Shelter, gas fuel August's inflation hike

By MATT YANCEY
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON — Higher costs for food, shelter and gasoline sent consumer prices up 0.4 percent in August, the government said today, as the effects of the drought in the Farm Belt began to ease.

The August increase, equivalent to an annual inflation rate of 5.2 percent, was the same as in July. Higher rents and gasoline prices in large part replaced food as the sharpest spurs to higher prices.

Food and beverage prices were up 0.5 percent last month, compared to 0.6 percent and 0.9 percent gains in June and July, respectively.

Shelter costs, reflecting higher rates for hotel and motel rooms, were up 0.6 percent, the steepest gain in seven months.

Energy prices jumped 0.9 percent on a 3.0 percent boost in gasoline prices, their sharpest gain in a year. The Labor Department said, however, that gasoline prices were still slightly below the level of August 1987 and were 26 percent below their peak of March 1981.

The higher gasoline prices offset decreases for all household fuels. Heating oil costs were down 0.8 percent; natural gas prices were off 1.2 percent; electricity costs slipped 0.2 percent.

The lower home energy prices somewhat offset 0.4 percent increases in rents and repair expenses and a 0.5 percent gain in mortgage costs.

Bentsen, accompanied by members of the Secret Service, addressed a Democratic gathering at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin before Tuesday departing for Lubbock.

Bentsen stresses enhanced recovery

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business/Oil Editor

U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, Democratic candidate for vice president, told a gathering at the University of Texas Permian Basin Tuesday that the Dukakis-Bentsen administration would place increased emphasis on enhanced oil recovery to help Texas out of many of its energy-related ailments.

"There is still 300 billion barrels of oil in the ground," said Bentsen. "If we could get a breakthrough in technology that would allow us to recover just an additional 10 percent of those barrels it would more than double current reserves. Think how many jobs that would create and how it would affect the tax base in Texas."

Chastising the Reagan administration for its lack of attention to enhanced oil recovery, Bentsen said he would propose a joint effort of academia and industry with federal funds to launch a concerted research in enhanced oil recovery research. He said he would like to see knowledge "pooled" in this area for the good of the nation.

If elected, Bentsen said he would be in a favorable position to help Texas, because he would be able to help guide the energy policy of Dukakis.

He said he would call a bi-partisan summit of producers, consumers, pipelines and others shortly after taking office to hammer out a national energy policy that would be fair to consumer and producer. A main objective, he said, would be increased energy independence.

"I would think that we could have a national energy policy within two to three months," said Bentsen, calling the Reagan energy policy a "dry hole."

PTL employee tells jurors he, Bakker had sex

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A former PTL official said he told a federal grand jury that he had sex with former PTL leader Jim Bakker, but Bakker has denied the allegation in court.

Bakker

Jay Babcock, the former director of creative television for the troubled ministry, commented Tuesday after being asked questions by the grand jury apparently designed to determine whether PTL money was paid for sexual favors.

Babcock was the first man to publicly acknowledge telling the grand jury of a sexual encounter with Bakker.

Calls by The Associated Press to Bakker's phone number in Fort Mill, S.C., went unanswered Tuesday night.

In August, Bakker denied under oath that he had ever had a homosexual relationship.

Told by a reporter Tuesday outside the federal courthouse that Bakker had denied ever having a homosexual relationship with anyone, Babcock replied: "I'm saying he's a liar."

Babcock told reporters Monday that he expected to be questioned by prosecutors about "whether I had sex with the boss."

Board makes band happy — at a profit

By JULIE HILLRICHS

Midland school board members, meeting in special session Tuesday, set out to prove that you can please all of the people all of the time — and make a profit.

By a unanimous vote, trustees satisfied Midland and Lee High School band parents and season ticket holders with a new temporary seating arrangement at Midland Memorial Stadium that is expected to net the district about $12,000 more each year.

Beginning Friday, the Rebel and Bulldog bands will move back to the student section on the stadium's southwest side, occupying seats next to their respective drill teams and pep squads. And $19,500 worth of portable bleachers planted firmly on the football field behind the south end zone will accommodate about 528 more fans each home game.

Blacks battle Shreveport police after shooting

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Hundreds of angry blacks looted or burned several stores and held off authorities with rocks and bottles early today after a black man was fatally shot, police said.

Two white females were arrested after the shooting at a park, described by police as an area with drug problems. One of them, Pamela Tamala Vergo, 17, was later booked on a charge of second-degree murder, according to police records. Police would not elaborate on the murder charge.

During the rock-throwing, a seven-block area was cordoned off and police warned motorists to stay away. Police Chief Charles Gruber said the crowd could have been as big as 1,000 people at the height of the disturbance, but most estimates put the figure between 300 and 500 during most of the evening.

This northwestern Louisiana of 250,000, the state's second largest after New Orleans, has been the scene of recent racial tension stemming from a shooting of a black teen last month. But police said drug problems may also have fueled the disturbance.

Reba White, 22, said she was at a convenience store when the shooting happened in the nearby park. The rock-throwing started when officers took the two women inside the store and a crowd gathered outside, she said.

"That's when the riot happened," she said. "They were throwing bottles and anything that was there." She said the shooting victim lived in the area and those throwing rocks were his friends.

The disturbance was not brought under control until about 3 a.m., said police Sgt. Rick Ware. At least four people were arrested on charges ranging from resisting arrest to inciting to riot.

The building housing the convenience store and a liquor store was burned to the ground. Looting or fires were also reported in another convenience store, a service station and a second liquor store.

No police or demonstrators were reported seriously injured, although some were treated at hospitals and released, authorities said. Several were hit by rocks and bottles.

Gruber said a brick came through the windshield of his car, which was also hit by automatic weapons fire, but he said he was not hurt.

A car owned by KTBS-TV was set ablaze, while a fire truck that arrived to fight the blazes was attacked by protesters, who beat it with bats and clubs after firefighters abandoned the vehicle, according to reporters at the scene.

About 200 police were called in, Gruber said, including reinforcements of state troopers, sheriff's deputies, and officers from nearby Bossier City. They pulled back during the melee and did not fire their weapons, Gruber said.

"We chose to let it cool off," he said. "We felt our presence would do nothing but accelerate it."

Air Force Association honors Hearst's column

Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — William Randolph Hearst Jr., editor-in-chief of Hearst Newspapers, on Tuesday received the Air Force Association's highest award in the field of the arts and letters.

The Gill Robb Wilson Award, named in honor of a pioneer in American military aviation, was presented to Hearst at a luncheon honoring Air Force Secretary Edward C. "Pete" Aldridge Jr.

Hearst

In presenting the award, AFA National President Sam E. Keith Jr., said: "Mr. Hearst has provided significant, enduring and keen insight into the complex national security and foreign policy dialogue. His nationwide editorial columns contribute significantly to greater public understanding of defense issues."

Hearst, a newspaper correspondent with the 9th Air Force during World War II, has been a consistent advocate of strengthening America's defenses.

In receiving the plaque, he said: "I consider this award a great honor. I am particularly gratified because my father was a strong supporter of the establishment and development of a separate Air Force for our country."

He recalled that his father, the late William Randolph Hearst, wrote of the importance of military air power for the United States in editorials dating to 1925. Even then, Hearst said, his father was urging the establishment of a unifed Air Force that would be separate from other military branches.

Three charged with felony mischief

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

Three 18-year-old Midland men were charged Tuesday with the BB rifle shootings that destroyed 200 vehicle windows and caused more than $40,000 damage.

Spencer David Wilson and Harold Keith Turicchi, both of 2005 College Ave., and James Hunter Isbell, 4415 Northcrest Drive, were charged with felony criminal mischief, police Cpl. Jim White said.

They were released after they appeared before Midland County Justice of the Peace Robert Pine and posted $15,000 bond each, White said.

The men had agreed to turn themselves in to police after investigators discovered their alleged involvement in the shootings, police Det. Mike McClain said.

According to police, the men allegedly went on the 2½-hour shooting spree armed with three BB rifles on September 11. The next day police received 170 complaints of damage to vehicles.

Police were led to the trio after receiving a tip that a dark Chevrolet Camaro was seen near the scene of one of the shootings, and after talking to other witnesses who provided "bits and pieces" of information, McClain said.

One of the men drives a black 1986 Camaro, and the three men reportedly were in the car the night of the shootings, according to police.

Midland County District Attorney Al Schorre said all victims of the crime will receive complete restitution unless the three teens are sentenced to the state penitentiary.

The case will be handled "like any other case," the prosecutor said.

Because of the extent of damage, the criminal mischief is classified as a second-degree felony, according to police.

Robbery of Big Spring thrift investigated

From Staff Reports

BIG SPRING — An unarmed man clutching a note robbed a savings and loan here Tuesday and made off with an unspecified amount of cash, a police lieutenant said today.

FBI agents in Abilene are investigating the mid-afternoon robbery of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association, said Big Spring Police Lt. Juan Palacios.

No injuries were reported Tuesday, Palacios said. The man entered the thrift and gave the teller a note that said "to give him the money," the lieutenant said.

The teller agreed and the robber fled the institution on foot eastbound toward the post office, Palacios said.

The suspect is described as a white male in his mid-20s. The slenderly built man has thick, curly dark hair and "very pronounced acne pock marks" on his face, Palacios said.

The robber was alone during the heist, the lieutenant said.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Mostly cloudy skies expected

From Staff and Wire Reports

Midlanders can expect mostly cloudy skies this evening, with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms, according to the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport. The low will be in the upper 60s, and winds will be southerly at 5-15 mph.

Thursday will be partly cloudy with a less than 20 percent chance of isolated thunderstorms in the afternoon. The high will be near 90, and winds will be southerly 10-15 mph.

Tuesday's high of 87 was 20 degrees cooler than the record high of 107 set for that date in 1953. The overnight low 69 was 29 degrees warmer than the record low of 40 set for this date in 1983.

STATE

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were expected to spread slowly eastward over West Texas through tonight.

Forecasters warned that heavy rainfall is possible in the mountains of Southwest Texas through tonight. Some widely scattered thunderstorms are possible tonight across Northeast Texas.

The showers were reported in the Trans-Pecos region and western portions of the High Plains early today.

Lows tonight will be in the 60s in West Texas, the 70s across North Texas and in the 70s over most of South Texas, ranging from the 60s in the Hill Country to the 80s along the immediate coast.

Highs Thursday will be in the 80s over most of West Texas except in the 90s in the Concho Valley and near 100 in the Big Bend, in the 90s in North Texas and in the 90s over most of South Texas except along the immediate coast where readings will be in the 80s.

It was mostly cloudy over the Panhandle, trans-Pecos and western sections of the High Plains early today and there were some low clouds over the Lower Rio Grande Valley, coastal bend, Rio Grande plains and South Central Texas. It was mostly fair over the rest of Texas.

Early morning temperatures were in the 60s in the High Plains and Trans-Pecos and in the 70s over the rest of the state. Extremes ranged from 61 at Guadalupe Pass to 81 at Corpus Christi.

Other early morning temperatures around the state included 63 at Amarillo, 73 at Wichita Falls, 76 at Fort Worth, 75 at Waco, Austin and San Antonio, 71 at Houston, 74 at Corpus Christi, 73 at Brownsville, 70 at San Angelo, 68 at Lubbock, 69 at Midland and 64 at El Paso.

NATION

The last full day of summer saw the beginnings of blustery fall weather with thunderstorms and showers sweeping through New England and another storm system rumbling through the Southwest.

Today is the last day of summer; autumn officially begins Thursday with the autumnal equinox. The equinox occurs when daylight hours nearly equal the hours of darkness. The moment the sun appears to cross the Equator on its annual journey south occurs at 3:29 p.m. EDT.

Showers and a few thunderstorms this morning moved over New England just ahead of a cold front extending from Vermont into the southeastern part of the nation. Thunderstorms also rumbled through New York City as well as Boston.

A developing storm system over southern Nevada scattered showers and thunderstorms over the southern Plateau and the southern Plains. Thunderstorms delivered heavy rain to Carlsbad, N.M., late Tuesday and early this morning.

As much as 3 inches of rain was reported near Muleshoe, Texas. Over 2 inches fell across Curry and Roosevelt counties in east-central New Mexico. Street flooding was reported in Clovis and Portales, N.M., as well as Elida and Artesia. Other showers and thunderstorms were isolated over eastern Arizona and southern Nevada.

Hurricane Helene gaining strength

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane Helene formed early today in the central Atlantic and forecasters say the ocean's fourth hurricane this year has already begun to strengthen as it churns across open water.

Helene, packing sustained winds of 85 mph, is the first hurricane to form since Gilbert went on a rampage last week through the Caribbean, Mexico and the Texas Gulf Coast.

At noon EDT, the center of Helene was located near latitude 12.0 north, longitude 40.2 west, or about 1,300 miles east of Barbados, according to an advisory from the National Hurricane Center.

The storm, with winds clocked at 75 mph when it became a hurricane early today, was moving west at 12 mph and was expected to maintain that course for the next day or two, the advisory said.

"Conditions are quite favorable for it to pick up strength, there's nothing to stop it way out there in the middle of the ocean," said Stanley Wright, a meteorologist at the hurricane center. "But it's still way too early to tell if it will get as big as Gilbert."

Meteorologist Randy Lascody said the path of Helene, the eighth named storm of the Atlantic hurricane season, cannot be projected until it moves closer to the Caribbean.

"It's going across the warmest water of the year now, which is perfect to fuel its growth," Lascody said. "But it really would be very premature to give a guess on what may happen. It still has a long way to go."

Storms that form this month near the Cape Verde Islands off Africa's coast are often the season's strongest because of ideal hurricane-spawning conditions, forecasters say.

Factors such as low-pressure zones in the Caribbean and high-level winds will affect the path of the storm, said Lascody.

"It looks like it will reach its make-or-break point sometime later this week," he said.

The depression that became Helene had initially seemed disorganized when it formed two days ago, but satellite photos showed circulation had improved.

It will take about four days for Helene to get close enough to the Caribbean to allow an Air Force reconnaissance plane to fly over the storm. Until then, hurricane forecasters will have to rely on satellite reports, said forecaster Miles Lawrence.

Tropical storms are upgraded to hurricanes when sustained winds reach 74 mph. In addition to Gilbert, which had top winds of 175 mph, two other much smaller hurricanes have formed this season. Debbie brushed the Mexican coast and Florence moved over Louisiana.

The Atlantic hurricane season runs from June through November, with September traditionally the most active month for hurricane formation.

Bolivian cabinet resigns as election date nears

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — President Victor Paz Estenssoro reorganized his Cabinet Tuesday evening to allow ministers who will run in the May 1989 presidential and congressional elections to campaign for office.

All 17 ministers resigned earlier Tuesday. Paz Estenssoro subsequently renamed 13 to their former posts.

Foreign Minister Guillermo Bedregal said in a letter presented to Paz Estenssoro that "the beginning of intense political activity motivated 17 ministers to resign."

The most important change in the new Cabinet is the planning minister. Paz Estenssoro replaced Gonzalo Sanchez de Lozada, an architect of the government's economic stabilization program, with Fernando Romero, a prominent businessman who was running the Social Emergency Fund.

The fund is financed by Western governments and the United Nations. It has created jobs for tens of thousands of workers.

Sanchez de Lozada was nominated for the presidency this month by the governing Revolutionary Nationalist Movement Party. He indicated he could not campaign while holding a minister's portfolio.

Paz Estenssoro also replaced the ministers of health, industry and commerce. The Cabinet is named by the president and does not have to be ratified by Congress.

Paz Estenssoro said Tuesday evening that he would continue his economic program.

The government program has lowered inflation from 24,000 percent four years ago to 20 percent estimated for 1988 in this nation of 6.4 million people.

The program included liberalizing the economy, ending all price supports, a 95-percent currency devaluation and a tenfold rise in gasoline prices.

The U.S.-educated Sanchez de Lozada will campaign against former military strongman General Hugo Banzer Suarez, whose party won the largest share of voters in last year's municipal elections, and Jaime Paz Zamora, head of the Revolutionary Leftist Movement party.

INFLATE

"Increases in the food, shelter and energy components accounted for over four-fifths of the August advance in consumer prices," said the Labor Department.

Excluding those three areas, which account for two-thirds of the goods and services consumers spend money on, prices rose just 0.2 percent last month, compared to a 0.3 percent jump in July.

Grocery store prices continued to climb, but at a slower pace than in July. Those prices were up 0.8 percent last month, compared to a 1.4 percent jump in July. That had been their largest gain in 4½ years.

"About 90 percent of the August advance was due to price increases for items that were adversely affected by the drought — fruits and vegetables, cereal and bakery products, poultry and eggs," the department said.

Fruit and vegetable prices rose 1.3 percent after being up 2.9 percent in the preceding month. They have jumped a total of 10.6 percent over the last year.

Cereal and bakery product prices were up 1.6 percent, reflecting higher prices for wheat, oats and eggs. The August increase was the largest since January 1981.

The government's calculation of prices for meats, poultry, fish and eggs rose 0.5 percent as gains of 8.4 percent for eggs and 2.1 percent for poultry were partially offset by declines in the costs of beef, pork and seafood.

Restaurant meal prices gained 0.3 percent while alcoholic beverage prices jumped 0.1 percent.

The steepest price drop overall was in apparel, down 1.6 percent in August and 2.6 percent from June through August after rising 3.8 percent in the year's first five months.

The government said unusually large end-of-season discounts for women's clothing were responsible for most of the decline.

Laundry and dry cleaning costs, meanwhile, jumped 0.8 percent, their largest gain since February 1985.

New car prices rose 0.2 percent while used car costs and automobile financing expenses were up 1.5 percent each. Automobile insurance costs were up 0.8 percent and have climbed at an annual rate of 8.9 percent so far this year.

The August increases left the Consumer Price Index at 119.0, compared with 118.5 in July and 114.4 in August 1987. That means a hypothetical selection of goods costing $100 in 1982-84 would have cost $119 last month.

For the first eight months of 1988, retail prices were up at an annual rate of 4.6 percent, compared to a 4.4 percent gain for all of 1987.

Flights established

On March 27, 1939, the "Yankee Clipper," with 21 aboard, landed in the Azores on the fist lap of an inspection flight for regular trans-Atlantic service.

In the 1930s, Hearst Sr. predicted that air power would prove the key to winning the next war.

"How right he was became evident when we and our allies gained control of the air in Europe during World War II, and our planes played a leading role in our first major victories over the Japanese Navy in the Pacific," Hearst said.

The award was presented to Hearst as part of the AFA's 42nd national convention. The AFA is a nonprofit veterans organization with 230,000 members and chapters in all 50 states. Although it is prohibited from lobbying, the AFA publishes a newsletter for its membership that promotes a strong national defense posture.

Previous recipients of the award include Ted Koppel of ABC News; the McNeil/Lehrer Report; Marvin Stone, former editor of U.S. News and World Report; Columnists Rowland Evans and Robert Novak; former Astronaut Michael Collins and the late CBS radio-television correspondent Edward R. Murrow and cartoonist Milton Caniff.

BENTSEN

Asked what safeguards Michael Dukakis would take to protect the offshore environment, Bentsen said the Massachussets governor favored drilling offshore in "environmentally safe" areas only.

On the question of opening the Alaska National Wildlife Refuge for oil exploration, which has been billed as a possible second Prudhoe Bay, Bentsen was not so sure.

"I don't know what Dukakis thinks on this." He said Dukakis might open the area if it could be done with adequate environmental safeguards, but added that the area was "environmentally sensivtive."

One major thrust of the Dukakis administration would be the increased use of natural gas to alleviate environmental problems, especially in the Northeast where acid raid is a major concern, said Bentsen.

Asked if he would temporarily support an oil import fee that would give Texas some stability until it could get back on its feet, Bentsen said he had favored an import fee in the past but neither Dukakis nor Bush favored one.

"I haven't been successful in convincing either one of them that we need an oil import fee," said Bentsen, who added that a floor price on oil prices might be one way to stabilize prices.

Bentsen noted that he had supported a bill that would have required the president to take action to curb crude oil imports when they reached a "peril point" of 50 percent. He said he had been thinking of an import fee as a possible remedy when he offered the bill.

The Texas senator said he had supported the sending of U.S. warships to the Persian Gulf to keep oil flowing, but he did not support the putting of the U.S. flag on Kuwaiti ships.

BAND

"This plan, again, is a temporary solution to the problem," James Fuller, presiding officer of the MISD Board of Trustees, said prior to the unanimous vote Tuesday before about 300 high school students and parents who packed Sam Houston Elementary School pressing for action.

The vote reverses a previous decision by the district to move the bands to the portable bleachers, which were installed behind the end zone at the beginning of the school year.

The seven-member board, with the blessing of both school's athletic and band booster clubs, bought the portable stands last spring to free-up about 1,000 stadium seats for home fans and visitors.

In doing so, MISD Athletic Director Gil Bartosh said the school district will make as much as $12,000 each season. The bleachers will be paid for in two years.

"After that, we'll be making money," he observed.

But no one, especially Lee High School Principal Jack Fryar, anticipated the rub that would follow the decision to move the bands to the portable bleachers south of the end zone.

"We didn't like sitting in the end zone because we felt so isolated from the student body," Dani Dunn, a Lee High School band member, told the school board.

Midland High School student Ivan Garcia agreed: "It's very demoralizing to put the band in the end zone away from our fellow peers. We should be in the stands watching the football game with the rest of the student body."

By shifting the band away from the student section, Fryar had hoped for better supervision of the students.

However, the principal later received a series of phone calls from disgruntled parents of marching band students, who complained that the seating arrangement isolated their children and lessened their role at the football games.

"I realized that there were some disadvantages to it the first night," Fryar admitted.

MISD is in a delicate position with a football stadium that meets the needs of one high school and not the other, Fryar said, referring to the district's need for a larger, better equipped facility.

With a record of two wins and one loss, the Rebels — normally a powerhouse on the Texas gridiron — often plays before sell-out crowds in the 10,500-seat stadium. Historically, fewer fans are apt to turn out for Midland High Bulldog games, although the team is 3-0 this year.

However, as the local economy tries to rebound from a three-year slump brought on by falling oil prices, the principal acknowledged that now is not the time to ask Midland voters for a new stadium.

"We're in a give and take situation," he said.

PTL

On Tuesday, after testifying much of the afternoon, Babcock was asked by a reporter, "What did you say regarding sex with Jim Bakker?"

His response: "I commented that 'yes, it happened — a long time ago.'"

Babcock said prosecutors also wanted to know about the circumstances surrounding that encounter. "I'm not willing to talk about those," he told reporters.

Babcock also told reporters that prosecutors asked him whether Bakker and his personal aide, David Taggart, had a sexual relationship.

"I have no first-hand knowledge of that," Babcock said.

PTL records show that Taggart drew more than $620,000 from PTL in a 15-month period that ended in March 1987 — the same month Bakker resigned as PTL's president after acknowledging that he had a 1980 sexual encounter with Jessica Hahn and that money had been paid to silence her.

Bakker and his top aides are under investigation for possible mail, wire and tax fraud.

The grand jury probe, now in its second year, is focusing and whether Bakker and other ministry leaders violated federal laws by raising money through the mails or on television for one purpose and then spending it for another.

Bakker was dismissed by the Assemblies of God denomination in May 1987 for unbecoming conduct related to his sexual encounter with Ms. Hahn and because of "alleged misconduct involving bisexual activity."

In May 1987, the Rev. Jerry Falwell told reporters that Gary Smith, PTL's former general manager, was the target of one of Bakker's alleged homosexual advances.

More and more children among homeless, advocacy group says

By ROBERT DVORCHAK

NEW YORK (AP) — For five homeless years on New York City's mean streets, Chris Martin said he turned dozens of $5 tricks a day with other men to feed his crack habit, slept in a salt-filled warehouse and washed in a fire hydrant.

"I was selling my body for drugs. I was in a dead end zone," Martin said Monday.

"It was a scary life. You're on your own. Nobody's there to guide you. You don't care where you sleep," he said. "I couldn't trust nobody. I couldn't trust myself."

Martin, who left home at age 15, is one of an estimated 10,000 homeless youths in New York City, according to Covenant House, an advocacy group founded 20 years to shelter and feed teen-agers who ran away or were abandoned by their parents.

Children under 18 are the fastest growing segment of the homeless population, according to an estimate released Monday by the National Academy of Sciences.

"It's the era of the disposable child," said John Keels of Covenant House.

"For them, it's a day-to-day struggle for survival, if you can call it that," said Elizabeth Burnwell of Covenant House. "They sell their bodies to survive. They panhandle. They deaden themselves with drugs or alcohol."

Each night, Covenant House, founded by the Rev. Bruce Ritter, dispenses two vans to round up homeless children and offer them beds, meals and clean clothes at a shelter.

The van found Martin at a rat-infested, garbage-strewn warehouse where the city stockpiles salt for streets in winter. Homeless youths have built a shantytown of mattresses and crates, or they sleep in junked garbage trucks.

"They're brave kids," Ritter said. "They're desperate to get back off the streets. Most of them won't make it."

One who made it into the shelter was Kenny Uledi of Brooklyn, who lived for six months on the streets with his 16-year-old brother after they were abandoned. His parents were drug addicts who were evicted from their home and left without a word or trace, Uledi said.

"We robbed car radioes. We robbed cold cuts from supermarkets. We slept on roofs. Anything to get by," said the 5-foot-8, 130-pound Uledi, the pain evident in his blue eyes.

"You wonder where your next meal is coming from. It's hard out there in the streets. I want to forget it all," he said.

Street kids are not included in the city's count of the homeless. As of Sept. 1, the city had 5,135 homeless families in system, including 10,799 children, according to the city's Human Resources Administration. They stay in a system of 39 hotels and 35 shelters.

In some hotels, prostitutes turn tricks on stairwells. Crack is sold openly. Beatings occur every day. And a family of four may be crowded in a 9-by-12-foot room.

"There's nothing a kid doesn't see in here," said Jackie Macklin, 31, who lived for four years in one of the city's welfare hotels.

She sent her 11-year-old twin daughters to live in Philadelphia with their grandmother in 1987 after they saw a security guard shot dead in the Holland Hotel.

"These children live under the most extreme conditions of adversity of any child population in the developed world. They're the closest thing we have to refugees in the Third World," said Dr. Irwin Redlener of New York Hospital.

"It's total depravation. They have been disconnected from a useful support system a civilized society tries to provide. We're going to pay a price for this," Redlener said.

Redlener treats 200 homeless children a week from two medical vans that are pediatric clinics on wheels. Half the patients lack immunization and many suffer from ear infections and asthma, Redlener said.

"It's a way of dying on the installment plan," said Gretchen Buchenholz of the Association to Benefit Children, an advocacy group that runs a shelter for children.

"Their life is so harsh. They lose their childhood, the magic that belongs to being a child. It's very sad to see a child lose that resilience. We're doing irreparable harm," she said.

"We're killing a generation of very poor kids," said Robert Hayes, founder of New York's Coalition for the Homeless. "It's an abandonment of the most fragile people to the most devastating of environments."

King of hobos abdicating to younger man

LUDLOW, Ky. (AP) — Even a hobo can get too old for his profession.

Harry Messer, "the king" of the Ludlow Hobos, is abdicating. He's going to kick back and take life even easier.

Messer, 71, has been king, or top hobo, of the Ludlow Hobo Club for 23 years.

"They appointed me king for as long as I could prove myself worthy," he says. Soon, another hobo will get that chance.

In the main, the Ludlow hobos are knights of the road in spirit only. They come from all walks of life, many of them holding blue-collar jobs. Their common thread is the fellowship found at Hobo Springs.

Since the mid-1960s, when Messer and the late Duke Botkin founded the hobo club, the leisure-hour hobos have been coming to the springs to have a few brews, maybe some homemade soup or barbecue and carefree talk.

The club, nestled in this Ohio River town in Kenton County, has about 150 members, some being non-active membership card holders.

In a ravine, and within earshot of passing trains, the springs attracted hobos and drifters in decades past and provided water for Ludlow during the 1937 flood.

It's the steep climb out of the ravine, whether by concrete stairway or up the banks, that pushed Messer into retirement. A former bartender and cook who traveled as a hobo, Messer said his health is in decline, and his doctor has recommended he avoid climbing.

One of the "king's" duties is to be judge of a kangaroo court. The charges against members were anything Messer could think of.

"They were always guilty, but the top fine was 50 cents," he says.

The Ludlow hobos lease their clubhouse, where Messer lives, and picnic grove from the Norfolk & Southern Railroad.

Panel studies cuts to balance budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Out of the glare of the presidential campaign, a bipartisan commission is quietly crafting a proposed solution to the federal budget deficit that would include cuts in Social Security and defense spending as well as possible increases in consumption taxes.

That is the word from Democrat Robert Strauss, who is co-chairman of the 12-member commission along with Republican Drew Lewis.

Strauss provided a tantalizing glimpse Tuesday of what options the panel is considering recommending to the new president. The panel, concerned about becoming embroiled in the presidential campaign, has purposely kept out of the public eye since July.

Strauss indicated that work has been going on behind the scenes and he said the commission will resume holding public hearings immediately after the Nov. 8 election. The commission would like to finish its work by Dec. 21.

The commission, which is split evenly between Democrats and Republicans, was created by Congress last year in an attempt to break the impasse between President Reagan's refusal to increase taxes and the refusal of the Democratic-controlled Congress to cut government spending enough to bring the deficit under control.

Strauss said the group probably will recommend a four- or five-year plan to eliminate the deficit, which this year is expected to total about $152 billion.

Social Security benefits, Medicare and other entitlement programs and defense spending will have to be cut, Strauss said, since they account for 68 percent of total spending.

Strauss said the commission was aware of the political firestorm likely to be triggered by such suggestions.

"That means you are withholding money from the sick, the elderly and the defense of the nation," he said.

Strauss said top priority will be given to spending cuts and only after they are exhausted would the commission look at possible tax increases as a way of balancing the budget.

His comments marked the most detailed discussion yet of where the commission is headed. The panel has been criticized for not holding public meetings in the past several months, opting instead to hold informal discussions with less than a quorum present in order to avoid requirements of the Government in the Sunshine Law.

But Strauss defended this approach, saying the commission's chances of success would be doomed if the presidential candidates were forced to take a stand now on every proposal the panel was considering.

Democrat Michael Dukakis has indicated a willingness to listen to the group's recommendations, but Republican George Bush has vowed to ignore any calls for a tax increase.

On the revenue side, Strauss said the commission was examining boosting so-called sin taxes such as federal levies on cigarettes and alcohol. Strauss said that other types of consumption taxes also would be considered.

Dukakis challenges Bush on health care

Associated Press

NATION

Michael Dukakis challenged Republican rival George Bush to spell out his health insurance program for American workers while negotiators for the two candidates wrangled over panel members and podium heights for the upcoming presidential debate.

The Democratic nominee, who offered his own health care plan Tuesday, called on Bush to step out "from behind the flag" and address the issue of providing health care to the 37 million Americans who are unable to afford it.

The vice president spent the day touring a flag manufacturing company in Bloomfield, N.J., where he told employees, "My friends, flag sales are doing well and America is doing well."

Bush's own political fortunes received a boost from the latest ABC News-Washington Post poll. The survey of 1,271 likely voters found that 70 percent consider the GOP nominee to be a known quantity compared with 54 percent who said they didn't know enough about Dukakis.

The poll, conducted Wednesday through Monday, also found the two candidates in a near dead heat with Bush leading Dukakis 50 percent to 46 percent. The margin of error of three points either way virtually negated the lead.

A similar ABC-Post poll released last week found Dukakis holding a slim three-point lead.

Bush was taking a day off from campaigning today to prepare for Sunday's debate with Dukakis in Winston-Salem, N.C. — the first face-to-face encounter between the two contenders.

A mock debate with former Deputy Treasury Secretary Richard G. Darman standing in for Dukakis and Bush working on responses to issues questions, with advisers giving their assessment, were on the vice president's agenda, according to aides.

Dukakis was introducing another health care plan — government-guaranteed pre-natal and infant care for all, tending to statehouse duties in Boston and preparing for the debate.

Bush's running mate, Dan Quayle, was flying to Arizona to visit an award-winning elementary school before travelling to the California cities of Fresno, Bakersfield and Los Angeles.

Democratic vice presidential candidate Lloyd Bentsen was planning to reiterate Dukakis' health proposal in Hale Center, Texas, and Sacramento and Fresno.

Negotiations on debate logistics hit a snag Tuesday as the two presidential campaigns failed to agree on the height of the lecterns and the composition of the panel.

Paul Brountas, chairman of the Dukakis campaign, said Tuesday that the bipartisan commission handling the debate had agreed on podiums 42 inches high. But Bush campaign officials, according to Brountas, asked that the podium height be raised to 46 inches.

Brountas said that if the height is raised, the 5-foot-8 Dukakis would insist on a riser.

A Bush campaign source, who requested anonymity, said the 6-foot-1 vice president usually speaks at a 52-inch podium but had agreed to 46 inches. Bush does not want to crouch over a 42-inch podium.

The two sides also failed to agree on the makeup of the panel, with Dukakis suggesting television anchors to question the candidates and the Bush campaign proposing print journalists.

While the debate over the debate continued, Dukakis used campaign appearances in Bowling Green, Ky., and Houston to propose a broad health care plan beginning with the 22 million Americans who have no insurance. That would leave 15 million or more Americans still awaiting protection, campaign aides said.

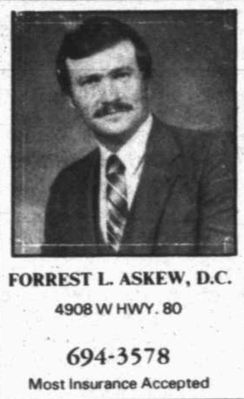

"The simplest and fairest and the most affordable first step toward that goal is to require all employers, with some exceptions for small businesses, to provide basic health insurance for their workers and dependents," Dukakis said.

The plan, similar to one Dukakis signed into law in Massachusetts less than six months ago, would not cost the federal government anything, he said. Dukakis did not provide figures on the cost to employers.

In announcing the program, Dukakis also issued his challenge to Bush, saying, "Don't you think it's about time you came out from behind that flag and told us what you intend to do to provide basic health care for 37 million of our fellow citizens?"

Bush campaign spokesman Mark Goodin branded the Dukakis proposal "socialized medicine" and said, "such is a prescription for financial disaster. The Dukakis plan would put the American economy in the hospital and would list it in critical condition."

Questioned about the lack of health insurance for millions of Americans, Quayle suggested experimenting with letting small businesses "buy into the Medicaid program" to cover their workers.

GOP stalls action on minimum wage bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans are stalling action on a Democratic plan to raise the $3.35 minimum wage in high-stakes parliamentary manuevering being played out against a backdrop of presidential politics.

The Republicans want a chance to add a lower pay rate for unskilled workers and action on President Reagan's nominees to the federal bench before Democrats can move on the first hike in the minimum wage in eight years.

"Unless we see progress with the judges and keep our ability to amend, we're going to be on the minimum wage a long time," Senate GOP Whip Alan Simpson of Wyoming said Tuesday.

Simpson made the comment following separate party strategy luncheons after Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia filed a second cloture motion in as many days to limit further debate on the bill by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

According to the Senate Judiciary Committee, 25 nominations by Reagan for federal judgeships are now pending before the panel and four other nominations are on the calendar for Senate floor action.

Kennedy's bill would raise the minimum wage by 40 cents an hour each of the next three years — to $3.75 in January, to $4.15 in 1990 and to $4.55 in 1991.

Vice President George Bush's presidential campaign said Tuesday that Bush likely would not unveil any specific minimum wage proposal until after his debate this Sunday with Democratic nominee Michael Dukakis.

"We're exploring a modest increase so long as it's tied to a subminimum or training wage," said David Sandor, a Bush campaign spokesman. "But there's nothing scheduled for this week."

Bush's vice presidential running mate, Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., offered an amendment in the Senate Labor Committee in July for raising the minimum wage over two years to $4 an hour and coupling it with an 80 percent subminimum for new hires.

The minimum wage has been stuck at $3.35 since 1981, with the Reagan administration contending for the past three years that any increase would have to be coupled with a subminimum standard.

The White House reiterated that position Tuesday, saying its senior advisers would recommend that Reagan veto any minimum wage increase that does not include a "training wage at a rate approximately four-fifths of the minimum wage for a specified period of time."

Wright: CIA hurt peace progress in Nicaragua

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration has used the CIA to foment civil unrest in Nicaragua and in the process has damaged efforts at a long-term peace accord between the leftist government and the Contra rebels, House Speaker Jim Wright says.

In a highly unusual disclosure, Wright told reporters Tuesday that the CIA has employed agents covertly in Nicaragua to organize and promote anti-government rallies and protests.

Wright, speaking at his regular daily news conference, said Congress has received "clear testimony" that the CIA has sought "to provoke an overreaction" by the Managua government.

Elaborating later in an interview, the speaker added: "Agents of our government have assisted in organizing the kinds of anti-government demonstrations that have been calculated to stimulate and provoke arrests."

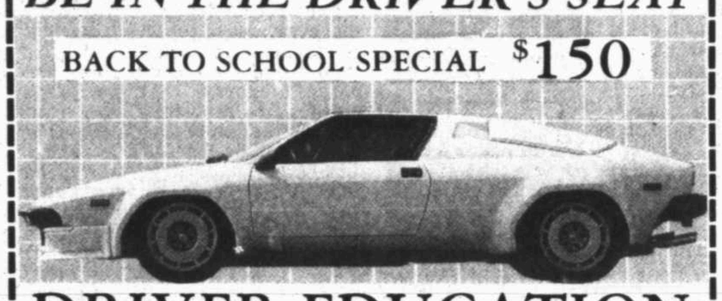

Wright said the CIA had made the admission under questioning from members of Congress. Presumably, the disclosure would have come in closed-door oversight sessions of the congressional intelligence committees, most of whose work is classified.

A CIA spokeswoman, Sharon Basso, said, "There isn't anything the agency would say publicly about that to confirm or deny it. We do brief Congress, but wouldn't discuss that publicly."

Wright said he opposed the CIA activity as detrimental to regional peace efforts because it has led to government crackdowns on the opposition and complicated already hostile relations.

"I do not believe it is the proper role of our government to try to provoke riots...or deliberately to try to antagonize governing officials into foolish overreactions," he said.

July 30, 1988, was one of the most important days in the history of our bank. That's the day we opened the doors as NCNB Texas and became part of the Lone Star State.

You see, Texas represents a huge and promising opportunity for us at NCNB Texas. This state is rich with potential. And we are extremely proud to be here — to be a part of this great state and her proud people.

But we also recognize with this opportunity comes a large responsibility. The responsibility of providing Texas with a sound, solid, secure bank — of offering you strength, stability and a means of success.

We also recognize that we must work hard to earn your confidence and win your respect. And we know that this job can't be accomplished without the help of the highest qualified employees. That's why when you walk in the lobby of your NCNB Texas bank you'll still be greeted by familiar faces. You'll still be served by long-time friends. Because the 15,000 employees — the people who built the largest bank in Texas — those people who now proudly wear the colors of NCNB Texas are important members of our team.

Let me tell you briefly about NCNB, since we're new to these parts. We're one of the top 10 banks in America. We manage over $50 billion in assets. In Texas alone, we serve some two million of you from more than 121 branches. Now what these statistics are supposed to say is that we have the size and strength to serve you. But you should also know we have the spirit to serve you as well. Just like Texas, we approach every day with a "can-do" attitude — a desire to make things happen.

There's a lot for us to learn about this new neighborhood we call home. It's a big land, with big dreams, big goals and big needs. And the best way for us to learn how to serve Texas is for us to learn how we can help you. We've already found out that's what neighbors are all about in Texas. People helping people. And that's the way we like to do business at NCNB Texas. Simple. Direct. Neighbor to neighbor.

Again let us say it's great to be here. We look forward to serving you. So don't be a stranger. Come on by. We're ready to go to work.

Solving flooding better than aid

When the devastating floods that are ravaging Bangladesh recede, the real trouble will start among the 28 million left homeless. Epidemics of cholera and diarrhea are expected to kill multitudes, and $150 million in relief funds are now enroute to deal with the disaster.

Flooding is a way of life in Bangladesh, a nation of 110 million squeezed into a delta the size of Wisconsin between India and Burma. But this is said to be the worst flood in the nation's history, out of the normal monsoon season in the Bay of Bengal. It apparently has been abetted, if not caused outright, by deforestation of Asian uplands.

The government of Bangladesh has now made an urgent appeal to its neighbors — India, Nepal, Bhutan and China — to cease removing trees that offer downstream protection against Bangladesh being wiped out completely. Flood control projects are needed, and Bangladesh, one of the poorest nations in the world, could not pay for them even if they were to be built on that country's own soil.

A summit meeting of affected nations is scheduled for December, and the Bangladesh government wants the meeting devoted to formulating a regional plan for the river systems that pass through these countries.

The United States, Japan, and the other donor nations now rushing to pour millions of dollars into emergency help for the people of Bangladesh must also concentrate their diplomatic efforts on persuading the nation's neighbors to cooperate if the problem is to be solved in the long term.

This situation cannot continue. Donor nations would be money ahead if they help finance flood control efforts in the region.

Soul-searching needed

I noted in today's (Sunday, Sept. 18) newspaper a comment by a city hall figure that perhaps there had not been enough of a "selling job" done on the proposed bond projects. I try to keep myself informed on local events and opinions, and I do not recall any organized opposition appearing regarding these proposals. To the contrary, I saw numerous comments urging the acceptance of the proposals by community leaders and by the Reporter-Telegram editorial staff. I find it difficult to know what more could have been done short of arranging for husky PR types to accompany voters to the polls and watching while they dutifully pushed down "yes" levers.

I am sure that there will be interpretations of what this election "means" for the next week or two, and undoubtedly there will be admonition of we benighted voters by the truly wise of the community. I can only offer ideas as to what the results do not mean. They cannot be construed as an endorsement of city hall planning. They cannot be construed as a vote of confidence in the efficacy of city hall administration. They cannot be construed as a sign of voter delight with tax increases adopted by the local governing boards. I do not believe the results have any relation to the current price of beans in Manchuria, or to Mr. Gorbachev's current choice of breath mints.

I do think that it may be suggested that there is a different point of view than that held by city hall, and perhaps there could be some positive steps made if there were some genuine soul-searching in that area.

Seating plan offered

As both a parent of a Lee band member and a season ticket holder in the newly-opened section, I agree that the end zone seating is not a good situation for our band. I propose that the junior high section be closed and the seats sold to season ticket holders.

I have sat near the junior high section the last two years and the language and conduct of a large number of students in this section is a disgrace to Midland. They do not watch the game. They throw food at each other and at the bands from other schools. Obscenities are shouted in loud voices.

Let's put these disruptive kids in the end zone and the band back in the stadium.

Is Bentsen responsible?

Is U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen a responsible individual? In November his name will be on the Texas ballot for two different places, one in the Senate and one as Vice President. If he should win both places what would he do?

1. Would he accept the Senate seat and turn down the Vice Presidency? This would allow Dukakis to then pick his own real choice for Vice President and tend to verify the fact that Bentsen was selected merely as a vote-getting campaign maneuver.

2. Would he accept the Vice Presidency and turn down the Senate seat? This would require a statewide special election to fill that vacancy. A statewide special election to fill just one place is extremely expensive, especially in Texas. Would Sen. Bentsen be a responsible individual and voluntarily pay for this great expense since it would be all his fault? Or would the Democratic Party of Texas pay for it? They let him do it. Or would all the people of Texas in these hard times be expected to pay for it whether they voted for him or not or whether they even voted for anybody?

3. Or would Sen. Bentsen try to fill both places? The Constitution says he cannot do this. But, has he read the Constitution? If he has, why did he try to fill both places? Is he a responsible individual?

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 21, the 265th day of 1988. There are 101 days left in the year. This is Yom Kippur, the Jewish Day of Atonement.

Today's highlight in history:

In 1938, a devastating hurricane with winds clocked at more than 180 mph struck parts of New York and New England with little warning, causing widespread damage and claiming more than 600 lives. (The hurricane bears no name because the system for assigning names to major tropical storms did not go into effect until 1953.)

On this date:

In 1792, the French National Convention voted to abolish the monarchy.

In 1866, English novelist H.G. Wells was born.

In 1897, the New York Sun ran its famous "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus" editorial that answered 8-year-old Virginia O'Hanlon's letter about Santa's existence.

In 1931, Britain went off the gold standard.

In 1937, "The Hobbit," by J.R.R. Tolkien, was first published.

In 1948, Milton Berle made his debut as permanent host of "The Texaco Star Theater" on NBC-TV.

In 1949, the People's Republic of China was proclaimed by its Communist leaders.

In 1957, the series "Perry Mason," starring Raymond Burr, made its debut on CBS-TV.

In 1964, Malta gained its independence from Britain.

In 1976, Orlando Letelier, who had served as foreign minister to Chilean President Salvador Allende, was killed when a bomb exploded in his car in Washington.

Pot growers cashing in on forest land

WASHINGTON — Congress has a chance this week to win one small but important battle in the war against drugs by passing a law giving forest rangers the authority to nail marijuana farmers who grow their crops in our national forests.

Jack Anderson

Fully one-fourth of the marijuana illegally grown in this country is raised on public land — namely in the national forests. In 1980, a mere 5 percent of the pot was cultivated on public land. The amounts have substantially increased because the growers know the chances of being caught and prosecuted are slim.

We have seen a confidential report completed by the Office of Intelligence of the Drug Enforcement Administration that says as much. The pot entrepreneurs are turning to public land because of the increased enforcement and eradication efforts on private property. In the national forests, it is harder to trace the owner of an illegal garden and the growers can plant their patches on acreage that is hard to reach and seldom patrolled by rangers.

The marijuana itself is not the only hazard to health in the forest. The growers protect their crops with booby traps, maiming and killing innocent hikers, campers and wildlife.

The DEA intelligence report notes that every one of the 28 top marijuana-producing states that were visited while the document was being prepared "reported that marijuana growers are protecting their plots through the use of such methods as steel jaw traps concealed in the underbrush, guard dogs and hired guns. It was generally agreed that these methods were designed by growers to avoid loss of their crop through theft and violence by other poachers." But the report also noted an increase in the use of violence against law enforcement officials and innocent bystanders.

To combat the pot growing on public land, Congress in 1986 passed a law allowing the Forest Service to train and arm agents to fight the drug dealers. But incredibly, the Forest Service agents are currently not allowed to work outside the boundaries of the forest. They can't chase a grower over the boundary. They can't search private residences or vehicles. They can't use any of the standard law enforcement methods after a suspect leaves the forest."

As we reported in June, the Forest Service is pitted against barbaric weaponry — sharpened sticks in leaf-covered pits, fish hooks dangled at eye-level from trees, razor blades and hypodermic needles hidden in pot plants and trip wires tied to bombs, crossbows and shotguns. The growers carry machine guns, sawed-off shotguns, Soviet AK-47s and Israeli Uzis.

Marijuana is not the only drug produced on public land by these forest thugs. Federal agents have found 82 drug labs in the national forests where PCP and speed are turned out. Not known for their environmental consciousness, these amature chemists dump the chemical waste from their work on the ground and in the streams.

They have worked with smug confidence that the Forest Service was hamstrung. But two men have taken it upon themselves to change that — Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, and Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore.

Harkin co-sponsored a bill with Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., earlier this year to give Forest Service agents the ability to fully investigate, pursue and prosecute any grower who raises marijuana on Forest Service property. No longer would the pot growers thumb their noses as they cross over the forest boundaries. That act has been incorporated into the Senate omnibus drug bill which comes up for a vote this week.

On the House side, Wyden has proved to be relentless in pushing for the same kind of bill. His ideas were incorporated into an omnibus drug act in the House that will also be voted on this week.

"These criminals are putting every manner of poisons in our forests to try to protect their huge investment in crime," Wyden told us.

MINIMIZING MANEUVERS — The Soviet Navy is revamping its mission, spending more time closer to home and less money showing off around the world for the benefit of Third World countries. The change stems from Mikhail Gorbachev's efforts to revamp the Soviet military budget. U.S. naval analysts have found that Soviet naval deployments overseas declined by 6 percent last year. Soviet forces abroad, such as those in Vietnam, Ethiopia, South Yemen, and Cuba are too few and too weak to flex their muscles for prolonged periods.

MINI-EDITORIAL — The meat industry wants to unclutter the labels on hot dogs and other processed meats by leaving out some miscellaneous ingredients — specifically ground bones and equally appetizing meat remnants. Those goodies are legal, but must be on the label under current rules. Your friendly Agriculture Department, using "parts-is-parts" rationale, has proposed to allow up to 10 percent of the meat product to be such miscellany without listing it on the label. If the federal government deems such tasty morsels to be safe for human consumption, we don't doubt them. But consumers have a right to know what they are consuming.

How would candidates counter this mischief?

SAN FRANCISCO — In a column five years ago that deserves a retroactive Pulitzer prize, Rowland Evans and Robert Novak revealed a whopping violation by the Soviets of the ABM treaty: a huge phased-array, battle-management radar complex in Krasnoyarsk.

William Safire

That treaty, negotiated during Detente I, limited each superpower's defense against incoming missiles. The idea, in that era celebrating "mutally assured destruction," was to guarantee each nation's near-nakedness to retaliation.

But the Krasnoyarsk radar violates that agreement: when completed, it would give the Soviets a "breakout" by lessening the threat of our deterrent.

Satellite photographs in hand, we objected to the violation; the Soviets could not deny the installation's existence deep inside Siberia, but claimed it was a satellite-tracking station and ignored our protests.

Along came the Reagan space-defense plan. Suddenly Moscow needed the strictest interpretation of the ABM treaty to limit American testing of "Star Wars" defenses. The Soviet Union's brazen violation of that treaty became an embarrassment: how could Moscow demand a narrow reading of the agreement when it was caught in a treaty-breaking "material breach"?

That's when the Russians started conducting guided tours for Americans who wouldn't know battle managements from management battles. That stunt did not work; under pressure from hawks who believe that new treaties are meaningless while old treaties are violated, Reagan demanded that the offending radar be dismantled.

The other day, the Soviet leader tried to make lemonade out of his lemon: he proposed turning the Krasnoyarsk radar into an "international space center." Why? Because he is unwilling or unable to admit that the Soviet Union has been systematically lying about its anti-missile defenses.

Opponents of Star Wars would be delighted to give him a facesaver, letting the Soviets disguise the facility as a space center or open-air movie house or soccer stadium (the Castrodome?) — but not at election time. A defense-conscious Senate unanimously acceded to Jesse Helms's call for dismantlement now.

It won't happen. When a new president is in office, Gorbachev will offer to tear down his Siberian facility in return for some concession from us that would make it appear that both superpowers had violated the anti-defense treaty. The concession being sought is the same he demanded at Reykjavik: forbid the testing of space defense.

Which U.S. presidential candidate, eager to get on with a Start treaty and scornful of a space-shield "fantasy," would be more likely to accommodate Gorbachev on this central issue — the one that Reagan rightly resisted? Governor Dukakis, helmeted like Snoopy's Red Baron, went into one tank last week; the likelihood is that he would go into the tank again.

This profoundly un-serious deal — you let us cook up a violation on your part and we'll admit the violation on ours — is part of the new Gorbachev negotiating strategy. It takes the Barnum Doctrine and posits this corollary: there's a sucker elected every other time.

The second sucker play is his offer of withdrawing his 2,500 men from Cam Ranh Bay in Vietnam in return for the pullout of our 17,000 men from Subic Bay in the Philippines. That would leave the Soviet navy in position to dominate the Far East from its big Vladivostok base while most of the U.S. Navy was pushed far back to U.S. territorial islands. Thanks for nothing.

The mischief in that offer, of course, is to fan the anti-U.S. sentiment in the Philippines and make it possible for Corazon Aquino to bilk the U.S. taxpayer out of additional billions in "rent" for our bases. Any additional strain on the U.S. defense budget, Moscow figures, is a net gain to them.

These are not the ploys of a nation seriously seeking an end to tension; they are the deliberate moves of a superpower switching from raw power to diplomatic trickery to further imperialist aims. The Soviet grand design in Asia should be obvious: to euchre Japan into helping neutralize China, freezing the United States out of the Far East, where Moscow's penetration will help it leapfrog our lead in technology.

Thus does the Kremlin pursue its long-term goal on the cheap; Gorbachev is making a propaganda virtue out of the necessity of reducing the unsustainable percentage of his GNP devoted to arms.

How do we counter his mischief-making? The world view offered by the Dukakis writers last week was tough-voiced but not tough-minded; the moment has arrived for George Bush to spell out his strategic philosophy. From Krasnoyarsk to California, we're all waiting.

LEWIS GRIZZARD

If engine won't start, bow head and pray!

Soviet cosmonaut Vladimir Lyakhov turned the switch on the engine that would soon propel him and his comrade in space, Abdul Ahad Momand, back to Earth. Lyakhov and Momand were on a routine mission in their Soyuz T-5 capsule, traveling approximately 234 miles above the Earth's surface.

Grizzard

"Won't be long now, comrade, until we'll be back in Soviet Union as heroes," said Lyakhov.

"And get new hats and shoes," said a smiling Momand.

The engine purred for approximately a minute and then suddenly shut down.

"Uh-oh," said Lyakhov.

"What is this 'uh-oh'?" asked Momand. "You have accident in spacesuit?"

"Worse, comrade," said Lyakhov. "The engine, it has stopped."

"What should we do?"

"I'm not certain. Hand me screwdriver."

Lyakhov worked frantically, but the engine remained silent.

"What does this mean?" asked Momand, becoming a bit nervous.

"If engine starts again, it means nothing," explained Lyakhov.

"And if it doesn't?" asked Momand.

"Bad scene," explained Lyakhov. "We will run out of air and food and die."

"And no new hats and shoes," said Momand. "This is some deep doodinski we're in."

Lyakhov, still unable to restart the engine, called to Mission Control back in the Soviet Union.

"Mission Control," he began, in his best Chuck Yeager voice, "this is T-5, and we've got a little ol' trouble up here. Probably nothing to worry about, but just thought we'd let you know."

"What is the nature of your trouble?" asked Mission Control.

"Engine won't start."

"Too bad," said Mission Control. "You will soon run out of air and food and die. Have you checked battery?"

"That's a 10-4, Mission Control. Also checked spark plugs and fan belt."

"Then check carburetor."

"Check carburetor," Lyakhov said to Momand, who raised the hood of the space craft and looked at the engine.

"Try now," said Momand.

"Nothing," said Lyakhov.

"Careful not to flood," said Mission Control.

Still the engine would not start, and Mission Control could hear the uneasiness begin to build in the cosmonauts' voices.

"I hate it when this happens," said Lyakhov.

Said Momand, "Perhaps we should say prayer."

"But we do not pray in Soviet Union," said Lyakhov.

"I was in Catholic Church in United States," said Momand. "I know prayer. Bow head and repeat after me, 'Under the 'B,' 17. Under the 'O,' 75....'"

"Bingo!" cried Lyakhov.

"Get engine started?" asked Mission Control.

"No," said Lyakhov. "Win toaster."

Fortunately, Lyakhov was able to get the reentry engine started again and he and Momand were able to land safely back in the Soviet Union.

Neither ever participated in a Soviet space program again, however. Lyakhov joined the Bolshoi Ballet and Momand defected to the United States, won the Florida lottery and bought Eastern Airlines.

NATION in brief

New Jersey examines laws on seized cars

WOODBURY, N.J. (AP) — Some New Jersey law enforcement authorities drive flashy, pricey vehicles seized in drug cases, but the state attorney general doesn't think prosecutors should be behind the wheels of Porsches or Mercedes.

Attorney General Cary Edwards is reviewing regulations on the use of confiscated vehicles and may revise them, spokesman John Hagerty said Tuesday.

"The attorney general's position is that these vehicles should be sold as quickly as possible," said Hagerty. "In the interim, if they need to utilize them for investigative purposes — fine."

For the past two months, Gloucester County Prosecutor Richard E. Hickey III has been driving a gray 1984 Porsche 928 seized in a drug case.

"With seized vehicles, the actual cost to the taxpayer is greatly reduced from going out and buying one," said Hickey.

MOVE confrontation closed

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The decision to close a federal probe into the fatal 1985 MOVE confrontation without indictments ends the criminal investigation, but bitterness and civil suits linger in the case.

The U.S. Justice Department announced Tuesday that a grand jury cleared Mayor W. Wilson Goode, other city officials and police of criminal wrongdoing in the bombing of a west Philadelphia rowhouse.

The police bombing — approved by Goode — and resulting fire that officials allowed to rage out of control left 11 members of the radical group MOVE dead and 61 homes destroyed.

"There's always going to be some nagging doubts about whether justice prevailed in this case," said William H. Brown III, the chairman of the mayor's special investigative commission, which found Goode "grossly negligent" for his role in the events of May 13, 1985.

Assistant Attorney General William Bradford Reynolds, head of the Justice Department's civil rights division, said in Washington that evidence was insufficient to seek indictments on any civil rights violations.

U.S. praises Iraqi pledge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department is praising as a "positive step" an Iraqi pledge that appears to rule out future use of chemical weapons either against foreign adversaries or the country's rebellious Kurdish minority population.

U.S. officials expressed hope Tuesday that the promise, made by Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz, will head off the possibility of congressional approval of economic sanctions against Iraq.

Following what the State Department said was convincing evidence that Iraq had used chemical weapons against its Kurdish population, the Senate two weeks ago approved comprehensive sanctions against Iraq, including a ban on agricultural and export credits.

The State Department called the Senate action premature and pressured Iraq to issue a firm statement declaring that it would no longer engage in chemical warfare.

Officials complained that the legislation could hurt American exporters more than the Iraqis and said it was taken up without prior consultation with the executive branch.

Equinox to be Thursday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The date when daylight hours nearly equal those of darkness occurs Thursday, as the autumnal equinox makes its earliest appearance so far in this century.

The moment of equinox, when the sun appears to cross the Equator on its annual journey south, occurs at 19:29 universal time, which is 3:29 p.m. EDT.

Not since 1897 has the equinox come this early, reports LeRoy Doggett, head of the Nautical Almanac Office at the U.S. Naval Observatory.

The equinox will occur even earlier in four years, when it comes at 18:44 universal time on Sept. 22, 1992, and also at 18:01 on Sept. 22, 1996.

And in 2000, the equinox will edge all the way back to 17:29 universal time on Sept. 22 of that year.

Shultz to push rights issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George Shultz plans to press human rights issues in new talks with his Soviet counterpart amid signs the Reagan administration has given up hopes of completing a major nuclear arms accord this year.

Shultz, in possibly his last full-scale meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, hopes to "tie down some unresolved issues" in the stalled superpower negotiations to cut long-range nuclear arsenals by 50 percent, Assistant Secretary of State Rozanne L. Ridgway told a congressional panel.

"We certainly know we can't finish the START (Strategic Arms Reduction Talks) treaty this year," Ms. Ridgway said Tuesday.

Shevardnadze was scheduled to arrive here this evening and hold talks with Shultz on Thursday and Friday, Ms. Ridgway said. The Soviet foreign minister also was expected to call on President Reagan.

Although this week's meetings may be the final major talks between Shultz and Schevardnadze on U.S-Soviet topics, "it certainly does not signal the end of the administration's commitment to press forward" on improving relations, Ms. Ridgway said.

Backfire, weather help firefighters divert blaze

Associated Press

A backfire and favorable weather helped hundreds of firefighters divert a 5-day-old blaze away from expensive northern California homes. Near Yellowstone National Park, a pilot survived the crash of his firefighting helicopter.

Although the fire west and north of Vacaville, Calif., continued to burn over a 32-mile area today, about 500 residents who had been evacuated were allowed back into their homes Tuesday.

The only uncontained portion of the blaze was in rugged terrain in an unpopulated area, firefighters said Tuesday after completing a 10-mile-long fire break just west of Vacaville and setting fire to brush west of the break.

"The backfire operation was pretty darn successful," said Kirk Landuyt, a California Department of Forestry spokesman. "The wind has cooperated," pushing the controlled fire into the blaze and keeping it from reaching homes on the edge of Vacaville, he said.

Elsewhere across the West on Tuesday, the situation was improved as the worst summer for fires in three decades wound to a close. In all, nearly 70,000 fires have been tallied, blackening more than 4.1 million acres, about half of them in Alaska.

AP

"I think fire season is just about over here," spokeswoman Madelyn Kempf said as crews broke camp and began departing from the 34,500-acre Red Bench fire in Montana's Glacier National Park. Some 200 firefighters also left Oregon's Willamette National Forest on Tuesday, although others remained behind to finish firefighting efforts there.

In the Yellowstone National Park area, only three of 13 blazes that charred 1.6 million acres remained uncontained, said park spokeswoman Amy Vanderbilt.

"It's been a fairly quiet day in terms of fire activity," she said. "We've still got crews out there working on (fire) line construction and mop-up efforts.

A helicopter pilot trying to fill a water bucket from a pond while working on a fire burning in Shoshone National Forest just east of Yellowstone crashed upside down, but climbed safely out of his aircraft, said fire information officer Chris Thompson.

A rescue team found the pilot sitting on the bank of the pond, Thompson said.

The Vacaville-area blaze destroyed seven homes Sunday and did an estimated $7 million damage Monday to a cluster of military, government and private communications towers and facilities on a hilltop within fire lines.

As of Tuesday night, the fire near the city some 45 miles northeast of San Francisco had burned 22,000 acres and was 60 percent contained by a force of 1,882 firefighters. Backfires were expected to increase the amount burned to 28,000 acres, said Forestry Department spokeswoman Lori Lippitt.

Firefighters were optimistic about two other major northern California fires Tuesday night.

One blaze, about 20 miles east of Redding, was reported 80 percent contained by a force of nearly 1,200 firefighters. Since the weekend, it had blackened 7,790 acres and destroyed 24 homes and 34 other buildings.

Violence marks end of Haitian leadership

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Soldiers sacked their commanders and workers struck state-run companies, ripping apart a boss's home in one instance, as Haitians released pent-up rage at three decades of authoritarian rule.

Violence and sporadic gunfire continued throughout the capital today, four days after soldiers toppled the regime of Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy.

Radio reports said troops were removing more and more commanders and reprisal killings and spontaneous street demonstrations were on ther rise.

"I'm afraid we're on the eve of another insurrection," a gover nment official said privately.

Lt. Gen. Prosper Avril, who declared himself president Sunday after lower-ranking soldiers staged the coup, tried to end the unrest Tuesday by appointing a new armed forces chief and announcing the retirement of eight generals.

Radio stations said the revolt in the 7,000-member army spread because Avril had not fired commanders the soldiers identified with the corruption and repression of the governments of Namphy, Leslie Manigat and Jean-Claude Duvalier.

"We will chase out of the army all supporters of Namphy, Manigat and Duvalier," said a policeman at a station in downtown Port-au-Prince where soldiers removed their commander. The army runs the police in Haiti.

Soldiers broadcasting from radio stations Tuesday — something unheard of before the coup — said they identified themselves with the downtrodden of this impoverished Caribbean nation.

Several repeated on the air: "The army is the people, and people are the army!"

The coup leaders have demanded that Avril reorganize the military and institute democratic reforms including free elections, which Haiti has not had for 31 years. On Nov. 29, armed thugs killed more than 30 people at polling stations in thwarting independently run elections.

Just after midnight, the government appealed on nationwide television for the cancellation of a demonstration called for later today in support of the mutinying officers.

On Tuesday, workers at the state-owned electricity company, port authority and flour mill went on strike to force the removal of their managers, radio stations said.

Workers looted and tore apart by hand the house of Jean-Claude Souriac, head of the electricity company, while two armed soldiers stood by, witnesses said. The flour mill manager also was removed, radio stations said.

The managers' fates were not known.

Radio stations said gunmen killed four people in apparent reprisal for atrocities linked to Namphy's government including the Sept. 11 massacre of 13 people during a Mass celebrated by a politically active Roman Catholic priest.

Ten other people have been reported killed since the coup, which sent Namphy into exile to the neighboring Dominican Republic. Port-au-Prince Mayor Franck Romain, accused of ordering opposition leaders killed, took refuge in the Dominican Embassy.

On state television Tuesday night, the government announced in a communique that it had retired eight generals, including Maj. Gen. Williams Regala, who was ousted as interior and defense minister after the coup and has not been seen since, and Brig. Gen. Carl Michel Nicolas, former army chief of staff.

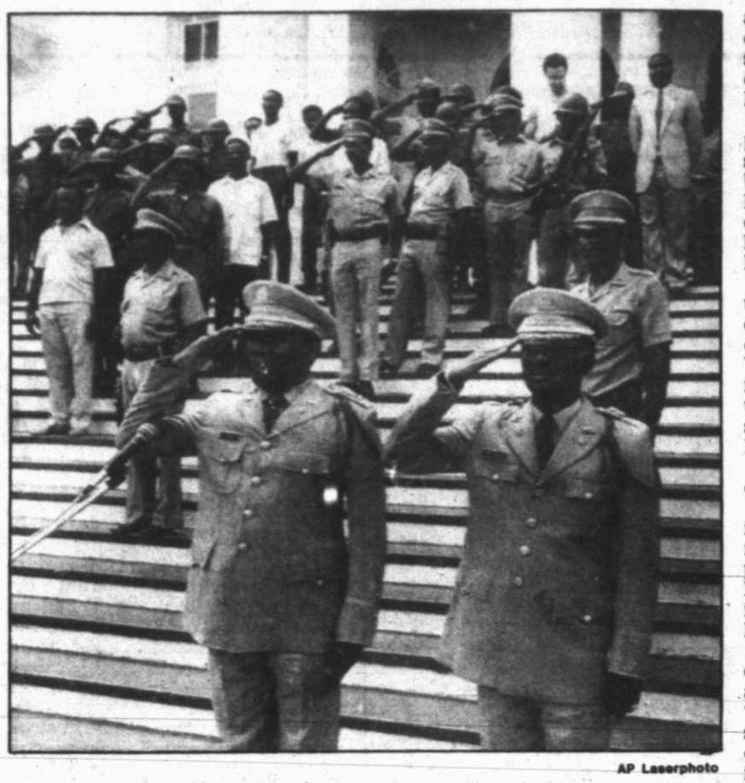

The communique said four officers were promoted.

Earlier, radio stations said mutinying soldiers had ousted the commanders of the navy, port and airport security, the crack 300-man Leopards Batallion, and the Artibonite Department, a region north of Port-au-Prince.

Avril said Tuesday he was aware of "numerous problems" within the armed forces, but urged his troops "to stay calm." At a ceremony outside the National Palace, he appointed a new armed forces commander-in-chief, Maj. Gen. Herard Abraham, who was foreign minister under Namphy.

Namphy led a junta that ran Haiti for most of the 2½ years since street demonstrations forced Duvalier into exile in February 1986. Duvalier and his father, Francois, had ruled Haiti since 1957. Manigat was elected president in January in army-run balloting and deposed in June.

Troops of the 4th Company in downtown Port-au-Prince on Tuesday arrested their commander, Maj. Renaud Symbert, and deposited him unharmed outside army headquarters, radio stations said.

General who led coup now prime minister of Burma

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — Saw Maung, the general who seized power in a weekend coup, was named prime minister today by the new military-dominated government. Hundreds of people were reported dead in a ruthless crackdown on dissent.

The crackdown kept demonstrators off the streets for a second day today. Pro-democracy activists were reported going underground.

Government spokesman Kyaw San said troops killed 67 people, wounded 34 and arrested 100 "in the course of the government's law and order restoration work" in Rangoon and three other areas Tuesday and today.

That brought the official death toll to at least 144 people killed since Saw Maung seized power Sunday to quell a countrywide uprising against 26 years of authortarian rule.

But independent accounts say more than 200 people have been killed. And some Western diplomats in Rangoon put the number dead at up to 400.

"At Rangoon General Hospital, there were 200 corpses on Monday night and that was only one hospital," said one diplomat, who estimated there had been as many as 400 deaths in all.

He said trucks loaded with bodies were seen after the height of the shooting earlier in the week.

In the heart of Rangoon today, troops conducted house-to-house searches following a rocket attack against two key government buildings.

Gunfire was heard throughout the night but there were no protests — almost daily occurrences in Rangoon in recent weeks — as soldiers patrolled the city.

"They seem to have subdued the protesters pretty much," said a Bangkok-based diplomat. "It's a peasant army ... Their attitude is that they have to follow orders. They trust their officers."

The diplomat said students, who have spearheaded the uprising, were going underground and might resort to guerrilla tactics against the 186,000-member military.

One opposition leader, a student, said street protests had been called off to avoid bloodshed. He and the diplomats spoke on condition of anonymity.

City council is expected to approve occupation of a new maintenance office that was built on the eastside near Carver Street. The city had planned to build a fleet garage, but opted against it, thus leaving $500,000 in approved bond money up for reallocation.

Bentsen's wife views herself as 'helpmate'

By RICK BROWN
Assistant City Editor

Beryl Ann Bentsen, wife of the Democratic vice presidential nominee, says she has "never had any great desire" to follow in the footsteps of such "second ladies" as Barbara Bush, Joan Mondale or Betty Ford.

"I love Lloyd in the Senate," she said Tuesday, while her husband, Texas' senior senator, spoke on energy policy in Odessa.

However, "He looked at this very carefully, and he decided he could certainly make a contribution as the vice president," she said. "If he wants to, I think he can make it an interesting position."

By any estimation, the 66-year-old Mrs. Bentsen — called "B.A." by friends and family — has led as charmed a life as any Texas woman could want.

A UT-Austin "Pi Phi" — Pi Beta Phi sorority member — she left Texas after graduation for New York City and the life of a high fashion model. Her World War II-era portfolio included spreads in Vogue, Glamour and Mademoiselle magazines.

While she met husband Lloyd during college years, serious sparking didn't start until she came to New York City and Bentsen attended military intelligence school in Pennsylvania. He was in training for bomber pilot duty during the war.

But after only four dates — one at New York's Blue Angel club — he was transferred "out of the blue" she recalled Tuesday.

Within the correspondence that followed, the couple realized their deep feelings for one another, and with wartime America as a backdrop they were married in Columbus, Mich.

Now, in the heat of a national campaign, Mrs. Bentsen continues to see her role as "helpmate" to her husband.

She says she eschews discussion of issues — "People are just going to have to accept me for what I am," she says. "I don't make speeches." — yet she's highly conversant with the rhetoric of the campaign.

"It really is time for a change," she said, ticking off the issues of trade, the economy, jobs, drugs and education.

In addition, "There has been a change in young married life," she observed.

It's a concern she's prepared to back up with action, having helped found a day care center for Senate staffers.

"It has an enormous waiting list," she said. "It just shows you that there's a need for qualified facilities. Young working mothers are concerned about their children, yet a lot of them have to work."

Also dear to her heart is her work with handicapped children and the March of Dimes.

The Lufkin native treasures the couple's forays back to Texas from Washington, D.C.

"As a people, we have enormous pride," she said. "There isn't a place that I go that someone doesn't say they once lived in Marshall or Odessa or someplace.

"They all seem to want to tell you that they have some tie to Texas."

When life on the campaign trail becomes tiring, "I just get a little adreneline going," she said. Overall, she finds the experience "stimulating."

Her husband "does have a lot of competitiveness in his soul," she observed, adding that he remains unbothered by the charges and countercharges inherent to a close race.

"It has been very negative," she said. "They (the Bush campaign) started out that way, and every day, it's one more negative idea.

Council to OK computer system bids

By CHRIS VAN WAGENEN
Staff Writer

City officials wasted no time in getting to work on a new multi-million dollar centralized communication system.

Already bids are being sorted on the selection of a hardware/applicative software supplier and the consultant who oversee installation of the system once it is purchased.

City Council is expected to approve those selections at its regular meeting scheduled for Sept. 27.

Among those bidding on the equipment package — which is expected to cost between $600,000 and $800,000 — are McDonnell-Douglas, NCR Corp., IBM, Digital and Unisys.

Deputy City Manager Mike McGregor said the selected vendor will supply Midland with a computer-aided dispatch system, electronic file records and 911 emergency dispatch.

The city also received bids ranging from $138,000 to $148,000 from three private consultants, one of whom will oversee and coordinate installation of the mainframe and microcomputers that will be interfaced with the mobile data terminals.

Bidders included Coopers/Lybrand, which managed similar programs in Arlington and Grand Prairie; Ray Trott, a consultant/engineer from Irving; and Ray Kendall, a former Midlander currently on contract to organize the city's phone system.

"We're well within budget on the radios and mobile data systems," said McGregor, who along with City Manager Fred Poe will be making their own recommendations to council.

City Councilman Bill Williams said the decision to hire an outside consultant is probably the most important aspect of the project. "We just don't have anyone on staff that understands what the needs are."

Officials say it may be months before they are ready to recommend a building for purchase that would be used as a centralized communications center and police department.

While voters approved $4.3 millon for public safety, they must still approve reallocation of $700,000 that was originally earmarked for construction of a fleet service garage.

According to Finance Director Troy Gifford, voters gave the city authorization to spend $500,000 on the garage in 1982. However, council opted later to scrap the garage and farm out all mechanical work of city vehicles.

Gifford said the city has earned about $250,000 in interest on the bond money, some of which was used to build an office on the eastside garage compound near South and Carver streets.

Council is expected to place the issue back before voters in May 1989. "I don't think voters will quibble about changing the direction where that money is spent," said Gifford.

Meanwhile, council members say they are anxious to discuss entering a partnership with the county to form a centralized emergency dispatch network which has been informally discussed in the past.

"It might serve a good purpose," said County Commissioner Win Brown. "As I see it, the bottom line is saving taxpayer dollars."

Midland Mayor Carroll Thomas said there's a "desirability" to have the sheriff's department included in the communications system. And, according City Councilman Robert Rendall, talks already are going on.

Amateur radio operator misses plane headed for Mexico

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Ray Randall missed American Airlines Disaster Relief Flight No. 9181 to Cancun — the resort city on Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula — struck late last week by Hurricane Gilbert.

"See," he said, "I was going to go down there" to help aid in the relief at Cancun and particularly on a nearby tiny island, Isla Mujeres, beset by the storm.

"That little island was really devastated," Randall, an amateur radio operator, learned from radio communications with Mexico. "They are really hurting. Water is critical. They need medical supplies," particularly since many people are getting ill from drinking contaminated water, such as that from mud puddles.

Randall, who had planned to join other Blessings-for-Obedience members on the Saturday flight from Midland International Airport to Cancun, was to take aboard a generator to power two-way radios in the hurricane-struck area.

But all was rush-rush.

"That wasn't the best organized (thing) in the world," he said of the relief flight. Nor was it meant to be, he knew. The United States Department of State gave the go-ahead for the Midland-to-Cancun emergency flight Friday night, when the Caribbean storm hit the mainland.

The next day, almost 10 tons of food items, water and medical supplies, collected earlier by Blessings-for-Obedience and Victory Outreach workers for delivery to Jamaica, were loaded into the belly of the American Airlines Boeing 727.

"That's the part (the food drive) we actually did real good at," Randall reflected. "We had put out a call for it."

An additional 23 tons of supplies were readied for flights to Mexico.

Jamaica, hit earlier in the week by the storm, already was getting help. And the relief items gathered in Midland were bound for Cancun.

But Randall, a 43-year-old Midland businessman, missed the flight. At the airport, he learned that the generator would have to be emptied of fuel and oil for safety reasons before it could be taken aboard. Time was short. And he said good-bye to the mercy flight.

But everything turned out all right. Batteries to replace the generator were available in Mexico to power ham radios. And the food, once flown into Cancun, was transported over to the neighboring island, where, he said, 5,000 people were fed. "They had plenty of stuff," he said.

"Actually, it came off really good for as unorganized as we were," Randall said.

And Randall, disappointed that he did not catch the mercy flight but not disheartened, returned to Blessings-for-Obedience's Ham Radio Shack to monitor radio calls out of Mexico.

"What I like is talking over the radio. You feel like you've done something."

Over the radio's 20-meter band, Randall monitored a Mexico City transmission from a "Louis," who in English translated a Spanish-language ham broadcast out of Cancun from a "Rudolph."

Louis talked about relief supplies needed on the island and peninsula, Randall said.

"He didn't do any health-and-welfare messages at all." Other radio operators relayed messages for friends and kin on the conditions of people in the hurricane-ravaged area.

And relief supplies came in generously, he surmised.

"There was a yacht club in Louisiana shipping stuff," Randall said. "So the response from the States was very, very good." Additionally, the relief effort is expected to be aided by the donation of foods from Gerber Baby Foods.

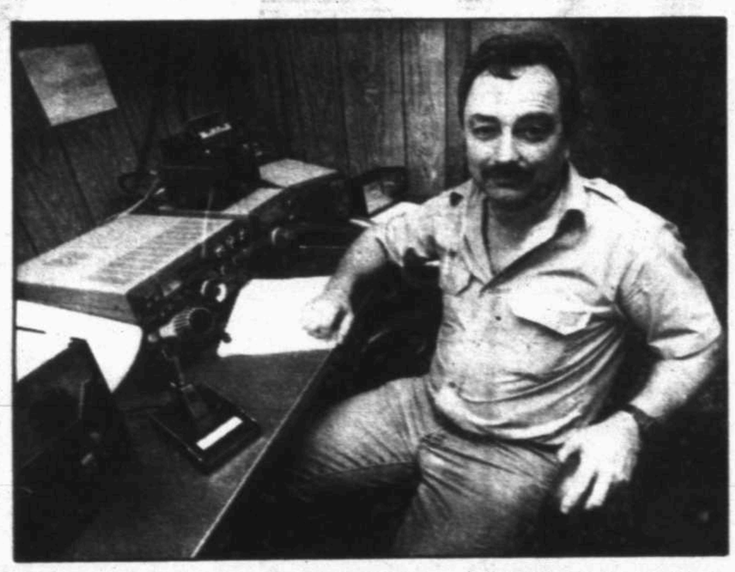

Randall said Blessings-for-Obedience is a Christian-oriented organization of men and women who take the time to feed and clothe suffering people and, as talents and timing allow, to spread the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

"We are all Christians," he said. "Most of us would like to go to the mission field. What can the world say when they see you helping people? We are not looking for a gold star on our forehead."

Other Blessings-for-Obedience amateur-radio operators in Midland include Kelly Coleman and his father Tom Coleman, Greg Banner, and Midland school teacher Brad Cox, who flew to Cancun on the weekend mercy flight.

And, Randall said, "almost all hams are civic-minded." Randall is a member of the Midland Amateur Radio Club.

"Doing something like this really gets you hooked on ham radio," Randall said. "You're having fun, plus you are doing some good."

Firm sought to reassemble workover rig

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — The contractor responsible for operation and maintenance of the U.S. Department of Energy's Strategic Petroleum Reserve in Louisiana is looking for a firm to repair and reassemble a workover rig, Permian Basin Bid Center Director Debbie Underwood said Tuesday.

Ms. Underwood said notification of the contract repair work appeared in Commerce Daily, a publication listing newly announced government contracts. The notification was placed by Boeing Petroleum Services, Inc., the management opertation and maintenance contractor for the Strategic Petroleum Reserve Program.

The rig to be "shipped to or picked up by the repair contractor," the Boeing notification stated, is located in Odessa "in a disassembled condition."

Ms. Underwood said Tuesday she is contacting "everyone I can think of" who might be interested and capable of repairing and reassembling a workover rig.

Volunteer honored by Arts Assembly

By GEORGIA TODD TEMPLE
Staff Writer

"I'm overwhelmed," says Nancy Anguish, who received The Arts Assembly of Midland's Community-wide Award at the organization's annual meeting Tuesday.

A graduate of Odessa High School and the University of Texas at Austin, Mrs. Anguish moved to Midland in 1958. The wife of E.W. "Buddy" Anguish, Mrs. Anguish has worked in a volunteer capacity in a number of local and state organizations.

Locally, she has has been an officer of the Junior League of Midland, on the Salvation Army board, served as president of the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorale Association in 1986, on the planning committee of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum and Library Hall of Fame and was instrumental in forming the Midland Opera Theater and served as president of that organization for seven years.

Statewide, she has served on the board of the Texas Arts Alliance and was a member of the board of Texas Opera Theatre for 10 years.

Mrs. Anguish is currently serving her second term as president of the Petroleum Museum board.

She is an ordained elder at First Presbyterian Church and is a contributor and supporter of the United Way, Midland College, the Museum of the Southwest and Midland Community Theatre.

Formerly called Midland Arts Assembly, the Assembly serves as the umbrella organization for Midland's arts community. In addition to the Community-wide Award, member organizations each recognize a volunteer who has contributed the most during the year to that organization.

Nancy Anguish

Awards given by arts organizations went to Joan Bechtel, Midland Quilters Guild; Carolyn Bennett, Ballet Midland; Peggy Calderon, Ballet Mujeres; Clifford Chapman, Midland faceters Guild; Courtney Clark, Celebration of the Arts; Sue Courts, Crestview Baptist Church; Dave Frye, Permian Basin Chapter SPEBSQSA; Pam Isom, Midland Symphony Guild; Tom Johnson, Midland Community Concerts; Lula Belle Klingler, Midland Palette Club.

Also, John LaCaze, In Focus Photographic Society; Bill Leonard, Paint Daubers Arts and Crafts Guild; Dorothy Matthews, Midland Music Teachers Association; Denna McGuire, Museum of the Southwest; John Meyer, Gallery 1114; Judy Powell, Summer Mummers; Linda Powell, Midland Symphony Association; Jim Ross, West Texas Jazz Society; Charles Spence, Midland Community Theatre; Cynthia Wolfe, Midland Arts Association; and Claire Woodcock, Las Manos.

In addition, Fran Birdwell was given special recognition. She has been the "keeper" of the Assembly's scrapbooks since 1982.

In addition to presenting Celebration of the Arts annually in May, the Assembly provides such services and programs as the Gallery of Midland Arts each November and December at Midland Park Mall, KidsArts & Company, Midland Marquee in Sunday's Reporter-Telegram, Cityline — 682-ARTS, a community calendar and the Directory of Midland Visual and Performing Artists.

Chuck and Patti Wallace will serve as chairmen for the 1989 Celebration of the Arts.

Second meeting will be held to discuss rapist

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

The director of a private anti-crime organization has announced his intention to join area law enforcement agencies for a second town meeting to discuss the east side rapist.

Fred Lewis, the executive director of Innovative Solutions, Inc., said the "Public Forum Crime Prevention Seminar" will be held 7 p.m. Thursday at the site of the first meeting, which drew more than 200 persons to the east side YMCA on Butternut Lane.

The rapist, who has attacked two women, attempted to attack two more and burglarized more than a dozen homes since June 1, has not broken into a home or attempted an assault since August 10.

Despite that, and despite stepped-up police patrols, Lewis said he feels Thursday's meeting is necessary.

"There were a lot of questions asked that weren't answered," Lewis said. "This will be a good chance to do this again, to give law enforcement a chance to shine."

The free two-hour meeting, which is sponsored by Claydesta National Bank, is being supported by law enforcement, including the agency investigating the east side rapist.

WEST TEXAS IN BRIEF

Man arrested for allegedly raping girl 20 years ago

ODESSA (AP) — A 62-year-old businessman sought in New Mexico for allegedly raping a 12-year-old more than 20 years ago was held Tuesday in the Ector County Jail in lieu of $505,000 bond, authorities said.

William Cawley of Eunice, N.M., was arrested Monday on a Lea County, N.M., warrant and appeared here before Municipal Judge J.E. Weatherly, who set a $302,500 bond on a charge of fugitive from justice, a $150,000 bond on a charge of rape of a child, a $50,000 bond on a charge of criminal sexual contact of a minor and a $2,500 bond on a charge of possession of cocaine.

Ector County sheriff's Capt. Ollie Carnes said Tuesday that Cawley had agreed to sign extradition papers but would have to go before a judge, probably today, before he could be transported to New Mexico.

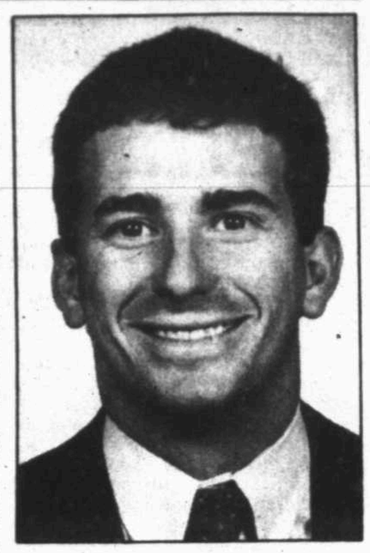

The charges stem from the alleged rape of a 12-year-old on May 2, 1968, at an oil well site outside Lovington and the discovery of what police said was cocaine during a search of Cawley's home last month.

Lea County Assistant District Attorney Ron Walker said Tuesday in Lovington, N.M., that a report to his office by a citizen in Hobbs led authorities to Cawley for the arrest.

He said because Cawley moved out of the state the day after the alleged rape, the 10-year statute of limitations didn't begin running until he moved back to New Mexico.

According to documents in the case, Cawley moved to Eunice in April 1980. He is the owner of Ray's Industrial Engine Service.

Lincoln County District Attorney Scot Key said Cawley also was charged with one count of criminal sexual contact of a minor and contributing to the delinquency of a minor in Lincoln County.

Ross Petree has been named new teen director for the Midland YMCA. Petree is a native of Midland and is a graduate of Midland High School. He has a bachelor's degree from the University of Texas at Austin where he was a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

Seminar to teach protection

From Staff Reports

If you were confronted by a robber in your home, would you fight, run, or scream?

Such options are explored in a "Threat Awareness" seminar at Midland College Oct. 18 and 20. The special seminar is a pilot session being presented by Innovative Solutions, Inc., of Midland in cooperation with the college's Continuing Education Department. Enrollment is limited to 30 persons for a fee of $25 each. The seminar is presented from 6-10 p.m. each evening.

Persons may enroll at the Midland College Continuing Education Office or obtain more information by calling Midland College, 685-4518, or Innovative Solutions at 683-6946.

Instructors will familiarize students with such criminal activities as robbery, sexual assault and homocide, criminal profiles, types of victims and how they are selected. They also will discuss security measures in public places, residences, vehicles, hotels/motels, and the workplace.

"This workshop won't teach physical self-defense measures. Rather, it explains the various options prudent people might use...with physical action the last resort," said Dr. Camille Duchesne, director of continuing education at Midland College.

The seminar also includes several methods of surviving a confrontation, plus the legal considerations of using force to protect yourself, your property, or other persons.

Instructors are former and active law enforcement and military personnel.

Midlander jailed in death

A 28-year-old Midland man remained in the county jail today on a charge of involuntary manslaughter in connection with the death of a man killed in a two-vehicle accident late Monday, according to county records.

Bond for Leodegario Munguia Amezcua, 1115 N. Carrizo-B, had not been set but he was charged, according to jail records. He was also charged with driving while intoxicated, the records said.

Robert Napoles, 26, was killed about 11 p.m. Monday near the intersection of County Road 114 and State Highway 349, the Department of Public Safety reported. As he neared the intersection on his 1983 Suzuki motorcycle, a two-door sedan driven by Amezcua struck him from behind, the DPS report said.

The impact of the crash carried the motorcycle and Napoles across the intersection, according to the report.

The sedan driven by Amezcua, who was not injured in the accident, was traveling at a "high rate of speed" just before the accident, the DPS report said.

Election results approved

Midland City Council unanimously approved final bond election results at a special meeting held this morning.

Of the 41,710 eligible city voters, just 16.3 percent or 6,820 took part in the $17.4 million election, according City Secretary Bill Clanton.

Officially, residents defeated the streets issue by vote of 4,075 to 2,620; drainage by a margin of 4,033 to 2,635 and parks by a mark of 4,765 to 1,846.

Public safety, the only package to pass, received 3,674 votes in favor to 3,062 against.

Official absentee results were as follows: streets 757 against to 355 in favor; drainage, 753 against to 354 in favor; parks, 875 against to 231 in favor; and public safety, 711 against to 402 in favor.

Man arrested in stabbing

Police have arrested a 35-year-old Midland man in connection with the stabbing early today of another man near a local warehouse.

The man, who is expected to be charged with aggravated assault, was arrested near the scene of a fight at the apartments at 207 W. Washington Ave. where he and the victim lived, Cpl. Jim White said.

Freddie Collazo, 30, was treated at Midland Memorial Hospital and released for a stab wound to the abdomen, hospital spokeswoman Sue Ristom said.

The fight broke out between the two men just after midnight, White said.

Jaycess to register voters

The Midland Jaycees will host a voter registration drive at Midland Park Mall during working hours on Saturday and Sunday.

All local residents who have not registered to vote in the November general election are urged to take advantage of this opportunity.

DEATHS

Robert Napoles

MCH board names interim administrator

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — The search may be ending for an interim administrator to take over the reins of Ector County's Medical Center Hospital until a permanent administrator can be hired.

MCH Board Chairman Don Dangerfield Tuesday night said 19 resumes have been received from "different people interested in coming to work at your wonderful hospital." Before the board meets again next Tuesday, he said the search committee recently named by the board will look at the 19 resumes and decide on the three top candidates.

The resumes of the three finalists will be considered next week "to see if we want them," Dangerfield said.

Sept. 13, MCH board members named Ector County Fiscal Services Director Tom Pace "caretaker of administration" until an interim administrator could be found. The appointment was approved by County Commissioners during a special-called meeting Sept. 14.

In addition to discussing resumes from applicants for the interim administrator's job, board members explored the question of providing nurses and all other MCH employees with liability insurance coverage to protect them against negligence claims that might arise under the Texas Tort Claims Act.

Board attorney Jim O'Leary pointed out that MCH, under the tort claims act, is not liable for "errors of judgment" that might be made by nurses. The hospital would be liable he said "through the use or misuse" of MCH property or equipment.

The hospital would be liable, he said, if a nurse would, for example, "misread a fetal monitor." Observing that $1 million in liability insurance coverage for a nurse can be obtained for about $67 per year, O'Leary estimated total cost of covering all MCH nurses would be about $60,000 a year.

Board members took no action on O'Leary's suggestion until certain details, such as how to handle coverage for part-time employees, can be considered.

The board heard a report from Richard Lewis, MCH Director of Fiscal Affairs/Comptroller, concerning efforts to work out a preferred provider arrangement, under which MCH would provide health care at reduced rates to the employees of various business organizations.

Lewis said one of the companies he is working with is Texas Instruments, which is working with a California group called Affordable Health Care. The California-based group is trying to put together a series of preferred provider agreements across the country, he said.

Lewis said he has been working with a representative from Affordable Health Care, to try and and work out an agreement that would be acceptable to MCH and TI. He said he had developed an estimate of an average daily health care cost at MCH of $1,000, from which negotiations would start.

Lewis said if an agreement is reached, TI's preferred provider program would include incentives, such as significantly reduced deductibles, to encourage TI employees to use MCH facilities.

However, he said, any agreement between MCH and Affordable Health Care will probably mean MCH will have to guarantee TI employees a reduced rate 15-to-20 percent below the estimated average daily cost. But, based on TI records referred to by the Affordable Health Care representative showing annual admission rates, such an agreement could be profitable for MCH.

BENTSEN

"I'm very sorry that they've decided not to run on the issues. I guess they can't run on what they've done," she said.

Still, the election "at this point can go either way," said Mrs. Bentsen, who remains confident of eventual victory "if they discuss the issues — and if the people listen and understand."

BID

The rig is a Wilson model 75 and the job involves repairing the rig derrick and all major components. The notification states that "the rig repair is required by Boeing Petroleum Services, Inc., in support of its management opertation and maintenance contract at the Department of Energy's Strategic Petroleum Reserve."

Additional information and bid forms can be obtained by writing to: Mark Addison, Mailstop: EF-77, 850 S. Clearview Parkway, New Orleans, La. 70123, and asking for RFQ MLA-8-RIG-TBD.

The notification stated that request for quotes "will be issued on or about Sept. 30, 1988."

"If anybody needs the Bid Center's help, we're here" Ms. Underwood said.

The Permian Basin Bid Center is located at Air Terminal at 2910 La-Force Blvd. in the Grand Slam Village office complex. The phone number is (915) 563-1711.

Board discusses language programs

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — The Ector County School District board Tuesday night heard a report of how the district is coping with the educational needs of limited-English students, reviewed a proposal for preferred provider healthcare for all employees and named a committee to study boundary realignment.

ECISD has initiated many activities to ensure the district is adequately meeting the needs of the district's limited-English proficient student population, said Don Mercer, Deputy Superintendent for Educational Operations.

Currently, he said, the district has identified more than 3,000 such students and he estimated that 80 percent of these students "will be serviced this year," in either bilingual education or English-as-a-second-language programs."

Mercer noted that two years ago, ECISD was serving less than 50 percent of the students needing help, "mainly due to a shortage of certified bilingual teachers and adequate classroom space."

By adding incentive pay for teachers to work with limited-English students, and by intensifying our recruiting effort" he said, "we have increased the number of teachers by 40 percent over the last two years."

With expanded building facilities next year, we should reach all identified LEP children, Mercer stated.

The deputy superintendent described ECISD's night school as 'one of the more exciting and succeisful programs we offer students who have limited-English skills."

Last year saw 120 parents enrolled in classes offering English-as-a-second-language, he said, and 120 ECISD employees enrolled in conversational Spanish classes that were offered.

In other action, board president Jim Nelson named himself and board members Delma Abalos and Tommy Salmon as members of a committee that will study school boundary lines to "insure compliance with the district's court-ordered desegregation plan."

Nelson observed that some realignment may be necessary because of the new elementary schools under construction that will be ready for the 1989-90 school year.

Board members also heard a presentation by Dr. Bill Water, Deputy Superintendent for Business Affairs, relating to the district's group medical insurance coverage and a proposal from National HealthCare Alliance Inc., and Alliance Employee Benefits aimed at reducing ECISD's health care insurance claim costs.

Dr. Lee Buice said she had heard a presentation on the plan and told teachers and other district employees present at Tuesday night's meeting she "left with a good feeling. I feel very good about the plan," she stated. "It is something I would want for myself" if offered the opportunity.

AWARD

New board members elected to three-year terms were Larry Carrasco, Judy Devenport, Tracy Elms, Charles Grimes, Jeff Hewett, Rollie Hyde and Beverly Pevehouse.

Elected to two-year terms were Dave Clark and Dee Fowler.

Remaining on the board are Joanie Holt, Sarah Lew Grimes, Stan Jacobs, Mary Anne Lindley, Tom Ryan, Barney Treadway, Mike Owens, Norma Webb, Linda Neeley, Nancy Bergman and Tom Johnson.

Officers for the upcoming year will be Mrs. Holt, president; Ms. Devenport, vice president; Ms. Neeley, secretary; Tracy Elms, treasurer; and Johnson, member-at-large.

RAPIST

"There was such a good turnout at the earlier meeting, and there were so many questions, we feel that not everyone had a chance to be heard," said Cpl. Jim White, police spokesman. "It is education more than anything."

Lewis, a former member of the elite U.S. Army Delta Force, has been teaching a "threat awareness" course in Midland, Odessa and Big Spring with his partner, Bob Bolton. Some of the tenets taught in that course will be used Thursday, he said.

"It is a two-fold thing," he said of the upcoming meeting. "The big thing is general awareness, but from the people's point of view, they are still afraid of this guy. This will ease their mind, and I hope they will 'snap' on some of the information and be able to use it.

"It is really more preventive maintenance, that maybe we can scare him out of town and he won't ever think of doing this again."

Members of the police and sheriff's departments will be at the meeting to answer questions about home security and personal safety. Members of the Midlan. Rape Crisis Center will also be available at the meeting, Lewis said.

"The sheriff's office and the police department bent over backwards to help me on this thing," he said.

The rapist, who police believe roams the east side peeping into windows between 1 a.m. and 5 a.m., probably lives in the area. He has not been clearly seen by any of the victims because he is always masked, according to investigators.

Thursday's meeting will focus on how citizens can avoid dangerous situations and if necessary how they can survive a confrontation. Practical tips on the best way to lock a window or door will also be featured, Lewis said.

A seminar like Thursday's would usually cost about $15 per person, but Lewis stressed he is not just trying to drum up business.

"It is just like any other community service," he said. "We are trying to get out to the community to get the information we have to them. We just want it to be one big community service.

"We do want to drum up business, but not to put money in our pockets."

6 people indicted in murder-for-hire plot

RICHARDSON (AP) — A Dallas County grand jury has indicted six people in connection with an elaborate murder-for-hire plot that remained unsolved for almost five years until a telephone tip gave investigators a break.

Authorities say a Dallas woman and two men were free on bond after being charged with being involved in the plot involving the woman's husband and the death of his alleged girl friend.

Officers would not elaborate on the telephone tip or give additional details about their investigation of the case.

Two men were in custody in New Mexico and a Dallas man was bieng held at the Richard Municipal Detention Center in connection with the case, authorities said Tuesday.

Joy Aylor, a Dallas designer, was released by Richardson Police after posting $60,000 bond on one charge of capital murder, two charges of conspiracy to commit capital murder and two charges of solicitation of capital murder.

Officers believe that Mrs. Aylor contracted for the murder of Roxanne Gailiunas, who they say was having a relationship with Larry Aylor, a Dallas homebuilder, who was estranged from Mrs. Aylor, according to Richardson Police Capt. David Golden.

Mrs. Gailiunas was found tied to her bed on Oct. 4, 1983, police said. She had been choked and shot twice in the head. She died two days later at Presbyterian Hospital in Dallas.

Officers said two of the charges against Mrs. Aylor stem from an incident in June 1986 when shots were fired at her husband in rural Kaufman County. Aylor was not injured.

William Wesley Garland, 45, of Dallas, Brian Lee Kreafles, 35, of Rowlett, and Joseph Walter Thomas, 46, of McAlester, Okla., were charged with conspiracy to commit capital murder and solicitation of capital murder.

Dukakis promotes insurance plan

STATE

HOUSTON (AP) — Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis said a mandatory insurance health plan recently developed in his home state of Massachusetts is a model to his proposal for a national employee health coverage program.

"This country, I think, is a country that cares a lot about each other and our fellow citizens, but you're all examples of what's happening here," he told about 20 people who gathered Tuesday at Houston's Hermann Hospital in a talk show-type format with Dukakis as moderator.

The setting was designed to spotlight Dukakis' stance on health care, which he described as an area of growing problems that has been ignored by his Republican opponent, Vice President George Bush.

During his hospital tour, Dukakis met with members of the Hermann Hospital Board of Directors, which includes former Democratic Gov. Mark White.

"I think this dramatizes the serious problem we have with health care in this state and throughout the country, where an enormous number of people are underinsured or left completely without insurance," White said.

"And we all pay for it one way or another. I think this shows that Michael Dukakis and Lloyd Bentsen are going to do something about a problem that George Bush has done absolutely nothing about."

Dukakis heard Houston area residents complain about the rising costs of insurance, their inability to maintain coverage after losing jobs and the limitations of employee-sponsored insurance.

"My state, as you know, was the first state in the country to pass legislation to guarantee health insurance," Dukakis said during the forum at the hospital's outpatient oncology clinic.

"It's really bringing down a barrier to a lot of people, to let them go back to work, look for work and know that they've got some kind of basic security."

Among those in the forum was Sherri Rolls of Houston, who was in an automobile accident about a month ago and remains hospitalized and in a wheelchair.

"I had insurance that paid $7,500, but my bills are already up to $27,000 now and I have two children that I can't care for," she told Dukakis. The cafeteria where she worked offered a group rate, she said, but offered no assistance in paying for the medical plan.

Bob Clowers, president of the local United Steel Workers union at the now-closed USX steel plant in Baytown, said former plant workers are suffering regardless of whether they've found other jobs.

"The majority of my membership down there have either no health insurance at all or very little. They're hoping that no one gets sick or their kids don't get hurt," Clowers said, explaining that many local companies provide little assistance in paying insurance costs.

"You go to an emergency room and most of the time, there's a confrontation about whether or not they're going to look at your kids," he said.

The Dukakis campaign issued a statement Tuesday saying that, as president, Dukakis would propose legislation requiring all employers to provide health plans for workers. The proposal, with special provisions for small and start-up businesses, would offer insurance to an estimated 22 million people who have none.

"If we can do it in one state we can do it for all Americans," Dukakis told an audience at Western Kentucky University Tuesday afternoon.

He provided few details to his insurance plan and aides said specifics such as minimum level of benefits and employer share of the cost would be a matter for negotiation as legislation was drafted in Congress.

Dukakis' health adviser, Dr. David Blumenthal of Boston, said the proposed national plan was patterned after a Massachusetts system not yet six months old, which is to provide health care coverage to every state resident by 1992.

Clements: Bush needs solid win to help others

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican candidates for statewide offices need a solid victory by George Bush in the presidential race to get a lift in their own contests, Gov. Bill Clements says.

Bush must earn 54 percent of the Texas vote Nov. 8 "if there's going to be any coattails," Clements said Tuesday.

Predicting that Bush would carry Texas, Clements also said Lloyd Bentsen's Senate bid would have more impact on the other Texas races than his vice presidential candidacy will have on the White House contest.

"Lloyd would like to think he's going to influence the presidential race. I don't think he will," Clements said in an interview with a small group of reporters.

"What Lloyd is going to do is affect those down-ballot races...He's not formidable as far as I'm concerned with respect to (Michael) Dukakis. So far as down the ballot is concerned, Lloyd is going to have an impact," Clements said.

Under state election law, Bentsen was allowed to remain a candidate for a fourth U.S. Senate term after Democratic presidential nominee Dukakis chose him for a running mate. He faces Amarillo Congressman Beau Boulter in the Senate contest.

Among the down-ballot races being contested this year are six for the Texas Supreme Court and two for the Railroad Commission.

Clements said that despite all the campaigning the GOP judicial candidates are doing, they still need the boost of a big Bush victory.

"They (Supreme Court candidates) are not known. The people out there are voting blind for them," he said.

Clements, who has waged three statewide races of his own and is co-chairman of Bush's Texas campaign, said that to obtain "saturation coverage" in the state's numerous major television markets is costly.

To purchase adequate television advertising time to sufficiently improve a candidate's name identification among voters "is terribly expensive...When these judges raise $1 million, it is nothing." Clements said no gubernatorial candidate, for example, can win without spending at least $10 million.

Heading the list of Republican court hopefuls is Chief Justice Tom Phillips, appointed by Clements after Democrat John Hill resigned in mid-term. Due to resignations and the regular rotation of Supreme Court elections, five other seats on the nine-judge bench also are at stake.

Clements said Phillips might win if Bush receives a little less than 54 percent. Former congressman Kent Hance, seeking to keep the Railroad Commission seat to which he was appointed, also might win if the GOP presidential candidate gets a slightly smaller majority, Clements said.

'Ugly' yellow sub stolen from garage

AUSTIN (AP) — Garage owner Ray Ritchie says nobody needed to steal his yellow submarine — he'd have given it to them.

"It was very heavy and very ugly," he says. "That sucker weighs over 600 pounds. I would have given the sub to anyone — if they would have allowed me to watch them load it."

Ritchie purchased the one-man sub at an Internal Revenue Service auction last month, then displayed it in front of his shop, Brykerwood Garage.

He was the only person at the auction interested in the sub, since it was both ugly and basically useless.

He purchased it for $10. And that, Ritchie said, is when the trouble started.

"It was a very hot day in August, mid-day, and there were three of us. We lifted one end of the submarine, put it on a barrel and rolled it. The van was a little smaller than the submarine, but we were able to tie it in and get it over here to the shop.

"We had about two-thirds of the submarine hanging out the back of my van. It looked like we were smuggling a nuclear device," he said.

The yellow sub was distinctive.

"It was about 24 foot long. When it sat on the ground it stood up about 6 foot tall and it had a little canopy in the center and it had a bullet nose and a bullet tail," Ritchie said.

For about a month, the sub was on display at his garage. "People looked in disbelief, but that was about all," he said.

Then late last week, somebody stole it.

Since it was so heavy, Ritchie said he's wondering how the thieves made off with it, and why. "That's why I haven't reported it stolen, because I'm afraid if the police find it, they're going to make me come get it," Ritchie said.

It might be hard getting horned frogs to race

FORT WORTH (AP) — The idea of staging horned frog races in conjunction with Fort Worth's annual Pioneer Days celebration seems wonderful — except for one small drawback.

"Oh yeah, they tend to flatten out and not move," said Pioneer Days chairwoman Carol Becker. "We're probably going to have a real short track."

Horned frogs, also known as horned toads, are dust-colored creatures from one to five inches long that are covered with horn-like spikes all over their backs. Actually a type of lizard, horned frogs make themselves especially unattractive to those who pester them by squirting jets of blood out of their eyes.

Bob Hunter, who is coordinating next Sunday afternoon's races at the historic Fort Worth Stockyards, thinks horned frogs make perfectly acceptable racing stock.

The races also are a fitting tribute to the local Horned Frogs of Texas Christian University, he pointed out. Still, Hunter doesn't know of anyone else who is staging organized horned frog racing.

The main problem, as Becker anticipates, will be making them run.

"We'll let you try to frighten the little rascals into running. Or you can put some food down at the other end and hope they're hungry. We'll let you do anything that's humane," Hunter said.

Hunter said Pioneer Days officials are trying to find someone to make small, colored jockey silks for the horned frogs to wear, since all of the lizards tend to closely resemble each other.

"That way everybody can root for their own favorite toad," Hunter said.

Six horned toads are in Hunter's possession, he said, and are currently "in training" for Sunday's post time. He hasn't gone to great lengths to put them on a special training diet, however.

"It's mostly what they can catch," he said. "They're big on ants."

Owners of stolen van coincidentally drive up behind it

ALTUS, Okla. (AP) — A van stolen from an Altus funeral home has wound up back with its rightful owners through a coincidence that has Dallas police scratching their heads.

The passenger van disappeared last Wednesday from Tims Funeral Home in Altus. On Saturday, cousins Timmy and Todd Tims were in Dallas when they took a wrong exit off the interstate — and found themselves driving behind their stolen van.

The cousins followed the van to a parking lot, where a security guard helped detain the driver for Dallas police. Authorities first questioned the cousins' story, but gave them the van back when it was verified.

"This was really weird," Todd Tims said. "We were driving down an interstate in Dallas and turned off an exit to look for a hotel. We were sitting at a stop light and the van drove by and I said 'There goes our van.' And Timmy said, 'There's no way that's our van.' "

"I thought Todd was crazy," said Timmy Tims. "What are the odds of seeing your van after it's been stolen for two days?"

Cavazos assumes new post

Cavazos

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lauro Cavazos reported for his first full day of work as the new education secretary today with plans to meet his staff and outline where he stands on the issues and how he'll manage the Department of Education.

Cavazos, confirmed by the Senate 94-0 and sworn into office by fellow Texan and Republican presidential nominee George Bush in a White House ceremony Tuesday, had planned three get-acquainted sessions with department employees this morning, a spokesman said.

"He considers that an important courtesy, that people should meet their boss directly before they meet him on television," said spokesman Tom Lyon.

Cavazos planned to fly home to Lubbock later in the day following a scheduled news conference at the department.

The president of Texas Tech University and its medical school, Cavazos is the first Hispanic member of a president's Cabinet.

President Reagan called the 61-year-old registered Democrat "a sterling example of the magnificent contributions Hispanic Americans have made to our national life."

"Larry Cavazos has already made a major contribution to American education," Reagan said. "He brings to his new post a record of solid accomplishments that promises even bigger contributions in the future."

But on top of that, Reagan said, Cavazos brings "something even more important to our schools and to our students, something I've made a cornerstone of this administration's policies since day one — the idea of educational excellence and a passionate commitment to quality schools."

Bush gave Cavazos the oath of office as Cavazos' wife, Peggy, held the family bible. The couple's 10 children also attended the East Room ceremony.

Cavazos said Reagan's leadership and commitment to education had "truly helped this country make significant gains and strides" but "we must awaken America to renew its commitment to education" to help all citizens reach their potential.

Earlier, senators praised Cavazos, the son of a Texas cattleman on the legendary King Ranch who worked his way through college and graduate school to become president of Texas Tech.

"It is a great testament to Larry Cavazos and his family that he has risen from the son of a cowboy to become the first educator of America," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas. "He's committed to quality education for all our citizens."

Hispanic leaders have questioned the timing of Reagan's decision to nominate Cavazos in the waning months of his administration and suggest he was courting Hispanic votes to bolster Bush's candidacy in Texas, one of the key battleground states in the November election.

"I think the people see it for what it is," said Rep. Albert Bustamante, a San Antonio Democrat and chairman of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus.

Bustamante said voters will focus on "more substantial issues like cutbacks in education that occurred under this administration, (as well as in) housing, health care, stipends for higher education, grants; they'll look at those things and they'll review the record of both parties, and then they'll decide and...they'll not be for Bush and (Dan) Quayle."

Question still surrounds flap position, paper says

WASHINGTON (AP) — A preliminary analysis of evidence in the crash of Delta Flight 1141 shows the jet's wing flaps may have been lowered for takeoff, but in an improper position, officials said in a published report.

A source familiar with the investigation told the Dallas Morning News in today's editions the analysis of the plane's cockpit voice recorder picked up the sound of two "clicks."

Some investigators say the clicks could be the sound of the crew moving the Boeing 727-200's flap-selection lever, first to the 2-degree setting and then to the 5-degree position.

Federal investigators have previously targeted the flaps in a search for the cause of the Aug. 31 crash that killed 14 people. Investigators have been trying to determine whether the plan's flaps, control surfaces on the wings that provide extra lift, were extended in their proper 15-degree position at takeoff.

"What you hear (on the tape of the cockpit conversation) are two 'clicks' in quick succession," said the source, who asked that his name not be used. "That means that the flaps were at least at the 5-degree setting.

"If it's 2 degrees or 5 degrees or 15 degrees, there are differences" in the way the plane flies, a safety board official said.

"The question of whether there would be noticeable differences...all of this will have to be determined through performance analysis of the aircraft."

SAT scores constant, board says

By LEE MITGANG

NEW YORK (AP) — Average SAT scores were virtually unchanged for the fourth straight year, but that won't stop educators and interest groups from quarreling about the significance of those numbers.

Scores on the verbal section of the Scholastic Aptitude Test fell two points, to an average 428, while the national average on the math section was unchanged at 476, according to the College Board's annual report released Monday.

Both portions of the multiple-choice exam taken each year by 1.1 million college-bound students are scored on a scale of 200-800, with a combined 1600 being perfect.

The combined math-verbal average of 904 marked the first decline in eight years, and followed three years of no change at 906.

Minority students, however, continued a decade-long pattern of impressive gains.

National averages on the ACT, the predominant college entrance exam in 28 states mostly in the West and Midwest, also were little changed. The approximately 1 million students who took the ACT last school year averaged 18.8 on a scale of 1-36, up slightly from the 18.7 average the year before, according to the American College Testing Program, the Iowa City, Iowa-based organization that administers the test.

The College Board painted the "stability" of test scores as good news of a sort. Board president Donald Stewart said scores are holding up well despite a 13 percent increase in the number of test-takers in the last two years alone. More test-takers usually bring down the averages.

But to a nation that's heard much talk for five years from politicians and educators about how reform would transform school life, the latest SAT news was bound to be disappointing.

In a statement Monday, Education Secretary William J. Bennett blamed the school establishment for the fall-off in scores: "No medals for America in this news. I said in April that 'the absolute level at which our improvements are taking place is unacceptably low.' Today it's a bit lower, and still not acceptable. C'mon, team! Back into training."

Added Scott Thomson, executive director of the National Association of Secondary School Principals: "We are always disappointed when the scores don't improve each year, because secondary schools are more rigorous than they were five years ago.

"If the impact doesn't show in the next year or two, then we really have to go back and seriously re-examine the problems," Thomson said.

An Analysis

The flat SAT scores may, in fact, be evidence of what American Federation of Teachers leader Albert Shanker and others have said recently: that reform has only nipped at the margins of classroom life in all but a few school districts. For most children, nothing much has changed.

"There's no question that graduation requirements have changed. Students are taking more math and other academic subjects than five years ago," said Thomson. "But has reform changed the way teachers instruct in class? Has there been a profound change in student learning? The answer is no."

Apart from the national averages, the College Board released numbers showing how blacks and other minorities compared with whites, males with females, and states with each other — enough statistical grist for a year's worth of arguments among school critics and advocates.

Black students in the class of '88 averaged 353 on the verbal portion, up two points, and math scores rose seven points to 384 — especially heartening since the number of black test-takers rose 39 percent in three years from 70,156 in 1985 to 97,483 last year.

Scores by blacks have risen 51 points since 1976, as the scores of all test-takers gained only one point.

But the gulf between blacks and whites remains 198 points. And recent gains have not stilled standardized test critics who accuse the SAT of cultural and racial bias.

Nonetheless, higher SATs by minority students provide arguments for those in favor of continuing and expanding Head Start and other federal education programs started in the 1960s and 1970s that the College Board and others now credit with helping boost scores in the 1980s.

A more subtle issue is the persistent gap between males and females. Males scored an average 498 math and 435 verbal; females scored 455 math, 422 verbal. Test critics including FairTest of Cambridge, Mass., have charged that the SAT is biased against women in its wording and content. College Board officials deny that and offer figures showing that females take less demanding studies.

The board said that 59 percent of female test-takers took four years of math, compared with 68 percent of males. And while 43 percent of males had four years of natural science study, only 32 percent of females did.

Sample SAT questions given

Here are questions from a test administered on May 2, 1987, reprinted by permission of the Educational Testing Service, which is the copyright owner of the questions. Included is the percentage of test-takers correctly answering each.

MATH:

"If a, b, and c are integers, the expression a(b + c) is always equal to each of the following EXCEPT

(A) (a + b)c
(B) a(c + b)
(C) (c + b)a
(D) ab + ac

Answer is (A); correctly answered by 79 percent of test-takers.

"If the average (arithmetic mean) of six numbers is -6, and the sum of four of the numbers is 20, what is the average of the other two numbers?

(A) 7
(B) 8
(C) -8
(D) -28
(E) -32

Answer is (D); correctly answered by 16 percent of test-takers.

Cemetery worker gets married in mausoleum

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — To paraphrase an old saying: Better wed than dead — particularly in that mausoleum.

That's where a Flint couple began their married life, because the bride said such a structure represents the loving qualities of her new marriage.

"It's a sanctuary, a place of love and a place of memories," said Gwen Lynk, the bride and a sales counselor at Flint Memorial Park. "And we (employees and owners of the cemetery) all treat each other like family here, and it was nice to be among family."

Lynk and Steven S. Schultz were married Sunday in the building — which has skylights and stained glass windows — amid balloons, streamers, floral arrangements and tombs.

Some of the preceremony guests were people who came to visit crypts, unaware of the wedding.

"They were favorably impressed that we were going to be married in that setting," Lynk said.

OPEC head admits overproduction

SINGAPORE (AP) — OPEC's price committee may not call for an emergency meeting of the full cartel when it meets later this month, the president of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said Tuesday.

Speaking at a press conference at the Asia-Pacific Petroleum Conference here, Rilwanu Lukman also said OPEC's production may be higher than recent estimates.

Lukman said the five-member committee scheduled to meet Sept. 25 and 26 at an as yet undisclosed location, has a number of items on its agenda besides the current oversupply of oil that has depressed world prices.

"Present (oil market) conditions are serious, but whether they warrent an emergency meeting is for the committee to decide," Lukman said. "...It's by no means the only problem we have on hand."

While the price committee cannot determine policy or set production limits, it has the authority to call a meeting of the full cartel, which can.

World oil prices have declined in recent weeks on fears that several OPEC countries were continuing to overproduce, adding to the already excessive supply of oil. Last week, U.S. crude oil prices dipped to near a two-year low then rebounded slightly on reports that OPEC was reducing its output.

However, Lukman estimated OPEC production is between 19 million and 19.5 million barrels a day, higher than recent estimates of between 18.5 million and 19 million barrels.

The OPEC president cautioned it was difficult to assess current cartel output.

"I think some people are very brave or very smart to make an estimate," he said.

On Monday, an industry newsletter said that Saudi Arabia, OPEC's largest producer, was intentionally exceeding it production quota to challenge other members to reduce their output.

Lukman said OPEC cooperation with non-OPEC oil producers would be another topic for discussion at next week's meeting, along with the Iran-Iraq cease-fire. He said collaboration with non-OPEC producers is "perhaps the only way we can get better (crude oil) prices."

"The fact of the matter is there's some form of overproduction, and it's not just OPEC alone," Lukman said.

Lukman said OPEC is looking for specific cuts in non-OPEC production "as a guide to what (OPEC) will be able to do ourselves to help in pushing prices up."

The cessation of hostilities between Iran and Iraq would help OPEC planning, he said, but added that he doesn't expect Iraq to return to its OPEC-assigned quota of 1.5 million barrels a day.

Iraq is said to be producing approximately 2.7 million barrels of oil a day and the country's oil minister said recently that it may have to increase its output to gain the necessary revenue to rebuild its war-torn economy.

"If they want to do 2.7 million, suppose Saudi Arabia says they won't go below 10 million (barrels per day) as a counter to what Iraq said?" Lukman asked, quickly stressing his example was hypothetical. Earlier, he denied he had information that Saudi Arabia was overproducing.

NCNB giving Texas banks cash infusion

DALLAS (AP) — NCNB Corp. has announced a plan to sell certificates of deposit that could raise as much as $1 billion for its Texas banks.

NCNB Corp. Chairman Hugh McColl said Tuesday the program, never before used by the Charlotte, N.C.-based holding company, was "important to demonstrate to Texans that we plan to bring money to Texas — and not just use its money elsewhere."

Under the program, wall street brokers will raise the money from customers nationwide and funnel it to NCNB Texas Bank. Potential brokers include Merrill Lynch & Co. and Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc.

The program also should indicate NCNB's strength, said Timothy Hartman, vice chairman of NCNB Texas.

"When Texans see that people elsewhere are sending their deposits to NCNB Texas, we hope they'll appreciate the strength of our bank," Hartman said.

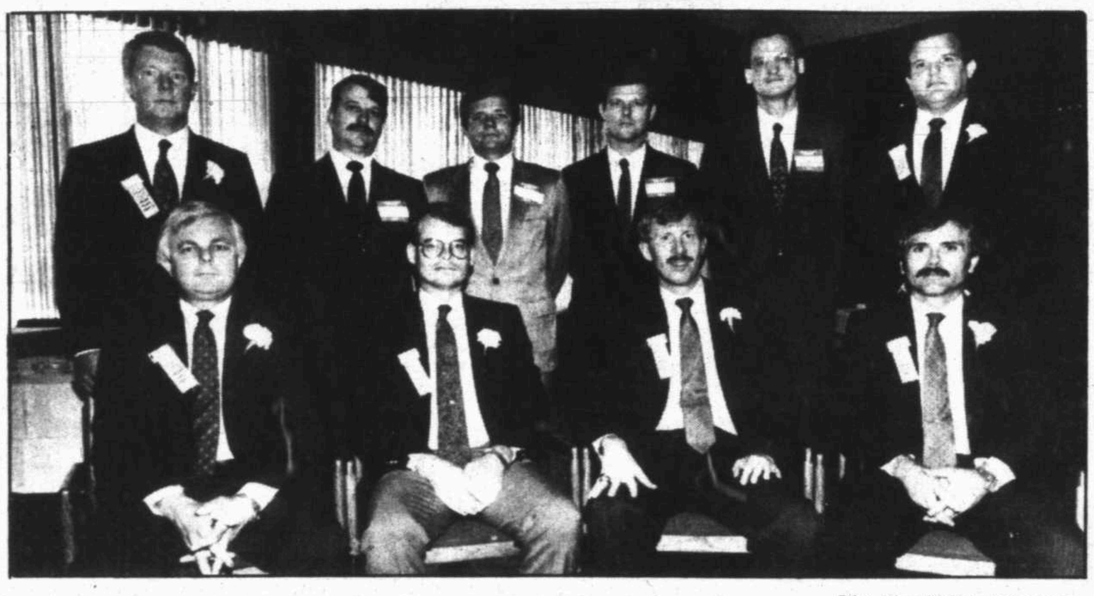

NCNB Texas's overall deposits have been about even since Aug. 1, but the company lost some large accounts.

Because the FDIC merged the former 40 banks of First Republic into one institution, consumers will lose the ability to spread deposits among several banks to increase the FDIC coverage beyond its normal limit of $100,000.

McColl also told a group of developers that NCNB would not worsen the depressed real estate market by quickly selling the huge portfolio of properties foreclosed by First Republic.

NCNB can share in the profits from selling the foreclosed real estate once the local market has recovered, he said.

Terra upbeat about Basin's future

By ALLEN E. HOWLAND
Assistant Business/Oil Editor

Tulsa-based Terra Resources Inc. and its 42 Permian Basin region employees were honored by the Midland Wildcatter Committee Tuesday at the Petroleum Club.

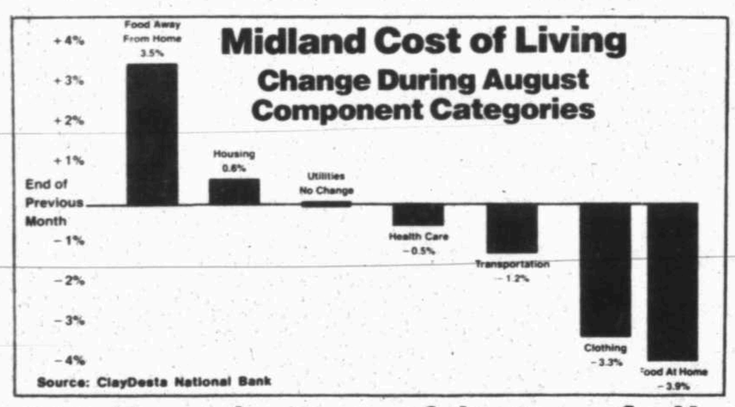

The independent producing company operates about 150 wells in this region, concentrated in the Midland Basin and southeastern New Mexico, according to Terra president Ron Rinard.

"We are optimistic about the Permian Basin and our future in it," Rinard said.

The company maintains a Midland office which has grown every year since it was established in 1977. The company expects to drill 30 wells this year — a mixture of oil and gas prospects, said the president.

Based on expectations of $17 per barrel oil and $1.75 per Mcf gas, Terra is planning to drill another 40 development and exploration projects during 1989. Rinard said the company plans use a 10 percent annual appreciation of oil and gas prices for future years in examining the economics of current drilling prospects.

Founded in the 1940s, Terra moved its headquarters to Tulsa in 1971, where it is centrally located among its operations in the Permian Basin, the Rockies, the Gulf Coast, the Black Warrior Basin in Mississippi and Alabama and the Midcontinent region.

Decision saves exchange of interests among oil firms

By ALLEN E. HOWLAND
Assistant Business/Oil Editor

A potential threat to the basic operating tenets of the oil patch was defused by a recent decision by the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

A $300,000 damage award plus $100,000 in punitive damages granted by a Midland jury was appealed by R.P. Baxter Sr., his wife Colleen S. Baxter and their son Brady R. Baxter.

The Baxters contended that failure to register a divided royalty interest in an oil lease constituted a violation of securities law, and therefore they were justified in stopping payments under their operating agreements.

Had the Baxters' appeal been granted, it could have potentially undermined the primary stock in trade of both major and independent oil companies, said Discovery Operating Inc. president Don Sparks.

Requiring oil and gas operators to register each lease as a separate security would, in effect, make the operator a insurer of the outcome of a joint venture project — liable to any purchaser of an interest in the well who was dissatisfied with the outcome of the program — Sparks said.

Such an arrangement would have had a distinctly chilling effect on intercompany exchanges of interests among oil firms.

The remodeling on DILLARD'S second location in Midland Park Mall is nearing completion, and the department store has scheduled a grand opening for Oct. 5.

The festivities will begin at 9 a.m. with an invitation-only breakfast, followed by a ribbon cutting at 9:45. The ribbon will be 500 feet long and stretch from the existing store to the new store. Representatives of the Midland Chamber of Commerce and Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce will on hand, according to Jean Lawrence, special events coordinator.

The new Dillard's — formerly the Sakowitz location — will consist of the men's and children's department, Lawrence said. The additional space will allow for a shoe department in both the children's and men's areas, as adding new lines and expanding existing ones.

In the men's department, there will be bays for men's cosmetics, fragrances and sweaters.

After the opening of the new store, Dillard's will begin a multimillion dollar facelift on the existing store, Lawrence added.

Set to open Sept. 27 at 2300 W. Wadley St. — despite the road construction — is BARBERS ETC., owned by Betty Fitzgerald.

Despite the image the name conjures, Barbers Etc. will be a haircare center for the entire family, offering cuts, styling, permanents and other services, Fitzgerald stressed. Also available will be hair replacement service and a private styling room. Employees include Fitzgerald, Harold Jones and Rita Mitchell.

The shop, located next to Coney Island Hot Dogs, will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays.

Making a change not only in location but in name is BABIES BASEMENT, currently at 206 N. Midkiff.

The store, which sells infant and childrens' clothing and other items, will move over the week-end to 11 Meta Drive, near Antiques Etc., according to Cassie Scott, store manager. When it opens Monday, it will be known as THAT'S MY BABY.

Also on the move to the Village Shopping Center is BARGAIN BASEMENT, which recently moved to 14 Meta Drive from 906 S. Garfield. Glenda Hart, who owns the consignment store with Vickie Williams and Betty O'Neil said the new location is four times the size of their former store.

Bargain Basement sells clothing for men, women and children on consignment, as well as shoes and accessories and opened about a year ago. Hart said she is now taking not only clothing but baby furniture such as baby beds, walkers, cribs, and high chairs, on consignment.

FASHION CLEANERS & TUXEDO SHOP has settled into its new location in Imperial Shopping Center.

Fashion recently moved its tuxedo sales and rental shop to Imperial from Oak Ridge Square, and at the same time opened a dry cleaning drop-off and pick-up outlet, managed by Arlene Evans. This gives Fashion its third outlet. The other two are at ClayDesta Plaza and 801 W. Wall.

Terry Robertson, who manages the tuxedo shop, said the new location is larger and allows her to carry a larger selection of tuxedos and accessories such as shirts and cumerbunds. She can also special order items.

New contract opens up 21 cents

From Staff and Wire Reports

Energy futures prices ended mixed Tuesday after a last-minute rally sparked by the closeout of the October crude oil contract and anticipation of lower gasoline and oil inventories.

The November delivery contract, which closed Tuesday at $14.37, rose 21 cents in early trading this morning to stand at $14.58, on the New York Mercantile Exchange. The October contract for West Texas Intermediate settled 31 cents higher at $15.04 per barrel. Other contract months closed lower.

Analysts said the afternoon rally was led by last-minute trading in advance of the October contract's expiration at the close of the trading day Tuesday, coupled with expectations that the American Petroleum Institute's weekly statistics would show a substantial drop in U.S. oil and gasoline stocks.

OPEC-related news, in the meantime, was pushed to the back burner until after the API report, traders said. Oil futures prices have fluctuated wildly in recent weeks in anticipation of an OPEC price committee meeting scheduled for next Monday and Tuesday at a location not yet announced.

The market has had a mixed response to whether such a meeting could lead to a gathering of all 13 members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries at a later date and possible curtailment of the cartel's oil output.

Last week's hurricane threat in the Gulf of Mexico closed refineries and disrupted oil and gasoline production for several days. Traders said the market was poised Tuesday for a larger-than-expected drop in inventories in advance of the API report.

Bud Degorgue, an oil broker with Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc., said rumors circulated around the market that crude oil inventories could be down by as much as 16 million barrels because of last week's hurricane threat.

"However, analysts don't expect crude stocks to be off by more than 5 (million) or 6 million barrels," Degorgue said.

Dollar steady awaiting CPI report

LONDON (AP) — The dollar was trading steadily against major currencies on quiet European markets today as players awaited U.S. inflation figures and a Group of Seven meeting.

Gold prices fell sharply, toward $400 an ounce, after a steep decline in New York on Tuesday.

In Tokyo, the dollar edged up 0.03 yen to a closing 134.18 yen. Later, in London, it was quoted at 134.15 yen.

Other dollar rates at midmorning, compared with late Tuesday:

—1.8717 West German marks, up from 1.8641

—1.5810 Swiss francs, up from 1.5740

—6.3617 French francs, up from 6.3385

—2.1069 Dutch guilders, down from 2.1075

—1,391.25 Italian lire, down from 1,391.50

—1.2180 Canadian dollars, down from 1.2203

In London, the British pound was quoted at $1.679 dollars, cheaper for buyers than late Tuesday's $1.6865.

On the precious metals market, gold prices continued to slide following the Tuesday drop in New York, which traders attributed to a growing investor disillusionment with gold.

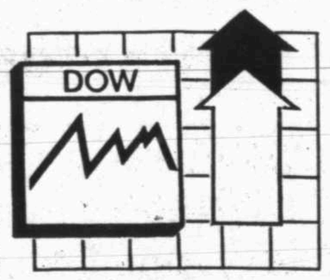

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $402 a troy ounce, sharply down from $410 bid late Tuesday. At midmorning today, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $401.60.

In Zurich, the bid price was $402.50, down from $410.50 bid late Tuesday.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold dropped $7.74 to close at a bid $405.38.

Silver was quoted in London today at a bid price of $6.20 a troy ounce, down from $6.36 bid late Tuesday.

Stocks bounce back from selloff

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a modest gain in lethargic trading on Tuesday, recovering some of the ground lost in the previous session.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which fell 17.07 points on Monday, bounced up 6.40 points to close at 2,087.48.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by more than 4 to 3 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 862 issues up, 603 down and 500 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the NYSE came to 142.22 million shares, up from 135.77 million in the previous session. Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trading at regional exchanges and on the over-the-counter market, totaled 167.39 million shares.

Jack Baker, head of institutional trading at Shearson Lehman Hutton Inc., said the gains reflected a technical rebound from Monday's selloff.

As measured by Wilshire Associates' index of more than 5,000 actively traded stocks, the market rose $8.983 billion, or 0.34 percent, in value.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed stocks rose 0.52 to 152.44.

Standard & Poor's industrial index rose 1.02 to 309.47, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was up 0.91 to 269.73.

BUSINESS IN BRIEF

Corporate profits surge nearly 9 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Corporations reported an 8.9 percent surge in profits for the second quarter, the biggest increase in nearly five years, the government announced.

The Commerce Department said Tuesday that after-tax profits in April, May and June jumped to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $162.7 billion.

Tuesday's report represents a downward revision from an estimate of 11.5 percent. Still, it was the sharpest rise since an 11.4 percent gain in the third quarter of 1983.

Retailers, executives look for improvements

NEW YORK (AP) — Retailers expect higher sales and prices as the holiday season approaches, while business executives in general foresee fatter profits in the final quarter of 1988, a private report says.

Dun & Bradstreet Corp. said Tuesday its survey of 1,500 executives found that although expectations had moderated along with signs of a slowing economy, business executives were painting the rosiest profit picture since 1984.

Retailers have high expectations for holiday sales, the firm said.

Phillips' performance inspires higher rating

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — A New York credit rating company has raised its rating of two of Phillips Petroleum Co.'s outstanding debt issues because of the company's strong operating performance.

Moody's Investors Services Inc. said Phillips' crediworthiness was enhanced by efforts in reducing the energy company's debt and prospects for additional improvement in its balance sheet and financial flexibility.

Moody's raised Phillips' senior debt from BA1 to BAA3 and its subordinated debentures from BA3 to BA2. It said about $4.9 billion of debt is affected.

Equipment firms fighting bill banning sales to Iraq

By ANNE PEARSON
Hearst News Service

Houston — U.S. oil-field equipment makers are battling a bill that would cut them out of a share of the $3 billion Iraq is expected to spend rebuilding its war-torn economy.

To protest Iraq's reported use of chemical weapons to quell Kurdish tribal uprisings along the Iraqi-Turkish border, the U.S. Senate has voted to ban sales of controlled U.S. exports — including oil-field goods — to Iraq. House committees are pondering a similar measure.

Iraq plans to rebuild its economy, strained in the long war against Iran, with oil revenues. U.S. manufacturers say if they do not sell Iraq the equipment, U.S. allies such as France, Britain or West Germany will move in on the market.

The ban will deprive an already battered industry of a windfall opportunity for new exports, according to the equipment makers.

"We're not really shooting ourselves in the foot, we're shooting ourselves in the head again," said Guy Marcus, vice president for investor relations with Halliburton Co. of Dallas, a major player in the equipment and service market.

Marcus said Halliburton has made "nominal" sales to Iraq in recent years, but it was looking forward to the new sales opportunities expected after the cease-fire.

The United States has unsuccessfully tried using trade bans to accomplish political goals in the past, said Herb Ryan, director of investor relations for Dallas-based Dresser Industries, another major equipment and service supplier. Ryan estimated Dresser makes $25 million to $50 million a year in sales to Iraq.

"Competing nations look at trade as being trade and politics as something different," he said, contending that those nations don't try to achieve political objectives at the expense of the private sector.

The U.S. Department of Commerce estimates Iraq will spend about $3 billion on oil-field services and equipment in the next two or three years, Ryan said, and that could mean a tremendous number of new U.S. jobs.

"If every $100,000 in sales creates a job for one person, you're talking about a significant number of people," Ryan said.

The Petroleum Equipment Suppliers Association, the Houston-based trade group that represents U.S. equipment makers, has appealed to congressional delegations in Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma to fight passage of the bill, the organization's executive vice president J. Stephen Larkin said Tuesday.

Sanctions "subsidize and encourage the development of new foreign competitors who avail themselves of business opportunities that PESA member companies are forced to abandon," PESA President Robert H. Smith of National Oilwell wrote to House Speaker Jim Wright last week.

Smith said that about 600 companies in 38 foreign countries are poised to sell Iraq the same equipment if the United States will not allow its own industries to compete for those sales.

DECISION

The Fifth Circuit agreed with the lower appellate court which held that joint venturers in an oil program have no claim for violation of state or federal securities law.

A second contention in the Baxter's appeal was that the standard operating agreement in force on the projects in the suit constituted an investment contract, which could be subjected to Texas and U.S. securities law.

Once again, the circuit court found the arguments that the investors expected to benefit solely through the efforts of other lacking as well.

While Sparks was pleased that the actual and punitive damages were upheld by the courts, he wishes the decision had been more sweeping in its endorsement of standard operating agreements used by most producers.

The court's decision held that the specific agreement between Discovery and the Baxters was not an investment contract but a joint venture, but also limited that decision to the particular agreement.

NCNB

"Our pledge to the FDIC and the governor of Texas is to try to restore the value of those assets, not destroy asset values."

McColl said NCNB Texas already has reduced borrowings from the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas by $400 million to $500 million.

Cash raised by Wall Street brokers will help reduce borrowings even more, Hartman said. When NCNB completes its deal with the FDIC, which is expected by the end of October, the company will receive enough cash from the FDIC to fully repay the Fed borrowings, he said.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Two wrongs make reader write — not right

By BILL DOYLE

Q. The column in which you wrote that Series E, U.S. Savings Bonds, stop drawing interest when they reach their extended maturity dates was dead wrong.

The woman I spoke to at the Federal Reserve Bank states, "All E bonds issued during the 1940s and later are continuing to accrue interest and will continue to do so until redeemed."

What do you say now?

Doyle

A. An adage in the newspaper business goes: "The readers always write." Usually, they are right; sometimes, they are wrong — as you are in this case. So is that woman at the Federal Reserve Bank. If you don't believe me, phone that bank again and speak to someone in the Savings Bond department.

Back on Jan. 10, 1979, W. Michael Blumenthal, then Secretary of the Treasury, decreed that no additional extended maturities would be given to the oldest E bonds — those issued between May 1941 and April 1952 — and that those bonds would stop accruing interest exactly 40 years after their issue dates.

That pronouncement, a kick in the rump to long-term E bond holders, was immediately tabbed "The Blumenthal Blunder." It gave owners of 40-year-old E bonds a choice similar to The Godfather's "offer you can't refuse."

They can redeem those bonds or they can exchange their old Es for Series HH, U.S. Savings Bonds.

If they redeem the bonds, they receive the price they paid plus accrued interest. Then, they must pay federal income tax on that interest in one shot — unless they have been reporting that interest each year on their returns, which mighty few people do.

If they make the exchange, which must be done within one year after old Es' extended maturity dates, they postpone the tax bite on the accrued E bond interest until the HHs received in the exchange are redeemed or mature. HHs pay interest by check twice a year. And that interest is subject to federal income tax.

Either way, owners of 40-year-old Es are hit with tax. That comes as a blow to many folks who had expected to hang on to their Es and cash them after retirement, when their income and taxes are lower.

Years ago, the U.S. Treasury Department promoted Savings Bond sales with the words: "All E bonds now outstanding — regardless of age — are still earning interest." That proud boast was sent into oblivion by The Blumenthal Blunder.

Q. A newspaper clipping I found when cleaning out my desk says, "The new Series EE Savings Bonds, which go on sale Jan. 1, 1980, will be called United States Energy Savings Bonds."

I bought E bonds before 1980 and have purchased EEs ever since. Not one contains the word "Energy." Why?

A. Because no Savings Bonds were ever printed with that word on them.

The aborted notion to name EE bonds Energy Bonds came out of Jimmy Carter's much-touted "Energy War" during the Middle East oil crisis.

An old press release I dug out of my rolltop desk's bottom drawer says, "The redesignation of the bonds as Energy Savings Bonds is intended to help focus attention on the national goals of reducing energy consumption and increasing domestic supplies... The Energy Savings Bonds will assist in financing the large federal energy expenditure required in the coming years."

But the federal government did not earmark money from the sale of Savings Bonds for energy savings purposes. And the so-called Energy War sort of petered out and disappeared.

transportation and groceries. August's annualized rate of deflation would equal 10.1 percent.

Restaurant prices jumped 3.5 percent in August, breaking three months of stability. Lower prices for dishes prepared with beef were offset by higher prices for fish entrees and non-alcoholic beverages.

Going the other way were grocery prices, which ended two months of increases and fell 3.9 percent. Higher prices for shelf items were offset by lower prices for meat, produce and alcoholic beverages.

Clothing costs fell 3.3 percent as a fourth month of lower price tags for men's wear was assisted by lower prices for women's apparel and children's wear. Price tags for women's clothing fell in August after two months of increases.

After five consecutive months of increases, transportation costs fell 1.2 percent in August, fueled by lower automobile insurance premiums and a dip in gasoline prices.

Health care costs fell for a second month, recording a 0.5 percent decline last month. Lower costs for dental care, which had been higher the previous month, offset higher prices for non-prescription medicine, which had fallen in July.

Midlanders saw their utility bills remain relatively stable in August, with an increase of only 0.02 percent reported, breaking five months of declines. A second month of lower gas bills, which fell 0.4 percent, was offset by a second month of higher electric bills, which rose 0.4 percent. Local water rates remained stable for the tenth month in a row.

After declining in July, housing costs rose 0.6 percent in August propelled by rental rates, which continue their see-saw action.

FROM YUPPIES TO WOOPIES...

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE

Stereotypical YUPPIES drive BMWs and wear Rolex watches, COCOONERS are content on the homefront with the family while COUCH POTATOES sack out in front of the television set.

But...what do they like to eat? Following are some serving suggestions appropriate for these new sociological sets...and more, from Cordon Bleu graduate, George A. Bay, Director of Marketing, Bays Corporation, a self-proclaimed DINK (Double Income No Kids) and up and coming COCOONER.

For those Young Urban Professionals (YUPPIES), their married versions, the DINKS, and the latest offshoot FLYERS (Fun-Loving Youth En Route to Success),...the crop of well-educated young city dwellers on the high-pressure corporate fast track, food tastes reflect their familiarity with other cultures, fast-paced lifestyles and penchant for being "on the cutting edge." An ideal hors d'oeuvre for these contemporary sets, "Roasted Red Peppers and Goat Cheese Appetizers" features an imaginative combination of sauteed garlic, tomato paste and basil baked on English muffin triangles. Topped with goat cheese and roasted red pepper strips and served bubbly and hot, these appetizers can be made in no time at all.

In contrast, WOOPIES (Well-Off Older People) have more time—and money—to enjoy the better things in life: travelling to far away places, visiting family, and exploring new experiences. To celebrate their new lifestyle, Bay recommends "The Elegant Muffin" featuring sauteed chunks of chicken breast flambeed with an apricot brandy, whipping cream and pommery mustard mixture, poured over toasted English muffin quarters.

COUCH POTATOES and their kissing cousins, SOFA SPUDS, derive great pleasure from watching TV and videos in the comfort of their own homes. For them, trendy is "out" but old-fashioned values are "in"-so "Traditional Party Pizzas" are the answer. English muffins topped with mozzarella cheese, sausage, mushrooms, green peppers and tomato sauce served bubbly and hot from the oven make an ideal treat for TV viewing.

Similarly, COCOONERS embrace the return to the family preferring a Saturday night meal at home instead of an expensive dinner in the city. For them, comfort foods are a mainstay—the return of meals "just like Mom used to make." Bay offers, "Apple Muffin Macaroon Cobbler," the perfect finish to a home-cooked meal, featuring an English muffin bread pudding with ground almonds and orange rind poured over a layer of apples and cinnamon and baked to a golden brown.

And finally for our youngest sociological set—the LATCHKEY CHILDREN—kids with working parents. For those children who come home from school craving a satisfying, simple and above all, easy-to-make snack, Bay created "Hot Dog Round Ups." These open-faced hot sandwiches cook in a microwave in just over a minute and for added fun, can be topped with a variety of condiments such as cheese and plenty of mustard and ketchup—making a great alternative to the standard peanut butter and jelly sandwich.

ROASTED RED PEPPER AND GOAT CHEESE APPETIZERS

Serves 4-5 YUPPIES, DINKS or FLYERS

- 1 clove garlic, minced or pressed
- 1 small shallot, minced
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
- 1 teaspoon tomato paste
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh basil (or 1 teaspoon dry)
- 2 Bays English Muffins
- 3 ounces soft goat cheese
- 1 tablespoon mayonnaise
- ½ large roasted red pepper (available in jars, or see directions below)*
- Freshly ground black pepper

Heat oven to 375 degrees. In a small pan, saute garlic and shallot in oil over medium-low heat just until soft. Remove from heat. Combine butter or margarine, tomato paste and basil in a small bowl, mixing until well blended. Add garlic mixture, mixing well. Spread each English muffin half with tomato-basil mixture; dividing evenly. Place on baking sheet and bake for 4 minutes. Remove from oven and set aside. Combine cheese and mayonnaise in small bowl. Cut 16 strips of red pepper for garnish; dice remaining pepper (about 2 tablespoons) and add to cheese mixture. Spread on muffin halves, dividing evenly. Cut each muffin half into quarters, making 16 appetizers. Place on baking sheet, sprinkle with pepper, garnish with pepper strip and return to oven for 4-5 minutes. Serve hot or warm.

*To roast pepper: cut pepper in half, lengthwise. Remove stem, seeds and white membrane. Place on a lightly oiled baking sheet, cut sides down. Roast in a preheated 450 degree oven for 15-20 minutes, until skin of pepper is blistered and blackened. Remove from oven and place immediately in a brown paper bag; twist bag neck closed and allow to stand 15 minutes. Remove from bag. Slip skin off by "plucking" blister open and slipping fingers under skin. Refrigerate until ready to use.

APPLE MUFFIN MACAROON COBBLER

Serves 6 COCOONERS

- ¾ cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 5 cups thinly sliced apples
- ½ cup apple juice

Topping

- ½ cup butter or margarine, softened
- ⅔ cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup ground almonds
- ½ cup half-and-half
- 2 teaspoons grated orange rind
- 3 Bays English Muffins, cut into ½-inch cubes

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. In medium-sized bowl, combine sugar, cornstarch, cinnamon and nutmeg. Mix in apples and juice. Arrange in greased 9 x 9-inch baking dish. Bake for 25 minutes. Remove from oven.

While apples are baking, in medium-sized bowl, cream butter and sugar until smooth. Add eggs; mixing well. Stir in almonds, half-and-half and orange rind. Fold in English muffin cubes. Spoon over apples. Continue baking for 20 to 25 minutes or until top is golden brown and apples are tender. Serve warm.

BAYS HOT DOG ROUND-UPS

Serves 1 LATCHKEY CHILD

- ½ Bays English Muffin, lightly toasted
- 1 hot dog
- 1 slice bacon
- 1 slice or 2 tablespoons, shredded American or Cheddar cheese
- Mustard, ketchup or relish
- Pickle slices

Slice hot dog at 1/4" intervals about ¾ of the way through, making sure not to slice all the way through. (It should resemble a comb). Place on a plate and micro-cook uncovered on 50% power for 2 minutes, turning once. Hot dog will curl and form an "O," or circle shape. Remove from oven and set aside. Line the same plate with paper towels (2 sheets). Place bacon strip on the towel and cover with 2 more sheets. Micro-cook at 100% power for 2 minutes. Remove from oven and set aside.

Place lightly toasted English muffin half on a plate. Cover with a slice of cheese. Top with the hot dog circle. Fill center of the circle with mustard, ketchup or relish (about 1 tablespoon). Break bacon slice in half and place an "X" on top of the hot dog. Garnish with pickle slices. Micro-cook for 1 minute at 50% power.

Shredded Cheese Variation:
Place lightly toasted English muffin half on a plate. Crumble bacon slice and sprinkle on muffin. Top with hot dog circle. Fill the center of the circle with mustard, ketchup or relish (about 1 tablespoon). Top with 2 tablespoons shredded cheese and micro-cook for 1 minute at 100% power, or until cheese melts.

TRADITIONAL PARTY PIZZAS

Serves 6 COUCH POTATOES

- 3 Bays English Muffins, split and toasted
- ½ ounces spaghetti sauce (with meat)
- Garlic salt
- Powdered oregano
- 9 ounces mozzarella cheese, shredded

Mushroom Pizza:
Top toasted muffin half with 1 tablespoon spaghetti sauce. Sprinkle with garlic salt and oregano. Top with 1 tablespoon drained canned mushroom slices—then a scant ¼ cup mozzarella cheese. Broil until done.

Pepperoni Pizza:
Top toasted muffin half with 1 tablespoon spaghetti sauce. Sprinkle with garlic salt and oregano. Top with three slices pepperoni sausage. Top with a scant ¼ cup mozzarella cheese. Broil until done.

Pesto Pizza:
Top toasted muffin half with 1 tablespoon spaghetti sauce. Add 1½ teaspoons pesto sauce. Sprinkle lightly with chopped walnuts. Top with scant ¼ cup mozzarella cheese. Broil until done.

EASY BLENDER PESTO RECIPE
Yield: 1 cup

- 1 cup fresh basil leaves, loosely packed
- 1 clove garlic, peeled
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅓ cup walnut halves
- ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- ½ cup olive oil, divided
- 1 tablespoon butter

In a blender, add all ingredients and ¼ cup of oil. Blend on low for 15 seconds; add the remaining oil in a thin stream (15-30 seconds more). Sauce should not be blended for more than 45 seconds total. Note: A few parsley leaves can be added with basil to deepen the color if desired.

THE ELEGANT MUFFIN

Serves 4 WOOPIES

- 1¼ pounds chicken breast, boned and skinned
- 1 stick butter
- ½ cup apricot brandy
- 2½ cups heavy whipping cream
- 4 heaping teaspoons Pommery mustard
- 4 Bays English Muffins, split, toasted
- Watercress, as garnish

Cut chicken into chunks. Melt butter in a small non-stick skillet over medium heat. Add chicken and saute in butter until almost done (approximately 1½ minutes). Flambe with brandy; add whipping cream and reduce mixture. Add mustard; stir until thickened. Pour chicken mixture over toasted open-faced muffins leaving the top rim of the muffins free of sauce. Garnish with watercress.

Keep treats on hand in freezer for quick, 'fantastic' desserts

By NANCY BYAL
Associated Press

Keep ice cream, pound cake and cheesecake in your freezer and you can have fantastic new dessert creations ready in minutes. Here are 10 terrific ideas:

ICE CREAM

■ Sweet Sandwiches: Pack any flavor ice cream or sherbet into empty juice cans. Cover and freeze until firm. Push ice cream from can about ½ inch at a time. Slice and serve between your favorite cookies.

■ Here's the Scoop: Roll scoops of peppermint ice cream in miniature semisweet chocolate pieces or grated semisweet chocolate. Serve immediately or freeze until serving time.

■ Brownie Dreams: Place a scoop of mint-chocolate chip ice cream in a dessert dish. Cut a bakery brownie into cubes and arrange cubes around ice cream. Drizzle 1 tablespoon creme de menthe over ice cream and brownies. Top with pressurized whipped dessert topping.

■ Pastel Snowball Pie: Arrange scoops of coffee ice cream, vanilla ice cream and strawberry ice cream (1 pint of each flavor) in a chocolate-flavored crumb pie shell. Spoon ⅓ cup fudge or chocolate ice cream topping over ice cream. Sprinkle with pecans, if desired.

FROZEN POUND CAKE

■ Quicksy Tipsy Cake: Using a long-tined fork, poke holes into the top of a frozen loaf pound cake. Drizzle with your favorite liqueur. Serve immediately or cover and chill for 3 to 24 hours. To serve, slice cake and top slices with pressurized whipped dessert topping.

CHEESECAKE

■ Cheesecake and Berries: Arrange 1 cup sliced strawberries atop a frozen plain cream cheesecake, thawed. Melt 2 tablespoons currant jelly; drizzle over berries.

■ Caramel-Topped Cheesecake: Spread 3 tablespoons caramel ice cream topping over a frozen plain cream cheesecake, thawed. Drizzle with 1 teaspoon chocolate-flavored syrup. Draw the tip of a spatula through syrup to form a lacy design.

Sweet sauces bring flavor to hot dishes

By PIERRE FRANEY
New York Times News Service

The notion of combining fresh orange juice with seafood might sound odd, but if used judiciously, the juice can add a dynamic touch of sweetness to scallops, lobster, shrimp, even tuna and salmon.

The key is playing off the sweetness of the juice against contrasting hot elements, like red pepper flakes, and something acidic like tomatoes. If you have ever tasted a dish that is cloyingly sweet with orange or another fruit, chances are the cook did not balance the sauce.

In a favorite sea scallop dish, red pepper flakes are an ingredient in the marinade, along with olive oil, thyme, rosemary, garlic and lemon juice. If the scallops are extra-large, you may want to cut them in half before adding them to the mixture.

For the sauce, orange juice is reduced over high heat, then combined with butter, tomatoes and coriander or parsley. The sauce is then served with the grilled scallops.

The same sweet-hot principle that governs the sauce is used in the accompanying curried rice dish. All hot curries call for something sweet to counterbalance the spices, and for that reason, apples or mashed ripe bananas are often added to fiery Indian curries. In this particular curried rice dish, I used cubed apples, and sweet peas add more color and texture.

BROILED SEA SCALLOPS WITH ORANGE-BUTTER SAUCE

1½ pounds sea scallops
Salt and freshly ground white pepper to taste
2 tablespoons olive oil
4 sprigs fresh thyme or 1 teaspoon dried
1 tablespoon chopped fresh rosemary or 2 teaspoons dried
2 teaspoons finely chopped garlic
⅛ teaspoon red pepper flakes
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup freshly squeezed orange juice, pulp included
4 tablespoons butter at room temperature
¾ cup diced and seeded ripe tomatoes
¼ cup chopped fresh coriander or parsley

Place the scallops in a mixing bowl with the salt, pepper, olive oil, thyme, rosemary, garlic, pepper flakes and lemon juice. Blend well, and refrigerate for 1 hour.

Meanwhile, place the orange juice in a saucepan, and cook over high heat until it is reduced by half. Add the butter, tomatoes and coriander, and cook briefly until the combination is well blended. Season with salt and pepper. Keep warm.

Heat a broiler or a grill until it is quite hot.

Divide the scallops into four equal batches, and place them on 4 skewers. Brush with the marinade.

Place the skewers on the grill or under the broiler, and cook about 4 minutes. Turn the skewers, and cook for 4 more minutes on the other side. Serve immediately with the orange-butter sauce.

Yield: 4 servings.

CURRIED RICE WITH APPLES AND PEAS

2 tablespoons butter
1 cup converted rice
½ cup finely chopped onion
1 teaspoon finely chopped garlic
1 medium-size apple, peeled, cored and cut into ¼-inch cubes
2 teaspoons curry powder
Salt to taste
1½ cups water
1 bay leaf
¾ cup frozen peas that have been thawed under hot water

Melt 1 tablespoon of the butter in a saucepan. Add the rice, onion, garlic, apple, curry powder and salt. Cook briefly, stirring, but do not brown.

Add the water and bay leaf. Bring to a boil, stirring. Cover tightly, and simmer for 17 minutes.

Remove from the heat. Add the peas and the remaining 1 tablespoon of butter. Fluff the rice with a fork. Discard the bay leaf and serve.

Yield: 4 servings.

WHAT'S COOKING

Jim and Jody Baldwin BRIAN ADAMCIK/Reporter-Telegram

Couple stays active, healthy

EDITORS NOTE: "What's Cooking" currently is featuring nonprofit organizations along with some of their members' favorite recipes. This article is the third concerning the Midland Chapter of the American Diabetes Association.

By MYRA LEE SALCEDO
Lifestyle Writer

Jim and Jody Baldwin have practiced healthy habits — eating good foods and getting plenty of exercise — for so long that it has become second nature to the couple. Baldwin, who found out he had diabetes when he was a sophomore in high school, said that watching his diet was not a major change in his lifestyle.

"I was a wrestler and athletic, so I was already on a pretty strict diet," Baldwin said.

Although Mrs. Baldwin had to modify some of her recipes when she married Baldwin 8 years ago, she said she found that she didn't "have to sacrifice flavor" for healthful eating. "I can still bake and adapt recipes to make them low-sugar," she said.

"It's not so much what you eat, but how much and how often," Baldwin said, discussing his diet. "We have salads and fresh vegetables nearly every meal," he said. "Of course, the diet requires being consistent in exchanges, especially bread exchanges."

The Baldwins have eliminated fried foods from their diet, Baldwin said, adding that he likes to grill food outdoors instead of frying. "Sometimes we cook something special if I get a craving for Mexican food or pasta," Baldwin said.

"The Vegetarian Lasagna recipe in the American Diabetes Association Cookbook is one of the best I've ever tasted," Mrs. Baldwin said.

Aside from their diet, the Baldwins emphasis the importance of exercise. They both enjoy softball, volley ball and golf. "At the very least, we will get out and walk," Baldwin said.

In his leisure hours, Baldwin spends time maintaining and remodeling his house and Mrs. Baldwin said one of her favorite activities is gardening. The couple also collects coins and antique furniture.

Baldwin, who has a degree in geology and physics from Illinois Sate University and a master's degree in geology from Perdue, works for Exxon. Mrs. Baldwin has a biology degree from an eastern Illinois college. They both are involved in the Midland Chapter of ADA, for which Baldwin is publicity chairman.

Making good eating and exercise habits a daily routine has been "relatively easy" said Baldwin. "The more active we are, the better we are. If we monitor ourselves we can live healthy."

The Baldwins included some of their favorite recipes from the 1988 ADA cookbook.

PEACHY PIE

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¼ cup water
1 12-ounce can diet ginger ale
2 cups sliced, fresh, ripe peaches or unsweetened frozen peaches
1 ready-to-fill graham cracker crust or prebaked pie shell

Exchange list approximation: Starch/Bread 1, Fruit ½, Fat 1½
Nutrient content per serving: Cal 179, Fat: 10 gm, Na. 189.3 mg, Fiber 1.6 gm, Pro. 3.3 gm, Cho: 19.6 gm, K. 156.5 mg, Chol: 0.

Sprinkle gelatin over water in small mixing bowl. Place in pan of hot water, heat until dissolved. Add diet ginger ale, stir. Add peaches and juice. Chill until thickened. Spoon into prepared crust and chill until firm.

VARIATION: Two packets of sugar substitute may be added to peaches. One packet of orange or raspberry flavored low-calorie gelatin dessert and 1¾ cups water may be used with peaches.

COOKING

VEGETARIAN LASAGNA

6 lasagna noodles (about 4 ounces)
2 quarts water
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 cup chopped onions
1½ cups ½-inch bias-cut carrots (about 4 medium)
2 teaspoons minced garlic (about 1 clove)
1¾ cups spaghetti sauce (about 15-ounces)
½ cup water
1 teaspoon basil
½ teaspoon oregano
2 eggs
2 cups low-fat (½ percent milkfat) cottage cheese (about 16-ounces)
4 tablespoons Parmesan cheese
1 10-ounce package frozen chopped spinach, thawed and drained
1 cup sliced mushrooms
1 cup quartered and sliced zucchini
1 cup shredded part-skim mozzarella cheese (about 4 ounces)
¼ cup sliced black olives (optional)

Cook lasagna noodles in boiling water about 12 minutes. Drain, rinse and cover with cold water. Heat vegetable oil in sauce pan. Add onions, carrots and garlic. Saute until carrots are tender, about 10 minutes.

Add spaghetti sauce, water and spices. Bring to a simmer. Beat eggs and blend in cottage cheese, Parmesan cheese and vegetables. Spread a thin layer of sauce over bottom of 9x13-inch baking pan. Cover with layer of noodles, spoon half of chesse mixture over noodles. Cover with half of sauce. Repeat.

Cover with foil and bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes. Remove foil. Arrange olive slices over top and sprinkle with cheese. Bake uncovered about 15 minutes or until center is bubbly. Let cool about 10 minutes to set layers. Cut into 4½x4-inch pieces.

Yield: 6 servings.

Exchange list approximation: Starch/Bread 2, Meat, medium-fat 2½, Vegetable 1, Fat ½

Nutrient content per serving: Cal: 392, Fat: 16.8 gm, Na: 887.9 mg, Fiber: 4.1 gm, Pro: 24.7 gm, Cho: 36.8 gm, K: 775.9 mg, Chol: 129 mg.

PINEAPPLE SALAD

1 package lemon or lime low-calorie gelatin dessert
1 cup boiling water
1 8-ounce can crushed pineapple in unsweetened pineapple juice
½ 12-ounce can citrus or lemon-lime sugar-free carbonated beverage
4 ounces whipped topping

Add boiling water to gelatin dessert. Stir until dissolved. Add juice from pineapple and beverage. Chill until medium stiff. Whip with mixer until foamy. Gradually whip into whipped topping. Fold in pineapple. Pour into mold and chill until set.

VARIATION: Orange and raspberry low-calorie gelatin dessert and 1 cup of other unsweetened fruits may be used, such as peaches, apricots, etc.

Yield: 8 servings (4 cups each)

Exchange list approximation: Fruit ½, Fat ½.

ORANGESICLES

1 pint plain low-fat yogurt
6 tablespoons frozen orange juice concentrate
1 teaspoon vanilla
30 drops low calorie sweetener (1 tablespoon sugar equivalent)

Stir together all ingredients and freeze in popsicle molds or paper cups. Insert sticks when partially frozen.

Yield: 8 popsicles.

Exchange list approximation: Milk, low-fat ½.

Nutrient content per serving: Cal: 60, Fat: 1. gm, Na: 43.4 mg, Fiber: 0 gm, Pro: 3.5 gm, Cho: 9.4 gm, K: 233.1 mg, Chol: 4 mg.

Salad layered with mixed fruits

Associated Press

Layer fruit, instead of vegetables, with lettuce and give favorite layered salad a brand new flavor.

OVERNIGHT LAYERED FRUIT SALAD

1 8¼-ounce can crushed pineapple
6 cups torn salad greens
1 6-ounce package mixed dried fruit bits
¾ cup thinly sliced celery
1 11-ounce can mandarin orange sections, drained
½ cup orange yogurt
¼ teaspoon curry powder
1 medium banana, sliced
¼ cup coarsely chopped cashews

Drain pineapple, reserving ¼ cup juice; set aside. In the bottom of a large bowl place half the greens. Layer in the following order: dried fruit bits, celery, orange sections, remaining greens and pineapple.

For dressing, in a small bowl combine reserved pineapple juice, orange yogurt and curry powder. Spread evenly over top of salad, sealing dressing to side of bowl. Cover tightly with clear plastic wrap. Chill up to 24 hours. Before serving arrange sliced banana on top of salad. Sprinkle with chopped cashews. Serve immediately. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Children who eat cold cereals better nourished, study says

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Children who breakfast on ready-to-eat cold cereals tend to be better nourished than those who breakfast on other foods, according to a study of hundreds of 1- to 5-year-olds.

University of Missouri nutritionist Gretchen Hill said her study shows "kids can get a good breakfast on their own by getting the cereal box and some milk."

Hill, who presented her study during the annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology in Las Vegas, said the research didn't suggest that cold cereal was the only good breakfast.

Parents who feed their children well-balanced breakfasts — fruit, toast, low-fat milk, some bacon and only three eggs weekly — shouldn't change, she said.

"But if you're lazy and have to choose between doughnuts and cereal, provide the cereal," especially with low-fat milk, she said.

Hill used data collected in 1985 by the U.S. Department of Agriculture for her study of 27 dietary components — including calories, protein, vitamins, minerals and fiber — consumed during all three meals and snacks by 548 children ages 1 to 5 nationwide.

Eleven skipped breakfast. Of the others, about half ate ready-to-eat cereals. The half that didn't eat cereals wasn't divided as to whether the children ate balanced breakfasts or not because Hill simply wanted to know how the average cereal eater did compared with other children.

Cereal eaters tended to receive significantly more vitamins A and B12, thiamine, riboflavin, niacin, pyridoxine, iron, folic acid and zinc than non-cereal eaters or breakfast skippers, Hill said. Cereal eaters also ate significantly less cholesterol and fat.

She said all three groups tended to get adequate protein and carbohydrate, but breakfast skippers risked low-energy and future bone ailments because they failed to meet recommended daily amounts of thiamine, calcium and vitamin A, and ate less fiber, pyridoxine, calcium, magnesium, zinc and copper.

Childbirth Isn't A Spectator Sport.

Childbirth is an intensely personal moment for women. And, a lot of us are tired of being good sports about sharing that moment with a room full of strangers.

That's why we've designed a whole new kind of birthing environment at Women's & Children's Hospital. It's called a Labor/Delivery/Recovery room (LDR)—a place where you can have all the peace and security you need and deserve for a very private occasion. The birth of your child.

Designed for low-risk births, our LDR's look more like luxury hotel suites than hospital rooms. We think that's a welcome improvement. Beautifully appointed furnishings, a private bath, and even a cozy easy chair add to the special feeling of warmth and elegance you'll find here. State-of-the-art equipment and supplies necessary for childbirth have been thoughtfully hidden from view, but are available whenever needed.

The LDR rooms are different in other ways, too. When you're admitted to an LDR, you will remain there throughout the entire birth process and recovery. And, best of all, you can share the experience with loved ones. You may be supported by your husband or other chosen "coach" throughout labor and delivery.

After your child's arrival, you will remain in the LDR for as long as possible spending a relaxing time getting acquainted with your newborn and visiting with family and friends before being moved to your hospital room.

Having a baby isn't like scoring a touchdown. The LDR's at Women's & Children's Hospital are dignified, rewarding, and personal places for special experiences. Ask your doctor about the LDR concept, then call 334-8200 at ext 297 for a tour or more information about The Birth Place. You'll find our new LDR is something to cheer about.

DEAR ABBY

U.S. Postal Service gets stamp of approval

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I wish people would quit knocking the U.S. Postal Service. We have the best service and the cheapest rates of any country in the free world.

It costs the equivalent of 46.5 cents to mail a letter in Japan. (They have us beat in many ways — but not in this!) It costs 38.3 cents to mail a letter in France. And in the United Kingdom, it costs 31.9 cents to mail a letter.

The U.S. Postal Service delivers Monday through Satu lay to any place in the United States, whether it's a remote spot in Alaska or an apartment in New York City, for the same price.

Also, when a letter isn't delivered, it's usually the fault of the sender who has used an incorrect address, wrong ZIP code or insufficient postage. — VICKI DUKE, LAKE CHARLES, LA.

DEAR VICKI: Three cheers for the red, white and blue. You can lick our automobiles, but you can't lick our postage stamps! Now, let's hear it from a carrier:

DEAR ABBY: I've been a mail carrier for a year, and after hearing so many complaints about the Postal Service, I would like to air a few of my own to the public:

■ Why isn't your house number clearly visible on your mailbox or on your house?

■ Why is your mailbox hidden behind bushes and fences?

■ Why do you park in front of your mailbox when your driveway is empty?

■ Why is your dog out roaming the streets?

■ When you moved, why didn't you file a change of address with the post office, and also send individual change of address cards to your utility and credit card companies, your magazine subscriptions, banks, etc.?

■ Why do you send mail with incorrect addresses (i.e., incomplete street numbers, no apartment/suite numbers, misspelled names, etc.)?

■ If you're tired of getting the previous tenant's mail, why isn't your name on the mailbox so that the carrier knows who lives there?

Normally, a regular carrier has memorized several hundred names of residents and businesses on his route. However, a new carrier, or even an experienced carrier unfamiliar with a route, cannot be expected to know all these names. Unlike the regulars, we substitute carriers take much longer to sort out, route and deliver the mail. We do not always have the time to check carefully the forwarding lists to see who has moved. Supervisors constantly pressure us to work faster and carry more mail than we can handle, in order to avoid having to pay us overtime. We cannot perform 100 percent under such stress.

I am not passing the buck. The Postal Service needs to improve. However, before people criticize the postal employees, they should make sure that they haven't contributed to the problem. Thank you. — CALIFORNIA CARRIER

DEAR ABBY: Maybe this is why some folks haven't been getting their mail: A postal inspector in Pensacola, Fla., used a front-end loader to remove the last five tons of undelivered mail found piled at the home of a rural mail carrier.

An estimated 500,000 pieces of mail up to 3 years old were discovered. — MAGNOLIA, KENTUCKY

DEAR MAGNOLIA: Now I suppose a lot of folks will be saying, "Your check was in THAT mail."

DEAR ABBY: Would you please devote some space to the subject of crime prevention? Though crime has been on the increase for years, there are some things we can do to avoid becoming victims:

■ Start or join a Neighborhood Watch or Rural Watch program. The programs work well to increase citizen awareness and better communication between neighbors and law enforcers.

■ Secure your residence, place of business and vehicle. (Almost half of all burglaries and thefts occur because of unlocked doors and windows, or keys left in car ignitions!)

■ Mark all your valuables with an engraving pen (available from your local police), and display an "Operation Identification" decal to warn would-be burglars and thieves that your property is marked and can be easily traced by law enforcement agencies.

■ Learn about personal safety, and rape and assault prevention.

■ Start or join a Block/Safe Home for Children program in the area you live to protect children from becoming victims of crime.

How? It's as easy as contacting the crime prevention officer at your local law enforcement agency to learn more about protecting yourself and your community from crime. Law enforcement alone cannot prevent crime. You need them, and they need you! — CAROL HOWELL, CRIME PREVENTION UNIT, DOUGLAS COUNTY SHERIFF'S DEPT., ROSEBURG, ORE.

DEAR CAROL: Thank you for a valuable reminder. I hope local police and sheriff's offices are swamped with calls from people wanting to prevent crimes instead of calls from people reporting them.

And while we're on the subject of crime and how to prevent it: Yesterday I read about another tragedy that occurred because a family had all their windows secured with iron bars to keep burglars OUT. A fire broke out in the house, and a young mother and two small children perished because firefighters could not get IN in time to save them.

Readers, if you have iron bars on your windows, be sure they have "quick release" mechanisms in good working order, and please, plan for some other avenue of escape as well in case you need to exit in a hurry.

Artichokes in salad

Associated Press

Two bottled dressings plus the marinade from artichoke hearts make the dressing for this salad.

ARTICHOKE-ORANGE SALAD

6 cups torn greens
1 6- or 6½-ounce jar marinated artichoke hearts
1 11-ounce can mandarin orange sections, drained and chilled
1 small avocado, halved, seeded, peeled and chopped
1 stalk celery, sliced
2 green onions, sliced
⅓ cup Italian salad dressing
2 tablespoons blue cheese salad dressing

Place greens in a large salad bowl. Drain artichoke hearts, reserving marinade; halve artichoke hearts. Arrange artichoke hearts, orange sections, avocado, celery and green onions on top of greens. In a screw-top jar combine reserved marinade and salad dressings. Cover and shake well. Pour over salad. Toss before serving. Makes 8 servings.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Certain financial and business arrangements can finally be improved. Those ideas that have been whirling around in your brain can be put into action. Be practical. You feel much more optimistic about your personal life. Enjoy the affection that others lavish on you. Some aspects of your lifestyle have begun to irritate you. Make overdue changes. New attitudes and procedures prove very rewarding.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor John Houseman, actor Scott Baio, singer Debby Boone, correspondent Richard Hottelet, Dodgers manager Tom Lasorda.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A great time to travel. The experiences will enrich your life and make you a more productive leader in business. The money picture brightens. Help a family member. Romance looks rosy.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Influential people are easier to approach now. Spend more time and energy on career matters. Explain the financial facts of life to a teen-ager. New developments could lead to a change of residence.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Protect a relationship. Make the right moves early today and you will avoid a domestic upheaval. With your creative abilities, you can do almost anything! Postpone travel until you can really enjoy it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Let someone who has become a burden go. Once this person finds out what the world is all about, he will be more appreciative. Your dependability is what makes you so special to your employer.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A phone call could trigger a bright idea. Make the most of any special opportunities that arise. Your close personal relationships are what make you happiest these days. Romance blooms. Nurture it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): End that feud between you and a family member! Close ties are too important to throw away for no good reason. Romance can be revived. Get better organized at work. Update files.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may be surprised by what you learn as you unravel a misunderstanding. Put a positive light on everything you do with a child. Support for your views comes from the top.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The success of an experiment could put extra cash in your pocket. Travel produces mixed results. Your pursuit of knowledge leads to a rewarding relationship. Widen your social circle. Exchange ideas.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You could overextend yourself financially if you make a commitment without investigating the cost in advance. Check it out! Love pushes you in a direction that might be wrong for you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Honesty and loyalty are what you need in your business partners. Your ability to function on little sleep amazes everyone. Just remember that your health would benefit from more rest. Take catnaps.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Moderation is good for your health, your business and your financial security. Travel brings exciting results. Opening new lines of communication helps a partnership. You find a confidant you can trust.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Agree to a secret meeting, but if you start to get in over your head, excuse yourself and leave. Strike a positive note when trying to settle a family dispute. Love conquers all!

Once again we offer you proof that Oscar Wilde was right when he claimed: "Life imitates art!" We wrote about the theme of this hand only a short while ago. Apparently, only one of our East players read the column.

This hand is from the Spingold team event at the recent North American Championships, held in Salt Lake City. The auction was identical at the two tables: North's two heart response was a transfer to spades, and his bid of three diamonds was natural and game-forcing. Since South had little interest in either of his partner's suits, he signed off in three no trump.

At the table we watched, West led a heart. Declarer won and ran the nine of spades to East's queen. He won the heart return in hand, forced out the ace of spades and eventually came to nine tricks—three spades, three hearts, two diamonds and a club.

The opening lead at the other table was the same. Here, too, declarer won and shifted to the nine of spades. But sitting East was a tiger, David Berkowitz of New York. He did not allow the lady to win the trick. Flushed with success, declarer repeated the finesse. Now East took his queen (he could not hold up again even if he wanted to) and declarer found that he did not have the entries to dummy to set up and run the spade suit. He struggled manfully, and eventually endplayed East to make eight tricks.

Should we make a selection of our columns available to all players who enter national competition?

For information about Charles Goren's newsletter for bridge players, write Goren Bridge Letter, P.O. Box 4426, Orlando, Fla. 32802-4426.

It's 10 o'clock. Do you know where your children are?

The sitter probably has them safely tucked in bed by now. Not in this flick. These kids are downtown getting in all kinds of trouble. Adventures in Babysitting is what every parent fears. Watch on September 24 at 7:00 PM on channel 5 Showtime.

Taylor's sixth husband helps her son avoid deportation

AP Laserphoto

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor's sixth husband, who happens to be a member of a key Senate committee, is getting Congress to help her son by another marriage avoid deportation because of drug conviction 14 years ago.

Without dissent, the Senate late Tuesday approved a waiver exempting soap opera star Michael Wilding, who has the same name as his late father, from a law that prohibits permanent resident visas for aliens convicted of drug violations.

The private relief bill was sought by Sen. John Warner, R-Va., Miss Taylor's sixth husband and the 34-year-old Wilding's stepfather for six years until Warner and Miss Taylor divorced in 1982.

Michael Wilding was born to Miss Taylor during her second marriage, to the late British actor Michael Wilding.

Now living in New York City and an actor on the television soap opera "The Guiding Light," Wilding was convicted in Wales in 1974 of possessing marijuana and cultivating marijuana plants in a house he shared with six other people.

He renounced his U.S. citizenship in 1971, but returned to the United States 10 years later. Because of the marijuana conviction in Great Britain, however, the Immigration and Naturalization Service has refused to grant him a permanent resident visa.

LONDON (AP) — Veteran actor Mickey Rooney returned to the London stage for the first time in four decades to perform in the musical "Sugar Babies" and was treated to a 10-minute standing ovation from a capacity crowd.

Rooney, 67, and dancer Ann Miller, 65, opened the British production of the $2.5 million musical Tuesday night. "Sugar Babies" takes a nostalgic look at vaudeville.

"Ann and I are so proud to be on the London stage and in your great country," Rooney said after the show. "We love you. Thank you for standing up for our performance."

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Richard Nixon plans to move his office from Manhattan to New Jersey to avoid what is becoming an intolerable commute, his spokesman said.

Nixon, who lives in Saddle River, N.J., plans to move into a 37,000-square-foot office by Thanksgiving, said spokesman John Taylor.

"He lately has been spending two and a half hours in traffic," Taylor said Tuesday, noting that the 37th president plans sometimes to walk the 1½ miles between his home and new office. Nixon, 75, now commutes to Manhattan in chauffeured limousines and sedans.

"Our main priority was to find an office close to his home," Taylor added.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Developer Donald Trump, already a millionaire many times over, will save almost $2 million by avoiding New Jersey's 6 percent sales tax on his $29 million yacht, the Trump Princess.

The state Division of Taxation reviewed the lease arrangement between Trump's Aliban Inc. corporation, which owns the Princess, and Trump's Castle Associates, which leases it at $400,000 monthly.

The division recently concluded that only the monthly lease payments are subject to the sales tax, or about $24,000 a month. The sales tax on the yacht would have amounted to $1.74 million.

The 282-foot yacht — complete with a discotheque, movie theater and hand-carved onyx bathrooms — is used for promotional and marketing purposes and to entertain high rollers.

Trump bought the ship from the sultan of Brunei. The sale was closed in London aboard the vessel, and Aliban Inc. took possession of the ship in international waters off the coast of France.

LIBERTY, Miss. (AP) — Grand Ole Opry star and country humorist Jerry Clower is moving from Yazoo City back to his native Amite County, and his hometown is planning an appropriate welcome home bash.

Clower and his wife, Homerline, say they'll be moving this fall.

Some of the events for the Nov. 10 "Jerry Clower Homecoming Spectacular" include a reception and an evening performace by Clower at his alma mater, Southwest Mississippi Community College.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Actor Ed Asner joined a march at a supermarket to protest the use of pesticides that the United Farm Workers union says are hazardous.

Asner, who is appearing in the play "Born Yesterday" in Cleveland, carried a sign reading "Boycott Grapes" outside the supermarket Tuesday.

The lunchtime demonstration was peaceful and attracted about four dozen marchers, officials said.

Suriname...Matt Biondi won't forget

By STEVE WILSTEIN

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Gold, silver and bronze hang from Matt Biondi's neck and four more Olympic medals are within his giant reach, but the gold that got away by a hundredth of a second belongs, strangely enough, to a swimmer from Suriname.

Parity has arrived at the Games, scattering medals Wednesday to athletes barely known and nations most unexpected.

Suriname? Yes, that South American jewel with one Olympic-sized pool on the coast north of Brazil has its first medal, matching the feat of tiny Costa Rica.

The longtime superpowers of sport — the Soviets, Americans and East Germans — still top the medal list, but they're finding they can't win as easily as they used to.

China is making a big splash in diving and swimming, and Bulgaria's bulging weightlifters are leading a brigade of medalists in several sports.

American athletes did themselves proud on the fifth day of the Games, highlighted by a world record and gold medal in the men's 800-meter freestyle relay and a 102-87 rout of the Brazil basketball team that upset them in the Pan Am Games last year.

The water polo team beat top-ranked Yugoslavia 7-6, scoring a goal with five seconds left. Boxer Michael Carbajal used his "little hands of stone" to pound out a split decision over Korean Oh Kwang-soo. And Dave Wharton swam to a silver in the 400 medley behind world-record setter Tamas Darnyi of Hungary.

Biondi, trying to become the first seven-medal winner since Mark Spitz won all golds in 1972, became this year's first triple-medalist when he anchored the relay and secured the record in 7 minutes, 12.51 seconds.

"I definitely was tired of losing," said Biondi, third in the 200 freestyle Monday and second in the 100 butterfly in his first race Wednesday. In the last 25 meters of the relay, he said, "I didn't want to be anywhere but on top of the awards stand with my teammates."

The U.S. team trailed East Germany by about a meter after the first three laps by Troy Dalbey, Matt Cetlinski and Doug Giertsen, but Biondi made up the difference in the first of his four 50-meter laps, then pulled away. East Germany finished second and West Germany third.

If Biondi needed any extra motivation, he got it from his heartbreaking loss in the 100 fly to Anthony Nesty, the first swimmer from Suriname ever to make an Olympic final.

Nesty, eight inches shorter than the 6-7 Biondi, reached the wall a hundredth of a second sooner in 53.00 seconds and stood a head taller on the victory stand as his nation's flag, with a bright yellow star, was raised at the Olympics for the first time.

The victory was a surprise to everyone except Nesty.

"I knew I was going to be in the top three or even come in first," he said.

Biondi was bothered more by the margin of defeat than the loss itself.

"The worst part was losing by one one-hundredth of a second," he said. "Maybe if I had grown my fingernails two weeks longer or kicked better going in, I would have gained an inch and won it."

The problem for him was in his finish, when he glided to the wall instead of stroking in.

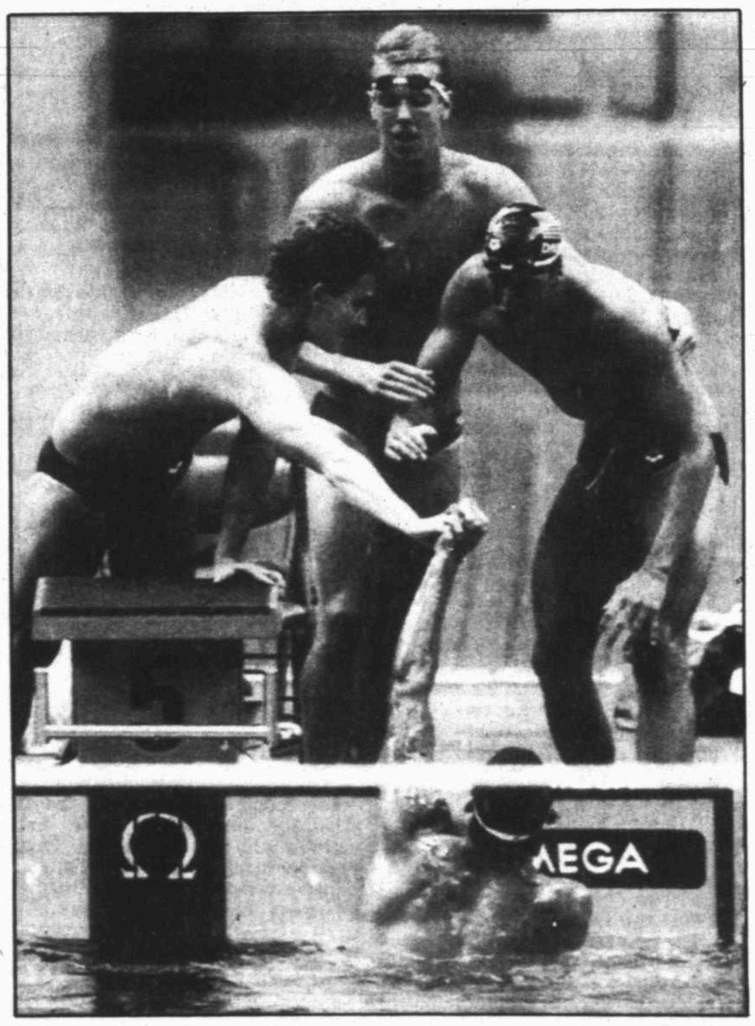

"As luck would have it, the wall came at the wrong time," he said. "I was halfway between a stroke and trying to kick in and I decided to kick in. If I had tried a stroke, I might have touched with my nose."

Heike Friedrich of East Germany won the women's 200 freestyle while Silvia Poll won a silver, Costa Rica's first-ever Olympic medal. East German Manuela Stellmach won the bronze.

East Germany also won the women's 200 breaststroke, with Silke Hoerner taking the gold, followed by Xiao Min Huang of China and Antoaneta Frenkeva of Bulgaria.

The U.S. men's basketball team overcame Oscar Schmidt's 31 points in beating Brazil and improved its Olympic record to 3-0, with two

Socorro QB tops Prep honor roll

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

Lubbock High quarterback Victor Lafebre riddled El Paso Socorro for 425 passing yards and six touchdowns last week to earn the spotlight in the AP Press Schoolboy Honor Roll.

Lafebre almost doubled his yardage production from the first two games of the season, hitting on 15 of 24 passes in a 39-21 victory.

"I never imagined anything like this in my life," Lafebre said. "We just had everything clicking. Last week we threw a lot more deep patterns and this week we started off short."

Lafebre has completed 35 of 64 passes for 874 yards in three games for nine touchdowns.

"They were playing off our receivers so I just threw it to them and let them run. Then when they came up on us, we went deep.

"I'm just fortunate to have a lot of good receivers and the offensive line gave me all day to throw."

Art Hall caught five passes for 128 yards, including touchdowns of 69, 3 and 29 yards, Chris Hellman caught five passes for 183 yards and touchdowns of 43 and 39 and Trey Chambers caught a 13-yard touchdown pass.

Last year, Lafebre completed 89 of 214 passes for 1,489 yards and 15 touchdowns.

Amarillo Caprock's Randy Tracey put on a workhorse rushing display, gaining 273 yards on 39 carries in a 27-20 victory over El Paso Austin.

Tracey scored on runs of 15 and one yard and caught a 13-yard touchdown pass.

Levelland's Jay Fortner had an outstanding all around performance in a 28-0 victory over Borger.

Fortner rushed 16 times for 173 yards, including a 99-yard touchdown run. He caught a 59-yard touchdown pass and threw a 33-yard halfback pass for a touchdown.

Fortner also played free safety and intercepted one pass and added nine tackles.

Van running back Michael Friend got 302 yards rushing on 44 carries and scored four touchdowns in a 27-20 victory over Wills Point. He now has 732 yards on 121 carries and nine touchdowns this season.

—Childress' Teddy Hopkins rushed 27 times for 243 yards and touchdown runs of 3, 5, 46, 11 and 41 yards in a 42-26 victory over Wellington.

—Italy's Rodney Shaw had a five-touchdown performance in a 54-0 victory over Cayuga, rushing 232 yards on 20 carries and scoring on runs of 40, 2, 21, 1 and 50 yards.

—Marlin's Curtis Modkins had 249 yards rushing and touchdown runs of 1, 7, 5, 24 and 5 yards in a 33-15 victory over Hearne.

—West Sabine quarterback Mike Bradberry completed 11 of 17 passes for 242 yards and touchdown tosses of 40, 11, 21 and 44 yards in a 46-0 shut out of Evadale.

—West Sabine receiver Jimmy Stevens caught five passes for 100 yards and Bradberry's 21-yard touchdown pass.

—Robert Davenport of Meridian rushed 273 yards on 24 carries and scoted three touchdowns in a 41-6 victory over Tolar.

UH defense makes drastic turnaround

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Cougars defense has produced a drastic turnaround from last season when it ranked 92nd among 104 NCAA Division 1-A schools.

But after two games this season, the defense has more than kept pace with the Cougar's high-profile run-and-shoot offense.

They've allowed only one touchdown and rank No. 4 nationally in total defense.

The woeful pass defense from last season now leads the Southwest Conference. Their rushing defense is fifth in the national and they rank third in scoring defense.

The Cougars' 2-0 start has helped soothe old wounds.

"We kept reading and hearing those figures all winter and all spring and all summer, right up until the season started," Cougars defensive end Keith Jenkins said. "We knew we were better than that."

The Cougars have yielded an average of 202 total yards in two games.

"We are better this year, that's the good news but the bad news is our opponents are better too," Coach Jack Pardee said.

Last season, the Cougars gave up more than 500 yards of offense in five of their games last season. They yielded 601 yards to Texas in a 60-40 victory and 501 yards to Rice.

"Yes, that was very embarrassing but after a few games early last year, that was an irreversible course," Pardee said.

The Cougars vowed in the offseason to improve defensively.

"The biggest thing so far is how the defense has played," Pardee said. "If we get our offense going now I don't think other teams can run the ball down our throats."

The Cougars defense has benefitted from Robert McDade's shift from defensive tackle to linebacker and another good start by safety Johnny Jackson.

McDade had 13 tackles, including eight unassisted, in last weeks' 31-7 victory over Missouri but he lost the "mad dog" award that goes to the top defensive performer to Jackson.

Jackson, who set an NCAA record with three touchdown interception returns in one game last season, got the award for his work on Missouri receiver Ronnie Cameron, who caught one pass for three yards.

The Cougars, who have an open date this week, are once again having fun on defense, end Darren Warren said.

"Instead of coming to meetings and getting cussed out, you can giggle and laugh at the good plays."

Midland hosts national tourney

From Staff Reports

The Women's Class C Amateur Softball Association (ASA) Slow Pitch National tournament at Hogan Park's Bill Williams Softball complex this weekend will attract 59 teams from all regions of the U.S.

Play begins at 8 p.m. Thursday, following the 7:30 p.m. opening ceremonies, and will continue all day Friday and Saturday.

The championship game is 12:15 p.m. Sunday.

Mark X Homes and Hensley's Computers, the host teams, will be in action in the first two games Thursday. Also in the field will be Cagney's and The Challengers, Odessa.

Pre-tournament favorites include the Phase II team from Galveston, third in last year's tournament at Kingman, Ariz. The first and second place finishers in 1987 are not in this year's tournament.

Tournament director Freddie Ezell said tickets for the 3 1/2 day tourney are $10 for a pass good for all games or $3 per session.

Cosponsors of the tournament are the Midland Softball Association and City of Midland Parks and Recreation Dept.

San Angelo shows class in volleyball

By BILL GRIMES
Sports Writer

San Angelo may not be the absolute class in District 4-5A volleyball, but the Bobcats still appear to be a cut above the rest of the field, as a 15-12, 15-11 win over Midland Lee in the Lee gym Tuesday may indicate.

The 'Cats jumped to 3-0 in 4-5A play with the win. Midland High, which was open Tuesday, is the only other undefeated team in district play after Odessa was bumped from the ranks of the unbeaten in a decisive 15-2, 15-8 loss to Abilene Cooper. In other district action Tuesday, Abilene High struggled past cellar-dwelling Odessa Permian 5-15, 17-15, 15-13.

It's the apparent dog-eat-dog nature of 4-5A volleyball this season that has Lee mentor Janice Baulch optimistic despite her team's 0-3 district mark.

"San Angelo still has to play Odessa High and Midland High," Baulch said. "All those undefeated (or once-beaten) teams still have to play each other."

DESPITE a 11-0 lead in the first set, it was soon clear that San Angelo would not romp over the Rebels. The hostesses came on strong in the final half of the set, led by middle blocker Ronnie Sandoval.

Sandoval contributed several key spikes and blocks to pull the Lady Rebs back within two points. Meanwhile, the Bobcats were disintegrating from the inside out with net violations, illegal sets and sloppy hits galore.

But San Angelo's Donna Hadley pulled out the match with a booming kill shot and it was on to the second set.

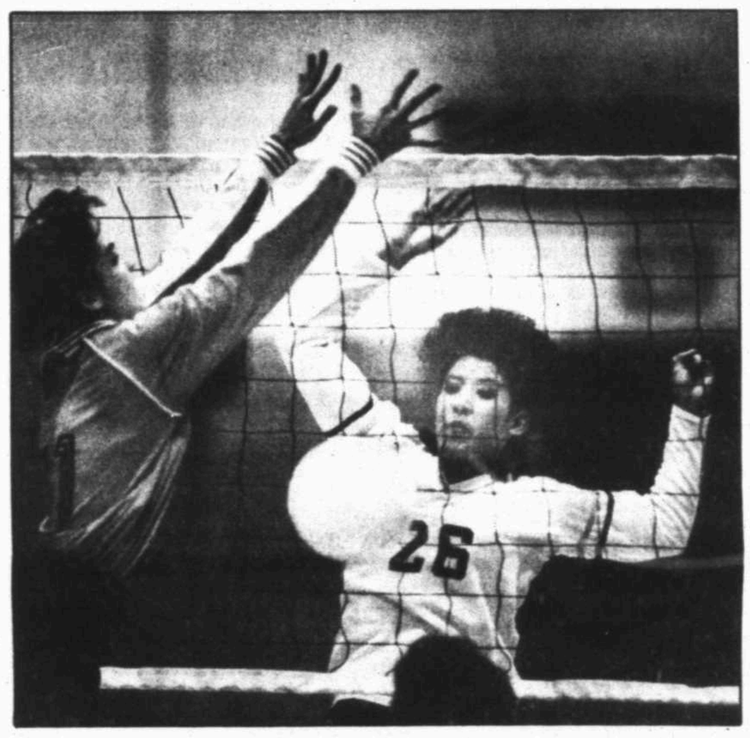

Lee started off strong in the second set behind outstanding serves by Marcia Del Llano, who got the Rebs out to a 3-0 lead. Lee later opened up a 5-2 lead, but San Angelo came back with five unanswered points in a rally fueled by missed serves.

BAULCH said Rebel serving woes were a result of the girls' trying to hard for perfection.

"What they try to do is hit a hard, tough serve, but they don't have their hand in the right position and they mess up.

"It's concentration, all mental," the coach said. "We serve in practice and may not miss more than two or three."

TERRY WILLIAMSON

Why all the excitement? It's just another game, right?

Williamson

Why all the excitement? It's just another Midland High vs. Midland Lee football game, isn't it?

Well, try telling that to all the locals, who seem to be foaming at the mouth for Friday night to roll around. There seems to be a genuine feeling on both sides of town that both teams can win this one.

But you say that Midland High hasn't won a game against Lee since 1982 and the combined scores of the past two years reads Lee 73, MHS 6. This hasn't been a series lately that the Bulldog faithful have had foaming mouths.

Lee fans have been foaming at the mouth over this game for five consecutive seasons, using this game as one of its major springboards into the state playoffs. And now Midland High feels it's about time to take a turn on the springboard themselves.

MHS enters the game as the only undefeated team in District 4-5A through three non-conference outings. On paper, and through three games this year, this game looks as if it should be played at the end of the season instead of at the beginning.

On paper, you have to figure that Friday's winner will be oh-so-close to a playoff berth. Of course, coaches hate that kind of talk this early in the district season, but the facts appear to be clear at this point in time.

First of all, Odessa Permian, Midland High and Lee look to be the only three major powers in the league this year with a legitimate shot at the playoffs. It would follow then that Friday's winner will have a major leg up on at least second place and a playoff berth since it is a game between two of the three major contenders.

Even if Friday's winner loses to Permian while avoiding another major spill, that team will still be in the playoffs by virtue of the head-to-head tie-breaker system employed by the district in determining ties in the standings at the end of the year.

This is a big one, folks! Of course, you never know what will happen down the stretch against the also-rans, but quite frankly, the rest of the league is beginning to look just like that — also-rans.

Abilene High figured in pre-season to make a strong title run, but the Eagles haven't found an offense to go with the early promise. Odessa High and Abilene Cooper have had trouble just finding district victories in the past few seasons, and that trend doesn't seem to be changing. San Angelo, a contender over the past six years, is also having offensive woes.

In short, Friday's game will probably produce a playoff team for the Tall City. With that in mind, let the mouths foam. This is one time that foaming is called for in a big way.

The "on paper" game will be played this week. In Thursday's Reporter-Telegram, we will discuss the matchup with the strengths and weaknesses of both teams. You will have to tune in again then to find out how the teams matchup "on paper," but one hint is that this should be a whale of a game.

But one figure not plugged into the matchup is the "psychological advantage." And this is where Midland High will have to come to the front this week.

Lee has won five consecutive decisions over the Bulldogs. Lee has been playoff tested over those five years. In fact, Lee has learned the art of digging deep in key games. It is an art that MHS will have to conquer.

Momentum may be the key factor for the Bulldogs Friday night. They need to make something happen early in the game in order to get a good feeling about their cause.

And in this year of District 4-5A disarray, Lee and MHS have a big cause in this battle. The playoffs are at stake.

Terry Williamson is assistant sports editor of the Reporter-Telegram.

Buffalo tops list of expansion cities

Battles

How's your memory? Who holds the SWC record for longest punt return?....

With all the talk about baseball expansion, a national publication conducted a poll to determine the cities deemed most worthy by sports fans.

Buffalo was the No. 1 choice followed by Tampa-St. Pete, Washington, D.C., Columbus, Ohio, Denver, Indianapolis and Phoenix.

This was in contrast to an MRT survey of cities which indicated those most deserving of major league baseball were Arlington, Texas; Atlanta, Seattle, Baltimore and Chicago. In fact, it was recommended that Chicago should have two teams...

The NFL and NHL, with the cheaps shots meant to maim and frequent fights, both of which serve to camouflage, perhaps, a lack of ability, are becoming more alike. Like the NHL, the dead ball, no penalty, no disqualification cop out of NFL officials in effect, condones and encourages fighting and dirty play.

Just judging by the behavior of some of the out-of-control players this year, plus the 19 already receiving wrist slaps as a result of testing, Pete Rozelle might better require tests after each game....

THIS CORNER is openly pulling for the Red Sox to win the AL East and create some excitement in the World Series, but it still would be a crime if the Oakland A's, after the year they've had, don't make it to the Series...

Relax, you'll get your wish Oct. 1...heralded Columbia and its 42-game streak will be on ESPN against Penn. Sorry, LSU-Florida , Iowa-Michigan State, you get second billing that day.

Laugh, if you will, but AD Al Paul says that in 1987-88, "We raised more money, total, for all sports than ever before. The football club now has more members than at any time in my 15 years as athletic director." Now what kind of school spirit is that?

Incidentally, Columbia's athletic budget is $4 million annually of which $800,000 is spent on football...

Irate calls about a column last week announcing a meeting of UNJ exes, one of whom complained, "You gave the day and time but never said where we were meeting." Did I do that? Even a Penn State alum was unhappy, "I wanted to see the Penn State game film they said they might show."

And yet another caller suggested the location of UNJ is not as preposterous as it sounds. "Three or four years ago some one introduced legislation in Madison to rename the University of Wisconsin the University of New Jersey"....Come on, do I look like I'd buy the Brooklyn Bridge when I already own the Williamsburg Bridge?...

TEXAS COACH David McWilliams got 9.7 per cent raise to bring his salary to $100,300. Before or after BYU?

Still, McWilliams' teams have a habit of poor starts and strong finishes, which won't win any national championships but will keep the alumni hopeful....

Strange, isn't it. If you're going to beat the Red Sox these days, you'd better do it when Roger Clemens is scheduled to pitch...

Bob Estes is the first Longhorn golfer since Ben Crenshaw to win the Morris Williams and Harvey Penick tourneys in the same year since Ben Crenshaw....

Former Midland High Coach John Reddell, now at Trinity-Euless, just became the winningest active Texas high school football coach....

FORMER MIDLAND Angel relief ace Bryan Harvey is one of the top three candidates for American League rookie of the year....And one of his strongest boosters is Manager Cookie Rojas, who claims the North Carolinian "turned it around for us this year."...

And the city of Chicago is making a small fortune on night games at Wrigley Field. Tow-away zone cars, $60 per, brought in $15,060 for the first three arc contests....

SEC record for longest punt return? Bob Goode, Texas A&M, 98 yards in 1945. Tyrone Thurman, the Midland Lee ex, is second with a 96-yarder in 1986 against Texas for Texas Tech.

Boggs 'hits' 200, again

From Wire Reports

Perhaps now the old axiom can be changed to say that life's only certainties are death, taxes and 200 hits every season for Wade Boggs.

AL

Boggs became the first player this century to get 200 hits in six consecutive seasons Tuesday as the Red Sox trounced the Blue Jays 13-2 and maintained their five-game lead over the Milwaukee Brewers in the American League East.

Boggs, driving for a fourth consecutive batting title and fifth in six years with a .363 average, reached base five times: on his 199th, 200th and 201st hits and his 116th and 117th walks this year.

He got hit No. 200 on a grounder to left in the fourth inning.

"It's something special and a big thrill because it's something that never was done before," Boggs said after breaking the modern record he had shared with Hall of Famers Al Simmons, Chuck Klein and Charlie Gehringer.

The Red Sox victory was only the second in eight decisions since the end of July for Roger Clemens, 17-11.

The Red Sox have won 12 of their last 16.

Yankees 7, Orioles 1

Rick Rhoden, 12-10, pitched a five-hitter and Jack Clark and Ken Phelps hit consecutive homers during a four-run fifth inning as New York, which begins a three-game series with Boston on Friday, kept its hopes alive.

Rhoden, 12-10, won his fifth straight game and completed his fifth game in 28 starts this season.

Tigers 3, Indians 1

Chet Lemon hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning that popped into the left field seats off Dave Clark's glove to lift Detroit over Cleveland.

It was the 18th game won in the last at-bat for the Tigers, who have won just seven of their last 28 games.

Rangers 4, White Sox 1

Bobby Witt threw a five-hitter and Cecil Espy scored the go-ahead run on a seventh-inning fielder's choice. Witt, 7-10, overcame six walks to complete his 12th game and break a personal two-game losing streak.

Brewers 6, Angels 5

Gary Sheffield's run-scoring single with two out in the ninth inning helped Milwaukee beat California behind Ted Higuera, 14-9.

Athletics 12, Twins 3

Oakland's offense sent Frank Viola , 22-7,to his earliest exit of the season and their bullpen tied a major-league season record with 60 saves.

Tony Phillips knocked in three runs with a home run and a double, and Jose Canseco singled, doubled and stole his 38th base to lead Oakland's 17-hit attack.

Mariners 11, Royals 10

Dave Valle singled home the game-winning run in the eighth inning and Alvin Davis drove in five runs to lift Seattle over Kansas City.

Astros blanked by Belcher

From Wire Reports

The Dodgers Tim Belcher, 11-5, blanked the Houston Astros 6-0 on six hits and extending the Dodgers' string of shutouts to three straight. Orel Hershiser blanked the Astros Monday for his fourth straight shutout, and John Tudor beat Cincinnati 2-0 Sunday.

NL

Los Angeles now leads the major leagues with 23 shutouts, one more than the Mets. Belcher thinks he knows why.

"The pitching has been contagious, with Tudor, (Tim) Leary, Orel and myself," said the rookie right-hander, whose 11th victory lowered the Dodgers' magic number for winning the division crown to four. "It's mind-boggling when you consider Orel's done it four times in a row and (Don) Drysdale did it six times."

Mets 6, Phillies 4

The Mets reduced their magic number to two in the NL East on another strong pitching performance, this time from David Cone, 18-3 as New York won its sixth straight and 21st in 26 games.

Pirates 5, Cardinals 1

R. J. Reynolds began a five-run rally in the eighth inning with a two-run single and Jim Gott earned his 32nd save.

Cubs 5, Expos 4
Expos 9, Cubs 1

Rick Sutcliffe, 13-13, went all the way and notched a season-high 11 strikeouts in the opener. Jerry Mumphrey won it with a two-out, bases-loaded single in the 11th inning.

Randy Johnson, 2-0, 6-10 lefty, made short work of the Cubs in the second game.

Giants 7, Braves 4

Brett Butler hit two homers and a double while Lonnie Smith homered for the Braves and Dale Murphy scored the 1,000th run of his career.

Reds 7, Padres 2

Paul O'Neill went 4-for-4 and drove in three runs for the Reds. He now has seven conscutive hits, three shy of the NL record.

Best of Rest, Part II, slated

From Staff Reports

BIG SPRING— The Best of the Rest, Part II, golf tournament will be held at Comanche Trail Golf Course, beginning Sept. 30, with a welcoming party, complete with western band. The two-man scramble will be Oct. 1-2. A barbecue will follow the first day of play.

Entry fee is $100 per team and players must have an 18 handicap or shoot above 85.

"Just as the first Best of the Rest tournament last summer,, this is a tournament to give golfers who never win anything a chance to take home some prizes. And the first one drew 102 teams," says Pro Al Patterson. "We will give away a variety of golf merchandise to the winners."

Jan East, a coach from Forsan, and Mike Pointer won the "championship" flight last time, "But none of the flight winners will be eligible this time," says Patterson in adhering to the "strictly for guys who never win" policy.

To enter, call 263 7271.

Twin Cities ends season Saturday

From Staff Reports

ODESSA— Twin Cities Speedway's final stock car race card of the season begins 8:30 p.m. Saturday and will be featured by a G.A.R.T. Tour 50-lap super late model championship.

Four other races, plus heat races will be run and the G.A.R.T. championship will be determined. Kelly Cross of Amarillo leads with 349 points, but only 36 points separate the top six drivers, which includes Jay Watson, Paul Knox and Junior Robertson, all Midland.

GAMES

games against China and Egypt before the medal round next week.

Schmidt, who scored 46 points in the Pan Am Games final against the United States, couldn't give a typical Oscar performance under constant defensive pressure this time.

"This team was Oscared to death," Thompson said of the pregame hype. "I don't think it was overly done (on the staff's part). I would be wrong if I said I never mentioned it very strongly."

The United States led 63-55 at halftime and opened a 22-point lead with a 21-7 run over in the first 5½ minutes of the second half.

"The defense was very intense and very hard but very legal," Schmidt said. "Early in the second half we lose opportunity to get in game. At Pan Am Games we got it."

J.R. Reid led the United States with 16 points, 14 in the first half, and Danny Manning and Dan Majerle had 12 each.

In water polo, Jim Bergeson's goal with five seconds left in the game lifted the U.S. team to victory over Yugoslavia on the opening day of the Olympic tournament.

"I was lucky," said Bergeson. "The pass from Jody Campbell was perfect. We played together at Stanford, so he knew exactly what I was going to do."

The win over the Yugoslavs, who edged the U.S. team for the gold in 1984, puts the American team in serious contention for the gold this year.

Michael Evans had two goals for the Americans, and Bergeson, Campbell, Kevin Robertson, Alan Mouchawar and Terry Schroeder each had one.

Carbajal's victory in boxing was the second in a row for the U.S. fighters, demoralized after seeing world champion Kelcie Banks knocked out in his first fight and Anthony Hembrick disqualified for showing up late.

Carbajal, who lost to Oh last year in Seoul in their only other meeting, picked up the pace in the third round to overcome Oh's mauling tactics and capture a 3-2 decision.

"He's the hometown hero and I knew I had to fight hard because of the crowd," said Carbajal.

A half-dozen of Carbajal's teammates cheered loudly from their seats near the ring as Carbajal used some good inside work to the body to score points in the final round.

"I heard the whole team throughout the fight," said Carbajal, who turned 22 the day the Olympics opened. "It's something that really motivates you."

Games ratings plummet

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — NBC, which hoped to use the Olympics as a ratings springboard, is taking a plunge instead.

Ratings for the network's first four prime-time telecasts were 32 percent lower than ABC's at the 1984 Los Angeles Olympics.

"We're not real thrilled with the numbers, but we think they're going to get better," said Michael Eskridge, NBC's executive vice president for the Olympics. "We expect the interest to build as the Games go on."

On Wednesday, NBC released the ratings for its Saturday, Sunday and Monday prime-time shows in the United States. Ratings for Friday night's telecast of the opening ceremonies were released earlier.

The shows averaged a 16.3 rating, compared with the 23.6 ABC received for its first four prime-time telecasts from Los Angeles.

V-BALL

THE REBELS hung in after surrendering the lead, but San Angelo's Gail Allison dominated the front row in the final stages of the set. Allison got a kill to break Lee's serve with the score at 11-all — then after a serve exchange, then Kim Arnold spiked a ball that the Lee girls were unable to handle.

Allison later added another kill and the 'Cats wrapped up the match when Del Llano couldn't handle a play in the back row.

San Angelo coach Cynthia Williams doesn't expect her Bobcats to run away with the district race this season after tying for first last season.

"This group has jelled slower than other groups I've had," she said. "Also, the other schools have picked up new coaching techniques and it's starting to show."

The Lee spikers travel to Abilene High Saturday, while Midland High returns to action with a potentially crucial home match against Abilene Cooper.

The MHS junior varsity opens at 1:15 p.m. in the Midland High gym, with the varsity match to follow.

Arthur sets pace in NTPGA

From Staff Reports

Perry Arthur of Dallas holds a seven stroke lead going into the final day of the North Texas PGA Sectional tournament for club pros at Mission Country Club.

Arthur had opening rounds of 64-68—132, 12 strokes under par, for a seven-stroke bulge over Alvin Odom, Briar Wood, who shot 69-70 the first two days.

Perry Arthur, Dallas, 64-68—132. Alvin Odom, Briar Wood, CC, 69-70—139. Lynn Blelvins, Amarillo, 65-75—140. Rocky Thompson, Plano, 69-72—141. Lindy Miller, 69-0—141. As Hirohito 'improves,' family cancels activities

TOKYO (AP) — The palace said today that the ailing Emperor Hirohito's condition was improving, but Cabinet ministers stayed near telephones for fear of the worst and members of the imperial family canceled scheduled activities.

Hirohito

The frail 87-year-old, who began vomiting blood Monday and has since had three transfusions, was in serious but stable condition and under constant medical surveillance, palace and press reports said.

A chapter in Japan's modern history will close with the passing of Hirohito, the world's oldest and longest reigning monarch. The Japanese media monitored the emperor's condition round-the-clock.

Takenori Sugawara, a spokesman for the Imperial Household Agency, said today that Hirohito was still receiving intravenous care but was fully conscious. He said the emperor appeared "headed in a favorable direction."

He said palace doctors were not planning any more blood transfusions.

Two doctors, three nurses and two palace stewards were keeping close watch over Hirohito in his bedroom, the palace also announced, adding that there were no plans to hospitalize the emperor.

Crown Prince Akihito and Princess Michiko visited the emperor today in their fourth visit since he fell ill. The 54-year-old crown prince is the first in line to follow Hirohito.

Doctors began administering emergency care after the emperor vomited blood repeatedly from Monday night through Tuesday morning, the imperial agency said.

The nationally circulated daily Yomiuri Shimbun, quoting palace medical sources, said doctors acted after Hirohito initially vomited about 1 pint of blood. Court physicians suspected an enlarged pancreas was causing hemorrhaging of the emperor's duodenum, part of the small intestine, according to the sources.

In September, doctors performed an intestinal bypass operation in the same area, circumventing a blockage caused by the enlarged pancreas.

Major Japanese dailies carried front-page headlines today reporting that the emperor remained in serious condition, while about 100 reporters maintained close watch over the Imperial Palace, a green oasis in the center of Tokyo.

A small group of about 20 well-wishers gathered in the large square in front of the palace — kneeling down in prayer, according to television reports.

But strollers in Tokyo's Ginza, a popular shopping and nightlife district, appeared unaffected by news of the emperor's failing health.

WORLD IN BRIEF

New U.N. officer makes comments

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Argentina's Dante Captuo, the new General Assembly president, wasted no time in telling the 159-nation body it must close the economic gulf between rich and poor nations.

As the Argentine foreign minister took the gavel after his election Tuesday, he noted "the remarkable difference between all the progress made toward ensuring world peace, and the little or nothing we have done to prevent the widening of the gap between rich countries and a large part of the developing world."

Caputo, a 47-year-old former political science professor, defeated the only other candidate for the presidency of the 159-member General Assembly, Barbados' U.N. Ambassador Dame Nita Barrow, by 91-66, with one abstention during a single secret ballot.

The election, the first order of business in the assembly's 43rd session, was portrayed as a showdown between Britain, which backed Mrs. Barrow, and Argentina, its defeated foe in the 1982 Falklands War.

Caputo won the presidency with strong support from the Soviet bloc, the developing world, Japan, and the non-aligned movement, including India and Pakistan, said diplomats and observers.

Dame Nita also was backed by the Caribbean nations and numerous Commonwealth countries. The United States was believed to have voted for her, said observers.

March won't be allowed

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Interior Minister Tomas Borge says Nicaragua will not allow a planned opposition march because it could end in violence, providing a pretext for new U.S. aid to Contra rebels.

Also Tuesday, the government and rebels blamed each other for the breakdown of talks aimed at forging a lasting peace in the 7-year-old civil war.

Borge told a news conference that the march planned for Sunday — the first since a July 10 rally in which 40 opposition figures were arrested — was intended "to create disturbances."

Olympic riots renewed

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Radical students hurled firebombs and rocks at riot police today and defaced an Olympic flag during a protest near a soccer camp used by Olympic teams.

Riot police blocked about 300 students when they tried to march out of Kyunghee University in Suwon, 25 miles south of Seoul.

Protesters pelted the police with scores of firebombs and rocks but did not break through the lines of troopers. The school is next to a soccer training camp used by some Olympic teams, but it did not appear to be in use at the time.

"Oppose the dictator's Olympics!" the students shouted.

Police said there were no arrests and no reports of injuries.

Fifth bus found in river

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — Authorities scouring a dry riverbed discovered a fifth bus that was washed away in a flash flood triggered by Hurricane Gilbert, and the confirmed death toll in the disaster rose to 140.

A ranching settlement of 100 families remained cut off from help Tuesday by flooding and landslides in the mountains surrounding this northern industrial center, said Nuevo Leon state government spokesman Daniel Dimas.

"We're trying to find out what we can do to get supplies to these people," he said.

Authorities said the death toll from the flash flood in the normally dry bed of the Santa Catarina River could go higher.

"We have recovered 140 cadavers. It's difficult to say how many more there could be. It could be very terrible," Dimas said Tuesday.

TWA hijacking recalled

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Flight attendant Uli Derickson sobbed uncontrollably today as she recalled the 1985 hijacking of a TWA jetliner, saying she is still haunted by the ordeal.

Mrs. Derickson, the chief flight attendant aboard the airliner, was testifying for a second day at the trial of Mohammed Ali Hamadi, who is charged with hijacking the plane and murdering a U.S. Navy diver.

At least two hijackers held 39 Americans captive for 17 days.

"I suffered deep psychological effects, and I am still under therapy," the German-born Mrs. Derickson testified, her shoulders shaking with sobs.

Faction claims attack

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The Red Army Faction, West Germany's most notorious leftist terrorist gang, claimed responsibility for a shotgun attack on a senior government official, authorities said today.

The group claimed it staged Tuesday's attack on Hans Tietmeyer, one of Chancellor Helmut Kohl's key advisers, in a letter left at a news agency's office in Bonn, said a spokesman for the Federal Prosecutor's office.

Tietmeyer was not injured when his car was fired on near his home in the Bonn suburb of Bad Godesberg. Officials said the attack was apparently aimed at disrupting international finance talks that begin this week in West Berlin.

Earthquake rocks Japan

TOKYO (AP) — A strong earthquake rocked the Pacific coastal area on Japan's northernmost island of Hokkaido Wednesday, the Central Meteorological Agency said.

Local police said they had no reports of damage or injuries.

The quake registered a preliminary reading of 5.1 on the Richter scale.
