Party names Gandhi's Italian-born widow

Tragedy launches wife as reluctant politician

By Sanjoy Hazarika
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW DELHI, India — During Rajiv Gandhi's tenure as prime minister, many Indians clung to the belief that his wife, Sonia, wielded undue influence in the shadows of power.

"What rubbish," scoffed an aide, who said Mrs. Gandhi had no interest in politics or the glare of the limelight.

But little more than three years later, as she grieves

N.Y. Times News Service

NEW DELHI, India — Seeking a large sympathy vote, officials of the Congress Party stunned India on Wednesday by choosing the Italian-born widow of their slain leader, Rajiv Gandhi, to succeed him as party president.

Less than a day after Gandhi was assassinated by a bomb while campaigning in the south, party leaders voted unanimously to put Sonia Gandhi, 43, the widow from Turin, at the head of the party, which has dominated Indian political life since independence in 1947.

The effort to sustain the Gandhi dynasty came before many regional party officials had even arrived in the capital to mourn Gandhi, the slain scion of India's fabled political family.

There is no indication that Mrs. Gandhi, who spent the day grieving for her husband among well-wishers at the family mansion, had any hand in the decision, and she has yet to comment.

But a Congress Party spokesman, Pranab Mukherjee, said the move by the party's 18-member decision-making arm was binding. "The question of acceptance does not arise," he said.

In announcing the choice, the

Craddick rails against plan to redistrict

By John Powers
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

Craddick

Rep. Tom Craddick, a Republican from Midland, is not the least bit happy with a House redistricting plan drawn and approved by the Democratic-controlled House.

Judge for yourself:

"The plan is a very partisan, poorly done plan that is very gerrymandered, that splits communities of interests, splits and dilutes the voting strengths of communities, violates the federal Voting Rights Act in areas, and it will not pass Justice Department muster," Craddick said Wednesday.

The plan, approved along a party-line vote of 90 to 57 late Tuesday night, could give Democrats an additional four or five seats in the 150-member House.

Hale's hearing set for Friday

By David Morris
Staff Writer

Bryan Allen Hale, the former psychiatric hospital administrator accused of receiving child pornography, is slated for a hearing Friday in federal court in Midland, the U.S. Attorney's Office reported.

Glen Aaron II, Hale's attorney, said his client is expected to return to Midland today from the U.S. Medical Center for Federal Prisoners in Springfield, Mo.

U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton III ordered Hale sent to the facility last month to undergo a psychiatric evaluation to determine his competency to stand trial. Deputy U.S. Marshals escorted him to Missouri on April 20.

Aaron said Wednesday he hadn't received the results of the psychiatric evaluation and added that he didn't know when they would be available.

Federal agents arrested Hale, 47, on

First lady speaks in Lubbock for literacy

LUBBOCK (AP) — First lady Barbara Bush says if her husband can learn to use a computer, then millions of illiterate adults should realize "you're never too old to learn."

Bush

Mrs. Bush was in Lubbock Wednesday night to help raise money for the Lubbock Area Coalition for Literacy.

"The president himself is learning to use a computer," she said. "He's finally gotten beyond stage one. For two weeks he was just turning the computer on and off."

Last month, Bush had a personal computer installed in a study at the White House and is taking lessons from an expert.

Mrs. Bush added that her husband has been "just fine" while recovering from a diagnosed irregular heartbeat for which he was briefly hospitalized. She said he recently won a first round matchup in the White House horseshoes championship.

The first lady met with some Lubbock adults who are in school learning how to read and write. She also spoke to about 700 area residents at a $75-a-plate dinner to help raise funds to fight illiteracy.

"Every single adult learner in this nation deserves our deepest admiration and respect," Mrs. Bush said. "Nothing takes more courage or persistence or heart than taking a second chance on education.

"And nothing can have a greater impact on peoples' lives at home, on the job and in the community."

Mrs. Bush is honorary chairwoman of the Barbara Bush Foundation for Family Literacy, an organization whose mission is to establish literacy as a value in every family in America.

"Literacy is everybody's business," Mrs. Bush said. "George says we have to stop taking a no-fault approach to education. It's our shared responsibility."

Heavy rain, golf ball-size hail pummel East El Paso

Associated Press

Some streets remained flooded in El Paso Wednesday after heavy rains and golfball-size hail, while several funnel clouds were spawned by thunderstorms in North Texas.

A low-pressure system's movement across the state produced the funnels west of Fort Worth, but no damage or injuries were reported.

"We've had several sightings of funnel clouds," a dispatcher for the Parker County Sheriff's Office in Weatherford said Wednesday afternoon.

Police in both Weatherford and nearby Granbury said they had not confirmed any twisters. The National Weather Service reported a small twister on the Parker County line just northwest of Cresson.

"We had a Willow Park officer who reported seeing a funnel cloud out in the Aledo area," said Allen Beadel, a sheriff's deputy. "As of about 2:15 this afternoon, we have not been able to confirm

Get set for cloudy skies, 80s

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for mostly cloudy skies with a high in the mid-80s, winds from the southeast to south at 10 to 20 mph and a 40 percent chance of thunderstorms, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight will be mostly cloudy with a low in the lower 60s and a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms.

Friday is expected to be mostly cloudy with a high in the mid-80s and a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms.

After an overnight low of 66, Wednesday's high was 88 compared with the record high for that date of 107 in 1953. The record low for today's date was 47 set in 1988.

STATE

Texas weather Wednesday was again dominated by a persistent warm, tropical air mass in the Gulf. Skies were mostly cloudy and rain was scattered widely across the state.

Up to half a foot of golfball-sized hail pounded El Paso and a funnel cloud was spotted west of Fort Worth. Tides along the Gulf coast were running two feet above normal.

Deepening low pressure directed winds from a southeast to easterly direction. Speeds were generally 5 to 10 miles an hour.

Temperatures climbed into the low 80s across most of Texas. Readings ranged at midafternoon from 73 degrees at Tyler to 91 at McAllen.

The North Texas forecast was for mostly cloudy skies through Friday with scattered thunderstorms with high temperatures in the 80s and lows in the 60s and 70s.

Forecasters said South Texas would have partly cloudy days through Friday with scattered mainly afternoon and evening showers or thunderstorms. Highs in the 80s central and east and 90s west and south. Lows in the upper 60s north and 70s elsewhere.

The West Texas forecast was for mostly cloudy skies through Friday with scattered mainly afternoon and evening thunderstorms. Mostly fair in the Far West through Friday. Highs mostly in the 80s and lows in the 60s and 70s.

NATION

Rainshowers and occasional thunderstorms drenched parts of the Midwest and South on Wednesday and the temperature soared in the Northeast.

Highways were flooded in the Oklahoma Panhandle; residents of El Paso, Texas, cleaned up after a barrage of hail Tuesday night. A low-pressure system moving across Texas produced funnel clouds west of Fort Worth, the National Weather Service said. But local authorities said none had touched down and no damage or injuries was reported.

New York City's temperature record for the date was broken when the mercury soared to 89 degrees at John F. Kennedy International Airport. The old record — 86 — was set in 1959.

Showers and thunderstorms extended over Florida, southern Alabama, parts of Georgia and South Carolina.

Rain also fell in southeast Louisiana, Arkansas, southern and central Missouri, and parts of Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming and Nebraska.

Showers were scattered in north-central Utah, and rain fell in parts of the Dakotas, Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan and Kentucky.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

INDIA: 'Question of acceptance does not arise'

party leadership made it clear Mrs. Gandhi, who has been an Indian citizen for eight years, would not necessarily be named prime minister if the party won the elections.

There is ample precedent for women assuming the political mantle of men in south Asia. Indira Gandhi, the mother of Rajiv, herself eventually inherited the legacy of her father, Jawaharlal Nehru, India's first prime minister. But the notion that a European woman and a non-Hindu could have a sustained role as the leader of 850 million Indians still verged on the inconceivable.

Gandhi and the Congress Party had been battling the Hindu fundamentalist Bharatiya Janata Party, led by Lal Kishan Advani, and the National Front alliance of former Prime Minister V.P. Singh, who succeeded Gandhi in 1989. Those three parties are the leading contestants in the Indian election.

But with Gandhi's funeral planned for Friday, there were few critical opinions voiced Wednesday about the naming of Gandhi's widow. But a spokesman for Advani's party was quoted by Reuters as saying the move reflected "the utter bankruptcy of the party."

The nationwide voting, which began Monday, was to have ended Sunday. Because of the killing, the last phases of the election have been postponed until mid-June. The results of the first part will stand, but are to be kept secret until all the voting is complete.

Gandhi's torn body was flown to this solemn, shaken capital Wednesday and borne to the sprawling compound where Nehru lived and where Gandhi and his younger brother, Sanjay, grew up. The authorities said the identity of the assailant or assailants was still unknown.

PROFILE: Tragedy launches reluctant politician

for a husband killed during a bomb explosion, Mrs. Gandhi finds herself tapped to assume the leadership of her late husband's Congress Party and potentially the prime minister's position itself.

Yet the person chosen to restore the Gandhi link to Indian politics has in recent years been more concerned with restoring oil paintings. And she is not of Indian ancestry and until 1983 carried an Italian, not Indian, passport.

Like her late husband who entered politics after the plane crash death of his brother and became prime minister soon after assassins killed his mother, Sonia Gandhi is a reluctant candidate launched by violent tragedy.

"If I had that much influence over my husband," a friend recounted her as saying in 1988, "he wouldn't have been a Member of Parliament, leave alone prime minister."

She was born Sonia Maino, into a middle-class family in Turin, Italy. Her father, a construction industry exectutive, sent her to Cambridge in the 1960s, where she studied English, one of the six languages she is fluent in.

She met Rajiv while in England, and despite the misgivings of both their families, they married in New Delhi in 1968 after a three-year courtship. Her husband worked as a commerical airline pilot for India Airlines, and the two of them became part of a smart social set that favored discotheques and trendy, expensive Western-style clothes over traditonal amusements.

But over the years, Mrs. Gandhi came to adopt the traditional sari, wearing it with the free end swathed over her head, and she spoke Hindi, albeit with a Western accent.

When her mother-in-law, Indira Gandhi, became prime minister Sonia and Rajiv lived in the official residence. She traveled extensively with her mother-in-law and learned the veteran politician's seemingly intuitive grasp of situations and her knack of quickly sizing up people.

At home in the official residence, Sonia Gandhi virtually ran the household for many years as it was the site of frequent state events for the steady stream of foreign dignitaries and guests. A gracious hostess, she nonetheless jealously guarded her family's privacy and shunned the social whirl in favor of a small coterie of close friends.

She and her husband had two children, the elder is a young man named Rahul, who is a student in the United States, and a daughter, Priyanka, a student at the College of Jesus and Mary in New Delhi.

In a 1985 interview with the Hindi-language magazine Dharamyug, Sonia tenderly recalled Indira Gandhi. "She showered me with all her affection and love."

She said the elder Mrs. Gandhi, whom she called "Mummy," taught her to fast. "Mummy told me we should sacrifice something we value most to God," she told her interviewer. "So I simply sacrifice a day's meals." She added drolly that "it helps with the kitchen work."

Sonia Gandhi's sense of duty was tested in 1980 when her husband was asked to assume the family's political mantle when his brother and heir apparent, Sanjay, died in the crash of his stunt plane.

"Mummy has to be helped somehow," Mrs. Gandhi was quoted as having said, despite the fact that she did not want Rajiv to enter the politcal arena.

Sensitive to taunts that a "foreigner" was so close to the seat of power, she became a naturalized Indian citizen in 1983. "I could not keep both countries," she said in the 1985 interview.

But over the years, Mrs. Gandhi became an avid campaigner in her husband's constituency in Amethi. With her flowing brown hair and wearing the traditional "bindi" or red dot of marriage on her forehead, she was a familiar sight in the region. Sonia listened to people's concerns, reporting back to Rajiv and his team of advisers.

Politics, she would learn, is rough business, and harrowing proof came in October of 1984 when Indira Gandhi's Sikh bodyguards assassinated the prime minister in a burst of gunfire. Wearing only a housecoat, Sonia dashed into the garden to find her mother-in-law bleeding and dying. It was one of the few times she has ever lost her composure.

"Oh my God, Mummy, No!" she cried in anguish, cradling the dying leader's head while organizing a swift evacuation to a nearby vehicle.

During Rajiv Gandhi's tenure as prime minister, Mrs. Gandhi became the target of barbs over her Italian origins. Newspaper reports and her husband's political rivals lambasted a supposed "Italian Connection" that favored Italian companies that did business in India. One 1988 report asserted that she publicly berated an Indian politician.

STORMS: Low-pressure system produces funnels

any reported damage from those storms."

A tornado warning posted for residents of the area expired at 2 p.m. The storm was reported moved to the northwest at 20 mph.

In El Paso, houses and vehicles were damaged by hail late Tuesday. Almost one-half foot of hail fell in some parts of the city, authorities said.

"This was a solid-type thing. It was just like looking at snow," Val Zarate, police supervisor, said. "We had a lot of damage."

He said some streets in the city's eastern and southwestern sections remained impassable.

House skylights and roofs were damaged by hail Tuesday, and floodwaters rose several feet in some streets, stalling vehicles.

"A lot of houses in the southwest were damaged. Many residents take advantage of the sunlight in this city in their homes, and I can tell you a lot of skylights are out," said Zarate. "On the radio today, many roofers are advertising their services."

He said high winds from the storms also caused damage. A tornado watch was posted for the area by the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, but no twisters were reported.

El Paso County sheriff's dispatcher Luis Moreno said the department also received calls about the hail and storms.

CRADDICK: Plan displeases Midland Republican

(From 1A)

Democrats now hold 93 House seats.

Midland County now is alone in District 76 except for a small sliver of Ector County. Under the new plan, Midland County would be joined by Glasscock and Reagan counties and would lose the small slice of Ector County. The new area would become District 82.

The district would pick up about 6,000 people, and Craddick said he would be elated to represent Glasscock and Reagan counties. "I represented them before the 1980 census," he said.

The House began debating the bill about 2:30 p.m. Tuesday and did not vote on the final version until after 11 p.m. as legislators offered more than 50 amendments in attempts to make districts more favorable to themselves.

The plan, drawn by the House Redistricting Committee, would pair 22 incumbents who would have to face each other if both choose to run in the next election in 1992.

Rep. Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring, offered three different amendments to the redistricting bill in an effort to change districts around to keep from being paired with another incumbent, but the House voted down all three efforts.

Fraser, who represents District 69, would be paired with Rep. David Counts, D-Knox City, who represents District 78, in a proposed new District 70.

District 69 includes Borden, Crane, Culberson, Glasscock, Howard, Hudspeth, Jeff Davis, Loving, Reagan, Reeves, Upton, Ward and Winkler counties. District 78 includes Cottle, Fisher, Garza, Jones, Kent, King, Knox, Lynn, Nolan, Scurry and Stonewall counties and part of Taylor County.

The new District 70 would comprise Borden, Fisher, Garza, Howard, Jones, Kent, King, Knox, Lynn, Nolan, Scurry and Stonewall counties.

The final plan now goes to the Senate, which rubberstamps the House plan while the House does the same for the Senate plan. Both must get prior approval from the U.S. Department of Justice, and most likely then will be challeged in court by minorities or Republicans.

Redistricting is required every 10 years, using new census figures to match the Legislature with changing population patterns, based on a line of court cases in the 1960s that resulted in the "one person, one vote" standard.

The Supreme Court has ruled that redistricting plans that attempt gerrymandering to benefit a particularly party are open to legal challenge. Also, under the federal Voting Rights Act, the Justice Department will not approve any plan that dilutes minority voting strength. States also must try to create a minority district wherever possible.

The state Senate approved its redistricting plan last week. It would put Midland in an oddly drawn district that would take in Amarillo and the top of the Panhandle, and extend down a narrow line on the western edge of the Panhandle to wrap around Midland County.

HEARING: Psychiatric evaluation not available

April 8 at his Glenwood Psychiatric Hospital office for allegedly receiving an illegal videotape entitled "Educating Valerie."

According to investigators, Hale also mailed an obscene book detailing his sexual fantasies to an undercover U.S. Customs agent in Florida.

He subsequently was indicted on counts of receiving child pornography, sending obscene material through the mail, and on counts relating to the forfeiture of evidence seized during the investigation.

His hearing Friday will be to determine his eligibility for bond in light of evidence that has surfaced since his arrest, Aaron said.

The hearing also will represent Hale's initial appearance before a U.S. Magistrate relating to a superseding indictment returned against Hale on May 7. The original indictment was returned April 11.

Hale, who has been replaced at Glenwood, also faces burglary charges in Odessa stemming from the alleged theft of documents from a Glenwood employee's home in March.

If convicted on the Ector County charges, Hale could face up to 99 years or life in prison and up to a $10,000 fine.

Receiving child pornography carries a maximum punishment of 10 years in prison and a $250,000 fine. Sending obscene material through the mail carries a maximum penalty of five years and a $250,000 fine.

Gorbachev pleads for $100 billion in aid from the West

MOSCOW (NYT) — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev pleaded Wednesday for $100 billion in economic aid from the democratic world, asserting that it would be well worth it to the West to bolster global security by priming a Soviet recovery.

The Soviet leader put his own print on what has been an unofficial and far from successful Kremlin lobbying campaign of the Group of Seven industrialized democracies for a voice at their summit gathering and for considerable cash aid for the staggering Soviet economy.

It was also the first time he had cited a specific figure. But it was unclear if the $100 billion was a well-thought-out request or was only suggestive. He did not say over how many years he envisaged such aid, but Soviet economists have been talking of $30 billion a year, much of it in outright grants, not loans.

If it were loaned, $100 billion would instantly vault the Soviet Union into second place on the list of governments with the heaviest debt to foreign creditors.

"I have optimism on this issue," Gorbachev said at a news conference.

Gorbachev chose to move publicly with the ambitious economic initiative despite an oblique rebuff from White House officials, who said on Tuesday that his idea of formal inclusion at the seven-nation economic summit meeting in London in July is "a non-starter."

Announcing progress on a Soviet-American arms-control treaty on Wednesday, President Bush held open the possibility of Gorbachev's attending the Group of Seven meeting, but did not endorse the idea. But the idea of Gorbachev's coming to London was backed by Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti of Italy, who shared the platform with Gorbachev on Wednesday.

Gorbachev argued that the fate of Soviet economic and political change was as important to the stability of the world outside as to the future of his troubled nation.

It deserved closer attention and support from the Group of Seven, he argued, because the Soviet Union has become "one of the solid, reliable pillars of today's world."

"If that pillar disappears," he continued, "we should consider all the possible consequences."

Gorbachev also confirmed that there would probably be no summit meeting here with Bush by the end of June, as originally planned, because preparatory details on disarmament issues remained unsettled.

"We cannot fix the exact date in advance," he said, but stressed that he and Bush continue to enjoy a good relationship and look forward to the meeting being held eventually.

Gorbachev, appearing jointly at the Foreign Ministry with Andreotti, seemed intent on declaring the extent of his hopes rathe than in pondering the politica risks of an initiative that thus far has received no encouragement from the White House.

"If I don't go, I'll still say what I want to say," he declared, smiling jauntily in discussing his need to be heard in some fashion at the economic summit meeting.

He also spoke of the aid question as a "very important" one for an exchange of views with Bush "if the summit takes place."

Rebels move toward Ethiopian capital as army crumbles

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (NYT) — Meeting spotty resistance from a crumbling Ethiopian army, rebel forces advanced within 23 miles of the capital Wednesday, Western diplomats said.

The rebels appeared poised to either force their way into the capital or dictate a settlement at U.S.-sponsored peace talks scheduled to take place in London on Monday.

American officials continued to press for an immediate cease-fire, but the rebels rejected their efforts.

"To have a cease-fire, we need to see a fundamental change in the regime, and we have not seen that yet," said Tesfaye Gherrmazien, a representative of the Eritrean rebels in Washington. "This regime must be prepared to be replaced."

President Mengistu Haile Mariam resigned and fled the country on Tuesday, but not before handing power to his vice president, Lt. Gen. Tesfaye Gebre-Kidan.

■ More world news/8B

As General Tesfaye dispatched the Presidential Guard to the western outskirts of the city Wednesday to establish a defensive perimeter and stem the retreat, hundreds of dejected-looking, disorganized troops of the 3rd Revolutionary Army began swarming into Addis Ababa. They arrived from the west in small groups without their commanding officers. Behind them, the rebels of the Tigre People's Liberation Front were reported to have rolled into Genet, 23 miles west of the capital. A day before, they were reported to be 50 miles away.

General Tesfaye spent the better part of his first day as president meeting with foreign ambassadors, pursuing diplomatic means of halting the rebel advance.

"He appealed to us to do everything possible to reach a cease-fire," said a Western envoy. The diplomat added that his greatest concern was that the rebels would force "a dispirited rabble of troops to descend on the capital."

As a precaution, the U.S. Embassy ordered all employees to sleep in the compound Wednesday night.

The rebel advances climax 30 years of ethnically based civil strife, first against Emperor Haile Selassie and, since 1974, a Marxist-inspired military government.

The oldest rebel group, the Eritrean People's Liberation Front, is fighting for the independence of the northern province of Eritrea on the Red Sea coast.

The Tigrean rebel group is based in Tigre province, but it wants a new government in Addis Ababa, not independence. The two rebel groups have formed a loose alliance called the Ethiopian People's Revolutionary Democratic Front.

Colonel Mengistu's departure elicited little public reaction Tuesday, but after a full day to digest the surprising news, many people in the capital began to show signs of relief and joy.

Hundreds of people gathered around the legislative office building on Arat Kilo Square, laughing and dancing as government workers used cranes to remove giant wall signs depicting Colonel Menguistu in heroic poses.

"It's a great relief," said Tedesse Habete, 24, a student. "For 17 years we have faced hardships. It's been nothing but unendurable pain."

A policeman gamely attempted to interrupt the interview, but the crowd paid him no heed.

"We want to be free," said a middle-aged man. "Tell the world we have had enough of this."

After Mengistu and a group of military officers took power in a coup in 1974, they installed the most authoritarian Marxist regime in Africa. They consolidated their hold over the country by executing intellectuals, monopolizing the press and relocating hundreds of thousands of peasants into cooperatives and state farms.

As the Soviet Union cut back on a massive aid program over the last two years, the Menguistu government loosened its policies.

House votes to cut B-2 bomber, 'Star Wars' programs

WASHINGTON (NYT) — The House of Representatives approved on Wednesday a $291 billion military budget for next year that was in concert with the Bush administration on the total but differed sharply on the details, including the cost of two of the Pentagon's most prized weapons systems of the future.

The House's decision to halt the B-2 bomber program at the 15 planes already ordered, rejecting the administration's request for 4 more, slashes more than $3.2 billion from the program. This, plus another move cutting $1.9 billion from the "Star Wars" antimissile program, prompted a threat from President Bush to veto the entire military budget bill.

The administration is also opposed to an amendment, passed Wednesday, that overturns a three-year-old Pentagon policy banning virtually all abortions at U.S. military hospitals overseas.

The House acted in response to complaints from military personnel and their spouses and dependents, who often have no plance to go for abortions while stationed overseas. The Pentagon has taken a neutral position on another decision affecting American servicewomen, a repeal on restrictions on female pilots from flying combat missions.

In its 268-to-161 vote, with scant Republican support, the House is staking out a strong bargaining position, that members know will not be the last word in military spending for 1992. The Senate, which is typically more supportive of the B-2 and "Star Wars" programs, is scheduled to take up its version of the military budget after the July Fourth recess.

The final legislation hammered out by the eventual House and Senate conference committee will almost certainly call for more money for "Star Wars" than what the House called for Wednesday and possibly a few more new B-2's, lawmakers said.

The House budget represents a 1 percent decline over the current military budget and chops more than $5 billion from exotic, future-generation weapons.

Congress approves $1.45 trillion budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress granted final approval Wednesday to a Democratic-written $1.45 trillion federal budget for 1992 that rejects President Bush's plan to cut Medicare and other benefit programs.

The spending plan for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1 contains no tax increases or cuts and only relatively minor changes in Bush's proposals for domestic programs.

The Senate approved the measure 57-41, shortly after the House adopted it by 239-181. Democrats said it obeys spending limits set in last year's deficit-reduction deal and tilts federal programs towards the needs of poor families.

"It promotes fairness for all Americans," said House Budget Committee Chairman Leon Panetta, D-Calif.

A compromise between separate, similar measures the House and Senate passed in April, the measure cuts $2.8 billion from Bush's proposals for science, law enforcement and natural resources programs. It adds $4.9 billion to the president's planned spending for education, job training, health and veterans benefits.

It also rejects the $46 billion in cuts Bush proposed over the next five years in the Medicare health program for the elderly and handicapped, veterans payments and other benefits.

The budget serves as a mostly non-binding guide for later spending and tax bills. As usual, Congress' Appropriations committees are already drawing up bills that make changes in the budget's spending priorities, such as reducing the amount set aside for education, health and labor programs.

The budget contains no dramatic anti-recession initiatives. But it does leave the door open for later bills improving unemployment insurance and expanding health, education and road-building programs.

Any such increases would have to be paid for with new taxes, or with cuts in other programs. Republicans complained that the budget does not specify where the savings would come from.

"It masks a hidden agenda, and doesn't explain — by the numbers, as it should — how that agenda will be achieved," said Rep. Willis Gradison of Ohio, ranking Republican on the House Budget Committee.

The spending plan contains a deficit of $278.8 billion, smaller only than the $300 billion shortfall expected this year.

'Glasgow' plan begs court date

Redistricting is by its very nature a political "hot potato" since every shift of population in a political district can affect political fortunes. But as far as is humanly possible, redistricting should be fair to the people of a particular district and in that regard the "Glasgow plan" recently approved by the Texas Senate fails miserably.

The state senatorial redistricting plan, mainly drawn by Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, has been termed the "most blatant example of political packing" ever seen since it was a direct attempt to create a "minority district." In seeking that end, it dilutes the voting strength of minorities, noted Midland County Judge Charles W. "Bro" Seltzer who testified before the state Senate earlier this month on the proposed Glasgow plan.

Seltzer, representing Midland County, the City of Midland and Midland Chamber of Commerce, told senators that the community wanted to stay in state senatorial District 25, where it currently is represented by Bill Sims of San Angelo and also continue to be represented by U.S. Rep. Lamar Smith of San Antonio and State Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland. But in the plan enacted, Midland County is tacked on, almost as if through an afterthought, to Sen. Teel Bivins' District 31, which encompasses much of the western portion of the Panhandle.

There is little similarity between Amarillo and Midland, and less of a "community of interest" between the two cities' residents. Amarillo is primarily a ranching and agribusiness center while Midland is the headquarters city for the oil and gas industry of the Permian Basin and an active business community. The only true similarity between the philosophies would be their political conservatism, but even in that regard the philosophies stem from totally different foundations.

There are three distinct reasons the state senatorial redistricting plan should be challenged in court: (1) Political gerrymandering, which lumps conservatives into a single state senatorial district represented by Bivins; the plan also isolates much of Midland's minority population into a separate U.S. congressional "minority district" represented by U.S. Rep. Albert Bustamante of District 23; the remainder of Midland and Midland County would be in U.S. Congressional District 19, currently served by U.S. Rep. Larry Combest; (2) protection for political incumbents — District 24's Sen. Temple Dickson, D-Sweetwater, and District 30's Sen. Steve Carriker, D-Roby, live only 30 miles apart in the redrawn plan, but the way the lines are configured they won't have to run against each other; the plan also puts Combest in the politically difficult position of having to represent Midland, Odessa and Lubbock in the U.S. Congress when the three cities often are in competition on particular measures, and gives Sen. Sims a redesigned district that stretches from the El Paso County line to San Antonio yet cuts out much of his political base in West Central Texas; and (3) the obvious lack of a "community of interest" between residents in Midland, an oil center in a city with a heavy business community, and Amarillo, a ranching center in a primary agricultural city 300 miles to the north.

The state House is now attempting to arrive at its redistricting plan, then a compromise would be worked out between the two. The "Glasgow plan" is nothing but gerrymandering to benefit democratic incumbents and the Democratic Party overall, without even a token gesture to political fairness.

Once a compromise plan is approved, lawsuits should be filed challenging the redistricting design if the "Glasgow plan" remains intact. It is an example of partisan politics at its worst.

Series on aging was informative

The five-part series on "Different Directions for Aging Americans" was most informative and interesting. Chris Van Wagenen's research revealed facts and figures that we should all be aware of. His interviews were done with compassion and a personal interest in each person interviewed. The reader was able to relate and empathize with each situation through dialogue and quotes.

Beverly Shilling's photography depicted the very human angle to "Different Directions." She captured a range of emotions with her camera. The series was enhanced with her pictures.

The editors, Allen Howland and Dallas Merrick, did an outstanding job with the design and page layout of this series.

I hope you all will receive the recognition you richly deserve for the time and effort you spent in researching a subject that affects all of us in one way or another. Then, compiling all that researched material with excellent photography and presenting the public with a series of articles that are both timely and enlightening.

MISD attempt to block KKK rights dangerous

I am writing in regard to the statement made by Joseph Baressi and James Fuller at the last school board meeting. When the members of the Ku Klux Klan (KKK) were not allowed to speak it was clear Baressi and Fuller felt they could override the constitutional right of free speech.

Although I might or might not agree with what people have to say, they certainly have the right to say it. When Fuller said that only district residents and local taxpayers were allowed to speak at the board meeting, it was an outright lie. Hundreds of people have had their say at these meetings who were not residents of Midland.

Baressi and Fuller owe the people of Midland an apology and perhaps their resignation. No one has the right to deny a person their legal rights. If one person is denied then we are all denied. An incident like this is far too dangerous to overlook.

JACK ANDERSON

Packwood prefers the direct approach

WASHINGTON — Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., knows how to corral campaign money as well as anyone in the Senate. Yet he now manages to raise multimillion dollar war chests without taking a penny from big-business political action committees.

Anderson

Packwood has refined the fund-raising science of what some would call junk mail. He sends letters to strangers across the country soliciting contributions to his re-election campaign. Packwood has mastered wallet-limbering solicitations that begin with this line:

"Dear Friend. Please forgive the informal nature of this letter, but it is late in the evening, and my secretary already has gone home. What I want to discuss with you is Israel's future. It simply could not wait until morning."

As the reader visualizes hunt-and-peck Packwood at his typewriter, the three-page letter continues: "Instead of spending all my time raising money for my own re-election campaign, I'd prefer to devote my time and energies to protecting and defending the security of Israel!"

The letter contains 10 conspicuously crossed-out typographical errors and concludes with: "Whether you give $25 or $250 today isn't nearly as important to me as knowing I can depend on you as a special, caring friend."

The image of the earnest, hardworking late-at-his-desk senator apparently works. Packwood has already raised $1.9 million through direct mail for the 1992 campaign. His re-election campaign has sent out a total of 52 different mailings since Oregon re-elected him for a fourth six-year term in 1986.

In the process, Packwood believes he is taking the higher ground in campaign fund raising. He has forsworn all PAC contributions because of its "dirty money" stigma. He argues that he is "not taking special interest money" now, but just soliciting help from his supporters across the country.

Packwood may have an admirable aversion to PACs, but he has little compunction about playing to people's emotions. In one letter to a carefully selected audience, Packwood laments the consequences of being a "staunch friend" of Israel:

"Over the years, I've become a kind of lightning rod for the political opposition. Each time I run for re-election, I attract powerful, well-financed opponents determined to bring about my defeat."

Rep. Peter DeFazio, D-Ore., told our associate Jim Lynch that the claim was "blatantly deceptive" and "ridiculous." In 1986, Packwood outspent his rival by more than a 100 to one ($6.5 million to his opponent's $64,000). In 1980, Packwood outspent his opponent almost 10 to one. In his 1974 re-election bid it was four to one.

A Packwood spokesperson explained that the 1986 opponent was considered "powerful" and that the senator's upcoming, yet-to-be-named foe, was expected to be "well-financed."

Last year, Packwood voted against legislation that would have set campaign spending limits on candidates. The measure passed the Senate, but the House dodged it. A similar bill is on deck this year. It puts campaign finance limits for senators on a sliding scale with the population of their states. If it passes, an Oregon senator would be limited to a maximum of $1,990,848 on a Senate race.

Packwood says he hopes to raise at least $5 million for his 1992 campaign, and expects to attract 150,000 to 250,000 contributors through the mail. He will stick to the patented formula. A Packwood spokesperson explains the senator writes the first draft of the solicitations, then a direct-mail professional re-writes them.

ART BUCHWALD

A star is born —just press '1' before dialing

As we enter the new world of communications, the telephone company is firing more and more live operators and replacing them with recorded announcements.

It's now so bad that a person considers himself lucky if he is still speaking to a warm body. What the public doesn't know is that the telephone company takes great care in selecting the women to do their recorded announcements. Since their voices will remain on computer tapes forever, the phone executives can't afford to miscast someone for the part.

Art Buchwald

I attended an audition for a new voice to represent one of the principal retail outlets. It was held in a large theater on Broadway. There must have been 150 hopefuls waiting to try out.

On stage were blondes, brunettes and redheads, dressed in everything from dirndl skirts to leather pants. Many were warming up their voices with arias from "Aida." Others were kicking their legs in the air, and still others were seated on their chairs shaking with fright.

The director Cam Funkhouser came out on stage and said, "I'm glad that you could all come. What we're looking for today is someone who can handle long-distance as well as wrong-number calls. Ever since we've changed the area codes, customers have been making stupid mistakes. Your voice has to keep them on track, not only by informing them that they made an error, but also by making sure that they don't do it again.

"Now, this is the kind of situation you have to react to. A girl in college is calling her parents collect. She's desperate because she has run out of funds and has lost her dog all in the same day. At this moment she wants to hear a compassionate voice she can trust, and one that sounds as if the phone company gives a damn. Most of all she wants to hear, 'Thank you for using AT&T.' Okay, I'm going into the orchestra seats, so belt it out."

Cam sat next to me. A girl came up to the microphone, her hands on her hips. Winking at Funkhouser she said, "Thank you for using AT&T."

"No, no, no," Cam shouted. "You're not inviting a guy up to your place for the evening. Thank you very much."

The next young woman was quivering. She said something, but we couldn't understand a word.

"We can't hear you," Cam yelled. "Your voice is going to go to Tokyo and Zambia. If we can't hear you in the orchestra, how can they hear you in Sydney, Australia? We'll call you."

A lady in black leotards came forward and started dancing.

"What are you doing?"

"I can say more with my body than with my voice."

We listened to almost all the contestants, and Cam was about to give up when a girl in an ankle-length peasant dress and a straw hat stepped forward. Without a pause, she stretched out her arms and belted out, "Thank you for using AT&T."

Cam jumped out of his seat. "By Jove, she's got it. I believe she's got it." Then he grabbed me and started to dance in the aisle. "The phone of Cohen is mainly made of chrome. Made of chrome, made of chrome, Cohen's phone is made of chrome."

Cam ran up onto the stage and told her, "Repeat after me, 'We're sorry, but you must press one before calling your number.' "

She did it. Funkhouser hugged her and said, "Baby, Ma Bell is going to make you a star."

'Race-norming' is new affirmative action

WASHINGTON — "Within group score conversion" is a euphemism for "race-norming," which is a euphemism for a form of "affirmative action," which is today's euphemism for reverse discrimination, adopted when "compensatory opportunity" proved to be a jawbreaker.

Will

But perhaps before you have mastered the obfuscating language of compassion's guilty conscience, race-norming may be dead. It may be killed by the democratic device of asking those who favor it — mostly Democrats — to actually vote for it.

Rep. Henry Hyde (R-Ill.) recently tried to attach to this year's so-called "civil rights bill" (a euphemism for a quota-promoting and lawyer-enriching bill) an amendment outlawing race-norming. Democrats rejected it in committee on a 21-13 party-line vote.

Under race-norming, scores achieved by job applicants on certain tests are segregated by racial groups. Individuals' scores are reported not in relation to all those taking the test, but only in relation to others in the individuals' racial groups.

Each year state employment agencies evaluate prospective job applicants for private employers using the General Aptitude Test Battery (GATB). For example, in a recent year scores for whites, Hispanics and blacks in the 50th percentiles of their groups were 305, 295 and 276 respectively. Such scores were reported as identical.

A black with 305 points was at the 84th percentile among blacks. That score was reported as substantially superior to a white applicant's 305.

Employers getting test scores are not told the applicants' races. Hence the employers do not know that black and Hispanic applicants have inflated scores. At least 33 states and an unknown number of employers practice race-norming.

Defenders of race-norming say the policy is justified because the tests are flawed. But if so, the answer is to change the tests, not cook the results. The real reason for race-norming is that any test is apt to produce uncomfortable "statistical disparities" by racial groups until the schools that many blacks attend, and the home environments from which many blacks go to school, and the neighborhoods through which they walk to school, are better.

Some of those who voted against Hyde's amendment said, archly, that Congress should not interfere with a "regulatory" matter. Trust today's liberals to fight to keep their agenda out of harm's (democracy's) way.

"Quotas"? Heaven forfend. Only "goals" and "timetables" for removing "statistical disparities" and "underrepresentation."

Any employment practice that has a "disparate impact" on certain government-certified victim-groups (not, for example, Asian-Americans, whose GATB scores are segregated with whites' scores) can make an employer vulnerable to costly litigation. Hence many employers like race-norming, which helps them fill de facto quotas.

The phrase "race-conscious remedy" is today's preferred euphemism for policies like race-norming. Such "remedies" so obviously poison society, it is reasonable to suspect that the poisoning is an aim of some members of the "civil rights" lobby. Increasingly that lobby exists to administer a racial spoils system. Hence that lobby has a stake in the competitive cultivation of group grievances.

The stain of officially-sponsored racism is spreading everywhere. In a story on the self-segregation of students on campuses — separate dorms, dining halls, clubs — The New York Times reports: "Minority students say they are made to feel like they do not belong on campuses where affirmative action casts doubt on their qualifications." A black student at Stanford explains her preference for a predominantly black dorm: "I didn't want a whole layer of challenges about whether I deserved to be here. I figured that if I lived in a black environment it wouldn't come up." A black student at Berkeley complains, "I feel like I have AFFIRMATIVE ACTION stamped on my forehead."

This sad disfigurement of the academic experience is, like race-norming, another aspect of liberalism's apartheid of "compassion."

Police investigating Kennedy strongman in rape case

NEW YORK (AP) — When William Barry opened the door at the Kennedy estate Easter weekend and met Palm Beach police, it was not the first time the security expert and former FBI agent was plunged into a Kennedy family drama.

Almost 23 years ago, Barry was with Sen. Robert F. Kennedy when the candidate was shot in the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles. Barry was among those who helped athletes Rosey Grier and Rafer Johnson tackle and disarm the assassin, Sirhan Sirhan.

But for the first time, Barry, 64, whose relationship with the Kennedys dates back 30 years, is no longer the strongman in the shadows protecting the family from outside harm.

This time, he's the subject of a possible obstruction of justice charge in the investigation of an alleged rape at the Kennedy estate March 30.

His friends defend him as a man of impeccable standing and trustworthiness.

"He's a person who enjoys an excellent reputation, who has been direct and straightforward his entire life," said Stephen Kaufman, a longtime Kennedy lawyer who represents Barry and his family.

But Palm Beach Police Chief Joseph Terlizzese has a different opinion. He maintains that Barry misled detectives when they went to the estate Easter weekend to question Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and his nephew, William Kennedy Smith.

A 29-year-old woman has accused Smith of raping her at the estate that weekend.

Barry this week again declined to give a sworn statement to Palm Beach County prosecutors and police who were in New York taking depositions. He appeared for a deposition April 30 but declined to give a statement after the prosecutor refused to grant him immunity.

"That's his right as a citizen," Terlizzese said Wednesday.

Barry said Wednesday that he is sympathetic to the police effort in Palm Beach.

"I'm concerned about the perception that I might have mislead police," he said in a telephone interview. "We're a police family. I was a policeman, my brother was a policeman and my son is one. I'm certainly not against the police. I know they have a difficult job to do."

In a statement released through an attorney in April, he blamed misunderstanding and said police weren't clear about what they wanted when they talked to him at the estate.

Barry's wife, Mary Lou, said in a telephone interview Wednesday from their home in suburban New City that her husband has been "traumatized" by the allegations against him. She said the family left their home for several days last week because of the "swarms of reporters" at their door.

After joining the FBI, Barry became friendly with Robert Kennedy when he was assigned to pick him up at an airport.

In recent years, he has operated his own security company and has become known as an expert on corporate security and terrorism.

Congress OK's relief for refugees in compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress approved a compromise $556 million bill Wednesday to cover the costs of aiding Kurdish refugees and others fleeing conflict in Iraq and to provide other refugee and disaster aid around the world.

The Senate approved the bill on a voice vote and sent it to President Bush for his signature after the House passed it 387-33.

The total includes $320.5 million to be taken from an account used to pay for Operation Desert Storm to cover the costs of U.S. troops who built and supplied refugee camps in northern Iraq.

The Pentagon has said that amount would cover the military's humanitarian aid costs through the end of May, when the Bush administration hopes the task will be assumed by a United Nations force.

The bill also includes $235 million to replenish refugee aid accounts and disaster funds that were depleted by the Iraqi crisis. The money could then be used for Iraqi refugees or for others.

Streets may top use of CDBG funds

■ Council has received 18 requests for part of the $871,593 federal grant.

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

The applicants want money for park improvements, a substance abuse program and a new fire station, but street paving may top next year's use of federal grant money.

The city of Midland has received 18 requests for a piece of the $871,593 Community Development Block Grant pie for the 1991-92 fiscal year.

However, funding requests total $1.6 million, leaving the Midland City Council to decide how to divide the money.

A public hearing on CDBG proposals is scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday in the DeZavala Elementary School cafetorium, 705 N. Lee St.

The council this year will not have to work around Lamesa Road renovations, which have chewed up about $300,000 in CDBG dollars annually for the past four years. Contractors are putting the final touches on the east Midland thoroughfare this week.

At-large Councilman John Castro said street paving in east and south Midland, which has been ongoing for two years, likely will continue next year.

The city, although spending about $300,000 the past two years on paving, still has about 13 miles of dirt roads.

"That priority looks to be the same until we're told otherwise by the community," Castro said. "There are so many streets out there that are unpaved.

"We figured it would take us four to five years to complete all the paving on the south and east part of town."

Sylvester Cantu, city planner, said the request list is longer than it has been in past years.

"Looks like we've got a few more folks coming in this time," Cantu said, adding that there may be more applications submitted before Tuesday's hearing.

Newcomers include the Palmer Drug Abuse Center, asking for an unspecified amount, and the YMCA, which wants $87,348 for child development and senior citizen programs.

The list should be boiled down to finalists by July 23, with a City Council vote expected Aug. 13, Cantu said.

The city received $95,000 more in CDBG money for next year than it did for this year, when only $736,000 was allotted. The city received $789,000 for 1989-90.

Next year's grant, Cantu said, will be supplemented with $40,593 in leftover CDBG money.

At-large Councilman J.D. Faircloth said some of the money for 1991-92 may be used for drainage projects in east and south Midland.

CDBG dollars probably will continue flowing to senior citizen meals programs and homeownership and improvement programs, Faircloth said.

Here is a list of other applicants for 1991-92 funding: Midland Boys and Girls Club, $50,000; Southeast Senior Center meals, $71,479; and Casa de Amigos Senior Center meals, $4,000.

Also, Midland Economic Development Co., $100,000; Midland Homeownership Incentive Program, $100,000; Neighborhood Housing Services, $150,000; Emergency Housing Repair Program.

Ex-employee sues Ector credit union

■ Former manager of Ector County Employees Credit Union files libel and sexual harassment lawsuit.

By David Morris
Staff Writer

A former Ector County Employees Credit Union manager has filed a libel and sexual harassment lawsuit against the institution in Midland's 238th District Court.

Midland has jurisdiction in the matter because the woman was living here when the alleged offenses occurred, according to the lawsuit.

The woman, 38-year-old Denise Mae Stapp, is seeking $1.5 million in punitive damages and damages for mental distress. She also is seeking attorneys' fees and lost wages.

The present chairman of the credit union's board of directors, Precinct 3 Ector County Commissioner Ricky Jorgenson, said he was not aware of the suit, which was filed May 9.

However, Jorgenson said he had heard no complaints about sexual harassment or mistreatment of credit union employees.

Jorgenson said the credit union is owned by county employees but is not administered as part of county government.

According to the lawsuit, Ms. Stapp had been hired as the office manager at the credit union, 1010 E. 8th St., on Sept. 15, 1987.

On Jan. 18, 1988, the lawsuit states, Ms. Stapp had a minor disagreement with her supervisor, then-Chairman of the Board Larry Crawford. According to the law-

Queen taps her toes in time to the music

HOUSTON — Queen Elizabeth II, face impassive but feet discreetly tapping to the electrifying gospel music, capped a three-day whirlwind tour of Texas on Wednesday with a visit to the Bayou City's oldest black church.

"It was just wonderful to sing for the queen of England," said Jacqueline Bostic, first soprano in the Antioch Baptist Church choir and granddaughter of an ex-slave who founded the congregation 125 years ago. "It's something to tell your grandchildren about."

On Thursday morning, the queen departs for a private stay in the bluegrass horse country of Kentucky while her husband, Prince Philip, flies home en route to Sweden on official business as president of the World Wildlife Fund for Nature.

Before leaving, the queen conferred the second honorary knighthood of her nine-day U.S. tour on Texas Instruments co-

Students voice views about drug abuse

■ Advertisement, essay and speech contests were recently held in conjunction with 'Just Say No' month.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Local youngsters, who are constantly inundated with messages against drug and alcohol abuse, recently were able to have their say about such abuses.

Some Midland students were allowed to express their views in a series of contests sponsored by CASA (Council Against Substance Abuse) for "Just Say No" month in April.

"The purpose really is to provide a forum for these kids," said Lucinda Windsor, director of the contest and language arts coordinator for MISD.

"Sometimes they see some things firsthand and this gives them a chance to speak out," she said.

"It's moving to read, hear or see what they have to say from their perspective — sometimes it makes more sense than (what) adults (have to say)," Ms. Windsor said.

The contests — in their fifth year — were open to selected seventh, ninth and high school classes.

First, second and third place awards were given to seventh graders from each of the junior high schools for a "Just Say No" public service advertisement contest. All winners received certificates from CASA.

Ninth graders had a chance to enter an essay contest on drug and alcohol abuse. Trophies were awarded to first, second and third place winners in each of both ninth grade schools. The winning entries also will be published in the Speaking Out column in upcoming Sunday issues of the Midland Reporter-Telegram.

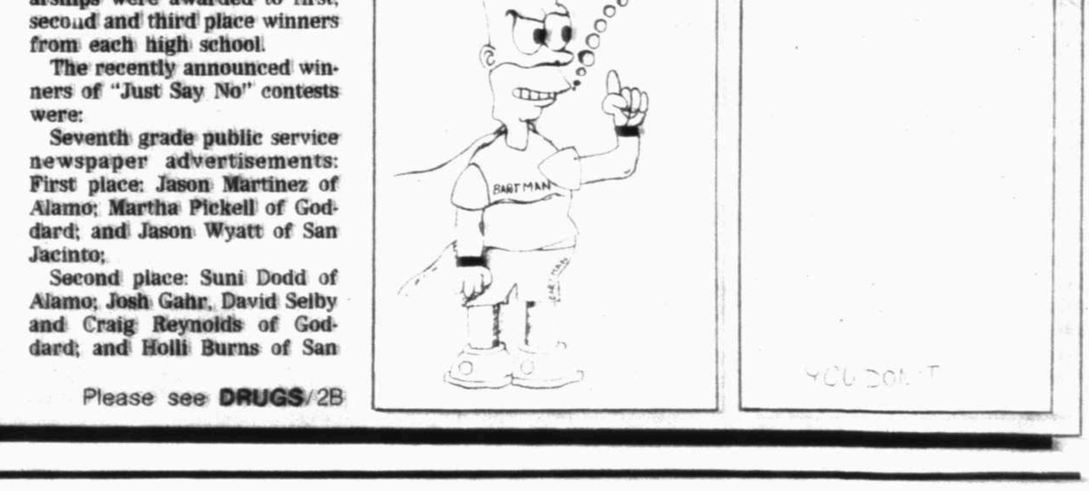

High school students competed in a speech contest about how drugs affect the community and what can be done. Scholarships were awarded to first, second and third place winners from each high school.

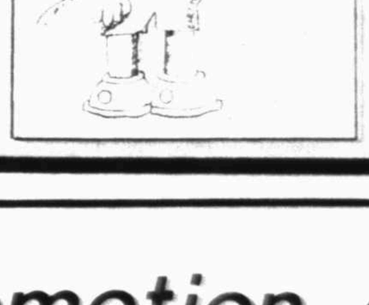

The recently announced winners of "Just Say No" contests were:

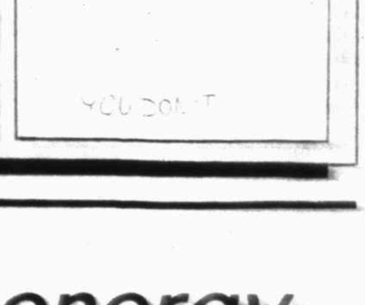

Seventh grade public service newspaper advertisements: First place: Jason Martinez of Alamo; Martha Pickell of Goddard; and Jason Wyatt of San Jacinto;

Second place: Suni Dodd of Alamo; Josh Gahr, David Selby and Craig Reynolds of Goddard; and Holli Burns of San

ED TODD

Romance takes too much time, emotion, energy

The more experiences I have and don't have with romance, the more inclined I am to shuck it.

Todd

It takes up too much energy, time, emotion and, if you or the object of your affection is materialistic and entertainment-oriented, money.

Besides, if you're not careful in a romantic state, you're liable to lose yourself in another and wonder what happened to yourself.

You'll be lost for a time and, all the while, thinking you have found euphoria. Maybe you have; but it's a state — not a place. And states of mind and heart change. The heart, you know, can be a fickle little rascal.

Who can figure out mercurial romance — romance that doesn't know the difference between always and tonight?

An occasional bout with romance, I've decided, is just about unavoidable. Everybody ought to try it, not just vicariously, but jump right in there and be a 100-percenter.

Glow in the warmth and colors of the rainbow, revel in the glitter, sit on that pot of (fool's) gold, listen to the angelic chorus.

And, when you finally rise from your stupor and wonder why of it all, hang on because returning through the other side of that "falling-in-love" barrier will jar your bones and emotions like tumbling down a cobblestone path or running slow motion through a brier patch.

The blood will flow, but it will wash away. The hurt will pang, but the scars will fade.

It's an unforgettable experience to be smitten.

I can remember the first one as well as the last.

And they all are just about the same except, I reason, "Next time, it will be different."

Next time, it will be true love for me and my truly fair forever and for always. Our lives together will shine like the stars on a clear night away from the city lights. And after a lifetime of love, daisies will bloom over our graves along lovers lane as evidence of everlasting love and devotion.

Can it so be?

Each romance is different, all right. The names, dates and places change, but everything else is about the same.

And when each romance is kaput, I just about swear never again to seek that enchanting beguilement.

Still, it's good to go through the glow, the excitement, the wonderment of it all if you're willing to ride — or tumble — down the downside.

I can recall the longings, the innocence, the apprehension, the touching, the talk, the sharing, the bonding, the dreams, the aspirations, the mansion on the hill.

Flowers bloom in the gardens of the heart.

Then, the cycle speeds up. And, like the seasons, things change dramatically but not without warnings.

I can visualize the red flags, as they appear over the horizon and flap wildly in the winds of disenchantment, heartbreak, and faded love. The heart quakes and becomes a void.

And, once again, the mind says to the heart: "No more, please. No more."

But, after the tears have been shed and after the hurt, the anger and the rage have subsided, there is a quietness. It may take awhile. But, soon enough, peace will set in.

Presently, the world seems to take on a natural order. Priorities get realigned. At last, there is more to life than romance. There are things to be done, and there are places to go.

Then, almost without warning, the longings for romance again start budding. And, one more time, another tempest is about to blow in.

LOCAL/AREA REPORTS

Store robbery

Staff Reports

Three men, one armed with a revolver and another with a tire iron, robbed a convenience store on Highway 80 of an undisclosed amount of cash early Wednesday morning, Midland County Sheriff's Office officials said.

According to reports, three men entered the 7-Eleven, 13920 W. Highway 80, about 1:20 a.m. and demanded money from the clerk. After the clerk complied, the three men fled the scene on foot.

The man armed with the revolver was described as 19 to 20 years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighed about 145 pounds. The man with the tire iron was about 23 to 24 years old, 6 feet tall and weighed about 170 pounds. Both were black, officers said. A description of the third man was not available.

Girl hit by car

ODESSA — A 7-year-old Odessa girl remained in satisfactory condition at Odessa Medical Center Hospital Wednesday after she was hit by a car Tuesday evening, police and hospital officials said.

Monica M. Mata was accidentally struck by a 1976 Oldsmobile Coronado driven by Juanita F. Price, 70, of Odessa about 9:15 p.m. in the 1000 block of East 10th Street.

According to police, Monica was running north on Moody Street when she ran into the path of the car on 10th Street.

Ms. Price attempted to stop, leaving 36 feet of skid marks prior to impact, police said. No citations were issued.

Alleged assault

A 40-year-old man was arrested Tuesday for aggravated sexual assault of a 9-year-old girl that allegedly occurred between January and February of this year, Midland County Sheriff's Office officials said.

James Alvis Clark remained in jail Wednesday on a $15,000 bond pending an appearance before a parole board. Bond was set by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine.

According to sheriff's officials, the assault reportedly took place at Clark's residence at the Wallace Mobile Home Park, 6005 E. Highway 80.

The alleged assault was reported to the Department of Human Services by the girl, officials said.

Bond denied

A federal magistrate on Wednesday ordered an Odessa man accused of selling about two kilograms of cocaine to undercover law enforcement officers held without bond until his trial.

Department of Public Safety and Drug Enforcement Administration agents arrested Mario Nieto-Mendoza, 47, on Friday after he allegedly sold them the cocaine for $44,000 in Ector County.

U.S. Magistrate Robert R. Sykes determined that Mendoza could represent a flight risk and a danger to the community if released on bond.

State's new legislator takes oath

WASHINGTON (AP) — To the cheers of dozens of supporters who had flown in from Dallas just hours before, Sam Johnson took the oath of office Wednesday and added congressman to a resume that includes decorated fighter pilot, prisoner of war and fiscal conservative.

Rep. Bill Archer, dean of Texas' Republican House delegation, introduced the 60-year-old Johnson to his new colleagues as "truly exceptional."

"Those of us who are Texans would say all Texas members are exceptional," Archer, of Houston, told a cheering House. "But Sam Johnson has truly earned that designation."

Johnson, a state representative for the past six years, was held in solitary confinement for 42 months during his 7-year imprisonment in North Vietnam as a prisoner of war.

"He came back undaunted, patriotic," Archer said. "He became a leader in his native city of Dallas."

Johnson was elected Saturday in a runoff election against Tom Pauken, a Dallas businessman and community activist, winning 52 percent of the vote. He fills the seat vacated by Republican Steve Bartlett, who resigned to run for mayor of Dallas.

Johnson joked that when he got back from Vietnam and then went to the Texas House, Speaker Gib Lewis said it was like going from "hell to hell."

"And I suppose, we can say, it's from hell to hell to hell," Johnson told the House.

At a reception for Johnson, Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, called the new congressman an American hero who is destined to be a leader.

"I'm very proud to have Sam Johnson as a colleague. It raises the stature of the Congress to have somebody like Sam elected," Gramm said. "He will be a strong voice for his district, for Texas."

"Sam Johnson is a legitimate, real, honest-to-God, flesh-and-blood American hero," Gramm told a cheering crowd at the Capitol Hill reception.

Johnson described the day as one of the most exciting in his life. But after the festivities, it was straight to work for the newest congressmen.

Within a few hours, Johnson was voting against a $291 billion military budget. And Thursday, he'll be taking up controversial trade legislation.

QUEEN: Couple visits NASA spends time with 2 veterans founder Cecil Green, 90, of Dallas, who endowed Green College at Oxford University. Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, the Persian Gulf War commander, received the first on a stop in Tampa, Fla.

The English-born Green, who grew up in Canada and became a U.S. citizen at 36, was inducted into the 265-year-old Order of the Bath. He received a silver star and a badge at a return dinner the queen gave Wednesday night at the Houston Museum of Fine Arts. Gov. Ann Richards was the guest of honor.

Earlier, the 65-year-old monarch chatted with a wounded veteran of the Persian Gulf War, Delman Orme, 22, of Crockett, who is recuperating at the new Veterans Affairs Medical Center from a shrapnel wound in the head.

"Good luck," she told Orme, who was astride a stationary bicycle during the queen's stop at the hospital. He called it a "once-in-a-lifetime experience."

Before lunch at NASA's Johnson Space Center, the queen had what might well have been the most moving, if not spiritually rollicking, experience of her visit.

The titular head of the Church of England, accustomed at home to orderly, staid services, found herself tapping her feet, as did her husband, to the rhythm of such songs as ""Ain't Got Time to Die (I Keep so Busy Praising My Jesus)."

Still, the British entourage was an island of conspicuous calm surrounded by congregants rocking back and forth, raising their hands and shouting, "All right!"

Only after rousing solos by Hank Neal and Kathy Taylor did the queen shift her gaze from the choir to say a quick word to Prince Philip on her right and Houston Mayor Kathy Whitmire on her left. And then she smiled.

Afterward the royal couple bowed their heads as acting Pastor T.M. Batts reached to the heavens for sufficient symbolism to describe his thanks for their visit.

"O Lord, who picked up the gigantic hammer of time and struck the anvil of creation, caught the sparks on your fingertips and decorated skies with the moon, sun and stars, thank you for his highness, Prince Philip," he said.

"We thank you for this crown and for what it represents. ... Thank you, Lord. It will be in our memory for ever and ever."

The queen, who had chatted on her arrival with descendants of the church's founder, the Rev. Jack Yates (1828-1897), waved and smiled as she departed. And however low-key her demeanor and that of her husband, the couple wowed the more than 500 who packed the sanctuary.

"Prince Philip praised my curtsy. "My, that's lovely,' he said, and I was thrilled," confided Marianne Walker, a "thirty-something" Houston schoolteacher and church usher who had studied art history in England. "I practiced it for about three days.

"I didn't initiate the conversation," she said of her brief chat with the Duke of Edinburgh. "I knew you don't initiate a conversation, you don't hug royalty or put your hands on them. Any person would know that."

Walker brought two of her students to the special service. One of them, Tynagus Johnson, 13, said seeing the queen was "more fun than playing with my friends. She looked great."

At the Johnson Space Center, the queen and prince were given a look at a simulated shuttle mission and told of "life and death, split-second decisions" made by Mission Control, said the center's director, Aaron Cohen.

Lunch was served for the royal visitors and 300 others in a mammoth building that houses a full-size shuttle model. The meal included pheasant, creme brulee — a flan with a crisp caramelized coating — and cornbread sticks, washed down with champagne.

The royal couple were honored Wednesday night at a dinner that featured a 113-name guest list that read like a Who's Who of Texas, ranging from the heart surgeon Michael DeBakey to the Roman Catholic archbishop of San Antonio, Patrick Flores.

Inmate awaits execution

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — After three murder trials and nearly 17 years since the takeover of a prison library that left four people dead, a Texas inmate awaited an early Thursday execution for participating in the nation's longest prison siege.

Ironically, Ignacio Cuevas, 59, the illiterate son of a Mexican peasant, faced lethal injection just a few yards from where two female hostages and two fellow convict-gunmen were slain in the climax of the inmates' 11-day siege and escape attempt at the Walls Unit prison in 1974.

Cuevas, who was serving a 45-year term for murder when the attempted prison break occurred, was convicted three times of capital murder and sentenced to death for the slaying of Julia Standley, a prison librarian who died in the shootout. The first two convictions were overturned on appeal.

Another hostage, prison teacher Elizabeth Beseda, and two of the convicts who engineered the siege, drug kingpin Fred Gomez Carrasco and Rudolfo Dominguez, also died in the gunfire.

"I have no problem with him being executed," said Linda Woodman, one of the hostages. "You hate to say that.

"I'm not celebrating his death or anything like that. I don't have any deep thoughts about it. I think I'm probably the luckiest person who was out there. It was just traumatic what those others had to go through. We knew we were just sitting ducks where we were."

Carrasco had served about six months of a life sentence for assault stemming from a shootout with police in San Antonio. Dominguez had served about a year of a 15-year term for assault.

A last-minute appeal seeking a stay was rejected by U.S. District Judge Norman Black in Houston on Wednesday, and later by the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans and the U.S. Supreme Court.

Edgewood school superintendent to resign

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — After working more than three decades in the district that led the battle for school finance equity, Edgewood Superintendent James Vasquez has resigned to seek a job in higher education.

"It's time for me to move on," Vasquez said. "I just think 13 years in a job as superintendent and 31 years total in a school district is pretty much a career."

His resignation letter was read Tuesday night to a small, stunned audience at a meeting of the Edgewood district's school board.

The 57-year-old educator has been Edgewood superintendent for 13 years. His resignation will be effective Aug. 31.

Vasquez said he had considered stepping down a year ago, but postponed the decision.

"I indicated to the trustees last May that I wanted to resign, and they asked me to stay because there was still pending litigation in the Edgewood versus Kirby case, so I stuck it out one more year," Vasquez said.

Texas Eagle Forum presents Craddick with award

Staff Report

State Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, was a recipient of the "Texas Statesman" award given each legislative session by Texas Eagle Forum to honor those legislators who promoted pro-family values during the session.

Twenty-nine legislators, out of the 181 members of the Senate and House, were chosen to receive this award for the 72nd legislative session. They were selected for "their willingness to sign the Republican National Coalition for Life pledge and/or for their willingness to sponsor or actively work for pro-family legislation," said a press release from the Texas Eagle Forum.

Eagle Forum is a non-profit, all-volunteer organization of conservative men and women "dedicated to preserving traditional values in education and public policy," the press released stated.

Volunteers to man road rest stop during holiday

Staff Report

ODESSA — Holiday weekend travelers on Interstate 20 "will have a chance to take a break, enjoy a free cup of coffee and pastry and learn more about why they should not drink and drive when they stop at the Memorial Day rest stop sponsored by the Permian Basin Regional Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse," according to Pamela Bowerman, council executive director.

Volunteers from PBRCADA will be joined by volunteers from MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Drivers), local AA groups and other community agencies to man the rest stop just east of Midland around the clock from 4 p.m. Friday to 5 p.m. Monday.

The council will provide refreshments and literature about chemical abuse to everyone who stops and expresses an interest, Ms. Bowerman said.

PBRCADA is a non-profit agency of United Way, and is funded in part by the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse. Refreshments have been donated for this project by Permian Office Coffee Service, Inc., Country Maid Donuts of Midland, the Permian Basin Food Bank, Standard Sales and Southwestern Bell.

And, Goode Beginning Child Care, $7,500; Freewill Foster Home, $15,000; and Citywide Community Services, $20,000.

The Midland Fire Department wants $810,000 to replace Station 2, located at the Baird Street and New Jersey Avenue intersection. However, councilmen have said they would prefer using other financial means to replace the 40-year-old station.

The city parks department has requested $70,085 for various projects, while municipal code enforcement officials have asked for $60,000 to clear lots and demolish dilapidated houses.

Estimated administrative costs for the CDBG program total about $80,000.

suit, Crawford approached Ms. Stapp and "placed his hand on her exposed leg just above the knee and in a suggestive manner and said ... 'come on, let's do it my way.'"

Because Ms. Stapp rebuffed the advance, the lawsuit states, Crawford "attempted on numerous occasions thereafter to get (Ms. Stapp) fired."

Although Crawford resigned as board chairman in October 1988, he remained active as a manager at the credit union and, according to the lawsuit, continued his campaign against Ms. Stapp.

On Aug. 6, 1990, the lawsuit states, the credit union's new board chairman, Ector County Deputy Sheriff Merle Dunn, fired Ms. Stapp. He told her that the firing was because of faulty accounting procedures on her part, the lawsuit states.

It goes on to state that Dunn and other credit union officials libeled and slandered Ms. Stapp by telling credit union employees and others that Ms. Stapp had stolen $10,000 from the credit union vault.

Furthermore, the lawsuit states, Dunn committed assault and battery on Ms. Stapp by "taking (the) plaintiff by the arm and forcing her to leave the office and go directly to her auto."

On the day of her termination, the lawsuit states, Ms. Stapp "was intentionally subjected to ridicule, intimidation, emotional distress and threat of prosecution."

Because of her termination, Ms. Stapp has been unable to find work, the lawsuit states.

Reached at her home Wednesday, Ms. Stapp said she has recently started working for her parents, but she did not elaborate. She declined to comment further.

Neither Dunn nor Crawford could be reached for comment Wednesday.

Richards undecided about proposed open container law

The State

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards said Wednesday she hadn't made any decision on a House-passed bill that could strip Texas motorists of their drivers' licenses for 90 days if open alcoholic beverages were found in their vehicles.

The proposal, pushed by Rep. Ted Kamel, R-Tyler, won final House passage and was sent to the Senate for consideration and possible amendments.

"I haven't been advised," the governor said when asked about Kamel's proposed open container ban. "I always like to see the piece of legislation so that I know what it says."

Under the amendment that Kamel authored, 90-day suspensions also probably could be issued for the licenses of passengers in an auto that contained an open container of alcohol, said Bob Kelly, the House parliamentarian.

Kamel's amendment said the suspension applied "if a person operates, or travels in, a motor vehicle" with an open alcoholic container.

The bill — with Kamel's open container amendment — was passed about 1 a.m. Wednesday after 10 hours of debate on other bills.

Kamel admitted that there was confusion over the effect of his amendment — and he offered news reporters several different versions of its impact during the day.

However, Kamel finally said that he intended for the measure to apply only to the license of the driver of an auto that contained the open beverage.

Should the legislation need further amendments to make that clear, Kamel said, it could be changed in the Senate.

"I was confused this afternoon," said Kamel, a first-term legislator. "I'm a freshman. I've never been barraged over anything like this.

"The legislative intent was for the driver (to lose his license). If there is a problem ... then we will work that out in the Senate. Sometimes, you don't always get things perfect on the first go-round," Kamel said.

"You can call this Ted's first technical error. Technical error No. 1," he said.

Kamel called the current open container law "meaningless, unenforceable."

Under the present law, drivers may be fined $200 if a police officer catches them drinking alcohol while driving, but passengers may possess open beverage containers.

Richards acknowledged that the current open container law is tough to enforce.

"I think it's very difficult for law enforcement to always be dealing with the question of whether a person has actually been drinking or not. Open containers, obviously, are pretty clearly evidence that you have been. So I'll look at the bill and see what it says," she said.

Kamel added his open container ban as an amendment to a bill that would suspend the driver's license of a person arrested for drunken driving for 90 days on a first offense.

Free trade pact to hurt workers, Gonzalez says

By James R. Owen
Reporter-Telegram Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — While most of his Texas colleagues are backing a free trade pact with Mexico, Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez said Wednesday he has "a predisposition against" it because, he contended, it would hurt unskilled Texas workers.

During a meeting with members of the Hearst Newspapers Washington bureau, Gonzalez said he remained undecided about whether he will vote Thursday to extend "fast-track" authority for the Bush administration to negotiate a free-trade deal with Mexico.

"I don't know, I'm undecided," he said. But then the 75-year-old San Antonio Democrat, who chairs the powerful House Banking Committee, added, referring to the treaty as well the fast-track plan that President Bush is seeking: "I don't like the idea. I have sort of a predisposition against it."

Under fast-track authority, the administration would negotiate a trade pact with Mexico and Congress would be able to vote only yes or no on it without any amendments. Most experts have said that without such authority, a trade deal with Mexico would become bogged down in Congress because opponents would try to kill it by attaching amendments.

But Gonzalez, who has jealously guarded congressional authority during his 30 years in Washington, disagreed.

"Fast track has nothing to do with a free trade agreement," he said. "Implied in this, and this is a very little-noted fact, is that the president is given blanket authority to enter into agreements, not necessarily with Mexico, but anybody.

Asked if he thought thousands of Texans would lose jobs as a result of a trade agreement, Gonzalez said yes but that "it would be difficult to give a fixed number."

A recent study by the Economic Policy Institute, a Washington think tank, said that as many as 500,000 U.S. jobs would be lost through a free trade pact. But another study, done by the University of Maryland for the U.S. Labor Department, predicted that as many as 64,000 new jobs would be created.

Harold Gross, a professor at North Texas State University in Denton, said a trade pact would be a boon for Texas and the Southwest. "In the short term, an agreement would produce substantial economic benefits, not only for northern Mexico, but for the U.S. border states as well," he said.

Organized labor, fearful that U.S. jobs will head into Mexico, where wages are much lower, has lobbied intensively against any trade pact, joining environmentalists who say heightened trade will bring ecological damage to the border area.

Allergy specialist: Exercise may trigger reaction to celery

By Jean Carper

You've undoubtedly heard that nuts, especially peanuts, fish and shellfish can cause life-threatening allergic reactions. But celery!

Carper

Yes, celery has been added to the list of foods that could do you in, says Dr. Martin Valentine, allergy specialist and professor of medicine at Johns Hopkins Asthma & Allergy Center.

Dr. Valentine says increasing numbers of joggers have suffered potentially deadly anaphylactic shock by chomping down on a stalk of celery after a run. Other runners have suffered allergic reactions to celery, including itching of the mouth, nausea, diarrhea, hives and asthma.

However, the celery allergy only happens in connection with exercise, says Dr. Valentine. Why? Nobody knows. But doctors have recently become aware of so-called exercise-induced food allergies. It takes both food and exercise to cause a reaction. Other foods that have triggered such exercise-related allergies are nectarines, oysters and wheat, says Dr. Valentine.

If you suddenly feel ill following exercise and eating, see a physician to determine if this double-barreled allergy might be to blame, he advises.

Skipping breakfast might make you more vulnerable to morning heart attacks. That's a new theory that may help account for the high incidence of heart attacks within a few hours after waking up in the morning.

So suggests cardiologist Renata Cifkova, Memorial University of Newfoundland in St. John's. The reason: Not eating breakfast appears to make blood platelets more activated and sticky, increasing the tendency to form clots leading to heart attacks and strokes.

That was evident when Dr. Cifkova measured a marker of platelet activity, called beta-TG, in the blood of 29 normal men and women on days they ate or skipped breakfast. She found the beta-TG averaged two and a half times higher on the day the group skipped breakfast, according to Science News. However, the blood stickiness was dramatically less on days they ate breakfast. In the study the fast lasted 14 hours overnight until the next day's first meal.

Breaking the fast earlier by eating when you get up may be one way of cutting the risk of morning heart attack.

This recipe comes from Dr. James Duke, U.S. Department of Agriculture. Worried about colon cancer, he includes only ingredients with known anti-cancer compounds.

Place the following ingredients in a large bowl: 1 small green cabbage, shredded; 1 large carrot, shredded; 2 cups cauliflower florets, steamed until tender-crisp; ½ green bell pepper, chopped; 4 radishes and 4 scallions, both thinly sliced.

For the dressing, place the following ingredients in a blender: 2 teaspoons grated fresh gingerroot or 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger; 2 garlic cloves; ¼ to ½ teaspoon hot red-pepper flakes; ½ cup white wine vinegar; 2 tablespoons tamari or reduced-sodium soy sauce; 2 tablespoons olive oil or dark sesame oil. Process until smooth. Stir in 2 tablespoons toasted sesame seeds or slivered almonds, if you wish.

Add dressing to the vegetables to taste and toss. Serves 8: calories, 71; total fat, 3.6 grams; cholesterol, 0; sodium, 276 mg.

Researcher reports gene link to lung cancer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A newly discovered gene belonging to a class of genes that suppress tumor growth has been linked to lung cancer, according to a Temple University researcher.

The discovery of the latest gene, called PTP-gamma, was announced by molecular geneticist Carlo Croce at a meeting of the American Association for Cancer Research in Houston. The study by Croce and colleagues will be published in the June 1 issue of the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

Other geneticists said the study bolsters the growing evidence that some cancers require the presence of several genetic defects before cells can begin their out-of-control growth.

Croce said Wednesday that PTP-gamma works to check the growth of cancerous tumors in the lung. This gene is missing from the cells of many lung cancer patients, Croce said, allowing lung cells to grow unchecked.

Scientists believe that if the action of the suppressor gene can be understood, then researchers could develop an agent, such as a protein, that mimics the work of the gene and stop cancer growth.

Lung cancer is the nation's leading cancer killer. For the last 60 years, while death rates for other forms of cancer have declined, the death rate from lung cancer has steadily increased. It kills 87 percent of its victims within five years.

Croce's research team found the gene on chromosome 3, one of the 23 pairs of human chromosomes.

The University of Colorado's Dr. York Miller, who studies the genetics of lung cancer, said the study was "a promising lead to follow up."

Miller said a number of genes on chromosome 3 have been linked to lung and kidney cancers, and that Croce's findings add to the overall picture of what causes tumors.

Croce said several genes are probably involved in the formation of lung cancer, but that PTP-gamma appears to be one of the most important.

"If it's not this gene, then it's very close to it," he said.

The researchers tested tumor tissue from of 40 lung cancer patients, and the portion of chromosome 3 that contains PTP-gamma was deleted in about half the tumor cells, buttressing the idea that it may play a role in suppressing malignant changes.

Researchers find cause of Lou Gehrig's disease

BOSTON (AP) — Doctors have zeroed in on a gene that causes Lou Gehrig's disease, an early but important step toward understanding and eventually treating the lethal disorder.

The researchers described their work as the first major advance toward unraveling the cause of the disease since it was identified 122 years ago.

Two teams of scientists, working together, narrowed the location of the gene to a single small stretch of one of the 23 chromosomes that carry all of the body's blueprints. They hope to isolate the culprit gene, figure out how it goes wrong and then design treatments to correct the defect.

Until now, Lou Gehrig's disease — amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, or ALS — has been an almost complete mystery. No one knows what causes it or how to stop or even slow its lethal progression.

"This is an important first step toward developing a treatment for ALS," said Dr. Lawrence Z. Stern, research director of the Muscular Dystrophy Association, which helped finance the research.

The disease strikes about 5,000 Americans each year, and patients typically die within five years. The disease destroys nerve cells in the brain and spinal cord, resulting in muscle wasting, paralysis and death.

It is named after Gehrig, the New York Yankees first baseman who died of it in 1941. Other victims included former Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y.; musician Charlie Mingus, and actor David Niven. Physicist Stephen Hawking is among the notable living victims of ALS.

The research was directed by Dr. Teepu Siddique of Northwestern University and published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

"This is a difficult disease," said Siddique. "A hundred years of research has not yielded a clue as to what causes the disease or how to treat it. This is the first time that we have a handle on the disease. We have a program by which we can discover what causes these neurons to die. Having that information will allow us to think of rational treatment."

The genetic material in each cell in the body contains about 3 billion bits of information. The researchers believe they have narrowed the location of the gene involved in Lou Gehrig's disease to just 10 million bits on one stretch of chromosome 21.

The researchers — at Duke University, where Siddique worked until recently, and at Massachusetts General Hospital — pooled their information on 510 members of 23 families in which the disease was inherited.

The nation's health: successes and failures

Ten years ago, the U.S. Public Health Service set 226 health objectives to be met by 1990. Sixty-five appear out of reach, but 102 have been met or are considered "on track." (Assessments based on latest available data.) Here is a sampling:

☑ Achieved or on track ☒ Not achieved

Goals		Status
No births to girls 14 or under	☒	10,000 expected this year
Bring smoking rates to below 25 percent of adults	☑	Rate was 28.7 percent in 1987; down from 33.5 in 1979

STATE IN BRIEF

■ School bans use of Confederate flag

SAN ANTONIO — The principal of Robert E. Lee High School said the Confederate flag will be banned from school uniforms and activities because some students believe it is racist.

"We are not going to suspend students if they have it on a T-shirt or backpack — that's an individual choice. But as an institution, we are not going to use it," Lee principal Bill Fish said Tuesday.

Fish said the flag gradually has been phased out as a decoration for athletic uniforms.

He said he discussed with the school's student council what to do about the situation, and added that the student group was split on the issue.

The principal said he has received phone calls from people asking whether the school will change its name.

"We're not changing the name of the school, and we're not going to stop playing 'Dixie' at football games," Fish said.

■ Harris hospital employees face layoffs

HOUSTON — More than 100 employees of the Harris County Hospital District face losing their jobs as the district tries to cut its budget by more than 10 percent.

The board voted Tuesday to cut $35 million from its $340 million budget after the Harris County Commissioners Court rejected the first budget.

Under the plan, the area's premier trauma center, Ben Taub Hospital, will lose 43 beds and Lyndon B. Johnson Hospital will lose 66 beds. In addition, $6.7 million will be cut from payments to Baylor College of Medicine and the University of Texas Medical School at Houston to staff district facilities.

District president Lois Moore said the 115 employees to be fired with 30 days notice primarily will include clerical and engineering workers.

■ Woman gets life sentence for murder

PARIS — A woman who pleaded guilty to the 1989 murder-for-hire of her husband was sentenced Wednesday to life in prison.

Patricia Rawson Schiernbeck, 39, pleaded guilty to murder in the shooting death of Jerry Rawson. Then she was sentenced to a life prison term by State District Judge Bill Stevens.

Ms. Schiernbeck originally was charged with capital murder, but agreed to plead guilty to the lesser charge. No trial date had been set.

Rawson, 36, was fatally shot while in the couple's Paris home in August 1989.

Ms. Schiernbeck was accused of hiring James Kent of Paris to kill her spouse to collect on his life insurance, according to prosecutors. Kent also was charged with capital murder.

Kent, 32, pleaded guilty in March to the lesser charge of murder, and also received a life prison sentence.

■ SMU to eliminate 79 staff positions

DALLAS — Officials at Southern Methodist University are eliminating 130 staff positions to reduce expenditures by 9 percent, but only 79 of those positions are currently filled.

SMU officials stressed that none of the faculty would lose their jobs, and academic programs would be unaffected.

Officials said those affected by the cuts will receive four to eight weeks of salary, depending on job classification or years of service.

■ Bill would allow wine with personal labels

AUSTIN — Under a bill approved by the Texas Senate, people could have wine labeled with their name.

The bill allows wineries located in "wet areas" to manufacture and label for adults up to 30 gallons of wine a year for personal use.

The bill, which would amend numerous sections of the Alcoholic Beverage Code, was returned to the House with amendments on a 29-0 vote Wednesday.

Texans released after being captured in Iraq

TEXARKANA (AP) — Two Texans who were held in Iraq for nearly a week after crossing into the country to take some photographs have been released, a relative said.

Carolyn Grams said her husband, John, and Juan Gonzalez were released unharmed Monday night. The story also was confirmed by public information officials at the Red River Army Depot.

Grams, of Hooks, is a civilian volunteer from the Red River Army Depot. Gonzales is affiliated with the Corpus Christi Army Depot, Mrs. Grams said.

The two men decided May 14 to go into Kuwait. But the pair ventured into Iraq to take some pictures, according to Mrs. Grams.

Grams told his wife when they returned to a security checkpoint on the Kuwait-Iraq border, the Iraqis confiscated their car and took them into custody.

Co-workers became worried when the men didn't show up for work May 15, and reported them missing.

Grams told his wife he was moved several times, but was not hurt. They were released in Baghdad on Monday, and taken to Dhahran, Saudi Arabia.

Knicks decide

NEW YORK (NYT) — The New York Knicks revealed Wednesday what most basketball followers already knew: Pat Riley is the choice to fill their coaching vacancy.

"We're going to offer Pat the job; we've opened discussions with him" said Knicks president Dave Checketts, who accepted John MacLeod's resignation almost three weeks ago as the team's fifth coach in the last five years.

Asked whether he thought Riley would accept the job, Checketts said:

"I'm not confident but we're going to make our best effort to get him. I think he wants to do it. There is no time frame; we're going to give him a reasonable amount of time to make his decision."

Since resigning as the Los Angeles Lakers' coach after last season, Riley has been co-host of "Showtime," the television program that precedes National Basketball Association games on NBC. He reportedly earns $400,000 at NBC and commands a reported $25,000 fee as a highly sought motivational speaker.

Riley was on Lake Lanier Island in Georgia Wednesday night giving one of those talks to an AT&T technical seminar and could not be reached immediately for comment.

Barkley flip flops

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Charles Barkley, after meeting with the owner and the coach of the 76ers, now wants to spend the rest of his career in Philadelphia.

Barkley

When the Sixers were faltering in the NBA playoffs, the rumors started that Barkley was ready to leave the team and he fueled those rumors by saying, when asked if he would stay, "Not with the same team we've got now."

But Barkley told the Daily News Wednesday that he met with coach Jim Lynam and owner Harold Katz for two hours on Tuesday and that "It was a great meeting."

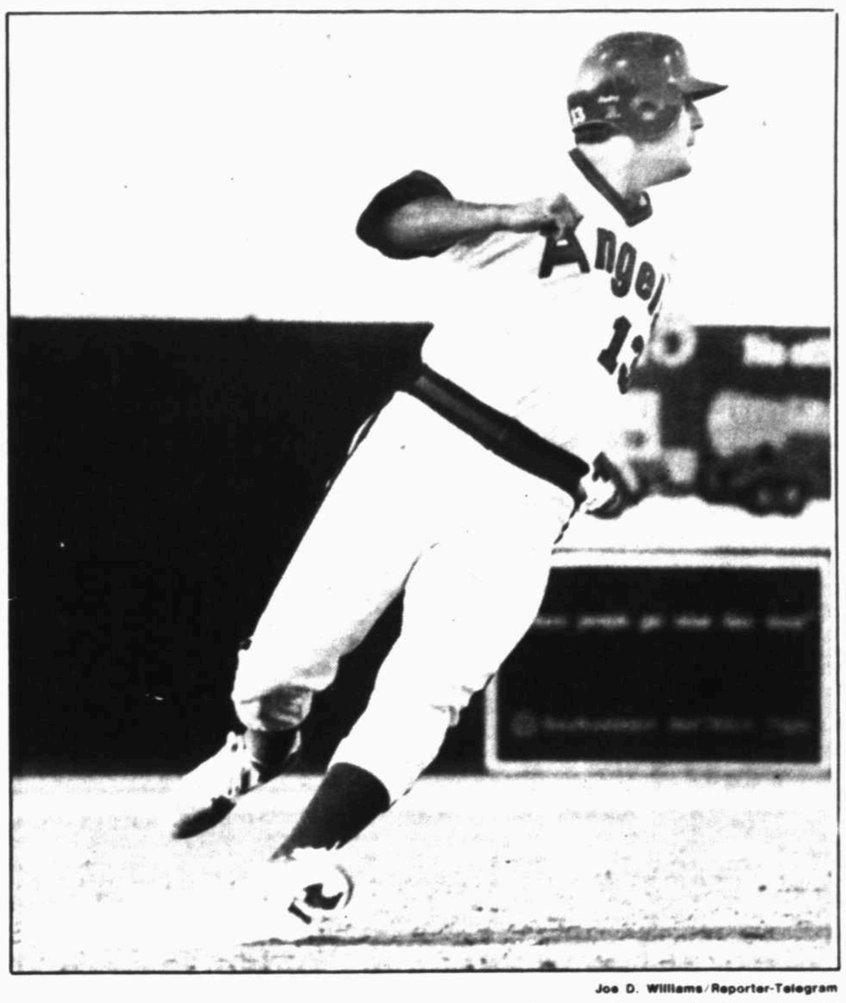

"All I want is for us to get some help," Barkley said. "It was either that or it was time for me to move on. I told them that two weeks ago."

As to how he feels after the meeting, Barkley said, "I want to play the rest of my career in Philadelphia."

Angels down Travs

Joe D. Williams/Reporter-Telegram

Midland's Larry Gonzales rounds third on his way home in the fourth inning Wednesday night.

■ Midland ends its home stand at 7-3, as the Angels defeat Arkansas 11-4 before taking to the road for 10 games.

By Bill Price
Staff Writer

Midland is finding out just how good it feels to win.

The Angels, who started off the season with a horrendous 7-20 start in the Texas League this season, capped a 10-game home stand with an 11-4 victory over Arkansas Wednesday at Angels Stadium.

The win gave Midland a 7-3 record in the home set, and a 4-1 series edge over the Travelers.

"Time goes by a lot faster when you're winning. You don't even worry about the individual things because if you win, they take care of themselves," said right fielder Tim Salmon, who broke out of a batting funk with a 3-for-3 effort Wednesday.

Salmon, who started the season with a hot hand and despite the slump is still in second place in the TL with nine home runs, found a new way to use his lumber.

"I've been getting pitched a little differently, getting a lot of off-speed stuff away from me. But I hit three off-speed pitches for base hits tonight, so that's a good sign," he said.

The win makes the Angels 15-25 for the season, while Arkansas fell to 10-24. But early on, it looked like Midland might be in for another night like Tuesday, when the Travelers broke the Angels' five-

Rangers win ninth straight

■ Extra-inning win over Minnesota gives Texas a club record in consecutive victories.

MINNEAPOLIS — The Texas Rangers, taking the lead on Rafael Palmeiro's double in the 12th inning, won a club-record ninth straight game by beating the Minnesota Twins 5-2 Wednesday night.

The victory also gave the Rangers — who had won eight straight five times in club history — the longest winning streak in the majors this season. Seattle had won eight straight from April 15-23.

Jack Daugherty, who tied the game with a sacrifice fly in the ninth, led off the 12th with a single off Carl Willis (1-1). After Geno Petralli sacrificed, Brian Downing singled. Palmeiro then doubled down the right field line score Daugherty and Juan Gonzalez added a two-run single one out later.

Gerald Alexander (2-0) pitched three innings for the victory and Jeff Russell worked the 12th for his 10th save.

The Rangers trailed 2-1 entering the ninth, but Minnesota reliever Rick Aguilera's wildness helped them tie the game.

Ruben Sierra led off with a walk and stole second. After Gonzalez struck out, Aguilera intentionally walked pinch-hitter Kevin Reimer and then unintentionally walked Steve Buechele to load the bases.

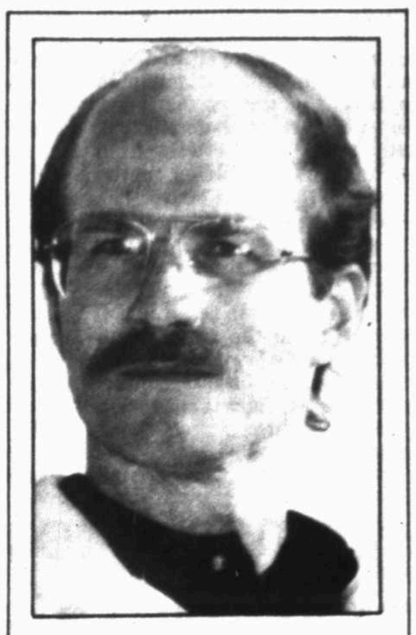

Daugherty, pinch-hitting for Mario Diaz, hit a sacrifice fly.

Hall joins father; career on hold

EDITOR'S NOTE: Midland has a four-way ownership connection in the Indianapolis 500 this year. The Reporter-Telegram takes a look in a four-part series at the four co-owners of the Hall/VDS team. Today, in part three, we profile Jim Hall Jr.

Staff Report

Jim Hall Jr. grew up working on his father's race cars during summer vacations from school. Now, for the first time, he is involved full time with the legend himself — Jim Hall.

Hall Jr. is co-owner and general manager of the Hall/VDS racing team that made its debut this year in the CART PPG Indy car circuit with a victory in Surfer's Paradise, Australia, under the bright yellow banner of Pennzoil, the team's major sponsor.

Meanwhile, a kart racing school Hall Jr. founded in 1982 in Ventura, Calif., will continue operations and will even expand. He is one of the nation's most successful entrepreneurs in the field of motor racing instruction. He recently congratulated his 10,000th graduate.

Completing his undergraduate work at UC Santa Barbara in 1981, Hall began planning his own motor sports career and business. In 1982, the same year his father retired from Indy car racing, Hall Jr. opened the Jim Hall Kart Racing School as a means of staying active in motor sports, which he had come to love.

He pioneered the teaching of kart racing to corporate executives in 1988 as a means of reducing work-related stress. During his Indy car season, Hall Jr.'s kart school property will be operated by general manager Carol Smith and chief instructor Eric Campbell.

In 1987 and 1988, Hall Jr. attended some race driving schools himself, taking courses at Drivers' Connection, Willow Springs; Jim Russell School, Laguna Seca; and the Bob Bondurant School, Sears Point, in preparation for Another day, another manager fired ...

Wathan demoted to head scapegoat in KC

Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Kansas City Royals, who have lavished more than $33 million on free agents the past two years without rising higher than next-to-last, on Wednesday fired manager John Wathan.

Wathan

Coach Bob Schaefer was named interim manager on his 47th birthday. General manager Herk Robinson said a permanent replacement would be named, possibly as early as Friday. Immediate speculation included former New York Mets manager Davey Johnson and Hal McRae, a member of the Royals' Hall of Fame who was offered the job in 1987 ahead of Wathan. McRae is now hitting coach at Montreal.

"John Wathan probably does not deserve full blame for this," said Robinson, refusing to discuss possible replacements. "I wish we had a more creative way to fix a situation like this. Had there been, we would have used it."

Wathan, 41, has spent virtually his entire adult life in the Kansas City organization. He leaves with a 287-270 record that includes a sixth place finish in the AL West last year and a 15-22 mark this season that has the Royals, who once dominated their division, in last place.

"It came down to the fact that we simply were not winning enough games," Robinson said. "Whether that was through strategy or motivation or intensity, or whatever, we simply weren't winning enough games. I don't know that it's the manager's fault, per se. We have 25 players, coaches, a manager, and me in the front office. I think it represents a degree of failure on everybody. But I think it was necessary that some change be made."

The move was neither unexpected nor welcomed by the players.

"He's the same guy who won 92 games for us two years ago," said first baseman George Brett, who signed a lucrative new contract the previous day. "It's easier to get rid of one guy. I just feel for him."

"It's unfortunate for him that we were playing so bad," said pitcher Bret Saberhagen. "But when a team's struggling as much as we are..."

Wathan, a Royal from 1976-1985 as a backup first baseman, catcher and outfielder, was given a one-year extension last September, one day after the Royals lost their ninth in a row. Unassuming and low-key, he came under increasing heat this season from fans and media

■ The Chicago Cubs complete their managerial shuffle by naming minor league manager Jim Essian to replace the fired Don Zimmer.

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Chicago Cubs chose youth over experience Wednesday, hiring Jim Essian from the minors a day after firing manager Don Zimmer.

Essian

The 40-year-old Essian became the youngest manager in the majors, taking over a team loaded with big names and big salaries but just an 18-20 record.

Essian, a major-league catcher for 10 seasons, began managing in the minors in 1985. He was with the Cubs' Triple A Iowa team when he got the call for his first big-league job.

Zimmer boasted 43 years in pro baseball as a player, coach and manager — three years longer than it took Essian to become a major-league manager. Zimmer led the Cubs to the 1989 National League East title and was a near unanimous choice as manager of the year, but was unable to inspire a team many picked this year to win the division.

"I'm under no great pressure at this point to make great changes or use some sort of pseudo-psychology on the team," Essian said at a news conference at Shea Stadium prior to Wednesday night's game against the Mets. "With the players the caliber of a Ryne Sandberg, Andre Dawson, George Bell and Mark Grace, I just think we need a little spark. My challenge is to provide that spark."

General manager Jim Frey said Essian was the only candidate seriously considered, and he was hired through the 1992 season.

"I just felt a lot better picking someone we were familiar with and was familiar with us," Frey said.

Davey Johnson's name came up as a possible successor, but the former Mets manager was not a serious candidate.

The 60-year-old Zimmer was fired Tuesday after the Cubs started poorly despite the signing of All-Star free agents George Bell, Danny Jackson and Dave Smith. On Wednesday, Kansas City fired John Wathan, the third manager let go this season. Last month, Philadelphia fired Nick Leyva and replaced him with Jim Fregosi.

Essian guided the Des Moines-based Iowa Cubs to a 22-15 record this season and first place in the American Association's West Division. He has a 446-390 record as a minor-league manager.

ANGELS: Rivers hits first homer if year

game win streak, 12-6.

The Travs pecked away at Midland starter Alan Sontag for 4⅓ innings, gathering 10 hits and a 4-3 edge before Mike Butcher was brought in to put out the fire in the fifth.

Butcher, Mark Zappelli and Marvin Cobb combined to dumbfound the Travs the rest of the game, retiring 12 straight before Frank Abreu reached on a walk from Cobb in the ninth. Butcher got the win to go 3-3 for the year.

While the Halo hurlers were having their way with Arkansas, the Angel offense also came alive in a five-run fifth. Midland shook Trav starter Donovan Osborne (1-4) for five hits in the frame, with catcher Ken Rivers smacking his first home run of the year, a three-run shot to left field that broke a 4-4 tie and put the Angels ahead for good.

"The first pitch he threw me was a curveball, and I was ready for anything the next pitch. It was a curveball right down the middle and I got a good swing," the Sannicolss, Aruba native said.

"I though it was going to hit against the fence, but their left fielder (Mike Fiore) said that it went about 15 feet over."

Midland first baseman Mark Howie, who entered the game with a .361 average, went 2-for-5 with a two-RBI single in the eighth inning. He now has hit safely in 22 of the Angels' last 24 games. Designated hitter Larry Gonzales also helped spark Midland with a 3-for-5 showing, while second baseman Kevin Flora was 2-for-5.

Leading Arkansas was first baseman John Sellick, whose two-run homer in the third gave him five for the season, as he and right fielder Cliff Brannon both went 2-for-4.

The Angels now hit the road for five games at Jackson and five at Arkansas before returning home June 4 against San Antonio.

MC men's tennis team takes third at nationals

Staff Report

TYLER — Midland College defeated McLennan College, 5-1, in dual match action to claim third place at the National Junior College Athletic Association team tennis championships Wednesday in Tyler.

The Chaps lost, 5-2, to host Tyler Junior College Tuesday, after being ranked No. 1 all season. The loss forced MC to accept no better than a third place finish.

MC's No. 1 player Tonny Van de Pieterman defeated Juan Gutierrez, 6-2, 6-0, in the No. 1 singles bracket. The Chaps' only loss came at the No. 2 singles spot, a 6-3, 6-4 loss by Greg Muller to Matteo Bares.

Rain hampered play all day at the tournament; at press time, the championship dual match between Tyler and Anderson (S.C.) College was still being played. Play was scheduled to beging at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday; MC's No. 6 singles player, Robin Van Beveran, did not begin the match he would eventually win over Glenn Henderson, 6-2, 6-3, until 9:20 p.m.

The MC men begin play in the flighted individual championship tournament beginning today.

The Chaps have three No. 1 singles seeds in Van de Pieterman (first flight), Berhe Serekebrhan (fifth flight) and Robin Van Beveran (sixth flight).

NFL owners vote to expand by two teams

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — NFL owners voted Wednesday to add two expansion teams for play in 1994, with realignment of the six divisions likely.

An expansion committee will review communities seeking franchises and recommend to the 28 teams a list of final candidate communities no later than the NFL meetings next March.

By the fall of 1992, the final selection of two expansion teams will be made — with one proviso.

"Unless the commissioner and expansion committee determine that labor-management issues constitute an impediment to such an expansion timetable," league spokesman Joe Browne said, "expansion teams will be selected then."

Commissioner Paul Tagliabue established a second-phase expansion committee on Wednesday, which he will chair. He also named three of the five members of that committee — Philadelphia Eagles owner Norman Braman, Cleveland Browns owner Art Modell and San Francisco 49ers owner Ed DeBartolo Jr.

The other two members will be named within 30 days, Browne said.

Wednesday's vote to go ahead with expansion plans required a two-thirds majority, or 21 affirmative votes. Tagliabue said "it got more than 21."

Ultimate decisions on both expansion and realignment will require the two-thirds majority.

No price tag has been set or was even discussed Wednesday, Browne said. The criteria for acquiring an expansion team will be handled by the newly formed committee, which also will interview all applicants.

The NFL has not expanded since Seattle and Tampa Bay began play in 1976.

Browne said the 28 teams "will consider and act upon realignment recommendations in conjunction with the decision-making on expansion." But all realignment recommendations will be done by the league office, then voted on by the teams.

In other NFL news at the meetings, the 28 clubs approved a provision allowing an extra quarterback to dress for games.

HALL: Ambitions put on hold

moving up from kart racing to two professional SCCA road racing series in 1989.

In karts, Hall won scores of races and several championships from 1979 to 1988, culminating in a double victory in the 1988 Enduro World Championships at Daytona International Speedway in a 125 cc superkart of his own design.

However, Hall Jr. has put his own racing ambitions on hold to become involved at the very top level of American racing, joining his father, Franz Weis and Count Rudy van der Straten, all of Midland, as co-owners and the heart of the Hall/VDS team.

Hall Jr., and his wife Annie, have relocated from Ventura, Calif., to Midland where the Hall/VDS team is based.

Prices drop

NEW YORK (AP) — Gasoline futures prices fell sharply Wednesday as U.S. stockpiles increased for the second straight week.

The decline in the prices of unleaded regular gasoline futures dragged crude oil prices lower in trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange. Higher crude oil inventories also pressured prices.

Wholesale unleaded gasoline for June delivery dropped 1.87 cents to 66.97 cents a gallon, with subsequent months also declining.

West Texas Intermediate for July delivery fell 23 cents to $20.83 per 42-gallon barrel. Later contract months also fell.

Natural gas futures gained 0.6 cent to $1.336 per 1,000 cubic feet. Later months were mostly lower.

TI layoffs

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Instruments Inc. gave layoff notice to 280 workers Tuesday, most in the company's defense systems and electronics group.

About 190 of the idled employees work at plants in Dallas. Another 45 are in McKinney and 29 are in Lewisville. The rest were from facilities outside of Texas.

The 260 defense and electronics workers given notice Tuesday bring to 1,000 the number of employees in that segment laid off by Texas Instruments this year. The moves have been made because of reduced government spending on defense, the company said.

"We expect the national defense budget decline to continue for at least the first half of the 1990s," said company spokeswoman Terri West. "In that environment, it's essential that we align our defense business with the market."

Dollar gains

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar rose on technical factors in extremely quiet trading Wednesday.

Gold prices closed lower.

The dollar closed at 137.80 yen in New York, up from 137.30 late Tuesday.

The British pound slipped against the dollar. Sterling fell to $1.7280 in New York from $1.7370 on Tuesday.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Tuesday's prices, included: 1.7227 German marks, up from 1.7128; 1.4602 Swiss francs, up from 1.4485; 5.8455 French francs, up from 5.8140; 1,279.00 Italian lire, up from 1,272.00; and 1.14975 Canadian dollars, up from 1.14895.

Tanker ban prompts lawsuit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A group of oil companies led by Chevron Corp. filed a federal lawsuit Wednesday opposing a ban on using tankers to ship crude from the offshore Point Arguello oil field to Southern California refineries.

The lawsuit claims damages exceeding $100,000 a day due to delay in shipping oil. It seeks to enjoin Santa Barbara County from barring future use of sea tankers and an order forcing the county to grant a tankering permit.

The county late last year refused to issue a tankering permit for the partnership of oil companies.

Partners in the Point Arguello project estimate the field holds reserves of 300 million barrels of oil and over 500 billion cubic feet of natural gas, the largest find in the western United States since Alaska's Prudhoe Bay.

Companies in the partnership are the operator, the subsidiary Chevron U.S.A. Inc., and 17 others, including units of Texaco Inc., Phillips Petroleum Co., Pennzoil Co., Union Pacific Resources Co., Oryx Energy Co. and Koch Industries Inc. Three pipeline companies also were listed.

The county counsel's office was not able to immediately comment on the lawsuit, which was filed in U.S. District Court in Los Angeles.

The lawsuit claims that Santa Barbara County's actions have caused a project valued at more than $2 billion to stand idle while violating state and federal laws and depriving the partners' constitutional rights.

Three offshore platforms on federal leases, two pipelines, an onshore processing plant and a marine terminal were built after the county made many decisions between 1984 and 1988 that authorized the project, the lawsuit says.

The partners complain that the county adopted ordinances allowing the crude to be transported to Los Angeles-area refineries by tanker but then misapplied the ordinances to deny use of tankers.

They contend the county-supported plan for moving the oil by pipelines is not feasible for economic and environmental reasons.

The companies said in a statement they have all necessary permits to begin producing as much as 100,000 barrels of oil a day and intend to start production on a limited basis in June, moving oil on existing pipelines.

Those pipelines, however, cannot move large amounts of oil and do not serve the Los Angeles market, the companies said.

AT&T may lease its building to Sony

N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — In what is shaping up as one of the biggest real estate deals in New York City this year, American Telephone & Telegraph Co. has tentatively agreed to lease its headquarters building, one of Manhattan's architectural highlights, to Sony Corp., real estate executives said Wednesday.

A proposed 20-year lease with an option to buy the 8-year-old tower, which is sheathed in rosy granite and is sometimes called the Chippendale skyscraper for its pediment resembling the top of an 18th-century highboy, would consolidate Sony USA's corporate presence in New York.

Sony, the Japanese consumer electronics giant that has spent about $5 billion acquiring CBS Records and Columbia Pictures in the last four years, was searching for a corporate home in New York that would reflect its presence and prestige.

Neither Sony nor AT&T would comment Wednesday on whether they were negotiating a lease on the property on Madison Avenue between 55th and 56th streets.

"We are not going to comment on discussions we've had or are having with prospective tenants," said Walter Murphy, vice president for corporate communication at AT&T.

Robert Zito, a vice president of Sony USA, said, "We continue to look at options, and beyond that we have no comment."

But several real estate executives in New York said an agreement was all but done, although they added that negotiations were continuing on some important points, like whether to name the skyscraper the Sony Building and the exact nature of the purchase option. The building's purchase price would be in the range of $320 million, some executives said.

The leasing of the building, which has received about $39 million in property tax breaks from the city since 1978, is something of an epilogue to the dismemberment of the old Bell telephone network.

The tower, with its grand four-story lobby housing the company's longtime symbol, a 24-foot-high winged statue known as "Golden Boy," was completed just months before the telephone monopoly was broken up and the seven regional telephone companies were spun off. It cost some $200 million to build.

MCI tries electronic billboard promotion

DALLAS (AP) — MCI Communications fired a new salvo in its war with long distance rival AT&T by setting up electronic billboards that change by the second with how much money its customers have purportedly saved.

The high-tech billboards, including two in Dallas, have running digital tallies like those used at car factories that show how many models have been produced.

The billboards began counting Monday at $469 million, the figure MCI officials said its customers saved in 1990. The numbers increase by $15 a second, or $1.3 million daily.

"It's manifestation of competition in this industry, which is fierce," said Stephen McGregor, a company spokesman. "It's not unlike the airlines. It's incredibly competitive."

McGregor said the billboards show consumers how much money they could save by switching to MCI.

"This kind of stuff is a gimmick, nothing more and nothing less," said Mark Siegel, an AT&T spokesman.

The difference in long-distance prices, Siegel said, can be just pennies a call and most consumers determine their carrier based on price, quality and service.

Siegel does not know yet whether AT&T will respond to MCI's pitch.

A week ago, MCI copied an AT&T tactic by mailing $20 to AT&T patrons to persuade them to switch services.

When consumers cash the checks, they automatically agree to switch to MCI.

Money market funds mixed

N.Y. Times News Service

Yields of money market funds monitored by IBC/Donoghue's Money Fund Report were mixed for the week that ended Wednesday.

Analysts at IBC/Donoghue's say short-term interest rates are still coming down, but if economic indicators show that the recession is near its end, they expect money market yields to settle near their present levels since the Federal Reserve may not lower interest rates further.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Buyers should use caution with gemstones

By Bill Doyle

Doyle

Q. I began investing in gemstones in May 1990 with a small purchase from a firm in Toronto, Canada. The sales representative promised the value of the gemstone I bought would increase by 30 or 40 percent within three months. In August, I traded that stone and more money for a larger stone. The sales rep promised to liquidate my new stone at another 30 to 40 percent profit in the middle of October.

I phoned on October 16. The sales rep asked me to trade up to a bigger gemstone, which would mean I would have paid a total of more than $12,000. I felt this was fishy, because I hadn't received any actual profit from the beginning. I asked the rep to sell my stone, which had been shipped to me.

Since then, I have called him often. He replies that I didn't follow his advice; there is low buying demand; they made a mistake predicting the price; the gemstone market is very different from the stock market, etc.

To prevent further loss, I asked the rep to sell the stone — at any price. I'm still waiting for an answer, hopelessly. Am I being ripped off?

A. Absolutely! And the pity is that it took you so long to wake up to that unhappy fact.

You fell for one of the most blatant con jobs in the telephone marketing business, which is shot full of deceptive and downright dishonest operators.

Your chances of recovering any money, much less the price you paid, from that Canadian outfit are virtually nil.

My advice is to take that gemstone to a number of jewelers and ask if they will buy it and what price they will pay. Be prepared for a shock.

Even if on the off chance your stone has value, which is doubtful, there is no way you will recover your purchase price. The difference between the retail price at which dealers sell gemstones to the public and wholesale price at which they buy can be 100 percent or more.

If you were lucky and have a precious gemstone, such as a ruby, sapphire or emerald, or a semiprecious stone, such as tourmaline, spinel, aquamarine, topaz, chrysoberyl, peridot, garnet or tanzanite, the profits that sales rep promised are still outlandish.

Even with a gemstone showing moderate rises in value, you would have to hang on for years, just to overcome the markup and break even.

Q. You often refer to the "full faith and credit of the U.S. government" when addressing the safety of U.S. Treasury securities and certificates of deposit covered by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

If the national debt continues to grow at its usual rate, which I believe is inevitable, every cent collected by the government will be needed to pay interest on that debt. In other words, the U.S. government will be bankrupt.

If we are facing such a financial collapse, shouldn't prudent people buy gold coins and bullion, not as investments, but as a means for survival?

A. You "gold bugs" never give up. Have you looked at the price of the yellow metal lately? It's down near $350 an ounce, after peaking at $875 in January 1980.

The national debt is more than worrisome. It's horrible. But legislation to control the federal deficit and eventually reduce it has been enacted. And the government has the power to raise taxes to meet its obligations.

Q. I read that a man could buy a fine suit of clothes for one ounce of gold in 1976. The same applies today. Doesn't that indicate that gold is the best hedge against inflation?

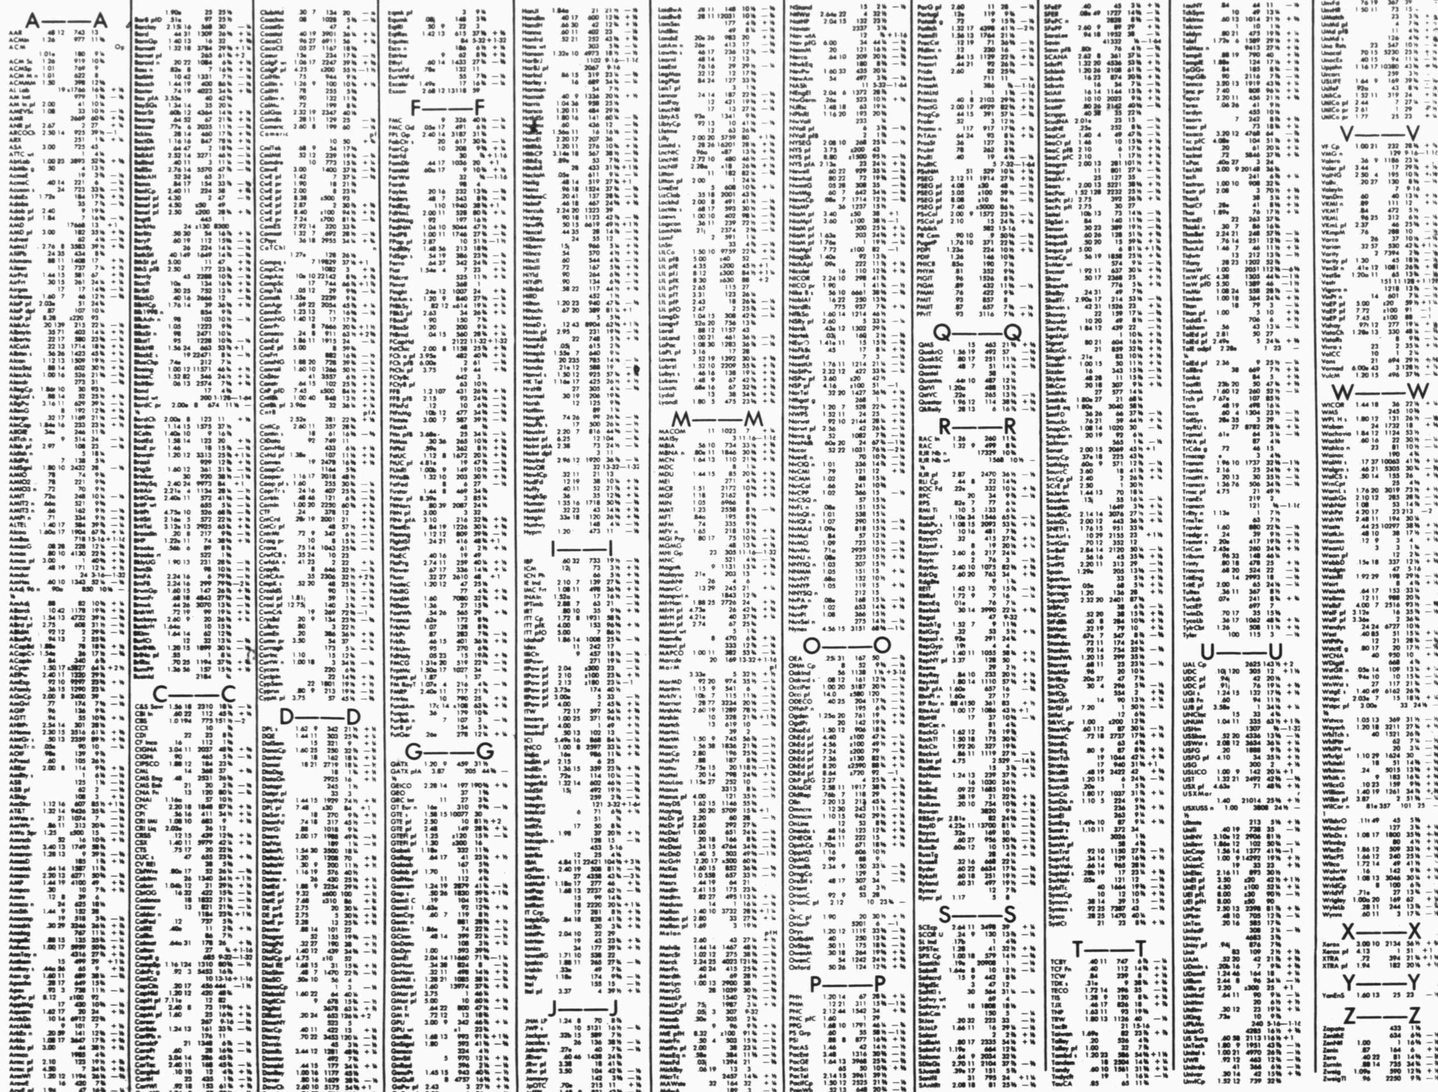

A. Go price men's suits. You'll find that a high-quality set of threads goes for more than the $350 an ounce of gold fetches.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, failing to extend Tuesday's advance.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 13.86 points on Tuesday, rose 2.24 to 2,908.32 by 2 p.m. today on Wall Street.

But losers slightly outnumbered gainers in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 711 up, 740 down and 531 unchanged.

Most analysts agree that stocks have lately been following the dictates of the bond market, where interest rates continue to waver uncertainly.

In addition, brokers said many stock-market participants appeared to have adopted a cautious approach awaiting clearer signs of a recovery from the recession.

The sharp rise in stock prices early this year was widely attributed to expectations that the economy would begin to pull out of its slump.

The question now, as many observers see it, is whether those hopes will prove to have been justified or excessive.

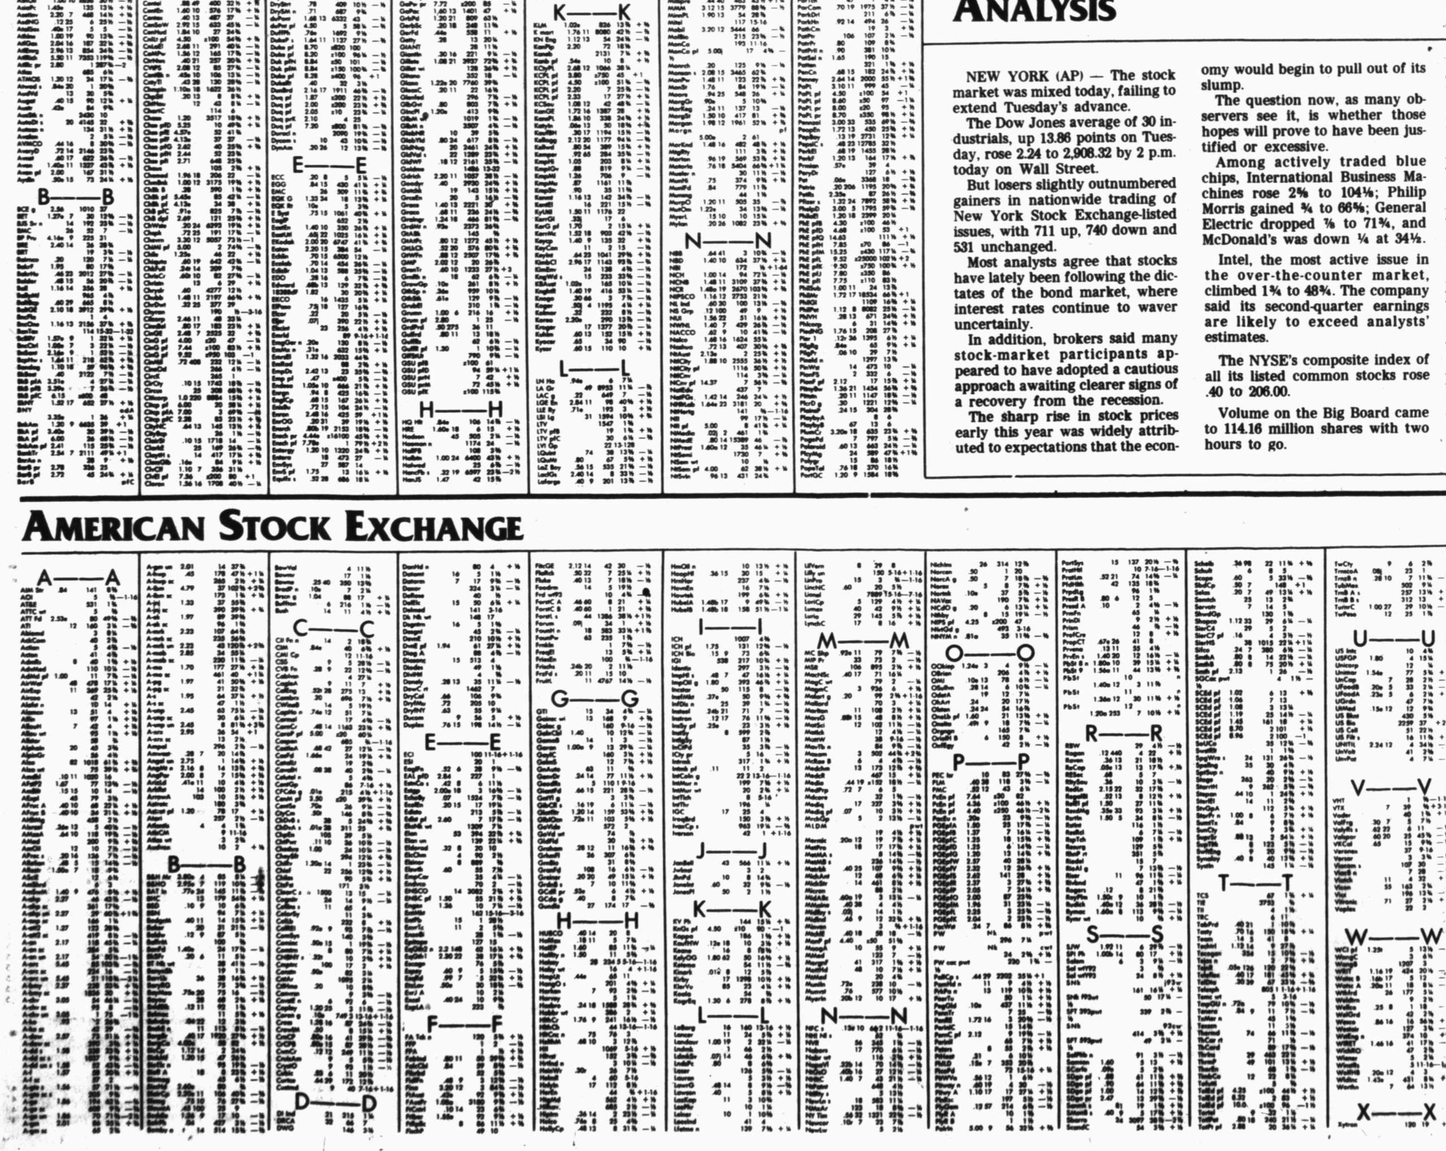

Among actively traded blue chips, International Business Machines rose 2⅝ to 104¼; Philip Morris gained ¾ to 66⅝; General Electric dropped ⅞ to 71¾, and McDonald's was down ¼ at 34½.

Intel, the most active issue in the over-the-counter market, climbed 1¾ to 48¾. The company said its second-quarter earnings are likely to exceed analysts' estimates.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .40 to 206.00.

Volume on the Big Board came to 114.16 million shares with two hours to go.

Vacations expected to be shorter, by car travel industry says

NEW YORK (AP) — As the summer vacation season kicks off this holiday weekend, the travel industry is hoping to shake off the effects of war and recession and revive the sagging tourist trade.

Some in the business say that while hard times shouldn't keep people from traveling, they may spend less and plan shorter trips, visiting family and friends instead of major tourist attractions.

And they're more likely to drive than fly, surveys show.

"Americans still want to take their vacation trips this summer despite the current economic conditions," Suzanne Cook, director of the U.S Travel Data Center, said Wednesday. "They will just be changing from the way they traveled in past summers."

More than 24 million Americans, at least 10 percent of the population, are expected to travel over the Memorial Day holiday, the traditional start of the summer vacation season.

Most will travel by auto, said researchers for the Data Center, a non-profit travel research agency based in Washington, D.C. that based its predictions on a national telephone survey of 1,500 adults.

People are choosing car travel to save money, despite average, nationwide gasoline prices reported by the American Automobile Assocation of around $1.16 a gallon, an 8-cent increase since March.

AAA researchers said greater demand for auto travel routings, up 5 percent for the first four months of the year, indicates about 84 percent of all summer vacationers will travel by car.

"Domestic travel is bursting at the seams," said Courtney MacInnis, spokeswoman for the American Society of Travel Agents. "People are adapting their plans to their budgets."

The latest fare war in the airline business, launched by Northwest Airlines last weekend, should stimulate air travel among families, said Eric Munro, CEO of Uniglobe Wide-World Travel of San Diego.

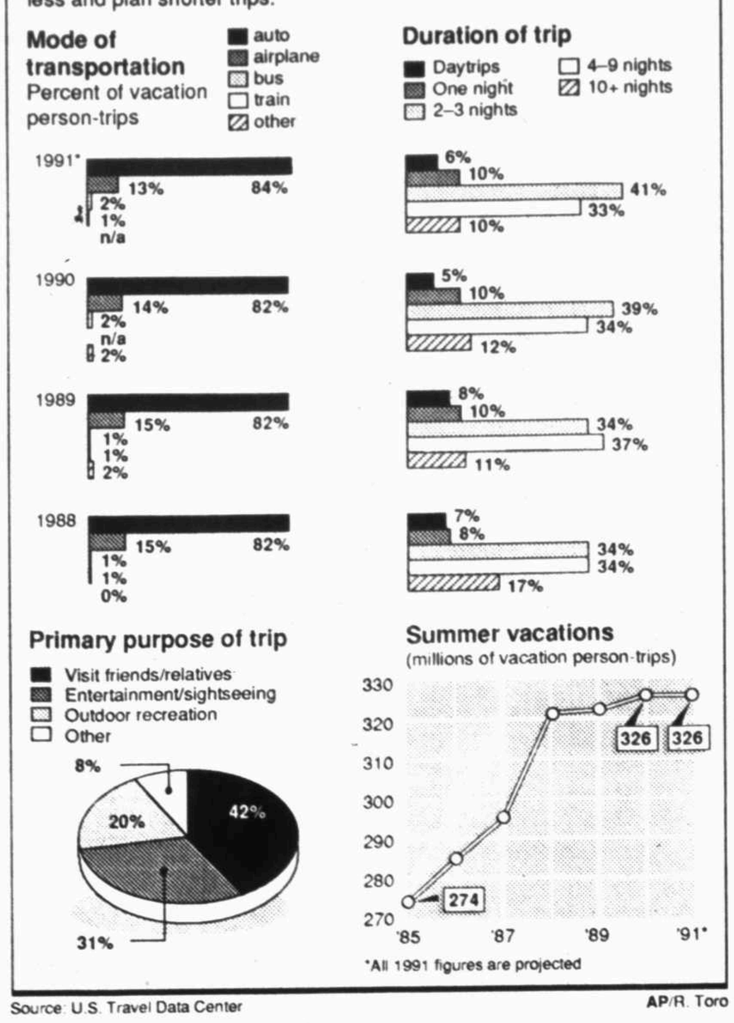

The promotion, which several other carriers matched, offers reduced round-trip fares for adults and half-price tickets for the children who accompany them.

"The market went up right after the war, then flattened out," Munro said.

In an ASTA survey of travel agents released this week, 80 percent of those polled said their clients were planning summer vacations within North America.

Steel industry says profits elusive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite slashing payrolls to a fourth of their former levels and a doubling of productivity in 10 years, the steel industry reported Wednesday that it has fallen into another period of losses.

But executives were optimistic that the downsizing and modernization will pay off once the recession ends.

Steel is a bargain, with "rock bottom" prices so low they don't represent the product's value, said David Hoag, chief executive officer of LTV Corp. He said steel sells for about the same as potatoes and onions — 20 to 27 cents a pound.

In a state-of-the-industry report at a meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute, Hoag said he doubts profitability will return until 1992.

Frank W. Luerssen, chairman of the trade group and of Inland Steel Industries, Inc., was even gloomier about short-term prospects.

Shipments "are at the lowest in years and our member companies are reporting substantial losses with the prospect of more of the same to come," he said.

Hoag said the industry's downsizing achieved its purpose — bringing four years of profits — but once the construction and auto industries and other big users of steel felt the pinch, steel also suffered.

But Hoag said he was optimistic that steel will weather the recession in better shape than it would have if it had not closed many old and inefficient plants in the face of foreign competition. The industry's payrolls have fallen from a high of 650,200 in 1953 to last year's 164,000. Just since the 1982 recession, the industry cut capacity by 30 percent and payrolls by 51 percent, Hoag said.

"Good things have been done and the right things are being worked on and as soon as this recession ends we'll be in good shape," Hoag said.

At a news briefing, other steel executives offered these assessments of the industry's prospects:

—HEALTH CARE. Brian Marsden, president of Acme Steel Co., said the cost of health insurance is a burden in an industry that provides health benefits for employees, retirees and dependents. These costs equal $4.12 per hour worked by active employees, he said, and have grown at a rate 10 times faster than other payroll costs. He said the problem of paying for health care "threatens not only steel but every employer, and every citizen, in this country" and demands a solution from Congress.

—POLLUTION. Joseph A. Cannon, chairman of Geneva Steel Co. and a former official of the Environmental Protection Agency, said direct steelmaking — a process that makes steel without using coke, a form of baked coal — has the potential of resolving the industry's pollution problems.

—EDUCATION. Herbert Elish, chairman of Weirton Steel Corp., called on the industry to promote "lifelong learning" training programs that would give all employees a chance to continue their educations and adapt to technological demands. "The educational pipeline is producing an inadequate supply of highly trained people," he said, and business "must help reverse the decline in student achievement."

Thornburgh supervised Exxon case before waiver

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Dick Thornburgh supervised the Exxon Valdez oil spill case for at least a year before obtaining a conflict-of-interest waiver to participate in a case involving his financial holdings.

Thornburgh received the waiver in March to approve the now-collapsed settlement with Irving-based Exxon Corp. for the 1989 Alaska oil spill because he has $32,296 worth of investments in two corporate owners of the Trans Alaska pipeline.

The Associated Press obtained a copy of the waiver Tuesday.

A Thornburgh aide denied the attorney general discussed any aspect of the Justice Department investigation of the pipeline operators, which sources say was under way as early as February 1990 when Exxon was indicted on environmental charges.

But in seeking the waiver, Thornburgh told President Bush: "I have personally supervised the overall progress of the matter."

Thornburgh said it was important he not be removed from the case because "my familiarity with, and experience in, this matter to date make it impractical to reassign supervision of the matter to another department official at this late date."

A week after receiving the March 7 waiver, Thornburgh approved the Exxon settlement, which shielded the pipeline operating company and its executives from criminal prosecution.

The agreement also absolved the pipeline consortium, known as the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., of most state and federal civil claims for environmental damage.

Nearly 11 million gallons of crude oil spilled into Prince William Sound when the tanker Exxon Valdez ran aground.

The settlement broke down last month when a federal judge in Alaska said the $100 million fine that Exxon and its tanker subsidiary had agreed to pay for misdemeanor crimes was inadequate. Exxon later withdrew from the civil settlement.

The pipeline is owned by seven oil companies, including Atlantic Richfield Co. and Mobil. When he obtained the waiver, Thornburgh's stock in ARCO was worth $27,296. He also held a $5,000 interest-bearing note from Mobil.

Alyeska was under investigation by the Justice Department for its failure to live up to promises to state and federal authorities that it had a workable plan to contain oil spills.

When the settlement was announced March 13, Justice officials said there was insufficient evidence to prosecute Alyeska.

Alvin A. Schall, an aide to Thornburgh, said the waiver was sought because the attorney general's holdings in the two oil companies represented less than 4 percent of his net worth of $823,171.

Bush signed the waiver, which said the president found that Thornburgh's "financial interest in the matter described is not so substantial as to be deemed likely to affect" his decision-making.

Schall said Thornburgh, who is considering running for Senate from Pennsylvania in a special election this year, did not have a conflict of interest because he was not kept abreast of any matters involving Alyeska.

"I do not recall any such reports to the attorney general involving Alyeska," Schall said. "In fact, even after he got this waiver he received nothing involving Alyeska.

Business news channels merge into single service

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC's Consumer News and Business Channel showed up today with a new partner — its former cable television rival, Financial News Network.

FNN ended nearly a decade in the cable business on Tuesday in the wake of its sale to NBC, which is merging the two business news channels.

Viewers who normally tuned into either service today found a fortified version of CNBC that officials said would combine the best features as well as some of the news staff from both networks.

The daytime schedule will be called CNBC-FNN Daytime, while the evening programming will be known as CNBC Nighttime. The FNN sports service on weekend is being dropped in favor of a talk show format.

Albert Barber, the president of CNBC-FNN, was interviewed this morning on the merged network and told FNN viewers they could expect "everything they saw before and then some."

As part of the merger plan, NBC was expected to hire about 60 of FNN's 280 staff members for the new channel. But it was also closing FNN offices in Los Angeles and New York while retaining the CNBC headquarters in Fort Lee, N.J.

FNN staffers offered their goodbyes to viewers Tuesday.

U.S., Japan grade progress

TOKYO (NYT) — Like two schoolteachers relishing the chance to grade one another, Japan and the United States concluded a novel round of trade talks here Wednesday with modest praise for the progress each had made in economic self-improvement over the last year but harsh criticism for continued shortcomings.

In an atmosphere that alternated between warmth and coolness, the United States found that Japan had taken steps to increase public investment, to make it easier to open large retail stores and to ease regulations on foreign investment in Japan, but had failed to establish new rules for effectively breaking up cartels and other anti-competitive groupings.

After a year of this experimental approach to trade negotiations, it was evident that Japanese officials still regard the United States as profligate and unable to curb its excesses.

Mature figures make splash in newest swimsuit styles

By Valli Herman
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — It's not that you have the wrong body. You have the wrong swimsuit.

Shopping for swimwear can be a decidedly disagreeable task because many suits don't flatter even the fittest of the species, much less those of us who surely evolved from prehistoric cellulite carriers.

And, adding insult to injury, many women tend to find one tolerable suit and keep it until it qualifies for fossilhood.

Such an outdated, worn-to-shreds bathing suit certainly can dampen your spirits.

Remedies aren't so difficult, especially since manufacturers have gotten wise to the wishes of women who don't look like trim teen-agers anymore.

SEVERAL WOMEN volunteered to participate in a swimsuit make-over to show that every body can be beach-beautiful. Experts from swimwear retailers helped each woman select the style that works best with her proportions.

Dale Rosenberg-Stewart of Reseda wanted a new suit to usher in her significant summer birthday. Turning 40 won't be so difficult in the new styles found for her by the specialists at Everything but Water. The store in the Topanga Plaza mall in Canoga Park carries up to 70 brands, in sizes from 6 to 24, and is prepared to outfit women of all ages, tastes and body sizes. (They'll even fit you at home, by appointment, no charge.)

"I think it's every woman's downfall, getting into a swimming suit," Rosenberg-Stewart said. "I wouldn't bat an eye at paying $100 or $120 for a suit if it made me look great."

PHILIPPA BRADLEY, regional manager of Everything but Water, selected suits that emphasize Rosenberg-Stewart's trim midriff, flat stomach and blue eyes. Bradley settled on a $64 one-piece suit by La Blanca with a black bottom that slenderizes her hips and a gathered bandeau top in bright turquoise that adds fullness to her top.

A second suit, an $84 skirted two-piece in black, balanced her figure with its wide shoulder straps, gathered top and flippy skirt.

Rosenberg-Stewart's old suit, a two-piece bandeau with a high-cut leg, created disproportionate interest in her hips; the flimsy bandeau often slipped into a narrow band.

Perhaps the hardest moment of swimsuit truth comes after pregnancy. It is the rare woman who pops back into a bikini with a trim tummy. Six weeks after giving birth to her first child, West Los Angeles pediatrician Mary Teplitz hoped to find a new suit for an upcoming Hawaiian vacation. Teplitz tried on three one-piece suits at Everything but Water and settled on a tropical-print tank suit with a low-slung gather at the stomach. The $64 suit, by Slimsuit, helped the petite Teplitz hold in an abdomen stretched by pregnancy. The tropical print on a dark background complemented her olive skin tone and visually diminished her figure. The higher-cut back and wider straps provided modesty and support.

EVEN WOMEN with seemingly perfect figures can pick the wrong suit. Inappropriate colors or ill-fitting tops or bottoms can, for example, make a flat stomach look full or flatten a full bust.

Diana Meng, a slender, 25-year-old Woodland Hills computer operator, fits easily into bikinis but often opted for too-bright colors or unflattering tops.

Bradley put her in a $66 one-piece halter-top suit by Baja Blue. The wide straps at the shoulders balance with Meng's slightly wider hip bones. The expanse of color covering her torso gives her a longer vertical line. A bikini can work for her figure, but the bottoms have to fit correctly over her hip bones.

In the rear, a squarer-cut bottom is more flattering to Meng's hips and helps to balance her figure. The suit color, a mossy green, works in her favor, too.

"In this suit, there is no obligation to get a tan," Bradley said.

Bright colors often look best with tanned skin. This suit, with its body-covering straps and earthy color, also represents a trend away from tan-friendly colors, Bradley said. Paler skin looks just fine in natural tones.

Sexy swimwear not always skimpy

By Suzy Patterson

PARIS (AP) — Ever since the skin-revealing bikini was invented 44 years ago by French engineer Louis Reard, this country has had a reputation for producing and sporting the world's sexiest swimwear.

Along with Rio de Janeiro, the French Riviera is still the place where it's practically de rigueur to discard your top and go "monokini," or throw the whole thing away for the several nudist beaches offshore or around Saint Tropez.

But fortunately for those with less than perfect show-off figures, France is offering some superb and even modest new choices in swimwear and beach cover-ups for summer.

And beachwear fairs are becoming so popular here nowadays that manufacturers from the United States, Australia and Germany are joining in.

Trends upcoming for the 90s are often dictated by the fabrics. Those wonderful stretch lycra satins (with a bow to aerobics salons) help turn the old tank suit into a slick, chic and even sexy article.

Colors often blaze as neon-hot, according to manufacturers from both Miami, Florida and the Riviera. A firm called Ritchie from Florida attracted all eyes in Nice with their presentation of shocking pink or lavender stretch suits with coquettish lacy ruffles around the hip-high-cut derrieres.

"They're great fun to wear," said American model Janice Magarian, from Miami.

"I'm offering both hot colors and navy and white," said Anne-Marie Ceci, president of Riviera-based Bip-Bip, whose sportswear sells well all over Europe. With a white flower at the bosom, one of her more modest navy numbers has an aura of Chanel, without being any kind of copy.

Ruffles and flounced shortie overskirts on swimsuits are another new idea Ceci and many others are endorsing for summer, and apparently they're already selling well for the cruise crowd.

"The point is you wrap that ruffled skirt around your hips and dance right off the beach to the disco," said Ceci, who also uses sparkly lame for several of her items.

For a young and flirtatious set, Olympic's Palmier Bleu line offers suits with shirring and little ruffles and even more modest attractively striped tank suits with naive "dictation" mottoes on the bust, as well as other decorative themes — from poppies to starfish and shells.

From the house of Rasurel comes a whole raft of swimsuit ideas, mainly one-piece, and often in charming prints, or with embroidered decor.

Provocative "bustier" tops on one-piecers or bras for the bikinis now have shaped, boned "balcony" construction for showing off an attractive bosom, And some suits even boast "C" bra cup sizes — an innovation for France, where only recently the fuller bosom burst out on fashion catwalks.

Some of the most daring looks coming up are from a French house called Sunny Girl — in a stretch blue denim-style fabric, often combined with eyelet in a minimal swimsuit.

"Tiger women" or Janes (as in Tarzan) in pretty animal-spotted suits are another approach that goes from couture straight to the beach. Rasurel has a lovely version of this in a slightly draped, couture-style lycra version.

And of course Jean-Louis Scherrer, who has reinvented the animal print at least a dozen times, has great jungle-gear for the Club Med beaches, apres-swim division, that is.

Swimwear is attracting even the likes of the Crazy Horse Saloon, Paris's most famed burlesque nightclub. Owner Alain Bernardin recently decided to put the "Crazy" label on a line manufactured by a Lyon firm called Nicole Olivier.

Surprisingly, only one model shown by the Crazy Horse strippers was a topless "monokini." But the rest have funny little fillips: sequins, ball fringes, daring cutouts in strategic places, and provocative little metal "tails."

But those interested in the chic of beachwear know it entails more than the swimsuit proper, and more than the cute but casual long T-shirt seen the world over.

AP LaserPhoto

A tropical print bikini from Rasurel of France has a matching cover-up in sheer cotton voile. Though France produces some of the world's most daring swimsuits, there are many French bikinis suitable for less-than-perfect figures.

Funny and full shorts, cycling tights, flowing babydoll trapeze jackets in cotton voile prints are just a few of the cover-ups Paris and Nice are offering to wear to the beachside cafe.

Teens selected as pageant finalists

Staff Report

Sally Michelle Moody, 16, daughter of Charles and Vicky Moody of Midland, and Leasha Cartmell, 15 daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Cartmell of Midland, have been selected a finalists in the 1991 Miss West Texas National Teen-Ager Pageant to be May 31-June 2 at Wayland Baptist University in Plainview. This pageant is the official preliminary pageant to the 20th annual Miss Texas National Teen-Ager Pageant to be June 14-16 at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth.

Regional winners and four runners-up will be selected in two age divisions: 13-15 and 16-18. Winners in each age division will receive a $1,000 savings bond, an all expense-paid trip to the state pageant in Fort Worth, and two full-tuition modeling scholarships from Barbizon and John Robert Powers, each worth $1,000. Senior West Texas Teen-Ager will also receive a tuition scholarship to Wayland Baptist University and a one-year full tuition scholarship to Mary Hardin-Baylor worth $4,000. West Texas Teen-Ager Pageant will also award more than $29,000 in tuition scholarships from various universities during the pageant weekend. Every contestant will receive a $200 scholarship to both Barbizon and John Robert Powers Schools of Modeling.

Each contestant has the option to participate in the Volunteer Community Service Program of the National Teen-Ager Pageant, which teaches teenagers to participate in school and civic activities. Contestants will be judged on scholastic achievement-leadership, appearance and poise-personality. No swimsuit competition will be included in the pageant. Talent or an oral essay on the subject of "What's Right About America" may be presented at the option of the participant.

Miss Moody is sponsored by ClayDesta Corporation. Miss Cartmell is sponsored by CBS Field Service in Sanger.

Beene's apparel has apparent value

N.Y. Times News Service

Designers make money in all kinds of interesting ways, including some you would never expect.

Take Geoffrey Beene, whom many consider the best designer of women's clothes in America, if not the world, not to mention the solar system. He is also the leading designer name in men's dress shirts in the United States.

Department store sales of Beene's dress shirts outdistanced the nearest competitors, Christian Dior and Perry Ellis, in 1990, according to a survey by the NPD Group, a research company.

The Beene label captured about 10 percent of the total department store market in 1990, said Allen Sirkin, the chairman of the Phillips-Van Heusen Apparel Group, which makes the Beene shirts under a licensing agreement with the designer.

DEAR ABBY

Substitute teachers are targets for abuse

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Now that you have come to the defense of school bus drivers who complained that, like Rodney Dangerfield, they get no respect, how about doing the same for substitute teachers, who also get no respect?

Van Buren

We are expected to maintain order and promote learning in a different classroom every day with different kids who are accustomed to different rules.

But the hardest part of our job is the abuse we have to take from some of the students.

Most kids figure that a substitute teacher is fair game, so they push us as far as they can to see how much they can get away with. If we get fed up with rotten behavior and send the troublemakers to the principal's office, we're considered incompetent because we can't control the kids.

When it comes to getting no respect, a substitute teacher takes first prize. — MOVING TARGET

DEAR TARGET: Obviously, times haven't changed much in the last half-century. When a substitute teacher shows up, there will always be kids who will try to see how much they can get away with.

However, the most competent teachers — and the ones we remember best — are those who demand the best from their students and put up with no nonsense.

DEAR ABBY: I go to a small restaurant and order dinner for two. No drinks or dessert. The check is around $20 and the tip, $3.

The next time I visited the same restaurant, the dinner check was $30 (they had raised their prices), so why should the tip be more, just because I spent more on food? There was no more work involved. — BRUCE IN TEWKSBURY, MASS.

DEAR BRUCE: Because the tip is usually figured as a percentage of the cost of the meal — and the bigger the bill, the larger the tip.

DEAR ABBY: I come from a family of seven children — three boys and four girls. Our parents value education highly and have encouraged all of us to go to college. Two are still in college, two have dropped out, and three have graduated.

Mom has one wall of our house for pictures of her "college graduates." She thinks it will encourage the other children to finish college and get "on the wall." Instead, it is causing division in the family, since the dropouts are busy working and raising children, and they're not likely to get "on the wall." Also, the sister who graduated from a two-year college doesn't qualify for "wall status."

This leaves me and my sister who are against being "honored" this way. Mom has insisted that we have our pictures taken professionally for the wall. What should we tell Mom? — AGAINST THE WALL

DEAR AGAINST: Hand Mom this column, and you won't have to tell her anything.

By popular request, Abby shares more of her favorite prize-winning, easy-to-prepare recipes. Weekend getaway packing starts with stylish tank suit, coordinates

By Francine Parnes
Associated Press

As balmy days beckon, it's time to plot a weekend getaway. Grab a well-stocked tote bag, a waterproof Walkman and plenty of sunscreen and bronzing gel, and head for the beach.

But how to pick clothes that will sail you through the weekend in style?

Start with coordinates that can pull double duty. Tank suits that can go to the beach or out on the town with casual slacks are a prime example. Gain added mileage by building a wardrobe around neutral shades updated by this season's brights.

Designer Bettina Riedel counts seven essential cotton and Lycra separates to take you from Friday through Sunday: a halter top, about $104; pull-on skirt, $84; bolero jacket, $132, or cardigan, $155; walking shorts, $104; sleeveless jewel neck T-shirt, $58; tank top pleated catsuit, $165, and capri pants, $115.

Riedel's simple formula is to mix and match the pieces, available in summer stripes of royal-turquoise-chartreuse or red-orange-pink. Coordinate with solids in orange, tomato, pink, white, royal, chartreuse and black.

The clothes are at Bloomingdale's, I. Magnin, Marshall Fields, Dayton's and Hudson's.

"They're versatile, comfortable pieces," Riedel says. "Lycra gives them recovery, so you can scrunch them in your bag or travel in them and you'll arrive as fresh as when you departed."

Fresh makeup and a change of shoes and jewelry will put you in the dinner mode.

By day, accessorize with Lucite bangle bracelets in sherbet colors of pink, orange or lime by Erwin Pearl, $28 for narrow, $40 for wide. They're sold at Neiman Marcus.

When the sun goes down, dress up a summer shift or halter dress with Napier's snappy black and white chunky beaded bracelet, $27.50. Matching large hoop earrings are $15, all at Lord & Taylor and Macy's.

For colorful punch, Unisa offers canvas and linen espadrilles in combinations of fuchsia, purple, orange and green, $39. Add a matching canvas tote, $75, spacious enough to double as a weekend bag or beach carry-all. They're at Unisa Madison in New York, Talbot's, Robinson's, Nordstrom, Bloomingdale's, Macy's and May D&F.

"They're perfect for weekend packing because they flatten to mere wisps," says Barry Schwartz, vice president and national sales manager.

Try a swimsuit coverup that doubles as a dress. Lands' End has an oversized white cotton T-shirt $29, with short sleeves and drawstring waist.

"What we're offering in coverups is versatility," says spokesman Barbara Roberts.

Other double-duty options from Lands' End include shorts, $36, that can be worn over matching swimsuit and a long striped cotton cardigan beach coverup, $49, that goes well with pants.

To ward off the evening chill or an unexpected cold snap, consider vinyl.

Kenar Leather has a vinyl motorcycle jacket, about $170 in black or white; vinyl hot pants, about $45, or a sleeveless zip-front catsuit, about $130. They're at the Kenar boutique in New York, Bloomingdale's and Max in Denver.

Then add some trendy eyewear.

"Sunglasses are no longer thought of as just a fashion accessory," says Tricia Smith of the Vision Council of America. "You need to protect both your skin and your eyes when outdoors."

The latest sunglasses go retro. Recalling the '50s, Bausch & Lomb's Ray Bans are modified cat's eyes in goldtone metal, $146 at Sterling Optical and Sunglass Hut. Christian Dior's Jackie Kennedy-inspired exaggerated round frames recall the '60s.

If you want to be on the cutting edge of poolside perfection this season, opt for a retro swimsuit. Borrowing from the 1940s, designers are dishing up molded cups and modest styles.

No lingering in new lingerie

By Erma Bombeck

So the baby boomers are getting flabby and are considering bringing back girdles. Big deal. I don't care if they wrap themselves in enough rubber to support an 18-wheeler, I'm not buying.

Bombeck

Whatever happened to "let it all hang out," "truth in packaging" and all those other good things of the '60s?

I can just see lingerie manufacturers coming out with a mother-daughter campaign showing the new Lycra foundation along with a catchy tune, "This is not your mother's girdle." Hey, when you're sacking up 153 pounds of flesh into a tube the size of an elastic wristband, I don't care what it's made out of — we're talking real pain here.

This generation is too young to remember the dynamics of a girdle. So before all of you rush right out to buy one, let me ask you a basic question: Where do you think all of that fat goes when it is contained? Figure it out. It has to go up or it has to go down. This means you could be trading your waistline for another chin, or your tummy for thighs the size of pipelines.

I haven't a clue as to who designs women's lingerie, but a stereotype comes to mind. She will be some frail little person who is saving for a stomach implant to fill out her underwear. She never took showers in high school and knows the human form only through old swimsuit editions of Sports Illustrated. Her assignment is to create a garment that will hold back a force greater than the Red Sea.

Throughout the years, this has been done with corsets that take two people to pull together and snap before they can be zipped, and bits of elastic that ride up to your rib cage and eventually cut off your breathing. My personal favorite is a cylinder of rubber that when worn in the summer months can suck all the moisture out of your body.

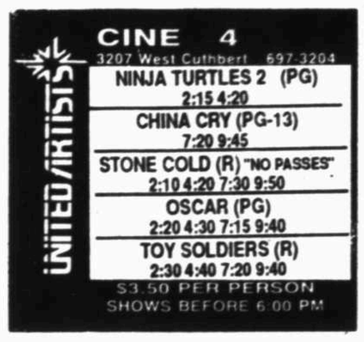

It gets ridiculous. Girdles are becoming unrecognizable. The other night I saw a young woman wearing a panty girdle that clung to her like ugly wallpaper. I said to my friend, "Shouldn't she wear a dress over that?"

My friend said, "It IS her dress."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

THURSDAY, MAY 23, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Your determination and honesty will play an important role in your reaching a long-cherished goal this year. Count on your financial game plan to begin paying off by October. Business travel may be frequent and expensive, but profits will rise! A stable, long-lasting romantic relationship starts 1992 off on a happy note. A love for the limelight could lead to a career in show business or politics!

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: comedian Scatman Crothers, singer Rosemary Clooney, actress Joan Collins, boxer "Marvelous" Marvin Hagler.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your intuition is right on target. You can pull off a real financial coup! Influential people are impressed. A long-term platonic relationship could suddenly turn romantic.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Compromise can help you solve even the most difficult dilemma. A new relationship is about to change your life. Your enthusiasm rubs off on your loved ones. Cooperation abounds!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Research will yield some clever moneymaking ideas. Seek experts' advice before investing. Your relationship with your spouse or partner improves. You discover new facets of each other's personality.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Throw yourself wholeheartedly into new projects. Money spent on your home will add to its value. A close relationship needs more attention. Do not let others take advantage of your generosity.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Job leads could come from someone close to you. Follow up as quickly as possible. Get out and socialize more. Welcome new neighbors and get involved in community projects. Give yourself a treat!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): In the face of adversity, have patience and stick to familiar activities. Friends will come to your rescue when the chips are down. Resolve to reward their loyalty in meaningful ways.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Diplomacy serves you well during a domestic blowup! Be discreet. You are right to work solo. You could discover some real treasures while browsing through a secondhand bookstore.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Concentrate on positive people and productive projects. Financial support will come from an unusual source. Choose your objectives carefully, then contact the appropriate people.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A debt or secret could cause problems. Avoid rash actions. Handle sensitive people with kid gloves. You could be the star at a social function tonight. Romance is pleasing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Friends could make unreasonable requests. Stand up for your rights. Career or financial developments will be particularly gratifying. Spend more time planning for the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A bold person could throw you for a loop. Be careful not to overreact. Seek quiet surroundings far from the maddening crowd. A "think" session could shed valuable light.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A favorable day for travel, important communications and educational pursuits. Plan ahead with confidence. An older person offers invaluable advice; seize upon it immediately!

TODAY'S CHILDREN are energetic, adventuresome and optimistic. Parents will delight in these youngsters' ability to learn quickly and easily. They love a challenge and will enjoy doing jigsaw puzzles. Change is this Gemini's middle name! They will want to wear the latest fashions, no matter how outrageous. Homework and domestic chores will bore these fun-oriented Geminis. Only with parental encouragement will they learn how important it is to meet their responsibilities.

We are indebted to the British magazine International Popular Bridge Monthly (available at $40 per annum through The Bridge World, 39 W. 94th St., New York, N.Y. 10025) for this hand. Study it and decide around which card in the North hand declarer built his plan to make four spades after the lead of the king, queen and ace of hearts from West.

North was dead minimum for his redouble and spade support, but with two aces and good four-card support for South's major, it was the obvious action. South, with good trumps, prime cards and a ruffing value in hearts, had just enough to go on to game.

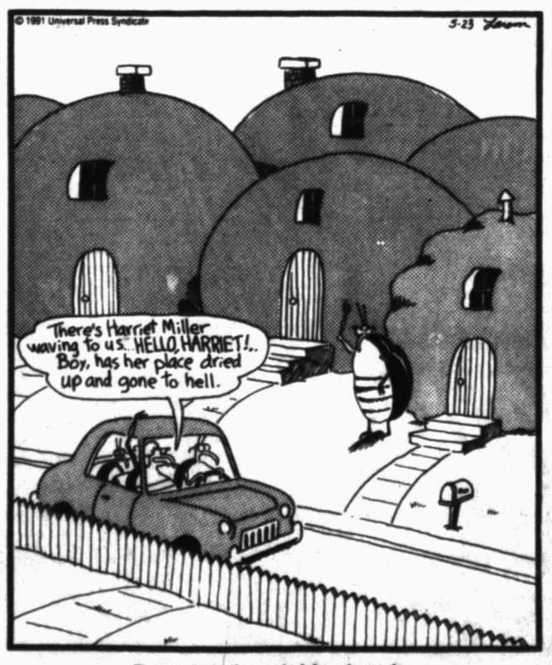

Declarer ruffed the third heart and drew trumps in two rounds, ending in dummy. It was tempting to ruff dummy's remaining hearts and declarer's diamond to strip the red suits, then lead a club and put in the eight to endplay West. However, East could have thwarted that plan by inserting the ten. South would have been forced to finesse the queen and West would have had a safe club return after winning the king.

An alternative method was far more attractive. It needed only to have West hold four hearts, which was a certainty in view of the take-out double and West's heart bid. South cashed the ace and king of diamonds and ruffed a diamond on the table. The last heart was led, but when East showed out, instead of ruffing, declarer discarded a club from hand.

Now West was well and truly end-played. A club return away from the king would be into declarer's major tenace, while a diamond would permit declarer to ruff on the board while discarding another club from hand. Either way, the defenders would get only three tricks. So if you selected the fourth heart as the focal point of declarer's maneuvering, please accept our congratulations.

Georgia governor pulls role reversal with Corbin Bernsen

ATLANTA — Georgia Gov. Zell Miller pulled a role reversal with actor Corbin Bernsen, who played a politican, while the pol took the part of a wealthy contributor in a television miniseries.

Miller

In their acting debuts Tuesday night, Miller and his wife, Shirley, donned old-fashioned Southern garb and memorized a few lines during the first night of shooting at the Governor's Mansion for the NBC television miniseries "Grass Roots."

The Millers acted in a brief scene with Bernsen of "L.A. Law" and Mel Harris of "thirtysomething." They played a wealthy political contributor and his wife who have given money to Bernsen's character, a Senate candidate.

Bernsen

"Hey, this guy is good," Bernsen joked when Miller first tried his lines.

The four-hour movie will air in the 1991-92 television season.

PARIS — Couturier Pierre Cardin received one of Japan's highest awards Wednesday, the Order of the Sacred Treasure.

Japanese Ambassador Akitane Kiuchi pinned the French entrepreneur-designer with a medal known as the Star of Gold and Silver, citing Cardin's contributions in trade and artistic promotion.

"Cardin is an ambassador of not just French, but international fashion," said Kiuchi, speaking for the Emperor of Japan, who officially decides the award created in 1888. It is usually given for outstanding contributions to international relations.

"He gave the first French fashion show in Tokyo 36 years ago after World War II, spread the word of French charm and beauty to both women and men in Japan," Kiuchi said.

The ambassador said Cardin, by tapping an enormous Japanese market for Western fashion, had contributed significantly to building good Japanese-French trade relations.

Cardin, who has won many awards including the French Legion of Honor, said he considers the Japanese medal especially rewarding.

"I've taught fashion courses there," he said. "I respect them, and they respect me, there is nothing better than that."

BISHOP, Calif. — Jockey Johnny Longden, a Triple Crown winner with Count Fleet in 1943, is a heavy favorite as his latest mount prepares to leave the starting gate.

Longden, 84, was chosen grand marshal of Bishop's Mule Days Parade Saturday.

The parade kicks off a Memorial Day weekend packed with mule shows expected to draw some 50,000 visitors to this eastern Sierra town 225 miles north of Los Angeles.

Mule pack trains from several groups and national forest and park packers will lope along behind Longden in the parade.

The veteran jockey, who retired in 1966, lives in Banning. He says he enjoys golf and keeping track of his 3-year-old filly, Witches Fling.

As for the mule ride Saturday, packers say they'll provide a top mount for Longden, but they promise no track records.

LAS VEGAS — Former television actress Dana Plato waived a preliminary hearing in Justice Court on Wednesday. Her attorney said she would plead guilty next month to an attempted robbery charge.

Ms. Plato is charged with the $160 robbery Feb. 28 of a video store.

A charge of robbery with a deadly weapon was reduced to attempted robbery in a plea agreement negotiated with Clark County authorities.

Police said she was armed with a pellet gun when she entered the store, disguised in a hat, coat and sunglasses.

Ms. Plato responded with a soft "yes" when asked by Justice Court Judge Kelly Slade if she understood her rights in waiving a preliminary hearing.

Ms. Plato, 26, played teen-ager Kimberly Drummond on the comedy "Diff'rent Strokes," which ran for several seasons in the late 1970s and early 1980s.

PARIS — Oceanographer and environmentalist Jacques-Yves Cousteau said Wednesday he was launching an international petition drive to adopt a "Declaration of Rights for Future Generations."

Cousteau told reporters he discussed the idea during an hourlong meeting with President Francois Mitterrand at the Elysee Palace. The goal, Cousteau said, is to prevent irreversible damage to the Earth.

"We would like to collect as many signatures as possible for this project, not only in France but abroad, in order to influence policy-makers," said Cousteau, 80.

He expressed hope that the United Nations would endorse the declaration.

Syria, Lebanon sign relationship treaty

The World

BEIRUT, Lebanon (NYT) — The presidents of Syria and Lebanon signed a treaty in Damascus on Wednesday and announced that a new era of cooperation between the two neighboring countries had begun.

At the signing ceremony, held at the presidential palace on a hill overlooking the Syrian capital, President Elias Hrawi of Lebanon and President Hafez al-Assad of Syria, flanked by their top aides, told a joint news conference that their two countries and people were bound by history, common interests and neighborliness.

Syria and Lebanon are one people in two states Assad said. Hrawi said that nothing would ever drive them apart. The news conference was broadcast live by the Syrian state radio and monitored here.

Officially called the Treaty of Brotherhood, Cooperation and Coordination, the agreement establishes a special relationship between them for the first time since they gained independence from France 48 years ago.

It provides for the creation of joint government institutions for cooperation in defense security, foreign policy and the economy. The supreme authority under the pact is a higher council comprising the heads of state, Parliment speakers and Prime Ministers of the two states with powers to make binding policy decisions.

But the treaty lacked Lebanese consensus and has evoked a hostile reaction from Lebanon's other strong neighbor, Israel. Lebanese radio stations said the Israeli Army sent reinforcements into the security zone, the 6-mile deep and 50-mile-long enclave that the Israeli army patrols in cooperation with the South Lebanon Army.

The pact revived Christian fear of Syrian hegemony at a time when 40,000 Syrian troops continue to control two-thirds of Lebanese territory. Public objection has come from Patriarch Nasrallah Butros Sfair, the spiritual mentor of Lebanon's largest Christian community, the Maronites. A contract between unequal partners means domination by one party on the other, he said in a statement.

He warned that the treaty had overturned the national covenant on which Muslim-Christian coexistence has rested since independence. He recalled that under the unwritten covenant, the Muslims pledged not to commit Lebanon to Syria's side while the Christians promised not to form a special relationship with the West.

Britain to ban, destroy U.S. pit bull terriers

LONDON (AP) — Prompted by an outcry over the the mauling of a 6-year-old girl, the government said Wednesday it will rush through laws banning American pit bull terriers and destroy most of the 10,000 such dogs in the country.

Some owners threatened to sue or to hide their dogs, and veterinarians and animal rights organizations in this dog-loving country protested at the prospect of the mass extermination.

But opposition parties backed the government proposal to ban American pit bull terriers, Japanese Tosas and other dogs bred for fighting, meaning the new laws were likely to be passed by midsummer.

In a statement to the House of Commons, Home Secretary Kenneth Baker said he would listen to arguments that the dogs could be rendered harmless by neutering, but he had been told neutering would not work.

"If that will not be effective, the ban on dogs bred for fighting will mean sadly that these types of dogs have to be put down," said Baker.

He said owners would be given time to try to find foreign homes for their banned dogs.

In Dublin, the Irish government said it was considering a bill to keep out pit bull terriers condemned in England. "We are going to make sure there is no import of these animals," said Environment Minister Padraig Flynn.

"They are my children," protested east Londoner Anthony Hawkins, fondling his pit bull terriers, Floyd and Mizzi, outside the Commons.

"I will keep them. Nobody is going to kill them," Hawkins said as the dogs licked playfully at his face.

Yvonne Wilson, who owns the sole Tosa in Britain, a 200-pound dog, said she'd sue the government in the European Court of Human Rights.

"Mr. Baker and the prime minister (John Major) are playing God. ... I'd rather live abroad than have them (dogs) taken away from me," she said.

The attack on 6-year-old Rucksana Khan has become a national issue.

Her father and three other men fought for 30 minutes to pry the child from the immensely powerful jaws of a pit bull terrier that attacked while out walking with his young woman owner. The dog has been destroyed.

On Tuesday, Major declared an immediate ban on the import of pit bull terriers, Tosas and other dogs bred for fighting.

Veterinarians and animal welfare organizations support the import ban.

HANDY HALL TREE

Use this 'instant antique' hall tree as a conversation piece in your entryway, den or recreation room. The redwood seat opens up to provide storage space and can be covered with a cushion or simply stained to match. A complete materials list and many step-by-step instructions and pictures guide the amateur woodworker all the way. The project requires only a few weekends to be completed.

Send check to: KCS Pattern Dept. P. O. Box 2383 Van Nuys, CA 91409

PART-TIME INCOME AVAILABLE

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which need to be filled with qualified, responsible individuals.

OFTEN ASKED QUESTIONS:

Is it worthwhile for adults also?

Yes! Our current carrier force is already 90% adult and 10% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:
- ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a carrier, you do not need daycare!
- COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends.

How much money can I make as a carrier?

Depending on the size of the distributorship from $300 to $700 monthly! Some make even more!

How long does it take?

The actually delivery takes 1 - 2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2 - 3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the distributorship. Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many carrier's choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subscribers' papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!

When do papers have to be delivered by?

6 a.m. Monday - Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, carriers do take days off by finding a friend or family member to substitute for them!
