Ramblin 'Round

By BERT WEST

We came across a most interesting book over the weekend, while going through the old files of this newspaper. The title is simply "Texas" and was published in 1940 by Hastings House Publishers, under sponsorship of the Texas Highway Commission, as a sort of tour guide of the state.

How were things in Texas 42 years ago? W. Lee O'Daniel was governor and the two Texas senators were Morris Sheppard and Tom Conally. The book reports the 1930 population census for Texas counted 5,824,715 residents and estimated that the 1940 census would hike the total to 6,450,000.

If you think the current 55 mile an hour speed limit is something, in 1940 the maximum speed limit in Texas was 45 mph, dropping to 20 mph within town or city limits and down to 10 mph in school zones. With consent of a parent or guardian, 14-year-olds could get a driver's license.

In case of an accident, it was a felony for a motorist to fail to stop and render aid.

Speaking of crime, the book has this to say: "There are a greater number of legal justifications for homicide (in Texas) than in some other states, many of them dating from frontier days when men, if they were to survive, often needed to 'pack their own law in a holster.'"

"The shooting of a criminal resisting lawful arrest or about to commit a felony is justifiable homicide. A fleeing convict may also be killed without legal recourse against the officer."

"In personal quarrels, self-defense is liberally interpreted to include the shooting not only of one who is armed and attempts to produce a weapon, but also of one who is not armed but who has made threats, is reputed to go armed, and seemed to the killer to be making a motion draw a pistol."

"Insanity by reason of intoxication is legally mitigating circumstance. There also is a defense based upon 'cooling time' it being held that any insulted person who kills before he has time to 'cool' is not guilty of murder."

"It is held to be 'murder without malice' for a man to kill another for an offense toward a female relative, provided the act occurs as soon as the parties meet after the killer has knowledge of the insult."

"Robbery with firearms is a capital offense in Texas. This law originated as the result of a series of bank robberies in 1926. Texas bankers are authorized to carry arms and to 'shoot it out' with bandits if they care to."

"In explanation of a not uncommon attitude toward some of those responsible for violent deaths, a highly respected Texas jurist—not stating what the proceeding ought to be but what is was—once said: 'In Texas the first question to be decided by a jury in any homicide case is, Should the deceased have departed?'"

The way things were in 1940 might make the bad people of 1982 think twice before committing a crime, but look at all the noise that would come from the modern day civil rights groups.

As to city populations, the book was published before the 1940 census count was tabulated and so used 1930 census counts for most of the towns. These figures included 15,649 for Paris; 16,365 for Texarkana; 5,036 for Longview; 3,541 for Mt. Pleasant; 2,952 for Clarksville; 1,222 for Mt. Vernon; 260,475 for Dallas (with a 1940 estimate of 300,000); 292,352 for Houston (with a 1940 guess of 385,000); and 350 for Talco. Population counts are not listed for Deport or Bogata, although Detroit is listed with 850.

Although Talco is listed in the 1940 book with only 350 folks, the publication adds this comment:

"Talco has the appearance of a community that is resting after a hectic oil boom—its many small frame shacks mushroom out from an older business area."

"In 1935 the discovery of oil zoomed the population from 140 to more than 5,000. Business was so rushing that the cashier of the little bank handled deposits by tying a string around each roll of bills, marking it with the name of the depositor, and tossing it in a corner, to be credited later."

"Today Talco is a quiet town almost exclusively engaged in business hinging upon the nearby oil field. Lignite beds and iron ore underlie this region."

We'll report on some of the other data included in the book, especially that involving this area, next week.

Blood Donors Respond

Mrs. Tony Shupp was among the many Bogata area citizens donating blood during the special visit of the Stewart Bloodmobile of Tyler to Bogata last week. The mobile unit came to Bogata following an appeal for blood donors to help replace blood used for a 3-year-old Bogata child, Jessie Cole Guest, who later succumbed to injuries received in a freak accident on June 5. Approximately 50 pints of blood were donated by area citizens during the Bloodmobile visit. (NEWS-TIMES STAFF PHOTO)

Bogata, Talco Top '81 In Sales Tax $

Bogata and Talco, along with most other area cities, are showing an increase in revenue from their penny sales tax, based on reimbursements of the sales tax to Texas cities by the state comptroller's office for the period ending June 6.

Although Bogata did not receive a sales tax check this month (reimbursements are held until the next month when the total is under $500), the city has received $9,860.88 through the first six months of the year—and that's 4.5 percent more than had been received through the same period a year ago.

Talco, however, continues on a substantially higher increase percentage. Talco's check for June totals $1,515.04, which is a 39.27 percent increase over the $1,087.83 received through the same period a year ago.

Clarksville and Annona were the only Red River County cities (See SALES, Page 6)

From Cooper To Texarkana. . .

Flood Control Work Is Aim Of Petitions

This weekend is the targeted completion date for the drive to obtain 15,000 signatures on petitions seeking flood relief measures for farmers and landowners along the Sulphur River from Cooper to Texarkana.

The petitions are available at all businesses in Talco, at several businesses in Bogata and at locations in "all cities and counties" in the affected area, says John David Wright of Talco.

Wright is president of the Sulphur River Basin Association, which is spearheading the petition campaign.

The petitions have a two-fold purpose, Wright says. One calls for completion of the long-planned Cooper Lake and dam. The other seeks the channeling and levee work on the Sulphur River from Highway 37 near Hagansport eastward to the Texarkana lake.

Copies of the petitions, when completed, will be delivered to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, congressmen, senators and "others in position to be able to do something," says Wright.

As many of the petitions as possible will be "hand delivered" to the recipients.

"We want the people who can do something about it to stop saying 'it can't be done' to start saying 'it will be done' and to start doing it," says Wright.

Farmers and landowners have been losing hundreds of acres of cropland and pasture annually to flooding along the Sulphur, with the loss reaching into the thousands of dollars when major flood conditions swamped the area last month.

Lawsuits and other delays have stalled the Cooper Reservoir project which was authorized by President Eisenhower in 1957, 25 years ago.

Wright says the Cooper project would provide a lot of relief, especially on the west side of Highway 37, but declares the need for channeling and levee work on the east side, from Hagansport to Texarkana "is just as vital".

"There are channels and levees along the Sulphur until it passes under the Highway 37 bridge, then it stops," Wright explains.

With no channels to control the runoff, the water spreads out and over the normal river banks, wreaking havoc on farmers and landowners all the way to Texarkana.

"The problem isn't just here in the Talco area, but along the entire route, and that's why we have these petitions in every county and town in the eight-county area," says Wright.

The petitions will remain available at the various stores and businesses and through individual members of the Sulphur River Basin Association until Monday.

A meeting of the SRBA is scheduled for next Tuesday at the Hagansport Community Center, starting at 7 p.m. Wright says. All persons responsible

Donald Jones Resigns From Board

Special Election Needed To Fill B-T Trustee Post

Voters of the Talco-Bogata school district will go to the polls in a special election, probably sometime this summer, to elect someone to complete the unexpired term of resigned trustee Donald Jones of Talco.

Jones, who is moving to Mt. Pleasant, submitted his resignation at the school board's June meeting.

The Talco man was elected to his first three-year term in 1981 and had completed his first year on the school board last April.

School Supt. Talmadge J. Morgan says he has been advised of a change in the state law that now requires the calling of an election to fill a vacant trustee chair when the position becomes vacant more than nine months before the next regular school board election.

If a position becomes vacant within nine months of the next election, the school board can appoint someone to serve until the next election, a procedure that had, in the past, been used for all vacancies.

It is more than nine months before the school board's regular election next April.

A decision on calling the election to fill Jones' remaining term, and the date, is expected to be made at the July 13 school board meeting.

In other activity at the June meeting, results of the Texas Assessment of Basic Skills (TABS) testing program were presented to the board by Morgan, counselor Bonnie Huddleston and curriculum coordinator Kay Kennedy. The tests are required annually of all Texas students in the third, fifth and ninth grades in the areas of math, reading and writing, to see how well the students are achieving in those basic areas.

Students in the Talco-Bogata schools have scored considerably above the state averages in the TABS program ever since it began in the 1979-80 school year.

The resignation of June Lawler, fifth grade teacher at Bogata, was accepted. Supt. Morgan says plans are to fill the position through a reassignment within the district.

The school board took action on the following items:

1. 1982-83 calendar was amended making August 16-18 teacher inservice-workdays, and August 19th the 1st student day.

2. A bid in the amount of $2,320 was approved for Elmore Drywall and Acoustic to lower the ceiling and install installation for five rooms at Talco Elementary.

3. Approval was given to the participation in a Block-Grant Coop through Region VIII Education Service Center.

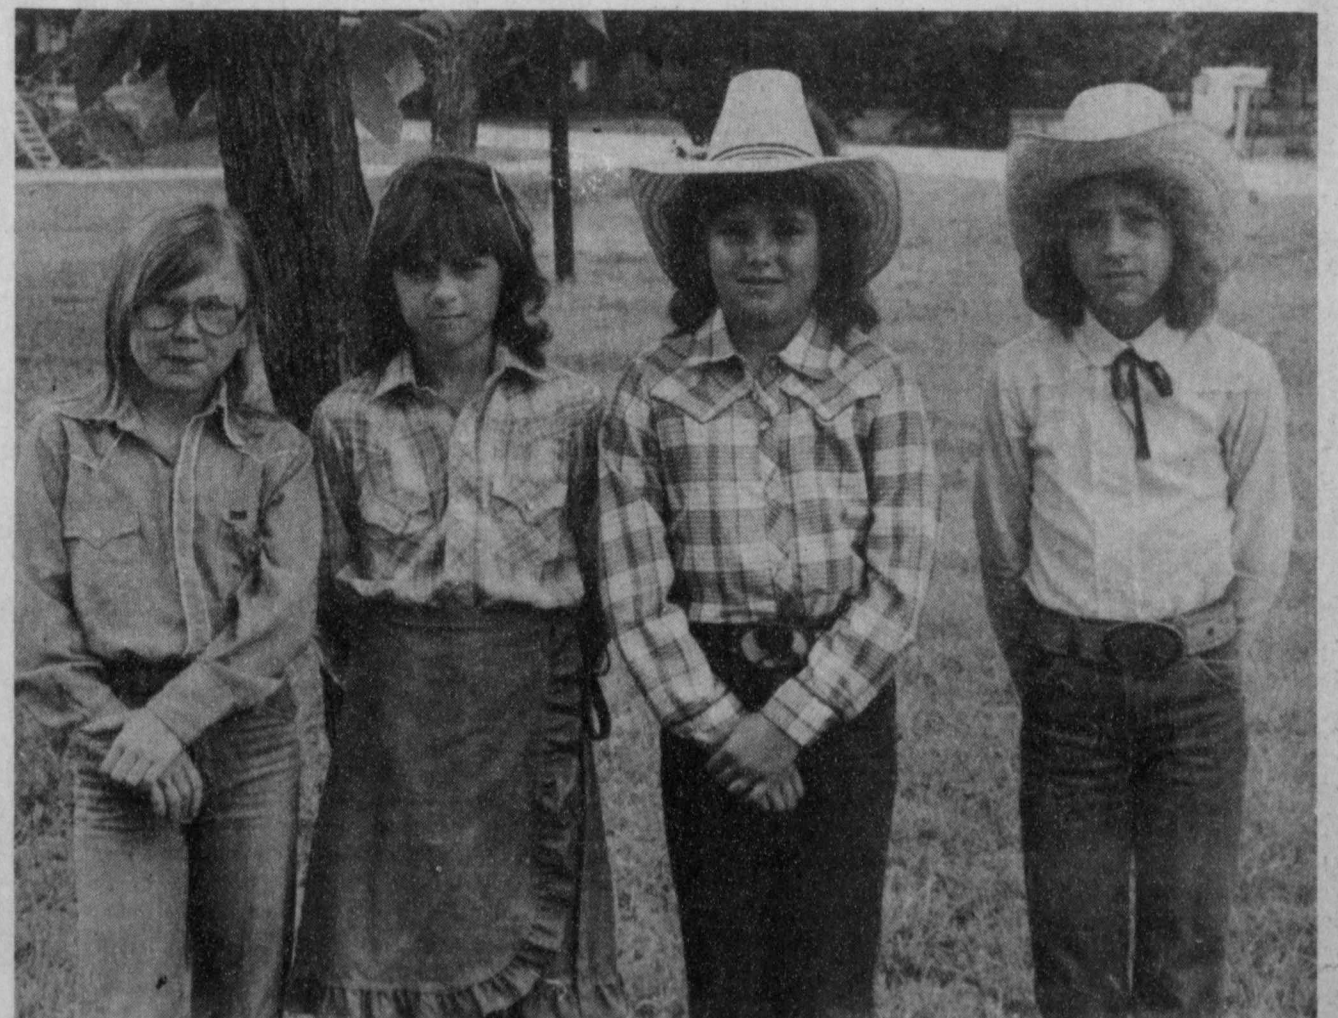

4. Approval was given to the sale by bids of two surplus school buses.

5. Approval was given to new policies for the operation of the Eunice V. Pirtle Baseball Park in Johtown.

6. Approved a change in the reimbursement for administrative travel in that travel will not be claimed for trips back to the respective campuses for assigned duties and responsibilities.

7. A resolution was adopted by the board in opposition to a proposed tuition tax credit for parents of students enrolled in elementary and secondary private and parochial schools in the United States.

8. Approval was given to summer repairs to the various school buildings and improvements to school grounds.

GENEALOGY BEGINS WITH U

News-Times Columnist to Explore Fascinating World of Genealogy

(Ed. Note): The newest edition to the News and Times newspapers is the column, entitled "Genealogy Begins With U," which starts here today and is written by Gilmer resident, Michael C. Cunningham.

A native of Washington, D.C., Cunningham, 30, was graduated from East Texas State University in 1973 with majors in geography and sociology. Over the past several years, he has located and researched records of over 6,000 of his relatives.

Drawing from this experience, he has developed a process by which anyone can successfully conduct genealogical research. During the next several weeks, he will share this process with you, our readers.

Cunningham and his wife, Carolyn, are the parents of a 6-year-old son, Kevin, and 3-year-old triplet daughters, Emily, Erica and Elizabeth.

During his series over the next several weeks, Cunningham invites the readers to send in questions and comments, which can be mailed to him in care of either the Deport Times or the Bogata News.

By MICHAEL CUNNINGHAM

There comes a time in almost everyone's life where they become interested in finding out where they come from. Genealogy is the study of who our relatives are and where they came from. Today, this has become the most widespread hobby in the United States with over 50 million Americans reportedly doing some sort of research on their relatives.

With our rapid, developing technology making information available at our finger tips, all a person has to do is obtain a desire to start their research.

The purpose of this column will be to help you do genealogical research. If you have any questions and queries on your relatives, please write them to me in care of this newspaper. We will publish all queries in the area you are trying to find out about. I am looking forward to working with all of you.

Successful genealogical research begins with you. In order to insure your successful research, I have developed a plan called, "12 principles of Genealogy." Now, through this plan a person develops the ability to locate, establish relationships, obtain birth, marriage and death records and locations of your relatives.

The first principle is organization. From the very start of your research, you will need to be organized and most importantly, be able to maintain this organization.

The materials you will need to do this are as follows: 2 books of postal stamps, 50 envelopes, 50 pieces of writing paper, 4 plain manilla folders, 1 Atlas of North America, 1 large map of the United States showing the topography, and 2 boxes of colored tacks. Note that these are examples of what you need.

In case you are doing research in Canada or England or some other country, simply substitute the maps of countries needed.

After you have obtained these items, you will need to do several things. First, write one of your four grandparents last name on one of the folders. This way you will have a folder for each surname. This practice should be carried over for each surname if possible.

Second, you should put your map of the United States on a board (it may be cork, plywood, etc.) and hang it on the wall. You will use one color tack to locate places where your mother's family lived and the other color tacks to locate where your father's family lived. A physical boundary map should be used because physical boundaries were more important and influenced our relatives lives more than our present political boundaries.

Thirdly, go and find your old Christmas card address list. If this is not possible, you need to find the addresses of all your distant relatives that you normally do not talk to on a daily or weekly basis.

Fourth, take a paper and write a letter to each one of these distant relatives and ask them about location, and vital information of their parents and grandparents. Ask them to include birth dates and places if possible.

Fifth, call all your close relatives on the phone that you normally have contact with on a weekly or daily basis and ask the same information. Sixth, take all information down and put it in the respective folders. You will probably receive a large amount of incomplete information.

This will serve as your new leads for further information and will be explained more fully in next weeks principle-the letter campaign.

Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever Cases Include Lamar County

Fifteen cases of Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever (RMSF) have been reported to the Texas Department of Health this year, compared to only seven cases at this time in 1981 when 45 cases were confirmed for the whole year.

Lamar County is among the 13 counties reporting RMSF cases.

Human cases of RMSF this year have come from 13 counties. Two cases each have been reported from Fannin and Johnson Counties, while single cases have been confirmed in Hale, Eastland, Parker, Dallas, Lamar, Ellis, McLennan, Smith, Bexar, Nueces, and Cameron counties.

Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever is caused by a Rickettsia and is spread in nature by ticks. The germs do not kill the tick and are passed through unending generations by egg transmission.

Humans contract RMSF only when they are bitten by an infected tick or come in contact with infected tick tissues when crushing a tick.

Care should be taken when removing ticks from pets, since RMSF can be passed on to humans when infected ticks are crushed. Use of gloves and or tweezers is advised when deticking a pet. The dog tick, wood tick, and Lone Star tick are mainly responsible for spreading RMSF in Texas.

RMSF is characterized by a sudden onset of fever, headache, chills and a rash. The rash normally appears on the second or third day of the illness. The rash first appears on the arms and legs and then spreads to the rest of the body. In up to 10 percent of cases, a rash may not be present posing additional diagnostic problems for the physician.

Persons going into tick-infested areas should check their clothing and bodies often for ticks and carefully remove them. Several hours of attachment is necessary to spread the disease to humans, therefore, prompt detection and removal are the best prevention for RMSF.

Mrs. Lassiter Claims $5 For Hidden Name

Mrs. L.B. Lassiter of Bogata had plenty of friends and other "tipsters" to pass the word that her name was "hidden" in the True Value Hardware ad on the classified page in last week's newspaper.

"They just kept calling," says Mrs. Lassiter about the phone calls. She visited the Bogata News office Friday morning to claim the weekly $5 prize.

Mrs. Lassiter requested that her check be made out jointly with Bryson Building and Farm Supplies, Bogata. The name and address of another paid-up subscriber to either the Blossom Times, Talco Times, Bogata News or Deport Times is "hidden" in one of the ads in today's paper. If the person whose name is hidden calls either the Bogata office, 632-5322 or the Deport office, 652-4205, before this Saturday noon, he or she will win this week's $5 loot.

The name may be printed upside down, on a slant, sideways, or in some type condition that is readily identified as not being a part of that ad.

If the "Hidden Name" person does claim the award, the $5 check will be made out jointly to that person and any business that advertises in either of the four newspapers. The $5 check belongs to the "Hidden Name" person to spend or save any way they choose; it is only that they have to take it to the business they select to cash the check.

As usual, if you spot the name & it isn't yours, we invite you to go ahead and call the person who does have the "Hidden name" and give them a tip about their name being hidden. It's a favor they're certain to appreciate

Footprints From The Past

By JOHN W. HOOD

Growing up on a farm like I did meant that there were lots of chores to do. Each child was expected to do his share. In our family there were two boys and one girl, so we were relieved of the house hold chores for the biggest part, the boys doing the outside work.

I always had to do the milking and that was one chore that I hated to do. Every morning and every evening including Sunday it really got old. There were never any holidays to that cow!

In the winter it was one of the coldest jobs you could do. The cow's udder had to be washed, and even if you brought warm water by the time you were at the barn it was cold already.

The cow always seemed to me to be a lot more contrary and she would step on your foot, or thrash around. Sometimes I would holler and holler when my already cold foot was stepped on by that blasted cow.

About the time you got all settled in to milk the old cow would either kick you or put her foot squarely into the bucket of milk. That was when tempers frayed and you would kick the old cow back. Of course, kicking the cow didn't hurt her much, but I always seemed to hit her on a bony part, and that hurt bad too.

I finally realized that the best way was just to let her have her way and get through milking as quick as you could and then not try to remember that it had to be done all over again in the evening.

Summer time was no better, because the flies were swarming, and the cow's tail would be loaded with cockle burrs. Getting hit in the face with a tail full of cockle burrs was one nasty thing to have happen!

Another of my least favorite things about having to milk was when I had a date all set and then having to milk before you left.

To me there was no way to get the smell of milk and cow off my hands, and I just knew that my girl friends thought my hands stank.

One year I was staying with my grandmother and going to school, and she would let no one but herself milk that cow. So I started staying with her, and pretty soon she turned the job over to me! She told me I should be proud, that she didn't trust anyone else with her milk cow!

That's not the way I felt at the time though.

Now-a-days, whenever I drink a cold glass of milk out of the carton, I think how much easier and more pleasant it was than having to go out and milk.

Aluminum Toewall Is New Erosion Control

By Ray Haddock

A relatively new erosion control practice, "the aluminum toewall structure", is being used by farmers in Red River County.

The small structures are being designed by Soil Conservation personnel. The development of the structure was based on an idea conceived by Harold W. Belcher, Sr., a Soil Conservation Service area engineer, headquartered in Vincennes, Ind. The first structure was fabricated in 1968 and its acceptance and use has spread throughout the country.

The aluminum toewall structure is similar to the small concrete weir structures installed by the Civilian Conservation Corp (C.C.C.) during the 1930's, many of which are still functioning today.

Charles McLendon, Harry Moore and Billy Weaver have structures on their farms north of Annona. It is to drop the water to a stable grade. On a badly eroded ditch with steep slopes several may be installed. While shaping a gully with large amounts of outside water, an aluminum toewall structure might be a solution.

The aluminum toewall consists of a curved weir section, two headwalls, and a reinforced concrete base. The weir and headwalls are fabricated from aluminum metal structural plate sections bolted together.

The maximum height of the weir section is four feet and several structures may be placed in series if vertical drops greater than four feet are encountered.

The concrete base not only supports the structure but acts as an energy controlling device for the overfall and prevents flotation.

The emergency spillway is provided to convey flows greater than the design discharge safely around the structure. The main advantage of the structure is its ease of installation, low cost and low maintenance requirements.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. West:

I am from Bogata. I was born there and it's still the old home ground. I know all the old trails and landmarks, as I walked them as a kid back in 1915, a long time ago.

My auntie, Annie Stephenson, took us five kids and dad Charlie Stephenson in her home to live in 1920, my mother died with the flu in 1920.

Aunt Annie was taking the Bogata News and after I married in 1931, during the depression, she gave the paper for me and did so up to 1948, when my family—my husband and son and I, moved in to care for her until she died in 1951. We have been taking the Bogata News ever since and it's like visiting every week.

Hope you can read this and make sense out of it.

Highway Work Scheduled For County

Work in the Red River County area is included in a major highway rehabilitation and safety program approved by the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission.

District Engineer R.H. Lindholm, Jr. said the work in this area is part of a continuing effort to modernize and increase the safety characteristics of roads and highways which are worn out or inadequate for today's traffic.

Area projects include a seal coat project on U.S. Highway No. 271 from Bogata to the Titus County line at an estimated cost of $160,380.00.

The 1983 State Highway Safety and Betterment and Farm to Market Road Improvement program will provide improvements to 3,908 miles of highways.

The program includes 656 projects in 198 counties in the state.

Approximately 61 percent of the financing included in the program is on US and State-numbered highways.

37 percent is for FM and RM roads and two percent is held in reserve.

The program includes work which will upgrade existing highways to handle larger volumes of traffic than present designs can accommodate efficiently. The work also will enhance safety and will reduce the amount and kind of maintenance necessary to protect the public's investment in the highway network.

Miss Stubblefield Is Shower Honoree

A bridal shower honoring Linda Stubblefield, bride-elect of Kyle Barlen, was held recently at the home of Mrs. Travis Hale, Mt. Vernon Drive in Bogata.

The guests were greeted by Mrs. Hale, Miss Stubblefield, Mrs. Frank Stubblefield, mother of the bride, and Mrs. Robert Barlen, the groom's mother.

Jo Ann Stubblefield, sister of the bride, presided at the registry.

The serving table was covered with a cut-work white cloth over peach. Silver appointments were used, and the floral arrangement and candles were in the bride's chosen colors of peach and rust. Cake squares, punch, nuts and mints were served by Mrs. Joe Travis Kelsey and Mrs. Bobby Dickey.

The hostesses were Mrs. Travis Hale, Mrs. Richard Ward, Mrs. Pete Taylor, Mrs. Carlos Vaughan, Mrs. James Gibson, Mrs. E.E.

Brooks, Mrs. Bobby Dickey, Mrs. John Blair, Mrs. Howard Bryson, Mrs. Joe Travis Kelsey.

They gave the honoree a canister set and casserole dish in her chosen pottery pattern.

THE INSIDE STORY OF THE

TAILORFLEX TROUSER

Once upon a time, the only place to find really fine tailoring in a trouser was in the men's department. But, knowing that fine tailoring was not meant for man alone, Allison Collectibles has brought true name-tailoring to ladies' trousers. In a fabric with FLEX. Meant to move with you, meant to fit real people. And constructed for comfort and good looks all day long.

Waistband
Ban-Rol® elastic waistband fits — no roll or pinch.

Outlet Seam for easy waist size adjustment.

Fly
Lined fly keeps its shape and stays flat.

Graded zipper, proportionate to trouser size.

Body
Front-lined for flattering trouser shape.

Reinforced seat and in-seam assures strength and shape.

Pockets
Lined so there's no bunching.

Wrapped for strength.

Stretch
Flex is sewn into the fabric, so the fit moves with you — TailorFlex.

Seams
Chain stitched for elasticity and strength.

Opened flat for a smooth fit.

At last, A ladies' trouser with quality construction that shows — from the inside out. TailorFlex Trousers are collectible in a rainbow of colors!

THE EASY CHAIR BY Mike Fuller

Vacations are great levelers. The person who takes one returns just as broke as the person who stayed home because he couldn't afford to go away.

A successful person is one who went ahead and did the things the rest of us never quite got around to.
A town is usually divided by a railroad, a main street, and a lot of opinions.
Here's how we see it: you'll find the best buys in home furnishings

PUBLIC NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that
LAMAR COUNTY ELEC-TRIC COOPERATIVE ASSOCIATION (the "Utility") intends to change its power cost adjustment rate for electric utility service effective July 1, 1982, or as soon thereafter as may be permitted by law. The proposed power cost adjustment changes the manner in which wholesale power cost are collected from the Utility's ratepayers. The change is applicable to all areas to which the Utility provides electric utility service. All classes of customers are affected by the proposed change. The proposed power cost adjustment is not expected to increase the annual revenues of the Utility.

Implementation of the proposed change is subject to approval by the appropriate regulatory authority. The Statement of Intent including the proposed revision is on file with the Public Utility Commission of Texas and the municipalities of Roston, Reno, Blossom, Toco and Sun Valley.

The Statement of Intent is available for public inspection at the general office of the Utility located at 1485
North Main, Street, Paris, Texas.

Correction

In a recent advertisement it was stated that Gerald Burns, whose wife, Neva, is employed at the First National Bank in Bogata, was a lead man at the TP&L Rivercrest plant.
More correctly, Burns is operations supervisor for Texas Utilities Co., with whom he has been employed for seven years.

After stuffing a turkey, close the cavity with the dampened heels of a bread. Push each into an opening with crust facing out to hold the stuffing in.
