being carried away and the soil is just not as fertile as it used to be," Fryrear said.

"We hate to see the erosion and the farmers dread it. They just can't afford erosion," Fryrear said.

Wilson said farmers can combat the erosion by planting cover crops on the land or placing gin trash on the soil to hold the fine topsoil in place.

"The wind has caught farmers just a bit behind in their schedules, hopefully they'll be able to take care of their land soon," Wilson said.

"If farmers can get their land worked then that probably would reduce erosion one-half to one-third. We're right in the heart of the erosion belt, but we're constantly working with farmers to reduce the impact of the storms," Fryrear said.

CLOUDS OF DUST — The Big Spring area was hit by a dust storm Sunday which saw winds of up to 52 miles per hour, according to Charles Yates of the U.S. Big Spring Field Station. The average wind speed during the storm was 35 mph. The high winds also damaged topsoil. This photo was made from atop the Permian Building, facing southeast.

3 children buried under mud when house collapses

PACIFICA, Calif. (AP) — Three children were feared buried under tons of mud inside their home today after the dwelling was crushed by a huge mudslide triggered by unrelenting rains, authorities said.

"I don't see how they could have survived," said Cal Hinton, fire chief in this community 25 south of San Francisco along the Pacific Coast.

Rescuers bathed in spotlights dug frantically with shovels and heavy equipment hoping to find Billy Velez, 9, and his sisters, Michele, 14, and Melissa, 4, after the slide swept into the house on Oddstad Boulevard in the Linda Mar District at the southern end of Pacifica shortly after 11 p.m. Monday.

Hinton said the house was crushed after a mudslide knocked the second floor off a nearby dwelling and sent it crashing into theirs.

Hinton said fire crews ripped off the roof of the house and saw only mud.

The trapped children were identified by a neighbor, Leslie Braun, as bulldozers attempted to shove a mountain of mud away from the scene.

The slide, fueled by three days of rain, flooded the street with a sea of mud 50 to 60 yards long and sent rivers up to 3 feet deep through the Linda Mar District. A 60-yard section of one boulevard was washed out by the rushing water and mud.

"It's a grim situation," said Deputy Fire Chief Gary Stofan.

The father of the children, William Velez, was staying with neighbors and made periodic appearances at the scene.

Torrential rains began in the San Francisco Bay area Sunday afternoon and continued relentlessly until early Tuesday.

At least 14 people died in weather-related accidents Monday.

Two feet of snow during the night on top of 8 feet already on the ground closed all major roads across the Sierra Nevada and the U.S. Forest Service triggered more than 100 intentional snowslides in hopes of reducing the danger of accidental avalanches.

Cosden unaffected by threat of refinery workers' strike

DENVER (AP) — Agreement will not be reached on new two-year contracts for 55,000 oil refinery workers across the nation until the refiners address union demands for a no-layoffs guarantee and better pensions, says Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union President Robert Goss.

Cosden Oil and Chemical Company will not be affected by the threatened strike. Cosden workers belong to another union, the International Union of Industrial Engineers.

The contracts expire at midnight Thursday and no progress has been made toward resolving labor and management differences, Goss said in an interview Sunday.

"We'll be at the bargaining table all week and we'll see what happens," Goss said. "I'm certain it will go down until the last minute."

He said all of the more than half-dozen company proposals rejected by OCAW so far were turned down because they did not offer enough money in wages or medical benefits. More important, Goss said, they did not address the union's primary demands for no layoffs and no plant closures, and a large pension boost.

The union has not set a specific wage increase request, but plans to do so this week, Goss said. He has indicated it might be 11 percent or more.

About 400 contracts with 98 refiners — from the largest like Gulf Oil Corp's Port Arthur, Texas, operation to small independents — expire at midnight Thursday. OCAW has not granted contract extensions in the past, but union officials have said bargaining could continue past the deadline if settlement was imminent.

The contracts were forged in 1980 following a three-month nationwide walkout over a wage and benefits reopener clause in the 1979 contract. It was the first OCAW strike in 11 years and the longest in the union's history.

The walkout ended with a 10.5 percent increase that brought the average refinery worker's wage to $11.66 an hour and added a one-year extension to the two-year contract.

Under OCAW bargaining policy, contract proposals are approved or rejected by a 12-member committee meeting at union headquartres here. The trend has been for one of the larger companies to reach a settlement and set a pattern for the rest of the industry.

In late December, Goss and the National Oil Bargaining Policy Committee turned down contract proposals by Gulf; Texaco Inc.; Amoco Oil Co., the refining arm of Standard Oil Co. (Indiana), and Shell Oil Co., as well as an unspecified number of independent refiners.

"We don't have any particular reaction" to the rejection of the contract, said Gulf spokesman Kirk Vogeley on Sunday. "No meetings have been scheduled at this time, but we would be available ato meet with the union this week if something could be arranged."

Goss said all the rejected contracts proposed wage increases of about 7 percent in 1982 and 5 percent in 1983. He said the union wants at least to match its estimate of an 11 percent inflation rate in 1982.

None of the proposals addressed the questions of no-layoffs or the union's demand for a $24 per-week, per-worker contribution to the union pension fund, Goss said. "Without that, there can be no real progress," he said.

Arkansas creation law loses

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A federal judge today struck down Arkansas' creationism law, ruling that it violates the constitutional separation of church and state.

In a much-awaited ruling, U.S. District Judge William Overton declared the purpose of the legislation was to advance religion in violation of the First Amendment prohibition against laws that advance or inhibit religion.

"The argument that creation from nothing does not involve a supernatural deity has no evidentiary or rational support," Overton ruled. "Indeed, creation of the world 'out of nothing' is the ultimate religious statement because God is the only actor."

The American Civil Liberties Union had challenged the law, which was to take effect next fall, and which would have required public schools that teach the theory of evolution to give balanced treatment to the theory known as creation science.

Overton presided over a nine-day trial last month that drew international attention because of the growing creationism movement.

The state had said that if it lost, it probably would appeal to the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis.

Creationists generally believe the Earth was created suddenly and no more than about 6,000 years ago. Evolutionists contend that scientific evidence shows that life began several million years ago and that the Earth is billions of years old.

Overton's 40-page decision said the only inference that can be drawn from the circumstances under which it was drafted and passed is that the purpose was, in fact, religious.

"It was simply and purely an effort to introduce the biblical version of creation into the public school curricula," Overton said, and where the law defines creation science as including separate ancestry of man and apes, the statute makes "a bald assertion. It explains nothing and refers to no scientific fact or theory."

During the nine-day trial, ACLU attorneys argued that the law is too vague, violates the constitutional separation of church and state and infringes on academic freedom.

314 uninsured drivers ticketed

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Police ticketed 314 motorists driving without liability insurance during the first weekend of the new Texas Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act.

"That's quite a bit for just one violation," said Municipal Court Director Bill Arnette.

However, Arnette said he was not surprised because of a large number of uninsured motorists believed to be driving in San Antonio.

The 314 tickets were among a total of 1,900 citations issued for various moving violations during the four-day New Year's weekend period, Arnette said.

Under the new law, motorists face a minimum $75 fine if they cannot prove they have liability insurance. A second offense, a Class B misdemeanor, specifies fines ranging from $200 to $1,000 upon conviction.

Action/reaction: Grader tested

Q. A small motor grader belonging to the Big Spring Independent School District has been seen in the possession of a private individual being used in private driveways. If it was not sold in public auction, why is an individual using it?

A. Don Crockett, Big Spring ISD assistant superintendent for business, replies: "We had engaged an individual to make repairs on the 33-year-old grader which had not operated for several months due to engine and hydraulic problems. The individual did operate the grader on his place and a neighbor's to test the repairs. The grader was picked up by the school district today (Monday, Jan. 4).

Inside: Allen's out

ALL THE RUMORS became fact Monday. President Reagan, opting for a national security advisor with more authority — and less of an image problem — than Richard Allen, has chosen a long-time friend with little experience in foreign affairs. See story on page 3A.

A JOSTLE AND THEN an argument aboard a crowded bus on New Year's Eve in San Antonio, Texas, left a college student dead. The homicide was a grimly fitting final statement of the growing violence in 1981 in San Antonio — where the 182 murders last year were the most ever — and for the United States. See story, page 6A.

HOPING TO AVOID a split with allies over the Polish crisis, President Reagan is trying to persuade West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt to soften his opposition to U.S. sanctions against the Soviet Union. See story on page 2A.

Redistricting on trial

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Republicans who claim they didn't get a fair shake from a new Texas Senate redistricting plan say the plan would make some people's votes count nearly twice as much as others.

State GOP chairman Chester Upham and six Republican senators filed a class-action suit in state district court, contending the plan is unconstitutional. The plaintiffs asked the court to draw new Senate districts for 1982 elections.

The trial began after an hour's delay while officials located a court reporter.

Morin indicted

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Stephan Peter Morin, already indicted by a grand jury in San Antonio in the shootings of two young women, was arraigned today in Nueces County in connection with the abduction of another.

Morin, 34, also is wanted for questioning in the slayings, kidnappings and rapes of young women in eight other states, authorities said.

State District Judge Vernon Harville arraigned Morin on charges of aggravated kidnapping and aggravated sexual abuse in the Nov. 30 abduction of Pamela Jackson, a 25-year-old Corpus Christi dental assistant.

Harville also appointed attorney Eugene Coffey to represent Morin, who is being held without bond.

Nurses stay on strike

ASHTABULA, Ohio (AP) — Nurses who rejected a contract offer that would have ended their record 17-month strike say they are eager to return to the bargaining table, but hospital administrators say there is little to discuss.

About 100 unionized nurses striking Ashtabula General Hospital turned aside a package Monday that would have made them among the highest paid nurses in Ohio and returned them to their old jobs.

"A little money and the jobs we already had just wasn't enough after 17 months," Ashtabula General Nurses Association President Mary Runyon said after the secret vote.

"The bottom line of all this is that it's a union-busting situation," said Kathy Keller, past local president who led the strike.

Hospital administrator Floyd Farley said he was "appalled by the (union's) disregard for the well-being of this community."

"The hospital has addressed in this proposal the one real issue that has separated the hospital and the nurses — the return of the nurses' jobs," Farley said.

The 535-day walkout already holds the record as the longest by nurses, according to the American Nurses Association.

Union bargainers said they would seek a return to negotiations "as soon as possible."

Charges of assault on local police officer hit Hyden

John Davis Hyden, 28, is being held in Howard County jail on $75,000 bond on charges of aggravated assault on a police officer, aggravated assault and assault. Hyden was arrested by city police Saturday night.

Bond for Hyden was set by Justice of the Peace Bobby West at $25,000 for each charge. Hyden, of 1507 Lincoln, was out on $10,000 bond following an arrest and charge of aggravated assault on a police officer Oct. 21, 1981, according to the sheriff's office records.

Also being held in county jail is Clarence Whiteley, 21. Whiteley, of Lamesa, is charged with theft and unauthorized carrying of a weapon. His two bonds totaling $3,000 were set by JP West.

Two other individuals charged with unauthorized carrying of a weapon are out on bond. Ismael Paradez, 32, of 1901 S. Monticello, had his $1,500 bond posted by Roy Ford. Frank Garza, 31, of 1606 Avion, also had his $1,500 bond posted by Ford.

MORNING

Pictured here is the sign for "morning."

Timmy Yates, a student at SWCID, signs "morning" for us. To sign the word, the fingertips of the left hand are placed in the crook of the right arm. Then, the right arm moves upward, palm up.

Dr. Lottie L. Riekehof in "The Joy of Signing" says this sign represents the sun coming up in the morning.

OVAL OFFICE MEETING — President Ronald Reagan confers in the Oval Office at the White House Tuesday with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.

Schmidt, Reagan meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt complained today that the United States did not consult with its European allies before announcing sanctions against the Soviet Union as a result of the Polish crisis.

Members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said Schmidt raised the point repeatedly during a breakfast with them in advance of his meeting with President Reagan.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said Schmidt made the "major point that he feels he has not been consulted."

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said the West German leader 'cited the Kennedy administration's handling of the Cuban missile crisis in the 1960's "where the consultation was excellent and there was uniform support."

"In this case, there was no consultation and lack of uniformity in support," Leahy added.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, said Schmidt "repeated several times during the meeting that he was not consulted in advance and was expected to fall in."

Schmidt has disputed Reagan's assertion that Moscow instigated the Dec. 13 decree of martial law in Poland and has shown no willingness to join the United States in imposing economic sanctions against Moscow.

Likewise, very few of the 15 member nations of NATO have expressed much enthusiasm for the American action.

U.S. officials cautioned against expecting any agreement from today's meeting, but made it clear that Washington is counting on its allies for support.

Said one senior official: "If we're not to receive support from our allies for the steps we've taken, obviously this would be a serious matter insofar as this alliance of ours is concerned. There's no question about that. I don't think that's what's going to happen."

Haig will join other NATO ministers in Brussels next Monday to discuss the Polish crisis and assess the possibility of developing an alliance-wide consensus.

The U.S. official, who briefed reporters on the understanding he would not be identified by name, said Washington hoped for "parallel action from our allies where possible" and "complementary steps" in other instances.

"But under any circumstances," the official stressed, "we believe our allies should not undercut the steps we have taken against the Soviet Union."

Looming in the background of the Reagan-Schmidt talks is the threat of a widening NATO rift over the sanctions.

"I think both we and the Germans are going to come into this meeting fully conscious of the fact that we have got to be careful not to let what has been an issue created in Poland by Poles and Soviets become an issue of major debate within the West," the official said. "I think we both approach it with that point in mind."

Trying to minimize differences between Washington and Bonn, U.S. officials noted that both countries have pressed for a lifting of martial law in Poland, the release of jailed Solidarity leaders and a resumption of the dialogue among the government, the church and the union.

The U.S. sanctions included a suspension of flights to the United States by the Soviet airline Aeroflot and a ban on sales of equipment the Soviets need for construction of a natural gas pipeline to Western Europe.

$12,750 awarded to residents

A ruling in 118th District Court awarded $12,750 to Jerry Don Stephens, et al, from the Big Spring Independent School District for a workers' compensation claim filed as the result of the death of Stephen's wife, Nella Mae, May 10, 1979.

The ruling also called for BSISD to pay the remaining bills at Malone-Hogan Hospital up to $2,500. The bulk of the damages were awarded to Stephens with the remainder going to two minor Stephens' children.

The case evolved following a dispute as to whether or not Mrs. Stephens had died as a result of injuries sustained while employed by Big Spring ISD.

The attorney for the Stephens' was James R. Edwards. Big Spring ISD was represented by L. Loyd MacDonald.

Police Beat

Pennies smash pane

A roll of pennies from heaven?

Well, perhaps not from heaven. But wherever it came from, the roll of pennies came crashing through a picture window at the front of the Scott Crowley residence at 714 Willia, police said.

Crowley told police at 11:30 a.m. yesterday that the mischief occurred on Saturday, according to police reports.

● Police said they arrested two Big Spring men on weapons charges early this morning.

Arrested at 2:30 a.m. on North West Sixth were Ismael Paredez, 32, and Frank Garza, 31, according to police reports.

Paredez was arrested on a charge of discharging a firearm within city limits, a misdemeanor, and Garza was arrested on a charge of unlawfully carrying a weapon, a felony, police said.

Garza is the owner of the .25-caliber pistol allegedly fired in the incident, said detective Lt. John Wolf. Paredez allegedly fired the gun, he said.

The pair were arrested after Officer P. Heller discovered them firing the gun in a field near Lakeview School, Heller said in his report.

● Police reports indicate that a $700 auto burglary was pulled off between Saturday and Monday at Pollard Chevrolet, 1501 E. Fourth. According to reports, the T-tops to a Pontiac Trans Am were taken along with a black sun fighter and a stereo speaker. The car had been locked prior to the burglary, police said.

● A Garden City woman told police yesterday that a person known to her had been encouraging her 16-year-old daughter to leave home, police said.

● Four wheel covers worth $88 were stolen from an automobile at the Barcelona Apartments, 538 Westover, police said. An officer investigated the burglary shortly after 2 p.m. yesterday, according to police reports. The owner's name was not available.

● Police said a motor vehicle owned by Erlinda Paredez of 611 N.W. Ninth was struck by a vehicle which fled the scene. The time and location of the accident are unknown, police said.

Fire destroys pickup near gin

LAMESA (SC) — A pickup owned by a Lamesa man was declared a total loss Monday as it caught fire across from the Punkin Center gin north of Lamesa.

Lamesa fire department reported the 1979 F-150 pickup owned by Mike Cline caught fire when Cline was cleaning his tool box with vapor, accidently igniting it. About 800 gallons of water was used to extinguish the blaze. It took firefighters 20 minutes to douse the flames.

Parents without partners to organize local chapter

A single parent often needs contact with others who share similar experiences in bringing up children alone. Big Spring is beginning a new chapter of Parents Without Partners to bring those parents together.

Regional president Lawrence Kennedy said the international organization, with over 200,000 members, offered a chance for single parents with children to get together. "We want to invite them to come out to our "get-acquainted" gathering Saturday at the Homestead Inn," Kennedy said.

Kennedy said the Big Spring chapter of PWP would be starting up at this meeting. The non-profit, non-soliciting organization offers educational opportunities, social and family activities for the parent and children, discussion seminars and other activities, Kennedy added.

"We want people to come to see and hear our program on what PWP can mean to a parent. Members from other chapters in Abilene, Lubbock, and Midland are expected to attend as well," Kennedy said.

Persons wishing to attend should call the Homestead Inn, 267-6303, to make reservations for the meal Saturday afternoon at 5:30 p.m., Kennedy said.

Reagan has new national security advisor

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, opting for a national security adviser with more authority than he gave deposed Richard V. Allen, is turning to a long-time confidante with little experience in foreign affairs.

The president carried out the first major personnel shakeup of his administration Monday by naming Deputy Secretary of State William P. Clark Jr. to replace Allen, whose resignation was "mutually agreed upon."

At the same time, Reagan said Clark, 50, would be given daily access to the Oval Office, something Allen lacked.

Allen had reported to Reagan through presidential counselor Edwin Meese III, who coordinates domestic and foreign policy.

Clark, a former California Supreme Court justice, was Reagan's chief of staff when Reagan was governor of California and is one of the most senior members of the president's inner circle. He planned to begin work today in the same White House basement office Allen used.

The president, in accepting Allen's resignation, said no evidence of wrongdoing had been found in Justice Department and White House probes of the former national security adviser's conduct.

"It's rather unusual that someone who had been the subject of a lot of rumors and allegations over a long period of time could go through a rigorous and meticulous examination and be substantiated in every detail and still find himself in a situation where his resignation would be submitted and accepted," Allen said.

Later, in an appearance on ABC's "Nightline," Allen said he had asked Reagan to reinstate him Monday afternoon.

"It seemed that that was not possible, precisely because of the accumulation of what I considered to be political circumstances, psychological circumstances," he said. "Having been cleared, the best thing was to take whatever burden might have been caused by my inadvertence or oversight away from the president."

CHANGING ADVISORS — Former National Security Advisor Richard Allen, left, looks over the Washington Post's coverage of his resignation before appearing on ABC News "Nightline" Monday night. President Reagan announced that the national security post would be strengthened and would go to Deputy Secretary of State William Clark, right.

Allen was placed on administrative leave with pay Nov. 29 pending the outcome of the investigations into his acceptance of $1,000 from Japanese journalists and three watches from Japanese friends and errors in his government financial disclosure forms.

Moments after Allen left the White House, Clark met with reporters.

"As the president has directed, I report directly to the president on a daily basis or more often as the issues of the day might require," he said. Clark would thus resume a role exercised by Zbigniew Brzezinski in the Carter administration and Henry A. Kissinger, who was Richard M. Nixon's national security adviser.

But unlike Brzezinski and Kissinger, Clark brings only a year's experience in foreign policy to his White House post.

His nomination a year ago provoked a storm of protest in the Senate, and Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said: "He doesn't know anything about foreign relations."

But one senior member of the White House staff said over the weekend that Clark's appointment as national security adviser would demonstrate that the president felt that his performance over the past year as deputy to Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. should have resolved any doubts about his ability.

Asked about his qualifications, Clark said Monday that it was the president's role to determine whether he was fit for the position, which does not require Senate confirmation.

As the deputy secretary of state, Clark was an intermediary in a year of feuding between Haig and Allen, apparently winning Haig's confidence while serving as the official closest to Reagan in the State Department.

Clark said the conflict between the secretary of state and national security adviser was inherent in the structure of the jobs.

"I now must view the area of national security from a presidential perspective rather than from a State Department perspective and I hope that that experience at the prior vantage spot will assist in the teamwork we all know must exist among the CIA, the Department of Defense, the State Department," Clark said.

Clark's new job, near the top of the government salary scale, pays $60,662. He will direct the National Security Council staff and "will be responsible for the development, coordination and implementation of national security policy, as approved by the president," said deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes.

Allen accepted a job as interim consultant to the president's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board, at $190 a day, Speakes said.

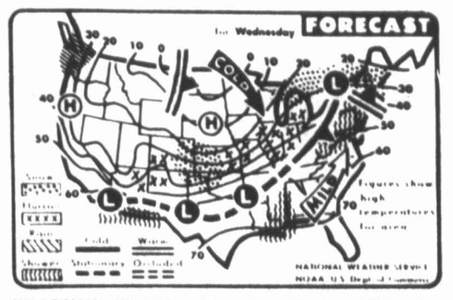

Asked whether Reagan had requested Allen's resignation in an Oval Office meeting, said to have lasted "several minutes," Speakes replied: "It was mutually agreed upon in the meeting with the two."

Accepting Allen's letter of resignation, Reagan said in a letter:

"As you leave your post, I want you to know that you do so with my confidence, trust and admiration for your personal integrity and your exemplary service to the nation."

Speakes' statement said that Allen and Reagan "agreed that in view of the controversy of recent weeks, it would be better for all concerned to seek a change in responsibilities."

Polish chief may expel Solidarity leaders

By The Associated Press

Martial law chief Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski indicated he might expel Solidarity leaders from Poland and said he would "have no objection" if Western countrie took them in, diplomatic sources said today.

Jaruzelski, meeting with 10 Common Market ambassadors Monday in Warsaw, did not indicate whether Solidarity leader Lech Walesa might be among those expelled, according to diplomatic sources in Brussels, Belgium. The sources refused to be identified.

Walesa has been under house arrest since martial law was imposed Dec. 13 and the independent labor federation has been suspended.

Jaruzelski also told the Common Market envoys he was gradually releasing some internees who had signed "guarantees they would no longer take part in subversive activities," the sources said.

The Polish government has acknowledged that 5,500 Poles have been detained under martial law, but Western sources say the number could be as high as 50,000.

Jaruzelski met for two hours with the ambassadors as Common Market foreign ministers convened in an emergency session in Brussels to consider the Polish crisis.

Radio Warsaw said Jaruzelski drew the ambassadors' "attention to the importance of the economic and trade exchanges between East and West for the consolidation of European peace."

In Brussels, the Common Market foreign ministers agreed not to undermine U.S. sanctions against Poland and the Soviet Union, but postponed proposals to join in by cutting off food and financial aid.

"Europe will do nothing in any area that might undermine the action of other countries," said the host for the 10-nation Common Market meeting, Belgian Foreign Minister Leo Tindemans.

Tindemans characterized as "tragic" the meeting between Jaruzelski and the Common Market ambassadors in Warsaw.

Dutch Foreign Minister Max van der Stoel told reporters the ambassadors' report of the meeting left him pessimistic about Poland's future.

In Moscow, Soviet media said Western Europe realized it would pay heavily for joining in the U.S. sanctions and did not want to jeopardize detente and important trading benefits.

Meanwhile, Radio Warsaw said Poland's military regime eased martial law in 10 of the 49 provinces, while schools and factories reopened across the nation. But teachers were warned not to talk politics and workers were reported wearing black armbands to protest repression of the independent labor movement.

The Polish government radio announced that many plants reopened Monday after the New Year's holiday and functioned normally for the first time since martial law was declared. It said employees of most departments were back on the job at the Lenin Shipyards in Gdansk, the biggest industrial plant on the Baltic coast and birthplace of Solidarity, after two unsuccessful attempts to reopen the yard.

"Europe will do nothing in any area that might undermine the action of other countries," said the host for the 10-nation Common Market meeting, Belgian Foreign Minister Leo Tindemans.

Tindemans characterized as "tragic" a meeting eight of their ambassadors in Warsaw had Monday with Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, Poland's premier, Communist Party chief and head of the military regime.

Radio Warsaw said Jaruzelski drew the ambassadors' "attention to the importance of the economic and trade exchanges between East and West for the consolidation of European peace."

Congressmen seeing the world

WASHINGTON (AP) — From far-off France to farther-off Fiji, members of Congress are taking advantage of a long winter recess to broaden their horizons through travel.

They will study everything from European highway safety to the communist threat in Latin America to earthquake damage in Italy to life among the natives in the Pacific.

And they will do it at taxpayer expense.

They all say the trips are part of their official duties in Congress.

As a result, they will circle the globe, for the most part, in a fleet of Air Force planes maintained for VIP travel.

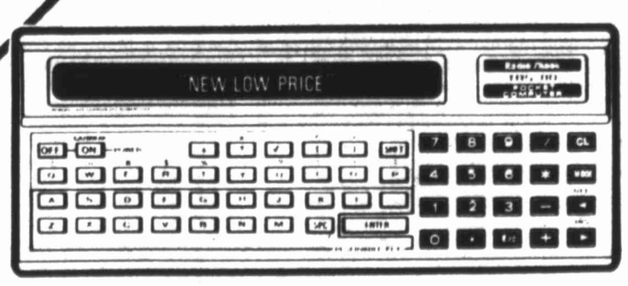

They will rely on State Department and embassy officials for travel assistance,

Save energy with a heat pump.

If you're planning to install a new heating or cooling system, consider a high-efficiency heat pump. It's an energy-saving, year-round alternative.

The heat pump provides year-round heating and cooling, using only electricity. During the winter, it extracts heat from the outside air (even very cold air contains heat) and brings that heat inside where it's needed. In the summer, the heat pump is a regular air conditioner, removing unwanted heat from the inside air.

The heat pump is the most efficient combination heating and cooling system that can be installed in your home today.

To learn more about the heat pump, call your air conditioning contractor or Texas Electric. And when you call, ask about our conservation incentive program.

So-called 'family' bill could sneak through

The proposed Family Protection Act of 1981 now awaiting action in Congress may be a wolf in sheep's clothing.

Ostensibly designed as a bill to "strengthen the American family and promote the virtues of family life," the bill actually strips women of many rights won over the past decade.

One provision in H.R. 311 would deny federal funds for textbooks which tend to "deny the role difference between the sexes as they have been understood historically in the United States" (Sec. 440B-3). In other words, textbooks would be required to present men and women in their "traditionally understood" roles, i.e., women as wives, mothers and homemakers.

We certainly believe in marriage, motherhood and homemaking, but we also believe in the freedom of a woman to make such an important choice for herself.

THE BILL ALSO gives schools the right to deny girls access to certain classes and other school activities. The actual language says that "Funds shall not be withheld under any provision of Federal law nor shall any provision of Federal law be construed to prohibit ... the right of any State ... to limit or prohibit the intermingling of sexes in any sports or other school-related activities. Women and girls would lose many rights in this measure. From Little League to shop courses to the Engineering Club, girls legally could be excluded.

Legal assistance could not be made available "with respect to any proceeding or litigation seeking to obtain or arising out of a divorce." This would make it difficult for women without independent means to escape from bad marriages (especially if they have chidlren).

There are many other measures in the bill that deserve careful scrutiny, including items which seem to be in direct conflict with the Constitution regarding race, religion and freedom of speech.

We suggest you contact your representatives in Congress, ask for a copy of the act, read it, and then make your decisions known to your congressmen.

Alliance turning point

WASHINGTON — The new year opens on a note that sounds familiar but isn't. Discord with the European allies, though well known in the past, now works much more pervasively and against a vastly different international setting. The alliance is at a turning point and even NATO-Firsters must now wonder whether it wouldn't be better for the U.S. and Europe to drift apart.

The allies, and their apologists, are fond of recalling that the partnership has always been troubled. "The history of the Atlantic Alliance," Prof. Stanley Hoffmann of Harvard puts it in the current issue of Foreign Affairs, "is a history of crises."

The troubles are indeed recurrent and run a wide gamut. There have been differences as to strategy for dealing with the Communist world — notably between the U.S. and Gen. De Gaulle in the early 1960s. There have been economic quarrels, particularly following devaluation of the dollar in 1971. There have been even more bitter fights about policy outside Europe — especially at the time of the Franco-British assault on Suez in 1956.

IN THE PAST, however, these difficulties always gave way to European reliance on the U.S. for security. The symbol of dependence was a particularly close tie between Washington and the European state that was at once most vulnerable militarily and most powerful economically — West Germany. The German-American tie, by implicitly threatening to isolate doubters, held the alliance together.

American military might, however, is no longer a reliable surety. The Soviet nuclear buildup has proceeded to the point where the U.S. has flinched. That is the true meaning of the public pressure which caused the Reagan administration to abandon plans for stationing the MX missile in hidden bases out on the prairies of the West.

Europe, moreover, is no longer the area most vulnerable to Communist pressure. Hardly anybody expects an over-the-top Soviet assault on the Continent. On the contrary, the danger zone is the greater Near East, especially the oil fields around the Persian Gulf.

The diminished advantage of security ties to the U.S. gives much freer reign to all the differences among the allies. These now occur not one at a time, but simulatenously.

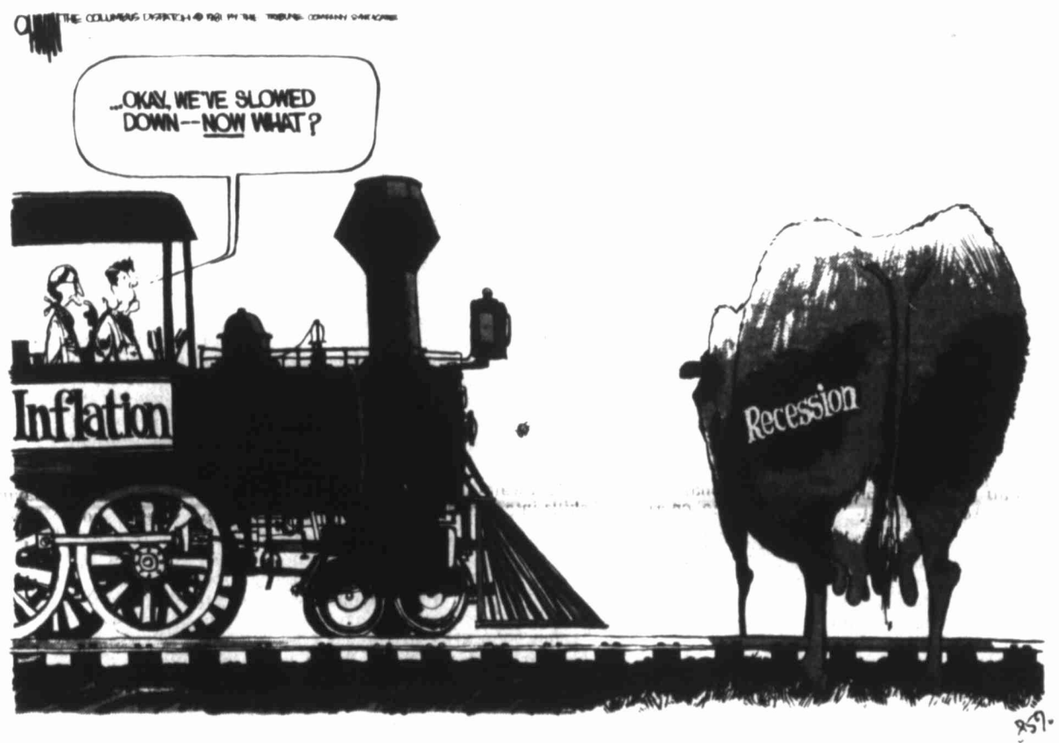

Thus, economic relations are poisoned by American policies for curbing inflation that impose slow growth and high unemployment on Europe. Policy in the Middle East is a continuing bone of contention, with the U.S. standing by Israel, and Europe tilting towards the Arabs — even at the expense of Israel and the U.S.

AT THE SAME TIME, there are sustained disagreements in the matter of how best to deal with Communist power. The U.S., while prepared to negotiate with Moscow on arms control, feels the first requirement is a buildup of military strength, and a stopping of further Soviet aggrandizement. The Europeans disparage the American emphasis on military buildup, and are far more keen to maintain and develop economic ties with the Soviet Union and the Communist states of Eastern Europe.

Lastly, the critical role of West Germany has also changed. Far from nerving the British and French to a stronger stand against Soviet pressure, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt now leads the way to accommodation with the East. Thus West Germany led the others in pushing the U.S. to open arms control negotiations with Russia. Bonn has been the capital most reulcutant to apply sanctions against the crackdown in Poland. Indeed, when it started, Chancellor Schmidt, who was then visiting East Germany, said: "The events in Poland have no consequences for our talks here."

A major effort to restore the alliance will no doubt be launched with Schmidt's visit to Washington this week. It will probably dominate international diplomacy for the next half year, and certainly there is hope for success in this quarter.

But little confidence. The world has changed much recently, and the interests of the U.S. and Europe now run at divergent angles. It is notable that such undoubted Euro-centurists as Henry Kissinger and Arthur Burns have recently spoken about the possibility of pulling American troops from Europe. The melancholy fact is that this country may well serve international security best by freeing itself from some of the burdens of the Atlantic Alliance.

Around the Rim

The outlaw

Boy howdy!! These last few years have been amazing for Texas and Texans. All a Lone Star State native has to do is mention his birthright, and he'll be noticed. It's practically a ticket to celebrity.

I'd love to be able to take advantage of this. But although I was born in San Antonio and have spent a goodly portion of my life in the state, I hesitate to call myself a Native. I've been known to badmouth Texas on occasion and have sometimes quietly expressed a desire to move elsewhere.

I started worrying about this after I read "The Genuine Texas Handbook." This guide, "rounded up" by somebody named Rosemary Kent, lists 11 characteristics of the "outlaw." This is somebody who claims the Texas birthright, but does not abide by the law of the land.

Some of these hit close to home.

ACCORDING TO the book, Texas outlaws:

- Question Big Oil and the value of football.
- Admit to liking New York City.
- Subscribe to the "Texas Observer."
- Go out of state to college.
- Drink non-Texan beer like Heineken and Mooshead.
- Know their way around a Chinese restaurant menu.
- Enjoy sissy European sports like soccer.
- Think Ingmar Bergman is a good film director.
- Favor vacation spots like Canada and Palm Springs.
- See a psychiatrist and admit it.

Apparently, having any one of these characteristics will brand you as an outlaw and keep you from claiming to be a genuine Texan. It terrifies me to admit that I can claim at least five of these. For my own sake I won't mention which five.

So even though I love living in Big Spring and enjoy traveling through the Hill Country and can name at least 500 good things about living in Texas, I am basically a man without a state. I have the same status as "East River wetbacks," which the handbook says is another name for Yankees. At least those people are welcome in New York.

To make matters worse, the Texas city that I love the most is completely loathed by most genuine natives. When I tell a West Texan that I really love Houston, they look at me like I'm the biggest weirdo this side of the Mississippi.

Maybe they're right.

UNFORTUNATELY I don't think I can change. It would be just as wrong of me to admit that I like certain things (like potato salad) when I really don't. I don't own any Willie Nelson albums and I think I look stupid in a cowboy hat. A person can only fake for so long.

What I'll have to do is live off the general good will of genuine Texans and hope they'll accept me the way I am, even though they me think of me as a wayward native.

And I guess I shouldn't use that "Boy howdy!" that I began with. I'll replace it with a thoroughly un-Texan "Golly gee!"

Are Jews being set up?

WASHINGTON — An ugly development is being monitored in the confidential cables from Poland. The military regime might be setting up Poland's tiny Jewish population as scapegoats for the misery that is sweeping across that tragic land.

The estimated 6,000 Jews remaining in Poland — mostly the elderly, pitiful survivors of the Nazi Holocaust — represent no threat to the regime. But they can be useful in the historic role of Jewish minorities in Europe — to deflect attention from corrupt, repressive regimes during times of public discontent.

The evidence so far is inconclusive. But the Polish authorities appear to be playing the Machiavellian game of blaming Solidarity for the anti-semitic attacks, thus discrediting the labor union, while at the same time suggesting that Solidarity is itself a nest of "Zionists."

Just 10 days after martial law was imposed upon Poland, the State Department cabled U.S. embassies in Warsaw and Vienna to watch for indications that the reported anti-semitic incidents were centrally coordinated.

"WE WOULD APPRECIATE your giving Polish publications and Warsaw radio broadcasts special scrutiny for signs of anti-semitism," the cable requested.

The next day, the Vienna embassy cabled back a report that anti-semitic leaflets indeed have been circulating in Poland. The leaflets were described as inflammatory.

One leaflet slyly tried to hit the Polish masses where they live. It contained "a reference to Jews not having to stand in line to receive seven pounds of Kosher meat a week," the embassy cabled. The pathetic Jews in Poland are more likely to be found at the end of the food lines, but the report would cause resentment among a populace that has to stand in line for hours in hopes of getting its meager meat ration.

The confidential diplomatic cables disclose that a major distributor of anti-semitic leaflets is the so-called "Grunwald Group" — an ultranationalist, possibly neo-Nazi organization that surfaced last year as a counterforce to Solidarity.

Sources told my associate Lucette Lagnado that the Grunwald Group was set up with the approval of the Communist authorities — not the first time Lenin's disciples have set aside ideological purity for the sake of expediency. Anyway, it is obvious that its recent activities have the military regime's blessing.

Grunwald's anti-semitic propaganda leaflets have been sent abroad bearing a Gdansk postmark, "in an apparent effort to discredit Solidarity," the cable from Vienna reported. (Gdansk was the birthplace of Solidarity.) Since the declaration of martial law, the embassy cable noted, "this could not have been done — because of censorship rules — without the connivance of hard-liners in the Politburo..."

As for the source of the anti-semitic poison, the Vienna embassy cabled that the leaflets emanate from "a neo-Nazi movement in Sweden, which smuggled the leaflets into Poland."

The State Department investigation is being pursued primarily by the Human Rights Bureau under its newly appointed chief, Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams.

The department's experts see no signs yet that Poland's Jewish community is in any physical danger, but they can't be certain whether respect for world opinion would lead the Communist regime to protect its Jews in the event of "spontaneous" outbursts ignited by the anti-semitic hate literature. In its attempt to paint Solidarity as both anti-semitic and Jewish-dominated, the Polish government may have sown the wind — but it is Poland's Jews who will reap the whirlwind.

Billy Graham

Is that all?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I made a decision for Christ several years ago, and now I know I am saved and will go to Heaven when I die. But is this all there is to being a Christian? — T.I.

DEAR T.I.: No, it is not. God is concerned about your life right now, and he wants to work in your life. Most of all, he wants you to be a true disciple of Jesus Christ, following him each day and knowing the joy of his presence.

In one of his letters in the New Testament, Peter gives us a brief summary of why Christ died for us on the cross: "He himself bore our sins in his body on the tree, so that we might die to sins and live for righteousness" (1 Peter 2:24). Notice there are two things he especially mentions. First, we are to die to sins — that is, we are to become dead to the attraction and power of sin. At one time we were spiritually dead because of sin, but now sin must die. What are the things in your life that are not pleasing to God. They may be attitudes, or motives, or thoughts, or actions, or virtually anything else in our lives. But if they are wrong, they need to be acknowledged and confessed to God, and then we need to repent of them. The Bible commands us, "Let us throw off everything that hinders and the sin that so easily entangles, and let us run with perseverance the race marked out for us" (Hebrews 12:1). We need to do this daily as we find sin still attempting to exercise its power over us.

Then we are to "live for righteousness." That is, our lives should be marked by right living and right attitudes — things which are pleasing to God. "For you were once darkness, but now you are light in the Lord. Live as children of light (for the fruit of the light consists in all goodness, righteousness and truth) and find out what pleases the Lord."

Dr. Donohue

Don't overdo scabies treatment

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please write about scabies. I am a masseur in a men's health club and come into close contact. What are my chances of getting scabies from my clients and transmitting it to others? I know it is treated with Kwell, but why is that a prescription item? — Mrs. C.G.D.

Scabies come from a mite that burrows into the skin, where it lays eggs. The skin itches, apparently as an allergic reaction to the mite, its eggs and its products. Scabies is transferred by close personal contact, so if your clients have scabies you would be at risk of catching it and transmitting it. However, it is not wise to be dogmatic about transmission of scabies in each and every case; some patients have no recollection of ever being exposed to a case.

Most scabies infections are found on the backs of the hands and the wrists. The face and scalp are seldom involved. If you are quite careful about washing your hands after each massage, that will lessen the probability of your catching it.

Kwell (lindane) is a prescription item because some of it is absorbed through the skin and thence into the blood. So there is a potential for side effects if too much is used or if it is used in the very young injudicously.

As a matter of fact, that raises a good point. Itching may persist after application of the lindane. The person may think he is still infected or that he is not using enough of the product. The truth is that itching continues as a residual allergic reaction to the mite and its products. The message is to follow the instructions on use of this medication and not to overdo.

Dear Abby

Funeral need not be a grave affair

DEAR ABBY: "Confused in Indiana" wrote to say she was "shocked" to learn that a friend went dancing the night she buried her husband. You agreed, saying you thought it was "inappropriate" for mourners to dance so soon after burying a loved one.

Who do you think you are to pass judgment in the first place? That woman has the right to mourn her husband any way she wants to!

After my father was buried, we went to my cousin's house where my father had spent many happy hours. He particularly loved the clubroom. Right after the funeral I went down there and found the jukebox playing and all the relatives dancing and enjoying refreshments. On the chair where my father had always sat was a baseball cap made of flowers. (Dad loved baseball.) That was the only floral arrangement that was not left at the cemetery. It was as though my father was there watching everybody do what he loved to do in life.

After all, Abby, haven't you ever heard of an Irish wake? My family is not Irish, but not everyone sits "shivah."

MERRY IN MARYLAND

DEAR MERRY: I've had many surprises in my mail, but one of the biggest was the number of readers who wrote to disagree with me. You're right — everyone has the right to deal with his grief in his own way, but somehow, dancing the day of the funeral seemed inappropriate to me. And it still does.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: A very close friend of mine, who is a successful management consultant, has the worst case of halitosis I have ever encountered! Being a professional myself, I am worried that my friend's problem may cost him professionally and socially. He's single as well.

I have polled my friends, and no one has come up with a suitable solution. He is such a lovely person and he must be told. But how? And by whom?

HIS FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: He must be made aware of his problem by someone who cares a great deal about him. I nominate you! If you can't find the words to tell him that he needs to see a dentist and/or a physician about his offensive breath, send him this column. It would be an act of kindness. Trust me.

MUSH — Speeding along the course of an international competition, a team of huskies and their musher create a whirl of snowdust near Bad Wiessee, West Germany last weekend. Dog and sleigh races get more and more popular all over Europe.

Build own home, save half

COLLEGE STATION — Build your own home and save about half.

It's possible, says Dr. Jane Berry, a housing and home furnishings specialist.

Many "average" new homes have $100,000 price tags on them these days, putting them beyond the reach of most Americans — 80 percent of us can no longer afford a "run of the mill" new house, Berry says.

On the other hand, the owner-builder who spends about $50,000 for materials can build a house comparable to a $100,000-$120,000 builder-produced house, the specialist says.

"What does the future hold?" ask those who are waiting for a possibly better economic situation.

"Like most problems we encounter, there are no instant, easy and painless solutions for attaining home ownership in today's economic climate. Even the best crystal balls churn out dismal projections for the months and years ahead," Berry says.

"A growing number of would-be homeowners have discovered that the only way to latch onto a new house for substantially less these days is to become actively involved in the home-building process as a means of avoiding some of the labor costs and contractors' overhead.

"Bureau of the Census figures show that owner-builders were responsible for one of every five new-home starts in 1979 and the first half of 1980," she said.

Berry is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

That 50 percent savings for owner-builders is just an estimate, Berry says — some owners who shoulder the full responsibility for totally building their own homes can save up to 58 percent of the cost.

No matter what the actual savings, they are significant — and doing all the work yourself amounts to the greatest savings, the specialist says.

For the would-be home owner who doesn't feel he could actually carry out such an undertaking as "all the work," Berry suggests doing "some of the work."

Try being your own "general contractor," for example, and save about 20 percent.

As "general contractor," you'll manage the project.

This includes securing permits and arranging and scheduling the work of subcontractors and other professionals needed on the project.

It also includes "scouting around" to find the best buys on materials, running errands and keeping the project moving toward completion, the specialist says.

The 20-percent-saving estimate is according to the Owner Builder Center, which describes this kind of situation as an "owner-contracted" job in which no actual labor is done by the owner.

If you want to do more than manage the project but not take the entire job, you may want to consider an "owner-finished" job.

"Owner-finished" jobs can save up to 44 percent on the cost of your home, Berry says.

In this arrangement, the contractor provides the foundation, framing, siding and roof, while the owner supplies the labor and materials needed to complete the job.

"Shell-type" homes long have been popular with owners willing to take on the task of finishing up a project, the specialist says.

In an attempt to bring housing costs within the reach of more buyers, many of today's builders are offering stripped-down, no-frills models with most — or all — of the interior finishing work left to the home buyer in exchange for the lower price tag, she adds.

Two additional "super" savings await those willing to put their own time, energy and skills into a home with a lower price tag, Berry says.

There's a tag savings and a significant savings on "loan-interest" totals, she says.

In Texas, do-it-yourself buyers pay a five percent sales tax on all building materials — if you pay $50,000 for materials, the tax will be $2,500. This tax can be listed as a deduction at income tax time.

"Loan interest" represents the greatest savings, of course, Berry says.

It would figure something like this:

Total cost of a $50,000 house — including loan interest over the life of a 30-year-loan — will be about $150,000.

On the other hand, total cost of a $100,000 or $120,000 home — including 30-year loan interest — would be about $300,000 to $360,000, Berry says.

Lower your grocery bill

You're "in a sweat" after your last trip to the supermarket. Everything seems to have gone up — including your blood pressure.

You can't believe how much you spent, but you estimate your annual food bill is in the thousands.

And you are right, says the American Council of Life Insurance.

In fact, according to financial consultant Barbara Gilder Quint, the typical middle-income family of four spends an average of $3,000 to $5,000 a year in the supermarket, depending on its income.

To help keep your supermarket bills down, here are some inflation fighting tips from the Council:

Cut your trips to the grocery store to once a week. The less you go, the less you'll spend.

Avoid impulse-buying. Don't shop when rushed or hungry. Make a list. Stick to it.

In most parts of the country, you'll find the best buys on Thursday through Saturday. Try to take advantage of these.

Consider day-old bread which usually sells at a savings of 10-20 cents a loaf; also, less expensive although tougher cuts of beef, which can be tenderized by marinating.

Remember that "made from scratch" meals cost less than store-brought frozen entrees or TV dinners.

'Mono' not for teenagers only

GRADUATES — Elizabeth Kerley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T.E. Kerley, Sand Springs, received Bachelor of Science degree in education from Texas Tech University, Lubbock. The degree was awarded Dec. 19. Miss Kerley was on the Dean's List three semesters and was also on the National Dean's List. Her specialization is in reading.

Infectious mononucleosis, or "mono," as it's commonly called, is not for teenagers only. Although the disease has been known as "the kissing disease" for years, mono may be just as common in children as in teenagers, says the Texas Medical Association (TMA). Many adults have had light cases of the disease without knowing it and are therefore immune to it.

Mono is a blood disease caused by a virus. Symptoms are extreme tiredness, sore throat, swollen lymph glands, enlarged spleen and liver, and sometimes fever and rash. Most symptoms go away within a couple of weeks, but a feeling of weakness may continue for as long as a few months.

Mono is tricky to diagnose, especially in children, because it can masquerade as many other, more serious diseases, and it can coexist with other diseases at the same time. Blood tests, particularly the Monospot test, can aid physicians in diagnosing mono, but sometimes these tests need to be repeated a few times to get an accurate diagnosis.

Because mononucleosis is caused by a virus, there is little that modern medicine can do to help. The disease just has to run its course. However, a person with mono has much lower resistance to infections than others. Care must be taken to prevent secondary bacterial infections, such as bacterial pneumonia, ear infections and skin infections.

Contrary to popular belief, mono is not highly contagious.

Murder totals climbing in many cities

MURDER RATES — Chart shows that murder totals for 1981 are the same as or higher than those for 1980, according to an Associated Press survey.

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer

Jostling aboard a crowded bus on New Year's Eve, a San Antonio, Texas college student and another rider argued briefly over whether the student should say "Excuse me."

Moments later the student lay dead, shot to death.

The homicide was a grim and fitting final statement of the growing violence in 1981 in San Antonio — where the 182 murders last year were the most ever.

According to an informal Associated Press survey, murder totals in many major American cities are the same or higher in 1981 compared with 1980.

Officials in most of those cities blame murder on drugs, liquor, prostitution, family arguments and handguns, but grope for explanations of why homicide rates go up or down from year to year.

"I don't think there's a trend," police Capt. E.H. Watson said in Greenville, S.C., where the murder rate nearly doubled last year — from seven to 13. "These people just happened to get together in a pool room or liquor house and got mad," he said.

Final FBI statistics will indicate there were 25,000 murders across the country last year if the trend toward increased violent crime continues.

In 1980, there were more than 23,000 murders in the United States — one every 23 minutes — and the FBI said the nation's murder rate increased by 4 percent during the first six months of 1981.

Dade County, Fla. remained "Murder Capital, USA," with 621 homicides during 1981. The total was an increase of 48 murders over 1980, when the Miami area led the nation with 33 murders for every 100,000 people.

Nationally, the FBI says, there are about 10 murders per 100,000 population.

FBI statistics say that three of four murder victims are male, more than 40 percent are black, and more than 60 percent of all murders are committed with guns, usually handguns.

More than one-third of the people convicted of murder are between the ages of 18 and 24.

Murder totals for 1981 were up in New York; Boston; Chicago; San Francisco; St. Louis; Baltimore; Las Vegas, Nev.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Baton Rouge, La.; Norfolk, Va.; Columbus, Ohio; Providence, R.I.; and Greenville, S.C.

New York City's 1,833 murders, the highest total in the country, included 21 cab drivers, most of them slain in robbery attempts.

Murder figures remained about the same in Denver; Pittsburgh; New Orleans; Jackson, Miss.; Topeka, Kan.; and Mobile, Ala.

But homicide totals dropped in Los Angeles; Detroit; Atlanta; Philadelphia; Salt Lake City; Indianapolis; Nashville, Tenn.; Little Rock, Ark.; Omaha, Neb.; Portland, Ore.; and Oklahoma City,

Totals were up in Houston but down in Dallas; up in Columbus but down in Dayton, Toledo and Cincinnati; up in Syracuse but down in Buffalo, N.Y.

"There's no answer, any more than a couple of years ago when it went up," said Joseph McCarthy, a homicide officer in Buffalo, where the murder rate dropped by nearly half.

In Miami, authorities said the increase in crime — blamed last year largely on the influx of Cuban refugees — has been heightened by economic conditions.

"With the unemployment, there's a lot of robberies — armed robberies — and a lot of people are killed in robbery attempts,' John Jones, a Dade County spokesman, said.

In Houston, another fast-growing city which last year was second only to Miami in per capita murder rate, Police Chief B.K. Johnson said the 10 percent increase in homicides in 1981 "is a reflection of the society we live in. The more people you have conglomerate in an area, the more violence you will have."

Even in New Hampshire, where the murder total for the whole state was 25 in 1981 compared with 20 in 1980, authorities blamed the increase on population growth.

But in Los Angeles, where the 898 homicides last year represented an 8.5 percent drop from 1980, authorities said the decrease was due to better assignment of police officers.

William Booth, spokesman for Los Angeles' police, said the department had increased the number of officers assigned to a program aimed at controlling street gangs which were responsible for one of five homicides in the city in 1979 and 1980.

In Cincinnati, police Detective Tom Burke said the city's 1981 murder decline was due to a new emphasis on suppression of drug trade, prostitution and liquor-law violations.

Rain, snow, sleet wreak havoc across America

LOOKING FOR THE DRAIN — Highway workers plumb the depths after heavy rains left flood waters on New York's Harlem River Drive Monday morning. Cars were stranded on the upper Manhattan roadway and other roads by the deluge.

Mud hosed loose by an unrelenting rainstorm washed into California homes while sleet chattered on Northeastern rooftops, snow piled up in the Midwest, and the South crackled with thunderstorms and tornadoes.

At least 13 people died in weather-related accidents Monday.

Up to 16 inches of snow fell on Wisconsin, smacking Milwaukee with its worst snowstorm in 35 years, rain pummeled Ohio, and snow forced schools to close in Illinois and Michigan.

Weathermen estimated that 12 inches of rain fell in a 24-hour period near San Francisco. Northbound traffic on the Golden Gate Bridge was halted for four hours because of the flooding.

Winds reached 90 mph at the top of the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. building in Cleveland, 85 mph on a mountain ridge at Park City ski resort west of Salt Lake City and 60 mph in parts of Illinois and Wisconsin.

Thousands of people were forced from their homes and officials closed schools and highways as record-breaking rain pelted northern California.

A six-car Amtrak passenger train derailed in heavy rain at San Pablo, Calif., north of Oakland, injuring 13 people, none seriously. Rescuers had to use rowboats and helicopters to reach the train, since roads in the area were under up to five feet of water, police said.

Skiers were stranged in Sierra Nevada lodges where up to 7 feet of snow accumulated.

In Seattle, where snow is rare, the steepest streets were closed Monday because of 2 inches of snow and a sheet of ice.

Three tornadoes touched down Monday in North Carolina and another hit Canton, Ga., destroying an airplane hangar.

At least eight tornadoes touched down in central and northern Alabama and rivers were running above flood level Monday in parts of Georgia, South Carolina and Kentucky.

Some parts of New York state were flooded near Lake Erie, which was pushed above flood stage by high winds during an ice storm Monday.

Roads in eastern and central New York were strewn with dented and abandoned cars Monday morning as freezing rain frosted roads.

At least five people died in storm-related incidents in California, authorities said, including a person who was killed when a house slid off its foundation in Tiburon.

Carey E. Anderson, 61, of Homedale, Idaho was found frozen near his pickup. Five Wisconsin men were reported to have collapsed and died during or after shoveling snow.

Homes were abandoned in wealthy parts of northern California, and mud and water churned at 30 mph through the streets of San Rafael.

National Guardsmen rescued stranded motorists and boats were used to reach 500 people in Vallejo, where the Lake Chabot reservoir rose menacingly within 2 feet of the rim.

"I'm from Chicago," Susan Rabin said as she phoned the Highway Patrol from a San Francisco bar to see whether she could get home to Mill Valley. "I moved to California for the weather."

Temperatures were expected to reach the 60s from the extreme Southeast across the Gulf Coast into portions of the central Plains and the desert Southwest.

Very cold temperatures were on tap for the northern Rockies and northern Plains and the upper Mississippi Valley, with readings in the 40s and 50s across the central portions of the nation into California and in the 20s and 30s elsewhere.

Tests show burning barge left no fumes over Galveston Island

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Officials of a company which owns 400,000 gallons of a chemical burning aboard a barge say they are monitoring the air above Galveston Island but have detected no traces of the toxic fumes.

The barge carrying the toxic and corrosive chemical acrylonitrile, used in making a synthetic fiber called Acrylon, was still burning in Galveston Bay Monday night in a fire that began early Sunday.

The chemical, which was being shipped by the Monsanto Co., produces the poisonous gas hydrogen cyanide when it burns. Monsanto officials said tests showed no cyanide or acrylonitrile in the air above Galveston or in the air directly in the column of smoke coming from the barge.

The accident occurred when the barge, which was being pushed by a tugboat in a heavy fog, smashed into a drawbridge which had not been raised. Coast Guard officials said they were investigating the accident.

Traffic on the busy Gulf Intracoastal Waterway was stopped here for at least a week.

"An hour after it happened there was a big bottleneck" on the inland waterway which skirts 1,300 miles of the Gulf Coast from Texas to Florida, said Coast Guard CWO Bill Miller.

Coast Guard officials said the barge could burn itself out within 24 hours, but Miller estimated it would be Saturday before the waterway is open to barge traffic again.

In the meantime, he said tugboat captains must line up and wait. They cannot take their shipments of grain, sulfur and other cargo into the Gulf of Mexico and around the burning barge because most of them are only licensed to operate in inland waterways, he said.

Six to 12 families asked to leave their homes Sunday for fear toxic fumes might drift over their neighborhood in nearby Virginia Point were allowed to return Monday.

The burning barge lay aground in about 10 feet of water in Galveston Bay several hundred feet from the bridge, while a Coast Guard vessel monitored the fire. An anchor was attached to the crippled barge to make sure it did not drift away.

Two small explosions gave the blaze new life Monday morning, throwing some of the acrylonitrile into the bay. But Coast Guard spokesman Bob Berry said it all burned off and so far there has been no leakage.

An accompanying barge full of the chemical, which is used to make the synthetic fiber Acrylon, was not damaged and a Coast Guard crew managed to cut it from the burning vessel and tow it to safety.

Southern Pacific spokesman Joe Bart said a crew was repairing it and should have it ready for train traffic by Thursday.

UP, UP AND AWAY — Lady Steer Sissie Doss lays the ball up against two Abilene High defenders in a game held at Steer Gym last night. The Lady Steers played great team ball, but came out on the losing end 60-55. The girls are in action again Thursday against Midland.

Lady Steers lose close game to Abilene High

The Big Spring High School Lady Steers lost a close game by the score of 60-55 to Abilene High here Monday night.

Coach Sandy Brown said the girls played well. "We moved the ball around well on offense and the girls played well together as a team. We just had trouble with their press which caused us to turn the ball over too many times," Coach Brown said.

High point scorer for the Lady Steers was Sheila Rutledge with 21. She was aided in the scoring department by Elise Wheat with 13 and Kelly Warrington with 9.

"Kelly is improving and learning how to shoot the ball. She's primarily a defensive player, but we're trying to get her to shoot more. Shirley Dixon also played a good game by controlling the boards and rebounding. Even though we lost, we played well as a team," Coach Brown said.

The Lady Steers are now 0-2 in 5-AAAAA play and face Midland here Thursday. JV game starts at 6:15 p.m. and the varsity girl's game begins at 8 p.m.

The Lady Steer's JV lost 33-31 against Abilene. Teresa Smith scored 15 points and Paula Spears added 7.

Walsh named NFL Coach of the year

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Walsh, who in just three seasons changed the San Francisco 49ers from the National Football League's losingest team to its winningest, was named today The Associated Press Coach of the Year.

Walsh was the overwhelming choice of a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, named on 61½ of the 84 ballots cast. Forrest Gregg, who performed a "worst-to-first" feat with the Cincinnati Bengals, was a distant second with 15½ votes.

Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins received three votes, Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys got two and Dan Reeves of the Denver Broncos and Walt Michaels of the New York Jets received one vote apiece.

The 50-year-old Walsh, who doubles as general manager of the 49ers, piloted the team to a 13-3 record, the best in the NFL, in 1981. When he took control of the club before the 1979 season, it had won just 31 of its previous 86 games and was coming off a 2-14 season.

San Francisco went 2-14 again in '79, then improved to 6-10 the following year before storming to its first winning season since 1976 and its first National Conference Western Division championship since 1972.

The redevelopment of the 49ers into an NFL power was achieved in two basic steps. First Walsh put together a potent pass-oriented offense, but one which often couldn't survive the team's defense. Then, in the 1981 draft and in major acqusitions after that, he built a defense into the second best in the conference.

Among the players he drafted his first year were Joe Montana and Dwight Clark, the NFC's leading passer and receiver this year. And in 1981 he used three of his first four selections to draft Ronnie Lott, Eric Wright and Carlton Williamson, three-quarters of San Francisco's defensive backfield, then picked up a pair of defensive stars with contract problems — pass-rushing end Fred Dean from San Diego and linebacker Jack "Hacksaw" Reynolds from Los Angeles.

Last year the 49ers' defense was the second-worst in the league. This year it was second-best.

Walsh served his apprenticeship in the NFL starting in 1966 as offensive backfield coach for the Oakland Raiders, then for the next nine years was coach of the quarterbacks and receivers of the Cincinnati Bengals. During that stretch he developed Ken Anderson into one of the league's best quarterbacks. And in 1976, as San Diego's offensive coordinator, he was instrumental in turning Dan Fouts into one of the game's most explosive passers.

Walsh, who had been an assistant coach at Stanford during 1963-65, returned as the school's head coach in 1977-78 before being lured back to the pros by San Francisco.

In the 49ers' press guide put together before the 1981 season, Walsh is quoted as saying: "My last year with the Bengals in 1975, we had one of the best clubs in the NFL (11-3), and I think this year's 49ers team has young talent that could become comparable to that Cincinnati squad." Prophetic.

Bruins complete losing road trip

By The Associated Press

It wouldn't take much to convince UCLA to skip its next trip to the state of Washington if such a thing were possible.

At least the 19th-ranked Bruins, who just completed their first all-losing trip to the Evergreen State since 1963, are secure in the knowledge that they won't have to return until next season.

The Bruins, long a college basketball power, dropped a 56-50 decision to the Washington Huskies Monday night after falling 57-51 in triple overtime Saturday to Washington State.

Washington guard Steve Burks scored nine points in the final 1½ minutes Monday to drop UCLA to 6-4 and 0-2 in the Pacific-10 Conference.

The Huskies, who beat Southern California in overtime Saturday night, are 9-2 and have a six-game winning streak. The sweep of the Los Angeles schools was Washington's first since 1977.

UCLA held a 42-37 lead but went nearly 4½ minutes without scoring. Burks put in a layup and free throw with 1:29 to play t give the Huskies a 48-46 edge and he added six more free throws down the stretch as UCLA tried to catch up by fouling.

Burks finished with a game-high 17 points.

"Steve Burks rose to the challenge," said Washington Coach Marv Harshman. "I thought the foul shooting at the end was one of the big things."

As for Burks' key three-point play, Harshman said it wasn't part of the plan.

"We were going to go down to 20 seconds and call another timeout," he said. "As a coach, I was glad to see the layup."

UCLA Coach Larry Farmer wasn't glad to see how his team reacted at the end of the contest. He said the Bruins took bad shots.

"You should look to get the ball inside or shoot free throws," he said. "We didn't."

Among ranked teams in action Monday night, No.1 North Carolina bombed William and Mary 64-40; No.5 DePaul eased past St. Mary's, Calif., 96-72; No.9 Wichita State beat U.S. International 92-67 with a second-half outburst; 10th-ranked Tulsa outscored Creighton 80-55 in Missouri Valley Conference action; No.12 Louisville trounced Florida State 79-57 in the Metro Conference; 14th-rated Houston edged Southwest Conference rival Rice 63-61; No.15 North Carolina State squeaked by Southern Mississippi 46-45, and No.17 Oregon State whipped Arizona 68-55 in another Pac-10 outing.

Top Ten

Sam Perkins and Michael Jordan had 13 points and James Worthy added 12 for the top-ranked Tar Heels, 9-0. North Carolina led 35-20 at the half after Jordan scored 11 of his points.

DePaul's Terry Cummings scored 22 points and pulled down 14 rebounds, while Bernard Randolph notched all 14 of his points in the first half and his replacement, Terry Grubbs, had 15 points.

Cincinnati's Anderson named league MVP

CINCINNATI (AP) — Quarterback Ken Anderson, one of pro football's most accurate passers, accepted a coveted honor in the same low-key manner in which he guided the Cincinnati Bengals to their finest season.

"It means a lot because your team is winning," said Anderson, who was chosen by a panel of Associated Press sportswriters and broadcasters as the National Football League's Most Valuable Player for 1981.

"Leading the league in passing and having good statistics is nice. But the ultimate is winning. That's what makes the award special."

Displaying the accuracy that made him one of the most feared quarterbacks in the mid-1970s, Anderson shattered several personal passing records in leading the Bengals to a 12-4 regular season mark and the American Conference Central title in 1981.

The 11-year veteran from Augustana College in Illinois threw for 3,754 yards and 29 touchdowns, completed 62.6 percent of his passes (his second-best career mark), was intercepted just 10 times in the regular season. He was the top-ranked passer in the NFL.

His precise passing earned him a spot on the All-Pro team for the fourth time in his career and put the Bengals in their first AFC title game.

After suffering through two injury-plagued seasons, the 32-year-old Anderson was benched for his poor performance in the first quarter of the 1981 season opener against the Seattle Seahawks. But Coach Forrest Gregg started Anderson the next week, launching the quarterback's record-breaking season.

"He came back like a champion," said tight end Dan Ross, who led Bengals' receivers with 71 regular-season catches.

Gregg, who thought about benching Anderson for the Bengals' second game against the New York Jets but decided to stick with the veteran, concurred with the MVP choice.

"He had a lot to overcome," Gregg said Monday. "He was sort of the second choice of the fans (who preferred younger backup Jack Thompson). It's tough to be playing in your home stadium, you're introduced as the starting quarterback and you hear the hometown fans booing. That has to affect any player, particularly a quarterback.

"Kenny really developed a mental toughness that enabled him to handle that kind of situation.

Lamesa Tors face crucial contest against Andrews

LAMESA (SC) — It's being billed as "Jam the Gym" night at the Lamesa Middle School tonight, as the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes varsity basketball team will be hosting the Andrews Mustangs in a crucial district 2-4A basketball game.

Andrews comes in at 16-1, with their only loss to Lamesa in the semi-finals of the Denver City basketball tournament in mid-December.

Lamesa is 17-2, with their only losses to Big Spring and Odessa Ector. The Tornadoes have lost one District game, while Andrews is undefeated in district.

Andrews is led by the inside play of seniors Mike Murry and Keith Brooks, and a swarming press defense.

Lamesa is led by junior forward Victor Spencer and senior center Bill Cheek.

Game time is 8 p.m.

Runnels White wins big

The Runnels Boys White basketball team smashed Midland Trinity 48-28 in a game Monday.

Runnels played 15 players in the lopsided contest and the five starters, Billey Cole, Huge Hernandez, David Shortes, Randy Hayworth and Carl Speck played only the first half of the contest.

Cole led the scoring with 12 points followed by Hernandez with 10, Hill with 6 and Shortes with 4.

Runnels Red plays in Stanton this Thursday at 5:30 p.m. The Runnels teams will also participate in the Big Spring Tournament to be held this weekend.

Runnels girls beat Trinity

The Runnels White girls basketball team won a low scoring contest over Midland Trinity in Midland last night by the score of 16-6.

Coach Barbara Fletcher said Tammy Green was high scorer for Runnels with 5 points. Coach Fletcher also said Monique Jones and Lana Fletcher were outstanding performers in the contest.

"We played real good defense, but we do need to score more points. We need to make those easy layups," Coach Fletcher said.

Runnels Red team is in action against Stanton Thursday and the White team will be participating in the Big spring tournament Saturday.

Goliad girls edged, 23-20

The Goliad White girls basketball team lost a close contest to Midland Trinity last night, 23-20.

High points scorer for Goliad was Teresa Pruitt who pumped in 16 points. Monica Lockeridge and Stacy Stunkard added two points each.

Cited for good hustle and team play were Lisa Hale and Charlotte Lang.

Both Goliad White and Black team will be in action this weekend in the Big Spring Tournament.

Gretzky wins yet another award as NHL Player-of-the-week

MONTREAL (AP) — Center Wayne Gretzky of the Edmonton Oilers earned another National Hockey League Player-of-the-Week award, although this time he had to share the honor with Pittsburgh Penguins rookie forward Doug Shedden.

It was the third straight week Gretzky was honored and the fifth time this year he has won or shared the award.

Gretzky, who collected eight points in three games from Dec. 28-Jan.3, was named mainly because of his five-goal performance against the Philadelphia Flyers last Wednesday night.

The five goals gave Gretzky 50 in his first 39 games, shattering the standard set by Maurice Richard and Mike Bossy, who both needed 50 games to score 50 goals.

The 20-year-old Shedden had four goals and four assists in a week highlighted by the first three-goal performance of his career in a 9-4 triumph over the Hartford Whalers last Saturday night.

North Carolina remains No. 1 in AP poll

By The Associated Press

Preseason favorite North Carolina is the near-unanimous choice today as the No.1 team in The Associated Press college basketball poll following a week in which nine of the nation's Top 20 teams lost at least one game.

This week's poll, in which Virginia replaced previously unbeaten Wichita State as the country's No. 2 team, sets up a matchup of the nation's two top-ranked teams Saturday when North Carolina hosts the Cavaliers in a nationally televised game.

It will mark the second time this season that teams ranked 1-2 in the country have met. Earlier this season, North Carolina retained the nation's bragging rights by downing then No.2 Kentucky 82-69.

North Carolina, which raised its record to 9-0 with a victory over William and Mary last night, collected 56 of 58 first-place votes and 1,158 points — two shy of perfection. The Tar Heels also posted a thrilling 56-50 overtime decision over Penn State and downed Santa Clara 63-50 in winning the Cable Car Classic last week.

Virginia, 11-0 following a pair of victories over James Madison and one over Richmond, was tabbed No.1 on the final two first-place ballots. The Cavaliers received 1,095 points from the poll's nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Kentucky, now 8-1 following a 34-28 overtime victory over Notre Dame in a slowdown game and a harrowing 68-66 decision over Georgia last week, inched up one slot to No.3 with 894 points.

Six of the remaining seven teams in the Top 10 also were ranked there last week, but have played a game of musical chairs.

Missouri, DePaul, Minnesota and Iowa all jumped three positions and are ranked 4-7 respectively.

Missouri, 9-0 after victories over Southern Cal and Notre Dame, got 959 points. DePaul, 10-1, was next with 877 followed by Minnesota at 808 and Iowa with 740.

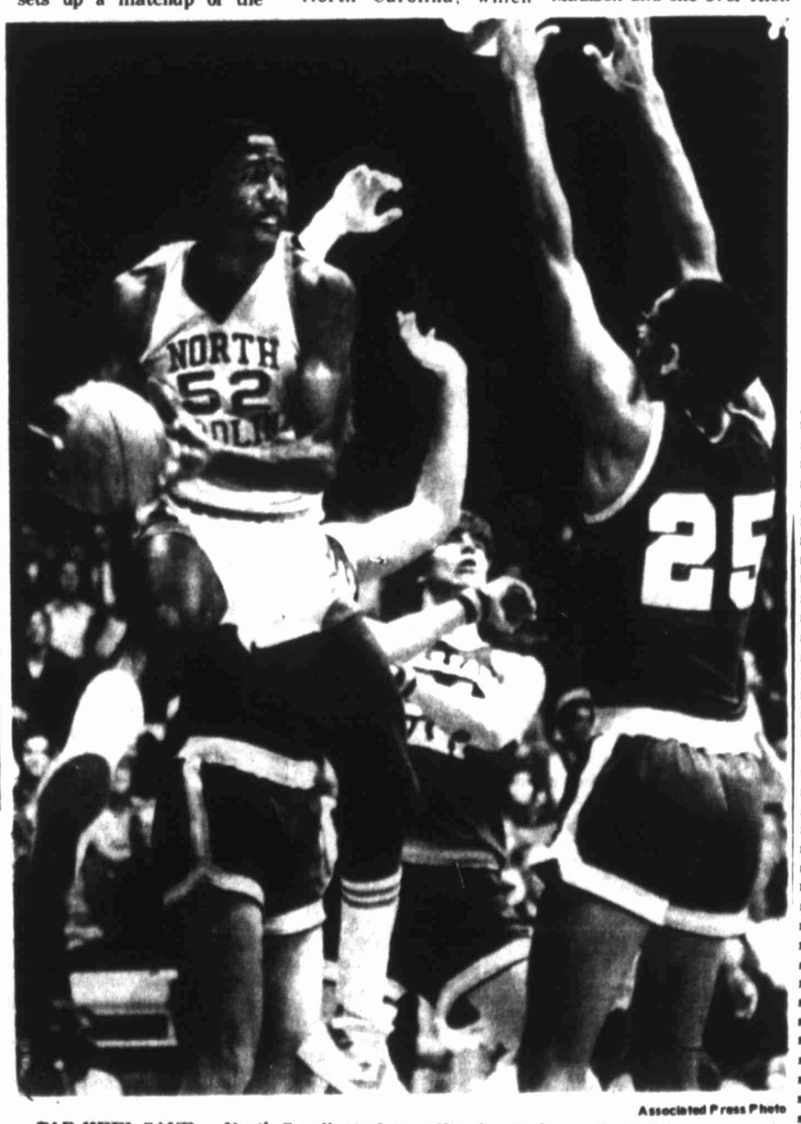

San Francisco, 11-1, slipped two positions to No.8 when knocked from the unbeaten ranks by Rice in the Rainbow Classic. The Dons, who received 628 points, rebounded later in the tournament to beat Wichita State, 9-2, which plummeted to No.9 following its loss to San Francisco and another to North Carolina State.

Tulsa, No.13 a week ago, closed out the Top 10 with 549 points.

Arkansas, 8-1, dropped six places to No.11 after being upset by Texas Tech. Louisville is 12th followed by Georgetown, D.C., Houston, North Carolina State, Alabama, Oregon State, Idaho, UCLA and St.John's, N.Y.

Last week, the Second 10 was Indiana, Alabama, Tulsa, Louisville, Oregon State, UCLA, Georgetown, Houston, Villanova and North Carolina State.

Idaho, 11-0, and St.John's, 9-1, are the newcomers to the Top 20, replacing Villanova and Indiana. Villanova lost the championship game to St.John's in the Holiday Festival, while Indiana dropped two games in the same tournament.

Wichita State stormed from a 38-33 halftime advantage behind the strong front line of Greg Dreiling (18 points, eight rebounds), Antoine Carr (15 and seven) and Cliff Levingston (11 and eight).

Tulsa's Greg Stewart poured in 17 points as the Hurricane won its Missouri Valley Conference opener and 24th straight game at home.

Second Ten

Louisville fell behind 4-0, then ran off 15 points and was never headed. Derek Smith scored 22 points to lead the Cardinals.

Houston nipped local rival Rice for the 21st time in 22 games. Ricky Pierce threw in 37 points for Rice, which upset San Francisco and North Carolina State to win the Rainbow Classic last week.

The Cougars rallied as freshman Akeem Abdul Olajuwon and Clyde Drexler led a second-half surge and Rice's Donald Bennett missed a shot at the buzzer.

Dereck Whittenburg sank a free throw with two seconds left to lift N.C. State over Southern Miss. The Wolfpack was nursing a two-point lead but Sidney Lowe had his shot blocked on a drive with 32 seconds left. The Golden Eagles' Curtis Green tied it with a 15-foot jumper.

Green then fouled Whittenburg, who made the front end of a one-and-one for the victory margin.

Oregon State reserve Rob Holbrook collected a career-high 18 points and the Beavers overcame an early 18-8 deficit.

Unranked Teams

Bradley's players ought to file for extra scholarships after their fourth overtime game this season, a 79-77 double OT Missouri Valley victory over Indiana State. Last month, the Braves lost to Cincinnati 77-75 in a record seven overtimes. They've also had another double overtime contest and a game that went one extra period.

David Thirdkill made up for missing two free throws in the final seconds of regulation time when he hit a short jump shot with five seconds left in the second overtime. Thirdkill, who scored 18 points, had missed a pair of free throws with the score tied at 73 and only three seconds left in regulation.

In the first OT period, Indiana State's James Smith put in a jump shot with four seconds remaining to tie the score 75-75, forcing another extra session.

In other games, La Salle upended Notre Dame 66-61 and Pittsburgh edged Temple 60-59 in a doubleheader at the Palestra, New Mexico State beat West Texas State 75-66, Illinois State topped Drake 59-49, Seton Hall beat Providence 66-65, Alabama-Birmingham downed Jacksonville 82-62, Richmond defeated South Carolina 58-45, Illinois State outscored Drake 59-49, Kansas State outdueled Nevada-Las Vegas 82-65, Ohio State took Syracuse 67-57, Tulane edged Cincinnati 60-58, Brigham Young ripped New Mexico 76-58, Fresno State stopped previously unbeaten Lamar 56-36.

SWC Roundup

Cougars hold off Owls, 63-61

By The Associated Press

They call him Akeem "The Dream" Olajuwon and Houston coach Guy Lewis' dream came true in Houston's Southwest Conference basketball opener.

Olajuwon came off the bench in the second half to dominate rebounding on both ends of the court, score 10 points and lead the 18th-ranked Cougars to a 63-61 victory over the determined Rice Owls Monday night in the SWC opener for both teams.

"It wasn't easy and it wasn't beautiful but it was one victory in the SWC," Lewis said. "I was just glad to see the clock run down."

Olajuwon, a freshman from Nigeria, got six rebounds on each end of the court and led an early second-half surge that put Houston ahead for good at 42-41 with 7:37 left in the game.

The victory put Houston in a tie for first place in the SWC with Texas Tech, which upset fifth-ranked Arkansas over the weekend.

In the only other SWC action Monday night, Baylor defeated Southwestern, 68-59, in a non-conference game at Waco.

Houston sophomore Clyde Drexler scored all nine of his points during the stretch when the Cougars took the lead and Rob Williams, slowed by a wrist injury, contributed 15 crucial points.

"I was nervous all through the first half but in the second half, I felt much more comfortable," Olajuwon said. "The other guys told me the SWC schedule would be tougher and it is — much more physical."

The surprising Owls, who upset sixth-ranked San Francisco and 20th-ranked North Carolina State in their last two games, took a 27-21 halftime lead, paced by high-scoring Ricky Pierce, who scored 37 points in the game.

"Pierce is the toughest player I've ever faced since I've come to this country," Olajuwon said. "He has a great lob shot and has great ability to drive to the basket."

Houston boosted its season record to 10-1 and won its ninth game in a row while the Owls dropped to an 8-5 record after winning the Rainbow Classic in Hawaii with their victories over Hawaii, San Francisco and North Carolina State.

The Cougars extended their series record to 21-1 over their crosstown rivals.

Bear's head coach fired

CHICAGO — Neill Armstrong is a proud man.

He's proud that in his 27-year professional football career he has never had to apply for a job. He also is proud that, until Monday, he had never been fired from a job.

"Not in 17 years as an assistant and 10 years as a head coach," he said. "Why, I played eight years of professional football and never was cut."

All that changed Monday when Chicago Bears owner George Halas fired Armstrong as head coach. Halas failed to name a successor, but former Bear tight end Mike Ditka, reportedly a prime candidate, has said he is interested in the job.

Armstrong, 55, had been head coach of the Bears for the past four seasons in which he compiled a record of 30-34. He said he plans to leave Chicago with his head held high.

"I intend to walk tall," Armstrong said. "I've seen other coaches lose jobs and I know how badly I felt for them.

"And I've seen a lot of players go. I've had to tell them myself. The ones I remember are the ones who took it like men. I intend to be the same."

Armstrong was defensive coordinator for the Minnesota Vikings for seven years before taking the Bear job Feb. 16, 1978. He succeeded Jack Pardee, who left the Bears after the 1977 season to become head coach of the Washington Redskins.

In his four years at the helm, only Minnesota had a better record than the Bears in the Central Division of the National Football Conference. The Vikings were 31-32-1 in that period while Tampa Bay was 29-34-1, Green Bay 26-36-2 and Detroit 26-38.

The Bears were 7-9 in 1978 under Armstrong and 10-6 the following year when they made the playoffs only to lose in the first round to Philadelphia. The Bears were 7-9 in 1980 and slipped to 6-10 this season.

West Texas earthquake reported

FORT STOCKTON, Texas (AP) — An earthquake with a magnitude of 3.8 on the Richter scale was felt in the Fort Stockton area but no damage or injuries were reported, says the National Earthquake Information Service in Golden, Colo.

The earthquake occurred at 10:56 a.m. Monday, said geophysicist Joe Minsch of the NEIS, which is operated by the U.S. Geological Survey.

The agency received reports of the earthquake being felt as far as 20 miles to the north of Fort Stockton and 20 miles to the south, he said in a telephone interview.

NEIS files show that an earthquake with a magnitude of 3.7 occurred in 1974 in the Fort Stockton area, but the agency received no reports of it being felt by residents, the geophysicist said.

The Richter scale is a gauge of the energy released by an earthquake, as measured by the ground motion recorded on a seismograph. An earthquake of 2 is the smallest normally felt by humans. A quake of magnitude 3.5 can cause slight damage.

School song disputed

HOUSTON (AP) — A school song should concern no one but people in the school's district, says a Houston congressman fighting a lawsuit which contends the Aldine High School's song violates a ruling against official school prayers.

"I think it's a local issue that ought to be decided by local people," Rep. Jack Fields said Monday after filing a friend of the court brief backing the Aldine Independent School District in U.S. District Court Monday.

The American Civil Liberties Union filed suit in federal court in November 1980 on behalf of an unidentified woman and her son, saying that the song violated a 1962 Supreme Court ruling against official school prayers.

The Aldine High School band played the school song, formerly known as the school prayer, on the steps of the Capitol in April after receiving an invitation from Fields.

Rex D. Van Middlesworth, representing the ACLU, said the song was "precisely the thing" the school prayer cases tried in the Supreme Court forbid.

The words of the song, which an attorney representing the district said is sung at pep rallies, athletic events and graduations, are:

"Dear God, please bless our school and all it stands for. Help keep us free from sin, honest and true, with courage and faith to make our school the victor. In Jesus' name we pray."

The brief was filed on the same day U.S. District Judge Norman W. Black declared unconstitutional, in a separate case, another suburban Houston school district's practice of asking job applicants about their religious beliefs.

Attorney Charles Walter, representing the ACLU, said the district had been permitted to ask applicants if they believed in a supreme being. He said that permission came under two sections of the Texas Education Code and one section of the state constitution.

Houston Klein authorities have since removed the question from the application forms, said F. James Wunderlich, a lawyer representing Klein and Aldine in the separate suits.

In the Aldine case, Fields said the high school song is defensible under all three tests issued by the Supreme Court in its 1962 decision prohibiting schools from having official prayers.

"It has a secular purpose — to instill school spirit," the Republican congressman. "There are also no excessive entanglements between the school and any religious body. The song does not advance or prohibit religion."

Van Middlesworth said he differed strongly with Fields' interpretation of the Constitution.

"I think that a prayer clearly furthers religion," he said. "Indeed, it's hard to think of many things that would further religion more than adopting a school song that is a prayer to Jesus."

"I'm surprised that 20 years after the major Supreme Court cases, there is still such a prayer," Van Middlesworth said.
