WHAT IT TAKES TO SUCCEED IN DAIRYING

The South is an ideal dairy country. Her mild climate cuts out the necessity for elaborate and expensive buildings. Her markets are the only ones not already facing an over production and a surplus of dairy products. Fluid milk brings a third more in the South than in the Middle West and New England. If dairymen in these sections can produce milk, ship it South and at the same time make a profit, how much more would Southern dairymen make by producing and marketing milk at home!

Probably the biggest asset to a great dairy industry in the South is a solution of the "feed problem." The South can grow all kinds of hay and silage crops. Her permanent pastures last longer and her temporary pasture crops are more numerous than in any other section. Abuzzi rye is coming to be looked upon as a standby for late fall, winter and early spring grazing. Sudan grass and sweet clover offer abundant grazing during the hot, dry summer months.

To the farmer who is struggling year after year, dairying offers a cash sideline with a regular income, every month that means a more comfortable living. He must realize, however, that dairying is a seven-days-in-the-week, 365-days-in-the-year job, beginning before day and ending with dark, and pays larger profits than one-crop farming simply because the business affords opportunity for two things:

(1) More work-hours per year.

(2) A greater use of brains and intelligence in the work.

The man who would go into dairying must also realize that it is not a business one can go into this year and get out of next year without heavy loss. We can't buy cows and build barns and then quit.

However, for the "stick-to-it" man who is willing to go into the business for 365 days in the year and a life-time at that and breed cows as well as milk cows, we predict success. Climatic conditions here are favorable, and good foundation stock is available and reasonable. The South needs more dairymen with patience, progressiveness, and a will to "breed" and "grow" into the business. These pioneer breeders have blazed the trail of doubt and have proved that the South is wonderfully suited to scientific dairying. — The Progressive Farmer.

Bazaar Notes

The ladies of the Methodist Church will meet with Mrs. Geo. Cavaness Friday, Dec. 3, for the last sewing meeting for the bazaar. You are expected to come and bring all finished articles, where they will be on display at this meeting.

We had a very pleasant sewing meeting with Mrs. E. R. Bonden last Friday.

Delicious home made candy was served while the fingers were busy.

The bazaar will be held Saturday, Dec. 11, further notice will be found elsewhere in this paper.

You will help in a good cause by patronizing the bazaar and the ladies will appreciate your patronage very much.

Rev. G. H. Lang of Kerrville, Presbyterian minister, will hold services at the Methodist Church Sunday, Dec. 5. Rev. Lang will bring with him a quartette of boys from the Schreiner Institute to aid in the music. The public is cordially invited to attend.

SOUTH LLANO NEWS

The farmers are preparing their ground for next year's farming.

Walter Savage has been at work on the Moran Ranch this past week.

Miss Dottie Fleming of Rock-springs spent the week end with her brother, Lem, at the ranch.

The younger set enjoyed a dance at Paint Creek school house. All report a good time.

The Utility Co. is putting in material at the ranch on South Llano for improvements of the ranch.

Mrs. M. Huffman spent the last week end with home folks on the ranch, returning to Junction Sunday.

Mrs. Chas. Henderson honored her granddaughter, Miss Eloise Hardeman, with a dance Saturday night.

Rev. J. J. Ray filled his regular appointment at Ever Green Sunday. There was a good attendance.

Mesdames Moran and Tugers and Walter Savage of Calif Creek were guests at the F. M. Hodges home Sunday.

Misses Gussie and Flossie Boone and Doris Jones attended singing at the Roscoe Stephens home Saturday night. The occasion was well attended and enjoyed by all.

Miss Eloise Hardeman, who spent Thanksgiving with home folks, returned to Austin Monday. Her mother, Mrs. Guy Wynne, accompanied her for a few days visit in Austin.

Mrs. Lula Schroeder

The news of the death of Mrs. Lula Schroeder, who passed away on the morning of the 30th, at Mason, reach here shortly after it occurred.

Mrs. Schroeder died from diphtheria. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Hodges Sr., and a triplet sister of Mrs. R. J. Motley and Mrs. Joe H. Ramsey.

Deceased was born in Junction, February 14, 1886, and was reared to womanhood in this city.

Besides her husband she survived by her mother and father and three brothers and three sisters.

Funeral services were held at Mason from the Methodist Church of that place, the pastor conducting the service, at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Chas. Schreiner Company of Kerrville are putting on an anniversary sale on Dec. 6, and continuing for several days. This business was established in 1869 and has continued to grow and prosper with the "Hill Country" and Kerrville. During the 55 years that this firm has been operating it has grown from a little country store to a large department store, the equal of which would be hard to find in another town in Texas the size of, or even much larger than Kerrville. The Schreiner Company make an announcement in this issue of The Eagle.

L. Berry White, who for the past two months has been operating the machine in The Eagle, left Saturday for Kerrville, where he takes a similar position with the Mountain Sun. The Eagle regrets very much the change, but will always wish Berry the best of luck wherever he may be as we found him a conscientious, untiring worker and pleasant personality. He is succeeded here by William Hennessy of San Antonio.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Holtzer attended the Texas-A. & M. game at Austin and on their return visited in Llano. Miss Katherine Brown, Mrs. Holtzer's sister, accompanied them home.

MRS. MCGINTIE SPEAKS ON SAFETY FIRST

The safeguarding of life and limb and the prevention of accidents and injury to both person and property is being stressed this week in the public schools of Junction, through a series of short safety talks to students by Mrs. E. L. McGintie, a special representative of the safety department of the West Texas Utilities Company.

The many hazards of this mechanical age of swift moving machinery and swift moving vehicles which is yearly adding to the dangers of modern existence as indicated by the constantly mounting toll of victims listed in accident records, is being brought forcefully to the attention of school students in the series of talks and common sense safety rules to be observed at home and on the street are suggested as a means to bring about the protection not only of the children but of their elders.

Special emphasis, of course, is being placed by Mrs. McGintie on the safe handling of electrical apparatus and electric wires. By the use of interesting charts and illustrations she points out the dangers involved in the careless handling of such equipment and tells how these dangers can easily be avoided.

One of the great sources of loss, injury and inconvenience to the electric companies of the country, and to the public they serve, is the widespread practice engaged in by many small boys, and even by some adults, of shooting insulators from high voltage electric poles, or throwing wires of various kinds over electric conductors. What this costs the public in interrupted and impaired electric service, as well as the great danger involved in breaking down these high tension electric lines, is being impressed upon the school children and their co-operation is being sought in preventing this kind of needless waste.

Mrs. McGintie, who has made a special study of safety problems in the electric field, is being given the full co-operation of school authorities in carrying the message of "Safety First" to the schools of West Texas in the territory served by the West Texas Utilities Company, and her talk in the Junction school Thursday morning was well received by both pupils and teachers.

Miss Lola Brooks left Monday for an extended visit to relatives and friends in San Antonio.

Engraved calling cards and Christmas Cards at this office. Call and see the beautiful line and let us order for you. The Eagle.

Sunday School Entertains

Last Friday afternoon the teachers of the Primary Department of the Baptist Sunday School entertained their pupils and a number of small friends with a party at the home of Mrs. Jim Massey.

The Thanksgiving motif prevailed in the decorations with turkey silhouettes festooning the walls, while a huge pumpkin with trailing vines "grew" in the center of the room and autumn leaves and chrysanthemums were an added attraction.

Mrs. L. R. Hodges supervised the interesting and amusing games until the call came to eat, when luscious fruit and a variety of cake were served.

The hostesses on this occasion were Misses Mary Willis and Kate Dekle, Mesdames Tom Jones, M. A. Wilse and Mrs. Jim Massey.

Birthday Party

Little Miss Lenore Riley celebrated her birthday Monday by inviting a number of her playmates to spend the afternoon with her.

The large living room was most attractive with decorations of autumn leaves and flowers.

After a happy hour of merry making the small folk were invited to the "lemonade stand," where Christine Schraub and Jewel Riley served refreshing red lemonade and the pretty birthday cake with white icing and pink decorations surmounted by pink candles was cut. Mrs. Craven cut the dime. Lorena Henderson the penny, and the young honoree the nickel. Toy balloons were presented to each guest, who united in wishing Lenore "many happy returns of the day."

Surprise Party

Miss Aileen Garrett was pleasantly surprised Saturday when she was invited to spend the afternoon with Audrey Barrett and there she found a number of her friends waiting to bestow birthday gifts and greetings upon her.

Autumn leaves of many colors formed the note of decoration.

Amusing games were played until the close of the afternoon when the pretty white birthday cake bearing twelve yellow candles was cut and served with hot chocolate.

Mrs. Johnson was assisted in entertaining on this occasion by Mrs. Garrett.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Baker and little daughter, Beverly, Mr. and Mrs. Pierce Hoggett, Clifford Hamer, Doebay Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Tracey, Fred Coleman and G. A. Goodwin were among those who attended the football game between Simmons College and Howard Payne at Brownwood on Thanksgiving. While a partial list of those who attended the game between Texas and A. & M. at Austin were: Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Mudge, Miss Dorothy Mudge, Miss Louise Sheppard, Miss Cecilia Merchant, Mrs. John Hankins, Miss Lois Hankins, Mrs. Roy Blackburn, Howard Blackburn, Ross Brisson, Mr. and Mrs. Sayers Farmer, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Allen, Mrs. W. W. Allen, Mrs. John Phillips, Miss Elizabeth Summers, Walter Blackburn, Mr. and Mrs. Howell Wright and Mrs. Lee Lowrey.

Mrs. O. D. Nance, assisted by Mrs. H. O. Patterson, will give an entertainment for the benefit of the Cemetery Aid Association in the School Auditorium on Dec. 10. Everyone is urged to attend and assist in raising funds for a worthy purpose.

TEN MAIN REASONS FOR POULTRY FAILURES

"Ninety per cent of the calls we get for help with poultry are caused from lack of attention to simple details and handling the flock," says Allen G. Oliver, poultry extension specialist at State College. "Rarely do we get a call from those thousands of farmers who give their birds the right attention. If I were to sum up the most frequent causes of failure, I would list the following ten:

1. The poultry house allowed to be dark, damp and drafty.
2. Drinking from fountains or troughs allowed to be dirty and filthy or from stagnant pools of water.
3. Lack of fresh air and sunshine, nature's disinfectants, in the house.
4. Failure to clean and disinfect the house at regular intervals.
5. Keeping the flock penned up in unsanitary houses and yards.
6. Allowing dead poultry to remain exposed.
7. Allowing sick poultry to run with remainder of the flock.
8. Building the poultry house in a low, damp location.
9. Failure to provide sufficient water and shade in summer.

These ten things may be observed without great outlay of money and the most that is needed is some work and a proper regard for the dumb creatures. Mr. Oliver makes the added precaution that birds should not be crowded in the house during the day nor on the roosts at night. Each hen needs about three square feet of floor space and from seven to ten inches of roosting space. Plenty of clean water and well kept quarters are always needed for success with poultry.—J. H. Wood, in The Progressive Farmer.

Box Supper a Success

School District No. 16, known as the Grobe and Ivey School, entertained with a splendid program rendered by the pupils and closed with a box supper, the proceeds of which amounted to $108.30. A very large and enthusiastic crowd was in attendance. The highest price box sold for $8.30, to the gallant old gentleman, Capt. Johnnie Freeman.

The people are very generous and their hospitality is well known throughout the county, and especially are they strong in the support of their schools. Orland Stewart, assisted by Miss Wooten, are teachers, and from all the evidence and information at hand, they are teaching a very successful school.

The writer was present and had the pleasure of selling the boxes; a privilege enjoyed very much. J. B. RANDOLPH.

Birthday Surprise

Last Wednesday, Mrs. L. H. Jetton was pleasantly surprised when her children and their families, laden with baskets which were filled with good things to eat, arrived to spend the day with her, in honor of Mrs. Jetton's birthday.

In the afternoon several friends were bidden in for tea when cake, hot tea and bonbons were served.

B. O. Newby, Earl Tracy and Rudolph Becker are on a hunting trip to the Big Bend section in Brewster and Presidio Counties.

L. A. Warren returned one day last week from an extended trip to the Winter Garden section, and is very enthusiastic in his praises of that section.

A BAD SITUATION GROWS UNBEARABLE

I said nothing, waiting for Curtiss to explain his unconventional behavior of the night, though I realized that the scene I had just witnessed from the window would be, for a long time, impressed on my mind.

My nerves were tense and I waited, breathlessly for him to speak. Finally he shoved his hair half across his forehead, in a familiar gesture, which I had grown to recognize as a sign of unrest:

"I'm hungry," he said. Though the situation had been almost dramatic my sense of humor could not be repressed and I laughed.

"What the deuce is so funny?" he asked, becoming vexed.

"Oh, nothing dearest, I guess I was a bit nervous from the sudden light. Wait a moment and I'll fix something in a jiffy, for you to eat. What would you like? A few sandwiches and a glass of milk?"

"Ye gods, no!" he exclaimed, "I want some real honest-to-goodness food. How about that steak you were going to have for dinner and some potatoes. I'm as hungry as a bear."

I slipped into a kimono and went into the kitchen to prepare the late repast and as I busied myself about the various tasks I could not help but be amazed at the thought that, as far as Curtiss was concerned the party had not been a howling success.

A hungry Lothario!

Letitia would have been disillusioned if she could have seen him as I saw him at that moment sitting at the breakfast table in bathrobe and slippers—eating with the keen appetite of a wolf. Letitia with her scornful attitude towards food which she considered prosaic!

She had declared that all they had in the car was a Thermos bottle of cocktails, which, as far as she was concerned, was a guarantee of an excellent time, but Curtiss had no great liking for any alcoholic drink and although she had evidently insisted that he take a few, they had probably only served to increase his healthy appetite for a good, substantial meal.

I began to hum a little tune. I was preparing food for Curtiss—food that would make him happy and soothe his tired nerves—he was dependent upon me at that moment and needed more than Letitia Evans with all her silly chatter about "uninteresting food."

I wondered why they had changed cars. Why hadn't they returned in Bill Gillespie's car as they had started out? And why, if Curtiss had been so ravenously hungry had he not insisted on coming home before 3 o'clock.

Was it because, to have done so, would have revealed the real Curtiss and greatly reduced him in Letitia's dream-ridden eyes? "Gosh! Food helps!" was all Curtiss said as I poured him a second glass of rich and icy milk.

I hoped that it would also relieve his conscience which, from his unhappy expression, I believed was not perfectly at rest. There were a dozen questions that clamored at my brain but I was determined to repress them until after he had slept—and then, if he still offered no explanation of the night which had just passed, my pride would not allow me to press the point.

"It's mighty fine of you to fix me up," he declared, his eyes deliberately escaping mine, "but you must be tired now, so suppose you run on back to bed."

Intuitively I knew that he would be happier alone and so I left him but it was to lie awake and think strange, dark thoughts thru the remainder of the night.

The change in Curtiss which I had noticed that night continued and each day he seemed more and more unlike himself. He was noticeably uncomfortable when he and I were alone and he always contrived to invite guests in, on nights when he did not come home with an invitation out for dinner or bridge. Letitia, pleaded hard work in her studio, stayed away from the house but I felt that there were times when they met. He never referred to Letitia though I knew from his distrustful manner that she was often in his thoughts.

What could have happened that night?

Under her spell, in the moonlight, how far had she led him on?

Had Curtiss succumbed to her alluring personality and the flattering attention which she lavished on his every word?

At any rate whatever it was some dreadful thing had taken my Curtiss away from me and made him into a strange person whom it was most difficult to understand.

Although I was ashamed of my lack of faith, jealous, skeptical thoughts paraded about in my mind until I was utterly spent from the effect of my suspicious doubts and fears.

I had temporarily abandoned my plan to visit Ellie Mitchell in New York thinking that each day Curtiss would ask forgiveness and unburden his heart, but, after weeks of waiting, my patience exhausted itself and I knew that something must be done at once.

That Letitia still pursued Curtiss I knew without a doubt for she phoned to him on those nights when we were at home with guests. He would go hurriedly to the phone and, on the few occasions when I answered it, because I happened to be near, a conscious silence would greet me at the other end.

I remembered the resolution I had made on the night that they had gone out and left me alone and I asked myself why I had not followed these plans. Perhaps it was because the flirtation had gone, to all appearances, much farther than I had thought when I had decided to go to New York.

To leave now would be like adding fuel to the flame and yet my entire being rebelled against remaining as a sort of policeman to guard that which was mine.

The mental anguish took its toll of my personal appearance and of my nerves which, being overwrought, made me irritable when Curtiss was near. It was not an even contest for always Letitia was at her prettiest and best. At home I had become a nagging wife. Little mannerisms of Curtiss began to get on my nerves and I could see that I was driving him to seek his amusement and relaxation away from home. The situation, though plain to me, was beyond my control and was daily becoming worse.

I thought of seeking the advice of my neighbor, Mrs. Wright, but she and Curtiss had discovered they were related by marriage, and to disclose an affair that involved him, did not seem honest or right.

At last I came to the point where I knew I must speak to Curtiss for it seemed to me that our marriage had become a fiasco to us both.

No Engine Fumes in Buick Closed Cars!

In the 1927 Buick, the new Vacuum Ventilator pulls engine fumes and gases from the crankcase and ejects them outside the car.

This vital new Buick improvement does away with noxious odors. It adds greater luxury and pleasure to enclosed car operation.

The Vacuum Ventilator serves another very important purpose. With it, crankcase vapors have no opportunity to condense and dilute the oil. Owners of 1927 Buicks are advised to drain their crankcase oil only 4 times during the year.

For luxury, and for economy, own a Buick.

Texas Railroad Construction

With the continuation of the present liberal policy of the Interstate Commerce Commission toward railroad in Texas, there will be more railroad construction in this State in the next year than in the past ten years. The agricultural and oil development especially require much railroad extension in order that ready markets may be obtained for the products. The roads are anxious to take care of the traffic and are financially able to make all the needed extensions. They are clamoring, in fact, to build where the returns will justify extensions, and are even willing in some cases to build ahead of development, so confident are they of the future growth of the State. Already there are many extension and building plans in contemplation in the Panhandle and Plains sections and in the Rio Grande Valley, where much immigration is being attracted.

The Texas Turkey Crop

From Brady the announcement is made that 227 cars of turkeys will be shipped this season from the "Brady territory," whatever that may include. Ten years ago five cars would have been regarded as a big business. A car of turkeys brings approximately $10,000. The farmers are paid, this season, an average of 27 cents a pound. Get out your pencil and figure what the 227 cars will bring to the "Brady territory." That isn't all. Brady is not specializing in turkeys alone, but is leading in the production of chickens and eggs. Where chickens and eggs are largely produced the dairy business inevitably follows. What of the future of that section even though no cotton is grown? If the present policy is pursued, Brady will never regret having gone into the turkey and chicken business on a large scale.

Colorado Valley Pecans

In Lampasas I learned that the pecan growers in what is known as the Bend section of the Colorado River Valley in Lampasas and San Saba Counties have contracted to sell 750,000 pounds of ordinary native pecans to pecan cracking establishments at San Antonio and Tyler for 12 1/4 cents a pound. This is really a low price for pecans this season, as the Government reports only 71 per cent of a full crop as against 89 per cent in 1919, when Texas had its large pecan crop. The pecans sold were natives from "wild" trees, some of the fancy paper shell pecans from budded trees selling for 75 cents and $1.00 a pound. It is easy to see that, with the business well organized for systematic marketing, pecan growing in Texas will become a great industry. The business is not likely to be overdone. The crop this year is estimated at 12,000,000 pounds in the United States, or about one-tenth of a pound for each person.

Texas Grain Sorghum

Referring again to Government reports, it is estimated that Texas will produce this year nearly 50,000,000 bushels of grain sorghums, which include milo maize, kaffir corn, feterita and the like. This is approximately 49 per cent of the sorghum crop grown in the United States. While the Texas crop is large, the prices are unsatisfactory. The farmers who have live stock in feed, and most good farmers have, are feeding the sorghum crops on the farm instead of marketing it, and it is going far toward relieving the financial distress due to the large cotton crop.

Bank Failures and Country Loans

Two banks in Travis County, one in Austin and the other in Manor, have closed recently, giving as their reason that they were carrying too many farm loans which the farmers could not meet. These banks had loans out to farmers last year, and the cotton crop in the county being a total failure, the loans had to be extended. This year the farms were planted almost altogether in cotton and a large crop was made, but the price was so low that the farmers were in almost as bad shape as when no crop was produced. The result of the farm failure was that these banks were forced to quit business, they and their customers all suffering heavy losses together. When farming is unprofitable in any community every other business suffers in proportion. Bankers and merchants are as vitally interested in and affected by diversification as are the farmers themselves.

Water Conservation Popular

A newly organized water conservation district at Brownwood recently voted to expend about $20,000, if necessary, on the initial step in plans for a huge water conservation project by which Brownwood will secure an ample water supply for all time, and some 30,000 or more acres of land may be irrigated, if that is deemed advisable. The money that has been voted is for the work necessary to determine just what should be done and what will be the cost of doing it. It is probable that the project in contemplation will cost from one to two million dollars. The vote for the organization of the district and the survey expenditure was 1,500 while only 51 votes were cast against it, and it is predicted that the ratio for the bonds will be about the same. It all shows that Texans are beginning to get anxious to use the water that has been going to waste heretofore.

Pleasure in Business

At the West Texas Press Association meeting at Colorado, Fred B. Robinson, of the Waco Times-Herald, said that his motto is "Pleasure Before Business," and he advised his colleagues to adopt it as theirs. A better motto is "Pleasure in Business," and the newspaper man ought to be able to find it there or get out and make room for others who regard it as the greatest game in the world. In fact pleasure should be found in whatever business one is engaged. There are so many things at which a person can make a living that in which he can find the greatest joy. There is little excuse in following a profession or vocation that can not be made a pleasure.

officers in most Texas counties go out on the byways and make a raid on motorists parked by the roadside, valiantly breaking up the "petting parties." There would appear to be time after the motorists who are violating the law by speeding, running without lights, or without tail lights, they would render the country a far better service. The roadside may not be the nicest place for love-making or "petting," but people have made love from the days of Adam and Eve, and will continue to do so, and that, too, without violating any law.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

(By E. R. Waite)

THAT if you read the advertisements of your local merchants you will find that merchandise can be bought as cheaply in your city as elsewhere, and in most instances you can actually receive more for your money than you can by buying from a catalogue or in a distant city.

THAT when you buy from your local merchants you can see what you buy before paying for it.

THAT when you buy at home you don't have to wait days and even weeks for the delivery of the articles you order.

THAT you don't have to order from a catalogue or some distant city to buy good merchandise. Your local stores carry big stock of seasonal merchandise.

THAT money spent at home helps to build your city; money sent away from your home city helps to build some other city. You should have no trouble in making up your mind to be for your home city first.

THAT your local business concerns need your business; they should have it. They are your friends, your neighbors and a living part of your city.

THAT as business grows so will your city grow. As a loyal citizen, as a booster, as a builder you should spend your money at home.

Don't look around to see who I am talking to. I am talking to you!

We have a sneaking idea we would be making more money than we are making now if we'd gone to Herrin, Ill., and gone into the life insurance business.

—Exchange.
The undertaking and embalming business would have been more profitable than the insurance business.

PECAN GROVES AND FRUIT ORCHARDS AT SMALL COST

(By Fritz Graeber)

Several years ago I had a number of young native pecan trees growing in the fence rows and along a creek bottom, so it occurred to me that if I could get these pecan trees budded or grafted with some of the finer sorts I would in a few years be able to enjoy eating the fine nuts so often read about but could not afford to buy.

As the first step towards getting a start of fine nut producing trees I asked the county agent to teach me how to graft pecans, so he came out and gave me my first lesson in grafting, and I became greatly interested in the work, and now have some 50 thriving young pecan trees growing on my farm that I have grafted from time to time during the early spring season, have already gathered some nuts from them and will soon have all the nuts our family can consume.

Cold checking is getting to be an amusement in Ballinger it seems, and some people are becoming experts at the job. One young girl succeeded in passing 16 bad checks in one afternoon of last week before being caught.—Ballinger Ledger.

This is a pastime indulged in all too frequently in many places.

The Millionaire's Secret

To be a millionaire, a man must not only get rich; he must be able to stay rich. A certain well-known millionaire, when asked how he stayed rich, said: "I invest my money only in sound, established companies."

That man has learned a valuable secret. But a man's money, however much he has, is never worth so much to him as his mind, his intelligence.

Has it ever occurred to you that you should invest your intelligence just as carefully as you invest your money?

Why not invest your intelligence in a sound company by subscribing to the Youth's Companion? It is the oldest magazine for young people in the world—and nearly the oldest of all the American magazines. It is also one of the most interesting. Practically every famous author of the past hundred years has written at one time or another for the Companion. Only this fall, for example, the Companion published a new story by Jack London. Do you like stories of adventure? Mystery? Romance? They are all in the Youth's Companion.

Here are the terms of an investment guaranteed to be profitable:

1. The Youth's Companion—52 issues in 1927, and

2. The remaining issues of 1926. All for only $2.

3. Or include McCall's Magazine, the monthly authority on fashions. Both publications, only $2.50.

KNOW TEXAS

Texas produced 83,700,000 bushels of oats this year or more than six times as much as last year.

Texas produced about 5,500,000 bales of cotton this year and at the prevailing price it is worth almost as much as last year's cotton crop.

Texas wheat crop this year was 34,238,000 bushels or approximately five times that of last year.

The corn crop of Texas this year amounts to 108,612,000 bushels or almost four times that of last year.

On crops other than cotton Texas farmers will collect this year more than $100,000,000 in excess of their crop returns for last year.

Industrial Education

Industrial Bureau: The Minneapolis Tribune editorially declares that crime is Our Country's most expensive luxury. It quotes statistics charging that crime costs the United States about $10,000,000,000 a year. Loss in loot alone is about $3,500,000,000. Loss in diverted man-power is $6,500,000,000 more.

Each year crime costs America a sum equal to the entire war debt owed Our Country by Europe, or twice what it cost to run the Government. In any one year we spend ten times as much for crime as we have spent on highways. Reducing crime one-half would in five years wipe out the National debt, costing each inhabitant $83 a year. The Chicago crime commission says that city has 30,000 crooks and criminals costing the city $20,000 a year apiece.

What is the remedy? Is it play or work? Does any Nation spend more money on college and high school sports like baseball and football than ours? Do the children of any country play more and work less than our children? A genius proposes spending millions in every State on more playgrounds for the children.

What is more conducive to crime among the growing generation of boys and young men than idleness and spending money they never earned? Nebraska is considering a department of higher education to relate the student with and prepare him for an honest-to-God job for life best fitted for him. San Mateo-Burlingame union high school has more than half its boys working, learning trades, as well as making their grades.

Is it not time to ask our schools whether industrial education of our youth is not the solution of the problem? Are not habits of industry and earning money before you spend it, a good way to reduce the National crime burden?

DEMAND FOR WOOL IS RESTRICTED THIS WEEK

Boston, Mass., Nov. 29.—The demand for wool this last week has been very restricted, most of the business being for account of a few large worsted mills, who were buying domestic wools of three-eighths grade and finer. Prices have been rather in favor of the buyer, though not materially so. Texas fall hair has all been cleared, mainly in the range of 25 1/4c to 27 1/4c.

"The strength of the London opening has been encouraging to the trade here, while the foreign primary markets have continued firm and the consensus of the world trade is that prices are reasonable well stabilized.

"In the manufacturing end of the business there has been little change. The large worsted plants are generally busy, while the smaller plants are possibly slightly less active.

"Mohair still is quiet, but steady.

"The rail and water shipments of wool from Boston from Jan. 1, 1926, to Nov. 24, 1926, inclusive, were 154,168,000 pounds, against 160,355,300 pounds for the same period last year. The receipts from Jan. 1, 1926, to Nov. 24, 1926, inclusive, were 314,224,867 pounds, against 239,354,300 pounds for the same period last year."

The Commercial Bulletin publishes the following quotations: Scoured basis: Texas fine twelve-month (selected) $1.10, fine eight-month 90@92c.

CLEVELAND OFFICIAL WOULD BUY POWER

Utility News: Howell Wright, director of public utilities for Cleveland, Ohio, has advocated the purchase of 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity annually from some privately owned and managed superpower system. He states that it requires 193 pounds of coal to produce a kilowatt-hour of electricity at the municipal generating station while a private company in Cleveland produces the same energy with only 1 1/2 pounds of coal.

The time has come when the municipal light plant can cease to exist as an isolated plant. The entire United States will soon be lined up in a chain of superpower systems. These systems can produce cheaper electricity than isolated plants, Mr. Wright said.

Rev. J. J. Ray, pastor of the Christian Church at Mason, was in Junction Saturday and Sunday and delivered two interesting sermons at the home of C. W. Atchison Sunday morning and night, and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, preached at the Evergreen School House.
