By FLOYD ATEN JR.
Written for the United Press

DALLAS, Jan. 31.—A bitter attack on Harry Sinclair, chairman of the board of Sinclair Oil company, was made today by R. R. Penn, chairman of the Texas central production committee, in an address before 35 producers and operators of the newly discovered Rusk and Gregg county oil fields.

Declaring that the state legislature should tighten up the machinery of the state railroad commission to such an extent that the oil and gas division of that body would be cloaked with more authority to clamp down on what he termed "bootleg" oil operators, Penn flayed Sinclair for some of the statements attributed to him which appeared in the press of Texas earlier in the week.

"It is a disgrace to the United States and to Texas that such a man as Harry Sinclair can be permitted to go over into East Texas and exert influence which is not for the good of the oil industry in that and other sections," Penn said.

"Harry Sinclair is biding his time to kill you independent operators off, one by one. Like a gaunt wolf he sits waiting to tear us to pieces in order that the Sinclair Oil company may gain control of the oil resources over there in East Texas and he shouldn't be permitted to do it," the proration chairman thundered.

Oil Sells for Song

Penn's attack on Sinclair was precipitated by the latter's inference in East Texas last week that he was opposed to proration and proposed to locate over there and operate on an extensive scale.

Penn also charged that Sinclair

FLU EPIDEMIC FORECAST SOON BY OSTEOPATHS

ASSOCIATION HOLDS ANNUAL MEET HERE

Kansas Visitor Honor Guest At North Texas Banquet

Predicting that an influenza epidemic would sweep the United States within the next few weeks, speakers at the banquet meeting of the North Texas Osteopathic association at the Wichita club Saturday evening brought interesting sidelights on pertinent health questions to their fellow practitioners.

"We're in a health cycle," said Dr. W. S. Corbin of Wichita, Kansas, diagnostician at the Wichita Osteopathic sanitarium. "Health cycles are like business cycles. In 1918, attention had been given to war and finance, and nobody paid any attention to building up resistance to disease.

"We had the hardest winter and the hottest summer in years this year, followed by the business depression that has filled the insane hospitals and caused numbers of suicides. A flu epidemic has already broken out in Europe. Within four weeks, we will be suffering here as we have not suffered in a long time."

Dr. W. H. Locke of Gainesville also predicted such an epidemic, telling of the history of epidemics of respiratory diseases since 1510. Dr. Locke also quoted the current issue of "Time" in stating that flu cases had increased 70 per cent during the past week in eastern cities.

Dr. Louis Logan of Dallas, in a

CHARGE CONTRACTORS GOVERNMENT PROJECTS IMPORTING CHEAP LABOR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. (UP)—Secretary of Labor Doak told the house labor committee today the department had discovered many instances where contractors on government projects have imported cheap labor and reduced wage levels, contrary to agreements made with President Hoover when the depression began.

He urged enactment of a bill introduced by Representative Bacon, Republican, N. Y., requiring that contractors for public buildings pay the existing wage level of the community, saying it was needed as an emergency measure.

LIFE SENTENCE DESPITE PLEA VICTIM ATTEMPTED KISS WIFE OF ACCUSED

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 31. (AP)—Frank Hintz, who said he killed Lee Miller at a Seminole ice dock because Miller entered his home and attempted to kiss Mrs. Hintz, must serve a life sentence, the criminal court of appeals ruled today.

JOBLESS REJOICE OVER HEAVY SNOW PROVIDING WORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. (AP)—Thousands of jobless rejoiced today as they bent their backs to the task of lifting a thick snow blanket from eastern states.

To the employed the snowfall was not so welcome. Rail and bus service was hampered, plows were marooned and farmers snowbound.

Old Man Winter dealt more severely with upstate New York; Utica dug out of a two-foot fall, while highways to the north were impassable. Winds whipped snow into drifts four to eight feet high at Watertown while Rochester was buried under seven inches. Many farmers stayed away from the Syracuse market perforce, and Albany went to work to clear away nearly a foot of snowflakes.

New York City escaped the snow.

CONSTRUCTION ACTIVITY GAINS NEW IMPETUS IN EAST TEXAS OIL TOWN

LONGVIEW, Texas, Jan. 31. (UP)—Construction activity gained new impetus in Longview today after a week of wild excitement accompanying the blowing in of the Lathrop No. 1 gusher in the new East Texas oil field.

Hundreds of men and women had found employment in virtually every firm in the city, and 28 attorneys today opened offices here. A 10-story hotel was being planned, and plans for at least three refineries were known.

Fleets of trucks to care for the hauling of necessities of the oil fields had arrived and warehouses and supply firms were seeking locations. Officials for various firms continued to arrive in the city.

INCOME TAX TO REMAIN SAME THROUGH 1931

Treasury Has No Intention Of Asking Increase Of Congress

RECEIPTS TO GOVERN ACTION IN DECEMBER

Boost Inevitable if Veterans' Compensation Approved

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. (UP)—Taxpayers throughout 1931 will continue to pay income taxes on the rates now in effect, the United Press was informed officially at the treasury today.

The treasury said it has no intention whatsoever of asking an increase in taxes of congress at this session despite the fact it is facing a prospective deficit of $375,000,000.

Whether taxes will be increased at the session which convenes next December will depend entirely upon 1931 receipts and appropriations by congress, it was said.

If congress approves any of the pending bills to pay off in cash the $3,400,000,000 veterans' adjusted compensation certificates outstanding, a tax boost next session was held inevitable.

These views were stated at the treasury today as those entertained by Secretary Mellon and Under-Secretary Mills, both of whom opposed the "veterans' bonus" before congressional committees this week.

"I am not greatly concerned about the prospects of a deficit," a high treasury official said: "In the last four years of Cleveland's administration, he ended every fiscal year with a deficit. We have had surpluses for so many years now, it will not impair the government's finances seriously to have a deficit for a change."

Through floating of new bond issues, the treasury can always obtain ample funds to meet current expenses of the government despite a deficit. Reduction of the public debt will be sharply curtailed or entirely eliminated this fiscal year, but the treasury is far ahead of the original debt retirement program.

COLUMBUS' DOPE BUCKET SCUTTLED

THE first real discovery in this country was the well known drink, julep. A Chinaman driven by storm in a Chinese junk, Captain Hee Li, landed near Monterey, Calif., in the year 217 B. C. The Chinese, through the discovery of America, then called Fu Sang, imported aloes from which their "Julep of Maguey" was made. Thus the drink "julep" became known. APPROXIMATELY 13,500 AUTO LICENSES ISSUED TO SATURDAY MIDNIGHT

Approximately 13,500 automobile licenses were registered in Wichita county up to midnight Saturday, according to estimates made by Arthur C. Howard, tax collector.

More than 19,000 automobiles were registered in this county in 1930 and the figures indicated that many motorists would either be delinquent in buying their licenses or had stored their cars for the first few months of the year.

About 10,000 poll taxes have been issued by Mr. Howard since Jan. 1. Prior to that date Guy C. Raley, former tax collector, had issued 1,503 poll taxes. During 1930 the tax collector issued 15,193 poll taxes.

Long waiting lines that extended far down the courthouse hall numbered more than 250 persons at times during the final day for paying auto licenses without incurring a penalty. Licenses were issued until midnight.

Mr. Howard announced that he had completed arrangements for handling property tax payments under the split payment bill passed by the legislature and was in favor of making the split payment arrangement permanent in this state.

The new Wichita county tax collector has been advocating the split tax payment plan for several years.

Wichita Falls Ranks Second In Amount Received For Red Cross

DALLAS, Jan. 31. (AP)—The efforts of Will Rogers, cowboy humorist, actor and writer, to bring relief to drouth and unemployment sufferers in Texas were estimated tonight to have netted approximately $82,000 in one week.

Beginning a state-wide speaking tour of the state in Austin last Monday, Rogers swung rapidly through 13 cities, making the jumps for the most part in a navy airplane piloted by Capt. Frank Hawks, but resorting to automobiles when flying conditions were unfavorable.

More than 35,000 persons heard the plea of the humorist for funds to alleviate the condition of the needy. In most cities, he was greeted by packed houses, who loudly applauded his quips and listened sympathetically to his more serious exposition of the position of unfortunates.

SHAWNEE, Okla., Jan. 31. (AP)—After less than two hours deliberation a superior court jury tonight returned a verdict of robbery with firearms against William Armstrong, accused of robbing a theater here, and assessed a 25-year prison sentence.

Armstrong and J. M. Selvidge, convicted yesterday on a similar charge and facing a 30-year term, will be sentenced formally Tuesday by Judge Leroy Cooper.

Seeking to establish an alibi, Armstrong testified that he robbed a Shamrock, Texas, jewelry store of $1,200 the night following the robbery here last November, and said that on the night of the robbery here he was in Texas planning the other crime. County Attorney Clarence Tankersley said during the prosecution that Armstrong confessed the other crime because a jail term is the maximum penalty in that state while the death penalty may be assessed under Oklahoma law.

GRANTS PASS, Ore., Jan. 31. (AP)—A hundred anxious searchers, many fearing Keithie Dale Husen, missing 2-year-old boy, had been torn to death by a bobcat, beat the forests today in a last effort to find the baby alive.

Shortly before dawn a member of the party shot the bobcat near the little mountain home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Husen. Physicians examining the viscera of the animal found flesh, but it had not been determined whether it was human or animal.

MOB VIOLENCE THREATENS AT TEXAS POINTS

Midland and Mount Pleasant Are Guarding Negro Suspects

DAVE GOODWIN MOVED TO DALLAS COUNTY JAIL

Under Death Sentence and Motion for New Trial Pending

EXTRA SESSION SEEMS CERTAIN RESULT HOUSE VOTE ON RELIEF DEMOCRATS STILL DETERMINED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. (AP)—Senator Watson, the Republican leader, today formally accepted the Democratic challenge for an extra session of the new congress in the battle over relief legislation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. (AP)—The path of relief tonight seemed to point straight toward the rugged mountains of an extra session.

Senate administration leaders confessed they could see no middle ground between the enunciated relief program of the Democrats and the determined stand taken against it by the Republican house.

"It looks like an extra session if the Democrats are going to insist upon it," said Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader.

"They apparently are willing to have it. The country does not want it. I accept the challenge."

House Leaders Firm

Protest School Gang Fights Are Much Too Rough

ST. PAUL, Jan. 31. (UP)—St. Paul's high school students had better stop holding gang fights on street cars or there will be trouble, the Street Railway company and the department of education announced today.

"We don't care if they blacken each other's eyes," the street car company's announcement said, but let them fight in alleys and vacant lots. We can't have the street cars smashed up."

The department of education's pronouncement indicated the smashed street cars were of little consequence, but that the girls and boys really should act like ladies and gentlemen.

A gang fight, the third in recent weeks between rival high schools, started during a basket ball game last night and was continued on several street cars. Wrecked trolleys, blackened eyes and scratched faces were the reasons for today's announcements.

Incomes of all persons, corporations, joint-stock companies and associations within the state, and non-residents receiving incomes from property located in, or business transacted in the state, are subject to tax.

Members Texas Legislature Are Roundly Entertained by Governor Country Breakfast and Luncheon

HOUSTON, Jan. 31 (AP)—Roundly entertained today at the big bay shore home of Gov. Ross S. Sterling and elsewhere, Texas legislators prepared to be roundly "roasted" tonight in the fifth annual gridiron dinner of the Houston Salesmanship club.

The legislative branch of Texas' government arrived in a body this morning on a special train from Austin, and went almost immediately to Governor Sterling's home near Morgan's Point. There the members had a "country" breakfast and for luncheon they were taken to the home of J. M. West, capitalist, on Clear Lake. This afternoon, they rode down the Houston ship channel in a small fleet of yachts and launches.

Jess H. Jones, Sterling's contemporary wealthy publisher, Melvin Traylor, Chicago banker and former president of the American Bankers association, and L. W. Baldwin, president of the Missouri Pacific lines, were among the Houston guests at the Sterling breakfast.

There was a deal of jocularity all during the day.

The visitors were somewhat surprised that Mr. Sterling had a bona-fide 100-acre farm near the bay-shore home and spent a great deal of time looking over his properties there.

Several notables not members of the legislature were present. They included former Senator Thomas B. Love of Dallas and former ranger captain W. W. (Bill) Sterling, the new state adjutant general, whose 10 gallon hat so attracted Miss Norma Sterling, the gover-

More Than Half Million Dollars Tied Up in State Bank Guaranty Fund Since 1926 Released by Order

AUSTIN, Jan. 31. (UP)—The more than half a million dollars tied up state bank guaranty fund, object of litigation since 1926, was released here late today by modification injunction in force, obtained by Attorney General James V. Allred in 98th district court.

The case was styled McNair vs. Farmers State bank of Kemp et al. The ruling releases $267,000 to banks which have withdrawn from the fund plan and $256,000 to depositors of nine failed state banks, as follows:

Commercial Guaranty, Longview; Commercial State, Cisco; Altoga State, Altoga; Farmers and Merchants State, Mount Calm; Guaranty State, Trinidad; Farmers State, Kemp; First State, Belton; Guaranty State, Gunter; Addison State, Addison.

The state banking board was named a party to the suit and was originally enjoined from handling or disbursing any of the funds involved. The total amount exceeded $3,000,000. Balance of the case is set for trial Feb. 16.

WILBUR DEMANDS PROBE OF CHARGE BY RALPH KELLEY

WANTS CLEARANCE FROM UNITED STATES SENATE

Committee Not Authorized To Make an Extensive Inquiry

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. (AP)—Secretary Wilbur today demanded before the senate public lands committee a full investigation of charges by Ralph S. Kelley that the government had favored large oil companies in disposing of oil shale lands.

At the same time, Senator Glenn, Republican member of the committee, announced his intention of asking an investigation of the circumstances surrounding publication of Kelley's charges.

He said he wanted to call the publishers of The New York World, or whoever made the arrangements for that paper with Kelley.

The justice department has cleared the interior department of irregularities.

Wilbur and Solicitor Finney of the interior department were the first witnesses in the investigation.

No Questions Asked

No questions were asked of Wilbur, but as he finished, the secretary told the committee "we propose to see this through to the last case."

"Charges have been informally made of a certain character and if the senate is starting in on it, we feel we ought to get clearance from the senate," he added.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, author of the resolution under which the committee is acting, said the committee was not authorized to make an exhaustive inquiry.

He explained that the purpose of the present hearings was merely to determine whether a more thorough investigation was necessary.

Just before the session ended, Glenn, who was the only Republican attending, asked that when Kelley is called next Tuesday he bring all correspondence and papers relating to the publication of his charges.

MOB VIOLENCE IS THREAT IN TEXAS

cell and placed in the death cell block of the county jail. Officers were alert for signs of an outbreak tonight. A negro was taken from jail and burned at a stake near here several years ago.

Riley was reported to have flung a hammer at Joe Preddy, mechanic in a fit of anger. The missle missed Preddy but struck Stewart, who later died of the injuries.

The third threat of lynching came from Texarakana, but centered about Mount Pleasant, the same town where the negro slayer was held.

Under Death Sentence

Dave Goodwin, charged with killing Lloyd Elliott, 23-year-old farmer, was in jail there. He is under a sentence of death but motion for a new trial has been made for him. The appeal charged that a hostile mob surrounded the courthouse at New Boston when he was tried and prevented the court from returning any verdict other than death.

Persistent rumors that a group of Texarkana men planned to lynch Goodwin if his new trial was granted caused officers to take him from jail at Mount Pleasant today and rush him to Dallas.

The Dallas county jail has never yielded a prisoner to a mob. A youthful mobsman was shot to death there several years ago when crowds stormed the jail in a futile effort to take a killer from a cell and lynch him.

TAX OFFICE TO STAY OPEN SUNDAY TO ISSUE AUTO LICENSE PLATES

AUSTIN, Jan. 31. (UP)—At least one county tax collector's office in Texas will stay open Sunday, to prevent citizens getting arrested Monday. L. G. Phares, chief of the state highway patrol, said tonight.

Maury Maverick, county tax collector of Bexar county, decided to keep his office open tomorrow, Phares said, when advised that the highway patrol would start arresting Texans Monday, if they drive their automobiles without 1931 plates. Phares said Maverick had requested a ruling by telegraph.

Phares said legally that midnight Feb. 1 is the last time plates may be obtained without penalty. February 1 falls on Sunday, and most Texans had their last opportunity to get plates tonight. In Travis county alone, an estimated 10 per cent of them had not done so.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 31. (INS)—The jury which recently convicted Miss Daisy DeBoe of embezzling $635 from her former employer, Miss Clara Bow, film actress, today had been ordered to be in court when Miss DeBoe files an appeal Monday.

William B. Beirne, attorney for Miss DeBoe, declared he had information indicating the jury arrived at the verdict by lot, which is illegal, and if true would be grounds for a new trial.

CAPTAIN CAMPBELL MAKES NEARLY 200 MILES FIRST TEST

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Jan. 31. (AP)—Capt. Malcolm Campbell gave his trim racing car its first test of speed on the beach here today by clicking off nearly 200 miles an hour on a practice trial preliminary to his proposed shot at the world's straightaway record.

A crowd watched the veteran British driver send his 1,450 horsepower machine roaring along over a slightly ruffled beach. On the first run it has made since leaving its factory in England, his tachometer or motor speed indicator, registered approximately 192 miles an hour at top speed.

He said he was highly pleased and pronounced the car virtually in condition for official runs.

On the second of his two trials today, Campbell averted what might have been a "tight pinch" as he described it, by stopping his speeding machine just short of a beach crowd.

Traveling at 175 to 180 miles an hour, he saw the spectators a mile and a half ahead, and burned out his brakes stopping.

"It was not bad," he said, "but certainly not good enough for a record attempt. The course has been improving and I hope for a record beach soon."

He said he would not take his car to the beach tomorrow, but hoped to do so Monday. His mechanics will repair the damaged brakes over the week-end.

Campbell could not make his official trials for the record before Monday, anyway, because his sanction does not start until then.

DISABLED VETERANS OF WORLD WAR AT DALLAS ORGANIZE DEPARTMENT

DALLAS, Jan. 31. (AP)—Texas representatives of the disabled veterans of the world war concluded here today their three-day conference by organizing a state department, of which Lawrence Melton of Dallas was named state commander. National officers, including Capt. Herman Weimer, national commander, assisted in forming the departmental constitution.

A goal of 30 local chapters of the organization in Texas by June, when the national convention will be held, was announced. Members said they hoped to have a large representation at the national convention and would work to secure the 1932 meeting for this state.

Other state officers elected included: Carl Estes, Tyler, senior vice commander; M. C. Bradfield, Houston, junior vice commander; C. G. Bonham, chaplain; S. M. Billig, Dallas, treasurer; Ben Green Waco, state welfare officer. Later, seven divisional organizations within the state department will be organized.

WOMAN FLIER SIGHS FOR MORE WORLDS TO CONQUER

BALTIMORE, Jan. 31. (AP)—Near the end of a flight alone across three continents, Mrs. Mildred Bruce, British pilot whose plane overturned here Tuesday, sighed today like Alexander for more worlds to conquer.

Her flight of 18,000 miles from London to Tokyo and from Vancouver across North America, she asserted, gave her a world record for solo piloting an airplane. And, she said, she already held records for 24 hours continuous piloting of an automobile and a motor boat.

As soon as her small biplane, which flipped over in the mud of a landing field here, is repaired, probably in week, Mrs. Bruce plans to fly to New York. There the plane will be crated and shipped to London and then her solo trip around the world will be complete.

Later this year, she said, she and her husband, Victor Bruce, a motor racer, plan to fly to Buenos Aires by way of the South Atlantic.

Liquor Traffic Increases

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 31. (UP)—Liquor traffic along the gulf of Mexico has increased to such an extent that during the last five days a cargo of several thousand cases of imported liquors was auctioned aboard a rum running liner, the United Press learned today.

WARN DEMOCRATS AGAINST MOVE TO MAKE PARTY WET

Dry Members Will Resist Any Movement in That Direction

INSPIRED BY DENMARK TO REPEAL DRY LAWS

Debate Provoked by Motion To Consider Bill of Senator Howell

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. (AP)—The Democratic party was warned today that its dry members will resist any attempt to make the party wet in a flare of prohibition debate that swept both houses of congress.

The warning to the Democrats came from the newest Democratic senator—Morrison, of North Carolina.

Representative Lehlbach, Republican, New Jersey, demanded in the house that congress consider his resolution to repeal the 18th amendment. He based his demand on the Wickersham report.

Morrison's statement was inspired by attacks on prohibition from Senators Tydings, Democrat, Maryland, and Blaine, Republican, Wisconsin, in which Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, later joined.

The senate debate took place on the motion of Senator Howell, Republican, Nebraska, to resume consideration of his bill to provide a rigid prohibition enforcement law for the District of Columbia. The motion was not acted upon today and will be the pending business when the senate meets Monday.

Lehlbach, an administration Republican, predicted that the party which fails now to meet the prohibition issue squarely "will be overwhelmingly repudiated at the next national election."

Pointing out that a majority of the Wickersham commission believed the 18th amendment could never be adequately enforced, Lehlbach contended that congress "must no longer temporize."

Morrison told the senate prohibition would never be repealed and said "I serve notice the hope of anti-prohibitionists to capture the platforms of the two great parties will never be successful.

Morrison asserted corruption in connection with liquor traffic had antedated prohibition and that corruption in connection with enforcing the revenue laws before enactment of the 18th amendment was as bad as that now described.

the Red Cross or other proposed agencies.

Several of the supply bills which, unless some extraordinary procedure is resorted to, must be passed if the government departments are to function next year, hav been loaded down with relief proposals. They are bogged deep in conference and many compromises must be patched together if they are to be towed out.

Wood Has Proposal

Chairman Wood of the house appropriations committee proposed today that if agreements could not be worked out before Feb. 15 by conference committees on these proposals and the many other amendments in dispute, he would propose a resolution to continue existing appropriations for another year.

While such a resolution could easily be passed in the house where the Republican majority is large, administration leaders in the senate looked on it as a forlorn hope. In that branch an alliance between the Democrats and a wing of independent Republicans has existed since the days of the tariff dispute.

Senator Watson said earlier he believed if an extra session were called, the president would wait until June 1, shortly before the end of the present fiscal year, to call it.

JUDGE GRANTS PAROLE TO BANKER AT LOMETA SENTENCED THURSDAY

AUSTIN, Jan. 31. (UP)—William Tippen, former Lometa banker, given two 18-month concurrent sentences Thursday in federal court on a plea of guilty to violation of the national banking and farm loan acts, was paroled tonight to D. H. Hart, federal district clerk.

Parole was granted by Judge Duval West, who said "It appears the ends of justice and best interests of the public as well as the defendant will be best served by a parole."

At the sentencing of Tippen, five Lometa residents pleaded with the judge for leniency for the banker, saying that he made the alleged violations to save the bank and depositors from loss. The judge refused a suspended sentence but said Tippen might tell the parole board when he was eligible for parole that the judge had recommended it. The action today followed.

SIAMESE TWINS WILL BE IN COURT AGAIN AS NEW HEARING ARGUED

CANYON, Texas, Jan. 31. (UP)—San Antonio's Siamese twins, Daisy and Violet Hilton, will go to court again next week, it was announced by Judge W. W. McCrory here today. The judge will hear Myer Myers argue for a new hearing on the now famous injunction suit of the twins on Monday.

The 22-year-old girls were given an injunction last week against Myers, alleged to be meddling in their affairs. Myers, their former manager and his wife, had kept them in virtual "slavery" since childhood, the girl said.

Myers contends that he and not Joe Freeman, their present manager, should have charge of the girls' affairs.

Radio That Gave Operator Power To Snatch Lives From Angry Sea In Turn Has Claimed His Life

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 31. (AP)—Radio gave Clifford Paulson the power and courage to snatch human lives from an angry sea. Today it killed him.

His body was picked up this morning from the floor of his work room in the Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., offices at Municipal airport here. Two thousand volts from a radio transmitting set had taken his life—the life he risked to save others when the steamship San Juan sank off the Pacific coast a year and a half ago.

The 24-year-old youth stayed by his key until water crept into the radio room of the San Juan. The three SOS calls he sent out brought other ships to the scene, 18 miles off Pidgeon Point, and many lives were saved. Seventy were drowned. A collision with the Standard Oil tanker S. C. T. Todd caused the tragedy, Aug. 31, 1929.

"Accidental electrocution," said the coroner today, and a telegram went to the father, Louis Paulson, at Goble, Ore. Clifford Paulson was believed unmarried.

The air lines post was the first land job for Paulson, who had tinkered with radios since he was a boy.

He once said he left the sea partly because of the maritime slogan —"don't let the elements strike three times."

Paulson was in another ocean mishap, fleeing from a flaming tug boat of which he was a crewman.

He had worked as radio operator on several coastal craft.

Investigators today believed the operator, going to the radio room while off duty last night, was attempting to "raise" amateur radio stations. They thought he carelessly made a circuit through his body that killed him.

GAS COMPANY TO PROTEST CUT IN OKLAHOMA RATES

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 31. (UP)—E. C. Deal, president of the Oklahoma Natural Gas corporation, said today the company would start court action protesting the 10-cent gas rate cut order yesterday by the state corporation commission.

It was understood a restraining order against the commission's edict would be sought in the state supreme court. Deal contended the company was not given a fair hearing and was not permitted to present its complete testimony.

Gas rates were affected in 46 of the 48 cities served by the Oklahoma natural. In Oklahoma City the reduction was from 57 cents a thousand cubic feet to 47 cents.

Chairman Paul A. Walker of the commission set Feb. 11 as date for final hearing of the company's testimony but issued the order to effect reductions on March 1 bills unless the supreme court blocks the move.

Dr. Logan described the symptoms of dementia praecox, hypochrondria, hysteria, neurasthenia and infantile paralysis in his short talk on diagnosis.

Tells of Visit

Dr. Corbin described a recent trip to California, with special reference to group clinics for osteopaths. Dr. L. E. Griffen of Dallas made a short talk urging more organization among osteopaths. "Such organizations as this give the smaller communities an opportunity to have clinics with specialists from large cities," he said. "In addition, they build high standards for osteopathy."

Dr. Charles F. Kenney of Fort Worth, past president of the Texas Association of Osteopathic physicians and surgeons, made a short talk, as did also Dr. Ted Krohn of Wichita Falls, Dr. Frank Moon of Dallas and Dr. R. H. Peterson of Wichita Falls, president of the state association.

In a business session which followed the banquet, it was unanimously voted to protest the bill now before the legislature demanding an annual $2.00 registration fee from all practicing physicians and also the bill increasing the number of persons on the state medical board.

Drs. Peterson and Krohn, hosts at the affair, were given a rising vote of thanks, as were also Mesdames Peterson and Krohn for their assistance in arranging the banquet.

Dr. Corbin, honor guest of the association, had conducted a diagnostic clinic during the afternoon on diseases of the heart and lungs.

Those present at the banquet were: Dr. and Mrs. Louis Logan of Dallas, Dr. Genevieve Laughlin of Dallas, Dr. L. E. Giffen of Dallas, Dr. Frank Moon of Dallas, Dr. and Mrs. V. C. Bassett of Dallas, Dr. Phil R. Russell of Fort Worth, Dr. Charles F. Kenney of Fort Worth, Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Locke of Gainesville, Dr. G. N. Wilson of Vernon, Dr. and Mrs. W. W. MAN ARRESTED RESULT THAT URGE TO RETURN TO SCENE OF CRIME

PAINESVILLE, Ohio, Jan. 31. (AP)—The peculiar urge that makes men return toward the scene of a crime, delivered Leroy Duty, 31, of Ironton, Ohio, in the hands of authorities today to face an indictment charging him with first degree murder of Mildred Vance Courtney, 33, who he said was his wife.

The woman was slain last June 2. Deputy sheriffs said Duty confessed the killing and said he escaped to Australia and China, and finally returned to Ohio "because he did not want to live any more."

Duty told the deputies his mother-in-law had been giving him trouble and that he wanted to move away from her but his wife would not accompany him.

nor's daughter, that she wore it for a time.

The Sterling home was turned over to the legislature and many members took advantage of the opportunity to inspect the residence and ascertain the exact number of bath tubs. The bath tub question was brought up in the last primary campaign when Governor Sterling defeated Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson for the Democratic nomination.

The fun making was led by Senator Carl Hardin of Stephenville, president pro-tem of the senate. Senator Hardin received great acclaim from the legislature by his imitation of a soprano grand concert singer. Music for the singing was by Lon Alsup of Panola, blind member of the house. Even Senator Benjamin F. Berkeley, sedate member of the senate from Alpine, joined in the singing about the grand piano in the reception room.

Gridiron Banquet

HOUSTON, Jan. 31. (AP)—The house and senate of the Texas legislature, Gov. Ross S. Sterling, former Governor Dan Moody and other state and former state notables were given a good natured panning tonight at the annual gridiron dinner of the Houston Salesmanship club.

Several skits were produced, one showing Governor Sterling in conference with Jesse Jones, Houston capitalist, prior to his entrance into the race for governor. One of the high lights was Jones' statement "I'll relieve you of all your business without charge."

Moody's recent condemnation of Raskob as chairman of the national Democratic executive committee; his verbal tilt with Mayor Bill Thompson of Chicago; the Houston mayoralty election and a host of subjects were included in the pointed witticisms.

"Happy days with beer again," was the opening song.

The legislature was given a going over, with several members singled out for comment. Adjutant General William Sterling appeared at the banquet in a "hard boiled shirt" and was promptly singled out as the only ranger captain who ever wore a tuxedo.

Many men prominent in the public life of the state were present including Atty. Gen. James V. Allred; C. V. Terrell, chairman of the railroad commission; Ted Dealy of Dallas; Mayor Ernest O. Thompson of Amarillo; Lieut. Gov. Edgar E. Witt; John Henry Kirby, Houston financier; Melvin Traylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago; former Senator Thomas B. Love of Dallas and Fred Minor, speaker of the Texas house of representatives.

MURRAY AND WENTZ CONTINUE BITTER POLITICAL BATTLE

Oil Millionaire Refuses to Relinquish Place on Commission

GOVERNOR THREATENS TO 'FIRE' THOUSANDS

Democratic Commissioners Follow Order and Name New Chairman

By FRANK O. HALL
United Press Staff Correspondent

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 31.—Gov. William H. Murray, the "commoner," and Lew H. Wentz, the millionaire, continued their bitter political feud tonight with each defying the other.

"Wentz is going to learn for once in his life that $37,000,000 will not control the state government," Murray shouted in his best fighting mood.

Wentz, who refuses to accept his pay check from the state but gives it to the crippled children of Oklahoma, maintained his smile of confidence.

"Only legislation, if enacted, can compel me to terminate my connection with the highway commission," he said.

The political feud, which started in last summer's campaign when it became known the "sage of Tishomingo" would depose Wentz from the commission chairmanship, was agitated this week when Governor Murray issued an executive order removing Wentz as head of the commission.

Denies Authority

Wentz, prominent Republican who made millions in the oil game, remained silent. But the two Democratic commissioners obeyed the governor's wishes and named a new chairman.

Wentz said the governor's order was of "no effect" but recognized the inherent right of the commissioners to name a new chairman.

Governor Murray has threatened to have the Democratic commissioners "fire" several thousand highway employes "unless they cease trying to slander the governor of the state."

The "commoner" gave an unusual hefty puff to his five-cent cigar, his favorite brand, and pounded on the governor's desk.

"I'll have Wentz to understand I am constitutional and he is only a legislative officer," he declared.

Wentz was named to the highway commission as chairman by former Gov. W. J. Holloway about two years ago. He still has fours years to serve.

He contends the governor does not have the authority to remove him. Governor Murray contends the constitution, of which he is the author, gives the chief executive that authority.

HEARING ON SANITY OF THOMASSON POSTPONED HE CANNOT BE LOCATED

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 31. (INS)—Due to the absence of Hugh W. Thomasson, 73-year-old capitalist, the scheduled hearing on Thomasson's sanity today was continued until Feb. 13.

Thomasson and his 29-year-old bride, Mrs. Grace Caroline Thomasson, cannot be found. They were last reported to have checked out of an East St. Louis, Ill., hotel.

Mrs. Ella Bolles, second cousin of the capitalist, instituted the sanity proceedings after the elderly millionaire signed over more than a half million dollars worth of real estate to his young bride upon their return from their "second honeymoon" Monday. Thomasson announced through a sworn statement upon his return from his "second honeymoon" that he and his wife had become reconciled and that a suit for annulment of their marriage which he had instituted had been dropped.

OIL MEN ATTACK HARRY SINCLAIR

has attempted to destroy proration in Oklahoma and "failing in that he is now trying to take advantage of the deplorable situation in East Texas, where oil is selling for a song," he said.

Out of the meeting today called by W. M. Blair, J. S. Bridwell, J. H. Massie and John F. O'Donohue of Wichita Falls, all of whom are operating in the East Texas fields, came a committee of six who together with a like number to come from the central proration committee and six from the East Texas committee of 25 appointed at a mass meeting of lease and royalty owners held in Tyler a fortnight ago, will finally iron out the oil development and production problem in East Texas.

Carl Estes, Tyler newspaper publisher and chairman of the East Texas committee, proposed the committee of 13, stating that while it was well known that he was an outspoken opponent of what he termed "premature proration," the people of eastern Texas could be counted upon to pursue a course which would be advantageous to the best interest of all those affected.

To Meet in Tyler

Estes invited the producers to meet with the East Texas committee which will hold its initial meeting in Longview Feb. 5.

E. J. Allen, representing the Shell Oil company, called upon the chairman of the East Texas committee to know whether his company was going to be obliged to come over into East Texas fields and be "gutted" by a wild drilling campaign which would be disastrous to them.

"We've spent thousands upon thousands of dollars in the East Texas oil produeing area and I want to know if you East Texans are going to welcome us by cooperating with the movement for orderly development or must we be crucified, so to speak," Allen asked.

"I'll give you to understand that the people of my section are open minded on this proration proposition but neither your big companies nor the central proration committee is going to be permitted to come over there and cram something down our throats before we thoroughly understand what effect it will have upon our future welfare," Estes replied.

W. B. Hamilton was designated chairman of the producers' committee of six which included H. L. Hunt, E. G. Allen (Shell), Jame Hammon, H. R. Dickinson (Arkansas Gas and Fuel) and John Suman (Humble).

GIANT PLANE HAS COMPLETED FIRST LEG LONG FLIGHT

WILL LEAVE LAS PALMAS ON SUNDAY OR MONDAY

Next Stop Will Be Cape Verde, 845 Miles Distant

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands, Jan. 31. (AP)—Carying 19 men and 180,000 pieces of mail, the Dornier DO-X, largest airplane in the world, today successfully completed the first leg of its long-delayed flight from Lisbon to New York by way of South America.

She left the Tagus harbor at Lisbon at 8:08 a. m. The roar of her American motors echoed in the cheers of the crowds which lined the waterfront—the same sort of crowd which late last year saw the big plane burn at her anchorage and later watched it in the course of the reconstruction.

She arrived here, 715 miles from her starting point, at 3:10 p. m. after an uneventful voyage during which fog made it necessary to abandon a plan to drop a mail bag at Funchal in the Madeira islands.

As she circled over the city like a great eagle, hundreds of persons stood in the streets and flocked to the waterfront cheering wildly. As the air liner alighted gently as a gull on the water and taxied to her anchorage, small boats put out for a closer inspection.

Preparations were begun immediately for the next stage of the flight—to Cape Verde, 845 miles away.

The DO-X, largest thing ever to fly, carried as her mascot one of the smallest of birds. It is a canary, obtained at the last moment at the insistence of Commander Friedrich Christiansen to replace an earlier mascot which died while the seaplane waited at Lisbon.

The ship will remain here at least overnight while her engines are thoroughly checked. Her commander had not fixed a definite time for the departure.

How to Escape
FLU
1 Avoid so far as possible the places where flu germs are most likely to be spread; overcrowded cars and public meeting places; overheated, stuffy rooms.
2 Be careful of close contact with others and beware of all coughers and sneezers; breathe through the nose, get fresh air, but avoid drafts or chilling.
3 Get lots of rest. Eat plenty of citrus fruits. Keep the bowels open. Take extra precaution to keep in good physical condition, so your system will have high resistance against germs.
4 Above all, avoid catching colds. They lower your resistance to the flu germ. Ward them off. At the first sign of any cold, take Bayer Aspirin and remain indoors if possible until your cold is gone. If you have a sore throat, dissolve some Bayer Aspirin tablets in water and gargle; this will relieve the soreness and reduce the inflammation.
5 If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of flu, call your doctor at once.

Weaver to Show Graham-Paiges Here This Week

The Weaver Motor company will have a showing of new Graham-Paige models this week. The cars are direct from the factory and represent the newest of the 1931 models.

The cars on display are two models of six-cylinder sedans, one being a special model and the other a standard. The third car is the new straight-eight special sedan. Feature of the cars is the new synchro silent four-speed gear shift. This shift permits shifting of gears while the car is in motion, adding to safety and saving in fuel.

The cars are equipped with new features that only the highest priced cars are using. The shackle bolts are suspended in pure rubber, thereby eliminating lubrication and squeaks. The glass is shatter-proof of the highest quality. There are new features in construction of the motor. The price range of the new models is from $1,095 to $1,625, delivered in Wichita Falls and fully equipped.

Lloyd Weaver, manager of the Weaver Motor company, invites the public to visit the salesroom any day or evening during the coming week. Mr. Weaver also announced Saturday that Joe B. Graham, president of Graham Brothers, manufacturers of Graham-Paige Motor cars, will be a visitor in Wichita Falls during the early part of February. Mr. Weaver plans a luncheon in his honor.

W. C. Wilson, president of the Graham-Paige company of Texas, with headquarters in Dallas, spent Saturday with Weaver Motor company salesmen, explaining to them in detail the construction and merits of the new 1931 cars. Mr. Wilson stated that the automobile business is now recovering from the past depression and that factories are increasing production. He expects to see 1931 a very good business year.

February Holds Record for Being Birth Month for Host of Notables In Literary and Political World

February, despite its brevity, has more famous events than any of the other months save November and December, according to the list by Mary E. Hazeltine in her "Anniversaries and Holidays," published by the American Library association. It is the birth month of four presidents, including the two most famous ones, as well as of Edison, Darwin, Dickens, and a host of other famous figures.

It is also the month in which the United States has made its most notable territorial gains. On the twenty-fifth of February in 1779, George Rogers Clark, with a handful of frontiersmen, captured Vincennes to win the great northwest territory for the new federal government. Forty years later, on Washington's birthday, Florida was purchased from Spain and on the second of the month in 1848 the treaty, which ended the war with Mexico, gave to the United States territory from which were formed Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, and California.

The battleship Maine blew up in Havana harbor on Feb. 15, 1898. On Feb. 21, 18 years later, great guns roared out the first bombardment of Verdun.

Feb. 2, known as the date on which the ground hog emerges in search of his shadow, is Candlemas day, and has long been regarded as a day for weather prognostications. "If Candlemas be bright and clear, we'll have two winters in the year."

St. Valentine's day, too, has long been observed much as it is today. Miss Hazeltine says that the sending of love missives on Feb. 14 dates back at least to the 14th century and probably earlier.

Two states admitted to the union on the day of valentines were Oregon, in 1859 and Arizona, in 1912. In the latter, "Admission day" is a legal holiday. Ohio, the other state to enter the union in February, was admitted on the nineteenth in 1803. "Georgia day" on Feb. 12, marks the anniversary of the landing of General Oglethorpe with his colonists.

Other Birthdays

In addition to Washington's and Lincoln's birthdays, this month contains the birthdays of William Henry Harrison, the ninth president of the United States, and Millard Fillmore, the thirteenth.

Thomas A. Edison was born on Feb. 11, a little more than a century after the birth of Volta, inventor of the electric cell on Feb. 18, 1745. Gutenberg, the inventor of the printing press, is listed in February because his death occurred on the twenty-third of that month in 1468, the date of his birth being unknown.

Darwin, author of "Origin of Species," is also "February's child." His birthday occurs on the twelfth. Copernicus, the Polish founder of modern astronomy, was born on Feb. 19, 1473, and Galileo, the Italian who first viewed the stars through a telescope, on Feb. 15, 1564.

On February's roll of literary personages are Christopher Marlowe, Madame de Sevigne, Schopenhauer, Lamb, Hugo, Longfellow, Dickens, Ruskin, Lowell, Meredith, Lanier, and Croce.

Musicians born in this month include, Palestrina, Handel, Rossini, Mendelssohn, and Ole Bull. The composer Rossini was one of two men on Miss Hazeltine's calendar, whose birthdays fall on Feb. 29. The other is Montcalm, the general who commanded the French forces at the battle of Quebec.

Particularly notable is the list of stage luminaries including David Garrick, Joseph Jefferson, Sir Henry Irving, Rachel, and Ellen Terry.

Three pioneers of the woman suffrage movement born during the month were Elizabeth Blackwell, Anna Howard Shaw, and Susan B. Anthony.

WICHITAN PLANS ATTEND CONFERENCE ON CHILD HEALTH WHITE HOUSE

Miss Margaret B. Cowling, superintendent of the Wichita General hospital, has been invited by President Hoover to attend the child health conference at the White House Feb. 19 to 21, it was learned Saturday.

Miss Cowling received the following invitation: "By direction of the president and on his behalf, the secretary of the interior invites Miss Margaret B. Cowling to attend the meetings of the section of medical service of the White House conference on child health and protection called in the city of Washington for Feb. 19 to 21, 1931."

Miss Cowling will probably attend the conference, as will also Dr. Maude Lindsey of this city, another who received a similar invitation.

DALLAS WOMAN AWARDED $5,500 DAMAGES IN SUIT AGAINST MOVIE THEATER

DALLAS, Jan. 31. (AP)—The verdict of a district court jury today awarded $5,500 damages to Miss Jean Henry in a suit against the Publix Theaters corporation for injuries alleged to have been received when she was struck by a girl who fell over the balcony railing in a local playhouse.

It was the third trial of the case, one decision for each of the parties to the suit having been reversed by a higher court. Attorneys for the corporation announced that an appeal from the new verdict probably would be taken.

SANTA FE FIREMEN REDUCE MILEAGE TO HELP UNEMPLOYED

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 31. (AP)—Santa Fe firemen moved to relieve unemployment among their brother firemen today by voluntarily electing to reduce the mileage stipulations in their contracts with the road.

W. C. Keiser, general chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen for the Santa Fe's eastern and western lines, over which the mileage reduction will be effective, said the move probably would provide employment for between 125 and 150 additional firemen.

Passenger train firemen, entitled to work under present contracts between 4,000 and 4,800 miles each 30-day period, chose to reduce their contract limits to 3,600 and 4,000 miles. Freight train firemen, regulated to between 3,200 and 3,800 miles, will accept under the relief plan limits of 2,800 and 3,200 miles.

Firemen in regular yard service, held under existing agreements only to a maximum of 35 eight-hour days, asked for a minimum of 26 and a maximum of 30 days. Similar reductions were worked out for extra boards.

The move has not yet been extended to the Santa Fe's gulf and coast lines, Keiser said, although similar action has been taken by rail brotherhoods in eastern states.

The arrangement will continue until June 1.

Hunter's nomination has been held up pending inquiry into complaints made against him by employes in the postoffice. Senator Connally announced he had received a telegram from the postal employes who had requested a hearing that they did not desire to make further opposition.

KANSAS URGED NOT TO RESTORE DEATH PENALTY IN STATE

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 31. (INS)—Clarence Darrow, Frank P. Walsh of Kansas City, Kathleen Norris, George W. Kirchwey and other nationally known notables, extending all the way from New York to California, today joined in pleas to Gov. Harry H. Woodring asking him to see to it that Kansas does not "take the backward step of restoring capital punishment."

The Kansas house of representatives recently passed a bill restoring capital punishment.

Among telegrams that came in today urging the governor to keep Kansas from becoming a "killer" state again was one from the American League to Abolish Capital Punishment, which has a membership in 38 states, including Kansas.

Darrow's name headed the list of names on this petition which said: "A backward step taken by Kansas at this time will do untold harm in all sections. Eleven states have already introduced bills to abolish capital punishment. All facts and figures prove that state killing is not a deterrent. Reaction of Kansas is of national concern."

GIRL HELD PENDING AN INVESTIGATION OF DEATH OF MAN AT PENSACOLA

PENSACOLA, Fla., Jan. 31. (AP)—Miss Gretchen Gregory, 19, was in custody here today as police investigated the mysterious slaying of her companion, Henry Moore, a married man, early this morning.

Moore was shot through the heart as he sat in an automobile with Miss Gregory on a highway, police said.

Her version was that she and Moore were accosted by two men who ordered Moore to hold up his hands. She said she covered her face in fright and then heard a shot fired.

The men then ran away, she said, and Moore lay quiet. She brought him to a hospital but he died soon afterward.

WEATHER MAN KIND TO WICHITA FALLS AT START OF 1931

January, 1931, was an ideally pleasant month as regards weather, especially when Wichita Falls has such a fresh memory of January, 1930.

The month just ended, according to figures released late Saturday by the cooperative weather bureau at the Texas Electric Service company, had a maximum temperature eight degrees cooler than the maximum for January, 1930, and a minimum temperature 24 degrees warmer than the minimum for January, 1930.

The warmest day of the past month, which was Friday, Jan. 30, had a maximum of 69 degrees; the coldest day was Jan. 14, with a minimum of 21 degrees. The mean maximum for the month was 56.94 degrees, the mean minimum 36.87 degrees, and the mean temperature was 46.91 degrees.

But look at the figures for the same month last year! The maximum was 77 degrees, on Jan. 1; the minimum was three degrees below zero, on Jan. 18; the mean maximum was 40.07 degrees (almost as cold as the mean minimum for January, 1931), the mean minimum was 21.39 degrees, and the mean temperature was 30.73 degrees.

During the past month there has been no snow, thunderstorms, hail or sleet. During January, 1930, there was a total of nine and a half inches of snow, and sleet on four days.

On other respects, however, the two months are fairly similar. The greatest daily range in temperature in 1931 was 32 degrees, on Jan. 2 and Jan. 23, while the greatest daily range for the same period last year was 44 degrees on Jan. 7.

The precipitation total for January, 1931, was 1.37 inches, with the greatest daily rainfall .33 of an inch on Jan. 26; the precipitation total for the same month in 1930 was 1.45 inches, with a fall of .47 of an inch on Jan. 9.

During the past month, there were six days on which there was .01 of an inch or more precipitation, 10 clear days, seven partly cloudy days and 14 cloudy days; in January, 1930, there were nine days when there was as much as .01 of an inch precipitation, five clear days, six partly cloudy days and 20 cloudy days.

In January, 1930, there was frost every day in the month except on Jan. 1, 2, 6 and 26. In January, 1931, there were only eight frosty days —Jan. 1, 2, 8, 12, 14, 19, 20 and 23.

Clara Bow Film 'No Limit' Jerked Ends Run Sunday

Thus was explained the "jerking" of Clara Bow's picture, "No Limit," at the Strand theater after two days' showing had brought in practically no receipts.

The picture, originally scheduled for a week's run, will be shown Sunday for the last time. On Monday, the Strand will present "The Bat Whispers," a mystery with a cast that includes Chester Morris, Richard Tucker and Una Merkel. "The Bat Whispers" will be shown through Thursday.

"No Limit" has met with practically the same response, or lack of response, in all cities in which it has been shown, according to Paramount-Publix officials here.

COTTON FARMERS IN DICKENS COUNTY TO USE CERTIFIED SEED

SPUR, Texas, Jan. 31.—A county-wide meeting of over 500 farmers here Saturday laid plans for the securing of state certified cottonseed. W. B. Lee, president of the Spur Chamber of Commerce, presided at the meeting and introduced the speakers.

Whitson, Stanton, field director, also spoke. All three of these men urged the farmers to plant certified seed, explaining the growing of the seed and the advantages to be derived.

Several farmers also spoke and indications are that Dickens county will again be the home of a standard staple cotton this year.

ACTRESS CARRIES CORNFEDS' BANNER

CHICAGO, Jan. 31. (INS)—Hips are back in fashion, Trixie Friganza—who should know—told the world at large today. Trixie, who runs somewhat to avoirdupois, declared as she arrived here to fill a theatrical engagement:

"I'm carrying the banner for the fat ladies. Listen girls—hips are back in fashion. Of course, they always were popular with the men but the women thought it was ritzy to be snaky. No more. The fashion chiefs have turned thumbs down on the spinster figure and the boyish build."

What does it cost to feed 1,000 persons for one month?

That all depends on how they are fed, said Wichita County Red Cross chapter officials Saturday as they signed grocery order No. 211 and added up a total of $2,704.50 that had been spent to feed approximately 1,055 persons in Wichita county for one month.

In other words, the average family gets $12.81 for its month's grocery bill, or about $2.56 per person. Figuring it out to a finer point, it costs about 8½ cents per day for each person.

How it is done can only be shown in a typical meeting of the drouth disaster relief committee. The first meeting of the committee was held a week ago Saturday, and each day since then, representative citizens of each community have passed on the applications for help and meted out a grocery order for each family.

In each community in the county a responsible person has investigated those families believed to be needy, has made a survey of the situation and has made recommendations to the disaster committee on regular application blanks.

The chairman, J. T. Harrell, reads the blank: "John Doe, age 51, wife Mary, six children, 12, 11, 9, 8, 6, 2. Chattel mortgage on two mules. wife sick in bed, owes $25 doctor bill and $8.95 grocery bill. No food in house. This family is worthy."

Process Followed

"I move we allow them $15.00 says one of the other members of the committee. The motion is seconded and passed. Mr. Harrell signs the blank and hands it to Miss Pearl Rorabaugh, Red Cross nutritionist, who fills out a corresponding grocery order. "You are authorized to sell groceries not to exceed in value of $15 to John Doe," reads the order. At the bottom of the grocery order, John Doe must sign a statement saying that he has received the groceries, after which it is returned to the Red Cross for payment.

Each day the committee meets for several hours in consideration of the needy families, and the meetings are not in any way prosaic or uninteresting. There is plenty of pathos—for instance, the note written by a mother of several children on the back of an application for help. "I sure do hate to ask for help," she wrote. "Maybe just one time and we will get by."

On the other hand, the sober-faced judges of the needy and worthy relax into near-giggles at times as they read the reports. There was, for example, a very descriptive report turned in by one investigator which said, "No food, no clothing, kids dirty."

Two hundred and eleven families have been given help thus far—ranging from $8 to $20 per family. This help is only in regard to food and the food must last for a month. Menus prepared by Miss Rorabaugh and Miss Ethel Luise Webb, home demonstration agent, will help in making the food last that long.

STARTLING DISCOVERIES ON FRUIT FLY EXPECTED IN TEXAS LABORATORIES

AUSTIN, Jan. 31. (UP)—Out of a laboratory of the University of Texas there may come, soon, more startling discoveries in the science of genetics.

Dr. Solomon Levit, recent winner of a Rockefeller foundation fellowship, has come from Moscow, Russia, to work with Dr. H. J. Muller of the university zoology faculty, in experiments with fruit flies.

Doctor Muller is the scientist who attracted international attention four years ago when he began reporting results of experiments in changing fruit flies by X-ray.

He and the visiting Russian experimenter will work with Dr. I. J. Agol, last year's Rockefeller foundation fellow, in studying the structure of the gene, smallest of cell bodies, making daily examinations of chloroformed fruit flies. Their experiments will continue for several months.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR WEEK TO BE OBSERVED HERE

During the week of Feb. 1 four million young people, representing more than 40 nations, will be celebrating the 50th anniversary of the organization of the first Christian Endeavor society at the Williston Congregational church at Portland, Maine, on Feb. 2, 1881. Eighty thousand societies are active in the organization today, representing more than 100 denominations.

The several churches in Wichita Falls having Christian Endeavor organizations will carry out a varied program in recognition of Christian Endeavor week.

In keeping with the historical influence of the society in bringing the young people of various churches together in union meetings, there will be held at the Highland Heights Christian church, Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock, a 50th anniversary C. E. banquet, sponsored by the Wichita county union. A committee composed of Pat Henry Jr., president of the Wichita county union, and Shirley Donnell, president of the Wichita district, are in charge of the program. Delegations are assured from all the Christian Endeavor societies in Wichita Falls, Burkburnett, Iowa Park, Seymour and possibly others yet to be heard from. All ex-endeavorers, though not active now, are invited to attend this banquet. A charge of 35 cents per plate will be made.

Chicago Employes Threatened With Payless Paydays

CHICAGO, Jan. 31. (UP)—The city of Chicago was again close to municipal bankruptcy tonight, threatening payless paydays for thousands of employes. The situation, it was asserted, was even gloomier than that from which the city was saved by the money raising efforts of a citizens' committee one year ago.

The dilemma arises from protracted delay in tax collections, held in abeyance primarily by a lengthy program of tax reassessment work.

Silas H. Strawn, noted lawyer and merchant and the chairman of the citizens committee which prevailed upon Chicago bankers last year to advance $74,000,000 on 1929 and 1930 tax anticipation warrants, painted a dismal picture.

"I am not a pessimist, but I see a very serious situation shortly when there will be no money to pay policemen, firemen, school teachers and other public officials," Strawn said.

"The only way the city can finance itself, in the opinion of Strawn, is through the sale of 1931 tax anticipation warrants and "under existing conditions I know no one who would buy such warrants," he said.

ROCKEFELLER LIMITS COMMENT ON ECONOMIC CONDITIONS TO EVER PRESENT NEED FOR FAITH

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1931, by International News Service)

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Jan. 31. "We must have faith."

John D. Rockefeller, world famous retired oil magnate and philanthropist, made this remark today when asked to comment on the present economic situation. All he would say on the subject was:

"We must have faith," and he quickly added:

"We must have faith all the time."

Mr. Rockefeller was very cautious about his utterances, although he was just as genial and gracious as ever. He would not discuss such subjects as the Wickersham report or the unemployment problem because, as he explained, he had been importuned so much for interviews he did not want to do for one newspaper man what he would not do for another.

"How is your health?" he was asked.

"Fine," he replied with sincerity. "And I am very grateful."

In Good Health

Mr. Rockefeller, now 91 years old, certainly seemed to be in excellent physical and mental condition for a man of his age. His cheeks were tanned a light brown from the outdoors. His small, light blue eyes were bright with health. His step was surprisingly agile. He was attired for golf, having just arrived in his limousine at the Ormond Beach links with a party of friends and golfing companions.

"I feel just as good as I did five years ago," said Mr. Rockefeller.

"You should live to be well over 100 years old," the International News Service reporter suggested.

John D. pondered a moment. Then with a smile, he said:

"Well, I'm not thinking of old age yet."

Asked if it were true that he had cut down his daily round of golf from eight holes to six holes, he replied:

"Well, I don't stick to eight. I play six, seven or eight holes, depending upon how I feel."

Mr. Rockefeller wore long trousers, a light gray jacket over a jersey and a light gray cap with flaps which he pulled down over his ears and buttoned under his chin just before he started out on his round. He wore thick-lensed glasses.

Companions on Links

His companions on the links today were J. W. Van Dyke, of Philadelphia, chairman of the board of the Atlantic Refining company; Mr. and Mrs. John P. White, of Cleveland, and their daughter, Miss Betty White, and Robert Denison, an attorney of Cleveland. Mr. White is head of a financing company. The whites and Van Dyke are house guests at the Rockefeller mansion. Van Dyke, who is 81 years old, started with Rockefeller in the oil business 58 years ago. The whites have known Mr. Rockefeller for years. It was necessary to split the party up into a foursome and a twosome.

At the eighth green I sat chatting with Van Dyke and White. Presently Mr. Rockefeller and Miss White Hove into sight. John D. was about 100 yards from the green. He took a jigger and chipped neatly to the green, about six feet from the pin.

His approach put the ball to the brim of the cup, but he displayed no annoyance. Miss White, a fine golfer, sank her long putt.

"I played six holes with Mr. Rockefeller a week ago and I made it in 28." Mr. Van Dyke told me: "A couple of days later I received a message from Mr. Rockefeller which said he made it in 25. He's a good golfer for a man of his age."

Then he lifted two 5-year-old twin girls one by one, into the air and kissed them. And then he gave each of them a brand new dime. He gave the mother one, too. He did not hand any dimes to the men, however.

Passes Out Dimes

Later, at the eighth green, when he was through golf for the day and the writer was wondering if he had run out of dimes, John D. dug down and gave me no less than seven brand new 10-cent pieces. "Have you a mother?" he asked. There was a dime for her, God bless her. And a father? A dime for him and so on.

The reason John D. had not been passing out dimes so much of late is that the crowds on nice days become so large it taxes his strength reaching into his pocket and saying a word or two to each one to whom he gives a momento.

Mr. Rockefeller continues to adhere to his strict diet regime. He rises at 7:30 a. m., has breakfast at 8:00, reads his mail and at 10:30 a. m., is on the links. At 1:00 p. m., he enjoys a light luncheon and later a motor ride. Dinner is at 7. He retires promptly at 10:00 p. m. He still transacts considerable private business. He sends and receives a batch of telegrams daily. His life is busier than most people imagine.

VIGOROUS GROWTH FOR PHILADELPHIA IN PAST DECADE

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 31. (AP)—Philadelphia, named by William Penn after the ancient city in Asia Minor to symbolize "brotherly love," third largest and third richest city in Uncle Sam's domain, and tenth in the rank of world cities, showed vigorous growth in the last decade.

Numbering more than 1,950,000 persons within the legal bounds of the municipality, Philadelphia with its fringe of municipal towns dependent upon the activities of the big city rates itself as a community of 2,500,000.

The population has moved away fro mthe business and old residential sections to the open county. In this city of homes, more than 40 per cent of the homes are owned by their occupants.

The estimated valeu of construction entailed by the building permits for the last 10 years totals $1,128,500,000. The increase in total bank resources in the decade from $1,747,558,000 to $2,532,490,000 gives a picture of the growth in money.

Ships that sail the seven seas come up to the shore where William Penn signed the historic treaty of peace that was to be kept so long as the sun and moon endure, show the growth of the port of Philadelphia. Ten years ago 7,003 ships used the facilities of more than 200 wharves and docks, while in the year just closed the count was 15,284.

Hysterical Girl Laughs So Much Frightens Bandit

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 31. (AP)—A slip of a girl, Inez Clayton, who sells tickets for a Wheeling movie theater, found herself looking into a pistol last night.

"Hand over at dough, an' if you squawk, I'll plug you," snarled the tough looking individual behind the gun.

Inez laughed.

Inez laughed and laughed.

A few minutes later theater attaches and pedestrians found the hysterical girl, clutching the little tin box that contained $225.

BATHING PRACTICES ON BEACH EMBARRASSING TO MEMBERS OF GARRISON

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 31. (AP)—From the orders of Maj. Gen. Malin Craig, U. S. A., commanding officer of Fort Winfield Scott, which snuggles up against the hills of San Francisco and sits by the shining big sea water.

"It has recently come to the attention of this headquarters that many bathers and other persons of miscellaneous character are parading on Baker's beach (a part of the military reservation) clothed only in a G string and some bathers have been seen in the nude.

"This practice makes it most embarrasing to members of the garrison who habitually ride along the beach. . . .

"Officers of the day will hereafter on Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday patrol in person (mounted) the vicinity of Baker's beach and take necessary action to stop such annoying practice."

SOME POLITICAL CRADLES HAVE SHOATS IN'EM

By WILL ROGERS

Well, all I know is just what I read in the papers, and what I see. Well, here the last few weeks I have seen more than I have read. They say that travel is an education to you. Yes, and it's a bother, too. But I must go back a couple of weeks in order to get at some of the old stuff I saw.

First place, I saw some mighty poor farms flying over Missouri, eastern Oklahoma, and Indiana, on my way to Washington. Just little renter shacks, and it was snowing and lots of 'em dident look like they had any wood, much less food. You see, it's the country folks that are suffering more than the city ones, in this hard year.

Well, I got into Washington and went of course immediately up to "Opera Comique," both ends of it, the Senate and the House. First in to see Nick Longworth in the Speaker's office. That's my official headquarters while at the Capitol building. I leave my overcoat there, (that's trusting) and I work out of there. Phoned Jack Garner, the Democratic Leader, and told him the Democratic Party were ready to caucus, and he come right over. He told me the next time I come that I could still use that same office, and phone out to Nick to come over and see me there. It's going to be mighty close as to who will be Speaker of the next house.

Next over to see Tilson, Republican Leader, but a nice fellow in spite. Then I hiked for the Senate for there is where the fireworks were operating, as they was arguing over whether the government was to feed its folks or its folks were to feed its folks. Joe Robinson of Arkansas was fighting for his Amendment to provide 25 million for food, and he was backed by all the Democrats, and all the "Wild jackasses." That's what Mr. Moses called the Insurgent Republicans one time just before election last year. It got a laugh and cost his side two million votes, so that really could be called the two million dollar Lugh.

America Second

Gillette of Mass. was talking against the Government going into the food business just for our own home talent, he thought we should send something out to the other countries, but that we could find some way of tiding our personal hunger over till something turned up, or the Market picked up, or something. Right in the middle of his "America second," why Senator Caraway, who really reminds one of Felix the Cat, in the Movies, who you know is so wise and walks around with his hands behind him studying.

Well Caraway was prowling up and down, and one of the Boys in the Press stand says, "Caraway is thinking up one now to hit him with," and sure enough he kept sidling over toward the Republican side. You know they have a line drawn there so you can tell the Republicans from the Democrats, they have to have nowadays; there is no other way telling. Well, Caraway said, (You know this Caraway is a smart one, and very sarcastic, he bowls 'em over with a well placed Bon Mot, and it not only floors 'em but the hurt remains). Well he said, to Gillette who is from Mass.

"What about that time when Salem Mass. was destroyed by flames, or was it Witches, and the Government appropriated money to help the distressed, you Senator Gillette was in the House of Representatives, did you say then that it was a Dole, did you say it was "bad precedent" to set, answer me?"

Gillette in the Hole

Well, poor Gillette was in the hole, that gag about the Witches of Salem had got him groggy, and he was sorry that Salem had ever had a fire. Well, he said that he dident vote for the relief, or against it either, he just answered "Present," then Felix pounced on him again, (he was just playing with him from paw to paw). "You just voted present did you, well that's courageous Statesmanship. Your State was stricken, they needed help, but their Congressman voted neither to help, or not to help, he just announced that he was there."

Tom Heflin in the last days of his stay in there made one of his while I was in the gallery. They were going to go down to Alabama and investigate Tom's election, as he says there was frauds in the counting of the votes, he feels that he was elected but counted out. They can do that. Well, his opponent had sent word that he welcomed the investigation. But Tom said that was just a gallant gesture, that he dident welcome the investigation and he told this story to illustrate it.

If you raise the Kivvers on my baby, He'll die

"Down in my old fine State of Alabama at Hot Springs was Rastus Lincoln, a Nigger. His white Neighbor had lost a Shote, little spotted one, weighing about 90 pounds. Well, the Neighbor got the Sheriff and went looking for the hog, and they went to Rastus house. He was sitting in front of the fire place rocking a cradle and singing a baby song, with the covers in the cradle all tucked in both head and foot till you couldent see a thing of the Baby. 'Rastus you seen Jones hog?' 'Oh no sir, I aint spen him, you can serch the place, I aint see the Shote tall.'

"They searched, but found nothing, then they asked, 'Whats in the cradle?' 'Thats my baby, Gentlemens, that my little baby.' 'Let us see the Baby?' 'Oh no, the Baby is sick and the Doctor said if I raised the kivvers on the Baby and the air hit him he would die.' You cant see the Baby.' But they went toward the cradle and started to lift the quilt, and Rastus said, as he moved toward the door, 'I cant stand and see him die, I just got to go,' and he did, right out the door and across the cotton patch.

"They lifted the Kivvers and there lay the 90-pound hog, and thats what will happen when you Investigating Committee get to my old State of Alabama. You wont find my people are crooked. My people in Alabama are the finest people God ever let live. I love my People in Alabama. I am not saying a word against the great folks of Alabama. I dont want any blot to be on them. Its the crooked Politicians that done it. Its not the fine people of Alabama. They are the finest folks on this green earth. They elected me. They done it fairly. But the crooks counted me out, and thats why I want this election investigated. You come to Alabama and lift the Kivvers, and you will find the Hog."

Wild Scenes Attend Premiere of Chaplin Picture 'City Lights'

By WALLACE X. RAWLES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 31.—Dr. Albert Einstein, famous scientist, attended the world's premiere of the $2,000,000 Charles Chaplin picture "City Lights" here last night and escaped uninjured in a milling mob of 25,000 persons that surged around the entrance to the new Los Angeles theater.

The crowd battled police, bowled as 200 police reserves answered a riot call, smashed windows and leaped on limousine running boards to gaze critically at famous film stars and other celebrities.

Ambulances that screamed their way toward Broadway were unable to approach within two blocks of the theater.

Twenty Women Faint

The ambulances were summoned to give first aid to a boy who fell from a second story window and broke his arm; to 20 women who fainted in the crowd; to a traffic sergeant whose hand was broken when the crowd surged against him while he was endeavoring to open a window of a film celebrity automobile.

A threat that tear gas bombs would be used unless the crowd became orderly and allowed Dr. Einstein and 3,000 other persons to enter the gayly lighted theater was made by the radio announcer. The threat was ignored and drowned by cheers of the crowd.

Acting Chief of Police Bert Massey said that tear gas bombs were not used.

"The tear gas announcement was just a gag to try to force back a crowd of 25,000 persons determined in their efforts to get ringside glances of the famous persons," said Acting Captain Hynes of the police intelligence squad who summoned additional reserves.

The performance, scheduled to start at 8:30 p. m., was not under way until 10 o'clock because of inability of many famous persons to battle through the crowd and attain their seats—which cost $10 each.

Women's clothing was torn and trampled. One famous actress had an ermine coat torn from her shoulders. The coat was recovered by her escort with police aid. A $10,000 diamond necklace was reported to the box office as having been lost underfoot.

Rain diminished only slightly the crowd that fought and jostled for three hours and awaited the end of the show to witness the famous persons leave the theater.

GRASSHOPPERS ALREADY HOP-HOP-HOPPING ALONG

MARSHALL, Mo., Jan. 31. (AP)—Add warm weather notes—a folded check blank full of little hopping insects was brought in from the country yesterday by L. D. Murrell, banker. His assertion they were grasshoppers was supported by most of the local entomology experts, who said never before had the insects come hop-hop-hopping along in January.

TELEPHONE RATES IN HOLLIS LOWERED UNDER ORDER OF COMMISSION

HOLLIS, Okla., Jan. 31.—Notice has been received by City Attorney Miller and Mayor Cox from the corporation commission, that effective Feb. 1, the Southwest Bell Telephone company was ordered to reduce telephone rates in Hollis to the amount of 25 cents per phone.

Some years ago when the telephone plant was operated by an independent concern the commission allowed an increase in rates in order that certain improvements could be made with the understanding that such increase in rates would be effective for one year only. In the meantime the Southwest Bell Telephone company took over the plant and maintained the rates in effect at the time of the purchase. Several meetings were held by the people of Hollis for the purpose of asking for a reduction, but no action was taken by the company until the case was brought before the corporation commission Jan. 21, at which time Hollis was repesented by Attorney Miller. As ordered by the commission the new rates will be $3.50 for business and $2 for residence of one party service and $1.50 for two party service. This case attracted state-wide attention and at the hearing held in Oklahoma City, representatives of several town and cities were present.

PROVISION OF WORK URGED BY WAR VETERANS

Employment in Preference To Conversion of Bonus Asked

MORE THAN 200,000 DECLARED JOBLESS

Treasury Department Draws Fire for Attitude at Meeting

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. (AP)—Over a plea by Veterans Administrator Hines for unemployed relief instead of conversion of bonus certificates, service men's organizations today raised persistent demands for cash in testimony before the house ways and means committee.

Estimating 200,000 to 300,000 veterans are jobless, Hines said a considerable number were in "dire need." He urged special efforts to find work for them. He said only 13,000 jobs have been found through cooperation of the veterans bureau and the labor department, since summer.

Advocates of cash payments stressed that acceptable plans might be executed by the treasury's raising $1,000,000,000. This they said was less than one-third of the figure on which Secretary Mellon and others calculated that conversion, even if possible, would shake the securities market.

Thomas Kirby, legislative chairman of the Disabled American veterans, argued in a statement for the committee that at the end of the war the government was spending "more than a million dollars an hour, and was planning for the ultimate triumph during the following year."

"The treasury department throughout the long campaign leading up to the enactment of the adjusted compensation act consistently fought the whole proposition in principle and in detail," Kirby added, "and a comparison of the statements just made by the treasury officials with the statements made by the treasury officials six years ago shows a striknig similarity."

John Thomas Taylor, representing the American Legion, said he believed the action of the executive committee two weeks ago, sponsoring conversion, represented the sentiment through the 900,000 membership of the organization.

Representative Garner of Texas, asked whether this represented sentiment of service men outside the Legion and Taylor said he could not answer for them.

MEYER LOSES HIS PATIENCE

Says Will Not Lower Dignity of His Office

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. (INS)—Eugene Meyer, of New York, lost his patience before the senate banking and currency subcommittee this afternoon and declared he would cooperate with the committee and answer all questions "but I will forfeit the position before I will yield to conduct of an examination which would lower the dignity of the office I temporarily hold; that is one price I will not pay."

The remark came during the committee's hearing on his qualifications to hold the recess appointment as governor of the federal reserve board given him by President Hoover.

His remark that he would resign before he would lower the dignity of his office came when Senator Brookhart, Republican, of Iowa, who had criticized his appointment in the senate, continually interrupted his testimony to have him explain his policy for the board.

"There is no question of dignity," Brookhart interrupted. "The senate has a right to examine the witness as to his attitude on such matters."

"I will not reply to questions as to how I will conduct myself in office if confirmed," Meyer sharply replied. "Most of the senate knows me and my work in the public service. It is a question of confidence in the man."

Meyer said if he described his possible attitude on matters coming before the board it would be like a judge discussing a case that was to come before him.

COMPETING RAILROADS WILL MATCH FRISCO'S LOWER PASSENGER RATE

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 31. (UP)—Six competing railroads will match the Frisco's two-cent a mile passenger rate, where their tracks are in actual competition with the Frisco.

Announcement that the Missouri Pacific, The Missouri-Kansas-Texas, the Santa Fe, the Rock Island, the Cotton Belt, and the Kansas City Southern would put two-cent rates in effect where there is actual competition with the Frisco, was made by J. E. Hannigan, manager of the Southwestern Passenger association last night.

The Frisco's new rate will go in effect tomorrow. As approved by the Interstate Commerce commission over protests of competing roads, it establishes a two-cent a mile rate on one way coach fares, over the 6,000 miles of the system.

The low rate was sought to meet competition of bus lines.

Some delay is expected before the six other roads meet the competition of the Frisco in similar fashion, due to necessity of issuance of new tickets and instructions to ticket agents.

DEFENSE ATTACKS STAR'S TESTIMONY IN THOMPSON CASE

Photographs Used to Show He Could Not See Fight Described

RANCHMAN TESTIFIES CRABTREE NOT ARMED

Constable Denies Changing Testimony From Hefner Trial

VERNON, Texas, Jan. 31. (AP)—Defense attorneys in the murder trial of Emmett Thompson for the slaying of Homer Crabtree near Le Fors last November, today attacked testimony of Major Evans, the state's star witness, by attempting to prove he could not have seen the attack on Crabtree because of an intervening hill.

Testimony of Fred Moss, photographer and photographs were introduced to show that a man standing where Evans said he was when he saw two men in a ravine kicking Crabtree could not have seen a man lying down in the ravine. Evans had testified he saw Thompson and Carl Hefner kicking Crabtree while the latter lay on the ground.

Describes Wounds

C. O. Dunkel, undertaker, described Crabtree's wounds, saying Crabtree's face was bruised, his skull was fractured over the left eye, both cheek bones were broken, his jaw was broken and the scalp was broken in many places.

George Thut, prominent rancher, testified he was with Crabtree during most of the day on which he was killed and that Crabtree appeared normal, was not drinking and carried no weapon.

Mrs. Milly Harkins, wife of a doctor, related Crabtree was brought to her home after the attack and died within 15 minutes after his arrival.

Constable Bob Walls, whose testimony was attacked by the defense, denied he had changed his testimony from that given in the trial of Carl Hefner, who was assessed a 99-year sentence for the killing. He insisted Crabtree was found near the top of a small hill and not near the bottom of a ravine. On cross-examination, the defense brought out that Walls had been charged with conspiracy to violate the prohibition law.

WOMAN HELD RESULT SLAYING GRANDCHILDREN HUSBAND ALSO IN JAIL

FOLKSTON, Ga., Jan. 31. (AP)—Mrs. J. F. Walker was in jail here today charged in warrants sworn out by Sheriff W. H. Mizell with the murder of two infant grandchildren.

Her husband, J. F. Walker, aged 60, is in the same jail facing charges of arson, assault with intent to murder, the manufacture of whisky and hog stealing.

Elzie, a son of the Walkers, and Lipton Wildes, a son-in-law, are also in jail charged with aiding Walker in the operation of a whisky distillery.

The charges grew out of testimony at a preliminary hearing on Mrs. Walker's charge that her husband assaulted her with intent to kill.

Walker, when placed on the witness stand, said his wife had killed the infants, tossing the body of one in a stream about three years ago and threw another in a well about a year ago. The babies, Sheriff Mizell said, were the children of Mrs. Walker's daughter.

The sheriff said he investigated and found bones, apparently those of an infant, in a well near the Walker home.

LAST RITES HELD FOR VICTIM OF OFFICER'S BULLET AT ESTELLINE

ESTELLINE, Texas, Jan. 31.—Funeral services for Elbert Hart alias Pat O'Day were held at the Baptist church in Estelline Saturday in the presence of a group of friends of the deceased brother and a number of curiosity seekers, who came to see the man, who met such a tragic death Jan. 29.

Hart came to Estelline from Oklahoma, where he was charged with the killing of Buddy Moorehead, Ardmore deputy sheriff. He was arrested by a posse of officers Thursday night while he was visiting his brother at a filling station in the edge of the city. During the attempt to put him into the car at the filling station, he was shot by Special Detective Guess of Ardmore, Okla. The funeral here today was a quiet affair with only his brother and sister-in-law present of his relatives. He leaves a wife and four children, his mother, three brothers, and one sister. His brother of this city has filed charges of murder against the Ardmore officer who shot Hart in the affray Thursday night.

PLANS GO FORWARD FOR COURT-MARTIAL SMEDLEY BUTLER

Navy Prepares Specific Charges of Slandering Mussolini

TIME AND PLACE FOR TRIAL NOT ANNOUNCED

Vanderbilt Denies Statement That He Never Met Premier

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. (AP)—Plans for court-martial proceedings against Major General Smedley D. Butler moved slowly ahead today as the navy prepared specific charges on the basis of utterances which provoked an American apology to Premier Mussolini.

Rear Admiral Davis F. Sellers, judge advocate general of the navy, declined to see newspapermen, but busied himself in the task of getting charges ready for approval of Secretary Adams.

The "first of the week' was the indefinite answer to questions as to when indictments would be announced.

Legal counsel of General Butler awaited service of specifications on their client. Major Henry Leonard, Washington lawyer and close friend of Butler during years shoulder-to-shoulder with him in the corps, definitely was aligned in his defense.

Secretary Adams has not announced the time and place for the court-martial, but in some quarters it was believed the court would be convened the third week in February at Philadelphia.

Vanderbilt Breaks Silence

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 31. (AP)—The silence Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. has maintained over a remark attributed to him in which Premier Mussolini of Italy was pictured as a hit and run driver was broken briefly today in a denial of a statement from the Italian foreign office that he never had met Mussolini.

Vanderbilt declined direct comment on his meeting with Il Duce but mentioned two cables from Rome in 1926 referring to the meeting and said "they were true."

"Any one has only to look up newspaper files of 1926," he said. "My interview with Mussolini was copyrighted. It was true. The story from Rome of my reception by Mussolini was copyrighted. It was true."

He again reiterated his intention to say nothing about a story related by several persons in which he was said to have told a group of men that, while driving with Mussolini, the premier ran over a child and did not stop to render aid.

The story was repeated by Major General Smedley D. Butler in Philadelphia, resulting in an official apology to Italy from the United States and command to Butler to appear for court-martial.

PALESTINE, Texas, Jan. 31. (AP)—Charges of assault with intent to murder have been filed here against three brothers, Joe Camp, Albert Camp and Andrew Camp, on complaint of Alva Shaid of Palestine.

Shaid said that while en route to Palestine from the Camp home in the Walston Springs community, nine miles south of here, his automobile was stopped by a blockade of logs in the road, and several men opened fire on him from behind the barricade. He was not injured.

The Camp brothers denied knowledge of the shooting, waived examining trial and were released on $500 bond each.

DAVE GOODWIN REMOVED TO DALLAS COUNTY JAIL

DALLAS, Jan. 31. (UP)—Announcing that Texarkana men had threatened to lynch him should he be given a trial, Bowie county officers today removed Dave Goodwin, under death sentence, from the Titus county jail at Mount Pleasant and brought him to the Dallas county jail here.

Goodwin is the prisoner for whom the state court of criminal appeals refused a new trial though admitting, that his trial at New Boston last year had been unfair because of the menace of a mob surrounding the court house.

Goodwin, in jail here this afternoon denied that the men mentioned by the Texarkana officers was seeking his life.

"Hell," said Goodwin. "The mob was going to turn me loose. That's why the officers were afraid."

FIRE DAMAGES FISHING CRAFT NEAR GALVESTON

GALVESTON, Jan. 31. (AP)—The fishing craft Olivette was damaged here tonight when a fire occurred in her engine room. The boat's superstructure was charred by the flames which were quenched with fire extinguishers.

Coast guard and other searching craft put out from here immediately after several persons reported the fire at sea about three miles off shore. The Olivette, however, made port under her own power.

Joe Grasso Jr., who owns the boat, said he was the only one aboard and that he was fishing. A few weeks ago a general coast guard search was instituted after the Olivette had been several days overdue at sea.

Broadcasts Appeal

WACO, Texas, Jan. 31. (AP)—Will Rogers in a radio address over station WACO and the Columbia Broadcasting system tonight deplored the wrangling in congress at present over drouth relief and declared that the Red Cross and its work to relieve human suffering is greater than either the Democratic or Republican parties.

"I'm not going to say which side is right, the Republican or the Democrat, but I'll say that the Red Cross is greater than either of them in this drouth relief work."

Rogers made his broadcast as part of a chain hookup over the nation during an intermission in his appearance here to raise funds for drouth sufferers. During the course of the program, five unnamed drouth sufferers spoke from Little Rock, Ark., over the nationwide hookup which included Waco and Little Rock stations.

The humorist's appearance here concluded his Texas tour and netted $4,435 which was turned over to the local Red Cross chapter for drouth aid in stricken areas of Texas.

Rogers at Mineral Wells

MINERAL WELLS, Texas, Jan. 31. (AP)—Will Rogers spoke to 3,500 persons here today to raise money for the relief of drouth and unemployment sufferers. Receipts were estimated at about $2,000. His talk was along the lines of of those delivered in other Texas cities.

Arriving here shortly after noon, after an automobile trip from Fort Worth, where he appeared last night, Rogers had lunch with Mayor Brown. Following his address, he left for Fort Worth by automobile, planning to fly from there to Waco for a night appearance.

Rogers was accompanied by Capt Frank Hawks, who has piloted him in a navy plane between various cities in the state. The trip by plane to Mineral Wells was abandoned because of a muddy field at Fort Worth which hampered taking off.

The Mineral Wells contribution brought the total reecipts from Rogers' Texas tour to more than $75,000.

SEED AND FEED LOANS MAILED TO ARKANSAS IMPOVERISHED FARMERS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 31. (AP)—Some $20,000 of federal seed and feed loan funds were in the mails today for impoverished farmers in the Arkansas drouth area.

The first checks mailed from the district office here assured 100 or more farmers of money to buy seed and fertilizer for their 1931 crope, and to feed starving stock. Hundreds more will be mailed next week.

Although many of the borrowers are being fed by the Red Cross, and their checks were the first real money they have had since the drouth seared their areas, none of the proceeds was intended for human food. The federal appropriation of $45,000,000 was limited to seed, feed, fertilizer and necessary supplies for fruit growers.

Mayer and Blanton today mailed cut letters to the National Wool Growers association, the national livestock and meat board, the packers and others suggesting that the sheepmen of America, who own about 52,000,000 head of sheep, donate sheep all over the nation for the use of soup kitchens on that day. The idea is to rid the nation of about 59,000 head of sheep and aid the needy at the same time.

Mayer and Blanton have raised about half of the $27,000, which is Texas' quota in a national advertising campaign urging the consumption of more lamb meat.

Miss Jacobs pleaded self-defense.

KANSAS GOVERNOR PLANS TO FORCE SHOWDOWN BY MAJOR OIL COMPANIES

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 31. (UP)—Gov. Harry L. Woodring today reiterated his determination to force a showdown by major oil companies to relieve Kansas shallow oil wells, plugged Jan. 1, when the Prairie Oil and Gas company withdrew as purchaser.

In reply to a message from E. G. Seubert, president of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, that the big companies had done everything possible to relieve the stringency, Woodring sent messages to Seubert and Prairie officials last night.

To Seubert he wired that the state would not wait longer than Feb. 10 for word that the companies had reached an agreement on the Kansas situation.

Woodring advised W. S. Fitzpatrick, head of the Prairie, that he was holding that company and others responsible for a solution to the problem. He expressed the opinion that the Prairie's products would not be received favorably in Kansas in the future if no relief measures were taken.

MANY IMPORTANT BILLS ACTED UPON PAST THREE WEEKS

Only Few Remain to Be Introduced During Remainder Term

ALMOST EVERY KIND OF TAXATION IS SUGGESTED

Biggest Accomplishment Enactment of Tax Postponement

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 31. (AP)—The end of the third week of the current session of the Texas legislature found most of the heralded important proposals on their way either to enactment into law or to rejection. Only a few remained to be introduced.

Almost every kind of a tax had been suggested. Some members of the legislature would tax incomes, intangible assets, sulphur, chain stores, salt, or substitutes for butter. However, no one legislator nor one group purposes to make all those levies.

The purpose of these taxes is not to increase the tribute paid by the people of Texas to their government, except insofar as it is necessary to develop the state, but rather to replace part of the present ad valorem tax on homes and farms. Already a bill has been introduced to exempt homesteads from taxes up to the value of $2,000.

Economies Suggested

While there have been taxes proposed there also have been suggested economies. One bill would consolidate the state labor department and the industrial accident board. Senator Poage of Waco said he would offer a proposal to cut the number of Texas counties from 253 to 100, which he said would result in a saving of $10,000,000 annually. Senator Poage privately held little hope for favorable action on his plan this session, but he thought perhaps he could lay the groundwork for approval of the plan at some later date.

The biggest accomplishment this week was the enactment into law of the bill keeping taxes from becoming delinquent until Oct. 15. But for this law, taxes would be delinquent tomorrow.

The law was based on a bill by Representative Weinert of Seguin with amendment by Senator Oneal of Wichita Falls. Taxes will start drawing 10 per cent interest tomorrow but there will be no delinquent penalty.

Other New Laws

Other new laws enacted this week provide for making Jan. 19, Robert E. Lee's birthday, a legal holiday and for relieving overcrowded conditions in the Confederate women's home.

Emergency and deficiency appropriations are expected to have the inside track next week. With tax payments permitted to be postponed until Oct. 15, the legislature was expected to cut these appropriations to the bone.

The senate finance committee yesterday approved requests for emergency and deficiency appropriations aggregating $1,437,297.65 for summer schools in state colleges, for state departments and the judiciary.

The bill to regulate public utilities, one of the scheduled major items of legislation, is due to be introduced Monday by Representative Petsch of Fredericksburg.

A congressional redistricting bill already had been introduced by Representative Metcalfe of San Angelo, who may have his legislative redistricting bill ready next week. The fight on these proposals perhaps will be longer than that on any other question.

One of the few scheduled big fights yet to be inaugurated is that between the railroads on the one hand and the motor buses and trucks on the other. There is a possibility also that the pipe line interests will be lined up against the railroads.

WOMAN CHARGED WITH KIDNAPING NOW AWAITS MONEY FOR FARE HOME

LAREDO, Texas, Jan. 31. (AP)—Mrs. Helen M. Robinson, charged with the kidnaping of her grandson, today awaited the arrival of money to take her to Kansas City, where she planned to go voluntarily. She was released yesterday on bond of $10 after a habeas corpus hearing.

Chief of Police Candelario Mandiola said he received a telegram from a Kansas City detective demanding that Mrs. Robinson and the 7-year-old boy, Billy Robinson, be taken into custody and held in separate cells. He ignored the telegram.

Mrs. Robinson was arrested in Monterrey Thursday. She waived international extradition proceedings.

Love for Girl Sends Escaped Convict to Jail

Convicted here in September, 1929, on a charge of conversion by bailee, Powell was given a six-year sentence. He had served 17 months when he escaped from Darrington prison farm last month.

"I fell in love with a girl and realized I couldn't marry her while still a convict, so I decided to give myself up," he explained.

He arrived in Laredo Tuesday and spent the time leisurely before walking into the county jail today and surrendering to Sheriff Joe Condren.

Powell said that during his absence from prison, he had spoken on the street to Jailer Richard Chamberlain, who had guarded him here, but Chamberlain didn't recognize and arrest him. He was shaved by W. Dement, barber and member of the jury which convicted him, but Dement failed to recognize him.

He walked into the office of The Laredo Times an hour before his surrender and asked a reporter to accompany him to the jail, to hear his story.

EXECUTIVE OF U. S. CHAMBER TO SPEAK HERE

Members of the Junior chamber of commerce and of the business council of the senior chamber will hold a joint session at the Kemp hotel Friday noon at which Ralph Bradford, assistant manager of the commercial organization department of the United States Chamber of Commerce, will be the principal speaker.

Mr. Bradford was described by John Boswell, manager of the chamber here, as being probably the most entertaining speaker in chamber of commerce work in America. He formerly was manager of the Corpus Christi chamber.

The speaker to appear here, it was added, is the only person to be included on the program of every convention of Rotary International he has attended.

An invitation to the general public to be present at the luncheon was extended by Mr. Boswell.

TWO INJURED BORGER FIRE

Blaze Damages Gasoline Treating Plant

BORGER, Texas, Jan. 31. (AP)—Three thousand barrels of gasoline flared up in a five-hour blaze early today at the gasoline treating plant of the Phillips Petroleum company's Alamo refinery near here, injuring two men and threatening destruction to the refinery, one of the largest in the mid-continent field.

No official estimate of the damage was given but F. E. Rice, vice president of the Phillips company, said nine 1,000-barrel gasoline agitators were damaged or ruined, besides the mixing plant and pump house. Company officials who came here today from Bartlesville, Okla., marveled that there was no loss of life of greater property damage.

Clyde Hurlbert, treater, and John Gray, still man, were burned about the face and hands as a mysterious flash set off the first agitators of gasoline.

Rice said the cause of the fire was not definitely established.

Hugh Miller, refinery superintendent, directed hundreds of oil field workmen who labored desperately pumping quantities of chemicals and steam upon the treating unit, to prevent the flames from causing an explosion in nearby oil fields.

Due to the large surplus of gasoline on hand, train and truck loads of the fuel were being hauled as usual later in the day and company officials said there would be no delay in service. They said part of a huge quantity in storage here awaiting opening of a gasoline line to St. Louis could be used if needed.

THOMAS COMPLAINS AGAINST DELAY IN OIL PRICE INQUIRY

Oklahoma Senator Charges Report Postponed to Avoid Action

CAPPER JOINS PLEA TO RESTRICT OIL IMPORTS

Opponents of Legislation to Curb Imports to Be Heard Monday

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. (AP)—Complaint against delay in the report by the tariff commission on its inquiry into oil prices was voiced today by Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, before the senate commerce committee at hearings on measures to restrict foreign oil imports.

Senator Thomas charged an effort was being made to delay the report until it would be too late for congressional action at this session. The oil industry was ordered by the last tariff act and the commission is required to submit its report by Feb. 17.

Senators Thomas and Capper, Republican, Kansas, closed the hearings for those advocating a curb on foreign oil imports with pleas that action be taken lest the independent oil producers and their thousands of workers be driven out of business.

Charges Manipulation

Senator Capper has before the committee a bill proposing a restriction of 16,000,000 barrels annually in imports. He charged that the importers of "cheap foreign oil" were using it to manipulate prices in a campaign against the independents.

On Monday, Chairman Johnson of the commerce committee, has agreed to hear opponents of the legislation. He intends to close the hearings on that day and seek early action by the committee.

Before the committee also is the resolution of Senator Shortridge, Republican, California, proposing a tariff of $1 a barrel on oil.

Senator Thomas would not make his charge of an effort to delay the tariff commission oil report for the written records of the committee.

He did read a letter from Chairman Fletcher of the commission to Representative Garber of Oklahoma, in which Mr. Fletcher said the commission was striving to complete its reports ahead of the February 17 deadline which congress set.

The packers are permitted under it to engage in the wholesale buying and selling of a number of commodities unrelated to meat packing, such as fish, vegetables, fruits, flours, grain, grape juice and various miscellaneous articles.

The decree also was modified to allow the packers group to handle fresh milk and cream.

The defendants are given one year in which to dispose of property which may be held in violation of the modified decree.

Swift and company, Morris and company, Armour and company, Wilson and company has amalgamated with one of the other groups and Wilson and company and Cudahy's did not participate in the effort against the decree. They are affected by the decision, however.

SHUTE INCREASES LEAD OVER FIELD TO THREE STROKES

THE LOOKOUT

BY AL PARKER

The great conservation organizations of the country are accomplishing things slowly but surely in the way of preserving America's supply of game and fish and the nation's forests, streams and wild life in general. But their work is being hampered by the lack of a nation-wide policy that can be put to work for the benefit of the entire country. They are just beginning to see this defect and are taking steps to adopt national policies that will mean greater steps forward. One of the major items that all forces have agreed upon is that the sportsman is going to have to pay a higher price for his hunting and fishing.

Appreciable advances in the prices of hunting and fishing licenses throughout the United States may be expected in the future. In our own state a movement already is under way to advance the hunting license fee. We are not sure that any definite amount of increase has been decided upon. We have heard that some are fostering a boost to a straight $5 a year for the privilege of hunting, whereas the present fee is $2. A member of the state game, fish and oyster commission recently was quoted as favoring a $5 fee for the privilege of taking deer, bear and turkey, but only a boost of $1 for those who would hunt smaller game. That idea strikes us as the most logical at the present time. We believe a sudden advance to $5 would leave a bad taste in the mouths of many. It might detract some from the respect for the game laws that is being slowly but surely built up and, to our way of thinking, is one of the most important points to be considered in game legislation. Too, it is doubtful if the income from the sale of licenses would be materially increased, for the radical boost undoubtedly would keep many who willingly pay the $2 fee from hunting. At least that is a debatable point.

It is too bad that it is utterly impossible to work out a system whereby the amount of fee paid would be governed by the amount of game taken. Of course, it can't be done, but it would be the one entirely fair way of arriving at the point. It doesn't seem right that the fellow who gets in one dove shoot, one quail hunt and maybe a session or two with the ducks should have to pay just as much for the privilege as the one who spends every week-end on one of the big lakes and kills ducks by the dozens, gets his limit in deer and squeezes in a quail hunt at least one a month during the season. The suggestion that the deer, turkey and bear hunter pay $5 and those who seek smaller game $3 seems to us just about right at this time. It would mean only a slight increase, except for the hunters of big game and the latter certainly are able to stand the strain. The hunter who goes after big game certainly can afford a license much in excess of $2. If he can't he has no business hunting deer.

It is just a matter of time until all of us will be paying $5 or more for hunting small game, possibly $10 or more for big game. That day is coming just as sure as you are a foot high. Game departments in this and every other state require greater income and their one way of getting it is by increasing the hunting and fishing licenses. For the next 10, 20 or 30 years hunting and fishing is going to become more expensive all the time. It is just about out of the poor man's class now. But if state game departments are not given more capital with which to carry on the fight of conservation, hunting and fishing will be available only to the wealthy. The middle class will be entirely pushed out of the picture. Only those few who can afford the expense of acquiring and keeping up private preserves will enjoy the sport.

We don't see so much of it in Texas, but one of the foremost problems faced by those working in the interests of better hunting and fishing for the masses is the rapid diminution of choice hunting grounds and fishing streams available to the public. Wealthy individuals and syndicates are leasing up thousands of acres of choice hunting grounds and turning the territory once available to all hunters into private preserves. The same goes for the fishing streams and lakes. California, with its long coastline and hundreds of miles of choice resting places for the migrating wild duck and wild goose, probably has been harder hit than any other state in this respect. If you or I went to California with the expectation of getting in a duck hunt, we'd probably be disappointed unless we had an invitation to one of the exclusive hunting clubs. Texas' deer and quail lands, and even the choice ducking regions along the coast, are gradually being sewed up just as California already is.

Game departments now are facing the problem not only of restoring game and fish, but providing the grounds where they may be sought by the public. That is one big reason why the departments are in dire need of more revenue than ever before. It is definitely established that the only effective system of preserving the game supply for the majority is by including public shooting grounds along with the sanctuaries. Preserves can accomplish nothing as long as all surrounding territory is closed to all but the owners or the lessees. All the game in the world on the state preserves will benefit none if there is no place to hunt it.

Those of us young enough to expect to retain our good health for 20 years or more can see better things that far ahead. The state of Pennsylvania was just 20 years ahead of its 47 neighbors and that state now offers the perfect example of the effects of systematic wild game life protection and propagation. Pennsylvania started early enough that now the state, which is one of the most thickly populated of all, offers the greatest hunting and fishing in the nation. If Texas follows in the footsteps of Pennsylvania, it can bring its game system in 20 years to the present point of perfection enjoyed by Pennsylvania. While we can expect for the next 10 or 20 years to pay more for our sport, the cost should descend once the system is perfected and put into operation.

BRACKENRIDGE PARK, SAN Antonio, Jan. 31.—Leading the Texas open tournament has become a sort of fixed habit with Densmore Shute, the calm young professional from Columbus, Ohio. He has been pacing the field now without a break for almost two years and prospects were he would keep right on with his knitting.

Although he wobbled for a time Saturday, the defending champion collected himself before he finished and chalked up a perfect 71, par for the course, to remain out in front by three strokes at the halfway mark in the 72-hole event. He was, in consequence, a prohibitive favorite to breeze right through to his second straight title and $1,500 first prize in the 36-hole final Sunday.

Shute's closest rivals were Harry Cooper, the Chicago star and Joe Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., each with 140 for the first two laps, two under par. Turnesa, himself a former Texas open champion, added a 71 to his 69 of yesterday to stay in the thick of things, while Cooper fell off to a 72, compared with his great 68 on the opening round.

Shute Regains Lead

Cooper, playing in the same threesome with Shute, caught the Columbus star going out Saturday and passed him by a stroke at the start homeward, but couldn't hold it. After taking 39 blows, three over par on the out nine, Shute regained his form to come in 32 and repair the damage. A gallery of 2,000 followed Shute, Cooper and Horton Smith, the New York threat. Smith contributed a 71 to place his 36-hole total at 144, along with John Golden, Agua Caliente open champion from Stamford, Conn., and Frank Walsh, Chicago veteran.

Tied for third place with 141 totals were Tom Lally, San Antonio professional, who carded a 72 Saturday, and Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn star, who registered a 70 to tie Craig Wood, Deal, N. J., for the day's low. Although the course practically was dry and no moisture fell during the day, the scores ran consistently higher than Friday when 21 equalled or bettered par.

Grouped at 142 were three well-known professionals, including Ralph Guldahl, the young Dallas ace. Jack Forrester, veteran from Oradell N. J., posted a pair of 71's along with Guldahl to get his, while Francis Scheider of Dallas placed a 73 with his 69 of the previous day to get the same result.

Texans Still Close

In the next group of five deadlocked at 143 were Charles Guest, Los Angeles; Sammie Schneider, San Antonio; Harold Long, Denver; Abe Espinosa, Chicago, and Craig Wood, Deal, N. J.

Well known professionals who found themselves with slim hopes of getting in on the big money Sunday included Al Espinosa, Chicago, and Ray Mangrum, Dallas, with 145s; Mike Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., and George Aulbach, Waco, Texas, each with 146, and Tony Manero, Elmsford, N. Y., with 147, exactly 10 strokes back of the leader.

Sixty-six players who succeeded in doing 154, or better for the two rounds were eligible to play the final 36 Sunday. Eight of them were amateurs, led by Johnny Dawson of Chicago with 47. Dawson's closest rival among simon-pures was Tod Menefee of San Antonio, with 150. No well known professionals failed to qualify for the playoff.

One of those who will not be present Sunday, however, gained fleeting fame Saturday. He was Lew Mathews, Paris, Texas, professional, who sank his tee shot on the 165-yard final hole. His crisp iron shot struck a foot beyond the cup and then bounced back in. Even with that, though, Mathews could do no better than 77 for the round and 157 for the 36.

In shooting his steady 71 Saturday Shute set the remarkable record of having toured the fairly difficult course eight consecutive times in competition without having gone over par, twice in pro-amateur events and six times in championship play.

Shute's card Saturday:

DUSEK ASSURED BOUT WITH CHAMPION LONDOS

BOSTON, Jan. 31. (INS)—A match with Champion Jim Londos was assured Saturday for Rudy Dusek of Omaha, Neb., following his 47-minute victory with a body slam over Paul Jones of Houston, at the Boston garden Friday night. Dusek absorbed plenty of punishment from the famous hook-scissors of Jones before the latter was weakened by a series of headlocks and body scissors to be trapped for the fall.

Dusek, who meets Londos here in two weeks, was to have met the champion Friday night but Londos was forced to withdraw because of injuries sustained in a New York bout with Jim McMillen, of Michigan.

SEASON USHERED OUT IN PROPER FASHION

Four Men—an Even Dozen Geese

"It's all in knowing how, when and where," say W. U. McCutchen and Bart Magee after accompanying Jim King and Jim Robinson on the goose hunt that produced the above results plus three—that many of the geese were disposed of before the photo was taken.

And Messrs. Magee and McCutchen point out that the above photo proves beyond all doubts that the two "Jims," goose hunting pals for years, know their "hows, whens and wheres" to perfection.

The expedition referred to took place last Saturday, just one week before the close of the season, and each of the quartet, as well might be imagined, was more than satisfied with the manner in which he closed the season.

Fishing Season on Irrigation Lakes and Duck Hunting Ends Saturday

When the gong struck midnight Saturday most of the fishermen laid aside their casting rods and all the hunters stowed their fowling pieces for a long rest in the moth balls. The fishing season, so far as the irrigation lakes are concerned, and the open season on ducks and geese has ended.

Saturday found the fishing waters and the shooting grounds more thickly populated than they have been since the opening days of the seasons. Hundreds of sportsmen from Wichita Falls and the surrounding territory took advantage of fair weather for one last fling at their favorite sports.

The anglers are not entirely shunted out of the picture. They have one more month for battling game fish, provided they select their wars waters other than Lake Kemp. Diversion lake and Lake Wichita. A special law bans fishing of all types in these three lakes and their connecting canals for a period of three months—February, March, April—while the state-wide law that has been interpreted to include all waters of Texas, private or otherwise, excludes fishing for bass, crappie and bream during the months of March and April. So those who would go in quest of these fish are barred now only from the chain of irrigation lakes and their connecting canals.

Deputies of the game, fish and oyster department have asked that the anglers' attention be called to the fact that the big lakes not only are closed to fishing for game fish, but that it is unlawful to wet a hook, cast a plug or even to seine for minnows in the irrigation waters.

Unless a hunter can be satisfied with a bag of cottontail rabbits, he is completely out of luck until Sept. 1, when the dove season opens. Saturday was the final day for the hunters of ducks and geese, and they will have to wait until Oct. 16 before they can put their decoys to work again. The season on other game had closed earlier and the lowly rabbit is the nearest thing to game that remains for the shooting enthusiasts.

BAER UNDER SUSPENSION OF CALIFORNIA SOLONS

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 31. (INS)—State Athletic Commissioner Robert Edgren of Pacific Grove, Saturday declared that Max Baer, Livermore "butcher boy" fighter, would not be granted a license to resume boxing in California, "at least not for some time."

Edgren, awaiting the arrival from Los Angeles of Chairman Harry Martin, said that he and the Rev. Leslie C. Kelley of San Francisco, the third member of the commission, were in agreement that Baer and his manager, Hamilton Lorimer of Oakland, should be kept on the shelf for the time being.

Edgren declared that the death of Frankie Campbell, San Francisco and Los Angeles heavyweight, following a bout with Baer here last summer, could "not be forgotten" by the commissioners.

JACK CHEVIGNY RETURNS AS NOTRE DAME COACH

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 31. (UP)—Jack Chevigny, assistant Notre Dame football coach, will return next fall to assist Coach Knute Rockne, university officials announced Saturday.

Announcement had been made early this week that Chevigny would become assistant to William "Navy Bill" Ingram at the University of California next year.

In 1928, Chevigny was a star halfback for Notre Dame and has assisted Rockne since his graduation.

Cochran and Golding Likely to Play Pros

Tommy Cochran, twice Texas amateur champion, and Dudley Golding, long a leading amateur in Texas' golfing circles, probably will represent the home club against Walter Hagen and Joe Kirkwood when the two renowned professionals put on their exhibition here next Friday, it was announced by officials of the Wichita Golf and Country club. The exhibition will be staged on the country club course, starting at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon.

The match against the Wichita Falls players, whether or not they are Cochran and Golding, will be an 18-hole best ball affair. Incidentally, it is likely to result in quite a contest, in view of the fact that the professionals will be playing a strange layout while the home players will have the advantage of knowledge of every yard of green and fairway of the country club links.

Not New to Kirkwood

The course will not be a total stranger to Kirkwood, however, as the Australian appeared here in an exhibition match several years ago. Hagen will be playing the course for the first time and it is not expected that he will arrive here in time to give it a practice spin. In view of this advantage, the home players should be able to give the famous pros a real battle over the full 18-hole route.

As interesting a feature of the exhibition as the 18-hole match will be Kirkwood's display of trick shots that will follow immediately after the foursome completes the round. Kirkwood delighted a large gallery on his previous visit here with his uncanny manipulation of all the clubs in his bag, and it is promised that he will have some of the old favorites along with a lot of new stunts for this performance.

Public Is Invited

For many years Kirkwood has toured the country and put on exhibitions in the larger cities, and he continues to attract sizable galleries wherever he appears. His stunts never grow old and the wizardry required in their execution can be appreciated by the nonplayers as well as those who profess to be golfers.

An admission fee of $1.50 will be charged. Non-members of the country club are extended a special invitation to witness the exhibition.

CUBS DEFEAT ELECTRA TIGERS BY 43-21 COUNT

OLNEY, Texas, Jan. 31.—The Olney High school Cubs clicked off their second victory in as many nights here Saturday, with the Electra Tigers as the victims, 43 to 21. The accurate goal shooting of Wright, center, accounted for 24 points for the Cubs. W. Gilmore and West each registered eight and were important cogs in the passing machine that fed the ball to Wright. The latter scored 18 points in the first half.

Curfman was the outstanding star for the Tigers and did some neat goal shooting to run up 14 points. Captain Cloninger turned in a splendid floor game.

The Cubs have rung up an enviable record for free throws in their games Friday and Saturday nights. Friday against Nocona they made good seven of eight tries and against the Tigers Saturday registered 14 out of 18.

BLAIR CHERRY RETURNS TO POST AT AMARILLO

Vernon Dribblers Take Second Tilt From Pack, 29-22

Coyotes Show Improvement But Fail to Match Stride Of Lion Quintet

Wichita Falls High school cagers resorted to a brand new mode of attack Saturday night in their clash with the Vernon Lions at the high school gymnasium, but an improved game was not sufficient to keep pace with the Vernon quintet and the Lions scored their second victory of the week over Barry Holton's charges, 29 to 22.

An old failing of inability to make good their shots at the hoop cost the Coyotes dearly in the first half the Lions led by a margin of 17 to 11 at the intermission. A long passing game that had proved ineffective through the early stages of the practice season was abandoned in favor of the shorter game and the change undoubtedly proved beneficial.

ALL BUT ONE POINT IN BEZDEK PLAN ALREADY IN EFFECT IN BIG TEN

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 31. (UP)—Western conference institutions set an example of proper football emphasis that other colleges might well follow, Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite of the University of Wisconsin, said Saturday.

Comparing the 14-point program for correction of football ills suggested by Hugo Bezdek, director of athletics at Pennsylvania State college, with that of the Big Ten, Thistlethwaite said all of the reforms except one had already been made in the conference.

The suggestion which has not been instituted in the conference would make football a regular curricular subject.

The Bezdek program includes giving full-time coaches faculty status, medical supervision of athletics, deferring of practice until Sept. 15, strict scholarship rules and elimination of post-season games.

League Votes to Reward Its Most Valuable Player

Drastic Retrenchment Discussed but Magnates Fail To Take Action

GALVESTON, Jan. 31. (AP)—Officials of Texas league baseball clubs Saturday adopted a schedule for 1931 calling for 161 games for each club. Under the schedule, opening games will be played April 15 and the final contests Sept. 13.

The opening games will be San Antonio at Galveston, Dallas at Shreveport, Fort Worth at Wichita Falls, and Houston at Beaumont.

The four larger cities will observe their openings Friday, April 17, with opponents unchanged. The league again will present $250 to designated charities in the cities drawing the largest crowd each opening.

Each club will play seven double-headers in addition to twin bills on holidays. Receipts from the holiday games will be pooled.

Holiday Dates

On July 4 Galveston is scheduled at San Antonio; Beaumont at Houston; Wichita Falls at Fort Worth, and Shreveport at Dallas. On Labor day Galveston again invades San Antonio, and Beaumont is at Houston but Shreveport will play at Fort Worth and Wichita Falls at Dallas. The season closes Sept. 13 with Dallas at Shreveport; Fort Worth at Wichita Falls; Beaumont at Galveston, and Houston at San Antonio.

The first sectional invasion begins May 1 with the northern clubs traveling south. Should the magnates decide to split the season the second half will begin July 1. Sol Dreyfuss, president of the Dallas club, suggested that the clubowners decide on a split at the meeting but the matter did not come to a vote.

From a most unexpected source, R. L. Tarleton Jr., business manager of the wealthy Dallas club, came the warning that Texas league magnates must adopt a policy of drastic retrenchment or see the loop eventually pass from organized baseball.

Player Award

Tarleton's speech featured the meeting which adjourned late Saturday afternoon after adopting the schedule and deciding to award the player selected by Texas scribes as the most valuable to his team during the season with a scroll signed by President Alvin Gardner and $100.

Dallas has always been in the forefront of those richer clubs which have favored unrestricted salary lists and opposed all non-class rules, yet Tarleton proposed that the Texas league adopt amendments limiting the salary that any player can receive to $550 per month and reducing the playing roster from 18 to 16.

Magnates discussed Tarleton's suggestions with the majority seeming to favor the individual salary limit but opposing reduction of the player roster. However, no action was taken.

The most valuable player award is being attempted by Texas league magnates for the first time. Sports writers of each city, acting as a unit, will have one ballot in determining the winner.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. Then you destroy it entirely.

To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

DEEP OIL TEST CONTINUES TO HOLD LIMELIGHT IN THIS AREA

By JIMMIE MAXWELL

With the possible exception of the Deep Oil Development company No. 1 Munger deep test north of Kemp City in Wichita county, very little interest was manifested in the development of the various pools in the Wichita Falls area last week. The usual number of tests were drilling, Archer, Young and Cooke counties doing the greater portion. Completions were made in the Newcastle-Orth field, dry holes and producers being about equally divided.

Compared with the previous week, locations registered a big gain, a score of these being staked out. Cooke, Young and Archer were especially favored by the operators. Two locations were made in southwest Denton county in the territory adjacent to the Hamilton and other wells southeast of Gainesville.

Progress on the district's most important test, Deep Oil Development No. 1 Munger, was marked during the week by the picking up of lower lime at 3917 to 3740 feet which had the earmarks of a 100-barreler.

The saturated lime was bailed but failed to show sufficient oil for a commercial producer at the depth encountered and drilling was resumed towards the contract depth of 6000 feet. Plans have been perfected for the event of a failure to pick up a deeper sand and the hole will be plugged back to the 3740 formation and placed in a shot and it is the consensus of well versed oil men that the test will respond to the shooting with a well of some sort.

Pipe line runs for the week were 61,620 barrels per day, a drop of 224 barrels per day as compared with the figures of the preceeding seven days, which were 61,844 barrels.

Mid-Continent Oil Activities

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 31. (UP)—Attention of the oil industry was centered today on Washington, Oklahoma City and Topeka, where legislative measures affecting the industry were being considered.

Domestic producers felt more confident of success of their fight for a tariff on crude oil imports as a result of Secretary of Interior Lyman Wilbur's commitment to the tariff policy. But the action of Senator Pat Harrison, Mississippi Democrat, in trying to table the consideration appeared as a setback.

The report of Gov. W. H. Murray's oil committee, studying the oil depression with a view of recommending remedial legislation, was expected today. The committee has been holding secret sessions for more than a week. Its recommendations will apply only to the Oklahoma oil situation but may serve as a pattern for other states.

Murray's action in asking pipe line companies to increase their runs to permit a flow of 10 per cent potential of the Oklahoma City field was believed one of the recommendations of the committee. The governor said two pipe line companies had agreed to the proposal. Most pipe line companies, however, reported themselves as being opposed to increased runs from the field.

Oklahoma City operators have asked that the field's flow be opened to 10 per cent but the proposal has met with considerable opposition in the corporation commission hearing, adjourned over the week-end.

In Topeka, certain Kansas operators have opened a fight on proration. The opposition there is similar to that of certain factions in Oklahoma.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 31. (UP)—Mid-continent geologists reported today that Oklahoma wells had been seriously damaged the past two months by shutdowns.

They denied reports, however, that water encroachment was ruining the fields.

Irvine Perrine, prominent mid-continent geologist, said that salt water encroachment was worse now than at any time because of stringent proration measures in certain fields and shutdown in the stripper areas of northeastern Oklahoma which have been without market outlet since Prairie Oil and Gas withdrew from the market a month ago.

In every productive oil field, Perrine said, water exists. It is one of the mechanical factors of production. When a well is pinched in too much or shut down, the oil that rises to the surface of water during steady production mixes with the oil and ultimately results in complete loss of oil.

Reports from the stripper areas today said several of the wells had been ruined. In the Oklahoma City field, the older wells are blowing large percentages of salt water.

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 31. (AP)—Described as the largest and deepest gas well in Louisiana, the United Gas company's well No. 1 has been brought in with a guaged production of 100,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily.

It is located two miles southwest of Rodessa, Caddo parish, section 34-23-16, and is the third gasser in the Rodessa field. About 1500 feet to the east is the discovery well. Its handlers announced that it was making from 800 to 1000 gallons of casing head gasoline to every 1,000,000 cubic feet of gas.

The well's output has been closed in and will be carried by pipe line to the Pine Island gasoline plant to be "cured" with the natural gas then being distributed through the lines serving Shreveport, Little Rock, Dallas, Beaumont and Houston. A survey is being made for the branch line to the Rodessa field.

DEEPEST WELL CONTINUES TO INCREASE FLOW

Reagan County Producer Is Expected to Make Record

WELL COMPLETED PECOS COUNTY SHALLOW POOL

Promising Wildcat Central Crane Area Increases Gas and Oil Flow

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Jan. 31.—A continued increase by the latest, ninth and largest of the world's deepest producers, in Reagan county; completion of a well in the Toborg-Tippett shallow pool in Pecos county, slight increases in oil and gas in Gulf's No. 1 Tubbs, a wildcat producer in west central Crane county, and topping of the brown lime in the only test now drilling in Andrews county were among this week's West Texas oil developments.

Group No. 1 Oil corporation's Texon) No. 4-B University, latest of the deep wells in Reagan county, had failed to register a gain only one day since it came in Jan. 14 at 8587 feet and had increased to 7,457 barrels of 54 to 55 gravity crude with over 60,000,000 cubic feet of gas during 24 hours ending Wednesday morning. The well is scheduled to be tubed at once. Its yield has swelled total daily production by the eight deep producers (Texon's No. 2-B being off production) to in excess of 20,000 barrels daily. Some of the oil in excess of the amount required to raise the gravity of the crude from the upper pays to 40 degrees gravity and above is being shipped to the gulf coast in tank cars.

The completion in the Toborg-Tippett pool was Stanolind's No. 7 Tippett, estimated good for 15 barrels daily on the pump at a total depth of 432 feet. Pecos county's deepest active test at present, Humble's No. 1 Kokernot, bottomed at 6170 feet, cemented a whipstock at 5150 feet in an effort to drill by a lost 10-inch underreamer and tools. Reaming had reached 5430 when the reamer was lost. Penn's No. 1 Alvis, a wildcat 15 miles southwest of Fort Stockton, was lowering 10-inch pipe to shut off sulphur water at 1465. Total depth was 1548.

Gulf's No. 1 Tubbs in west central Crane county had a slight increase in gas at 4594 feet, a small gain in oil at 4595 and at 4625 feet showed a small amount of water, the source of which had not been determined when drilling had reached 4633 in lime. Early in the week the well gauged 38 barrels of oil and 1,600,000 cubic feet of gas. Two and one-half miles south of it Cranfill Bros'. No. 1 Muir had had no shows in drilling to 4235 feet in lime, 1734 feet below sea level and 1905 feet below the top of the first lime. Pay in No. 1 Tubbs was topped at 4301 feet, 1735 feet below sea level and 1846 feet below the first lime.

Completed for 235

Deep Rock Oil company and others' No. 1 Kuykendall in Andrews county had drilled to 4110 feet in brown lime, 893 feet below sea level, without shows. It had lime stringers from 4040-50 feet and at 4100. Fuhrman's No. 1 Ford, Andrews county's largest producers and the highest test structurally yet drilled in the county, topped the brown lime at 3875 feet, 689 feet below sea level, topped the grey lime at 3935 feet, topped the pay at 4287-96 feet, had increases at 4272-79 feet and 4445-50 feet, struck sulphur water from 4612-14 feet, plugged back, was shot twice and completed for 235 barrels a day.

Some 15 miles to the south and slightly east, Deep Rock Oil company and others' No. 2-A Cowden had drilled to 2433 feet in salt and anhydrite. It is 3630 feet south of the same company's No. 1-A Cowden, northern Ector county discovery well. Galt-Brown and Penn's No. 1 Cowden, between the Southern Crude well and the Penn well, was among tests spudded during the week. It is in the center of the southeast quarter of section 12, block 44, township 2 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey.

Penn-Shell's No. 1 Halamicek, Upton county wildcat in section 93, block O, C. C. S. D. & R. G. N. G. Ry. Co. survey, had drilled past 3650 feet in sand, redbeds and anhydrite. Bennett Oil company and P. H. Williams' No. 1-B Sherk in section 27, block 2, M.-K.-T. Ry. Co. survey, in Upon county, was rigging up after Williams had jacked up and moved the 84-foot, reinforced steel derrick upright on a truck and two trailers 2½ miles to the location. Dismantling and rebuilding it would have required the work of five men for five days.

Lewis & Slagel's No. 1 Bell in section 12, block 30, township 1 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey, in eastern Howard county, flowed 55 barrels of oil by heads in 24 hours following a shot from 2593 to 2820 feet. The well cleaned itself and began heading at the rate of 160 barrels daily, but did not maintain that figure long.

Vacuum Oil company and others' No. 3 R. M. McMillan, Runnels county's only producer, eight miles northeast of Ballinger, had been averaging 140 barrels of oil and 60 barrels of water daily, pumping steadily for over two weeks. It had dropped to five to seven barrels daily and was about to be abandoned in November when it was deepened four feet to 2517 feet and showed a surprising increase.

NO INFORMATION THAT BERGDOLL IN AMERICA

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. (AP)—Neither state nor war department officials today had any intimation that Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, wanted as an escaped general prisoner of the army, had returned to this country.

Officials in both departments familiar with the Bergdoll case said so far as they knew there was no foundation for rumors Bergdoll had returned from Europe.

This test was plugged back to that depth from total depth at 3520 feet. Casing is cemented at 2353 feet on oil sand topped at that depth and drilled through at 2383 feet.

The Trevlyn Oil company was drilling in blue shale at 2275 feet in No. 4 Mitchell in the southwest corner of the southeast of 24-1s-3w, on the southeast edge of production.

The Carter Oil company's No. 3 Joe Franklin in the northwest of the northeast of the northeast of 24-1s-3w, was drilling at 1310 feet in lime shells and shale. This test is located on the east side of the field.

Make Slow Progress

C. L. Anderson's No. 8 Eaves in the southeast of the northwest of the southwest of 24-1s-3w, in the south portion of the field, was drilling at 1600 feet. Operators are making slow progress on this test on account of boiler trouble.

Leonard J. Woodruff's No. 1 Brady in the northwest of the southwest of the southwest of 32-1s-2w, two miles southeast of production in the field, and approximately three-eighths of a mile southeast of the Gouin et al., test now being completed, was running six-inch casing with a packer to set below the eight-inch in effort to determine source of salt water showing. Total depth in this test is around 2300 feet and casing is cemented at 1741 feet.

Frank Gouin and others have experienced trouble in trying to make their No. 1 Burton in the southeast of the southwest of the northeast of 31-1s-2w flow by running tubing and packer, and have decided to shut down for a few days before making further effort to complete. The operators will probably standardize and put the well on the pump. It logged oil sand at 1834-44 (broken) and 1844-1962 (solid) feet.

Will H. Smith of Ardmore has staked location for No. 1 McClarty in the southeast of the northwest of the northeast of 18-4s-6w, about two miles southeast of the town of Hastings in Jefferson county. Operators are getting fuel to the location before starting any other operations. Contract depth calls of 1500 feet. There have been 15 very shallow tests made in this vicinity with a water well digger and in several of them showings of 46 gravity oil was found. The Smith block in the area consists of approximately 1,100 acres.

Log Heavy Sand

Ross-Seward's No. 1 Nettie Anderson in the southeast of the northeast of the southeast of 32-4s-2e, a half-mile east of Ardmore, is shut down with total depth at 2720 feet. According to report operators logged a showing of heavy black oil in sand at 2714-18 feet.

J. E. McCarty and others are rigging up machinery preparatory to resumption of drilling in their No. 2 Hattie and Eva Noble in the northwest of the southeast of the southwest of 14-2s-2w, shallow test a mile east of production in the Ed Cox field in Carter county. This test has been shut down for the past few months with total depth at 503 feet in green shale. Contract depth calls for 1000 feet if necessary.

The Gilcrease Oil company's No. 1 Burkhart in the center of the northeast corner of the northwest of 13-8s-1e, wildcat test about four miles south and two miles west of the town of Marietta in Love county, was drilling blue shale at 2388 feet.

Mid-Kansas Oil and Gas company and Ramsey Petroleum company are running a tester to test sand showing oil logged at 3375-3406 feet in No. 6 Culp in the northwest corner of the northeast of 6-5n-9w, in the Cement district in Caddo county.

Burges and McDonald of Chickasha, Okla., are reported as having bought the northwest quarter of 32-7s-6e, near the town of Isom Springs in southern Marshall county, for a consideration of $4,400. This acreage is located just northeast of the McCrory and others' test which is shut down on a sand that is estimated good for small producer.

Batson and Starritt of Marietta, No. 1 Dillard in the center of the southeast of the northeast of the northwest of 25-6s-2e, an old well drilled several years ago about five miles northeast of Marietta, and which was taken over by the present operators in order to try to complete, is cleaning out cavings about 10 feet off the top of sand logged at 1585-96 feet. It is estimated good for a small producer.

BUSINESS WILL INCREASE AS PUBLIC WORK GETS STARTED AND ASSURANCE GRAIN CROP

By FRED L. HASKETT

"A more optimistic tone now prevails over many counties of North west Texas and as springtime approaches it is believed that business will continue to show betterment, thus naturally creating a demand for merchandise and stimulating all lines of endeavor.

Agriculture a Factor

A factor now for early return of better business condition is that of the production of wheat and other winter grains, also production of spring grains. There is a splendid season and as the farmers are well advanced with farm work the spring plantings should make a fair yield even under adverse conditions during the maturing period.

The farmers have spent little money during the past few months. There is now flowing into Northwest Texas counties almost $4,000,000 of federal drouth aid, which will be spent in local channels of trade. The first of this money will be distributed the latter part of this week. The funds derived by the farmers can be used in purchasing feed for work animals, gas and oil for tractors, seed for planting purposes and other necessary items. The money is advanced by the government at a small interest charge and is to be used strictly for the production of crops during 1931.

Ranch Conditions Good

Ranch and range conditions are excellent. The rains and warm weather that prevailed early in the winter has given grass and weeds a fine start. There has been abundant wheat pasture, thus the cattle are in good condition. Baby calves are becoming numerous and a heavy calf crop is in prospect. Range animal prices have also been stronger and that is a factor to bring about better conditions in the localities that depend upon ranching.

There being little more winter to go through it is not believed that even a week or 10 days of excessive cold weather would prove damaging to range cattle. Grass and weeds are growing fast and a snow or ice storm would be the only kind of weather to prevent cattle from grazing on green feed. Ranchmen have fed very little this winter as wheat pasture has been ample. Cattle have a much better appearance now than they did early in the fall. The green pasture has made them fat and their coat is glossy.

Implement Sales Light

Dealers in farm implements report sales very light this winter. Some farmers have sold off their work stock and purchased tractors. This was done because there was no feed for the teams. Also to be seen in some counties where no feed was produced last season are new motor trucks but not many of them. In some counties quite a number of tractors have been sold, in fact sales are above those of past years.

The farmers will make a crop this year with less expense than than any crop they have planted within the past 15 or 20 years. Old implements have been repaired and made do the work intended. This has lowered implement sales yet it has conserved the local money supply.

Building Operations Increasing

In the oil counties of Archer and Young there is activity in the building line. Some new homes are under construction in Olney and Graham. There is also construction or rebuilding of business property in those towns. The new courthouse at Graham and the Brazos river bridge at Newcastle will give work to a large number of men and consume a considerable amount of raw materials.

Road construction in Hardeman, Childress and Cottle counties is giving employment to many. A new bridge is under construction across the Red river north of Quanah and work is to begin soon on another north of Vernon.

The contractor building the grade for the new railroad between Childress and Pampa is working a number of men. A steam shovel is being used to fill 40 motor dump wagons in building the dump.

It is said that some important news will be released soon as regards construction of other railroad lines that are proposed for several Northwest Texas counties.

Merchants and Bankers

Merchants are not buying heavily for the spring and summer trade. Most merchants continue to keep the lines up but none are buying surplus merchandise. However, if the wheat crop gives promise of a good yield there will be heavy purchases of merchandise during May and June. If wheat makes like it now promises many thousands of men will find employment in the harvest.

The bankers are feeling more optimistic but are giving no glowing accounts of what they expect of the future. The banks have been building up cash reserves and extending very little credit. Extension of tax payments and no penalties for non-payment of taxes until October should prove beneficial to the banks, as it has lessened the demand for money. A good wheat crop will place millions of dollars in the banks and enable most property owners to meet tax payments long before penalties to begin.

The situation now is merely one of "keeping time" until the crop money begins to flow in. An advance of oil" would be very beneficial in Archer, Young, Baylor, Wilbarger and Wichita counties. A great boon to this region would be the lifting of proration and renewing of activities in drilling.

Railroads Are Active

The railroads are taking advantage of the present lull in getting both rolling stock and power in condition. The railroads get considerable heavy tonnage from road building and this spring this business is favorable. A great demand for petroleum products also increases tonnage and hot weather usually brings on demand for oil.

The railroads are also at work on the tracks and most of the roadbed is in good condition. Heavy spring rains, which produce washes, will necessitate increasing section crews, thereby absorbing more labor.

Municipal improvements are to be made in several towns. The major single project in Northwest Texas is the new federal court and postoffice building to be erected in Wichita Falls, which will be constructed at a cost of $750,000, including site and equipment.

THREE BILLION DOLLARS ROAD PLAN IN WORLD

Present Year Will Secure Greatest Amount Given In Road Building

MANY NATIONS SPENDING TO AID THE UNEMPLOYED

Texas Is Doing Her Share And Wichita Falls Area Will Be Benefited

Road building is world-wide. One hundred and ten nations and political subdivision of the world will spend at least $3,000,000,000 on roads and road construction during 1931, according to an estimate made by the automotive division of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce.

World-wide investigations disclose the fact that in the majority of the countries of the world road building has been stimulated as a measure of relief for unemployment, and as a consequence, world highway budgets in 1930 were higher than 1929, and are expected, in 1931, to be larger than ever before.

Ancients Did Same Thing

That history repeats itself in this respect, at least, is attested to by recent findings in India, Asia and other places where ancient roads have come to light built many years ago by sovereigns to provide employment for their people. Many of these ancient roads are in use today, indicating the high quality of construction.

It is gratifying to note that the United States leads the parade of highway construction, with expenditures which, according to the best estimates, will reach $2,000,000,000 during the year.

Though not in as large quantities, many other countries are proportionately increasing their highway budgets to relieve unemployment. From Japan comes the news of a special and additional 40,000,000 yen ($20,000,000) for 1931 roads; in Canada expenditures are expected to be increased by about $20,000,000. Mexico is pushing its great trunk highway system to give Mexico City modern highway connection with Vera Cruz on the gulf and Laredo and the United States on the north. Argentina in the closing days of 1930 issued a decree calling for bids for the construction of some 900 miles of paved highways with an outlay estimated at $200,000,000 or more. Alberia, the Sudan, Czecho-Slovakia and Greece, all have increased their 1930 budgets.

Italy Employs 60,000 Men

Jugoslavia has a $13,000,000 project on foot for approximately 500 miles. Hungary has an ambitious program already under way and Bulgaria has doubled its highway budget for the previous year. Italy has a vast public works program under way employing close to 60,000 men for highway construction. Belgium, Austria and the United Kingdom all have additional plans for the year.

In the Philippines $6,000,000 are to be used for highway construction for the relief of unemployment, and in Porto Rico $1,000,000 will be spent on roads.

Thus we see all over the world stimulated activity in highway construction and greatly increased expenditures during 1930 and 1931. Although this is being undertaken at the present time as a direct measure of relief for unemployment, the permanent character of the works will of course bring lasting benefits to the countries concerned and should act accordingly, not only as a temporary relief now, but as an aid to permanent insurance against future crises by stimulating economic development and accordingly economic wealth the world over.

Texas Doing Her Share

In this world-wide road building plan Texas is at the top, as regards a political subdivision. Millions are to be spent in Texas during 1931, and much of the expenditure will be in West and Northwest Texas.

Millions of dollars will be spent on new highways leading west from Wichita Falls, and also on highways that are expected to be improved this year from the North and East.

Tobacco was introduced into England by Walter Raleigh, coming from North Carolina in 1586. The tobacco business has continued to grow from that date and last year the American manufacturers did a record business. The volume now runs into billions of dollars annually. American cigarets and cigars are in demand the world over, being given preference by users to tobacco products of other nations.

Plans have been completed to gravel 50 blocks of residence streets in Hillsboro to aid unemployed.

AMERICAN REFINING PROPERTIES FACT IN WICHITA FALLS' PAY ROLL

An airplane view of the properties of the American in Wichita Falls. The highway leads from Wichita Falls to Iowa Park. In the center background is the machine shop and roundhouse of the Katy railway, also in the distance is to be seen the plant of the Continental Oil company. The plant of the American is one of the largest in Northwest Texas and employs a large number of men, with an annual pay roll running into hundreds of thousands of dollars. The small homes shown in the picture the occupied by men who work for the refineries and railroad shop.

Vocational Work In Breckenridge Schools Planned

C. H. Brown, owner of a machine shop at Breckenridge, is sponsoring a vocational training school for his home city, and as a result of his interest in the school the Lions club of that city has endorsed the plan and will give it additional financial support.

The plan is to conduct the vocational school throughout the public school system of Breckenridge. The educational program to create interest in the new school will also be fostered by the Lions club.

The Brown machine shop and the Texas Electric company officials have agreed to allow students in the vocational classes to use their shop and equipment laboratories.

Vocational training work is gaining in popularity as public school work in a number of Texas cities. Teachers in this work are paid salaries from money that comes from federal, state and local sources. The department of education of Texas pays one-half, the federal government one-fourth and the local school district one-fourth.

HEADLIGHTS

F. L. H.

An explanation why bank failures is offered for the fact that big towns are growing bigger and the banks in those towns are also growing. Many small towns are dwindling away and business is dwindling with them. That holds true to other lines of endeavor as well as banks.

Just as soon as a town stops growing it immediately begins to go backward. No town, or few at the best, can maintain an even keel and be prosperous. Therefore, it is necessary that the citizenship continue to work to make their town grow into a bigger and better place to do business.

Wichita Falls has a number of resources but to this day only one has been exploited. That one is petroleum. A city that is surrounding with as fine farming and ranching lands as Wichita Falls, with a trade area greater in size than some of the Eastern states, and mineral wealth in addition to oil, should grow. Wichita Falls business men must seek to increase their trade volume. It can be done but not without an effort.

There is one city in Northwest Texas that reaches out into four adjoining states for wholesale and jobbing business. That city is the home of several hundred traveling salesmen. Pay checks pour into the coffers of the banks to reimburse these men for their labor. Their salary checks go back into local channels of trade. That city depended upon its commerce long before oil gave it prominence.

Childress is a good example how a town can come back. We merely give what we read in a newspaper of statewide circulation of last Sunday. The paper said in part: "Childress is an example of a city that is staging a come-back. A year or so ago the city had a slump and this past season was in the worst part of the drouth section of Northwest Texas. This month the railroad has placed 350 men back in the shops. There is a new railroad building from Childress to Pampa. The county is building over 50 miles of paved highways. The farmers are being supplied with the finest variety of good staple cotton to plant this spring. A federal farm loan bank has been organized and the citizenship has never given up the fight to make Childress a bigger and better city."

Credit for making the fight in Childress is due the chamber of commerce and the board of city development, which are managed by Jerry W. Debenport. In the town to help him are men who do not know that there is such a word as "fail." They may be downed but they will get back on their feet. It is the type of men like Judge A. J. Fires, Will P. Jones, Hanry Sherwood, Chas. E. Crews, L. E. Haskett, Lon Alexander, Dr. J. D. Miehle, Roy Coffey, Charlie Dorsey, E. B. Abington, Tom L. Hardin, Howard Harrison, Wade Jones, F. P. Killeen Atkinson, J. C. Thomas, Frank Houston, C. A. Williams and others who have kept the town going forward when times have been as depressing as during 1930.

There are 30 or 40 men in Wichita Falls, if they choose, who can do much for this city. Wichita Falls is not a finished city by any means. It has suffered because oil is at a low price and of the proration order. If the price of oil should advance and the lid taken off as regards proration Wichita Falls would be a different city overnight. All know, as years of past experience have proven, that over-production has come about in manufacturing, mineral and agricultural activities. There has also been periods of under-production—they dovetail in the life of business.

Today big business is looking into the future. Big concerns are dumping into the scrap heap obsolete machinery and refitting the factories with new equipment. What is that done for? Merely getting ready for the good days that are fast approaching.

The world and his wife have been saving, of late. Some of this capital, coming out of refrigeration when business warms up, as it has begun to do since the sun took its turn northward late in December will make it warmer still.

Wichita Falls has a heart that flows warm blood. What is needed in the future is to give more consideration to the great empire that surrounds Wichita Falls and looks upon this city as its biggest brother.

QUANAH ELATED OVER SECURING OF HIGHWAY TO CARLSBAD CAVERN

Quanah citizens are elated over securing official designation of the Carlsbad Cavern highway, a road of transcontinental importance. The highway will extend southward from Altus, Okla., to Quanah, thence via Paducah into New Mexico.

A new free highway bridge is being constructed now across the Red river, nine miles northeast of Quanah. The highway from the bridge to Quanah, thence to the south line of Hardeman county to Crowell, is to be given a hard surface finish this year.

Preliminary work has started on the engineering of the big irrigation project in Runnels and Coke counties. The project will be one of the major irrigation systems of Texas.

World's Largest Milling Company in Excellent Financial Condition; Big Plant of Company in Wichita Falls

A new feature of the industrial page in the future will be analysis of corporations with local interests. The analysis is compiled by the Standard Statistics Company of New York.

"General Mills, Inc., world's largest producer and distributor of flour and cereal products, owning and operating, through subsidiaries, 21 flour mills with daily capacity of 85,850 barrels of flour and storage capacity for over 36,000,000 bushels of grain. In addition, has has 255 country elevators with storage capacity of nearly 12,000,000 bushels of grain, 10 proprietary feed mills for manufacture of commercial feeds, two cereal food products mills and 99 branch offices and warehouses engaged in sales and distributing activities. Produces many of the best known brands of flour, a complete line of special and poultry feeds, and numerous cereals and specialties. Has no funded debt, capitalization consisting of 230,144 shares of 6 per cent cumulative, $100 par, preferred and 673,444 shares of no par common stock.

"Does not publish interim earnings statements, but interests close to company express view that current fiscal period is experiencing substantial growth of profits. Estimate income for this period of at least $6 per common share, compared with $4.83 for 12 months ended May 31, last, and $4.58 for preceding year (on shares outstanding at end of period). All wheat purchases are understood to have been fully protected by hedging in the futures market, so that no loss has resulted from declining wheat markets. Regular junior dividend at rate of $3 per annum is being amply covered, and financial condition is excellent. Bank loans of $3,000,000 at close of last fiscal year have since been liquidated."

The plant in Wichita Falls is said to be the largest and finest equipped flour mill and elevator in Texas. Extensive improvements and enlargements were made during the past year.

Iowa Park Cotton Seed Dealer Finds Process to Delint Planting Cotton Seed That Is Practical and Cheap

A new industrial plant for Wichita county, which will likely be located at Iowa Park, is promised in the perfection of equipment by S. B. Jackson and associates for the delinting of cotton seed for planting purposes.

The process is that of a chemical gas treatment. The seed are absolutely cleaned of all lint and it is claimed the process is cheap, therefore making it practical.

For years efforts have been made to delint cotton seed that are intended for planting. In the past no process was secured but that it was too costly. Delinted seed have many advantages over the linted seed.

A great advantage of delinted seed is the time saved in sprouting. Delinted seed will sprout within a period of three to four days, according to weather and soil conditions. Linted seed require from seven to 10 days to sprout. The chemical gas treatment does not decrease fertility of the seed but does destroy certain plant diseases and all insect larva that may be protected by the lint.

Mr. Jackson has perfected a machine that will delint from 25 to 30 bushels daily. The plan is to increase the size of the equipment to where a carload of seed can be delinted daily.

El Paso Plant to Slaughter 50,000 Horses This Year

During the present year 50,000 horses will be slaughtered in a plant at El Paso.

The flesh from these animals will not be used for human consumption, as is done in several countries of Europe, but will be manufactured into chicken feed.

The supply of horses comes from the range country around El Paso. In the mountains of New Mexico and Arizona roam thousands of horses that are wild and of no value, except for slaughtering.

The El Paso plant from May to January, 1931, killed 10,000 head of horses.

There is a horse slaughtering plant in San Antonio that uses horse meat in the preparation of biscuits for dogs. It finds a sale for the products over the entire United States, also making exportations to Latin countries in Central and South America.

Wheat farmers of Northwest Texas will soon be in the market for harvesting machinery. Combines will be in demand, as well as motor trucks. Sales of tractors during January was better than dealers expected a few months ago.

CHILDRESS SECURES BUS REPAIR SHOPS AND DIVISION POINT

The Union Bus company is moving its central mechanical department to Childress. Six families were transferred to Childress last week from Vernon and Wichita Falls.

Officials of the company have informed the Childress Chamber of Commerce that Childress will also be a main division point and that other families of employes are to be transferred to that city immediately.

Location of the division and mechanical shops means an increase of 20 families for Childress, and a nice pay roll for the city. The main highways across Childress county are being paved, connecting the pavement of highway 5 and extending north into the Panhandle oil fields and south towards Abilene.

Former Childress Man Holds Record Amount Insurance

According to the New York American life insurance to the amount of $12,000,000 has been taken out by Walter P. Chrysler, automobile magnate. The policies were issued by five companies and make up the largest amount ever issued to any individual. Pierre S. DuPont, manufacturer, previously headed the insured with policies totaling $7,000,000.

Walter P. Chrysler before entering the automobile business resided at Childress, where he was master mechanic of the general shops of the Fort Worth and Denver railway. While residing in Childress he became a close friend of R. G. Fitzpatrick, then an official of the railroad but now a citizen of Wichita Falls. Chrysler is yet remembered by many employes of the railroad.

Eight Carloads of Road Machinery to Establish Grade

Eight carloads of road building machinery was unloaded in Childress this past week for the purpose of building the grade on highway 5 from the Hardeman county line west to connect with the pavement that has been laid from Childress to the east line of Hall county.

T. M. Carey, representing Carey Brothers Construction company, contractors to construct the grade has announced that only 10 men of his firm will be used on the job. These men will operate costly machinery. Unemployed of Childress county will be given work where skilled labor is not required.

The completion of this section of highway 5 will give a connected pavement from the Donley county line into Wichita Falls, also to downstate cities.

Efforts are now being centered to get construction started on the grade of highway 5 from Henrietta eastward through Clay and Montague counties. Highway 5 is one of the most important highways in Texas and of especial value to Wichita Falls.

WICHITA FALLS OIL TOOL COMPANY BUSINESS BETTER

The development of oil in East Texas is having its effect upon oil business concerns in Wichita Falls. W. R. Hammond, manager of the Lone Star Tool company, states that he placed at work last Monday four men who had been laid off. The company manufactures a complete line of tools used in oil well drilling.

Machinery that has been used in drilling in this area is being moved into East Texas, which is giving business to trucking and demanding more employes.

BUILDING CONTRACTORS OVER NATION DECLARE DECLINE IN INDUSTRY HAS REACHED END

That at least 40 states, including Texas, will share in continued large-scale highway paving and resulting employment this year, and that a gain in residential building is expected in various regions, including several population centers, are indicated in a national survey of building material dealers' forecasts for 1931.

This survey, just completed by the Universal Atlas Cement company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, presents replies of 2,300 dealers in 46 states to the question, "How will 1931 construction compare with 1930 construction in your community?" Replies of "less," "same," and "more" were received on eight classes of construction.

A surprisingly emphatic note of optimism for the new year was sounded by the 27 dealers replying from New York City, famed as the weather-vane of business health and supposedly one of the gloomiest spots on the present business map. "More" led in every classification except the irrelevant one of farm construction, and the city-wide total on all questions was "less," 25; "same," 48; and "more," 83!

Residential Gains Predicted

Residential construction gains were predicted not only throughout New York state, but in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey, eastern Pennsylvania, Florida, West Virginia, Wisconsin, northern Illinois and California. For the entire country there were 1,599 replies of "same" or "more" in this class and 708 of "less."

Despite the huge road-building achievements of last year, still greater highway activity was predicted for 1931 by the dealers of 17 states, with Louisiana, South Carolina, Georgia, Massachusetts, Alabama, New Jersey, California, and New York leading in the indicated degree of gain. Continued large-scale highway work was anticipated in every state except Tennessee and the sparsely-voting Rocky mountain region.

The next greatest prospect of construction improvement was foreseen throughout the country in residential building, as noted above, and the third in farm construction, with farm gains anticipated in Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa, Washington and Massachusetts. Then followed, in the order named, public building construction; street paving; public utility construction; sewer and waterworks construction; and commercial building.

Plans in Texas Revealed

The country-wide total on all issues—"less," 5,601; "same," 7,871; and "more," 2,873—indicated that 66 per cent of the dealers answering foresee no further construction decline. Sectional optimism, as shown in the combined percentages of "more" and "same," was greatest in the New England, middle Atlantic, and Pacific states, with the Great Lakes region next, and the northwest, south Atlantic, and south central states trailing.

Texas, as if scorning inconclusiveness, trailed five other states in the "same" column, but answered "more" and "less" more times than any other state except New York and Illinois. Highway prospects were best, with residential, farm, and public building construction next.

AMARILLO MAYOR PLACES POWER MACHINES IN SHEDS

All power machinery possible is being placed in sheds by the county commissioners of Potter county and road work will be done by hand labor. While as much work will not be done yet many unemployed men will be given jobs.

As little of the machinery will be used as possible and the court has agreed not to break the order until after March 30, 1931. The suggestion to do road work by hand labor came from Mayor Ernest O. Thompson of Amarillo.

In city street work and other municipal construction Mayor Thompson had ordered as much of the work be done by hand labor as possible. All work being done by the city and county calls for home men, floaters not being given a chance to work.

AMARILLO WILL SECURE MILLION-BUSHEL ELEVATOR

A new million-bushel grain elevator is to be erected in Amarillo to help store the big 1931 grain crop that is now in prospect.

Material orders have been made with the Amarillo Lumber company for several carloads of lumber and 10,000 barrels of cement. That order means tonnage for the railroads and a lot of labor at the cement plants in Fort Worth and Dallas.

Amarillo has a dream to become one of the greatest grain centers in America, and with a chamber of commerce leadership that never overlooks doing what it starts, the city will perhaps succeed in its ambition.

STANDOLIND WILL REMOVE DISTRICT OFFICE TO BOWIE

Removal of the district office of the Standolind Pipe Line company from Healdton, Okla., to Bowie will be made Feb. 1, according to statements made by company representatives at the pumping station in Bowie.

Standolind was formerly known as the Sinclair Pipe Line company. I. H. McVickers, district superintendent, will locate his office in Bowie, using space in the pumping plant building. Some five or six office men and other employes will be transferred to Bowie.

The men who will be transferred to Bowie will live in residences in Bowie, and not upon company property, so it is stated.

AMARILLO MEAT PACKING PLANT PROVES WORTH

ESTIMATED $40,000 SPENT WEEK WITH LOCAL PEOPLE

Business Is Growing and Greater Territory to Be Served Soon

The Pickney Packing company, recently formed in Amarillo for the purpose of operating a meat packing plant, is meeting with success in its project. The firm officers, some of whom were formerly connected with the Nuckolls Packing company at Pueblo, Colo., have had years of experience in the meat business and the plant at Amarillo is gaining in volume in the distribution of their products.

The Pickney Packing company was organized in Amarillo, Sept. 1, 1930, and took over the buildings and equipment of the Western Packing company. The new firm spent $20,000 remodeling the plant. The organization is capitalized at $250,000 and has invested over $200,000.

Before the plant started operation hogs in Amarillo were selling for 75c per hundred pounds less than the Wichita, Kan., market offered. The farmers and livestock dealers are now receiving within 25 cents of the top of the Wichita market. The Upper Panhandle counties shipped out over 200,000 hogs during 1930, so it is a big gain to the farmers and ranchmen to have a packing plant within their immediate territory.

The plant is now averaging 150 cattle and 350 hogs weekly. The weekly cash expenditure to the raisers of cattle and swine is approximately $40,000, all of which remains in the local channels of trade.

The company employs 45 people in the plant. Of this number 17 heads of families were brought from Pueblo. The pay roll is valuable to Amarillo merchants. The company is now expanding its territory and more men are expected to be employed, also more animals will be slaughtered each week.

Ranchmen and others interested in the livestock industry in the Wichita Falls area have been desiring the establishment of a home-owned packing plant in Wichita Falls. To make the plant a success it must be located in a major city where there is a large demand for meat products.

Recently a prominent rancher and livestock dealer, who lives at Graham, spent a day in Wichita Falls endeavoring to create interest here in the building of a packing plant that would be of sufficient capacity to handle carload shipments of carcass hogs and beef to California cities. This man states that most of the hogs and choice beef animals raised in the Wichita Falls area are now going to California packers.

The movement for a packing plant in Wichita Falls has also been given support by several men here who are holders of property, both business and residence. They feel that a modern packing plant will be able to do a splendid business in handling of meat products, also the operation of a vegetable and fruit cannery in connection.

The irrigated valley and the cross timber countries east of Wichita Falls are producing heavily of vegetables, fruits and berries.

BUILDING PERMITS

Building and repair permits for the week ending Jan. 30 totaled $2,500 bringing the total for the month and year to $8,710, according to City Engineer F. M. Rugeley.

The largest permit was taken out by S. G. Howard who was granted an $850 permit to construct a garage.

POLITICAL UNCERTAINTIES OFFSET BUSINESS IMPROVEMENT

Renewed Agitation for Compensation Of World War Veterans Creates Some Unsettlement in Business Conditions

By RICHARD L. GRIDLEY
United Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Further slight improvement in general business conditions during the past week was offset by increased political uncertainties connected with the renewed agitation for compensation of world war veterans under their bonus certificates.

Government officials pointed out that such a payment would involve financing to the extent of $3,400,000,000 and warned that such a procedure would have serious effect on business recovery. They said that while the payment to veterans might stimulate business temporarily, it eventually would cause inflation.

Possibilities of such a measure passing in congress were reflected in the government bond market, where government loans suffered their sharpest break in a decade under the impetus of hurried selling of the obligations by banking interests.

Certain of Veto

While it was assumed that President Hoover would veto such a measure for payment of compensation to veterans, the uncertainty over the measure has created some unsettlement in business and financial conditions.

Favorable business developments of the past week were the slight improvement in steel operations, which were described by President Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation as above the December rate, and the reports from the Chicago and Detroit automobile shows telling of sales above a year ago.

On the other hand, President William Green of the American Federation of Labor estimated unemployed in the country early in January at 5,700,000 against 5,500,000 in December, a larger increase in unemployed than is usually registered between the two months. The labor leader attributed the increase in unemployment in a large measure to complete lay-offs instead of part-time work.

Many Optimistic

Another authority questions the prevailing belief that business reached its low mark in December and intimates that further readjustments might be expected in February. On the other hand, the past week brought forth its quota of optimistic statements by business leaders.

One of the most important utterances made so far this year was the statement of the head of the Bethlehem Steel corporation that he looked for a gradual improvement in general business conditions in the current year, although not expecting the first half to be as good as the corresponding period of last year.

Sentiment in both business and financial circles has been somewhat dampened by numerous dividend reductions and omissions and by December statistics showing business at a low ebb during that month.

Another source of uneasiness has been the slowing down of the early January rise in the stock market and by weakness in many commodities. Corn and May wheat broke to further seasonal lows this week on renewed professional selling and many other minor foodstuffs were under pressure.

WEAKNESS IN CORN UNSETTLES PRICES ALL OTHER GRAINS

CHICAGO, Jan. 31. (AP)—Lowest prices in nine years resulted today from new breaks in the corn market. Trade reports said there had been four months of probably the lightest feeding on record, that it had been the warmest January ever known, and that a larger movement of corn to market centers was in prospect. Wheat was weakened by big domestic receipts, likelihood of rain in Kansas and Oklahoma and by Liverpool reports of free offerings from Argentina and Australia.

Corn closed nervous, ⅝@¾c down, wheat at ⅝c decline to ½c advance, oats ⅛@¼c off, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents decline.

Stop-loss selling accompanied downward swing of corn, with indications that feed requirements had been curtailed to an unexpected minimum, and that above-normal temperatures would prevail throughout most of the corn belt next week. Before price breaks were checked.

Corn weakness unsettled all other grains. In opposition to corn price setbacks, some authorities said the fact remained that corn production this season had been 600,000,000 to 700,000,000 bushels below normal needs. Although this loss has been partly made up by free use of substitutes the test as to whether corn supplies were insufficient was yet to come in the next few months, and that corn offerings from rural sources to Chicago have been small for some time. Oats declines were limited by signs of persistent demand.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—May 81⅝c, 81¼c; July 64⅝c, 67c. Corn—March 60⅞c, 62⅞c; May 63½@62⅝c, 64½@64⅝c; July 63⅝@63⅝c, 65⅝@65⅛c; Sept. (bids) 63⅛c.

REACTION FOLLOWS ADVANCE IN EARLY TRADING IN COTTON

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. (AP)—A slight opening advance in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables was followed by a reaction in cotton today under further near month liquidation and realizing for over the week-end, which may have been combined with a little southern selling. After selling up to 10.71, May reacted to 10.61 and closed at 10.64 or 4 points net lower. The general market closed steady at a net decline of 2 to 5 points.

The opening was steady 2 to 3 points higher, with the active months selling about 3 to 4 points higher during the first few minutes on trade buying and covering. The latter was probably promoted by the fairly steady showing of Liverpool in the face of the reported temporary breaking off of negotiations for a settlement of the Lancashire disputes yesterday, but the initial demand was soon supplied. March, after advancing to 10.44, sold off to 10.34, while July declined from 10.94 to 10.86, making net losses of about 6 to 7 points on the general list. Closing quotations were within 2 or 3 points of the lowest.

New Orleans Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 31. (AP)—The cotton market opened steady and moderately active, but soon quieted down and trading for the rest of the session except for a brief spurt at the close was comparatively quiet, even for a short week-end period. Liverpool came in better than due and the firmness of cables was responsible for an early gain of 4 to 5 points. This early bulge brought in week-end realizing and liquidation and prices soon lost the early gain and dropped to levels 7 to 8 points under the previous close. There was a partial rally at the end on shorts covering and the close was steady at net declines for the day of 1 to 3 points.

Liverpool came in as due to 3 penny points better than due and private cables stated there was a fair demand from the continent and the trade called. Manchester cabled there were fair cloth sales to the home trade, Egypt and South America. First trades showed gains of 3 to 5 points and there was a further slight improvement after the start on some week-end covering. May trading up to 10.69 and October to 11.21, or 4 to 5 points above the previous close.

The market later eased off, owing to week-end realizing and by the time offerings were absorbed May had traded down to 10.62 and October to 11.14, or 7 points down from the highs, while March lost 8 points. There was a slight rally near the end on week-end covering and May closed at 10.64 and October at 11.14, or 1 and 2 points respectively net lower on those active months.

Port receipts, 18,624; for season, 7,531,488; last season, 7,503,295. Exports, 26,246; for season, 4,379,258; last season, 4,832,533. Port stock, 4,217,730; last year, 2,493,927. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston, 96,150; last year, 135,458. Spot sales at southern markets, 10,684; last year, 7,037.

Liverpool Cotton

At midday, middling fair sold at 6.89d; strictly good middling at 6.44d; good middling at 6.09d; strictly middling at 5.84d; middling at 5.69d; strictly low middling at 5.54d; low middling at 5.24d; strictly good ordinary at 4.69d; and good ordinary at 4.39d.

Futures were steady at the close with March at 5.59d; May at 5.68d; July at 5.78d; Oct. at 5.95d; and Dec. at 5.95d.

DOWNWARD TREND IN SHORT SESSION TRADING ON CURB

Fractional losses were the rule. Operations for the decline were not aggressive and failed to attract many offerings. The day's turnover involved 180,000 shares.

The lower trend was evident from the start of the session and not until near the close, when some covering developed, were the losses in some of the active stocks reduced. Electric Bond & Share yielded a point to touch 43 and closed ¾ net lower. American Gas & Electric dropped nearly 3 but recovered all but 1½. United Gas and American and Foreign Power warrants closed with fractional losses. In the Petroleum shares, Gulf and Vacuum reacted more than a point each and some of the standard group suffered smaller losses. Cities Service held in a narrow groove and was only off ⅛ on the day.

In the industrial section, strength of dresser A and B stood out, with advances of ⅝ and 1⅞ respectively, in a fair turnover. Aluminum of America, and Ford of England, yielded fractionally. Lehigh Coal & Navigation sold off 2 and Deere dropped 1½.

STOCKS SAG WHEN LEADERS FAIL TO CONTINUE EXAMPLE

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. (AP)—Heaviness of stocks and weakness of United States government obligations marked the departure of January on the security exchanges today.

The half dozen shares which had been swinging in a wide range for several days lacked bullish sponsorship and with their example removed the remainder of the stock list sagged. On the whole, it was a dull session, for the turnover approximated only 800,000 shares.

Possibility of an extra session of congress and growing concern in banking circles over the cash bonus question doubtless influenced the speculative mind. Domestic bonds steadied moderately, but Liberties and treasury certificates reacted.

The surfeited condition of the short term money market caused a five-fold oversubscription to the treasury's $60,000,000 bill offering, which was sold at the record low average yield of 0.95 per cent on a bank discount basis. It was this enormous surplus of funds which had been helping the bond market prior to the sudden attack of nervousness over the bonus.

Commodity prices sagged. Wheat ended the day unchanged to ⅝c lower, reflecting forecasts of rain in Kansas and a small export demand. Corn dropped three quarters of a cent, while a dull cotton market showed net losses of 2 to 5 points.

Foreign exchanges were narrowly irregular, with unimportant changes.

TRADING BRINGS NO HALT IN PRESSURE U. S. GROUP BONDS

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. (AP)—The abbreviated session of the bond market brought no halt in the pressure on the United States government group which was active. The day's losses ranged from ⅛ to 10-16ths of a point.

As a result of the downward sweep that followed in the wake of the reaction in the gilt edged and highly liquid government securities, a week's trading has nearly undone the progress made since the first of the month, as gauged by the averages for 30 domestic bonds. At the close today they stood at 96.9 against a high of 98.7 for the month reached in the previous week, and 96.2 on Jan. 2.

Government bonds lost ground. Liberty first 4¼s firmed early in the session, to gain one-fourth of a point but at the end were 5-32nds lower. Treasury 4s and 3¾s reacted 10-16ths making their losses from the highs of a week ago more than 2½ points. These two with treasury 4¼s which yielded only 3-16ths today have suffered the most from the nervous selling precipitated by uncertainty over the soldiers bonus.

Pathe 7s rallied 5 points following action of R-K-O. In taking over its assets and Warner Quinlan 6s rose 2⅝c on an unconfirmed report that Cities Service had obtained stock control.

Mexican bonds, infrequently traded, reacted to the announcement that gold payments on the debt had been postponed for two years.

Midwestern Livestock Review

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 31. (AP)—(USDA)—Cattle trade around the 11-market circuit this week was uneven with a sluggish and lower dressed beef trade counteracting the stimulating influence of curtailed supplies. Upturns early in the week on killing classes were wiped out on late sessions at most points. Demand was narrow for fat and light yearlings. Chicago reported strictly choice yearlings up to $13.50. Receipts 152,500 were 31,000 under last week and 25,500 short of the corresponding period a year ago.

Fat lambs advanced to new high levels at mid-week but part of the gain was erased Friday. Chicago, relatively higher last week closed steady to 25c lower on fat lambs. Otherwise values on killing classes were firm to unevenly higher. Several river markets closed with a gain of 25c on lambs and an upturn of 25@50c on fat ewes. The supply approximated 311,300 against 309,595 last week and 299,903 a year ago.

OKLAHOMA COURT AFFIRMS SENTENCE OF FRANK HINTZ

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 31. (UP)—The life sentence of Frank Hintz, convicted in Seminole county on a murder charge, was affirmed today by the criminal court of appeals.

Evidence in the case showed Lillie Hintz, wife of the convicted man, had testified Miller had made improper advances toward her.

The record shows Hintz followed Miller to an ice dock after Miller had visited the Hintz home. The two men fought and Hintz fired several shots.

The criminal court held that the testimony showed that the killing of Miller by Hintz was "premeditated and that Hintz had followed Miller to the ice dock with the premeditated design to kill him."

The court affirmed the eight-year sentence given Lizzie Miller in Muskogee county on manslaughter conviction.

Other opinions:

Earl Clothier, Blaine county, three years for larceny of domestic fowls at night, affirmed.

H. N. Smith, Pottawatomie county, 30 days in jail and $150 fine for transporting liquor, affirmed.

J. H. Bowen, Jefferson county, 90 days in jail and $100 fine for possession of liquor, reversed. The court held that evidence showed officers illegally searched Bowen's car in their quest for a still. The fact that liquor was found was not a basis for prosecution without proper search warrant, the opinion said.

City Taxpaying Season Extended To February 28

City taxes in Wichita Falls are payable without penalty through Saturday, Feb. 28, it was announced Saturday by George D. Fairtrace, city manager, through the authorization of the city council.

The extension of the time limit was granted by the council in view of the present trend to extend taxpaying time. The bill passed by the legislature making all taxes payable up to Oct. 15 without penalty does not apply to Wichita Falls city taxes, because the city operates under a home rule charter and does not come within the power of that legislation, Mr. Fairtrace said.

GARVIN NAMED FREIGHT TRAFFIC MANAGER M-K-T HEADQUARTERS DALLAS

Establishment in Texas of the office of freight traffic manager of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas lines was announced Saturday from the office of E. O. McCord, division freight and passenger agent of the M-K-T here.

J. F. Garvin was appointed to fill the newly created position effective Feb. 1.

The proportion of M-K-T traffic originating in or destined to Texas points steadily increases in importance with continuing growth and development in the Southwest and the railroad management considers it necessary and desirable to have a ranking and responsible system traffic official thoroughly conversant with the rate and traffic situation on the ground in Texas and in position to maintain close touch with shipping interests and public generally, it was stated.

The Texas headquarters of the freight traffic manager will be at Dallas, as are the headquarters of the general freight agent of the M-K-T of Texas.

Mr. Garvin is widely known throughout the state and southwestern territory. Prior to and during the war he was located at Dallas as general freight agent of the Katy.

When the federal government, after the war, returned the railroads to their owners, Mr. Garvin was made general freight agent and Jan. 1, 1927, was transferred to St. Louis, Mo.

Students Hear Travel Talk by Dr. McKenney

About 200 students, visitors and teachers enjoyed the travel talk given by Dr. Stephen S. McKenney, pastor of the First Methodist church when he was presented by the Zundelowitz P.-T. A. at the school auditorium Friday morning.

The speaker gave amusing incidents of his recent tour of Europe, Egypt and the Holy Land and also gave splendid descriptions of some of the places of the greatest interest he visited.

"In Cairo, the party rode by camel to one of the greatest of the pyramids. They visited the tomb of King Tut, where an immensely valuable collection of relics was on display. There were the coffins of King Tut, three in number, one fitted inside of the other. The innermost one was of pure gold," Dr. McKenney said.

In the ancient city of Jerusalem, Rev. McKenney visited the Moslem mosque of Omar, which was built on the site of Solomon's temple. One of the places of greatest interest was the Dead Sea, death is everywhere, on the surrounding land, on the water's edge, and there is no living thing in the sea. Even the water is stale and salt. The very atmosphere is saturated with salt. Salt formations or pillars are formed on the rocks or rough hillsides. The sea receives millions of tons of living water daily, yet this fresh water loses all life, after it enters the Dead Sea. This sea is like a life which receives and consumes daily, yet which is dead, because it gives nothing out," he said.

Dr. McKenney compared the Dead Sea to the Sea of Galilee, which is a beautiful blue lake of living water full of fish, and with trees and bushes growing on its banks. He also spoke of Greece, Rome and Pompeii, where life was blotted out instantaneously. The city was buried with 10 or 12 feet of ashes and cinders from Mt. Vesuvius. These people and animals are so well preserved, and have been later excavated, that he viewed the body of a dog, straining and snarling at its leash. He also stated that he viewed the body of a man, with an expression of horror on his face.

Mt. Vesuvius which is in continual smoke and constant roar, was visited. Dr. McKenney also gave a description of the beautiful city of Naples.

Indian Lecturer To Speak Forum Clubhouse Feb. 3

A lecturer who has taken his audience by storm during the last four seasons will be presented when Syud Hossain gives his talk on "India of Today and Tomorrow," at the Woman's Forum clubhouse Tuesday evening in the February artist program. Mr. Hossain has addressed the most distinguished audiences in two continents, winning signal tributes as man of compelling eloquence, wide knowledge, cosmopolitan sympathies and the charm of personality.

The Woman's Forum is particularly fortunate to have Mr. Hossain as a speaker at a time when Indian affairs are absorbing much interest throughout the world. The imprisonment and release of Mahatma Gandhi, that unusual man who has demonstrated to the world the superiority of mind over matter, —the intense study now being given the work of the church in India; the books that have created so much discussion during the last few years, "Mother India," and the passionate defense of that eastern realm that followed the publication of Mother India—all these things make Mr. Hossain's address particularly apropos.

For this reason, an exception has been made to the forum rules and while members of the forum will be admitted on their green membership cards, the public will be admitted for the nominal dollar ticket that has always admitted men. Wherever Mr. Hossain has spoken, men have been enthusiastic in their admiration.

As his first name indicates, Syud Hossain is a lineal descendant of Mohammed and comes of an aristocratic family whose Persian ancestors settled in India in the reign of the Emperor Jehangir and for successive generations were among the premier nobility of the land.

He began his career in the British service, following in the footsteps of his father who held one of the highest offices under the British crown. He later engaged in journalism, and for several years was a writer in the English press, his contributions appearing in the most famous journals of England.

As an active and powerful journalist, with years of editorial experience in Asia and Europe, he has brought authentic and first-hand knowledge to his interpretations of the problems of the day.

Mrs. J. C. Farrell, president of Vernon city council, reports a splendid showing in Wilbarger county. Her report states:

"We have been doing here the best work we have done in years. We have a very capable health nurse and have almost completed health examination of all children in city and county schools. We have conducted a thrift exchange all the year and will begin tomorrow to supply one pint of milk to 70 poor school children at noon, this to be continued for the rest of the school year. We also provide lunches for 12 children. Our programs have been fine with good attendance at all meetings. We are proud of this record for Vernon and Wilbarger county."

WICHITA COUNTY (ELECTRA)

Mrs. E. B. Holcomb, president of First Ward school at this place writes enthusiastically of the work being carried on here.

Mrs. Holcomb writes, "Under the conditions of the times we have had a wonderful organization and the cooperation has been the very best. We have been having from 85 to 100 and over at each meeting. We are planning a special observance program for Feb. 12 in celebration of founders day."

FOARD COUNTY (CROWELL)

Mrs. R. L. Kincaid of this place who was district representative for 13th district during the convening of the state board in Austin last week reports a most instructive and profitable conference. Full reports will be given by Mrs. Kincaid of the activities of the meeting, and all the data which she has collected will be submitted both at the district executive board meeting to be held on Feb. 17, and also at the district convention.

Mrs. Kincaid reports that Foard county has one new association at West Raymond which is a rural P.-T. A. and doing good work. She also makes mention of the fact that Thalia and Crowell units are doing splendid work under existing circumstances.

WOMAN SPEAKS

Thirteenth district has the opportunity of hearing at their April convention a dean of women from the State Association of Deans of Women. It is earnestly desired that a dean be placed in every high school in the state and district officials are requested to arrange for a speaker on this subject at every district conference in session this spring. It will be remembered that Vernon, in Wilbarger county, was the first unit in 13th district to secure such a dean of woman for its high school. It is a matter that has received considerable attention from educational authorities. Miss Ruth Mays of the state teachers college at Nacogdoches has assumed leadership in the matter of supplying the names of deans who are located nearest the district conference being held. The speaker can then be arranged for, and will speak at one of the conference sessions on this highly important subject.

NOCONA P.-T. A.

Child hygiene will be the theme for discussion at the regular meeting of the Nocona Parent-Teacher association on Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 4, which will be held at the high school auditorium, with Mrs. J. S. Wood, chairman of child hygiene, as director of the program. The meeting will be opened by a devotional by Rev. C. E. Cogswell. A business session will be presided over by the president, Mrs. J. A. Fooshee.

Mrs. A. A. Stripling has been requested to furnish entertainment from her studio, which will be in line with the subject of hygiene. At the time Mrs. Stripling will show "high lights" from the play, "The Bunch of Fune," which is to be staged as a benefit for the P.-T. A. on Friday evening, Feb. 6, at the Nocona High school auditorium. Mrs. Stripling will also present a costume reading, "When I Grow Up" by Ora Wayne Wood.

There will be a number by the Choral club and "a discussion by illustration of correct posture of the body as an aid to healthful mind and body in the growing youth," presented by Mrs. Stripling, and assisted in posture by Christine Newman with Mrs. R. T. Cozby at the piano.

The drill illustrating the five standard positions of the body and the use of the hands and arms, is contributed through the courtesy of the teacher from the Knickerbocker School of Fine Arts, Wichita Falls, of which Mrs. Stripling is an associate teacher of expression.

The concluding and feature number of the program is the lecture on "The Value of Sunlight Rays for Infants" by Dr. S. T. Humphreys.

Everybody interested in P.-T. A. work and the schools are very cordially invited and urged to attend this meeting.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

MRS. NORRIS

Many a good mother and father are sure that they would make any sacrifice in the world to start the children into life with a modest, but sure, fortune. With 60 or 70 thousand dollars apiece, say.

Sixty thousand dollars insures a girl an income of $250 a month, for life. It isn't wealth, but she could live on it nicely, and that would mean she wouldn't have to marry for money. And yet nobody'd marry her for that sum. She could travel, or go into any work or profession she chose, with dignity and safety, if without any extravagance or display.

So think mother and dad, watching her on this Sunday morning, when her bowl of cereal, and her doll are the chief interests in her life, or when middy blouses and school chatter are awakening them suddenly to the fact that adorable babies don't remain babies forever.

The fond dream that with money we can spare our children anything—anything—of the common lot of trouble and disillusionment that is life—is one of those dear old stupid shreds of delusion to which we cling, even when we have disproved them over and over again.

Mary Polk expatiated upon this idea for my benefit, a few months ago.

"Ah, now my dear," she said, positively, "you may talk about the glory of poverty, and of starting at scratch, as much as you like. But a girl does need a little money, her whole life is different if she can dress and go about with nice girls, hold her own. If I knew that Yvonne and Denise were each going to have a hundred thousand, some day, I'd not have a worry in the world."

The funny thing about this observation is that Mary herself was one of the girls who inherited her hundred thousand, and a lot more than that, in the long-ago days when all the rest of us were poor. When Mary married her sporting, handsome first husband she was, we told each other, enjoying a private income of no less than $700 a month. As for Jack Polk, he was "coining money." Handsome, athletic young men who marry heiresses are always said to be coining money; long afterward one wonders if it is a particularly healthy thing to do.

Anyway, Mary didn't get any of the money Jack coined, and Jack got a good deal of hers; he kept sinking thousands and thousands into this and that. Finally they were divorced, and Mary clung to what was left, invested it in one of the few oil companies that failed, and hasn't a penny today. She has expensive tastes, she has two daughters with vague ideas and expensive tastes, she and they are entirely ignorant of the world in which other women make money. And yet Mary's one hope for her girls would be that they might have a fortune apiece, as she did.

That happens oftener than fond parents imagine, when they are sacrificing and struggling to leave a daughter an independence. Girls with money have a favorite trick of falling in love with worthless men; worthless men have a fashion of making themselves attractive to heiresses. And no trust company, no safeguards, can keep a money-ignorant and foolish wife from handing over her securities to her beloved partner. Only the other day a mother appeared in a western court, asking for guardianship of her daughter's money. The husband and father, dying, had thought that he had tied the half million up securely, for Betty alone. But Betty's enterprising young husband, in the process of "coining money," had borrowed on these securities almost half their value. The court pronounced itself powerless to interfere. Only Betty could protect herself, and Betty was infatuated with the money-coining shiek. Soon it will all be gone. Then Betty can sue, of course. But how many women do? Suing your husband, the father of your children, for money that he hasn't got, has never been a popular proceeding.

Well, then, there are the armies of the Helens. Helen inherited $100,000, about 28 years ago. She doesn't know how it was made; she couldn't earn $5 a week, herself. It buys less than it did, in 1905, and every time Helen buys a pair of gloves or a can of tomatoes, she holds forth anxiously to anyone who will listen about the terrible prices everywhere today. She has to pay an income tax, and she rages about that; in short, for 20 years I have not heard Helen say a happy or a comfortable word. Ignorant terror for fear something will happen to her precious money, possesses her. She never has married. Men, to her, are all fortune-hunters. She lives alone, because the only persons who would live with her are penniless, the sort that are in search of any port in a storm, and Helen doesn't believe in "pauperizing" people.

There are pathetic, lonely, money-worried women like this all over the world. Their pitiful inheritances, given them at an impressionable age, have warped them into a narrow mould; those precious hundreds every month absorb their thoughts, energies, fears, absorb their love—all they have. They never think of trying to do anything, or earn any money. And if it happens that through no fault of their own, this fortune is swept away, they are in pitiful straits indeed.

In England, some years ago, there lived a man who wandered about at watering places, and in dull, respectable neighborhoods in the city. Here he picked up lonely, elderly spinsters—each with a small fortune. The fortune was the essential. Without any trouble at all he won the affection of these solitary, boarding house women—they had never been alive, in the real sense of loving and working and serving, they were timidly, fearfully, existing on their few poor pounds a month. They wanted to take just one chance, before they died. They took it; made their money over to him, and were strangled one by one, in bathtubs, a few days later.

That little daughter of yours ought to have health, for the first important item in her inheritance. She ought to have enough education to make her feel at home among cultivated persons. She ought to like books, dogs, music, friends, gardens, cooking, tennis—all the sports and tastes and hobbies and interests you can cram into her.

She ought to be pretty; not too fat, not bony, not pimpled or spectacled or hump-shouldered. Her manners ought to be nice; just pleasant and easy and friendly. She ought to have friends—not that she may not go away from all these school associates and neighbors some day, but because friendship is an important art, hospitality is an art; she needs practice in these arts.

Her mother ought to watch her for all the little foxes that spoil so many grown-up vines; sensitiveness, coldness, selfishness, pride, laziness when dishes and table-setting are in question, ignorance about budgets and allowances and sensible spending, untidiness about her person, incorrect speech.

Her daddy ought to be her judge and jury, her advocate and confidant, her banker and her "favorite boy." From her smallest days both parents ought to paint the world to her as a place in which she is going to find work to do, and friends to prize, and the delight of service.

Most of this costs nothing. If they can add to it a nice little income, and influence her about spending it, so much the better. But without the other things, money won't help her much, and with them she won't need it. She'll have more fun trying her first job, cashing her first pay check, making her first success in a tearoom, or on a paper, or as a saleswoman, than she will ever have out of Aunt Fanny's hoarded thousands. She will stand on her own feet, and discover for herself the real values of life.

The world is full of happy, busy, successful women who never inherited a cent of money from anyone, and never expect to. If their parents started them with health, good brains and average schooling, they got about everything they needed; the rest is all perseverance and character and personality, anyway.

The glory of carving her own life out of the big jumble of the world is something no father has a right to take away from his child. Life is just what it always has been, with plenty of excitement and change and opportunity all along the road of the worker who loves his work, and gives generously as he goes along.

We can't live their lives for them, these children of ours. We can't save them from the mistakes that will come from weakness or stubbornness, or stupidity. If their own characters aren't going to save them, $100,000 won't—no, nor $100,000,000.

Girls with money have a favorite trick of falling in love with worthless men; worthless men have a fashion of making themselves attractive to heiresses.

Mrs. Norris Says:

The fond dream that with money we can spare our children anything — anything — of the common lot of trouble and disillusionment that is life — is one of those dear old stupid shreds of delusion to which we cling, even when we have disproved them over and over again.

"My two little ones raise an awful fuss when I try to give them plain cod-liver oil. They hate it," Mrs. Alice Burgess told us when we called at her home at 23 Curtis Street, Bloomfield, N. J.

"Gee, it's good," said Warren. "I like it," smiled Lucienne.

Pleasanter to take—but that isn't all!

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETS FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Members of the executive board of the Bowie P.-T. A. met at the school Friday afternoon. Mrs. W. D. Hageman was elected a delegate to the city council meeting to be held Feb. 5 at the Highland Heights Christian church, and it was suggested that the members of the Bowie association arrange to sell tickets to the Marionette show, which will be brought to the Memorial auditorium Feb. 13. It was also decided to give a party to the room that wins the attendance count at each regular P.-T. A. meeting. This is to be in addition to the bowl of gold fish that has previouly been given for the prize. It was suggested that the P.-T. A. have a "Dad's Night" program soon.

The regular meeting of the association will be held Wednesday at 2:30 o'clock, when an interesting program on "Parental Education" will be given. Mrs. Frank E. Creighton will talk on "The Everyday Problems of the Everyday Child," and Miss Jean King will read an article from the Child Welfare magazine. The music department of the school with Mrs. George Frazier in charge, will furnish music and Mrs. C. W. Kidd will give the devotional. A short business session will be held with the president, Mrs. R. A. Yeager, presiding. A social half hour will follow.

MISS ETHEL BOWERS

To help girls from 6 to 60 have more opportunities for recreation is the mission of Miss Ethel Bowers of the National Recreation association, who will be here on Friday, Feb. 6. Miss Bowers is the Katherine F. Barker memorial secretary of recreation for girls and women and has just completed a two-year study of the play time of girls and women in the United States. This work is made possible through a gift of Mrs. Charles V. Hickox of New York, in memory of her mother.

"I'm asking and answering questions," Miss Bowers states. "I'm asking them to find out what is being done for the young womanhood of the country in healthful activity and how many girls and young women are training themselves for leadership in recreation." 'What costumes shall women athletes wear?' 'Shall men coach girls' teams?' 'What activities are suited to the older woman?' 'What recreations can boys and girls enjoy together?' are some of the questions that women's clubs, schools, churches and playground systems are asking, she says.

One of the first problems to be solved by recreation departments is co-recreation, points out Miss Bowers. Girls and boys want to play together, but very few cities are helping them to do so. To play golf and tennis, to dance, bowl, take part in community dramatics and music, to go to parties at the community house—the chance to do these things together near their own homes at a nominal cost would go a long way towards establishing wholesome, lifelong comradeship between men and women. She commends the work of the recreation departments of Milwaukee, Cleveland, Detroit and others, whose provisions for re-recreation are outstanding.

"Men's groups practice, 'give the boy a chance'," Miss Bowers observes. "My plea is that taxpayers also give the girl a chance. In view of the recreation facilities and leadership offered by municipal departments for men and boys, those afforded women and girls are in most cases inadequate. Municipal provision for individual activities, such as swimming, tennis, golf, bowling and things that a girl can do with one or two others will make for the lifelong recreation of women."

Not only games and sports, but music, dramatics, handcrafts, social activities, service to others, and mental recreation are classed among the recreation activities, she said.

As a result of her recent study of what 172 cities in the United States are doing to promote girls' recreation, Miss Bowers reports that of the present programs conducted for women, 95 per cent are based on sound policies and are constructive as well as recreational. Her aim is to help every community to provide adequate recreation programs for all their women and girls, rather than to censure present activities. The service of this expert in recreation is available to cities throughout the United States.

Miss Bowers has had a broad training in physical education and wide experience with girls' and women's activities. She was formerly professor of physical education at Brenau college, Georgia, president of the Georgia, and an officer in the Southern Physical Education association. She is active in national physical education circles.

Her report will point out the problems of recreation for women and girls as well as the means of solving these problems in the various sections, and will be sent to the 200 or more cities she has visited. For 24 years, the National Recreation association, for which she is making the survey, has been promoting the public relation idea. Since 1906 when it was founded by Theodore Roosevelt, Jane Addams and others, the number of cities maintaining play areas under leadership has grown from 41 to 945.

Public schools in Montana received more than 43 per cent of the total property tax collections of 1930.

MARGARET BRAY WEDS OTTO M. HENNERSDORF

A simple but impressive wedding ceremony was solemnized Monday, Jan. 26, when Miss Margaret Bray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Bray, 1209 Polk street, was married in Frederick, Okla., to Otto M. Hennersdorf, also of Wichita Falls. Rev. H. W. Stigler, pastor of the Baptist church, officiated in the presence of close friends and relatives, the ceremony being said in the home of the minister.

The charming bride, who is a graduate of Wichita Falls High school, has been a popular member of the younger set of this city. Mr. Hennersdorf is a representative young business man and after March 1, Mr. and Mrs. Hennersdorf will be at home in Mobile, Ala., where he will be connected with Remington Rand Business Service, Inc.

Mrs. Hennersdorf has been honored since the wedding with several pretty courtesies, among them a pretty kitchen miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. John Tyson Thursday evening at her home on Elizabeth.

Green and yellow were the pretty daffodil colors noted in gifts, decorations and delicious refreshment plate. Many lovely gifts were presented Mrs. Hennersdorf and a dainty plate served to Messrs. and Mesdames O. M. Hennersdorf, J. D. Dale, Joe Tyson, Mesdames M. X. Hobbs, Lora Stampfli, S. A. Reed, H. H. Bray and Mrs. Mark D. Porter, the bride's sister from Fairhope, Ala., Misses Sadie Fisher, Irma Fisher, Martha Blankenship and Mr. and Mrs. John Tyson.

THE DEFERRED TAX PAYMENT BILL

In spite of the determined opposition of most county tax collectors—not including, we are glad to record, Wichita county's collector—the legislature has passed the bill providing for deferment of tax payments this year. The bill received almost unanimous support in each house, after the agreement was effected. The tax collectors' lobby was defeated.

While that lobby is in retreat, we hope the legislature will take advantage of the situation and provide for installment payment of taxes as a regular thing. The law already passed applies only to the taxes now payable. It is a good time to enact a law that will make the installment plan a permanent feature of tax collections.

The legislature has established the rule that the convenience of the public is to be considered superior to the convenience of the tax gatherers. In keeping with that rule, and while the collectors' lobby is on the run, the installment plan should be adopted.

APOLOGIZING TO MUSSOLINI

Considering how loose-mouthed Mussolini himself is, it seems a bit inconsistent that our government should apologize because one of its officers talked a little loosely about him. Mussolini has again and again said things far more damaging to the peace of the world than what General Butler said about Mussolini, and there were no apologies.

The difference is that General Butler got personal. He made an accusation that reflected seriously upon the Italian premier. To make it all worse, the accusation was based on the merest hearsay. Somebody had told it to a friend of his and this friend had told him. Results, an official apology by Washington to Signor Mussolini and a court-martial ordered by Washington for General Butler.

When you hold a commission from the government, you must be careful of what you say. In 1910, Admiral Sims, speaking at a banquet in London, said in effect that the United States would go to Great Britain's aid if occasion ever arose. Germany and other nations objected to such generous promises and the admiral was formally reprimanded by President Taft who of course didn't realize then how prophetic the admiral's remarks were.

A reprimand will likely be General Butler's punishment. Hearsay talk is always dangerous. It is especially so when a commissioned officer repeats it.

SOME LEGISLATIVE IDEAS

Legislatures are now in session in most of the states and all of the social and economic ideas that have been germinating during the past two years are now sprouting into bills which aim to put them on the statute books. Thus:

In the Colorado legislature a committee has been appointed to study a plan for a $15 weekly unemployment "dole."

A legislator in Connecticut has introduced a bill authorizing physicians to give birth control information.

In Tennessee, a bill has been introduced to require grammar school students to memorize a verse of Scripture daily.

In New Mexico a bill prohibiting the employment of women for more than six hours daily was defeated.

Such matters as these will receive more public attention than the thoughtful and sincere efforts of legislators to deal with unemployment, to reduce the cost of government, to promote law enforcement, to provide for the education of the youth and to do the countless other tasks that demand action today.

A new book has been written dealing with Adam and Eve. Will they call this "the book of the year—1?"

THE MILK AND POULTRY MONEY

When dairying and poultry-raising have been developed to the extent that they have in Wichita county, prices such as now prevail for dairy and poultry products have a disagreeable effect upon business in general as well as, of course, upon the producers themselves.

Both the dairymen and the poultry raisers have organizations that are trying to do something about the situation. Their efforts should have the support of the citizenship. Wichita county's consumption of dairy products is far below average, and there is no good reason for it. The use of canned milk and of butter substitutes is too prevalent here; money spent for such articles goes out of the county. Money spent for fresh milk and real butter stays in this section, if not in this county. The individual consumer can help materially to bring about better market conditions.

In the poultry business, the situation is somewhat different. But here again, the housewife can help, by seeing to it that the supplies for her family are fresh, not cold storage products. We are told that 14 carloads of eggs were shipped into this county in 1930. There was no good economic reason for such an importation. The poultry raisers can help matters by perfecting a fighting organization.

Paltry as are the returns, just now, for both dairymen and poultry raisers, they count for a great deal. If that money were not being put into local circulation, local business would feel the difference in a very unpleasant way. These industries mean more than the average business man realizes. They are entitled to all the support the public can give them.

THE ALFALFA CONTEST

The entry list for the alfalfa-growing contest, sponsored by The Times and Record News and made possible by the cooperation of farm landowners, closed last week with a total of 38 entries. There will be 26 contestants in the irrigated valley, 12 from the non-irrigated portions of the county.

It is a splendid response and it makes this paper more glad than ever that it inaugurated the contest. Frankly, we didn't expect there would be more than barely enough to make it a real contest. The minimum of 10 contestants in each division was established with some misgivings because we weren't sure that many would respond. The total of 38 indicates a more general interest in better farming methods than there had been reason to believe was prevalent.

We hope that all the contestants will live up to the spirit of the contest, make every effort to produce a good crop, keep careful records and follow instructions. It is, we believe, a thoroughly worthwhile competition. It is going to be hard for anybody to lose, even though comparatively few can win the cash prizes. Everyone who participates will be better off for having tried.

HUNTING LICENSES

State Senator Woods favors changing hunting license fees in Texas, so that those who want to hunt deer, bear and other big game would pay $5, while those who confine their hunting to doves, quail, ducks and small game would pay $3. The present cost of a hunting license is $2, the fee being the same for the man who hunts all sorts of game, all over the state, as for the hunter who fares forth once or twice a year after ducks or quail.

The idea of a $5 fee for big game hunters is sound enough. Increasing the general fee to $3 is in order. The state should, however, guard against making the fee too high for the casual hunter. The higher the fee, the more likely the occasional hunter is to take a chance on getting by without a license. There aren't nearly enough game wardens as it is, and it would be relatively easy for the unlicensed hunter to escape detection. Comparatively few, we believe, now attempt to hunt without licenses.

Three dollars is not too much to pay for a small game license, but it is enough. The big game hunter should pay more. Senator Woods' proposal is along the right line.

When Homes Totter

By GLENN FRANK
(Copyright McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

I have devoted so many of these articles to economic policy during the last year that the reader may feel that I have gone blind to those weightier matters of the mind and of the spirit for which, after all, economics is but the scullery maid.

I have not.

I have clung with continuous intensity to discussions of our economic problems and policies, not because I think the major aim of modern man should be to bring business, industry, and finance back to normalcy just for the sake of material prosperity and comfort, but because the future of education, religion, and the home is deeply involved in the stimulation of a wiser and worthier economic statesmanship and a more soundly based social order.

Let me illustrate this contention by the current mood of many respecting marriage and the home.

In all-too-many instances the youth of the nation is getting a badly distorted notion about marriage and family life.

Heroes are made of the Lindsays and the Russells and their like when they paint dark pictures of the maladjustments and miseries that center in the institutions of marriage and divorce as currently administered.

A goodly number of the theorists who are proposing and evangelizing for all sorts of experimentalisms in marriage and in family life are men and women who are creating a philosophy out of their personal twists of mind or misfortunes of choice.

But honesty compels us to admit that, under economic circumstances that compel the average young man and young woman unduly to delay marriage, difficult problems are thrown into the foreground.

It is the actual existence of these difficult problems that give many loose and socially sinister theories of marriage and family life a wide audience among the young.

We cannot answer these problems by the simple shouting of ancient dogmas about the sancity of marriage, but if we put our shoulders to the wheel and create economic conditions under which the institution of marriage can function normally, the evangelists of trial marriage and of companionate marriage would probably lose much of their audience.

Hope

January has been very Downright extraordinary
Warm and mild,
Let us hope that February
Will not find it necessary
To get wild.

Al Smith offered Mr. Hoover his sympathy. Mr. Hoover might have replied that he would like to swap some sympathy for about a dozen more regular Republican senators.

President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia says there are only eight first-class universities in this country. Notre Dame, we presume, and seven others that can hold Notre Dame to 30 points.

Half Portions

Gandhi says he won't stay out of jail long,
Our notion is, he isn't far wrong.

We think the drug stores hadn't orter
Quit selling smokes two packs for a quarter.

This installment plan of paying taxes

When it went and made the Red Cross cross.

One thing we'd like to know about this idea of having a dormitory for Oklahoma's legislators to stay in—whose duty would it be to look under all the beds every night.

There's no argument, of course, about whose task it would be to tell the legislators bed-time stories.

The Home Wrecker

Some of the customers, it seems, didn't understand what we meant a few Sundays ago when we wrote that there ought to be a law against the manufacture, barter, sale or importation of wire coat-hangers. Our purpose in urging such legislation was simply to deal with a menace that is threatening the very existence of the American household. It has broken up more homes than blonde stenographers.

It is one of the most perversely insidious devices known to man. It is treacherous. The deadly rattlesnake rattles before it strikes but the wire coat-hanger gives no such warning. It lunges viciously at you, usually at your neck, but sometimes at your ankle, when you are least expecting it.

You hang one of them in a closet with a garment on it and turn to go your way. Before your back is fairly turned, it falls. It does not, however, fall to the floor. It falls just far enough to entangle itself with another hanger. You start to disentangle them, and other hangers bite you on the ear and the elbow. The coat hanger is a gregarious creature. It loves to mingle with its kind. A long, single coat-hanger can be dealt with and rendered fairly harmless. Anybody who has ever hunted bumble-bees knows how that is. One bumble bee is of no consequence. But when your hunting brings you close to a nest of them, look out! Coat-hangers are like that.

Another Menace

There is another domestic device that the legislature ought to do something about. We refer to the medicine cabinet. There ought to be a law requiring it to be cleaned out at least once a year.

We cleaned one out the other day and it was a disheartening experience. We encountered bottles of medicine and boxes of pills that we had completely forgotten about. We couldn't even recall what ailments they were for. The amount originally invested in them was too large to permit of their being thrown away, and still there didn't seem to be any good reason for keeping them. We compromised by deciding to use the contents up, following the directions on the containers, as far as possible. The plan ran into some difficulties, but has succeeded fairly well. There was one box of pills, for instance, that said, "Take one every two hours until relieved." Relieved of what? We didn't know. Those pills were about three years old and we couldn't remember what they were for. We finally decided to go ahead and take them anyhow, and they did us quite a bit of good.

But the experience convinced us of the need of remedial legislation. If we can keep the legislature busy with such matters as that, it won't have time to fool with other things.

Mr. Hoover, the dispatches indicate, is going to do something about the situation at Niagara where part of the falls caved in the other day. After he has gotten through with the Wickersham report, drouth relief, Brookhart, the world court, Lucas, De Priest, the tariff on oil, General Butler, and the appropriation bills, he should be in good physical condition to tackle a relatively simple matter like Niagara.

Our oldest son came in the other day and said we would have to get him a watch. It developed that he had been elected secretary of his school club and had been informed that he must keep the minutes.

What disgusts us with General Butler is that there were so many things he might have said that would have been true.

Will Rogers got a much larger crowd here than he did at Austin. There was too much competition down there.

Compromise

To say whether they're wet or dry
The G. O. P. is loath,
So for the present it's getting by
Just being both.

When Feb. 2 arrived, Mr. Ground Hog arose, kissed his wife and children good-bye and fared out into the world to look for his shadow. Mrs. Ground Hog started crying.

"What's the matter, sweetheart?" asked Mr. Ground Hog. "I probably won't be gone but just a little while."

"I'm afraid you won't be back at all," sobbed Mrs. Ground Hog, "that same man is still president, and I just know that if you go outside somebody will nab you for meat before you get a foot from the door."

And that was why, boys and girls, the ground hog didn't come out to look for his shadow this year.

LITTLE BENNY'S NOTE BOOK

By LEE PAPE

Sattiday afternoon ma went downtown shopping me going with her, and we was in Hookbinders wawking through the station-

erry department, and ma sed, That reminds me, Heers a golden opportunity to buy myself a diary to copy my notes in I've been writing all week.

And she stopped going pass and started to look at the diaries, being all diffrent color ones with all diffrent shapes, ma saying, I wonder which color would be the most practical? Green is sippose to be very restful and mite help me to compose my memory when I settle down to rite the days histery, but on the other hand red is a more striking color and mite be better to remind me that Im keeping a diary, she sed.

Thats rite, red always reminds a bull to get mad, I sed, and ma sed, Thats a rather impolite comparison but the principal may be the same.

2 dollers, the gerl sed, and ma sed, No doubt it was 2 dollers at the beginning of the yeer, but you must remember that a whole munth has gone by wich represents just so much blank paper. You dont expect me to pay for something thats alreddy passed and still receeding into the distants, do you? she sed.

I have no authority to make reductions, madam, do you wish to speek to the floor manager? the gerl sed.

Well yes I do, ma sed. And the gerl started to yell, Mr. Simpsin, Mr. Simpsin. And pritty soon a little man with a big bald hed came up, saying, Yes yes, heer I am.

Whats wrong with it? Mr. Simpsin sed. I cant see where its damaged, he sed, and ma sed, Its not damaged, but its partly useless. If you take todays date into consideration youll realize immeeditly that all the pages from the ferst of January up until today are nuthing but relics of the passed she sed.

But madam, its surely no fault of ours if youre a month late in starting your diary, the man sed, and ma sed, Thats not the principal. The principal is that if I bawt 10 yards of silk in the silk department and the ferst 3 yards of it were missing or destroyed, would they charge me for 10 yards? If I bawt a duzzen pairs of stockings in the hosery department and the ferst 2 pairs were full of holes, would I be calmly expected to pay for a duzzen pairs? No, of corse not. Well then, I hope youre not going to tell me that the stationerry deparement izsent subject to the same rules and regulations as the silk and hosery departments, she sed.

Mr. Simpsin just shaking his hed and then scratching it, and then he sed to the gerl, All rite, Miss Greenberg, mark this diary down to a doller and 88 cents.

Thank you so much, ma sed, and

Disorders of Metabolism

The word "metabolism" simply means tissue change, and is the sum of all the physical and chemical processes by which the living organized cells produce and maintain.

The diseases of metabolism can be divided into three classes. In the first one, there is a pervision of the carbohydrate metabolism which is called diabetes. In the second, there is perversion of fat metabolism, called obesity. And in the third, there is the perversion of protein metabolism, producing gout and rheumatism. All of the diseases of this group are intimately related to one another, both chemically and clinically. Each is characterized by an inability on the part of the organism to convert sugar, fat, or albumin in a normal way.

There is such an intimate connection between the metabolic perversion in these groups that we often see combinations of diabetes and obesity, of diabetes and rheumatism, or of rheumatism and obesity, or even all three together.

In diabetes, the first important thing to do is to increase the general nutrition of the patient; secondly, to substitute protein as much as possible for the carbohydrates, and then to build up the patient's strength so that metabolism will become more perfect.

In obesity, the essential thing to do is to cut down on the quantity of food. In this way the body will be encouraged to use up its fat reserve, and a reduction of weight is bound to be produced. Starches, sugars and fats should be reduced to the minimum, and the patient must be urged to use a plentiful amount of proteins, such as meat, fish, eggs, fowl, etc. Exercise should be increased, as this will assist metabolism and, while hardening the muscular tissues, it will destroy many of the fat cells.

Where perversion of metabolism results in rheumatism, the first important thing to do is to rid the system of all the extra toxic material which has accumulated, such as the uric acid poisons, etc. This can best be accomplished through taking a strict fruit fast. The fast should be continued for a matter of weeks rather than of days if one expects to entirely free himself of the accumulated uric acid and inorganic elements that have been precipitated in certain parts of the body. After all soreness has left the tissues and joints, the diet must then be resumed very carefully, and only good combinations of foods used. One with a tendency to rheumatic diseases must not be afraid of using limited quantities of flesh foods, but must restrict himself carefully in the use of carbohydrates.

In all of these diseases of faulty metabolism, the general bodily strength must be increased by systematic physical culture exercises, and by taking long walks each day in addition to the proper dietary treatment.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Flatulence

Question: H. F. asks—"What is the cause of a person taking weak spells, as if the heart were fluttering, after eating a hearty meal?"

Answer: The weak spells are no doubt due to pressure against the heart from an overloaded stomach. Excessive stomach gas always forms after a large meal, and this adds to the discomfort and interferes with the normal heart functions.

Toasted Bread

Question: V. E. M. asks: "In case of acidosis and constipation, is melba toast superior to wholewheat bread thoroughly toasted? Would you advise combining the morning glass of water and glass of orange juice in one drink? And why, or why not?"

Answer—Real wholewheat bread if thoroughly toasted so as to become dextrinized is not as palatable as the Melba toast made of white bread. All toasted foods are constipating. If the wholewheat bread is not thoroughly toasted it is less constipating and provides more rough bulk for the intestines. If you wish to eat breakfast a half hour after taking the orange juice it is better not to add the water, for you will then have too much liquid in your stomach and this may not empty out sufficiently before breakfast.

Reducing Hips

Question: L. B. writes: "I am trying to reduce my weight. Will rolling on the floor help me to do so? What other exercises are good for large hips?"

Answer—Rolling on the floor may may help some, but the best exercise for reducing the hips is to take long walks each day, averaging about five miles daily.

IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK.—Yes, New York is a hard-boiled town . . . heedless of the other fellow trampling, shoving . . . Well, sometimes . . . And then, again.

It was just the other afternoon, when one of the coldest winds of the year was breaking all speed records. It was fairly roaring up Fifth avenue, sweeping pedestrians off their feet and pitching tempers to new highs.

At Fiftieth street and Fifty avenue, where some of the tony shops center, a sidewalk apple vendor had set up his box. He had piled a little mound of apples well above the box cover by way of display. And as he stood stomping his feet and slapping his arms in an effort to keep warm, a particularly vicious gust of wind swept around the corner and the jobless man's daily stock went tumbling into the street. Apples rolled along the sidewalk and into the gutters and into the very center of the "Avenoo."

Now the "Avenoo" in mid-afternoon is a first-rate study in congestion.

Yet, within a second, one section of the city had dropped its activities to help a poor apple vendor regather his meager stock in trade.

The traffic cop whistled on-coming motors into a sudden halt while he began picking up apples. Truckmen left their seats and joined the hunt. A gold-braided doorman from a nearby store deserted his job. A liveried chauffeur in a nearby Renault fairly vaulted from his seat to chase apples down the street. Shoppers and newsies aided, too.

It was all over in a few moments. The cop allowed traffic to resume, the doorman returned to his phony dignity, the chauffeur climbed back into his seat and the apple vendor smiled his gratitude.

And New Yorkers delight to tell you of the time a cat wandered down the elevated tracks and held up the city's affairs until the fire department arrived to fish it down. Meanwhile, all the coaxings and pursuasions of the crowd had been to no avail.

And they will tell you how the city opens its heart to every needy cause. It will make this grand gesture and that grand gesture—and when it's all over with, it will all but kill three nice old ladies in a supper-time traffic jam.

A fellow columnist who enjoys a very wide reading audience has recently accused the New York theater of suffering from high-browism and phoney culture and too much heavy thinking. A number of writers would have you believe that this offers an explanation of the theater's lethargy. They wail for dear old Al Woods' stuff.

The trouble is that statistics fail to back them up. They are wailing slightly off key and without much idea of what they are talking about. The proof lies in the fact that while a dozen mellows were going to Cain's warehouse, "Strange Interlude" was making $3,000,000. And that's what was actually collected by the drama which wore a super-highbrow brand.

And the gate receipts further show that the two first Theater guild productions, both of them in the higher key, turned the crowds away, while guild productions continue to be the sole successful road adventure of the moment. Jed Harris demonstrated that a Gorky play could run a year and Eva La Gallienne has combed the world for plays some might call "arty," and continues to pack the doors of her playhouse.

GAS LINE TO COST MILLION DOLLARS PLANNED

Surveys are now under way for two natural gas pipe lines from the Big Lake field in Reagan county. One of the lines will terminate at San Angelo and the other at the Pecos Valley Power and Light company's plant at Rio Pecos, near Garvin. Machinery to excavate the ditch is expected daily and actual construction will be under way by Feb. 1.

The two lines will cost in excess of $2,000,000. Gas will be taken from the nine of the world's deepest oil and gas producers, which have a daily yield of over 200,000,000 cubic feet of gas alone.

France plans to spend $1,500,000 during 1931 for reconstruction of roads devastated in the world war.

There is in life the seed of death.
There is in death the seed of life.
Who draws a pleasure-scented breath
Shall breathe the stifling air of strife.
All things this testimony give
We live to die, we die to live.

The sweetest joy leaves keenest pain
When comes the hour for it to go.
The tears we shed are not in vain,
From grief our loveliest memories grow.
Though strange it seems, the proof is plain,
We gain to lose; we lose to gain.

Sorrow is born of joyous love,
Laughter is freighted with a sigh.
The stars which crowd the skies above
Come not until the day goes by.
Never these countless changes cease;
From peace to pain; from pain to peace.

From weakness into strength we climb;
Age saps the strength and dulls the eye.
Who knows in our appointed time
How many different deaths we die.
All things this testimony give,
We live to die; we die to live.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—A few months ago Mr. Calvin Coolidge was invited to a meal at the White House and there were others there and there came a time when Mr. Coolidge said to Mr. Hoover:

"That's the first time anyone ever said that to the chief."

Maybe the story isn't true, but it wouldn't be passed on here if it didn't come from a pretty good source.

Such a story comes to mind as one reflects on Mr. Hoover and his present position, especially with regard to his troubles with congress and the report that he made the Wickersham commission abandon its intention to recommend a revision of the 18th amendment.

It becomes more and more obvious that Mr. Hoover is only happy when he can boss the show with undisputed power. That doesn't mean that he is just "bossy" in any offensive sense. It is a fundamental belief of his, which he has expressed, that responsibility in operating a project should be centered on one man and that there should be no division of authority.

Naturally, a balky senate which refuses to cooperate with the administration to the point of obeying its wishes appears to him to present a snag in what otherwise would be the efficient operation of government. He has always been impatient with those who disagreed with him and, although loyal and valuable to his superiors when he has had superiors, has achieved his principal successes in such cases as he has held dictatorship over the particular field of effort.

That's one reason why it has come about that Mr. Hoover regards the senate with increasing hatred and the senate has returned the sentiment in kind.

Outside congress Mr. Hoover reigns with undisputed authority. Wickersham, supposed to be the chairman of an unprejudiced, deliberative body which was expected to give an uninfluenced report on prohibition and other problems in law enforcement, has been regarded by some as Hoover's messenger boy.

The president got Wickersham, in the commission's early days, to jam through a preliminary prohibition report and some suggested enforcement measures before the commission had a chance to take a good look at prohibition. The recent charge that the president had dictated alteration of its final conclusions and recommendations came as a jolt to nearly everyone, but nevertheless the president seems to get what he wants outside of congress as well as the fact that he dominates the government and all its branches wherever there is no constitutional division of authority.

The instance of the Wickersham commission is not an isolated one. It was Mr. Hoover who promoted and endorsed the eastern railroad consolidation, bringing obvious pressure to bear on the Interstate Commerce commission whose members are presidentially appointed but which is supposed to reach its conclusions with entire independence. His wishes were carried into effect when the new power commission fired Solicitor Russell and Chief Accountant King. He was thought to be behind the steam roller at the child health conference which tried to get child health work away from the children's bureau and into the U. S. public health service. The Red Cross has been showing that it responded completely to his influence. The cabinet, some of its own members privately admit, has become a group of White House servants who no longer presume to advise the president at their regular meetings. Mr. Hoover, it appears, sometimes seeks information but never advice.

Whether public opinion will eventually be found largely in support of Mr. Hoover and his theory of the executive power is an interesting matter for speculation. The country has no great love for congress, but the business depression has made it more than ordinarily difficult for the president to attract sympathy and aid. Both Hoover and his congressional opponents are doing their utmost to sell their sides of the case to the people.

Power Issue and Prohibition Will Divide Voters in 1932 Campaign in Four Groups in Each Major Party

By MARK SULLIVAN
(Copyright, 1931, by New York Herald Tribune)

The aim of this article is to discuss prohibition (Will the reader please withhold his brick for a moment?) Prohibition, that is, in a single aspect—prohibition in its relation to the presidential campaign next year.

SULLIVAN

As it happens, however, prohibition is not going to be the only issue. Prohibition is going to figure powerfully in every phase of the presidential year, in the choice of the presidential candidates of both parties, in the ensuing campaign and election between them—and in the possibility of a third party. But there will be another issue, almost as potent to determine the outcome as prohibition itself. Consequently we shall be obliged to consider the coming presidential campaign, now already simmering, on a broader basis.

Two of the less appealing traits of journalism are to use superlatives, and to indulge in prophecy. Less of both practices would work to the improvement of newspapers. Both these injunctions would be violated by saying that the presidential election next year gives greater promise of very mixed conditions than any other in recent times. There is hint of not only "a third party" but, so to speak, two or three or more third parties.

To anticipate third parties is likewise a trait of both newspapers and the public. Third parties are predicted more often than they actually turn up. Yet the fact is that fairly formidable third parties do turn up, speaking roughly, in about one election out of every four. The last one, LaFollette's third party in 1924, was formidable; it cast 17 per cent of the total vote. The one preceding, Roosevelt's third party in 1912, was even more formidable. It cast 29 per cent of the total vote and actually eclipsed the Republican party, carrying six states to the Republican party's two small states, Vermont and Utah. Sixteen years preceding that, in 1896, the gold Democratic party, offshoot of the regular Democrats who had gone free-silver, had historic importance.

Here are three really formidable third parties within 35 years, to say nothing of the smaller third parties that we have always with us, the Socialists, the Communists, or their kin.

To consider the intimidations now plainly simmering of third parties in 1932, we may begin by surveying briefly the whole situation. The 1932 presidential election, as it appears at this time, will be dominated by a trinity of abstractions—by two issues and one condition. The condition is prosperity. The issues are prohibition and power.

The condition we can readily dispose of. If prosperity is back or plainly on its way back, that will help the Republicans. If we are still uneasily conscious of depression, if the depression or its aftermath is still vivid enough to cause a mood of discomfort among considerable masses of voters, that will help the Democrats. The condition of prosperity, however, has comparatively little relation to the probability of third parties—except that economic discomfort in the nation gives rise to a mood which tends to welcome political adventure.

The issues, prohibition and power, are two. But the number of potential third parties for which two issues may provide incentive, is a considerable mathematical combination.

In the combination are six factors, six sectors of political thought demanding to express themselves in the election. There are, first of all, the two parties, Republican and Democrat. Then there are the two sides of prohibition and the two sides of the power question.

In attempting to classify the groups arising out of these factors one must first define the two sides of the power issue. We shall have to speak of one side as those who believe in government ownership and—or (as the legal documents put it) government operation. The other side we shall have to speak of as those who believe in private ownership and private operation. These definitions are neither wholly exact nor wholly just, but they are the best we can achieve in the brevity here imposed.

The possible groups of voters—indeed the actual groups, already existing today are:

Dry private-ownership Republicans,
Wet private-ownership Republicans,
Dry public-ownership Republicans,
Wet public-ownership Republicans.

In addition there are:
Dry private-ownership Democrats,
Wet private-ownership Democrats,
Dry government-ownership Democrats,
Wet government-ownership Democrats.

Each of these eight groups has its own type of favorite for the presidential nomination. We can list them:

Then, among the Democrats:

Wet, government-ownership Democrats would be satisfied with Gov. Franklin Roosevelt of New York. (And they now seem likely to get him, though this situation is very much subject to change.) Wet government - ownership Democrats would be equally satisfied with ex-Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York.

Out of the eight groups of voters, four Republican and four Democratic, it is obvious that at least six are going to be dissatisfied with the presidential nominations that will actually be made by the two major parties. The degree of dissatisfaction on the part of some of the groups will be extremely bitter, plentifully powerful to produce third parties. It is a rather safer guess about the coming presidential year than about any other recent one, to say that there will be at least one third party, and there may be more.

The impulse toward a third party is going to come rather more from the power issue than from the prohibition one. However, let us approach the matter of a third party from a different angle.

Let us approach the whole situation from the standpoint of the party now in power. The Republicans will be dry—perhaps, absolutely dry, and almost certainly drier than the Democrats; the Republicans will be for private ownership, and the Republicans will renominate President Hoover.

With this program some groups within the Republican party will be dissatisfied. Their dissatisfaction, however, will not be sufficient to prevent the renomination of Mr. Hoover. Wet Republicans will think about Senator Dwight Morrow, of New Jersey, and will long to nominate him—but Senator Morrow will have no traffic with them. The Republican national convention will end with a dry platform with a private ownership platform ("no government in business") and with Mr. Hoover as the nominee.

Thereafter there will arise the question whether one of the dissenting Republican groups will nominate a third candidate. One of them almost certainly will.

It is not the wet Republicans who will be most likely to start a third party. The reason is that the wet Republicans will have another place to go—they can go to the Democratic party, for the Democratic nominee in all probability will be wet.

Let us consider the probable course of the Democrats. The Democrats will meet and they will quarrel. They will quarrel as violently as they did in 1924. They may quarrel as violently as they did in 1896, when there were two Democratic parties, the silver one and the gold one. The Democratic convention will open with Gov. Franklin Roosevelt—wet and public ownership—having more delegates by far than any other one candidate. But Governor Roosevelt will not have the necessary two-thirds. (That fatal two-thirds rule that makes battle and slaughter so likely and so frequent in Democratic national conventions.) The dry Democratic delegates from the South and from the rural sections of northern states will oppose the nomination of Governor Roosevelt—certainly they will hesitate about accepting any wet. They will demand the nomination of Senator Robinson of Arkansas, or of ex-Governor Byrd, of Virginia (brother of the southern polar explorer. Explorer Admiral Byrd is almost as much a political asset as his brother, ex-Governor Byrd, as aviator Lindbergh is of his father-in-law, Senator Dwight Morrow.)

After the dry Democrats have resisted the nomination of wet Democrat Roosevelt, through a gruelling number of ballots, attempts at compromise will be made—compromise on Owen D. Young or on Newton D. Baker, or on some other possibility at present little mentioned.

In the course of the commotion in the Democratic convention, some robust voiced enthusiast is certain to shout the name of Alfred E. Smith, and for a time at least there will be a stampede toward Smith—a stampede which may or may not be successful—but which certainly will add to the commotion.

What will be the outcome of the Democratic convention no man can tell. The outcome may be Governor Roosevelt. It may be ex-Governor Smith. It may be something else, something very eccentric and unanticipated. In any survey made 17 months in advance, we are limited merely to saying that the Democratic nominee is likely to be a wet, government-ownership man.

All that has been said so far suggests that two groups of voters may be satisfied by the two presidential nominations of the major parties. Dry, private ownership Republicans will be satisfied with the renomination of President Hoover. Wet, government ownership Democrats will be satisfied with the nomination, if it should turn out that way, of Governor Roosevelt of New York or ex-Governor Smith of New York.

Assuming these two outcomes in the two major parties, a very considerable number of voters is going to be either less than half satisfied or totally dissatisfied. These are the voters in both parties who at one and the same time are dry on prohibition and government ownership on power.

If you wish to visualize this group to see it personified, consider for example, Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, and the considerable following he has. Not that Senator Norris will be the candidate of the third party—he is too old and is otherwise handicapped. The candidate of the third party will be another. But Senator Norris is the perfect personification of the voters—and there are many—who will want a third candidate. As respects party, Senator Norris is of both parties and of neither—both Republican and Democratic; and neither Republican nor Democratic. As respects prohibition Senator Norris is dry. As respects power, he is almost morbidly hostile to the private interests.

To satisfy voters of this type, there is the makings of a third party—and the predestined candidate of it is Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania. Governor Pinchot is the outstanding forthright, uncompromising exponent of extreme dryness on prohibition, and of bitter antipathy to the private power interests.

Governor Pinchot will attract and solicit Republicans who are dry, but differ from Mr. Hoover on power. Similarly, Governor Pinchot will attract and solicit Democrats who are for public ownership, but at the same time want to be dry on prohibition. Pursuing one issue, he will denounce the Republican candidate for being wrong on power; pursuing another, he will denounce the Democratic candidate for being wrong on prohibition. (It will be Republicans, who Pinchot will most attract, and it will be Republican candidate to whom he will do the most harm.)

It should be said again that the phrases "government ownership" and "private ownership" are merely rough designations, both for the groups of voters and candidates to whom the phrases are applied in this article. They are used here merely as the best brief phrases available. There is a third ground about power. It consists of private ownership modified by very strong governmental regulation. This third position is the attitude of many Republicans about power. It is possible, before the presidential election comes, the Republicans may have enacted or may have embarked upon, or may adopt in their platform, this third ground. This however, would only slightly effect what is said in this article on the whole subject.

The STORY of SUE
© 1931 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

Sue nodded as Jack told her that he must see her mother alone. She wondered what he wanted to find out, but she didn't have time to ask any questions. The detectives, followed by Mrs. Merryman, had arrived in the furnace room.

"Hello. Warming things up?" the man who was spokesman asked. "We don't want to interfere with you, but we have a little investigating to do. We might as well start right here.

"Surely. Go right ahead," Jack agreed, in an easy, nonchalant voice. "Do you mind if we go upstairs? My hands aren't any too clean after close association with the coal bin."

Sue tried to keep her eyes from Jack's. She knew that there was fight in them and also that she was being watched. She didn't want the detectives to intercept any glances.

Jack's gray eyes were smoldering and his mouth was tight. She knew that he was angry at the close watch which the men were keeping. She had recognized their type at once. The arrogant detective, who tries to be sociable, without letting the people forget for one minute that he wears a badge and represents the law.

Sue, meantime, was trying to get the men away from her mother so Jack could ask his question, but her ruse didn't work. The men seemed to think that they had three prisoners who needed watching.

The front door opened suddenly and Corrinne came in. One glance told her what was happening and she sat down in a low chair and eyed the men coolly.

She hadn't been there more than two minutes when the doorbell rang again and a messenger boy handed in a long, gray-green floral box.

"Better be careful or I'll have you up for contempt of the law," the man answered.

Corrinne laughed lightly and a dozen little bells rang with silvery mockery. "If you're the law then I'm of the opinion that it should be held in contempt."

Mrs. Merryman's face grew puzzled as she read it. Then she handed it to Jack, while Sue and Corrinne looked over his shoulders to see. They read the words,

"With deepest sympathy, Sybil Lester."

For a startled second no one spoke. Then Corrinne made a mad dash for the roses and started to tear the red petals apart quickly, savagely.

"Oh, I hate her, I hate her! She's back of all of this and then to send flowers. The . . . thieving hpyocrite."

The detective had leaned over and read the card. His voice was suave, yet greedy. "Do I understand that that is an accusation, Mrs. Becker?"

MRS. CREIGHTON WILL ADDRESS BEN FRANKLIN

"Founders Day" will be celebrated when members of Ben Franklin P.-T. A. meet at the school Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock with Mrs. Frank Creighton, president of the 13th district P.-T. A., giving an address on "Fulfillment of a Dream."

A patriotic program will be given by pupils of the school and the school orchestra will furnish music. it has been announced. Mesdames H. Lesley, G. R. Burch and D. L. Hill will be hostesses and in a social meeting to be held following the program, sponsors will be hostesses to the association.

Scene from "The Painted Desert," with Helen Twelvetrees, Bill Boyd and William Farnum, coming to the State for that theater's anniversary next Thursday.

'The Princess and the Plumber' at Majestic With Charles Farrell and Maureen O'Sullivan, Irish Colleen

With a picturesque principality as its setting and Alice Duer Miller's well known comedy romance as its theme, "The Princess and the Plumber" introduces two noted players in their first picture together at the Majestic, where this charming film opened Saturday and will continue through Tuesday.

Both Farrell and Miss O'Sullivan are to be commended for their work in the romantic leads as the princess and the plumber, while H. B. Warner and Louise Closser Hale are fine in their parts. However, the comic acting honors go to Joseph Cawthorn as the village jack of all offices. The other members of the cast keep their work on the same high level.

To complete the program and offer the proper variety, there is a clever comedy featuring George Sidney and Charlie Murray in a Western farce, "Discontented Cowboys." There is also another of those novelty subjects entitled "Strange as It Seems." The Majestic talking news contains many interesting subjects, among them being scenes of Will Rogers starting his drive for the Red Cross.

"The Gang Buster"

Up-to-the-minute fun-farce, with Jack Oakie's wisecracks permeating the action, will entertain patrons of the Majestic Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. "The Gang Buster" is the smart crack at American gangdom in which the contagious comic of "Sap From Syracuse" and "The Social Lion" lets loose with laughs.

"The Gang Buster" turns big city racketeering into a joyous jamboree of laugh moments, and swirls the big guns of the underworld around a pretty little romance that manages to fight its way out of a series of breath-taking action scenes. Jean Arthur takes her place as the sweetheart of "America's Joy-Friend" in "The Gang Buster," and William Boyd, recently seen with Gary Cooper in "The Spoilers" and George Bancroft in "Derlict," has the chief menace role. Francis MacDonald, the suave, likeable villain of many successful hits, is seen in another menace part.

There will be other features that will be equally entertaining such as another of those Rolling Stone novelties entitled "In the Mountains." These subjects are in natural color and introduce many pleasing and entertaining songs. Johnny Weismuller, the world's greatest swimmer, is starred with Stubby Kruger in a screen presentation that is novel and different. There will also be a screen song, "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now."

"Scandal Sheet"

In a characterization akin to his "Wolf of Wall Street," George Bancroft fists, thumps and thunders his way through the fast action, dynamic-drama episodes of his newest picture "Scandal Sheet," which will come to the Majestic on Saturday for a four-day engagement.

"Scandal Sheet" shows him as a ruthless managing editor of a tabloid newspaper, a killer of reputations, a slayer of ideals, a juggernaut who smothers all in his path, in the name of the great god News. His credo is "If it's news it gets printed, no matter whom it hurts." After a series of events in which Bancroft stops at nothing to get choice morsels of news before the public, he at last becomes ensared in a "yarn" of his own making.

In addition to Clive Brook and Kay Francis, the support includes Gilbert Emery, Regis Toomery and Lucien Littlefield.

State Has Anniversary Thursday Will Feature 'The Painted Desert' Cohens and Kellys Now Showing

Easily the outstanding screen achievement of those celebrated funsters, Charlie Murray and George Sidney, "The Cohens and Kellys in Africa," is now playing at the State theater. Murray and Sidney are seen at their best; they are a perfect comedy team, and their antics seldom fail to produce a maximum number of laughs. Their screen wives, Vera Gordon and Kate Price, are always to be considered in any comment on the Cohens and Kellys. They give excellent performances and add many delightful bits to the rapid-fire comedy of the production.

The riotous comedy introduces Cohen and Kelly as piano manufacturers whose business is at the point of ruin because of a shortage of real ivory for their piano keys. They meet a pseudo explorer who paints a glowing picture of veritable mountains of ivory in Africa, and decide to finance an expedition to the "Dark Continent" with the explorer "Windjammer Thorn" as leader. The screen play follows their escapades from the time they leave the boat at Mombasa, over the Veldt and through the jungles until their departure from a sheik's harem for the United States.

The State will celebrate its first anniversary next Thursday with "The Painted Desert" featuring Bill Boyd, Helen Twelvetrees, and William Farnum. A year ago the State opened in Wichita Falls with "In Old Arizona" as the first attraction.

Packed with dynamic drama, thrills and romance, "The Painted Desert," will justify itself as the picture with which to celebrate the State's first anniversary. A more virile and dramatic story than this picture has never been filmed. The theme is admirable developed and generously invested with pulsating adventure and swift-moving action, seasoned throughout with romance and comedy relief. The plot is marked by interest compelling drama that reaches spectacular heights and is culminated in an exciting and effective climax. It brings to the screen for the first time backgrounds that had never been seen by man until a little more than a year ago. Dinosaur canyon, located on the Indian reservation in Arizona, forms the remarkable setting for much of the action.

The story concerns a feud between two old Arizona pioneers and the romance of their children. The stampede of a herd of five hundred cattle and a death-defying race of 20-mule teams are only a part of the blood-tingling incidents that help raise the drama to a high pitch.

The program also includes Oswald the Rabbit in "Mexico," chapter five of that thrilling mystery serial, "The Phantom of the West," and Graham McNamee in the Universal talking news.

Clara Bow in 'No Limit' Featured Strand Theater Through Thursday Richard Dix in 'Cimarron' Coming

Two of Paramount's best liked comedians, the slow witted, drawling Stuart Erwin, and the excitable, clever Harry Green, supply many hilarious moments in the new Clara Bow picture, "No Limit," which opened at the Strand Friday and continues through Thursday.

It is Stuart Erwin, who innocently enough, gives or rather lends his Park Avenue apartment to Clara Bow. Stuart has to go away for a while so he gives Clara the keys and tells her to make herself at home. And Clara does. But she makes the discovery that Stuart's apartment is a notorious gambling house and that all the people who come there mistake her for the new owner and operator of the house. At first Clara does not know what to do until she meets young Douglas Thayer, a suave young man who is attentive to her. Clara decides to stay on and see what happens. But before doing this she calls on Harry Green, manager in the theater in which she worked, to come to the apartment and watch over her. Of course Harry Green is hardly a help. As a matter of fact he makes a mess of things. But Clara paying little or no attention to Harry Green elopes with Thayer.

Several weeks later she finds out that her husband is a famous crook when, quite by chance, she sees him and his gang pull a sensational hold-up. To complicate matters, Stuart Erwin arrives on the scene eager to lend a helping hand. As you can well imagine, Stuart Erwin, like Harry Green, is no help. Anyhow the picture's action is worked up to a splendid dramatic climax that is at once convincing and different.

On the same program is a delightful comedy, "Girls Will Be Boys," Gina Milo recent star of "Sons o' Guns" in a talking act, and the latest edition of the Paramount news.

"Cimarron"

Edna Ferber's celebrated novel, "Cimarron," has been dramatized on the talking screen, and with Richard Dix in the role of the militant, God fearing, truth loving, pioneer Yancey Cravat, will be shown at the Strand next Friday. Also prominently cast in this stirring and beautiful screen play are Irene Dunne, a charming newcomer to the screen; Estelle Taylor, George Stone, Stanley Fields and William Collier Jr.

As Yancey Cravat, in whose giant frame is strength and courage, and in whose heart is the longing for adventure, Richard Dix creates his most important role. The Yancey Cravat of Richard Dix is an unforgettable portrayal, one of those lasting characterizations seen all too rarely in the theater. And Irene Dunne, as Yancey's beautiful wife who carries on when her husband seeks new lands and new conquests, is convincing and sincere in a fine role, her first in talking pictures.

'SCOTLAND YARD' AT GEM FEATURES EDMUND LOWE

Edmund Lowe's dual role in Scotland Yard," his latest Fox Movietone success which will be shown at the Gem theater Sunday for three days, is a splendid example of the kind of work he likes to do. In this picture he is seen as a master criminal, in officer's uniform, business suits and faultless evening dress; yet it is the strong characterizations and tense situations that make his acting superb, not the clothes he wears. This despite the fact he has made outstanding successes in each of these modes of dress.

Joan Bennett, whose rise to popularity has been marked by eight notable productions during her first two years in Hollywood, is seen in the leading feminine role opposite Lowe. Barbara Leonard, Donald Crisp, Lumsden Hare, David Torrence and Halliwell Hobbes compose the distinguished supporting cast.

'True Forever' to Promise She Made Dying Sweetheart

CHICAGO, Jan. 31. (AP)—This story goes back to the time when love letters were kept in rosewood boxes.

In those days John Halsted and Ida Frances Gibson were engaged and vowed they would remain faithful to one another "until death do us part." John died in 1900 before they could be married, but Ida reached his side an hour before and said "yes" to his request that she be "true forever." Ida Gibson died the other day in San Diego, Calif., and her body was cremated.

Yesterday John's grave, undisturbed through all the years, was opened. In it they placed the ashes of Ida Gibson. Then they closed it again.

HERE AND THERE ON THE RADIO WAVES

BRILLIANT STARS OF METROPOLITAN TO SING SUNDAY

Two of the youngest and most brilliant stars of the Metropolitan Opera company, Aida Doninelli, soprano, and George Cehanovsky, baritone, will present the program of the Atwater Kent radio hour with the Atwater Kent concert orchestra, directed by Josef Pasternack, Sunday evening, Feb. 1, at 8:15 p. m. over WFAA-WBAP. Both of these artists have been heard in other Atwater Kent seasons and each has been greeted with many letters of request for more of his programs.

Miss Doninelli, a native of Guatamala, of Italian parents, was educated and received her early musical training in Chicago, where her family has lived since she was a child. Six months after making her debut as a concert artist in Chicago she was placed under contract by the Metropolitan Opera company and sang 28 performances with that organization her first season.

George Cehanovsky, the young Russian baritone who has been singing leading opera roles for the Metropolitan company five years, has the distinction of having learned to be an opera singer at his mother's knee. He rather proudly proclaims that the only vocal training he had was given him by his mother, Mme. Sofia Cehanovsky, who was professor of voice in the St. Petersburg conservatory.

The son was not specifically trained to be an opera singer however. Rather, it was the intention of his parents that he should be a naval officer and he was educated for that purpose and served in the czar's navy during the war as a lieutenant and lieutenant commander. Necessity was the real discoverer of his voice and Constantinople, Turkey, where he and his mother had fled after the revolution in Russia, the place of discovery. Since then he has been singing in all parts of the world and for the last eight years—beginning two years after his debut—he has been almost exclusively an opera and concert star in America.

Bizet's "Carmen" will provide both artists with their introductory numbers in the Atwater Kent radio hour of Feb. 1. Mme. Doninelli will sing the aria composed for Micaela, "Nothing Shall Deter Me," which critics claim is one of the most exquisite compositions of Bizet for the voice. Cehanovsky will be heard in the famous "Toreador" song. Each of the artists will have a group of concert numbers and folk tunes and they will be heard in the duet from "Tales of Hoffmann' known as the "Barcarolle."

Composer 'Road To Mandalay' to Give Broadcast

Oley Speaks who gained an international reputation by setting Kipling's "Road to Mandalay" to music will be guest of the Happy Wonder Bakers Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock through station WEAF. He will tell how he happened to compose the music to the famous poem, which incidentally, had been set to music many times before Mr. Speaks prepared his version. Mr. Speaks also will tell the "inside story" of another of his most popular members—"Sylvia." In honor of the guest, both these numbers will be included on the Happy Wonder Bakers' program. Phil Dewey, baritone, will sing "On the Road to Mandalay" and "The Singing Violins" will play "Sylvia." Mr. Speaks will be introduced by Sigmund Spaeth, who a few weeks ago joined this program in the role of a glorified master of ceremonies.

Early in the program Mr. Spaeth will present one of his novelties. This week he calls it "A Singing Lesson" and he will be aided in the stunt by the trio. Incidentally, Mr. Spaeth has announced that the trick is one that can be performed in any home where there are four people. Beyond that he declined to disclose what it was.

He did, however, go on to say that before the program was over he would prove with the aid of Frank Black and the Happy Wonder Bakers orchestra plus the trio that music definitely was food for thought. For this Frank Black has arranged a medley of songs about things to eat and drink—"Roast Beef of Old England," "She Was Bred in Old Kentucky" (Spaeth admits he almost gagged on that piece) "Tea for Two," "Bake That Chicken Pie," "A Cup of Coffee, a Sandwich and You," and for dessert, "Yes, We Have No Bananas."

In addition to these three spots on the broadcast there'll be a number of others. The orchestra with a vocal trio interlude will play "I Know That You Know" from Vincent Youmans' "Oh, Please." The Happy Wonder Bakers will sing "Ida" which the soft shoe stepping Eddie Leonard made famous over the country. And to close the program there will be an ensemble of "Hittin' the Ceiling" from "Broadway."

RICHIE CRAIG JR. TO GIVE RADIO PROGRAMS BEGINNING FEBRUARY 3

Richie Craig Jr., Broadway master of ceremonies who has appeared extensively in vaudeville and the "talkies," will be heard weekly over WABC and the Columbia Broadcasting system in a series of programs beginning Tuesday, Feb. 3, from 9:15 to 9:30 p. m., central standard time. The series will be sponsored by the Premier Malt Sales company.

At 27 Craig is one of the best known wits on Broadway. He has written 15 vaudeville acts and has contributed material to numerous musical comedies and night club entertainers. During his theatrical career he has appeared in "Betty Lee," "Dear Sir," "The Ramblers" and other productions. As a master of ceremonies he has thrice toured the country.

Craig entered show business when only 12. His first part was that of a dancer in the road show of a musical comedy but he soon added songs and chatter for a vaudeville "single" act.

HERO OF SPANISH WAR TO BE GUEST ON KGKO PROGRAM

Putting out in an open boat under direct enemy fire to sever cables linking Spain with Cuba won that most coveted of American naval decorations—the medal of honor—for a handful of men, one of whom, Herbert L. Foss, is to be featured this week in the "Chevrolet Chronicles" program over KGKO on Tuesday, Feb. 3, at 8 p. m.

The incident followed the break with Spain at the start of the Spanish-American war, and made imperative the severing of communication between Spanish troops on Cuban soil with their homeland. Foss at that time was a seaman aboard the cruiser "Marblehead" assigned to Cuban waters.

A strong force of Spanish troops guarded the Cuban cable base, and to sever the communication cables two launches put in toward the coral beach under a hail of hostile gunfire from the shore. Unequipped to return the fire, the launches pushed on into the stream of lead to shallow water offshore, and there dropped grappling irons overboard to dredge the ocean floor for the cable lines.

Sections 15 feet long were cut out of each of two cables before the launches put back to the gunboats. Each launch carried 15 men and an officer so that, as fast as casualties resulted, new men could be rushed into the work. So perilous was the task that volunteers were called for, instead of men being assigned to the duty.

Among the first volunteers was Foss, now a civilian worker in the naval ammunition factory at Hingham, Mass. He will tell his story before the microphone to Frazier Hunt, international journalistic figure. Frank Black and Gustave Haenschen will arrange and direct musical numbers completing the half hour of entertainment.

Before the Mike

Mary Charles, she of the red tresses whose sweet soprano you hear over CBS, lives in a nice steam-heated apartment. But she turns off the heat in the dead of winter and lounges around in her pajamas. Draw you own conclusion!

From the hustling life of a cowboy on western prairies and that of a sports writer, iron miner and champion swimmer, Roger Krupp has jumped to the talkative existence of a radio announcer. Krupp is now at KSTP, St. Paul, handling the mike there at numerous program presentations. When he's not announcing he's writing and drawing.

Home gardening, NBC-WEAF, Wednesdays at 10:15 a. m., eastern standard time.

Andre Baruch, newest CBS announcer, was on his way to fame as an artist. He was born in Paris, the city of artists, and was brought up to lead the life of palette and gown. But radio, Andre thought, offered him a better chance of expression. Then, too, perhaps the fact that a radio announcer eats more regularly than an artist had something to do with it.

Al Llewelyn, CBS funny man, formerly slaved in a steel mill at Pittsburgh and Newark, N. J. He met Bradford Browne in a boarding house in the latter city and the two have teamed together ever since. They're heard as a team over the Columbia chain.

Studio notes: Bradley Kincaid, who has been the old standby of WLW, Chicago, has taken his "old houn' dawg guitar" and moved to WLW, Cincinnati. . . . William "Pinkie" Day, Pacific coast vaudeville star, is now staff announcer for KEX, Portland, Ore., and the Northwest Broadcasting System. . . . WBAL, Baltimore, has imported a tenor all the way from Sweden. He is Nils Falkman.

One of the youngest and most colorful men in radio musical circles today is Josef Koestner, 30, who conducts a band of musicians at the NBC Chicago studios. Koestner was born in Bavaria and received his education at the University of Leipsig. He studied music under great German and other European masters. He is a conductor, soloist and composer. He's preparing a symphony in the modern mode.

NEW SERIES LA PALINA PROGRAMS STARTS SOON

A new series of La Palina programs to be known as "Daddy and Rollo," will have its premiere over the WABC-Columbia network, Tuesday, Feb. 3, from 6:45 to 7 p. m., central standard time, and subsequently will be heard every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the same time. "Daddy and Rollo" replaces "La Palina Smoke Dreams" hitherto presented every Wednesday night.

J. P. McEvoy, whose humorous stories have appeared in nationally circulated magazines and in book and play form, is the author of the 15-minute script acts. Among McEvoy's better known titles are "Show Girl," "Show Girl in Hollywood," "The Potters" and "Mister Noodle."

ABE MARTIN ON SPLITTIN' UP

Are we treatin' marriage too lightly? Ther's gittin' t' be too much experimentin' with wedlock, seemin'ly too many couples are gettin' married jest t' git away from one another. Folks used t' make th' best o' marriage, an' would often exhaust ever' known means t' hang t'gether rather'n make a fizzle out of it. But we believe lovers o' yisterday sparked with a keener understandin' o' what they wuz gittin' into. Generally in th' ole days a young man had a home prepared, or at least a trade, or some prospects. He counted longer and wuz more critical, an' usually had a fair idea 'o' th' sort a girl he wuz gittin'. An' young ladies cast about more seriously, bein' careful t' land a real producer instead of a mere well groomed pool player. They had no jobs t' fall back on if they made a mess o' things, an' returnin' home t' roost wuz considered more or less a disgrace. T'day a young couple 'll be goin' along seemin'ly swimmin'ly an' suddenly decide t' split up jest like a couple o' fellers in th' grocery business. Ther seems t' be a mutual understandin' among some couples t' stay married till it gits on ther nerves, while others seem t' understand that each is not t' bother or interfere with th' other. They sail along smoothly in opposite directions, only meetin' at home occasionally while dollin' up. Sometimes these pleasure lovin' light weight couples have a child or two t' be chased up till ther ole enough t' stick in a boardin' school. Sometimes they're taught th' way in which they should go by a $7 maid. Th' trouble is t'day that ther's so many opportunities open t' girls an' women that they kin hardly afford t' stay married, an' rents an' maids are so high that young husbands soon break an' grow dull an' uninterestin' under th' strain. It's purty hard fer a young couple t' marry an' be suddenly cut off from all th' fun that's going on t'day. T' be sure they try it, an' try hard, but soon give up an' then th' split comes. Then they're both right back in th' swim. She's workin' agin, an' he reasons that th' world's full o' other girls. O' course where there's a pile o' money or property involved, or th' domestic trouble takes th' shape of a triangle, th' splitup hain't so quiet an' orderly. Often ther's bitter litigation, hard feelin' an' shootin'. But a marriage where ther hain't nothin' at stake save stayin' married is liable t' bust up any time jest like any enterprise with nothin' behind it.

Two souls with but a single thought.

SILAS MARNER TO BE DRAMATIZED IN RADIO BROADCAST

When the dramatization of "Silas Marner" goes on the air at 1:30 p. m., central standard time, Wednesday, Feb. 4, it will mark the first anniversary of the American School of the Air. This series of educational broadcasts, the first correlated schedule ever to be presented on a network of stations, has reached schools from Atlantic seaboard to the Pacific coast and from Canada to Mexico.

With the presentation of "Columbus" on Feb. 4, 1930, the Columbia Broadcasting system opened its initial experiment in school broadcasting. Since that time 95 especially constructed programs representing more than 3,000 station hours—have been presented under the guidance of educational authorities.

These programs, going now to a 44-station network, have consisted of literary and history dramatizations, debates, music appreciation periods, programs on art, health, civics, nature study, international goodwill and vocational guidance. Each program has been arranged to make sure that it will be within the comprehension of children in the grades for which it is intended, and sufficient subjects have been included in the curriculum to cover pupils in the elementary and intermediate grades, as well as those in junior and senior high schools.

Hoover to Lead Nation in Paying Lincoln Homage

President Hoover will lead the nation's homage to Abraham Lincoln in a talk from the capitol at 9 p. m., eastern standard time, Feb. 12, the birthday of the Great Emancipator. Mr. Hoover's address will be broadcast over a nation-wide Columbia network.

The president will speak from the Lincoln study on the second floor of the White House; the room Lincoln used as his office. The west wing of the executive mansion which now houses the office activities of the president and his staff, had not then been built.

Four chairs and a desk remain of the original furniture in the room, and the Columbia microphone will be placed on the desk used by the martyred president. The room now serves President Hoover as a study where he works and reads after the executive offices have been closed.

The president's address on this occasion is expected to be an important pronouncement, as the White House has announced that his talk will consume most of the half hour period set aside for the broadcast.

MORTON DOWNEY SIGNS COLUMBIA CONTRACT TO GIVE RADIO PROGRAMS

Morton Downey, tenor, who is now heard in eight song recitals weekly from his Club Delmonico and the Columbia studios, has affixed his signature to a long-term contract with the Columbia broadcasting system, it was announced today by Jules Seebach, director of program operations. Under the agreement the broadcasting company will arrange for all of Downey's professional appearances, including radio, stage and motion picture engagements.

Beginning with a single weekly broadcast early last December, emanating from the supper club, Downey's singing was received with such response that two additional programs were scheduled. Subsequently, he was given several 7 o'clock, p. m., studio programs. More were added until at present the tenor appears on five studio programs weekly in addition to three presentations from his Club Delmonico.

Downey is arranging to sing requested numbers and as his broadcasting includes an average of 40 songs weekly, many dial-twisters will have an opportunity to hear their favorite.

Ice two inches thick will hold a man on foot, four inches a man on horseback, and from six to eight inches a team of horses with loads.

Fashion Showings in Paris Will Be Described Over Mike for American Women by Famous French Designer

Paris fashion showings will be described to American women in an international broadcast next Friday at almost the same time couturiers are presenting their spring models in the style center of the world. On Feb. 6, at 10 p. m., eastern standard time, Capt. Edward Molyneux will broadcast over WABC and other stations of the Columbia network, direct from his Paris salon, giving a first hand account of what the well dressed woman will wear for spring.

Although still a young man, Captain Molyneux is an outstanding figure in the world of fashion. Early in his youth, he displayed his genius by designing attire for dolls. Before he was 20 he was chief assistant to Lady Duff-Gordon in her Parisian house of Lucille and after the war, he opened his own studios on the Rue Royale.

Unique in his manner of creating a dress, Captain Molyneux says, "I design a dress, not for its own sake, but for an occasion. I close my eyes and visualize a woman at Ciro's or the Ritz, watch her coming through the tables or moving on the dance floor and see every line of the gown she needs. Then, on a mannequin of her type, bring the vision to reality. My evening gowns are not too tight for dancing; I make coats with bridge clothes. I do not show afternoon frocks at Deauville or Cannes, because at resorts, women wear only sports clothes and evening gowns. I stress the practical wearability of my models."

The couturier will be presented to the Columbia audience by Edna Woolman Chase, editor in chief of Vogue, and will be followed by Michel de Brunhoff, editor of French Vogue who will report the Paris openings.

Characteristic of the program, Guy Lombardo's orchestra will play music suggestive of Paris boulevards and cafes and complete the half hour program which will be the first of a series of Peter Pan Forecasts sponsored by Henry Glass & Co.

Columbia System Appoints Advisory Board to Aid in Improving Quality Of Radio Programs Given Listeners

Creation of a program advisory board composed of Domenico Savino, Toscha Seidel, Howard Barlow and Freddie Rich was announced today by Julius F. Seebach, director of program operations for the Columbia Broadcasting system.

Through the new board the program staff will have available the expert advice of veteran musicians in its continued effort to raise the standards of Columbia broadcasts.

"Each man selected for membership in the advisory board," Seebach said, "is eminently qualified in his respective field.

Thus skilled musical advice and counsel will, at all times, be available to our clients.

"All musical programs, whether they be of a popular or classic nature, will be under their supervision. They will work in conjunction with the program operations department of which they now form a part."

Domenico Savino came to America soon after having been awarded the title of master of composition at the Naples Conservatory of Music where he had specialized in piano, harmony and counterpoint, and direction.

Once established in America he became vice president of a leading music publishing house for which he previously had written hundreds of compositions. Savino published many of his popular hits under the nom de plume of "Onivas," which is Savino spelled backwards.

Toscha Seidel is internationally known and his solo violin work on the Columbia chain has inspired critical acclaim both from press and public. He long was known to concert audience before becoming affiliated with radio.

Howard Barlow, conductor of the Philco and Columbia symphony orchestras, first distinguished himself by forming the American National orchestra. His work with this and other symphonies met with immediate response.

Freddie Rich, a product of New York' East Side, is Columbia's director of symphonic jazz. He conducts the Necco candy hour, Weed Tire Chain, Premier Salad Dressers and a number of other programs. He formerly directed the dance music for the Hotel Astor in New York City.

MANY MASH NOTES COME TO CONOCO RADIO BILL STAR

"Mash notes" are considered one of the best means of determining the extent of a radio performer's popularity with radio fans. Consequently, the singer whose concerts bring in the most "fan" mail are most in demand by radio stations.

This is the explanation of the popularity of Miss Iona Mull, red-haired Kansas girl. Despite the fact that Miss Mull is barely out of her 'teens, she is nationally recognized as one of the leading sopranos in the country, and her radio concerts invariably result in huge piles of mail, usually including a number of proposals and requests to make her acquaintance.

Miss Mull first achieved national notice two years ago by winning the $2,000 Marion Talley scholarship in competition with 32 other youthful singers from Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma. A short time later she also won a scholarship offered by Madame Schumann-Heink and studied under the famous contralto.

Miss Mull, whose home is in Great Bend, Kan., took her first piano lesson when she was 6 years old. She began her study of voice when 16, the following year winning an all-Kansas high school competition. She is now studying in New York City.

Her next radio appearance will be as guest soloist of the tenth broadcast of the Conoco Listeners' hour next week. Peggy and Pat will have charge of the program and the Conoco orchestra and Rondoliers will be heard as usual.

The program will be broadcast in this territory Monday evening, Feb. 2, by station WFAA, Dallas, from 6:30 to 7 o'clock.

TRUMPETS TO GET LEAD IN TUESDAY PHILCO PROGRAM

Trumpets, trombones and French horns will take the spotlight in the radio concert of the Philco symphony orchestra on Tuesday, Feb. 3, when the orchestra plays the "Rakoczy March" by Berlioz as the feature of their broadcast over the Columbia network. The program will go on the air at 8:30 p. m. central standard time, from station WABC in New York.

Berlioz, dynamic, red-haired French composer, revolutionized the treatment of the brass sections in his compositions, and his "Rakoczy March," which struck a new tangent in arrangements, introduced new possibilities for the use of the trumpet and trombone. Consequently, these instruments, brilliantly scored, will play the leading role throughout the rendition of the selection. Numerous composers have since tried to simulate Berlios' success with these sections of the orchestra, but with little success.

Howard Barlow, conductor of the Philco symphony orchestra, has chosen one of the most familiar selections in the classics for inclusion on the program. It is Handel's "Largo," originally written for the voice, but since paraphrased more than any other composition. The orchestra will play an exceptional symphonic arrangement of the composition.

Two excerpts from Tschaikowski's famous "Nutcracker Suite" will also be played—the overture "Miniature" and "March" from Dances charactéristique. The suite is an example of the composer in his lighter moments, and is vividly descriptive. The opposite end of the scale in mood, "The Entrance of the Gods into Valhalla" from Wagner's opera "Das Rheingold," will bring the program to a stirring finish.

CHEVALIER SIGNS CONTRACT TO SING OVER MICROPHONE

Maurice Chevalier has just become a full-fledged radio star with the signing of one of the largest radio contracts ever given one performer and which brings him to the microphone as guest artist and master of ceremonies of the Chase & Sanborn program, starting with the broadcast of Sunday evening, Feb. 8, at 7:30 o'clock, central standard time, over station WEAF and one of the largest of NBC networks.

The French stage and screen star, whose appearance in American pictures and stage shows has elevated him with dizzying suddenness to stardom, will be heard on this program for 26 weeks. His contract reads from Feb. 8 to Aug. 2. While no amount was announced it was whispered that he will draw down $100,000 for his appearances.

He will sing three songs each week and enact the leading role in a radio playlet especially written for him. He will be heard with Dave Rubinoff and his orchestra.

"I hope to do three songs on each program similar to those I have sung in my various pictures and on the stage. There will be also a short sketch in which I will play different parts from week to week. Sometimes I will be a Frenchman telling an American boy how to make love." Here the French star shrugged his shoulders and gave the famous Chevalier grin. "Then again I may be a lovesick boy myself, who can tell? It is all to be seen. Is it not so?"

Chevalier will broadcast from one of the largest studios of the New York offices of the National Broadcasting company and his program, over 34 stations, will carry his voice to most of the millions who own radio sets.

DREAMY MELODY WILL FEATURE DAVEY HOUR

In response to a demand for a dreamy melody, Chandler Goldthwaite, internationally famous organist, will play "Then You'll Remember Me" in the Davey hour Sunday, Feb. 1. His lively selections will be Victor Herbert's "Punchinello."

Most of the other selections to be given by the male and mixed quartets and the instrumental ensemble are oldtime melodies, brimful of memories, such as "Dear Old Girl," "Merry Widow Waltz," "Yum Yum," "For Me and My Girl," and "By the Waters of Minnetonka." The subject of Martin L. Davey's talk is "Planting Trees for Civic Beauty."

The Davey hour is broadcast from New York every Sunday afternoon, 4 to 5 o'clock, central standard time, through WEAF and 20 associated stations.

The board of directors consists of the following men: One year, T. A. Ross, J. H. Harrison, A. G. Hargrave, R. B. Turner, Frank Houston, C. V. Jones; two-year term, J. Ross Bell, Roy Coffey, J. M. Preston, R. B. Scott, R. H. Norris and T. L. Hardin.

The board of city development is tax supported, the tax amounting to about $6,000 annually.

CELLO SOLO TO BE GIVEN IN SYMPHONY BROADCAST OVER COLUMBIA NETWORK

Georges Miquelle will play a cello solo of Camille Saint Saens' "The Swan," as one of the features of the Detroit Symphony orchestra concert during the Graham-Paige program at 8:30 p. m., central standard time, Sunday, Feb. 1, over the WABC-Columbia network.

The composition, noted in the form of a cello solo, is considered one of the most descriptive short pieces ever written by the French composer. Music lovers say they can shut their eyes and recall the vision of the late Pavlowa dancing and posturing to the music.

Other features of the program include a soprano solo by Muriel Magerl Kyle of Laroux's "The Nile," and a talk by the poet, Edgar A. Guest.

TIMES BOOK REVIEW AND LITERARY LANTERN

The Literary Lantern

The Literary Lantern burns weekly in the Sunday Times and is intended to throw light on writing around and about the South. Communications for this column should be addressed to the Editor of the Literary Lantern.

Archibald Henderson of the University of North Carolina is well known the South over. As an indefatigable man of letters, as a platform lecturer, a scientist, syndicate writer, historian, dramatic critic, Shaw biographer, erudite head of a university mathematical department in intellectual pursuits (for the time being we leave out politics) than any other man in the South. This is a broad statement, and by it just so we mean that Henderson is a broad man, if you will. His interests are wide and multitudinous—so much so that one might be inclined to wonder as to their depth and reasonableness if it were not that the authorities in these different fields are constantly quoting him as an associate researcher. Consider for instance his early work on the modern drama. His essays and books in this field continue to stand among the best. And his biography of Shaw written some 20 years ago remains the standard authority of the Shavian playwright's development before the world war. His articles and books on southern history remain for us among the most readable and authoritative available. And in science he was among the first to bring Einstein's strange and relativistic conceptions to the mind of the American public.

At the present time among other things Henderson writes a popular scientific article of a thousand words daily for a large newspaper syndicate. At the same time he carries on his college duties and finds time to write magazine articles and books. Among his forthcoming volumes is an exhaustive second volume of the life and works of Bernard Shaw; then will follow a collection of essays on popular science, and succeeding that a companion volume to his latest book. The answer to this unbelievably broad activity is twofold—first, that Henderson is endowed with a remarkably strong constitution, and second, that he's at work when most of his neighbors are asleep. Of course the corollary stands that he has perfected a technique of work. One cannot charge Archibald Henderson with the usual southern vices of sloth and parochialism. And his range of intrests is as large as his energy in exploring them.

Newest Book

In his latest work, "Contemporary Immortals," (D. Appleton & Co., New York, $2.50) Henderson has written in a smooth and clear running style the story of some of the great men of the world. We highly recommend it as an entertaining and intimately informing volume. Whether you will agree with the author in his evaluations of greatness you will enjoy what he has written about these representatives of greatness. We offer something of his justification of choices by quoting from his preface: "And greatness? Inclusion in biographical dictionaries, oceans of publicity, honors, prizes, awards, position, popularity—none of these indubitably speels greatness. No: neither eminence nor fame connotes greatness—else were Dempsey greater than Marconi, Chaplin than Bergson, Mary Pickford than Marie Curie. Eminence is merely a relative term; the measure of the distance above the level of the mass. Karl Marx once said of John Stuart Mill that he owed his eminence to the flatness of the surrounding country.

"The great man is one who lives for aims other than personal and local ones; who gives himself for posterity; who senses the future and strives for the race's betterment. The great man is one who procures for humanity a larger liberty, a freer release of vital energies, a wider horizon and vaster outlook, a greater and purer happiness, a completer mastery of the forces of nature and a deeper understanding of mankind.

"It may well be that in choosing contemporary immortals we are only designating temporary immortals. We are not posterity; nor is our judgment, with any assurance of finality, the verdict of history. It requires hardihood to venture upon such a choice, since it is a form of prophecy—the vainest and most fruitless of all human activities.

Great Are Ideals

"And yet!—the human mind is endlessly avid of the forbidden and the 'impossible,' and irrepressibly craves to do what has never been done before. In spite of all the arguments against the likelihood of accurately identifying human genius and greatness, there is one unanswerable argument in favor of making the attempt. That argument, in one word, is, idealism. Great men and women are the fair images of our ideals. Geniuses are the towering effigies of our aspirations.

"Nor can it be denied that, in making the attempt to distinguish the immortals among our contemporaries, the critic lays himself open to the charge of vanity. The critic must take his courage in his hands, well knowing that in the act of discrimination he is laying claim, by indirection, to partake of the nature of those whom he would select. It is the keenest of contemporary critics, Benedetto Croce, who says:

"'In order to judge Dante we must raise ourselves to his level . . . In that moment of judgment and contemplation our spirit is one with that of the poet, and in that moment we and he are one single thing. In this identity alone resides the possibility that our little souls can unite with the great souls and become great with them in the universality of the spirit.'

"'It is in this humble mood of idealism,'" Henderson says, that he has chosen as contemporary immortals, Albert Einstein, the genius in physical science; Mahatma Gandhi, the genius of inspired leadership; Thomas Alva Edison, the genius in inventions; Benito Mussolini, the genius in state-making; George Bernard Shaw, the world's greatest living writer; Guglielmo Marconi, master of space; Jane Addams, great humanist and philanthropist; Orville Wright, conqueror of the air; Ignace Jan Paderewski, musical genius and great liberator; Marie Sklodowska Curie, woman scientific genius; Henry Ford, the genius in business, and Rudyard Kipling, contemporary classic.

Lifted Wings

By Kate Randle Menefee

And held their haunting greyness on its breast;
Dead grasses fringed it, trembling in the breeze
Their dark wings, touching, broke no formal rule
My coming stirred the birds to sudden flight,
And as their breasts appeared, with lifted wings,
They drenched the haze with flames of crimson light,
And in the pool, the moon's adventurings
Lay pictured, like a mirror of the sky . . .

—ELIZABETH LAY GREEN.

The cuckoo is one of nature's mysteries; she leaves her eggs for other birds to hatch, and the growing fledgling makes more room for himself by killing its foster brothers.

Fortune-Hunting Man Hero of Dobie Book

Reviewed by ELEANOR FLEMING

Fortune-hunting, treasure-fascinated man, following Coronado "mas alla" to the will-o-the-wisp that was El Dorado, fighting Indians with James Bowie for the privilege of hunting the lost San Saba mine, leaving homes and families, spending all their resources, marching across continents, enduring all physical discomforts, is the hero of the Texas-written, Texas-illiustrated, Texas-published book that is startling the hihterto exclusive eastern literary circles.

"Coronado's Children," written by that eloquent cowboy and romantic university professor, J. Frank Dobie of Austin, Texas, is the first book ever chosen by a book club as its monthly selection which was not published in New York or Boston. The Literary Guild of America was the far-seeing organization that came to the Southwest and found a man whose genius was as widespread as the material and that brought Dobie and the Southwest Press to the attention of America. For "Coronado's Children" is the February choice of the Literary Guild.

The book deals with the legends concerning lost mines and buried treasures in the Southwest. The blurb on the paper cover explains it effectively: "What the Golden fleece was to the Greeks or what El Dorado . . . has been to South America, these lost mines have been to all that part of the United States once owned by Spain. The story of these mines is a cycle made up of a thousand cantos that have for hundreds of years been recited with cumulative effect in the camps, households and offices of the Southwest, housed mechanics, preachers, teachers, doctors, lawyers, earth-treading farmers and home-staying women, as well as roaming cowboys, rangers, outlaws and miners, have told these stories and believed them."

Coronado's Inheritors

Another vision of the children who are Coronado's is so well presented in Dobie's preface that it would be ridiculous to attempt another description:

"The legends of lost mines and buried treasures . . . seem to be increasing rather than diminishing in number; they are incredibly, astoundingly numerous—as are the people who tell them and halfway, at least, believe them.

"These people, no matter what language they speak, are truly Coronado's inheritors. I have called them Coronado's children. They follow Spanish trails, buffalo trails, cow trails; they dig where there are no trails; but oftener than they dig or prospect they just sit and tell stories of lost mines, or buried bullion by the jack load, of ghostly patrones that guard treasure, and of a thousand other impediments, generally not ghostly at all, that have kept them away from the wealth they are so sure of.

"Coronado's children still have the precious ability to wonder. And you who are so sophisticated, unless you can feel at home in the camps of Coronado's children, never imagine that you understand bold Drake or eager Raleigh or stout Cortez of any of the other flaming figures of the spacious, zestful, and wondering times of great Elizabeth and splendid Philip. They are of imagination all compact."

Dobie's cowboy boots have trod many of the places which he describes as being the goals of treasure-seekers, and his unparalleled ability to tell a story as it was told to him brings the other places within the range of imagination or memory. They sweep from old Mexico, where General Taylor is said to have buried $10,000, and where the Lost Nigger Mine is said to be, far to the northern part of Oklahoma, where there is the famed treasure of Cut Throat Gap; from Louisiana, where Clawson saw "the horrors of hell" in digging for Lafitte's chest of pirate booty, to Nevada, where a mule uncovered silver.

And in all that territory, Coronado's children go on hunting, dying in their belief that the treasure is there, handing the legends down to their credulous children and grandchildren.

There has never been a book like "Coronado's Children"; there will never be another. In subject matter, it is necessarily unique; in style, it is the big-hatted, Texas-built, cowboy "Panchq" Dobie, who has all the romance of a cowboy in his make-up and all the education and ability in his head with which to give it to the world.

For years, Texans have said, "There are plenty of stories in Texas to please those New Yorkers, if only a Texan would write about Texas." Dorothy Scarborough produced a novel, and now Frank Dobie has put down in indisputable non-fiction the thrilling tales that have been bed-time stories for young Texans of the second and third generations, fireside tales for older ones, and even death-bed revelations.

"Coronado's Children" is like Treasure Island, except that the treasure is never found, and there is more of it in scattered places and varied forms. It is a good book to read out loud to everybody; it should revive the family reading circle.

Last year, the Literary Guild scored a triumph in their discovery of Oliver LaFarge and his "Laughing Boy," a novel dealing with the Southwest. In 1931, they can congratulate themselves on an even more distinctive achievement—the discovery of Frank Dobie and "Coronado's Children."

THE BOOK SURVEY

By BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Writer

Shakespeare described Shylock as a villain. He made him a figure of malevolence and hatred, an unscrupulous miser against whom any kind of trick was a fair one; and only in one or two moments did he permit any flash of pity or understanding to strike the gaunt, unlovely money changer.

Ludwig Lewisohn, who combines a high degree of literary ability with an intense racial consciousness, sees things differently; and in "The Last Days of Shylock" he tells the story of Shylock where Shakespeare left off—at the conclusion of the famous trial that left Shylock a ruined man.

An extremely fine book is the result; finer, I think, in its first half than in its last, but moving and eloquent throughout. Mr. Lewisohn gives us a new Shylock—a Shylock at whom Shakespeare barely hints; a Shylock who is the leading figure in the tragic Ghetto of 16th century Venice, where the Jew was outside the law, subject to oppression, insult, robbery, and violence from birth to death.

Thus we see the famous trial through Shylock's eyes, and see it as a monstrous but typical bit of injustice. We see Shylock compelled to recant his faith and go through the motions of becoming a Christian; we see him flying, in despair, to Constantinople, where the Sultan of Turkey guarantees fair treatment for Jews; we see him lead an abortive Zionist colonization movement into Palestine, to be balked by prejudice and hatred; and finally, after he tastes a bit of triumph in the Turkish victory over the Venetians at Cyprus, we go with Shylock to his deathbed, with the aged wrongs of his race darkening his last hours.

It is a strong and compelling bit of writing. The often-heard complaint that Mr. Lewisohn is more propagandist than novelist hardly applies to this book. There is "propaganda"—if you choose to call it that—in it, in abundance; but it is hung on a well-developed and interesting narrative, and is clothed in the beautiful writing that one expects from Mr. Lewisohn.

"The Last Days of Shylock" is published by Harpers, and sells for $2.50.

Good Beginning Shaky Conclusion

"Paradise City" is somewhat disappointing; disappointing because the opening chapters promise a stronger, better-integrated novel than the remainder of the book provides. That may not be a fair criticism, for if the book lived up to its genesis it would be an extremely good book indeed; and it is well worth reading as it stands.

Henry Channon, the author, begins by studying the slow emergence of Paradise City, Wis., through the late years of the last century. His study of this town in its development is as fine as anything I have read in a long time, and the handful of townspeople whom he describes are presented very ably. Paradise City, drowsing through the long years as an agricultural town, and finally awakening to wealth, turbulence and confusion through the coming of industry, is a microcosmic America. The author gives it a sympathetic, penetrating survey, and makes you expect great things.

Then Mr. Channon sets out to describe the fortunes of an assorted half dozen people of this town as they grow to manhood and womanhood; and it is here that he lets himself down a bit.

His people have diverse adventures. One wanders to Venice and becomes an ineffectual collector of antiques and a guide for tourists; another goes to England and marries a nobleman; another lands in Paris and becomes a rather unusual kind of painted lady; another goes to Chicago and becomes a multimillionaire industrialist; and one is never quite able to decide just what Mr. Channon is trying to tell us about them all.

For the early part of the book is natural, and its events are logical; but the latter part is forced and artificial, and one does not believe in it very deeply. One is moved to wonder if Mr. Channon would not have succeeded better if he had kept all of his people in Paradise City.

However that may be, the book is worth your while. It is published by E. P. Dutton and Co., and retails at $2.50.

Aldington's Sketches of War

I hope you will not shy away from "Roads to Glory," by Richard Aldington, just because it is a collection of essays—short stories and sketches dealing with the world war; for it most emphatically is not "just another war book," and if you avoid it on the ground that you are tired of books about the war you will be missing something very good.

These studies of the war are devoid of the cheap sensationalism and the sophomoric irony that we have seen so much of in the past year. One or two of the sketches are in the mood of "Journey's End"; a few are bitter with a cold fury that is all the more effective because it is so controlled and objective; and one or two—particularly the last one in the book—are tremendously moving bits of prose poetry that no sensitive reader will soon forget.

If this book had appeared a year ago it would have made a sensation. As it is, the reading public is apt to overlook it, and that is a shame; for only a very few of the many books about the war that have been written in the past year or so are its equals.

Doubleday, Doran and Co. publishes it at $2.50.

Beauty, Force in Vassos' "Ultimo"

If you are familiar with the drawings of John Vassos you don't need to be told that the man has a wild imagination and a magnificent ability to get strange and vivid forms of beauty onto paper. If you aren't familiar with them, it might pay you to become so; and "Ultimo," published by E. P. Dutton at $5, offers you a good way of doing it.

"Ultimo," the text for which was written by Ruth Vassos, is a weird conception of life in vast caverns under the earth in some distant era when the earth's surface has grown too cold to support life. It is a sort of twilight of the gods—a last act in mankind's drama; and the terror and strangeness of it are strikingly set forth in Vassos' drawings.

The book is decidedly out of the ordinary. If you have a taste for the bizarre, don't miss it.

EXPLANATION OF LAST SUNDAY'S CARTOON—The Circular Rainbow: To an observer on the ground a rainbow appears in the form of a half-circle for the reason that the center of a rainbow is at the same angular distance below the horizon as the sun is above the horizon, and the portion of what would be a circular rainbow is cut off by the earth. Consequently, when air travelers see a circular rainbow it is because they are in direct line of the sun's rays on the shower, as shown by the fact that the shadow of the plane is seen in the center of the phenomenon. This suggestion came to me from Maj. J. H. Doolittle, who has made many valuable contributions to the science of aviation. The Anderson Family: London newspaper dispatches of a short time ago reported a claim for family longevity coming from the Island of Syke. Alexander Anderson, the father of this remarkable family, lived an average age, but his children, all of whom are living, have attained ripe old ages. Anne is 92; John, 90; Mary, 88; Rachael, 85; Angus, 82; Marion, 79, and Flora is 76, making an average age of 75 for the seven chidren.

NEARLY MILLION ACRES TERRACED IN TEXAS IN 1930

COLLEGE STATION, Texas.—The growth in Texas of science's counter attack against soil loss and depletion of soil fertility by erosion, arch enemy of the land, is told in a report on terracing in this state compiled recently by M. R. Bently, agricultural engineer of the Texas A. & M. college extension service. Up to Jan. 1, 1931, a total of 4,608,000 acres had been terraced in Texas, Mr. Bentley shows in his summary of the work which was outlined before the recent soil conservation conference held at Waco on call of Gov. Dan Moody.

A total of 919,315 acres was terraced in Texas in 1930 as compared with 609,055 acres in 1929. The long step forward in this work is emphasized in comparing the totals for these latter years with total of 56,486 acres terraced in 1916.

Twenty-five Texas counties each have 50,000 or more acres terraced or contoured, the report shows. Runnels county leads the list with a total of 181,213 acres and Jones county is second with 152,570 acres.

One of the recent developments in terracing work is the rapid increase in the number of county tractor and grader outfits used in the past two years. During 1928, according to estimates of Mr. Bentley, only 12 or 15 counties showed use of the big outfits for terracing while in 1929 they were used in about 40 counties and in 75 or more counties in 1930.

Value of Sulphur For Soil Building Considered Small

By G. S. FRAPS
State Chemist of Texas

In certain counties of West Texas there are large deposits of sulphur mixed with gypsum, earth and sometimes sulphuric acid. Various concerns have attempted to exploit these deposits by selling them to farmers for application to the soil, or for use as fungicides or insecticides, or by forming stock companies to sell stock. The material contains 5 to 20 per cent sulphur, but the price asked from the farmers is usually widely out of proportion to the value based on chemical composition of the material. While the value may be $2 to $5 a ton, the price is usually around $40 a ton.

Both the division of agronomy and the division of chemistry of the Texas agricultural experiment station have investigated the value of sulphur for use on soils. The division of angronomy, in bulletin 408, reports that the use of sulphur in amounts varying from 50 to 10,000 pounds per acre on soils at Temple, Angleton, Beeville, Nacogdoches, College Station and Troup did not give significant or profitable increases in the yield of cotton, corn, cowpeas or oats. The division of chemistry, in bulletin 415, reported that "sulphur is not likely to be needed in Texas to supply plant food in soils under irrigation or on soils which secure ordinary commercial fertilizer or where crops such as corn, rice, oats or wheat which require small amounts of sulphur are grown. In fact, suphur at the present time cannot be recommended as a fertilizer in any part of Texas."

While the use of sulphur or gypsum is advisable on soils containing black alkali, there is little soil of this kind in Texas at the present time. Where it is needed, it should be secured at a reasonable price.

The mixture of sulphur and gypsum is not recommended as an insecticide or fungicide, for the reason that it contains too little sulphur, is too variable in composition, and is entirely too high in price. Ground sulphur or flowers of sulphur properly applied is excellent for controlling some plant diseases or insects, such as rust mites, red spiders, cotton hoppers or powdery mildew on grapes and roses, and it is sold at a reasonable price. Ground sulphur or flowers of sulphur should be used for the disease of insects for which it is recommended by competent authorities.

MONTGOMERY COUNTY MAN ADOPTS SOIL BUILDING PLAN

CONROE.—On a farm that had washed and run down until it wouldn't even make a fair crop of sudan grass, Charlie Reaves of Montgomery county turned to the dairy business to make a living and succeeded. He has terraced 40 acres of his land as one of the first steps in a farm system worked out as a demonstration in cooperation with W. L. Glass, county farm demonstration agent. He plans to use all the manure from his dairy on the farm and to plant cover crops annually to bring the soil back to its former productivity.

WOMEN TO USE NATIVE SHRUBS IN THEIR YARDS

MINERAL WELLS, Texas, Jan. 17.—As a result of a one-day short course held recently in Palo Pinto county, nine demonstration yards were planned. Native shrubs, such as agarita, barberry, red and black haw, buck bush, red bud and bird-of-paradise will be used as screening and each demonstrator has taken it as her goal to screen any unsightly places on her premises. Extension landscape specialist, Miss Inez Derryberry, and district agent, Miss Jennie Camp, were in charge of the short course and conducted the discussion, assisted by the home agents of the county, Miss Jane Boykin.

BARNYARD MANURE FOUND HELPFUL TO CANTALOUPES

DECATUR, Texas, Jan. 17.—Barnyard manure pays big profits when put under cantaloupes, according to L. N. Nikerk of Alvord, Wise county. He placed one shovel full of well rotted barnyard manure under each hill in a 1% acre field, and on this land made $280 per acre. Adjoining land not fertilized made $50 per acre. The demonstration will be continued in cooperation with Guy Powell, county agent, with manure under all hills in 1931.

EVERY-DAY LIFE OF FARMER'S WIFE

You see a lot in the papers about this farm relief business, here of late. But I am not expecting much relief, only what we work out for ourselves. I don't think many real farmers want relief, they want a chance! The ones that can make a note that Uncle Sam will accept can get money from their bankers.

Times on the farm are pretty bad, all right, and I don't guess we do get a square deal, but in spite of those gamblers on Wall street we have a pretty good time. The real farmer outwits them a lot of times that they don't know about. Like, at the present time, he is feeding this 60-cent wheat to the hogs and getting a pretty fair price for them.

I am going to mention one trouble that I have not seen discussed before. It is in my mind like this. When St. Peter and the angels in heaven were sorting out the humanity, and naming them, they must have had several piles. They probably had doctors in one pile, preachers, blacksmiths, school teachers, bricklayers, etc., all in piles, until they came to a bunch that was not anything in particular. Then St. Peter said, "Lay them over there in that pile and when we get through we will brand them farmers; they can get by better in that profession than anywhere else because they can drag by, while in any other business they would be thrown out."

That is part of what is wrong with agriculture. There are so many so-called farmers that really Aren't. They follow farming because it is the line of least resistance. They can loaf half of the year, then put in a cotton crop. They never plant any feed or make a garden. They never have cows, pigs, turkeys or chickens. They move every year, stay on the road so much that the whole farming class is judged by them.

About a million of that kind can make a terrible surplus of cotton.

What caused over-production of wheat is the very ease of it. Modern machinery has made it a very easy crop. In other words it is the gentleman's crop. The wheat farmer can own a small home in town, get out and rent from 500 to 5,000 acres for wheat, go out in the country three or four weeks in the fall and put in his crop, go back to the city where his children would have the conveniences of a city home and city schools. In June he can go back to his wheat crop with a combine and soon have the grain on the market. That is one reason that summer sees the market flooded.

IOWA PARK ALL SET FOR SHORT COURSE PROGRAM

H. S MOBLEY

JOHN M. HANNON

GRACE MARIAN SMITH

Iowa Park's committees and workers reported everything in readiness Saturday for the agricultural short course which will be held next Thursday and Friday at the high school at Iowa Park.

The three speakers from the International Harvester company's extension department, whose pictures appear above, will discuss a wide variety of topics of interest to farmers and farmers' wives. Soil conservation, seed selection, planting and cultivating methods, home-canning, development of farm gardens, dairying, poultry raising and other matters will be covered in the lectures, demonstrations and movies that will make up the program.

While Wichita county is expected to furnish most of the attendance at the programs, neighboring counties will be well represented, judging from inquiries which have been received. Wilbarger, Clay, Archer, Young and Baylor counties will have farmers at the session, and some of the nearby Oklahoma counties are also expected to be represented.

Iowa Park citizens are hoping for a big attendance at all six sessions. They have been to considerable pains to make the short course a success and they are ready for a big crowd.

COMMITTEE REPORTS SHOW PREPARATIONS COMPLETE

IOWA PARK, Jan. 31.—Earl C. Knox, executive chairman of the farmers' short course which will be held at the W. F. George High school auditorium in Iowa Park Thursday and Friday, Feb. 5 and 6, held a check-up meeting with chairmen of committees Wednesday afternoon at the chamber of commerce office to determine the progress that had been made and ascertain if anything were left undone.

Mayor T. J. Pace, chairman of the reception committee, stated that all committeemen had been notified and that each community in the county would be represented on the reception division. These will wear badges and can be easily found by this designation.

F. E. Hill, chairman of the finance committee, reported the finances cared for by voluntary contribution of the chambers of commerce of the county, and the International Harvester company, who are furnishing lectures and paraphernalia for the course.

C. C. Hudson, publicity chairman, stated that all details for publicity had been arranged and that complete programs would be ready for distribution at once. Window cards, descriptive booklets, and programs all have a place in the advertising of the course. It is especially stressed to call attention to the fact that there will be no cost or collections of any kind.

C. M. Miller, arrangement manager, stated that all necessary arrangements were being cared for and that the date of the course, Feb. 5 and 6, would find windows darkened for the showing of pictures and all other required details completed.

Mrs. C. C. Burrows, chairman of woman's department, who is working with Mrs. Joe Lakey and Miss Ethel Luise Webb, stated that the women had been advertising the course at the meeting of various social organizations and clubs and that special arrangement was being made for entertainment of the lecturers while at Iowa Park.

W. R. Bradford, school committee chairman, and J. C. Searl, secretary of Iowa Park chamber, will begin delivering programs to schools of the county Monday. It is planned to place a supply of programs at each school in the county before Thursday. Mr. Bradford has fully acquainted Iowa Park pupils with the dates and nature of the course and all pupils from the fifth grade up will be permitted to attend the various lectures.

B. L. Bradford, chairman of the program committee, submitted the program; which was selected by chairmen of all committees at a round-table talk recently, and completed by musical numbers added as those ready to serve were found.

FINDS FERTILIZER HELPS HIS COTTON PRODUCTION

COLUMBUS, Texas. — Generous fertilization and good management have given William Steck 5½ bales of cotton from six acres of land farmed under demonstration methods on his farm in Content community, Colorado county. In addition to using good seed he broadcast hen manure beneath the cotton rows, and when the plants began to square side-dressed with 100 pounds nitrate of soda per acre. He is now going in for terracing and crop rotation, W. H. Young, county agent, says, "in order to keep the boy on the farm."

Terracing Demonstration Delayed

The terracing demonstration which was to have been held last Tuesday on the Morgan farm northwest of Burkburnett was called off on account of weather conditions. It will be held at a date to be announced later.

DAIRYMEN URGING MORE CONSUMPTION OF LOCAL PRODUCT

Steps to bring about a larger consumption of Wichita county's dairy products by residents of the county are to be taken by the Wichita County Dairy association. At a recent meeting of the association plans were laid for the campaign.

Much butter produced outside of the county is being sold in this county, it is reported. Also, local consumption of butter substitutes is above the per capita average, and there is a much larger use of canned milk products than in most counties of the same population.

Local dairymen believe that if consumers would show a preference for local products, the dairying situation would be greatly improved.

COMBINATION CROP OF PEAS, CORN PROFITABLE

M'KINNEY, Texas.—By alternating rows of cowpeas with corn in a 15-acre demonstration field in Collin county, Walter Greenwood averaged 50 bushels of corn per acre and a fine crop of peas, J. P. McCulloch, county agent, reports. Enough peas were sold to pay for the seed, leaving feed to last the livestock for some time. The pea vines have been turned under to fertilize the soil, and next year corn will be planted in the old pea rows and cowpeas in the old corn rows. Mr. Greenwood grows his feed for 28 head of hogs, five head of cattle, four mules and 125 laying hens.

WHEAT WORTH $1.30 BUSHEL WHEN USED TO FEED HOGS

DIMMITT, Texas.—Hogs are paying $1.30 per bushel for the ground wheat J. W. Davis, Castro county farmer is feeding them, results of a demonstration in cooperation with the farm demonstration agent show. Mr. Davis kept a record on the weights of his hogs and the feed consumed and found that he could produce one pound of pork with four pounds of ground wheat. This more than doubles the price of wheat for him.

Turning Spanish goats into dollars is another trick a home demonstration agent, Lets Bennett of McCulloch county, has showed out there. Ben Strickland of Brady brought in two gift goats and when they came out of the canner in the form of chili, steak and sandwich spread they were worth $12. That's just a side line to the main show of meat canning in which 21 beeves have been canned as demonstrations, and 36 others canned by farm and ranch women as a result.

BERLIN.—One of the longest airlines in Europe or Asia, that running between China and Germany, is expected to start in January. A corporation with a capitalization of about $836,000 has been set up to control the line. The Chinese government will control about 2,000 shares of the company's stock and Germany the remainder. Four flights will be held weekly, two from Berlin and two from Shanghai.

ODDFELLOWS INSTALL CHILLICOTHE HEADS

CHILLICOTHE, Texas, Jan. 31.—New officers for the Odd Fellows were installed at a meeting held this week and are as follows: Noble grand, Harry D. Boothe; treasurer, J. A. McCaw; secretary, Joe H. Anderson; vice grand, Rich R. Kirby; chaplain, A. L. Honeycutt; warden, Jack McMichael; right supporter to noble grand, J. D. Phillips; left supporter to noble grand, B. M. Gentry; right supporter to vice grand, A. E. Aulds; left supporter to vice grand, W. E. Hancock.

Notables of the Odd Fellows lodge, among them being J. V. Raulston of Goodlett, district deputy grand master, were in attendance.

HEAVY FEEDING WON'T HELP POOR PRODUCER

GUTHRIE, Texas.—Excessive feeding won't make up for poor producing cows, a comparison of dairy herd demonstration records by Cline E. Morris, farm demonstration agent in King county, shows. One owner fed nearly three times as much feed as T. M. Hudgens, whose cows produced butterfat in November for 16 cents per pound feed cost, and yet was confronted with a cost of 24 cents per pound butterfat. Mr. Hudgens feeds six pounds bundle feed, 5½ pounds cottonseed and 4½ pounds milo maize to each cow daily. The high cost herd received per cow per day 28 pounds bundle feed and 12 pounds cottonseed.

An extra income of $27 per month last year is a source of satisfaction to J. D. Payne of Rockwall county in an otherwise depressing year. His demonstration with the county agent resulted in 150 eggs per bird for the year, even after a disastrous experiment in cutting down the ration during the summer.

7 TO 8 PER CENT COTTON ACREAGE REDUCTION SEEN

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 31.—Acreage planted to cotton in the United States in 1931 will be decreased between 7 and 8 per cent, according to compilations based on farmers' responses to the price of cotton in December, made by Dr. A. B. Cox, director of the bureau of business research at the University of Texas.

"The decline in the deflated price of cotton from December, 1929, to December, 1930, was 597 deflated price points," Dr. Cox said. "During the past seven years, the variations in the average December deflated price has equaled 4,294 points, and the total corresponding changes in acreage have equaled 23,390,000 acres, or 5,470 acres for each change of one point in the price. If these average relations hold good for 1931, the total acreage reduction will be slightly over three and one-fourth million acres, or about 7.2 per cent.

"The price and yield of competing crops and weather may affect cotton acreage considerably. This year, the price of corn, oats, wheat and most other competing crops are relatively higher than cotton. Moreover, the weather has been favorable for winter wheat and oats, so that the plowing up of these crops may be less than usual. The weather at planting time also has considerable influence on final acreage. If it is unfavorable for corn and spring oats, land intended for them will be planted to cotton for it can be planted later."

With 38 plats entered—26 on irrigated land and 12 on dry farms—the entry list of the Times and Record News alfalfa-growing contest closed last Wednesday. No further entries can now be accepted.

Instructions and record blanks have been distributed to all the contestants. Inasmuch as the accuracy with which these records are kept will be one of the points on which contestants' scores are figured, all who have entered the contest are urged to keep the accounts carefully.

The list of dry land contestants follows:

ANOTHER PRUNING DEMONSTRATION TO BE HELD TOMORROW

The pruning demonstration which was held last Monday at the experiment farm was attended by about 50 orchardists who had a very instructive lesson on the care of their fruit trees.

The weather is believed to have prevented a much larger attendance, and for that reason the demonstration will be repeated tomorrow, starting at 2 p. m.

All who are interested will be welcomed.

For several years home demonstration agents have been reviving home industries among country women as a means of getting funds for improved home standards of living, and to give to these women a measure of financial independence. Some one has said that the women don't make five cents an hour for their time at such work. That is open to question, but the women can say "so's your old man!", for the southern cotton farmer is said to have averaged only 32 cents per day for his time last year.

Smith Favors Abolition Lame Duck Sessions and That President Should Take Oath of Office January 1 or 2

By ALFRED S. SMITH

AL SMITH

While we will all agree that the federal constitution is sacred to the degree that it constitutes in itself the guarantee of the blessings and benefits that flow to the American people from the Declaration of Independence, that does not mean that the part of it which deals with the mechanics of government should never be changed to meet new conditions. One of the purposes of the constitution is to promote the general welfare, and when any provision in it, because of changed conditions, operates to defeat that purpose, it should be changed.

Nobody would be so foolhardy as to suggest any revision in the articles dealing with freedom of religion, of speech, of the press or the right to petition. But that does not mean that no change should be made with respect to the time of inaugurating the president and providing for the meetings of congress.

Since the beginning of our government, we have clung to the 4th of March as the day of inauguration. Why should a third of a year elapse between the election and the inauguration of the president? Undoubtedly it ook until the 4th of March for all the various representatives in the first congress to reach New York City where the inauguration of George Washington took place. But that was 140 years ago. Nowadays you can fly from California to Washington in 36 hours and you can come from Oregon to Washington by automobile in 16 days. Or you can get to Washington from the backwoods of Maine by rail in a day. At the time of the inauguration of George Washington it probably took as long to come from Pennsylvania to New York City as it now takes to come from San Francisco to Washington. But still we cling to the 4th of March.

I believe that congress should convene on the first or second day of January of each year, and that the inauguration of the president should take place about two weeks later. The only reason that it would not be possible to inaugurate the president on the same day is that when the presidential electors have failed to make a choice, it is necessary that congress do so. At the present time we leave this to the old congress. If the new congress which is elected at the same time as the president is to make the decision it will be necessary that the inauguration of the president take place about two weeks later so that the vote of the electors should be received by the new congress and acted upon by them.

The fiscal year in the federal government begins July 1, so congress would have six solid months in which to make provision for the support of the government. Such legislation ought to be on the preferred calendar of the activities of both houses. After disposing of this, congress might then, if the stress of business requires it, continue on to the consideration of other matters that do not involve appropriation of public money.

Accompanying the provision to change the date of inauguration, there should be a repeal of the section of the constitution calling for the convening of congress on the first Monday of December of every year. Repeal of that section would permit the chosen representatives of the people to proceed with the business of conducting the government along the lines outlined in the party platform of the successful candidates two months after their selection has been made. The present system is somewhat of a joke and permits what has been aptly termed the "lame duck session." This particular piece of slang seems to my mind to describe it best.

Defeated for reelection by the choice of the people as expressed at the polls, senators and members of the house of representatives begin one month after their repudiation to legislate for the very people who decided by their ballots that their services were no longer required. It may be going pretty far, but I personally believe this is the negation of representative government. To say the least, it certainly leads to chaos.

We have the lame duck congress now in session. The headlines in the newspapers indicate a certain amount of agitation for an extraordinary session which would bring the newly elected congress into being prior to that first Monday in December. As against that we have considerable agitation to the effect that such a session may have a very depressing effect upon the business of the country. We read in the newspapers that there is some talk of night sessions to expedite the business of the government so that the lame duck session can die a peaceful death when it comes to the end of its constitutional existence.

The complexion and makeup of the new congress certainly indicates a great change in the public mind since the election of the present one in 1928. If that is so, why should the people of the United States be deprived of the services of their newly elected congress for a year and three weeks after its election?

It is the old story—cling to the old idea, even to the point of allowing the constitution as it exists today to defeat the will of the electorate. I do not raise any question at all as to the wisdom of our forefathers in writing the constitution. But they wrote it over 140 years ago, and at a time when the total population of the United States was about equivalent to the number of people living in one borough of the city of New York at the present time.

Government cannot be made responsive to the public demand and cannot be made understandable to the youth of the country unless it meets present conditions, so far as it is humanly possible to do. It is just as difficult to make the machinery of government operate with rules and regulations laid down a hundred years ago as it would be for a full grown man to make use of his high school graduation suit.

While I realize that there is no law with respect to the time of nominating a candidate for the presidency and that it is simply a matter of party regulation, there is no reason in the world that I can see why a man should be nominated for the presidency in the month of June. It may have been all right years ago when it took a candidate all summer to travel around the country to greet his constituency and talk to the people, but there is no reason for it today.

No man should be asked to run for president for four months. I know that a great many people believe that he doesn't really get into action until late in September or early October. Anybody who has that notion in his head can very soon get rid of it by having himself nominated for president. By the time the cameramen, the newspaper men, the committee on suggestions, the party leaders and all the rest of the army that stays with the presidential candidate during the entire four months he is campaigning, get finished with him, he has to go away some place to rest. I met President Hoover in Florida in January after his election. I was down there in search of the same thing he was—seeking rest and recreation after four months of the most intensive and strenuous work.

The proper thing to do is to nominate a candidate in the middle of September. With our modern means of transportation, our publications spread out all over the country, and last but not least our national radio hookups, all the campaigning that is necessary can be done in six weeks, although years ago it may have taken four months. Believed of the strain of two and a half months of campaigning, the newly elected president will be ready to assume the duties of his office in the first two weeks of January.

All of this seems to me to be self evident. The change in the convening of congress and the inauguration of the president must appear in that same light to the United States senate, because amendments to the constitution to bring it about have passed the senate five times, but have been unable to get the required two-thirds majority in the house of representatives.

If there is something wrong about the proposal, if it is weak, if it is calculated to disorganize public business, if it is not in the interests of the public welfare, or of government, then it seems to me better and more understandable government, then it seems to me that it is up to the house of representatives to explain the weakness of the proposal. Otherwise the people should be permited to vote on it.

MEMPHIS C.-C. WORK OPENS

New Leaders Embark on Year's Program

MEMPHIS, Texas, Jan. 31.—Under new leadership, the Memphis Chamber of Commerce embarked on a year's voyage this week, when the newly elected president, Col. C. T. Matkin, began his official duties as successor to Lyman E. Robbins, retiring president of the organization.

The question of inviting the county track meet to come to Memphis this year was brought up, and was referred to a committee that will work out the details and report to the next directors meeting that will be held the second Tuesday in February.

A committee from the Girl Scout council appeared before the directors, requesting the chamber of commerce to sponsor the Girl Scout movement in Memphis. The matter was referred to the Boy Scout committee, which will also report at the next meeting of the directors.

Land Sought

Steps necessary to secure the possession and a clear title to 58 acres of land in the south part of town, purchased 20 years ago with funds donated by Memphis citizens, were discussed. The site was intended as a bonus to Col. Ed Kennedy when his proposed railroad, the Altus, Roswell & El Paso was to be built into Memphis. This railroad, however, failed to materialize, and the land has not been used for the purpose that it was intended by the purchasers. It was pointed out by Moss & Deaver, local attorneys, that the general wish of the donors is that the property revert to the city as a whole and not be used to the benefit of any one individual. The attorneys recommended a warranty deed, stating that a quit claim deed would not assure a clear title.

Chairmen Named

A number of chairmen were appointed for committees by President Matkin, and instructed to complete their own committees by selecting two other members of the chamber of commerce to serve with them.

The chairmen appointed were W. C. Dickey, agricultural; S. T. Harrison, industrial; F. N. Foxhall, highways; R. S. Greene, finance; B. E. Davenport, trade extension; C. W. Flanery, civic; Frank Phelan, membership; Lyman E. Robbins, railroad; J. Claude Wells, Boy Scouts, and Lyman E. Robbins, publicity.

A Self-Made Man And His Wife

"A WISE little thing with both feet firmly on the ground." That was how the girls who worked in the store with Kitty Marsh thought and spoke of her. It rather surprised and puzzled them, therefore, when the news got about that Kitty was going to leave her well-paid job as department supervisor to marry a boy who occupied some very minor position in a real estate office. He'd make a swell beau, they agreed, after furtively inspecting him during his first visit to the store, but why in the name of Samuel H ll and for Pete's sake was Kitty, with her looks and intelligence, hooking up with a guy who couldn't be pulling down enough to fill the dimple in her cheek? She could have a millionaire—one of the bosses, maybe—if she wanted to. Sure, she could!

Kitty's reason for marrying Jim Priestley—naive as it may seem in this age of cynicism—was because she loved him. The fact that he was poor did not matter to her in the least; she was confident that they could pull together and eventually get somewhere in the world.

A few months later she and Jim emerged from a quaint old church in a rosy haze of happiness. The two weeks' honeymoon was like a trip to some companionable and thrilling fairyland, but perhaps not more thrilling to Kitty than their return to the diminutive apartment they had furnished before leaving town.

Kitty was an adept manager; she did miraculous things on Jim's fifty dollars a week. Of course, she had to do her own work and cooking, but she liked to keep busy—more particularly when what she did was for the man who she knew adored her as much as she did him.

SHORTLY before their first Christmas Kitty discovered she was going to have a baby. Jim became more than ever considerate and affectionate. Through the months that followed he waited on her like a slave and did everything in his power to keep her cheerful and happy. At last the big day came. There was a dash in a taxi to the hospital. After fearful hours in an anteroom Jim was told by a nurse that the child was born—a girl. His wife was fine; he would be able to see her in a few minutes.

Presently he was bending over Kitty's bed and forcing back the thankful tears in his throat. Then the nurse shoo-ed him out of the room and took him to see the baby. He stared at it, almost incredulous at first, but a moment later he was touching it with a trembling hand and grinning. He had hoped for a girl.

With Kitty's return to the apartment life went along much as it had done before, except that there were three of them now, and sometimes the third made its presence felt and heard in no uncertain manner. But those were rare occasions; Kitty managed her child as ably as she did her house.

After a while Kitty began to think seriously about the money situation and Jim's progress at the office. In two years he had got only one raise.

"Jim," she said one night, "how are things going downtown? Does it look as if you might get some sort of promotion soon?"

"Hope so, dear," he answered, looking up from his cross-word puzzle, "but it's tough sledding to get singled out in that bunch of fellows down there."

"Yes—I know," she said. "Never mind—keep on plugging away and you're bound to get a break."

As time went on Kitty gave more and more thought to Jim's future. She had not attempted to drive him while there had been just the two of them—but now there was the baby to consider. Quite a lot of money was going to be needed later on for her education and so forth. And, too, Kitty was ambitious for her husband; he would not remain a clerk on a salary all his life if she could help it.

But Jim's total lack of effort to do anything towards pushing forward troubled her greatly. He seemed quite content to amble along as he was, going down to the office at nine and returning about six; then sitting about at night reading papers, doing cross-word puzzles, and listening to the radio. Kitty felt that some of this leisure time ought to be more profitably employed.

ONE afternoon she sat down and gave herself up to a bout of deep reflection. Here was the situation: Jim had ability and personality but he was not making the most of them. Gentle hints and words of encouragement had failed to spur him; she would have to manage him some other way. But how best to go about it? A direct attack, she feared, might only succeed in making him stubborn. Furthermore, it might wound his pride—and she loved him too much to hurt him like that. No, that wouldn't do. This thing called for strategy—something tactful.

After some further pondering, the pucker suddenly left Kitty's forehead. An illuminating flash showed her why Jim was not extending himself. He was too darned comfortable; she was making life too smooth for him. Yes, that was it. There was no necessity for him to do any more than he was doing, because she always managed to get along within their income. But necessity was what whipped people into doing things—Jim must be provided with a little of that.

Kitty felt distinctly guilty when, next day, she set out to indulge in a deliberate orgy of shopping. She bought a new ice-box and all manner of clothes for herself and the baby, blowing in a matter of nearly two hundred dollars.

When the bills came in she mentioned casually to Jim that they hadn't enough cash to meet them. Jim, quite unperturbed, said he supposed they'd have to cut down expenses till they caught up. Kitty merely supposed so too.

At the end of the following month, when Kitty announced that they were still deeper in debt, her husband showed more interest. "We seem to be getting through a gosh awful lot of money lately, dear," he said.

"Well—I'll have to get it somehow."

"That's about the size of it. Well—I'll have to get it somehow."

The following night Jim came home and told Kitty he had asked for a raise that day. It was refused. Whereupon, he had got himself transferred to an outside job. "It cuts my pay down to forty a week," he explained, "but I get commissions—and they'll run into real money if I can put over a big deal now and then. Of course, it's a bit of a risk but . . ."

"Don't think of the risk," Kitty cut in, kissing him. "Just tear into the work and you'll make a success of it all right. I know you will."

For a while Jim was on the run from early morning till often late at night, without doing much good. Then, here and there, small pieces of business he had been working on were concluded. He was encouraged—and the great game of making money got into his blood. Rarely now was there time for listening to the radio. Kitty watched him affectionately—and went on spending.

WHEN, later, Jim negotiated the sale of some valuable acreage to a development company Kitty made him buy her a smart coupe and move into a larger apartment. She did not particularly want either, but she was guarding against his accumulating a bank balance and possibly resting on his laurels.

In due course Jim became the star salesman of his concern; most of the important deals were handed over to him. And the more money he made the more Kitty spent.

"How do you know I can pay all these?" Jim asked her once when she handed him a neat pile of bills.

"I don't know," she answered. "I'm your wife, not your cashier." He laughed in the way a fond and indulgent husband does at his wife's extravagances.

Not until Jim went into business for himself did Kitty cease to keep him up in the collar by spending. Jim Priestley—or rather J. Clinton Priestley—is in a big way now. His offices cover two floors of a towering building, and his country home, surrounded by acres of well-groomed lawns and manicured trees, is one of the show places of the county. J. Clinton Priestley entertains bankers and Congressmen and magnates of commerce. He is nearing forty-five now and his waist-line has taken on an opulent convexity. Sometimes young men who come to see his daughter get him to talk about his rise from an unimportant clerking job to wealth and power. He usually ends the story by pointing out that he made his own way in the world. He is, he says, apologizing for using an over-worked expression, "a self-made man."
