TEXAS FLOOD LEAVES DEATH AND DEVASTATION

Yeggs Take Nearly $1,000,000 Of Hoarded Savings In Bold Chicago Robbery

BANDITS HOLD 10 CAPTIVE AS VAULTS CUT

Robbers Loot Safety Boxes Of Savings of Entire Neighborhood

JOB TOOK 14 HOURS

Gang Cuts Way Through To Company Vaults From Upstairs Flat

CHICAGO, Sept. 4. (UP)—Seven bandits held 10 persons captive for 14 hours today while they drilled through 15 inches of steel plate into the safe deposit vaults of Koch & Co., took between $250,000 and $1,000,000 and escaped after forcing Mrs. Robert Kruse to give them a final drink of coffee.

Their loot consisted of the hoarded savings of an entire neighborhood, where repeated bank failures caused residents to entrust their cash to the Koch vaults.

Captured Residents

The robbers took possession of the second and third floor flats over the vaults at 2 p. m. yesterday, captured the residents therein as they came home, and held them until they had looted the last box at 4 a. m. today.

A. H. Brautigan, vice president of the deposit firm who estimated value of the loot, said the exact amount could not be determined until the box owners appeared with lists of their contents.

Robert Kruse and George Laschetke stopped to chat on the hallway landing yesterday afternoon when two of the bandits forced them at gun point into Laschetke's third floor apartment. The five other bandits hauled in an electric drill and other equipment, drew on rubber gloves, and started boring through the floor of Kruse's second story apartment.

Used Torches

They cut a three-foot square in the ceiling, bored through a six-inch armor plate with acetylene torches, let themselves in the safe deposit room via ropes and then attacked the nine-inch steel plate vault. They worked until nearly 4 a. m. while their companions upstairs captured varous members of the families as they appeared from work, from the movies and from shopping expeditions. Finally there were 10 wives, husbands, sons, daughters and mother-in-laws herded on the third floor.

The guards were polite, chatted most of the night, played with the baby, and were profuse in their thanks when Mrs. Kruse prepared a lunch. At 4 a. m. the robbers below announced they had ransacked

Von Gronau Completes Hop Across Pacific

A crowd of 10,000 greeted them. They took off from Nemuro last night, Captain Von Gronau said.

"There was plenty of fog over the north Pacific. However, good radio reports make commercial flying possible anywhere over the Pacific. The flight was uneventful.

"We shall start the homeward stage by way of India as soon as our radiator has been made larger."

Gladys O'Donnell Wins Women's Air Classic At Races

CLEVELAND, Sept. 4. (AP)—Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell, Long Beach, Calif., won the woman's high speed free-for-all classic of the national air races today after a driving rain swept the course and officials had declared the race ended upon completion of four of the eight laps.

Mrs. Mae Haizlip, Ferguson, Mo., was in second place at the time, the same position she has finished in every previous running of the classic. The only other two in the field, Miss Florence Klingensmith, Minneapolis, and Mrs. Betty Lund, Troy, Ohio, were third and fourth.

Mrs. O'Donnell averaged 185.476 miles an hour as compared with last year's record of 187.574 miles an hour. She won $2,250 and a plaque as her prize.

Mrs. Haizlip's average was 183.126 miles an hour, winning her $1,250. Miss Klingensmith won $750 and Mrs. Lund $500.

Neil R. McCray, Fairview, Pa., won the cup place honoring the memory of the late Edward P. Stinson, pioneer flier, by completing six laps of a three and a half mile course in 16 minutes and eight seconds.

Funds as Supplement To Home Loan Sought

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. (US)—A national organization to seek out lenders for individual home mortgage loans, supplementing the work of the home loan banks, was being projected today by the Hoover business boosting committee.

Setting up of regional boards was contemplated, to give a hearing to home owners unable to finance their properties and attempt to place their loans for them.

Special attention will be given to borrowers needing larger loans, in proportion to value, than home loan banks will be permitted to make. Second mortages also will be considered.

ROUGH WORK

CHICAGO, Sept. 4. (UP)—John B. Frederich, a college student, unfortunately didn't have any money today when two robbers accosted him. That made them so angry they cut off the left leg of his trousers and left him to walk home in half-dishabille.

STERLINGITES KEEP UP FIGHT

Additional Votes for Ma Fail to Worry Foes

AUSTIN, Sept. 4. (AP)—Friends of Gov. R. S. Sterling still were not disheartened after a semi-official canvass of the votes in the run-off gubernatorial primary showed the governor to be even farther behind Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson in the race for nomination than the unofficial compilation of last week revealed.

The governor had assembled in his office much information that came voluntarily to him of alleged irregularities in the primary voting. With his consent his friends were prepared to contend for the nomination, claiming Governor Sterling had received a majority of the lawful ballots counted.

Mrs. Ferguson and her husband, James E. Ferguson, both former governors, were pleased at the gain given Mrs. Ferguson by a tabulation of the returns as canvassed Saturday by Democratic county executive committees and reported to the Texas election bureau, maintained by newspapers for the purpose of tabulating the vote.

None of the principals in the contest would make any new statements based on latest developments.

Legislators, assembled here in special session to pass tax relief laws, exhibited keen interest in the new totals, but kept their silence as far as getting their remarks in the newspapers.

It was expected they would do much talking during the week when resolutions, pending in each branch of the legislature, providing for legislative investigations of claimed unlawful practices during the voting, come to the respective floors for consideration.

Residents of Miami Prepare for Hurricane

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 4. (UP)—Beautiful weather today gave no indication that another tropical disturbance was approaching Miami but citizens, mindful of previous experiences, spent Sunday in boarding up windows as R. W. Gray, weather observer, told them to expect high winds late Monday or early Tuesday.

The center of the storm, attended by shifting gales, is reported to be of hurricane force.

Mr. Spike O'Donnell Leaves Land Of Sunshine And Flowers For Gunland

By WALTER NAUGHTON

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 4. (US)—Sunshine, fruit and flowers—

Machine guns, beer wars and killers—

Which would you take? Me, too!

And so would Mr. Edward J. "Spike" O'Donnell, if he had his choice.

But "Spike" O'Donnell, who left here Sunday for his home in Chicago—the south side of Chicago, to be accurate—hasn't much choice in the matter. Some 12 years ago, when they dumped prohibition on the unsuspecting public, Mr. O'Donnell, along with thousands of others, laughed up his sleeve. And then he decided to do something about it.

So "Spike" became the beer baron of Chicago's south side and for many years has seen that the thirsty ones in his section have had what Volstead said they couldn't have.

"Spike" likes to have a little trip out of Chicago now and then. For his health and otherwise. A "run" he calls it. He brought his wife and three children to Los Angeles several weeks ago, arriving the day the Olympic games opened. And

LAWMAKERS AT CAPITAL HOPE FOR A QUORUM

Bills Covering Program Of Governor Sterling Await Action

2 MEASURES DIFFER

Senate Committee to Air Election Charges May Be Appointed

AUSTIN, Sept. 4. (AP)—Texas legislators who remained in Austin over Sunday were hoping there would be a quorum in both houses tomorrow in spite of it being Labor day, a holiday.

There was some doubt expressed if the senate would have a majority of its members present, but every one expected at least 100 of the 150 members of the house to answer roll call.

Should the legislature have a working quorum it was believed considerable headway could be made on the governor's tax relief program, provided pending resolutions proposing investigations of alleged law violations and irregularities in the July and August Democratic primaries did not consume too much time.

Bills Voted Out

Bills designed to carry out the governor's wish that the state highway fund contribute to liquidation of interest and principal of county and district highway bonds authorized to build state roads had been voted out of committees to the floor of each house.

The house bill, a composite proposal drafted from four plans, was expected to meet with little or no opposition because of agreement of all factions on its main provisions. It was written with "good points" lifted from the quartet of proposals put into the favored draft. Sponsors of separate bills who collaborated on the committee product were Representatives Ben Brooks of Bagwell, Coke Stevenson of Junction, Bowd Farrar of Waxahachie and R. M. Hubbard of New Boston.

Senate Bill Differs

The senate had before it a bill by Senator W. R. Poage, said to differ materially with the house version. The Poage bill would set aside as much of the four-cent gasoline tax as necessary to meet the county indebtedness. He estimated it would require less than one-fourth of the gas tax. The house bill also would set aside one-fourth of the proceeds

Rail Loan Corporation Authorizes $30,937,000

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. (US)—The Railroad Credit corporation reported today that it has made or authorized $30,937,000 of loans to railroads, enabling them to meet interest payments on bonds and notes.

Less help has been needed from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, of $4,289,000 authorized loans which have not yet been made, only $2,170,000 represents R. F. C. funds, the report said.

Collection of rate increases, out of which the carrier corporation makes it loans to railroads having hard sledding, totaled $31,075,000 in the first half of 1932.

Jury Trying Egan Can't Reach Verdict

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4. (UP)—A jury trying Frank J. Egan and Albert Tinnin on charges of first degree murder had not reached a verdict late today. It received the case at 11:09 a. m. Saturday.

A stire of excitement was created today when the jurors asked for a state exhibit—a grey overcoat allegedly worn by Egan in his movement the day Mrs. Jessie Scott Hughes, his 67-year-old widowed friend, met his death.

There was no indication the seven men and five women on the jury were near a verdict.

West Texan Killed In Fall From Auto

Affable Fish Peddler Tells Of 76-Day Captivity In Lindy Case

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 4. (AP)—Federal, state and county investigators tonight studied the story of Garret Schenck, 46, Hopewell, N. J., fish peddler, who said he was held captive by a private detective for 76 days following the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Found yesterday in a mountain cabin, just across the Somerset county line, Schenck was brought to Johnstown's city hall, and questioned until almost dawn.

He said he never had seen the Lindbergh baby, but added with a broad grin that he "had met" Colonel Lindbergh and his wife.

"That was when they were laying the foundation for their place in Hopewell—they never bought any fish from me," he explained.

Pudgy and affable, Schenck sat at a long table, and talked for hours with special agents of the United States bureau of investigation and officials of Cambria and Clearfield county.

Later he was removed to Clearfield by Sheriff Ira McCloskey of that county.

McCloskey said he intends to "lay this case before the district attorney."

Until he was found, Schenck said, he was kept under close guard.

"I wasn't allowed to read the newspapers and I wasn't permitted to write to my folks. They would not let me get a haircut.

"They treated me all right, and I had plenty to eat, but I kept wondering what they would do with me.

"In Somerset I heard them talking about the bonus army and Mayor McCloskey and I figured if I could get to him I would be set free. Well, I got word to him, and this is the first time I have been treated white since."

F. X. Fay and D. di Lillo of the department of justice declined to discuss the case, further than that they intend to continue their investigation in Clearfield county and to

Many Forms of Amusement Attract Celebrants

Labor day, 1932, will be celebrated in Wichita Falls Monday with a wide range of activities announced for Wichitans observing the holiday. No official program has been announced by the score of local organizations but the majority of business institutions in Wichita Falls will observe the holiday.

Law enforcement agencies of both the city and county will be active as will the local fire department. Members of the retail merchants division of the chamber of commerce are cooperating in the holiday.

The double feature of the Labor day week-end with the official day following Sunday offered hundreds of Wichitans an opportunity for an early fall vacation period. Special rail rates and automobile excursions through the territory to popular entertainment centers drew full quotas of local residents. A similar week-end was celebrated this summer when the Fourth of July followed Sunday.

The regular meeting of the city council has been postponed until Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock and service club meetings scheduled for Monday have been postponed.

The five swimming pools of the immediate vicinity offer outdoor sports and space for picnic parties. The pools are Westmoreland, in Westmoreland park; Lakeside park, Sand Beach on the Iowa Park road, Cedar park in the Weeks park area and Haven park on Holliday-lake road.

Monday night the 40 and 8 society of the American Legion is sponsoring a Labor day dance at the Kemp hotel, starting at 9 o'clock. Sammy Williams' orchestra will furnish the musical background.

A full day of activity has been announced at Lakeside park for the occasion and Manager Art LeMan has arranged a premier showing of fireworks at 9:30 p. m. Hanging in Jail Cell Blamed on 'Third Degree'

PEKIN, Ill., Sept. 4. (UP)—A dead man hanging by his neck in the Tasewell county jail could not have committed suicide, announced Coroner A. E. Allen tonight, because he was dead before the rope was placed around his neck.

The coroner and State's Attorney Lewis Dunkelberg listened to stories of the "third degree" and ordered Sheriff James Crosby and four deputies to appear at the inquest of Martin Virant, victim in the mystery.

He was held in the jail as a murder witness. Last Thursday he said that he had been beaten brutally by jailers. A few hours later his body was found hanging from the rafters.

Fort Sill's Crack Batteries And Band To Encamp Here For Jubilee

Col. George Peek Completes Arrangements for Colorful Exhibition During City's Celebration

Wichita Falls will be host to 300 officers and men from Fort Sill, Okla., throughout the golden jubilee celebration, Sept. 26-28. Detailed arrangements for the movement of troops to this city were worked out by Col. George Peek of the U. S. army post in conference with 50th anniversary association officials Sunday afternoon.

Colonel Peek conferred with President Walter D. Cline, Parade Chairman Horrace Robbins and Secretary John Boswell of the association. The troop movement will bring 200 horses of the Fort Sill artillery school to Wichita Falls, among them several performing thoroughbreds which will take a leading part in the jubilee rodeo performances. Several of the horses recently saw service in the Olympic games at Los Angeles.

30-Piece Band

The movement will include two batteries of 116 men each, the 30-piece Fort Sill army band, and a radio patrol. The movement is authorized by the war department and will be conducted as an armed detail in regulation army war games. The troops will leave Fort Sill Thursday, Sept. 22, traveling overland and will arrive Saturday, Sept. 24. The soldiers will pitch camp near the city and will remain through the three-day celebration.

Gen. W. M. Cruikshank commanding officer at Fort Sill will inspect the troops during the stay here while Colonel Peek will be officer in charge of the movement.

Bringing New Guns

Four newly adopted army guns, howitzers 105's, will be viewed by the public for the first time when they are brought here for the jubilee. The guns have been used only in practice at army posts and will be brought here with 400 rounds of "blank" ammunition and will be fired daily as salutes for visiting personages on the jubilee program.

The movement to Wichita Falls will be the largest in recent years for the Fort Sill post and the longest distance away from the post for

'Gopher Burglar' Tells Of Underground Raids

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 4. (US)—Grilled all day by police, the city's latest "gopher burglar," arrested last night while tunneling into the vault of a branch of the Security-First National bank, late today confessed, they said, to still another "underground" raid on a branch bank.

He boasted, according to police, that his second tunneling job was even more expert than the first—and sent them, for proof, to a Bank of America branch.

There, leading from a vacant store, detectives tonight found a tunnel almost completed into the vaults of the bank. The burglar's tools were still on the ground, awaiting his return.

Borah Still Toying With Third Party

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. (US)—Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, still is toying with the idea of heading a "bone dry" presidential ticket.

Reports reaching political headquarters here today from Boise were to the effect that Borah has been conferring with Dr. Clarence True Wilson, head of the Methodist board of temperance; D. Leigh Colvin, national chairman of the prohibition party, and other irreconcilable "drys." He has given no firm negative to their importunings.

It is reported here, Borah would wish to capitalize agricultural unrest along with the "die-hard" dry vote in the event of an independent candidacy. He would advocate better marketing facilities for farm products and currency expansion.

HEARST WARNS MAYOR WALKER

Publisher Won't Sanction Fight on Roosevelt

NEW YORK, Sept. 4. (AP)—William Randolph Hearst, in a signed editorial in the New York American tonight made his first public comment on the resignation of Mayor James J. Walker.

"Ex-Mayor Walker has certainly not strengthened himself in the public estimation by his bitter and wholly unjustifiable attack upon Governor Roosevelt," Mr. Hearst wrote.

"The Hearst papers have maintained consistently that the accusations of malfeasance against Mayor Walker were not sufficiently established in the hearings of the Seabury investigation.

"The whole investigation developed the unfortunate partisan political aspect of a Republican legislature endeavoring on rather flimsy pretext to put a Democratic governor and candidate for the presidency 'on the spot' by creating schism between the New York City Democratic organization and the Democratic governor.

"Mayor Walker might . . . naturally have felt that he was being subjected to unfair treatment . . . might have felt himself justly entitled to a 'change of venue' and could rightly have referred his case to the people of New York City who are after all the ones most intimately concerned with the character and qualifications of their mayor.

"But a defendant asking even justifiably for a change of venue has no right to abuse the judge when that judge is an honorable and well-intentioned one, though perhaps not as shrewd a politician nor as judicious as the complicated situation required.

"Mayor Walker's diatribe may, therefore, be just another evidence of his irresponsibility or it may be the prelude to a sustained attack upon the governor.

"If it is the latter the Hearst papers desire very definitely to notify the mayor and Tammany that these papers have no sympathy with such an attitude and will in no way contribute support to it.

"The Hearst papers are sincere and devoted supporters of Governor Roosevelt.

"Whether they shall be supporters of Mayor Walker or not depends in great degree upon the mayor's attitude toward the governor and toward the general welfare of the party to which the mayor claims to belong."

CUBAN CHART

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. (US)—A chart of Cuba by the hydrographic office of the navy, requiring 26 years to complete, is now available to merchant marine ships and naval vessels, the navy department announced today.

German War Vets Align Selves Back Of Von Papen In Stirring Ceremony

BERLIN, Sept. 4. (AP)—One hundred and ninety-five thousand members of the Nationalist Steel Helmet organization, acting for a million more German world war veterans, today aligned themselves behind the government of Chancellor Franz von Papen in the most brilliant military display since the days of Kaiser Wilhelm.

In a gigantic parade at Tempelhof airdrome they marched with soldierly bearing and implicit obedience to commands.

From 5:30 to 10:30 in the morning seemingly endless columns of Steel Helmeters moved from every direction upon Tempelhof to hear Franz Seldte plead for patriotism, unity and love of their fellowmen.

For six hours after these ceremonies the airdrome resounded to the tramp of marching feet as battalion after battalion passed in review before Chancellor Von Papen, Defense Minister Kurt von Schleicher, Interior Minister Wilhelm von Gayl and other cabinet members in the uniforms of reichswehr generals.

Several of the Hohenzollern princes remained in the background, content to let the ministers reap the chief honors of the occasion.

WARNING GIVEN TOWNS ALONG RIVER'S PATH

Death Toll From Rio Grande Mounts to 20 in Area Near Laredo

DARING RESCUES

Crest of Flood Sweeping Toward Cities Near Mouth of Stream

LAREDO, Texas, Sept. 4. (AP)—Death and devastation, the extent of which was only partially known, were left in the wake of the great flood on the Rio Grande as it rolled on toward the Gulf of Mexico today.

Four men who were plunged into the surging flood when two spans of the Missouri Pacific railroad bridge between the United States and Mexico were carried away were rescued from a precarious refuge on driftwood after 16 hours.

Others of the 15 or 20 persons on the bridge at the time of the collaps were unaccounted for, and opinion was general that most, or all of them, had been drowned. Searching parties moved along the banks of the river looking for bodies.

Residents Flee

Reports that many lives were lost when the river inundated a large part of Nuevo Laredo, Mexican city opposite Laredo, were unverified pending restoration of communications between the two cities. The reports placed the loss of life in Nuevo Laredo at about 50.

While the flood began entering Nuevo Laredo during the day, enabling most of the residents to flee to higher ground, it was feared the warnings broadcast by Mexican police and soldiers did not reach all the population in lowlands in time for them to escape. The crest of the flood today was somewhere between Laredo and Brownsville.

Property damage was estimated at millions of dollars in Nuevo Laredo and the country upstream. Hundreds of adobe huts were washed away, and many cattle and sheep were drowned in the flood.

Firemen Rescue Trio

The three persons marooned in the river after the destruction of part of the Missouri Pacific railroad bridge were rescued about daybreak today by five firemen of Laredo who waded through five feet of water holding to a rope attached to a trolley on the international footbridge.

The men rescued were Jose Rodrigues Trigo, 33, customs inspector in Nuevo Laredo; Julian Lozano, 24, sanitary inspector in Nuevo Laredo; and Vincente Gonzales Flores, 33, a Mexican immigration inspector.

Several hundred persons who had kept vigil throughout last night watched the men on a pile of driftwood in the light of a giant searchlight thrown on the scene from the Hamilton hotel, eight blocks away in Laredo.

When the river had receded from a crest of 52 feet, so that only five feet of water was over the footbridge, a rope was thrown over a trolley wire high above the structure. With City Fireman Manuel de la Cruz leading, the human chain of rescuers moved out into the stream.

Despaired of Rescue

As the firemen approached, they signalled the marooned men to get ready to leave their positions. The refugees finally were lifted bodily from the driftwood and the party made its way back to dry land, where automobiles rushed the victims to a hospital.

The three men were very fatigued. Trigo was suffering from a cut on one leg, which had bled

Crosby County Sees Good Year for Cotton

CROSBYTON, Texas, Sept. 4. (AP)—With more than five inches of rainfall during August, cotton growers and ginners profess to see "the best year since 1926" for Crosby county, with a crop estimated at between 40,000 and 50,000 bales.

Experienced cotton men judge the crop at a bale to the acre. A Kalgary ginner said the crop prospects were the best he has seen in that country.

While the acreage is smaller, due to hailstorms in June, the yield appears to be heavier.

Flood of Rio Grande Takes Heavy Toll of Life

profusely, while Flores had received a cut on his face. Trigo gave a brief account of the vigil on the drift, saying the men at times during the long night had despaired of rescue, but had been cheered as they saw the frantic efforts on shore to reach them.

Trigo said further that he was with E. E. Sharkey, conductor for the Mexican National Railways, when the flood swept them away. The last he saw of Sharkey was just before the bridge collapsed. Sharkey was starting toward the American side.

Dionisio Espinoza, a car inspector for the Texas-Mexican railway, was rescued from a raft on the Mexico side near the mouth of the Chacon, a small stream. He was given medical treatment in Nuevo Laredo.

Water Rushing On

At 8 a. m. the water had receded at Laredo until the floor of the footbridge was visible and danger of further loss of life in that vicinity apparently was over.

Meanwhile, reports from Brownsville were that all previous rises on the Rio Grande would be surpassed when the crest of the flood waters which engulfed the Laredo area arrived in the lower Rio Grande valley.

A bulletin issued by the United States weather bureau in Brownsville stated that a rise of one foot was recorded at Rio Grande city during the night, giving the river stage there as 24.6 feet. The bureau predicted that a stage of 35 feet would be obtained at Rio Grande City by noon tomorrow or shortly thereafter, a stage one foot higher than attained during the June, 1922, flood.

Should the river reach 35 feet at Rio Grande City, a large portion of Fort Ringgold, army post, and part of the city itself might be submerged.

Town Isolated

The stage at Hidalgo was given as 19.8 feet in a morning bulletin of the weather bureau. The stream was rising slowly.

McAllen reported this morning that the Rio Grande had slipped over its banks at Los Ebanos and was spreading slowly over the lowlands of western Hidalgo county. This territory is part of the non-irrigated section of Hidalgo county and is inhabited largely by Mexican goat and sheep ranchers and farmers.

J. M. Pate of McAllen, owner of international bridges at Zapata, Hidalgo and Rio Rica, said this morning that the city and county of Zapata were isolated and without means of communication, telephone wires having been severed during the night.

Later reports from Hidalgo stated that the river had left its banks east of that city and was spreading over a large area along the military highway to a point south of Pharr and San Juan. Customs officials at Hidalgo moved their offices from the foot of the international bridge to the town proper.

Steady Rain Falls

The telephone exchange at Reynosa, across the river from Hidalgo, reported that a steady rain had been falling there since yesterday afternoon. A continued rain in that section would augment the already swollen waters of the San Juan river and precipitate an unprecedented flood on the Rio Grande valley below Rio Grande City.

Lieut. J. R. Nelson, piloting an army airplane, flew over the threatened area about noon and reported a small amount of water was entering the Ojo de Agua floodway in Hidalgo county near Mission.

At the same time, the Rancho Viejo floodway in Cameron county was carrying considerable water. Lieutenant Nelson reported all levees on the American side of the river were holding their own with the exception of a weak spot in the vicinity of Santa Maria, a settlement south of Mercedes on the military highway.

North of Laredo, a weather bureau reported the Rio Grande falling at Eagle Pass. The river was within its banks and was only two feet above the normal stage.

The water plant in Eagle Pass, temporarily incapacitated, resumed operations, supplying Eagle Pass and Piedras Negras, the Mexican city there, with drinking water. Piedras Negras, remained without electricity for lights or power.

Call to Evacuate

Workmen were busy filling in a 70-foot gap in the approach to the railway bridge at Eagle Pass and resumption of train service to Mexico City through that gateway was expected soon. The highway bridge was opened yesterday.

A warning call to all residents of Hidalgo and Cameron counties living in the lowlands between the Rio Grande and flood control levees to evacuate their property not later than tomorrow was contained in the 1:30 p. m. bulletin issued by the weather bureau at Brownsville.

All of the territory between the river and the levees were threatened with inundation with the probability the water would be deep in some places. Residents were advised to take their livestock and valuables with them, since the high water was expected to continue for a week or more.

River Rising

Stages of the Rio Grande at 1:30 p. m. were given as follows: Rio Grande City, 25.2 feet; Hidalgo, 19.9; Mercedes, 19 and Brownsville 16.9.

Previous high water records at those places are as follows: Hidalgo, 26.8; Mercedes, 26.6; Rio Grande City, 26.5 and Brownsville, 18.5.

The river was rising slowly at all points, the weather bureau bulletin said.

14-INCH RAIN FLOODS STREAMS NEAR MEXIA

MEXIA, Texas, Sept. 4. (AP)—A 14-inch rain in this section today washed out several stretches of railway track, marooned a trainload of excursionists in Mexia, and sent the Navasota river to flood stage. Highway travel was blocked on all sides of Mexia and the Southern Pacific was compelled to reroute trains.

Rain began falling about midnight and stopped, at least temporarily, shortly before 2 p. m. today. The fall was heaviest between Thornton and Wortham, ranging from 12 to 14 inches. The total here was 13.8 inches.

Train Marooned

No deaths or injuries had been reported.

The Southern Pacific's No. 18 passenger train from Dallas to Galveston, was marooned here. About 400 passengers were on board, most of them on their way to Galveston for the Labor day holiday. The No. 344 fast freight was marooned in the countryside.

There were two washouts on the railway line north of Mexia and two larger ones between Mexia and Groesbeck. Water was reported standing three to five feet over the tracks at many points. Many trucks and automobiles were halted on the highways with their motors drowned. Several work trains were sent to repair the tracks.

Rainfall was heavy also at Corsicana. It was believed that damage to open cotton had been considerable.

Oklahoma Tribesmen Gather To Pay Homage To Great Spirit At Oldtown

INDIAN TRADING POST, OLDtown, Okla., Sept. 4. (UP)—The start of Indian summer brought Oklahoma Indians here today for a Thanksgiving pow-wow.

Their crops are made. Food has been stored away for the winter. For three days, the tribesmen will pay homage to the great spirit—sun, and beseech protection for the coming year.

The Comanches, the Kiowas, Cheyennes, Tonkawas, Otoes and members of other tribes will dance their age-old ceremonials and sing their chants.

Each day, there will be a buffalo feast, a hark back to older days when the red man believed that the earth opened with each Indian summer, that countless buffalo came forth to provide food and clothing for him and his family.

"We must implore the great spirit to aid us, to protect us and thank him for what he has done," said Major Gordon W. (Pawnee Bill) Lillie, old Indian scout and former wild west showman.

Lillie has maintained a pioneer museum here, leaving this one little town and ranch almost unchanged from the time when it was an Indian trading post.

Modern civilization will enter the ceremonial tomorrow when a new $150,000 Indian agency administration building will be dedicated.

visit the farm where Schenck was found yesterday.

Mayor McCloskey, emerging from the room where Schenck was questioned, however, said the man explained he was kidnaped June 10.

"My investigators," the mayor said, "have learned that a private detective lured Schenck into his car on that date on the pretext of adjusting some differences over the fish peddler's auto license.

"Schenck was taken to a place called Dubois' cabin in Clearfield county and kept there until recently when he was removed to Somerset county.

"We have known for several days that he was being held, but we did not learn the exact spot until yesterday, when one of the men guarding him came to me.

"Then Sheriff McCloskey (no we're not related) and I got together and I got in touch with the federal agents."

Hitchhiker Gets Rides By Threatening to Use His Vote

ABERNATHY, Texas, Sept. 4. (AP)—Here is the latest method of securing a ride while hitch-hiking. A Hale county resident reports giving a "lift" to a young fellow recently who had a placard on his back reading: "If you don't give me a ride, I'll vote for Hoover."

SUCCESSOR TO RUBIO NAMED

Abelardo Rodriguez Becomes President of Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 4. (US)—Congress today formally accepted President Ortiz Rubio's resignation and elected Gen. Abelardo Rodriguez, 43-year-old minister of war and former governor of Lower California, his successor.

Rodriguez took the oath of office immediately before the joint session of the chamber of deputies and senate, announcing:

"My policy towards the United States shall be to continue the existing friendship."

As he drove in triumph to Chapultepec palace, wearing impeccable morning clothes and the bright sash of his office, Ortiz Rubio, under heavy military guard, boarded a train in the suburbs and left for Hot Springs, Ark.

Dictates Messages

The young-looking new president swept into the executive offices with the air of a man accustomed to command and get obedience. His first official act was to sign appointments to his staff. He then dictated messages to the United States and Mexico. To his countrymen he said:

"I shall endeavor to bring confidence and tranquility to the republic in order that all parts of the country can dedicate themselves to the reconstruction of economic development of the nation."

Rodriguez, youthful but veteran campaigner of the revolution, will finish out Ortiz Rubio's term, serving until Nov. 30, 1934. The resigned president goes to Hot Springs by way of Laredo, Texas, for treatment of a chronic stomach ailment.

He hopes to be available later for a European diplomatic post, possibly Berlin where he previously served as minister.

Allied Dry Leader Assailed by Woman

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. (US)—Dr. Daniel A. Poling, head of the allied dry forces, who recently announced the support of his organization to President Hoover, drew a sharp rebuke today from Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, president of the National Woman's Democratic Law enforcement league.

Challenging the accuracy of Poling's statement that 187 out of 205 members of the executive committee of the allied forces had voted for Hoover, Mrs. Nicholson asked Poling to make the list public, adding:

"I must confess with others I have my doubts about this."

Officers Know Identity Of Highway Slayers

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Sept. 4. (AP)—Returning from a manhunt in the Cookson hills, officers declared today they knew the identity of the highwaymen who fired into an automobile on Bragge mountain, killing one woman and wounding her daughter and grandson.

The possemen said, however, they did not hope for immediate arrests.

Mrs. Susie Sharp, 48, of Bragge, was killed while Mrs. Pearl Anderson, 36, of Long Beach, Calif., and her 5-year-old son were wounded by the volley fired into their car Friday night.

DIES OF WOUNDS

GLADEWATER, Texas, Sept. 4. (AP)—Mrs. May Lewis, 31, shot yesterday by F. G. McCormack, 42, died in a hospital here early today. McCormack killed himself after shooting the woman. A verdict of suicide was returned.

LINGLE MURDER CASE REOPENED

Suspect in Mob Slaying Held by Tulsa Officials

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 4. (UP)—The two-year-old murder of Jake Lingle, Chicago newspaper reporter, was re-opened today.

L. M. Marlow, who described himself as a "traveling salesman," was held in the county jail and will be charged with the shooting, said Harry Seaton, assistant United States district attorney here. Leo Brothers, St. Louis gunman serving a term in Joliet, Ill., penitentiary for the crime, has implicated Marlow in the crime, the official said.

Marlow, who said his home is in Denver, was arrested here about two weeks ago and held on a charge of receiving mortgaged property. A federal "hold" order was placed against him, however.

"Marlow will be returned to Chicago as soon as extradition papers can be prepared for him," Seaton said.

Marlow characterized the accusation as "ridiculous."

United Press dispatches from Chicago said police there would confer with State's Attorney John A. Swanson Monday about seeking Marlow's extradition there. Officials at Chicago were quoted as saying they never had heard of Marlow.

Lingle, $85-a-week police reporter for the Chicago Tribune, was shot to death on June 9, 1930, as he walked through a pedestrian tunnel under Michigan avenue to the Illinois Central railroad station.

Developments revealed Lingle had promised police protection to Chicago underworld gangs in return for large sums of money. His killing started a city and federal drive against gangmen, climaxing with the conviction of Al Capone on income tax fraud charges.

Lawmakers Hope For Quorum Today

of the tax. The bills differed however, in details of administering the funds.

The senate already had passed a bill remitting interest and penalties on delinquent taxes if paid prior to Dec. 31, 1932, and the house committee had recommended that it pass. This was the second subject submitted by the governor in his call for the extraordinary session.

Insurance Bills

Bills to amend the laws to permit insurance companies and building and loan associations to participate in benefits extended by the Federal Home Loan banks has been proposed. Little or no opposition was expected to develop in their consideration.

Should a quorum show up in the senate it was likely to dispose of its resolution to create a committee of nine of its members to investigate charges of fraud in the July and August primaries, particularly with reference to the close race for governor between Gov. R. S. Sterling and Mrs. M. A. Ferguson.

In the house was pending a proposal by Representative J. C. Duval of Fort Worth that that body conduct an investigation of alleged primary irregularities on its own responsibility.

Adjournment Resolutions

Sine die resolutions calling for adjournment next Saturday were on the table in each house. Should the governor submit reductions of state salaries, as asked to do so by both houses, there was little probability of the special session completing its work this week. Many were of the opinion it would not get through, anyway.

The governor, when he convened the extraordinary session, expressed a hope the legislature would transact the business suggested by him and adjourn prior to meeting of the state Democratic convention in Lubbock on Sept. 13. Should the session consume the 30 days fixed by the constitution as a time limit, it would not finish up until Sept. 28.

Small Brothers Tell Story of Hardships

NEW YORK, Sept. 4. (US)—Stanley in darkest Africa had no more thrilling story of adventure to relate than had Ralph Fargardo, 7, and his brother, James, 3, when they got home today. They told of walking and walking and walking, miles and miles, along an endless path, through trees, along paths around a great body of water. Toward nightfall Saturday a policeman found them in the wilds of Central park. Apparently they had been walking in circles, probably around the reservoir and didn't know how to get out. Their father claimed them today at the children's society.

FORT SILL TO SEND TROOPS

Crack Units and Famous Horses to Be Shown

a similar body of troops. The detachment will be kept in constant contact with the fort through the radio patrol, equipped with both sending and receiving apparatus, and will receive all orders after leaving Fort Sill through the patrol.

"Scouts" Come First

The large howitzers and a number of 75's will be transported overland by the artillery horses. A squadron of men will precede the main body of troops into Wichita Falls as a "scouting" expedition to prepare details of the camp site and similar matters.

The movement to Wichita Falls is regarded as splendid practice for the men, Colonel Peek declared Sunday.

The camp here will be conducted as a regular war detachment on the field of action with the entire body of troops "on duty" throughout the stay. The public will be welcome to inspect the "war" camp during the jubilee. The two batteries of men will be composed of picked veterans and will stage various wartime maneuvers during the show. Mimic attacks, placement of guns and firing with blank ammunition will be included in the games.

Daily army post routine will be observed with flag raising and lowering with the accompanying salutes and the days of army life will be recalled to thousands of Wichitans as reveille and retreat are sounded each morning and evening.

Band Famous Unit

The Fort Sill band is regarded as one of the best organizations of its kind in the nation and played in Wichita Falls at the 1931 chamber of commerce banquet. The band is in charge of Warrant Officer J. A. Tyler and will give a concert for Wichitans on Sunday afternoon prior to the jubilee opening. A band stand will be constructed at the camp for daily concerts during public inspection of the camp.

A feature of the visit will be stunts by the trained horses at the rodeo. Lieut Eddie Argo, riding the Olympic cross-country steeplechase champion, will attend as will several other riders and horses competing in the recent games at Los Angeles.

The troops will take part in the historical pageant on the opening night of the jubilee, depicting rescues of pioneer settlers during Indian raids. A military parade will feature the third day.

The officers and men at Fort Sill feel a keen interest in the jubilee with the founding of Wichita Falls almost coinciding with the permanent establishment of Fort Sill as an army post, Colonel Peek declared. The movement of men here will be one of the most pretentious undertakings in the recent history of Fort Sill, it was added.

Back To Chicago For Mr. O'Donnell

the O'Donnells saw that whole wonderful show and liked it.

Now, says "Spike," they must return for the three children must resume their classes in high school next week.

"There was a young man named Walter Zwolinski who was killed in Chicago two days ago. He was filled with so much lead by persons unknown that any smelter would have been glad to salvage the 'weight,'" the reporter informed Mr. "Spike" O'Donnell, just before he boarded the train.

"Yes," said Mr. O'Donnell.

"Yes," said the reporter. "And the Chicago police say he was trying to 'muscle' in on your south side territory and was an enemy of yours. How about that?"

"Mr. Zwolinski? Mr. Zwolinski?" said Mr. O'Donnell, "why, to the best of memory, I didn't know that young man from a bale of hay. His name means nothing to me. Perhaps I knew him by sight. I can't seem to place him at all."

"Well, somebody else 'placed' him, and how," said the reporter.

"Yes, and it's too bad," said O'Donnell, real seriously. "I hate to see any one get hurt, let alone killed. There's no reason for it. I've ducked plenty of 'slugs' in my time and I'm hoping I'm through dodging them."

Back in Chicago, "Spike" O'Donnell is supposed to live a charmed life. Not so long ago, some of the boys took after him with a "tommy gun" when he was driving home. "Spike" slid out of his car and crawled and squirmed his way into a drug store. He came up without a mark but his car was shot to pieces, the radiator bearing a complete circle where the murderous "chopper" had played its tune.

That was only one of many close calls. "Spike" is generally conceded to be a peaceful man, one who will go out of his way to avoid trouble.

"Spike" is a lot different from the picture you would draw of him, off hand. Nothing flashy about this member of the O'Donnell family. Two of his five brothers wound up on a morgue slab but they were different from "Spike," more showy and talkative.

More than six feet tall, slender of build, "Spike" is well named. He dresses quietly, usually in dark clothes. A diamond ring adorns his finger and occasionally he wears a diamond stick pin. Usually he is smiling. And he's not a tough-talker by any means. While, occasionally, he goes into the jargon of the south side streets, his usual discourse is plain and he talks in a well modulated tone.

And he never drinks, not even beer.

Chicago's cabarets and other resorts never see "Spike." During his six weeks in Los Angeles he was twice in cafes, and with his wife and children.

"We just wanted a 'run'," said "Spike," upon leaving. "We've enjoyed the sunshine, fruit and flowers. I wish I could take them along. No, I'm not leaving ahead of time. We had this day picked for several weeks. The children go back to high school next week. I hope that everything is all right at home and that we can come back this way soon. It's so peaceful."

SOCIETY NOTES AND CHURCH NEWS

MRS. L. N. CASON

More Than 200 Friends Honor Mrs. A. D. Terrill

A lovely 73-year-young mother was honoree Sunday afternoon when Mrs. A. D. Terrill's children surprised her with a beautiful informal reception at her home on Elizabeth street. Seated in a large chair and surrounded with baskets, bowls and vases of exquisite flowers sent by her friends and admirers, she was as pretty and winsome a picture as any debutante.

Mrs. A. D. Terrill

Mrs. Terrill has lived in Wichita Falls since 1915 and time has written no lines but those of happiness upon her face. Her abundant white hair was softly waved and coiled as she has worn it for years, and the dress of sheer chiffon, with exquisite lace trimmings which she wore, was enhanced with only one ornament, the beautiful shoulder corsage that was the gift of her "baby," James R. Terrill, who was in the receiving party with his pretty young wife.

Many Flowers

Not only the living room, but the dining room and bedrooms overflower with flowers sent by friends. There were gladioli in all colors, baby's breath, lilliputian sinnias, red roses mixed with purple ageratum, great golden chrysanthemums and stacks of be-ribboned gifts. The lace-covered dining table was centered with a lovely two-tiered birthday cake which had 73 candles thrust in the white, pink and orchid decorations. The enormous block of ice that served as a punch bowl was a gift to her, and her pretty granddaughters served punch from the gleaming block surrounded with flowers and in which flowers were frozen.

Mrs. Terrill is the mother of six daughters and four sons, including Mesdames J. B. Whitman, G. E. McDonald of Fort Worth, J. E. Norvell, F. P. Ball of Archer City, J. N. Sherrill, Joella Terrill Butler, Messrs. S. E. Terrill, J. C. Terrill, James R. Terrill and Malcolm Terrill. She has 16 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

At the register, where young members of the family presided, between 200 and 300 names were written during the hours of 3 and 7 o'clock.

Up to Date

Mrs. Terrill is an example of the mother who never grows old. She has an interest in all questions and can discuss affairs of the nation as well as those of her family and of the church. Knitting, piecing quilts and darning for her sons and sons-in-law, who adore the sweet-faced woman, are her pastimes, and she has joined the young housewives of the country this summer in canning fruits and vegetables when there was nothing else to do. A large closet the shelves of which are filled with an assortment of delicious looking fruits is an example of her ability.

On her bed, a handsome white spread was admired by all comers and some one whispered that she had knitted nine of them. Time has laid no heavy hand upon her.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

A love that can see weaknesses as well as virtues is a very beautiful thing so long as it sees weaknesses without rancour and virtues without flattery.

Charles Lamb called his sister an "incomparable old maid," maybe because she looked at him with clear eyes. At any rate he came to dread more and more the more frequent and longer portions of life when that sister had to be confined in a "mad house." She sympathized so completely with every whim of the brother who had given his life to her.

While this decade has almost forgotten the term "old maid" (its usage points to an uneducated mind), I believe after searching my memory, that it is the unmarried of the specie that sees weakness and beauty with less extravagant censure or praise; possibly it is because they are in a semidetached position.

I heard an unmarried woman say once, "I believe an old maid is the happiest person on earth once she has given up hope." With the progressing years, as couples jump into matrimony, then jump out through the divorce court, she seems to have hit the thought right—for woman in general.

There are sad cases where unmarried women were born to be wives and mothers; their lonely hearts will have a still small ache all through their lives when they think of the home they did not have.

I remember two sisters in the town where I was born (something else about Tennessee!) who lived as perfect lives as any two women I have ever known. They did not gossip; (and right here I wish to state that it is my conviction that gossip is more the delight of married women with unoccupied minds, than of the spinsters to whom it is credited), they helped every one they could; they were intrigued with the beauty of one another's characters and each was wont to whisper of how the other sister was the originator of all their good deeds.

One died at 77 and the other, 79 at that time, died two weeks later. And the friend (they had no relatives) to whom all their personal property was left, found in a little old carpet-covered trunk, the picture of a young Confederate officer and packages of letters that showed both sisters had loved the same man. He was killed in battle.

Then there was "Miss Lit," whose name Letitia was comparatively unknown. Miss Lit had a lover long before my ken but I knew that she had let him go as a missionary rather than leave her mother, who was widowed and had no other child.

Miss Lit's mother died and Miss Lit turned one room of their little brown house into a kindergarten and lavished all her pent up tenderness on the children she taught. Then she had the infant class at Sunday school and looked out for every child in need of whom she heard.

I can see her now listening to the sermon at morning worship; she had been reared in a school that taught children upright posture and by a mother who thought it very "ungenteel" to cross her limbs (not legs, mind you—that would have been lewd); so she crossed her prim little black-shod ankles and let her little lace-mittened hands lie quietly folded in her lap and always wore, in season, a sprig of heliotrope. To watch her was a lesson in tranquility.

She became sick and our old Dr. Jimmie (who must be sitting at the right hand of the Father in heaven) went every day to see her. Her one great grief was that she could not teach the children, but when Dr. Jimmie let them, they brought her flowers and when it was possible friends visited her briefly. She died from a cancer of the breast. False modesty had made her keep it secret.

I know more than one old maid mother, even though they have a marriage certificate and wear a ring; I know women born to be homemakers and mothers, who for various reasons, will never marry. But what can I do about it? (I believe that is the cry of the decade). Nothing but wait for you, if you have read so far.

City Observes Labor Holiday

LABOR PREPARES TO OBSERVE ITS DAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 4. (UP)—Labor, organized and unorganized, prepared tonight to celebrate its annual holiday amid the wreckage and debris of a depression.

With 11,000,000 out of work and the treasuries and war chests of the unions depleted by months of providing for unemployed members, there will be little of the joyous celebrating of yesteryears. Instead, labor will observe the day by counting the scattered signs of a coming upturn in industry, and hoping that better times are not far off.

Few Parades

The American Federation of Labor, through Vice President Matthew Woll, spoke the mind of labor in a militant statement castigating the failure of industry but predicting a forthcoming increase in employment due to governmental efforts.

Reports from industrial cities indicated that the hallmarks of other labor days, would be missing. There were few plans for the long parades of marching men. There were to be few if any of those old-fashioned clam bakes and picnics with patriotic speeches by union officials and politicians.

"Labor day brings tremendous encouragement to the masses of the wage earners of our country for early relief from a rate of unemployment that has grown in volume through a decade," Woll said. "The enormous efforts of the government to stimulate employment seem about to reach the workers in the form of jobs."

The quantity of creamery butter produced in Canada in 1931 was the largest ever recorded by the dairying industry of that country, amounting to 225,000,000 pounds.

Robbers Cut Into Vaults

all the boxes. They came upstairs, emptied Mrs. Kruse's pot of coffee and vanished.

"They were tough eggs," said Laschetze. "The first two of them flashed gold stars and told us they were government men. They said they were looking for an escaped convict named Spencer Brown.

"Then they took us up the stairs to my flat where my wife, Mary, and her mother were. They cut the phone wires and told us laughingly that they were robbers, but that they wouldn't rob us.

"Next they went down to Kruse's flat. He's my nephew. They rang the door bell, took some more prisoners and brought them all up stairs. They locked us all in the bathroom, but as more members of the family came home, there wasn't room enough, so they let us out in the apartment.

"We saw downstairs a car come up and five other men lug out the safe cracking apparatus. We heard them pounding and sawing downstairs, but there was nothing we could do.

Baby Liked Thug

"Mary Sue, the year-old baby, seemed to take a shine to the biggest of the robbers. He played with her, on and off, until her mother heated some milk and she went to sleep. We were all getting hungry and drowsy by then, so the robbers suggested the ladies fix up a lunch.

"They did and we sort of had a picnic, except that the robbers held sandwiches in one hand and guns in the other."

Mention of the name "Brown" led police to believe that the gang was an offshoot of a group of master crackesmen who engineered a similar robbery in 1923, which resulted in a loss of $1,250,000 at the Warner Brothers' warehouse. Spencer Brown was convicted of the latter robbery and was taken to Joliet penitentiary only three weeks ago to begin serving a term of from one to 10 years.

Hostess Should Always Rise To Welcome Guests

By EMILY POST
Author of "Etiquette," the Blue Book of Social Usage."

My Dear Mrs. Post—My husband and I are discussing the following point: He persists in always following our guests to their car and there telling them good-bye. This often leaves me on the porch or to go back in the house alone. I say that it is better form for us both to say good-bye at the door. Will you please give us your judgment on the question? Your answer is to be our decision.

Answer—You don't mind if I laugh at you both a little, do you, for finding yourself sad, and neglected, and like the dancer in the "Grand Hotel," "all alone," for one minute or maybe two, on your own front porch? Oh, my dear, be careful of that spoiled-child attitude! His gesture of courtesy in seing your friends to their car is certainly not one to which you should take exception—for the reasons you give!

My Dear Mrs. Post—I should like to know if one should rise from one's chair when a man caller is ushered in. I mean the hostess. I have always risen to shake hands but my husband says it is wrong. Please tell us which one is right.

Answer—You are right. Unless there is some obvious reason, such as being wedged behind her tea table, why she may be excused from rising, a hostess should always not only stand, but go a few steps forward to greet every visitor.

Dear Mrs. Post—My husband and I have both been treated by the same doctor. The men have become friendly but we do not know the wife of the doctor. We are a young couple and we do not want to make a mistake, but we would like to invite them to tea some Sunday afternoon. My husband argues that I should write a note to the doctor's wife and I say he should invite them through the doctor when they have lunch together. Who is wright?

Answer—Your husband is right.

Storms Take Heavy Toll Of Birds In Floyd Court House

FLOYDADA, Texas, Sept. 4. (AP)—W. J. Browning, courthouse groundkeeper, has a record of the ravages of storms on sparrows nesting in the trees around the building.

During a recent storm Mr. Browning gathered 450 dead birds. Another rain a few days later netted 112 more.

In June Mr. Browning picked up 481 birds after a storm, making a total of 1,043 for the season so far.

In explaining the heavy losses from late summer storms, the keeper said that the birds were shedding and wettings by night rains caused them to freeze to death. More died when the rain was accompanied by a high wind.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Now that Speaker Garner's "six-cent" ceremonies over his notification as Democratic candidate have been completed by publication of his letter of acceptance, the Republican campaign management in New York City will have opportunity to carry on with its announced program of making Garner a special point of attack.

JOHN N. GARNER

Yet explanation of what Garner had to say in that letter does not at first glance promise his foes much ammunition in the way of charges of near-radicalism.

Nevertheless, Senator Dan Hastings of Delaware, chief aid of Senator Felix Hebert of Rhode Island, at the Republican eastern campaign headquarters, paralleled publication of the Garner acceptance letter with an announcement that "Mr. Garner and all he stands for will be important in this campaign."

Coincidence?—Well, Maybe

It can hardly be mere coincidence that the Hastings statement and the Garner letter popped out at the same time. Similarly, it would hardly seem likely that there was no pre-arranged plan behind the fact that Governor Roosevelt gave the New York State Federation of Labor his views as to spreading employment on the eve of Presiednt Hoover's discussion of that subject before his new anti-depression conference with commercial and industrial leaders.

With all campaign headquarters equipped with publicity men matching carefully every opposition move, it is difficult for either side to spring a surprise flank attack.

Passing Over "Old Heads"

To some it may appear a bit remarkable that the Republican eastern campaign should have been turned over to two Washington first-termers like Hebert and Hastings. There are senatorial veterans from that territory, these including Moses of New Hampshire, Bingham of Connecticut, Hale of Maine, Dave Reed of Pennsylvania and Jesse Metcalf of Rhode Island.

Moses and Bingham, of course, have their own re-election campaign to take up their time; but there were other veterans not thus occupied this year.

Yet Hebert and Hastings are doing the job, although neither ever held a major public office, state or federal, before he entered the senate.

By contrast, Representative John Tilson of Connecticut, directing the speakers' bureau, is a quarter century veteran.

New Cotton Gins Built In South Plains Area

LUBBOCK, Texas, Sept. 4. (AP)—A dozen or more new cotton gins have been constructed this summer in the South Plains territory where a splendid crop is in prospect.

In addition to new plants, several others have been rebuilt, and a good many have been moved from one point to another giving some localities better service. Several communities will have gins this fall for the first time.

Four new gins have been built in Lubbock county, three in Lamb and two in Dawson. Several other counties have at least one new plant.

Mangum Youth Elected District De Molay Scribe

Special to The Record News.

MANGUM, Okla., Sept. 4.—Lee Brady, local DeMolay, was elected scribe of the DeMolay lodge at the district conclave held at Sayre during the week-end. Arnold Taylor, Elk City, is the new president and Grady Jones, Clinton, is vice president. The next conclave will be held in Elk City in November.

Hambone's Mediations

A miracle, says the scientist, is something that goes contrary to the facts as we know them. Something like a politician's homemade statistics, we suppose.

Russia shouldn't feel hurt because we don't recognize her. When we think back to 1929, it's about all we can do to recognize our own country.

The census taker found three communities in Colorado without a single radio set. Inhabitants are reported preparing for a rapid influx of tourists.

A Place for Slang

MUCH or our modern slang is not beautiful to hear. But for crisp conciseness and clarity of meaning, some of it is remarkably fitting.

We have observed a great deal of usage of the expression, "So what?" Doesn't that express pretty clearly a satiric and sophisticated disinterest? And doesn't the querulous tone of it sound a sharp note of playful ridicule which is one of the most efficacious methods of terminating an argument quickly.

Another we have heard repeated is, "Catch on?" This form of light conclusion gives a humorous touch to the advancement of an idea or a plan, or helps to bring a smile after a joking story. It marks a bond of sophistication between speaker and hearer.

The world's slang is an interesting study. It seems that there has always been, for instance, a popular and imperative slang exclamation meaning "Go!" Nowadays the words are "Scram!" "Sneak!" The expression used to be "Beat it!" Early in the century there was the expression, "23, skidoo." Shakespeare used, "Go to!" and "Go hang yourself." Many can remember when "Vamoose!" was widely used.

There is much to be said against slang grammatically, but it does carry advantages. Even phonetically, the word "boob" conveys its scornful meaning. Description of a foolish man by "squirrel," or a silly plan as "squirrelly," is humorous and picturesque.

The very fact that slang originating colloquially gets around to general usage is proof of its wonderful adaptability and efficacy. But then, we're not really defending it. This is merely a suggestion of its power.

A Newsboy Detective

PLENTY of stories have been written about how the brave newsboy foiled the big diamond robbery—but here's one from real life.

Edwin Cieslak, who is 15, sells papers in Detroit, which had been overrun for some time with counterfeiters.

A man gave Edwin "a very bad quarter," to use Edwin's own words, and right there is where Edwin used his head. He didn't go calling down the street after the man. Instead, he told a policeman and volunteered to identify the man if he came by for his paper the next day. When the man who had given him the quarter came by, Edwin nodded and he was arrested.

Search of the suspect's home resulted in two more arrests. Edwin accomplished what Detroit's best detectives had been unable to do—he solved the mystery of the counterfeiting ring.

All of which adds just one more proof of the fact that our newsboys are not only good, hard-headed business men in the making, but that they may be extremely useful citizens as well.

Edwin is no different from hundreds of other newsboys, and right now he would rather talk about the baseball team of which he is captain than to tell how he trapped the counterfeiters.

But in helping to solve the case he has shown an ability to think rapidly and logically that is going to serve him well when he becomes a graduate of the College of Hard Knocks, which all newsboys attend.

And, to the acute discomfiture of the men who are under arrest, he proved that if you want to pass a "very bad quarter," you had better steer clear of the newsboy.

Senator Wagner Sees Better Times Ahead

THERE are many who will say that this Labor day will give labor very little to rejoice about, but we have the word of Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, who has certainly been one of labor's champions—whether you agree with his policies or not—that Labor day will mark one of the most encouraging periods in the history of organized labor.

Senator Wagner believes that the $3,800,000,000 federal relief bill will put 2,000,000 men back to work by the beginning of the winter. The addition of this buying power will give jobs to another 2,000,000 within a few months, he believes.

But the thing that gives Senator Wagner the most pleasure, and the most hope for the future, is his belief that the times have given labor a definite program and have shown the people that the government must take care of labor in periods of depression just as it takes care of railroads and banks.

"The day is not far off when the right to work will be considered as inalienable as the right to live," he says.

These are, indeed, words of encouragement and good cheer for every man who is without a job. Senator Wagner has not been a man to build castles in the air.

The Advantages Of Rouge

BECAUSE they didn't wear rouge, two girls, 18 and 19, paid a visit to a New York police court the other day. They were taken there by Policewoman Wilhelmina Lawless of the Bronx, who suspected the girls of being runaways. Her reason for noticing them and taking them to headquarters was that "they wore no rouge as most New York girls do."

Investigation proved Policewoman Lawless' suspicions well grounded. The girls had left their home in Pennsylvania, but when officials telephoned their father there he replied: "Keep them. I have 12 more at home that I can't take care of."

The police don't know just what to do with the sisters—these two strange-looking girls without rosy cheeks. They're trying to persuade the father to take them back.

Meanwhile, one issue seems clear. It would seem that girls who go to New York and want to stay there had better rouge their cheeks.

SO THEY SAY!

Now I believe in the intrepid soul of the American people; but I believe also in its horse-sense . . . I believe in the sacredness of private property, which means that I do not believe it should be subjected to the ruthless manipulations of professional gamblers in the stock markets. —Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential nominee.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1932, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

I think selfishness is the cause of the present deplorable condition of the Broadway theater . . . And it is the selfishness of none other than the producer himself . . . While the very heart of his industry—or art—is wallowing in a morass of depression, Mr. Producer joins the horde of knockers and encourages them . . . Of course, when the Frankensteinish mob ultimately comes clamoring at his own door, he throws up his hands in despair and in turn blames the selfishness of other producers . . . There are many instances of this inexplicable greed . . . As a matter of fact, the whole history of Broadway is colored with them . . . Time and time again, as the inroads of radio and talking pictures made themselves felt, the producer has been unwilling to organize intelligently and co-operate with his neighbor . . . Today, he is suffering . . . Suffering badly . . . And yet, in the very imminence of destruction, he continues his greedy tactics . . . For instance, that mob of lobby-panners over in Newark the night before last . . . They came to bury "Ballyhoo" while the stork was just bringing it in through the chimney . . . I've heard of embalming fluid brought to a birthday party, but the Broadway producers and their cohorts are ever paradoxical . . . The show happens to be the product of a quartet of the town's keener minds, and evidence of this is carried in every scene of the revue . . . The fact that the production lacks authority and speed is a matter easily corrected . . . But the Newark premiere was a try-out pure and simple, and it is unfair to form definite prejudices before the opening on Broadway . . . But that didn't stop the fellow-producers . . . No sir . . . They flocked to the Jersey premiere with the enthusiasm of a cub reporter on his first assignment.

But the point I make is not whether "Ballyhoo" is a hit show or not . . . That really doesn't matter . . . But what does matter is the attitude of the numerous rival producers who gathered in the lobby during the intermission and after the final curtain to tear the show to verbal bits . . . One of New York's best revue constructors lined himself against a wall with all who would listen and greeted others as they exited from the auditorium . . . The finale was hardly over, but he already had his 6-cylinder hammers pounding . . . "They don't know what to do with their music . . . They didn't handle their comedy to get the most out of it . . . They ruined a perfectly good dance idea . . . They should be in the shoe business," was the general content of his comment . . . On the other side of the lobby was a gentleman whose connection with Broadway is recognized in every corner of the theatrical world . . . He had his hooks in long before the first act was over . . . "Why do idiots produce plays," he asked every one who would listen, and there were plenty of willing listeners . . . "For five weeks they have rehearsed the show and yet they don't know how to light a scene properly . . . It's going to be the worse flop of the season" . . . Everyone had his own idea of how the production should have been managed or in what warehouse it should be stored . . . I had gone to Newark on an uncritical jaunt, knowing full well the emergencies of a try-out, but by the time I was ready to return I had been made to feel that the young producers of "Ballyhoo" were arch-criminals, that they had robbed the charity box to get backing, that they had committed treason, and that a presidential edict should be issued to have them shot at dawn.

It so happens that "Ballyhoo" is the first revue of the new season scheduled for a Main Stem bow . . . If it is a success, the psychological effect on the subsequent openings is worth more than an 8 weeks' buy from the ticket agencies . . . If it flops, it casts a pall on all the shows that are to follow it . . . But the allegedly wise Broadway producer is a blind-man . . . And he is unwilling to be told . . . Moreover he is anxious to spoil his nose to spite his face . . . In fact, he hires motor cars and drags along a retinue of stooges to accomplish the self-marring . . . At the risk of being regarded in the light of a sophomore-on-Broadway, I suggest that the two gentlemen who did the loudest knocking mend their ways . . . And take themselves over to Newark again tonight, and perhaps, offer the directors of "Ballyhoo" a few constructive ideas which they unquestionably are capable of offering . . . It may make the road a bit easier for themselves when their own shows hit Broadway in the next four or six weeks . . . Incidentally, it was one of these two producers who was most pugnacious in his eviction of a lobby-panner during one of his own openings not so long ago . . . At that time I heard him wail, "Why won't they let me alone . . . My show isn't ready for New York inspection . . . That's why I'm opening out of town . . . But the buzzards are already on my trail . . . You'll never find me judging a man's work until he tells me it is complete" . . . Oh, yeah?

Another thing that worries me is the nefarious practice of several local real estate agents . . . Their idea has been to encourage tenants to pay rents in advance for a few months . . . Knowing all along that the building would change hands and that the unsuspecting cliff-dwellers would be unable to reclaim the money without recourse to law . . . And even then it isn't always possible to collect . . . One newspaper lass had a few hundred dollars the day she was let out of her job . . . Fearing that she would be unable to earn her rent for the next few months, she responded immediately to the agent's suggestion that she cover herself for three succeeding months . . . And gave him $180 . . . But the apartment house was sold the next week, and now the ex-sob-sister has a sob-story of her own to write . . . One young man engaged in a real estate agent's office told me he was instructed to ask tenants for advance rentals . . . But that he discouraged it, himself, and may even lose his job as a result . . . Of course, the better companies look down on this practice, but there are enough of the unscrupulous to make life miserable . . . I liked Jimmy Cannon's reply to that youngster who just arrived in town and came into Dave's to meet the so-called big shots as his first step in "conquering the town" . . . "I want to get into the picture business and all I ask is a chance to start at the bottom," he told the bored listeners to which Jimmy retorted, "Why not go down to Delancey St., get your a good accent and start at the top."

Libby Holman's plight continues to be a topic whenever show-people meet, and should North Carolina select its jury from Broadway, I think the torch-singer would come out a national heroine . . . And the sentiment is not simply that of the old-timers who feel that Libby is being persecuted because of her theatrical standing . . . Priscilla Guerney, socially registered dotter of the elevator manufacturer, who has turned to the stage for her profession, added a new light yesterday when she discussed the time she appeared with Libby in Ned Wayburn's "Gambols" . . . "All this talk about Libby playing with revolvers is ridiculous," she said. "I remember her aversion to handling a prop gun in one of the comedy scenes of the show . . . Libby was to play the surprised wife who shoots her husband for a laugh, but her absolute dread of handling the fire-arm compelled the director to put one of the other girls in the show into the sketch . . . Incidentally the one to replace her was her closest pal, Garnet O'Brien, whose father is one of the major executives in the famous flour mills of Milwaukee" . . . Perhaps, those who are to judge Libby, when she goes on her murder, may be happy to know about this incident.

FLIGHTY

SYNOPSIS

Jim O'Malley and his pleasure-mad, hard-drinking family had lived in a house on his wealthy mother's Long Island estate until she dispossessed them in the hope that Jim and his son Jiggs would go to work. Gypsy O'Malley went to live with her grandmother. Jiggs was her half-brother. Her half-sister Angel was in the Follies. She took an apartment on Park avenue. Peg, Gypsy's step-mother, still good looking at 40, had gone to Reno for a divorce. She was found dead in bed the day after Pete De Whittley married a girl of his own age. Suicide was hinted. Before the family was broken up, Gypsy went job-hunting. Returning home one stormy evening, she heard an airplane circling in the darkness. She lighted a pail of gasoline as a flare and Brent Jamison, famous transatlantic flier, landed safely. He taught her to fly, assisted by Ted Colman. She fell in love with Brent but she was captivated by Angel's baby-faced beauty and they became engaged. "Pinky" Delmar, owner of Jamison airport, entered Gypsy in the women's air races, and had a special racing plane built for her. Two days before that event Mrs. Delmar surprised "Pinky" and Angel in Angel's apartment and shot "Pinky" in the arm. Because of the publicity, Gypsy wanted to withdraw but Ted told her it was too late. With every prospect of winning the race to Washington, D. C., Gypsy saw Brent's wrecked plane lying in a cornfield and circled in the hope of finding a landing place. Brent had started in the men's race.

INSTALMENT XXVIII

It was Delmar who first sighted Gypsy's plane streaking back to Jamison Field. He rubbed his eyes, unbelievingly, and ran to the hangar where he knew Ted would be.

"Colman—look! Isn't that Miss O'Malley?" he shouted.

Ted said incredulously. "It can't be. But—it is! What could have happened?"

They stood waiting tensely while Gypsy circled for a landing. When the plane came down they were at her side. Gypsy, her face streaked with tears, pointed to a huddled figure in the back seat.

"It's Brent Jamison—quick call an ambulance."

Delmar was white as Ted helped Gypsy from the ship. "Is—he badly hurt?"

Ted ran to call an ambulance before Gypsy had a chance to tell the story. She caught her breath.

"I—I'm afraid he is, Mr. Delmar. I saw his wreck on a farm a few miles this side of Washington and a farmer helped me put him in my plane. I thought it would take longer to send for a doctor there—or to get him to a Washington hospital—than to bring him here. The hospital is less than a mile away."

"You're right," said Delmar trembling with excitement. "You did the right thing. I hope he isn't a goner."

"Oh—he can't be!" Gypsy cried desperately.

Ted came running back with a doctor who happened to be on the field. They stood by while he climbed up to look at Brent. Jamison was wrapped in an old-fashioned quilt which the farmer's wife had offered to Gypsy. The doctor felt his pulse and stepped down.

"His pulse is still going pretty well. There's no use moving him till the stretcher comes. I can't tell you anything yet."

While they waited Delmar told the story Gypsy had told him. Ted saw the disappointment and grief in her face and knew that Gypsy O'Malley had fought the most desperate battle of her life with herself.

"You couldn't have been more than 15 minutes from Washington," he told her then. "And you had been gone only 40 minutes. You would have made it in less than an hour."

"She would have won," said Delmar, turning away to hide his disappointment, "hands down."

"No doubt about it," Ted said. He put his arm through Gypsy's as she seemed about to fall. "But you're a good little soldier, Gypsy. It's all in the game."

"I—I couldn't have gone on." A little sob caught in her throat. "I—I'm sorry, Mr. Delmar."

"Forget it." Delmar held out his hand. "You're a gentleman, Miss O'Malley. You'll never lose anything by playing the square game."

Coming from a man of Delmar's type, Gypsy knew it was one of the greatest compliments he could have paid her. Her eyes clouded again with relief that he understood. There was something admirable in "Pinky" after all.

They heard the ambulance coming and Ted nodded to Delmar significantly.

"Gypsy must be tired after all the excitement. Suppose you take her into the office and let her rest a while. I'll string along with the ambulance."

"Yes, yes," Delmar said and took her arm, adding, "Pardon me for not thinking about it, Miss O'Malley. Come along and we'll get you a drink of something hot."

Gypsy looked at the bundle that was Brent and hesitated.

"There's nothing more you can do, now," Ted urged her to go. "I'll give you a ring from the hospital as soon as the doctors have looked him over."

She walked away with Delmar who put his arm around her shoulders when he saw how weak the shock had left her. Never in his life had "Pinky" admired a girl as he did Gypsy at that moment. It seemed impossible to him that she could be a sister of Angel O'Malley. He was sorry he had compelled her to pose for pictures and wear flying clothes that had embarrassed her.

Some day he would apologize. For once in his life he knew what it was to be thoroughly ashamed of himself for the way he had misunderstood Gypsy. The loss of money and the glory of having his entrant win in the women's air races did not enter his mind. Even thought he had spent a small fortune on the little white plane.

Delmar found a chair for Gypsy and put a cushion to her back. When he went in search of hot coffee for her she sank back and closed her eyes. All her lovely dreams of success—and the money to pay the O'Malley debts—were ended. And suppose her sacrifice would mean nothing after all? Suppose Brent were to die?

She had done all this for a man who despised her. A man who loved her sister—who had ruined his happiness. Gypsy had eaten her heart out for him and he had cared nothing for her. After all he had done, she had given up the only thing that had ever mattered in her life for him. She smiled bitterly.

The chance had come for her to laugh at Brent Jamison and tell him, "I told you so." Instead, she had wished him luck before the races—and given up $25,000 to save his life. If he lived, would he still call her a "notoriety seeker?"

All these thoughts went through her mind while she waited for "Pinky" to come back with the coffee. Every second she grew more bitter. It seemed like a horrid nightmare—and that she would wake up and find it not true.

"Pinky's hands shook when he handed her the cup. She looked up to thank him with a faint little smile.

"We ought to near from Ted pretty soon," she managed to say.

"Gosh," he rubbed his hand across his head, dripping wet with cold perspiration, "I hope so. It seems like a week since they left."

Just then Delmar's secretary came out of the office.

"Miss O'Malley, Mr. Colman phoned and asked if you would please come over to the hospital."

Delmar jumped. "I'll drive you, Miss O'Malley."

It was less than 10 minutes later that Ted met them in the corridor of the hospital. There was a broad smile on his face and Gypsy knew the news was not what she had expected.

"Brent," he said, "came to while we were bringing him over. We told him what had happened and he refuses to go to sleep until he has seen you."

Gypsy's face lit with relief.

"Oh—I'm so glad he's going to be all right."

"Is he badly banged up?" Pinky was able to smile, too, then.

"They aren't sure until x-rays are made. But he's out of the running for a few weeks at least. The doctor says there's no use trying to do anything until he has seen you, though, Gypsy. I guess he wants to thank you."

Suddenly the happiness in Gypsy's face brought Ted to a realization. He stepped back and gripped his hands. Why hadn't he thought of it before? Gypsy was in love with Brent Jamison! Stupid, blind idiot that he had been! No wonder she had always been just a friend to him. She loved Brent.

When he saw Gypsy go into Brent's room he felt all the happiness going out of his life. Blindly he walked out of the hospital and found himself seated with Delmar riding back to the airport.

Gypsy stood beside Brent's bed a second before he looked up through his bandages to recognize her. She saw his eyes—pleading and tortured—and bent to smile reassurance.

With a cry, half a moan and half of joy, he reached up to her.

"Gypsy—Gypsy—can you forgive me?"

She smiled at him trembligly.

"There's nothing to forgive, Brent. Nothing."

He looked at her then as though he were seeing her for the first time.

"Gypsy—how could I have been so blind? Gypsy—I—I love you."

She stepped back and her large brown eyes opened wide in astonishment.

Brent Jamison was telling her he loved her. She sat down on a chair beside his bed and continued to look at him silently. He held out his hand weakly.

"Will you let me make up to you for all the unhappiness I must have given you? I—I'm trying to ask you to marry this poor old wreck."

Before Gypsy could catch her breath the nurse stepped into the door. "The doctor says the visitor will have to leave, Mr. Jamison."

Gypsy bent over Brent and touched his face. "You—you get patched up—and I'll come to see you tomorrow."

"Will you give me your answer then?"

"I—yes."

Gypsy turned and fled from the room.

In the corridor they handed her a message from Ted. Mary Carson, the girl flier from San Francisco, had won the $25,000 for the fastest trip to Washington. Gypsy would have beaten her time by nearly 20 minutes.

A.—It is the oldest of stringed instruments. The Bible mentions Jubal as the inventor. The harp has been used by all nations in one form or another. The improvements which have rendered the modern harp an efficient musical instrument are due to Sebastian Erard, who in 1794 took out a patent for a harp with seven pedals, and again in 1808 for a double-action harp with the same number of pedals, each of which effects two changes in the pitch of the strings. Various improvements over Erard's harp were made during the 19th century.

DANIEL TALKS ON PROHIBITION

Majority Rule Advocated By Class Teacher

Universal compliance with the national prohibition amendment so long as it remains in the constitution, and its prompt, orderly repeal if such a step is desired by a majority of voters, were urged by Roy J. Daniel in his talk Sunday morning on temperance before members of the Kay Bible class of the First Methodist church.

Prohibition has been forced into prominence as a political question, the speaker said, although "people who are Christians must consider it as purely a moral problem."

Mr. Daniel spoke in part as follows:

"This lesson is about the evils of intemperance. Of course we know that the ideal situation in any phase of life is to exercise temperance. We should seek to be temperate in all things. It is difficult for a straight-line Democrat such as I am to think or talk about temperance or intemperance without thinking about the much discussed subject of prohibition. Now the subject of prohibition has many angles. If you are a business man and vitally interested in taxation, then perhaps you regard prohibition as an economic question, and consider favorably an increased revenue for the government from a tax on liquors. If you are a social worker then of course you consider the prohibition question as one of a social nature. Then perhaps you are a politician. If that is true then you look at the prohibition question as a political question.

Moral Question

"Now all of us who are Christians must consider the prohibition question as a moral question. I think it is a subject that partakes of all the above mentioned natures. I want to briefly refer to the political angle of the prohibition question. We live in a democracy, where the majority rules on every question. The majority of the American people wanted the 18th amendment placed in the federal constitution, and there it was placed. Now I believe that as long as it is a part of our federal constitution it is our duty as citizens of the United States—as law-abiding citizens—to uphold and enforce or attempt to enforce the 18th amendment and laws relating thereto. The majesty of the law should be placed above any personal idea you or I may have concerning the justice of the law or the advisability of the law. I further believe that if the sentiment of the people of the United States has changed against the 18th amendment then it should be lawfully and legally repealed and taken from the sacred federal constitution. And the only way to find out if the people want a change is to permit them to express themselves at the ballot box. We should always abide by what the majority registers at the ballot box. That is the only way to have a government in a democracy.

"Among the forms of sickness we human beings are heir to are sickness of the body, sickness of the mind, and sickness of the spirit. While on my vacation I saw a terrible car wreck on the highway near Hillsboro. Everybody it seemed stopped their cars to render aid and assistance to the unfortunate friends wrecked. We desire to be merciful toward any one in bodily pain or suffering from sickness of body. When there is sickness of body, then the cause must be removed to restore health. Even on the battlefield the soldier shows mercy toward his wounded captured enemy whom a short time before he had sought to kill. Down at the fine government hospital at Waco there are many world war veterans who are suffering mental sickness on account of shell shock and suffering in that terrible war in France. Everybody is kind and patient with those unfortunate comrades of yours and mine. Patience and kind treatment restore many of the boys to normal condition of mind again. Then there is another kind of sickness we are heir to, and that form is sickness of the spirit. We can call it a rundown personality. But that sickness can be cured by just one doctor, and that doctor is not an earthly doctor whose office is in some great clinic. But the doctor who can cure our spirit sickness is the Son of God. When our consciences tell us that we are sick in spirit let us go to that great Physician and Divine Doctor who alone can make us well again. Every Sunday morning we should go in our imagination to a mountain top and look back over the road we have traveled the past week. If we see any curves or kinks in the road let us seek to straighten them out and resolve as we tread the path of a new week to make the road just as straight and pleasant to the eye as we possibly can."

Bank Safe at Leggett Too Much for Yeggs

LIVINGSTON, Texas, Sept. 4. (AP)—Three times in the past eight years yeggs have made unsuccessful attempts to rob the Farmers State bank at Leggett. One night recently three bandits after drilling a hole through the vault door and failing to reach the safe, set in reinforced concrete with only the door exposed, gave it up as a job beyond their skill. They departed with $8 in pennies found in a box on top of the safe.

Education, Not Politics, Proper Medium For Temperance—Martin

Judge Tells Bible Class That 'Christ Cure' Is Most Effective Means of Fighting Alcoholism

The question of strong drink is a moral and economic question, has no place in politics and must be solved by education of members of society to outlaw the use of intoxicating beverages, Judge P. A. Martin said before members of the Floral Heights Methodist church Men's Bible class Sunday morning.

Judge Martin declared his disinclination to make a "prohibition speech" on the day designated for the study of temperance, but discussed instead the physical effects of alcoholic beverages upon mind and body. The speaker deplored the fact that "political leaders have managed in the late years to keep the question of prohibition to the forefront in our elections."

No Place for Politics

Judge Martin spoke as follows:

"Our political leaders of the major parties have managed in late years to keep the question of prohibition to the forefront in our elections and have divided the people into rival camps in regard to it to such an extent that a man cannot discuss the subject of prohibition without entering the field of so-called politics, and this is no place to discuss politics or anything akin to politics, so if you are expecting a prohibition speech from me you are doomed to disappointment for I shall not enter into this field in this presence, but shall confine myself to a discussion of the evils of intemperance and the effect of alcohol on the human mind and body. As our political wiseacres have plunged both of our great parties into a frenzied race to see which is the 'wettest' I will leave the 18th amendment and the Volstead act to be discussed on the hustings rather than in the churches.

"I have been reading a book, published by the Literary Digest people for the Life Extension institute, entitled 'How to Live.' It quotes the findings of the actuaries of some 43 life insurance companies in America and also some of England to the effect that even the moderate use of beer, wine or liquor shortens human life and thus increases the risk. It contains the bare statement also that alcohol has no curative value in medicine and that its effect is always deleterious to both the mind and the body of mankind. It also stresses the fact, which we all know, that it is one of the worst of the 'habit-forming' drugs used by humanity, breaking down the moral character as well as the physical strength of its victims and making an abject slave out of its addicts. It quotes the oft-repeated statement of Dr. Charles H. Mayo while he was president of the American Medical association, that the only use for alcohol was in the arts and sciences and not as a medicine or a beverage. No higher authority exists in this or any other country.

What Industrialists Say

"It is also the testimony of all the great industrial leaders of the day that the use of alcohol militates against the usefulness of men in industrial life and very few, if any, of them will employ men who drink intoxicants. I think the experience of men engaged in the administration of the law will justify the statement that the use of intoxicants is the direct or indirect cause of more men and women going wrong, more poverty, more crime, more vice and degradation, more widows and orphans than any other one thing.

"No other drug is so deceiving, so treacherous in its effect. It quickens the imagination, lights up the fires of ambition and passion, paints rainbows in the skies, covers the earth with flowers of brightest hue: for awhile; and then as he drinks the dregs at the bottom of the cup a hideous serpent takes the place of the rainbow and the flowers become myriads of loathsome crawling things with beady eyes fastened upon him and reaching for him with a thousand tenacles. I have seen men in the throes of 'delirium tremens'; strong men and otherwise good men at that; but I hope I may never see another.

Problem for Church

"The liquor question is therefore a vital question for no matter how it is handled by the state or the nation, just as long as men will buy and drink the stuff, and as long as grain and fruit juices will ferment and produce alcohol there will be men who will make and sell it, either lawfully or unlawfully and it is the business of the church of God to teach its votaries that the human body is the temple of the Holy Spirit not to be defiled by either wine or strong drink. It is also the business of the fathers and mothers of the land to teach the rising generation, how useless, how foolish, how sinful and how very dangerous it is to the mind, body and spirit to tamper with a drug that cannot possibly do them any good and, on the other hand, may cause them everlasting shame, disgrace and death.

"Men argue and disagree about the efficacy of human laws to make people sober; but I never yet heard a man say that the grace of God could not make a sober man out of a drunkard and keep him sober. Thousands of addicts I am sure, have been helped by the 'Keeley cure' and other treatments; but the safest and best cure of all is the 'Christ cure' and I recommend it not only as a cure but as a sure preventive of the great evil of intemperance.

"And this, I believe to be the great call and duty of the church of God. Far be it from me to criticize those who conceive it to be the duty of the church to advise and admonish its members as to the manner in which it should be handled politically, how to vote and who to vote for. My own opinion is, however, that if the heart of a people is right, they will find the best way to handle this much-mooted question of governmental prohibition or control.

"While we may differ as to the proper way to handle the traffic in intoxicants let us avail ourselves of the opportunities offered by the church, the home and the schoolroom to teach the rising generations the evils of intemperance and the effect of strong drink upon the body, mind and soul of the drinker."

WAR LORD OF CHINA KILLED

Once Powerful Warrior Is Victim of Assassins

PEIPING, Sept. 4. (US)—Marshal Chang Chung-Chang, China's unemployed former northern war lord, was killed by the guns of three youths whose father the marshal executed during the days he held sway over populous Shantung province, it was learned today.

The marshal was shot down in the Tsinanfu railway station yesterday as he was boarding a train for Peiping. He had gone to his former capital Friday in an effort to align assistance for a return to power.

His assassins were today reported to be sons of a general he turned over to the headsman when his word meant life or death—mostly death—to the 30,000,000 inhabitants of Shantung province.

Seven Feet Tall

Chang was the most picturesque of China's old style war lords. More than seven feet tall, he was known as the "mountain man." His strength was that of an ox. On several occasions he saved the headsman work by killing those who displeased him with a blow of his fist.

Wherever fortunes of war took him he was trailed by a harem of white and native wives and concubines. At one time he had 30 women in his harem.

Coming from the docks at Vladivostok where he did coolie labor, the marshal returned to his native province of Shantung, rallied a powerful bandit army to his standard and conquered Shantung and Chihli, even extending his power to Shanghai.

Man of His Word

In 1928 he was driven out of Shantung by Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, later president of China. The marshal then fled to Japan taking his harem with him.

The marshal was a man of his word. Departing on one of his bloody campaigns, he promised to come back victorious or in his coffin. He lost.

He returned to Tsinanfu riding in his coffin—a gaudy red lacquer affair—and smoking a gigantic cigar. The coffin was on a flat car preceding the railroad coach in which huddled his 30 wives and concubines.

PASTOR URGES NEED OF JOBS

McKenney Reviews Labor's Problems

Drastic need of one-tenth or more of the nation's population for remunerative employment was discussed by Dr. S. S. McKenney, pastor of the First Methodist church, as a preface to his sermon on "Jesus, the Carpenter," Sunday night.

Making a brief survey of national conditions with reference to labor, in observance of Labor day, Dr. McKenney expressed his conviction that the economic conditions in the United States are the most serious and difficult which the country ever has faced.

The speaker declared the needlessness of discussing "The Dignity of Labor," as in earlier years, when "our problem is not that of finding men to work, but rather that of finding work for men to do." Dr. McKenney estimated that at least 11,000,000 men will be unemployed in the United States by midwinter, and represented that such a condition will mean at least 27,500,000 persons dependent upon the public for bare necessities.

The speaker commended the peaceable and unoffending conduct with which unfortunate thousands have endured continued unemployment. Citing efforts of cities to take care of dependent families by engaging men to do "made work," to be paid for out of charity contributions, Dr. McKenney said most cities are abandoning that plan as unsatisfactory.

The speaker expressed hope that the new federal emergency relief act will augment the supply of labor by increasing the circulation of capital among business institutions. He also stressed the American Federation of Labor's fight for the establishment of a 30-hour work week, purposed to restore 7,000,000 men to paying jobs.

Swiss Police Arrest Suspect in Girl's Death

VIEGE, Switzerland, Sept. 4. (US)—Police today arrested a young Swiss ex-convict and sought an Austrian youth as suspects in the brutal murder on a lonely Alps mountain road of Miss Jeanne Ibershoff, 21-year-old Cleveland girl, who with her sister was making a bicycle tour of Europe.

The former convict was arrested at the home of his parents in Val Saint Nicholas, not far from the spot where Miss Ibershoff, her head crushed by a stone, was found yesterday morning.

The local chief of police said today:

"We are working on the theory that Miss Ibershoff was murdered by a young Swiss ex-convict from whom she perhaps asked directions. He probably made advances to her and became furious when she repulsed him, savagely beating her to death."

Farmers' Strike Dormant Pending Governors' Meet

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Sept. 4. (US)—With exception of a few pickets on highways in the vicinity of Sioux City the farm strike that began more than three weeks ago was dormant today. It was not expected the farmers would make any further move until after the governors conference here next Friday.

Governors of at least six states will attend the conference. The governors of 15 states had been invited in the initial call sent out by Gov. Warren E. Green, of South Dakota, and Governor Olson, of Minnesota. The six states to be represented by their governors or their representatives are South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, North Dakota, Ohio and Oklahoma. THRILLS AND UPSETS MARK FIRST ROUNDS OF GOLF TOURNEY

BECKER BEATS 'CITY' WALKER

Roy Farrell, Vernon Ace, Whips Bob Peck

Excited galleries rushed to watch first one match and then another yesterday as a coterie of some of the finest golfers in this end of Texas staged thrills and upsets in the first two rounds of match play in the fifth annual Wichita Falls Golf and Country club invitation tournament.

The lucky eight who survived out of the starting field of 32 in the championship flight included Fort Worth's amazing golf ball swatter, Byron Nelson, who rattled off an easy 8 and 6 decision over Solon Featherston in the first round and then clicked off a 35 on the first nine, two strokes under par, to eliminate game little Rufus King, a lad still in his teens, in the second round.

City Walker Defeated

But Nelson, who was the qualifying round sensation when he biffed a 71 to set a new course record here, was overshadowed Sunday by a couple of "dark war-horses" Louis Becker of Dallas and Roy Farrell of Vernon. Becker defeated the veteran L. S. (City) Walker in the last, and one of the most thrilling matches of the day, carrying the Quanah marksman to the 19th green to win, one up. Farrell eliminated the popular Bob Peck, formerly a Wichitan who now claims Altus, Okla., as his home. The score was 3 and 2, the match ending on the 16th green after Peck had consistently been unable to make his putter work.

Another outstanding match was played when Budley Raines of Abilene clashed with Orion Daniel, champion of the recent Junior chamber of commerce tournament here, in a second round match. Raines eliminated Daniel in a bitterly-fought duel that did not end until the 20th green had been reached.

Others who entered the quarter-finals were Jack Parr of Electra, Morris Norton, L. T. (Bobby) Burns and Fred T. Couper Jr., all of this city.

Parr beat Frank Williams of Wichita Falls in the first round, 4 and 3, while E. P. Bass of Longview was beating Doc Burleson, 3 and 2. Parr then beat Bass in the second round, 1 up. Norton disposed of V. L. Couch in the first round by a 3-2 count and then beat A. E. Rowland of Waco, who had defeated Jack Tinnin of Paris in the first round, 1 up. The score was 2 and 1.

Burns Beats Hall

Bobby Burns whipped R. A. King in the first round, 4 and 2, while Neal Hall of Burkburnett was defeating Wilburn Page in an extra hole match that ended on the 19th green. Bobby then had easy sledding over Hall, winning 8 and 6.

Couper won his first round match with Bill Parker of Abilene, 4 and 3, and then defeated Guy Underwood, 4 and 3. Underwood in the first round had surprised the gallery by defeating the veteran J. H. S. Bonner by a score of 3 and 2.

Farrell, Peck's conqueror, won his first round match over Shadie Hale of this city, 4 and 3. Farrell shot great golf in both of his matches. The youngster is present city champion of Vernon, and was a first flighter in the recent Greenbelt Golf tournament at Electra.

Becker, hero of the Walker match, won his first round encounter with A. B. Maples, Wichita Falls, with ease, the score being 8 and 6. Becker, a young fellow getting his first taste of tournament golf, was unable to qualify for the championship flight in the recent Dallas Country club invitation, but he showed rare form Sunday in eliminating the Quanah ace. City won the 15th and 16th holes to square the match and then went one up with a victory on 17, only to have the advantage washed away when his second on 18 dribbled off the green and into a sandtrap. Becker sank a four to square the match.

Walker's Putt Short

On the 19th, both got off splendid drives of around 256 yards, landing near the green. Both pitches were a yard or so from the bucket, but Walker's putt stopped a foot short when he attempted to sink. Becker holed out as darkness settled over the course to end the last thrilling match of the day.

The gallery first followed the par-shattering adventures of Byron Nelson, by all acclaimed as the tournament favorite. After the Nelson-King match it switched to the Peck-Farrell match, and finally to the Walker-Becker duel.

In the quarterfinal round today, sparks will fly from every corner of the course. Nelson is paired with Budley Raines, former West Texas champion. Raines once defeated City Walker when the champions of West Texas and the Greenbelt association staged a play-off. This match promises to be one of the best of the day.

Jack Parr will clash with Morris Norton in the other battle in the upper bracket. In the lower bracket Farrell will take on Becker and the two rivals of old, Bobby Burns and Fred Couper Jr., will meet in the other match.

Semifinals Today

The championship flight matches are scheduled to get started about 9 o'clock Monday morning. Semifinals will be played in the afternoon, with the 36-hole final following on Tuesday.

The matches yesterday were played in threatening weather. At one time the threat was carried out, and a heavy shower soaked players and spectators.

Complete results of the first two rounds of play are given below. All players are from Wichita Falls unless otherwise designated.

BROWNS WIN AND LOSE

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 4. (AP)—Faban Kowalik, White Sox rookie, was unable to hold the Browns in the first game of today's double-header, St. Louis winning 7 to 5, but Paul Gregory allowed only six safe blows in the aftermath, and Chicago won, 5 to 1.

Kowalik was driven from the mound in the seventh inning of the first game, and Gallivan and Chamberlin finished. Bumps Hadley, who was knocked out in the first inning of yesterday's game, went the route for St. Louis. Score:

Dutra Victor In Pro Tournament

ST. PAUL, Sept. 4. (AP)—Olin Dutra, towering senor from Santa Monica, Calif., scaled the national professional golf throne at Keller today on the tide of probably the most remarkable records in the ancient game's history.

Rushing along the par-breaking trail that he started at historic Lido where his big war clubs won the Metropolitan open, the Pacific coast star trimmed the surprising Frank Walsh of Chicago with a brilliant finish to win his third title in as many starts, four and three.

As Dutra strolled to the club house to receive his crown, the record books showed that he had conquered prefect figure by 19 holes in his full six-day 196 hole campaign of the big championship show over what every contestant said were some of the trickiest greens in the country.

In his stirring three-week campaign, which netted him the Metropolitan and North Shore Chicago open titles and his newly won professional crown, Dutra has played 304 holes in 31 shots under par. If there is a duplicate of that record, President Charles Hall of the Professional Golfers' Association of America would like to hear about it.

HILL LEAGUE CLOSES

LLANO, Texas, Sept. 4. (AP)—The season's final games for the Hill Country Baseball league were played today. Llano had already won the championship. In today's games Llano defeated Fredericksburg, 7 to 2. Mason defeated Kerrville, 6 to 0. Brady and Junction were rained out.

From the capitol of another British dominion—Canberra in Australia—has come to Canada a gift of 18,000 seeds of rare Australian trees and shrubs.

Steers Defeat Exporters, 6 To 4, To Regain Texas League Pinnacle

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 4. (AP)—Big George Murray, wheel horse of the Dallas Steers, pitched and batted the Mavericks into the Texas league lead here Sunday afternoon when he made his third appearance on the mound in three days and subdued the Exporters 6 to 4 before 5,000 hostile fans.

Tarheel George smacked out a homer, a double and two singles as his contribution to the afternoon's activities, besides scoring three runs, driving in one and starting a rally in the seventh that led to a counter. George was hit lustily by the Baker boys, but he was at his best in the pinches and left 10 Exporters stranded on the sacks. Except for the second and seventh frames, when the Exporters did their scoring, he was invincible.

It was his 23rd victory of the season, his second in three days over the Shippers and marked 304 innings of toil for the Steers this season.

Luke Hamlin started for the Exporters but was chased under fire in the fifth. Judge Schulz relieved Luke and gave way to a pinch batsman in the eighth, Orlin Collier tossing the final round. Skipper Del Baker juggled his pitchers and players desperately in an effort to salvage the game, but Murray was at his best and the Steers were fielding brilliantly. Score:

LONGVIEW BREAKS EVEN

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 4. (AP)—San Antonio closed its final home stand of the year here today by splitting a double-header with Longview, losing the first game, 10 to 2, and winning the last, a seven-inning affair, 2 to 1. The wildness of the two Indian pitchers, Sackett and Hinson, accounted for the loss, while the pinch pitching of Gabler in the second game accounted for the victory. Score:

BUFFS, CATS DIVIDE

HOUSTON, Sept. 4. (AP)—Ralph Judd, stocky Buff right-hander, turned in a great exhibition of pitching Sunday afternoon to best Dick Whitworth in 12 innings and give Houston an even break in the twin bill with the Fort Worth Panthers.

Judd and Whitworth tangled in the opening tilt and the Buff twirler limited the Cats to five hits in the overtime engagement. A "Yo-Yo" Yoter supplied the winning punch, a drive through first base that scored Funk from second for the 3 to 2 decision.

In the nightcap the Cats bunched hits off Hanson after he replaced Beckman and drove in three tallies for a 4 to 2 victory. Gribble worked six innings for Fort Worth, giving way to Appleton in the seventh when the lead-off connected for a single. He retired the side without damage. Scores:

TYLER BEATS BUCS

GALVESTON, Sept. 4. (AP)—The Tyler Sports won one game from Galveston here today behind the shutout pitching of Nichtolas, 8 to 0 and then rallied to gain a tie in the nightcap, 3-3. The second game was called because of darkness at the end of the seventh inning with Thormahlen and Hubbell working against each other on the mound.

Sloppy play afield cost Galveston fans a first rate hurler's battle in the first game, as Cromer and Nichtolas hooked up for seven innings with two runs that errors let in for the only scores. Cromer was pulled for a pinch hitter in the seventh and the Sports made six more runs off Taylor and Woods.

The Sports' rally in the second game was accomplished largely by bunting to Del Pratt, the Buc manager having placed himself at third base since Molesworth's departure Saturday night for Chicago, where he will play professional football. Score:

NETTERS REACH SEMI-FINALS

McCarty-Hall, Bebb-Hanks To Clash

Tom McCarty, West Texas 1932 tennis champion, will meet Cliff Hall and Edwin A. Bebb will clash with H. R. Hanks Jr. at 10 a. m. Monday at the Country club in the semi-finals of the three-day handicap men's singles tournament which opened Saturday morning. Finals between the winners in the morning matches will be played at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. All semi-final and final matches will be for three out of five sets.

The four semi-finalists who will provide Monday morning's tennis show emerged from quarter-finals played Sunday afternoon before a large gallery which remained practically throughout the day. In the first quarter-finals engagement Sunday afternoon, Cliff Hall, class 2 rank, eliminated Bill Underwood in straight sets, 6-1, 6-2, after giving a one-point handicap. His opponent's wildness in service gave Hall a constant edge of which he took full advantage. McCarty, class 1, overpowered Paul Hines of class 2 rating, with deadly overhead smashes as the deciding factor in a 7-5, 6-3 victory.

Bebb and Olin Harvey, classes 1 and 2 respectively, traveled three sets before the former gained the decision. Adept placements and refusal to "bog down" enabled Bebb to overcome Harvey's smash service and formidable back-hand drives. The scores were 6-1, 1-6, 6-4. Hanks, class 2, south-pawed Joe Kocher of class 3 rating into submission in two sets, 6-4, 6-1. The left-hander's finesse at the net was a decisive element in turning the tide, as each player handled a barrage of backcourt ground balls with almost unbroken regularity.

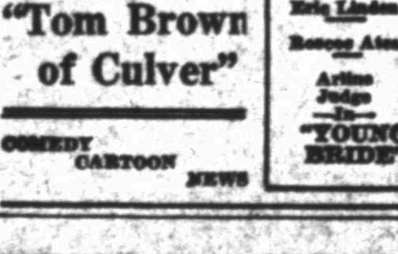

Eight second round matches were disposed of Sunday morning to produce the eight quarter-finalists. Underwood started the day at 8 o'clock with a 6-1, 6-3 victory over George Sibert, both of class 3 rating. Hanks eliminated J. N. Hall, class 2, by scores of 6-4, 6-4, and McCarty, class 1, disposed of Arch Greenwood 6-4, 2-6, 6-3. Paul Hines, class 2, was extended to win in three sets over Rowland Dills, who enjoyed a two-point per game handicap plus one game per set. The scores were 2-6, 9-7, and 8-6. Cliff Hall, class 2, overcame a similar handicap to defeat Ernest Robertson 6-2, 5-7, and 6-2. Joe Kocher, classified in the third group, had the aid of a two-point handicap per game in eliminating Charles Cook, one of the dominant court figures here for several years. After the two had divided the first two sets, each by a 6-4 score, Cook's momentary spell of wildness in the third set gave Kocher a 6-3 victory.

Ed Bebb won by default from V. Black, class 2, to enter the quarter-finals, and Harvey put away Brouthertin, class 3, in straight sets, 7-5, 6-3, overcoming a one-point handicap.

The Harvey-Bebb and Kocher-Hanks matches were interrupted for about 15 minutes Sunday afternoon by a sudden shower.

Silver loving cups, given by the Bailey-Moline Hardware company, will be awarded the winner and runner-up of Wichita Falls' first handicap tennis tournament at the conclusion of the final match at 3 p. m.
