Boy dies in blaze

A 6-year-old Borden County boy was killed and his 37-year-old father critically injured in a house fire just west of the Scurry County line Saturday night.

Charlie Lusch and his father Denny were apparently inside a frame residence on the Davenport Ranch when the dwelling caught fire around midnight Saturday.

The blaze occurred about 5 miles north of U.S. Hwy. 180 and 2 miles west of Farm Road 612.

A passing motorist — who told investigators he turned off 180 onto 612 after seeing a fire to the north — found the elder Lusch severly burned and walking along the farm road.

The motorist took Lusch — who had apparently walked about 2 miles from the house to the road — to a Fluvanna area residence where he called Scurry County EMS.

He was taken to the burn center at Lubbock General Hospital where he remained in critical condition Monday morning with burns over 95 percent of his body.

Lusch reportedly told emergency medical personnel that his house had "blown up" and he could not find his son.

Borden County authorities searched the ruins of the house through the night and ultimately located the body of the boy inside the remains of the house around 11 a.m. Sunday.

In Brief

Threat issued

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A statement purportedly issued by Islamic Jihad says the Shiite Moslem extremist group will never negotiate with the pope, archbishop of Canterbury or President Reagan for the release of its American hostages.

The statement, delivered early Sunday to the west Beirut offices of the An-Nahar newspaper, also warned that the hostages, known to number at least three, would be killed "unless our demands are met."

Steel trouble

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Steelworkers in Indiana hinted there could be trouble if USX Corp. reopens its Gary works, while others continued to blockade a plant near here as a work stoppage at the steelmaker entered its fourth day.

United Steelworkers union officials, representing about 7,500 employees at Gary, USX's largest plant, met Sunday to discuss plans should a steel casting machine be restarted Tuesday.

Hot checks

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — It's usally Christmas when high numbers of hot checks move through the Ector County attorney's office, but the deluge has come sooner as this oil-dependent city suffers the effects of collapsing oil prices.

By the end of July, the attorney's office handled 5,702 bad checks, compared with 6,282 during all of 1985, officials said.

Jana Pugh, supervisor of the office's hot check division, said the situation reminds her of the Christmas holiday season, usually the prime time of the year for bad check writers.

U. S.-Soviet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union, taking a major step toward a summit meeting next year, have arranged agenda-planning talks here in September between Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Eduard A. Shevardnadze, the Soviet foreign minister.

However, a date for the summit itself has not been set.

OPEC ponders oil production cuts

GENEVA (AP) — Kuwait today announced it was slashing oil production by nearly half in accordance with an Iranian proposal to reduce OPEC's output and raise prices, as the 12 other cartel members studied the plan.

Iran's proposal would return all members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries except Iraq and Ecuador to production levels of October 1984 and cut the cartel's combined output to around 16 million barrels a day, said high-ranking OPEC sources, who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

The developments appeared to bring the cartel closer to an agreement on cutting production, which many oil industry analysts regard as the key to reversing a worldwide slump in prices.

The OPEC sources declined to give more details about the proposal, but said initial responses from member governments were enthusiastic.

Kuwait's official news agency KUNA, the country said it was accepting Iran's "temporary solution" to the quota problem.

The statement — the first official confirmation of Iran's plan — said Kuwait's acceptance was conditional on all OPEC member countries, except Iraq, abiding by their quotas. Iraq and Iran have been warring for nearly six years.

It said Kuwait would reduce production by 700,000 barrels a day from its current output of 1.6 million barrels a day, in line with the Iranian proposal.

It said Kuwait would break the agreement if any other country violates the quota accord.

The 13-nation cartel is currently pumping around 20 million barrels a day to an already glutted world market and such a production cut would gradually substantially raise oil prices, analysts said.

The oil glut has dropped oil prices from nearly $32 per 42-gallon barrel last November to levels between $7.35 and $12 — or less, according to some reports.

Until now, Iraq had demanded a quota equal to that of Iran, while Iran has demanded two barrels for each additional barrel given to Iraq. By relaxing its stance, Iran unexpectedly appears to have cleared a major hurdle blocking the week-old conference.

Iran was producing as much oil in October 1984 as it is now, about 2.3 million barrels a day. Iraq's old quota had been 1.2 million barrels a day.

Iraq, however, has been producing around 2.0 million barrels a day recently, according to its oil minsiter, Qassim Taki.

Under the Iranian plan, Ecuador would be given a quota slightly higher than it had in 1984, according to the sources.

The ministers, who have been meeting in a Geneva conference for a week, were expected to reconvene again later in the day to hear the responses from governments to the Iranian plan.

The Iranian idea came during a meeting between Iran's Oil Minister Gholamreza Aghazadeh and Saudi Arabia's influential Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the sources said.

Meanwhile in Abu Dhabi, the semi-official daily newspaper al-Ittihad, quoting sources at the Geneva OPEC meeting, said that Saudi Arabia's Oil Minister Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani received approval from his government to go back to the old output ceiling.

Yamini also called for the preservation of the old national output quotas under that ceiling.

Two hospitalized in rollover today

An early morning accident Monday hospitalized two Snyder men — one at Cogdell Memorial and the other at Lubbock General Hospital.

The wreck — an automobile rollover which included four individuals inside the vehicle — occurred in north Snyder at 3:30 a.m.

Transferred to Lubbock for treatment of compound fractures of the hand was 20-year-old Billy Newton of 2210 Gilmore Ave.

In surgery at Cogdell at 11 a.m. Monday was 20-year-old Phillip Steven Cox of 607 24th St.

Both Newton and Cox were passengers in a 1983 Mazda driven by 18-year-old Shane Edward Compton of Rt. 2, Snyder. The vehicle overturned after striking a guard rail on the U.S. Hwy. 84 access road just east of Ave. O.

Both Compton and 20-year-old Kenneth Breedlove of 405 33rd St. were treated for less serious injuries at Cogdell and released.

Compton was also charged by police with driving while intoxicated.

Jail plan is mulled

Commissioners Monday discussed but took no action on a proposed contract with Lubbock County to house local juvenile offenders.

The court postponed any action pending discussion with members of the county juvenile board.

Commissioners requested Judge Preston Wilson discuss the proposal with Judge Gene Dulaney and the county judge in Borden County, who make up the three-member juvenile board.

Local Probation Officer Larry Thompson was unable to attend

Driver in hospital for back injuries

A 23-year-old Snyder woman was listed in serious condition at Lubbock General Hospital Monday morning recovering from a possible broken back.

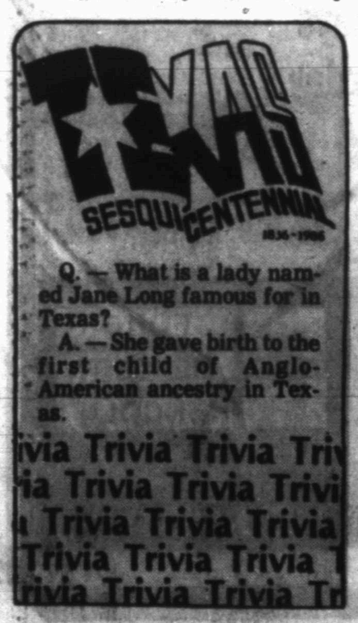

Her injuries were sustained in a one-vehicle traffic mishap which occurred just before midnight Saturday.

According to Department of Public Safety accident reports, Jessica Fuentez of 604 29th St. was driving a 1976 Cadillac northbound on Texas Hwy. 208 when she apparently lost control of the car.

It left the roadway and overturned after striking a culvert. The wreck occurred just south of Dunn about 11:50 p.m.

Mrs. Fuentz was taken from the scene to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by units of Scurry County EMS and later transferred to the Lubbock facility.

Her husband Johnny — a passenger in the car at the time of the wreck — was treated and released from the Cogdell emergency room.

Q. — What is a lady named Jane Long famous for in Texas?

A. — She gave birth to the first child of Anglo-American ancestry in Texas.

Telecast, more events add AJRA fanfare

The AJRA National Finals Rodeo will feature some added fanfare as it returns to Scurry County Coliseum this year.

For the first time, the finals will be presented in a national telecast, covering 22 states on major network stations and six cable sports networks. The program will be broadcast live on Saturday, Aug. 16, beginning at 8 p.m. Other portions of the rodeo will also be aired.

Saturday's performance will feature the top four cowboys and cowgirls in each event and age division going head to head.

Earlier in the day, a parade is scheduled for 1 p.m. It will be followed by a barbecue at 4 p.m. and an auction at 5 p.m. The performance itself is scheduled for 8 p.m. and will put an end--almost--to a week-long of riding and roping. Almost, because an AJRA-exes rodeo will be held the following day, Sunday, at 10 a.m. Events include barrel racing, team roping and calf roping.

Actually, AJRA and related activities get underway as early as Sunday when a world champion barrel race for kids age eight and under will be held.

Team roping finals are set for 10 a.m. Monday, Aug. 8, and slack begins Monday evening.

For most of the general public, however, the rodeo begins with the first actual AJRA performance, scheduled for 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 12. Shows will be held nightly from the 12th through the 16th.

Special features will include a cowboy's Fellowship of Christian Athletes meeting with Dennis McKinley of Keller as guest speaker at 2 p.m. on the 13th. Then Friday, the 15th, champion bull rider Bobby Del Vecchio will give a safety seminar following the 9 a.m. slack. Miss AJRA will be crowned the night of the 15th, and all-around champions of the rodeo will also be named.

National sponsors of the rodeo are Wrangler, Barqs Root Beer, Walls Industries and Stetson Hats.

Back once again as announcer for the sixth consecutive year will be Bob Tallman. Bill Venz will serve as co-announcer.

Tallman, known for his Great American Cowboy radio series, will be lending his voice to the television commentary, along with Pam Minick, former Miss Rodeo America, and Vecchio.

Pro clowns Rick Chatman, Tom Feller and Leon Coffee will again spotlight the finals rodeo.

Tickets for the AJRA Finals may be purchased at the Snyder chamber office, McDonalds and at the gate nightly. Box seats are $6 each and general admission is $4 for adults and $2 for children.

Shcharansky says family will be able to leave Russia

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Human rights activist Anatoly B. Shcharansky, freed in February after nearly nine years in Soviet prisons and labor camps, says his family has been granted permission to join him in Israel this month.

"I spoke to my mother this morning," Shcharansky said Sunday in an Israel Radio interview. "She cried the whole time and told me they had received a permit, and in another three weeks they will be in Jerusalem, thank God."

Shcharansky, 38, was released from a Soviet jail and flown to Israel from West Germany as part of an East-West prisoner exchange on Feb. 11.

Before his release, he had served nearly nine years of a 14-year sentence stemming from his conviction on charges of spying for the United States, an accusation he and U.S. officials denied.

His wife, Avital, was allowed to leave the Soviet Union earlier, and had spent the last nine years campaigning for his release. She is now expecting their first child.

Last week, Shcharansky accused Soviet authorities of breaking an agreement under which he was freed, according to which his mother, Ida Milgrom, brother Leonid and other family members reportedly would be allowed to leave for Israel immediately following his release.

He told Israel Radio on Sunday that U.S. diplomatic pressure had convinced the Soviets to give his family the emigration permits.

In today's editions, The New York Times quoted Leonid Shcharansky in Moscow as saying that he and his mother were free to leave the Soviet Union and must depart no later than Aug. 23.

According to The Times, Leonid Shcharansky said his wife, Iraida, and their two sons, Alexander, 15, and Boris, 1, also received permission to emigrate.

The Times said the approval was granted almost four months after Leonid Shcharansky, an engineer, and his mother applied for exit visas, and two weeks after Miss Milgrom sent an open letter to the Supreme Soviet, the nominal parliament, appealing for permission to be reunited with her son.

"I had very little hope," The Times quoted Shcharansky's mother as saying in a telephone interview.

AIF suggests people visit nuclear plants

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Industrial Forum wants you to visit a nuclear power plant on your summer vacation trip. Honest.

How long has this been going on?

Well, last year. And the year before that. At least they mailed out press releases about it both times, and again this year.

And what happened?

"Before, it disappeared without a trace," said Scott Peters, a forum spokesman. "But this year the three of us have probably done a dozen radio and television interviews."

And what do people say?

"The reaction is, 'Are you crazy? I don't want to go near a nuke plant.'"

And what do you say to that?

"Absolutely, go visit one. Demystify it. There's a lot you can learn."

What can you learn?

Well, according to the press release by Peters and his colleagues, many Americans are concerned about the accident at the Soviet nuclear power plant near Chernobyl. "A visit to one of ours will provide an opportunity to learn first-hand about U.S. safety features," they quoted Carl Walske, president of AIF as saying.

Surely there's more to it than that?

To quote Walske again: "One of the reasons Americans are taking to the highways this summer is the abundance, and low cost, of gasoline. (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) officials themselves acknowledge that nuclear energy is responsible for the permanent loss of market for about 6 million barrels a day of OPEC oil. What better time than this to learn how it happened?"

The forum, a major trade group of utilities, supplier companies and others involved in nuclear power, has published a pamphlet listing 89 "energy information centers" in the United States and Canada. Most are at utility plants, including 54 nuclear plants.

The pamphlet advises calling or writing ahead for information about fees, hours and facilities. For instance, some even have picnic tables.

Of the nuclear plants, the Three Mile Island visitors' center was the most popular in 1984, the most recent year for which figures have been compiled, with 85,000 visitors. Overall, a million people visited nuclear plants that year and 500,000 visited other utility installations.

Don't want to visit a nuke?

Then you can pick from the other visitor centers: 10 general, eight research, six hydroelectric dams, six coal plants, three pumped storage plants, two museums, one general fossil, two nuclear breeder centers, one of them a historic site, one solar and one distribution center (this doesn't add up to 89 because of duplications).

People confused on defense issues

NEW YORK (AP) — A majority of Americans believe the United States can defend itself against nuclear attack, although most people cannot name the key element of that defense, according to a Media General-Associated Press poll.

The only defense the country currently has against nuclear attack is deterrence: Soviet fear of a counterattack.

Once an attack is launched, the United States has no way to stop incoming missiles — a weakness that prompted President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative, commonly called "Star Wars."

Six in 10 of the 1,365 adult Americans in the poll said the United States' ability to defend itself against nuclear attack was good or excellent, while only one-third believed it was fair or poor.

Forty-six percent said they did not know what was the key factor in the U.S. defense against nuclear attack. Thirteen percent cited missiles and other weapons, 12 percent said early detection, and 5 percent said Star Wars, which exists only as a proposal.

Only 5 percent said Soviet fear of retaliation was the key factor. The rest cited other elements.

Reagan's Star Wars plan has the support of about half of Americans, but many say defense priorities should remain concerned with conventional weapons, the poll found.

Fifty-two percent said Reagan's plan to seek a space-based anti-missile defense system was necessary to counter a Soviet threat, while 34 percent opposed the plan because they felt it would intensify the arms race. The rest were unsure.

Half of those polled said that if the United States continued to increase its military budget, they would prefer to see more spent on conventional defense systems, while about 30 percent said the money should be used for Star Wars research. The rest were unsure.

Davis spends special day rebuking devil

EULESS, Texas (AP) — On the anniversary of the shootings at his mansion, born-again Christian Cullen Davis rebuked pagan vices and preached warnings about Chinese food and Masonic organizations.

During a seminar in this Fort Worth suburb Saturday, Davis had advice for participants on a wide-ranging number of subjects, including alcohol, tobacco, "worldly" records and tapes and art objects from China, India and Africa.

"Satan, I declare myself loosed from you and your demons," the Fort Worth industrialist said as he led prayers aimed at exorcising demons from himself and others at the seminar.

"I break off all curses," Davis said. "Satan, I rebuke you now and all your demons. Leave me now. You have no more ground to stay."

Davis became a born-again Christian under the guidance of the Rev. James Robison after spending much of the late 1970s facing criminal charges. His legal problems began in 1976 as the result of a shooting spree at his mansion.

A gunman wounded Davis' estranged wife, Priscilla, and Gus Gavrel Jr., who was left partially paralyzed. The gunman also killed Ms. Davis' boyfriend, Stan Farr, and her daughter from a previous marriage, Andrea Wilborn, 12.

Davis, who was charged in the shootings, was acquitted of killing his stepdaughter. Prosecuters later dismissed charges in the other shootings.

He also was tried twice on a murder-for-hire charge stemming from an alleged plot to have his divorce court judge killed. After the first trial ended with a hung jury, Davis was acquitted during a second trial.

On Saturday, Davis specifically attacked demons related to sins of the past, but he did not discuss his legal problems of the past.

However, one of the prayers was aimed at getting rid of "ungodly soul ties," which Davis said could be a relationship with an ex-wife or any person in the past.

"In the name of Jesus Christ, I put off all the old, the old creation," Davis said. "I put off any remaining soul ties with persons in the past which would hinder my growth and my walk (as a Christian). I reject them and put them off in the name of Jesus Christ."

He told seminar participants that they must cleanse their homes of objects that could be carriers of demons. Four years ago, Davis and Robison destroyed what they said was $1 million worth of "pagan" art objects at the Davis mansion four years ago.

"God will not tolerate your possession of these things," he said. "It's a sin to possess anything that God does not like."

Demons can be attached to all sorts of objects, Davis said, even pictures of former girlfriends.

"You should get rid of that picture of that old girlfriend you used to shack up with," he said.

Lawmakers threaten to ask Justice Dept. to investigate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two House committee chairmen say they will turn to the Justice Department if the Pentagon does not recover money that it paid, perhaps illegally, to generate support for nerve gas weapons.

A congressional study said the Defense Department illegally hired a lobbyist and a public relations man last year to influence Congress and the media in the military's quest to produce new nerve gas weapons.

The accusation was made by the General Accounting Office, the investigative wing of Congress, in a June 25 report released Sunday by two House committee chairmen, Jack Brooks, D-Texas, of Government Operations and Dante Fascell, D-Fla., of Foreign Affairs.

Brooks and Fascell asked Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger what he will do to recover the money paid to the lobbyist, John A.C. Gibson, and the PR man, Peter Hannaford, a former public relations partner of Michael Deaver, the ex-White House deputy chief of staff.

"If you are unsuccessful in recovering these funds, we intend to request the Justice Department to take appropriate action to recover these funds," they wrote to Weinberger.

In a prepared statement, Brooks said that "this is a very serious matter. The more we learn about how the Pentagon violated laws and regulations to stack the deck, the more outrageous it becomes."

Fascell said in the same statement that "the illegalities and the misuse of funds are troubling."

The document was released with the House prepared to vote as early as this week to retract the conditional go-ahead given by Congress in 1985 for the new chemical arsenal.

The GAO report said the selling job was done on behalf of the now-disbanded presidential Chemical Warfare Review Commission, which recommended production of binary nerve gas weapons.

The report said the hiring of two men in March 1985 violated laws against the Pentagon spending money to influence Congress or paying for "publicity or propaganda purposes" without specific congressional authorization.

The report said the office of the secretary of defense "violated statutory restrictions by employing a legislative affairs consultant and a public affairs consultant in support of the CWRC."

There was no wrongdoing alleged against Gibson or Hannaford by GAO or the committee chairmen.

Exercises show ability to defend Middle East

MARCH AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Military exercises in the Southern California desert show the United States isn't a "paper tiger" in its efforts to protect the flow of Persian Gulf oil to the West, says the commander of the latest maneuvers.

But in making that claim as the exercise wound down, Marine Gen. George B. Crist admitted the Pentagon still has a way to go before it can be sure of its ability to move troops and weapons halfway around the globe to Middle East trouble spots.

Crist's assessment came in a news conference near the end of the latest "Gallant Eagle" exercises, which involved 35,000 personnel from all four services and eight Western states. The chief portion of the exercise ended Sunday.

The Gallant Eagle exercise was another test of the Pentagon's media pool, created after the U.S. military kept journalists out of Grenada during the first 48 hours of the 1983 invasion.

Thirteen journalists from print and broadcast media were secretly called Friday and flown from Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington to the Mojave Desert. Pentagon officials said they were pleased that no word of the pool's activation leaked out.

Most of Gallant Eagle was concentrated in the Mojave Desert southeast of Los Angeles, in hot, dry terrain which Crist says is similar to much of the Middle East, where Crist's Central Command might one day be deployed.

The Central Command, or CentCom as it's known in Pentagon parlance, is the successor to the Rapid Deployment Force. That was the Pentagon unit created to put military force behind the 1979 pledge by then-President Carter that the United States would protect the flow of Persian Gulf oil to the West.

The bidding gives a clue

By James Jacoby

"Review the bidding before choosing an opening lead" is one of H.W. Kelsey's instructions in his book "101 Bridge Maxims." Often the success of a slam rides solely on the lead. West did not expect today's slam to make, but wisely did not double.

South trumped the club lead and immediately ruffed a small diamond in dummy. Then he led dummy's spade queen, losing to the king. West returned a spade to South's jack, and declarer drew a third round of trumps, discarding a club from dummy. He could now play hearts, hoping that they split, but first he cashed the ace of diamonds, pitching a club from dummy. Since the king fell, he now had more diamond winners to play before trying hearts. On the Q-J of diamonds he threw two hearts from dummy. He then played his last spade. West now had to either discard the bare ace of clubs, which would make dummy's queen good, or shed a heart. When West let a heart go, declarer discarded dummy's club queen and cashed four heart tricks to make the contract.

Although declarer played with skill, he could never have made the slam if West had led a heart originally. Then, on getting in with the spade king, West would have led a second heart, allowing East to ruff. West should trust South's five-club cue-bid to be showing a void, and should not count on a club trick. He should also mark South with five spades and six diamonds, since bidding the minor first and then bidding and rebidding the major is the standard way to show 6-5 distribution.

Have physician check symptoms

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My present weight is 115 pounds and I am 5 feet 5. I would like to gain a few pounds, since I'm most comfortable at 125-128. I feel nauseated a lot, have no appetite and am exhausted all the time. Is there a medical reason for this (I am not anemic) or is it simply due to bad eating habits?

DEAR READER — Nausea, loss of appetite and exhaustion raise the possibility of a medical condition. Many different diseases can cause the symptoms you describe. Get checked by a doctor. Even if you simply have an eating problem, a physician may be able to straighten out the situation and help you feel better.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My daughter is only 7, but when she sweats she gets a terrible perspiration odor. I bathe her every night. Could the soap be causing this problem? What can I do for her?

DEAR READER — Body odor can be a difficult problem. Rather than switching soaps and experimenting on your own, take your daughter for an examination by a pediatrician. That way, you can get some expert professional advice.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am menopausal and have systemic allergies, but am basically a pretty upbeat sort of person. The problem is that I get so exhausted that I have to use a cane. Have you ever heard of someone reacting to the change of life this way? I take estrogen.

DEAR READER — Menopause can cause weakness and loss of energy in some women. These complaints aren't common, but they can occur. The estrogen you are taking should counteract the menopausal symptoms, so I think you need a thorough medical evaluation to make sure there isn't another cause for your problem. Thyroid deficiency, anemia and glandular imbalances can cause exhaustion, as can a host of medical ills. Ask your gynecologist to refer you to an internal-medicine diagnostician — and please let me know the outcome.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 18, 5 feet tall and weigh 90 pounds. I find that if I eat more than 1,100 calories a day, I gain weight. Do I have a thyroid problem?

DEAR READER — That is a good possibility. Your caloric requirement may simply be lower than normal or you may be burning up calories too slowly.

Ninety pounds seems a little on the light side to me. Would you feel more comfortable at 110? Perhaps your body is telling you to eat more, that you need more weight. I suggest that you check with a doctor who can not only evaluate your thyroid function but also your whole nutritional status.

Rangers tag Milwaukee, 7-6; fight back in American West

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Milwaukee's pitching was just what the Texas Rangers needed to resume the hot competition for first place in the American League West.

"It's funny. You come in here against the best staff in the American League and you score a lot of runs. You go through streaks like that," Texas first baseman Pete O'Brien said.

He led the Rangers with three homers and 10 RBIs in a four-game series against the Brewers as Texas won three times.

"That's what we need to do," he said. "We lost seven games to start the second half of the season, but we didn't let that get us down."

The Rangers banged out 56 hits and scored 30 runs in the series which the Brewers had begun with the best team earned-run average in the league.

The Rangers collected 12 hits Sunday in their 7-6 victory, pulling to within two games of division-leading California in the AL West. O'Brien hit a two-run homer and drove in another run with a double.

"O'Brien's swinging the bat great. I don't see any reason he shouldn't be hot the rest of the year," Texas Manager Bobby Valentine said.

The Brewers scored 23 runs in the series.

"The pitching wasn't good on either side, really. They outscored us," said Milwaukee Manager George Bamberger, whose Brewers had swept a three-game series from the New York Yankees before meeting the Rangers.

"What it is, this club came in here and got hot. A while back they couldn't buy a run," he added.

Bamberger had his starting pitching to blame too. Danny Darwin, 6-7, gave up two home runs and three runs on his first four pitches Sunday to fit the pattern established by Brewers' starters in the other games.

"We were playing catch-up every time," Bamberger said.

The Brewers, trailing 7-4 entering the bottom of the ninth, made it close on Ernest Riles' two-out, two-run homer off Greg Harris. Dale Mohorcic got his third save by striking out Rob Deer, who hit two home runs and had three RBIs.

"They were really for a lost cause," Deer said. "I knew (Mohorcic) wasn't going to give me anything to hit, and I got a little anxious."

Jeff Russell, 3-1, pitched 2 1-3 scoreless innings to get the victory in relief of Mike Loynd, who walked five and gave up three hits and three runs in 3 2-3 innings in his third major-league start.

Harris was tagged for three runs in 2 2-3 innings, including Deer's solo homer in the eighth and Riles' two-run shot in the ninth.

Darwin was tagged for a home run by Oddibe McDowell on the first pitch of the game. Scott Fletcher singled and O'Brien, the No. 3 batter, hit his 15th home run of the season.

The Brewers were to start a four-game series in New York tonight, while Texas' three-game set against Baltimore begins Tuesday.

Kite takes over when others fall

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) - Tom Kite, so often denied victory by bizarre quirks of golfing fate, was all but bewildered when he became a beneficiary.

"It makes no sense," he said after a massive collapse of the other contenders put him in position Sunday to win the Western Open golf tournament.

"I don't understand this game. I suppose when I die I still won't understand this game," Kite said. "There are times when you go into the last round with the lead, and play your heart out and shoot a good score and somebody has one better and you lose.

"Then, maybe on the very next week, something like this happens. It just makes no sense."

But it made him a winner again.

Kite, nine shots back at one point in the last round, pulled himself together and beat the brutal Butler National Golf Club course with the best round of the day, a 4-under-par 68. Then he sat around for a couple of hours waiting for someone to beat his four-day total of 2-under-par 286.

No one did.

"It was nerve-racking," Kite said.

Fred Couples and South Africans Nick Price and David Frost, who finished birdie-birdie, eventually tied Kite and forced a playoff.

Kite, so frequently a contender but so infrequently a winner in the last six years quickly solved that tangle.

He hit a sand wedge second shot to within four feet of the flag on the first playoff hole and rapped the putt into the back of the cup for a winning birdie.

The victory was worth $90,000 from the total purse of $500,000 and elevated Kite into fifth place on the all-time money-winning list at $2,829,865.

Chicago's Morman gets hot

by The Associated Press

Slumping players often go from the major leagues to the minors. Russ Morman did it the other way.

"I was just glad to break out of a slump. I hadn't had a hit in about a week-and-a-half," Morman said Sunday after a spectacular debut in which he went 3-for-4 and became the second player in history to collect two hits in an inning in his first big-league game as the Chicago White Sox battered the Detroit Tigers, 10-1.

The 24-year-old Morman, brought up from Buffalo of the Class AAA American Association to replace injured first baseman Greg Walker, singled in his first at-bat in the second inning.

He opened a six-run fourth inning with an upper deck home run off loser Randy O'Neal and capped it with a run-scoring single off Jim Slaton. The only other player to have two hits in the same inning in his first major-league game was Billy Martin of the New York Yankees on April 18, 1950.

In other American League games, it was Boston 5, Kansas City 3; Toronto 6, Baltimore 4; New York 12, Cleveland 8; California 6, Seattle 3; Texas 7, Milwaukee 6 and Oakland 5, Minnesota 4 in 11 innings.

Red Sox 5, Royals 3

Wade Boggs broke a tie with a two-run single off Charlie Leibrandt in the seventh inning and Jim Rice drove in two runs with a homer and sacrifice fly as Boston stretched its AL East lead to 4½ games over Baltimore and New York. Boggs also had a first-inning double.

Yankees 12, Indians 8

Rickey Henderson's three-run homer highlighted a 10-run outburst as the two teams set a modern major-league record with 16 fifth-inning runs. The previous AL record for fifth-inning runs came when the Yankees outscored the Washington Senators 14-0 on July 6, 1920. The National League mark was set June 3, 1890, when Brooklyn scored 11 runs to five for New York. On April 16, 1953, Philadelphia outscored Pittsburgh 9-6 for the modern NL record.

Blue Jays 6, Orioles 4

The score was tied 4-4 when Buck Martinez opened the Toronto seventh by drawing a walk. One out later Tony Fernandez hit the first pitch from Mike Flanagan over the left-field fence for his sixth home run of the season.

George Bell also homered for Toronto.

Mariners 6, Angels 3

Alvin Davis hit a two-run single in a four-run first inning against rookie Ray Chadwick as California saw its lead over Texas in the AL West trimmed to two games.

Booster club month proclaimed; group plans numerous activities

Mayor Rod Waller has designated August as Snyder Booster Club month and the Snyder High School All-Sports Booster Club has planned a number of activities.

Club officers for 1986-87 are Bill Marvin, president; Robert Adams, vice-president; Jan Lanier, secretary; and David Holt, treasurer.

The club kickoff begins Tuesday, Aug. 5 with the first meeting at 7 p.m. in the school student center.

"It is imperative to have the parents of all athletes present," urged Marvin. "With the events planned for August, support is needed from everyone."

"Super Saturday," Aug. 16, is the first major event for the club, which has planned food booths, local live entertainment, contests and an opportunity for the community to meet some of the athletes. Festivities will begin at 9 a.m. at the square.

At 1 p.m., the AJRA Rodeo parade begins. The booster club urges merchants to support the parade with sidewalk sales and also to wear SHS school colors of black and gold.

A booster club bake sale and T-Shirt sale will be held at Family Fitness Center.

Marvin also noted, "We would like everyone to save and collect aluminum cans from now until Aug. 16 and bring them to the Crush Tulia wagon. Any individual, group or civic organization interested in participating is asked to contact one of the officers."

Anyone interested in performing for the entertainment should contact Connie Miller at 573-4814 or Smith Music Co. for a time schedule.

Booster memberships are on sale for $5 for an individual membership and $10 for a family membership. Business memberships include a $25 Black and Gold, a $50 Ragin' Tiger, or a $100 Super Booster.

Bears spank Cowboys, 17-6, in festive Wembley Stadium

WEMBLEY, England (AP) - On a night when the "Star-Spangled Banner" was booed, soccer songs filled the air and a streaker hit the turf, why shouldn't a 308-pound running back score a touchdown?

Actually, William "The Refrigerator" Perry's one-yard scoring strut was among the more commonplace events Sunday as pro football returned to Britain.

The Chicago Bears beat the Dallas Cowboys 17-6 in an NFL exhibiton opener billed as American Bowl '86, the latest attempt to show England what big-time football is all about.

More than 82,000 fans, including a large group of Americans but comprised mainly of soccer-and cricket-loving Britons, packed Wembley Stadium for the match, and they saw the best and worst of the sport.

The best was on defense. The Bears, last year's Super Bowl champions and the overwhelming crowd favorites, forced four turnovers and shut down the Cowboys offense whenever it got near the goalline. The Cowboys, meanwhile, held the Bears to 251 yards total offense.

The worst was a gaggle of mistakes that are common in preseason games, especially the first one, but which left portions of the crown chanting, "Boring, boring," toward the end.

"Ah, they're different," Bears Coach Mike Ditka said of the English fans. "They're entitled to their own opinions, though."

Tom Landry, the Cowboy coach, said the fans had reason to get down on his team.

"It wasn't as good a game as I thought we'd play," he said.

Of all of the players on the field - and practically all of the 80-plus members of each squad saw action - Perry was the one many of the fans had come to see. He did not let them down.

The second-year defensive tackle helped the Bears pick up where they left off last season, when they lost just once and had the NFL's dominant defense.

Chicago sacked Dallas quarterbacks three times and pressured them constantly. The Bear defense scored the game's first touchdown on a 48-yard runback of a fumble recovery by strong safety Dave Duerson, and Perry then capped the performance with his TD.

Steve Fuller, who replaced Jim McMahon at quarterback to start the second quarter, directed a drive to the Cowboy 1-yard line, going the final 16 yards on a rollout. Ditka then inserted Perry at running back.

Fuller handed the ball to the Fridge and when no hole opened, Perry just kept pushing until he was over the goalline.

Downpours throughout the day left the Wembley field soggy, and a mist that occasionally changed to steady rain stuck around throughout the 3½-hour game.

Music was often a key to the fans' demeanor.

When the American national anthem was played before kickoff, a smattering of boos accompanied it. "God Save the Queen" was sung with vigor.

When play began to get tepid at the start of the second half, the fans took up soccer songs, notably "Here We Go," a simple little ditty usually saved for games involving the national team.

With the game winding down and Chicago turning back a pair of late Dallas drives inside the 20, the streaker appeared.

Running naked onto a playing field was a fad in the United States a decade ago. Here it is enjoying a rebirth, usually involving young women at cricket matches. At Wembley, the subject was male.

He burst from the west stands in the final quarter and was caught well before he reached the playing surface.

UGSA wrapup

USFL future doubtful as owners meet today

NEW YORK (AP) - Divided in opinion, USFL owners meet today to decide the fate of their troubled league. But only a sweeping mandate to continue from all eight owners will keep the USFL in business, according to Commissioner Harry Usher.

"It won't really be a vote," Usher said. "It's a decision the league will have to make. If it's five to three to play, you can't play with five teams."

If pre-meeting reports are accurate, owners are split exactly in half on continuation. They show the vote as 4-4, with New Jersey, Tampa Bay, Orlando and Arizona pushing for continuation, and Baltimore, Birmingham, Jacksonville and Memphis leaning toward one of the other alternatives.

"The unique thing about the USFL," said Baltimore president Carl Peterson, "is that we always seem to come out of these meetings more together."

Usher said the owners could take one of three courses of action. They could stop operations, suspend them for one season or begin their fourth year of play - first in the traditional fall season.

Last week, the USFL won its antitrust suit against the NFL, but got only a token award of $3. They were asking for $1.69 billion.

Even so, some owners were hopeful of continuing.

"I never expected to fund this season with the NFL's money, anyway," Tampa Bay Bandits owner Lee Scarfone said. "We are going to play or we're not going to play, and the Bandits came to play football.

"I don't want to do any magic tricks or consider 15 different options. We've got to go forward. We're losing our credibility."

New Jersey Generals President Jerry Argovitz was equally adamant in his feelings.

"The NFL thinks we don't have enough guts, that we'll just be quiet and fold up our tents. That makes me angry," Argovitz told the Washington Post. "We want to play football; we want to compete. What did we ever do wrong but want free enterprise and spend $200 million to prove you can have it?"

If the eight decide to play a fall schedule - play is set to begin Sept. 13 - losses for each team without a commerical network contract are projected at $3 million to $5 million. Some feel that's too large a sum to swallow, again.

"If it's a question of losing money with no future, who wants to play?" Baltimore Stars owner Stephen Ross asked.

Freed priest said in seclusion

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — The Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco began a week of seclusion today after cheering worshippers watched him celebrate his first Mass since returning home from 19 months of captivity in Lebanon.

"Please pray for me," a white-robed Jenco told more than 1,500 worshipers who gathered for the Mass on Sunday at St. Raymond's Cathedral, where he received repeated standing ovations. "I need that support."

He urged the listeners, many of them friends and family, "to pray for my brothers who are still in captivity."

His brother, John Jenco, said the Roman Cathoic priest would make no public appearances for at least a week while he rested in Joliet and reacquainted himself with many relatives in the area.

"What a pleasure it is to have him among us after so many months," said Bishop Joseph Imesch, head of the Joliet diocese.

During most of the Mass, Jenco, 51, sat quietly, but he assisted in giving communion.

He said he and the three other American hostages regularly sang the hymn "Hear, O Lord." Then he quietly sang it to the congregation.

"Sometimes I am so overwhelmed because I know the Lord has heard my call," he said.

"You are a living martyr," auxiliary Bishop Roger Kaffer told Jenco during a homily in which he drew a parallel between the priest and Jesus. "Born in a suburban town, priest, serving in the Middle East, held captive, loving his captors, unexpectedly seen alive again on a Sunday afternoon walking with friends."

The homecoming ended a week in which Jenco was liberated, flew to West Germany, Rome, London and Washington to deliver secret messages he said had been given to him by his Shiite Moslem captors to Pope John Paul II, the archbishop of Canterbury and President Reagan.

On Sunday, a statement purportedly from Islamic Jihad, which has claimed it is holding the Americans captive, denied it sent messages to the three world leaders.

The statement, delivered to a Lebanese newspaper in Beirut, said the Moslem fundamentalist group would never negotiate for release of the remaining American hostages.

In remarks to ABC News, Jenco said, "I've kept a promise, and I'm keeping my promise."

At the cathedral Sunday, worshippers of many faiths from throughout the area started arriving two hours before the service.

Criminal mischief filed, possible burglary noted

Police are investigating a criminal mischief incident and a possible house burglary reported over the weekend.

The burglary incident was discovered at 9:10 a.m. Sunday by police on routine patrol of an unoccupied residence.

The front door of the Tommy Welch residence at 1400 19th St. was found standing open with no sign of forced entry.

As of Monday morning, the only item confirmed missing from the house was a recliner.

Richard Puente of 2805 College Ave. filed the criminal mischief complaint at 1:19 a.m. Sunday.

Puente contacted police who were answering a disturbance call at 1007 26th St. He reported the windows on his 1977 Toyota had been broken out while the vehicle was parked at that location.

No estimate was available for the value of damage to the Puente car.

In other weekend action, officers logged a total of six misdemeanor arrests.

Three suspects were jailed for driving while intoxicated and two for public intoxication. One of the PI suspects was also charged with disorderly conduct and the sixth suspect was arrested on misdemeanor warrants issued out of Scurry County court.

Scattered rain is too late for crops

By The Associated Press

A downpour drove 1,500 people praying for rain indoors, but agriculture officials say the scattered precipitation is too late to save the South's parched crops.

Southern farmers, meanwhile, thanked their counterparts in other regions for tons of hay that arrived by truck and train to feed starving livestock.

"It looks like real good quality hay," said Voyde White, after 71,000 bales from Kentucky arrived Sunday in Charlotte, N.C., by train, the largest single shipment of the haylift.

"We've been feeding them tomatoes, bread, cutoff corn — anything we could find. This'll save them for two weeks," the Cherryville, N.C., farmer said of his livestock.

Heavy rain fell in parts of the Southeast on Sunday, including 3.38 inches at Cherry Point, N.C., and 1.22 inches in Savannah, Ga., in six hours.

A flash flood in downtown Spartanburg, S.C., caused automobiles to stall. Water nearly 3-feet deep rushed across some streets, temporarily blocking traffic.

On Sunday night, organizers of an interfaith service in Charlotte to pray for rain had to move indoors after more than an inch of rain fell within an hour.

"We're thankful," said Sue Myrick, who organized the service that attracted 1,500 people. "We'll take anything we can get."

Showers and thunderstorms were forecast again for today over the Carolinas and eastern Georgia.

But rain that has fallen for a week over parts of the Southeast was expected to do little more than put a dent in the drought, which has left many areas with precipitation shortfalls measured in feet.

"I don't think the crop situation has changed significantly," said Katie Perry, an agricultural meteorologist with the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service. "Those losses have already occurred ... and are irretrievable."

Damage from the drought has been estimated at $2.3 billion from Pennsylvania to Florida. An accompanying heat wave in the South and Midwest has killed 101 people since July 1.

Tons of hay arrived over the weekend to help farmers feed starving cattle, after hay and other feed withered.

The 105-car train that arrived in Charlotte with about 2,000 tons of hay was the largest yet in the haylift, said officials of CSX Transportation Corp., which also has shipped hay to farmers in South Carolina and Georgia.

Drivers in a "Hayride 500" caravan of 43 NASCAR racing team trucks loaded with more than 20,000 bales of hay from Ohio got a rousing reception as they reached five cities in North Carolina late Saturday.

"People were waiting on the side of the road, on bridge overpasses all the way from Charlotte to Ohio and back to North Carolina just to wave to our caravan," organizer Tom Cotter said.

Dead boy's peers have 2nd thoughts

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Friends of a 17-year-old who officials believe died from sniffing freon say his death has made them reconsider the latest fad in this West Texas town.

"A lot of people were doing it at school, thinking it's cool. I'm sure they're going to stop now," said a 17-year-old boy who was among those with George Clements "Ty" Taylor III a few hours before he died last Friday.

Justice of the Peace Jerry Jennison ruled Taylor's death accidental cardiac arrest due to inhaling freon. An autopsy has been ordered.

Another boy said he'd been to see Taylor's body at the funeral home.

"It made me think. I've stopped. A lot of people have stopped," said the boy, who like his friends, asked that he not be identified.

Inhaling freon, a fluorocarbon used in refrigeration and as an aerosol propellant, became popular about a month ago, several junior high students said.

"You can buy it anywhere. It's cheap. It gives off a good high," one youth said. "It's really the only thing we can do that's legal."

But a teen-age fast-food restaurant worker said she doubts the death will deter youths from inhaling freon. "They don't think it will happen to them."

Taylor had graduated from Glenn Junior High School and was planning to enter New Mexico Military Institute this fall.

"It doesn't make much sense, a 15-year-old getting buried," said police Sgt. Dave Caudle.

Caudle said inhalants have been popular with teen-agers for years, but he was not aware that freon was being used in San Angelo.

City due hearing on '86-'87 budget

A public hearing for the 1986-87 city budget--an operating estimate which reflects a decrease from last year of almost 10 percent--is scheduled Monday.

Also slated is the first reading for both the budget and a proposed city tax rate of 25½ cents per $100 valuation, the same as charged last year.

Both will come during the regular August meeting of the council set to begin at 6:30 p.m. at city hall.

The budget has been characterized as a "wait and see" operating estimate with no major capital improvement projects planned for the year.

In addition to a repeat of the city tax rate, no new increases are projected for city service charges associated with water, sewer and sanitation.

And except for pay adjustments approved June 24, it also features no pay raises for city staffers.

The overall budget is estimated at some $4.4 million, compared to $4.9 million last year.

The exact budget estimate for the year, which officially begins Oct. 1, is $4,432,659. This compares to the current budget of $4,922,954.

Regarding the city's tax base, figures provided by the appraisal district indicate it increased by almost 2 percent — the primary factor pointed to in the city's ability to hold the line on both its tax rate and charges for city services.

Other business before the council Monday includes:

—Consider on first reading an ordinance to rezone five lots located in the 1500 Block of 37th St. from C-1 (commercial) to C-2 (commercial). The change has been requested by Lou Voss.

—Consider approving bid forms to secure bank depository bids.

—Consider allowing the city manager to seek bids for employee hospitalization and health insurance.

—Consider a request for motel tax monies from the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

No action noted on juvenile plan

Monday's meeting also since he is attending a probation school in Huntsville this week

He noted on Friday that his department had been looking for a contract to detain local juveniles in facilities at least within a 100-mile radius from Snyder.

The Lubbock contract allows 20 days for local offenders at $40 per day. Additional time can be acquired depending on space availability.

In other action, court members also agreed with Rev. Virgil Cornwell that volleyball games be permitted on the Towle Park tennis courts. The court on the east end will be designated to be used for either activity.

Gail Kinney, three Towle Park lifeguards and one substitute lifeguard also appeared to discuss hiring policies at the pool.

Commissioners also agreed that the county may be able to help fund misdemeaner probation cases through the adult probation department if state legislators reduce per capita funding during the August special session set to begin Wednesday in Austin.

Ginny Peveler with the county adult probation department noted that state funding was to be limited beginning in August of next year. She added that the budget may be cut at the end of this month pending the outcome of the special session.

The department raised probation fees from $15 to $25 on June 1 in anticipation of the cut in 1987. "If the budget reduction comes this year instead, we estimate that we will need $35,000 through December 1987," Peveler said. "We would not use that money (additional funds appropriated by the county) until the well runs dry," she said, a reference to the department's available resources

"Maybe by that time, we will be able to collect enough in fees not to have to use it."

Cruel Practices Make Product Testing Unsafe for Animals

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Your prayer for animals was very touching. Animals do need our prayers, but they also need us to stop the cruel and barbaric practice of using live animals to test cosmetics, hair spray, drain cleaner, nail polish remover, etc. No anesthetic is used, and these laboratory animals suffer agonizing pain. Dogs, rabbits, monkeys, cats, guinea pigs, mice and rats are used. For example: To test toxicity, animals are force-fed a substance such as drain cleaner, causing convulsions, paralysis and bleeding from the nose, eyes and mouth.

Another test measures the irritancy of products that might get into a person's eyes: Rabbits are placed in stocks to prevent them from clawing their eyes to dislodge the irritating substance. Only their necks and heads protrude. The lower lid of the rabbit's eye is pulled away from the eyeball to form a small cup. Into that cup is dropped some of the substance to be tested. The eye is then held closed for several seconds while the animal screams in pain. The other eye is left untreated to serve as a "control." The rabbit's eyes are then observed at specific intervals to see how severe the irritation is. Is the lid swollen? The iris inflamed? Did it cause blindness?

Alternatives to these tests do exist, but remain untried. I know this is a long letter on an unpleasant subject, but the public needs to know about it.

There is a bill pending — it's the Humane Product Testing Act (HR 1877). Abby, please print this and urge your readers to let their elected representatives know that they want this bill passed. Please be the voice of the voiceless.

DEAR ABBY: My two grandchildren live in the suburbs and attend a private school. The school is 15 to 20 minutes away by car, and the only way for these children to get there is to be driven by their parents.

In June their report cards showed that they had been late 40 times for the semester!

What do you think of these parents?

Caring ways averts lawsuits

DALLAS (AP) — Marsha Crear, a Delta Air Lines marketing representive, spent last Thanksgiving with the parents of Mark Vicich, who died two months after he was injured in the crash of Delta Flight 191.

"I care about those people," Ms. Crear said, "and I truly think they care about me, too."

The Viciches are not suing Delta. In April, Mark's 28-year-old widow, Charlene Vicich, accepted a $1.5 million settlement from the airline only one day after filing suit in federal court.

Only about 60 families are suing Delta over the Aug. 2, 1985 crash that killed 137 people. Attorneys attribute the small number of claims to the airline's sensitive treatment.

Although there are 160 potential lawsuits, only 59 have been filed in federal court, while another eight cases have been filed in California state court. One case has been tried and three others have been settled, the Dallas Morning News reported Sunday.

But although attorneys agreed the airline treated victims' families well, some charge the compassion was part of a corporate strategy to avoid litigation. Delta officials deny the allegation.

The friendship between the Vicich family and Ms. Crear was forged when all three monitored Mark's progress.

Attorneys credited the airline officials' attitude to the victims for the small number of suits filed.

"The people from Delta were so kind and caring, they (the families) felt it was almost a violation of some trust they had with them," said plaintiffs attorney Richard Brown, a partner in the nationally known Melvin Belli law firm in San Francisco.

Fort Worth attorney Rod Tanner, who represents one victim's family, said, "Some families were actually reluctant to file suit because of their feeling that Delta was as much of a victim as they were."

About 35 families have accepted settlements, said Delta's underwriter, United States Aviation Insurance Group. About 60 claimants are still undecided.

Other air disasters have prompted a substantial number of suits, with 145 filed in the December crash of Arrow Air jet at Gander, Newfoundland, which killed 250 U.S. servicemen.

In the previous crashes of an Air Florida plane in Washington, D.C. and a Pan Am jet near New Orleans, defense attorneys said, lawsuits on behalf of nearly every fatality had been filed within one year of the accidents.

U.S. District Judge David O. Belew, who is hearing the federal lawsuits against Delta in Fort Worth, said he is surprised by the comparatively small number of suits filed.

"I thought everybody would file a lawsuit," he said.

Attorney Brown contends that Delta did give special treatment to victims' families.

Bridge blocked again

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Waving flags and chanting political slogans, thousands of opposition party supporters marched to two international bridges linking this border city with El Paso, Texas, and blocked them.

It was the fourth such protest in the last three weeks by the National Action Party against alleged electoral fraud.

A third, one-way bridge connecting the downtown areas of each city was also blockaded Sunday night because of confusion, said Gustavo Elizondo, PAN mayoral candidate for Juarez. The bridge was cleared after about 40 minutes and traffic resumed.

Mother shoots attacker

DALLAS (AP) — A mother who shot and killed a teen-ager accused of trying to rape her 13-year-old daughter says she's sorry the boy died but she doesn't regret shooting him.

Thomas C. Phifer, 17, died of a single gunshot wound to the chest at Parkland Memorial Hospital late Friday. No charges were filed. Police said the results of heir investigation into the shooting will be referred to a grand jury in three weeks.

"I'm gonna have pain until I die because of what he attempted to do and then what I did," said the mother, whose name was withheld to protect the victim. "I took his life."

Texas oilman is ready for Titanic expedition

WOODS HOLE, Mass. (AP) — A Texas oil man, disagreeing with the leader of a recent expedition to the Titanic, says he's setting up a mission to gather relics from the fabled sunken luxury liner.

Oil magnate Jack Grimm is ready to bankroll a crew from the French Institute of Research for Exploration of the Sea, which could retrieve items such as wine bottles, dishes and pots and pans that have littered the ocean floor since the Titanic struck an iceberg and went down 74 years ago.

The French insitute teamed with an expedition from the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution last year to find the vessel but did not make the return trip this year.

"Mr. Grimm is very interested in our technology," said Francoise Vitali-Jacob, spokeswoman for the institute. "He has confidence in our technology, but we have not decided to do anything this year, although it's possible next year. But no, we haven't already reached an agreement."

Grimm is confident he will reach an agreement with the French for a 10-day expedition next July that he says would cost $600,000 to $700,000.

"In my discussions with (the French), we discussed the recovery of some of the artifacts and share ownership in them jointly," said the founder of Grimm Oil Co. "They were agreeable to that."

The institute has a minature submarine similar to Alvin, a submersible the Woods Hole team used on dives to the Titanic last month. The French sub could scoop up items with mechanical arms.

Grimm, who has made unsuccessful searches for Noah's Ark and the Loch Ness monster, said he was not moved by the plea of Robert Ballard, chief of the two Titanic expeditions, to allow the ship on which 1,513 died to "finally rest in peace."

"I'm not particularly influenced by what Mr. Ballard says," Grimm said in a telephone interview from his Abilene, Texas, office. "I just think it's something that millions of people would like to see done, and share in the excitement and experience of retrieving some of the treasures of the Titanic." Grimm said the items should be put on display at the Smithsonian Institution and maritime museums, and that he had no desire to sell them.

He said he would not take items from the inside of the ship because it would be difficult, if not impossible, to send the manned submarine inside.

He said he would concentrate on the "debris field," a large area where artifacts from the ship fell when the Titanic struck bottom 2½ miles below the ocean surface.

Chemical Pump Service Serves Many Oil Patch Needs

Chemical Pump Service, owned locally by Tom Machen, serves the needs of the oil patch, by carrying a full line of Texsteam Electric Drive Injectors. The 4100 Series Texsteam Injectors are positive displacement, plunger-type pumps which are gear driven and utilize electric motors, V-belts or other rotating drives as the power source. The unit's gear drive is housed in a precision-bored, heavy cast iron case with anti-friction bearings on the high speed shaft. The output gear, made of high strength alloy iron, is supported in a special bearing arrangement assuring extremely long life with maximum rigidity.

The entire worm-gear drive mechanism runs in a lubricant bath for longer operating life, even under the most adverse operating conditions.

The Texsteam 4100 Series can by used for chemical injection and for handling corrosive fluids.

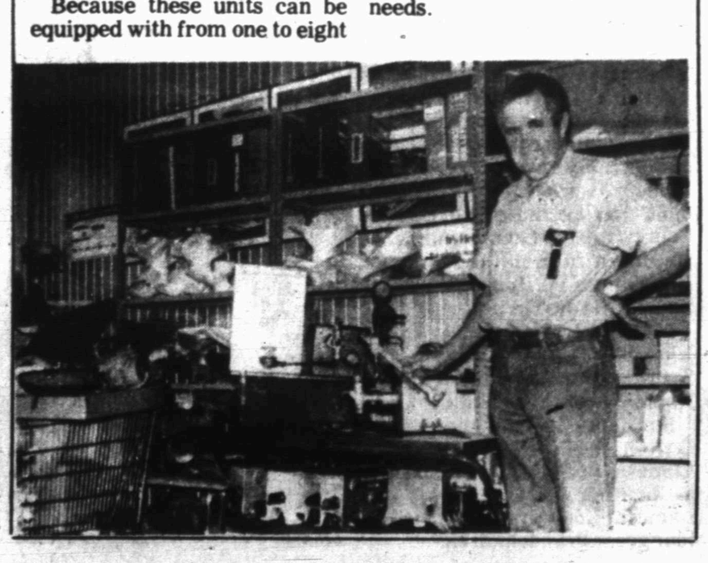

Because these units can be equipped with from one to eight heads, a wide range of additives may be accurately handled from one installation. This versatile pump has found wide acceptance for use in refineries, LACT units, salt water floods, tank batteries, process plants and in water treatment for boilers

The Texsteam 4100 Series Injectors are easy to install. No expensive foundation or piping is required. These pumps will give you many years of economical and trouble-free service.

In addition to Texsteam Electric Drive Injectors, they also carry Western, Calgon and Percision Pumps and Bendix, Wico, Fairbanks Morse and American Bosch Magnetos.

Also ask about Magneto sells and repair as well as Poulan and Shindaiwa chain saws and all types of chain saw sharpening.
