Snow Odds Accompany Cold Blitz

By RAYNIE HARDESTY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

STRONG Artic winds gusting to more than 30 mph shoved a hazardous combination of sub-freezing temperatures and a chance for snow into Lubbock Tuesday night, and forecasters say the wintry conditions will keep its icy grip on the area through Saturday.

Forecasters predict a 20 percent chance for up to two inches of snow over portions of the Panhandle and South Plains through Thursday. Traveler's advisories posted late Tuesday will remain in effect through tonight.

The system which hit Lubbock at 5:20 p.m., dropped temperatures from the lower 70s to near freezing in less than two hours. Within the first 15 minutes of the front's presence, temperatures plummeted almost 15 degrees, the National Weather Serivce reported.

A spokesman at Lubbock International Airport said airport personnel are expecting "some trouble" with landing and take-off today if the wintry system does drop snow over the region.

Roads and highways, expected to become hazardous by this morning, were reported clear across the South Plains late Tuesday by spokesmen with the Department of Public Safety. Stratford, however, reported light snow and icy highways.

As the frontal system continues its trek southeastward at near 20 mph, kicking up dust along the way, temperatures in Lubbock only will reach into the upper 30s this afternoon and Thursday, but will plunge into the mid teens tonight.

No relief is in sight for West Texas residents this week as a chance for snow and temperatures near freezing continue in the area.

Tuesday's 20-30 mph winds that shifted from the west to the northeast when the wintry storm arrived, should decrease to 15 to 25 mph today.

While penetrating deeper into the Lone Star state today, the Artic front that covers the Central Rockies and much of the Central Plains should continue to clear in northern Wyoming where temperatures dropped to 20 below zero Tuesday.

The same system, further north, prompted weather officials in Denver Colo., where snow piled up to 10 inches in the mountains and four to seven inches in the lower regions, to post avalanche warnings in Colorado mountains.

Storm warnings were issued in western Kansas and southeastern Wyoming as well as in Colorado late Tuesday. Officials expected at least six more inches of snow to fall in parts of Colorado after dusk Tuesday.

21 Rescued In Colorado

WALDEN, Colo. (AP) — Searchers on snowmobiles rescued 21 persons Tuesday, including an infant in his mother's arms, who survived the crash landing of a twin-engine commuter plane on a mountainside and spent the night in a near-blizzard. Authorities said one person died in the accident.

The survivors were taken out from the crash site 10,000 feet up in the Colorado Rockies on Sno-Cats through a foot of fresh snow, some riding inside and others wrapped in down sleeping bags and strapped to the outside of the tractor-like, tracked vehicles.

Only four survivors were able to walk unaided when they reached a rescue center set up in remote log cabin. The others were carried in baskets and on plywood boards.

Rocky Mountain Airways Flight 217 had left the ski resort town of Steamboat Springs at 6:55 p.m. Monday on a scheduled 45-minute flight over the Continental Divide to Denver. Fifteen minutes later, the pilot radioed that he was having trouble with ice and was heading back to Steamboat Springs.

Vern Bell, 19, of Lakewood, one of the passengers, said the plane had been in the air about an hour and there was no warning before the crash.

"All of a sudden we hit a little turbulence and ran right into the ground," said Bell. "I heard and saw a flash of light before we hit. After we hit, I guess I was knocked out for just a little while. I was in a daze, didn't know who I was. I thought it was a nightmare."

There was screaming and moaning, he said. A few lights were on in the plane, but they soon went out. Those who were able to help wrapped the more seriously injured in blankets and coats.

The windshield of the plane had been smashed in, Bell said. The pilot, Alan Klopfenstein, and the co-pilot were both delirious, he said.

"We stayed awake most of the night," said Bell. "I couldn't sleep because of the pain."

The dead woman was identified as Mary Kay Hardin of Steamboat Springs, the wife of a schoolteacher. Jackson County Coroner Jim Shawver said she apparently died of a skull fracture.

Bell, one of the first survivors to reach a hospital, was reported in fair condition with a possible broken nose and other injuries.

It was about 6 a.m Tuesday when the first rescue crew, following the signal from an emergency locator transmitter on snowmobiles, reached the crash site southwest of Walden.

"It looked like scrambled eggs," said Leo Mack of Steamboat Springs, one of the first at the crash site. He said the plane's wings were sheared off and that it had come to rest beneath a power line, its fuselage cracked in two and resting on a foot of fresh snow in the midst of a thick pine forest.

The high-voltage transmission line had been knocked out and rescue parties had worked their way along the line until they found the plane.

School Bus Fleet 'Sufficient' For Crosstown Treks

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

DESPITE earlier fears, Lubbock school officials now say they expect to have enough buses to accommodate all students who — by mandate or choice — will go crosstown for integration purposes the second half of the school year.

Even if many first-semester bus riders opt to continue being bused, it is unlikely vehicles will be overcrowded, officials said at a desegregation planning session Tuesday.

According to new estimates, they said, the number of children mandated to ride buses the second semester will be smaller than the number mandated the first semester. Thus, the school district is expected to have room for volunteer riders the second half of the year.

"We think we're going to be able to transport everyone satisfactorily," Bob Wyett, the district's safety coordinator, told the steering committee of Lubbock's Opportunity for Our Kids (LOOK), a desegregation transition group.

Overcrowding Is Concern

The prospect of overcrowded buses seemed to be the committee's biggest concern. Otherwise, LOOK leaders said, the court-ordered desegregation plan has gone well the first se mester — and they forecast the same for the second half of the 1978-79 term.

The group's assessment of the success of the plan parallels the observations of the school system's desegregation consultant, Dr. George Henderson, a sociology professor from Oklahoma.

After visiting the affected schools last week, Henderson concluded that "the community is making the plan work," school personnel director Bob Knight said. Knight said Henderson commended students, teachers, parents and school administrators for the job they've done.

Concerns, Recommendations

Knight said Henderson also had some concerns and recommendations for the district:

—The University of Oklahoma human relations expert is worried about the flip-flop of elementary students at midterm. However, school officials believe that a new academic record-keeping system will minimize disruption for youngsters changing schools.

—Henderson noted it is unfortunate that instructional time is lost due to the late arrival and early departure of bus students.

—He said schools should find ways to recognize outstanding principals and teachers for their contributions.

—There should be more interaction between "sister schools" involved in the integration plan. Teachers "should get together more" for planning purposes. Knight said the district already has started implementing that suggestion.

At the elementary level, the court-ordered desegregation plan involves busing about 2,000 students a semester. Minority children remain in their sister schools for the full year, but white students — unless they request otherwise — will switch at midterm.

Egypt Blasts 'Terrorism' By Israelis

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — In an unexpected blast at its negotiating partner, Egypt on Tueday denounced Israel's "terrorist methods" against families of Palestinian guerrillas in the occupied West Bank and said the actions threaten the Mideast peace talks.

The Foreign Ministry statement condemned specifically the Israeli demolition of homes of two Palestinians convicted of terrorist acts, saying this contradicted the principles of the Washington peace talks.

The negotiations are stalled on the issue of home rule for the Palestinians of the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

The official Middle East News Agency reported from Washington that Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance would meet with President Anwar Sadat in Egypt next Sunday in an effort to get the stalled talks moving. Vance will later visit Israel, the report said.

Carter administration sources confirmed that such a trip is planned.

Egyptian government television reported, meanwhile, that U.S. Ambassador Hermann Eilts had delivered a letter from Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin to Sadat. The letter was given to Vice President Hosni Mubarak, who then conferred with Sadat.

The letter contained the Israeli response to a Sadat message of last week concerning the deadlock in the peace negotiations.

DAYS TO CHRISTMAS

Shah Foes Say Port City Taken

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — A spreading strike by oil workers trying to oust Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi cut Iran's oil output almost in half Tuesday, threatening the economic base of the shah's embattled goverment.

Exiled opponents of the shah claimed, meanwhile, that anti-government Iranians had taken control of the Persian Gulf port city of Bushehr after new violence Monday night, but the report could not be confirmed here.

Troops and armored vehicles, on the alert for a new challenge from protesters here, patrolled the volatile bazaar area of Tehran Tuesday. The bazaar was the site of three days of protests beginning last Friday night in defiance of a 9 p.m. curfew.

City Generally Calm

The capital was generally calm, but demonstrators played tapes of gunfire and screams, and the military retaliated by selectively shutting off power.

The government has said at least 14 persons were killed and 50 wounded in the violence that began Friday. Diplomatic sources said the death toll was closer to 40. Opposition sources claim the death toll is 3,000, but observers believe this figure to be wildly exaggerated.

Well-placed sources, who asked not to be identified, said oil production has dipped below 3.5 million barrels, just above half Iran's normal daily output of 6 million barrels. The oil industry was just recovering from last month's crippling 15-day strike when the new walkout began Monday.

Army Ruled Out

Iran's military prime minister, Gen. Gholam Reza Azhari, appointed by the shah Nov. 6, ruled out using the army to force the oil workers back to work, as was done to end last month's strike.

"We must convince them that their activities are not only damaging to the government, but to the people as a whole," he said at a news conference.

The strike was called for by exiled Moslem religious leader Ayatullah Khomaini, symbol of the anti-shah movement who is now living in France. Khomaini, who opposes increasing westernization of this traditionally Islamic society, has been joined by a rising middle class, students and leftists who oppose the shah's autocratic rule.

Islam 'Independent'

In Munich, West Germany, the magazine Quick on Tuesday quoted Khomaini as saying he favors neither capitalism nor communism. "Islam has its own laws and rules life independent of the so-called social systems," he was quoted as saying.

In Paris, Foreign Ministry officials refused to comment on a meeting in which a senior official warned Khomaini

Commissioners Appoint Tax Assessor-Collector

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal

AFTER a day of interviews, a series of secret ballots and eventually a split vote, county commissioners Tuesday appointed Frank A. Stuart, 50, as Lubbock County Tax Assessor-Collector.

Stuart of 2704 57th St., was chosen over nine other applicants to succeed the retiring Russell S. Hardin. The new tax assessor has approximately 30 years of experience in banking and other businesses.

Several of the other applicants were more widely known than Stuart, who has extensive banking experience in Tahoka and Lubbock and was an assistant manager at two Gibson Discount Centers here from 1966 to 1976.

He has been a Texas Tech University Student full time for the past two years and is completing a bachelor of business administration degree in accounting there this month.

The county commissioners and county judge Rod Shaw made their choice by a process of elimination balloting after a long day of interviewing candidates in open session.

Applicants also included former state representative Delwin Jones, chief deputy assessor Bill Nelson, former Ralls school superintendant C.O. Gregory, recent Republican congressional candidate

Subcommittee To Chart LP&L Course

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

AFTER two rather directionless meetings, the study committee charged with studying future options for Lubbock Power and Light choose a three-member subcommittee Tuesday night to chart a course for the group.

Appointed to the subcommittee were John Bradford, dean of the Texas Tech University College of Engineering, who will chair the group, Ken Thompson, Tech vice president for administration, and Bryce Campbell, a dentist and former Lubbock city councilman.

Study committee chairman Arnold Maeker asked the subcommittee to "delineate a series of questions we need to answer."

Maeker asked that the questions be in some sequence so "we can set ourselves to answering them and make some headway."

The questions should be compiled before the committee's next meeting on Jan. 9 at 7 p.m., he said.

The only other decision made by the committee Tuesday night was to refer all questions from the news media to Maeker.

Bradford, who made the suggestion, said he was afraid the public might get the wrong idea about what the committee is attempting to do if board members are permitted to speak to reporters.

"It will help us so what we're doing is not misunderstood in the course of deliberations," he said.

Thompson concurred, saying "there is no way to study (LP&L) without taking it apart, and that could be easily misunderstood."

For the remainder of the 2 1/2-hour meeting at city hall, board members questioned members of the city staff about background information the board received.

Minnesota Townfolk Rallying To Save Vintage Fire Truck From Museum Life

ELY, Minn. (AP) — Few Ely parades have ever started without the town's pride and joy, a 1919 fire truck.

For 60 years, Ely's volunteer fire department has relied on the versatile American-LaFrance pumper-ladder combination.

Nostalgia, however, has run headlong into fiscal conservativism in this northern Minnesota community of 5,000. The city council, considering trading the old truck in for a newer rig, has run into an extensive "Save the fire truck" campaign.

A junior high school class stuyding silk screen printing is planning a "Save the fire truck" T-shirt. Bingo nights are being organized. School children are gathering pennies, nickels and dimes.

"Everybody's fond of it. It makes everybody smile," says Mary Ellen Levander, an organizer of the campaign to save the firetruck.

The city has about $27,000 of the estimated $35,000 needed for a down payment on new equipment. The total price tag is $80,000.

The difference between what the city has and what it needs for the downpayment is $8,000; the amount it could get by trading in the old fire truck. The American LaFrance firm, which is working on a museum of its own, would welcome the truck back.

Ely Fire Chief John J. Koshak wants to keep the truck for practical reasons. "It still works," he says. "It's saved a lot of homes and businesses. In 1968, it pumped 22 hours straight during a hotel fire."

Koshak estimates "Save the fire truck" backers have about 90 days remaining while the city council considers bids on new equipment.

CARTER AIDE TO RESIGN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House ombudsman and special assistant to President Carter, Joseph Aragon, said Tuesday he will resign early next year. Aragon, a Carter aide from the start of the administration, said he told the president last week that he wants to return to his native California to join a family manufacturing business. He said he agreed to stay until a successor is named but hopes to leave around late January.

Motor Fuel Prices To Jump Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Motorists will be paying a couple of cents more for a gallon of gasoline within a week because of the tight supply of the fuel, industry analysts predicted Tuesday.

"Before next week is out, you will probably see a two-or three-cent increase in most markets," said Dan Lundberg, publisher of the Lundberg Letter, an influential industry newsletter. "This won't take place in specific areas, it will take place on a national level — and especially in rural areas."

"There's no question the shortage is going to bring some increase," said Charles Matties, a West Hartford, Conn., Exxon dealer who is president of the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers. "I would expect to see a few cents upward movement."

The increase is expected to last as long as there is tightness in supply. The oil companies estimate that the tight supply will last about a month, but some experts say it will be longer. The oil companies and the Energy Department say there is no shortage.

According to figures compiled by Lundberg, the price increase has already started. The national average price of a gallon of gasoline rose about half a cent in November. So far this year, the national average is up by four cents a gallon.

In Indianapolis, for example, premium gasoline containing lead rose 1.3 cents to 73.3 cents a gallon in November. In Des Moines, it was up 2 cents to 76.7 cents a gallon, according to Lundberg.

Shell Oil Co., the nation's largest gasoline producer, has cut supplies of all products to service stations. Standard Oil of Indiana, which sells Amoco gasoline, has cut dealers' supplies of unleaded gasoline. Other major oil companies say their supplies are also tight, but they haven't announced plans to ration the product to dealers.

Dealers are raising their prices to compensate for what in many cases will be lower volume.

"It's just economics," said Matties. "If a dealer now only has 75 percent of the product he was getting, he's going to have to increase his profit to offset his loss in sales. The overhead goes on."

The tight supply is the result of an unusually high amount of driving in the late summer and fall. Gasoline demand, which traditionally drops off markedly after Labor Day, failed to do so this year as Americans took advantage of good autumn weather.

AN EDITORIAL:

Selective Service--A Rerun?

ALTHOUGH THE mere thought may stir mixed emotions, the Selective Service System is due another look, and perhaps revival, in the months ahead.

A congressional committee which called the System "an unacceptable risk to national security" two years ago, now says the setup is worse than ever.

A House Armed Services Committee report released this week says the System is not capable of mobilizing enough recruits to meet Pentagon needs in time of a crisis.

THERE ARE those who will look on the report as something out of the Vietnam era, no doubt, but it is important that it also be viewed in the light of today's alternatives.

Ostensibly, the nation replaced the Selective Service System after the Vietnam War with an All-Volunteer Army concept.

Because of the inducements, increased pay, chance for advanced education, travel and good pension plans, the volunteer plan was supposed to keep the U.S. services in good men.

While the system has worked to a degree, the truth is that it also has produced problems.

WHILE ATTRACTING a higher caliber of recruit than the mass Selective Service System did, the "professional" armed services also have attracted some problems.

Reports of drug and disciplinary problems, especially in Europe, have caused some worry about the quality of the so-called professional recruit.

And on another front, the cost of maintaining a highly skilled professional Army is seen as prohibitive by some.

The worry of the Committee was on a more direct point, however. "Considering the present shortfalls in our reserve forces, the present Selective Service situation cannot continue," says Rep. Melvin Price, D-Ill., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

According to the study, the Selective Service System is supposed to be capable of putting the first recruits in camp within 30 days of a mobilization order and deliver 100,000 inductees within two months.

The committee concluded this would be impossible, mostly because the System itself has been all but done away with and there are only a few employes left to implement major mobilization.

THE UPCOMING 96th Congress will take a new look at the whole setup.

The big question is whether the nation will "buy" the idea of another all-out Selective Service System. Will the citizens, including those who must serve and their parents, accept the idea of Junior, or even Mary, giving a year or more of their lives to their country?

It is not an idle question. But, it is one that must be answered. And in the answer may lie the overriding one—are we willing to defend this nation? In fact, are we prepared to defend the nation, either in an "ordinary" or nuclear conflict?

AN EDITORIAL:

Nostalgia On Auction Block

THEY AUCTIONED off bits and pieces of the public Judy Garland the other day.

Close to 500 of her personal possessions, ranging from the completely ordinary (reading glasses, $300) to the elegantly costly (a 1953 Mercedes-Benz, $60,000), went on the block in Beverly Hills in what could be developing into an annual happening in nostalgia. Last year, Joan Crawford's effects were similarly disposed of in New York.

The catalog items ranged from the significant in a long and memorable public career to the trivial odds and ends of an individual life, the latter on occasion bringing higher prices than the former.

THE STAR'S very own "Wizard of Oz" scrapbook brought $6,500, the musical arrangement of "Over the Rainbow" $1,800 and a script of "A Star Is Born" $700.

At the other end of the scale, a pair of loaded dice, a gift from onetime neighbor Humphrey Bogart, went for $1,200 and a pair of false eyelashes for $125.

All told, the lot brought in a quarter of a million dollars—a quantum leap over the Crawford gross of $40,000.

To those not moved to great emotion by fame and star-crossed fates, this may seem like a lot of money to be dropped into nostalgia.

But as the auctioneer (who had hopes the total might hit a half a million) noted, there is no way of setting a price on that particular commodity.

THE SEVERAL hundred buyers were for the most part dedicated Garland fans, with a sprinkling of commercial dealers in memorabilia.

There were there, some told reporters, to get "a piece of Judy Garland." Well, perhaps they did. At least of a Judy Garland, the star and public personality.

But a public personality is as much an artifact as the false eyelashes and such artifices associated with it. The real person it is not.

That doesn't come in bits and pieces. And those who may think that paying a price for nostalgia is the same as buying into it are only wasting their money.

ART BUCHWALD:

Lao Po Aw So Sawly He Did What He Did

WASHINGTON—Just when you think they have everything straightened out in China, somebody puts up a wall poster and throws all China-watchers into a tizzy.

Almost everyone I've met who has come back from China has praise for how well organized everything is and how disciplined the people are. But whether we want to admit it or not the People's Republic is still having an identity problem.

Take the case of Lao Po. Lao Po has a house behind a wall. It is a perfect place for a poster and every morning when Lao Po wakes up he's afraid to go out and look at the wall.

A FEW MONTHS ago a poster had been stuck on his wall defaming the "Gang of Four" and singing the praises of Hua Kuo-feng, Mao's successor.

The people standing in front of Lao Po's house seemed satisfied and thanked Lao Po for bringing them such good news.

Lao passed out rice wine to all the poster readers so they could toast Hua Kuo-feng, and at the same time revile the "Gang of Four" for disgracing the thoughts of Mao Tse-tung.

A few weeks later Lao Po sleepily opened his gate to see another poster on his wall. This one reviled Hua Kuo-feng as a secret ally of the "Gang of Four" and one of the masterminds behind the ouster of Defense Minister Peng Teh-huai.

WHAT THE POSTER failed to mention was that Mao Tse-tung had personally purged Peng in 1959 after Peng had criticized Mao's excesses in the disastrous Great Leap Forward.

The people reading the poster turned on Lao Po and said, "What in the name of Mao is going on?"

Lao Po nervously replied, "It is true that this poster is on my wall, but I am not responsible for the opinions expressed on it, though I am certain it wouldn't be here if it didn't have the full approval of the people who are in power."

"And who is in power?" one of the wall poster readers demanded.

"I wish I knew," said Lao Po, scurrying back into his house.

FOR NIGHTS Lao Po couldn't sleep. He kept peeking out his window hoping to see who was putting up another poster. But whoever did it managed to do so without being observed.

A week later there was a racket in front of the house. A new wall poster had proclaimed that Mao Tse-tung was personally responsible for many of China's political problems, and had collaborated with the "Gang of Four" to bring down Tao Chu and Peng Chen who had been disgraced during the Cultural Revolution.

Lao Po refused to open the gate as the wall poster readers shouted at him. "Are you trying to tell us Mao is 'out'?" someone yelled.

"Please," Lao Po pleaded. "I have nothing to do with what is posted on my wall. I am sorry I own a wall. If anyone wants it, they can have it."

"YOU CAN'T GET out of your responsibility that easily," a peasant doctor yelled. "If Mao is not the father of us all, then who is?"

"It should be on a poster next week," Lao Po said.

"It better be," a schoolteacher said, "or we're canceling our subscription to your wall."

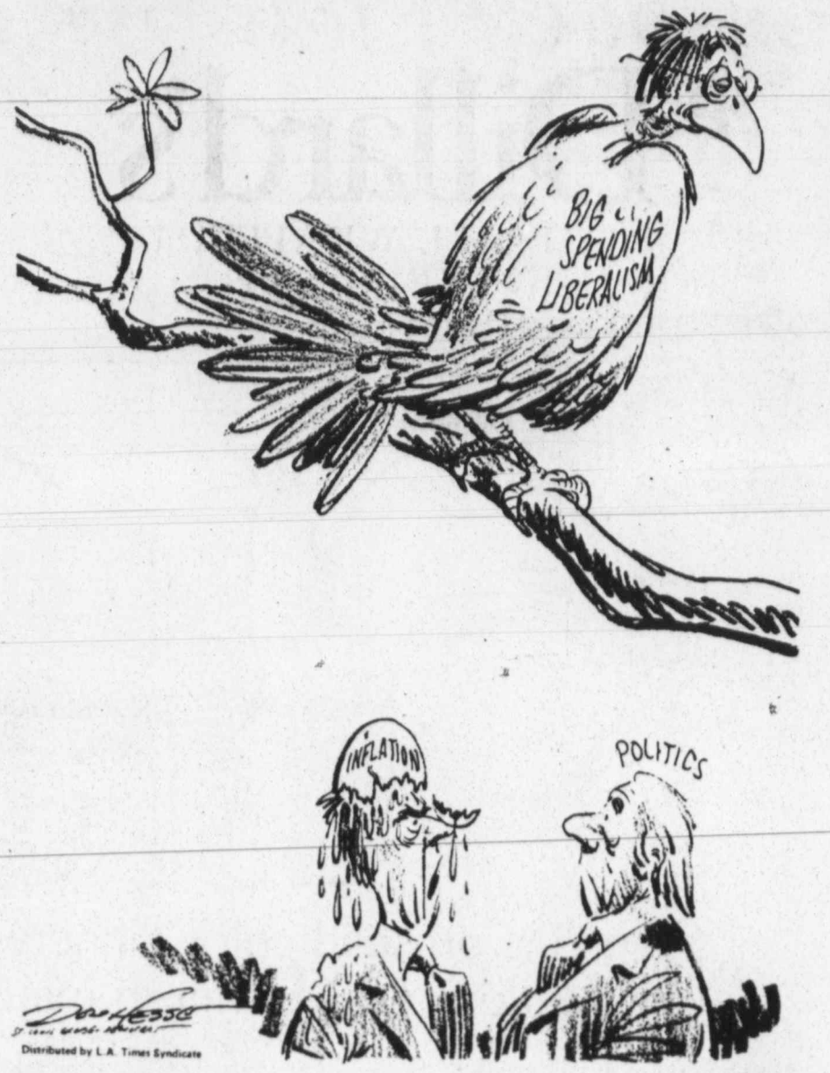
Last week a poster went up announcing Party Chairman Hua was a noodle, Mao was a sour pork, Chou En-lai was a won ton leader and Vice-Premier Teng Hsiao-ping had been elected Grand Marshal of Peking's Rose Bowl Parade.

It was too much for Lao Po's wall readers to take. They went into his house and thrashed him within an inch of his life.

When the police asked why they had done it, the reply was, "You couldn't walk past Lao Po's house without his giving you some kind of bad news."

My doctor says I should take a little more strenuous exercise, so I've started to let my fingers do some jogging through the yellow pages.

'I Thought You Said It Laid Golden Eggs'



JAY HARRIS:

A Search Of 'Why'

WHEN THE history of this civilization is written, the Age of the Cult may have a prominent place in it.

All periods have had their far-out leaders and groups, some of which played key roles in advancing or seeking to destroy the status quo.

But, starting during the Great Depression, few eras have had so many persons, beliefs and causes which deviated so far from the norm. Whether it was a madman such as Hitler, or a self-appointed "psycho-saint" such as Jim Jones of the Peoples Temple, at some point in time, their words and deeds shocked the world.

Who is to blame for these Pied Pipers whose followers march blindly to Doomsday itself, all the while shouting Hosannas to some self-serving savior? Why has mankind in his most advanced state, from a scientific and technological standpoint, so often regressed to the Dark Ages, morally, mentally and socially?

PSYCHOLOGISTS AND other observers of human behavior have been having a field day since the mass suicide in Guyana, seeking answers to those questions.

Few events in recent years have so touched the minds and emotions of so many. There is the feeling that if we do not find the answer to "Why?" to Jonestown, it will be repeated.

This is not the first such case, nor will it be the last where man has sought some sort of sanctuary for the mind, and perhaps the soul outside his usual pattern.

As Time magazine notes: "All new religious enterprises are liable to be damned and dismissed as cults. The term is pejorative; cult suggests a band of fierce believers who have surrendered themselves to obscure doctrine and a dangerous prophet. Yet some religions that are institutions now, more permanent and stable than most governments, began as cults."

THE DANGER IN what has been happening in recent years, since the 1960s to be exact, is that the practicing freak or sincere cultist seems unwilling to reach any sort of compromise with the world he seeks to change.

And in rejecting the world about them, the cult leaders and their followers not only "do their own thing," but impose their life-style on others, even resorting to murder if this seems to further their misguided aims.

It is no accident that many of these "religions" have found much of their mystique and support in California, a state long noted for its free-wheeling way of life, its tolerance of the bold, bawdy and sometimes banal.

But, one cannot condemn an entire state or millions of West Coast residents simply because the Charles Mansons and Jim Joneses find fertile ground in which to sow their seed.

The sickness, for that is what it is, did not originate on the beaches at Santa Barbara, in the orange groves or shadows of the Golden Gate. It has been inherent in man all along, although it is important to know what we are talking about.

MUCH ADO IS made of the fact that "cults" go back to ancient Biblical times.

Some equate the mass sacrifice of the Jewish zealots at Masada in 73 A.D. with what happened in Guyana. It is a false comparison. Those who died at Masada did so, after three years of siege by the Roman legions, to avoid falling into the hands of those who would persecute and in all likelihood kill them.

Unlike those who died at Jonestown, the 960 men, women and children who died at Masada, and many since, had a cause for which they were willing to die, but for which they most wanted to live. There is a difference.

There are some students of today's world, who claim that mankind, and especially this nation, has some sort of "death wish." They cite our preoccupation with the far-out, the occult, the bizarre, the daily emphasis on violence.

IN SOME WAYS, the proliferation of a "mass psychology" which breeds such aberrations can be found in society's "progress."

Man as an individual has become blurred as machines and mass communications, including television, tend to place people into globs or compartments.

Surveys, taken among only 1,500 persons out of a total population of 210 million are supposed to tell us what everyone is thinking, whether it be about politics or what's bugging us.

But the syndrome is not really new. As the world has progressed, each period has added something to the total of mankind, and then all too often withered.

This one, despite two great conflicting ways of life—Christianity and Communism—has been able to put Man on the Moon, perfect miracle drugs and prolong life long beyond the Biblical three score and ten.

BUT, WHAT has it done to man as a person, an individual, "made in the image of God" if you please?

Ah, there is the rub, as the Bard would say. What have we done to blunt or enhance man's search for wisdom, for learning from the past, for greater appreciation of art, literature?

Doing one's thing, whether it was the Vietnam protests and urban uprisings of the Sixties, or joining the cults of the Seventies, offered no long-lasting satisfaction. The hippies, the drug generation, the deserters—none dignified the individual in a true sense.

They were clones, made in the image of a cult culture which permitted no real freedom of choice. And all too often, those who knew better, who still savored society's saner moments, stood by and watched, silently.

History is replete with instances where false prophets who neither understood man or God sought to demean both. Thus far, all have failed. And that says something in itself.

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

A DEVOTED tennis buff was W. S. Gilbert, the famous librettist best remembered as the Gilbert of Gilbert and Sullivan. He built a court on his property.

But usually he lost. His strokes were too powerful. The ball kept sailing beyond the base line. Finally, he got fed up. He wanted so much to win now and then. So he lengthened his tennis court.

Quick, what's the only state with a single-syllable name? Say Maine.

That little beast known as the kissing bug doesn't really kiss. It bites. It's just that its favorite target is the face, more particularly the lips. It doesn't want your affection. It wants your blood.

The Walking Stick

WASHINGTON—Learned people disagree about the precise point at which the decay of the world became irreversible.

Some insist that it was the invention of moveable type, which led to mass literacy, and so to journalism. Others say it was the invention of processed cheese.

I believe it was either the execution of Charles I, or when courtiers were no longer required to remove their hats and bow to the King's food as it was carried through the halls of Versailles.

But one thing is certain. The spirit of civilization was beyond saving when, early in this century, men quit carrying walking sticks.

Which brings me to the subject of Herb Golinsky of Avon, Connecticut.

Golinsky, 54, has a pleasant hobby, and a Yankee's determination, and, because of these two things, he also has a problem.

His hobby is collecting walking sticks.

A FEW YEARS ago he became determined to use some of his spare time to design, for the fun of it, and to sell, if anyone wanted it, a proper walking stick.

His problem is that now he has a booming industry on his hands, and so less time for pleasant walks.

He named his walking stick with commendable straightforwardness, and with the true artist's proper arrogance.

The name is: The Walking Stick.

It is made of northern white ash, the sacred material of which baseball bats are made. It is 35 inches long, has a brass tip and a large, round, solid hand-rubbed brass knob.

It sells for about $30, and currently is selling at a rate of several thousand a week.

IT IS NOT clear why the walking stick fell from favor. It still is reassuring to have a cudgel in hand while walking. (In Sherlock Holmes' stories a "life preserver" is a walking stick.)

But the invention of police and street lights reduced, a bit, the need to carry a stick for self-defense.

Improved roads, and especially the invention of the sidewalk, reduced the need for the steadying support a stick provides. And, anyway, the automobile has nearly killed walking.

But the primary blame for the abandonment of walking sticks must be placed at the door of the dismally utilitarian spirit of the modern age.

Golinsky caters to that spirit by including with each stick an appalling booklet that explains, in a Prussian tone, that there are 18 dreary exercises that can and had better be performed with the stick.

IT DOUBTLESS makes commercial sense to reassure the modern purchaser that The Walking Stick pleases the modern gods of Practicality and Utility.

But Golinsky really seems to believe his little booklet. He has missed the point of walking sticks.

Does he not understand that a cardinal virtue of a walking stick is that it is not necessary?

A walking stick looks nice, feels good in the hand, makes an agreeable "click" as it touches pavement, and (to save the best for last) is generally free from the taint of usefulness.

Unfortunately, ours is, as is well known, an age of science, improvement, and rationality.

So the stricken field of modern life is littered with the broken remains of pleasant traditions and practices that could not pass muster in such an age.

THE SEVERE, reforming, rationalizing spirit of the day is the spirit of Mr. Fipps, who (according to G.K. Chesterton) was a friend of Sidney Webb, the socialist who considered socialism a way of making the working classes more tidy and making society severely rational, utilitarian, and frilless.

Mr. Fipps, according to Chesterton, "went mad and ran about the country with an axe, hacking branches off the trees whenever there were not the same number on both sides."

A brass cane-stand in my study holds a walking stick topped by a small silver bust of a statesman. The round head fits comfortably into the stick-holder's palm.

The bust is inscribed, in flowing script, "Hon. William McKinley—Our Next President."

To ask, as the modern mind is wont to do, "But what use is it?" is like asking what use is Beethoven, or a baby.

In olden days, when the human spirit was fresh, and walking sticks were in fashion, and McKinley was a representative Democrat, people understood the finer things.

The office quip describes a vacation as a system whereby people who are merely tired become exhausted.

This country already has too many buyonic women.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

Red Navy On Grow

NAVY SEC. Graham Claytor reveals that the Soviet Navy now has a new amphibious ship, its largest.

The vessel is called the "Ivan Rogov" and launches three air-cushioned craft carrying a platoon of troops at speeds exceeding 45 miles per hour.

Claytor says that Soviet navy surprises are poised like greyhounds ready to go and that the "Ivan Rogov" is the latest.

He states that the Soviet fleet now has three aircraft carriers, three helicopter-carrying vessels, 125 missile ships that include the famous KUNDA-class atomic-warhead-carrying frigates, 210 destroyers, 100 destroyer escorts, 275 patrol vessels, 200 mine sweepers, 300 torpedo boats, 40 electronically equipped spy ships, 130 amphibious craft beyond the "Ivan Rogov," and literally thousands of support and service craft.

THE SOVIET leaps far ahead of the United States in submarines—including nuclear-powered craft. It has 110 versus our 102. It has 235 conventional diesel-powered undersea craft. We have 15. Conventional and nuclear, the Soviet total is 345 subs.

The size of this submarine fleet is more than three times ours. It is larger than the American, British and French combined. And Claytor knows that the Soviet swimming bear can launch at least one nuclear submarine a month.

The most dangerous sub to the United States is the Soviet's Ballistic Missile (BM) craft. Each BM can launch 16 three-metaton, 1,500-mile-range missiles aggregating 1.9 billion tons—yes, tons—of conventional explosives.

One BM alone can deliver roughly the entire explosive power of all conventional bombs dropped on Germany in World War II.

ALSO, THE Soviet has put to sea its immense DELTA-class submarines, the largest ever built. The DELTA-class displaces 10,000 tons and its overall length is 450 feet, 1.4 times a football field's length.

It is armored with 12 nuclear-missile tubes, each missile having the longest range (4,000 miles) of any existing submarine weapon.

In World War II the Kremlin deployed the Red fleet defensively in the Baltic and along the Soviet's Pacific coast. But after that war the Kremlin adopted the U.S. Navy's pattern of an attack force.

Actually, Claytor finds that only about one percent of Russia's vessels are 20 years old. The Soviet fleet strongly is present in the Atlantic and Pacific. In the Atlantic alone, its latest maneuver involved more than 200 vessels.

THE SOVIET navy patrols the Arctic and Antarctic. Based at Murmansk, its massive North Fleet along the Norwegian coast threatens NATO's strategic base in Iceland.

It patrols the North Sea. It blocks the Skagerak and Kattegat, Sweden's outlets to the Baltic. The Soviet is heavily present in the Mediterranean, using Libya's ports. It patrols, as well, both coasts of Africa.

Britain's 500-year-old navy, now shrunk to small proportions, has abandoned Indian Ocean-Arabian Gulf states and rulers Britain had established and long supported.

Flying the hammer-and-sickle flag, the Soviet navy now deploys at least 21 ships in the Indian Ocean-Arabian Gulf.

In short, the Soviet navy is everywhere in the seven seas. And Secretary Claytor not only is worried about the "Ivan Rogov," but the whole frightening build-up of the Soviet navy.

Cleveland Cutback Plan Ires Police, Firemen

CLEVELAND (AP) — Police and firemen reacted angrily Tuesday to the city's proposal to lay off 400 safety employees in an effort to keep Cleveland from becoming the first major U.S. city to default since the Depression.

"We're so under strength it's unreal to even consider this," said William McNea, president of the Cleveland Police Patrolmen's Association.

McNea, who has led the city's police on strikes twice in 12 months, said the plan would violate a campaign promise by Mayor Dennis J. Kucinich that there would never be a police layoff.

Jack Gannon, president of local 99 of the International Association of Fire Fighters, said the city's fire department is already 300 members below the safe level, and that further cuts would mean closed fire stations and increased fire insurance for city residents and merchants.

Some of Kucinich's colleagues aren't taking the proposal seriously, but the city's fiscal chief says the administration is not bluffing.

Kucinich claims it will be necessary to lay off 250 of the city's 1,900 police officers and 150 of its 1,000 firefighters Feb. 1 or sell $5.2 million of its land to stave off default by Dec.15 and balance the 1979 budget. The council has opposed the land sale plan and instead has been trying to pressure the mayor into selling the city's debt-ridden, long-neglected Municipal Light Plant.

Joseph Tegreene, the city's 25-year-old finance director, said if the land sales are not approved, the city will have to meet operating expenses for the rest of this year by postponing some contributions to police and fire pension funds until 1979.

He said the layoff plan will save $6 million, adding that the city might also consider laying off 200 street department workers after the snow season to save another $1.8 million.

Tegreene unveiled the plan in comm nications with bankers he's trying to co vince to extend $15.5 million in city loa due Dec. 15.

U.S., Japan Okay Gradual Ag Trade Expansion

TOKYO (AP) — The United States and Japan ended year-long talks on agricultural trade Tuesday with agreement on gradual expansion of Japanese import quotas for beef and oranges during over four years.

The agreement removes one of the last obstacles to ending the five-year multilateral trade negotiations in Geneva, considered the most important commercial talks of the decade.

U.S. negotiators led by President Carter's deputy special trade representative Alan Wolff did not get a least two major items they had hoped for — widening of seasonal limits on importing oranges and liberalization of licensing for orange importers.

Wolff told reporters, "We're very close now to concluding the Tokyo round of multilateral trade negotiations" in Geneva. He predicted the talks would be finished in two weeks.

Under the new farm agreement, Japan will gradually expand its annual orange import quota to 82,000 tons by fiscal 1983 from the present level of 45,000 tons and raise its beef import quota from 16,800 tons to 30,000 tons.

Japan also will hike its annual orange juice import quota to 6,500 tons, a threefold increase, and the grapefruit juice import quota by 6,000 tons, a six-fold growth. It will lower tariff rates on other farm products such as poultry and pork by an average 40 percent.

Wolff called the package a "historic" one, and added:

"With this agreement, we have taken a substantial step toward managing protectionist presqures that will continue to exist in the United States in the coming years."

He told reporters it was the U.S. "expectation" that there would be a completely open market for citrus fruits in Japan by 1984, but other U.S. officials acknowledged later they had no Japanese assurance of this.

Japanese Agriculture Minister Ichiro Nakagawa, co-signer of Tuesday's trade accord, is on record as saying, "The orange issue has become a symbol of Japan's agricultural policies and the U.S. trade deficit."

Under the agreement the two countries are scheduled to hold talks again in the spring of 1983, the midway point in the proposed eight-year multilateral trade agreement.

The Central Union of Agricultural Cooperatives claimed the bilateral agreement will be prove a major impediment to development of domestic agriculture.

"Domestic farmers are already suffering from an excess of mandarin oranges, pork, eggs and agricultural products and, therefore, the new agreement will add to the supply glut," the union said.

Although small in number, Japanese citrus and beef farmers wield considerable political clout. In the past they have resisted attempts to broaden Japan's market for imported farm products, claiming they are barely scratching a living as it is.

For many years Japan has produced a surplus of rice and the government, to encourage self-sufficiency in agriculture, has helped many small rice farmers switch to production of citrus fruits.

The program has been so successful that there is now a surplus of oranges estimated at around 1.5 million tons. Prices are falling and the former rice farmers say they are no better off than before.

Yoshiro Hayashi of the Japan Fruit Growers Cooperative told The Associated Press in an interview that U.S. pressure to liberalize orange imports has forced growers to stop planting new mandarin orange trees and abandon some existing orchards.

New European Monetary System Adopted By Six Of Nine Nation

BRUSSELS (AP) — Six of the nine European Common Market nations agreed Tuesday to go ahead as scheduled Jan. 1 with a new European monetary system. But Britain decided to stay out for the time being and participation by Italy and Ireland was in doubt.

The system is designed to encourage trade and investment among members by stabilizing the values of their currencies in relation to each other at a time of uncertainty for the American dollar, the currency used as a basis for world trade.

The plan probably will have no direct effect on the value of the dollar, although it may help the U.S. currency indirectly by helping stabilize foreign exchange markets.

Common Market officials at a two-day summit called here to wrap up details of the new system said initial members will be France, Denmark, Luxembourg, Holland, Belgium and West Germany.

They said Italy and Ireland might still join before the starting date, but that the heads of state meeting here were resigned to a delay of at least six months before Britain enters.

The chief new feature of the program is a $33 billion fund into which each member will put 20 percent of its gold and dollar reserves. Members can then borrow against the fund to support the values of their currencies.

For example, if the French franc started to fall in value, France could borrow from the fund to buy up surplus francs on the market, tightening the supply and raising the value.

A West German official who asked not to be identified said the value of each participating currency will be set against "European currency units" created by the fund.

Common Market President Roy Jenkins was said to be disappointed over the outcome of the summit, which had been expected to launch the system with only Britain remaining outside.

Most details of how the system would work were settled in a relaxed session Monday, but Tuesday's session heated up when French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing opposed Irish and Italian demands for massive aid from the market's regional development fund as a price for bringing their weaker currencies into the system.

They would be bound to borrow, possibly heavily, from the fund to support their currencies and pay back with interest.

The allowable margin for fluctuation of exchange rates is likely to be 2.25 percent in either direction, except for the Italian lira, which would be permitted to fluctuate 6 percent.

Britain wants to stop short of full membership in the new system, at least until after next year's general elections, because the plan is likely to be unpopular with Britons. Some segments of Prime Minister James Callaghan's Labor Party fear it will increase unemployment because the partners in the system might force Britain to revalue the pound. This could make British exports more expensive in other countries, costing jobs at home.

If Britain does not join the new system immediately it still would have some s in how it works but could not borr from the fund to support the Brit pound.

Ireland, too, may wait inasmuch as currency is tied to the British pound.

Eisenhower Coin Due Retirement

DENVER (AP) — The Eisenhower dollar coin is about to go the way of the buffalo nickel and the liberty dime.

Since the coins were introduced in 1971, some $700 million worth of them have been minted, but Thursday the Denver Mint will strike the final one.

Police Seek Robbery Suspects

Police Tuesday were still searching for a suspect in the early-morning robbery Tuesday of a 22-year-old cocktail waitress.

Linda Gay Tatum told police two Mexican-American men entered Bullet Bob's, 4921 Brownfield Highway, about 2 a.m. while she was preparing to close. She said one of the men struck her on the head and took an undetermined amount of change.

Miss Tatum was taken to Methodist Hospital where she was treated and released.

In a reported aggravated assault, Inez Linder of 2516 63rd St. told officers she came home about 7:40 p.m. Monday and was confronted in the hallway by a long-haired man who hit her in the face and then fled.

Mrs. Linder said she went home after a son called her at work and said there was a man inside her house with a rifle. The suspect was described as a white man wearing a light-colored shirt.

A man posing as a Christmas shopper about 9:10 p.m. Monday ran off with a $4,000 diamond ring from Gordon's Jewelers at the South Plains Mall, 6002 Slide Road, according to the store manager.

Levern Charles Stanton said a clerk was showing the suspect the 1½-carat diamond ring at a counter near the jewelry store exit. He said the customer asked to see the ring closer and when the clerk handed the ring to him, the man knocked over a cup of hot coffee and ran with the ring into a nearby department store.

Phillip Morrow, manager of the Seafood Shop at 3040 34th St., told police he was in front of his business about 8:15 p.m. Monday when a man hit him on the head with a pipe.

Morrow said the suspect, a young, tall white man with light brown hair, dropped the pipe and began beating him with his fists. Morrow, who was not hospitalized, said the man then fled with another man in a pickup truck before police arrived.

Joe C. Putman said burglars broke a back door panel at his auto transmission business at 501 Fourth St. and took $1,500 worth of tools and checks.

Dorothy Lidder told police that while she was out of town last week, $410 worth of jewelry was stolen from her 2428 28th St. residence. She said the burglars gained entry to her home by breaking a window.

David K. Northington of 4813 14th St. notified police Monday afternoon after discovering about $1,000 damage to the recreational facilities at Rush Pool, Inc., at 4701 15th St.

The vandals splashed paint on walls and threw trash into the pool, between Nov. 27 and Monday afternoon, Northington said.

In another criminal mischief report, Eugene B. Whorton said vandals broke six windows of a house he owns at 1302 42nd St. and caused about $120 damage to the residence. He said a $370 air compressor also was taken from the house sometime Monday or Tuesday morning.

Cal Coker of Monroe, La., told police his late-model pickup truck, parked at a motel in the 1000-block of North Avenue Q between 5:45 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Monday, was broken into and $1,140 in clothing taken.

Mary Douglas said $300 in tools were taken from the garage of her 3404 E. Baylor St. residence Tuesday morning.

Don Musick, owner of a used furniture store at 3207 Ave. H, said a $175 television was stolen from the business between 6 p.m. Monday and 9 a.m. Tuesday by burglars who broke a panel of glass in one of the firm's doors.

Farmers Want To Ride Up Front, Speaker Says

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Delegates to a national agriculture conference were advised by a Kansas farmer Tuesday that it was time they realized, "This nation was built on the profit motive and not on a free-market system."

James Kramer, speaking during a session in farm income problems, said, "The farmer wants to get out of the back of the economic bus.

"Many of our farmers are forced to accept part-time jobs outside of agriculture to make ends meet. We don't mind the hard work but we are taking jobs that could go to others in our society."

The National Farm Summit is a joint effort by the Agriculture Council of America and Texas A&M University to discuss major problems facing the nation's farmers, particularly those who operate the family-sized farms.

A task force on farm income recommended that modest federal income supports be granted commercial farmers, along with some form of commodity insurance.

The session ends today with a final report from all task forces.

Assault Charge Filed In Shooting

An aggravated assault charge was filed Tuesday as the result of a weekend shooting which left a Lubbock man in critical condition.

Charged was Jesse Alvin Glenn, 32. Justice of the Peace Charles Smith set a $5,000 bond, after the Criminal District Attorney's office had recommended bail at $2,500.

Glenn is accused of shooting Joe Clayton Dodson, 21, of 3424 Frankford Ave., Apt. 10F, early Sunday outside a club at 5203 34th St. Dodson remained in critical condition Tuesday at Methodist Hospital.

Suit Challenges Highway Construction

Dallas federal Judge Robert M. Hill has ordered a Dec. 15 hearing on a request for a preliminary injunction by a couple who want to halt road construction on U.S. 87.

The hearing is set for 9 a.m. in Dallas.

The suit filed by R.G. Russ Jr. and Helen Russ claims state and federal officials did not file a proper environmental impact statement as required by the National Environmental Policy Act.

Current plans call for the upgrading of U.S. 87 to achieve designation as Interstate 27.

The Russes specifically complained in their petition of an area on U.S. 87 from Hale Center to Happy in Swisher County. Plainview, Kress, Tulia and Happy lie along the approximate 50-mile route cited in the petition.

The suit was filed in Lubbock. But U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward removed himself from the case, noting that he had formerly served on the state highway commission.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. Three months ago, I bought some 180-day U.S. Treasury Bills through my broker. In the meantime, the interest rate on T-bills has increased sharply. Other interest rates have increased even more.

While talking to my broker, I asked him if there is any way to cash in these 180-day bills. He replied that I "would take a licking." How can that be, when 90 days' interest has accumulated on the T-bills?

A. It can be, because the market prices of the T-bills have dropped. As is the case with all fixed-income securities, the market value falls when interest rates go up.

You can sell your T-bills at any time — through your broker or bank. But the person who buys the T-bills you sell naturally won't pay a price at which the yield on those T-bills will be lower than the yield he can get on other T-bills.

Each week, the U.S. Treasury Department auctions off 90-day and 180-day T-bills. The Treasury sells T-bills at one price and redeems them when they mature at higher prices. The difference between the issue price and the redemption price (par value) is interest.

So, interest accrues on a T-bill each day. But, when interest rates go up, the market price on T-bills already issued can actually drop — so that their yields are in line with the yields on newly-issued T-bills.

All this shouldn't really bother you — as long as you hang on to your T-bills until they mature. At that time, you'll get the price you paid, plus interest, less the broker's commission. What might bother you is that you could have collected higher interest elsewhere.

Q. I read that a "respected expert on monetary affairs" predicts the U.S. government, within two to three years, will issue new currency by "exchanging 10 to 20 old dollars for each new dollar." This has happened in other countries. It would wipe me out. What should I do?

A. Forget that you read that piece. That so-called "expert" has been making similar predictions for the more than 25 years I have known about him. His doomsday script hasn't worked out in the past and I don't believe it ever will.

Meanwhile, he's done very well selling books and newsletters and accepting U.S. dollars in payment.

Q. We made two purchases of mutual fund shares, on the advice of our broker — at a total cost of approximately $5,200. We did not get a prospectus from the broker. Were we supposed to get one?

A. Yes, indeed. The rules are that delivery of a mutual fund's effective prospectus must "precede or accompany" the very first sales effort. Simply put, this means that before or at the time a broker or sales representative tries to sell you mutual fund shares, you are supposed to be given the fund's prospectus.

A prospectus is a "disclosure document." It spells out all pertinent information about the stock being offered for sale.

Q. We are a couple in our 50s who invested in an "income" mutual fund about two months ago. Since then, the price of that fund's shares has been going down and is now about $1 per share less than we paid. Should we sell or hold on?

A. The investment objective of the fund is to provide reasonably high income. To date, it has done a fair job of doing that. You would have learned that, if you had taken the trouble of reading the fund's prospectus. You also would have learned that the price of its shares can fall or rise.

So, if you're looking for income, I'd say hold on. But, unless you're planning early retirement, I think at least part of your investments should be in things that, hopefully, will grow in value — such as a "growth" mutual fund. Could be that you put your money into the wrong kind of mutual fund.

WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

Don't feel lonely if you find recent market action confusing. Last week with its down 14 points one day, up 12 another and puny daily volume of some 22 million shares was enough to cause both bulls and bears to scratch their heads. In a nutshell, it was a week of whipsaw behavior which causes sleepless nights for all participants and a ticket to the funny farm if one doesn't look past the daily gyrations. It is a time to stick to an intermediate term conviction and to have a short term opinion that doesn't bend with the daily swings. In other words, fight the tape even if it hurts. Fight it until volume, breadth, quality of leadship, and cumulative and serious buying prove we are bucking a change in institutional sentiment. So far, no sign of that.

Yes, we continue to look for a lower market and want to maintain a very defensive posture. And, yes, our opening comments were an attempt to justify our stance despite Friday's good action. We have been looking for a possible move — more like a creep — up to the 830 level but for reasons that cause bounces not new bulls. The market was destroyed in October. What has kept this market together since then is that the extreme pressimism created in October isn't worked off yet and the sellers are still worn out. Markets do not go straight down even if they are headed for zero.

Monday did not follow-through on Friday's strength which even surprised a bear like us. Our guess is that the bulls will try it again and maybe the 830 area will be reached. But the primary trend still appears down and the best approach is to be ready for a lot more selling.

We are often asked where the bottom is and our candid answer is we have no confidence in anyone's projection of tops or bottoms including ours. However, as a guideline or a directional signal our current opinion is that the Dow industrials will see the 700 level but a more severe risk exists among secondaries which have leaped up so much the past four years, are only modestly off their highs, and are so heavily supported by risky margin accounts. Our major fears remain rising interest rates and rising inflation and an economy that would not play this current rally but would use it to sell mistakes, sell poorly situated issues, and generate cash for use later. — AL GOLDMAN

Gaming Charges Bring Quick Casino Response

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Expressing outrage and indignation, Resorts International officials Tuesday called for quick hearings on state charges of questionable financial ties and shoddy casino operations.

New Jersey Casino Control Commission Chairman Joseph P. Lordi said hearings on the firm's application for a permanent casino license could not begin before Jan. 8. Hearings are now scheduled to begin Jan. 15.

"We're dealing with people who have their lives and reputations at stake. We want the honor of our reputation restored," company attorney Joel Sterns said. "From our point of view, we'd want to begin the hearings on Monday."

The state Division of Gaming Enforcement on Monday recommended that Resorts International be denied a permanent license for its casino. The firm has been operating the East's only legal casino at this resort on a temporary permit since May 26.

In a 115-page report on a year-long investigation, the division charged the firm with 17 acts of wrongdoing, including past ties to organized crime figures in the Bahamas and Florida, mismanagement of its casino here, employment of an executive who tried to bribe a judge and payments to a Miami public relations man to avoid negative statements against the firm.

Sterns and company president I.G. "Jack" Davis Jr. said the report contained "rumors that have been in the public domain for years."

"We gave (this information) to them. They didn't dig this stuff up," Davis said.

Sterns said that division director Robert P. Martinez had promised the firm a chance to challenge any negative findings before the state published its report.

He said the company could rebut the 17 points within a few days.

WHY CHRISTMAS ALMOST WASN'T — By Jack Kent

Private School Racial Quotas For Tax-Exempt Status Hit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen and private school representatives protested an Internal Revenue Service plan Tuesday that they said would require some private schools to meet racial quotas in order to qualify for a tax exemption.

"The purpose of the IRS is to collect the taxes," Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., argued to an IRS panel as it opened four days of hearings, "... not to enforce social policy."

"This proposal is an outrage," complained Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., R-Calif.

But E. Richard Larson, counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union, said the IRS plan is an important first step that should have been imposed 20 years ago.

And representatives of the Justice Department and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said the plan would aid in enforcement of anti-discrimination regulations.

The IRS plan is aimed at schools already judged guilty of discrimination by a court or those that were founded or expanded during a period of local school desegregation.

Such schools would have to prove they are not guilty of racial discrimination in order to keep their tax-exempt status. The schools either could meet an IRS formula for minority enrollment or establish an approved minority recruitment plan.

Opponents argued that the plan would hurt thousands of private schools that do not discriminate but cannot afford to meet the proposed stringent guidelines of the tax agency.

Thurmond said the IRS proposal also violates the Supreme Court's Bakke decision, which upheld affirmative action but opposed strict racial quotas.

The first witnesses, all opponents, complained that the IRS plan was an unwarranted intrusion into the affairs of religious schools. The opponents said most parents send their children to private schools for a religious education, discipline or a quality education, not to avoid integration.

Opponents also argued that the proposal could force many schools to close through denial of the tax exemption and by imposing costly procedures to attract minority students.

They also argued that any such policy should be adopted only by Congress, not by an executive branch agency.

George E. Reed, general counsel for the United States Catholic Conference, called the proposal "unrealistic" and said it would harm Roman Catholic schools that long have had a policy against racial discrimination.

William B. Ball, counsel for three separate groups of private schools, said, "I do not represent any racist schools, but I am very much concerned about religious liberty."

Thurmond said there are about 20,000 private independent schools in the country — the IRS estimates there are some 18,000 — and added: "If only 5 percent were to close because they lost their tax-exempt status under this procedure, some estimates show that the tax dollars needed to accommodate those students in public schools would exceed $2 billion."

ACLU spokesman Larson told the IRS panel that tax-exempt status is not a right. "Organizations applying for tax-exempt status always have been required to prove that they are charitable, that they are non-profit, and that they thereby qualify...."

James P. Turner, deputy assistant attorney general, said the proposed rules "will significantly promote the overal federal policy of prohibiting governmental aid of any kind to private enterprises engaged in racial discrimination."

Cynthia Brown, representing HEW's Office of Civil Rights, said the plan represents a substantial advance over existing IRS procedures. She said the IRS proposal would aid HEW efforts to enforce compliance with civil rights laws.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when only by expressing your charm and being especially polite and considerate of others will you be able to gain your most cherished desires. Be more practical.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Listen to what the one you love has to say and come to a fine agreement. Avoid one who is detrimental to your best interests.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Not a good day to expect favors from friends since they have their own problems. Think along more constructive lines.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Pay attention to the views of higher-ups and show that you comprehend them. Strive for increased happiness.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You may want to avoid present activities but it would not be wise. Stick to it now and reap the benefits later.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be sure not to lose your temper with loved one today. Your intuition is not accurate now, so use good judgment in your dealings.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Listenings to what associates have to say is wise, but hold up on important decisions you want to make until tomorrow.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are not in the mood for all that work ahead of you, so change your attitude and then you can make real progress.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You may want to have a fine time no matter what the cost, but this would be foolish now, so stay within your means.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Showing family members your true devotion to them is wise at this time. Stick to whatever is practical.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Handle regular routines carefully and avoid making costly errors. Use your wisdom when dealing with others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are having financial troubles now and should not lose your head over them, but calmly improve them.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You may have some erratic ideas about personal matters so keep rooted to the tried and true. Take good care of your health.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY...he or she will be one of those persons who thinks of being martyred by others, so teach to be more objective and not to invite trouble and then this becomes a successful life. Don't neglect ethical and religious training.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Hawkins Testifies In Assault Trial

AUSTIN (AP) — Samuel Hawkins, bursting into tears, told a jury Tuesday he had moved from town to town, committing one rape after another.

Hawkins, 34, is defending himself in the killing of Rhonda Keys, 12, of Amarillo. He has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

Hawkins testified Tuesday he often is depressed, afraid and has an inferiority complex. He said an uncontrollable sex drive has forced him to commit rape.

Hawkins said he signed a statement after officers promised a jury would be lenient if he would sign the statement. He signed after 17 hours of interrogation, he said.

Hawkins is accused of kidnapping Rhonda Keys from her Amarillo home Feb. 3, 1976, in a rape attempt. Police charged him with bludgeoning the girl to death.

The case was moved here on a change of venue.

The girl's body was found under a culvert in Carson County.

HEARTLINE: I am 72 and my wife will be 62 in December. My monthly Social Security check after Medicare deduction is $298.

My wife has not made any Social Security contributions since our marriage although she has always helped in the family business.

Our daughter, who owns and operates her own business, wants my wife to take care of her books for her and wants to pay her a salary of $125 per month. Our question is: Can my daughter legally hire her mother under the Social Security rules? Can my wife apply for Social Security benefits at age 62, this December, and still be drawing a salary? Will her drawing benefits affect my monthly check? Would she have Medicare coverage? — W.H.

Yes, your daughter can legally hire her mother to keep books for her business. She can still receive Social Security wife's benefits at age 62. There is an earnings restriction after applying for Social Security benefits, but the $125 your daughter plans to pay her is well under this figure. So, the money she receives in wages or salary will not affect her benefits.

The fact that your wife is drawing benefits on your Social Security account will not affect your benefits at all. She would not be eligible for Medicare until she is age 62.

Also, since your wife will be employed by her daughter, if the daugher is the sole proprietor of the business, no Social Security taxes will have to be paid on your wife's salary. If it is not a sole proprietorship owned by your daughter, then Social Security taxes will have to be deducted from your wife's salary and matched by the employer.

For more information on services covered under Medicare, we have a booklet which is in easy-to-understand question and answer form and contains the changes for 1979. Two FBI Men Fired For Role In Surveillance

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director William H. Webster said Tuesday he will fire two FBI agents for their part in conducting allegedly illegal surveillance against the radical Weather Underground in the early 1970s, but will take no action against 59 others.

In addition to firing two agents, the director announced he will demote one agent and suspend one for 30 days. All four had supervisory responsibility, Webster said.

He also said he will reprimand two street agents who conducted unauthorized surveillance against the Weather Underground.

Webster said he decided against any discipline for 59 other agents, including one supervisor, on grounds they were acting under orders from superiors and without clear legal guidance from FBI headquarters or the Justice Department.

Called "Unfair"

"It seems clear to me that to discipline the street agents at this late date for acts performed under supervision and without needed legal guidance from FBI headquarters and the Department of Justice would wholly lack any therapeutic value either as a personal deterrent or as an example to others," Webster told a news conference. "It would be counterproductive and unfair."

Attorney General Griffin B. Bell said Tuesday night he agreed with Webster's action, calling it "a very wise disposition."

Bell, appearing on the Public Broadcasting Service's MacNeil-Lehrer Report, said he expects FBI morale to rise within the next few months, accompanying "the end of an era" of uneasiness about pending investigations.

Given Broad Immunity

He said many of the 59 agents cleared by Webster had been granted broad immunity from prosecution anyway by investigators hoping such grants would inspire them to implicate higher officials.

Bell called that hope "a singularly unsuccessful theory."

Webster announced the results of an investigation of 68 agents and supervisors accused of involvement in breakins, wiretaps and mail openings that were intended to ferret out Weather Underground fugitives between 1970 and 1975.

The remaining three FBI agents involved in the investigation have retired and are beyond disciplinary action.

Three former ranking FBI officials — former Acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III and two of his top aides — are to stand trial next month on charges they conspired to violate the civil rights of friends and relatives of Weather Underground members by authorizing the surveillance.

Webster said he hoped his decision would resolve the trauma that the Weather Underground case has caused the FBI.

"The lessons have been learned," he said. "The bureau is committed to doing its duty under guidelines which fully protect today's perceptions of privacy and reasonableness."

The four supervisors who were disciplined have 10 days to appeal to Webster to reconsider his decision.

Priscilla Davis Denies Conspiracy Involvement

HOUSTON (AP) — A shapely ice-blonde listened quietly as her own murder was discussed Tuesday and cooly identified one of the tape-recorded voices as that of her estranged millionaire husband, Cullen Davis.

Defiantly shaking her shoulder length hair, Priscilla Davis, 37, repeatedly denied any involvement in an alleged conspiracy to frame her estranged mate on murder-for-hire charges.

Prosecutor Tolly Wilson ticked off the names of the purported conspirators and asked the surprised defense witness:

"Did you conspire with any of the persons I have herefore named to cause your husband to say anything on those tapes?"

"No, sir," she told the jury, which will decide the guilt or innocence of the man she claims shot her and killed her lover and her young daughter.

The courtroom drama unfolded on state cross-examination in the protracted trial to determine if Davis ordered the murder of his divorce judge.

"The defense is going to eat that witness and every ..... one they put up there," Wilson told newsmen before showing Mrs. Davis the videotaped account of a second August meeting between her husband and FBI informant David McCrory.

The FBI recordings and the supporting film represent the heart of the state's bid to send Davis to prison for life.

Included on the Aug. 18 tape is an exchange regarding a contract killer McCrory was allegedly told to hire to kill the judge, Mrs. Davis, and others.

McCrory: "And now Priscilla is a different story...he'd rather ..uh, do Priscilla than the judge...he says he can do it easy."

Davis: "Huh. Like hell."

McCrory: "Well."

Davis: Priscilla's always got somebody around here."

Clutching a yellow headphone to her ears, Mrs. Davis listened to two telephone conversations between Davis and McCrory and then the Aug. 18 tape in which the murders were discussed.

"Did you conspire with Pat Burleson to force your husband to say any of the things that are reflected on that tape?" Wilson asked her time and again.

"No...no...no, " she responded.

In succession, Wilson asked her if she conspired with others. The defense contends they "were united in a network of conspiracy " to frame the darkly handsome Fort Worth industralist.

Each time, she shook her head and repeated the denials.

Prior to the playing of the videotape, Mrs. Davis also examined photographs of the parking lot meeting at which Davis allegedly handed over $25,000 earmarked for a phantom hit man.

"Who is that?" Wilson asked.

"That's Cullen," she replied.

Davis, 45, sat through the cross-examination in unblinking silence. The defense insists that Mrs. Davis, angered over her husband's acquittal last year on murder charges, joined McCrory and Burleson in a deadly scheme of vengence and greed.

She admitted under defense questioning meeting with Burleson three times in the days leading up to and including Davis' arrest.

But she said she met with the karate expert to arrange for security at the pending divorce trial.

The couple separated in 1974 — almost two years to the day before a bloody shooting spree at the $6 million Davis mansion left two dead and two wounded.

Mrs. Davis testified earlier she offered to settle the divorce last summer for $20 million but that her husband rejected the propsoal.

Likewise, she said, she spurned a counterproposal calling for $5,000 a month for 20 years.

"If you were killed, or were to die a month later...the payments would have, ended, is that right?" Wilson asked cryptically.

"Yes, sir."

Young, Old Enjoy C-C Yule Party

By RHONA SCHWARTZ
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A few thousand people Tuesday night proved that the Christmas spirit is already soaring in Lubbock.

Grandmas and grandpas, couples and countless children turned out for the first Chamber of Commerce Community Christmas party in the Civic Center, and judging from the smiles and laughter everybody had a very good time.

Members of the chamber's Women's Division served over 5,000 Christmas cookies. They stopped keeping track of how many cups of punch were served after the first 2,000.

With smiles and a great deal of patience, Channel 13's Sunshine Sally and her sidekick Redford the Rabbit joked with children and led rousing choruses of Jingle Bells.

Santa Makes Appearance

Santa Claus, despite reports to the contrary, did show up to take requests for presents in exchange for candy canes.

The jolly old gent looked fit, if not trim, as he greeted children who had waited up to 30 minutes in line to see him .

Christmas songs permeated the civic center, as various high school, junior high and church choirs performed caroles.

The Federation of Churches brought the most response with their gospel and traditional Christmas selections. Several hundred people gathered around the choir members and their pianist, clapping and joining in.

Why did so many people brave the plunging temperatures to mingle in the crowded civic center?

Choirs Popular

Linda and John Oakley of Lubbock came to hear the choirs and enjoy the festivities, as did Thelma and James Wynn and their three young daughters.

Verma Moore brought her grandchildren to hear their mother in the choir, and Mrs. George Dickens brought her neighbor's son to meet Santa.

Meeting Santa seemed to be the overriding reasons adults gave for attending, and many of the children were ready for him.

Five-year-old Heather Thompson and her grandmother, Pat Sumner, stood in Santa's line for about 25 minutes. Before she met him, Heather said she wasn't scared at all.

Michael Hutton, 7 1 /2, and his sister Wendy, 5 1 /2, who came with their mother, Marlene Hutton, knew exactly what they were going to ask Santa for.

Michael wanted "Star Wars stuff," and Wendy was hoping for a Baby Luv-A-Bubble. "The one that bubbles come out of when you hold her under water."

against making inflammatory statements while in France.

Azhari called Khomaini "a tool of the enemies of this country," but added that the 78-year-old spiritual leader was "welcome" to return "at any time — he would be treated like any other Iranian and would not be arrested if he behaved."

A spokesman for Khomaini said in Paris that Iran's natural gas industry was at a "total standstill."

This spokesman said anti-shah demonstrators had taken control of Bushehr after the shah's secret police allegedly killed two religious leaders late Monday.

Reliable sources reported that one religious leader, Sheik Abu Ashuri, was shot dead in a gunbattle with police trying to arrest him Monday night in Bushehr. Ashuri was being sought for allegedly making inflammatory anti-shah speeches in a local mosque.

Sources said the shootout began when Ashuri's bodyguards fired on police outside his home. Sources said Ashuri was shot six times and a policeman also died in the battle. The identity of the second religious leader reportedly slain was not known here.

Last month's oil strike cost Iran more than $1 billion in lost crude exports. Western analysts warned that the economy, badly hurt by recession even before the political crisis erupted in January, could collapse if the oil flow stopped.

Tehran's martial law administrator, Gen. Gholamali Oveisi, declared in a statement that "saboteurs ... are attacking policemen with guns, knives, axes, sticks, stones and clubs ... trying to kill or injure them." The statement was released after a policeman was killed and two were wounded in an armed attack on a Tehran police station Monday.

The latest anti-shah protests began Friday night, the eve of the holy Moslem month of Moharram. The demonstrations are being led by Khomaini's network of mullahs, or priests.

No Second Semester Busing Woes Seen

19. The second semester begins Jan. 22.

The approximately 1,200 whites now being bused to sister schools are scheduled to return to their neighborhood schools for the second semester. In turn, a new group of about the same number of whites then will be serving sister-school reassignments.

Each predominantly white elementary school is sending one or two grades to a previously minority sister school. Children whose last names begin with the letters A through L are being bused this semester; students whose last names begin with M through Z will be bused the second semester.

Under the plan, children being bused the first half of the year have the option to continue being bused — and staying with the same teacher — for the second semester.

Forms allowing families to exercise that option have been distributed through the schools, pupil personnel director Bill Parker said Tuesday. He said parents must return the forms by Monday.

"From the initial feedback I've received, there are indications we may have quite a few students stay" in their sister schools, Parker said.

Previously school administrators had been worried by that prospect, because bus space already is tight on some desegregation routes. They feared that if many students exercised the second-semester option — instead of returning to their neighborhood campuses — certain buses may be overloaded.

But on Tuesday, school officials said they doubt that problem will be realized.

"The number of students in the bottom half of the alphabet is smaller than the number of students in the top half," Knight said. As a result, he said, the number of bus riders should "balance itself out."

Knight stressed that "we won't know for sure until the (option) forms are turned in and tabulated" next week.

Concerning bus safety, Wyett told the LOOK committee that there have been only 13 bus accidents so far this school year. In just one accident was a bus disabled, he said.

No students or school personnel have been injured in any of the accidents, Wyett said.

The impact of the West Bank demolition issue on the peace talks was difficult to assess.

A coupon is running in every edition of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal through Dec. 13. It is to be filled out if you are aware of children who might be missed at Christmas. And it should be mailed promptly, as only seven days remain, to Chief Goodfellow, P.O. Box 491, Lubbock, Texas, 79408.

A list compiled from these coupons is screened carefully by a committee and then the list is used by the Goodfellows for delivery of Christmas packages to boys and girls of Lubbock on Christmas morning. Recipients of the Goodfellow packages must be under 14 years of age, reside within the city limits and must be in need of help for a Merry Christmas.

Postal Service Surplus Seen

HOUSTON (AP) — If everything goes according to plan, the U.S. Postal Service should end fiscal 1979 with a $180 million surplus, Postmaster General William Bolger said Tuesday.

The surplus would follow deficits of $688 million in 1977 and $379 million in 1978, Bolger told a news conference following a meeting of the Postal Service Board of Governors in Houston.

"The surplus is contingent on the control of inflation to not more than 7 percent and volume growth of 2 percent over 1978," Bolger said. "Seven percent inflation is a horror story in itself, but if it will at least hold there, we can achieve the surplus.

"We have a better shot at a surplus than ever before," he said.

Even if achieved, however, the surplus would be short-lived since Postal Service officials expect a $488 million deficit in fiscal 1980 because of hikes in union wages and benefits during the third year of the labor contract.

Bolger said the rate of inflation during the first three months of fiscal 1979, which began in October, will determine to a great extent whether the Postal Service will end the year with a surplus.

mitment to interconnect LP&L with another source of power.

Bill Wood, city electric utility director, said such an interconnect would be viable when it became cheaper to purchase power than to generate it.

"We're looking at the need for an interconnect around 1983 or 1984," he said.

Board members, who already have a three-inch thick notebook of background information, Tuesday asked for even more.

They requested the projected cost of providing electricity to customers in the future, the comparative cost to generate electricity with coal, oil or gas, and the difference in the cost to construct generating plants for the different fuels, and a chronological list of past bond issues involving LP&L.

General Brown Dies At 60

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. George S. Brown, who retired last summer as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, died late Tuesday of cancer, it was announced.

He was found to have cancer last winter and retired June 20 after undergoing extensive treatment.

Brown, whose blunt remarks, including controversial statements about Jews, drew criticism during his four years as JCS chairman, died at Malcolm Grow Air Force Hospital at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., near Washington.

Brig. Gen. Jerry Dalton, Air Force information chief, said Brown, 60, died at 4:45 p.m. CST. Dalton said Brown's condition had been deteriorating for some time.

"The cause of death was cancer of the prostate," Dalton said.

F.A. Stuart Named To County Post

Joe Hickox of Shallowater, and Lubbock justices of the Peace Charles Smith and Wayne Lecroy.

The other candidates were Hubert Spraberry, a retired Air Force officer and Tech student, and Burl Hubbard, a Tech business administration professor.

After the interviews Shaw and the commissioners each listed on paper ballots their individual top three choices.

Nelson had four mentions, Stuart four, Jones three, Gregory two and Spraberry one.

From the top three vote-getters, another ballot narrowed it to Jones and Stuart. Commissioner Edgar Chance moved to appoint Stuart, and commissioner Jim Lancaster of Idalou seconded the motion.

Commissioners Coy Biggs of Slaton and Alton Brazell voted against the motion. But Shaw voted with Chance and Lancaster to appoint Stuart.

Stuart is a native of Tahoka and a 1946 graduate of Tahoka High School.

He worked in 1947 and 1948 as a bookkeeper in the First National Bank of Tahoka, was an assistant cashier-bookkeeper and teller at American State Bank in Lubbock from 1949 through 1952, and worked in the same positions at Citizens National Bank from 1953 to 1960.

He operated a bookkekeping service and inventory verification from 1960 to 1966 and was with Gibsons Stores at 50th and Avenue A and at 50th and Slide Road for 10 years up to May 1976, when he resigned to concentrate on his degree work

"I was well pleased Stuart said Tuesday after learning of his appointment. "I did feel that I was qualified. "I felt it would be a challenge, and I felt I would meet the needs of the position."

Stuart will take the oath of office in the district clerk's office when he completes bonding arrangements sometime this month.

He also will be sworn in with other county office holders beginning new terms or going into office for the first time.

One of the Lubbock County district judges will conduct the ceremonies at a time of day yet to be determined.

SANTA'S ON THE WAY — City firefighters help other city employees hoist the last section of the giant Christmas tree in place Tuesday at Santa Land, located on the east side of the Civic Center. A police escort will lead Santa and Mrs. Claus to their 24th consecutive Lubbock appearance Dec. 16 to greet area children and complete their Christmas lists. Following Santa's arrival, Santa Land will be open from 6 to 10 p.m. nightly until Christmas. (Staff Photo)

Star Followers Set Upon By Cutthroats

CHAPTER 2
THE BANK OF THE RIVER
By LUSIE PUTCAMP JR.

(WHAT HAS HAPPENED: A boy of Susa, running away from home, hides in a camel bag. When he is discovered, miles later, two in the little caravan want to leave him by the roadside. But the leader, a bearded personage named Melchior, says he can join them. They are following a strange, bright star.)

I was sore from walking and riding the camel. I was tired of the insults of the old man and the boy. I was tired of having the dirtiest chores pushed on me.

And I was curious about the beared Melchior and the star he followed, Each night the star looked as bright as three, and more mysterious.

Everything familiar had disappeared behind us. This land was flat. You could see more sky. And now we had come to a great, muddy river with people busy along its banks.

Never before had I seen so much water. How would we get our camels across?

A man came up to us and raised a hand. In spite of the friendly greeting, I didn't like his looks.

"You want to cross?" he asked Melchior. His teeth were white and his skin was oily in the sun.

The man gestured toward the river.

Now we saw great rafts that bobbed in the brown water. They were made of poles tied together and buoyed blown fat with air.

"First, we unload the camels," said the man. He started tugging at a bundle on my camel.

Melchior raised his gray brows. At the river we culd see other travelers urging their camels onto the rafts. And those camels still carried their burdens.

The man seized the bridle of Melchior's camel. He began tugging the camel toward a raft up the river some distance from the others.

Now men no better looking than this one swarmed toward us. Their robes were dirty and frayed. I thought I saw the glint of a knife tucked in a belt.

Almost before we knew what was happening, the men were pawing at the ropes that held our baggage.

One of the men grabbed for my camel's head. My heart beat fast. I knew I had to get help. I slipped down the other side of the moving camel. My feet stung as they thumped in the dust.

The man shouted hoarsely. I turned and ran as fast as I could, back down to river to where the other people were.

The two saw in an instant what was happening. Now some of the rough men held my struggling companions. Others were wrenching our bundles from the camels' backs.

With shouts my two men beckoned others to help. We ran toward robbers. The robbers saw us coming. They were outnumbered.

They freed my companions and grabbed our bundles. They floundered through the water toward their raft.

We had almost caught up with them when the first one on the raft gave a mighty push with his pole. The raft left the shore so quickly that the men scrambling to get aboard dropped our bundles.

My feet splashed in the water. Swinging from the hands of one of the robbers on the raft was a pouch, the green leather purse that Melchior always wore tied to his waist, even when he slept.

I lunged and caught the leg of the man holding the pouch. I pulled him into the muddy river.

I lunged and caught the leg of the man holding the pouch. I pulled him into the muddy river.

A great spray of water went up. His face went under. I snatched the pouch from his hands. Clutching it to my chest, I struggled back to the shore.

Melchior stood waiting, his hands out.

100,000 On Carters' Yule Card List

WASHINGTON (AP) — President and Mrs. Carter are sending out 100,000 Christmas cards — and getting them into the mail is a major operation.

Some 1,000 volunteers have been addressing envelopes for the Carters since Sept. 25, a spokeswoman for Mrs. Carter said Tuesday. In addition, spouses, offspring and friends of White House staff members have been working nights stuffing the cards into envelopes.

Mary Finch Hoyt, press secretary to Mrs. Carter, said the first cards will be mailed Dec. 13, with the operation planned for completion two days later.

The cost of cards and postage is being paid by the Democratic National Committee, as was the case last year, Mrs. Hoyt said.

She said the cards cost 13 cents each. When mailed with 15 cents postage that would mean a total cost of $28,000.

The Carter card is a reproduction of a colored steel engraving that shows Christmas well-wishers arriving and departing by horse-drawn carriages along the White House driveway on Pennsylvania Avenue.

Mrs. Carter found the engraving, made from an 1877 photograph by L. E. Walker, while seeking art work for her recent redecoration of the third floor of the White House.

Mrs. Hoyt said the engraving will be hung near the entrance to the solarium.

Meat More Costly When Sliced, Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here's a food tip from the federal Office of Consumer Affairs:

"Presliced and precut meats, cheeses, poultry and fish usually are more costly than solid quantities that you slice yourself. Whole chickens, for example, cost considerably less per pound than cut-up chickens. When roasting your own beef, turkey or ham, make a little extra, freeze it and use the leftovers as cold cuts."

Nightmares Haunt Survivor Of Guyana Horror

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — "I was talking to my wife and I said, 'Where's Malcolm! Where's Malcolm! Where's Malcolm!' We were trying to get our son. I realized, wait a second, he's dead. And then I woke up."

Ever since Tim Carter of Boise, Idaho, lost his wife and 15-month-old son, Malcolm, in the mass suicide-murder of more than 900 members of the Peoples Temple settlement at Jonestown, he has been having nightmares.

Another one, he said, "is just that whole scene."

"Some of them are of children, others of me trying to get my son and waking up and realizing he's dead, or dreaming my wife is alive and waking up.

"Just very scary sort of dreams which I think will probably be with me for the rest of my life," the 30-year-old ex-Marine said.

Did his wife commit suicide?

"I don't know," he said. "When I saw her she was dying. I don't think she had any choice. I can't believe ... I think if I had taken the initiative to get us out of there, I think she would have come with me, but I didn't see it coming, so...."

Carter says he and his 26-year-old wife, Gloria, talked very briefly before the Rev. Jim Jones called the meeting in the sect's pavilion to urge his followers to commit suicide.

"I just asked her if she knew what was going on," he recalled. "And she said she heard some things and I told her ... I held her and I held my son, more or less just sat there and comforted each other. But we didn't have any inkling this was about to take place.

"I heard the word suicide mentioned. I guess it would have been just as the meeting was started although I wasn't at the meeting at the time. I was in the process of us being given a suitcase to take out of Jonestown. I gave an empty suitcase to a woman who was at Jim Jones' house.

"From that point, in that period of time, between when I gave her the suitcase and we finally left, is when I heard screaming and crying at the pavilion and I went up and saw this incredible sight.

"Mothers holding babies, crying. And I saw some, maybe 10 or 15 bodies on the ground. I saw my wife and she was holding my son who was dead.

"And I leaned over and hugged her and told her I loved her, and she started going into convulsions at which point I knew whatever was happening, she was dying. At that point my survival instincts took over. I mean I had a way out of Jonestown and I took it. Pure and simple," he said.

His way out, he said, was that he, his brother, Mike, 20, and another man, Mike Prokes, 31, of Stockton, Calif., had been given the suitcase back, now filled with money and a letter to take to the Soviet Embassy in Georgetown. They said it was too heavy and abandoned it in the jungle.

Jones was known to have been considering a possible move of the settlement to Russia.

Police have recovered the suitcase and the money, but have refused to disclose details. They have questioned the three about their statements.

Today, Tim Carter sits penniless, in a downtown hotel along with other American survivors waiting for authorization by Guyanese authorities to leave the country.

"I'd like to go somewhere and take a vacatioon for about a month and try to get my head together," said Carter.

"I don't know, get a job, do something. I plan on taking one day at a time until I get back to the States. It's hard to say what I'm going to do."

He said he will live near his father in Boise.

Assistant Police Commissioner Cecil A. Roberts has said some of the survivors will be held as material witnesses in judicial proceedings that are expected to be lengthy. But Roberts has not disclosed the names.

The waiting, said Tim Carter "is getting boring, nerve-wracking."

Carter was born in Berkeley, Calif., and grew up in San Francisco. His father moved to Boise in the early 1970s.

Carter served with the Marines in Vietnam. He joined the Peoples Temple about six years ago and has been in Guyana 15 months. He had been doing community relations work for the Temple headquarters in Georgetown and for the settlement.

"After I got out of the Marine Corps, basically I was wandering around, taking odd jobs, living off unemployment.

"I wanted to do something in my life where I felt I was helping people and doing something constructive in the social sense."

What happened at Jonestown, he said, makes him bitter.

"I think I was used along with everyone else. Misled. I think he (Jones), rather than face the fact the people wanted to leave his organization, he sacrificed 900 people to make his name in history rather than have the truth be told.

"I don't want anything to do with the Peoples Temple ever again. I'll never forget it. It will be with me for the rest of my life."

Petition Filed To Dissolve Peoples Temple

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Legal action to dissolve the Peoples Temple of the Disciples of Christ has been taken on behalf of the four surviving members of the sect's board of directors.

The Superior Court petition filed Monday says the survivors want to "wind up and dissolve (Peoples Temple) in light of the tragedies that occurred in Jonestown, Guyana."

Filed by attorney Charles Garry, the five-page petition says "it is practically and morally impossible for the corporation to continue its existence."

Unless otherwise instructed by the court, the directors said they have decided to set aside $1 million for burial expenses of the more than 900 church members who died in South America.

Kansas Senator-Elect Shuns Feminist Label

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Nancy Landon Kassebaum says her place as a woman would still be in the home, rather than the U.S. Senate, had she and her husband not separated.

When she and Phil Kassebaum, an attorney and businessman, decided to separate three years ago, it was not a result of any desire to break out and become her own person, she said in an interview.

But although she won't say what caused the split — "it was really something that's hard to explain" — Mrs. Kassebaum believes it was partially responsible for giving her a taste of Washington politics that later led her to run for the Senate.

MRS. KASSEBAUM

Had she and her husband been together when a year ago Sen. James Pearson announced he would retire, the Republican senator-elect said, Kansas would not have its first woman senator.

"Sen. Pearson made his decision and I was from this area of the state and it was a good time for a woman and the children were at a point where I felt I could be gone and my own marital status had changed," she said.

"Otherwise, I would not have been able to participate — because I would not have left home to go off on my own career. As I've said, my first priorities were family and they still are, really, but they've changed so that I feel I can utilize interests I've always had."

The 46-year-old Mrs. Kassebaum has gained as much attention in becoming the first woman elected to the Senate without following her husband to Congress as she has for being the daughter of 1936 GOP presidential nominee Alf Landon.

But in interviews at her campaign office and comfortable home in a rural area west of Wichita, she said she felt no special responsibility to the women's movement when she becomes the only woman senator in the 96th Congress.

Among other points she made were:

'...If you go into the Senate a lamb of a feminist, you will come out like a lion. Let us hear you roar.' — ALAN ALDA

— She hopes to serve in the Senate two terms and has no desire to seek higher office as her father did.

— The person she admires most is Abigail Adams, wife of the second president, because "somehow I myself have admired women who have been strong behind the scenes and I still do." She counts her own mother in that category.

Among the hundreds of messages Mrs. Kassebaum has received since her victory over former Democratic Rep. Bill Roy in the Nov. 7 election was a 57-word telegram from actor Alan Alda.

"I knew you could make it on your own," the star of television's "MASH" wrote. "Congratulations and my heartfelt wishes for a successful career in the Senate.

"And I'm sure you know that you also have my heartfelt wish that if you go into the Senate a lamb of a feminist, you will come out like a lion. Let us hear you roar."

Mrs. Kassebaum said she had spoken with Alda, a strong advocate of the feminist cause, during the campaign about her opposition to extending the ratification deadline for the Equal Rights Amendment. She believed extension would result in debate harmful to women's rights, a stand that alienated some feminists, but said she would work for passage of the amendment.

Don't expect to hear her "roar" for the feminist cause, Mrs. Kassebaum said, yet don't expect her to duck the issue, either.

She said she thought the women's vote was important to her election but it was not "particularly a political women's vote."

"It seemed to stem more from the fact that, well, let's give a woman a chance. The men haven't done that well right now, so why not see what a woman can do?" she said.

The mandate Kansas voters gave her was to serve all of their interests, not just a certain area, Mrs. Kassebaum said. "I feel it's very important that I relate in the larger scope of the issues and not narrowly confined to the women's aspect or the women's concern," she said.

Another letter Mrs. Kassebaum received was from Margaret Chase Smith, former U.S. senator from Maine. "She said she had been pleased that I ran as a candidate and stressed my qualifications and tried to talk about them as a candidate and not as a woman." Mrs. Smith followed her husband to the House, later to be elected to the Senate.

Some of her friends warned that her marital separation and being a woman were two strikes against Mrs. Kassebaum when she opened her first try for elective office outside of a local school board race.

Mrs. Kassebaum had left Wichita with three of her four children in 1975 to work for a year on Sen. Pearson's staff in Washington because she believed "maybe it was a good time to get a little breathing space." That experience, she said, led to her candidacy.

She said she discussed the decision to run at length with her husband and children. "Phil encouraged me and he said, 'You have to want to do it more than anything else in the world,'" she said.

"He's been very helpful in the campaign and I greatly respect his advice," she said. "He is very astute politically and he was far more involved in politics for some years than I was."

The only political aspirations she said she has after serving her term in the Senate is "six more years, I would hope." She calls questions on whether she would ever run on the national ticket inevitable and dismisses them as "just politics."

Mrs. Kassebaum said her 91-year-old father did not hesitate to offer advice during her campaign — advice she noted but did not always follow — and that she expects it to continue when she's a senator.

"I'll never need to ask," she said.

Latin American Aid Proposed To Curb Flow Of Illegal Aliens

B METRO

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
Wednesday, December 6, 1978

WASHINGTON (AP) — Abelardo Valdez, a migrant farm worker who rose to become the highest-ranking Mexican-American in the State Department, has undertaken an equally improbable task — convince the dollar-conscious Carter administration to increase aid to Latin America.

The 35-year-old Texan outlined his proposals Tuesday during a speech in Miami before a gathering of American bankers and Latin American government officials.

Without American dollars to prime the economic pumps of Latin America, the countries will continue to import millions of illegal immigrants into the United States, said Valdez.

"The wounds of economic stagnation and alienation have already begun to appear elsewhere in the hemisphere," he said. "Its symptom is the millions of undocumented Latin and Caribbean workers who flee to the U.S. as refugees from despair.

"This growing problem for the U.S. will not be stopped by police or barbed wire. It will be resolved only by our working together, by going to the root of the economic problems that deprive our neighbors of well-being and hope.

"And if that responsibility is not met," he warned, "... sooner rather than later, the vast excluded mass of the poor in Latin America will take the inevitable toll of economic progress and the political stability we have sought to build."

Realizing the Carter administration's reluctance to increase foreign aid when belt-tightening is becoming fashionable at both the White House and on Capitol Hill, Valdez has formulated a fiscal plan calling for the government to guarantee funds that private institutions loan to Latin America.

Valdez, the Agency for International Development's assistant administrator, wants to take AID's $200 million budget for Latin America and combine it with the $200 million in loan payments the U.S. treasury receives from Latin American borrowers.

The $400 million would be doubled by matching funds from American banks. Latin American goverments would be enticed to apply for such loans due to an interest rate between the 3 percent charged by the U.S. government to the 10-11 percent charged by private banks.

"That's $800 million and I'm not saying that's enough," Valdez said during a recent interview noting that the funds would be targeted for "rural development...improving the lot of the small farmer; improving his productivity, his marketability; improving the education and health programs delivered to the rural programs where half the people live."

To insure the participation of America's private lending institutions, their monies would be guaranteed by Congress.

"If the U.S. bankers and Latin American officials agree with the plan (in Miami) then we'll take it to the administration and Congress," he said.

"I'm appealing to those bankers ...to their social consciousness and their vision and desire for future profit and payment of loans outstanding to help us address this critical poverty problem at a time when the U.S. government does not have the capacity due to its...belt-tightening."

Valdez also noted that by Feb. 4, 1979, his agency must report on Latin America to Congress.

Asked if the poor Latin Americans haven't been victims of the "mordida" mentality of some of their leaders, Valdez replied:

"I think we have to realize that where you have one half of the people living on $200 a year per person, it's very difficult to get citizen participation in the political process and in a society where there is not balance...only certain interests are represented or have a chance to be represented.

"But even in developed countries like the U.S., we still have our GSA scandals. We're not immune, but in some countries — especially developing countries — it's worse."

Valdez depicts his rise from the cotton fields around Floresville to his sixth-floor office suite in the State Department as a "mind-blowing" experience.

After receiving a degree in engineering from Texas A&M and an Army commission, Valdez was stationed at Fort Belvoir, near Washington.

"I spent 20 of my 29-month military career at the White House (as a military aide)...that opened up my eyes quite a bit. I became interested in Latin America after traveling with the president (Johnson) to a conference in Uruguay in 1967.

"From there, I decided the action wasn't in engineering so I went to Baylor Law School."

Amy Helps Top U.S. Christmas Tree

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amy Carter, reaching from a cherry picker 30 feet in the air, helped place a gold star atop the national Christmas tree on the Ellipse Tuesday as her mother watched from below.

"Are you afraid?" Rosalynn Carter called to her 11-year-old daughter as she made a slow ascent to the top of the 30-foot blue spruce that is visible from the back yard of the White House. Amy shook her head.

"She's not afraid of anything," Mrs. Carter said, adding that when Amy first heard about the invitation she decided she wanted to do it.

Though Mrs. Carter walked the block from the White House to the Ellipse, Amy arrived a few minutes later in a chauffeur-driven car from school.

As she walked back to the White House, Mrs. Carter encountered a few tourists from Georgia. "You look lovely as usual," one woman said. Another added: "And my camera is broken."

Mrs. Carter said she plans to visit Calhoun, Ga., after her daughter-in-law, Judy, gives birth to the Carters' third grandchild. Judy and the president's eldest son, Jack, are expecting their second child any day.

Mrs. Carter also said she and her husband would go home to Plains, Ga., for Christmas on Dec. 22.

She told reporters the Christmas tree was beautiful and added: "I just think Christmas is a time when people kind of count their blessings and feel close to their fellow man."

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

IN COLLABORATION WITH PAUL E. RUBLE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please enlighten me on the disease of the kidney called glomerulonephritis. My doctor, a nephrologist, says I have this disease. I would like to know if there is any cure, or possibly a special diet that would benefit me. — C.D.

Along with the heart, lungs and liver, the kidneys are the busiest organs of the body. Their chief function is the filtering of blood to remove impurities while permitting the right balance of vital substances to stay in circulation. The glomeruli are essential parts of that filtering mechanism. When they are disturbed the whole system breaks down and a host of symptoms arises. This is called glomerulonephritis.

Edema (swelling) may occur, blood chemistry be altered, and excess albumin (protein) appear in the urine. And because the kidneys are so intimately associated with blood circulation, high blood pressure may result.

There is no specific cure for this, although if causes can be pinpointed they may be controlled individually. Arterial hardening may be involved, or an attack may follow a severe strep infection — strep throat, for example.

In its mild form no diet is needed, but if there is excess nitrogen retention in the body, a diet low in protein can help. Salt restriction helps control any edema, and liquid intake may have to be limited. Your nephrologist (a specialist in kidney disorders) can tell you how seriously your kidneys have been damaged and what course you should follow. Some attacks subside without any recurrence, but lifelong control of the factors mentioned above is necessary. Such kidney damage may occur gradually over many years without any dramatic symptoms. This makes treatment more difficult than in acute cases, as those stemming from infection, which is controlled by antibiotics.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been reading your column for some time and I finally need your help. I am a 15-year-old girl. I weigh 101 pounds and am 5-foot-1. My measurements are 34-27-34. As you can probably see, my problem is my waist. It is the only part of my body that needs help. Is there anything I can do to help it? — Uneven

I can't think of anything you can do to change the physical proportions you probably inherited. You could try bending exercises to strengthen waist muscles, but I doubt at your weight that they would alter your statistics. You do not need to lose any of those 101 pounds. Learn to dress to suit your physique.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My father has had an eye disease called retinitis pigmentosa for more than two years. Have doctors found a cure for this yet? Whom does it affect, and how is it transmitted? — S.J.

Extensive research is being done into this inherited disorder, but no cure is in sight yet. It occurs at different ages and in varying degrees of severity. Mild forms may cause no vision difficulty until later in life, apparently the situation with your father. However, symptoms, such as night blindness, may occur early but go unreported. Abnormalities can be seen by use of the ophthalmoscope. These are usually evident by age ten.

There seems to be about a 50 percent chance of offspring being affected. The Retinitis Pigmentosa Foundation recently issued a report on this subject. You can write for more detailed information to the Foundation, 8331 Middle Circle, Baltimore, Md. 21207.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband says constant use of aluminum pots for cooking is harmful. Could this be true? We would also like to ask about green potatoes. If the green under the skin is peeled off, is it safe to eat the rest? — Mr. and Mrs. J.S.

No harm from the aluminum cookware — a myth that dies hard. As to the green potatoes, the potato contains about 150 chemical substances, and solanine alkaloid is one of them. This is found chiefly under the skin and when exposed to light it may turn green. It is toxic and should not be eaten. It can be cut away and the rest of the potato eaten with no danger.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR GALS:

All of us have those plastic handbags we've stored from year to year, and when the season rolls around that we need one, oh! what a sight.

What with those blow dryers coming in so handy for other things besides drying your hair, I decided to try it on one of my flat, misshapened purses.

I turned my hair dryer on the "hot" setting and, holding it inside my purse, I let it blow for a few minutes.

The hot air made the plastic warm and pliable, and the wrinkles fell back into shape again.

As soon as the bag became soft, I inserted a neatly folded bath towel to fit the shape of the handbag, and it looked like new again a few hours later.

If you don't have one of those hair dryers, don't despair, old Mr. Solar Energy works wonders, too.

Place your purse on a sunny windowsill, or where the sun can shine on it for a few hours. Be sure to place the purse on a towel to keep it from getting marked. When one side becomes hot, stuff it with a folded towel, turn the purse over and repeat the process.

This may take a day or two, depending on where you live and where the sun shines in your window. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

When I serve a meal that I can use paper plates for, I use two plates the same size, putting one on top of the other.

DEAR HELOISE:

I just purchased a can of hair spray and after only a couple of times of use, it no longer will spray.

Whenever I have a product that doesn't perform satisfactorily, I write to the manufacturer of that product and explain the problem, enclose the label and price, if known.

Most manufacturers are happy to know of any problems with their products, and will either refund the purchase price or send a coupon for another.

I also give a product praise if I like it.

Many dollars are saved by doing this rather than discarding the unusable product and doing nothing about it.

Thanks for all your helpful hints. I hope this will help others, especially in this time of inflation where every dollar counts. — Mrs. Lenoa Siebert

LETTER OF LOVE

DEAR HELOISE:

Thanks for the vote of confidence, Diane! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

With today's longer dresses, do you find your lingerie drawer crowded with full-length slips that are too short?

I did, so I examined them and found I could cut some of them off just below the bust line, turn a hem for elastic and make mid-calf half slips for longer skirts. — Reva VanDermark

DEAR HELOISE:

When I make instant coffee, my coffee seems to cool all too quickly in the cup.

Now I fill the cup with hot water from the tap, let it sit until the water boils for my coffee.

By this time, the cup is warm and the coffee stays hot longer. — Jay Wray

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

I saw my first ad for an "After Christmas Sale" last week and realized the pressure is on.

Usually, the first "After Christmas Sale" occurs two weeks before Christmas, but with the big push to get people to shop, the incentives come earlier every year.

For some reason which I cannot explain, my husband will not see the ads touting perfume, lounging clothes, matched luggage, jeweled caftans, music boxes, tinkling the theme from Dr. Zhivago, dinner rings or a slim volume of love poems.

Instead, he will be drawn like a magnet to items and services that have nothing whatsoever to do with Christmas. You've seen them. Santa Claus wearing a truss and exclaiming, "No more feeling like I was kicked by a reindeer."

A man in a red jumpsuit holding a gift certificate for a free pest control inspection.

Tweezers for getting rid of unwanted facial hair in a see-through gift box with a plastic poinsettia on top.

Thirty-five percent of the husbands in this country do their Christmas shopping in a hardware store, another 15 percent make all their gift selections in a drugstore, and another 7½ percent buy for everyone on their list in a car wash.

I saw my husband reading ads the other morning at breakfast and said, "I don't know how to tell you this, but I don't want a smoke alarm for Christmas."

"Why in the world would I buy you a smoke alarm?"

"I know how your mind works. Five years ago it was a crock pot, four years ago, a car defroster gun, three years ago, a doormat with my last name, two years ago an exercise belt that released steam around my waist, and last year a grease shield for my bacon."

"You said you liked the unusual."

"Dracula is unusual. I wouldn't want him in my Christmas stocking."

"Then give me hints."

"What about something in fragrance? Fur? Or just something to make me feel more like a woman?"

Whatya wanta bet I get a new bowl cleanser...a hamster...or tablets for my iron deficiency?

"Couldn't you have doubled four spades?" asked South. "Why take a loss when we had a sure profit?"

"Four spades would only have been one down," replied North. "Why not play the dummy like a bridge player, not a mumblety-peg expert. Five hearts was lay down."

South had won the first club with dummy's ace, led a diamond toward his hand with the hope of letting West win the trick, but East held all the high diamonds and South would gain nothing by playing his king. East then led a club to give his partner two club tricks.

South should have let West hold that first club. Had he made that play West would have been helpless.

A club continuation would be allowed to run around to the jack; any other lead would give South time to set up dummy's fifth diamond for a club discard.

Incidentally the play of ducking the king lead when you hold the ace and jack of the suit is one of the bridge plays that go back to the game of whist. The play is called the Bath coup after the English town of Bath, which was a most popular resort town in the 19th century.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: When I married in 1960, I weighed 115 pounds. I kept adding a little here and there after each baby. Two weeks ago I bought a new scale (the old one broke six years ago) and I was shocked to discover I weighed 152 pounds.

I went to my doctor who insisted I have a complete physical. He found no organic problem and gave me a diet.

When he asked if I ate between meals, I said, "Never" — which I thought was the truth. When I told him I eat less than anybody in the family, he replied, "I hear that all the time." Then he instructed me to write down everything I put into my mouth (even chewing gum) for one solid week and come back to him.

I did it and the mystery was solved. I found myself writing, "For breakfast I had black coffee and a piece of toast— no butter. Then I finished Marge and Timmy's cereal— six spoonsful of Marge's and four of Timmy's. I ate Harry's leftover toast—¾ of a slice– adding about a tablespoon of orange marmalade. Finished Nora's bacon and eggs — about ½ an egg and two strips of bacon."

While fixing dinner I ate three matzo balls and a half a cup of chicken soup. I also ate a quarter of an avocado and tasted the salad dressing several times. I made a cheesecake topped with sour cream and ate four tablespoons of sour cream which was left over. After dinner I finished Timmy's soup and ate Nora's cheesecake. My husband left half of his cheesecake so I ate that, too.

It became apparent to me that I didn't eat much from my own plate but I was certainly eating plenty while preparing meals and cleaning up. Now I've put an imaginary padlock on my mouth while cooking and cleaning, and it has worked wonders.

Today I feel so light I could fly. I've already lost eight pounds and am thrilled with the prospect of being — Slim Again

Dear Slim: The cheering you hear is from me— your friend in Chicago. And now I hope all the plump ladies out there who "don't eat anything" will take a page out of your book. P.S. For those who need a "visual image," that padlock on the mouth is super!

Dear Ann: Teenagers often write to you about having crushes on their teachers. I'm a male high-school teacher, 28 years old, who needs advice. I'm in my second teaching assignment. The other was a boys' boarding school— so no problem.

I am unmarried, fairly attractive, and the kids like me. One 15-year-old girl comes to my classroom every day after school. She has started to phone me at home evenings and she dropped over to my apartment last Saturday and Sunday. I am aware that the girl is a little kooky and comes from an unhappy home. I hate to be cruel but I'm uncomfortable about her attachment to me.

She's a brazen young lady and may not be aware that she could put me in an awkward position. How should I deal with the problem? — Too Close For Comfort

Dear Close: Tell the girl immediately that she not only places herself in a bad light by hanging around, but if gossip started she could get you into serious trouble.

Tell her she cannot come to see you after classes unless she brings a friend. And make it plain that she is not at liberty to phone you at home or come to visit you— ever.

Quest For Riches, Land Led Spanish Into Texas

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a series of 10 articles excerpted from a new book entitled "Texas — The Beginning," written by Ed Syers of Kerrville. The book, available through Texian Press, P.O. Box 1684, Waco, 76703, chronicles the state's least-known years, 1519 to 1834.)

Gold enticed Spain north from Mexico; a massacre, a miracle, and French menace aimed her for Texas.

By the mid-1500s, Spanish convoys put out from Vera Cruz using silver bars for ballast. Some fell victim to French and English corsairs, others to hurricane like that which wrecked the 1553 "flota" on Padre Island. Still, her loot was enormous.

Yet for this world power, it was not enough.

By 1582, she tried for the northwestern mountains that had defied Coronado, reaching New Mexico with America's first wagon train in 1590 and with permanent settlement eight years later. Crossing the Rio Grande at today's San Elizario, under the Pass of the North, Don Juan de Onate there took possession of all the new upper land.

To the east there seemed no treasure. Yet in 1620, the miracle-visions of a nun, Maria de Agreda — a girl who never left her Spanish convent — commanded Franciscan efforts to missionize the Tejas. In explicit detail she described land from New Mexico to Big Bend and from the Paint Rock cliffs near San Angelo to East Texas forests.

Spain's first missionaries were thunderstruck when welcoming Indians described Maria — "the Lady in Blue," who came to them from the sky.

Even before the drive eastward could begin, El Paso was settled through necessity. The frightful Pueblo revolt of 1680 slaughtered New Mexican settlements from Taos to Albuquerque, and Spain recoiled to Paso del Norte. There she built the Indian pueblos at Ysleta, Socorro and Senecu (within today's El Paso), and from there in a decade retook New Mexico.

Meantime, however, the Blue Lady's Franciscan missionizing drew unexpected impetus. One group of priests near Horsehead Crossing, above what is now Fort Stockton, came on Indians carrying a French flag.

France was supposed to be scarcely south of Canada. How now in Texas?

This land must be held. Gold, it might not have, but Spanish-occupied, it could guard the golden gate to Mexico's riches.

Board To Revise Lake Leases

By TOM GRIESS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock County Water Control and Improvement District 1 voted Tuesday to restructure all existing leases on property at Buffalo Springs Lake to expire in 1997.

Board members said they took the action so that future rent adjustments and other lease adjustments would be applied to leaseholders on a uniform basis.

The board's decision will provide that leases expiring between 1978 and 1987 be renewed to expire on Dec. 31, 1997. As the leases are renewed, they will include the revised rental rates of $350 per annum for waterfront lots and $250 per year for the remaining lots.

The revised annual rental rates were approved by the board at last month's meeting.

The board also decided that all leases to be renewed in 1998 would extend for a 12-year period and include a provision allowing the district to review the annual rental rate each three-year period.

According to information provided by advising attorney Elmer V. East, the basis for adjusting the rental rate will be the "consumer price index and the cost incurred...in the operation of this district for the benefit of its patrons."

The clause providing for the three-year option of adjusting the rental rate will also be included in renewed leases to expire in 1997.

After amending the term and annual rental rate for future leases, the board took under consideration amending the lease to prohibit the tenant "from conducting any activities thereon for the purpose of generating a profit or income to the tenant and no commercial, business or industrial use shall be made of the premises."

In earlier discussion board members said various leaseholders have been using their lots for commercial purposes despite provisions in the existing lease intended to prevent such activity.

DermaCulture . . . COMPLEXION PERFECTION

GENTLE VACCUMING PROCESS

If you are young enough to dream; but figure you are too old for miracles...you may be in for a surprise!

If skin that glistens with cleanliness and presents a texture as sleek as that of the typical apple-cheeked four year old is what you want, it is available as the end product of a treatment at the DermaCulture Studio, 4902 34th Terrace Shopping Center. In fact, DermaCulture is the proven way to "complexion perfection."

The sophisticated procedure, first developed in 1938, requires months of intensive training on the part of its technicians. Because of this, only dedicated and caring technicians complete the training requirements.

The DermaCulture method was originally developed for problem skin. It has even restored severely damaged complexions and enjoys an enviable reputation for creating fragile, flawless complexions. Treatment begins when the patron reclines on a comfortably padded table with legs elevated for circulation promotion and complete relaxation. The first step of the procedure consists of a satiny facial cleansing administred by quick, cool fingers of an expert therapist. Most women go through only the motions of skin cleansing and generally speaking, only the surface soil is removed. Very few people have the correct conception of what constitutes a really clean skin.

After the cleansing, a vaporizing solution is applied to soften scaly facial cells so often found in the average complexion. The face is not subjected to the normal friction of other parts of the body that helps the skin to constantly renew itself. The solution softens pore-trapped bits of film that clog the natural cleaning and lubricating factories working below the skin.

Next comes application of an infra-ray mask which opens pores and further softens any unwanted accumulation. Superfluous material is then gently vacuumed away by a vacuum cleaner which very much looks like a bent drinking straw. It is a very gentle process. Then a technician deftly plucks away blackheads, white heads, or as we prefer to call them, "pore-plugs".

The final step is a pleasant firming technique using highly perfected patented equipment. The customer's reward is a superbly smooth skin.

Every skin can look better in only one treatment, some skin problems require a series before real correction is effected. DermaCulture, effective in the removal of acne, pimples, skin blemishes of every type, scars and other severe skin problems, is used by several airline schools including American, Delta and Texas International, who regularly send the stewardesses and trainees for treatments when skin problems are discovered. In the Dallas studio, as many as thirty will come at one time.

SCRUB WITH HONEY AND ALMOND GRAIN

A number of TV and screen personalities in California, where the first DermaCulture Studio was established, have discovered the great benefits derived from DermaCulture, as might be expected, since the repeated application of stage make-up can cause problems.

The procedure was developed by a German specialist who came to this country and found no therapy treatment available. Since then it has been improved with newly invented aids.

After the initial treatment, the superclealiness can be renewed in the home, with products such as a cleanser made with barley, honey and almonds—a cleanser which again, gives the skin a newness and silkiness possible only with the removal of excess lubrication. One soap, made especially for excessively oily skin, has help as its main ingredient. Another new product in the line is a soap for normal skin. The astringent, the mildest and most gentle ever developed, is a boon for the woman who must be careful with a fragile complexion. This green, herb-based liquid has a natural fragrance coming only from the herbs necessary to make it.

DermaCulture has a complete line of cosmetics that are excellent for all types of skin. In fact, all of our cosmetics are free of any perfume and the ones used on the face are totally free of oil as well. These cosmetics can be purchased without taking the treatments, although we prefer to give at least one in order to thoroughly cleanse the skin and demonstrate the proper use of the cosmetics.

It has been proven in other cities in Texas that DermaCulture treatments and the use of our skin care items are most effective in the protection of the skin of the most avid tennis players and all other outdoorsy people. The skin retains a softness that belies the many hours spent in the sun. All sun-loving people should be patrons of DermaCulture for the sake of their skin.

The skin is the largest organ of the body, and one of the most important. Not only is a lovely skin important to you personally, but your complexion is the first thing other people notice. You can paint it-you can powder it-you can tan it-but unless your skin is so clean and healthy that it needs no improvement, DermaCulture treatments may be the only way to your natural skin beauty.

DermaCulture, a proven beauty concept that is available to you here in Lubbock. If you value your skin — your looks — your poise and personal ego — if you would achieve the serene self-confidence that only comes with looking your best — DermaCulture. It's the common sense approach to skin care.

Additional information and appointments may be made by telephoning DermaCulture Studio, 4902 34th Terrace Shopping Center, 792-8535, Monday through Saturday.

Battle Brews Over Housing Funds Slash

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's budget managers claim they can cut the federal housing budget and still increase subsidized units, but his housing experts say the reduction would slash the program by one-third, sources report.

The Office of Management and Budget is recommending the Department of Housing and Urban Development budget authority for housing be reduced from about $26.3 billion in the current fiscal year to about $22.5 billion in Carter's 1980 budget, the sources said.

HUD says this will reduce subsidized housing from the current 330,000 units to about 225,000 in the budget year beginning next Oct. 1. The department will appeal Thursday to OMB for money for 300,000 units and for smaller cuts in some other departmental programs.

But OMB has challenged HUD's 225,000 figure, and claims the department can actually subsidize just over 330,000 units with the lower dollar figure by using lower cost-per-unit estimates and switching some dollars to cheaper subsidy plans.

Six administration officials in several government offices who discussed the dispute declined to be identified because Carter's final decision is more than two weeks off.

But word of the cuts already has sparked protests from traditionally Democratic black and urban groups, who noted that 225,000 units are fewer than subsidized in all but one year of the Republican Nixon and Ford administrations.

OMB says two changes would allow HUD to get more units with less money.

First, the budget office argues that HUD's per-unit cost estimates are too high.

An aide to Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., however, said he thought even HUD's estimates were too low.

Carl Holman, head of the Urban Coalition, said he doubted OMB could match HUD's expertise in housing costs and warned against optimistic estimates while inflation continues.

One government source, siding with HUD, said, "You could do what OMB wants but some ingredients would be missing, like roofs and plumbing."

Second, the budget office recommends producing of fewer new or rehabilitated units and instead subsidizing the rents in more existing units than HUD believes the law allows. New or rehabilitated units cost roughly twice what it does to subsidize existing units. The sources said HUD wants 66 percent of the units to be new or rehabilitated, but OMB wants only about 55 percent in that category.

HUD argues that there isn't enough vacant housing of the necessary size or price in areas that need subsidies for the OMB plan to work.

Ironically, because most housing subsidy dollars are spent years after they are authorized, the dispute has no significant impact on Carter's drive to cut the deficit in 1980 from the current $40 billion to $30 billion.

The delayed deficit impact led one source, sympathetic to HUD, to say, "This is not an attack on inflation but an attack on subsidized housing. HUD thinks that if low income housing isn't subsidized, it won't get built. But OMB thinks more expensive housing can trickle down to the poor through rent subsidies."

NEW COURT PROPOSED

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., is drawing up a bill that would establish a national appeals court to hear tax cases and other challenges resulting from decisions by federal judges and regulators. The measure will be designed to lessen congestion in the current 11 federal circuit courts of appeal and avoid inconsistent rulings by the various circuits, said an aide to Kennedy, who will become chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee next month.

Techsan In National FFA Post

In six short years Elvin Caraway has gone from being a rank-and-file member to become a national leader of the Future Farmers of America Organization (FFA).

Caraway, sophomore agricultural education major at Texas Tech University, was elected national vice president of the FFA at the recent national convention in Kansas City, Mo.

His duties will include "inspiring and motivating fellow members to take advantage of opportunities," visiting foundation sponsors and helping to set policies.

His primary responsibility will be visiting adults involved in the program, either through leadership or foundation sponsor programs. There are more than 1,400 sponsor programs across the country, including several major corporations.

"My goal this year is to try to help bridge the communications gap existing between young and old people and between the urban and rural areas," Caraway said. "This gap, especially between agricultural and non-agricultural interests, has come into some prominence in the recent past and I would like to help work toward a solution"

Though his major is agricultural education, Caraway started in agricultural communications and an interest remains in that area.

"I would like to become involved in the processing and distributing areas of agri-business, probably through public relations. I think there's a great need for someone to act as intermediary between the farmers and the corporations, showing farmers how best to market their produce."

He also said he might someday be interested in teaching, which he considers the noblest of all professions.

Caraway, a native of Spur, was on his high school's state debate team and won the state FFA public speaking contest while in high school.

He remained involved in FFA after entering Texas Tech, became interested in student government and served as a student senator and as a member of the Student Agriculture Council and the Agriculture Ambassador Association.

He has served as chapter, district, area and state president in FFA. As state FFA president last year, Caraway took a year from school to visit more than 450 local chapters.

This year he will again be required to delay school another year to fulfill his duties as vice president.

"I think it will be well worth it, for one thing because of the places I'll be able to go. And it will give me contacts which may help with job opportunities when I graduate."

In addition to traveling across the continental United States, Caraway is scheduled to visit Hawaii, Japan, Australia, New Zealand and Puerto Rico.

Caraway's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Carnahan, now live in Clovis, N.M.

Cattle Futures Finish Mixed

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 55 points lower to 32 higher on 25,326 cars Tuesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. December was off the most after slipping 95 with October up the most after gaining 67 to a new season's high. Distant December also set a new high.

Support was uncovered after prices tumbled on heavy cattle arrivals and lower prices.

There were 257 deliveries. Wholesale beef was unchanged at 84 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points, for all weights, which is a seven-week high. Cash cattle were steady to off $1 with the best top $56.25 per hundredweight at Omaha. Slaughter was 144,000 head. Receipts at the major markets today are expected to be 18,100 head.

Feeder cattle futures closed 2 to 62 lower led by March, which tumbled 112 for a time. Sales were 1,771 contracts. April briefly gained 25, but prices generally were lower from the start.

Aggressive profit-taking continued from Monday as traders noted easiness in beef. Selling came despite some sharp advances in cash feeder cattle. Traders are wary of these prices, however, expressing doubt that they can be maintained.

Cash feeder cattle were up $10 to off 50 cents with the best top $100 per hundredweight at Greeley. About 6,900 head are expected at the major terminals today.

Hog futures closed 25 lower to 22 higher on 7,409 sales. August was off the most with June and July up the most. Earlier, distant December climbed 70 to equal the season's high and distant February set a new high.

The market fell 60 on mostly lower cash hogs and fears of expanded marketings in the days ahead.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to up 1 cent at 94 to 103 cents a pound, f.o.b. river, which is a one year high.

Cash hogs were off 75 to up 75 cents with the best top $51.50 per hundredweight at Peoria. Kill was 334,000 head. The major markets are expecting about 28,500 head today.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 30 higher to 20 lower on 6,574 cars. March was up the most with February at the only loss. Earlier, March gained 115 and July lost 80.

Prices recovered when other meat futures improved after outset selling on lower cash hogs and continued heavy storings.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to off 1½ cents at 57½ to 62 cents a pound, f.o.b. river, which is a six-week high.

Agriculture Agency Changes Opposed By Republican Panelist

WASHINGTON (AP) — The senior Republican on the House Agriculture Committee said Tuesday it would be a mistake to shift two large Agriculture Department agencies to the "recreation-minded Interior Department."

Rep. William C. Wampler, R-Va., asked Rep. Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., committee chairman, to oppose transfer of the Forest Service and certain programs of the Soil Conservation Service to a new Department of Natural Resources built around the present Interior Department.

The reorganization proposal reportedly is being drafted by the Carter administration.

In a letter to Foley, Wampler wrote that "It would be a tragic mistake to alter the one department in government that is doing a good job to meet essential human needs."

Forestry, soil conservation and production needs of farmers would yield, Wampler said, to "recreation-minded Department of Interior ... individuals who have a past record of yielding to imbalanced conservation and environmental interests."

Their idea of soil conservation, he said, "has been to preserve the Grand Canyon and the Mojave Desert in their pristine condition."

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

COTTON ACREAGE PLANTED NEXT SPRING will depend mainly on the price of cotton relative to those of competing crops, especially grain sorghum and soybeans.

Prices of cotton, soybeans and sorghum have risen since last spring, with cotton experiencing the sharpest relative increase.

If current price relationships prevail, USDA says, cotton acreage next year could rise to nearly 14 million, if there is no set-aside or diversion program. This would be up from 13.1 million acres in 1978.

IF SOME PRICE WEAKNESS FOR COTTON relative to competing crops develops between now and planting time, acreage of course would be less.

But, at this time, it is hard to see cotton acreage dropping below 13 million on the basis of market prices alone.

As usual, cotton mill use will depend on general economic growth. Most experts see only modest growth next year, and others are even less optimistic.

And domestic mill use is likely to continue to be harmed by textile imports and, depending on the outcome of appeals cases, the new federal cotton dust standards.

On the plus side, increased cotton denim and other heavyweight woven-fabric production may be seen in the United States.

Domestic mill use likely will remain at the current low level, USDA says, perhaps in the 5.8 million to 6.6 million-bale range.

THE EXPECTED LOW LEVEL OF FOREIGN cotton stocks next August, coupled with the possibility of larger U. S. output, suggests the 1979-80 marketing season could be another good year for U. S. exports.

However, two factors could limit U. S. cotton exports:

— A likely increase in foreign cotton acreage.

— Reduced mill use.

Both of these, USDA says, could occur in reaction to higher cotton prices this season.

As a result, there could be an increase in cotton stocks during the 1979-80 season — the reverse of developments this year.

• • • •

COTTON PRODUCTION IN THE 25-county High Plains area now is estimated by a committee of the Lubbock Cotton Exchange at 1,777,000 bales, up 38,000 bales from a month ago.

The new estimate, compiled Tuesday, compares with an all-time high output last year of 3,215,400 bales.

Acres for harvest are estimated at 3,452,000, up 80,000 from a month earlier, and the yield per acre is pegged at 247 pounds, down one pound from the November forecast.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat prices were mixed and soybean prices rose Tuesday in quiet trading on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Grain and soybean futures were directionless for much of the trading session, although liquidation in December wheat was steady. December wheat futures lost 6¼ cents, while prices for more distant delivery months rose slightly, erasing part of the recent unusual price spreads between delivery months.

Deliveries of wheat against the December contract, which became a cash month last week, continued fairly light, and fears of inadequate wheat stocks in the Chicago area to meet futures contract obligations eased somewhat.

Boosting soybean bids was a Census Bureau report that domestic stocks of vegetable oils and lard, including soybean oil, at 813 million pounds are lower than expected.

A government report showing a decrease in last week's soybean and corn exports had little effect on the market, as traders said the lower figures had been expected.

The Agriculture Department said last week's soybean exports at 16.1 million bushels were 33 percent below the previous week, and corn exports dropped by 6 percent. Wheat exports at 28.1 million bushels were 53 percent larger than the previous week.

Export markets were fairly active, with Japan and Taiwan buying U.S. corn, Brazil buying wheat, and Pakistan, Morocco and Iran reportedly in the market for soybean oil.

Soybean Exports To Soviets On Rise

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — U.S. exports of soybeans to the Soviet Union during the current fiscal year ending next Sept. 30 are forecast at around 1 million metric tons, up from the 744,000 tons exported last year, the U.S. Agriculture Department said.

The USDA said U.S. grain exports are expected to be above the 6-million minimum required under the U.S.-U.S.S.R. grain agreement.

In the longer-range, the U.S.S.R. will require significant imports of grain, oilseeds, and oilseed products if it is to continue the expansion of its livestock industry, USDA said.

The USDA said import demand is expected to remain relatively strong despite the record grain crop harvested this fall, as a result of increasing feed requirements for the livestock sector.

U.S. grain shipments to the U.S.S.R. in the year ended Sept. 30 amounted to 3,930,000 tons, valued at over 1.5 billion up sharply from the 5,989,000 tons, valued at $798.3 million in the previous fiscal year, the USDA said.

Other non-grain agricultural items shipped to the Soviety Union last year included 947,000 tons citrus fruit, 2,658,000 tons of hops and hop extract, and 6,204,000 while cattle hides.

The value of the non-grain exports including soybeans has nearly $1.8 billion conpared to almost $1.1 billion in the 1976/77 fiscal year, the USDA said.

U.S. imports of Agricultural imports from the U.S.S.R. last year amounted to $12.3 million, compared to $10,340,000 in the year ending Sept. 30, 1977.

Last year's imports were lead by nearly $8.4 million worth of furskins, followed by imports of casein and casein glue valued at $2,429,000.

In the previous year furskins accounted for about $2.2 million, the USDA said.

Surgeon Sets Talk To Open Heart Club

Lubbock cardiovascular surgeon Donald L. Bricker, M.D., will be speaker at the annual Christmas luncheon of the Open Heart Club of the Southwest at 1 p.m. Sunday in Koko Palace, 50th Street and Avenue Q.

Oakwood Baptist Church Bell Jubilee, a 25-to 30-member bell choir, will provide music.

Persons who have had open heart surgery are eligible for club membership and their spouses may become associate members.

More than 2,300 persons have undergone such surgery at Methodist and St. Mary of the Plains hospitals in Lubbock.

Artisans of the Ming Dynasty of China were reputed to have made "eggshell" porcelain wine cups weighing less than 1/48th of an ounce.

Recent City Traffic Enforcement Program Results Reviewed

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Traffic tickets issued in Lubbock by Selective Traffic Enforcement Program officers during November were down slightly from October's total, Vaughn Hendrie, city public information director said Tuesday.

Addressing the monthly meeting of the Citizen's Traffic Commission, Hendrie said STEP had issued 1732 tickets for moving violations in November compared to 1793 citations during October.

STEP, a state-funded program aimed at reducing traffic violations injuries and deaths began Oct. 1.

The number of injury accidents within Lubbock also decreased somewhat last month, from 207 in October to 187 in November. There were 196 injury accidents in Lubbock during November 1977.

Hendrie said the totals reflect the program's effectiveness, since STEP patrols move from areas where they have reduced the number of violations to those where they have not yet patroled.

Slide Road between Brownfield Highway and Loop 289 is one area where the patrols have been effective, said Hendrie.

A new area of concentration is the intersection at 19th Street and Indiana Avenue.

Hendrie said it is still too early to tell whether STEP will have any effect on voluntary compliance with traffic laws, adding "that's what we're hoping for."

In other action at the Citizens' Traffic Commission meeting, members seemed irked by a request by the Mexican Consulate for three permanent reserved parking places in front of the Metro Tower Building where the consulate is located.

Luis Castresana, chancellor of the consulate, was unable to make the request in person. Luciano T. Perez of the city's Human Relations Department made it for him.

It is an established diplomatic custom, said Perez, for countries to provide parking for each other's embassies and consular offices.

A representative for Metro Tower, however stated that the consulate already has three spaces reserved in the building lot, so it was unclear to commission members why more spaces — on the street — would be warranted.

Members also expressed some concern that reserved parking in on a downtown street would cause headaches for the police department, which would be responsible for keeping the spaces open.

Further discussion was tabled until Castresano can be present.

Ed Wilkes, a concerned citizen, was present to request a stop sign at the corner of 79th and Joliet, where there has been a problem with speeding cars running over lawns and on one occasion, into a house.

Councilman's Death Earns Solon Term

WARSAW, N.Y. (AP) — Potato farmer Thomas E. Ayers has been sentenced to three years in Attica prison for fatally shooting a fellow member of the Pike Town Board a year ago.

Ayers, 29, pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of second-degree manslaughter May 22. He had been charged with murder. Ayers was charged with shooting David Wolcott, 30, on Nov. 18, 1978, following an argument outside the victim's grocery store.

Alaska Crash Came Without Warning

ANCHORAGE (AP) — There was no warning of trouble before an executive jet crashed during an attempted landing, seriously injuring Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska and killing his wife of 26 years, authorities said Tuesday. Five died and one person in addition to Stevens was injured.

Stevens, 55, assistant Republican leader in the Senate, was listed in serious but stable condition at Providence Hospital with head, neck and arm injuries from the Monday night crash.

Stevens and his wife, Ann, 49, were in Alaska for the Christmas holidays and the Dec. 30 marriage of their daughter, Susan.

Cliff Cernick, a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration, said crosswinds of 16 miles an hour with gusts to 23 mph were blowing when the Lear jet carrying the Stevens party crashed at Anchorage International Airport. He said the winds were "within tolerable limits" and that visibility was good.

"The pilot gave no indication he was in trouble," Cernick said.

The International Air Line Pilots Association had given the airport a "red star" rating because it does not have a runway long enough to handle large aircraft when strong crosswinds are blowing. The pilot's group declined to speculate whether Monday night's crosswinds contributed to the crash.

A seven-member air safety team representating the FAA and the National Transportation Safety Board started an investigation Tuesday.

The plane, owned by Inlet Marine Inc., broke apart on impact, scattering pieces across 100 yards of snow and ice.

The other person injured was Tony Motley, lobbyist for the pro-development Citizens for Management of Alaska's Lands and a former state commissioner of commerce and economic development. He was reported in satisfactory condition with a broken collar bone.

The dead other than Mrs. Stevens are Joseph Rudd, an Anchorage lawyer; Clarence Kramer, a timberman from Sitka and president of the organization Motley represented; and pilots Richard Sykes and Richard Church.

3-Year-Old Takes Lincoln For Test Drive

FALCONER, N.Y. (AP) — A 3-year-old, standing on the seat, managed to drive a Lincoln Continental along several local streets, police said, and didn't have trouble until she returned to the store where her father was — and crashed through the window.

Officers said the child took off through downtown rush-hour traffic after her father left her in the idling auto on a shopping mall parking lot while he went into a dry cleaners at about 4 p.m. Monday.

"From the looks of it, she drove completely around the parking lot and after about 250 feet turned right onto South Work Street, continued about 300 feet, and made almost a U-turn onto Main Street, then turned east on Main Street and continued back into the driveway of the plaza, where she went through the dry cleaning establishment window," said Police Chief Dick Olson.

After the incident the girl's parents returned to the business, where she reportedly remarked, "I'm sorry I broke your window."

Furr's CAFETERIAS

SUCCEED IN OUR MANAGER TRAINING PROGRAM

If you've ever lived in the Southwest you almost certainly know Furr's Cafeterias. Our quality cafeterias are located throughout Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Kansas and Arkansas. What you may not know is that Furr's currently is the nation's second largest publicly owned cafeteria chain.

Thinking about a career in management? We can offer you excellent opportunities for personal advancement in our agressive, expanding company. If you have drive and enthusiasm, if you are willing to learn, you'll find success with us in the dynamic food service industry. To qualify for the training program, you should have a high school diploma or G.E.D. equivalent. College or vocational school background will be a plus. Leadership ability is a must, since a self-starter can motivate others. A neat, well-groomed appearance is essential.

Experience in food service is preferable, but not necessary due to our extensive training program. Experience in other professions should prove helpful to you. We seek individuals who require a minimum of supervision to get the job done right the first time.

Our manager trainees receive in depth, on the job training in all phases of cafeteria operations. The management training program leads to appointment as an assistant manager and then cafeteria manager based on the quality of your overall performance. Top performers can quickly move into key management positions. New management positions are not a hollow promise—our growth insures these opportunities. We expanded from 38 cafeterias in 1970 to 75 in 1978. By 1982 we plan to have over 100 units!

As you progress into management you may have the chance to be relocated to some of the fine cities where we have cafeterias. You should be willing to accept these opportunities.

The starting salary for manager trainees will be based on your background and experience. The minimum starting salary is $200 a week. As your career progresses and your responsibilities grow, you can expect a rapid growth in earnings. Assistant managers earn from $11,400 to $18,000 per year. Cafeteria managers earn from $22,000 to $45,000 per year.

BENEFITS: Your employment includes group health insurance, retirement plan, special managers life insurance program and managers and assistant managers receive free meals while on duty. Paid vacations are 1 week after 1 year service, 2 weeks after 3 years, 3 weeks after 10 years, 4 weeks after 15 years service. Approved applicants will be on a thirty day probation period during training.

'Medically Underserved' Counties Worry Panel

By BILL KIDD
A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — In a recent special report, the House Study group poses the question, "Is there a doctor in the county?"

And the legislative research panel goes on to answer that rhetorical question by pointing out that 172 of Texas' 254 counties have been designated as "medically underserved," according to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Rural health care is being studied by a special committee headed by Sen. Carlos Truan of Corpus Christi with the goal of finding alternative methods for bringing better health care to rural areas — which generally are the areas with less medical facilities and fewer physicians.

Figures in the House Study Group report show 166 rural counties (out of a total 202 defined as rural) are medically underserved — with six urban counties in that category.

Fifteen other rural counties are "partially underserved," as are 42 urban counties, while only 21 rural and four urban counties are classified by HEW as having "adequate service."

Quality and availability of health care varies widely, the report notes, and testimony before Truan's committee has pointed out that even within urban areas, such as Houston, there are areas which don't have adequate health care facilities.

But the House Study Group notes that several studies conducted in Texas have concluded health care is rural Texas is lacking in several respects — with rural health problems differing from those faced by city dwellers, and in some cases, being "more severe."

"The vast land area comprising rural Texas makes it difficult for rural citizens to obtain medical services and preventing health care," the report comments.

It also points out the Texas Department of Health has listed four groups as having particular health care problems: the urban poor, the rural poor, season workers, and migrant workers — with the latter two groups found in both rural and urban settings.

The degree by which counties may be underserved varies — and may reflect a lack of specialities, or dental, psychiatric, vision, podiatric, veterinary or pharmacy care.

However, 39 counties were designed by HEW as areas lacking in primary care (including four counties bordering Harris County and two — Collin and Ellis — bordering Dallas County).

Several of the 39 also cluster around Bexar County — Bandera, Medina and Atascosa — with a number of West, East and South Texas areas showing groups of counties in that category (such as Floyd, Crosby and Lynn surrounding Lubbock County).

Part of the lack of physicians in rural areas, the report notes, has been due to reluctance by physicians to move into those regions, frequently because practice there is less lucrative.

Texas already is offering financial incentives in an effort to attract physicians to rural areas — such as a loan progrm operated by the State Rural Medical Education Board, which allows medical students to "pay off" their loans by practice in rural areas, with five years of rural practice fully paying off a loan.

That program was first funded in 1974, and 77 student are receiving loans, but it is too soon to know how effective the program may be.

Another plan, approved in the 1977 Legislature provides state funding to create and maintain family practice residency programs in underserved areas — but there has not been time to evaluate that program, either.

Another proposal in 1977, by Athens Rep. Fred Head, would have provided that 20 percent of freshman openings in Texas medical schools be reserved for students enrolling in either family practice or primary care programs — which, the report argues, would help rural areas

Truan's committee is looking at other approaches as well, such as increased use of "para-medical" personnel.

The committee has heard testimony from persons involved in providing such services — and from those receiving it — but some medical professional groups have urged that the committee move slowly in making any major changes in present laws restricting such services.

Representative of professional groups, such as the Board of Nursing Examiners, Texas Medical Association, Texas Nurses Association and Texas Hospital Association, are working with the Senate Human Resources Committee in an efforts to resolve their differences.

Another factor in the committee's work is the effect of the Rural Health Clinic Services Act, passed by Congress in January 1978, which makes Medical paments to rural health clinics mandatory.

That law also allows payments for services by nurse practitioners and physicians' assistants in rural health clinic which comply with certain standards.

Such clinics are seen by proponents as a new option in rural health care — but so far, only four such clinics have been approved in Texas by the Department of Health, while one was denied approval because it was not physician — owned.

Other federal programs also aim at providing grants, technical assistance and some planning funds to improved health care services in rural areas.

Truan's group hopes to come to some recommendations, regarding ways to improve rural health care for the 1979 legislature to consider — although the senator agrees that the panel has had only a few months to look at the complex problem, and isn't likely to find any overall cure.

The House Study Group also notes that the cost of health care is adding to the "crisis" aspect of the situation in rural Texas.

The problem also will come in for attention from the legislature.

But the main problem of Truan's panel is to assure that there will be a doctor in the county — or least someone qualified to meet the health care needs of its residents.

Grant To Ease Hereford's Water Woes

A-J Correspondent

HEREFORD — A $320,000 grant has been approved by the Department of Housing and Urban Development to upgrade the water system of the San Jose community south of Hereford.

Rafael Quinones of the Environmental Health Services office of the Texas Department of Health Resources in Canyon said an approved water system for San Jose may well mark a major step toward eventual upgrading of the area, long known as the Hereford "labor camp."

"Our next goal will be to secure a grant for a modern sewer system. This will open the gate to home improvement loans," Quinones said.

San Jose residents, Deaf Smith County officials, and representatives of the Texas Department of Health Resources (TDH) were involved in the process of securing the grant.

The TDH identified major health problems in the San Jose area in 1976, but no progress was made until the establishment of the Migrant Labor Program in January 1977, Quinones said.

In May 1977, San Jose residents asked for help and The Hereford Brand launched a series of articles on San Jose water, health, and sanitation problems.

The series of articles caused considerable reaction within the community, although, ironically, the only well in San Jose went out the second day of the series.

"HUD came up with a regulation concerning imminent threat to health and safety, and this allowed us to proceed much faster in securing the grant," Quinones said.

The next step for local residents will be the formation of a water district.

Directors and a supervisor for the San Jose district will be elected, with Jan. 20 the tentative election date.

Additional engineering studies may be required before bids are accepted, Quinones said.

"I hope they will be taking bids on the water project by late December or early January, so we could see a water system in operation in 1979," Quinones added.

Jerry Robinson, UCLA's brilliant linebacker, was named to The Associated Press All-America college football team today for the third year in a row.

Robinson, the only repeater from last year, was joined on the All-America team by running back Billy Sims, the Heisman Trophy winner, and offensive guard Greg Roberts, the Outland Trophy winner, both from Oklahoma.

Penn State, the nation's No. 1-ranked team, placed three players on the elite squad, including quarterback Chuck Fusina, the Heisman Trophy runnerup.

Named to the third-team offensive unit from Texas Tech was runningback James Hadnot. Switched from tight end to fullback during fall drills, Hadnot went on to be named All-Southwest Conference and break the Tech single-season rushing mark once held by Doug McCutcheon.

Raider linebacker Don Kelly was placed on the Honorable Mention team. Kelly was also an All-SWC performer.

A younger-than-usual All-America team includes two sophomores — defensive end Hugh Green of Pittsburgh and defensive back Kenny Easley of UCLA — along with seven juniors and 13 seniors. Penn State led the way with three representatives, while Oklahoma, Southern California, UCLA and North Carolina State had two apiece.

The AP All-America team will be featured on the Bob Hope Christmas Special on NBC-TV Dec. 22 at 7 p.m. CST.

Besides Fusina, Penn State is represented by offensive tackle Keith Dorney and defensive tackle Bruce Clark. Southern Cal's pair is running back Charles White, the school's all-time leading

Proving Ground

BY THE HALF, Gerald Myers was wondering if the basket his troops were bombarding wasn't about three inches larger than regulation.

And 10 minutes later, he was wondering again about the size of that cylinder, the one his troops were then unsuccessfully trying to hit.

After two games against weak opposition, Myers and his Raiders headed for North Carolina, the land of Big Time Basketball. That state is just about the District of Columbia of Roundball. And, Myers was worried about playing NC-Charlotte, a team which had burst on the national scene with back-to-back trips to the NIT and NCAA tourneys.

At the half, his Raiders held a 33-19 lead; they had shot a scorching 75 percent from the field.

But, somehow, 33-19 doesn't sound like much of a halftime score, in high school, much less college. But, the hosts were keeping it conservative, and the Raiders were hitting when they had a chance.

But, from that halftime gap, Myers looked up ten minutes into the second half and realized his troops had scored but one field goal. And they were still leading 35-33.

TECH WOUND UP winning 50-44 last Saturday, and a week into the season it stands 3-0. It's difficult to improve on that type of record. But, there is room for improvement, says Myers.

"I'm happy about winning. . . don't get me wrong. But, I'm not happy about the game," Myers commented Tuesday as he prepared for Thursday's home battle against Colorado State University, possibly the toughest opponent until the Raiders head for El Paso and the Sun Bowl tournament after Christmas.

"The last minutes (of the Charlotte game), I thought we played well," Myers remarked. Kent Williams, Geoff Huston, and Tommy Parks played well. . . Ralph Brewster rebounded well. Joe Baxter (who missed Tuesday's practice with a stomach virus) played good.

"Down at the end, Kent made two or three pretty good plays.

"But, the game was called so close — technical things — that it was really hard to get anything going."

A RUNNING GAME which Myers has sought to develop had no chance to improve at Charlotte, with the slow pace.

"We tried both man and zone defense, but when we saw that they couldn't hit from outside, we just went into the zone and stayed. (Charlotte shot 31 percent for the game).

"I don't think we'll be a basic zone team this year, although we will use it. But, offensively, I don't think we got a single fast-break basket in the second half," remarked Myers.

After the first two wins (over Central Oklahoma and Northern Montana), Myers talked about the need for better rebounding, especially on the offensive boards. And he felt that the rebounding improved against NC-Charlotte. Against a front line of 6-8ers, Tech held a decided 35-18 rebounding edge.

"Sure, I'm happy (about the 3-0 record)," remarked Myers. "I was expecting the worst at Charlotte; I was just hoping we didn't get blown out early.

"But, Colorado State, definitely, will

ROSE GOES TO THE PHILLIES–Former Cincinnati Reds star Pete Rose gestures as he attempts to explain to the media why he decided to sign a contract with the Philadelphia Phillies at a press confernce during the winter baseball meetings in Orlando. Phillie Money Captures Rose

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Now that Pete Rose is a Philadelphia Phillie, his new teammates are enthusiastic — and also cautious — about what the addition of the baseball superstar will mean to a club already packed with talent.

Rose's pals on the National League squad that has failed three years running to reach the World Series are applauding Tuesday's signing of the Cincinnati Reds veteran who quit his old club to seek his fortune in the free agent draft.

"I think I'm more happy than he is," said Phillies shortstop Larry Bowa. "Imagine playing 162 games alongside a guy you idolized your whole career."

But Richie Hebner, the Phillies' first baseman who expects to be traded to make way for Rose, admitted he is "a little disappointed" about the prospect of leaving the pennant contender.

"Everybody keeps saying that Rose is going to do it," Hebner said. "I don't know how one guy is going to do it. They must think this guy walks on water. I think they could win it with him, and I think they could win without him."

Philadelphia's slugging outfielder, Greg Luzinski, anticipates the 37-year-old Rose will be "a great addition to out ball club," and he also envisions keeping the hard-hitting Hebner.

"If the Phillies move Hebner to second, we could have one of the most awesome offensive lineups in the major leagues," Luzinski said.

Catcher Bob Boone joined the ranks of the cautious in pinning Phillies success on one player, no matter how great his talent.

"I think this has engulfed baseball for

Ageless Tarkenton Passes More Marks

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — A year ago at this time Francis Tarkenton was recovering from a busted leg and didn't know if he'd ever play another down of professional football.

Well, the original scrambler isn't doing much running these days, but his arm is still driving enemy defenders batty.

"No one ever contains Tarkenton," said Philadelphia Coach Dick Vermeil, the 38-year old quarterback's latest victim. "All you can do is hope to slow him down some."

Green Bay slowed Tarkenton some two weeks ago, but the 18-year veteran tossed a 5-yard scoring pass to Ahmad Rashad in the closing seconds to rescue a 10-10 tie for the Vikings.

Last Sunday he found Rashad again with a 20-yard aerial which gave Minnesota a 28-27 triumph over the Eagles.

Not bad for an aging relic who is forced to put the ball in the air an average of 36 times per game.

"That's our game," says Tarkenton, who has vowed to retire after this season despite having perhaps the greatest year of his spectacular career.

Then he smiles and winks at a confidant in the Vikings' locker room. "But I don't know if I'm even going to make it through next week's game. Certainly not the season and the playoffs. I've pitched a lot of innings this year."

Tarkenton set Minnesota single-game records for completions and attempts against Philadelphia by connecting on 30 of 56 passes. His 11-yard flip to Chuck Foreman late in the second quarter was his 289th completions of the year and eclipsed the NFL standard set by Sonny Jurgenson in 1967.

His season slate is 304 of 500 for 2,921 yards and 21 touchdowns. Saturday in Detroit he'll surpass Jurgenson's mark for most attempts in a season (508, also in 1967) and the Vikings' team record for most yards gained passing in a season, which is 2,994.

Isn't all this hazardous to the health of a 38-year old arm which, by his own admission, was never shotgun-strong to begin with?

"Yup, absolutely," he agrees. "But what can you do? We throw the ball. The way many of our games have gone this year have dictated that.

"Of course, we all know you can't win games throwing that much, right?" he says, taking a jab at the experts who predict doom for teams without running games.

Tarkenton's coach, Bud Grant, admits that he has worried about the Vikings' weak running game this year, but he also states that no quarterback is more capable of making do with what he has.

"I don't believe in those theories that you can't win games when you throw 40 or more passes," Grant said.

Danny Ford Hired For Clemson Job

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Danny Ford, top assistant to Charlie Pell, was named Tuesday to succeed Pell as head football coach at Clemson University.

Pell announced Monday he was leaving Clemson to become head coach at Florida, succeeding Doug Dickey, who was fired.

Clemson Athletic Director Bill McLellan announced the appointment of Ford at an afternoon news conference.

Pell recommended Ford when he decided to leave Clemson. Ford came to Clemson three years ago with Pell from Virginia Tech, where both were assistant coaches.

After serving one season under then-head coach Red Parker, Pell was named to succeed Parker when Parker was fired. Pell then named Ford assistant head coach and offensive line coach.

Ford, 30, is a native of Gadsden, Ala., where he lettered three years in football and basketball at Gadsden High School. He also lettered three years as an offensive tackle and tight end at the University of Alabama.

Ford received a B.S. degree in Industrial Arts from Alabama in 1970 and earned an M.A. in special education from Alabama in 1971.

While working on his Masters, Ford served as a graduate assistant to Paul "Bear" Bryant and as a fulltime assistant from 1972-73.

He served with Pell as an assistant coach at Virginia Tech from 1974-76 before coming to Clemson.

As a player for the Crimson Tide, Ford participated in four bowl games. As a coach, he has participated in five bowl games, including the Orange, Sugar and Cotton, as well as the 1977 Gator Bowl, where Clemson lost to Pittsburgh.

LA Rams Limping Into Playoffs

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Coach Ray Malavasi said Tuesday that Los Angeles is "about 75 percent of what we were at the start of the season" because of injuries, but the Rams nevertheless have had manpower enough to win their division championship.

The Rams wrapped up their sixth consecutive National Football Conference Western Division title Sunday with a 20-17 victory over the New York Giants. Los Angeles, with an 11-3 record, became the first NFL team to win its division outright this season.

Thin in a number of positions, most noteably running back, Malavasi said he's in the market for cornerbacks this week.

"We lost Dwayne O'Steen to torn knee ligaments," said the Rams Coach, "so we'll be looking at cornerbacks this week."

Malavasi said free agents Nelson Muncey and Skip Thomas are possible replacements.

The coach also said there's a "possibility" that Anthony Davis, the former Southern Cal tailback who was recently released by Houston, might be signed to help with the running chores. Davis had a one-day tryout with Los Angeles a couple of weeks ago.

"He looked good in the tryout, but he was just a little overweight," Malavasi said.

The Rams have lost runners Lawrence McCutcheon, Wendell Tyler and Elvis Peacock to injuries, plus John Cappelletti and Cullen Bryant have been slowed by ailments.

"I'm very proud of this team," Malavasi said. "We've had guys injured, guys playing hurt, and everybody's just been working extra hard. They've done a heck of a job."

The Rams have two regular-season games remaining, both at home. They meet the Cincinnati Bengals in next Monday's nationally televised game, then close with Green Bay Dec. 17.

A Los Angeles victory in either game or a loss by the Dallas Cowboys in their remaining games would give the Rams the home field advantage for the playoffs.

Malavasi said that, despite Los Angeles' good shape at this point of the season, he hopes his players won't let up.

"Cincinnati is 2-12, but they certainly don't play like a 2-12 team," he said. "Our guys can't go in with the attitude that the game doesn't mean anything; that would hurt us for the playoffs."

The coach, asked about bright spots for the Rams this season, had particular praise for linebackers Jim Youngblood and Jack Youngblood, and rookie kicker Frank Corral.

The team's only real disppointment thus far, he said, was its inability to put points on the board.

That lack of offensive punch has been Los Angeles' most noticeable weakness this season, but the team nevertheless has done well enough to rank second in scoring in the NFC.

Dallas Now Seeking Playoff Advantage

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas coach Tom Landry is never at a loss for incentive and he came up with one for his defending world champion Cowboys Tuesday — home.

"Our No. 1 objective is to secure the homesite advantage," said Landry at his weekly press conference. "That's our No. 1 thought now."

The Cowboys have clinched the National Conference Eastern Division title for the third consecutive year and can earn a host role in the National Football League playoffs with a victory over Philadelphia or the New York Yets in their last two games.

"Our players ought to be motivated for the homefield advantage when they look at all the ice and snow in Minnesota last week," laughed Landry.

Philadelphia lost 28-27 to the Vikings on a snowy day in the northland. Minnesota and Green Bay are battling for the NFC Central championship. Should Dallas win another game it would host the NFC champion either Dec. 30 or Dec. 31.

Landry said in the last two games the Cowboys would "try to play well and win both games and try to keep from getting hurt. We are a contender now. Four or five weeks ago we didn't act like one."

He said, "We've come a long way...I thought the second half against New England was very significant. We played well."

Landry said the Cowboys will still be without fullback Robert Newhouse at least another week.

"Newhouse is definitely out...he's been slowed by soreness," said Landry. "He should improve. It's possible he will be able to go by the Jet game."

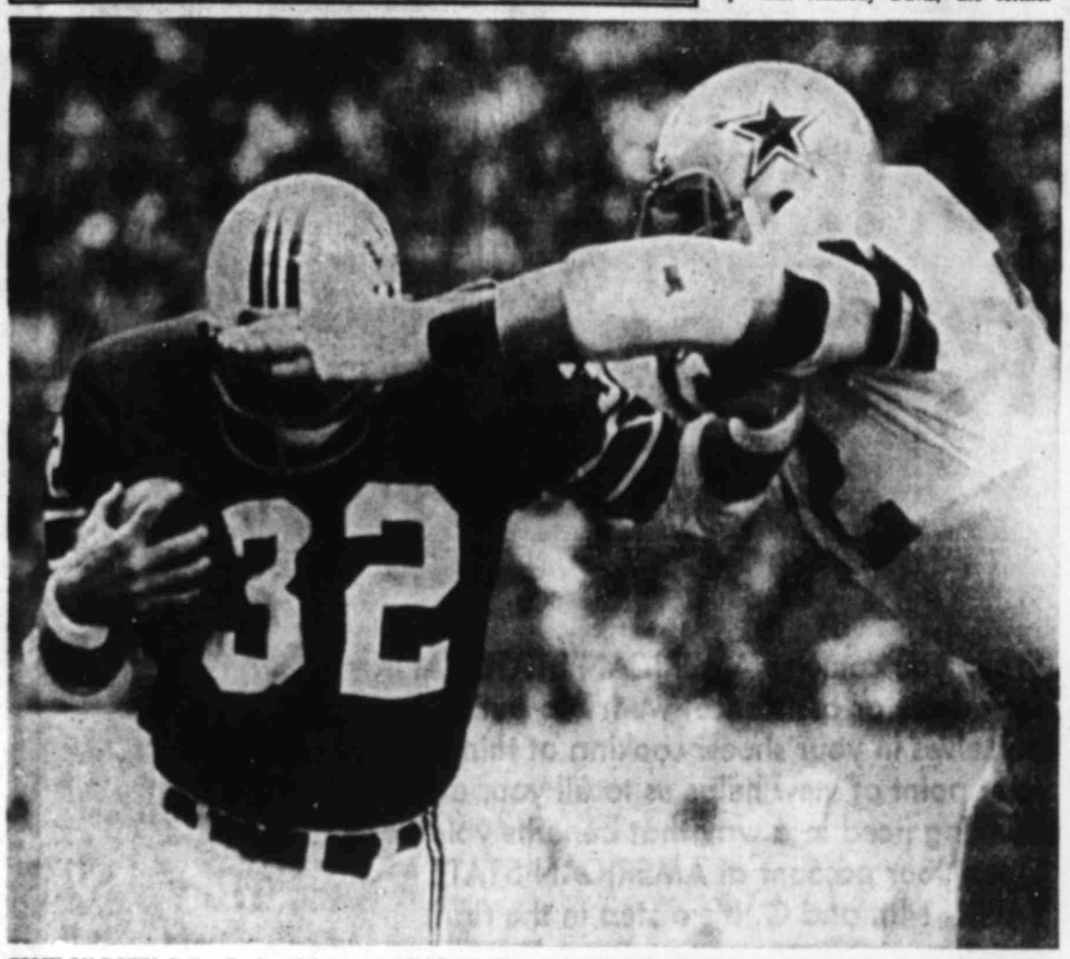
Newhouse suffered the fracture of a small bone in his leg three weeks ago and his position has been filled by Scott Laidlaw.

Landry also said quarterback Roger Staubach was being bothered by a sore finger on his throwing hand.

"It (the finger) doesn't overconcern me but it could be bad if he hits it on a helmet," said Landry. "Roger won't throw a lot this week."

Landry said he hadn't considered resting Staubach a week but added "I'll be much quicker to substitute. We have some backup people who need work but I'm not going to substitute and jeopardize our chances of winning."

He said the key to the 10-4 Cowboys' turnaround when they were 6-4 was the fact that, "We recognized the situation we were in...it wasn't because we were not trying...We just didn't calculate that the other teams would play as well as they have against us because we are the champions. We just started concentrating more. The mental game is most important."



COME ON DOWN–Dallas Cowboy defensive end Ed Jones (72) latches onto New England runningback Andy Johnson (32) in their game last Sunday. SEC Coaches Pick Georgia's Dooley

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Georgia football coach Vince Dooley is the Southeastern Conference coach of the year -at least as far as his fellow SEC coaches are concerned.

The Nashville Banner, an afternoon newspaper which for 43 years has polled the conference's coaches for their pick, Tuesday published the results of 1978's inquiry.

Dooley, who has a 112-50-6 career record has been number one before -in 1966, 1968 and 1976. He joined Georgia in 1964.

Dooley drew seven first place votes and a second-place nod to earn 75 points, the newspaper said. Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant finished second with 47 points and Louisiana State's Charlie McClendon was third with 26.

Wolverines Meet Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Michigan and Louisville are ranked sixth and seventh, respectively, in The Associated Press college basketball poll, but Louisville coach Denny Crum says the two teams are years apart in experience.

His opinion will be tested tonight when the teams collide at Freedom Hall here.

"Michigan ought to be ahead of us, but we shouldn't be as high as we are. We still are a young, inexperienced team with nine of 13 players who are either freshman or sophomores.

"Potentially," Crum says, "we have the material for an outstanding year, but we're not ready to play Michigan."

So far, Crum's Cardinals are 3-1 while Coach Johnny Orr's Wolverines are 2-0, including a 99-84 win over Alabama.

Michigan's top performer is rejuvenated junior Phil Hubbard, a 6-foot-7 center. He missed last year after injuring a knee but he's rebounded well by scoring 49 points and grabbing 29 caroms this season. Against Alabama, Hubbard held Reginald King, last season's Southeastern Conference player of the year, to 11 points.

Hubbard "is much bigger," Orr says. "He has no limp, but he's all bandaged. He shows signs of quickness when he just booms in there."

Although he hasn't decided who will guard Hubbard, Crum says he may send 6-8 freshman Scooter McCray against him. If not McCray, 6-8 senior Larry Williams, a defensive ace, will draw the assignment.

In the Wolverine starting lineup, Hubbard will be joined by forwards Mike McGee and Thad Garner and guards Tom Staton and Marty Bodnar.

McGee, a 6-5 sophomore, was sensational last year and currently is averaging 28.5 points. Bodnar, Orr says, "scored 18 points in our opener, and he's held his man without a basket in each of our games. On the other hand, he hasn't had to guard anyone like Darrell Griffith."

Rose Signs With Phils

so long, there's been a tendency to blow it up," Boone said over the high-priced auction to sign Rose which also involved Pittsburgh, Atlanta, St. Louis, and Kansas City.

"We got a real talented player, but it doesn't mean the Phillies will win everything. I don't think one player can do that. I don't think it's fair to put that onus on Pete ... Rose was with Cincinnati the last two years. They had a pretty good ballclub, but they didn't win it all."

Pitcher Randy Lerch, who called the deal super, agreed that there will be great pressure on Rose, but added:

"You're talking about 200 hits a year which is 100 more than most guys get. Plus he gets on base a lot more than that."

And Mike Schmidt, the aggressive Phillies' third baseman who's also a buddy of Rose, said he was "excited ... happy ... I got a few goose bumps right now" thinking about playing in the same infield.

Luzinski thinks Rose will bring to Philadelphia the on-the-field leadership the National League East champions seem to need.

" ... It's leadership by example," Luzinski said.

"His hustling attitude, his desire, his drive, will help everybody," added pitcher Warren Brusstar.

Schmidt: "I don't want Pete to think he has to come in here and assume any extraordinary burden. What if he comes here and has a mediocre year? Maybe the addition of Pete will help us, but it's hard to put your finger on it."

be better than Charlotte. Jim Williams has been up there a long time (24 years); he's a good coach.

"They beat Iowa (at Colorado State) last week, and Iowa is definitely a good ball club. That was a big win.

"They have one really good player, Barry Young, about 6-5. We played Colorado State a when Geoff (Huston) was a freshman, but I don't think Young was up there then.

"These next three (games). . . It was good to get some experience for your younger players (in the first three). Now we're playing some good teams, although Wyoming probably isn't as strong as Colorado State."

Rebounding was a concern prior to the Charlotte game, as Myers felt he was not getting the ball off the boards as often as he wanted.

Although turnovers were a problem at Charlotte — Tech lost it 27 times on mistakes — the rebounding could crop up again in the next three games. But being 3-0 provides a better stage for improvement.

Bowlers Competing For $10,000 Prize

Leading money winner Mark Roth heads into the finale with earnings of $127,500 in 25 appearances this year.

Oiler's Phillips Wants Rematch With Steelers

HOUSTON (AP) — Three years have made a difference in the feeling Houston Oiler coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips has about playing the Pittsburgh Steelers.

"Three years ago if you'd told me we'd play Pittsburgh three times in one year I'd have cried," Phillips said.

Despite Houston's 13-3 loss to Pittsburgh Sunday, the possibility exists, accompanied by a long series of ifs, that the two teams could play each other a third time in the American Football Conference title game.

Phillips says he'd like that opportunity and Pittsburgh defensive tackle Joe Greene figures that's the way it will be.

"I'm not slighting New England or anybody else, but I think Houston will be in the AFC finals against us," Greene said.

The AFC Central Division rivals split their two regular season games, with Houston winning the first game 24-17 in Pittsburgh and the Steelers beating Houston Sunday in the Astrodome.

"I've got to be a damn fool to say this, but I sure want to play them again," Phillips said. "No, I don't care about the weather up there. The field will be the same size and the weather will be the same for both sides."

For the Oilers to get another shot at the Steelers, they must win their final two games of the season against New Orleans Sunday and San Diego Dec. 17 to assure a wild card playoff berth.

Houston then would have to advance through two playoff games before facing the Steelers in the AFC championship game.

They'll also need a healthy backfield combination of running back Earl Campbell and quarterback Dan Pastorini, who both suffered rib injuries in Sunday's loss to the Steelers.

And should the two teams meet again this season, perhaps the Oilers will get a chance to use the same play that resulted in the only touchdown in Sunday's game.

Phillips complained that the Steelers used an illegal pick play where wide receiver Lynn Swann screened defensive back Bill Currier from the play while John Stallworth caught the five-yard touchdown from quarterback Terry Bradshaw.

"You're at least supposed to try to disguise it so it doesn't look like a pick," Phillips said. "But there was no question about this one and the official didn't call it.

Permian Relies On Balanced Attack

ODESSA (Special)–The 1978 edition of Odessa Permian football has an entirely different face than in previous championship seasons.

Mojo traditionally relies on a junk yard dog defense and is content to have an adequate, low-risk offense.

The tables are turned this year. With quarterback Vic Vines breaking many of the school records and a highly diversified passing attack, Permian's defense has been shouldered into the shadows.

That's not to say, however, that Mojo doesn't have a stingy defense. Both groups will be tested against the Plainview Bulldogs in a quarter-finals matchup in Jones Stadium at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

The Black Cat defenders have provided the offense with plenty of opportunities to show its stuff. The Panthers have picked off 30 interceptions and recovered 20 fumbles.

Meanwhile, the Permian offense has suffered only five interceptions and seven fumbles–and none in the playoffs.

Vines is the most productive passer in Permian history. So far this season, he's thrown for 1,534 yards and 21 touchdowns. His completion rate (88 of 173) is slightly over 50 percent.

The Panthers don't have any favorite receiver since four men have caught passes for over 250 yards. Leading the parade is split end David Loper, who has gathered in 25 aerials for 467 yards and seven TDs. Three of those came against Fort Worth Arlington Heights last week in regional action.

Flanker John Muery has 339 yards in 20 catches for six TDs, tight end Tom Strickland had caught 11 passes for 297 yards and four TDs and split end Gary Smith has 15 catches for 262 yards and four TDs.

Permian backs the passing game with a strong rushing attack. The leading ball carrier is tailback Gregg Lambert with 841 yards and 13 touchdowns. Full back Roger Lightfoot has 618 yards and four touchdowns.

Vines is a rushing threat, too. He has 471 yards and three TDs.

Permian owns a 3,911 to 2,119 edge in total offense over its foes in compiling at 12-0 season.

Panther coach John Wilkins has achieved some coaching milestones along the way.

He is the winningest coach in PHS history with 63 wins, only nine losses and a tie. That's an .881 percentage.

This is Pemian's ninth trip to the playoffs and the fourth time Wilkins has been at the helm.

The Panthers' most productive quarter has been the fourth with 122 points scored to only 13 for opponents.

Permian also boasts of a good kicking game with Robert Orosco during the placements and Greg Rodriquez punting. Orosco is the second-leading scorer with 63 points on 45 extra points and six field goals. Rodriquez has punted 53 times for a 35.1 average.

As the season started, Wilkins could look to only one defensive starter back. Linebacker Chris Soape was going to have to get a lot of help from newcomers.

The most impressive secondary newcomers have been Kelly Howard and Ricky Reynolds. Both are juniors and have been the ballhawks. Between them, they have accounted for 17 of the 30 interceptions.

Another junior, middle linebacker Bryan Lambert, has been a stalwart on defense and intercepted a pass for a touchdown last week against Arlington Heights.

Permian's closest contest this season came against Odessa High. The Panthers led by a 7-6 margin late in the game and scored with seconds left for a 14-6 margin. The largest margin of victory came against San Angelo–63-13.

Monterey Rips Tascosa

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Monterey basketball coach Joe Michalka claims that he glances at Top-O-Texas magazine once in a while. But the Plainsmen mentor looked at it long enough to notice that Amarillo Tascosa was rated the best basketball team in the Panhandle by the magazine.

So, Michalka couldn't help smile when he pulled out a copy of Top-O-Texas Tuesday night to verify Tascosa's top billing by the publication. After all, Michalka's team had just defeated the Rebels moments earlier 44-35.

The key to the Plainsmen victory was a controlled defense that erased a 3-point third-quarter deficit and held Tascosa to just one bucket in the final period. Meanwhile, the Plainsmen put 14 points in the bucket during the final period.

"We should have done it sooner," said a happy Michalka. "We took advantage of the situation by scoring a few layups at the end."

One of those easy baskets was laid into the hoop by Craig Ehlo. Ehlo led all scorers with 16 points.

"I'm glad Craig is on our side," said Michalka. "He generates the spark for our team."

Down 33-30 as the third quarter came to an end, the Plainsmen quickly began to control the momentum of the contest as guard Danny Chong connected from the right wing.

Then after Tascosa forward Sam Washington flipped a lead pass to post Nolan Earle to answer the challenge, the Plainsmen were the only ones able to put the ball through the hoop.

The poor fourth-quarter point production caused Tascosa coach Dan Canfield to say, "I'm not a very happy man right now. Any time you lose a quality player like (6-7) Jay Leverett (who fouled out in the last half), it's going to hurt your offense."

Monterey took the lead for good with 5:24 to play. Chong stole a pass, tossed the ball to Ehlo, who broke down the left side of the court, and the two Plainsmen cagers played catch until Ehlo put a layup off the glass and into the hoop to give Monterey a 36-35 lead.

The Rebels missed their next attempt down court and the Plainsmen began to play keep away. Monterey held onto the ball for nearly three minutes before forward Kevin Kirkman softly sank a bucket from the left side of the basket in the lane.

The win raises Monterey's record to 6-1. The loss drops to 9-3.

Monterey will be back in action Friday when they compete in the Snyder Tournament.

Dunbar Cagers Down Ponies In Overtime

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Give Joe McWilliams either the choice of playing basketball at the Coronado High gym or in a minefield, and chances are he Dunbar coach would choose the latter.

The CHS gym just isn't McWilliams' — or the Panthers' — cup of tea.

Prior to Tuesday night's encounter with host Coronado, the last time the Panthers were in the gym was when they edged Estacado by 1 point in overtime for the District 3-AAA title — a contest McWilliams still remembers very well.

Then Tuesday night, Coronado tried its best to overcome a 16-point Dunbar lead before eventually falling 67-66. And you can bet McWilliams will remember this one for a spell.

"This is a shaky place for us," said the Dunbar head coach as he sat on the bench following the game.

As he was talking, about all he could do was shake his head back and forth in disbelief.

Heading into the final period, Dunbar had a comfortable 57-49 lead over their hosts. And it appeared the Panthers were about ready to send the Mustangs to the floor for the 10 count, especially when they ran up a 16-point margin.

But in between KOing the Mustangs, something happened that McWilliams had a hard time explaining: The Panthers blew the large lead and then had to scrape and claw before notching their third win.

"That's youth for you," continued McWilliams. "They are still a little inexperienced. They put some pressure on us and we got careless."

Asked if he could pinpoint the reason of the breakdown even further, McWilliams replied: "Yeah, Coronado. They played a heck of a game against us at the end."

Coronado started its comeback try with about 1:42 left in the game when it managed to cut the DHS lead to 6, at 65-59. That was as close as the Mustangs had been since early in the third period.

Thanks to a 4-foot jumper with 30 seconds left by Russ Johnson, Coronado found itself trailing now by only 65-62.

However, just when it appeared the floor was about to fall through for McWilliams & Co., Panther Rafael Scott hit both ends of a one-and-one attempt to put DHS back up on top by 5.

Coronado got buckets from Jimmy Johnson and Steve Ahlenius as the final few seconds were ticking off, to cut the count to 67-66. But by that time, it was only academic.

"Last week we got the jitters in the third quarter," explained McWilliams. "This week, I guess we just waited a while before we got them."

Dunbar was paced by the 20-point performance of hot shooting Wayne Williams, while Coronado relied on the 16-point showing of Mark Reed.

Reed hit only three shots from the field but connected on 10 of 14 free throw tosses. In all, Coronado hit a sizzling 20 of 22 free shots as a team.

"That's what almost beat us," said McWilliams about the CHS free-throw shooting exhibition. "We could stay up with them there."

DHS countered with 7-of-13 from the line.

TV Christmas Programs Scheduled This Week

NEW YORK (AP) — We are, indeed, barely into the second week of December, and Christmas is most definitely on the air.

In the five days between Wednesday and Sunday, networks have scheduled at least 13 special holiday programs — music, drama, variety, animation, you name it. And remember, we're talking about part of a week, two weeks before Christmas.

There are new shows — "A Special Sesame Street Christmas" on CBS, Marie Osmond in "A Gift of Love" on ABC — a revival, "The Gathering" with Ed Asner, on ABC — and a retrospective — "Bing Crosby — The Christmas Years," on CBS.

For the kids, ABC has several holiday offerings, shows like "The Pink Panther's Christmas" and "Rudolph's Shiny New Year." From NBC, it's "Walt Disney's World Christmas Special."

CBS is the first to catch the holiday spirit, with the Bing Crosby reminiscence starring the entertainer's widow, Kathryn, and "The Johnny Cash Christmas Show," both tonight.

Crosby began something of a holiday tradition in 1935 with a Christmas special on CBS radio, and the hour-long special includes performances from past shows. Joining Cash later in the evening are Rita Coolidge, Kris Kristofferson, Steve Martin and the country superstar's wife, June Carter Cash.

Public TV's holiday offering for the week is "An Elizabethan Christmas," a recreation of the holiday celebration as it was practiced in England. The show will be fed to stations by the Public Broadcasting Service Thursday night, but air date and time may vary.

Miss Osmond's dramatic acting debut comes Friday evening as a rich girl who falls in love with an almost penniless man. The story, inspired by O. Henry's "The Gift of the Magi," also stars Timothy Bottoms.

Leslie Uggams, Imogene Coca, Ethel Merman, Henry Fonda and Michael Jackson are among the headliners as "Sesame Street," the long-running public TV series for children, celebrates Christmas on CBS Friday evening.

"Sesame Street" characters — Big Bird, Oscar the Grouch, Mr. Hooper, Maria, Bob — they'll be there, too, to help the guest stars enact a musical story based loosely on Dickens's "Christmas Carol."

"The Gathering," also starring Maureen Stapleton, won an Emmy after its original broadcast Dec. 4, 1977. The special Sunday night tells the story of a successful businessman's effort to pull together the family he lost to his work.

Mime artists Robert Shields and Lorene Yarnell are hosts for the Disney special Sunday night, a musical variety tour of Walt Disney World in Florida. Guest stars include Andra McArdle of Broadway's "Annie," Danielle Spencer of "What's Happening," and Phyllis Diller, Avery Schreiber and Pablo Cruise.

Here is a day-by-day look at the Christmas specials this week:

Tonight — "Bing Crosby — The Christmas Years," 8-9 p.m., CBS; "The Johnny Cash Christmas Show," 9-10 p.m., CBS.

Thursday — "Benji's Very Own Christmas Story," 7-7:30 p.m., ABC; "The Pink Panther's Christmas," animated, 7:30-8 p.m., ABC; "An Elizabethan Christmas," 9:30-10 p.m., PBS.

Friday — "A Special Sesame Street Christmas," 7-8 p.m., CBS; "The Story of Christmas," starring Tennessee Ernie Ford, 8-9 p.m., NBC; "The Gift of Love," 8-10 p.m., ABC.

Saturday — "Rudolph's Shiny New Year," animated, 7-8 p.m.

DEFENSE PLEA GRANTED

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Pakistan's Supreme Court granted a request Tuesday by deposed Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto to appear personally in court to defend himself in the appeal he has filed against his death sentence.

Humphrey Scholars Have Large Role, Carter Asserts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Tuesday he expects a new scholarship program honoring the late Hubert H. Humphrey to help dispel ignorance about the United States in other countries.

Under the $5 million program, about 240 graduate students from developing nations will study each year at 50 U.S. universities.

Addressing presidents and other officials of the 50 institutions, Carter said he used to dread the annual convening of the United Nations General Assembly because there the United States was "the butt of every joke from 100 nations on earth."

ABC Cops Top Three Nielsen Spots; Upstart CBS Falls Back

NEW YORK (AP) — It was like old times, and it made you wonder what happened the week before.

ABC listed the three most-watched prime-time TV programs for the week ending Dec. 3, dislodging three CBS offerings including "60 Minutes," which fell from first to fourth.

True, the overall effect on the A.C. Nielsen Co.'s weekly ratings was the same. ABC won the networks' competition, as it had despite CBS' strong showing the week before, with a rating of 19.7.

CBS was second at 19.5, followed by NBC at 18.7. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 19.7 percent of the homes in the country were tuned to ABC.

"60 Minutes," CBS' acclaimed newsmagazine, climaxed a 10-year climb during the week ending Nov. 26 by finishing first in the ratings, followed by Sunday night companions "All in the Family" and "Alice."

But for the most recent week surveyed, it was three ABC shows — "Laverne and Shirley," "Happy Days" and "Three's Company" — back on top, and that's not really news. The three normally finish one-two-three in some combination, though it was fourth for "Three's Company," fifth for "Laverne and Shirley" and seventh for "Happy Days" the week before.

This time, "60 Minutes" tied with three other programs for fourth place, with "Alice" ninth and "All in the Family" No. 13.

The ABC shows air Tuesday night, the CBS programs Sunday.

The rating for "Laverne and Shirley" was 30. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, 30 percent saw at least part of the program.

NBC's failing was at the bottom of the ratings — three of the week's five lowest-rated programs. NBC's "The Story of Christmas" was No. 61, followed by "Good Times" on CBS, "Project U.F.O." on NBC, CBS' "Rhoda" and NBC's "Weekend."

Here are the week's Top 10 shows:

"Laverne and Shirley," with a rating of 30 representing 22.4 million homes, "Happy Days," 29.2 or 21.7 million, and "Three's Company," 29.1 or 21.7 million, all ABC; "Little House on the Prairie," NBC, "60 Minutes" and "M-A-S-H," both CBS, and "Eight is Enough," ABC, all 27.6 or 20.6 million; "I Alone Survived," 27 or 20.1 million, NBC; "Alice," 25.1 or 19.1 million, and "One Day at a Time," 25 or 18.7 million, both CBS.

The next 10 shows:

"Love Boat" and "Mork and Mindy," ABC; "All in the Family" and "Raggedy Ann and Andy," both CBS; "Fantasy Island" and "Taxi," ABC; "Incredible Hulk," CBS; "Centennial," NBC; "Kaz," CBS, and "Barney Miller," ABC.

Christmas Eve Mass Set

JOHN PAUL

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II will celebrate the Christmas Eve midnight Mass in St. Peter's Basilica, the Vatican announced Tuesday.

It also said the pope will read his Christmas message and administer his blessing "Urbi et Orbi" — to the city and the world — from St. Peter's front balcony at noon on Christmas Day

Letter Sent In '69 Arrives

PORTSMOUTH, R.I. (AP) — Mrs. Earle Blacwell of Bowie, Md., mailed a letter to her daughter in 1969. The letter finally arrived at the home of Mrs. Henry D. Silvia last week — with nine cents postage due.

The letter was delivered to Mrs. Silvia's home with a six-cent stamp, the cost of mailing the letter in 1969, and with the notation that she owed nine more cents.

"One cent for every year," Mrs. Silvia laughed.

Henry Corriea, postmaster in this southern Rhode Island town, said the postage notation was not made in his office and that he would not try to collect it. He added he had no idea where the letter has been for the past nine years.

Antelopes To Wear Hose

SAN PASQUAL, Calif. (AP) — Pantyhose will be worn soon by eland antelopes, a rare breed in Senegal, West Africa.

Curator Jim Dolan of the San Diego Wild Animal Park says an expedition will go to Senegal in February to capture the giant animals.

The pantyhose, said Dolan, will be put on the antelopes to prevent abrasion in transit. He is asking women employees of the park to donate any they don't need.

Fund Begun For Singer

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Ben Vereen appealed to performing artists Tuesday to help a new medical trust fund for singer Jackie Wilson, who remains semi-comatose in a New Jersey nursing home.

Vereen announced that he and four other men were starting the trust to raise funds to restore Wilson to "maximum health."

Wilson, 44, suffered a heart attack Sept. 25, 1975, while performing in Cherry Hill, N.J. He has been a patient in a Medford, N.J., nursing home for 1½ years.

During the late 1950s and early 1960s, Wilson's songs, including "Lonely Teardrops," "Alone at Last" and "To Be Loved," topped the popular music charts.

LUCKY POLICEMAN — Chicago patrolman Gregory Rydell, 33, escaped injury Monday on the far south side when a bullet fired at him struck his nameplate on the chest of his leather jacket and was deflected. The metal nameplate was bent and broken by the bullet and was torn from the jacket. Another policeman was shot in the stomach by the same gunman. The officers were investigating an apartment break-in. (AP Laserphoto)

25TH ANNIVERSARY PLAYMATE — Candy Loving, 22, Playboy Magazine's newly announced 25th Anniversary Playmate, displays her $25,000 check at the Playboy Mansion in Los Angeles. Loving, a third-year public relations student at the University of Oklahoma and a native of Ponca City, Okla., received the $25,000 from Playboy to pose nude for January's anniversary of Playboy and to make several promotional appearances. Back To Print Journalism

CAMDEN, Maine (AP) — CBS Evening News anchor man Walter Cronkite is going to go back to print journalism. Cronkite has become part owner of the Camden Herald, a weekly newspaper in this tourist haven along the Maine coast.

CRONKITE

"I see a great economic future for the coastal area, and I am delighted to be a small part of the Camden Herald," said Cronkite, who owns a 43-foot yawl which he frequently sails on Penobscot Bay.

Publisher W. Douglas Hall sold the newspaper last week for an undisclosed sum. The new majority owner is Whitney Communications Corp. of New York City, with Cronkite and Editor James W. Martin each holding a 10 percent interest.

The new owners, the Penobscot Bay Publishing Co., will retain the Herald's masthead name and continue to focus their coverage on the towns of Camden, Rockport and Lincolnville.

Cronkite, 62, described himself as a "very dear friend" of J. Russell Wiggins, former editor of the Washington Post, who publishes another Maine weekly up the coast, the Ellsworth American.

'Royal Flush' Scheme Fails

BALTIMORE (AP) — Students at the College of Notre Dame who dealt the school a royal flush have wound up in hot water over their efforts to get a longer Christmas vacation.

By Tuesday afternoon, about 20 students admitted taking part in a synchronized flush of all 68 toilets in Doyle Hall, a dormitory housing 100 women.

The students said they hoped the protest would force the school to postpone mid-term exams and thus hasten the start of Christmas vacation, both scheduled for the week ending Dec. 22.

But apparently all the Sunday night action, dubbed "Operation Royal Flush," did was knock out the dorm's water supply until plumbing was repaired Monday afternoon.

Sister Kathleen Feeley, the college president, said the Sunday night action failed to change the college's exam and vacation schedules.

Portrayal Of Worried Father Change Of Pace For Connors

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television viewers will see a different Mike Connors on Dec. 15, when ABC presents "Long Journey Back," a television movie co-starring Cloris Leachman.

No bruising fisticuffs with the bad guys. No bouncing off the hood of an escaping car. The man who portrayed "Mannix" for eight successful years will be seen in a drama about how a family copes with tragedy.

"The story is based on an actual happening," said Connors. "It's about a girl who is badly injured when a bus is hit by a train. Her leg is amputated, and she virtually becomes a baby again. Her father can't accept the fact that such a bright, beautiful girl could become a vegetable.

"The movie shows the turmoil of a family situation when the fabric has been torn. Ralph Nader told me that often when someone has suffered a serious injury or a stroke, the event is harder on others in the family. Husbands and wives can become estranged, men can become impotent.

"Often there is need for psychiatric help for the family. The injured seem to be able to handle their situation better than those around them."

Connors had high praise for Stephanie Zimbalist, who plays the girl. She's the 21-year-old daughter of Efrem Zimbalist Jr. and Connors sees "Long Journey Back" as a good change of pace for himself.

"I'm still going through the transition period from 'Mannix,'" said the Fresno-born actor, who ended the detective series two years ago.

"Producers and directors see me on variety shows and tell me, 'I didn't know you could do comedy.' They still think of me as a two-fisted action guy."

Connors also hopes that "Avalanche Express" will help demonstrate his versatility. It's his first feature movie since the 1967 "Kiss The Girls and Make Them Die."

"Ordinarily I would play the Lee Marvin role in 'Avalanche Express,'" he remarked. "You know, the cynical, two-fisted rebel. But I play the president's agent on the mission, an Ivy Leaguer in suit and tie. Although I take part in the adventure, I'm not the instigator."

"Avalanche Express" is a big-budget Lorimar production that was filmed throughout Germany and Italy earlier this year. Connors was called back recently for two more days of filming at Universal Studio. He admitted that it was an eerie feeling, since two of the film's principals had died: co-star Robert Shaw and producer-director Mark Robson.

"Mark's death was not unexpected," said Connors. "We could see him go downhill from day to day. The lack of communication on a European picture is terribly exhausting. You'd show up for work and the weapons that were needed wouldn't be there because nobody was told to bring them.

"Shaw's death was a shock. He was playing tennis three times a week on location, and although he took a nip now and then, he seemed vigorous. He was writing a novel about an alcoholic doctor, and he read parts of it to us. I guess he never finished it."

The two days of retakes were required to clarify the opening and closing of "Avalanche Express," Connors explained, adding, "Mark died three or four days before the end of filming, and only he knew how to tie in the miniatures, live action and special effects."

What next for Mike Connors? He tried a TV pilot about a crime fighter named O'Hanlon (Connors' real name) but it didn't work. Now he favors TV movies and mini-series rather than the weekly grind.

"I like television," he remarked. "If I had to choose between TV and motion pictures, I'd give up motion pictures."

Jovial Artist Contrasts With Macabre Paintings

CHICAGO (UPI) — Flanked by two attractive girls, Ivan Albright posed for a souvenir snapshot for an admirer in front of his famed painting, "A Picture of Dorian Gray."

The sprightly gnome of a man wore a big smile. His voice cackled with delight.

On the wall behind the artist was his portrait of Dorian Gray, the face wrinkled like a prune, the eyes sunken and staring, the sins of a lifetime reflected in the wrinkled skin.

It is hard to imagine that the cheerful, bubbly Albright, 81, painted the grotesque portrait used in the 1940s movie based on Oscar Wilde's story about an evil man who remains youthful while his portrait ages.

Albright, who has been called one of the most distinguished artists of this century, seems to specialize in what most consider the macabre.

His paintings often depict somber women with huge, fat-layered legs and sagging breasts and chiseled men, who seem sad at how life has treated them.

"Some people have called them ugly," Albright said in an interview at the opening of a special exhibit of his works at the Chicago Art Institute.

"But I don't like to use the word beautiful and ugly — everything is nature, pieces of nature. You make people the way they are — human. Decay is just as beautiful as the thing they call beautiful."n

Albright said his goal is to capture nature on canvas as realistically as possible — the motion of things and their interplay caused by light and varying perspectives.

"When you walk around the room you see things from different angles," he said, running around a chair to illustrate his point.

"You see how it looks different from different angles. Well, that's what I'm trying to do. I try and get at a painting from all positions — that's more life-like. Otherwise it's just a photograph.

"People are used to the old-fashioned paintings, static things. But that isn't the way nature really is. You really can't put your finger on life — it's not a vacuum. The only thing normal in life is change. Everything is in motion, down to the atoms."

Albright labors over his paintings, compiling pages of notes and sketches.

He spent 20 years on one, including whole days to draw half-inch square sections of the canvas. His paintings are minutely detailed — in the light, every whisker on a face, sag in the flesh, or detail of an object can be seen.

"Light bares all," he said. "Many people think it can even be cruel."

Albright developed a "machinegun" easel that swivels around to a variety of angles to help him paint objects pointed in many different directions on the canvas. In some works, he tantalizes the viewer by showing only a portion of an object.

"It is more mystifying often not to show a whole object, to leave it to the imagination; it's the same with a girl," he said, with a wink. "Sometimes you'd rather have clothes on a girl and leave what's under to the imagination."

Albright, son of an artist, was raised in Illinois. Many of his works were done in the Chicago area. He now lives in Woodstock, Vt.

Musical Plagiarism Seen In TV Theme

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge has decided that the theme music of NBC-TV's "Today" program appears to have been lifted from a song written by the composer of the hit musical "Godspell."

The judge, Gerard Goetell, declared Monday that he found liability on the part of the defendants: NBC; composer Ray Ellis, who wrote the theme music, titled "This is Today," and Living Music Inc., publisher of the Ellis composition.

The suit, seeking an unspecified amount of montetary damages and an injunction against using the theme, was brought by Herald Square Music Co., publisher of music by Stephen Schwartz. Schwartz's score for "Godspell" included a song titled "Day by Day," which the publisher charged was pirated by NBC.

In finding substance to the allegation, Judge Goetell directed that the case be turned over to a federal magistrate for hearings and a recommendation on the amount of damages.

Schwartz was not a plaintiff, but he appeared in court on behalf of his publisher last Wednesday, his testimony taking the form of playing music on a battered upright piano.

Another witness, Howard Barlow, testifying as a composer and expert on musical plagiarism, told Goetell there were marked similarities in "This is Today" and "Day by Day."

Barlow listed among his own song credits a tune called "I Got Tears in My Ears From Lying on My Back in My Bed While I Cry Over You."

Mart Makes Sharp Gain

NEW YORK (AP) — Optimistic projections on the future course of interest rates and International Business Machines' earnings provided the spark as the stock market ran up a sharp gain Tuesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 13.68 to 820.51, for its biggest single-day gain since it took a record 35.34-point jump on Nov. 1.

The daily tally on the New York Stock Exchange showed advances outnumbering declines by close to a 3-1 spread.

Analysts said some of the impetus for the rally came from David Rockefeller, chairman of New York's Chase Manhattan Bank, who told a press conference in London he believed fears of a severe credit crunch were unjustified.

Rockefeller maintained that the prime lending rate, which has climbed sharply this year to 11½ percent, is "close to the top."

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market closed at 117.67, up 1.10.

New York (AP) — Tuesday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

Proper Remedy Sought To Heal 'Sick' Sphinx

'THE SPHINX IS SICK' — The lion's body of the Sphinx is firm, but the human face of the majestic monument is showing the effects of 5,000 years of howling sandstorms, scorching desert days and chilling nights. CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The lion's body of the Sphinx is firm, but the human face of the majestic monument is showing the effects of 5,000 years of howling sandstorms, scorching desert days and chilling nights.

But the method of treating the time-honored patient sharply divides art and restoration experts so proud of the aging wonder just outside Cairo, near the Pyramids at Giza.

It's been five years since the Sphinx received a facelift — an "injection" of barium pigments to strengthen the area from the neck up.

"It badly needs another shot," says Zahi Hawass, inspector of the pyramids section of Egypt's antiquities department. "The outer layer is peeling off all over."

But another expert, Ahmed Saleh, the department's director of research and restoration, advocates building a "windshield" around the 65-foot-high unprotected monument.

"It needs trees around it to protect against sandstorms," he told Al Akhbar. "Those sand particles become a cyclone — they hit the Sphinx on the face, drop to the feet and the wind lifts them up again in a continuous cyclical motion."

Saleh said the proud monument's latest ailment is a recently noted unevenness in the water table underneath it. Some experts fear this may cause it to lose its balance.

Although the Sphinx looks as solid as a five-millenium-old sculptural marvel can, Al Akhbar kicked off a public campaign for urgent measures to protect one of Egypt's prime attractions. "Speak up to authorities for restoration," the paper appealed.

King Khephren, the builder of the Giza Pyramid, had the Sphinx carved out of a limestone block that measured 239 feet in length, the lion's body representing the power of the king and face bearing his features.

Because it faced the rising sun, it was considered a sun god and later acquired the name Abou El-hol, the father of terror.

Over the centuries, the Sphinx often had trouble keeping its head above the shifting sands. It was last cleared from the dunes only 40 years ago.

Its nose was damaged centuries ago. One legend says Napoleon had the proboscis lopped off to display French supremacy after he landed in Egypt in 1798. Another tale attributes the missing nose to the folly of a deranged Egyptian.

"Let's just say the nose is not there," says historian Zaki Saad.

While the art experts fret over the Sphinx, local devotees doubt it is in imminent danger.

"Don't worry," said Kamel Ibrahim, 78, a Sphinx-watcher and guide since childhood, as he helped another tourist onto a camel for the classic photograph of a Cairo trip.

"The thing is OK. Nothing will happen to it."

BEREAVED MAN GRATEFUL

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese man whose wife died after falling fhom a train in France has donated $5,000 each to the French and Swiss Red Cross organizations. Kazuo Uota, 67, did so to express his gratitude for searches by police and local residents for his wife, Chiyo, 61, after she disappeared from a night train in August 1977. The search was in vain, and her body was found by her sons two months later, the organization said.
