Japanese Newspaper Says...

Allen Also Got 'Large Gift'

TOKYO (AP) — Richard V. Allen, already under investigation for receiving $1,000 and two watches for arranging an interview with Nancy Reagan, also got a "large gift" for his help, a Japanese newspaper said today.

There were also reports from Washington that President Reagan's inner circle of advisers, including Mrs. Reagan, want the president to fire Allen, his national security adviser, to limit the political damage from the affair.

The latest development in the Allen controversy was reported in Mainichi Shimbun. The leading Japanese daily was one of the first papers to report that police were investigating Allen for setting up the Jan. 21 interview with the first lady for the Japanese magazine, Shufu-no-tomo, or Housewife's Friend.

The newspaper said today that the magazine was able to get to Mrs. Reagan during the hectic inauguration festivities because of a "large gift" Allen received from his longtime friend, Tamotsu Takase.

Takase's wife, Chizuko, served as an interpreter during the interview at the White House.

Mainichi did not give any indication what the "large gift" was or say how it obtained its information.

According to the report, Takase flew in to Washington on Jan. 18, one day ahead of schedule, to help his wife prepare for the interview. It said he met with Allen the same day.

Takase, a professor at Kyoto Industrial University, was quoted as telling the newspaper Friday that he had nothing to do with setting up the interview.

But today he retracted that statement and told the paper: "I found my wife having difficulty arranging an interview (with Mrs. Reagan) so I telephoned presidential adviser Allen and asked him to approach Mrs. Reagan and ask her to grant my wife an interview."

The Associated Press has not been able to reach the Takases for comment since the matter surfaced two weeks ago.

Allen has admitted receiving a $1,000 honorarium from the magazine intended as a donation to charity. He said he put the money in a safe and forgot about until it was discovered eight months later.

He also acknowledged receiving two watches, valued at about $165 each, as a thank-you gift from Mrs. Takase. He said, however, that the watches were intended for his wife from an old family friend and were received before the Jan. 20 inauguration, and thus before he was a public official.

That differs with what the author of the magazine piece, Fuyuko Kamisaka, told The Associated Press. She said Allen was given one watch on Jan. 16 and then another one on Jan. 21. Takase was quoted by Mainichi as saying that Allen received the second watch that day, also.

Mainichi said the "large gift" was discovered during investigations by Japan's National Police Agency and the U.S. Justice Department. It said the Justice Department had asked Japanese officials to reopen their investigation.

A National Police Agency spokesman reached by telephone early today said the agency could not comment on the investigation.

In Santa Barbara, Calif., where Reagan is vacationing, deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said he had no comment on the Mainichi report.

Asked about published reports that the White House is looking for a replacement for Allen, Speakes said presidential counselor Edwin Meese III already had denied the story "and I will also deny that."

The Washington Post quoted sources in today's editions as saying that Mrs. Reagan, White House chief of staff James A. Baker III and deputy chief of staff Michael K. Deaver "are pushing forcefully for Allen's removal to limit the political damage that the series of disclosures has caused the president."

The Post said Meese alone among Reagan's top advisers is resisting the calls for Allen's resignation. Meese, Allen's immediate boss in the White House hierarchy, believes that no one has presented any evidence that Allen broke any laws or regulations in his dealings with the Japanese magazine, the Post reported.

But Mrs. Reagan and the top presidential advisers are convinced that Allen made serious errors of judgment in receiving the money, and in continuing relationships with former clients and associates of the consulting business he sold when he entered public service, the Post reported.

GINS HUMMING—Cotton gins in Scurry County are working on huge backlogs following a period of good harvest weather. The 1981 crop is expected to be among the best ever here. (SDN Staff Photo)

Scurry Cotton Moves Rapidly

One of Scurry County's best cotton crops was still moving rapidly to the gins at the end of the week.

Although few observers would speculate this early on the total crop, none thought the gins had processed half of the crop and some doubted that more than a third of the crop had been ginned.

The eight gins in Scurry County had ginned 30,840 bales and reported more than 10,000 bales on their yards waiting for service.

However, these figures do not include cotton already harvested and put into modules in the fields, which will account for several thousand more bales already harvested.

One observer commented that the farmers probably would finish with their harvest work in another week or two, but the gins will have to keep on running for several weeks to handle the backlog.

The total yield is being compared to the bumper 1979 crop, which fell just short of the 100,000 bale mark. This year's crop may not match that of 1979, but it likely will be no worse than the second biggest crop ever produced here, based on reports at this stage of the harvest season.

Ideal harvest weather has enabled farmers to get the cotton off the stalks quickly during the past two weeks.

The bales ginned by the end of the week by gins:

Daily News To Publish Santa Letters

The Snyder Daily News again will serve as a clearing house for letters to Santa Claus this Christmas season.

Youngsters throughout the area are invited to send their letters to Santa to the newspaper. All of those received in time will be published in the Snyder Daily News' big Christmas Eve Edition, which will get Santa's attention.

Letters to Santa may be mailed to the Snyder Daily News, Box 949, Snyder 79549, or they may be dropped off at the newspaper office at 2103 25th St.

Reagan Will Personally Arbitrate Cabinet Spats

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan is preparing to pass judgment on appeals from Cabinet secretaries anxious to protect their departments from deep budget cuts being drafted for 1983.

The president has blocked out up to 20 hours in his schedule, beginning next Friday and running through mid-December, to go over 1983 budget plans and arbitrate quarrels between his budget-cutters and Cabinet officers.

"We expect this year an unusual number of appeals because the cuts in the 1983 budget will run very deep and many of these decisions will have to come from the president as to where these cuts come from," said White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes.

In other developments late Friday, Speakes refused to comment on new published reports concerning national security adviser Richard V. Allen, who is under investigation for accepting money from a Japanese magazine. Speakes also had nothing to say about reports that Mideast "hit teams" are out to assassinate the president and other American leaders.

Like many members of Congress, the Cabinet chiefs are trying to protect their favorite programs from the budget ax. "I think they agree on the need to cut the budget," said Speakes. "However, they differ on the various programs — which programs should be cut and which shouldn't."

Budget Director David Stockman already has set a spending ceiling on each department for the 1983 budget plan, which will be sent to Congress in January and take effect next Oct. 1. Cabinet officials were given a chance to appeal directly to Stockman about his decisions and the budget director then made a ruling.

For Cabinet secretaries unhappy with Stockman's ruling, "the next step is to come to the president with their appeals," Speakes said. "The president will review them."

Speakes said Reagan will hold nine meetings on the 1983 budget next month.

His decisions will be tentative, "subject to the fine-tuning by the Office of Management and Budget in light of the current economic projections that will be finalized and fine-tuned in January," Speakes said.

But as work moves forward with the 1983 budget, the administration and Congress continue feuding over the 1982 budget. A temporary funding resolution keeping the government solvent expires on Dec. 15.

Reagan, nearing the end of a week-long vacation, will fly back to Washington on Monday, stopping off briefly in Cincinnati for an Ohio Republican fund-raiser.

Back in Washington, Reagan will meet Tuesday and Wednesday with labor leaders in what Speakes described as listening sessions for the president.

Weekend update

Williams' Plea Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge has rejected a plea by attorneys for Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr. to block the Senate debate scheduled to begin next week on whether the New Jersey Democrat should be expelled for his conduct in the Abscam case.

U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard A. Gesell said it was "clearly premature" for the court to enter the proceedings.

He noted that the request comes on "the eve" of Senate deliberations in the matter but before the Senate itself has decided what the format will be.

"It is crystal clear that the court should not intervene," he said at the close of a 40-minute hearing. He said he could not recall a single instance in which courts told Congress how to conduct its deliberations.

The debate is to begin on Thursday.

Firefighter Hurt

DALLAS (AP) — A fireman was hospitalized with second-degree burns early today after fighting a five-alarm blaze at an apartment complex that was under construction.

Fire investigators say they suspect arson in the North Dallas blaze, which broke out late Friday.

The fire destroyed 28 units of the Club View Apartments, causing an estimated $250,000 in damage, investigators said.

No other injuries were reported.

Police Breaking Up Gang

DALLAS (AP) — Arrests are breaking up that "Over-the-Hill" gang, a group of middle-aged men suspected of committing a string of grocery store robberies in Texas and Oklahoma over the last two years, police say.

The group got the nickname because the robbers were described by victims as between 30 and 60 years old. Police say they believe the men became acquainted in prison and began robbing grocery and discount stores and some banks in early 1980.

Police investigators met in Dallas last December in an effort to stop the gang. Since then, police say, one man has been arrested in Austin and another picked up in Sacramento, Calif. on an Austin warrant. Two other suspected members of the gang are believed to be dead, police say.

But a 67-year-old Oklahoma man suspected of being the group's ringleader is still at large. He wears a hearing aid, police say.

Unable To Resolve Troubles

LONDON (AP) — The failure of this week's Common Market summit to resolve major policy issues was another example of how hard it is to reach agreement in an organization that balances diverse national interests against a commitment to European economic and political unity.

"I regret to say that despite intensive preparations, it was not possible to arrive at an overall, detailed agreement that we all wished," said Gaston Thorn of Luxembourg, president of the European Commission, at the conclusion of the two-day summit Friday.

After 17 months of arguing about reform of the Common Market, the various governments didn't apppear ready to "give in" at the latest summit.

The SDN Column

JoAnn Nunley, one of our erstwhile colleagues here at the SDN, stopped by the office the other day and mentioned that she had been doing some baking in preparation for the holiday season, which reminded us again that Christmas is practically here.

JoAnn said the baking chore at her house is a losing battle, unless she can get the baked goods stashed away in a safe place before her husband, Mickey, makes the scene.

He eats them on the spot.

This also reminds us that the staff of Reagan V. Brown, Texas Agriculture Commissioner, has compiled two recipe collections for holiday goodies that emphasize Texas agricultural products.

One is called "Texas Hors d'oeuvres" and the other is titled "Cookies and Candies, a Collection of Texas Treats for Holiday Serving." You can get free copies by writing Brown at the Texas Department of Agriculture, P. O. Box 12847, Austin 78711.

The topic of strange comments by small children, especially in the elementary school room, came up the other day, and Dr. Ben Brock observed that sometimes parents produce statements even more amazing than their children.

Brock, who taught in high school and served as a high school principal earlier in his career, recalled an excuse for an absence a parent submitted for a high school student:

"Please excuse John for being absent Tuesday. He had to be a ball-bearing at a funeral."

Another asked that a child be excused "because he had dierear."

No group has a monopoly on strange expressions. This one is attributed to Dr. Charles H. Mayo, co-founder of the Mayo Clinic. He had just completed his examination of a patient and he was forced to admit that he was stumped.

"I can only conclude that what you have is psychosomatic," said the doctor.

"What is that, doctor?" asked the patient.

It's an expression we doctors use," he explained. "It means if we cannot diagnose your ailment, you're probably crazy."

Filing Begins Jan. 1...

Decisions Needed To Start Political Year

A new political year is just over a month away, but so far Scurry Countians are not sure how their local precincts will be lined up. Moreover, it is time for new voter registration cards to be issued, but without precinct boundaries being established, the process may be complicated, if not impossible to achieve in time for the May primary elections.

Scurry County Commissioners in September approved proposed new boundaries for commissioners' precincts. However, they cannot be established until they are approved by the federal government.

The Texas election code permits candidates for public office to file during the period from Jan. 1 through Feb. 1. Thus, the filing period is only a month and two days away.

"If we send out new voter registration cards now and the new precinct lines are not approved, we would have to start all over again," said Beverly Ainsworth, County Clerk.

The U. S. Constitution requires that precinct lines for county commissioners be adjusted following each federal census to equalize population in the precincts. This time, the adjustment will result in considerable change for Scurry County.

The delay is caused by the Voting Rights Act of 1965. This legislation requires federal approval for any change in voting rules or practices as well as bilingual ballots for elections in areas with substantial minority population which has a primary language other than English. The entire State of Texas is subject to the Voting Rights Act.

As amended in 1975, the Voting Rights Act covers any state or subdivision with five percent of its voting age citizens members of a single language minority group; where election materials were printed only in English in 1972; where fewer than 50 percent of the voting age citizens were registered to vote, or voted in the 1972 presidential election.

Any changes made locally or state-wide in voting procedures must have federal approval under the Voting Rights Act. For example, Scurry County had to get approval to forego the use of punch card type voting machines and use paper ballots and to have only four polling places for the Nov. 3 general election.

It results in extra paper work and time. But the big problem often is getting decisions out of Washington. In recent elections here, including that of Nov. 3, approval of the paper ballots and reduction in number of polling places for one time only came several days after the election was held. Naturally there was considerable correspondence and some telephone calls involved before the approval was received.

Scurry County officials hope the proposed precinct lines will be approved before the filing period begins, and of course the county clerk hopes for a decision before new voter registration cards go out.

"If we don get it (a decision) and they change our plan after the cards go out, I don't know how we could straighten it out before the primary without calling everyone in to re-register," said Mrs. Ainsworth.

Hamlin, Hale Center Meet Here Friday

Snyder has attracted its third football playoff game of the season with a Class AA quarter-final game between Hamlin and Hale Center.

The tilt is set for 7:30 p.m. Friday in Tiger Stadium. Tickets will be $4 for adults and $2 for students.

Hamlin advanced in the playoffs by defeating Plains, 28-22, while Hale Center dumped Clarendon, 31-14.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Maybe a reaction to stress

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm 61 years old, working and have a mild case of hypoglycemia. I'm under a doctor's care. I would like to double check with you. Why do I have to go every six to eight weeks for a blood test and urine test? Can hypoglycemia be cured? I get no medication or needles, just diet and I have to carry a candy bar or sugar at all times, in case of weakness or dizziness. My blood pressure is mostly on the low side. Please explain this disease and send me a diet.

DEAR READER — Since only about one in 50 people running around with a diagnosis of low blood sugar really have hypoglycemia, I am reluctant to assume that you do.

It is a popular diagnosis with the public and with some doctors. I am afraid it is often used as a wastebasket for ill-defined symptoms that the doctor needs a diagnosis for and the patient demands an explanation for. And usually the patient demands a diagnosis other than anxiety — even when that is the real cause.

For some reason people are much more comfortable in believing those sweaty palms, fast heart beat and faint feelings are all because of low blood sugar rather than a reaction to stress or anxiety.

There are some people who have weakness, dizziness, sweating and may even collapse from a very low blood sugar level. In rare cases this is caused by a tumor producing too much insulin. It can also occur in a diabetic who takes too much insulin. In a small number of people it is caused by a faulty release or overproduction of insulin in response to eating sweets and starches.

These people have true reactive hypoglycemia and you may be one of them. The diagnosis cannot be made without demonstrating the low blood glucose level during an attack or at least demonstrating the same symptoms and low blood glucose during a glucose tolerance test.

This is all very complicated and I am sending you The Health Letter number 18-8, Hypoglycemia: The Low Blood Sugar Problem, to give you more details. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Meanwhile I would suggest that you wear some support hose or pressure bandages around your legs. If you are dizzy from low blood pressure that may help by preventing pooling of blood in your legs. Also avoid sweets and starches. The candy and sugar is only for an emergency.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column about doing exercises to enlarge the muscles over the chest to increase your bust measurements. You said that once your pectoral muscles are as large as you want you can maintain their size by doing exercises once a week. Why just once a week? I'm sure other readers wonder the same thing. Does this apply to sit ups, leg raises etc?

DEAR READER — There have been careful studies on how to exercise to build the size and strength of muscles and how to maintain their size and strength. A proper set of strength exercises three times a week, spaced to provide at least one day of rest between exercise periods will produce the maximum development.

And once you have achieved your goal doing those exercises once a week will maintain your muscles in that state. This applies to all muscles. But it applies only to the use of exercises to enlarge and strengthen muscles. If you are exercising to use calories or develop endurance then you need to follow a different schedule. Too much exercise may even slow the optimal rate of muscle development.

In Houston...

Police Shortage

HOUSTON (AP) — Anyone who has ever gotten a ticket for speeding 10 miles over the limit and complained that the arresting officer would better serve society by chasing rapists and muggers might feel happy here.

Houston Police Department officials say they are so short-handed they have had to abolish their traffic division and streamline other departments just to provide the bare essential services.

Traffic citations now are considered an extra duty of regular patrol squadrons. It means, "unfortunately, you can speed or run a red light in Houston and not get caught if you're lucky, and you don't have to be too terribly lucky," said police spokesman Larry Troutt.

He said Houston has about 3,000 officers and needs at least 5,000.

The department has launched a national recruiting program focused on urban areas of the Northeast and aimed at blacks and Hispanics, but because of the department's rigid standards, only 70 out of every 1,000 applicants qualify for the police academy.

Another problem, said Deputy Chief Bill Gaines, is a tarnished image of the Houston Police Department in recent years and a general hostility among young people toward any kind of authority, a holdover of the "lifestyle of the 1960s."

To complicate matters, nearly half of all applicants are disqualified because of their past use of drugs, Gaines said. He said that at the present rate, "it will take us 10 to 12 years to get to 5,000 and by that time we're probably going to be behind again," because of the city's rapid population growth.

In the meantime, Troutt says, if a Houston resident is involved in a minor traffic accident or his home is burglarized while he is away, the police department's advice is: Don't call us.

"What we're doing in Houston is saying, folks, we're undermanned, and until we get it together, you're going to have to help us out," said Troutt. He said motorists involved in non-injury accidents should go in person to the nearest police substation or headquarters within 24 hours and fill out an accident report.

Burglary victims are told to do the same thing.

"Logic would tell you, call the police and wait," Trout said. "But you know in your heart it's going to be a formality in most cases because very rarely will there be enough clues left by the common ordinary burglar to catch him later on.

"It used to be that the citizen role in the policing effort was more of a crime prevention effort. Now we're actually getting them involved in the working situation — stuff a police officer has had to do in the past," said Troutt.

The shortage has attracted a chapter of the "Guardian Angels" to establish patrols in Houston, and some businessmen have hired their own police guards. Merchants in the Montrose neighborhood near downtown pooled their funds six months ago to hire two off-duty officers to walk the beat in that area, which Troutt said was congested with "prostitutes, con artists and muggers."

Gaines said Houston has 1.7 police officers for every 1,000 residents — the lowest ratio among the nation's top 10 cities. He said Philadelphia, which has about the same population as Houston, has more than five officers per every thousand citizens.

The FBI has recommended a ratio of at least 2.5 officers per 1,000 residents, but if that were used here, "we've been undermanned for 10 to 12 years," said Gaines.

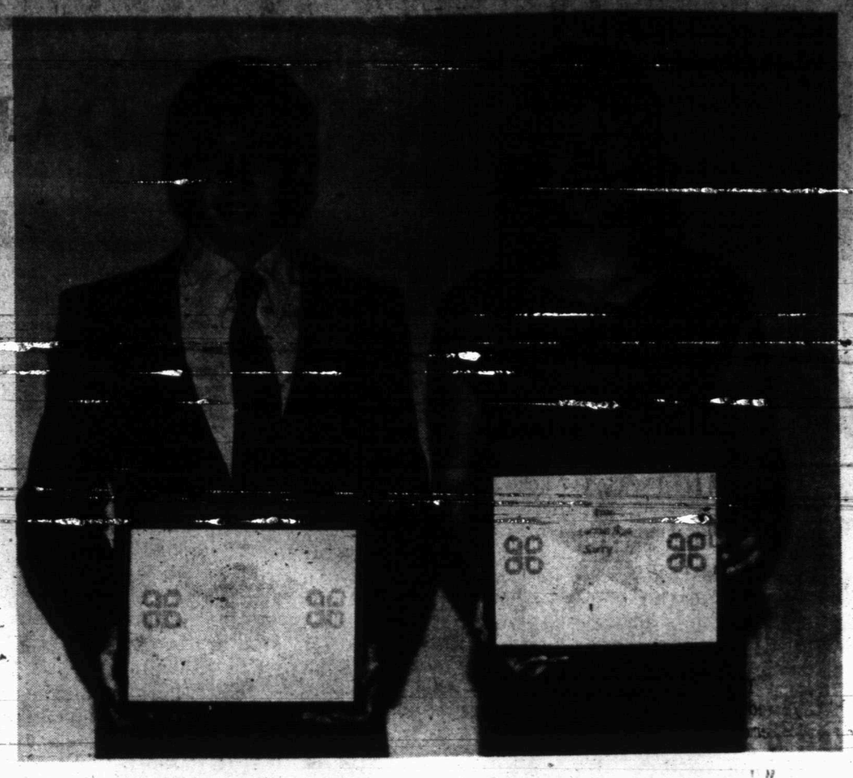

He said in 1974, when the department had about half as many officers as it needed to meet the FBI minimum standard, it accepted $3.5 million in federal funds and embarked on a national campaign to attract recruits.

"We recruit at national conventions, county fairs, rodeos, parking lots, shopping centers — everything except going out and roping people and dragging them in," said Gaines.

As a result, as many as three quarters of the cadets in training here today are from out of state, with New York and Detroit at the top of the list of home towns.

"Our schools have been heavily from northern and eastern cities — the mostly economic depressed areas," said Gaines.

Alexander Graham Bell discovered the principle of the telephone in 1875.

More People Are 'Burning' Out

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

In the movie "Network" the deteriorating television newscaster struck a responsive chord, and all over America people were leaning out of their windows shouting, "I'm mad as hell and I'm not going to take it anymore."

What's happening in the real America is that people are shouting internally that they are mad as hell and they don't know what to do about it. All that comes out is a pitiable whisper.

Instead of just burned up, they are burned out. Some psychologists and psychiatrists think that syndrome — burnout — is the cop-out of the decade.

The victims are teachers, social workers, air traffic controllers, doctors, writers, even psychologists and psychiatrists — most often a person who has been on stage too long.

The physical and emotional symptoms intertwine — ulcers, high blood pressure, jagged and bitten fingernails, boredom, wet palms, twitches, short temper, trembling hands, excessive drinking, impotence, hypochondria, paranoia, depression and general joylessness.

Paul Quinnett, psychologist and director of the Spokane Mental Health Center, wrote recently:

"Burnout, as a fresh clinical syndrome has, as yet, had only a dubious scientific reputation and a small but ardent following, even though some clinicians have been betting that burnout would, with the 1980s, emerge as the victor among the host of emotional maladies visited upon 20th-century Americans."

Dr. Roger Gould, a psychiatrist on the staff at UCLA and St. John's Hospital, sees burnout as a reality. There are, he says, a lot of managers in the corporate arena who rigidly hang on to old techniques in changing times. When they fail to adapt, "five years down the line someone will say that guy burned out."

Dr. Gould also thinks the options of modern life create interesting tensions. On the one hand, people know they have more choices. They don't need to be trapped.

People in an earlier era probably suffered from job dissatisfaction as much as people do today, Dr. Gould says — "not being in the right place at the right time, not being able to use themselves, being overpowered by their bosses, the feeling of being misused, violated."

But, he surmises, there was "a different level of expectation so that people sort of inured themselves to it and died earlier, psychologically and physically."

In a recent article, Dr. Quinnett wrote sardonically that we may have stumbled upon a worthy concept with which to label our discontent. "It fits nicely with the increasingly popular view that humans, like androids, are a complicated series of relays, switches, condensers, resistors and so forth and thus augurs well for a new science of man. While someone else looks for a cure, burnout — the visual image of which is a pile of cold ashes — covers our personal failures much better than ordinary forms of irresponsibility to ourselves and others. It gives us; as I see it, the perfect out for which we have waited so long."

Prime Minister Faces Tough Election Ahead

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — Voters turned out today in bright, sunny weather for national elections that political analysts were calling the closest in recent years.

Public opinion polls published two weeks ago indicated Prime Minister Robert Muldoon's conservative National Party faced a strong challenge from the Labor Party, led by former Prime Minister Wallace "Bill" Rowling.

Both parties favor New Zealand's elaborately controlled economy and extensive programs for social welfare. The main difference between them is on how to administer the programs.

Campaigning for the 92 seats in the unicameral House of Representatives has centered more on the personalities of the two arch-rivals than on the island nation's 15 percent inflation rate, its worsening balance of payments and the 5 percent unemployment among its 3 million inhabitants.

The 60-year-old Muldoon ousted Rowling in elections in 1975, ending the only three-year period that his party had been out of power in this Commonwealth nation since 1960. The two candidates faced one another again in 1978, when Labor cut the National Party's strength to 50 seats.

Labor captured 41 seats and the Social Credit Political League won one seat in those elections. Eighty-eight of the parliamentary seats are elected by universal suffrage. The other four are selected by special electorates for the Maori, some 300,000 descendents of the original Polynesian inhabitants of New Zealand.

The personal clash between Muldoon and Rowling symbolizes the rough-and-tumble style of politics in New Zealand, where the game is played hard — like rugby, the national sport.

Muldoon has painted Rowling as a weak, vacillating man.

Muldoon's campaign theme has been "Think Big" — heavy industry investments, synthetic fuels and aluminum shelters.

Rowling has promised to review and possibly cancel all development projects, claiming they will bankrupt the country, which is heavily dependent on agriculture and the export of meat, wool and dairy products.

Muldoon is a strong supporter of President Reagan and considers the United States a world "agent of peace, prosperity and individual liberty."

Rowling, who once spent a year in the United States teaching junior high school in Seattle, has criticized the "materialistic outlook" of Americans and has advocated banning U.S. nuclear-powered warships from the island, 1,200 miles southeast of Australia.

Muldoon ridicules Rowling's high-pitched voice and insists on calling him "Wallace" despite Rowling's use of the first name "Bill."

Shoppers Crowd Stores, But Some Just Look

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
AP Business Writer

Video games, models of the space shuttle Columbia and cold-weather wear were among the hot-selling items at the traditional start of the Christmas shopping season.

An Associated Press survey found most retailers reporting crowded stores Friday and displaying the usual optimism about their biggest sales period of the year, despite the recession.

"We know that we're going to do well because there are kids who have come all summer long and they're coming back now to buy," said Ellen Morstein at The Puppet Show, a store in Baltimore's Harbor Place shopping mall.

At an L.S. Ayres & Co. store in Indianapolis, an employee who declined to give his name observed: "Some days you can shoot a gun off and not hit anyone (in the store). But I had a hard time getting through the revolving doors."

"For retailers, this is the harvest time. You either make it now, or you have to make it up some other time of the year when there aren't as many people coming in," said Kevin Nyberg at Ace Hardware in Sioux Falls, S.D.

But some shoppers were concerned about economic hard times and appeared to be doing more looking than buying the day after Thanksgiving, which traditionally is viewed as the start of the holiday buying season. This year, because of deteriorating economic conditions, many merchants began promotions earlier than usual.

"We just aren't buying as much this year," said Elmer Heider, a farmer in Deshler, Neb. While Heider had one of his best grain harvests ever this year, the price he received for his crops was low.

VA Deadline Is January 1, 1982

Many veterans and their dependents and survivors are required to furnish the Veterans Administration with an annual income report to retain eligibility for disability or death benefits, E. H. (Dan) Dever Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer, said.

The annual income cards were sent to all claimants on Nov.1, 1981, and must be returned to VA by Jan. 1, 1982.

Those receiving income cards include veterans, widows and children receiving disability and death pensions, as well as dependent parents who are in receipt of death compensation or dependency and indemnity compensation based upon the service-connected death of a son or daughter. Also receiving cards this year are veterans whose service-connected disability ratings are 30 percent or more and who are in receipt of additional benefits because of dependent parents.

Veterans and widows of veterans who are 72 or older and have received VA benefits for two years or longer with no material change in income will not be required to complete the income card this year.

Persons needing assistance in completing the income card may contact Dever's office in the Western Texas College Administraton Building.

Lufkin, Tex...

Wettest Dry Town

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — More than one half-million dollars worth of alcoholic drinks were bought in Lufkin this past summer.

They also drank enough booze here to support the highway-side package stores that quench the city's thirst.

Official estimates say there are 3,220 alcoholics in Angelina County, of which Lufkin is the county seat.

All this in a town that's been dry for four decades.

"This is the wettest dry town I've ever lived in," said Mary Ingram, the convenience store owner who masterminded the petition forcing a Dec. 5 election on legalizing sale of alcoholic beverages for off-premises consumption.

It's the battle of the wets vs. the drys, a battle that goes back to the 19th century in this city of 30,000. This time around the wets call themselves "Freedom of Choice." The drys go by the name "We Care."

"Prohibition has never worked and never will. Legal sales don't force anyone to drink," said Ken Tate, a newcomer in town who is running the wet campaign for Ms. Ingram, his cousin.

"The issue is availability. Increased availability will bring problems in health, the economy, safety and crime," said the Rev. Charles McIlveene of the First Baptist Church.

First Baptist, with 3,000 members, is the biggest church in a town big on churches (about 30, according to the phone book.).

"The Bible speaks of the evils of beverage alcohol. There is no prohibition in the Bible on drinking," said McIlveene.

The prohibition comes in the "church covenant" read each October — aloud — by First Baptist members. Members promise "to avoid all tattling, backbiting and excessive anger," and to "abstain from the sale of, and use of, intoxicating drinks as a beverage."

"If they can't keep the covenant the person should join some other group," said McIlveene.

McIlveene and We Care want to run a low-key campaign, avoiding Baptist anti-booze bombast, like this:

"People, if you vote this in you will be guilty of murder, rape, robbery and muggings," said Rev. Almer Springer in a letter to the editor.

"Whiskey, wine and any kind of the stuff will ruin your home, cause you to lose your friends and cause death to come upon you and you will wind up in a devil's hell," said Clyde Wright's letter.

Architect Jimmy Griffith, chairman of We Care, said, "I don't think the ground will suddenly open up and everything will fall in if we vote wet."

However, Griffith does believe a wet town is bad for the young people, and will attract drinkers from other dry areas.

There are now two ways to get a drink here. Locally, there are the not-so-private private clubs — 15 of them. At Mr. Gatti's pizza restaurant you pay $5 for a six-month membership in its private club, an area required by city ordinance to have a wall to ensure the nondrinkers do not see the drinkers.

The other way to get a drink is to drive "across the river" to wet areas in Nacogdoches and Trinity counties.

Nine package stores line U.S. 59 along the first few hundred yards of Nacogdoches County. Ken Hitchcock at Longhorn Liquors said 90 percent of the business comes from Lufkin. An average day's sales at Longhorn add up to $1,500. It goes up to $3,000 a day on weekends.

Hitchcock said his boss already has a Lufkin site picked out if the city goes wet.

Ms. Ingram has a site picked out in her Jif-E-Mart for a walk-in cooler for booze. The Mississippi native is not shy about her motives.

"As a business person I want to make part of the money. As an individual, I drink and it would be easier to have it available on the corner," she said.

The Freedom of Choicers say Lufkin is losing money by being dry, which it has been since around 1938. Voting wet or dry was among the favorite pasttimes here in the 1930s, when there were at least seven countywide elections.

The first election on the books was in 1898, when residents of a precinct voted 158-157 against the sale of "intoxicating liquors or medicated bitters capable of producing intoxication."

The voter turnout for the upcoming election could be as high as 70 percent, some observers say.

Few Lufkinites are making predictions. All agree Lufkin has changed. The fact is the town has grown, thanks to a fairly stable economy based on a foundry and a paper mill.

Also fact, however, is that Lufkin is still a small town. You only have to dial five numbers to make a local call.

"There's been a lot of changes from the new people ... of the wet disposition," said McIlveene.

Tate, 30, is a new person of the wet disposition. He wound up in Lufkin in January after R.J. Reynolds laid him off in North Carolina. He is an outsider who has sparked the suspicions of the locals, who are not shy about repeating what they "hear" about people.

"There's probably some people here who don't like me," he said.

"Lufkin, although legally dry, is very wet," said Tate, who makes one trip a week across the river to get his beer.

Lynn Alexander, executive director of the Deep East Texas Regional Council on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse, agreed with Tate's assessment of Lufkin.

"When you get right down to it, Angelina County is not dry," Alexander said. "There's a lot of overindulging on weekends."

The beer cans on the parking lots where the teenagers congregate are evidence of the weekend boozing, he said.

"The problem drinkers tend to come from two kinds of families; where alcoholic abuse is a continuing thing and they pick it up, or where abstinence is the household word. It's strictly forbidden and if you do it you're going to hell," he said.

There will be little change in Lufkin if the city votes wet, he predicted.

What will Lufkin be like in 10 years if it goes wet? The voters can look north to Nacogdoches, where the precinct adjoining Angelina County went wet in 1971.

The crime wave predicted by the drys? "I can't seen any great problems as far as law enforcement is concerned," said Nacogdoches Police Chief Don Barlow.

VA Plans To Reduce Debts

The Vetrans Administration is planning to substantially reduce the number of outstanding debts owed to the government, E. H. (Dan) Dever, Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer, said.

The VA has announced that the area of Texas services by the VA regional office in Waco has approximately 5,930 cases of delinquent debts by veterans under immediate review in which legal action will be taken unless the debts are paid.

Richard Jones, the VA's district counsel in Waco, said that new cases of uncollected debts are being referred to his office on an average of 680 cases each month and that his office will bring suit against approximately 250 Texas veterans this week.

Jones added that his collection activities are "part of a nationwide effort to recover all debts owned by veterans and non-veterans alike."

Veterans and their dependants who need information about VA activities may contact Dever's office in the Western Texas College Administration Building. The office will be closed from Dec. 23 through Jan. 2, for the Christmas-New Year holiday and persons wishing to contact the office are asked to take note of that closing date.

Policeman Saves Teen, Adopts Him

NEW YORK (AP) — A drama that began on a Bowery roof ledge three months ago has ended in a Staten Island family court, where the police officer who talked Michael Buchanan out of suicide officially became his adopted father.

When William Fox met the 17-year-old in early September, Buchanan was a lonely, depressed runaway perched on the edge of a flophouse rooftop, threatening to end a life that had bounced him from town to town and home to home.

But on Friday the 35-year-old bachelor and his new son were hugging and smiling on the courthouse steps as they told reporters how Michael's life had changed since Fox took temporary custody of the youth in early October.

"He's going to go to college and become a productive citizen of this city," Fox said. "He's going to high school, he's on the bowling team and he's got a girlfriend."

"Yeah, I'll call him 'Dad,'" Michael said, smiling. "But it's going to sound funny."

The scene was not as bright when the two met in the Bowery. As the crowd encouraged the youth to leap, Fox asked Michael to crawl over to him.

"See, they don't care about me," Michael said, gesturing toward the spectators.

"Somebody cares," Fox told him. "I'd be proud to have a son like you."

Michael pulled back from the ledge, and the friendship began.

Fox called Friday's final adoption order "a great Thanksgiving gift for both of us. Michael is doing great and is very pleased, and so am I. We're going to be a family."

"I've never gotten this kind of a second chance before," Michael said.

Fox said he had received telephone calls from both of Michael's parents and neither objected to the adoption.

He said juvenile authorities in Tennessee told him Michael's mother left him and his father when Michael was a baby. Michael was taken away from his father after the man left his son in a car alone for eight hours while working at a carnival.

Authorities also found that Michael had been abused, Fox said.

The youth said he ran away from foster families in Tennessee and North Carolina before heading for Ohio and then to New York City in September. He arrived in the city with $6, he said. After a night of riding the subway, he drifted to the Bowery, where he washed dishes and panhandled.

Insurance FACTS
by Tom Deffebach
YOUR Independent Insurance AGENT

Physical damage and collision insurance are often combined with liability insurance in a package policy for the family automobile. A package policy might also include uninsured motorist coverage. This would protect against injury or damage caused by a hit-and-run driver or by a driver who does not have liability insurance. Physical damage and collision policies used to be written primarily on a $50 or $100 deductible basis. Today, such coverages are usually written with a $200, $250 or $500 deductible amount.

All types of insurance coverage can be handled in our office. We're well known for giving personalized service to our clients at THE DEFFEBACH AGENCY, College Heights Shopping Center, 573-5611. We specialize in fire, auto, homeowners and complete commercial insurance service. You'll find us centrally located to all areas of the city. Hours: 9am-5pm Mon. thru Fri.

INSURANCE TIP:
The difference in costs between smaller and larger deductibles can often pay for the minor losses not covered, especially over a period of years.

THANK YOU FOR SHOPPING AT K-MART 3500 COLLEGE SNYDER TEXAS

LAWMAKERS TO VISIT SNYDER— These two members of the Texas House of Representatives will be in Snyder for a reception set for 2 p. m. Monday at the Western Texas College Student Center. Rep. Gib Lewis of Fort Worth, right, is the leading candidate to succeed Rep. Billy Clayton as Speaker of the House, and Rep. Walter Grubbs of Merkel already has announced that he will seek the new 78th District seat in the legislature in the 1982 election. Scurry County has been assigned to the new 78th District. The public is invited visit with them during the reception at WTC, which is sponsored by the local Political Action Committee.

Joyful Family Reunion Shattered By Death

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — Joy turned to grief when 12-year-old Steven Tobias collapsed minutes after he saw his dying "Uncle John" for the first time in a reunion that ended 27 years of separation for a family split by a quarrel.

The boy died 80 minutes later.

Steven had traveled with his father, Paul, from Wheeling, Ill., to Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport for the tearful Thanksgiving night reunion with his father's brother, John Tobias. The brothers had last seen each other in 1954 at their mother's funeral.

Steven collapsed onto the floor of the American Airlines terminal and was pronounced dead at a nearby hospital. His mother, Betty Tobias, said he recently had the flu but seemed to be in good health.

John, 60, of the Fort Worth suburb of Haltom City, and his 58-year-old brother Paul had learned each other's whereabouts two weeks ago.

The brothers held hands at the airport Thursday night as paramedics worked to revive Steven. Among those trying to calm Steven's mother were relatives she had just met.

John's stepdaughter, Anne Carter of Watauga, and her husband Bobby, helped administer cardiopulmonary resuscitation. The couple had received medical training through their work with an ambulance service.

Steven was pronounced dead at Hurst-Euless-Beford Hospital at 9:44 p.m.

An autopsy was performed Friday but the cause of death was still being investigated, according to Marc Krouse, a deputy medical examiner for Tarrant County.

Asked if the death resulted from cardiac arrest, he replied: "That must be what happened. That was the only thing everybody on the scene noticed. He just collapsed, stopped breathing, and they couldn't find any pulse."

Krouse said tests were being conducted with virus and bacterial cultures to determine if a subtle disease process, possibly connected with the flu, had damaged heart tissue and led to cardiac arrest. Those tests take at least a week, he said.

The boy's parents went home to Illinois on Friday.

Family members declined to reveal the reason for the quarrel that split the family 27 years ago. But John Tobias' son-in-law, Jay Conklin, said this week's tragedy may bring together family members who still have not been located.

"Maybe somehow the rest of the family will hear about this, and they will all come together," Conklin said. "Maybe this is the way God meant it."

The family still has not determined the whereabouts of a brother and two sisters. Two brothers have died.

John, whose two stepdaughters had been trying to locate members of the family, said his desire to see his family again intensified when he found out he had terminal cancer. Doctors found traces of cancer when his right kidney was removed a year ago but it was not until this month that they determined it was spreading and was terminal.

"Until you got the kind of sickness like I got, you don't appreciate a lot of things," John had said Wednesday, before his brother arrived. "You get a new perspective, start appreciating stuff more. This thing is draining me little by little."

Court Hears Guilty Pleas

Six individuals entered guilty pleas in the Scurry County Court last week.

Michael J. Harbey pled guilty to charges of theft between $20 and $200. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $100 for this offense.

Bernadette Elizabeth Armaturo was assesed a $300 fine and sentenced to 3 days in jail. She pled guilty to charges of Driving While Intoxicated.

Four persons entered pleas to charges of possesion of marijuana, less than two oz. Stephan Jeffrey Forrest, Jesse Warren Salter, Johnnie Daniel Martinez and Reed Adams Lawson were each fined $500 for this offense.

Drug Enforcement...

Undercover Cop

EDITOR'S NOTE — He worked undercover for the Drug Enforcement Administration and had to be protected, with his family, by the DEA's Witness Protection Program. Here's a look at the human side of undercover life, told to Associated Press Writer Bill Crider by a man who still lives it — and sometimes questions whether he did the right thing.

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — They were in Oklahoma City when Russ' wife cracked up, weeping and trembling, nerves shattered by the strain of the undercover life.

For 16 months they had been living under a new name in new places and not liking it much — ever since a man tried to kill Russ in Pensacola, Fla., with a shotgun blast out of the night.

"I started crying and couldn't stop," says Jane, a thin blonde with tired eyes. "I cried all day, I cried all night. I couldn't stop shaking. I was so depressed I couldn't cope with our two kids."

Russ, a truck driver whose true name can't be given, was stricken with remorse.

"I realized a little late the toll this was taking on Jane," he says.

It started back in 1979. After driving a 17-ton truckload of marijuana north from New Orleans to Quakertown, Pa., covering the sweetish smell of the weed with layers of sweet onions, Russ decided that he detested the drug business and the people in it.

He volunteered as an undercover man for the Drug Enforcement Administration.

He was good at it. His work turned over the biggest drug smuggling operation DEA agents in New Orleans had ever seen — one that dealt in shiploads of 70 to 100 tons of marijuana from Colombia, South America, garnished by a few kilos of cocaine. The weed sold for $200 to $250 a pound.

The organization owned four ships, small coastal steamers. It had connections in 11 large cities, 5 warehouses in New Orleans called "caves," and set up about 10 companies as fronts.

It was an efficient operation — apparently in place for several years.

"We would not have known it existed if it hadn't been for Russ," says Joseph Molyneaux, a DEA special agent who handled much of the investigation.

Russ is gone now, a somewhat bitter survivor of a deadly game, but the investigation goes on. It was code-named Operation Gemstone because so many leads traced to jewelry firms among the operation's front companies.

Despite the danger of sudden death — perhaps because of it — Russ liked his six months as a DEA spy.

Jane (also a fictitious name) says she "hated every minute of it." When she finally stood before him, weeping and trembling, he telephoned a doctor.

"He said, 'Your wife is in the process of having a nervous breakdown, she needs to go to a hospital,'" Russ recalls, a couple of months later.

"She was in there for six-and-a-half days. I was feeling, God! heavy guilt."

Life in the undercover lane started going downhill in March 1980 after the U.S. attorney's office in New Orleans, intent on keeping Russ alive, had him and his family shifted into the federal Witness Protection Program, which is handled by the U.S. marshal's office.

It arranges new and untraceable identities for federal witnesses in criminal cases who might be killed, either to keep them quiet or for revenge.

Russ and family "vanished" into the program shortly after he arrived at his mother's home in Pensacola, Fla., on a March evening in 1980 and a man stepped from the bushes beside the driveway and fired two shotgun blasts through the windshield.

The unknown gunner was a fraction of a second late. Russ already had thrown open the car door and rolled out onto the ground, clawing for his pistol. He fired a couple of shots but the only victim of the encounter was his car.

In the program, their first stop was Birmingham, Ala., where marshals began the official transformation.

"We were in the office and this marshal handed me a telephone directory and said, 'Y'all want to look in this and pick out your new name?'" says Jane. "But all the things they said they were going to do never worked out."

After two weeks in a Birmingham motel, the couple learned that Boise, Idaho, was to be their new home. All ties with their true identity were severed.

"They wanted to send us up to Kentucky but the marshal up there said he couldn't handle any more people," says Jane.

At program headquarters in McLean, Va., Russ, a lanky, sandy-haired six-footer became No. 3307.

Of all the places they lived during the next exasperating, frustrating 16 months, Boise remains Jane's favorite.

"Boise was so laid back," she says. "Everybody was nice. You could step out on your front porch and look at mountains with snow on their tops. We only lived there six months but I was lying in bed the other night and I got homesick for Boise."

However, Boise had a serious drawback. The marshals didn't locate a job. Russ says he felt unable to look for one on his own because he was never given "samitized" documents proving his new identity.

"You look for a job in a trucking line and they want to know your history over at least the last three years," he says. "If I used my real name I could be traced. If I gave my fake name I had nothing to back it up."

"During the six months we were in the program, all I ever got was a new Social Security card and a driver's license," he adds. "No birth certificate, no school records for the kids, no marriage license, no job resume, no record of past jobs. Nothing."

For living expenses, the Russes received a subsistence payment of $1,147 a month.

He did not get along with marshals. He saw them as a breed very different from the DEA and FBI field operatives he had dealt with and still admires.

What the marshals thought of him is not clear.

"We will be glad to discuss the program in general terms but we are not going to discuss any individual in the program," says Bill Dempsey, a spokesman at McLean. "We never discuss a complaint made by a person in the program. Sometimes we wish we could. There are times when it would be nice to give our side of it, but we can't."

In any event, after four months Russ sent a 23-page letter to the chief of witness security about his lack of background documents and what he considered to be indifferent treatment. He sent copies to various congressmen who were checking into complaints against the program.

"Man, that got them up on their feet," he says. But it didn't bring about much change, he adds.

The Russes were moved to Kansas City. Russ says the marshals decided that a long distance telephone call he had made could be traced and thus had breached security. When told on Oct. 1, 1980, to prepare for another move — to Milwaukee — Russ angrily dropped out.

"I called up witness security in Washington and told them I wanted a divorce on grounds of incompatability," he says.

What Jane remembers about Kansas City is anxiety. They got down to their last $10 and she had to sell her washer and drier for $40.

However, on the day Russ told the marshals to "kiss off," he was fairly flush. He says DEA officials, concerned about his complaints, got him a $20,000 reward.

DEA officials here wouldn't talk about rewards, and in Washington, a DEA spokesman said he had no information on the payment and that Russ is seldom precise about money. Russ says the government deducted from the $20,000 everything given to him previously. Then he repaid $4,800 he owed relatives. In the end, $6,000 was left.

They went back to Boise. It was still a great place, but still a case of no background references, no job.

"At one company, I explained that I had no references because I had been doing work for the feds," says Russ. "The guy says, 'Hey, if you're coming in here to check us out, we're clean.'"

With their wad of cash dwindling, the Russes moved to Oklahoma City.

"I think that last move finished her off," says Russ. "She was resentful of me for having gotten us into all this. I wouldn't have blamed her if she had split a long time ago but that's all water under the bridge now. We've been sweethearts since the second grade.

"I used to think the moving didn't matter to the kids but it did," he adds.

"Once when we had to go to a motel, the marshal says, 'They won't allow pets so you'll have to get rid of that cat.' Wendy, my 9-year-old, loved that cat. But what could I do? Any time you object to anything they threaten you with being 'terminated' from the program. So I got the cat and drove down the street until I saw some kids and I said, 'Y'all want this pretty cat?' and handed it out the window. I still feel like a rat."

Drinking Test Leads to Degree of Self-Awareness

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: I have been made aware that there is a serious drinking problem among young people. Almost everyone who drinks alcohol thinks he can handle it. If you are of school age and are into drinking, the following test is for you. Answer yes or no.

1. Do you lose time from school because of drinking?
2. Do you drink to lose shyness and build self-confidence?
3. Is drinking affecting your reputation?
4. Do you drink to escape from study or home worries?
5. Does it bother you if somebody says that maybe you drink too much?
6. Do you have to take a drink to go out on a date?
7. Do you ever get into money troubles over buying alcoholic beverages?
8. Have you lost friends since you started drinking?
9. Do you hang out now with a crowd that can get liquor easily?
10. Do your friends drink less than you do?
11. Do you drink until the bottle is empty?
12. Have you ever had a loss of memory from drinking?
13. Has drunk driving ever put you into the hospital or jail?
14. Do you get annoyed with classes or lectures on drinking?
15. Do you think you have a problem with alcohol?

If you answered "yes" to one or two questions, consider it a warning.

If you answered "yes" to three or more questions, alcohol has become a serious problem in your life.

If you are interested in learning how to deal with a drinking problem, help is available by calling Alcoholics Anonymous. It's in your telephone book. And in my book, the most effective help for an alcoholic of any age is through A.A. There are no dues; it's absolutely free. No questions will be asked. You may remain anonymous, and no one will know you've been there — unless you tell someone. If someone you care about has a drinking problem, ask about Al-Anon. For teen-agers, it's Alateen. Good luck and God bless.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a policeman, and he's one of the best. Although he is required to work eight hours a day, he averages 10 to 12 hours per day.

My problem? My husband has no time to relax. When he is home, someone is always coming to our door to talk to him about something related to his job. And when he's not talking to someone who has come to see him, he is on the telephone with someone else who wants some information. He never gets any rest.

The police department will not allow us to have a private telephone number. The only way we can get any rest or privacy is to leave the house.

Abby, please tell your readers that if they want to talk to a policeman, to go down to the station and talk to someone who is on duty. A policeman earns his time off, and he sure needs it.

COP'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Consider it done. And the same goes for plumbers, mechanics, doctors, lawyers, vets, teachers, clergymen, etc.

DEAR ABBY: My heart bleeds for the bird owner whose pet parakeet "Freddy" was set free by a visiting dodo who had to be either a total idiot or a cruel prankster.

A bird born in captivity is not equipped to fend for itself in the great outdoors. A pet bird "set free" is certain to starve or fall prey to cats or succumb to the harsh weather conditions. Sadly enough, it's too late for Freddy, but please, Abby, warn others who attempt to liberate pet birds that they are doing them no favors — they are sending them to their deaths.

Those who want to befriend our feathered friends should spread a little seed around for the wild birds this winter.

Pizza Hut To Sponsor Local Food Drive

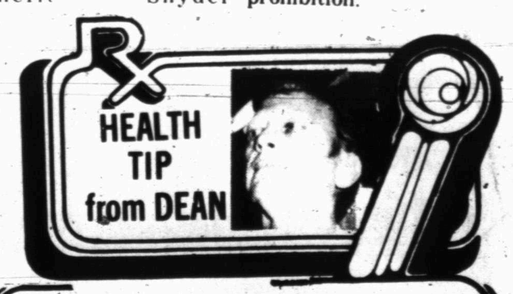

It's not often you see customers carrying food into a restaurant, but for the next few weeks that's just what you'll see at the local Pizza Hut restaurant.

Pizza Hut is sponsoring a canned food drive during this holiday season. From November 27-December 23 the local Pizza Hut restaurant will be accepting donations of canned non-perishable food to benefit Snyder Goodfellows.

This local effort is part of a state-wide drive which involves approximately 250 Pizza Hut restaurants in over 50 cities and towns throughout Texas.

As for each can donated, Pizza Hut is saying thanks by offering their customrs $2 off the price of a large size pizza or $1 off the regular price of a medium size pizza. There is a limit of one discount per pizza purchase.

In 1851, Maine became the first state to introduce prohibition.

DIABETES

If you are diabetic, your vitamin C requirements are likely in excess of other persons, states Dr. G.V. Mann, biochemist at Vanderbilt U. He theorizes that diabetics lack the ability to transport adequate vitamin C across cell membranes, resulting in serious blood disorders associated with some lifelong diabetics. Extra Vitamin C could help prevent many complications that diabetes brings with passing years.

GOOD FOR 23 YARDS -- Kyle Story takes this pass from Brownwood quarterback Tyler Tabor and goes out of bounds at the Borger 3-yard line, setting up a Lions touchdown. Running back Gene Gibson scored on the next play to make it Brownwood 14, Borger 0 early in the fourth quarter of Friday's regional playoff game here. Brownwood, 11-1, won the game 21-0 and will face Rockwall next weekend in Class 4A semi-final action. (SDN Staff Photo by Bill McClellan)

It was either closer than the score indicated or Brownwood by a rout, depending on which side of the fence you were on, but despite individual feelings, it was Lions' teamwork which put Coach Gordon Wood's charges past Borger here Friday night, 21-0.

The fourth-ranked Lions, ranked No. 4 in the state, take on Rockwall next week in semi-finals state schoolboy playoff action. Rockwall drubbed Weatherford Friday, 48-0. A site for the game was to be determined Saturday.

In other Class 4A action Friday, Beaumont Hebert defeated Waco Jefferson-Moore, 51-0, and Willowridge topped Beeville, 18-7.

Brownwood spectators no doubt feel the outcome could have been by a much wider margin. After all, the Lions miscued twice in Bulldog territory and almost completely dominated the second half.

But Coach Wood and his staff have to be sighing wih relief. Borger's super-quick backs, despite gaining only 10 first downs all night, continually tested Brownwood's swarming defense and nearly broke free on several occassions. But the real clincher may have come early when Borger's 9.4 quarterback Tony Tillman went out of the lineup with an injured ankle.

That all but ended the Bulldogs' options and roll-outs as major threats, and paved the way for the win by Brownwood.

The Lions pulled off some exciting plays themselves, beginning with their first scoring drive when quarterback Tyler Tabor hit tightend Jesse Smith on a 24 yard pass, then ran for another 25 yards on the next play. Brownwood cashed in on the 56-yard march when running back Gene Gibson scored from four yards out. Jimmy Morris' PAT kick was blocked.

The score stayed 6-0 throughout the first half, though Brownwood threated deep in Borger-land once before fumbling the ball away inside the 5-yard line.

Brownwood's second touchdown was aided by a 23-yard pitch-back pass from Tabor to Kyle Story. Gibson took the handoff from Tabor, then pitched back to the quarterback, setting up the play. Story made a perfect grab, landing just safely in bounds before going out at the 3-yard line. Gibson scored on Brownwood's next play, giving the game a 12-0 look. The Lions made it 14-0 when Tabor found Aundrey Henderson open for the two-point conversion.

Back-to-back penalties aided Brownwood's final touchdown, which came late in the fourth quarter. Personal foul and unsportsmanlike conduct calls went against the Bulldogs after Borger had apparently forced its opponent into a punting situation.

Again, the key play was Tabor to Story, this time for a 16-yard touchdown strike. Morris' kick after was good.

Gibson led the Lions in rushing with 98 yards, while Henderson added 85.

'Underdogs' Now Top Dogs...

Change Of Guard In NFL

by The Associated Press

For all those teams in the American Football Conference who kept waiting for "next year" ... well, THIS is the year.

The long-suffering Cincinnati Bengals and New York Jets, among others, all seem headed for the National Football League playoffs. In fact, if the playoffs started today, all five teams would be different from last season.

Last year's five AFC representatives in the playoffs included Buffalo, Cleveland, Houston, San Diego and Oakland. But all those have slipped this season.

Currently the Bengals, Jets, Miami Dolphins, Denver Broncos and Kansas City Chiefs have the inside track to the AFC playoffs.

The Bengals can further solidify their hold on the Central Division lead with a victory over Cleveland on Sunday. The Jets, tied with Miami in the East, play host to Baltimore, while the Dolphins play Philadelphia in the Monday night game. Denver, leading Kansas City by a half-game in the West, plays at San Diego on Sunday.

The Chiefs lost to Detroit 27-10 on Thursday, while Dallas edged Chicago 10-9 on Thanksgiving Day.

In Sunday's other action, it's Green Bay at Minnesota, Los Angeles at Pittsburgh, St. Louis at New England, Washington at Buffalo, Tampa Bay at New Orleans, Atlanta at Houston, the New York Giants at San Francisco and Oakland at Seattle.

The Bengals, who have not been in the playoffs since 1975, have been patiently awaiting the fruition of their draft selections.

Cincinnati has nine No.1 picks on its roster, and eight of those are starters. Three - Wilson Whitley, Eddie Edwards and Ross Browner - make up the defensive line. Other starters are offensive lineman Anthony Munoz, center Blair Bush, receiver Isaac Curtis, running back Charles Alexander and linebacker Glenn Cameron.

Last year's top pick, receiver David Verser, sees occasional action, but second-round pick Cris Collinsworth has become one of the league's top receiving threats.

The Bengals have suffered through records of 4-12, 4-12 and 6-10 during the past three years.

"I like the way the draft works here," said Forrest Gregg, a former Cleveland coach who took over in Cincinnati last season. "It's not uncomplicated because we're all so involved. I go to see players and so does every coach. Every bowl is covered, and I mean every one. We belong to a scouting combine and have our own scouts. It means we get a lot of opinions."

The director of the whole affair is still Paul Brown, who at 73 is vice president and general manager of the team he founded in the late 1960s.

The Jets have not had a winning season since 1969 and have rebuilt with Richard Todd, the former Alabama star, as their quarterback. Miami, Denver and Kansas City are all coming off mediocre 8-8 seasons and are hoping to regain their onetime glory.

FINDS DAYLIGHT -- Borger running back Terrance Sheppard finds running room on the sweep, but is tackled after a 15-yard gain by Brownwood defenders in this photo taken Friday night at Tiger Stadium. Borger quarterback Tony Tillman left the game with an injury in the second quarter and took a large portion of the Bulldogs' offense with him as Brownwood won, 21-0. Borger ends the season with a 9-3 record. (SDN Staff Photo)

Oilers Wanting Winning Term

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers apparently have ended a string of three straight trips to the playoffs but starting linebacker Daryl Hunt has a personal streak intact that he'd like to see continue.

"I haven't been on a losing team since junior high so I want to do everything possible to see us come out with a winning record," Hunt said. "I still have a lot of pride and so does the rest of the team so we have a chance to win our last four games and still be respectable."

The Oilers will take a 5-6 record into Sunday's game against the Atlanta Falcons in the Astrodome, a drastic turnaround from a year ago when the Oilers finished 11-5 and gained a wild card berth in the playoffs.

Hunt, like the rest of the Oiler team, is grasping for reasons to explain the turnaround.

"It's hard to dictate what people are doing outside of football," Hunt said. "I have a job outside of football that I try to continue during the season. I don't think it affects my concentration but maybe it does. It's hard to figure at this point."

With the Oilers out of the playoff picture, Hunt says the Oilers can only look to a spoiler roll for inspiration.

"I think we are as intense as we were last year but something is missing," he said. "Since we're going to be sitting home Christmas, we might as well try to keep some other teams home with us."

Hunt also discounts another popular theory about the Oilers decline--that the team has failed to respond to Coach Ed Biles' disciplinarian approach in contrast to former Coach Bum Phillips' casual coaching style.

"I don't think discipline has anything to do with it," he said. "We are pros and we're supposed to go out and do our jobs no matter what happens."

The Oilers have lost five of their last six games while the Falcons are coming off a thrilling 31-30 victory over Minnesota Monday night to end a two-game skid.

Atlanta quarterback Steve Bartkowski rifled three second half touchdown passes against the Vikings to give him 27 for the season. He led the league with 31 TD passes last year.

Kickoff is at 3 p.m. CST.

Bryant Looks For His 315th

by The Associated Press

Bear Bryant was going not only for a record 315th coaching victory when fourth-ranked Alabama played Auburn Saturday, but it is another one of those teacher-pupil matchups that the Bear rarely loses.

Since LSU and Charley McClendon beat him 14-9 some 11 years ago, Bryant has beaten his ex-pupils - i.e., his formers players and coaches - 28 times in a row, including a 38-7 defeat of Steve Sloan's Mississippi team this year.

His overall record against "Bear's Boys" is 38-5, but this was to be his first meeting with Pat Dye, who coached Alabama's linebackers under Bryant from 1965-73 and is in his first year as Auburn's head man.

The Alabama-Auburn clash was to be one of two games attracting national attention today. The other pitted yet another of Bryant's ex-pupils, Jackie Sherrill, coach of the No.1-ranked Pitt Panthers, against No.11 Penn State.

On Thursday, sixth-ranked Texas defeated Texas A&M 21-13 and Friday, ninth-ranked Miami, Fla., walloped Notre Dame 37-15.

McEnroe Swamps Vilas

MILAN, Italy (AP) - John McEnroe has made a successful rehearsal for the Davis Cup finals by routing Argentine star Guillermo Vilas in the third round of the $350,000 Master Brooklyn indoor tennis tournament.

In today's final of the rich Milan competition - which McEnroe reached by three straight wins against Vilas, Italian veteran Adriano Panatta and Czechoslovakia's Tomas Smid - the 22-year-old U.S. star faces Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia.

The 21-year-old Lendl, who also scored three straight wins to reach the final, was expected to be a tougher opponent than Vilas, who suffered through a series of routs at Milan's sports palace.

Vilas, 29, ranked sixth in the world, said the fast Milan court played a big role in his defeats and conceded he will face similar problems on the cement courts of Cincinnati, site of the U.S.-Argentina Davis Cup finals Dec. 11-13.

The Argentine team consists of Vilas and Jose-Luis Clerc, 23, who withdrew from the Milan tournament after developing a pain in his right foot.

The top-ranked McEnroe showed superior tennis in his 6-2, 6-2 victory over Vilas Friday night and said afterwards he was confident he could do it again in Cincinnati.

Friday's win gave McEnroe a 6-6 tie in matches with Vilas. He still trails Clerc 2-4.

Rick Robey of the Boston Celtics has played on championship teams at the high school, college and professional levels.

Roundfield Treats Family To A Victory, 114-112

by The Associated Press

It was a road game for the Atlanta Hawks - but just like home for Dan Roundfield.

"It really feels great to have played this well in front of my hometown and my family," said the Atlanta forward after his performance led the Hawks to an overtime 114-112 National Basketball Association victory over the Detroit Pistons Friday night.

Roundfield, who went to Detroit's Chadsey High School and Central Michigan University, had 25 points, 15 rebounds, four blocked shots and four assists.

The contest was played at the Silverdome in Pontiac, Mich., about an hour's ride from Detroit, before a crowd of 20,128 - the largest in Pistons history.

"This was a real big game for us because we were playing for first place," said Roundfield. (Detroit and Atlanta were separated only by a few percentage points in the Central Division going into the game.) "The team really executed well the second half and the overtime period. We've got our big guns back. (John Drew, who had been ill, scored 24 points, and Eddie Johnson, who had been sick, only scored 9 points but had some good floor play.) It basically came down to experience against hustle. Detroit played a heckuva game."

In other NBA action, it was San Diego 138, Los Angeles 129; Seattle 117, Houston 110; Boston 113, Washington 100; New York 116, Cleveland 95; Philadelphia 124, Indiana 112; San Antonio 114, New Jersey 86; Denver 123, Kansas City 115; Golden State 113, Milwaukee 96; Portland 103, Utah 93 and Phoenix 111, Chicago 107.

The Atlanta-Detroit game see-sawed throughout and the Pistons had a chance to win it in regulation time, but Kelly Tripucka missed one of two foul shots with 12 seconds remaining and the game went to overtime.

In the extra period, the Hawks opened a 114-107 lead with just over a minute to play, but Detroit got a three-point goal from Ron Lee and a basket from rookie Isiah Thomas to pull to within 114-112 with 25 seconds remaining. Detroit stole the inbounds pass, but Thomas' lay-up with 21 seconds left was blocked by Atlanta's Tree Rollins to preserve the victory.

Clippers 138, Lakers 129

Freeman Williams' three-point play with 3:16 remaining put the lid in Los Angeles' nine-game winning streak as the reserve guard led San Diego past the Lakers.

The Clippers, winning only their third game of the season, battled back from an 11-point halftime deficit to outscore Los Angeles 78-58 in the second half. Williams scored 18 of his team-high 25 points in the second half.

Sonics 117, Rockets 110

Bill Hanzlik, teaming with Gus Williams in the Seattle backcourt, scored six straight points midway through the fourth quarter as the SuperSonics rallied to defeat Houston. Williams, who scored a game-high 33 points, also notched a career-high 13 assists.

Celtics 113, Bullets 100

Larry Bird scored 24 points and reserve guards Terry Duerod and Charles Bradley combined for 18, leading Boston over Washington.

The Celtics led by as much as 10 points in the third quarter, but had the margin trimmed to two, 93-91, midway through the final period. However, Cedric Maxwell hit two free throws and Duerod came off the bench to connect on the fifth of his six field goals.

Knicks 116, Cavaliers 95

Michael Ray Richardson scored a career-high 33 points and Maurice Lucas added 17 points and 17 rebounds to spark New York past Cleveland.

The game was tied at 23 before Richardson hit a layup and a 20-footer, and Bill Cartwright sank two foul shots to give the Knicks a 29-23 first-quarter advantage which they never relinquished.

76ers 124, Pacers 112

Andrew Toney came off the bench to score 33 points, including six in the extra period, as Philadelphia defeated Indiana. Toney put the 76ers ahead to stay early in the overtime period. Julius Erving, who finished with 24, made a three-point play to give the 76ers a 114-109 lead with 3:41 left in overtime, and Indiana never drew closer.

Spurs 114, Nets 86

George Gervin and Ron Brewer teamed for 52 points as San Antonio broke open a close game in the third quarter and routed New Jersey. Gervin tossed in 29 points and Brewer had 23 as the Spurs ended a three-game losing streak and improved their Midwest Division-leading record to 10-4

Nuggets 123, Kings 115

Alex English poured in a season-high 34 points and fueled a third-quarter rally to power Denver over Kansas City. English scored 14 of his points in the third quarter and led the Nuggets back from a 22-point second quarter deficit.

Warriors 113, Bucks 96

Lloyd Free scored 28 points and Joe Barry Carroll contributed 23 as Golden State built a 13-point lead midway through the fourth quarter and held on to beat Milwaukee.

Junior Bridgeman, who had missed five games with a strained knee, and Sidney Moncrief scored 19 points apiece for the Bucks, who have lost four of their last five games.

Trailblazers 103, Jazz 93

Mychal Thompson scored 30 points to lift Portland over Utah. Portland led through much of the game and had an 83-70 lead at the end of the third quarter before holding off a Utah rally in the fourth.

Suns 111, Bulls 107

Dennis Johnson hit a pair of free throws with 1:29 left, then fed forward Alvin Scott for an insurance basket as Phoenix held off Chicago. The victory was the third straight for Phoenix, while Chicago lost its seventh in a row to the Suns.

Wichita Blasts Abilene Christian

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) - Antoine Carr had 16 points and four other players scored in double figures as sixth-ranked Wichita State out-manned Abilene Christian 93-55 in a college basketball season opener for the Shockers.

The Division II Wildcats were no match Friday night for the taller, stronger and swifter Shockers, who upset the Wildcats' slow-down spread offense with a tight, full-court, man-for-man defense.

Wichita State took an early lead in the first half and cruised to a comfortable 42-27 halftime edge on the strength of 60 percent shooting and tough rebounding.

Carr, a 6-foot-9 junior, had 11 points in the opening half and got unexpected scoring help from freshman forward Xavier McDaniel, who came off the bench to shoot 10 points in the first half and finish with 14.

Wichita State's Cliff Levingston started slowly with only 2 points in the first half, but came on to can 14 for the game. Also scoring in double figures were freshman guard Aubrey Sherrod with 14, and 7-2 freshman center Greg Dreiling with 10.

The Wildcats, 1-1, were led by Craig Williams with 22.

Tech Tops LA Tech

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Jeff Taylor poured in 18 points to lead Texas Tech to an 89-75 basketball victory over Louisiana Tech Friday night in a non-conference game that opened the season for both teams.

Texas Tech led by as much as 23 in the first half and was ahead 47-29 between halves. Louisiana Tech, using a pressure defense in the second half, cut the lead to nine points twice in the final four minutes.

In addition to Taylor's 18 points, the Red Raiders got 16 from Joe Washington and 14 each from Clarence Swannegan and Charles Johnson. Andre Ewing had 19 for Louisiana Tech.

No. 2 UCLA Upset 79-75

by The Associated Press

Last week, Brigham Young's basketball team couldn't hold onto a lead in the final minute against Virginia. It was different against UCLA, though.

A one-point loser to Virginia in the season-tipping Hall of Fame Classic at Springfield, Mass., last week, BYU managed to hang tough against the nation's second-ranked team and scored a 79-75 upset over UCLA at Pauley Pavilion Friday night.

"We beat a great team tonight," said BYU Coach Frank Arnold. "We gave UCLA seven different defenses to try to keep them off balance. We knew we couldn't match UCLA's quickness in a man-to-man defense."

Larry Farmer, making his debut as Bruin coach, said: "Overall I was pleased with our intensity and hustle. We did have some lapses, though I think Frank Arnold did a good job of preparing them. We did a good job early in moving the ball against their zone, but when we get the ball inside, we have to hit the boards."

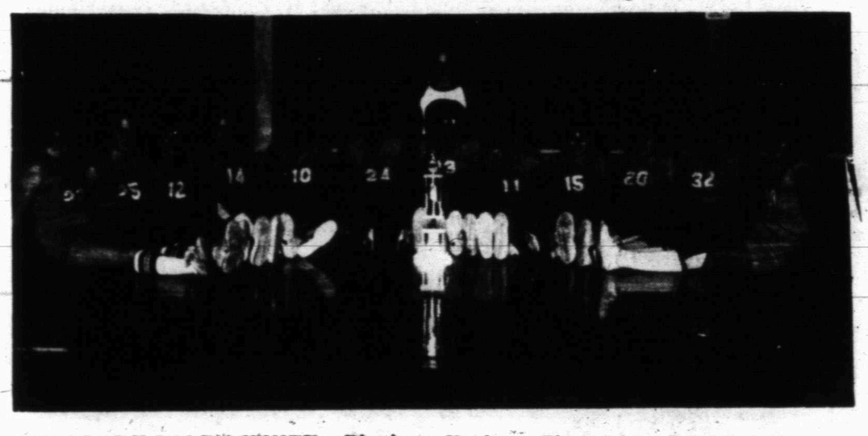

UCLA wasn't the only ranked team to be knocked off on the first big night of the college basketball season. Georgetown, ranked No.5, was upset 70-61 by Southwestern Louisiana in the Great Alaska Shootout Tournament.

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, No.6 Wichita State walloped Abilene Christian 93-55; No.7 Virginia romped over Fairfield 107-66 in the Virginia Tipoff tourney; No.14 Alabama-Birmingham drubbed Illinois-Benedictine 100-63 and No.20 Alabama tripped New Hampshire 99-65.

Fred Roberts scored 23 points and Steve Trumbo had 22 to lead the BYU victory. The Bruins led most of the way, but the Cougars rallied in the second half on a jump shot by Roberts to tie UCLA at 67 with 4½ minutes to play.

In other action in the tourney in Anchorage, Tony Hargrave sank a free throw with 13 seconds remaining to give Iona a 58-57 victory over Ohio State, and Michael Wilson's 18 points paced Marquette over McNeese State 88-57.

Antoine Carr scored 16 points and four other players scored in double figures as Wichita State whipped outmanned Abilene Christian.

8TH GRADE GOLD & WHITE -- Playing for the eighth grade Gold and White volleyball team this year were, left to right, Dawn Edminson, Jerilyn Trice, Lesa Barkowsky, Cintia Gonzales, Karleen Thompson, Donna Anderson, Terese Buerlein, Xalyn Harris, Amy Wilson, April Donnelly, Hope Hernandez, Patty Martinez and manager Shannon Lunsford.

Junior V-Ballers Future Players For Tiger Squad

Snyder volleyball program appears to be on solid ground, if this year's junior high program is any indication.

Ninty-eight eighth grade girls were involved in the program this year, making up five intramural teams. From this group, two all-star teams were selected.

"Although these teams were allowed to play in one tournament and one game with Lamesa, they received a lot of good playing experience and will be ready to play a full schedule as eighth graders," noted the coaches.

This year's eighth grade teams were coached by Mrs. Amanda Garza and Mrs. Betsy Griffin. Coaches split the girls into two equal teams with the Gold and White finishing 7-5 with the Snyder Tournament championship and the Gold and Black finishing 7-5 and second place in the tournament.

"We feel the record speaks for itself and the girls have gained valuable playing experience which should help them next year when they attempt to meet the very high standards of the Snyder High School volleyball program," noted the coaches.

Playing for the Gold and White team were Donna Anderson, Lesa Barkowsky, Terese Buerlein, April Donnelly, Dawn Edminston, Cintia Gonzales, Xalyn Harris, Hope Hernandez, Patty Martinez, Karleen Thompson, Jerilyn Trice, Amy Wilson and manager Shannon Lunsford.

Playing for the Gold and Black were Dawn Brown, Denise Derrick, Malisa Harding, Melissa Luera, Sally Martinez, Stephanie Meetze, Kima McClarty, Jani Murph, Rosie Pena, Shirley Rasche, Lasayuna Ward, Brenda Zajicek, and managers Tori Stevens, Julie Folsom and Linda Compos.

Playing for the seventh grade All-Star White team were Monica Hinojos, Pam Casias, Angie Housden, Carrie Fortune, Sharnette Thompson, Shondra Robinson, Robbie Merritt, Leslie Light, Stephanie McKnight, Rebecca Powell and Robin Sharp. Playing for the All-Star Black team were Leslie Ward, Christy Valadez, Cindy Tolbert, Allison Adams, Michelle Osborne, Kristan Walton, Jennifer Goodwin, Sherry Hataway, Shonda Wiman and Julie Williams.

Those who played for the seventh grade included, Team No. 1, Pam Casias, Rebecca Powell, Robin Sharp, Angie Housden, Lisa Richardson, Melanie Bradley, Angie Lay, Janie Gregory, Stephanie Blair, Rhonda Johnson and Cheryl Staton.

Team No. 2: Monica Hinojos, Julie Williams, Jennifer Goodwin, Sherry Hataway, Joan Godair, Cecilia Meek, Tammy Williamson, Tonya Holliday, Vickie Fletcher, Zeena Cox, Shanda Wiman.

Team No. 3: Leslie Ward, Sharnette Thompson, Robbie Merritt, Leslie Light, Donna Hernandez, Connie Cross, Betty Carrisalez, Shannon Fletcher, Angela Franklin and Lee Ann Thompson.

Team No. 4: Stephanie McKnight, Shondra Robinson, Kristen Wlaton, Cindy Tolbert, Sophia Castillo, Tracy Warton; Stacie Dynk, Janice Godair, Stacy Hart and Katy Lane.

Team No. 5: Christy Valadez, Michelle Osborn, Carrie Fortune, Robin Fambro, Donna Clay, Kristy Marks, Elaine Smylie, Kamie McNew, Kristi Neill, Donna Green and Allison Adams.

New Yorkers Expect Miracles From Frank Macchiarola

NEW YORK (AP) — New Yorkers from Mayor Edward Koch on down merely expect miracles from Frank Macchiarola.

When he first took over in the spring of 1978 as New York City school chancellor, he inherited a legacy of educational decline and indifference.

The job of running the nation's largest public school system would be daunting in the best of times. New York City has 1,000 public schools, 925,000 children, and a budget of $2.9 billion.

At the beginning of Macchiarola's term, 60 percent of all students were reading below national norms, and two-thirds of the ninth and tenth-graders were failing math competency tests. Eighteen percent of the students milled about the city's streets as truants.

On paper, Macchiarola's achievements in the past three years may not be miraculous. But there is a growing feeling that the city's schools are on the way back. Reading scores, in particular, have improved to the point where more than half the city's pupils are at or above national reading levels for the first time in a decade.

New York's school system is responding to a chancellor who makes frequent surprise visits to schools, and who has never pulled punches in discussing the ills of urban education.

"We will not tolerate any excuse that says we could have done it better if we had more money," Macchiarola said at the beginning of his tenure. And he says much the same now.

His recurrent theme has been that schools for too long have underestimated what kids can do. So he's made it tougher for his kids, by gradually ending the policy of "social promotion" which allowed children who couldn't read to coast along and graduate from high school. Children in the fourth and seventh grade are now tested for reading ability. Those who fail must make up the work or be left back.

Here are some of his other thoughts, from a recent interview:

Q: We've heard a lot of good news lately about New York City schools. Reading scores are up for the first time in years. Do you really feel you've tamed the beast?

A: I think I'm a pretty powerful figure around here, by force of personality, and a sense of where we're going as a school system. We expect people to work a full day, we expect standards, we expect students to be held accountable.

We don't look outside the school system for reasons for not doing these things. That is my message.

Q: What about the overall image of urban schools? Americans still have a picture of teachers who burn out, students robbing each other of lunch money, dope being sold in the school yards. What do you do to turn that around?

A: When people raise the question of violence to me, I just remind them that Sadat, the pope, and the president were not shot in New York public schools.

Our schools are as orderly as they can be expected to be in a society that doesn't pay any attention to those things.

Statistics show that most of the incidents that occur in school are by perpetrators coming into school buildings. They're not school people. Most kids who do go to schools go to school to learn.

Q: But from the kids' viewpoint, they look around their city school and see that it is increasingly poor, increasingly minority. They see that they are the ones who are being left behind. What kind of atmosphere for learning does that foster?

A: I don't care if 100 percent of my students are black or poor. My job is to teach the kids the parents send me. And they send me the best kids they have. I don't regard that pessimistically.

As a matter of fact, the poorer they are, the greater is their hope, the greater is the difference between what they have and what I can deliver. And it's the kids in suburbia whose fathers have given them so much that they don't know what to ask for, those kids are in more trouble than my kids.

Q: Are you afraid that federal cuts might slow the progress New York's schools have made? What's going to be hurt the most?

A: You'll get a big chunk out of Title I, the support for youngsters who are educationally and emotionally disadvantaged. But again, here in this city, our mayor has taken the position of absorbing some of the federal cuts.

That's not the case with my colleagues in other cities. They are very much hurting from the fact that at the same time federal cuts are coming they are facing Proposition 2½ in Boston, Proposition 13 in San Diego and San Francisco, or they're facing the effects of a local depression in Detroit, or they're facing the problem of budgets that have not been under control in Washington, D.C., Chicago, Cincinnati, Columbus, Ohio.

Robots Work Long Into Night In Japan

FUJIYOSHIDA, Japan (AP) — Fujitsu Fanuc does not yet have a robot that can do accounting or close a sales deal. Hence there is still a place for humans.

Long into the night, after the 100 people employed at this factory at the foot of Mt. Fuji are home in bed, the plant continues to hum with the sounds of robots in an unending, repetitive dance, working hand in hand with other robots to produce new robots.

Everything is automated, even down to the driverless shuttle truck that zips across the shop floor, loading and unloading parts.

Industrial robots with such fond nicknames as "Jiro" — second son — each equipped with a massive claw, gently lift metal clogs, swivel around, hand the the clogs to another device for machine tooling, retrieve them and then start the process again.

The offspring of this machinery-and robot-making plant will be the new generation of high productivity workers who will spearhead this export-oriented nation's advance in the era of high technology.

Japan today far outpaces the rest of the world in the production and use of these gawky symbols of automation. Even the labor unions have embraced the robot as a savior, releasing them from assembly line tedium.

"Here robots have replaced humans. They work 24 hours a day, they don't have to think and they don't work in shifts," says Shimpei Kato, Fujitsu's director and manager of planning. "It makes common sense. We only employ humans for research, maintenance and supervisory work. As you can see, there's not much else to do.

Fujitsu says output is up 300-400 percent since robots were installed in January. About 60 new robots are made here each month. Researchers now are working on a new generation of "smart" robots with multiple functions. Fujitsu expects them to go on line from July.

Kato says it takes three years to train a human in the skills needed on an assembly line. A robot, with its built-in memory, takes 20 minutes.

An industrial robot costs about $44,000.

An average assembly line worker will earn $16,500 annually with bonuses, meaning a robot pays for itself within three years.

Kato says 40-45 percent of the robots are exported to West Germany and the United States, which first introduced the machines to Japan in the 1960s. As with so many things, the Japanese adapted the devices, refined them to their own needs and later emerged as undisputed king in the field.

Industrial robots are being introduced to Japanese industry at the rate of 20,000 a year, with the 75,000 machines — more than all other countries put together — already installed, the Japan Robot Association says.

By comparison, West Germany has 5,850 industrial robots installed, followed by the United States with 3,225. Then comes Poland (720), Sweden (570), Norway (200), Britain (185) and Finland (130). East Germany has plans to install 45,000 robots over the next five years.

Besides common use in the electric machinery and plastics industries, Japanese robots have revolutionized the auto industry.

Thanks to robot coworkers, the Japanese worker will produce 52 cars this year, while his Detroit counterpart would be eligible for a bonus if he turns out 20 vehicles.

With the manpower shortage — Japan has an unemployment rate of 2 percent — small businesses like welding shops are installing robots one after another. Those falling behind in the automation race risk going under.

Israel May Get Visit From Haig

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. says he may visit Israel in two weeks as the next step in trying to defuse a controversy with Israel over European participation in a Sinai peacekeeping force.

Haig held a marathon 7½-hour meeting on the problem with Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir on Friday. Shamir said afterward he was optimistic that a solution would be found.

"There are prospects that we will agree on some proposals," Shamir told reporters before leaving for the airport to return to Israel. He said he was taking "some ideas" back to Israel.

Haig called the meeting "very constructive and valuable."

Haig is trying to head off a veto by Israel of participation by Great Britain, France, Italy and The Netherlands in a peacekeeping force that is supposed to patrol the Egyptian-Israeli border following withdrawal of Israeli troops from the Sinai next April 25.

In agreeing to join the force, the four countries issued statements in favor of including the Palestine Liberation Organization in Mideast peace negotiations.

Those statements have angered the Israeli government, which considers them harmful to the Camp David peace process, which excludes PLO participation under existing circumstances.

CHRISTMAS SEAL MONTH—Local Mayor, Milton Hamm, signed a proclamation Friday morning declaring December to be Christmas Seal month in Snyder. Pictured with the Mayor is Carl Burleson, local Lung Association Volunteer.

December Declared Christmas Seal Month

December has been declared Christmas Seal Month in Snyder with a proclamation signed by Mayor Milton Hamm.

The proclaimation commends the American Lung Association of Texas for its support of research, education, and community programs for persons with lung diseases.

The Christmas Seal Campaign is the main source of funding for the American Lung Association of Texas and contributions provide year-round support for projects such as the Better Living, Better Breathing Clubs; Freedom from Smoking and Family Asthma Programs.

The Lung Association provides information about lung disease for individuals, schools, hospitals, and health offices. The organization also sponsors training programs for health professionals in treatment of lung disease.

The Mayor urged all citizens of Snyder to support the Lung Association's appeal by using Christmas Seals on holiday cards and packages.

Thefts, Mishaps Told To Police

Snyder police officers are investigating four reported thefts and two minor traffic mishaps that occured Friday.

At 3:36 a.m. Saturday morning, Rose Butler called police to report a theft at the Texaco Truck Stop on U. S. 84. Butler reported the theft of $139 from the service station. Possible suspects in the incident were described as a black male and a black female in a small blue vehicle.

Earlier, around 2:30 p.m. Friday afternoon, Robert Baily told officers that someone had taken a money order from his car while it was parked at Perry's on south College Ave.

Thieves also struck the Skinny's at 37th and Ave. E and a pickup parked in the 300 block of 28th St. Taken from the store were eight letters from a sign and two guns were taken from the truck. Value of the letters was set a $4.50 each and the guns were valued at $375. Investigation into these thefts is continuing.

At 1:07 p.m. Friday, police were called to investigate a minor traffic mishap in the T. G. & Y. parking lot. Involved were a 1973 Ford driven by Donna L. Johnson and a 1977 Ford driven by Jaime Ortegon. Only minor damage was reported in this accident.

The other accident of the the day occured at the intersection of U. S. 84 and Huffman Ave. about 2:45 p.m.. Involved in this mishap were a 1980 Chevrolet operated by Kenneth Ray Smith and a 1978 Oldsmobile driven by Teddy Eugene Stone. Only minor damages were reported.

In other routine action, officers arrested three subjects on charges of public intoxication during the evening.

Fire Damages Local House

Local firemen responded to two fires reported Friday evening.

Around 10 p.m. last evening, Snyder firemen extinguished a fire in a house in the 1900 block of KSNY Drive. Damage to the house, owned by Gene Vernon and occupied by Mike Gunther, was confined to the attic and one wall. No injuries were reported in the incident.

Also, around 6 p.m. Friday, units of the Snyder fire department put out a grass and trash fire about 4 miles north of town on the Old Lubbock Highway.

WTC Plans Writing Class

Writing for radio, programming and Federal Communication Commission rules and regulations will be studied in a radio broadcasting course planned at Western Texas College early in 1982.

Classes are to meet from 6:30 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. on Wednesdays from Jan. 13-Feb. 24. Larry Genuchi, news and sports director for KSNY Radio, will be the intructor. Air work experience will be possible for students who are interested, Genuchi said.

Fees will be $25 per person for the 21-hour course.

Persons wishing to reserve space in the class are to call the continuing education office at 573-8511, extension 240.

Brown Bag Luncheon Set

A brown bag luncheon scheduled for Monday at the Scurry County Museum has been postponed until Dec. 7.

Sharon Sutton, museum director, will present the luncheon program on Christmas at the Colonial Williamsburg Restoration. The restoration, a re-creation of the 18th century village, is well known for its seasonal decorations.

Everyone is invited to attend the brown bag luncheons. There is no admission charge and no reservations are necessary.

In one game against the Los Angeles Lakers, Larry Bird of the Boston Celtics made 36 points, grabbed 21 rebounds, made 6 assists, 5 steals and blocked 3 shots.

Typhoon Irma Kills Many

MANILA, Philippines (AP)— Typhoon Irma and a tidal wave spawned by the storm left 73 dead, 37 injured and 40 missing in the Philippines, officials said.

The tidal wave swamped a coastal village 190 miles southeast of Manila on Monday at the height of the typhoon, killing 47 people. Authorities said the survivors were badly in need of food clothing and medicine.

Irma, which struck the main Philippine island of Luzon, caused $9 million damage to crops, triggered floods and landslides, toppled power lines and flattened homes, officials said.

Authorities said 24,137 homes were flooded by the storm, and 17,557 people were taken to evacuation centers.

Red Carpet Rolled Out

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Airline officials rolled out the red carpet for Maud Shenstone, a treatment rarely given first-time airplane travelers. But being 100 years old, she deserved it.

Mrs. Shenstone said she had traveled across the country by car and train before with her husband Thomas, who died 10 years ago. And she said there was no particular reason she waited until Tuesday [illegible] Flying.

"I guess I just never got around to it before," she said. "I've ridden horse-and-buggies and on horse-drawn sleighs. You people missed a lot of good times."

United Airlines gave her a special welcome when she boarded the Boeing 737 at Kent County International Airport for Denver, presenting her with flowers.

She insisted she had no fear of flying.

Couple Wed In Double Ring Ceremony

Cynthia Ann Chapman became the bride of J. R. Wayne Jones Jr. in a double ring ceremony on November 6 at 7:30 p.m. at First Christian Church. Reverend Kendall Coffey, minister of the church, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Chapman Jr. of Snyder. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Wayne Jones Sr. of Snyder.

Vows were repeated in front of a brass arch entwined with silk lilies of the valley flanked by two seven branch candelabra. Hurricane globe lamps with satin bows marked the family pews and yellow and white carnations and greenery decorated the pedestal holding the memory candle.

Mrs. Jane Womack played wedding music and accompanied Melynda Crow as she sang "The Wedding Song" and "Looking Through the Eyes of Love."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin. The Queen Anne neckline was outlined by re-embroidered Alencon lace trim and the sheer shoulders of English net dipped into a sheer back yoke. Alencon lace decorated the yokes and the sheer bishop sleeves with wide lace cuffs. The moderately raised waistline was outlined in Venice lace and the front skirt panel was adorned with Alencon lace which started at the top and widened out to the side seams. A wide ruffle flounce of Rachel lace formed the hemline. The back skirt panel was fully tiered in rows of the same Rachel lace continuing into a chapel length train. She wore a bridal hat covered in sheer crystal pleated chiffon and Venice lace motifs. The side brim was turned up and a silk rose was attached to it. A back pouf was attached by a satin bow and long satin streamers. Long streamers from the net pouf formed the veil.

The bride carried a colonial bouquet of yellow sweetheart roses, frenched carnations, gardenias, baby's breath and mini fern. It was accented with satin and lace streamers.

In keeping with tradition, for something old, the bride wore a wedding band belonging to her grandmother, Mary Ellen Chapman. Something new was her dress. For something borowed, she carried a handkerchief belonging to her mother and something blue was her garter made for her by Wanda Blacklock. She wore a lucky sixpence and pennies minted in the years of the couple's birth in her shoes.

Patsy Bass served as maid of honor. She wore a yellow chiffon dress with a high neck and an inset yoke of white lace. It featured an A-line skirt with a deep ruffle at the bottom. The sleeves were full with a wide lace cuff. She carried a colonial bouquet of yellow and white carnations, yellow roses and greenery.

MRS. J. R. WAYNE JONES JR.

Bridesmaids were Miss Cheryl Smith, cousin of the bride, Mrs. Linda Key and Mrs. Kay Roemisch. Junior bridesmaid was Miss Rachel Everett, cousin of the bride. They wore yellow chiffon dresses with a solitaire neckline trimmed in wide white lace inserted with white satin ribbon. The full sleeves were gathered into the cuff of the same lace and the full skirts had a deep lace trimmed ruffle. They carried nosegays of white and yellow carnations, greenery and baby's breath. Miniature carnations and baby's breath adorned their hair.

Flower girls were Pam Light and Tina Blacklock of Justiceburg, both nieces of the groom. They wore yellow chiffon dresses with solitaire necklines. White lace and ribbon in a V-shape accented the front and back of the bodices. White satin bows with streamers were attached to the waists and the sheer puff sleeves were trimmed in lace. The A-line skirts had a chiffon scalloped overskirt trimmed in white lace. They carried white baskets of yellow carnation petals and wore miniature carnations and baby's breath in their hair.

The groom wore a nutmeg regent tuxedo by After Six with a white ruffled shirt. His boutonniere was two yellow roses and baby's breath.

J. R. Jones served his son as best man. Groomsmen were David Zajicek, cousin of the groom, Sy Tabor and Chip Roemisch.

Ushers were Baron Land and Cary Welsh of Odessa. They also served as candle lighters. The groomsmen and ushers wore tuxedos identical to the that of the groom with yellow ruffled shirts and bow ties. They wore boutonnieres of yellow carnations.

Wesley Everett, cousin of the bride, served as ring bearer. He wore a tuxedo identical to that of the groom and carried a white heart shaped satin pillow with the rings attached to two satin ribbons.

A reception was held following the ceremony. The bride's table was laid with a white cloth belonging to her aunt, Mrs. Margie Line, and a lace overlay belonging to her great-aunt, Mrs. Ethel Mae Weemes. The centerpiece consisted of white and yellow carnations and white tapers atop a brass base. The three-tiered cake was decorated with yellow rosebuds and the bridal bouquet and bridemaid's nosegays surrounded the cake which was topped by two angels beneath a heart. Appointments were in crystal and silver. Presiding at the table were Mmes. Margie Line, Ann Everett, and Joyce Smith, all aunts of the bride.

The groom's table was laid with a chocolate brown cloth and an ecru lace overlay. A silver coffee service belonging to Mrs. Line was complimented by a silver serving tray belonging to the bride's parents. The table was centered with an arrangement of brown candles in bronze holders next to a western vase which held yellow carnations and Scotch broom greenery. The groom's cake was chocolate and made in the shape of two rings. Serving at the groom's table were Vicki Blacklock of Justiceburg, Shelby Light, and Debra Henderson, all sisters of the groom.

Teresa Edmiaston of San Angelo registered guests and Welsey Everett and Tina Blacklock passed out yellow rice bags from white wicker baskets.

For going away, the bride wore a tan pantsuit with brown accessories and a yellow corsage.

Both the bride and groom are Snyder High School graduates and have attended Western Texas College. The groom is employed by B&F Well Servicing and the bride is employed at Hasting's Books and Records.

After a weekend trip to Abilene, the couple is at home in Snyder.

Out of town guests were from Justiceburg, Odessa, San Angelo, Breckenridge, Abilene, Sweetwater, and Hollywood, California.

Marriage Vows Spoken In Double Ring Rites

Cynthia Alice Koonsman became the bride of Ronald Wayne Werner October 24 at seven in the evening at Colonial Hill Baptist Church. Reverend [illegible] performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the [illegible] John Billy Koonsman of Route 2 and the groom's parents are Helen and H. C. Werner Jr. of New Braunfels.

The altar was centered with a large bouquet of white gladiolus, quill mums and blue carnations. Two seven-branch candelabra flanked the arrangement and the memory candle was centered on a bed of leatherleaf fern in front of it.

Musical selections were presented by Charles Church at the piano, Mrs. Jerry Neill at the organ, and Stacy Werner, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in an Alfred Angelo knit chiffon dress with a chiffon overlay. It featured a Queen Anne neckline and moderately raised waistline. The bodice front was covered with Venice medallions with sequins and pearls. The back yoke and shoulders were sheer and adorned with Venice medallions and the entire neckline was outlined with matching Venice lace trim. The bishop sleeves and wide cuffs were trimmed with matching Venice appliques and the skirt was adorned with Chantilly and Venice lace appliques. A chapel length train dropped from a lowered waistline and was trimmed with the same Chantilly appliques. The front hemline was outlined with Venice trim and the back [illegible] with Chantilly trim. A crystal pleated ruffle formed the hemline and descended into the chapel length train. A circle of baby's breath and small silk forget-me-nots adorned her hair.

She carried a cascading bouquet of yellow glamelias, yellow daisies, white frenched carnations, blue silk apple blossoms, and baby's breath with streamers of white bridal pecot lace and blue pixie ribbon.

In keeping with tradition, the bride wore a diamond watch belonging to her grandmother, Mrs. Opal Koonsman, for something old. Her grandmother and her mother had both worn the watch when they were married. Something new was her dress and she borrowed a blue garter from Mrs. Jan Harrell.

The groom wore a white tuxedo.

Miss Kim Harlin served as maid of honor. She wore a yellow crepe de Chine dress with a full skirt and long sheer sleeves. It was gathered at the neckline and featured a self cumberbund. Miss Shana Koonsman, sister of the bride; Miss Stacey Werner, sister of the groom, of New Braunfels; and Mrs. Cynthia O'Donnell of Big Spring served as bridesmaids. They wore dresses identical to that of the maid of honor. Each carried a clutch bouquet of yellow daisies and blue silk apple blossoms with streamers of yellow and white. They wore combs with yellow daisies, blue silk apple blossoms and baby's breath in their hair.

Best man was Scooter Rippy, cousin of the groom, of Dripping Springs. Groomsmen were Rick Chatman of Fort Worth, Scott Davis of Sterling City and Rusty O'Donnell of Big Spring. They wore light blue tuxedos.

Guests were seated by Cody Lambert of El Paso and Robert Ward of San Antonio.

Richard Rippy, cousin of the groom, of Dripping Springs was ring bearer. He wore a light blue tuxedo.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church following the ceremony.

The bride's table was covered with a yellow ruffled cloth with a white overlay and centered with a large bouquet of yellow daisies and blue baby's breath in a brass compote. The four tiered cake was decorated with fresh daisies and greenery. Appointments were in brass. Miss Kathy Harrell and Ms. Jamie Hataway presided.

The groom's table featured a brown cloth with a cream overlay. It was centered with two brass western boots filled with flowers and dried material. A miniature winner's circle of leatherleaf fern outlined with yellow daisies lay in front of the boots. Miss Dana Elrod and Ms. Nova Love served the chocolate, horseshoe shaped cake. Brass appointments were used.

Guests were registered in the bride's book by Ms. Susan Blackard.

Following a wedding trip to Cozemel, Mexico, the couple will reside in New Braunfels.

The bride is a graduate of Snyder High School and attended Western Texas College.

The groom graduated from Canyon High School, attended Western Texas College, Howard Junior College and Texas Tech. He trains race horses.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at the shack.

Members of the house party were Mrs. Jan Harrell, Mrs. Betty Courtney, Mrs. Jane Crenwelge, Mrs. Neoma Harlin and Mrs. Nonnie Ward.

Thank You

We take this means to express our sincere thanks to our many friends who were so kind to us in our darkest hour of sorrow (when our loved one was called away.) We deeply appreciate the kind words and beautiful flowers that were sent; also the food that was prepared.

A special thank you to Dr. Pierce and the fine hospital staff. May you have just such friends if such sorrow ever visits your home.

May Heaven's richest blessings fall on each of you.

BAZAAR PROJECT—Leona Wiggins, president of American Business Women's Association, puts the finishing touches on a project for the Christmas Bazaar. The club, along with other organizations, will have a table of homemade gifts for sale just in time for Christmas. The bazaar will be held at the Martha Ann Woman's Club on December 5.

ABWA SPEAKER—Anita Felan, member of the ABWA, spoke to the group at their November meeting on Mexican-American Tradition. She is shown with a picture of Our Lady of Guadalupe, the patron saint of Mexico who appeared from December 9-12 to Juan Diego, an Aztec Indian. In her interesting and often humorous talk, Mrs. Felan described her traditional upbringing in our changing and more permissive society.

MEMORIAL SERVICE—Dorothy Dortch conducted a memorial service for the late ABWA member, Mrs. Lois Bennett, at the regular meeting of the American Business Women's Association last week. Receiving the carnation symbol was Mary Hall, sponsor of the late Mrs. Bennett.

Solemn Vows Exchanged In Evening Ceremony

Judy Diann Cole and Lothar Siebert Bartels were united in marriage in the home of the bride's parents at seven in the evening on November 7. Ricky Van Massey, director of the Church of Christ Bible Chair at Western Texas College, officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Cole, Route 2, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernhard Bartels of 2306 32nd Street.

Vows were exchanged before the stone fireplace with blue dogwood trees on either side. The mantel held an arrangement of roses, carnations, daisies, and poppies in shades of blue surrounding five white tapers. The flagstone hearth was trailed with greenery.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of sheer organza and Chantilly lace. The bodice of lace and organza featured a Victorian neckline and long tapered sleeves ending in a small ruffle at the wrists. The organza skirt featured a wide flounce ruffle which came to a point at the waistline in back to give an apron effect and was encircled with Chantilly lace with a satin bow in back with long streamers. The gown was highlighted by a chapel length train. Her fingertip veil was of illusion tulle with a Juliet cap of Chantilly lace adorned with seed pearls.

The bride carried a cascade of tiny silk rosebuds in shades of blue and baby's breath with long streamers tied in love knots. She presented a red rose to her mother as she entered and one to the groom's mother as they departed.

The groom was attired in a white tuxedo with white shirt and shoes. His boutonniere was of two tiny blue rosebuds.

Serving as maid of honor was Miss Carolyn Lindsey of Jacksboro. She wore a formal length dress with a pleated skirt and ruffled neckline of navy blue with a navy satin ribbon trimming the ruffle and tying at the waist. She carried a nosegay of tiny rosebuds and carnations in shades of blue framed in lace with long streamers.

The flower girl was Shelley Sharp, niece of the groom. She wore a long dress with puffed sleeves of pale blue dotted swiss with a white ribbon sash. Her corsage was of tiny blue rosebuds

Serving as best man was Bobby Roe of Ira. He and the bride's father wore navy blue tuxedos with pale blue shirts and pale blue boutonnieres.

Ring bearer was Heath Cole of Midland, cousin of the bride. He wore a navy blue suit with a pale blue boutoniere.

The bride's mother was escorted by Chuck Cole, brother of the bride, of Lazbuddie, who served as usher. The groom's mother was escorted by Lee Huckabee, brother of the groom, who also served as usher.

Pre-nuptial music was presented on the organ by Mrs. Linda Hardwicke of Abilene, aunt of the groom, and soloist, Miss Carla Jones of Fluvanna. She accompanied herself on guitar and sang "Annie's Song." While the mothers were being seated she sang "The Wedding Song."

Mrs. Tammi Huddleston registered guests as they arrived.

Approximately 50 guests attended the reception immediately following the ceremony.

The bride's table was covered with a navy cloth overlaid with white lace. The tiered cake was separated by crystal pillars, deocrated with blue roses and topped by a lead crystal bell from West Germany. The bride's bouquet was surrounded by appointments of silver and crystal. Serving were Miss Margie Cole of Lazbuddie, sister-in-law of the bride; Mrs. Erika Drinnen and Mrs. Ann Tybor, both of Houston, and Cynthia Sharp, sisters of the groom; and Mrs. Mary Huckabee, sister-in-law of the groom.

The bride chose a burgundy blazer with gray and burgundy plaid skirt for the wedding trip to Ruidoso, New Mexico.

She is a 1978 graduate of Jacksboro High School and has attended Lubbock Christian College and Western Texas College. She is presently employed at the WTC Christian Student Center.

The groom is a 1974 graduate of Snyder High School and is self employed as a farmer.

The couple will make their home in Snyder.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents in their home with table decorations in shades of blue.

Out of town guests were from Kentucky, Virginia, New Mexico, Houston, Midland, Farwell, Jacksboro, and Lazbuddie.

Grandparents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cole of Farwell and step-grandmother, Verla Mason of Hermleigh. Grandmother of the groom is Mrs. Erna Bartels of Houston.

Historic Proposal

President Reagan, responding as a statesman to the rising cry for a nuclear free Europe, has made an historic offer to the Soviet Union for mutual reduction of nuclear arms.

The unprecedented proposal to halt all deployment of Pershing and cruise missles in NATO if the Soviets dismantle their atomic warheads aimed at western Europe can be compared to Anwar Sadat's offer to fly to Jerusalem to seek peace with Israel. Reagan's address was broadcast worldwide on the eve of Soviet leader Brezhnev's visit to West Germany. The Soviets are attemping to woo Western Europe away from NATO by offering to not attack with nuclear weapons any nation that forbids deployment of atomic weapons on its soil.

Reagan's challenge for complete nuclear disarmament of Europe and for significant strategic arms limitations of the superpowers goes far beyond any Soviet proposal. It puts repsonsibility squarely on the Soviets to back up their verbal support for disarmament with real reduction in nuclear arsenals of both world powers.

Some cynics view the Reagan gesture as so sweeping that it is not serious. We believe that only comprehensive, mutual reductions of all types of nuclear weapons can truly keep the peace and reduce the threat of holocaust. Reagan's proposal is so serious that no world leader can afford to let this historic initiative pass. Such global opportunities for peace may come only once in a generation.

European allies who have been disturbed by some of the president's offhand remarks about limited nuclear war in Europe should take heart from the president's statement of policy.

Reagan has dramatically shown his sensitivty to Europeans' fear of nuclear vulnerability. The president has seen beyond partisan and national interest to a policy that would benefit the whole world.

If the Kremlin takes the president up on his offer, Congress must join in a bipartisan movement to ratify arms limitations that the president wins at the negotiating table. America cannot afford to repeat the mistake following World War I when President Woodrow Wilson negotiated the creation of the League of Nations and the U. S. Congress refused to allow America to join.

The struggle is for peace. And in this, President Reagan has made America once again a leader. People of peace the world around join in prayer that Brezhnev says yes to Reagan's call for bilateral nuclear arms reductions.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Ninty percent of the friction in life is caused by the wrong tone of voice."

In the past few years, such movements as ERA has resulted in some foolish situations coming into the public spotlight.

Women have invaded pool halls, press boxes and even men's dresssing rooms–all in the name of equal rights.

As stated before, we appreciate women who act like women and who enjoy being treated as ladies. The Creator, in his infinite wisdom, created an important role for the female. We're not impressed when she decides to puff on a cigar or dot her conservation with crude or vulgar words. Very few find it impressive in a man.

What caused us to consider the subject once again is an in-house battle going on at CBS Reports. At issue is an all-male poker game that some female executives in the television domentary unit see as the place not only to deal, but also to wheel.

It is reported that resentment has been simmering among CBS Reports females for several months. They say that women get a less than fair shake.

They claim women are missing promotions and other benefits because they are excluded from a traditional poker game held about ever six weeks.

One woman executive on the show reveals that some players have been known to fly in from out of town in order not to miss the fellowship. The same gal contends that alliances are made there that affect peoples' careers.

We've not been around a poker game since college days, but we don't see how winning the boss' money is going to help you gain a promotion. Maybe she is suggesting that the underlings let the top brass win.

The guys on the show admit the game has been going on for 18 years, but that business is never discussed. One male executive called the concern ridiculous and said it just a lousy game where everybody has a couple of beers.

A woman counters that the boys just don't want any women there. We would guess that is absolutely true.

In fact, there are several women's institutions from which men are not welcome, and we hope it stays that way.

The next time you are planning a tea, it's okay if you omit us. That baby shower next month, it's fine if you tell me to find somewhere to go for a couple of hours. Yep, the same goes for showers of any kind.

In fact, it wouldn't hurt my feelings to be excluded from future wedding invitations. If you gals want to get together for a salad, that's fine. Just be sure to include me when your having T-bone.

Drifting Oil Rig Secured

LONDON (AP) — An oil rig drifting in the North Sea with 22 men on board has been secured, authorities said.

A line was attached Wednesday to the Transworld 58 platform to keep it from drifting. The platform was torn loose from its moorings during a severe storm that lashed the North Sea earlier this week, causing flooding and damage in low-lying country around the shores of the North Sea.

The 9,200-ton rig was blown 30 miles southeast of its original position in the Argyll oilfield.

"I need him."

Thus spake Dwight Eisenhower nearly a quarter of a century ago. A lot of political history has been made in the Oval Office since. But those three words still stand as a definitive statement on the tie that binds presidents and their key aides.

As current developments in Washington bear out.

President Reagan has been compelled to take David Stockman to the woodshed because of the budget director's too candid comments on the administration's economic program. But despite the damage to the administration's credibility on Capitol Hill and with the public and to Stockman's own credibility as that program's chief advocate, he is remaining on the job.

This president is confronted sooner with a lesson that sooner or later most of his immediate predecessors had to learn. That the greater the power conferred upon a presidential aide, the greater the vulnerability of the president himself to the potential misuse of that power.

An example from very recent history that may immediately come to mind being that of Jimmy Carter and his first budget director, Bert Lance. The problem there was the personal dealings of Lance, an individual of great but at times overly creative financial ability. In the end, Carter's need for the abilities was less than his need to be rid of a political liability and he divested himself of Lance's services.

Not so later on in his administration, however, when Hamilton Jordan was the object of unflattering attention. In part due to off-duty antics that earned him a reputation around Washington as "the slob in the White House." In part because of an exceedingly hard-nosed approach to his work that had alienated just about everyone in town that counted outside the White House—and some in.

But it was that same toughness, plus unquestioned loyalty, that made Jordan useful to Carter. The president needed him as chief of staff, and kept him despite political disadvantage—not least within his own party.

It has been, in fact, the chiefs of staff among the presidents' men who more often have proved problems in this respect. H.R. Haldeman was to Richard Nixon what Jordan was to Carter—only much, much more so.

And then there was the classic situation of Eisenhower and Sherman Adams, who really wrote the book on presidential super-aides and whose forced abdication as the second most powerful man in Wasington—some at the time would have said the first—as a consequence of an influence-buying scandal was a painful political and personal blow to his president.

Inevitably, there is speculation as to whether the Stockman affair, closely followed as it has been by questions raised as to the ethics of national security adviser Richard Allen, signals the unraveling of the Reagan administrative fabric.

Likely not, It's still a bit early for that—although, if recent history is any guide, it will come.

But it does suggest that as much as they might prefer not to admit it, the Reagan people are not that much different as to strengths, weaknesses and susceptibility to personal and political misjudgment than their predecessors in office.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

I read the other day where a woman was grocery shopping and in trying to reach the last package of frozen broccoli lost her balance and fell head first into the freezer.

A man walking by grabbed her by the ankles, dragged her out, and drove her to the hospital where whe was treated and released.

I have to believe that falling in the freezer was the easy part. The real trauma came when she had to deal with the people who fill out insurance forms. I can see it now:

"Was this an accident?"

"Yes."

"Was there any other way to get the broccoli out of the case?"

"Probably,"

"Have you gotten broccoli out of the case like this before?"

"Many times."

Mothers know exactly what I am talking about. Most of the accidents that happen with children border on the bizarre. They never do anything in a conventional way. I always had the kid with the penny shoved up his nose, the arm wedged in the sweeper bag, the lip caught in a mouse trap. Things that everyone told me 30 years from now I'd laugh at...and I'm still waiting.

I was only five years into child-raising when I stopped asking, "How in the world could something like this happen?" After awhile, I fully accepted the strange and prepared myself to defend it while riding to the emergency room.

"How did your son split his head open?"

"He did a swan dive into two feet of water."

"You can't do that."

"Right."

I used to watch nurses at the desk who would try to jam "Got pantleg caught in the mixer" onto insurance forms, or "Cut tongue while hiding Fort Apache soldier set from cereal box in his mouth to annoy brother," and wonder what some of the other insurance claims read like.

I'd surely love to have seen their faces when a woman reported recently her buttocks were lodged in an emergency exit when she was in the bus restroom and the bus swerved, forcing her into the window.

Can't you hear them asking at the hospital, "Was this your assigned seat?"

thoughts

We say "smoother than oil" but at least in one place in the Bible the expression "smoother than butter" is used.

"The words of his mouth were smoother than butter, but war was in his heart: his words were softer than oil, yet were they drawn swords." — Ps. 55:21

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

November 29, 1981

Projects with the greatest potential yield are the ones to which you should give the most attention in the year ahead. If you give them sufficient time and effort you'll be on the road which leads to success.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Normally you are very generous and sharing, but today you could step out of character and be a little too concerned with taking care of No. 1. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't let yourself be placed in a position which encumbers your mobility today. When your movements are restricted, it will cause you frustrations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your instincts will direct you to be compassionate and generous today, but your prudence and practicality may give you more reasons to act otherwise.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't be withdrawn or hold back today when among friends. Force yourself to be warm and outgoing. Your behavior will cause them to act similarly.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Beware of tendencies today to make that which is relatively easy more difficult. If you think something is hard, you'll figure out ways to make it so.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Others may not readily take to your ideas today if they are presented in too factual and drab a fashion. Add touches of color to your words and they'll be accepted.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You are by nature rather curious, and most of your friends understand and accept this. Today, however, don't ask prying questions about things you shouldn't.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Instead of dictating what you feel everyone should do today, take into consideration the likes and wishes of your companions. Strike a happy medium.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Subdue the temptation to sweep under the rug again today duties you've neglected, even if doing so cuts into that free time you were planning on.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The social gatherings you might find to be the most fun today will be ones where the group is small and intimate. A larger crowd could present frustrations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If your conscience tells you that you haven't spent as much time with the family as you should lately, plan something at home today which excludes outsiders.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Think of life as a game today rather than something which is fraught with obstacles. If you don't take yourself or events too seriously, you'll have fun.

November 30, 1981

Many interesting changes are in store for you this coming year, but the one that is apt to please you the most will be in financial areas. Your potential for growth here is very promising.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you ambitiously pursue situations which are important careerwise and financially, this will be a rewarding day for you. Don't let anyone sidetrack you. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in each of the seasons following your birthday by sending for your copy or Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your aims can best be accomplished today by being helpful, rather than pushy. Those whose assistance you'll need will back off if they feel pressed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You should be rather lucky in joint ventures today, yet you may feel you're not getting a fair shake. Don't make hasty judgments based on limited facts.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be friendly and sociable with coworkers today, but take care that work which should be done isn't interrupted. You're being paid to be productive, not palsy.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The possibilities for achieving what you set out to do today are extremely good, even though some people, usually supportive, may hinder more than help.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Doing what pleases you today is likely to take precedence over duties. Enjoy yourself, but try not to let your work pile up.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The persons you are trying to help the most today might be those who offer the greatest resistance, even though what you're trying to do is for their own good.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Things should run smoothly for you and your mate today, provided neither resurrects an old issue on which you hold divergent views. Practice harmony.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your possibilities for financial or material gain are good today, but don't step out of character and be selfish if someone is entitled to share what's acquired.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Should you become involved in some competitive social sport with friends today, play it purely for the fun of the game. Forego any form of betting.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In your dealings today, let your heart rule your head. Follow your compassionate and charitable instincts. Give without thought of getting.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Make an extra effort today to treat all your friends equally. Showing favoritism could severely hurt someone who is fond of you.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE with Major Hoople

MRS. CHARLES PATRICK DRYDEN

Couple Repeats Vows In Afternoon Ceremony

Cynthia Marie Olson and Charles Patrick Dryden exchanged wedding vows November 14 at two in the afternoon at Saint Mary's Catholic Church in Amarillo. Reverend Joe Tash of Saint Thomas Catholic Church in Amarillo officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John W. Olson of Amarillo. Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Dryden of Snyder are parents of the groom.

The church altar was flanked by two brass candelabra decorated with greenery and yellow satin streamers. A three-tiered memory candle nestled in greenery sat to one side of the altar.

Chris Para, organist, played traditional wedding selections and vocalist, Cathy Steel, sang "Follow Me" and "Theme from Ice Castles."

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal length gown of white Chantilly lace. The gown featured a Sabrina neckline outlined with a band of scalloped lace sprinkled with pearls. The lace covered fitted bocide was accented with a basque waistline and the wrist length fitted sleeves were edged with scalloped lace. The full skirt of tier-upon-tier of lace ruffles was highlighted by an A-line panel of lace in front. Scalloped lace bordered the hem which dipped into a chapel length train. Her fingertip length mantilla veil of illusion was encircled with scalloped Chantilly lace and scattered with lace appliques. She carried a nosegay of bronze, gold, yellow, and white mums, carnations and daisies accented with white satin streamers.

Kathlene Boros of Amarillo served as maid of honor. She was attired in a dress of buttercup yellow lace featuring a blouson bodice with a shirred rounded neckline, flyaway sleeves and a long, flowing A-line skirt. She wore a yellow soft-brimmed picture hat and carried a bouquet of mums, carnations, and daisies in fall colors.

Bridesmaids were Kimberly Woods and Mrs. Kim Mastler of Amarillo and Jennifer Cavitt and Loretta Collier of San Angelo. They wore costumes identical to that of the maid of honor.

Amy Shores, cousin of the groom, of Wichita Falls was flower girl. She wore a white organza dress with a yellow lining. It featured a square neckline, puffed sleeves and a yellow satin sash at the empire wasitline. She wore a circle of yellow flowers in her hair.

Best man was B. J. Dryden, father of the groom. Groomsmen were Bill Armstrong and Eldon Jobe of Midland, Kevin Wright of Houston and Randy Dryden, brother of the groom, of Wichita Falls.

Mark and Matt Olson, brothers of the bride, Billy Gassiot of San Angelo and Vance Voss of Snyder seated the guests. Chris Koch, the bride's cousin, of Amarillo was candlelighter.

The Amarillo Garden Center was the scene of the reception following the wedding ceremony.

The bride's table was covered with a yellow cloth and a white lace overlay. A centerpiece of mums in fall colors complimented the three-tiered cake, also decorated with fall colored mums. The table was presided over by Kristi Koch, the bride's cousin, and Amy Willis.

Kristi Dryden, sister-in-law of the groom, and Kelly Dryden, the groom's sister, served the chocolate wedding ring cake and coffee from a brass service at the groom's table.

Linda Olson, sister of the bride, registered guests in the bride's book.

The couple is at home in San Angelo.

The bride attended Amarillo College and San Angelo State University.

The groom attended Western Texas College, Texas Tech University and San Angelo State University.

Beauty Digest

About face

Actress Lee Grant shared her favorite beauty secret with Beauty Digest magazine: "The first thing I do when I get up in the morning is wrap my face in hot towels for 5 minutes. That way, I get my blood circulating. Then I briskly fan my face, which tightens my skin. Finally, I moisturize to protect my complexion."

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

The last chapter of "Advanced Play at Bridge" covers match point play. Hugh Kelsey points out that in many situations your play is dictated by what you expect will have happened at the other tables.

In today's hand South's first impulse after looking at dummy is to strangle his partner. Tournament rules frown on that so he must see if he can save something from the wreck.

If West held all four trumps he would undoubtedly have led one. West probably holds Q-10-9. Hence, in defense against five hearts, South would collect a spade, a heart and one diamond if East held the ace. Hence, South's problem is to get out for three down or 500 points against the diamond ace in the West hand.

Therefore, at trick two South leads a low diamond. It doesn't make much difference what happens from then on. If a spade is led, South will win in dummy, play dummy's last diamond and duck. South will now wind up losing two clubs, two diamonds and one trump for down just three. The 500-point [illegible] him several match points against other North-South pairs who watched their opponents score 650 at four or five hearts. He may also get some points against other South players who played at four spades doubled and tried to get away with the loss of just one diamond trick and wound up down three or maybe even four tricks at their contracts.

ORANGE AND AVOCADO SALAD

Halve and seed avocados; peel; slice and dip in white rice-wine vinegar. Cut peel away from oranges so they are membrane-free; cut out sections so they, too, are membrane-free. Arrange avocado slices and orange sections alternately on a serving plate and garnish with watercress, parsley sprigs or other salad greens. The rice-wine vinegar adds surprisingly satisfactory flavor and, used instead of a salad dressing, cuts down on calories.

To distribute nuts and dried fruit in cake, roll them in flour before adding them to the batter.

Pair To Mark 60th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Biggs of Route 1, Aledo, Texas, will celebrate their 60th wedding aniversary with an open house and reception from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. Saturday, December 5, in the Blue Room of Ridglea Country Club at 3700 Bernie Anderson, Fort Worth.

The reception is being given by their daughter, Billie Arlene.

Mr. and Mrs. Biggs were married December 8, 1921 in Fluvanna. They were raised in Snyder and lived there until 1942, when they moved to Fort Worth. Mrs. Biggs is the former Lola Lee Ramsey.

Mr. and Mrs. Biggs are active members of Ridglea Methodist Church. They are also Gold Star Parents, having lost their son in World War II. They have done volunteer work at Carswell Air Force Base, United Public Health Service Hospital, and Peter Smith Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Biggs are vice president and president, respectively, of the Senior Citizens Group of White Settlement. Their hobbies include gardening, training and showing Border Collie and German Shepherd dogs, and traveling. Their many travels have taken them to places such as the Holy Land, Europe, the Orient, South Pacific, and South America.

Others who will help with the reception are [illegible]nton, Mokey Lewis, Lee Kay Biggs, Jewell McCli- Dixon, and Evelyn Snell.
