ONE SLAIN IN ATTEMPTED JAIL RUSH

REPORT ON LAND OFFICE INQUIRY

ROBINSON'S HANDLING OF FUND IS HIT

ACCEPTANCE OF GIFTS SHARPLY ASSAILED BY COMMITTEE

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, May 16.—The "One cent per acre fund" created by assessments against purchasers of state lands was at all times a public fund and all money which remained unexpended by the land commissioner in the actual administration of the 1925 reappraisement act is the property of the state, the joint legislative committee which investigated the land office, concluded, it told both houses in its report today.

J. T. Robison, land commissioner, had testified he believed the state had no interest in the fund and that believing he had accepted amounts of refunds which had been sent to land owners.

Method Termed "Inexcusable,"

The manner of handling the fund is described as "inexcusable, unwarranted and unjustified; that the practice involves an unsound public policy and should not be countenanced by any public official in the discharge of the duties of his office."

Commissioner Robison had testified that he kept no accurate account of the receipts and disbursements of the fund.

The acceptance of gifts and gratuities as practiced by the land commissioner, if carried on by officials of a democratic form of government to any extent, is calculated to de-

Graf Zeppelin Points Silvery Nose To West

DIRIGIBLE RACES WITH SUN ON SECOND OCEAN TRIP

(By Associated Press)

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Ger., May 16.—The dirigible Graf Zeppelin, mighty mistress of the air, raced westward with the sun today above Southwestern Europe on its second trip across the Atlantic to America. It made a prvelous trip last October.

Before it lay a variable course above Gibraltar, probably the Azores and Bermuda, to Lakehurst, N. J. which the dirigible's master, Dr. Hugo Eckener, did not expect to reach before late Saturday night or Sunday morning.

Aboard the ship were 40 of the crew, 18 passengers, and a female Gorilla, "Susi." The only woman passenger was Mrs. Mary Pierce, wife of a New York utilities broker who made the trip despite urgent pleadings of her husband and mother. Among the men was Captain Sir George Hubert Wilkins, Arctic explorer.

The ship was trundled from its hangar at 5:45 a. m., and at the pilots command was released for its long voyage at 5:57 a. m., (11:57 p. m., Eastern Standard time Wednesday.) It rose slowly in an intermittent drizzle, while 200 or more spectators cheered. It circled the field once, and disappeared in ten minutes in the direction of the Lake Constance and Basel, Switzerland.

Swiss Planes Escort

After flying over Walashut and Saeckingen the dirigible arrived over Basel at 7:30 a. m., a fog obliging it to descend close to the ground to discharge its first load of air mail. Five Swiss airplanes joined it there and acted as an escort as far as the French frontier which it wirelessed it had crossed at 7:55 a. m.

Mrs. Pierce was one of the first at the field. Her decision to make the trip was believed here never to have been changed after her purchase of passage Tuesday, although

IDEAL WEATHER ZEPP FORECAST

NEW YORK, May 16 (AP)—Dr. James H. Kimball, Associate United States meteorologist, predicted ideal weather conditions over the Southern route by way of the Azores for the dirigible Graf Zeppelin on its flight from Germany to the United States.

He said if the dirigible left the coast of Europe over Brest France, or La Corona, Spain, stronger head winds would be encountered than if he took the longer, more southerly course which would take him out to sea over Lisbon, Portugal.

DEFINITE PURPOSE IN LIFE IS URGED TO 229 SENIORS

Challenging the 229 Lubbock high school graduates to develop a definite purpose in life and to work toward its accomplishment with all their might, Tom Garrard, local attorney, last night delivered the principal address at the high school commencement exercises held in the Tech college gymnasium.

The seniors were told to pattern themselves after an athlete in a game with a definite purpose of making a score. "I want to stress the importance of work,' Mr. Garrard said. 'That program of work must be systematic, with eyes open at all times. Believe in yourself, be convinced that through proper work you can accomplish anything."

Diplomas were presented by Dr. J. T. Hutchinson who has acted in such a capacity for the past twenty years.

INQUIRIES ON BLAST CAUSE ARE STARTED

ORIGIN OF EXPLOSION IS MYSTERY AS QUIZ OPENS

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, May 16.—Six investigations of the explosion and fire at the Cleveland clinic yesterday were under way today with the cause of the blast still a mystery.

Governor Cooper marshaled the cles and five local groups of officials began their own inquiries.

All investigations centered on the unknown mishops which touched off a supply of X-ray films in the basement storage room and engulfed the building in a penetrating cloud of poisonous gas and flames.

Officials were attempting to ascertain whether all precautions were taken by the clinic in the handling of its films; how and why the films exploded; what gases were liberated and just how the struggling men and women fighting for air met their death.

Drs. George W. Crile and William E. Lower, directors of the clinic, said they had "no exact knowledge of how the disaster occurred." Dr. Lower, who said that probably the victims were "suffocated by nitrous peroxide gas," said every precaution which the clinic could have taken to prevent the tragedy "had been taken."

State and city fire wardens, a committee appointed by City Manager W. R. Hopkins, and the county coroner's office searched the building and questioned survivors in an effort to fix responsibility for the catastrophe.

Several reports were circulated concerning ignition of the X-ray films. One was that a steam fitter had been working near the storage cabinets with a lighted blow torch. Another was that steam pipes near the storage cabinets became overheated. A third was that rubbish may have been burned in a furnace near the X-ray room and that

GIRL STAYED BY CLINIC 'PHONE

CLEVELAND, May 16 (AP).—Among the bravest heroines of the Cleveland clinic disaster was Gladys Gibson, of Cleveland, a telephone operator at the clinic, who deliberately faced her death while sending out alarms, and who died soon after in a hospital.

The brave telephone girl saw death approaching in the form of a ghastly yellow poison gas, but she stayed at her exchange board making heroic efforts to warn everyone in the clinic of their danger, and to rally police, firemen and ambulances.

Faster than ever before in her life she worked, plugging in socket after socket in the switchboard, as she set all telephones in the clinic to ringing madly their alarm of death.

Finally the heroic girl collapsed. Someone carried her out, and soon she died in the hospital.

ARREST MILL STRIKERS AS MAIN BROKEN

WATER PIPE SERVING CITY AND MILLS IS DYNAMITED

(By Associated Press)

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., May 16. National guardsmen used tear gas bombs to effect the arrest of approximately 100 men and women textile mill strikers who had collected on a highway over which workers were being taken to the American Glanzstoff and Bamberg Rayon plants today.

The demonstrations and arrest occurred three hours after the water main serving this city and the mills had been dynamited. The bombs were used after stones were alleged to have been thrown and buses and automobiles in which employes of the mills were riding. Those arrested were herded into the court house here.

One of the buses dashed through a group of strikers trying to block the road, injuring four of them. One, Evelyn Heaton, was seriously hurt. The driver, Joe Calhoun, was taken to Jonesboro, 18 miles away, by guardsmen.

SOLONS VOTE TO ADJOURN IMPEACHMENT

LONG BACKERS FORCE LEGISLATURE TO END SESSION

(By Associated Press)

BATON ROUGE, La., May 16.—The Louisiana senate court of impeachment today abandoned trial of Governor Huey P. Long and dissolved by unanimous consent without hearing any testimony on the impeachfent charges against him.

The vote was taken on an oral vote amid scattered handclapping and a few muffled cheers. The gallery was packed and the rule limiting spectators was suspended to permit throngs to come in and stand around the rail.

Governor Long was not present at the final session, but Mrs. Long was in the spectators' gallery.

Adjournment was forced by the Long forces' move in presenting a signed motion for adjournment sine die bearing the signatures of 15 senators declaring they would vote to acquit the governor regardless of the evidence as they believed the charges had been voted in violation of the law and constitution.

House Is Studying On Concentration

AUSTIN, May 16 (AP).—The senate resumed its consideration of penitentiary concenration today with the substitute bill by Senator T. J. Holbrook of Galveston, offered late last night as an amendment to the house bill, up for a decision.

The Holbrook measure is entirely different to the one the Galveston man sponsored in the regular sessions and the draft he offered at this session. It provides for an exhaustive survey of prison conditions and the situation with reference to centralization. The report and recommendations would be submitted to the governor, who in turn would pass them on to the legislature for final action. In a manner, it gives the legislature plenary power, the point of contention since prison concentration was first advocated upon inauguration of Governor Moody more than two years ago.

DETECTIVE IS SLAIN IN TRAP

OWN SCHEME PROVES UNDOING OF BOLD CHICAGO COP

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, May 16.—A police detective was fatally wounded late yesterday by a gang of extortionists whom he had attempted to trap by disguising himself as the agent of their intended victim.

Ray Martin, the detective, was shot down by the men as he approached their automobile. The extortionists escaped under a spray of bullets fired by policemen hidden nearby.

Police ordered the arrest of Martin O'Leary, west side gang character, and the Fontana brothers, Carlos, and Ernest, described as bootleggers and gangsters.

Martin had disguised himself as Moses Blumenthal, brother of Philip Blumenthal, reputed millionaire bootlegger who recently was kidnaped and released upon payment of $15,000 and his promise to pay $35,000 more by June 1. Moses Blumenthal was ordered yesterday by the kidnapers to pay more money immediately.

After policemen had stationed themselves in weeds in vacant lots nearby, Martin walked down the street until he came to an automobile containing four men.

As he approached the car, the men, supposedly seeing through Martin's disguise, opened fire and sped away. Martin died an hour later.

Gas Terrors Of War Are Recalled By Explosion

CLEVELAND, May 16.—The death toll in the Cleveland Clinic explosion reached 120 today. Victims who had fought for their lives through the night succumbed one after another, and physicians predicted that eventually others whose bodies were poisoned with gas would die.

The gas had attacked the blood, they said, slowly destroying red corpuscles. The victims were compared to the "walking gas cases" of the world war—gassed soldiers who withstood the inroads of the poison for a few days and then fell over dead.

Some of the survivors were patients, nurses and doctors at the clinic. Others were firemen and policemen who risked their lives in the acrid smoke to remove the bodies. Some were volunteers who had worked feverishly with them. Physicians said most of them had but little chance for their lives.

Such a case was that of Dr. John Phillips, one of the founders of the clinic. Two tanks of oxygen were used, but he collapsed after walking some distance to his home from the clinic. The recourse having failed, Dr. George W. Crile, cofounder and head of the clinic, performed a blood transfusion upon his colleague. In spite of everything that could be done for him he died.

Six similar cases were recorded at Mount Sinai hospital last night, three of them victims who had left the charred clinic with no apparent effects of the noxious fumes. One was Miss Ella Moeller, Stenographer at the clinic who jumped from a window and went home believing she was untouched.

Later she felt ill and went to Mt. Sinai. She laughed and talked while waiting for treatment and then collapsed. A blood transfusion was ordered with the hope that what seemed the inevitable might be averted.

The other two patients were a fireman and a woman who entered the clinic just as the first blast occurred. She got a whiff of the gas, returned to her home thankful to have escaped death, and then felt the ominous effects of the fatal fumes. All three underwent blood transfusions.

The gas was identified by Dr. William E. Lower, one of the chiefs of the clinic, as nitrous peroxide, released by burning X-Ray film. The celluloid preparation was fired in an unknown way in a basement store room.

An explosion of the pent-up gas that rocked the building followed. It filled the building with gas and as the compression increased a second and larger blast demolished much of the interior and set the woodwork aflame.

More than 300 persons were in

FORSAKE WORLDLY JOY FOR CONVENT

Elizabeth Anne Clem and her father, Maj. Gen. John L. Clem, below.

(By Central Press)

NEW ALBANY, N. Y., May 16.—A slender, young girl in the white of bridal dress knelt before an altar of the Carmelite convent and pronounced vows that meant renunciation of the pleasures of a social favorite for life behind cloistral walls.

The ceremony made Miss Elizabeth Anne Clem, 21, the only daughter of Maj. Gen. John L. Clem, retired, a nun of the strictest women's order of the Catholic church.

Their Only Daughter

General Clem, hero of the battle of Chickamauga in the civil war, a veteran of three other wars, and a thirty-second degree Mason, knelt beside Mrs. Clem in the convent chapel. They saw their only daughter take the vows that would forever remove her from their sight.

The bridal dress symbolized wedding with Christ, and the ritual of the ceremonies was of marriage symbolism. The rite took place during a solemn high mass offered by the Rt. Rev. Joseph Chartrand, l'shop of the Indianapolis diocese of the Catholic church.

The charming girl who was a debutante in Washington two years ago, and a favorite of the exclusive society of the capital, became Sister Anne of the Trinity, pledged to spend her life within the wall of the quiet convent in this little town on the banks of the Ohio river.

After the rites in the chapel, Sister Anne of the Trinity, in the black and white habit of the Carmelites, appeared at the convent gate. Softly she talked for a few minutes with the white haired soldier, and the gray haired woman at his side. She repressed tears as she bade them farewell. A young girl, a Washington friend, said goodbye, also.

Then the major's daughter stepped behind the convent gate, never to see her parents again, never to appear before worldly eyes.

There were tears in the eyes of General Clem, the 'Little John' of Chickamauga, who fought at the age of 12 and shot a Confederate colonel from his horse—the old soldier who marched with four others of the Grand Army of the Republic as a guard of honor for President Hoover at the inaugural.

A Long Felt Wish

The stern old general and his wife bowed to the wishes of their daughter when two years of touring the world, of the pleasures of society in Europe's capitals failed to swerve her from the desire she had expressed in 1919—the wish to spend a life of self-denial in a Carmelite convent.

Last August Miss Clem became a novice at the convent. In January there came a personal invitation for her from President Coolidge to a reception at the White House.

When her parents visited their daughter for the last time, the former society girl placed in her aged father's hand the tear-stained invitation which bore the White House crest.

LEE of Conshohocken
definitely extends all previous limits of tire life

Super-endurance, super-safety, super-comfort, super-value have always characterized all tires by LEE of Conshohocken. What LEE tires have been doing regularly—at regular prices—others have sought to achieve with extra-price tires.

But now there actually is one tire that is even better than the best previous LEE Tires, and therefore beyond any other tire ever known. It is the LEE SUPER DE LUXE—really the super-tire of super-tires. Its extra price is little compared to the extra thickness of its all-season tread, the special combed cord fabric the full comfort, the literally multiplied mileage.

Indeed, LEE SUPER DE LUXE tires average more miles than the average owner drives one car! Through the whole period there is hardly a chance of puncture or blowout.

With this perfectly balanced SUPER DE LUXE, LEE of Conshohocken puts tires in the same class with those parts of the car which need the least attention.

We allow you what your present tires are worth, new or old.

243 PERSONS ALREADY HAVE FLOWN ACROSS ATLANTIC OCEAN

BRITISH MADE FIRST FLIGHT

GRAF ZEPPELIN FOUND LATEST METHOD OF OCEAN TRAVEL

WASHINGTON, May 16. — The open season for crossing the Atlantic by air has arrived again, coincident with the second anniversary of Lindbergh's New York-Paris flight.

The great dirigible Graf Zeppelin, with its second voyage from Germany to America, inaugurates the 1929 trans-Atlantic flight series.

Close on the heels of the Graf Zeppelin will be the new British dirigible, the R-100, which will take off on a trip to Canada and the United States. It is expected to be followed later by its sister ship, the R-101.

Thus the 1929 season will open with Dirigibles occupying the limelight.

Although flying across the Atlantic is considered one of the most risky things an aviator can attempt, it is worth noting that in the ten years that have elapsed since the first time the Atlantic was spanned by air, no fewer than 243 persons have sailed over the ocean in airplane or dirigible, not including the second trip of the Graf Zeppelin. The Atlantic was crossed in a non-stop flight eight years before Lindbergh's triumph.

U. S. Navy Was First To Succeed

This total includes some of the greatest names in the history of aviation. It begins with the Navy's seaplane, the NC-4 which was guided across by three naval officers in May 1919, and is brought up to date by the flight last March of the Spaniards, Captains Ignacio Jiminez and Francisco Iglesia from Seville to Bahia, Brazil.

The figure, of course, is a good deal higher than the average reader suspects. This is due chiefly to the fact that there have been several dirigible crossings, with each dirigible carrying from 30 to 65 people.

Some of the most notable of ocean flights are not included in this list, however. Since the list is concerned exclusively with crossings of the Atlantic, it does not include any of the daring flights over the Pacific—the Army's round-the-world flight which followed the northern islands from Alaska to Japan, the various army, navy and civilian flights to Hawaii, and the great flight of the Southern Cross from San Francisco to Australia. Nor does it inclde any of the numerous unsuccessful attempts to span the Atlantic in which the flyers met death.

The List of Ocean Flyers

Here is the list of trans-Atlantic flights and the dates on which they were made:

May 8, 1919—The Navy's NC14, in charge of Lieut-Com. A. C. Reed, assisted by E. F. Stone and W. Hinton, left Rockaway, N. Y., and flew to Plymouth, England, by way of Azores, Portugal and Spain in 57 hours and 16 minutes flying time, 3,16 miles. Two other planes failed.

May 19,1919—Harry Hawker and Lieut.-Com. Grieve, British aviators, flying from Newfoundland to Ireland, forced down in ocean and rescued by Danish ship Mary.

June 14, 1919—First successful non-stop trans-Atlantic flight made by Captain John Alcock and Lieutenant A. W. Brown of England, who flew from Newfoundland to Clifden, Ireland, in 16 hours and 12 minutes, covering 1960 miles.

July 2, 1919—British dirigible R-34 crossed Atlantic with 31 persons aboard (one a stowaway) from Scotland, arriving at Mineola, N. Y., July 6. Return voyage safely negotiated, beginning July 10.

Sept. 28, 1924—Two of the four U. S. Army round-the-world planes crossed Atlantic via Iceland, Greenland, Labrador, Newfoundland.

Oct. 12, 1924—The ZR-3, now the Los Angeles, left Zeppelin works, at Friedrichshafen, Germany, and landed at Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 15, flying 500 miles in 81 hours.

Jan. 1926.—Commandant Franco of Spain, flew his seaplane to Buenos Aires, Argentina, via Canary Islands.

Feb. 22, 1927—Commander Francesco DePinedo, flew across the lower Atlantic from Cape Verde Islands, off the coast of Africa, to South America. On May 23, he left Newfoundland on his way back to Italy via the Azores.

May 21, 1927—Lindbergh, New York to Paris, 3610 miles, 33 1-2 hours.

June 4, 1927—Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine took off from New York, and landed at Eisleben, Germany, on June 6, breaking world record for long distance flying with 3911 miles in 42 hours and 31 minutes.

June 29, 1927—Commander Byrd, Bert Acosta, George O. Norville and Bernt Balchen left New York, and came down in shallow water off coast of France early on morning of July 1, after 3477 miles in 46 hours and 6 minutes.

August 27, 1927—William S. Brock and Edward F. Schlee, round-the-world aviators, flew from Newfoundland to Croydon airdrome, London, covering 2400 miles in 23 hours and 9 minutes.

Oct. 11, 1927—Ruth Elder and George Haldeman left New York for Paris; two days later rescued from ocean by Dutch tanker near Azores.

April 12, 1928—Koehl, Von Huenefeld and Fitzmaurice leave Ireland and landed on Greenely Island, off Labrador coast, on Friday, the 13th making first westward airplane crossing in single-motored plane.

June 17, 1928—Miss Amelia Earhart, Lieutenant Wilmer Stultz and Lew Gordon, left Newfoundland and landed in Wales on following day, completing 2100-mile hop in 20 hours and 49 minutes.

Oct. 11, 1928—Graf Zeppelin crossed from Germany to U. S. with 20 passengers and 40 crew, 6000 miles in 111 1-2 hours.

Oct. 29, 1928—Graf Zeppelin began return flight with 25 passengers and 40 crew. Completed in 71 hours and 12 minutes.

March 26, 1929—Captains Ignacio Jiminez and Francisco Iglesia, Spanish aviators, landed at Bahia, Brazil after a flight from Spain.

High spots in the ten-year conquest of the Atlantic ocean by man-made birds are portrayed above by Joe King, staff artist for The Journal and NEA Service, co-incident with the second anniversary of Lindbergh's flight and the second voyage to America by the Graf Zeppelin, big German dirigible. Back in June 1919, Captain John Alcock and Lieutenant A. W. Brown, daring British aviators, made a 1960-mile non-stop flight from St. Johns, Newfoundland, to Clifden, Ireland, in 16 hours and 12 minutes. In 1924 the German Zeppelin ZR-3, which is now the Los Angeles, was flown to this country and turned over to the United States government in accordance with terms in the Versailles treaty. The 1927 season was a busy one with Lindbergh, Chamberlin and Byrd all making the crossing. Last year witnessed the first westward crossing when the German plane Bremen landed on Greenly Isle and the newest trans-Atlantic air voyager of the Graf Zeppelin, making its second round-trip flight.

the building when the first explosion came at 11:25 o'clock in the morning. Some escaped before the fumes reached them. Others died in frantic flight, their bodies strewing the stairways and floors. Many died after reaching the open air, and still more succumbed in hospitals.

A constant stream of ambulances hurried between the clinic and nearby hospitals, and other convoys bore the dead to the county morgue. There they lay while long lines of persons passed the bodies, many of them stretched in lines along the floor. The building was taxed to capacity.

As the bodies were identified they were removed, but the long queque, silent and sorrowful, passed through the morgue until late last night. Today several of the victims remained unidentified.

stroy the confidence of the citizenship in the government, and finally to wreck and destroy the same," the report said.

Recommends No Action

The committee made no specific recommendations to the legislature concerning acts of the land commissioner.

"Due to the seriousness of the result and the fact that the matter is of sufficient interest to the legislature as a whole, upon which body the responsibility would finally rest, the committee submits no suggestion as to what action the legislature of the state should take concerning the acts of the land commissioner," the report stated.

Representative Fred Minor of Denton was chairman of the committee, other members were Representatives Coke R. Stevenson of Junction and T. R. Bond of Terrell, and Senators Joe M. Moore of Greenville and Carl C. Hardin of Stephenville.

May Institute Suit

The committee recommended that the attorney general investigate the advisability of instituting suit against the land commissioner, "calling upon him to make an accurate accounting of the fund, and for the recovery of the sums of money which such accounting shows had not been legitimately used by the commissioner in administering said account."

The report stated this conclusion is supported by an opinion of the attorney general to the effect of the special session of the 39th legislature, which sought to change the character of the "one cent an acre fund" was "wholly insufficient for such purpose, and was invalid under the constitution."

The committee recommended the passage of a law creating the office of state auditor, whose duty would be "to make investigations and audit the accounts of all departments, institutions, boards and bureaus of the state government and report the result to the legislature for its guidance."

Should Rewrite Laws

Another recommendation was that "the land laws of Texas should be rewritten and safeguards thrown around the sale and leasing of public lands as will fully protect the public school funds and university funds in the future."

The resolution authorizing the investigation included inquiry also into "any improper or unlawful act on the part of the board of regents, the attorney general's department or the governor."

"No one came to present any charges of irregularities against these departments," the report said. "The committee finds that the action of the university board of regents, the attorney general's department and the governor are regular in all respects insofar as their relations with the land office are concerned.

Audit Shows That

With reference to the one cent an acre fund, the report stated that "an audit of the account discloses the following facts:

"That no effort was made by the land office to keep a proper or intelligent set of books evidencing the receipt of the money belonging to said fund and showing the items of expenditure.

"That for the amount of $20,325.51 shown to have been checked out of the bank the commissioner was not able to present any cancelled checks.

"That the sum of $12,471.78 was received by the commissioner and never deposited in any bank. As a result the commissioner was unable to account for the sum of $32,797.29 of the money received by him in any manner whatsoever. Further than this the record discloses that the commissioner used from the aforesaid funds different sums of money for private purposes and made payments out of said fund to various members of his family."

Bodies of Two Who Drowned Are Found

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 16 (AP)—The body of Paul W. Davison, 29, Oklahoma City real estate salesman who with his son, Paul L. Davison, 5, and Billie Barnhill, 18, was drowned late yesterday in Lake Overholser, city water reservoir, was recovered today by firemen.

Bodies of the child and Barnhill were taken from the lake soon after the trio's small boat capsized.

Davison went down after holding his son above the waves for several minutes, witnesses said.

sparks were blown into the storage cabinet. The possibility of spontaneous combustion also was considered.

The interior of the storage room was so completely wrecked that investigators expected an examination of minute particles on the floor would be necessary.

DOOR LEADING TO X-RAY WAS OPEN

CLEVELAND, May 16 (AP).—The fire door leading from the X-ray room in the Cleveland clinic where the first explosion occurred yesterday had been left open, state fire wardens investigating the tragedy announced today.

"The fire door leading to the room where the celluloid X-ray plates were stored and where the first explosion occurred, had been left open. If this door had been closed the disaster might have been averted."

BLOOD TESTS SHOW POISONOUS GASES

CLEVELAND, O., May 16 (AP).—Coroner A. J. Pearse announced blood tests of victims of the Cleveland clinic explosion showed death was caused by inhalation of hydrocyanic acid gas and bromine gas, both of which were present in large quantities.

CLEVELAND, May 16 (AP).—Physicians of the Cleveland clinic rocked by two explosions of gas which killed more than 100 persons, were unable to agree with authorities and other doctors interested in the clamity upon the name of the poisonous fumes which worked their way in the building.

Bromine, phoegene and nitrous gases all were given as causes of the tragedy. Prof. Walter Straub, twice winner of the Nobel prize for medical achievement, declared he believed nitrous gases caused by combustion did the havoc. He was supported by Dr. William E. Lower, director of the clinic. Dr. M. E. Bland of Mount Sinai hospital, said examination of bodies gave traces of phosgene gas and City Health Commissioner H. L. Lockwood leaned to a theory of bromine gas generated in burning X-ray films which caused the explosion.

Coroner A. J. Pearse added the possibility of hydrocyanic gas.

EVENING COATS ARE INDIVIDUAL

Youthful and chic is the short summer wrap of chartreuse velvet with wide sleeves trimmed in blue fox

BY HENRI BENDEL
For NEA Service

NEW YORK, May 16—Evening coats this summer are quite a barometer of the spirit of the women who wear them.

By that, I mean that the wide variety of designs, the multitudinous effects achieved and the differences in fabrics used enable each woman to pick a choice or two that will exactly suit her and express her personality.

There is, for instance, stiff taffeta for the crisp evening wrap that expresses animation. Transparent velvets are exquisitely clinging and feminine. Satin is soft and alluring. Brocades, are for regal richness and many novelty silks are for individuality.

Variety Marks the Mode

No single style of evening wrap can be cited as the summer choice this year. They vary in length from the short flaring jacket to the long, flounced coat that almost sweeps the floor in the back; short coats being very chic. Capes are excellent, especially when they are either the cute short type with triple collars or when they are slender line below the hips. Dolmans are in favor. The evening coat of a variety of cuts and lengths is excellent.

Collars and cuffs on evening coats are determining factors in their chic. Much is made of the high, soft collar that frames the face enhancingly. This is more often than not of the silk of the coat, shirred, tucked, made into a flower design or in some novel way given individuality.

Scarf collars, cape collars, even novel stock collars are features of summer wraps. But practically every collar is the type that can fall away from the face gracefully without being fastened in place. Fur is not used as much for summer collars, though ermine, sable and other luxurious pelts sometimes edge scarf collars and then richly trim the cuffs of coats.

Colors of evening coats are beautiful and appealing this summer. Chartreuse is a good color. Patou blue, absinthe, orchid, sea-foam green, all the soft pinks and apricots and yellows and off-white are seen. It is quite the mode to have a coat for each evening gown, the ensemble idea extending to color and cut, with the coat's fabric heavier than the gown.

There is sophistication in the cut of one moire silk importation. It is a rich orchid tone. The coat is princess cut in three-quarters length with a double flounce dipping low in the back, in the moment's mode. The collar stands high, being a tall circular one that crushes here and there for becomingness. The sleeves are long and fairly tight.

Velvet Coat for a Young Girl

For the young girl there is a chartreuse transparent velvet coat of straight line with loose sleeves edged in silver fox. A scarf falls down the back, attached to the rear of the collar with a little bow. Fox edges this, too.

As a conservative choice for the well-dressed woman who wants a coat for several evening gowns, I suggest a reseda green velvet. This has a slightly molded silhouette with a circular scarf arrangement that hangs down both sides of the back below knee length. The sleeves are especially attractive, with a circular cut joining the straight sleeve below the elbow.

Music recitals are being given today by pupils in the music department of the public schools.

Dr. Eckener was the last aboard the Zeppelin. It was taken from its hangar, poking its nose imposingly into the dreary grey mist. At 5:56 he gave the command to start the motors and the next minute the vast dirigible was on its way, first describing a loop over Friedrichshafen.

All the windows on the starboard side were lined with faces, whose owners waved their hands in answer to the "Hoghc" of the crowd below. All seemed in a cheerful, jovial mood.

Seventh Stowaway Found

As the dirigible was taken from its hangar another stowaway—the seventh since yesterday—was caught as he, dressed in mechanic's clothes attempted to sneak into the hold through a closing door.

There were various contrivances aboard for passengers' amusement such as a phonograph with a loud speaker and chess boards. Most of the passengers had cameras and there were several typewriters.

The ship carried 4400 pounds of freight in addition to its passengers this including considerable air mail, a grand piano, a painting and other things.

Instead of blau gas for which the ship's motors are best fitted, a supply of leunal gas was taken along for fuel.

SHIRES FIGHTS

Bad Boy' of Sox In Bout With Blackburne

CHICAGO, May 16. (AP)—Art Shires, White Sox "bad boy", engaged in a fist fight with his boss, Manager Lena Blackburne, in the clubhouse after yesterday's game and announced forthwith he was leaving baseball "for good" and would reenter school to obtain his degree in law. Blackburne, decorated with a discolored eye and a cut ear, took the altercation like the seasoned campaigner he is and announced:

"It was just one of those things that had to happen, sooner or later."

The manager added that since Shires is under contract with the White Sox his further legal education will be delayed, at least temporarily.

"He is still the property of the club," Blackburne said, "and will remain so, but in what capacity, I don't know. If Shires gets on the right track he will be reinstated and given another chance to make the grade."

The fight climaxed several months of dispute between Blackburne and Shires and occurred a few hours after Blackburne had fined Shires $100 and indefinitely suspended him for "talking back" during batting practice.

BARBERS WHIP HARDWAREMEN

SEASON'S OPENER IS WON BY SCORE OF 7 TO 1

Joe Chisum's Auto- Barbers gave the Hardware Dealers a sound spanking in the opening game of the Lubbock City League Wednesday afternoon when they grabbed the first abbreviated contest of the season, 7 to 1.

Red Moore did the hurling for the victors in the season's sendoff, holding the Hardware outfit to a brace of bingles while his mates were counting seven runs on as many hits and five errors. Hooper, who started on the mound for the losers, gave way to Delaney in the fifth frame, after being touched for five hits.

Dude Lassiter scored the first run of the season when he crossed the plate on Hill's passed ball in the third inning. Del Morgan counted the other tally the winners made in this frame on Halmark's error.

Score 5 in Fourth

The Auto-Barbers counted five runs in the fourth on two hits and 2 errors. Burnett led off with a single through the box, advanced to second when Moore flew out to center and went to third on Rigney's single. He scored on a double steal. Rigney reaching second. Lassiter was given a life on Coker's miscue. E. Carr whiffed and Marshall reached first on Halmark's error. Lassiter and Marshall scored when Morgan hit one to deep center for three bases. Morgan completed the circuit on a wild throw to third. Hodges ended the rally when he flew out to Rainwater.

The Hardware Dealers scored the only run in the fourth, after two were down. Bailey was hit by a pitched ball and Hensley struck out. Rainwater was issued a free pass to first and Hill grounded out to Rigney, Halmark slashed a single to left, scoring Bailey, Halmark was caught off first by Moore for the third out.

The Santa Fe nine will make its first appearance today against the Hardware aggregation.

GLENNA COLLETT STILL IN RUNNING

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 16 (AP)—The field in the British women's golf championship, was reduced to four this morning with Glenna Collett, American title-holder, still in the running.

In the semi-finals this afternoon, Miss Collett was matched with Doris Parks. In the other semi-final bracket, Joyce Wethered, famous English star, was pitted against Mrs. Herbert Guedalla, the former Edith Leitch.

In the quarter finals, Miss Collett played steady golf to down Mrs J. B. Watson, of Scotland; Miss Parks scored a surprising victory over the young English champion Enid Wilson, at the nineteenth hole; Miss Wethered played brilliantly to crush Molly Gourlay under a 7 to 5 score, and Mrs. Guedalla conquered Barbara Pyman, 3 and 2.

Return Texarkana Franchise To Loop

TEXARKANA, May 16.—Texarkana notified T. H. Fisher of Dallas, president of the Lone Star league, last night, it was returning its franchise to the league because of lack of support.

President Fisher was on his way here today to try to straighten out the difficulty, but officials held little hope. They announced yesterday, when only 100 persons saw a double header, that they were through.

Sherman and Tyler both had considered withdrawing from the circuit, but weathered the storm.

WICHITA WINS OFF WACO BUT CUBS YET LEAD

FORT WORTH PLASTERS DEFEAT ON TRIBE IN THIRD TRY

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Old Wilbur Cooper, a major league cast-off whom the experts long since had classified as through, found enough cunning left in his good right arm yesterday to puzzle the ambitious Houston Buffs and deprive them of an opportunity to climb into a tie with Waco for the Texas League lead.

Cooper, who once performed mighty deeds for the Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates, was clouted from the hill in his first start for Shreveport over a week ago, but he was right as a fox yesterday. He limited the Buffaloes to five scattered safeties while his new mates batted out a 5 to 2 victory and an even break for their series.

Cubs Lose To Spuds

All this occurred while the touring Cubs were dropping their second straight to Wichita Falls, 8 to 1, and as a result Dell Pratt's batters still had a one-game lead as they moved into Fort Worth for a three-game series today.

It is doubtful if the Buffs will improve their percentage materially the next three days, as they are at Dallas for a series with the recurrent rambunctious Steers. After taking their third in a row from Beaumont yesterday, 7 to 3, the Mavericks again look like a dangerous animal to fool with. Milt Stock's valuable team has been sliding up and down the pennant ladder faster than a fireman ever since the season started. Today it was back up in fourth place.

After dropping two straight to the San Antonio Indians, the Fort Worth hopefuls finally got Pat Newman's Braves back on the reservation yesterday and handed them a 3 to 1 licking in their series final at Cattown. Hobo Carson pitched a brilliant game for San Antonio giving up only four hits but the breaks were against him. The loser-gauged Lefty Walkup for seven knocks.

LISKA PROVES SEASON'S FIND

ONE FLOWER THAT BLOOMED IN THE SPRING IS NOT WILTING AS SEASON PROGRESSES

By BOB MATHERNE
NEA Service Sports Writer

Experience has shown that it doesn't pay to take too seriously all the sugared comments passed out from the baseball camps during the spring training period. Especially about rookies.

That is to say, it seems better to reserve final judgment until June, at least, as it has been demonstrated in previous years that the fellows who look like Cobbs and Johnsons in March often en dup the season in the Three-Eye or some lower league by May.

Nearly every major league club has had its bloomers. The Giants had no notables one in Jimmy O'Connell and Wayland Dean, who together cost $125,000 and neither one was worth the least part of it.

Dudley Branom fizzled for the Athletics and Paul Easterling joined the bloomer ranks last year while at Detorit. One doesn't have to go any further back than this past March to recall that a number of youngsters who were expected to play important roles this summer are—well, where?

This season has been under way long enough to offer the conclusion that Ad Liska, the 22-year-old submarine chukker with the Washington Senators, isn't destined to have the tag "bloomer" fastened on him. On the contrary, Liska seems well on his way to earning the distinction of being the best young pitcher to reach the majors this season.

At the Tampa, Fla., training base of the Senators, Liska was pointed out with great pride in March.

"There's a young feller that is going to be heard of," the judges of baseball talent said. "He's that Liska, who won 20 and lost four for Minneapolis last season. Pitches under-handed al lthe time because he hurt his arm the other way and either had to quit baseball or else throw that way. He looks great."

Manager Walter Johnson, one of the greatest pitchers baseball ever has known, also boosted Liska.

"He has impressed me more than any youngster I have seen in years," he commented.

It has come to pass that no one was wrong. Or, at least, isn't yet. Liska has pitched almost perfect ball for Washington. In his first three trips out, he allowed only 10 hits in 25 2-3 innings. One of his games was a two-hit affair against Cleveland. He lost that, and was credited with losses in the two other games, because the Senators made ony one run for him in them. His first victory, even though he didn't finish the game, was against Detroit.

The ring in which Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney fought in Philladelphia in 1926 now is in the gymnasium of the Hill school for boys at Pottstown, Pa.

TEXAS TO WIN TENNIS TITLE

THIS IS OUTLOOK FOR CONFERENCE NET MEET OF WEEK

AUSTIN, May 16 (AP)—Led by the brilliant Berkeley Bell, the Texas university tennis team is favored to sweep to an easy victory in the Southwest conference net meet here this week-end.

Other members of the Longhorn squad which has gone through five dual conference meets with the loss of only one set, are Barnes, Ferguson and Dunlap. In addition to their conference meets, the steer netters also have engaged Grinnell college of Iowa, Oklahoma State, Oklahoma A. & M., Tulane, Southwest Texas State Teachers and Drake university. Against all these teams Dr. Penick's players dropped only two doubles matches.

Rice is expected to give the Longhorns their strongest opposition in the approaching meet. Jack Hess, Owl star, came within a point of taking a set from Bell in the dual meet here May 4.

M'GRAW BACK IN FIGHT BUT GIANTS LOSE

NEW YORK WINS THREE, LOSES SEVEN FOR STAND AT HOME

By WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

John McGraw didn't know what a break he was getting when the Giants put him to bed. After ten pleasantly idle afternoons, he discovered yesterday that he got well too soon. Back at the Polo grounds, he saw the Reds skip away with the remains of a two-game series by a score of 12 to 3.

The victory of the Reds gave the Rhineland invaders two straight at the Polo grounds, and left the Giants nursing just three small victories and seven bumps on the jaw for their stand at home against the west. One tie also was entered into the record.

With Dazzy Vance ill, Glenn Wright on his way home and Burleigh Grimes in the box for Pittsburgh, the Robins found a perfect setting for their eighth straight defeat. Babe Herman's homer off Grimes in the fifth with two Robins on base tied the score at 4 to 4, but the Pirates soon regained command to win eventually by 9 to 4.

While all of this brawling was going on about the metropolis, the Cubs were tommyhawking the Braves by 7 to 4 at Boston and the Cards were punching the Phils by 4 to 1. These two contending forces thus remained on even terms at the head of the National league parade.

Harry Heilmann butted himself into insensibility against a ball held in the iron paw of Mickey Cochrane in the ninth inning at Detroit yesterday, but conscious or unconscious, sprawled across the plate with the winning run. The Tigers won from Philadelphia, 6 to 3.

The Yankees put the Indians to no such extreme in the finale at Cleveland, contenting themselves with Lou Gehrig's eighth home run as the tribe pounded George Pipgras and three other Yank slabmen to win by 7 to 1.

The Browns shaded the Senators by 5 to 3 in the getaway game, remaining in the thick of the fight, and the White Sox of Chicago nipped their Red hosed namesakes from Boston by 8 to 4.

Some X-Ray Films Are Not Explosive

ROCHESTER, N. Y. May 16 (AP)—A statement that the two varieties of X-ray film in use are not explosive in themselves but that under certain conditions contrary to regulations of the National Fire Protection association, one variety, cellulose nitrate, would release gases hazardous in explosive and toxic properties was made today by officials of the Eastman Kodak company.

Unacquainted with the kind of film in use at the Cleveland clinic, officials would not state the part played by X-ray film in the explosion and fire followed by highly poisonous fumes.

Thirty-Five Sign Chautauqua Surety

About thirty-five signatures were secured yesterday afternoon to a guarantee for the Redpath Horner chautauqua to come here next year. This year's guarantors, who faced a deficit of about $30 each accepted a $400 reduction from this year's guarantee of $1,600 by signing the new contract. The new contract stipulates the maximum liability of each guarantor at $15.

The guarantee is being circulated today for additional signers. Even with the reduction guarantors this year had to pay about $15 each.

HOKS AND SLIDES

Henry L. Farrell

THOUGHT HE WAS DEAD

Five or six years ago it was the frequent duty of sport writers to inform their public that some disabled ball player or fighter had gone to Youngstown to be cured by the celebrated Bonesetter Reese. Many of them went to him and most of them were cured.

But in recent years there has been scant mention, if any, on the sport pages about the miracle man of muscle and bone. Ball players and fighters began going to other specialists.

Early in the spring in St. Petersburg, Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, was asked why he didn't send Herb Pennock and his lame arm to Bonesetter Reese for treatment.

"Reese?" he replied. "Why, he's dead, isn't he?"

ATHLETES WON'T OBEY

The Bonesetter is not dead. Recently he celebrated his seventy-fouth birthday and he did what he seldom has done before. He submitted to an interview. He said that he had retired from the spotlight in the athletic world because he didn't care to continue treating athletes.

"They expect too much of you, especially ball players." Quoted at greater length by one of his friends, he said: "I have treated hundreds of ball players and admonished them to stay out of the game for a week or so and rest the injured member. Then the next day or two I would pick up the paper and see their names in the box score. Of course when the disability returned they didn't blame themselves for the failure of the treatments and they would come back.

"I had another reason, too, for getting out of the athletic field of work. It attracted too much publicity to me and it led clients to feel that I should guarantee a sure cure. I have enough work to keep me busy without treating ball players. Many times I have appointments two weeks ahead. I don't work on Thursday, Fridays or Saturdays and my clients necessarily must be limited."

HAVE TO FOOL HIM

His friends say that he will not give an appointment to an athlete and those who do get him for treatment have to do it by a ruse.

They tell a story about Chick Lang, one of America's greatest jockeys. Lang had been almost totally disabled with wrist trouble. There were lumps about the size of a quarter on each wrist and he couldn't hold the reins. He went to Youngstown and was shocked to learn that Reese wouldn't treat an athlete.

He went to one of the Bonesetter's friends who promised to get him an appointment but he told him not to dare mention that he was a jockey and to say that he fell down stairs and hurt his wrists.

Reese looked at the lumps, then grabbed hold of the wrists and gave them a sudden twist. Lang said the pain took him to the floor.

"Weeping sinews, you had," Reese told him. "Caused by turning the wrists when they were under a strain."

TWO OF REIGNING FAVORITES BEATEN IN CHASE FOR WOMEN'S GOLF TROPHY

DALLAS, May 16—With two of the once reigning favorites already dethroned, the eight women remaining in the Texas Woman's Golf tournament fought grimly for every stroke in the quarter-final round of the tourney today.

Mrs. C. C. Cary of Dallas, and Mrs. L. W. Magruder of Waco, heavy favorites, bowed to comparatively unheralded players yesterday. Mrs. Magruder was medalist in the qualifying round and Mrs. Cary runner-up. Each fought a gallant battle and each lost on the nineteenth hole, after finishing the orthodox eighteen all square with their opponents. Mrs. May Whitely of Fort Worth defeated Mrs. Magruder and Mrs. Scott Hill of Waco nosed out Mrs. Cary.

Today Mrs. Sam Hopkins of Texarkana, who yesterday won from Mrs. T. S. DeForrest of Dallas by default, will meet Mrs. Whitely. Mrs. Rufus Scott, of Paris, who defeated Miss Bertha Maxey of Houston, 5 and 3, will face Mrs. J. A. Duborrow of Houston. Mrs. Duborrow gained the quarter-finals by beating Miss Aniela Gorczyca of Fort Worth 6 and 4.

In the lower half of the bracket Mrs. Hill oppose Mrs. A. M. Roodes of Dallas, who yesterday scored a 6 and 4 victory over Mrs. R. D. Suddarth, her fellow townswoman. Mrs. F. E. Pharr, of Texarkana, Arkansas champion, will meet Mrs. I. S. Segall of Dallas. Mrs. Pharr eliminated Miss Katherine Allen of Honey Grove, 3 and 1, while Mrs. Segall was defeating Mrs. L. C. Chapman, San Antonio's only representative in the top flight, 3 and 2

REPUBLICANS HOLD CONFAB

STRENGTHENING PARTY LINES IN STATE IS HELD GOAL

With about 100 republicans from various parts of the South Plains assembled at the Hotel Lubbock last night, R. B. Creager, national republican committeeman from this state, laid plans for the strengthening of this chain of the party in Texas.

It is planned to include organizations in every precinct. Citing the victory of Hoover in Texas as proof, Creager pointed out that the party had ceased to be a negligible factor in this state. "We are now making plans to solidify the party in Texas. A two-party system in this state will create better government, for through a competitive system, the best officials will be brought to the front."

Mr. Creager was accompanied here by J. F. Lucey, Dallas, director of the Hoover Belgium relief organization during the war; Orville Bullington, Wichita Falls, vice-chairman of the state executive committee; and Leonard Withington, secretary of the committee.

Successful visits throughout the state were reported by the visitors.

Retail Merchants May Come In 1931

Possibility that the Texas Retail Merchants association will meet here in 1931 was voiced in advices received here yesterday from Garnett Reeves, who is attending the annual convention of the association in San Benito.

With eleven delegates and a band, New Braunfels was chosen as the 1930 meeting place over this city. If the convention is brought here it will mean that several hundred retail merchants will visit Lubbock.

THE TINYMITES

BY HAL COCHRAN

The Goofygoo began to race, and anger flushed to Clowny's face. It made him mad to think the bird would steal a loaf of bread. "Hey come back here," wee Clowny cried. "Such tricks as that should not be tried. I wish I had a rope. I'd throw it sailing o'er your head."

The bird kept running very fast, and held the bread real tight. At last the other Tinies realized that they were being robbed. Then Scouty shouted. "Catch him, quick, Ha'll pay real dearly for this trick." Poor Scouty was so storming mad his heart just throbbed and throbbed.

The baker who'd been sound asleep, looked up and shouted, "Hey there, keep real quiet! I must have my snooze. You're making too much noise. Remember, when I've had my sleep, my party plans I'll gladly keep. But, if you keep on shouting, I will disappoint you boys."

"But, look! We're shy one loaf of bread," one of the Tinies quickly said. "The Goofygoo is running off. He has it 'neath his wing. He wants it for his very own, and plans to eat it all alone." "Is that so?" said the baker man. "Well, he'll do no such thing."

"Come on, now, after him! Be quick, 'cause I imagine he is slick. We'll circle round the Goofygoo, so he can't get away. Off course he may think this is fun, but quite a bad thing he has done. He'll soon find out that stealing things is not our sort of play."

So, off they scampered, full of pep, and neared the big bird, step by step. To circle all around him, 'bout a half an hour was spent. Then Clowny drew up close to him and took a dive in perfect trim. He caught the Goofygoo's long legs and down they quickly went.

Wales Plays Hero Part At Factory

LONDON, May 16 (AP)—The Daily Express today said the Prince of Wales yesterday saved a foreman at the industrial exposition at Newcastle from serious injury or worse.

The foreman, named Guinness, became entangled in the belting of a machine used to manufacture tin containers. The prince, who had listened to him explain the mechanism, was standing only a yard away.

He instantly grabbed the man's overalls and pulled him clear, just as he was about to be drawn into the machinery which was revolving at a high speed. Once he lost his hold but recovered it.

The king, accompanied by Queen Mary, had a remarkable reception throughout the trip from Craigwell House, Bognor, where the king had spent several months of convalescence. But it remained for the "old home town" to outdo all the others as it welcomed again its most prominent resident.

Thousands of cheering spectators, including 2,000 school children, and 1,000 Eton boys in silk hats and quaint jackets, lined the ancient thoroughfare As the royal car drove through, bags of rose petals were emptied from windows and fell in a crimson cascade about the machine.

A New Angle

The way a thing looks to you depends largely on the angle from which you look at it.

If we could get a different viewpoint on certain familiar things we would hardly recognize them.

For instance: the Welfare Council of New York City, in a report just issued, points out that the number of jobless "down-and-outers" given free shelter by the municipal lodging house has been rising steadily during the last few years of our "prosperity", and is now higher than at any time since the hard winter of 1915-16.

In 1920, for example the average daily registration at the lodging house was 69. In 1921 it rose to 251 by 1927 it had gone up to 375, last year it stood at 434, and during the first three months of this year it has been 672.

All of which suggests that this present era of mass production, stock exchange flurries and high profits may look somewhat different if viewed from the angle of New York's free lodging house.

The report does not try to fix a reason for the great increase in the number of applicants for free lodgings. It points out that there are a good many possible explanations. The number of cheap commercial lodging houses may have decreased, the increase in automobiles may have made it easier for job seekers to come to New York and social agencies may send more applicants to the municipal institution than formerly. But it adds:

"There remains the economic theory that fewer and fewer men are required in manufacturing, owing to the great increase in industrial efficiency, and more and more men become destitute in the process of readjustment before they can be absorbed into other occupations."

To those of us who have jobs, comfortable homes, money in the bank the present era looks very fine. We can buy more things than we ever before dreamed of possessing and the taste of prosperity is so all-pervading that we feel rich even if we are not. We tell ourselves that this is a great age in which to live—and, from our angle, it undoubtedly is.

But how about the men who people New York's free lodging house—672 of them every night this year? Mass production and prosperity have meant only misery and hardship to them. From their point of view the year 1929 must look terribly out of joint.

And, from their point of view, it is. Never think that our new industrial era hasn't brought some unpleasant problems along with it. Whenever you begin to feel too optimistic about it, remember that it would look considerably different if viewed with the eyes of the man whose job it has destroyed.

Public Office

The University of Southern California this summer will hold a special course in public service for the benefit of city, state and county public officials.

This course will undertake to show the duties, powers and responsibilities of public officials, and is designed to put more efficiency into the work rendered by the holders of public office.

It's a step in the right direction, undoubtedly. Heaven knows there is hardly a municipal, county or state government in the country that couldn't stand more efficiency and snap. But, unfortunately, the road is a long one. So long as the majority of politicians look on public office as an opportunity of r personal gain or personal aggrandizement, instead of an opportunity for public service, efficiency in government will continue to be a rare quality.

New York

A citizens' committee in New York formed for the purpose of drying up the metropolis, issues a statement charging that the speakeasies of New York pay at least $20,000,000 a year for protection.

The city, they add, holds at least 32,000 such places.

If the graft payments cited by the committee are anywhere near correct, it is not hard to see why New York remains so wet. Twenty million dollars will grease a lot of palms.

Apparently, before the country can be made dry, some way will have to be discovered of combating wholesale bribery.

THE PLAINSMAN Says

That Girl on Broadway says when a woman goes into a store now and asks for powder the logical question is 'Face, baking or gun?

The problem of summer school is doubtless being discussed in numerous homes of Lubbock at this particular time and The Plainsman has his own ideas about summer school—as about everything else. They may not be particularly good, yet at the same time they may throw some light upon the subject for some parents of the city.

Elementary and high school summer sessions, as this writer sses them, are good for three things. They are good for students who have failed in certain subjects during the regular terms and who wish to retrieve their lost credits and keep abreast of their class. For youngsters who will graduate from grade or high school at mid-term—shortly after Christmas—the summer session also offers an opportunity for catching up. The third way in which the summer sessions fill a laudable purpose is in permitting children to go over subjects in which they were promoted but in which they are in need of a better foundation.

Summer sessions should not be used as a means of hurrying a child through school unless that child, for some reason or another, is not as far along for his age as he should be. If he entered school late, or if he moved here from some locality whose schools are not on a par with these here and he was forced back a period, then 'catching up' through summer study may be permissable. To use the plan to rush a youngster through elementary education, however, is to misuse them as the years to come will tell.

Ambition on the part of a child to finish school at an early age is commendable but should not be fostered. Parents should remember that, after all, a child may be thrust on the world at too tender an age and the time 'made up' during the educatinal period may be lost entirely while the individual flounders about attempting to orient himself in the work-a-day world.

To rush a child through school is to do the child an injustice in those years during which school and the companionship of other youngsters is essential to the moulding of brain and character. Boys and girls who are put through school too hurriedly are robbed of a part of life—are sometimes too naive by the side of their more mature classmates and are forced from school activities which often react to an individual's benefit in the after days of life.

Consider these various phases of the summer school problem in your decision on whether or not to enroll the kiddies in the torrid term this year. Remember that an injustice may be done unintentionally—one which may not show up until the years to come.

That Man on Avenue Q says people who won't stop at anything have no business driving automobiles.

TODAY'S POEM

Oh I'd love to be a farmer
And with the farmers stand,
While cries of "Let's relieve him"
Go echoing through the land!

But from another angle
This 'relief' stuff doesn't go
For what they relieve farmers from
Is generally their dough!

Un-making one's mind is very often as important to a person's well being as is making it up in the first place.

Those of us who are disposed to cry when adversity frowns—who delight in weeping about mere sand storms and a few hours lack of rain—might get a lesson from 'Tad' Dorgan, famous New York newspaper illustrator who died just the other day. The journalistic '30' was written for Tad after he had done his work for the New York Evening Journal every day for nine years—hopelessly bedridden. What makes his record all the more remarkable is that Tad's task was to inject humor, through drawings, into the Journals sport pages.

For nine long years, in the bedroom of his suburban home he drew funny pictures for his paper's sports section—pictures drawn from words in the columns of his own and other papers. For nine years he made sports history from a bed of an invalid. "Polooka," "ham-and-egger" "the cauliflower industry" and many other phrases now accepted as every day sport jargon were coined by Tad Dorgan, forced recluse, and New Yorkers grinned daily at the funny pictures which he drew. Those of us who are blessed with health should be ashamed when we quit dead cold in the face of insignificant trouble. Remember Tad Dorgan the next time youre called upon to 'take one on the chin and you'll grin as you take it standing up.

It was nine years ago that specialists barred Tad from the major sporting events which had been for years his recreation as well as his basis for making a living. Heart disease, they told him, would prove fatal if he became too excited. He must go to bed. He did go to bed but he didn't stop his work.

The Tariff Bill Tosses Some Assorted Vegetables And Fruits On Floor Of House And Creates Mystery Thereby

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Congress, acting in its wisdom in special session, is now worrying about tomatoes, grapefruit, lemons, apples, lettuce, asparagus, kohlrabi, turnips avocados, olives, peppers, strawberries and other miscellaneous fruits and vegetables.

The special session was called to enact farm relief and to change the tariff, principally with a view to farm relief. Fruits and vegetables are mixed up in all of that. Inasmuch as nearly everyone eats fruits or vegetables or both, this ought to be a very interesting story, but don't be too sure.

Fruits and vegetables are grown in profusion in Mr. Hoover's home state of California and elsewhere. The Hawley-Smoot tariff bill provides higher duties on imported cherries, grapefruit, peanuts, beans, onions, mushrooms, almonds, tomatoes, pineapples, ripe olives, turnips, rutabagas and other items but there are no changes in rates on various others, including lemons, potatoes, oranges, raisins, peaches and peas.

Tossed on the Floor

Thus were fruits and vegetables thrown onto the floor of the house.

In the senate the same thing had already been done by Senator Copeland of New York, who introduced an amendment to the farm relief bill which would exempt fruits and vegetables from the relief provisions. The three-billion dollar fruit and vegetable industry has become greatly excited over this resolution and because fruits and vegetables are raised in so many states senators have been bombarded by telegrams concerning the resolution from nearly everywhere.

Both houses of the California legislature have protested, at the instance of the large California co-operatives.

But the fruit and vegetable interests appear to be seriously divided over the question whether or not they want to share in the benefits of the farm relief bill—divided in fact, over the question whether their inclusion under the bill's provisions would do the farmer more harm or good.

Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi has a half dozen telegrams from growers and growers' associations in his state, demanding full and equal privileges with other crops. The National Horticultural Council has lodged protest with various senators at the proposed elimination, asserting that the fruit and vegetable industries are in a bad way.

Numerous growers of North Carolina have similarly wired Senators Simmons and Overman and the chairman of the Ohio Farm Bureau has wired Senator Fess urging defeat of the amendment. A dozen citrus-fruit organizations and chamber of commerce in Florida have protested to Senator Fletcher.

On the other hand the American Fruit Growers, Inc., has wired Senator Jones from Yakima, Wash., urging exclusion of perishables on the ground that their marketing is a highly organized and efficiently functioning industry which would be seriously disturbbed if the farm bill were applied to it. Senator Glass of Virginia has been hearing from apple growers and peach growers, asking that their fruits be excluded from the bill. And the West Virginia Horticultural Association and several others are urging Senator Hatfield to vote for the amendment.

Part of the difference of opinion may be explained by the charge of the National Horticultural Association that the amendment is "fostered by dealer and shipper organizations." But opinion among the fruit and vegetable growers appears to be divided, nevertheless.

All of which does not affect the average farmer who, the Department of Agriculture says, has suffered an average loss of $3.34 since 1921 on every tillable acre devoted to raising corn, wheat, cotton, oats, and hay. The administration relief measure, if passed without the debenture plan, will be admittedly only experimental. There is an annual large surplus in the six so-called basic crops — wheat, corn, hogs, cotton, rice and tobacco—so the tariff won't help raisers of those crops, as it will many fruit and vegetabble growers.

NEW YORK, May 16.—The old Belmont Hotel, which was to be delivered to the wreckers has been saved at the eleventh hour by one of those touches of sentiment typical of Manhattan.

When these tender gestures are made, they are truly fabulous and generous beyond belief. And it is this sort of intrusion upon the general ruthlessness of the city that New Yorkers so proudly point to when claiming that, after all, New York is not so hard-hearted.

It seems that for some 10 or 12 years a very rich man had provided himself with a quiet little hideaway in the hotel, wherein he could rest and escape his many business contacts and problems. While the suite was used but infrequently, the man had become so attached to it and so sentimental about it, that he was loathe to have the hotel removed.

If, he argued, the hotel perished, he would have to hunt down some new snug and quiet hiding place. And so, just as the wrecking crews were preparing to march on it, he went into conference with the hotel owners—as I get the story—and made a generous offer to back the place with fat capital if it remained in business. The wrecking deal, I am further advised, was then called off—and everything ended happily.

This man, by the way—so I am told—is none other than that same eccentric Edgar B. Davis, oil millionaire, who for more than a year put up money for "The Ladder," which was the most colossal failure in Broadway theater history. Despite the fact that the show could not make money, or even keep its losses within small range, he kept pouring in his money because the play contained a religious idea in which he was interested.

In the office of Eddie Dowling the song-and-dance man, playwright music show producer and more recently, talking picture star, there is a tiny bar at which, I am told, scores of Broadway successes were discussed and negotiated.

The batting average of this office is higher than any other spot in the bright lights belt. Before Eddie took it over, it was the property of Cohan and Harris and all the hit merchants sooner or later were introduced to the pantry-like bar. For this was in pre-prohibition days.

Such plays as "The Miracle Man," "Broadway Jones" and "Little Johnny Jones" were born there.

On the last day before the Waldorf was turned over to the auctioneers, one of the nation's most notorious 'check bouncers" made one last effort to pass a bit of "rubber paper" on the historic inn.

The fellow, who had a string of aliases that would fill a page of ordinary paper, appeared under the name of "Dr. Brooks," and told a sentimental story of having occupied a room at the hotel many years ago. As a matter of fact, the bad check artist had a certain pride of craft. He believed that he could put his "paper" on any hotel wall in the country. Twice before he had tried at this resort and had been unsuccessful. He did not like to see the place close without one single check slipped over on it. And he thought that, in the confusion of closing, he might be successful.

Instead, it proved his undoing. That is, he was apprehended.

At any rate he seems to have had some sporting instinct.

By the way, Broadway calls last year's straw hats "renovated repeaters." And I'm told that hay beanies will not be considered tony this season.

Two Danish students who came over to find a typical American confess that their search in New York has been fruitless. Someone should have told them they're just as apt to find him in Denmark as in New York.

John Gilbert and Ina Claire were married the other day after a steady courtship of a month. They probably felt that matrimony is something you shouldn't be in too much of a hurry about.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters M.D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

AGE AND REDUCING

"I have decided to try to count my calories. I am 5 feet 1 1-2 inches tall and weigh 160 pounds, so am 20 to 25 pounds overweight. I have heard, however, that a person over 40 really cannot reduce on account of the thyroid gland disturbance after this age. I would therefore like your advice, and I ask you please to not publish this letter in the paper, but to answer me personally. MRS. T."

As I cannot answer your letter personally, I am disregarding your request, Mrs. T., first, because I want to disabuse others of the notion that there is any age limit to reducing, or that there is a glandular cause of obesity, and second I realize that you would like to have an answer and there is no valid reason why it shouldn't be published, as I never use the names of correspondents.

The best way I can answer you is to run the following letter which came in the same mail with yours.

" Dr. Lulu: I want to thank you for your book, Diet and Health. I am past 60, and nursed an invalid husband for five years, so I became fat from sitting indoors and (I see now) too much indulgence in calories. I am only 5 feet 3 inches tall, and last July weighed 185 pounds, and panted and blew when I went upstairs until I was ashamed. I followed your instructions, and in six months my weight went down to 156 pounds, and I ceased blowing. I can walk or climb stairs as well as ever. My sisters want me to keep this weight, but I think 150 will be better.

"My niece, who is 5 feet 5 inches tall, and never had weighed over 100 pounds, has tried your advice for gaining, and she now weighs 131, according to the 'Y' scales, and is delighted. MRS. N."

You see, Mrs. T., Mrs. N. is considerably older than 40, for she is over 60. And we have had thousands of letters from both men and women over 40 who have reduced (some even over 70) and profitably, too.

According to the rule of 110 pounds for 5 feet in height (in stocking feet) and 5 1-2 pounds for each inch over that, you are around 40 to 45 pounds overweight, instead of 25. Better get after it.

No, the distrubance of the thyroid gland, or any other gland, does not cause obesity. Solely overeating for the needs does that little job. However, obesity will cause a disturbance of the glands, no doubt about that!

I want to thank you Mrs. N, for your letter. It makes me happy to think that the little book, published 11 years ago, is still carrying on.

I think you could, with profit, very gradually get down to around 130, which is nearer normal weight for your height.

The condensed instructions we give out in our pamphlet for the newspaper readers are similar to those in my book. The pamphlet can be obtained by following column rules.

Mrs. M.—The meibomian glands are oil glands in the upper lids. If an outlet of one becomes stopped, the contents accumulate, and is known as a meibomian cyst.

Your doctor probably gave you 1 or 1-2 per cent yellow oxide of mercury, which is a good ointment for inflamed lids. If the swelling does not subside, a slight operation—slitting the mucous membrane (on the inner side of the lid) and expressing the contents—can be done easily. It is not a dangerous operation in any way, and can be done without any anesthetic, at your doctor's office. These cysts do not disappear, usually unless they are removed surgically.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose, nor give personal adterest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and 2 cents in coin for each article, to cover cost of printing and handling. For the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, 10 cents in coin, with fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, must be enclosed. Address Dr. Peters, in care of this paper.

UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM VIEWED AS ENDANGERING ECONOMIC SYSTEM

BY DANIEL WILLARD, President, Baltimore & Ohio Railroad

(Daniel Willard was born at N. Hartland, Vt., Jan. 28, 1861. He studied at Massachusetts Agricultural college for a year, and holds honorary degrees from four universities. He entered the railway service in 1879 and served in various capacities on different roads until 1899. In that year he was made assistant to the general manager of the Biltimore & Ohio railroad. He has been president of the road since 1910. He is a director of several other railroads and public utilities. Since 1914 he has been president of the board of trustees of Johns Hopkins university. During the World war he served in the engineering service of the United States army. His home is in Baltimore.)

Owen D. Young, in a very thoughtful and interesting address, declared that the question of unemployment is the greatest economic blot upon our capitalistic system.

I agree with Mr. Young, and I will add that in my opinion he might also have said that the unemployment problem contains within itself a very potential danger to the enduring stability of our economic system.

I do not know what the ultimate answer to the problem is, but I do know of certain things that can be done that would in themselves be helpful.

First in importance, there should be definite and sympathetic realization on the part of society as a whole, that if society is to receive the benefits of our modern industrial system—and they are very great—then society must also bear the responsibilities that are inseparable from those advantages.

Second. We should do all that properly may be done to make life on the farm more attractive and more satisfying, to the end that a larger percentage of our people may wish to avail themselves of the advantages and opportunities enjoyed by the independent and prosperous farmer who lives on and cultivates his own soil.

Third. The government, state or federal—perhaps both—should collect, tabulate and publish currently reliable information concerning the number of unemployed and the cause of such unemployment.

Fourth. Efforts to develop our foreign trade and in that way increase the consumptive demand for our products abroad should be encouraged.

Fifth. The government, state and federal, should plan and execute its public works program in such a manner as to form a reserve against unemployment in times of depression.

Sixth. Private industry should recognize the responsibility which properly rests upon it to stabilize employment within itself.

SENATE INITIATION OF FARM AID PROVISION BRINGS CONTROVERSY

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Developments in the threatened controversy between the snate and house ovr th right of th formr to initiate export debenture legislation in its farm relief bill provided the overshadowing topic of interest on capito hill today despite the fact that two other important administration proposals were formally before congress for discussion.

The differences between the two chambers on the debenture question was made a definite issue with the passage of the senate bill, 54 to 33, late yesterday. It was ordered sent to the house today in the face of numerous indications that administration leaders there would move to have it voted unacceptable.

The general debate on the tariff bill remained the regular order of business in the house, meanwhile, but the senate had bfore it a motion to give the combined measure providing for the 1930 census and for reapportionment o fthe house membership on the basis of that enumeration the privileged status of unfinished business.

In the absence of Chairman Jones of the commerce committee, Senator Johnson, republican, California, has taken charge of the bill but no attempt at the close of the session yesterday to have it made the unfinished business was temporarily forestalled.

Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, one of those who blocked action at the last session on the reapportionment measure, objected to an immediate vote making the bill the order of business. Adjournment was taken with the understanding, however, that the bill would be called up today.

RUSSIA WINNING RELIGIOUS FIGHT

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW, May 16—Constitutional restrictions on religion in Soviet Russia probably soon will be removed and the country made free for all religious practice. The move, however, will be not so much that the country may gain benefits religions offer as that the Communists feel better when they are brought into the open.

Removal of the restrictions will be effected by means of an amendment to the Soviet constitution which Alexei Rykoff, chairman of the council of people's commissars, told the All-Russian congress of Soviets yesterday soon would be proposed to them.

Decrees fighting religion have proved to bring harm as well as benefit, M. Rykoff commented, explaining the congress would be called upon to ratify an amendment providing for separation of church and state, and church and schools, an granting all citizens the right of religious practice, as well as of anti-religious propaganda.

From his speech it was to be distinctly inferred the Soviet was not abandoning its attempts to discredit religion but was seeking simply to proceed along different lines, by, in effect, removing the stimulus of persecution.

Hair and Its Care

HEALTH and temperament have a great deal to do with the condition of your hair, and if it has become thin, scraggly, dry or oily, you should take stock of both your physical and mental state, for worry and ill health will put the kind of crimp in your hair that a hot iron does—will burn it off.

But even healthy hair and scalps are as individual as complexions and need individual study. A blond's hair, for instance, to be kept light and fluffy should be given a shampoo once or twice a week, and every second shampoo should be preceded by an oil massage to replace the natural oil that will be diminished by the frequent shampooing. The hair should be waved with the fingers or combs rather than a hot iron, and it should be moistened with a curling lotion rather than water to prevent its getting dry and hay-like.

A BRUNET'S hair, on the other hand, may go a month without a water shampoo, if she cleanses it with lotions and brushing. Dark hair needs a certain amount of oil for a perfect coiffure, but a sticky blond head is a miserable sight, while discolored hair is an abomination.

The scalp under white hair should show spotlessly clean and healthy and each hair should stand alone, a silver thread. As white hair is apt to be lacking in natural oil, it should have a water shampoo, preceded by an oil shampoo every fortnight, with dry shampoos used at intervals to keep it fluffy.

Some white-haired women use a little bluing in the water, others use lemon juice, while the beauty parlors have a special preparation to make white hair a uniform color.

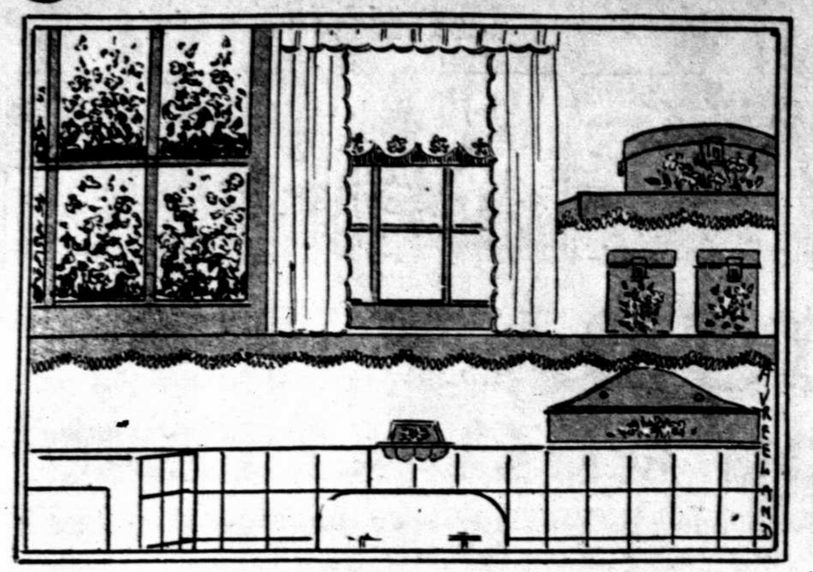

CLEANLINESS, nourishing, massage and brushing are the things that will keep hair healthy. Brush in the morning to start circulation. Brush at night to rid the hair of dust. To brush the hair properly stand before an open window. Lean the head down so that the air may get to the scalp as you brush. Divide the hair into strands, and holding a strand in the left hand, brush from the scalp to the end of the hair with the right hand, giving a dozen even strokes to each strand.

To nourish the scalp, use the following lotion as a massage twice a week: Five grains quinine sulphate, three-quarters of a teaspoon of flowers of sulphur, one ounce each of white vaseline and lanolin. Mix all these ingredients with witch hazel.

There are, on the market, a thousand and one soaps and shampoos for washing the hair and as many more concoctions for stimulating the growth of hair.

Some of these products are good, others are worse than worthless. You can't go wrong on castile soap for washing, or on pure olive oil for massaging.

Summer Touches Grace the Kitchen

In a kitchenet done in rose, lavender and gray . . . the glass in the closet doors and the food tins bloomed with a design of flowers.
(Sketches courtesy of The Kitchen Decorators, New York)

By ALIDA VREELAND

WITH plenty of paint and patience, miracles can be worked in kitchens. The glories of the outdoors can be magically brought within four walls, however limited they may be, and the room otherwise transformed so that women need no longer feel the monotony of kitchen duties so keenly.

Other advantages outside of the personal feelings of the worker are also noticeable when the kitchen has been given as much thought as other rooms from the artistic standpoint.

For instance, there are numerous apartments and small houses where the kitchen is unfortunately more open to inspection than a person likes to have it.

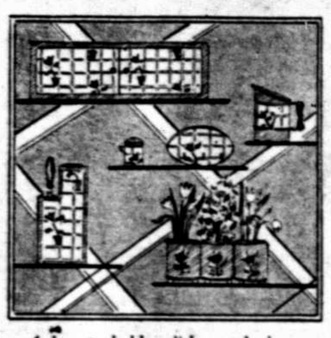

When such is the case the homemaker can do much to relieve her embarrassment by making the kitchen as much of a piece de resistance in her interior plans as she has her other rooms.

THEN, too, if your kitchen has fallen under the intensive color spell which has been raging for some time and you have given way to brilliant reds and oranges, in curtains and in paint, it would perhaps be wise to change the scene from these overheated hues to the more delicate and cooling tones suggestive of spring and summer.

Miss Jeanne de Raay, who makes a business of solving unhappy kitchen and kitchenet problems, has done some unique and delightful things in this field. In addition to her own ideas on the subject, she says those of her customers have often inspired her to work out many unusual decorative details.

One of her apartment kitchenets is illustrated in the large sketch, and is an example of the charm of rose, lavender and gray in the kitchen. This combination of colors is seldom chosen for a kitchen, yet it is most satisfying.

The first clever touch is noted in the closet doors. Here each pane of glass has been painted to simulate window boxes with pink and lavender asters growing in profusion, their softly toned green leaves crowding thickly at the base of each pane. This happy scheme of decoration was hit upon after the owner found she could not curtain these doors to hide the supplies behind them, because they were sliding doors.

A box to hold polishes and cleansers, flour sieve, pot handle rack, flour shaker, bread board and knife, and flower pots . . . all pleasingly decorative.

THIS same color scheme was carried to every other detail in the kitchen. The walls were kept in a delicate cream. The tile, of course, was white, and the woodwork was painted a warm gray. On the shelves a scalloped rose washable fabric was used, and edged with rose and gray rick-rack braid.

For the curtains a waterproof chintz in rose was bound in gray. Even the cream color window shade had a green border painted on it with pink asters appearing in each scallop. This is a favorite shade treatment of Miss de Raay and is always worked out in harmony with the color and designs chosen for an interior.

All other accessories in the kitchen were covered in the gray paint, nothing escaping, not even the soap dish. And where there was gray paint, the asters were also in evidence, no matter how small the surface.

Huge ones climbed up the front of the clothes hamper, others graced the front of the step-on refuse can. Bread and cake boxes, sugar and flour tins, all bloomed with the floral motif.

One charming kitchen was developed in yellow and cornflower blue. Bunches of these gay little flowers appeared on all the doors and accessories and a blue scalloped border was hemstitched to the yellow glazed chintz curtains.

A variety of curtains can be chosen for kitchen service. Miss de Raay in some cases selects theatrical gauze and even organdie, both of which fabrics she claims stand up wonderfully against the moisture and steam of the kitchen. Ways of hanging are largely governed by individual fancy.

IN SOME of the kitchens of large suburban houses, ruffled organdies in yellow and tangerine shades are crossed at the tops and tied at the sides. These allow plenty of light and air and their color is most enlivening. Theatrical gauzes as well as dotted nets are often divided, one hanging on the upper window, another on the lower, permitting plenty of light in the top, but screening the kitchen from view.

Because it is so often difficult to buy ready-painted cereal and spice jars in the matching colors, this decorator selected glass jars, large and small, and bottles for vinegar and oil. These are given a background of paint in the wanted color and otherwise decorated to suit customers.

TO lessen labor and to add beauty and convenience, Miss de Raay adds many charming fixtures to kitchen equipment. In the large sketch the knife box screwed to the wall is very handy and out of the way. In the small sketch of accessories, a box to keep the constantly used cleaners and polishes is shown. Below is a small oval rack for pot handles. A compact arrangement for breadboard and knife appears in the lower left corner of the sketch. The knife slips into a groove out of the way and out of danger and the bread is cut on the undecorated side.

If flower pots are to harmonize with the rest of the kitchen, three tin cans may be painted and mounted on metal balls. The three cans shown are green with little floral motifs and are fastened together.

All the other articles, including the flour sieve and shaker, are treated to another form of decoration. This is a kind of modernistic wallpaper pasted on the article, which is painted green, and the whole given a waterproof glaze.

Kitchens that are larger than the one illustrated and have many unattractive cupboard doors take on a new aspect when borders of colored paint and bouquets of flowers on the pannels relieve the monotonous plainness of these doors

The Bunk Of Beauty

By ALLENE SUMNER

WOMEN in droves and flocks milled about the much-advertised Monsieur Antoine especially imported from Paree to tell American women just which shade of powder best became each and every one of them.

In his black satin blouse, with a deft touch of rouge on his cheeks, and his oiled black hair most modishly cut, he certainly was a good intimation of Paree, right here in our town's leading department store.

Before Antoine of the black satin blouse were about six little enameled jars of powder—flesh and peach and opal and gray and blue and white. Antoine, with all the reverence of a great master, would stir a dab from this jar and a dab from that, watching carefully the face of the woman who seriously approached him for aid on the great and baffling question of the best color for her own particular skin.

With a hundred women clamoring about him, waiting their turn, and with but six jars of different colored powder before him, it was evident that if Monsieur lived up to the advertisement of his prowess and mixed "an absolutely individual shade" for every woman who appeared before him, he would need the facility of a juggler keeping a dozen oranges going in the air at once

THERE was much food for thought in the silly, almost pathetic little scene. Here were dozens of women lured forth by the promise that "Monsieur Antoine of Paris" would scrutinize and survey them as individuals so important that he must carefully concoct for each of them an individual powder that would bring out all their latent charms.

You felt that these milling women of a hundred stations in life were there for much the same reasons that women go to doctors, especially neurologists, why they write to various magazine and newspaper departments to ask how their handwriting is, what their dreams mean, what colors they should wear, how to dress their hair, and most anything which will focus someone's attention upon them as worth a moment's consideration.

Men do not seem to have this need of individual importance which women have. Perhaps it's because their lives are bigger and fuller; one would almost think that modern women of this busy world would, too, be too busy for "the bunk" of a Monsieur Antoine.

Still, most of them were older women—women with hands not trained to be full, nor minds, either.

Making Your Children Happy

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

FOUR-YEAR-OLD Georgie's mother buttoned him into his coat, for the spring morning was cool, and bumped his tricycle down the steps to the sidewalk.

Georgie had more toys than any child on Grant street, better clothes and more of them, and a room to himself with Mother Goose wallpaper and pink furniture with jumping rabbits, comical birds, and other merry amusing things all over it. That room of Georgie's was some room, and all the little Grant streetites made a sort of pink-rabbit-jumping halo around Georgie's blond head whenever he hove in sight with his expensive coat on his back and his tricycle under him.

That morning, or rather the night before, Lonny Swane, pre-school child and neighborhood terror, had connected two ideas. His mother had been at the piano singing a cycle of old nursery songs with new tunes to his little sister Betty. There was one that went:

Georgie Porgie, pudding and pie,
Kissed the girls and made them cry.
When the girls came out to play
Georgie Porgie ran away.

That was one idea!

The other idea was the little boy who had too many things, the boy who only stared and turned around and rode away when you asked him for a ride.

AS Georgie trundled his red steed with the white tires down the block this fine morning, five figures sitting on some steps stood up suddenly and began to sing the little verse right lustily.

Poor Georgie turned and fled, fairly dropped off his wheel and clambered up the steps into his house. "They called me Georgie Porgie and said I kissed the girls. They made fun of me," he wailed.

"Oh, mercy on us!" laughed his mother. "You mustn't be a cry baby! Shame on you! They're only in fun. Go on out again now. Don't mind them."

"No-o-o! I don't want to. I-I don't like those boys to make fun of me. They hissed at me, too!"

"Pooh! For shame! Out you go! No, don't hang on me that way. Why, those boys would give anything to have a nice tricycle like yours. Just go and ride right on past. That's the way to do."

SHE had to fairly carry him out and set his shamed and miserable little body on his wheel again. He rode quickly away in the opposite direction, but she soon heard a swelling chorus as it passed the house: "Georgie Porgie, puddin' 'n' pie!"

She smiled. "They're only jealous," she said with satisfaction as she sewed the last button on a new suit for her son.

All of which goes to show that this adoring mother "knew not what she did."

Not all the pink bedrooms, nor all the world's toys, nor clothes, could undo the harm that that cruel ridicule did to Georgie on that fine spring morning—and other mornings, for of course the teasing kept up and the whole neighborhood fell in line.

A little less luxury and a little more understanding would have been a kinder thing in Georgie's case. Material things do not make children happy. The things that make little children really happy cannot be bought with money.

Wise parents do not let their children get snobbish and "snooty" over material things such as coats and tricycles and prettily equipped bedrooms. They teach them tolerance and courage and friendliness—virtues that every child must have to get along with his fellows and be happy.

A Cat That Never Goes Out

By AMELIA LEAVITT HILL

YOU hear a good deal of floor cushions today, but a novelty in that direction is the cat cushion, who has not as yet earned the wide appreciation which her attractions should give her. Nor is her fashioning so difficult that it affords a reason why her presence should be lacking in any home where floor cushions, or even footstools, play a part.

To make Miss Kitty's body take a piece of black velvet, satin or sateen about 16 inches long by 12 inches wide, cut in the shape of an oval. Gather this about the edge and then sew it firmly to another oval six inches smaller, leaving a small opening through which filling may be inserted and making the gathers lie as flat as possible.

Of course the sewing should be done on the wrong side and the work turned right side out when finished. And equally, of course, the object in using pieces of different size is to arrange the seam to come under the body of the cat where it cannot be seen.

Next fill the cushion with cotton batting, stuffing it so tight that the cushion will be round and plump as the body of any self-respecting cat should be. When this is done the opening is sewn up.

FOR the head take a round piece of the material of which the body is composed, about eight inches in diameter. If this proves too large for the body it may readily be made smaller by working farther from the edge of the material, but much will be found to depend upon the exact measurements employed and the amount of stuffing used.

Baste this around the edge with a heavy thread and draw it up, filling the bag thus made with cotton until it is as solid as the body. When this is done draw the thread tight and fasten.

Embroider eyes, nose and whiskers on the head and sew to the top two V-shaped bits of the material to serve as ears. The head is then sewn firmly to the body in the proper place, the point of juncture being hidden by a red ribbon tied about the neck and finished with a large bow.

EMBROIDER paws where they would naturally come upon the body, and make a tail of a tapering bit of cloth about six inches long tightly packed with filling. This is curved naturally about Pussy's body, but should be sewn its entire length, not merely tacked, for otherwise it will be found to have an exasperating way of coming untacked at unexpected moments and forming pitfalls for the feet of the unwary.

If you have a real cat beside your fire she will serve very usefully as a model in the placing of paws and tail, while, if you wish to use Miss Pussy as a doorstop, she will accomplish this useful mission to perfection if a brick (carefully wrapped in cotton to conceal its rigid outline) be hidden in her plump body.

Velvet, satin and sateen are not, of course, the only materials suitable for this kitty-cushion Nor is black the only color appropriate for th article.

Felt, chintz and oilcloth could be used the hide of the feline and the color of this fabric need only be limited by the fancy. A pink kitty is as easy to make as a black one.

Made of velvet, silk or sateen, stuffed with cotton batting and embroidered, a cat cushion is an odd and useful article.

Cooking Before Baby Comes—And After

By MISSIS PHYLLIS

ISN'T there, among your acquaintances, a girl who has a particular gift for getting splendid dinners? A girl who just loved to entertain and who never appeared tired after her little dinner parties.

And then after the appearance of a baby in her home, did she apparently forget all those fine little cooking tricks that she used to know? And did she have company very seldom and when she did, was she satisfied with commonplace parties and commonplace menus—even "store stuff" for a general diet?

Because if she did she was merely like about four out of five promising young brides. After they become mothers they are not half so promising—or so the people who use to get her invitations think.

Why is that so? Busier? Of course she's busier. But if all those months before the baby came and while she was getting up such glorious dinners, she didn't learn to cook quickly and bake deftly, her time was ill spent. Of course bread is hard to bake the first time it's done. But if she used to make it before the advent of the baby, it ought not to be too difficult to set it and knead it and shape it in three jiffies between feeding the baby, putting his washing into the washer and straightening up his little bed.

IT would really pay her to take the pains to do this because it would break down the prejudice that so many perfectly nice people have against babies in general. They get tired of listening to the children as excuses for not doing happy things that used to be done.

Let's look at two different wives. We'll call one Jude and the other we'll call Myra. Jude has three children ranging in age from three to seven. She has never had a great deal of money, but has been determinedly cheerful with what she has. She cuts out all new recipes that she finds and tries them.

She likes to entertain. And when she does entertain, her guests get a feast for the eye as well as one for the tummy.

She had a little bridge luncheon one day—just three guests who came to the table to see before them a platter of split baked potatoes oozing with yellow butter and sprinkled with red paprika.

There was another large platter. In the center was a salmon loaf baked in a star mould. Between the points of the star were vegetables—cauliflower, peas and candied carrots. There were stuffed tomatoes around the edge.

She served the luncheon at two o'clock so that she could get the baby fed and abed before the guests arrived. And for dessert she had a most delicious orange Washington whipped cream pie.

MANY a woman who has no children to trouble her would hesitate to undertake that luncheon. But Jude has sense. She had learned to cook before the first baby came and she had learned to make the process an easy and natural one.

Myra is a splendid cook, too. She knows how to put together a dinner that an Epicurean would remember. She has a baby—an uncommonly decent child it is, too. You would almost believe that Myra would have about as much time to "fuss" for company as she had before—since fussing is not new to her and she cooks so well that she doesn't have to worry about how things are going to turn out.

She had a dinner the other evening. She served on plates from the kitchen. There was cream of corn soup. Then on the dinner plate came fried pork tenderloin, mashed potatoes, buttered string beans. There were bakery rolls. The dessert was a plice of baker's sponge cake on top of which was a slice of ice cream, covered by another slice of the sponge cake and topped with manufactured chocolate sauce.

It was a good dinner for an employed woman to get if she couldn't get home more than an hour before meal time. But to those who knew Myra before the coming of the baby it was just another meal.

THERE are, of course, many, many things that a woman can't do after a baby comes into her life. She can't dash off to the country to a barn dance and she can't run out to the movies every time she feels like it.

She'll think twice before she goes to a neighbor's house to play bridge when it means that she must hire someone to stay with the baby—at a dollar or more an evening.

So it is well for the mother of a young child to cling to the things that can be done with reasonable ease.

One of the things that such a woman can do is to get a proper and enticing meal for her husband every evening. And to remember that the art of entertaining should not be lost as soon as a newcomer arrives in the establishment.

Jude has the right idea. And Myra would do well to take a few lessons from her. Children are time-demanding things at best, but they are worth all the money and trouble they cost and it is not necessary to serve comparatively tasteless "boughten" meals after they arrive on the scene.

MEASURE WEIGHTED BY AMENDMENTS SENT TO THE SENATE

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, May 16.—Scarcely resembling its original form, the Tillotson-Hubbard motor registration bill which passed the house last night, 108-4, after two days of debate was ready today to be sent to the senate.

The measure as finally approved is top heavy with amendments, one of which was hailed last night as a certainty that the bill would meet with a veto in the governor's office if not removed either by the senate or in a conference between the two houses. Rep. W. E. Pope, Corpus Christi, was successful in inserting into the bill a provision that state funds for road construction could not be expended except through agreement of county commissioners courts.

This clause, stubbornly contested by authors of the bill, will have the same effect as a measure by Rep. Paul Finn, Sunset, which passed both the house and senate only to be disapproved by Governor Moody. The Finn bill stipulated that the highway department could not reroute roads passing through towns of more than 200 population without the consent of the commissioners' court.

"We've killed the registration bill, so let's adjourn," Rep. Harold Kayton, San Antonio, asserted after the membership had balloted 62 to 44, to sustain Pope's amendment.

Hope For Elimination

Rep. Leonard Tillotson, Sealy, said he hoped the objectionable feature might be eliminated when the measure comes before the senate-house committee to adjust what differences arise on the bill.

Pope was halted in a second amendment which would not allow the highway department to route a highway on any designation other than that approved by counties at a bond election through a ruling from Speaker Barron that the proposed change could not apply to a revenue raising bill.

As the financing plan finally was approved by the house, license fees on privately-owned cars are reduced 35 per cent, buses ar increased 5 per cent, and fees on small and medium sized trucks remain the same. There is a small increase in registrations for large trucks. All of the funds up to $75,000 are retained by counties. One half of the remaining revenue on passenger cars is kept by counties to a maximum of $255,000 for lateral road construction.

A clear skin is irresistible

. . in fact, popularity depends upon it . .

THAT priceless treasure—a clear, flawless, lovely skin—charms, with admiration, the hearts of men.

First impressions cannot be good without a clear skin—first impressions are quickly made and are not soon forgotten. Old friends may excuse pimples and secretly sympathize but new acquaintances may not be so charitable. Skin blemishes are not inviting. Neither can they be covered up. They embarrass. Hold people back. Steal away joy and happiness.

A lovely—clear skin—is within the reach of all. To those who have lost it, hope is offered. You, too, may have a beautiful skin, rose-petal in texture, pretty as a picture and without a single pimple.

LABORATORY DIAMONDS ARE GOAL OF KANSAS CHEMIST; TELLS PROCESSES

(By Associated Press)

McPHERSON, Kas., May 16.—A Kansas chemist seeks a laboratory method by which synthetic diamonds may be made large enough for commercial use.

Already several artificial stones have been produced by Dr. J. Willard Hershey, head of the McPherson college department of chemistry. He says that one of them, one millimeter in length, is four times larger than any other on record.

Various combinations of iron filings, and sugar have been used by Dr. Hershey in his six years of research. Now he believes only technical difficulties prevent commercial production of synthetic diamonds.

"Common table sugar is a source from which pure carbon may be made," he says in explanation of his process. "Almost every chemist knows that diamonds are nothing more or less than pure carbon The only difference is that one is black powder and the other a sparkling crystal.

"A mixture of iron filings and pure carbon is liquefied in an electric furnace to a minimum temperature of 2,500 degrees centigrade, ten times hotter than ordinary fire. The melted contents then are plunged into a vat of ice cold salt water.

"Diamonds form in the center of the mass. Some experiments have required several months to extract the diamonds from their solid iron bed."

Besides liquid iron, other solvents for the carbon were used. No contrasting results were shown when Dr. Hershey used nickel steel with a high coefficient of contraction, manganese steel or extremely hard meteoric iron.

More than twice as much iron as carbon was found the most effective combination. Frequently the furnace's current was varied by different amperage and voltage.

So far as Dr. Hershey knows, his artificial diamonds are the only ones now being made, and the only genuine ones ever made in this country.

Necessary equipment for the experiments, including a special iron furnace, has mounted his laboratory expense to nearly $500, not counting the time spent by himself and his assistants.

Electric Refrigeration Department,
General Electric Company,
Hanna Building,
Cleveland, Ohio.

Gentlemen:

I have your letter asking whether I have found that dust collects on the top of the general Electric Refrigerator which you installed here in our Cooking School a year ago.

The thin vertical finns and the circular coils seem to collect very little dust. Even on the top of the little rounded dome the amount of dust which settles is negligible. About once a week the amount of a dust-cloth over this surface—and that is as often as is necessary. A brush easily removes any dust from the coil.

I can truthfully say that in my experience I have never come across a refrigerator which is as sanitary as the General Electric. I suppose the fact that all the machinery is in one hermetically sealed casing accounts for that. There is no oil anywhere to catch dust, no crevices where it can linger, no fan to suck it into the mechanism.

That people do not seem to realize that there is a constant current of warm air, caused by the compression of the refrigerant inside the casing, rising from this top unit. This warm air current is powerful enough to keep a small pin-wheel revolving and, like the air from a radiator, it drives the dust away from the unit and prevents it from settling.

I am glad to tell you of my personal experience with the General Electric Refrigerator, particularly because I, too, was once afraid that this top unit, however perfect it might be from a design standpoint, might prove to be somewhat unsanitary. My fears, however, were not warranted. The General Electric engineers have demonstrated that they knew more than I did about building a very fine refrigerator and thoroughly sanitary one as well.

Sincerely yours,

(Signed)

The General Electric Refrigerator has been such a pleasure to the whole family through the winter and spring months, I don't know what we could say to express our appreciation after the hot summer.

Mr. Sherrod:

There are several good points we should like to emphasize. First: It is as nearly noisless as a piece of machinery could be. Second: It is easy to keep clean and sanitary. Third: We enjoy the frozen desserts that can be prepared in it. But most of all the temperature is so low and so even that food actually does keep perfectly, as you advertise.

Sincerely,
Mrs. C. J. Wagner.
