Majority States Opposition To Forced Consolidation

Four local men attended the public hearing in Austin Tuesday on proposed public school reforms in which consolidation of schools was the major issue.

Making the trip were Percy Parson, manager of the Olton Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture; Ray Schultz, superintendent of schools, Earl Spruiell, president of Olton State Bank and Elmer McGill, farmer and school board trustee.

"Compulsory consolidation is going to have to be abandoned and we have to obtain our objectives in some other way," Rep. DeWitt Hale of Corpus Christi, told the House Public Education committee.

Hale, who is sponsor of the House bill carrying out the recommendations of former Gov. John Connally's Committee on Public School Education, said that "mandatory consolidation. . . for obvious political reasons, cannot pass the legislature. . I have decided to approach it from a different angle. I will offer amendments in subcommittee for financial incentives that will be an inducement for districts of larger size."

Speaker Gus Mutscher, who has opposed the consolidation feature of the bill, said a "long-range plan of educational improvements" should include systematic expansion of school finances, attention to the special needs of poor children and those from Spanish - speaking homes, an attractive program for teachers, "an effective organizational structure" and "a better system for measuring local ability and insuring local support to the state foundation program."

"In my judgment, we can accomplish these objectives in the sixty-first Texas Legislature," Muscher stated.

The man who will serve as chairman of the committee which will oversee the financing of it all, Bill Heatly of the House Appropriations Committee, made his opposition to the bill clear by distributing a letter as the hearing began.

"If the state forces local district to tax property on its market value, it will force all the farmers who produce food and fiber out of business," the letter stated.

Supt. Schultz said that they came away from the meeting with a much better feeling about the consolidation but that they felt the public should be alerted to the financial part of the bill.

Members of the subcommittee who are studying the Governor's committee report are George Henson of Mineola, chairman, Joe Golman of Dallas; Raul Muniz of El Paso, Tom Christian of Claude, Steve Burgess of Nacogdoches and Jack Hawkins of Groesbeck.

13 Accidents Are Reported In Lamb Co.

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated 13 accidents on rural highways in Lamb County during the month of February, according to Sergeant Thurman Keffer, Highway Patrol Supervisor of this area.

These crashes resulted in three persons injured and an estimated property damage of $5,680.00.

The rural traffic accident summary for this county during the first two months of 1969 shows a total of 20 accidents resulting in no persons killed, six persons injured, and an estimated property damage of $12,435.00.

"Windy" March is here. Pedestrians and drivers can be temporarily blinded by blowing dust or sand -- long enough for a hazardous situation to develop and lead to an accident. The reduction of visibility can cause a head-on collision, a rear-end collision, or a run-off roadway type of accident.

The wind itself can exert a powerful force on your vehicle and force it across or off the roadway. Sudden changes in wind velocity can cause you to lose control of your vehicle. Be sure to have both hands on the steering wheel to help maintain control of your vehicle.

The sergeant said, "Be alert and prepared for these dangers of gusty winds and reduced visibility."

Choirs Judged 'Excellent' In Two Separate Contests

Olton Junior High and High School Choirs participated in choral contests this week and both came home with Div. I and Div. II ratings.

Junior high choir traveled to Lubbock Saturday to participate in Regional Interscholastic League competition with junior high school choirs from Lubbock, Levelland, Plainview and Brownfield and high school choirs from Lockney, Kress, Sundown and Post.

Judges were Tom Adams of Andrews, Gary Foster of Odessa and Don McCartney of Midland. Sight-reading judge was Hilton R. Bates Jr.

The 66-member junior high choir received a Div. I and the judges stated that they were "most impressed with the size of the choir and its sound."

High school choirs were in contests in Amarillo at the Amarillo Civic Center Tuesday and also came home with a Div. I in concert and a Div. II in sight reading. Girls' choir also received a Div. I rating.

Olton choir was the only choir to make a Div. I in competition with Class A, B, and AA schools. Other class AA schools entered in the contest were Phillips, Spearman and Dalhart.

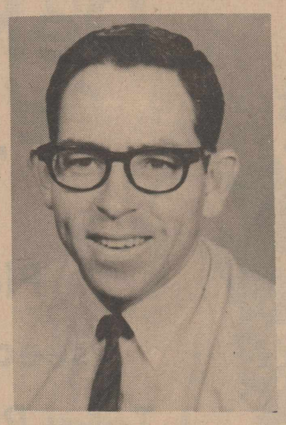

Judges stated that the choir was "excellent and enjoyed hearing them."

Your Television Set Could Save Your Life

Murderous, vicious, destructive tornadoes might be detected by your own television set. The remarkable method of warning is a discovery of Newton Weller of West Des Moines, Iowa.

The story of his discovery is told in the March issue of Popular Mechanics magazine. Lamb County Civil Defense Unit suggests residents become familiar with the procedure.

Volunteer firemen meeting Monday evening heard one of their members report that he had tested the system to see if he might pick up lightning during a thunderstorm last Saturday night. The lightning streaks did register on his set.

"This system, which can be used anywhere," reports PM magazine, "is considered one of the most dramatic breakthroughs in weather forecasting - it could well save your life."

To make the check, turn on your TV, dial Channel 13, darken the screen to the threshold of blackness, and then switch to Channel 2. If the screen is stark white or turns white after being black like Channel 13, take cover IMMEDIATELY.

The white screen indicates a tornado is within 20 miles of you or nearer. The average distance, Weller states, is five miles.

Lightning flashes register as horizontal white streaks across your screen. In the event these streaks become wide bands and linger, a dangerous storm is threatening and you should seek shelter at once.

Weller made his discovery three years ago, but kept it secret until he had tested it again and again. He did confide in Iowa climatologist Paul Waite of the U. S. Weather Bureau. Waite was certain that Weller had made a great discovery and offered encouragement and help.

After becoming certain his method was foolproof, Weller released his story in the Des Moines Register and Tribune Sunday, Sept. 22, 1968.

That very day, residents in Orange City, Iowa were given an opportunity to test the system. To their surprise and horror, the method did work.

Popular Mechanics asked Weller, "When should you turn on your set to detect a tornado?"

Weller answered, "When you see threatening clouds on the horizon, or if you feel a thunderstorm is exceptionally intense."

Persons wishing additional information may read the complete story in Popular Mechanics or contact members of the Civil Defense Unit.

Practice Tornado Alert Slated For 3 Saturdays

That dreaded time of year - the season when tornadoes are more apt to threaten - is just around the corner.

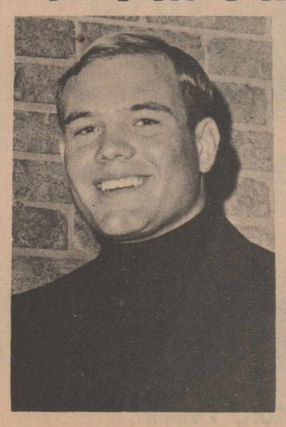

A practice alert will be sounded at 12 noon for three consecutive Saturdays. Weather providing, the alerts will begin this Saturday.

The first signal will be the one used to notify residents that weather conditions call for POSSIBLE tornadoes in the area. This sound, continuing for three minutes, is a warbling whistle and should alert citizens to be watchful for further warning.

The second signal, that of a TAKE-COVER alarm, goes from high to low sounds and also will continue for three minutes.

Fire Chief Tom Smith reminds residents that the regular siren, sounded in event of fires, is a continuing tone lasting for three minutes. This constant alarm should not be confused with a tornado warning if sounded during stormy weather.

Bill Clayton Named Director Of Water, Inc. Association

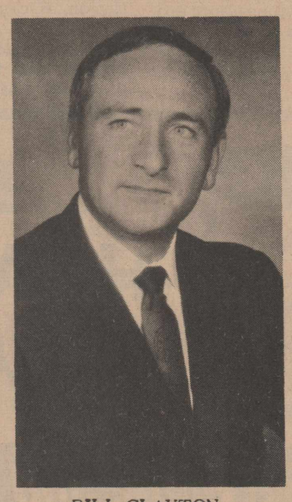

Bill Clayton of Springlake, and L. Dean Rea of Tulia, were hired as Executive Director and Associate Director of Water, Inc. at a Board meeting in Lubbock today according to an announcement made by K. B. "Tex" Watson, President of Water, Inc.

Clayton, a statewide water leader, commonly known in the House of Representatives as "MR. WATER", made the following statement. "I have one interest and one purpose in mind in accepting the executive directorship of Water, Inc.... That is to guide and direct the people of West Texas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico toward one common objective--water importation into the area. West Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico stand to gain much by working together, united, for the implementation of the Texas Water Plan. I will continue serving in the State Legislature where I feel my services will be of great value in helping to implement the Texas Water Plan. Looking at our problems from a political standpoint was one of the determining factors of my signing with Water, Inc. at this time. We cannot afford the luxury of division among the people if we are to accomplish our goal. It is our hope that Water, Inc. will be the melting pot for all our ideas, thoughts, and actions; and that from all the divergent views and needs, we may speak with one voice for all our people. Until this end is accomplished in the area serviced by Water, Inc., we can kiss import water goodby.

However, I am confident that all people in the area who are sincere in purpose can speak with unity. The organization is big enough, and there is enough work to do, so that everyone can play an important role in the job to be done. As major objectives, I would like to see Water, Inc. work with the county water organizations in reaching more people, and in turn getting a better grass roots participation.

One of the first jobs should be the promotion and passage of the 3.5 billion dollar bond constitutional amendment. After this is accomplished, work should begin on trying to pass a conformation election to create a Master Water Authority in the area. We would solicit the support of all concerned that we may speak with unity for the area."

Bill Clayton has been in the farm business in the Springlake area for many years and since 1963 has served in the Texas House of Representatives. He has served on a number of the leading House committees including the Water Committee for several sessions and was Chairman of the House Interim Water Study Committee which held numerous hearings across the state during the summer and fall and recommended important legislation concerning state water problems. He is the author of HJR 9, the constitutional amendment to implement the State Water plan.

BILL CLAYTON

Dean Rea is the new associate director. He is presently employed as production manager and sales coordinator of Taylor Evans Seed Company. He has been Advisory Director and active in Water, Inc. since its organization. He is also Executive Manager of the West Texas Grain Elevator Association, a trustee of the High Plains Research Center, and a Director of the Grain Elevator and Processor Superintendent's International. Mr. Rea graduated from Amarillo High School and Texas Tech where he received a B.S. degree in Agriculture and was President of his Senior Class.

Tex Watson, President of Water, Inc. stated "We are proud of this excellent staff who, along with Tom Williams, Director of Field Services for Water, Inc., will carry the organization toward its goal of bringing supplemental water into West Texas and Eastern New Mexico.

Dear Editor

Choir Students Praised

Mrs. Sue Cannon, Editor
Olton Enterprise
Olton, Texas

Dear Sue:

Last Saturday and again on Tuesday it was my privilege to take two groups of 132 students of Olton Junior and Senior High Schools on out-of-town trips. We took 66 junior high students to Lubbock and 66 high school students to Amarillo. Both days in both cities managers of businesses, choral directors, and other kind people commented on what fine looking, well-disciplined young people these students were, how they had enjoyed serving them, and that "Olton is welcome to come back anytime."

I want to express my appreciation to the parents of all these students, and especially to those who took time from their busy schedules to attend these contest performances. Working with these students has been my privilege.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Bob Allford

P.S. I express my thanks to you and the Enterprise staff for your coverage and support of the music program of our schools.

Crusade Revival

Olton Enterprise

Dear Friends:

Here it is another week and we are still in Satanta, Kansas. We have seen 7 or 8 inches of snow since we have been here and they had that much or more when I came up the 9th of the month. We had some zero weather but the last few days have been real spring weather. Most of the snow is gone and most everyone is glad.

The Lord has been so good to us. He has given us good health, a clear voice to sing with and we have seen souls born into the kingdom of God, and eight have united with the church. We are expecting several others to go on and make decisions for the Lord. Bro. John Bobo, our evangelist has done a wonderful job preaching the gospel. He is pastor at Memphis, Texas. He is a man that loves the Lord and preaches the Word as he sees and feels it in his heart.

I will be leaving here after the morning service Sunday Mr. 23 and will be in the Calvary Baptist Church in Childress, Texas for the evening service and thru out the week there. I know the Lord has great things to be done there also if we will just surrender ourselves to His will. I will be back home the night of Mar. 30 to begin a revival in my own church at Mayfield Baptist Church. I need your prayers as I try to help as best I can in the CRUSADE OF AMERICAS revivals throughout North and South America. I miss so much my home and loved ones but feel I must follow the call of the Master. Men, Women, Boys and Girls are lost and dying without Christ in their heart and life. "CHRIST IS THE ONLY HOPE"

Sincerely
Ivin L. Wozencraft

Play By The Rules

J. Edgar Hoover,

A newspaper columnist noted that today's law enforcement officer has to "speak softly and carry a big law library". Actually, his paraphrase of the well-known quotation from Theodore Roosevelt comes close to being true. There is nothing wrong, of course, with an officer's speaking softly and being well-versed in legal criminal procedure. Ideally, this is as it should be.

Unfortunately, in the criminal realm within which he must work, the law enforcement officer is the only one "playing by the rules." This places him at a definite disadvantage. In complying with all the procedural safeguards established for criminals, an officer must often subordinate his personal safety, his own rights, and the rights of society to insure that he does not commit some error which might later result in the release of the guilty. Criminals are usually well aware of their legal rights and take full advantage of them.

Many critics of law enforcement today substitute paper theories for grim realities. When they advocate more restraints on arresting officers, they do so apparently on the premise that police are dealing with only law-abiding, cooperative citizens who respect the law and those charged with enforcing it. While a big percentage of police contacts are with the responsible members of society, increasing assaults against and killing of law enforcement officers are indicative of the open contempt numerous violators have for police and authority of any kind.

Arguments are made that court opinions and legal restraints are not so broad as to require arresting officers to unduly endanger their lives in order to meet standards established to protect the rights of the suspect or accused. Here again, we encounter the difference between theory and practice. Judicial guidelines which are so vague and questionable that even the highest jurists disagree on their intent place a heavy burden of judgment on the enforcement officer. In crucial moments, this burden of judgment can create indecision. And as we know, moments of indecision can cost an officer his life.

The trend today, even though unintentional, is to negate the enforcement of the laws to insure that the criminal is protected. We are asking our officers to operate under an honor system in dealing with an element of our society which has no honor. Certainly, arresting officers cannot be permitted to resort to illegal tactics themselves, but they must be allowed to perform their duty with confidence and with the assurance that they have the support of the public, the government on all levels, and the courts. The powers of arrest must be as clear and positive as possible.

Vigorous law enforcement is needed to cope with crime and violence in our Nation. It cannot be achieved if arresting officers are required to make an apologetic approach to every killer, rapist, robber, and thug roaming our streets. If the rule of law is to prevail, the law must be enforced.

Tax Man Sam Sez

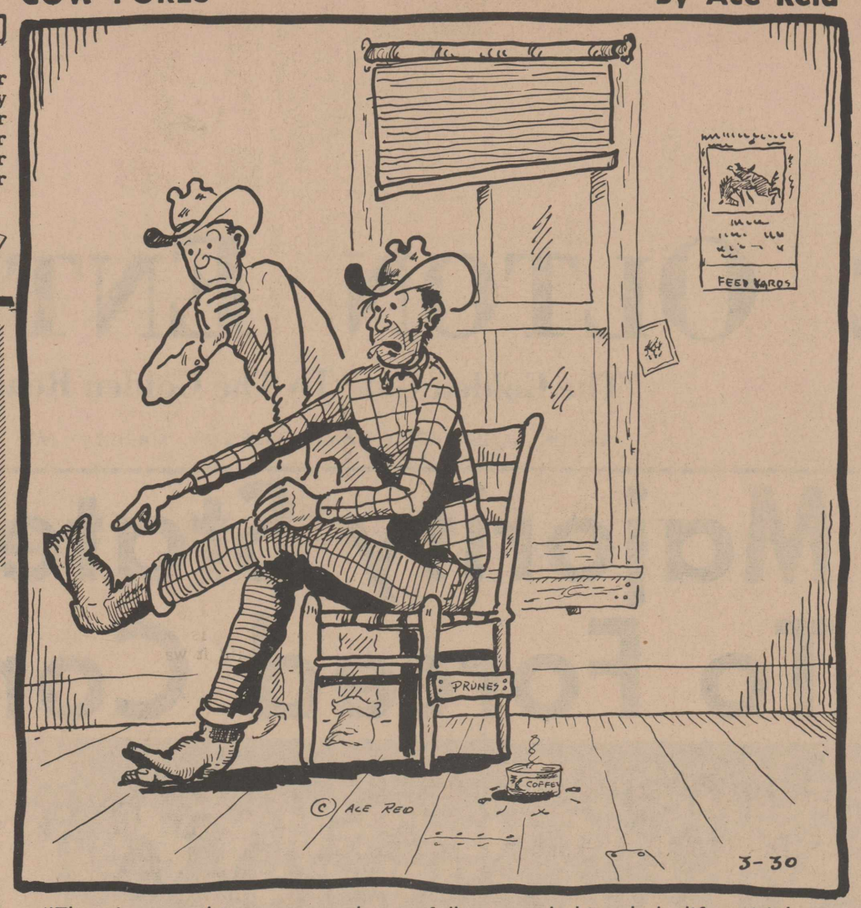

When it comes to arithmetic the IRS computer would get a straight A and stand at the head of the class. Most of us make simple errors in arithmetic anytime we add more than two and two. However, when we figure our income tax returns we have to go through the painful process of adding and subtracting and multiplying just like we did when we were in the fifth grade.

When an Internal Revenue agent or any tax professional figures a tax return he uses an adding machine and/or calculator to work the tax computation. He also goes back and re-checks all of his figures. In many cases the professional man who works with figures also has someone else to check the figures. If all taxpayers would follow the system used by the professionals and very carefully re-check their figures, they would keep the IRS computer from sending out so many math error notices.

Letters

BY SUE CANNON

I don't know how many of you noticed last week's front page date line, but in the hub bub of things we failed to get it changed and so last week's paper went out with the date line on the front page as March 13, 1969.

Well, now how many people notice the date line?

Quite a number, I decided.

We even received a letter from some former Oltonite who is now at the Kress National Bank who forgot to sign his name.

Contents of the note read:

"Kress National Bank
Date Unimportant?
Sue Cannon & Cohorts:
This computer age we live in! Weather data as late as March 19th in "Thursday's March 13th paper.

Never wonder any more about being born too soon but do wonder at times about how much too soon."

Now how about that? Does that sound like Dub Granbery or doesn't it?

He was over at the church Sunday dinner this past Sunday and I asked him why he didn't sign that letter and he just said, "AAWWW."

And speaking of letters, I had a dandy from Jolene Burgess recently.

Seems like after my sister Retta was in the hospital, she was sending thank you notes out to those who remembered her while she was sick.

However, when she addressed an envelope to the Burgesses who are at Olton now (Kenneth and Sue) she put Fred Burgess' name on it instead.

Well, you know in a small town post office, the department remembers people who used to live here so the letter was forwarded to the Fred Burgesses in Preston, Idaho.

And here is the letter I received from Jolene:

"Dear Sue,

Here's a puzzler for you. I received the enclosed card in the mail today. You are the only Sue I know that would be 'family' to Retta, of course I don't know if this is the same Retta or not. The puzzle is really mine because I can't imagine anyone in Olton sending me a thank you note---it's been 7 years since we lived there.

I didn't even send Retta a get well card, really I'm not even sure she was sick. (I think I read in the paper she was, but that could be my imagination since I received this card)

As you see, the envelope was sent several places before it reached here. If you find the answer, let me know.

We really enjoy the paper. It's like getting lost from everyday routine and being home for an hour or two each week.

I really enjoy your and Mozelle's columns each week. It's good to realize that other people have as many problems as we do.

Our latest was having two appointments the same day -- at 3:45 and 4:45 in two different towns and having the garage door freeze shut with the car in it!

We tried melting, chopping and praying -- but I took Sherry to the eye doctor in the pick-up and Fred cancelled his dental appointment.

Keep up the good work.

Sincerely,
Jolene Burgess

(Now you know, Jolene, what really happened.)

Little mistakes make for lots of fun, don't they? At least some of the time.

Take for instance this Wednesday, the ladies here were posing for a picture to be printed in the 'Texas Messenger', a monthly magazine for newspaper people.

We were trying to keep from looking posed so we were pretending to be taking a coffee break

Well, we got to clowning around and here is what we came up with on the very last shot!

We had quite a laugh over that and you know Bill Mc Allister said one of the greatest ways of releasing tension was to laugh at yourself.

Guess what?

No MORE TENSION!

LEWIS LLEWELLYN

Is Rebellion Respectable?

Is there an effort underway to make rebellion respectable?

As dissident students, non-students, and the "dedicated revolutionaries" on some college and university faculties do their utmost to disrupt our society, some are now praising their attacks on the "establishment" and declaring that the rebels may some day be acclaimed as heroes.

In line with this thinking, a nationally syndicated columnist wrote recently, "When you read about the first years of the Christian church as reported in the New Testament, you discover that many of the faithful spent more time in prison than in the pulpit."

What Were They Doing?

The question is: What were these faithful men doing that led to their being thrown into prison—rioting, shouting obscenities at the authorities, seizing or destroying property that did not belong to them, inflicting physical harm on those who disagreed wtih them?

Of course not. They were not engaging in any of these presently popular methods of expressing dissent.

Why, then, were they in prison?

Their offense was preaching the Gospel and delivering people from the oppression of Satan.

Authorities of the Roman government, seeking to stamp out Christianity, persecuted the early Christian leaders.

Let's not smear the memories of the great Christians of that early era by equating their imprisonment for preaching Christianity with the jailing of those whose claim to fame is that they have succeeded in disrupting the operation of a college where other young people are attempting to secure an education.

No Justification

Nowhere in the Scripture is there justification for unlawful and unruly acts such as are being committed on the campuses of our colleges and universities by the militant minorities that would impose their will on the properly constituted authorities.

On the contrary, the Bible is clear in its teaching that those who would please God should "live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world."

The revolution which Jesus advocated was a revolution of heart and mind, resulting in an internal change in the individual who adopted the way of Christ as his own.

It is impossible to imagine the early Christian leaders taking part in some of the demonstrations which have in our days been adorned by the presence of some clergymen—men of the cloth who have chosen to lend the weight of their influence to disruptive and unlawful activities.

No doubt, there are inequities in the operation of some colleges. No doubt, some changes should be made in their policies and practices.

Where there are inequities, they should be corrected. But this must be done in a peaceable manner, without resort to violence.

The teaching of the Bible is the direct opposite of the doctrine which is being proclaimed —and practised—by the rebels whom some are seeking to justify.

Longshoreman Strike Creating Economic Havoc

The Longshoreman Strike in Texas is having a "catastrophic economic impact" and resulting in "irretrievable financial loss" to the grain, cotton and other agricultural and business interests in Texas and particularly the Panhandle and south plains, Panhandle Congressman Bob Price told President Nixon and Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz in letters Thursday.

Price said that more than 600,000 bales of cotton have accumulated at Texas ports and that export grain that would be moving from Texas elevators is being purchased from Mexico and that the entire Texas rice industry "is in a state of chaos."

Price urged the President and Secretary of Labor to impress upon both parties involved in the dispute through Federal mediators the "irrepairable damage this shutdown is doing to business industry and labor."

According To IRS

The medical expenses of taxpayers 65 years of age or older are subject to the same rules that apply to younger taxpayers, Ellis Campbell, Jr., District Director of Internal Revenue for Northern Texas, said today.

All taxpayers who list medical expenses on their 1968 Federal tax returns may deduct only the total expenses that exceeds 3 percent of their adjusted gross income. Medicine and drug expenses exceeding one percent of income should be included in the taxpayers' other medical expenses.

Campbell pointed out that one-half the cost of premiums paid for medical insurance, up to a maximum of $150, may be deducted by all taxpayers who itemize without regard to the three percent limitation. For taxpayers 65 or older, one-half the cost of supplementary medical insurance under Medicare may be deducted under the same tax law provision.

The remaining costs of insurance premiums should be added to the taxpayer's other medical expenses and reduced by three percent of adjusted gross income.

SENSING THE NEWS

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

President Nixon's decision to proceed with development of an anti-ballistic missile system comes as a tremendous relief to Americans deeply concerned about national security. Ratification of the nuclear non-proliferation treaty in the Senate, which in effect will prevent some of America's NATO allies from acquiring atomic defenses, caused fear in some quarters that Mr. Nixon would scuttle the ABM plan that the Joint Chiefs of Staff long have held necessary for the protection of the American people. It is immensely gratifying, therefore, that Mr. Nixon acted with realism about the national defense and with determination to fully protect the country, despite the outcry from foes of the ABM plan.

While President Nixon said his ABM plan is strictly defenseive in nature, he said it was "essential for our security," adding that it is his "duty as President to make certain that we do no less...No President with the responsibility for the lives and security of the American people could fail to provide this protection."

Mr. Nixon described his ABM plan as a "minimum program," but it is apparent that his program is considerably more comprehensive and realistic than the ABM system envisioned by the Johnson Administration.

Mr. Johnson's plan, as formulated for former Secretary of Defense Robert S. Mc Namara, involved only a thin ABM system for defense against Communist Chinese missles. The Nixon Administration plan entails placement of ABMs around the Minutemen missiles that are part of America's first line of defense against Russian attack. Thus the ABM system devised by the Nixon Administration very realistically will provide protection against Soviet misslie power. Without a doubt, Mr. Nixon will face furious opposition from emotional elements in the nation that are bent on reducing U. S. defenses in an attempt to appease the Soviet Union.

Since he entered the White House, Mr. Nixon has not been the target of the leftist groups that conducted an unprecedented campaign of vilification against President Johnson and who virtually beseiged him in the presidential mansion. In all likelihood, the New Left will now launch a major campaign of abuse against Mr. Nixon. It is to be hoped, however, that Congress and the people won't let the New Leftists get out of hand. The time has come for a crackdown on those who make a career of abusing the nation's Chief Executive.

The ABM decision was the first truly major decision Mr. Nixon made as President -- the first tough decision with political consequences. In recent weeks, a number of citizens have been concerned about the tenor of some presidential appointments. It is comforting, therefore, to find that in the pinch Mr. Nixon has made a decision that long has been urged by conservative and realistic people in this country.

It may be that the recent outspoken comments of conservatives regarding presidential appointments and policies, led to a fresh realization in the White House concerning the strength and seriousness of conservative opinion. Another cheering straw in the wind was the appointment of Dr. Warren Nutter, Professor of Economics at the University of Virginia, as Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs, one of the key posts in the Pentagon. Dr. Nutter is widely known in the country as a realist on the Soviet Union. In 1964 he served as an adviser to Senator Barry Goldwater in the latter's presidential campaign.

It is a fact of political life in America that there always is a battle for the mind of the President and his Administration. The man at the top is continually receiving advice, one way and another. If conservatives and other realists fail to make their case to the President, national policy willshift in the "liberal" direction. Therefore, it is essential that conservatives continue to make informed, logical representations to the White House concerning what they believe is appropriate policy for the United States on the entire spectrum of issues.

Insofar as the ABM decision is concerned, one can be sure that opponents of stronger defenses will be working hard in the Congress and in the public opinion area to reject the program advanced by President Nixon. It is tremendously important, therefore, that realistic citizens continue to speak out in defense of a fully modern anti-missile defense system; that their representatives work very hard in Congress, and that efforts be made to fully mobilize the opinion of informed citizens regarding the need for an ABM shield against Russian and Chinese missile threats. The struggle to give the American people the protection they need against communist agressors is far from won.

Everything But The Kitchen Sink

BY MOZELLE TROTTER

Students from Olton schools are again participating in Interscholastic League competition and I thought you readers might like to read the report of the 1924 "County Meet" as reported in the Littlefield Leader.

The yellowed copy of the report is a keepsake belonging to Margaret Burrus, the Margaret Owen listed in the story.

"The annual interscholastic meet of Lamb county schools was held at Olton last Friday, a large attendance from all over the county being present to witness and participate.

On account of windy weather only the literary events were held, the athletic and track events being postponed until April 12th. Olton, Spring Lake and Littlefield participated. On account of the recent fire at Sudan that school was unable to be represented, but it is understood will have part in the athletic events next week.

The first event on the program was the spelling contest, Olton winning first place in senior, junior and sub-junior. Spring Lake took second in junior; Littlefield took third; Littlefield second in senior and Spring Lake third. Littlefield was disqualified in the sub-junior contests for lack of spelling mate.

At the noon hour the people of Olton made an excellent display of their cordiality, as well as the culinary ability of their ladies, by spreading in the school house one of the most sumptuous dinners ever partaken of in this county, and everybody enjoyed it to their fullest satisfaction.

In the afternoon the declamations were heard. Littlefield won first in junior boys and girls and senior girls, also second place in senior boys. Spring Lake won first place in senior boys and second and third place in senior and junior girls, respectively. Olton won second place in senior girls and third place in junior girls. Littlefield was again disqualified in the junior girls contest because of the under age of one of the contestants.

In the music memory contest Littlefield won first place, but was disqualified on account of insufficient number on the team.

The decisions were rendered by three judges from the West Texas Normal at Canyon, and were very acceptable by all participating.

The Leader has been unable to secure a full list of the participants in the various events, the following being only in part: (We list only Olton entries)

DECLAMATIONS:

Junior Boys - Dennis Jones

Senior Boys - Lewers Combest.

Today's Furniture A Delight To Own

Today's imaginative designers frequently tuck away a little surprise in furniture that makes it useful and a delight to own, and that adds excitement to furniture shopping.

Mrs. Jane Berry, Extension housing and furniture specialist, suggests consumers look closely for these specials. She gives a few examples.

One manufacturer has adapted the design of a London writing table to make an octagonal lamp or end table. There are the lift-lid openings that concealed the writing compartment in the original piece, but now hide a divided well lined with gold velvet.

It is an unsuspected place to hide jewels and keepsakes, notes Mrs. Berry. The table is available in either solid wild black cherry or in solid mahogany at a cost less than $160.

Ever heard of a rafraichissoir? A Holland, Michigan furniture manufacturer has an original in its museum which was used in France in the 18th century.

A rafraichissoir is a small table once used to chill wines in the dining room. The top pulls forward to reveal metal liners which keep wine cold or hold plants. Lower shelves may be used to store glasses and other items. A small drawer at the top holds bottle openers and other tools. A portion of the top is raised and it is leather lined.

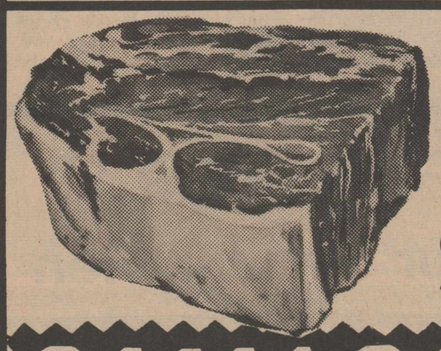

The reproduction sells for around $420, according to the Texas A&M specialist.

Career girls, hobby enthusiasts, bachelors or college students will find many uses for a combination bookcase and table which one company recently introduced.

The maple table slides out to make a 68-inch surface for dining, homework, sewing, games, using the four lower shelves of the bookcase for leaves.

A moveable library book stand is another innovation Mrs. Berry reports on. Its concealed casters enables the student or author to move the stand. The top raises to hold a dictionary or reference book in open position and there are shelves for additional books. The moveable stand is crafted in a dark-toned maple and sells for around $130.

Hot Check Bill Passes Senate

Senator Jack Hightower of Vernon guided Senate passage of a bill which will clamp down on hot check writers.

This bill will make it unlawful to give an employee an insufficient check for wages.

"In the past this has not been unlawful, and has caused a real hardship on many people who receive a check for work done. They go down and they spend the money for groceries, then the check bounces, the grocery man calls them, and they have to make it good," Senator Hightower said in explaining the reasoning behind the bill.

"I think that when a person gets their pay for work done that they should feel sure that this is a good check and that they can rely on it," he continued.

Hightower also said chances are good that the bill will win quick approval by the House and eventually become law.

Your Social Security

Residents of the Lubbock area who are receiving monthly social security checks are reminded by John G. Hutton, social security manager in Lubbock, to report directly to the Lubbock office any change of address or other events affecting continued receipt of their checks. Reports may be made by mail, phone, or in person. Appropriate forms are available at the Lubbock office.

Hutton said this reporting method enables the district office to take advantage of the increased capacity of its high speed communication circuits to transmit information to record centers. Until recently, social security beneficiaries were encouraged to notify the Social Security Administration about the occurrence of these events by mailing pre-addressed postcard forms to a record center.

Events that affect receipt of monthly social security checks, in addition to address changes, are starting or stopping work (employment), marriage or remarriage in some instances, divorce, and death.

IN FORT WORTH

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Moses made a vusiness trip to Fort Worth during the weekend.

LUCI GUNTER

Horse Tales

HELEN SMITH

Some days you just can't win. At a Plainview high school piano recital Monday night, Luci played a Sonatina, Op. 13, No. 1 and was lucky enough to perform last -- the thirteenth on the program. Nevertheless, she managed to finish the piece on the correct note without too much embarrassment and was honored to have participated in the program.

Seventy-some, add tired, sleepy, ice cream sticky, bus sick, choir members arrived home Tuesday afternoon with the news of two No. I ratings received in Concert for the girls' choir and mixed choirs, respectively, at the Amarillo regional choir contest. The choirs also received No. II ratings in sight reading (period). We consider the day a success with most of the praise going to a very fine and patient choir teacher, Mrs. Jenny Lynn Allford (or was that Jemmie Lou Allford??) Our sincere congratulations to you, Mrs. Allford, for your fine choir of which we are proud to say we're members of.

Well, well, now, just what is brightening our every day this week? Oh, the joyfulness of our annual fifth six weeks tests filling each of us with just one thought -- CRAM, STUPID!!!! So, with all respect to sixth (or seventh) weeks tests this column will be limited as to give the writers time to waste so they can truthfully say: "Ha, I didn't even study!" when they get their tests back with a neat-looking "F" stretched across the top.

And then comes the weekend with track meets, golf meets, and the Interscholastic Meet at Friona Saturday ruining a perfectly good morning to watch cartoons. Next week we'll print the entries in the Interscholastic Meet, but this week -- well, we're just too lazy. Good luck, everybody!!

It's Howdy Doody Time, Jan, Quenette, Karen and Kathi !!!

By the way, Kim, the Interscholastic Meet is at Friona -- NOT AMARILLO!

In case you haven't noticed, this week is National FHA Week with the red and white homemakers doing their best to make the week a meaningful one. Unfortunately, they got off to an unlucky start when a guest speaker did not arrive for an assembly Monday morning, but a choir performance was given taking up time and saving us from classes for thirty minutes anyway. The FHA'ers planned an active week to let everyone know FHA is alive and well and our praise to all those on the FHA week committee.

What was the matter Tuesday, Sandy and Beverly? Don't you two like Plainview?

We enjoyed your tape recorder, Barry T., but next time let's try for a little more variety, okay?

Better watch those "make-up jokes," Marsha P., and beware of the Lone Ranger.

Nothing like a new bookcover, is there D. M.?

After all, who knows more about Phoenix than -- Glen Campbell????

Tony George chews "Chicle".

The Easter Bunny had sure better hurry, we want our Easter eggs now!!!!

And now (ta da) our definition of Love.

What is love? Love is waking up one morning and saying, "Ooohhh, I sure wish today was Saturday," and then realizing, "hey, it IS SATURDAY!!!"

Easter Seal Report Given

Lamb County's Easter Seal Representative reported today that the 1969 Easter Seal Appeal for the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Texas is going well. Mr. Joe Montgomery serves as Easter Seal Appeal treasurer for Lamb County.

The 1969 Easter Seal Appeal will help finance the Easter Seal Society's rehabilitation program for children and adults in Texas. Last year the Society helped 17,622 disabled persons through its program of assistance in finding and making effective use of services for the disabled and their families.

The Easter Seal Society helps support 21 treatment facilities in Texas where children and adults are treated regardless of ability to pay. These centers offer physical therapy, medical diagnosis, speech and hearing programs and related services to help the disabled build happier and more useful lives.

As Easter Seal Representative, Mr. Montgomery is the person to contact for services from the Easter Seal Society. He can be contacted at the Security State Bank, Littlefield, Texas 79339.

When contacted for services, Mr. Montgomery will request the Easter Seal Society to investigate the needs of the disabled person and will ask that the Society advise the handicapped person of the best resources available to help him.

Mr. Montgomery added that additional contributions to the Easter Seal Appeal should be sent him as soon as possible, as the 1969 Appeal ends Easter Sunday, April 6, 1969.

How To Cope With Housewife Boredom

It isn't him, It isn't them. It isn't you.

So, if boredom bugs you, don't blame your husband, the children or yourself. Instead seek a cure for boredom and you may gain a whole variety of new pleasures.

Your best-intentioned friend may give you absurd-sounding advice if you confide that the day-to-day routine is getting you down. "You have to get out more and do more things," she may say.

Isn't that a laugh with a schedule as full as yours?

If you're like most women, you are probably either (a) a member of something you wish you were out of; (b) tied to a project you feel you OUGHT to complete though you don't feel like it; or (c) a victim of the common psychological tendency to put unpleasant housework off by doing a lot of little things that aren't really necessary.

Take a tip -- do less! Duck. Pass the buck. If you want to get out of the group, make up your mind and do it. Tired of the project? Drop it, and make it up to the family (if it's something for them) by tossing them a special banquet. In housework, do the bad part first, then let the small stuff compete for your attention with more pleasurable activities.

But don't stop there. You can save time in other ways. Make a deal with another mother to pick up your children after school, then do the same for her a week later; you both get an afternoon off!

Spend 49¢ on a package of paper plates, then skip dishwashing for as long as they last.

Tack a "duty sheet" to the refrigerator door showing which child is to do what household chore, and when. Why should you be the horse?

Skip the late at night movie in favor of bed, then get up two hours early and just loaf.

Schedule the household chores, instead of just doing them "as they come up," and you can arrange an extra day each week free of toil.

What to do with the time you save? Plenty -- and pleasurably. Pick one from Group "A" and one from Group "B" and see what many women miss out on.

Group "A" -- Outside Activities

1. Get a job. Working in a retail store, you'll meet new people, see more of your friends, and probably trim your waistline (if it isn't a bakery). Retarded children's homes need mothers who understand. Door-to-door sales companies need representatives (it's easier than it sounds). How about helping as a doctor's receptionist, or joining one of the poverty programs? There's plenty of part-time work around if you look for it.

2. Go to school. Pay, and you can take college courses. For free, a local high school may have classes two nights a week. By mail, you can learn all kinds of things. You can add to your knowledge of child psychology, learn to sculpt, or find out how tough things really were for Marie Antoinette and her crowd. Or, wouldn't it be fun to learn the meaning of terms on a Chinese menu? (In MooGoo Gai Pan, for instance, "Moo Goo" means mushroom, "Gai" means chicken, and "Pan" means sliced.)

3. Lead a protest demonstration. If you want better school facilities, more cops on the beat, rubber mats under the playground slide, or whatever, marching down to city hall may do you a lot more good than writing letters. Getting girl friends together and signs painted can be exciting, and worthwhile. Be sure you clear your plans with the police; they are almost always neutral.

Group "B" -- at Home

1. Read the Bible from cover to cover, skipping wherever you wish. Start with the Book of Proverbs. Whether you are deeply religious or close to the borderline, says Dr. Oswald Hoffmann of radio's famed Lutheran Hour, "the Bible's advice on family relations and child rearing is one of the most enlightening guides a woman can find." The book is filled with ideas.

2. Paint! So you're not a Da Vinci -- who cares? A "how to do it" book plus some brushes and oils will get you started, and you may surprise yourself. But look, painting on canvas isn't the only way; paint walls! Or windowsills! How about painting the attic into a tropical paradise (a lot of green and yellow, fake in the trees somehow, make the top blue, and throw in a few birds -- distant ones so all you have to show is the outline)?

3. Buy a marriage manual. Let your husband see you reading it, and leave it where he can find it. We rarely see as much as we can when we travel, many people would enjoy concerts more if they knew what to listen for, and books help us to get maximum pleasure out of travel, music and marriage.

4. Joke around. Two quarts of coffee and three girl friends, each of whom is told to be ready with three jokes before she comes. Mix, and enjoy. Serves four.

5. Plan on being rich. Think of a fat after-tax income level (how about $50,000 a year?), get some girl friends to do the same, then decide how you'll spend it. Cut things out of magazines. Make a scrapbook. In this world anything can happen, and you wouldn't want to be caught unprepared, would you? Any number can play.

When the game is over, don't be surprised if you realize that you have the greatest treasures of all. Once you are relaxed, enjoying life fully, free of boredom, delighted with your friends and new adventures, you may find that you have new glee in greeting your children after school and your husband after work. You'll have the home and family that millions of girls crave--plus freedom from boredom to boot.

Tax Man Sam Sez

Once upon a time there was a computer. This computer worked for the IRS. When this computer first started working for the IRS all of the taxpayers had to go find their Social Security numbers and give them to the computer so the computer could identify them. Unfortunately not all of the taxpayers got their numbers right. Some of them mixed-up their Social Security number. During the first year the computer sent thousands of notices to taxpayers saying "I don't know you!"

The good tax folks asked taxpayers to be GOOD taxpayers and be sure to give the computer their correct Social Security number. To tell the computer who they are. Now, only a very few taxpayers mix-up their Social Security number. This makes the computer happy because the computer wants to know who everyone is, so the computer can give every taxpayer all of his tax credit and won't send him somebody else's tax bill.

CHILDREN LEARN FROM ANIMAL CARTOONS ON TV

Have you ever marveled at how children identify with animals in stories, books, cartoons—even when the animals bear no resemblance to their real counterparts, and are pure fantasies? Ever wonder why these fantasies inspire such devotion and loyalty?

In the movie days before television, Mickey Mouse and Minnie Mouse were the most popular non-human contemporaries of a whole generation of youngsters. Kids of all ages mimicked them, and shared in their joys and woes. Then there were Donald Duck, Porky the Pig, and a long succession of cartoon personalities right up to Bugs Bunny and Snoopy, courtesy of today's television. Each new crop of youngsters is weaned on its own fantasy idols of the day.

Obviously children relate earliest to the animals they know as pets—the puppy, the kitten, the turtle. But less familiar animals also become friends. The cuddly teddy bear represents security to the infant in its crib; in France, it's the stuffed baby elephant that the child takes to bed with him. Babar the Elephant is a national hero to French children, much as Mickey Mouse was here.

Fantasy animals in books and films are endowed with human qualities, while still maintaining their inherent animal characteristics. In a child's make-believe world, this seems very natural. The story plots involve problems similar to those of humans, so the child can identify with familiar and understandable situations. Good and evil, wisdom and folly are communicated through the behavior of these fanciful animals. Children, like adults, can laugh at themselves through the antics of comic characters. A baby elephant being punished for a misdeed is very funny, but the message is not lost.

Psychologists say that the way a child sees animals will often reveal clues to his own personality. Some psychologists will ask a child what animal he would most like to be, if he had the choice. Choosing to be a "wise owl," or a "ferocious lion," or "the big bad wolf" will indicate many things about the child's own feelings. These images of animals are learned mostly through children's books, movies and cartoons.

Animated cartoons are traditional children's fare on television, but not all cartoons are ideal viewing for children. Some are animal cartoons, some are comic strip superheroes; many contain a surprising amount of violence and less than desirable themes. But the most durable and best-loved cartoons become classics, and find their way to television screens via TV specials, often being brought back for repeat performances.

One upcoming TV special that's coming back for an encore is fast endearing France's favorite animal character to young American hearts. It's "Babar the Elephant," the highly acclaimed animated musical based on the French children's book classic. This delightful half-hour color film, which charmed millions of viewers in its first TV appearance last fall, will be sponsored by Viking Carpets on April 21st, over NBC-TV national network. The film was produced by Lee Mendelson and animator Bill Melendez, the same award-winning team that brought the Charlie Brown show to television. There are many catchy songs, and British actor Peter Ustinov narrates in his own beguiling manner.

The whimsical story tells how Babar, orphaned at birth by a wicked hunter, learns the ways of civilization in Paris, returns to the jungle to take a bride, becomes king of the elephants, and builds a thriving, happy elephant city. He is a wise, kind ruler, triumphing over enemy rhinoceroses with non-violent tactics. "Happiness" is the theme of the show, and it's also the feeling that's left with its young audiences.

Free Babar coloring books, based on the film, are available from Viking carpet dealers. For the name of the Viking dealer nearest you, you can call the special national phone number, 800-243-1890, at no charge.

Babar, animated in color on the TV screen and crayoned to vivid life in the coloring book, is one elephant your child will never forget.

Bob Price Writes

The following is a statement of my position regarding the Congressional pay raises and my efforts to prevent enactment of what I consider unwarranted increases for Supreme Court Justices, Cabinet Members, Congressmen, and other high ranking Federal Officials.

The authorization for the proposed increases were included in the Postal Revenue and Federal Pay Act of 1967 which included a three-stage salary increase for civilian Federal employees that was intended to close the so-called "comparability gap" between salaries of private employees and Government workers. Another provision of the Act was the establishment of a commission to recommend rates of pay for judges, Administration executives and Members of Congress.

In a roll call vote, I opposed the establishment of the commission but the proposal carried and was enacted into law.

The commission, known as the Kappel Commission, made its report to the President who in turn scaled the recommendations down considerably and submitted them to Congress on January 15, 1969. In accordance with provisions of the Act, the increases became effective after thirty (30) days unless disapproved by Congress.

I and several other Members introduced resolutions to DISAPPROVE THE INCREASES and to BRING THE ISSUE TO A VOTE ON THE HOUSE FLOOR. But the House Rules Committee by a vote of 12-3 refused to send the proposal to the Floor so the House membership had no opportunity to vote at all. The Senate did bring it to a vote but voted against disapproving the pay raises.

I also voted against the resolution to recess Congress from Friday, February 7, to Monday, February 17, during which time the pay increase would become effective. That resolution was offered by the House Democratic majority leader and was objected to by Rep. H. R. Gross, a Republican of Iowa who also opposed the pay raise.

Actually, 199 Members, including myself, voted against establishment of the Kappel Commission on October 11, 1967, when the bill was passed.

On February 4, 1969, I introduced the two resolutions to disapprove the pay increase and bring it to a vote on the House Floor. On February 5, 1969, I voted against the resolution to recess Congress for the period during which the increase would automatically become effective. A total of 125 Members opposed that resolution.

(Aries, March 21—April 20)

Energy and enthusiasm are the main traits of those born under the sign Aries, while red is their color, amethyst their birthstone, and tulips their flowers, according to FTD florists.

Like the rams who direct the flocks, Arietians are leaders and pioneers, and an Arietian will pack more into a lifetime than most others dream possible.

But Arietians must always take care, or their individuality will become egoism, and their independence will bloom into reckless impulsiveness.

As the first sign on the zodiac and the herald of spring, Aries truly begins the year with a tremendous rush of energy.

THURSDAY GUESTS

Visitors in the A. J. Malone and Nora Hash home Thursday evening were George Truitt, Bertha Garrison and Flora Sweatt, all of Plainview.
