Progress seen, but no breakthroughs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev met with Vice President George Bush at the Soviet Embassy today near the end of a three-day White House summit that has produced progress — but no breakthroughs — on sticky superpower issues.

Gorbachev was heading for the White House and his final scheduled discussions with President Reagan after meeting with Bush and then having breakfast with the vice president and other American guests.

Bush spent more than 20 minutes alone with the general secretary of the Soviet Communist Party. Bush declined to say whether he thought any agreements were possible by the end of the summit, beyond the treaty signed Tuesday banning intermediate-range missiles.

"You can't predict until we get to the meetings this morning," he said. "I'm trying to keep expectations under control."

Gorbachev, asked whether he would end the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan, said, "I think it's possible, but you need two people."

A Soviet aide broke in to say, "It takes two to tango."

Arms control and Afghanistan are high on the agenda for the three-day summit.

As Reagan and Gorbachev resumed personal diplomacy, they awaited word from aides on whether there was sufficient progress toward a second arms control agreement to anticipate a 1988 Moscow summit in the closing months of Reagan's presidency.

"We see a little progress here and there, but they are tough issues," said Secretary of State George P. Shultz, who is flying to Brussels tonight to brief NATO allies.

Bush's presence at the embassy and his decision to invite prominent residents of Iowa and New Hampshire to the breakfast produced cries of foul from some of his rivals for the 1988 Republican presidential nomination, who said he was using the summit to further his political ambitions.

Prison-related information now sought with filing

Twenty-two Scurry County taxpayers--some of them associated with a Concerned Citizens effort which dates to last March against the Snyder prison--have filed a legal document in 132nd District Court asking for disclosure of information related to the project.

Regarding this disclosure, attorneys representing two entities named in the legal petition, the city and county, say they will now seek an attorney general's opinion to clearup any questions related to this request.

"Basically, we feel like the request submitted to us is legally and factually vague," said Ernie Armstrong, whose law firm represents the city.

"We'll gladly give them any information they have a right to. Since we're not sure in every case exactly what they're asking for, we're going to ask the attorney general what they have a legal right to have and, when we know this, we're perfectly willing to give them this information."

Both Armstrong and Mike Line, county attorney, have opted to seek the legal opinion.

The group of local citizens have engaged a Lubbock law firm to represent them and it was a representative of this firm, Harvey L. Morton, who filed the request for a "writ of mandamus" Wednesday in 132nd District Court.

On Monday, Morton first visited with representatives of the local entities listed in the writ filing, discussing with them information items now listed in his legal petition.

A hearing on the writ of mandamus has been set for Dec. 29 in 132nd District Court.

Named as defendants are Chamber Manager Bill Moss, City Manager John Gayle, County Judge Bobby Goodwin and Hospital Administrator Cy Miller. All are custodians of records sought by the plaintiffs.

Listed as plaintiffs are Johnny Eicke, Fairy Eicke, Ava Lopour, Joe Lopour, Elaine Lambert, Mrs. Jim Simpson, Ophelia

A favorite of the first-grade youngster is to accompany her dad to wash the car. Last Saturday Meredith wandered off into an adjacent field while Banta finished off the auto.

She came running back with something green. "Is this worth anything?"

It didn't take the banker long to recognize a $100 bill that Meredith had found in the vacant lot--and it indeed was good.

Banta told his daughter that she could keep the bill if the rightful owner couldn't be found. "Can I give it to the new jail?" Meredith asked.

Meredith was told she could do whatever she wanted but only after giving it some careful thought--and she was reminded that Christmas is coming soon.

Meredith then had an even better idea. She remembered the ladies at church had adopted a cottage at the Lubbock Children's Home.

ELMORE, THE TOO TALL ELF by Kevin Fagan

After two decades, singer Redding commands respect

NEW YORK (AP) — Twenty years after legendary rhythm and blues artist Otis Redding died, his biggest hit, "(Sittin' on) the Dock of the Bay," still whistles through the airwaves.

Redding recorded the song slightly more pop than his usual soulful style on Dec. 7, 1967, three days before he died at age 26. Stax Records released it after his death and it became his first No. 1 hit on pop charts. Singer-songwriter Michael Bolton has the tune on his new LP.

Redding died along with four members of the Bar-Kays band when a chartered plane taking them to Cleveland crashed in Monona Lake, Wis.

Redding had been a favorite among black audiences and was just becoming known to white audiences.

He also wrote "I've Been Loving You Too Long (To Stop Now)" with Jerry Butler in 1965, and "Respect," which singer Aretha Franklin carried to the top of the pop charts in 1966.

Many had predicted he would become a superstar.

In the 1960s, with his grainy voice and galvanizing stage shows, he was the personification of soul, second in popularity only to James Brown. In 1967, readers of Melody Maker voted him the world's best male vocalist, the first time during the 1960s they had not chosen Elvis Presley.

The same year, Redding was the only soul performer asked to appear at the Monterey Pop Festival. His intense performance was captured in the film "Monterey Pop" and on the LP "Otis Redding — Jimi Hendrix."

Redding went to a Sausalito, Calif., houseboat to relax afterward, and there he wrote "(Sittin' on) the Dock of the Bay," which ends with a long, meandering whistle solo. Guitarist Steve Cropper of Booker T and the MGs, the backup band on many of his early records for Stax in Memphis, Tenn., was the co-writer.

Cropper said Redding had been, "King of soul, king of Stax, king of everything that evolved around us."

His influence reverberates through contemporary music. Disco's roots can be seen in his danceable numbers. K.C. and the Sunshine Band picked up on his styling. Al Green, in the 1970s, was called a cross between Redding and Sam Cooke.

Fraudulent papers leads to deportation

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The district director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service says he has recommended that amnesty be denied to 27 people who unknowingly used fraudulent documents to qualify for temporary resident status amnesty under the immigration reform act.

The documents were provided by three people who were indicted this week in El Paso on charges they sold fictitious rental receipts and letters from employers to allow people to qualify for amnesty.

District INS director Al Giugni said Wednesday that an investigation began when processors at the INS Legalization Center in El Paso noticed that at least 27 applicants used what appeared to be fraudulent documents.

They were applying for amnesty from deportation under the farmworker provision of the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986.

Under that law, farmworkers can get amnesty if they have worked in the United States at least 90 days between May 1, 1985, and May 1, 1986. Farmworkers who get amnesty can eventually apply for U.S. citizenship.

"The 27 persons were given temporary resident status, but we have recommended to the regional office that amnesty be denied," he said.

Giugni said the 27 people were unaware that they were using fraudulent documents when they applied for amnesty.

Reagan may visit Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) — It looks increasingly likely that President Reagan will make his first visit to the Soviet Union, the country he described four years ago as "an evil empire."

As Reagan winds up his three-day summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, both sides are expressing optimism that the two will meet next spring in Moscow.

They also say they hope to sign a treaty curbing intercontinental nuclear missiles at such a summit. But White House officials add that the president is ready to make the trip in any event.

AP analysis

"We have made it clear that a finished START agreement is not a prerequisite," said spokesman Roman Popaduik, using the acronym for strategic arms reduction talks.

There is, of course, no assurance that the meeting will take place. Climbers have been known to falter and fall back on the way to the summit.

When Reagan and Gorbachev first met in Geneva in 1985, for instance, they agreed to meet again in the United States in 1986 and in the Soviet Union in 1987.

Then the United States launched an air strike on Libya in retaliation for terrorist attacks, and the summit was shelved in the resulting cooling of U.S.-Soviet relations.

When the meeting was finally held in October, 1986, it was not in the United States but in Reykjavik, Iceland.

Attempts to reach a nuclear arms agreement at that meeting fell apart over Reagan's plan for the "Star Wars" missile defense system, and the idea of a summit in the United States was again put on the back burner.

From there, prospects were on again, off again, on again. When a date was set, both sides announced that the two leaders would also meet in the Soviet Union sometime during the first six months of 1988.

Both sides have since indicated that June is the likeliest time.

Such a summit, coming only a few months before the end of Reagan's presidency, would be a curious climax to the career of a politician who has so often and so bitterly denounced the Soviets.

At his first news conference as president, on Jan. 29, 1981, Reagan said the Soviets "reserve unto themselves the rights to commit any crime, to lie, to cheat" in order to attain world domination.

Wyoming became the 44th state of the union in 1890.

Dear Abby

Moms Labor to Put a Freeze On Ravenous Teen Appetites

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: When I read about "Ma in Melrose," whose kids always ate up all the leftovers intended for another meal, I had to laugh. One of my most traumatic memories of raising teen-agers was the day our son ate half a standing rib roast for an afternoon snack. His comment (while we were having scrambled eggs for supper): "But, Mom, you didn't have a note on it!"

A special shelf — as you suggest, Abby — is fine, but not everything fits on some shelves. Notes are better. Just put a note — "Do Not Eat" — on anything you want to keep for later, and never assume, as I did, that any fool would know better than to eat half a standing rib roast!

KATE REEVES,
FULLERTON, CALIF.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I read you in the Clearfield Progress, and did I ever relate to "Ma in Melrose"! My grandfather had five strapping teen-age boys who could clean out a fridge of a whole week's groceries in one day! Nothing could be left alone for another meal: cheese, lunch meats, poultry — always gone.

Solution: A good old-fashioned padlock was placed on the icebox door. And he held the key!

My aunt had four teen-age boys and they all ate like horses. She says it was years before she realized that refrigerators didn't come with behinds sticking out of the door.

Now I have a 13-year-old son, and when I can't find him, I always know where to look — in the fridge.

The "reserve shelf for off limit stuff" per your suggestion was a good idea until the famous teen age excuse, "I forgot," came along.

MORRISDALE, PA.

DEAR ABBY: This concerns how to designate which foods in the fridge are "off limits." My teen-age stepdaughter's appetite was legend. After school, her first priority was to raid the fridge. Believe me, she missed nothing.

Because I worked, I would frequently prepare casseroles and other items in advance, but coming home to find these items gone was more than I could tolerate.

I started placing an ordinary poison label — complete with skull and crossbones — on everything that was not to be eaten. It worked extremely well.

When my stepdaughter moved out to live with a roommate, she faced the same problem, so I gave her a supply of "poison" labels and it was very effective. She will be married soon, and I suspect her new husband will be seeing some of those same labels in their refrigerator.

JANICE STEPHENS,
RICHARDSON, TEXAS

DEAR JANICE: I hope not! It's his fridge, too, you know, and he is not a child who needs permission to eat certain foods. If your stepdaughter is serious, however, you'd better save some of those "poison" labels. You might see her back home.

All kidding aside, never use the skull and crossbones poison insignia on edibles. A child could identify them as such, and later accidentally drink iodine or some other poison bearing that label!

Two factions need to work together

HOUSTON (AP) — The nation's banking and oil industries must work together to help win the battle against increasing oil imports, the future chairman of First City Bancorporation says.

"It's a war that might be called the Second American War of Independence," A. Robert Abboud said Wednesday at the Arthur Andersen & Co. Oil and Gas Symposium.

"Because this war is not only undeclared but largely unacknowledged by the American public and therefore still largely uncontested, it's a war we may well lose," he said.

Abboud referred to the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, which is currently meeting in Vienna, Austria. OPEC, a 13-member cartel, controls two-thirds of the world's proven crude oil reserves.

OPEC-bashing is not a very effective way of addressing energy related problems in this country, instead, the oil industry needs energy lenders' help, Abboud said.

Second hand rose

Why didn't North rebid three spades over two no-trump? Perhaps he feared that South might pass, and with his A-K he felt he had enough for South to make three no-trump. Although four spades is not an unreasonable contract, it would be quickly set with a heart lead. (Heart ruff, back to East's ace of diamonds, another heart ruff with the spade queen, and East would still get his spade jack for a certain one-trick set.) But South found himself in three no-trump, and the play became a serious matter when West, not having a heart, led his diamond suit. East played the ace and returned the 10, and declarer was confronted with having to bring in the spade suit.

He played a low spade, intending to put in dummy's nine and hoping that East would win the trick and not have any diamonds left. That would have been well and good, but West recognized that this was a defensive situation in which the rule "second hand low" needed to be violated. So he put up his spade queen smartly. Now what? Looking at all the cards, we can see that declarer simply has to take his beating, but South was in the blind. He won dummy's ace of spades, took a heart finesse and then played a spade to dummy's 10. (After all, it was possible that West had started with Q-J-3 of spades.) East won the jack and poor declarer went set three tricks.

Maybe South would have been better off if he had doubled two hearts. That would have been +800, quite an improvement over -300.

6 and 8 o'clock in coliseum...

WTC hosts Howard tonight

Game times are 6 p.m. for the women and 8 p.m. for the men.

Tonight's action will be the first double header involving the Lady Dusters and Westerners at the coliseum this season. It will also be the WJCAC opener for both teams.

Howard College teams, from nearby Big Spring, have already played three conference games. Both the Hawk Queens and the Hawks are 1-2 in league action.

Howard's Queens are led by Stefanie Massie, juco's leading scorer, who averages 28.3 points a ballgame. The sophomore talent also averages 10.6 rebounds and leads the conference in assists.

Other top players for Coach Don Stevens' Queens are Renee Crooks (12.4 points, 5.3 rebounds), Karen Mitchell (10.6 points), Callie Cooley (6.1 rebounds) and Cindy Johnson (4.6 assists).

Western is paced offensively by Staci Smith, whose 14.8 points-per-game ranks third in the conference. Nickey Allen averages 10.9 points and 5.3 boards. Sophomore standout Kayla Thompson leads the WJCAC in assists with an 8.6 average.

Western Texas' Dusters are 10-3 on the season.

Howard College's Hawks are getting 16.7 points from Tyrone Greer, 16.5 from Larry Pettigrew and 11.7 from Chris Miller. Miller also dishes out over four assists a game.

The Hawks aren't afraid to put it up from beyond the three-point line. They have attempted an average of almost 13 a game and have connected on 38 percent of them.

Richmond, Va., sophomore Darrell Nelson leads Western and the conference in scoring with 31.7 points a game. Walter Martin, 6-8 freshman from Snook, is putting in 16.8 points and pulling down 10.8 rebounds a game.

The Westerners go into the game with a 3-12 season mark. Howard is 6-9 overall.

Hoops see action today and Friday

Coach Larry Scott's varsity boys take on Hereford tonight in the Denver City Tournament - just one of several high school basketball games being played by local teams this weekend.

Scott's Tigers, 6-3, face the highly-touted Herd at 7 p.m. in Denver City.

Closer to home, Snyder's sophomore boys tangle with Hermleigh at 4:30 this afternoon in the Colorado City Tournament. That game is to be played in Wolf Gym.

Friday, the tournaments continue in Denver City and Colorado City, and locally, Coach Ken Housden's Lady Tigers go after their second District 2-4A victory.

The Lady Tigers entertain Monahans at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gym. A junior varsity contest is slated for 6 p.m.

Snyder freshmen girls also play Friday, in Hermleigh at 6:30 p.m.

In local boy's action Friday, the freshmen challenge Abilene High at 5:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. at the junior high gym.

Snyder girls win three

Snyder junior high girls took on Sweetwater this week in basketball and won three of four ballgames.

The seventh grade Gold team popped the Fillies 47-14.

Scoring for Snyder were Deena Ball 18, Stephanie Fambro 11, Sherry Crna 8, Trina Thompson 4, Jennifer Kime 2, Joellen King 2 and Molly Mauldin 2.

Snyder's seventh grade Black squad won 32-24. Putting points on the board for the local squad were Amy Maldanado 9, Nicole Williams 7, Sherry Fisk 4, Vadrian Clay 3, Elizabeth Rodriquez 2, Yvette Ramos 2, Sara Wyatt 2, Jennifer Williamson 2 and Deana Schwarz 1.

Coaches listed King and Williams as MVPs of the two games.

Snyder eighth grade Gold was defeated by Sweetwater, 38-12.

The Gold team got 7 points from Daisy Braziel, 3 from Rhonda Gantt and 2 from Ginger Alexander.

Scoring for Snyder were Valari Wilcox 5, Barbara Beck 2, Misty Durst 2 and Stephanie Pierce 2.

Eighth grade MVPs were Alexander and Wilcox.

Dallas blasts Kings, 125-98

DALLAS (AP) - Coach John MacLeod said he wanted the Dallas Mavericks to apply some tough defensive pressure against the Sacramento Kings.

It worked great as the Mavericks defeated the Kings, 125-98, Wednesday night.

"We tried to apply some tough defensive pressure," said coach John MacLeod. "We came out hard and they didn't look good against our press."

Dallas opened the game with a 17-0 run and unleased a 28-4 third quarter barrage.

The Mavericks improved their record to 10-5 as they won for the eighth time in the past 10 games.

Dallas used a third-quarter fast break, 28 points from Mark Aguirre and 25 from Rolando Blackman to dominate Kings, who are struggling. It was the third straight time the Mavericks have held an opponent to less than 100 points.

"We didn't want to let them run their plays or take shots where they normally like to take them," said Blackman, who hit 12 of 15 shots. "We've been playing excellent defense right from the start of the game."

Sacramento, in last place in the Midwest Division, fell to 4-13. The Kings lost their sixth in a row and are 0-7 on the road.

"If you're not a good team on the road, you'll have problems," Kings coach Bill Russell said. "Right now we're just not a good team. I'm enjoying the people and the coaching but I'm not enjoying the losing."

The Mavericks cranked up their running game in the third quarter with point guard Derek Harper the catalyst.

"The fastbreak that coach MacLeod has us running really suits this team," Harper said. "In the third quarter we got it going off their turnovers. We're really trying to develop a killer instinct."

Otis Thorpe led the Kings with 18 points. Sacramento has lost 10 straight road games over the last two seasons.

Lang finally gets message; leads Arkansas past Rebels

by The Associated Press

Arkansas Coach Nolan Richardson says Razorback bigman Andrew Lang finally seems to be getting the message.

Lang, the 6-11 senior center, scored 16 points and blocked six shots to lead the Razorbacks to victory, 79-40, over Mississippi Wednesday night.

The victory gave Southwest Conference teams a split with non-conference teams Wednesday night as North Texas State defeated Texas Christian, 79-54.

It was three baskets by Lang early that put Arkansas, 4-1, ahead to stay. The Rebels dropped to 3-2.

"Andrew has listened a lot to us, and has learned a lot from us. If Andrew continues to play like he has, he is a key to our season," said Richardson, who also was pleased with the overall play of the team.

"We took good shots. We executed well and pushed the ball into our good guys. Anytime you score inside the paint your percentage goes up," he said.

Lang scored 6 in Arkansas' 11-2 run which gave the Razorbacks a 22-10 lead.

Even Ole Miss Coach Ed Murphy was impressed with the Razorbacks.

"They did a great job tonight. They are so much better than they were last year," Murphy said. "Nolan Richardson has got this club going now, and playing his kind of ball. We had no inside game tonight. Our inability to handle to the pressure defense did surprise me."

The Razorbacks led 26-14 at the half, and Allie Freeman scored 6 in the opening minutes of the second half as Arkansas went ahead 36-20. One of Freeman's baskets came after a steal, another after he picked up a loose ball.

Arkansas extended its lead to as many as 23 point after the intermission, but a six-point Rebel run cut the lead to 49-32. Lang's rebound baskets stopped that run and Chris Brunt made two free throws to put Razobacks in front by 21.

Lang led all Razorback scorers, and Ron Huery and Freeman contributed 9 each for Arkansas. Barnes led Mississippi with 15. Jumper had 13 and Charles Prater put in 10 for the Rebels.

North Texas State scored the first six points, put together a 11-0 run later in the first half and went on to defeat Texas Christian 79-54.

The victory ended a four-game losing streak for the Eagles, now 2-4. TCU, led by John Lewis' 18 points, fell to 3-2.

North Texas State was paced by Tony Worrell with 19 points and Ronnie Morgan with 18.

Expansion pondered; more baseball trades

DALLAS (AP) - Baseball, which almost always moves very slowly, has taken its first step in 10 years toward expansion. But the Philadelphia Phillies can be counted on to move at a faster pace in 1988.

The Phillies - hardly known as burners on the basepaths - now emphasize power and speed. They got both Wednesday in acquiring fleet outfielder Phil Bradley from Seattle in the seventh deal to date at baseball's winter meetings.

Baseball also gave its first sign in a decade that expansion is very likely, even if not until the early 1990s. The American and National leagues merged their expansion committees into a 10-man group that will meet early next year.

At a joint leagues meeting Wednesday, Commissioner Peter Ueberroth told owners he favors expansion and if they don't. "They'd better get off the train now because it's pulling out of the station."

None did.

National League President Bart Giamatti did fire some warning flares. He cautioned those eager for expansion - cities such as Phoenix, Denver, Tampa-St. Petersburg and Washington - there are "dozens and dozens of issues that must be resolved" even before it is determined what cities get teams.

"How do we allocate players? Do we dilute our current pool? What is the franchise price? There are so many issues to be decided before we know who goes where when," Giamatti said.

The Phillies think Bradley, the Mariners' career hitting leader, will be a double threat. They got him and minor league pitcher Tim Fortugno from Seattle for power-hitting outfielder Glenn Wilson, pitcher Mike Jackson and minor league outfielder Dave Brundage.

It was one of two major deals by the Mariners, who also traded Mike Morgan to the Baltimore Orioles for Ken Dixon in a long-rumored swap of right-handed starters.

Nobody can accuse Dick Balderson, the Mariners' director of baseball operations, of standing pat with a fourth-place team. At the last two winter meetings, he's traded off what were the Mariners' two premier players, Bradley and outfielder Danny Tartabull.

"We came to the meetings to improve our offensive production. We talked to a lot of clubs we thought would move a run-producing guy and we think we've gotten one," Balderson said. "Glenn Wilson had a down year in 1987 but we think he's capable of some very productive seasons."

While the Mariners were swapping, both New York teams were talking. And talking. And talking. And not successfully.

The Yankees wanted Kirk Gibson from Detroit and reportedly offered Dave Winfield, but were turned down. The Mets also tried all day to get right-hander Bob Welch from the Dodgers, but Los Angeles was said to be talking to Oakland about Welch for Alfredo Griffin and Jay Howell.

Pittsburgh, which has sought a right-handed hammer for two years, offered a package of young pitchers to pitching-poor Cleveland for infielder Brook Jacoby. But the deal couldn't be worked out despite a late-night meeting.

In other news:

- Ueberroth, who has often said he would serve only one term, told reporters he probably didn't have enough support from owners to win a second term.

Washington's Manley ready for ballgame with Cowboys

HERNDON, Va. (AP) - Washington Redskins defensive end Dexter Manley is getting tired of the White House summit stealing the headlines in the nation's capital.

"It seems like the town is in an uproar, I guess because (Soviet leader) Mikhail Gorbachev is here," Manley said Wednesday. "It's kind of slowing things down.

"I wish he'd get the hell out of town," Manley added with a smile. "The Redskins-(Dallas) Cowboys game is bigger than what's happening with the summit."

Redskins fans usually work themselves into a frenzy for Dallas Week, but the Cowboys are 5-7 and Washington enters Sunday's game having already wrapped up the NFC East.

"It just doesn't feel the same," admitted Manley. But that doesn't mean he's lost his desire to beat up on the slumping Cowboys.

"Kick 'em while they're down. I don't feel sorry for them," he declared in a rare interview session with reporters at the Redskins' practice facility. "They're going to bite the dust."

Manley has been surprisingly quiet this year after spending his previous six NFL seasons as one of the league's most outspoken figures. This year he had spoken to reporters only twice, both after games, and this was his first mid-week interview.

Manley expressed disdain for Cowboys principal owner Bum Bright, who criticized Dallas Coach Tom Landry in the aftermath of the Cowboys' 21-10 loss to Atlanta last Sunday.

"Landry's probably the winningest coach in the NFL, so it was an erroneous comment by (Bright)," Manley said. "I'd like to have my cowboy boots and kick him in the butt for that. I'd show him what real Texans are like."

Manley, who was raised in Houston, said, "It's not Landry's fault. He's doing the best he can with the people he's got."

After talking about the summit, Manley kiddingly knocked former Washington running back John Riggins. Asked if he was invited to Tuesday's dinner at the White House, Manley replied, "I wasn't ready to pass out under the table."

That was a reference to Riggins, who fell asleep at a black-tie function during a speech by Vice President George Bush.

Outland Trophy won by Air Force tackle

NEW YORK (AP) - Chad Hennings of the Air Force Academy, winner of the 1987 Outland Trophy as the nation's top interior lineman, is about to head for the wild blue yonder. He just doesn't know if it will be in the air or on the ground.

Like running back Napoleon McCallum and basketball star David Robinson of the Naval Academy in recent years, Hennings aspires to a professional career, which would require permission from the Secretary of the Air Force.

"I do realize that I have a commitment to my government, and I fully intend to serve that commitment," Hennings, a 6-6, 260-pound defensive tackle from Elberon, Iowa, said. "But I'm also looking into any possibility that there may be to play professional football."

If an NFL future isn't realistic, Hennings has other possibilities - "To pursue my graduate studies in finance and management and get my MBA, or to go to pilot training.

"I'm two inches over the maximum waiverable height (for a pilot), but I've achieved a waiver. My commitment is five years if I choose not to fly, eight years if I do fly.

"The way I view the situation as far as professional football, at my position, I don't feel I can come back after five years, maintain my weight, maintain the skills and technique that I'd have to have. I'd probably have to play within a year or two after I graduate."

Hennings, an Associated Press All-American, was Defensive Player of the Year in the Western Athletic Conference. He had a WAC-record 24 sacks for minus-182 yards among his 87 tackles, plus seven other stops behind the line, five forced fumbles, three fumble recoveries and five pass breakups.

Nets coach fired

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - Bob MacKinnon wants the New Jersey Nets to play a running game for as long as he's head coach, but just how long that will be appears uncertain in the wake of the firing of Dave Wohl.

The 60-year-year MacKinnon was named Nets interim head coach on Wednesday shortly after Wohl was dismissed after two-plus losing seasons at the helm of the NBA club.

Nets General Manager Harry Weltman refused to say when the slot would be filled.

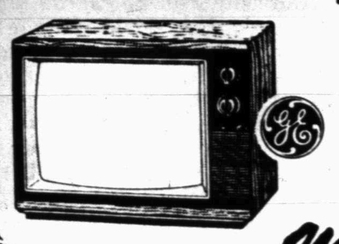

"We want to do it as soon as possible while taking as much time as we need to hire the best available," Weltman said. He added there are no leading candidates for the job.

The vacancy leaves assistant general manager MacKinnon to run the Nets for the second time in his 11 years with the team. He posted a 12-35 mark replacing Kevin Loughery midway through the 1980 season.

Braniff may merge with Pan American

NEW YORK (AP) — Pan Am Corp.'s main airline business would be merged with Braniff Inc. under a tentative deal that depends on Braniff winning $200 million a year in labor concessions.

The deal, announced late Wednesday, would leave Pan Am as a shell of its former self and apparently came about after the company was unable to obtain fresh contract concessions from airline unions.

The loss of Pan American World Airways would represent a stinging defeat for Pan Am's vice chairman, Martin R. Shugrue Jr., who had reportedly favored keeping Pan Am intact. Chairman C. Edward Acker had reportedly favored the Braniff deal.

The deal would create a new, independent company, as yet unnamed, that would be owned 13 to 20 percent by Pan American World Airways employees, 25 to 32 percent by shareholders of what is now Braniff and 55 percent by shareholders of Pan Am Corp.

Dallas-based Braniff is controlled by its chairman, Chicago industrialist Jay Pritzker, who has two-thirds of the stock and more than 90 percent of the voting rights.

It is difficult to put a dollar value on the deal because it is a true merger rather than an acquisition, airline analyst Robert Joedicke of Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc. said late Wednesday.

"I would say this basically breaks the logjam, where it was just stuck on dead center," Joedicke said. But he warned that the deal is far from done, because it will be difficult for Braniff to win labor concessions.

"There's five unions and five sets of opinions. Trying to bring them all together is not an easy task," Joedicke said.

The agreement was in the form of a letter of intent signed Wednesday evening by officials of the two companies, Pan Am spokeswoman Pamela Hanlon said. It was announced at about 10 p.m. EST.

The deal depends on Braniff's ability to win savings of $200 million a year for four years in labor expenditures at Pan American World Airways, Pan Am said. Pan Am noted that Pan American World Airways itself has not been able to win such large concessions from the unions.

The leadership of the Air Line Pilots Association agreed in a conference call Wednesday not to give up to Pan Am more than the $55 million in concessions to which it had already agreed, a union official told the New York Times.

Assuming the concessions are won, Pan Am would spin off Pan American World Airways to Pan Am shareholders and then Braniff and Pan American World Airways would be merged into a single company.

No timetable emerges for Soviet withdrawal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kremlin leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's assertion that the Soviets "have no intention of staying" in Afghanistan drew a wait-and-see reaction from administration and congressional officials.

Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci, assessing the prospect of a Soviet withdrawal, said, "I wouldn't say it's impossible. The Soviets are prepared to discuss the subject."

Despite Gorbachev's comments, the two sides remained far apart and prospects that the summit would produce a U.S.-Soviet deal on Afghanistan appeared slim unless there was a major shift.

President Reagan was sticking by his position that he would reject any deal that was unacceptable to the Afghan guerrillas who are battling an estimated 115,000 Soviet occupation troops, officials said. Resistance leaders have they will not accept a deal brokered at the Washington summit.

Gorbachev told congressional leaders on Wednesday that the Red Army would not leave Afghanistan until the Kremlin could be sure that a hostile government would not rule in Kabul.

"We have no intention of staying in Afghanistan. We just don't want others to fill the vacuum. We want a non-aligned Afghanistan," Gorbachev said, according to Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., one of nine congressional leaders who met with him.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Reagan would keep his promise not to undercut the guerrillas.

"Our position is that the question in Afghanistan is the removal of Soviet troops and that is the first issue that has to be resolved," Fitzwater told a joint U.S.-Soviet briefing.

Carlucci said that "any effort by the Soviets to link their departure to a government that stays in place — that's very difficult."

The leader of the Soviet-backed government in Kabul, who goes by the single name of Najib, has said that the Red Army could leave over a 12-month period, a timetable that the guerrillas and their supporters reject.

Reagan, in a pre-summit speech, said the Soviets should "pack up, pull out and go home."

The president gave the same message on Nov. 12 during a White House meeting with Younis Khalis, chairman of a seven-party alliance of Afghan resistance groups. Reagan received Khalis and three other resistance leaders at the White House and pledged to "stand by" the guerrillas.

Even if Reagan should waver, say Senate sources, Congress is unlikely to shut off the estimated $500 million it is sending the guerrillas annually in covert military aid.

Congress has made support for the Afghan guerrillas the law of the land. The State Department authorization bill, under which Congress funds the main administration foreign policy agency, says that before U.S.-Soviet relations can improve, the Red Army must pull out within the shortest period that is logistically feasible, a timetable estimated at about two to three months.

Plaintiffs, who are all described as taxpayers of Scurry County, are asking for access to the records under the state's Open Records Act. The petition claims that defendants are all governmental bodies subject to the Open Records Act.

The petition states that Morton, an attorney with the firm Brock, Morton and Pigg, requests "all documents, writings, letters, memoranda, proposals, minutes of administrative, deliberative or legislative bodies, and formal or informal promises, contractors or representations" pertaining to the proposal submitted to the Texas Department of Corrections. Also requested was a copy of the proposal on Dec. 7.

Plaintiffs claim an interest in knowing the extent of public tax money to be expended as incentives, and plaintiffs additionally claim defendants have a legal duty to disclose all requested information. The petition claims the information cannot be obtained through any other source and in some cases information has been "intentionally" withheld.

Scurry County was awarded a 1,000-bed state of Texas prison on Nov. 9. Since that time, prison committee members have conducted a $1 million fund drive to purchase land and an industrial building to be donated to the TDC.

The land is expected to be transferred to the TDC sometime after Dec. 15.

Gas line fire 'non-emergency'

Firemen were called 13 miles west of Ira Wednesday afternoon to extinguish what was called an oil field fire that had started from a crack in a gas pipeline.

A spokesman said the fire started as workmen sanded on the pipe and that it was not a major emergency. Fire fighters were at the scene on the Lake Thomas road for about an hour following the 2:05 p.m. call.

A grass fire 15 miles north of Snyder on the railroad right-of-way off U.S. 84 was reported at 2 a.m. Thursday and took about a half-hour to dispense with, the spokesman said.

Burglary case gains suspect

A 20-year-old man was arrested at midnight Wednesday at the police station in connection with a Friday night burglary in which two rifles and three shotguns were stolen.

Police said the rifles and two of the shotguns were recovered from the break-in at the 2311 29th St. home of Mike Adams.

A detective said the case had been forwarded to the district attorney.

Other Wednesday arrests included one of a 31-year-old man for driving with his license suspended at 2:56 p.m. in the 2900 Block of Ave. C.

Two 18-year-old male suspects were arrested for being minors in possession of alcohol at 7:32 p.m. at a College Ave. drive-in restaurant.

3 wrecks noted

Police Wednesday investigated a two-car collision in the 2300 Block of College Ave. and two other accidents in which parked vehicles were hit.

A 1986 Dodge driven by James C. Price of Rt. 2, Snyder, was in collision with a 1974 Chevrolet Impala driven by Floyd James Collins of Rt. 3, Snyder, at 2:44 p.m. on College.

A 1978 Ford van driven by Sammye McClure of 114 Peach was in collision with a parked 1986 Cadillac owned by Enserve at 11:05 p.m. in the 100 Block of the East Highway.

A 1975 Cadillac driven by Jerome Hopkins of Box 241, Snyder, was in collision with a parked 1973 Dodge van owned by Wade Garrett of 1112 33rd St. and with a dumpster owned by the city at 11:30 a.m. in the 3300 Block of Ave. L.

The cover artwork for this year's directory is by Texas artist Ross Edwards. It is titled "Telecommunications Possibilities" and depicts the implications of Southwestern Bell's $12 billion network in Texas.

The artwork appears on more than nine million Southwestern Bell Telephone directories distributed across the state. This year, 52 white pages and 89 yellow pages comprise the Snyder directory. There are 8,084 white page listings.

Other features include local emergency numbers listed on the inside front page cover and a "consumer guide" at the front which offers tips on ways to save money on phone service.

Also included is a toll-free number Texas customers may call if they have a complaint about their telephone service. The number is (800) 422-0499.

Reducing risk of hepatitis

DEAR DR. GOTT — My boyfriend and I travel frequently in rural areas of Third World countries, putting us at high risk for hepatitis. Is it better to get a permanent vaccine for hepatitis B or to go with gamma globulin? Do either of these protect against hepatitis A?

DEAR READER — You and your boyfriend should have blood tests to determine whether you are already immune to hepatitis B, a serious liver infection that is common in underdeveloped parts of the world. If neither of you is immune, you should be given the hepatitis B vaccine.

Don't rely on gamma-globulin injections to protect you against hepatitis B; this serum is useful primarily in protecting against hepatitis A, a far less serious liver ailment. Hepatitis B is caused by a virus that is distinct from the one causing hepatitis A; therefore, the B vaccine will not prevent you from acquiring hepatitis A if you deviate from strict hygienic measures, such as being careful of drinking water and uncooked food.

For information on health problems in any specific country, the U.S. Department of State in Washington, D.C., can be of great assistance.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm 73 and in fine shape, but when I sit in the sun with my bare feet exposed, my feet begin to itch within a few minutes and I must cover them up. What could cause this?

DEAR READER — You seem to have an allergy to sunlight, affecting a relatively unexposed portion of your body. In some sun-sensitive people, ultraviolet light triggers the release of histamine, a compound causing itching, swelling and hives. Try a sunscreen on your feet.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I chew five packs of chewing gum a day. Is this bad?

DEAR READER — This seems like a lot of chewing gum. I'd advise you to reduce your consumption. The sugar in regular gum will affect your dental enamel and lead to cavities. Sugar-free gum is easier on the teeth, but the flavoring compounds often cause chronic inflammation of the tongue, throat and mouth lining. (In addition, many sugar-free gums are tougher than regular chewing gums, which can loosen fillings.)

If you have a chewing-gum habit, try chewing the old wad longer and not changing to new pieces so often. As gum is chewed, the sweeteners and flavors leach out of the substance; tired-out gum will be less likely to give you future problems.

Dr. Gott's new Health Report on VIRUSES AND CANCER tells about the latest discoveries in cancer research. For your copy, send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Ring named cardiac surgery chief

DALLAS (AP) — William Steves Ring, one of the nation's most active heart transplant surgeons, will become chief of cardiac surgery at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School on Jan. 1, officials say.

Ring, 42, who has performed more than 100 heart transplants since 1984 at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis, said Wednesday he will work with the staffs at St. Paul Medical Center and Children's Medical Center to establish active cardiac transplant programs.

The surgeon currently is director of cardiac transplantation at the University of Minnesota, one of the world's largest organ-transplant centers.

The medical school recruited Ring to add a "world-class heart transplant program" to existing medical education and research, said William B. Neaves, dean of the UT Southwestern Graduate School and interim medical school dean.

AIDS test...

Patent obtained for process

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — A new discovery may hold the key to determining which AIDS virus-infected people will eventually develop the deadly disease, researchers say.

The laboratory process was developed at Texas A&M University by Dr. Luther Lindner of the school's Pathology and Laboratory Medicine Department, and Stephen R. Wechter, a former research assistant in the department.

"More testing is going to have to be done before we know how reliable it is," Lindner said. "Certainly, it has the potential for providing a useful test."

Wechter acquired sole patent rights from Texas A&M and Lindner is continuing work on the process at a Houston private firm. Lindner and Texas A&M will get a percentage of royalties from any income associated with the patent.

Lindner said the process appears to show whether a person exposed to the AIDS virus will develop full-blown AIDS. The process could develop into an alternative to current testing procedures, he said.

Whether such a new procedure would actually be any better or definitely determine who will get AIDS has not yet been determined, Lindner added.

But "if we're right, it's going to make an explosive impact in the AIDS field," he said.

The process is based on Lindner and Wechter's studies of a disease similar to AIDS that occurs naturally in monkeys.

The monkey's symptoms matched human AIDS symptoms closely except for the presence of the AIDS-related human T-cell leukemia-lymphoma virus, which was missing from the monkeys.

"We're obviously detecting something other than HTLVIII," Wechter said. "It may be a new virus. It may be a product of the disease. We just don't know at this point."

Lindner said identifying the unknown factor should be one of the major aims of future research.

Whatever "it" is, it appears to provide reliable information about AIDS in humans. In double-blind laboratory tests, Lindner and Wechter were able to detect AIDS in samples from people with no other positive signs and track the disease's progress from their test samples.

Wechter says additional research eventually could make their process a jumping-off place for a three-pronged attack on AIDS — a vaccine to help prevent the disease, a screening tool and a drug to treat the disease after infection.

Judge to stay on bench

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — A state district judge who has been diagnosed with a rare and incurable ailment known as Lou Gehrig's disease says he will remain on the bench and may file for re-election next month.

"I believe in miracles, and hopefully, I will have a miracle in my life," said District Judge Joe Joiner, 62, of Sherman. "I plan to whip it one way or the other."

Joiner said Wednesday the disease was diagnosed last week by a physician at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn.

A vigorous man who once was drafted to play professional football for the Los Angeles Rams, Joiner began showing symptoms of the disease last spring.

He started walking with a cane, and after returning from vacation in August, began using a walker. The disease has progressed to the point that Joiner has difficulty speaking.

Nevertheless, Joiner said he plans to return to work Monday in the 59th State District Court. His term expires Dec. 31, 1988, but Joiner hasn't ruled out filing for re-election before the Jan. 4 deadline.

Lou Gehrig's disease does not affect the mind, but destroys motor neurons in the spinal cord, resulting in the gradual deterioration of the body's muscles.

WE'RE INVOLVED IN Progress

There's still time to say...

I'm in.

Snyder has been selected as the site for a 1,000-bed Texas state prison. The deadline to raise $1 million for land and industrial building purchase has been extended to Friday, Dec. 11.

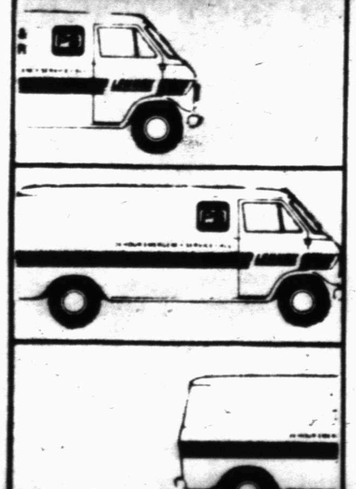

The goal is in sight, but you still have time to be a part of this milestone in community progress that will mean 250 new jobs with a payroll of $6.7 million annually.

Local financial institutions are offering long-term, low-interest loans for persons wishing to make a contribution to the prison fund. Or you may make your tax-free contribution to the Snyder County Area Foundation at the chamber of commerce office or mail it to Drawer CC, Snyder, 79549.
