Partially built bomb is found in Unabomber suspect's shack

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Federal agents found a partially assembled bomb in the mountain shack of a former Berkeley math professor suspected of being the Unabomber, federal officials said. They prepared to charge him today.

Ted John Kaczynski, 53, was to be charged with one count of possession of a bomb, according to three federal law enforcement officials, who requested anonymity. The initial charge would hold Kaczynski but would make no mention of the Unabomber's 18-year string of bombing attacks while agents put together a detailed case.

FBI and Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents found a partially assembled explosive device when they X-rayed one of many boxes in in his remote wilderness cabin late Wednesday, two officials said. They also said bomb diagrams were found.

"It's going very slowly because we're not sure if it's booby-trapped," said one federal agent. "We have an explosives ordnance team X-raying everything before we touch it."

Officials said the search of the cabin and an outbuilding could take several days. "We've got all the time in the world now that he's in custody," said one agent.

Also found were chemicals that could be used in bombs, including aluminum, and two manual typewriters, the officials said. The Unabomber has sent a sheaf of typed missives over the past few years and investigators wanted to compare those with the machines.

The officials denied a CBS News report that alibi evidence for two bombing had been uncovered. "Nothing has been found that precludes him from being the Unabomber," said a senior federal official in Washington. "There are outstanding issues, such as how he could have gotten from Montana to the locations where the bombs were mailed given that he has no car."

Kazcynski was taken into custody by federal agents Wednesday so they could search his cabin 50 miles northwest of here. He was not immediately placed under arrest or charged.

The Unabomber is thought to be responsible for three deaths and 23 injuries since 1978. The FBI gave the case the code name "Unabom" because early targets were universities and airlines.

The bearded, long-haired suspect wore torn black jeans and a black shirt as he was taken in handcuffs to an FBI office in Helena and transferred late Wednesday night to the nearby county jail.

FBI agents had been staking out Kaczynski's hand-built cabin near the Continental Divide for several weeks, ever since relatives in the Chicago area notified authorities that they had stumbled across some of his old writings and found them similar to the Unabomber's anarchist manifestoes.

A former assistant professor of mathematics at the University of California at Berkeley, Kaczynski graduated from Harvard when he was barely 20, and received a master's degree and doctorate from the University of Michigan several years later. Academic-oriented and obsessed with technology, he fits the FBI profile of the suspect.

The cabin, with no electricity or plumbing, had been Kaczynksi's home for about a dozen years.

THE SDN COLUMN

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Being with a pretty girl for three hours can seem like only minutes, but only minutes in a dentist's chair can seem like three hours."

It's about even. About a third of all adults are satisfied with their life, another third are unhappy and the other third are still trying to decide.

The most satisfied folks live in the midwest and south while the least happy are yankees living in the northeast. The more education, the more people are at peace with their circumstances.

Also, the younger folks are the least happy with their status while, to some surprise, the happiest folks are those 65 or older.

The same survey reveals that the more income, the more satisfaction, but a wise person once said, "If money can fix it, it ain't broke."

It reminds us of an incident we witnessed a couple of years back in a local coffee shop. A senior citizen who had worked hard and had accumulated some degree of security was sipping on coffee when he was approached by a young fellow who had once worked for him.

The young man exchanged greetings and said, "I'd give anything thing to be like you, with plenty of money and no worries."

The older gent, who had experienced some recent health problems, frowned. "You dummy! I'd give every penny I've got to be your age and have the chance to make it all over again."

Here's a few other famous quotes dealing with the value to time:

--"All my possessions for a moment of time," were the last words of Queen Elizabeth I.

--"Half our life is spent trying to find something to do with the time we have rushed through life trying to save," penned in a letter by Will Rogers.

--"Mispending a man's time is kind of a self-homicide," said George Savile.

--"Sometimes the time best spent is spent in just goofing off."

And another quote from an unknown source, "The best time of life was when I was young and didn't wear a watch. The next best time is now when I no longer need the retirement watch the company gave me."

Washington in mourning over Brown's death

WASHINGTON (AP) — A stunned capital was in mourning today. Flags flew at half-staff and grief hung over the Commerce Department on a sunny spring day that should have held the promise of new life.

The bodies of Commerce Secretary Ron Brown and his entire entourage had been found, recovered from a plane crash in Croatia on Wednesday.

A grieving President Clinton, whom Brown helped win the White House in 1992, ordered flags flown at half-staff in the nation's capital. On Wall Street, the New York Stock Exchange was observing a moment of silence.

Clinton called Brown's widow early today to notify her that the secretary's body had been identified, said presidential spokesman Mike McCurry.

The president and first lady joined other administration officials at a brief memorial service at nearby St. John's Episcopal Church. The ceremony was closed to the public and police blocked off nearby streets as passersby stopped to watch.

At the Pentagon, Air Force Lt. Gen. Howell Estes III said search crews were trying to determine the number of people on the plane. A passenger list for the flight showed 33 Americans and two Croatians but, as of today, only 33 bodies had been recovered.

Contrary to reports from Croatia, Estes said he did not believe the Air Force passenger plane carried a voice or data recorder.

Banks won't take a holiday this time

Financial institutions in Scurry County will be open for business Friday, but city and county offices will not.

An article in Tuesday's edition reported that financial institutions would be closed for Good Friday. That report was in error.

All county offices will be closed Friday, except for Scurry County Museum on the college campus. The museum will remain open, in conjunction with Western Texas College, which will hold classes as usual.

Most county offices will be closed Friday only. An exception is the Senior Center, which will be closed Friday through Monday. The public library, normally open on Saturday, will be closed that day as well as Friday, and will reopen Monday morning.

Public elementary and secondary schools in the county will dismiss today and won't resume classes until the following Tuesday.

In addition to local financial institutions, the U.S. Postal Station will also conduct business as usual on Friday.

IN CONCERT — The Imperials — Armond Morales, David Will, Jeff Walker and Steve Ferguson — will be in concert Friday at Scurry County Coliseum. The free concert will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Snyder hosting Area one-act play contests

Worsham Auditorium will be a busy place today and Friday as hundreds of young actors and actresses display their talents on stage.

The events are the UIL Area 2 One-Act Play contests for Class 4A and 5A.

The Class 4A contest was to get underway today at ? o'clock with Frenship High School performing "To Burn a Witch. At 3, Pampa High School will present "A Game."

Snyder High School will take the stage at 4 p.m. with "The Corn is Green." Closing out the 4A contest will be Hereford High School in "The Importance of Being Earnest."

Friday's 5A competition will begin at 2 p.m. with "The Golden Years," performed by Lubbock High School. Following one hour apart will be Grapevine High School in "The Mariners," Odessa Permian in "Dancing at Lughnasa," Plainview in "The Rope Dancers," Wichita Falls Rider in "The Kentucky Cycle - The Homecoming," and San Angelo Central in "King Stag."

Gospel group to perform Friday in county coliseum

The Imperials, a contemporary quartet which has celebrated more than 30 years of ministering the gospel through song, will perform at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Scurry County Coliseum.

Admission is free, although a love offering will be collected.

A local group, 4-Given, will open for the Imperials.

Although members of The Imperials have changed throughout the years, the group strives to maintain the quality, sound and gospel message. They have been awarded four Grammys and 17 Dove Awards. They've been "Group of the Year" eight times and continue to have songs in the top 10 radio charts throughout the country.

Members of The Imperials are all licensed ministers. They are Armond Morales, David Will, Jeff Walker and Steve Ferguson.

The performance here is part of the group's "Til He Comes" tour, and is sponsored by the First Church of God in Ira in conjunction with community-wide Holy Week services.

Runoff vote count is low

As expected, the Democratic and Republican Party primary runoffs haven't drawn many local voters to the ballot box.

Early voting in next Tuesday's election ends at 5 o'clock today at the county courthouse. As of noon, only 31 ballots had been cast — 15 Republican and 16 Democrat.

There are no locally contested races in the runoffs, which include a U.S. Senator's spot and a criminal appeals judge's place in the Democratic Primary and three appeals judge's places in the Republican Primary.

Democratic Party runoffs:

—U.S. Senator: Victor M. Morales and John Bryant.

—Court of Criminal Appeals, Place 2: Gary Taylor and Charles Holcomb.

Republican Party runoffs:

—Court of Criminal Appeals, Place 1: Sue Holland and James (Daniel) Boone.

—Court of Criminal Appeals, Place 2: Paul Womack and Pat Barber.

—Court of Criminal Appeals, Place 3: Cheryl A. Johnson and Tom Price.

Voting on election day will be held in two locations — Towle Park Barn for the Democratic Primary and City Hall for the Republican Primary.

Unabomber suspect gave up good career to live in shack

CHICAGO (AP) — His flair for math took him from a tree-lined suburb to the nation's top universities and a brilliant career. But Ted John Kaczynski threw all that away.

When FBI agents finally closed in on the prime suspect in their Unabomber manhunt Wednesday, the eccentric Harvard graduate was living as a hermit in a cramped tar-paper shack in the mountains of Montana.

There, without electricity or plumbing but surrounded by books, he grew vegetables and shunned companionship.

"He was a really strange man," said Bob Orr, manager of the Lincoln, Mont., Telephone Co. "He left people alone and people left him alone."

Kaczynski, 53, a former University of California-Berkeley mathematics professor, was taken into custody Wednesday and was being held in the Lewis and Clark County Jail in Helena, Mont.

Bombing-making material was found in his cabin and law-enforcement officials planned to charge him today in the series of attacks authorities have blamed on the Unabomber, The New York Times reported today.

Kaczynski was tracked down after relatives told authorities they suspected he might be the Unabomber based on some of his old writings. The Unabomber is thought to be responsible for three deaths and 23 injuries over nearly 18 years.

Kaczynski was born May 22, 1942, in Chicago. He grew up in suburban Evergreen Park where he lived with his parents and brother David.

Dale Eickelman, who went to junior high school with Kaczynski, remembered him as being good at chemistry and said the two of them used to experiment with small explosives.

"We would go out to an open field, and I remember Ted had the know-how of putting together things like batteries, wire leads, potassium nitrate and whatever, and creating explosions," Eickelman, a professor of anthropology and human relations at Dartmouth College, told the Daily Southtown.

"We would just blow up weeds, nothing more," he said. "Once we created an explosion in a metal garbage can. Nothing much happened."

Kaczynski was a National Merit scholarship finalist, played in the high school band and joined the German, math and coin clubs. He graduated in three years with a scholarship to Harvard.

At 20, he graduated from Harvard, where he left dismal memories with one of several former roommates.

"He was the least communicative of the whole bunch," Patrick McIntosh said on ABC's "Nightline." He said Kaczynski played his trumpet loudly at night and that his room was untidy.

"I didn't dislike him, I just thought he was so odd," McIntosh said.

Another picture emerges from his professors at the University of Michigan, where Kaczynski received a doctorate in mathematics in 1967.

Kaczynski was "a very serious student, very able," said George Piranian, now a professor emeritus. One problem that stumped him and a faculty colleague was easily solved by Kaczynski.

"I mentioned it in class and Kaczynski picked up the ball and ran like hell," Piranian recalled. "I never would have accomplished what he could."

Kaczynski became an assistant professor of mathematics at the University of California at Berkeley in 1967, during the height of the Vietnam War when the school was awash in campus radicalism.

Two years later he dropped out for the life of a loner.

He lived in rural Utah in the 1970s. A decade after he left Berkeley, he was back in the Chicago area and later moved to Montana.

Lincoln residents said Kaczynski had bought his land in the mountains outside town about a dozen years ago and built his shack there.

"He was real shy, real quiet. His conversations were short," said neighbor Butch Gehring.

Neighbors said he pedaled into town on a dilapidated bicycle to order obscure volumes at the library and buy supplies.

Investigators have hunted for a killer fitting a psychological profile drawn of the Unabomber: a white, middle-aged man, well-educated, meticulous and antisocial. They believed he was someone who lived in the West but had ties to Chicago.

The Unabomber's spree began at Northwestern University in Evanston, just north of Chicago, in May 1978. Three people were killed and 23 injured in 15 subsequent Unabomber attacks. The most recent came in April 1995 when a timber industry executive was killed in Sacramento, Calif.

Between 1896 and 1900, Russia laid more than 10,000 miles of railroad across Siberia to the Pacific Ocean.

There are believed to be just 48 Gutenberg Bibles still in existance.

NEW OWNERS — Bill and Linda Armstrong of the Hermleigh area are the new owners of the JCPenney Catalog store located on the square at 2524 Ave. R. The couple also have a sideline business — LG Sales — through which they sell handicrafts and Hopi Indian pottery and Kachina dolls. (SDN Staff Photo)

Bill & Linda Armstrong now own JCPenney Catalog store

Bill and Linda Armstrong of the Hermleigh area are the new owners of the JCPenney Catalog store, located on the square at 2524 Ave. R.

Mr. Armstrong worked for Amoco pipeline for 28 years and is retiring this year. Mrs. Armstrong has 25 years retail experience, including five years at the JCPenney store in Longview.

The JCPenney Catalog store will continue to offer shop-at-home telephone service and fast delivery. Orders can be filled in two to four days.

Customers may place an order either in person or by calling the toll free number. When an order is placed, customers will know immediately if the merchandise is available.

Orders may be picked up at the store or delivered. Merchandise is received on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

If a customer is not satisfied with an order, JCPenney has a hassel-free return policy.

"Items not satisfactory can be returned here even if they were purchased at another JCPenney store," Mr. Armstrong said.

"We are anxious to please the public and have them come in and visit or make a purchase," Mrs. Armstrong said.

New store hours will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturdays.

In addition to the catalog services, the Armstrongs also have a sideline business entitled LG Sales.

The business offers handicrafts made by the Armstrongs' children, baskets from Jacksonville, Tex., and pottery and Kachina dolls made by Hopi Indians.

Copies of the Spring/Summer JCPenney general catalog are available at the store. In addition to the three major catalogs (Spring/Summer, Fall/Winter and Christmas) 32 other specialty catalogs are available. Among the catalogs offered are clothing for extra-tall and big men, fashion apparel for womens and half sizes, and bridal fashions and accessories.

JCPenney offers customers several credit options, including its own regular or major purchase charge plans. Visa, Mastercard, Discover and American Express are also accepted.

Valenti says ratings system may be created for television

WASHINGTON (AP) — TV executives devising a system to rate shows for sex and violence are considering giving individual shows the same rating all the time unless a particular episode warrants something different.

Motion Picture Association of America President Jack Valenti, who is overseeing the ratings effort, said individual programs and series would be given a rating.

For instance, he said, all "Murphy Brown" shows would get the same rating. If a particular episode were to "leap beyond" the material covered by the rating, that episode would be rated separately.

Such an approach would make the ratings system easier to administer, he said.

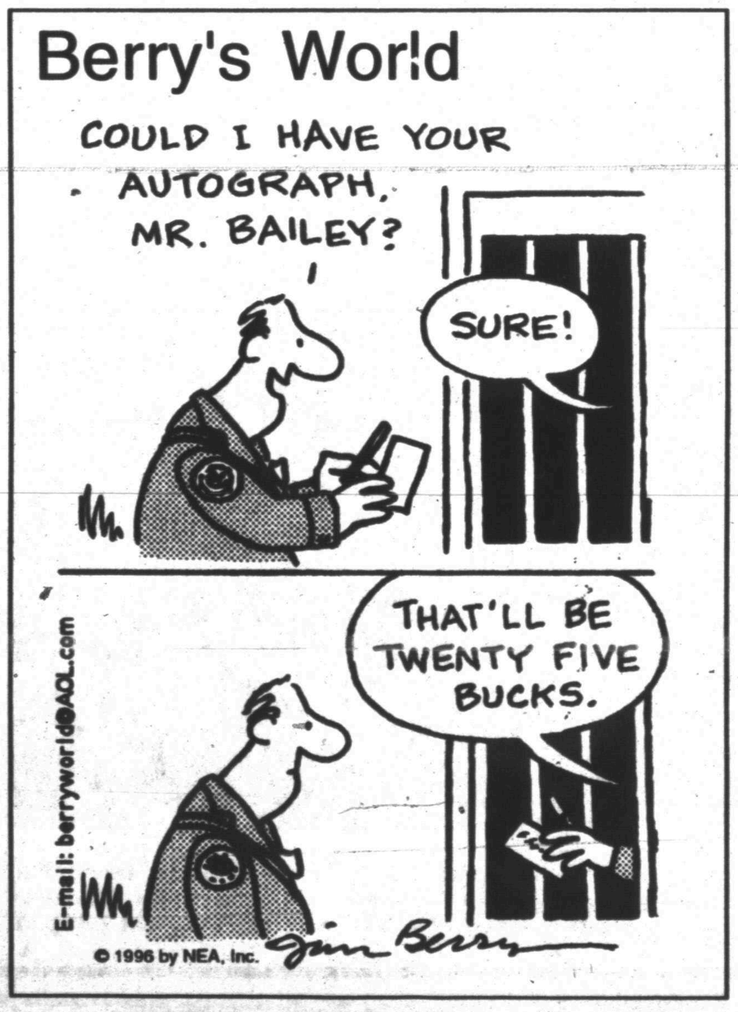

The TV industry has pledged to create a ratings system that would work in concert with a computer chip, called a v-chip, that would allow a viewer to use a remote control device to block individual programs or whole categories of shows.

The industry wants to have a ratings system in place by January.

A new telecommunications law requires that new TV sets be equipped with a v-chip that recognizes shows electronically labeled for sexual, violent and any other objectionable content.

The v-chip has yet to be designed.

Valenti said no decisions have been made on the type and number of ratings categories, ratings symbols, and guidelines for each ratings category.

Beta Sigma Phi elects officers

Members of the Beta Sigma Phi met recently to elect officers for the 1996-1997 sorority year.

Those elected were Norma Cumbie, president; Brenda Hedges, first vice president; Janeen Patterson, second vice president; Jackie Buckland, treasurer; Carolyn House, recording secretary; Betsy Griffin, corresponding secretary; and Jeanne Johnson, extension officer. The officers will be installed in May.

Loretta Worthen, second vice president, conducted the meeting and the program was presented by Loretta Dodson.

The next social will be the Founder's Day Luncheon on April 20 at the Snyder Country Club.

Bombeck doing well following transplant

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Humor columnist Erma Bombeck was reported doing well after undergoing a kidney transplant that she has been awaiting for several years.

"All her indicators are excellent," said Rebecca Higbee, spokeswoman at the Medical Center of the University of California-San Francisco. "She is conscious and comfortable."

Bombeck, 69, who had the operation Wednesday, acknowledged for some time that she was on a waiting list for a suitable donor for a kidney transplant. She had been undergoing dialysis four times a day at her Paradise Valley, Ariz., home.

Her kidneys began to fail in 1990 after they were damaged by cancer-fighting medication she was taking. She underwent a mastectomy that same year. One of her kidneys was removed in 1993.

Bombeck was an Ohio housewife in the 1960s when she decided she would write a humor column about life in the suburbs. She started out writing in neighborhood newspapers, but quickly advanced to a bigger paper and syndication. She also was a correspondent on ABC's "Good Morning America" for several years.

Bombeck still wrote about shopping at discount stores and said she never forgot the excitement of earning $3 per column when she began her career.

Her books include "The Grass Is Always Greener Over the Septic Tank," "I Lost Everything in the Postnatal Depression," and "When You Look Like Your Passport Photo, It's Time to Go Home."

A different Greek gift

By Phillip Alder

The Greek philosopher Aristotle said, "What is a friend? A single soul dwelling in two bodies." In this deal, which was played in Athens, Greece, there was a single soul, but it dwelt in only one defender's hand.

The dynamic auction ended in five clubs doubled. When the dummy came down, the declarer, Peter Xydakis, saw that he had to avoid losing two spade tricks. As East was marked with the missing aces, there would be no problem if East had only a singleton or a doubleton spade. But what if he had three? Then East would have to hold the singleton club ace.

After winning the first trick with dummy's heart ace, declarer ruffed a heart high in hand, played a diamond to dummy's queen and ruffed dummy's last heart high, learning that East had started with a seven-card suit. Next, South cashed the diamond ace. With his preparations complete, Xydakis led the club king to East's ace.

If East had a diamond or a club with which to exit, he would have begun with fewer than three spades. Declarer would draw the last trump by playing a club to dummy's jack. Then he would lead a spade through East, winning with the king and ducking on the way back if necessary.

Here, though, East was endplayed. If he returned a heart, declarer would discard a spade from hand, ruff in the dummy, draw West's last trump and play a spade. If instead East led a low spade, South would win with dummy's queen, draw the last trump and play a spade through East's ace. Either way, Xydakis would lose only one spade trick.

Many witness lunar eclipse

By WILL LESTER
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Three-year-old Andreas Duemichen jumped for joy and shouted "Luna! Luna grande!" as the orange-gray orb rose over the Atlantic Ocean and palm trees at Key Biscayne.

At Maine's State House in Augusta, legislators broke from their work and ventured into the cold night air to witness the total lunar eclipse from a second-floor porch.

Alan MacRobert, an associate editor at Sky & Telescope magazine in Cambridge, Mass., sighed after watching the eclipse with friends: "It was beautiful from here."

For celestial buffs across the eastern United States, the view Wednesday night was stunning.

"We had an evening total eclipse of the moon, a naked-eye comet (Hyakutake) on the other side and Venus next to the Pleiades star cluster. ... It's rare to get three like this all in one evening," said MacRobert.

The full lunar eclipse appears whenever Earth, at the time of a full moon, glides directly between the moon and the sun.

That the moon can be seen at all during an eclipse is an optical trick, played by Earth's atmosphere: It is refracted light that skirts around Earth, bent by our atmosphere toward the moon.

Early sex risk factor for cervical cancer

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Women who become sexually active in their adolescent years are far more likely to develop cervical cancer, a disease that kills about 5,000 American women annually, a panel of experts concluded at the National Institutes of Health.

Early sex steeply increases the chances of contracting the human papilloma virus, or HPV, a sexually-transmitted disease that the committee said causes cervical cancer.

"Cervical cancer is unique in that it is the first major solid tumor to have been shown to be virally induced in essentially every case," the report said.

The committee of non-government scientists issued a report Wednesday evaluating the current methods of preventing, detecting and treating cervical cancer.

About 15,700 new cases of cervical cancer, about 6 percent of all cancers, are diagnosed annually in the United States. Worldwide, 470,000 cervical cancer cases are diagnosed every year, second only to breast cancer as the most common malignancy in women.

"Typically, most every young woman now fits into the high risk category for cervical cancer" because of sexual activity and the common spread of HPV, said Dr. Patricia S. Braly, a gynecological cancer specialist at Louisiana State University and head of a panel of experts appointed by the NIH.

So common is the HPV, she said, that one study of women who first became sexually active in college found that 25 percent had some form of the virus within one year, even though the women averaged only two male partners.

The greater the number of sexual partners, the greater is the chance of contracting HPV, said Dr. Braly.

"The only women who aren't (at high risk) are those who didn't have sex until after 18 and never with more than two (lifetime) partners, and those partners must not have had sex with more than two partners," she said.

There are 70 types of HPV, but only six are associated with cervical cancer. About 30 million Americans, about half women, are infected with HPV. About 1 percent of the infected women will actually develop cervical cancer, said Dr. Richard L. Sweet, a committee member and a professor at the University of Pittsburgh, Magee Women's Hospital.

Spread of HPV can be prevented by the use of condoms, the panel said.

MOTHERS AND GRANDMOTHERS HONORED — The Vivace Music Club sponsored by Bethel Studio of Music honored mothers and grandmothers at a "Friends Forever" tea in the home of Faith Feaster of Roscoe. Joanna Burk began the program singing, "Where There is Love." A total of 78 people attended the tea including out-of-town guests from Fort Worth, Abilene, Snyder, Rotan, Sweetwater, Loraine, Colorado City, Jayton and Post. Hostesses pictured are Nicki Riggs, Sonda Leininger, Faith Feaster and Jessica Hall. Not pictured are Jennifer Petty, Amber Kelley, Stephanie Hoyle, Ashley Sanders, Angela and Johnnie Riggs, Jami Thackerson and Mandy Strain. (Contributed Photo)

Handicrafts presented at Stargazers meeting

Stargazers TAFCE Club met in the home of Pauline Broyles, president, recently for their regular meeting. Broyles presided over the meeting.

Following roll call, those attending named their favorite flowers.

The thought for the day was "Go to bed the same day you get up."

The hint for the day was to use clean, used pantyhose cut into small pieces to remove nail polish better than cotton balls or tissue. Store in a convenient location.

Following the reading and approval of the minutes, members voted to contribute to the Aubrey Russell Scholarship Fund.

They also voted to contribute to the Coins for Friendship. The majority of the funds raised go towards the 4-H camp at

No program was held, however two members presented their handicrafts. Evelyn Shifflett showed a quilt she made for her son and his wife in Washington state. The quilt was designed with a star pattern of blue and rose colors.

Maggie Barnes showed a hexagon tablecloth pattern of rainbow colors with white separating each color and lace to finish the outer edges. She also composed a poem based on the Bible pertaining to each color.

Verlene White was the hostess and Margaret Morrison received the hostess gift.

The next meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. April 15 at 3101 Ave. Y. All interested persons are invited to attend.

CC/ABC broadcast unit head retires

NEW YORK (AP) — Michael Mallardi, president of Capital Cities/ABC Inc.'s broadcast group for the last 10 years, plans to retire in June.

Mallardi's position will be eliminated, the company told employees Wednesday.

His top two lieutenants, James Arcara, president of Capital Cities/ABC radio and Lawrence J. Pollock, president of company-owned TV stations, are expected to report directly to company president Robert Iger.

Mallardi, 62, came to ABC 40 years ago as a systems specialist in the audit department. He was instrumental in helping to meld Capital Cities and ABC after their merger 10 years ago.

Iger said in the letter to department heads that Mallardi had been mulling his retirement for some time.

The Walt Disney Co. completed its purchase of ABC in February, creating the world's biggest media and entertainment conglomerate.

Little Dribbler regional tourney begins Friday

Three Little Dribbler all-star basketball teams from Snyder will be competing in the regional tournament in Plainview Friday and Saturday.

In the junior division, Snyder will face Plainview 2 at 11:45 a.m. Friday. The winner will advance to the championship game at 10:30 a.m. Saturday. The loser will play at 7:15 p.m. Friday night in the consolation side of the bracket.

The majors will see Lamesa 1 in a first-round game at 1 p.m. Friday. The winner goes to the finals at 9:15 a.m. Saturday while the loser plays at 7:15 p.m. Friday.

The seniors first-round game will be at 10:30 a.m. Friday against Plainview 1. The winner will face the winner of the Plainview 2-Lamesa game at 3:30 p.m. Friday. The losers of the first-round games will play at 4:45 p.m. Friday. The championship game is set for 7:15 p.m. Saturday.

Irvin risks suspension by failing to respond to NFL

FORT WORTH (AP) — Michael Irvin's failure to respond to the NFL on its drug abuse program puts the All-Pro receiver in jeopardy of suspension, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported today.

Irvin has not responded to an NFL letter informing him of plans to enroll him in the first stage of the league's substance abuse program, a source told the newspaper late Wednesday.

Irvin's agent, Steve Endicott, and his attorney, Kevin Clancy, did not immediately return telephone calls today from The Associated Press. NFL spokesman Greg Aiello reiterated the league policy of not commenting on drug-related incidents.

"Anything involving the league's substance testing program we will not comment on," said Cowboys spokesman Rich Dalrymple. "There are confidentiality issues that prohibit us from commenting."

Irvin is free on $5,500 bond after his indictment Monday on charges of cocaine and marijuana possession.

Stage I of the league's drug policy guidelines calls for "evaluation and treatment" of a player if his behavior indicates a drug problem.

The newspaper said the NFL sent a representative to Irvin's home last week to inform him that failing to comply with the first stage may trigger immediate advancement to Stage 2, resulting in automatic four-game suspension without pay.

"If Michael doesn't get back to them right now, they can count that as if it's a positive test and boom, he's Stage 2," the source told the Star-Telegram.

Under NFL guidelines, the first stage is certain to occur because of the charges.

"The first step is evaluation made by independent medical experts, and you can assume, given the circumstances, that will happen here," said Gene Upshaw, executive director of the NFL Players Association.

The charges against Irvin are related to the March 4 arrest of a woman at a hotel room where he, former Dallas teammate Alfredo Roberts and a second woman also were present. The two women also were charged with cocaine and marijuana possession. Roberts was not charged.

MOVE BLUE — The Snyder Tigers will travel to Sweetwater tonight for a 7:30 baseball game that will feature the district leaders. The Tigers and Mustangs are both undefeated with Snyder being 2-0, Sweetwater 1-0. Despite the umpire being in the way, Snyder shortstop Jeremy House makes a catch during Saturday's win over Levelland. Looking on is second baseman Kevin Hildebrand and right fielder Gene Pollard. Fed judge overturns Charles Keating's conviction in 1991

Ruling: Judge Lance Ito's jury instructions flawed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal judge overturned the state court conviction of Lincoln Savings & Loan boss Charles H. Keating Jr. on Wednesday, ruling that Judge Lance Ito's jury instructions were flawed.

The decision came from U.S. District Judge John G. Davies, who got the case after state appeals courts upheld the conviction.

Keating will remain in prison while he appeals his conviction on federal charges.

Davies sided with Keating's lawyers, who said Ito erred in telling jurors Keating could be convicted as a direct perpetrator of fraudulent bond sales to Lincoln investors and had botched a specially crafted aiding and abetting instruction.

"We're still pressing ahead on other fronts," said Keating's lawyer, Stephen C. Neal. "He's obviously delighted with the outcome."

Keating was the most notorious figure of the 1980s S&L debacle, known for his huge salaries, lavish life, political influence that tarred the reputation of the "Keating Five" senators and for selling junk bonds that became worthless to elderly investors who previously had owned insured CDs.

Keating's conviction on 17 securities fraud counts in December 1991 had been a major victory for the Los Angeles district attorney's office, which has lost many high-profile cases.

The lead Keating prosecutor, William Hodgman, like Ito, was later involved in the most disastrous of those losses — the acquittal of O.J. Simpson on charges of murdering his wife Nicole and her friend Ronald Goldman.

Hodgman said the direct perpetrator part of the instructions to Keating's jury had been included only to help the jury define aiding and abetting. The special aiding and abetting instruction, he said, was crafted so the jurors could convict Keating of using the actual bond sellers as his unwitting agents.

Davies ruled that under California law, the direct perpetrator must have an intent to commit a crime, and it hadn't been shown the bond sellers did. "It has never been a crime to aid and abet an innocent act," he wrote.

Hodgman pointed out that Davies once lowered Keating's bail from $5 million to $300,000 after state judges refused to do so. Hodgman said the judge's latest decision will be appealed.

Workers prepare to remove stuck fuel assembly at plant

PHOENIX (AP) — Workers at the nation's largest nuclear power plant today were preparing to remove a uranium fuel assembly lodged in a reactor core but they pushed back their timetable for dislodging the radioactive bundle.

Operators of the Palo Verde Nuclear Generating Station, in which El Paso Electric Co. has part ownership, are trying to dislodge the 1,500-pound fuel assembly without releasing any radioactive gas.

After the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission approved the plant's removal plan on Wednesday, plant officials said cuts would be made early this morning at the bottom of the jammed assembly, followed by the removal attempt later today.

By midmorning, however, plant spokesman Jim McDonald said the cuts had not been made and that the removal attempt itself likely would not take place until early Friday morning.

Craig Nesbit, another plant spokesman, said an electronic burning device that uses a hot diode to cut through medal would make two cuts, each about two inches long, at the bottom of the fuel assembly.

Officers note theft reports

One person was arrested on an outstanding city warrant Tuesday and officers also responded to two reports of thefts.

A 25-year-old female was arrested at 10:46 p.m. at Elm and Canyon Streets on an outstanding warrant for disorderly conduct/ language.

Lee Presswood, principal at Northeast Elementary School, requested to speak to an officer at 11:49 a.m. in reference to the theft of a ring valued at $1,200 that belonged to a substitute teacher. An offense report for Class A theft was submitted.

Robert Brown requested to speak to an officer at 3:08 p.m. in reference to a theft from Rent-A-Tire. An offense report for Class B theft was submitted.

In other activity Wednesday, a person notified deputies at 2:30 p.m. in reference to the abuse of a horse.

The fire department responded to a house fire at 4:27 p.m. at 606 33rd St. The house, which was occupied by Albert Kaska and owned by Myron Fenton, received extensive damage.

DPS responded to an accident at 5:21 on U.S. Highway 84 some two miles north of Snyder. Involved was a 1995 GMC truck driven by Billy Culpepper of Shreveport, La. which was pulling another vehicle. The accident happened as a result of a blowout and there were no injuries.

Reports of possible prowlers were made at 10:56 p.m. from a county residence just north of Camp Springs Road and at 5:44 this morning from the 900 block of 27th Street.

Trail of bombings tied to Unabomber

By The Associated Press

Bombings linked to the Unabomber. The FBI gave the case the code name "Unabom" because early targets were universities and airlines.

—May 25-26, 1978: A package is found at a parking lot at University of Illinois at Chicago and brought to Northwestern University in Evanston because of the return address. It explodes when it is opened on May 26, injuring one person.

—May 9, 1979: One person injured at Northwestern University.

—Nov. 15, 1979: Twelve suffer smoke inhalation when bomb explodes in plane's cargo hold during American Airlines flight, forcing an emergency landing at Dulles International Airport near Washington.

—June 10, 1980: United Airlines president injured at home in Chicago area.

—Oct. 8, 1981: Bomb placed in a business classroom at University of Utah in Salt Lake City. No one injured.

—May 5, 1982: One person injured at Vanderbilt University in Nashville; package addressed to a professor.

—July 2, 1982: Professor of electrical engineering and computer science injured in faculty lounge at University of California at Berkeley.

—May 15, 1985: One person injured by bomb found in computer room at University of California at Berkeley.

—June 13, 1985: Package that was mailed to the Boeing Co. in Auburn, Wash., on May 8 is discovered and safely disarmed.

—Nov. 15, 1985: Two people injured by package mailed to professor at University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. The professor, who was standing nearby, wasn't hurt.

—Dec. 11, 1985: Hugh Scrutton, 38, killed by bomb found near his computer rental store in Sacramento, Calif.

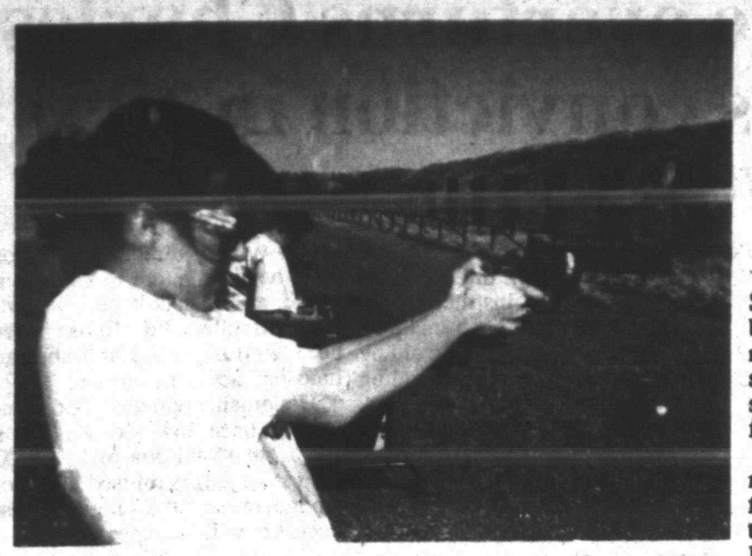

—Feb. 20, 1987: Man injured by bomb left behind computer store in Salt Lake City.

—June 22, 1993: Geneticist at University of California at San Francisco injured by bomb sent to his home.

—June 24, 1993: Yale University computer scientist injured in office.

—Dec. 10, 1994: Advertising executive Thomas Mosser, 50, killed by bomb sent to his North Caldwell, N.J., home.

—April 24, 1995: California Forestry Association President Gilbert P. Murray, 47, killed opening a mail bomb in the group's Sacramento headquarters.

Snyder Police Explorer Post participates in annual event

Seven members of the Snyder Police Explorer Post 573 and four advisors took part in the annual Police Explorer competition, hosted last weekend by the Odessa Police Department.

Competing from Post 573 were team members T.J. Wood, Autumn Pollard, Krista Villarreal and Heath Poland. Competing as individuals were Charlene Carr, Tim Gentry and Larry English.

The Snyder team placed third in drug warrant arrests and in crime scene identification scenarios and participated in traffic accident investigation.

Individuals competed in CO2 pistol range and in the obstacle course. Carr took first place in the women's obstacle course.

Accompanying the youth were advisors Sgt. Patrick Coggins, Officer Pablo Coronado and Jim and Suzanne Pollard.

The competition was followed by a banquet dinner and dance.

"We're very proud of our Explorers and the job they did," said Sgt. Coggins, lead advisor. "We're also grateful for all the officers who helped us in the training for the competition. This is a super bunch of kids and they did real well. We're looking forward to next year."

Explorer Post 573 is open to youth ages 15 through 21 who are interested in a career in law enforcement. Anyone who would like to know more about the program can contact Sgt. Coggins at 573-0261.

Woman feared for life

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Alicia Saltero Vasquez crossed the border from Mexico so her children could have a better life, she said from a hospital bed. After sheriff's deputies clubbed her, she feared for her own.

"I just prayed to God to help me, because I have kids, and my family," she said Wednesday in a tearful interview with TV station KMEX.

Vasquez, 32, and Enrique Funes Flores were beaten Monday by two sheriff's deputies after a high-speed chase in a pickup crammed with other Mexicans suspected of sneaking across the border.

News helicopters videotaped the chase and beating, and the footage was played repeatedly in the United States and Mexico.

Riverside County Sheriff Larry Smith condemned the beatings Wednesday, calling them a shocking use of excessive force.

Vasquez had worked in a now-closed clothing factory in Mexico to support her daughter, 11, and son, 9. She then worked odd jobs but couldn't make enough money, she said.

"I'm really poor, and that's why I decided to come over here, to get my kids an education because I never had one. I only finished second grade," she said.

Tears rolled down her cheeks as she spoke from her bed at an undisclosed hospital where she was treated for dehydration and bruises.

"They hit me worse than an animal," she said. "I just wish they are punished because I didn't do anything bad."

Deputies Tracy Watson and Kurtis Franklin were both suspended with pay. Franklin has been with the department for 20 years, Watson for five.

Vasquez was shoved face-first into the hood of the truck, grabbed by the hair and pulled to the ground, then clubbed repeatedly.

The deputies "used vicious, hateful words," she said in today's Los Angeles Times. "I don't speak English, but I could feel their hate."

Eighteen men in the truck who were detained after the chase, all identified as illegal immigrants from Mexico, were released Wednesday from a federal detention center in Los Angeles. They will be given "voluntary departure" status, which allows them to remain in the country for six months.

CRIME STOPPERS DONATION — The Crime Stoppers Program at the Price Daniel Unit got a big assist this week as Wal-Mart donated a VCR to be used in the program at the unit. Shown at the presentation Tuesday were Lt. Steve Warren who coordinates the program within the city of Snyder, Debra Perez of Wal-Mart, Price Daniel coordinator Charles Hurst and Warden T.J. Medart. Fox News plans to launch Sunday morning program

NEW YORK (AP) — Fox Broadcasting Co. chose a Sunday morning public affairs show based in Washington, D.C., for its first foray into national news programming.

"Fox News Sunday," with host Tony Snow, will debut April 28 at 9 a.m. EST. Its format will be similar to other Sunday morning shows but with several key differences, executive producer Marty Ryan said Wednesday.

"Our twist to it ... is that we'll have a weekly, electronic town meeting to plug the country into the issues and into the debate," said Ryan, a former executive producer for NBC's "Today" show.

Snow said, "The difference is going to be in the pace and the quality of the information. We're not going to be doing lost puppy stories."

Viewers will join the "Fox News Sunday" town meeting through affiliate stations, remote sites and the Internet's World Wide Web.

There will also be viewer polls and special features, including then-and-now footage from the "Fox Movietone Newsreel" archive.

Snow is a Fox News political analyst and a columnist for the Detroit News and USA Today who is syndicated to about 160 newspapers.

He also is an occasional commentator on National Public Radio, and a substitute host of the "Rush Limbaugh Radio Program," CNN's "Crossfire," CNBC's "Equal Time" and "CNBC Live."

In addition to extended interviews with the news makers in politics, business, public and cultural affairs, each broadcast will have an opening segment of overnight national and world news.

Your Birthday

Friday, April 5, 1996

In order to maintain valid relationships in the year ahead, do not forsake old friends for new acquaintances. Strive to forge strong bonds with both groups.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You may misjudge a critical matter relating to your career today. Your position will not be as dynamic as you think, so proceed with caution. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences that govern you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you have an indifferent attitude toward your work today, your performance will be affected. You might waste too much time on certain tasks.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Try not to act impulsively in regard to investment opportunities today. Study proposals in depth. If the deals are sturdy, they will still exist tomorrow.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Take care not to put yourself in a position which would allow others to make critical decisions for you. What suits them might not suit you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your boss might be in a bad mood today, so if he or she asks you to take care of a specific task, don't make excuses; just do it!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Before volunteering to manage something for your peer group today, make sure you are qualified to handle this assignment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Friends may shy away from you today if you insist on doing everything your way. Make room for others to give their opinions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You cannot escape criticism today if you take the lid off the jar in exchanges with co-workers. If you point out their faults, they will notice yours.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Before getting deeper involved with a friend who is already indebted to you, ask him or her to settle up the existing account first.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Realistic objectives can be achieved today. However, if you establish goals you know you can't reach, don't expect luck to bail you out.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In order to succeed today, you must view life realistically. See conditions as they are and not as you want them to be.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It will not serve your best interests to get involved in a financial enterprise if you have to rely on someone else's judgment and experience today.

Heart flutters need follow-up

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I started feeling flutters in my chest two years ago, at the age of 43. My family physician examined me and I had an ultrasound and stress test. Inderal took care of the rapid heartbeat until he weaned me off the medication. The flutters returned. Should I return to my family physician or seek the advice of a specialist?

DEAR READER: Heart fluttering indicates an abnormally rapid and/or irregular pulse. There are many causes for this condition, ranging from serious heart disorders to harmless, temporary attacks brought on by stress or caffeine-containing beverages.

Your doctor apparently checked you for serious heart disease with an ultrasound and stress test, but he has yet to discover the reason for your fluttering. You need more testing, including blood analyses for anemia and an over-active thyroid gland.

Inderal is a beta-blocker that slows the heart rate. It is appropriate therapy for your condition, but I am concerned that your testing appears to be incomplete. The fact that your abnormal cardiac rhythm returned when the medication was stopped means that the cause of your palpitations is still a mystery.

Although your family doctor could certainly order the necessary testing, I believe that a second opinion is in order. Thus, I recommend that you see a cardiologist. Let me know how this situation is resolved.

To give you more information, I am sending you my free Health Report "Understanding Heart Disease." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: For the past several years I've had steadily increasing amounts of body hair appear on my face, neck, back, shoulders, arms and chest. I now shave my chin and neck twice daily, not an easy accomplishment for a 37-year-old female. Can a doctor help me with this, or am I faced with no remedy other than shaving, waxing and plucking?

DEAR READER: Although most cases of unwanted excess body hair in women are — unfortunately — genetically dictated, some instances may be caused by a virilizing tumor. Such a growth, which produces excessive quantities of the male hormone testosterone, may arise in the adrenal glands, the ovaries or elsewhere in the reproductive tract.

Also, enlargement of the adrenal glands, so-called "congenital adrenal hyperplasia," can cause inappropriate hair-growth in a typically male pattern. Finally, polycystic ovaries (Stein-Leventhal) syndrome can cause virilization.

You definitely should be examined by your family physician (or an endocrinologist) and undergo blood and urine testing, as well as a CT scan and ultrasound.

As a general rule, the disorders I mentioned can be cured by surgery.

Perot's election filing keeps his presidential options open

WASHINGTON (AP) — While he remains vague on whether he will run for president, Ross Perot has quietly filed paperwork with the government that keeps the possibility alive.

"I do not consider myself a candidate for president of the United States, and have not decided whether I will run for president or seek the nomination of state Reform Parties if efforts to establish ballot access are successful," Perot's March 8 letter to the Federal Election Commission begins.

But the letter accompanied a form the Texas billionaire sent the FEC to register his party for the presidential election, on which he listed himself as the candidate.

In the letter, Perot, who ran as an independent in 1992, said, "I have been advised, however, that I may be deemed to fall within the technical definition of a 'candidate' for that office."

Perot said he was sending the FEC notification because in many states "ballot access may be obtained only through circulation of petitions on behalf of named candidates."

He noted that states "generally permit later substitution of another candidate for that named on the petition."

However, Perot filed a "Statement of Organization" — a legal mechanism for getting his party on the fall ballot — on March 18, the day before he first mentioned the possibility of a second White House run during an interview with a San Antonio radio station.

Sharon Holman, a spokeswoman for Perot's Reform Party, cautioned against reading too much into the FEC documents.

"This is only to comply with the ins-and-outs of ballot access and the (requirements of) the FEC," Holman said.

Tracing family history helps adult adoptees find identity

DEAR ABBY: I loved the recent letter from the woman who received a family history from her grandmother as a Christmas gift. You responded that a family history is a treasured gift. I agree with you completely. However, there is an aspect of having a family history that many people do not think is necessary. I am referring to the need for some adult adoptees to know about their birth family.

My husband is an adoptee in his late 40s. He was a teacher for more than 20 years and is now a middle school administrator. We raised a handicapped child who, for many years, was the top priority in our lives. She is now grown and is also a teacher.

My husband did not search for his birth family until he was well over 40 years old. We knew nothing about these people. What we found was a wonderful family genealogy of his birth family that revealed pioneer Virginia families, and birth grandparents who were educators. We worked hard to trace the birth family back to the 1700s.

When adoptees search for their heritage, it is an act of fulfillment, not necessarily to disrupt the birth families. We have had the pleasure of meeting most of my husband's birth relatives, but the discovery of his "roots" has really been the best of bonuses. My husband was raised an only child. Now he has two wonderful half-brothers who have been fascinated with their family history that we found, parts of which they were unaware of.

Abby, thank you for any support that you can give adult adoptees who want to know about their families of origin. It gives them courage when others see why all aspects of family are important to the adult adoptee.

AN ADOPTEE'S WIFE
IN RICHMOND, VA.

DEAR WIFE: My heart aches for the many "older" people who were adopted as infants, but because their families falsely regarded the circumstances of their birth (unwed mothers) as somehow disgraceful, they have been denied information concerning their parentage.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Regarding "Hurting and Hoping, Fort Worth, Texas," whose son mysteriously disappeared five years ago, leaving his family to wonder if he was dead or alive: I had the same experience.

My son was staying at my sister's home when he went out one evening and never returned. At first we assumed it was a temporary disappearance, but as time went on, we realized it was for real.

For five years, I heard not one word, and I visualized everything from prison to death. The anxiety of not knowing is indescribable. Finally around the fifth year, I gave up and said to my Lord, "I am turning it over to you"; then I put it out of my mind.

In September of the fifth year, I received a letter, and the thrill of recognizing his handwriting on an envelope made my heart want to jump right out of my chest! His letter said that he was coming home and would be at the airport at a certain time on a specific day.

Of course I was there to meet him, and I have never questioned him as to where he had been or the reason for his silence. I felt that since the Lord had answered my prayers, who was I to question him?

He is now a respectable young man, holding a good job and sending me letters of appreciation constantly.

So to "Hurt and Hoping," don't give up. Keep praying.

FAITHFUL FROM FRESNO

DEAR FAITHFUL: Thank you for writing. Your letter is a testament to the power of faith, hope and prayer.

Man dies of gunshot wound

HOUSTON (AP) — A Pittsburgh man found dead in a Houston hotel room last weekend died of a shotgun wound to the chest, an autopsy has revealed.

The man, identified by fingerprints as Earl Foster, 49, of Pittsburgh, was found Saturday in a room at the Holiday Inn Crown Plaza.

Police were called shortly after Foster's body was found inside Room 1825 about 3:45 p.m. Saturday, authorities said.

The hotel manager and security officer entered the room and found Foster's body and another wounded second man, now identified as Frank Castelia Gardner, 53.

Gardner's hands were duct-taped together and he had been beaten. He was found behind a bed and was taken to a to a hospital for treatment.

Details about those injuries and the hospital where he was taken were not immediately available Wednesday. However, a police news release issued Wednesday said Gardner was recovering and not cooperating with authorities.

Molester will be released on Monday

Parole commissioner: probably San Antonio

RUSK (AP) — Convicted child molester Larry Don McQuay will be released on Monday, probably to his hometown of San Antonio, the Texas parole commission says.

Victor Rodriguez, chairman of the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles, said a double-check of McQuay's prison records determined that the avowed pedophile is indeed entitled to mandatory release under state law.

"It's headed that way, and we intend to follow the law," he said.

Rodriguez said the parole board need only finish its paperwork and determine the details of McQuay's parole plan. All that should be complete by Friday, meaning the release will likely occur Monday, he said.

State officials plan to announce on Monday the details of McQuay's release, including where he will live and how closely he will be monitored, Rodriguez said.

"We're going to be as creative as we possibly can," he said. "This is an extraordinary case, and it requires extraordinary effort on our part."

He added, "We have to be extra, extra careful and do everything that we possibly can within the means of the law to protect the people that he may find himself around."

McQuay, a high school graduate from McComb, Miss., claims he has molested children on more than 240 occasions. He was scheduled to be released on Tuesday to a Houston halfway house, but those plans were scuttled after a victims rights' group criticized the move.

Rodriguez said a facility in Bexar County is the likely site for McQuay's release because state law dictates that he be returned to the county of his former residence.

McQuay, waiting at a prison near Rusk, renewed his call Wednesday that he be castrated and said that he would welcome the operation if it is required as a term of his release.

20 House candidates' runoff bills more than $1.5 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 20 candidates vying in next week's House runoffs in Texas spent more than $1.5 million over a 28-day period ending last month, with big-money races dominating in South Central and East Texas.

Nowhere was the spending higher than in the hard-fought 14th District battle between Democrat-turned-Republican incumbent Greg Laughlin and Ron Paul, a Republican-turned-Libertarian-turned-Republican.

The pair spent more than $413,000, according to the latest filings with the Federal Election Commission, tracking campaign activity from Feb. 22 through March 20.

Laughlin took in more than any other Texan in a House runoff, raising $197,458 during the period — an average of nearly $9,900 a day.

His latest FEC report offered further proof that the GOP is throwing its full weight behind him. He raised a whopping $45,850 from fellow House Republicans.

The list of his 53 congressional donors reads like a "Who's Who of Congress" — including House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Irving; Commerce Committee Chairman Tom Bliley, R-Va.; and Appropriations Committee Chairman Bob Livingston, R-La.

The four other House members who bolted the Democratic Party for the GOP last year also contributed to their fellow party switcher.

"Establishment politicians will behave like establishment politicians, no matter what," Paul campaign spokesman Michael Sullivan said Wednesday. "Ron, when he is up there, will be voting a lot more in line with those guys than Greg Laughlin will even promise to do, but they are supporting him because he is their water boy right now."

The Laughlin campaign made no apologies for its supporters.

"These Republican leaders have given their time and money to this campaign because they realize, as do voters in the 14th District, between a true conservative Republican, Greg Laughlin, and a Republican impostor, Ron Paul," said Laughlin campaign spokesman Todd Smith.

National Republican Congressional Committee spokesman Craig Veith said the congressional support for Laughlin is part of the party's strategy to re-elect all GOP incumbents.

Former Nazi officer said indicted today

ROME (AP) — A former Nazi officer was indicted today for his role in the massacre of 335 Italian civilians during World War II. Relatives of the victims in the audience applauded the decision by the presiding judge, who set a military court trial for next month.

Erich Priebke "didn't blink an eye" when the ruling was announced, said Pietro Nicotera, a lawyer representing family members of the victims.

Earlier in the day, Priebke's lawyer argued for dismissal of the case against the 82-year-old former SS captain, who was extradited from Argentina last year.

Velio Di Rezze said Priebke had acted under Nazi orders to kill 10 civilians for each death of a German soldier, and considered the orders an appropriate response during wartime.

Di Rezze said Priebke later showed remorse for the deaths and faced a "psychological burden" for carrying out the orders.
