County Fair breaks records

By CAROL HART
Staff Writer

At 8:30 p.m. Saturday the Howard County Fairgrounds were still a beehive of activity as people continued filing through the front gate to catch a last glimpse of the 1981 fair.

Jerry Foresyth, president of the Howard County Fair Association, said 14,500 people had bought tickets to view the fair by Friday, and Saturday's attendance figures had not yet been figured as Foresyth talked with the Herald.

"We will break last year's record" said Foresyth. He estimated that this year's fair saw a 40 to 50 percent bigger attendance than in 1980.

On Friday alone, 4,700 people bought tickets to the fair, said Ruth Mitchel, secretary to the fair association. That does not include fair exhibitors and officials who also were on the grounds throughout the week.

The daily tallies also do not include the hundreds of children, senior citizens and Big Spring State Hospital patients who visited the fair each weekday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Howard County Fair was scheduled to shut-down officially at 10 p.m., said Foresyth, although he said the fair would close when the influex of people slowed down.

Clean-up of the grounds was set to begin at 8 a.m. today, with members of the fair association planning to be on hand throughout the day to take down decorations and clear out debris in the Dora Roberts Fair Barn.

"We'll have the majority of stuff out of the building and cleaned up by late Sunday afternoon" said Foresyth.

Fair exhibitors and ribbon winners could begin picking up their goods at the official 10 p.m. closing of the fair Saturday. Mrs. Mitchel said fair exhibitors could also go by the fair building at 1 p.m. today.

Reflecting on the 1981 fair, Foresyth said "It was a huge success. There was a big turn-out, and a lot of outside activity.

"There was also a lot of cooperation from the public, and there were no major incidents. All-in-all, I'd say it was a big success."

Below is a listing of some results from the fair. Final results will be in Monday's Herald.

Coahoma teen shows grand champion steer

By CAROL HART
Staff Writer

Ron Brooks, 14, of Coahoma, showed the Grand Champion Steer at the Howard County Fair Saturday. For Ron, the local fair was one of many such contests he attends each year.

Locally, Ron said his steer, Blaze, competed against 52 steers to win the Grand Champion title. Blaze is a Red Limosene breed, and weighs 985 pounds. He stands 53 and ¾ inches tall.

Blaze was purchased about three months ago. For his efforts, Ron won $300 in the local steer judging contests in Fort Worth and Houston, where prize winning steers can net purses of $20,000 to $150,000.

To win Saturday, Ron and Blaze first competed against seven steers which were in the same class. When they won that division, they moved to competition against champions of each breed. The next step was winning the Grand Champion competition.

Working with steers and preparing them for judging contests doesn't take all of Ron's time. "I'm also a roper" he said. "I have plenty of time to do that."

But, in the wintertime, Ron said "It's pretty tough" finding time for studies, steer raising and roping practice.

Ron said he has three more steers like Blaze in Coahoma. Preparing steers for shows takes up much time, he said.

"I get home from school, and work on them from 4:30 p.m. to about 6 p.m." Ron said. "I have to train their hair, wet them down, and feed them."

"You have to feed them the right amount" of food for their proper weight, Ron explained. Part of raising a prize-winning steer is knowning the right amount of feed.

Ron spends many hours working on the appearance of his steers, he said. "I have to trim their hair, and shave their heads and stomach. It's just like a beauty shop, because I use hair spray and coloring."

Also involved in preparing a steer for a judging contest is "halter-breaking him", Ron said.

Americans to start getting slightly larger paychecks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans will start collecting slightly larger paychecks as the first installment of the largest tax cut in U.S. history goes into effect this week.

Income tax withholdings under the first stage of the three-part reduction will decrease an average of 6 percent, boosting the take-home pay of most workers by about 1 percent to 2 percent.

A married worker earning $500 a week and claiming four withholding allowances — for self, spouse and two children — will take home an extra $5, with $74.40 withheld. A single person with one allowance and a $400 weekly wage will see his tax withholding reduced by $4.60, to $82.70.

Another part of the tax bill will allow investors to shield from taxation up to $1,000 of interest ($2,000 for a couple) earned on a new type of one-year savings certificate.

But there will be a lot more than taxes cut when the government begins a new bookkeeping year — fiscal 1982 — Thursday. Hundreds of federal programs will begin feeling the effect of Reagan's effort to reduce the government's role in American life.

Congress has given preliminary assent to Reagan's drive to cut $35 billion from already-planned spending in 1982. Many of the details are not final yet because the lawmakers have not completed action on any of the 13 appropriation bills that provide the money for the programs.

Even so, less money will be available for food stamps, welfare, Medicare for the elderly, pay for federal workers, public-service jobs, student loans and a variety of programs ranging from agriculture subsidies to urban aid.

Once Congress wraps up the first series of reductions, it will take up Reagan's request last week for a second round of spending cuts totaling $13 billion and tax increases of about $3 billion.

The cuts in taxes and government spending represent half of Reagan's four-pronged approach for reducing inflation and nurturing sustained, job-creating economic growth.

He launched another element — reduction of federal regulations — immediately after his inauguration. The fourth prong, a slow but steady growth of the money supply, was begun by the Federal Reserve Board long before Reagan took office.

In passing the massive tax cut, Congress gave the president what he wanted — an across-the-board cut in personal tax rates in each of three successive years and a sweeping cut in business taxes.

Local United Way campaign kick-off scheduled Friday

Coming off the most successful fund raising year in the history of the Howard County United Way, the Big Spring-Howard County United Way will set in motion what they hope will be another record breaking year with its annual kick-off to be held from 6:30 - 8 a.m., Friday in the Cactus Room of Howard College.

Las year the United Way raised more money than had ever been previously been raised. The campaign drive netted $162,000, which was $40,000 more than the previous year and $20,000 more than any year of the campaign.

This year's goal of $200,000 was approved by the United Way Board of Trustees in July and members all agree that it is a 'realistic' budget.

"We feel that this goal is a realistic and reachable goal," said Russ McEwen, campaign chairman." We raised $160,000 last year and we feel that with aggressive campaigning we can exceed that mark and reach the $200,000 goal.

"I can assure you that we will not be able to obtain this without a lot of dedicated people and hard work. The Executive Board, the Campaign Committees, and myself are dedicated to reach this goal.

This year's campaign will be conducted from Oct. 2 until Nov. 30. A door-to-door campaign throughout the city will also be conducted for three days the first part of November said United Way officials.

This year's goal is broken down into the following budget projections:

American Red Cross-$10,000; West Side Communtiy Center-$5,000; Girl Scouts-$10,000; Dora Roberts-$20,000; YMCA Lakeview-$2,500; Salvation Army-$37,000; Big Spring Boy's Club-$31,500; Boy Scouts-$19,999; the Day Care Center-$14,500, and the YMCA-$20,000.

Man shot in gunfight after holding wife hostage 19 hours

HOUSTON (AP) — A man who police say held his estranged wife hostage for 19 hours was shot and seriously wounded Saturday in a gunbattle with SWAT officers.

The 50-year-old man was in fair condition at Ben Taub Hospital, recovering from a gunshot wound in his side, a hospital spokesman said.

A SWAT officer, John Campos, was hit in the left thigh by a bullet fired from the man's pistol. However, the slug did not break the skin and Campos drove himself to the hospital, was treated and released, the spokesman said.

The SWAT team was called late Friday after the man allegedly took his estranged wife hostage after the two had argued about their south Houston house, officers said.

The man then reportedly forced his wife to call her father and demanded $20,000, officers said.

SIGN LANGUAGE

Big Spring Herald to provide tips

The Big Spring Herald today launches a sign language instruction column.

With 134 students enrolled at the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf in Big Spring, community members are seeking to learn the language of the deaf.

Hundreds of people are taking sign language classes through SWCID, the Continuing Education Department at Howard College, and through several area churches and businesses.

In conjunction with the enthusiasm the community has shown towards learning sign language, the Herald will feature a sign per day in the newspaper, with an illustration, explanation and example of proper usage.

Marcus Myers, career orientation instructor at SWCID, is the Herald's advisor on the project and will assist in selecting the signs and coordinating the project. Permission to use illustrations from several sign language manuals has been obtained.

Today the manual alphabet is featured. Clip it out and practice the symbols. The hand should be held steady and should not "bob" up and down, nor should the letters be "punched" out. The hand should be held close to the mouth and the words spoken aloud as they are spelled, this gives the deaf person additional clues as to what you are trying to communicate. Once you have learned the alphabet, you can finger spell anything you wish to communicate, although it may be a slow process.

After today, this column will focus on shortcuts to finger spelling by teaching signs that represents concepts in themselves.

MANUAL ALPHABET

When Spelling, Arm Is In Near Chest, Wrist Is Steady, Usually Only Fingers Moving

Tomorrow the first of a series of signs from "The Joy of Signing," by Lottie L. Reikehof, will be featured.
Good luck!

Back to work for new justice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Her place in American history secure, Sandra Day O'Connor gets down to work Monday, her public notoriety as the first woman on the Supreme Court giving way to the private, workaday life of her eight fellow justices.

Sworn in Friday as the high court's 102nd member, she will meet with her colleagues Monday for a week of closed-door deliberations in anticipation of the Oct. 5 opening of the 1981-82 term.

Even before she joined the court, Mrs. O'Connor told reporters she expected to become "very busy, very fast" in trying to master the 102 cases already scheduled for full study and decision.

In addition, the court on Oct. 5 is expected to issue orders — most of them grants or denials of review for appeals left pending last July or those that arrived during the summer recess — in as many as 1,000 cases.

Mrs. O'Connor inherits three law clerks who have spent most of the summer previewing those cases.

BROOKE SHIELDS

'Star' posed nude at age 10

NEW YORK (AP) — A professional photographer claims the mother of teenage actress Brooke Shields allowed him to take nude photographs of the girl at age 10.

Teri Shields has gone to court to suppress the pictures of her daughter, one of which shows Miss Shields in the buff, standing in a bathtub, her body covered with oil.

A lawyer for photographer Gary Gross argued that publication of the pictures can't harm the 16-year-old star.

"These photographs," lawyer Richard Golub argued at one point, "are of 'museum quality' compared to the unmitigated trash Brooke has involved herself in while climbing the vine of international stardom."

After hearing arguments Thursday, Justice Nathaniel Holman granted a temporary restraining order against sale of the pictures.

Auger among ten items stolen in oilfields

Ten items stolen in five different occurrences were listed in the weekly Oilfield Theft Report.

One auger with six or seven 6-inch diameter cutters mounted on it was taken Sept. 12 in Ector County. The one-of-a-kind auger was made by Dalby with patent rights from Hughes Tool Company. It is valued at $6,000 and weighs 1,200-1,500 pounds. Permian Rathole Drilling of Odessa is offering a $500 reward for information leading to return of the property. Jack Perkins is the investigating officer.

Three sets of tubing elevators were taken Sept. 19-21 in Reeves County. All three sets were branded with a "TBS152" at the top of the elevator arm where the bales go. The three sets consist of: a 3½-inch BJYT tubing elevator valued at $6,500; a 2⅞-inch standard MYT tubing elevator valued at $8,900; and a 2⅜-inch standard MYT tubing valued at $8,900. C&C Rental of Kermit is offering a $2,500 reward for information leading to the return of the property. Deputy Paul Evans is the investigating officer.

Two new bits, valued at $7,000, were taken Sept. 20 or 21 in Logan County, Okla. The owner of the equipment, El Gato Drilling Co. of Irving reports one was a 7⅞-inch J33 Hughes bit with a serial number of ND582, part 0774652 (Hughes), the second was a 7⅞-inch FP51A Reed bit with the serial number of 933429 (Reed). Jim Speak is the investigating officer.

Anyone having any information on these thefts is urged to call Jan Ward or Tom Haywood collect on the Oilfield Theft Hotline, (817) 723-1114.

Anyone witnessing a theft or any unusual activity in oilfields is urged to get a description of the persons, vehicles and equipment involved and the license number and call in on the "hotline" number.

Community gains 15 registered nurses

Results released by the Texas Board of Nurse Examiners this week show that 15 of the 17 students enrolled in the two-year Associate Degree Nursing Program of the Howard County Junior College District passed their state board examination, Dr. Charles Hays, district president, said.

"We are very pleased with these results as it reflects the concentrated efforts of students and faculty." Dr. Hays said, "We have been very fortunate throughout the years with our nursing program in having such exceptional classes in the program, as since the program started in January of 1976, we have had a total of 76 students graduate and become Registered Nurses."

"We are pleased with our track record in the nursing program, and even more so, we are pleased that the District is doing its part in helping fulfill the need for medical care in Howard County and the Permian Basin."

"The overall pass rate of the graduating class of 1981 was 88 percent," said Barbara Holdampf, director of the HC ADN program. This exceeded the overall pass rate for the state of Texas. Many of the scores were above the state and national averages.

"Certainly, these graduates are an asset in alleviating the nurse shortage in west Texas," stated Mrs. Holdampf. "As of this date, 96 percent of the ADN graduates of Howard College have been licensed."

Mrs. Holdampf attributes the high pass rate to the effectiveness of the then acting director of the ADN program, Mary McClendon, and the staff and faculty of the program. "This is one of the finest staffs a person could work with. They have made my transition to acting director an easy one," she said.

Students from the 1981 graduating class currently licensed are as follows: Mary Belcher, Melvin Berry, Brenda Burnett, Karen Hahn, Burniadine Harness, Cathy Holten, Brenda McAdams, Paul Payne, Karen Proffitt, Mary Kay Townsend, Leslie Williams, and Tamra Williams, all from Big Spring.

Others include Ruth Owens, Stanton; Linda Mize, Snyder; and Margaret Kruger, Dunn.

The ADN Program admitted its seventh class of twenty-three nursing students in August, 1981. "I believe this is another exceptional group of students and anticipate continuing our present high pass rate on the state board examination," Mrs. Holdampf said. The sixth class of students will graduate in May, 1982.

Nita Tarbet new associate of Avery and Associates

Johnnie Lou Avery, president of Avery and Associates, has announced the addition of Nita Tarbet as a new associate with her firm. Until recently, Nita was library assistant for the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, and before that was an aide in the Hawaiian Language Program at Forsan Independent School District.

Nita will be available for programs, seminars, workshops and in-service staff development training by contacting Avery and Associates at 210 Permian Building, 263-1451. She will also be available to work with individuals.

Mrs. Tarbet's specialties include working in notivation, communications, goal-setting, and positive self-esteem. She, as a deaf person herself, is also very helpful with programs on information services for the handicapped and breaking the barriers of the handicapped.

Well known in this area as a speaker on behalf of the deaf population she is enthusiastic in her support of SWCID. She will continue to work in areas to support SWCID's efforts and to acquaint the hearing population with the value of that institution.

Mrs. Tarbet has also been a teacher's aide with the Odessa Public Schools Deaf Program where she was supervisor of students who needed individual tutoring. She was an aide from 1976-79 in the integrated room of the Big Spring School District where she worked with the problem children and set up individual programs for physically handicapped and mentally and emotionally disturbed children.

Nita is accomplished in lip reading, sign language and Veritex, a frosting method of teaching. She is a volunteer interpreter for the deaf to the medical community, law enforcement agencies and other helping groups in Howard County.

On the lecture tour for many years, she has been called upon often to discuss deaf awareness and overcoming handicaps. She held a three-day seminar in interns at the University of California in Los Angeles and has conducted similar workshops in Dallas, Midland, Odessa, and Lubbock. She recently held a workshop in El Paso for creative expression, using her poetry.

In addition, Nita is an award winning artist who has had her own shows. She paints in all mediums. She drew the March of Dimes Defect Poster in 1973 and helped with posters for other drives. She paints portraits, too.

Her creativity also is evident in her writing. She has had several poems published and has recently sent a book of poetry to several publishers for their consideration in printing it.

Nita is a recipient of various awards. She has received the Outstanding Person of the Year plaque in 1978 from Odessa and a similar award from Midland. In 1980, Big Spring Evening Lions Club named her their Citizens of the Year. The People Helping People Award for Outstanding Service was granted her in 1980 and the Midland Beta Sigma Phi Chapter named her as their Citizens of the Year in 1979. This was followed this year by the Beta Sigma Phi award being given to her in Austin.

In adding Tarbet to her staff, Johnnie Lou Avery said, "Nita is an amazing, extraordinary person. She is a master of inspiring and motivating people to use their own potential because she has done so much with her own life despite some very trying circumstances and obstacles. I've never met a more positive, enthusiastic, giving, caring person than Nita. We are very pleased to be associated with her."

Nita is married to Bob Tarbet who is a long-time employee of Cosden. They have three children who range in age from 16-21. They live on Todd Road in the Silver Heels Addition.

Avery has extended an invitation to everyone to come by the office or call and say hello to Nita.

Investigators say pilot attempted landing

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — A Michigan man had tried to land at another airport before his single-engine plane crashed a mile from Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport, investigators say.

William and Wanda Cole of Williamston, Mich., were killed when their Piper Cherokee crashed and burst into flames Sept. 19.

"We have determined they did land at Rockwall Airport and were going to Addison to refuel," said National Transportation Safety Board investigator Warren Wandell. He said witnesses at the suburban Addison Airport reported seeing the plane come within 200 feet of landing before it veered away.

But a shortage of air traffic controllers caused by the national strike has forced the airport to close early, and Cole "may have tried to contact Addison by radio and thought he had the wrong airport when he did not get a reply," Wandell said Friday. He said investigators speculate Cole wandered into the path of jets at D-FW while trying to find Addison Airport.

A Delta 727 passed about 500 feet above and 500 feet to the right of the small plane, he said, but the pilot had the Piper in sight the entire time. The jetliner still was close enough, however, for "wake turbulence" to render the smaller plane temporarily uncontrollable, Wandell said.

The Coles were en route to a pharmacists' convention in San Antonio.

Leukemia victim's last wish was Christmas for her friends

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Ornamental snowflakes, a yule tree and greeting cards decorated her hospital room on a September day. Nurses sang carols.

During her 81st stay at Borgess Medical Center, Aneita Spence decided that an early Christmas would be her "chance to give something to all the people who have been giving to me."

On Wednesday the 17-year-old victim of leukemia said goodbye to the friends who called her by her nickname, Clancy, and on Friday awoke to tell her mother she knew she was going to die. Four hours later she was dead.

"Christmas is a celebration of friends," Clancy said at the gathering.

"I see other people, adults on the third (cancer) floor who are going to die. So many of them sit down there in self pity and wait to die.

"I'm not going to give up. I'm happy. I am at peace with myself. There is a difference between giving up and accepting."

Mrs. Spence, whose first name also is Aneita, got a gold locket from her daughter as a Christmas present. She said Aneita awoke about 5 a.m. Friday and "she said, 'I can't explain. You wouldn't understand. But I'm not feeling any pain.' Then I said, 'Close your eyes,' and she did and never woke up again."

Aneita "really wanted to be there for the Christmas party," said Diane White, a nurse on her floor. "I think she rallied for that."

Aneita was from the village of Hickory Corners and was a high school senior at Gull Lake, about 6 miles northeast of here. She is survived by her mother.

Tax & financial planning

New Estate Rules
(Under the Tax Recovery Act)

All estates in excess of $175,000 of total value should be reviewed in light of the benefits available under the Tax Recovery Act of 1981.

The most significant change in estate law will be the exemption from estate taxes for property transferred to your spouse at your death. This is effective for decendents dying after 1981. If you leave all your property to your spouse, regardless of how high the value may be, there will be no federal estate taxes. Since the second spouse's estate could be subject to considerable taxes, proper planning is necessary.

A second major change under the new law is the exemption from taxation for property regardless to whom it is left. The dollar amount increases up through 1987 as follows: 1981 — $175,625, 1982 — $225,000, 1983 — $275,000, 1984 — 325,000, 1985 — $400,000, 1986 — $500,000, 1987 — $600,000.

This means that a 1981 estate with a total value of $175,625 or less will not be subject to federal estate taxes even if the assets are left to someone other than your spouse. Likewise, a $600,000 estate will escape taxation in 1987. There are excellent planning techniques centered around these various estate exemption levels.

The new law also provides better opportunities for making gifts while you're alive. The old law permitted you to give $3,000 per year per donee, without creating a gift tax. The new law is increasing that level to $10,000. This means that a single parent could transfer $10,000 per year to each of his or her children. A married couple could transfer $20,000 to a child and if that child is married, they could double that gift for a total of $40,000 per year.

Sizeable transfers of family assets should be made as part of an overall financial plan with the assistance of professionals.

Ending the tax bracket creep

One of the most important tax changes made in President Reagan's Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 is an item that was added almost as an afterthought.

Indexing of individual income tax is designed to offset the "bracket creep" that occurs when inflation moves taxpayers into higher tax brackets. What happens now is that for every percent point that inflation increases, the federal government collects about 1.5 percent more in tax revenues. Thus, taxpayers have larger hunks of their incomes gobbled away in taxes.

This catch has given Congress a painless way to collect funding for new government programs — at taxpayer expense.

UNDER THE NEW plan, the personal exemption and the zero bracket amount (formerly the standard deduction) would be indexed to the Consumer Price Index starting in 1985.

That means that if the Consumer Price Index increases 10 percent in 1984, then the zero bracket amount would increase 10 percent and the personal exemption would increase 10 percent;

This plan will limit the increase in revenues for the government, and thus curb the growth of government. What a nice thought.

SOME LAWMAKERS are howling that as a result of indexing, the federal government will be locked into a system of either endless budget deficits or deep cuts in spending.

We think it's time Congress quit going on wild spending sprees and started learning to live within the country's means, just as we all must do to survive.

The $5 treatment

Art Buchwald

My friend Walter VanderBeek is a lifelong Republican. This year he contributed five dollars to the 1981 GOP Victory Fund. He thought nothing more about his donation, until he received a large "Certificate of Recognition," suitable for framing. The certificate had two gold seals on it. He was also given a plastic card he could carry in his wallet, identifying him as a "1981 GOP Victory Fund Sponsor."

Accompanying these priceless documents was a "personal" letter from Congressman Guy Vander Jagt, Chairman of the Fund, telling Mr. VanderBeek the decision to award him his certificate was by unanimous vote of the National Republican Executive Committee, in appreciation for all Walter had done for the party.

Vander Jagt continued in his letter, "I wish I could deliver this certificate to you personally in Palmyra, New York. This would give me an opportunity to tell you in detail how your financial support etc., etc..."

The letter also spelled out how the Democrats, who were to blame for the most serious crisis since World War II, were now sabotaging President Reagan's plans to resolve it.

HOW DO I KNOW all this? Walter came into my office the other day and showed me the documents. He looked slightly crestfallen, and I asked him why.

"When I arrived on the Eastern shuttle, there was nobody there to meet me. I didn't expect the President, but he could have sent Vice President George Bush or Al Haig to be at the bottom of the ramp when I got off the plane."

I agreed.

"After a letter like this, they should have at least sent Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker's limousine. What brought you to Washington in the first place?"

"Well, I heard the Executive Committee of the National Republican Party was holding a meeting, and I thought they might be looking for an ambassador for the Court of St. James. I wanted to be there in case they had any questions to ask me."

"Did they interview you?"

"I didn't get into the meeting. I showed my plastic 'Victory' card to the guard at the Republican National headquarters, and he escorted me to the door. He thought I was some kind of nut."

"I'LL BET WHEN Congressman Vander Jagt hears about it, that guard will have egg on his face," I said.

"I'm not too sure. I went up on the Hill to see Vander Jagt to complain about the treatment I had received since arriving in Washington, and even when I produced his letter they said he couldn't see me."

"You would think the congressman's staff would know who you were, after what you've done to defeat the Democrats."

"They were too busy stuffing 'Certificates of Recognition' into envelopes to notice I was even there."

"So what did you do next?"

"I heard there was a big dinner for Menachem Begin at the White House, so I called up Nancy Reagan's social secretary and told her I was free that night."

"Did she invite you to the dinner?"

"Not exactly. She told me to hold the line, and the next thing I knew I was talking to the Secret Service, who wanted to know where I was calling from."

"Well," I said, "for a guy who has been unanimously recognized as a Vistory Fund sponsor by the Republican Party, I would say they were more interested in your five bucks, than they were in you."

"I'm starting to come to the same conclusion. And you know something else? I don't believe Congressman Vander Jagt ever did want to come to Palmyra, New York, to give me my certificate personally."

Gerald Ford gets rapped

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Former President Gerald Ford has the feds on his tail. He signed a letter endorsing the issurance of a privately minted medal commemorating the 200th anniversary of the Battle of Yorktown, and postal inspectors say the letter was misleading.

No one, apparently, is accusing the goodhearted ex-president of deliberately trying to misrepresent the medal he touted in a solication letter sent out to prospective buyers. He's on the honorary board of trustees of the prestigious Capitol Historical Society, which is issuing the medal, and he simply lent his prestige to the promotion effort by signing a letter that was prepared by the society's marketing consultant, a Wyoming outfit called Fleetwood.

But postal inspectors say the society's ads — and Ford's letter — are misleading. Both the ads and the letter said that the society's offering was a "National Medal" authorized by Congress.

This is stretching it a bit. Though the society itself has a congressional character, the Yorktown medal is definitely not a "National Medal" — it's a private issue.

WHAT DIFFERENCE does it make? To collectors, there's a significant distinction between a private, commercially issued medal and a "National Medal" — which is one struck by the U.S. Mint. The Mint's medals, which must be specifically approved by Congress, are more valuable to numismatists.

Immediately after the historical society's test ads ran last July, investigators for Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., pointed out the misleading statements to the society's president, Fred Schwengel, a former Republican congressman from Iowa and a well-known history buff.

Schwengel told my associate Tony Capaccio that he hadn't seen the final version of the ads before they ran, and he took steps to eliminate references to a "National Medal" and congressional authorization in future ads.

Meanwhile, however, the mailed solicitation signed by Ford went out without these corrections. A Fleetwood spokesman said the firm drafted the letter and submitted it to Ford, who made minor changes and signed it. He had agreed to let his name be used only if he had editorial control over the letter, the spokesman said.

"I was even more pleased," the Ford letter said in part, "to know that the United States Congress has authorized the United States Capital Historical Society to issue national medals and that this one is to be issued simulanteously with a new stamp." Postal inspectors say the Ford letter and the accompanying literature contained at least five additional misleading statements.

IN A PRIVATE LETTER to Schwengel on Sept. 2, the Mint's legal counsel, Kenneth B. Gubin, recalled their conversation of Aug. 7 concerning the misleading ads, reminded the society president that he had been told to correct the ads, reminded the society president that he had been told to correct the ads and reproached him for the Ford letter by writing: "The appearance of the direct mail flyers a week after our conversation was quite disturbing."

The Fleetwood spokesman said about 500,000 solications containing the Ford letter had been mailed out, resulting in about 2,000 orders for the Yorktown medal. Schwengel apologized for the Ford letter, saying, "I don't know how we missed" the misleading statements.

The U.S. Capitol Historical Society has signed a consent order agreeing to offer refunds to any collector who feels bilked by the Ford letter, which postal inspectors said, was a "basic part of the offering" for the commemorative medal. And the postal inspectors have filed a civil complaint as part of the consent agreement, in case the society makes any furhter slipups.

Footnote: Repeated requests for comment drew no response from the former president's office.

NRC COVERUP: The Nuclear Regulatory Commission wasn't quite as forthcoming as it might have been during recent public hearings on the safety of nuclear power plants: It failed to disclose a two-year-old report by its own inspection and enforcement division favoring stricter safety standards in the wake of the near-disaster at Three Mile Ilsnad in the spring of 1979.

Top NRC officials insisted before the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board that critical values and gauges — like those which failed at Three Mile Ilsnad — didn't need to be placed in a special "safety-grade" category for regulation.

After the hearings, though, a researcher for the Union of Concerned Scientists discovered an internal NRC report which had concluded that such reactor components needed closer testing and evaluation. This was precisely what the scientists' group had been maintaining at the safety hearings.

Robert Pollard, a nuclear safety engineer who used to work with the NRC and is now a member of the Union of Concerned Scientists, told my reporter Paul Marks it was impossible that agency officials had been unaware of the inspectors' report. Yet the scientists had been unable to extract the report from the agency with discovery proceedings filed by the group's lawyers before the summer safety hearings. It was finally located in the NRC's Philadelphia regional office by researcher Steve Sholly.

LOST IN THE GULAG: In 1978, Soviet Jewish activist Anatoly Shcharansky was sentenced to three years in prison and 10 years in a labor camp on charges of spying for the United States. Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., recently visited the prisoner's mother in Moscow. She told him she hadn't heard from her son in many months, and she was afraid he was dead. But after his return, Cranston got a telephone call from Shcharansky's wife, Avital, in Israel, reporting that the family had finally received a letter: Shcharansky had been gravely ill in a hospital, but at least was still alive.

Around the rim

About time for 'war'

Walt Finley

That intrepid reporter, John Edwards, former Herald staffer now attending the University of Texas and covering state government for a new weekly, the Austin Press, writes:

"It looks as though the OU football team will have a full schedule of TV appearances this fall. The Sooners' television ranking is No. 2 — right after the Muppets."

It doesn't matter who's in Austin — Bob Wills is still the king. And it really doesn't matter who wins the OU-USC game. (I'm writing this column Saturday morning) The big "war" involves OU-Texas Oct. 10 in the Cotton Bowl. I hope to be in the stands, just as I have been in most of the "wars" since 1938.

SINCE EVERYBODY ELSE is coming out in the open about their private lives, I may as well admit I have been having an affair for years.

It was the ultimate in affaires d'amour and I can truthfully say that not one cross word ever passed between us nor did even a tiny doubt cloud the relationship.

One thing that made it so beautiful is that we never tried to change each other.

We accepted one another devotedly despite minor transgressions, mostly on my part I must confess — things like almost never being on time and an insouciance that used to drive my paramour crazy.

I got used to being pampered. Quite often, a letter would arrive with the news that a mysterious treat was awaiting me and I'd hug myself in delicious anticipation as I gave thanks for being the object of such tender affection.

* * *

WELL, ALL THAT is a thing of the past — shattered in the seconds it takes to open the letter that told me it's over.

The letter was short, the words cold, brutal, impersonal and unyielding. I read:

"Woodrow Wilson" has not been returned to the library. You have been charged with the replacement cost. If you still have it, you may return it and pay the fine indicated. Your borrowing privileges will be reinstated upon settlement of this matter."

I SHED A TEAR OR TWO. I am trying to understand why, after all these years, I have been dropped over something that didn't matter when our love first flamed.

That I didn't ante up 84 cents on time.

Now I want to make it perfectly clear the affair did not involve local librarians. Well, who? I'd rather not say right now.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My husband and I are in deep financial trouble and can't see any way out. I wonder if God really is able to help out in something like this. — Mrs. B.W.T.

DEAR MRS. B.W.T.: First of all, God is concerned about every detail of our lives and there is nothing — absolutely nothing — that is not of interest to him. The reason for this is that he loves us with a love that is far deeper than anything we could ever fully grasp.

How do I know this? I know it because God sent his only Son into the world to show us his love. That is why I urge you and your husband to give your lives to Jesus Christ without reserve, and allow him to be your Savior and Lord. When you yield your lives to Christ you become God's children in a very special way.

That is why you can (and should) commit this whole matter to God in prayer. The Bible says, "let us then approach the throne of grace with confidence, so that we may receive mercy and find grace to help us in our time of need" (Hebrews 4:16).

Commit this matter to him, trusting him to help you find the right answer. Your prayer should not be begging God to give you more money, but simply trusting him and looking to him in faith to supply the answer to your problem. God is bigger than your problem, and can be trusted.

"Do not be anxious about anything, but in everything, by prayer and petition, with thanksgiving, present your requests to God. And the peace of God, which transcends all understanding, will guard your hearts and minds in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 4:6-7).

Then, in addition, I suggest you seek some practical help for your problems. Talk with your pastor, who may be able to suggest a Christian who is skilled in financial matters and who can give you practical advice about steps you can take to deal with your problem.

Finally, I suggest you look closely at your priorities in life and how these have affected your financial situation. You do not say why you have found yourself in such debt; I realize things may have happened to you which you have not been able to control.

But more often today people get deeply in debt because they have adopted a materialistic lifestyle which is unnecessary and even wrong. "Keep your lives free from the love of money and be content with what you have" (Hebrews 13:5). Make Christ first in your lives — including your finances.

Athletes want iced water

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: At football practices, our coach doesn't want us to have any ice water, and the water we get is cool, not really what you'd call cold. I think he adds a little salt to it, too. How about it? My mom read where salt is not recommended for use with practices. Why can't we get iced water? — M.M.

Your coach is right about the water temperature. During football practices or any heavy prolonged exercise done in hot weather, it's best to use only slightly chilled (45-55 degrees Fahrenheit) as opposed to either iced or warm fluids. The water will restore the fluid you lose and will actually cool you off faster. The non-iced fluid leaves the stomach faster; it won't pool there to slosh around.

During prolonged practices in hot weather you have to be sure you are allowed to drink liberally. So drink a half to a full glass (5-8 ounces) at 10-to 15-minute intervals. (I am asked about sweetened fluids. They are OK so long as they are not too high in sugar because sugar also slows the time it takes for the fluid to get out of your stomach.)

Now, about the salt: It is OK to add a little salt to fluids, especially in the early days of practice when the body is getting accustomed to the sweating. Some do this by adding about a quarter of a teaspoon for every quart. Others recommend using a bit more salt than usual at mealtimes. Later on, you can forget this as well because your body adjusts to the new demands and begins to conserve salt. Sweat becomes less salty, so you use less of it.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I read a lot about running these days. Magazine articles and columns such as yours cover specific injuries to the legs, but nowhere have I read a general set of rules for the runner to abide by to avoid leg injuries in general. Can you list some? — M.N.

Injuries from running have included almost every part of the body, but certainly the two most commonly injured places are the knee and lower leg. If you pay attention to four important points, you can avoid most of these injuries.

1. Beware of training errors. If you suddenly increase your mileage without allowing sufficient time for rest and adaption of your muscles, you can count on an injury.

2. Make certain you don't have an anatomic quirk that leads to injury from use. Discrepancy in the lengths of the legs is an example. This can be corrected with simple devices like lifts.

3. Examine your running shoes. Make sure the heel is sufficiently wedged, that the soles are flexible and that there is enough room for the toes or for the slight swelling that might occur with vigorous use. Do not scrimp on cheap shoes. In the long run (no pun) you'll pay the price.

4. Pay attention to the surfaces you run on. Repetitive hill running puts excess strain on the legs and knees and their muscles. Uneven terrain leads to ankle sprains. Too hard surfaces increase the forces on the joints, causing inflammation.

If you abide by these rules your running days will be many and your running injuries few.

FARM FORUM
By RONNIE WOOD

Curb that urge to get that cotton crop out of the field and on its way to the gin when the bolls begin to open on a nice crop of cotton. This is the advise of W. E. Woodall, University of Arkansas Extension cotton specialist. Waiting until the crop is ready and conditions are right, he believes, is the best way to get the most out of your defoliant, although often a compromise between a late maturing crop and the early onset of bad weather. However, a new technique might help defoliate as early as possible, while doing minimal damage to the top crop. Researchers suggest growers slice open a few developing bolls and examine the seed coat color to determine maturity. What's the right color? Plant scientists say when the seed coat begins to change from pearl white to black - when it takes on a light buff color - sufficient maturity will have been reached. Also, if the seed fills up the seed cavity, and is changing color, it's mature.

AUSTIN — Texas crossed the finish line first in the country's growth race over the last 10 years, with areas such as Houston and Dallas-Fort Worth carrying the torch.

Texas, the third largest state in the nation, outdistanced all other states with a growth rate of more than 27 percent from 1970 to 1980, according to a study by the Texas Department of Community Affairs.

The two largest states, California and New York, lagged behind. California grew by 18 percent during that time and New York lost population, the study shows.

The Houston and Dallas-Fort Worth areas led the state with some surrounding suburbs increasing by 800 to 1,000 percent.

In fact, most of the state's non-rural growth occurred outside the state's larger cities, primarily in suburbs with a population of 30,000 to 80,000.

Wichita Falls and Fort Worth, the only two cities with a population of more than 30,000 to lose residents, didn't exactly lose them altogether, city officials said.

Wichita Falls, which lost about 2.1 percent from 1970 to 1980, grew in actual number of people in the labor force.

"People have settled on the outskirts of the city," said Bob Henderson, Wichita Falls city planner. "They're just not officially inside the city limits."

The Community Affairs study bears Henderson out.

Wichita County, as a whole, increased its population and contains cities such as Lakeside City which grew by 175 percent during that period, according to the study.

The Fort Worth area also lost population within city limits, but its suburbs accounted for almost half of the state's growth in so-called metropolitan areas.

Although metropolitan areas — areas including a major city and its surrounding suburbs — have boomed during the last decade, 10 cities outside those areas experienced a 100 percent growth rate or more.

Four of the cities are in the East Texas county of Henderson: Gun Barrel City, Tool, Seven Points and Caney City.

Other cities with a more than 100 percent growth rate include Pyote in Ward County in West Texas, Reno in the Northeast Texas county of Lamar, Early in Brown County in Central Texas, West Mountain in Upshur County in Northeast Texas and Edmonson in Hale County in Northwest Texas.

Although the study notes that two major factors in prompting growth in the 1970s was the quality of a city's public safety program and extensive of its basic services, some city officials disagree.

"We've got a healthy rate of growth," said Guirrermo Tulido, Corpus Christi city planner, adding that it has resulted more from new industry coming to town than the city's offerings in public safety or basic services.

Corpus Christi's population rose from 204,525 in 1970 to 231,999 in 1980.

In Big Spring in West Texas, Camille Patterson, office manager for the chamber of commerce, said, "The main reason (for the recent growth in that area) is that several large industries have come here."

Although Big Spring's population dropped from 28,000 in 1970 to 24,888 in 1980, its civilian work force actually grew. Population loss resulted from the gradual closing of Webb Air Force Base.

City officials from throughout the state said if growth had occurred, it was because of a city attracting new industries, usually oil — and gas-related.

Abilene city officials said that although extension of basic services such as electrical and water and wastewater lines contribute to a city's growth, it is usually a reaction to, not a catalyst for, urban growth.

Abilene grew from 89,653 in 1970 to 98,315 in 1980.

In addition to basic services and public safety, other factors shaping growth trends in Texas that will become more important in the 1980s are those usually associated with northeastern cities, the study states.

Issues such as drug abuse, neighborhood revitalization, energy shortages and mass transportation will increasingly affect where Texans decide to live, the report says.

Hiney has been traveling with Bargo on the highways since she was a pup and is credited with attracting many rides for the pair.

GOPers say defense will be cut more than $2 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican leaders are predicting that Congress will "almost certainly" cut more from the fiscal 1982 defense budget than the $2 bill President Reagan is proposing.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker Jr., R-Tenn., and House GOP leader Robert Michel, R-Tenn., made the assessment Friday as the administration budget architects emphasized that more cuts in benefit programs are needed to meet Reagan's goal of a balanced budget by 1984.

Baker said his colleagues "almost certainly" will go deeper into the defense budget than Reagan wants. Michel agreed, but added that a push by liberal Republicans to cut $9 billion from defense goes too far.

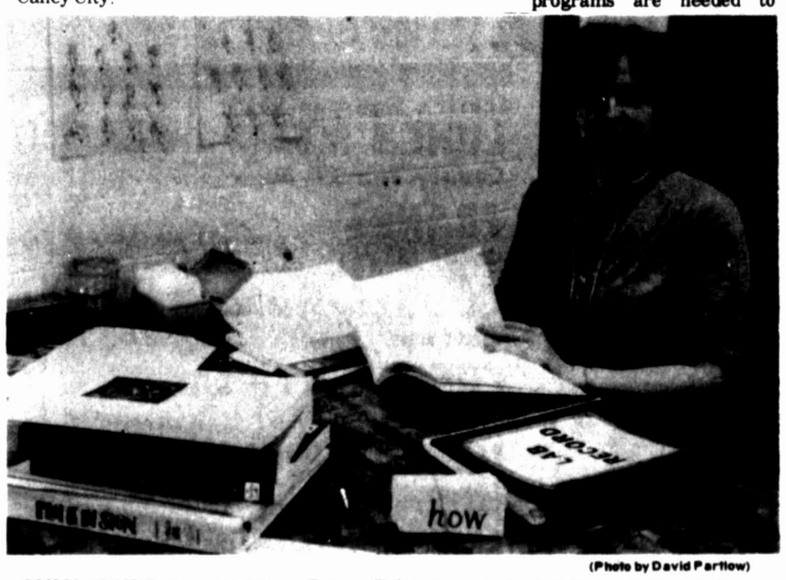

The president is seeking further spending reductions of $13 billion for fiscal 1982, which begins Thursday, and $3 billion in added revenues by eliminating "abuses and obsolete incentives in the tax code."

In other congressional business Friday:

—Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, told the Joint Economic Committee that although high interest rates "represent a serious cost to borrowers, they have substantially increased the income of millions of Americans." Nobody, he said, has complained to the council that interest paid on savings is too high.

—A stopgap government spending bill including a tax break for members of Congress was passed 47-44 by the Senate and sent to a conference committee, which is expected to meet Monday. The House version lacks the tax break.

—The Senate confirmed Reagan's nomination of Maj. Gen. Thomas K. Turnage as director of Selective Service.

Q. For months we've heard that home mortgage interest rates will come down, and the rumors are flying thicker and faster now. Does this mean that it will pay to wait to buy a home?

A. No. If mortgage rates drop substantially, the market will be flooded with buyers, causing, possibly, skyrocketing home prices, conforming to the ancient law of supply and demand. Although waiting may save you a little on the interest rate, that saving will, in all probability, be negated by increased price. In almost all areas, home prices have reached a plateau, and it is, indeed, a buyer's market, allowing you to pick excellent bargains, often with lower interest rates through seller financing or assumable mortgages. The time for the prospective home owner to buy is well at hand.

Reagan orders school lunch rules withdrawn

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, faced with adverse public reaction, has ordered the Agriculture Department to reconsider its controversial school lunch regulations that trimmed portions and classified ketchup as a vegetable.

The action came Friday, announced first by budget director David Stockman and then by other administration officials following a meeting between Reagan and Agriculture Secretary John R. Block.

"They've been withdrawn. It was a bureaucratic goof that we're going to change," Stockman said, adding that the Agriculture Department "not only has egg on its face, but ketchup, too."

Chief White House spokesman David Gergen said later that Stockman jumped the gun and that before leaving for a weekend at Camp David, "The president requested, and Secretary Block agreed, to withdraw these regulations."

Gergen said that after the proposals generated controversy, Reagan raised questions about them several times and wanted to know "what are these all about?"

After seeing the president, Block, citing "adverse public reaction," said he "made the decision to withdraw" the regulations.

The proposals would have cut the minimum portions of meat, vegetables, bread and milk. They would have allowed food such as tofu — a soybean meal curd — to be substituted for meat and ketchup to be used to meet some vegetable requirements.

Stockman said the regulations were "misleading" and had not been submitted to the Office of Management and Budget for review.

"The idea that suddenly this was a federal requirement to cut the hamburger by a quarter, by 25 percent, was ridiculous," Stockman said. "These are simply minimum standards.

... The schools can do anything they want beyond that in terms of the portions they serve and in terms of what kind of meals they compose.

"What we're going to do," he added, "is put out a new set of regulations that will remove that misleading aspect."

The proposed changes followed congressional approval of substantial cuts in federal subsidies for school lunches. Those cuts doubled the price of a school lunch to 40 cents for millions of poor children and raised average price of a lunch for another 14 million children from 60 cents to 75 cents

Skyride victim agrees to $3.8 million 'deal'

DALLAS (AP) — A 22-year-old Iowa woman who agreed to a $3.81 million out-of-court settlement says no amount of money can replace what she lost when a 1979 Swiss Skyride gondola crash at the State Fair of Texas left her paralyzed from the shoulders down.

Cindy Holden, 22, of Long Grove, Iowa, and her husband, Dennis, had sued for $11.6 million, contending that the fair, the operator and the manufacturer of the ride were negligent in the Oct. 21, 1979 skyride accident.

One man was killed and 17 people — including Mrs. Holden — were injured when two gondolas fell to the ground at the crowded state fair midway.

Mrs. Holden and her husband agreed to the settlement Friday during a recess in the trial on her suit.

Her attorney, Windle Turley, said part of the settlement will be in cash and the rest will be placed in long-term investments for Mrs. Holden by the defendants.

Turley said the Holdens, who have filed for divorce, will decide how to split their settlement.

The manufacturer, Von Roll Ltd., also agreed to ask that all skyride operators put wind monitoring devices on the rides so they can be turned off in windy weather.

"I'm really happy. I was getting pretty nervous," Mrs. Holden said Friday. "I don't think any amount of money can replace what I lost, but it helps out paying the bills."

Jeff Lynch, an attorney for ride operator Steck & Staph Attractions, said the two parties began negotating a settlement earlier this month.

Turley said Mrs. Holden "plans to use the money to finance five years of (amusement ride) safety seminars and to buy a house designed for easy access for the handicapped."

The accident happened when one gondola became stuck on a tower and three others plowed into it, sending two of them crashing to the midway, officials said.

Mrs. Holden was a passenger in one of the cars that fell.

"Everybody was yelling and screaming. There was a big bang. All of a sudden, it was silent. And then I realized we were falling," Mrs. Holden said during her testimony Monday. "All I remember is falling."

Several witnesses testified the ride operated in dangerously high winds on the day of the accident, that a safety switch had been purposely deactivated and that the operator did not use the emergency stop button.

Two engineers testified that there were four occassions during the accident when the safety switch should have shut down the ride. An engineer who works for the manufacturer testified that the safety circuit switch had been tripped during the accident.

Mrs. Holden told jurors how the accident had changed her life.

"My feet can't walk, my hands can't grasp. I can't unbutton a button, zip a zipper. Every morning, I'm dizzy when I get up. I have headaches most every day," she said.

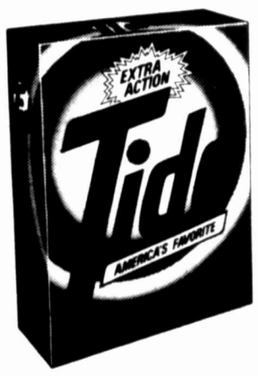

"I don't even like to look at myself in the mirror."

She told jurors the accident was the cause of her pending divorce.

"My life is so different. There were too many adjustments to make. I wasn't the wife he wanted," she said.

Mom fights raped daughter's wish for abortion

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A 12-year-old girl who was raped by three young men wants an abortion to end the pregnancy that doctors say may kill her. But her mother says no — her religious beliefs forbid it.

If God wants the pregnancy terminated, the mother believes, the girl will have a miscarriage, the woman's attorney said.

Mother and daughter have taken their fight to court.

Three justices of the nine-member Oklahoma Supreme Court heard arguments in the case Friday and said a decision could be issued as early as Monday.

The unidentified girl, three months pregnant and suffering from venereal disease because of the rape, said she wants the abortion because of her age and because doctors say giving birth could endanger her life.

Michelle Porta, court-appointed lawyer for the mother, said the mother "is opposed to abortions because of her religious beliefs."

Ms. Porta said the mother, a member of the fundamentalist Church of the Holiness, believes that if God wants the pregnancy terminated, he will cause a miscarriage. The mother also claims the girl is too young to make the decision.

Authorities say the girl ran away from home last month after her mother refused to permit an abortion. State authorities found the child and sought to have her certified as a deprived child so the court could take responsibility for her.

"The child, on her own, should have the ability to consent to an abortion," said Assistant District Attorney Fritz Aurin, who represents the state Human Services Department.

Earlier this week, special Judge Donald Manning decided on behalf of the girl, made her a ward of the court and ordered her pregnancy terminated. But he stayed his ruling to give the mother time to take the case to the state's highest court.

Manning said he stayed the effect of his order to allow the Supreme Court time to consider the case because there is no state law dealing with such a case and there are no court rulings on the subject.

One of the Supreme Court justices who heard arguments in the case, Justice Donald Barnes, said the high court probably will issue a ruling next week, possibly "as early as Monday."

Asked if the mother was concerned about her daughter's health if she gave birth, Ms. Porta said: "That is not the issue. The issue is the mother's objection to the abortion on religious grounds."

Ms. Porta said the girl was "raped by three males, who apparently were of about high school age." She said the girl's assailants have not been apprehended.

Chagra arrested in drug bust

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The brother-in-law of convicted drug smuggler Jimmy Chagra is free on bond after being arrested on a narcotics charge by U.S. Customs agents.

Edward Nichols was released on a $15,000 personal recognizance bond Friday morning following his arrest Thursday at a border bridge, officials said.

He was charged with possession of Percodan with intent to distribute and importation of Percodan, a Drug Enforcement Administration agent said. Officials said Nichols had 200 Percodan pills.

Nichols and his lawyer, Joe Chagra, appeared at an arraignment before U.S. Magistrate Janet Ruesch Friday morning, who set a preliminary hearing for Oct. 5.

Nichols testified last spring before a San Antonio federal grand jury investigating the 1979 assassination of U.S. District Judge John Wood Jr.

He invoked the Fifth Amendment during an April 29 appearance and was granted immunity from prosecution before a May 20 appearance.

Mexican-Americans join remap suit

PARIS, Texas (AP) — A group of Mexican-Americans, including three state representatives, a city councilman and a Val Verde county commissioner, have asked to join a suit contesting the Legislature's congressional redistricting plan.

State Reps. Albert G. Luna of Houston, Matt Garcia of San Antonio and Arnold Gonzales of Corpus Christi; San Antonio City Councilman Bernardo Eureste, Val Verde County Commissioner Ricardo Padilla and seven others filed a motion Friday seeking to intervene in the suit on behalf of the state's Mexican-Americans.

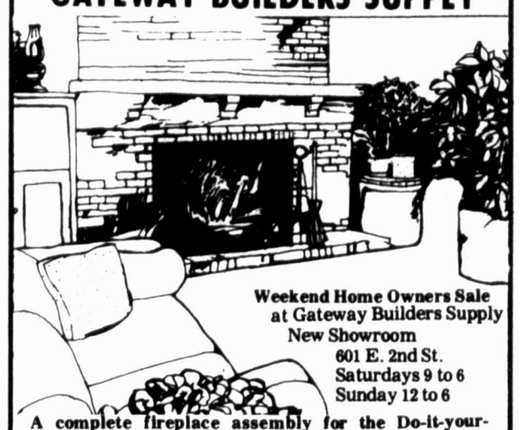

They contend the Legislature-approved redistricting plan "was designed in such a way as to severely under-represent Mexican-Americans."

WHERE'S THE FIRE — Lamesa quarterback Sam Hansard is in a hurry to get around right end before the front line of the Ft. Stockton Panthers catches him in second quarter action in Lamesa Friday night. Hansard made a first down on the play, but Hansard's effort wasn't enough as the Golden Tors lost 21-7.

Panthers stop Lamesa

LAMESA — The Fort Stockton Panthers had an easy time here Friday night with the Lamesa Golden Tors winning 21-7.

Fort Stockton scored three times in the first half as three different players scored for the Panthers.

Quarterback Jerry Gray, after engineering a long drive in the first quarter scored from the one with 1:44 left in the first period.

The Panther's Trent Huckaby scored on a 11-yard run in the second quarter and halfback Mark Dunn topped off the scoring with a 57-yard run through the Lamesa defense.

Joe Salamon was accurate all night as he was three for three in the extra point department.

Lamesa's lone score came in the fourth quarter with a one-yard run by Steve Alexander. Clay Everhart kicked the conversion to make the final score 21-7.

Ft. Stockton is 3-1 for the year and Lamesa is winless in four starts.

Oilers take on Jets

NEW YORK (AP) — "Walt Michaels is my coach today and he'll be my coach next Sunday. His status hasn't changed since the day we hired him," Jim Kensil, president of the New York Jets, said last Sunday.

So now it's "next Sunday," the winless Jets return home after their 38-10 debacle in Pittsburgh, and they expect to hear the fans yelling for their scalps when they trot into Shea Stadium to play the Houston Oilers.

"I'm sure the fans realize that nobody wants to win more than I do, than the coach and players do," Kensil answered obliquely when asked during the week whether the clamor for a new head coach would in any way effect Michaels' position.

He didn't say Michaels' job was a week-to-week proposition — but he refused to speculate just how long Michaels might be the coach.

Meanwhile, one of the players on the defensive unit which has allowed a league-high 100 points this year said he was acutally looking forward to the fans' wrath. "I want to hear booing. I expect to hear it," said defensive end Mark Gastineau. "Maybe it will psyche us up a little bit."

While the Jets are staggering along, tied with new England at the bottom of the American Conference East, the Oilers are slugging it out in the tough AFC Central Division. They and Cincinnati are 2-1 while Pittsburgh and Cleveland are 1-2.

Kenny Stabler of the Oilers comes into the game as the AFC's third-leading passer (Richard Todd of the Jets is ranked ninth), and Earl Campbell of Houston is No.2 among conference rushers with 242 yards while rookie Freeman McNeil, the Jets' No.1 draft choice, is their leading rusher with 137 yards, 14th in the AFC.

A year ago, these teams staged an epic battle. The Jets roared off to a 21-0 lead, but Stabler's four touchdown passes brought the Oilers back into a 28-28 tie. Pat Leahy of the Jets, who missed a chip-shot field goal in the closing seconds of the fourth quarter, won it in overtime.

Last week, while the Jets were giving up 566 yards to the Steelers, Houston was struggling to gain 202 yards in a 16-10 loss to Miami.

Texas defeats Miami

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas quarterback Rick McIvor lofted a 45-yard scoring pass to wide receiver Donnie Little — Texas' starting quarterback last year — as the Longhorns defeated Miami 14-7 in an intersectional game matching two Top 20 college football teams.

Texas' other wide receiver, sprinter Herkie Walls, caught a 58-yard pass from McIvor to set up the first Longhorn touchdown, which came at the end of a 99-yard march.

The victory extended No. 4 Texas' record to 3-0. The 14th-ranked Hurricanes lost their first game in three starts.

Defenses and punting dominated a scoreless first half as Texas had only 96 yards total offense and Miami 106 at intefmission.

Texas scored first, late in the third quarter, after cornerback Vance Bedford intercepted Miami quarterback Jim Kelly at the Texas 1-yard line. The 'Horns moved 99 yards for the touchdown with McIvor passing from the end zone on a third down play to hit the 58-yarder to Walls.

A.J. "Jam" Jones scored from the 9, ripping through a big hole on the left side and dragging Miami safety Fred Marion into the end zone with him.

Miami took the Texas kickoff and drove 80 yards to score on Kelly's passing.

The junior hit Robert Neal for 11, Mark Rush for 18, Neal again for 12 and then threw a perfect toss to Larry Brodsky for 32 yards and the touchdown.

Texas' winning drive, on its next possession, also carried 80 yards. On third and 3, McIvor threw to Little at the Miami 25 and he cut to the left sidelines, sidestepping Marion at the 2 for the score.

Hogs rally to win

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Gary Anderson, held in check in the first half, helped set up Bruce Lahay's 24-yard field goal and Tom Jones' one-yard run in the third period and Danny Walters scampered 87 yards with an intercepted pass as Arkansas came from behind Saturday night and defeated Mississippi 27-13.

A throng of 63,522 in Mississippi Memorial Stadium, the largest crowd ever to witness a sporting event in Mississippi, saw Walters' interception kill a late Ole Miss threat and seal the Rebels' first setback in four games. The winners were supported by 15,000 fans from the neighboring state of Arkansas, who watched the Razorbacks boost their record to 3-0.

Arkansas' second-half rally negated a record-setting night by Mississippi quarterback John Fourcade, who smashed Archie Manning's career total offense.

Fourcade completed 15 of 28 passes for 213 yards and carried 10 times for 44 more, including a 10-yard touchdown run. His total of 257 yards gave him 5,677 yards, erasing the mark of 5,576 set by Manning from 1968-70.

Fourcade, a 6-foot-1 212-pound senior from Gretna, La., had returned to the game after suffering a rib injury near the end of the third period and took the Rebels from their 24 to the Arkansas 18.

On the next play, however, he threw blindly into the right flat and Walters stepped in front of James Harbour, the intended receiver, swiped the pass and sped down the left sideline for the sixth longest interception return in Arkansas history.

LSU rolls over Rice

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Running back Jesse Miles sprinted for 100 yards and quarterback Alan Risher threw for a pair of touchdowns as Louisiana State University rolled over Rice 28-14 in an intersectional college football game Saturday night.

Risher hit 13 of 16 passing attempts for 139 yards.

Included were touchdown tosses of five yards to backup tight end James White and starting tight end Malcolm Scott.

Risher sat out the fourth quarter after the game was already decided.

Rice, a two-touchdown underdog, marched on a crisp 77-yard drive on the games's first series, with quarterback Michael Calhoun hitting towering tight end Robert Hubble on a six-yard scoring pass.

LSU came right back on the ensuing possession, driving 79 yards to a touchdown by Gene Lang on a four-yard run.

Miles registered a second-quarter touchdown on a one-yard plunge for LSU. Rice got a face-saving touchdown on a 15-yard pass from Calhoun to Jose Fortune with just under three minutes remaining in the game.

Rice is winless in three starts. LSU evened its record at 2-2.

Calhoun was 4-4 on the touchdown march, with 6-foot-8, 250-pound pound Hubble his target on all of his completions.

Running back Kevin Trigg finished the night with 85 rushing yards for Rice.

The game was marred by numerous roughness calls in its early going.

On one seven-play first quarter series, penalty flags were dropped five times.

LSU was assessed yardage twice and three of the calls were offsetting roughness penalties.

LSU was penalized 11 times for 134 yards. Rice was penalized three times for 15 yards.

Of the penalties against LSU, 45 yards came on two pass interference calls as Rice drove for its final touchdown.

USC comeback shocks Oklahoma Sooners

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Quarterback John Mazur threw a 7-yard scoring pass to tight end Fred Cornwell with just two seconds remaining and tailback Marcus Allen rushed for 209 yards Saturday as top-ranked Southern Cal came from behind to beat No.2 Oklahoma 28-24.

Mazur's dramatic pass to Cornwell was the only reception of the contest for the junior tight end and just his second ever for the Trojans. The pass play, with Mazur rolling left, then finally finding Cornwell open in the end zone, capped a 78-yard march by USC in the waning moments of a contest it had trailed almost all the way.

Allen, a senior who had rushed for 210 and 274 yards, respectively, in Southern Cal's first two games this fall, tied an NCAA record by going over 200 yards in three consecutive games. He carried 39 times against Oklahoma and scored twice, on a 27-yard dash in the opening period and a 3-yard burst that brought the Trojans back from a 24-14 deficit to trail by three points with 6:37 remaining.

The Trojans, 3-0, were behind 17-14 at the intermission. After a scoreless third quarter in which USC's Frank Jordan missed a pair of long field goals, the Sooners, 2-1, extended their advantage to 24-14 on a 7-yard run by Darrell Shepard early in the final period.

But USC drove 74 yards to draw to within three points and won the game on a third-and-goal play in the final seconds.

The nationally televised contest attracted a crowd of 85,651 to the Los Angeles Coliseum, including an estimated 20,000 from Oklahoma.

Last minute touchdown lifts Purdue, to win

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Quarterback Scott Campbell's 7-yard touchdown pass and two-point conversion to flanker Steve Bryant with 19 seconds to go lifted Purdue to a 15-14 college football upset Saturday over 13th-ranked Notre Dame.

The winning Purdue score followed a 30-yard touchdown run by Notre Dame's Phil Carter that broke a 7-7 tie with 2:57 remaining. Campbell then led the final Boilermaker drive, completing passes of 33 yards to Eric Jordan and 42 yards to Bryant that gave Purdue a first down at the Irish 1 with 39 seconds left.

Wally Jones was thrown for a 6-yard loss, and two passes by Campbell were incomplete before he found Bryant in the left corner of the end zone on fourth down for the touchdown. The Boilermakers elected to try for the victory and Campbell hit Bryant for the two-point conversion.

The Irish had one more chance in the closing seconds, but a pass by quarterback Tim Koegel was intercepted by Purdue's Tim Seneff near midfield and the Boilermakers ran out the clock.

The victory lifted Purdue to 2-1 for the season, while Notre Dame dropped to 1-2 under first-year Coach Gerry Faust.

ACTION IN LORAINE — Perry Wiginton, 75, guard for the Sands Mustangs, stops Loraine's quarterback Adam Merket, 12, during a play in Friday night's football game in Loraine. Loraine's Kirk Galvan, 65, is a split-second too late to protect the quarterback. Although Sands led the first half of the game, Loraine revived and went on to win the game 20-16.

Loraine holds off Sands

LORAINE — Loraine was able to come back in the second half here Friday night after Sands had opened up a 14-0 lead and pull off a 20-16 win.

Sands scored twice in the second quarter with touchdowns by David Ybarra and John Covarrubies to make the score 14-0.

With 24 seconds left in the first half Loraine's Kirk Galvan scored on a one-yard run leaving the score at 14-6 as the half ended.

Loraine's Jerry Rose caught fire in the last half and scored on a one-yard run with 7:57 left in the third quarter.

Rose also ran the two point conversion.

Rose again struck paydirt early in the fourth quarter when he went over from five yards out. The point after touchdown failed and the score stood at 20-14.

Sands received two points on a safety with 1:37 left in the fourth quarter when Loraine centered the ball out of the endzone on an attempted punt.

Sands played a magnificent game statistically rolling up 216 yards rushing to Loraine's 12-0. The Sands coach said the team had good penetrations to the Bulldog 15 and 20 yard line, but turnovers stymied any scoring threat that might have ensued.

Sands record stands at 0-2-2 while Loraine is 1-3.

Denver's Orange Crush searches for revenge

By The Associated Press

Tom Jackson isn't sure whether Denver's Orange Crush defense is back. But just in case, he has a message for San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts — look out.

Jackson, Denver's All-Pro linebacker, said the Broncos won't be able to shut down the undefeated San Diego Chargers offense in Sunday's game in Denver. But the Broncos can make life miserable for Fouts, the National Football League's top-rated passer.

"Fouts throws for 300 yards against us every time we face him," said Jackson. "But that's OK as long as it's for 5 or 10 yards at a time. We must put pressure on him. He's been sacked only once in three games, but you can pressure him into throwing interceptions or to throwing that dink pass or the quick pass for short yardage."

That's exactly what the Broncos did to Fouts last year in San Diego. Although Denver yielded 459 yards in total offense, they sacked Fouts six times, forcing one interception, and kept the Chargers out of the end zone until the fourth quarter en route to a 20-13 victory.

The Broncos, 2-1, come into the game as the league's No.1 defense, allowing 212 total yards a game, including just 94 through the air.

The Dallas Cowboys, Philadelphia Eagles, Atlanta Falcons and Miami Dolphins also will try to stretch their records to 4-0 this Sunday. The Cowboys host the New York Giants, the Eagles entertain the winless Washington Redskins, Miami meets the Colts in Baltimore and Atlanta travels to Cleveland to meet the Browns.

Elsewhere Sunday, it's Buffalo at Cincinnati, Houston at the New York Jets, Kansas City at Seattle, New England at Pittsburgh, Minnesota versus Green Bay at Milwaukee, New Orleans at San Francisco and St. Louis at Tampa Bay.

The Monday night game features Los Angeles at Chicago.

Dallas, led by Tony Dorsett, boasts the league's No.1 rushing offense. Dorsett, who suffered bruised ribs and a twisted ankle last Monday night, has rambled for 423 yards, averaging 7.6 yards per carry. The Giants, 2-1, have not beaten Dallas in Texas since 1974.

The Eagles will put Louie Giammona on the spot again when they meet Washington. Giammona, Coach Dick Vermeil's nephew, will be replacing No.1 halfback Wilbert Montgomery, out with a pulled hamstring.

The Jets, 0-3, are hoping to recapture some of the magic from last year's contest against Houston, a game New York won 31-28 in overtime.

Pokes tackle Giants

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys were 11-point favorites to whip the New York Giants Sunday in what has shaped up as a revenge National Football League game for the hometowners.

The Cowboys think the Giants cost them the National Conference Eastern Division title last year with a 38-35 upset at East Rutherford, N.J.

Dallas and Philadephia each finished with 12-4 record but the Eagles won the National Conference Eastern Division in the fifth tie breaker — most points.

Dallas has the No. 1 rusher in the NFL in Tony Dorsett, who is averaging 7.6 yards per carry. Projected over the full season it would be the NFL's best since 1934 when Chicago's Beattie Feathers averaged 9.94 yards per try.

It's Dorsett's best start as a pro and he can give thanks to an off-season conditioning program which has made him a finely tuned machine.

He sprained an ankle and bruised some ribs Monday in the 35-21 victory over New England but should be in top shape by the 3 p.m. kickoff in Texas Stadium.

The Cowboys are 27-10-2 against the Giants, who haven't beaten them in Texas Stadium since 1974.

The Cowboys are 3-0 after victories over Washington, St. Louis and New England.

The Giants come to Texas Stadium with a 2-1 record, only the third time in 12 years they have come calling here with a winning ledger.

Dallas has not lost a regular season game in Texas Stadium since Thanksgiving of 1979, an 11-game span.

Giant quarterback Phil Simms will be facing a team that has yielded huge hunks of yardage overhead but leads the NFL in interceptions with 10.

The Cowboys may start rookie cornerback Everson Walls, who has come off the bench to make three interceptions.

Coahoma loses squeaker

SONORA — The Sonora Broncos, helped by a 76-yard run by David Buitron, were able to hold off the tough Coahoma Bulldogs by a score of 16-14 here Friday night.

Sonora started off the scoring on a 40-yard run by halfback Allen Stewart with 7:46 left in the first quarter. Scott Savell kicked the extra point.

Coahoma rallied back using a flea flicker pass and quarteback Bruce Walker threw to flanker Shane Mayhall who broke into the clear and ran in for the score making the tally 7-7.

With 5:17 left in the second quarter Sonora's Scott Savell booted a 25-yard field goal to give the Broncos a 10-7 lead at half-time.

Coahoma took the lead in the second half when Junior Yanez scored on a four-yard run capping a 79-yard drive. Robert Walker kicked the extra point to put the Bulldogs in front 14-10.

Not to be outdone Sonora's Buitron ran for his 76-yard touchdown on the Broncos next possession. The conversion failed leaving the score at 16-10.

Wolves bite Bearcats

BALLINGER — Colorado City, showing strong team effort, was able to chalk up its first victory of the season here Friday night as the Wolves defeated the Ballinger Bearcats by the score of 13-6.

Colorado City drew first blood in the opening quarter as halfback Mike Scott rambled 70 yards for a touchdown with 1:35 left to give the Wolves a 6-0 lead.

The Bearcats came back in the second quarter with a 59-yard march which took 12 plays and resulted in a 12-yard touchdown pass from Matt Allen to Roger Fuchs. The extra point failed and the score remained 6-6 at the end of the first half.

Colorado City's go ahead score came in the third period as Jeff Hammond engineered a 58-yard drive to the Bearcat one-yard line. Hammond quarterbacked sneaked for the touchdown and Dennis Heredia kicked the extra point.

The Wolves' head coach Tom Ramsey said he feels the team finally got untracked after suffering three defeats in a row. Ramsey said he feels they will perform much better in the coming weeks barring any serious injuries to key personnel.

Ramsey lauded Randy Ussleton, Randy McFall, Dennis Heredia, Michael Scott, Victor Jackson, and Stacy Tarter, as being outstanding on defense.

Mike Scott and Victor Jackson both had 124 yards rushing in the game.

Duran makes impressive comeback

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Roberto Duran continued his way back on the comeback trail Saturday by pounding out a unanimous 10-round decision over a tough but outclassed Luigi Minchillo.

Duran, winning his second consecutive fight since abruptly quitting in the eighth round of his welterweight title defense against Sugar Ray Leonard last November, looked sharp against Minchillo and dominated the fight throughly.

Forsan falls prey to Sterling City, 7-0

STERLING CITY — Sterling City halfback Garbiel Fuentes scored a touchdown in the final minute of the game here Friday night to help defeat the Forsan Buffaloes 7-0, and keep the Eagles record umblemished for the year.

Fuentes touchdown run of three-yards was set up by a Forsan turnover on its own six-yard line. Shane Colver added the point after touchdown.

Forsan head coach, Jan East, said the game was a defensive struggle and boiled down to whoever got the break, and Sterling City happened to have the ball bounce their way.

Preston Daniels of Forsan had 60 yards rushing in the game.

Sterling City's record now stands at 4-0, while Forsan drops to 2-2.

KLONDIKE — The hard luck Klondike Cougars remained winless for the year as they lost here Friday night to the O'Donnell Eagles by the score of 14-3.

All the scoring was done in the first half as the Eagles were able to mount two scoring drives which resulted in touchdowns by quarterback Eddie Hancock and halfback Mike Rodriquez. Klondike was only able to manage a 22-yard field goal by Blain Todd in the second quarter.

O'Donnell's first score came in the first quarter when Hancock, on a quarterback keeper, dived over from the one. Hancock also added the extra point making the score 7-0.

Midway through the second quarter Rodriquez ran for a touchdown from six yards out and the extra point made the score 14-3, which was to be all the scoring in the game.

Gilbert Morales, of O'Donnell, led all rushers with 80 yards. Klondike halfback Ray Arismendez added 42 yards in 13 rushes to aid his team's cause.

Pre-season flag football tourney final round today

Second round, semifinals and the finals of the pre-season tournament in the Big Spring Flag Football Association will be uncorked this afternoon at Johnny Stone Park.

The pre-season single elimination tourney began Tuesday and also had action on Thursday. Six teams out of 11 remain going into today's rounds.

The pre-season tournament was set up in order to determine strength of teams in order to make a more evenly balanced pair of divisions, as well as giving each team a chance to play together and iron out the kinks.

First round action found the Re-Runs edging Brew's Brothers, Pipeliners over the Fire Department, Barber's routing OIL 40-0, the Movie Cats bombing Jo-Boys 44-8, and Texas Pipe stopping Hughes 28-6.

Also on Thursday night, Texas Pipe easily trimphed over Texaco.

In today's action, the Re-Runs meet the Pipeliners at one o'clock, with the winner advancing to the four o'clock final round.

At two o'clock, the Movie Cats and Barber's tangle, with the winner of that game meeting Texas Pipe at three o'clock. The winner of the three o'clock game will then play in the final round.

Regular season action, with all games counting in the standings, begin some time this week.

On Monday night, there will be a meeting for all coaches in the league at 7:00 p.m. at the Chamber of Commerce to discuss any problems that have arisen.

Area lakes offer fishing variety

Lake J.B. Thomas and Lake E.V. Spence were complementing each other in fishing last week.

Catfishing was good at Lake Thomas, and bass and crappie fishing were on the increase at Lake Spence.

At Lake Thomas best results in catfishing was with live bait on trotlines for both yellow and channels. Quincy Peck, Snyder, hooked a 22-lb. yellow catfish. Black bass fishing was fair, both on artificial lure and live bait, and Joe Liles reeled in a 2½-lb. black bass. Crappie fishing there was only fair, and the few catches were made in 10-15 feet of water. Walleyes and white bass weren't biting.

During the week, biologists from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department were making cove census surveys at Lake Thomas as a guide to food supply and possible stocking patterns.

At Paint Creek Marina at Lake Spence, Mack Wood, Seminole, had a 3-lb. and a 5-lb. black bass, plus 11 crappies landed on minnows, and nine catfish; Ed Curtis, Lubbock, reported good results on crappie and came in with 45 lbs. of dressed fish; Clinton Sanders, Stanton, and Les Sanders, Colorado City, reported a 7-lb. and an 8½-lb. striper; Ted Haley and Jerry Bower, Robert Lee, caught 51 crappie to 1½ lbs. and four bass to 2 lbs.; Midkey and Kathy Andeeson, Odessa, boated a 9-lb. blue catfish.

Nolan Ryan fires fifth no-hitter

HOUSTON (AP) — Nolan Ryan set an all-time major league record with the fifth no-hitter of his career, allowing only three walks as he pitched the Houston Astros to a 5-0 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Saturday.

Ryan, 34, was tied with Sandy Koufax for the most no-hitters in a career. While with the California Angels — whom he left to sign with Houston as a free agent in 1980 — he no-hit Kansas City 3-0 on May 15 and Detroit 6-0 on July 15. The next year he no-hit Minnesota 4-0 on Sept. 28, and recorded his fourth no-hitter on June 1, 1975 against Baltimore, winning 1-0.

Scrappy Hatalsky leads in classic

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Morris Hatalsky, a career struggler on the pro golf tour, played the front side in 4-under-par 31 and swept into the lead Saturday halfway through the third round of the $250,000 Hall of Fame Classic.

Hatalsky, a distant 111th on this year's money-winning list, put together a 45-hole total of 167, 10 strokes under par on the 7,005-yard No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club.

Jerry Pate, who held a two-shot lead when the day's play started, was out in 34 and fell one behind when the surprising Hatalsky birdied the eighth and ninth hole. Pate made the turn with a 168 total.

It was four strokes back to the group headed by Jack Nicklaus at 172. Nicklaus played his front side in 34.

He was tied with Jim Booros, Keith Fergus and Tim Simpson. Boros was out in 33, Fergus in par 35 and Simpson in 36.

Stanton overpowered by Reagan County, 28-8

BIG LAKE — Reagan County's Greg Fisher was too much for the Stanton Buffaloes to contain here Friday night as the junior tailback ran for three touchdowns and passed for another as the Owls won handily 28-8.

Relying on a powerful ground game the Owls rolled up an impressive 205 yards rushing in the first half. Fisher did yeoman work as he carried 24 times for a total of 111 yards.

Reagan County scored first late in the opening quarter on a 9-yard run by Fisher. The play capped a 73-yard drive and Torin Burleson added the extra point.

The Owls continued their scoring show with 8:32 left in the second quarter when Fisher, who was to become a household word to Stanton fans, went over from the one-yard line and Burleson kicked the conversion.

Stanton fumbled on its next possession giving Reagan County another golden opportunity to score with good field position at the Buffalo 49.

The Owls needed only 7 plays before Fisher scored his third touchdown for the night from 7 yards out and the Burleson extra point made the score 21-0 at the half.

The Buffaloes regrouped during half-time and started things off right in the third quarter as Ray Flores returned the second half kick-off to the Reagan County 48-yard line. A couple of plays later quarterback Wally Hazelwood took matters into his own hands and took off on a dazzling run of 30 yards that ended up with Hazelwood scoring six points. Arthur Ruiz ran the two point conversion making the score 21-8.

The Stanton defense stiffened in the second half allowing the Reagan County rushers only 87 yards in the last two quarters.

Neither team was able to mount any serious drives throughout the remainder of the half until late in the fourth quarter when Greg Fisher made his presence known as he flipped a 24-yard halfback pass to Mitch Dorsey which resulted in a touchdown. Burleson kicked the extra point making a final score of 28-8.

Kevin Newman lead Stanton rushers with 89 yards on 27 carries and Wally Hazelwood added another 67 yards in the losing cause.

Stanton's record now stands at 3-1.

Yepremian ousted by student

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Every summer while he was in high school, Bill Capece worked out with National Football League kicker Garo Yepremian at the Miami Dolphins' training camp.

Today, Capece, a rookie who set records as Florida State's placekicker, starts work with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. He'll replace his one-time mentor.

"It's going to be hard to fit into his shoes. But I'm going to do the best I can," said the 22-year-old former Seminole standout. He went to high school in Hollywood, Fla., with David Shula of the Baltimore Colts, son of Miami coach Don Shula.

"People can expect some deep kickoffs — which is what everybody is looking for — and some height," said Capece after he was signed as a free agent Wednesday.

Hiring the free agent who was cut in preseason by Houston left the Yepremian, 37, without a job in the NFL. But the 14-year veteran says he believes it won't be long before he suits up with another pro team.

"All I can say is I will be picked up," said Yepremian, disappointed at being cut and bitter over the Bucs' action. "If I am not, I am proud of what I have achieved in 15 years.

"I'm happy for Bill Capece. He's a good kicker and will do a good job," Yepremian said. "But he might miss and lose his job. I feel sorry for him."

The 5-foot-7, 170-pound Capece kicked all four seasons with Seminoles and broke the NCAA record for most points scored by a kicker with 104 in 1980.

It was the third time in three years that Yepremian has been waived in favor of a younger player.

After starting with Detroit, he had a long and successful career with the Dolphins in the 1970s. He was cut in 1979, picked up by New Orleans, then waived after a season and signed by the Bucs in 1980.

"I've been blamed for losing all the games because I am the one being fired," he said. "I did my job and if everyone else on the team and on the staff would do the job the Bucs would be farther ahead than what they are."

When playing at Florida State last year, Capece made 22 of 30 field goal attempts — 14 of 16 inside the 40-yard line and eight of 14 outside the 40.

Yepremian has hit 208 of 309 field goal attempts and is ninth in NFL history with 1,074 points scored. For the Bucs he made 18 of 27 field goals, but just two of eight outside the 40.

Picking athlete of the decade has variety superstar choices

The American Cancer Society is conducting its annual Athlete of the Decade poll with 10 pretty good...no, make that 10 pretty great ...candidates. Picking among them is like splitting hairs.

How do you decide who was better in the period from 1971-1981? Do you give Pete Rose the edge over Kareem Abdul-Jabbar? Would O.J. Simpson's feats put him in front of Tom Watson? How about Bobby Orr or Willie Shoemaker, who has ridden more than 8,000 winners? And where do Pele, Chris Evert Lloyd, Bruce Jenner and Sugar Ray Leonard fit into the picture?

This is no simple task. The only easy part is that three previous winners — Muhammad Ali, picked for the period of 1968-1978, Jack Nicklaus (1969-1979) and Bjorn Borg (1970-1980) — are no longer eligible.

Those three winners had one thing in common. They each had enormous impact on their sports throughout the decade for which they were selected. Now, if you demand continuity and use that as a starting point, you can begin to eliminate some of the current candidates.

Leonard surfaced at the 1976 Olympics and did not become a professional champion until 1979. He is a hugely talented fighter and if he chooses to hang around long enough, he could be a legitimate decade candidate at a later date. But for the period from 1971-1976, he was unknown. Scratch him from this list.

The same goes for Bruce Jenner. He won the decathlon at the 1976 Olympics. That is a gruelling test of a wide variety of track and field skills and a tribute to the man's abilities. But it is a one-shot event and hardly fits in as decade-long dominance.

OK, that's two down, eight to go.

Lloyd and Watson have had brilliant careers throughout the decade. But tennis (Borg) and golf (Nicklaus) have had other winners in this competition.

Pele brings an international flavor to the roster of candidates. But soccer remains a cut below other sports in America.

Now the list is down to managable proportions with five athletes remaining.

Orr and Simpson were giants of their sports, both brilliant performers. Orr revolutionized the game of hockey, changing the entire style of defensive play. Simpson was a running back of unmatched skills who set a single-season rushing record of 2,003 yards in 1973 and is second on the alltime list. But injuries interfered with the careers of both men.

Jockeys are a unique breed. Shoemaker's records are unparalleled in the craft, but his production depended in large measure on the horses he rode.

That leaves Rose and Abdul-Jabbar, both marvelous candidates with impeccable credentials. They have led two different teams in their respective sports to world championships and both are certain Hall of Famers. Never mind the decade. These two are among the best performers the world of sports has seen in any decade.

Pick one and leave the other? No way. We'll take them both, thank you, and be grateful they've passed our way.

Unseasonably cool weather slows cotton harvesting in the Plains

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Cotton harvesting is back in full swing in Central Texas and along the coast this week as clear weather returned, but unseasonally cool weather continues to slow cotton maturity in the Plains, says Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

About half the crop has been harvested in the Central Texas Blacklands, he said. Wet weather several weeks ago caused considerable loss in fiber quality of cotton along the coast, which already was short due to an extremely wet late spring. A little cotton also remains to be harvested in the Coastal Bend, and some fields will likely be plowed up due to poor yield prospects after a rain-delayed harvest season. Cotton prospects in the High Plains remain good despite its slow maturing, but an early frost could deal a severe blow, he said.

Some corn and sorghum harvesting continues in East Texas and is active in the High Plains.

Planting of small grains is increasing throughout the state as recent rains boosted soil moisture conditions, Pfannstiel said. But much of the Rolling Plains remains dry and farmers there are waiting on planting moisture.

Planting and transplanting of fall vegetables continues in the Rio Grande Valley and Winter Garden, and sweet potato harvesting remains active in East Texas.

Livestock and forage conditions are good to excellent in most areas of Texas, with the exception being the Rolling Plains and parts of Central and West Central Texas, he said.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions.

PANHANDLE: Cotton needs dry, warm weather to mature. Bollworms remain a problem. Sorghum harvesting has started, with early yields generally good. Corn harvesting is also under way. Wheat seeding is in full swing and ranges from 5 to 80 percent complete. Cattle have good grazing.

SOUTH PLAINS: Showers and cool weather continue to delay cotton maturity. A few early fields are being desiccated for harvest. Corn, sorghum and sunflower harvesting is active, with 25 to 35 percent of the corn in. Carrot harvesting has started while harvesting of onions and potatoes is about complete. Wheat seeding is 60 to 65 percent complete.

ROLLING PLAINS: Cotton prospects are mixed depending on moisture. Dryland cotton is expected to yield about one-half bale per acre in Hardeman County. Recent cool weather has delayed maturity. Some small grain seeding has started, but most farmers are waiting for rain to plant. Grazing is limited.

NORTH CENTRAL: Cotton harvesting is active, with generally good yields. Farmers are planting wheat and oats, and some will get another cutting of alfalfa and coastal bermudagrass for hay. Ranges are improving from recent moisture, and cattle are in good shape.

NORTHEAST: Corn and sorghum harvesting continues and cotton harvesting is starting; all crop yields are generally good. Sweet potatoes are still being dug, with average yields. A bumper pecan crop is anticipated. Cattle are in excellent shape, with market numbers soaring. Some farmers are waiting for rain to plant wheat.

WEST CENTRAL: Some cotton continues to open although recent cool weather has slowed maturity. Planting of wheat and oats is increasing. Most pastures and ranges look good although broomweed is heavy in some locations. Livestock are in excellent condition. A good pecan crop is in the making.

CENTRAL: Cotton harvesting is going full blast, with about half the crop in. The peanut harvest is also making rapid progress; some yields are good but pod rot and southern blight have caused considerable losses. Seeding of wheat and other small grains is active.

EAST: An excellent corn crop is being harvested while sorghum and cotton are only fair. Harvesting of sweet potatoes and turnips continues. The pecan crop looks good, with some varieties maturing. Planting of wheat and oats continues along with hay baling.

UPPER COAST: Cotton harvesting is active, with quality and yields down due to recent wet weather. The second rice crop continues to make good progress. Late peanuts are setting a good crop, and the pecan crop generally looks good although walnut caterpillars are heavy in some trees. Small grains are being planted for winter pastures. Livestock marketing is increasing.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Cotton harvesting is back in full swing following rain delays. Additional hay cuttings are also being made, and wheat and oats are being planted. Pecans are in the shuck-splitting stage and the crop looks good. Pastures and livestock are in good shape.

SOUTHWEST: Peanut and hay harvesting continues. Peanut yields and quality have been excellent and prices have been strong. Dryland guar is yielding 600 to 700 pounds per acre. Fall vegetable planting is active and pickling cucumbers are being harvested. A bumper pecan harvest is expected. Forage is excellent.

COASTAL BEND: Cutting of the second rice crop has started While some cotton harvesting continues. Some late cotton will be plowed up due to poor yield prospects. Some third cuttings of hay are being baled. Planting of wheat and oats will start when field conditions permit. Late soybeans look good.

SOUTH: Sugarcane and citrus crops continue to look good, with some early oranges about ready to harvest.

Books borrowed from childhood

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — On rainy days and lazy summer afternoons in Dixon, Ill., 12-year-old Ronald Reagan read "Frank Merriwell at Yale," the legends of King Arthur, Tarzan's jungle adventure, Zane Grey westerns and a favorite animal book called "Northern Trails."

That very boy, as both Howard Cosell and the late Bill Stern would put it, grew up to become the incarnation of George Gipp and the president of the United States, combining fantasy with reality from those boyhood dreams.

"I am a sucker for hero worship to this day," Reagan confessed in his autobiography. He listed the favorite books of his boyhood in a letter four years ago to librarian O.D. Baillio in Mobile, Ala., who had polled 100 famous people on "five books that influenced you."

Then at a recent White House reception for Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser, the president listened to a recitation of the ballads of Yukon poet Robert W. Service another boyhood favorite and revealed that at age 8 he could deliver "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" by heart.

On this stormy Connecticut afternoon, with the wood unchopped, the golf course deserted and the column as yet unwritten, I have been trying to think which five books made the most impression on me at age 12 and wondering whether lynching parties should be sworn in to deal with the authors after weighing the evidence of the intervening years.

In my day, they first let you go to Boy Scout camp when you were 12. I can remember a pine grove suffused in eerie moonlight and a tall, craggy faced man standing on a huge boulder in the leaping light of the campfire acting out "The Case of the Screaming Skull," a classic horror tale by Francis Marion Crawford.

He followed that up with "The Money's Paw," by W.W. Jacobs. The man was a born story-teller — a voice like John Gielgud's, eyes out of Bela Lugosi sockets and a way of using his hands against the glow of the fire so that menacing shadows danced across the rocks.

That night few dared leave the tent, even to go to the latrine, small animals stirring in the bushes became ogreish monsters and disembodied spirits, especially skulls at large, waiting to pounce. All the rest of that summer I devoured the tales of Poe, R.L. Stevenson, Algernon Blackwood, even Nathaniel Hawthorne who could spin a pretty creepy yarn when he wasn't overpious.

For one Christmas in later years I received a book I had asked for "With Lawrence in Arabia" by Lowell Tohmas.

Years, decades later, after I had been to Arabia myself and gotten seasick on a camel, I used to meet Lowell Thomas in person every Tuesday in New York at the Dutch Treat Club, a luncheon group to which we belonged. We chatted amiably about his or my latest travels.

When he died last month, there was an extra lump in my throat and an ache of ingratitude in my heart. I never got around to saying he was my boyhood idol. It would have embarrassed him, I suppose.

But how many people ever get to see live benign ghosts from the books of their boyhood?

Nancy's White House redecorating completed

WASHINGTON (AP) — From carpets to replacements for handmade plumbing fixtures, Nancy Reagan is finished redecorating the White House, and her press secretary says the $822,641 from tax-deductible donations was enough. She originally figured it would cost less than a quarter of that.

"The bills aren't in yet, but we've kept within bounds," the first lady's spokeswoman, Sheila Patton Tate, said Thursday.

When Mrs. Reagan launched the fund-raising campaign last spring, she said she hoped to raise $200,000 for the first major refurbishing since Jacqueline Kennedy oversaw a similar project 20 years ago. She ended up spending $209,508 alone on 220 place settings of new state china.

Mrs. Tate refused to give a breakdown on how the remaining funds were spent.

Although complete details on the redecorating will not be revealed until photographs are published in December by Architectural Digest, an interior design magazine, Mrs. Tate revealed the following tidbits:

—The presidential bedroom has been painted salmon and peach carpeting has been installed.

—The Reagans' private living area is pale yellow.

—The president's office is read, with red-and-white carpets.

No tricks to finding books at the library

By
ROSE VON HASSELL
Cataloguer

Does coming to the library sometimes confuse you? You come in looking for a book on football, and on the top left of the catalog card is "796.332". What does this mean, where do I find it?

Maybe I can help you. Believe it or not the numbers do make sense and can make it easier to find the book you need. Can you imagine if there were no system to the way books were put on the shelves? You wouldn't know where to start to look for a book.

The Howard County Library and most other libraries use the Dewey Decimal System. Each subject is given a certain number, and no matter what library you go to you'll find the books arranged with the same numbers. For instance, all books on sports are found in the 796's, books on cooking are in the 641's, and books on travel are found in the 910's.

The class numbers start at 000 and end at 999.

Class 000-999 is listed as Generalities, which include such topics as computers, encyclopedias, journalism, library and information sciences and bibliographies and catalogs.

If you want something on psychology, philosophy, ethics, occultism or logic you would look in Class 100-199.

Religion, books on the Bible and the Bible itself, denominations, history of Christian churches, other religions and mythology are classed in the 200-299's.

The Social Sciences, which include, statistics, political science, economics, law, public administration, education and folklore are found in the 300-399's.

Class 400-499 is Language, as an example, the English language is in the 420's, German language in the 430's, Romance languages in 440's, Italian in 450's, Spanish in 460's, etc.

If you want something on Science, look in the 500's-599's. Here we include mathematics, astronomy, physics, chemistry, sciences of the earth and other worlds, paleontology, biology, botanical, and zoological sciences.

Class 600-699 is titled "Technology-Applied Sciences" and includes medical sciience, engineering, agriculture, gardening, domestic arts and sciences (such as sewing, cooking, home furnishings) managerial services, manufactures, and buildings.

The Arts are classed in the 700's-799's. Here we have landscaping, architecture, sculpture, drawing, techniques of painting and paintings, graphic arts, photography, music and recreational and performing arts (movies, dance, theater).

The 800-899 class, which is Literature, follow that of the 400's, the only exception being 810 which is American Literature and 820 which is English Literature.

Class 900-999 is General Geography and History. We include travel, general biography, genealogy, history of the ancient world, Europe, Asia, Africa, North America, South America and general history of other areas not included in any of the other categories.

The fiction has no number, it is divided in General Fiction (F), Mysteries (M), Science Fiction (SF), and Westerns (W). We also have a separate Biography (B) section.

And what about that second thing under the 796.332, or the F- it looks like a letter followed by numbers? What is it? It is a coding of the author's name. Potter might be P771. So you use the top part to find the section and subject, and then look alphabetically for the author. Both parts are called "call number". If there are three parts to the call number, such as "G" (Genealogy) or "REF" (Reference) or "LP" (Large Print) or Oversized — that means the book is found in a special section.

If you still can't find what you want, please don't hesitate to ask one of our staff. We are always willing to help you in any way we can.

MATH INSTRUCTOR — Melva Griffin was recently named instructor of math and chemistry at Howard College. She comes to Big Spring from Carthage, where she taught high school math.

Melva Griffin named math instructor at HC

Melva E. Griffin has been named instructor for math and chemistry at Howard College, according to Dr. Bobby Wright, vice-president for HC.

Mrs. Griffin comes to Howard College from Carthage, where she was a high school math teacher.

"I really enjoy not having to contend with discipline problems here like in high school," explained Mrs. Griffin. "There is a freedom in teaching in college that makes it so much easier to relate to the students."

Mrs. Griffin earned a B.S. degree in Chemistry and also a Master of Science in Mathematics from Stephen F. Austin State University, Nacogdoches.

Mrs. Griffin and her husband, Bill, who was recently named the Dean of Students at Howard College, have two children.

Former mayor withdraws from governor's race

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Former El Paso Mayor Tom Westfall has withdrawn as Teaxas gubernatorial candidate, saying a decision by the Legislature took the wind out of his campaign.

Westfall said Friday his campaign was made ineffective by the Legislature's decision during the summer to postpone implementation of the Peveto statewide property reappraisal bill until after the 1982 election.

"We needed a pocketbook issue to run on," he said.

The Peveto bill was Westfall's campaign cornerstone because he expected a backlash of public sentiment when the reappraisals caused increases in some property taxes.

"We cannot raise enough money in a populist campaign without an issue and we don't have one," Westfall said.

The one-term mayor and former FBI agent began his campaign July 6 in Dell City and suspended it three weeks later when he learned of the Legislature's decision.

He had planned to visit all 254 counties in the state during his campaign in a motor home dubbed the "Govmobile."

Judge to move trial again

MARLIN, Texas (AP) — A state district judge has ordered another change of venue in the pending trial of three law enforcement officers indicted in the drownings of three black teen-agers because "violence is almost invited" by the pre-trial publicity.

State District Judge Thomas Bartlett said publicity has created an atmosphere of racial tension in Falls County.

The judge, who agreed to accept the case on a change of venue from Groesbeck in adjoining Limestone County two weeks ago, did not propose a new location for the trial in the order he signed and delivered to the Limestone County district attorney's office Friday.

"There have been statements in the news media by certain persons that have created an atmosphere in this county that is charged with racial tension to the point that violence is almost invited," Bartlett said in the order.

"The conditions thus created make it an excercise in futility to attempt to select a fair and impartial jury and there is no prospect that such conditions will change in the foreseeable future," he said.

Several Falls County officials — including the sheriff, district attorney, district clerk and peace justice — were interviewed by a Waco television station recently. Some said they did not think the officers could have a fair trial in Bartlett's court because of his alleged attitude toward blacks.

Bartlett denied in the television interview that he holds any racist views.

The youths' parents and the NAACP have sought a federal investigation into the matter.

GEOPHYSICISTS

Aramco will be interviewing in Midland/Odessa on Monday and Tuesday, September 28th and 29th.

Aramco needs outstanding people on the energy frontier. We're offering outstanding incentives to get them: up to 40% pay premium, 40 days' paid vacation every year, and a chance to work with the latest of seismic techniques with the world's largest oil-producing company.

Our geophysical department is expanding its Research, Interpretation and Data Processing groups with openings in both Croydon, England, and Dhahran, Saudi Arabia.

These groups will consolidate in Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, in 1982 at the new Exploration & Petroleum Engineering Center (EXPEC).

The EXPEC Complex will provide researchers and explorationists with the newest computer and support systems, personnel, facilities needed to tackle Aramco's difficult and challenging geophysical problems.

Processing Geophysicists

Processing Analysts. Requires 3 to 5 years' experience for work within a seismic processing team. You'll be responsible for parameter selection and quality control of results.

Senior Processing Geophysicists. 5 to 10 years' experience required. You'll lead a processing team, and be responsible for analysis of seismic problems and processing solutions.

Geophysical Processing Supervisors. You'll need over 10 years' experience, including responsible supervisory work in seismic processing. You'll be responsible for integrating/coordinating the work of several processing teams.

Interpretation Geophysicists

General requirements include a degree in geophysics, or an equivalent combination of related degrees and experience.

Candidates should have a strong technical and geological orientation, plus good knowledge of seismic data acquisition, and the basic principles and techniques of processing.

Seismic Interpreters. Requires 3 to 5 years' major oil company type experience, with a capability to assume responsibility for independent analyses.

Senior Seismic Interpreters. Need 5 to 8 years' responsible independent interpretation experience, utilizing all types of exploratory data. You should be proficient in applying the most recently developed interpretational and seismic data quality enhancement technology.

Senior Geophysicists—Interpretation Supervisors. Requires at least 8 years' experience in same areas as Senior Seismic Interpreters (above), but with supervisory experience. You should have demonstrated capability to supervise technical and imaginative geological/geophysical interpreters.

Senior Geophysical Specialists. We need experts in seismic velocity measurement and analyses; seismic-stratigraphic interpretation; or data base analysis and mapping technology and application.

Research and Development Geophysicists

We seek geophysicists, physicists, electrical engineers and computer scientists with proven competence in one or more of the following: elastic wave propagation, wave equation methods, signal and image processing, forward and inverse modeling and interactive graphics.

You'll work on development and implementation of an integrated system of seismic data acquisition, data processing and interpretation designed to solve the most difficult and complex geophysical problems. There is close cooperation of geological, geophysical and R&D functions, with early field testing of newly developed R&D technology.

Candidates should have an advanced degree in geophysics, physics, or related discipline, with at least 3 years' relevant work experience.

In addition, Aramco pays an expatriate premium of 40 percent on the first $30,000 of base salary and a 20 percent premium on the next $20,000. And there is an outstanding combination of benefits: long vacations, comfortable housing, abundant recreation and an excellent school system.

Big Spring becoming famous for violin makers

By TINA MILLER
Lifestyle Editor

In Big Spring, he's known as "old man Pettitt, the fiddle man," but across the nation he's known as one of the best violin makers in the country.

"I'm better known in Amarillo than here," says Denver Pettitt who has been making violins for more than 50 years. "My work doesn't come from here. It comes from other places." Displaying an array of newspaper articles from all over the country as well as Canada as proof of his fame, Pettitt said, "I'm not working much now ... My work is being taken over and carried on by my students."

Pettitt's students are those who attended an instrument making course at Howard College a few years ago. Of the dozen students enrolled, Pettitt estimated that eight of them were "good" and said several of them had received awards at international violin-making contests. "Big Spring is the Cremona of Texas," Pettitt said. Cremona, Italy, is famed for its violin makers, and Pettitt is disturbed by the fact that most local residents do not realize that Big Spring is becoming famous.

Pettitt played the violin before making his first instrument in high school. A master violin maker, Fredgrus Jonannes from Austria, taught Pettitt the art while Pettitt was in Plainview. Pettitt has been making violins ever since, although he was a construction supervisor and an employee of Texas Electric Service Company until his retirement.

Pettitt has lived in Big Spring since Feb. 2, 1945, although he "was all over the nation before that." He did not make fiddles and violins on a regular basis until coming to Big Spring and settling down after the war. At that time, he began to "fiddle with fiddles" and upon his retirement started "head over heels" in violin making.

"If I got $150 I was rich," said Pettitt of the first violins he sold. Today the prices of his finest handmade instruments start at more than $1,000. Of the $1,000, much is spent on the materials used to make the instrument. The back of the instrument is made of two pieces of wood costing $110, and the top is of two pieces costing $96. In addition, wood for the neck, as well as strings, and other supplies must be purchased. The back, sides and neck of the instrument are made of fine grained, flame maple. The top is aged, straight-grained white spruce. Although the raw wood is unimpressive at first glance, it becomes a thing of beauty in Pettitt's skillful hands.

According to Pettitt, violin making has changed little over a period of hundreds of years. "They're still virtually the same instrument," he said. "I wouldn't dare change anything." To make a violin, Pettitt begins with the sides of the instrument. The wood is placed in a mold where it stays "two or three days." The sides are exactly the same size and thickness of a British schilling, and Pettitt uses this coin to measure the wood accurately. The top and back of the instrument are then made, and the thickness of wood is calibrated with handmade tools. The only difference between a violin and a fiddle is the steel strings on the fiddle and the gut strings on the violin.

Since the entire instrument is handmade it is almost impossible for two to be exactly alike. Pettitt does carve special designs on the handle or back of the instrument, such as a yellow rose, prairie rose, or mockingbird. "I will make 'em special," he said, "but that's a gamble most people don't want to take."

Around the top and bottom of the instrument, Pettitt inlays a thin strip of wood. "The Japanese and Germans draw it on," he said. "Assembly line violins are not good playing violins." In all his years of violin-making, Pettitt says he has never had a dissatisfied customer, although they occasionally do bring the instrument to him for readjustment. "As the violin breaks in under playing conditions it shifts," he explained.

Pettitt estimates he has made "150 or better" violins during his lifetime. Each instrument contains a serial number in Pettitt's own code, his name, and when and where the instrument was made. Most of his work is purchased by professionals in the music industry, and business is good. Pettitt estimates he has sold four instruments in the last three months.

Although he played the violin regularly for many years and was a guest artist at the Dallas Fair in the early 1970s, Pettitt "plays very little now" due to a loss of feeling in his fingers. "Believe me, I cannot play," he said. "It insults a fine piece for me to try ... A professional violinst couldn't make a violin in a lifetime," Pettitt continued. "If they won't try to make 'em, I won't try to play 'em."

Although Pettitt is passing his work on to his students, he still receives letters from across the U.S. and Canada asking him to make a violin or a fiddle. Thumbing through a stack of letters asking for his skills, he tosses one aside, saying "That one's just from the bank telling me I'm broke."

His favorite letter, which he keeps separate from the others, came from a man in Slater, Mo. The man asked Pettitt to make him an instrument for less than $100, saying his "damn wife" gave his to her brother. Rather than tell the man that his prices were somewhat higher, Pettitt told him he didn't believe he had anything the man would be interested in, but that he would like to hear him play.

"Some people say it takes them a year or two years to make one (violin)," said Pettitt, but he has made as many as 10 in one year. Why such a difference? "They're just slow."

In addition to making fiddles and violins, Pettitt also repairs instruments. "I used to do worlds of all kinds of instrument repair," he said. Today, most of his repairs are on violins, fiddles and guitars.

Pettitt works alone and believes he has to stay private and individual because most of his customers want no one else to handle their instrument. "I've had a ball," he said. "I've lived a long time and enjoyed every minute of it."

GUITARS, VIOLINS AND FIDDLES — Denver Pettitt has been making and selling violins and fiddles for more than 50 years. He also makes guitars, although he has never advertised the fact because he prefers to make fiddles and violins. When not making new instruments, Pettitt is busy repairing or restoring older instruments.

Dick Tracy celebrates 50th anniversary

America's most celebrated detective turns 50 this fall. Since Oct. 4, 1931, this detective has endured much in his fight to preserve law and order — he's been blinded, beaten, and buried alive, and justice has always prevailed.

Author Max Collins, who has been writing Dick Tracy since creator Chester Gould retired in 1977, has cooked up quite a surprise party for the veteran crime fighter. Tracy receives a death threat from an unidentified "old friend," leading the detective to track down all his old foes who are alive and out of jail.

In his search for the would-be assailant, Tracy runs across many of the strip's most famous villains, including the obese jewel thief Pear-shape, Flattop's brother Blowtop, Coffyhead, Wormy, Measles, and the Mole.

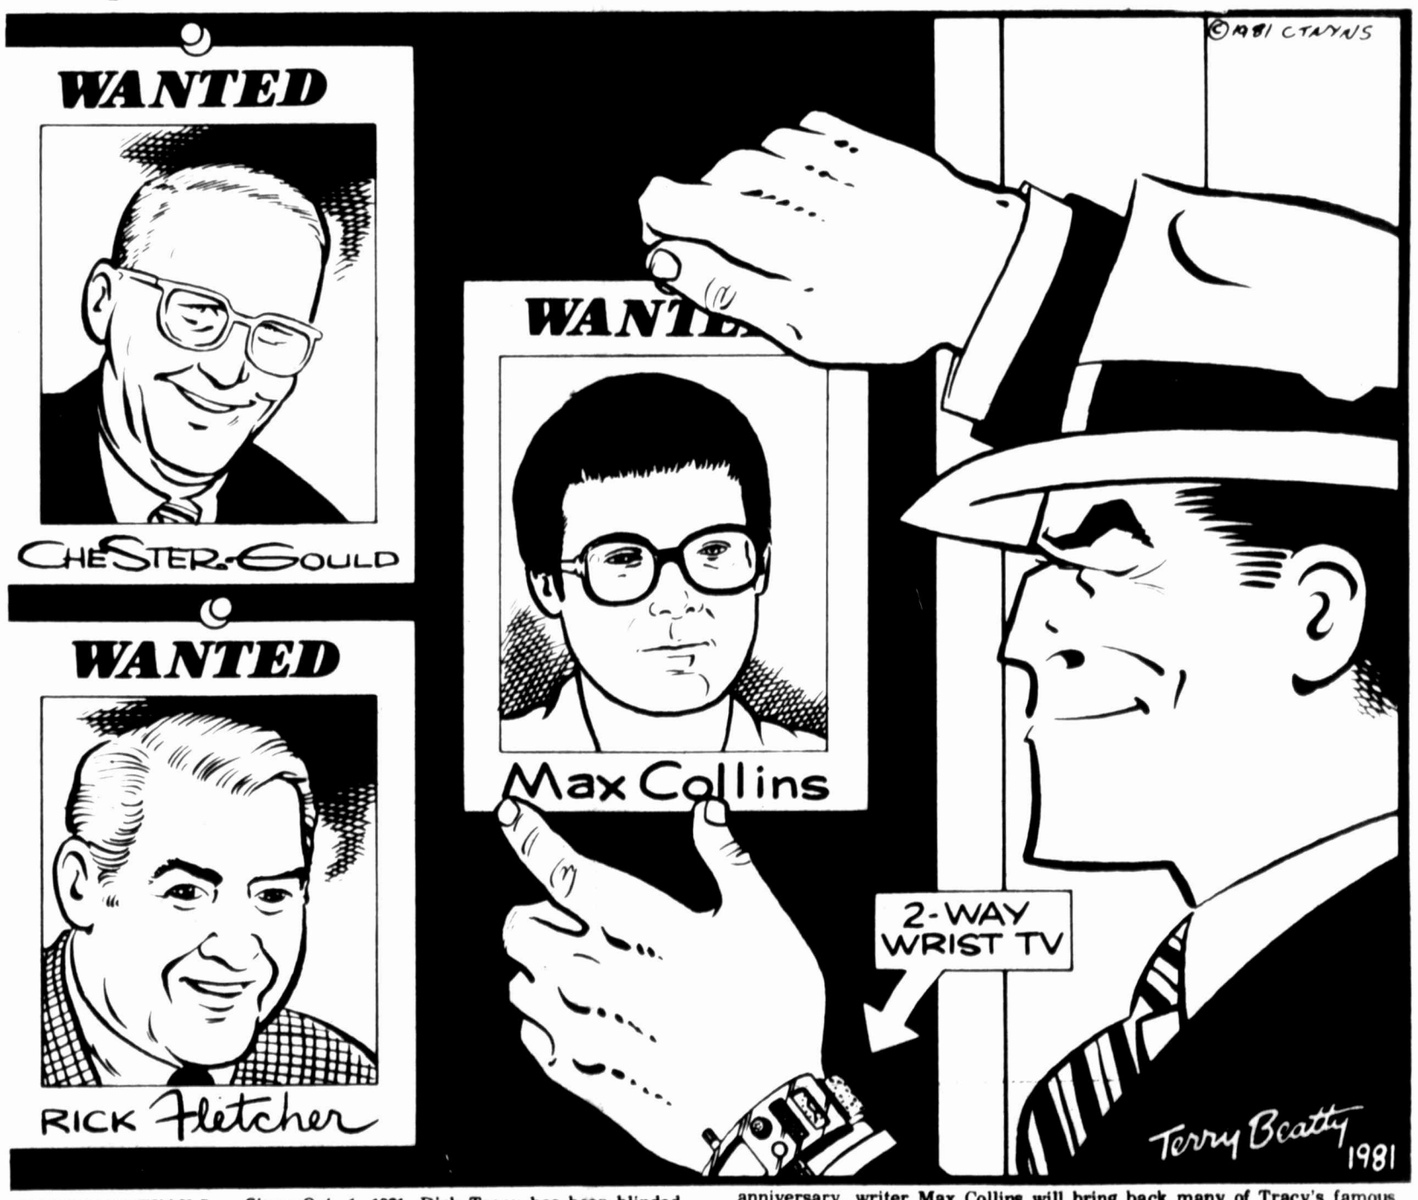

Collins does not merely throw in characters at random. A lifelong Tracy fan, the 33 year-old writer from Muscatine, Iowa has collected some 47 out of the 50 years worth of Dick Tracy comic strips, and exhaustive research went into the special anniversary story. His historical knowledge has led to the revival of several long-forgotten characters, including ham actor Vitamin Flintheart, who has not appeared in the strip since 1950.

Although he frequently consults with Gould, Collins calls the shots. Amidst complaints of violence in contemporary media, he continues the tough detective tradition that made Tracy famous. "The violence in Dick Tracy has always been within the context of telling a story about right triumphing over wrong, good over evil," Collins points out.

But Dick Tracy hasn't last 50 years just because it supports truth, justice, and the American Way. The strip is also a lot of fun. "What I try to do in Dick Tracy is write a story that can be read by kids and read by their parents as well," explains Collins.

While the young people may be attracted to the action and excitement, the strip contains many tongue-in-cheek references that may go unnoticed by the younger readers. Characters like Sue Real, the villainous art dealer with the Salvador Dali mustache, are designed to entertain adult readers.

How is it that a young man from a small town in Iowa came to inherit the legacy of the nation's most famous crime stopper? Collins was drawing characters from the strip practically before he could write a coherent sentence. His mother sent one of his renderings of Tracy to Chester Gould along with a letter explaining how much little Max loved the strip. On his eighth birthday, Collins received an autographed drawing of Dick Tracy and a letter from Gould telling Max he drew Tracy better than anyone else his age. "That letter really encouraged me," recalls Collins. "It was probably the single event in my life that told me I could make my living in the arts."

JUSTICE PREVAILS — Since Oct. 1, 1931, Dick Tracy has been blinded beaten and buried alive by his foes. In celebration of the comic strip's 50th anniversary, writer Max Collins will bring back many of Tracy's famous enemies as he searches for the one who has threatened his life.

At age 12, Collins discovered detective novels and immersed himself in the works of Dashiell Hammett, Raymond Chandler, and Mickey Spillane. During his high school and early college years, Collins wrote six full-length detective novels. "I would spend each summer writing a book," Collins reminisces, "and spend the school year trying to market it." But none of them sold. "I still have them, and they are very strange books," he chuckles, "with sex scenes written by a kid who hadn't even come close."

During his senior year in college, he sold his first novel, "Bait Money," the first in a series about a semi-retired thief named Nolan. Collins went on to write four more Nolan books and four books about a professional killer named Quarry, while picking up a Master of Fine Arts degree from the University of Iowa and a degree in creative writing from the Writers' Workshop.

By the time Chester Gould decided to retire in 1977, Max Collins had developed a solid reputation in his field. Several people recommended him to Don Michel of the Chicago Tribune — New York News Syndicate which distributes the strip to some 500 newspapers. Michel called Collins and asked him if he would be interested in writing Dick Tracy. Collins jumped at the opportunity, and his first Tracy strip — a story introducing Angeltop, Flattop's daughter — saw print Dec. 26, 1977.

Collins' scripts are sent out to Illinois artist Rick Fletcher, who had been Gould's assistant since 1961. An award winning artist, Fletcher's talents won him the art spot upon Gould's retirement.

"It is ironic that I was chosen to do Tracy," muses Collins, "because I have always been fascinated with the bad guy with heroic qualities." The main characters in Collins' books, while often functioning as detectives to solve crimes, do not work in tandem with our men in blue. They are creatures of the underworld — thieves and killers. "There are almost no police in my novels," Collins admits.

The Nolan series is once again in print from Pinnacle Books, the most recent release being Fly Paper, in which Nolan finds himself caught up in a skyjacking. Collins describes Nolan as "a tough guy who is really soft-hearted. But if you told him that, he'd break your legs. He is definitely the kind of guy Tracy would throw in the slammer."

Nolan is a man with a past that is continuously catching up with him. In one story he is recognized by the president of a bank he once robbed. The executive blackmails Nolan into robbing the bank a second time to cover up his own embezzling.

In addition to the Nolan series and Dick Tracy, Collins also writes two comic strips for national magazines, both in collaboration with artist Terry Beatty: Mike Mist Minute Mysteries and Ms. Tree. He has recently completed a thriller about the dumping of hazardous waste, and he has started work on a historical detective novel set in depression-era Chicago.

In a more scholarly vein, Collins has written a biographical-critical assessment of Mickey Spillane's career for the "Dictionary of Literary Biography."

Dick Tracy was born 17 years before Max Collins, and his writer works hard at keeping Tracy contemporary. "Tracy has had a hard life," Collins admits, "but he always perserveres. In this day and age, we need him more than ever." — Rick Oliver and Mike Gold.

LISTENING TO MUSIC, READING BOOKS OR SUPPING WITH FRIENDS ... Easily accessible recreation at home provides a healthy escape from hectic, high-pressure times. Here, a nostalgic oak clawfoot table is arranged for casual dining, and low built-in shelves provide storage for books and collectibles. And to help soften present-day anxieties with memories of the past, primitive American pottery and an old-fashioned, Victorian-style ceiling lamp accent the stress-free decor.

Best weapon against stress is the home

Millions of women now have it. Executives have always had it. Today, even kids are getting it. And worrying about it just makes it worse.

This all-too-common affliction is stress, a painful symptom of these high-pressure times.

The causes are as diverse as juggling job and household responsibilities, worrying about the world situation or battling heavy traffic. But, taken as a whole, being too uptight is becoming something of an epidiemic.

Exercise, meditation, tranquilizers, a change of diet or a visit to the corporate stress counselor are some of the contemporary combatants. The age-old antidote is to take a vacation.

But a more important change of scenery — namely, altering a few things around the house — is a day-in, day-out remedy that can help relieve stress over the long haul.

"If the home functions as a soothing haven and enriching energizer, chances are it's also effective in helping to reduce high blood pressure," Mary Jane Johnson, design consultant for Riverside Furniture Corporation, said. "If it's none of these things, your home could be aiding and abetting the enemy, stress."

Adding an easy chair is an acknowledged anti-stress decorating tactic. Calming colors are also well-known and effective relaxers. Blue and green, for instance, are known to decrease muscular tensions and lower blood pressure.

But, in addition to pure comfort and mellow colors, there are many at-home influences that have a tension-easing effect. Here are a few of Ms. Johnson's soothing suggestions:

A house with a past helps put everything in perspective. Mementos of childhood, family treasures, antique accessories and historic furniture styles help the stress-ridden person put problems into the proper context.

Decorating with early American primitives, hand-me-down quilts and afghans and nostalgic oak furniture results in a comforting home that relaxes both mind and body with a rememberance of things past.

All work and no play makes Jack prey to heart disease, ulcers, arthritis and high blood pressure. And a home that fosters family enjoyment — whether it's in the form of an elaborate recreation room or a convertible game table, a full-fledged video center or a simple stereo — is a constant reminder that there's more to life than the grindstone.

An organized home fights tension with tidiness. An orderly house is a haven from the confusion, clutter and complexities of modern life. Plenty of storage space, a strict throw-away policy, simple decorating and family task-sharing are some secrets of a stress-free household.

One answer to the contemporary clutter crisis is a nostalgic oak roll-top desk that keeps personal paperwork and record-keeping under control.

Experience is best teacher

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.
Copley News Service

Dr. Wallace: The topics covered in your column are pertinent and timely, your answers are forthright and make for enjoyable reading. The concern you show for young people is very important, and this is why I'm writing.

I couldn't let the letter from Carla of San Antonio pass without responding. I also made a boy the "sun in my universe." He was handsome, sensitive and my first love. When he suddenly turned away from me, I was shattered. Few experiences have equaled the pain I experienced from his rejection. I truly believed that he was the sole person in my world who genuinely loved me. I also contemplated suicide.

When I saw him with his new girlfriend, I put up a brave front, but inside I was suffocating from pain. I wish you would tell Carla that she actually will never "get over" this boy, but that time creates a special place in our hearts for the memories of those we love the most.

When we truly love another, we want only happiness for them — even if it means parting.

This is one of life's biggest lessons about all the friendships we will form in our lives, and it's good to learn it early.

At the time, I did all the things you suggested. I continued to be active in school, church and community activities. When I was busy, I didn't have quite as much time to spend focusing on my pain. Then I discovered that the pain I carried inside didn't need to keep me from having other good times. Over the years, I formed other close friendships that I wouldn't have if I'd been able to "hang onto" my first love.

Now, I have a rich store of memories, a husband who loves me like a princess, and every good thing life can offer. Most importantly, I learned to value myself in the process.

Life serves up pain at many junctions, but how we learn to deal with it can make or break our futures. Just saying something kind to everyone I dealt with each day, no matter how I felt inside, has helped me to live a happier life. — Susan, Santa Rosa, Calif.

Susan: Thanks for sharing. Your letter confirms that "experience is the best teacher."

Dr. Wallace: My divorced sister was killed in an automobile accident four years ago and she left two daughters who then went to live with their father.

Now my mom gets the girls every other weekend and for a week in the summer. When they visit for the weekends, I have to watch them and it means all my social activities go down the drain.

It's not that I don't love these girls, because I do. Am I wrong for feeling this way? — Barb, York, Pa.

Barb: I understand how you feel. But surely your mom and you can work out some arrangement where the supervision of the girls could be shared.

Having the children in your home should be a joyous, loving experience for the entire family. Do your best to see that it is.

Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Inspect chimney and fireplace for maximum efficiency and safety

McLEAN, VA. — Winter is around the corner and more and more homeowners will be using their fireplaces to conserve energy and keep heating bills at a tolerable level.

According to the Brick Institute of America (BIA), fireplaces should be carefully inspected now and during the wood-burning season to ensure maximum efficiency and safety. BIA suggests these tips:

Keep your fireplace and chimney clean. Any build-up from the last season should be removed because the soot becomes similar to coal and could start a fire in your chimney.

Look up in the chimney. If you see blockage, get brushes and clean it from top to bottom. If there is extreme blockage, it is best to call a chimney sweep. Chimneys should be cleaned after every three or four cords of wood.

Avoid burning pressed logs as they cause a more severe build-up of soot. They possess a chemical used in binding which facilitates this build-up. In addition, they are often made from green sawdust which causes them to burn at very high temperatures — more chance of a fire that way.

Be sure your damper operates well and, above all, make certain it is opened before starting the fire.

See that the brick lining your chimney is in good condition and that there is no mortar missing. It is a good idea to have a screen over the top of the chimney to prevent cinders from blowing out of the chimney and starting a fire in the surrounding shrubbery.

Be sure to have a screen situated on a brick hearth and covering the opening of the fireplace.

If you are building a fireplace yourself, be sure to use brick. According to a chimney sweep company in Washington, D.C., "Brick is best not only because it is sturdy but because it holds moisture more which is a good fire preventative."

Try your hand at ground oat bread

Trying your hand at ground-oat bread?

Ground-oat flour is lower in gluten than wheat flour, and it produces a crumbly, low-rise loaf of bread, explains Rose Tindall Postel, a foods and nutrition specialist.

For the best results in making ground-oat bread, use one-third oat flour and two-thirds all-purpose flour, she says.

Dr. Postel is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Beat inflation by properly managing family resources

By JANET ROGERS
County Extension Agent

Feel poorer in spite of earning the highest income of your life?

You're not alone — inflation has cut most families' buying power. And, while inflation has pushed incomes up to higher levels, those wage-hike dollars are taxed at a higher rate than pre-wage-hike dollars.

One solution to this problem is controlling family inflation by carefully managing family resources. Managing family resources takes three major steps: evaluate family level of living and make necessary changes, extend the family's material resources and increase resources.

Evaluate your level of living — as a family. You may want to change your lifestyle by learning to live with fewer goods and services.

Most families have closets and attics full of items that are never used — or put away for that someday that never comes. Sell these items, give them away or discover new uses for them, lessening the desire to constantly purchase new items.

Some families are trying to simplify their lives by learning new ways of "making do" — to keep from doing without.

To simplify and live with fewer material goods does not necessarily mean lowering the quality of life — often less is more.

For example, learn to use the things you already own instead of wanting to buy new things. Also, look to friends and family for entertainment by organizing round-robin dinner parties.

In addition, conserve as much energy as possible to make a positive impact on your budget.

Extend, or expand, the family's material resources by increasing your consumer skills for maintaining, using, repairing, storing, conserving and recycling. Learn simple repair skills from books and pamphlets to lessen your dependence on "experts."

Make a habit of reading appliance instruction booklets to learn how you can extend the life of your appliances by caring for them properly.

Consider life expectancy of a product as well as the price before buying. When buying, learn to be a wise consumer, recognizing quality in goods and services. Shop sales, too, and be sure items meet a real need rather than an imaginary one.

Share a ride with friends or coworkers. Carpool to work, and go shopping with a neighbor.

Increase family resources by doing many tasks yourself — such as sewing or gardening. Creative human production, such as the above skills, actually will increase your family's spending power by freeing money formerly spent for clothing or food.

All family members can share in many of the skills, particularly sewing and gardening.

Some families increase their resources by bartering or exchanging items, time, skills and energy with others, for example, you might till your neighbor's garden in exchange for homegrown vegetables or babysitting services.

Or you can swap items seldom used or not needed with friends or neighbors — especially children's and maternity clothes.

New reflective window blind can cut energy consumption by 75%

COLLEGE STATION — A new window blind may save up to 75 percent of the energy required to heat a home during an average heating season, Jane Berry, a housing and home furnishings specialist, reports.

Development of a Reflective Insulating Blind (RIB) by researchers at Oak Ridge National Laboratory has the potential for converting direct sunlight into a plentiful and practical source of home heat, she adds.

Dr. Berry is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Researchers, working with support from the Department of Energy, say they believe the RIB could save up to 75 percent of the energy required during an average heating season.

The unit, mounted on the inside of a south-facing window just behind the window glass — and operating much like the traditional venetian blind serves as a solar reflector and insulator, Dr. Berry says.

In other words, it brings heat into the home by acting as a solar reflector inward, and it stores that heat inside the home by acting as an insulator, the specialist explains.

Of the projected maximum savings, about two-thirds result from the space-heating effect of incoming sunlight. The other one-third is from reduced nighttime heat losses through large south-facing windows — the insulating part of the blind's job.

A RIB unit has 3½-inch slats which completely cover the window area.

On winter days, sunlight strikes the reflective surface of the curved slats, they divert it to the ceiling, and energy from the warmed ceiling surface radiates downward to heat the room.

In addition to the heating gain, ceiling illumination also reduces the need for artificial lighting, and RIB provides a less-obstructed outside visibility than conventional venetian blinds.

Curvature of RIB slats allows almost day-long solar-heat collection without frequent changes in their slant, too.

During winter nights, the slats in closed position form an insulating shutter which greatly decreases heat loss through the windows, Dr. Berry continues.

In the summertime, RIB slats will position to reflect sunlight to the outside — resulting in a cooler room and reduced air-conditioning loads.

Until recently, the value of "passive solar residential design" — particularly large south-facing windows to capture and make use of the sun's energy — had not been put to use because other forms of energy have been easy-to-get and low-cost, Dr. Berry explains.

Also, entry of sunlight through south-facing windows resulted in glare, fading and deterioration of textile furnishings and wood finishes — along with overheating. Other problems were nighttime heat losses and increased cooling loads for air-conditioning during summer months.

PTA reveals goal

"We're almost halfway there," said Shelane Roberts, city PTA membership coordinator of the goal PTA has set of 2,080 members in Big Spring.

This goal represents one PTA member for every student in the five Big Spring elementaries which have PTAs. Currently, 1,015 Big Springers have joined PTAs.

PTA is aiming to top last year's Big Spring membership of 2,110 PTA members, according to Mrs. Roberts.

Membership figures at the individual schools currently stand at: Kentwood, 356 PTA members out of 354 enrollment; Marcy, 275 PTA members out of 604 enrollment; Moss, 167 PTA members out of 283 enrollment; Washington, 217 PTA members out of 432 enrollment.

Getting a late start on PTA membership is College Heights, which has been missing several key officers.

New membership chairman for College Heights is Debbie Rogers, who reports that the school's PTA membership campaign will be underway this week. She urges parents and friends of College Heights to send $1.50 to school for each PTA membership.

"Even if you can't support PTA with your time, your financial support of PTA through membership fees helps PTA provide special activities for children and purchase equipment and learning materials for the schools," said Mrs. Roberts.

PTA memberships can be sent to school with students or dropped by the following school offices: College Heights, $1.50; Kentwood, $1.75; March, $1.75; Moss, $1.50; and Washington, $1.50.

Honorary membership chairman encourages support of PTA

"A child expects his parents to be actively involved in his school activities," said Mrs. Clyde Angel, honorary chairman of the city-wide membership campaign of the Parent-Teacher Association.

Having taught school for 10 years herself, Mrs. Angel said, "Through the PTA, I came to understand a child better when I had personal contact with his parents."

"Our city is enriched by working together for the growth of PTAs in all our schools," said the veteran teacher and wife of Big Spring Mayor Clyde Angel. "When we support the PTA we have a better understanding of the problems of parents, teachers and students."

"I encourage parents, teachers and all friends of our Big Spring schools to join the Parent-Teacher Association," Mrs. Angel said.

Seven of the 10 years Mrs. Angel taught school were in Big Spring at College Heights Elementary. Her eyes twinkled as she remembered the friendly competition among classes to turn out highest room count for monthly PTA meetings.

Teaching has been a lifelong vocation of Mrs. Angel. A Sunday School teacher for 48 years, she now teaches the Alathean Class at First Baptist Church.

Her days at College Heights were before the school cafeteria was added. A special memory of Mrs. Angel's is the time PTA stalwarts Mrs. G.T. Hall and Mrs. W.P. Edwards appeared with a luncheon the PTA had assembled for the faculty. The luncheon arrived in silver serving pieces, quite a change from the are teachers usually brought in paper sacks.

Other PTA supporters from the mid 40's were Mrs. Bill Early, Mrs. J.E. Brigham, Mrs. H.G. Keaton, Mrs. J.L. Dibrell, Mrs. J.Y. Cloud and Mrs. W.R. Dawes.

PTA projects from that era included selling war bonds and stamps, conducting a free health clinic for children and even running a summer school during one vacation, according to Mrs. Florence Hall, College Heights PTA president in 1945.

Sew and Chatter Club completes quilt

The Sew and Chatter Club met Wednesday with 12 members present. Norma Murdock was hostess. Members completed a quilt and discussed preparations for the third one in this series.

Because of the absence of Louise Porter, president, no business was conducted.

Ruby Billings' birthday was celebrated with a money corsage and a song, and pictures were taken for the scrapbook.

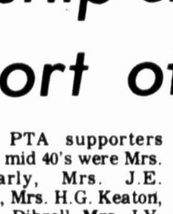

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Murdock and Charlsie Robinson. The next meeting will be in the home of Della Nobles, 405 Washington.

Dear Abby

Man's Crowded Quarters Cramp Girlfriend's Style

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 21-year-old single female in love with a 26-year-old male (I'll call Freddy) whom I hope to marry one day. Freddy and I have been dating for a year and have talked about marriage, but there is nothing definite yet.

The problem is Freddy's roommate, Ralph. Ralph's girlfriend, Debbie, moved in with him and Freddy. I'm not exactly jealous, but I hate the idea of the three of them living together in that little apartment. It's only big enough for two, and it must be very crowded and uncomfortable. Freddy says Debbie is only staying there until she and Ralph get married, but no date has been set yet, and they don't seem in any hurry.

Abby, if Ralph and Debbie want to live together don't you think they should get their own place? All my friends think it's the pits, and they keep asking my how I can let it go on. I'm really upset and don't know what to do. Is there some way I can get Debbie out of there? Or should Freddy move out? Please advise.

IN THE MIDDLE IN MIDLAND

DEAR IN: As I see it, you are not in the middle. You are more appropriately on the outside — Freddy is in the middle. If he's crowded and uncomfortable, he should move out. The decision is his, not yours.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I am getting married soon and have a problem with the seating of a certain guest. She is my father's girlfriend. After my mother died, she moved in with my father.

Where should she be seated at the wedding dinner? Should she sit next to my father at the head table? Or should we put her with the rest of the guests? Perhaps I should mention that she isn't very well-liked by family members.

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: The fewer hurt feelings, the better. Ask your father where he wants his live-in lady to be seated, and abide by his wishes.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: Concerning inappropriate questions asked of a widow at the funeral of her husband, I think mine tops them all:

At the funeral of my 67-year-old father, my poor grieving mother was approached by an officer of the burial society to which my parents belonged, and instead of offering her solace, he asked, "Would you please give me a deposit on the grave next to your husband so I can reserve it for you?"

VIVIAN OF BAYSIDE HILLS, N.Y.

DEAR VIVIAN: Your story takes the prize. In spades.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (35 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 12000 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.

SELF TAUGHT LAWYER — At 93, Ruth I. Moore of Akron, Ohio, may be the oldest practicing female attorney in the United States. Miss Moore, who does not have a formal law school education, started her career in 1910 as a stenographer with a law firm. She studied at the law office under the apprentice system because there was then no law school in the Akron area and passed the state bar exam in 1925. Miss Moore, an expert on probate and tax law, comes to the office at least three times a week to oversee trusts and funds left in her charge.

Artificial light may be hazardous to health

Progress aside, scientists are beginning to think that newer isn't necessarily better. Lowell Ponte, writing in a recent Reader's Digest, reveals that artificial light can upset a host of delicate natural balances: that it can affect the ability of the body to absorb calcium, that it can heighten a person's susceptability to skin cancer and even produce the biological changes similar to those caused by physical stress.

"Unnatural light may already have altered the lives of millions of women throughout North America and Western Europe," Ponte observes. "Girls in these lands are now reaching sexual maturity months or years younger than their grandmothers did."

Richard J. Wurtman, director of the neuroendocrine laboratory at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, says, "Little has been done to protect citizens against potentially harmful or biologically inadequate light. Both government and industry have been satisfied to allow people to serve as the unwitting subjects in a long-term experiment on the effects of artificial-lighting environments on human health."

And yet proper use of light can enhance health, prevent disease and even heal, Ponte writes. "Herpes can be treated with low-intensity white flourescent light. Blue light can help cure one kind of jaundice in premature babies. And psoriasis can be remedied by giving a patient a drug that increases his sensitivity to light and then exposing the skin to special ultraviolt radiation."

Ponte suggests that individuals and society should take certain protective steps:

The public should be informed of the potential hazards of artificial light. Since the Food and Drug Administration has determined that radiation from flourescent lamps can increase the risk of skin cancer in sensitive individuals, the government could require warning labels on these lamps and recommend measures to reduce the hazard.

Poor light cannot damage child's eyes

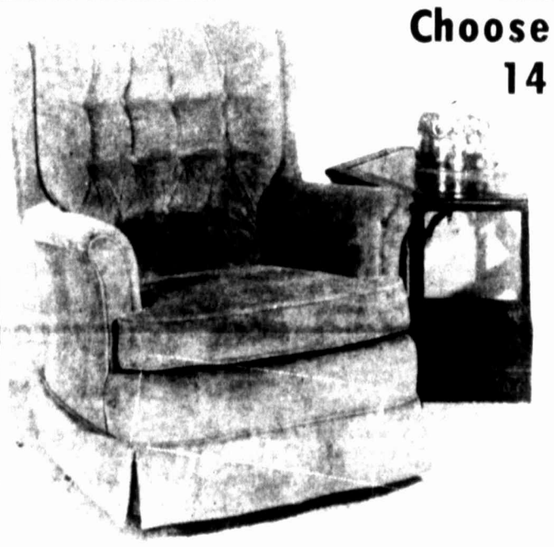

Regardless of what you may have heard, or believe, reading in poor light cannot damage your child's eyes either temporarily or permanently. So says a recent Family Circle magazine report on child care.

However, notes the magazine report, eyes may become tired through fatigue resulting from the additional strain put on the brain as it tries to interpret what the eyes are seeing.

FOR TWO WEEK PERIOD BEGINNING SEPTEMBER 15, 1981

The All Savers Certificate of Deposit (ASC) will be available October 1, with a lifetime maximum of $1,000 interest exempt from income tax per person ($2,000 for joint return). These can be purchased from 10-1-81 to 12-31-82 and must have a 1 year maturity. The interest rate is 70% of the yield on the 1 year treasury bill which is determined by an auction every 4th Thursday. The auction on September 3 determined the ASC rate of 12.61% for 10-1 and 10-2. The Auction on 10-1 will determine the rate effective 10-5, so with your permission, we will wait until 10-2 to decide whether to date your C.D. 10-2 or 10-5. If you deposit $7,930.21 at 12.61%, your return is $1,000. Our minimum C.D. is $500. If the taxable income on your 1980 form 1040, line 34, was above $12,000 (individual) or $20,200 (joint), you may benefit by this new investment. At least 75% of these funds will be used to fund real estate loans. And, as our "Thank You" for your deposit, we have a $10.00 negotiable gift certificate (spends like cash) waiting for you on your first purchase of an ASC ($20.00 if you purchase the maximum allowed).

Traditional Dancing Order At Wedding Reception

Dancing at a wedding reception follows a traditional procedure many people have asked us about. Everyone knows the bride and groom dance together first. Here at The Accent Shoppe, we say next the bride's father dances with her while the groom asks the bride's mother. Then the bride dances the third dance with her father-in-law, as the groom dances with his mother — and since the guests are usually tapping their feet by now, many people stop the formality right here. May we cut in?
