Old settlers planning 61st fete for Aug. 2

It will be a swap shop of old stories and tall tales when Howard and Glasscock county pioneers gather for the 61st Annual Howard-Glasscock County Old Settlers reunion.

A committee headed by President Dwight McCann, Vice President Mack Underwood and Secretary-Treasurer Gertrude McCann is currently planning the reunion. The event has been scheduled Aug. 2 at 9 a.m. at the Old Settlers Pavilion in Comanche Trail Park.

The public is invited to the reunion that will feature such things as personal visits, a barbecue, music performed by the Federal Prison Band and old time fiddling.

A person is considered an old settler if he has resided here for 25 years or more.

The initial Old Settlers Reunion was held on the J.L. McKinney farm. Later, it was held in the Cottonwood Park on Second Street. The reunion then moved to Comanche Trail Park before old settlers bought the pavilion where the reunion is currently held.

Old settlers consist of persons who arrived in Big Spring by the railroad and others who are descendants of pioneer ranch families.

The reunion allows old settlers to catch up with each other and swap tales of yesteryear.

Dwight and Gertrude McCann have been in charge of the reunion for 11 years. This is Underwood's third year as vice president. Day activities will recess at 3 p.m. A dance will begin at 8:30 p.m. in the Dora Roberts Community Center with Ben Nix and The Boys performing until 12:30 a.m.

Pardons don't pay

New law will make parolees pay all fines

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

The Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles will soon require people placed on parole to repay the county where they were tried for any fines, fees or other costs imposed by the courts, including the costs of county-paid counsel.

The law takes effect on Sept. 1 as a result of the passage of Senate Bill 59 in the last Legislature. The bill was signed by Governor Mark White in June, according to a press release from the governor's office.

"I'm assuming by this," said Big Spring Parole Officer David Harman when looking at the release, "that they (offenders) can be arrested if they don't start repaying."

Harman said that according to Rule 8D of Texas Parole Rules, all state parolees are required to repay court and legal fees they incurred for their offenses. The rule has been in effect for 1½ years, but Harman, who supervises a case load of approximately 78 parolees in Howard and surrounding counties, said he never knew of a case where a parolee had his parole revoked for violating this condition.

"Everyday I go to the courthouse and check to see who's paid. And if they don't pay, the parolee is reprimanded in a case conference I hold with him. If they still don't pay, a warrant could be issued and a hearing could be held," Harman said.

A person on parole who is warranted by the board and subjected to a parole hearing will either continue his parole term or have this freedom revoked which means confinement in the TDC to finish his sentence. Approximately 7 per cent of people on parole in Howard and surrounding counties have had their parole revoked, Harman said.

Harman said a parolee who is able to find work and live rent-free with his family, relatives or friends would "have to justify why he couldn't make his payments."

He said there is no minimum amount set each month for payment of outstanding fees nor if a parolee finds work, can an officer have a portion of his wages garnished to the courts.

"I can't drag them down there by the hand and make them pay, but I will notify the board they are not paying," Harman said.

Harman, who was assigned to cover Big Spring parole cases in Nov. 1983 from the Midland-Odessa regional office, said all counties would benefit from the extra revenue.

"I don't have too many parolees paying restitution. I have some and they are paying. Since the 1984 parole ruling, the district clerk's office here in Big Spring has collected several thousands of dollars," Harman said.

Study: Many police chiefs not qualified

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's police chiefs are better educated than they were a decade ago, but many remain under-qualified and inattentive to the political tasks required of them, according to a study released Saturday.

The typical chief turns out to be 49 years old, with five and a half years in his job and 24 years in law enforcement. He has spent nearly 18 years with the same department and works nearly 57 hours a week, the study found.

He is more likely than not to have a college degree and will spend nearly eight years in his post if he was appointed to it and slightly more than 11 years there if he was elected.

The study was based on surveys conducted in 1982 and 1983 of 493 chief executive officers of police departments with more than 75 employees. There are 1,100 police departments of that size and they provide law enforcement to a majority of the nation's population.

The study, "The American Law Enforcement Chief Executive: A Management Profile," was conducted and written by Donald C. Witham, a supervisory FBI agent who teaches at the FBI Academy in Quantico, Va. The facility is a training center for FBI agents and many state and local policemen.

The study was financed and published by the Police Executive Research Forum, an organization of police chiefs devoted to modernizing police methods.

In 1982, 50.7 percent of the chiefs had at least a bachelor's degree, and a year later, 56.8 percent reported having at least a bachelor's degree.

The study found that 67.4 percent of chiefs younger than age 41 had college degrees, compared to 28.3 percent of those over age 57.

"All of these percentages are much higher than observed in earlier studies," Witham wrote. "Law enforcement has been able to raise the educational level of its top officials."

But he noted that a national commission recommended in 1976 that departments with 75 or more employees require their chiefs to have a four-year college degree.

"Nearly 10 years later," Witham wrote, "almost 50 percent of these officials still do not possess a baccalaureate degree."

The chiefs were asked to list their three most important duties, and most concentrated on administrative tasks.

3,000 witness ordination of new San Angelo bishop

SAN ANGELO — An estimated 3,000 people flocked to San Angelo Friday from across West Texas to witness the ordination of the Most Rev. Michael D. Pfeifer as bishop of the Diocese of San Angelo.

The San Angelo Coliseum was transformed from an arena to a cathedral with incense hanging in the air and white-robed priests filling folding chairs on the floor.

Elaborate parish banners hung next to simple ones brought by representatives of the 45 parishes and 25 missions in the San Angelo Diocese who came to watch the ordination.

The diocese consists of Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Big Spring, St. Ann's in Colorado City and St. Lawrence in Garden City in the Crossroads Country area. Other parishes include Our Lady of Lourdes of Andrews, Our Lady of Guadalupe of Midland and St. Anthony's of Odessa.

The Most Rev. Patrick F. Flores of San Antonio interspersed the ordination ceremony with the regular Catholic Mass.

Pfeifer, the superior of a religious order of missionary known as the Oblates of Mary Immaculate for the southern United States, became the fifth bishop of the Diocese of San Angelo. He replaces Bishop Joseph A. Fiorenza, who left Feb. 17 to head the Diocese of Galveston-Houston.

The three-hour, bilingual ceremony began with a procession of parishes in which representatives carried banners that were hung around the coliseum before the ordination Mass.

The English-Spanish ceremony featured hymns from a 125-member choir composed of choral groups throughout the diocese.

Archbishop Pio Laghi, the Apostolic Pr-Nuncio was at the ceremony as the pope's special representative. Laghi is the Holy See's ambassador to the United States.

One of 20 attending bishops at the ordination of Michael Pfeifer, the new Diocese of San Angelo bishop, lays his hands as a blessing. The San Angelo diocese includes Big Spring, Colorado City and St. Lawrence.

As head of the Oblates, headquartered in San Antonio, Pfeifer, 48, served all of the southern states, Mexico and Zambia, Africa, where he traveled two years to begin a mission. The Oblate Order's principal ministry is missionary work for the church among the poor.

The Oblate fathers also serve Christ the King Retreat Center in San Angelo.

Riley tries new act

Country singer fights obscurity after 'Harper Valley'

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Jeannie C. Riley, an unknown singer until she recorded "Harper Valley PTA" in 1968, had a hard act to follow.

Ms. Riley is again fighting obscurity — she hasn't had a song hit the top charts in more than eight years.

"I wonder why anything hasn't jelled. I've been ready to record for the last six or seven years," Ms. Riley, 39, said on a recent trip here to visit her in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. H.E. Riley.

The friendly, hazel-eyed woman still makes music for a living. She travels with her husband, Mickey, and her daughter and son-in-law, Kim and John Coyle. Kim Coyle sings back-up for her mother; Coyle handles the sound.

The family, based in Franklin, Tenn., near Nashville, travels to concerts, fairs, amusement parks, rodeos and conventions. They are on the road about six months each year, Ms. Riley said.

The country singer also has high hopes for an album titled "Total Woman," produced two years ago. It is owned by a producer and is not currently on the market, according to Ms. Riley.

"It was a wonderful album. I just hope it's not too late to be a door opener," she said.

One of the songs, "Limosine Lovers," tells a gutsy tale about "Limosine Lovers in a pickup truck making million-dollar memories while we're stuck in this rut." Another song, "West Texas Wind," evokes an urban cowboy feeling, she said.

The small woman with a big voice was awarded a gold record and the Grammy as best female country vocalist of 1968. "Harper

Country singer Jeannie C. Riley is shown during a visit to see relatives in San Angelo in early July. After her "Harper Valley PTA," she hasn't had any hits, but still tours small venues, county fairs and rodeos.

Valley," a song about small-town hypocrisy, sold more than 4 million copies in the United States alone.

Until the mid-1970s, 10 of her songs made the top five songs in country music, and 15 of her songs made the top 10.

Ms. Riley blames a former producer for her lack of quality work after such a meteoric beginning. She says half a dozen songs written for her later became hits — sung by someone else.

She says, for example, "Son of a Preacher Man," a hit by Dusty Springfield, was first offered to the producer for her. Two others, "One's on the Way" sung by Loretta Lynn and "New York Secretary's Life" by Billie Jo Spears were also rejected by her former producer, Ms. Riley said.

In 1971, Ms. Riley and the producer parted company, but other producers and songs did not produce the giant result of "Harper Valley."

"Five or six years ago, every time I put out a new supply of cotton balls in a bathroom jar, I'd say, 'Before I run out, I'll have another hit,'" Ms. Riley said wistfully.

She is upbeat about her life and times. Part poet, part philosopher, part musician, her songs evoke what she calls "country nostalgia." She said her audiences like a song she has written called "Vic's Salve and Alabam." The song tells about the fun she had with her grandfather who arrived to visit during her childhood in Anson, Texas. He smelled of Vic's Salve, she said.

"I like stone country music, the whining, twin fiddle, steel guitar twangy music, I don't have a sophisticated taste in music," Ms. Riley said.

The songwriting has ended temporarily. "I get mad at myself. But psychologically, I'm thinking 'why bother to write more, I have plenty of good songs.'"

Ms. Riley said she once wrote about 200 songs in a four-year period. "Some are really good. Some are better than the songs I recorded before."

What is it like to go from nowhere to instant fame? "The only thing that kept me from total shock was faith — the faith that something was going to happen. I felt something was coming. I used to feel excitement when someone knocked on the door, that knock might bring the break I needed."

Two years after Ms. Riley, her husband and baby arrived in Nashville, she got that break when a producer heard her sing a demonstration tape and signed her up to sing "Harper Valley."

After that, "I went berserk. I thought it would never end. I thought it was my lot in life to have total success in show business."

"I tossed money around. Once I bought $6,000 worth of clothes. I didn't even wear some of them before they went out of style."

The most extravagant thing Ms. Riley said she did was to pay cash for a $10,000 mink coat.

"It was ridiculous. I thought how my Mother and Dad barely earned that much in one year. I got real ashamed. I didn't wear it for years. I put it on about three years ago. I didn't feel that way any more. I felt I'd paid my dues and deserved it."

Otherwise, skies were generally partly cloudy statewide as temperatures soared past 100 across parts of North Central Texas with Waco reporting 102 degrees at 4 p.m.

Elsewhere, readings were mostly in the 90s except in rain-cooled Northeast Texas, where the middle 70s prevailed.

In the forecast for North Texas, skies should be mostly fair and hot through Monday with highs 94 to 100 and lows Sunday night in the 70s, the weather service said.

In West Texas, skies should be partly cloudy through Monday with some widely scattered thunderstorms. Lows should be in the 60s and 70s, with highs in the 80s and 90s.

Nation's schools vie for bilingual teachers

DALLAS (AP) — Marella Ramirez isn't worried about getting a job when she graduates from college in December. She wants to be a bilingual teacher, such a rare commodity that schools nationwide are frantically vying for their services.

"I've gotten so many offers, I've lost count," the 22-year-old senior at Pan American University in Edinburg said.

About 4.5 million children nationwide speak so little English, they need bilingual education. But there are only about 158,000 bilingual instructors in the country, The Dallas Morning News said.

As a result, school districts are offering bonuses of up to $6,000 a year and other perquisites to bilingual teachers.

"They offer good money. They say their bilingual programs are good. They say their campuses are nice," Ramirez said of the recruiters. "But I haven't really looked into any of them. I want to stay in the (Rio Grande) Valley."

National bilingual education experts say the number of bilingual teachers would almost have to double to reach the ideal ratio of one teacher for every 15 students.

"We are all competing for the same scarce resource," said Ross Taylor, head of the multilingual education department for Chicago public schools.

Taylor said that the bonuses offered by some schools in Texas, which is second only to California in the number of pupils who speak little English, "are going to wipe us off the map."

The vast majority of students needing bilingual education are Hispanic, according to the U.S. Department of Education.

Texas education officials estimate the state has 285,000 children who qualify for bilingual education, but only 7,500 teachers — 1 for every 38 pupils.

Bonuses aren't the only lures. Some school districts offer free college tuition to high school students who pursue a degree in bilingual education, The News said.

According to Sarah Melendez of the National Association of Bilingual Education in Washington, the situation isn't getting any better because the number of students who need bilingual teaching is growing at such a rapid clip.

Fire destroys mobile home

A fire completely destroyed a mobile home in Coahoma Saturday evening.

The mobile home belonged to Jackie and Annette Henry of Coahoma. No one was in the home when it caught fire.

The owner of the house, Curtis Smith, and father-in-law of Mrs. Henry, found the house on fire and called the Coahoma Volunteer Fire Department at 6:15 p.m.

Smith lives next door to the mobile home, which is located at 100 Ash Street on the east side of the town.

Firemen from the Coahoma, Jonesboro and Big Spring had the blaze out by 7:15 p.m. They were not able to salvage the contents or the house.

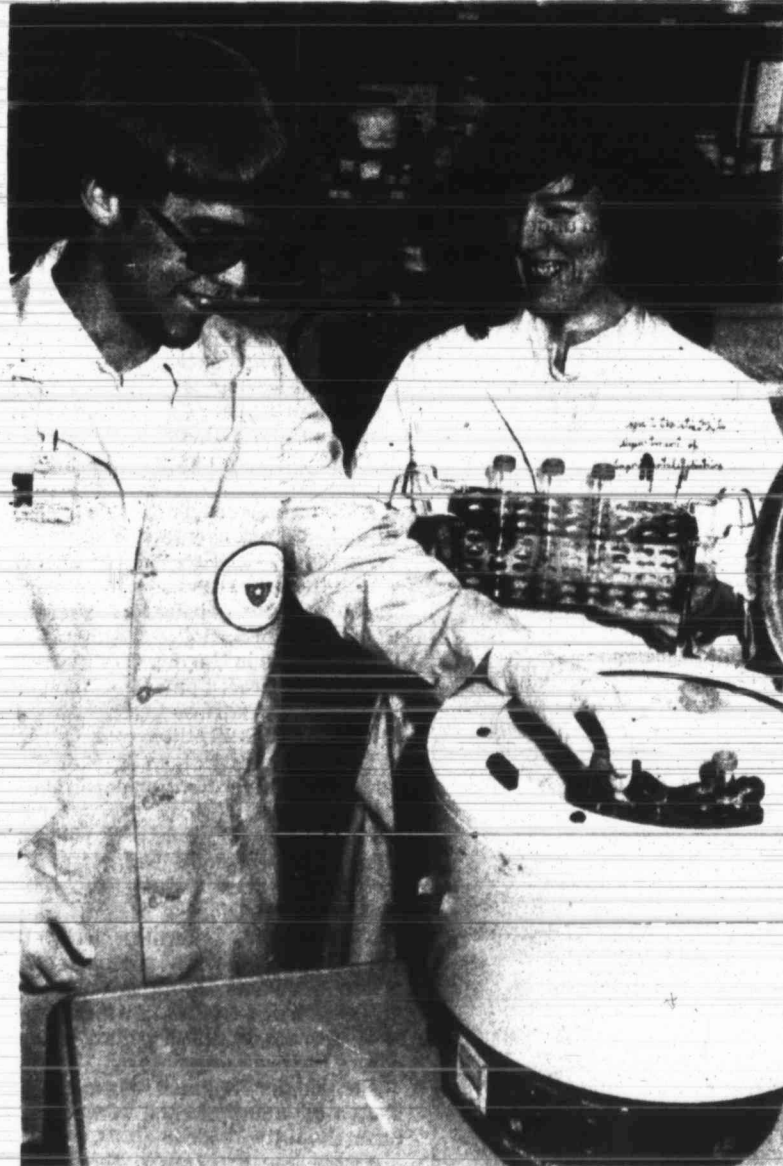

Smith said the mobile home is insured, but none of his daughter and son-in-law's contents were.

Preliminary investigation shows that the blaze could have started in the living room of the house, according to Billy Sullivan, president of the Coahoma Volunteer Fire Department.

Mrs. Henry said the only appliance that was on in the mobile home when she left was an evaporative cooler. A video cassette recorder in the living room was set to come on at 5 p.m.

Sullivan and other firemen examined the evaporative cooler but found no indication that it had started the fire, he said.

Mrs. Henry said when her father noticed the blaze.

HOUSTON — David Shaw, graduate of Coahoma High School, was chosen from a field of nearly 400 applicants and participated in cancer research this summer at the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute.

In its 25th year, the program endowed by the King Foundation of Dallas allows high school graduates to get a view of a medical career in a cancer research work setting.

From June 3 through July 26, the students conducted individual research projects under the supervision of full-time members of the M.D. Anderson's research staff. Shaw worked under the supervision of Dr. Nelwyn Christie in the

Commissioners, attorney to discuss federal lawsuit

Howard County Commissioners Monday will discuss a federal lawsuit filed against the county with Abilene attorney Malcolm C. Schulz.

The meeting will be at 11 a.m. in the Commissioners' Courtroom on the second floor of the county courthouse.

The suit was filed by a San Angelo woman whose son was shot to death by a Howard County sheriff's deputy following a high-speed car chase with Big Spring Police last November on Highway 87, south of Big Spring.

County attorney Tim Yeats said he had requested a "closed session" notice appear on the meeting's agenda. A closed session excludes the public from attending.

Commissioners in their previous meeting last Monday had unanimously approved a motion that called for the hiring of Schulz if the attorney would accept the job. The motion also included an order giving Yeats the authority to hire Schulz.

"He (Schulz) has agreed to come and discuss the suit with commissioners," Yeats said.

He said the county has not officially hired him. Commissioners cannot make motions nor vote in closed sessions, according to Texas Open Meeting laws.

Yeats said he had sent Schulz a copy of the suit last Wednesday. It was filed in an Abilene federal court.

"We're just going to talk with him (Schulz), because we have that deadline," Yeats said about defendants being required to file an answer within 20 days after receiving notification of it from the plaintiff. Judge Milton Kirby said he received a copy of the suit last Friday.

Yeats said he had suggested to Kirby who presides over commissioners court that the meeting be held in closed session "to discuss the pending litigation."

GM ends site speculation

DETROIT — The reported decision by General Motors Corp. to build its Saturn car plant at Spring Hill, Tenn., ends eight months of promotion and speculation in a 36-state scramble for the industrial plum.

GM remained silent on the decision pending the official announcement, expected Monday, but two Tennessee senators claimed victory for their state.

Sens. Albert Gore Jr. and Jim Sasser, both Democrats, said Friday there was no doubt the 6,000-worker plant would be located at Spring Hill, a town of 1,110 people 30 miles south of Nashville.

Jogging, dogs don't mix

CHICAGO — Dogs are better suited for chasing mailmen instead of marathoners, and just might drop dead during a dog days afternoon jog, a veterinarian says.

"If you're talking half a block or so, they can run like the devil — but they're not marathon runners," said Dr. Robert Keough, head of the Cook County Department of Animal Control.

Running in hot, muggy weather is especially hard on fat old dogs, just as it is on flabby humans, Keough said in a telephone interview Saturday.

Unlike people, canines can't cool off by sweating. Dogs release body heat only through their paws or by panting.

"These poor dogs, that tongue looks like it's 3 yards long by the time they get done," Keough said. "They just collapse after a race."

Top gangs call a truce

WILMINGTON, Del. — Since the signing of a truce that the mayor called "a milestone," the gang fighting's over here — but youths still hang out on The Strip and officials say violence could erupt again at any moment.

The Strip, North Market Street from Concord Avenue to 24th Street, a place to see and be seen, has been the site of several rock- and bottle-throwing encounters with police this summer.

Fighting began in late June between gangs from North Market Street, Riverside and the Rosegate area in surrounding New Castle County over what gang members called "a lack of communication."

Supreme Court not great

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Justice Harry A. Blackmun says the current Supreme Court is "not a great court, but I think not the worst court we have had in history," but individually he paints a picture of a court feeling the aches and pains of old age.

Addressing the 8th U.S. Circuit Judicial Conference on Friday, Blackmun said the court does its shoddiest work in the April-June crush.

"There is not any question in my mind that the nine of us right at the end of our session are physically and mentally exhausted," Blackmun said. "It is a funny system, but it seems to work, in a way."

Blackmun, 76, said he was not familiar with the health of Justice Sandra Day O'Connor.

Militant coup

Military overthrows Ugandan civilian government

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — A military coup overthrew President Milton Obote's civilian government Saturday following a month of tribal infighting within the Ugandan army.

Obote, 60, survivor of a 1971 military coup by Idi Amin, was reported to have survived this coup by Brigadier Basilio Olara Okello. Obote fled to neighboring Kenya with two Cabinet ministers shortly before the putsch, according to witnesses there.

By nightfall, sporadic shooting in the capital had abated and the rebel forces under Okello appeared to have established control.

Pro-Obote soldiers reportedly took hostage some soldiers from the Acholi tribe at Kampala's Makindye army barracks. The rebel leader is an Acholi, as are most of his soldiers.

Reports from the scene said Okello's supporters were trying to flush the loyalists out of an underground prison at Makindye. Amnesty International said in a June 19 report that civilians were illegally detained and tortured there and at other army bases.

At 11:30 a.m. Saturday a rebel officer announced the "total end of Obote's tribalistic rule." Speaking on behalf of Okello, he later invited civilians to "join us at the city square at any time" to celebrate.

But after looting broke out, a dusk-to-dawn curfew was imposed and nearby Entebbe Airport was closed to both domestic and international flights.

"The situation is far from resolved," said a Western diplomat based in Kampala, speaking on condition he was not identified.

In Washington, White House spokesman Edward Djerejian said all U.S. officials in Kampala were safe and authorities were trying to contact American citizens in Uganda.

There was no announcement on how many American citizens or diplomats were in this East African nation of nearly 14 million people.

"We have not had any contact with the new authorities," Djerejian said. "We are trying to do so."

The rebels broadcast appeals to the top guerrilla leader, former Defense Minister Yoweri Museveni, to join forces with the new leadership.

Museveni, whose National Resistance Army has been battling the army and the Obote government since February 1981, is of the western Banyankole tribe, but draws most of his support from the Baganda tribe, dominant around Kampala.

In a telephone interview with The Associated Press in Stockholm, Sweden, late Saturday, Museveni said he is ready to discuss the future of Uganda with the victorious rebels in Kampala, and that his National Resistance Army will not fight the new leaders.

He said of them, "These are people I know very well. We fought together against Amin. I know their opinions."

PARIS — An increasing number of Americans with AIDS are seeking treatment in France, but a French specialist in the usually fatal disease warns that Paris is no mecca for cures, and that treatment in a strange environment could prove traumatic.

Dr. Willy Rozenbaum, in an interview with The Associated Press, said Americans suffering from AIDS are discouraged from seeking treatment in Paris that in some instances is available in the United States.

Equality for all women

NAIROBI, Kenya — For Western women, it's equal pay for equal work or a salary for domestic chores. In the Third World, it's clean water and, at least in one country, the right to vote.

For the women of the world, 14,000 of whom met in Nairobi to assess the progress of sexual equality over the past 10 years, liberation meant different things.

The diversity was expressed over the past couple weeks at a sometimes raucous, sometimes bureaucratic gathering called the W.N. Decade for Women Conference, and an overlapping non-governmental forum.

Moslems discuss security

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Moslem leaders met today to discuss how to improve security in predominantly Moslem west Beirut and to set the stage for Moslem-Christian dialogue to end Lebanon's decade-long civil war.

Nabih Berri, leader of the Shiite Moslem Amal militia, met with Walid Jumblatt, head of the Druse Progressive Socialist Party, at Jumblatt's ancestral castle in Moukhtara southeast of Beirut, state and privately owned radio stations said.

The meeting was expected to continue through the weekend.

State radio and local newspapers said the two men would discuss security in west Beirut and a Moslem-Christian dialogue. The Druse are members of a secret sect whose creed is basically Islamic.

Terrorists kill policeman

ANANDPUR SAHIB, India — A police officer was killed in Punjab today, a day after India's main Sikh political party ratified an agreement with the government to end three years of strife that left thousands dead in the northern state.

Police said Sadhu Singh, a district station chief, was shot to death by three unidentified terrorists near a university in Amritsar city. They said a manhunt had been launched for the killers of the policeman, a Sikh.

Officials said they did not know if the slaying was carried out by Sikh militants who rejected the accord signed Friday and who had vowed to continue fighting the government.

Lavish gifts fail to sway Saturn

Golfer Arnie Palmer went on Detroit radio asking GM to locate its Saturn auto plant in his home town of Westmoreland County, Pa.

Ohio's economically depressed Mahoning Valley sent its children to make a pitch for the plant.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson couldn't make up his mind who he wanted to help. He started out supporting Youngstown, Ohio, as a site and then switched to Chicago.

"Both communities are desperate and needy areas," he explained.

In the end, the lucrative offers of tax breaks, free land and money went begging. General Motors, it seems certain, will put its new automobile plant in tiny Spring Hill, Tenn., thus putting to rest eight months of one-upmanship in a 36-state scramble of which Texas and Big Spring were a part.

Although more may be known about the decision in coming days, the only "concession" made public thus far is Tennessee's guarantee it will build a road linking Interstate 65 with the 2,400 acres in Spring Hill — population 1,100 — that have been optioned for the plant.

Tennessee made its initial bid for the 6,000-worker plant in February. The state's main selling point is location — within 500 miles of 76 percent of the U.S. markets — plus state training for workers. At the time he said no tax concessions or other incentives were offered.

In contrast, Minnesota reportedly offered a package of incentives worth $1.3 billion.

The lesson from Saturn is two-fold. First, the size of the city apparently was not a concern of GM. Second, the lavish gifts held little sway. Had Big Spring's environment and location been right for the new plant, we could have been a contender.

Art Buchwald Airlines aren't in it for the money

I see where several airline companies are being taken over. Frankly, I don't know why anyone would want to buy an airline nowadays. The way they're all handing out free tickets I predict in two years everyone will be flying for nothing anyway.

What happened was that some sales promotion genius thought up the idea of awarding frequent flyer mileage credits equal to the number of miles the passenger flew. These credits, when built up, could then be exchanged either for free flights or upgrades to a better class of travel. For example, if you earn a credit of 60,000 miles you can fly coach to any destination in the United States; for 100,000 miles you can fly first class. And for 150,000 miles, you get to take your entire family, plus the dog, anywhere in the world.

If the airlines had just stuck to the original idea it would have made some sense. But they started giving out "bonus" miles, not just for flying, but for renting a car, staying in a hotel or eating a certain kind of pizza 30 days in a row.

I hadn't realized how easy it was to build up bonus mileage until I went into an airline office on Fifth Avenue last week.

I told the lady behind the counter, "I'd like to ask about a trip to Paris."

The lady handed me a coupon.

"What's this?" I asked.

"You're entitled to 5,000 bonus miles for coming in and inquiring about our flight to Paris."

"That's wonderful," I declared.

Then she gave me another coupon for 5,000 bonus miles.

"This is for wearing a tie. Are you an American?" she asked.

"Of course I am," I said hotly.

"Then I can credit you with 10,000 more bonus miles. Do you have a hotel room in Paris?"

"Yes, here is my confirmation."

"People with confirmed Paris hotel rooms are entitled to 7,500 miles."

"Listen, can we forget all this mileage stuff? I want to buy a ticket."

"Are you going to pay by check or credit card?"

"What's the difference?"

"If you pay by check you will receive 10,000 extra miles, while a credit card only entitles you to 9,000."

"Okay, I'll pay by check. Are there any seats available?"

"Smoking or nonsmoking?"

"Nonsmoking."

"She gave me a bonus coupon for 13,500 miles."

I was getting embarrassed. "I don't want to look a gift horse in the mouth, but I haven't even taken off yet and you're crediting me with thousands of flying miles. I feel like a fraud."

"It's not out of my pocket," she said. "I'm just following instructions. The airline business is very competitive, and if we didn't issue extra bonus miles you would buy your flight from one of our competitors."

"Well, as long as you put it that way I guess I'll accept. I'll be returning on August 6."

Damned if she didn't give me another coupon.

Fifteen minutes later she handed me my ticket.

I got out my checkbook. "How much do I owe you?"

She hit the keys on her computer several times and then said, "There's no charge. You have enough credited miles now to entitle you to a free round-trip ticket to Paris."

I took the ticket and shoved it in my pocket. "Can I ask you one question? How's business?"

"Wonderful," she said. "Before our frequent flyer bonus program we were carrying less than 25 percent passenger loads. Now that we're offering free flights you can't get a seat on our planes."

All's fair in football

No-pass, no-play may work out okay after all. That is, if you have confidence in your school system. Think about it. Brawn won't matter if the brains aren't there. If Big Spring can produce the smarter football player, we may do all right in one of the state's toughest districts.

This is probably our last year in the top size class in University Interscholastic League-sanctioned sports. It's an awesome district: Odessa's Permian, 15-0-1 last year and a piece of the state title; Midland Lee; San Angelo Central; Abilene High School; Abilene's Cooper High School; Odessa and Midland.

Big Spring rode a downward spiral in population a few years ago, but hasn't been able to benefit from its smaller size by dropping into the smaller 4-A district. At least not yet. We were a few students above the cutoff at the last shuffling, and reshuffling only takes place every two years.

This should be our last year for 5-A football. But then again, maybe not. Ground rules have been changed. Now, the cutoff is based on a simpler criterion. The largest 250 schools will stay in 5-A. If Big Spring's school population happens to rank within that 250, we stay in the biggest league. We'll probably drop into 4-A, but that's not the sure thing it once was.

How smart are our students? Ultimately, that may be the deciding factor on the field.

Under no-pass/no-play, students who fail a course are sidelined for at least six weeks. That means football squads will be affected about halfway into the season.

Of course, I hope no one gets the boot because of no-pass, no-play. But if it should happen that a few are ineligible to compete the second six weeks, then we should concentrate on outsmarting the rest of the district.

Understand that this is a district that — except for us — culls its squads from population bases of between 80,000 and 100,000. This is a district that contains perennially powerful Odessa Permian. This is a district that made life, as Texas Football described it, "none too pleasant" for Big Spring last year.

This is a district in which Big Spring finished 2-8 in 1984 and went winless in district play.

It's a new ballgame this time, though. What if key players in other schools should flub English or algebra? And what if Big Spring's players should pass?

A distinct new element is being introduced into schoolboy football. Gridiron prowess must be matched by classroom ability.

What a difference it can make. It's an unexpected reward for educational integrity.

It won't help to know how to diagram a play if you don't also know how to diagram a sentence.

Whoa, is this fair? You bet it is.

It's as fair as the arbitrary selection process that put us in the stadium with Mojo to begin with. Indeed, there's some poetic justice here.

Brains over brawn. The great equalizer. It should be an interesting season.

Insight

Texas will wear no flowers in its hair

By JIM DAVIS

AUSTIN — It's amazing how something that seems totally innocuous can suddenly create a controversy.

As a news reporter, I've seen it happen numerous times. A story about the local city council holding illegal meetings draws no attention, for example. The mention that some road will be upgraded brings a flood of protests from residents who fear the improvements will attract more traffic.

We've all seen similar things in everyday life. You rake some leaves that have blown into a neighbor's yard from your tree because it seems like a nice thing to do. The neighbor angrily asks if you thought his lawn looked so trashy that he needed help keeping it raked.

No, there's just no way of knowing what is going to cause a controversy. Ask the Texas highway commissioners, for example.

The commission voted in April to put the slogan "Wildflower State" on all Texas license plates. Only three times previously have any words beside "Texas" been put on the plates.

The highway commission is an important outfit in this state. The three members supervise a huge bureaucracy called the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation, and they decide where state highway money will be spent. Their decisions can make or break a community in some cases.

The "Wildflower State" decision was one of the commissioners' lesser ones, probably given without much deliberation. It was one of those "it-seemed-like-a-good-idea-at-the-time" situations.

There's just no way of knowing what is going to cause a controversy.

To the commissioners' shock and amazement, the proposed slogan created their biggest controversy of 1985.

A petition signed by 58 legislators urged the commission to dump the idea. The wildflower slogan simply wouldn't project the proper Texas image, the petition said.

The signers represent less than a third of the 181 Texas legislators, but that number can stir up a lot of trouble for any agency they decide to gang up on.

The commissioners couldn't help noticing, also, that one of the signers was Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, who is chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. In the area of state government, Rudd is an 800-pound gorilla that no one wants to anger.

"Our macho Legislature doesn't seem to understand what we're trying to do," Commissioner John Butler Jr. of Houston told a reporter for the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

He was wrong. The lawmakers understood exactly what the commission was trying to do.

They just didn't like it.

"I just don't want to be called 'The Wildflower State' or 'The Gay Rights State' or anything else," Rudd told the reporter in an interview. "To me, Texas has always stood for the Lone Star, the Republic, standing alone."

Rudd has a long memory. Undoubtedly, he remembers that the hippies of the '60s wore flowers in their hair. And, of course, they never worked and didn't have money to buy those flowers, so they must have picked wildflowers for decoration.

Unwittingly, the three highway commissioners, all good conservatives, three-piece suit types, had fallen into league with weirdos. But they were saved in time by Rudd and crew.

Last week, the commission voted to rescind the April decision and to decide later whether to have anything besides "Texas" stamped on the state's license plates.

My advice would be to forget the whole thing. There's hardly anything that could be suggested that wouldn't offend a few legislators.

Strangely, no one protested the current use of "Sesquicentennial" on license plates through 1986. It's a perfectly good word that I've come to the conclusion that something with a little more sparkle might have been picked to denote the 150 years since Texas' independence from Mexico.

Hardly anyone can pronounce Sesquicentennial, or spell it, and it's likely that a lot of people don't know what it means. Maybe that's why it's so widely accepted.

Working woman not a 'low life'

To the editor:

RE: Chief of Police Rick Turner and city council members' comments at the city council meeting Tuesday night.

I am one of those that you "more or less" referred to as a low life just because I work in an establishment that has a dance floor and serves alcoholic beverages.

I would like to inform you that I am human same as you and everyone else in this community. I have a family that I work hard for to support.

I may not be the Chief of Police, I am not a doctor, or lawyer, I don't even work in a bank, I am just a common citizen trying to make a living same as everyone else. But it seems as though because I make my living serving alcoholic beverage to the citizens of this community I am classified as a "more or less" low life.

I just have one question: If I am considered a low life of this community then what are the so-called prominent citizens of Big Spring considered that I serve these drinks to???

All of a sudden because of my job you all want a mug shot of me posted at my place of employment. Why? You know who I am and my customers know who I am. And if you don't or can't remember just look around when you enter my place of employment 'cause I am the one who's carrying the tray full of drinks to your friends.

I am not a criminal and I am not on the 10 most wanted list. I am just plain ol' Lynn.

Oh, yes, what about the people who I serve these alcoholic beverages to? Are you going to require that they have their mug shots taken?

You have chosen mine and my fellow workers profession to discriminate against and this is unfair to all of us. You really ought to be thankful we're not all out robbing banks, then you'd have a justified reason to require our mug shots, but as it is we're just the common citizens of this community trying to make a decent living for our families.

Texas gubernatorial contenders address state county chairmen

AUSTIN (AP) — Probable GOP gubernatorial contenders Kent Hance and Tom Loeffler on Saturday began the delicate political task of running against Bill Clements, an ex-governor who both said did a good job.

"He was a good governor," Hance said before a speech to Republican county chairmen.

"I believe Bill Clements did a fine job. He was the best administrator as a governor of Texas that the state has ever had," Loeffler said after his speech to the same group.

Clements, defeated by Democrat Mark White in 1982, jumped back into the political spotlight Friday by announcing he wants his old job back. Hance, a former Democratic congressman, and Loeffler, a Hunt congressman, have been campaigning for weeks — though neither has formally announced his candidacy.

Hance and Loeffler said the Clements' decision won't influence their's.

"The more the merrier," said

Hance.

The Hance approach to the Clements' candidacy will be to say nice things about Clements, but try to persuade Republicans that he can do something that Clements couldn't — beat White.

"I think the people are looking for something new, a new face, new leadership," he said. "One of the things we have to look at is who can win."

"We can be the one that beats Mark White," said Hance.

Another good reason not to say bad things about Clements is because those instructions have come down from on high, he added.

"Ronald Reagan pretty well laid down the 11th commandment, you don't criticize other Republicans in the primary. (State GOP Chairman) George Strake has explained that to me and the other candidates. We understand it. We're all on board," said Hance.

In his Saturday speech he said, "We don't have to talk about each other. We're all good guys. We can talk about the one bad guy that's on the other side."

Former Texas governor Bill Clements of Dallas, left, shakes hands with Tom Loeffler, right, as Kent Hance of Lubbock, center, watches as the three Republican candidates for governor met informally at a party meeting in Austin Friday night.

Bonilla seeks post with top Hispanic group

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Corpus Christi attorney Ruben Bonilla, once president of the nation's largest Hispanic organization, said Friday he wants to head Texas' second-largest group of Mexican-Americans.

Bonilla, at a Capitol news conference, said he will run for the state chairmanship of the Mexican American Democrats (MAD) organization at its annual meeting Aug. 23-24 in Galveston.

Bonilla was joined at the news conference by House Speaker Pro Tem Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, who later said he has dropped all plans to give up his seat in the Texas House next year to run for the Texas Railroad Commission.

"I think we may be a little too early to spring a candidacy for one of the top positions in the state," Berlanga said. "A lot will depend in two and four years from now on how successful MAD is going to be."

The Mexican American Democrats organization boasts 12,000 members in Texas, making it second in size to the Texas chapter of the League of United Latin American Citizens. Bonilla was national president of LULAC between 1979 and 1981. The MAD group currently is run by Juan Maldonado of San Juan, who has given no indication he will seek re-election.

Joining Bonilla and Berlanga at the announcement event were state Rep. Eddie Cavazos, D-Corpus Christi, vice chairman of the Mexican-American Legislative Caucus, and former Corpus Christi state Rep. Arnold Gonzales.

Bonilla said that if he is elected to the post he will focus on voter registration and voter education projects to boost Hispanic voter registration figures in Texas from 13 percent to 14.5 percent of the total registered voters.

Also, Bonilla said, he will work to abolish the perception among Texas voters that Hispanics are a political constituency interested only in welfare programs.

"The agenda for Mexican-Americans is the common agenda for all Texans," Bonilla said. "We value a good education, a sound tax base, a vibrant economy and full employment."

PAUL KIRK addresses Texas Demos.

Kirk: Demos must evolve into Main Street

AUSTIN (AP) — While Democrats must evolve into a "modern, moderate, Main Street" party to win the South and West, they won't become GOP clones, the Democratic national chairman says.

"The last thing the country needs is two Republican parties," said Paul Kirk, head of the Democratic National Committee.

Noting that Democratic candidates have lost four of the last five presidential elections, Kirk said Friday the party must emphasize the role special interest groups have played.

"To demand 100 percent of a particular agenda and lose in an election doesn't do anybody any good. To succeed, we have to talk to the concerns that are common to all Americans," he said.

But if the party heeds those concerns — jobs, a healthy economy, education, a strong national defense — then voters will respond favorably, he said.

"I believe that we can't afford to take for granted or write off the South or the West, where the economics and demographics have grown most rapidly. If we're going to be a national party, we have to be attuned to that."

"I think the regional allegiance will come if we're speaking to a national audience with a national message," Kirk told a small group of reporters before speaking to the Texas AFL-CIO's state convention.

Kirk, 47, was elected Democratic chairman after the Republicans' 1984 election landslide.

Since taking over, he has sought a more moderate image for the party, downplaying the influence of various caucuses and special interests.

While saying the party won't back away from its long-time allies, such as organized labor, Kirk said he reminds those groups that before they can advance their specific causes, the party must win general elections.

"I don't want to leave the indication that we're turning our backs on those groups or constituencies that have supported our party," he said.

"What I have done and will continue to do is ask a lot of those groups to take a step back, or lower their own agendas slightly, so the party's agenda can succeed."

INCLUDE A FIREPLACE

Are you adding space to an existing room or revamping one that does not have a fireplace? If so, it is a good idea to include one. It creates an excellent focal point for furniture arrangement and adds emotional warmth and cheeriness to the room. It's affordable, an elaborate fireplace built of brick or stone construction is one solution. A simpler, more economical solution is to use a prefabricated firebox. It combines the burning area and facing in a metal unit that can be built into a stud wall faced with gypsum board, wood paneling or brick veneer. A hearth in some masonry material will have to be added to the depth required by local codes. It usually is at least eighteen inches.

If you're considering adding a new fireplace, why not let BOB'S CUSTOM WOODWORK create a beautiful wood mantelpiece? We do all kinds of custom millwork, and we have a wonderful selection of first grade lumber including mahogany, oak, ash, birch and maple in stock. We also design and build all types of room additions, decks and sunporches, kitchens and baths. Come to Bldg. 613, Industrial Park, or call 267-5811. Open M-F, 8-12, 1-5 or by appt.

NASA plans Florida move

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced it will shift some space shuttle operations from Houston to Florida over the next three years.

However, the move will not affect any employees or the shuttle flight control, said NASA spokesman Dave Alter.

"I know of no plan to move or in any way dissolve or do anything to the mission control project here," Alter said.

The space agency also announced the appointment of Arnold D. Aldrich, 49, to succeed Glynn S. Lunney, who retired in April as manager of the national space transportation system. The appointment becomes effective Aug. 12.

Aldrich, a 26-year NASA employee, will retain his current duties as director of the shuttle projects office as well as take charge of the integration of all aspects of the shuttle program, NASA said Friday.

Grandmother selling dope

HOUSTON (AP) — A 75-year-old great-grandmother nicknamed "Mama Soul" was released from jail Saturday, accused for the second time in three months of selling pills to undercover narcotics officers, authorities said.

Sally Evans, who claims she has 22 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren, was arrested Friday on charges of illegal possession and sale of controlled substances. She was freed on $20,000 bond.

Harris County Sheriff's Sgt. Bill Kessler said officers went to Ms. Evans' home in north Houston after a neighbor complained of being "tired of her dealing drugs in the neighborhood."

An undercover officer went to her home on Wednesday and purchased five diazepam pills, Kessler said. She was selling the tranquilizers for $1.30 each.

Q.: Can you give us an idea of who pays what at closing a house?
A.: Yes, but it will be general since closing costs vary depending upon the agreement, type of sale, location, etc. A buyer usually pays his attorney's fees and, sometimes, a fee to the bank's lawyer if taking out a bank mortgage. There may be an appraisal fee for determining the house's market value, as required by the lender. Sometimes, the seller pays this, along with a survey. The buyer usually pays for the title search to insure against liens on the property, along with title insurance, if required. The buyer is responsible for mortgage/transfer taxes, escrow accounts and payments to the seller. With title search and insurance, it may help to shop price. Your real estate agent should be able to give you a good idea of the closing costs.

State AG candidates strut their stuff

AUSTIN (AP) — Two Republican candidates for attorney general paraded their law-and-order records in front of GOP county chairmen Saturday, but Democratic Attorney General Jim Mattox says crime-fighting is only about 2 percent of the job.

"Jim Mattox is a disgrace to law enforcement," said Ed Walsh, a former Democrat and Williamson County district attorney who is now seeking the GOP nomination for attorney general.

"The people deserve an attorney general they can be proud of," said state Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown, R-Lake Jackson.

Brown and Walsh have spent much of their campaign time talking about getting tougher on criminals and doing more for crime victims.

Mattox, after a Saturday news conference to publicize the state's new crime victims' bill of rights, said Walsh and Brown seem to know little about what the attorney general does.

"It's disappointing that people like Buster Brown and Ed Walsh attempt to play on the ignorance of the public. It's probably because they don't know anything about the office," said Mattox, who faces re-election next year.

Talk about crime-fighting is not particularly pertinent in an attorney general's race, according to the incumbent.

Midland team wins UGSA national title

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Writer

The Midland Blue Division III All-Stars got good pitching performances from Brenda Lenahan and Leah Burnett, took advantage of 15 Abilene North walks, to win the United States Girls Softball National Championship 9-5.

Lenahan and Burnett combined for a seven-hitter and in contrast with their opponent, walked only six. Lenahan got the win as she went the first three innings. She allowed two hits and no runs during the stint.

Meanwhile Abilene North pitchers Debra Blackwell and Didi Doss had their problems, indicated by their 15 free passes. Twelve of the walks were issued in the first three innings. After that Blackwell, who got the loss, and Doss pitched consistently.

Midland scratched for three runs in the first inning. Leadoff off batter Lenahan singled and was followed by a bunt single by Burnett. Both runners advanced on a passed ball.

Lenahan scored on a sacrifice fly by Carole Campbell as Burnett moved to third. Next Jill Beard walked and was thrown out trying to steal second by catcher Julie Rodriguez. But Burnett scored on the play.

The final Midland run in the inning came when Heather Martin singled in Jeannie Fort, who was earlier hit by a pitch.

Abilene came back with two runs of its own in their first at-bat. Leadoff hitter Blackwell reached base on an error. Two batters and two outs later, Blackwell trotted home when first baseman Susan Morgan blasted Lenahan over the center field fence.

The hit was Morgan's second of the tournament. She had a good championship game, getting two hits in three official trips to the plate. She scored twice and drove in three runs.

Midland countered with two more runs in the second inning; without getting a single hit. What hurt Abilene was the five walks. What hurt Midland is that two batters were hit by pitches. Keely Adams and Lenahan scored on bases loaded walks, giving Midland a 5-2 lead.

A double play. By second baseman Rachael Mendoza, on a line drive, is what bailed Abilene out in a bases loaded situation.

Walks again plagued Abilene in Midland's half of the third. It was almost an exact replica of the second inning. Midland scored two runs on no hits, only this time six walks were issued.

Abilene escaped another bases loaded jam when reliever Doss got Beard to ground out for the third out. But the Midland lead had grown to 7-2.

Midland pushed across another run in the fourth. Fort walked and Martin reached on a fielding error. Next Gina Navarette got a bunt single and Fort scored on a throwing error to third base, padding the lead to 8-2.

Abilene was down, but not out; and showed so by rallying for three runs in the bottom of the fourth.

Michelle Valdez led off the inning by getting hit with a pitch. After Blackwell fanned, Cissy Rodriguez walked. Burnett then got Doss to fly out for the second out.

Morgan followed with a single, scoring Valdez with the third Abilene run. Shortstop Jody Anderson then dropped a shallow fly between the infielders and outfielders, resulting in a double. The hit scored Cissy Rodriguez and Morgan, cutting the Midland lead to 8-5.

Anderson was perfect at the plate in four trips. She had three base hits to go along with her double.

Midland added an insurance run in the seventh. Lenahan got her second single of the day and came around to score on Campbell's base hit.

DENISON 8, MT. PLEASANT 3
Denison got a five-hitter from Julie Ann Brown, and went on to down Mt. Pleasant 5-3 in the Division II championship.

Mt. Pleasant led 2-1 after the first inning. Jerilyn Russell's single and Jill Milner's double, were the big blows in the inning.

Denison came back and took a slim 4-3 lead going into the fifth inning. The team from East Texas put the game away in the fifth, sending

Showdown at Jack Barber Field

The members of the Big Spring Oilers, tied for first in the Western Division of the Texas-New Mexico Semi-Pro League, surround two members of the Big Spring Cardinals. The Cardinals are outright winners of the Eastern Division. The two teams meet today at 1:30 at Jack Barber Field for a season-ending doubleheader. Oilers players are left to right; David Barbee, Adam Rodriguez, Randy Clanton, Ricky Meyers and Tommy Rodriguez. Cardinals players are Robert Rubio and Ysa Rubio.

Two make move in Hartford Open

CROMWELL, Conn. (AP) — Wayne Grady and John Cook on Saturday joined three other PGA journeymen trying to catch veteran Ray Floyd for the lead of the $600,000 Canon-Sammy Davis Jr. Greater Hartford Open Golf Tournament.

Tourney leader Ray Floyd finished his rain-delayed second-round at 10-under-par for the tournament Friday before play was suspended. He was a stroke ahead of Steve Pate, and two strokes ahead of David Lundstrom and Jodie Mudd, who had also completed the second round on Friday.

Grady and Cook still were in the 6,800-yard, par-71 Tournament Players Club of Connecticut course when play was stopped Friday. But they quickly joined Lundstrom and Mudd at 7-under-par when the second round resumed Saturday.

Grady, starting up again on the sixth hole, gained six strokes and finished the second round with a 65, and Cook, resuming on the ninth hole, picked up two strokes with a 69.

"I just kept grinding and grinding away and then today I started hitting the ball as well as I have all year," Grady said. "It's a nice feeling."

"I think that we had the best of everything today. It was perfect golf conditions out there and that made it a lot easier."

Floyd completed his round Friday, shooting a 68 to set the tournament pace at 10-under-par 132. His round had just begun when rain interrupted play, and he didn't finish until more than nine hours later.

Pate stood alone in second place after shooting a 65 in the second round to move to 9-under-par 133.

A hole-in-one on the par-3, 172-yard 16th hole helped Lundstrom tie the course-record 63, set by Peter Jacobsen in the 1984 GHO.

Friday's rain storm stopped play for five hours, 10 minutes and threw the entire tournament schedule askew.

Because a PGA regulation does not allow golfers to play more than 27 holes on the day of a 36-hole cut, only the completion of the second round could be played Saturday.

The remaining golfers will play a 36-hole final on Sunday.

"I kind of like the idea of playing 36 holes instead of 18," Cook said. "I feel I'm in pretty good shape and my legs won't turn to jelly." Among the players who didn't make the 36-hole cut were Andy Bean, Lee Trevino, Craig Stadler and Ben Crenshaw.

Carper rides well in AJRA

Big Spring's Jody Carper came away with the top local performance Friday night at the American Junior Rodeo Association being held at the Big Spring Rodeo Bowl.

The 12-year-old Carper, competing in the 12-and-under breakaway division, had a time of 3.5. This nosed out the performance of Trent walls of Stephenville, who was timed in 3.7. The previous best time was 3.8 by Tony Farmer of Big Lake. Farmer recorded his time in opening night Wednesday.

Jacky Crenshaw was another local that turned in a good time Friday. Competing in the eight-and-under goat hair pulling, Crenshaw reeled off a time of 12.0, the second best performance in the rodeo. Sunny Cowden of Crane has the best time of 11.8. She recorded the time in Thursday night's performance.

In the boys 12-and-under ribbon roping, Lex Christie and Dane Driver turned in the one and two top times of the night. Christie was timed in 17.2 while Driver was timed in 20.9.

Another area performer to do well in Friday night's performance was Kelly Jo Ogden of Gail. Ogden had the best time of the night in the 12-and-under barrel race. Her time of 17.09 nosed out heavy Jones of Eunice, New Mexico (17.09) and Jamie Bean of Esperanza (18.32).

Other top performances were recorded by Richard Wade of Claymore in the 12-and under steer riding.

Dorsett still not in camp

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Financially troubled Tony Dorsett had until 7:30 p.m. Saturday to report to the Dallas Cowboys' training camp or face $1,000 per day fines.

At mid-day Saturday Coach Tom Landry said, "There's no news on Dorsett. Is that good or bad?"

Club President Tex Schramm said there had been no word from Dorsett or his agent Howard Slusher since Thursday night.

On Thursday night, Dorsett was granted a 48-hour extension so he could travel to Dallas to work out some of his problems with the Internal Revenue Service.

Dorsett, who had used Mike Trope and Whit Stewart as agents, was taking the advice of Slusher, who is also Randy White's agent.

Slusher convinced White to hold out all of training camp last year and Cowboys officials are privately worried Dorsett might do the same until his financial woes are worked out.

Dorsett would like a renegotiation of his renegotiated contract but likely is only to get a loan from the Cowboys.

"It's a sad situation," said Schramm. "I just wish Tony had come to us earlier with his problems."

"However, he is still under contract and needs to abide by terms of the contract."

Dorsett is in the fourth year of a seven-year deal that brings him some $400,000 a year.

However, the IRS has been attaching his paychecks since last October for past debts.

Dorsett at one time had a 15-year deferred contract at $100,000 but decided he wanted the money up front.

Diver first double gold medal winner

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — World champion Michele Mitchell became the first double gold medalist at the sixth — and last under the current title — National Sports Festival as she shattered the competition Saturday in her specialty, 10-meter platform diving.

Jackie Joyner, the Olympic silver medalist in the women's heptathlon, set a collegiate record in the 100-meter high hurdles at Southern University's track. Joyner, 23, was timed in 13.32 seconds in the opening event of the seven-event, two-day competition, despite running into a wind of 2.28 meters per second and on a track saturated by rain.

Officials previously announced that Joyner had set an American record of 13.13 seconds but then reversed themselves, saying they had misread the time and photo of the finish.

Mitchell, 23, of El Toro, Calif., reasserted her mastery on the platform, collecting 448.59 points. She clinched the win with a near-perfect 1½ somersault with 3½ twists on the seventh of eight rounds, earning 85.44 points.

On Thursday, the Olympic silver medalist in platform easily won the 3-meter springboard event.

Second place went to Karen LaFace of Pittsburgh, and Leigh Anne Grabovez of Mishawaka, Ind., was third.

"I was really pleased because the competition was really good. I've been saying all year that Karen was one of my main contenders," said Mitchell.

Earlier Saturday, U.S. Olympic Committee President Robert Helmick announced that, beginning next year in Houston, the NSF would be retitled the U.S. Olympic Festival, which will identify it more closely with the country's Olympic movement. Helmick said that in picking the new name, selectors were told to keep a name reminiscent of the current festival while tying the event to the U.S. Olympic movement and identifying the national scope of the competition.

A heavy thunderstorm late in the afternoon delayed action in track and field. In the morning, national champions Tim Lewis and Maryanne Torrellas breezed to victories in race walking events that opened the track and field program.

The men's event, won by Lewis in 1 hour, 5 minutes, 45 seconds, had been shortened from 20 kilometers (12.4 miles) to 15 kilometers (9.3 miles) to combat the high temperature and humidity that generally pervades Baton Rouge later in the day.

The women's event, won by Torrellas in 49:13, originally was scheduled for 10 kilometers (6.2 miles) and kept at that distance.

Prior to Mitchell's performance, Matt Scoggin, the bronze medalist on the 3-meter springboard here, led the qualifiers from the 10-meter platform in men's diving. Scoggin, of Austin, Texas, had 592.35 points. Greg Louganis, the world champion and double gold medalist at the Los Angeles Olympics, was third, more than 34 points behind. Louganis won the springboard competition Thursday night.

The men's platform finals are set for Sunday.

Hall Worthington of Santa Cruz, Calif., won the 120-kilometer road race, handling the 5.23-mile course through the streets of Baton Rouge in 3 hours, 7 minutes, 20 seconds at an average speed of 25.5 miles per hour.

Debi Thomas, the runner-up at the national championships, took the lead after the short program in women's figure skating. Thomas,

HALL WORTHINGTON of Santa Cruz, Calif., a member of the West team, reacts after winning the 20-kilometer road race at the National Sports Festival.

18, of San Jose, Calif., has 77.90 points, 1.40 better than Tonya Harding of Portland, Ore. Caryn Kadavy of Erie, Pa., the leader after the compulsories, slipped to fourth.

Thomas praised the crowd at the Centroplex. "I've never gotten that much applause from a crowd for the program before," she said.

"They're an amazing audience. I was pumped up higher than I've ever been."

In men's skating, Brian Boitano, the national champion, grabbed a massive lead with 81.10 points in the short program.

The free skating program, which counts for 50 percent of the total score, will be held Sunday.

Padres snap six-game skid against Cardinals

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Steve Garvey tripled home a sixth-inning run, then scored on Graig Nettles' single and Andy Hawkins hurled a five-hit shutout Saturday as the San Diego Padres snapped a six-game losing streak with a 2-0 victory over St. Louis, to end the Cardinals' winning streak at six games.

Hawkins never allowed more than one hit in any inning, but retired the side in order in just the fifth and eighth innings. He pitched 8 1-3 innings, walked five and struck out one, allowing just one baserunner as far as third base.

With one out in the sixth, Tony Gwynn reached first when first baseman Jack Clark missed a grounder for an error. With Gwynn running, Garvey stroked an opposite-field drive just inside the right-field foul line, and when the ball rolled through the St. Louis bullpen to the wall, Gwynn scored and Garvey reached third. Nettles then delivered Garvey with a sharp single to right.

in the seventh inning with a two-run homer, lifting the Milwaukee Brewers to a 4-3 victory over the Oakland A's Saturday night, snapping the Brewers' four-game losing streak.

Pete Vuckovich, 5-7, scattered eight hits in eight innings for the victory, walking four and striking out two. Rollie Fingers pitched the ninth for his 11th save despite giving up a run-scoring single to Bruce Bochte.

Orioles 9

White Sox 1

CHICAGO (AP) — Rick Dempsey and Mike Young both homered to power an 18-hit attack Saturday night as the Baltimore Orioles rolled to a 9-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox behind Storm Davis' seven-hit pitching.

Cal Ripken, Alan Wiggins, Lee Lacy and Floyd Rayford each had three hits for the Orioles, who fell one hit short of Baltimore's season high of 19 against Boston on June 28.

Davis, 5-6, picked up his first victory since June 14 after losing four straight decisions. He scattered seven hits, allowed two walks and struck out two as he turned in his sixth complete game.

Gene Nelson, 6-5, was the loser. The Orioles jumped on Nelson for two runs in the first inning on successive doubles by Lee Lacy, Ripken and Eddie Murray. Dempsey hit his sixth homer in the fourth after Floyd Rayford singled.

Cubs 5

Dodgers 4

The Dodgers, who have eight of their last 10 games and 20 of their last 25, maintained a 4½-game lead over the San Diego Padres in the National League West with a 13-hit attack. They won 5-4, despite committing five errors.

Orel Hersheiser, 11-3, scattered four hits before leaving in the eighth inning. He walked one and struck out four. Ken Howell recorded his 11th save by pitching the last two innings.

Trailing 4-3 in the seventh, the Dodgers tied the score with one out on singles by Ken Landreaux and Pedro Guerrero off George Frazier and Brock's single off Ron Meridith. A fielding error by second baseman Ryne Sandberg on Mike Marshall's grounder loaded the bases and Scioscia's single brought home Guerrero with the go-ahead run.

Frazier, 5-4, the third of four Chicago pitchers, was the loser. Marshall hit a two-run homer in the third inning, his 12th of the season and second in as many games, giving the Dodgers a 3-1 lead.

Midland Blue took the championship game and had an easy time advancing to the finals. Midland Blue drummed Odessa Grey 17-0 to gain the final game versus Abilene North.

Odessa Grey advanced to the championship game by winning a extra tournament game against Andrews. Both teams had 2-2 records in regular tournament play. Odessa won the late Friday game 19-11.

Odessa Black continued its dominance over Division IV opponents by blanking Abilene North 6-0.

This time it was a combined two-hit effort between starter Melissa Tucker and Jana Ivy. Tucker went the first five innings.

It was Ivy who got the ball rolling for Odessa in the first inning. Tucker led off the inning by reaching base on an error. Jennifer Reece walked, bringing Ivy to the plate. Ivy promptly slapped the pitch out of the park, for a three-run homer. The blow was her fifth of the tournament. The fourth

NEW YORK (AP) — Ray Knight slammed a three-run homer and Gary Carter had a two-run double to highlight a six-run seventh inning and send the New York Mets to a 16-4 victory over the Houston Astros in the opener of a doubleheader Saturday night.

All 16 New York runs were unearned as the Astros committed five errors en route to their fifth straight loss and 11th defeat in 12 games. The Mets, who followed their six-run seventh with another six runs in the eighth, finished with 15 hits.

Keith Hernandez drove in three runs, including his 15th game-winning RBI, the major-league high. Carter had four hits and three RBIs, while Knight had an RBI double to go with his three-run homer.

Jesse Orosco, 2-4, the third Mets pitcher, was the winner, working the last two innings.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Dane Iorg's RBI double keyed Kansas City's three-run third inning and Bud Black teamed with Dan Quisenberry on a six-hitter that carried the Kansas City Royals to a 6-3 victory over the mistake-prone Cleveland Indians.

Black, 7-11, a loser in seven of his eight previous decisions, gave up all six Cleveland hits in seven innings. Quisenberry pitched two hitless innings for his 22nd save.

The loss went to Cleveland starter Jerry Reed, 0-3, who was unable to hold a 2-0 lead handed him in the first. The first run scored on a groundout by Brook Jacoby and the second on Pat Tabler's RBI single.

The Royals tied the score in the second on Jim Sundberg's RBI single and an error by Tabler at first base on Willie Wilson's grounder.

Twins 11

Tigers 4

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Detroit's relief pitching collapsed in a seven-run sixth inning, allowing four walks, a tie-breaking wild pitch, a two-run single by Kirby Puckett and a two-run homer by Roy Smalley as the Minnesota Twins rallied to defeat the Tigers 11-4 Saturday night.

Detroit starter Randy O'Neal allowed only three hits, but had to leave the game after pulling a left leg muscle in the fifth inning.

Reliever Aurelio Lopez, 1-7, began the sixth with a 4-2 lead, but he walked Tom Brunansky and Dave Engle with one out. Detroit right fielder Kirk Gibson then misjudged Ron Washington's line drive into an RBI double.

One out later, Bill Scherrer relieved Lopez and walked the only two men he faced, pinch-hitter Tim Teufel and Mark Salas, to tie the game.

Ex-champ falls in Volvo tennis

LIVINGSTON, N.J. (AP) — Brian Teacher, just getting back from an ankle injury, stunned defending champion Johan Kriek 7-6 (10-8), 6-1 on Saturday to advance to the finals of the $125,000 Volvo Championships of New Jersey.

Teacher will meet second-seeded Brad Gilbert of Piedmont, Calif., who downed Jim Grabb of Tucson, Ariz. 6-3, 6-2 in the other semifinal. Meanwhile, Rosalyn Fairbank of Durham, South Africa, defeated top-seeded Andrea Jaeger of Largo, Fla., 6-1, 6-1 Saturday to win the $12,000 State of New Jersey Ladies Cup at the Newark Academy.

Teacher, a formerly top-ranked player who has had injury problems during his career, spotted the top-seeded Kriek a 4-0 lead in the first set before rallying to win the set in a tiebreaker.

The lanky, 30-year-old Californian then edged the world's 15th-ranked player in a stirring second-set finale. Teacher rallied from a 0-40 deficit and took Kriek to match point five times before finally pulling out the victory.

Gilbert, ranked 22nd in the world, defeated Paul Annacone of Bridgehampton, N.Y. 6-3, 6-2, earlier in the day to reach the semifinals.

Grabb, an All-American from Stanford University, had upset fourth-seeded John Lloyd and seventh-seeded Robert Green to reach the semifinals.

Fairbank, 24, dominated the women's championship match forcing numerous errors by Jaeger, formerly the number-two ranked woman's player in the world. Miss Jaeger has been recovering from a rotator cuff injury.

Fairbank, who never lost service, broke Jaeger six times and constantly frustrated with a steady baseline game.

The 'Refrigerator' gets cold treatment from Bears

By The Associated Press

Money was the issue Saturday as offensive tackle Marvin Powell of the New York Jets and running backs John Riggins of the Washington Redskins.

The Chicago Bears, meanwhile, broke off negotiations with their first-round draft choice, defensive tackle William Perry from Clemson.

Powell, the most honored but lowest paid of the New York Jets' offensive linemen, has refused to report to training camp until his contract is renegotiated, leaving the club without either of its starting tackles. Also holding out is left tackle Reggie McElroy, whose contract expired.

Powell, named five times to the Pro Bowl at right tackle, wants to renegotiate a five-year contract, signed in 1983, under which he was to make $250,000 this year, $280,000 in 1986 and $300,000 the following season.

Guard Dan Alexander will make $100,000 more this year and Joe Fields, the center, is to get $125,000 more.

"Marvin wants more than we're willing to give him," team President Jim Kensil said, adding that the tackle will be fined $1,000 a day until he reports.

Riggins, Mark Moseley and Dave Butz were among the missing Saturday as the Redskins' veterans assembled at their summer camp.

Redskin owner Jack Kent Cooke, who is handling the negotiations with both Riggins and Butz, had predicted Riggins would be in camp on Saturday. The big fullback, who rushed for over 1,200 yards last year, is reportedly seeking a one-year contract in excess of $1 million.

Butz, who is scheduled to meet with Cooke on Tuesday, has told the Redskins he will be in camp on Monday night.

BILLY SIMS
...coming back from knee surgery

Moseley, the Redskins' placekicker for the past 10 years, remained in Washington on Saturday reviewing the team's latest contract proposal, a three-year deal worth a reported $730,000.

Bob Nelson, a starting linebacker the last three seasons, walked out of the Los Angeles Raiders' training camp in a salary dispute.

The 32-year-old Nelson had reported to camp with the team's veterans Thursday night. He participated in meetings Friday, but was not allowed to practice because he is not under contract.

As for Perry, the Bears aren't counting on playing with him this season, according to General Manager Jerry Vainisi.

Twice within the past week, the Bears appeared to have reached agreement with Perry and his agent, Jim Steiner, but each time Perry came back with a request for more money, Vainisi said.

"We are through negotiating and will play without Mr. Perry," Vainisi said at the team's training camp on the University of Wisconsin-Platteville campus.

"If he misses any more camp, he's not worth anything to us anyway because of his lack of conditioning," Vainisi added.

In another development, quarterback Bobby Hebert is talking with the New Orleans Saints — but Coach Bum Phillips says he thinks Hebert is asking more than he's worth in the National Football League.

"We're talking. That's all I can say about it," Hebert's agent, Greg Campbell of Madison, Wis., said Saturday.

He said Hebert, whose passing and running led two different teams to United States Football League title games and won him the league's first MVP award, is looking for a total of $900,000 to $1 million a year including base salary and bonuses.

"I doubt very seriously we would ever sign anyone to that kind of contract," Phillips said. "... And we probably won't get him because we won't do that."

Richard Todd, the Saints' starting quarterback most of last year, got $605,000 last season and wants more before he returns to camp. He had not reported to camp Saturday, the Saints said. The team confirmed Friday that it has offered him another $60,000 — a 10 percent raise.

The Detroit Lions put running back Billy Sims and two other regulars on the team's active-physically unable list. The move means they can't practice with the team, only work with trainers or on their own.

Sims is recovering from knee surgery, while guard Homer Elias has a pulled stomach muscle and tight end Rob Rubick is recovering from back surgery and knee problems.

Staubach makes smooth change from football to business world

By The Associated Press

DALLAS (AP) — Paintings of family life and a drawing that depicts a lone basketball player reaching for a hoop grace the walls of the executive's contemporary office.

Behind the desk sits an athletic, slightly graying executive sipping ice water. The office and routine could be that of almost any Dallas businessman, but this particular world belongs to Roger Staubach.

At 43, the former Dallas Cowboys great is quarterbacking a growing commercial real estate firm called The Staubach Company, making heads turn in the real estate field as he did on the football field.

Business life seems to pale in light of a spectacular football career. As quarterback for the Cowboys, Staubach became the highest-rated passer in National Football League history and led the Cowboys to two Super Bowls.

Next Saturday, Staubach will be inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame. The honor caps an 11-year career that ended with his retirement in 1979.

Staubach admits that the transition from professional quarterback to local businessman has not always been easy.

"I had withdrawal pains on Sunday afternoons for awhile. It was hard the first couple of years," he said. "I didn't realize I'd miss the competition of the game as much as I did the first couple of years."

"Going from being a football star to a father and businessman was not hard," Staubach said. "But I do miss that competition on the field."

His football career may be over but people will long remember his name — a name that is now opening some doors in business.

Today, Staubach calculates his plays in the commercial real estate world. He is intent on establishing a business that has an honest reputation in the fast-paced world of real estate.

"I've always wanted to control what I've done," he said. "You have to pay a price to make good things happen. It takes a lot of hard work to be successful."

The Staubach Company offers brokerage and leasing services, and it also is involved in development projects and property management. The company employs more than 100 people.

Staubach says he has encountered some skepticism from people who are not quite sure what an ex-athlete is doing in real estate.

"Some people may feel I'm not qualified. Some feel I shouldn't be in their arena," he said. "Some people are aloof, and other are very emotional about seeing you."

But overall, recognition as a football hero "has been a very positive thing."

Staubach was 27 when he started with the Cowboys in 1969. Then, he was married with three children, and he always had his eye on the future.

He and his wife Marianne now have five children, between ages 8 and 19.

"I didn't know how long my career would be," he said.

During off seasons, Staubach sold insurance with the Henry S. Miller Co., and he then got into the real estate side of the business in 1971. He became one of the company's top producers even though he only worked five or six months out of the year.

Staubach and business associate Robert Holloway formed a company in 1977, and the two made a friendly split about 1982.

His decision to retire from football at age 38 came after a season in which he suffered five concussions. The injuries influenced his decision, but he said he was most concerned with being able to decide when he would quit and not being forced out of football.

After his retirement, Staubach worked as a sports commentator and in advertising. Then he settled down in real estate.

Some have said politics may be the next step, but he said he has "no desire" to run for public office right now.

"I really feel like this is my life," he said. "I'm like a sponge trying to soak in all this information. I'm still pretty hungry as far as wanting to learn."

And he feels a little more at ease these days.

"The pressures of business are less than in football where there is the pressure of winning every Sunday afternoon," he said.

Today, his Sunday afternoons are sometimes spent out at Texas Stadium — where he sits in a box leased by his company and watches the team that brought him fame.

"My advice to guys playing right now is that football is your priority, but you still have to prepare yourself for life after football. It's imperative that you do that."

WHY STRUGGLE TO GET TO THE TOP IN SOMEONE ELSE'S BUSINESS WHEN YOU CAN START AT THE TOP IN YOUR OWN?

If you have an investment of $28,500.00, you can have your own highly successful business. FOUR BOOMING INDUSTRIES COMBINED INTO ONE BIG FRANCHISE.

You will have income available from four different sources, not just one. You will manufacture demand items for businesses too numerous to mention.

You will be thoroughly and expertly trained in all phases of operations at our national headquarters. Entrepreneur Magazine rates this business potential in the top 10% of all franchises and leader dominant for the past three years.

Each state will have a limited number of franchises, so be one of the first applicants in your area - act now - an unheard-of opportunity to be in an exclusive business for yourself.

Red Cross steps in when disaster strikes

By CAROL BALDWIN
Lifestyle Editor

Who steps in to aid families when disaster strikes? In many communities and around the world, members of the American Red Cross are often on the scene to render aid to people displaced by disaster.

American Red Cross goes to work in a disaster to "get people back to normal living as fast as possible," said Marianne Brown, executive director of the local chapter.

The Red Cross locally is housed in the Northside Community Center building.

The Howard-Glasscock County chapter receives most of its funding from the United Way, said Bill Crooker, chairperson of the local chapter. However, fundraising events are held throughout the year to offset expenses.

In major disasters where hundreds of people are affected, the national chapter of the American Red Cross, headquartered in Washington, D.C., will step in to assist the local chapter with funding.

Local funding is necessary, though, to keep up with daily operating expenses.

Members of the local chapter of the American Red Cross are hoping a yellow and blue playhouse will help bring in money for the organization.

The playhouse, built by Red Cross vice chairman John Webb with supplies from a number of Big Spring organizations, will be displayed at Mr. G's Garden Center, the Big Spring Mall and the Howard County Fair.

The playhouse is large enough for a small child to play inside and it is trimmed with awnings and shutters and features storm windows and carpet. All materials for the playhouse were donated by city merchants.

Sheree Moates painted flowers around the exterior of the playhouse. Diana Bailey made the curtains for the playhouse with donated materials.

Christy Webb donated a deacon's bench, several dolls and a mirror for the inside of the playhouse. Megan Honea assisted with ideas for the outside design.

The playhouse also features a dutch door and a cut-away window on the front door.

The playhouse is not the first Webb has built. He said he has built others in the past for various fundraising functions and decided to try his hand again at building one for the Red Cross.

Construction on the playhouse took about two weeks, Webb said. Most of the work was done in the evening after work.

MARIANNE BROWN

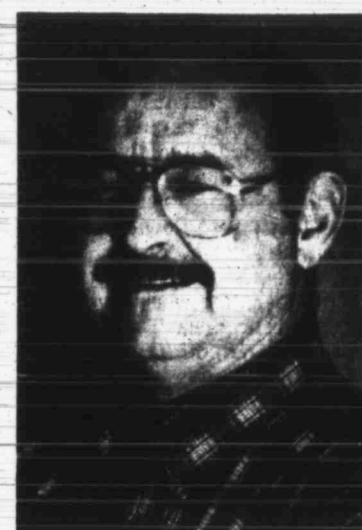

"Laurie was the orchestrator of the playhouse," Webb said of his wife. She contacted various merchants for help with the building materials. Laurie Webb is a board member for the local chapter.

The Red Cross is served by both a local and national funding system, Brown said. Because the organization was mandated by Congress, Congress demands that "two services must be kept up — disaster relief and service to the military and veterans."

When disaster strikes a community, the Red Cross steps in to ease the blow, Brown said. Although most people associate the Red Cross with major disasters like tornadoes and floods, the organization also aids families hard-hit by fires and other mishaps.

In the case of a fire, "we help set the family up in new quarters," Brown said. "We provide emergency food and clothing." The Red Cross also provides money for cleaning and repairs at the home.

BILL CROOKER

Red Cross members and volunteers are given strict guidelines to follow in case of emergency. Brown has written guidelines which outline supplies needed and even suggested menus to prepare in case tragedy strikes the community.

Crooker joined the Red Cross chapter here because, "I feel it fills a real need, a gap, in the community in the event of a disaster."

"Many people don't realize that the Red Cross is a big help," Crooker said. In addition to helping families hard-hit by tragedy, the Red Cross also helps brighten the day for veterans.

"One of our members, Martha Moody, has been a volunteer at the Veteran's Administration Medical Center for years," Crooker said. Moody began volunteering at VAMC shortly after World War II and is at the hospital at least three days a week, delivering birthday presents and visiting with men at the hospital.

A whole community need not be displaced before the Red Cross can move in with assistance, Brown said. Often Red Cross aids families whose homes have been destroyed by fire or other disasters.

Brown stressed that the Red Cross provides "emergency relief Red Cross page 4-C

Couples working harder at making marriage succeed

NEW YORK (AP) — More engaged couples are seeking premarital counseling — not for problems, but to make sure they have covered all the bases in their desire to succeed at marriage, says Dr. Joyce Brothers.

Her travels around the country have convinced her that many people are determined to succeed at marriage, despite the fact that their parents' marriages may have ended in divorce.

They also seek advice from a counselor because parents and family may be far away. For these engaged couples, a counselor serves as a kind of "rent-a-friend," she adds.

The author of "What Every Woman Should Know About Love and Marriage," she advises couples to discuss important issues before they marry, either together with a counselor or by themselves. Subjects she thinks are important to air include attitudes toward having and caring for children, financial goals and aspirations, relations with in-laws and, if appropriate, with former spouses and children.

The psychologist finds the current seriousness about marriage a good thing and advises couples to use their engagement as a time to discuss the future and come to agreement.

"There is a tremendous amount of good will at this time, which helps to resolve problems," she points out. "If a problem is not solvable at this time, then it will never be resolved. Couples should realize that you're not going to redecorate your spouse, so it's better not to try."

One bar to open communication is fear of saying something your future spouse will regard as unforgivable, counselors agree. However, learning to communicate in a non-threatening way can minimize this fear.

Non-threatening communication techniques can be learned, according to Sherod Miller, a Minneapolis psychologist. Miller has developed a book, "Talking Together," and a series of cassette tapes and other materials which are being used by counselors and couples all over the country to help build communications skills.

The book and the four-class group sessions are meant to accomplish several goals.

"They introduce ideas about communications in general; they teach practical principles of listening and speaking to others; and they provide an opportunity for couples to pick an issue and discuss it in the group setting, getting group feedback on their use of communications skills," says Miller.

Another program, known as "Prepare," is also available for couples. "The program is designed to get couples to look in a systematic way at important issues in a marriage," says Dr. David Olson, a clinical psychologist who developed the program at the University of Minnesota, where he is a professor in the Family and Social Science Department.

The 125-item questionnaire identifies strengths and problem areas for couples who fill it out and return it to a counselor (often a clergyman) who has been trained by Olson and his colleagues in administering the test. The counselor returns the questionnaire to Minneapolis for scoring and receives the results. (There is a $15 fee for the test.) The counselor then reviews the results with the couple.

According to Olson, the questionnaire was developed over 10 years as a research tool. He says that while taking the test alone does not improve a couple's chances for a happy marriage, it can identify those who are at risk.

Texas heart surgeon not ready to stop after 60,000 surgeries

HOUSTON (AP) — With a struggling human heart bared in the bright light, Dr. Michael Ellis DeBakey ignores the beeping and humming machines of modern medicine and focuses unwavering attention on the unconscious body before him.

There's a confident economy of motion in his large, lean hands as they stitch in place a new vein that will supply the stricken organ with a fresh blood supply.

In what seems like only moments but really is more than an hour, the delicate procedure — compared to dissecting a wiggling snake on a vibrating table — is completed. And the surgeon moves on.

DeBakey has performed heart surgery more than 60,000 times in the last half century. At 76, an age long past the time most surgeons put down the scalpel, he is not slowing down, and certainly not ready to stop.

"Man was born to work hard," says DeBakey, who routinely jams 15 hours of work and as many as nine operations into each day. "I sometimes joke that if I ever get to heaven I'm going to tell the Lord that I'd like him to give us 36-hour days instead of 24-hour days."

In addition to routine surgery, DeBakey has resumed the ambitious transplant program that he stopped 14 years ago to await development of a drug to combat rejection. He travels about 200,000 miles a year on a personal crusade against heart disease, and has co-authored the best-seller "The Living Heart Diet," aimed at preventing heart attack, which claimed the life of his first wife in 1972.

But the surgical suite is DeBakey's touchstone and a room where he is absolute master. There's no mistaking which gowned figure is DeBakey. His surgical scrubs are powder blue instead of the traditional green, and his initials — MED — are embroidered boldly on the front.

"He's not the kind of person you'd pick out of the room as a dynamic personality," says Larry Mathis, president of the Methodist Hospital in Houston, where DeBakey practices. "He has a great deal of personal power but it's the kind of power that doesn't depend on position but on what he's accomplished."

"Senators enlist his advice. Presidents answer his phone calls. Kings and heads of state seek his opinions on health policies. His name is magic in the state legislature," Mathis says.

DeBakey is a stern taskmaster who sets lofty standards and does not hesitate to tongue-lash those who fail to meet them. He does not tolerate laziness, or carelessness, but his associates say indifference toward his patients is the most unpardonable sin.

"I'm accused of being a perfectionist and, in the way it's usually defined, I guess I am," DeBakey says. "In medicine, and certainly in surgery, you have to be as perfect as possible. There's no room for mistakes. They're all bad, some even fatal. We're not infallible, but you certainly make an effort. And that's what I ask."

Habits of hard work and the restlessness of a powerful mind surfaced early for DeBakey, the oldest of five children of Lebanese immigrants who settled in Lake Charles, La.

"I always knew I wanted to be a doctor. I just didn't know what kind," says DeBakey, his voice still carrying a trace of the sugarcane accent of his youth.

While still a medical student at Tulane, he devised the roller pump that was incorporated into the heart-lung machine, which made open-heart surgery possible.

"His mentors quickly recognized that there was something special about him," recalls his sister, DeBakey page 4-C

Dr. Michael DeBakey sits inside his office and discusses his career. DeBakey says he guesses he is a perfectionist in his work.

Cotton growers: save bucks and beneficiaries.

TEST RESULTS ARE IN:

In an overwhelming majority of tests conducted in the Cotton Belt, in which Dipel biological insecticide was applied before conventional insecticides became necessary, increased yields and greater profits resulted.

In 5 of the Texas tests, fields were sprayed twice and adjacent check fields remained untreated until it became necessary to go to a conventional schedule. Dipel treated fields yielded more cotton and greater profits than the fields that received only conventional treatment.

It makes sense because low cost Dipel gets to early cotton worms without harming helpful beneficials. Thus, applications of harsher chemicals can be delayed and reduced.

Dipel is a natural biological worm killer. One bite of treated foliage and worms stop feeding almost immediately and then die within a few days. Dipel has not shown worm resistance build-up, won't affect boll maturity, and is nonphytotoxic to cotton foliage. It's easy to use. In addition, Dipel has not shown harmful effects on man and his environment.

Dipel 4L and Cotton Seed Oil. The only microbial cotton insecticide that is compatible with cotton seed oil. Mix one pint Dipel 4L to one pint cotton seed oil and apply at one quart per acre total volume of spray.

*Rates, numbers of applications and methods of application varied. A grower's actual results may vary depending on use and conditions.

*One test in Rio Grande Valley and two in the Blacklands used Dipel alone at ½ lb. per acre. In a Rolling Plains test, applications of ½ lb. Dipel and ½ lb. chlordimeform per acre were made while ½ lb. of Dipel combined with ½ lb. chlordimeform per acre was applied in the Trans Pecos test. Aerial application was used for all tests except in the Rio Grande Valley.

Adamson-Darden

Teresa Adamson and Carey Darden exchanged wedding vows Friday evening in the home of the bride at 1907 N. Monticello.

The Rev. Guy White, pastor of the East Fourth Street Baptist Church, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F.D. Adamson of 1807 S. Monticello. The bridegroom is the son of Aubrey Darden of 3101 Nava-jo and Ginger Davis of Blanket.

The couple was wed before an arch of greenery accented with pink carnations, pink gerbers and baby's breath. Two arrangements centered on birds' baths decorated with pink carnations and gerbers completed the decorations.

Vanessa Burchett was pianist and vocalist. Nancy Hughes was also vocalist.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a gown of white polyester lined with taffeta. The fitted bodice had a stand up lace collar on a sheer yoke. The gown was encrusted with simulated pearls and sequins. The lace-flounced hemline extended to form a chapel-length train. The bride also wore a hat decorated with pink carnations and grey gladiolas.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of pink roses, gerbers and pink mum carnations.

Vonda Adamson, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. Flower girl was Ashlee Smith. Darren Wright was ring bearer.

Steve Laughlin of Brownwood was best man. Ushers were Darryl Adamson and Richie Adamson, brothers of the bride.

A reception followed the ceremony. The three-tiered cake was covered with pink hearts and doves and accented with pink mini carnations. It was topped with a miniature ceramic boy and girl figurine.

The bride graduated from Big Spring High School. She is employed by Faye's Flowers.

The bridegroom attended Blanket High School and is employed by Co-Exx Pipe.

Following a wedding trip to Dallas the couple will reside in Big Spring.

Lifestyle guidelines

We will be pleased to announce the news of your engagement, wedding, silver or golden anniversary in the Lifestyle section of the Big Spring Herald. We try to use the story on the date you request, but sometimes space does not permit this.

The information must be submitted to us on a form available at the Herald no later than Wednesday noon before the Sunday it is to be published. The form must include a name and telephone number of a person whom we can reach during the day for more information.

We will use a picture of the couple in the announcement. Or in the case of engagement announcements where a picture of the couple is not available, we will use one of the bride-elect. The picture must be a professional, quality studio photograph. We prefer a 5 x 7 glossy black and white print. We ask for this kind of photograph so that it will reproduce well in the newspaper.

Following the picture's publication, it may be picked up at the Lifestyle department. The information for the story may be brought to the Lifestyle department of the Herald, which is located at 710 Scurry. Or it may be mailed to Lifestyle Department, Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1531, Big Spring, Texas 77720. Call us at (915) 265-7231 if we can help with more information or clarification of our policies.

ENGAGEMENTS
Information of engagement announcements must be submitted to the Lifestyle department of the Herald anytime after the engagement is a reality until at least three weeks prior to the wedding. Anything closer than three weeks will not be published. The engagement form must be submitted no later than Wednesday noon prior to the Sunday it is to be published.

If the bride-elect, prospective bridegroom or their parents do not now or have never lived in our area, we need to know why you are submitting your engagement to the Herald. If only grandparents live in our area, please give their names and addresses.

WEDDINGS
If a wedding writup is submitted to the Herald after the wedding has occurred, the space allotted to it will diminish according to the length of time that has passed since the wedding.

Local hospitals supply information for Storkclub. If a child is born elsewhere in the newspaper's circulation area, or is born to out-of-town parents with local or area grandparents, please contact the Herald Lifestyle Department with Storkclub information.

Information needed for Storkclub is: newborn's name, sex, time and date of birth, weight, place of birth, parents' name and address. If the baby is born outside the circulation area but has local grandparents, please include their name and address. The local grandparents serve as the area connection for the information.

only." She said strict guidelines must be followed when providing assistance to needy families.

A role often overlooked by people considering the duties of the Red Cross is the message relay service between families and people in the military.

Brown said the Red Cross plays a vital role in relaying messages to people in the military. If a family member needs to get a message quickly to someone in the service, that family often cannot break through military red tape. Red Cross steps in and can get the message to the right person, Brown said.

The Red Cross will relay messages to people in the military pertaining to emergency situations such as illness at home, birth messages and death of a relative.

The Red Cross can also obtain a health and welfare report. This is a report issued to worried family members who may go months before hearing from a family member in the service. If a military person is seriously injured, the Red Cross can help make arrangements to transport a family member to the country where the serviceman is.

The Red Cross can also provide financial aid in emergency situations involving military personnel.

Other officers of the local Red Cross chapter are Johnnie Lou Avery, immediate past chairman; Edith Gay, secretary; and Charlene Voorhies, treasurer.

DeBakey.

Lois DeBakey, a professor of scientific communications at Baylor College of Medicine.

At one time, DeBakey says he liked to fish and hunt and draw, but slowly they faded from his life. Medicine became his hobby.

"I like my work, very much. I like it so much that I don't want to do anything else," he says. "I once played golf, but found it boring. Knocking this little ball around and running after it. It accomplishes nothing."

DeBakey was a 37-year-old surgeon in New Orleans when Houston civic leaders persuaded him to accept the job as chairman of the department of surgery at Baylor, then a mediocre institution meeting in makeshift classrooms.

Demanding and often tactless, DeBakey arrived in the comfortably average Houston medical community with the subtlety of a hurricane.

Some sought his ouster. They considered him a tyrant who dominated the surgical schedule. Nurses disliked him and medical students trembled at his criticism. And besides, they said, he wasn't a Texan.

DeBakey ignored the sniping and began reshaping Houston medicine in the 1950s and 1960s by persuading doctors of national and international reputation to come to Houston.

"He understood that the only way to advance was if you had quality people. Give them the space and the funding and they will make things happen."

Conference set Oct. 5

By CAROL BALDWIN
Lifestyle Editor

Members of the Blue Blazers are hard at work on the 1985 Women's Conference scheduled Oct. 5 in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, according to SHIRLEY SHROYER, president of the organization.

The topic, "Today's Woman: Free to Be," features a number of speakers, including FRED PACE, CECILIA MCKENZIE, JOYCE EATON, GYNNNA MOUTON, DENE SHEPPARD, KAREN PERKINS and LOIS HALE.

Registration is $18 in advance and $20 at the door. For more information, contact the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce at 263-7641.

EMILY MCKENZIE, 10, the daughter of ROBB and CECILIA

MCKENZIE, recently returned from Tampa, Fla., where she visited her grandparents, MR. and MRS. JAMES D. MCKENZIE.

Emily is also the granddaughter of MR. and MRS. ANDY ARCAD of Big Spring.

T.C. WILLIS, grandson of CHESTER and RETA FAUGHT of Big Spring, was in town last week visiting his grandparents. T.C.'s grandmother had a novel idea of entertaining him while he was in Big Spring. The two spent the day visiting various people on the job and T.C. got an education in how different people make their living.

T.C. is from Eldorado, a small community south of San Angelo. He is 10 and in the fifth grade at Eldorado Elementary School. He is the son of MARCY and JACKY WILLIS. Both are former Big Spring residents, both attended Forsan schools and Howard College.

The Faughts are longtime Big Spring residents. Chester will retire from Cosden Oil and Chemical on July 31.

Two Big Spring youths recently returned from a stay at the Texas Lions Camp near Kerrville.

JOHN KILGORE, 13, and RAYMOND WILSON, 12, got to go swimming, ride horses, fish, study nature, play sports and go on an overnight, camping trip during their stay at the camp.

The camp is located on 500 acres of the Texas hill country near Kerrville. The Big Spring Lions' Club sponsored both boys visit at the camp.

Dear Abby

Woman shocked by price of 'gift'

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine who does beautiful needlework mentioned in passing, after I complimented her on her quilting, that she would love to make a quilt for me. I was thrilled. Together we worked on an original design that turned out to be very striking. Then I bought all the materials, which came to $70.

I assumed she was offering to make it for me out of friendship. We never once discussed money. Well, yesterday she finished the quilt and brought it to me. It was beautiful. Then she handed me an envelope and said, "I didn't know what to charge you, so I asked several friends and they said $5 an hour was the going rate, but because this was a labor of love, I've given you a lesser rate."

Abby, I had already decided to give her $400 to show my appreciation, but when I opened the envelope I nearly went into cardiac arrest! The bill read:

"Handmade quilt: 324 hours at $3.50 an hour: $1,134."

Now I'm trying to scrape up the money to pay her. I love the quilt, but the joy was destroyed by the price. My husband will kill me if he finds out how much I paid for it.

What would you do, Abby?

MISUNDERSTANDING IN MICHIGAN

DEAR MISUNDERSTANDING: I would tell this friend that since there was no mention of money when she offered to make the quilt, you assumed there would be no charge for making it.

I would express much regret over the misunderstanding, then return the quilt. And that should cover everything.

DEAR ABBY: I am a waitress in a very nice family-type restaurant. I like my job and I like my boss. Now the problem: Almost every night an older couple comes in around 10 p.m. for coffee. We close at 11 p.m. The lady of the couple always asks me if we were busy that day, and I always answer her honestly.

Yesterday, my boss, who is also the owner, overheard this lady asking me if we had been busy that day, so he took me aside and said, "You don't have to tell that woman how business is; it's none of her business. She used to own a restaurant, and now she's retired. She's nosy and jealous, and if you tell her business is slow, she's happy, and if you tell her business is good, she's sad."

I don't like to lie, Abby, and I can't tell a customer it's none of her business when I'm asked how business has been, so what should I do?

STUMPED IN YPSILANTI

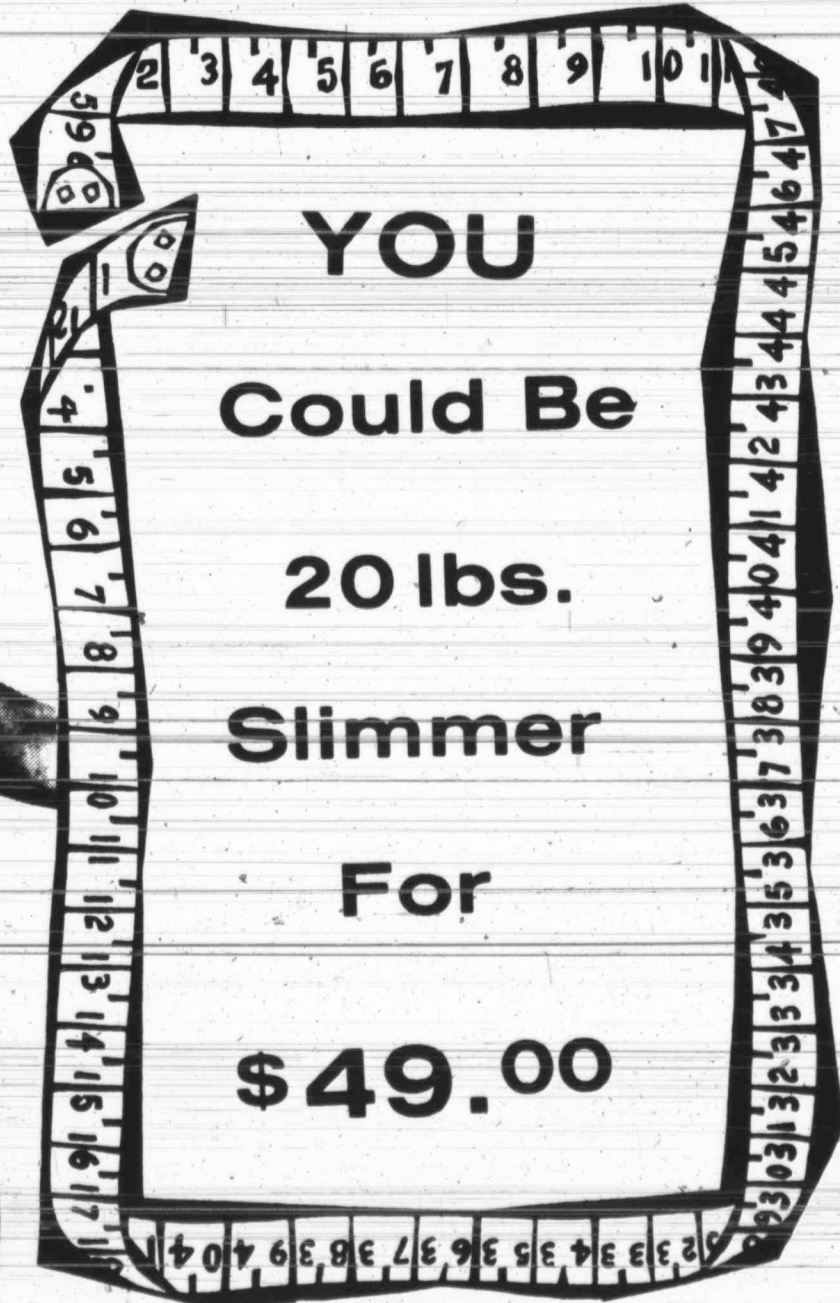

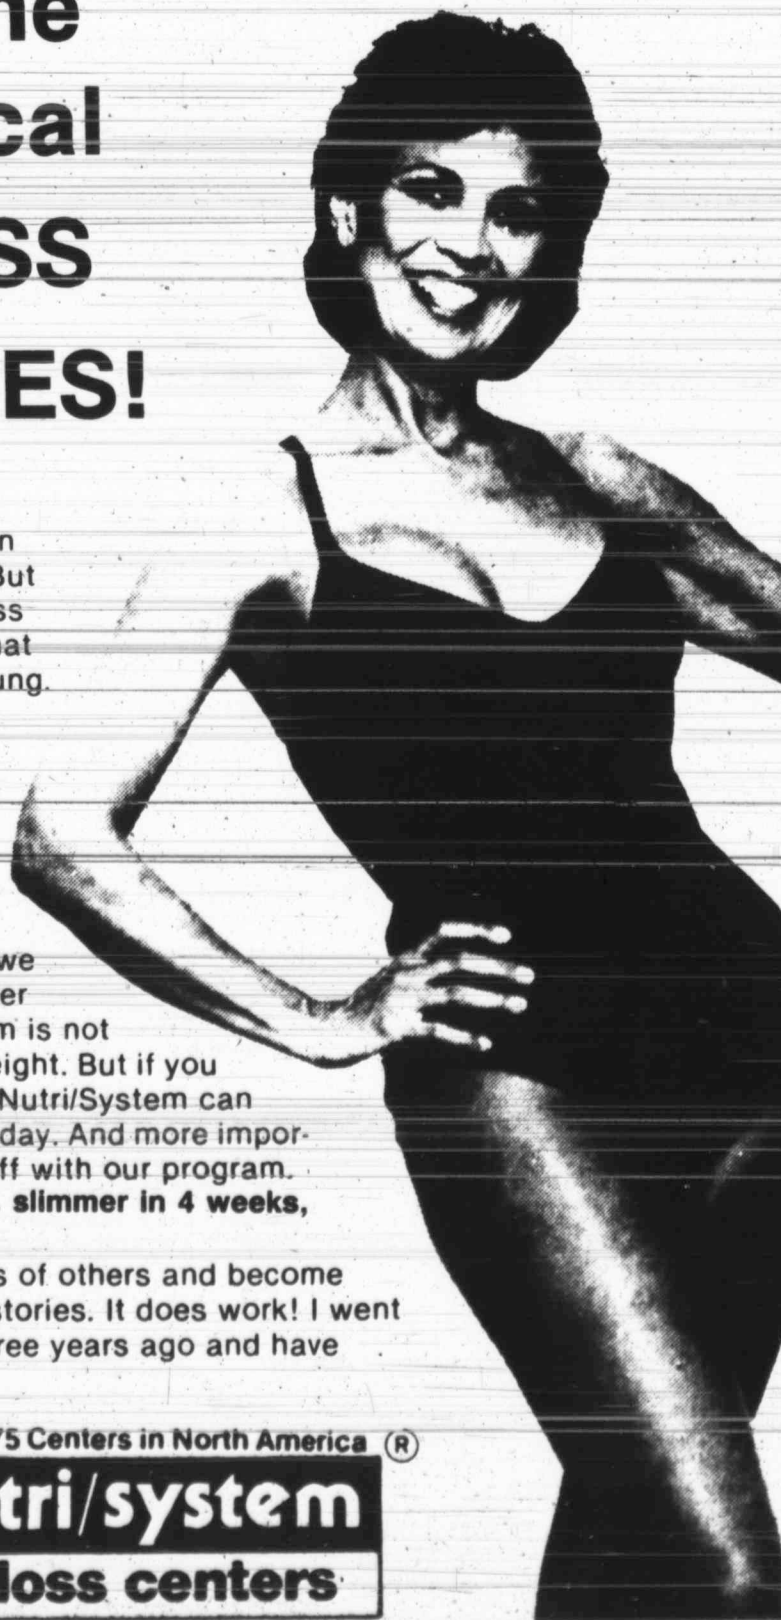

DEAR STUMPED: Smile your sweetest smile, and say, "You'll have to ask the boss."

You too can become one of our local SUCCESS STORIES!

Hi! I'm Roxie Forrest, owner of Nutri/System weight loss centers in Odessa, Midland and Big Spring. But weight loss is more than a business to me because it wasn't long ago that my clothes stretched instead of hung. That I used a cover up over my swimsuit. That all my clothes had long sleeves to cover up my arms. And everytime I bent over to pick something up, I got in my own way. After four children I had accumulated my share of baby fat. At Nutri/System we know how self-conscious being over weight can make you. Nutri/System is not magic; you have to want to lose weight. But if you are fed up with being overweight, Nutri/System can help. You can lose up to a pound a day. And more importantly, you can keep that weight off with our program. If you call now, you can be 20 lbs. slimmer in 4 weeks, for only $49.00 plus food.

Won't you join me and hundreds of others and become one of our Nutri/System success stories. It does work! I went from being a size 12 to a size 7 three years ago and have not changed.

Cosmetics and Contact Lenses

(For men, too)

If you are having the problem of replacing your contact lenses because they have become "dirty", the following advice taken from a recent study on cosmetics and contact lenses may be helpful.

1. Put in your contacts a few minutes before applying makeup. Be sure you do this with clean, oil-free hands.
2. Apply makeup as lightly as possible. Excessive makeup contributes to the obstruction of tear ducts.
3. Avoid areas closest to the eye, especially the rim of the eye and roots of the eye lashes.
4. Avoid makeup products containing fibers and proteins (such as water resistant mascara) which may permanently adhere to your lenses.
5. Eyeshadow in liquid, cream or gel is best; avoid powdered shadow.
6. Pencil is best for eyeliner. Try to avoid liner completely on the inside rim of the eyelid.
7. For removing make-up, the study recommends water soluble removers over oil-based removers. Greasy removers are responsible for lipid deposits on the surface of the lenses.
8. Be careful with all spray products. Hair spray and cologne can be "deadly" to contact lenses. Even nail polish can cause allergic reactions.
9. If you men who are reading this article are, by now, thankful that you don't have to mess with makeup — read on! Watch out for spray paint, bug spray, suntan oil and lotion, mosquito repellent and after-shave and cologne.

Here's hoping you have fewer "dirty" lenses in the future.

Wedding

Robinson-Eggleston

Kari Robinson and Robert Eggleston were married Saturday night in the Midway Baptist Church with Dr. Rick Davis officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry M. Robinson of Route 1. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Eggleston of the Sterling City Route.

The couple was married before an arch decorated with blue bows, white flowers and yellow daisies. The altar was decorated with seven branch candelabras and a unity candle made by the bride's mother.

Sherrie Fryrear and Martha Belew were pianists. Vocalists included Cindy Norman of Mineral Wells, Tracey Spell of Abilene, and Kent Jackson of Seminole.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown which featured a choker collar of silk and pearls with an illusioned yoke and short puffed sleeves. The gown featured a dropped waist with inlaid lace patterns scattered over it. Three bows accented the back of the gown, and a cathedral-length train completed the gown.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of yellow roses, freesia, daisies and white stephanotis tied with blue streamers.

Maid of honor was Debra Gilbert. Bridesmaids were Cassie Wigington, Michelle Arnold of Lubbock, and Connie Eggleston.

Flower girls were Cindy Stanford and Shelley Williamson, both of North Richland Hills and nieces of the bridegroom. Zachery Simmons was ring bearer.

Skipper Eggleston of El Paso and Mike Eggleston of Big Spring, both brothers of the bridegroom, were best men. Groomsmen were Mike Robinson, brother of the bride, and Bingo Martin.

Ushers included Leslie Robinson, brother of the bride, Scott Eggleston, cousin of the bridegroom, and Randy Eggleston, cousin of the bridegroom.

Candlelighters were Chad Renfro and Courtney Renfro, both of Midland and both cousins of the bridegroom.

A reception honoring the couple was held in the fellowship hall of the Midway Baptist Church. The bride's cake was three-tiered and decorated with yellow flowers and a fountain. The bride's table was covered with a lace tablecloth over a yellow underlay and centered with yellow candles and a yellow daisy floral candle ring.

The bridegroom's table was

MRS. ROBERT EGGLESTON
...formerly Kari Robinson

covered with a yellow crocheted cloth made by the bride's grandmother and a navy blue underlay. A horseshoe-shaped German chocolate cake was served.

The bride attended Coahoma High School, Howard College and is now attending Lubbock Christian College.

The bridegroom attended Forsan High School, Howard College and Lubbock Christian College. He is employed by Axelson Inc. of Snyder.

The couple will reside in Snyder.

Dr. Donohue

Pulse rate cause for concern

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I will soon be 50 years old (mature at last!). I have jogged regularly for almost 20 years. My resting heart rate is in the 40s and low 50s. I had a resting electrocardiogram several months ago, reported by my doctor to be "fine." He complimented me on my fitness. I jog or swim three or four times a week for 30 minutes at a relatively slow pace, probably about the pace of a mile in 12 or 13 minutes. So what's the problem? Maybe there is none unless you think my jogging pulse rate of about 170-180 is cause for concern.

— C.D.

I am somewhat concerned. The maximum heart rate for a 50-year-old ranges between 175 and 184. And actually, using the standard 220-minus-your-age formula, your maximum would be 170 (or 220 minus 50). And as you note (another part of your letter) you're not supposed to aim for that, but only for 85 to 90 percent of the age-predicted max.

No matter how you look at it, you are reaching the outer limits, a danger zone. However, exercise guidelines are for most people. With your years of training you are not average. Perhaps your training allows you to run at such a strenuous clip. I can't say from this distance.

You can find out by having your heart monitored while you are exerting it at this level. By all means, have a stress test; that will settle the issue. Even superbly-conditioned athletes often settle for pulse rates of 80-90 percent of their predicted maximums.
