3 RELIGIOUS GROUPS MOVE TO AID REFUGEES

Chinese, Japanese Hold Memorial Services

As President Watched Climax of Blue and Gray Reunion

Following his dedication speech in which President Roosevelt called the current period a new battle for "people's government," aged Union Veteran George N. Lockwood, of Los Angeles, Calif. (at foot of the huge U. S. flag), and Confederate Veteran A. G. Harris, extreme right, of McDonough, Ga., unveiled the beautiful new 51-foot Gettysburg peace monument at the top of which burns symbolic flame. President Roosevelt, with back toward camera, is in the speakers' stand at left.

SECOND YEAR OF FAR EAST FRAY DAWNS

Nippon Fighters Draw Their Belts Notch Tighter

(By Associated Press)

As the second year of their war dawned Japan and China held memorial services last night and today. Japanese drew their belts a notch tighter, although Premier Konoye had "an extra pickle for lunch."

Chinese screwed their courage with a statement of Madame Sun Yatsen, widow of the founder of the Chinese republic, warning against possible peace gestures as "political maneuvering to complement the conquest."

Japanese claimed continued success at the Yangtze, toward Hankow.

An official Chinese communique said Japanese war planes raided Foochow three times today, dropping 55 bombs, and causing possibly hundreds of casualties.

Scranton Expecting Large Grain Yield

Area Getting 15 to 19 Bushels Wheat Per Acre; Threshers Nearly Done

The grain crop for Scranton and the surrounding area will be bigger this year than it has been for the past several seasons, farmers from that community reported today.

"We are getting between 15 and 19 bushels of wheat per acre," one leading Scranton farmer said enthusiastically when asked about the grain crop there. "Our oats yield is also fine. We are getting anywhere between 30 and 55 bushels of oats to the acre."

The threshing crews have been busy in the Scranton area for the past several days. "If nothing hinders us, we will be finished with all threshing in Scranton by Friday," farmers said. "We've really put out the work in the fields during the past few days."

Early West Texan Is Buried Today at Stephenville

Funeral for Stephen N. Keith, 79, pioneer west Texan, was held at the First Baptist church in Stephenville today at 10 a. m. The body was taken there early yesterday morning from Abilene by a Kiker-Knight coach.

Mr. Keith died early yesterday morning at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Ray Marshall, of Abilene, in excellent health until a few months ago, he had been brought from his farm home near Cisco to the Hendrick Memorial hospital two weeks ago for treatment. His condition improved but after returning to his daughter's home, he gradually grew weaker.

A native Texan, Mr. Keith was born in Hunt county, near Greenville, October 29, 1858. At the age of six months his family moved to Stephenville, residing there until 1915. From 1915 to 1926 he lived in northern New Mexico and Bayfield, Colorado, where he was in the hotel business. In 1926 he returned to Stephenville, but for the past few years had retired to a farm near Cisco in the Nimrod and Scranton section.

Mr. Keith was a member of the Baptist church for 34 years. He was married to Myrilla Ross, April 4, 1886. The couple celebrated their 52nd anniversary this year.

Surviving are his wife, seven children, Mrs. F. I. Weaver, Dallas; Mrs. Claude Foose, Abilene; Mrs. Charles Wheeler, Belen, N. M.; Mrs. A. J. Graham, Lorraine; Mrs. E. G. Brinkley, Indio, Calif.; Mrs. Ray Marshall, Abilene and one son, Neil Keith, Dallas. Other survivors include 11 grandchildren and two sisters and one brother.

Being a native Texan, Stephen N. Keith may be remembered by many old timers in this section of the state. While most of his life was spent in and around Stephenville, he recounted many interesting experiences embracing all of west Texas, from the Pecos to New Mexico and Colorado. In his early days he worked with and knew the cattlemen and trail-herders. In recent years he loved to reminisce, and assisted in the preparation of early day stories pertaining to the open range and Indians. A brother, Wilson Keith, was fatally wounded in an Indian fight on the Pecos in 1873. When Stephen Keith was a lad of 9 years, he accompanied men on buffalo hunts into the western territory, and oftentimes recently he recalled being at the site of Buffalo Gap and Abilene before the towns were even thought of. He was acquainted with the first settlers in this area.

The public was invited to attend.

The company has 10 days to reply.

Postmaster General James Farley is planning a coincidental tour in the near future through the northwest.

Dick Stout Speaks Here in Behalf of McCraw Candidacy

Traveling in a bright red sound car called the "McCraw Good Will Special," Dick Stout, former assistant attorney general, reached Cisco Wednesday afternoon, July 6, in the course of his 10,000 mile good will tour for Attorney General William McCraw, a candidate for governor.

Stout resigned his position as assistant attorney general on June 17 to campaign for McCraw. He was given a send-off at Gonzales at a ceremony in which Miss June Davis, attractive daughter of a prominent Gonzales attorney, christened the "McCraw Special" by breaking a bottle of Guadalupe River water over the hood of the car.

The former McCraw aide from Houston had traveled over 4,000 miles throughout the state by the time he reached Cisco. With him is John Geer, University of Texas senior and heavyweight wrestling champion, who looks out after the sound equipment. Stout made talks for McCraw at Seymour, Olney, Newcastle, Graham, and Albany before reaching Cisco Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Senator Borah (R-Idaho) was in bed today. He suffered a breakdown from overwork.

Scranton Loses Another Close One: 3-2 Score

Scranton lost again last night in the last inning. Red Front with Bennie's single bringing home Wilkins who had singled to start the seventh beat them 3 to 2.

Scranton, behind the pitching of little W. Bailey, has afforded some of the best league games seen at the park this season, but at least twice in their last four starts, they have lost in the last inning.

Bennie for the winners and J. Bailey for Scranton made two hits apiece. The game was fast with few errors and jammed with brilliant defensive plays.

J. Johnson started for Red Front, got off to a shaky start and was relieved by Rylee in the first inning. W. Bailey pitched all the way for the losers.

McCall Is Refused Commutation Today

TALLAHASSEE, July 7 (AP)—The fight of his parents to save him from death went for naught today when the state pardon board refused commutation to Franklin Pierce McCall, kidnaper of James Cash, Jr.

Mrs. James Bailey Cash, rejected a personal appeal from the mother of McCall, to join in asking that the death sentence be commuted.

In an area of benevolent climate, blessed with an abundance of the purest lake water, possessing the best in recreational facilities, situated on the Bankhead, all-weather route, with two railroads and many highways, Cisco is the best place in Texas to live and to work.

FORM UNITED FRONT TO GET HELP QUICKLY

Seek International Aid For All "Oppressed Minorities"

EVIAN-LES-BAINS, France, July 7 (AP)—Jewish, Catholic and Protestant refugee representatives formed a united front today to obtain immediate international aid for "oppressed minorities of the world."

They agreed that the inter-governmental refugee committee must:

Consider the plight of refugees throughout the world, not Germany and Austria alone;

Immigration plans should include those already departed from Germany;

German negotiations be started permitting refugees to take goods and money;

Liberty of Palestine immigration be reestablished.

Myron C. Taylor, United States delegate, was elected president of the committee.

TO DEMAND ASSURANCE FASCIST AID STOPPED

BARCELONA, July 7 (AP)—As stiffened government resistance blocked insurgent Valencian efforts in the Teruel sector, the government indicated it would demand specific assurances that Fascist insurgent aid had ended before accepting the London plan for withdrawing foreign volunteers.

Cisco Team Loses Well-Played Tilt to Eastland Girls

Inability to hit with runners on base cost the Cisco Kleiner girls a 3 to 1 game to the strong Streets Dairy team of Eastland. Greer, for Cisco, pitched a 4-hit game while her mates collected 7 off Craig, but two of the hits came runners on third bringing in two of the three runs and an error cost the other. Cisco, in the meantime had 10 runners left on base.

Both teams played well and the fans saw a fast game between two of the leading teams in the county.

HOLDUP HONEYMOON

BY EDWIN RUTT Copyright 1938, NEA Service Inc.

CHAPTER XII
The police officer in charge came forward shepherding the black-eyed girl of the refreshment stand.
"Sorry to interrupt, folks," he said. "But we've got a bit more business." To the girl, he said: "Do you identify this young man as the one who gave you the box of candy, Miss Martin?"
"Sure," the girl pointed at Joe. "That's him, all right. The note I gave you was just inside the box. And I'd have called the police sooner only I didn't open the candy till this afternoon."
"Well," said the police officer,

"The black-eyed girl faded with them. She was a sucker for a uniform. The Archers, Joe and Gilbert, stood alone.
"Mr. Sandham," said Kelly, suddenly remembering the social amenities, "my father and mother. And Mr. Mallow."

Mother and father acknowledged the introduction properly. Mr. Mallow did not. Mr. Mallow mumbled something.
"And now," said Kelly, "what's all this about a note?"
"I wrote one," Joe told her, "on an order blank of the Chandler & Sandham Confectionery Company and shoved it in that candy box. You saw me give the box to the girl."

Kelly looked at him in surprise. "I don't believe it. How could you have written it?"
"I did, all right," Joe pulled an oblong book of order blanks from his pocket. "And if you don't believe it, here's the carbon. At least, it ought to be here. I haven't had a chance to look."
It was there on a pink sheet smeared from carbon paper. It read:
Notify police, Caroline Archer in Chandler & Sandham Ford delivery truck, License No. N. Y. 134857 being taken snack near St. Catharines, Ont., by North Collis-ton, Conn. bank robber. J. H. Sandham.

Kelly's sea-blue eyes widened. "But all that stuff about kidnapping..." she began.
"Just honey," said Joe. "I had to get the Weasel's confidence enough to find out where he was taking us. And you may have noticed that the Weasel isn't very bright. He fell for it when I mentioned a hundred thousand dollar ransom. His greed got the better of his judgment."

"You see," Mr. Archer explained to the company at large, "that note made it easy. The police weren't able to catch up with you until you'd crossed the border. But there was a record of the car there and the St. Catharines authorities were notified. They were on the watch and spotted you as you went through the town. They thought it best to follow along to this hangout and take in the whole gang, if any. And I want to thank you, Mr. Sandham, for—er—for taking care of my daughter. I know how you met her. Found it out from the caretaker of my brother's house. And... well, you seem to be an intelligent young man. That's rare nowadays."

"Kiss him on both cheeks, Father," Kelly advised. "Like the French do to heroes."
"My daughter," said Mr. Archer, "is somewhat flippant. No doubt you found that out." He looked more closely at Joe. "Are you anything to my friend Charlie Sandham, by chance?"
Joe grinned. "To him I'm just a bum salesman for the New England territory. To me, he's Uncle Charlie."

"Small world," Mr. Archer commented. "Well, come on, all of you. We're driving back to Buffalo to spend the night." He took Mrs. Archer's arm and went out.
Joe followed. He supposed that Kelly and that twerp-like archeologist Gilbert were just behind him. He was wrong. When he arrived at the road, he discovered that they had not left the house as yet.
The police were waiting about to close the place. Mr. Archer got into his hired car.
"You'll be my guest at the hotel in Buffalo," he asked Joe.

Joe shook his head. He'd better, he thought, be on his way. His services seemed to be no longer required. No doubt Kelly and Gilbert were inside locked in each other's arms. Lovers' reunion. Tears of joy, perhaps. Embraces. Kisses. And for him, the little idyl just behind his left ear. "How about missing a few of those bumps?"
"Thanks all the same," he said to Mr. Archer. "But I'd better drive along as far as I can tonight. Got to get back on the job as soon as I can."

Mr. Archer held out his hand. "Well, suit yourself. But come and see us in New York. We're immensely grateful to you." Then he became aware of Kelly's absence and began to fume, loudly. "Caroline! Gilbert! Where the devil is that darn girl?"

Joe wandered off down the dark road. He was dead for sleep, but he thought he'd wait until they'd all gone and then go to a hotel in St. Catharines. He was feeling pretty sunk. Kelly Archer? Gilbert? Gee, it would be his luck to go ga-ga about a girl who was engaged to somebody else.
Joe approached his Ford in the roadway. He climbed in, turned it around and started back for St. Catharines.

"And I was the guy," he murmured audibly, "who talked about Kismet. Gee, what a dope."
"Kismet's pretty darned uncomfortable back here," and a voice like silver and raindrops just behind his left ear. "How about missing a few of those bumps?"
Joe jumped, then slammed on the brakes so suddenly that they shrieked in protest.
"Kelly," he shouted.
"Sssh!" said Kelly Archer. "You might wake up the Premier of Ontario. Can I come up in front?"
"Can you?" roared Joe. "Whops!" He swung around and practically dragged her over the back of the seat. "Now what is this? How the devil did you get here? Where's the oilcan with the toothbrushes under his nose? Where, how, when..."
"Hold it, Horace," said Kelly. "If you mean Gilbert, that's washed up."

Joe's heart did an outside loop and made a three-point landing in the back of his throat.
"Woman," he said, recklessly, "you've got just one minute to explain this. Then I'm going to kiss you within an inch of your life."
"Joe!" said Kelly softly, "do you love me?"
"Do I love you?" barked Joe. "Are there Chinks in China? The blemish, Gilbert? What happened to it? Quick!"
"It," said Kelly, "is out. The family found out from my uncle's caretaker that we'd stayed at Uncle Tyler's place that night and Gilbert chose to make an issue of it. He would hardly believe that we'd had an automobile crash. He hardly believes that we were forced to come to Canada. Said it was all fantastic. And he practically accused me of—of... well, promiscuousness. And he was just so hasty and rotten and impossible, that I got sore. So I told him it was all off. He's sulking back to Buffalo with the family."
"Swell," said Joe. "It's a great night for sulking. And, anyhow, you didn't want to marry a guy who lives underground like a mole, did you? But tell me! How come your father let you..."
Kelly grinned and interrupted. "I can twist. Father around my finger. I just told him I was riding back with you. He fussed, of course. Much good it did him." Joe slid an arm around her.

"Just in the interest of science," he said, "when did you decide to fade out on the prospective archeologist and go for me?"
"Do you really want to know? I sort of began to toy with the idea when you woke up in Uncle Tyler's bed with your hair all rumpled and that funny look on your face. And then, what with one little thing and another, it just seemed to grow and grow. Great oaks, you know."

"Great okiedokes," said Joe deliberately. "Next question. When and where will you marry me?"
"That's a cinch. Any time you want. In Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Schenectady, Albany, Yonkers, New York and all points north, south, east and west."

"Buffalo," Joe bellowed.
"Why not?"
"Why not, is right. Except—he had one fleeting moment of doubt—that in society and I'm a candy salesman earning 50 bucks a week and..."
Kelly's lips, dangerously close, silenced him.
"We're in the chips," said Kelly. Joe started the car. His tightened around her. Then, suddenly, he began to whistle. The tune was "Shuffle Off to Buffalo."

Payne, HT&BRR survey, as 1,062 feet from the west line and 918 feet from the north line of the 160-acre lease, Brown county.

Gas production at 500 pounds from two to five million cubic feet was estimated, on R. H. Goble & L. O. Moore C-1 Costello, abstract 119, M. Castleman survey, in a sand from 1,373 to 1,383 feet, Palo Pinto county. Total depth was 1,400 feet.

In Coleman county Brannon & Murray No. 4 George Younglove, J. W. Hicks survey, was dry at total depth of 1,950 feet. Other pluggings: Delmarva Oil corporation No. 1 G. P. Hall, Kerr county school land, 400 feet total depth, Brown county; Delmarva Oil corporation No. 1 C. A. Thomason, J. J. Clelland survey, 1,065 feet total depth, Brown county; Mid-Tex Production company No. 15 J. R. Collier, section 139, W. A. Smith survey, 435 feet total depth, Brown county.

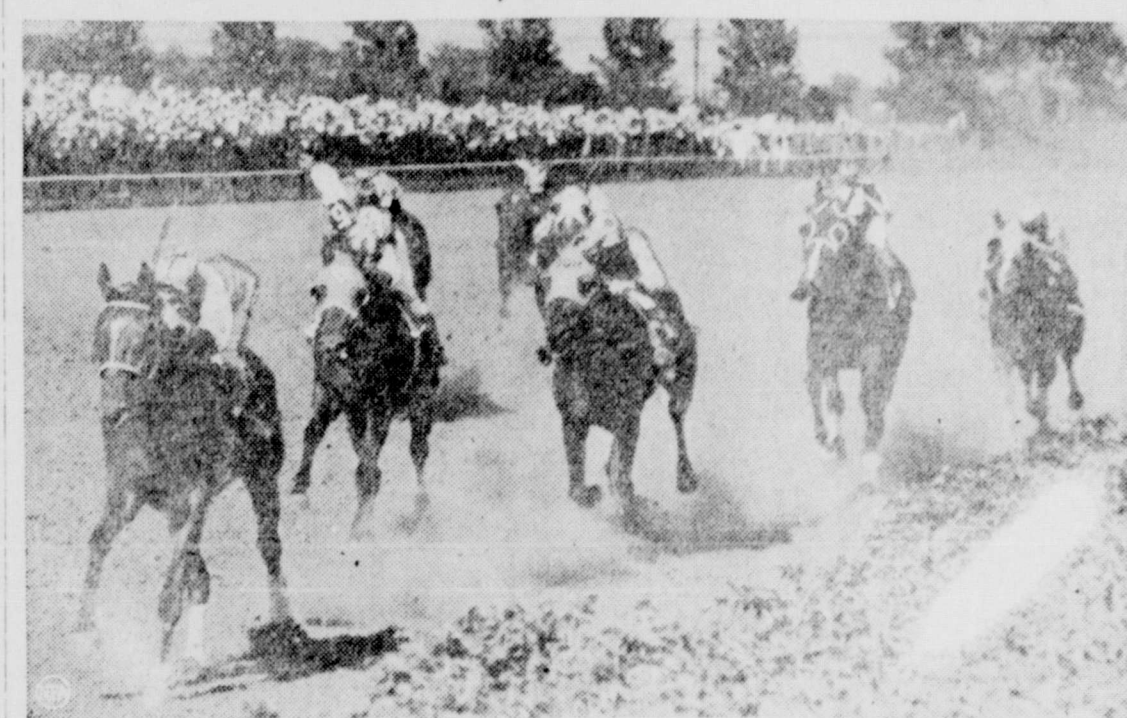

Recognition that they have attained the highest rank in scouting will be given two Cisco boys scouts Friday night when Jack Lauderdale and J. C. Paschall, both of Troop 101, will receive their Eagle badges at a court of honor to be held at the First Methodist church beginning at 8 o'clock. Ernest Lennon, secretary of the court of honor, has announced.

Judge Eugene Lankford, chairman of the court, will preside. This will be the last meeting of the court before Camp Billy Gibbons which opens on July 12. A large number of Cisco scouts are expected to attend the annual summer camp held at Richland Springs.

Mountain Sheep Protected Here By Closed Season

AUSTIN, July 7.—Texas hunters who want to bag a mountain sheep must go to other states to the north and west. In Texas the animal is protected by a closed season the year round.

They are found in the Guadalupe, Beech and Sierra Diablo mountains north of Van Horn, but not much is known of their occurrence, numbers, or the factors that have prevented their increase.

To gather such information the game, fish and oyster commission has sent Robert Snow, experienced field naturalist, to the Big Horn country to make a thorough study of the animals.

Accompanied by Dr. Walter P. Taylor, senior biologist of the Texas Cooperative Wildlife service at A. & M. Snow and his party made their first reconnaissance recently. They saw only seven bighorns, most of them in the Beech and Sierra Diablo mountains. Few signs were seen in the Guadalupe.

Factors limiting the numbers and increase of the bighorns remain to be determined. Residents nearby blame the mountain lion and more especially the golden eagle. Snow and his party saw few signs of mountain lions, but many eagles.

Dr. W. B. Davis, head of the department of wild game at A. & M. college, plans to join Snow for several weeks work in the Guadalupe and adjoining mountains during August and September. It is hoped the big horn study can be made cooperative so as to include not only the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster commission, but also the New Mexico Fish and Game commission, the U. S. forest service, and the U. S. biological survey. It is planned that the study will be carried forward on both sides of the New Mexico-Texas line.

Snow trailed four bighorns in the Guadalupe mountains three days, after locating them on a high semi-barren ridge, reached after a two-hour climb. He said their sure-footedness in leaping from crag to crag was every bit as remarkable as veteran hunters picture it. The bighorns became excited only once—when a band of eagles circled over them. Then they ran together as if for protection.

Dothan Farmer Proposes Turkeys to Rid Grasshopper Damage to Crops

Jack Pippen, prominent Dothan section farmer, while here Tuesday, said the wheat harvest in his community was practically complete, and the yield has proven to be greater than anticipated.

Most of the crops have yielded from 15 to 20 bushels per acre, while the crop had been forecast at 10 to 12. Other crops are fine, and if we can keep the hoppers from consuming the crop there will be a big yield of corn, maize, peas and other feed crops.

"No, very few of our people have poisoned the hoppers. One reason is that the poison does about as much or more damage than good," he said. "In the first place many of the farmers have turkeys. The turkeys would eat the poison, and no one cares to poison his neighbors' turkeys."

"Turkeys, I believe, are greater 'hopper exterminators' than poison, and of course there is no element of danger in running a flock of turkeys in the fields. But the ownership of turkeys has its drawbacks. Many farmers do not own turkeys, and these object to the turkeys of their neighbors roaming over their fields, so rather than annoying their neighbors many refuse, or refrain from owning turkeys. But I am thoroughly convinced that if every farmer owned a good sized flock of turkeys they would rid the country of hoppers in a couple of seasons, besides reap a nice profit from the sale of the turkeys. I wish all would try this remedy of ridding the country with hoppers for two years. I believe it would pay."

Texas Retail Grocers Oppose State Sales Tax

DALLAS, July 7 (Sp.)—Agitation for a sales tax in Texas is meeting organized opposition from many quarters, a survey discloses. Chief opponents to this tax are members of the Texas Retail Grocers association, composed of independents.

Group meetings have been held in 100 or more Texas cities the past three months by representatives of the grocers association. The sales tax was a subject up for discussion. In each instance the groups voted to oppose this form of taxation. Business and professional men, farmers, laborers and housewives registered their opposition, indicating widespread sentiment against more taxes on the consumer.

In Dallas en route to the National Association of Retail Grocers meeting, W. B. Addison of Houston, president of the Texas Retail Grocers association said:
"We have found all lines of trade opposed to a sales tax. When I say 'all lines of trade,' I mean just that—grocers, druggists, dry goods men, clothes—to say nothing of professional classes, farmers, laborers and housewives. With Texas spending $150,000,000 annually for state expense, taxpayers can see no good reason for saddling new burdens upon them. Experience of our citizens in other 'sales tax states' has demonstrated the fallacy of this tax. This is election year. Candidates for office are, I am sure, cognizant of the organization."

Instructions for Employees Past 65 Are Given Today

AUSTIN, July 7.—Every employee past 65 years of age should have a social security account number if he works for an employer covered by the state unemployment compensation law, Orville S. Carpenter, chairman-director of the Texas commission, said today.

These employees are earning credit to unemployment benefits to be paid them if they lose their jobs. However, employees' wage record maintained by the Texas unemployment commission must be identified by a social security account number in order to insure prompt receipt of unemployment benefits by workers who become unemployed.

Employers report each employee's wages every three months to the commission, Carpenter explained, and must give the employee's account number with each report to distinguish clearly the employee from others of the same, or similar, name. When an employee loses his job and applies to an office of the unemployment compensation commission for jobless benefits, he must give his account number as proof of his claim to benefits based on the wages his employer has reported under his account number.

Employees over 65 years of age are not included under the federal old age insurance system. However, many of these older workers, Carpenter emphasized, are eligible to qualify for unemployment benefits, and for this purpose should obtain social security account numbers and report them to their employers.

The Significant Fact In The O'Daniel Race

THIS political enigma which is W. Lee O'Daniel has a moral to it, a very serious moral. We have talked to numbers of people who declare their support of O'Daniel and almost without exception they say they are going to vote for the flour salesman because "I am tired of professional politicians. I want a change. I want a business man for governor." Their thought is that even if O'Daniel should know practically nothing about the process of government, he can do no worse than what the professional politicians have done.

NOW it will do no good to argue against this candidate's merits and his ability to be governor of this state. He is a very positive factor in this race, the more so, we believe, not because of his personal qualifications, but because of the sentiment upon which his candidacy has capitalized. The significant facts which his popularity embraces are not so apparent, but they are there and they are substantially the same facts which underlie their thinking of practically all groups of thinking citizens in the state on matters pertaining to the election of state officials. The great majority of the people of Texas are convinced that the state government has been run for the benefit of the politicians and not for the people. They are convinced that the state government can be run as efficiently as a business institution is run. They are convinced that they have been hoodwinked.

NOW a great deal of the reason for this condition is to be blamed on the people themselves. But people do not accept blame. They have permitted their emotions to rule their decisions in matters of choosing a governor, and this fact has induced these so-called "professional politicians" to promote their elections by promise and subterfuge. We are convinced that O'Daniel is an even worse politician, despite his business career, than the worst of the professional politicians, convinced that his election would precipitate the worst orgy of misgovernment and political turmoil that the state of Texas has ever known. However, we do not think he will ever be governor of the state of Texas. But that does not change complexion of the fact that these people who are supporting him are dissatisfied with the way the state government has been run and are seeking a more efficient administration.

THERE has been entirely too much opportunism in Texas politics. The processes of a democratic government move more slowly than most other forms, but the results are inevitable. The people are not to be fooled and eventually they will turn relentlessly on those who seek and gain state office by promises and platforms that are impossible of fulfillment and designed for no other purpose than to capture votes. Sound and courageous statesmanship is the only answer to politics of the O'Daniel type which simply go the politics of the professional politicians one better. The professional politician knows enough about government to avoid the rash-ness of O'Daniel, but it is true that he is seeking the same thing by the same methods that the flour salesman employs. The significant thing involved in this campaign is that the voters of Texas are waking up to the conditions that exist and if it takes a revolution they are going sooner or later to force a change.

Peace and Good Will Are Labored For

WE have done a lot of talking of late about the unfortified frontier between the United States and Canada, and about the "century of peace" between the two nations.
But mostly we haven't bothered to find out much about the background of this phenomenon; we seem to figure that Americans and Canadians are just naturally more virtuous than other peoples and that their peaceful friendship is the logical result of that fact.

A bit of this unknown background is being unfolded currently in a pleasant little celebration at an old windmill on the St.
Lawrence river a mile east of Prescott, Ont.

Probably you never heard of it before,
but it was just a century ago that Americans last fought Canadians; and the old windmill was the scene of the fighting. So the celebration makes our "century of peace" official.

IT seems that in 1838 a band of some 300 Americans crossed the border, bent on destroying a garrison of British regulars at Fort Wellington, in the town of Prescott. Relations between Canada and England were somewhat strained at the time, and a considerable faction in Canada was seeking independence; the Americans, for one reason or another, were out to see that the Canadian revolutionists got their wish.

So the invasion took place. It fizzled rapidly. The attack on Fort Wellington failed, the Americans established themselves in the old stone windmill, the Britishers laid siege to the place, and after a couple of days of fighting the Americans surrendered. A few of the leaders were hanged and the rest were imprisoned; and that was all there was to it.

ALL of this sounds very remote and unreal, today. Even at the time it failed to make much of a stir, apparently; and it is worth recalling now only because it indicates that this much-talked-of peace between the two nations is something that had to be worked for.

That peace didn't just grow out of the natural goodness of Americans and Canadians, and it didn't come because the two peoples never had anything to quarrel about. It is a positive achievement rather than a negative one.

Americans and Canadians were originally no more disposed to be chummy than any other folk. They had their troubles and they shed blood over them. The War of 1812 was caused in good part by an American desire to annex Canada; and as late as 1838 the an-tagonism flared up in this half-forgotten battle of the stone windmill.

Now a century of peace which is built on that kind of foundation really means something. It means that two nations which really try to live in peace can do so; that old hatreds, suspicions and jealousies really can be shelved, and that men of good will can silence
the war-mongers if they actually make the effort.

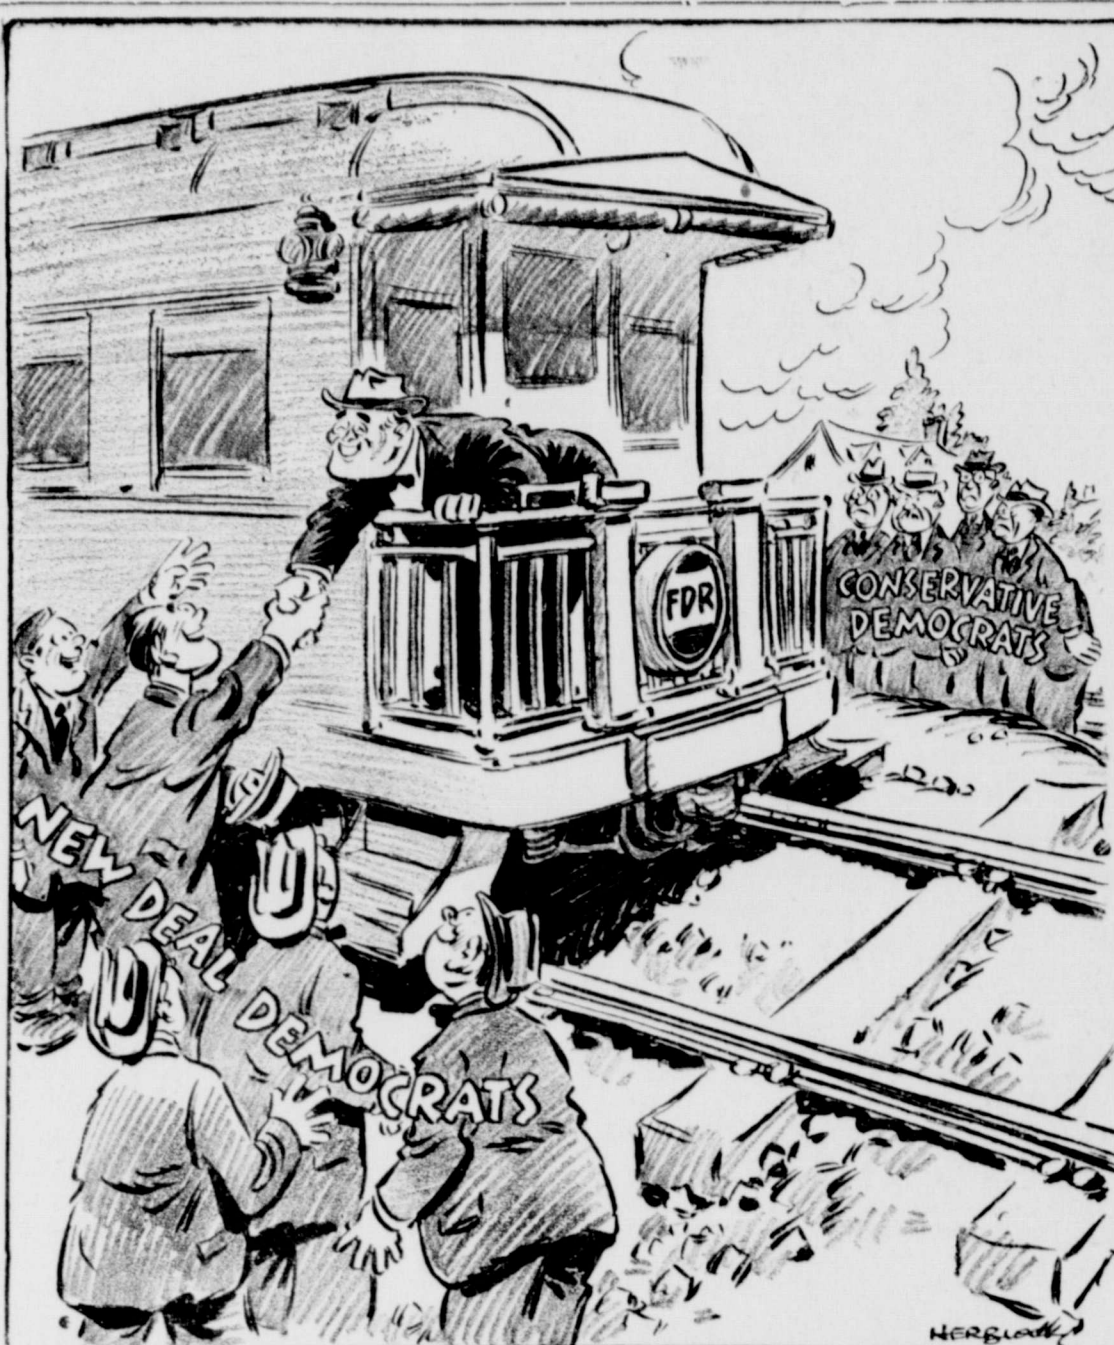

Which, in a world that seems too tired to make the effort to live at peace, is something well worth remembering.

A seal who spent 18 years blowing trumpets with a circus has just retired. He heard a swing band and decided that humans could do it just about as well.

A clock in Canada has been running constantly since 1892. It thinks it's a politician.

City officials of Berlin declare it's every pedestrian's duty to cross the street only when the way is clear. Duty? In most cities it's a rare privilege.

The Boys on the Other Side of the Tracks

Behind The Scenes in Washington

—BY RODNEY DUTCHER—
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Public allegation that Jimmy Roosevelt continued to operate in the insurance business while serving as secretary and chief aide to the president has aroused intense curiosity in Washington as to whether this story can possibly be true.

No one at the White House is willing to try to satisfy this curiosity.

"That's a matter between Alva and Jimmy," inquirers there are told. Reference is to Alva Johnston, whose magazine article on Jimmy's spectacular success in the insurance business during recent years has attracted national attention.

Jimmy is in a hospital and has alleged certain unspecified misrepresentations in the article, but whether he means to include among such alleged misrepresentations the assertion that since his formal resignation from the Roosevelt & Sargent insurance firm he "has continued to pursue his insurance operations vigorously" . . . can not be learned.

Here in Washington it generally has been assumed, with no evidence to the contrary, that Jimmy had stopped selling policies, although it is assumed also that he still had a large income from huge policies previously sold.

Back in the Hoover administration it was charged that the late James Francis Burek, a lawyer-lobbyist who was general counsel for the Republican National Committee, had used White House office space and White House stationery for private business purposes. Mr. Hoover moved Burke out of the White House.

Congressman Martin Dies, chairman of the committee about to investigate "un-American activities," has one of the loudest voices in the House—possibly the loudest.
Leather-lunged, theatrical, boisterous, large and husky, Dies represents an East Texas district once dominated by the Ku Klux Klan.
Dies himself has opposed the Klan, but knows how to get votes by denouncing the C. I. O. and aliens.

Although his resolution for the present investigation was opposed by House liberals who feared it was so broad that it would be used against organized labor and although Washington supposed Dies was bent on a red-baiting expedition, the Texan has begun by asking the Department of Justice for its secret reports on operations of the Nazi-German-American Bund. And Dies has promised that the inquiry will be in no sense an attempt to abridge freedom of speech by citizens.

Dies likes colored shirts and small black bow ties. He was admitted to the bar at 19, became known as "the boy debater" and after election to congress in 1930 became a champion of silver legislation.

been successful in obtaining a 25-

site that has been used for the annual summer camp for the past several years. Through the interest of the Gibbons family and the lease. The lease gives permis-

The camp is located in the hill

Texas." The maximum depth is eleven feet, and the pool is gradugravel and the water is estimated to change once in two hours.

The site has a traditional background. Many Indian battles have been fought in the forks of the San Saba river. Such places as the Richland Springs caverns, Smugglers Draw, Cold Springs,
Honeycomb Cave etc., are in hikscouts see their first wild deer and turkey while attending camp.

About Our Friends

By STEP A. LONG

The city officials are trying for some PWA work for Cisco . . .

Other cities in this section of the state are getting good programs from which they expect to get big slices of the pump priming funds that are to be expended over the country in order to relieve unemployment and provide buying power to labor and an outlet for the sale of building materials . . .

A group composed of Mayor
Berry, Commissioner Bible, Street
Superintendent Joe Clements,
Water Superintendent Killpatrick
and Contractor J. H. Latson, made a trip to Brownwood Wednesday to inspect camp houses that have been built by the parks board's government funds . . .

Wendell
Mayes of the State Parks board organization, whose home is at Brownwood, met the group and showed them every courtesy, giving them a set of plans of the houses constructed there adjacent to Lake Brownwood.

This group with the exception of the mayor who is away on a combination business and vacation trip beginning today, are in Fort Worth today to meet the PWA head of that office in order to get some quick action if possible on projects for Cisco.

It is the hope of the city officials that sanction and government funds may be secured for a project to construct 25 camp houses adjacent to Lake Cisco . . . Many people inquire each year about tourist facilities for spending vacations at the lake . . . At present very little is available in the way of housing . . . Ciscoans feel that with proper facilities, these cabins would be full the greater part of the year . . .

Paving of other streets and the relaying of the brick on Main are projects that are being sought . . .
There are still other programs that are being worked out now for later announcement . . . Meanwhile, Mayor and Mrs. J. T. Berry, and Mr. and Mrs. Phil Berry of Stanton, are on their way to Galveston, Houston and other gulf points for a few days rest and recuperation . . . Mayor Berry will attend to some official business while away on this trip, he announced.

Honoring International Eucharistic Congress

FROM nearly every part of Christendom come devout Catholics for the International Eucharistic Congress in which biannually Catholicism proclaims and renews its faith.

The last Congress was held in Budapest, Hungary, during the last week in May. Upwards of 100,000 pilgrims knelt in prayer in the great Heroes Square in the heart of Budapest, a vast sea of faces turned in supplication toward God and in adoration of the Blessed Sacrament. A throng of 500 priests distributed communion.
Such is the spectacle of this Catholic event. Nothing in the whole ritual of the ancient church imparts such inspiration, such significance as this colorful assemblage, framed around a massive central altar and illuminated by thousands of candle-bearing worshippers.

In honor of this year's Congress,
Hungary issued a special miniature sheet containing seven commemorative stamps. The better-known persons which this postal issue portrays are St. Stephen, Stephen's son, Prince St. Emerich,
King St. Ladislaus, Queen St.
Elizabeth, Bishop St. Maurice, and the Blessed Margaret. The Holy Sacrament is also illustrated. It is shown on the stamp above

The final hearing of the case was continued until the next term of the court by reason of these motions, as it was the opinion of the court that there was insufficient time of the present term to consider the motions proper consideration and for the transaction of her litigation pending.

R. T. Nealey vs. Georgia Lee Day, Fort Worth, Texas, divorce. Judgment for plaintiff. A jury commission was named Judge Patterson, consisting of J. Herring, of Eastland; C. E. Herring, of Ranger, and W. E. Trimble, of Carbor, who were duly empaneled Thursday and instructed to draw two juries of 40 names each for the second and third weeks of the July term beginning Monday, July 11, and Monday, July 18. The commission immediately began its labor and returned the required names to the office of the district clerk to be reviewed when required.

FIRESTONE cuts the cost of Tire Safety just at the time when you need a new set of tires. At this time of the year you should replace tires that are worn and smooth for greatest safety during the summer driving season. Tires may look alike on the outside — but inside they are different. The name FIRESTONE on a tire is your assurance of extra safety and long mileage because only Firestone Tires are built with these patented and exclusive construction features:
Gum-Dipping, the Firestone patented process by which every fiber of every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber, counteracts tire-destroying internal friction and heat which ordinarily cause blowouts. Nine extra pounds of rubber are added to every 100 pounds of cord.
Two Extra Layers of Gum-Dipped Cords under the tread, another patented Firestone construction feature, protect against punctures.
Scientifically-Designed Non-Skid Tread made of tough slow-wearing rubber, assures safer stops and longer non-skid mileage.
Now that Firestone gives you all of these safety and economy features at these low prices, you cannot afford to take chances with unsafe tires this summer. Come in today and join the Firestone Save-A-Life Campaign by equipping your car with a set of new Firestone Convoy Tires—the safest tires that money can buy at these low prices.

Urge You to Cast Your Vote for a Man Who

Will MAKE TEXAS a

Real Leader

He is Trained!

He is Talented!

He is Tested!

A Sound Record of Public Service

WHAT HE HAS DONE!

As Mayor of Amarillo, he saved citizens nearly a million dollars a year by cutting every utility rate in the city and lowering the tax levy.

As Texas Railroad Commissioner, he assisted the farmer through lower freight rates and the livestock industry with emergency drought rates; brought many millions of dollars to the school fund by sensible supervision of the Texas oil industry; helped lower the gas rates in scores of Texas towns.

As a man, whose boyhood was spent at hard work, he has achieved a brilliant record of private and public service, fought for his country with high honors during the World War, is chairman of the Oil States Compact Commission, has earned the respect and admiration of straight-thinking people all over the nation.

WHAT HE WILL DO!

Tackle the farm problem with both fists and help the farmer and rancher work out a solution that will take the penalty off owning or working a farm or ranch—his belief being that the farmer is entitled to a fair profit, the same as any other man.

Urge the legislature to change the old age assistance law so that no needy old person will be denied a pension merely because a son or daughter happens to have a job.

Actively encourage industrial expansion to relieve unemployment; wage war on governmental waste and fight new taxes; and advocate state control and regulation of all utilities.

TO THE MERCHANTS and VOTERS of CISCO

Precinct No. 4

Vote for Jess Nobles for Commissioner of Precinct No. 4

We want a road out here, so we can get to Highway 29, which will connect the Breckenridge, Albany and Moran highways. It will take only a short piece of road to go this, and it will bring lots of trade to Cisco. Stephens county has a good road up to the line of Eastland and Stephens county line. I understand the commissioners have approved of this road and had the money to put it in. The right-of-way has been received by Mr. Mitcham and he has offered to furnish some material to put on this road. It will go between his ranch and mine. But it seems that we can get no action on this. Anyone who is fighting us is fighting Cisco merchants by keeping trade out. We want all of the people to get to Cisco, good weather or bad. Someone out here is fighting this road for some cause or other.

People who want to develop the county and our town should have a road if anyone does. Who is trying harder than I am to keep Cisco alive? I want good roads and good streets. I gave $2000 in cash to help pay to pave Cisco streets with brick. How many property owners in Cisco came up to that? I saw cars stuck in the mud on Cisco main street before we got the street paved. It might make the mud haulers mad to pave the streets because they lose their job hauling mud. It might stop this road dragging job to give us a road.

All of Cisco's business men, good property owners and real estate men help me get this road.

Washed Air System

REDDY KILOWATT says: "Neither the average home-maker nor the average merchant would consider going to market for groceries or merchandise with as little information about the products they intend to buy as the average person has on hand when he goes shopping for air conditioning."

"The belief persists that air condition- ing is something like an automobile ... you look at the new models, talk to neighbors who own them, and then you buy—knowing you are getting what you want!"

"Well, as a matter of honest fact, however, air conditioning is like having a suit made to order or building a home. It's a highly specialized job made to your individual requirements and no- body else's. If in the market, ask your- self these questions:

"First: Do you need year-around or summer air-conditioning? (Sometimes year-around actually saves you money.) Second: In comparing competitive bids on air conditioning, what are the quali- ty points to check closely? Third: In cold dollars and cents, would it be worth while for you to air condition your of- fices or home?"

"If these questions have you puz- zled, ask our staff of trained engineers to help you."

Red Front Drug Wins in National Cosmetic Contest

That the Red Front Drug store is alive in its display of cosmetics is attested to by the fact that it was the only drug store in Texas to receive honorable mention in the recent contest staged by "Toilet Requisites," a national magazine devoted to discussions of such topics.

The contest was staged in May, and drug stores all over the nation entered the contest by placing a window in the displays featured. The Red Front Drug store featured a window and a photograph was sent to the magazine.

There were three winners and four drug stores won honorable mention. The Red Front of Cisco being one of the four, and the only store in Texas to get recognition. A story and pictures in the current issue of the magazine features the winners together with reproduction of the prize windows. The Red Front of Cisco gets a prominent place on the stage.

IT'S ODD But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE (AP Science Editor)

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Capt. N. H. Heck one of America's foremost geologists, says there is a submerged plateau in the Atlantic ocean eleven-twelfths the area of the United States.

It lies about two miles below the surface of the sea, but from half a mile to a mile above the ocean floor. It is 100 to 700 miles wide. Its highest portions rise three to five miles above the ocean bottom. This great plateau extends from around the latitude of south Greenland to that of Montevideo. It follows the middle of the North and South Atlantic in an unbroken line.

Captain Heck proposes methods of sounding and of earthquake studies that will better outline this great submerged land and show its relation to the rest of the earth.

The relation might be important. For he says the whole plateau is one of the sources of earthquakes. The northern portion was found in 1854 during the surveys for the first Atlantic cable. Since the World war the German surveying
