Sunday...

During recent years, the usually sedate town of Ozona, Crockett County seat, has experienced some excitement — in government of all things.

Ozona prides itself on being an unincorporated city, where the county commissioners act as governing body for the town. "It saves trouble, double taxes and double jobs," explained one resident.

But since 1975, Ozona's commissioners court has been involved in suits over precinct lines, voters and elections.

Staff writer Kay Hord traveled to Ozona and discovered a new element emerging in Ozona's local government.

In Sunday's Reporter-Telegram, she will look into "Brown Power" in Ozona.

The Mental Health staff of the Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation handles emotional disturbances and drug and alcohol abuse.

Staff writer Brooks Keller tells you about their work, and reveals some surprising and alarming facts about a popular legal drug, in Sunday's Reporter-Telegram.

The majority of the American public, both men and women, is more concerned today than ever before about nutrition and weight control.

Staff writer Patsy Gordon recently attended a three-day symposium on food and nutrition for food editors.

The conference, held in Albuquerque, N.M., and sponsored by the Dairy Council, Inc., dealt with the proposed dietary goals established by the former Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs and the opposition to these goals by the American Medical Association.

The writer's three-part series will begin in Sunday's Lifestyle Section, with the second and third parts being published on succeeding Sunday's.

Fire damage $300,000

LAMESA — A fire in Lamesa Thursday afternoon caused about $300,000 damage to Parks Well Service, fire officials said.

The fire started in an electrical box and spread throughout the shop on the Big Spring Highway as oil in containers caught fire, said Danny Hernandez of the Lamesa Fire Department.

Firefighters using three trucks worked two and a half hours to extinguish the fire.

Unvaccinated dogs rabies threat

By LINDA HILL

A rabid skunk bites an unvaccinated dog. What happens next?

The answer could be a rabies epidemic, according to Dalton Byerly, head of the city of Midland's new Department of Animal Control.

"That's just scaring me to death," Byerly said of the possibility that it might happen in Midland.

He said there have been one confirmed and two almost certain cases of rabid skunks found within the Midland city limits during the past month. "People in Midland don't realize what would happen if a skunk was to bite a dog here, and it was to start an epidemic," Byerly said.

The stress to a person having to take the rabies vaccine, the monetary cost of controlling an epidemic and the necessary destruction of large numbers of stray animals would be among the costs of an epidemic, he said.

said. "Not only that, there's going to be some people who don't realize the dog that bit them was rabid."

The risk of a rabies epidemic could be reduced significantly if dog owners would get their own dogs vaccinated and licensed, Byerly said.

Not only would that protect the individual dog, but also, he said, licensing owned dogs would make it possible to identify stray, unowned dogs and control them.

All dog owners are required under city ordinance to have their animals licensed, which involves paying a $5 license fee and presenting proof of current rabies vaccination. If the dog has been sterilized, the fee is only $3.

April 1 is the deadline for registering dogs for 1978. After that, there's a $2 penalty.

It also is against city ordinances to let a dog run loose off of the owner's property without supervision. Ex-

Dusty days ahead, says researcher

By JIM STEINBERG
R-T Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Cooler temperatures and mild winds may have delayed it some, but a government agricultural researcher here still thinks it's inevitable. West Texas is in for the dustiest days it has known in 15 years.

Bill Fryrear, an agricultural engineer and experimental team leader at the United States Department of Agriculture's Big Spring Field Station, said he has developed a technique that can forecast the number of days of blowing dust in a year with a small margin of error.

He makes those predictions by using a formula which considers evaporation, precipitation and average daily wind movement for the months of September through December of the preceding calendar year.

After arriving at his prediction for 1978, Fryrear decided that unlike previous years, he would make no announcement of his findings.

"It was just too bad," said Fryrear, sitting behind his office desk here late Thursday afternoon.

"If somebody came by and asked me, I'd tell them, but I didn't think Big Spring would be too happy about this sort of publicity," said Fryrear, who is a specialist in soil erosion.

During 1977 Fryrear estimated there would be 27 days of blowing dust. There were actually 29.

Ready for the gritty prediction for 1978?

"Eighty-four days of blowing dust," Fryrear said quietly.

"Actually, it was rather hard to estimate this year. The last four months were so dry we really had nothing to compare them with," he said.

Encouragingly, Fryrear noted that unseasonably cold temperatures, rain and mild winds have modified the situation somewhat since the dismal forecast was made on Dec. 31, 1977.

These unexpected weather breaks have probably shaved off anywhere from 10 to 15 days worth of dust, Fryrear said cheerfully.

That would leave 69 dusty days as an optimistic forecast? Fryrear was asked.

"It's going to be a bad year," Fryrear said. "But maybe the dust storms won't be as bad as last year. There were sand storms in latter part of February and the early part of March that were ranked a seven or eight (on a scale of severity where 10 is the worst). We haven't seen any that bad for a number of years," Fryrear said.

Fryrear believes that by un-

Marshals head for coalfields

WASHINGTON (AP) — As contract talks resume in the 95-day coal strike, federal marshals are fanning out into the coalfields with a court order telling miners to go back to work.

There were few indications, however, that many of the 160,000 striking miners planned to halt their protracted walkout, although President Carter said Thursday he believes "a substantial portion of them... will comply with the law."

Meanwhile, union and coal industry negotiators planned to meet today at the United Mine Workers headquarters to search for a settlement of their bitter dispute, which has forced electric utilities to curtail power and industries to lay off thousands of workers.

Sources said UMW President Arnold Miller and his bargaining team were to meet with three officials from the Bituminous Coal Operators Association without the presence of federal mediators.

The two sides have not bargained on a new national contract since the industry agreed to union contract demands two weeks ago under the threat of presidential intervention. The contract was rejected by the rank-and-file by a 2-1 margin last weekend.

Immediately after U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. issued his temporary back-to-work order Thursday under the Taft-Hartley Act, U.S. marshals began distributing copies of the order and supporting documents to 1,451 defendants that included the UMW, its local unions, mine construction workers and mine operators.

The judge issued the order after agreeing with the Carter administration — represented by Attorney General Griffin Bell in a rare court appearance — that the strike's continuation would "imperil the national health or safety."

Carter unlikely to reach oil goal, specialist says

By BROOKS KELLER

President Carter isn't likely to see the realization of his oil production goal of nine million barrels of oil produced daily through 1985, a Department of Energy specialist said Thursday in Midland.

The reason is a declining domestic production trend, Robert R. Aitken said at a luncheon meeting at the 31st annual meeting of the Midwest Societies of the Society of Exploration Geophysicists.

That trend, if it continues, will leave us 2.4 million barrels of oil per day short in 1985, Aitken said. For example, in the last quarter of 1970 we produced 10 million barrels of oil per day.

In the same quarter of 1976, we produced only 8 million barrels of oil per day, he said.

Aitken is acting chief of the Crude Oil Division, Office of Oil and Gas, Office of Resource Applications in the Department of Energy.

He spoke to an audience of 425 on the subject: "Where Will We Find Our New Oil?"

One of the best places to look, he said, would be in what he called "high potential acreage." But there's a rub there. Much of this land is public land and various federal agencies have claims on it which conflict with leasing it for drilling for oil and gas.

Examples of what he was talking about, he said, were lands which have been designated as wilderness lands or future national parks.

He listed this lack of high potential acreage as one of three reasons for the seven-year decline in oil production.

The second reason is that the remaining resource base is so small that the best technology can't deliver much more oil from it. The third reason, he said, is the understandable tendency of the oil industry to drill low risk prospects.

Stressing that he was speaking for himself and not the DOE, he suggested several steps that might improve exploration and production.

One would be to make sure that some federal land is made available for exploration. But some of the best of these lands are in Alaska, the Rocky Mountains and on the Pacific Coast, where the wilderness land and other environmentalist claims are strongest.

Another way to help would be to provide incentives and assistance to wildcat drilling, he said.

Aitken said the DOE should publish a map of the public lands in and adjacent to the U.S., showing where drilling has and hasn't taken place.

He said there is a bill before Congress now, House Bill 39, which would put 60 percent of the high potential acreage land in the American West out of reach of the oil industry, because of conflicting Federal agency claims.

Answering a question from the floor of the Midland Hilton ballroom, he said he did not think the DOE should be an advocacy agency for the oil and gas industry.

"The industry's job is to maximize profits. Ours is to maximize production," he said.

Bell asks hike OK

Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. Thursday asked the Texas Public Utility Commission to approve $214.3 million in increased telephone rates in the 488 Texas cities and towns served by the company.

The request represents an increase of 11.4 percent on intrastate revenues for the company. Of the increase, $37.7 million would apply to basic residential telephone rates, according to Doyle E. Rogers, Southwestern Bell vice president for Texas.

Under the proposal, one-party residential rates would increase from between 75 cents monthly in the smallest towns to $1.20 in the largest.

Requested increases for one-party business service would range from $1.60 to $3.80 per month.

A 10-cent-per-month increase for extension telephones also is included in the request.

The remainder of the request, Bell officials said, would be increases in miscellaneous rates and one-time service connection and rearrangement charges, plus

Principal popular with everyone

The "pal" in principal may just be openers for what Principal Lee Roy Shannon means to the students, teachers and to the parents of pupils at J. Pinckney Henderson Elementary School in extreme southwest Midland.

Shannon is a popular fellow, an all-around good guy, and is an educator who, quite honestly, wants the finest and best education has to offer his 542 students.

"He's just one of those all-around good citizens," said one of Shannon's most outspoken and staunch supporters, Vickey Banks. She has two children, Stephany, 7, and Bethany, 9, who attend Henderson. She's also a leader in the school's Parent-Teacher Association.

"He takes a personal interest in everything" at the school, Mrs. Banks said. "He knows something personal about everyone (there)."

These words of good will toward Shannon come at a most appropriate time: Texas Public School Week.

That's the time when the public schools may tend to "put on the dog" in a community-wide public-relations gesture. And Mrs. Banks thought it fitting to single out a personality from the mid-management-ranks-in-an-effort to heighten public awareness that, indeed, there are quality and caring people in education.

Her logical choice was Shannon. Typical or not, here are some all-together good news about her No. 1 man in education.

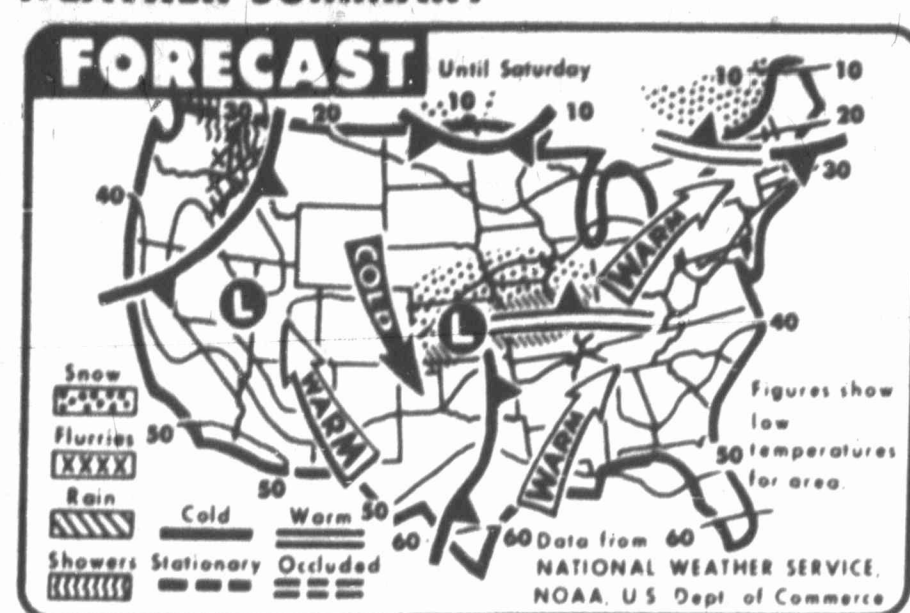

"He does make a special effort," she said of Shannon. "His is a labor of love."

"We just think he is doing a fantastic job," she said in acting as spokesman for the Henderson PTA.

Spring appears closer with warm temperatures

Although the spring season still is 10 days away, spring already seems to have arrived in Midland with fair skies and a high temperature in the middle 70s in the forecast for Saturday.

The weatherman predicted partly cloudy skies for today, but he said they should clear up sometime tonight. The low temperature tonight is expected to drop to the upper 30s

Researcher says 1978 to be unusually dusty

Understanding the climatic factors responsible for wind erosion and by forecasting potentially severe dust blowing seasons, landowners can take measures to control and reduce the severity of the dust storms.

"We were in good shape going into last year's dust season. What made it bad was those days of 50 and 60 mph winds. There's nothing you can really do to protect the soil from a wind like that," Fryrear said, adding, "except to cover the ground with concrete."

In 1953 there were 58 days of blowing dust. That was the worst year since the Big Spring Field Station began keeping tabs on the variables believed crucial in dust storm forecasting.

"We don't have too many dust storms on very cold days. They seem to be associated with a warm front," Fryrear said while standing outside the experiment station in Thursday's 70-degree sun.

Most of the blowing dust in the Midland area comes from the Texas-New Mexico border, he said.

And where does it go?

West Texas dust has been found in soil samples of all the eastern states. It has been found in England and other European countries, Fryrear said.

"After it (West Texas dust) gets up into the jet stream, I imagine it circles the globe a couple of times before it settles. You could probably find traces of it anywhere in the world," he said.

From experiments conducted in one of the Big Spring Field Station's three wind tunnels, Fryrear said that he has shown moist soil will have more evaporation than a water surface area of the same dimension.

He said that one of his research goals is to be able to estimate the loss in terms of crop production caused by a particular dust storm.

Already Fryrear said, he can estimate how much of a cotton crop will survive a particular dust storm. But more research work needs to be done to determine the actual effect soil erosion caused by a particular dust storm will have on the future harvest.

As for ultimately eliminating the level of dust in West Texas, the only prospect is to halt agricultural production in the area. An impractical solution, Fryrear admitted.

"You might say you live in the 'Dust Capital' of the world," Fryrear said.

Teens explain attraction of L

(Editor's Note: Portions of the story in bold type are excerpts from a letter mailed to The Reporter-Telegram and signed "a 17-year old.")

By KAY HORD

"Personally I think there's nothing more boring than driving up and down L Street. That's a last resort, but there's no where else to go," said Lee High School junior Eric Setzler.

"If we had a beach, mountains, disco or anywhere, we wouldn't cruise L Street. But we don't even have that many good movies in Midland.

"The residents are mostly right about the vandalism and the cars and noise, but I don't think it's the kids' fault. We do it (cruise North L Street) for lack of anything else," he said.

"It does get boring," said Lee junior Boyd Chrissett.

Teresa Roberts, a sophomore at Midland High School, said, "This year it doesn't seem to have been that bad. Most people just go down there to drive back and forth when there's nothing else to do."

According to Danny Carter, a Midland High sophomore, one of North L Street's big attractions is that "That's where the mommas are."

The first and foremost reason to "drag" L Street is to meet people of the opposite sex.

According to one Midland High sophomore, James McFarland, North L became the focal point for high school students when a popular student living in the area graduated.

Her house had been the "hang-out" for Midland High students, but when she graduated there was no where to go. So, the students just began cruising the North L Street area, and soon Lee students joined the Midland High students, he said.

Several other Midland High students commented on the fact that several popular students lived in the North L area.

Last of a series

"We know the people who live there," said Midland High junior Joe Worrell.

For Lee High School students, it just seems to be "where the people are."

"It's the drag. It's a nice street with nice homes. It's just a couple of (kids) making a lot of trouble," said Christen Pokey, a Lee High sophomore.

Impressing people involves the showing of strength and a carefree attitude as well as a giving spirit.

A Midland High sophomore, Charlene Bynum, said, "It's just a few who cause trouble, and then they think it's everybody."

Midland High Student Body President Cel Cahoon said, "The problem two years ago was much worse. That is when L was in it's boom."

I am sure that a great deal of the vandalism in the L Street area is done by kids under 13 years of age. I have seen three boys who looked to be under 10 years old break windows in daylight.

The spraypainting of objects is after all a remnant of adolescent expression of frustration and a lot, if not most, of the (vandalistic) spraypainting done throughout the U.S. as well as the L Street area is done by pre-high school kids.

Chrissett said, "I've never seen any vandalism in this area, throwing beer bottles, drinking or stuff like that because the cops patrol it too much."

Kurt Westerman, Lee High sophomore, said North L Street had the reputation of being an "easy bust."

"The cops are really coming down on the people out there. If you have liquor or drugs, they are going to bust you," he said.

The police are really only a symbol of the authority and the reason why so many teen-agers dislike them is because of what they represent and not as individuals.

Westerman said, "I think if the cops really start coming down on the kids on North L, I think it will dwindle and go somewhere else."

Cahoon said, "As far as a 'drag' I think the kids are already beginning to lose interest in L Street."

If it gets too tough at L Street, then they, we, will find another area, and if anyone cares that's just too bad.

James Harris of Lee High disagreed. "I don't think the kids will leave. I think they will just keep it down until the police get off their backs, and then they'll start up again."

We are here and it is our generation in its multitude that dictates tomorrow.

"If it (the situation on North L) is talked up too much, if it becomes a big deal and they start talking about taking harsh steps to stop it, it may make more people go there as a means of defiance," Cahoon said.

Harris said, "I don't really think they (the kids) are that much out of hand."

Westerman agreed, saying, "The last time I was there, everybody was really kind of civilized."

Cahoon added, "The problem's not near what it used to be."

Jobless rate drops despite strike, layoffs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A big increase in new manufacturing jobs helped push the nation's jobless rate down to 6.1 percent in February, the fourth straight monthly decline in unemployment and the lowest since October 1974, the government reported today.

The unemployment rate in January was 6.3 percent.

The best unemployment gains in February were for blacks and other minority workers, whose jobless rate declined to 11.8 percent, down from 12.7 percent in January and the lowest in more than three years.

The February report said the effects of the long coal strike either had not yet shown up or not yet had an impact on overall employment, although it noted that the strike has taken 160,000 miners temporarily out of the labor force.

Aside from the miners themselves, the Labor Department reported Thursday that 25,500 factory workers had been laid off in the week of Feb. 26 as a direct result of coal and electricity shortages in the 11 Midwestern and mid-Atlantic states most affected by the strike.

The agency said nearly half of the lay-offs were in Indiana. Other significant lay-offs were reported in Pennsylvania, Illinois, Maryland and Ohio.

Administration officials agree that if the strike continues into April, the impact on jobs will mount at an alarming pace.

Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger said Thursday that the number of unemployed workers would exceed 1 million by the end of March and 3.5 million in April, while several million more workers would have reduced working hours.

The Labor Department said 93 million Americans had jobs in February, up from 92.9 million in January, while 6.1 million were unemployed, down from 6.2 million a month earlier.

Reflecting the steady improvement in the nation's economy, the February unemployment rate of 6.1 percent was the lowest since a 5.9 percent rate during the recession in October 1974.

The Labor Department said overall employment last month was 3.7 million higher than in February 1977, the first full month of President Carter's term in office.

If unemployment remains at the February level for the rest of 1978, it means the Carter administration already has achieved its goal for the year of reducing the nation's jobless rate to near 6 percent.

But a Labor Department analyst cautioned that the coal strike could seriously complicate the jobs outlook

Revenge sought with chip toss

Last year they lost the softball game.

This year the Midland Young Lawyers Association isn't taking any chances with lesser skills. The lawyers' group has challenged the Midland Legal Secretaries Association to a "Cow Chip Toss Olympics."

The "showdown" will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday in the picnic area of Hogan Park.

The event will feature contests in the cow chip toss, the flat-footed distance toss, the between the legs distance toss, and the demanding "under one leg accuracy toss at a swinging tire."

"They made up the rules for last year's softball game. This year we made the rules," said Brian Martin, who is an assistant Midland city attorney — when he isn't plotting revenge for last year's 14-12 defeat at softball.

In addition to an award for each accuracy and distance event, awards will be given for the best footwork and "the most socially acceptable grip by a female entrant."

OK given to deliver babies

ODESSA — Medical Center Hospital in Odessa Thursday received the official permission it needed to go back into the business of delivering babies.

The Texas Health Facilities in Austin approved the hospital's application for a certificate of need for an obstetrics unit which will deliver no more than 700 babies a year.

Medical Center eliminated its obstetrical unit during recent renovation and expansion of its facilities. Ector County commissioners allowed to elapse a contract with Women's and Children's Hospital to deliver babies for indigent women. And since the spring of 1977, those deliveries have been done in Andrews.

Principal popular with everyone to Henderson on Thursday afternoon.

"Things" were fairly busy and hectic at the over-crowded school. And the teachers spoke well of their boss.

"He is a very nice man, a pleasant man to work for," said librarian Austine Crosby.

"He has been a super principal. . . . He is a super principal," said Jeannine Googins, who is into her 20th year of teaching. She teaches music "and a little social studies and science" at the 18-year-old school.

Henderson, which has students from kindergarten through the fourth grade, has virtually more pupils than space.

"We're so over crowded here that ever cubbyhole is in use," Mrs. Googins said.

Fact is, part of the 4,000-volume library has been partitioned off to allow for a fifth first-grade class.

Sue Smith is one of the teachers for the 108 first-graders at the school, which was named after Texas' first governor following its coming into statehood in 1845.

"You know," she said of Shannon, "he just works, works, works all year. He's just . . . efficient."

Unknown to him, Shannon was being cast enough laurels to overburden the most praise-worthy of men.

Third-grade teacher Grata Elmore characterized Shannon as a "really good principal, I think."

And fellow teacher Sarah Harris said Shannon is "doing a tremendous job . . . considering." Typically, she had gone through an abnormally normal school day: hectic.

So, now, what does Shannon have to say about Shannon? Not a whole lot — except he thoroughly enjoys his work. (He got initiated in public school teaching up at Welch, in Dawson County, in 1951. He coached and taught there. He ended up teaching for 14 years in Midland before he was promoted to principal 2½ years ago.)

If not for himself, Shannon speaks up and well for "our parents. They're just super. They reinforce us, and help teach them (the students)."

Shannon has more than enough good-will people, such as Jackie J. Forsyth, the Henderson PTA's membership chairman.

He (Shannon) is an exceptional principal and is handling the problems at Henderson with remarkable tact."

He is, to begin with, a "pai."

Police deny statement

Police today denied saying that a $56,000 private airplane stolen since Monday from Air Park probably was going to be used in smuggling dope.

"Stolen airplanes can be used for many purposes, including resale and dope smuggling," said one detective with the Midland Police Department.

Other media reports quoted detectives as saying that the airplane "will likely be used in the dope-smuggling trade."

Vernon Gilbert told police early Thursday he discovered the single-engine Cessna T-206 missing Thursday morning. He had last seen the aircraft Monday. The airplane was fueled and contained enough for a 700-mile trip.

Pancake Jamboree!

It's time again for that big, annual, community-wide "flip 'em, flop 'em" event, which each year assumes more and more the color and atmosphere of a county fair.

Yes sir, the Midland Downtown Lions Club's 22nd annual Pancake Jamboree will be held Saturday in the Dellwood Plaza Mall.

The first pancakes will come off the griddles at 7 a.m., and there will be no let-up in the mixing, cooking and serving process until 8 p.m. And the eager, enthusiastic Lions are determined to shatter all previous records by serving at least 10,000 men, women and children during the day.

The diners also will enjoy the musical entertainment which will be furnished continuously from morning until night by popular entertainers from Midland and vicinity.

It's great to have such a tremendous event each year in the Tall City, something which thousands of persons enjoy and appreciate. But what makes it even more significant is the fact that all of the proceeds go to fund the club's numerous activities and projects, benefitting so many person in so many ways. The club this year has budgeted almost $20,000 which will be spent in its overall program of sight conservation, hearing aid, youth welfare, crippled children's camp, senior citizens assistance, community affairs and charitable projects. And it is all made possible by the proceeds from the Pancake Jamboree.

Also noteworthy is the fact that the club's more than 300 members handle all of the work in planning and staging the Jamboree — ticket sales, food procurement, equipment, pancake mixing, cooking, serving and clean-up. It's wonderful to see so many men engaged in such a work project — and they enjoy every minute of it. They are assisted in certain phases of the operation by the Lion Tamers, the club's woman's auxiliary.

It requires a lot of doing over an extended period of time to stage such an event, but the community service-minded Lions do it — and do it well.

The table is set and all that is needed to complete the picture is YOUR presence around the table. See you there!

Girl Scouts' birthday

The Tall City of Midland's 2,100 Girl Scouts and 600 volunteer leaders Saturday will join with 3 million other Scouts and Scouters across the land in celebrating the organization's 66th anniversary.

Girl Scouts of the U.S.A., founded in 1912, always has encouraged girls to be active doers rather than passive observers.

But today, however, Girl Scouts have many more opportunities to broaden their scope of interest. They now are into all kinds of undertakings, from career exploration to a heightened awareness of women's roles in a changing society.

It now is more important than ever before for even the youngest girls to expand their understanding of the world around them — its people, natural resources, arts and the world of science. Yes, today's Girl Scouts are doing new things in new ways which reflect the concerns of contemporary life. No wonder that it is a great, meaningful program.

The trend in the 1970s is on the global nature of things.

But this in no way interferes with the organization's local program, which, quite naturally, comes first with the girls.

Midlanders appreciate their Girl Scouts and they join in wishing the Scouts and their leaders a Happy Birthday.

The birthday anniversary leads into the observance of Girl Scout Week, during which the Girl Scouts rate a snappy salute, along with all best wishes.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Pat Harris-Oakley Hunter feud

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — There is nothing that produces as much exhilaration as a protracted, bitter, ugly political vendetta. Such a feud is now raging in the backrooms of Washington between the nation's top two housing authorities, Patricia Harris and Oakley Hunter.

The stakes are high: control over the $30 billion, government-supported mortgage market.

The feisty Harris has sent a sizzling, secret memo to the White House, setting forth 54 pages of charges against Hunter. She wants him fired as head of the Federal National Mortgage Association, popularly known as Fannie Mae.

For openers, the memo accuses him of impeding "the administration of the national housing policy, the condition of the nation's great urban centers, race relations and even the state of the national economy."

If Fannie Mae doesn't possess the keys to racial tranquility and economic stability, it certainly holds the purse strings to home financing in this country. Its mortgage portfolio surpasses $30 billion.

As secretary of Housing and Urban Development, Harris wants Fannie Mae to help stimulate low-income housing and revitalize the nation's depressed cities. She is a brilliant, combative, sometimes abrasive woman who once walked out in a huff after one month as dean of the Howard University Law School.

Although Fannie Mae is a quasi-government agency, Hunter believes it can operate more efficiently as a private corporation. He would like Harris to keep her cotton-picking hands off it. Hunter is a great, lumbering grizzly bear of a man, ponderous and sleepy-eyed, as if he had just emerged from hibernation. He comes out of the Richard Nixon school of politics, with an early background as an FBI agent and wartime commando. He has a reputation in financial circles as a competent administrator.

Hunter was originally selected by Nixon to head Fannie Mae. But the shareholders control the board, which installed Hunter as president and chairman, with no political strings attached.

Harris hadn't been in the Carter Cabinet long before she cast the evil eye on Hunter. She began assailing him with a zest for battle that transformed their philosophical quarrel into a mortal feud.

But under the set-up, President Carter cannot remove Hunter, except for "good" cause. Harris has made it her mission, therefore, to find enough "good cause" to get rid of Hunter. The 54-page memo, drafted by Washington attorneys, summarizes her case against Hunter. Here are a few of the highlights:

— The memo, dated Jan. 13, 1978, charges that Hunter has withheld critical information from Fannie Mae's directors. His assumption of authority to adopt a policy for Fannie Mae on (various) matters "without consulting the board" may be considered a breach of duty warranting his removal, the memo contends.

— Hunter allegedly withheld from the board, among other things, correspondence between himself and Harris. These letters showed the depth of their disagreement over mortgage policy. Yet he allegedly "proceeded" on his own respon-

ART BUCHWALD

The question: Are we really ready for reform?

WASHINGTON — President Carter's long-awaited civil service reforms have finally been unveiled and, like the most of Mr. Carter's plans, they sound swell on paper. The President wants to get the government on a more businesslike footing by rewarding those who do a good job with merit raises and by punishing those who do a bad job with dismissal. He would also protect whistle blowers who, by going public, embarrass their bosses and find themselves booted out in the street.

All well and good. So what's the problem? The problem is that no one, including the President, Congress and the Supreme Court, has ever defined exactly what a government employee should do. There are job descriptions in the civil service regulations, but since the government is not a profit-making organization it is almost impossible to accurately measure a civil servant's productivity.

For example, I work in a building on Pennsylvania Ave. in which six of the 13 floors are rented to a government agency. Since I am located on the thirteenth floor I come into contact with government employees every day. Some are going from the sixth floor to the seventh. Others from the second to the tenth and still others from the fifth to the ninth. They are always carrying official-looking papers in their hands so I have to assume they are doing something very important.

Art Buchwald

The question is, are government employees who move up and down in the elevator and whiz to and fro more productive than those who sit in their offices reading The Washington Post fannies?

The elevator rider, you may say, is giving us a bigger bang for our buck. He or she is engaged in the nation's business of writing new regulations, interpreting old ones, sending out memoranda, stamping classified material, setting up committees, turning out reports and doing all the things expected from a servant of the people.

So surely he or she should be given a raise and a promotion.

Perhaps. But the elevator rider is also the person making the government more unwieldy and impossible to control. By going from the second floor to the tenth he or she may be responsible for a new regulation putting 10,000 people out of work, making a national park into a coal mine or giving the go-ahead on a new missile that will never fly.

A short trip from the fifth to the sixth floor by an innocent-looking chap with a pipe clamped in his mouth could cost every man, woman and child in this country $165.

After traveling up and down the capital's elevators for 16 years, I have come to the sad conclusion that those government employees doing the most work in Washington are also doing the most damage.

Therefore, before I go along with Carter's reform package he's going to have to spell out exactly what he expects government employees to do for their salaries. My fear is that, by instituting a merit system and causing government employees to compete against each other, the President will not reduce but add to the red tape he said he was going to eliminate when he became President.

If employee Brown submits a 10-page regulation on the amount of whipped cream permitted in an Amaretto liqueur, will employee Guggenheim write a 20-page regulation to outdo him?

Compared to other countries, the bureaucrats in the United States have been like a sleeping giant. But if you threaten them with demotion and dangle financial incentives in front of them, they could become an aroused beast, prepared to regulate anything that gets in their way.

Before it approves the Carter Administration's reform package I believe Congress should ask itself the following questions:

- 1—Is a government employee who puts in an honest day's work making any worthwhile contribution to society?
- 2—By taking an elevator from one floor to another is a bureaucrat saving us money or merely wasting the country's energy?
- 3—If you fire all the drones in the government and keep only the overachievers, who will be left to blame when a giant federal program fails and goes down the tube?

Mark Russell says

We're finally bringing about prison reform. Where the old-style prisoner of bygone days wrote second-rate books, the convict of the seventies is writing best sellers.

This is due in part to H.R. Haldeman's "The Ends of Power," the most famous book written in jail since "Mein Kampf."

A visitor to a prison today is likely to see signs announcing, "You're all invited to an autograph party this afternoon in Cellblock Three."

Outside prison work programs have been revamped to allow ample time for guest appearances on the Today Show and Merv Griffin.

Today's modern inmate seeks better food, recreation and a higher percentage of the paperback gross.

Old prison movies must be redone. Surrounded by cops in a tear gas-filled building, the gangster staggers out choking and shouting defiantly, "Get me my publisher!"

NICK THIMMESCH

Dilemma over Frank Snapp and his book revealed

WASHINGTON — While affecting a soft, even casual manner, President Carter can get squinty-eyed with anger, especially when it comes to what he regards as violations of national security.

He got that way at his most recent press conference when he made it clear that government officials privy to secrets must not violate their oaths and contracts binding them to keep those secrets.

A female columnist had asked Carter how come he was encouraging whistle-blowing by federal employees at the same time "you are prosecuting" Frank Snapp, the ex-CIA agent whose best-selling book makes him, in her words, "the most famous whistle-blower of all...."

Carter snapped that he didn't look on Snapp as one of the whistle-blowing greats, and pointed out that as a CIA employee Snapp had voluntarily signed a contract agreeing that he would submit any material that he intended to use for speeches or publication to the CIA for approval first.

"The attorney general has decided that when a contract is signed that it ought to be honored," the President declared. "If everyone who came into the CIA or other highly secret organizations in government felt free to resign because of a dispute...and then write a book revealing our nation's ability to protect ourselves in peace or war, and to negotiate on a confidential and successful basis with other government leaders."

Ah, Jimmy Carter turns out to be like all other Presidents who must weigh the openness of democracy with the necessity to keep some matters absolutely secret. President Kennedy succeeded in getting the New York Times to suppress its story detailing how the U.S. would be involved in an invasion of Cuba.

President Nixon failed to stop publication of the "Pentagon Papers" though they reflected on previous Presidents, not him. While he argued on the national security principal, Nixon — goaded by Dr. Henry A. Kissinger — was actually trying to get Daniel Ellsberg, who said he took the papers, because Kissinger claimed Ellsberg had his Vietnam option papers and other sensitive documents.

In Snapp's case, the government does not charge that his book reveals classified material. Rather, Attorney General Griffin Bell accuses Snapp of breaking the formal, written contract all CIA employees must sign when they are hired.

Snapp argues that his experiences in Vietnam, at the time the Thieu regime collapsed, compelled him to write an "after action" report for his superiors, but that no one would let him.

In his desperation, he decided to resign and put it all in a whistle-blowing book. CIA Director Stansfield Turner claims that he extracted an oral agreement from Snapp to clear the book before publication. Other departed CIA agents, turned renegade, have had excised versions of their books published after the agency threatened publishers with suits.

Since Snapp's book is a best seller, his fans tout him as a principled whistle-blower, a model for other government employees acting out of conscience. After all, Snapp won the CIA Medal of Merit when he was in Vietnam, and remains loyal to the agency.

But Carter, Bell and Turner evidently think if Snapp gets away with his unapproved book, a precedent will be set. The government suit seeks to take Snapp's royalties from him, to be awarded damages, and to stop Snapp from further writing or speaking about the CIA. In effect, the government, just as with the Ellsberg case, seeks to affirm a principle.

If the government prevails in the Snapp case, undoubtedly many federal employees, including those not required to sign contracts, will be inhibited from legitimate "whistle-blowing."

Still, the President is right when he says there is a distinction between violating a contract dealing with a sensitive agency and regular "whistle-blowing."

I believe William Colby has the best proposal to resolve this dilemma. Colby is perhaps the most statesmanlike of all past CIA directors. He thoroughly believes in the agency, but he also believes in the exercise of reason.

He would do away with the contract system, and only require new CIA employees to sign an acknowledgment that if they violated security regulations, they would be liable for criminal sanctions.

This would mean that if a former employee wrote a book which did not violate security, neither he nor the publisher or anyone else involved would be liable for prosecution. But if an employee did divulge secrets — in or out of a book — he might very well be prosecuted, and would have already acknowledged in writing that he knew what the score is in terms of security violations.

Two men rescued from sub

LERWICK, Shetland Islands (AP) — Two oil workers were rescued unharmed from the icy depths of the North Sea today after being trapped 355 feet down for nearly 24 hours in a minisubmarine.

The sub, the PC9, was stranded on the sea floor Thursday by a half-inch wire cable that fouled its propeller while its two crewmen were working on an oil wellhead in a British Petroleum Co. field 80 miles west of the Shetland Islands.

It was cut free this morning by divers taken down by another minisub. The PC9 maneuvered to the surface under its own power and was hoisted aboard its mother ship, its owner, the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co., reported.

The P. and O. at first identified the two trapped men only as an Englishman and a Scotsman. Today it said they were James Jones and his copilot Bill Cornwall, two experienced sub men in their early 30s.

Two men in a diving bell tried to free the propeller before dawn today but failed, and the bell was hauled back up. Then a minisub from another company, the Intersub III, was sent down with two divers who did the job.

A P. and O. spokesman said Jones and Cornwall had not been in danger and took their plight "rather philosophically."

"They have enough air and food for seven or eight days," he reported Thursday night. "They are making regular radio checks with their mother ship on the surface every half hour. They've shut down all non-essential equipment to conserve power."

Oil industry sources had predicted little difficulty freeing the men if the weather stayed calm. But rising winds were forecast, with a chance of gales by Saturday.

Since the North Sea oil boom began a decade ago, 36 divers have died in the North Sea and there has been one minisub mishap.

The PC9 is 26 feet long and seven feet wide and was built by Perry Oceanographics Inc.

Orbiter embarks on tour

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Space Shuttle Orbiter Enterprise, part of America's next thrust into space, went on tour today with its first cross-country trip, secured atop a giant Boeing 747.

The Enterprise, used last year to test future landing procedures following return trips from space, could be mistaken for a UFO, perched on top of the huge 747.

But it's the real thing. It was to circle Hobby Airport on the city's south side prior to a scheduled mid-afternoon landing at Ellington Air Force Base.

Pistol enigma answer sought by police chief

HOUSTON (AP) — Police Chief Harry Caldwell says he is attempting to determine how a revolver got out of the police property room and was found nine years later near the body of a youth shot to death by a policeman.

Caldwell confirmed Thursday the pistol found near the body of Randall Webster, 17, of Shreveport, La., did come from the police property room.

The shooting now is the subject of an investigation by the U.S. attorney's office.

Randall was killed Feb. 8, 1977, after he wrecked a van he was driving during a high-speed chase with police. Officer D.H. Mays, 31, said he shot Webster after the youth pointed a pistol at him. A Harris County grand jury took no action against Mays last year. The foreman of the grand jury, however, said earlier this week he is dissatisfied with his panel's investigation.

Caldwell said handwritten property room records show the revolver was marked on May 24, 1968, as having been destroyed.

He said handguns normally are destroyed after a period of time if they are no longer needed in a case and cannot be returned to their owners.

"It is pretty damn obvious to me now that it was not destroyed," Caldwell said.

Ellington Air Force Base after leaving the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) Dryden Flight Research Center, Edwards, Calif., early today.

The orbiter is en route to the Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Ala., where it will undergo ground vibration tests.

Following a welcoming ceremony headed by Johnson Space Center (JSC) Director Christopher Kraft, the 747 and its "passenger" will remain on public display at Ellington through Sunday before departing for Marshall.

The Enterprise craft eventually will be used to transport astronauts and experimental equipment into space but it will not be the first orbiter in space because it is not completely fitted for space flight.

A similar orbiter currently is under construction at the Rockwell International Space Division plant at Palmdale, Calif., and will be used for the first space shuttle flight, now scheduled for late 1979.

The Enterprise is equipped with dummy engines and does not have the ceramic tile heat shields necessary to protect the craft when it returns to the earth's atmosphere.

The orbiter is capable of being used at least 100 times during the shuttle program. It will be boosted into low earth orbit by three main engines, coupled with the two solid rocket boosters that will be strapped to the side of the external fuel tank.

Unlike previous space flights, the orbiter is scheduled to land on a runway similar to conventional aircraft.

Four astronauts, Fred Haise, Charles G. Fullerton, Richard Truly and Joe Engle successfully tested the Enterprise's landing capabilities last year.

The Enterprise was carried aloft by the 747 and released for an unpowered landing prior to 47 ferrying system also will be used to transport the orbiter to the Kennedy Space Center in Florida prior to the first shuttle flight.

Taxpayer subsidizes 'citizen vice agent'

SEATTLE (AP) — The money was provided by a King County detective, McLean said.

An affidavit filed by one agent said he reported to vice detectives on having sex for pay at least 27 times.

Such use of such civilian agents, as well as county police officers, ended this week with an order by King County Executive John Spellman.

He said use of agents engaging in sex acts was "a deviation" of policy.

The agents' acts were performed in conjunction with a civil lawsuit filed by Prosecutor Christopher Bayley to close three massage parlors — Supreme Sauna, the Skandia Massage Studio in downtown Seattle and the Little Skandia Massage Studio in Mercer Island.

Bayley's office said it has evidence of 53 sexual encounters gathered over a period of three years. Typically, civilian vice agents were given $40 to $80 to pay for the sexual favors, as well as $5 to $10 "spending money."

Seattle and Mercer Island police officers also used agents to build cases for prosecution.

LEE HIGH SCHOOL Future Farmers of America member Bill Harris displays his Charolais steer which won first place in that division of the Junior Show of the San Antonio Livestock Exposition in February. Harris, 16, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Harris of 4611 W. Illinois Avenue. The steer was auctioned at 85 cents for each of the animal's 998 pounds. The same animal placed last in the Midland County Exposition in January.

Briscoe fills stomachs of farmers with chili

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Before offering farmers warm assurance Thursday, Gov. Dolph Briscoe warmed their palates with bowls of chili served by First Lady Janey Briscoe.

"You TV stars come on and fill your selves," Mrs. Briscoe said as she welcomed agriculture strike representatives at the door of the Governor's Mansion.

Wearing denim "gauchito" pants, a cotton shirt, and a diamond-encrusted gold cross, the effervescent Mrs. Briscoe ushered the group into dining rooms and seated them at tables set with silver and china bearing the state seal.

"If I look like the help, I hope you'll excuse me — because today I am," Mrs. Briscoe laughed. She told reporters that 2,000 would be arriving in less than two hours for a March of Dimes luncheon. "I do this every year," she added.

Mrs. Briscoe took a camera from a farmer and handed it to a Department of Public Safety patrolman, assigned to the mansion staff.

"You're going to take a picture of me and my friend," she told the officer who then snapped their photo as they stood in front of the great stairway in the mansion.

Once seated, the farmers were served chili and beans, salad, tamales and rice. Mrs. Briscoe assisted the mansion staff, dashing from table to table filling water glasses and asking if "everything's alright!" Slipping ice water from an engraved silver goblet, one man told his neighbor "it don't taste any better."

Beneath several of the chairs around the dining tables were the agriculture strike baseball caps which have all but replaced the Stetson as the standard headgear of striking farmers.

"J1141 Hidalgo Jail" was written across the strike logo on one hat. Several of the farmers indicated that they were among the 250 men arrested last week while blocking traffic on the international bridge in McAllen.

Charges of falsified results investigated

By BILL RICHARDS
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Federal investigators say they have evidence that the nation's biggest commercial testing laboratory deliberately falsified data submitted to the government on potential carcinogens and that at least four major pesticide manufacturers were aware of the problem.

The laboratory, Industrial Bio-Test of Northbrook, Ill., has been under investigation by probes from the Environmental Protection Agency and the Food and Drug Administration since last fall. EPA and FDA have referred the results of their investigations to the Justice Department.

Knowledgeable federal regulatory officials said Wednesday that audits performed on the commercial lab by EPA and FDA have turned up far more problems than investigators had originally expected.

At the beginning of this thing, we thought we were dealing with problems confined to just one three-year period," said a senior official involved in the probe. "Now we are in a position where we have to regard all of IBT's data as suspect."

The extent of the problem caused by the alleged data tampering by the lab was noted by the official, who said the World Health Organization, which sets international safety exposure standards for potentially harmful chemicals and pesticides, also relied heavily on data from IBT.

In addition to alleged data irregularities at IBT's Northbrook lab, investigators say they are also questioning tests by IBT labs in Decatur, Ill., and Neillville, Wis.

Among examples of what investigators said were apparently "real cases of fraud" were substitutions of healthy animals kept by IBT at the labs for animals that became ill during the tests. Investigators also found that IBT researchers failed in some cases to number test animals, making it virtually impossible to tell which were affected by the test substance.

A spokesman for IBT, which is a subsidiary of the Nalco Chemical Co. of Northbrook, Ill., Wednesday declined to comment on the allegations. The spokesman said IBT was cooperating with federal investigators and that audits of IBT's labs are still under way. IBT changed its top management last spring, after the alleged data tampering took place.

Among the assertions of investigators, federal officials said Wednesday, was that some of IBT's corporate clients apparently knew of the irregularities in the test data they got from IBT and submitted in applications for federal approval of their products.

A senior EPA official said Wednesday that at least four large pesticide manufacturers knew of the alleged falsifications by IBT.

According to federal regulatory officials, the evidence that the four firms knew of the alleged data tampering turned up after EPA auditors examined only about a dozen IBT long-term animal tests. The tests are generally considered to be the base from which regulators determine the safety of potentially hazardous chemicals.

Federal auditors plan to go through about 620 similar long-term tests on 123 chemicals that IBT performed for its clients.

EPA officials say they are now considering whether to refer these cases to the Justice Department.

According to EPA officials, the agency has referred the records of one IBT client to the department for criminal investigation.

Approximately 125 West Texas medical record personnel are expected in Midland Saturday, according to Mary Jackson, director of medical records at Midland Memorial Hospital.

Midland College Faculty members participating will be Gerald Kican, social science department; and Charles Blalock, Wayne Kolomb and Jack Scarbrough, all from the MC mid-management department.

Late registration will be accepted, Mrs. Jackson said, and interested persons should call her at 682-7381, extension 388.

Woman reports rape

A 38-year-old Midland woman told Midland County sheriff's deputies Thursday night that she had been raped.

She told deputies she accepted a ride earlier Thursday from a man who appeared to be in his mid-30s. The man reportedly assaulted the woman west of Midland, near Airline Mobile Homes, according to deputies.

The woman then jumped from the vehicle and ran to the mobile homes, she told deputies.

Verdict expected

A Midland County jury was scheduled to deliver a verdict this afternoon in the trial of David Glenn Harkins, charged with possession of LSD.

Harkins resides in the 2700 block of Washington Street.

The offense allegedly was committed Nov. 23, 1977. The trial began Thursday afternoon.

Time said to be ripe for revolt

QUITMAN, Ga. (AP) — Harold Cooper is Field Marshal of the Brooks County Militia, and just because there haven't been any militiamen since the Civil War is no reason to neglect the office, he says.

Cooper, who also is a farmer, thinks the time is ripe for resurrecting the militia and rebelling once more against the Union — all in good fun, of course.

He figures income-tax time is the best time.

Here's how his plan goes. Rebels seize the cannon at the armory here and mount it on Cooper's pickup truck. Thus armed, they march east and block off nearby Interstate 75.

That would trap all the tourists in Florida, and the Sunshine State would sink beneath their weight.

After Florida falls into the ocean, the nearby town of Nankin would suddenly find itself with an oceanfront, a beach, and lots of rich tourists furnishing revenue to finance the new nation of Brooks County — without income taxes.

Controversy on graduate tests has flavor of Oz

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the scarecrow showed up asking for brains, the Wizard of Oz gave him a diploma. That seemed to please him, even though the wizard was a fake. There's a bit of that flavor in the current controversy between politicians and educators over mandatory tests to determine whether public school students have learned enough to graduate. Educators contend that statewide test standards are likely to be meaningless at best, and may do more harm than good. Any kind of national tests would be worse, they say. Nevertheless, there is a growing trend toward state testing systems as legislators respond to the pressure of dissatisfied voters who don't think the schools are doing a good job. Thirty-one states now have adopted testing systems to determine the competence of students, and the other 19 are considering them.

The government has just concluded a national conference on achievement testing and basic skills, but it produced no consensus on steps to make sure that students emerge from the public schools competent at least in reading, writing and mathematics.

Acknowledging that the public clamor to do something is understandable, a panel of the National Academy of Education said statewide tests are not the answer. That panel of educators said the setting of state standards for high school diplomas is "basically unworkable, exceeds the present measurement arts of the teaching profession and will create more social problems than it can conceivably solve."

Consider lifestyle when redecorating

Bright colors in the flame-stitched upholstery provides an accent of cheer in this small room where furniture also is lightly scaled. (Copley News Service Photo)

By BARBARA HARTUNG
Copley News Service

Q. Unfortunately I do not have good taste in decorating and I have a limited budget to boot. There are just two of us at home now, myself a widow of many years and a single adult son.

I plan to move to a new apartment that I should be able to keep cleaner and less cluttered. I have a habit of holding on to relics, not valuables, which I have been given many years ago.

I like bright, cheery colors, not drab ones. There will be two bedrooms, the usual television and stereo. What colors should I use as background, and to harmonize?

I would like wall-to-wall carpeting. I'm not much at arts and crafts and painting. Mostly I like reading, cooking and a little needlework as well as civic affairs. — N.E.

A. First of all you should consider how you live and your likes as well as your kind of life. If you like reading and cooking and needlework and like to be involved in civic activities, plan especially for those kinds of things.

Plan in your living room for a desk and shelves as well as plenty of storage space for your needlework supplies, for files for civic projects, space for books, good lighting for needlepoint and reading and comfortable seating.

If you are into civic projects you probably will want to invite guests in, so think, too, about entertaining. Flexible seating such as can be provided by small ottomans that slip under library tables when not in use are especially useful.

Next take a careful inventory of your treasures and decide which ones you want to keep and incorporate into your new apartment and which ones you might prefer to part with or give to a friend or relative who would appreciate them.

Only now should you decide on a color scheme. If you want a cheery and bright room, I'd concentrate on light and clear colors. For example, perhaps you could find a bright yellow and green fabric with touches of blue, orange and purple. That could be very gay for a sofa and draperies.

Do your walls in a light yellow and the carpeting in a mint green. Use plenty of white for relief and perhaps some apricot chairs for additional color punch.

If you are unsure of your decorating ability, choose a pattern you especially like that you can use in your room and then repeat colors in the fabric in carpeting, draperies, walls, chairs and accessories. This is a pretty sure way of coming up with a professionally coordinated room.

Q. I am doing my living room over and would appreciate some advice.

The wallpaper is a tone-on-tone ivory and the carpeting is beige. My sofa is light blue velvet and two chairs are covered in yellow, blue and white striped fabric with some dark wood showing. The tables are dark wood.

What color would you suggest for the draperies and for another chair or what?

I will also be buying new lamps. Do you think crystal bases with white shades would blend in well? — P.C.

A. Your room sounds lovely.

I like the idea of crystal lamp bases and white shades. If you need more than two lamps, I think I would go then toward a china lamp with hand-painted decorations to give some variety to your room.

I would think you could use a pair of yellow chairs and plan your draperies to blend into the ivory wall covering. You might choose an open weave in ivory that would have a narrow stripe of yellow and blue running through the base of the drapery.

Cook 'performs' on stage

SHARON ROSENHAUSE
The Los Angeles Times

NEW DELHI — When Jagmohan Singh cooks, he performs, literally, on stage in his glassed-in kitchen in the Ashoka Hotel's dining room.

Food in exotic shapes, sizes and colors hangs from the ceiling and provides a setting befitting Singh's culinary artistry with centuries-old tandoori cooking. Both cook and cuisine are tourist attractions and diners frequently interrupt their meal to photograph Singh's demonstration.

The 45-year-old chef, sweat running down his face in the infernal kitchen, admits that he loves the attention — and he was visibly disappointed when a visitor looked but did not take a picture.

From mud huts to elegant hotel dining rooms, tandoori cooking appeals to the tastes of rural and urban Indians as well as tourists. The ingredients vary, depending on the diner's means. Most Indians cannot afford chicken, mutton or fish tandoori, but they scoop up their vegetables with tandoori-baked bread.

The tandoor is a centuries-old cooking vessel — a clay, bell-shaped oven, heated by firewood or charcoal or both, and gives the cuisine its name.

Basically it is North India-style barbecue and it is the nation's most popular regional food, both home and abroad.

Chicken tandoori is the most famous dish — tangy and crisp, the product of a yogurt marinade and the slow, intensely hot cooking process.

The chicken is not nearly as hot as it looks, and appears less red-hot than it used to be since the government cracked down on the use of food coloring. A few chefs use red chilies to retain the traditional fiery chicken tandoori color. It is always served with a garnish of sliced onion and fresh lime slices.

The cooking style originated with the Mughals, who conquered India in the 1500s and ruled for two centuries. It ranks with the Taj Mahal among the contributions of the Moslem rulers.

Tandoori food is largely meat-based as opposed to the dominant vegetarian food of south India, and meat in India means chicken or mutton — not beef.

The Mughali food influence was felt principally in North India, which now is Pakistan. In 1947, India won independence from the British but the country was partitioned, resulting in a huge migration of people — Hindus to India, Moslems to Pakistan — and refugees who came to India brought their tandoori appetites and recipes.

One of them was Kundan Lal Gujral. Like his father, he operated a tandoori restaurant in what is now Peshawar, Pakistan. Gujral settled in Delhi and had local potters fashion a tandoori oven to his specifications. Then he sank it about 6 feet into the ground, built a platform and he was in business.

In the traditional style, his cooks squatted behind the oven in which they cooked tandoori chicken, mutton kebabs, and chapatis, a round tortilla-like bread, just as they had been cooked in Moti Mahal — the name means Pearl Palace — in Peshawar.

"The kitchen was on the road," recalls Gujral's son, Nand Lal. Although the restaurant had a small indoor dining room, the actual cooking was done on what now is the sidewalk in front. The kitchen moved indoors in 1950.

In those days, Nand Lal Gujral explained, "there was no objection to cooking outside. Now it is not possible because government has become very particular about hygienic conditions."

When Gujral opened the restaurant — there now are two branches in New Delhi's wealthier residential areas — it was a meeting place for Pakistani refugees.

DEAR ABBY 'Dumb' question bothers secretary

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am the secretary for a businessman whose wife is getting on my nerves. When she phones him at the office, and I tell her that her husband is talking on the phone, she always asks, "How long do you think he will be?"

Abby, how do I know how long he will be? He could say goodbye in three seconds, or he could talk for half an hour.

Please print this for a lot of other dummies who ask that question; a million secretaries will love you for it. — SOMEBODY'S SECRETARY

DEAR SECRETARY: Everybody can use a little more love, but I confess that on occasion I've been one of those "dummies."

DEAR ABBY: Do you think it is all right to speak to my mother in the same tone she uses when she speaks to me? When she yells at me or gets sarcastic, and I answer her back in the same tone, she slaps me right in front of my friends. They're all afraid of her.

Before my friends come over, they ask if my mother is in a bad mood today.

Please tell me how to get along with a person everybody is afraid of? I have four more years to go before I'm old enough to leave home, and I can hardly wait. — MOTHER TROUBLE

DEAR TROUBLE: It's NOT all right to speak to your mother in the same tone she uses to speak to you. Mothers have problems children know nothing of, and they sometimes take out their frustrations on those who are nearest and dearest to them. When mother is in a "bad mood," try being especially patient and understanding, because that's when she needs it the most.

DEAR ABBY: I am 5 feet 11 and weigh 230 pounds. That's not all. I'm black, female, 22 and very lonely. I guess you can see why.

I try to lose weight, but I get upset about something and start eating again. Nothing seems to help. I sit around feeling sorry for myself, then I force myself to go out and meet people, but they always turn out to be the wrong kind of people.

If you know anyone who wants a big, tall, black girl to love, please let me know, because without love, there's no point in living. — LONELY IN GA

DEAR LONELY: I don't put people in touch with people through my column, but perhaps I can help you. Being overweight is only part of your problem. I don't know if there's an Overeaters Anonymous chapter in your town, but if there isn't, it would be worth taking a trip to the nearest city that has one. And if you're not sure whether life is worth living, please call your Suicide Prevention hot line.

Write to me again and let me know if you've followed these leads. I care.

Home-butchered chicken saves consumer bucks

By MARJORIE RICE
Copley News Service

There's nothing fun about cutting up chicken. Until you check the cost.

Checking the price of cut-up chicken against the price of whole-body fryers takes a little of the unpleasantness out of it.

To test the theory that cutting up on your own saves money, I recently bought three whole-body fryers, cut them up and compared the value of the pieces I cut with the cost of buying them separately in the grocery store.

(There's just too much mess to make cutting one chicken worthwhile. I generally buy at least three and cut them all in one session. It usually takes about 15 minutes to do them all and I have chicken for a good long time.)

(The three chickens weighed 10 pounds and cost $6.90 (69 cents a pound). That's fairly high, since I often can find whole-body fryers for 55 cents or close to it, but I wasn't

I decided for the purpose of photographing the process to cut the chicken myself, instead of asking a butcher to do it, figuring an amateur is more true to what you'll encounter. The only tools I used were a boning knife, a French chef's knife and a sharpening steel. These are the three basic cutting tools you should have, if you don't have a single other knife. The steel is essential, because with a few whisks it keeps the sharp edge on the knife blade.

During the cutting session I used the steel about every 15 minutes, and the knives were razor sharp. Cutting chicken with a dull knife is next to impossible.

When the blades stopped flying, I had:

— 36 ounces of breast. They were selling for $1.09 a pound so they were worth $2.45.

— 19 ounces of drumsticks. At 99 cents a pound, they were worth $1.18.

— 15 ounces of wings. They would have cost 74 cents bought separately (79 cents a pound).

— 20 ounces of thighs. They were worth $1.23 (99 cents a pound).

— 6 ounces each of liver and hearts and gizzards. Liver sells for $1.09 a pound. I was amazed to see hearts and gizzards also cost $1.09 a pound. My bowl of giblets was worth 82 cents.

— The remaining bones and trimmings made seven cups of very concentrated, fat-free chicken stock, similar to (but better in flavor than) canned chicken stock which is reconstituted with water.

A comparable amount of canned stock would cost about $1.40 (figuring 26 cents for a 10.5-ounce can).

That adds up to $7.82. I saved 92 cents by cutting my own.

Here's how to do it. First, detach the leg and thigh in one piece. Cut through the loose skin between the thigh and breast. Pull the leg away from the bird and cut the connecting skin. The leg and thigh will come away in one large piece. With the breast facing you, put your forefinger under the hip joint and your thumb along the thigh bone. Push up with your forefinger and the hip joint should snap. Using the tip of the boning knife, cut through the cartilage and cut away the thigh from the body of the bird. Repeat with the other side.

To separate the thigh and drumstick, feel with your thumb for the "knee" joint. By moving the pieces, you'll be able to feel the ball and socket joint with the tip of the knife, bending the pieces apart. Continue cutting and it should separate easily. Repeat with other drumstick and thigh.

To remove the wing use your thumb to feel for the ball and socket joint that attaches the wing to the body. In the same way as for the "knee" joint, cut into this and twist, severing the wing joint.

There are two ways to cut off the wing. If you want to have a meatier portion, cut away a little breast meat with the wing.

Or, separate the wing without including any breast meat. You can leave the wing as is, or cut into three pieces (a large French knife is easiest, or a cleaver). The mini-drumstick and second meaty joint are excellent as appetizers, fried in tempura batter. The third joint goes into the stock pot.

To cut the remaining carcass, take a look inside the chicken. The front ribs and back ribs are attached only by cartilage. Insert the tip of the boning knife at this joint and cut apart the ribs. Holding the back portion in one hand and the breast in the other, bend the carcass apart. It should break apart near the wing joints. You may have to use the boning knife to cut the joints.

Using the French knife, cut the back in half, crosswise. (Some people like to cook the upper back, with its "oyster" shaped portions of meat, with the rest of the meatier parts. I put it all in the stock pot. They fit easier cut in half).

Now you're left with the whole breast. On the inside, you'll see a piece of cartilage right at the top of the breastbone. Using the tip of the boning knife, cut down

Spring jewelry to sparkle with color, say buyers

DALLAS—Fine jewelry will sparkle with a rainbow of brilliant colors this spring.

Retail store buyers at the Spring Jewelry Show at the Dallas Market Center predicted that colorful semi-precious gemstones, set in 14-karat gold and encircled with diamonds, would be fashion favorites.

The colored stones, especially tourmaline, will enhance the new romantic femininity in spring fashions and make fine jewelry a reasonably-priced fashion accessory to coordinate with spring apparel.

Tourmaline, mined in Brazil, appears in green, blue, red and purple in 14-karat gold mountings with 20-point to one-quarter karat diamonds. Less expensive than emeralds, aquas, rubies and amethysts, tourmaline is approximately one-thirtieth (1/30) the cost of the traditional gemstones.

Some jewelers said they use colored stones to bring down the price of diamond jewelry, while others said they favor color to accentuate the diamond.

Glowing colors will not only adorn women's fingers this spring, but chunky, odd-shaped bracelets with inserts of colored stones will be popular. The stickpin will brighten the lapel with designs combining diamonds and tourmalines.

Even the traditional diamond stud earring will be challenged by the stones of various hue. The serpentine gold necklace that sold so well last year will be decorated with a touch of color as chain attachments may be easily changed to coordinate with spring fashions.

Colored stones, both tourmaline and the traditional gemstones will be seen in necklaces with cultured pearls and in pendants with small diamonds in 14-karat gold settings.

Pastel stones will also be seen in wedding and engagement rings, rather than the traditional diamond.

The warmth of color and the elegance of diamonds combine to grace feminine fashions this spring, as fine jewelers create brilliant fashions of their own.

Is Wonder Woman the wonder she claims?

BY DICK MAURICE
Copy News Service

"Wonder Woman" LYNDIA CARTER is giving the impression to people that she is a true feminist and resents anyone thinking that a male might have helped her.

No one can possibly overlook her beauty, dedication to the business and input into the series. But why this over-zealous effort denouncing men who may or may not have helped her? She must not forget that it was a male producer who first found her and a male-husband who negotiated a new contract with CBS after ABC canceled her show.

Lynda should give credit where credit is due whether it be male or female. Her husband should tell her how wonderful she is, and she should be grateful for his help.

It's hard enough to make it in this business without being sexist. "Wonder Woman" came from an all-female planet but Lynda Carter didn't.

Some of MARIE OSMOND'S fans have been complaining that she now looks too sophisticated.

Well, fans, it's not a matter of sophistication. So cancel your plans 100 it's a matter of growing years from now to attend up and she is doing it with the 'digging up'.

Orchestra plays highly melodic MCCA program

Midland Community Concerts Association, now in the midst of an annual membership campaign for its coming season, was host a few nights back to the Dubrovnik Festival Orchestra for the next-to-final concert of MCCA's current season.

The Yugoslavian ensemble from the lovely old city of Dubrovnik on the Adriatic coast played a program that was highly melodic and mainly pleasing although not especially notable for variety or for depth of feeling. It tended to be cut-and-dried. Nevertheless the ensemble demonstrated professionalism and real musicality.

The Dubrovnik ensemble is fairly representative, I think, of small chamber orchestras that have always proliferated in Central Europe. Obviously, such ensembles cannot offer the big symphonic works of Beethoven or Brahms, Mahler or Mozart, but they can delve with great success into the less-grandiose symphonies of Haydn and Schubert, the smaller orchestral works of Mozart, the concerti of various composers. Of just such material is the Dubrovnik orchestra's repertoire made up.

The ensemble in its concert here opened with a symphonic work by Croatian composer Luka Sorkocevic, which was melodic and pleasant, and then presented Weber's Concertino for Clarinet and Orchestra, with Ratimir Bosnjak as solo artist. The work was very well done by orchestra and clarinetist.

The Concerto in C major for Piano and Orchestra by Mozart was played with precision and great deliberation by the orchestra, joined by pianist Vladimir Krpan who provided fine articulation at the keyboard.

For me, the most interesting and rewarding work of the evening was Schubert's Symphony No. 3 which seemed bolder, brighter than anything else on the program. The final number on the program was a dance from an opera by a Yugoslavian composer. As an encore, the orchestra offered the overture to Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro." It had grace and style.

The orchestra was conducted by Nicola Debelich. Community Concerts Association's final offering of the 1977-78 season will be next month when the association brings famed Les Brown and his Band of Renown here for a concert.

In past columns, I have reported some of the celebrities who have sold themselves out in a big way to the Madison Avenue boys.

Well, the "queen" of them all is now traveling the same route, but for an unprecedented offer for any single ad. Yes, ELIZABETH TAYLOR will soon be selling cars for General Motors at the tune of $750,000.

This may be the largest offer for a single ad, but Liz felt it wasn't enough for her, so she held out until they agreed to throw in some extras like cars and farm equipment for use on their Virginia estate.

Have you ever wondered what information is put in time capsules to be opened many, many years from now? Well, let me tell you.

Summa Corp., better known as the Howard Hughes Corp., is burying a time capsule in Las Vegas to be dug up 100 years from now. My opening night review of the WAYNE NEWTON show, when he opened at the Sands Hotel, is being buried in that capsule.

Here are some of the highlights of that review. So cancel your plans 100 it's a matter of growing years from now to attend up and she is doing it with the 'digging up'.

ceremony. I'll give you some of the scoop now:

"...WAYNE NEWTON isn't just a talent. He's a phenomenon. Whether he's singing gospel, rock 'n' roll, or down home country, you know when he's on stage that he is the King of the Strip."

"...While lights and the Doc Vincent orchestra strike up with the theme from 'Star Wars,' you know when the music stops, you are going to experience a close encounter with a superstar."

"...EXPERIENCE. That's the word. His performance isn't a performance. It's an experience."

"The midnight idol, dressed in a red velvet jacket and looking terrific, takes songs like 'Leroy Brown,' 'Feelings,' 'MacArthur Park,' 'Baby Face' and a new song written by Leroy Wise, 'I Want You With Me,' and magically makes You feel you are up on stage with him."

"...Multi-talented is a word often overused, but it is a word that describes Wayne Newton perfectly. Not only does he sing, he plays the trumpet, banjo, violin, guitar and piano.

"There is only one problem with the Wayne Newton show. It only plays Las Vegas 36 weeks a year."

What does a superstar like LIBERACE do on a night off? He goes to see a show, that's what.

The other night he showed up ringside at DEBBIE REYNOLD'S performance and led the cheers for one of his favorite entertainers.

Debbie and Pat Boone, on a flight from Phoenix to Los Angeles, were approached by a man who began:

"I can't believe that I'm really on this plane with the two of you, because each of you changed my life."

Then he explained that, when he was much younger, he and his best girl fell in love to the strains of Pat's "Love Letters In the Sand." When they married, it was their song.

A divorce came later.

Then much later the man heard Debbie's recording of "You Light Up My Life," which he liked so well that he sent it to his ex-wife who liked it so well that she phoned and suggested they get together.

Once again, a Boone record became their song and they remarried. True story.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Alcohol affects blood pressure

Dear Dr. Solomon: Is it all right to drink when you have hypertension—provided, of course, that you don't overdo it.

Orville F.

Dear Orville: A recent study of 95,000 people by the Kaiser-Permanente Center in Oakland, Calif., indicates that regular drinking does tend to raise blood pressure. It found that people who had three or more drinks a day had a good deal more significant blood pressure elevation (systolic over 160 and diastolic over 95) than non-drinkers. The association between drinking and higher blood pressure was independent of age, sex, race, former heavy drinking, smoking, heavy coffee drinking and obesity.

So if you are going to drink, do keep it very moderate—then it shouldn't spoil your good health program. Dear Dr. Solomon: Does it matter whether you take medicine with meals or in between. I never really gave it a thought until the other day when I was getting a prescription made up. The druggist seemed to feel that this is very important.—Craig M.

Dear Craig: Your druggist is quite right. Food can make a big difference in how much of a drug gets into your system and how fast this happens. It can vary a great deal from drug to drug. Researchers at the University of Wisconsin-Madison School of Pharmacy have found, for instance, that the absorption of many antibiotics is cut in half by food. On the other hand, one antibiotic—doxycycline—gets into the bloodstream about as well on a full as on an empty stomach.

Different foods have different effects. A high-protein food like steak cuts down the effectiveness of an antibiotic much more than a bowl of cereal.

Fluids also have varying effects, the researchers report. Ampicillin and amoxillin are, for example, two very similar antibiotics. But if you take them with water (in identical amounts), ampicillin is definitely more effective than amoxillin.

Maybe the time will come when we will get a menu along with our prescriptions. But until we do, be sure to follow carefully whatever instructions your doctor gives you about when and with what to take a medicine. If there is anything you are not clear about, ask him to spell things out right then and there. Do you take it with water or without. Do you take it with meals or in between. If in between, is there a certain length of time you should wait after eating—an hour, say, or two hours. If four times a day, what four times a day.

Modern family films not what they used to be

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — A film critic on one of the big metropolitan dailies wrote the other day that because of the success of "Star Wars" family films are making a comeback.

Boy, there's good news. Wouldn't it be something if Hollywood again started turning out really great movies like "Gunga Din," "The Hound of the Baskervilles," "Four Feathers" and "They Died With Their Boots On"? Maybe even a "Shane Two" or a "Son of Beau Geste"?

Then she, for it was a she critic tipped her hand and gave her idea of "one of the best of the recent family films," and it sure sounded like a turkey to me. "A Hero Ain't Nothin' But a Sandwich" was the critic's choice, and she explained the plot:

"It's all about a 13-year-old Los Angeles ghetto boy who turns to drugs after his real father leaves the family and he has trouble adjusting to his mother's new boyfriend."

How does that grab you?

Well, according to the child star playing the young dope fiend, "what the movie is trying to say is that there's got to be some kind of communication between everyone in the household," which I guess is the way 13-year-old kids talk these days when they're brought up on movies like that.

On my 13th birthday my family took me to a family movie called "Imitation of Life," which the critics then probably said had something important to say about the need for communication, and I sulked for a week in my room communicating only with my best friends in the Owl patrol on my Boy Scout Morse code set. It was a weeper that wouldn't stop.

The lady critic went on to say that there were "several other PG-rated films around that, despite semi-nude love scenes or four letter words, most critics would agree are suitable viewing for children."

Well, fortunately, most parents I know have more sense than most film critics I know and so do most kids I know.

Love scenes, whether played in the buff or in Eskimo parkas on the back of a dog sled, are always a drag on the action, detaining the hero when he should be heading 'em off at the pass or coaxing on the lead dog to hot foot that penicillin to the old trapper's hut. Any kid worth his popcorn knows that.

A couple of years back Hollywood did a remake of "The Front Page" and brought in a fancy priced screen writer to insert a lot of four-letter words into the classic Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur script. This not only made the film embarrassing and boringly long for family watching but defused the great five-letter word ending when the son-of-a-you-know-what stole the fellow's watch.

Well, they reran "The Front Page" on television a few weeks ago with all the childish adult words deleted and, do you know, it played just as well, even better? Personally I've always felt movie dialogue went as far as it ought to go when Clark Gable told Vivian Leigh he didn't give a damn.

When I was a kid, family films were something you went to with your parents on your birthday or Mom's birthday or when you brought home a good report card. They were fun because it meant being allowed out at night, provided your homework was done, and there was usually a quieter, better class of audience than at the

Saturday morning matinee (that's what they called it) when "the chapter" was playing. At least the manager wasn't always shining his flashlight up the aisle, yelling at patrons with their feet on the seats, and half the house wasn't taking its little brother to the bathroom.

It was nice having your parents around for the creepy parts of "The Cat and the Canary" and "King Kong," even if they occasionally did suffer a lapse of taste and drag you off to a snoring talkathon like "Little Women," "The Little Rebel" or "Little Lord Fauntleroy." Even now I always avoid pictures with "little" in the title, unless Edward G. Robinson is pictured outside cradling a tommygun.

All the favorite family flicks looming up out of my childhood weren't adventure tales or blood and guts sagas like "The Sea Wolf" and "Reap the Wild Wind." I look back fondly on "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," the original, with Robert Donat, and "How Green Was My Valley" and MGM's marvelous "David Copperfield" with W. C. Fields, Lionel Barrymore, Edna Mae Oliver and Freddie Bartholomew, whom I got over hating from "Little Lord Fauntleroy."

Why don't they make pictures anymore like "Young Tom Edison," "Boys of Town," "Captains Courageous," "Pride of the Yankees," "The Long Gray Line" and "Steamboat On the River"?

Nothing vile or violent there, only a warm glow for humanity, a rosy feeling in the soul, after all these years. I'd even pass up Henry Fonda as the outlaw Frank James to see him as Young Abe Lincoln one more time.

Opening lead — ♥ 6

If East takes the ace of hearts (playing third hand high) and returns the ten, South covers with the queen. West can win with the king but cannot safely continue hearts. South therefore has time to develop the diamonds and make his contract.

East should play the ten of heart at the first trick, breaking the "third hand high" rule. South wins and knocks out the ace of diamonds. West leads a heart to the ace, and now the heart return gives West the rest of the suit, defeating the contract.

FAST TRICK
East's proper play depends on whether he or his partner is going to win a fast defensive trick. If East has the sure side entry (usually the ace or king of a key suit), he should play third hand high. Thus, if East had the ace of diamonds, he would take the ace of hearts at the first trick.

If East has no fast entry, he must hope that his partner has one; and then East should play muddling instead of high from such a holding A-J-x or A-10-x of his partner's suit.

Guitar to be built on street

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A San Francisco artist wants to turn an area along the city's Mission Street into a giant guitar.

Terry Fox's idea is to stretch piano wires nearly a city block across the rubble-strewn basements of razed buildings, then strum them with mallets.

"The sound emitted by the instrument will coincide both in volume and in rhythm with the normal sounds of the street," said the 34-year-old Fox.

His plan has been approved by the San Francisco Redevelopment Agency and endorsed by the San Francisco Art Institute.

Spinks 'officially' hurt; WBA OKs Ali rematch

NEW YORK (AP) — Leon Spinks is commission-officially hurt. Regardless, he won't fight until September. And he won't fight in Bophuthatswana.

That's the heavyweight story ... at least for today.

When the new champion does fight, it looks like his opponent will be Muhammad Ali, but Bob Arum, who has a promotional rope around Spinks, says Ken Norton still is a possible opponent.

Meanwhile, the World Boxing Association has given a green light to a Spinks-Ali rematch even though in its latest rankings it rates Ali No. 3 challenger behind Norton and Jimmy Young.

The rival World Boxing Council, which has ruled Spinks must sign by April 7 to fight Norton by July 7 or be stripped of title recognition, ranks Ali No. 2 behind Norton.

The Nevada State Athletic Commission announced Thursday that effective Wednesday night Spinks has been suspended for 90 days because of a rib injury three Las Vegas physicians say he suffered before the Ali fight. At almost the same time, Arum said that because of outside pressure Spinks will not fight in the new African nation of Bophuthatswana.

Johnny Mangiaracina, executive officer of the Nevada commission, a member of the World Boxing Council, said the 90-day suspension was due to a cartilage injury to a rib on Spinks' lower left side.

The injury was scoffed at by supporters of a Spinks-Norton fight and the new champion's wife said in an interview with the Des Moines (Iowa) Register: "I don't know where they get all that stuff" about an injury.

He doesn't have any rib injuries. Ali said he had heard before the Feb. 15 fight that Spinks had been hurt in training but "I didn't pay any attention to it."

Mangiaracina said Dr. Donald Romeo, head physician for the Nevada commission, checked with Dr. A.H. Rudnick, one of three doctors who examined Spinks before the Ali fight and said that the fighter had a rib injury. One of the other doctors, Elias Ghaneim, called it a nuisance injury.

"Dr. Romeo acted in saying he cannot fight for 90 days and he has to clear with this commission before he can fight again," Mangiaracina said. "It would take this long for the cartilage to heal back. It has to be examined by this commission in order for him to box again (under WBC jurisdiction)."

Mangiaracina said Romeo was waiting for a release from Spinks to look at medical records of the three physicians who checked Spinks. Romeo got together with Rudnick.

The 90-day suspension would not affect the WBC edict for a Spinks-Norton fight by July 7. But Arum, who has promotional rights to Spinks' next three fights, said the new champion will not fight again until September. He added Norton is not out of the picture, a statement with which many boxing observers and the Norton camp disagree.

As for the disappearance of Bophuthatswana from the fight scene, Arum also said: "As a result of discussion with representatives of the Organization of African Unity at the United Nations and with officials of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Top Rank will not hold between Leon Spinks and Muhammad Ali in Bophuthatswana."

"In accordance with the spirit of the spirit of the General Assembly resolution which denies the independence of the Bophuthatswana created by South Africa, the fight will be moved to an independent African country."

Arum said other sites outside Africa were not ruled out.

Arum announced Wednesday that a promotional agreement had been made with Sun Hotels Corp. on proposals for a Spinks-Ali, Spinks-Norton fight in the Bophuthatswana, a newly declared republic in the Cape Province of South Africa. But Arum said Spinks had to give approval and no fight contracts had been signed.

Miami's future is bleak

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

For as long as anyone can remember at Oxford, Ohio, it's been the same, old story for the Miami basketball team: a heavyweight year, then a first-round knockout in the NCAA playoffs.

The Redskins can thank Marquette for most of that post-season frustration, so you can understand why Darrell Hedrick isn't exactly thrilled about meeting the Warriors again.

"This will be only the 7,422nd time we've played Marquette," says the Miami coach sarcastically as he prepares to face the nation's third-ranked team in one of the NCAA's opening Midwest-Regional games Saturday.

ACTUALLY, it will be Miami's fifth meeting with Marquette in nine playoff appearances, but it's more than enough for Hedrick.

"Frankly," he says, "I don't see why we always play Marquette, usually the top seed in the region, in the first round."

In the last four years, the Redskins have had a record of 75-29, winning one Mid-American title outright, sharing another and losing out on a third on the last game of the season. It's been fun while it's lasted — but it hasn't lasted longer than the first round of the NCAA.

"I wonder if we should show up?" Hedrick wondered allowed with some degree of whimsy.

Mid-American champions, incidentally, have a sorrowful history against Marquette. The defending national champions have ousted five of the last seven conference representatives to the NCAA playoffs.

The Marquette-Miami meeting is one of two Midwest games at Indianapolis. In the other first-round contest there, Providence faces Big Ten champion Michigan State.

ANOTHER MIDEAST

doubleheader, meanwhile, will take place the same day at Knoxville, Tenn., with Kentucky of the Southeastern Conference playing Florida State and Western Kentucky of the Ohio Valley Conference taking on Syracuse.

The West Regionals will also be held Saturday as 32 basketball teams begin their quest this weekend for the NCAA title, the Holy Grail of college basketball. The finals will be held in St. Louis on March 25 and 26.

At Eugene, Ore., Pacific-8 champion UCLA plays Kansas of the Big Eight and Weber State of the Big Sky takes on Southwest Conference power Arkansas in one West Regional doubleheader. In the other one at Tempe, Ariz., San Francisco of the West Coast Athletic Conference meets North Carolina of the Atlantic Coast Conference and Western Athletic Conference winner New Mexico plays Fullerton State of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

The first round of the East and Midwest regionals will be played on Sunday.

IN ONE East doubleheader at Charlotte, N.C., Atlantic Coast Conference champion Duke plays Rhode Island and Furman of the Southern Conference challenges Indiana of the Big 10. In the other at Philadelphia, it's Ivy League champion Penn vs. St. Bonaventure and Villanova of the Eastern Eight against La Salle of the East Coast Conference.

At Wichita, Kan., a first-round Midwest doubleheader features Missouri of the Big Eight against Utah of the Western Athletic Conference and DePaul against Missouri Valley Conference winner Creighton. At Tulsa, Okla., Southwest Conference champion Houston tackles Notre Dame and Louisville of the Metro Conference takes on St. John's.

Meanwhile, the National Invitation Tournament continued first-round play at regional outposts Thursday night with Rutgers edging Army 72-70 and No. 19 Detroit stopping Virginia Commonwealth 94-86.

Hollis Copeland hit two foul shots with six seconds remaining, leading Rutgers over Army at the Rutgers Athletic Center. Copeland, who had 18 points in the game, went to the foul line with Rutgers leading 70-68. Army had scored six straight points in the preceding 36 seconds, cutting into a 70-62 deficit. But Copeland's success on the 1-1 opportunity negated a last-second Army basket.

Terry Tyler and substitute Turono Anderson had hot shooting streaks early in the second half to help Detroit beat Virginia Commonwealth. Detroit led 50-40 at halftime, then Anderson and Tyler went to work, scoring 20 of the Titans' first 24 points of the second half as Detroit's lead climbed to 74-56 after 7 1/2 minutes.

Tyler, who was blocking shots all night and rebounding consistently, led the Titans with 19 points. Terry Dueroed followed with 18 — 17 in the first half. John Long had 16 and Anderson had 14.

Rebs nix Relays for Amarillo

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

The Midland Lee tracksters are bypassing the West Texas Relays this weekend in Odessa to travel north to the Amarillo Invitational to face a tidy six-team field.

Although the Rebels will be out of view for most Tall City track fans, Lee will be facing some new competition with Perryton, Amarillo, Tascosa, Amarillo Caprock, Lubbock Dunbar and Lubbock Coronado in the field.

Local fans who are angry at the Rebels' decision to pass up the closer West Texas Relays, can take heart in the fact that Lee will be at home next week in what appears to be an attractive Tall City Relays.

THE REBS are heading north with a healthy team—meaning Doug Guthrie will be running. Guthrie missed last week's meet in Pecos with sickness, but he will be back and the Rebels need him. Guthrie scored points in four events at Fort Stockton, and the Rebs can not afford to lose that kind of potential in any meet.

The Rebels also hope that disaster will not strike again in the 440 relay. Lee failed to qualify for the finals in Pecos after winning at Fort Stockton with a fine 43.5. Guthrie will be joined by Jerry Moore, Dwight Washington and Jami Berry.

Guthrie should aid the Rebs in the discus, 100 and 200. He owns a toss of 147-1 in the discus, a 10.1 in the 100 and a 22.7 in the 220, all of which should be point getters here Saturday.

WASHINGTON is another Rebel who has contributed heavily to the Lee cause. He owns a 10.1 in the 100 and a 22.3 in the 220. Berry has a 52.3 in the 440 and a 22.8 in the 220 while carrying a big load on both relays.

Sophomore Phil Carlton has been the most productive Rebel in the quarter with a 51.6, improving weekly while Gary Butler, another sophomore, owns a 53.0.

Lee's Ricky Parsons has been improving rapidly in the mile and his 4:35.2 last week bettered his best effort by more than a full second. Steve Hooper owns a 4:35.2 also to give the Rebels some depth in that event and both should improve.

ARTHUR PERTILE should be strong in the 880 with a best time of 2:01.5 this year, and he aids the Rebels in the mile relay also.

One of the strongest events this year for Lee has been the shot put where three juniors are improving weekly. Jeff McCowan is the best of the three with a toss of 55-3, but Rodney Taylor owns a 52-10 while Herb Pearce has a 51-7. All three have improved their marks in the first two meets. McCowan has won one title, but not with his best throw.

Moore and Jody Sessoms should gain points in the long jump this week, both over 20-feet, and Sessoms will be out to equal or better his 13-6 pole vault best.

Midland High started competition in the West Texas Relays today in Odessa's W. T. Barrett Stadium. Both the Rebels and Bulldogs would like to put their best foot forward since they will host the Tall City Relays next week in Memorial Stadium. The Tall City meet is one of the highlights of the season for the two local squads.

T of C event opens today

The 4th annual Tournament of Champions got underway at 10 a.m. today at Cubs Stadium with five outstanding high school baseball teams competing in the two-day meet.

Duncanville's Panthers met the Midland Bulldogs in the first game followed by the Midland Lee-Lubbock Monterey battle at 12:30 p.m.

El Paso Burges' Mustangs were to take on Duncanville in the 3 p.m. contest followed by the Midland-Lee tilt at 5:30 p.m.

Monterey's Plainsmen were set to take on Burges in the 8 p.m. game to close out first round action today.

Youth makes its push

DALLAS (AP) — American junior tennis is showing its strength in a $100,000 professional women's tennis tournament here.

Three American amateur teenagers worked their way into the quarterfinals tonight, the most famous being Rolling Hills, Calif. native Tracy Austin.

Austin, 15, goes from Dallas-based Martina Navratilova's 37-match winning streak.

Tiant, Tanana get off to impressive starts

By The Associated Press

As usual, the pitchers are ahead of the hitters at this stage of spring training. That's a tired baseball axiom.

But when you have your starting lineup already fixed for Opening Day by March 9, well, that's news.

Don Zimmer appears to be in that lucky position with the Boston Red Sox.

"That's my opening day lineup, barring any complications," the Boston Red Sox manager said as he put his starters on the field at Winter Haven, Fla., for an exhibition game with the Detroit Tigers Thursday.

The lineup had Jerry Remy playing second base and leading off, followed by shortstop Rick Burleson, designated hitter Jim Rice, left fielder Carl Yastrzemski, catcher Carlton Fisk, center fielder Fred Lynn, first baseman George Scott, right fielder Dwight Evans and third baseman Butch Hobson.

"Wade through that a little while," Zimmer said. "How would you like to be an opposing pitcher?"

In the same context, opposing hitters wouldn't especially enjoy facing the likes of pitchers Luis Tiant and Reggie Cleveland. Sure to be part of Zimmer's scheme this year as well, they were in midseason form Thursday, hurling the Red Sox to a five-inning, rain-shortened 6-0 victory over the Tigers.

Tiant, who didn't report to spring training last year until March 23 because of a contract hassle, got an early start this season and his enthusiasm was evident in his first start.

California's Frank Tanana also got off to a good start Thursday, pitching three perfect innings as the Angels defeated the Oakland A's 4-1. Ron Jackson and Carney Lansford hit home runs to support strong pitching by the Angels' staff, which allowed but five hits.

Elsewhere, catcher Dave Roberts' line single in the 12th inning scored Paul O'Neill from third base, leading the San Diego Padres to a 4-3 victory over the Seattle Mariners.

Rookie first baseman Wayne Cagle singled home a pair of runs in Cleveland's four-run eighth inning, then doubled and scored the winning run in the 10th as the Indians opened their Cactus League exhibition season with a 5-4 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Jerry Augustine and Mike Caldwell both pitched one-hit, shutout ball in three-inning stints and Jim Wohlford's sixth-inning RBI single broke a 2-2 tie, leading the Milwaukee Brewers to a 4-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs in both teams' opener.

Anne Smith, an 18-year-old Trinity (San Antonio) University freshman from Dallas, advanced when fifth-seeded Wendy Turnbull defaulted because of the flu.

Pam Shriver, a six-foot 15-year-old from Lutherville, Md., plays Australian veteran Kerry Reid.

Smith figured to play third-seeded Betty Stove in the quarters, but Stove was caught in bad form by another teenager, 19-year-old South African Marise Kruger.

Kruger surprised the favored Dutchwoman 5-7, 7-5, 6-0.

"I didn't know she was seeded third," Kruger said. "When they introduced her I heard she was sixth in the world."

"I told myself I had nothing to lose, so why be scared? I didn't think Betty was on her best game."

For Austin it will be her best shot at stardom since reaching the quarterfinals at the U.S. Open and playing Chris Evert at Wimbledon last year.

"She'd be a real star to beat me now," said Navratilova, who has lost only eight out of 82 sets this year.

Australian Evonne Goolagong, the second seed, shook off sore feet to beat Maria Redondo of National City, Calif. 6-2, 6-3. Goolagong used a painkiller in her right foot to soothe a sore instep.

"It took a while to get used to the numbness," Goolagong said. "I'm not used to having my feet numb."

Goolagong faces veteran Rosemary Casals of San Francisco in the quarters. Casals disposed of Beth Norton of Fairfield, Conn. 6-4, 5-7, 6-2. In doubles Navratilova-Smith beat Kate Latham of Palo Alto, Calif., and Sweden's Helena Anliot 6-2, 6-2. Also, Goolagong and Stove beat the South African pair of Brigitte Cuypers and Kruger 6-3, 6-4.

Casals and JoAnne Russell of Naples, Fla., advanced with a 76, 6-3 victory over Californians Bunny Bruning of La Jolla and Sharon Walsh of Mill Valley.

JIM MURRAY

No Knights of Columbus handshake for Alfred J.

The Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Alfred (Himself) McGuire, formerly of Marquette, would be the defending coach in the NCAA basketball playoffs this year if he were still in coaching. More's the pity, he isn't.

McGuire's teams had a reputation as the Dirty Dozen of Basketball. They were free-spirited, like the coach, and the wisecracks used to say the first thing the coach had to do each year was assemble the squad and say "OK, the first thing we do is give back all the hubcaps and the toasters."

The teams also had a reputation for playing a kind of schoolyard basketball where one guy would have the ball and the other nine — including his own teammates — would try to take it away from him.

THEY REPRESENTED Marquette University but not very much. They didn't get sentimental about it. They kept their eye on Al McGuire and paid little attention to the school authorities, whom McGuire alludes to as "Father God Bless You" and "Sister Mary Applesauce."

McGuire knew better than to turn his back on this bunch. Particularly in combat. They got along famously. Once, Al slugged one of his star players for throwing the ball away — but the team shrugged. When Al addressed the team in a tense locker room at the half once by snarling "OK, anybody here who doesn't want to play this here game can go home now," two of his players began taking off their uniforms. These were hardly Jack Armstrong types.

McGuire led the league in hardship cases, i.e., departures by star players for the pros before their eligibility depended on them for support. Where most coaches would pull all the stops to prevent their stars from thus going over the wall, McGuire encouraged it. "Hey, I looked in their refrigerators at home. All they had in there was the light. If it weren't for the cockroaches, there wouldn't have been anything in the pantry."

A onetime bartender, dock walloper and steel worker, Al was known as a "street coach." He says, "I didn't give anybody that Knights of Columbus handshake, but the kids knew where I was coming from. I didn't have to pretend. I had been where they were."

Al also pooh-poohs his coaching acumen. "I left all that, the coaching, to my assistants. I just eliminated fear in my players. That's the whole secret of success: Get the best players and eliminate fear. I eliminated fear by making them fear me more than the Big 10."

For all their Our Gang Comedy aspects, McGuire's teams were wise beyond their years. They had a kind of street savvy that carried over into their games. They disdained any kind of stall tactics and played with the recklessness of a guy betting two treys into a pat hand. Still, the whole country applauded last year when they won the NCAA by clobbering the ignoble "four-corner offense" of North Carolina, the athletic equivalent of hiding under the bed. Al and his gang had no trouble penetrating it. For them, it was like finding a car in an alley with the keys in it.

Al announced his retirement last year, several months before the season ended. "I would never have done it if I thought we were going to win the NCAA," he says lugubriously. "Where I come from, where there are cracks in the sidewalk, it's considered unmanly to quit when you're ahead and the other guys still have cards and the money to play them."

AL LEFT his lovable rascals to become the vice chairman of the board of an outfit called Medalist Industries, which, among other products, makes uniforms for the NFL, colleges and major league baseball. "I had offers to coach in the pros," says Al, "but I make it a point never to coach anybody who is making more money than I am. I mean, what am I gonna say, 'Jump, Kareem'? And, if he says, 'No, what do I do then? Say, 'Please, fake it?'"

Al, who was in town for a stockbrokers meeting and to do the colorcast on NBC's college basketball game between Michigan and UCLA, does not think he is going to replace Howard Cosell as a TV personality. "I'm just a passing fancy, like Elizabeth Taylor running through a scene in her nightgown."

Al hands you two business cards. The first says, "Al McGuire, vice chairman of the board, Medalist Industries." The other says "Alfred J. McGuire, vice chairman." Signs Al. "They said it looked more dignified. But I can remember when my calling card was a brick."

Rain interrupts start of Doral

MIAMI (AP) — Another day was lost to rain — the fifth time in 10 weeks this year — as a thing has happened — but PGA tour officials were counting their blessings.

"It could have been much worse," said Jack Tuthill, the man in charge of the day to day field operations for the tour.

"Actually, we're lucky. We could have lost two or three tournaments," he said.

The Phoenix Open, the Bing Crosby and the Bob Hope Desert Classic all were interrupted by storms and had forecasts that threatened the completion of the tournaments. All managed to finish.

THE POUNDING rains which interrupted the first round of play Thursday in the $200,000 Doral Open forced tour officials to schedule a double round of 36-holes for Sunday for the second week in a row. A similar situation developed last week in the Citrus Open.

This time, rookie Ed Fiori holed out a par-saving putt on the final hole after the siren had sounded halting play. The last man off the tee in the morning half of the field, Fiori completed his best round as a pro, a 7-under-par 65, that gave him a 2-shot lead with half the field yet to finish.

All the afternoon starters, 75 of them, were stranded on the 7,065-yard Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club. They marked their positions — all were on the front nine — and were scheduled to complete play Friday morning.

The tournament schedule — which has a good forecast for the rest of the week — now calls for second-round play on Saturday. The field will be cut to the low 60 scorers, as opposed to the normal cut to the low 70, with a 36-hole windup on Sunday.

Tom Watson, defending champion Andy Bean, Lee Trevino, Jerry Pate and Ray Floyd were among the group stranded on the flooded course and due to finish today. All had just gotten under way when play was halted, and eventually called off for the day.

Austin pacing Sunstar

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Debbie Austin believes that "some great mental help" from a relatively new teacher has helped her become a threat to win every Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament she enters these days.

"The mental aspect is 90 percent of this game," Austin said Thursday after firing a 4-under-par 68 that gave her a 2-stroke lead after the first round of the $100,000 Sunstar Classic.

"The help I've gotten from Sherry, both physically and mentally, has had a lot to do with what's happened to me."

Sherry is Sherry Wilder, of Palm Springs, Calif., a former player on the ladies tour who started working with Austin about a year ago — stressing confident, steady performance.

What's happened to Austin is she's become a winner since then. The 30-year-old Austin, a 10-year LPGA veteran, had never won a pro tournament before 1977. She captured the Birmingham Classic May 1 and has been on a tear every since.

AUSTIN WON five tournaments before the year ended and has two more victories already this year, the American Cancer Society Classic at Miami, Fla., last month and the Australian Ladies Open last weekend in Sydney.

She won more than $86,000 last year. Before that, her previous earnings high was just under $32,000 in 1976.

"I'm playing my best now," said Austin. "This was one of the better rounds I've ever had in competition."

Grouped at 70 entering today's second round of the 72-hole tournament scheduled to finish Sunday are Jane Blalock, whose round included a hole-in-one, Betty Burfeindt and Joyce Kazmierski.

All four of Thursday's low scorers had early tee-off times at the Rancho Park Golf Course, avoiding all or most of the rainfall that moved in by afternoon.

TEN PLAYERS including Donna Caponi Young, Kathy Cornelius and Debbie Massey were at 71. Fourteen more shot 72, including 1977 LPGA leading money winner Judy Rankin, U.S. Open champion Hollis Stacy, Sandra Palmer and Nancy Lopez.

The field will be cut following today's play to the low 70 scorers and ties in the chase for the $15,000 first prize. A record total of 126 players, including six amateurs, are competing.

Blalock, winner of the Orange Blossom Classic at St. Petersburg, Fla., last month, used a six-iron to ace the 172-yard 17th hole. The shot won Blalock a new sports car. Any other aces on the hole during the tournament will earn an identical prize.

"I was thinking about getting a new car. Really!" said Blalock. "I'm really pleased with my round. I made very few mistakes today."

OF THOSE who finished, Tom Weiskopf topped a group of five tied at 67, 5 under par and 2 shots back of the chunky, low-key leader. Also at that spot were John Mahaffey, Gibby Gilbert, Bill Kratzert and Lee Mikles.

Lou Graham and Wally Armstrong finished off 68s and Jack Nicklaus struggled to a 69 he called "a funny round. I didn't birdie a par 5. I birdied 3 par 3s. I missed a lot of short putts and I made a lot of medium-range putts."

Fiori, a California native now living in Houston, led the tour qualifying school last summer but had given no indication he was ready to unload a no-bogey, 7-under-par effort. He hadn't finished higher than 50th this season and has money-winnings of only $1,640.

THE BLOCKY little guy, who labored as a construction worker for four years before he decided on a golf scholarship at the University of Houston, shrugged off five of the first included birdies on five of the first seven holes. "I was swinging pretty good and some putts were falling," he said. "I just tried to keep it going."

He kept it going with a pair of 6-foot par-saving putts over the last seven holes in the pounding rain.

Chaps slip

GRAND RAPIDS — The Midland College men's and women's swim teams lost some ground here Thursday in the second day of competition in the National Junior College Athletic Association Swimming and Diving Championships. Both Chaparral squads came out of the opening day of action in third place, but have since slipped to fourth.

Indian River College of Florida is making a shambles of the event. The IR men's squad has piled up 258 points thus far and holds a 52 point lead over runnerup Daytona Beach (Fla.), which has 206. Host Grand Rapids moved past Midland into third with 53 points, and the Chaps are in fourth with 45.

In the women's competition, Indian River's lead is even bigger. They are on top with 259 points, while Daytona Beach is second — a distant second at 117. Broward (Fla.) College is with 74 and Midland is fourth with 68.

Midland's Mike Shrader earned honorable mention All-American honors when he finished third in the 200-free style event with a 1:45.0.

The Chaps' girls 400 medley relay team, which includes Julie Cowan, Linda Miller, Sherry Paige and Susan Overhise finished fourth with a 4:28.4 clocking in the finals. Cowan also finished sixth in the girls 400 individual medley.

In the boys 400 IM final, Rex Partridge was eleventh with a 4:34.9, and teammate Gary Rose was twelfth with a 4:41.2.

Bantom rallies Pacers to seven-point victory

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — "We had a good second half," Indiana Coach Bobby Leonard said, and it spelled a 112-105 National Basketball Association victory for the Pacers over Detroit Thursday night.

Mike Bantom with 28 points and Ricky Sobers with 24 led the Pacers. "The game never really seemed to get going," Leonard said. "I think we had better ball movement in the second half."

The Pacers won it at the free throw line, hitting 24 out of 32 attempts. The Pistons got 29 tries but made only 19.

"Down the stretch they made the baskets they had to make to win the game," Detroit Coach Bob Kauffman said. "It seemed like we had to play catch up the entire game. When we got the lead, I think we got up by nine, and they came back and got eight unanswered points."

Trailing 79-77 after three periods, Indiana went ahead for good 83-81 on a jump shot by Sobers with 10:32 left to play. The Pacers opened a 101-

93 margin on James Edwards' field goal with 5:02 left.

"At this point of the season I'm happy with our game in the last quarter," Leonard said. "Bantom got himself going tonight."

Bantom scored 20 of his points in the second half. Danny Roundfield added 19 points for the winners and had 19 rebounds.

Forward Ben Poquette paced the Pistons with 18 points and Eric Money had 17.

"The Pacers seemed to be hitting the long shots and getting second efforts," Kauffman said. "It is difficult for Lanier to play night in and night out because it seems like he gets called for every little call or every little bump. Fouls really affect his game as you can see the way he played in the last quarter. If we're going to make the playoffs, we sure can't play like we did."

Andrews well completes

Texaco Inc. announced completion of its No. 272-A-1 J. E. Mabey, re-entry project in Andrews County, 22 miles southeast of Andrews.

Operator finished the well from the Strawn section in the Lower multiphase field for a daily pumping potential of 19 barrels of 45.2-gravity oil, plus 43 barrels of water, through perforations from 10,665 to 10,680 feet.

Gas-oil ratio was 6,947-1, and the pay section was acidized with 6,000 gallons.

Location is 2,320 feet from south and 1,780 feet from west lines of section 32, block 40, T-2-N, G&M&B&A survey. It is a former Silurian producer.

Re-entry wildcat set; Wolfcamp strike finals

Wheeler Properties of Fort Worth will re-enter and deepen to 10,800 feet for tests of the Strawn in a wildcat failure three miles south of Claue in Hockley County.

The project is 660 feet from south and east lines of labor 60, league 36, Zavalla County School Land survey. It will be re-entered as No. 112-60-A, A. Slaughter Estate.

Originally drilled by Stanolind Oil & Gas Co. as No. 3 Slaughter, it was abandoned at 9,500 feet.

SCHLEICHER WELLS

Pennzoil Co. of Midland has announced potential tests on a pair of projects in Schleicher County, seven miles west of Eldorado. One of the wells will be classified as the Wolfcamp discovery for the Henry Speck area.

No. 1 Edmiston finished for a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 8,450,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 5,287 to 5,325 feet. The pay was acidized with 7,500 gallons. No petroleum liquid was produced with the gas.

Location is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 168, block A, HE&WT survey.

Total depth is 7,411 feet and plugged back depth is 5,380 feet.

SECOND WELL

Pennzoil No. 2 Edmiston was completed for a calculated absolute open flow of 2,025,000 cubic feet of gas per day through Wolfcamp perforations from 5,373 to 5,405 feet. The pay was acidized with 1,000 gallons and fractured with 11,000 gallons.

Hole is bottomed at 7,641 feet and plugged back to 6,344 feet. Well site is 1,980 feet from south and west lines of section 169, block A, HE&WT survey.

No. 1 Edmiston is a location south-west offset to Cadaco, Inc., No. 2 Enoch, active wildcat two miles northwest of Henry Speck (Canyon gas) production.

No. 2 Edmiston is 1 1/4 miles northwest of Pennzoil No. 1 Edmiston.

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Richard Pollock and Stanley Ragone aren't speaking to one another.

Ragone is the president of the nation's eighth largest electric utility, Virginia Electric and Power Co., and he is on one side of what has come to be called the great nuclear-power debate.

Pollock is head of Critical Mass, the information center that gives direction to about 175 anti-nuclear groups nationwide, and he is probably one of the more influential people on the other side of the debate.

Not only are Pollock and Ragone not speaking, they aren't worried about the same issues. They ask questions they're sure the other side can't answer, and they respond to questions the other side didn't ask.

The great nuclear debate has ossified into a standoff in which there is a lot of warning directly and viewing with alarm. While no one would dream of questioning the motives of the opposition, both sides make it plain that the other is probably being irresponsible.

The only thing that is clear is that no decision on nuclear power is in the offing.

It is unfortunate. If the country is going to build enough nuclear power plants to see its energy needs through to the end of the century, it had to start yesterday, and in earnest. If not, it had to start yesterday and in equal earnest on promoting other energy sources, whether coal, sunlight, thermal power or whatever.

The experts cannot agree on what to do, but they do agree that drift on the nuclear question is fatal. Yet drift is what we have, and drift is what bids fair to continue as long as the Stanley Ragones and the Richard Pollocks of the country continue not talking to each other.

Ragone and his utility-executive peers see the issue as one of supplying growing electricity demand as cheaply as possible. Pollock and his environmentalist colleagues see it as one of supplying static or declining demand as safely as possible.

The basic assumptions are different; each side focuses its attack on different risks; each side brushes off the other's experts as just plain wrong.

Ragone's nightmare is that someday soon, perhaps in 1981, a few of his 3 million consumers are going to flip use "experts" who don't know what they're talking about.

At 52, Ragone is a rumpus, energetic and articulate veteran of 30 years at Vepco, where he came up through the ranks as an engineer. His fingernails are chewed to the nub, reflecting the pressures on a man who presides over a $1.3 billion a year operation. He is evasive, charming and blunt by turns as it suits him, appearing rather to relish his reputation as a bit more outspoken than his peers always find comfortable.

Ragone has faith in nuclear power. It is best, he says, because it uses the cheapest fuel around and because it is "environmentally benign": there is virtually no dust, carbon dioxide or other emission, and the wastes take up much less space than those of coal. The dangers of significant radiation leakage are tiny, those of disaster infinitesimal, he says, much less than the known dangers of black lung disease from coal mining, fire from oil spills, explosions from gas.

But it now takes 10 to 12 years to get a nuclear plant from proposal to opening day. It takes five to 10 years to bring a coal or oil plant on line, and there have been 116 planned power stations of all types cancelled or deferred in the last two years, according to the Edison Electric Institute, the industry trade association.

Although some of that was because demand fell off in the wake of the 1973 oil embargo, demand continues to rise at a steady 5 1/2 percent per year nationwide — and probably ought to keep rising, Ragone believes.

"When you cut back on power use, industry goes first, and that means jobs...the conservationists, they've already got theirs. They overlook the economic needs. They say wait for wind and solar power, but what do the poor people do in the meantime?"

Ragone tells stories of opponents to his projects who live in elegant, grassy aeries and clip coupons for a living. Most of the plant cancellations, according to the E.E.I., were because of the thicket of regulations and judicial delays environmentalists have set up around the licensing process.

Ragone and his peers say that if only the Richard Pollocks of the country would leave them alone, utilities could handle the energy crisis just fine.

Richard Pollock dismisses most of the preceding as a smokescreen. "Utilities promote nuclear power because they make money on it," he said. "If you were guaranteed a 10 percent profit on either a $500,000 plant or a $2 million plant, which would you choose?"

Engineers and utility executives are blind to the limits of technology and the certainty of human error, wrong on their electricity-demand forecasts and rolling like juggernauts toward controlling society through its electric umbilical cord, Pollock believes.

His nightmare is of a core meltdown, a runaway nuclear reactor that cannot be cooled off in time to keep massive radiation from leaking into the environment. "You could say what if the plants all operated safely, if construction costs were low, if fuel costs stayed down, if there was no potential for catastrophe, would I favor (nuclear power) then?...Well, I say let's see all those things happen and I'll give you my answer," Pollock said.

At 26, he is just the sort of person Ragone complains about. Two years ago he was a free-lance reporter "for liberal, progressive magazines," as he called them, and knew nothing whatever about nuclear power until consumer advocate Ralph Nader asked Ragone to look into it. When he did, he was appalled.

ENERGY

some switches to "on," and nothing will happen. That, he says, is the scenario being written now, because the electric industry is not being permitted to build enough plants.

"Lots of people are saying let's conserve energy instead of building more plants, but they don't run electrical systems," said Ragone. "Conservationists never really give you solutions. They just talk about the problems."

Those who oppose nuclear power, Ragone believes, don't represent the public, receive wildly disproportionate media coverage and tend to

There's a difference, you see, between the major energy industries.

A big difference. One energy industry is labor intensive.

To extract energy from the earth, its primary requirement is manpower. It must somehow satisfy the needs of this manpower, even if it shuts down for 100 days.

OK, because that's the way it is.

On the other hand, the petroleum industry is capital intensive.

It doesn't need a lot of manpower to extract energy from the earth. It does need large chunks of money to search for and find oil and gas...the energy source that has never let you "freeze in the dark."

It's true. The ability to produce, to pick up each other's slack, and the fact that many months of emergency supplies are stored above the ground, has allowed the petroleum companies to provide a source of dependable energy... whatever the national crisis.

OK, because that's the way it is.

THE PETROLEUM INDUSTRY HAS NEVER BEEN SHUT DOWN. NOT EVEN FOR A DAY.

Supplies to be adequate

TULSA, Okla. — Oil field service and supply companies see no particular difficulty in supporting the sustained increase in U.S. drilling predicted for the next two years, according to the Oil & Gas Journal.

In its March 6 issue, the Journal says firms report manufacturing capacity will be sufficient to prevent hardware shortages from deflating the drilling boom.

Problems may crop up for some items — such as special drilling muds and tubing — but sufficient manufacturing capacity exists or is being created in most service and supply fields.

Much of the capacity was added when drilling gathered steam following the 1973-74 oil embargo, and more has been added to keep pace with gradually increasing rig activity.

Additional capacity expansions are planned, the Journal says, largely due to increases in the two indicators manufacturers use to gauge probable demand for their products. Those indicators are the rig count and number of well completions.
