87-year-old dies in 911 mix-up

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

An 87-year-old woman died of an apparent heart attack at her home in Coahoma Friday as she waited for arrival of ambulance workers who mistakenly searched for her in Big Spring.

Aurelia Sheedy did not receive help until 18 minutes after dialing the 911 emergency telephone number, but could have received help within minutes if a Big Spring Police Department dispatcher had immediately realized that Sheedy lived in Coahoma.

According to paramedics who responded, Sheedy's heart reportedly stopped beating 10 minutes before help arrived at 501 N. Main in Coahoma. "It's very appalling," said 911 board member and Howard County Volunteer Fire Chief C. Roy Wright.

A recording of the call shows that Sheedy told the dispatcher, who reportedly resigned Monday under pressure, that she lived in Coahoma, but the dispatcher had relayed an address to ambulance workers without saying it was in Coahoma.

"Yes, I heard her say Coahoma," said Sheedy's grandson, Big Spring city council member Mark Sheedy, who listened to a recording of the call. "Now, you've got to remember, this is an 87-year-old who is scared. She's having a heart attack. She was tense."

"The lady was real weak. It wasn't clear," said the dispatcher, who said she resigned rather than be fired. "It was really loud in that dispatch room."

Also, Sheedy's address did not come up on the 911 computer screen as it should have when the call came in, said the dispatcher and 911 Director Carl Dorton. However, Sheedy's phone number, including the 394-prefix for Coahoma, did show up on the screen.

The dispatcher said, "Once I realized it (address) wasn't coming on the screen, I started focusing on her."

She said she realized that the phone number was a Coahoma number after ambulance workers could not find the address in Big Spring and asked her to doublecheck. She said she then dispatched the Coahoma address. County firefighter paramedics listening to a radio scanner at a roping event in Coahoma about a half-mile from Sheedy's home responded.

Candidate condemns spending

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Spending by Congress in many instances "just doesn't make sense," said Jeannie Sadowski, Republican candidate for the 17th Congressional District, who was in Big Spring Thursday.

"If they had to live by the same laws that they make, we couldn't have some of the laws that we have," said Sadowski of Eastland, who spoke to the West Texas Republican Women at a dinner at La Posada Restaurant.

Sadowski, who faces 13-year incumbent Charles Stenholm of Stamford in the Nov. 3 general election, reiterated calls for term limitations. A popular suggestion, she told about 30 people at the dinner, is to expand the current two-year term to four years and limit terms to three.

"I'm wondering if that's too long," she said.

"Too long," two people from the group retorted.

Sadowski, who supports President Bush's position on health care reform, which includes tax vouchers for insurance, and some of his positions on taxes, assured the crowd that she is not just agreeing with the president on every issue.

For example, she said, she disagrees with Bush's recent veto of a bill that would have eliminated political action committees. "We need to get rid of PACs," she said.

Stenholm has criticized Bush's health care plan, saying it does not provide an adequate funding mechanism. Stenholm earlier this year supported middle-class income tax cuts and increases for upper-class income tax increases. Bush vetoed the bill. Sadowski supported Bush's veto.

Sadowski said she will look at the preliminary health care plan that Stenholm and other lawmakers unveiled last month. The plan calls for a managed-care health system with government oversight and paperwork reductions.

Sadowski and Stenholm do not disagree as much on other issues:

• Both support limits of medical malpractice awards to reduce health costs and oppose nationalized health care.

• Both support a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget. Stenholm has repeatedly been a co-sponsor of such a bill.

• Sadowski wants a line-item veto for the president. Stenholm wants a well-defined, conditional line-item veto.

• Sadowski said she supports the Constitutional right to bear arms while Stenholm wants a week-long waiting period for checks on potential gun buyers.

Sadowski and her husband, who recently sold a hearing evaluation business to campaign full-time, told those at the dinner that a donation of a vehicle to campaign in would help. Sadowski received undisclosed donations from WTRW.

WHO to teach kids about abuse

By MARSHA STURDIVANT
Staff Writer

Trustees learned of a K-through-3rd grade program designed to stop the victimization of children during Thursday's meeting of the Big Spring Independent School District.

We Help Ourselves, or WHO, sponsored by Rape Crisis/Victim Services volunteers, plans to conduct lessons with Anderson Kindergarten students May 18-19 to teach children about child abuse with the aid of stuffed animals, role playing and instructions about protecting themselves.

"WHO gives children permission to say no when approached. We teach them to say no, get away and tell someone," said Lisa Brooks, executive director of Rape Crisis/Victim Services.

The students will learn about strangers, hurts, secrets and touches, said volunteer coordinator Loretta Burns. But the trained volunteers will not discuss the differences between discipline and child abuse with the children, she said.

"We teach about broken bones, bruises and burns," she said. Should a volunteer suspect child abuse following the students' responses, teachers or other educators will contact Child Protective Services.

"We're not trained as counselors. We report anything to the district," Burns said.

Curriculum Director Helen Gladden said parents should receive a notice from the school, announcing when the lessons will be given. And parents may request their children not attend.

Comptroller previews 'fun' lottery promotions

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Lottery will begin airing television commercials next week that encourage people to "be the one to win it" by playing the new state-run gambling game.

Comptroller John Sharp, who oversees the lottery that starts in two weeks, said Thursday that TV and radio advertising will be restrained but "fun."

Sharp said the advertising campaign deliberately has avoided the pitches made by other state lotteries, which included scenes of winners getting out of food stamp lines and "driving off in Cadillacs."

"We didn't want a commercial that overly entices people to play, that promised people things that weren't necessarily going to be there, that was Texas, uniquely Texas ... and was fun," Sharp said.

"Hopefully, it conveys what we want the lottery for Texas to be — that it's going to be something fun, it's going to be something that generates money for the state of Texas, and not something that oversells things, particularly to people who shouldn't be playing to begin with," he said.

The TV commercial features cowboy Buddy Webb of Canadian and scenes of other people dancing, celebrating and, in one case, fainting after buying winning tickets.

Sharp said about $695,000 worth of advertising was being bought for the kickoff of the first lottery event, an instant-win scratch-card game with tickets going on sale at 6 a.m. May 29.

Spanish-language television and radio ads also will be broadcast. Newspaper ads are to begin running about May 26, officials said.

Sharp said advertising campaigns have proven to be a necessity to the success of other state lotteries.

"Advertising is critical to any lottery," he said. Without ads, he said, "People don't hear about it and don't buy tickets."

In the initial ad, a song introduces the lottery asking, "Don't you love that lucky feeling?" It goes on to suggest, "So get out there and get it ... 'cause somebody's gonna win it."

Sharp said all the advertising purchases were being made inside Texas.

Witnesses accuse officer of brutality

EL PASO (AP) — An El Paso police officer has been placed on administrative leave after a man accused him and two other officers of brutally beating him.

Sam Johnston, a black man, said in an interview with KDBC-TV on Thursday he was hit on the head seven times after he was stopped in what initially was a routine traffic stop.

"In the head, seven times, in the head seven times, I counted it. I can never forget that," Johnston said.

The allegations come after several days of riots in Los Angeles sparked by the acquittal of four officers accused of brutally beating black motorist Rodney King.

The El Paso officer placed on leave was veteran officer Ricardo Elias, who is Hispanic, police spokesman Sgt. Bill Pfeil said. Pfeil did not know how many years Elias has been on the force. The other two officers involved were black and white.

Johnston was stopped in northeast El Paso, at about 4 a.m. Thursday because his license plate light was out. He struggled with the first officer and two officers later drove up to assist.

Police later found Johnston was wanted on two felony warrants, including one accusing him of aggravated assault.

Witnesses at the scene told police Johnston resisted arrest. Pfeil said. "One of the comments made was he lowered his head and took off like a fullback," he said.

But witnesses also said police appeared to use unnecessary force.

Nick Shardsky said he saw officers kick Johnston in the face.

"All three of them kept walling away, they had big flashlights and you could hear them half a block down the street. Ka-thud, ka-thud, ka-thud, ka-thud and he kept crying for help," witness Dave Ross told KDBC.

Hospital officials would not release details on Johnston's injuries. Johnston was being held at the El Paso County Detention Center Thursday night on three counts of aggravated assault on a police officer.

"Why would they do that here, in El Paso? Why?" Johnston asked in the television interview.

Names in the news

LONDON (AP) — Nearly two-thirds of Britons think Princess Anne's divorce and Prince Andrew's separation have damaged the image of the royal family, according to a poll released today.

The poll, conducted by Gallup for the British Broadcasting Corp's "Public Eye" program, found that 62 percent of those questioned believed that the broken marriages had damaged the royal family. 25 percent said they had no effect, 12 percent believed they had a positive effect and 1 percent were unsure.

Just over half, 51 percent, said the royal family didn't provide a good example of family life, while 42 percent said it did. Seven percent had no opinion.

Princess Anne, only daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, was granted a divorce earlier this month from Capt. Mark Phillips, her husband of 18 years.

In March, Buckingham Palace announced the separation of Prince Andrew, Duke of York, and the former Sarah Ferguson. They have been married five years.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Roseanne and Tom Arnold are involved in three new projects: a movie, a house and a baby.

Mrs. Arnold, star of the ABC comedy "Roseanne," underwent surgery 16 days ago to untie her fallopian tubes so the couple can have a child.

TOM AND ROSEANNE ARNOLD

"It was very successful. We can start trying in five weeks," her husband said Wednesday.

In two weeks, he said, the couple begins shooting a movie in Iowa, where they also are building a new home.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — McDonald's changed a TV ad featuring Olympic champion speedskater Bonnie Blair after a health official complained she wasn't wearing a helmet.

In the original commercial, Blair also roller-skated too close to a moving vehicle, said Mary T. Jones of the Allegheny County Health Department.

"I'm sure it was just an oversight," Ms. Jones said Thursday. "But it is so scary to think of Bonnie Blair, who is a role model, doing something like that."

The fast-food chain added a safety warning to the commercial and wrote a letter to Ms. Jones. "We were glad they brought it to our attention," spokeswoman Ann Connolly said from McDonald's headquarters in Oak Brook, Ill. "We gladly made the changes."

Blair, of Champaign, Ill., won gold medals in 500- and 1,000-meter ice speedskating at the Winter Olympics.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Miss America Carolyn Sapp will star in a TV movie about an abusive relationship with a former boyfriend, NBC announced. "Miss America: Behind the Crown" is scheduled to air in September, the network said Thursday.

Sapp, 25, claimed she was abused by Nuu Faaola, a former running back for the New York Jets, while the couple lived in her home state of Hawaii.

Last year, Sapp filed an affidavit in a Honolulu court claiming that Faaola beat her and threatened her with a knife. Later, Faaola said he underwent counseling, but never confirmed or denied the allegations.

NEW YORK (AP) — Many of the medical workers who helped save Sally Jessy Raphael's son's life after a near-fatal car wreck were in the audience when he taped a show with his mother.

"Every moment he would say, 'I want to walk on your show. I want to walk on your show,'" Raphael recalled Thursday.

Jason "J.J." Soderland, 19, was in a coma for 10 days after his car smashed into a tree in January about 60 miles north of New York.

Soderland, who also suffered two broken legs, praised the paramedics, doctors and nurses — many in attendance — who saved his life. The show will air May 20.

Raphael's daughter, 33-year-old Allison Vladimir, died of an accidental drug overdose in February.

Tilton: Conspiracy to ruin his ministry

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A federal judge has agreed to consider a lawsuit by Texas evangelist Robert Tilton, who claims four attorneys and two adversaries have conspired to destroy his ministry.

In a lawsuit filed Thursday, Tilton accused his adversaries of libel and slander, and said they have turned followers against him by filing groundless lawsuits that lawyers have promoted to the media.

A status conference is set for May 26. U.S. District Judge James Ellison scheduled the trial for Aug. 3.

Ellison denied a temporary restraining order that would have kept the attorneys and two members of the Trinity Foundation, Inc. in Dallas from making further comments about the ministry.

But he said the lawsuit, which also seeks a preliminary injunction, raises issues that should be dealt with in court.

"What limitations can be placed on the use of litigation as a device to do damage to an individual?" Ellison asked. "And what restraints can be placed on litigation and language if the purpose is to do in a different point of view?"

The defendants are Tulsa lawyer Gary Richardson, who has filed most of the lawsuits; Texas attorneys C. Tony Wright, David Burrows and George Ostott; and Ole Anthony and Harry Guetzlaff of the Trinity Foundation in Dallas.

Tilton's lawyer, J.C. Joyce of Tulsa, claims the defendants have conspired to destroy the evangelist and his Word of Faith World Outreach Center in Farmers Branch, Texas, with malicious remarks through the media and the lawsuits.

Nine lawsuits seeking damages that total $500 million against Tilton have been filed since a broadcast report last year that Tilton was keeping contributions but trashing the prayer requests that came with them.

The Texas attorney general is investigating the ministry.

Ex-husband stories swamp publisher

NEW YORK (AP) — It promises to be an anxious weekend for the nation's cads, one of whom will learn early next week that an ex-wife's essay on his foibles has won "The First Wives Club Consumer Contest."

The stories range from the merely annoying — the rascal who bought his wife the Sunday paper for her 21st birthday — to the truly terrifying: A doctor accused of caressing his wife's face and telling her, "I know just where to press to break every bone in your face."

All are subjects of essays submitted to Simon & Schuster, publisher of "The First Wives Club" by Olivia Goldsmith, a novel about three women who are discarded by their powerful husbands for slim young "trophy wives."

The novel's jacket flap announced an essay contest on "just what a cad your ex-husband is." First prize is a $1,500 gift certificate to Cartier, the jeweler.

The publisher says it heard from almost 200 women, including one behind bars in Wisconsin for trying to hire someone to murder her ex-spouse.

Winners will be determined not by how bad their husbands were, but how literate their essays are. The prisoner, for example, wrote that she was enjoying her 14-month sentence "considerably more than my 18-year marriage."

There's apparently a lot of inspirational material out there, including a scoundrel who rented the basement apartment to his girlfriend and a boor who took back the ring he gave his first wife and presented it to his second one.

Caroline of Raleigh, N.C., said she used cardiopulmonary resuscitation to save her husband's life one morning when he collapsed after jogging. Six weeks later, while still recovering, he announced their marriage was over. The next thing she knew, he had moved a young blonde from his office into their condo.

During the divorce, he reneged on promises of financial support.

Ramos ahead, Santiago claims fraud

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — As results of the presidential election continued to trickle in today, Fidel Ramos edged ahead of Miriam Defensor Santiago, who has called for protests against "wholesale election fraud."

With about 11 percent of the ballots counted from Monday's voting, tabulation by Media Citizens Quick Count, Ramos, the candidate supported by President Corazon Aquino, was leading with 620,444 votes to 594,438 for Mrs. Santiago.

Mrs. Santiago had been the frontrunner until the latest tally, which included votes from Ramos' home province.

Businessman Eduardo "Danding" Cojuangco, a close associate of the ousted regime of President Ferdinand Marcos, trailed the presidential tallying in third place and Marcos' widow, Imelda, was sixth.

Mrs. Santiago today charged that the excruciatingly slow ballot counting was to allow time to rig tallies.

The anti-corruption crusader called on Filipinos to maintain a round-the-clock vigil at tabulation

Supporters of presidential frontrunner Miriam Defensor Santiago cheer outside a hotel where she held a press conference Friday in Manila. Santiago announced she will lead nationwide centers to guard against cheating.

Mrs. Aquino, in a statement to reporters, said Mrs. Santiago lacked "the moral authority to call 'people power,'" the phrase for the mass actions which Mrs. Aquino employed to topple Marcos after the fraud-riddled 1986 elections.

International observers echoed charges of fraud and other irregularities in the election, including vote-buying and intimidation.

Observers said they saw election officials so drunk they couldn't perform their duties; ballot boxes opened by unauthorized people; death threats made against candidates; and payments of $4 apiece to prospective voters.

Drinking and riding can kill you

ATLANTA (AP) — Drinking and riding a horse can be as deadly as drinking and driving a car, health researchers say.

In a North Carolina survey, nearly 40 percent of people killed by falling off horses had been drinking, the national Centers for Disease Control said Thursday.

"It makes as little sense to drink and ride as it does to drink and drive," said Dr. Thomas Cole, injury control chief for North Carolina's environmental health department.

Having a few drinks before galloping off is common for too many riders, said Dr. Doris Bixby-Hammett, secretary of the American Medical Equestrian Association.

"The fox hunters always had their brandy; it's part of the tradition," she said.

Industry underwhelmed with decision

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — Hap Huffman, working his usual 12-hour day running a logging outfit, took little joy from a government panel's decision to allow some logging in forests inhabited by the threatened northern spotted owl.

"It's just trying to make everybody happy and not really providing a solution. And we can't keep doing that," said Huffman, vice president of Huffman & Wright Logging in the southwestern Oregon town of Canyonville.

"Industries and businesses like ours can't survive not knowing what the future is going to be," Huffman said.

Logging restrictions to protect the threatened bird already forced him to cut half of what was a 250-member crew.

In Washington, the Endangered Species Committee, chaired by Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan Jr., voted Thursday to allow timber sales on 13 tracts of land comprising 1,700 acres in two Oregon counties. The move should save 1,000 jobs.

The Bush administration had sought exemptions for 44 tracts; government biologists said that would threaten the owls' survival.

The federal courts have halted all logging in owl habitat until a preservation plan can be developed.

The decision was only the second time in two decades that a government panel has overridden the Endangered Species Act.

The first time was in 1979 when a similar panel allowed construction of the Grayrocks Dam in Wyoming, although it threatened whooping cranes on Nebraska's Platte River.

Congress allows for an exemption to the law if economic and other factors warrant.

Environmentalists blasted the decision, saying it could spell the end of the owl, a species that was designated a threatened species in June 1990. There are 3,000 pairs left.

"We are outraged at this decision to ignore the Endangered Species Act and kill the spotted owl," said Mark Hubbard, spokesman for the Oregon Natural Resources Council, an environmental advocacy group.

Environmentalists have called the act one of their strongest weapons in the fight to save the Northwest's oldest forests.

"Protecting the owl is not as far as needs to be gone to keep our forests healthy," said Vic Sher, a lawyer with the Sierra Club Legal Defense Fund in Seattle.

"We really have to start taking an ecosystem approach, and approach it with humility and caution," Sher said.

In addition to allowing the timber sales, the Bush administration asked Congress to approve a compromise long-term plan to protect the owl, yet preserve as many logging jobs as possible. Lujan said it would save at least 17,000 jobs.

Witnesses accuse officer of brutality

EL PASO (AP) — An El Paso police officer has been placed on administrative leave after a man accused him and two other officers of brutally beating him.

Sam Johnston, a black man, said in an interview with KDBC-TV on Thursday he was hit on the head seven times after he was stopped in what initially was a routine traffic stop.

"In the head, seven times, in the head seven times, I counted it. I can never forget that," Johnston said.

The allegations come after several days of riots in Los Angeles sparked by the acquittal of four officers accused of brutally beating black motorist Rodney King.

The El Paso officer placed on leave was veteran officer Ricardo Elias, who is Hispanic, police spokesman Sgt. Bill Pfeil said. Pfeil did not know how many years Elias has been on the force. The other two officers involved were black and white.

Johnston was stopped in northeast El Paso, at about 4 a.m. Thursday because his license plate light was out. He struggled with the first officer and two officers later drove up to assist.

Police later found Johnston was wanted on two felony warrants, including one accusing him of aggravated assault.

Witnesses at the scene told police Johnston resisted arrest, Pfeil said.

"One of the comments made was he lowered his head and took off like a fullback," he said.

But witnesses also said police appeared to use unnecessary force.

Nick Shardursky said he saw officers kick Johnston in the face.

"All three of them kept wailing away, they had big flashlights and you could hear them half a block down the street. Ka-thud, ka-thud, ka-thud and he kept crying for help," witness Dave Ross told KDBC.

Hospital officials would not release details on Johnston's injuries. Johnston was being held at the El Paso County Detention Center Thursday night on three counts of aggravated assault on a police officer.

"Why would they do that here, in El Paso? Why?" Johnston asked in the television interview.

Names in the news

LONDON (AP) — Nearly two-thirds of Britons think Princess Anne's divorce and Prince Andrew's separation have damaged the image of the royal family, according to a poll released today.

The poll, conducted by Gallup for the British Broadcasting Corp.'s "Public Eye" program, found that 62 percent of those questioned believed that the broken marriages had damaged the royal family, 25 percent said they had no effect, 12 percent believed they had a positive effect and 1 percent were unsure.

Just over half, 51 percent, said the royal family didn't provide a good example of family life, while 42 percent said it did. Seven percent had no opinion.

Princess Anne, only daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, was granted a divorce earlier this month from Capt. Mark Phillips, her husband of 18 years.

In March, Buckingham Palace announced the separation of Prince Andrew, Duke of York, and the former Sarah Ferguson. They have been married five years.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Roseanne and Tom Arnold are involved in three new projects: a movie, a house and a baby.

Mrs. Arnold, star of the ABC comedy "Roseanne," underwent surgery 16 days ago to untie her fallopian tubes so the couple can have a child.

TOM AND ROSEANNE ARNOLD

"It was very successful. We can start trying in five weeks," her husband said Wednesday.

In two weeks, he said, the couple begins shooting a movie in Iowa, where they also are building a new home.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — McDonald's changed a TV ad featuring Olympic champion speedskater Bonnie Blair after a health official complained she wasn't wearing a helmet.

In the original commercial, Blair also roller-skated too close to a moving vehicle, said Mary T. Jones of the Allegheny County Health Department.

"I'm sure it was just an oversight," Ms. Jones said Thursday. "But it is so scary to think of Bonnie Blair, who is a role model, doing something like that."

The fast-food chain added a safety warning to the commercial and wrote a letter to Ms. Jones.

"We were glad they brought it to our attention," spokeswoman Ann Connolly said from McDonald's headquarters in Oak Brook, Ill.

"We gladly made the changes."

Blair, of Champaign, Ill., won gold medals in 500- and 1,000-meter ice speedskating at the Winter Olympics.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Miss America Carolyn Sapp will star in a TV movie about an abusive relationship with a former boyfriend, NBC announced.

"Miss America: Behind the Crown" is scheduled to air in September, the network said Thursday.

Sapp, 25, claimed she was abused by Nuu Faaola, a former running back for the New York Jets, while the couple lived in her home state of Hawaii.

Last year, Sapp filed an affidavit in a Honolulu court claiming that Faaola beat her and threatened her with a knife. Later, Faaola said he underwent counseling, but never confirmed or denied the allegations.

NEW YORK (AP) — Many of the medical workers who helped save Sally Jessy Raphael's son's life after a near-fatal car wreck were in the audience when he taped a show with his mother.

"Every moment he would say, 'I want to walk on your show. I want to walk on your show,'" Raphael recalled Thursday.

Jason "J.J." Soderland, 19, was in a coma for 10 days after his car smashed into a tree in January about 60 miles north of New York.

Soderland, who also suffered two broken legs, praised the paramedics, doctors and nurses — many in attendance — who saved his life. The show will air May 20.

Raphael's daughter, 33-year-old Allison Vladimir, died of an accidental drug overdose in February.

Tilton: Conspiracy to ruin his ministry

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A federal judge has agreed to consider a lawsuit by Texas evangelist Robert Tilton, who claims four attorneys and two adversaries have conspired to destroy his ministry.

In a lawsuit filed Thursday, Tilton accused his adversaries of libel and slander, and said they have turned followers against him by filing groundless lawsuits that lawyers have promoted to the media.

A status conference is set for May 26. U.S. District Judge James Ellison scheduled the trial for Aug. 3.

Ellison denied a temporary restraining order that would have kept the attorneys and two members of the Trinity Foundation, Inc. in Dallas from making further comments about the ministry.

But he said the lawsuit, which also seeks a preliminary injunction, raises issues that should be dealt with in court.

"What limitations can be placed on the use of litigation as a device to do damage to an individual?" Ellison asked. "And what restraints can be placed on litigation and language if the purpose is to do in a different point of view?"

The defendants are Tulsa lawyer Gary Richardson, who has filed most of the lawsuits; Texas attorneys C. Tony Wright, David Burrows and George Ostott; and Ole Anthony and Harry Guetzlaff of the Trinity Foundation in Dallas. Tilton's lawyer, J.C. Joyce of Tulsa, claims the defendants have conspired to destroy the evangelist and his Word of Faith World Outreach Center in Farmers Branch, Texas, with malicious remarks through the media and the lawsuits.

Nine lawsuits seeking damages that total $500 million against Tilton have been filed since a broadcast report last year that Tilton was keeping contributions but trashing the prayer requests that came with them.

The Texas attorney general is investigating the ministry.

Joyce claims Anthony and the Trinity Foundation have enticed the media and prosecutors into probing the ministry, and that it planted forged prayer requests in the trash, claiming they belonged to Tilton.

"It was all a frame," he said. "Everything they said was false."

And he says the lawyers, Richardson in particular, have sought to further damage Tilton by holding news conferences when each lawsuit was filed.

Ex-husband stories swamp publisher

NEW YORK (AP) — It promises to be an anxious weekend for the nation's cads, one of whom will learn early next week that an ex-wife's essay on his foibles has won "The First Wives Club Consumer Contest."

The stories range from the merely annoying — the rascal who bought his wife the Sunday paper for her 21st birthday — to the truly terrifying: A doctor accused of caressing his wife's face and telling her, "I know just where to press to break every bone in your face."

All are subjects of essays submitted to Simon & Schuster, publisher of "The First Wives Club" by Olivia Goldsmith, a novel about three women who are discarded by their powerful husbands for slim young "trophy wives."

The novel's jacket flap announced an essay contest on "just what a cad your ex-husband is." First prize is a $1,500 gift certificate to Cartier, the jeweler.

The publisher says it heard from almost 200 women, including one behind bars in Wisconsin for trying to hire someone to murder her ex-spouse.

Winners will be determined not by how bad their husbands were, but how literate their essays are. The prisoner, for example, wrote that she was enjoying her 14-month sentence "considerably more than my 18-year marriage."

There's apparently a lot of inspirational material out there, including a scoundrel who rented the basement apartment to his girlfriend and a boor who took back the ring he gave his first wife and presented it to his second one.

Caroline of Raleigh, N.C., said she used cardiopulmonary resuscitation to save her husband's life one morning when he collapsed after jogging. Six weeks later, while still recovering, he announced their marriage was over. The next thing she knew, he had moved a young blonde from his office into their condo.

During the divorce, he reneged on promises of financial support.

Ramos ahead, Santiago claims fraud

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — As results of the presidential election continued to trickle in today, Fidel Ramos edged ahead of Miriam Defensor Santiago, who has called for protests against "wholesale election fraud."

With about 11 percent of the ballots counted from Monday's voting, tabulation by Media Citizens Quick Count, Ramos, the candidate supported by President Corazon Aquino, was leading with 620,444 votes to 594,438 for Mrs. Santiago.

Mrs. Santiago had been the frontrunner until the latest tally, which included votes from Ramos' home province.

Businessman Eduardo "Danding" Cojuangco, a close associate of the ousted regime of President Ferdinand Marcos, trailed the presidential tallying in third place and Marcos' widow, Imelda, was sixth.

Mrs. Santiago today charged that the excruciatingly slow ballot counting was to allow time to rig tallies.

The anti-corruption crusader called on Filipinos to maintain a round-the-clock vigil at tabulation centers to guard against cheating. Mrs. Aquino, in a statement to reporters, said Mrs. Santiago lacked "the moral authority to call 'people power,'" the phrase for the mass actions which Mrs. Aquino employed to topple Marcos after the fraud-riddled 1986 elections. International observers echoed charges of fraud and other irregularities in the election, including vote-buying and intimidation. Observers said they saw election officials so drunk they couldn't perform their duties; ballot boxes opened by unauthorized people; death threats made against candidates; and payments of $4 apiece to prospective voters.

Drinking and riding can kill you

ATLANTA (AP) — Drinking and riding a horse can be as deadly as drinking and driving a car, health researchers say.

In a North Carolina survey, nearly 40 percent of people killed by falling off horses had been drinking, the national Centers for Disease Control said Thursday.

"It makes as little sense to drink and ride as it does to drink and drive," said Dr. Thomas Cole, injury control chief for North Carolina's environmental health department.

Having a few drinks before galloping off is common for too many riders, said Dr. Doris Bixby-Hammett, secretary of the American Medical Equestrian Association.

"The fox hunters always had their brandy; it's part of the tradition," she said.

Industry underwhelmed with decision

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — Hap Huffman, working his usual 12-hour day running a logging outfit, took little joy from a government panel's decision to allow some logging in forests inhabited by the threatened northern spotted owl.

"It's just trying to make everybody happy and not really providing a solution. And we can't keep doing that," said Huffman, vice president of Huffman & Wright Logging in the southwestern Oregon town of Canyonville.

"Industries and businesses like ours can't survive not knowing what the future is going to be," Huffman said.

Logging restrictions to protect the threatened bird already forced him to cut half of what was a 250-member crew.

In Washington, the Endangered Species Committee, chaired by Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan Jr., voted Thursday to allow timber sales on 13 tracts of land comprising 1,700 acres in two Oregon counties. The move should save 1,000 jobs.

The Bush administration had sought exemptions for 44 tracts; government biologists said that would threaten the owls' survival.

The federal courts have halted all logging in owl habitat until a preservation plan can be developed.

The decision was only the second time in two decades that a government panel has overridden the Endangered Species Act.

The first time was in 1979 when a similar panel allowed construction of the Grayrocks Dam in Wyoming, although it threatened whooping cranes on Nebraska's Platte River.

Congress allows for an exemption to the law if economic and other factors warrant.

Environmentalists blasted the decision, saying it could spell the end of the owl, a species designated a threatened species in June 1990. There are 3,000 pairs left.

"We are outraged at this decision to ignore the Endangered Species Act and kill the spotted owl," said Mark Hubbard, spokesman for the Oregon Natural Resources Council, an environmental advocacy group.

Environmentalists have called the act one of their strongest weapons in the fight to save the Northwest's oldest forests.

"Protecting the owl is not as far as needs to be gone to keep our forests healthy," said Vic Sher, a lawyer with the Sierra Club Legal Defense Fund in Seattle.

"We really have to start taking an ecosystem approach, and approach it with humility and caution," Sher said.

In addition to allowing the timber sales, the Bush administration asked Congress to approve a compromise long-term plan to protect the owl, yet preserve as many logging jobs as possible. Lujan said it would save at least 17,000 jobs.

Scalped at Braves game

The success of the Atlanta Braves has become quite an inconvenience. When the Braves were motley losers you could walk up a minute before the first pitch and buy a ticket to sing the national anthem.

More people got root canals in a day than went to a Braves game. Root canals were less painful. But not anymore. Look at this. It's a Wednesday afternoon Braves game, starting at 40 minutes after the noon hour or 20 minutes before most people had to be back at work after lunch break.

And the joint is nearly packed with 33,000 inside Atlanta Fulton County Stadium.

It's what they call a Businessman's Special, which is sexist, of course, implying women don't do business, but can we get off that subject and just talk baseball today?

During the game, the stadium announcer said, "Just because you're out of the office you don't have to be out of touch" — and explained how some mobile phone company was going to be in the stands with its wares in case you needed to call the boss and explain to him/her how your grandmother was doing in surgery.

"That noise in the background?" one might have had to say. "They're cheering the surgeons."

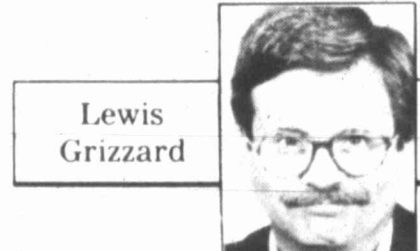

So I get to the park an hour before the game with a couple of companions. We have no tickets. We were informed at the ticket window all that was left were upper deck seats. That's where little league teams sit.

"Don't worry," I said to my companions. "I'll find a scalper." Imagine scalping tickets at a Braves game a couple of years ago. You would have been lucky to have given them away.

But the Braves went to the World Series last season and I became an expert at scalping tickets.

It was out of necessity. When the Braves announced they were putting playoff and World Series tickets on sale a month before the season ended, I laughed and said, "That's like the Democrats selling inauguration tickets at the convention."

So I didn't buy any playoff or World Series tickets, and those that I eventually were able to obtain from a scalper were at a great cost.

Lewis Grizzard

One thing I learned about scalping tickets last season is you have to leave the stadium grounds to find a seller.

Scalpers selling on stadium grounds often get arrested.

So I walked across the street from the stadium and this guy was sitting on a car hood.

"Got any tickets?" I asked him.

"What do you need?"

"Three of the best you've got," I said.

"I got these three right behind the Braves dugout," he explained.

"How much?"

"Thirty each."

"Deal," I said.

Only I didn't have 90 bucks on me.

"I'll hold 'em," said the scalper, "while you go get the money from your friends."

I came back with the 90.

"Great seats," I said to my friends after the buy. "Right behind the Braves dugout."

Never buy tickets from a scalper unless you first closely examine them as I had done with the original three tickets the scalper showed me.

I didn't look, however, at the three he gave me when I came back with the money.

They weren't behind the Braves dugout at all. They were in deep center field.

"The ol' bait and switch," said one of my chums.

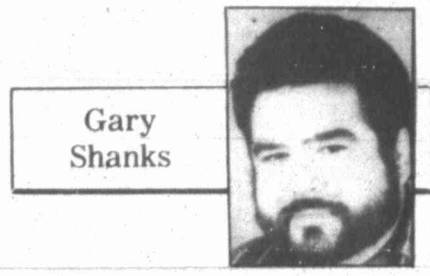

Otis Nixon made a great catch in centerfield for the Braves, but we didn't get to see it because you couldn't see the centerfielder when he went to the fence from where we had paid a scalper three times the regular cost to sit.

"Great seats, huh guys," I said again in the 8th inning.

The Braves won 8-0, we were close to a rest room, it was a lovely spring day, and now, with apologies to Native Americans and the Portland Oregonian, I know why they call them scalpers.

Gadhafi: A few camels short of a herd

Gary Shanks

Y'know, after careful, dispassionate consideration, I've come to the conclusion that Moammar Gadhafi is a few camels short of a herd.

Any sane dictator in his position wouldn't be able to turn over the Pan Am terrorists fast enough.

The United Nations has approved sanctions. And it was just about that time in the Persian Gulf conflict when Uncle George started making plans to blast Iraq into the stone age.

Add to that a president whose domestic problems have given him a roller coaster ride to the bottom of the favorability ratings.

Does Moammar realize that the Bush-meister had a favorability rating of around 90 percent during and immediately after the Persian Gulf War?

Face it, most Americans have a martial streak a mile wide.

If this Moammar twit had two brain cells touching he'd be evacuating little green apples about now!

What does he think? After thrilling the world with U.S. destructive might, and given a golden opportunity to boost his ratings, George will just let it slide this time? Yeah, right!

And if Gadhafi thinks the Arab world will try to protect him, he's probably in for a bigger surprise than when Reagan bombed his house.

Syria was thinking about violating the embargo on incoming flights to Libya, but decided against it when other Arab countries wouldn't allow "fly over" rights.

The guy just amazes me. He's like a dachshund — he doesn't seem to know how little he is.

Nothing I hate worse than an ankle-biting dictator. Shoot! Libya couldn't even defeat the impoverished country of Chad. Libya attacked with tanks and Chad responded with four-wheel-drive Toyota pickups. In the bed of each pickup was an anti-tank missile and a guy to operate it — Chad kicked the crud out of them! Gadhafiland has been a training ground for international terrorists for decades now. Matter o' fact, I think you have to do a month of continuing education in Libya every year to keep your international terrorist's license up to date.

I think we may be in for it.

folks. There are rumors of a number of nuclear warheads that may have been smuggled from formerly Soviet Kazakhstan to (God help us) Iran. Probably, it doesn't matter if these rumors are true. It's going to happen sooner or later. The world can get tough on terrorism now, or get ready for nukes to pop off every now and then. Incidentally, Soviet-made warheads start at a full megaton and range up to about five-megaton yields. Your average American warhead, by contrast, is about 50 or 60 kilotons — only 10-15 times the blast at Hiroshima (if I remember correctly). I had strong reservations about the Persian Gulf War. Rescuing a monarchy from the hands of a dictator is no reason to waste human lives. Destroying Iraq's nuclear weapons capability, though, is a much better reason (in purely mathematical terms, i.e., a few lives for many lives.) So while I'm loathe to admit it, we should probably enlist the cooperation of as many countries as possible and blast the living hell out of Libya. And, while we're at it, we might as well push for a United Nations military presence along the northern border of Iran. I dunno. There's a definite possibility that life in the 2000s might stink. Oh well. Keep the faith!

The writer's art

Lots of sleepy Homers nod

In his "Ars Poetica," Horace expressed his indignation "quandocumque bonus dormitat Homerus" — that even dear old Homer sometimes nods. The same kind of somnolence affects a great many writers. They fall asleep over their own stuff.

Nothing else could explain a line from Pat Buchanan last year. (He was then a columnist, not yet a politician.) He remarked that anti-communism "was the great solvent that held together Ronald Reagan's coalition." It's hard to identify the word that Pat was reaching for. Adhesive? Glue? Stickum? Library paste? He just briefly nodded, that's all.

In Chicago last November, a small company ran a dignified little ad, bordered in turned rules, announcing that it would be closed in memory of its president. He had "died unexpectedly."

Perhaps it's the best way to go, though Christian theology promises something else.

Someone on the sports desk of the Birmingham (Ala.) Post-Herald was drowsing in March: "Former Dallas Cowboys President and General Manager Tex Schramm underwent quintuplet bypass surgery yesterday..."

The sequence goes, double, triple, quadruple, quintuple, sextuple, septuple, octuple, ninefold.

In Swoyersville, Pa., a couple of months ago, police arrested a woman for driving under the influence of alcoholic beverages. The Citizens' Voice of Wilkes-Barre reported that she was observed "driving in an erotic manner." Surely the reporter knows the significant difference between erratic and erotic, though I'm afreud we should not discuss it here.

James J. Kilpatrick

One of the most persistent offenses against the stay-awake rule has to do with the confusion between ancestors and descendants. You wouldn't think this would cause trouble, but it does.

In February, Knight-Ridder moved a nice feature story on Dr. Samuel A. Mudd, who treated John Wilkes Booth in April 1865 as Booth was fleeing after the assassination of Lincoln. Months later, Dr. Mudd was convicted of complicity in the crime. The reporter had it right: Now, 127 years later, Mudd's grandson hopes to clear "his ancestor's name." Lamentably, a copy editor for The Indianapolis Star put a baffling headline on the story: "The doctor who treated John Wilkes Booth was punished unfairly, say his ancestors." It's not easy for a grandson to be his grandfather's ancestor.

In Fort Myers, Fla., a feature writer for the Sunday News-Press turned in a nice piece on Lee County's emergency medical service. Ten years ago, the paramedics serving an ambulance had to call ahead to get permission to perform fairly simple procedures. Things are different now. "Today, they provide advanced life support, including very evasive procedures." Those procedures aren't evasive, for heaven's sake! They're invasive.

Is there any such thing as a "slow plunge"? There was in San Antonio in March, where the Express-News carried an interesting headline: "Woman tells of slow plunge into poverty." I would argue that no one can plunge slowly.

To avoid accidents on clogged highways, said a state police spokesman in Florida, "motorists should give themselves more time to get to their designations." That wasn't really what he said. He said, "destinations," but a nodding Homer in Vero Beach got it wrong.

Stay awake! We must stay awake. The Buffalo Sabres in February were in Edmonton, where they practiced on an ice rink in a mammoth shopping mall. The News reported that "a few hundred shoppers, dozens of exotic fish and a bloomed peacock looked on." Was the peacock plumed? Seems more likely.

Thinking of fowl mistakes: Last September the Arizona Senior World carried a travel feature on Los Cabos, a resort area at the tip of the Baja peninsula. The writer regaled his readers with the delights of San Jose del Cabo, where a posh hotel has a swim-up bar and the beach has a booming surf. "San Jose," the writer continued, "also is the home of an actuary that attracts bird watchers from all parts of the globe."

Actuary? Well, actually, that's an aviary. The writer just let his mind wander from the page. So did Homer, long ago. It's a feeble defense, but sometimes it's the only defense we have. I resorted to the Horatian defense last month, when I wrote "loath" when I meant "loathe." Just nodded off, that's all. Show me the way to go, Homer.

Howard Hawks grounded for the season

WACO — Scoring runs has never been a problem for the Howard College Hawks this season. Holding on to leads and holding down the opposition's offense has.

And such was the case Thursday in Waco when the Hawks blew an early 7-0 lead and were eliminated from the state junior college championship in a 10-7 loss to McLennan Community College.

Howard was undone by a six-run McLennan fifth inning. The Highlanders sent 11 batters to the plate in the frame and got seven hits, tallying all six runs with two outs to go ahead 8-7.

The Hawks used four pitchers in the game. Shanc Ziegler got the loss, allowing two of the fifth inning runs while failing to record an out.

Howard coach Bill Griffin said misuses led to some of McLennan's runs in the Highlanders' big inning.

"We had a ball that could have been caught in the outfield and made a few mental mistakes," Griffin said. "But they were getting the breaks and they deserved to win."

McLennan had six straight hits in the fifth, but two of those came off check swings.

"When those things occur to you, you know you've met your Waterloo," Griffin said.

Highlander reliever Robert Dodd came in in the third inning and shut the Hawks out for the last 6 2/3 to get the win.

Starting pitcher Demond Thomas smacked a grand slam in the bottom of the first inning to post a 4-0 Howard advantage. Hawk Santiago Rivera had two RBI in the second and Chad Dunavon hit a solo home run in the third to give Howard its early cushion.

The Highlanders began their comeback in the top of the fourth. Thomas walked the first two McLennan batters and then surrendered a hit that scored two, making it 7-2. After their fifth inning explosion, the Highlanders added an insurance run in each of the last two innings for the final score.

Griffin was happy with his team's season despite its losing both state tournament games. Texas beat the Hawks 4-2 on Wednesday.

"I thought we had a good year," Griffin said. "We just weren't able to get things rolling down here (in Waco). We ended up 40-17, that's not bad."

The game marks the end of an era for Howard. Griffin, who has coached junior college baseball for 34 years and skipped the Hawks for 11 years, goes to Northeast Texas Community College in Mount Pleasant next school year to begin a baseball program there. He took Howard to eight state playoff tournaments in the 10 years the school fielded a team and won the national championship last year. Under Griffin the Hawks won 70 percent of their games and took conference championships two of the three years the conference recognized baseball as an official sport.

McLennan goes against Odessa College today at 1 p.m.

Stanton relay runs way to state

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

STANTON — The way things have gone for the Stanton Lady Buffalos 800 meter relay team this track season, it should be quite a surprise they qualified for the state meet.

But not to Stacy Tollison. Tollison, a junior, said she knew she and her teammates would be going to Austin to compete. "I knew all along we would go to state. I just didn't (know) how many relays we would be going in," Tollison said.

Tollison knew what she was talking about. Saturday at 1:25 p.m., the Lady Buffs will compete in the Class 2A 800 meter relay at Austin's Memorial Stadium. Tollison will be joined on the relay by sisters Nancy and Lucy Chapa and Laura Herm.

Herm, a freshman, runs the first leg, followed by Tollison, senior Nancy and freshman Lupe Chapa. Alternates are freshman Sande Bundas and senior Christie Hirt. The Lady Buffs have run a best of 1:46.19. They also combined to post some of the area's best times in the 400 meter relay (50:26) and 1,600 relay (4:09.32).

At the regional meet Stanton ran a 1:47.72 to easily win the event. The Lady Buffs finished fourth in the 400 meter relay and fifth in the 1,600 meter relay.

But the road to state has been a difficult one for the relay team. They've constantly changed running positions and have been plagued by injuries ranging from thigh and quadracep pulls to strained back muscles.

The order of the 800 relay at the first track meet of the season in Garden City was Herm, Hirt, Lupe Chapa and Tollison. Leadoff runner Herm is the only one who has kept her same position in the relay. Bundas is the only runner who hasn't been injured this season.

The Stanton Lady Buffalos' 800 meter relay will be competing in the state track meet Saturday. They are front row, left to right, Lupe Chapa, Nancy

"I get a good start out of the blocks. I've handed off to everybody except Lupe," said Herm, explaining why she has kept her position.

Tollison said she usually runs a leg that puts her against the wind because she's stronger than the other runners. All four have turned in good times on the legs. Herm has a best of 26.2 outs of the blocks. Tollison has run a 25.0, Nancy Chapa 25.3 and Lupe Chapa 24.7. "Last week (at the state qualifier's meet in Abilene) was the first time we ran a race without anybody being hurt," said Tollison. "Then there was a 40-mile-per-hour wind and we had a terrible handoff. Mine and Nancy's were bad because we had never practiced."

The group agrees that the help of coach Frank Riney and being friends off the track has played a major part in their success.

"Coach Riney is like a father to us," Nancy Chapa said. "He jokes with us and is a lot of fun. But when it's time to work, it's time to work."

Tollison credits teamwork. "What makes us a good relay team is we run as a team and we warm up as a team, except when someone is in that kind of (bad) mood over their boyfriend. Then we don't talk to them," she laughed.

Tollison said she can picture what will happen as they warm up for their competition. "It will really be hot and we'll get down on the track and start to run. Lupe will throw up. She always says she's deathly sick before a race. Nancy and I will look in the stands and say 'Oh my God.' We'll all be nervous, but it won't be bad nerves. We'll go out there, win and go home."

Seems like a fitting end for a surprising season for the Stanton Lady Buffalos.

Roberson keeps 800 meter tradition going

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

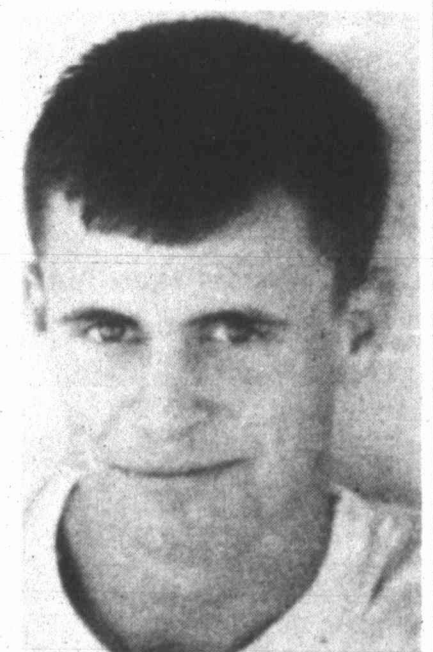

The way Nick Roberson sees it, he's just following in the footsteps of some good Big Spring 800 meter runners.

Friday night at 7:35 at Austin's Memorial Stadium Roberson will become the third Big Spring half-miler in four years to compete at the state meet. He also will team with Lehebron Farr, Tim Pearson and Duane Edmonds in the 1,600 meter relay at 10:05 p.m. Friday.

The last time a Big Spring runner competed in the 800 meters at state, he came away with a gold medal. In 1990, Chris Minter ran a 1:55.20 to win first place. In 1989, Ben Gonzales ran a 1:55.46 to finish fifth at the state meet.

"I got to train with Chris Minter and Ben Gonzales and they both made it to state. That helped me a lot," said Roberson.

Roberson qualified for state with a second-place finish at the Region I-4A meet in San Angelo.

Lyle Alzado succumbs to cancer at age 43

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Lyle Alzado was adamant in his belief that steroid use caused his terminal brain cancer.

Doctors say there is no proof he was right.

"As a scientist, one cannot really say it is clear the anabolic steroids led to the lymphoma," said Dr.

Thomas DeLoughery, a blood cancer specialist at Oregon Health Sciences University. "I think it's unfortunately open to speculation."

Alzado, once one of the most feared defensive linemen in professional football, died in his sleep Thursday at his home in Lake Oswego, a Portland suburb. He was 43.

In addition to his wife, Alzado is survived by a 9-year-old son, Justin.

A rare form of brain lymphoma turned what once had been a mountainous athlete known for his bone-jarring violence into a whispering shell of a man.

Alzado played for Denver, Cleveland and the Los Angeles Raiders in a 14-year NFL career. He retired in 1985 and failed in a comeback attempt with the Raiders two years ago.

He said he began using steroids in 1969 and spent $20,000 to $30,000 a year on the drug. He also said he used a human growth hormone, which he believes helped destroy his immune system, during his comeback attempt. Even after he stopped playing football, he kept taking the drugs.

"I had my mind set and I did what I wanted to do," Alzado said of his steroid use. "So many people tried to talk me out of what I was doing and I wouldn't listen."

After he was diagnosed in April 1991, he began making appearances on television talk shows to urge youngsters to stay away from the drug.

The Lyle Alzado National Steroid Education Program, part of the nonprofit Athletes and Entertainers for Kids organization, was established to educate young people about the damaging and life-threatening effects of anabolic steroids and human growth hormones.

Dr. Forest Tennant, the NFL's drug adviser from 1986 to 1990, believed steroids were linked to Alzado's illness.

"I don't think we've even begun to see the consequences of steroids use," he said in an earlier interview. "Alzado will be the first of a lot of big names to come down with cancers."

But Dr. Gary Wadler, a steroid expert at Cornell University Medical Center-North Shore University Hospital in Manhasset, N.Y., said there is no evidence Alzado died of steroid use.

"We were unable to really substantiate any cause and effect relationship beyond mere speculation and Lyle Alzado's own contention that this somehow was related," he said. "The evidence that lymphoma in general and lymphoma of the brain specifically is related to abuse is really unfounded at the present time."

Steroid use has been linked to cancer of the prostate and liver. DeLoughery said, so he wouldn't rule out a possible connection with the rare form of brain lymphoma that killed Alzado.

"On the one hand, if you look at it like I do as a scientist, it's only one case and a lot of things could have happened," he said. "But on the other hand, here is a gentleman who otherwise is the epitome of health who did something for a very long time, very aggressive manipulation of anabolic steroid use."

The question will be answered only by studying other patients, he said.

"Unfortunately there are probably a large group of people who have done this to themselves," DeLoughery said. "Let's see what happens to them in time."

The two-time All-Pro came to Portland in March for "brain barrier treatment," which was pioneered at Oregon Health Sciences University.

A sugary solution is used to clear a pathway to the brain and the chemotherapy is delivered directly to the tumor. Alzado had only one treatment before he came down with pneumonia, a common side effect.

DeLoughery said it was unclear whether the treatment Alzado received did any good. Alzado had received radiation treatment in California.

DeLoughery would not speculate whether doctors in Portland could have saved Alzado's life if he had come to Oregon immediately after his diagnosis.

Alabama coach will resign

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) - Alabama coach Wimp Sanderson has decided to resign and will make it official next week, a newspaper reported. Sanderson, accused of striking his longtime secretary in March, will announce his resignation on Monday after a three-decade-long tenure in which he became the school's all-time winningest coach. The Birmingham News said. The secretary, Nancy Watts, filed a federal sex discrimination complaint against Sanderson and the university, which could be a prelude to a lawsuit.

Roberson

best of 1:57.95. Roberson's place at regional was a bit of an upset. At the district meet he suffered his first loss of the season, losing to Sweetwater's Randall Leopard. At regional Roberson turned the table on Leopard, finishing second behind Casey Schultz of Mineral Wells. Roberson said the key was not to run at Leopard's pace. "I didn't run with him (Leopard) at regional. I ran with the kid from Mineral Wells," said Roberson. "I ran the first quarter in 54 (seconds) instead of 58. I took the lead after the first lap. I didn't feel bad until the last 50 meters." Roberson has been a versatile performer for the Steers this season. In addition to the 800 meters and 1,600 meter relay, he's also run the 400 and 400 meter relay. In one of his rare stints on the 400 relay, the team ran a 4:21, which was a school record at the time. Roberson's best anchor leg on the 1,600 relay team is 48.4.

Roberson has lots of plans after the state track meet. He will play in the Coaches All-Star Football game Aug. 5 at Texas Stadium in Irving. The all-state defensive back also signed a football scholarship agreement with Abilene Christian University.

"ACU has talked to me about running a leg on their mile relay. It wasn't hard choosing between football and track. I like football much better," he said.

As for his test Friday, Roberson feels confident. "I'll probably stay with the guy from Mesquite Pofee (Raffeg Ayyad), he's run a 1:54 so he'll probably have a pretty fast pace.

"The main thing is that I win. Nobody told me I had to lose."

Utah Jazz forward Karl Malone goes to the basket as Seattle SuperSonics center Shawn Kemp looks on during fourth quarter action of their NBA playoff game in Salt Lake City, Utah Thursday.

Knicks force seventh game with champions

The New York Knicks won't go quietly.

The Knicks forced a seventh game in their Eastern Conference semifinal series against Chicago on Thursday night, beating the Bulls 100-86 in Game 6 behind 27 points each by Patrick Ewing and reserve guard John Starks.

Xavier McDaniel scored 24 points for the Knicks, 11 in the fourth quarter when they outscored the Bulls 32-16. Ewing, who injured his ankle and limped noticeably the rest of the way, scored 10 points and Starks eight in the period. Michael Jordan had three and Scottie Pippen none for Chicago.

Game 7 is Sunday afternoon in Chicago, where the Bulls have won two of three games in the series.

In the West, Utah advanced to the conference finals for the first time by beating Seattle 111-100 to close out the SuperSonics in five games. The Jazz will meet Portland, which eliminated Phoenix in five games with a 118-106 victory.

Knicks 100, Bulls 86. New York became the first team to score 100 points in the series while holding the opposition under 90 for the ninth time in 11 postseason games.

"It was a great effort," Riley said. "We finally seemed to get in sync offensively in the second half. John Starks was incredible. Patrick played the type of game he had to play."

Jordan finished with 21 points and Pippen 18 for the defending champion Bulls, who won 67 regular-season games, 16 more than the upset-minded Knicks, and went 4-for-4 against New York.

"I thought John Starks did a good job, a good hands-on job against Michael," Bulls coach Phil Jackson said.

Although they tied the score seven times, the Bulls didn't lead until two free throws by Pippen after a flagrant foul by Starks gave them a 70-68 lead with 1.9 seconds left in the third quarter.

But that was Chicago's only lead of the game as New York, which took a 14-game losing streak against the Bulls into the series, scored the first 13 points of the fourth quarter for an 81-70 advantage.

John Paxson broke an 0-for-6 Chicago drought with an 18-footer at the 5:51 mark, but a basket by McDaniel and two free throws by Starks gave the Knicks their largest lead, 85-72, with 4:37 left. Chicago never got closer than six points the rest of the way.

Jazz 111, SuperSonics 100. Utah advanced to the Western finals for the first time as Karl Malone scored 15 of his 37 points in the fourth quarter to rally the Jazz.

"It's obviously a great win for us," said center Mark Eaton, who contributed 14 points. "It gives us a chance to compete at a level where we never have before."

Malone also had 13 rebounds for Utah, which scored the last 10 points of the game to improve to 43-4 at the Delta Center, including seven straight home playoff wins.

Jeff Malone had 20 points for the Jazz, while John Stockton added 18 along with 17 assists. Utah's 7-foot-4 center Mark Eaton, who seldom scores, finished with 14 points — eight in the final period — and nine rebounds.

Seattle was led by Eddie Johnson's 26 points, while Derrick McKey chipped in with 17 and Ricky Pierce had 16.

Johnson's 3-pointer seconds into the fourth quarter put the Sonics ahead 87-79. But Malone had 10 points in a 12-3 run that put Utah ahead for good.

Trail Blazers 118, Suns 106. Portland advanced to the Western finals for the third straight season as Clyde Drexler had 34 points.

Lil. E. Tee favorite

BALTIMORE (AP) - His name is an amalgam of the breeders' initials and an alien creature. His father was a sire of little distinction, and his mother finished dead last in five of her six races.

Out of Eileen's Moment by At the Threshold, introducing Lil E. Tee, Kentucky Derby winner and 7-2 early favorite in the Preakness on Saturday.

"If the horse stays healthy and well, he will be in this thing all the way," trainer Lynn Whiting said.

Lil E. Tee was one of 14 entered on Thursday for the 1 3/16-mile race, the biggest Preakness field since 14 went to post in 1970. He drew the No. 9 post position and will be ridden by Pat Day.

"It's an advantageous spot for us," Whiting said. "I wouldn't want to be trapped down on the inside."

Lil E. Tee was foaled in Pennsylvania after being bred in Florida by Lawrence I. Littman, hence the "Lil" in his name. The "E. Tee" part comes from his scrawny, E.T.-like appearance as a youngster and his habit of bawling for his mother.

Preakness

After the colt underwent colic surgery, Littman sold Lil E. Tee early in his 2-year-old year for $2,000 to Chuck Wieneke, an Ocala, Fla., horseman, and blacksmith Mike Paramore. They, in turn, sold Lil E. Tee at auction in Ocala in April 1991 to Al Jevremovic, a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., hotel owner, for $25,000.

After an 11 1/2-length victory in his second race, a maiden special weight at Calder last Oct. 6, Whiting purchased him for $200,000 for W. Cal Pardee, who operates oil, banking and lumber businesses headquartered in his hometown of Magnolia, Ark.

Whiting knew nothing of the colt's humble beginnings or colic surgery until after the Derby.

Fair offers chance to ask about drugs

By MARSHA STURDIVANT
Staff Writer

The Brown Bag Medicine Review, scheduled as part of Saturday's Howard County Health Fair at Big Spring Mall, offers local residents a chance to ask questions about their medication.

"Basically we're looking at three things — side effects, drug interactions and does the patient know how to take the medication," said Cathy Hunnicutt, a member of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Health Council.

The review, sponsored by local pharmacists, is a community service offered residents to prevent a catastrophe such as drug reaction or interactions, or from duplicating medicine or not knowing how it's taken, she said.

The Health Fair runs from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. and local pharmacists will be available to answer questions.

"Big Spring is an aging community, and this is designed to help the older patient. More often we'll see the older patient on multiple drugs, and older people often see more than one doctor and use more than one pharmacy.

"When that happens, there's a chance they're on overlapping medicine regimens, or taking something twice for the same thing," Hunnicutt said.

A recent study revealed that 6 percent of the patients who participate in a medicine review were found to fall into one of the three risk categories, requiring follow-up with their doctor, she said.

"A pharmacist will evaluate the medicine for clinical side effects and possible interaction between drugs. And (people) will get a chance to ask questions, such as when to take the medication, with food, or how many times a day," she said.

Consent forms will be signed prior to the consultations and, in the event a problem is discovered, the attending doctor will be notified, she said.

"This works best when they plan ahead. We ask them to either write down all the prescriptions, or bring in the medicine itself. That's better, because we like to see the original container.

"We'll look at their medications. This is just going over the ABCs of a medicine regimen with these people," she said.

Hunnicutt said three pharmacists will be on-site to keep the process running smoothly, with little waiting time. And it is a first-come, first-serve basis, she said.

"Many people appreciate the chance to get about 20 minutes of a health professional's undivided attention — free of charge," Hunnicutt said.

grandmother's home since the system went on-line in March 1990. He said he believes his mother and uncle had called in emergency calls from there. The dispatcher said she remembers an occasion when another dispatcher said they had received a call from that residence.

Dorton could not be reached this morning for further comment.

"I have a lot of questions about it," said Sheedy, who is a member of the Big Spring City Council. "Was (the address) in the computer but it got booted out or was it never in the computer?"

"It should have been updated," the dispatcher said.

Besides mechanical errors, the dispatcher said she was physically stressed when the call came in.

She was working alone because another dispatcher was on break and was handling a call from a potential suicide caller when Sheedy called, she said. Friday was the third 12-hour shift in a row she was working, she said.

"No one is going to understand what I went through unless they were there," she said. "It could happen to any one of those dispatchers in there."

According to records, said police Capt. Lonnie Smith, Sheedy called at 7:20 p.m. and the ambulance was en route to 501 N. Main in Big Spring by 7:27. After the mistake was realized, the ambulance was en route to Coahoma at 7:37. County paramedics arrived at Sheedy's home at 7:38, a sheriff deputy said. Originally dispatched ambulance workers arrived at 7:48.

Mark Sheedy, who said he and his family are not considering filing a lawsuit for damages, said he will research the 911 system to look for possible improvements.

Other local government officials are also checking into the system. The incident is not the first when emergency personnel was dispatched to a wrong address.

A wrong address dispatched in a February 1991 call from a woman being threatened in the Elbow community by a man wielding a knife led to the 911 board authorizing part-time help to complete addressing for rural phone numbers.

By October, Dorton said, addressing was 99 percent complete, which is as complete as it can get.

Wright said board members this week requested that Dorton provide printouts of all addresses in the computer system. "The board was under the impression that all of this had been done," Wright said. "We're working on making sure that everything is double-and-triple-checked."

"It's regrettable that the system has not been undergarded (backed up) as it should have been," said Sheriff A.N. Standard, who in the past has called for a centralized dispatching station and better trained dispatchers. Standard said he is researching Friday's incident.

Dorton has said that medical trauma training for dispatchers is too expensive. The $111,000 1991-92 annual budget for the 911 system is funded by a fee on each telephone in the county and more than $45,000 in subsidies from the county and city.

Sheedy said he will question the 911 system this summer when the city council considers its annual appropriation. "I'm going to have to do some long and hard thinking."

Wise and Glynda Mouton were sworn in during the meeting. Al Valdes, also re-elected to the board, is in Florida and will sign his oath of office upon his return, said Superintendent William McQueary.

Ford Farris was elected as the 1992-93 board president, Viola Bererra vice-president and Donnie Baker secretary following an executive session.

Several resignations were accepted, including that of kindergarten principal, Jonathan Slaten. He will conclude his doctoral studies at Texas Tech University this fall, said Murray Murphy, assistant superintendent for personnel and instruction.

A high school band director, Stephen Hankins, was hired by the trustees, replacing Eddie Gellner.

Citizens decide to protect themselves

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Shocked and scared by the slow police response to last month's riots, thousands of residents are buying guns and learning how to use them.

Some gun stores and shooting ranges are running advertisements that play on people's fears.

"The government won't protect you. The police can't protect you. It's your life. Your family. Your responsibility. Next time, be prepared!" say ads placed by Gun World & The Target Range Inc.

"It's a damn sad development," said security consultant Gavin DeBecker, whose clients include Cher and Michael J. Fox. "What are they going to do? Hold suspects at bay for three hours until the cops come? Guns don't change attitudes, they only destroy tissue."

Three days of violence erupted April 29 after four white police officers were acquitted in the beating of black motorist Rodney King. More than 50 people died.

One of the riot's starkest images was of blacks pummeling a white truck driver, Reginald Denny, after police had retreated from the area. The attack was captured on

'Many people have told me they are carrying a gun, that they are not going to be a Reginald Denny.'
Sgt. Dennis Zine
24-year Police Department veteran videotape, like the King beating.

"If that guy in the truck had been carrying a weapon it may not have happened," said Harold Tedrick, 31, of Harbor City. He bought a pistol, his first gun.

Police say officers were ordered from that area for their own safety, and Chief Daryl Gates conceded it was a mistake not to try to retake the intersection right away.

A special commission is investigating the police response, but residents don't seem inclined to wait for a report.

"Many people have told me they are carrying a gun, that they are not going to be a Reginald Denny," said Sgt. Dennis Zine, a 24-year Police Department veteran.

"People are afraid and I can understand why they are afraid. They ask, 'Who's going to protect me?'"

The arms race is apparent in many ways.

The state Justice Department keeps score by the number of guns purchased in California — 23,064 during the eight-day period immediately after the rioting, compared with 18,263 during the same eight days in 1991.

The National Rifle Association hears it through the telephone — 1,000 calls a day since the rioting, 33 percent more than normal.

Lee Frankle, a range officer at the Beverly Hills Gun Club, sees it in the club's 17 firing lanes, jammed since the rioting with "women, men, families and children, long as they're 4½ feet tall."

During the riots, several store owners patrolled their property and drove off looters at gunpoint.

"We went through hell, no police, no National Guard. We called for help and they said we were on our own," said one merchant, Richard Rhee.

NRA spokesman James Baker said many residents had heard that message from the police and decided to act on it.

"That's what we believe the Second Amendment is all about — you ought to have a right to defend yourself," he said.

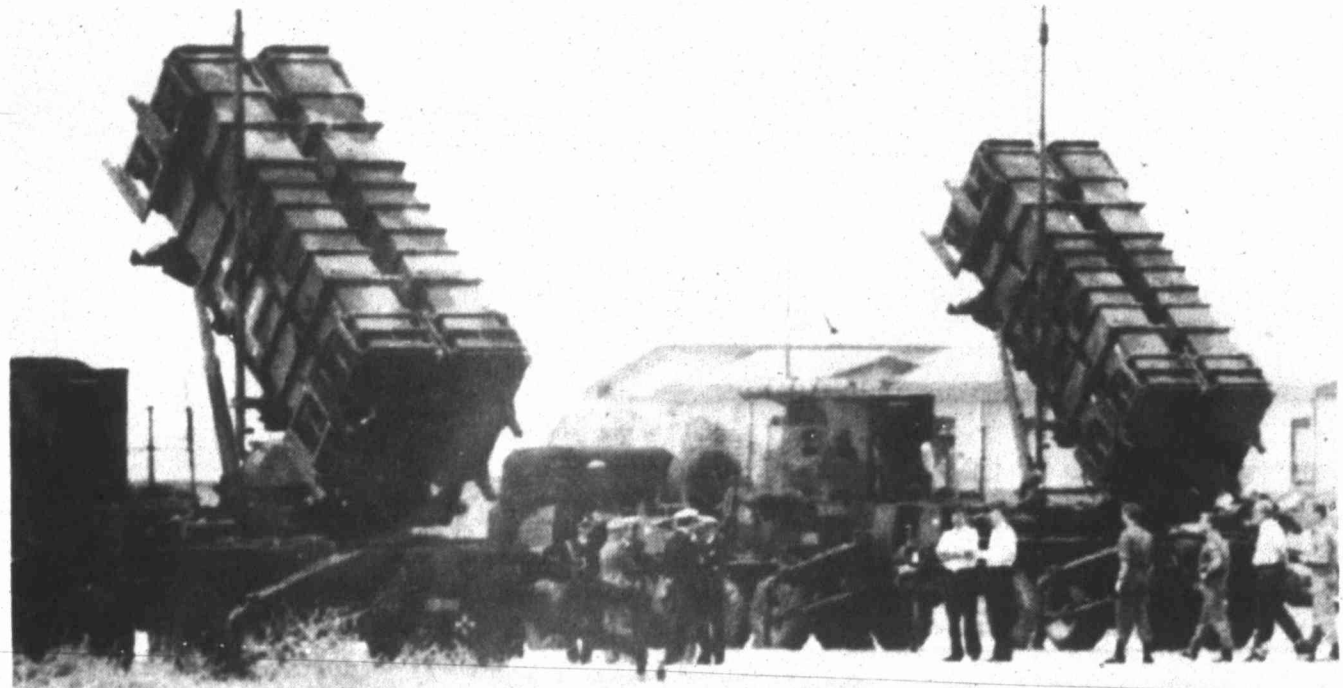

Gun-control advocates decried the proliferation of weapons.

"There was a general loss of sanity. People were scared. Inject guns into that? That's exactly the situation you don't want people to have deadly force," said Luis Tolley of Handgun Control Inc.

State Attorney General Dan Lungren acknowledged the fear that drives people to seek guns but urged them to resist.

"In this society, we have a type of social contract in which we give up our instinctive desire to avenge and the state protects," he said.

"When you see a breakdown, that the compact is broken, they get desperate."

Club sponsoring benefit shoot Sunday

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

The Western Sportsman Club is sponsoring the second annual Big Spring Rape Crisis/Victim Services Benefit Shoot on Sunday.

Proceeds from the target pistol match will help fund the organization, which serves all victims of crime as well as victims of sexual crimes, said Executive Director Lisa Brooks.

Last year the event raised $600 and more is expected this year, said coordinator Woodie Howell.

Area law enforcement personnel will participate along with club members. Coordinators will team up law enforcement and club personnel with new shooters, and prizes will be awarded to two-person teams. The teams are used to maximize the safety and enjoyment of the event, said coordinator Billy Henson.

Barbecue and cokes will be sold, as well as raffle tickets for various prizes, Howell said.

Sponsors for the event include

Neal's Pharmacy, Debbie's Downtown Grill, Gifts Etc., Bealls, Faye's Flowers, J.C. Penney, Big John's Feed Lot, Regis Hairstylists, Dibrell's Sporting Goods, Big Spring Hardware, Premiere Video, Pack Rat Services, Warehouse Cafe, Big Spring Athletics and M&M Construction.

The Western Sportsman Club is located 9 miles west of Big Spring on Highway 176.

Entry fee is $8. Registration begins at 11 a.m. and the match starts at 1:30 p.m.

Only center-fire pistols will be allowed. Holsters, belts and at least two speed loaders will be needed, as well as 80 rounds of ammunition. Horizontal holsters will not be allowed for safety reasons, Howell said.

Target shooters are asked to bring their own chairs if they wish as there is no seating at the combat range.

Deaths

Rosalie Tom

Rosalie Orson Tom, 90, Midland, died Thursday, May 14, 1992.

Prayer services will be 7 p.m., today, at Ellis Funeral Home Chapel. Funeral services will be 2 p.m., Saturday, at Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. Marshall Mason officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

She was born Feb. 6, 1902, in Stanton, to a pioneer ranch family, Frank and Sallie Greenwood Orson. The family lived in Melton Mowbray, Leicestershire, England, from 1914 until 1919. She graduated from Melton Mowbray High School in 1919 at which time they returned to Martin County. She worked for several businesses in Midland, including serving as a reporter for the Midland Reporter. She married Alfred Tom, a Martin County rancher, in 1928. They moved to Midland in 1938. He preceded her in death in 1955. She was very active in clubs and civic organizations, including having been a charter member of Midland Woman's Club.

Survivors include one daughter, Joan Tom McKnight; two brothers: Dr. O.W. Orson, and Henry G. Orson, all of Midland; seven grandchildren, three great-grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

She was also preceded in death by one son, Charles A. Tom in 1988.

The family suggests memorials be sent to Hospice of Midland.

Clyde Thomas Jr.

Dr. Clyde E. Thomas Jr., 78, Big Spring, died Thursday, May 14, 1992, at his residence following a lengthy illness.

Funeral services will be 2 p.m., Saturday, at the First United Methodist Church with the Rev. David Robertson, pastor, officiating, assisted by Royce Clay, minister of 14th and Main Street Church of Christ. Burial will be in Trinity Memorial Park under the direction of Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home.

He was born Nov. 1, 1913, in San Benito and came to Big Spring in 1919. He married Jane Eden Lucas on May 2, 1940, in Houston. He attended Big Spring High School, the University of Texas and was accepted into the University of Texas Medical School at Galveston. He graduated in 1937 with honors. He completed his residency at John Sealy Hospital in Galveston. He began practicing medicine in July 1940 with Drs. Hall and Bennett. Dr. Thomas served as chief of surgery and chief of staff at Hall-Bennett Hospital from 1949 to 1988. After his retirement he became the Howard County Clinic director. He served as president of the Permian Basin Medical Society, the Six County Medical Society and the District Medical Society. He was a charter member of the Singleton Surgical Society and a member of the Texas Medical Association where he received a life membership to the Board of Councilors. He was on the Board of Directors of Best Home Care and the development board of the University of Texas Medical School in Galveston. He was affiliated with the Boy Scouts and had received the Silver Beaver Award in 1971, the Boy Scout Distinguished Eagle Award in 1985 and their Outstanding Citizen Award on May 4, 1992. He was recipient of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Man of the Year in 1985. Dr. Thomas served two years in the 127th Army Hospital during World War II. He was a member of the First United Methodist Church.

Survivors include his wife, Jane E. Thomas, of the home; three daughters and sons-in-law: Katie and Jerry Grimes, Big Spring; Cleo and Charles Kaufmann, Houston; and Nancy and Dan Allen, Burnet; one son and daughter-in-law: Mike and Teri Thomas, Big Spring; three brothers: Richard Thomas, Big Spring, Don Thomas, Friendswood, and Ray Thomas, Seabrook; four sisters: Adele Tibbs, and Ruth Salisbury, both of Big Spring, Rebecca Plunkett and Peggy McDuff, both of Ft. Worth; and 15 grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Clyde Sr. and Reba Thomas, and one brother, George Thomas.

Pallbearers will be Speight Grimes, Josh Kaufmann, Danny Allen, Ryan Allen, Bryce Allen, Daniel Allen, Brad Hanlon, Warren Schlechte, Jamie King and John Allen.

All friends are considered honorary pallbearers.

The family suggests memorials be made to the American Cancer Society, the Buffao Trails Council Boy Scouts of America and the Westside Community Center.

'His Children' bring hope behind the walls

By LYNN HAYES
Staff Writer

A local prison ministry recently made history by performing at Riverbend Maximum Security Institution in Nashville, Tenn.

Joe Whitten and "His Children" performed in the first-ever concert for RMSI prisoners since the facility opened two years ago.

The group also made history when they were allowed to visit Kentucky State Prison's death row to invite the condemned men to attend their concert.

"Every cell was opened. We personally invited 33 men to come hear the concert. That had never been done," Joe explained.

Based in Big Spring, the ministry features college-aged volunteers who give up employment and schooling for a year to travel to prisons throughout the country. Joe's wife, Virginia, and ministry secretary, and Ceil Bedell also travel with the group.

During its eight years in existence, "His Children" have performed in more than 700 prison concerts nationwide, witnessing about the Lord.

Joe said the prison ministry began when he realized that inmates needed be closer to the Lord. "Churches minister to 99 percent Christians every Sunday. We minister to 99 percent non-Christians... They're in a place where they're vulnerable and they're ready to listen," he explained.

"As she shared her testimony at the Tennessee prison, Virginia told the inmates how God is helping others through her flawed life.

"The attractive personality displayed an intensity visible to all prisoners," wrote an inmate. "... It was evident the Holy Spirit empowered her with his strength as she grew weak under the strain of a heart condition."

Founded by Joe and Virginia Whitten with the assistance of former Big Spring Federal Prison Camp Warden John Allman, the ministry auditions and trains young people each year. From Army, Navy, and men's and women's units.

"We're treated with total respect," Joe said. "In the 700 prison concerts, I've never had one fearful incident. It's always standing ovations because we come in love and come to help them."

When the group first performed at the maximum security prison in McAllister, Okla., they were guarded by a 16-member SWAT team. However, two years later when prison officials realized how well the group related to the inmates, the SWAT team was no longer used.

"The inmates protect us. They know we're there to help them," Joe said with a smile.

After the concert, the group mental illness and has been hospitalized several times through the years, Joe said the inmates relate well with her powerful testimony.

"They identify with her because she too has been behind bars in a sanitarium. They love her so much. She tells them that God accepts us all even with our flaws," Joe explained.

In fact, inmates in a California prison were so moved by her testimony that they wrote a song about her.

"It's the mental hospitals where she had been that she shares with the men here in prison. Virginia didn't hold anything back. She didn't care if the inmates laughed... She had Jesus," they wrote. Inmates on Huntsville's death row also wrote about the ministry.

"Thank you for giving to the Lord. We're so glad you came. We're some lives that are changed."

Because the non-profit organization is funded solely by donations, Joe said there are times when the group struggles.

"We're struggling because prison ministry is not popular with the public. They think only of punishment and not of rehabilitation. Even the Christians sometimes have this viewpoint," he said. "If we were ministering to orphans or battered wives, we wouldn't have a problem with funding."

Although the group continues to struggle financially, Joe said it won't deter their efforts.

"Our reward comes from the good we see that happens by witnessing to the lost," he said.

If you'd like to donate to the ministry, please write P.O. Box 1407, Big Spring, TX 79720, or call 267-5665.

This former group of 'His Children' performed at the Riverbend Maximum Security Institution in Nashville, Tenn. 'His Children' have sung in some of the toughest prisons in the country, bringing music and hope to those behind the walls.

Study: social churchgoers most likely to abuse spouses

NEW YORK (AP) — Fundamentalist men are no less likely than other Christians to abuse their spouses, while individuals for whom going to church is a social function are among the most likely to be abusers, a new study has found.

In one of the first major studies of the relation between religion and spousal violence, three Canadian researchers also discovered that people who attended worship services weekly reported the lowest rates of spouse abuse.

But people who went to services only one to three times a month were almost twice as likely as frequent churchgoers to abuse their spouses, and were even more likely to be violent abusers than those who never attended services, the study found.

"Those that attend a moderate amount are the most abusive," said Merlin B. Brinkerhoff, one of the researchers at the University of Calgary. "They're there to be seen, and it's really a social thing."

The study results published in the recent issue of the Journal for the Scientific Study of Religion were based on a 1987 national survey in Canada of 652 female and 471 male married or cohabiting respondents. Respondents were asked to state how often they had engaged in any of eight violent acts ranging from throwing objects to using a knife or gun on the other person in the past year.

One thesis the study was designed to explore was whether fundamentalist men, because they are more likely to subscribe to biblical interpretation of men being the head of the household and that Eve was created from Adam's rib to serve him, would be more likely to violently abuse their partners.

But a surprising twist in the findings, the researchers said, is that conservative Protestant women were the most likely to have violently abused their partners. Thirty-seven percent of conservative Protestant women reported having committed a violent act against their partner in the past year, as opposed to 28 percent of mainline Protestant women and 24 percent of Roman Catholic women.

In contrast, only 18.8 percent of conservative Protestant men reported having committed a violent act, a figure in between the 19.3 percent of mainline Protestant men and 17.2 percent of Catholic men who reported having abused their partners.

Researchers said further work is needed to determine the reason for the high rates of violence among women, and such violence cannot be equated with male violence because it differs in the severity of injury and the power of perpetrator and victim.

But Brinkerhoff speculated that the relatively low rate among conservative Protestant men who attend church frequently indicates biblically derived attitudes of male supremacy appear to be balanced by their religious beliefs in the dominion of love. "Perhaps they mitigate and bounce each other out," said Brinkerhoff, who conducted the research with Eugen Lupri and Elaine Grandin of the University of Calgary.

David Finkelhor, a sociologist at the University of New Hampshire, said he is not surprised at the findings although many had argued that the patriarchal attitudes toward women among fundamentalists would make them more likely candidates to abuse women.

But those religious groups also attract people who are looking for ways to inhibit violent impulses and people who "are inhibited from violence and abuse by the strong moral commitment to that religion."

The study also found that those who attended services weekly, or what researchers called "the intrinsically religious," are the least violent. Seventeen percent of those who attend services frequently reported committing a violent act against their partner.

In comparison, 32 percent of those who attended services from one to three times a month reported being violently abusive, even higher than the 27 percent with no religious affiliation that reported abusive behavior.

Among conservative Protestants, the gulf was even greater. Just 10 percent of conservative Protestants who attend church weekly reported committing violent acts.

A rose for the lady

The young girl placing the rose at the foot of the statue of the Virgin Mary is one of more than 500 people who participated Thursday at the "Our Lady of Fatima" Diamond Jubilee celebration at Sacred Heart Catholic Church. Presentations were given by the following church organizations; Guadalupanas, Holy Name Society, Legion of Mary, Knights of Columbus and the Blue Army/Apostles of Our Lady of Fatima. The celebration commemorates the holy vision that appeared to two children in Fatima, Portugal in 1916.

Billy Graham

Pray anytime

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: When is the best time of day to pray, do you think? Is one time of day better than another, or does it make any difference? I want to learn to pray more effectively. — Mrs. J.H.

DEAR MRS. J.H.: The Bible tells us we should always be in an attitude of prayer; "pray continually" it says (1 Thessalonians 5:17). In other words, we should always have our eyes on God and be trusting Him in every situation. I have found that even when I am preaching, I can be in an attitude of prayer.

In addition, we all need to take time to concentrate on prayer. We read that on one occasion "Very early in the morning, while it was still dark, Jesus got up, left the house and went off to a solitary place, where he prayed" (Mark 1:35). He prayed on many other occasions, such as before eating (eg. Luke 9:16) or in the presence of His disciples (eg. John 17 or Luke 9:28).

Find a time (and place) which is best for you — when you are alert, and when you won't be distracted by other people or by things you feel you need to do. Give God the best minutes of the day — not when you are sleepy or busy (although we need to pray then also). Include not only a time of prayer (even if it's only a few minutes at first), but also a time of reading and meditation on God's Word, the Bible. Many people find it helpful to keep a prayer list to remind them of all the people and situations for which they pray regularly.

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My son has had a lot of troubles in life — a wife who left him, unemployment, accidents, etc. — and he blames God for all his problems. I try to tell him he has to bear at least some of the responsibility himself, because he hasn't always made wise decisions. But he is proud and won't listen to me. Is he right to blame God for everything? — Mrs. V.N.

DEAR MRS. V.N.: No, he is not. Pride is a dangerous thing — and one of the most dangerous effects of pride is that it blinds us to our own faults and wrongs. The Bible says about a proud man, "For in his own eyes he flatters himself too much to detect or hate his sin, ... and does not reject what is wrong" (Psalm 36:2,4).

That doesn't mean everything that has happened to him can be explained by his bad decisions or attitudes; sometimes we don't understand why some things happen to us. But many of the things that do happen to us are caused by our own foolish or shortsighted decisions, and by our refusal to listen to the advice of others — and to God. The Bible says that "an upright man gives thought to his ways. ... Humility and the fear of the Lord bring wealth and honor and life" (Proverbs 21:29, 22:4). Pray for your son, that God will work in his heart and help him to acknowledge that it is far better to face life's problems with God than without Him.

Ask God also to give you wisdom so that you know how best to help him. Sometimes people need to be confronted clearly and openly with their need; sometimes, however, they need love and gentleness to help them deal with their hurts. God loves your son, and Christ wants to enter his life and begin to change his heart. And if you have never experienced Christ's presence in your own life, make your personal commitment to Him today.

First Methodist sends musical message

The evening of May 17, The Lord's Boys and SonShine Girls of the First United Methodist Church will present a musical by Ken Medema, "The Story-Tellin' Man". This lively musical incorporates acting and dancing along with the singing into a meaningful presentation of the parables of Jesus.

voices for the performance.

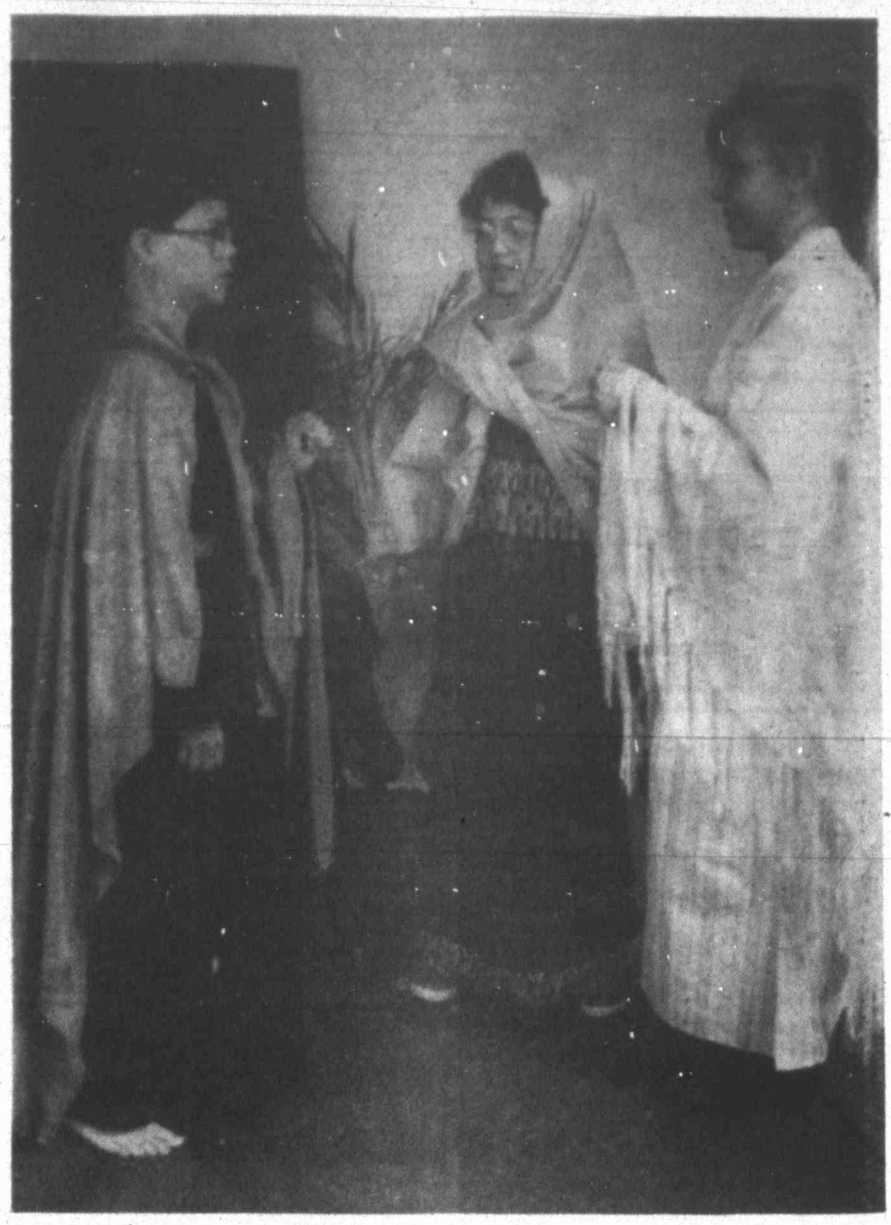

The role of the story telling man will be played by Chris Wingert. Jason Thomas is the prodigal son and Patrick Chetty is his father.

Other rolls will be played by Slate Broyles, Justin LeFever, Lonnie Gellner, Jamie Womble, Landon Wegner and James Rawls. Those singing solos include Leslie McClellan, Lauren Hillman, Natalie Nichols, Alison Woodall, Randi Price, Heather Harris, and an ensemble of Morgan Broyles, Stephanie Fitzgerald, Sydney Leatham, Kendra Richardson, Michelle Stokes, Corinna Rios and Kristin Wright.

Children's Choir Coordinator, Sue Oxendine will direct the performance accompanied by Van Hayes, organist of the church. Gil Oxendine is the Minister of Music.

The performance will be at 6:30 in Garrett Hall. Everyone is invited.

Church briefs

New pastor for Evangel Temple

Evangel Temple Assembly of God, 2204 Goliad, welcomes new pastor, Rev. Eugene Smith. Rev. Smith and his wife, Nikko, and son, Cameron, 3½ months old, arrived last week from Oshkosh, Neb. They have pastored Oshkosh Assembly of God since 1988.

Smith attended Oral Roberts University and Denver Seminary. He will complete his doctoral program with Oral Roberts University this year. During the last nine years of ministry he has held positions of youth pastor, evangelist, and pastor.

While at ORU he was involved in summer missions trips overseas. Nikko was a Rotary Club exchange student to Norway and has spoken for various organizations about her experiences. She speaks conversational Norwegian.

The Smiths pastor as a team and believe in the "preaching and teaching of God's Holy Word." Rev. Smith says, "The Word of God unites and equips a congregation through the sovereign power of the Holy Spirit to do the works of ministry." They believe that, "Without faithful cooperation with the Holy Spirit the work of the local church cannot be accomplished. It is the members of the local assembly in voluntary cooperation with one another which provide a fellowship of believers which may perform effective ministry to reach the lost, and nurture new converts." They also emphasize a missions oriented church as a "positive and growing church."

Rev. Smith believes "Without a vision the people perish (Prov. 29:18)." That vision "gives a church a mission in a particular community." He states that when a church has a vision to meet needs in the lives of the community and responds "in obedience to fulfill that vision, they can be sure that God will pour out the blessing of His Spirit to enrich their lives and touch the souls of those who do not know Jesus Christ."

Woman's Day program at Bakers Chapel

The women of Bakers Chapel Methodist Church will have their Annual Woman's Day program May 17, at 3 p.m. The speaker will be the Rev. Ora Roberts of St. Paul CME Methodist Church. The community is invited to share this program. The church is located 911 N. Lancaster St. The pastor is Rev. Floyd Green, Jr. Dinner will be served after the service.

1970 Hyperion Club

Outgoing president, Cindy Middleton, recently hosted a salad luncheon in her home to end the '91-'92 club year.

Installed as officers for the new year were Suzanne Haney, president; Dene Sheppard, vice president; Sue Haugh, secretary; Karla Wester, treasurer; Yvonne Ivey, historian; Cindy Middleton, parliamentarian.

A short business meeting was held by Haney. Sue Haugh read a letter from the Volunteer Services of the State Hospital expressing their gratitude for the cookies donated during the past year. Haney will make committee assignments at the next meeting to be held at the Hyperion Council luncheon in September.

The club year ended as gifts were presented to Cindy Middleton and her outgoing officers.

First Baptist teaches 'clowning around'

A "First of May" Clown Clinic will be offered by First Baptist Church Family Life Center. The three session clinic will cover the basics for beginning clowns which includes make-up application, costume design, character development, gospel presentation, walk around props and some gospel illusion.

The course will be held from 7-9 p.m. on May 21, June 4 and June 11. Cost for each participant is $15 and includes a makeup palette and a course booklet along with six hours of instruction.

The class will be conducted at the First Baptist Church Family Life Center. The clinic is limited to 15 participants and paid registration is required to secure a place in the course. To register, please come by the Family Life Center Office. Brenda Banks, instructor for the course, may be contacted for questions at 264-9608.

East Side revival

East Side Baptist Church, 1108 East 6th St., will have revival services May 17-20. Jerry Locke, pastor of Lake Worth Baptist Church in Fort Worth will be the speaker.

Brother Locke's unique style of preaching and his musical talent will be a special blessing to all who attend.

Services are scheduled for 10:50 a.m. and 6:00 p.m. on Sunday, and 7:00 p.m. Monday through Wednesday nights. A nursery will be provided.

Pastor Shelley and the congregation of East Side Baptist invite everyone for great preaching, music and fellowship. For more information, please call Bro. Shelley at 264-0021 or 267-1915.

Free youth car wash

The Youth Ministry of First Baptist Church will be having a FREE car wash May 16 from 9 to 4 p.m. in the east parking lot of First Baptist Church. The youth have obtained pledges prior to the car wash and their goal is to wash 100 cars.

All residents of Big Spring area are invited to bring their cars and help the youth reach their 100 car goal. The money raised in this effort will help the youth participate in Celebrate '92 Youth Camp and Mission Mexico '92. If you have not been asked to sponsor a youth and would like to, you may call the Youth Ministry Hotline at 263-LINE (5463) and leave your name and number or bring your donation to the car wash.

David Buchanan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Buchanan, has been named valedictorian of Borden High School. David has maintained a grade average of 95.80 and a grade point average of 4.00 for the past four years. David is a member of the National Beta Club, FFA, band, and has participated in basketball and UIL literary competition. He was the district and regional winner in Current Issues and Events and will advance to state in this event. He also was the district winner in science and was selected to the all-star cast in the one-act play contest.

David is a National Merit Scholar and has received a National Merit Scholarship from Texas A&M University. He has also received a Presidential Scholarship from A&M and a College of Agriculture and Life Science Scholarship as well. He will also receive an engineering scholarship from the Permian Basin Engineer's Society.

David will enroll at Texas A&M University in the fall and major in engineering.

Amanda Anderson, daughter of Delores Anderson and Sonny Anderson, has been named salutatorian of Borden High School. Amanda has maintained a grade average of 93.93 and a grade point average of 3.90. Amanda was a member of the girl's basketball team, varsity tennis team, the National Beta Club, FFA, and 4-H club. She was selected to the all district basketball team for the past three years and was a state qualifier in tennis in 1989 and a district winner in 1991 and 1992, advancing to regional.

Amanda has received a Presidential Scholarship and a University Scholars Partnership Scholarship from McMurry University in Abilene and will attend McMurry in the fall where she will major in biology.

Baccalaureate services will be at 11:00 A.M. on Sunday May 17, 1992, in the school auditorium.

Commencement exercises are scheduled for 8:00 P.M. on Monday, May 18, 1992 in the school auditorium.

Mother of son in prison is sentenced to life

DEAR ABBY: I just finished reading the letter written by "Old Neighbor," whose neighbor's son was executed by the state. I surely feel for her. No, my son was not executed, but he's in a federal prison serving a life sentence.

I suppose I should thank God he didn't get the death penalty, but it's been six years since he was convicted, and the pain never goes away.

I've avoided old friends from my home state who may not know, so that I won't have to tell them. And I hate to meet new people, because eventually they get to talking about their families, and I just couldn't bring myself to tell anyone about my son's situation. It's strange, because he was just like their son ends.

I know you can't give me any answers because there are none, but just writing this has made me feel a little better. Thanks for being there, Abby. — NO NAME OR LOCATION

DEAR NO NAME: My heart goes out to you, but please do not resign yourself to a "nightmare that never ends." The chaplain of the prison in which your son is incarcerated can tell you whether there is a support group for parents of prisoners. If there is none, perhaps you could start one. Loved ones of prisoners need all the support they can get. God bless you, Mother.

DEAR ABBY: Folks are always saying something to put down our young people. I am a senior citizen and I am not very good at writing, but I have to tell my story.

During a terrible downpour of rain we had recently, a young girl came to my door and asked if she could use my telephone to call the Auto Club because her car was stalled. She said she was on her way to college. The poor girl was soaked to the skin.

After she used my telephone, I told her she was welcome to stay indoors, but she thanked me, saying she had better go sit in her car.

A week later, this same girl came to my door with a gift-wrapped bottle of cologne and a note of thanks for letting her use my phone. I didn't want to accept it, but she insisted. She never did tell me her name, but I just had to write and let you know that there are many young people who are decent and thoughtful. — MRS. ELALYN CUTLER, RESEDA, CALIF.

FOR SATURDAY, MAY 16, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Be generous in spirit and your life will become much more rewarding. Something that is revealed to you this summer makes career planning a necessity. Do not give up on a dream! Friends prove their loyalty again and again in the fall. New financial gains will give you the freedom to pursue your real interests in December. Do not let a loan or legal matter slide in early 1993. Romantic ties continue to deepen.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Pierce Brosnan, bandleader Woody Herman, actress Tracey Gold, baseball's Billy Martin.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your travel dreams could become a reality when you receive a nice windfall. Confirm an appointment you have made for next week. Use honey, not vinegar, to keep important doors open.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Ignoring weekly cleanup duties would be a mistake. You will shine in social settings today. Let other people see how much fun you can be. Colorful attire adds to your allure.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You are in for a smooth landing now. Exciting people and places brighten your social life. Try a new hobby or take a class in the arts. Bargains abound for comparison shoppers.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Endless chatter is not the way to get a weekend project completed. A friend who offers to help could turn out to be all talk and no action. Your social plans change.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You and a loved one may talk a mile a minute without ever resolving the question at hand. Be ready to give a little when other viewpoints are offered. Make intelligent concessions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Have more patience with yourself and those around you. If possible, go for a long walk when tensions mount. Sports also offer a healthy outlet for pent-up energy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You know how to turn on the charm to promote your personal ambitions. Afternoon is the best time to take a short trip or entertain a visitor who lives nearby.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You are unlikely to make much headway if you try to keep up your support only among your friends. Contact people at a distance. Your intuition points the way to a wonderful opportunity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A good day to keep busy behind the scenes. You are unlikely to benefit from seeking the spotlight. Be careful not to set something in motion that will clutter the scene for weeks.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An overly suspicious mood could threaten friendly relations or a romantic relationship this afternoon. Focus on shared interests instead of any chagrin you may feel.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Financial complications could make you feel anxious or ambivalent today. This is not a good time to make far-reaching decisions. Put a romantic relationship on hold.

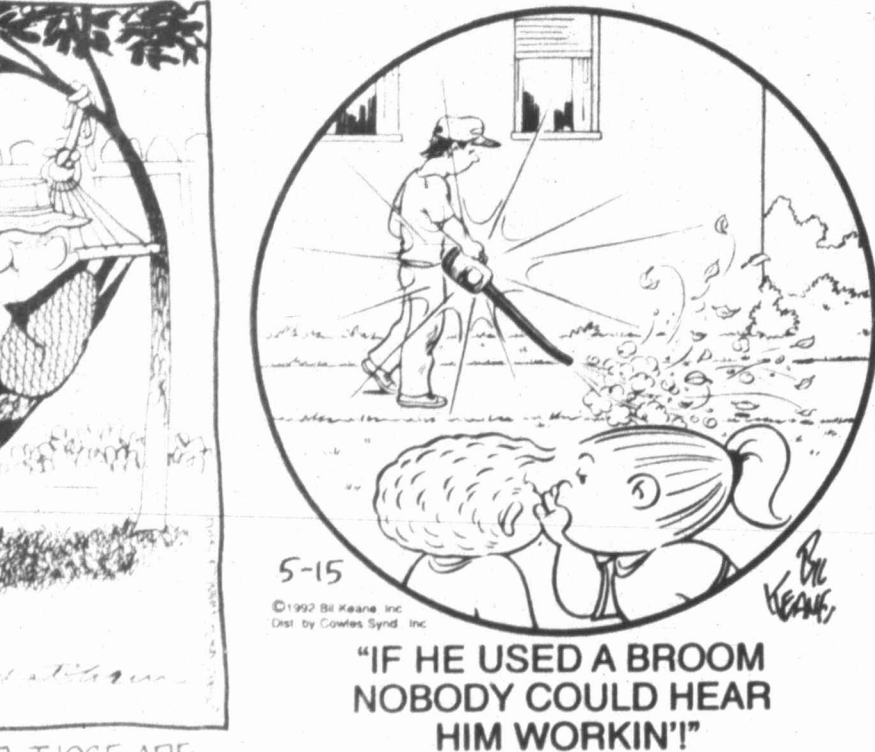

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The social whirl could take on new meaning, but only if you have your antennae up for subtle developments. An advantageous relationship trend continues.
