A part of a national organization, the United Way of Big Spring and Howard County holds a yearly campaign to raise funds for approved non-profit organizations that provides services in the community.

The local United Way will begin its 72nd campaign on Saturday, Aug. 27, with Boots and Bling at the Hotel Settles. Jody Nix and the Texas Cowboys will be back to provide Texas Swing dance music for the evening. Also returning is CBS 7 news anchor Jay Hendricks to oversee the live auction. Tickets will be on sale beginning Monday at the United Way’s office located at 215 West Third St. inside the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce building. Tickets are $40 per person. Tables that seat 10 people can be reserved for $475.

Last year, the 2015 campaign raised $322,381, just a little shy of its $330,000 goal but closer than the agency has come in the last few years.

The allocation committee meets in January to disperse the funds raised in the previous year’s campaign.

BILL

have. And they didn’t stop them in Paris, where people can’t even own guns,” NRA CEO Wayne LaPierre told CBS’ “Face the Nation” on Sunday.

The four votes on Monday night are the result of a deal after Sen. Chris Murphy, D-Conn., filibustered for almost 15 hours seeking action in response to the Orlando shooting that killed 49 people and injured 53. Democrats are expected to block two Republican amendments, arguing that they fall short in controlling the sales of guns. Republicans are expected to block two Democratic amendments, contending that they threaten the constitutional rights of gun owners.

Murphy signaled that passage of the measures was unlikely and focused on the response to his filibuster.

“It wasn’t just that 40 senators came to the floor and supported my effort to get these votes but there were millions of people all across the country who rose up and who joined our effort,” Murphy said Sunday on ABC’s “This Week.”

The Senate will vote on a measure by Murphy to expand gun background checks and one by Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., to keep people on a government terrorism watch list or other suspected terrorists from buying guns. The Justice Department has endorsed her legislation.

As a counter, Republican Sen. John Cornyn of Texas is pushing a measure that would allow the government to delay a gun sale to a suspected terrorist for 72 hours, but require prosecutors to go to court to show probable cause to block the sale permanently. The NRA backs the legislation, but gun control advocates and Democrats say that bar is too high.

Judiciary Committee Chairman Charles Grassley’s measure would boost funds for the National Instant Criminal Background Check System and ensure that the correct records are uploaded into the system in a timely manner. It would also clarify language surrounding mental health issues that would disqualify someone from buying a gun. Democrats say that language in the bill would actually roll back some current protections.

The Orlando shooter, Omar Mateen, was added to a government watch list of individuals known or suspected of being involved in terrorist activities in 2013, when he was investigated for inflammatory statements to co-workers. But he was pulled from that database when that investigation was closed 10 months later.

Both the Feinstein and Cornyn amendments would try to ensure that individuals like Mateen who had been a subject of a terrorism investigation within the last five years are flagged. Grassley’s would require that law enforcement be notified if a person had been investigated in the last five years and attempted to purchase a gun.

Last week, presumptive GOP presidential nominee Donald Trump tweeted that he would meet with the NRA about “not allowing people on the terrorist watch list, or the no fly list, to buy guns.” Exactly what he would support was unclear.

Separately, moderate Republican Sen. Susan Collins of Maine is working with other Republicans, as well as talking to Democrats, on a bill that would prevent people on the no-fly list — a smaller universe than targeted by Democrats — from getting guns. But her bill had not been blessed by GOP leaders and it was unclear if it would get a vote.

In the GOP-controlled House, Republicans had no plans to act on guns and Democrats were unable to force any action, given House rules less favorable to the minority party than in the Senate.

pending the outcome of the criminal and administrative investigations.”

On April 11, 118th Judicial District Attorney Hardy L. Wilkerson and Howard County Attorney Joshua Hamby convened a special grand jury session, at which time five indictments were returned. Those charges included:

• Sexual performance by a child — On or about June 4, 2015, Rojo is accused of inducting a child younger than 14 years of age into exhibiting her breasts.

• Indecency with a child — On or about June 4, 2015, Rojo is accused of causing a child under the age of 17 to expose her genitals.

• Official oppression — On three occasions between June 2014 and August 2015, Rojo, “acting under the color of his employment as a public servant,” is accused of sexually harassing females by requesting to take photographs of a sexual nature.

If convicted of the sexual performance of a child charge, Rojo could be sentenced to between five or 99 years — or life — in prison. Official oppression is a Class A misdemeanor, punishable by up to a year in county jail, while indecency with a child is a third degree felony, punishable by up to 10 years in state prison.

While noting Rios is innocent until proven guilty, Williams said it is vital that police officers are held to a high standard of conduct.

“It is imperative that we, as Texas peace officers, are committed to providing the citizens of Big Spring professional services while holding ourselves accountable and above reproach of any unethical, immoral, or illegal acts,” the chief noted.

Williams concluded his statement with a message aimed directly at the officers under his command.

“I would like to thank each of you who performs your duties in a professional manner,” he said. “Know that the community as a whole does support our mission and officers/employees who stray outside of our code of ethics, laws and policies will be dealt with accordingly, so that we continue to operate above reproach.”

12-year-olds open tourney play with 8-4 win

By DREW WILLIAMS
Sports Editor

The Big Spring 12-year-olds have cleared the first hurdle after an 8-4 win in Saturday's District 3 Little League action.

Big Spring starting pitcher Major Stockton pitched a full 85 pitches before having to be lifted with one out in the sixth inning.

"I had to bring my closer in to get the last two outs, but he pretty much pitched the whole game," Big Spring head coach Chris Martinez said. "He actually pitched out his 85 pitches. He did really good." Martinez said Stockton is just one piece of an impressive pitching staff.

"We have pretty good depth with our pitching, and he's just one of them that we have. We have a couple more aces," Martinez said. "But since he was doing really well I decided to just ride him through the whole game."

Big Spring was able to take advantage of multiple early-game errors that helped them get an 8-1 lead before it was trimmed to 8-4.

"Any little mistake the other team makes, we're going to try and take advantage of that on the bases. We ran our bases really good, and that's how we created our runs. As far as hits, we didn't hit as well as we normally do, but we did get some hits when we had runners on base. So that definitely helped us out," Martinez said.

With Big Spring's pitching and offense clicking, it only needed solid play on the defensive side to close things out. They got just that, and Martinez was happy with his team's efforts.

"Aaron Escamilla made some key plays out in right field, and another key play in center field to end the game. And Chris Martinez made some good throws to get force outs when they had runners on base. And those were huge because they had runners on when the game got down to four runs," he said.

The game was put on hold multiple times while Martinez and other coaches had conversations with the umpires. The opposing pitcher was getting away with many illegal pitches, according to Martinez.

"We felt like he was pausing on his pitches, and in little league they don't have balks. They have illegal pitches, which should be a ball. A couple of times he was stepping off the rubber once he started his pitch, and he was pitching at a fast pace. And that's fine as long as the batter's in the box, but he would catch himself kind of stopping, and that was throwing everything off for us," he said.

Big Spring Rodeo wrap-up:

Bulls get better of cowboys

By DREW WILLIAMS
Sports Editor

The 2016 Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo is officially in the books, and the trucks and trailers are leaving town with only two cowboys having lasted eight seconds on their bulls.

Colten Beaty and David Hudson both rode on Friday, and they treated the audience to eight seconds that Thursday's and Saturday's audiences didn't get a chance to witness. Beaty took home the first place bull riding prize of $1,138 with a score of 83.5, and Hudson secured an $853 payday with his second place finish. Rodeo board member Derek Wash chocked the results up to outstanding livestock brought to Big Spring by Pete Carr Pro Rodeo.

"The bulls are intense, they're really intense," he said. "These days, if you decide you want to do that, you've got a teacher from the time you're 15 until you're 25 and then you're always riding. A lot of the guys we see here are true cowboys."

The other $1,000 winners were Taos Muncy, who finished first in saddle bronc riding with a score of 82.5, Westyn Hughes, who finished first in tie-down roping in 8.6 seconds, Kelsey Garrison, who finished second in tie-down roping with a 9.3 time, and Becky Dillard, who finished first in barrel racing with a time of 16.63 seconds. They won $1,034, $1,281, $1,060, and $1,036, respectively. Shane Hadley, who took first in steer wrestling, won $872 with his impressive time of 3.7 seconds.

"That 3.7, that was awesome. And those saddleback riders, there were a couple really nice scores put up by some really top notch athletes," Wash said.

Wash said he was happy with the performances and the job done by the crew who helped make the whole thing happen.

"I thought it was good. It was a down year economically, and I thought the showing was still really good. We were happy with it," he said. "It might not have been what Saturdays were in the past, but it was still really packed and overall we're really happy with it and appreciate the support of the town."

He added that the parade on Saturday morning was a success as well.

"I thought the parade was pretty cool. The band from Coahoma was in it and we'd never had a band, so I thought that was very neat," he said. "There's a lot of people from out of town who have moved here, and this was their first rodeo. So that was

The end Cleveland's 52-year title drought over as Cavs claim NBA title

CLEVELAND (AP) — More tears. Only this time, tears of joy.

Cleveland's championship drought, crossing 52 years, generations and noted by a long list of near misses, is over at last.

On Father's Day, LeBron James, the kid from nearby Akron raised by a single mother, brought the title home.

As the final seconds of Cleveland's 93-89 victory at Golden State in Game 7 ticked off on the giant scoreboard inside Quicken Loans Arena, 18,000 fans, some of them strangers when Sunday night began, cried, hugged, screamed and shared a moment many of them have spent a lifetime dreaming of.

They then linked arms and shouted the words to Queen's "We Are The Champions," a song that only seemed reserved for others.

For the first time since 1964, when the Browns ruled the NFL, Cleveland is a title town again.

With James leading the way and winning MVP honors, the Cavs became the first team in NBA Finals history to overcome a 3-1 deficit.

Call it The Comeback.

At 10:37 p.m., Cleveland finally exorcised decades of sports demons — the painful losses given nicknames like "The Drive" and "The Fumble" and "The

Johnson takes title at U.S. Open

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — Dustin Johnson had everything going his way Sunday in the U.S. Open.

He was playing the best golf on the toughest course. He had a two-shot lead on the back nine at Oakmont. He even got a huge break on a ruling that allowed him to escape deep rough, the kind of breaks that usually go to major champions.

That's when he saw two USGA officials approach him on the 12th tee. They told him he might get a one-shot penalty for his ball moving on the fifth green.

They wouldn't know until after his round.

Try playing the back nine of a U.S. Open with that kind of confusion.

"It's nothing new at this point," said Johnson, who has had major mishaps for the last six years. "It's happened so many times I kind of expect it now."

The difference was the outcome.

Johnson showed the mettle — and yes, the wits — to finally win a major championship.

"For it to not affect the outcome is fantastic," he said. "It just shows how well I played."

No one knew if he was leading, tied or one shot behind, and neither did Johnson. He didn't look at a board the rest of the day, taking on each shot regardless of the score and coming up with all the right shots — the 10-foot par save on the 16th, a cautious bunker shot on the 17th, and a 6-iron that settled the score. It dropped down 5 feet from the hole for a birdie that wrapped up a U.S. Open that was overdue.

The USGA wound up giving him the penalty shot after it was over, so Johnson closed with a 1-under 69 for a three-shot victory over Shane Lowry, Scott Piercy and Jim Furyk, a runner-up at Oakmont for the second straight U.S. Open.

"I still didn't want the penalty. I didn't think that I did anything to cause the ball to move," Johnson said. "But at the end of the day, it didn't affect what happened. So it doesn't bother me at all."

Finally, he's a major

Rangers sweep Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Sitting on the bench, Jurickson Profar knew he might be called on to hit for the Texas Rangers.

In the big moment, Profar came through when he hit a two-run, bases-loaded pinch-hit single in the eighth, lifting the Rangers to a 5-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals on Sunday.

It was Profar's first pinch-hit at-bat this season.

"The whole game, I was ready for that," Profar said. "I was just sitting there but everybody on the bench has got to be ready to hit. I was just looking for my pitch. It was a pitch in the zone so I could drive it."

With two outs in the eighth, Rougned Odor doubled off reliever Matt Bowman (1-2). He gave an intentional walk to Mitch Moreland. Elvis Andrus grounded to short and Moreland was called out at second. After a challenge, the call was overturned.

"That was a good job by Mitch beating out the ground ball and giving me a chance," Profar said.

The overturned call did not upset Bowman.

"I knew it was close. As a pitcher, you always want to assume he's safe," Bowman said. "I made sure I was focused. I liked the pitch selection to (Profar). He hit it and you tip your cap."

Texas manager Jeff Bannister said the spot for right for Profar.

"It felt like it was a situation where he was the best guy we could put up there and to be able to control the at-bat," Bannister said. "He hunted a good pitch to hit. I think with all factors, playing regularly, we like how he swings the bat from the left side, bases loaded, he's going to control that at-bat and he was the guy for us in that spot."

St. Louis manager Mike Matheny said he was staying with Bowman.

"Bowman was throwing good. His ball was really moving well. With Profar in the pinch-hitting spot, I liked Bowman there to get a ground ball," Matheny said. "He was making good pitches. He just got beat."

Texas swept the three-game

Gattis, Valbuena homer as Astros top Reds, 6-0

HOUSTON (AP) — The bottom of Houston's order is starting to heat up and it helped the Astros to a lopsided win over the Cincinnati Reds on Sunday.

The Astros got homers and two RBIs each from seventh and eighth hitters Evan Gattis and Luis Valbuena to power the 6-0 victory.

"The more production we get out of there the better we feel as a team offense," manager A.J. Hinch said. "We don't have to wait for one of the big three at the top of the order to do something to get us on the board."

Mike Fiers (5-3) allowed four hits and struck out five in 5 2/3 scoreless innings. He left the game when Jay Bruce's line drive hit him in the thigh for a single with two outs in the sixth.

"It stung for a little bit, but I was all right," Fiers said. "I'm just glad it didn't hit me in the knee or anything. It got me in a good part of the leg. It will be sore for a day, but it will be all right."

Chris Devenski took over and allowed one hit in 3 1/3 innings to complete the shutout and pick up his first save.

"There really weren't a lot of opportunities for us to bust ourselves open and get back in that game once we fell down," Cincinnati manager Bryan Price said. "There was nothing there."

Finnegan yielded five hits and four runs in five innings to snap a streak of five straight games where he

Opening lead — five of diamonds.

The hero of today's deal is Zia Mahmood, one of the world's all-time great players. Aside from his many successes, the charismatic Pakistani is noted most for his daring and imagination at the table, and his wit and charm away from it.

Today's deal is vintage Zia. After West's offbeat three-spade pre-empt and North's double, Zia, South, took a stab at three notrump.

West led a diamond, and Zia inserted the nine! This brought immediate results when the nine forced East's king, but the contract was still a long way from home.

East shifted to the spade queen, taken by the ace, and a heart was ducked to East's nine. When East returned the heart king, Zia ducked again, then won the queen continuation with the ace. The A-Q-J of diamonds were then cashed, East showing out on the third round of the suit.

With five cards remaining to be played, the opposing hands were virtually an open book. West was known to have started with six spades, five diamonds and one heart, so he had only one club. East, forced to discard a heart in order to guard clubs, was known to be holding four clubs and the heart jack.

To make the contract, Zia needed four club tricks, which might seem impossible given East's holding. But such things are child's play for Zia. He simply led a low club from dummy and finessed the nine (!), returned to dummy with the club ace and played the heart ten. East was forced to win and lead a club from the Q-10 to South's K-J, handing Zia his ninth trick.

In the post-mortem, the self-effacing Zia pointed out that he had in fact erred by ducking the second heart, which eventually forced him to risk losing a trick to the singleton ten of clubs in the West hand. Had Zia taken the second heart, he could later have played the ace and another club to the nine before exiting with his remaining heart to force East to make the same losing return in clubs.

Longest Day

You don't have to be a pagan or a yogi to realize that the sun deserves a MATHIS salutation now and then. It has, after all, been the major constant life energy force for us for over four and a half billion years. From Fajada Butte in New Mexico to Stonehenge in Britain, solar enthusiasts will gather to celebrate the sun break into the realm of Cancer.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). The frame of mind you're in when you wake up isn't how you'll stay all day. This day of many moods has much to teach. Remember that each state of mind is a temporary one and move lightly through.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). When you let resentment go, it won't be because you're doing the other person a favor. Grudges are baggage, and baggage that's too heavy to harbor. Drop it, be light, laugh.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). The afternoon will bring a small miracle that seems dropped from the heavens. This was actually a miracle of your own making though, created with stacks and stacks of good karma.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Feeling content is one of life's greatest riches. There's nothing fancy about getting to that state today. Contentment will naturally occur after a good night's sleep and a hard day's work followed by a satisfying meal.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). The one who says it better is getting into the minutia, the details and deeper definitions. You'll be inclined toward verbal acumen today, willing to re-examine the words you use. Do they mean what you think they mean?

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). A sensitive, vulnerable mood will pass quickly if you're willing to process the fear at the bottom of it. Don't turn away. You can handle whatever discomfort comes up. Talk or write about the feelings you experience.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Intuition awakens in the thick of intense drama. It also awakens in the serenity of a mental void that comes from doing very little other than deep breathing. If no intuition comes, no action is necessary. Only move when compelled.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). The stardust in your being is the same dust that lights up in your idols when they perform, seemingly just for you. When you celebrate others, you celebrate you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). The one who loves you will pay attention to where you go, whether you travel directly and with purpose or wander aimlessly and perilously. Sometimes you're the shepherd; sometimes you're the sheep.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You have habits you realize and habits you don't. Mostly the latter is true, as it's the nature of automatic behavior not to think about it once established. Once again, it's reason to get an objective view.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). The thought is not always accurate, helpful ... or even yours. Today, there's something to be said for acting unthinkingly, heeding the basic instincts of your body and impulses of the moment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). When the heroes in stories overcome sorrows and trials, it's an entertaining escape. It's not as fun when you're the one facing adversity, and yet, make no mistake, it's forming a hero in you.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (June 20). Your deep and abiding respect for a certain team or artist will be rewarded this year as you'll get more involved, make inside connections and experience other highlights that come with fandom. A kindhearted maternal influence is featured strongly at the end of the year. January brings a big cash-out. Taurus and Scorpio adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 13, 30, 2, 22 and 11.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: "I have birthmarks in various places on my body. Seven of them are small dark moles. One of them is called a cavernous hemangioma on my left shoulder. It used to be large when I was an infant and now it's barely detectable. I also have what's called a salmon patch on the back of my neck and head. My mother says I had a Mongolian spot on my buttocks when I was an infant but I've grown out of that. My mother has one or two moles and my father has none. Do you think it's some kind of sign that I was born with so many skin irregularities?"

I do. Then again, I think everything is a sign. But you and I are not alone in suspecting that birthmarks have some kind of cosmic meaning. Divination by birthmarks, aka moleomancy, has been practiced by many different cultures through the ages. Here's my reading:

The hemangioma on your left shoulder is the imprint of the cosmic angles who finger tapped you before your birth. This is a blessing that comes in the form of knowing what you want to do with your life at an early age. You have an ear for your calling and a drive to follow its music.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Lovely Nicole Kidman stars with Elle Fanning in a film adaptation of the Neil Gaiman alien story, "How to Talk to Girls at Parties" and then hops into the past with the Sofia Coppola western, "Beguiled." An intellectual Gemini born when the moon was in worldly, exploratory Sagittarius, Kidman likely thrills to the challenge of performing in so many different tones and eras.

Dear Annie: About 30 years ago, my husband became friends with "Rob," who was personable and fun. However, Rob's wife, "Doris," was unpleasant to be around. In 30 years, she never had one nice thing to say about anyone, including me.

Rob became ill and spent months in a nursing home. Doris often would phone me and say she wished he would "just go to sleep." Three weeks ago, he finally did. Doris now calls us several times a week. She carries on about how wonderful Rob was and how much she misses him. She is usually drunk when she calls.

When they married, Rob had a young daughter from a previous marriage and Doris had two sons. There has always been a rift between the children. Rob's daughter told me that when she was a child, Doris was terribly mean to her and has never made any effort to create a warmer relationship.

Recently a walkathon was held in Rob's memory. People walked in teams and the top-10 teams were entitled to a prize at the end. Doris' son and grandson were paired with her step-daughter's two children. Their group left before the prizes were distributed, so I suggested to Doris that she choose four prizes for them. She returned with prizes for her son and grandson, but nothing for the others. When I asked why, she said there were no prizes left. But, Annie, there were dozens of prizes left. This really upset me, because it proved what a spiteful and mean-spirited person she is.

I told my family about this and they said it was time to get Doris out of my life. But we live in a small community and it will be difficult to avoid her. My question is, should I tell her why I'm upset or just stop answering the phone when she calls? I have not spoken to her since the walkathon. -- Upset in Texas

Dear Upset: You are not obligated to remain friends with Doris simply because you have known her for 30 years. You apparently never much cared for her. Since you are planning to end the friendship anyway, it does no harm to let her know why. Please don't be unkind. Simply tell her that the way she treats other people, especially Rob's daughter and grandchildren, bothers you so much that you won't be able to continue the friendship. Then suggest that speaking to a therapist might be life-changing for her. People who are so negative often have untreated depression.

Dear Annie: I read the letter from "Oregon," who said she was in an accident during a bicycle race and her husband had her cellphone and all of her identification in his backpack.

My husband and I run half marathons. He's faster, so we are rarely together. Here's what we do: All runners have a bib with their race number printed on it. On the reverse is space for your name, medications and emergency contact info. On my bib, I write my husband's name, cellphone number and his bib number. He does the same for me. We also have ID bracelets that we wear anytime we're running, even in our little subdivision. You never know when there will be an emergency. -- West Virginia

Dear West Virginia: Thanks for the great suggestions. Even if you aren't in a race, you should have identification, including your name, an emergency contact, any medications, etc. It pays to be careful.

This Date In History

Today is Monday, June 20, the 172nd day of 2016. There are 194 days left in the year. Summer arrives at 6:34 p.m. Eastern time.

Today's Highlight in History:

On June 20, 1966, the Beatles album "Yesterday and Today" was released by Capitol Records, initially with its notorious cover photo featuring the Fab Four dressed in butcher smocks while posing with chunks of meat and parts of dismembered dolls; the resulting outcry prompted Capitol to recall the albums and replace the covers with a more conventional group portrait, making the "butcher cover" a collector's item.

On this date: In 1782, Congress approved the Great Seal of the United States, featuring the emblem of the bald eagle.

In 1791, King Louis XVI of France and his family attempted to flee in the so-called "Flight to Varennes," but were caught.

In 1837, Queen Victoria acceded to the British throne following the death of her uncle, King William IV.

In 1863, West Virginia became the 35th state.

In 1893, a jury in New Bedford, Massachusetts, found Lizzie Borden not guilty of the ax murders of her father and stepmother.

In 1921, U.S. Rep. Alice Mary Robertson, R-Okla., became the first woman to preside over a session of the House of Representatives.

In 1947, Benjamin "Bugsy" Siegel was shot dead at the Beverly Hills, California, mansion of his girlfriend, Virginia Hill, apparently at the order of mob associates.

In 1967, boxer Muhammad Ali was convicted in Houston of violating Selective Service laws by refusing to be drafted. (Ali's conviction was ultimately overturned by the Supreme Court).

In 1979, ABC News correspondent Bill Stewart was shot to death in Managua, Nicaragua, by a member of President Anastasio Somoza's national guard.

In 1982, President Ronald Reagan proclaimed National Bald Eagle Day.

In 1990, South African black nationalist Nelson Mandela and his wife, Winnie, arrived in New York City for a ticker-tape parade in their honor as they began an eight-city U.S. tour.

In 2001, Houston resident Andrea Yates drowned her five children in the family bathtub, then called police. (Yates was later convicted of murder, but had her conviction overturned; she was acquitted by reason of insanity in a retrial.)

Ten years ago: The U.S. military recovered the booby-trapped bodies of two missing soldiers in Iraq. Japanese Prime Minister Junichiro Koizumi (joon-ee-chee-roh koh-ee-zoo-mee) announced the withdrawal of Japanese ground troops from Iraq. The Miami Heat won their first NBA title, beating the Dallas Mavericks 95-92 in Game 6.

Five years ago: Syrian President Bashar Assad promised a national dialogue to consider political reforms, but his vague overtures to a pro-democracy uprising fell flat as protesters took to the streets shouting "Liar!" and demanding his ouster.

Johnson scooped up 18-month son Tatum into his arms on Father's Day and raised the silver trophy for all to see.

"I've been here a bunch of times and haven't quite got it done," Johnson said. "But today, I did. And it feels really good."

He saluted a Pittsburgh crowd that was on his side even amid all the uncertainty. The grandstands were raucous, with one fan shouting, "What's the call, USGA?" At the trophy presentation, when Fox Sports announcer Joe Buck brought up the penalty situation, the crowd booed.

Johnson finished at 4-under 276, the lowest winning score in nine U.S. Opens at Oakmont.

The lingering question was whether the toughest test in golf was tougher than it needed to be.

Johnson had a short par putt on the fifth hole, took a few practice strokes and as he placed the putter behind the ball, it moved slightly — backward. Johnson stepped back and called over the rules official, told him he didn't cause it to move. He tapped in for par.

Jeff Hall, senior director of rules and open championships for the USGA, said a staff member said on the radio that it might be worth another look. The USGA thought Johnson should know that his score might be one shot worse than it was, so it told him on the 12th tee.

"After looking at video, the actions he took could have caused the ball to move," Hall said. "We asked if there was some other reason the ball could have moved. He didn't state a reason."

But it led to confusion over the entire back nine — for Johnson and for the guys trying to catch him.

Lowry, who began the final round with a four-shot lead that he lost on the front nine, tied him when Johnson made bogey on the 14th.

Were they tied? Was Johnson trailing by one?

Jack Nicklaus, who won the first of his 18 majors at Oakmont in 1962, said if the USGA thought it might be a one-shot penalty, it should have done it right there and "let him get on with the job."

That's what he did, scrambling for pars, keeping his cool, thinking only the major that kept eluding him.

Johnson said he couldn't help but wonder if he was in for more bad luck at a major that he was poised to win.

"Just one more thing to add to the list, right?" he said.

The most painful was last year in the U.S. Open at Chambers Bay, when Johnson had a 12-foot eagle putt to win and three-putted for par to lose by one to Jordan Spieth. There also was that two-shot penalty at Whistling Straits that kept him out of a playoff in the 2010 PGA Championship when Johnson grounded his club in sand without realizing it was a bunker. He was chasing down Darren Clarke in the 2011 British Open when he hit a 2-iron out-of-bounds on the 14th hole. He lost a three-shot lead at Pebble Beach in the 2010 U.S. Open.

Not this time.

Lowry became the first player since Payne Stewart at Olympic Club in 1998 to lose a four-shot lead in the final round of the U.S. Open. He made birdie after being told of the potential Johnson penalty, but the Irishman lost his putting touch with three-putt bogeys on three straight holes.

lasted at least six innings.

Gattis drove in a run with a double in the second and Valbuena followed with a single in that inning to put Houston up 2.

Valbuena added a solo home run in the fifth inning off Brandon Finnegan (3-5) and Jose Altuve added a sacrifice fly in that frame. The home run by Gattis came in the seventh to make it 5-0.

Carlos Gomez, who has struggled most of the season, extended his hitting streak to a season-high five games with an RBI double in the eighth.

Danny Worth singled with two outs in the second before scoring on the double by Gattis to make it 1-0. Valbuena followed with his single to center field to push the lead to 2-0.

Fiers plunked Eugenio Suarez to start the fifth before a one-out single by Tucker Barnhart. But the Reds came away empty-handed when Suarez was caught trying to steal third and Fiers struck out Tyler Holt.

Valbuena sent the first pitch of Houston's fifth into the seats in right field for his eighth homer to make it 3-0. Jake Marisnick walked before George Springer grounded into a force out that left Marisnick out at second. Springer stole second base and took third on a wild pitch before Marwin Gonzalez walked.

Altuve's sacrifice fly came next to make it 4-0. Billy Hamilton robbed Altuve of extra bases when he ran it down almost to the warning track in center field and dived to grab it. Hamilton jumped up after the catch and got it to Brandon Phillips who threw it to first base to double up Gonzalez.

Gattis homered for the second straight day after not getting a hit in the previous six games when he launched a pitch from JC Ramirez to left field.

Shot" — and became a title town for the first time since Dec. 27, 1964, when the Browns won the NFL championship. There had been so many close calls in between, so much heartache, so much torture.

Like the Warriors, those days are history.

"I never ever thought I would see this would happen," said Tim Lovell from Canfield, Ohio, who sat on the 50-yard line when Denver quarterback John Elway broke Cleveland's heart with "The Drive" in the 1986 AFC Championship game.

"I tell you what with about two minutes to go I thought I was going to have a heart attack. I've seen 'The Drive' and I've seen 'The Fumble' and I've seen Michael Jordan kill us with The Shot."

As Lovell spoke, his 18-year-old daughter, Marisa, wiped tears from her eyes.

"This is history," she said. "I cried real tears. It was overwhelming and breathtaking to be here."

Following the game, fans poured out of "The Q" onto Huron Road for a party that could last for days. A few climbed aboard a fire truck, but there were no major problems just unbridled happiness — 52 years of frustration released in one cathartic crescendo. And in the coming days, Cleveland will host a parade, one that's been planned for a lifetime.

"Our fans, they ride or die, no matter what's been going on, no matter the Browns, the Indians, the Cavs, and all other sports teams," James said. "They continue to support us. And for us to be able to end series and has won six in a row and eight of its last nine games. The Rangers are 14-4 this month and they improved to an MLB best 16-4 in one-run games this season.

St. Louis has lost five in a row — all at home. It was the first winless homestand of at least two series for St. Louis since 1983.

Barnette (4-2) pitched 1 2/3 innings in scoreless relief for the win. Sam Dyson pitched the ninth for his 13th save in 14 chances.

St. Louis scored two runs in the sixth to chase starter Martin Perez and take a 4-3 lead. Matt Holliday hit a one-out homer that hit the top the fence in the right-field corner and caromed over. Barnette later entered with the bases loaded. He struck out pinch-hitter Matt Adams but walked Eric Fryer to force in a run.

Normar Mazara led off the sixth with a solo homer for the Rangers for a short-lived lead.

Moreland's two-out homer in the fourth off St. Louis starter Mike Leake tied the game at 2-2. His 456-foot home run tied him with Jay Bruce and Paul Goldschmidt for longest homer at Busch by an opposing player.

St. Louis took a 2-1 lead in the third on a one-out, bases loaded sacrifice fly by Holliday.

Texas scored in the first inning on a sacrifice fly by Mazara to drive in Ian Desmond. Desmond reached base on a fielder's choice, stole second and then went to third on an error by rookie shortstop Aledmys Diaz, who mishandled the throw from home. It was the 14th error this season for Diaz.

The Cardinals tied it in the second on a lead-off home run by Stephen Piscotty.

LOOKING FOR A HIT

Texas starter Perez struck out in the fifth. He has eight strikeouts in nine at-bats in the major leagues.

DAY OFF

St. Louis catcher Yadier Molina got the day off. Fryer made his seventh start of the season at catcher. Molina is eight hits shy of 1,500 for his career.

HONORING FATHER'S DAY

The birds on the bat were blue for the Cardinals, who also sported light blue numbers on their uniforms and blue caps in honor of Father's Day. The uniforms of all MLB teams incorporated light blue into each team's logo, much like the special pink caps and jersey trim used for Mother's Day games.

TRAINER'S ROOM

Cardinals: St. Louis activated right-handed pitcher Seth Maness from the 15-day disabled list (right elbow inflammation) and optioned left-handed pitcher Dean Kiekhefer to Triple-A Memphis before Sunday's game. Maness went on the disabled list May 13 after going 0-1 with a 6.39 ERA in 13 games.

exciting for us getting a new line of people coming in."

Pete Carr Pro Rodeo has already signed a contract to provide livestock for the 2017 Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo, Wash said. He hopes to build on a successful 2016 when that time comes.

"I don't think we had any shortfalls, so hopefully next year we'll be able to pack it in a little bit more," he said.
