The appointment of the committee on world service was the result of a week's deliberations on the church's foreign mission problem. Claims She Wore Belt, But Police Say She Didn't

Dimmitt County to Validate Bonds, By New Election

AUSTIN, May 11.—(AP)—Dimmitt county is contemplating the calling of a $600,000 county wide bond election to validate and take up a road district issue of $234,000, W. H. Davis of Carrizo Springs, Dimmitt county judge, today told the highway commission.

The commission heard applications for $680,445 in state aid and for important state highway designations. No decision was reached on what recommendation to make to the state board of control on the awarding of a $500,000 lubricating oil contract.

Judge Davis' primary business was the asking of $260,000 to place bituminous topping on 49 miles of highway 85 from the Frio to the Maverick county line and of $245,000 to grade, bridge and gravel 40 miles of highway 55 from the Zavalla to the Webb county line. CLAIM ALIBI IN DEFENSE OF C. C. MUMFORD

Man Accused of Taking Part In Holliday Robbery Denies Charge

AT DAD'S CORNER

State Rests Case And Witnesses for Accused Praise Him

ARCHER CITY, May 11.—A blanket denial by C. C. Mumford that he had anything to do with the robbery was made here today by the defendant when he took the stand in his own defense on a charge of implicity in the hi-jacking of J. M. Hawley and Leon Wallace in Holliday six weeks ago. Mumford, formerly a Wichita county deputy sheriff, is the first of three men to stand trial on such a charge, indictments also having been returned against J. B. Jackson and E. E. Savage, both of whom are scheduled to come before the court this week.

Mumford testified when he was put on the stand that he was in Dads Corners, a small oil field hamlet near here, at the time of the robbery of Hawley and Wallace. Witnesses were introduced by the defense who, through additional testimony, sought to substantiate this. Several character witnesses were also introduced by the defense, two being put on who had come from the Rio Grande valley where they had known Mumford during his residence there some five years ago. They stated that at that time hi reputation was of the best.

State Rests Case.

The defense witnesses were called after the state had rested its case with the introduction of a number of persons who had a part in the arrest and supposed identification of Mumford, Jackson and Savage after the robbery.

Hawley and Wallace, the two victims of the robbery, were called by the state and recounted the details of the scene in which they were held up by two men near their store, while a third sat in a car nearby. Kirke Smith and W. E. Morrison, constables of Holiday, told of chasing a car from Holiday to Wichita Falls and of stopping Mumford, Jackson and Savage when it reached this city, only to let the men go when Mumford showed them his badge of a Wichita county deputy sheriff.

J. B. Fleniken and S. A. Gardner, city officers in Wichita Falls, told of the arrest of the trio after they had been released by Morrison and Smith; and Benton Ross, 10-year-old boy, told of later finding checks and money that had been stolen from Hawley, and which were thrown away by the bandits.

Hired by Smith.

When Mumford was called to the stand he first traced briefly his early life. Bringing this up to recent times, he said that about six months ago he was employed by the W. T. Waggoner estate to do police duty over the vast Waggoner properties. He was granted a deputy sheriff's commission by Sheriff Fred K. Smith of Wichita county at this time. He further stated, however, that three weeks before his arrest on the hi-jacking charge, he left the employe of the Waggoners and was working as a full time deputy for the Wichita county sheriff.

He sought to explain his presence in the Holiday vicinity on the night of the robbery by stating that he held a warrant for the arrest of a man at Dads Corners and had gone there in an effort to serve it. He said he was there at 9 o'clock, about the time Hawley was robbed, and left about 9:20, coming straight into Wichita Falls without a stop.

A brisk tilt between Mumford, his counsel and the state arose when cross examination of the defendant was started by District Attorney Ben Allred. Two .38 calibre automatic guns one a Savage and the other a Colts, were mentioned. At this juncture, also, reference was also made to a trip Jack Jackson was alleged to have taken to Fort Worth in company with Sheriff Fred Smith and a deputy some time prior to the arrest of Jackson, Savage and Mumford.

Judge H. R. Wilson, before whom the case is being tried, prepared his charge Tuesday afternoon. Argument of counsel will begin at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning and it is expected will be finished before noon.

Judge Wilson indicated that he would call the Jackson case as soon as the Mumford trial was out of the way.

Amundsen's Dirigible Sails O'er Icy Wasteland Of Polar Region

NORGE SOARING OVER POLAR ICE

Amundsen-Ellsworth Dirigible Takes Air in Spitzbergen

OSLO, Norway, May 11.—(AP)—Amundsen-Ellsworth dirigible Norge, started on its flight to the North Pole and Alaska at 10:10 o'clock this morning, says a message from King's Bay, Spitzbergen.

A wireless message received from Captain Amundsen at 11:45 o'clock this morning said: "Now flying across the polar ice. The expedition sends its bes thanks to the premier (of Norway) for his kindly telegram received immediately before the start."

It was officially announced this afternoon that Captain Amundsen will take possession of any land found during the voyage in the name of the king of Norway.

Roald Amundsen, the noted explorer, and Lincoln Ellsworth, his companion on their unsuccessful attempt to reach the North Pole by aiplane last year, hope primarily to discover land during the flight of their Italian-built dirigible Norge, which began today. Amundsen has pointed out that it is only 2,000 miles from Spitzbergen to Alaska and that the discovery of even a small piece of land near the top of the world would afford an invaluable connecting link between America and Europe and Asia.

Under the plans outlined by Amundsen this spring the Norge will fly in almost a straight line across the pole and through the center of the unexplored region of the Arctic area in the polar sea. The leaders of the expedition have estimated that it will take thee days to fly fom King's Bay, Spitzbegen, to Point Barrow, Alaska.

The first pilot of the Norge is Colonel Umberto Nobile, the Italian aviation officer who superintended her construction.

Among the fliers whom Amundsen planned to take on the trip to the pole were Lieutenant Hjalmar Riiser-Larsen, Lieutenant Oscar Omdahl, Captain Oscar Wisting and Lieutenant Gustave Amundsen, a nephew of the explorer. Mr. Ellsworth is the only American member of the flying crew.

One of the gravest dangers which Amundsen has recognized is the difficulty of landing in the polar area and it was for this reason chiefly that he decided to use a dirigible instead of an airplane in the belief that the dirigible can be kept in the air with much more certainty than an airplane.

The Norge is equipped completely as a passenger carrier and is fitted with one large combined control and passenger car mounted well forward. There is accommodation for 20 passengers in this car.

Texas Air Mail Beginning Today Is The Greatest Test Of Private Enterprise In Commercial Flying

CHICAGO, May 11.—(AP)—At 5:45 o'clock tomorrow morning a "flying truck" of the National Air Transport will hop off here for Dallas, an hour and three quarters later, another plane of the same type will leave Dallas for Chicago, and the greatest test ever made by private enterprise to determine the feasibility of commercial flying will be under way.

The air transport company launches formerly tomorrow its postal route between Chicago and Dallas, linked here with the east-west air mail lines.

The "carrier pigeon" plane leaving Chicago will be freighted with half a ton of letters and express, more than three times as much as is carried by the type of plane used by the postoffice department.

The Chicago-Dallas plane will stop to deliver and accept mail at the tri-cities—Moline, Rock Island and Davenport—and at St. Joseph, reaching Kansas City at 11:18 a. m. There the cargo will be transferred to another plane for the last leg of the journey. The Dallas plane will halt at Fort Worth, Oklahoma City and Wichita on its northward voyage, stopping at Kansas City to transfer its cargo to a fresh ship. The schedule between the two cities, in each direction, calls for eleven hours and fifty minutes between the two terminals.

Paul E. Johnson will pilot the plane setting out from here tomorrow morning. It appears that it may become necessary to follow it with an auxiliary plane to handle the excess mail and to bring the southbound mail arriving from the east if the night east-west plane is late. If a second plane is sent, Edmund Matucha will pilot it.

The first flight's mail will be unusually heavy, because of the desire of the stamp collectors to get exhibits of the initial voyage. One collector had sealed seven hundred empty envelopes for stamping by the postoffice department.

"First flight-air-mail-Chicago-Dallas," so he may have specimens for his collections and many other philatelists have shown similar interest.

The Rotary club of Chicago also will contribute heavily. It will send by the first mail letters and photographs to all the forty-five clubs on the road to Dallas.

Four of the flying trucks will be constantly in service between Kansas City and the terminals in each direction. Six auxiliary plans of the same type are strung along the line to carry the overflow mail or express or to come to the aid of regular planes in distress.

Democrats Assert G. O. P. To Suffer In Fall Elections

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—Political casualties among Republican senators who voted to seat Truman H. Newberry in 1922 "threaten to be very great this year," in the opinion of the democratic national committee.

"The recent defeat of Senator William B. McKinley of Illinois," it said in a statement issued today, "caused his colleagues to comment on the political deaths that set in on the republican side right after the Newberry vote.

"Senator James E. Watson of Indiana succeeded in the primary the other day, but a young opponent, in state politics for the first time, received 127,000 votes, a protest of sinister portent for November.

"Senator George W. Pepper of Pennsylvania is the next Newberry man to come up at a primary election. With the support of the Mellons, his friends count on saving him.

'Terrible War' Is Seen By Scientist

BRIAR CLIFF MANOR, N. Y., May 11.—(AP)—The decisive factor in the next war will be a terrible and mysterious "something" not yet taught in military academies or discussed in peace societies, Edwin Emery Slosson, director of Science Service, Washington, told the chief national conference on international problems and relations at a round table discussion today.

"Wars are no longer fights between armies," he said. "They are contests between peoples. Nowadays the battle is not to the strong, but rather to the ingenious. The most effective preparedness is scientific research and industrial development in general.

STRIKE PEACE BELIEVED NEAR

Rumors of Settlement Of Dispute In England Gains Credence

LONDON, May 12.—(AP)—Prolonged secret discussions at trades union headquarters, which lasted until an early hour this (Wednesday) morning, simultaneously with a special cabinet meeting held in the house of commons which was followed by further ministerial conversations in Downing street were taken as indicating that an important peace move was afoot. Consequently there is strong hope in some quarters that the strike may be called off before long.

LONDON, May 11.—(AP)—Although an under currect of peace was noticeable in London today and there was much talk of the possibility of an early peace, the government and the leaders of labor did not relax measures—on the one side to overcome the gigantic labor demonstration, and on the other to carry on the general strike which is just beginning its second week.

Labor's official mouthpiece, the British Worker, announced the spread of the strike to the men in the engineering and ship building trades, the trades union congress having issued the strike call to the unions in these trades, which are affiliated with the congress. Men working in government dockyards, admiralty establishments and government engineering departments, however, are not affected.

This is in part "the second line of defense" which the labor leaders promised several days ago would, if necessary, be brought into the field, and, in making reference to the call,

COMMITTEE TO AIR CHARGE OF POST SELLING

Wurzbach Launches Move With Attack on State Control

PROPOSE REMEDIES

Other Representatives Add To Complaint of Office Bartering

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—Outcrys from various parts of the south against alleged corruption of federal patronage have stirred congress to action.

The house judiciary committee today appointed a sub-committee to conduct hearings on two measures designed to disclose present practices and prevent fraud and barter of federal appointments in the future.

The action followed on appeal before the committee by Representative Busy, democrat, Mississippi for an inquiry into "rotten" conditions in his state for which he held President Coolidge responsible in a recent speech in the house.

The judiciary committee which last week reported a bill by Representative Wurtzbach, republican, Texas, to require federal appointees to file within 30 days after taking office an affidavit that they have given or received no financial assistance, today ordered hearings on a resolution by Representative Stevenson, democrat, South Carolina, making it unlawful to receive anything of value "in pay for promise to support" and a measure by Mr. Busby calling upon the justice and postoffice departments for reports by inspectors on alleged patronage evils in Mississippi.

Mr. Busby today described his resolution as a means of disclosures to be used as a basis for remedial legislation proposed by the other two southern members.

The Mississipplan in two recent speeches in the house charged the republican party with allowing Perry W. Howard, a negro official of the justice department to sell patronage in that state to the highest bidder.

Mr. Wurzebach, the lone Texas republican in congress launched the move with an attack upon republican control of patronage in his state.

"HER MAN"

--By Beatrice Burton--

READ THIS FIRST:

SYLVIA STARR has been engaged to RANDALL PHELPS for a year when he asks her to free him, because he's fallen in love with her chum, FAY SHIRLEY.

Heartbroken, Sylvia gives him up, to the great satisfaction of her AUNT AGONY, who brought her up. Aunt Agony says that Ranny will never be true to any woman, and she urges Sylvia to marry PETER WILK., a sober bachelor who adores her.

Aunt Agony's opinion of Ranny seems to be correct, for suddenly he drops Fay and marries Sylvia, after all. But their married life is unhappy almost from the start. For Ranny hates to be tied down, and he returns to his bachelor habits of drinking and gambling, and falling in love time after time—usually with Sylvia's own friends. He gives Sylvia so little money for the house that she turns music teacher to keep up the tiny flat where they live.

The first baby, JUNIOR, dies, and Sylvia has a nervous breakdown. She refuses to live again in the flat, and refuses to see Ranny, who no longer loves her, so she thinks. But he finally persuades her to come back to him, and he promised never to look at another woman

He keeps his promise, so far as Sylvia knows, for a whole year. When Sylvia the Second is born in the Little White House that they buy, Sylvia feels that he cup of joy is full to the brim. Then BABS DELANO comes to visit her. She knew Babs in library school when she was a drab, shy girl, and she is not prepared for the new Babs, all paint and powder and flirtatiousness. Right from the start she begins to "vamp" Ranny, and one night Sylvia finds her in his arms. She leaves and goes to Aunt Agony's house. There Ranny comes to her the next day, and asks her to divorce him. She refuses to, and late that afternoon Babs comes to see her. She tells Sylvia that she adores Ranny, and must have him, but Sylvia only says that she, too, loves Ranny and won't give him up. The next morning she goes to her own house to get some clothes for the baby. While she is dusting and cleaning up the place she finds a railroad time table, and rushes upstairs to see if Ranny has packed up his clothes to go away. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER LVII.

Sylvia was half afraid to open drawers of Ranny's chiffonier.

With her hands gripping the glass knobs, she stood looking down at them, holding her breath for one panic-stricken moment.

Suppose that there should be nothing in the drawers, when she did open them. Suppose that Ranny had packed up his clothes and gone away.

Suppose that the timetable, tucked into her pocket now, meant that he really had left her. What on earth would she do then? What would she do?

With a quick jerk she opened the drawers, one after another, and gave a keen sigh of relief. Not a thing was missing from them.

All the shirts that she had washed and ironed, herself, were in their neat piles. The socks were rolled into smooth, silken balls, and the neckties were folded in the top drawer and covered with an old handkerchief to protect them from dust.

Ranny liked her to keep all his things in perfect order and she did. She even pressed his trousers for him. No matinee idol or movie hero received better care from his paid valet than Ranny Phelps received from the wife he no longer loved.

"I know he doesn't care about me any more. I know he cares about Babs, and yet—" thought Sylvia. She couldn't bear to give him up, even in thoughts. As Aunt Agony said: "Where there's life, there's hope!"

Sylvia picked up one of the ties he had worn and stroked it between her fingers. She loved it, because it was his, and because he had worn it, as she loved everything that belonged to him.

The telephone, ringing in the lower hall, startled her from her gloom. She ran down to it and picked up the receiver.

It was Mother Phelps on the wire.

"Good morning, Sylvia dear," she said in her cheerful contralto, "how are you And how's the dear baby?"

"The baby's just fine, Mother Phelps," the girl answered.

She realized that her mother-in-law didn't suspect that anything was wrong at the Little White House. Evidently Ranny had kept his tongue between his teeth, for once.

"I called to ask you to a vanishing luncheon," Mother Phelps went on. "You know what a vanishing luncheon is, don't you?"

Sylvia opened her lips to say that she couldn't go to a vanishing luncheon or to any other kind of luncheon. But Mother Phelps went right on talking, without waiting to be answered.

"I'll tell you about it. I'm having eight people to lunch on Thursday. Then each of my guests has to have seven people to lunch the next week, and the next week each of those guests have to have six people for lunch, and—"

Sylvia broke in at this point. "I'm sorry, Mother Phelps, I can't possibly make it," she said, raising her voice, "I cant possibly come."

There was silence for a second, then her mother-in-law's voice again: "Oh, I'm sorry. Another engagement?"

"N-no." Sylvia voice was very low. Even over the telephone wire Mother Phelps could tell that she was dreadfully upset oer something.

"What's wrong?" she asked, "what's wrong Sylvia?"

"Everything," the girl answered, "everything. Are you busy right now? I want to come over and talk to you. I'm in terrible trouble."

Ten minutes later she was speeding across the town in a taxicab.

Mother Phelps, herself, opened the door of the big house on Winthrop street. Her welcoming smile faded from her large, well formed mouth, when she saw Sylvia's face.

She gathered her to her plump bosom and kissed her on both cheeks before she led the way up the wide stairs to her own room.

Mother Phelps' bedroom was like herself—large and cheerful. The rain might beat upon the window panes, as it was beating now, but within the room all was eternal summer.

There were roses on the cretonne window drapes and on the ruffled chair covers. Flowery silk cushions were piled on the low backed couch at the foot of the big bed. The novels in the bookcase had happy endings—all of them. Even the pictures on the wall were cheerful pictures.

A fire crackeled rosily in the grate this morning, and Mother Phelps pushed Sylvia down into one of the chairs near it. With her fat white hands she lifted the wet hat from the girl's pretty head and helped her out of her coat.

"Now, then," she said briskly, and her big black eyes became intent behind her glasses, "now, then, what has Ranny been up to?"

She knew that whenever Sylvia's face wore that white, tense look it was because Ranny had been "up to something." And she was not prepared to take his part.

The mother-in-law who makes trouble between her son and his wife had nothing in comon with Mother Phelps. She was as just as a judge on the bench—and she liked Sylvia. Moreover, she knew Ranny, her son, from A to Z. Sylvia bit her lower lip. "Before I tell you about this, please promise that you won't say a word about it to ather Pheips," she pleaded. "He's just beginning to be proud of Ranny, and you know, yourself, that Ranny had been wonderful for the last year. I mean, not only with me, but at the office, too—"

"Yes, he's tended to business," Mother Phelps agreed, with a nod of her handsome head, "but that's no more than he should do. Now, tell me, has he lost his mind over some girl or other, again?"

Sylvia glanced at her sharply. She had had no idea that Ranny's mother understood him so thoroughly. She had yet to realize that a mother usually knows her son better than any other woman ever knows him.

"Yes, that's just what he has done," she answered slowly, with her eyes fived on the dancing fire in the grate. "He's head, neck and heels in love with Barbara Delano.

Mother Phelps frowned. "Not that great cow of a girl who was visiting you last week?" she asked. She had met Babs one afternoon when she had dropped in at the Little White House with a rattle for the new baby.

Sylvia nodded. "The, that's the girl," she said. "He wants me to divorce him so he can marry her. And she tells me that they can't live without each other!"

Mother Phelps gasped. Her white hands, with their sparkling rings, went up in horror. "I cant believe it!" she cried, "I never heard of anything so immoral in my life—never! My own son, too! Oh, I can't believe it!"

She rustled up from her chair and paced the length of the room two or three times before she sat down again.

"And what have you made up your mind to do about it, Sylvia?" she asked at last.

"Nothing," the girl answered dully, "that's why I came to you. I don't know what to do. Part of the time I think I ought to stick to him and part of the time I think I ought to give him up to Babs—"

"You'll do nothing of the kind," Mother Phelps put in, sharply. "You've got to stick to him, now, as you always have stuck to him! That's the biggest part of a wife's job—to stay on the job, no matter what happens. You're not the only woman in the world whose husband is unfaithful to her. There are thousands and thousands of them, gritting their teeth and bearing it!"

Sylvia shook her head and closed her eyes to keep back her tears.

"But you don't know how awful it is," she began.

"Oh, don't I?" Mother Phelps asked. She leaned forward in her chair and took the girls cold hands between her own warm, cushiony palms.

"Listen to me, Sylvia," she said, "I'm going to tell you something that I've never spoken of to a living soul. I'm only telling it to you now, because I know what you're going through. I know—because I've been through it with Ranny's father."

Sylvia opened her wet eyes and stared at her. "Father Phelps?" she asked, shaking her head, unbelievingly. She couldn't believe that Father Phelps had ever been a Don Juan, like Ranny. She had always thought of him as the kind of man who is under his wife's thumb, and always has been there.

"Yes, Father Phelps! He was just like Ranny, when he was young," she said solemnly. "I can't begin to tell you how I felt when I found out about him and a Mrs. Brownlee. She's dead now, so it's all right for me to tell you her name."

"I'm Sorry, I Can't Possibly Make It," She Answered

She paused for a moment and looked out of the window. And her eyes were heavy with memories. Then she gave herself a little shake, and went on with her story.

"Jamieson was in love with Mrs. Brownlee for four years, and I never said a word to him about it," she said. "If he was out until midnight, he was never questioned by me. As Lolly would say, I 'sat pretty,' and waited until the thing was over. And when it was over, my husband came back to me, and I took him without a word. Later on, there was another woman—"

She stopped abruptly and shook her handsome head, with its crown of silver hair.

"No, there's no use in my telling you any more," she declared, "but you'll have to do what I did. You'll have to fold your hands and wait until Ranny comes to his senses and he will come to them. He'll grow tired of this Delano woman. What does he see in her, anyway? She's not pretty!"

"She flatters him," Sylvia explained, patting her wet blue eyes with her handkerchief. "She tells him that he's a genius, and that it's a shame he has to waste his time in a real estate office, when he should be planning great buildings. She tells him that it's a shame that he has to spend his life earning money for me and the baby."

Mother Phelps gave a snort that would have done credit to Aunt Agony at her best.

"Humph!" she cried, "I wish she'd say that to me, Ranny has been given every chance in the world to make something of himself. Great buildings, indeed!"

Downstairs a bell tinkled, like the far off chime of a temple bell. All the sounds in Mother Phelps' house were beautiful, subdued ones. She made housekeeping an art.

"My dear, that's the bell for lunch," she said to Sylvia. "Wash your pretty eyes and we'll go down and have bite together. And don't worry about this. It'll pass over, like a thunder shower and you and Ranny will be happy again. Go back to your aunt's house for a while. A little absent treatment will do Ranny good!"

She got up and put her arms around her son's wife. And Sylvia, who had never known the understanding love of a mother, felt closer to her in that moment than she had ever felt to poor old Aunt Agony.

It was still raining when they finished lunch and Sylvia started away from the house in Mother Phelps own car. Halfway to Bleak street, she suddenly remembered that she had forgotten the baby's clothes. She had left them in a bag in the hall of the Little White House.

"Please take me to my own house for a minute," she said, leaning forward to speak to Briggs, the new chauffeur.

As they turned the corner of her street, a taxicab passed them.

Not until minutes later did it occur to her that Ranny was in that cab. All she saw at the time was the bright colored vehicle tearing along through the driving rain.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Returning home for clothing for herself and baby, Sylvia receives a fresh heartache. The mysterious note shows how a man's soul can be steel.

HILLS COMBED FOR MURDERER

Posses Hunt Indian, Slayer Of Pair In Colorado Fastness

TELLURIDE, Colo., May 11.—(AP)—George Nelson, a Navajo Indian sheep herder, who combined white man's chivalry with the traditional cruelty of an aborigine, was still being pursued in the mountain fastnesses of southwestern Colorado today by numerous posses bent on bringing him to the bar of justice to face charges of slaying John G. Wolfe and John H. Wolfe, uncle and nephew, near Beaver Mesa, last Friday.

The Indian's curiously mingled chivalry and cruelty was told by Leonore Wolfe, 28, niece and sister of the slain men, who was kidnaped by Nelson and by his foot prints after he had released the women when she appealed to his love for her and to his chivalry.

Nelson kidnaped the woman last Friday during the absence of her father, Joseph Wolfe, and then released her after an hour of captivity when her tears and pleadings had melted the Indian's heart. He accompanied her for two miles toward her home and left after cautioning her that he would kill her father if he stepped from the house before Saturday.

When Saturday dawned her father went to his brother's ranch home, an elaborate affair, several miles away. He found it in ashes and after several hours search found the bodies of his brother and son in a canyon several miles from the house. Each had been shot through the head with a rifle.

Trackers who were summoned to the ranch declared that the Indian apparently fearing the wrath of relatives after the kidnaping episode had ambushed the men, fired the home, shot a friendly shepherd dog that was following him and then fled.

Feeling runs high throughout the section. Cowboys have left the ranges to join the posses and virtually every able bodied man in San Miguel county has taken up the man hunt.

Negro Is Wounded Stealing Automobile

FORT WORTH, May 11.—(AP) Hospitals here are being checked in a search for a negro who stole a coupe from a garage shortly before noon and abandoned it only after being fired upon and presumably hit by the garage owner.

Hugh H. Lewis, garage owner, who is a special officer, pursued the stolen car and after a chase of more than an hour came close enough to fire at the driver, who then threw up his hands and jumped out and ran.

Board Agrees Blankets Best for Service In Field.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—The same old "O. D." blankets with which millions of young Americans became familiar during the world war have been found the most serviceable covering for troops on field service by the experimental board of Fort Benning, Ga.

The report of the board which tests blankets of any kinds said that while those with more wool in their texture were warmer, they were too bulky for doughboys to carry and held rain water too long.

PIRATE SHIP IS CAPTURED

No Officer But Liquor Supply Is Found Aboard

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP)—Seized about 60 miles southeast of Atlantic City under conditions which coast guard officials here described as savoring of piracy, the steamer Donnetta was on her way to New York today with the 30 members of her crew held prisoners on the coast guard cutter Seneca.

The Donnetta was sailing under an American flag and was said not to have her necessary documents.

The Donetta, formerly the Jeanette, is 235 feet long and of 1,250 gross tons. Bound for Philadelphia, she sailed from Platka, Fla., reaching Marcus Hook, Del., April 22. Before reaching this point she was reported to have been seen flying the "not" uncontrol signal. On April 24 she passed out the Delaware breakwater and from then until her seizure no record of the vessel was received.

Reports of the seizure were made by radio to New York by the Seneca. It was said that on boarding the Donetta no papers could be found and no one on board would admit being an officer. It was also said that liquor was found on board. Details concerning the alleged piratical state of the vessel were not included in the message.

DAD AND SON BANQUET.

The dad and son banquet held Friday at the First Methodist church, under auspices of the Rotary club, was attended by, about 160, many of them being boys and young men.

The program was started with music by Miss Maggie Knight's orchestra, followed by a sing song led by Walter Knox. The toastmaster was John. M. Crawford, president of the Rotary club. The first speaker of the evening was Fred Story, who talked on "The Business of Being a Dad." His address was very interesting.

The next speech was by Max Leach, a young man of the town, and his talk was well prepared and impressed all those in attendance

Tom L. Hardin also made a splendid talk, a feature being a dialogue between himself and son. Mr. Hardin approved recreational activities and physical training and development of our boys.

Maurice Trigg, a high school student, made a short talk and told how the boys like their dads and want to follow after them. He was loudly applauded for many of his ideas were very interesting.

The speaker of the evening was Dr. P. W. Horn, president of Texas Tech College at Lubbock. Dr. Horn visited Childress as the guest of the Rotary club last year and so well were the Rotarians pleased that the second invitation was extended. His address brought much applause, as Dr. Horn knows boys and their habits. He commented on what the dad should do who has a boy who wants to go to college. He also brought forth the fact that our boys have better opportunities today than ever before.

Get Down to Campaign.

These appointments were recommended by a committee composed of W. J. Townsend, George Coleman, A. H. Britain, Luther Hoffman, C. I. Francis and Claude Miller. They were unanimously adopted.

Getting down to the campaign itself and the personalities it involves, the two speakers of the evening, Guy Rogers and R. E. Taylor, roundly assailed the present Ferguson administration and declared that Moody was the logical man to put an end to the reign of Fergusonism.

Judge Taylor waxed particularly vehement in his denunciation of the political situation in Texas today. He touched especially on the pardon record of the last two years and declared that "the pardon policy of the Fergusons ought to condemn them for all time in the face of any honest man."

Full blame for the situation was laid at the door of former Governor Jim.

"Ma," the speaker said, "was an honest woman, but she couldn't help herself and particularly she couldn't help the company she had to keep."

Taylor told of an exchange of letters between himself and Jim Ferguson some time ago in which he had written to protest against a pardon that had been issued and received "an insulting answer" in which Ferguson offered to come up to Wichita Falls and debate his pardon policy with Taylor. The latter said he wasn't such a fool as to walk into an open trap, but that he did offer to go to Temple and debate personal characters with the ex-governor.

"Fergusonism a Plague."

Judge Guy Rogers, the first speaker of the evening, asserted that "Fergusonism is not an issue in Texas, it is a plague and a malady."

"Italy has her Mussolini," Judge Rogers said, "who is responsible to the fascisti of that land and who pursues his career of domination through the land. Texas has Jim Ferguson, responsible to no one, who stands behind the scenes and pulls the strings that bring the puppets and pawns on the political stage of Texas.

Judge Rogers touched very briefly on some of the ponits for which the Ferguson administration has been criticised, naming in particular the highway department situation; the oil legislation that has been passed; Ferguson's services as a railroad attorney while important railway legislation has been pending; and other issues in which he is alleged to have been involved.

Additional meetings will be held in the near future, Judge Montgomery announced, at which time speakers of state-wide repute probably will be here to speak in behalf of Moody. Judge Montgomery stated that he had assurance from Cullen Thomas, M. M. Crane, Alvin Ousley and others that they would come to Wichita Falls in Moody's behalf; and he also declared it his belief that Joe Bailey and Pat Neff would also be here sometime before election day.

CAN EAT CABBAGE, MEAT, ANYTHING NOW

When the food we eat is not properly acted on by the liver and stomach, and, as a result, the waste products are not eliminated from the system as they should be, we suffer often from such symptoms as dizziness, fainting spells, various pains and aches, and no food agrees with us. Such was the experience of Mr. Claud Crane, Cedar Bluff, Ala., who says: "It is about four or five years ago, since I got down sick. For awhile I just dragged along, feeling like I couldn't lift my feet. Then I began having weak, fainty spells, and such a queer feeling in my breast. I would fall and couldn't get up for a long time. I felt like everything was slipping from under me. Then I would have a pain in my side, or chest, like gas pains.

"I couldn't eat any fruit or anything heavy. I ate some cabbage and it 'most killed me. On the light food I had to eat, to keep off these fainty spells, I just couldn't do a day's work.

"I tried remedies for a year or more but couldn't see that I got any better. One day, my brother said: 'Why don't you take Thedford's Black-Draught?' I tried it. I commenced with small doses, after meals, and found it was helping me. I ate a little more at meal-time, then a little heavier keeping up the Black-Draught all the time. I took it for about a year. Now, I can eat meat or anything, and it never gives me any trouble. I am strong and well. I just take Black-Draught occasionally, now."

The use of Thedford's Black-Draught has given relief in many similar cases, with symptoms like those described by Mr. Crane.

Costs only one cent a dose. Sold everywhere. JA-31.

Americans Certain Byrd Succeeded In Flying Over Pole

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP)—American navy experts are accepting as a fact accomplished the flight of Lieutenant Commander Richard E. Byrd and Pilot Floyd Bennett from Spitsbergen to the North Pole and back notwithstanding the feeling of reserve held in Italy, Denmark, Norway and Germany pending positive proof of the achievement.

With his sun compass and his own bubble sextant Byrd at all times was able to determine his exact position and to know positively when he crossed over the pole and circled about it. It is the belief of the naval experts that with a bright sun shining and absolute freedom from fog or clouds Byrd was certain when he returned to King's Bay Sunday that he had visualized from the air the scene that Peary had observed from the ice, the exact top of the world.

It is the opinion of naval circles that with the formula which had been worked out for him to determine his geographical position Byrd's claim will prove outside the realm of contradiction. Because of the sun compass and his own bubble sextant resort to the mariner's compass, which is of little value in the Arctic regions, owing to magnetic vibrations, was unnecessary. He sailed away straight away toward the pole, without any markers below to show him the route and the plane winged its way back over the vast stretches of ice directly to the spot where the birdmen started on their momentous journey.

Methodists Dodge Modernism Fight In Memphis Meet

MEMPHIS, May 11.—(AP)— The twentieth general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, lingered for a moment on the edge of another fundamentalism-modernism fight here today when a resolution introduced by Rev. R. P. Shuler, Los Angeles, was hurried out of the conference into committee with an argument already starting.

Mr. Shuler asked the conference to ask the bishops to appoint a special committee to draw up a statement of Methodist belief and present it to the general conference four years hence.

Dr. S. Park Cadman, head of the federal council of churches of Christ in America told the conference that the work of the church was to combat "the neopaganism which is creeping in and causing the country to try to dismiss God with the vote of thanks for past services."

He said prohibition is the result of the efforts of Protestantism and its defeat would be a defeat for the church of Christ. The conference voted an appropriation of $24,000 for the establishment of a board of temperance with headquarters in Washington.

Texas Will Get Rainbow Trout In Propogation Scheme

SAN ANTONIO, May 11.—(AP) Twenty large cans of rainbow trout, celebrated game fish, big and little, will arrive in San Antonio Thursday and be taken by truck without delay to Medina Lake to be placed in the fish hatchery there.

Wm. H. Furlong, acting secretary of the chamber of commerce, will supervise the unloading of the cans of fish and transfer to the hatcheries.

The rainbow trout are coming from the government hatchery at Neosho, Mo., and are being sent on the recommendation of Henry O'Malley, head of the U. S. bureau of fisheries.

It is proposed, Mr. Furlong said today to devote the hatchery ponds entirely to rainbow propagation and build rafts in Medina river to isolate areas for bass.

READING CHARACTER

CHARACTER reading has always been a fascinating diversion. There are always persons who insist that they have only to look at a face to correctly read the character of the one to whom it belongs.

Others insist that the characteristics may be read in the lines of the hand or the bumps on the head. Schools of salesmanship teach that the shape of the face, the height of the head above the ears, the protrusion of the upper or the under lip, etc., are sure indications of certain traits that should be taken into consideration when a sale is to be made.

Possibly there is something in each of these socalled sciences, quite probably they are not only fallible but often misleading. Each of us has his own way of attempting to tell the character of the people we meet. Havent you felt yourself warming to a person whom you heard laugh? A hearty peal that brings an answering smile to the faces of all within hearing; it is difficult but lovable in disposition—or at least has something good about him.

Thomas Carlyle, in his "Philosophy of Old Clothes" (Sartor Resartus) describes how his professor, Teufelsdrockh laughed—"a laugh not of the face and diaphragm only, but of the whole man from head to heel.

"How much lies in laughter:" he adds, "the cypher-key, herewith we decipher the whole man! Some men wear an everlasting barren simper; in the smile of others lies a cold glitter as of ice; the fewest are able to laugh; but only sniff and titter and snigger from the throat outwards; or at best, produce some whiffling husky cachinnation, as if they were laughing through wool; of, none such comes good. The man who cannot laugh is not only fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils; but his whole life is already a treason and a tratagem.

And what part do clothes play in our readings of people's characters? Do we we not label people gentle, refined, or rough and uncouth by the garments they wear? But what if, as Carlyle suggests, in a great crowd of men of various walks of life, the clothes should suddenly be removed? Who then could tell prince from peasant, the scholar from the illiterate?

"Happy he who can look through the clothes of a man," he says, "(the woollen, and fleshly, and official bank-paper and statepaper clothes) into the man himself; and discern, it may be, in this or the other dread potentate, a more or less incompetent digestive-apparatus; yet also an inscrutable venerable mystery, in the meanest tinker that sees with eyes!"

A STRIKE PARADOX

IN CASE of a general strike the strikers themselves and their families are, of course, a part of the community which the Government is bound to protect. They must be supplied with food and the other necessaries of life equally with the rest of the population. They are often the first to suffer hardship in case the supply service is cut off.

This is one of the paradoxes in such a civil conflict as is now under way in Great Britain. It might be expected that the trades unions would co-operate with the Government in the maintenance of emergency services. But if these services are maintained, the strike will be broken.

The British Government in these circumstances has taken a realistic and practical line of action. It has not permitted the unions to have any part in the supply service. The one demand is that they refrain from interfering. Cooperation in this respect might work for a while. But if the strikers thought they could win by bringing the whole community, including their own people, to the point of starvation, they might decide to interfere with the emergency service. If they were a part of it, the whole works might be wrecked.

The Government, in the view of the strikers, is the "enemy." The extremists among them would go to almost any length to injure the "enemy." But the Government can take no such view of the strikers and their families. It cannot afford to be ruthless. The unions that are talking about refusing permits to trains and trucks of food supplies seem to believe that they can afford to be ruthless. It will be a dark day for the country if the strikers adopt such tactics.

PROBLEMS OF EDUCATION

THE problem of education, the teaching of people adults as well as the young) things that will make them better citizens—more intelligent beings, that will help them get the most out of this business of living—socializing them—is the most important problem of our generation.

There is a general discontent with the old methods of education—discontent among educators no less than with the laymen, and a constant advancement of new ideals and experiments in the hope that more ideal methods of training may be discovered.

"Supposing it be conceded," says James H. Robinson, in "The Humanizing of Knowledge," "that at least one of the objects of general education is to help the young to become acquainted with the best that is now known or guessed about mankind and the world; that it concerns them to know this, and that it should be so presented that it will, by encouraging them to scrutinize our stock notions and habits, best prepare them to lead more intelligent lives and deal more wisely than their predecessors with old and new problems. . . . How are mankind's guides and instructors to modernize their outlook in such a way as to free scientific intelligence from the suspicion which still beset it and insure it the influence to which it is entitled? This is the supreme problem of our age."

"In order to accomplish this, or at least to advance toward its accomplishment, our knowledge of man and his world must be reordered and restated; it must be put together anew with full regard to the ways in which the average person assimilates new knowledge. It must be RESYNTHESIZED."

NO matter whether we believe in the classical background in education or in the strictly utilitarian version as exemplified in our trade and business schools, or in a mixture of the two, we must agree that the main object of all our instruction is an attempt "to enable our youth to realize what it means to live in society, to appreciate how people have lived and do live together, and to understand the conditions essential to living together well; to the end that our youth may develop such abilities, inclinations and ideals as may qualify them to take an intelligent and effective part in an evolving society."

What is needed in our educational methods is not a limitation of research and a creation of barriers over which the youthful mind must not leap.

"What we need most," Robinson avers, "is a new intellectual mood, a new tolerance of intelligent divergence of opinion, a new appreciation of the role of knowledge in human planning. In order to achieve this we can well afford to be more courageous and adventurous than our predecessors in view of the infinite possibilities of further enlightment that have opened before us. Our knowledge must be recast so as to become a part of our daily reckonings."

STUDENT INDUSTRY

THE Princeton Bureau of Student Employment, compiling the returns from a questionnaire sent to 500 men, learns that very few believe their standing among their fellow adversely affected by the fact that they work. Of course, only the snob would adopt a supercilous attitude toward the 150 who act as waiters, managers and musicians at the college commons. Some of the self-supporting collegians take care of professors' children; some manage parking concessions at the football games; others lay bricks, paint signs, read proofs, correspond for papers, sing in a choir, do private tutoring. The same ingenuity and resourcefulness they display in finding a gainful occupation, in a place where there is strenuous competition for every chance to make money. will stand them in good stead when they face the untempered economic conditions in the world outside.

AID FROM THE AIR

IT IS a great gain to international intercourse that France and Germany have signed conventions regarding their future air relations. Aviators of either land may now fly with impunity over the other. Only a little while ago, French fliers compelled to make forced landings in the Black Forest, on their way to Czecho-Slovakia, Roumania and Turkey, had their planes confiscated. With the new reciprocal pacts in force, the Germans plan a service from Berlin to Paris, and the French are expected to start their Berlin schedule early next month. A much-harassed traveling public, always the sufferer from political discord, is greatly relieved by the changed conditions.

Questions From the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

There's No Magic in the Marriage Ceremony Which Will Change Drunkards, or Loafers, or Jazz Babies From What They Are Into What They Should Be. Better Pick the Wife or Husband You Want "As Is."

There is no question that I am asked oftener than whether a man or woman will change after marriage.

A girl will write me that she is in love with a drunkard, and she wants to know if he will continue to drink after marriage. Or she will say that she is thinking of marrying a young man who has no trade or profession, and who has never had any regular employment, and she asks if he will go to work and become an industrious man and a good provider for his family as soon he is married.

A young man will write me that he is in love with a foolish, frivolous, flighty girl, who is crazy about going on wild parties, and jazzing and smoking and drinking, and he wants to know if she will change when she is married, and make a settled, domestic wife. Or he will say that he is engaged to an extravagant girl who spends on clothes everything she can lay her hands on, and he asks if I think she will make a thrifty and economical wife for a poor man.

Both men and women, engaged to be married will write me that they can never agree about anything, or on any subject, and that they argue and quarrel continually before marriage, yet they want to know if after marriage they will live together in peace and harmony.

These questions are so foolish that they would be amusing if they were not so tragic, for they show how many people still cling to the superstitious belief that there is some magic in the marriage ceremony that has power to alter the entire natures of men and women, and make them over into different beings.

These deluded ones see clearly enough the faults and weaknesses of those whom they are tentatively thinking of taking as husbands and wives, and they would not consider marrying them as they are. No woman wants a drunkard or a loafer for a husband. No man wants a pleasure-mad woman or a spender for a wife. No man or woman looks forward to passing the remainder of life in a perpetual fight.

If they knew that the man and woman of whose habits and characters they disapprove would continue to be, after marriage, what they are before marriage, they would not consider entering into a life contract with them. But they put their faith in the idiotic belief that there is some sort of conjure in the words muttered over them at the altar that changes the bride and bridegroom from what they are into what they should be.

And on this fallacious belief they risk their whole life's happiness, generally with disastrous results.

For matrimony works no miracles. What a man and woman were before marriage, they are after marriage. Only more so. For the great majority of people marriage means a letting down of the bars, and a throwing off of restraint and the privilege of being themselves without having to camouflage graces and virtues that are foreign to them.

YAP-A-NEE

—By—

BEATRICE GRIMSHAW

No shoes deformed her tiny warm brown feet; and her hands—Soanek, like many native girls, had pretty hands—there was but one ornament; a ring that Howe had given her.

Saonek, not bored with idleness, as a white woman might have been, spent her days smoking a little, eating a little—she was not greedy—singing odd little songs to the winds and the swaying palm-leaves, fabricating countless chains of berries and of flowers. Often she cooked native dainties for her man; searched the forests to find strange fruits to please him. After the night-long dances, when he stumbled to her room, wearied out, she loved to take his fine white body limb by limb and softly massage it, in the island fashion, till every trace of fatigue was soothed away. Howe was her god, she worshiped him.

And the world of Sorookwari was at peace and pleased all except Kwattu.

Kwattu was the sorcerer Until Howe bought the island, he had been its acknowledged chief; the fattest of the pigs and the girls had been for him; the highest place in the lagi-lagi.

Kwattu in by-gone days, had won reverence, excited fear by his sorceries. Who but he could produce mysterious stones out of a man's own body, cause strange voices to speak to him from the roof, take a man's hair or spittle, and with it form a charm that should cause the death of the owner without a hand being laid upon him?

But now came this white chief, who made not only the roof talk, but little devils with gaping mouths, that he sat upon his knee? He brought chickens out of your hair, and silver coins from your toes; who poured a half-a-dozen drinks from one magic bottle and made things appear and disappear at the touch of a wand. If one worked charms against him it was no use, he being white.

What could a sorceren do? Kwattu tried his best. He put a snake in the bed of the chief; but the chief found it, and a day after he, Kwattu was taken sick by superior sorcery and had like to heave his soul and body up—all through an innocent mess of banana porridge (which was too sweet and hot for Kwattu to perceive the tartar emetic.) He made an image of the white man of clay and abominable things, and set it in a stream to waste away; but the young men saw it and told him, oh, the lark was had when Kwattu was made to swallow it, every crap. Kwattu brooded on these things, and his liver was very hot within him.

Meanwhile everyone else on Sorookwari was happy, and the girl Saonek was happiest of all, so that by and by a fear as old as humanity itself she came to Howe, and asked his permission to kill a few white fowls and throw their blood towards the rising sun.

"It will be safer, Master," she said, her pretty small hands beseeching him, with cunning strokes and touches. "Let me."

But Howe would not. "They came from Amboyna, and cost a lot" he said "Killing laying Leghorns isn't my way of keeping off bad luck. We're all right girl. It's in the white man's world that dam things happen. We're out of that." Saonek did not understand but she went away sorrowful.

Next afternoon a cutter was seen beating out to Sorookwari. It came leaning and skating into the lagoon, and lowered sale with a rattle. Ah Chew was in her; he had a packet of letters and he wanted ten guilders for bringing them out. Howe gave him five, took the papers and told the Chinaman he could go.

Late that night the girl Saonek, looking for her lord, found him alone on the wind-beaten outer side of the island, staring across the black-and silver lonely sea that looked toward Japan.

He turned from looking at the sea when she crept up and touched him. "I'm glad you came," he said. "We'll be getting home."

"Are there bad things, bad spells, in the parcel the Chinaman brought you?" she asked trotting beside him through the brush.

"Bad spells" he told her "but they won't do us any harm. We'll go out in the canoes tomorrow; a long way. We'll go to the island, where the longtail paradise-birds are, and get some for the next dance; the Tabati people are coming, and we must have it top-hole."

"Have it top 'oli," she mumured after him. Then dropping into the Tabati tongue, "Master, I shall be very glad to see my old relation Atu; my liver has been hot with sadness for him this long time."

It was three days before the dance came off; by then Saonek had had time to want her cousin worse than ever, for it was quite plain to her that the evil spells were doing their work upon the chief. Howe had lost flesh in those few days; grown fidgety and henvy-eyed; he muttered in his sleep of nights and talked of things that Saoneck could not understand. One phrase he repeated so often that she got it by heart and used to whisper it, fearfully to herself.

"Barry-Burtiley," the spell ran. "Conway Barry-burtiley. Lawburtiley. Oh, dam'" She would say it to herself cry a little and then wipe her eyes.

The night of the dance came; came also, in the moonlight, many canoes from Tabati, full of the young man. The girls were not allowed to attend dances out at Sorookwari. As they paddled, the fourfold canoeing rattle of Tabati sounding proudly out across the water—there were no paddlers like the young men—they sang loudly, with echoes like a great bell that rings a long time after it struck, the the song of Yap-a-nee!"

Then Saonek knew that her lord was really bewiched, for instead of listening to the song with pleasure, he ran into the house, and put his hands right over his ears.

But by and by he came out, welcomed the canoe party, and, as usual, presided over the arrangements being made for the huge feast that was to usher in the dance. While pigs were being killed and coconuts scraped to cream, Saonek found time to get the old Chief Atu away, and to tell him her troubles and fears. Atu nodded.

"Leave it to me," he said. "A man will speak to a man."

And with that she had to be content.

Two nights and a day the dance lasted. When the second day broke gray on the lagoon, all the pigs were eaten, all the coconuts drunk, the turtle shells were scraped and empty, and the dancers worn out. They lay in heaps on the huge dusk floor of the lagi-lagi house, like some strange harvest hartily garnered and piled away.

Atu, who was not young enough to join in the fiercest of the dancing orgy, was seated on the lagi-lagi veranda, looking much as usual, and quietly stripping bark fiber for nets, as a thrifty housewife may knit to employ spare time.

There Conway Howe found him, and without a word sat down.

"Atu," said Howe, looking behind him into the gloom of the lagi-lagi house, "are all those young men asleep?"

Atu did not look up from his bark. "They are," he said. "They could not be anything else, after last night."

"Then I will talk to you."

MY YOUNGSTER'S DAD

I'm worried about this boy of mine:
He's working hard, and he's doing fine.
That is, as hard as expected to,
That is, as fine as these youngsters do.
But I'm worried about him, none the less;
It isn't about the boy, I guess,
He isn't foolish, he isn't bad,
And yet—well, you see, I know his dad.

But it gives me a lot of comfort, though,
To know I have sense enough to know
The thing for fathers to worry about
Is not how the boy is turning out,
But about his father, about his home:
If the child should falter, the boy should roam,
The thing for his father to ask his dad
Is that, is the kind of a home he had.

It isn't the boy that I make of him
That worries me most when the lights are dim;
The thing that worries me frequently
Is the kind of a dad I make of me,
It's the kind of a home in which he dwells,
For that's the thing that often tells.
He isn't foolish, he isn't bad,
And yet—well, I'm worried about his dad.

What Do You Know About It?

1. Has coal-gas any odor?
2. What makes the pleasant smell of the air after an electric storm?
3. What chemical element produces the smell of bad eggs?
4. Light and heat are caused by vibrations in the atmosphere; is this true of smell?
5. Is the sense of smell strongly marked in most birds?
6. Why is malodorous gas put into illuminating gas?

Answers to these questions in tomorrow's Record News.

Sense of Smell in Insects.

A dog's sense of smell is marvelously keen, but it is nothing compared to that of insects, which are attracted from great distances by an odor that they like. In fact insects may be lured to destruction by placing a substance that smells sweet to them in some sort of trap or poison. They are also powerfully repelled by odors, especially camphor, though they have not much objectelon to cedar, as some people believe. The most famous experiment with the smell sense in insects is that of Fabre. Male insects appear to find their mates by smell more than sight; the female leaves on whatever she touches an odor delicious to her mate, but so faint that we cannot smell it ourselves. It is however perceived for great distances, perhaps miles, by her mate, even through thick walls. Fabre showed that even the presence of another powerful odor like that of sulphur would not disguise this pleasing odor.

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to yesterday's questinos:

1. The commonest vegetable fibre in use today is cotton.
2. Argentina, Australia, England, the United States, Spain, Turkey, Persia, India, are the chief wool producing countries.
3. Alpacas also produce wool.
4. The stem of the flax plant is used for linen fibre.
5. Jute is used in gunny sacking.
6. Sisal is a Mexicn fibre that has recently become of great importance.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

BY MARY BLAKE

Taurus.

Today's planetary aspects are not very encouraging during the forenoon, although they are not adverse. At midday, they undergo a decided change, and become very favorable, continuing so for the morning and it will be found to be good time for the preparation of any plans that you wish to put into execution, under the beneficial impulses of the afternoon and evening. At this time, enthusiasm and courage will be felt, alertness and vision will be sensed, and optimism will ald your efforts. It is an excellent occasion for travel.

Children born today will, during their infancy, be subjected to some illness of a rather grave nature, but the signs denote that they will successfully outgrow these early weaknesses, and develop along lines of rugged health and vigor. Temperamentally they will display signs of waywardness and wilfulness, and be guilty altogether too often, of evasion. Forceful discipline will be neededto convince them of the error of their ways, and if they "see the light" and are able to correct their faults, they will develop into useful citizens, as they will possess many traits of character that will not alone charm, but will ensure success.

If today is your birthday it would be well for you t remember, that Jay Gould, on being asked how he had amassed his fortune, replied "by minding my own business, and letting other people mind theirs." You are altogether too talkative about your own affairs, and too curious about those of others. You possess inherent ability and even temperament, and a resourcefulness that, apparently, never fails you. These gifts are not allowed a free rein by you, owing to the time you waste in volubility and satisfying your never-lagging interest in business that does not concern you.

In your home and social life, you pry too much into everything to ensure congeniality. Although you are a good conversationalist, with a keen sance of humor and capable of smartbut not disagreeable repartee, you prefer to discuss personal matters than those that man be considered of general interest.

SOCIETY

Forum Member Hear Report On Progress Of Club House Campaign

One hundred and fifty members of the Woman's Forum attended the annual president's breakfast at the Country club Tuesday morning, when reports of the year's work and the club house building fund drive were given.

The sum of $30,067 in pledges and cash was realized from the drive recently conducted by members of the forum, according to a report given by the chairman of the drive, Mrs. G. D. Anderson. The amount subscribed included donations from local business men and from various other sources.

Mrs. Anderson described the drive as being one of the best executed and most highly organized of any work undertaken by the women of Wichita Falls, and gave much credit to the co-operation and numerous suggestions received from the chamber of commerce. Individual and collective work of the many members of the Forum who took part in the drive also received special mention.

Mrs. A. H. Carrigan gave the invocation which was followed by detailed reports given by the various department chairmen. Brief reviews of the year's work were made, and plans for the coming year's work mentioned. Several of the new officers for next year were introduced by the president, Mrs. Ola G. Hamlin, who presided.

Following the business session, Miss Mary Lavinia Young, accompanied by Miss Annette Walsh, gave three voice numbers, and Floyd Ard gave three piano selections. A surprise number on the program much enjoyed, was the presentatin of a clever one-act play written and directed by Mrs. T. A. Hicks and staged with the assistance of Mrs. A. W. Barker, Mrs. E. H. Gipson and Miss Irma Schenlle. The skit was entitled "The Forum Family," and proved an unusually brilliant take-off on the organization.

The breakfast table was arranged in the form of an "F" centered with a huge 50-pound cake, designed in white and green to represent the original Roman Forum building. It will be donated to the Day Nursery and was the gift of Milo Connelly of the Cream bakery.

An attractive color scheme of lavendas and yellow was carried out in the decorations of wild flowers arranged in baskets. Place favors were miniature baskets of lavendar and yellow candles tied with ribbons of the same color.

Two honorary life memberships in the Forum have been given to two members of the Civis league, Mrs. T. B. Smock and Mrs. Minnie Gaffney, in view of their long service in the league work, according to an announcement made by Mrs. A. R. Bleakley, chairman of the civics department.

As an expression of appreciation of his art and ability, Floyd Ard was also remembered by the Forum with a check for $25. Young Ard will leave soon for Vienna to begin the study of piano.

This affair closes the work of the Forum for the spring and summer.

URGE GREATEST DAIRY IN TEXAS

Dean of A. & M. College Recommends State Build Big Milk Plant

SAN ANTONIO, May 11.—(AP)—Texas should build at the Agricultural and Mechanical college the greatest dairy plan in the United States, if not in the world, Dean E. J. Kyle of A. and M. said Tuesday in addressing members of the Texas Jersey Cattle club.

Jersey cattle fanciers from Texas and Oklahoma and other states spent the day here on the first leg of a jaunt which will take them on a tour of inspection to south Texas dairy farms.

The party, numbering more than 100 of some of the best known jersey breeders in the country, inspected dairies in and near this city. They left tonight for a visit to the Corpus Christi, Falfurrias and Kingsville sections.

This section of Texas is especially adapted to dairying and there is no reason why it should not develop into the center of the industry for this portion of the United States, the cattlemen said.

Encourage Dairying.

"The A. and M. college ought to encourage dairying and experiment with all breeds of dairy cattle," Dean Kyle said in an address at a luncheon. "Before we can develop the industry and turn out finished dairy men and animal husbandrymen we must have efficient men and efficient equipment."

He suggested that the people of Texas build an adequate building which can be used at A. and M. college far dairying and anmal husbandry. The structure should have adequate offices, class rooms and laboratories, he said. The building would be a fitting memorial to the pioneer Texas citizens who have persevered to develop the dairy and cattle industry, he said, naming as examples, Col. Ikem T. Pryor of San Antonio, W. R. Spann of Morristown, N. J., but former Texan and Ed. Lassater of Falfurrias.

The dean said that such equipment as the college needs to acquire before it can do proper work in dairying should be given it by the legislature, but that this will not be done until the people insist on an adequate appropriation for it.

Dairying Makes Greatness.

"Although this section is the center of the greatest land movement ever known in any country, if it is to be great, the dairy cow must be given its rightful place on every farm."

W. R. Dunn of Sherman, one of the well known breeders in the party, said southwest Texas had an exceptional opportunity in its adapability to dairying and that farmers of North Texas and other sections are looking to this district to furnish jersey cattle to them.

'CAT EYED ANN' IS RECAPTURED

Notorious Woman Jewel Thief, Escapes Prison; Is Caught

SYRACUSE, May 11.—(AP)—Rain drenched, hungry and wretchedly cold, Lillian McDowell, "the Cat-Eye Ann" of numerous spectacular jewel thefts, who escaped from Auburn prison early yesterday, was recaptured at daylight one mile northeast of Weedsport.

She was found in an open field, partly hidden in a pile of weeds and brush which she had collected to protect her from the cold and rain. Still clad in her prison uniform of blue and white gingham, she appeared to have suffered greatly from exposure during her 24 hours' flight. She said she walked to Weedsport yesterday, eight miles, without once being challenged.

It was the opinion of the guards that their prisoner was glad to be recaptured. The prospect of dry clothing, warmth and something to eat appeared to interest her more than anything else on the trip back to the prison.

"Cat-Eye Ann" made no statement upon her return to prison. She declined to discuss her methods of escape or her experiences since she slipped over the walls ysterday morning. She had no weapon nor money on her person when taken.

Prison officials considered her feat a remarkable one, but said that in attempting to get away without outside help she had essayed the impossible.

Mrs. W. L. Roberts

Forrest City, Ark.—"About four years ago I got in bad health and the doctor did me no good. My limbs would hurt, my head never felt right, I had palpitation of the heart, my arms and shoulders hurt me all the time, and I suffered with functional disturbances. I became discouraged. I went on that way for two years until I came to Forest City and learned through a friend of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I began taking it and the first bottle relieved me, so my husband obtained another. I kept taking it and now I am in splendid health. I am improved in every way, thanks to Dr. Pierce and the druggist who sold me this wonderful medicine."—Mrs. W. L. Roberts.

STRIKE PEACE

the British Worker says: "These men have awaited their instructions impatiently and throughout the country they have received their marching orders with enthusiasm and a sense of relief.

Others Join Forces.

"In addition to the men obeying the call to reinforce the gallant first line, others are out because of the refusal to work with black legs, or because the pressure of the strike is closing down factories."

This was one of the outstanding events of an eventful day, and it means that not less than 300,000 engineers and ship builders have joined forces with other industrial workers standing out against the government's warning that the general strike must be called off before negotiations for the settlement of the miners strike are possible.

Justice Asburys pronouncement in the chancery division that the general strike was illegal was viewed as highly important, and was utilised by Sir John Simon, the former home secretary in the house of commons to support his previous contention that the men on strike had violated the law and could be held responsible for the damage ensuing from the general strike.

Peace activities were of a livelier and more extensive character than on any day since the men withdrew from their labors. Sir John Simon declared in the commons that he and some of his friends were about to take up the responsibility that both the government and trades union congress had appeared to avoid—that of initiating a definite movement for the resumption of peace negotiations. This will take the form of a request that the house of commons record its view that the government under certain conditions set forth, consent to give temporary assistance to the coal industry.

Receives Encouragement.

The conditions were that the general strike be called off, that work be resumed in the mines at the old rates and that the recommendations of the royal coal commission be put into effect.

There was apparently a general belief that Sir John's proposal had received some encouragement from the government and the former labor minister, Tom Shaw, took occasion to say that the labor men were ready to make the peace more effective if the miners were guaranteed a square deal.

Ramsay Macdonald, the former labor premier, who left a sick bed to take part in the struggle and who has been working with the others day and night to bring the opposing elements to what has been characterized as "a reasonable frame of mind," was in the thick of the labor conferences today. But, wearied and worn, he kept silent, saying that he was not yet ready to talk. It is evident to all observers, however, that he is using every effort to bring about the necessary preliminaries to a settlement.

The ministers of the crown were again in council today, and the king held a privy council, those present being the Earl of Balfour, Sir William Joynson Hicks and Lord Austace Percy. Lord Balfour had a private conference with the king prior to this, and Sir Williams Joynson Hicks remained for a time with the king after the council.

Whether these movements had any close relation to the peace efforts is not known, but in other directions there has been great activity, and late tonight a conference called early in the evening, was still in session at the trades union congress headquarters. This was between the council of the trades union congress and the leaders of the miners federation including Herbert Smith, vice-president and A. J. Cook, secretary, with the assistance of Ramsay Macdonald, Arthur Henderson and other members of the parliamentary labor party.

Cook and other miners leaders left the conference shortly after midnight. Mr. Cook informed the Associated Press that there was no change in the situation.

The executives of the trades union congress and the leaders of the parliamentary labor party were still in session at that hour.

WARD VICTIM OF VENGEANCE

Gang Believed to Have Slain Him for Killing Young Peters

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP)—Walter S. Ward, missing millionaire, has fallen the victim of belated gang vengeance for slaying Clarence Peters in 1922, in the belief of Ralph D. Ward, a brother. Officers are searching for Walter Ward in New York, New Jersey and Maryland.

When Walter Ward was tried in White Plains for murdering Peters, he claimed self defense, saying the slain marine was a member of a blackmail gang and threatened him with death unless he paid $75,000. Ward was tried twice and acquitted the second time.

Assunnpink creek, near the Pennsylvania railroad station at Trenton, N. J., where the missing man's automobile was found last Thursday with a wind shield broken and a rock lying on the front seat, was dragged yesterday, but nothing significant was found. The Trenton police gave up the search on the theory that he was missing for reasons best known to himself.

This theory they held on the basis that this is not the first time he as disappeared. He vanished in 1922 and it took a week for his own detectives to trail him to the Bowie race track.

MOVIE OWNERS HIT CENSORSHIP

State Association of Theatice Hurting Them tice Hurtin gThem

DALLAS, May 11.—(AP)—A warning that something must be done to curb the tendency toward censorship and to stimplate renewed public interest in the moving picture industry was given at the convention of the Texas motion picture theatre owners incorporated, here today.

Colonel H. A. Cole, of Marshall, president of the association, put his fellow exhibitors on notice that they must co-operate closely for their own protection, must see that legislators are elected who will give the industry "a squars deal" and he advocated institutional advertisement.

"We must evolve some plans so that more business won't be threatened from day to day with censorship and unjust taxation," he said. "We should launch at once an intensive campaign of institutional advertisement. That is, we must advertise the industry rather than any certain picture."

Colonel Cole outlined a plan for a movie season next August in which the business would be advertised from every angle and various means would be used for stimulating general interest in the business.

Urges Expert.

In sketching problems to come before the convention, the president mentioned reform of insurance, policies, many of which, he said, contained provisions for regulating oil footlights; readjustment of electricity rates so they will be equalised over the state, and a system of booking one act vaudeville for the members of the association.

Jeff Strickland of San Antonio, former secretary of state, who represented the Southern Enterprise company, advised the association to hire an efficiency doctor, who would show the members how they could better their theatres. He said the picture business was respectable as any in the country and referred to the great work done by moving pictures in the war. He told of conversations with preachers who had denounced the business and he said he had challenged the critics of the moving picture shows to co-operate to make them better by attending the good shows so more good shows would be made.

KEROSENE IS STRONG OVER MID-CONTINENT

Is Still Most Active Petroleum Product Say Refiners

TULSA, Okla., May 11.—Kerosene continues to be the most active petroleum product with refiners, not only in the Mid-Continent, but other areas of the industry.

The 41-43 product is firm at 10 cents and the 42-44 at 10 1-2 cents, and one refiner declared them to be as strong and scarce as "horseradish." These prices applicable to group 3, were also quoted in Chicago territory, and in the Atlantic district the strong export demand has further stiffened the spot market there. Monday the Standard of New Jersey advanced export kerosene one-half cent to 10.15 cents a gallon and water white grade to 20.40 cents. The same company also advanced the kerosene tankwagon one-half cent, making an average price of 16 cents a gallon.

Gasoline in group 3 is steady in value, but easy in demand, due to so many jobbers stocking up late in April, but the dull season is expected to end in a week. Sufficient business is accumulating, however, to hold present quotations of U. S. motor-grades. The higher gravities, are softer, due to a lack of export activity.

Gas oil and fuel oil are also slightly easier, but the price structure is steady, and refiners are optimistic.

Spudders Make All Blows Count To Stow Buff Series Final, 8 to 2

LAPAN CHASES THREE IN, FITZ DOUBLES TWICE

Roberts Hurls Neat Brand Of Ball While Mates Slug Pill

Rain almost but not quite thwarted Wichita Falls Tuesday in scoring another victory over a south Texas invader. Sudden opening of the flood gates five minutes before game time sent athletes and ball bugs scurrying to shelter. Hail followed the deluge in large gobs, but subsided shortly after four o'clock. The contest was started at 4:25. It was just too bad for Joe Mathes and company.

Brainard's busters socked Ray Pipkin, stocky Houston right-hander, recklessly and then sat in on Oirish Mahady, another right-hander at a lively clip. Jim Roberts chucked nobly for the home crew. The Spudders took the third and deciding contest of the Buff series 8 to 2.

There were two features, the inability of the Houston team to hit Roberts when safe blows meant runs and the ability of the Spudders to poke the pill in a pinch. Houston put men on bases in all nine frames, but Jim bore down and held the plate inviolate in all but two innings. Bunched bingles in the sixth gave the invaders a run. Homer Peel socked a circuit smash over the left field fence in the eighth for the other tally.

Every Blow Counts.

The Spudders connected for ten safeties. Every clout figured in the scoring. It's too bad about Peter Lapan. The little fellow just naturally can't hit the apple. He cracked two homers and a double the day before and then came back yesterday with a double and a single that drove in three runners. Howard Fitzgerald, the left-handed throwing but right-handed thinking outer gardner, walloped a brace of two-cushioners. Brainard punched a double and a single.

The lead-off batters in the first, second and third stanzas combed singles from Robert's delivery, but Long Jim tightened and Buff efforts to advance further than second base proved entirely too inadequate.

The Spudders opened on Ray in the second, checking in for two counters. Washburn, first at the plate, coaxed a base on ball. He went to third when Fitz rattled the right field upper deck with a boisterous two-sacker. A sacrifice hoist to center raised by Turgeon sent Wash across. Lapan followed with a rift between second and first, scoring Fitz. Roberts aviated to port. Distel singled past second but Lamb fouled to Demoggio.

Two in Third.

A walk to Bodie and sharp clout to right for a pair of bases by Brainard paved the way in the third for two more nuggets. Washburn hoisted a long one to the mid-pasture. Ping surged over the plate after the catch and the skipper scampered to third. Fitz manufactured sacrifice aviation to right, sending Brainard across. Turge went out, short to first.

With two gone in the fifth Joe Burns, Buff backstop, let Washburn's third strike get through him to the back boards with result Royce gained a life at first. Fitzgerald doubled against the left center fence sending Royce, who circled the runways in nothing flat, to the tabulation station.

Pipkin went out in the seventh for a pinch hitter. Mahady fell heir to the chunking chores. He wasn't in there long until the Brainard organization rose up and stormed all over him. Four clouts and a walk netted three runs in the eighth. Fitz drew the coupon with one out. Turgeon whipped a single to left, and what we mean was he WHIPPED it. Lapan followed with his two-cushioner, an unkind thrust to left center that evaded two outfielders and sent both Fitzgerald and Turgeon home. Distel caught a downer on the end of his bat, depositing the ball with reverse English a few feet in front of the plate and beat the play to first. Lapan advanced to second and scored on bad hop single that was slammed hard enough by Lamb through second that it should have been a clean clout regardless of the bouncing tactics demonstrated by the ball. Ping forced Lyman at second with a bullet shot to short.

PITTSBURGH, May 11.—(AP)—The Pirates won the opening game with Philadelphia today, 11 to 1, by staging a vicious attack on Mitchell in the second inning and keeping it up against a pair of relief hurlers. A triple by Cuyler drove Mitchell to the showers and Pierce was sent in but he did not stop the hitting. Baecht, 18-year-old rookie, finished the game. The score:

Grimes Holds Cubs

CHICAGO, May 1.—(AP)—Grimes held the Cubs to six scattered hits today while the Robins were bunching blows off Blake and Osborn, which, aided by untimely bobbles, enabled Brooklyn to even the series with Chicago by winning, 6 to 3. One of the hits off Grimes was a circuit drive by Grimm. The score:

The club will put up the first prize. Joe Art gives the runner-up trophy, it was announced.

ELECTRICS VS. EAGLES.

The Wichita Falls Electric company and the American Refinery clubs hook up this afternoon on the Twilight league diamond in what could be called a crucial game. Both clubs have been going forward at a hard and fast clip, and one of them must be stopped.

* * *

Snipe Connally will chunk his spitters at the Pole climbers. The Electrics will use Bill Andres or Eddie Kollman. With either one of these men working on the hill the Electrics will be hard to stop. Andree is an American Refinery cast-off and is out for revenge.

* * *

FOOLED HIM.

In that well remembered 13-inning hurling duel last Sunday between Henry Hatton and Gabe Harris, Hood Kizziar pulled that old favorite trick of his. It is a trick that the Security infielder has pulled many times while on the road, but this was the first time that it was enacted in a league game.

Graves had just stolen second base on a clean strike when Hood put up a claim to Graves that the ball was a foul and Graves believed him and started back to first. The result was that Harris tossed the ball to Kizziar and Graves was an easy out.

* * *

The crowd that had gathered for the game was almost a solid Panhandle gang of rooters, and only a few off in one corner of the field were pulling for Gabe Harris to come through. Henry Francis, Coyle Francis' father and American Refinery man, Oklahoma Lee Courtney, and a few other staunch rooters of the bank team were all who seemed to be backing Gabe in that game, but Gabe lost, 3-2.

* * *

In the sixth inning Virgil Brown leaped into the air and pulled in a terrific line drive off the bat of Riley Rawls and doubled Hargrove at second. Mister Francis gave one leap into the air when this happened and finished up with a few short hops that resembled the Charleston greatly.

* * *

With the addition of Lefty Pat Caraway to the American Refinery Eagles it marks the entrance of the first left handed pitcher to the Twilight league. Feed the batters up on the right handers and shoot them against the slants of a southpaw and they may be lost.

Pat looked good to the Spudders and hung on with the club longer than any other man they had on the list of recruits. The tall left hander has plenty of stuff and should develop into a great pitcher.

* * *

The American Refinery Eagles team is to journey to Newcastle Saturday for another battle with the Newcastle All-Stars. Lefty Pat Caraway probably will do the heaving for the Eagles.

* * *

Doc Allen, flashing keystone guardian with the Texhoma Oilers is in the General hospital suffering from an attack of pneumonia. The loss of this infielder greatly handicaps the Oilers, but they are confideunt that Skipper Gerard Boone can fill the place until Doc returns to the lineup.

* * *

The Texhoma crew will journey to Frederick, Okla., Sunday afternoon for a game with the Frederick All-Stars. Frederick has been turning out good ball games for years and the Oilers will find them hard to stop.

Jimmy Parker or Luther Thurman probably will do the hurling for the Texhoma club.

* * *

The Securty National bank crew has signed Jimmy Shipley on the dotted line to fill the place of Shorty Ross when that youngster leaves for California with Hood Kizziar.

Shipley is also a pitcher and may be used on the hill until the roaming pair check out. Shipley is no mean hitter as well.

HARRY RYAN TO BATTLE TRAMEL

Duke Tramel, fresh from victory over Jimmy Owens of Oklahoma City, tackles Harry (Dago) Ryan of Dallas in the main event of the American Legion weekly fight card next Monday night at the Eleventh and Ohio arena, it was anounced last night.

It will be remembered that in two bouts staged here a year or so ago with Tramel and Ryan the principals, fight fandom was given more than its money's worth.

Ryan gave the hard-hitting Tramel two of the toughest fights the Fort Worth mauler has indulged in.

Ryan has been going exceptionally good the past several months, is in great condition and believes he will tag it on the popular Duke. Ryan expects to score a knockout, something that as yet Tramel has never been on the receiving end of.

FORT WORTH, May 11.—(AP)—The Panthers outhit the Bears today, but the latter massing clouts, won in the final frame of a ten-inning game here this afternoon after Fort Worth had tied the count in the ninth, sweeping the three game series. The San Antonians used two pitchers, while Walkup stayed the distance for the Cats, allowing but six hits but walking as many. A feature of the game was Golvin's double play unassisted. Three shortstops had a try at it for Fort Worth during the game. Phelan, batting for Walkup in the tenth, filed out, Eddie Moore whiffed and Ezzell grounded out extinguishing the Cats' hopes of a comeback. The score:

LESTER WHITE WITH SPUDDERS

Young Los Angeles Hurler Has Goods, Says Lapan

Lester White, young Los Angeles semi-pro flinger, joined the Spudders yesterday morning and was out in uniform Tuesday afternoon.

White is a right-hander. He hurled very effective ball in California semi-professional circles and comes to the Wichita Falls team highly recommended.

Pete Lapan saw White in action during the 1925-26 winter league play and declares he has the makings of a very formidable flinger.

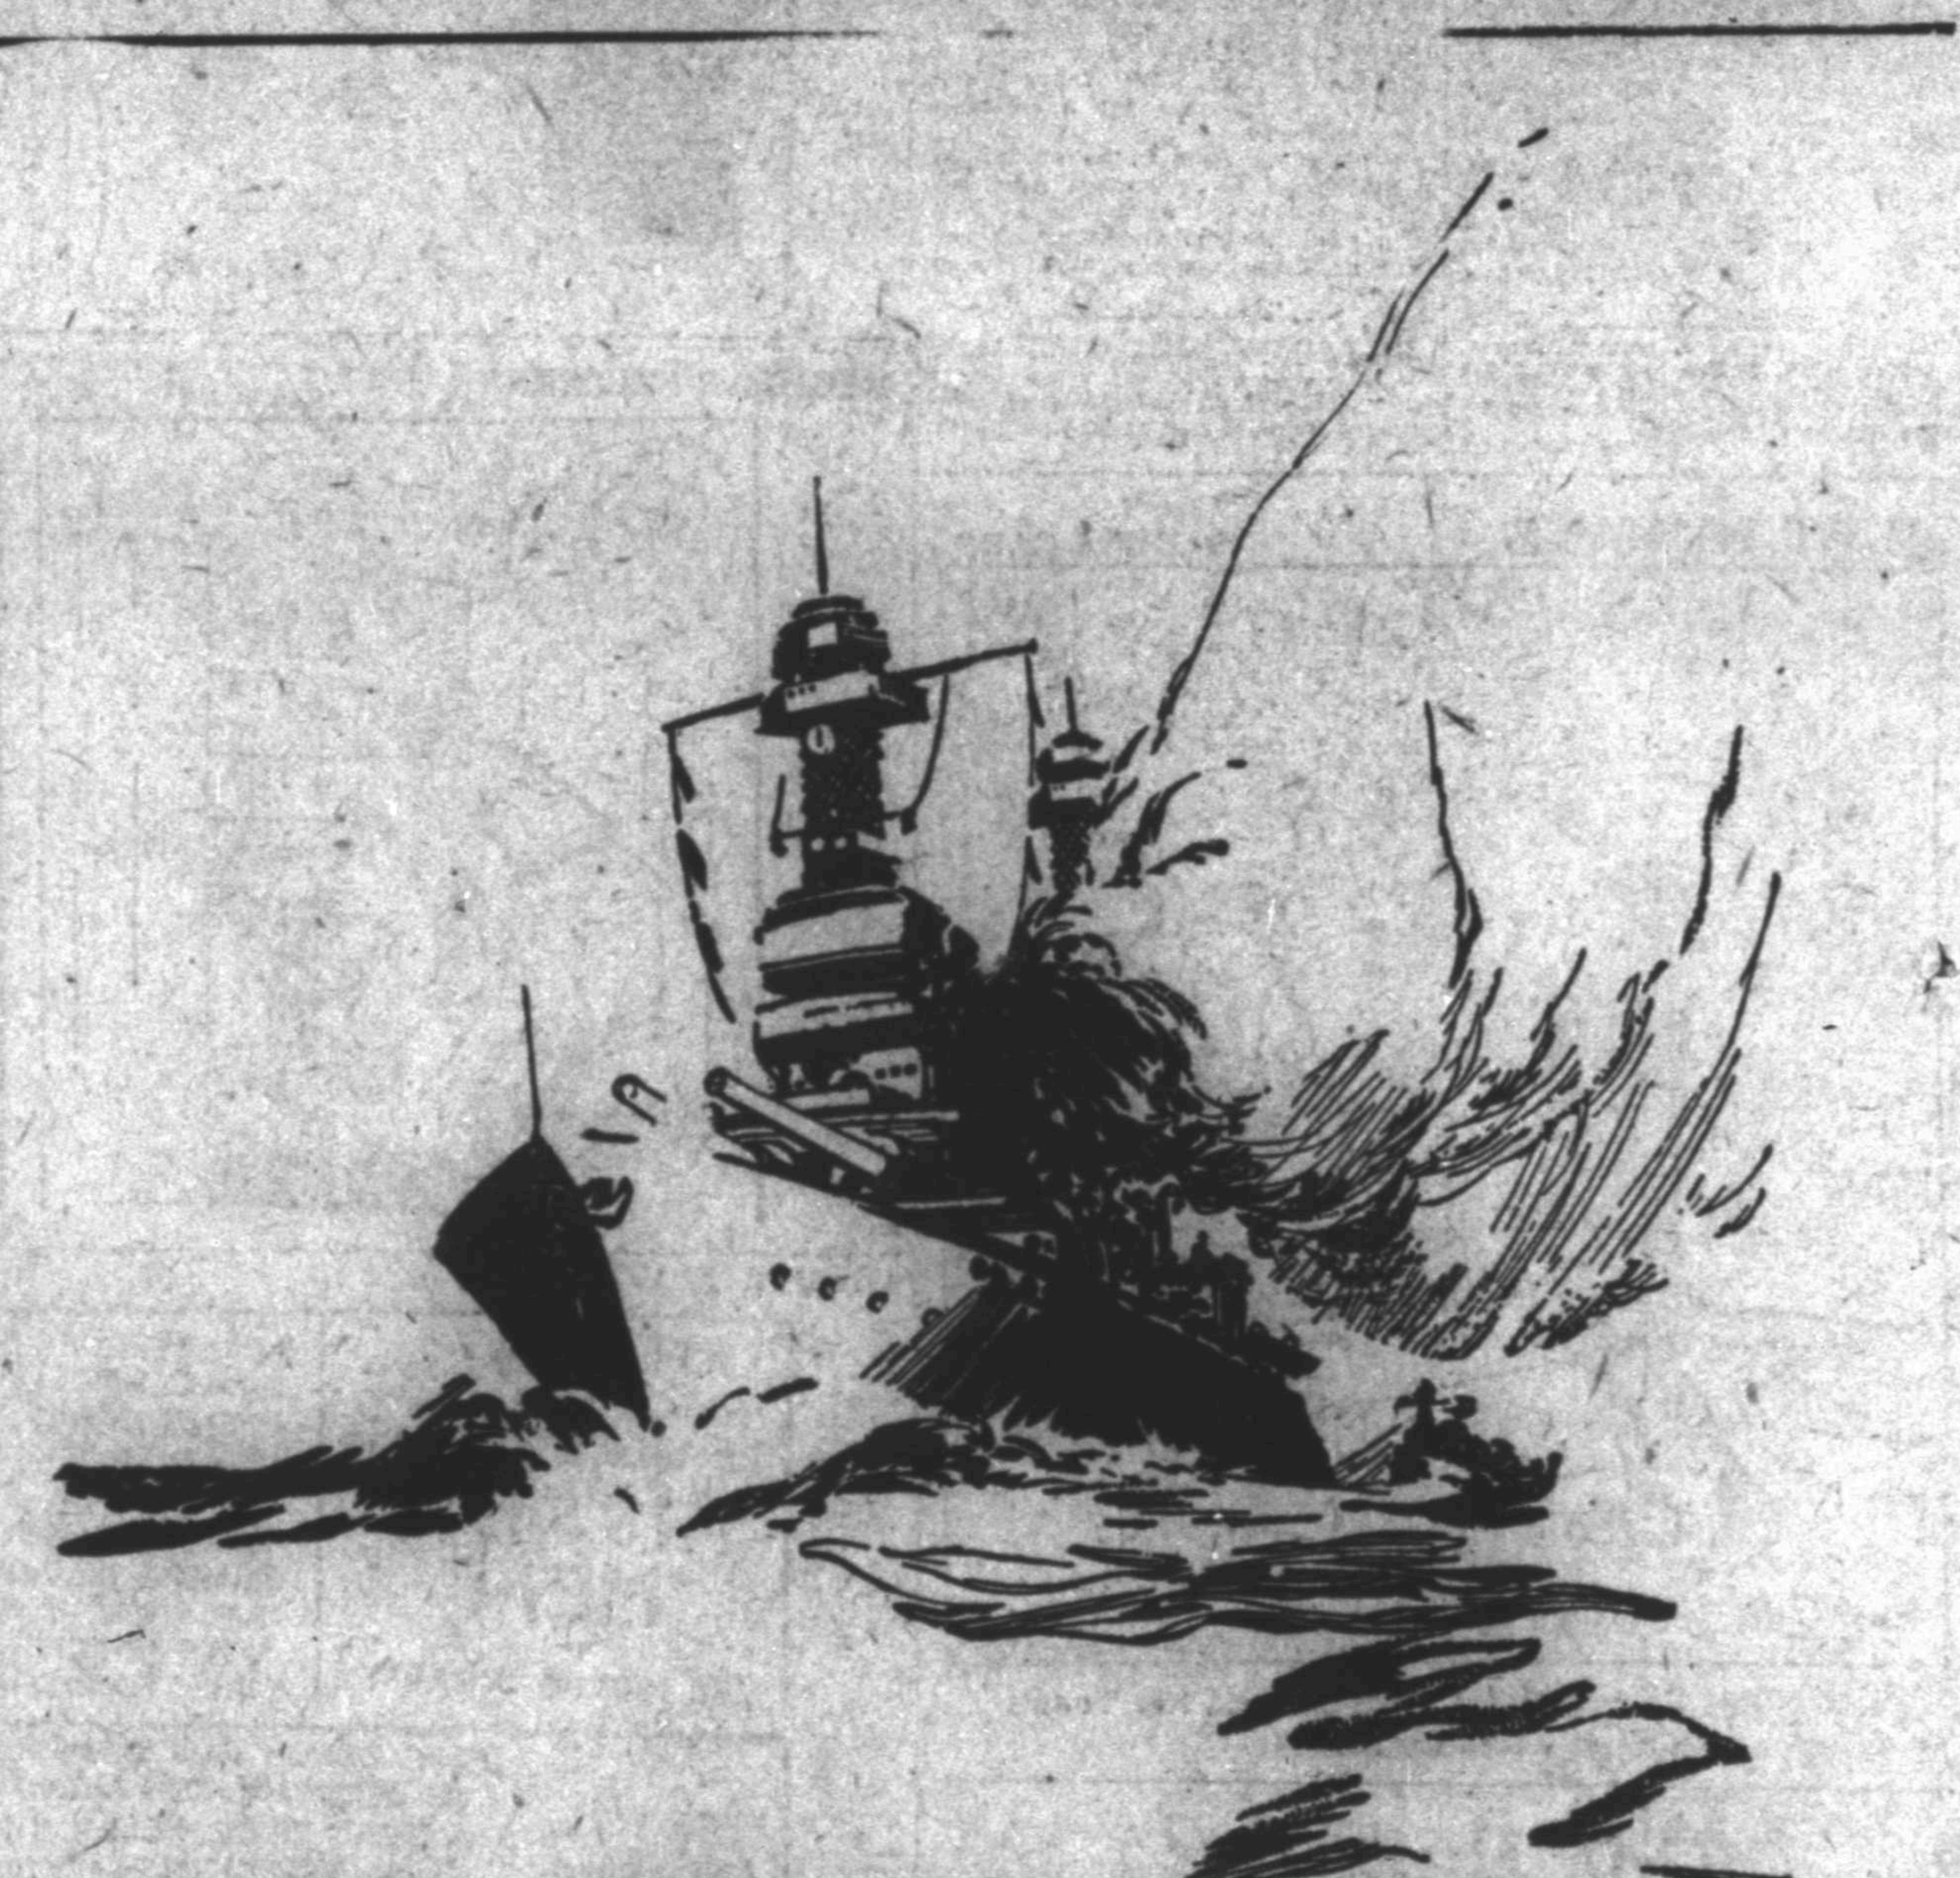

American Walker Cup Team On Isle

LONDON, May 11.—(AP)—The American Walker cup golf team, headed by Bob Gardner of Chicago, disembarked from the Aquitania this afternoon to find England deeply concerned over the general industrial dispute which may interfere with their international match against Great Britain.

No decision has been made to call off the contest, but the atmosphere of uncertainty indicates that British officials have sidetracked golf problems for the greater task of overcoming the obstacles of the strike.

Giving up hope of reaching London by train, the Americans boarded automobiles, pushing over roads which recalled war time conditions in the traffic of food trucks, lorries loaded with tin hatted soldiers and motor cycle dispatch riders.

Stecher Meets Santel In Title Match Here Friday, May 21

WORLD'S HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMP NOW IN TRAINING CAMP AT HOT SPRINGS TO PREPARE FOR TIFF

Flying Dutchman in Little Rock Plans To Taper Off at Lake Kemp Starting This Week End

Joe Stecher, undisputed world's heavyweight wrestling champion, tangles with Ad Santel, light heavyweight king, in Wichita Falls during the month of May.

That announcement was made several weeks ago, but the exact date was omitted for the simple reason it had not been agreed on.

Now the day and hour of the match is forthcoming. The greatest wrestling champion of all time meets the greatest light heavyweight champion of all time the night of May 21, a Friday, at 9 o'clock sharp, announces Alec B. Ross, Wichita Falls wrestling association matchmaker, who closed the final details of arrangement for the match Tuesday morning.

The battle will be a championship affair with the scissor king's belt at stake, said Ross, in fact, the champion has never stepped onto the canvas that his title was not up.

The match is to be a finish affair, best two falls out of three. Stecher is in training at Hot Springs. Santel, now in Little Rock, intends to arrive at Lake Kemp Friday with a staff of four men to complete his preparations for the bout. The light heavyweight until recently trained several weeks in Hot Springs, but checked out a few days before Stecher's advent into the Arkansas health resort.

There was a slight rumble in wrestling circles, a rumble stirred up by Ed (Strangler) Lewis, former champion, when Stecher defeated Stanislaus Zbyszko early in 1925 for the world's championship. Lewis, defeated by Wayne (Big) Munn, who later lost the title to Zbyszko, still claimed the championship. However, the Lewis disturbances was quelled in short order. Wrestling record books list Joe Stecher as undisputed champion, not Ed Lewis. Both wrestling commissions, the California commish and the New York state body recognize Stecher, not Lewis, as the world's champion.

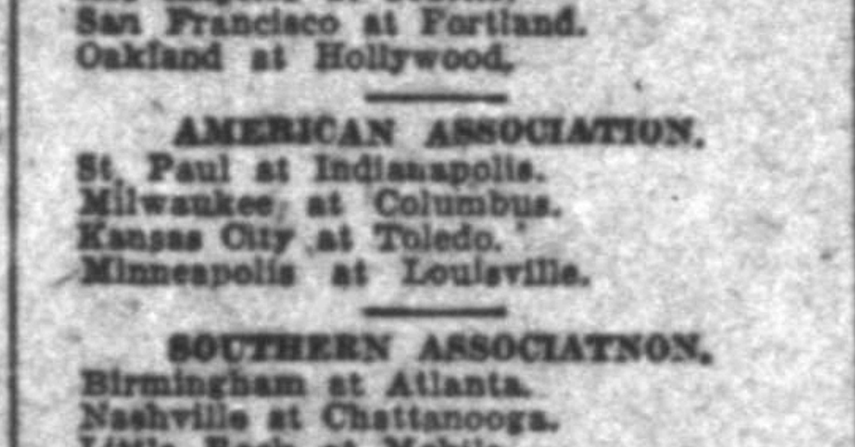

J. WILL QUITTING?

J. Will Gray is checking out.

At least that was the rumor going the rounds yesterday in Wichita baseball circles.

The likeable Spudder secretary, right-hand man to the club president since the first Spudder team took the field more than six years ago, is resigning his position with the club in the near future, it was said.

Gray, however, and President Gardner last night neither confirmed nor denied the report.

Dallas Blows Up, Waco Cops Game, 14 To 5

Pratt Outfit Rousts Quartet Of Conley's Prize Flingers

DALLAS, May 11.—(AP)—An exhibition of bush league baseball was given by the Dallas Steers in a game with Waco today in which the Cubs collected 14 tallies while Dallas was getting 5. Two bright spots, however, in the Steers' play were homers by Woebr and Hack Miller. The Cubs pounded the orb to all corners of the field, Conley dragging in four pitchers in an effort to stem the fussilade. Tuero, no hit pitcher from last year on the Waco roster, had the Steers hamstrung until the ninth inning. The score:

Owls Take Slow Tilt From Ponies

HOUSTON, May 11.—(AP)—The Rice Owls concluded their home season here today by winning a slow and uninteresting contest from Southern Methodist University by a score of 12 to 8. Both clubs fielded poorly and neither Miller of the Mustangs nor Ables of the Owls was able to last the full route.

The Owls did their scoring in the early innings, accounting for 11 runs in the first four innings. Southern Methodist had its biggest inning in the fifth. Fourteen errors were charged up in the course of the game. The score:

Lupher Pitches Texhoma To Win Over Water Nine

Oilers Capture Rainy Day Game by 8 to 1 Score

Behind the steady pitching of Smoke Lupher, a new recruit, the Texhoma club took its game from the Water Department nine Tuesday afternoon by the score of 8 to 1. The game was a slow one played in a drizzle of rain most of the way. It was called at the end of the sixth inning.

Smoke Lupher allowed but three singles and two of these were gathered by Bonie Ray Walker, flashing center fielder of the Water boys. Lloyd Taylor slapped the other bingle. Lupher fanned seven men which included the first five men retired.

Slim Kellogg led the hitting attack for the Oilers with two hits in three times at the bat. The Oilers making all three of their runs in the last three innings after Delaney had let them down hitless and scoreless in the first three innings.

Slim Covers Like Carpet.

Slim Kellogg led the fielders with the Texhoma crew and covered the first base position like a carpet. Rabbit Gordon and Freddie Boone also turned in some great catches in the outfield.

Ray Walker not only led the hitters but turned in several great catches in centerfield and played a great game in that pasture. His only miscue was a bad throw into the infield.

Wild heaves by Hale and Lupher of ground balls let Polly Woods slip over the plate with the first score of the game and the only score of the Water department.

Oilers Lead in Fourth.

Texhoma took the lead in the fourth inning with a three-run spurt. Davis dropped a single in short right, and Hale doubled to the same pasture and walloped a one-baser to left scoring Davis and Hale. Kellogg stole second. Taylor walked. Both runners advance. Davis pulled up at third. Kellogg walloped a one-baser to left scoring Davis and Hale. Kellogg stole second. Taylor walked. Both runners advanced on a neat sacrifice bunt by Cannon. Some one got their signals crossed and with a squeeze play on Freddie Boone failed to bunt and Slim Kellogg was out as he thundred up to the plate. Taylor stole third. Boone hit to Worley who threw wild to first, Taylor scored and Boone took second. Lupher popped out.

Two hit batsmen, a walk and singles by Slim Kellogg and Andy Taylor scored three more runs in the fifth. Singles by Gordon and Gerard Boone with two errors by Belcher scored the last two runs. The game was then called on account of darkness.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, May 11.—(AP)—The cotton market was fairly active today and the trend of prices was downward owing to prospects of fair weather in the belt. Although the weather map showed considerable rain in the central portions of the belt, western and eastern sections were dry and the official forecast promised fair weather for nearly the whole belt for the next 24 hours. Despite favorable Liverpool cables than due the market opened 3 to 6 points down and continued on the downward grade until active months showed losses compared with yesterday's close of 18 to 20 points.

At the start Liverpool was considerably better than due, but first trades here showed losses of 3 to 6 points.

During the afternoon the market rallied on better prospects according to cables for the early termination of the strike and July traded up to 17.87. October 17.18 and December to 17.28, or 8 to 12 points up from the lows.

Exports for the day totaled 18,868 bales.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP)—Monday's advances were followed by reactions in the cotton market early today but after selling off to 17.56, October rallied to 17.64, and closed at 17.62. The general market closed steady at net decline of three to 16 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of four points to a decline of nine points. There was some buying on relatively steady Liverpool cables, but most positions were lower. Considerable selling developed after the call on the outlook for clearing weather in the southwest and a feeling that yesterday's advance had eased the technical position of the market.

Prospects for showers in the eastern belt were considered a favorable factor which probably promoted realizing or reselling by buyers of yesterday and the mid-day market was rather unsettled.

July sold off from 18.64 to 18.43 while December declined from 17.73 to 17.56, active months generally showing net losses of 17 to 22 points. Trade buying and covering absorbed offerings on a scale down to these figures, however, and the market steadied during the early afternoon on prospects that clearing weather in the southwest would be accompanied by lower temperatures at a time when warm weather is supposed to be urgently needed.

Expectations of unfavorable features in the weekly report of the weather bureau tomorrow with somewhat more encouraging labor reports from Great Britain were also factors in the rally of 10 or 15 points from the low levels of the morning. Private cable advices received here said Lancashire cotton mill operatives were taking a ballot on the questions to whether they would join in the general strike if requested by the trades union council but a majority of 80 per cent would be required for a decision. A private crop report pointing to a decrease of 2 per cent in the cotton acreage and a slight increase in the use of fertilizer said the weather over two-thirds of the belt had been unfavorable for germination or development of the plant.

Port receipts today 18,808. U. S. port stocks 978,028. Exports today 18,868, making 7,156,728 so far this season.

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP)—Backing and filling movements characterised today's dull stock market, with both the rail and industrial averages closing slightly higher on the day. Most professional operators appeared to be in a waiting mood with opinion rather general that the market would not break out of its present trading area until some decisive development took place in the British strike situation.

Motors were again subjected to renewed pressure and Chandler, Cleveland, Dodge Brothers "A" and Jordan were depressed to new low levels for the year. General Motors, Hudson and Studebaker showed mixed fractional changes. Rumors were current that the General Motors directors at their meeting Thursday would make an offer for the minority holdings of Fisher Body, by offering one share of General Motors for one-half shares of Fisher Body and would declare an extra dividend of $3 or $4 a share on General Motors stock. Studebaker reported record-breaking April sales.

Further weakness also developed in the rubber group, new low levels for the year being reached by U. S. Rubber common, and Ajax.

Rails displayed a firm undertone with special attention being drawn to operating economies achieved by the principal systems in the last few years. While net changes as a rule, were small, net gains of a point or more were recorded by such issues as Atchison, Atlantic Coast Line, Canadian Pacific, Chicago Great Western preferred, St. Louis Southwestern, Seaboard Air Line preferred, Union Pacific and Texas and Pacific. The statement of President Harrison of the Southern railway that 1916 earnings should be as good as those of 1925, resulted in a temporary flurry of buying which sent the common stock up to 110½, but it slipped back later to 108⅝, up ½ net.

Activity in the oils was confined largely to Colorado Fuel and Panhandle producers and refiners, both of which were bid up to new high levels for the year. A strong under current of buying was apparent in a number of specialties. Radio corporation one of the most active stocks on the list was run up to a new high on the current movement at 45 and then dropped back to 43, off one net. DuPont closed four lower at 207½ and Mathieson Alkali fell back 3½ points.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent and then eased to 3½, closing at the bottom figure. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Demand sterling ruled nearly ⅛c higher around $4.85 9-16 and most of the continental exchanges held firm in quiet trading. French francs were quoted around 3.14 cents and Belgian francs ruled about seven points higher, around 3.18 cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, May 11.—(AP)—Indications of better chances for a prompt ending of the British general strike helped the wheat market upward today. Closing quotations on wheat were strong at the top, figures of the day, with May (new) $1.63⅞ to $1.64, and July $1.40 to $1.40⅛. Corn finished ⅜ to 1⅛ up, oats at a shade decline to ⅛c advance and provisions showing 15 to 20c gain.

Cool weather combined with the delayed start of the corn crop gave independent firmness to the corn market. Frost was regarded as probable tonight over a considerable area. Oats prices were steadied by the low temperatures prevailing.

Demand from eastern and foreign nations adied an advance of the provision market.

U.S. Forest Ranger Buried on Slopes He Loved so Well

MONROVIA, Cal., May 11.—(AP)—Federal forest service comrades of L. E. Parker, who was killed in the mountains above here last Thursday by the premature explosion of a dynamite blast, have decided that his grave shall be dug in the lonely upper reaches of Fish canyon where he died in line of duty and marked by a granite slab chisled from the canyon side.

Rangers at first reported that no part of Parker's body could be found after the blast had blown it to pieces. Yesterday, however, a few fragments of the broken body were gathered up and placed in a box.

Parker had but a few days work left on the mountain trails when he met his death. His comrades say that he planned a faimly reunion in Salt Lake City where it was said he had a wife and child.

He made it plain that the ruling of the board of trustees of the institution that students must not use tobacco would be rigidly enforced.

$1,000,000 Policy Written In Waco

WACO, May 11.—(AP)—Probably the largest individual policy covering tornado insurance was written Monday, when E. A. Kindler of a local agency, prepared a policy for $1,000,000, covering the home office building here of a local life insurance company. The policy was delivered to the company Monday.

Larger chain tornado policies have likely been written in Texas, covering groups or buildings or properties of various kinds, but it is believed that a new record has been made relative to the amount covered as to tornado insurance.

Derby Colts Two Days in Which to Show Their Stuff

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 11.—(AP)—Kentucky derby colts have two days in which to show their trainers and owners that they are ready for the $50,000 added race at Churchill Downs Saturday. Between now and the time the entries close Friday a number of the eligibles will be given stiff workouts against time in an effort to determine whether they are in condition. A few of the doubtful starters will be given races tomorrow and upon their showing depends whether they will get under colors Saturday.

All of the derby horses will be on the grounds by Thursday, Pompey arrived today in fine condition. Of the forty or more nominees here, not more than 25 of them look to be of derby calibre, and the field probably will be further reduced daily until entries go through the box Friday. And after the scratches are expected to narrow the field still more. Some may be declared as early as 7 o'clock Saturday morning, and there is a possibility that one or more will be scratched before post time, about 4:40 p. m.

Favorable weather is looked for, according to the weekly weather forecast issued by the bureau in Washington.

From a prohibition standpoint, W. O. Mays, federal administrator, forecasts a dry derby day with the flask toters under special ban. Already the prohibition agents have begun their efforts to prevent excessive moisture from accumulating for that day.

Negro Does the Charleston When Gun Gets Started

The Charleston was danced with more vim and action last night, probably, than it was ever danced before in Wichita Falls.

A negro man was the star performer, and his ball room was a two block stretch of alleyway between Lamar and Travis from Ninth to Eleventh. He started when another negro whipped out a .45 and unlimbered in the general direction of the first one. None of his shots took effect, but in the two block chase, the dancer executed more fancy steps, interested witnesses said, than they ever expected existed.

A cutting affray in a Ninth Street tire shop started the rumpus and put a negro man in the bospital. He required several stitches, but was not seriously hurt, it was thought.

The negro with the artillery was arrested and is now in jail.

JUDGE SCORES ROAD COURTS

Motorists Have Inning When Deputy Constable Is Assailed

DALLAS, May 11—(AP)—"Roadside courts" in which petty minions of the law collect fines from motorists for various alleged offenses were branded as "hi-jacking" by Judge Felix D. Robertson in a criminal court habeas corpus hearing involving a case in point here today.

Emmett R. Fry, deputy constable at Lancaster, near here, was formally charged with extortion in a complaint filed after the hearing, during which the judge and prosecuting attorney aided with the defense attorney.

J. V. Griffin, Lancaster justice of the peace, admitted on the witness stand that fines had been obtained from motorists parked at night along highways of Dallas.

Pat Maloney, relator at the hearing, was one of the victims.

Fry testified that he had charged Maloney, another young man and two girls, with stopping on a public highway at night with the lights off."

Warrants, introduced in evidence stated that the offense was "exposing the person in a public place" and Justice Griffin testified that Fry had sworn to him the young people were acting "indecently." Fry, however, denied swearing to that effect and testified he had not seen any misconduct.

The motoring party was arrested Sunday night, according to testimony, while parked on road near Hutchins. Fry testified he furnished blank checks which the young men signed for $36 each, paying four fines of $18 each. The names signed, however, proved to be fictitious when presented for payment.

Is Elected President At Weekly Luncheon Tuesday

A. L. Huey, prominent for many years in the real estate business, was elected Tuesday noon as president of the Wichita Falls real estate board. He succeeds W. S. Oddickes and W. S. Curlee, directors with the officers.

Curlee Is Praised.

"Walter Curlee has been responsible for the present success and distinctive position retained by the board during the past year," Mr. Baldridge stated. "His untiring willingness to do everything possible for the benefit of the members as a whole has brought about the confidence created among the real estate men of the city," he declared and then said that the board was a success because it was worth something. The watch is engraved with "W. S. C. Realtor" on the back with the inscription "Presented by the Wichita Falls real estate board" on the inside.

Mr. Curlee expressed his appreciation of the loyal service shown during his presidency an dtold of the purpose of the club in that it strove for service to the public rather than a monopoly among the realtors.

It is probable that he will attend the world Christian Endeavor convention to be held in London, England, in July.

Pollyanna Class Is Host Tuesday Night At Mothers Banquet

One of the outstanding affairs in the group of Mother-Daughter entertainments given during the past few day was the banquet of the Pollyanna Class of the First Baptist church Tuesday night when the members honored their mothers at the Wichita Club.

A series of toasts and a group of musical selection by the girls made the program one of unusual interest. Miss Irene Thompson, president, acted as toastmistress and reviewed the history of the Pollyannas from the time of their organization five years ago. She expressed the wish in behalf of the class that in years to come the mothers would continue to guide and love their daughters so that all they had done for them would not be in vain.

Mostly Talks.

C. P. Mosely, as a guest of the organization, gave a brief talk on the Baptist convention held recently in Waco and urged the Pollyanna class to make an effort for the efficiency banner next year at the San Antonio convention.

The following toast program was rendered:

"To Our Mothers" — Miss Ray Walker.

"To Our Daughters"—Mrs. W. H. Davis; "To the Polly of the Class" Mrs. Ralph Hines; "To the Annas of the Class," Mrs. I. A. Ferris; "To Our Teacher," Miss Jessie Poyner; "To Our Club Mothers" Miss Gladys Price; "To Our Dorcas Class" Miss Bessie Lewis.

Two vocal solos, "Tie Me to Your Apron Strngs" and "Always" were given by Miss Martha Peters, accompanied by Elizabeth Peters; Miss Ina Ponder played a piano solo; Miss Marjorie Hines gave a reading "Mothers"; Miss Gertrude Roberson sang "Rose O'My Heart" accompanied by Miss Ruby Murrell who also played "Liebestraun" from Listz.

The ten club mothers were introduced, followed by the introduction of each mother or friend by the member of the class who was her hostess.

BELIEVE FOUR THIEVES CAUGHT

Quartet Jailed for Job In Ardmore Also Wanted Here

Two men and two women were taken Tuesday afternoon from Wichita Falls to Ardmore, Okla., there to face charges of robbery in connection with the recent looting of a safe in that city—and as they went, police here believe, went those responsible for at least two major robberies in this city in the past three months.

The men were arrested late Monday night, while the two women were taken in custody Tuesday afternoon. Recovery of burglary tools, a watch chain and other incidentals identified as having been stolen from the safe of Cameron cafeteria, has convinced officers that the four were responsible for this job. Evidence was also gathered, they said, tending to implicate the quartet in the robbery of the Miller-Ferguson dry goods store some time ago.

Arrest of the four followed receipt of information here that they had come to Wichita Falls after the looting of an Ardmore safe.

Local Post, T.P.A. Wins Contest Cup For New Members

Post I, Wichita Falls, of the Traveler's Protective association, has been awarded the silver loving cup for the greatest increase in membership over 1925. The award was made at the thirty-seventh annual convention held at Austin where the local club was represented by G. T. Drinkard, R. S. Tucker and H. O. Newton. Post I showed an increase of 83 per cent in membership over that of 1925.

Mr. Newton, secretary-treasurer of the local post, was presented with a silver loving cup for having secured the most new members during the past year, his quota totaling 111.

Two hundred and fifty delegates from all posts of Texas were in attendance at the convention. The next annual state conveiton will be held in Brownsville in May, 1927.

Fifty-nine delegates were appointed to attend the national convention to be held in Philadelphia in June, Mr. Newton being the delegate from the local post.

The following state officers were elected for the ensuing year: J. I. Dixon of San Antonio, president; H. A. Bredow of Fort Worth, first vice president; H. F. Outterside of Houston, second vice president; A. C. Hipp of Brownwood, third vice president; R. L. Wilson of Dallas, reelected secretary-treasurer.

Kemp Attending Board Meeting In Chicago Thursday

Texas has a possibility of securing validation of special road district bonds as a result of a meeting to be held in Chicago Thursday with J. A. Kemp, general chairman of the statewide road bond committee, representing the state. Mr. Kemp will be joined by W. P. Dumas of Dallas and a number of prominent bond attorneys of the north and east in conference. The object of this meeting is to prepare a final draft of a bill satisfactory to the lawyers representing the large bond purchasing houses, for submission to the state legislature at the proposed special session.

Mr. Kemp will see representatives of the larger bond buyers of Chicago, New York and St. Louis and give them the assurance of the people of Texas in their determination that the bonds affected by the supreme court decision in the Archer county case shall be validated and that the credit of Texas shall be maintained. Both houses of the state legislature are favorably inclined toward the calling of a special session and the passage of measures for the perfection of the bonds, Mr. Kemp stated.

REJECT BIDS ON 1ST. M.E. CHURCH

All Proposals for New Edifice Turned Down; To Call for New Ones

All bids on the proposed new building for the First Methodist church, south, were rejected in a special meeting of the building committee Tuesday afternoon in the office of the chairman, J. J. Perkins. Plans for the church will be revised soon by the architects, Wyatt and Hedrick of Fort Worth, and other bids received, it was said following the meeting.

Plans for the new home of the First Methodist south, of Wichita Falls have been drawn and the organization has been looking forward to the completion of the building. The proposals of contractors from Houston, San Antonio, and other sections of Texas and Oklahoma were more than $100,000 greater than the committee had expected to put into the church which was expected to cost, when completed around $400,000. The architects submitted contracts amounting almost to the total costs that had been expected by the committee it was said. With $100,000 furnishings needed to complete the edifice, it would run much over the plans expected by the church members of the building committee said.

Allred Opens His Campaign Office

Campaign headquarters for James V. Allred, Wichita Falls, a candidate for attorney general, have been opened in the office of Raymond S. Allred, 335 Harvey-Snider building. His campaign over Texas will be conducted from his headquarters here. Raymond S. Allred, his brother with whom he has opened his headquarters, will manage his campaign.

Allred has received invitations from all sections of the state asking him to make addresses, many of them are from high schools asking him to speak at commencement. The volume of correspondence has increased until it has been necessary to have two stenographers to assist in the work.

The state wide campaign for attorney general will probably be begun next week by Mr. Allred, opening in Gainesville or Denton, according to tentative plans.

Strike In Britain May Hurt America

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—If the general strike in England continues, President Coolidge fears it will have an adverse effect upon American commerce.

While there might be some temporary gain through American concerns taking up orders that British companies could not fill, the white house indicated a belief today that such a gain would be more than offset by the consequences upon American business of a long stoppage of production in England.

What Price Glory? Star Learned His Part In Trenches

EDGAR MASON.

Edgar Mason, head of the Edgar Mason players, who takes the part of Captain Flagg in "What Price Glory?" which opens Sunday at the Majestic theatre, learned his part in the trenches of France and not from the script of the play.

For more than seven months, Mason was a second and first lieutenant in combat companies in France and more than once slept in a mud puddle in "no man's land."

Mason was a student in the University of Virginia, studying to be a doctor when war broke out in 1917. He was urged to jooin the medical corps at the declaration of war but instead cast his lot with the combat units of the army and went to an officer's training camp. He was commissioned before the summer was over and after a short duty in this country was shipped to France where he was assigned to active duty in the trenches and where for more than seven months he was actively engaged in war.

The scenes of "What Price Glory?" are set in the trenches of France, showing the war as it really was and showing what the men who served went through.

Captain Laurence Stallings, author of the play, lost a leg with the marine corp at Chateu Thierry and has written the most astounding and realistic description of war that has ever been written.

Beg Your Pardon

Through an error in Sunday morning's editions of the Record News, the name of H. L. Tooker, local attorney, who was plaintiff in an aggravated assault charge filed Saturday morning was made to appear as one who was arrested on the charge. The story, after stating that "Tooker was arrested etc." went on to say that "he is under bond in connection with a petty theft charge filed Thursday morning."

Obviously this was erroneous, since the story earlier had stated that Tooker himself made the complaint against the defendant who had previously been charged with the theft count.

Mr. Tooker, who has been in Wichita Falls about two years and who is now a candidate for the state legislature, is not charged with such an offense, of course, and has never been.

WEATHER MAN STILL ACTIVE

Cold And Rain Comes Again Tuesday to Combat Spring

The weather man's peculiar vagaries continued Tuesday to the extent of a couple of stiff but scattered showers, a decided drop in temperature and a murky, sullen sky that at times threatened to send a recurrance of the severe storms that have swept this section recently.

The first rain of the day came about 4 o'clock in the afternoon and lasted for only a few minutes. It was a drenching one at that, however. Another flurry appeared between 6:30 and 7 in the evening and it, too, was short.

Skies were clouded most of the day, the peeping through at intervals to keep up the record of sunshine and rain every day.

A chill breeze from the north drove away about every vestige of spring and made straw hats and summer clothing an oddity.

Somewhat warmer weather with probably scattered showers was the prediction for Wednesday.

Ad Club to Hear Advertising "Whys?"

Eight reasons for an advertising club will be one of the educational features of succeeding programs of the Wichita Falls Ad Men's club, according to the president, W. S. Abbott, who named the first one to members Tuesday at the noon luncheon at the Kemp. "An advertising club is organized for the sole purpose of working for the betterment of advertising and selling," he said, and stated that other reasons for such a club will be mentioned at later meetings.

B. S. McClary, advertising manager of McClurkan's department store, talked on "How Can a Retail Store Merchandise Its Advertising?"

"The first question in advertising is to consider how much may be spent during the year for advertising in any kind of medium, for any kind of advertising and the salary of the advertiser," the speaker stated.

"That amount, however, should be flexible as to how much should be spent in each medium, applied to newspaper and other forms of advertising."

Colorado Looking For Summer Crowds

Colorado tourist camps are looking for the greatest volume of business in history when the summer tourist season really gets under way, according to Ivan McKellar, operator of the San Isabel Inn at Westcliffe, Colo. Mr. McKellar was in Wichita Falls Tuesday on his way back from a long road tour into central and southern Texas.

Elaborate preparations are being made by Coloradoans to entertain the swarms of vacationists expected to pour in from this as well as all other sections of the country, Mr. McKellar declared.

The San Isabel Ill, formerly the Pines Summer resort, has been a favorite with numbers of Wichitans in years past.

It's Surprising Sometimes

Merchants often come in to tell us of unusual sales results that they have traced to an advertisement in this paper.

Sometimes it is surprising, but we hear of so many similar instances that we realize the result possibilities of the paper. So do most of the leading stores of the city.

Advertisers want results above all. And that's what morning newspapers deliver.
