Reagan departing on controversial trip

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Reagan embarks tonight on the first overseas trip of his second term, still struggling to keep his visit to Nazi graves from overwhelming his hopes for a celebration of 40 years of Western European peace and reconciliation.

The president is making an overnight flight to Bonn, West Germany, for the annual summit of the seven major industrialized democracies that begins Thursday.

Also on the itinerary before Reagan's return May 10 are state visits in West Germany, Spain, Portugal and a speech in Strasbourg, France, marking the 40th anniversary of the end of World War II in Europe and looking toward the future of East-West relations and European unity.

But the president's intentions for an upbeat journey have been submerged by an uproar over his planned visit next Sunday with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl at the Kolmeshohe cemetery at Bitburg, near the Luxembourg border.

Among the nearly 2,000 graves are those of 49 soldiers from the SS, the elite Nazi combat corps which ran Adolf Hitler's concentration camps.

Jewish leaders, American veterans groups and members of Congress have condemned Reagan's appearance at the cemetery.

Hours before Reagan's departure, the House of Representatives was due to vote on a resolution urging the president to reconsider his visit to Bitburg.

During debate on the measure Monday, Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., addressing Reagan as though he were present in the House chamber, said: "You are taking our moral leadership several notches lower. You are leaving a permament blot on this nation's history. This resolution is a last plea. Please, do not visit Bitburg."

But Rep. Thomas F. Hartnett, R-S.C., said that although placing Bitburg on Reagan's schedule was "a mistake, a blunder and poor judgement," Reagan should go ahead with it out of diplomatic and foreign policy considerations.

"You hold your head high Mr. President. I will stand here in support of your visit and I wish you Godspeed," Hartnett said.

A resolution signed by 82 senators has urged the president to reassess his plans, and a letter signed by 257 House members was sent to Kohl urging him to withdraw the invitation for Reagan to visit Bitburg.

Nonetheless, Reagan is holding firm to his plan to visit the cemetery.

"The final word has been said as far as I am concerned," Reagan said Monday in an interview with foreign television reporters. "I think it is morally right to do as I am doing, and I am not going to change my mind on that."

Reagan added, "All of those in that cemetery have long since met the supreme judge of right and wrong, and whatever punishment or justice was needed has been rendered by one who was above us all."

Fire Station No. 6 Capt. Jerry Doyle, standing, and his father, George, relax before dedication ceremonies at The Fire Truck Museum. The two were responsible for the restoration of Old No. 1, bought in 1917, and No. 2, far right, purchased in 1928.

City's first fire truck returns to station

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

Almost 70 years since it was purchased for use on the dirt roads of Midland, the city's first fire truck is back on display — no doubt experiencing more attention than it has since it was rumbling to its top speed of 30 mph back in 1917.

Old No. 1, purchased for $5,800 during a "modernization" of the Midland Volunteer Fire Department, has been restored to its original state through the efforts of the Midland Downtown Lions Club and its Fire Prevention and Historical Foundation.

Those attending dedication ceremonies this morning at The Fire Truck Museum, the organization's centennial project, were able to step back into the dusty days when the fire trucks weren't painted Day-Glo green, when firemen, not fighters, slid down poles and when the siren was a hand-cranked gadget.

Those were the days of chain-driven pumpers, which bounced along on tires that consisted of strips of rubber covering wooden wheels; the days of 24-foot wooden extension ladders and silver bells with elaborate eagles perched on top; the days of brass lanterns swinging from latches on the backs of the trucks.

But Old No. 1 is sharing the spotlight today. Parked next to it in the museum, built on the east end of the Central Fire Department at 1500 W. Wall Ave., is No. 2, which probably received its most recent use by CFD Capt. Harold Herring.

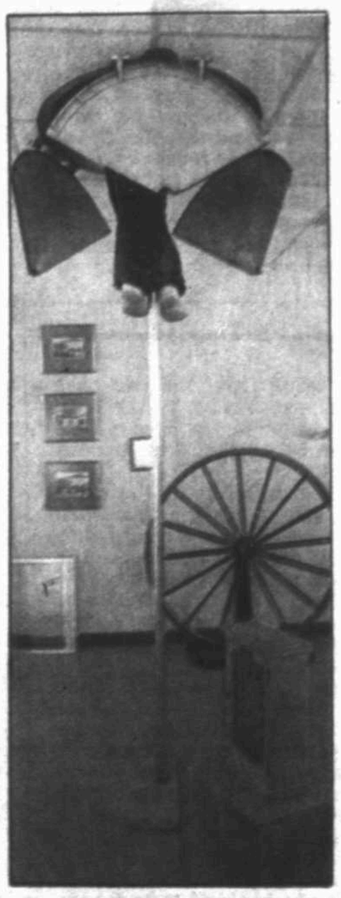

According to Midland attorney Robert R. Truitt Jr., whose great-grandfather, John Winborne, was one of the first chiefs of Midland's volunteer fire department, the trucks were taken into care in the mid 1960s after publicity about their possible sale spread.

"There was an article in the paper Sunday and the Lions met on Thursday," said Truitt, a member of the Society for the Preservation of Antique Fire Apparatus. The article was about the city considering selling the trucks, which had been left outside exposed to the elements.

"That's when we started the foundation to build the museum," Truitt said.

The first step was moving the trucks inside. No. 2, purchased in 1928, had its home at Station No. 3 on the corner of Golf Course Road and Edwards Street.

Vietnamese celebrate anniversary of victory

HO CHI MINH CITY, Vietnam — Jet fighters thundered overhead and thousands of soldiers and civilians marched through Ho Chi Minh City today to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the communist victory over U.S.-backed South Vietnam.

Nguyen Van Linh, Communist Party boss of the city formerly known as Saigon, said in a speech opening the ceremonies that the victory was "a brilliant exploit of the 20th century."

He thanked the Soviet Union for its support, and said for the United States, the Vietnam War was "a tunnel with no light at the end."

High-stepping infantrymen of the world's fourth largest armed force and militia units carrying U.S.-made M-16 rifles, seized at the collapse of South Vietnam, moved past a stand filled with aging revolutionary leaders who had fought the Japanese, French and Americans.

Thousands of spectators watched the parade, officially said to include 50,000 participants.

It traveled to the former presidential palace where on April 30, 1975, South Vietnam surrendered to communist forces who had ringed the city the previous day.

Towed Soviet-built artillery pieces, tanks, and armored vehicles were part of the parade. Soviet-built MiG-21 jet fighters, helicopter gunships and transport aircraft flew overhead.

The parade route went past or near some of the places where the last acts of the South Vietnam drama were played out — and at almost the same time that those events occurred ten years ago.

The parade began at almost exactly the same time that on April 30, 1975, the last helicopter had lifted off the roof of the U.S. Embassy at 7:52 a.m. to end a mass evacuation of Americans and South Vietnamese.

Communist troops were then moving through the city's last defenses.

Just before 10:30 a.m. on that day in 1975, the last leader of South Vietnam, Gen. Duong Van Minh, announced on the radio that his nation had surrendered.

At 12:45 p.m., Nguyen Trung Kien, a tough 20-year-old woman guerrilla, raised the flag of the Viet Cong's provisional revolutionary government over the presidential palace after a tank smashed through the gates. President Nguyen Van Thieu had fled days earlier.

Linh said in his speech that Saigon had suffered for 116 years as an imperialist city, "a place full of debauch, prolific in social evils, oppression and injustice."

He claimed major advances have been made over the past decade such as more vegetable growing and elimination of prostitution.

With Linh on the stand were eight of 13 members of the Politburo, the nation's key organ of rule. They included Communist Party Secretary General Le Duan, Premier Pham Van Dong and Defense Minister Gen. Van Tien Dung, the architect of the 55-day campaign which climaxed with the fall of Saigon.

Many of the gray-haired, frail-looking men started out as teenagers fighting the French decades ago and rose to power during the later struggle against the Americans.

Portraits of the revered late President Ho Chi Minh, the national hero who died in 1969 and is known as "Uncle Ho," were posted in the parade area and constant references were made to him.

Absent was Le Duc Tho, who negotiated the peace agreement between North Vietnam and the United States in 1973 and later refused to share the Nobel Peace Prize with U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Tho was to hold a news conference Wednesday for more than 200 foreign journaists, most of them Americans, who were invited to attend the celebration and allowed to wander freely about the parade area.

The ceremonies contained little rhetoric attacking the United States and no sign of overt anti-American feeling. The Hanoi government has said it wants to establish friendly relations with the United States.

Drought alerts, emergencies declared in northeastern U.S.

Associated Press

Wayward winter winds have left the land between Philadelphia and Boston moist when it should be soaking wet, leaving millions of people who live in the region facing one of the worst droughts in years, experts say.

After nine straight months of below-average rainfall, drought alerts or emergencies have been declared in northern New Jersey, eastern Pennsylvania, New York City and 20 towns in Massachusetts. Lawns are going without water, cars are unwashed and some restaurants are serving water only on request.

Three reservoirs at the headwaters of the Delaware River in New York State are at 61 percent of capacity when they should be nearly full. These Catskill Mountain reservoirs provide about half of New York City's drinking water and are considered a guidepost of the region's supply.

"We are in worse shape going into the hot, dry summer than we've ever been — and that includes the drought of the '60s, which is the worst on record," said Dawes Thompson of the Delaware River Basin Commission, which tracks water supplies for southern New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware.

Robert Goodell, the commission's chief engineer, figures the area around the Catskill reservoirs would need about 15 inches of rain before June — three times normal — to lift the drought warning.

The dry winter has been blamed on storms that veered from their normal patterns, fluctuations in land and sea temperatures, a lack of snow and the meandering of high-altitude winds known as the jet stream.

The jet stream normally moves along the South and Gulf Coast, said Kenneth Bergman, a climate analyst for the National Weather Service. Last winter, it swung north over the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence Valley, taking normal rain and snow storms with it.

Some parts of the West suffered below-average rainfall this winter, but had enough water stored to get through the summer, Bergman added.

"The drought may last a month or two or it might last a year or two," said Albert Kachic, a weather service hydrologist.

Woman rescued unharmed after abduction

FORT WORTH (AP) — A woman abducted after a shootout in which one man was killed and two were wounded was rescued unharmed after she scribbled a note on a restroom wall pleading for help, authorities said.

Donna Irwin, 18, was shaken Monday, but "she's in good condition," said Jim Whitaker, chief of detectives for the Iberville Parish Sheriff's Department in Plaquemine, La.

An 28-year-old Arlington man and a 22-year-old Houston man were being held in the Iberville Parish Jail for Fort Worth authorities.

The two are also wanted in the shooting death Sunday night of Kevin Allen, 21, and the wounding of two other Fort Worth men, David Suson, 32, and his brother-in-law, James Bell, 31.

Suson was shot in the head and was in critical condition early today at John Peter Smith Hospital. Bell was shot in the face and was listed in good condition at JPS.

The three men who were shot were driving around in the Lake Worth area when they came across Miss Irwin and her date, Thomas Emmitt Cox, 22, as they were being attacked by two men at a scenic overlook at Lake Worth in northwest Tarrant County, said Fort Worth police Detective J.D. Roberts.

Roberts said the two men robbed Miss Irwin and Cox and threatened to kill them. About that time, the three other men drove up, were pulled out of their truck and shot. Cox escaped and ran for help while the two attackers fled, forcing Miss Irwin to go with them, Roberts said.

Miss Irwin's captors apparently traveled by pickup truck to Louisiana. They stopped at about 5:30 p.m. Monday at the Ramah Truck Stop on Interstate 10 west of Baton Rouge. Tony Forty, a gas station attendant at the truck stop, said they stopped and allowed Miss Irwin to use the restroom.

"She just walked in and walked out," said Forty, 56, adding that one of the captors stood guard at the bathroom door. "He told her, 'You hurry up.' He was watching her at the door, waiting on her."

But inside, Miss Irwin scrawled a message on a small piece of paper: "I am kidnapped. Would you please call my mom and dad. They are taking me to Orlando, Fla." She also wrote her parents' phone number, Forty said.

The two men and Miss Irwin then drove next door to the One-Eyed Jack Restaurant for food, but Miss Irwin waited in the truck with one of the men, Forty said.

In the meantime, a female customer stopped at the station, went into the restroom and found the note.

About five miles farther east on I-10, the Iberville Parish sheriff's deputies stopped the men's truck. The two were arrested without incident, Whitaker said.

Two South African gold mining companies bombed

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Two bombs exploded today, blowing out doors and shattering windows at the headquarters offices of two gold mining companies that fired 17,500 black miners during the weekend.

Police said fresh rioting erupted in several black townships Monday night and early today. There were no new fatalities, police headquarters in Pretoria said.

Anglo American Corp. agreed late Monday to rehire 14,500 of the miners fired over the weekend for holding an illegal strike at Vaal Reefs, the world's largest gold mine, the black National Union of Mineworkers said.

The union planned to meet today with Anglovaal Ltd., the owner of the Hartebeestfontein mine, where 3,000 black miners were dismissed for taking part in an illegal strike last week. The company has said it would consider rehiring the men.

No injuries were reported in the explosions at the downtown Johannesburg offices of Anglo American and Anglovaal Ltd., Johannesburg police spokesman Col. Fred Bull said.

Police headquarters in Pretoria said both explosions were caused by "limpet mines," a small, high-powered, Soviet-designed mine. A spokesman said it was unclear whether the bombs were placed inside the lobbies of the buildings or on the doorstep outside.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility. The outlawed African National Congress guerrilla movement periodically bombs offices and installations of the white minority government, but it rarely attacks private businesses.

The explosions went off moments apart at about 12:30 a.m., sending shards of glass down into the deserted streets from shattered windows as high as the seventh floor, witnesses said.

Johannes van Niekerk, a security guard at the Anglovaal head office, was quoted in news reports as saying, "I just saw a huge flame and then glass rained down around me."

The streets were cordoned off as police searched for remnants of the bombs.

Police also said a cleaner discovered a low-intensity explosive device this morning in Durban. A bomb disposal crew defused the device, which contained pamphlets and stickers of the outlawed Communist Party. Such "pamphlet bombs" are set off periodically to disperse leaflets of banned groups.

Police headquarters in Pretoria said most of the black rioting occurred in the eastern Cape Province. More than 150 people were arrested from late Sunday to Monday evening, police said.

They reported five firebombings in black townships.

Police said 300 blacks gathered outside the homes of black policemen in Lingelihle township, near Cradock, and shouted death threats. The crowd was reported dispersed with tear gas.

About 100 police and military vehicles drove in convoy through five townships near Port Elizabeth today in a show of strength intended to help quell rioting.

Lt. Col. Gerrie van Rooyen, a police spokesman, said: "It was an attempt to bring the unrest in troubled townships to an end. Law-abiding people in the townships are sick and tired of the unrest."

Crowds of blacks stopped on their way to work to stare at the vehicles. Some laughed, some waved and others looked on impassively.

By today, nearly all the 17,500 fired miners had left mine property and returned home, mine spokesmen said. The mine companies bused workers to railway stations, where they caught trains back to tribal homelands and neighboring black countries.

The agreement to rehire the miners at Anglo American came during a seven-hour meeting at Vaal Reefs between the union and a delegation from the company, said Manoko Nchwe, spokeswoman for the three-year-old black union.

The union and Anglo American "reached agreement on the re-employment of all the dismissed workers at Vaal Reefs," Ms. Nchwe said. "The procedure of re-employment will be discussed in further meetings between the union and Anglo American."

Anglo American said the mine agreed to "give preferential consideration to employing previous employees of the mine." Anglo's statement did not mention a blanket offer to rehire all the dismissed miners. The union maintained such an offer had been made.

Anti-apartheid demonstrations continue

Associated Press

Students camped outside the office of Boston University's president to protest the school's holdings in companies that do business with South Africa, while Dartmouth College announced it will sell about $2 million in shares in companies dealing with that segregated nation.

Meanwhile, demonstrators protesting South Africa's apartheid racial policies were arrested in Atlanta and Berkeley, Calif., among them Berkeley's mayor and entertainer Whoopi Goldberg.

In addition, a California Assembly committee voted Monday to approve a ban on state pension fund investments in any of 350 U.S. companies that do business in South Africa, while the Iowa legislature approved a similar bill.

About a dozen Boston University students set up tents Monday night outside President John Silber's office and spent the night on the lawn. Junior Mark Lurie from Rochester, N.Y., said the sleep-in by members of the South African Task Force would continue each night until Thursday, when the university's trustees advisory council meets.

Silber met with the senior class last week and defended the school's refusal to divest its holdings, saying that would only cause blacks in South Africa to lose jobs.

Dartmouth trustees decided Monday to sell holdings in the Republic Bank of Dallas and Kimberly-Clark Corp., of Neenah, Wis., said college President David McLaughlin. The sales are in line with the New Hampshire college's policies on investments in businesses with South African holdings, he said.

Dartmouth has not had holdings in South African-owned or controlled businesses for at least 10 years, and since 1978 it has tightened its guidelines on corporations from other countries that have South African holdings.

In Berkeley, 12 protesters, including Mayor Gus Newport and other politicians and Ms. Goldberg, were arrested Monday at the University of California for blocking entrances to the headquarters of the university system, said UC spokeswoman Lilia Villanueva.

"We're asking you to leave," a policewoman told the demonstrators.

"And we're asking you to sit in with us," Newport replied before being led away by police.

Protesters against the UC regents' $2.4 billion worth of investments in 35 companies doing business in South Africa continued a sit-in they began outside Sproul Hall on April 10. They have demanded regents vote on divestment at a May16-17 meeting instead of at their June meeting.

Of the 35 companies, all but two have pledged to follow prnciples requiring companies to desegregate workplaces and pay blacks the same as whites, said university spokesman Mike Lassiter. Each of the 35 companies has less than 1 percent of its total assets there, he said.

An amendment added Monday to the measure approved by the California Assembly's policy committee on South African investments also would hold up the $80 million the state contributes to the UC retirement system unless the regents begin to sell off the university's South African investments.

Elsewhere, nine people were arrested in Atlanta after an anti-apartheid protest at the stockholders' meeting of International Business Machines Corp., which does business with South Africa.

In New York state, 65 students were arrested Monday in Cornell University's Day Hall for refusing to leave the administration building. Their arrests brought to 1,130 the number arrested in Day Hall over the past two weeks for demonstrating against Cornell's holdings in companies that do business in South Africa.

A scholarship fund for black students in South Africa will be established at Syracuse University, following protests last week against the university's investments in companies that do business in South Africa, the school announced.

In Iowa, a bill to require divestment of state funds invested in many such companies got final legislative approval in the state Senate. The bill would only apply to investments in firms that are not treating white and black employees in South Africa equally.

Marine recalls final moments in Vietnam

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A decade after the last Americans were air-lifted from Saigon, Stephen Bauer remembers watching thousands of South Vietnamese clamor for rescue as he stepped aboard the last helicopter out of the U.S. Embassy.

Bauer, a 20-year-old Marine corporal in 1975, was one of the last 11 men to leave the embassy roof the day North Vietnam captured the city. He says he still asks himself, "Who appointed you God?"

He had been a guard at the embassy for six months, and it was his task during the April 29 evacuation to keep the desperate Vietnamese from storming the roof to try to get aboard the U.S. helicopters, he told the San Francisco Chronicle.

Bauer recalled that in the chaotic final hours of U.S. involvement in Vietnam, "one of the screw-ups on the American side" was accidentally publishing the code that would signal the start of the evacuation.

"The Armed Forces Network was going to say 'It's 105 degrees in Saigon and rising,' and right after they'd play 30 seconds of Bing Crosby's 'White Christmas.'"

"What happened was, they printed flyers detailing all this.... All of Saigon knew what was going on," said Bauer, now a warrant officer assigned to the First Marine Division at Camp Pendleton.

Thousands of people, panic-stricken by rumors of a communist bloodbath, swarmed the embassy. Bauer said some Vietnamese tried to claw their way over the 14-foot wall as Marines pushed them back with pistol and rifle butts, feet and fists.

"Whether it was true or not, the Vietnamese believed that once the Viet Cong arrived it would be mass murder," he said. "Even in your own mind, you weren't sure whether these people were going to be massacred."

More than 6,500 people, including 1,000 Americans, were evacuated that morning before Ambassador Graham Martin finally left the compound.

"I think the ambassador was getting a little bit obsessed. He wanted to take every Vietnamese...that wanted out. There was no way we could do anything like that," Bauer said."And once Americans left, it was pretty much up to us to pick and choose among the Vietnamese."

With the ambassador evacuated, the Marines retreated into the embassy and the South Vietnamese rushed the heavy teak doors that the soldiers jammed with an iron bar.

When the last helicopter came, "a funny thing happened," Bauer said. He dashed to the chopper, but the other men hesitated. "Was everybody waiting to be the last one to step foot on the helicopter?

"I think it was running through everyone's mind that this was a significant moment in history. This was the end of Vietnam and we were the last ones out. I know if you talked to all 11 people on the helicopter, each one would tell you he was the last one to leave."

MUSEUM

"I used to sleep in the back of this one," Herring said, pointing to the wooden-slat bed of No. 2. "We had some snorers at the station, so I'd just come out and stick me a mattress in there."

When Herring used the truck as his bunk, his rank wasn't as high, he admitted.

"If I'd have been captain then, I'd have stuck the snorer out here," he said with a grin.

No. 2, with its fresh red paint and black and gold trim, still runs, according to Truitt. Plans for its first public performance are set for the Centennial Parade.

Until then, however, Midlanders can see the truck, which according to its speedometer, traveled over 2,409 miles of Midland terrain, at the museum along with its and No. 1's predecessor.

Or at least part of it.

The Midland Volunteer Fire Co., Feb. 27, 1912, purchased its first hose cart for $1,000, according to records. The only item remaining from the two hose carts once owned by the company, which was founded in 1909, is one 5-foot, 12-spoked, wooden wheel.

"The story, although I've never been able to confirm it, is when there was a fire, some cowboy would ride up and lasso the tongue of the cart and drag it to the fire," Truitt said. Photos of the hose cart and early firefighters are on display at the museum.

Also on display are parts of the fire alarm system from the old Midland Army Air Base and fire markers from around the world, brought to Midland by a local woman who had the collection on display at the fire museum in Grand Prairie until it closed.

The cast iron and copper markers were placed on the doors of those who had paid their dues to the fire company. Only burning buildings with the markers were saved, according to reports. Common in the 1800s both in England and this country, the program, however, was not used in Midland, Truitt said.

Moslems storm Christian post in southern Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Moslem militias backed by heavy artillery fire stormed the Christian mountain redoubt of Kfar Falous in southern Lebanon today and were locked in close-quarter combat with the defenders, the state radio reported.

The radio reported at least two Moslem militiamen were killed and five wounded in the assault. There was no word on Christian casualties.

The assault in the south, the latest push in a six-day Moslem offensive, came after heavy fighting between Christian and Moslem militias in Beirut overnight and today in which a freighter was set on fire.

Lloyd's of London said the 22,217-ton Miss Marietta, a Greek freighter, was set on fire briefly when a shell hit its boat deck. None of the crew was reported hurt. Police said another ship was also hit by shellfire, but it was not identified.

A cease-fire was declared at midmorning, but snipers dueled past the deadline. Police said at least five fire fighters were wounded. They said today that 73 people had been killed and 200 wounded in the fighting since Sunday as Christian and Moslem militiamen battled with tank cannon, rockets and machine guns across the "green line" that divides the capital.

The state radio reported that a combined force of the Popular Liberation Army, an alliance of Moslem and leftist militias, and the Shiite Moslem Amal militia overran the Kfar Falous defenses amid heavy artillery barrages.

It was the first time that Amal was reported to have joined its Moslem allies in the southern fighting, in which the outnumbered Christians have been driven from the coastal plain into their mountain stronghold around Jezzine following the withdrawal of Israeli troops.

The Christian Lebanese Forces and the Israeli-armed South Lebanon Army were reported holed up in an abandoned Lebanese army barracks building in Kfar Falous after their headquarters were overrun.

Fifth man says he was tortured by police

NEW YORK (AP) — A fifth man claimed Monday he was tortured by police in a Queens precinct where officers allegedly used electric stun guns to elicit confessions from suspects in drug cases, officials said.

Meanwhile, it was reported that the commander of all uniformed officers in the city police department would take early retirement as part of a continuing shakeup stemming from the the torture charges.

The abrupt retirement of Chief of Patrol Hamilton Robinson — the third-highest ranking officer on the force — and three other commanders in Queens was to be announced on Tuesday, The New York Times reported in its editions Tuesday.

Robinson's retirement would be effective in 30 days, the Times quoted unidentified police officials as saying. He is commander of 17,000 uniformed officers.

The fifth alleged victim, 24-year-old Victor Fred, told investigators he had been burned with a stun gun in February after his arrest by members of a special drug enforcement unit in the 106th Precinct, said Tom McCarthy, a spokesman for District Attorney John Santucci.

Investigators also interviewed a witness Monday who said he was in the 106th Precinct stationhouse the night that Mark Davidson allegedly was tortured with a stun gun, McCarthy said.

The district attorney's office would begin presenting its case against the officers to a grand jury Tuesday, McCarthy said. Four officers have been arrested and a fifth suspended as a result of the allegations.

All of the complainants so far have been black or Hispanic, and most have said the alleged torture sessions were punctuated with racial taunts and slurs.

Fred, of Ozone Park, told investigators that he was "accosted on the street" by police officers in February and taken to the precinct, where he was interrogated and burned with a stun gun, McCarthy said.

Forty years later, Nazi war criminals still haunt Europe

WORLD

LONDON (AP) — Forty years after the defeat of Adolf Hitler, aged Nazi war criminals still cast a shadow over Europe, keeping bitter memories alive and sometimes embarrassing governments.

In one way or another, France, Britain, Ireland, Austria, Italy, Holland and Belgium all have been wracked by the Nazi past in recent months.

Barbie

The biggest case pending involves Klaus Barbie, who is expected to go on trial, possibly this year, in Lyon, France, where he was Gestapo chief during World War II. He has been imprisoned in Lyon since February 1983, when he was expelled from Bolivia.

Barbie, 71, is accused of deporting thousands of French Jews and others to concentration camps, and of torturing French resistance fighters. But the trial of "the Butcher of Lyon" could be traumatic for France.

Barbie's flamboyant and aggressive attorney, Jacques Verges, has already served notice that he will defend his client by attacking the overall conduct of the French resistance and the collaborationist Vichy regime in World War II. He hopes to prove that Barbie's crimes were no worse than those of many others, including Frenchmen.

In Austria, meanwhile, the socialist-led coalition had to fight a parliamentary no-confidence motion only last February because the defense minister, Friedhelm Frischenschlager, officially welcomed a Nazi war criminal to his country.

Walter Reder, a major in Hitler's SS guard, had served 33 years in an Italian prison for ordering a reprisal massacre of 1,830 Italian civilians.

He was paroled by the Italians on grounds of ill health and flown to Austria, where Frischenschlager welcomed him and escorted him to a military barracks. Facing protests and demands for his dismissal, the defense minister apologized for "a grave political mistake" and stayed in office. Reder, 69, is believed to be living in Vienna.

For Holland, the Nazi connection came in the shape of Pieter Menten, a Dutchman jailed for his involvement in the massacre of 20 to 30 Polish Jews by SS men in Poland in 1941.

Upon his release from prison in March after serving two-thirds of a 10-year sentence handed down by a Dutch court, 85-year-old Menten planned to retire to a house in Ireland. But outcry from Irish Jews prompted Dublin to refuse him entry. Menten is still living in Holland.

Britain, like Ireland, was not occupied by the Germans in World War II and has not had to wrestle with such issues, but it too is sensitive to Nazi connections. In April Britain was rocked by newspaper revelations that Princess Michael, a member of the royal family by marriage, was the daughter of an SS major.

The princess, 40, has released a 1948 Bavarian court judgment issued under the Allies' de-nazification law ruling that her father, now deceased, was an SS member only in name, and that his relations with the unit grew so bad that it expelled him in 1944.

Belgium's top war criminal still at large is Leon Degrelle, 78, who led SS troops on the Soviet front and now lives in Spain.

Degrelle was cleared of mass murder, but a postwar Belgian court sentenced him to death in absentia.

He has said he wants to be tried in Belgium so that he can explain his wartime conduct. But in 1974 Degrelle was banned from Belgium as an undesirable.

Degrelle is one of several war criminals who took refuge in Spain under the rule of the late Generalissimo Franco. And in August 1984, Portugal granted admission to Romanian Archbishop Valerian Trifa when he was deported from the United States for war crimes. It has since ordered him expelled and his case is before the courts.

The United States and Canada have also been plunged into the war crimes question.

A Cleveland court has ordered the extradition to Israel of John Demjanjuk, 65, on charges that he operated the gas chamber at the Treblinka concentration camp in Poland where thousands of Jews died.

Yugoslavia is seeking the extradition from Los Angeles of Andrija Artukovic, 85, whom it blames for the wartime massacre of thousands of Serbs, Jews and Gypsies.

'Friendly' Nicaraguan, in Moscow, promised aid

New York Times News Service

MOSCOW — President Daniel Ortega Saavedra of Nicaragua met on Monday with Mikhail S. Gorbachev, the Soviet leader, who promised continued economic aid for "friendly Nicaragua."

Reporting the meeting, the news agency Tass gave no indication of the amount or kind of aid pledged. Before leaving on Friday on an eight-nation East European tour, Ortega said he would be seeking "aid for the life of the Nicaraguan people," a formula that seemed intended to distinguish the East European assistance from the military aid that President Reagan had unsuccessfully sought from Congress for the Nicaraguan rebels.

The Soviet reports on the meeting said only that "the U.S.S.R. will continue to give friendly Nicaragua assistance in resolving urgent problems of economic development, and also political and diplomatic support in its efforts to uphold its sovereignty."

Diplomats noted that the Russians do not customarily disclose the size of aid packages, and that, in this case, Nicaragua might be wary of publicizing any significant Soviet aid that might intensify suspicions in Washington.

One indication that Ortega had not been left empty-handed was the scope of his reception in Moscow. Ortega met not only with Gorbachev but also with Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko; Geidar A. Aliyev, a Politburo member and deputy premier previously involved in Nicaraguan affairs; Boris N. Ponomarev, a national party secretary in charge of relations with non-communist countries; and Nikolai K. Baibakov, the head of the State Planning Committee.

Diplomats also said that the Tass report appeared to be warmer and fuller than the ones that followed Ortega's meeting last June with Konstantin U. Chernenko, then the Soviet leader. Ortega's conversation on Monday with Gorbachev was said to have taken place "in an atmosphere of friendship and complete mutual understanding."

Tass stressed in its report that the Nicaraguans remained open to talks with Washington.

The Tass report did not mention the vote in the U.S. House of Representatives last week.

WORLD in brief

Airport workers arrested for stealing from luggage

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Fifteen members of a band of police agents, luggage handlers and taxi drivers have been arraigned on charges of stealing items from travelers' luggage at the Mexico City international airport.

The group, which included members of the Federal Security Police and the Federal District Judicial Police, had their alleged confessions read to them on Sunday by Criminal Court Judge Gilberto Chavez Priego.

The 15 men were arrested following numerous complaints, especially from diplomats who reported that their luggage had been opened in violation of special provisons for diplomats and that items were missing.

Chavez Priego said that based on the confessions signed by the group, other police officials also appeared to be involved in the airport thefts.

Poor study habits shown

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Only one of every 10 university students finishes his studies and receives a degree, according to a recent government study of higher education.

The study, published Monday, says university students tend to concentrate on "socially prestigious" fields instead of those areas where the country badly needs expertise.

The result is a surplus of lawyers and public accountants and a shortage of engineers, the study shows.

Candidate urges freedom

SAN LUIS POTOSI, Mexico (AP) — The ruling Institutional Revolulationary Party's candidate for governor of San Luis state has urged the federal government to give more freedom to farmers for managing state loans.

"It is time to stop thinking of farmers as minors and to let them carry out their duties. It is time to respect their sense of dignity as citizens of this state," Florencio Salazar Martinez said at an election rally over the weekend.

Explosions rock firms

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Two explosions just moments apart blew out doors and broke windows today at the office headquarters of two gold mining companies that had fired 17,500 black miners.

One of the companies, Anglo American Corp., agreed late Monday to rehire 14,500 of the miners fired over the weekend for holding an illegal strike at Vaal Reefs, the world's largest gold mine, the black National Union of Mineworkers said.

The union planned to meet today with Anglovaal Ltd., the owner of the Hartebeestfontein mine, where 3,000 black miners were dismissed for taking part in an illegal strike last week. The company has said it would consider rehiring the men.

No injuries were reported in the explosions at the downtown Johannesburg offices of Anglo American and Anglovaal Ltd., Johannesburg police spokesman Col. Fred Bull said.

New Japanese 'Super Pill' Insures Rapid Weight-Loss

No Dieting — Eat All You Want, Pill Does All The Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA — An exciting new "all natural" weight-loss "Super" Pill developed by the JMA (Japanese Medical Association) has just been approved for distribution in the United States. Reportedly, it can guarantee that you will lose more than a pound a day without dieting, from the very first day until you reach your ideal weight and figure. News of this "Super Pill" is literally sweeping the country. It's called Amitol and there has never been anything quite like it before.

"Flushes Calories Right Out Of Your Body"

What makes Amitol so thrilling and unique is its reported ability to flush calories right out of your body. Amitol is completely safe, it contains no drugs whatsoever. Its ingredients are derived solely from the Konjac root which grows primarily in Northern Japan.

Why the Konjac root? It has been used in Japan for over 1600 years to produce rapid and natural weight-loss

Japanese studies verify that Konjac root actually prevents fat producing calories from being absorbed into your system. They say it does this by surrounding much of the fats, proteins and carbohydrates you have eaten with a protective viscous coating which is then gently flushed out of your system. And according to Japanese research this produces absolutely amazing results.

And who can disagree! Amitol (although brand new to this country) is already being called by many people, "the most exciting weight-loss breakthrough of the century." In fact, everywhere there are reports of easy and fast weight-loss from formerly overweight people (in all walks of life) who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Company Offers Extraordinary Guarantee

You now can purchase Amitol direct from the North American distributor, and it comes with an extraordinary guarantee.

If you place your order now and then follow the simple instructions for a period of 30 days, you must be completely satisfied with the dramatic visible results or just return the empty container and Dyna Labs will immediately send back your entire purchase price. This guarantee applies regardless of your age or current weight level. What could be better than that! It's just that simple. If you've tried to lose weight before and failed you no longer have an excuse. Amitol is available, it's easy and it works without dieting!

$19.95—30 day supply, or $35.95 — 60 day supply. Order immediately by sending a check or money order to DYNA LABS, 270 No. Canon Dr., Ste. 1255 (Dept PD21) Beverly Hills, CA, 90210. (Enclose your return address). Credit card holders can order by simply dialing toll free: (1-800-453-5600) 24 hrs a day, 7 days a week. Either way your order will be promptly sent. Please don't wait. You really do deserve to be thin.

Despite being on the losing side in a close battle for the World Olympiad Women's Team crown, Sally Horton of Great Britain staked a serious claim to being regarded as the world's best woman player. Here's a hand from the final against the U.S.

Both teams reached six diamonds, a contract that can charitably be described as second-best. Seven clubs is an excellent contract, since the South hand contains more than enough entries to set up the diamond suit to take care of North's losers.

At both tables the lead was the king of hearts. Where the U.S. declared, the matter was soon settled. Declarer won the ace of hearts, drew two rounds of trumps, leaving the queen outstanding, then started to run clubs. She discarded a heart on the second club and a spade on the next, but West ruffed the third club and exited with the queen of hearts. Now declarer was stranded with a spade loser. Down one.

Mrs. Horton realized it was unlikely that three rounds of clubs would go through. If that were the case, she would need the spade finesse for her 12th trick. Also, she could not afford to draw even a single round of trumps, for dummy's lone trump was needed for another purpose.

She won the ace of hearts, cashed two high clubs to take care of her heart loser, then tried the spade finess. When that succeeded, she cashed the ace of spades, ruffed her remaining spade in dummy, and came back to hand with a heart ruff to draw two rounds of trumps. When the queen of trumps did not drop, she willingly conceded a trick to the queen of diamonds—that was her only loser.

The U.S. declarer relied on the 35 percent chance of the 3-3 club break. Mrs. Horton took the 50 percent chance of the finesse!

Prince Charles upset by Mass dispute

LONDON (AP) — The London Times reported today that Prince Charles was highly indignant that he and Princess Diana were stopped from attending a Mass in the private Vatican chapel of Pope John Paul II.

The newspaper said Vatican sources stated that the Protestant heir to the throne's desire to attend the Mass was overruled on the wishes of his mother, Queen Elizabeth II, temporal head of the Church of England.

But Victor Chapman, the prince's press secretary, was quoted in Rome by the British news agency Press Association as denying that the queen vetoed the attendance of her son and his wife at the Mass today.

"It was found the prince and princess simply would not have the time. It was a logistical rather than an ecumenical decision," Chapman said.

The queen's press secretary Michael Shea said the prince asked advice from several sources, and decided not to attend the Mass after receiving advice from the queen.

The Times said: "It emerged from Vatican sources yesterday that the prince's personal desire to exceed the customary formalities and to add a religious dimension to the current royal tour of Italy had been dropped on the express wishes of the queen."

The Times reported that Charles was said to be highly indignant and to have blamed "an old-fashioned mentality" for the decision.

Charles, 36, and Diana, 23, had an audience with the Pope on Monday. But a Vatican source, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said a request by the couple to attend a papal Mass was overruled by Buckingham Palace.

The source did not mention the queen. He said Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie, spiritual head of the Church of England, had written to the Vatican saying the couple would like to attend a papal Mass.

The source said the Vatican replied that that would be arranged but that later Buckingham Palace contacted the Vatican saying an audience would be sufficient.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Charles Perry Boggess, whose tank led American troops that broke the last major German offensive of World War II, in the Battle of the Bulge, died Saturday. He was 73.

Boggess, a first lieutenant, was in command of the first tank that broke through German lines in December 1944 and entered Bastogne, Belgium, to end the Nazi siege of the city. In December, on the 40th anniversary of the breakthrough, the Belgian government invited Boggess to Bastogne for ceremonies in which a surviving pillbox was renamed Fort Boggess.

NEW YORK (AP) — Wynton Marsalis, Leontyne Price and Simon Estes will donate their musical services in a "Concert Of Concern" at Carnegie Hall to aid Red Cross relief efforts in Africa, officials said.

Proceeds from the May 31 concert, whose tickets cost $25 to $100, will go to 27 drought-plagued countries, Red Cross spokesman Fred Yaeger said.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge Monday refused to dismiss a doctor's libel case against author Bob Woodward for alleged "inaccuracies and untruths" in his book about the late comedian John Belushi.

U.S. District Judge William Keller denied the motion by Woodward's lawyers to dismiss the suit filed by Dr. Robert J. Feder, a Beverly Hills eye, ear, nose and throat specialist.

Allan Browne, Feder's attorney, said he and his client eagerly await the trial, which he hopes will take place within nine months.

BOSTON (AP) — Blind singer-songwriter Stevie Wonder is urging business leaders to develop high-tech tools to help the handicapped compete with other workers.

Wonder

The entertainer demonstrated to an audience of Boston business executives Monday how he can, with the help of a personal computer and a device called DECtalk, program a music synthesizer with various tempos and sounds.

DECtalk, marketed by Digital Equipment Corp., converts the computerized information into speech, which lets Wonder arrange and edit the music without a recording studio engineer.

He can also write lyrics and then have them read back to him for editing with the new equipment.

The new machine sells for $4,000, according to Brad Allen of Digital.

HOBOKEN, N.J. (AP) — Eight months after he vowed never to perform again in his native state, Frank Sinatra has agreed to return to his hometown to receive an honorary degree from the college he says he always wanted to attend.

Sinatra

The Stevens Institute of Technology will present Ol' Blue Eyes with an honorary doctorate in engineering at its 113th commencement May 23.

"He has stated it was his parents' intention and his own early dream to attend Stevens Institute of Technology and become an engineer," spokeswoman Amy Bass said Monday of the 69-year-old entertainer.

Sinatra pledged to boycott New Jersey after he was called an "obnoxious bully" by a state casino commissioner in a dispute over a blackjack game in Atlantic City.

The dispute stemmed from a 1983 game in which Sinatra and singer Dean Martin played with cards dealt by hand instead of the dispenser required by state law. Commissioner Joel Jacobson said he believed Sinatra had intimidated the dealer.

Although the singer will return to Hoboken, he is still sticking to his boycott, said publicist Susan Reynolds. "He is receiving a degree at Stevens. He is not performing there."

NORTH MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Johnnie Wise, a vaudeville pianist who appeared with the Marx Brothers and was billed as the "Wizard of the Ivories," died Thursday. He was 101.

Wise played to audiences across Europe, Russia and the United States, sharing stages with performers such as Sophie Tucker, Eddie Cantor, George Arliss and the Marx Brothers. He also entertained soldiers for the USO. Wise later took a job at Zissen's Bowery, a nightclub where he worked for more than 20 years.

CHAGRIN FALLS, Ohio (AP) — David Sinton Ingalls, a former businessman, lawyer and politician who was the Navy's only World War I flying ace, died Friday. He was 86.

Ingalls enlisted in the First Yale Naval Aviation unit and was assigned to a squadron of Sopwith Camels that fought in France. A former member of the Cleveland law firm of Squires Sanders & Dempsey, he was elected a state representative in 1927 and re-elected in 1929. Ingalls became President Herbert Hoover's assistant secretary of the Navy for aeronautics in 1929. He later served as vice president of Pan American World Airways.

Chaining Khadafy

The United States has warned Col. Muammar Khadafy many times of the consequences of his terrorist activities, but in its latest notice to the Libyan strongman it seems to mean business.

Khadafy's call not long ago for "suicide missions" against Americans and moderate Arab leaders brought a quick response from our State Department that Libya would be held accountable for any terrorism committed against U.S. diplomats abroad or in this country.

While the nature of the threatened U.S. reprisals was not spelled out, the implication was that they would be militarily forceful. State Department spokesmen said that new policies developed for dealing with terrorism call for that kind of action.

That's the kind of action that needs to be taken. Khadafy-style terrorism is an open affront to the civilized world and has to be opposed or will lead to yet more terrorism.

Americans have suffered enough as a result of "suicide missions" mounted by terrorists of the Khadafy stripe. As open advocates of such violence, the Khadafys and Khomeinis of this world are long overdue a dose of their own medicine.

Man to remember

He was one of a kind. The nation's political scene has lost some of its luster by the death of former North Carolina Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. at the age of 88.

Whatever the self-styled "old country lawyer" did, he did well. After graduating from Harvard Law School, he succeeded as a young country lawyer, then went on to become a judge, rising to membership in the North Carolina Supreme Court. He won national fame as the fair-minded and witty chairman of the Senate's Watergate investigation that led to the resignation of President Nixon in 1974.

Throughout his varied career "Senator Sam," or "The Judge," as he was affectionately called by many, became one of this generation's most engaging personalities. He could spin a yarn with the best who ever came down from the hills of the Tar heel State.

As an example, while a member of his state's General Assembly he helped defeat a bill that would have banned the teaching of evolution in public schools. "Only one good thing can come of this," he said. "The monkeys in the jungle will be pleased to know that the North Carolina Legislature has absolved them of any responsibility for humanity in general and for the North Carolina Legislature in particular."

That's vintage Sam Ervin. Let's not forget that behind the whimsy and good-humored courtliness was a brilliant legal mind, a constitutional scholar, a dedicated citizen who contributed to his country far and above the call of routine duty.

The colorful Sam J. Ervin Jr. leaves us a legacy not only of colorful language, but of candor and conscience.

All about the SS

Time that works to heal wounds can also weaken memories that deserve to be kept strong. President Reagan, who should know better, has suggested that the SS graves in the West German military cemetery that he plans to visit next month are those of very young men, children almost, impressed into service in the last months of the war and free from any association with the crimes of the Nazi era. The president has even suggested that those buried at the Bitburg cemetery, like those who died in the concentration camps during the Nazi period, are equally victims of Hitlerism. To believe this is utterly to miss the point of what the SS was all about and what the controversy over Bitburg involves.

Who is buried at Bitburg is unimportant. It is the SS insignia on certain graves there that are of paramount significance, and it is these that make a presidential pilgrimage to the site inconceivable. The world knows nothing of the SS men buried at Bitburg. It knows more than can ever be comprehended about what the SS stood for and what crimes it committed. The SS graves at Bitburg are the stark symbol of the horror that descended on Europe when it fell under Nazi domination. The SS, in its several roles, embodied the unspeakable evil of that era.

The SS ran the concentration and extermination camps, as everyone knows. It was responsible for mass murder, organized and carried out on a scale unique in history. Jews were the primary though by no means the exclusive victims of the SS. While 6 million Jews perished at the hands of the Nazis, millions of non-Jews were also deliberately killed along with them. Not all died in the camps. The grisly work of the SS was conducted in the field as well.

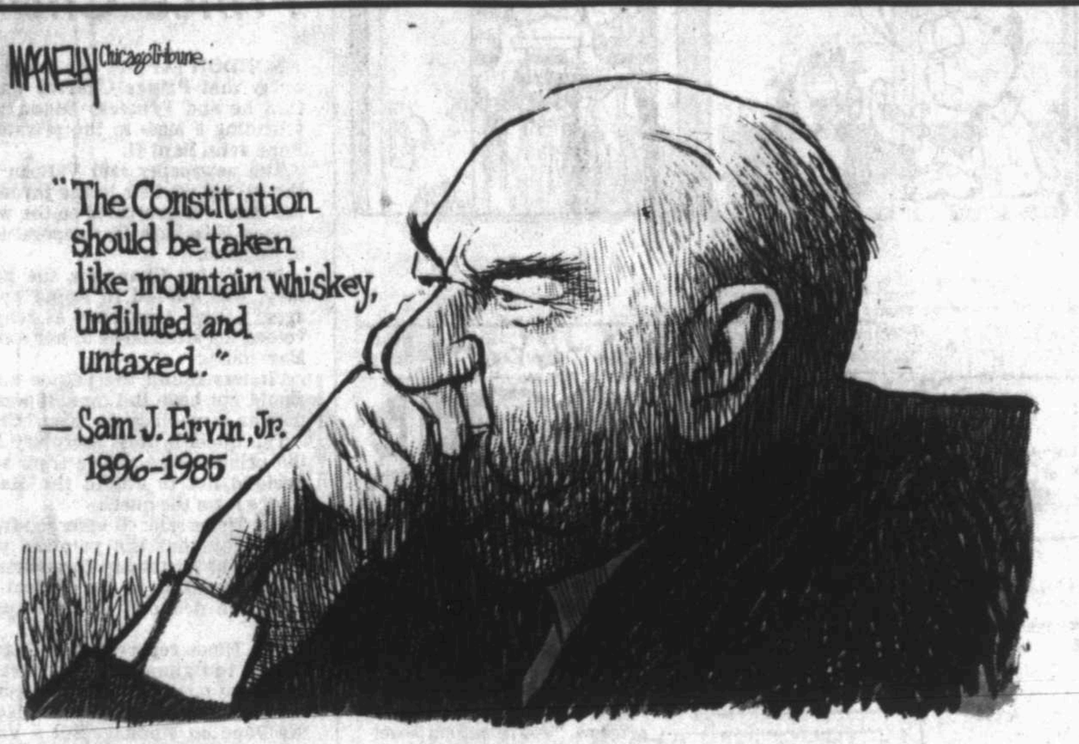

By the end of the war the military arm of the SS — the Waffen SS — totaled 39 divisions. These were Hitler's elite, carefully selected for their loyalty, their fanaticism, their brutality. Where they went terrorism and atrocities followed — in Poland, in Czechoslovakia, in France, in Russia, in Belgium. It was an SS officer who gave the order near Malmedy in Belgium to slaughter U.S. prisoners of war — "Machen alle kaput." It was SS men who obeyed that order and murdered more than 200 Americans.

The controversy over Reagan's planned visit to Bitburg and the homage that he will pay there is hardly only a "Jewish" issue. Neither does it touch only the victims of Nazism and those who fought the war against it. It is above all a moral issue, posing a choice between respect for the enormous tragedy of the near past and the satisfaction of transient political interest. For the president to go to Bitburg would be not just inappropriate but also wrong. For the president to pay his respects near SS gravesites would be not just a blunder but also an insult to humane values.

Report questions bonus awards

WASHINGTON — A scathing report by the Commerce Department's inspector general questions the integrity of the cash-bonus program in a subagency created to help minority businesses.

Jack Anderson

The IG concluded that the cash bonuses awarded by the Minority Business Development Agency were too large, grossly exceeded the bonus budget, went overwhelmingly to "front office" officials and in most cases lacked proper justification.

"We found serious problems in the administration of MBDA's fiscal 1984 cash awards program," the IG wrote in a draft report obtained by our associate Donald Goldberg. "These problems are sufficient, in our opinion, to raise grave doubts about the integrity of the cash awards process in MBDA."

We've reported in the past on mismanagement and cronyism in the minority business agency. Favoritism appears to have carried over into its bonus program as well, according to the IG's report.

Most federal agencies reward exceptional employees with cash bonuses. They are supposed to be awarded on an evenhanded basis for work that is above and beyond the call of duty, usually for efforts that save the taxpayers money.

After studying 29 of the 37 cash awards the agency gave out last year, the IG found the following questionable or downright unacceptable practices:

— Three out of every five "bonus babies" worked either in the agency director's office, the administrative office or the public-affairs unit.

The IG interviewed eight division managers outside the favored three, informing them that the agency had spent $78,500 of supplemental funds on last-minute cash awards. "None was aware of the availability of the extra monies provided by the supplemental appropriation," the IG wrote.

The word evidently got out to the heads of the three more fortunate offices, though: $64,000 of the bonus money went to their employees. "The (other) managers felt strongly that the disproportionate amount of awards to operating units 'in the know' destroyed the purpose of the incentive awards program, because awards should not be based on monies 'left in the pot,' but rather should go to the most deserving employees of the agency, regardless of the office to which they are assigned," the IG wrote.

The disparity was brazen: two out of every five employees of the "front office" got bonuses, compared with only about one in 14 in the other divisions.

— The size of the awards in the minority business agency was significantly higher than the average in the Commerce Department, the IG found. The overall department average bonus — excluding the minority business agency — was $825; the MBDA's average award was $2,655. And the average of the 22 last-minute awards was even higher: $3,569.

— The agency handed out more than seven times the amount budgeted for bonuses. The budget called for $16,000. "MBDA, however, approved $116,814, or 730 percent over the amount originally budgeted," according to the report.

— The awards were riddled with procedural errors, and most failed to disclose just what benefits were gained or savings incurred that would have justified the bonuses. "Of the 29 awards included in our review, amounting to $102,957, only four, amounting to $10,628, included adequate written justification and documentation for the awards requested," the IG report states.

In six of the cases, the justifications were inadequate in a crucial area, failing to show "how the accomplishments were over and above what was expected" of the bonus babies.

The IG report recommended suspending the agency's authority to grant cash awards until it cleans up its act.

RAISINS IN THE SUN: As baseball fans know, one of the principal products of the impoverished Republic of Haiti is official baseballs, manufactured at the Wilson Sporting Goods factory. Each horsehide ball comes in its own little plastic bag with the company logo on it.

Lately, though, street vendors have been selling those little plastic bags full of raisins in Port-au-Prince, and the company doesn't like it one bit.

The bags were stolen from the Wilson factory; the raisins were somehow diverted from the U.S. "Food for Peace" program.

American aid officials and a private group, which was given the job of distributing 680 metric tons of raisins to hungry Haitians, are trying to figure out how the fruit got into the Wilson bags and the street vendors' hands. They've been selling briskly for 20 cents per half-pound bag.

U.S. officials are concerned that the black-market raisins may be contaminated. Wilson, which is concerned about its reputation, has sent people out to confiscate the stolen bags and is burning them, raisins and all.

Bitburg's impact on Germany

MUNICH, West Germany — West German politicians fear Bonn's mood of disciplined restraint over Bitburg will be transformed into public bitterness if President Reagan's wreath-laying ceremony next week fails to end the controversy raging in the U.S.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

In contrast to the furious American reaction to the Bitburg visit that so stunned the White House, the response here has been somber, private, but progressively fearful. One politician described it to us, "like sitting on a box that may contain dynamite."

The feeling here, virtually unanimous, is that the Federal Republic must be allowed to succeed in the effort to assuage the deep sense of national guilt over Hitler and the holocaust by symbolic reconciliation with the U.S. at Bitburg. Failure would damage German-American relations and weaken Chancellor Helmut Kohl on the eve of an important provincial election. Soviet propaganda opportunities to assail Pershing missiles in Germany would expand. Failure also would sour German hopes for closer relations with world Jewry.

When Kohl convinced Reagan in the White House last Nov. 30 that the time had come to honor the German dead of World War II, there was not the slightest suspicion that plans for opening a new chapter for the Federal Republic after 40 years of public repentance could go astray. Political insiders in Bonn had no reason to think that Kohl would later be denounced in the U.S. on grounds of unfairly pressuring Reagan into the reconciliation gesture with his emotional appeal five months ago.

Rather, it was politics as usual when the White House signaled approval. West German leaders routinely started to examine the president's visit in the tradition of getting something out of it.

To the conservative Christian Social Union (CSU), Bavarian partner of Kohl's Christian Democratic Union (CDU), a Reagan visit to Dachau looked too good to be true. The Nazi concentration camp is close to this city, stronghold of Reagan's great admirer, Franz Joseph Strauss, the CSU leader. Timing of the visit would coincide with Strauss's 70th birthday.

But Strauss himself was skeptical. He argued privately that the Dachau Memorial Commission was dominated by far-left, anti-American activists who would try to convert the president's visit into pro-Soviet propaganda. That became moot when Dachau, never part of Kohl's plan, was scratched by Reagan's handlers.

At that point, Kohl was riding high, his prestige enhanced by the prospect of a joint ceremony with Reagan at Bitburg. For 25 years, the U.S., Britain and France have laid memorial wreaths to German dead of two world wars at that cemetery.

Glimpsing the opening of a new chapter in West Germany's search for full acceptance by its Western allies, Kohl, Strauss, and other political leaders were astounded at the fury unleashed by the discovery that 47 elite Hitler SS troops were buried at Bitburg. They were shocked that the White House then allowed the president to be lectured over national television by Elie Wiesel, the most respected living victim of the holocaust.

In Bonn, spontaneous American anger brought a bitter revival of German guilt and self-doubt and private expressions of anger that Bitburg was spawning new hatred instead of reconciliation. It was also beginning to embarrass Kohl's domestic politics. The opposition Social Democratic Party (SPD) is now demanding that Kohl ban a highly-publicized meeting of surviving SS troops scheduled for two days after Reagan's Bitburg visit.

Insiders here predict that Kohl will suffer if Reagan's performance at Bitburg — and at the Bergen-Belsen concentration camp — fails to cool passions across the Atlantic. He would suffer particularly if, as seems certain, holocaust survivors demonstrate against him and Reagan at Bitburg.

The most important election of Kohl's term is May 12 in the state of North Rhine-Westphalia. State Minister-President Johannes Rau, a rising SPD leader, started attacking Kohl last week for being "unfeeling" about Bitburg.

A reversion of political debate to such lethal themes worries all West Germans. At heart most of them agree with David Krivine, who in the April 17 Jerusalem Post wrote a dissent to Jewish pressures on Reagan that has been read and reread by Chancellor Kohl and his aides.

"The issue at stake," Krivine wrote, "is how long we go on preaching at the Germans. Their guilt has been ventilated thoroughly by now. What more is there to prove?" Unless the post-Bitburg climate conforms to that view, Kohl and West Germany cannot start the new future they so passionately want.

CHARLEY REESE

German flap ignores reality

The flap over President Reagan's decision to visit a German cemetery is not justified.

Charley Reese

President Reagan is not planning a summer holiday. He is on a state visit, as president of the United States, to West Germany, one major purpose of which is to further cement an alliance that the Soviet Union is trying to split.

The Nazi government no longer exists. Its spiritual twin, the Soviet Union, does. The Soviet Union is the government which now persecutes Jews and practices anti-semitism. The Soviet Union is now the totalitarian military power which is threatening democracies. Do you want the West Germans as allies or not?

No one can justly accuse Reagan of being insensitive about the Holocaust. He has played a prominent role in the move to establish a Holocaust memorial in Washington and he has spoken publicly on the subject many, many times.

Nor can anyone pretend the Holocaust is being forgotten, least of all in West Germany which: maintains the former concentration camps as public reminders, has anti-Nazi statutes on its book and enforces them, and pays reparations to some survivors and to the state of Israel.

There is a difference between remembering the Holocaust, studying it, learning from it, and beating the present generation of Germans over the head with it. The latter will be counterproductive. Guilt is a painful emotion and if it becomes too painful, it is human nature to develop hatred for the source of the guilt. If Jews insist on turning the Holocaust into a psychological Versailles Treaty for the German people, they will very likely produce the same result the original, vindictive treaty produced.

I understand the feeling of survivors and of Americans who lost loved ones in the war. If I were in either category, I might not personally forgive the Germans either. A president of the United States, however, has more to do than represent the personal grudges of individuals. His job is to deal with the present and to do what he can to insure that we have a future. The threat to both at the moment is the Soviet Union, not West Germany.

As a matter of fact, the main threat to Jews in the world today is the Soviet Union. Not only do the the Soviets maintain an official anti-semitic internal policy, but they are the chief military and diplomatic allies of Israel's enemies. Without Soviet armaments flowing into the Arab countries, Israel would be secure.

American Jews, like American non-Jews, are living in a dream world. Israel is in real danger. That little country is always one lost war away from a new Holocaust. It's short of money, short of allies, short of immigrants, and short of time. Do they think it is going to be easier to combat the influence of the Arab lobby in Washington after they have unjustly raked the hide off Reagan for a simple gesture to a nation that has been our ally for 40 years?

As for the American veterans' organizations, they should wake up, too. The German boys who died for their country had no more to do with its politics than the boys who died for our country did with ours. An ex-soldier, above all, should appreciate that.

What all this flap tells me is that few people have learned anything at all from studying the Holocaust. They seem to have forgotten that while Europe's Jews were going to the furnaces, American Jews were fighting each other over who could be spokesman for the Jews. While one group of Jews was attempting to hold fund-raisers for rescue operations, another group was publicly calling for people to boycott the fund-raisers. While one group of Jews was actually rescuing some European Jews, other American Jews were complaining publicly that they weren't being selective in the people they rescued.

So what's happening today? People are wasting their political capital on the past while the present plight of Jews in Israel grows daily more threatening. Some of the same people who are screaming at Reagan for visiting a German cemetery are calling for appeasement of the Soviet Union which is actually persecuting its Jews.

Let's get with it, folks. The present danger is work enough for all of us. The present enemy is threatening enough. Let the ghosts of the past settle their own scores. Our job is to prevent a new generation from becoming ghosts.

Challenger astronauts mix research, trouble-shooting

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The scientists of space shuttle Challenger mixed research with trouble-shooting today as they settled into a round-the-clock work routine aboard the laboratory they share with a menagerie of monkeys and rats.

A broken airlock, fouled plumbing system, a "crashed" computer and communications gaffes that caused radio signals to echo as if in a cavern slowed efforts by the astronauts to activate the billion-dollar Spacelab.

Challenger, which was purring along in good shape, was launched from the Kennedy Space Center in Florida on Monday, but within a few hours the seven astronauts found themselves beset by pesky mechanical problems that quickly threw them behind schedule.

They overcame many of them, including the confused communications, with help from specialists on the ground. But others remained unresolved and threatened to wipe out one or two of the 15 experiments planned during a week in orbit.

Most of the problems showed up in the early hours of the mission. Two new ones cropped up early today. A computer used to send commands to some experiments simply quit — "crashed," as one crewman reported. Unable to revive it, the crew switched to a backup computer.

An optical device used to view the growth of an electronic crystal failed to produce an image until some trouble-shooting procedures were read up to Challenger.

Despite all the problems, Challenger remained a healthy ship, according to mission control, and the astronauts today began a series of crystal growth and fluid dynamics experiments that are testing ways of making new and purer exotic materials in weightless space.

Within hours after liftoff, the astronauts were able to send one small satellite spinning off into an independent orbit as planned but another craft, called GLOMR, failed to budge from its can-like nest in the cargo bay.

A medical experiment that was to vacuum up and measure the volume of urine produced in space worked in reverse. Fluid was spewed into the cabin, sending the astronaut scurrying around with paper towels to sop up floating droplets.

"We have attempted to use the urine monitoring system," said Dr. William Thornton, one of two astronaut-physicians on board. "On the flush cycles it was blowing water all over the place and after extensive cleanup, I have discontinued use of that."

Later, the crewmen found they could not get a kitchen water system to work. Mission commander Bob Overmyer reported part of the crew were scheduled to go to bed, but "they'd like to get some water" before sleep.

Mission Control told the crew how to hook up an auxiliary water gun.

Overmyer worked on the plumbing and later told Mission Control that he had restored the drinking water system completely.

While three members of the crew slept, the other four astronauts activated Spacelab in the cargo bay and immediately encountered a series of problems.

An airlock that was to be used as a platform for an astronomy camera jammed as the astronauts attempted to open the outer hatch to the vacuum of space.

Astronaut Don Lind beamed a television view of the cranky hatch mechanism to the ground and Mission Control promised, "We're working on it and will get back to you." Data from at least two orbits were lost.

Dr. Norman Thagard, following instructions from the ground, examined the airlock mechanism and reported the latch was bent by up to 10 degrees.

The astronauts were told to not use the airlock until hearing further from engineers on the ground.

Dole tries for showdown vote on budget plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, claiming Senate support for President Reagan's budget package remains shaky at best, is seeking to head off a pre-emptive Democratic strike at the section of the plan scaling back Social Security cost-of-living increases.

The Kansas Republican said he doesn't know whether he can keep the president's package intact, but he noted that he was ready to try for a showdown vote today after four days of political manuevering on the package of $52 billion in spending cuts.

"It will be a jigsaw puzzle for a while," Dole told reporters Monday, saying he still doesn't know how the pieces of the spending outline will come together.

The Senate completed its fourth day of debate on the budget Monday evening without taking a single vote, and Dole said he would seek today to get Senate approval for a procedural motion that would formally bring the president's plan before the Senate as a package.

He twice backed away from calling the roll on such a motion last week, claiming he lacked the votes to prevail.

With six Republican senators still wavering, Dole said the outcome remains too close to call. Republicans control the Senate by a narrow 53-47 margin and Democrats are united in their opposition to the president's package.

Meanwhile, Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., served notice that he would move at the first opportunity to strike from the president's plan its most politically sensitive element — a 2 percent ceiling on benefit increases in each of the next three years for the nation's 36 million Social Security recipients.

Dole vowed to use parliimentary manuevering to keep the Social Security vote from preceeding the vote on the entire budget package — a step that will equire Dole to hold the floor until the time of the vote on the Reagan proposal to prevent Democrats from being recognized to offer amendents.

However, Dole made it clear he would give the Senate the opportunity to vote on the Social Security issue later in the debate.

Dole on Monday reportedly agreed to restore $200 million in aid to the handicapped to next year's budget as well as spare the Rural Electric Administration from elimination — concessions aimed at gaining additional support among the wavering Republicans for the president's package.

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, one of the senators who earlier had been undecided, said Monday he would reluctantly support the president's package in the procedural vote — in exchange for a commitment he received from Dole that he could later offer an amendment that would freeze all federal spending, including defense.

The White House-backed package would allow defense spending to rise 3 percent above the rate of inflation in 1986.

Even though GOP leaders said a victory on today's vote was crucial symbolically for the president's plan, Grassley said: "I think as a matter of fact it is just a procedural vote."

"The whole thing (budget plan) is going to be changed between now and when we finish anyway," Grassley said in an interview.

In North Texas, thunderstorms tapering off tonight. A few lingering thunderstorms Wednesday in extreme east. Lows tonight 54 to 64. Highs Wednesday 78 to 86.

In South Texas, a slight chance of thunderstorms tonight in Southeast Texas. Highs Wednesday in the 80s. Lows tonight in the middle 60s to middle 70s.

Fair skies, warming trend due

From Staff and Wire Reports

Fair skies and warm temperatures will prevail tonight and Wednesday, with a low in the mid 50s tonight and a high near 80 Wednesday. Winds tonight will be light and variable, increasing slightly to northeasterly winds of 5-10 mph Wednesday, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Monday's high of 82 was 13 degrees below the record high for the date of 95, set in 1947, while the overnight low of 51 was 10 degrees above the 1960 record of 41.

STATE

The remains of heavy thunderstorms that pounded parts of North Central Texas on Monday were over Northeast Texas early today.

But precipitation had ended for the rest of the state, and a flash flood watch issued earlier for the Fort Worth area was canceled.

A National Weather Service spokesman said no major storms are expected today, and said clear skies are likely for most of the week.

"We ought to be through with it for the next couple of days," Buddy McIntire of the National Weather Service in Fort Worth said Monday night.

Skies were generally clear early today over the South Plains, Panhandle and other sections of West Texas. An upper-level low-pressure system that helped to trigger turbulent weather over the weekend had begun to move off to the east.

Temperatures were in the 40s and 50s over most of West Texas early today and in the 60s and 70s elsewhere. Early morning temperatures ranged from 47 at Amarillo to 78 at Brownsville.

A tornado watch was in effect for 30 counties of North Central Texas and three counties of Northeast Texas for much of Monday afternoon and night.

Tornadoes threatened residents in and around Tarrant County late Monday afternoon, twice touching down in rural areas southwest of Fort Worth about 4:30 p.m.

NATION

Thunderstorms rumbled from Texas and Colorado into the nation's midsection today while heavy rain caused rivers and streams to overflow in parts of Oklahoma, Texas and Kansas.

Three children drowned Monday in Oklahoma City in runoff from 2.1 inches of rain.

NFL draft begins with glamorless names

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League began a generally glamorless 50th draft today as the league's 28 teams began choosing players from a crop heavy in offensive and defensive linemen but light in players from the glamor positions — running back and quarterback.

Even the one glamor player who might have been drafted wasn't — University of Miami quarterback Bernie Kosar, who chose to make himself eligible instead for a supplemental draft in which the Boardman, Ohio, native is expected to be chosen by his favorite team, the Cleveland Browns.

There was no suspense about the identity of the first pick — 283-pound defensive lineman Bruce Smith of Virginia Tech, the Outland Trophy winner. He was signed by the Buffalo Bills last February.

Minnesota, which held the second pick, temporarily passed after the 15-minute time limit expired. But within minutes, the Vikings traded their pick to Atlanta in return for the Falcons' first pick, No. 4 over-all, as well as the third-round selection. The Falcons then took Bill Fralic, Pitt's mammoth offensive tackle.

Houston picking third, immediately took Texas A&M defensive lineman Ray Childress. The Oilers had stipulated in the Kosar deal that Minnesota not pick Childress.

The Dallas Cowboys, using hardly any time at all for the 17th choice of the first round, picked 245-pound defensive lineman Kevin Brooks of Michigan, whose speed enables him to make plays from sideline to sideline. He led the Wolverines in 1984 with 13 tackles behind the line. Brooks was moved to defensive tackle in 1982 after playing outside linebacker as a freshman.

Minnesota, which reportedly had been looking for a wide receiver, pulled something of a surprise by using almost all of their 15 minutes before taking another Pitt player, defensive end-outside linebacker Chris Doleman.

The Indianapolis Colts, picking fifth, took linebacker Duane Bickett from Southern California.

The Detroit Lions selected 285-pound offensive tackle Lomas Brown of Florida, noted as a good drive blocker who is seldom beaten at the point of attack.

The Green Bay Packers pulled a deal with Buffalo to acquire the Bills' second first-round pick, No. 7 over-all which had been acquired from Cleveland, as well as the Bills' fourth-round pick next year and took USC offensive tackle Ken Ruettgers.

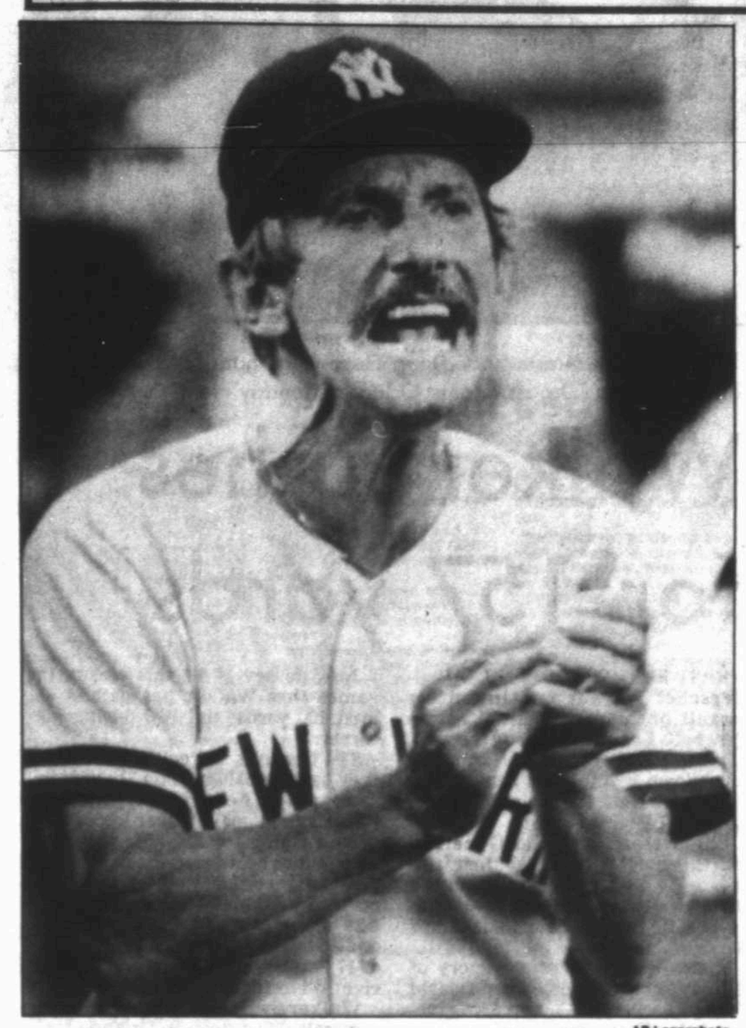

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers then quickly grabbed defensive end Ron Holmes of Washington.

The Philadelphia Eagles used 14:45 before selecting offensive tackle Kevin Allen of 0-11 Indiana.

The New York Jets then took wide receiver Al Toon of Wisconsin.

Nine rounds was the longest the NFL has gone since 1968 without selecting a quarterback, running back or wide receiver.

Houston then picked another Wisconsin player, cornerback Richard Johnson. The Oilers had acquired the selection from New Orleans for running back Earl Campbell.

Yankee manager Billy Martin yells encouragement at his players during Monday's game with the Texas Rangers, but it didn't help in a 7-5 loss.

Martin yanks Yankee off-day

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Billy Martin took over as manager of the New York Yankees for an unprecedented fourth time Monday night, succeeding his successor, Yogi Berra.

"George and I didn't get Yogi fired," Martin said of the action taken Sunday by George Steinbrenner, the Yankees' principal owner. "The players did by being in last place.

"My job is to push 'em and get the most out of 'em. That will start with a mandatory workout on our next off-day on Thursday."

Steinbrenner was upset when, on the Yankees' last off-day on April 22, only four players attended an optional workout at Yankee Stadium.

"I'm not happy," Steinbrenner said then, "but, at this point, Yogi's running the team. He made the workout optional."

Now Martin is running the team, and he says he is making changes.

"We have a lot of speed and I'll use it because I'm a gambling type manager," said Martin. "I've got a job to do. That's to get this team from last place to first place.

"I like our club. I just don't like the way it has been playing. It will be tough because I missed two months of spring training with the team. But we'll just have sort of a spring training around here until we get straightened out."

Martin arrived at Arlington Stadium at 3 p.m. CDT and donned his familiar pin-striped uniform with the number "1." He then posed for photographs, held a series of interviews, met with his coaches and presided at a closed clubhouse meeting with the players.

Martin said he had a long telephone talk with Berra, who "wished me luck. He told me a lot about the team and I appreciated it. We've been friends a long time."

Martin said he had a contract to manage the Yankees until 1990.

"I'll probably just manage two or three years and bring in somebody else," said Martin. "I told Lou Piniella to sit close to me on the bench. I'm going to work very close with him."

Martin said he had not sought a job with another team because he was under contract to Steinbrenner.

"The other teams couldn't have afforded me," he said. "I've been an adviser to George."

Yet, he said he was surprised when he got the nod to manage the Yankees again.

"I didn't think I'd be coming back this year," he said.

It was ironic that Martin's debut was at Texas Stadium, where he was fired as the Rangers' manager on July 21, 1975.

Martin now has a record eight American League managerial debuts.

Parrish soils Martin's Yank debut

Associated Press

Larry Parrish of the Texas Rangers gave Billy Martin an easy way to remember his fourth managerial debut with the New York Yankees. So did Bobby Meacham.

And Martin would probably prefer to forget both occurrences.

"You can go to batting practice and not hit three out. It was just one of those freak things," Parrish said after blasting three consecutive home runs and driving in six runs Monday night to lead the Rangers past the Yankees 7-5.

Parrish's third home run was a two-run shot in the eighth inning off John Montefusco, who had been taken off the disabled list earlier in the day. Martin made his first managerial move when he took out starter Ron Guidry in the eighth and summoned Montefusco to pitch for the first time this year. The first batter Montefusco faced was Parrish.

PARRISH BECAME just the fifth player in major league history to hit three home runs in a game in both leagues. Parrish, who homered three times in a game three times for Montreal, joined Babe Ruth, Johnny Mize, Claudell Washington and Dave Kingman in that category.

"That's something you seldom see," Martin said of Parrish's barrage.

Just as rare was what New York's Meacham did in the fourth inning.

After Butch Wynegar and Willie Randolph had singled, Meacham hit a ball that just cleared the wall for an apparent home run. ut as Meacham was rounding first base, admiring his hit, he passed Randolph, who had been waiting to see if the ball would be caught.

Meacham was delcared out and credited with a two-run single.

"I'm not going to blame anyone for that one," Martin said. "Things like that happen."

Much of the pre-game attention at Arlington Stadium centered on the return of Martin, who took over the job after Yogi Berra was fired Sunday.

Parrish, however, was the one who stole the show.

He blasted a three-run blow off Guidry in the fourth inning, and then hit a solo shot in the sixth after Gary Ward had also homered.

PARRISH HAS hit four home runs in the past two seasons off Guidry, which prompted Martin to call on Montefusco in the eighth.

"I didn't want to leave Ron in there because Parrish has always hit him real good," said Martin. "I decided to bring in John and he just hung a curveball. That's the human part of pitching. I told him to throw curveballs into the dirt.

"Guidry was real tired and that's why I yanked him."

Montefusco said he expected Martin to stay with Guidry, who fell to 1-3.

"I was surprised that he (Martin) brought me in. I shouldn't have been as nervous as I was," Montefusco said.

Dave Schmidt, 1-1, got the victory, which ended a five-game losing streak for Texas.

AL Roundup

Mariners 9, Brewers 7

Former Ranger Donnie Scott, a switch-hitting catcher who had not hit a home run all season and had just three in his major-league career, provided a stunning ending in Seattle.

Scott led off the ninth inning with a home run hit left-handed off Milwaukee reliever Rollie Fingers that tied the score 7-7. Then, in the 10th, he blasted a two-run homer batting right-handed off Ray Searage.

The two home runs helped the Mariners end an eight-game losing streak. Ed Nunez, 1-0, got the victory and Searage, 0-2, took the loss.

The Brewers took a 6-2 lead in the third inning, aided by RBI singles from Cecil Cooper, Ben Oglivie and Bill Schroeder, who later added a solo homer.

Al Cowens drove in three runs, two with a home run, and Phil Bradley also hit a two-run blast for the Mariners.

Blue Jays 2, A's 1

Pill Caudill, who earned 36 saves for Oakland last season, shut the door on the A's to gain his fifth save for Toronto.

Caudill entered the game in the eighth inning with runners on first and third and none out. But Carney Lansford popped out, Dave Collins was caught trying to steal second and Bruce Bochte flied out to end the threat.

Luis Leal, 2-1, allowed only five hits before Mike Davis homered with two outs in the seventh. It was the ninth homer and 23rd RBI for Davis, both tops in the AL. Davis totaled nine homers in 1984.

The visiting Blue Jays had only four hits, three off starter Bill Krueger, 2-2. He gave up a run-scoring single to Jesse Barfield and left after loading the bases in the sixth. Reliever Keith Atherton yielded a sacrifice fly to Len Matuszek that made it 2-0.

Angels 7, Red Sox 6

The game in California started off as a wild affair, tied 6-6 after three innings.

But Doug DeCinces homered with two outs in the fourth, and Angels rookie Pat Clements pitched six innings of one-hit relief to shut down Boston. Clements, 1-0, won his first major league game and Donnie Moore worked the ninth for his fourth save.

Clements entered the game after Tony Armas and Mike Easler homered off California starter Ron Romanick to start the third. In the second inning, Jackie Gutierrez cracked a two-run homer for the Red Sox.

Steve Crawford, 2-2, gave up DeCinces' tie-breaking home run.

Royals 3, Indians 2

The game in Kansas City was held up for 1 hour and 18 minutes at the start because of rain, and then was interrupted in the eighth when both benches emptied after Cleveland's Brett Butler collided with shortstop Buddy Biancalana while unsuccessfully trying to break up a double play.

No one was ejected in the eighth-inning skirmish, although Indians Manager Pat Corrales was tossed out in the second after disputing a call.

Bud Black, 2-1, took a 3-0 lead into the ninth but left after giving up one-out singles to Andre Thornton and Brook Jacoby. Reliever Dan Quisenberry allowed an RBI double to pinch-hitter Mel Hall and a run-scoring groundout by pinch-hitter George Vukovich before getting his third save.

George Brett and Willie Wilson had three hits apiece for the Royals.

Cleveland's Pat Tabler went 0-for-4, ending the longest hitting streak in the major leagues this season at 15 games.

USFL splits over fall season move

Bandits' Bassett to form new league

TEANECK, N.J. (AP) — The United States Football League, struggling through a season of declining attendance and television ratings, has reaffirmed its decision to switch from a spring to a fall schedule next season.

But when it does, it may have to compete for players and fans not only with the National Football League but with a new international spring league that John Bassett, one of the USFL founders, proposes to begin next year.

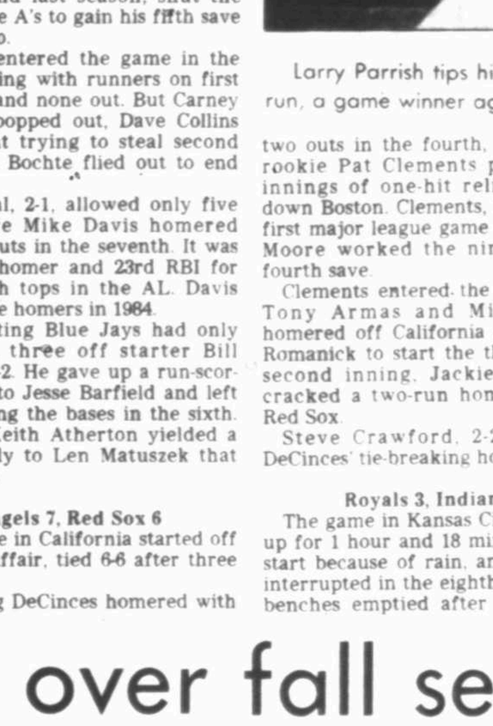

"I'm not going to sit back and take orders from a lot of guys who don't know how to run a business. I think the chances of the USFL succeeding in the fall are very slim," Bassett said Monday after announcing he is withdrawing his Tampa Bay Bandits from the league at the end of this season and forming his own multi-sport (golf, tennis, indoor soccer and football) league.

Still, Bassett and Doug Spedding of the Denver Gold were the only dissenters as the USFL reaffirmed its decision of last August to switch to the fall in 1986 despite the lack of a network television contract. Spedding, however, said he is still pondering whether to join Bassett in his new venture or remain in the USFL.

THE USFL owners also voted to continue its support of the Los Angeles Express, which has been without an owner all season and is being supported by the other 13 teams in the league.

But they temporarily absolved the Birmingham Stallions from their $415,000 support payment for the Express because the Stallions themselves are just barely afloat, subsisting week-to-week on a $1 million loan from the city of Birmingham. The Stallions' share comes due Feb. 1, 1986.

USFL Commissioner Harry Usher acknowledged that the prospect of a network contract for the switch to fall is highly unlikely, although the current $20 million a year ESPN cable contract will be transferred to the fall. But Usher said the league would be on non-cable television in 1986 in a contract that would result in "a very substantial revenue" for the league.

Gamblers' Jerry Argovitz
...backs USFL's fall move

Neither Usher nor any of the owners would be specific about the nature of the contract. But Usher has said that it would be "syndication in the broadest sense," and several sources said at least one facet might be the selling to local outlets of their teams' away games.

The owners also reiterated that the USFL would have teams in Los Angeles and Chicago next season. The Los Angeles Express, with a roster full of high-priced talent, is currently drawing just over 10,000 fans a game to the 92,000-seat Coliseum, and the Chicago franchise is dormant this season after being purchased for fall play last year by Eddie Einhorn, owner of baseball's White Sox.

BASSETT WAS about as unspecific about his new venture as Usher was about the television contract, although he said he had had "10 or 11" teams signed up for his new league. Spedding, in fact, provided more details, saying that Bassett envisioned a league of 20 to 25 teams in most of the nation's major markets "and probably Mexico City."

Ironically, Tampa Bay has been one of the USFL's most successful franchises, both on the field and off. It has even held its own this year as the league attendance dropped by 6 percent over the first nine weeks and television ratings dropped below last year's mark of 5.5 with the warm weather — traditionally the time of lowest ratings — still to come.

Tampa Bay's 32-14 record over 2½ seasons is the second best in the history of the USFL, and it has consistently been one of the best draws. This weekend, for example, the Bandits attracted 41,226 fans for its game with the Baltimore Stars, while games in Los Angeles, Denver, San Antonio and Oakland were drawing 7,188, 8,207, 9,723 and 12,972, respectively.

Usher said in announcing the split that the league had title to everything concerning the Bandits — its name, its players, "even its logo." But Bassett, asked if he would take his players into his new league, replied:

"The last time I looked, I signed their paychecks."

Bassett also has sent a letter to NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle saying that he retains rights to 14 players who were expected to be taken high in today's draft. They could presumably be signed for his new league, rather than for the Bandits.

Midlander revamps LCC records

From Staff Reports

Randy Velarde became the second player in NAIA and NCAA history to go over 1,000 at bats in a career over the weekend in leading Lubbock Christian College to three wins in four games against Hardin-Simmons University. Jim Thomas, Wichita State, set the record with 1,062 at bats from 1979-1982.

The two-time All-America from Midland Lee will leave an indelible imprint in the LCC record book when he completes four years of eligibility at the season's end.

In going six-for-13 against HSU with one-game winning hit, Velarde, a pitcher/shortstop in high school, increased his record career-hit total at LCC to 357 and there are still the district tournament in Dallas next week and, perhaps, the regional tournament, at Lubbock, the following week to go.

Velarde has moved into second place in LCC records in triples, 24; doubles, 64, singles, 232; and in games played, with 288.

Velarde missed five games as a freshman and one as a junior, the latter as a result of eight stitches in his throwing hand.

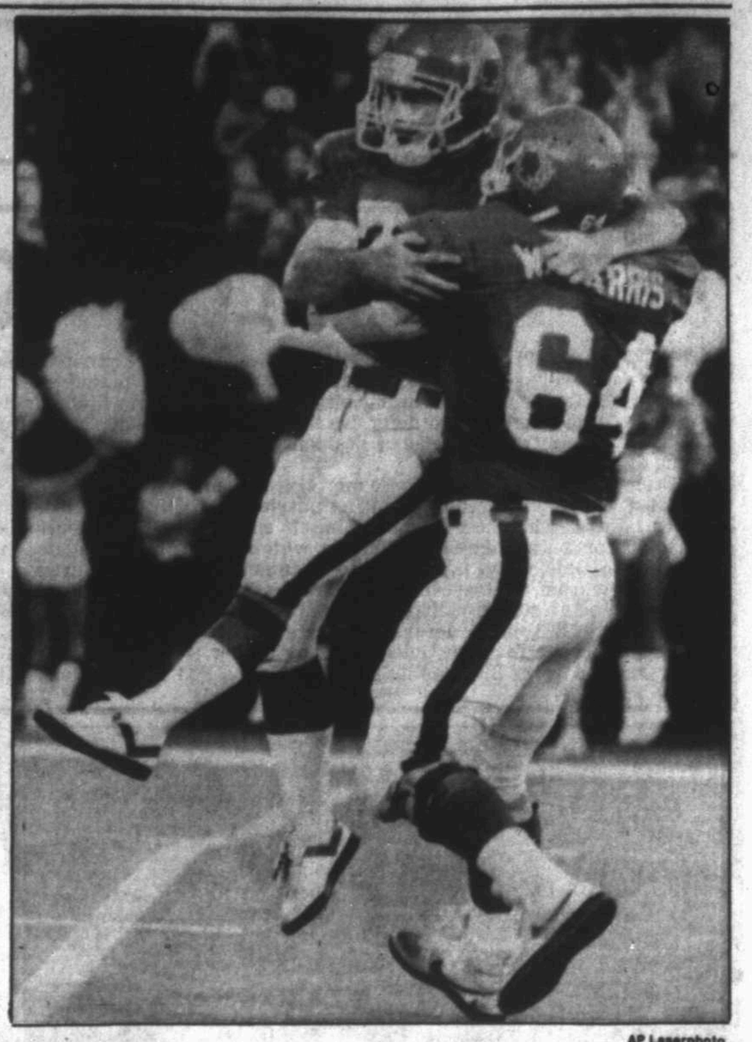

His 10 triples this season is an LCC record for a single season.

This spring Velarde is hitting .354 with 11 homers and 50 rbi.

Velarde had hoped to set another record by being named All-America at three different positions, after making it two years ago at short and last year at second. Until injuries forced him to return to short, he had been playing center field. However, the son of Midland Angels' groundskeeper Lee Velarde can take consolation in the fact that he has 110 stolen bases and 29 game-winning hits rank third in LCC annals. His 37 homers is "only" eighth.

During his four seasons, LCC has won 206 and lost 88 for a .701 winning percentage. It has also won an NAIA championship.

Going into district tournament play, the Christians are 34-27 for the season and ranked 14th nationally.

Gators shell Angels, 11-8

From Staff Reports

BEAUMONT — The Beaumont Gators took over first place in the Texas League West Division here Monday night with an 11-8 victory over the Midland Angels.

The contest was the first of a five game series between the two clubs and Midland is now four games out of first place after dropping its fourth decision in six games on the current road trip. Midland is now 8-13 for the year, five games under the .500 mark.

The Gators wasted little time in putting this contest in the hip pocket, scoring seven runs in the first three innings off Angel starter Don Timberlake.

Timberlake gave up nine hits and six earned runs before being pulled for Fred Wilburn in the third when he couldn't get anyone out in the inning.

Wilburn pitched well until the sixth when Beaumont scored three times for a 10-3 lead and that proved to be enough.

In all, the Gators shelled Angel pitching for 18 hits, including six doubles. Shane Mack and Joe Tutt led the Beaumont attack with each driving in three runs. Devon White had a three hit night for the Angels and Dan Murphy had two hits.

Beaumont starter Candy Sierra got the victory, but it was tainted at best since he gave up seven runs in six innings of work. The Angels scored five times in the seventh with four of them being charged to Sierra.

The two teams meet again tonight as the series resumes.

Montreal's U.L. Washington disappears in a cloud of dust as Philadelphia catcher Ozzie Virgil forces him out at home, saving a run in a game which the Phillies later won in the 10th inning, 3-2.

Phillies trim Expos, 3-2

NL Roundup

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Kent Tekulve has pitched in four games for the Philadelphia Phillies since being acquired from Pittsburgh on April 20. He has yet to allow a run, but he still doesn't feel as though he's in top form.

The string-bean right-hander hurled 2⅔ scoreless innings against the Montreal Expos Monday night, and allowed only one hit as the Phillies nipped the Expos 3-2 in 10 innings.

It was the third straight victory for the Phillies, while Montreal had its six-game winning streak snapped.

The game was the only one in the National League on Monday.

"I'm pretty close to where I want to be," said Tekulve after the game. "I just need to have a little more time to get my fastball where I want it."

Tekulve, 1-0, a sinkerball pitcher, entered the game in the top of the eighth with runners on second and third and one out. After an intentional walk to Hubie Brooks, he got Tim Wallach to ground into a force play at home, then retired Herm Winningham on a grounder to first.

Tekulve was only fairly pleased with his location.

"I kept the ball down in the eighth and 10th innings, but not too good in the ninth," he said. The result was a pair of fly-ball outs in the ninth.

The Phillies scored the winning run off reliever Bert Roberge, 0-1. Pinch-hitter Darren Daulton opened the 10th with a walk, was sacrificed to second by Luis Aguayo and moved to third after Tim Corcoran's long fly to right.

Juan Samuel then hit a hard grounder to deep short. Brooks knocked it down but could not make a play, and Daulton crossed with the game winner.

Montreal Manager Buck Rodgers took the loss philosophically.

"That's a base hit no matter where the shortstop is playing," he said. "He hit the ball in the right spot."

Rodgers also had words of praise for Tekulve.

"He gave them a helluva 2 2-3 innings," Rodgers said.

The Phillies took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Samuel walked, stole second, went to third on Jeff Stone's grounder and scored on a single to left by Von Hayes.

Montreal came back with two in the second off starter John Denny. Brooks and Wallach singled, and Winningham's single scored Brooks and sent Wallach to third. Winningham was out trying to stretch his hit into a double.

After Mike Fitzgerald was walked intentionally, Wallach and Fitzgerald engineered a double steal. Phillies' catcher Ozzie Virgil tried to throw out Fitzgerald, and Wallach beat the return throw home to put the Expos ahead 2-1.

The Phillies tied the score in the seventh off Bryn Smith when Mike Schmidt hit his second home run of the season. It was Schmidt's 427th career homer, moving him past Billy Williams for 18th place on the all-time list. Carl Yastrzemski is in 17th place with 452.

Denny left the game after slightly spraining his left ankle while sliding into second in the bottom of the sixth. He is not expected to miss his next pitching turn on Saturday.

Walker rushes for 157 yards

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Herschel Walker continued his assault on his own United States Football League rushing record, rambling for 157 yards and one touchdown as the New Jersey Generals defeated the Orlando Renegades 24-7 Monday night.

The victory was the Generals' fourth straight. It raised their record to 7-3 and moved them into a first-place tie in the Eastern Conference with Birmingham and Tampa Ba-

.. also was the second victory of the day for Generals owner Donald Trump. Earlier, the maverick fanancier helped convince league owners to continue with their plans to switch from spring to a fall football schedule.

Walker scored on a two-yard touchdown run, fullback Maurice Carthon added a three-yard TD score, quarterback Doug Flutie found tight end Sam Bowers on a four-yard TD pass and Roger Ruzek added a 20-yard field goal to account for New Jersey's scoring.

Walker now has rushed for 1,-163 yards this season, gaining 100 yards or more in four straight games.

New Jersey is 6-1 this season in games that Walker has gained at least 100 yards, and 16-3 during his career.

The Generals scored the first time they had the ball, moving 71 yards in nine plays before settling for Ruzek's field goal. Walker keyed the drive rushing for 61 yards the first three times he carried the ball.

A club-record 59-yard interception return by Donnell Daniel set up Flutie's scoring pass at 4:18 of the second quarter. The nimble Flutie hit 7 of 17 passes for 109 yards and rushed eight times for 67 yards.

Walker, whose fumble killed a Generals drive deep in Orlando territory late in the first half, made the score 17-0 at 4:44 of the third quarter, going two yards up the middle to cap a seven-play, 64-yard drive.

Carthon added his touchdown run with about five minutes left in the third quarter to increase the New Jersey lead to 24-0.

An 18-yard scoring pass from reserve quarterback Jerry Golsteyn to Joey Walters early in the fourth quarter for Orlando, 2-8. A 61-yard interception return by cornerback Jeff George set up the touchdown.

Twins, Hatcher both hot

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Who's hotter: the Minnesota Twins or Mickey Hatcher?

"I think we both are (hot)," said Hatcher, whose nine straight hits over the weekend helped the Twins extend their winning streak to eight games.

Hatcher was practically engulfed in flames Saturday, when his 5-for-5 performance fueled the Twins' 8-6 victory over the Oakland A's.

Sunday, the 30-year-old left fielder was merely smoking, capping the Twins' four-game series sweep with a 4-for-5 performance. He was not retired until his last at-bat, and his nine straight hits fell three short of the major league record of 12, shared by Walt Dropo and Pinky Higgins.

"It was unbelievable," said Twins pitcher Mike Smithson, who has been the recipient of 10-run outbursts in his last two starts. "Two nights ago he was hitting .250. Now he's hitting .329."

Two good performances in a row have given Smithson's numbers a rapid boost, too. He followed Wednesday's 10-0 four-hitter with Sunday's 10-1 seven-hitter to raise his record to 3-2 and lower his earned run average to 2.72.

"Smithson is in a streak," A's Manager Jackie Moore said. "Like Hatcher and all the Twins."

Just a little over a week ago, the Twins were streaking in the other direction. They had lost nine straight, averaging only three runs per game. In their eight-game winning surge, they have averaged seven runs per game.

"Once we started getting the two-out base hits," Twins Manager Billy Gardner said, "we turned this thing around."

What Hatcher calls his "two-game lucky streak" has helped him continue his remarkable career turnaround. A little more than two years ago, the Twins tried to trade the injury prone, position-less player, but found no takers.

"I was losing it," he said. "I was ready for the Twins to release me. Nobody wanted me because I was damaged goods."

Dale Berra hurt by father's firing

By DAVE ANDERSON
New York Times News Service

ARLINGTON, Tex. — In the Yankee clubhouse at Comiskey Park late Sunday afternoon, Dale Berra was drying himself as he strolled out of the shower room. Moments later, his serenity was shattered when he saw Don Baylor suddenly and angrily spill a trash can all over the floor.

"What's that all about?" Dale Berra said.

"They just fired your dad," Don Mattingly said.

Instead of going to his locker, Dale hurried to the manager's office where Yogi Berra was sitting with Clyde King, the Yankees' general manager. Minutes earlier, King had informed Yogi that George Steinbrenner had decided to reinstate Billy Martin as the manager.

"He's the boss," Yogi had said of the principal owner, shrugging his shoulders. "He can do whatever he wants."

Now, sitting behind the desk in the little office, Yogi looked up to see the youngest of his three sons. Yogi knew he was no longer the Yankee manager, but he knew he was still the father of the 28-year-old third baseman standing in the office. As the two hugged, Dale began to weep. But his father didn't have time for tears. His father was too busy being his father.

"Don't you worry about me," Yogi said, "I've done everything in baseball there is to do. So don't worry, I'll be all right."

Dale was sitting in a chair in the office now, a son listening to his father more than a ballplayer listening to his manager.

"But you're still young, you have a future," Yogi told him. "Billy's a good man, play hard for him. I'll be watching you."

Dale hugged his father, returned to his locker to get dressed, then boarded one of the two buses that took the Yankees to O'Hare Field for their flight here for a three-game series with the Texas Rangers with Billy Martin in the dugout. Yogi, meanwhile, wanted to take a cab to O'Hare for his lonely flight to Newark Airport near his New Jersey home, but King persuaded him to ride one of the Yankee buses to the airport, the bus, as it happened, that Dale was not on. When the Yankees' ex-manager stood to get off at his terminal, he waved to the players on that bus.

"And when Yogi waved, the players applauded him," a passenger on that bus recalled. "They yelled, 'Good luck, Yog' and 'See ya, Yog,' and he waved back, then he walked into the terminal by himself carrying a little bag."

"It was great while it lasted," Dale said. "It was a great situation for me. I never wanted to play more, I never had so much fun. And I know one thing — this team is gonna win. And it would've won even if he was here. No doubt we would've won for him."

With the Yankees in last place in the American League East with a 6-10 record, Steinbrenner ignored his promise that Yogi would remain as manager throughout the season, no matter what.

"My dad's team got off to a bad start last year too," Dale said, "but my dad never gave up on the players. He was very proud of how they came on to finish third last year. As soon as I got home from Pittsburgh last year, I sensed how proud he was of the players. They could've quit last year because it was futile, in terms of catching Detroit, but my dad is the reason that they did what they did. And because of that, he was very excited about this season."

But for Yogi, the season is over only 16 games after it began.

"I never even dreamt about my dad being fired," Dale said. "And he hadn't said anything about it to me. But that's the way he is, just like he told me to play hard for Billy now. As a kid, I knew Billy. And he knew me as a baby. Now he's my manager."

On the Yankees now, Martin is everybody's manager. And before putting on his No. 1 uniform Monday, he talked to Yogi.

"Yogi felt that some guys were still going through spring training because of injuries," Martin said, alluding to Rickey Henderson, Dave Winfield and Mattingly. "He just wished me luck. We've been friends a long time. Changing jobs won't change that."

"George and I didn't get Yogi fired," Martin was saying in the manager's office off the Yankee clubhouse at Arlington Stadium. "The players did by not winning."

Leaning against a nearby wall was Eddie Sapir, the New Orleans judge who is Martin's agent. Sapir objected to mention here that Martin had not been contacted during the recent off-season by any of the 10 teams who needed a new manager.

"We let it be known I wasn't available," Martin said. "Nine of the 10 teams couldn't afford me, anyway."

When asked how many teams had contacted Martin regarding a managerial offer during the off-season, Sapir replied, "Several teams." But when asked to identify them, neither Martin nor Sapir would do so.

"At first I thought it was good for me, having all that time off," Martin said, "but then I found I had too much time on my hands. We asked for more duties. George and I have developed one great friendship. We have one goal — to do what's best for the Yankees."

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — "TNT" is Tony Tubbs' nickname, but after refusing to hype his challenge to Greg Page's World Boxing Association heavyweight title with the traditional vigor, some wondered whether Tubbs was more ladyfinger than cherry bomb.

There was no Monday night explosion, but Tubbs, the self-proclaimed "boxer-thinker," won a 15-round unanimous decision over Page with a well-conceived, if unexciting strategy.

The belt that signifies a champion was stolen from Page's hotel room Sunday night, but Tubbs took it in the ring as he out-thought and then out-fought Page.

The Cincinnati native, unbeaten now in 22 professional fights, did benefit from a lackadaisical effort by Page, who lost in his first title defense, and for the third time in his last four fights.

TUBBS' STRATEGY seemed to fly in the face of the boxing axiom that says a challenger must take the fight to the champion. He was content to let Page come at him. When Page did, which was all too infrequently, Tubbs countered, consistently landing the crisper punches.

"Also, the champ has got to fight," said Tubbs, responding to criticism of the waiting game he played. "He was dancing, throwing shots, but not landing no blows. And every time he came in, I landed the cleaner shots."

The strategy might have had its origins when Tubbs came to town and checked out Page, who entered the ring weighing a not-so-trim 239½ pounds.

"The fans were telling me Greg wasn't training," said Tubbs. "He was playing basketball."

Page had been predicting a knockout in four rounds, and perhaps that's how much he trained. Tubbs said all along he was training to go the distance.

"Going in, I knew I had never been 15 rounds before," he said. "Basically, I wanted to keep my hands up and control."

With the exception of a few of the very early and very late rounds, that's exactly what Tubbs did.

Control was also the key Monday for another heavyweight, "Terrible" Tim Witherspoon, who also took advantage of his opponent's less-than-peak condition.

Page may have been overweight, but James "Broadax" Broad, defending his North American Boxing Federation heavyweight title against Witherspoon, invited puns on his name when he entered the ring weighing 261 pounds.

"I told everybody I'd jump out of the ring if he started on his way down, because he'd make a big hole in the ring and bring everybody down with him," said Witherspoon.

Witherspoon didn't need to jump, however, when he first wobbled Broad with a right to the head midway through the second round and then finished up the job with a barrage that ended with Broad folding lawn chair-like onto the canvas.

"I like the disadvantage of fighting a guy heavier than me," said Witherspoon, now 19-2. "It gave me something to work for. When he tipped the scales at 261, I knew he'd be slow."

ALTHOUGH HE too controlled his bout, Hector "Macho" Camacho, who won the North American Boxing Federation lightweight title in another fight on the nine-bout card, wasn't as impressive as his 26-0 (16 knockouts) record indicated.

His opponent, Mexican champion Roque Montoya, earned points from ringside observers just for withstanding a steady 12-round assault by the "Macho Man" from Spanish Harlem. But some also wondered whether Camacho, already signed to fight for the WBC lightweight title June 6 against Jose Lius Rimirez, was too cautious.

"I'm not ashamed I didn't knock him out," said Camacho. "There's nothing to be embarrassed about. I'm not mad and I'm not glad."

Camacho did drop Montoya to the canvas twice in the eighth round with jolting right hands.

"I felt I could take him out at the time, but as the round went by, he got a little more compiicated and a little more wiser," said Camacho. "He was good. Maybe he will not have a fight as good as today. Then again, maybe it was school for him."

Tyler waits on 49ers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Running back Wendell Tyler of the Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers is waiting for a counter-offer from the 49ers before signing a $3 million, 3-year deal with the United States Football League's Tampa Bay Bandits, his agent said.

Refuting statements by Bandits' owner John Bassett, Tyler's agent, Harold Daniels, said Monday no contract has been signed, and none would be until after a meeting with the 49ers later this week or next week.

Bassett said Sunday, and repeated Monday, that he had signed Tyler to a contract that would begin when Tyler's contract with the 49ers expires at the end of the 1985 season.

"I have the contract right in front of me, and we haven't signed it," Daniels said in a telephone interview from his office in Los Angeles. "We'll be meeting with the 49ers later this week and see what they have to offer."

Daniels said the contract calls for Tyler to be guaranteed $1 million a year for three years, including $500,000 up front when he signs. Incentive clauses in the contract could boost Tyler's income another $200,000 a year, Daniels said.

John McVay, the 49ers' general manager, said "we don't don't take the Tyler thing seriously."

Fergie Jenkins tosses hat in political arena

WINDSOR, Ontario (AP) — Ferguson Jenkins won 20 or more games for six straight seasons during his 22-year pro baseball career, but now the former Cy Young Award winner is making a more important pitch — he's running for political office in his native Ontario.

"Baseball has basically faded," Jenkins, 41, said recently. "It was a job, like this is a job. I've always done everything to be a winner. I'm comfortable here, and I'm optimistic."

Jenkins is running as a Liberal Party candidate against two opponents in the May 2 election for the Ontario provincial assembly seat from Windsor-Riverside, located just across the river from Detroit.

Jenkins knows it is a difficult battle.

"When you do anything, you never expect it to be easy — that's always been the story of my life," he said.

The Liberal Party hasn't won an Ontario provincial election in 42 years, but Jenkins hopes that his name, if nothing else, will carry him to victory.

He spent 18 of his 22 seasons in the major leagues, compiling 284 career victories in stints with the Philadelphia Phillies, Chicago Cubs, Texas Rangers and Boston Red Sox before returning to finish his career with the Cubs.

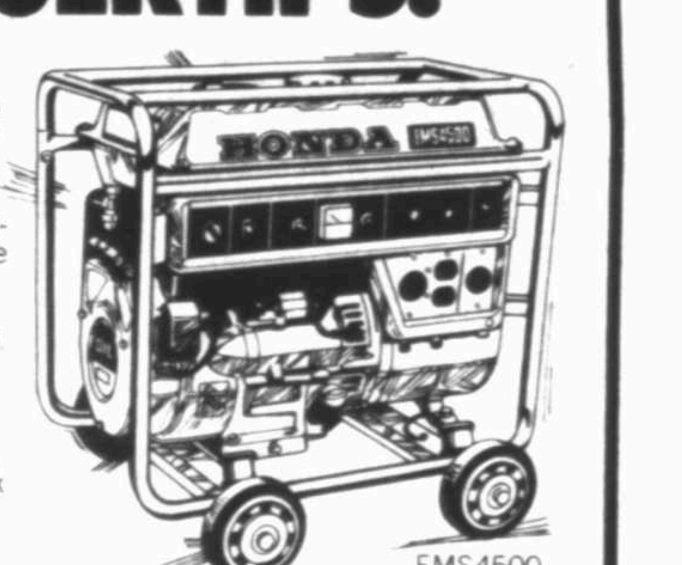

He won 20 or more games with the Cubs from 1967-72, including a 24-13 mark in 1971 when he was named the National League's Cy Young winner. His strikeout total of 273 in 1969 also led the league.

"It's nice to have people recognize me, and yes, it's definitely an advantage," he said. "I'll introduce myself as Fergie Jenkins, the candidate in Windsor-Riverside, and most people smile and shake my hand and give me a good response."

PUBLIC NOTICE

AT&T Communications of the Southwest, Inc. ("AT&T Communications"), in accordance with the Public Utility Regulatory Act and the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("PUC") hereby gives notice of its intent to implement a new schedule of rates for its services. The new rates will be effective May 14, 1985, unless otherwise determined by the PUC. All customers and classes of customers would be affected by the proposed rates.

AT&T Communications has filed a reprice of its tariffs designed to more closely recover access and other costs for WATS and 800 Service and all private line services including Channel Services, Foreign Exchange (FX), DATAPHONE* Digital Service, and OCC Facilities.

Also proposed is the institution of a charge for Directory Assistance to begin to recover access costs incurred for such service and increases in rates for operator assisted AT&T Long Distance calls. The initial minute charge for all AT&T Long Distance calls and additional minute rates for AT&T Long Distance calls 51 miles or less are proposed for increases to reflect the access charges approved by the PUC for such calls.

The proposed new rates for all services would result in an increase in adjusted test period revenues of $139 million or 12.7 percent.

A complete copy of the proposed tariffs are on file with the Texas Public Utility Commission.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene or participate or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information also may be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227 or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

Main economic indicator declines in March

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's main economic forecasting gauge decreased 0.2 percent in March, reversing a two-month gain and hinting of lagging business activity later in the year.

Moreover, the report issued today by the Commerce Department revised downward the gains posted by the index of leading indicators for the past two months — dropping the February increase from 0.7 percent to 0.5 percent and the January gain from 1.5 percent to 1.3 percent.

The index has not risen for three consecutive months since last May.

Most analysts had been expecting at least some gain in the March index as a signal that the economy was ready to pick up steam after a first quarter in which growth, as measured by the gross national product, was only 1.3 percent.

The Reagan administration has based its budget assumptions on projections of 4 percent growth for the year.

Although many private economists view that as a bit optimistic, the majority of them have been predicting an annual growth rate of well over 3 percent for the year.

In another report today, the Commerce Department said the United States suffered an $11 billion foreign trade deficit last month, only a slight improvement from the $11.4 billion deficit run up in February.

In March, imports rose 0.7 percent despite sharp drops in shipments of petroleum and cars to the United States. Exports were up 3.3 percent, reflecting a big increase in aircraft sales.

The trade deficit, which ran a record $123.3 billion last year, is being blamed in large part of lagging economic growth in the United States, particularly in the manufacturing sector.

Today's disappointing figures in the leading indicator index, a report designed to give insight into the likely shape of the economy six to nine months into the future, could cause further reassessment of those predictions.

On the other hand, the negative figure could revive hope among investors that the Federal Reserve Board might be inclined to loosen credit, lowering interest rates, to give the economy a shot in the arm.

The stock market, generally anticipating at least a modest gain in the economic indicator report, suffered its biggest decline of the year on Monday, partly because of concern that the Treasury's quarterly refinancing plan to be outlined later today will call for a big wave of new borrowing.

Heavy government borrowing, coupled with no action to loosen credit, would put upward pressure on interest rates and further stymie business activity.

Seven of the 10 indicators in today's report were down.

Only the average workweek, building permits and average initial claims for unemployment insurance increased.

The department said the most negative influence on the March index came, in order, from net business formation, contracts and orders for plant and equipment, manufacturers' new orders for consumer goods and materials, vendor performance, change in sensitive materials prices, stock prices and money supply.

The changes left the index at 167.1 percent of its 1967 base compared to 167.5 in February.

The report comes on the heels of generally mixed signals about economic outlook.

New and used home sales were up sharply in March and auto sales have taken off in April. Yet orders for non-defense durable goods were down significantly last month and retail sales plunged drastically.

March's inflation report, showing the sharpest monthly price gain in more than a year, contributed to a general uneasiness about the prospect of continued strong growth and low inflation.

However, analysts cautioned that the March consumer price index was heavily influenced by what is expected to be a one-time sharp jump in gasoline prices. They said the underlying fabric of that report gave no clue of an overheating economy.

Broker gets 35 years in oversees oil swindle

HOUSTON (AP) — A commodities broker faces a 35-year prison sentence for arranging the sinking of an oil tanker off the Senegalese coast as part of a multimillion dollar oil fraud scheme.

Frederick Soudan, 41, of Houston apologized Monday after U.S. District Judge Carl Bue read the prison sentence.

"I got involved in something beyond my comprehension," he said. "I should have known better. I made a mistake ... and I'm very sorry."

Soudan will be eligible for parole after 10 years.

Bue also told Soudan he should try to repay the $4.25 million prosecutors claim he made in a $56 million oil swindle.

Soudan was convicted on March 26 of 17 counts of wire fraud, perjury, interstate transportation of stolen property, conspiracy to defraud the United States and conspiracy to obstruct justice.

He had faced up to 86 years in prison and an $88,000 fine.

Prosecutors contended Soudan stole 200,000 tons of crude from its Italian owner and ordered it delivered to South Africa on the supertanker Salem.

According to the 22-count indictment, Soudan and four other men arranged for the tanker to be sunk off the coast of Senegal on Jan. 17, 1980, to cover up the theft.

Government prosecutors said Soudan made $4.25 million from the scheme, which they claimed was part of a conspiracy to steal 1.4 million barrels of oil from European firms and secretly deliver the crude to South Africa.

South Africa was eager to buy oil because the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries refused to sell to the nation because of its racist policies.

Soudan's lawyers argued during the 11-week federal trial that their client was an innocent oil broker who was duped in the deal by a "Greek mafia."

Prosecutors said Soudan's largest assets are two bank accounts in the Bahamas and Switzerland, totalling about $300,000. The money will be divided among Shell International Trading Co., which owned the oil, and Lloyd's of London, which insured the sunken vessel, prosecutors said.

Bue decided against levying a fine, saying it was more important that Soudan try to make restitution.

The judge also told Soudan he should try to sell some of his belongings to repay the money.

Soudan's brother-in-law, Abdul Wahab Al Ghazou, 48, of Syria, also was sentenced Monday to five years in prison.

Courts split on Pickens' role in Unocal buyback

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Texas oilman T. Boone Pickens Jr. appears to have won another round in his takeover battle with Unocal Corp. as two courts split on whether Unocal must permit Pickens to profit from a lucrative stock buyback offer.

The two rulings were handed down within hours of each other Monday in Delaware and California.

In Wilmington, Del., Chancery Court Vice Chancellor Carolyn Berger said that, based on Delaware law, Unocal can't proceed with its buyback unless Pickens is included. Los Angeles-based Unocal, parent of Union Oil Co. of California, is incorporated in Delaware.

But in Los Angeles, U.S. District Judge A. Wallace Tashima ruled that Unocal's decision to exclude the Pickens group, Mesa Partners II, from its stock repurchase doesn't violate federal securities law.

Mesa Partners had filed actions in both courts challenging the exclusion.

Unocal spokesman Barry Lane said the company had no immediate comment on the rulings. Unocal lawyers were studying the decisions as the company decided its next move.

If Pickens is allowed to participate in the buyback, it would put Unocal in the awkward position of helping to finance a group that is trying to take it over by giving it a windfall profit of an estimated $178 million.

Under terms of Unocal's offer, it can cancel the entire buyback if it is challenged in court, although Unocal Chairman Fred Hartley last week indicated he might not do that.

Unocal could reap the wrath of other shareholders if it cancels the offer.

In Amarillo, Texas, David Batchelder, a vice president of Mesa Petroleum Co. of which Pickens is chairman, said he welcomed the Delaware decision.

He noted that the federal judge's ruling, while denying Mesa's request, doesn't directly affect the Delaware order, which was based on state law.

As part of its defensive moves to fend off a Pickens takeover, Unocal, the nation's 13th largest oil concern, had proposed repurchasing 50 million of its shares at a premium price of $72 each in high-quality securities.

Purpose of the buyback was twofold.

It would lure shareholders away from tendering their stock to a competing offer by Pickens for $54 per share in cash for 64 million shares. It also would saddle Unocal with $3.46 billion in new debt, making it a less attractive takeover target.

The Pickens group's offer would raise its stake in Unocal to 50.1 percent from 13.6 percent.

Unocal contended in court that exclusion of Mesa was a permissible legal maneuver.

Courts have held in the past that it is legal for companies to pay such premiums to buy back the stock of individual shareholders or groups of shareholders who are threatening a takeover.

Unocal argued in Delaware court that it was simply doing the reverse — offering the benefits of premium stock prices to everyone except the corporate raiders.

However, the Delaware judge concluded that "legally or equitably impermissible conduct cannot be justified by the fact that it was motivated by a proper purpose."

Capitalist revolution taking place in India

By BRAHMA CHELANEY

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A quiet, capitalist revolution has been taking place in Indian economic policy since Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi assumed power more than five months ago.

The emphasis in the Gandhi economic strategy is on less state regulations, a greater role for the Indian private sector and the lifting of curbs on high technology imports.

The aim of Gandhi and his market-oriented economic advisers is to rapidly develop this country of 750 million people, 51 percent of whom live below the poverty line.

"The new policy is clear: The government should no longer be the power above the people, to be lobbied, petitioned and propitiated for favors," said Nani A. Palkhivala, fiscal expert and former ambassador to the United States.

The Gandhi approach is viewed with concern by public sector-oriented economists who believe the prime minister is dismantling the socialist policies of his predecessors — his mother, Indira Gandhi, and grandfather, Jawaharlal Nehru, who governed India for all but five of the 37 years since independence.

"The new economic policy that is emerging will promote inequities and break the tradition of self-reliance which has helped us to build a powerful technological base," said economist Raj Krishna.

Gandhi has said his government will follow a liberal economic policy to accelerate Indian modernization with the help of private capital and sophisticated foreign technology.

Some of Gandhi's recent moves, especially the slashing of corporate and wealth taxes and cutting government regulations, have prompted commentators to compare his initiatives to those of President Reagan. Like Reaganomics, the Gandhi approach is based on investment and productivity.

Economic liberalization already has encouraged many Western and Japanese companies to reconsider business opportunities in India.

The U.S. soft drink giant, Pepsico, recently signed a joint-venture pact to invest $125 million in the local manufacture of its famous beverages. And IBM and Coca-Cola are said to be interested in returning after a seven-year lapse.

Sony, Hitachi and other big Japanese companies are eager to set up manufacturing facilities in India, Commerce Ministry officials say.

Gandhi's government, which will invest $25 billion over the next five years in the electronics industry, has removed controls on imports of electronic and computer technology and invited foreign electronic firms to set up factories.

According to the prime minister, if India is to progress, "to keep up with the world," it needs to rapidly modernize its electronics industry. "Electronics is really like the nervous system of a nation," he said.

Gandhi, considered a computer buff, said India "missed one bus" when it failed to join the 19th century industrial revolution, and "didn't jump on the second bus on time" during the post-World War II electronics revolution.

Indians now "have to run behind the bus and catch up to it," he said. "I think we are capable of doing this."

As a start, Gandhi used the budget for the new fiscal year, which begins with April, to make policy decisions and changes that have been widely welcomed by market-oriented economists as a "new deal" for the Indian economy.

Among other things, the budget exempted companies in several key sectors from licensing requirements, cut taxes for businesses and wealthy Indians, ordered a fivefold increase in the assets ceiling of giant companies, made income tax concessions to the growing middle class, and slashed customs duties.

The budget recommended no fresh investments in the troubled public sector without "better utilization of existing capacity and higher return on past investments."

Public-sector profits are meager, although state-owned companies account for more than 50 percent of India's total capital investment. Gandhi said a major task is the restructuring of unprofitable government industries.

Palkhivala, who is considered a business spokesman, said: "The federal budget this year represents a silent and unheralded revolution in economic policy and fiscal thinking. The monumental task of redesigning India has begun."

Leftist scholars have denounced the budget and the new policies, saying they offered little to the common Indian and opened the "floodgates" of foreign investment. Gandhi "has truthfully budgeted for the ruling class in total rejection of the approach of Mrs. Gandhi," economist J.D. Sethi said.

Palkhivala countered, "Much of the criticism has been heavy on rhetoric and light on analysis, long on emotion and short of reason."

IRAs, Keoghs insured seperately from others

By BILL DOYLE

Q. Besides a money market deposit account, an interest-paying checking account and certificates of deposit adding up to approximately $70,000, my wife and I both have individual retirement accounts and our self-employed Keogh plans in CDs at the same bank. The IRAs and Keogh plans now total $64,000.

The bank is a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., on which coverage is limited to $100,000. All together, we have about $134,000 in that bank. In the event of the bank's failure, would we lose $34,000?

Doyle

A. No. "IRA and Keogh funds are held by the bank in a trust or custodial capacity and are insured separately from other deposits that the depositor maintains in the same bank." That quote comes from "Your Insured Deposit," a handy little booklet published by FDIC explaining the details of that agency's coverage. Similar booklets are put out by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. and the National Credit Union Administration, which administers the National Credit Union Share Insurance Fund.

Court to hear suits against Permian Bank

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

A U.S. District Court jury of six men selected Monday is to begin hearing six lawsuits Wednesday morning filed by Odessa's Permian Bank & Trust seeking about $7 million from a New York bonding company.

Permian Bank alleges U.S. Fire Insurance Co. has refused to cover bank losses it contends resulted from "dishonest or fraudulent acts" by its own officers, including Max Malone, who was bank president from December 1978 to April 1983.

Permian Bank filed claims with U.S. Fire Insurance Co. to recover its losses after certain loans became uncollectible due to bankruptcies and other reasons for default, according to court records.

The bank claims it purchased Banker's Blanket Bond and Excess Bank Employee Dishonesty Blanket Bond to indemnify the bank against any loss that resulted from dishonest or fraudulent acts by bank employees.

In answering Permian Bank allegations, U.S. Insurance argued that the bonds purchased by the bank "do not cover all fraudulent and dishonest acts" but cover only those acts "committed with the manifest intent" to cause the bank to suffer losses and to obtain "financial benefit" for the covered employee or a third party.

The insurance company further contends "no employee dishonesty is connected with the loan losses and that bonds purchased by Permian Bank "exclude losses resulting from default" due to non-payment of loans and potential losses.

In alleging dishonesty and fraud by Malone, Permian Bank claims he authorized certain letters of credit to bank customers without following bank policy and Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation regulations. Permian Bank alleges certain letters of credit issued by Malone were not approved by the bank's loan committee and, contrary to FDIC requirements, were not recorded in the bank's books.

Permian contends Malone issued letters of credit to J. Phillip Strahan for $88,780, to Steve Howard for $80,000 and to Falcon Tubular Steel for $606,495.50. In each of those cases, the bank is seeking exemplary damages ranging from $270,000 to $1.82 million.

In another instance, Permian Bank loaned Jack Parker Industries Inc. (JPI) $236,993.53 in 1982, but said Parker defaulted on the loan, which became uncollectible. Malone was a member of the loan committee that approved the loan but, contends Permian Bank, Malone should have abstained from voting since he owned an interest in JPI. The bank alleges Malone concealed his interest in JPI.

In another of the six lawsuits, Permian Bank is suing U.S. Fire Insurance for losses it may incur in a suit lodged against it by Union State Bank of Carrizo Springs. Union State, which says it purchased several loan participations from Permian Bank in March 1984, is seeking $2 million in damages from the Odessa bank.

Union State Bank contends Permian Bank had agreed to repurchase the loan participations but did not. Union State also alleges Permian Bank had misrepresented the financial conditions of the borrowers involved in the loan participations. Union State Bank further alleges it was defrauded by Malone and Joe Cardona.

Another Permian Bank suit against U.S. Fire Insurance seeks to recoup its potential loss on a K&M Drilling Co. promissory note made for purchase of a drilling rig. Permian Bank says the rig was destroyed by fire and that K&M collected $250,000 from its insurance company, but K&M president Jack McIntosh allegedly turned the settlement over to Malone and Mike Cowan. The bank alleges Malone and Cowan never turned the settlement over to the bank. The money was allegedly used to purchase a salvage drilling rig, to add equipment and to build two drilling rigs. Money from the sale of those rigs was to "far" exceed the amount of K&M's debt to Permian Bank.

In yet another suit, Permian Bank says $500,000 was loaned to Quicksilver Energy in 1981, but Quicksilver defaulted. Subsequently, the bank alleges, Malone and Quicksilver's president conspired to place a drilling rig, owned by Quicksilver and secured by a Permian Bank note, in auction to raise funds to pay off the note.

In another of the six law suits, the bank says it made $313,000 in loans to Action Aire Inc., which later defaulted. Permian Bank claims Boyd Jumper, a bank vice president and loan officer, had traveled to Switzerland with Action Aire president Al Mercer and his wife, Brenda Mercer.

"Action Aire gave and Jumper accepted that gift in exchange for favorable treatment of Action Aire," alleges Permian Bank, which contends U.S. Fire Insurance is liable for loan losses under bond coverages. The bank says it loan committee would not have approved the loans had it been aware of Jumper's trip. The bank seeks $1 million in exemplary damages in this instance.

Judge changes composition of ECISD panel

FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — U.S. District Judge Harry Lee Hudspeth, in a ruling handed down in El Paso, altered the makeup of the court-ordered Ector County Independent School District tri-ethnic committee but did not accede to suggestions from CRUCIAL, an organization representing Odessa minority interests.

The tri-ethnic committee was implemented by the school district and consisted of six Anglos, three Hispanics and two blacks.

Last December, CRUCIAL (Committee for Redress, Unity, Concern and Integrity at all Levels), an intervenor in the school desegration case, filed an objection to the composition of the school district-formed tri-ethnic committee. CRUCIAL asked the federal court to increase the size of the committee from 11 to 12 and stipulate that four of the members be Anglo, four Hispanic and four black.

Judge Hudspeth did order the size of the trii-ethnic committee increased to 12. But, he ordered the committee be made up of six Anglos, four Hispanics and two blacks.

The composition of the committee will give Anglos and minorities equal representation on the tri-ethnic committee, though neither will have a majority.

While Hudspeth did order the size of the committee increased, he denied the remainder of proposed guidelines included in the Dec. 14, 1984 request submitted by CRUCIAL.

CRUCIAL sought to have Hudspeth specify that "the purposes of the Tri-Ethnic Committee shall be:"

— To advise the Board of Trustees and the central administrative staff of ECISD with respect to the continued implementation of the ECISD desegregation plan.

— To serve as an additional avenue of communication between CRUCIAL and the ECISD Board of Trustees and central administration, with respect to the continued implementation of the ECISD desegregation plan, and — To assist the Board of Trustees and the central administrative staff by promoting community awareness and understanding of the ECISD desegregation plan.

The guidelines as proposed by CRUCIAL called for the minority organization to have an equal voice with the ECISD Board of Trustees in selecting members of the tri-ethnic committee. This too was rejected by Hudspeth in the ruling handed down Monday.

Treatment facility announces board

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

Clearview Behavioral Health Center, a $3.4 million facility jointly under construction by Midland Memorial Hospital and two Arizona firms, announced its board of directors today.

Six area residents are on the board, including Ray Branson, president of MMH; J. Coley Cowden, chairman of Palmer Drug Abuse Program — West Texas; Paul Rae, oil company executive and board member of United Way of Midland; Steve Thompson, an insurance executive and youth rehabilitation volunteer; Dr. Daniel Vestal, pastor of First Baptist Church and Donnette Williams, of Families All Coming Together (FACT), a local support group.

Other board members include board chairman, Luther W. Goerhing, vice president of Samaritan Health Service; vice chairman, Daniel W. Capps, chief executive officer, Camelbak Hospitals; secretary-treasurer, Irene Andre, executive vice president of Camelback and Clarence Teng, executive vice president of Samaritan.

The new facility will provide treatment for three age categories — adults, young adults and adolescents, according to Joe Dominey, a spokesman.

"There will be four areas of abuse treated," he said. "Alcohol dependency, cocaine addiction, prescription drug addiction and 'poly-drug' or alcohol and other drugs."

The CDU is recruiting staff members who will include psychologists, nurses, social workers, occupational therapists and other therapists.

"Clearview hopes to hire a psychiatrist as staff administrator," said Dominey.

The need for a CDU has been expressed by Midland medical leaders.

"There was a significant unmet need in the Permian Basin for treatment of alcohol and drug abuse," said Branson at the facility's November 1984 groundbreaking ceremony.

"Folks needing the service have had to travel great distances to get it," he said.

Dominey, a volunteer for Palmer Drug Abuse Program, agreed.

"Most of our adolescents must go to Houston or Dallas for treatment," he said. "The average stay is about six weeks with stays often lasting longer. It can be very traumatic for them and the family. The family has to go back and forth and the separation alone is traumatic enough."

Injunction cancelled against photo studio

From Staff Reports

A bankruptcy filing in Midland Monday cancelled a hearing on a temporary injunction being sought by the Texas Attorney General's office against a photographic studio and its owners.

Carl Raymond Barnes and Janie Coulter Barnes, also known as Janie Raney, jointly filed a petition with the U.S. District Clerk's office seeking "adjustment of debts of an individual with regular income." The Barneses listed 30 creditors.

70th District Court Judge Gene Ater said the hearing, scheduled for 4 p.m. Monday, was cancelled when he learned of the bankruptcy filing.

The state attorney general filed suit seeking a temporary injunction against alleged deceptive trade practices by the Barneses in the operation of Coulter Studio and Barnes Associates in connection with a coupon book promotion bearing the name of an Odessa radio station.

The attorney general's suit alleged the Barneses failed to deliver photographs for which consumers paid, advertised photographs they had no intention of delivering and misrepresented those photographs.

The state further alleges the Barneses failed to disclose information about their photographic services at the time of transactions and in failing to do so induced customers to enter into transactions they would otherwise not have agreed to.

The new center is a joint venture between Midland Memorial Hospital and two Arizona firms, Samaritan Health Services of Phoenix and Camelback Hospitals of Scottsdale.

MMH will rent the land to Camelback and Samaritan for $1 a year.

Plans for the chemical dependency unit were first discussed in 1980 when a feasibility study was conducted by MMH. Original plans were to add 20 beds for chemically-dependent patients as part of an expansion program. Those plans were changed when the oil boom of 1981 brougnt fears of bed shortages and a 50-bed, $3.4 million project was set for construction at Wadley and Tremont Streets for the chemical dependency unit.

In 1983, the hospital board approved a plan for a 77-bed expansion at a cost of $15 million to MMH. That decision, coupled with competition from other groups also seeking approval of chemical dependency facilities, caused MMH to shelve the plans.

In early 1984, MMH began searching for a joint partner to develop the chemical dependency unit. A conceptual agreement with Camelback and Samaritan was reached in July and finalized Nov. 8, 1984 in Phoenix.

The 36,500-square-foot facility is being constructed on a 10-acre tract donated by the Scharbaurer family near Loop 250 and Thomason Drive.

Included in the plans are an auditorium, four classrooms, exercise rooms and group therapy rooms, whirlpool, locker rooms and conference room.

SMU seeks talented, gifted youths

DALLAS — Academically skilled students who have completed the seventh, eighth or ninth grade by June will be eligible for Southern Methodist University's special program for academically talented and gifted youths this summer if they scored higher on the Scholastic Aptitude Test than average college-bound seniors.

The SMU/Tag program, now in its second year, is modeled on similar programs which originated at The John Hopkins University. Students admitted will enroll in one of four intensive courses for a three-week session, running July 11 to August 1. This years's courses are Writing about Literature, Spanish I, Computer Science and Precalculus Mathematics.

The courses require six hours of attendance on weekdays and three hours on Saturdays, and additionally require a one-hour supervised study hall in the evening.

Applications for admission to the program are due May 15. Acceptance notices will be returned on or before June 3.

Cost of the program for commuting students will be $550; the cost to those residing on campus during the session will be $925. Those fees include the cost of textbooks, recreational activities and all University fees.

Symposium addressess education of Hispanics

From Staff Reports

"The Quest for Excellence in Education of Hispanics" was the theme for a symposium sponsored by the Texas Tech University College of Education recently in Lubbock.

The purpose of the symposium was to bring teams of community leaders together to address this issue with the emphasis being on development of a plan of action that could be implemented once they returned home.

Dr. Richard E. Ishler, dean, presided. Speakers were Dr. Lauro F. Cavazos, president, Texas Tech University; Teresa Palomo Acosta, director of Student Retention Sevices; Dr. W.N. Kirby, commissioner of education; Dr. Norma Cantu, director, Western Region Education Program; Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, Inc.; and Raul Besterio, Jr., superintendent, Brownsville Independent School District. Speakers addressed the issue from their own perspectives. Welcoming the visitors was Alan Henry, mayor of Lubbock and Dr. John R. Darling, vice president, Academic Affairs and Research.

An estimated 171 persons attended the symposium representing 29 different communities throughout Texas. Each community was asked to send a team of three to five persons as representatives. Texas Tech selected Edia Hernandez as coordinator for Midland. The basis of selection for Midland team members was citizens who are seriously interested in solving the problem surrounding this issue. Including Ms. Hernandez, Martha Garza, Isabel Rey, Joanne DeWitt and Amado Caleron also represented Midland.

The team proposes to form a collation of all minority groups, organizations, interested parents and citizens to form a committee to work with Midland Independent School District on Hispanic educational issues. In the fall, the team will be asked to provide, through a questionnaire, follow-up information. A summary report will be made available then to all participating teams and throughout the state of Texas.

The end result should show acceleration of progress in the Quest for Excellence in the Education of Hispanics in Texas.

Any interested participant wishing to form this collation may contact Ms. Hernandez at 687-7377 during business hours or 683-2665 after 5:00 p.m.

Temporary Resources specializes in temporary staffing

Temporary Resources is a locally-owned company that has been specializing in providing temporary help for eight years.

Owner Patricia deLittle says that being locally controlled and totally dedicated to temporary services allows Temporary Resources to offer things that other companies can't give.

Patricia started her career in this field as a temporary for a national company. Later, she became a branch manager for one of the national companies.

Recognizing that Midland businesses could greatly benefit from a local company, Patricia started her own company, Temporary Resources, five years ago.

Temporary Resources can offer better service, says Patricia, "because decisions are made locally not off in New York, Detroit, or Switzerland." People who understand Midland businesses make the decisions at Temporary Resources.

One important decision that has long been settled at this local office is that temporaries perform better and enjoy their assignments more when they get personal attention. That's why Office Manager Barbara Smith and Associate Manager Fran Hawke dedicate much time to each interview. Finding out whether the applicant is qualified as a word processor, secretary, clerk, receptionist, or marketing temporary is only part of the task. Getting to know the individual's personality is equally important.

Once a temporary starts accepting assignments, the professionals at Temporary Resources still maintain contact with that temporary at least twice a week. On Wednesday when the temporary picks up her check (checks are issued each week) and on Friday when she turns in her time card Barbara, Fran, and Patricia will take time to find out how things are going.

"We don't just send out warm bodies; we send qualified people," says Patricia. That's why Temporary Resources is confident enough to offer a 100 percent guarantee. If a company does happen to get a temporary that "just isn't working out," one call to Temporary Resources is all that is neccessary to solve the problem.

Temporary Resources offers customers two to four hours of free training time. This is a real plus.

Patricia emphasizes that temporary employment is their specialty, not a side line to permanent placement. Companies that depend on a Temporary Resources temporary sometimes want to make that individual a permanent employee. Patricia says, "All that we ask is that they try the temporary out for eight weeks. Then they are free to hire them." No extra fees will be charged.

Patricia announces that Temporary Resources is now able to offer a payrolling service at a low, low mark up. This service allows companies to add an employee without having to put that individual on their payroll.

The company's success is evidenced by tremendous growth in the last eight years. Recently, an Odessa office was opened in The Market Place and Tausha Day became an account executive for Midland and Odessa.

To find out how Temporary Resources can serve your company call 684-0527.

Sewing Machine Supply carries complete new Singer line

"I've seen a miracle – a miraculous new, state-of-the-art Singer sewing machine," exclaimed Catherine Claggett, owner of Sewing Machine Supply in the Village Shopping Center.

Catherine was commenting on the new arrival of the Ultra Unlimited sewing machine by The Singer Company which she believes is, as its name implies, the ultimate in sewing ease and creativity.

Just in time for Mother's Day and graduation, Sewing Machine Supply is offering this incredible new machine at just $1199. That's a $300 savings on this state-of-the-are Ultra Unlimited sewing machine.

The Ultra Unlimited features Singer-exclusive fool-proof six-second threading which totally eliminates threading errors; automatic tension which accommodates the vast majority of sewing projects; a convenient wind-in-place bobbin and low bobbin indicator; an electronic buttonholing system which, in one step, stitches any of three varieties of buttonholes perfectly every time; built-in accessory storage; and a built-in handle.

"Since this sewing machine is so easy to use, it is perfect for any level of sewing skill," said Catherine.

Extraordinary features of the Singer Model 6268 ilnclude the capacity to produce an unlimited number of stitch patterns over and above its 24 built-in construction, stretch and decorative stitches due to easy-to-use, interchangeable Sew-Ware cartridges similar to video game cartridges; to monogram and embroider electronically and automatically – perfect initials and decorative motifs, such as flowers and animals, up to 2¼ inches in diameter; and to sew sideways so that patching and mending can be accomplished without turning fabric or opening seams. All of these are revolutionary break-through sewing machine features from Singer.

"Never before has Singer offered so many outstanding sewing machine features at such a reasonable price," concluded Catherine.

Sewing Machine Supply in the Village Shopping Center is excited to be able to carry Singer's completely new line including The Stylist (model 6233), The Deluxe Free Arm (model 7105), The Debutante (model 6212) and The Fashion Mate Deluxe (model 1280). All these machine have a handle on top for easy carrying.

The Stylist threads in six seconds, offers ten popular stitches and is designed for easy bobbin removal and slant needle sewing.

Bobbin removal is also simple with The Deluxe Free Arm which features a self-threading take-up lever and eight built-in stitches as well as a built-in buttonholer.

Likewise, The Debutante sews perfect buttonholes, has a self-threading take-up lever, and no fuss bobbin removal. This machine offers five popular stitches including blind hem and overedge.

For nineteen stitches, including everything from stretch to decorative, The Fashion Mate Deluxe is the perfect choice. Horizontal thread delivery gives better stitching and the machine adjusts to various fabric thicknesses.

Sewing Machine Supply makes owning a one of the new Singer machines even better by offering in shop repairs (on all makes).

Whatever model you chose Singer, Husqvarna Viking, New Home or another, Catherine says they have accessories and an all wood cabinet for your machine. The experts at Sewing Machine Supply will mount your machine in the cabinet and deliver it at no extra charge.

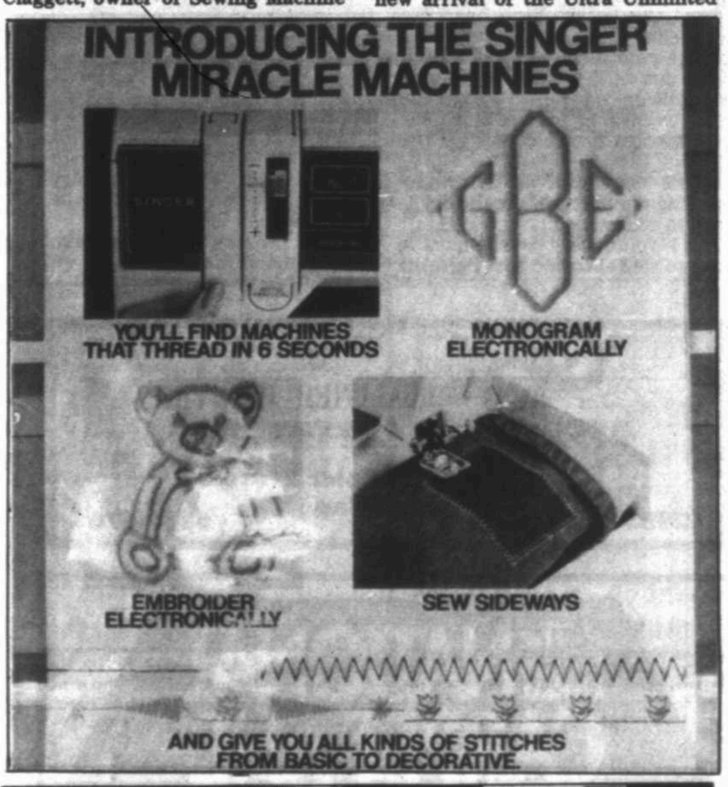

To make owning a new sewing machine or cabinet even easier, Sewing Machine Supply has a rent-to-own program.

This rent-to-own in an inexpensive way to get the sewing supplies you need. Financing for purchases of $200 or more is also available and lay-a-way is another good possibility. Sewing Machine Supply will even accept your Visa or Master Card and your trade in.

Be sure to have your scissors and pinking shears sharpened while you're at Sewing Maching Supply where you'll find used machines, new Husqvarna Viking, Singer, and New Home machines.

In addition, they are offering a free arm Glaco sewing machine, which weighs less than twelve pounds and is ideal for travelers. This handy machine does a zig zag stitch and stretch stitch and is equipped with a handle.

Catherine says, "Whatever your sewing needs are, see us first – you might be surprised."

Troy Davis Quick One Hour Photo Service, Midland's only one day disk processing center, is now conveniently located at 433 Andrews Highway on the corner of Michigan. Right now Troy is offering a tremendous bargain on fine Fuji film. For just $5.25 you can get two rolls of Fuji 100, 24 exposure AND one roll of Fuji 100, 16 exposure! That's 64 shtos for an incredibly low price.

For years Midlanders have depended on Troy's high quality prints. Rightfully so. Troy is an expert in his field and before entering the processing business Troy was a professional photographer with a studio in Odessa for seven years.

Troy believes that if a job is worth doing, it is worth doing well. That's why he uses the latest equipment and only Kodak chemicals when he processes your film.

Troy keeps up with the latest trends. Disc film is becoming increasingly popular, and Troy explains that he is the only processor in town that is ready to process the disk film in just ONE DAY. Permian Sign offers heat transfer signs with five year warranty

Jack Brady announces that Permian Sign Company has just put the only Sign Tech heat transfer machine in this area into operation. This is some of the most innovative equipment that has been introduced to the sign industry in years.

At Permian Sign Company this incredible sign making machine actually melts the paint into the flex material for illuminated signs. That means no more time-consuming masking and remasking even for those high quality multi-colored signs. (There are 36 colors available.) Now customers can have even higher quality signs in less time!

More incredible than the timely production is the unheard of FIVE YEAR warranty from Sign Tech. Up to now a company was fortunate to get a one year warranty on spray painted signs. Sign Tech is changing the standards of sign-making, offering a five year warranty against fading and tearing. As always, Permian Sign is keeping up with the latest technology and is proud to be the only sign company in the area that is equipped to offer Sign Tech heat transfer signs.

Once the letters have been cut and melted onto the flex material, the sign goes to the shop to have a frame put on it. Permian Sign professionals are careful to design the frame according to specifications, then the sign is stretched onto the frame.

Before long one of the most innovative sign products of the the day is ready to be installed.

This revolutionary development is being so well accepted that Permian Sign Company has had orders from Louisiana, Arizona, and Oklahoma, as well as many orders from Permian Basin businesses.

Permian Signs, located at 1400 Cotton Flat Road, is open Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

An innovative, high quality product in next to no time - that's the sign of Permian Sign Company.

Basin 2-Way Radio offers sales and service on mobile equipment

"It's a fact that air time is 98 percent cheaper than road time," says Kenneth Cook, president of Basin 2-Way Radio, Inc. 1135 West 42nd.

From the oilfield to the professionals, to a single user, Basin 2-Way Radio, Inc. has been serving the Permian Basin since 1977, selling, designing, installing, licensing and maintaining commercial business band 2-way radio systems.

Basin 2-Way supplies mobile equipment for RCC Operator Assist Service and IMTS Bell Telephone equipment.

Basin 2-Way keeps abreast of all the latest technology introducced by the manufacturers, so if you haven't shopped lately to update or replace your out-of-office communications equipment, you owe it to yourself to look at the newest product lines. Radio is 35-50 percent less expensive than it was two years ago.

Technological advances in the industry and the definite need for state-of-the-art mobile equipment in this area recently prompted Basin 2-Way to introduce "Petro-Phone," the newest innovation in mobile phone/2-way radio equipment.

Petro-Phone operates on the 800 MHZ frequency and features 563 exchange on all mobile phones. It features an out of range indicator, last number redial, speed dialing, ten number storage for most frequently called numbers, call forwarding, direct dial, full duplex or common carrier long distance and credit card calling. 1-800 and directory assistance calls are permissible. Your telephone will ring when you get a call while you are in the dispatch or 2-way radio mode.

Please feel free to call Basin 2-Way Radio Inc. at 915-563-9135, 915-362-4777 or stop by 1135 West 42nd in Odessa for a personal demonstration of the new "Petro-Phone" or other 2-way radio equipment. Serving the Midland area is sales representative Don Thornton.

Basin 2-Way is manufacturer's representative for Uniden Corporation of America, Standard, E. F. Johnson and Tac-Tel (formerly RCA), and is equipped to service virtually all makes of mobile telephones or 2-way radios such as Motorola and GE.

"We have an excellent service department and you will receive service from the one who sells it. We won't sell you, then forget you," says Joe Casas, sales manager. Service manager George Scarpa coordinates all service activities in the area.

The staff at Basin 2-Way Radio, Inc., 1135 West 42nd in Odessa says, "Please stop in or call 915-563-9135 or 915-362-4777 for more information or a personal demonstration of the 'Petro-Phone,' or any other 2-way radio equipment." This professional staff including (standing, left to right) Joe H. Casas (sales manager), Carrie (receptionist/secretary), Kenneth D. Cook (president), Laurie (office manager), and (kneeling) Eddie Hart (installer), James Mendoza (technician), George Scarpa (service manager), and Tim Proctor (head technician) along with Midland sales representative Don Thornton (not pictured) is ready to serve you.

Village Coin paying top dollar for coins

Charles and Gale Green are proud of the wide selection of custom made jewelry they keep in their store. Now is the time to go by Village Coin Shop and make your Mother's Day selection.

Charles Green says thanks to Midland for making Village Coin Shop's first year a successful one.

It has been such a good year that Charles has announced that he is paying "top dollar" for coins right now. If you have a coin that you've been thinking about selling, now is the time to do it.

It is easy to see why Village Coin Shop in the Village Shopping Center has become a regular meeting place for area coin collectors. It's always fun to get together with other collectors between shows and Village Coin Shop makes it even better by constantly offering new things.

With Mother's Day just a couple weeks away, Gale Green says they have many diamonds and precious stones for you to chose from. Charles explains that jewelry is still sold by weight at the Village Coin Shop unless it has a coin or stone in it. He reports that people who shop around return to Village to make their purchase. After all, Gale will custom design jewelry for individuals. For her customers' convenience she accepts Master Card and Visa on jewelry purchases. You will also find other special items for Mom at the Village Coin Shop. If you just can't make up your mind, Gale suggests, "Give Mom a gift certificate and let her pick."

Charles also suggests that you call Village Coin Shop to get an up to the minute spot on gold and silver coins. They have recently acquired a coin Teletype, and this service is free and more up to date than the figures a collector can get from his broker. Just give Charles or Gale a call at 685-1711.

You'll still find the bid board, gold and silver bullion in stock, free appraisals on small lots, daily quotes on bullion, and jewelry sold by weight at the Village Coin Shop.

The bid board is getting more and more attention so now is the time to go check it out. Just put up the coin or coins you are ready to trade and wait for the high bid. Be sure to check out the wide selection, too. You may want to bid on something for your collection.

Charles and Gale are looking forward to getting to see everyone at the next Coin Club meeting. The club meets at the store each third Thursday at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited.

Don't forget Mother's Day. You can use your VISA and MASTERCARD on everything except the gold and silver bullion and all transactions are held in strictest confidence.

Fall fashions feature return of paisleys, miniskirts

By JUDIE GLAVE

NEW YORK (AP) — Big shoulders are still big fashion news, but the designers who previewed their fall and winter collections for 1985-86 last week do not let the look dominate styles as in seasons past.

Instead, they soften it by teaming padded big shirts and coats with plenty of sassy, short skirts, which designers are hoping make a comeback this spring.

But the one-look trend is long gone and there are just as many swing, midcalf and circle skirts to satisfy those who won't dare bare their knees.

The usual complement of fall tweeds, houndstooth and checks are shown by all. But the patterns get a lift this season when used in jewel-rich backrounds of ruby, sapphire, emerald and topaz.

And get ready to pull out the sunglasses — paisley is back.

Used in overkill proportions during the psychedelic '60s, the funky teardrop shape turns up everywhere: in Bob Mackie's beaded gowns; Ann Klein's sarong skirts; Adri's sweaters; Gucci's dress shirts; and Willi Smith's camp shirts and even sneakers.

Several — like Bill Blass for Blassport and Mary Jane Marcasiano — went a step further, mixing the busy pattern with giant windowpane checks. Sometimes it worked, most times it did not.

AS FOR PANT STYLES, last year's popular cropped or cuffed designs are offered but the tapered, tailored look abounds.

For evening, the trend is, in a word, black: Black velvet. Black lace. Black spangles and beads. Black jersey.

Sometimes mixed with gold lame or brocade and other times contrasting white satin, the look is elegant (and expensive) with a capital E.

Previews continue next week with fashion heavyweights Calvin Klein, Perry Ellis, Bill Blass, Ralph Lauren, and Oscar de la Renta unveiling their designs.

The following are highlights of collections viewed last week:

— Adri: Blooming roses and paisley patterns staples here, used in slim pants, boxy jackets, big shirts and sweaters but rose print is overdone when mixed with plaids. Ribbed knit sweaters, miniskirts, leggings and shell tops nice for day but at times bulky looking. Sweater dresses for night dull.

— Geoffrey Beene: Wonderful details like french-cuffed sweaters and hooded wrap scarves jazz up daytime skirts teamed with tight jersey tops in colors of bronze, bone and copper. Nighttime outfits dazzle in slink and full-skirted designs mixing velvet and lame, satin and lace, and sparkling beading.

— SALLY BEERS: Street clothes for the young. Tank tops and skintight cropped pants, clingy jersey dresses and three-quarter jackets in black and olive drab. Peek-a-boo holes and arm-length glooves added interest to a couple of otherwise plain black sheath dresses.

— Blassport: Sophisticated separates: ankle-button pants, miniskirts and round-shouldered coats mark Bill Blass' sportswear collection. Soft aqua, pink and lemon used. Mohair, windowpane sweaters with a garland bust flowers fresh look for fall, as are jeweled jackets and dyed shearling coats for evening.

— Tony Chase: Dazzling designs for evening with yards and yards of sequins, spangles, dangling pearls and luxurious mink-trimmed coats and capes the heart of this theatrical collection. Clingy satins and jersey, lace peplum jackets, cocoon-draped arms and drop-waisted and flounce skirts a specialty.

— Liz Claiborne: The dress — tailored, classic, sensible and affordable in vibrant solids, black and white checks and subdued plaids in a variety of "seasonless," natural fabrics. Shirtwaists with wide, flared skirts. Knife-pleated knit skirts with coordinated tops and big jumpsuits.

— Gucci: Outfits combining modern styles with Old World elegance feature vibrant tartan day suits with velvet collars and huggy knit dresses. Exquisite details in leather wrap coat sporting English riders and hunting dogs pattern. Sporty look for men in lush corduroys and bright and roomy cardigans.

— Carolina Herrera: Very dressy and very fitted. Geometric shapes and striking combinations of drop dead black and pure colors like cobalt, raspberry, kelly and purple. Daywear was best in muted tweeds and houndstooth.

— BETSEY JOHNSON: Wacky prints in day-glo colors, pterodactyls, spiders and speckled trout, appear on thigh-high sweater dresses of wool and acrylic with matching leggings. Turtleneck knit minis with black fishnet stockings over matching tights. Crinolines worn as skirts. Fun fashion with lots of props.

— Norma Kamali: Campy, vampy, fun collection featuring jungle full of fake tiger, leopard, zebra and persian lamb big shawl coats and jackets. Some are belted and teamed with midcalf panne skirts for suit look. Nighttime mainly black satin gowns with bubble flounces at hips and Victorian lace detail.

— Michael Katz: Colorful, one-of-a-kind handpainted silks and satins in tunics and crop pants, short skirts, sheaths, coat dresses. Dolman sleeves and fitted torsos. Wide shoulders.

— Anne Klein: Leather cowgirl outfits. Lots of suede. A great angora pinto pony pattern for sweaters. Lots of black and white in dramatic separates. Rich fabrics. Stirrup pants, pleated trousers and jodphurs. Slim skirts and circle skirts. Muted paisley challis blend with suede.

— BOB MACKIE: More beads, more spangles. Especially nice were full, shimmery moire skirts in brown, green and blue with black velvet and lace bodices. Wool coats in bright solids were smashing with extra wide collars that doubled as hoods.

— Mary Jane Marcasiano: Pastel snowflakes on mohair sweaters teamed with miniskirts and ribbed leggings or skintight skipants. Garish violet paisley and black windowpane checks used in pleated midcalf skirts, bow blouses and tight pants. Black, metallic-flecked sweater sets for evening.

— Albert Nipon: Tartan plaids, paisley, neutral tweeds, tapestries, white on white floral jacquard, windowpane checks — wonderful alone, garish when mixed haphazardly. For evening, jewel colors, rich fabrics, simple, slim lines.

— Giorgio Sant' Angelo: Velvet, gold brocade, satin and clingy jersey used in jacket and skirt wrap separates that drape the female form.

DEAR ABBY

Bike-riding taught safely

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Ashamed," the male college student who never learned to ride a bicycle. I'm a 27-year-old male who's never learned how to ride a bicycle either. I can't believe there are two of us! I certainly can identify with his shame and embarrassment.

Ironically, I recently completed a motorcycle course and obtained my license. — MIKE IN WICHITA

DEAR MIKE: Don't give up. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in response to the letter from a young college man who did not know how to ride a bike and was embarrassed to ask.

Bicycle USA has trained cycling instructors in virtually every state. Contacting a local bike shop, bicycling club or Bicycle USA (6707 Whitestone Road, Suite 209, Baltimore, Md. 21207) directly should be sufficient to put anyone interested in learning to ride a bike in touch with a certified instructor. No matter what the age of the rider, instructors have the skills and experience to be of assistance. Often instructors teach through local park and recreation offices, or through bike shops.

Bicycling safely becomes more and more important as more people commute to work, ride on the weekends and make cycling a family activity. We stress safety!

I hope you can find room for this in your column, Abby. — SUSAN BAXTER, INSTRUCTOR, EUGENE, ORE.

DEAR SUSAN: Find room? I'll make room to promote safety in cycling. Especially since May is National Bicycle Month.

DEAR ABBY: I have a business partner whom I must telephone at home between five and 10 times daily. He has two small children, 4 and 7 years old, and the competition between these children to answer the telephone is a great source of irritation to me.

My partner allows his children to answer the telephone and also screen his calls, and every time I call I am subjected to these competitive kids who obviously are fighting over who should answer the phone.

This is so upsetting to me that I want to scream! Am I wrong to feel this way? — GOING OUT OF MY MIND

DEAR GOING: No. You can't help how you "feel," but in the interest of maintaining your sanity, you should tell your partner what's on your mind before you go out of it.

(Problems? Write to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. All correspondence is confidential.)

Accessories for spring boldly native

Hearst News Service

Imagine yourself wandering through the noisy, crowded nooks and crannies of a bazaar in Delhi or Marrakesh in search of brass bracelets, carved wooden bracelets or necklaces dangling with glass and brass beads. Or picture the lush, warm climate of a tropical island as you gather shells to string on a necklace or belt.

You don't have to go to the ends of the world to find the treasures of the world. Accessory designers are using their native instincts to bring them to you.

Prices can range from about $190 for a ceramic necklace with animal print from Yves St. Laurent to under $20 for a wooden necklace with carved animals that you make yourself.

NATION IN BRIEF

Videotape, armored car may yield clues in heist

NEW YORK (AP) — A videotape and an abandoned armored car could yield valuable clues to a nearly $8 million robbery of a Wells Fargo depot in which four masked gunmen ambushed and disarmed four guards, authorities say.

Investigators "have some very encouraging leads," said Kenneth Walton, deputy director of the FBI's New York office. "I think we'll have a break in this relatively soon."

The four thieves, carrying handguns, surprised the armed guards at Wells Fargo's five-story garage near the Hudson River about 1:20 a.m. Monday, police said.The $7,896,000 haul may have been the largest U.S. cash robbery ever.

The men waited until the guards had opened a vault where about $20 million in cash was kept, then disarmed them, handcuffed them to a handtruck and loaded cash onto the van themselves, said Chief Robert Johnston, chief of operations.

The van was found empty several hours later on the other side of Manhattan.

FBI rescues kidnapped girl

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A man obsessed with an orphaned girl kidnapped and held her for two years before FBI agents discovered them just hours before the girl's picture was broadcast on national television, her sister said.

John Stanley Sykora, 32, of Chicago, was charged Monday with kidnapping Cheryl Cramer on April 6, 1983, while she was walking to school near her home in Hamilton Township, N.J., said FBI spokesman Joe Del Campo.

Cheryl, now 16, "appeared relieved, was anxious to be reunited with her family and was cooperative" when she was found, Del Campo said.

Miss Cramer's story was to be aired near the end of an NBC-TV special on missing children after a third showing Monday night of "Adam," the story of Adam Walsh, who was kidnapped and slain in Florida.

Tablets note comet sighting

NEW YORK (AP) — Two fragments of Babylonian clay tablets that have been overlooked for 100 years in the archives of the British Museum contain a record of the earliest reliable sightings of Halley's comet, researchers say.

The tablets, which have been resting in drawers in the museum's archives, have allowed astronomers to calculate that Halley's comet rounded the sun between Nov. 9 and Nov. 26, 164 B.C.

C.B.F. Walker of the British Museum calls the discovery "the first significant addition to our knowledge of the past history of the comet" in more than a century.

"This is the earliest reliable sighting of Halley's comet from anywhere in the world," said F. Richard Stephenson, one of the researchers who made the discovery.

Lawyer attacks testimony

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Claus von Bulow's chief attorney tried to portray Martha "Sunny" von Bulow's maid as a woman who lied for her mistress and resented von Bulow long before he was accused of trying to murder his wife.

In two hours of intense cross-examination Monday, lawyer Thomas P. Puccio hammered away at the testimony of Maria Schrallhammer, Mrs. von Bulow's longtime maid and a key witness in von Bulow's first trial in 1982.

Miss Schrallhammer, 62, testified last week that von Bulow refused for five hours to call a doctor for his wife when she slipped into her first coma in December 1979. She also said she saw a black bag containing insulin and a syringe among von Bulow's effects a month before Mrs. von Bulow's second, permanent coma in 1980.

Judge declares mistrial in oilman's murder case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge declared a mistrial and Ricky Kyle burst into tears after a jury deadlocked 10-2 in favor of convicting him of murdering his millionaire father to avoid being disinherited.

"We're elated that the state failed to convince these fine jurors that Ricky Kyle committed a crime," said Kyle's attorney, Jack Pate. "We anticipated an acquittal and we continue to anticipate it."

Superior Court Judge Robert Devich ended the six-month trial Monday after jurors deliberated 4½ weeks but failed to reach a verdict. Devich set a June 21 hearing on a possible retrial.

Kyle, 22, who was accompanied to court by his wife, Kelly, and their son, Justin, declined to comment.

Henry Harrison Kyle Sr., 60, a former Dallas resident, was shot to death July 22, 1983, in his Bel-Air mansion as he and Ricky Kyle searched for prowlers. The prosecution contended he was murdered, but the defense portrayed Ricky Kyle as firing in self-defense against his abusive, overbearing father.

Deputy District Attorney Lewis Watnick said he was disappointed.

"We did have what I would consider overwhelming evidence," he said. "Ten jurors thought it was a very solid case. If 10 believe it was sufficient...."

Watnick said he thought the case would be retried.

The prosecution contended Kyle killed his father because he feared being written out of Kyle Sr.'s will.

The elder Kyle, whose personal fortune was estimated at $20 million, headed a $100 million empire that included apartments, restaurants, dairy farms, coal mines, a bank and a television production company.

Juror Bruce Bauder, 32, disclosed that only two jurors voted for a first-degree murder conviction on the first ballot.

Scuffle between senators Parmer, Parker overshadows filibuster

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. Hugh Parmer, D-Fort Worth, apologized on the floor of the Texas Senate early today after scuffling in a Capitol hallway with Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, in a skirmish triggered when Parmer made a comment regarding Parker's recent indictment.

The incident occurred shortly before midnight and overshadowed a filibuster that Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, waged for almost 20 hours in an attempt to defeat, or at least delay, passage of a proposal to put the state in charge of regulating shrimp and oyster fishing.

After Truan sat down at 5:44 a.m., extending his filibuster to 19 hours 52 minutes, the Senate tentatively approved the bill he opposed on voice vote. After adjourning for a few seconds, the Senate returned and sent the bill to the House, also on voice vote.

Truan kept on talking as Parmer accepted Parker's invitation to step outside to settle their differences.

Senate Sergeant-at-arms Steve Guest said he saw Parker throw Parmer against the wall, and another witness said Parmer's glasses flew off. Parmer said Parker grabbed him by the vest and swung him around but he didn't remember hitting the wall or momentarily losing his glasses.

"There was no swing. I was not injured. I was not struck," said Parmer, a former mayor of Fort Worth. "He was angry and with some justification."

Parker had joined Truan after 11 p.m. and was at his desk, entertaining shrimpers in the gallery and others with remarks against the legislation when Parmer, from his own desk about 20 feet away, asked if any amendments were pending.

"Parmer, you're going to keep it up and you're never going to be elected to a job two terms — I've been trying to give you advice," said Parker.

Parmer responded, "Senator, I may not be elected but I ain't been indicted yet."

Parker, who is under indictment in Jefferson County on felony charges of engaging in criminal activity and wholesale promotion of obscene material, replied in seemingly good humor, "Just wait. There's some of those who have been and some of us that should have been."

Parmer briefly pursued what amendment was pending, and Parker said, "Sen. Parmer, I think what you and I ought to do is go out back and talk about your smart remarks."

Both senators walked out of the chamber into a hallway near the members' lounge, and several Senate employees dashed after them.

"Knock him out," came a yell that seemed to come from the gallery.

As several reporters ran into the hallway, Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, already was between Parmer, 45, and Parker, 50, who cursed Parmer. Help soon arrived, and the two senators were led back to the Senate floor.

Parmer went to his desk, and addressed Sen. John Sharp, D-Victoria, who was presiding, "Mr. President, I wish to issue an apology to my colleague Sen. Parker and the Senate. I spoke out of turn, and I am sincerely sorry...I wish to apologize to my colleague from Jefferson (County). I was wrong. I was in error, and I am sincerely sorry."

Parmer walked a few steps with his arm around Parker, and patted him on the lower back.

Parmer said later that Parker quickly cooled down "and was very gracious."

Truan, 49, began talking Monday morning after Parker offered an amendment to halt state regulation after two years.

Parker's amendment failed 19-9, which reflected the Senate's favorable attitude toward the bill that first came up Thursday.

The filibuster, which Truan began at 9:52 a.m. Monday, appeared to slow down at 2:15 a.m. today. Truan told a colleague, "I'm getting old, senator. I started to say the years are taking their toll — well, the hours are taking their toll."

Minutes later, however, the 49-year-old lawmaker, who suffered a mild heart attack in January 1979 but returned to the Legislature five weeks later, gained another surge of energy and carried on "for our sea farmers."

He had help from Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, in what they said was an effort to keep "greedy" gulf shrimpers from getting regulation that would benefit them over bay shrimpers.

Parker and Truan said the bill would favor shrimpers in the Gulf of Mexico over bay shrimpers by, in effect, halting bay shrimping.

Santiesteban, the bill sponsor, said last week opponents merely were "in fear of the unknown."

STATE IN BRIEF

Dead killer's car set afire

BEAUMONT (AP) — Fire investigators are trying to determine who set fire to a car driven by Christopher Wilder, who police say killed six women and was suspected in the deaths of several others.

The fire, which started about 1:35 a.m. Saturday, destroyed the 1973 Chrysler New Yorker parked near the Jefferson County service center in Beaumont, Fire Marshal Jack Maddox said. "The fire heavily burned the inside of the car. It is totaled," he said.

Law enforcement authorities say Wilder killed at least six women, including Beaumont nursing student Terry Diane Walden, and was suspected in the deaths of several others.

He died April 13, 1984, in New Hampshire from a bullet fired from his own gun during a struggle with law officers.

Police found Wilder's car abandoned in a Beaumont parking lot about one week before he died. County officials said they had wanted to get rid of the car, but could not do so because of pending lawsuits by survivors against Wilder's estate.

Eighth grader wins spelling bee

DALLAS (AP) — For the second year in a row, 13-year-old John Stephens has survived 19 rounds to take The Dallas Morning News Regional Spelling Bee.

The eighth grader from Marshall Junior High School in Marshall calmly spelled 'banal' in the final round to retain the championship.

This was the third year in which John had competed in the regional bee. He placed fourth in 1983. He now advances to the National Spelling Bee in Washington, D.C., June 3-7.

Jail inmate found dead in cell

McALLEN (AP) — A man arrested after police answered a burglary call was found dead in his padded cell shortly after he was jailed Monday, authorities said.

Capt. Alex Longoria said the man was arrested about 6:35 a.m. Monday after officers answered a burglary call. He had been arrested for disorderly conduct. "Officers tried to talk to him and he was incoherent. They took him into custody and when they were booking him he refused to identify himself," Longoria said.

He said when officers made a routine cell check shortly after 7 a.m., the man was on the floor.

Immigrant endows UT Arlington

ARLINGTON (AP) — A German immigrant interested in promoting academic excellence in plant science has left about $1 million in his estate to the University of Texas at Arlington.

University officials, in announcing the bequest, said Monday it may be one of the largest endowments UTA has ever received.

Rudolf Hermanns, a 25-year resident of Arlington, died of cancer April 1 and left an estate of rare coins, stamps, Kruggerands and other U.S. holdings to UTA. A similar endowment was made to the university in Geisenheim-Rheingau, West Germany, of all his European holdings.

In his will, Hermann, who was born in Germany and became a U.S. citizen in 1963, stipulated that both endowments are to be used for research and academic study in plant science.

White names jail panel member

AUSTIN (AP) — Harris County Sheriff Johnny Klevenhagen was named Monday by Gov. Mark White to be a member of of the Commission on Jail Standards for a six-year term.

Klevenhagen, 44, replaces former Sheriff Jack Heard of Houston, whose term expired.

Son wants to search dump for father's body

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — David McRimmon says all he wants is a military memorial service for his father, and he's willing to bulldoze his way through a garbage dump in search of his dad's remains to get it.

McRimmon's father, Donald Ray McRimmon, disappeared Oct. 26.

His pickup truck was seized in Utah in December and a 21-year-old man and a 16-year-old girl arrested there for the alleged slaying of the elder McRimmon.

Police in Haltom City, a Fort Worth suburb, charged Richard Allen Nicholson with murder in the case, but last week, a Tarrant County grand jury refused to indict Nicholson for murder.

The charge was filed after his 16-year-old girlfriend told police he had strangled McRimmon with an electrical cord, then dumped his body in a trash bin in Denton.

Police said trash from that dumpster was deposited in a landfill near Lewisville, but they never searched for the body.

The San Antonio Express-News reported Monday that Haltom City Police Chief Jerry Robbins said a no-bill was returned after the 16-year-old girl changed her story before the grand jury.

Robbins was out of town and could not be reached Monday. Assistant District Attorney Wes Ball said he could not comment on any grand jury testimony.

Ball said he still believes McRimmon is dead and the case is still open.

Asked if he is sure McRimmon's body is in the landfill, Ball said, "I'm not convinced of anything at this point."

The younger McRimmon, who still believes the unidentified girl's story, said he is prepared to go into the landfill himself and search.

A Fort Worth construction company has agreed to loan him a backhoe and a bulldozer and 50 of his friends have agreed to help, McRimmon said.

"If I can get the cooperation of everyone involved and there hasn't been too much dumped there, I will go in myself," he said Monday.

"To my family, that's still my father out there in that dump," he said.

McRimmon, a staff sergeant at Randolph Air Force Base in San Antonio, said his father was an Air Force veteran.

"The only thing that meant anything to my father was his military career," McRimmon, 27, said. "The only thing he wanted on his passing was a military type service."

Such a service is not possible without a death certificate, he said. And a death certificate cannot be obtained without a body or a murder trial, he said.

"I told my brothers and sisters this was my last attempt. The chances of me finding that body are very, very slim. But it's something I've got to do," he said.

Mike Groomer, city manager for Haltom City, said conducting such a search would be like "looking for a needle in a haystack."

The project could cost as much as $500,000, Groomer said, and there is no guarantee the body would be found.

Lawmaker's bribery trial scheduled to start

BEAUMONT (AP) — State Rep. Frank Collazo, who faces trial on a bribery charge, says he is "comfortable and ready to go" in the case.

Jury selection was scheduled to start today in the trial of Collazo, 53, a Port Arthur Democrat who was indicted March 21 on the second-degree felony charge.

The indictment alleges Collazo in 1982 solicited partnerships in two businesses owned by Chester Slay, a Beaumont businessman and former state representative, in exchange for influencing the Texas Water Quality Board and Texas Department of Water Resources.

Slay last year lost a water pollution lawsuit brought by the state.

Defense attorneys in a pretrial hearing Monday asked state District Judge Leonard Giblin Jr. to allow the trial to be videotaped for television.

However, the judge denied the request.

Defense attorney Louis Dugas said he wanted the trial televised "because our client is a public official, and I think the public ought to see what sort of case that's been brought against him so they can judge for themselves."

If the public viewed the trial, it would offend their sense of justice, the attorney said.

Prosecutor Randy Drewett predicted the trial would last one to two weeks.

The indictment against Collazo alleges he offered to influence pollution enforcement actions pending against Golden Triangle Shipyard and State Welding and Marine Works in exchange for partnerships in firms owned by Slay.

In a civil trial last September, a state district judge assessed fines of $370,000 against the businesses and Slay because of pollution violations. During the trial, Slay said Collazo used his position as a legislator to put pressure on the water resources department to pursue the violations against Slay.
